Schlesinger: gas rationing possibility

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's top energy adviser, James R. Schlesinger, said Friday the administration is considering gasoline rationing as one alternative to its unpopular proposal to raise the tax on gasoline to discourage consumption.

Schlesinger told reporters at an energy policy briefing that another possible alternative is shutting down gasoline stations on weekends or restricting motorists to gasoline purchases on odd-or-even-numbered reporters throughout the rest of the briefing to attribute remarks only to unidentified "White House energy officials.

Schlesinger, who was accompanied by members of his staff, limited

The officials said the Carter administration was pleased with the progress of the President's proposed energy policies through Congress. They said most of Carter's proposals. although sometimes modified, were going forward with the major exception of the proposed standby

Carter had asked authorization to impose a gasoline tax increasing up to a maximum of 50 cents per gallon unless the nation reduced its gasoline

Sadat was quoted in an interview to be published today in the magazine Usbu el Arabia, an independent Beirut weekly. Sadat said he discussed the issues with President Carter last April in Washington. "I told him simply that if we resurrected Jesus Christ and Pro Mohammed together, they would not be able to persuade Moslem or Christian Arabs to open the borders with Israel after 29 years of hatred, four wars, rivers of blood and massacres," Sadat said.

"I told President Carter that the creation of a Palestinian state is imperative, because this is the backbone of peace," he said. "We all, as Arabs, struggle for the Palestinian cause, rather than for the Sinai or the Golan

Sadat's definition of peace would not stop Israel from starting talks because "anything can be put on the table," an Israeli official said in

But Israeli officials said Israel would be less forthcoming in bargaining for something less than full peace, which Israelis contend should encompass lifting of trade barriers, tourism, cooperation in regional projects and an exchange of diplomats.

President Carter has said he sup ports a Palestinian homeland. Sadat has suggested it be made from the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the River Jordan and the Gaza Strip and linked with King Hussein's Jordan.

New Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin has said he would not accept "under any circumstances" a Palestinian state in the Gaza Strip or in the Biblical lands of Samaria and Judea, the West Bank area which Israeli has occupied since 1967.

Sadat was quoted in the interview as saying "Begin or no Begin, it is the United States that counts. America is 100 per cent responsible for Israel's existence and survival," he said. "So America also is 100 per cent responsible for peace in the Mideast. We reject the concept that the U.S. can only be a catalyst.

Sadat said he and Carter agreed a working party under U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who plans a Mideast tour in August, "be set up to reconvene the Arab-Israeli Geneva peace conference before the end of the year." He said the group would make the necessary preparations.

The leader of 38 million Egyptians said he possesses weapons capable of striking into "the farthest depths of Israel." He said if Israel used nuclear weapons against Egypt the results would be much more devastating to Israel, which has a population of only three million.

Sadat also proposed a summit of Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Syria, in Beirut with Lebanese President Elias Sarkis and Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat, to settle the Lebanese crisis "once and for all."

WASHINGTON — By a 1-vote margin, 42 to 42, the Senate after an extraordinary closed-door session Friday, defeated an effort by Sen. Mark O. Hatfield (R-Ore.) to prohibit funds in the fiscal 1978 public works money bill from being used to produce a new generation of neutron enhanced radiation weapons.

By the same vote, it approved language proposed by Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.) to freeze those funds until President Carter decides he wants to go ahead with production and the Congress is sent an armscontrol impact statement on the new weapons outlining what effect, if any, they would have on arms negotiations with the Soviet Union Left pending until after the July recess were other amendments that would give Congress the right to veto a Carter production decision.

For almost six hours Friday, the Senate debated whether to proceed with the first generation of tactical nuclear weapons that is specifically designed to kill people primarily through radiation rather than to destroy enemy installations and bomber force," the secretary said. Asked if the United States would accept curbs on the cruise missile, Brown said, "I did not say that we would not accept any constraints, I said that the constraints we accept must not harm our strategic capability.

He said he hopes to include the cruise in the SALT agreement. On Thursday, President Carter announced his decision to stop production of the B1, which carried a price tag of $101.7 million per plane. Brown did not pinpoint the precise savings from scrapping the B1 but said "whether its $5 billion or $10 billion depends on what else we do.' The Pentagon already has spen some of the money be put toward development of the gruise missile, but the amount will be substantially less than $1.5 billion, Brown said.

Congressional supporters of the B1 have pledged to fight for the plane, but House and Senate leaders are backing Carter's position. The President predicts Congress will go along with his stand.

Brown said cruise missiles will cost upwards of $750,000 apiece and the cost of adapting B52s to carry the weapons will be about $700,000 per plane. The cost of other air launchers for the weapon, such as jumbo jets, will be between $10 million to $50 million, much less than the B1. The air-launched cruise missile has a range of up to 1,500 miles, insuring that it can strike important Soviet targets, Brown said.

"I'm convinced we could, with the B1, penetrate Soviet defenses but I'm even more convinced we can do so with the cruise missile," he said.

Deployment of a bomber-launched cruise missile is scheduled in three years, but could occur sooner with the new emphasis, Brown said.

The secretary said that the cruise missile offers "more certainty of high effectiveness" than other available

"Each such aircraft can launch many missiles with great accuracy at different targets in the Soviet Union from a distance of many hundreds of miles," Brown said "To the extent B1s would have provided additional warheadcarrying capacity to the force that can come instead from new cruise missile launchers in addition to the B52s," he said.

Youth ordered tried as adult in rape case

After a lengthy hearing Friday, Midland County Juvenile Judge Barbara Culver ordered 16-year-old Glenn Bryce Billingsley, son of John B. Billingsley Jr. of 905 Country Club, to stand trial in district court for the alleged rape of a woman in her north Midland home June 14.

In ordering the case transferred to district court, Judge Culver ruled that the youth would be certified to be tried as an adult. After the hearing, charges of aggravated rape were filed against the youth before Justice of the Peace

John Biggs. The youth was freed on $15,000 bond. Billingsley was taken into custody about 10 p.m. June 14 after a woman was reported raped in her home earlier that afternoon. The youth was released to the custody of his parents and lawyer pending a detention

After being ordered detained in Midland County jai! June 24, Billingsley filed a petition of habaes corpus in federal district court saying that he was being "unlawfully and unjustly detained and imprisoned." Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith and Texas Attorney General John Hill were named defendants in the suit.

U.S. District Judge D. W. Suttle Thursday recessed a hearing on the petition until 9 a.m. today. In postponing the hearing. Suttle said that by today, the attorneys might be able to resolve the case, or the issues might resolve themselves.

Suttle said he doesn't know why the attorneys for the youth and the attorneys for the county and state attorney general weren't able to resolve the issues. He said if the proceedings had initiated in his court. guarantee you I'd have worked it

Vance calls for end to African system

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance called on South Africa Friday to dismantle its apartheid system or face inevitable deterioration of its relations with the United States.

In the first comprehensive statement of the Carter administration's policies toward Africa, Vance declared, "We cannot defend a government that is based on a system of racial domination and remain true to ourselves."

Vance proposed no timetable or detailed plan for South Africa to follow, and said its form of government is a matter for that country to decide. But he said progress must be made soon toward "an end to racial discrimination and the establishment of a new course toward full political participation by all South Africans" if peaceful change in that country is ever to be possible.

The forum for Vance's address in St. Louis - the annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People suggested an effort by the administration to align its Africa policies with the views of U.S. blacks and to gain their active support. His speech won frequent applause, most notably and enthusiastically when he praised United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young.

As outlined by Vance, the Carter policies depart in two fundamental respects from those of former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger

Ike's 'lost letters' found

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - John Hopkins University in Baltimore has found an exchange of postwar correspondence between Gens. Dwight D. Eisenhower and George C. Marshall that could be the celebrated "lost letters" sup-posedly bearing on the future of Eisenhower, his wife, Mamie, and Lt. Kay Summersby, Eisenhower's wartime driver and secretary.

If they are the lost letters, they are totally different from the correspondence as described by the late Harry S Truman and support the Eisenhower family's contention that the supreme allied commander never intended to divorce Mamie and marry Lt. Summersby, as Truman had said.

On June 4, 1945, nearly a month after V-E Day, according to the correspondence, discovered at Johns Hopkins where Eisenhower's papers are deposited, Eisenhower wrote Marshall requesting that he be permitted to bring Mrs. Eisenhower to Europe to live with him, even if the privilege were denied other Americans in uniform overseas. The long separation resulting from the war, he told Marshall, was causing serious personal problems for himself and his wife.

In a sympathetic reply dated June 8, 1945, Marshall told Eisenhower that he could not assent to extending to a select group in the army the privilege of bringing wives to Europe. Eisenhower then wrote Marshall that he was sorry he had put the question to him and said he understood Marshall's position.

FEA issues fuel ban

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Energy Administration has issued its first orders forbidding 28 industrial plants from burning oil or natural gas.

At the same time, the FEA issued similar orders to 18 more electric powerplants, bringing the total powerplants under prohibition orders

And FEA issued construction erders requiring 27 planned industrial units to include coalburning capability in their design and construction.

The orders were part of an FEA program to convert industrial and electric generating plants from oil and gas to coal as their main fuel.

Authority for the program expired at 12:01 a.m. Friday, and the FEA orders were issued just before that deadline. Legislation to extend the program to the end of this year is awaiting congressional passage

Postal losses slowed

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Postal Service announced Friday that it is osing money at a slower pace than at almost any time since it was reorganized in 1971. But it plans action soon to increase postal rates again.

The deficit for the year ending June 30 was about $50 million. Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar announced. "Compared to the $1.2 billion deficit in fiscal 1976, this is neal progress," he said.

Midland contestant sees pageant as opportunity

By RICHIE REECER

Many women today, as well as many men, feel beauty pageants are obsolete, commercialized and chauvinistic.

Kathy French, Midland's only entrant in this weekend's Miss West Texas Pageant, feels exactly the opposite.

'It's a great opportunity to show people your talents and say, 'Hey, I'm somebody," Miss French said in interview. "It's to the girl's advantage.

Her opportunity to exhibit her talent, poise and personality came this week during the pageant. After participating in the talent, swimsuit and evening gown competition on Thursday and Friday nights, contestants enter final competition tonight at the Ector County Coliseum. She said she has had many valuable experiences while participating in the pageant. "You learn about people, It's a learning experience," Miss French

The 1977 pageant marks the second time she has been a contestant in the event, which is correctly called a "scholarship pageant," she said. The first time was in 1975, just after she from Midland High School. She was one of the 10 finalists in 1975.

The event cannot be accurately called a beauty pageant, Miss French said, because competition is based largely on talent. Also, the prizes awarded are scholarships

The judging is based 50 per cent on talent, 25 per cent on poise and personality and 25 per cent on swimsuit competition, she said

Miss French, who is a free-lance artist, sang a country-western medley Thursday night during the talent competition. The medley included parts of "Let Me Be There" and 'Silver Threads and Golden

In addition to being an artist and a singer, Miss French has begun raising registered Quarter Horses. In the past, she has show-jumped horses, raced them and exercised polo ponies.

'Horses are my favorite subject,' she said. She has recently obtained a Quarter Horse, and she plans to attend horse shows throughout the area.

Miss French plans to continue her education at Midland College, and possibly later at Texas A&M' University. She would like to major in art and music, or possibly in veterinary medicine

Recommendation made on probation

LUBBOCK-The Liaison Committee on Medical Education and The Association of American Medical Colleges have recommended that the Texas Tech University School of Medicine be removed from probation Dr. Cecil Mackey. Texas Tech president, made the announcement Friday in Lubbock.

Responding to criticism that bombers are obsolete in a missile age, Brown said that "bombers have a unique combination of desirable qualities. Twister hits at Coyanosa COYANOSA-A tornado hit this Pecos County hamlet late Thursday causing extensive damage but no deaths or injuries.

The tornado dipped from the clouds about 7:40 p.m., according to a Pecos County sheriff's spokesman. It tore the roof off a Catholic church, demolished a cinder block home, and tore a roof off a business. Two mobile homes were also destroyed.

The twister also knocked out all electrical power and telephone service to the small town, the spokesman

The Association of American Medical Colleges has already ratified the liaison committee's recommendations. A similar ratification is expected by the Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association in September.

Those two childhood games aren't even similar. About the only similarity, and that's stretching it, is

Supreme Court action

Many Americans undoubtedly disagree with the Wednesday ruling by the United States Supreme Court that states may not impose the death penalty for the crime of rape.

Thus another deterrent to major crime is struck down by the high court, and the nation perhaps can expect an increase in the number of rape incidents occuring in the future

The death penalty wasn't assessed too often, insofar as we can determine, but it was there as a stark, meaningful deterrent to the horrendous crime. And now that deterrent is gone

The incidence of murder increased when some states did away with the death penalty for that particular crime. It didn't take long for most of those states to realize they had erred and to reverse earlier decisions.

The Supreme Court said the death penalty "is a disproportionate punishment for rape.

Justice Byron R. White said, "It is difficult to accept the notion, and we do not, that the rape, with or without aggravating circumstances, should be punished more heavily than the deliberate killer as long as the rapist does not himself take the life of his victim.'

He will have a difficult time selling his position to all Americans.

The court's action, which was decided by a 7-2 vote, struck down the death sentence a Georgia court had imposed on a man convicted for the rape of a 16-year old Waycross, Ga., housewife who three weeks before had given birth to her first child Georgia's law, incidentally, concerned the rape of adult women, but the court decision's wording indicated that states may not impose the death penalty even for the rape of children.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., who voted to strike down the Georgia man's sentence, said, however, that he did not think the death penalty for rape was cruel and unusual punishment in all circumstances. We would take this to mean that each case should be decided on the testimony presented

In connection with his vote in the Georgia case, Justice Lewis said, "Although rape invariably is a reprehensible crime, there is no indication that petitioner's offense was committed with excessive brutality or that the victim sustained serious or lasting injury.

This is a subject which undoubtedly will create a great deal of conversation, pro and con, here and elsewhere over the nation. But the Supreme Court's decision stands.

HUNGRY MILLIONS:

African leader urges 'peace through food'

By PETER GODSON Copley News Service

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa -Africa is hungry. More than 40 million people are suffering from the effects of famine. And in the poorer countries thousands are dying of starvation.

Yet politics remain of far greater concern to most African leaders than the welfare of their people, says Andries Botha of the South African Freedom Foundation, in a new study called "Peace through Food.

He points out that this has been the case since the African states began to shake off the yoke of the colonial

But, he says, judging from some of the statements of African leaders, there is reason for optimism.

 President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia: "When elephants fight, it is the grass that suffers.

- President Felix Houphouet-Boigny of the Ivory Coast: "Development and cooperation, not weapons and division, are what Africa needs. - President Kamuzu Banda of Malawi: "I want my people to have a roof over their heads; enough to eat; clothes to wear; to send their children to school and get proper medical treatment. Then I will think about

Rhodesia and South Africa. Botha makes a strong case for international cooperation to boost food production. But, he says whether this new realism will eventually prove stronger than political differences and whether African countries will work together on a regional basis to realize their enormous agricultural potential remains to be seen. African states, especially the countries of southern Africa, he continues, are all affected by the same climatological and other factors and experience the same problems in food production. For this reason, Southern Africa is particularly suited to regional cooperation. Simply to say that African countries have to raise their food production or that it is sufficient to give them technological aid is futile, he says. "What is needed is an effort to isolate the bases for, and methods of, cooperation.

Taking Africa as a whole, food production, he points out, is declining by 2 per cent and in some countries by per cent. Yet population growth exceeds 2 per cent a year.

So each year countries are less able to feed their people although they are especially in Central Africa - in a more favorable position than the rest of the world as far as arable land per head of population is concerned.

Botha makes many suggestions that he thinks will alleviate this problem, some of which would have an immediate impact. More could be achieved today with greater coordination of road and rail transport. Trains carrying materials from mineral-rich regions to the coast, instead of returning empty, could take essential supplies back into

Water resources could be better utilized through international cooperation. Shortages will hamper future expansion in South Africa unless "great vision" is shown in planning a subcontinental grid that will insure exploitation of the full potential of resources in Southern

And in the future, he urges, the possibility of establishing a regional development institution to coordinate and promote the diverse efforts of individuals, government bodies and development banks should be investigated.

Botha adds: "No longer can Africa rely as heavily as in the past on the industrialized countries of the world to solve its problems of food production, starvation and malnutrition

The agricultural problems of the continent are complex and profound but if the will is there and political differences can be neutralized, they are problems that can and must be solved by the peoples and governments ica themselves.

Keys to Eurocommunism's power

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The Communists will gain control of Italy and France in the 1980s by reversing their revolutionary role. Instead of upheaval, they will offer stability.

This is the prediction of intelligence experts, whose function is to anticipate developments in Europe. They also fear the rise of Communism in Italy and France will open the rest of Western Europe to a takeover. But they think the Western brand of Communism - "Eurocommunism," they call it - may turn out to be as offensive to the Soviet Union as it will be to the United States. As they see it, the immediate goal of the-Communists in Italy and France will be to infiltrate government and gain managerial experience. They will seek to keep their heads below the line of fire, leaving the exposed positions to the democratic leaders. The Communists foresee chaotic times ahead in Europe. Their strategy, therefore, will be to provide efficient, responsible government at the lower levels while the democratic parties are rocked by trouble and scandal at the upper levels, the experts believe. In short, the Communists hope to gain the confidence of the populace by dispelling their fear of disruptive Communist-style and change repression. As the people lose confidence in the democratic parties. meanwhile, the Communists expect the majority to turn to them Already, the Communists have made a backstage deal with the Christian Democrats in Italy to abstain on votes that might bring down the government. In return, some 6,000 Communists have been admitted into subordinate but key positions in

In France, the Communists have emphasized their independence from Moscow by criticizing Soviet human rights policies, although this is a sore issue with the Soviets. When Soviet ruler Leonid Brezhnev flew to Paris last week, incidentally, the French Communist leader, Georges Marchais, deliberately snubbed the titular leader of world Communism

In Spain, the Communists have strived so hard to make their party respectable that they have embraced the monarchy of popular King Juan Carlos. This has earned them a strange new nickname - el Real Partido Comunista (The Royal Communist Party).

The Soviets have responded to these developments with growing alarm. Intelligence reports describe new pressures upon the European Communist parties to submit to Soviet influence and ideology. Clearly, the men in the Kremlin are uncomfortable with Eurocommunism.

Footnote: The United States, simultaneously, has relaxed its opposition to the Eurocommunists. The dire ultimatums of the past have been stopped; Washington no longer is hreatening to withdraw its support if Communists are admitted to Western European governments. The Central Intelligence Agency has also stopped subsidizing anti-Communist politicians and newspapers in Europe.

Gerald Ford, of course, has gone out to pasture in Palm Springs, Calif. He is growing restless with golf and is talking about a rematch with President Jimmy Carter in 1980. The former president, meanwhile, keeps in touch with his key aides.

For example, he frequently es his former staff chi Richard Cheney, who is back with his old investment firm, Bradley, Woods and Company. Cheney said it was too early for Ford to make a political move. "He's not gonna jump one way or the other (now)," Cheney told us.

Another former White House insider, Robert Hartmann, also speaks to Ford regularly, although "I don't call him up every morning like I used to." Hartmann has received a twoyear grant from Stanford University to write a book about the 25th Amendment and Ford's unique succession to power. Hartmann, incidentally, has no great quarrel with President Carter's domestic policies but questions whether the new president has the congressional support he will need.

The controversial, foot-in-mouth Earl Butz, former secretary of agriculture, is now lecturing around the country and teaching on an informal basis at Purdue University Butz told us he isn't surprised at Carter's emphasis on budget balancing. "He has two hard-nosed practical businessmen - (Budget Director) Bert Lance and (Treasury Secretary) Mike Blumenthal," said Butz. "They're practical men with their feet on the ground.

Another blunt-spoken Ford man, ex-Treasury Secretary William Simon, is now a senior advisor to the New York management consulting firm of Booz, Allen and Hamilton International. He described President Carter's energy policy as "extremely dangerous." The emphasis is on conservation; "It doesn't deal with production one iota," he said.

Simon also challenged Carter's economics. "President Carter said we need more capital formation. snorted Simon. "You don't do that by taxing business $30 billion for Social Security taxes. That's fuzzy thinking on his part.

B-1 decision to cost many jobs

By TOM REDBURN The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES - As a result of President Carter's decision to stop production of the B-1 bomber, Rockwell International, prime contractor for the B-1, will lay off about 8,000 of its 13,000 Los Angeles area employes working on the project.

Thousands more could be affected. Saying he was "shocked and naturally disappointed," Bastian (Buzz) Hello, president of the B-1 Division, told reporters that Rockwell would eliminate most of the jobs 'within the next few weeks.'

A Rockwell official who only Wednesday said he expected the President to approve the production of at least 150 of the manned bombers, said the decision "was the best kept secret since the atomic bomb.

Despite the devastating impact on Rockwell's B-1 operations, which are centered in El Segundo, Calif., and Palmdale, Calif., Hello appeared resigned to the decision. "We don't in-

According to Hello, if Congress upholds Carter's decision, the total number of jobs lost will approach 35,000. This is because many subcontractors, such as General Electric and Boeing Corp., had persons work-

A local economist said the impact on the Southern California economy would not be severe. "This obviously will be devastating for the people thrown out of work," said Larry Kimbell, head of UCLA's economic forecasting project. "But the economic impact won't be remotely comparable to the recession that hit from about 1968 to 1972 when 200,000 aerospace workers lost their jobs.'

Rockwell had placed many job advertisements in local papers over the last few weeks seeking workers for the B-1. One employe, who was hired two months ago, said, "I just got writer known as Solomon

Silver has analyzed thousands of cases, including the so-called Mormon will of Howard Hughes, which was found last year in the world headquarters of the Mormon Church in Salt Lake

Silver, 86, emphatically stated then - as he still did this week - that the writer of the will was none other than Hughes. Other experts have loudly denounced the will as a fake

The other handwriting analysts who examined the Spaulding materials and the reproduced Mormon pages were Howard C. Doulder and William Kaye. Both live in the Los Angeles area and are frequently called to testify in court cases

Doulder told The Times, "This is one and the same writer," assuming that the photocopied material he was furnished is a true copy of the original documents in Salt Lake

Kaye, in an opinion written Aug. 27, 1976, said it was his "considered opinion and conclusion that all of the writings were executed by Solomon Spaulding.

Kaye told The Times he had been asked to ascertain the probable point in time when the documents had been' written, but he could not do that without seeing the originals.

Doulder said he has been a questioned documents examiner for the Milwaukee Police Dept. and the U.S. Treasury Dept., as well as serving as chairman of several national document and identification organizations. Kaye said he has done similar work for business firms and criminal justice agencies here and in

The researchers first told the story of their investigation to Edward E. Plowman, news editor of Christianity Today magazine. The Protestant journal will carry a lengthy account of the matter in its July &issue.

The controversy is a critical one for the Mormons, a fast-growing church of 3.8 million/ members worldwide, because they believe the Book of Mormon is a divinely inspired and correctly translated work of God.

"If the book is ever proved to be something other than what Joseph Smith claimed, the church's foundation itself will be in question, Plowman observes in his Christianity Today article

Don LeFevre, the LDS spokesman, said Thursday that no handwriting analysis of the questioned documents will be made by the church.

"There's no doubt in our mind that the Book of Mormon is anything other. than what we've always said it is." He said. He invited a Times reporter to examine the 20 laminated pages in the archives from the so-called Kimball acquisition.

The 12 pages reproduced from that collection and examined by the handwriting analysts were dictated by Smith to "an unidentified scribe." according to Mormon historians. Two parts in the collection (the remaining eight pages) have been ascribed to the hand of two close associates of Plowman said the Kimballacquisition pages appear to be in sequence, and the paper seems to be uniform in size, stock and age, though the handwriting seems to differ from section to section.

According to Smith's official church writings, the Book of Mormon is a miraculous-translation of "reformed Egyptian hieroglyphics" on golden plates he dug out of a hillside in 1827 near Palmyra, N.Y. Besides Smith, few others saw the plates before the Angel Moroni took them away after making sure the translation was correct, Mormons teach.

A number of questions about the pages linked to Spaulding by the handwriting experts remain unanswered. And the research project itself is not altogether a disinterested

Why a scribe would insert pages written by Spaulding into the Book of Mormon manuscript instead of rewriting them is open to conjecture.

"The sections in the archives appear to have been written at the same time with the same ink on the same stock of paper," said LeFevre. "Why would Smith take the original manuscript and try to match the ink and paper - it would have been easier to copy off Spaulding's writing in his own hand if he had wanted to Researcher Cowdrey speculates that Smith had Spaulding's notebook in which the manuscript was written and simply had the other scribes write new material on unused pages of the notebook as Smith dictated. Then, Cowdrey reasons, Smith tore out some of the pages written by Spaulding and all of the pages newly written by the scribe and put them in their present sequence.

This, says Cowdrey, would explain the uniformity in the paper stock and Cowdrey and Silver plan to examine the Kimball collection at the Salt Lake archives on Tuesday, he said. Silver said he can tell whether the ink throughout is of the same age. Doulder said he had not yet been contacted about going, but that he would only go separately from the other two analysts in order to make an independent examination.

Kaye said that he had been approached about examining the documents, but no date had yet been

The researchers have written about their investigations in a book to be published this summer by Vision House, an evangelical publishing firm in Anaheim, Calif.

Cults attract 'vulnerable' youth

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) - One of the first religious leaders to spot the power of the cults over American youths, Rabbi Maurice Davis, says the problem is not just in methods the groups use, but in the "needs and vulnerability" of the present young generation.

'Our children are lonely," he says, adding that they've been made that way by the modern lack of shared religious faith within their own families, while the cults have moved in to exploit that void.

Noting that the "opposite of loneliness is sharing," he says that such cohesiveness and shared convictions must take place in the home, or the young will remain left with an emptiness that makes them ready victims of tightly enclosing cults.

It's "what makes our kids so vulnerable," he says. Rabbi Davis, head of the Jewish Community Center of White Plains.

N.Y., was drawn early into the problem, 3½ years ago, when it hit two families in his own congregation. He since has become a widely versed authority on it. He left in formation of a special transdenominational organization,

'Citizns Engaged in Reuniting Families" for exchange of experiences, information and guidance for those seeking to regain contact with youths taken into cults. Now also chairman of a committee on cults set up by the Central Conference of American Rabbis, he reported to its convention last week that the committee is preparing a handbook of facts about each major cult, their techniques and means for

He criticized the American Civil Liberties Union for its "automatic defense of the cults" without examining or being aware of "the new dimension of brainwashing" the groups have introduced into America.

He maintains that both from firsthand experience and an overwhelming accumulation of evidence that the intensive, isolated indoctrination techniques used by many cults involves mental coercion that blocks free will.

He urged a special scientificpsychiatric research project to analyze the phenomenon and "to determine how best to protect young Americans from a very real danger without in any way impinging on the First Amendment" rights of free religious choice.

Meanwhile, "deprogrammers" have come under increased legal attacks across the country, often aided by civil liberties lawyers without direct experience with the cults. Courts have taken varying positions about the matter.

However, the "deprogramming," which involves initial forced removal from the cults, followed by a few days of association and conversation with others, usually has resulted in decisions to end months or years of cult living. The cults themselves strongly "brainwashing" dispute any coercive procedures, saying their intensive training programs are not unlike those of other highly devout, close-knit religious groups of history.

Gallup poll shows growth of religion

NEW YORK (AP) - Pollster George Gallup Jr. said today that recent surveys have found mounting evidence that the United States "may be in an early stage of a profound religious revival.

Writing in the June issue of the Journal of Current Social Issues. Gallup said evidence for his suggestion included a rise in church attendance in 1976, for the first time in nearly two decades.

He said his survey showed 42 per cent of Americans attended church or synagogue in a typical week. "Our surveys also showed church membership to be on the upswing during the year, with about seven in 10 now describing themselves as church members," he wrote. He said six in 10 persons surveyed now say their religious beliefs are very important" and he cited as further evidence of revival the considerable interest in what he termed experimental religion, such as mysticism, yoga and transcendental

He said the evangelical movement appeared to be "providing a powerful thrust" for the current religious

But Gallup said the surveys suggested that America may be only "superficially religious" with religion on the upswing, "while "morality is losing its influence."

He said that while 94 per cent of persons responding to Gallup in-terviews said they believed in "God, or a universal spirit," only 44 per cent said they had "a great deal of confidence in organized religion."

Anti-ERA women want probe

DALLAS (AP) - A coalition of anti-Equal / Rights Amendment Texas women, upset at the defeat of its delegates at last weekend's Texas women's meeting, has called for an investigation of the balloting at the Austin session.

At a Dallas news conference Friday Wilma Cawthon, spokesman for the coalition of "profamily, pro-life and anti-ERA groups," said the request has been filed with International Women's Year officials.

We request that the ballots be turned over to a specified CPA to determine the number of ballots cast, the number thrown out, and the tally of votes for each of the nominees with members of the profamily group

You are safe if you begin by leading dummy's ace of trumps. If West shows out, as in the diagram, you can continue with a finesse through East. No further problems.

If West had the three trumps, you would continue with a trump to the king. Take a top spade and ruff a spade. Get to dummy with the ace of diamonds and ruff another spade Then lead a trump to put West on

END PLAY

If West returns a diamond, you get a free finesse. If West returns anything else, you ruff in dummy and discard a diamond from your hand.

You would go down if you took the first trump with the king. You could ruff out the spades and lead a trump, but if East had the three trumps he could get out safely with a diamond. With the queen of diamonds in unfavorable position, you would be minus 100 instead of plus 620 points.

After 124 pitches, Ledbetter admitted he was more weary this time.

Although Jack didn't lose his shutout until the ninth inning against Amarillo, he was in better control all the way this time, thanks to Midland's 10-hit attack off three Diablos' pitchers.

Triples by Joe Hernandez and Aaron Randall, who continues almost unnoticed on a batting rampage as attention has focused on Tony Pepper last week, gave Midland a 1-0 lead off Mike Bottin, 4-1, who suffered his first Texas League defeat since reporting a few weeks ago from Salinas of the A California League.

GUSTAVSON CAME through with his first of two timely hits to make it 4-0 in the third. Kurt Seibert's double and walks to Hernandez and Karl Pagel loaded the bases. Botting fanned Pepper, but Gustavson drilled an 0-2 pitch over short for two runs.

Ledbetter, meanwhile, mowed down the Diablos in one-hit fashion through the first five innings before Tommy Smith singled to left and then Boras made his second big play of the night. Diving to the foul line, Boras gloved Jim Anderson's bid for twobases, scrambled to his feet and got the put out.

Just how big a play it was soon became evident when Bob Slater doubled the run in. However, Ledbetter, except for a couple of successive infield hits by Carney Lansford and Terry Stupy in the seventh, didn't stray into trouble again.

MIDLAND GOT to relief pitcher Billy Wilson for three runs in the seventh, which took the game out of reach. A single by Randall and double by Pagel produced one and after Pepper was intentionally walked, Gustavson singled to right-center for his third rbi while Steve Davis' sacrifice fly to right accounted for the

In addition to Boras' play in the sixth, Scott also came up with another gem in the fifth. After Lansford singled to left, Stupy lined to third, Boras came up with it just off the ground and easily doubled the runner.

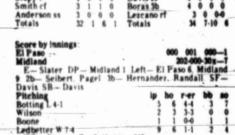

Pagel turned in a great catch in the third, bouncing off the boards in left to one hand Tommy Smith's long drive. "Our outfielders are always coming

Grich through for the season

ANAHEIM (AP) — The California Angels said Friday that infielder Bobby Grich, one of the free agents the Angels signed last winter, is suffering from a herniated lumbar disc that will require surgery and will probably keep him out of baseball the rest of this season.

Grich will undergo back surgery early next week. The Angels said they didn't know when he could play again but it is not likely he will return this

Grich played out his option in 1976 with Baltimore, where he played second base, and was signed to a fiveyear contract with California at an estimated total salary of $1.5 million. The Angels used him as their short-stop until the back ailment forced him out of action Grich originally injured his back in

He was batting 243 with the Angels and had seven home runs and 23 RBI.

Dallas Tornado, or whatever was left of the team after the Seattle invasion of last Tuesday, returns to Ownby Stadium Saturday to host the Chicago Sting in a North American Soccer League match. Striker John O'Hare will be out of the game because of a leg injury. The other players are listed as "probables" following the bruising battle in Seattle which saw the Tornado win 1-0 Bowon in a shootout thanks to a Balumore Drilliant performance by Milwauke goalie Ken Cooper.

Defender Glenn Myernick is also out and other players are nursing minor injuries. Cheago Kansas City California

Pole position set for Grand Prix

DIJON, France (AP) - Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., and Britain's John Watson battled for the pole position Friday in the first qualifying sessions for Sunday's French Grand Prix, ninth round of the 1977 world drivers champion ship.

Andretti, in a JPS-Lotus, was fastest in the opening session Friday morning and the first Formula One driver to crack one minute, 13 seconds around the Dijon circuit, once considered short but now extended to 2.36 miles with a loop plunging downhill into a tight corner and a steeply pitched upgrade.

But the Lotus developed "a little problem which we hope to cure Saturday," Andretti said, and Watson in the Brabham-Alfa Romeo took the pole from him in the second session.

The Andretti-Watson lineup is becoming familiar this year, but Andretti has two victories to his credit. Watson none-and Andretti shunted the Belfastborn ex-Penske driver off the track on the opening lap in Belgium

There was only three-hundreths of a second—about 0.3 miles per hour between them them after Friday's two sessions. Watson timed in 1:12.83- 106.9 mph-and Andretti at 1:12.86. "I'll be happier when I'm on the pole for good," Andretti com-

Andretti's Swedish teammate/ Gunnar Nilsson, the surprise winner in Belgium, was third fastest on 1:13.03, and James Hunt and his McLaren M26 showed a welcome return to form with fourth fastest time of 1:13.12.

After legal wrangling, the organizers finally accepted 30 entries to try to qualify for 22 starting spots. but a new engine for France's Patrick Tambay, due to make his Grand Prix debut, was not ready. Nor was the new turbo-charged Renault.

The major technical change was on the six-wheel Tyrrell of France's Patrick Depailler. The track of the four tiny front wheels was widened a total 10 inches in a hasty modification designed only last Monday by Derek Gardner and finished Thursday. Depailler said it had changed the handling of the car dramatically, and although only 10th, he was "very happy because at last we are making. progress, for the first time this year. Sweden's Ronnia Peterson, without the modification, was only 16th.

The other top runners, with one final hour of qualifying set for Saturday afternoon, included France's Jacques Laffite, winner of the last race in Sweden in the Ligier-Matra, the two Ferraris of Argentina's Carlos Reutemann and Austrian Niki Lauda, and South African Jody Scheckter.

Dorsett doing well for himself

Copley News Service

When the smog lifted in Aliquippa.

Pa., you could see the smoke. At least that's the way it used to be before air was declared a public

They've done some things to clear the skies over Aliquippa now, but the streets...well, the streets still are no place for the faint of heart.

-Aliquippa is a steel town, about 30 miles upriver from Pittsburgh, no farther from Beaver Falls than a long Joe Namath spiral.

There is a limited choice of diversions there. You can work for Jones and Laughlin, down at the mill. You can drink boilermakers. You can play football

Usually, the order is reversed. There are few avenues of escape, but Tony Dorsett managed to find a football under his arm and ran all the way to Dallas. Tex., where the stars at night are big and bright.

Dorsett, it is expected, soon will become one of them

Already, Tony has transported that football a greater distance than any player in the history of the college

He has won the Heisman Trophy

HE IS signed with the Dallas Cowboys for a reported $1.1 million, more than that august organization paid any employe before him.

But, in Tony's mind, he has not come all that far from Aliquippa. It is there Dorsett grew up, the sixth of seven children.

"My father worked for J&L, just like everyone else," he recalls. "My mom was just a typical sweet mom. And none of his brothers and sisters made it to college, "although some of them were good athletes. Dorsett's father had only one piece of advice for him. 'He told me that the mill was no place to be and that I should try to get out and make a living someplace else." Tony remembers.

IT IS not likely, however, that the elder Dorsett had in mind such numbers as $1.1 million while discussing occupational opportunities.

Neither did Tony. At least not where football was concerned.

"I played as far back as the sixth grade," he remembers, "but I had a

'I was a monster man (on defense) at first, then a wide receiver. It wasn't till the 10th grade that they let me carry the ball

There seemed no reason to make further adjustments. By the time Dorsett graduated from high school. he was considered one of the prime college prospects in the nation. Johnny Majors recruited him as one of his first official acts at the University of Pittsburgh, then sat back and waited to become coach of the year went to Pittsburgh because it was close to home." Dorsett remembers.

Touchdown Tony

"My folks could see me play. I could see my friends. And, on a rare clear day, he could see the Heisman Trophy.

"I never thought about it until I had a big freshman year and everyone started talking about how it might be a possibility." Dorsett says.

Four years later, it was a reality. "It was a great feeling." Tony says now, "but not as great as it could have

"Everyone thought it would be between Ricky Bell (of USC) and me. but then Ricky got hurt and it seemed like I sort of won it by default. "It took something away from it."

MAYBE. BUT a lot of people thought Dorsett might be the most talented player to win the Heisman since O.J. Simpson in 1968.

among them

"I was very pleased to be drafted by Dallas," he says "It sure beats Tampa or Seattle

"I'm happy to go to a contender Dallas has a chance to go to the Super Bowl every year, and that's $25,000 right there.

Dorsett does not apologize for making money. After all, he is a professional now

'The sky is the limit, the way I see it." he says

You go for what you can get. And if you get a million, you just hope you can go out there and play like a million-dollar baby "But I'm a competitor, too, You want to be the best, no matter what you're doing. "If it came down to money, and I didn't like the game. I wouldn't play.

But he does, and he is

'I don't know what other people expect of me, but I don't expect to step right into the NFL and be a big deal." Dorsett cautions.

"I hope it happens, but I don't expect it. I just expect to do the best I

It was good enough to get him out of
