Forged check helps unravel search

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

A short time after Mrs. Janice Abernathy was stabbed to death Tuesday morning, a forged check belonging to the victim and her husband was cashed at a nearby food

That check led to the apprehension of a 16-year-old Midland youth and ended a two-day search for a suspect in connection with that slaying, according to detective Lt. Earl Luckey.

Mrs. Abernathy, 23, of 4303 W.

Storey Ave. was eight months pregnant with her first child at the time of her death. She was last seen alive about 7:30 Tuesday morning by her husband, Terry, as he left for work. He returned home shortly after noon to find his wife lying on the living room floor with multiple stab wounds. The only thing taken from the west Midland residence was the couple's

The $38 forged check was used to obtain two things at the store—a $6 flower arrangement and $32 in cash.

Luckey said the manager of the M-System food store at 400 Midland Drive reported the forged check Wednesday morning. The manager told police he remembered receiving a check with the Abernathys' address on it after hearing the address mentioned on Tuesday night's news.

After police were alerted to the check, Luckey said, an eyewitness came forward who knew the youth and saw him write the check at the

Luckey said it took from Wednesday morning until 12:45 a.m. Thursday to make the apprehension as police did not get all the information until 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The cashier and other witnesses at the food store identified the picture as being of the youngster who cashed the check Tuesday morning. Police then went to the youth's home to take him into custody.

Police were also aided by a woman who said a "20-year-old man" entered her house about 8:30 Tuesday morning seeking to use the telephone.

According to police reports, the man used the phone, left the house and returned a short time later. The woman told police she threatened to call some neighbors, causing him to flee on a 10-speed bicycle.

The woman described the man as having an "Afro" hair style, about 160 pounds, and 5 feet 10.

Luckey described the youth being detained as an outstanding student and one of the leaders in his class.

"Yeah, I guess you could call him Mr. School," said Luckey. "He's one of the finest athletes to ever come out of junior high here.'

Midland County Judge Barbara Culver, in a hearing Thursday morning, ruled that the youth be detained in county jail for 10 days.

County Attorney Leslie Ackers said he would file a motion to have the youth certified as an adult to be tried

While Texas law does not forbid the release by officials and publication by news media of the names of persons being handled as juvenile offenders, juvenile judges often feel it is in the best interest of the juvenile, his or her family and the community as a whole to protect that identity until careful determination of the facts of the case can be made.

News executives generally have felt it wise to follow the judgment of the court. Publication of the names of juveniles accused of serious crimes usually follows certification of the accused as an adult, and the transfer of the case to the district court level.

EPA approves Seabrook

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Environmental Protection Agency today gave its approval for construction of the controversial Seabrook nuclear power plant, paving the way for further work on the New Hampshire

The decision ends a two-year dispute over the plant's proposed cooling system, which would discharge artificially heated water into the North Atlantic and, opponents charged, upset the delicate marine environment.

Public Service Company of New Hampshire, the store's largest utility, is seeking to build the $2 billion generating station.

EPA Administrator Douglas Costle told reporters at a news conference that the power plant 'has become a major symbol in the debate over

Alaska files over pipeline rate charges

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - Hundreds of millions of dollars were wasted in the construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline, the state of Alaska charged in documents made available Thurs-pipeline. Alaska's complaint went to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which must approve the charges to be levied for shipping oil through the

The ICC's staff bureau of investigations and enforcement also attacked the proposed rates as excessive in a report issued Thursday. On Wednesday, the U.S. Justice Department also filed a formal objection, charging that the oil companies would earn overcharge of $900 million a year under their suggested rate system.

Eight oil companies that operate the 800-mile line from Alaska's North Slope to the port of Valdez have proposed charges ranging from $6.04 to $6.44 a barrel. In sharp contrast, the state of Alaska says the rates should range from $3.59 to $4.42 a barrel.

Controversies over waste on the pipeline project may significantly affect the charges for using the line, as well as the amount of revenue received by the state of Alaska on sales of North Slope oil.

Under the ICC. regulatory procedure, pipeline rates should enable the line's owner to make a reasonable profit on the investment. If some of the money spent for the project was misused or imprudently spent, the

At the same time, the State of Alaska will lose millions of dollars in revenue from oil sales if the pipeline companies' claims for high transportation charges are approved.

Court bill given OK by Briscoe

AUSTIN - The bill to allow creation of a county court at law in Midland has been signed into law by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Under the law, county commissioners can create the court as early as Jan. 1, 1978, after it has determined the need for such a court. The commissioners can submit the question of need to the voters through a referendum if they wish to do so.

The county court at law can hear misdemeanor criminal cases and civil cases with up to $5,000 sought in damages.

Briscoe calls July 11 session

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he believes House and Senate members are close enough to agreement on public school financing that he can call a special session for July 11.
"I think we should be able to accomplish the work of the session in a week or 10 days," the governor told a news conference Thursday.

The formal call for the special session - only the second in Briscoe's five years as governor - will be issued later, detailing exactly what he wants the 181 legislators to consider.

by at least $40 billion the long-range costs of his natural gas deregulation proposal. Krueger, sponsor of a deregulation package, listed what he described as a series of calculating errors made by administrations energy experts when they determined that deregulation would cost the consumer $86 billion over the next eight years. He told reporters that errors he could pinpoint, such as in calculating prices, amounted to more than $40 billion. Others, he said, added up to 'incalculable billions more.'

Krueger would not, however, estimate what his plan would cost. He said he did not have enough data to do that, "and if I were to guess at things I would be guilty of the same mistake they've made.

Krueger said he felt President Carter was ill-served by the advisers who calculated the administration's figures. He said he would still like to work closely with the administration toward long-range energy goals.

Krueger's plan would phase in total gas deregulation, starting by deregulating the price of new natural gas discoveries. He has estimated the price on that new gas would rise to $2.50 per thousand cubic feet. although other experts estimate the price could go as high as $4.00.

Burglary site attracts visitors

By MAUREEN SANTINI

WASHINGTON (AP) - On the rear stairwell door of an office on the sixth floor of the Watergate building is a plaque commemorating a "pips-queak" burglary that occurred five years ago today.

The plaque is one of the few tangible reminders of the June 17, 1972, breakin at the Democratic National Headquarters that eventually forced Richard Nixon out of office and his chieftains into prison.

Now the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences occupies the offices. For the many curious visitors who want to peek at the famous spot, the institute installed the plaque and hands out pamphlets. Although the Watergate office complex remains one of the big attractions in a capital city that has many, the event has become so passe to those who work there that few could say who now occupies the offices.

'We're not holding a celebration, a desk clerk said when asked Thursday night about the fifth anniversary. Neither are H.R. Haldeman, Nixon's chief of staff, nor former Atty, Gen. John Mitchell, who surrender to prison officials next Wednesday for

Four other men, all from Miami, were arrested with Liddy inside the Watergate offices of the Democratic National Committee. Bernard Barker, Eugenio Martinez, Virgilio Gonzalez and Frank Sturgis were convicted of conspiracy, wiretapping and burglary. They pleaded guilty and all served more than one year in jail.

No gun, no money, agent tells robber

PITTSBURGH (AP) - A Pittsburgh man lacked a key ingredient in his attempt to rob a ticket agent at a downtown bus terminal, police said. Ticket agent Ray Peacoe told police a man walked to his window Sunday night and announced, "This is a holdup."

"Where's your gun," Peacoe asked "My buddy has it," the man said. "Well, I can't give you any money if you don't have a gun," Peacoe told the would-be robber.

"Okay, I'll go get one," was the rep-

Senate rejects Korean pullout, stiffens on Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — Expressing its own views on foreign affairs, the Senate is unwilling to endorse President Carter's proposal to withdraw U.S. ground troops from South Korea.

Senators also don't want to impose preconditions on talks which could lead to normalized relations with Cuba, and are making it clear they are not prepared to accept any administration proposal for aid or reparations to Vietnam.

The Carter administration has not recommended any such assistance for the communist government

The Senate made its views known on foreign affairs on Thursday during a 10-hour debate on a .6 billion State Department authorization bill. The

The Senate dropped from the bill a provision recommended by the Foreign Relations Committee endorsing the timing and wisdom of the proposed pullout of ground forces from Korea.

Instead it voted 79-15 that any reduction or withdrawal should be ordered only after a "joint decision by the President and Congress." The provision was written by Majority Leader Robert Byrd

The vote made it clear that the Senate wants to be consulted on any withdrawal, a concept on which it is still sharply divided.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker said the vote was a defeat for the President. Baker and other senators said that withdrawal over four or five years, as Carter is proposing, could tempt North possible war involving the United States.

Baker and other senators said that besides the possiblity of a possible invasion, the troop with drawal proposal could upset the military stability of much of Asia. They said it could encourage the resurgence of Japanese militarism by posing a military threat to that country's security.

Carter has said the troop withdrawal he proposes would involve ground forces only. He has said the United States remains firm in its commitment and will to defend South Korea from attack and intends to maintain air and naval forces equipped with nuclear weapons to carry out that commitment

Earlier, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., tried to defuse what he predicted would be a "long and vitriolic" debate on Cuba. He deleted an amendment he was backing which would have permitted Cuba to buy medical supplies and farm produce in the United

McGovern sought originally to have the 16-year trade embargo against Cuba lifted. He said the reduced scope of his amendment would have been only a "small gesture" to encourage the success of negotiations aimed at normalizing relations between Cuba and the United States.

But a group of senators insisted on pressing for passage of amendments offered by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., to impose a rigid set of preconditions on Cuba before the United States could move to restore

Coastal states receive boost

Purpose of the bill on outer continental shelf leases is to provide more competition and enable the government to get its money's worth in selling drilling rights for oil and gas in submerged lands up to 200 miles off its shores.

Under current procedures, leases are awarded to the highest cash bidder. The bill provides that at least one-third of the leases must be awarded under alternative bidding methods, such as agreeing to pay the government a specified royalty.

Graham urges Baptist war to win souls

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Calling for an all out war to win souls, evangelist Billy Graham closed the annual Southern Baptist Convention Thursday night by challenging Christians to stand up to mental, possibly physical persecution.

Earlier 16,000 delegates reaffirmed their position that homosexuality is a sin, passed a resolution praising singer Anita Bryant for her stand on the issue, and heard U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young Jr., describe the world as divided in a "balance of terror.

An estimated 20,000 persons were on hand for Graham's speech, the concluding event of the three-day convention for the nation's largest protestant denomination. Southern Baptists claim some 13 million members nationwide, including Miss Bryant and President Jimmy Carter, who addressed delegates opening night via videotape.

Graham, in a news conference earlier in the day, said he admires Miss Bryant for heading the effort to repeal a Dade County, Fla., law that made it illegal to deny housing and job opportunities to homosexuals.

But he said he does not feel God has called him to join particular groups to oppose certain kinds of sins.

Young, who is a minister of the United Church of Christ, said "There is something wrong when the people of the world, because of differences in ideologies, will spend $350 billion annually to have the capacity to destroy one another as a means of keeping 1985 this conversion tax program would mean savings of 3.3 million barrels of oil a day, or its equivalent in natural gas. The administration's savings estimate for the entire energy package is 4.5 million barrels.

The panel worked Thursday on a staff proposal that would change the administration's one-rate tax to a two-tier tax. Industries that could convert to coal without difficulty would be taxed at a higher rate.

Those that could not convert or could do so only with difficulty would be taxed at a lower rate to encourage conservation of oil or gas.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Gov. Dolph Briscoe neared the end of his review of the work of the regular session of the 65th Legislature today with a little black cloud floating over about 20 measures.

about 20 measures

"I would guess there would be a total of about 20 vetoes," Briscoe told a news conference

He has approved and signed into law close to 600 new pieces of legislation sent to him by lawmakers.

Sunday is the deadline for Briscoe to act or measures can become law without his signature.

Thursday, the governor signed into law three controversial measures that were not settled until the final days of the 140-day

One of the measures was the "sunset bill," which requires periodic rewiew of most state agencies by the legislature. 'I sign this with great pleasure

and I think it is a step in the right direction," Briscoe said. The bill, sought both by fiscal conservatives and Common Cause, would subject 175 agencies to a life-or-death review in the next 12 years, about 30 each legislative session. Another bill signed Thursday would merge the state's three powereful water agencies -

Texas Water Development Board, Texas Water Quality Board and Texas Water Rights Commission.

Although it was merged for administrative purposes, the three-member water rights commission would retain its independence in settling disputes over ownership of water.

Another major bill signed Thursday attempts to lower medical malpractice insurance costs. It was approved after a session-long fight between Texas doctors and trial lawyers.

The final compromise written by a 10-member conference committee puts a $500,000 ceiling on awards to injured patients, plus unlimited medical and custodial expenses. It also requires injured patients to give doctors 75 days notice before suing them and sets up machinery to discipline incompetent or careless physicians.

Other bills of statewide interest signed included:

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - After four con-secutive days of highly publicized U.S. pressure on the Russians to let Los Angeles Times correspondent Robert C. Toth leave Moscow, Carter Administration officials Thursday were reluctant to claim credit for his sudden release.

And officials at both the White House and State Department were geared to reject indignantly any suggestion that the Russian decision to drop possible charges against Toth resulted from any secret bargaining, or that any concessions had been offered by the United States.

Rather, officials interpreted the episode as a standoff, in which the Soviet authorities let Toth go only after achieving their apparent purpose of intimidating U.S. newsmen in Moscow and of stepping up their campaign against the dissident move-

At the same time, officials stressed. the incident was not without cost because it added a significant strain on U.S.-Soviet relations. "We are pleased by the outcome, but we regard the whole episode as extreme-ly unfortunate, said Deputy Secretary of State Warren M. Christopher, whose telephoned protest to the Soviet ambassador Tuesday was the highest level direct U.S. intervention in the affair.

"It is inconsistent with the Helsinki Final Act," Christopher added in an interview, referring to the 1975 accord under which the Soviet bloc accepted some Western standards for human rights and treatment of foreign jounalists.

"It is particularly unfortunate because it comes right at the commencement of the preparatory meeting," Christopher said. he was referring to the Helsinki review session just getting under way in Belgrade. "We hope to do it (review the Helsinki agreement) in a constructive and not a confrontational way. Asked whether Toth was being allowed to leave because of actions taken by the Carter Administration during the week, the official State Department response, issued by spokesman John Trattner, was: "We do not want to make that connection. We did protest at several levels. We can confirm he has been told he may leave the Soviet Union.

Asked to respond to the report attributed to a Soviet journalist accredited to the United Nations that Toth's release was preceded by intense "hot line" bargaining, officials at state and at the White House had an identically worded denial:

"There was no bargaining, n discussion of conditions for his release, nothing which could be described as negotiations."

Officials here responsible for watching the incident most closely were privately confident as early as Tuesday, that Toth eventually would be released. On that day the pace of Toth's KGB interrogation quickened and Soviet authorities refrained from formally charging Toth with es-pionage activities of which they had indirectly accused him.

By Wednesday, the questioners told Toth explicitly that he was regarded as a "witness" rather than a defendant. They began to concentrate on his relationship with Anatoly Shcharansky, a Jewish dissident with whom Toth had openly cooperated in the past and who is now facing charges of treason.

Test of diplomacy

On June 5 the Middle East marked the 10th anniversary of the Six Day War. Israel dealt the Arab and Egyptian armies a crushing defeat in June of 1967, but like all of the fighting between Arabs and Jews since the 1940s, it settled nothing.

The Six Day War left Israel with the burden of administering territory populated by Arabs and defending itself against United Nations resolutions demanding its return. The 1967 war only set the stage for the Yom Kippur war in 1973, and the Israeli occupation of the Sinai, Gaza, the West Bank of the Jordan and part of the Golan Heights continues to fuel the hostility of the Arab world.

As the Carter administration takes up the U.S. commitment to support of Israel, the issue of the occupied territories has become entwined with the older issue dating back to 1948 - the aspirations of Palestinian refugees for a "homeland."

President Carter's main contribution so far to the difficult process of Middle East diplomacy has been to add U.S. support of a future homeland for displaced Palestinian Arabs to our longstanding support of the right of Jews to a homeland in the old Palestine. Whether Mr. Carter can weave the two together is the challenge emerging for his Middle East policy.

His tilt toward a Palestinian homeland - though stopping short of talking of a Palestinian "state" - no doubt helped make his recent meeting with Prince Rand of Saudi Arabia a harmonious affair. The Saudis are saying that Mr. Carter is moving in a direction that should give us no fear that they will use the oil supplies we desperately need as a "weapon." The other side of the coin, of course, is that the weapon remains in their hands if the President does not keep moving in a direction that pleases them.

Mr. Carter forgot his history when, at his recent news conference, he sought to find a precedent for U.S. support of a Palestinian homeland. U.N. resolutions calling for Israel's withdrawal from territories occupied in 1967, which our government has supported, do not touch on the "homeland" issue. Mr. Carter's staff found a tenuous link in the U.N. resolution of 1947. which recommended the partition of Palestine into Jewish and Arab states. Furthermore, Mr. Carter is the first President to call for a "homeland."

Arab governments and Palestinian Arab leaders never accepted the 1947 resolution, and Israel independently declared its existence as a state in 1948. The issues of those years remain unresolved and have fueled both the warfare and militant rhetoric between Arabs and Jews for 30

Menahem Begin, whose Likud party won the recent Israeli elections, takes the view that even the 1948 boundaries of Israel do not represent the full homeland that the Jews can claim - that some West Bank territory should remain in Israeli hands for good. Whether he can carry this attitude into the new government he is trying to form remains to be seen. Such an official policy in Israel would only darken the prospect for fruitful Arab-Israeli

President Carter's ability to deal with the new Israeli government eventually will come to a test. Since he has raised the hopes of the Arabs that U.S. influence will seek to bring about both the withdrawal from occupied territories and the establishment of a Palestinian Arab homeland, it promises to be a tough test both for Mr. Carter and the Israelis.

President becoming more aware of menace

By VIRGIL PINKLEY Copley News Service

President Carter is learning the hard way that the Russians are difficult to deal with and that they are determined to build up and maintain the greatest military machine in

This fact was underscored by the President's remarks when he met with the NATO heads in London and talked with the leaders of Western European governments and Japan.

All of a sudden he seems to be much more aware of the Soviet menace than previously.

It might even be that he would reconsider having Paul Warnke, chief of the U.S. Arms Control Agency, be our representative in future arms negotiations because Warnke simply is too soft and too much of a dove to stand up to the tough Soviet leaders. President Carter said that the Russian military forces and those of their slave states in Central Europe are much greater than any needed for defensive purposes In talking with NATO leaders he said, "There is a continuing growth in the offensive capabilities of the Warsaw Pact countries," and then he stressed the need for NATO to maintain its own forces at an adequate level. We and our partners in this 28-year-old alliance need to do a great deal - especially our partners. It is high time that they spent more of their national gross products

In his London talks the President emphasized the continuous Soviet military buildup which has been in progress for the last 12 years.

It started immediately after the Cuban crisis and has been accelerated and expanded subsequently.

What they offer in return will be chicken feed.

Latest confidential reports show that the Russians have developed an entirely new arsenal of strategic weapons during the last few years. They are said to have brought out seven new intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs). During this same period the United States has put into place only one new missile, the Minuteman III.

The Soviet missiles are believed to have developed increased accuracy and added many technical in-

Among the new Soviet missiles is the SS-18 — a monstrous, liquid-fueled rocket. It can carry eight to 10 independently targeted nuclear warheads. It is believed that Soviet military planners in the event of a nuclear war would fire SS-18s at our hardened missile silos.

Other Russian missiles of destruction include the SS-19, SS-17, SS-X-16 and the SS-N-8. Most of these carry much more wallop than the earlier SS-11s.

The SS-17, -18 and -19 all carry four warheads and would be especially effective used against cities. It is believed that the SS-X-16 has exceptional mobile capabilities and would be difficult to detect and

The SS-N-8 would be submarinelaunched and it is believed this missile has a range of at least 4,200 miles, which would enable Russian submarines to strike U.S. targets while cruising far off our coasts. Many of the Soviet missiles are coldlaunched. Scientifically this means that they are popped out of their missile silos by a charge of gas before the engines are ignited.

Authoritative Washington estimates say that the Russians are currently employing 830,000 scientists and engineers in exclusive military research. This constitutes more than half of all of the trained research manpower in the Soviet Union.

In our country we have about 500 scientists and engineers assigned exclusively to handle military research and development.

A CHANGING WORLD:

'Microstates' taking over U.N.

By JOHN PINKERMAN Copley News Service

Every time a new republic is voted into the United Nations the influence of the United States and its ability to guide decisions of the increasingly irresponsible world body get a new effect, the "microstates" (nations with less than 300,000 inhabitants) are taking over the U.N. and this is eroding the equilibrium of the community of nations. The situation could get worse, too, because there is a good chance that there could be 50 to 100 new "liberated" nations, even as many as 200, in the U.N. during the next few years - and most of these "Third World" creations take a dim view of the West, including the United States.

Elmer Plischke, University of Maryland professor, has made a careful study of this situation, likened to Gulliver being held captive by the Lilliputians, and what he has to say has been published by the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research. It makes interesting reading.

There are precedents for calling the current U.N. course wrong — particularly for the United States - and one is the words of the ultraliberal Eleanor Roosevelt when she was chief U.S. representative to the world body: "Just as the concept of human liberty carried to its logical extreme would mean anarchy, so the principle of self-determination of peoples given unrestricted application could result

It is not the question of whether new republics should be free to manage their own affairs that is at issue but whether, irrespective of their size and ability to fulfill their responsibilities. they should be entitled to sovereign equality in the affairs of the community of nations.

It seems to be an axiom of in-

and it puts the United States at a distinct disadvantage. The United States is twice as populous as all the existing small states (under five million) combined but these small states account for more than half the members of the U.N. and thus can control the voting power.

These small states, including the microstates, individually contribute the minimum 0.02 per cent of the budget and as an entire group pay less than one-sixteenth the share of the United States. Joined by other small states, they can muster a decisive two-thirds vote and thus dominate U.N. decision making.

Worse is the way these Third World states vote most of the time. Their logic is based on "colonial hangover" and resulting congenital opposition to Western nations. This situation, unchecked as more new republics enter the U.N., could be disaster for the United States on the world scene.

INSIDE REPORT:

Plan to centralize intelligence began months ago

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Whatever the ultimate cost of the unnoticed burial of the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, the short-run effect is to silence the most important intelligence sounding board other than U.S. intelligence agencies themselves — for every President back to Dwight Eisenhower.

The most persuasive agent on President Carter last month in recommending the death of the board (known as Pifiab) was Adm. Stansfield Turner, the new director of Central Intelligence. But Central Intelligence directors have never particularly liked Pifiab with its highpowered membership drawn from the loftiest niches of American science, business and former government officials. To them, it represented a threat as a competitor for the President's ear and a source of intelligence inspiration.

Pifiab, for one notable example, engineered the brilliant intelligence breakthrough by the CIA that led to spy-in-the-sky reconnaissance. That might have been delayed for years without hard pressure from Pifiab and Dr. Edwin H. Land, Polaroid chairman and a Pifiab member, since

The risks inherent in killing Pifiab are manifold. It was Pifiab that persuaded former President Ford and ex-CIA director George Bush to engage an outside team of hard-line experts to debate CIA's estimate of Soviet intentions and capabilities last

Those experts, called "Team B," produced much harsher estimates than the CIA's "Team A" of experts. The result: a much harder-nosed "national estimate" regarded by experts as far more realistic than estimates by the CIA acting alone.

The point-man in exposing the CIA's experts to such formidable competition was Leo Cherne, Pifiab's last chairman (a post previously held by Dr. James Killian, Clark M. Clifford and Gen. Maxwell Taylor since Eisenhower established Pifaib in 1956).

The sudden death of Pifiab is clearly tied to the fear of similar outside competition for the intelligence bureaucracy, plus a desire to centralize control over all intelligence within the CIA and the National Security Council staff inside the White House. The explanation for this, a view widely held by skeptical outside experts on Soviet weapons and geopolitical planning, is the bureaucracy's zeal to screen out

points of view that challenge the prevailing administration line. Consider the following incidents: Dr. Richard Pipes, the Harvard Russian scholar who played a key role in "Team B" last summer, believed he had an informal agreement from the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) for up to $7,500 to help finance a Harvard-MIT conference on basic Soviet strategic doctrine. But ACDA, now under highly controversial director Paul Warnke, informed Pipes last month help fund the project (even though Warnke has publicly said he has no idea whether Moscow seeks military superiority over the U.S., or simply

An invitation to retired Gen. George Keegan, former Air Force intelligence chief, early this year to lecture at the Air University at Maxwell Air Force Base was withdrawn. The only explanation: that the Pentagon and/or White House did not want Keegan to be sponsored by the government in view of his well-known alarm over Soviet intentions.

Concern within the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA) that the Carter administration - and Adm. Turner - may be plotting enhancement of CIA at the expense of DIA.

What makes the demise of Pifiab more mystifying is that two principal authors of the Senate Intelligence Committee's final report on "the President's office" last year, David Azron and Rick Inderfurth, said the board had been "useful," partly because "its advice and recommendations have been for the President. As such, the executive nature of this relationship should be maintained.'

Aaron is now deputy to national security director Zbigniew Brzezinski; Inderfurth is Brzezinski's special assistant. They headed Jimmy Carter's transition "team" on intelligence, proposing to abolish Pifiab despite what they wrote in that report only months earlier.

One conclusion from this is that the incoming administration was planning to centralize intelligence long before it took office, duly reflected by Aaron and Inderfurth. Their report sat on the President's desk until early May when, pressed by Adm. Turner, Mr. Carter delivered the coup de grace to Pifiab - a blow to challenges from outside the bureaucracy that have proved invaluable to U.S. intelligence in the past.

"If you can't get along with the neighbors, what you probably don't need is different neighbors.

Traditional problems surface in Belgrade

By MICHAEL GETLER The Washington Post

BELGRADE - Fundamental differences emerged here Thursday in U.S. and Soviet approaches to reviewing how well nations have carried out the far-reaching pledges on European security, economic cooperation and human rights signed by 35 countries at Helsinki in 1975.

The differences became clear here in the second day of a 35-nation preparatory conference meant to lay the groundwork for a full-scale review of the Helsinki accords this fall.

In the first Soviet address to the conference, chief delegate Yuli Vorontsov called for "a constructive atmosphere and businesslike exchange of views.

But he said the emphasis should be on "summarizing the positive accomplishments" since the accords were signed and in "looking toward the future" with respect to new

In that way, Vorontsov said, the conference would "contribute to the general improvement of the political

In effect, the Soviets are asking the participants not to criticize each other or examine in detail the failure of individual countries to live up to the spirit of some of the pledges made at

Those pledges, however, inspired an upsurge of demands for individual freedoms and human rights throughout Eastern Europe, and the Carter administration has undertaken a major campaign of pressing the Soviets on this issue and openly criticizing them for a 'disappointing' performance in the two years since the Helsinki agreement was signed.

The U.S. delegation here is arguing for the thorough and complete review of implementation of all parts of the accords that is called for in the final act of the Helsinki agreements.

The United States, backed by most West European countries, is pressing for basically an open-ended debate beginning next fall that will not end until all points are examined and that would include working committees as well as full conference groups so that detailed assessments can be made.

A proposal introduced Wednesday by the British, with the support of the nine-member European Common Market and the United States, would in effect have set up that kind of openended agenda, though it did include a provision for a non-binding goal of ending in 12 weeks.

Thursday, however, the conference seemed to be turning instead to a simplified Spanish proposal that basically lays out an agenda of questions for the preparatory meeting to decide, without suggesting any

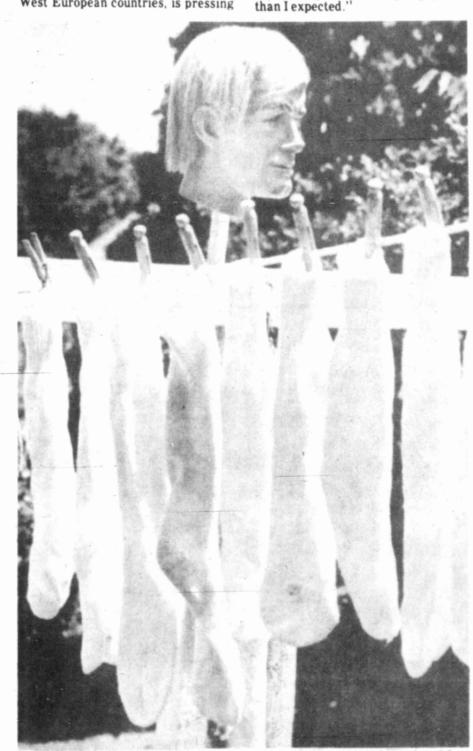

Thus, it now seems that the conference will enter a long period of perhaps six weeks in which each point about duration, agenda and committee will be argued out, with the United States pressing for no specific closing date for the main conference and the Soviets trying to assure shutting things off sometime before the end of the year.

In Vorontsov's view, "If we are to speak about our major achievements' in Europe since Helsinki, "they are that peace in Europe has become more stable, that economic relations have expanded, that there are broader cultural and information exchanges and contacts among peoples are developing

The meetings here are all behind closed doors, but a spokesman for the Soviet delegation briefed newsmen on Vorontsov's comments.

Though the United States and most of the West would disagree with much of that assessment, U.S. delegate chief ambassador Albert W. Sherer told newsmen later that he found the Soviets' opening speech "basically

Earlier Thursday Sherer was also questioned about how the conference seemed to be going thus far, and he replied, "perhaps its going better

Court ruling on employes' religion favors employer

By MORTON MINTZ The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court ruled 7 to 2 Thursday that an employer is not required to disrupt normal operations in order to let an employe observe a particular day of the week as the Sabbath.

The court held that the Civil Rights Act of 1964 does not compel an employer to put such an employe on a four-day week, pay someone else overtime pay to substitute for him on Saturdays, or breach the seniority plan incorporated in a union contract by arranging swaps of workdays. In laying down those guidelines, the justices said that neither Congress nor the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has spelled out how employers are to comply with a 1972 amendment ordering them "to reasonably accommodate to an employee's ...religious observance or practice" short of "undue hardship." Justice Byron R. White, in the opinion for the court, said that Trans World Airlines, Inc., and the International Association of Machinists & Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO, had complied with the amendment in dealing with TWA employe Larry G. Hardison, who is a member of the Worldwide Church of God, which observes Saturday as the Sabbath.

For that reason, White wrote, "we need not reach" the constitutional prohibition of laws "respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

TWA and the union had contended that the amendment both advances religion and entangles govenrment in it. An employers' group, the Equal Employment Advisory Council, agreed, But 11 national Jewish organizations and the General Conference of Seventh Day Adventists denied this, saying that the amendment merely protects the religious. freedom of persons who observe a day other than Sunday as the Holy Day of Sears

British doom forecasters might be well-advised to look again

By ROBERT RENO Newsday

NEW YORK - As Britain reveled in pageantry last week, there was an almost universal tendency to review the Queen's silver jubilee as a time for forgetting that unhappy nation's Commentators on both sides of the Atlantic were heard to weep and wail over Britain's decline and to muse about how nice it was that those wretched people still have a gilded coach, grotesquely hideous as it was, to haul their monarch around.

Many of them were so dazzled by the spectacle that they groped for ra-tional justifications of a monarchy that in 1977 cannot, nor need not, be justified by anything more than the endearing British passion for irrelevant silliness.

All this makes for good schmaltz, which is, of course what a jubilee is all about. In reality, however, if Elizabeth's reign ended today it would have to be regarded by future social and economic hitorians as one of the most extraordinarily successful periods in British history.

It will be most accurately judged by what Britain accomplished in spite of the loss of its position as a world power, the liquidation of much of its wealth in World War II and the general lack of competitiveness of Britain's economy

The period from 1950 to 1974 saw British living standards, measured in terms of real disposable personal income, roughly double. That was ac-complished despite British income tax rates, which range as high as 83 per cent on earned income compared with a top bracket of 70 per cent in the United States.

It is only since 1974 that the rise in real disposable incomes has halted.

They fell by less than 1 per cent in 1975 and by 0.5 per cent in 1976, compared with an average annual increase of 4.6 per cent between 1950 and 1974.

Britain's troubles since 1974 have. however, been only a slightly more acute form of the same malaise that has affected much of the industrial world in the same period. Real disposable incomes in the United Staes have been almost stagnant

If the mid-1970s are therefore viewed as a temporary aberration aggravated by higher world oil prices, then the 56 million Britons who celebrated last week can be said to have had a lot to celebrate. The average Briton has more, is healthier and is better educated than at any time in history.

The average male Briton lives to be 70 and the average female lives to be 75. Both live slightly longer than their American counterparts.

The number of full-time university students in Britain doubled between 1965 and 1974, and the number of universities, which stood at 17 at the end of World War II, now totals 45. The revolution in education has been matched by improvements in housing that no Briton would have dreamed of a generation ago.

Ownership of homes has doubled in the last 20 years. Four out of five families now live in a house. Nine out of 10 households have vacuum cleaners, two out of three have washing machines and four out of five have refrigerators. More than 95 per cent of British homes have a televi-

Industrial accidents, which took

2.717 British lives in 1937 and 2.017 in 1945, claimed only 427 lives in 1975.

The state of the British worker today is about as far removed from the condition of workers at the time of the coronation of Elizabeth's father as those workers were from the proletariat of Dickens' time.

All the sentimentality about the decline of Britain becomes even more unreal if you consider that an event is about to take place that will change the course of its history in a way rarely witnessed.

That will come in 1980, about the time when President Carter's energy savings program is supposed to be moving into high gear, when Britain is expected to produce more oil than it consumes. The North Sea wells are already providing one-third of the United Kingdom's domestic needs.

For a nation, which until recently had to import every drop of oil it consumed, the switch from oil importer to oil exporter will be staggering in its consequences. A survey by London's Financial Times last week found that British manufacturers are actually worried that oil exports will cause the pound to be overvalued.

This is ironic considering that repeated trade deficits in the last 25 years have steadily weakened the pound. Manufacturers are worried that a trade surplus will strengthen the pound too much, meaning that their exports will become more expensive when purchased with foreign currenciees.

Britons, it seems, aren't happy unless they are looking on the bad side of things, and Americans like to buy this image. Sentimental Anglophiles have always thought in terms of the thin red line holding out against im-

So it was in World War II. In terms of industrial production, available manpower, natural resources and geographical resources, Britain and ts overseas dominions were more than a match for Germany and Italy. Yet historians insist on portraying Britain as the natural underdog that never had a chance save through its own tenacity.

Then there are others who like to point to Britain's troubles as an example of what will happen to the United States if it continues its relentless march toward the socialistic welfare

There is a myth that Britain is obsessively egalitarian and socialistic and that this has been her ruin. It is hard to reconcile this image with the orgy of royal splendor that took place. last week.

Socialized medicine and high taxes, budget deficits and trade deficits, greedy labor unions and indolent management all form part of the British stereotype. The truth is that the British have in the last 25 years done rather well by, and in spite of. themselves.

There were warnings that the economic planning, public ownership, heavy taxation and vast welfare programs that Britain undertook after World War II would coincide directly with a loss of freedom and individuali-

Yet the United Kingdom remains one of the most stable and free societies, fully capable of retaining all its old eccentricities. It has absorbed new ones as well without serious threat to the stability of the monarchy it holds in such affection.

'Dutch politics are so complicated and so dull that it is no wonder that people in the rest of the world do not pay any attention to us," one Dutch journalist

The May election did serve in a limited extent to simplify the complex makeup of Dutch politics. It reduced sharply the influence of small, far-left parties, including the Communists, and cut short the rise of a new racist right-wing group, the Volksunie.

The election also appears to have encouraged the leading parties to slow further growth to the Netherlands' generous social welfare system, which has boosted overall public spending to more than 50 per cent of the country's gross national product and raised taxes to nearly 50 per cent of personal income. The new government, whatever its composition, is expected to direct more attention to reducing the Nordan Oil & Gas Corp. of Abilene finaled No. 1 Speck Estate, a Cross Cut gas strike in Menard County, for a calculated, absolute open flow of 7 million cubic feet of dry gas per day.

The potential was gauged through perforations at 1,698-1,714 feet, after the pay section had been acidized with 750 gallons and fractured with 6,000 gallons and 5,000 pounds of sand.

Top of the Cross Cut was picked at 1,698 feet, under kelly bushing elevation of 2,143 feet. Total depth of the well is 1,850 feet, where 4½-inch casing was set, and the plugged-back depth is 1,810 feet.

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) - The greatest concentration of nuclear waste in the world is at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation

That's why a House subcommittee on environment, energy and natural resources wants to visit, says the chairman, Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif.

"We hope to develop testimony at Hanford on the ultimate cost of disposal, what ERDA's (Energy Research and Development Administration) plans are for the ultimate disposal of the wastes and what it's going to cost," said Ryan.

Ryan and Reps. Jack Hightower, D-Tex., Thomas Kindness, R-Ohio, and Arlan Strangeland, R-Minn., plan to tour the reservation Saturday and

By WILLIAM GREIDER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - A top executive of Gulf Oil Copr. conceded before a congressional inquiry Thursday what Gulf and other participants in an international uranium cartel have steadfastly denied before - that their secret price-fixing club for the world uranium market also raised prices for some U.S. consumers.

This admission has serious implications for Gulf, among others, undermining its persistent claim that the foreign cartel did not violate U.S. antitrust law because it had no effect on U.S. domestic prices for the uranium that fuels nuclear power reactors.

Under questioning by the House Commerce Oversight Subcommittee, S.A. Zagnolf president of Gulf Mineral Resources and its Canadian uranium subsidiary, first agreed the cartel did raise overseas prices, then reluctantly he conceded 'To the extent that U.S. utilities bought overseas, they probably paid higher prices. Zagnoli quickly added the effect "was insignificant."

"It may appear insignificant to ' snapped Rep. Albert Gore Jr. (D-Tenn.), "but it was not insignificant to those TVA customers whose price of electricity was going

The subcommittee chaired by Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif.) made public internal Gulf documents that also seemed to contradict Gulf's principal defense arguments. Gulf board chairman Jerry McAfee told the subcommittee that Gulf participated in the cartel only because it was "forced" to do so by the Canadian government. But some of the corporate memorandums display an obvious exuberance for the cartel activities that seems to contradict that defense. Gore suggested that Gulf was vestigation by a federal grand jury for antitrust violations. The price of "yellowcake," or raw uranium, subsequently jumped from $6 to $41 a pound, but there is a complex economic argument over how much of that dramatic price escalation can be blamed on the cartel or on other factors, such as the rising Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries oil prices or the sudden boom in demand for nuclear fuels that followed

Early in 1974, when uranium prices started their steep climb, one Gulf marketing executive wrote the following report to a colleague:

"There's no question the international producers have jumped on baord the OPEC bandwagon."

McAfee, who was president of a sister Gulf subsidiary in Canada during the three-year life of the cartel, said he was aware of the Ottawa government's pressures on uranium-mining companies to get together and arrange market quotas and prices. These pressures were partly in response to the U.S. embargo, which had closed the American market to foreign producers.

After Gulf originally refused to attend, McAfee said, "Greater pressures were then applied by the Canadian government. . . Push was turning to shove. The record shows that the Canadian government and uranium producers were of the opinion that Gulf was overly sensitive to the cartel and U.S. antitrust implications. Indeed we were. At no time did Gulf Minerals Canada Ltd. voluntarily seek to become a part of any producers' arrangement. It was compelled to do so."

The confidential and "specially confidential" documents from Gulf files that the House subcommittee subpoenaed offer conflicting evidence on that point. Moss said he will direct a request to the Canadian govern-memt, asking if it "forced" Gulf to take part.

Carter proposals take beating

By JOE SALMAN

More than 400 members of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association spent three very busy days in San Antonio earlier this week in an attempt to get a more precise idea of what is going on in Washington on the energy legislation front, and maybe to get hold of more tools to fight the legislation they don't like.

The organizers of the annual meeting did their bit to inform the membership by parading an impressive array of speakers to the

There were Gov. Dolph Briscoe, fresh from an appointment with Sen. Henry Jackson's energy committee: Rep. Bob Krueger who only recently saw his energy gas deregulation amendment get out of subcommittee, 12-10: Sen. John Tower, who said he is in the process of introducing a bill that would end all price controls on oil by 1979, and Sen. Harrison Schmitt of New Mexico, a brilliant man who is the only astronaut-scientist (he is a geologist) ever to walk on the moon. Then, there were panel sessions participated in by some of the top minds in the oil and political field.

But all of this was for naught - at least for one of the independents. "I don't really know what we are doing here in such force. Frankly I think we are 20 years too late."

He may have been speaking the thoughts of others at the meeting.

There were some with different ideas. One said the independents could go home and to their offices with a better idea of what they must do to stay in the exploration and production business and to keep a supply of oil and gas flowing for "the sake of the future economy of this country. No matter how each individual took the three days of long sessions, two things are for sure - overall the membership doesn't like the things that have been happening to them in the nation's capital, and there is a great fear of the things that might took a verbal beating.

It also came out of the meeting that even the Texas politicians have different ideas of how to solve the energy dilemma and at the same timee keep the independent oil operator as an intergral part of the American way of

U. S. Rep. Krueger, D-New Braunfels, is working for decontrol of natural gas - some decontrol to come immediately and some to come by way of a phaseout. He wants to let the old oil regulations alone right now. Conservative Sen. Tower has other ideas. He is about to introduce a bill that would mean the total decontrol of oil prices by June 1, 1979. I know you would like to hear only the things you want to hear - those things that you are in favor of and those things that are good for you. But there are some things we are not going to get now. I don't think we stand a chance to get any oil changes through Congress.

Krueger suggested trying to modify President Carter's proposed crude oil equalization tax by having part of it returned to producers for plowback into new exploration and development

Governor Briscoe, in reporting on his appearance before the energy committee in Washington Monday said he told the committee he would go along with an excess profits tax provided there is a plowback provision for exploration.

Tower expelled any rumor that he would not be a candidate next time around for his Senate seat. In answer to a statement from a wire service reporter that rumor had Tower pulling out, the Senator remarked — "Where did you get that piece of misinformation?"

Earlier Tower had said in a speech before the membership that he did not have all the answers to everyone's problems now, but "I hope to be much wiser when November rolls around."

And, throughout the meeting halls another rumor was being passed around - one making Krueger a candidate for Tower's seat. Although appearing on the same program, Tower and Krueger did not hear each other speak. Krueger said he was unaware Tower had announced a proposed oil pricing decontrol bill.

"Had I known, I doubt I would have raised the issue," Krueger said. Krueger left another thought with the independents. "The upcoming fight in full commmittee on my gas deregulation amendment will be the most crucial part of getting the legislation passed. It will be defeated or passed by one or two votes. Krueger expressed hope it will not be necessary to change provisions of the gas decontrol as it goes before the full House committee.

"But if I find in order to succeed in getting deregulation passed I need to make some adjustments, don't figure I am betraying you," he said.

Rocket pioneer von Braun dies

WASHINGTON (AP) - Dr. Wernher von Braun, the German-born rocket pioneer whose talents helped the United States put men on the moon, died Thursday after a long bout with cancer. He was 65.

Von Braun had been in poor health for sometime. In 1975 he had of a malignant liver tumor removed. He had maintained a sharply curtailed schedule since that time. He died at Alexandria Hospital in suburban Virginia.

Last year, he had a recurrence of cancer, coupled with an infection that developed following surgery. He spent long stretches in the hospital, including a final stay beginning last

Even while hospitalized he continued limited work on his job as vice president of engineering and development for Fairchild Industries. He joined Fairchild in 1972, and worked mainly on space projects until he retired last Jan. 1.

Merger to be aired at meeting

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Water Development Board (WDB) members have called a special meeting for Monday to discuss merger of the WDB with the Water Rights Commission (WRC) and the Water Quality Board (WQB)

WRC Chairman Joe Carter and WQB Executive Director Hugh Yantis have been invited to the meeting, and both have indicated they or their representative will be there. Carter and Yantis were out of Austin Thursday and could not be reached for further comment.

Yantis is seen as the most likely possibility to head the consolidated water agency in September, apart from WDB Executive Director James

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has indicated he will sign the merger bill, passed by the 65th Legislature, unless there is something "technically wrong" with the measure. At a recent press conference

Briscoe denied that he has delayed signing the bill in an attempt to influence the selection of Rose, one of his former aides, as head of the new super-agency.

However, since the governor ap-points the members of the WDB which will choose the initial head of the new agency, it is expected that any recommendations made by his office would be followed.

mitted by regional education service centers and school districts across the West Texas Education Center in Midland was awarded grants of $22,555 for dissemination, $22,555 for student services, $32,724 for gifted and talented children and $28,000 for staff development.

The Midland Independent School District received grants of $14,345 and $29,500 for two programs of individualized instruction.

Once bitterly hated by the Free World, von Braun became its top rocket expert after he and 129 other German rocket experts surrendered to the United States shortly before the end of World War II.

The man who once helped design the dreaded V-2 rocket for Adolf Hitler designed the U.S. Army's Jupiter Crocket that allowed his new country to recoup some of the prestige lost when Russia launched the first space satellite in 1957.

Von Braun told President Dwight D. Eisenhower well before the Russian Sputnik launching that his team had the capability of putting a satellite into orbit around the earth. But Eisenhower wanted to use a rocket developed for nonmilitary uses for the first effort to emphasize the peaceful uses of space and von Braun was turn-

Sputnik and the subsequent failure of the Vanguard rocket, America's much publicized first attempt to rocket a satellite into space, forced Eisenhower to turn to von Braun.

On Jan. 31, 1958, the Jupiter C lifted off, carrying a 30-pound satellite called Explorer into an elliptical orbit and giving the U.S. program its first

Von Braun also was instrumental in designing a longer-range Jupiter rocket, the Saturn 1 booster and the massive 36-story-tall Saturn 5 rocket that powered men beyond the earth's gravity and sent them to a soft landing on the lunar surface.

Von Braun came to the United States in September of 1945 under contract to the U.S. Army. He and his men spent five years at Ft. Bliss, Tex., working on the V2 rocket they had developed in Germany. They were transferred to the Army's Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala., in 1950 to develop the Redstone missile, the forerunner of the Jupiter

In 1955, von Braun became a U.S. citizen. He and his team, now grown to 4,000 engineers and technicians, were evansferred from the Army in 1960 to the newly formed National Aeronautics and Space Admnistra-

He finally left his laboratories in 1970 to come to Washington as NASA's deputy assistant director for planning. Two years later, he resigned his government job to join Fairchild Industries, a private firm that was developing scientific satellites, as a vice president for engineering.

Until his death, he continued to push the government for increased efforts in space. He was instrumental in forming the National Space Institute, a nonprofit organization that promoted the peaceful use of space as a tool to help all mankind. He served as a top officer of that organization.

Von Braun believed man has a vital role in space and that manned orbiting laboratories of the future will help the world in such fields as locating and managing the earth's resources, medicine, communicaions, pollution control and ocean surveillance.

Ironically, he died one day before the first manned test of the space shuttle, the reuseable rocket ship expected to be the workhorse of the American space program for the next decade or so. Though he had not worked on the shuttle, it was designed to expand man's role in space explora-

He long supported international cooperation in space such as the Apollo-Soyuz flight that united U.S. and U.S.S.R. astronauts and cosmonauts in a space mission.

"I look forward to the day when mankind will join hands and face the heavens in a solid phalanx to apply the combined technological ingenuity of all nations to the exploration and utilization of outer space for peaceful uses," he once said.

"Would it not be ironical if nations first learn to transcend their national interests many, many miles from mother earth?"

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - An out-of-court photographic identification of a suspect may be admitted as evidence even if it was "unduly suggestive" of guilt, the Supreme Court held by a vote of 7 to 2 Thursday

If the identification is reliable, the court said, it may be admitted for a jury to evaluate. To exclude such evidence flatly might result in the guilty going free, the majority said.

The issue before the court involved the admissibility of a witness' identification based on a single photo of the suspect (a "mug shot"), rather than from an array of photos of the suspect and others similar in appearance - the usual police procedure.

The justices had been urged to rule that a single photo identification could too easily lead to misidentification and thus always should be inadmissible, as a violation of due process

But the majority declined to go that far, saying instead that the reliability of the identification and the "totality of the circumstances" of the case were the determining factors.

The decision provoked a bitter dissent from the court's two most liberal members, Justices Thurgood Marshall and William J. Brennan Jr.

"Today's decision can come as no surprise to those who have been watching the court dismantle the protections against mistaken eyewitness testimony." wrote Marshall.

"But it is still distressing to see the courtblindly uphold the conviction of a defendant who may well be in-"The use of a single picture (or display of a single live suspect, for that matter) is a grave error, of course, because it dramatically suggests to the witness that the person shown must be the culprit. Why else would the police choose the person? And it is deeply ingrained in human nature to agree with the expressed opinions of others

-particularly others who should be more knowledgeable - when making a difficult decision.

In the case before the justices, an undercover Connecticut state police officer purchased heroin from a man in an apartment. (Manson vs. Brathwaite, 75-871).

At the time, the officer was about two feet from the seller, conversing with the man during the two-to-three minute period in which the deal was made.

Later, the undercover officer described the suspect to another officer. The second officer suspected from the description the seller was Nowell A. Brathwaite.

TMA offers guidelines

AUSTIN - The Texas Medical Association says the state health department licenses more than 700 youth camps in Texas. Church camps, day camps and similar facilities should be inspected by the state, but parents need to be aware of certain safety factors.

A few regulations to watch for are: Each youth camp must be under the direction of a qualified adult with at least two years experience working with children. All recreational activities must be supervised by a qualified adult

- There must be one adult supervisor for each 10 children. - At least two people, including one trained lifeguard, must be on duty

when children are using a camp swimming pool - A physician, nurse or person with a Red Cross Advanced First Aid Certificate or its equivalent must be in camp at all times.

Parents are urged to look for violations and encourage children to report problems. Camp dangers should be reported to the General Sanitation Division, Texas Department of Health Resources, 1100 W 49th St., Austin, Texas, 78756

Briscoe told a news conference

Sunday is the deadline for Briscoe to act or measures can become law without his signature.

Thursday, the governor signed into law three controversial measures that were not settled until the final days of the 140-day regular session.

One of the measures was the "sunset bill," which requires periodic rewiew of most state agencies by the legislature. 'I sign this with great pleasure

and I think it is a step in the right direction," Briscoe said. The bill, sought both by fiscal conservatives and Common Cause, would subject 175 agencies to a life-or-death review in the next 12 years, about 30 each legislative session.

Another bill signed Thursday would merge the state's three powereful water agencies -

Another major bill signed Thursday attempts to lower medical malpractice insurance costs. It was approved after a session-long fight between Texas doctors and trial lawyers.

The final compromise written by a 10-member conference committee puts a $500,000 ceiling on awards to injured patients, plus unlimited medical and custodial expenses. It also requires injured patients to give doctors 75 days notice before suing them and sets up machinery to discipline incompetent or careless physicians.

Other bills of statewide interest signed included:

—A bill setting up a $1.5 million fund for use by colleges and universities in studies and research into finding alternative energy resources.

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - After four consecutive days of highly publicized U.S. pressure on the Russians to let Los Angeles Times correspondent Robert C. Toth leave Moscow, Carter Administration officials Thursday were reluctant to claim credit for his sudden release

And officials at both the White House and State Department were geared to reject indignantly any suggestion that the Russian decision to drop possible charges against Toth resulted from any secret bargaining, or that any concessions had been offered by the United States.

Rather, officials interpreted the episode as a standoff, in which the Soviet authorities let Toth go only after achieving their apparent purpose of intimidating U.S. newsmen in Moscow and of stepping up their campaign against the dissident movement.

At the same time, officials stressed the incident was not without cost because it added a significant strain on U.S.-Soviet relations. "We are pleased by the outcome, but we regard the whole episode as extremely unfortunate," said Deputy Secretary of State Warren M Christopher, whose telephoned protest to the Soviet ambassador Tuesday was the highest level direct U.S. intervention in the affair.

"It is inconsistent with the Helsinki Final Act," Christopher added in an interview, referring to the 1975 accord under which the Soviet bloc accepted some Western standards for human rights and treatment of foreign

"It is particularly unfortunate because it comes right at the commencement of the preparatory meeting." Christopher said. he was referring to the Helsinki review session just getting under way in Belgrade. "We hope to do it (review the Helsinki agreement) in a constructive and not a confrontational way.

Asked whether Toth was being allowed to leave because of actions taken by the Carter Administration during the week, the official State Department response, issued by spokesman John Trattner, was: "We do not want to make that connection. We did protest at several levels. We can confirm he has been told he may leave the Soviet Union.

Asked to respond to the report attributed to a Soviet journalist accredited to the United Nations that Toth's release was preceded by in-tense "hot line" bargaining, officials at state and at the White House had an identically worded denial:

discussion of conditions for his release, nothing which could be described as negotiations.'

Officials here responsible for watching the incident most closely were privately confident as early as Tuesday, that Toth eventually would be released. On that day the pace of Toth's KGB interrogation quickened and Soviet authorities refrained from formally charging Toth with es-pionage activities of which they had indirectly accused him.

By Wednesday, the questioners told Toth explicitly that he was regarded as a "witness" rather than a defendant. They began to concentrate on his relationship with Anatoly Shcharansky, a Jewish dissident with whom Toth had openly cooperated in the past and who is now facing charges of treason.

Test of diplomacy

On June 5 the Middle East marked the 10th anniversary of the Six Day War. Israel dealt the Arab and Egyptian armies a crushing defeat in June of 1967, but like all of the fighting between Arabs and Jews since the 1940s, it settled nothing.

The Six Day War left Israel with the burden of administering territory populated by Arabs and defending itself against United Nations resolutions demanding its return. The 1967 war only set the stage for the Yom Kippur war in 1973, and the Israeli occupation of the Sinai, Gaza, the West Bank of the Jordan and part of the Golan Heights continues to fuel the hostility of the Arab world.

As the Carter administration takes up the U.S. commitment to support of Israel, the issue of the occupied territories has become entwined with the older issue dating back to 1948 - the aspirations of Palestinian refugees for a "homeland."

President Carter's main contribution so far to the difficult process of Middle East diplomacy has been to add U.S. support of a future homeland for displaced Palestinian Arabs to our longstanding support of the right of Jews to a homeland in the old Palestine. Whether Mr. Carter can weave the two together is the challenge emerging for his Middle East policy.

His tilt toward a Palestinian homeland - though stopping short of talking of a Palestinian "state" - no doubt helped make his recent meeting with Prince Rahd of Saudi Arabia a harmonious affair. The Saudis are saying that Mr. Carter is moving in a direction that should give us no fear that they will use the oil supplies we desperately need as a "weapon." The other side of the coin, of course, is that the weapon remains in their hands if the President does not keep moving in a direction that pleases them.

Mr. Carter forgot his history when, at his recent news conference, he sought to find a precedent for U.S. support of a Palestinian homeland. U.N. resolutions calling for Israel's withdrawal from territories occupied in 1967, which our government has supported, do not touch on the "homeland" issue. Mr. Carter's staff found a tenuous link in the U.N. resolution of 1947. which recommended the partition of Palestine into Jewish and Arab states. Furthermore, Mr. Carter is the first President to call for a "homeland."

Arab governments and Palestinian Arab leaders never accepted the 1947 resolution, and Israel independently declared its existence as a state in 1948. The issues of those years remain unresolved and have fueled both the warfare and militant rhetoric between Arabs and Jews for 30 years.

Menahem Begin, whose Likud party won the recent Israeli elections, takes the view that even the 1948 boundaries of Israel do. not represent the full homeland that the Jews can claim - that some West Bank territory should remain in Israeli hands for good. Whether he can carry this attitude into the new government he is trying to form remains to be seen. Such an official policy in Israel would only darken the prospect for fruitful Arab-Israeli negotiations.

President Carter's ability to deal with the new Israeli government eventually will come to a test. Since he has raised the hopes of the Arabs that U.S. influence will seek to bring about both the withdrawal from occupied territories and the establishment of a Palestinian Arab homeland, it promises to be a tough test both for Mr. Carter and the Israelis.

DNA progress

There's nothing quite like a real accomplishment to help settle a theoretical argument.

University of California scientists recently announced they had induced an insulin gene to reproduce itself. This represents much more than a medical breakthrough.

It illustrates how recombinant DNA research - performed under strict safeguards - can increase the precious supply of a life-giving hormone for diabetics.

Similar research holds forth hope for controlling cancer and hemophilia.

Such accomplishments should settle forever the argument over whether recombinant DNA research is a boon or threat to mankind.

A CHANGING WORLD:

'Microstates' taking over U.N.

By JOHN PINKERMAN Copley News Service

Every time a new republic is voted into the United Nations the influence of the United States and its ability to guide decisions of the increasingly rresponsible world body get a new

In effect, the "microstates" (nations with less than 300,000 inhabitants) are taking over the U.N. and this is eroding the equilibrium of the community of nations. The situation could get worse, too, because there is a good chance that there could be 50 to 100 new 'liberated' nations, even as many as 200, in the U.N. during the next few years - and most of these "Third World" creations take a dim view of the West, including the United States. Elmer Plischke, University of Maryland professor, has made a careful study of this situation, likened to Gulliver being held captive by the Lilliputians, and what he has to say has been published by the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research. It makes interesting

There are precedents for calling the current U.N. course wrong — particularly for the United States - and one is the words of the ultraliberal Eleanor Roosevelt when she was chief representative to the world : "Just as the concept of human liberty carried to its logical extreme would mean anarchy, so the principle of self-determination of peoples given unrestricted application could result in chaos.

It is not the question of whether new republics should be free to manage their own affairs that is at issue but whether, irrespective of their size and ability to fulfill their responsibilities, they should be entitled to sovereign equality in the affairs of the community of nations. It seems to be an axiom of international practice, but legal fiction, that when a new state is born it has the right to turn angrily on its once colonial master and become the legal equal of all other nations.

Such a situation is real, however, distinct disadvantage. The United States is twice as populous as all the existing small states (under five million) combined but these small states account for more than half the members of the U.N. and thus can control the voting power.

These small states, including the microstates, individually contribute the minimum 0.02 per cent of the budget and as an entire group pay less than one-sixteenth the share of the United States. Joined by other small states, they can muster a decisive two-thirds vote and thus dominate

U.N. decision making. Worse is the way these Third World states vote most of the time. Their logic is based on "colonial hangover" and resulting congenital opposition to Western nations. This situation, unchecked as more new republics enter the U.N., could be disaster for the United States on the world scene.

One 1976 U.N. resolution is frightening proof. It, with the help of the microstates, called for everymember support of the liberation movement's "armed struggle" in South Africa.

The vote was 108 in favor, 11 opposed, and 22 abstentions.

Plischke offers several possible solutions. One would give more power to the U.N. Security Council (where major nations have a veto) and limit General Assembly sessions to every three or five years rather than every year.

All of a sudden he seems to be much

Or, he says, the United States and other major powers could withdraw from the U.N., leave it to the microstates and form a new, more realistic world body.

Weighted voting is offered, too, with population being a factor.

In any event, the possibility of 227 U.N. members, most of them with the global experience of places like Brunei but with the power to make major decisions, is not a happy prospect for the United States.

Mark Russell says

The 37-member House Ways and Means Committee has voted on the President's energy proposals and here's a final score: Detroit 37, Carter

They voted for no rebates on small cars and no taxes on big cars. Were I a cartoonist, I'd depict a big car, labeled "Auto Industry," pulling into a gas station. The attendant, labeled "Ways and Means Committee," says, "I can be very friendly."

It had to happen. Andrew Young called Abraham Lincoln a racist. Of course. And how about Golda Meir's anti-Semitism?

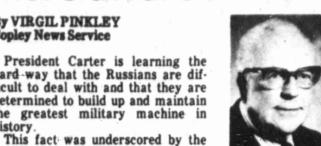

And when it comes to atheism -Pope Paul sure takes the prize.

I think I have Young figured out. The press created him when they tired of Billy Carter.

When NATO was formed 28 years ago we undertook to provide most of the manpower, military hardware and finances. The alliance came into being as one of the wisest decisions ever made by President Harry Truman. He followed this up by asking Dwight D. NATO has always been commanded by an American general, and we have provided an outstanding series in Eisenhower, Ridgeway, Gruenther, Norstad and Goodpaster. At present Gen. Alexander M. Haig is the supreme commander.

In his London talks the President emphasized the continuous Soviet military buildup which has been in progress for the last 12 years.

It started immediately after the Cuban crisis and has been accelerated and expanded sub-

Especially have we fallen behind in technical research and the development of new missile systems.

When we begin to discuss reduction of armaments again with the Soviets they probably will demand that we stop production of our Cruise missile, that we do not go ahead and develop the B-1 bomber, and that we give up our various bases in Europe and elsewhere. What they offer in return will be chicken feed.

Latest confidential reports show that the Russians have developed an entirely new arsenal of strategic weapons during the last few years. They are said to have brought out seven new intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs). During this same period the United States has put into place only one new missile, the Minuteman III.

The Soviet missiles are believed to have developed increased accuracy and added many technical innovations.

Among the new Soviet missiles is the SS-18 — a monstrous, liquid-fueled rocket. It can carry eight to 10 independently targeted nuclear warheads. It is believed that Soviet military planners in the event of a nuclear war would fire SS-18s at our hardened missile silos.

Other Russian missiles of destruction include the SS-19, SS-17, SS-X-16 and the SS-N-8. Most of these carry much more wallop than the earlier SS-11s.

The SS-17, -18 and -19 all carry four warheads and would be especially effective used against cities.

It is believed that the SS-X-16 has exceptional mobile capabilities and would be difficult to detect and destroy.

The SS-N-8 would be submarinelaunched and it is believed this missile has a range of at least 4,200 miles, which would enable Russian submarines to strike U.S. targets while cruising far off our coasts. Many of the Soviet missiles are coldlaunched. Scientifically this means that they are popped out of their missile silos by a charge of gas before the engines are ignited Authoritative Washington estimates say that the Russians are currently employing 830,000 scientists and engineers in exclusive military research. This constitutes more than half of all of the trained research manpower in the Soviet Union.

In our country we have about 500 scientists and engineers assigned exclusively to handle military research and development.

INSIDE REPORT:

Plan to centralize intelligence began months ago

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Whatever the ultimate cost of the unnoticed burial of the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, the short-run effect is to silence the most important intelligence sounding board — other than U.S. intelligence agencies themselves — for every President back to Dwight Eisenhower.

The most persuasive agent on President Carter last month in recommending the death of the board (known as Pifiab) was Adm. Stansfield Turner, the new director of Central Intelligence. But Central Intelligence directors have never particularly liked Pifiab with its highpowered membership drawn from the loftiest niches of American science, business and former government officials. To them, it represented a threat as a competitor for the President's ear and a source of intelligence inspiration.

Pifiab, for one notable example. engineered the brilliant intelligence engineered the brilliant intelligence breakthrough by the CIA that led to spy-in-the-sky reconnaissance. That might have been delayed for years without hard pressure from Pifiab and Dr. Edwin H. Land, Polaroid chairman and a Pifiab member since

The risks inherent in killing Pifiab are manifold. It was Pifiab that persuaded former President Ford and ex-CIA director George Bush to engage an outside team of hard-line experts to debate CIA's estimate of Soviet intentions and capabilities last

Those experts, called "Team B," produced much harsher estimates than the CIA's "Team A" of experts. The result: a much harder-nosed "national estimate" regarded by experts as far more realistic than estimates by the CIA acting alone.

The point-man in exposing the CIA's experts to such formidable competition was Leo Cherne, Pifiab's last chairman (a post previously held by Dr. James Killian, Clark M. Clifford and Gen. Maxwell Taylor since Eisenhower established Pifaib

The sudden death of Pifiab is clearly tied to the fear of similar outside competition for the intelligence bureaucracy, plus a desire to centralize control over all in-telligence within the CIA and the National Security Council staff inside the White House

The explanation for this, a view widely held by skeptical outside experts on Soviet weapons and geopolitical planning, is the bureaucracy's zeal to screen out points of view that challenge the prevailing administration line. Consider the following incidents:

Dr. Richard Pipes, the Harvard Russian scholar who played a key role in "Team B" last summer, believed he had an informal agreement from the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) for up to $7,500 to help finance a Harvard-MIT conference on basic Soviet strategic doctrine. But ACDA, now under highly controversial director Paul Warnke, informed Pipes last month help fund the project (even though Warnke has publicly said he has no idea whether Moscow seeks military superiority over the U.S., or simply equality).

An invitation to retired Gen. George Keegan, former Air Force intelligence chief, early this year to lecture at the Air University at Maxwell Air Force Base was withdrawn. The only explanation: that the Pentagon and/or White House did not want Keegan to be sponsored by the government in view of his well-known alarm over Soviet intentions.

Concern within the Defense In-telligence Agency (DIA) that the Carter administration - and Adm. Turner — may be plotting enhancement of CIA at the expense of DIA.

What makes the demise of Pifiab more mystifying is that two principal authors of the Senate Intelligence Committee's final report on "the President's office" last year, David Aaron and Rick Inderfurth, said the board had been "useful," partly because "its advice and recommendations have been for the President. As such, the executive nature of this relationship should be maintained.

Aaron is now deputy to national security director Zbigniew Brzezinski; Inderfurth is Brzezinski's special assistant. They headed Jimmy Carter's transition "team" on intelligence, proposing to abolish Pifiab despite what they wrote in that report only months earlier. One conclusion from this is that the incoming administration was planning to centralize intelligence long before it took office, duly reflected by Aaron and Inderfurth. Their report sat on the President's desk until early May when, pressed by Adm. Turner, Mr. Carter delivered the coup de grace to Pifiab - a blow to challenges from outside the bureaucracy that have proved invaluable to U.S. intelligence in the past.

TULSA, Okla (AP) - Arnold Palmer provided the electricity, Jack Nicklaus was happy to get out alive, and the brutal 18th hole at Southern Hills scored a clear kayo of the field Thursday with defending champion Jerry Pate its prime victim in the first round of the 77th U.S. Open.

Seven players who have never captured a major championship shaved a stroke off par over the 6,873 yards of one of the toughest par-70 courses in

Rod Funseth, Terry Diehl, Larry Nelson, Hubie Green, Grier Jones, Tom Purtzer and Argentina's 38-yearold Florention Molina struggled to 69s in pleasant 80-degree weather that featured gusty, tricky winds. Never in Open history had so many players been clustered in first place.

There was a logjam of 10 players at par including the 46- year-old Palmer, who had to qualify to get here and sent his "Army" into a frenzy by holing a wedge for a birdie on his roller coaster round of four birdies and four

NICKLAUS SHOT 74, Masters champion Tom Watson, looking for the Grand Slam, also floundered to a 74, and Pate suffered an agonizing six on the unforgiving final hole for 72.

"The best thing for a man to do is come to that hole Sunday with a threeshot lead," said Al Geiberger, who bogied it for a 70.

Nicklaus, one of the longest hitters in the history of the game, branded it

'too long.' Palmer, not exactly your everyday puffball hitter, claimed: "It's as close to a par five as you can get.'

Pate declared: "It's a helluva hole.

THERE WERE only four birdies Thursday and Palmer said: "I'll ho about that hole.

there than par." He was right. Green questioned whether the hole was playing 449-yards.

"Who stepped it off?" said Green who added it was more like 465. "I killed a drive and still had a five-wood 210-yards uphill into the wind. Hit your tee shot into the rough and forget it. You can't get there."

"It's one of the most difficult finishing holes I've ever played," said Tom Weiskopf. "It's very, very, very, difficult. You have a sidehill lie no matter where you hit it.'

Only Molina had a kind word for the hole-a backhanded compliment since he parred it.

"I like 18-not for me but for the other players," said Molina, meaning he was delighted to escape with par while others like Pate were branded with double bogeys and bogey.

The hole averaged 4.9 strokes Thursday with par outnumbered 2-1 by mini-disaters.

Palmer, using only 29 putts, charged up a large majority of the total crowd of 14,818 with the some of his old magic. He made three putts longer than 15 feet.

"The crowd pumped me up and I guess they were more exuberant than usual because I haven't given them a chance lately," he said. "I was doing things like I used to do.

Nicklaus, the dreaded giant of the game with 16 major championships, bogeyed two of the first four holes. I still have a chance but I can't shoot anymore 74s," said Nicklaus, whose driver betrayed him. Pate played thd last hote like a 16-handicapper. He plunked his second shot into the sand, hit the green with a wedge, dubbed a chip and two-putted.

"I kept hearing the applause on the nearby ninth hole and I just couldn't get my mind on what I was doing. said Pate, who is making a comeback from a shoulder injury that has sidelined him most of the year. "I'm really disappointed because I played well until the last hole," Pate

Tommy Bolt, the 59-year-old who won here in 1958 and was given a special exemption, shot a creditable 75. Sam Snead, 64, who has captured more titles than any golfer but always let the Open escape his grip, fired a

The usually fiery tempered Weiskopf made one of the classiest comebacks of the day. He went double bogey-par-triple bogey then rallied

Asked if he could remember a round when he started so poorly and rallied like that, Weiskopf cracked: 'No, I've usually walked in.'

He added: "I love my position ... but it's going to be a long hard week." And the hardest part, obviously, is the 449 yards at the end of each and

Redman injured; Hall nixes Laguna

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

It was a beginning that almost turned into a tragic end for race driver Brian Redman.

If everything had gone according to plan last weekend, Redman would have spent a pleasant Sunday afternoon in the winner's circle of the track in St. Jovits, Quebec, after driving Jim Hall and the Midlandbased Chaparral race team's Lola to victory on the first stop in the revived 1977 Can-Am Challenge Series. But Redman never made it to the winner's circle. He never even made it to the starting line.

The Englander, who helped Hall and Chaparral dominate Formula-5000 road racing the past four years, turned the Lola over during a practice run two days before the race, and has been in a Quebec hospital ever since with a fractured vertebrae in his neck, among other injuries.

"He's comin' along pretty good now," Hall admitted Thursday. "It was a damn serious accident though. He's got some severe injuries, but I think he's gonna come out of it all right. He's not out of the woods yet, but the major things that could have happened to him did not.

This is the fifth accident that's occurred at that spot on the St. Jovits track," Hall said. "There's no real accurate explanation of what really happened though. The car just flew on Brian and it came down upside

REDMAN IS expected to remain hospitalized from two to four weeks. but doctors say the healing process for the fractured bone in his neck may take up to a year.

But as Hall explains, "Brian has been seriously injured before, and he's bounced right back. He may bounce back a lot quicker than anybody thinks he will. He's a very determined guy.

He's proven that before. Hall related a story that Brian's wife told him not very long ago concerning the last accident the driver had. "They were doing skin grafts on his face, and in between going down for the grafts, he was in his hospital room doing push

"They normally do one graft and then wait a week to see if it takes, and then do another one. But Brian had them doing them every other day and the ones that didn't take, they redid three or four days later. He was out of there in less than a month.

MIRACLE RECOVERY or not, Laguna, the next stop on the Can-Am circuit is just a week away, and Hall is left without a driver and, as you might have guessed, without a car. The Lola that Redman turned over at St. Jovits has gone on to greener pastures. "We could make it out there (to Laguna) with A car," he explained. "But it wouldn't be a good one, and then we'd have to go right back to Watkins Glen two weeks later, and we still wouldn't have a chance to catch up. So, I've already made the decision to skip Laguna and have a good car ready for Watkins Glen (on July 10)."

THE SPONSORS of the Can-Am Challenge Series, which is cosanctioned by the Canadian Automobile Sport Clubs and the Sports Car Club of America were not terribly pleased with the first race on the tour, which was won by Tom Klausler on a wet track in his Schkee DB-1. But Hall, overlooking his personal disappointment in the . opener and his concern for Redman, saw a silver lining in the cloud.

"I think everybody was a little disappointed in the turnout (of drivers)," the Midlander admitted. "But I can't be that negative about it myself. The decision was taken so late to change to the Can-Am format.

"And really, the cars were not available until very late. The only one that really was available was the Lola, and the bodies to those weren't ready until way late. We got the first one and we only had it about eight weeks before the race. One guy was up there with a car he had gotten only 10 days before the event. I think that's pretty amazing in itself.

"No, I wasn't very disappointed. To make a decision that late - to make a change that drastic will take a little time for people to adjust."

And as Hall has proven ever since he stuck his nose into motor racing nearly two decades ago, he can adjust way around the Southern Hills Country Club prior to first round action in the U.S. Open Thursday. Trevino wasn't as happy after the round however. He shot a 74 and is five strokes off the leader pace. (AP Laserphoto)

Will Kingman return?

NEW YORK (AP) -In an unusual aftermath of his being traded to the San Diego Padres, home run slugger Dave Kingman reportedly has asked the New York Mets to consider signing him after the end of the baseball season in October if he remains a free agent. In a story in Friday's New York Daily News by sports writer Jack Lang, General Manager Joe McDonald disclosed Kingman's liking for New York despite his not signing a contract with the Mets.

'Dave likes New York and he likes the Met organization no matter what has been said," McDonald was quoted as saying. "When I called him to tell him offically of the deal, he then related his feeling to me about next

Pagel lifts Cubs to another win

AMARILLO-Killer Karl Pagel struck again here Thursday night with two 400-foot plus homers to lead the Midland Cubs to a 4-3 victory over the Amarillo Gold Sox and to within 2 games of Texas League West Division leading El Paso.

Pagel upped his season's homer production to 20 with 72 RBIS with not even half of the season completed. Pagel also had a single to go along with his two homers to raise his batting average to .372

Pagel gave Midland a 2-1 lead in the fourth inning with a solo shot over the left field wall that landed in 3rd Street, over 400-feet away. Pagel came back in the eighth inning with what proved to be the game winner, a shot that travelled over 430-feet to deep left center.

Tony Pepper connected for his sixth homer of the year in the sixth frame with a shot to right field that gave Midland a 3-1 edge. Midland's other run came in the first inning when Joe Hernandez.

Pagel and Pepper produced back-toback singles. Amarillo tied the score in the third inning when Bobby Mitchell had a bunt single, stole second and scored on a base hit by Kurt Wittmayer.

Amarillo tried to get back in the game in the eighth with a two-run rally as Wittmayer scored on a bases loaded grounder by Broderick Perkins and Billy Hallstrom scored from third on a Cubs error.

Darrell Turner went the distance for the Cubs to pick up his sixth win of the year and Juan Eichelberger toiled the distance for Amarillo in the losing

Turner gave up 10 hits, but he struck out five and walked none. Eichelberger, who fell to 6-4 on the year, pitched well, but was hurt by the three Midland homers. The Cubs meet Amarillo tonight in a twinbill and in single games Saturday and Sunday before moving to El Paso in an important series with the

"Tonight's game was like a breather for us." New York Mets Manager Joe Torre said Thursday. And it was no wonder.

"Last night (Wednesday), the guys were unsettled, it being June 15th and the trading deadline," added Torre, whose team dealt away star pitcher Tom Seaver, slugger Dave Kingman and infielder Mike Phillips in a major house-cleaning Wednesday. "There was a nervous feeling on the bench tonight— but things couldn't have been worse than last night.'

The results for the Mets were the same both nights. They defeated Houston 4-3 Thursday night after edging Atlanta 6-5 Wednesday night. The victories brought the last-place Mets within a half-game of fifthplace Montreal in the National League East. 3

HARRELSON WAS ejected for arguing a play at second base on which he was picked off.

San Diego ended the Cubs' winning streak behind some power hitting by Gene Tenace and George Hendrick' Tenace hit his eighth homer of the season as he went 3-for-3 and Hendrick slugged his eighth homer.

Dodgers 3, Pirates 2, 11 innings

Dusty Baker's sacrifice fly drove home Bill Russell with the winning run for the Dodgers. Russell had allowed the Pirates to tie the score in the ninth when he booted Bobby Tolan's two-out grounder.

The Dodgers carried a 2-0 lead into the ninth on the strength of Reggie Smith's two-run homer, his 15th of the season.

Doug Rau had a seven-hitter through eight innings before surrendering a double to Bill Robinson and a run-scoring single to Jim Fregosi. Stan Wall and Charlie Hough followed Rau to the mound, with Hough, 4-4, getting the victory.

Bird' an unpredictable character

By The Associated Press

Watch Mark Fidrych, the Detroit Tigers' eccentric righthander, pitch long enough, listen to him speak long enough, and you'll learn to expect the unexpected.

Thursday night, he needed just 81 pitches to beat Toronto 4-1. That is pretty close to baseball's version of shooting a 59 on a golf course.

Backed by Ron LeFlore's two home runs, he collected his fourth complete game in five starts since returning to duty after spring knee surgery. He had the Tiger Stadium crowd of 26,000 chanting, "We want Bird! We want Bird!" after the game. Okay, that was no surprise. That

He fanned Lyman Bostock in the eighth inning for the 2,250th strikeout of his career, reaching fourth place on the all-time strikeout list. But he walked Butch Wynegar in the bottom of the ninth with the score tied and Wynegar later scored the winning run on Rob Wilfong's single.

May, 9-5, erased sporadic Milwaukee threats in winning his third straight game and recording his 20th victory for the Orioles since being obtained from the Yankees last June 15.

White Sox 7, Red Sox 3

A two-run homer by Oscar Gamble and a five-run seventh inning gave Chicago its victory over Boston and knocked the Red Sox out of first place in the AL's East Division. Boston trails the Yanks by one-half game.

"I haven't taken the time to use new irons, partially because I'm very superstitious and also because I've had success with my old ones," she said. "Since I have a contract with the manufacturer, I decided to give the new ones a try.

Tax Foundation queries spending by government

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The Tax Foundation, a publicly-supported, nonprofit, tax-exempt organization that hates to see money spent by the biggest nonprofit institution of all — government — has just published its biennial admonition.

"Government expenditures for 1977 are projected at $9,607 per U.S. household," writes chairman Willard Rockwell in the 1977 edition of Facts and Figures on Government Finance.

The chairman relates that the comparable figure for 1950 was only $1,615, but that comparison isn't quite cricket. In another part of the book you learn that the 1976 dollar stands for less than half the value of the 1950 dollar.

Nevertheless, the point is made. Government spending is rising like June temperatures. It takes close to half of household income. Rockwell asks: Do we as citizens want our government units to spend that much? Do we know where all this spending is leading us? Is the money being raised in ways that best promote our national goals? The Tax Foundation's answers to these questions are not provided, but based on past declarations we might assume them to be negative. Government spending, it feels, is often mindless, directionless and opposed to free enterprise goals. But government spending also is misunderstood.

True or false: Each year the federal government takes an increasingly larger percentage of total tax receipts, and state and local governments less. The fact, as computed by the foundation, is that federal tax receipts in 1976 amounted to 63.7 per cent of the total, the lowest percentage since 58.1 was recorded in 1942. At the same time, the percentage taken by state governments rose to 21.7 per cent, highest since 1942. Local governments took 15.1 per cent, a figure exceeded as recently as 1971, 1972 and 1973

Ah, but that's not the full story. In fact, the recent trend of states to acquire an almost imperceptibly larger part of the receipts is almost insignificant when matched against the big change.

And what is that? Let some figures tell: In 1902, the percentage distribution of tax receipts was federal 37.4, state 11.4, and local 51.3.

As recently as 1940, local government received 31.6 per cent of receipts, but since then the numbers have seldom reached half that level. The low point was in 1944, at 9 per cent. Match that against 1932's 53.6.

Since World War II, the federal percentage of receipts has ranged from nearly 80 per cent at the close of the war to the 1976 figure, falling by small amounts in an irregular pattern.

Christie praises consumer fight on buck -passing

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State Board of Insurance Chairman Joe Christie warned insurance officials today that if they want total freedom from government regulation they must treat their customers with

Christie commented in a guest editorial in "The In-surance Record," a semi-monthly magazine publish-

Christie said policy holders cannot understand why their auto insurance is cancelled because of some underwriting edict in the New York home office of the company.

"By the time these underwriting decisions are passed from the home office to the local office to the agent, the consumer is treated to the same odious buck-passing which has become the cliche identified with government bureaucrats," he said.

"And, the results are the same: outrage. "The reason for the outrage is not only understandable, it is healthy. Information proving will's authenticity claimed by attorney

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The attorney for former Howard Hughes aide Noah Dietrich says he has new information to support his client's claim that the Hughes "Mormon Will" is authentic. Harold Rhoden said Wednesday that information he received from Nevada Atty. Gen. Robert List shows that the ink used to write the will was manufactured between 1958 and 1966 and again from

"We feel with the use of common sense this new information makes the forgery theory untenable," said Rhoden, whose client was named executor in the

He said a forger would have had to make an ink analysis to be certain of using the correct ink. Noting that the will was dated March 19, 1968, he said pens with ink manufactured in 1966 could have still been in Rhoden said the will was written with a type of ballpoint pen that Hughes aide Lavar Myler said the millionaire used exclusively in 1968, the year of the will. He said Myler said he bought the pens for Hughes by the dozens.

Rhoden said the new information showed that the ink was made by Papermate between April 1958 and was discontinued in 1966. Then, he said, they used a new dye, unlike the dye on the will, from 1966 to 1972.
"Then from 1972 to 1974 they went back to the old dye used from 1958 to 1966, then in 1974 stopped and used a type of ink not on the will." Rhoden said he has contacted the Papermate Co. to verify the information.

COMMERCIAL

'Tom Terrific' traded because of personality clash

By JOE DONNELLY STEVE JACOBSON

NEW YORK - It could be argued that other trades the Mets made came about for baseball reasons whether they eventually improved the team or not. Trading Tom Seaver in the biggest of all Mets trades was made over personalities. It's likely that the bitter aftermath will be felt for some time.

Seaver and M. Donald Grant, the chairman of the board of directors, clashed repeatedly over the last two years and almost continuously in recent months over the direction management was taking. Grant made it clear that unless Seaver stopped his public criticism of management and made some kind of peace, management would have no alternative to

But Seaver said he could make no peace as long as management - as embodied by Grant - continued what Seaver called its no-win policy. So Wednesday night, hours before the trading deadline, Seaver was traded to Cincinnati. At age 32 and a three-time winner of the Cy Young Award, Seaver is near the top of the list of players traded in the prime of life.

"He is the greatest pitcher to baseball," Grant said from his New York apartment Wednesday night. "It is a sad day that I hoped would never happen. In the final analysis, we had no alternative.'

FOR THE "greatest pitcher in baseball" the Mets obtained pitcher Pat Zachry, reserve infielder Doug Flynn and Indianapolis outfielders Steve Henderson and Dan Norman. Zachry is to join the rotation. Henderson is to become the regular leftfielder, Flynn is to be a backup and Norman goes to Tidewater, a

At the same time the Mets disposed of their conflict with sometime slugger Dave Kingman, still unsigned and still unhappy. He went to San Diego for outfielder-infielder Bobby Valentine, a top prospect eight years ago, and pitcher Paul Siebert.

In a trade that apparently had little to do with personalities, the Mets sent their own reserve infielder, Mike Phillips, to St. Louis for outfielder Joel Youngblood, who also sat on the Cincinnati bench last

Room for all those players was cleared by farming third baseman Roy Staiger to Tidewater and by manager Joe Torre deciding that he would no longer be a player-manager.

While Grant and general manager Joe McDonald repeatedly threatened to trade Seaver, beginning at the time of the player lockout in the spring of 1976. they repeatedly said they wanted to avoid making the trade. In the end, it was Seaver who asked for the trade - even demanded it - to be gone from the Mets. as traumatic as the separation would be. He repeated often that by their unwillingness to compete in the market for free agents last winter, the Mets had withdrawn from competition on the field. He said that if the Mets could not offer him some hope of pitching for a contender, he wanted to be traded.

Tuesday night Seaver had his last thoughts that might have stopped the trade machinery and kept him with the Mets, which he really still wanted to be. From the hotel where Seaver and the team were staying in Atlanta, he had an extended phone conversation with McDonald, in which Seaver made several recommendations to management. If management were willing to go along with those suggestions, then Seaver said he would put aside his differences with Grant and be happy to remain a Met.

Grant had called the board of directors together

Wednesday afternoon to consider what Seaver had said when Seaver made another phone call. This time he said to forget what he had said the night before, "I want out." That sequence of events was confirmed in the regretful statement the club made Wednesday night in announcing the trade.

Just what Weaver's suggestions were that were being considered by the board and what changed Seaver's mind has not been openly disclosed. A source close to the matter says that Seaver did not demand renegotiation of his contract that is to run through next season. The essence of what Seaver wanted, the source said, was a commitment by the team to compete actively for the players who are to become available this winter.

THEN CAME the last straw. Seaver was lounging by the pool at the Marriott Hotel in Atlanta, as he often does, when he was told the contents of a newspaper column in New York. Seaver's mood darkened. "What do you get for punching a sportswriter?" Seaver asked. He made a phone call to New York to have the limits of his patience Wednesday, in addition to the oft-mentioned "greed," was a reference to former Met Nolan Ryan and the relationship Tom and Nancy Seaver have with Nolan and Ruth Ryan. "Nolan Ryan is getting more now than Seaver," the columnist wrote, "and that galls Tom because Nancy Seaver and Ruth Ryan are very friendly and Tom Seaver long has treated Nolan Ryan like a little brother.

The writer was Dick Young of the Daily News. Young and Seaver have been at opposite points of view since Seaver took his stand on the players movement in 1976. For almost a year and a half, Young has been critical of Seaver's activities off the field and his role in upsetting the established pattern of baseball. Seaver felt Young, whose son-in-law, Thornton Geary is listed as being in charge of the Mets' radio-TV network, was serving Grant in siding against Seaver and the players. Seaver felt that Young's influence intensified his conflict with management

The item that apparently pushed Seaver past the

WHETHER THAT was Young's opinion that would influence Grant or Grant's commentary to Young. Seaver protested. "I don't mind the garbage he writes about me," Seaver said, "But when he starts getting my family into it, that I can't take."

Then Seaver made his last phone call to management. He caught a plane home to New York while the game with the Braves was just beginning. He did not go to his home in Greenwich, Conn., but made himself unavailable for comment until his own news conference called for Thursday.

In the Western Division there were the rippling effects. The Dodgers, whose 13-game lead is down to seven over the Reds, did not meet the bidding for Seaver. According to the Dodgers, shortstop Bill Russell was the focus of the Mets' demands and the Dodgers declined. What the Mets got from the Reds was Zachry, co-winner of last year's rookie honors now struggling with a 3-7 record, an infielder in Flynn. who is regarded as a bright prospect in a dearth of infielders, and a fine hitting-prospect in Henderson. And, of course, Norman. He hit a two-run homer Wednesday night to lead Indianapolis over Omaha before being reassigned to Tidewater.

"This has to be one of the biggest steals since the Babe Ruth trade," said Dodger second baseman Dave Lopes. " ... I don't think the Mets are as good a club as they were before.'

Tanana rates big league 'foxes'

By CHARLES MAHER The Los Angeles Times

ANAHEIM, Calif. - The baseball box score you know about. Now comes Frank Tanana with the fox score. Here's what it looks like:

STRONG - Boston, New York, Texas, California, Chicago. MEDIUM - Minnesota.

SHAKY — Kansas City, Baltimore. FORGET IT — Milwaukee, Detroit, Cleveland, Oakland

This chart is intended to supplement conventional statistics. While the box score tells you how a player fared against the other team in a particular game, the fox score tells you how he's apt to fare with the other sex (known collectively as foxes, or feex) later in the evening.

TANANA WORKED up the chart during a pregame conversation in the Angel dugout. What led up to it was a question about how a famous bachelor oitcher deals with female opportunities on the road.

'There's no problem." Tanana said. "You either want them or you don't. If you don't - say you've got to pitch and you don't want female companionship — you go to your room and tell the operator, 'Ma'am, I don't want any calls.' Or you can go the other way. Simple.

How about the quality of feex? Is the talent evenly distributed across the country or are there outstanding franchise areas?

"Well, there really are," Tanana said. "Like the Boston area. And lately I've been having a very good time in New York. And then of course there's Texas. Texas ladies are really - well. I see a lot more pretty women in Texas than a lot of other places. And you can't beat it here, out West.' "The middle of the country is a little

"No." Tanana said. "When you're talking the middle of the country you're talking Chicago, and you don't want to exclude Chicago. Kansas City? Shaky. And then of course there's Cleveland and Detroit. Tough. Hard to downgrade Detroit because I've got a lot of friends there, but that's the word I get.'

"Those would be the weakest fran-chises — Cleveland and Detroit?" "I'll tell you what," Tanana said.

"Here's your weak ones. You got Oakland, Detroit and Cleveland. I'm talking from my experience now. Make that Oakland, Cleveland, Detroit and Kansas City, although I have seen quite a few good-looking ladies in Kansas City. But as far as my luck has gone, K.C. is a little shaky. Baltimore is in that class. "And the others?"

"NOW WE get to what I would call the first division," Tanana said. "You got Boston, New York, Texas, California. I'll put Minnesota in a middle division. Milwaukee in a lower division." (The two expansion cities Seattle and Toronto, are unranked for want of sufficient test data.)

"Is the difference largely a matter of style," Tanana was asked, "or do women really look different in different places?' "No. A beautiful woman is just a beautiful woman." 'Clothes don't figure prominently in the ratings, then?

"No. Hell no. The only way they get rated is when the clothes come off." "You'd think the law of probabilities would dictate that the percentage of beautiful women wouldn't vary much from town to

"OH, DON'T get me wrong," Tanana said. "I'm sure they all have them. But the only way some of these areas can improve in my eyes is for me to run into one of them.

"So you may have missed some of the best and you're not really rapping any towns?"

"Oh, no. I'm just talking about the kinds of times I've had in different places. I'm not putting the rap on any of them.

All this may make it sound as if Tanana is in hotter pursuit of a good time than a good season. But, as suggested by his record (10-3), he has not entirely thrown over business for

"I take the game very seriously," he said. "It's something I want to ex-

Earlier in his career, he admitted he may have treated the old bod less deferentially. "I think I might have what do they say? - burned the candle at both ends. Possibly overdid it a little. It ain't going to happen again, though.

The night before he pitches, Tanana said, the world gets tuned out. "You're getting the mind ready to go out there and concentrate for 21-2 or 3 hours," he said. "Sometimes it's the hardest thing in the world to do. You've got to build up to it so that when the time comes it's the only thing on your mind. But then, as soon as the game is over, forget it. NBA meetings conclude quietly

Association's summer meetings were full of sound and fury, signifying an end to nine years of warfare via merger with the American Basketball Association

This year the sounds were muffled, no fury was evident and the greatest significance in the developments was their lack of significance.

"I'd like to report that we had some earth-shattering developments at our meetings today, but I just can't say NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien told a news conference Thursday, the final day of the NBA Board of Governors meetings which were cut short by one day because of the smooth sailing

The only potential trouble facing the governors lay in the shaky financial status of the four teams which joined the NBA from the ABA a year ago. The problems facing the Indiana Pacers, for one, were severe enough to foster talk of moving that franchise. But on the first day of the meetings, the NBA governors adopted a two-point program designed to ease the new teams' financial burdens.

The league agreed to defer until June, 1980, the deadline for payment of the final $200,000 of the teams' entry fees, money which had been due this month. And, in what was described as an effort to make it easier for the four ex-ABA teams to borrow money, the league agreed to take a back seat to any lending institution before laying claim to the franchise's assets in the event of default.

After that, said O'Brien, "It was all smooth sailing. We took care of a lot of housekeeping matters, things that don't make headlines but which still have to get done.

The actions taken included approving John Y. Brown's purchase of the final 50 per cent of the Buffalo Braves and Lee Schlesinger's purchase of 30 per cent ownership of the New Orleans Jazz; adoption of a budget for the next fiscal year; hearing a report from CBS on the network's television plans, and an update of O'Brien's five-year plan for the long-range growth of the league. The Rules and Competition Committees also made a number of recommendations which were adopted by the league.

No major rules changes were made, although some-including the three-point field goal and a no foul-out rule- were recommended for consideration once the NBA names a new supervisor of officials to succeed the retiring John Nucatola.

One change calls for a fine to be levied against any player who hangs onto the rim of a basket during pregame warmups.

The changes made by the Competitions Committee included reducing the roster of each team from 12 to 11 and adding a two-man taxi squad (all of which is pending the approval of the NBA Players Association); holding the draft in New York and opening it to the public, as the National Football League does; using a drawing to break ties in the drafting order; requiring the 24second clocks to be located above the British tennis fans, faced with a name they did not recognize, let alone pronouce, were wondering just that at London's Queen's Club Thursday. They soon will know all about him if he continues making the sort of progress he has in a $100,000 international tournament at the club.

He is 23, 6-foot-4, comes from Bakersfield, Calif., and has been married just 10 days. His wife Kim is with him on a combined honeymoontennis trip and kisses him warmly after every victory. And more important, he has a service like the kick of a mule and moves about court like

A short time after Mrs. Janice Abernathy was stabbed to death Tuesday morning, a forged check belonging to the victim and her husband was cashed at a nearby food

That check led to the apprehension of a 16-year-old Midland youth and ended a two-day search for a suspect in connection with that slaying, according to detective Lt. Earl Luckey.

Mrs. Abernathy, 23, of 4303 W. Storey Ave. was eight months pregnant with her first child at the time of her death. She was last seen alive about 7:30 Tuesday morning by her husband, Terry, as he left for work. He returned home shortly after noon to find his wife lying on the living room floor with multiple stab wounds. The only thing taken from the west flower arrangement and $32 in cash. Luckey said the manager of the M-System food store at 400 Midland Drive reported the forged check Wednesday morning. The manager told police he remembered receiving a check with the Abernathys address on it after hearing the address mentioned on Tuesday night's news.

After police were alerted to the check, Luckey said, an eyewitness came forward who knew the youth and saw him write the check at the

That development sent police looking for a picture of the youth, for identification by other witnesses at the food store. That picture was obtained from a school yearbook. Luckey said.

Luckey said it took from Wednesday morning until 12:45 a.m. Thursday to make the arrest as police did not get all the information until 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The cashier and other witnesses at the food store identified the picture as being of the youngster who cashed the check Tuesday morning. Police then went to the youth's home to take him into custody

Police were also aided by a woman who said a "20-year-old man" entered her house about 8:30 Tuesday morning seeking to use the telephone.

According to police reports, the man used the phone, left the house and returned a short time later. The woman told police she threatened to call some neighbors, causing him to flee on a 10-speed bicycle.

The woman described the man as having an "Afro" hair style, about 160 pounds, and five-feet 10-inches tall.

Luckey described the youth being detained as an outstanding student and one of the leaders in his class.

"Yeah, I guess you could call him Mr. School," said Luckey. "He's one of the finest athletes to ever come out of junior high here.

Midland County Judge Barbara Culver, in a hearing Thursday morning, ruled that the youth be detained in county jail for 10 days.

County Attorney Leslie Ackers said he would file a motion to have the youth certified as an adult to be tried in district court.

While Texas law does not forbid the release by officials and publication by news media of the names of persons being handled as juvenile offenders, juvenile judges often feel it is in the best interest of the juvenile, his or her family and the community as a whole to protect that identity until careful determination of the facts of the case can be made.

News executives generally have felt it wise to follow the judgment of the court. Publication of the names of juveniles accused of serious crimes usually follows certification of the accused as an adult, and the transfer of the case to the district court level.

Coastal states get boost

By RICHARD L. LYONS The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Senate energy committee added a $100 million a year sweetener for coastal states as it reported out a bill to overhaul procedures for awarding oil leases on the nation's outer continental shelf. Meanwhile, the House Ways and Means Committee indicated in a series of votes that it will approve, but in softened form, the tax and rebate part of President Carter's energy package intended to convert industry and utilities from burning oil or gas to its shores. Under current procedures, leases are awarded to the highest cash bidder. The bill provides that at least one-third of the leases must be awarded under alternative bidding methods, such as agreeing to pay the government a specified royalty.

Purpose of the bill on outer continental shelf leases is to provide more competition and enable the government to get its money's worth in selling drilling rights for oil and gas in submerged lands up to 200 miles off

Sen. J. Bennett Johnston (D-La.), chief committee spokesman for the oil industry, tried to knock out this provision and was defeated 10 to 8. But Johnston won two other important

First, by a vote of 11 to 7, the committee struck from the bill provisions empowering the government to do exploratory drilling before selling leases - to find out which tracts contain oil and what the leases should be to contract for such drilling. But the drillers presumably would be oil companies and the government would have to rely on their information. The provision giving the government power to drill helped kill the measure in the House last year.

Then Johnston, allied with Chairman Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.), got through an amendment to pay coastal states royalties for oil produced off their shores.

Sponsors justify the payment as compensating for environmental impact of offshore drilling. The bill authorizes $100 million a year for the next two years for these payments.

Alaska files over pipeline rate charges

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - Hundreds of millions of dollars were wasted in the construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline, the state of Alaska charged in documents made available Thurs-

Criticizing the project for "monumental cost overruns," the Alaskan government filed an objection to the rate schedules proposed by the oil companies that own the pipeline.

Alaska's complaint went to the Interstate Commerce Commission. which must approve the charges to be levied for shipping oil through the

The ICC's staff bureau of investigations and enforcement also attacked the proposed rates as excessive in a report issued Thursday.

On Wednesday, the U.S. Justice Department also filed a formal objection, charging that the oil companies would earn overcharge of $900 million a year under their suggested rate

Eight oil companies that operate the 800-mile line from Alaska's North Slope to the port of Valdez have proposed charges ranging from $6.04 to $6.44 a barrel. In sharp contrast, the state of Alaska says the rates should range from $3.59 to $4.42 a barrel.

Controversies over waste on the pipeline project may significantly affect the charges for using the line, as well as the amount of revenue received by the state of Alaska on sales of North Slope oil.

Under the ICC regulatory procedure, pipeline rates should enable the line's owner to make a reasonable profit on the investment. If some of the money spent for the project was misused or imprudently spent, the ICC can exclude those outlays from the rate base on which profits are calculated.

In a very simplified example assume a 14 per cent profit is allowed. On a $100 investment, the rates can be set to provide $14 in profits. However, if the ICC concludes that $10 of the investment was wasted, this limits the rate base to $90. Profits will be limited to 14 per cent of $90, or $12.60.

At the same time, the State of Alaska will lose millions of dollars in revenue from oil sales if the pipeline companies' claims for high transportation charges are approved.

Chances of tracking Scout killer decrease

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) -The chances that tracking dogs can find the killer of three Girl Scouts will decrease unless the dogs pick up the scent of the slayer soon, authorities

Meanwhile, officials are awaiting evaluation of evidence gathered at Camp Scott, where the girls' bodies were found Monday. Two of them were beaten to death in their sleeping bags and one was strangled. All were sexually molested.

Nine-year-old Michelle Guse, of Broken Arrow, was to be buried today. Funerals for the Lori Lee Farmer, 8, and Doris Denise Milner, 10, both of Tulsa, were held Wednesday and Thursday.

The dogs' trainer, Don Laken of Philadelphia, worked the rugged scenic area 45 miles northeast of Tulsa most of the day Thursday, beginning at 5 a.m. He said the dogs - two German Shepherds and a German cattle dog have been successful on tracking assignments 100 times in 100 attempts, and that they could pick up a three-day-old trail. But he told reporters at Camp Scott that if the dogs don't pick up anything in 48 hours, the odds for their success decrease.

Mayes County Dist. Atty. Sid Wise expressed impatience at the pace of the investigation, particularly at evaluation of evidence at the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation crime lab in Oklahoma sure they could agree promptly on public school financing. "I think we have enough agreement now where it would be possible in a relative short period of time to work out a reasonable public education financing bill," he said. Earlier, Briscoe said he had said he might call the lawmakers back on July 8 in order to let committees work over the weekend. Speaker Bill Clayton, who recommended the July 8 date, said he thought the session could be over by Friday, July 15, unless Briscoe opened the debate to subjects other than public school financing. The special session became necessary when the regular legislative session quit May 30 without acting on a $900 million public school financing bill, including $308 million in school teachers' pay raises.

Burglary site attracts visitors

By MAUREEN SANTINI

WASHINGTON (AP) - On the rear stairwell door of an office on the sixth floor of the Watergate building is a plaque commemorating a "pips-queak" burglary that occurred five years ago today.

The plaque is one of the few tangible reminders of the June 17, 1972, breakin at the Democratic National Headquarters that eventually forced Richard Nixon out of office and his chieftains into prison.

Now the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences occupies the offices. For the many curious visitors who want to peek at the famous spot, the institute installed the plaque and hands out pamphlets. Although the Watergate office complex remains one of the big attractions in a capital city that has many, the event has become so passe to those who work there that few could say who now occupies the offices.

"We're not holding a celebration." a desk clerk said when asked Thursday night about the fifth/anniversary. Neither are H.R. Haldeman, Nixon's chief of staff, nor former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, who surrender to prison officials next Wednesday for their roles in the Watergate cover-up. ending finally the Watergate criminal Some Watergate figures became Counting Haldeman and Mitchell. 25 will have been locked up. John Ehrlichman, the third major tion, already is behind bars. The three kingpins drew 21/2-to-8 year terms after their convictions for conspiring to impede a grand jury investigation into the break-in.

Besides Ehrlichman, only G. Gordon Liddy, one of the actual burglars, is spending the fifth anniversary of Watergate in jail. Liddy, who masterminded the White House "plumbers" unit, has refused to make any public statement about the scandal.

Four other men, all from Miami. were arrested with Liddy inside the Watergate offices of the Democratic National Committee. Bernard Barker, Eugenio Martinez, Virgilio Gonzalez and Frank Sturgis were convicted of conspiracy, wiretapping and burglary. They pleaded guilty and all served more than one year in jail.

James McCord Jr. and E. Howard Hunt also were part of the original seven Watergate defendants. Hunt, who demanded hush money from the White House for himself and his fellow defendants, pleaded guilty to conspiracy, wiretapping and burglary and served 30 months in prison. Mc-Cord, convicted of eight counts, was released after four months.

The Carter administration has not recommended any such assistance for the communist government

The Senate made its views known on foreign affairs on Thursday during a 10-hour debate on a .6 billion State Department authorization bill. The measure passed 64-21.

The Senate dropped from the bill a provision recommended by the Foreign Relations Committee endorsing the timing and wisdom of the proposed pullout of ground forces from Korea.

Instead it voted 79-15 that any reduction or withdrawal should be ordered only after a "joint decision by the President and Congress." The provision was written by Majority Leader Robert Byrd.

The vote made it clear that the Senate wants to be consulted on any withdrawal, a concept on which it is still sharply divided.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker said the vote was a defeat for the President. Baker and other senators said that withdrawal over four or five years, as Carter is proposing, could tempt North Korea to invade the South and could lead to a possible war involving the United States.

Baker and other senators said that besides the possiblity of a possible invasion, the troop withdrawal proposal could upset the military stability of much of Asia. They said it could encourage the resurgence of Japanese militarism by posing a military threat to that country's security.

Carter has said the troop withdrawal he proposes would involve ground forces only. He has said the United States remains firm in its commitment and will to defend South Korea from attack and intends to maintain air and naval forces equipped with nuclear weapons to carry out that commitment. Earlier, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., tried to defuse what he predicted would be a "long and vitriolic" debate on Cuba. He deleted an amendment he was backing which would have permitted Cuba to buy medical supplies and farm produce in the United

McGovern sought originally to have the 16-year trade embargo against Cuba lifted. He said the reduced scope of his amendment would have been only a "small gesture" to encourage the success of negotiations aimed at normalizing relations between Cuba and the United States.

But a group of senators insisted on pressing for passage of amendments offered by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., to impose a rigid set of preconditions on Cuba before the United States could move to restore diplomatic and trade relations.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress soon will be asked to wipe out the effects of a Supreme Court ruling that says workers have no legal right to take a day off for religious reasons.

"The Supreme Court decision is wrong," Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., said Thursday after hearing the high court's ruling. "I shall renew my legislative efforts in this issue."

It was Randolph who in 1972 pushed legislation through Congress making it clear that under the Civil Rights Act of 1964 employers would have to accommodate religious employes whenever possible.

But the Supreme Court, in a 7-2 decision Thursday, ruled that employers are not required to give an Randolph, a Seventh-Day Baptist, indicated he would seek a new law that could not be misinterpreted by the court.

"Our great tradition of religious freedom and our nation's accommodation of religious diversity has been severely damaged." he said in referring to the high court's action.

The court's two dissenters used even stronger language. "All Americans will be a little poorer until today's decision is erased," said Justices Thurgood Marhsall and William Brennan. "The ultimate tragedy is that, despite "Worlds of Fun" was the name for the Girl Scouts day camp session held 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. this week. The session ended today for the 130 girls ranging in age from six to 16.

The girls were divided into groups according to their age and activity they preferred. Coordinating the summer activity were Mrs. C. David DeFrance and Mrs. Hugh C. Pendery.

World of the Arts took Brownies, girls in first through third grade, and Juniors, girls fourth through six grade, into the world of music, dancing, crafts, dramatics and puppetry. Volunteers gave demonstrations and had the girls participating in the various arts.

Brownie-age girls who preferred to learn about the community participated in the World of Our Community. The girls visited the Midland Hilton, Midland Air Terminal, the weather bureau, an oil rig, farm, construction site and Midland National World of the Out of Doors covered crafts, nature hikes and ecology

The Junior scouts working on a cyclist badge went into the World of Cycling and took trips to the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame, Midland Community Theatre and Museum of the Southwest. Bicycle safety was stressed for the girls.

Those who preferred a cooler activity went into the World of Water Fun held at Kimber-lea swimming pool. They learned first aid and practiced safety measures in addition to learning water ballet.

Despite loads of data another Mars probe needed

By EARL LANE Newsday

NEW YORK - After more than nine months of fruitful exploration, the automated biology instruments on two Viking spacecraft on Mars were recently turned off for good. But the data that they returned have yet to provide a definitive answer to the key question: Is there life on Mars?

Indeed, it will probably take at least one more trip to settle the matter,

Viking scientists now agree. That is not to say that the Viking mission has been a scientific disappoinment. It has returned a wealth of data on the Martion surface, rock formations and so forth. While perhaps not as glamorous as the search for life, those experiments are every bit as important to those who are trying to piece together the history of Mars. In all, the Viking data add up to the most complete record available on

For the first time, scientists are able to say that Mars contains the elements crucial to life as we know it. Whether those elements ever came together is an open question, however. It may have happened in the past, but Mars seems to harbor nothing today that can be unambiguously described as alive.

Among the first discoveries of Viking was the fact that nitrogen, a key component in the molecules of life. was present in the Martain air. Scientists also found xenon and krypton. rare gases that are valuable in helping to unlock the history of a planet's atmosphere. The concentrations suggest that Mars once had a thicker atmosphere capable of allowing liquid water to flow and nourish life. Viking showed that Mars has that water in abundance, but trapped in the form of ice at the polar caps and in subsurface permafrost.

"All the ingredients for life were probably available at one time," said Tobias Owen, a Viking astronomer from New York State University. He said it is impossible, however, to say on the basis of available data whether life did evolve in a wetter, warmer Martian climate eons ago. Hal Massursky, a Viking geologist, said that the data suggest that "there were at least two episodes of planetwide warming, the oldest going back to something like 3 billion years ago.'

The question of whether primitive life - if it did evolve - then adapted to such an extent that it is able to survive under the much harsher Martian conditions of today is, of course, the issue that has garnered the lion's share of Viking publicity.

The data are curious enough to prevent any final pronouncements from the cautious scientists. But one thing is clear: The Viking landers did detect some sort of activity in the Martian soil. It is quite unlike anything that scientists are familiar with on earth. If it is due to chemical reactions, as most Viking scientists now propose, it is a peculiar chemistry that is difficult to mimic in earthbound laboratory experiments.

Within days after the first results came in, scientists started efforts to simulate them on earth. Don DeVincenzi of NASA said that more than a dozen research groups are now working to recreate the Viking results using various test soils with constituents now known to exist in Martian soil. The soils are sterile and contain no life. The groups are trying to show that under the same conditions as those in the Viking biology instruments, the soils will produce Mars. They propose various chemical reactions to do the trick.

"We can simulate various parts of these reactions," DeVincenzi said recently. "That says these (chemical) hypotheses are not unreasonable ones. It suggests they may be valid, but it does not prove it. De Vincenzi described the tests performed to date as "quick and dirty' experiments. "We are trying to do a much more careful job now." None of the soil tests has been published yet in the scientific literature, and it may take until the end of the year or later before the efforts start to coalesce.

At least one space scientist, Robert Jastrow, says that the results can more readily be explained in terms of biology or something very much like it. He has chided Viking biologists for being perhaps too cautious in their inViking scientists said that Jastrow who is not connected with the project and who is not a biologist, has "been fed a bunch of baloney.

Coffee-stretching tips accompany price hike

By ARTHUR SCHWARTZ

Some coffee drinkers simply refuse to give up their brew no matter how high the price goes. "It's either pay the price or walk around all day in a sleepy daze," one inveterate imbiber said. "The fact is, if I don't have my two cups in the morning, I wouldn't be able to earn enough money to buy tea, much less dark-roasted Viennese blend (coffee)."

The caffeine boost is a real addiction. True, there are other sources of the stimulant - tea, cocoa and cola drinks being the most commonly consumed — but none of these in their usual concentrations matches the caffeine content of coffee. And none, of course, has its flavor.

With coffee prices about to hit an even record high any day, this seems to be an appropriate time to examine several coffee-stretching gimmicks. Admittedly, none of the following con-coctions are as caffeine-rich or full of coffee flavor as pure, black brew, but they do get you through hard times.

Before you start stretching. however, it's a good idea to check the efficiency of your current coffeemaking practices. For example, coffee is available in various grinds, and unless the grind you are using suits the pot you have, you are probably wasting both flavor and coffee.

The experts say that coffee flavor and coffee "solids" are extracted most efficiently with drip and fine-grind coffee used in drip or filter drip pots. However, if you use either a range-top or electric percolator, any grind finer than regular will produce sediment in the pot that will make the last cup of coffee a muddy mess fit only for the kitchen drain. It is also vital to check your measuring techniques. Generally speaking, you should be using 1 "standard" coffee measure (2 level tablespoons) for each 6 ounces of water for optimum results. Because the grounds retain some water, this should yield between 5 to 5 1/2 ounces of coffee. If you are using more coffee or less water per cup you are probably wasting coffee.

Another waste of coffee is leftovers. It is best to make only the amount you will need, but if you have some coffee left in the pot, either freeze it in an ice cube tray to use for iced coffee (it won't dilute your cold brew the way a regular cube will), or, if using a drip pot, add it to the next pot you make. Do not, however, include it in the water you boil for the new pot. Leftover coffee can also be gently rewarmed, but do not let it boil.

For most avid coffee drinkers, the ones who enjoy its flavor as much as its boost, stretching may at first seem like an abomination. But personal experience has proven that even the most finicky fanatic can be fooled by chicory. The roasted and ground root of an herb-like plant, chicory came into its own in France during the early 19th century and has been used ever since as a coffee substitute and stretcher. In New Orleans, it's hard to get a cup without it.

It is a myth that chicory is bitter. In fact, it adds a sweetish caramel-like flavor, extra body and a smoother aftertaste, especially to dark roasted coffees which can, indeed, have bitter tones. With a 3-to-1 coffee-chicory ratio you may actually get a better tasting brew at a substantial saving. Calculating about $4 for a pound of commercially packaged coffee and $1 a pound for chicory (available mostly at specialty shops, but now beginning to appear on supermarket shelves), you can save 75 cents per pound of coffee using this ratio.

Cocoa is more costly than chicory, but it also can be used as a coffee extender. Simply brew your coffee at a slightly lesser strength and add a little unsweetened cocoa to each cup. As a starting point, use one third less coffee per pot and add a teaspoon of cocoa to each eight- to ten-ounce mug. Through experience you will eventually hit upon proportions that satisfy your taste. This "mocha" mix-

The most obvious coffee stretcher. the one many people already use without recognizing it as such, is milk. Milk certainly dilutes both the flavor and caffeine strength of coffee, but if coffee prices are really demolishing your budget, cafe au lait. as the French call it, is something to

Timber industry in the West battling sealed bid

By GEORGE LARDNER JR. The Washington Post

In the final hours before adjournment last fall. Congress adopted a late-blooming measure aimed at preventing "collusive practices in bidding" for the federal timber sold by the U.S. Forest Service.

The timber industry of the West is striving mightily these days to kill it. The House Agriculture Committee has already voted, by a close 22 to 20, to seek its repeal. Similar pressures are reportedly building up in the Senate where the most powerful pro-ponent of the law, Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Herman E. Talmadge (D-Ga.), is said to be growing a bit weary of all the howls from the Pacific Northwest, the center of discontent

"He's about to come to the conclusion that if all those westerners want to collude, the hell with 'em - let 'em collude,' said one source close to Talmadge. "The people who might stand up for God, motherhood and sealed bidding haven't even started to pay attention to this one yet."

Tacked onto the National Forest Management Act of 1976 almost as an afterthought, the bill's most pointed provisions simply require sealed bid-ding on all timber sales from the national forest system, except where the secretary of agriculture determines otherwise by regulation

Sealed bidding has been the rule, rather than the exception, in the South and East for decades. But under the permissive authority of an 80-year-old law, oral auctions became customary in the West shortly after World War II, ostensibly to give local lumber mills a chance to offer a higher price and protect their traditional timber supply from outsiders.

Oral bidding also provides a ready opportunity to buy government timber at the cheapest possible price, which is all that need be offered if no one else shows up. And, according to the Justice Department's antitrust lawyers, the system makes it easier to indulge in collusive agreements to divvy up the sales and to intimidate would-be competitors by jacking up the oral offers whenever necessary. The Forest Service itself agrees "that sealed bidding for timber is a greater deterrent to possible collusive practices than is oral auction. As U.S. Forest Service chief John R. McGuire puts it: "In oral auctions, counterbids, gestures, eye contacts, voice inflections, and facial expressions can be used much as in the game of bridge. These methods can be used in addition to strategy arranged before the sale." On the other hand, "use of sealed bidding restricts collusive methods to strategy arranged before the sale.

The stakes are high in any case. The Forest Service, an arm of the Agriculture Department, sold $584 million in timber last year - about a third of all softwood lumber and plywood used in the nation - most of it in Oregon and Washington ($378 million) and in California ($111 million). According to one Forest Service expert, Alfred A. Weiner, the vast majority of that timber, pro-bably more than a half-billi on dollars, was sold by oral bidding.

The tempest began as a mild breeze last year when Rep. John Krebs (D-Calif.), aroused by reports in his hometown paper (The Fresno Bee) about evidence of collusive paractices in the forest industry, decided to try to do something to discourage them.

At a House Agriculture Committee markup session last September, he successfully proposed an amendment directing the secretary of agriculture "to take such action as he may deem appropriate to obviate collusive practices in bidding for trees, portions of trees or forest products from national forest lands.

At the least, the secretary was directed to set up a monitoring system that could "promptly identify patterns of noncompetitive bidding, to order that any collusive practices or patterns be reported to the Justice Department with any and all supporting data, and to institute sealed bidding for advertised sales of 1 million board feet of timber or less.

No one in the forest products industry seems to have gotten excited about that since the affected timber sales were so relatively insignificant. (Sales of under 2 million board feet are counted as "small" by the Forest Service.)

"It was frankly more modest than it should have been," Krebs says now of the measure as it passed the House.

When the legislation moved to a Senate-House conference, however, the situation changed drastically.

"I frankly thought that the provision might not survive the conference," says one legislative aide who attended the sessions. "But Talmadge picked it up and said, 'Why should we have sealed bidding only for small sales? We use sealed bid-ding in the South. I think we ought to have it all over.' All of a sudden, wham, bang, it was broadened to cover all sales except where the secretary determines otherwise by regulation. Until then, it was just window-dressing.

Some hand-writing ensued on the House and Senate floors, but Congress was in a mood to hurry up. On the House floor, Rep. Steven Symms (R-Idaho) tried to uphold oral auctions as an established tribal folkway. He suggested that the conference really meant to require sealed bidding only when "reasonable evidence indicates that collusion is occurring." But in a colloquy with Krebs, House Agriculture Chairman Thomas Foley (D-Wash.) said that the conferees "did not intend to give the secretary carte blanche authority to depart from the sealed bidding procedure."

The Forest Service took the new law seriously, at least at first. It suspended all sales for a few weeks following enactment, then decreed sealed bidding for all sales except in isolated cases where it would adversely affect a community dependent on national forest timber. Only one town in the West qualified for oral auction.

The protests welled up. The Forest Service was swamped with some 3,000 letters, most of them complaints. Rep. Al Ullman (D-Ore.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, arranged a meeting with Acting Secretary of Agriculture John A. Knebel last Dec. 8 to hear from representatives of several lumber firms in his district. The Forest Service regulations were relaxed shortly thereafter, to exempt more com-munities, although chief McGuire has said that "we were drafting the new guidelines even before that meeting." Krebs noted crisply at a House forests subcommitting hearing in February that most of the firms represented at the meeting with Knebel were under subpoena by a federal grand jury looking into timber sales in that area of Oregon. In Krebs' own California district, which includes the Sierra National Forest, three other firms were under subpoena by a federal grand jury investigating alleged bid-rigging there. In all, according to Justice Department antitrust lawyers, "six areas are currently being investigated for possible timber-bidding collusion. It is noteworthy that each of these investigations has concerned an area where oral bidding was the predominant method of selling timber.' By early February, however, the drive to repeal the sealed bidding rule was in full swing. The National Forest Products Association busied itself in the effort, along with at least 20 other trade groups. Some contacted Sen. Frank Church

(D-Idaho), who only two years ago had proudly hailed the debut of Lewiston, Idaho, as a port city with barge access to the ocean. Now he is said to be worried about the prospects of outsiders using the port to take the timber from Idaho. A protectionist surge is making itself felt on Capitol Hill these days in many ways.

The carpenters union, which is said to work closely with the Forest Products Association in such matters, has also joined the lobbying. Even the National Association of Counties has passed a resolution in support of oral bidding, presumably on the notion that it produces more money than sealed bidding (State and local governments get 25 per cent of the revenue from national forest timber

Actually, according to an nine-year analysis of sales by the Forest Service's Weiner, sealed bidding appears to produce more money on the Defenders of the sealed bidding law maintain that other remedies, such as smaller timber sales and sharper business judgment, are what the smaller mills need. They already have the built-in advantage over outsiders of lower transportation costs in hauling the timber.

Despite all that, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland early this month announced permanent new regulations that make the largely untested sealed bidding law virtually unrecognizable. Now, Bergland said, "in dependent communities, 75 per cent of the timber will be sold by oral auction and 25 per cent by sealed bids, unless sales to outside the dependent community exceed the normal rate." If outside sales are excessive, then 100 per cent oral auction can be authorized. So far, under a generous definition of what makes a town "dependent" on national forest timber, 183 communities have been qualified.

Seven players deadlocked for Open lead

TULSA, Okla (AP) - Arnold Palmer provided the electricity, Jack Nicklaus was happy to get out alive, and the brutal 18th hole at Southern Hills scored a clear kayo of the field Thursday with defending champion Jerry Pate its prime victim in the first round of the 77th U.S. Open.

Seven players who have never captured a major championship shaved a stroke off par over the 6,873 yards of one of the toughest par-70 courses in

Rod Funseth, Terry Diehl, Larry Nelson, Hubie Green, Grier Jones, Tom Purtzer and Argentina's 38-yearold Florention Molina struggled to 69s in pleasant 80-degree weather that featured gusty, tricky winds. Never in Open history had so many players been clustered in first place.

There was a logiam of 10 players at par including the 46- year-old Palmer, who had to qualify to get here and sent his "Army" into a frenzy by holing a wedge for a birdie on his roller coaster round of four birdies and four

NICKLAUS SHOT 74, Masters champion Tom Watson, looking for the Grand Slam, also floundered to a 74, and Pate suffered an agonizing six on the unforgiving final hole for 72.

"The best thing for a man to do is come to that hole Sunday with a threeshot lead," said Al Geiberger, who bogied it for a 70.

Nicklaus, one of the longest hitters in the history of the game, branded it

Palmer, not exactly your everyday puffball hitter, claimed: "It's as close to a par five as you can get. Pate declared: "It's a helluva hole.

The hole is bordered by a creek on the right and left. Towering trees line the right side and thick bermuda rough chokes the left. Deep bunkers guard the approach to an elevated green which is slick as a marble top table. The fairway slants right, creating fades that plunk into the right bunker.

'I had a six-foot downhill putt there and it broke a foot," said Johnny Miller, attesting to the lightning bent grass contour of the 100-foot long Miller added: "I'm not very gungho about that hole.

Nicklaus said: "I hit the best tee shot I can hit and still had a one-iron to the green. I'd hate to have to make birdie there the last day to win.

THERE WERE only four birdies Thursday and Palmer said: "I'll wager there will be more bogeys there than par." He was right. Green questioned whether the hole was playing 449-yards.

"Who stepped it off?" said Green who added it was more like 465. "I killed a drive and still had a five-wood 210-yards uphill into the wind. Hit your tee shot into the rough and forget it. You can't get there.

"It's one of the most difficult finishing holes I've ever played," said Tom Weiskopf. "It's very, very, very, difficult. You have a sidehill lie no matter where you hit it.'

Only Molina had a kind word for the hole-a backhanded compliment since he parred it.

"I like 18-not for me but for the other players," said Molina, meaning he was delighted to escape with par while others like Pate were branded with double bogeys and bogey. The hole averaged 4.9 strokes Thursday with par outnumbered 2-1 by mini-disaters.

Palmer, using only 29 putts, charged up a large majority of the total crowd of 14,818 with the some of his old magic. He made three putts longer than 15 feet.

'The crowd pumped me up and I guess they were more exuberant than usual because I haven't given them a chance lately," he said. "I was doing things like I used to do.

Nicklaus, the dreaded giant of the game with 16 major championships, bogeyed two of the first four holes.

I still have a chance but I can't shoot anymore 74s," said Nicklaus, whose driver betrayed him.

Pate played thd last hote like a 16handicapper. He plunked his second shot into the sand, hit the green with a wedge, dubbed a chip and two-putted. "I kept hearing the applause on the nearby ninth hole and I just couldn't get my mind on what I was doing. said Pate, who is making a comeback from a shoulder injury that has sidelined him most of the year. "I'm really disappointed because I played well until the last hole," Pate

Tommy Bolt, the 59-year-old who won here in 1958 and was given a special exemption, shot a creditable 75. Sam Snead, 64, who has captured more titles than any golfer but always let the Open escape his grip, fired a

The usually fiery tempered Weiskopf made one of the classiest comebacks of the day. He went double bogey-par-triple bogey then rallied

He added: "I love my position ... but it's going to be a long hard week." And the hardest part, obviously, is the 449 yards at the end of each and

Redman injured; Hall nixes Laguna

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

It was a beginning that almost turned into a tragic end for race driver Brian Redman.

If everything had gone according to plan last weekend, Redman would have spent a pleasant Sunday afternoon in the winner's circle of the track in St. Jovits, Quebec, after driving Jim Hall and the Midlandbased Chaparral race team's Lola to victory on the first stop in the revived 1977 Can-Am Challenge Series. But Redman never made it to the winner's circle. He never even made it to the

The Englander, who helped Hall and Chaparral dominate Formula-5000 road racing the past four years, turned the Lola over during a practice run two days before the race, and has been in a Quebec hospital ever since with a fractured vertebrae in his neck, among other injuries.

now," Hall admitted Thursday. "It was a damn serious accident though. He's got some severe injuries, but I think he's gonna come out of it all right. He's not out of the woods yet, but the major things that could have happened to him did not. This is the fifth accident that's occurred at that spot on the St. Jovits track," Hall said. "There's no real accurate explanation of what really happened though. The car just flew on Brian and it came down upside

REDMAN IS expected to remain hospitalized from two to four weeks. but doctors say the healing process for the fractured bone in his neck may take up to a year.

But as Hall explains, "Brian has been seriously injured before, and he's bounced right back. He may bounce back a lot quicker than anybody thinks he will. He's a very determined guy.

He's proven that before. Hall related a story that Brian's wife told him not very long ago concerning the last accident the driver had. "They were doing skin grafts on his face, and in between going down for the grafts, he was in his hospital room doing push then wait a week to see if it takes, and then do another one. But Brian had them doing them every other day and the ones that didn't take, they redid three or four days later. He was out of there in less than a month.

MIRACLE RECOVERY or not, Laguna, the next stop on the Can-Am circuit is just a week away, and Hall is left without a driver and, as you might have guessed, without a car. The Lola that Redman turned over at St. Jovits has gone on to greener

"We could make it out there (to Laguna) with A car," he explained. "But it wouldn't be a good one, and then we'd have to go right back to Watkins Glen two weeks later, and we still wouldn't have a chance to catch up. So, I've already made the decision to skip Laguna and have a good car ready for Watkins Glen (on July 10)."

THE SPONSORS of the Can-Am Challenge Series, which is cosanctioned by the Canadian Automobile Sport Clubs and the Sports Car Club of America were not terribly pleased with the first race on the tour, which was won by Tom Klausier on a wet track in his Schkee DB-1. But Hall, overlooking his personal disappointment in the opener and his concern for Redman, saw a silver lining in the cloud.

"I think everybody was a little disappointed in the turnout (of drivers)," the Midlander admitted. "But I can't be that negative about it myself. The decision was taken so late to change to the Can-Am format.

"And really, the cars were not available until very late. The only one that really was available was the Lola, and the bodies to those weren't ready until way late. We got the first one and we only had it about eight weeks before the race. One guy was up there with a car he had gotten only 10 days before the event. I think that's pretty amazing in itself.

"No, I wasn't very disappointed. To make a decision that late - to make a change that drastic will take a little time for people to adjust."

And as Hall has proven ever since

'Super Mex,' Lee Trevino enjoys a hearty laugh as he joked his way around the Southern Hills Country Club prior to first round action in the U.S. Open Thursday. Trevino wasn't as happy after the round however. He shot a 74 and is five strokes off the leader pace. (AP Laserphoto)

Pagel lifts Cubs to another win

AMARILLO-Killer Karl Pagel struck again here Thursday night with two 400-foot plus homers to lead the Midland Cubs to a 4-3 victory over the Amarillo Gold Sox and to within 2 games of Texas League West Division leading El Paso.

Pagel upped his season's homer production to 20 with 72 RBIS with not even half of the season completed. Pagel also had a single to go along with his two homers to raise his batting average to .372.

Pagel and Pepper produced back-toback singles.

Amarillo tied the score in the third inning when Bobby Mitchell had a bunt single, stole second and scored on a base hit by Kurt Wittmayer.

Amarillo tried to get back in the game in the eighth with a two-run rally as Wittmayer scored on a bases loaded grounder by Broderick Perkins and Billy Hallstrom scored from third on a Cubs error. Darrell Turner went the distance for the Cubs to pick up his sixth win of the year and Juan Eichelberger toiled the distance for Amarillo in the losing cause. Turner gave up 10 hits, but he struck out five and walked none. Eichelberger, who fell to 6-4 on the year, pitched well, but was hurt by the three Midland homers. The Cubs meet Amarillo tonight in a twinbill and in single games Saturday and Sunday before moving to El Paso in an important series with the race. Jeff Albert and Mark Covert are scheduled to pitch tonight against the

House-cleaning over for Mets

By The Associated Press

"Tonight's game was like a breather for us," New York Mets Manager Joe Torre said Thursday. And it was no wonder.

'Last night (Wednesday), the guys were unsettled, it being June 15th and the trading deadline." added Torre, whose team dealt away star pitcher Tom Seaver, slugger Dave Kingman and infielder Mike Phillips in a major house-cleaning Wednesday. "There was a nervous feeling on the bench tonight- but things couldn't have been worse than last night."

The results for the Mets were the same both nights. They defeated Houston 4-3 Thursday night after edging Atlanta 6-5 Wednesday night. The victories brought the last-place Mets within a half-game of fifthplace Montreal in the National League East. 3

HARRELSON WAS ejected for arguing a play at second base on which he was picked off.

The Mets rallied from a 3-1 deficit to win. Starter Nino Espinosa, 4-4. doubled in a run and John Milner hit his seventh homer of the season, but the tying and winning runs scored on a two-run error by Houston shortstop Julio Gonzalez.

Giant 5, Cardinals 1 Jim Barr's seven-hitter, his ninth Giants "I'm not putting down the St. Louis hitters," said Barr, "but they tend to have more singles hitters than power hitters. They swing at more pitches. Power hitters wait for pitches they want

Padres 8, Cubs 6

San Diego ended the Cubs' winning streak behind some power hitting by Gene Tenace and George Hendrick Tenace hit his eighth homer of the season as he went 3-for-3 and Hendrick slugged his eighth homer.

Dodgers 3, Pirates 2, 11 innings Dusty Baker's sacrifice fly drove home Bill Russell with the winning run for the Dodgers. Russell had allowed the Pirates to tie the score in the ninth when he booted Bobby Tolan's two-out grounder.

The Dodgers carried a 2-0 lead into the ninth on the strength of Reggie Smith's two-run homer, his 15th of the season.

Doug Rau had a seven-hitter through eight innings before surrendering a double to Bill Robinson and a run-scoring single to Jim Fregosi. Stan Wall and Charlie Hough followed Rau to the mound, with Hough, 4-4, getting the victory.

Bird' an unpredictable character

By The Associated Press

Watch Mark Fidrych, the Detroit Tigers' eccentric righthander, pitch long enough, listen to him speak long enough, and you'll learn to expect the

Backed by Ron LeFlore's two home runs, he collected his fourth complete game in five starts since returning to duty after spring knee surgery. He had the Tiger Stadium crowd of 26,000 chanting, "We want Bird! We want Bird!" after the game. Okay, that was no surprise. That type of thing went on throughout the 1976 season, when Fidrych was named AmericanLeague Rookie of the Year. The surprises started after the game. He trotted over to the Toronto dugout for a radio interview and found out "they wanted Ronnie (LeFlore). I said, 'Okay. See you later." The next surprise came when he said, "I dedicate this game to Vern Ruhle," referring to a pitcher the Tigers hours earlier had optioned to Evansville of the American Associa-

The reason? "He taught me how not to get strikeouts," explained "The Bird" after beating the Blue Jays in the Audubon Society Classic. Not to get strikeouts? We told you never to be surprised. Fidrych's aura of mystery appears to be contagious. Consider the case of LeFlore, whose birthday made him 25 years old going on 29. "If I could have days like this on my birthday all the time. I'd want one every day," said LeFlore after hitting home runs in the third and fifth innings, giving Fidrych all the scoring he needed Asked his age, the outfielder said. "25." then broke into a grin which cast doubt on the number's authenticity. Some contend he is four years

At any rate, he collected two of Detroit's five hits off Toronto's Jerry Garvin, 7-4. One of the others was a two-run homer by Steve Kemp in the Twins 7, Angels 6 One thing is certain when Nolan Ryan pitches: that the strikeouts will come in bunches for the veteran righthander. He struck out 14 Minnesota Twins but contributed to his undoing with a throwing error, a balk, two wild pitches and a costly walk. He fanned Lyman Bostock in the eighth inning for the 2,250th strikeout of his career, reaching fourth place on the all-time strikeout list. But he walked Butch Wynegar in the bottom of the ninth with the score tied and Wynegar later scored the winning run on Rob Wilfong's single.

Denny signs with Midland College

Mike Denny, a 6-6 postman for the 29-6 Midland Lee Rebels who finished second in the District 5-4A basketball race last season, has signed a letter of intent to play for Midland College.

The 185-pounder played one and a half years for Lee after transferring from Fort Worth during his sophomore year. As a senior, Denny averaged 16 points per game with a single game high of 25.

He also played baseball in his junior year and will be an architectural major at MC.

"We think Mike is a very versatile player, able to handle the post, forward and even guard positions," said Midland College basketball coach Jerry Stone "We are particularly pleased to get a player from Midland Lee, coming from a good program under Coach Paul Steuckler.

'Mike has good offensive traits and we will be working this year to improve his strength and defensive abilities. Mike is still growing and could be one of the outstanding players around before he leaves Midland College.

Denny joins Cullen Mayfield, 5-9 guard from Dallas South Oak Cliff, , and Kelly Newsom, 6-1, guard from Richardson, as MC signees for 1977-

Blalock to give new clubs a try

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) - Jane Blalock battled superstition today in the opening round of the Ladies Professional Golf Tournament at Harbor Trees Golf Club.

"I'm going to play with a new set of irons," the 31-yearold Miss Blalock said Thursday after completing her final practice round on the 6,044-yard par-72 course.

"I haven't taken the time to use new irons, partially because I'm very superstitious and also because I've had success with my old ones," she said. "Since I have a contract with the manufacturer, I decided to give the new ones a try

"They seemed just like my old ones, the shaft was the same, so anything different about them will be in my head," said Miss Blalock, who started the 54-hole tournament as the fifthleading money winner on this year's

Miss Blalock has won twice in 1977 with the old irons, raising her career victory total to 18. And she was considered one of the top contenders for the $7,500 first prize that will be awarded Sunday at the end of the $50,000 tourney. "The course is just super and I like it." she said. "I was thinking of taking a couple of weeks off because I was very tired, but I heard the course was one I would enjoy "Usually when I like a course, I play well on it," she continued. "The

angulation. You have to be a very good reader of greens here and that's one of the things I usually do well. Most of the top golfers on the tour were entered in the first of two successive tournaments to be held in Indiana. Next week, the women pros will participate in the Hoosier Classic at Plymouth, ebout two hours away. "It's kind of rare for us and kind of nice," said Miss Blalock. "The short trip beats getting on an airplane. Next year, the U.S. Open will be in

Arnie's charisma still captivates golf galleries

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - At age 47 and wearing the scars of 24 U.S. Opens, Arnold Palmer can still send electrical sparks flying in a golf gallery.

"Excuse me, excuse me," a silverhaired, grandmotherly woman said, shoving her way to the edge of the 18th green. "I want to see Arnold Palmer.

The broad-shouldered man they once called "The Charger" was hunched, characteristically knock-kneed, over a 15- foot putt. He gave the ball a gentle nudge. It rolled resolutely toward the cup, spun around the high side, appeared to drop and then hung precariously on the lip.

What started out as a wild, ecstatic cheer turned into a thunderous moan. "They thought I had dropped it—so did I," Palmer said afterward, talking about his even par 70-the near

77th Championship. "It's amazing," an older man in the gallery commented. "There is something about a Palmer cheer that distinguishes it from all other cheers. It's just as if the crowd is holding its breath while Arnie is putting, then lets it all out when the ball goes

ASKED ABOUT it afterward, Palmer, his thinning hair bleached by hours under the sun, his strong face still boyishly impish, remarked:

"The complete silence-I've noticed it just before I shoot. It weighs on me. I can feel them pulling for me to make it. It charges me up. I like it." Palmer remains a phenomenon in the mad world of sports. His is a rare, intangible and inexplicable quality reserved for precious few. The modern word for it is "charisma." In the Roaring Twenties-in Clara

You either have "It," or you don't.

Bow's day they called it "It."

Greatness isn't the gauge. Palmer has it, Jack Nicklaus doesn't. Muhammad Ali has it, but not George Foreman. Joe Namath has it. Fran Tarkenton and Roger Staubach don't. It radiated around Joe DiMaggio but not Ted Williams, a superior hitter. Robert Redford has it, but not Rock Hudson.

Jack Dempsey had it, Gene Tunney didn't. Judy Garland had it, a thousand better singers and actresses could never capture it. Babe Ruth, with his beer barrel belly, pipestem legs and reputation for gluttony, captivated the baseball world but the daring, talented Ty Cobb, maybe the best of alltime-people kept pulling for him to break a leg sliding into second

THERE IS a sexual magnetism attached to the quality. Men admire Arnold Palmer, just as they do Nicklaus, but women adore him. They gush and get downright slobbery every time he wrinkles his nose, jerks at a glove or stope to watch the flight of an airplane overhead.

If the question, "Whom would you like to see win the Open?" were put to the thousands of spectators here or to the millions watching on TV, the answer almost certainly would be overwhelming:

"Palmer."

This is no reflection on Nicklaus, maybe the greatest golfer who ever lived and one of the nicest. It should not offend such rising young stars as Tom Watson, Johnny Miller or Jerry Pate. It's just that Palmer has become a national folk hero and everybody's sentimental favorite.

It's not hard to understand. Arnie is a creation of the television age. He emerged with his come-from-behind theatrics and boyish charm just at the time golf was getting a foothold in our

Have the Reds insured a dynasty?

By The Associated Press

For New York Mets baseball fans, June 15, 1977 may go down in history as a day of infamy. For Cincinnati Reds followers, that date may be recorded as the day the team insured

While New Yorkers reacted to the Mets' trading of Tom Seaver to the Reds with outcries of "robbery" and threats to stop supporting the National League East's last-place team. Cincinnatians rejoiced at the prospect of having one of the best pitchers in baseball on their staff.

"This gives us the premier pitcher in baseball," Reds Manager Sparky Anderson said after his club sent pitcher Pat Zachry, the co-Rookie of the Year in 1976, infielder Doug Flynn and minor league outfielders Dan Norman and Steve Henderson to New York for the 32-year-old Seaver: "The Reds will show people how great he is. When he's playing on a defensive club like ours, some of those 'sneakers' won't be getting through the infield. He'll have some people behind him who can really move.

champion Reds trailed the Los Angeles Dodgers by seven games in the National League West when the deal was made. Many observers felt the acquisition of Seaver would carry the Reds past Los Angeles and on to a third straight NL West pennant and the world championship.

"Will the Seaver trade help the Reds catch us?" said the Dodgers Don Sutton. "Well, almost.

Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley had a different opinion and he compared the Seaver transaction to his attempted sale of Vida Blue to the New York Yankees last year. He also took a swipe at baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn for approving

"The addition of a three-time Cy Young Award winner to the heavyhitting Cincinnati lineup is obviously far more devastating to competitive balance than the Blue assignment,' said Finley. "The difference between Kuhn's reaction to the two assignments clearly shows his irrationality. lack of fitness for the office and his continue to be. The import of the Seaver trade, and the reactions to it, ogershadowed a slew of other major league transactions just before the trading

The Reds were the busiest traders, completing a total of five deals. In addition to the Seaver trade, the Reds sent unsigned, unhappy relief pitcher Rawly Eastwick to St. Louis for lefthander Doug Capilla; dealt Gary Nolan to California for minor league infielder Craig Hendrickson and a player to be named later; purchased the contract of infielder Rick Auerbach from Texas, and traded hurler Mike Caldwell to Milwaukee for a pair of minor leaguers.

Aside from Seaver, some other well-known players changed addresses

They included: -Outfielder Bake McBride, the NL's 1974 Rookie of the Year, who was sent from St. Louis to Philadelphia for pitcher Tom Underwood and two minor leaguers.

-Slugger Dave Kingman, who the Mets peddled to San Diego for infielder Bobby Valentine and pitcher Paul Siebert. -Pitcher Ken Brett, who went from the Chicago White Sox to the Angels for pitchers Don Kirkwood and John Verhoeven, a minor leaguer and cash.

-Pitcher Dock Ellis, who Finley -Third baseman Jim Fregosi, who went from the Rangers to Pittsburgh for Ed Kirkpatrick.

In other deals, the Phillies acquired catcher Barry Foote and pitcher Dan Warthen from Montreal for pitcher Wayne Twitchell and catcher Tim Blackwell; infielder Mike Phillips was traded by the Mets to St. Louis for outfielder Joel Youngblood; pitcher Steve Hargan went from Oakland to Atlanta for a player to be named later, while the A's also obtained outfielder Willie Crawford from Houston, and hard-hitting Cliff Johnson became a member of the New York Yankees in exchange for a pair of minor leaguers.

Seaver and Eastwick had vastly different reactions to their being Seaver could not keep his com-posure when he met with the New York press Thursday, while the star pitcher cleaned out his locker at Shea Stadium. He broke down and sobbed at the thought of leaving New York.

"If I can retain enough composure to talk for about 60 seconds, I'll have it made," Seaver said. Then he attempted to talk about the fans and his teammates, but again was overcome Eastwick, meanwhile, had nothing but bitterness for the Reds' front office, although he did have kind words for the Cincinnati players.

"They gave me away and I ex-pected them to." Eastwick said of the Reds' management with whom he had feuded all season. "I hope these guys go to the playoffs and win three in a row. But I don't hope that for the front office. I hope it for the players.

Union taking ABC to court over strike

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - A federal court began consideration today of a union contention that plans by the American Broadcasting Co. to use locally-employed technicians to televise the U.S. Open are in violation of Oklahoma state law.

The union, the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians (NABET), filed the suit Wednesday in Oklahoma district court, contending ABC was importing strike breakers in violation of state law. The state court transferred the suit to federal court

In a statement issued Thursday, ABC said: "We are reliably informed by counsel here, a prominent Tulsa attorney, that the union's attempt to subvert and interfere with the ABC telecast is completely without merit and based upon a gross misinterpretation of Oklahoma law.

Specifically, the union charged ABC with bringing in technicians from ABC affiliates out of the state of Oklahoma. The union contends-the technicians constitue strike breakers. But an ABC spokesman said Oklahoma law is very specific on what constitues strike breaker. The law forbids the use of who are basically professional strike breakers, and the use of workers from outside the strike industry, the spokesman said.

ABC maintained the workers from its affiliates are not professional strike breakers, and are from within the broadcast industry.

ABC publicist Bill Gennerich said the firm has about 300 workers at the Open, 30 cameras, almost 14 miles of cable and nine commentators.

The firm had said Wednesday when the suit was filed in state court that the workers from out of state were not brought in just because of the strike

Olympic Games turn nice profit

PRAGUE (AP) - Who said the Olympic Games were too expensive? Montreal, last year's host city, proved that given existing stadiums and facilities the Games can be run at a handsome profit.

A final report from Montreal to the 79th session of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) showed that the organizing committee had an excess of revenue over costs of $126.

The U.S. National Olympic Committee has still to confirm Los Angeles as a candidate. Bids for 1984 have to be made to the IOC by Oct. 31 this year.

The Montreal report showed that the organizing committee (COJO) had operating expenses of $140 million, capital costs of $47 million and a loan for the village of $76 million, a total of $263 million. Its estimated consolidated revenues were $380 million.

NEW YORK - It could be argued that other trades the Mets made came about for baseball reasons whether they eventually improved the team or not. Trading Tom Seaver in the biggest of all Mets trades was made over personalities. It's likely that the bitter aftermath will be felt for some time.

Seaver and M. Donald Grant, the chairman of the board of directors, clashed repeatedly over the last two years and almost continuously in recent months over the direction management was taking. Grant made it clear that unless Seaver stopped his public criticism of management and made some kind of peace, management would have no alternative to

But Seaver said he could make no peace as long as management - as embodied by Grant - continued what Seaver called its no-win policy. So Wednesday night, hours before the trading deadline, Seaver was traded to Cincinnati. At age 32 and a three-time winner of the Cy Young Award, Seaver is near the top of the list of players traded in the prime of life.

"He is the greatest pitcher to baseball," Grant said from his New York apartment Wednesday night. "It is a sad day that I hoped would never happen. In the final analysis, we had no alternative.'

FOR THE "greatest pitcher in baseball" the Mets obtained pitcher Pat Zachry, reserve infielder Doug Flynn and Indianapolis outfielders Steve Henderson and Dan Norman. Zachry is to join the rotation. Henderson is to become the regular leftfielder, Flynn is to be a backup and Norman goes to Tidewater, a

At the same time the Mets disposed of their conflict with sometime slugger Dave Kingman, still unsigned and still unhappy. He went to San Diego for outfielder-infielder Bobby Valentine, a top prospect eight years ago, and pitcher Paul Siebert.

In a trade that apparently had little to do with personalities, the Mets sent their own reserve infielder, Mike Phillips, to St. Louis for outfielder Joel Youngblood, who also sat on the Cincinnati bench last

Room for all those players was cleared by farming third baseman Roy Staiger to Tidewater and by manager Joe Torre deciding that he would no longer be a player-manager.

While Grant and general manager Joe McDonald repeatedly threatened to trade Seaver, beginning at the time of the player lockout in the spring of 1976. they repeatedly said they wanted to avoid making the trade. In the end, it was Seaver who asked for the trade - even demanded it - to be gone from the Mets, as traumatic as the separation would be. He repeated often that by their unwillingness to compete in the market for free agents last winter, the Mets had withdrawn from competition on the field. He said that if the Mets could not offer him some hope of pitching for a contender, he wanted to be traded.

Tuesday night Seaver had his last thoughts that might have stopped the trade machinery and kept him with the Mets, which he really still wanted to be. From the hotel where Seaver and the team were staying in Atlanta, he had an extended phone conversation with McDonald, in which Seaver made several recommendations to management. If management were willing to go along with those suggestions, then Seaver said he would put aside his differences with Grant and be happy to remain a Met.

Grant had called the board of directors together

Wednesday afternoon to consider what Seaver had said when Seaver made another phone call. This time he said to forget what he had said the night before. "I want out." That sequence of events was confirmed in the regretful statement the club made Wednesday night in announcing the trade.

Just what Weaver's suggestions were that were being considered by the board and what changed Seaver's mind has not been openly disclosed. A source close to the matter says that Seaver did not demand renegotiation of his contract that is to run through next season. The essence of what Seaver wanted, the source said, was a commitment by the team to compete actively for the players who are to become available this winter.

THEN CAME the last straw. Seaver was lounging by the pool at the Marriott Hotel in Atlanta, as he often does, when he was told the contents of a newspaper column in New York. Seaver's mood darkened. "What do you get for punching a sportswriter?" Seaver asked. He made a phone call to New York to have the limits of his patience Wednesday, in addition to the oft-mentioned "greed," was a reference to former Met Nolan Ryan and the relationship Tom and Nancy Seaver have with Nolan and Ruth Ryan. "Nolan Ryan is getting more now than Seaver," the columnist wrote, "and that galls Tom because Nancy Seaver and Ruth Ryan are very friendly and Tom Seaver long has treated Nolan Ryan like a little brother.

The writer was Dick Young of the Daily News. Young and Seaver have been at opposite points of view since Seaver took his stand on the players movement in 1976. For almost a year and a half, Young has been critical of Seaver's activities off the field and his role in upsetting the established pattern of baseball. Seaver felt Young, whose son-in-law, Thornton Geary is listed as being in charge of the Mets' radio-TV network, was serving Grant in siding against Seaver and the players. Seaver felt that Young's influence intensified his conflict with management

WHETHER THAT was Young's opinion that would influence Grant or Grant's commentary to Young, Seaver protested. "I don't mind the garbage he writes about me," Seaver said, "But when he starts getting my family into it, that I can't take."

Then Seaver made his last phone call to management. He caught a plane home to New York while the game with the Braves was just beginning. He did not go to his home in Greenwich, Conn., but made himself unavailable for comment until his own news conference called for Thursday.

In the Western Division there were the rippling effects. The Dodgers, whose 13-game lead is down to seven over the Reds, did not meet the bidding for Seaver. According to the Dodgers, shortstop Bill Russell was the focus of the Mets' demands and the Dodgers declined. What the Mets got from the Reds was Zachry, co-winner of last year's rookie honors now struggling with a 3-7 record, an infielder in Flynn, who is regarded as a bright prospect in a dearth of infielders, and a fine hitting-prospect in Henderson. And, of course, Norman. He hit a two-run homer Wednesday night to lead Indianapolis over Omaha before being reassigned to Tidewater.

This has to be one of the biggest steals since the Babe Ruth trade," said Dodger second baseman Dave Lopes. " ... I don't think the Mets are as good a club as they were before.

Tanana rates big league 'foxes

By CHARLES MAHER
The Los Angeles Times

STRONG - Boston, New York, Texas, California, Chicago. MEDIUM - Minnesota.

SHAKY - Kansas City, Baltimore. FORGET IT - Milwaukee, Detroit, Cleveland, Oakland.

This chart is intended to supple ment conventional statistics. While the box score tells you how a player fared against the other team in a particular game, the fox score tells you how he's apt to fare with the other sex (known collectively as foxes, or feex) later in the evening.

TANANA WORKED up the chart during a pregame conversation in the Angel dugout. What led up to it was a question about how a famous bachelor pitcher deals with female opportunities on the road.

'There's no problem," Tanana said. "You either want them or you don't. If you don't - say you've got to pitch and you don't want female companionship — you go to your room and tell the operator, 'Ma'am, I don't want any calls.' Or you can go the other way. Simple.

How about the quality of feex? Is the talent evenly distributed across the country or are there outstanding franchise areas?

Well, there really are," Tanana said. "Like the Boston area. And lately I've been having a very good time in New York. And then of course there's Texas. Texas ladies are really - well, I see a lot more pretty women in Texas than a lot of other places. And you can't beat it here, out West." "The middle of the country is a little weak?" "No." Tanana said. "When you're talking the middle of the country you're talking Chicago, and you don't want to exclude Chicago. Kansas City? Shaky. And then of course there's Cleveland and Detroit. Tough. Hard to downgrade Detroit because I've got a lot of friends there, but that's the word I get.

"Those would be the weakest franchises - Cleveland and Detroit?"

"I'll tell you what," Tanana said. "Here's your weak ones. You got Oakland, Detroit and Cleveland. I'm talking from my experience now. Make that Oakland, Cleveland, Detroit and Kansas City, although I have seen quite a few good-looking ladies in Kansas City. But as far as my luck has gone, K.C. is a little shaky. Baltimore is in that class. Shaky. "And the others?"

"NOW WE get to what I would call the first division," Tanana said. "You got Boston, New York, Texas, California. I'll put Minnesota in a middle division. Milwaukee in a lower division." (The two expansion cities Seattle and Toronto, are unranked for want of sufficient test data.)

"Is the difference largely a matter of style," Tanana was asked, "or do women really look different in different places?

"No. A beautiful woman is just a beautiful woman."

"Clothes don't figure prominently in the ratings, then?"

percentage of beautiful women wouldn't vary much from town to

"OH, DON'T get me wrong," Tanana said. "I'm sure they all have them. But the only way some of these areas can improve in my eyes is for me to run into one of them

"So you may have missed some of the best and you're not really rapping any towns?"

'Oh, no. I'm just talking about the kinds of times I've had in different places. I'm not putting the rap on any of them

All this may make it sound as if Tanana is in hotter pursuit of a good time than a good season. But, as suggested by his record (10-3), he has not entirely thrown over business for pleasure.

"I take the game very seriously." he said. "It's something I want to ex-

Accordingly, he has a regimen. He watches his hours, at least when a pitching turn is coming up. And between starts, he said, he'll go to the park early to get in extra running.

Earlier in his career, he admitted, he may have treated the old bod less deferentially. "I think I might have what do they say? - burned the can-

This year the sounds were muffled. no fury was evident and the greatest significance in the developments was their lack of significance.

"I'd like to report that we had some earth-shattering developments at our meetings today, but I just can't say that," NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien told a news conference Thursday, the final day of the NBA Board of Governors meetings which were cut short by one day because of the smooth sailing.

The only potential trouble facing the governors lay in the shaky financial status of the four teams which joined the NBA from the ABA a year ago. The problems facing the Indiana Pacers, for one, were severe enough to foster talk of moving that franchise. But on the first day of the meetings, the NBA governors adopted a two-point program designed to ease the new teams' financial burdens.

The league agreed to defer until June, 1980, the deadline for payment assets in the event of default evied against any player who hangs onto the rim of a basket during pregame warmups.

The changes made by the Competitions Committee included reducing the roster of each team from 12 to 11 and adding a two-man taxi squad (all of which is pending the approval of the NBA Players Association); holding the draft in New York and opening it to the public. as the National Football League does; using a drawing to break ties in the drafting order; requiring the 24second clocks to be located above the backboards, and reducing the number of players on the All-Star ballot from five per team to four to encourage

LONDON (AP) - Who, actually, is Hank Pfister?

British tennis fans, faced with a name they did not recognize, let alone pronouce, were wondering just that at London's Queen's Club Thursday. They soon will know all about him if he continues making the sort of progress he has in a $100,000 international tournament at the club.

Pfister already has beaten Stan Smith. Ilie Nastase and Roscoe Tanner—a trio of experienced Wimbledon seeds-in the tournament.

led all scorers with 31 points and six rebounds. The Yugoslavs, who defeated the U.S. team earlier in Europe, played without seven Olympic Silver Medal winners.

The Yugoslavs, playing a patterned offense and man-for-man defense, led most of the game and were on top 51-48 at halftime.

The United States, led by Dexter Reed, a guard from Memphis State with 19 points, tied the game nine times in the second half before going ahead at the end. The U.S. team plays the Russian National Team June 18 at Louisville, Ky. The Yugoslavs will return home.

A critical story by a New York sports writer was the straw that broke the camel's back for Tom Seaver. His battle with the Mets' front office over salary and their "no win" attitude came to a head Wednesday, when the three-time Cy Young Award winner was shipped off to Cincinnati. (AP Laserphoto)

Movie issues return

NEW YORK (AP) - Movie issues returned to the spotlight in an otherwise flat stock market session today. The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks stood at 920.45, unchanged from Thursday's close. Gainers slightly out-numbered losers in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Twentieth-Century Fox climbed 1% to 24% and

11/8 to 15%, both in active trading. Fox's filh "Star Wars" broke box-office records when it opened last month, and Columbia's "The Deep" has drawn considerable advance notice. Otherwise, analysts said, traders seemed confused by the market's recent erratic behavior. Prices advanced strongly on Tuesday, turned weak on Wednesday and then swung upward again on Thursday in a rally that faded toward the close.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks edged up .03 to 54.59. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index added .25 to 116.58.

Volume on the Big Board came to 9.04 million shares over the first two hours, against 9.28 million in the comparable period Thur-

Tax Foundation queries spending by government

NEW YORK (AP) - The Tax Foundation, a publicly-supported, nonprofit, tax-exempt organization that hates to see money spent by the biggest nonprofit institution of all — government — has just published its biennial admonition.

"Government expenditures for 1977 are projected at $9,607 per U.S. household," writes chairman Willard Rockwell in the 1977 edition of Facts and Figures on Government Finance.

The chairman relates that the comparable figure for 1950 was only $1,615, but that comparison isn't quite cricket. In another part of the book you learn that the 1976 dollar stands for less than half the value of the 1950 dollar.

Nevertheless, the point is made. Government spending is rising like June temperatures. It takes close to half of household income.

Rockwell asks: Do we as citizens want our government units to spend that much? Do we know where all this spending is leading us? Is the money being raised in ways that best promote our national

The Tax Foundation's answers to these questions are not provided, but based on past declarations we might assume them to be negative. Government spending, it feels, is often mindless, directionless and opposed to free enterprise goals. But government spending also is misunderstood.

True or false: Each year the federal government takes an increasingly larger percentage of total tax receipts, and state and local governments less. The fact, as computed by the foundation, is that federal tax receipts in 1976 amounted to 63.7 per cent of the total, the lowest percentage since 58.1 was recorded in 1942. At the same time, the percentage taken by state governments rose to 21.7 per cent, highest since 1942.

Local governments took 15.1 per cent, a figure exceeded as recently as 1971, 1972 and 1973 Ah, but that's not the full story. In fact, the recent trend of states to acquire an almost imperceptibly larger part of the receipts is almost insignificant when matched against the big change And what is that? Let some figures tell: In 1902, the percentage distribution of tax receipts was federal 37.4, state 11.4, and local 51.3 As recently as 1940, local government received 31.6 per cent of receipts, but since then the numbers have seldom reached half that level. The low point was in 1944, at 9 per cent. Match that against 1932's 53.6 Since World War II, the federal percentage of receipts has ranged from nearly 80 per cent at the close of the war to the 1976 figure. falling by small amounts in an irregular pattern

Christie commented in a guest editorial in "The Insurance Record," a semi-monthly magazine publish-

Christie said policy holders cannot understand why their auto insurance is cancelled because of some underwriting edict in the New York home office of the company

"By the time these underwriting decisions are passed from the home office to the local office to the agent, the consumer is treated to the same odious buck-passing which has become the cliche identified with government bureaucrats," he said.

"And, the results are the same: outrage "The reason for the outrage is not only understandable, it is healthy. Because it means our citizens are not more willing to be brownbeat by insensitive and powerful institutions today than they were 200 years ago when they rebelled against the British Crown's

Move aimed at placating Quebec separatists

By KENNETH REICH The Los Angeles Times

OTTAWA - The Canadian government plans to move 15,000 of its employes from the stately buildings of Parliament Hill in Ontario across the river to the more prosaic city of Hull in Quebec, to assuage the separatist feelings of Quebec's French-speaking citizens.

The high-rise office buildings now going up in Hull symbolize the efforts of the federal government to keep

in the streets of New York, just two blocks from Radio City. (AP

It is a small step. Much more may have to be done, for separatist sentiment in Quebec has developed into the most/serious crisis since the Canadian Confederation was established 110

Quebec's provincial government has promised the roughly 5 million French Canadians of Quebec that it will seek to turn the province into an independent nation. A referendum is being planned, and the million or more residents of the province who treated with intolerance.

English-speaking Canadians are divided on the subject. Some believe that national unity can be preserved only by making further concessions to the French Canadians' cultural sensitivities and their desire for more political and economic autonomy.

Others resent the concessions already made, particularly a national policy of bilingualism, and argue that further concessions will only speed the nation's disintegration.

Apart from separatism, there are serious strains within Englishspeaking Canada.

Populous Ontario province, with more than a third of the nation's 23 million people, often seems to be seeking to maintain its economic supremacy at the expense of other provinces.

The Western provinces, particularly Alberta and British Columbia, chafe at their inability to get more capital from the East and at their relative lack of influence on economic and political decisions in Ottawa.

The economically depressed are not of French descent are being maritime provinces of the Eastern seaboard fear the isolation that an independent Quebec would cause, cutting them off geographically from the rest of Canada. Strains within the Canadian nation are not new, especially between the country's two major ethnic groups. who were brought together unwillingly by the English victory in the French and Indian War of 1754-63.

Thirty years before confederation, after a French Canadian rebellion in 1837, Britain's Lord Durham was sent to inquire into the causes of the unrest, and he wrote in his report:

"I found two nations (French and English) warring within the bosom of a single state. I found a struggle, not of principles but of races.

For a long time the conflict was subdued, the French only periodically asserting their nationalism. Quebec's French-language community, culturally isolated and under the domination of one of the world's most conservative Roman Catholic clergies, was unwilling or unable to prevent the English-language minori-

economic dominance.

Not until 1960, after the death of a reactionary provincial leader, the quasidictatorial Maurice Duplessis. and the sudden diminishing of church influence, did the French in Quebec begin to stir politically.

"Maitres Chez Nous (Masters In Our Own House)," was the motto of the province's new Liberal Party government of Jean Lesage in 1960. But the Liberals did not go far enough for some, and by 1964 there were serious stirrings of separatism among opponents of the Liberals.

In the 1966 provincial elections the separatists won 10 per cent of the vote. In 1970 they got 23 per cent. In 1973 they got 30 per cent. And last year, when they won a majority of the seats in the provincial Parliament, they got more than 40 per cent.

More than a million people of French descent live outside Quebec. in the nine other Canadian provinces, bringing the number of French in the country to 6 million, or about 27 per cent of the population. Even after several years of bilingualism as a policy, however, only an estimated 800,000 of the 17 million non-Frenchdescended Canadians speak any French.

In the federal government, however, French-speaking politicians nearly always have had great influence. The Liberal Party, which has ruled Canada for most of this century, traditionally has won a vast majority of Quebec's large number of seats in Parliament

Three of the party's most famous prime ministers — Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Louis St. Laurent and Pierre Elliott Trudeau - have been of French descent. Trudeau, the current prime minister, actually is threefourths French.

The policy of the Trudeau government is basically what it has been since its origins in 1968 — to preserve Canadian unity by understanding and accommodating legitimate French Canadian desires. Many English Canadians who might otherwise dislike this policy believe that under the present circumstances only a prime minister of French descent can head off the separatist movement.

Politicians sling mud and enjoy it in town

By JULES LOH

AP Special Correspondent

NEWINGTON, Conn. (AP) -Politicians are nothing but a bunch of mudslingers, right?

Last Sunday afternoon a gang of politicians gathered in the park. They brought their families and picnic lunches and also hauled a load of fine red dirt from beside the road and piled it in the shade of a big maple

They fetched buckets of water from the park pond and mixed it with the dirt. Their children helped, with obvious delight and anticipation. Soon it was mud. The kids squeezed it through their fingers and approved.

The politicians took up handfuls of the mud, stood back and let fly. They slung mud at one another, the children slung mud at the politicians, the politicians at the children. Everybody ran around slinging mud. "Dirty politics," said Paul Ucello.

Democrat. "Muddy but unbowed," said Bill

LaPorte, Republican. When it was over the politicians clasped each other's slimy hands, slapped each other's splattered backs, laughed at each other's grimy faces and headed for the keg.

"Did you enjoy it?" asked LaPorte, toweling off his wristwatch. "Meet Bunny Husmer. She's the nut over whose kitchen table this crazy idea was hatched. "I confess," Mrs. Husmer said, shaking mud out of her hair.

"We were sitting around trying to think up ways to get more people involved, to take an interest in the town. It was late, we were all tired, ready to go home, when suddenly we came up with the idea of a mudslinging contest. It was so silly we figured it might work.

The challenge was issued forthwith to the Democrats and accepted grandly, not only to a mud-slinging contest but also to a tug-of-war across the park pond.

At a time when the dirt of less literal mudslinging, and worse, has not yet worn off the American politician's image, there they were. the town's councilmen, school board members, zoning commissioners and all their families, out on a Sunday afternoon cooking hamburgers and playing in the mud

Ludicrous? It was a joy to behold. "In 15 years I've watched this town grow from 15,000 to about 28,000," said Councilman Ucello. "We not only grew fast, we grew apart. This is the sort of town event that can get us all together. I think it's a great idea even if it was the Republicans'

Republican LaPorte laughed "In a small town, your political opponents are also your neighbors. Politics has never been dirty in Newington," LaPorte said. "We go after each other on issues, but we work together. I'd like to see us work together and make this an annual

Dairy product purchases soaring

Agriculture Department/ experts predicted earlier this spring, government purchases of surplus dairy products are soaring because of higher federal milk price supports in

The purchases, which involve butter, cheese and nonfat dry milk, are bought by USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation under a law requiring surplus commodities to be "removed" from the market to support the price of milk.

The department said that in May the CCC contracted to buy 35.4 million pounds of butter, compared with no purchase for the same month last year; 13.3 million pounds of cheese, compared with 3.5 million a year ago; and 63.2 million pounds of nonfat dry milk, compared with 25.3 million in

The department, under orders from the White House, boosted the price support of manufacturing-grade milk to $9 per 100 pounds from $8.26 per hundredweight. With milk production rising, prices have declined and thus have triggered the purchases.

By the end of May, the CCC had

141.9 million pounds of butter stockpiled without commitments for use and more than 50.2 million pounds of cheese. A year ago, the corporation had no uncommitted inventories of butter and cheese.

The uncommitted inventory of nonfat dry milk was 479.7 million pounds as of May 31, up from 374.9 million a year ago.

Surplus products acquired by CCC can be donated to schools and other feeding programs and to overseas aid programs. Those also can be sold to the industry when market prices rise enough to justify it.

Department officials have estimated that purchases of butter, cheese and powdered milk under the price support program will total about 7.3 billion pounds of equivalent fluid milk at an estimated cost of $740 million during the 1976-77 market year, which will end next March 31. Last year the purchases were equivalent to 3.4 billion pounds of milk and cost about $311 million. In 1975-76. a period of relative short supply, the CCC bought the equivalent of 900 million pounds of milk for $196

peaks of a year or two ago, farmers have stepped up milk production. Output in calendar 1976 was 120.4 billion pounds, up from 115.3 billion in 1975, and was the most since 1965. Milk production is expected to rise another 2 to 3 per cent this year, mainly because of the "assurance of higher average farm milk prices,' according to the department.

In May, milk production totaled almost 11.3 billion pounds, up 1.7 per cent from the same month of last year and 4.8 per cent more than in May

Moreover, the average production per cow in May was a record of 1,029 pounds, up 23 pounds from May of last year and 63 pounds more than in May

Dr. Mary Walker of the National Rural Center in Austin, Tex., says that half the nation's maternal deaths occur among the 20 per cent of the women of childbearing age who live in Testifying before the Joint Economic subcommittee on economic growth Wednesday, Dr. Walker said infant mortality rates in certain rural areas are more than 70 per cent above the national average Medicare and Medicaid, she added, do not serve rural people as well as urban residents.

"Less than 30 per cent of Medicaid funds go to the non-metropolitan areas even though most of the poor live in those areas," she said

Discoveries completed in WT areas

Discoveries have been completed in Menard and Runnels areas, while an Irion field gained as extension.

Nordan Oil & Gas Corp. of Abilene finaled No. 1 Speck Estate, a Cross Cut gas strike in Menard County, for a calculated, absolute open flow of 7 million cubic feet of dry gas per day.

The potential was gauged through perforations at 1,698-1,714 feet, after the pay section had been acidized with 750 gallons and fractured with 6,000 gallons and 5,000 pounds of sand.

Top of the Cross Cut was picked at 1,698 feet, under kelly bushing elevation of 2,143 feet. Total depth of the well is 1,850 feet, where 41/2-inch casing was set, and the plugged-back depth is 1,810 feet.

It is 467 feet from south and 1,450 feet from west lines of section 120, R. R. Russell survey, abstract 1715, seven miles northeast of Menard townsite and 1/2 mile northeast of a recently completed Strawn gas strike, Fred G. Brown, No. 1 Bobby R. Sykes.

RUNNELS GAS STRIKE

Midstates Oil Co. of Abilene, No. 1-A Lena Clayton, Runnels Capps gas discovery, rated an absolute, open flow potential of 294,700 cubic feet of gas per day.

The well produces through perforations at 3,365-3,369 feet. Operator acidized the pay section with 1,250 gallons.

It has 4½-inch casing set at 3,540 feet, on total depth of 3,772 feet, and picked top of the Capps lime at 3,354 feet, under ground elevation of 1.731

Field designation of Clayton (Capps) gas has been proposed for the strike which spots 5,434 feet from north and 1,133 feet from east lines of G. G. Alford survey 234, eight miles east of Ballinger.

IRION EXTENDER

John H. Hill, Austin, has completed the fifth well and location west extension in the Arden, Southeast (Wolfcamp) field of Irion.

No. 4 Tullos, had a 24-hour flowing potential of 131 barrels of 42-gravity oil and 12 barrels of water, producing through a 16-64-inch choke and per forations at 6,337-6,369 feet. Gas-oil ratio measured 170-1.

The pay had been acidized with 3,500 gallons and fractured with 39,500 gallons and 40,000 pounds of sand. It is 4,755 feet from north and 500 feet from east lines of M. Pfister

Traverse

Traverse Corp., Wichita Falls, has completed No. 1 First National Bank of Fort Worth, et al, as a Strawn discovery in Garza County, 13 miles southeast of Post.

It had a 24-hour pumping potential of 62 barrels of 39-gravity oil, no water, with gas-oil ratio too small to Production was through perforations at 7,582-7,588 feet, after acidizing with 250 gallons Top of pay was picked at 7,410 feet.

'fix' upped some prices uranium matters as it was for us to The Washington Post undertake similar efforts with respect WASHINGTON - A top executive of oil and gas 30 or 40 years ago. Having a representative on the governing board of the world marketing organization would be helpful in achieving this objective." The cartel was organized in spring.

Gulf executive concedes of Gulf Oil Copr. conceded before a congressional inquiry Thursday what Gulf and other participants in an international uranium cartel have steadfastly denied before — that their secret price-fixing club for the world uranium market also raised prices for some U.S. consumers.

This admission has serious im-plications for Gulf, among others, undermining its persistent claim that the foreign cartel did not violate U.S. antitrust law because it had no effect on U.S. domestic prices for the uranium that fuels nuclear power reactors.

Under questioning by the House Commerce Oversight Subcommittee, S.A. Zagnoli, president of Gulf Mineral Resources and its Canadian uranium subsidiary, first agreed the cartel did raise overseas prices, then reluctantly he conceded:

"To the extent that U.S. utilities bought overseas, they probably paid higher prices.' Zagnoli quickly added the effect

'was insignificant.' "It may appear insignificant to you," snapped Rep. Albert Gore Jr. (D-Tenn.), "but it was not insignificant to those TVA customers whose price of electricity was going

The subcommittee chaired by Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif.) made public internal Gulf documents that also seemed to contradict Gulf's principal defense arguments. Gulf board chairman Jerry McAfee told the subcommittee that Gulf participated in the cartel only because it was "forced" to do so by the Canadian government

But some of the corporate memorandums display an obvious exuberance for the cartel activities that seems to contradict that defense. Gore suggested that Gulf was pleading like "a corporate Patty Hearst - you were forced to do this and only afterwards did you develop an enthusiasm for the task One legal memorandum written by corporate lawyer Roy D. Jackson in 1972 suggested that Gulf's role in the uranium cartel would have historic benefits for the energy company:

'It is at least as important for Gulf to become sophisticated and substantial participant in worldwide

Wolfcamp test finals

The Gomez field of Pecos County gained a 1/2-mile north extension to Wolfcamp gas production with the announcement by Getty Oil Co. of four-point tests for its No. 1 Hayter, 12 miles northwest of Fort Stockton.

It flowed on four-hour tests through perforations at 11,262-11,399 feet which had been acidized with 7,500 gallons, making the following gauges: on a 28-64-inch choke, 116,000 cubic feet daily; on an 18-64-inch choke. 79,000 cubic feet; on a 10-64-inch choke, 67,000 cubic feet, and on a 4-64inch choke, 49,000 cubic feet per day. It also produced a small amount of condensate and water on the fourpoint tests.

Location is 1,320 feet from north and east lines of section 14, block 48, T-9.

Extender potentials

Cleary Petroleum Corp. of Midland has completed No. 1-C New Mexico-Federal, an undesignated Morrow well, % mile southwest of the Hat Mesa field and mile mile southwest of the Salt Lake, South field, both producing gas from the Morrow.

The calculated, absolute open flow potential was for 8.408 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-liquid ratio measuring 38,830-1. The con-densate gravity is 46.3 degrees. It finaled through perforations at 13,668-14,027 feet, following treatment with 6,000 gallons of acid. It is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 4-21s-

32e, 25 miles west of Oil Center.

Eddy test shows oil

Hondo Drilling Co., Midland, No. 2 Alscott-Feral, ½ mile north of the Turkery Track, North (Morrow) field of Eddy County, N.M., recovered 1,350 feet of oil and 1,620 fset of water on a drillstem test in an unidentified

Tool was open 314 hours on a 1/2-inch choke, on the test taken from 9,508-9,620 feet. The sample chamber recovery was 4.3 cubic feet of gas, 500 cubic centimeters of oil and 500 cubic centimeters of water.

It is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 30-18s 29e. 18 miles southeast of Artesia.

1972, under the sponsorship of governments in Canada, Australia and South Africa and with tacit support from the French. The participation of Gulf through its Canadian subsidiary is under investigation by a federal grand jury for antitrust violations.

The price of "yellowcake." or raw uranium, subsequently jumped from $6 to $41 a pound, but there is a complex economic argument over how much of that dramatic price escalation can be blamed on the cartel or on other factors, such as the rising Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries oil prices or the sudden boom in demand for nuclear fuels that followed.

Early in 1974, when uranium prices started their steep climb, one Gulf marketing executive wrote the following report to a colleague:

"There's no question the international producers have jumped on baord the OPEC bandwagon.'

McAfee, who was president of a sister Gulf subsidiary in Canada during the three-year life of the cartel, said he was aware of the Ottawa government's pressures on uranium-mining companies to get together and arrange market quotas and prices. These pressures were partly in response to the U.S. embargo, which had closed the American market to foreign producers.

After Gulf originally refused to attend, McAfee said, "Greater pressures were then applied by the Canadian government... Push was turning to shove. The record shows that the Canadian government and uranium producers were of the opinion that Gulf was overly sensitive to the cartel and U.S. antitrust implications. Indeed we were. At no time did Gulf Minerals Canada Ltd. voluntarily seek to become a part of any producers' arrangement. It was compelled to do so.' The confidential and "specially confidential" documents from Gulf files that the House subcommittee subpoenaed offer conflicting evidence on that point. Moss said he will direct a request to the Canadian govern-memt, asking if it "forced" Gulf to take part.

Merger to be aired at meeting

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Water Development Board (WDB) members have called a special meeting for Monday to discuss merger of the WDB with the Water Rights Commission (WRC) and the Water Quality Board (WQB)

WRC Chairman Joe Carter and WQB Executive Director Hugh Yantis have been invited to the meeting, and both have indicated they or their representative will be there. Carter and Yantis were out of Austin Thursday and could not be reached for further comment.

Yantis is seen as the most likely possibility to head the consolidated water agency in September, apart from WDB Executive Director James

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has indicated he will sign the merger bill, passed by the 65th Legislature, unless there is something "technically wrong" with the measure.

At a recent press conference. Briscoe denied that he has delayed signing the bill in an attempt to influence the selection of Rose, one of his former aides, as head of the new

However, since the governor appoints the members of the WDB, which will choose the initial head of the new agency, it is expected that any recommendations made by his office would be followed.

Once bitterly hated by the Free World, von Braun became its top rocket expert after he and 129 other German rocket experts surrendered to the United States shortly before the end of World War II.

The man who once helped design the dreaded V-2 rocket for Adolf Hitler designed the U.S. Army's Jupiter Crocket that allowed his new country to recoup some of the prestige lost when Russia launched the first space satellite in 1957.

Von Braun told President Dwight D. Eisenhower well before the Russian Sputnik launching that his team had the capability of putting a satellite into orbit around the earth. But Eisenhower wanted to use a rocket developed for nonmilitary uses for the first effort to emphasize the peaceful uses of space and von Braun was turn-

Sputnik and the subsequent failure of the Vanguard rocket. America's much publicized first attempt to rocket a satellite into space, forced Eisenhower to turn to von Braun.

On Jan. 31, 1958, the Jupiter C lifted off, carrying a 30-pound satellite called Explorer into an elliptical orbit and giving the U.S. program its first

Von Braun also was instrumental in designing a longer-range Jupiter rocket, the Saturn 1 booster and the massive 36-story-tall Saturn 5 rocket that powered men beyond the earth's gravity and sent them to a soft landing on the lunar surface.

Von Braun came to the United States in September of 1945 under contract to the U.S. Army. He and his men spent five years at Ft. Bliss. Tex., working on the V2 rocket they had developed in Germany. They were transferred to the Army's Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala., in 1950 to develop the Redstone missite, the forerunner of the Jupiter

Abandon the book to help partner

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It's very comfortable to stick to the book: if anything then goes wrong, nobody can find fault with you. This is true enough in average games, but in a good game you are expected to do your own thinking instead of hiding behind a book

Attack at lounge reported

Bobby Eugene Johnson of 405 E Magnolia told police he was entering a lounge in the 200 block of North Lee Street when a man hit him in the face with a pistol

GUN TAKEN Someone took a .380 caliber pistol valued at $65 from a pickup belonging to Richard Holder of 4511 Parkdale Drive between June 8 and June 9. according to police. Holder told police he parked th pickup at a construction yard at 2210 Garden City Highway June 8, but he did not notice the gun missing until

was taken from Davis Auto Repair at 1401 E. Front St. Wednesday night or Thursday morning. Santos Ortiz, an employe of the business, told police entry was gained by breaking out a sliding glass door on the east side of the building. Nothing else was taken, police said.

BURGLARS HIT RESIDENCE

Someone entered the residence of Carl Bloodworth of 1606 Delmar Drive and took three coin banks containing an estimated $100, three rings valued at $200 and cassette tapes valued at $150 sometime between 4 and 5 p.m. Thursday

According to police, entry was gained by taking a screen off an eastside bedroom window, which was left open.

BIG SPRING-Plans for a swimming pool at Big Spring State Hospital have been announced by the Volun-teer Services Council at the hospital

Plans call for a shallow end to accommodate wheel chair patients and deeper water for patients who wish to use the pool for recreational purposes. The pool size will be 20 by 40 feet and it will be enclosed.

According to Jack Y. Smith. volunteer pool committee chairman. the council has provided the Tollett All-Faith Chapel and a gazebo-minipark for the hospital in the past. All projects are supported by public donations.

Cotton to talk to area Jaycees

Charles Cotton, Texas Jaycee President, will arrive in Midland at 9:30 a.m. Saturday to attend a business meeting of the local, area and state officers of Area 1-B of the Texas Jaycees.

Cotton is a past president of the Garland Jaycees. He is expected to participate in a golf tournament being hosted by the Stanton Jaycees at the Stanton Country Club. He will conclude his one-day visit with an appearance at a reception to be held in his honor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Howard, 4605 Brookdale.

drew two rounds of trumps, took the top diamonds and ruffed a diamond. Then he led a trump to dummy and threw two clubs on the good

Declarer eventually lost one club, but made his contract. His fine play at the first trick had paid big dividends. If South ruffed the first spade, West would win a diamond trick and would shift to clubs, whereupon East would defeat the contract.

BETTER CHOICE How can you blame West for his opening lead? He led his partner's suit, just as the book advises.

Still, West expects no other chance to lead. East cannot need a spade opening lead to get tricks in that suit; but he may need a lead in the unbid suit to get his tricks there.

In short, West should lead a club East takes two clubs, and South must eventually lose a diamond. It is usually wise to lead your partner's suit, but there are exceptions to all rules DAILY QUESTION As dealer, you hold: S-None: H-

ANSWER: Pass. The high-card strength is not quite enough for an opening bid of one heart, but the hand is too good for a shutout bid. Pass and show your strength by bidding later.

TMA offers guidelines

AUSTIN — The Texas Medical Association says the state health department licenses more than 700 youth camps in Texas. Church camps, day camps and similar facilities should be inspected by the state, but parents need to be aware of certain safety factors.

A few regulations to watch for are: Each youth camp must be under the direction of a qualified adult with at least two years experience working with children. All recreational activities must be supervised by a qualified adult.

- There must be one adult supervisor for each 10 children. At least two people, including one trained lifeguard, must be on duty when children are using a camp swimming pool

A physician, nurse or person with a Red Cross Advanced First Aid Certificate or its equivalent must be in camp at all times
