Men, copters, dogs: Ray still eluding them

By HARRY ROSENTHAL

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) — The search for James Earl Ray, convicted killer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., shifted to new areas Saturday night, but remained concentrated within the 10mile radius of Brushy Mountain State Prison where officials feel he is hiding.

"I feel confident they are in the 10-mile radius," said Warden Stoney Lane, who cut short a vacation in Corpus Christi, Tex., to return here after Ray and six other maximum security prisoners scaled a wall of the prison Friday night.

But, he said, the five prisoners still at large more than 24 hours after the escape apparently had split into two groups. The sixth escapee was recaptured earlier Saturday. concentrating on an area of the New River, six miles east of Brushy Mountain, and another called Beech Fork, five miles due west near Wartburg, the county seat.

The shift in location indicated the prisoners had managed to move some distance on foot during the day, but probably had not been able to leave the rugged, snake-infested Cumberland Mountain area. Searchers using a helicopter tracked down one of Ray's fellow escapers, identified as David Lee Powell, 27, earlier in the day. Two others were spotted, but officials said later they disappeared again - and none had been seen since the capture of Powell, also a convicted murder.

Tennessee's prison chief told reporters Powell offered no resistance as he was taken into eustody while walking down the road near the entrance to the Frozen Head State Park about 8 miles northeast of the penitentiary

He said Powell apparently had been sighted first by a helicopter.

Officials said earlier they believed the six convicts had split into two or more groups are were "pretty much going around in circles" in the heavily forested Cumberland Mountains of East Tennessee

Powell was returned immediately to the penitentiary in a state police car past a gathering of reporters and cameramen into the compound.

The search continued for Ray and the other four. A tennis shoe print belonging to one of the escapees provided authorities with their most tangible clue to date

"This time of year, someone who knows how to live in the woods could make out very well," said Tennessee Corrections Commissioner C. Murray Henderson, adding there are berries to eat. "They could hide out for 10

Ralph Abernathy, former leader of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, reads a newspaper story detailing the prison escape of James Earl Ray, the man convicted as King's killer. Abernathy expressed anger over the incident, saying it is part of an attempt to "destroy" Ray and prevent him from discussing King's slaying. (AP Laserphoto)

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) -Surviving hostages underwent medical tests and then held tearful reunions with their families Saturday after Dutch commandos freed them in predawn raids on a train and school, ending a 20-day siege by South Moluccan terrorists.

orders, shouted over loudspeakers, to Byrd slaps Carter's hand

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd sternly rebuked President Carter Saturday for "overreacting" to congressional surgery on his energy proposals and said the administration has yet to learn how Congress works.

In a Dutch-uncle lecture embodying his strongest criticism yet of the new Democratic president and his energy program, the Senate Democratic leader suggested to reporters that Carter "cool it just a bit at this stage and let the process work.

Byrd said he believed from the start that the administration's energy program had "obvious flaws," although he hesitated to speak out until he analyzed it fully.

So he was nor surprised, he said, when the House Ways and Means Committee on Thursday rejected two key elements of the plan: a standby authority for tax on gasoline and tax rebates on purchase of fuel-efficient

They were ill-conceived and likely to be ineffective in conserving energy.

It was rejection of these two proposals, coupled with a House Commerce subcommittee's vote to decontrol the price of new natural gas, that prompted Carter to charge Friday that the House panels had caved in to auto and oil lobbies at the expense of consumers. Responding to questions at his

Bush talks about CIA, gives views

By JIM STEINBERG

"It was the most complicated and difficult appointment I've had," George Bush said of his one-year directorship of the Central In-telligence Agency, while in Midland

"It was a great challenge to help to strengthen the intelligence-gathering abilities of the agency, at the same time making sure it operated under constitutional constraints," Bush

Bush called the CIA "the best intelligence gathering organization in the world" and said that those associated with it are "a first-rate group of people, battered by criticism, most of it grossly unfair,"

"It's very hard to say how much harm that criticism did because there is no way to know what we are not getting. But it is not realistic to say it didn't cost us some intelligence. People are not going to come forward if they are afraid their name will come out, especially in an un-favorable light," Bush said.

He categorically denied recent allegations that the CIA is funding

He said the administration plan was a "building block" rather than the "alpha and omega" of an energy solution and indicated it may be changed even more — "hopefully strengthened," said Byrd. As it stands now, it doesn't even meet the President's own objectives, he added.

Byrd said he believes Carter's criticism of Congress was a 'mistake'' and added:

"I think it was an overreaction and that it was uncalled for at this point and does not reflect an awareness of how the legislative process works."

Public transportation President wants outcry; Congress has own ideas

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is appealing to the public to pressure Congress to counterbalance pressure from the oil and auto lobbies which he blames for setbacks for his energy plan.

"Unless the American people speak up, the special interests are going to prevail," Carter said in an interview made public Saturday.

Carter said it was "very disturbing" to see congressional panels "begin to chip away at individual component parts' of his energy plan.

"There has to be compensatory interest and pressure from the general public in a constructive fashion on members of Congress demanding strong action to counterbalance the intensely focused and highly visible pressure that is put on the members of Congress by special interest lobbyists here on a daily, hourly basis..." the President said in the interview, which was conducted Friday with members of the Magazine Publishers Association.

"Unless the American public can be aroused to help me and others who believe that this is extremely important and (unless) ...the American public is willing to accept some sacrifice if it is fair, I am afraid that we are not going to have an adequate do with taxes and rebates. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, recommended that the President's strategy to curb gasoline consumption be drastically revised.

Diversity of state proves disadvantage on school finance

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - By now, most peoplehave read that a real cat fight still is brewing between "big city slickers" and "rural kicker" members of the Legislature over the best way to proceed in the special session to patch up serious philosophical differences with

"I think eventually we have to move to some system that recognizes that some cats have stripes and some cats have spots," Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby has said, believing Texas must eventually move to a tiered system of school finance to cope with this growing dif-

Typically, Texans are proud of the diversity of the Lone Star State, but Hobby and others believe an all out war is in store for the years ahead, unless the Legislature ultimately resolves the problems in funding public schools - through property

And, property taxes, nearly everyone agrees, are unfairly assess-ed and difficult to administer in a state as diverse as Texas.

With the mid-summer special session on school finance, Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton both agree only bandaids," can heal the wounds of the past regular session.

"Between now and 1979, we are going to have to look at all alternatives," the lieutenant governor said, noting his interest in the twotiered approach used in Florida.

Reflecting on the just-completed session. Hobby said of the school finance failure. "What we saw was symbolic of the fact that Texas has become so diverse that it will be impossible in the future to write one school finance plan that is going to address the needs of a Springlake and a Houston," referring to the small West Texas community where Clayton lives, and the state's largest city, which the lieutentant governor calls

Maybe not in time to help schools by the opening of class in September, but ultimately, future school finance legislation "has got to recognize that some rural areas are going to have a whole different set of needs" from urban ares. Hobby said

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has said he Hobby and Clayton have talked about the two-tier approach to school finance, and he, too, is interested in studying the system for the 1980-81

This tiered approach would take into account differences between rural and urban districts on basic factors of school funding local cost of opera-tions, state aid, transportation costs, teacher slaries and equalization

Informal gatherings of legislators and representatives of the education field, have considered an average daily attendance of somewhere around 1,000 pupils as a dividing line between the urban and rural tiers

LONDON (AP) - Riding sidesaddle under a drenching rain. Queen Elizabeth II reviewed the Trooping of the Color Saturday, taking the salute of her subjects in the third and final Silver Jubilee spectacular marking the 25th year of her rise to the throne.

Soaked by the sudden downpour, the Queen sat ramrod straight as thousands of onlookers huddled beneath umbrellas to watch the review, Britain's official celebration of the Queen's 51st birthday.

Her actual birthday is April 21, but tradition set the official party on the second Saturday in June.

The Queen wore the scarlet jacket and gold braid of a colonel-in-chief of the Scots Guard over a long blue skirt as her big black mount Burmese carried her down the half-mile boulevard from Buckingham Palace to Horse Guards parade ground past flagwaveing crowds standing 20-deep at curbside.

Drums and trumpets heralded her approach, preceded by Princess Margaret, Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother, and Princess Anne and her husband Capt. Mark Phillips, who rode in open carriages.

Following the Queen were her husband Prince Phillip, her son and heir Prince Charles and 77- year-old Earl Mountbatten of Burma, each resplendent in scarlet jacket, gold braid, medals and bearskin hat

Scalpers reportedly were asking up to $170 dollars apiece for tickets to the board bleachers at the gravel parade ground.

Diplomats in London for the Commonwealth conference arrived in limousines to join hundreds of ticket holders on the parade grounds. But most Commonwealth heads of state were off for a weekend of informal talks at a Scottish golf and fishing

Bush said he has some reservations about the sincerity of Cuban government claims to want a better relationship with the United States.

The presence of 12,000 Cuban troops in Angola would seem to belie Cuban claims to poverty, Bush said.

"Where does the money come from? Bush asked.

Rosalynn thinks tour 'helpful'

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) Rosalynn Carter, nearing the end of a two-week Latin American good-will tour, said Saturday she made the trip "because I really think it can be helpful to Jimmy," and she rated the tour a success.

Mrs. Carter spoke at a press conference that was delayed when she suffered a slight attack of nausea. The illness forced her to leave a morning meeting with the wife of Venezuela's president and social workers and to miss a scheduled meeting with union

The First Lady was given a nausea pill by her nurse, rested for 45 minutes and then resumed her schedule.

At the press conference, Mrs. Carter was asked if she felt uncomfortable about the feminist aspect of her diplomatic mission.

"I have not been uncomfortable at all," she said. "If it hasn't been done before maybe it is significant.

"I'm doing this because I really think it can be helpful to Jimmy," she said, adding emphatically, "I like being a woman."

The comment drew a round of applause from the women among the American and Venezuelan journalists

Cuba is a surrogate for expanding Russian influence in Africa, Bush

Bush left the CIA to pursue business interests in Houston when President Carter took office Jan. 30.

"That we need an energy program is not open to debate, but the Carter plan was such a discouraged program...it's just about to come unraveled" Bush said

The weakness with the energy planwas, Bush said, "too much emphasis on taxation and not enough on free enterprise.

Bush said he was concerned about the growth of the Washington work force under the Carter administration. Already, the White House staff has increased by 30 per cent, Bush said. And a new energy bureaucracy and consumer protection bureaucracy threaten to undermine one of Carter's major campaign platforms, Bush added

Although declining comment on United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young's recent charges of "racism" against several former presidents. Bush did say that "it was the tradition for the U.S. Ambassador to stay out of politics."

Bush said that there is a consolidation of Chinese leadership emerging out of post-Mao China that may bring better relations with the U.S., if the Taiwan question and the claims and assets question can be resolved.

Bush said that a withdrawal from Israeli-held Arab lands would be necessary before any stability could come to the Middle East, and he was optimistic that this would occur under the new leadership.

Bush has served as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. In that capacity, he was a member of the President's cabinet and a regular participant in all cabinet meetings from March 1971 to January 1973.

He then served as chief of the U.S. liaison office in Peking before being appointed director to the CIA in 1976. Before serving two terms in Congress, Bush was in the oil business in Midland and Houston. He lived in Midland from 1950 to 1959. He was in Midland to attend a wedding. *

Midland schools join budgeting confusion

By KAY HORD

With new legislation on funding public/education delayed, Midland Independent School District joins some 1,100 others in Texas in the confusion about drafting annual budgets.

The budgets, under State law, must be approved by Aug. 20, possibly forcing Midland, in effect, to consider two budgets.

The preliminary budget for MISD, to be presented at the school board meeting Tuesday, is based on the assumption that no new legislation will be passed and that MISD will receive the same amount of state funding as last year. This could result in higher taxes locally and a reduction in personnel, administration officials say. The total operating budget for MISD for 1977-78 is approximately $19.8 million, with 48 per cent coming from the state and 52 per cent coming from local sources. Last year, the district received $8,405,918. This year's budget is based on an estimated $8,398,828 in state funding. Of the $19.8 million, payroll costs account for 80 per cent, leaving approximately $4.5 million for other operating costs. A 15 per cent increase is expected on that $4.5 million, due to inflation, higher utility costs, etc., according to Donald R. Furgeson, business manager.

The increase could result in program cutbacks or in outlays with programs that can be cut if necessary or added if new legislation is passed. "We would, in effect, be working on two budgets," said Dr. James H.

Mailey, superintendent. No payroll costs will be included in the preliminary budget study.

"The teachers deserve a raise because of increased costs of living." said Mailey, "but where there is no increased state funding, the local districts must pick up these increases from local revenues. Salary increases will come strictly from local sources. And, we may have to make some cutbacks in personnel in order to accomodate the salary increases if we get no state financing.

"Local districts will also be expected to assume some responsibility for unemployment insurance and workman's compensation. There is no move to provide state money to assist

"I do not see how we would be able to operate next year if there is no increase in local funding," Mailey

If the compromise bill passes, MISD could realize close to $2 million according to calculations by the Conference Committee. The average daily attendance rate per student would be raised from $99 to $113.50.

House and Senate panels have yet to develop any formal plans for complying with Gov. Dolph Briscoe's guidelines for the special session, expected for mid-July. Before actually assembling lawmakers back at the Capitol, the governor said key members would have to agree what type school finance plans they favored — to avoid "bloodshed."

according to a release from Austin. The governor may have had another reason for delaying the special session until mid-summer, rather than having lawmakers in the vicinity of the Capitol during the latter part of June.

The deadline for the governor to sign or veto such major legislation as individual provisions in the new $15.5 billion two-year state budget, the "nopains" speeding bill and other lesser measures is June 19.

If lawmakers were in the Capitol before June 19, for school funding, they could attempt to override any measure Briscoe refused to enact into

Henderson virtually ruled out the possibility that Ray, the convicted slayer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., had outside help in the spectacular Friday night escape from Brushy Mountain State Prison. The men bolted over a wall on a makeshift ladder as other prisoners created diversions in the yard.

Saturday that it had taken over the search and had placed Ray on its list of 10 Most Wanted Fugitives. All six fugitives were charged with conspiring to violate a 1946 federal law against flight to avoid confinement. The White House said Atty. Gen.

Griffin Bell telephoned President Carter on Saturday morning to give him a progress report on the search.

Charles Bass, assistant corrections commissioner, said the search area was expanded from five square miles to 10 square miles late in the morning after officials found a tennis shoe print. He said the print most likely was made by Larry Hacker, whom he described as the probable leader of the escape.

Henderson said the escapees, four of them convicted murderers, were "pretty much going around in circles," as he said other escaped prisoners have done in the heavily forested area.

Bass said there were strong indications the fugitives split into at least two groups. The search was focused on two areas known as "Frozen Head. a promontory 10 miles from Brushy Mountain, and another area called "Twin Forks.

He said authorities thought the men had split up because of the way the dogs were reacting to the scents they were following.

"Now that they're in daylight, they are a little better oriented than they were before ... But they are still not sure where they are. Henderson said, "As far as we can

men were seen by a guard "at a distance" an hour after they went over the wall with a makeshift ladder just before dusk.

"They picked up the scent of three, then one or two," Henderson said. 'Apparently they divided and are going in different directions.

The only paved road leading from the prison was sealed off in several places by police roadblocks intended to keep the curious out of the area and the escapees in. A seventh felon was wounded and recaptured almost immediately after the escape.

Henderson said the man, Jerry W. Ward, a convicted bank robber serving 20 to 40 years, refused to talk about the escape

"I don't think they had any outside help," Henderson told reporters clustered at the prison gates. "We had no evidence to indicate there was any outside help at all.

VA health care revision sought

By WARREN E. LEARY

WASHINGTON (AP) - The multibillion dollar Veterans Administration health care program is obsolete and costly and should be phased into the country's general health system, says a major National Academy of Sciences report.

The extensive three-year study, commissioned by Congress and released Saturday, said the health system for military veterans generally gives adequate care, but is riddled with problems.

The report said there could be significant improvements in cost and quality of care if VA policies were revised "to permit the VA system ultimately to be phased into the general delivery of health service in communities across the country

The VA, veterans groups and others reacted immediately and negatively to the suggestion that the autonomous VA hospital system be done away with, as they have in the past to similar recommendations. VA Administrator Max Cleland said: "I can personally attest to the fact that the VA hospital system has many areas where improvements can be made. However, any suggestion for elimination of the VA hospital system is contrary to the nation's history of providing for veteran health care. Sen. Alar Cranston, D-Calif., chairman of the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee, called the report "thoughtful and serious" and said he would hold hearings on it in the fall.

However, Cranston said, "I remain fully committed to maintaining a separate VA medical system that can guarantee quality-care for the disabled

R. D. "Bulldog" Smith, national commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, termed the report "insulting and insensitive" and said his organization would "fight any implication ... to do away with the VA hospitals.

Academy's National Research Council did not in recommend abolishing the VA hospital system but integrating it more closely with regular community "I don't think veterans hospitals have to be phased out of existence, "Dr. Saul J. Farber of New York University Medical School, study chairman, told a on the VA to provide care for three million veterans, less than 30 per cent of whom have service-related agency, which would consider VA beds and services

Among other things, the study concluded:

-Many patients admitted to VA hospitals do not require hospitalization and many are kept as inpatients much longer than medically necessary or

-The VA is responsible for substantially more long-term patients than can be accommodated in the 27,000 beds designated for long-term care. There were 44,500 long-term patients in 1975 in VA-operated facilities, many taking up more expensive beds set aside for surgery and acute illness. -The number of veterans requiring long-term care and geriatric services will double in the next 10 years and almost triple in 20 years. The report recommended that low-use VA hospitals be closed or converted to long-term care facilities, and that resources be redistributed to spend more on care for

—VA outpatient services are understaffed, ineffectively managed and not well organized. More resources should be rechanneled to outpatient services to provide better continuity of care and to cut hospitalization, the study said.

-Staffing at psychiatric hospitals is inadequate to provide for more than custodial care. More than half the patients in VA psychiatric beds do not appear to require hospitalization, and many could be treated as outpatients if there were extensive social-support services not provided now

The report also concluded that VA dental services were inadequate and that too few VA hospitals do special surgery - such as for heart and kidney conditions — for there to be maximum utilization of expensive surgical facilities.

Dr. David Tilson of the National Research Council. staff director of the study, said a major recommendation of the report is that future VA facility plann-The 311-page report by a committee of the ing be tied to the needs of the community it is located

Space shuttle price continues to increase

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The glider-like manned space shuttle, whose cost was estimated five years ago at $250 million apiece, has climbed to as much as $600 million for each 74-ton spacecraft.

Only one of five shuttle craft has been built, at a cost of almost $500 million. A second is being assembled at Rockwell International's factory in Palmdale, Calif., and is expected to cost a little more than $500 million. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration told Congress three months ago the last three would cost $550 million apiece but a new estimate could push that cost to $600 million.

"We expect by the end of this month a new proposal from Rockwell for the last three spacecraft," said Christopher C. Kraft Jr., director of the Johnson Space Center in Houston, where the shuttle is managed. "I don't know how much Rockwell's going to suggest but they're for sure going to cost more than the last estimate

Labor takes up at least 70 per cent of the shuttle's cost right now, with an estimated 48,000 workers earning more than $5.5 million a day assemble ing the second shuttle craft and getting the first one ready for manned flight tests.

NASA hopes to have congressional approval to start construction of the third shuttle craft before the end of the year. The third spacecraft in a line of five is earmarked for shipment in March 1982 to Vandenberg Air Force Base in California, where it will be used by the Pentagon to haul its five-craft fleet, mostly because the shuttle is still an unproven space transport system

Together with the Air Force, the space agency is wary of any congressional delay in approving the five-craft fleet. Its officials worry that a delay will mean shutdown of the dozens of subcontractor work forces around the country and the shuttle assembly line in California that will be extremely difficult and costly to start up again.

They also worry that labor and materials costs will escalate so rapidly in the next five years that Congress will balk at the higher pricetags a delay might bring. One NASA official estimated privately that a two-year delay in congressional approval would mean that each shuttle craft affected by the delay would end up costing close to $1 billion.

One major reason for the expected rise in cost for the last three shuttle craft is the rising price of aluminum and titanium, the two key materials used in the shuttle. The space agency bought both metals for its first two spacecraft three years ago when prices were lower but has held off buying metal for the last three.

Each shuttle craft weighs about 153,000 pounds and is the size of a DC9 jetliner. It will have a crew of four astronauts and can carry as many as six passengers. It will also be able to haul 65,000 pounds of cargo into earth orbit and is expected to replace every rocket now used by the United States except for the small Scout used to launch the smallest satellites into or-

Amin continues curbs on Britons in Uganda

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ugandan President Idi Amin, humiliated by Britain's opposition to his attending a Commonwealth conference, imposed more curbs Saturday on some 300 Britons living in his east African nation. The Britons, mainly missionaries and businessmen, were barred from meeting or moving around in groups of more than three and were warned they face jail if they violate the regulation. Earlier they were told they could not leave the country, according to Radio Uganda broadcasts monitored here.

A British-born businessman, Robert Scanlon, who took Ugandan citizenship two years ago, has been arrested for alleged spying. He faces death by firing squad by the end of next week if found guilty by a military tribunal, according to an official

Utility gives cutback hints on energy use

Summer means air conditioning, and that means higher electric bills. But Texas Electric Service Co. says costs can be held down with a little effort.

The easiest way to lower bills is to raise thermostats," according to Texas Electric air-conditioning specialist S.Y. Bowlin. The company recommends a setting of 78 degrees as the best balance between economy and comfort.

People with window air conditioners should use an indoor thermometer to set their temperature control rather than relying on what "feels right," he said.

If a house is to be empty all day, raise the thermostat setting five degrees. If the house will be empty for several days, turn the air conditioner off unless something inside would be damaged by the

The weather may send electric bills higher this summer than in recent years. "We've enjoyed two cooler-than-normal summers. If this turns out to be a hot summer, air conditioners will be working harder and using more electricity," he said. Insulation offers the greatest potential for saving money. "Properly insulating a house that had no insulation can lower cooling costs 40 per cent." Insulation is measured in terms of its resistance to heat flow - called its "R value." Texas Electric recommends ceiling insulation of at least R26. The amount of insulation required to reach a certain R value depends upon the type of insulation used. For instance, R26 insulation in the ceiling requires about 12 inches of blown-in fiberglass or nine inches of blown rock wool.

"Most insulation contractors are happy to give you a free estimate on insulating your attic to a specified level," Bowlin said.

'Attic insulation can cost as much as several hundred dollars, but with today's higher energy prices it can pay for itself in only a few seasons." he

Weatherstripping and caulking can also cut cooling costs. This is inexpensive and easy to do, but can lower costs noticeably if a house has many air

The usual culprits are around doors and windows, but other trouble spots can be around wall electrical outlets, attic doors and through-the-door mail slots.

"Of course all the weatherstripping in the world won't help if outside doors are being opened repeatedly. Hot air rushes in every time a door is opened," Bowlin said.

An "open door" that people often forget is the fireplace damper. A fireplace draws air whether there is a fire in it or not. If the damper is left open all summer, a lot of cool air and money will be going up Another way to save air conditioning costs is to operate the air-conditioning equipment properly That includes cleaning or replacing air conditioning

Outside, air conditioning equipment should be given room to blow off its hot air. Shrubs or grass too close to the compressor unit will restrict air circulation and cut efficiency.

Landscaping can be used to the homeowner's advantage, however. Trees and shrubs should be planted so that they shade the house as much as

From the small African country of Kenya to, the large state of Texas, a young man came on a tennis scholarship to Midland College to find a dream come true. Boniface "Kip" Kipkoiross is in Midland this summer working at The First National Bank. The Stars and Stripes became the first and only before the Continental Congress on a muggy Saturday morning two centuries ago.

The new nation was facing grave problems in the early summer of 1777. But as Congress gathered on towar. June 14, the agenda was filled with the nuts and bolts of governing, a series of committee reports and resolutions to be voted up or down. If there was any debate, it was not recorded. A Marine Committee report was approved. Among the items. Capt. John Roach was suspended until the Navy Board could look into allegations against his character, and Capt. John Paul Jones was appointed

When the Americans rebelled against England in 1775, they simply adapted this familiar flag to their own needs. They sewed six white stripes, a traditional mark of rebellion, over the red field. This created the effect of 13 stripes, alternate red official United States flag as a bit of routine business and white, which became the permanent foundation of the American flag. The Union, however, remained in the corner as a token of continued respect for British origins despite the grievances which had led

John Paul Jones claimed to have raised the first one over the American fleet in December, and George Washington hoisted it over the Continental army outside Boston at the opening of 1776.

Once Congress had declared American in dependence, however, the Grand Union with its symbol of continued allegiance to empire was no longer appropriate.

Consequently, some American somewhere came up with the idea of substituting a field of white stars on a blue background for the Union in the corner. Descendants of a Philadelphia seamstress named Betsy Ross claim she sewed the first Stars and Stripes from a design by George Washington a year before the flag resolution by Congress. Historians scoff, but there are records proving Betsy did make flags for the Navy

Thanks to Watergate, money 'could be gotten

"You could get a million dollars.

And you could get it in cash. I know where it could be gotten." — Richard

M. Nixon to John Dean, the Oval Office, March 21, 1973.

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP) - A lot of people made money on Watergate. Bad guys, good guys, little guys,

They all learned, as Richard M. Nixon told John W. Dean III in another context, that cash "could be gotten."

Nixon, of course, got it from television. Others got it by being lawyers, lawyer-authors, principalsturned-writers, reporters-turnedauthors, movie makers, and even sellers of bourbon with the magic word "Watergate" on the label.

In the five years since five burglars were caught in the act on June 17. 1972, Watergate has become a growth industry. Watergate may not have been The American Way, but the profit made on it was.

Estimating the size of the take is as productive as trying to pry the identity of "Deep Throat" from Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein. Suffice it to say that it's in the tens of millions of dollars.

Lawyers, who get up to $250 an hour, did a land office business with 68 individuals and 20 corporations charged with crimes - and, who knows how many others who sought legal counsel because they feared they might be.

Booksellers could fill a section with confessions, defenses, revelations and analyses. The Government Printing Office had volume upon volume of Watergate testimony, exhibits and discussions to sell. A record company went to the Supreme Court, hoping to be allowed to sell copies of White House tapes that brought an administration to ruin.

Watergate - the collection of buildings, not the scandal — has taken its place as a tourist attraction alongside such Washington musts as the Lincoln Memorial, the Smithsonian and the pandas at the National Zoo.

How many rolls of film have captured the windows on the sixth floor of the Watergate office building where the break-in occurred - even though the Democratic Party's offices are long gone and bugging-target Lawrence F. O'Brien now guides the fortune of professional basketball?

The motel across the street, a Howard Johnson's like any other, gets a share of attention because that is where the buggers worked.

The serious money went to a chosen few. We begin with some writers.

The 1976 edition of "Books in Print" has 53 entries under the heading of Watergate. The list is not complete because, for example, the biggest hardcover seller of them all -Woodward and Bernstein's "The Final Days" - is listed in a different

Both book and authors earned the Nixon judgment of "trash," but Simon and Schuster sold 630,000 copies in hardcover, an achievement that a spokesman says was nothing short of phenomenal before "Roots." Sales figures for the paperback version aren't complete, but there is a clue to what they might be. "Woodstein's" first book, "All the President's Men," sold 280,000 copies in hardcover and 4.62 million in paperback.

At royalty rates that run to 15 per cent in the best-seller category, plus movie rights, both reporters became millionaires as well as models for youngsters jamming journalism

"The fastest selling book I've ever seen in 14 years was the 'White House Transcripts,' all paperback," says Michael Fox, education director of the American Booksellers Association. The Bantam issue of the White House-released transcripts sold 1.9 million copies. Dell's version sold 1.7 million. The books were grabbed up before it was known the transcripts were inaccurate and cosmetically

"Blind Ambition," John Dean's confessional written after he served his prison term, sold 223,600 copies at last listing. Leon Jaworski, giving the prosecutor's side, hit the bestseller lists with 205,000 copies of "The Right and the Power." CBS reporter Dan Rather, writing about Nixon's "Palace Guard," racked up a paperback sale of 1.038 million.

You can read about Watergate from The Nixon side, due next year, will bring him an estimated $2 million. The participant side is represented Dean, Jeb Stuart Magruder. Charles Colson and James W. Mc-

Cord, with H.R. Haldeman and John

N. Mitchell yet to come. McCord couldn't get a publisher, so he had his own "A Piece of Tape" printed. Haldeman, after the recent Nixon-Frost interviews, spiced up the sale of the prospective work by saying "I have to challenge President Nixon's story of the coverup! The prosecution side has weighed in with Jaworski's book, another by Watergate trial lawyers Richard Ben-Veniste and George Frampton and one by the prosecution staff press spokesman, James Doyle. The Senate Watergate Committee's majority counsel, Samuel Dash, as well as minority counsel Fred Thompson, each have books

The observer side leads off with Woodward and Bernstein, then comes Anthony Lukas, Barry Sussman, Theodore White, George Higgins, William Safire, Elizabeth Drew, Jimmy Breslin, Clark Mollenhoff, Dan Rather, Frank Mankiewicz, and humorist Art Buchwald.

And there's a wife's side. Mrs. John Dean contributed "Mo." Mrs. Jeb Magruder has a book. Madeleine Edmondson wrote about the women of Watergate.

The scandal is looked at, in other lesser known books, from the left, from constitutional aspects, chronologically in three volumes, from the philosophical angle, from the aggression side, and even for what it reveals about the American capitalistic society.

The only key figure who has not yet entered the literary lists is John J. Sirica, the hero-judge of Watergate and he is thinking about it.

All, of course, is not going into bankbooks. The legal costs of Watergate are wondrous to contemplate, once the disbarments ruined careers months and years spent in prison are subtracted.

Nixon's efforts to get custody of his papers and tapes have run up a bill of more than $600,000 with his lawyers. The costs of fighting what his aides call "harassment suits" have brought the total to nearly $1 million. While Rabbi Baruch Korff's fund-raising activities still were in high gear, some $350,000 of that was paid.

Nixon and his high command of Haldeman, John Ehrlichman or Mitchell, didn't choose smalltime rookie lawyers to be their courtroom gladiators — and neither did the other caught up in the Watergate swirl.

John Wilson, head of Haldeman's defense team, is one of Washington's superlawyers. He came to the Watergate coverup trial every day in his chauffeured limousine. It doesn't of lawyer-hiring. There were hearings take much of a guess that his bill to Haldeman exceeded a half million dollars. How much of it has been paid, isn't known. Haldeman got $100,000 for submitting to Mike Wallace's questions on CBS' "60-Minutes."

After his conviction in the coverup trial, before the expensive trips through the appeals court to the Supreme Court, Ehrlichman complained that his battery of legal talent cost more than $400,000. That quite likely was a factor in Ehrlichman's decision to quit fighting and voluntarily begin his prison term. Soon after his conviction, he left wife and home in Seattle and went to New Mexico, where he turned out a goodselling novel "The Company" which then was sold for a television miniseries. He's at work on another book, and his lawyers undoubtedly are

John Mitchell's tab with crack trial lawyer William G. Hundley surely exceeded the $500,000 figure. That is addition to the $471,390 bill Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans ran up in the Vesco trial - paid for by the Nixon reelection committee.

For all three men — and the dozens of others — the trials were only the tip upon hearings and enough paper used to denude a forest. There were, and are, civil suits to be settled, depositions to be taken, lawyers to be sent to far-away cities at clients' expense, and a lot of bills to be paid. Putting clients on the cuff can have happy endings. The four Cuban-Americans, arrested inside Watergate with James W. McCord Jr., had some help from fund-raising efforts in Miami. Their lawyer, Daniel E. Schultz, sued the Nixon reelection committee claiming his clients had been duped into thinking they were serving the government. The committee settled for $200,000.

The biggest legal bill went to the taxpayer. In its four years of existence, the Special Watergate Prosecution Force received about $8 million and spent most of it.

Henry Ruth, the third in a succession of special prosecutors, commented on the closing of the special prosecutor's office this

"My guess is that by the time all the lawyers, defendants, former Presidents and former prosecutors get through talking and writing about Watergate, the taxes on the royalties will pay for what we spent.

most important educational need of the state' is to close the educational gap between rich and poor districts.

"Passage of this recommendation is so critical to maintaining local control and keeping education out of the courts that other proposed improvements to the Foundation School Program should be foregone, if necessary, to permit passage of this provision," the resolution said.

Equalization of educational opportunity took a back seat during the regular session to such things as a teacher pay raise and reduction of local school district expenditures.

The conference committee report that died on the final night of the session, May 30, provided only $108 million in equalization aid.

Jane Wells, board member from

Austin, said it was "important for us to articulate once again . believe in. It is important for the board not to fall prey to political interests. We should not be subject to the same sort of pressure that falls on the legislature.

Dr. Joseph Gathe, a board member from Houston and a black, said equalization "is obviously a subject that is very close to me. Sometimes feel good, and this is one of them."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he will call a special session, probably in mid-July, if legislators can agree in advance on a bill that would not produce the kind of deadlock that killed the regular session's school finance

Education Commissioner Marlin Brockette said that "from the activity going on between his (Briscoe's) office and our office, we know a special session is contemplated."

The board also approved a five-year plan for vocational programs. estimating that in 1982 there will be 1.3 million students in job-training

But, it said, only 162,000 will graduate from vocational programs that year while 230,000 newly trained workers will be needed by business and industry.

The plan projects a jump in statefederal-local spending on vocational training from $296.5 million in 1977 to $478 million in 1982.

Briscoe seeks new term

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN Tex. (AP) - Gov. Dolph Briscoe enthusiastically announced for re-election Saturday saying he was "more confident than ever."

"I'm a candidate for re-election for governor in 1978," a beaming Briscoe told several hundred cheering supporters and campaign workers. His wife, Janey, stood at his side and threw kisses to the crowd.

If Briscoe should be re-elected and serve out a four-year term he will have served 10 years as Texas governor, longer than any previous chief executive of the state.

Briscoe's strongest opposition to reelection is expected to come from Atty. Gen. John Hill. Hill, who already has a campaign organization, said last week he would announce his final decision after the special session in mid-July.
Texas Republicans also are expected to field a strong candidate. Briscoe, 54, suggested to his supporters that the 1978 campaign goal would be the 92 per cent majority vote he won in his home Uvalde County in

"I ask you to accept that as a challenge," he said, and there was loud applause.

"I ask once again for your help in this campaign to build a better Texas and a Texas of greater opportunity in the years ahead.

Much of the crowd enthusiasm shown during Briscoe's brief an-

Governor talks water

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Gov. Dolph Briscoe stressed import of water to defficient areas of Texas as one of his goals in making his re-election announcement Saturday

Briscoe's reference to water import was probably welcomed by another water conservation supporter. House Speaker Bill Clayton, who shared the platform with the governor and Mrs.

Former executive assistant to the governor Charles Burnell stressed water in his remarks concerning Briscoe's goals and accomplishments, saying making Texas number one in agriculture and providing "ample water for every part of Texas" for future generations are among the goals of the Briscoe administration.

A number of West Texas officials were among the county coordinators and other campaign officials at the gathering in the Hilton Inn.

nouncement talk came in his review of his no-new tax policy.

"Our oppostion said in 1972 we couldn't do it but we proved them wrong in the 1973 legislature." he said. "They said it again in 1974 and we proved them wrong in 1975. And we have proved them wrong again in the 1977 session.

'This means for six years Texas has operated without any new or additional taxes.

"And with your help we will extend that to 10 years.'

There was a standing ovation. He noted there also has been no personal or corporation income tax voted during his administration "and we will keep it that way in the years "Pour it on Dolph," yelled someone "Right on Governor," and "Viva Briscoe," were other cries.

Briscoe ran an unsuccessful race for governor in 1968, which was won by Gov. Preston Smith. In 1972 he was elected for a two-year term. The state constitution was changed by voters to provide four-year terms for governor and Briscoe was elected to the first four-year term in 1974.

Former Gov. Allan Shivers holds the record for having served as governor longest. He was elected to three two-year terms, plus serving part of the term of Gov. Beauford Jester who died in office.

Independents convinced some headway made

By CLYDE LA MOTTE Reporter-Telegram Washington Oil Correspondent

WASHINGTON-Some 350 independent producers from Texas and other petroleum producing states who visited Washington last week in the hope of persuading members of Congress that they can help solve the energy problem if given the proper incentive left town convinced they had made some headway.

At least they got an attentive audience. In almost every office they visited the congressman listened with seeming interest to their story and promised to give it consideration.

It is not unusual for a politician to be polite to his visitors but many of the producers who had been here before on similar missions found the reception better this time than ever.

gasoline and an "equalization" tax on domestic crude to raise the price here to the level paid for imported oil

-Some congressmen, while conceding that an increase in domestic energy production would be desirable, want some kind of evidence that higher prices for oil and natural gas would, indeed, increase domestic production substantially

(Administration energy officials are telling Congress that prices any higher than those proposed in the President's energy plan would be wasted because they would result in little additional domestic discoveries.)

Some congressmen told the producers they have a valid argument but said they couldn't vote for such measures as deregulation of the wellhead price of new natural gas as long as a majority of their constituents back home oppose such a move. The advice of these congressmen to the producers was this: Go to my district and convince the people there.

All in all, the producers spent three days roaming the halls of Congress. In some instances they had appointments and in some they didn't. The went in teams and their basic pitch was that the United States still has many unexplored areas, onshore and offshore, with potential gas and oil reserves. They said they can and will do the necessary drilling if the government will clear the way by removing or easing restrictions which the producers claim are slowing them

They tried not to miss any congressmen, even those who have had a zero voting record on energy measures in the past as far as the producers are concerned

They received few outright promises, so there is no way to determine whether they were successful or not. That will become apparent one way or the other when the voting starts. Naturally, the congressmen are also going to hear from those who oppose the producer views. Furthermore, the White House is going all out on the energy issue and will do all it can to get Congress to adopt its

There are signs that Congress is trying to do a responsible job of sorting out and evaluating the various arguments it hears from all sides and to arrive at a conclusion that would produce beneficial results.

There are some, of course, who have a fixed position on energy. But the indications are that many others are trying to keep and open mind to let the facts come in

Recovery unit okayed

AUSTIN - The Railroad Commission of Texas has approved the establishment of a producing unit and a secondary recovery program in Cooke County that is expected to result in the additional recovery of 65,000 barrels of oil worth approximately $650,000.

The commission acted on the application of Couch Oil Co. of Gainsville to transfer three leases from the Cooke County Regular field into the proposed Lake Kiowa (Bruhlmeyer) field, adoption of field rules, and operate leases as a unit and install a secondary recovery program.

Affected by the order are the Mages, Cassady and Springs leases. Senior Engineer George F Singletary Jr. and Senior Legal Examiner J. Brooks Peden of the commission's Oil and Gas Division agreed with Couch's estimate that 65,000 barrels of additional oil will be recovered as a direct result of unitization and the secondary

Diamond M keeps status

AUSTIN - The top oil producing allowable of the Diamond M (Canyon lime) field in Scurry County will continue at the daily rate of 15,520 barrels, the Railroad Commission of Texas has ruled.

Also, the oil and gas regulatory board decided that the two unit operators, R. E. Smith and the Monsanto Co., shall continue to forecast for an allowable not to exceed the total wells on the unit times the top allowable rate, plus an earned injection allowable of no more than 25 per cent of the basic allowable.

The dual actions of the commission were recommended by Senior Staff Geologist Billy D. Thomas of the Oil and Gas Division.

Continental Oil Co. has imporoved its energy efficiency by 57 per cent over the last three years, John E. Whit-man, manager of the Midland-based division said Whitman said in 1976 the division saved an amount of energy equal to 138,000 barrels of oil, compared to 1973 operations. That is equivalent to the annual residential heating needs of a city of 18,000 people, Whitman

Whitman said the division has spent more than $800,000 since 1973 to improve energy efficiency. "The energy we've saved was equal to $1.8 million

Among the division's energy-saving actions were insulation of 39 vessels. installation of vapor recovery equipment, reduction of oil heater temperatures, and improved efficiency of pumping wells through resizing of pumping units and motors. counterbalancing of pumping units. and installation of timers.

Mobil quits port project

NEW YORK (AP) - Mobil Oil Corp., saying it objected to certain policies of the U.S. Transportation Department, has formally withdrawn from participation in the planned $700 million Seadock offshore crude oil port near Freeport, Tex.

A Mobil spokesman said Thursday the firm, which had a 15.3 per cent interest in the project, withdrew because the Transportation Department failed to recognize Seadock as "a high-risk business venture." The project, considered a common carrier by the government, is under the control of the department.

Seadock, a deep-water port facility, is being planned for construction 26 miles off the southeast coast of Texas.

"There must be an opportunity to earn a return commensurate with such risks," the Mobil spokesman said. "The decision regarding Seadock was made with great reluctance since Mobil continues to believe that deep-water ports are in the national interest.

Meanwhile, Exxon Pipeline Co., the largest participant in the venture, indicated that it is still uncertain about its commitment.

A spokesman for the firm, which has a 21.7 per cent interest, said it was still studying the project and would decide by Aug. 1 whether to continue as a participant. Aug. 1 is the date set by the federal government for acceptance or rejection of the Seadock

Deadline nears to pre-register for referendum

By CHARLES GREEN Midland County Extension Agent

Soaring temperatures and drying winds placed stress on young crops in the Midland area during the first few days of June. Cotton just replanted and coming through the hot sand particularly had problems. Older crops where subsoil moisture was good have made fair to good growth.

A large portion of the Midland area, especially to the north and west has missed most of the rainfall this spring and is experiencing serious drought problems. Range forage is burning, and livestock is losing bloom rapidly in these areas.

Currently only two desiccants, arsenic acid and paraquat, are registered for use on cotton. The true defoliant includes sodium chlorate, sodium cacodylate (bolls-eye) and the organic phosphate compounds, Def-6 and Felex. At the present time, the Environmental Protection Agency is considering Rebuttable Presumption Against Registration (RPAR) for all these chemicals.

RPAR does not mean the chemicals will be removed from the market, but they are under close scrutiny and continued use or removal will depend upon the type of information received by EPA. It now appears that cotton producers and others will have an opportunity to air their feelings as to the benefits of these chemicals through the use of surveys. When you receive a survey, be sure to give this your top priority and respond immediately

Beef cattle producers have only until June 17 to register for voting in the beef referendum July 5-15. Mister McReynolds of the Midland ASCS office reports that only a small number of Midland County beef producers have registered to date. Producers must pre-register and be certified as cattle owners before they can vote in the referendum to be held na-tionwide to determine if producers want to assess themselves three-tenths of one per cent on cattle sales to be used for a beef research, promotional and information program. At least 50 per cent of those who register must vote to make the election valid and at least two-thirds of those who vote must vote "yes" for the order to become law. The choice is up to the producers, but it is an item of such importance that every beef cattle producer should fully inform himself concerning the program and make his wishes known by participating in the election.

Many homeowners have called about and brought in specimens to the office in recent days of a scale insect collected from the twigs of fruitless mulberry trees. The insect has been identified as cottony maple scale. The cottony maple scale overwinters as immature, flat, inconspicuous females on the twigs of its host. With the onset of warm spring temperatures, it grows rapidly. By late spring, the characteristic white, cottony egg sack of the female is evident. Each egg sack may contain up to 1,000

In late June and July, tiny mobile crawlers begin to appear. These young scales migrate to the leaves of the host plant, where they insert their slender mouth parts and feed by withdrawing sap from the plant. The cottony maple scales spends the summer months on the leaves. Male scales reach maturity in late summer and emerge as tiny winged individuals. which mate with the immature females. The males die within a day or two of their appearance, for they have non-functional mouth parts and cannot feed. Before the leaves begin dropping in the fall, the females migrate back to the twigs, where they attach themselves for overwintering

A single generation of the cottony maple scales occurs each year. Damage to the host tree is caused in several ways. The withdrawal of plant sap by heavy populations causes the dieback of the twigs and branches and, under extreme conditions, may kill the entire tree. During the time scales are feeding on leaves and on twigs, a large quantity of honeydew is produced by the insects. For control of this scale, we are suggesting the use of diazinon, Cygon or Orthene. For dosage recommendations refer to the label instructions on the chemical containers.

Anticrime grant changes probable

By RONALD J. OSTROW The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - A special Justice Department committee will recommend that the government cut many of the strings on its multimillion dollar anticrime grants to state and local governments, converting the program into special revenue sharing, it was learned last week

The far-reaching change in the controversial program, managed by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, would be in line with the thinking of Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell and Dep. Atty. Gen. Peter F. Flaherty.

Bell has been highly critical of the bureaucracy and red tape spawned by the LEAA since its creation to channel funds for upgrading state and local police systems, courts and prisons.

Backers of the special revenue sharing approach on the seven-member committee, appointed by Bell in April, contend that it would eliminate much of the red tape and vastly increase state and local discretion over spending federal funds.

Opponents have countered that special revenue sharing, under which funds are allocated for such broad areas as public safety, is not designed to achieve the kinds of national objectives Congress had in mind when it created LEAA.

It was not clear what would happen to the 790 employes of LEAA under the revenue sharing proposal. President Carter has assured government employes several times that his Administration's reorganization would not result in discharging any

But the revenue sharing approach would end the 90 per cent salary support the government provides for 3,600 employes of state planning agencies in the criminal justice field, a source familiar with the recommendation said

Congress rejected similar revenue sharing proposals for the LEAA program advanced by former President Richard M. Nixon in 1971 and 1973.

Members of both parties expressed reluctance to relinquish federal control over use of the funds, and congressmen from urban areas said they feared that revenue sharing would provide them with less anti-

But committee members favoring the revenue sharing recommendations say sufficient time has passed since the Nixon proposals so that states have developed the expertise to use the funds well.

They also say that the committee recommendation would eliminate federal support for the state planning agencies and much of the paper shuffling now involved in the planning process. The Nixon proposals would have maintained the state planning agencies.

New law may spell trouble

By G.K. HODENFIELD

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) - A federal law that will profoundly influence the shape and structure of public education will go into effect this fall. Hardly anyone is fully ready for it.

It should dramatically improve educational op-portunities for the nation's eight million mentally and physically handicapped youngsters. Some believe it may eventually improve the education of every child by focusing fresh attention on the total learning process of each individual. At the moment, however, only three things seem certain: The law will have a direct and forceful effect on virtually every public school with added burdens of bureaucracy and red tape, it demands large numbers of specially trained and re-trained teachers, and state and local costs inevitably must rise to meet new federal demands. The legislation is Public Law 94-142, the Education for All Handicapped Children Act. It covers those children who suffer, in varying degrees, from mental retardation or physical disability, or who are believed to be emotionally disturbed or "learning disabled" - or any combination of those factors. Indirectly, it will affect every public school pupil

"It probably is one of the greatest education laws ever passed," says Dr. Henry Schroeder, director of the Developmental Training Center at Indiana

'For the first time, public education is being forced to look at the complete educational process for

Many educators, however, even those who agree with Schroeder, believe PL 94-142 demands too much too soon. Others call it the greatest threat ever to state and local control of education.

Among other things, the law stipulates: A free appropriate public education shall be made available to all handicapped children between the ages of 3 and 18, beginning by September, 1978, and all those between the ages of 18 and 21 by September, 1980. It does not apply to those between 3 and 5 and between 18 and 21 in states where the requirement is in conflict with state law and practice or court order

- A detailed individualized educational plan must be written and followed for each of the eight million handicapped children.

Handicapped children must be educated together with the non-handicapped to the "maximum extent appropriate.'

- Handicapped children shall have available the same range and variety of public school programs now available to the non-handicapped. This includes non-academic and extracurricular activities, and there are specific requirements for physical education programs, even for the severely handicapped.

The law has raised questions for which there are no apparent answers. Some probably will wind up in the

If, for example, there must be an individualized educational plan for each handicapped child, why not one for each gifted child? Indeed, why not for every

"Every child should have an individualized educational plan," Schroeder says. "Everything in this law should apply to every child in every school."

Each state must draw up a detailed plan for approval by Washington. Each local school district must have a detailed plan that meets state and federal guidelines.

Failure to meet those provisions could result in a loss of all federal funds, a loss few districts could afford. State education agencies face the same dilem-

State educational agencies also must monitor private school programs for the handicapped and must provide public school personnel and equipment when needed.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Don't use poppers

Dear Dr. Solomon: Since they have Blue Cross and Medicare for people, why couldn't there be some sort of health plan for pets, too? I happen to think they deserve it more than a lot of their owners do!— Esther D.

Dear Esther: This isn't my field, but I have read that a health plan, called Medi-Pet, was set up in California a few months ago. Owners are entitled to unlimited visits to affiliated vet clinics-for an annual fee of $68—unless the price has gone up in the meantime. As I understand it, Medi-Pet's founder hopes to extend similar coverage to pet owners all over the United States.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've heard of a new fad around- sniffing some liquid called "poppers" to get a fast high. Just what is this? Is it okay or is it dangerous?-Jan C.

Dear Jan: "Poppers" is a street name for volatile nitrites being promoted in the so-called underground press as a sex-enhancer. There are reports indicating that this has gotten to be pretty big business-$50 million a year, according to one recent Nitrites act as vasodilators. They expand the blood vessels. When used on the prescription of a doctor for a condition like angina, they are useful drugs. But neither they nor any other drug should be fooled around with just for kicks. Results can be unpleasant and, in some cases, they can, indeed, be dangerous.

The"high" is caused by a rush of blood and oxygen to the brain. This can be followed, however, by a headache, a fall in blood pressure and nausea. The blood's hemoglobin may be affected, too. And a person with a normally low blood pressure could get into very serious trouble-and even die.

Amyl nitrite and a close cousin, butyl nitrite, are being sold as poppers under various names. To circumvent state and federal law, labels may warn against direct inhalation or human consumption, or there may be a slight variation of the chemical

A pharmacologist at the University of California, San Francisco, Norman D. Kramer, reports that poppers are being used extensively, especially by homosexuals. In a recent letter to the Journal of the American Medical Association, he said that using them seems to go with heavy cigarette smoking. The combined effect of the two drugs may, he adds, produce a hemoglobin deficiency, causing weakness and prolonged headaches. The hemoglobin, as you probably know, is the part of the blood that brings the various parts of the body the oxygen they need.

If 1 were you, I would stay clear of poppers—limit your inhaling to fresh air.

Army restores revoked medal to woman surgeon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Mary Edwards Walker, a Civil War surgeon whose Medal of Honor was revoked in 1917, is back in the Army's good graces and will be restored to the rolls of the medal recipients.

Army Secretary Clifford Alexander Jr. said Friday there was enough evidence of her front-line gallantry and bravery as a physician treating the wounded during the battles of Bull Run and Gettysburg to justify the

Now the Army acknowledges Dr. Walker should not have been removed from the rolls 60 years ago when an Army panel took away the medal from 910 persons.

The United Way of Midland isn't the least bit bashful when it comes to setting goals for annual financial campaigns.

And neither is it the least bit doubtful that the challenging goals can and will be met thanks to efficient organization, hard-working volunteers and the generosity of Midlanders who are sold on the United Way of giving.

This is just as it should be, since the United Way goals each year represent the actual, annual, funding needs of the participating agencies.

The goal for the 1978 effort in the Tall City has been set at $751,470, which exceeds by 11 per cent the $677,970 which was raised in last year's campaign.

Directors of Midland United Way didn't just reach up in the air and grab a figure at which to shoot in the fall money-raising

A committee spent long hours in checking the program and achievements of the agencies involved. Then came the process of screening the budgets and financial askings of the agencies. cutting back in instances where the panel members considered the requests too high. Finally, a recommendation as to overall budget was made to the board, which set the goal for the 1978

The thoroughness of the overall operation of United Way of Midland is one of the reasons why the organization has been so successful in its efforts in recent years. Tall City residents. realizing this, are willing to support United Way in a most remarkable manner.

This is the Midland Way. This is but another reason why Midland is such a great city.

Agencies receiving-United Way funding include the American Red Cross, Boys Club of Midland, Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America; Camp Fire Girls. Casa de Amigos, Community Day Nursery, Midland Council on Alcoholism, Family Services, Girl Scouts, La Florecita Day Nursery, Midland and Lee Youth Centers, Planned Parenthood, Salvation Army, Tape-Lending Library, United Service Organization and four YMCA branches — Alamo, Metropolitan, Park Center and Washington.

And when one views the $751,470 goal from the standpoint of services, programs, objectives and achievements of these partiuclar agencies - it's pretty small in comparison, isn't it?

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

There are two Jimmy Carters

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - Americans are straining for a better look at the Jimmy Carter behind the engaging smile, the soft voice and the easy informality. And gradually, a distinctive image is beginning to form of the new president

He has taken over an America that is wracked by coughs and backfires. that feels boxed in by shortages and limitations, that is piled high with neglected problems and abuses.

Yet he is not promising a domestic Utopia or a new World Order. He is setting about instead to repair old machinery, rationalize its designs, assure its fuel supply, clear blockages and eliminate the wasted motion

Underneath the open-collared, feeton-the-desk informality and the opendoor, how-y' all camaraderie of what one White House sign proclaims as the "Georgia Mafia," Carter has established an orderly, businesslike operation under clear lines of

He is a determined mobilizer who detests interoffice bickering, wants devisive problems brought to him and demands from all hands the maximum performance he puts out himself. Complaints are growing from Congressmen and bureaucrats. however, that he is unwilling to delegate enough authority and that he reserves for himself decisions that should be made by subordinates.

Behind the White House doors, the familiar Jimmy Carter of the nightly news segments - smiling, hugging stray souls, telling strangers how he purely loves them - is a figure of sterner stuff. At work, he is as cool as a cucumber, aloof, intolerant of the time-wasting amenities of untargeted conversation, incessantly cutting toward what the bureaucratic mind most resists: the nub of the problem

The president expects his people to be self-motivators. He is not given to praise for good staff performance. and mediocre work evokes from him a glare so withering that "he doesn't have to shout.

Press Secretary Jody Powell was asked recently to search back through the years for an example of Carter praise when some prodigy of excellence stirred him to an unguarded outburst of appreciation. Powell thought a moment and then, half in jest, quoted Carter as saying: "Not a

Similarly, the public Carter who reaches out to the counter-culture the pond wader and field wanderer in faded jeans and soft sweaters — is not in residence at the White House. Oh. the clothes are genuine enough, but under them is not a floppy soul mate for a summer afternoon but rather the ultimate model of the hard-driving. totally disciplined, minute-squeezing, memo-mastering executive that Carter knows is indispensible to a chaotic age but senses is repellent to

The president is addicted to the kind of split-second scheduling that endears him to the Secret Service. He is accessible "when necessary" to senior White House aides but prefers to operate by reading memorandum and scribbling instructions in the margins. He is a speed reader, who spends long hours alone with his inbox in a small hideaway office on the first floor where he digests mountains

The admiring cliches with which his aides describe his mental prowess — 'He soaks up information like a sponge" and "he gets to the bottom line in a hurry" - connotes an almost mechanical efficiency rather than the intuitive, wide-ranging genius of a Churchill or a De Gaulle. Yet it must be remembered that Carter has divined the mood and message of his time better than any of his rivals.

The president's preference for the efficiencies of written communication, his indisposition toward the back-slapping, tale-swapping, horse-trading cajolery that Capitol Hill cherishes may cost him dearly in legislative achievement.

Great legislator-presidents like Franklin Roosevelt and Lyndon Johnson were willing to devote large chunks of their time to the onerous process of ingratiating themselves with their inferiors. Perhaps the avid learner in the White House, who has managed other necessary transformations, will manage this one, too.

So far, the Carter White House has been relatively restrained in its selfpraise and reasonably open to the inquisitive press. Of course, it is easy to be open when it is the performance of the previous administration that is at issue. The real test is ahead; already, there are early warning signals of trouble to come.

When The New York Times ran a piece describing an allegedly reclusive Carter who bore certain resemblances to Richard Nixon, 23 White House aides were promptly grilled by Jody Powell to find out who had been talking to The Times and to discourage any repetition of too candid candor.

In the continuing saga of "Cousin Cheap' and his cutbacks of limousines, tv sets and newspaper subscriptions, the new regime was off to a laudable start toward reducing routine extravagance and pomposity. But then it ran into the key test of staff size and take-home pay.

Jimmy Carter may carry his own suitcase, but he is now presiding over the largest and most overpaid White House staff in history. It has 560 people today compared with 540 under Gerald Ford.

Brown, Reagan seek presidential bids

By VIRGIL PINKLEY Copley News Service

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and former Gov. Ronald Reagan are working around the clock to try to win the presidential nominations of their respective parties in 1980.

As Brown makes every move he looks over both his right and left shoulders, trying to ascertain what President Carter is proposing and how he is faring with his program and reaction from the public

He thinks there is an outside chance that the Carter administration might not be as effective as most Democrats think and that by some quirk someone other than Jimmy Carter could win the party nomination.

He feels, too, that he is at the top of the totem pole on this matter.

It is interesting to observe that everything that Mr. Carter does which seems to be effective or which might win support is duplicated almost immediately by Brown.

This pertains to conservation of water, support of the energy program, reduction of unemployment, keeping a lid on inflation, changes in tax levies, medical programs and hospital costs, etc., etc.

The young governor also is gambling that his position on the death penalty question will be helpful. It has been a cold, calculated risk on his part although he personally, no doubt sincerely, is against capital punish-

Party does or says nationally.

Reagan is enjoying a tremendous income from all of his writing and speaking skills and work. On one recent trip to the East he received more than $25,000 in fees alone for speaking.

The great difficulty is that if he keeps this running fight up to win the nomination he may badly divide the Republican Party in California.

For a man to go to the White House he must carry a majority of the states of California, New York, Illinois, Ohio, Texas, Michigan and New Jersey. This is where the electoral

Reagan does not hesitate to criticize former President Gerald Ford openly and in an outspoken way, or really to go after President Carter with bared knuckles

So, Reagan has it in his power to help or to largely destroy the Republican Party in California and in many other states unless he can have his own way.

Brown will keep a large and growing dossier on everything President Carter says, recommends, does or fails to achieve. At the proper time and place he will use this ammunition.

It will be recalled that he jumped into the presidential nomination race in the last few weeks against President Carter and, surprisingly, carried a large number of cities and

When Reagan was governor he tried with all his might to win the Republican nomination and take it away from the then incumbent of the White House, Richard M. Nixon.

Officials were confident that New Jersey's gambling casinos would be free of organized crime. In New Jersey, they not only believe in gambling, but also in miracles.

A local clergyman was on hand at the celebration to deliver an opening prayer. I don't have a copy of the prayer, but perhaps it was, "We thank thee for craps and roulette and pray that there will be many winners - but not too many.'

The clergyman then spun the first roulette wheel as everyone bowed their heads in silence. The only sound was a guy in the back saying, "Ten bucks on red."

WASHINGTON - Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, is an old school politician smart enough to run a Congress populated mostly with new school members. It's all different, he tells friends, but you have to adjust and do your best. What's different, according to

O'Neill, a hearty man with a face any movie maker would love to cast as that of a politician, is what could be generically called ethics. To "Tip" that means the way of doing business, and is terribly inclusive. Where a freshman in the House usually came out of a state legislature, a city council or a board of supervisors, today he is just as likely to arrive without any government or political experience.

Moreover, he doesn't know what party discipline is, and isn't much interested to learn. In fact, he isn't even a he, and could be a she, but "Tip" is still too old-fashioned to call anyone a congressperson.

The vast majority of this Congress came in since 1968, and if they were Democrats, probably conditioned themselves to disagreeing with the sitting Presidents.

But the Democrats, while resisting Nixon and Ford, didn't follow their party leaders the way good, striving, young congressmen did in previous administrations, and developed an in-dependence which "Tip," in his private moments, can only regard as

O'Neill, however, is a practical man. Twenty-five years ago he was the youthful speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives. He learned that to turn people down was to cause bitter disappointment, but only temporary enemies. Sooner or later the disappointed come back for a favor - that's the collegial

This practicality flows into every area of O'Neill's work. He can thump one day for appropriation bills for health, education and welfare programs, calling them the bread and butter of the Democratic Party, the crutch of the underprivileged, and, without blinking an eye on his Irish face, talk just as firmly a few days later, about the absolute need to discard useless federal programs because the country is moving to the

He can purr on about how he and other congressional leaders have never worked so closely with a President like Jimmy Carter, and boast of how Carter personally met with more congressmen in his first 100 days than Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Ford did in their entire terms. But then he around Carter are greenhorns when it comes to congressional relations and act as though they are dealing with a redneck Georgia Legislature.

In a friendly, convincing way O'Neill can talk proudly of how the House adopted a tough ethics code. and how it will also deal fairly with the politically explosive question of the South Korean government connection to Congressmen (mostly Democrats)

Then a little later, he can lament that it's all ethics these days, and how. he thought he knew every last bit of information, good and bad, about every congressman, and how he can't imagine how there would be corruption on the scale that is rumored, in terms of the Koreans.

He half laughs and half sighs when he recounts the totally arbitrary (and probably illegal) manner in which that great House Speaker, Sam Rayburn, conducted his office phoning the Internal Revenue Service with orders, contacting regulatory agencies and departments as though they were his fieldoms, and summoning Cabinet officers to his office to get the word from the almighty

O'Neill works hard to see to it that the Democrats will do their very best for President Carter. He has pushed three of Carter's big pieces of legislation - the economic package, the reorganization plan, and the ethics code - along to completion, and admits it is hard to get the energy package through with the same dispatch.

He does not want confrontation with President Jimmy Carter, and will strive to avoid any situation where the House would have to vote to override a Carter veto. It is the Democrats' time now, he figures, and he wants the party to ride on Carter's popularity and develop its own momentum.

Jerry Ford is no racist, he tells friends, and a moment later he will talk enthusiastically about the man who called Ford and Nixon a racist. Andrew Young. Being an old-time politician who appreciates the new. open style, "Tip" can tolerate such excesses.

sipping from a saucer of diet cola. I got the idea when I read the data on the saccharin dispute. Something bothered me about it. Why were some of the rats getting sick after being forced to eat enough saccharin to kill a horse? The scientists blamed the saccharin, but no one blamed the white rats. There are so many agents being fed and injected into rats that they keep keeling over. Drug companies have put millions of dollars into research, only to be told they couldn't market their product because the white rats couldn't take

"So I decided there was only one answer to the problem. And that was to develop a white rat who could stand up to anything we shoved down his

"If I could breed a white rat immune to any kind of disease the FDA would have to give its approval for the

"Only a mind like yours would think of something like that," I said.

'The trick was to find the right breeds. In every medical experiment there are white rats who are survivors. In the Canadian tests of saccharin only 12 of the 44 rats fed the stuff developed any symptoms. The other 32 thrived on the sweetener and became saccharin junkies.

"I purchased the two healthiest specimens and mated them, and then mated their offspring, and after four generations I got what I wanted — a super white rat that could withstand any punishment medical science could inflict on it

I've fed them the equivalent of 3,000 bottles of diet drinks a day; I've had them smoke 10 packs of cigarettes an hour; I've filled their cage with carbon monoxide; I've made Tris nighties for them, which they have worn for three weeks. I've even strapped them to the engine of a Concorde, and as you can see none of the experiments has had any ill effect on them.

"I've never seen two happier white rats in my life," I admitted. "I wonder why no one has ever thought

"Because they were looking for the wrong key," Applebaum said. "When a drug didn't come up to FDA standards everyone blamed the drug and not the rat. The ordinary white rat used in laboratories is a pampered animal. It doesn't know what it is to forage for food and slink around garbage dumps. QUEEN OF ENGLAND

Middle class prospers under Elizabeth

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER The Washington Post

LONDON - "I've got what I want from life," the middle-aged Cockney driver said, steering through streets draped with red, white and blue bunting. "I was a kid in the last Jubilee in 1935 (for the 25th year of the reign of King George V) and we lived, six of us, would you believe it, in one room, no hot water and the privy out back."

Now the wife and I have a nice flat, color telly. The boys have their own cars. I've got what I want.'

His unsolicited remarks help explain a phenomenon of this past ubilee week for Queen Elizabeth II. The most elaborate celebrations, the most adoring crowds, the most enthusiastic exclamations have come from the working class, public housing districts of the East End - Wapping, Stepney and Spitalfields.

The middle and upper classes may have the greatest vested interest in the monarchy, a device Matternich saw as a bar to revolution. But the better off have been comparatively restrained. The most jubilant of the queen's subjects have been those furthest removed from her life style.

Visiting commentators, especially those from the United States, sound a bit baffled by it all, largely because they are unaware of the transformation in living standards over the last 25 years, particularly in the East End and other working class districts

A news magazine believes that "not much has gone right for Britain" in the reign of Elizabeth II. In fact, the last quarter century has been an era of almost unparalleled peace and prosperity, despite the world's intermittent inflationary recession of the past six years. Real incomes per person the command of material goods and services - have risen on average by two-thirds. For most of the period. there has been a conscious effort to redistribute these incomes more equally. So the East End has done somewhat better than those at the top.

"The queen has presided here during the hardest 25 years in this century," a visiting commentator intones. He has somehow forgotten the deep depression of 1908-9 and a world war that wiped out a generation and almost shattered a stable society. In the second quarter century, Britain endured the Great Depression of 1929-38 and a second world war more devastating then the first.

In contrast, the queen's quarter century has seen the more or less peaceful shedding of the burden of

It is hard to see how future historians, armed with perspective rather than cliche, will be able to describe the first 25 years of Elizabeth as something other than an era of relative peace and prosperity. To be sure, economic growth has been faster in other nations where less efficient farmers are still moving into more productive industry and where the work ethic is more rigorous.

But the comparatively amiable, relatively relaxed Britons have created a remarkable climate. In it, music and drama flourish, and London has become the world's capital of the performing arts. Nobody has associated a monarch here with the arts since George IV was a friend of Nash - Elizabeth likes horses and thrillers - but the state of the arts is one indicator of the wellbeing, more or less, of the queen's reign.

There is still another and perhaps crucial reason for the popularity of the queen and Crown. At almost every level here, it is recognized that a powerless head of state, encrusted with myth and ritual, serving as a social cement in a society divided like all others by class. It may be no accident that Europe's most stable nations (it is not clear that Switzerland is a nation) are also led by figurehead monarchs - Holland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden.

In all the acres of print describing the monarchy this week, the best analysis may have appeared in the 'anti-Jubilee" number of the leftist "New Statesman." There, Kenneth Morgan of Queen's College, Oxford, paid this grudging tribute:

"The present queen, like her father and mother, has moved sufficiently to make the Crown compatible with a more democratic, egalitarian and irreverent society. Above all, there is the value of the crown in historic terms. However unsocialist it may seem, Britain needs the reassurance of patriotic tradition ... The crown provides just the right amount of historical therapy to be tranquilizing without being harmful. "Britain this century has survived a cataclysmic decline in its external position and an upheaval in its internal social structure. It has withstood the pulverizing blows of unemployment and inflation, and yet it has avoided undergoing a revolution. For the sake of a democratic Britain, perhaps even a democratic Socialist Britain, now is institutionally the time to conserve. The monarchy, historic incubus though it may be, is a part of that process

My compliments on the women's section in the paper Sunday, June 5th. I enjoyed the way the wedding stories were placed under the one headline on the first page, and thought the pages looked more up to date and well

A personal touch

To The Editor:

With all the criticism of the U.S. Postal Service I would like to add a bright note for our local service. Recently I received through the mail a letter from the U.S. Post Office containing pictures that had been lost from their container. These wedding pictures belonged to my daughter-inlaw's mother, and one of our local postal clerks recognized our faces in one of the pictures and sent them to us. Had he not taken the time and gone through the pictures they would have been lost forever. It is certainly a good feeling to know that our postal people care about individuals in Midland. I do want to commend the Midland Post Office for its efficiency and personal touch.

Objection

To The Editor

I have read Mrs. Triplett's comments on the controversial showing of "The Lottery" and have noted the dissents of Mr. Smith and Ms. Clay in your edition, June 5, 1977.

The state has no right to require the viewing of such material by students. It is reminiscent of the values clarification programs in Germany under Hitler's socialism. The Gertisemitic; their "values were clarified by the state."

I have no objection to Mr. Smith's or Ms. Clay's children viewing "The Lottery," but I do not want my child to do so! Ms. Clay, Mr. Smith, or whoever wants to do so can show this film at home. I object to these people wanting to require my child to be indoctrinated in secular humanism or in any other religion which the "professional educators" may, through the state, select as being best for my child.

Keep parks open

I am writing to this newspaper on the subject of the closing of this 'city's" parks at 10 p.m.

I live in an area behind Gibson's Discount Center and as I sit and look out my front door I can see many of this town's young people hot-rodding through the parking lot, hitting shopping carts and racing down the street in front of my house. There are many small children and pets in this area and I have thus far witnessed one hit and run - only a car was hit, but next time it may be a child or my

I have reported this to the police several times, as has the manager of my apartments.

I was raised in this town and I know what recreational facilities are here for the young people — none. Summer is now here and kids are out of school looking for something to do. I spent many fun summer evenings in this city's parks during high school, playing games, sitting and talking with my friends.

I realize that opening the parks will not take all the hot-rodders off the street, but I feel it will help. I realize also the problems encountered by the residents near the city parks. But it seems to me that it would be easier to control in one concentrated area and help get some of these kids off the street

Are there more suggestions? We certainly need some.

POSITIVE THINKING New heart, new courage for the disheartened

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

I was awakened one recent night by the strident and insistent ring of the telephone and emerged out of a sound sleep to answer a long distance call. Waiting for the operator to complete the connection, I looked out of my window and recalled that I had stood there for a moment before retiring, looking at a full moon sailing high in the cloudless sky.

Now there seemed to rest on the city an ineffable peace. Moonlight in silvery radiance fell across the room, and I thought how beautiful the world can be. But out in that moon-drenched night, there were hearts full of trouble and, as my connection was completed, one of them reached in to me for what little help I could give.

It was a voice of an old friend, and I'm still amazed by our conversation. I knew him as a strong, self-sufficient individual. But now he was telling me: "Norman, I'm tired. I've never been so tired in all my life, I'm exhausted. I just can't seem to take it any more. The heart has absolutely gone out of me."

Then there was a break in the conversation and I thought we had lost our connection, when suddenly I became aware that, at the other end of the line, a man whom I had never known to cry was struggling with

I gave him what emergency treatment was possible over the telephone, bandaging up his wounds as best I could with my words and hoping that it would help him through the night and the next few days.

After he hung up, I sat there reflecting on how many times I had come across thoughts similar to this man's expressed in literature.

especially Biblical literature. "My heart like wax melteth within me, came to mind, and then the line from the 73rd Psalm which says, "My flesh and heart faileth.

Then I also remembered the encouraging remainder of that same line from the Psalms, "But God is the Strength of my heart. In that simple little story you have a whole cycle of human nature. The heart, the very essence and center of us, fails, even as the flesh fails. We become tired and weary and disheartened, that is, without heart. But we have an answer, easy to find and ready at hand. God is the strength of our hearts. God restores our inner life, our vitality, our courage, and our joy. God puts heart into us. Thomas Paine said at Valley Forge.

"Let us thank God for this crisis, for it gives us opportunity to prove that we are men." A philosophy of difficulty teaches us that in making men of ourselves we find our own souls. God puts heart into people who receive suffering as having spiritual value.

The secret of new heart is simply to have God as the strength of your heart. Your faith in God will always remind you of the great reserves God placed within you and will help you to tap these inner resources. That's the real secret of new heart for the disheartened.

So when you're disheartened, depressed or discouraged, take it not as the end of everything but as part of the divine plan to make you grow strong and have/deep understanding. I always liked the old saying, "A hammer shatters glass but forges steel." In other words, life's blows either break you or make you. With God's help, you can find new heart. new courage and new achievement.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Special session may upset some plans

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Political plans, as well as vacation plans, of some Texas office-holders (and would-be officeholders) may have suffered from Gov. Dolph Briscoe's decision to call a special session.

That call is conditioned, of course, upon the House and Senate getting together upon a school finance bill.

Up until the last few hours of the session, it was expected that lawmakers would be able to agree upon some kind of public school funding bill, and that lawmakers would depart until 1979 — and opening the way for a new political season.

Several folks discussed as likely candidates for various offices had said they would make their announcements after the legislative session, when (although they didn't say this) they would be assured of better press coverage, and perhaps have in hand more weapons, furnished by the departing legislators But Robert Burns was right, of course - and the best-laid plans of politicians, like those of other mortals, "gang aft a-gley."

Those disruptions should prove temporary, however, and the expected announcements should start being made. Heading the list of those expected announcers are all the gubernatorial the predictions of almost every Texas political writer - and the plans of several politicos - into confusion. Now there's growing speculation that some other candidate will enter the gubernatorial sweepstakes.

Time, Israel change lifestyle of Bedouin tribes

SHOVAL, Israel (AP) - The shabby side of the 20th century has caught up with the Bedouin Arabs of Israel's Negev Desert, where the camel-borne nomad of legend is fading into history.

"The best days of my life were before 1952 when I lived on my father's land and when a sheikh was still master of his tribe," said Sheikh Suliman El-Okbi, leader of the 1,800 member tribe from which he takes his

Today many of southern Israel's 18 tribes - about 40,000 people - are waging a battle to regain ancestral lands they lost 25 years ago. Instead of brandishing scimitars from the humps of charging camels, they are struggling in the courts and inpolitical parties for the right to live on and farm — their old land

But the Israeli government - backed by the courts - says the Bedouin have no legal right to the land. It wants to resettle them in villages where utilities, schools and work can be made available.

Sheikh El-Okbi traces the source of the land dispute back hundreds of years when the ElOkbis, El-Huzayals and others settled permanently in the Negev, carving out tracts of land for

There were no visible boundaries in the nearly featureless landscape, he said, but every Bedouin knew the limits of his lands and those of his

Ottoman and British law recognized the right of the Bedouin to register the land, but they never bothered. Now the traditional Bedouin land is registered as state property.

Of the 80,000 Bedouin in the Negev before 1948, fewer than 15,000 remained after Israel won its independence. Like all Israeli Arabs, they were under a military government until 1966. To enhance border security, the army moved the Southern Bedouin in 1952 to a 400,000 acre tract in the Central Negev

Although most tribes already lived within the area, some were shifted off ancestral lands. The El-Okbis, for example, were moved 25 miles south while the army relocated another tribe on El-Okbi land. In 17 Bedouin suits against the Israel lands authority, the courts have ruled that the Bedouin have no legal claim since ownership was never filed under any government. In some cases the courts proclaimed the disputed property as

"mawat," or dead — able to support agriculture during the winter rains only one year in seven. Under Ottoman law, such land belongs to the

For those who were relocated, shanty towns are home.

Sheikh El-Okbi has a small hut of wood planks and corrugated metalnear Beersheba. The camp has no electric lights, but some huts have television sets run on small generators or batteries.

Another 20,000 Bedouin live in Israel's northern Galilee district, but they have no land claims against the government.

The 60,000 Bedouin are among Israel's 500,000 Arab minority - the remnant of the Palestinian people who did not become refugees after the

Israeli war of independence. Although Bedouin behavior codes of strict segregation of the sexes, honor and hospitality are still in force, life for the Bedouin is changing. The tribal sheikh, once a hereditary position, is now a powerless government

Seattle Slew rides into racing history

NEW YORK (AP) — Seattle Slew made racing history Saturday with a front-running victory in the $181,800 Belmont Stakes that made him the first unbeaten Triple Crown winner.

With a crowd of 70,229, second biggest in Belmont Stakes history, roaring on every stride, the Slew took complete charge turning for home.

And when he charged across the finish line, Jean Cruguet stood up in

The order of finish duplicated that of the Kentucky Derby, as Run Dusty Run finished second and Sanhedrin came in third.

Seattle Slew, winning his ninth start, became the 10th Triple Crown winner and the first since Secretariat in 1973. The other nine had all tasted defeat before their Triple Crown

The Slew did things his way Saturday, taking the lead out of the gate and setting his own pace. He carried Karen Taylor's black-andvellow silks over the first half-mile in 4:82-5 seconds. He ran the threequarters in 1:14, 114 miles in 2:034-5 and completed the 11/2 miles in 2:293-5 on a muddy track under scale weight of 126 pounds.

When the son of Bold Reasoning reached the finish, he was four lengths in front of Run Dusty Run. Sanhedrin was another two lengths back and 24 lengths in front of 60-1 shot Mr. Red Wing.

As the crowd cheered, Cruguet brought the champion back to the winner's circle while wildly waving his yellow cap.

The Frenchman, who had been criticized for his riding in some of Slew's earlier races, had said after the Flamingo Stakes in Florida: "If they didn't beat me today, they'll never beat me.

And so far, the Slew has kept Crugset the No. 1 prophet in racing. The winner paid $2.80, $2.60 and $2.20. Run Dusty Run, owned by Verna Lehman, paid $3.20 and $2.40. John Galbreath's Sanhedrin paid

The big question before the Belmont was: could Seattle Slew handle 11/2 miles?

He did, in his own sweet time, and his margin was the biggest of any of his Triple Crown victories. He beat Run Dusty Run by 134 lengths in the 14-mile Derby and he beat Iron Constitution by 11/2 lengths in the 13-16-mile Preakness.

Iron Constitution, owned by Harry T. Mangurian Jr., finished fifth in the Belmont and was followed by Spirit Level, Sir Sir and Make Amends. Hey Hey J.P. and Leading Scorer were scratched.

However, the Belmont was not problem-free for Seattle Slew. He showed up in the paddock at 5:33 p.m., EDT, two minutes past the call or riders up, and the post had to be delayed five minutes to 5:47 p.m.

'There were so many cars parked on the backside and they came in one direction, so you couldn't get through," Karen Taylor's husband, Mickey, said of Slew's slow trip to the paddock from distant Barn 54.

In order to get to the paddock, the Slew had to take another route.

But once the starting gate opened, there was only one route for the brown 3-year-old colt. And that was straight to the finish line and then on to the winner's circle and into history.

In the winner's cirlce, Slew got a blanket of carnations to go with his Derby roses and Preakness blackeyed Susans, while his owners, the Taylors and Dr. Jim Hil and his wife, Sally, got the Belmont trophy, the Triple Crown trophy and the winner's share of $109,080.

Seattle Slew broke alertly while Meadow Stable's Spirit Level went right with him. And they dueled into the clubhouse turn. At the end of the first quarter mile the Slew was 11/2 lengths in front of Spirit Level, ridden by Antonio Graell, with Run Dusty Run, ridden by Sandy Hawley, another 11/2 lengths back.

At the end of the first half mile the first three positions and the margins were unchanged.

When they reached the pole. marking a half mile left in the race. the Slew's 11/2-length leading margin was over Run Dusty Run as Spirit Level dropped back to third.

Then Slew was in the turn and the Belmont was over. When he hit the wuarter pole, his margin was four lengths over Sanhedrin, ridden by Jorge Velasquez, with Run Dusty Run another head back.

Down the stretch they came with the crowd cheering the Slew on and wondering who would get second.

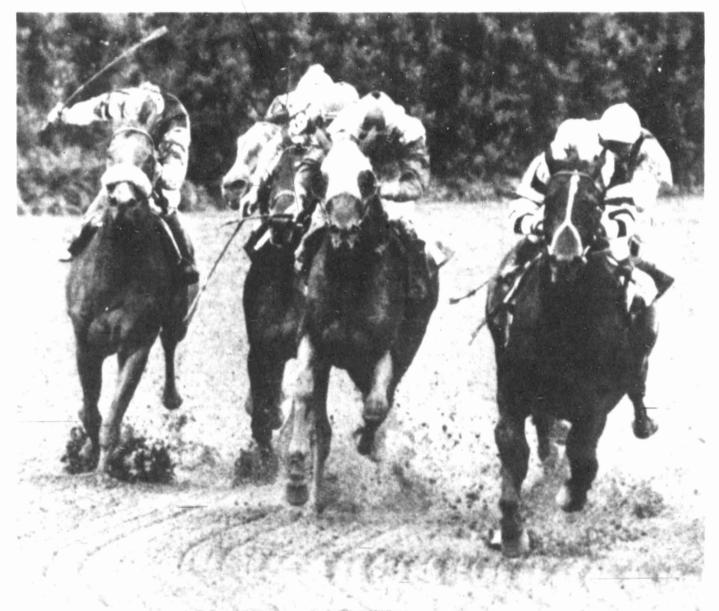

Run Dusty Run answered that question and also the one about whether he could beat Seattle Slew with the distance moved up to 11/2

"What an experience!" said Slew's trainer, Billy Turner, who was fired from training Dust Commander before that colt won the Derby in 1970. "It's really hard to believe. I feel like a coach standing on the sideline. watching a super athlete perform. When I saw he did the half mile in 48 something. I knew it was all over.' said Turner, meaning he realized Slew would have plenty left for a finishing drive. Karen Taylor' said simply: "He's the greatest horse there ever is ... uhh-

m..ever was. That argument won't be settled for some time—if ever— but Seattle Slew has one distinction that no one can ever take away from him. He went into the grueling Triple Crown unbeaten and came out the same way.

The crowd cheered Slew from the minute he showed up in the paddock and there's no doubt that the colt, whom critics ineisted was untested, had caught the public's imagination. He didn't come close to Secretariat's Belmont and American record time of 2:24, or Secretariat's winning margin of 31 lengths-but he did outdraw Big Red. Saturday's turnout of 70,229 was 2.624 more people than showed up in 1973 to watch Secretariat become the ninth Triple Crown winner and the first in 25 years.

The Belmont Stakes' record attendance is 82,694, set in 1971 when Canonero II finished fourth in his bid to win the Belmont and Triple Crown.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Al Geiberger could do no better than a par 72 but, still buoyed by the historic 59 he'd composed earlier, retained a lead of three strokes Saturday in the third round of the $200,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

Rain stops Midland Cubs from gaining twin sweep

By TED BATTLES

Skate with your head down in hockey and it will cost you some teeth and maybe a broken neck. Run with your head down in baseball and it can cost you a ball game.

That's what happened to the Midland Cubs in the second game of their Texas League doubleheader against San Antonio in which the Dodgers posted a 4-3 win in the rainshortened contest.

Midland took a 4-2 win in the opener, but the Cubs, in pursuit of West Division leading El Paso wanted both games.

Trailing 4-1, the Cubs took themselves out of a potentially big inning in the fourth inning with some weird base running that resulted in a rallykilling double play.

the Dodgers' lead to 4-3 and left runners at second and third with one out. Scott Boras grounded to second and when Seibert broke for third, Byron Wilkerson, the third base runner, was Forced to break for home. Wilkerson was erased in a rundown and when the ensuing throw went to the right side of the infield in an attempt to catch Boras, Seibert broke for home and was erased in the second half of the twin-killing.

Rains came in the seventh, but by then the plight of the Cubs was bleak. San Antonio had scored two runs and had a runner on second with two out when, after a 30-minute delay, the game was called

Bob Standley, coming on in relief, picked up the win while starter Dan England, 1-3, who lasted less than two innings, took the loss.

San Antonio jumped in front for good in the first on a run scoring single by Cleo Smith and an rbi double by Jeff Leonard Charles Meyers singled home another run in the second and the decider was knocked in by Art Fischetti after Rick Ollar

The Dodgers had some unusual base-running of their own in the third. With Smith on first after singling, Leonard grounded into a force and then Ted Farr lined to third.

It looked like third baseman Boras might have caught it on the Fly. He whipped the ball to first. Leonard figured he was about to be doubled. So he circled back. The throw was wild and Leonard and Farr wound up circling between second and third like a wagon train preparing for an Indian raid. Eventually, both got back to their bases without mishap.

Both Mrs. Rankin and Miss Higuchi had to birdie the 18th hole to draw even with Miss Bradley.

Consecutive singles by Leonard Woods, Luke Prestridge and Fritz Connally with two out in the top of the 10th gave Baylor the edge again, but in the bottom of the inning Mark Van Bever led off with a double and after an infield out, McLean slammed the ball off the right center field fence and went all the way around for the vic-

"That's fine," Cruget said. "Let them criticize me. What can they say if we keep on winning?" Cruguet was exuberant, yet hard

Slew replaces Secretariat

NEW YORK (AP) - Penny Rinquist didn't shed a tear. She smiled bravely and cheered Seattle Slew home in the Belmont Stakes for another of racing's rare Triple Crowns.

"There is enough glory for all, said the attractive matron of the Meadow Stable, whose mighty Secretariat stunned a Belmont crowd with a 31-length victory here in 1973.

CLEVELAND-Jim Cleamons is a free agent and may go elsewhere, so went for guards Ed Jordan of Rutgers and Steve Grote of Michigan.

DETROIT-Lots of veteran talent on the roster, picked a local sleeper, 6-9, 235-pounder center Ben Poquette of Central Michigan, then took another good rebounder, John Irving of Hofstra.

DENVER-Traded nearly all its frontcourt reserves to land guard Brian Taylor of KC, filled some holes with forward-center Tommy LaGarde of North Carolia and guard-forward Anthony Roberts of Oral Roberts.

NEW ORLEANS—Needed lots of help, didn't get it. Hollis and guardforward Tony Hankson of Connecticut might make the roster. How about a backcourt of Pete Maravich and Lucy Harris?

NEW YORK KNICKS-Wanted a young guard who could play defense and move the ball around, got him in Minnesota's Ray Williams. Forward Glen Gondrezick of Nevada-Las Vegas may also help.

New York Mets only had one pick in first three rounds, landed a blue chipper in forward Benard King of Tennessee. Still need a big center, however.

PHILADELPHIA-Expected to go high for a guard, instead went for big men like Glenn Mosley of Seton Hall, the nation's leading rebounder, Wilson Washington of Old Dominion and Bob Elliott of Arizona. All were centers in college but will likely be tried at forward. Did come up with a promising big guard in Herm Harris of Arizona

PHOENIX-Season ended early when starting forwards Curtis Perry and Gar Heard got hurt, landed a good cornerman in Walter Davis of North Carolina. Remember, Suns have already signed a fine prospect in 6-10 Bayard Forrest, who played for Athletes in Action last year.

PORTLAND-Tabbed Rich Laurel of Hofstra, a forward who can score, something the Blazers did not have on their bench last year.

Pagel makes Cub fans forget the past The list includes Jim Tyrone, Pete LaGock, Chris Ward, Bill Droege and Jose Ortiz, all good hitters out of the Midland Cubs' past, and for power Jerry Tabb and Wayne Tyrone shared the 1974 Texas League home run title with 29 apiece. But Midland has never had a more exciting hitter than Karl Pagel, less than a year out of the University of Texas. In fact, we really can't recall anyone in the entire Texas League in the Tall City's six-year association with the circuit that has had a season comparable to the kind of year Pagel has cooking at the moment. Dave Schenk was a terror for Memphis in 1972 and last year Willie "Ack Ack" Aikens was tremendous with 30 homers and 117 runs-batted-in, but the fact that he played in El Paso takes some of the edge off those glorified figures. LAST YEAR, Amarillo's Don Reynolds was considered one of the top power men in the league and he wound up with 19 homers and 85 runs-batted-Pagel hasn't played a half season, yet his two homers and five runs batted in Friday night against

San Antonio gave him 18 homers and 68 rbi "Can you imagine what his slugging percentage must be." Manager Jim Saul asked before Friday's game. It didn't take long to figure up after the game.

Pagel's slugging percentage is .791. Aikens last year topped the league in slugging with a .554.

Pagel comes from a good baseball background extending even beyond his University of Texas days where he set a Longhorn record for runs-batted-in

AS A high schooler in Phoenix, he led Washington High to the Skyline Division title in 1972 and then as a senior the following year, he batted .435, which was almost secondary when compared to his pitching

The left-hander posted a 9-4 record, pitched two nohitters and struck out 150 batters and wound up making all-state as both a pitcher and outfielder. That pleased his dad, Tom, who also was his high school coach

Somehow, even two outstanding seasons at Glendale JC didn't cause Arizona State to sit up and take notice, so Karl wound up at Texas. One of his big thrills was hitting a three-run homer against the Sun Devils to help the Longhorns sweep the No. 1 ranked team in the nation.

Before being picked as the Cubs No. 1 choice in last June's secondary draft, Pagel had been drafted by the New York Mets in January 1975 and Cardinals in June 1975, but did not sign.

WITH A buildup like that, Pagel couldn't miss, but he almost did. In fact, he almost wound up not even coming to Midland this year. And after his debut here last summer, probably no one would have

Pagel admits breaking into pro ball required some adjustments and jumping right in at the AA level didn't help. Batting less than .200, Karl whiffed 21 times in 43 at bats and was shipped off to Pompano

This spring, it looked like another ticket back to Pompamo except for two things. Manager Jim Saul wanted him as the only possible source of power and an 18-for-22 batting spree during his week stay with Pompano during spring training at Scottsdale.

'They wanted to keep him at Pompano,' relates Jim, "But I said there was no way I was leaving EVEN JIM wasn't prepared for the kind of season Pagel is enjoying. And probably Karl wasn't either. What wrought the dramatic change?

"They opened up my stance in spring training." Pagel said, "And it made all the difference in the world. It cut down on my movement at the plate as the ball was being delivered and I see it much bet-

If you watch Karl nightly, you can see the improvement as the season wears on, even though he began it like a full-fledged twister.

For one thing, Pagel is exhibiting more patience and selectivity. Occasionally, he gets caught looking at a third strike, but the days when he looks bad going fishing for a third one are passing.

He was still doing it frequently earlier in the year. One El Paso pitcher said, "He's so anxious to hit that if I get two strikes on him, I break a curve off in the dirt and he'll go after it. Will we keep him for the entire year? Who knows. Right now, Wichita is adequately stocked with outfielders and barring injury, maybe we'll be lucky. Strange, isn't it? Karl could have been a pitching prospect when drafted. He could have been lost in the anonymity of Pompano this season. Or if Darrell Royal had ever gotten wind of it, he might have been a Longhorn quarterback. Pagel was a National Junior College Athletic Association All-America at

But within two hours. only the Porsche 936 speedster of triple Le Mans winners Jacky Ickx of Belgium and Henri Pescarolo of France was on fighting terms with the top three Renaults.

And as the third hour finished, Pescarolo brought the car slowly into pit road trailing a huge cloud of blue smoke from a seriously ailing engine. ABC inks college pact

Television has signed a four-year contract with the NCAA for exclusive rights to telecast college football, the NCAA confirmed Saturday

The new deal begins with the 1978 season and calls for a substantial increase in the number of games that will be televised. It is the first fouryear contract the NCAA has agreed to in college football's 25-year television history and brought a record price tag of $118 million for the four-year

The NCAA Television Committee. chaired by Seaver Peters of Dartmouth, negotiated the deal with ABC The Committee polled the NCAA membership and discovered that a majority of member schools were in favor of an expanded package even though in-stadium attendance at some sites might suffer.

The idea is to limit the major schools to the same number of appearances as the current contractno more than five appearances over a two-year period-but to provide more schools a share of the television revenue. Schools appearing on a national telecast get $250,000 each and teams shown regionally get $190,000 apiece under the current contract

Three Americans gain semifinals

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) - A trio of Americans- Stan Smith, Roscoe Tanner and Tim Gulliksonplus Jaime Fillol from Chile won through to the semifinals Saturday of the $100,000 John Player Lawn Tennis Tournament here.

But they will have to wait until Sunday to find out who will fight it out in the final, worth $13,300 to the winner and $6,650 to the runnerup later in the afternoon.

The semifinals should have been played Saturday afternoon but rain which has interrupted play every day this week, once again rent the program to tatters. It caused play to be halted just after the last of the four quarter-finals had ended. In those matches, Gullikson of Onalaska, Wis. beat Bob Lutz of San Clemente, Calif. 3-6 6-3 9-7; Tanner, from Lookout Mountain, Tenn., beat Dick Stockton of Port Washington, N.Y., 8-9 6-3 6-4; Smith, of Sea Pines, S.C., beat Raul Ramirez of Mexico 6-0 6-4; and Fillol beat Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 6-22-664.

In the semi-finals Tanner plays Gullikson -who beat him on clay the only time they've met before -and Smith meets Fillol

The rain had died away by midafternoon Saturday, but after a short knock up players decided the grass was too greasy for singles play and the rest of the day's program was filled in with first-round doubles

Referee Mike Gibson, who until two years ago was in charge of Wimbledon, explained: "With Wimbledon just over a week away it isn't fair to expect world-class players to run the risk of injuring themselves. I asked the four semifinalists what they thought and they all thought that although the rain had stopped conditions were too dangerous. I agreed

Only Fillol's victory over Gottfried prevented the United States from making a clean sweep of the singles. Gottfried started off by dropping the first set in his quarter-final Friday 2-6 before rain halted play, then leveled Saturday morning by running through the second set 6-2. But with Fillol playing steadily and Gottfried losing all sense of touch with his volleys, the Chilean picked up the third 6-4 on his third match point to win 2-6, 6-2, 6-4.

The most conclusive victory of the quarter-finals was Smith's 6-0, 6-4 victory over Ramirez. The big Californian, with all his strokes working perfectly, was the only quarterfinal winner to come through the round without dropping a set. He made a clean sweep of the first set, and not until the seventh game of the match did Ramirez have any success. But Smith broke him for a 2-1 lead, enough to give him victory

Gullikson belied his 45th ranking in the United States with a determined 3-6, 6-3, 9-7 decision over Lutz after a long fight in the third set that suddenly ended with a Gullikson break

BOBBY WINKLES, a coach with the San Francisco Giants this season, manages a wink after being named to succeed Jack McKeon, fired as Oakland A's manager. On second thought, maybe that's a grimace of fearful anticipation. (AP Laserphoto).

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service has ruled that college athletic income derived from television and radio is no longer taxexempt, a decision that could cost schools across the country $150 million in back taxes.

The IRS decision, which was initiated by its Dallas regional office, has been appealed by the Cotton Bowl. The IRS has agreed to review the ruling in a June 30 hearing at its main offices in Washington, D.C. If that appeal is rejected, then the NCAA says it will take the case to court or ask Congress for legislation to make the revenue tax exempt.

UNTIL NOW, the IRS has treated sports broadcast income as part of a school's overall tax-exempt monies. But this new IRS ruling says that such broadcast income is not related to a university's primary function as an educational institution and thus is tax

Pay TV makes theater pitch for NFL playoff games

NEW YORK (AP) - The last time National Football League owners got together, they wound up expanding the playoffs. This time, they have a chance to reassure their fans that they'll still be able to see those playoffs at home.

The 28 club owners, who voted a few months ago in Phoenix, Ariz, to expand the 1978 regular season from 14 to 16 games (by trimming the preseason from six to four) and to add two more wild-card teams to the playoffs starting that year, are facing what some people might consider an offer they can't refuse

But the expectation is that at the meetings starting here Tuesday, they will refuse it-or ignore it-and keep a lot of fans happy.

The offer will come from a gentleman named Bill Sargent, who has apparently offered the NFL a mammoth $400 million for the exclusive rights to the league's next five post-season packages, including of course the Super Bowls. Sargent would televise those games in closedcircuit theatres around the nation. with prospective customers reportedly shelling out as much as $100 for a seat to the post-season package.

That $400 million is perhaps as much as four times the amount the league might expect to get out of the three networks when they sign a new agreement to telecast preseason, regular season and post-season action. The package which expires this season is worth an estimated $60 million and the guess is that the NFL might even be able to double that amount the next time around.

But they might also incur the wrath of a lot of fans, embittered at paying their way into parks around the country during the regular season only to be shut out of viewing the biggest and best games because of a prohibitive

Last May 27, Sen. Wendell Anderson, D.-Minn., who has probably suffered enough postseason punishment trying to explain the Vikings' propensity for Super Bowl collapses, jumped on the home-TV bandwagon by introducing into the Congressional Record a "sense of the Senate" resolution expressing his "deep concern" over Sargent's proposal "with respect to the public's right to view National Football League championship games."

"If agreed to by the NFL," Sen. Anderson's statement said, "this system of theatre-only viewing of football games would deny tens of millions of Americans the opportunity to watch televised football games in

And he pointed out that while the teams may be privately owned businesses, "the majority of the stadiums in which the teams play are funded, partially or completely, by local taxpayers.

Also to be decided is the host city for Super Bowl XIII in 1979. Seven cities-Dallas (Cotton Bowl), Houston (Rice Stadium), Los Angeles (Memorial Coliseum), Miami (Orange Bowl), New Orleans (Superdome). Seattle (Kingdome) and Pasadena, Calif (Rose Bowl) scene of Oakland's Super Bowl XI victory) are

The Superdome will be the scene of the Jan. 15, 1978, game. Miami has hosted four Super Bowls, New Orleans will be hosting its fourth next January, Los Angeles has had it twice and Houston and Pasadena once each

U.S. faces challenge

America's Cup, held by the United bstates for 126 years, is up for grabs again with more foreign countries than ever trying for the most prestigious sailing trophy of them all.

The races, held on a 24.3-mile course in Rhode Island Sound, begin June 18 when the three American boats go out for preliminary trials under the watchful eyes of the America's Cup Committee.

Commodore Henry H. Anderson Jr., vice commodore of the New York Yacht Club, expects the 1977 races will be highlighted in part by the unprecedented number of foreign countries sending boats.

The one-that-got-away story for the tournament belongs to San Angelo's Gordon Welch. It wasn't so much that his 14 pounds, 12 ounces of fish got away. Gordon didn't weigh them and wound up finishing 15th in the tourna-

Racing gamble pays

RUIDOSO-DOWNS, N.M. (AP) -Owning race horses can be a big gamble. But it's one that is paying off for two New Mexico men who began buying race horses two years ago.

The third horse purchased by James Martin of Roswell and Douglas Beckwith of Albuquerque already has paid dividends the two probably never Conrad J. (Bud) Johnson, an offshore geologist for Ashland Exploration Company, has developed, a core drilling system for dry sampling sediments up to 12,000 years old in Yellow House Canyon and Black Water Draw near Lubbock.

Principal investigator is Dr. Eileen Johnson, who is not related to Bud Johnson. The Lubbock Lake Site is considered one of the nation's richest archeological sites. The Texas Tech team is conducting the exploration, finding evidence of man's habitation there from the Clovis period, about 12,000 years ago, to the tin-can era of this century:

The geologist became interested in archeological research, developed his system for searching for clues/to prehistoric climates and decided to use his vacation time to field test his

Ashland Exploration Co., however, advised him to do the work on company time in keeping with Ashland's interest in supporting scientific and educational projects of merit.

Within the two-inch diameter continuous core that he pulls from the earth-each core about six inches long— other scientists can trace the geological layers and find ancient pollen. It is the pollen which furnishes important clues to what the climate used to be in the High Plains area of Texas thousands of years ago.

"Pollen is picked up by the wind from all plants," he said, "and it falls like rain upon the soil. Then it becomes a part of the earth.

"Because each plant has a distinct form of pollen, it is possible to reconstruct the look of the land. If we know what plants grew in the area, we can reconstruct the type of climate in which they flourished.

When Johnson pulls the core, only an area with a six-inch diameter has been disturbed and this can be filled to leave almost no trace in a farm

Although his search primarily is for pollen, Johnson and his crew from the Lubbock Lake Site project did bore through a bison bone in one exploratory drilling operation. This gave archeologists a further clue as to a possible future site for a dig.

"In some areas the system works superbly," Johnson said, "but as with all experimental tools there are some improvements I intend to make."

Johnson's experimental work is done with Tom Stafford, graduate student of the University of Arizona, who is project geologist at the Lub-

Israel accused of seeking war

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A right-wing Christian leader warned today that Israel would use any resurgence of Palestinian guerrilla activity in south

Lebanon as an excuse to start a fifth Mideast war.
"Israel needs war badly," said Karim Pakradouni a leader of the Phalange party and chief architect of the Lebanese Christian alliance with Syria that defeated guerrillas and their leftist Moslem supporters in Lebanon's civil war.

"But Israel also needs an excuse and let's hope the guerrillas won't provide it," he said.

Pakradouni, believed to be well-briefed on Syria's official thinking, was commenting on a tentative agreement designed to restrict the guerrilla armed presence in Lebanon.

He said the new accord, mediated by Syria, meets Lebanon's demand for the removal of Yasir Arafat's Palestinian guerrillas from Beirut to the southern regions. It also meets Arafat's demand that guerrillas be left to run the affairs of Palestinians inside the southern refugee camps, he said.

"In fact, the accord will eventually transform most of south Lebanon into a massive Palestinian camp. The new equation may settle the Lebanese-Palestinian conflict if guerrillas refrain from giving Israel a pretext to strike," he said

Pakradouni said the accord provides for a moratorium on cross-border guerrilla raids against Israel. But he expressed fear that radicals of the socalled Rejection Front might attempt to sabotage the

Reports should bring good news

By KRISTIN GOFF

NEW YORK (AP) - Analysts say it's far from a boom. But when corporate earnings reports for the second quarter start coming out a few weeks from now, they should bring very good news indeed

Part of that, economists say, reflects a bit of catching up from the first quarter, when bitter winter weather created operational and delivery problems for some industries.

But beyond that, economic forecasters also see a healthy jump in corporate earnings as a reflection of a general recovery in the economy.

'The fact is, the second quarter is showing very handsome progress.' said Otto Eckstein of Data Resources

"Retail sales are up significantly over the first quarter, auto sales wer e strong in the first but should make more money in the second because they have been running at a strong rate, energy prices are up quite a bit.

"Wherever you look, the prosperity has reached most sectors now." he

Eckstein said he expects corporate earnings to reach $95.5 billion on an after-tax annual basis in the second quarter, an indicated increase of 9 per cent from the Commerce Department's seasonally adjusted annual estimate of $87.6 billion based c n firstquarter results.

On a year-to-year basis, Data Resources projects the quarter to show a 15 per cent improvement over the $88 billion profits figure; for the second quarter of 1976.

The estimates are somewhat more optimistic than others' for ecasts but still are in line with a generally upbeat economic consensus

In interviews this past week, economists for Chase Econometric Associates forecast after tax secondquarter corporate earnings of $93 billion, and at Merrill Lynch Economics the figure was pegged at about $92 billion.

The American Statistical Association this past week also released results of a survey it conduc ted in May.

Responses from 38 member for ecasters showed the average se cond-quarter projection at a $92.7 billion annual after-tax rate, about 13 per cent above the profit figure a year

In other business developments this past week:

-The President's energy program ran into trouble in the House Ways and Means Committee. The committee rejected the proposed 50-centa-gallon standby tax on gasoline. It also turned down the administration proposal to give buyers of fuel efficent car rebates while levying penalty taxes on socalled gas guzzlers. The committee did substitute a watered down version of the penalty tax but delayed its effective date to

-Carter also lost some ground in a House Commerce subcommittee which narrowly approved a plan to free new natural gas sales from federal controls. The administration contends the subcommittee plan would add up to $100 annually to the bills of 40 million homeowners who rely on natural gas for heat

Survey shows huge intrastate expansion

By BILL KJ DD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - A survey by the Texas Aeronauties Commission of intrastate air carriers over the past decade points to the tremendous expansion of that industry in Texas - an expansion which looks likely to continue

In 1967, the first year the TAC began collecting data on intrastate carriers, those carriers transported 37,588 passeng ers.

Last year, the number was 2,025,4/32.

Reasons for the growth, the TAC says, "are numerous," but the most important factors are lower costs. higher frequency of flights and service to smaller communities.

Except for Southwest Airlines, those intrastate carriers use aircraft carrying fewer than 20 passengers.

As inflation, along with the change over to jet aircraft, hit federally-certificated (and subsidized) "local service carriers," Texas intrastate carriers moved into the areas, the TAC reports.

In fact, intrastate carriers are serving 10 communities which were abandoned by Civil Aeronautics Floard. Brownwood, for example, was removed from the Texas International Airlines' routes in 1976 after being served since 1947 - but Eagle Airlines was formed and is now serving that market.

In addition to cities abandoned by air carriers, intrastate operators are serving cities which had no previous air service

Amistad Airlines, Chaparral Airlines, Davis Airlines, Metroflight Airlines, Metroplex Helicopter Airways, Rio Airways, Southwest and Eagle are the intrastate carriers regulated by the TAC - with Southwest the largest.

Amistad provides service between Del Rio and San Antonio, carrying an average 3,500 passengers annually on its five-passenger Piper Cherokee and has been operating nine years. Chaparral provides service between Abilene and Austin, Midland-Odessa, Lubbock and Houston Hobby Davis - the oldest TAC-certificated airline continually operating in Texas began serving a Bryan-College Station to Love Field route in 1965. now also operates between Aggieland and Houston.

Eagle, TAC says, "just may be the smallest airline in the nation. although it serves the nation's largest airport on its twice-a-day flights between Brownwood and Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

Metroflight, with 12 planes, was one of the first carriers in the nation to build and use its own STOL-port, for short take-off and landing (STOL)

Metroflight serves Texas' two largest airports, DFW and Houston Intercontinental, with air service to Longview, Tyler, Lufkin, Beaumont, Clear Lake, Galveston, Lake Jackson and Victoria

Rio's growth has made it one of the top 10 commuter lines in the nation in recent years, both in passenger miles and number of passengers carried.

Rio's operations are centered in Killeen, with service between Killeen. Temple, Waco and Wichita Falls with Metroplex Helicopter is one of the few unsubsidized scheduled helicopter services in the nation, TAC reports, operating from DFW to seven points within the metroplex area, including Love Field, Meacham Field, Fort Worth Convention Center and Dallas Market Center.

Southwest's growth has been, as the FAC notes, "phenomenal" - moving it from "underdog to top dog" among air carriers in the state's major metropolitan areas.

Southwest was formed to compete in those major markets, starting with Houston, Dallas and San Antonio routes - and after some tough going initially, the airline began to operate profitably, and now appears to have weathered court battles prompted by that success.

With the routes now in operation and the one proposed to be in service soon, Southwest will be serving El Paso, Lubbock, Midland-Odessa, San Antonio, Austin, Dallas, Houston, Corpus Christi and the Rio Grande

That, the TAC concludes, shows that for intrastate carriers, the sky really is the limit.

The new tire will debut this fall in many of Detroit's smaller-sized cars for 1978. The compact spare is smaller, lighter and 40 to 50 per cent less bulky than conventional tires. (AP Laserphoto)

COLLEGE STATION — Duplexes, according to the latest figures, are growing rapidly in popularity with Texans.

Research economists Dr. Arthur Wright and Tom Goen of the Texas Real Estate Research Center at Texas A&M University say the number of duplexes built in the state has jumped 88 per cent between 1975 and 1976 while the 1976 total of 2,425 units constructed was an increase of 95 per cent over 1974.

Exchange 'marriage' confusing to Street

By RONALD L SOBLE The Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK - The much discussed marriage between the New York and American stock exchanges is off again and has left Wall Street in a confused state of affairs.

Each exchange is now going its merry way in an effort to develop new securities products designed to drum up more business

And, once again, the Amex appears ready to do battle with the Big Board over the NYSE proposal to start trading stock options.

This sudden turn of events in the recent merger talks which had advanced to a serious stage has left the membership of both exchanges perplexed. Many of the member firms appeared to be pushing for consolidation in an effort to cut industry costs and to provide better markets for their But, as the Pacific Stock Exchange can attest, the wishes of the membership of a stock exchange and of the governors or directors who run it can be two entirely different matters. A majority of PSE governors recently voted, in effect, to move toward consolidating the exchange's Los Angeles and San Francisco operations, but the membership voted

In the case of the NYSE and the Amex, the listed companies on the Big Board threw cold water on the merger proposal at the last minute. Moreover, says an NYSE source.

Big Board leaders want to move ahead now on trading stock options. The NYSE-Amex merger proposal could be hung up in Washington for two years and the NYSE doesn't want to wait that long before seeking approval from the Securities and Exchange Commission to trade options, something it sees as a major source of future revenue, the source said. (The NYSE last week asked the SEC for permission to open a stock options market initially involving some 25 option contracts. No immediate response is expected from

On this issue, Amex Chairman Paul Kolton told The Los Angeles Times his

exchange stands ready to fight the NYSE stock options plan tooth and nail before the SEC and Congress.

Additionally, Kolton says the current outlook for the merger with the Big Board "is very remote" although just a few weeks earlier the Amex governors had approved in principle the idea of a combination with the NYSE.

One of those key participants in the NYSE-Amex merger talks who is trying to patch things up is Robert M. Gardiner, chief executive officer of Reynolds Securities Inc. and chairman of the NYSE's merger com-

Kolton made clear that the thrust of the Amex argument was that for the Big Board to trade both stock options and their underlying securities could lead to problems of manipulation.

Another, unstated reason the Amex would fight the proposal is that it would find itself caught between the intense competitive pressures generated by the NYSE and the Chicago Board Options Exchange

Gardiner suggests there is still membership sentiment for a merger and "we'll try to see if it's possible. I haven't come to the conclusion that it is impossible yet.

Merging the nation's two biggest stock exchanges is an idea that goes back many years.

Recurring barricades have included the possibility that the Justice Department's antitrust division might block such a merger on the grounds that it could be anticompetitive. Moreover, the SEC has never given its official blessing to an NYSE-Amex combination and it is far from clear that such a plan would zip through the Even so, it appeared this year that merger talks were finally reaching the serious stage. Amex governors recently went on record as supporting a combined exchange although no hard plan had been placed before them. The Amex, of course, would have much to gain from such a merger since it would be hooking up with the nation's primary securities operating companies will purchase their telecommunications equipment needs from Western Electric, and AT&T. Bell Labs and Western Electric have taken steps to assure that that will be so," ITT charged in its formal complaint. ITT has been a major manufacturer of telecommunications equipment abroad, but has not made much headway in the U.S. market.

ITT said that since 1970 it has lost profits of at least $50 million on its channel bank equipment, used for telephone transmission. It is suing for triple damages, as authorized under antitrust laws, plus litigation costs.

ITT said AT&T's telephone service branch, Bell Telephone, purchases the vast bulk of its equipment from Western Electric. Technical evaluation of outside equipment is performed by Bell Laboratories, which is jointly owned by AT&T and Western Electric, the suit says.

According to ITT, Western Electric sold more than $230 million of its channel bank equipment to Bell companies in 1973 and 1974 while ITT sold only $5 million worth of equipment to Bell-operated companies.

Bell Telephone operating companies provide about 80 per cent of the nation's telephone service.

Kentucky klansmen set up Junior Klan

Dissatisfied with the "distorted education" they claim their children receive in public schools. Ku Klux Klan leaders in Kentucky have formed a study program for them — the Junior Klan.

Sherman Adams, self-proclaimed grand dragon of all Kentucky Klansmen, cites national studies and recent television programs which he says show that public schools "just aren't doing the job.

'What we're interested in is children being taught the truth. Adams said in an interview. "We don't want our kids brainwashed.

"About a week ago, a daughter of mine came home with a book in social studies," Adams said. "It was straight out ...malicious lies. They have distorted things, like things about the Klan. We're teaching at Junior Klan things you won't find in history books. The children are taught about

"Klancraft - that's knowledge of the Klan and what is and everything,' Adams said.

"We're not trying to make racists. We teach them the difference in race, in interracial mixing. We don't believe in it. It is not just a hate school for youngsters.

He said the Junior Klan is open to white children between the ages of 8 and 18. who are taught "history and not the distorted views that you have in a lot of books. Like the Klan in your history books, they say we're bad. We teach them that's not true.

Adams, like other Klan leaders, refuses to say how many members his group has. And he says he doesn't know how many youngsters are in the Junior Klan.

"It's substantial, I can say that Adams said. Adams and 10 other Klansmen from Shepherdsville and Louisville currently are awaiting trial on

Odessa American, government power clash head-on

SUNDAY, JUNE 12, 1977

Editor's Note: What happens when a tough district attorney tangles with the only newspaper in town? Such a conflict is underway in Odessa, Tex., a city of 90,000 located in Permian Basin of West Texas Some are calling the feud Watergate West, because the newspaper and the district attorney are symbols of the same two powerful American institutions that clashed in the Watergate affair—government power and a free press. Whatever the outcome, the repercussions may be widespread.

Since the newspaper reported last year that Green took a trip to Las Vegas with an ex-convict, six of its employes have been arrested on charges ranging from burglary and bribery to public drunkeness.

Green insists there is no connection between the arrests and his conflict with the newspaper.

He has, however, succeeded in getting grand jury indictments against three of the six and said he expects additional indictments in the weeks

On the libel issue, he growled: "I may not be smart, but I'm not dumb enough to go up against a newspaper without the evidence.

Saying he had been held up to "scorn, ridicule and disgrace." Green reeled off 18 instances in which the newspaper allegedly libeled him.

DeBolt issued a blanket denial, dismissing each allegation as 'groundless

Green readily admits that the Supreme Court ruling in the New York Times vs. Sullivan case makes it difficult for a public official to obtain a libel judgment against a newspaper. But, he said, "Recent decisions have hacked away at the Sullivan case, and other cases since then state that malice can be shown by circumstances. "I'm fully aware of the Sullivan rul-haired, volatile editor of the American, the clash is a result of the newspaper simply doing its job. "We're not fighting him. We're merely trying to keep the people of our area as fully and fairly informed as we know how," he said. "If Green has evidence of wrongdoing on the part of any employe of the Odessa American, it is clearly his duty to prosecute. But he should not attempt to use that evidence as a tool to intimidate the newspaper itself. "The entire initiative in this whole controversy belongs wholly to Mr.

It appears to be a classic confrontation between governmental power and a free press, a struggle matching two American institutions, as in Watergate.

Each accuses the other of malice. Neither is backing down. And the repercussions probably will extend far beyond Odessa and Ector County. Six American staffers have been arrested on a variety of charges in less than two months, including three in one 24-nour span last week. In the latest flap, one reporter was charged with burglary and indecency with a minor, a second with driving while intoxicated and a third with public drunkeness.

"That'll add some spice to your story," Green suggested when telephoning The Associated Press to report the incidents.

'Mr. Green seems to be taking great delight in the unfortunate series of circumstances that resulted in the arrests of three or four of our employes on various unrelated charges," said Ashley.

"His zeal shines through as he runs to the phone and calls in-town and outof-town news media with the latest

Most trace the start of the feud between Green and the American to Aug. 6, 1976, when the newspaper splashed this headline across eight columns: "Ector DA Linked to Vegas Gambl-

The newspaper said Green accompanied a notorious exconvict, Joe D. Hicks, on a flying weekend trip to Las Vegas in 1972, and that Hicks chartered and paid for the plane.

Furthermore, the article said Green also wrote a letter in support of a parole application for Hicks, 40, who received a full state pardon in 1972 despite 14 felony convictions. A onetime General Motors car dealer in nearby Big Spring, and a bail bondsmen for a time in Odessa. Hicks since has been convicted of masterminding an international narcotics operation. He is now in a federal prison.

Ashley said his newspaper had no option but to print the story about the Las Vegas trip

"It qualified as news, unusual as Hell. We would have been derelict if we had not printed the story," he said. Although the American accused Green of no wrongdoing, the district attorney was incensed over the headline and the prominent display of the story. He denied little contained in the article, but declared: "If anybody can find anything wrong that I am doing or have done, then get after it. I'm tired of the newspaper making inferences against

He has since contended that he has both a right and a responsibility to associate with ex-cons, that they come with the job "I testified for one ex-con so he could get his law license back.' A day after the Las Vegas story. Green summoned newsmen to his of fice. After ousting an American reporter, he berated the newspaper for "untrue and slanderous stories and misleading headlines" and announced "As of this day, any news which is newsworthy concerning this office will only be given to the television stations, radio stations and other newspapers of the Basin.

"The Odessa American is no longer welcome in the district attorney's of

The months that followed appeared to be an uneasy standoff, although American reporters were denied immediate access to grand jury indictments, normally a routine courtesy of Green's office.

Then, this spring, the bottom fell

On March 30, Green, in a letter handed personally to DeBolt, leveled a series of allegations against the newspaper, charging essentially that:

1. Ashley and City Editor John Sliney improperly approached members of the grand jury in an attempt to "influence their decisions in regard to their duties

2. Sliney was involved in an illegal gambling operation at the American and that Ashley was aware of it.

3. Ashley and Sliney, "while work ing as agents and employes" of the newspaper, made false allegations to numerous law enforcement agencies regarding Green's activities.

4. Sliney was involved in an election in which a violation of the law occurred—namely, a bribe attempt.

Green says now the letter was written as a courtesy to DeBolt, that it was intended neither for intimidation nor publication.

"I simply wanted DeBolt to clean up his own house," he said. 'Why then," responded Ashley, "if the letter was intended as a courtesy. did he issue a warning to the newspaper's management to 'be prepared' to appear before the grand

"Why did he also send copies to the attorney general of Texas and the Texas Rangers in Midland? "And why did the letter say to notify the owners of the newspaper of the charges?' Green awoke the morning of April 24, a Sunday, to read another bold headline: "DA Threatens Newspaper Says 'Be Prepared' to Face Grand Green said he was astounded "That letter was not intended for truth. How can you threaten them when you tell them what's happen-publication. I wasn't threatening the newspaper. I was telling them the Ashley dismissed that argument thusly: "Hogwash!"

DeBolt branded the letter as "an obvious attempt to intimidate this newspaper" and challenged Green to 'get on with' his investigation. 'They gave me no choice," Green says now Nine days later the grand jury returned criminal indictments against Sliney and two former American employes. Sliney was accused of attempting to bribe a political candidate, and the other two, non-news employes, were accused of drug violations 'Grand Jury Indicts Newspaperman," the American announced the next day, again in a screaming Said Ashley

'You can believe that it was no accident that the three people who were indicted are or have been employes of the Odessa American ... This smacks of selective prosecution to say the least.

Said Green: "I have no vendetta against the Odessa American ... I'm simply fulfilling the obligations of this office.

These actions had to be taken. "I think every public official is scared to do something to the news media, even though they're doing

Furthermore, Green insisted. "There's no free press in Odessa." He said the American is an outlet for Freedom Newspapers' "right-wing" philosophy, adding: "They're against all public officials ... public schools ... public roads ... and they get graded in California on how right-wing their editorials are. "They try to keep controversy going, and Odessa is a good place to do it The radicals get more coverage here than President Carter.'

In rebuttal, DeBolt said: "We will not be intimidated by government officials who must resort to smear tactics and half-truths to justify their actions. We report the news as objectively and accurately as we can. And if this stimulates certain public officials into irresponsible allegations, so be it. "We have no monopoly on the news. There are five daily newspapers circulated in Odessa, plus three network television stations and numerous radio stations. "Courts will eventually decide whether or not John Sliney was guilty of an illegal act. Everything else from the district attorney is irrelevant, except as a technique for smearing the Odessa American into submission, and this he cannot do.

Mrs. Carol Schwartz stands in a White House conference room

Ex-Midlander working for better education

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

WASHINGTON - As vice president of the Washington, D.C., school board, former Midlander Carol Schwartz is working to improve education in the nation's capital

Mrs. Schwartz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Levitt of Midland. believes the Washington public school system is "starting to make very important progress. Among reforms being instituted.

she said in a telephone interview, are an end to social promotions and a requirement that minimum requirements for each grade level be met before promotion. Written tests for teachers also have been instituted to insure the most qualified teachers are hired, she said. Mrs. Schwartz was elected to the school board in November 1974 with 58 per cent of the vote in that election. Washington elects its school board members by residential district, she said, and there are about 100,000 people in her district.

During the campaign, Mrs. Schwartz spent approximately $1,800. Washington campaign regulations limit the amount an individual can contribute to his own campaign to $200 and other contributioms to $100 per person.

But there was no problem in collecting money, she said "At the end, I was turning down money," she said, "because I saw that we were able to run a very effective campaign" on the $1,800. Mrs. Scwartz attended Midland schools from the fourth grade through high school and is a graduate of Midland High. Mrs. Schwartz said she thinks

Midland public schools are good, "but I also think the D.C. schools are very good," better than their reputation would indicate. She said she became interested in running for the school board because her interest in education and her love of the city of Washington seemed to go together.

She had been a special education teacher before the birth of her three

Five days before she was elected, she was appointed by President Gerald Ford to the National Advisory Council on the Education of Disadvantaged Children. She serves as vice chairman of that organization.

Mrs. Schwartz said in some ways her election as vice president of the school board was more gratifying than her election to the board because she was elected vice president by her fellow board members.

She said she already has decided to run for re-election. "I've been very helpful in getting them (new policies) started and I don't want to leave until they're in place," she said.

With the "buyer's market" in teachers she said the school district has an obligation to get rid of unqualified teachers and make sure those hired are the best gualified

While teacher competence is not a big problem, one unqualified teacher in the classroom is a problem that needs to be solved, she said. The Washington school system is instituting "competency-based curricula" in which a specific list of things to be learned is given for each grade level. Students will not be promoted until they have mastered each of the things on that list, she said. The thrust of the new policies is

"back to basics," she said. The new policies have brought real improvements in the schools, Mrs. Schwartz said. Her residential area is an affluent one in which people "could easily afford the option" of private schools. But, many people who have had their children in private schools are enrolling them in public schools again, she said. Mrs. Scwartz said it costs her money to serve on the school board. which pays no salary. Expenses up to $4,000 annually are reimbursed, but there are other expenses, such as a housekeeper's salary, that are not

But, she said, she is fortunate in that her husband, an attorney, can support the family There are frustrations in the job — "It's enormously time consuming and also very often thankless' - but overall Mrs. Schwartz thinks the job

Kiwanis to conduct July 4th activities

A free show and entertainment including music, contests and prizes for youngsters, will be sponsored July 4th at Wadley Barron Park by the Downtown Kiwanis Club. The entertainment will continue into the early afternoon, a club spokesman said Saturday. At 6 p.m. in the Cubs Stadium, a baseball game between the Midland Cubs and the El Paso Diablos will begin, with some between-innings

Play program to continue

The summer parks and recreation playground program is now in progress and will continue through

July 27. Children ages 6 through 12 are. eligible to attend at the following places: Haley Park, Cerebral Palsy Center, Bowie, Burnett, Crockett, Emerson, Fannin, Pease, and Rusk Elementary schools.

The program runs Monday through Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 11:30 entertainment. At the conclusion of the game, the Downtown Kiwanis Club has arranged for a variety show featuring some "pop-rock" music with a sprinkling of patriotic music and entertainment for the youngsters.

Once it is dark enough the Kiwanians will continue in the tradition of the Fourth with a fireworks display in Cubs Stadium

Tickets for the entire evening of entertainment go on sale this week at $1 for children and $1.50 for adults.

This is a joint project of the Kiwanis Club and the Midland Cubs. The Kiwanis share of the profit will go to their community services and projects, including sponsorship of youth organizations such as the two high school key clubs, boy scout troop, summer camp for underprivileged boys, college scholarship for deserving \ students, recognizing outstanding/policemen and schoolteachers, serving working youth with "Workarama" jointly with the Texas Employment Commission. and community services such as the building of the gazebo in Wadley Barron Park.

Motorhomes Escape Gas Guzzler Tax

STANDARD NEWS SERVICE

Motorhomes, which get only six to ten miles per gallon, are excluded from President Carter's proposed "gas guzzler" tax program The Federal Energy Administration cites three reasons why motorhomes are excluded. 1 Motorhomes, of which there are less than one million in the U.S., use less than one per cent of the coun try's total gasoline consumption. This is an insignificant portion of the 2.5 billion barrels of gasoline used last year n the United States by all motor vehicles. A barrel equals

2 The proposed "gas guzzler" tax, if passed by Congress, would be based on mileage rating certificates issued by the Environmental Protection Agency

Motorhomes, because they are built on a heavy truck chasis, are not subject to EPA ratings. Only cars and light trucks are rated for mileage by the EPA.

3 Recreational vehicles with a gross vehicle weight of 10,000 pounds - a category which includes most motorhomes are specifically listed as exempt from the gas guzzler tax in Carter proposals

Under the proposed Carter formula, automobiles which get fewer than 18 miles per gallon would be taxed on a sliding scale, beginning with 1978 models. A tax of $180 would be levied on a car getting 15 mpg, $449 on a car getting 11 mpg. But a motorhome getting 8 mpg would not be subject to gas guzzler taxes. Martha Movement improving society's concept of homemaker

By MARGUERITE SULLIVAN Copley News Service

WASHINGTON - Less than a year ago. Jinx Melia had an idea for an organization that would help women. She launched it last fall with 50 members.

Today there are more than 5,000 in every state and seven foreign countries with 100 new members being added each week.

Her idea was the Martha

Its purpose is to improve society's concept of the homemaker - and basically the homemaker's concept of

The name which comes from the biblical story of Mary and Martha explains it, Melia said in an interview. Martha and Mary, were sisters who invited Jesus to their home. While Mary 'sat at Jesus' knee Martha was kept busy with domestic chores. Finally she complained that Mary should help her. Jesus replied to the effect that Mary had chosen the better role," Melia said.

"We use that story simply to point out that most of the recent attention that has been given women is to 'Marys' who seek identity and fulfillment outside the home, while 'Marthas' continue unrecognized, she said.

How the Marthas hope to reverse that trend, through their nonprofit, tax-exempt organization, is to be the advocate for the "invisible 60 million women working at home or those that wish they could."

Melia lists these problems as isolation, lack of positive reinforcement, financial dependency. inability to transfer skills to the job market and lack of institutional support and assistance.

There are studies on prisoners of war showing the major thing which happened to them was depression," said Melia, in her stark headquarters in nearby Arlington, Va.

"Everyone knows that many homemakers are depressed, but they never have connected homemakers to isolation. And how much has been publicized on the fact that the largest growing group of alcoholics is women at home?" she asked

Rococo stitch gives a break from normal stitchery

By ERICA WILSON

During the 18th century a marvelous stitch became the rage—the Rococo stitch. It was done in fine silk and cotton threads on needlepoint canvas and formed a very unique pattern of tiny holes all over the design. Later on, this "look" became so popular that needlepointers who weren't quite ready to explore new needlework horizons would do the regular tent stitch over the canvas, and then with the spirit of the so why don't you try your evenly sprinkle little times back then—which hand at the stitch? black stitches across the design to give the apperimentation and do, and though it may pearance of these Rococo breaking away from the look a bit overwhelming oles. norm. You wouldn't think that a 12-yearold who can't bring a tube of toothpaste and its cap together with any degree of neatness would be able to tell his mother how to alter a pair of jeans, would you? Well, he did

Our youngest has a favorite (and I mean favorite!) pair of cut-offs he wears when playing basketball. The length, of course, is no problem. They just get to be shorter and shorter cutoffs. But the waist was beginning to show terrible signs of strain and was threatening not to close

Throw them away? Not on your life. "How about," he says, "cutting them down the back and putting in a

I told him, of course, that it wouldn't work. But he insisted. I gave in. And here's how we did it.

Cut down through the back of the jeans, to one side of the center-back seam (cutting and sewing through the seam is too bulky). From another pair of old jeans cut an elongated diamond shape. Fold it at the widest part, wrong sides together, creating a triangle. Insert in cut with the folded edge at the top of the waistband

But it won't work, I tell you

Besides the 12-year-old, we have sons 15, 19 and 21, each with his own idea of what mom should "stitch up. Together we have created vinyl beltbags in which to carry paper route money, gym bags of prison-stripe denim, corduroy magazine holders for the wall, and furry vests.

Take body measurements over the undergarments and foundations you will be wearing with the finished garment. Draw the tape measure as snugly as you want your garment to fit. Ease has already been allowed in the bust, waist, hips and back-waistlength measurements listed on the pattern envelope chart. Crotch depth is not listed, so you will need to add one-half inch to one inch to your measurement before comparing it to the one you take from the paper

Security for trip upset

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures

Vacationers may make the most elaborate security plans when they leave their homes and then be foiled unwittingly by a conscientious ser-

For example, at one residence where refuse is picked up several times a week by a private contractor, the collector noticed the garbage cans weren't being used. He turned the cans upside down so he wouldn't necessarily stop at the house until the cans were upright again which would indicate the family had returned.

Good deduction, but it may have tipped off some neighborhood pilferers, the family decided. There were indications that strangers had been about, but they were saved by their telephone answering service. The phone service had recognized the phony telephone calls and had pretended to be part of the household. The burglars chose instead a nearby house where garbage cans also were wrong side up.

People resort to every kind of ploy to conceal their absence from home. but sometimes only succeed in giving their homes an unlived-in look. Too neat is one mistake. All the shades hanging at the same level at the window, a perfectly manicured lawn, with no sign of a tool left outside as might be usual.

Some people hire friendly workmen to do a big job about the house during their absence. It's an ideal time to paint the outside of a house, blacktop a driveway, build an addition, have the lawn resodded and trees pruned. But you should know the workmen.
