Mahon, dean of Congress, won't run again in 1978

By a Staff Writer

WASHINGTON - George Mahon, dean of the United States Congress, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and the only congressman the 19th District of Texas has ever had, announced today that he will not be a candidate for reelection to the House of Representatives in 1978.

In announcing his decision, Mahon said, "At the end of my present term, I will have served 44 years in Congress and a total of 52 years in public office. I promised myself long ago that I would not seek to serve in Congress after reching 80, a milestone I would pass prior to the conclusion of another two-year term.

Mahon was elected to Congress in 1934. At that time, he was a resident of Colorado City in what was then the southern part of the district. He was serving as a district attorney. Mahon was the first congressman from the newly created 19th District which at that time covered 25 counties and stretched from Haskell County on the east to the New Mexico border on the

The congressman was appointed to the powerful House Appropriations Committee in 1939, became chairman of its subcommittee on defense in 1949, and has served in his current position as chairman of the full 55member Appropriations Committee since 1964 — longer continuously than any other member in history.

Only six members in the entire history of the United States have served longer in the House of Representatives than Mahon. During his tenure in office, Mahon has served with eight Presidents beginning with Franklin D. Roosevelt. He currently ranks as the dean of Congress, having served there longer than any other sitting member.

During Mahon's service, he has had a front seat to many of the most dramatic and dynamic moments in the history of the nation and the world. He was one of the few government leaders entrusted to participate in the so-called Manhattan Project for the development of the atomic bomb during World War II.

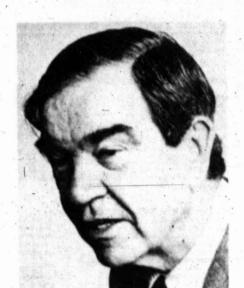

Mahon always has been an advocate of a strong national defense program and was a congressional champion of the development of the nuclear fleet. He has played a key role through the years in the development of farm programs. With Mahon's departure, Congress will lose one of its strongest voices for fiscal conservatism

The congressman expressed gratitude for the unwavering support he has had over the years from the people of the 19th District and the cooperation he has received from his colleagues in the Congress and officials of the executive branch.

"Having an opportunity to participate in some of the most momentous decisions of our time has been a great privilege. I have dealt with the high and the mighty in government, but perhaps my greatest satisfaction has been helping the people of the 19th District who have called upon me. Throughout my service. I have been sustained by the feeling that I had the trust and support of the folks at home," Mahon said.

Mahon said a congressman normally announces his political intentions in December prior to election year, but he said he felt that, since he would not be a candidate for reelection, he should let the people know so they would have ample opportunity to consider the selection of a successor.

He made no announcement as to his plans for the future but indicated that he has many interests and intends to continue leading an active and vigorous life. "I am an apostle of the strenuous life," he said. "I look forward to participating in many exciting and challenging endeavors that my responsibilities in Congress have not allowed me to pursue. But I have no time now to think of future plans. For the next 18 months, I shall continue to give my full energy and devotion to the people of the 19th District and the nation."

Kind words flow for legislator

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Midlanders today had lots of kind words for U.S. Rep. George Mahon, who announced today he will retire after his present term, his 22nd, expires at the end of 1978.

Speculation already has begun about possible candidates for the post in the 1978 election.

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said "there's no question but that Mr. Mahon is a great man who has done a great job for the United States and his district. Mahon "will be missed," Angelo said.

Angelo said he does not plan to run for Congress "under the present circumstances." There are other people "who are interested in it that I think would do a fine job," and if they run there will be no need for him to, Angelo said. However, if the situation changes, he might change his mind, Another potential candidate is state Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland. Craddick said he was "kind of surprised" by Mahon's announcement.

He said he is "very interested" in running for the post and will make his decision as soon as possible. Craddick said he believes the congressional district is a Republican one.

Mahon's announcement, Craddick said, will have no effect on the decision. "In making my decision, I'm not going to look at who the other candidates are," he said.

Odessa Republican Jim Reese who opposed Mahon in the 1976 race said it is "very likely" he will run again in "People all over West Texas have been urging me for many months to run against the congressman," and Reese received 46 per cent of the vote last time, he noted.

He said he has received the endorsement of U.S. House minority leader John Rhodes in a letter sent out to Republicans in the district.

"I don't feel I can ignore the wishes of the people who worked so hard last Reese said. He said Mahon's announcement will have no effect on his decision.

Another frequently mentioned potential Republican candidate is Jim Granberry, unsuccessful gubenatorial candidate from Lubbock. He has indicated he is considering the race.

Among Democrats who have been suggested as potential candidates is

Acker said the key question in deciding whether to transfer a case from juvenile to district court is whether the welfare of the community requires criminal proceedings.

He said he presented "evidence of the severity and aggressiveness of the crime and evidence of Jimmy's maturity for his age." Acker said Judge Culver's decision to transfer the case was appropriate because it was based on that evidence.

Many groups to feel loss of Powder Puff

The nation's airways lost more than just an annual blast of prop wash put out by a sisterhood of fliers last weekend.

Lost unto history, too, was the en masse effort amateur radiomen -"hams" - put into the airwaves in tracking the aviatrixes in their yearly

Clayton put in a plug for a new compromise effort produced under his sponsorship but carrying the names of the House conferees involved in last minute negotiations in the regular session that ended May 30.

This bill, House Bill 1, is a better bill than HB 750 (of the regular session) because it clarifies the needs of our school districts," he said.

Clayton said he felt a ruling Wednesday by the attorney general would not affect HB1 and would allow the main feature of the bill — a choice by local districts of setting local school taxes either by full market or agricultural use values.

He said he believed the attorney general's opinion ruled out a proposal that had been made by some senators that single-family dwellings be taxed differently from other property. The committee moved next into a detailed discussion of Clayton's bill.

'Citizen rate' might affect 1 letter in 5

By BRIAN B. KING

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's top postal official says an estimated one letter in five would qualify for a proposed new "citizen rate" on stamps, but admits he doesn't know how many people would 'go to the trouble" of meeting the requirements.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar recommended the new rate on Wednesday at a meeting with the Postal Service board of governors His proposal would retain the present 13-cent stamp for personal letters while raising the cost of a first-class business stamp three cents.

The board of governors meets Monday to vote on the plan. If it approves, the new rates would go to the Postal Rate Commission, which would have 10 months to act.

Under the law, if the commission fails to act within that time, the rates would take effect automatically

At the board meeting on Wednesday, Bailar also said he hopes to begin ending Saturday mail deliveries and possibly close more small post offices within the next several months.

Strong congressional opposition xists to both moves, but Bailar said,"I think the public will support responsible cost cutting. He noted a recent poll showing 79 per cent of the public supports five-day delivery if it would keep postage rates from climbing. Before he decides whether to recommend a five-day delivery schedule, Bailar said, opposition of the postal employes' union leadership must be overcome. Complaints also have surfaced from publishers of weekly newspapers with advertising

Carter calls in Jewish leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is calling for a Middle East peace settlement to include full diplomatic relations between Israel and the Arab states as the administration prepares for talks with Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin.

The President, meeting with 53 American Jewish leaders in a White House session on Wednesday, told them he believes there still is a chance for a lasting Middle East peace settlement, possibly by late this decision shortly after he has a chance to see the results of studies on the new weapon.

The studies are expected to reach the President about Aug. 15, Powell said. Carter met with the American Jewish leaders in an apparent attempt to ease their apprehensions about U.S. foreign policy in the Middle East.

Palestinian guerrillas take claim for bombing in Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - A Palestinian guerrilla group says the pipe bomb in the Petah Tiqva market that killed a woman and wounded 20 other persons was its answer to Prime Minister Menahem Begin's territorial policy

The radical Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine announced in Beirut that one of its guerrillas planted the bomb that exploded Wednesday in response to the new prime minister's

'policy of creating new settlements in Palestine.' Begin before he became prime minister supported the establishment of Jewish settlements in the West Bank territory on which the guerrillas want to establish a Palestinian state. Israel took the territory from Jordan in the 1967 war, and Begin contends it is part of historical Israel.

Petah Tiqva, a city of 105,000, is five miles from the border of the occupied territory, and thousands of West Bank Arabs pass through it daily on their way to and from work in Israel. It was the scene of two Arab bombings last November in which five persons were injured.

Following the bombing Wednesday, police warned the people to be on the lookout for "suspicious parcels and people, especially in crowded public

The bombing was the worst in Israel since May 1976, when a booby-trapped motor scooter blew up in Jerusalem, killing one person and injuring 29. Hospital officials said a 56-year-old woman died Wednesday right while undergoing surgery, and four other wounded persons were reported in serious condition.

The police rounded up about 100 Arabs for questioning. The Popular Democratic Front said one of its guerrillas eluded Israeli security measures to plant a time bomb. It added that it "warns the Zionists against harming the arrested Arabs and assures our people in Palestine that we are always capable of helping them.

Despite Begin's earlier hard territorial line, Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and others have been hinting that the government might relinquish some of the West Bank

He opened the session by declaring that the cornerstone of his Middle East policy is to win permanent peace and the security of Israel.

Carter declared that his Middle East goals include Secretary Jody Powell said Carter expects to make a /a definition of peace between Israel and the Arab states that would involve a commitment to "open diplomatic relations" among the Middle East na-

This definition, Carter said, would include an exchange of ambassadors, open communications and travel across national borders, trade, commerce, tourism and cultural exchanges. But, the President conceded, "this is a very difficult concept for Arab leaders to accept. Carter also said he has reservations about the concept of an independent Palestinian state located between Israel and Jordan, indicating that existence of such a state could undermine a peace settlement.

Carter did not mention possible territorial compromises that Israel would have to accept in return for any lasting peace agreement.

Ambassador in France shot, resting in hospital

PARIS (AP) - A gunman shot the Mauritanian ambassador to France today, but officials at the American Hospital said he was out of danger. He was the third ambassador shot in Paris in the past two years. The attempt on Ambassador Ahmed Ghanahalla, 36, apparently was the work of the Polisario Front, which s fighting a guerrilla war in norWali Sayed International Brigade was responsible for the attack. Mohamed el Wali Sayed was the secretarygeneral of the Polisario Front who was killed in an attack on Nouakchott, the capital of Mauritania, in June Ghanahalla was shot this morning just after he had gotten into his chauffeur-driven car near his home in the fashionable 16th District. Witnesses said two men about 25 years old approached the parked car from behind and one of them fired six shots through the rear window.

A squadron commander in the Chinese Communist air force flew his MIG19 jet fighter to Taiwan today and asked for political asylum, a spokesman for the Nationalist Chinese defense ministry announced.

Informed sources said the defector, 41-year-old Fan Yuanyen, would be rewarded with about $700,000 worth of gold.

He told officers there that life on the mainland was "so suffering" that he had "no choice but to flee to Taiwan." spokesman reported.

He said he had been planning his move for 'quite a long time," the spokesman continued, and headed for Taiwan while making an "inspection" flight about noon today.

Charter goes to new chapter of sorority

The Midland Alumni chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Inc. received its national charter in a formal ceremony in the Midland Hilton.

Mrs. Sandra Malone of Dallas, director of the Southwest Region of Delta Sigma Theta, established the chapter and installed new officers for the Midland chapter. A luncheon and dedication program was given in honor of Mrs. Matone Officers installed were Mrs. Lola Nunn, president; Mrs. Lula Jones, first vice president; Mrs. Betty Merritt, second vice president; Mrs. Margaret Williams, recording secretary, Mrs. Karen Walker, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Mamie Williams, treasurer.

Other charter members of the Midland chapter include Mrs. Norine Bradford, Mrs. Jeanette Brooks, Mrs. Claudia Davis, Mrs. Veronica Floyd, Mrs. Sandra Green, Mrs. Golden Gibbs, Iris Hall, Mrs. Betty Latham, Mrs. Dolores Mitchell, Theima Moultrie and Mrs. Maggie Williams.

The sorority is a national organization-dedicated to public service. The local chapter is an outgrowth of the Odessa Alumni chapter composed of Midland and Odessa members, and will help to broaden the services of the organization.

Mrs. America started life again at 40

By ELAINE SMYTH Copley News Service

Mrs. America of 1977 — isn't your run-of-the-mill beauty contest winner.

First, she's openly proud of her age, 47, and of the fact that she was the oldest contestant in the finals held early this year in Las Vegas.

"There were no limitations whatever," she says with her engaging Texas accent. "All you had to be was married. And I was the oldest contestant which made me very proud. The age range was very wide from 20 to 47 years."

Understandably, admitting your age is much easier for anyone who looks at least 10 years younger than she really is. Johnson — who was 48 in June - looks fantastic. She's 5 feet 8, has reddish hair and a pale, clear complexion and is model slim.

Johnson is the wife of James Bond Johnson, a psychologist who's also been into a number of other careers since their marriage 29 years ago.

"He's a Gemini which means he's a communicator," says Ruth. He's been a Methodist minister, a psychologist, a newspaper reporter, he founded a home for disturbed teenagers in Long Beach, Calif., and he's an Army Reserve colonel in psychological operations," she added.

Johnson, who tends to talk more about her family than herself, said her husband now has a new career that of an associate movie producer of the film "Along Came A Spider," starring William Shatner.

The native Texan describes her three children as "Jerry, 28, a professional musician; Jan, 26, an artist

Yarborough denounces Yarbrough

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Former Sen. Ralph Yarborough, a jurist for 50 years, says whatever Don Yarbrough touches is tainted" and he should resign - or be removed from the Texas Supreme Court.,

Justice Yarbrough, the former senator said, has "breached" the supreme court's "wall of integrity which has endured unbroken for nearly 140 years."

Ironically, it was the similarity in the spelling of the names Yarborough and Yarbrough that political ob-servers claim enabled Yarbrough to win election to the court last November.

Many Texans, observers feel thought they were voting for Ralph Yarborough or Don Yarborough, former candidate for governor. Speaker Bill Clayton said Wed-

"I commend this action," Yarborough said in a letter to Clayton and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Yarbrough, 36, was indicted last Thursday on charges of forgery and aggravated perjury.

Several civil lawsuits also have been filed against him, and an Aug. 1 trial has been set on an effort by the State Bar of Texas to disbar Yarbrough.

Incredible things happening to Katz and Kasenetz

By WAYNE ROBINS ewsday

NEW YORK - Jerry Kasenetz does not say hello when he answers the phone at his Long Island, N.Y., studio. What he does is repeat your name. Then Jerry Kasenetz says, "In-

Incredible things are indeed happening to the record producer and his partner, Jeff Katz. They have just made the Top 100 on the record charts for the first time in seven years, with a single called "Black Betty," a heavy rock version of a Leadbelly song recorded by a group called Ram

The record isn't a Top 10 hit, though it's moving well, picking up airplay on key radio stations each week. But for Kasenetz and Katz, it's a triumph, the first sign of success since the musical fad they presided over in the 1960s, known as "bubblegum music," made them millionaires when both were still in their 20s

We were out in the desert dying." the often manic Kasenetz said metaphorically of their seven-year drought. "There was nobody there."

From 1967 through 1969, Kasenetz and Katz produced hit records with such regularity that they became known in the music industry as "the Human Jukebox." Using a core of studio musicians and writers. Kasenetz and Katz made bubblegum one of rock's most controversial phenomena.

Bubblegum music was simple to the point of banality, consisting of spare arrangements and nursery-rhymelike lyrics. Among the better remembered songs that Kasenetz and Katz produced: "Yummy Yummy Yummy," "Chewy Chewy" and Beg, Borrow and Steal" by the Ohio Express; "Simon Says" and "12-3 Red Light" by the 1910 Fruitgum Company; and "Little Bit of Soul" by the Music Explosion.

Kids loved bubblegum music, but the first generation of rock critics and the nehru-jacketed, bead-wearing executives of rival record companies sneered at it. It was the era of "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band," the Jefferson Airplane and Grateful Dead, the peak of Cream and the Vanilla Fudge. It was the time of progressive rock, and Kasenetz and Katz's music was an outre as you could get.

"Everyone wanted to be a respected, FM-type artist," said Kenny Laguna, the Long Beach native who played keyboard and guitar on many of those records. "I was going out with a girl and when a song I played on came on the car radio, she'd push the button." Laguna now commutes between London, where he produces for the Who's Goldhawke company, and Berkeley, where he produces for Berserkley Records.

In retrospect, it's a little ironic that a number of progressive rock artists successful today got their start with Kasenetz and Katz records. Graham Gouldman, part of the successful English band 10cc and renowned as a gifted songwriter, began his career as a bubblegum songwriter. His song, 'Sausalito (Is the Place to Go)" is on "The Very Best of the Ohio Express" album.

Joe Waish, now a member of America's most popular band, the Eagles, was playing with a band called the Measles when Kasenetz and Katz discovered that group on a talent-scouting trip to Ohio.

Walsh was asked to be in the touring band of the Ohio Express after the original group split up. Walsh declined, but did play on a few cuts on some Ohio Express albums. Most of the groups existed in name only. Kasenetz and Katz didn't really produce groups; they ran song fac-

"We had six studios going at one time," Katz, the courtly, mild partner, said. "We were wild men," Kasenetz added.

Laguna denies a frequently repeated charge that the musicians,

ENTERTAINMENT

many of whom appeared to be broke when bubblegum ran its course, weren't paid.

"We made 35 chart records in 11/2 years and we never had contracts,' Laguna said. "I made a lot of money during those years. But there were a lot of sharks, a lot of parasites. Every time we'd sit down to dinner, there'd be 12 people. We wanted to be big

If the musicians had their excesses, it only figured that Kasenetz and Katz would behave likewise.

'We were more than crazy, Kasenetz said. "We were off the wall. We were untouchable. Limousines, race horses, bodyguards. We were zany, and still are. We're afraid of nothing and nobody. But we're reliable in business. When we give our word, we keep it.'

The zany fearlessness that sometimes bordered on recklessness was one of the elements behind the success of Kasenetz and Katz. The only way to get a hit record is to have the song played on the radio. Kasenetz and Katz weren't reluctant to resort to extremes to get their records on the air. Kasenetz and Katz, unlike producers today, spent much of their time on the road promoting their records in key cities. "There was a station in Baltimore that had been playing 'Beg, Borrow and Steal," Katz recalled. "But for some reason they took it off their playlist. We knew it was a hit. We went down to Baltimore, stood on street corners and in record stores with a petition on rolls of toilet paper. We got 10,000 names, rolled it out at the station, and they started to play the record again. Katz admitted that in Buffalo he siphoned the gas from the car of a program director of the major pop radio station, in a promotional ploy. He left just enough gas in so the program director would run out on the Kasenetz and Katz followed the program director in their car, and when the PD's car indeed stalled, they gave him a lift to the station. They introduced themselves only as Jerry and Jeff.

A little while later, they returned to the station, saying they were Kasenetz and Katz. They were told the program director wasn't in. "Tell him it's Jerry and Jeff, the guys who picked him up on the road," they said. The record became a hit, and the program director and Kasenetz and Katz became friends.

Kasenetz' account of other ploys: To get through to a reluctant program director in Detroit, Kasanetz identified himself on the phone as Dave deBusschere, the basketball star. In Salt Lake City, they started a fire in a garbage can outside the radio station which forced everyone - including the radio executive whom they were told "wasn't in" - out into the street in. In New York, they wired the men's room of then-influential WMCA (Now an all-talk station) with speakers, through which they played the song they were plugging at the time. The next day, the song was added to the station's playlist.

But once the bubblegum burst, no amount of chutzpah could get Kasenetz and Katz, who had produced 44 hit singles, another chance at the

What happened?

Laguna felt that it was because it all seemed frivolous. "When all of us were making those records, everyone was having a lark," Laguna said. "It was sincere, unpretentious music, and the success was resented terribly.

There is envy to the point of hate. They wait for you to get cold, then they bury you. Jerry and Jeff have hung on in there, and that's really to their credit.

In 1970, Kasenetz and Katz went to England. They returned with three song projects, but the doors to every record company were already closed to them. Two of the songs, an Albert Hammond composition called "Gimme Dat Ding," and Crispian St. Peters' "The Pied Piper," were both Top 10 hits within the next year, produced by others. #### Annual fair expands

HOUSTON - The Texas State Arts and Crafts Fair, a popular yearly "happening" at Kerrville, in Central Texas, over the Memorial Day weekend, this year will be having a South

Texas version as well.
The fair for the coastal region of the state will be held July 23 and 24 on the University of Houston's Clear Lake City campus.

The event will offer displays by approximately 125 top artists and craftsmen in the state, showcasing such specialties as stained glass, pottery, leather work, woodwork, macrame, paintings and jewelry. The fair also will feature a large display by Houston area weavers.

Sanctioned by the State of Texas as an official state event, the coastal region fair is sponsored by the Texas Arts and Crafts Foundation which also sponsors the annual Kerrville event on the grounds of Schreiner College. The fair will be held in conjunction with the annual Lunar Rendezvous Festival, a twoweek-long event celebrating man's walk on the moon.

Kelly's kids Knievel fans

By NANCY ANDERSON Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD - How did Gene Kelly wind up playing Gabby Hayes to Evel Knievel's Gene Autry in a motorized horse opera? Because that's what the film "Viva Knievel" essentially is.

You may well wonder.

But Kelly says he had two good reasons for making the movie, a young son and a young daughter. 'When I was first approached about making this picture with Evel Knievel, I said, 'No,'" Gene's frank enough to tell you. 'Since I'm a widower with two fairly young children at home, I try to do the bulk of my work in the summer when school's out so that my son and daughter can go on location with me. "And last summer I'd thought we'd go to the South of France, because I'd been asked to do a picture there. But then this Evel Knievel picture came along, and when my children heard about it they asked me to do it. 'I began to realize that Knievel is a folk hero to my children and their friends the way Lucky Lindy and Babe Ruth were to my generation. My children think he's the greatest thing

"So I agreed to do the picture. 'Another reason I made it is that

it's family entertainment. 'I've shot my mouth off a lot about pictures you can't send your kids to. So, when I got this chance to make a

In the movie, as in the standard Western, the good guys are very good, the bad guys are very bad (except for Marjoe Gortner, a bad guy who reforms), and Knievel comes to the rescue riding his motorcycle through. a pair of swinging doors.

He and Kelly even head the villains off at the pass after which Knievel leaps off a cliff and lands on top of, not a stagecoach, but a trailer truck. John Wayne couldn't have done it better nor could his horse have made the jump as well as Evel's motorcycle, since there's no danger of a motorcycle splitting a hoof.

A girl who enjoys cooking, since she says she "loves and respects good food," Suzanne took a three-week course some time ago at the famous Cordon Bleu in Paris and, this year, went back to France for three weeks of instruction at La Varenne.

"I really can do everything the French do," Suzanne says, speaking of cooking, "so now I'm trying to figure out how to get the same effect with less cream, less butter and so

"I'm experimenting with sauces made with pureed vegetables instead of cream, and they're working out very well.

'I've just devised a very good recipe for flank steak stuffed with vegetables. "I'm not a nutrition whacko, but I am planning to get into Chinese foods next, because they're healthful.'

Children generally don't like gourmet food, but Suzanne says her 11-year-old son has a taste for it, since it's about the only food he knows.

"I've been giving it to him since he got off pabulum," she says. "On the other hand, he has a paper route which takes him down by the Santa Monica pier, so he gets his share of hot dogs on sticks and cotton candy. "Yuk. Can you think of anything that's worse for you than cotton

Lou Grant' to star

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Edward Asner says the character he plays as a newspaper editor will be just like the character he played as a televi-. sion station's news director - only skinnier.

The Lou Grant he played on the "Mary Tyler Moore Show" was too good a person to abandon, Asner said, so Grant will be the main character in Asner's new television series.

'Lou Grant is a better man than I am," Asner told a gathering of honor students from all over the country. "I was easily convinced by my producers to keep on doing him."

Asner said it's "somewhat of a gamble" to go on the air as a sleeker Lou Grant, down to 190 from a onetime high of 240 pounds.

HOLLYWOOD - Ann and Nancy Wilson are the heart of Heart, a sextet that has rocketed to the top of the charts from seemingly out of nowhere.

Dark-haired Ann is the band's lead vocalist and flutist, and composes most of Heart's music. Sister United States, but also earning gold and platinum status in Canada and Australia.

Actually, Heart did not come out of nowhere. The group had been playing in Vancouver, B.C., for four years before relocating in Seattle and launching Dreamboat Annie

Heart is high on scholarship. Ann studied at the Cornish School of Fine Arts in Seattle. Her sister also studied the arts for two years at the university level. Roger Fisher, one of the founders of Heart, has been studying guitar since his teen years. Bassist Steve Fosen majored in music at Shoreline Community College in Seattle. Percussionist Michael Derosier went to college on two music scholarships (he lists Buddy Rich as one of his main influences). Keyboard-guitar specialist Howard Leese studied music at Los Angeles City College.

Sound like a stuffy bunch?

Maybe — until you hear them blast off on some heavy rock on their second album outing, an LP called "Little Queen" for CBS Portrait Records. Heart has the look of a big-time winner.

Also getting salutes: PORGY AND BESS - Houston Grand Opera (RCA) A magnificent performance of the George Gershwin folk classic is caught here in this three-record set. The Houston Grand Opera version of "Porgy and Bess" has been hailed widely — and with good reason. This is living, vibrant art, as timeless as the eternal summer of Catfish Row. HOT - Big Tree (Atlantic) - Gwen Owens is black,

American — and together they add up to a sizzling, smoking vocal trio that dishes up soul, pop and southof-the-border sound. Their first hit was "Angel in Your Arms," which they have done in several languages. Integration works with Hot. JOHNNY PAYCHECK - Slide Off of Your Satin

Architecture show at UT

AUSTIN — A large photographic collection depicting the colonial architecture of Mexico is on current display at the Michener Gallery of The University of Texas.

Titled "Folk Baroque in Mexico: Mestizo Architecture Through the Centuries," the exhibit presents some of the beautiful but little-known art forms embodied in the architecture of the provinces of Mexico when it was under Spanish rule in the 16th to 19th centuries.

The architecture is considered neither totally Spanish nor totally Indian, but the creation of a "mestizo" (mixed blood) nation that applied a creative exuberance to haciendas, convents, palaces and churchyards.

Photos in the Michener Gallery display were made by Judith Hancock de Sandoval, an American artist-photographer who made an extensive survey of Mexican colonial architecture several years ago for the Organization of American States. Photographs in the exhibition include tile and stucco facades, carvings on buildings in the "silver cities," plazas and churchyards of Yucatan, Michoacan and Chiapas, and examples of native art in Puebla, Oaxaca and the Valley of Mexico, including chapels, altars, porticos, naves, bell towers and cloisters.

UT's Michener Gallery is located in the Harry Ransom Center at 21st and Guadalupe streets. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays, 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays.

The Seattle-based rock group's first album, Peterson, Herb Ellis, Gene Krupa, Ella Fitzgerald. "Dreamboat Annie," was a tremendous success, not only selling by the hundreds of thousands in the like "Sweet and Lovely," "That Old Black Magic," "Body and Soul," "Stardust," "Embraceable You." A true jazz feast, captured live as it happened in the 1950s in Tokyo.

Too much petroleum may be new problem

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — A new and em; barrassing word threatens to creep into the nation's energy debate in the coming months, one which could wilt the political ardor for tough and farreaching energy measures. The word is "glut.

The crisis rhetoric of recent months has not focused on it, but oil experts generally agree on this: for the next three years or so, the world is going to have plenty of oil - probably too

"There is no question," said an official from one international oil company, "there will be an oil surplus — a glut, if you will - between now and 1981, due to new supplies from the North Slope and North Sea.

J. Wally Hopkins, an international expert in Paris, who monitors supplyand-demand for the industrialized nations observed

"The surplus presents a very real problem today because of the lead times involved in ensuring that we have oil in the future...The arrival of supplies from the North Sea and Alaska give us very welcome breathing space..

Clement B. Malin, the Federal Energy Administration's assistant director for international affairs, acknowledges this "softening" in the marketplace

"I call it three years of grace, not three years of glut," Malin said.

Whatever one calls it, the shortterm future confronts President Carter and his energy planners with a prickly political problem. It does not necessarily contradict what the Carter Administration has been saying about the "energy crisis" ahead because their dire predictions a recast further into the future, based on what they expect by 1985. In the meantime, there is this embarrassing 'hump," as one official called it, a period of several years when the world's excess capacity" in oil production is expected to increase sharp-

This period will give America more time, to be sure, but it may also deepen skepticism about whether painful measures are needed. At the least, the "grace" period undercuts the economic incentives which are supposed to prod private capital into investing in new oil wells or alter native sources of energy. The surplus will be a "contrary signal" to American consumers, too, who are already rather skeptical.

'That's going to be Carter's biggest problem," said a Washington official from a major oil company, "convincinr people to conserve when we're awash in crude oil... It should be a concern to everybody in this town. When the surplus comes, it's going to comed really hard aind fast.

An administration energy official put it this way: "That's why it is important to get as much legislation through now as possible — before your credibility gets undermined, at least temporarily

Under the old rules of economics, when supply exceeds demand, it is supposed to produce lower prices in the marketplace. Some businessmen premised all of its energy conservation proposals on higher prices for oil consumers and its tax measures are hinged on the world price set by the OPEC nations. Surplus would threaten that price, but officials assume that surplus can be avoided if OPEC nations simply cut back on exports, particularly from Saudi Arabia, the wealthiest partner.

This balancing off of supply-anddemand is hardly new; it has been a regular dynamic of international oil for at least two generations. But the impending situation will demonstrate how much U.S. interests have coalesced with Arab oil interests in both price and supply. The days of hot political rhetoric, talked of "breaking" the OPEC cartel price or establishing "energy independence" from the Arabs, are dead and forgotten, replaced by a new reality of interlocking political-economic in-

If things are managed right, the threat of glut may appear — but it will never materialize. As increased crude oil comes flowing into the world market from Alaska and Britain's North Sea Field and Mexico (conservatively estimated, this will add up to 5 million barrels per day by 1980), oil merchants here and abroad will simply "back out" OPEC oil, as the oilmen put it. The pressure to increase OPEC prices will abate; the world's oil supplies would be stretched out.

Despite the rhetoric of independence, America has increased its reliance on Arab oil dramatically since the traumatic embargo of 1974. Arab oil rose from 14 per cent to 36 per cent of U.S. imports. Malin expects that trend to level off for the next few years and OPEC exports to remain about where they are now. But oil experts outside the government predict that OPEC will have to reduce ex-ports to accommodate the new oil in the world market.

Most energy experts assume that Saudi Arabia can cut back on its oil production indefinitely, though some dissenters argue that there are limits to how much "excess capacity" even the Saudis can absorb without economic pain for themselves. According to one estimate, the OPEC "excess capacity" will rise from 9 million barrels per day to more than 17 million barrels by 1980 - nearly enough oil to supply total U.S. con-

Even if OPEC were to become vulnerable, United States policy now assumes strong national objectives in avoiding that saturation point. The U.S. wants political stability in those countries and their long-term assurance of oil supplies for that period after 1981 when U.S. imports are expected to turn upward again. The U.S. wants a high price to encourage conservation at home. It wants general prosperity in the OPEC nations because they do most of their trading and investing with America.

The preliminary report has been sent to the National Science Foundation and the findings should be made public within a month and a half, according to Diane O'Rouck. project coordinator

Meanwhile, windmill research projects are proliferating and farmers are looking at their "antique mills" with increasing interest.

Only about 15,000 windmills are still operating on America's farms and ranches, but it's estimated that about 70,000 old mills could be put in working order.

Despite its reputation as the 'Windy City," Chicago finished 10th among 32 metropolitan areas checked for wind power potential by the National Wildlife Federation Topping Chicago for windiness in a 10-year study of wind velocity were Fargo, N.D.; Wichita, Kan.; Boston, New York, Fort Worth, Des Moines, Honolulu, Milwaukee and Cleveland.

Increase. gets okay

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - The railroad commission has authorized an increase in Lone Star Gas Co.'s intracompany gate charge that should add 60 cents to the monthly bills of customers in Dallas and Fort Worth.

The new gate rate of $1.4833 - an increase of nearly 44.84 cents - will raise burner tip rates in all Texas cities served by Lone Star by 2-3 per cent, the commission said Tuesday.

The gate rate represents the amount paid by the firm's distribution system to the transmission division. The new rate is retroactive to Jan.

9, the commission said, and Lone Star can recover the additional revenue it should have received since then by adding a 5-cent per thousand cubic feet surcharge.

Carter's plan coordinator has proposals for energy savings

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The man in charge of coordinating President Carter's energy plan in the House is considering several proposals including a 3-cent gasoline tax to put more energy savings into the bill.

Rep. Thomas L. Ashley (D-Ohio), chairman of the House ad hoc energy committee, said the legislative committees have done a "remarkable of processing complex legislatoin in a short time

However, since the Ways and Means Committee rejected Carter's standby gasoline tax that could have risen to 50 cents a gallon in 5-cent annual steps if the nation's drivers failed to meet specified goals, the President's objection of reducing gas consumption 10 per cent by 1985 cannot be met unless some alternative energy saver is found, said Ashley.

He said Congress should look carefully at auto usage. Forty per cent of gasoline is used to drive people to and from work, many of them one to a car, he said.

Ashley said one possibility he has been considering is a 3-cent gas tax to be used to encourage use of mass transit and car pooling. Another possibility would be to close service stations on Sundays. Ashley said he is not committed to either possibility. Last year the House rejected a 3cent gas tax.

Next Wednesday the ad hoc committee will meet to begin its task of assembling the energy package, which has been handled up to now by five legislative committees, into one bill to be sent to the floor.

Ashley's committee cannot change

Ogden has been finaled as a Morrow gas strike in Eddy, three miles norwest of Malaga. The calculated, absolute open flow potential was for 6.257 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, flowing through perforations at 12,216-12,548 Drilled to 12,920 feet, it had a 5-inch liner hung from 10,165-12,920 feet. Location is 2,200 feet from north and 945 feet from east lines of section 8-24s-28e, 21/2 miles west of a Morrow discovery in the Malaga field. Also, Yates Petroleum Corp. of Artesia completed No. 1-HU State as a second Strawn well and 1/2-mile southwest extension in an undesignated Eddy County area, 20 miles north of Carlsbad.

The well flowed on preliminary potential test at the rate of 13.260 million cubic feet of gas per day, The bore is bottomed at 11,300 feet.

2,080 feet from west lines of section 7-19s-28e The Lea County extender is Belco Petroleum Corp. No. 1-X Wilson-State, which has been finaled as a 14-mile southwest extension to Morrow gas production in the Osudo field. It had a preliminary flowing potentials test of 1 million cubic feet of gas, plus 22 barrels of condensate per day. Condensate gravity is 42 degrees. The test was through a 12-64-inch choke and perforations at 11,290-11.313 feet.

Drilled to 12,600 feet, it has been plugged back to 11,448 feet, with 51/2inch production string seated at 11,510

1,980 feet from west lines of section 19-21s-35e, 14 miles northwest of Eunice.

state official said Wednesday most evidence in the murders of three young Girl Scouts near Locust Grove points to jail escapee Gene Leroy Hart, who has been charged with the June 13 slayings.

Wednesday fire damages house

One bedroom of a house at 405 N. Terrell St. received heavy damage, with smoke and heat damage throughout the rest of the house, in a fire at 10:59 p.m. Wednesday.

The Midland Fire Department used 100 gallons of water to extinguish the fire. Cause of the blaze was unknown.

"In the first place," the OBI director said, "regarding Hart ... there is much strong evidence pointing to his guilt. Much of it has not been publicly disclosed."

Most of the evidence will not be disclosed until Hart is captured and brought to trial. Laird said, but he stressed that he feels the state has a strong case.

"I would not say with certainty that he is guilty because I would not say with certainty that any person who has not been tried is guilty," Laird said, "but we have a great lot of evidence in this case that points to his

Laird generally declined to comment on specific evidence, but he disputed one report that a fingerprint was found on one of the girl's bodies that did not match Hart's finger-

"I will say that, as to the fingerprint matter, there has been a great deal of misinformation," Laird said. "The bodies were not found with any fingerprints on them.'

He said the discovery of old wedding photos near the murder scene was "a part" of the evidence, but he declined to say whether it was a

Authorities have said the photographs were developed at the Granite Reformatory in 1968 with Hart, a Granite inmate at the time, assisting in the development.

Laird expressed confidence that Hart will be captured, but said authorities are not sure whether he still is in the heavily wooded area around Locust Grove where the three

Group pressuring for deployment of MX missile

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON + Pressure is building up on President Carter to deploy the Air Force's blockbuster missile, the MX to offset the nuclear might lost through his cancellation of the B-1 bomber.

Paul H. Nitze, a leader of a group called Committee on the Present Danger, said in a press conference Wednesday that what to do about the MX "may well be the next important issue" in the arms debate.

Nitze and his allies contend that the MX; which would be kept mobile in deep trenches 10 miles long to make it hard to hit, is vital to maintain "rough equivalence" with the Soviet Union in nuclear weapons.

Opponents counter that deploying the MX would blow up chances for meaningful arms control and raise fears in Moscow that the United States was building a nuclear offense for striking first.

Carter himself has said he hoped neither the United States nor Soviet

MX. To back up this desire expressed in his first press conference, Carter subsequently reduced the Air Force budget for MX from $295 million to $135 million, a cut of $160 million.

Air Force leaders told Congress in recent testimony that they planned to push that $135 million for fiscal 1978 to about $1 billion in fiscal 1979. How much money to give the Air Force for the MX is one of the questions now confronting Carter and Defense Secretary Harold Brown as they prepare the fiscal 1979 budget to be sent to Congress in January.

"Deployment of the MX system will yield great bargaining leverage," said the Committee on the Present Danger in a statement released Wednesday on arms control negotia-tions. A mobile MX "should be highly survivable" so that some of them could knock out Soviet missiles not used in the first wave

MX could significantly reverse the unfavorable trends in the U.S.-Soviet nuclear blance which would otherwise continue unchecked," said the committee in urging that the Carter administration not ban new or mobile intercontinental ballistic missiles or testing of them.

Nitze, in speaking for himself as an individual rather than the committee he helped organize, said Carter should have kept the B1 in production as well as build the MX.

Nitze said the trouble with substituting planes carrying cruise bomber is that the Soviets now will be able to concentrate on knocking down the planes before they can launch their missiles.

Asked how the Soviets could verify how many MX missiles were hidden in deep trenches, Nitze replied that "verification comes second" to U.S.

Hiding mobile MX missiles in deep trenches would appear to violate the current accord between the Untied States and Soviet Union which states that "each party undertakes not to use deliberate concealment measures which impede verification by national technical means of compliance" with the interim arms control agreement.

Carter said at his Feb. 8 news conference that if the Soviets "would agree to a cessation of the use or deployment of the mobile type missiles, that would be a very important point for us to join them in a mutual agreement." Nevertheless, the MX continues to move along the

Heavy beef referendum vote called decisive

DALLAS (AP) - More than 40,000 Texas cattlemen have registered to vote on the federal Beef Research and Information Program and that insures the program's defeat or approval - depending on who you listen

"The registration of 42,888 in Texas (out of a possible 200,000) looks real good for approval," said James D. Sartwelle, chairman of the favoring Beef Development Taskforce. "About 315,000 persons have registered naJay Naman, the president of the Texas Farmers Union, which is against the program; said the strong turnout in Texas is an indication of the cattlemen's concern and "insures" the defeat of the referendum.

The voting, which began Tuesday and will continue until July 15, will determine if cattlemen will be assessed 30 cents for a research and development program on each $100 received when cattle are sold.

called beef referendum must be twothirds in favor of approval for the act to become law

Sartwelle said the collection from cattlemen will raise $30 to $40 million a year for beef research, promotion, consumer education and foreign market development.

Report reveals lack of privacy in SSA office By EVANS WITT WASHINGTON (AP) - Dozens of computer ter-minais sit idle, unattended and often unlocked at night in a huge office in suburban Baltimore.

Property of the Social Security Adminstration, the terminals contain confidential personal information on tens of millions of Americans. Yet they are easy targets for fraud, government auditors say

"Security procedures and controls ... were not adequate to prevent fraud and abuse or to assure compliance with the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974," said the Department of Health, Education and Welfare audit agency report.

For example, the audit found almost half of the 69 terminals in the SSA headquarters were in areas such as large open rooms that could not be locked at The computer's 2,200 terminals all over the country can be locked electronically to prevent unauthorized use. But auditors found 59 of the 69 terminals in the Maryland office were left unlocked overnight at least once in a four-week period. The computer system contains records on the more than 27 million Americans who receive more than $81 billion annually in Social Security checks and Supplement Security Income payments, including the amount of payments, family income and assets, medical histories and marital status. Social Security employes use the computer system to process millions of new claims for benefits received each year. The system maintains records on all current benefit payments under the various Social Security programs, including Medicare and disabili-

the auditors. But they said they didn't look "We did not attempt to determine whether the system has been misused, but, rather, whether the potential for misuse existed," they said.

There were no cases of frauds or abuse found by

The report on the audit, conducted last year, gave a laundry list of the problems with the system, including lack of terminal security:

-Reports on possible violations of computer security were too late to be useful and often were in--Too many employes knew the passwords that give access to the personal information, when their jobs did not require such knowledge. -The computer programs designed to provide additional security were ineffective in blocking unauthorized use of the system.

Reps. John Moss, D-Calif., and Charles Rose, D-N.C., who made the report public, have asked for a General Accounting Office study of the computer system. The study is in preparation.

Physician sentenced for fraud

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) U.S. District Court Judge John H. Wood Jr. of San Antonio has administered another stiff sentence to a second Texas physician convicted of defrauding Medicare and Medicaid programs. Dr. Harvey G. Her-berman of El Paso was sentenced to eight years in prison and fined $50,000 Wednesday. Herberman, 39, was convicted in May on 20 counts of making false claims for the payments. Prosecutors said he had stolen a total of $360. He was also acquitted on eight additional of Appeals.

Judge Wood had earlier sentenced Dr. Raul E. Gaona of San Antonio to five years in prison and assessed a $5,000 fine. Gaona pleaded no contest to one count of making a false claim for Medicare payments.

Mahon, dean of Congress, won't run again in 1978

WASHINGTON - George Mahon, dean of the United States Congress, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and the only congressman the 19th District of Texas has ever had, announced today that he will not be a candidate for reelection to the House of Representatives in 1978.

In announcing his decision, Mahon said, "At the end of my present term, I will have served 44 years in Congress and a total of 52 years in public office. I promised myself long ago that I would not seek to serve in Congress after reaching age 80, a milestone I would pass prior to the conclusion of another two-year ter-

Mahon was elected to Congress in 1934. At that time, he was a resident of Colorado City in what was then the southern part of the district. He was serving as a district attorney. Mahon was the first congressman from the newly created 19th District which at that time covered 25 counties and stretched from Haskell County on the east to the New Mexico border on the

The congressman was appointed to the powerful House Appropriations Committee in 1939, became chairman of its subcommittee on defense in 1949, and has served in his current position as chairman of the full 55member Appropriations Committee since 1964 - longer continuously than any other member in history.

Only six members in the entire of the United States have served longer in the House of Representatives than Mahon. During his tenure in office, Mahon has served with eight Presidents beginning with Franklin D. Roosevelt. He currently ranks as the dean of Congress, having served there longer than any other sitting member.

During Mahon's service, he has had a front seat to many of the most dramatic and dynamic moments in the history of the nation and the world. He was one of the few government leaders entrusted to participate in the so-called Manhattan Project for the development of the atomic bomb during World War II.

Mahon always has been an advocate of a strong national defense program and was a congressional champion of the development of the nuclear fleet. He has played a key role through the years in the development of farm programs. With Mahon's departure, Congress will lose one of its strongest voices for fiscal conservatism.

The congressman expressed gratitude for the unwavering support he has had over the years from the people of the 19th District and the cooperation he has received from his colleagues in the Congress and officials of the executive branch.

"Having an opportunity to participate in some of the most momentous decisions of our time has been a great privilege. I have dealt with the high and the mighty in government, but perhaps my greatest satisfaction has been helping the people of the 19th District who have called upon me. Throughout my service, I have been sustained by the port of the folks at home," Mahon said.

Mahon said a congressman normally announces his political intentions in December prior to election year, but he said he felt that, since he would not be a candidate for reelection, he should let the people know so they would have ample opportunity to consider the selection of a

He made no announcement as to his plans for the future but indicated that he has many interests and intends to continue leading an active and vigorous life. "I am an apostle of the strenuous life," he said. "I look forward to participating in many exciting and challenging endeavors that my responsibilities in Congress have not allowed me to pursue. But I have no time now to think of future plans. For the next 18 months, I shall continue to give my full energy and devotion to the people of the 19th District and the nation."

Acker said the key question in deciding whether to transfer a case from juvenile to district court is whether the welfare of the community requires criminal proceedings.

He said he presented "evidence of the severity and aggressiveness of the crime and evidence of Jimmy's maturity for his age." Acker said Judge Culver's decision to transfer the case was appropriate because it was based on that evidence.

Many groups to feel loss of Powder Puff

crime reduction in 19 years burglary, larceny and motor vehicle

By MARGARET GENTRY

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's crime rate dropped 9 per cent in the first three months of this year over 1976, the largest quarterly reduction in the 19 years the FBI has issued crime reports, the agency said today. The report listed a bitterly cold winter and heavy snow as possible reasons for the decrease.

Although there were reductions in five of the seven major crime categories, the number of rapes increased 5 per cent and aggravated assaults were up 1 per cent, the FBI said in its Uniform Crime Reports.

The statistics are based on the number of crimes reported to nearly 9,000 state and local law enforcement agencies. Besides rape and assault, the report covers murder, robbery,

The sharpest decline was for larceny, 11 per cent. The report showed an 8 per cent decrease for robbery, 7 per cent for burglary, 5 per cent for murder and 4 per cent for motor vehicle theft.

And that will make for one less deed for the aviation buffs at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin to perform.

Dr. John D. Richardson, coordinator of aviation management at UTPB, and some of his students were purposefully "milling" around the flight line and in the Aquila hangar at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

The airport was the Saturday morning layover for most of the pilots. A few came later in the day, one or two flew right on over, and some landed elsewhere, such as at Midland Airpark and at Schlemeyer Field at Odessa.

Hot weather turbulence kept occasional thundershowers booming in the north part of the Texas Panhandle this morning, and the same kind of weather lurked in the Gulf of Mexico near Galveston.

Scattered thunderstorms again boomed during the night in far West Texas also but yielded little moisture. Measurements ranged up to nearly one-fourth inch around El Paso in that section and at Amarillo in the Panhandle.

Coupled with considerable humidity, temperatures stayed uncomfortably warm overnight. The range near dawn was from 80 degrees at Palacios on the coast down to 57 at Marfa in the West Texas mountains. Wednesday's highs were topped by 100 degrees at Brownsville, Dallas, El Paso and Presidio

A weak cool front idled across the Panhandle, stirring out the showers in that section and promising slightly lower readings in its wake.

19-year-old faces 2 murder charges

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Two counts of second-degree murder were expected to be filed today against a 19-year-old man in the fire slayings Wednesday of two children, Dist. Atty. Andrew Coats said.

The charges were due to be filed against Michael Creston Moore of Newcastle, Okla., Coats said.

The deaths occurred early Wednesday morning as Melford Isaac made his rounds, with his children asleep in the back of the car, delivering the Oklahoma Journal, an Oklahoma City newspaper.

Isaac, 25, left the motor running as he delivered the papers to an apartment complex about 4 a.m. He told police he saw a man jump in the car and drive off. Isaac said he tried to give chase, but gave up and called Officers found the car about eight blocks away where its interior apparently was doused with a flammable liquid and set afire. A passerby saw the blaze and a man running from the car, and called the fire department.

Firemen found the bodies after extinquishing the blaze, which was fed by the stack of newspapers in the hatchback compartment of the compact

About 10:45 a.m., Moore surrendered to Oklahoma City police, accompanied by an attorney. Moore's sister Ronni, 18, also of Newcastle, was arrested and jailed on complaints of aiding and abetting a fugitive. A friend of the Moores, Marilyn Jean Helms, 18, Newcastle, was jailed as a material witness and on a complaint of interfering with official process.

The victims were identified as Melissa Isaac, 6, and her brother Martin, 3.

Isaac and his wife had recently separated and the husband was keeping the children. Rather than leave them alone, he had been taking them along as he delivered the papers letting them sleep in the hatchback section of the car behind the stack of Coats said the second-degree murder charges would be filed rather than first-degree because of the apparent lack of premeditation.

"It apparently was somewhat impulsive and not with any real planning." Coats said, adding the fire may have been started "just as an after-

Carter calls in Jewish leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is calling later this month for a Middle East peace settlement to include/full diplomatic relations between Israel and the Arab states as the administration prepares for talks with Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin.

The President, meeting with 53 American Jewish leaders in a White House session on Wednesday, told them he believes there still is a chance for a lasting Middle East peace settlement, possibly by late this

Carter is due to meet with Begin in Washington

Meanwhile, the President was reported determined to decide personally whether to recommend production of a proposed new neutron bomb. Press Secretary Jody Powell said Carter expects to make a decision shortly after he has a chance to see the results of studies on the new weapon. The studies are expected to reach the President about Aug. 15, Powell said.

Carter met with the American Jewish leaders in an apparent attempt to ease their apprehensions about U.S. foreign policy in the Middle East.

Palestianian guerrillas take claim for bombing in Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - A Palestinian guerrilla group says the pipe bomb in the Petah Tiqva market that killed a woman and wounded 20 other persons was its answer to Prime Minister Menahem Begin's territorial policy.

The radical Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine announced in Beirut that one of its guerrillas planted the bomb that exploded Wednesday in response to the new prime minister's policy of creating new settlements in Palestine

Begin before he became prime minister supported the establishment of Jewish settlements in the West Bank territory on which the guerrillas want to establish a Palestinian state. Israel took the territory from Jordan in the 1967 war, and Begin contends it is part of historical Israel.

Petah Tiqva, a city of 105,000, is five miles from the border of the occupied territory, and thousands of West Bank Arabs pass through it daily on their way to and from work in Israel. It was the scene of two Arab bombings last November in which five persons were injured.

Following the bombing Wednesday, police warned the people to be on the lookout for "suspicious parcels and people, especially in crowded public

The bombing was the worst in Israel since May 1976, when a booby-trapped motor scooter blew up in

The police rounded up about 100 Arabs for questioning. The Popular Democratic Front said one of its guerrillas eluded Israeli security measures to plant a time bomb. It added that it "warns the Zionists against harming the arrested Arabs and assures our people in Palestine that we are always capable of helping them.

Despite Begin's earlier hard territorial line. Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and others have been hinting that the government might relinquish some of the West Bank

He opened the session by declaring that the cor-nerstone of his Middle East policy is to win permanent peace and the security of Israel. Carter declared that his Middle East goals include a definition of peace between Israel and the Arab states that would involve a commitment to "open diplomatic relations" among the Middle East na-

This definition, Carter said, would include an exchange of ambassadors, open communications and travel across national borders, trade, commerce, tourism and cultural exchanges.

But, the President conceded, "this is a very difficult concept for Arab leaders to accept.

Carter also said he has reservations about the concept of an independent Palestinian state located between Israel and Jordan, indicating that existence of such a state could undermine a peace settlement.

Carter did not mention possible territorial compromises that Israel would have to accept in return for any lasting peace agreement.

Kelly's kids Knievel fans

By NANCY ANDERSON Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD - How did Gene Kelly wind up playing Gabby Hayes to Evel Knievel's Gene Autry in a motorized horse opera? Because that's what the film "Viva Knievel" essentially is.

You may well wonder.

But Kelly says he had two good reasons for making the movie, a young son and a young daughter.

'When I was first approached about making this picture with Evel Knievel, I said, 'No,'" Gene's frank enough to tell you. 'Since I'm a widower with two fairly young children at home, I try to do the bulk of my work in the summer when school's out so that my son and daughter can go on location with me. 'And last summer I'd thought we'd to the South of France, because I'd been asked to do a picture there. 'But then this Evel Knievel picture came along, and when my children heard about it they asked me to do it. 'I began to realize that Knievel is a folk hero to my children and their friends the way Lucky Lindy and Babe Ruth were to my generation. My children think he's the greatest thing since 7-Up.

'So I agreed to do the picture. "Another reason I made it is that it's family entertainment. 'I've shot my mouth off a lot about pictures you can't send your kids to. So, when I got this chance to make a family picture, I thought maybe I

The Lou Grant he played on the "Mary Tyler Moore Show" was too good a person to abandon, Asner said, so Grant will be the main character in Asner's new television series.

"Lou Grant is a better man than I am," Asner told a gathering of honor students from all over the country. "I was easily convinced by my pro-

HOLLYWOOD - Ann and Nancy Wilson are the heart of Heart, a sextet that has rocketed to the top of the charts from seemingly out of nowhere. Dark-haired Ann is the band's lead vocalist and flutist, and composes most of Heart's music. Sister

"Dreamboat Annie," was a tremendous success, not only selling by the hundreds of thousands in the United States, but also earning gold and platinum status in Canada and Australia.

Actually, Heart did not come out of nowhere. The group had been playing in Vancouver, B.C., for four years before relocating in Seattle and launching 'Dreamboat Annie.'' Heart is high on scholarship. Ann studied at the

Cornish School of Fine Arts in Seattle. Her sister also studied the arts for two years at the university level. Roger Fisher, one of the founders of Heart, has been studying guitar since his teen years. Bassist Steve Fosen majored in music at Shoreline Community College in Seattle. Percussionist Michael Derosier went to college on two music scholarships (he lists Buddy Rich as one of his main influences). Keyboard-guitar specialist Howard Leese studied music at Los Angeles City College. Sound like a stuffy bunch? Maybe - until you hear them blast off on some heavy rock on their second album outing, an LP called "Little Queen" for CBS Portrait Records. Heart has the look of a big-time winner.

Also getting salutes: PORGY AND BESS - Houston Grand Opera (RCA) A magnificent performance of the George Gershwin folk classic is caught here in this three-record set. The Houston Grand Opera version of "Porgy and Bess" has been hailed widely — and with good reason. This is living, vibrant art, as timeless as the eternal summer of Catfish Row.

HOT - Big Tree (Atlantic) — Gwen Owens is black, Cathy Carson is white and Juanita Curiel is Mexican-American — and together they add up to a sizzling, smoking vocal trio that dishes up soul, pop and southof-the-border sound. Their first hit was "Angel in Your Arms," which they have done in several languages. Integration works with Hot. JOHNNY PAYCHECK - Slide Off of Your Satin Sheets (Epic) — Country boy Paycheck sounds a little restive in this one, like he might be aiming at heading for the big city to rock awhile. Especially rockish is a tune Paycheck penned with the jawbreaking title of "I've Got Them Lookin' in the Mirror, Wonderin' Where My Woman Went Blues.' She went back to the country, Johnny.

GOLDEN EARRING - Mad Love (MCA) - Dutch quintet blazes away with hard, basic rock. George Kooymans and Barry Hay scream the vocals. Look for no delicate nuances here. It's raw

Architecture show at UT

AUSTIN — A large photographic collection depicting the colonial architecture of Mexico is on current display at the Michener Gallery of The University of Texas.

Titled "Folk Baroque in Mexico: Mestizo Architecture Through the Centuries," the exhibit presents some of the beautiful but little-known art forms embodied in the architecture of the provinces of Mexico when it was under Spanish rule in the 16th to 19th centuries.

The architecture is considered neither totally Spanish nor totally Indian, but the creation of a "mestizo" (mixed blood) nation that applied a creative exuberance to haciendas, convents, palaces and churchyards.

Photos in the Michener Gallery display were made by Judith Hancock de Sandoval, an American artistphotographer who made an extensive survey of photographer who made an extensive survey of Mexican colonial architecture several years ago for the Organization of American States. Photographs in the exhibition include tile and stucco facades, carvings on buildings in the "silver cities," plazas and churchyards of Yucatan, Michoacan and Chiapas, and examples of native art in Puebla, Oaxaca and the Valley of Mexico, including chapels, altars, porticos, naves, bell towers and cloisters.

UT's Michener Gallery is located in the Harry Ransom Center at 21st and Guadalupe streets. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays, I to 5 p.m. Sundays.

Too much petroleum may be new problem

The Washington Post WASHINGTON - A new and embarrassing word threatens to creep into the nation's energy debate in the coming months, one which could wilt the political ardor for tough and farreaching energy measures. The word is "glut.

The crisis rhetoric of recent months has not focused on it, but oil experts generally agree on this: for the next three years or so, the world is going to have plenty of oil - probably too

"There is no question," said an official from one international oil company, "there will be an oil surplus — a glut, if you will - between now and 1981, due to new supplies from the North Slope and North Sea.

J. Wally Hopkins, an international expert in Paris, who monitors supplyand-demand for the industrialized nations, observed:

"The surplus presents a very real problem today because of the lead times involved in ensuring that we have oil in the future... The arrival of supplies from the North Sea and Alaska give us very welcome breathing space.

Clement B. Malin, the Federal Energy Administration's assistant director for international affairs, acknowledges this "softening" in the

"I call it three years of grade, not three years of glut," Malin said. Whatever one calls it, the shortterm future confronts President Carter and his energy planners with a prickly political problem. It does not necessarily contradict what the Carter Administration has been saying about the "energy crisis" ahead because their dire predictions a recast further into the future, based on what they expect by 1985. In the meantime, there is this embarrassing 'hump," as one official called it, a period of several years when the world's excess capacity" in oil production is expected to increase sharp-

least, the "grace" period undercuts the economic incentives which are supposed to prod private capital into investing in new oil wells or alternative sources of energy. The surplus will be a "contrary signal" to American consumers, too, who are already rather skeptical.

"That's going to be Carter's biggest problem," said a Washington official from a major oil company, "convincing people to conserve when we're awash in crude oil. It should be a concern to everybody in this town. When the surplus comes, it's going to comed really hard aind fast. An administration energy official put it this way: "That's why it is important to get as much legislation through now as possible - before your credibility gets undermined, at least temporarily

None really expects it. Too many dominant players have a shared interest in maintaining high-priced oil - including the OPEC nations, the major oil companies, the British government and the United States

'We have entered into a whole new theory of economics in this country, complained Bruce Wilson, oil analyst for the investment banking firm of Smith, Barney, Harris, Upham. "If you have a national policy to increase production, it should drive prices down. Yet today we are pro-rating supply to maintain a high price struc-

the Carter Administration has premised all of its energy conservation proposals on higher prices for oil consumers and its tax measures are hinged on the world price set by the OPEC nations. Surplus would threaten that price, but officials assume that surplus can be avoided if OPEC nations simply cut back on ex ports, particularly from Saudi Arabia, the wealthiest partner.

This balancing off of supply-anddemand is hardly new; it has been a regular dynamic of international oil for at least two generations. But the impending situation will demonstrate how much U.S. interests have coalesced with Arab oil interests in both price and supply. The days of hot political rhetoric, talked of "breaking" the OPEC cartel price or establishing "energy independence" from the Arabs, are dead and forgotten, replaced by a new reality of interlocking political-economic in-

But maybe you'd better think twice.

As reported in the New York Times of July 8, 1877, here are some of the things that happened on the last 7-7-77 — 100 years ago:

-More than 700 unlicensed dogs were drowned by the New York City dog pound, as owners of lost dogs scurried about trying to find their pets. "There was more excitement at the pound yesterday than at any time since its opening," the Times said.

-The German bark Auguste arrived in London "with her bulwarks and stanchions broken, her rigging carried away, and otherwise damaged, having been in a collision." -Otis Hodge's machine shop and foundry at North Adams, N.Y., was destroyed by fire, at a loss of $20,000. He had $8,000 insurance.

-A horse named Idalia stepped up to the starting post at Monmouth Park, N.J., a favorite because she had already bested her competition, Zoo Zoo. But Idalia became uncontrollable, tried to bolt and lost the race before it started. "A more sorrowful looking set of men than Idalia's backers'were never seen on a race course," the Times commented. -Two deputy sheriffs showed up at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Saviour at Madison Avenue and 25th Street to confiscate ornaments, the organ, furniture and the like on behalf of the Rev. Dr. Abraham Carter, the pastor, who said he had not been paid for some time. The church also couldn't open for services the next day, Sunday. On 7-7-77, the deputies had taken the keys. —It was a lucky day for Philip Donohue of Elizabeth, who spent six hours buried in a collapsed well the night before but was rescued at just about midnight, as July 7 started.

-But it was the opposite kind of luck for a man named Daniel O'Leary, who chose 7-7-77 as the day on which his boast that he could walk 520 miles in six days would meet the moment of truth. He had been walking for five days already and covered 741/2 miles on 7-7-77, but it wasn't enough. Just after midnight, he quit - 481/2 miles short.

However, a word of encouragement comes from Robert Ball, director of the Astrological Metaphysical Research Center in Coral Gables, Fla.

A child born today "would be unusally sharp of mind, genius

Ball also says the stock market has risen every July 7th. If that claim is true, some investors will be in seventh heaven today.

The commissioners transferred $650,000 to the hospital's operating budget. Also, hospital officials learned they could reduce costs by $84,000 by leasing certain equipment. W.H. "Sam" Glenney, the hospital administrator, expressed his pleasure regarding the budget changes. Had the commissioners not been able to help the hospital, Glenney said, the only alternative would have been to raise room rates 12 to 15 per cent.

Group pressuring for deployment of MX missile

By GEORGE C. WILSON
The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Pressure

building up on President Carter to deploy the Air Force's blockbuster missile, the MX to offset the nuclear might lost through his cancellation of the B-1 bomber.

Paul H. Nitze, a leader of a group called Committee on the Present Danger, said in a press conference Wednesday that what to do about the MX "may well be the next important issue" in the arms debate.

Nitze and his allies contend that the MX, which would be kept mobile in deep trenches 10 miles long to make it hard to hit, is vital to maintain "rough equivalence" with the Soviet Union in nuclear weapons.

Opponents counter that deploying the MX would blow up chances for meaningful arms control and raise fears in Moscow that the United States was building a nuclear offense for striking first.

Carter himself has said he hoped neither the United States nor Soviet Union would deploy mobile missiles with intercontinental range like the

MX. To back up this desire expressed in his first press conference, Carter subsequently reduced the Air Force budget for MX from $295 million to $135 million, a cut of $160 million.

Air Force leaders told Congress in recent testimony that they planned to push that $135 million for fiscal 1978 to about $1 billion in fiscal 1979. How much money to give the Air Force for the MX is one of the questions now confronting Carter and Defense Secretary Harold Brown as they prepare the fiscal 1979 budget to be sent to Congress in January.

"Deployment of the MX system will yield great bargaining leverage," said the Committee on the Present Danger in a statement released Wednesday on arms control negotia-tions. A mobile MX "should be highly survivable" so that some of them could knock out Soviet missiles not used in the first wave.

'MX could significantly reverse the unfavorable trends in the U.S.-Soviet nuclear blance which would otherwise continue unchecked," said the committee in urging that the Carter administration not ban new or mobile intercontinental ballistic missiles or testing of them.

Nitze, in speaking for himself as an individual rather than the committee he helped organize, said Carter should have kept the B1 in production as well as build the MX.

Nitze said the trouble with substituting planes carrying cruise missiles for the B1 penetration bomber is that the Soviets now will be able to concentrate on knocking down the planes before they can launch their missiles.

Asked how the Soviets could verify how many MX missiles were hidden in deep trenches, Nitze replied that "verification comes second" to U.S.

Hiding mobile MX missiles in deep trenches would appear to violate the current accord between the Untied States and Soviet Union which states that "each party undertakes not to use deliberate concealment measures which impede verification by national technical means of compliance" with the interim arms control agreement.

Carter said at his Feb. 8 news con-ference that if the Soviets "would agree to a cessation of the use or deployment of the mobile type missiles, that would be a very important point for us to join them in a mutual agreement." Nevertheless, the MX continues to move along the bureaucratic course.

Heavy beef referendum vote called decisive

DALLAS (AP) - More than 40,000 Texas cattlemen have registered to vote on the federal Beef Research and Information Program and that insures the program's defeat or approval - depending on who you listen

"The registration of 42,888 in Texas (out of a possible 200,000) looks real good for approval," said James D. Sartwelle, chairman of the favoring Beef Development Taskforce, "About 315,000 persons have registered naJay Naman, the president of the Texas Farmers Union, which is against the program, said the strong turnout in Texas is an indication of the cattlemen's concern and "insures" the defeat of the referendum.

The voting, which began Tuesday and will continue until July 15, will determine if cattlemen will be assessed 30 cents for a research and development program on each $100 received when cattle are sold.

Congress, in approving the program last year, said the vote in the so-called beef referendum must be twothirds in favor of approval for the act to become law.

Sartwelle said the collection from cattlemen will raise $30 to $40 million a year for beef research, promotion, consumer education and foreign market development.

The money will be administered by a 68-member board that will be nominated by existing cattlemen's organizations.

If the referendum passes, we will have a lot of fresh new ideas on research," Sartwelle said. "The opposition to the referendum is based on the idea that if they can't run the program, they are against it."

Naman said his group opposes the way the program was created, not its

"The legislation is poor legislation and very vague," he said. "It doesn't assure that livestock producers will. have a voice in the decision-making

Report reveals lack of privacy in SSA office

By EVANS WITT

WASHINGTON (AP) - Dozens of computer terminals sit idle, unattended and often unlocked at night in a huge office in suburban Baltimore.

Property of the Social Security Adminstration, the terminals contain confidential personal information on tens of millions of Americans. Yet they are easy targets for fraud, government auditors say

"Security procedures and controls ... were not adequate to prevent fraud and abuse or to assure compliance with the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974," said the Department of Health, Education and Welfare audit agency report.

For example, the audit found almost half of the 69 terminals in the SSA headquarters were in areas such as large open rooms that could not be locked at The computer's 2,200 terminals all over the country can be locked electronically to prevent unauthorized use. But auditors found 59 of the 69 terminals in the Maryland office were left unlocked overnight at least once in a four-week period. The computer system contains records on the more than 27 million Americans who receive more than $81 billion annually in Social Security checks and Supplement Security Income payments, including the amount of payments, family income and assets, medical histories and marital status. Social Security employes use the computer system to process millions of new claims for benefits receiv-

current benefit payments under the various Social "The weaknesses (in the system) adversely affected the SSA's capability to protect the integrity of ed each year. The system maintains records on all its data and prevent a compromise of personal data retained in the program records," the audit said. There were no cases of frauds or abuse found by the auditors. But they said they didn't look. "We did not attempt to determine whether the system has been misused, but, rather, whether the potential for misuse existed," they said.

The report on the audit, conducted last year, gave a laundry list of the problems with the system, including lack of terminal security:

—Reports on possible violations of computer security were too late to be useful and often were inaccurate

—Too many employes knew the passwords that give access to the personal information, when their jobs did not require such knowledge.

-The computer programs designed to provide additional security were ineffective in blocking unauthorized use of the system.

Reps. John Moss, D-Calif., and Charles Rose, D-N.C., who made the report public, have asked for a General Accounting Office study of the computer system. The study is in preparation.

Trans-Miss brings quality to Midland

begin drifting into the Tall City at the end of the week for practice rounds Saturday and Sunday preparatory to the weeklong Trans-Miss Tournament at Midland Country Club.

In order to qualify at MCC and Hogan Monday and Tuesday, an amateur must carry a stamped-andapproved handicap of three. That in itself guarantees a quality event, still one must poke around in the musty archives of the tournament's past to really appreciate the caliber of golf that will be played here next week.

The past is liberally sprinkled with the names of pro golfing greats who have used the prestigious meet as a springboard to the pros.

THE MOST illustrious graduate of the Trans-Miss championship ranks is Jack Nicklaus who won it in 1958 and

Other former champions whose names ring a bell include Jim Weichers, 1966; George Archer, 1963; Deane Beamen. 1960, Amarillo's Rex Baxter, Jr., 1957; Charles Coe, four times, 1956-52-49-47; Skee Reigel, 1948-1946; Chick Harbert, 1939, and Frank Stranahan, 1941.

Stranahan, the sparkplug heir, never really turned pro, but he was so prominent on the amateur circuit for so many years, he was as well known as many of the pros.

Some pretty good ones have reached the finals only to stagger at the threshold. They include Dean Overturf, 1969; Larry Hinson, 1967, Jackie Cupit, 1960, and Lawson Little,

ONE OF golf's brightest youngsters and one of the Lone Star State's current tour favorites, Ben Crenshaw won at Brook Hollow in Dallas in an all-Texas final in 1972. His opponent was John Paul Cain, the University of Houston golfer from Sweetwater, a frequent Permian Basin competitor in the days of the old Odessa Pro-Am. Last year at Spyglass Hill, Pebble Beach, Calif., 17-year-old Doug Clarke, LaJolla, Calif., beat Dr. Ed Updergraff, the veteran campaigner from Tucson, Ariz, which is noteworthy in that Nicklaus was 18 when he won his first Trans-Miss. Back in 1953, Gene Littler, one of many big names sidelined before ever reaching the finals, was eliminated by Jim Vickers early in the tournament. It was the last time Gene was to lose as an amateur.

One other thing about this tournament that makes it unusual is that it is a match play format, one of the major tournaments that hasn't gone to medal play.

The PGA remained a stubborn holdout for years, steadfastly retaining its head-to-head competition, but eventually it succumbed to TV pressure and adopted medal

Match play was the one event in which the club pro could leave his job for a couple of weeks and play with the big boys and, if he got hot, might even win.

TV, however, didn't like the idea of a Harvey Hometown winding up in the finals against equally unknown Ducky Hooks. After all, it's the Nicklauses, Palmers, Millers, Weiskopfs, and Grahams who sell the advertising and offer some guarantee of viewer interest, so match play became a victim

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) - A meeting of the Texas Rangers' Board of Directors has been scheduled for Friday with two interested parties expected to be on hand to listen to majority owner Brad Corbett's offer to sell his interest for $6 million.

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) -"It's a good thing they made the pin placements so difficult," said Johnny Miller. "Otherwise someone would have shot in the 50s out there.

It was a strange start to the British Open Golf Championship—no wind on Turnberry's Ailsa links, easy driving conditions but cunningly placed holes on the slopes of glassy greens.

Those are the hardest pin placements I have ever seen in one round," Miller said.

Thursday's second round began wth a suprising leader in John Schroeder, the son of former Wimbledon tennis champion Ted Schroeder, who birdied the last two holes late Wednesday to post a four-under-par 66 on the 6,875yard layout beside the Farth of Clyde.

Martin Foster, a relatively unknown Briton, was in second place

"I hope it blows like hell for the rest of the tournament," Trevino said.

But it won't according to the weather experts. They predicted the same freakish calm through Satur-It is not what the locals are used to and not what the British Professional Golfers Association expected when they assigned the Open to Turnberry for the first time in the 117- year history of the tournament. To conteract the easy fairways, officials pitched the holes as awkwardly as they could.

"Sixteen pins out of the 18 were up on the hill of the green," said Nicklaus.

"If you miss a pin on the wrong side you might as well forget it. if you chip to the high side the ball slides down."

Watson, leading money winner on the U.S. tour this year, described the holes as "set like they were on the top of a marble.

THE GREENS varied in pace, which added to the difficulties.

"Some putts are super fast and some are super slow," said Miller. "In the lower parts of the greens, where the grass is more lush, it is slower. On the upper parts the greens are almost parched."

Schroeder's late charge came out of the blue, when most of the 17,600 spectators had gone home-and even some of the course marshals too.

"I think all players should have the same chance," Schroeder said. "If they tell us to start our round late, they ought to see there are marshals-just as there are earlier in the ## 15 yards for Dorsett?

DALLAS (AP) — A bartender and barmaid at a Dallas disco have cited Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett, the Dallas Cowboys' heralded first-round draft choice, for alleged unnecessary roughness.

Dorsett faces two charges of simple assault stemming from an altercation at the night spot early last Thursday. The star running back could be fined up to $200 on each count if convicted of the Class C misdemeanor.

But the former University of Pittsburgh star says the matter would have been dropped if he wasn't Tony Dorsett.

THE COMPLAINTS, filed in municipal court, allege Dorsett punched the bartender and threw a whiskey glass that cut a barmaid. He was not arrested, a Dallas police spokesman said, but will have to answer a sum-

Dorsett, who signed a Cowboy contract worth a reported $1.2 million, said the altercation resulted from a misunderstanding over whether he had paid for his drinks.

He said a bartender asked if he had paid. "And he asked in a way I didn't appreciate," said

THE BARTENDER insisted he move from the bar, Dorsett said, but Dorsett refused to move until he had finished his drink 'He started coming at me. I was just protecting myself," said Dorsett. "I know this: if I hadn't been Tony Dorsett, nothing would have been made of it. I don't know if the bartender knew at the time when he started it who I was, but he found out later.' Dorsett just reached across the bar and punched me," said the bartender, Sammie Emerick, 26. "The police were consulted but he didn't go to jail. I just decided it was best not to put him in jail. I had to get four stitches under my eye,

"He (McEnroe) is a very good competitor, said Amritraj, who defeated McEnroe, 6-3, 1-6, 6-3, Wednesday. "He gets every ball back and makes you play for every point. He's got a very good forehand and a good serve. I was really impressed with him last week."

Last week, the 18-year-old McEnroe, of Douglaston, N.Y., was in the semifinals of Wimbledon, where it took top-seeded Jimmy Connors four sets to eliminate him. However, after losing to Amritraj, McEnroe seemed to have lost some of his mystique.

He wandered about the grounds of the Newport Casino by himself while waiting for a doubles match to start, killing time by munching an ice cream cone

Amritraj, meanwhile, said he was happy with his play-except for the second set. "I thought I played really well in the first set and okay in the third set," he said.

'But in the second set, I hit a smash and hurt a muscle in my arm. But he (McEnroe) played a good second set,

Open update: Hayes fires second round 63

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) -Mark Hayes, a five-year U.S. tour pro, shot a second-round 63, seven under par, to break the all-time record for the British Open by two strokes today and take the early second-round lead.

With his first-round 76, Hayes stood at one-under 139 for 36 holes.

Hayes sank a 12-foot putt on the 500yard, par-five 17th for an eagle three to go eight under par for the round but finished with a bogey on the last hole-his only bogey of a round that included six birdies and an eagle.

Miller shot a four-over 73 that included six bogeys, three on each nine, and only two birdies. He had nines of 38 and 36 and commented, "I just threw the tournament away. The start just killed me.'

Miller bogeyed Nos. 5, 6 and 9 without a birdie on the front side and couldn't get anything going after that.

"The way I'm playing, it's a sin to shoot 74," a disgusted Miller said, adding: "Ah, well, it's just a game."

White House staff may be

By EDWARD WALSH

WASHINGTON - President Carter's government reorganization planners have proposed cutting the White House staff by up to 145 persons and making an even larger cut in the Executive Office of the President, including the wholesale elimination of some agencies, informed sources said Wednesday.

Agencies slated for elimination under reorganization plan, the sources said, include the Economic Policy Group, the Energy Resources Council, the Federal Property Council, the Office of Telecommunications Policy and the Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board.

In two others areas, the reorganizers have suggested elimination of the Council on Wage and Price Stability and possibly transferring some of its functions to the Council of Economic Advisers, and the elimination of the Council on Environmental Quality and possibly transferring some of its func-tions to the Interior Department.

The President is to meet Thursday morning with Office of Management and Budget Director Bert Lance and members of OMB's government reorganization staff to discuss these and other options. tions. Carter received the recommendations last Friday and has promised to submit a plan to reorganize the Executive Office of the President to Congress by July 15.

Under the reorganization authority Congress approved earlier this year, the plan will automatically go into effect unless vetoed by the House or Senate within 60 days of its submission.

The Executive Office of the President includes the White House staff itself plus related operations such as Vice President Walter Mondale's staff, the National Security Council, the Domestic Council, OMB and various boards, councils and commissions that are directly under the President's authority.

What finally emerges in the reorganization plan is likely to be watched closely because it will be the first in a series of plans to be submitted to Congress and because of Carter's pledge - as yet unfulfilled to cut the size of the White House staff by 30 per cent.

Sources familiar with the recommendations said they would slash the authorized size of the White House staff from 485 to 340 or 350. The staff now actually numbers close to 580, but some 100 of these people are classified as temporary workers who will return to other government agencies in time

Overall, the sources said, the size of the Executive to somewhere between 1,415 and 1,470.

From the outline of the recommendations as described by various sources, none of the President's senior advisers will emerge from the reorganization substantially strengthened or weakened. But some are likely to fare better than others. For example, the Domestic Council now functions, in effect, as the staff of Stuart Eizenstat, Carter's chief domestic policy adviser. Under one option proposed to the President, the Domestic Council's functions would be broadened, for example, by absorbing into it the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy.

Similarily, the NSC staff headed by Zbigniew Brzezinski would suffer only a minor cut while the vice president's staff would not be touched at all. According to the sources, these are some of the other likely areas where cuts will be made if the

-Hamilton Jordan, Carter's chief political adviser, would lose two staff assistants. One source said earlier during the reorganization planning there was an attempt to make Jordan, in effect, the White House chief of staff, tying all major functions into his office. But Jordan resisted this and as a result his functions will not change dramatically as a result of the reorganization, the source said.

-Press secretary Jody Powell will lose four aides from his operation — two from among those who prepare the daily news summary and two from the speechwriting office, which is also under Powell.

-Congressional relations chief Frank Moore would lose six aides. But this proposed cut may be less drastic than it appears because Moore's office also includes the White House visitors unit and other functions not directly related to lobbying Congress.

-White House counsel Robert Lipshutz would lose two aides, as would Jack Watson Jr., Cabinet secretary, while Margaret (Midge) Costanza's public liaison office would lose three aides.

EPA announces new guidelines for experiments

WASHINGTON - The Environmental Protection Agency Wednesday announced it will impose stringent new safety guidelines to protect human sub-jects in future EPA medical experiments — more stringent than "any guidelines now existing in any government agency tht we know of," according to an EPA official.

The announcement was part of the agency's explanation to Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) and Adlai E. Stevenson (D-Ill.) of recent Newsday disclosures that showed senior EPA officials had planned to experiment with known cancer-causing chemicals to feeding massive amounts of them to In her letter to the senators, Deputy EPA-ministrator Barbara Blum said the new restrictions would supplement those in effect since 1975. Developed by the Department of Health Education and Welfare, the standards require signed consent statements from all subjects participating in the tests. The experiments also must be approved by third-party review boards.

Elizabeth Sulliyan, special assistant to Blum, said EPA's new policy on human experimentation will be published by the end of the month. "In three weeks EPA will make a decision on whether to rule out any future testing of known carcinogens on humans, "And if they are not totally ruled out, the agency will spell out the circumstances under which they might be permitted. Our own guidelines will be more strict than any existing government guidelies. Along with the announcement of a new policy, the EPA enclosed a booklength report on the background of the proposed human tests disclosed by Newsday

May 11. The EPA report showed that EPA officials had initially considered a proposal to feed known cancer-causing fungicides called EBDC to prisoner volunteers in a Tennessee state prison.

After this proposal was rejected, EPA officials worked with a major manufacturer of the fungicide group, Rohn and Haas Co., of Philadelphia, to develop test protocols for testing the fungicides on student volunteers. And, finally, in order to escape strict limitations on human experiments in the United States, EPA officials attempted to get funding the states. ding for a contract with a hospital in Mexico City to test massive amounts of EBDC, "if possible up to 1,000 times" higher than normal exposure, on Mexican citizens.

NEW DELHI, India back at Indira Gandhi's 21-month "national emergency" government are being told chilling tales of torture and even murder of political prisoners.

Prime Minister Morarji Desai's government has launched a comprehensive investigation into alleged atrocities of the emergency period that began in June 1975, and the results of the inquiry are expected to be made public by the end of year.

Meantime, however, two Indian magazines and a highpowered citizen's committee are putting before the Indian public a stark picture of what they charge were the emergency's widespread, officially sanctioned methods of political repression. During Mrs. Gandhi's emergency, which ended with her Congress party's defeat in national election in March, some underground pamphlets spoke of police brutality during the interrogation and detention of political prisoners.

But exposes published in recent issues of the biweekly magazine India Today and the small, respected monthly Seminar have shocked many Indians with the first widely circulated reports of political torture, including several first-person accounts by victims.

Mrs. Gandhi's government blamed these so-called "excesses" of the emergency on lower-level state officials acting without official sanction. Her government also denied such "excesses" were widespread and claimed they had occurred only in isolated instances.

The new government has said that under Mrs Gandhi's regime at least 35,000 political dissidents were detained under an internal security act allowing the government to hold prisoners without trial or stated charges for up to two years. Tens of thousands of other political dissidents were held under Indian laws. So far the total figure has not been made public. All but a few of the political prisoners have been released.

The new government has not revealed its initial findings about the extent of police brutality or whether it has evidence that the alleged political torture was carried out in accordance with policies of Mrs. Gandhi's central government.

But the Seminar editor, Romesh Thapar who closed his publication during the emergency rather than submit to censorship, maintains that police brutality had at least the tacit approval of Mrs. Gandhi's son Sanjay, who Thapar and many others feel was the main architect of the emergency. "Sanjay controlled everything," Thapar said in a recent interview. "If people didn't carry out his orders, they were

Boys, terrapins train to 'run for tomatoes'

LADONIA, Tex. (AP) — It took some last-minute summer rains to flush out enough competitors to "run for the tomatoes" and save this

And 9-year-old Scott Franklin has been taking advantage of the situation, capturing and training his 25 terrapins for the race in this tiny Fannin County community

Scott knows a good thing when he sees it. On the day of the race, he and his 5-year-old brother Shawn will be selling the terrapins for 50 and 75 cents each to competitors in the 500.

For the more expensive price, a purchaser can get a model that Scott says is "real, real fast" although he doesn't think he has any that will beat the record set in 1973 when a terrapin covered the 500-inch course in 35

Just a few weeks ago officials of the Frontier Day Celebration were worried that there might be too few terrapins to have a good race during the fifth annual event.

Hot, dry conditions, said Bob Hayes, the "racing commissioner," had forced the terrapins into seclusion. But when the rains came, so did the terrapins.

Now Hayes figures as many as 50 terrapins will be trying for the crown Saturday in a race where only one racer, the record holder. Homer Whittkohl, has ever broken the one minute barrier.

Hayes says, however record was aided by her laying an egg less than two hours before going to the starting line

Economic laws have little effect on medicine's cost, availability

By LAWRENCE MEYER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Federal health policy-makers, who have been struggling for years with an over-supply of hospital beds that is costing Americans more than $1 billion a year, are now becoming concerned that they may soon have another costly problem on their hands: too many doctors.

Although estimates vary, the United States faces an increase of anywhere from 28 to 40 per cent or more in the supply of physicians per capita. Since economists calculate that each physician generates $250,000 or more in salary, fees and other charges, such a large growth in the number of doctors is alarming to policy-makers trying to find ways of bringing the rising cost of medical care under control.

It seems incongruous that while some policymakers are still trying to find ways of getting physicians into the estimated 4,000 communities that are still considered to have too few doctors or too few of the right kind, other policy-makers are worried that the country will soon be over-doctored.

Between 1963 and 1973 the federal government, trying to relieve a perceived shortage of doctors and nurses, spent about $3.5 billion to develop medical personnel. In 1971, acting to meet an estimated shortage of 50,000 physicians, Congress increased medical school openings from 9,000 to an estimated

By 1976, the pendulum had begun swinging the other way. The Carnegie Council on Higher Education warned that "we are in serious danger of developing too many medical schools.

In that same year, Congress enacted legislation aimed at easing geographic and speciality shortages somewhat by providing incentives to medical students to enter these specialties and to practice in areas where shortages exist

The law also moved to restrict the entry of foreign medical graduates, who, since the early 1950s, have been filling an increasingly large number of positions in the United States.

No consensus exists on the ideal ratio of population per physician. The range of estimates varies considerably. What can be said, however, is that increasing the supply of physicians does not necessarily result in better health. "It should be noted," say the authors of the book, "Primary Care in a Specialized World," "that many countries with less favorable physician-to-population ratios have equally good or better health status statistics than the United States.

The United States now has about 175 physicians per 100,000 population, placing it behind Israel, the Soviet Union, Italy and West Germany in the per capita supply of doctors. By 1990, according to current estimates, the United States will have anywhere from 225 to 240 or more physicians per 100,000. One of those concerned about an impending surplus is Howard Hiatt, dean of the Harvard School of Public Health. "We're going to very shortly (be) graduating twice as many doctors as we did 10 years ago," Hiatt said in an interview. "I don't think the country begins to realize that that's going to be twice as many people putting pressure on the

At the current rate of increase in spending, the of the country's most prominent health economists, country will be spending $243 billion annually by discusses a study of surgeons in the New York 1980, in excess of 10 per cent of the gross national pro- suburb. "The surgical workload of the typical Suppose I said to you there are too many tennis professionals," an administration official said in an few surgeons were very busy, with 25 per cent of the interview. "In a sense, it's a meaningless expression. Too many against what standard? But if you said, were doing simple procedures often assigned to say you want to keep health costs within nine or 10 per cent of gross national product, then certainly we'll have a surplus."

In other industries, if a surplus existed, one could expect market forces to take hold and to provide financial incentives to bring about a natural redistribution of physicians to direct them from areas where they are plentiful - for example, the New York metropolitan area, which has about 800 doctors per 100,000 population - to places like Mississippi, which has about 80 per 100,000

But-the economics of medicine are peculiar, or at least different, yielding results that a casual observer would hardly expect.

Large metropolitan areas have more doctors per capita than smaller areas, and the larger the area, according to research, the heavier the concentration of physicians.

A recent study conducted by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare - confirming earlier research — found that doctors in large metropolitan areas charge higher fees, work fewer hours and see fewer patients than their rural and small-town counterparts:

According to Jon Gabel, an HEW economist who has analyzed the data in the survey, two conclusions can be drawn.

First, the more physicians per capita in an area, the higher the fees charged for services. Even after allowances are made for higher costs of living in metropolitan areas, fees charged are higher, according to Gabel.

Second, even though more doctors are present in an area, their annual incomes are not significantly different from their rural counterparts. In other words, there seems to be no correlation between how many doctors are located in an area and how much they make

Urban areas, according to a 1976 report of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, had 73 per cent of the population in 1974 and 86 per cent of the physicians. The ratio of physicians per 100,000 population was almost two and one-half times greater in metropolitan than in non-metropolitan

The concentration of doctors into metropolitan areas and into the more affluent sections of cities appears to do more than simply raise fees.

Prof. John Bunker, an anesthesiologist on the faculty of the Stanford Medical School, compared the number of surgeons in the United States and in England and found that there were twice as many per capita here and that twice as much surgery was being performed here.

Bunker's study did not prove that unnecessary surgery is being performed in the United States, system, ordering tests, prescribing surgery, seeking although he suggested that it was "likely that some unnecessary surgery is being performed in the Fee levels were high enough to insure that even those with small practices made a comfortable living, and the surgeons with the heaviest work loads had very high incomes because the level of fees was generally about the same for all surgeons in the community," Fuchs said.

> Economists looking for an explanation of the ability of physicians to increase prices as the supply of doctors increases offer the theory, widely held but unproven, that physicians have a unique ability to generate the demand for their services.

With health insurance - either private or government - paying roughly two-thirds of the bill for doctors' fees, the argument goes, physicians are able to order tests and procedures and generate income that they could not if the patients were paying the cost

Skeptics argue that medical care may be a commodity that people consume more of as their income increases, and that physicians are meeting a demand rather than stimulating it. Howard Stambler, chief of HEW's Manpower Analysis Branch, said in an interview that an increase in the physician supply to 225 per 100,000 would not necessarily mean that the country had a doctor surplus.

'If we get national health insurance, we may very well need that many doctors," Stambler said. "On the other side, if we get national health insurance and we don't have them, we may have a disaster. We can't bring them out of the woodwork.

Egg, cheese dishes adapt to meals at all hours

This mushroom baked omelet is good for either brunch or supper. Serve with English muffins or croissants and a fruit cup for breakfast or lunch, with a crisp salad and warm French bread

By KAY JARVIS Copley News Service

Eggs and cheese are two of the foods most adaptable to combining in dishes appropriate in the morning and on around the clock to the dinner hour. Souffles and omelets fall into the category. The latter have become well accepted in the home kitchen, but souffles still have the reputation of being difficult and tricky. True, they will fall if held too long after baking. Eggs must be fresh, beaten well, with other-ingredients blended in just before popping the souffle in the oven.

Since souffles cost so little to make, they are a wonderful way to trim the budget while dining luxuriously. Since they must be served immediately, save them for serving to small groups

Omelets are quite another dish. They can be prepared in a skillet or in the oven. Once you become adept, they can be made to order with favorite fillings, in just minutes.

The one shown in photo is baked omelet, good for brunch or supper. It includes green pepper and mushrooms for an extra lift.

MUSHROOM BAKED OMELET

1 lb. fresh mushrooms or 2 cans sliced mushrooms 4 tbsps. butter or margarine

l green pepper, sliced into rings One-half cup sliced onion

One-third cup milk 1 tsp. salt

One-fourth tsp. pepper

One-half lb. sausage links, cooked

Rinse, dry and slice fresh mushrooms, or drain canned ones. In large skillet melt butter. Add mushrooms, green pepper, onion; saute until tender, about five minutes. Set aside.

In large bowl beat eggs with milk, salt and pepper. Stir in vegetables and pour into a buttered 10-inch quiche pan with removable bottom, a 10-inch pie pan or a one-quart shallow baking pan or dish. Top with sausages in pinwheel fashion. Bake at 350 degrees until a knife inserted in center comes out clean, about 25 minutes. Yields six portions.

Good with English muffins or croissants and fruit cup for breakfast or brunch, with a crisp salad (add some watercress for additional flavor) and warm French bread at dinner

This souffle is not a classic recipe, in that yogurt is used in the mixture for a bit more tang and the cheese is melted over the top for a crowning touch. It is meant for dinner rather than brunch.

CHEESE OLIVE PUFF

6 large eggs, separated One-half tsp. salt One-fourth tsp. cream of tartar One-half cup plain yogurt

3 level thsps. flour One-half tsp. mustard

One-fourth tsp. dill weed One-eighth tsp. pepper

One-third cup chopped ripe olives Butter or margarine

Three-fourths cup finely grated Danish Samsoe or Gruyere or Swiss cheese 2 tbsps. finely chopped parsley

Beat egg whites with salt and cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. With same beater, beat yolks with yogurt, flour, mustard, dill weed and pepper until smooth and well blended. Add olives and fold into whites. Turn into generously buttered two-quart souffle dish. Bake at 350 degrees 20 to 25 minutes, until top is set and begins to brown lightly. Remove from oven and sprinkle with cheese and parsley. Return to oven for two to three minutes longer, just until cheese melts. Serve at once. Makes four ser-

Here is an interesting cold vegetable salad relish to serve with a souffle. Combine one-half cup each chopped parsley, tomato and green onion with six tablespoons garlicflavored wine vinegar, two tablespoons packed cup small whole pitted olives. Chill well. Cut one cup each thin cucumber slices and tomato wedges and chill. When ready to use, combine with first mixture. Serve on lettuce, if desired.

The next souffle is much the classic version. The hint of nutmeg is a bonus, as it is in many cheese

CHEESE SOUFFLE

3 tbsps. each butter and flour 1 cup whole milk

Salt to taste Cayenne pepper, a dash One-fourth tsp. nutmeg 2 tsps. cornstarch

3 tbsps, water 6 eggs, separated

Three-fourths cup coarsely grated Swiss or Gruyere cheese, or half-Swiss, half-Parmesan Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Melt the butter in a saucepan and stir in the flour. Add the milk gradually, stirring with a wire whisk until the mixture is thick and smooth. Add seasonings. Combine the cornstarch and water and add.

Beat the yolks into the sauce. Cook about 30 seconds over low heat, remove and stir in cheese. Beat the egg whites until they stand in peaks. Add half the whites to the sauce and stir quickly.

Gently fold in remaining whites. Pour mixture into a generously buttered two-and-one-half-quart souffle dish. Bake until puffed and brown, 30 to 40 minutes. Serve at once to four or five.

MINI RECIPES

Try bean bags. The ingredients can be varied to suit your taste and there are no pans to wash! Cut heavy duty aluminum foil into 16inch squares, allowing 2 squares per bag for double thickness. Spoon beans from 2 cans (28 over mashed potatoes. In-ounces each) brick oven stead, add a little chopbaked beans into centers ped onions and an egg to of 6 foil squares. Top each them and form into patof 6 foil squares. Top each with a combination of ties. Roll in flour and fry brown sugar, one-half teaspoon salt and two-thirds sliced onion, canned pineapple chunks or tomato wedges. Bring corners of foil together and twist to enclose ingredients. Cook on gril 15 minutes, until piping

Don't throw away leftsliced frankfurters, in either butter or chopped green pepper, margarine-very tasty.

A neighbor of mine has been distributing, to her live-alone friends, a recipe for dividing one lone chicken so it makes three different dishes. Her sister, Silvia Lardner, sent her the directions and they worked so well she decided they ought to be

Silvia Lardner is as innovative in her cooking as she has been in her long career. Years ago when she lived in California she was administrative assistant to a famous film producer and coauthored "I Lost My Girlish Laughter," a book about the Hollywood scene. Later she ran her own real estate firm and designed the interiors of model homes. Nowadays she lives in Scottsdale, Ariz., where she is a trouble-shooter for a one-man conglomerate. If you follow Silvia's way with one small chicken you'll be able to feed yourself (and even guests) for a number of meals. How's that for convenience and

SILVIA LARDNER'S THREE-WAY CHICKEN

Have on hand a cut-up 21/2 pound broiler-fryer to use for Chicken Soup, Chicken Salad and Garlic

Chicken Soup: Save the thighs, drumsticks and wings for Garlic Chicken. Cook the liver and eat it. In a large saucepot bring to a boil the rest of the chicken including the heart and gizzard, 4 cups water, a medium onion sliced and separated into rings, a cup each of sliced or julienne carrots and celery, a chicken bouillon cube, a teaspoon each of salt and necessary.

curry powder and two teaspoons of Worcestershire sauce; simmer, covered, until chicken is tender about 40 minutes. With a slotted spoon, lift out chicken and reserve. To the broth and vegetables in the saucepot add a cup of fine egg noodles; bring to a boil and boil gently, uncovered, just until the noodles are tender. Meanwhile, remove the skin and bones from the chicken and discard. Dice the chicken meat (except for one half of the breast which will be used for the Chicken Salad) and return to he saucepot; heat. Serve garnished with minced scallions and-or parsley. Makes about 11/2 quarts. Any soup not served right away may be frozen in desired size

Chicken Salad: Dice the half of the chicken breast you saved and to it add to taste: minced celery, finely sliced scallion, garlic salt, pepper, tarragon or an herb mixture. Add enough mayonnaise to flavor and moisten but not so much that you cover up the taste of the chicken. Chill. Makes 1 or 2 servings, depending on what you serve with it.

Garlic Chicken: For this use the reserved uncooked drumsticks, thighs and wings. In an electric or rangetop skillet, heat a little oil and add the chicken, skin side down, and 12 (yes, 12) cloves of minced garlic; gently brown the chicken on one side; turn and stir the garlic. Sprinkle with pepper, about a teaspoon of a mild herb mixture and a little flour; turn the chicken to blend the flour into the oil. Turn skin side up again and sprinkle with a little Japanese soy sauce; cover and cook gently until tender (about 40 minutes), checking occasionally to turn chicken if

COLLEGE STATION - Peaches and lake fish promise lower prices, eggs and turkeys are reasonable, and beef offers several "specials," according to one report.

Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, summarizes this week's food buys as FRESH FRUITS—Peach prices coming down, while other good choices are pineapples, winter pears, bananas, grapefruit, oranges and lemons. If you want french fries that are extra crisp, try new Ore-Ida Crispers.

Regular french fries merely bend. But new Ore-Ida Crispers" are so crisp, you can actually snap them.

That's because they're specially made for oven heating.

They have little ridges that lift them off your cooking sheet and let the heat circulate around them evenly.

So you get french fries that are probably crisper than any others you've eaten. New Ore-Ida Crispers! Snap 'em up.

Optometrist sets sights on handcrafting guitars

DENNISON, Ohio (AP) - By day, Dr. John Romig earns his living as an optometrist; by night he enjoys life as

For the layman, a luthier is one who makes stringed instruments.

Romig makes classical guitars. He's been trying to play the guitar off and on for 20 years but said he never got past page one of book one in his instruction

Three years ago, during a visit to Williamsburg, Va., he watched craftsmen making guitars by hand.
"I talked to them and told myself I could probably do it."

could probably do it if I figured out how," he said. Back home, he started research.

The library ordered an instruction book for him He already had some wood carving tools but found he had to fabricate other tools. One was a device to cut the sound hole and another for edging the binding. His only power equipment is a saw but he found it of little value in making guitars.

All the work is done with hand tools a coping saw, hand plane, sand-paper, chisels and glue. The only metal pieces on his guitars are the tuning machines in the neck

One of his problems is finding the right wood.

Book traces faith of Abraham Lincoln

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A new book on the religious life of Abraham Lincoln says he became a Christian after his address at the Civil War battlefield at Gettysburg.
The book, "A Heart That Yearned

For God," was written by Frederick Owen, a retired evangelist and biblical scholar.

He makes the backs of the sound boxes of East Indian or Brazilian rosewood. He prefers Bavarian spruce for the top but said scarcity often forces the substitution of western red cedar, cyprus or maple. Honduras mahogany is preferred for the necks. Even with the small amount of wood needed for a guitar, he said the eis often cost $130$-200

Romig builds guitars upside down, starting with the top, or front, of the sound case. He starts with fronts and backs of matching size in 1-4 inch boards. By the time he is through with them, they are planed, chiseled and sanded to a 3-32 inch front and a 1-8 inch back.

The rosewood sides are trimmed to 1-16 inch, soaked in boiling water for an hour or so before shaping. Soaking makes the wood flexible

He has a lot of mistakes lying around his shop, of which he says 'Those are abortive attempts we won't go into.

But with the cost of wood he says he can't afford to be too careless.

Gluing the pieces becomes an intricate process. Some glue joints have to set for several weeks before he can proceed. Haste or impatience at that point, he said, frequently means

Another critical point comes with binding along the edges. It ranges from simple plastic strips to exotic

"The luthier can really express himself here," said Romig. He set out to make five guitars and said he learns more with each one. Each becomes an experiment to see what slight variations mean to the sound.

"I don't ever expect to play them very well," he said. "But I'd rather make them anyhow. It's more fun.'

Colonialism leaves harsh legacy

By TAD BARTIMUS

LONDON (AP) — Orphans of colonislism's dead empires, many of Europe's immigrant minorities live on society's fringe in urban ghettos.

These black people and people of mixed race are a constant reminder of a past infatuation gone sour and a white man's burden grown too heavy to bear.

South Moluccans and Surinamese in Holland, Harkis of Algeria in France, West Indians and Africans in Britain, Mozambicans and Angolans in Portugal - many are outsiders in mother countries which divorced their homelands through war or

Usually their lives are a quiet undercurrent in the mainstream of their adopted cities. But sometimes their frustration explodes into violence, as in the case of the recent South Moluccan sieges in Holland. Some, like the 135,000 Vietnamese and Cambodians in France, appear to have integrated fairly well into the life of their countries' former colonial masters. But elsewhere, the frustrations of unrealized dreams nurtured on a one-way trip from the underdeveloped tropical colonies to the promised lands industrialized plenty have bred widespread discontent and distrust. When ghetto streets are quiet, Western bureaucracies embroiled in economic and political crises tend to ignore the growing militancy of their unhappy immigrants. But increasingly, a second generation of outcasts is reaching maturity in these polyglot pockets founded by their parents after World War II.

Many have never seen Jamaica or Bali or Surinam, but they were raised on reminiscences of balmy breezes and fruit-laden trees and carefree idleness which their homesick parents say they left behind. The stories are better than the realities of slum life. The anger builds - against the government, against the whites, even against the elders who caution against revolt.

When something goes wrong, governments usually respond with a frantic effort to deal with the immediate discontent. But when the situation is defused, governments tend to breathe a sigh of relief and turn their backs again.

Meanwhile, the yearning masses keep yearning. The Dutch are struggling to integrate two groups of former colonials - the South Moluccans and the Surinamamese - into a packed country roughly the size of Maryland. But there is a hard-core group of South Moluccans who

in this decade

The Dutch have tried to persuade the South Molucoans to accept life in a modern welfare state, but most cling to old ways and only about 20 per cent have become Dutch citizens. The exiles originally were settled into old army camps. Most now are resettled in modern housing units where they choose to live apart from their Dutch neighbors a few blocks away. The government subsidizes rent and social projects and often pays for furniture for those moving into new homes.

Unlike the South Moluccans, who want a homeland of their own, the Surinamese, from the former colony of Dutch Guiana on the northeast tip of South America, want to stay in the Netherlands.

When Surinam became independent two years ago, Surinamese came in droves for richer educational and social advantage, and more than 100,000 now live in their adopted country. But large numbers ended up on welfare, and that drain on public funds is resented. An unemployed couple with four children can draw state payments totaling about $425 a month plus rent subsidy and health insurance.

France's foreign ministry estimates more than 135,000 Indochinese live in France.

Most are French citizens who have integrated into French life. Because of religious and cultural ties, intermarriage with French settlers and soldiers in Indochina was relatively common, while almost nonexistent in North Africa. Because of this, Indochinese have adjusted more easily in French society and never faced racial hostility often encountered by Arabs.

Many are doctors, lawyers, architects, and some are in the armed forces. Gen. Nguyen Van Hinh until recently was chief of staff of the French air force. Some 55,000 Indochinese from Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos, have come to France as refugees since the fall of Saigon in April 1975. The French government takes in another 1,000 a month from Thailand and elsewhere and settles them in their own homes, with government assistance. But the bitter Algerian war of independence left the French with more than 200,000 refugees, or "Harkis," an Arab word for auxiliaries. They fought a losing battle to keep Algeria French and fled in 1962 to escape reprisal in their newly independent homeland

Despite their French citizenship, they have failed want independence for/their home islands. Angered to merge into French society. Some 1,500 have lived by repeated Dutch refusals to support their goal, in "transit camps" in southern France for the past 15 they have staged numerous acts of terror or protest, years. Another 6,000 live in government-sponsored forestry projects. But most exist in urban slums, blending in with the nearly one million Algerians - who hold Algerian passports and are employed by French industry. The Algerians complain of widespread racial violence and discrimination. The Harkis have a further complaint - rejection by many Frenchmen despite their French citizenship and their fight to retain French rule in Algeria. The Harkis generally are not politically active, but many younger Harkis are turning to activism.

"Violent methods are the only way left open to us," one camp inmate said recently. "The French government never moves unless someone is actively embarrassing it.'

When Algerian authorities tried to prevent a Harki's 7 year old son from returning to France after visiting his grandparents in Algeria, a group of armed Harkis burst into a factory canteen, kidnaped four Algerian workers and held them until the boy was returned.

But the West Indians, the most militant of Britain's black minority, haven't been absorbed into English society. Those who have jobs perform mainly menial tasks. Sociologists say the younger ones born and raised in Britain are alienated from their parents and consider them whipped by the white system. Much of the blacks' hostility is focused on police.

Britain's whites feel threatened by the West Indians, Pakistanis, Indians and Africans because of the high unemployment in the country. But unemployment among young blacks runs about 20 per cent, twice as high as it is for young whites.

PAY RAISE. Rejected, 181 for and 241 against, an amendment to kill the $12,900 pay raise for members of Congress. The amendment in part sought to rescind the raise by rolling members' salaries back to the previous level of $44,600. Defeat of the amendment thus left intact the raises for congressmen and certain high executive branch officials. The measure was proposed to HR 7932, a fiscal 1978 appropriations bill later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Philip Crane, R-Ill., a supporter of the amendment, said: There are many other arguments that can be raised in opposition to funding the pay increase that Congress indulgently permitted to go into effect last February . . . but rather than reiterate them let me simply repeat that I believe this pay rise is wrong and I believe it should be

Rep. Edward Koch, D-N.Y., an opponent of the amendment, said: "For some members rescinding the pay increase is demogoguery and this group includes several millionaires. . . The honest and hard working men and women of the Congress deserve

U.S. CAPITOL FACADE. Rejected, 204 for and 212 against, an amendment to block construction of a new facade along the west front of the Capitol. The amendment sought to kill a $55 million expenditure for a new west front. It was proposed to HR 7932, an appropriations bill later passed and sent to the Senate. At issue is the crumbling front of he Capitol that faces the W and the Washington Monument. Some congressmen say it can be strengthened without changing the existing facade, which is the last remaining visible portion of the 177year-old building. But others favor construction of a marble wall from 19 to 60 feet deep along the entire west front, in order to shore up the crumbling section and provide additional office and leisure space for members. It is for the latter plan that the $55 million is earmarked.

ROLL CALL REPORT

Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., sponsor of the amendment, said: "We should not change the existing shape of the Capitol. I do not think there is any reason why we should deface it or come up with a new architectural shape. . . . I think if we took a poll of the American people. . .they would say overwhelmingly: 'Leave the Capitol alone.' "

Rep. John Flynt, D-Ga., an opponent, said: "Today no observer of the west front of the Capitol could fail to see that (it) is today in unsound and unsafe structural condition. . . . We have a choice of restoring what is there now with no assurance that it will be any stronger when the job is completed. . .or to tear away the present West Front, rebuild it and reconstruct it with the new extension.

Members voting "yea" oppose construction of a new West Front.

Wilson, Collins, Mattox, Archer, Eckhardt, Jordan, Krueger and Gammage voted "yea." Hall, Roberts, Brooks, Pickle, Poage, Wright, Young, de la Garza, White, Burleson, Mahon, Gonzalez, Kazen and Milford voted "nay." Teague and Hightower did not vote.

B-1 BOMBER Rejected, 178 for and 243 against, an amendment to end production fo the B-1 bomber. It sought to cut from an appropriations bill about $1.4 billion for production of five B-1's in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. The five would add to the three B-1's already built. Eventually the Air Force wants 244 B-1's. The amendment was proposed to HR 7933, the fiscal 1978 Defense Department appropriations bill later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, a supporter of the amendment, said: 'Simply stated, the B-1 will necessitate either a reduction in conventional equipment and weaponry of vital importance. . .or a curtailment of funding for domestic programs of consequence to the health of our country.

Rep. William Ketchum, R-Calif., an opponent of the amendment, said: "It is beyond my comprehension how we can sit here today; and even suggest that procurement for the B-1 be (stopped). . . Through the B-1 this country can be assured of maintaining its military defense by air. What this bomber represents is the finest technological advancement any nation has been able to achieve in the field of strategic bombers." Members voting "yea." were opposed to continued B-1 production.

ABORTIONS. Adopted, 56 for and 39 against, an amendment permitting the use of Medicaid funds for abortions in cases where the birth would endanger the life of the mother, where the pregnancy resulted from rape or incest, or when "medically necessary." The amendment was attached to a Department of Health, Education and Welfare appropriations bill (HR 7555), later passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., the sponsor, said: "My amendment would leave medical decisions where they so clearly belong, with the doctors. . . For us to do otherwise would be an arrogance which will have the most tragic consequences.

An opponent of the Brooke amendment, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., asked in earlier debate: "Who knows how many senators, how many presidents, how many doctors and lawyers, how many scientists might be in the group of innocent unborn children whose lives could be terminated deliberately through the use

Senators voting "yea" favor federal funding of abortions under special circumstances.

Sens. Lloyd Bentsen (D) and John Tower (R) voted "yea."

BUSING. Rejected, 42 for and 51 against, an amendment to strike antibusing language from the fiscal 1978 appropriations bill for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The bill (HR 755) was later passed and sent to conference with the House. Failure of this amendment left in the bill a prohibition against federal spending for busing to implement school desegregation plans.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., a supporter of the amendment, said: "It really is almost disheartening, as an American coming from the very same minority origins myself, to now have to still debate this very same rear guard action against common human decency, sustained by all the judges of the Supreme Court unanimously only yesterday (in Dayton and Detroit decisions).

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., an opponent, said he opposes busing "in large part on my view that districtwide busing in cities with predominantly black school populations will lead ultimatley to less, rather than more, integration, and also on the corollary principle that interdistrict, or metropolitan, remedies are probably not feasible in most areas, based on a reading of the Supreme Court's opinion in the Detroit case and its actions in similar VIETNAM PARDONS. Rejected, 38 for and 44 against, an amendment to appropriate money to implement the pardon of Vietnam-era draft resister that President Carter ordered on Jan. 21, 1977. The amendment sought to delete appropriations bill (HR 7556) language restricting spending to carry out the pardon. HR 7556 later was passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., the sponsor, said the money must be appropriated because Congress lacks authority to prevent President Carter from "exercising his constitutional authority to pardon.

Sen. Earnest Hollings, D-S.C., an opponent, said: "I know it is divine to forgive and forget, but I cannot forget the 56,000 and some we sent over there who never did get back, plus the 253,000 and some who were maimed for life.

Senators voting "yea" support Carter's pardon.

Money management

State Rep. Frank Hartung of Houston introduced a bill (H.B. 1984) in the regular session of the legislature, providing for modernized money management of the state's cash balances.

The bill, it is said, would save Texas taxpayers $42.6 million each biennium.

Although the proposal passed the House by an overwhelming margin (127-5), it died in the Senate

Rep. Hartung now is conducting a campaign to have Gov. Dolph Briscoe include such legislation on the agenda for the upcoming special session.

This appears to be sound legislation, involving a tremendous amount of money which could be saved for the taxpayers of Texas. Since the special session will deal with providing money for schools, and since interest earned on well-invested funds could be used to help finance schools, it seems that this matter should be placed on the agenda for the special session. House Speaker Bill Clayton is quoted as saying that it is essential that this legislation be passed as soon as possible. Hartung said the Speaker has written the governor requesting its inclusion on the special session agenda. Under the legislation as proposed millions of dollars could be raised for the state merely by investing more money in savings accounts than in interest-free checking accounts. Hartung explains that every month that this legislation is delayed, Texas loses almost $2,000,000 in interest.

He goes along with the governor in his belief that Texas should have no new taxes.

"In my letter urging Governor Briscoe to include money management in the special session," Hartung said, "I pointed out that if Texas is to avoid new taxes, it is imperative that each department and agency operate with efficiency and economy.

"Money management at the Treasury is the most fruitful place in state government to seek efficiency. No other agency or department could generate the $42 million available through proper money management." He also points out that his proposed legislation provides a way to increase spending for education without increasing the taxpayers' burden.

Hartung pointed out in a press conference held late last month at Austin that at the end of the last fiscal year, more tham $400 million was on deposit in checking accounts, where it was drawing no interest. This money was scattered in approximately 1,300 banks with most of the accounts having no activity for periods of months or even years, he continued. He terms this scandalous inefficiency. It really doesn't sound like a good business

Over a five-year period, the state lost $91 million because of a failure to invest more money in savings accounts, according to research done for the Hobby-Clayton Committee on Government Operations.

To reverse this situation,

Hartung said that Texas should: 1. Limit demand deposits to banks actually providing banking services to the state, thus ending the practice of leaving funds idle. 2. Require competitive bidding for time deposits. Provide additional investment authority for the Treasury and Depository Board to invest in savings and loan accounts in Texas, as well as U.S. Government securities and Federal Agency securities.

He said that many Texans already have asked the governor to include legislation of this nature on the special session agenda. He hopes that others will do likewise.

Let's let the legislature have another shot at this revenueproducing proposal.

Nation's job picture

The Minneapolis Star, in a recent editorial, pointed out that Henry Wallace, onetime vice president of the United States, was derided as a visionary when he predicted in 1945, that someday there would be 60 million Americans employed

"If his critics laughed then, they would have howled if he had raised that forecast by 30 million," the editorial continued.

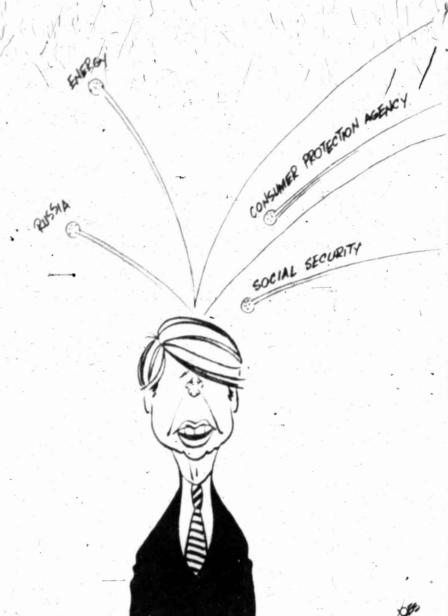

Yet recently, the Labor Department reported that 90.4 million Americans were working.

"What remains troubling. nevertheless, is the continued high rate of unemployment among urban young people, whites and minorities," the Minneapolis newspaper said.

"This problem is compounded by rapidly changing technology and the disappearance of low-skill jobs. It is one that can be solved only by renewed emphasis on education and skills training."

Story of oil price rise told

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON - In sheer dimensions, the Watergate scandal will take a back page in history to the oil scandal. We now have evidence that Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger could have prevented the spectacular oil price increase, which has dislocated the world economy and sent all prices spiraling.

The evidence is contained in secret documents, which we have studied closely. We have also interviewed key Nixon Administration officials familiar with the backstage developments. Here is the incredible Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil producer, wanted to hold down prices. The Saudis foresaw the ruinous effect high oil prices would have on the western world But they were under intense pressure from the other oil powers to join in the oil price squeeze.

The Saudis appealed to the United States, therefore, to help them keep the lid on oil prices. They realized that Washington had the leverage to restrain the shah of Iran. For the shah literally owed his throne to the United States, which has also been the source of his power since World War II.

The Saudis, quite logically, tended to judge U.S. intent by the shah's attitude. They were puzzled, therefore, over his clamor for exorbitant oil prices. All it should take, they reasoned, was a little U.S.

pressure to bring the shah into line. The Saudis repeatedly urged then-U.S. Ambassador James Akins, according to Akins' own secret account. "to put pressure on the shah to cooperate with Saudi Arabia and reduce the oil prices." Yet the shah kept calling for outrageous price increases

Finally, the late King Faisal took up the problem directly with Kissinger in 1974. According to a secret account of their conversation, "the king urged him directly to take up (oil prices) with the shah, and the secretary agreed to do so. Kissinger reported back to King Faisal on Feb. 15, 1975, that he had tried to persuade the shah to reduce oil prices. Sources close to Kissinger have told us this was a lie. The Secretary of State made no attempt, they say, to restrain the shah.

Later the shah himself told the Saudis that Kissinger had not brought up oil prices with him. Adding another jigsaw piece, Ambassador Akins offered this secret intelligence:

"The Iranian had told (the Saudis) we were completely unconcerned about any price rise. The shah has also told this to numerous oilmen as proof that the U.S. is at least indifferent to an increase in oil prices. In any case, the Saudis have seen no account from any American source that we in any way tried to pressure the shah to back off his extreme position on oil crisis. Ultimately, the Saudis became convinced that the Nixon Administration secretly favored the oil gouge. They gave up their attempts, therefore, to stand alone against the greedy oil potentates. The Saudi oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, later explained this to then-Treasury Secretary Willian Simon in a letter dated Sept. 3, 1975, and marked

'strictly personal. 'We would like you to know," wrote Yamani, "that there are those amongst us who think that the U.S. Administration does not really object to an increase in oil prices. There are even those who think that you encourage it for obvious political reasons and that any official position taken to the contrary is merely to cover up this fact.'

An alarmed Simon wrote a six-page memo to Gerald Ford who had replaced Richard Nixon in the White House. The Saudi royal family had informed him personally, wrote Simon, that "Saudi Arabia would press OPEC for lower prices" but that they "need the U. S. to help turn the shah around.

Simon added that the Saudi oil minister had also "written me several times along the same lines. Yamani and others have said they wonder whether, in fact, we want lower prices since we never even raise the subject with the shah.

We can't say whether Ford ever asked Kissinger to speak to the shah. But as long as Kissinger remained Secretary of State, our sources say, he never brought pressure on the shah to hold down oil prices.

The Saudis, meanwhile, waited for Kissinger to be removed from power and then made another attempt to hold the line on oil prices. They refused to go along with the full price increase and threatened to boost their production to 10 million barrels a day. This would be sold on the world market, they announced, at no additional price.

But bad weather, a rash of fires and technical difficulties prevented the Saudis from reaching the 10-millionbarrel goal. The other oil powers, with the shah leading the pack, also hounded the Saudis to raise prices.

The shah howled that the Saudi action was costing Iran $6 million a day in lost oil revenues. Any increase in Saudi production at Iran's expense, he warned, would constitute "an act of aggression.

This was followed by an exchange of delegations between the two countries. In Saudi Arabia, the Iranian representatives urged the Saudi government to reverse its policies. In Iran, the Saudi emissaries. let the shah know that the royal family didn't appreciate his intemperate outbursts. The shah quieted down, and the Saudis began behind-the-scenes negotiations. They finally agreed to raise their prices another five per cent, bringing them equal to the world price, if the other oil powers would cancel an announced five per cent rise, our sources understand.

ART BUCHWALD Water conservation is costly practice

WASHINGTON - The rest of the country always thinks of Californians as strange people. It isn't really their fault. There is something in the water out there that does it to them.

Walpole, who lives in Marin County, just wrote me a letter explaining why people in Northern California are going off their rockers. We were told," wrote Walpole, "that there was a drought up here and we had to conserve on water. So we did exactly what they asked us to. We rationed our bath water, we stopped watering our lawns, we even thought twice before flushing the toilet. When it came to water conservation we rose to the challenge.

We were a dirty, but proud people. We had 'ring around the collar,' but it was a small price to pay for saving the most precious liquid known to

"Our wives hung up their laundry with 'tattletale gray' but the neighbors never told them they were using the wrong detergent. We drank wine instead of water, we swam in swimming pools filled with algae. Our children wore stains on their clothes to school, and learned to brush their teeth only once a day. We learned the true meaning of the war-time slogan, 'Take a shower with a friend.'

'So what happened? The first thing they did was raise our water rates.

When I called up the water department to find out why, the man replied, 'Because people are using much less water and our revenues are down. We had to raise our rates to compensate for the lost income caused by the conservation measures

we put into effect. I said to him, "You mean to tell me the less water we use the more we have to pay for it?

"That should be obvious to anyone,' he said in a huff. 'Somebody has to pay for the water the people don't use.

"But that's crazy,' I yelled at him. 'You people told us to cut down on water and we did. Now you say we have to be penalized for doing without

We didn't expect everyone to turn off their spigots. You people are all overachievers. We asked you to cut down on the use of water, but we didn't plan on you saving so much water that we would lose money on it. The water department can't run without revenues. "I said 'Well why didn't you tell us how much water to conserve?

"He said 'We wanted you to conserve as much as possible. "That's what we did,' I screamed at him. "He replied, 'Then you have to pay for it. The only way the rates wil come down is if you start using water again. You have to use up your allotments, or we may have to take drastic measures, such as fining and penalizing you for not watering your lawn or taking enough baths. I hate to say this but we're ashamed of all of

"Well, it hasn't been easy on any of us," Walpole continued in his letter. 'Once you're hooked on water conservation it's hard to get off it. I've got the lawn hoses going all day long, the water is now running in the tub, and we're washing our clothes three times a day. I doubt if it will be enough to use up our allotment in time for our next water bill. But we're doing the best we can.

'The last thing I want to do is be has to sell us if it wants to stay in

President Jimmy Carter termed 'master maneuverer'

Carter, with his decision on the B-1 bomber, managed to fool the public and Washington's experts as well. Thus, he must be saluted as a master maneuverer and a President to be reckoned with for some time to come. The merits of the controversial and expensive airplane aside, it is now clear that Jimmy Carter knows how to posture with a tough issue so that

WASHINGTON - President

sion, and the experts creep away chagrined. The public was led to believe. through a series of news stories, that the President was about to reverse his campaign pledge to stop production of the B-1 bomber. The leaks and tipoffs were so convincing that our professional crew of insiders was also positive that Jimmy Carter was about to break his word. Finally, Carter's fainthearted supporters on the liberal left were also persuaded (conned) to expect the worst and fell into their usual state of the glums. All, including me, should be forgiven for not understanding that Carter was preparing public and expert alike for a feeling of relief, joy and admiration with his decision.

Consider/how he beguiled us. The first reports were that the President was mulling this decision like no decision had ever been mulled before. Then came bits and pieces of stories indicating that those who favored full deployment of the bomber were encouraged by their reading of the White House reverberations, said reverberations supposedly coming from Carter himself. The prevalence of Defense Secretary Harold Brown in these deliberations made the insiders (experts) conclude that this scientific bombing man was indeed impacting on his President. After all, Carter wasn't seeing much of Sen. George McGovern during this multing period The Ban-the-Bomber crowd wasn't invited in for beer or peanuts, either. It all loked hawkish. Like a well-constructed play. Carter planted ideas in his audience's mind quite early. Fr. Robert Drinan, a Massachusetts congressman whose Roman collar must be tinted blue for television, joined another liberalactivist, Rep. Ronald Dellums, in meeting with Carter on the B-1 issue. "I think the President is leaning very definitely toward building it. Drinan intoned, as though he were reading a requiem high mass. His funeral tone was matched by downer remarks from the downcast Dellums. Alas, and regret. The cursed bomber will be built. Has the man, though reborn, any integrity

Then, as we came down the home stretch, if we can mix a figure of speech here, that lovable veteran of many Senate years, Jennings Randolph, had breakfast with Carter and, after using his napkin, told newsmen that not only would Carter okay a goahead on production but that there would be more B-Is in the sky than most people figured on. Then, crescendo, as leaks spouted from the White House, leaks which. became rivulets and rivers reaching as far as Atlanta, bearing the Great Word: Carter Will Approve the B-1 Bomber.

Those for the bomber were thrilled to excitement, some of it converted to congressional rhetoric. Those against considered hemlock or reading McGovern's 1972 campaign speeches. If Jimmy the Greek were to have made odds at that point, it would have been 98-2 that the bomber is in. The final touches were last-minute wire reports dutifully reporting that the President had decided to go ahead with the B-1.

"This has been one of the most difficult decisions that I've made since I've been in office. In the last few months, I've done my best to possess all the factors involving production of the B-1 bomber. My decision is that we should not continue with deployment of the B-1, and I am directing that we discontinue plans for production of this weapons system." -President Jimmy Carter's opening statement at Press Conference No. 10 of the President of the United States,

Hot air ballooning coming into own as U.S. sport

By C.C. MINICLIER

DEL NORTE, Colo. (AP) — There is no roar of engines or rush of land-scape past the window, no feeling of movement. The earth just seems to drop away, softly, silently, and the fields spread out below.

There are no seat belts to check, no loud speaker demonstrations of emergency procedures, no gently piped in music. Pilot Frank Rider, his hands off the controls, chats with his two passengers as the wicker basket lifts up and away beneath a 65-foot, pink and blue balloon filled with 77,000 cubic feet of beater as the check.

cubic feet of heated air.

The first manned hot air balloon rose from a courtyard south of Paris on Nov. 21, 1783. Seven years ago, only 17 balloonists showed up for the U.S. national balloon competition in Indianola, just south of Des Moines, lowa. Last year, 242 balloons floated above the cornfields there.

Today there are 1,100 licensed hot air balloon pilots in the United States. Ballooning is rapidly becoming a popular sport among those who wish to mix a bit of adventure with the quiet communion with nature offered by such sports as sailing of canoeing.

"While others are trying to go faster, higher, or louder, you are doing something different," says Rider, a 31-year-old professional balloonist. He gave up a successful sign painting business in Tallahassee, Fla., 15 months ago to devote full time to balloon-

Rider is chief pilot for the Balloon Ranch, located in the San Luis Valley midway between Denver and Albuquerque, N.M. The journal of the Balloon Federation of America, "Ballooning," described the ranch as America's only ballooning resort.

Rider has flown a hot air balloon through the Bermuda Triangle. Link Baum, a former Denver Real Estate salesman who founded the ranch, has piloted one across the English Channel. Co-founder David Levin piloted a balloon over the snow-covered 14,100 foot summit of Pike's Peak earlier this year.

Levin, who went to school with Baum in New Jersey, shed the threepiece suits of his Boston law practice for a parka and dark glasses to acquire his commercial ballooning license, which are granted by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Those who pilot gliders experience the stillness and the wind currents, but have less than half the view of the balloonist — and that only fleetingly. The sport parachutist has the same view, but is busy with intricate maneuvers in the limited time before he pulls his chute and concentrates on a safe landing.

"You are there, but you don't feel it happening to you," says Scott Hamilton, remembering his first balloon lift-off. A skydiver, Hamilton has tried jumping from balloons. Without the air stream of planes, he says, jumping from a balloon is like going off a 5,000 foot diving board.

At 14,000 feet above sea level, or about 6,000 feet above the ground, first-time balloonist Mary Jobe of Littlon, Colo., admits that she would feel more comfortable with a parachute, but declines Rider's offer to go to a lower level.

Rider turns off the pilot light of the propane gas burner used to heat the air within the envelope, as the balloon is called, and tells his passengers to

Except for the occasional creaking of the wicker, there is no sound. To the east are the 14,000 foot peaks of the Sangre de Cristo Range. To the west are the snow-capped San Juan mountains, with the Continental Divide of the Rockies clear perhaps 50 miles

Baum says the valley, with its docile winds, friendly farmers and wide open spaces is a fine "beginners slope," where a novice may make mistakes. No other sport, he says, offers you the chance to study nature at such leisure from such a grand perspective.

Rider leaves the burner off and the balloon drops, with no feeling of motion, to within a few feet of the ground. A few short bursts of the giant torch above the basket heats the air, stopping the descent within inches of the ground.

Riding a gentle breeze, the basket moves across the field, lifting over a fence with a few bursts of heat, settling finally to the pasture soil, and the balloon slowly deflates.

New thesaurus lists 'more appropriate terms'

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A bushranger by any other name is a robber. For that matter, a skookumhouse is a jail, a devil-dodger a clergyman, a smell fungus a critic.

If you're a nipcheese you're a miser, or if you're a lounge lizard you're a hanger on.

All of these peculiar words are actually part of the English language. They are synonyms for the more familiar words. Schnorrer, for instance, is a synonym for beggar, Meddlesome Mattie a synonym for busybody.

If you're trying to find a different way of saying something, what you're looking for is a synonym. The use of synonyms may not make Johnny a better reader, language experts admit, but they just might make him a better writer. If nothing else, they add, his language will be more expressive.

"Often a person is not seeking an exact synonym but a more appropriate term than the one he has in mind," says Dr. Maire Weir Kay, a synonymist and editor of Webster's Collegiate Thesaurus, recently published by G. & C. Merriam Co.

"The user may want a word stronger or weaker in force, or of slightly different meaning. Perhaps a folksy word or idiom is wanted," Dr. Kay notes

Are you looking for another word for "devil," for instance? The Thesaurus lists Old Gooseberry, fiend, Lucifer, Old Scratch, Cloot, Old Nick and Beelzebub. Idiomatically, he is the "Prince of Darkness." A wicked person is an archfiend, a Satanor a succubus.

A swindler, according to Merriam, can be a bunco steerer, a Peter Funk, a flimflammer, a diddler, or a high-binder. A swamp is a puxy as well as a quagmire, a prophet is a haruspex, to neglect is to pretermit.

Do you find someone "strange?" If you're not satisfied with your choice there are lots of synonyms, but if you don't want such general terms there are many related words: perhaps abnormal would be more accurate, or freaky, or offbeat, or crazy, or nutty, or even grotesque — all of which and more appear as related words to strange.

Confidence is key to good writing, teacher-writer says

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Anyone can write, and derive great pleasure from it, says Warren Hecht, a writer and lecturer at the University of Michigan's Residential College (RC)

Hecht has neven required prospective students to submit samples of their work before he accepts them in his courses. Many, in fact, have had little writing experience beyond letters home.

Yet they have acquired 45 Hopwood Awards for creative writing in essay, fiction, drama and poetry at the U-M during the past seven years.

Like many other courses in the RC, a small liberal arts college within the larger university, "creative writing" is designed to stimulate the student's general growth and self-awareness — not just to build technical skills.

"The first step is gaining confidence," Hecht says, "overcoming the self-consciousness of putting words down on paper. From that point, writing is like golf: it takes practice and polishing to develop an effective style. When you have achieved a style that is clear and coherent, you can convey anything."

Hecht does not claim to transform illiterates into Hemingways, but he manages to convince each student that writing is a useful and satisfying art form. His class often has 30 to 50 persons on the waiting list.

PRICE REDUCTION

Recent studies, Hecht notes, have reported a marked decline in students writing abilities and interests in this electronic age. The National Assessment of Educational Progress, for example, found that only about half of the 17-year-olds it Progress, for example, found that only about half of the 17-year-olds it surveyed could even construct simple sentences.

One reason for this, Hecht suggests, is that high school writing courses tend to be taught by English teachers, trained in literature and grammar, rather than by writers themselves.

Hecht was writing poems for his school literary magazine at the age of 6, and has published numerous short stories. As an outlet for other writers, including some of his students, he established the Street Fiction Press in Ann Arbor, which has published some 20 original periodicals and paperbacks.

He says he relishes being able to combine all three aspects of the field—writing, publishing and teaching—in one career in one career.

When students protest that they have nothing to write about, Hecht answers: "I'm sure that at least two interesting things have happened to you during your lifetime. Describe them or lie about them.

"Write about things you know, and don't assume that they won't be interesting to others," he advises.

Beirut tourism dwindles as civil war aftermath

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - In past springs, tourists used to flock to this Mideast oasis for sun and fun. Nowadays, the few who do come prefer to gawk at the not-so-ancient ruins of the Lebanese civil war.

To the chagrin of tourist officials, bombed-out buildings and teeming refugee camps are the top "attractions" in Beirut today. Although the government tourist ministry eagerly awaits a large-scale return of foreigners - and their money - it does not encourage the "ghoul tour" of postwar devastation.

You can't prevent it, but we think it's in bad taste to encourage it," said Habib Letayf, director of promotions for the government tourist ministry.

No matter why they are here, the numbers of tourists coming to Lebanon half a year after the ceasefire is so insignificant the government hasn't bothered to start keeping track. Prior to the 1975-76 war, tourism accounted for 20 per cent of the country's national income.

Today, most of Beirut's 50 remaining hotels are almost empty. Restaurants and clubs usually have more uniformed waiters than customers, except for a handful of "in" spots that have returned to their prewar bustle. Besides the allure of war rubble, there is so far little to bring the American or European tourist back, especially with postwar inflation running at 32 per cent. The Arab tourist - the one with the big money - has also not returned, but some Lebanese are confident that he soon will. "I think they feel more comfortable here than in places like London," said Raffy Gabriellian, a local travel agent

> WANTADS & ACTION dial 682-5311

The tourist ministry in concentrating its immediate efforts on getting Arab oil tycoons back and has written off any campaign to lure Western tourists to Lebanon this year. The government would like the sheiks and princes to reclaim their summer palaces on the city's outskirts and is even sending a delegation down to the Persian Gulf to extend a formal invitation. But some observers here think such optimism is premature. "Even if they do want to come back, and some surely do, let's not forget that the war was largely a Christian-Moslem conflict that has yet to be resolved," said an Arab diplomat here.

Politically, it's too early for Arab leaders to give their blessing back to Lebanon, he said. Looking ahead to 1978, the year they hope the boom will resume, tourist officials have decided to plot a sober, realistic campaign and not try to portray Beirut as fun city arisen from the ashes. Because it hasn't yet, and Lebanon's future is uncertain. While the leaders continue to mull over and bicker about the future look of the country, the economy remains in tatters and this capital is about onethird in ruins.

The old guidebooks, showing mosques which are now rubble heaps, have yet to be revised. The ancient Roman ruins of Baalbeck in northeastern Lebanon suffered some slight damage from bullet holes but are among the few major tourist attractions largely intact.

heast of Grane,

RHODES, Greece (AP) — Rising fuel and labor costs have turned into higher hotel and meal prices on Rhodes, and many tourists have turned elsewhere.

Hoteliers here say their price increases of up to 50 per cent are necessary, but they have brought a corresponding 50 per cent drop in

And different people are coming fewer Scandinavians and other Europeans seeking economy class million tourists who spent $85 million, accomodations, but more of the wealthier Americans and Japanese. The problem is not limited to Rhodes, but has spread to other favorite holiday centers in Greece, such as Crete - a result of the government's decision to limit the increase in numbers and aim for the wealthier visitor.

Rhodes, however, is the No. 1 resort in the eastern Mediterranean, attracting last year just under half a or 10 per cent of Greece's entire tourist income.

Rhodes has become a self sufficient holiday unit, comparable to Spain's Majorca. It is served directly by charters from Europe and North America, basing its fortunes on its weather, beaches and natural beauty, and its combination of cosmopolitan and cultural life.

While super-luxury hotels parallel the Casino, the island also boasts ancient Greek sites, a Venetian castle surrounding a bustling medieval city, and minimum priced package holidays which make it cheaper for the European or American than staying at home.

The price increases have reduced the Scandinavian presence from 80 to 50 percent of the tourist population. Hopes are now being pinned on Americans and Japanese, and the International Airport which goes into operation at the end of May as the largest in the country, Rhodes of-

It can handle one incoming and outgoing flight per minute and up to 4,000 passengers at any one time. With landing and take-off over the sea, the noise problem has been eliminated.

Tzannis Geronikolas, president of the Rhodes Travel Association, said that, despite the price increases, it only costs an American or Japanese $500 for a package two-week holiday. About 10,600 Americans visited the island last year, and only 1,600 Japanese, compared to 140,000 Swedes.

One thing has remained unchanged: the sunshine. Known as the "all-year sunshine island," the Weather Bureau lists Rhodes as averaging 133 sunshine hours in the lowest month of December,

Indonesian shadow puppet show provides diversion, information

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) - Drama presented start with sheer stamina. Wayangs are all-night by the shadows cast by puppets might not wow them on Broadway, but it's been pulling in crowds here for more than a thousand years.

The wayang kulit, or shadow puppet show, is not an Asian version of Punch and Judy. It's an ancient art form with modern political clout. The wayang of 1977 is mass entertainment deeply rooted in Japanese mysticism; the spirits of the dead are believed to inhabit the shadows of the puppets.

More than 20,000 puppetmasters, called dalangs, are active in this country of 135 million, most of them on Java and the resort isle of Bali. Bali accords these itinerant storytellers the same status as priests.

'The dalang, whose talent is more complex than that of a simple puppeteer in the Western sense, is believed to join the characters of the mythology in a world outside time, without past or future," according to one expert.

Sometimes the puppetmaster deals with current

A spokesman said the government had long been aware of the key communications role played by dalangs in a country where only two per cent of the population read newspapers, and radio and TV have limited impact.

At the government's bidding, dalangs have promoted birth control on overcrowded Java, better rice growing methods and the political status quo.

affairs lasting nine hours or more. Some ex-travaganzas require several nights to complete. Dalangs have memorized the lines of scores of verse plays and rattle them off in different accents for dozens of characters. The dalangs sing and chant while weaving through the complex story, and they simultaneously direct a 20-member gamelan, or orchestra, by coded tapping on a foot knocker.

The dalang manipulates his cast from behind a translucent white screen lighted from above to make the puppets appear as black shadows to the audience. Elaborate punchedout patterns give their shadows the look of fine lace.

Themes for the wayang come mostly from the Ramayana and the Mahabharata, Hindu epics brought here 1,500 years ago from India. These, blended with earlier tales of Javanese ancestor cults and historical legends, are presented by flickering

The wayang is a village ritual in Java, held to mark births, weddings, circumcisions or the 'purification' of a home or the entire community.

Musicians play an overture on their gongs, xylophones and drums, while the dalang burns incense and offers prayers before moving behind the screen for his overnight stint. About three hours are devoted to outlining the plot and introducing the main characters, which every Javanese child knows by heart. To end certain acts the dalang may bring on three characters called Garang, Petruk and Semar, whose slapstick exchanges carry any message the puppetmaster is trying to put across. The trio is used to LONGVIEW, Tex. The Javanese town of Klaten has the country's only dalang school, which turns out about five trained puppetmasters each year.

Braniff eyeing Europe

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON Braniff International this week asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for authority to fly between Dallas-Ft. Worth and London, one of the new routes to be opened between the United States and United Kingdom as a result of recently concluded negotiations.

If awarded the route, Braniff said it would designate a limited number of seats on each flight for a one-way fare of $250, a 40 per cent reduction from the current one-way regular economy fare between the two cities (through connections).

Billed the Skytrain" fare, Braniff patterned it after Britain's Laker Airways' recently approved proposal to fly travelers on his "Skytrain" between New York and London for a one-way fare of $135. Like the Laker service. Braniff says it would offer the lower fare without reservations to travelers on a first-come, firstserved basis six hours before flight time.

Under the terms of the new U.S.-U.K. air agreement, airlines of both countries get air rights from four new U.S. cities to London. In the first three years of the agreement, U.S. airlines will be authorized to serve A t l a n t a and Dallas-Ft. Worth nonstop to London - one U.S. airline to a route while a British carrier will get a Houston-London route. After the first three years, a U.S. carrier can get a Houston-London route, and a British carrier can serve the Atlanta and Dallas routes. In addition, another U.S. city may then be selected by authority to London. The CAB has not yet decided how to proceed in fulfilling the terms of the new agreement.

Trans-Miss brings quality to Midland

The nation's top amateur golfers egin drifting into the Tall City at the and of the week for practice rounds aturday and Sunday preparatory to the weeklong Trans-Miss Tournament t Midland Country Club.

In order to qualify at MCC and Hogan Monday and Tuesday, an amateur must carry a stamped-andapproved handicap of three. That in itself guarantees a quality event, still one must poke around in the musty archives of the tournament's past to really appreciate the caliber of golf that will be played here next week. The past is liberally sprinkled with the names of pro golfing greats who have used the prestigious meet as a springboard to the pros.

THE MOST illustrious graduate of the Trans-Miss championship ranks is Jack Nicklaus who won it in 1958 and

Other former champions whose names ring a bell include Jim Weichers, 1966; George Archer, 1963; Deane Beamen. 1960, Amarillo's Rex Baxter, Jr., 1957; Charles Coe, four times, 1956-52-49-47; Skee Reigel, 1948-1946; Chick Harbert, 1939, and Frank Stranahan, 1941.

Stranahan, the sparkplug heir, never really turned pro, but he was so prominent on the amateur circuit for so many years, he was as well known as many of the pros.

One other thing about this tournament that makes it unusual is that it is a match play format, one of the major tournaments that hasn't gone to medal play.

The PGA remained a stubborn holdout for years, steadfastly retaining its head-to-head competition, but eventually it succumbed to TV pressure and adopted medal

Match play was the one event in which the club pro could leave his job for a couple of weeks and play with the big boys and, if he got hot, might even win.

TV, however, didn't like the idea of a Harvey Hometown winding up in the finals against equally unknown Ducky Hooks. After all, it's the Nicklauses, Palmers, Millers, Weiskopfs, and Grahams who sell the advertising and offer some guarantee of viewer interest, so match play became a victim

DALLAS (AP) - A bartender and barmaid at a Dallas disco have cited Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett, the Dallas Cowboys' heralded first-round draft choice, for alleged unnecessary roughness.

Dorsett faces two charges of simple assault stemming from an altercation at the night spot early last Thursday. The star running back could be fined up to $200 on each count if convicted of the Class C misdemeanor.

But the former University of Pittsburgh star says the matter would have been dropped if he wasn't Tony Dorsett.

He said a bartender asked if he had paid. "And he asked in a way I didn't appreciate," said

"Dorsett just reached across the bar and punched me," said the bartender, Sammie Emerick, 26. "The police were consulted but he didn't go to jail. I just decided it was best not to put him in jail. I had to get four

Schroeder grabs British Open lead

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) -'It's a good thing they made the pin placements so difficult," said Johnny Miller. "Otherwise someone would have shot in the 50s out there.

It was a strange start to the British Open Golf Championship—no wind on Turnberry's Ailsa links, easy driving conditions but cunningly placed holes on the slopes of glassy greens.

Those are the hardest pin placements I have ever seen in one round," Miller said.

Thursday's second round began wth a suprising leader in John Schroeder, the son of former Wimbledon tennis champion Ted Schroeder, who birdied the last two holes late Wednesday to post a four-under-par 66 on the 6,875yard layout beside the Farth of Clyde. Martin Foster, a relatively unknown Briton, was in second place

Trevino kept hitting into the rough on his left.

"Honey," he told his wife Claudia who walked beside him, "it's the way to do it. You get a better lie in the rough than on the fairways.

"I hope it blows like hell for the rest of the tournament," Trevino said.

But it won't according to the weather experts. They predicted the same freakish calm through Satur-

It is not what the locals are used to and not what the British Professional Golfers Association expected when they assigned the Open to Turnberry for the first time in the 117- year history of the tournament.

To conteract the easy fairways, officials pitched the holes as awkwardly as they could.

"Sixteen pins out of the 18 were up on the hill of the green," said Nicklaus.

"If you miss a pin on the wrong side you might as well forget it. if you chip to the high side the ball slides down." Watson, leading money winner on the U.S. tour this year, described the holes as "set like they were on the top of a marble.

THE GREENS varied in pace, which added to the difficulties.

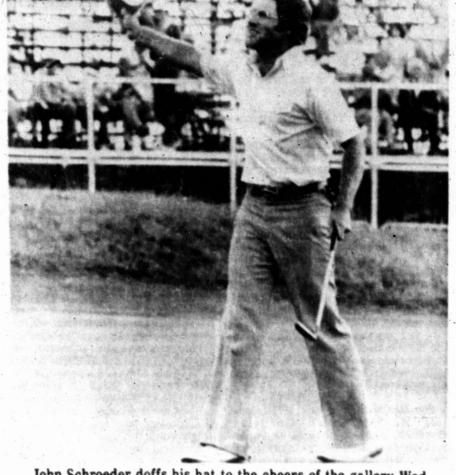

"Some putts are super fast and some are super slow," said Miller. "In the lower parts of the greens, where the grass is more lush, it is slower. On the upper parts the greens are almost parched.

Schroeder's late charge came out of the blue, when most of the 17,600 spectators had gone home-and even some of the course marshals too.

"I think all players should have the same chance," Schroeder said. "If they tell us to start our round late, they ought to see there are marshals-just as there are earlier in the

LA may get 1984 Summer Games City Administrative Office has By BOB OATES The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES - Ready or not, here they come again. The Olympic Games will return to Los Angeles in 1984, say informed sportsmen in America and abroad. They think so for two reasons:

No other country is seriously interested, apparently, and no other city has a comparable set of Olympic facilities in being In the final years of the 20th Century, the Games have obviously been priced out of most places by inflationary pressures and the consistently rising cost of building anything. Last summer's alarmingly expensive ($1.5 billion) Montreal Olympics may be remembered as a bargain by the people who build the next playground for Olympic athletes. For the most part, however, such a playground already exists in Los Angeles, which has many stadiums, arenas, auditoriums and other competition sites. Ironically, one of the few things Los Angeles lacks is a suitable swimming pool.

Even so, there is a question whether the city can afford the Olympics. Everything has become more expensive and complex in the 45 years since the 1932 Games played here. Although construction expenses would appear to be modest, a large deficit is possi-

The last two Olympics at Munich and Montreal were financial disasters, and the Atlanta Olympic committee concluded recently that "heavy federal subsidies will be needed" by any host hereafter. It added: No city can afford these days to roll the dice alone. How large might Los Angeles estimated that if Los Angeles hosts the 1984 Olympics without state or federal help, there would be a deficit of $200.5 million to $336.5 million.

Commenting on a possible multimillion-dollar deficit, J. Don Hanauer, general manager of the Chamber, says:

"The 1932 Games made a profit of something like $1 million. For the life of me I don't see why the job we did that year can't be replicated if the committee is committed to holding down costs and if it follows through on

Contemplating a hypothetical situation in which the Games might lose big money - say $500 million despite best intentions and careful

Back to reality for boy wonder

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) - Wimbiedon boy wonder John McEnroe got the praises but had to settle for an ice cream cone while Anad Amritraj got to move up in the $50,000 Hall of Fame Tennis Championships.

"He (McEnroe) is a very good competitor," said Amritraj, who defeated McEnroe, 6-3, 1-6, 6-3, Wednesday. "He gets every ball back and makes you play for every point. He's got a very good forehand and a good serve. I was really impressed with him last week.

Last week, the 18-year-old McEnroe, of Douglaston, N.Y., was in the semifinals of Wimbledon, where it took top-seeded Jimmy Connors four sets to eliminate him. However, after losing to Amritraj, McEnroe seemed to have lost some of his mystique.

He wandered about the grounds of the Newport Casino by himself while waiting for a doubles match to start, killing time by munching an ice cream cone.

Amritraj, meanwhile, said he was happy with his play-except for the second set. "I thought I played really well in the first set and okay in the third set," he said. "But in the second set, I hit a smash and hurt a muscle in my arm. But he (McEnroe) played a good second set, anyway.

Open update: Maltbie early clubhouse leader

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) -Roger Maltbie holed a 50- foot putt for a birdie on the 15th hole and charged into the early second-round lead today in the British Open golf tournament. Maltbie fired a 66 and stood at 137 three under par, after 36 holes. Mark Hayes was at 139 after a second round of 63, seven under par and an all-time British Open record.

Maltbie, playing his first Open, came in with a rush.

He started with a string of five pars, missed an easy putt on the sixth for a bogey, then picked that stroke up on the par-five, 528-yard seventh when his approach landed 35 feet from the pin and he two-putted for the first of his five birdies.

He reached the turn in 34, one under par, thanks to a twofooter that brought him another birdie on the ninth. On the 13th he sank a putt from 18 feet for a birdie three.

On the 209-yard, par-three 15th he holed a long, twisting putt from all the way across the green, about 50 feet, for a birdie two. He parred the 16th and on the 17th a 40-foot putt nearly gave him an eaglethree. He sank his second putt for a First-round leader John Schroeder,

He finished the second round at 74, four over, after shooting 66 on Wednesday.

Hayes sank a 12-foot putt on the 500yard, par-five 17th for an eagle three to go eight under par for the round but finished with a bogey on the last his only bogey of a round that included six birdies and an eagle. The previous Open record of 65 was set first by Henry Cotton in 1934 and equaled eight times, the last by Spain's Angel Gallardo this morning.

Hayes, who will be 28 in five days and comes from Edmond. Okla., has won just over $90,000 so far this year and already has picked up a couple of tournament victories, including the important Tournament Players Division title.

Chi-san Hsu of Taiwan and Howard Clark of England each stood at 140. Firing an erratic round that included six birdies and six bogeys, Chisan carded a pair of 35s for a second-round total of 70, matching his opening-day card. Clark shot 68, two under par, in the second round over the 6,875-yard, par-70 Ailsa course in balmy, unusually warm Scottish weather with temperatures that reached into the upper Gaylord Burrows, an Englishman playing out of the United States but not yet a U.S. citizen, opened with a two-under 33 in the second round. He faltered coming home, however, shooting a 39 that included four bogeys, including a string of three in a row from No. 14, and finished at 72-141, one over par for the tournament.

With less than a quarter of the 156 golfers in the clubhouse, defending champion Johnny Miller, Spain's Angel Gallardo and Ray Floyd stood Miller shot a four-over 73 that included six bogeys, three on each nine, and only two birdies. He had nines of 38 and 36 and commented, "I just threw the tournament away. The start just killed me." Miller bogeyed Nos. 5, 6 and 9 without a birdie on the front side and couldn't get anything going after that.

"The way I'm playing, it's a sin to shoot 74," a disgusted Miller said, adding: "Ah, well, it's just a game."

Gallardo recovered from an opening-round 78, eight over par, with a second-round 65, five under par and the lowest 18-hole score ever at this gorse shrouded layout that overlooks the Irish Sea.

George Foster broke a tie with a two-run single in the eighth inning and Dave Concepcion followed with his grand slam home run to secure Cincinnati's victory.

Pete Rose had four hits, including a homer, and drove in four runs as the Reds assaulted six Atlanta pitchers for 15 hits. Johnny Bench and Ken Griffey also homered giving the Reds 10 home runs in the three-game series. Cito Gaston and Gary Mat-thews slugged homers for the Braves in the hit-happy game.

"I'd like to play in this park all the time. The ball carries so well," said Concepcion. "But I don't like to play that kind of a game in this type of weather.'

Pirates 11, Cardinals 8 Fernando Gonzalez' three-run homer off Al Hrabosky in the seventh led Pittsburgh over St. Louis, Gon-zalez' homer came after the Cardinals had taken an 8-6 lead with seven runs in their half of the inning. Jose Cruz' seventh home run of the season, in the 14th inning, led Houston over Los Angeles. Cruz connected off Dodger reliever Mike Garman, 4-1, breaking up the pitching duel that featured 24 strikeouts.

Padres 7, Giants 5

San Diego turned three San Francisco errors into three unearned runs in the 12th inning, capping the gamewinning rally with Dave Kingman's run-scoring single.

Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson doesn't want to take no for an answer, but he's going to have to. Umpire Eric Gregg, right, called Atlanta Braves' Rowland Office safe at first, and Sparky obviously does not agree. (AP Laserphoto)

Brett pulls KC past Brewers

By The Associated Press After lying in a hospital bed for four days, George Brett proved he could still hit snowballs on Christmas Day. Wednesday morning, Brett checked out of a hospital after a four-day stay for treatment of an infected left elbow. Wednesday night, he pinch-hit a single in the bottom of the ninth to - drive in Frank White with the winning Brewers. "I was pretty weak, but when you've been on your back for four days I guess you are," said last year's American League batting champion. Frank White led off the Royals ninth with a single and stole second. Then Brett delivered his gamewinning hit off Bill Castro, 7-5.

"I was suprised at myself-at how confident I felt when I went up there. And with the ovation I got, if I'd had a broken leg I don't think I would have felt it."

The Brewers ripped Royals starter Andy Hassler for three runs in the first on Cecil Cooper's RBI double and Sixto Lezcano's two-run single. The Royals battled back on sacrifice flies by Tom Poquette in the third and Darrell Porter in the fourth, but the Brewers added a run in the fifth and three in the sixth for a 7-2 lead.

Orioles 2, Tigers 0

Mike Flanagan fired a six hitter and Ken Singleton slugged his 10th home run of the season as Baltimore won its seventh consecutive game and moved within one-half game of the first-place New York Yankees in the AL East.

Red Sox 9, Blue Jays 5 Carl Yastrzemski and Fred Lynn had four hits apiece in a 17-hit Boston attack as the Red Sox beat Toronto for the fourth time in five outings this Yastrzemski, who made a runsaving catch in the fourth inning and turned a line drive into a double play in the sixth, scored three runs and drove in two.

Lynn had two doubles and a pair of singles, scored two runs and drove in Twins 4, Angels 3 Lyman Bostock's leadoff home run in the eighth inning broke a 3-3 tie and gave relief pitcher Tom Johnson his

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market recorded a small loss today under the continuing influence of concern over the economic outlook.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off .42 at 907.31 after a 5.86point drop on Wednesday. Losers outpaced gainers by about a 7-6 margin among New York Stock Exchangelisted issues. Wall Streeters remained hopeful that some favorable news was in store in the government's report Friday on the wholesale price index for June. But the market seemed to be held back by continued concern that the growth rate of the economy might slow later this year and in 1978. Speculation on that subject prompted selling Wednesday in such cyclical industry groups as the paper, steel and auto stocks.

White House staff may be cut by 145

By EDWARD WALSH The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - President Carter's government reorganization planners have proposed cutting the White House staff by up to 145 persons and making an even larger cut in the Executive Office of the President, including the wholesale elimination of some agencies, informed sources said Wednesday..

Agencies slated for elimination under the reorganization plan, the sources said, include the Economic Policy Group, the Energy Resources Council, the Federal Property Council, the Office of Telecommunications Policy and the Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board.

In two others areas, 'the reorganizers have suggested elimination of the Council on Wage and Price Stability and possibly transferring some of its functions to the Council of Economic Advisers, and the elimination of the Council on Environmental Quality and possibly transferring some of its functions to the Interior Department.

The President is to meet Thursday morning with Office of Management and Budget Director Bert Lance and members of OMB's government reorganization staff to discuss these and other options. Carter received the recommendations last Friday and has promised to submit a plan to reorganize the Executive Office of the President to Congress by July 15.

Under the reorganization authority Congress approved earlier this year, the plan will automatically go into effect unless vetoed by the House or Senate within 60 days of its submission.

The Executive Office of the President includes the White House staff itself plus related operations such as Vice President Walter Mondale's staff, the National Security Council, the Domestic Council, OMB and various boards, councils and commissions that are directly under the President's authority.

What finally emerges in the reorganization plan is likely to be watched closely because it will be the first in a series of plans to be submitted to Congress and because of Carter's pledge - as yet unfulfilled -to cut the size of the White House staff by 30 per cent.

Sources familiar with the recommendations said they would slash the authorized size of the White House staff from 485 to 340 or 350. The staff now actually numbers close to 580, but some 100 of these people are classified as temporary workers who will return to other government agencies in time.

Overall, the sources said, the size of the Executive Office of the President would be cut from 1,712 people to somewhere between 1,415 and 1,470.

From the outline of the recommendations as described by various sources, none of the President's senior advisers will emerge from the reorganization substantially strengthened or weakened. But some are likely to fare better than others. For example, the Domestic Council now functions, in effect, as the staff of Stuart Eizenstat, Carter's chief domestic policy adviser. Under one option proposed to the President, the Domestic Council's functions would be broadened, for example, by absorbing into it the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy. Similarily, the NSC staff headed by Zbigniew

Brzezinski would suffer only a minor cut while the vice president's staff would not be touched at all. According to the sources, these are some of the other likely areas where cuts will be made if the President follows the recommendations: -Hamilton Jordan, Carter's chief political adviser, would lose two staff assistants. One source said earlier during the reorganization planning there was an attempt to make Jordan, in effect, the White House chief of staff, tying all major functions into his office. But Jordan resisted this and as a result his functions will not change dramatically as a result of the reorganization, the source said.

-Press secretary Jody Powell will lose four aides from his operation - two from among those who prepare the daily news summary and two from the speechwriting office, which is also under Powell.

—Congressional relations chief Frank Moore would lose six aides. But this proposed cut may be less drastic than it appears because Moore's office also includes the White House visitors unit and other functions not directly related to lobbying Congress. -White House counsel Robert Lipshutz would lose two aides, as would Jack Watson Jr., Cabinet secretary, while Margaret (Midge) Costanza's public liaison office would lose three aides.

EPA announces new guidelines for experiments

WASHINGTON - The Environmental Protection Agency Wednesday announced it will impose stringent new safety guidelines to protect human subjects in future EPA medical experiments - more stringent than "any guidelines now existing in any government agency tht we know of," according to an EPA official.

The announcement was part of the agency's explanation to Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) and Adlai E. Stevenson (D-Ill.) of recent Newsday disclosures that showed senior EPA officials had planned to experiment with known cancer-causing chemicals to feeding massive amounts of them to humans. In her letter to the senators, Deputy EPA Administrator Barbara Blum said the new restrictions would supplement those in effect since 1975. Developed by the Department of Health Education and Welfare, the standards require signed consent statements from all subjects participating in the tests. The experiments also must be approved by third-party review boards. Elizabeth Sullivan, special assistant to Blum, said

EPA's new policy on human experimentation will be published by the end of the month. "In three weeks EPA will make a decision on whether to rule out any future testing of known carcinogens on humans. "And if they are not totally ruled out, the agency will spell out the circumstances under which they might be permitted. Our own guidelines will be more strict than any existing government guidelies. Along with the announcement of a new policy, the EPA enclosed a booklength report on the background of the proposed human tests disclosed by Newsday May 11. The EPA report showed that EPA officials had initially considered a proposal to feed known cancer-causing fungicides called EBDC to prisoner volunteers in a Tennessee state prison.

After this proposal was rejected, EPA officials worked with a major manufacturer of the fungicide group, Rohn and Haas Co., of Philadelphia, to develop test protocols for testing the fungicides on student volunteers. And, finally, in order to escape strict limitations on human experiments in the United States, EPA officials attempted to get funding for a contract with a hospital in Mexico City to test massive amounts of EBDC, "if possible up to 1,000 times" higher than normal exposure, on Mexican citizens.

Chamber chief Feldt challenges Lions club

Harrell Feldt, president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday noon challenged members and guests of the Downtown Lions Club "to become even more enthusiastic" about-Midland and its fantastic progress.

"I urge you - each of you," he continued, "to use your God-given talents and get involved in the continued growth, development and Feldt was the speaker at the club's meeting in the Midland Hilton. reviewing projects and activities of the Midland chamber.

Discussing Midland's rapid growth and development in the last few years, Feldt said the attitude of the citizens largely has been responsible for the tremendous progress. He said the business community has faith and confidence in Midland's future and is totally committed "to keep it going.

'The business people are dedicated to making the life-style of Midland even better in the Future," the speaker said.

He lauded the efforts of all individuals and groups who, in the past, have worked hard to make Midland the fine city it is today.

The speaker said the Midland Chamber of Commerce is active and aggressive in its overall operation. striving contimaully for all those things which are in the best interests of the city and its residents.

He mentioned particularly the diligent efforts of the Midland Area Sales Team (MAST) in bringing new industries to the city and in helping existing industries in expansion programs. Every effort is made, he said, to let industrial prospects know that Midland should be their community.

Feldt said the convention and tourist development departments of the chamber are two of its most active and successful. He said the 14 conventions held here this year have attracted more than 2,880 persons to the city, and that 10 major conventions already have been booked for next year. They are expected to attract more than 5,000 visitors. He said that conventions provide an excellent means of exposing Midland to people from various parts of the state and nation. The speaker also told of progress made to date in proposed highway development, particularly the North Loop road and the north route to Odessa, both of which he said are needed to take care of increased traffic resulting from the tremendous growth in the city and vicinity. Feldt called on his listeners to support their community and its program of progress in every way

New standards proposed for nuclear security

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Nuclear Regulatory Commission, in a continuing effort to protect U.S. uranium and plutonium supplies from terrorists and saboteurs, is proposing tough new security standards.

The proposed regulations, published in the Federal Register, call for sharply increased guard forces for high-grade uranium and plutonium, both in storage at nuclear fuel plants, and in transit. They stem from the NRC's conclusion two years

School district leased stadium

ODESSA - For a token cost of $1 the Ector County Independent School District has been granted the use W.T. Barret Stadium by the Odessa College board of trustees.

The school district was granted a one-year lease by the board during its meeting Wednesday night.

The property committee of the board of trustees made the recommendation to the board as a whole. Art Green, chairman of the committee, said one change would be made in the lease. The change will stipulate the public schools may make any improvements to the stadium, but that improvements to the land on which the stadium is situated require the advance approval of the OC board of trustees.

Service resumes

The Senior Roadrunner, a bus service provided for senior citizens in Midland, resumed service today after a six-day break in service. The bus will be routed by beauty shops and grocery stores Friday. Today the bus was being routed by banks, utility companies, the post office and the Golden Agers meeting.

ago that security measures for civilian nuclear activities needed improvement.

Organized terrorism in recent years has raised anew the spectre of nuclear fuels being stolen and fashioned into nuclear bombs or dispersed in crowded areas to expose people to radiation.

The Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC), an environmental group, asked the NRC to tighten security measures on an emergency basis. Last January, the NRC decided to improve security, not immediately, but through a speededup rulemaking process. .

Besides seeking to strengthen guard forces for nuclear fuels, the proposed regulations require that private guards hired by commercial nuclear operators and shippers must be certified in good mental health, as well as good physical health.

Although companies handling nuclear materials presumably would not knowingly hire a lunatic to guard nuclear materials, they could do so without violating present NRC standards, a commission spokesman said Wednesday.

The proposed rules also would increase the requirements for nuclear shipment guards to stay in contact with fixed security bases which could summon help if necessary.

The regulations would be aimed at complementing steps already taken by the NRC to guarantee the security of nuclear fuels. Last March, it proposed that nuclear guards be investigated before they are hired. No such security checks are presently required.

The NRC proposed last May that companies handling nuclear fuels be required to prepare contingency plans guards can use to foil terrorist attacks or sabotage; such plans are not required now.

There was no indication when the commission would be able to adopt the new security rules. The NRC is one commissioner short of a quorum and cannot take formal actions.

'You'd have to see him to believe it.' One of the rocks hit Suggs' right leg, he said, and others narrowly missed his companions, Tom Roberts, 14, and Renee McFarland, 15.

Young Suggs and Roberts who live at Abilene Boys Ranch, ran to the McFarland home after first sighting the creature. She returned with them packing a deer rifle and handed it to Suggs after the monster reappeared.

'She handed the gun to me and said, 'You shoot it,' Suggs related.

He fired from a distance of about 40 yards and apparently missed, he said, adding that the weapon's recoil knocked him off his feet.

The teen-agers said the "Him" - their name for the beast - went crashing away through almost impenetrable brush. They led others to a spot where foot-long prints marked the passage of something.

Bob Scott, manager of Abilene Ranch, owns the place where Suggs and Roberts were working when they said the creature appeared. Scott said some sort of animal apparently is to blame for the disappearance of 21 goats off his land in recent days. Several carcasses were found later in the brush, he said.

Sheriff's officers expressed a belief that coyotes killed some of the goats but had no explanation for the complete disappearane of

Prospects. to be kept waiting

BIG SPRING - Industrial prospects will be kept waiting to see which facilities will be available because of a congressional delay in the dispersal process. Big Spring Mayor Wade Choate informed members of the Webb Steering Committee of the delay. Webb real estate must pass through a subcommittee of the House Armed Services committee before it can be handled by the General Services Administration and leased to industries' according to Choate. The House hearing, originally scheduled for May, has been postponed and will probably take place between July 18-30, according to Judy Curtis, administrative assistant for Omar Burleson.
