Oklahoma escapees captured in Oregon

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A manhunt for two Oklahoma prison escapees wanted in connection with killings and abductions in three states ended quietly Friday when they were arrested without incident by FBI agents in downtown Portland.

As searchers in Oklahoma concentrated their efforts in an area near where a Purcell taxi cab driver was slain a week ago, FBI agents picked up Paul Ruiz, 29, and Earl Van Denton, 27, about 2:40 p.m. (EDT), an FBI spokesman in Portland said.

The FBI said the two men were arrested while getting into the maroon taxi cab that was being driven by the Purcell man when he was kidnaped July 1. They said the 1971 vehicle bore Kansas license plates believed stolen in Wichita.

Portland is more than 1,500 miles from where the escapees were last pinpointed in Oklahoma. An FBI spokesman said the arrest did not come as result of a tip, but that agents had information the pair might surface in Portland, where Ruiz has relatives.

"They were completely surrounded before they realized we were there," said Paul Hudson, one of the arresting FBI agents.

The spokesman said the men were armed only with knives when captured. Another person also was arrested, but authorities said he was a hitchhiker who had no connection with the two escapees.

The FBI said the two escapees, both life termers who fled the Oklahoma State Penitentiary at McAlester on June 23, would be taken before a U.S. magistrate for arraignment.

Denton and Ruiz have been charged with the deaths of a town marshal and a U.S. Corps of Engineers ranger in Magazine, Ark. In addition, they have been linked to the disappearance of two Louisiana fishermen who have not been seen since June 28, along with the abduction and death of Purcell taxicab driver James Melvin Short.

Denton, who was serving a life term for murder, and Ruiz, who was serving a life term for armed robbery, escaped from the Oklahoma prison on June 23.

Five days later, Alton Wilson, 66, and his fishing companion, Ray Jones Sr., 65, disappeared after going fishing near Franklinton, La.

Wilson's car was found the next day near Magazine, Ark.

Police said Magazine's town marshal, Marvin Richie, 42, spotted the car, which had been reported missing, and disappeared while investigating it. He was found shot to death in the trunk of his patrol car.

Handcuffed to Richie's body and apparently left for dead was ranger David Small, who had been shot in the shoulder.

Small's partner, Opal James, 58, was abducted. His body was found July 1, about 40 miles from Magazine.

The day Small's body was found Short vanished after he went to a service station to pick up two men. The station was only a few blocks from where police found a truck traced to the Magazine death scene.

The body of Short was found Thursday near Denton's home in Dibble, Okla.

SBA administrator halts program temporarily

By JOHN M. GOSKHO
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The head of the Small Business Administration, admitting that whites have reaped millions from a federal program to aid minority businessmen, Friday halted the program until it can be overhauled to prevent further abuses.

SBA administrator A. Vernon Weaver took this step as a Senate subcommittee heard two SBA officials testify that the Nixon administration had used the so-called 8(a) program as a political instrument to enhance its image with blacks.

One witness, Leonard Cole, said that Donald F. Dunlap, overseer of the program during the early 1970s, was a political appointee who reportedly had been placed in the SBA at the order of Harry S. Dent, a political strategist on the Nixon White House staff.

Cole charged that Dunlap "was very actively involved in carrying out his mission in the program — to follow the feelings of Mr. Harry Dent to take as much advantage politically of the program as it was possible to take."

In a telephone interview, Dent, who now practices law in Columbia, S.C., insisted Cole's charge was "untrue." Dent said he knew Dunlap only slightly and had never been involved with the 8(a) program during his service at the White House.

These developments climaxed three days of hearings on the program by Sen. Lawton M. Chiles Jr. of a Government Spending Subcommittee. The 8(a) program takes roughly $300 million a year in federal contracting out of competitive bidding and gives the SBA discretionary power to award the work to businesses owned by "the economically and socially disadvantaged" to help them become established.

The SBA says that approximately 1,000 firms currently are performing 2,106 contracts with a combined value of $369 million. Most of these firms are engaged in construction or the providing of janitorial, food and security services at government installations.

However, Chiles heard a parade of witnesses who described case after case of loans and contracts intended for the "disadvantaged" going to wealthy persons, of white entrepreneurs cashing in on the program through their control of firms headed by black fronts and of persons getting contracts through political connections or personal relationships with SBA officials.

These revelations prompted Weaver, President Carter's appointee who took office April 1, to appear before the subcommittee Friday and admit "that the program has been abused to the benefit of unscrupulous businessmen." He added: "I assure you that the necessary changes will be made to put the program on a sound basis."

Weaver said he was acting immediately to discontinue certification of new firms for the program until the SBA completes an evaluation of all the firms now holding 8(a) contracts.

In the future, Weaver said, the SBA will ban the use of "sponsorships" — minority firms contracting with established white companies for technical assistance, management advice and help in obtaining financing and bonding. The system has been used by many white companies to control the firms under their sponsorship.

Weaver added that all existing contractual arrangements between white and minority firms will be re-negotiated to guard against the white companies exercising control or taking excessive profits. He said the SBA also will insist that 8(a) firms be legitimately owned and controlled by independent minority owners rather than fronts placed in phony ownership positions.

Finally, Weaver said, the SBA will try to establish "specific criteria" governing who is eligible for the program, when a firm should be thrown out of the program for failure to meet its objectives and when a firm can be considered able to stand on its own feet without government help.

Weaver was preceded by two SBA officials — Cole and Raymond Harshman — who charged that the program became bound up in partisan political considerations during the time it was under Dunlap's direction.

Dunlap resigned from the SBA after a 1972 internal investigation by the agency determined that he had improperly tried to obtain a 48 per cent interest in a North Carolina 8(a) firm that was actually a front company for a white holding group.

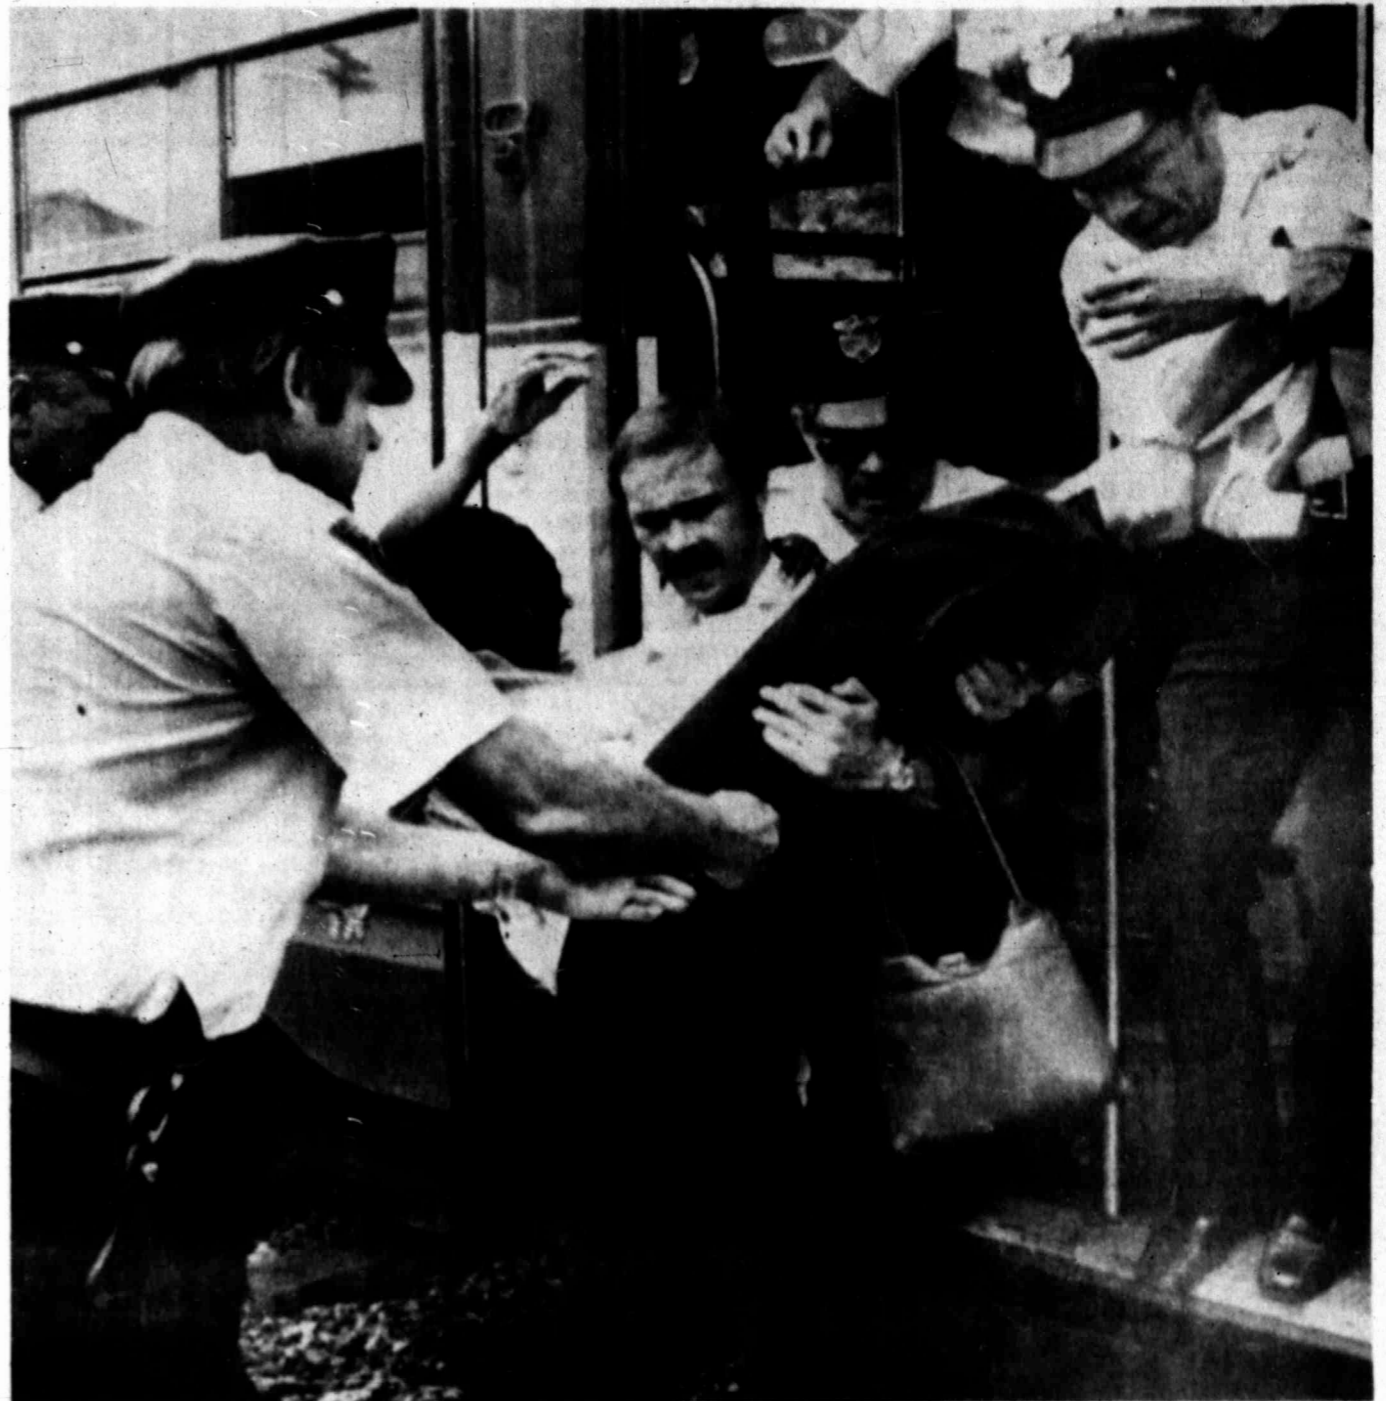

Grand jury indicts Fox

A Midland County grand jury Friday indicted 16-year-old Jimmy Ray Fox on a charge of capital murder and a forgery charge.

Bond was set by 142nd District Court Judge Perry D. Pickett at $50,000 for the murder charge and $5,000 for the forgery charge. Fox was in Midland County Jail Friday night.

Fox is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fox of 3411 Thomas Drive. The indictments came after a 1 p.m. meeting of the grand jury. Earlier Friday, Fox's case had been bound over to the grand jury at the close of an examining hearing to determine whether there was enough evidence to present the case to the grand jury.

Fox is charged in the June 14 stabbing death of Janice Abernathy, 23, of 4303 W. Storey Ave.

Church of Scientology accused of theft plot

By MARGARET GENTRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government accused the Church of Scientology on Friday of carrying out a wide-ranging and partly successful plot to infiltrate the Justice Department and the Internal Revenue Service and to steal hundreds of confidential government documents.

The FBI, acting on a search warrant and an affidavit detailing the allegations, raided church offices in Washington and Los Angeles to recover the allegedly stolen documents and to obtain any other evidence of the alleged conspiracy.

The U.S. attorney's office in Washington is considering whether to bring criminal charges against church officials, a department source said.

A federal magistrate issued a search warrant on the strength of an FBI agent's sworn affidavit describing evidence primarily obtained from Michael Meisner, a former high-ranking church official who allegedly supervised covert operations until he was arrested and decided to cooperate with federal investigators.

The affidavit said Meisner is being held in protective custody at his request because he and federal officials fear for his safety.

Scientology doctrine "requires the church attack and destroy its enemies...and those like Meisner who leave the church," the affidavit said.

Church officials in Los Angeles, at one point, held Meisner under "house arrest," gagged and in handcuffs to prevent him from returning to Washington after a series of meetings with church officials in Los Angeles, the affidavit said.

On June 20, Meisner called the U.S. attorney's office in Washington to say he had escaped from church officials and wished to return to face criminal charges and "cooperate in the on-going investigation," the affidavit continued.

Based on Meisner's statements and other evidence, the government said "there is probable cause to believe that from 1974 through 1976, officials of the Church of Scientology in Los Angeles and Washington conspired to steal documents from the government" by burglarizing federal offices.

In addition, the church planted one of its members as a clerk in the Internal Revenue Service and another as a secretary in the office of a Justice Department lawyer, the affidavit said.

Those two alleged undercover agents for the church stole scores of documents from government files, duplicated them, kept the copies in church offices in both cities and returned the originals to the government offices, the affidavit said.

The Church of Scientology, founded in the 1950s by L. Ron Hubbard, who continues as its highest officer, has become controversial for its tactics in recruiting members through what some consider hard-sell techniques.

Some former members have said the church goes to extreme lengths to prevent its disciples from renouncing the church.

The church has brought a half-dozen lawsuits against the IRS, the FBI and other government agencies.

Some streets flooded as rains come to town

Rain varying through the city from a sprinkle to a torrent hit Midland Friday afternoon, causing some street flooding.

More of the same is expected for today, the weatherman said.

The rain was found throughout the Permian Basin, and a tornado was reported 15 miles southwest of Stanton by the Martin County sheriff's department about 5:15 p.m.

Only 26 inch of rain fell at the National Weather Service building at Air Terminal. "We probably got the least rain of anybody," one weatherman said.

Rain was particularly heavy in the northeast portion of Midland.

Odezza rain gauges showed up to 3.25 inches of rain.

Winds in downtown Midland this afternoon were gusty enough to turn an umbrella inside out. The Midland Fire Department erected a barricade at Golf Course Road and Culver Street because rain had made the intersection, which is torn up to install a drainage pipe, impassable.

The weatherman said the rain came from clouds which drifted east from New Mexico. The clouds can be expected to form again this afternoon, he said.

There is a 60 per cent chance of more rain today and a 50 per cent chance tonight.

A large portion of West Texas, including the Permian Basin, was under flash flood watch Friday night.

Skies are expected to be partly cloudy through Monday. The high today is expected to be in the mid-80s and the low tonight in the mid-60s. The high Sunday is expected to be near 90.

Winds should be from the southeast at 10 to 20 mph today and tonight.

Friday's high was 95 degrees, although the temperature dropped rapidly when the clouds rolled in, from 94 degrees at 2 p.m. to 82 degrees at 3 p.m.

Rain was reported Friday in Andrews, Lamesa, Crane, Stanton, Rankin, Big Spring and Odezza. By about 8 p.m., skies had cleared in Lamesa and Andrews, but clouds and cooler-than-usual temperatures were reported in the rest of the area.

Explosion rips pump station

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A major explosion and fire ripped through the main building at Pump Station No. 8 on the trans-Alaska pipeline Friday afternoon, a spokesman for Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. said. The pipeline was shut down immediately.

Officials were unable to give an exact number of injured in the explosion. Within two hours of the incident, five persons had been hospitalized in area hospitals and a sixth was treated and released.

One of the injured had serious burns, but was not considered in critical condition.

The fire, which began at 3:45 p.m. ADT, was under control by 5:45 p.m. (10:45 p.m. EDT) and "was burning out," Alyeska said. Oil leaked out to a distance of 200 yards from the pump station but did not reach several large storage tanks, and the storage tanks were not damaged. Oil had begun passing through the pump station early Friday and had continued 30 miles to the south by the time the explosion occurred.

"The building was a mass of twisted steel and rubble. The damage was contained to the station and not the entire complex," according to KJNP reporter Neil Cook.

Mickey Clark tones down things in Fort Stockton

When Mickey Clark rides into town, things begin to change.

Fort Stockton is finding that out. This fair-sized dude got himself a badge, one of them powerful .357-magnum six-shooters, many a pair of Western boots and garb to match, and set out to keep this town in a law-abiding way.

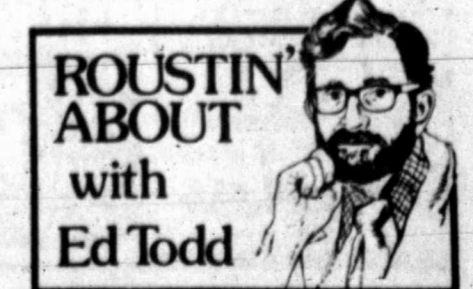

He's the police chief and is mighty proud of it.

"Everything's going great," he said on a return trip to Midland. "We've got a good bunch of men and a good (police) department."

And Clark, to help out his peace-keeping cause, has a fair amount of clout, the know-how to get the job done and miles of genuine country humor. He's got to have something to fight the forces of evil and to temper the mean streak in a good many outlaw types.

"I still run that one (police department) the way they're supposed to be," he said.

When hefty Clark took over command of the 13-man force last April, one of the first things he did was to "shape up the troops." They were a motley lot before he moved in — long hair, beards, mustaches and all of that hirsute stuff, he recalled.

"They had 'em before I got over there," and they don't have them now," said the clean-shaven lawman.

In some other respects, the city troopers weren't uniform.

"They had every weapon imaginable," said Clark, who wanted some sameness to his organization. The officers were toting .32 and .45

Friend says Yarbrough wants to plead case before special session

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — If God wants to keep Associate Justice Don Yarbrough on the Texas Supreme Court, there is no way the legislature can remove him, says a friend and supporter who prayed for him.

Mrs. K.O. Bradley said Yarbrough, 36, wants to plead his case before the special legislative session, which convenes Monday.

She was with him when he read a statement Tuesday in which he confessed his "wrongdoing" but said that God had forgiven him. She said she helped him write the statement.

A legislative hearing on a resolution to remove him from the job he has held for only six months has been set for next Friday.

"If the truth comes out, the legislature can be changed," Mrs. Bradley told reporter Paula Reynolds of The Austin American-Statesman. "And the truth is, he is a humbled man, a godly man. If God wants him in there, there is no way man can get him out."

The front-page story appeared Friday — two days after Yarbrough chased reporter Dallas Times Herald reporter Dave Montgomery out of Mrs. Bradley's house with a belt.

Yarbrough has been indicted on charges of theft and aggravated perjury and also faces an Aug. 1 disbarment suit and a dozen or so more civil lawsuits.

Yarbrough, his wife and three children spent last weekend at the Bradley home. "When he came in the other day," Mrs. Bradley said, "he was shaking all over. I feel like an animal trapped, like they are tearing at my flesh," he told me.

The Bradleys and others prayed for Yarbrough, she said, adding: "After the prayer, I asked him if there was anything he needed to be ashamed of. He told me no. He said he had never kissed another woman except his wife, he had never been dishonest in his (law) practice and that he had honored God in his home, his personal life and in church."

Mrs. Bradley said she met Yarbrough at a Campus Crusade for Christ retreat at nearby Wimberly more than 10 years ago, and "This is the first time he's ever not succeeded at anything. He's always had the Midas touch."

She said the Yarbroughs' oldest child is old enough at 9 to know a little of what is happening.

"She asked her mother over the weekend if her daddy is a bad man," Mrs. Bradley said. "Her mother told her people just don't know her daddy."

Meanwhile, Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who returned recently from a European vacation, declined to say whether he thought Yarbrough should be removed from office.

Briscoe told a news conference all he knew about Yarbrough was what he had read in the newspapers.

An aide confirmed that the name of Martin Dies Jr. of the Beaumont Court of Civil Appeals has been submitted as a possible appointee to the supreme court if Yarbrough is removed.

Briscoe said however, he had not compiled a list of possible successors.

He said the legislative hearing next Friday on a resolution to remove Yarbrough, 36, from the high court is the "proper" and "most expeditious" way to handle the matter.

As he understands it, he said, if two-thirds of the legislature votes to instruct Briscoe to remove Yarbrough, he has no choice but to do so.

DALLAS (AP) — Representatives of 12 major organizations will gather in Dallas next week for a national Hispanic leadership conference expected to focus on the problems of the Spanish-speaking and their changing role in the political system.

The conference will be held July 20-22 will be a "think tank" to come up with a program of objectives for the next ten years, said Jose Cano, chairman of the organizing committee.

"We will be addressing areas of concern to the Spanish speaking—health, education, employment, economic development, administration of justice, the news media, and political development," Cano said.

The idea for the conference originated in Denver last year at the annual convention of the American GI Forum, an organization of Mexican-American veterans.

Organizations attending the conference include the League of United Latin American Citizens, Y.M.A.E., National Conference of Puerto Rican Women, National Council of La Raza, Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund, as well as politicians and educators.

Former state Sen. Joe Bernal, who is now with Intercultural Research Associates in San Antonio, will present a report on political development, reviewing the gains of the Spanish-speaking and the possibilities for the future.

Bernal said the Spanish speaking will become the largest minority in the United States in the future and sees their political power increasing in the years ahead.

"It is not that the politicians are now being nicer to Mexican-Americans," he said. "It is simply that they recognize political realities."

Bernal said that recent studies indicate that 44 per cent of Mexican-Americans are registered to vote — as opposed to 30 per cent a few years ago while the figure for the Anglo population is 60 per cent.

"We still have a long way to go," Bernal said, "but now we are producing."

Carter appoints Canales

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jose A. Canales, 33, of Corpus Christi, became Friday the first Mexican-American appointed to the post of U.S. Attorney in Texas.

Canales' appointment as U.S. attorney for the southern district of Texas was announced by President Carter along with that of John Hannah Jr. to a similar post for the eastern district.

Hannah, 38, is a Lufkin attorney.

The President also announced the appointment of Theddis R. Coney, 38, of Houston as U.S. Marshal for the southern district of Texas.

Hannah and Canales were recommended by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex.

"I am very proud and very happy," Canales said of the appointment.

"It is a great honor and great privilege and also a heavy burden. I will be fair, competent in representing the government and will see to it that justice is carried out."

His wife and children had accompanied him to church earlier after learning of the appointment.

Canales, originally from Mercedes in the Rio Grande Valley, moved later to Corpus Christi and attended the University of Texas. He obtained his law degree from St. Mary's University in San Antonio in 1969 and went into private practice specializing in criminal law.

Palestine DA files class action lawsuit

PALESTINE, Tex. (AP) — Palestine Dist. Atty. Billy Ray Green filed Friday a class action lawsuit alleging county officials in his district have not provided the tools he needs to run his office "properly."

At a courthouse news conference, Green said the suit filed in federal court at Tyler is his last resort in his attempts to get personnel for his office.

The judges of the three counties termed the suit harassment.

Anderson County Judge N.R. Link, Henderson County Judge Winston Reagan and Houston County Judge J.D. Lively were on hand for the conference but left when Green said they would not be allowed to interrupt.

"It gives me no pleasure to take them to court but I know of no other alternative," Green said.

Green is asking that the defendants be permanently enjoined from blocking the employment of assistant district attorneys, investigators, clerks, secretaries, stenographers and other personnel "necessary for the effective and efficient process of local administration of justice in the defendant counties."

Green said he has "asked, begged, prayed and cajoled; I have done everything humanly possible to get some kind of assistance for the district attorney's office."

Green lost his Anderson County investigator when the commissioners court decided not to seek continued federal funding. In Henderson County, commissioners refused to pay for law books Green said were needed.

He said the courts' claims of lack of funds were "untrue."

"I believe they don't want a strong district attorney's office. It makes me wonder why," he said.

Judge Link said the help is not needed and added that district attorneys in similar positions run their offices without the help.

Judge Reagan said Green's request for additional staff had come at the wrong time in the fiscal year.

Reagan said the commissioners might react more favorably to Green's staff requests in next year's budget "if he has proven to us that he is effectively working and doing his duties."

Link said Green has not "brought a single case before a jury in any of the counties of his district in the six months he has been in office."

Judge Lively said Green has used the newly provided office in Crockett only once — during a grand jury session.

Reagan said he wasn't shocked by Green's filing a lawsuit.

Green should "get down off his stick horse and do the job he was elected to do," Reagan said.

Brown observes 'roughly equal'

WASHINGTON Post — The United States and the Soviet Union have reached "rough equivalence" in overall military powers but each side has special advantages that must be weighed in any new war planning, Defense Secretary Harold Brown said at a closed White House meeting Friday on the global balance of power.

Brown, in chairing the meeting sponsored by the National Security Council, cited the Soviet Union's proximity to Iran and other oil-producing nations in the Persian Gulf as one of Russia's strategic advantages that must be given significant weight in making a net assessment of power for President Carter.

Brown's remarks, administration sources said, came during the second meeting on Presidential Review Memorandum 10. Prof. Samuel Huntington of Harvard was the principal author of a net assessment report discussed at the first PRM-10 meeting at the White House on Thursday.

In citing the Soviet advantages in being close to Persian Gulf oil producers, Brown was reflecting a deep concern felt by U.S. Navy leaders that in a crisis the Soviet Union could shut off much of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's oil supply by controlling a new straits used by tankers.

Brown went to the White House Friday morning to chair a meeting on a draft of the "force posture" section of PRM-10. It outlines various possible military strategies and how many American troops and weapons would be needed to implement them.

The net assessment and force posture papers together run over 300 pages, sources said Friday. They add up to a general overview that the National Security Council may eventually reduce to specific recommendations.

Interagency task forces studied these five broad contingencies and then listed the forces that would be needed to handle them: (1) a Warsaw Pact attack on NATO in Central Europe; (2) an East-West war outside of Europe; (3) conflicts in East Asia; (4) "notional" wars like Vietnam, and (5) all-out nuclear war with the Soviet Union.

Agencies represented at Friday morning's session on force posture included the State and Defense departments and the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

Hoover car now for sale

RANDOLPHE SCHMID WASHINGTON (AP) — For Sale: '71 Cadillac Limo, bullet proof, formerly owned by J. Edgar Hoover.

That's the essence of a recent private advertisement in Washington newspapers that has attracted a wide range of attention. Responses to the ad have ranged from dealers in classic automobiles to a New York man who said he wanted it for his "family."

And if you're interested, you can still make an offer. The auto is one of five FBI cars used by Hoover in his last years with the FBI. He directed the bureau from its founding in the 1920s until his death in 1972.

Hoover kept two of the special autos in Washington, two in New York and one in Los Angeles, bureau officials said.

By contrast, current FBI Director Clarence J. Kelley drives a Mercury sedan without armour plate, although it does have special communications equipment.

After Hoover's death, his cars were turned over to the General Services Administration, the agency responsible for buying and selling government property.

Four went to the Secret Service and the fifth, now for sale, was auctioned last year.

Defector reports unrest in China

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — A Chinese Communist fighter pilot who defected to Taiwan said Friday that the army had to put down recent disturbances in southern China.

He claimed the 800 million people in mainland China lead "a very miserable life," the Chinese hierarchy is "unstable" and the purged "gang of four" still wields some influence.

Fan Yuan-yen, a squadron leader who flew his MIG19 jet fighter to Taiwan on Thursday, appeared at a news conference here and renounced his Communist party membership.

"The Communist hierarchy really is unstable," he told reporters. "Recently, there was unrest in the areas of Chingsiang and Potien in Fukien" and army units were sent to quell the disturbances.

Fukien, the southern Chinese province across the Formosa Strait from Taiwan and site of the military base where Fan was stationed, was a focal point of unrest reported in China late last year.

Fan said many tenant farmers have resisted the government and there have been many disturbances in Fukien Province. He said farmers are especially hard up, with "nothing much to eat or put on."

He said many people on the mainland have died of starvation. The 41-year-old Fan, who left a wife and three children on the mainland, said the Chinese Communists lack the military capability to mount an invasion of the anti-Communist stronghold on Taiwan, where Nationalist Chinese fled as Maoists took control in 1949.

Military sources said he brought Chinese defense information with him. Asked what "important document," he carried, Fan said he brought material needed for his flight but he declined to give details.

Fan will collect a $500,000 government reward for defecting and bringing his plane with him.

Teenager dies in Pamplona running of bulls

PAMPLONA, Spain (AP) — The running of the bulls, a festival of Spanish "machismo" that has taken more than 50 lives over the years, claimed a new victim Friday — a teenaged soccer star crushed under a pile-up of men and bulls.

Thirty-five other runners were injured when dozens of men scrambling for their lives ahead of charging bulls jammed up at the entrance to the Pamplona bull ring, trampling each other and being trampled by the bulls.

The pile-up began when Jose Joaquin Esparza, 17, tripped and fell at the narrow gate to the bull ring at the end of the 900-yard bull-running course through the streets of this northwestern Spanish city.

Before the youth could pull himself up, one after another of the runners tripped and fell over him. Then the six half-ton bulls charged into the struggling mass of men, trodding on them for five minutes until a path cleared and they trotted off toward their pens in the ring.

Many of the injured lay writhing in agony on the ground until ambulances arrived.

Police said at first that Esparza, a promising amateur soccer player from Pamplona, had been gored. But doctors later said he was crushed to death.

About 1,200 runners were in the streets Friday, dodging the bulls on the second day of a week-long festival first staged in 1591.

The running of the bulls, popularized by Ernest Hemingway in his novel "The Sun Also Rises," is considered a test of manhood by its participants. Women are barred.

Every day for six days, runners, many of them would-be matadors, lead the bulls on a dangerous chase from corrals through the streets to the ring, where professional bullfighters take on the animals in afternoon contests.

Before Friday, the last fatality occurred in 1975 in a similar jam-up at the entrance to the ring.

The bulls then gored and hooked their way through about 40 runners, killing a bricklayer and injuring 20 other men.

The festival, mixing religious celebration, dance, song and wine with the challenge of the bulls, remains one of Spain's leading tourist attractions.

Since the death of longtime right-wing dictator Gen. Francisco Franco in November 1975, political activists have increasingly tried to use the festival as a forum for their views, often leading to clashes with local police.

The Madrid newspaper Informaciones this week said the running of the bulls is becoming too entangled in politics. "The citizens prefer it like it was, with happiness and good humor," it said.

Intrigue is about all

The nation now has heard the first public testimony concerning the alleged South Korean effort to bribe Congress. And right intriguing testimony it is.

One, however, has the uneasy feeling that intrigue may be its only effect.

Kim Hyung Wook, the former South Korean intelligence chief, has told the House subcommittee on international relations that his government indeed attempted to buy the support of American congressmen; that in so doing it spent considerably more than $3 million; that Tongsun Park, the South Korean lobbyist in Washington, was the principal conduit for this money and that he himself once saw a list of "15 to 20" American congressmen who were tabbed to receive $200,000 from Mr. Park.

All of this is scandalous sounding, all right, but where does the subcommittee on international relations go from here? It is doubtful if it can go anywhere.

The committee, of course, can hold more hearings and so arouse interest in the ethics of some congressmen and the South Korean government. But since the panel is charged with monitoring human rights, it can do no more than fulminate about the possibly errant ways of some congressmen.

It is to the House Committee of Standards of Official Conduct that one must look for censure of congressmen if they have been bought off, and to the Justice Department for indictments. Unfortunately, neither has demonstrated much speed in either direction. Indeed, the Justice Department has been downright mulish.

Rep. Donald Fraser, who heads the subcommittee on international relations, tells the story of going to the Justice Department for information, and being rebuffed. Fraser suggests that Justice is privy to all kinds of interesting facts, but for some reason now believes in silence. What reason could that be? Could it be, as rumored, that mainly Democrats are involved?

At best, the Justice Department silence is bad public relations. At worst it is evidence of what once was called "politics as usual." Justice should get with it, or, as may be the case, to break from politics.

Fraser's committee can seine for fish all day, and the House Ethics Committee can even help hold the net. But it is up to the Justice Department to sort the catch, and make the kill.

Yes, why not?

"Viewpoint," a publication of the Lamesa Area Chamber of Commerce, calls attention to the fact that a resolution proposing the designation of an annual "American Business Day" observance has met with very little interest in the House of Representatives.

Earlier this year the Senate approved a measure declaring May 13 of each year to be "American Business Day." It was on May 13, 1807, that Jamestown, Va., was founded as the first permanent English settlement under sponsorship of the Virginia Company of London. This event usually is credited with being the start of the free enterprise system in America.

A similar measure was introduced in the House (H.J. Res. 13), which requires 218 members expressing an affirmative interest before the Census and Population subcommittee can take it up for consideration. At the last count reported, less than 30 members of the House had expressed such an interest. The next meeting of the panel is scheduled this fall.

The lack of interest is somewhat shocking to all concerned. Congress, as well as the President and the nation as a whole should recognize American business and the role of private enterprise in the growth and development of the United States through the years.

We join with the Lamesa Chamber in asking, "Why not an American Business Day?"

CIA gave money to Israel, too

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON—The story broke last February that Jordan's King Hussein had collected millions in secret payments from the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). We have now learned that similar secret payments were made to Israel beginning about the same time.

Back in 1957, the CIA began slipping money to King Hussein for intelligence purposes. That same year, the CIA began a similar subsidy for Israel. The total has now reached about $80 million.

Some sources say the money was delivered to the Israeli prime minister. Other sources claim it was channeled through the Israeli foreign ministry. But all sources agree the cash was used at first to underwrite Israeli aid programs for black African nations. In return, the Israelis hoped to earn black political support in the United Nations.

But after the Arab-Israeli conflicts in 1967 and 1973, most black nations linked up with the Arabs and broke diplomatic relations with Israel. Explained one Israeli official: "The blacks were virtually blackmailed with the oil weapon."

The blacks have continued, nevertheless, to maintain contacts with Israel through trade missions and other delegations. According to this official, they have told Israel to stand fast, things will improve.

Most Israeli aid programs in black Africa have now been halted. The secret CIA payments are now subsidizing another extremely sensitive Israeli operation.

Footnote: The CIA had no comment.

PLANE TRUTH: At the prodding of President Carter, the Pentagon boobahs have given up some of their limosines. But they still like to fly around the country in style.

Last week, the big brass flew to Scott Air Force Base in Illinois for a routine conference. There were enough bigwigs to fill an Air Force plane. But they took not one but two planes, both of them half empty.

The Joint Chiefs, with their assorted aides, filled up 21 seats in a VC-9 jet. This left another 21 seats empty. Two hours later, Defense Secretary Harold Brown commandeered a separate VC-140 jet to fly to the same spot. He was accompanied by three aides.

A Pentagon spokesman explained to our reporter, Tom Rosenstiel, that the extra plane gave Brown an extra two hours at his desk in Washington. He was also able to return more than four hours earlier. The spokesman did not explain why Brown couldn't have taken his paperwork with him.

For "security reasons," the spokesman added, the Pentagon doesn't like all the top commanders to fly in the same plane. The extra plane was provided, however, solely for Brown's convenience.

CORPORATE CAPERS: Lobbyists for the nation's biggest corporations have been active on Capitol Hill lately seeking tax breaks and other special incentives. When they are pressed to explain the economic justification for their special privileges, they say that new jobs will be created.

But a confidential congressional memo contends, on the contrary, that the 50 top corporations have not increased employment as rapidly as the population has grown.

The memo was prepared by the House Small Business Committee

HEMISPHERE REPORT:

Mrs. Carter irritated some Latin officials

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

Latin American heads of state, without exception, think that they know their own countries quite well. Very obviously they do not feel any real need for unsolicited advice, not even from the United States.

That may well be the unspoken, unwritten message that President Jimmy Carter's wife, Rosalynn, carried back to Washington after her recent 13-day, seven-nation tour of the Caribbean and Latin America.

Of course, neither Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley, President Daniel Oduber of Costa Rica, Vice Adm. Alfredo Poveda of Ecuador, Peruvian President Gen. Francisco Morales Bermudez, President Ernesto Geisel of Brazil, Colombian President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen nor Carlos Andres Perez, president of Venezuela, made so bold as to so inform Mrs. Carter.

Her hosts are men of considerable education. They have dedicated their lives to the service of their countries. All have held key positions in governments that preceded their own. They are painfully aware of the complexity of their national problems and the resistance of those problems to facile solution.

Over the years, they all have been in a position to listen to the steady flow of often conflicting advice that has been coming from the United States.

In some cases, in the past, their governments heeded the words from

William Giandoni

Washington over their own better judgment. They had to qualify for U.S. aid. But now that the U.S. foreign aid program for Latin America is a thing of the past, Latins tend to have little patience with sermons pronounced in English. However, the heads of state Mrs. Carter visited are gentlemen, she was received with all the honors due the wife of the President of the United States and was granted the audiences that were requested for her. At the same time, doubts were evidenced of both the value of her trip as well as its timing. Every one of the countries that Mrs. Carter visited is currently experiencing domestic political or social problems.

Predictably, opposition groups would try to take advantage of her presence to dramatize their complaints. That meant that her hosts had to choose between tightening their repression of the opposition with the attendant risk of possible violations of human rights in her presence or allowing the dissidents to contact her in an effort to humiliate the government.

The governments stood to lose, no matter what.

No one in Latin America seemed to have a reasonable answer to the question of what Mrs. Carter was supposed to accomplish.

The outspoken Brazilian newspaper, O Estado de S. Paulo, for example, reported prior to Mrs. Carter's arrival that the Brazilian Foreign Ministry was "not really aware of the subjects" she wanted to explore.

"Her trip was proposed by the U.S. government and it is up to them to indicate the points to be discussed."

Throughout her trip, Mrs. Carter laid much stress on alleged violations of human rights in Latin America. But that backfired, so far as some Latins were concerned, in Brazil. There Mrs. Carter held a meeting with two U.S. missionaries who had been jailed for several days in Recife and was photographed with them.

Brazilian Foreign Minister Antonio Azeredo da Silveira later told an interviewer that much ado had been made over the men, who were said to have been mistaken for vagrants, but that news pictures showed they apparently are in good health. What is more, the foreign minister added, at the same time, in Chicago, police killed two and injured 133 in quelling a Puerto Rican demonstration in that city.

It was in Colombia, next to last stop on Mrs. Carter's tour, that the Latins found a way to make known their disappointment that the President had sent his wife, rather than an envoy with authority to speak in the name of the U.S. government. The only formal, public event scheduled by the Colombian government for Mrs. Carter during her one-day stay was a reception hosted by President Lopez Michelsen's wife, attended only by women.

Colombians and many other Latin Americans feel that they are being slighted by President Carter.

INSIDE REPORT:

White Rhodesian still wants place in new Zimbabwe

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

BURMA VALLEY, Rhodesia — The authentic face of white Rhodesia today is shown by David Wiggins, a 58-year-old native Rhodesian farmer who knows that rule over his country by the black majority is inevitable but still wants a place for himself in the new Zimbabwe.

He is not alone. In conversations with white farmers, politicians, businessmen, soldiers, policemen, intellectuals, housewives, bureaucrats and students, we heard nobody dispute the certainty that, one way or another, Ian Smith will be succeeded by a black prime minister. Those whites who may emigrate are doing so not out of revulsion at black majority rule as such but fear of a Marxist, repressive Zimbabwe.

This belies the stereotype of the Rhodesian settler, well to Smith's right, insisting on anachronistic white man's rule. Smith, supported by 3-to-1 of 250,000 whites in his long fight to retain their supremacy, will get similar 3-to-1 support for majority rule (though the 75 per cent backing is now distributed differently).

It probably comes too late. Western diplomats privately admit that with each passing hour, black nationalists escalate their demands. Black leaders now label special protections for the white minority as racist privileges, discouraging hope that political and economic ruin can be avoided in this rich and lovely country.

Evans Novak

But, contrary to Third World Communist propaganda, white Rhodesians are not refusing to accept black rule.

Farmer Wiggins is a case in point. Returning to Rhodesia in 1946 after wartime service as an RAF pilot in England (where a fellow aviator was Ian Smith), Wiggins received from the then colonial government 3,000 barren acres in the beautiful Burma Valley hard by Rhodesia's eastern border with Mozambique. He now grows cotton and a little tobacco, feeds cattle and, like many white Rhodesians, lives exceedingly well. But he spends one week in four as a police reservist, and his farm is best arrived at in a mine-protected truck.

Farmers such as Wiggins form the bulwark of Smith's hard-line Rhodesian Front. But Wiggins now accepts majority rule, adding: "I suppose we've waited a bit too long."

Black nationalist demands for redistribution of income worry him. Nevertheless he and his children want to stick it out in Zimbabwe, even with a lowered standard of living.

So, Wiggins and his neighbor farmers were not at all pleased when John Wright, their young member of parliament, joined 11 other bitter-enders (since expelled from the Rhodesian Front) attacking Smith's acceptance of majority rule. The Rhodesian Front's Burma Valley branch including David Wiggins, voted unanimously to disavow Wright's apostasy. Smith is still their man.

That suddenly narrows the gap between conservative farmers in the Burma Valley and liberal businessmen in Salisbury. The liberals deplore Smith's years of rigidity, and some suspect his sincerity today. But they will follow Smith into reasonable majority rule, and what they consider reasonable sounds very much like David Wiggins' requirements.

The first requirement is physical protection after Smith steps down, preferably with the present Rhodesian government's security forces maintaining law and order for the caretaker government. The second requirement is financial protection against expropriation of assets.

But such requirements are rejected summarily by black nationalists, who demand unconditional majority rule. What infuriates white Rhodesians across the ideological spectrum is that British and U.S. diplomats seeking a negotiated settlement are not pushing black nationalist leaders to offer some form of protection.

Accordingly, while still grumbling over Ian Smith's past record, white liberals now most resent that London, and Washington place so low a priority on preventing Rhodesia's admirable economic system from descending to the general confusion of black Africa. One prominent businessman, reputedly a liberal, is so incensed that he told us he honestly believes the Americans and British want to eliminate Rhodesia and eventually South Africa as economic competitors.

The difficulty of achieving a settlement is accelerating the emigration of business and technical experts, whose departure the Smith regime cannot afford. But it is not yet a mass exodus. We found many whites similar to one young man who splits his time between business interests in Salisbury and fighting guerrillas along the Mozambique frontier. "I shall never leave here," he told us. "I was born here, my children were born here and it's the only bloody place I know."

His decision to fight and stay betrays, besides patriotism, hope of salvaging some of the white man's privileged position. But nobody could fild harbors illusions about keeping white minority rule. That the West chooses to ignore this exposes the hypocrisy of the age.

Briscoe urges financing

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe called on Texas lawmakers Friday to settle the public school financing question before they consider anything else in the special session opening Monday. The formal call for the special legislative meeting, limited to 30 days, was given by Briscoe as the House Public Education Committee ended two days of public hearing on two proposed House bills. Briscoe said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby told him a Senate bill was being prepared and would be ready Monday. Senate sources said the $932.7

Greenwood Lions alter meetings

Members of the Greenwood Lions Club, at their Thursday night meeting, decided to change their regular sessions from evening to breakfast meetings, beginning July 16. Breakfast will be served at 7:30 a.m. on the first and third Saturdays of each month in the Greenwood Baptist Church. Members will alternate in preparing and serving breakfast. The change was made in order that more members might be able to attend. Leroy Ledford is president of the club and Chris King is secretary-treasurer. Members of other Midland Lions clubs are invited to attend the July 16 breakfast. Reservations may be made by telephoning King at 683-3971.

Midlander's stabbing death leads to charge

A 24-year-old Midland man has been charged in connection with the Monday night stabbing death of Robert Earl Robinson, 23, of 1219 E. Est. Charles Edward Freeman of 1501 S. Marshall St. turned himself in to Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith about 1:30 p.m. Friday, according to police. Robinson was dead at Midland Memorial Hospital on arrival after he was stabbed at Maxie's Bar, 1506 E. Industrial Ave., around midnight Monday. According to detective Lt. Earl Lucy, Robinson and some other men were arguing when a man until that matter has been disposed of," Briscoe told a Friday news conference. "The entire effort of the legislature from 10 a.m. Monday will be on public education until it is completed." The governor said he had 210 requests to include other subjects in the session but "I have made no final decision of what other subjects, if any, will be submitted. No other subjects will be submitted until public education is completed." Comptroller Bob Bullock has said the special session has $959.8 million in expected state income to spend. "The call (of the special session) is for public school financing and will be limited to public education financing caliber firearms and what all Clark didn't say. Today, they're all holstering those .357s, wearing royal blue uniforms, Western boots and other wear to match. Not long after Clark took over the Fort Stockton PD, he really beefed up his force. "I hired me an attorney," who turned out to be a 6 feet 10 1/2 fellow who weighs in at 350 pounds. "He's a big uncle," said Clark, who only stands 6 feet 2 and only weighs 280 pounds. "He's about the size of Hoss Cartwright." The cop-lawyer is Mike Fetter and he wears a size 38 jacket. His troopers are all good cops. And most are big, but not like Fetter. "They all wear white hats," said the chief. "Hell, we're the good guys." All but two on his force stand 6 feet tall or higher. Clark started making Fort Stockton his home after he called it quits with the Lamesa Police Department. He was the assistant chief there under Lee Bartlett. And Clark absolutely declared that he "broke him in. He's a good fella," he said of Chief Bartlett. Somewhere along the line in his 15 years of law enforcement, Clark taught the chief a few things about police work. He has said that many times before. In more recent years, Clark was the chief criminal investigator for the Midland County Sheriff's office. But he ducked out of that job just before the changing of sheriffs. (Dallas Smith succeeded Ed "Big Ed" Darnell, who had been the high sheriff in Midland since the early 1940s.)

Police eye burglary, eight hurt in wreck

Police Friday were investigating a burglary at the Lorena Brown residence, 1303 1/2 W. Illinois Ave., where $95 in cash was taken when sometime Thursday night or Friday morning. According to police, the money was taken from a dresser drawer. Items in the living room were scattered about, but nothing was missing, and there was no sign of forced entry. EIGHT HURT Eight persons were taken to Midland Memorial Hospital Thursday night after they were injured in an automobile accident at the intersection of Florida and Terrell Street. Reyes Orona Ramgel, 46, of 1006 S. Jackson St. was listed in satisfactory condition at the hospital while the other seven persons were treated and released. According to police reports, the mishap occurred when a car driven by Ruby Allen Phillips, 64, of Wingate was stopped at a red light while facing west and a car driven by Lee Earl Martin, 52, of 801 S. Baird St., also headed west, collided. After the collision, the Martin vehicle and Mrs. Reyes' vehicle, which was headed east on Florida Avenue, then collided. MONEY TAKEN Someone entered the Handi-Spot food store at 1200 N. Lamesa sometime between noon and 1 p.m. Thursday while the manager was out to lunch and took $300 from the store's cash box, according to police reports. Charles Elliot of 1004 Shell Ave. told police he locked the store at noon when he went to lunch and when he returned, the front door glass had been broken and the money was found missing.

TRANSMISSION TAKEN Apparently a customer took a $100 transmission and a $75 labor bill from Western Transmission at 3504 Bankhead Highway sometime Wednesday night or Thursday morning. John Childers, an employe at the business, told police the owner came to get the car Wednesday night, but was told the car would not be ready until Thursday morning. When Childers came to work Thursday morning, the gate to the parking lot had been taken off the hinges and the car was gone. Police are looking for a suspect. WHEELS, TIRES TAKEN Perry Slatey of Midway Auto, 2601 W. Wall Ave., told police someone took two "mag" wheels and tires valued at a total of $235 from a car parked on the lot sometime between 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and 7:30 a.m. Thursday. The wheels were removed by using a hydraulic jack, police said.

Phones go on blink for awhile

Hundreds of telephones in Midland were knocked out of service Friday afternoon, most for about an hour. Janice Hailey, manager of the Midland office of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., said Friday night cause of the failure is unknown. Hailey said telephones in the 682, 683 and 684 exchanges were temporarily out of service. A phone company service assistant said the service interruption affected all telephones in the city. "We just had an equipment failure, and at this time we don't know what happened to it," Hailey said. Lines in downtown Midland and elsewhere went dead at 3:57 p.m., she said. Intra-city lines were back in service by about 5 p.m. and most long-distance lines shortly after that. By 8 p.m., all lines except those to Dallas were functioning normally. Hailey said some of the affected phones weren't entirely out of service. Some phones simply had a "slow dial tone," she said. In some cases, it would take 15 or so seconds for the dial tone to sound once the receiver was picked up, she said.

TWO OKLAHOMA prison escapees sought in a three-state series of killings and abductions have been arrested in Portland, Ore., the Oklahoma Highway Patrol said Friday. The wanted men, Paul Ruiz, left, and Earl Denton, tunneled from the Oklahoma State Prison at McAlester, Okla., in late June. They are wanted for killings in Louisiana, Arkansas and Oklahoma. CRMWD notes heavy use of water during June

The Colorado River Municipal Water District recorded 2,122,897,906 gallons metered to customers in June, which was not far behind the record of 2,409,049,000 gallons for June, 1974. The all-time peak was 2,588,299,414 gallons in July 1974. Through June the district had sold 9,668,770,206 gallons, about a billion gallons less than the 10,715,872,000 gallons metered in the first-half of 1974. However, in 1974, San Angelo took $10,250,000 gallons during the first half and 958,155,000 gallons all year. This year San Angelo is unlikely to take water since its own lake supplies are in good condition, according to a water district spokesman. In June, municipal deliveries amounted to 1,537,612,500, up 48 million gallons, or 3.23 per cent, over a year ago. According to the spokesman, this amount was unusual because all cities, except for a small amount to Robert Lee, were off due to timely showers. However, Odessa, had a large gain. Industrial and oil company use was 585,205,406 gallons, down 3.6 million. City use in June was as follows: Odessa, 678,795,000, up 21.58 per cent; Big Spring, 290,319,000, down 12.99 per cent; Snyder, 11,030,000, down 4.20 per cent; Stanton, 14,315,000 gallons, down 1.86 per cent; Midland, 437,608,000, gallons, down 5.64 per cent; and Robert Lee, 5,545,500 gallons, up 85.26 per cent.

DEATHS

W.H. Buffington dies in accident

ODESSA — Wayne Allen Buffington, 33, of Laredo died Thursday morning in an automobile accident near Edinburg. His widow, Nita Buffington, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Renfro of Midland. Services for Buffington are pending at Easterling Funeral Home in Odessa. He was an oil field worker. Survivors include the widow, two daughters, a brother and his parents.

Bowen, pastor, officiating. Burial was in Waurika Cemetery directed by Worley Funeral Home.

Mrs. Melton was born Sept. 13, 1905, in Chilton. Other survivors include a daughter, six sisters, a brother, her stepmother and three grandchildren.

Midlander's mother dies

WAURIKA, Okla. — Mrs. Lillian Melton, 72, of Waurika, Okla., mother of Mrs. Billie Ruth Housman of Midland, died Tuesday in a Dallas hospital after a lengthy illness. Services were Friday in First Baptist Church, with the Rev. O. K.

Collis McDonald services held

JACKSBORO, Tex. — Collis E. McDonald, 73, of Jacksboro, brother of Lucy Steele of McCamey, died Tuesday in a Jacksboro hospital. Services were Friday in First Baptist Church of Jacksboro with the Rev. Billy Rogers and the Rev. David Barclay officiating. Burial was in Wizard Wells Cemetery directed by Hawkins Funeral Home. McDonald was born Jan. 10, 1904, in Oklahoma. Other survivors include seven daughters, a sister, a brother, 40 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Cool front sweeps in

A West Texas cold front kept Panhandle temperatures in the cool 70s — Friday while much of the remainder of the state had readings in the 80s and 90s. The front also left a path of thunder-showers across the Panhandle. The front stretched from Northeast Oklahoma through the Panhandle to just south of Lubbock. The rains fell in West Texas with heavy thunder-showers reported in Hudspeith and El Paso Counties. The storms packed gusty winds and some hail. Other rainfall was reported in Northeast Texas near Center. Scattered showers and heavy thunderstorms soaked Sherman, Brownwood, Sweetwater and Wichita Falls. South of the front, however, a high pressure ridge brought warmer temperatures and clear skies.

BRIDGE

Tournament experts must take big risks

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When the North American Championships begin next Friday at the Palmer House, in Chicago, several thousand sane bridge players will make insane plays in a certain kind of bridge hand.

Any sane rubber bridge player sees that he needs precisely four diamond tricks for his contract. He wins the first spade, cashes the king of diamonds and then lets the opponents win the next diamond even if East craftily plays the jack.

No matter how the defense continues, South can win the rest of his diamonds, making four diamonds, three spades and two aces.

NOT GOOD ENOUGH
This is not necessarily good enough in a tournament, where overtricks are often just as important as making the contract. A tournament player who executes the "safety play" just described might be the only player in the field who failed to win five diamond tricks (if the suit broke normally). He would get a cold zero from the scorer and a hot lecture from his partner.

At rubber bridge, of course, failure to play the diamonds safe would cost South his contract. Declarer would get only three diamonds and, with both black suits breaking badly, would lose three clubs, a diamond and at least one heart.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: SJ10986; HQ942; D3; C862. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades. You would love to jump to four spades to show your excellent trump support and side singleton, but the hand is far too weak. The jump to game describes a lack of highcard strength but also promises some trick-taking power.

Veteran rebuilds bikes to give to needy children

LAKE WALES, Fla. (AP) — At Elvin Johnson's house, the trash collectors make deliveries as well as pickups, dropping off any rusted old bicycles they find.

Parents in this central Florida community come by with bikes that have been outgrown. Dealers give Johnson a break on parts.

The 69-year-old disabled veteran spends his days in his backyard cleaning, painting, repairing and reassembling the bikes. Then he gives them to needy children.

Pair jailed in robbery

COPPELL, Tex. (AP) — Daniel Oruna, 23, and John David Arnold, both of Denton, were jailed Friday charged with robbing the First Security Bank and Trust of Coppell.

The bank was robbed Thursday of $6,000 when two men entered the offices and one of them ordered eight employees against the wall at gunpoint while the other ordered tellers to empty their money into a paper sack.

Witnesses said one of the bandits wore a hat that partially covered his face. The face of the other man was not covered.

A check on the license plate of the car used by the men led officers to Oruna. Officers said Oruna showed them where some of the money was hidden.

"When I get through with them, they may not be new, but they run like new," says Johnson. "And when you make a kid happy, you're just as happy."

He started making kids happy with bicycles last Thanksgiving. The Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars had prepared a food basket for a poor family, and Johnson thought about getting bicycles for the three children.

"I shopped around and got some old bikes and repaired them," he said. "Then I realized there were other children who could not afford to buy bikes, and I just couldn't quit."

Johnson, who had seven brothers and sisters, said he knows how difficult things can get for large families with little cash.

"I got my first bike by picking up the parts and making it myself," he said.

But a couple of times, he said, he found out that some of the children to whom he had given bicycles could have paid for them. Now he asks neighbors and others in the community for recommendations.

When a youngster can afford a small payment, Johnson charges a nominal fee and uses the money to buy parts.

So far, he has sold six bikes — and given away 32.

Ford badly overshadowed by Nixon's paper legacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's paper legacy stands unrivaled, but it turns out that Gerald R. Ford and his aides were no slouches when it came to cranking out official documents.

The government is preparing to sort through some 20 million pages of papers Ford donated before leaving the White House. The documents cover Ford's 25 years in Congress, his tenure as vice president, and his 2½ year presidency.

Ford's White House years account for about 17.6 million pages of documents, which ultimately will be housed in a presidential library at the University of Michigan.

It will take a staff of 14 to sort and catalogue the Ford papers to prepare them for public use. Only documents that bear on national security or infringe on personal privacy are to be sealed. Nixon's presidential papers run to 42 million pages, in addition to the 880 reels of tape that record some 5,000 hours of White House conversation. Nixon claims ownership, as have past presidents, but the Supreme Court has ruled that the government properly has custody and control of his documents and tapes.

The official documents include a broad assortment of papers from various executive agencies, that make up the record of a presidency. Those records seem to be growing longer with each administration.

Nixon piled up presidential documents at a rate equal to more than 20,000 pages for each of his 2,027 days in the White House. And the Ford collection grew at almost that rate.

may well be the first instance in which the United States is a recipient, rather than a donor of foreign aid," said Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr., R-Ohio.

The matter came up in the House when Whalen said that for the sake of consistency, Congress should stop paying the rent and the salaries of 149 Cubans who work on the base.

Whalen's sardonic reasoning was that the House has twice voted to prohibit aid or trade with Cuba, and should follow its own strictures in the case of Guantanamo. His "antihypocrisy amendment of 1977" got nowhere.

Ronald Reagan's political action organization has urged conservatives to turn up the pressure against legislation that would have the government finance House and Senate election campaigns, a major item on the administration's election law agenda.

Citizens for the Republic called for "a barrage of cards and letters" to Congress in opposition to the campaign finance bill.

At the same time, Reagan advised Republicans to support "a cluster of these volunteer organizations" like the one he launched with leftover presidential campaign funds.

Drought brews peril for whooper chicks

GRAYS LAKE, Idaho (AP) — Predators and drought threaten whooping crane chicks hatched here this summer in an experiment to increase numbers of the endangered species, the project director said.

Don Driewen said that for the third year, whooping crane eggs taken from wild flocks were transplanted to nests of sandhill cranes, a related species which migrates to This Eastern Idaho wildlife refuge each summer.

But Driewen said only half the 18 chicks hatched this spring, from eggs brought from Alberta, Canada, and Maryland remain alive. The rest were victims of natural causes, mostly marauding coyotes.

He said the chicks, still unable to fly, are particularly vulnerable to coyotes roaming the normally high water marsh lands.

"The water level is low, and as a result these coyotes, instead of hunting at the water's edge and meadows, are going right out on the marsh. From what it looks like, the predation will be heavy," he said.

He said project members removed two coyotes, but about eight remain. He said the coyote population is slightly larger this summer because of a mild

Three adult whoopers from the first two years of the project have returned to Grays Lake. Another raised here last year is on the Green River near Pinedale, Wyo., Driewen said, adding another is on the Ouray National Wildlife Refuge near Vernal, Utah.

Sixteen whooper eggs arrived here by airplane May 20 from the wild flock nesting in Wood Buffalo National Park in Alberta. About 20 other eggs were transferred from the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center at Laurel, Md., he said.

Driewen said project members hope the whoopers will form "pair bonds" within four years. If they do, he said, they will begin nesting two years after that.

Top amateurs arrive for Trans Miss

A field of 277 top amateur golfers headed by defending champion Doug Clarke invaded the Tall City this weekend for the weeklong Trans-Miss Amateur Golf Tournament.

Most of the golfers are expected to be in Midland for practice rounds today and Sunday in preparation for qualifying Monday and Tuesday at Hogan Park and Midland Country Club.

The 64 survivors will tee off in the championship flight Wednesday to begin the match play event at Midland Country Club.

"The majority of golfers will play practice rounds at either Hogan or Midland today and Sunday," said Ted Ferguson, co-director of the tournament. "Rules state that they may play each course once and that will be after 2 p.m. on both days."

IN ADDITION to the championship flight, there will be a 32-man President's flight.

Clarke, La Jolla, Calif., who defeated Dr. Ed Updegraff, Tucson, Ariz., in last year's final at Spyglass in Pebble Beach, Calif., as a 17-year-old, is the only golfer to draw an exemption into the tournament.

"Both courses are in as good a shape as can be expected, considering the lack of rain this summer," Ferguson said.

MCC will be U.S. Open-tough with narrow fairways, long roughs and thick frog hair grass around the greens. Hogan also will have thick frog hair around the greens, which means putters will stay in the bag until the ball is actually on the green.

"IF WE get some wind both courses will be hard," Ferguson predicted. If it's calm and still, we could have some low scores."

Competitive lows at MCC are Terry Jastrow's 65 for amateurs and Dr. Cary Middlecoff's 66 for pros.

Since a golfer must have a bona fide three handicap to even qualify, both records could be in jeopardy, if the conditions are right.

Among top amateurs who will bid for berths among the final 64 are John Grace, Fort Worth, and John Farquhar, Lubbock, both former Walker Cup players. Lindy Miller, Oklahoma State University, who was low amateur in the U.S. Open; and Lee Michael, the USC golfer who was runner-up in NCAA tournament.

BILL SANDER, the U.S. Amateur champion, is the only significant scratch from the field. Sander opted to play in the British Open.

The field will be liberally sprinkled with golfers from top golf-playing colleges such as Texas, Texas A&M, Houston, Oklahoma State, Texas Tech, Colorado, SMU and most of the major golfing universities.

Of course, West Texas premiere amateurs will be here for this, only the sixth Trans Miss to be held in Texas in the 75-year history of the event.

The weeklong tournament will climax with the 36 hole championship final and conditioning will be important since this is a "walking" tournament, no carts for competitors.

WEST TEXAS golfers may prove hard to beat on their home stomping grounds where the wind blows free in hot, strength-sapping gusts during the summer.

Area favorites include John Paul Cain, Sweetwater and the University of Houston, who lost to Ben Crenshaw in the 1972 finals at Dallas' Brook Hollow; John Stark, UH; Bill Hollstead, Wichita Falls, and John Horne, Plainview, the reigning Men's West Texas champion.

There will be no admission charge for spectators.

Tom Watson shares British Open lead.

Nicklaus, Watson tied going into final 18 holes

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson, the reigning king of world golf and the heir apparent, matched five-under-par 65s in a head-to-head confrontation Friday that put them in a tie for the third-round lead in the British Open golf championship.

It was the Masters revisited, Augusta, Ga., by the Irish Sea, the fast young gun against the boss of the town. Neither flinched in one of the game's great battles.

In the end, they had to settle with matching scores of 203, seven under par for three rounds over Turnberry's temperamental Ailsa course, stretching 6,875 yards along the Ayrshire coast.

They now go to today's final round of this ancient championship in a situation very similar to their pressure-packed duel in the Masters, when Watson stood off Nicklaus' pounding challenge in one of golf's most thrilling displays.

Troubled Rangers pass milestone

With all the controversy surrounding owner Brad Corbett's decision to sell the Texas Rangers, everyone seems to have overlooked the progress being made.

Don't folks realize it has been over a week since the Rangers have had a managerial change...

When the Midland Cubs broke loose against the Amarillo Giants for a 19-2 win 10 days ago, they just missed two Texas League records by a hair.

In that 10-run sixth inning, they banged out eight straight hits, just one short of the record nine set by Beaumont vs. San Antonio July 21, 1940. And the 11 hits in the inning was one short of the mark set by Waco against Beaumont Aug. 6, 1930.

Midland Cubs' outfielder Karl Pangel is only six away from the all-time club home run record of 29, but he's going to have to step up his pace to eclipse the Texas League mark of 62 by Ken Guettler for Shreveport in 1956.

Most rbis? Clarence "Big Boy" Kraft, 196 for Fort Worth in 1924.

FORMER ALL-SWC quarterback Joe Barnes of Texas Tech is No. 1 quarterback for the Montreal Alouettes in the Canadian Football League and former Baylor quarterback Mark Jackson is his backup.

"Surprised? Sure I'm surprised," says former Chicago Cubs manager Jim Marshall when questioned about the National League club's surprising showing in this year's race.

Now manager of the Denver American Association club, Marshall adds, "But there are two things. First of all, having Bruce Sutter all year. Secondly, it's the middle men, Hernandez and Paul Reuschel. The middle men have been so strong at picking up the starters after five or six innings. That's what gives the manager a chance to maneuver.

TED BATTLES

Of Mike Krukow, another ex-Midland Cubs pitcher, Marshall appraises, "He was the best young pitcher in the organization."

"I'm very happy for them. I was with the Cubs for nine years...nine years."

MEANWHILE, BILL Madlock, traded to San Francisco for Steve Ontiveros and Bobby Murcer, who played a big role in Chicago's success, admits, he'd rather be playing for the Cubs. "I grew up in Decatur and to me playing ball for the Chicago Cubs was the ultimate. Baseball is 90 per cent mental and I just feel better playing at home. And I consider Wrigley Field home."

"Face it, the fans in the Bay Area are not turned on by sports the way they are in Chicago. Heck, I hear the White Sox are also drawing real fine crowds this year. That's great and makes me happy for Chicago."

SAN DIEGO Manager Alvin

Dark says he never said what he said to get himself fired by Oakland A's manager Charles O. Finley. At least, not exactly.

"I was giving my personal testimony at a church," Dark related. "And in California if you want to make a point you use the name of either Ronald Reagan or Charles O. Finley. I said, based on the authority of God's word, 'Even Charles O. Finley if he hasn't accepted Christ would go to Hell.' A headline came out in the paper saying 'Dark says Finley Going To Hell.' The paper didn't say that I said 'Even Charles O. Finley.' If I were an owner I might fire a manager, too, who said I was going to hell."

And really, golf isn't a rich man's game. There are thousands of poor players.

Young takes lead on 68

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Donna Caponi Young's hot putter offset two bogies with seven birdies Friday and she fired a five-under-par 68 to take the first-round lead in the $75,000 Ladies' Professional Golf Association tournament.

Mrs. Young, the women's U.S. Open champion in 1969 and 1970 and a four-time LPGA winner last year, collected successive birdies on the third, fourth, fifth and sixth holes.

Those holes were on her back nine since she, like the 90 other pros and six amateurs in the three-day, 54-hole event at the par-73 Locust Hill Country Club, started their rounds on the 10th tee. Two days of rain saturated the front nine and tournament officials wanted to give it a chance to dry out before the players reached it.

Next at 71 were Sally Little, Carol Mann, Marilyn Smith and Jo Ann Washam. Five players finished with 72s—Sandra Burns, Mary Lou Crocker, Patty Hayes, Debbie Massey and Judy Rankin, the LPGA's leading money-winner this year and victor in the only Canadian tour stop at Montreal last Sunday.

Fourteen players were bracketed at 73, including the runnersup to Mrs. Rankin in Canada, Pat Meyers and Sandra Palmer, plus veterans Jane Blalock, JoAnne Carner and Kathy Whitworth.

Bonnie Lauer, the 1976 rookie-of-the-year, finished at even par by getting a hole-in-one on the 150-yard ninth hole (her 18th).

Kathy Linney, who has won only $2,134 in 13 tour stops this year, fired a three-under-par 70 to stand alone in second place. She had five birdies in a row.

Snub by country club no surprise to Lanier

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Pro football star Willie Lanier said Friday his family's rejection for membership in an all-white country club won't have any effect on his staying in the neighborhood.

"I wasn't really surprised," said Lanier, an all-pro linebacker for the Kansas City Chiefs. "Of course, you're disappointed."

Lanier is a graduate of Richmond's Maggie Walker High School and assistant director of labor relations for Philip Morris Inc. at its corporate headquarters here.

Lanier said he moved to Salisbury, a secluded, wooded development filled with $100,000 to $200,000 homes, about 3 1/2 months ago. He said he was aware that there would be opposition to his family's application for membership in the club as well as that of a black neighbor, Dr. Thomas Wright Jr., a dentist.

"There were a number of people who were very supportive and who felt it's not right," Lanier said. "It wasn't a situation where there was total opposition."

He said he has not decided whether to take action against the club.

"I don't really know what options are available," he said. "I'm just not aware of them at this time."

A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office here said there is no federal law prohibiting discrimination by private clubs on the basis of race.

Thomas J. Hampton, president of the Salisbury Country Club, said the club had no comment on its action.

Fred Lynn

MC lands Juco golf tournament

Midland College has been selected to host the 1978 National Junior College Athletic Association's women's golf tournament. It was announced by MC President Al G. Langford and Athletic Delnor Poss, who extended the invitation to the NJCAA executive committee.

Hogan Park Golf Course will be the site of the three-day event, slated May 30-June 1. Practice rounds are scheduled May 29 to be followed by 54 holes of competition.

Midland College participated in the first two women's tournaments, hosted by Temple Junior College and played on the Killeen municipal course. MC took second in 1976, won by Temple. MC placed third this year with Broadband Community College, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., taking first and Temple second.

"WOMEN'S GOLF programs are growing rapidly in and we played in the two previous tournaments," Poss said. "As many as 100 golfers could enter the 1978 tournament."

Farwell, and Tammy Tyler, Floydada, and two freshmen, Joyceanna Hooper, Borger, and Michelle Woodfin, Big Lake.

Two more players are expected to sign prior to the start of fall classes.

"We are honored to be selected to host this tournament, and are grateful for the cooperation of the City of Midland and Hogan Park professional Rex Worrell in helping us arrange for the facilities," Poss said.

Lynn backs up fans' confidence

BOSTON (AP) — Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox is making American League baseball fans throughout the country look a lot more knowledgeable as the annual All-Star Game approaches.

Just a couple of weeks ago there were plenty of snickers, particularly in Boston, as Lynn maintained a spot high in the fans' balloting for a starting outfield berth in the All-Star Game July 19 in New York.

Even Lynn quietly admitted he didn't deserve such a big vote. However, he found the only way to silence critics — with a hot bat. Now, few will argue his right to open in center for the AL All-Stars. Without much fanfare, he has regained the batting form which earned him an All-Star berth as a rookie write-in on the ballot in 1975, and overwhelming selection last year.

IRONICALLY, Lynn got hot almost at the same time the Red Sox went into a skid, falling out of the AL East lead in a nine-game losing streak. He was hitting just .221 on June 25, when he suddenly regained his form in a loss to the Yankees in New York.

Now he's closing in on .300 in his first 10 games since that woeful .221 mark. He collected 19 hits, including three homers and three doubles, raising his average by more than 55 points.

After less than two full minor league seasons, Lynn won a regular job with the Red Sox in 1975, earning the AL Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year awards with a .331 average, 21 homers and 105 runs batted in. Locked in a contract dispute most of last season, he slipped, but still finished with a .314 mark, 10 homers and 65 RBI.

Only 25, Lynn appeared set for another big year this spring. Then, on March 25, he suffered torn ligaments in his left ankle. The left-handed slugger missed the first 27 games of the regular season. He still wasn't 100 per cent fit, but he hurried his return. The ankle kept paining him and, although as spectacular as ever in the field, his batting average suffered. "I KNEW I wasn't ready, but I had to get back in there and test the ankle," Lynn said. "There was considerable swelling for a long while. Then I had to learn to live with the pain. I thought that I might have to play all season with pain, but that just about has gone. Now the ankle feels good."

Lynn explained that when the ankle was hurting "I had to try different things." "Consciously, I was digging in, but subconsciously when the pitch would come I was putting all my weight on the front (right) foot and I was lunging."

Lynn said that rival pitchers still are pitching away, so "I'm trying to wait on the ball and hit it to left field."

"My summer power bill is lower than my neighbor's."

Brezhnev hosts reception

By KEVIN KLOSE
The Washington Post

MOSCOW — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev marked his new international status as president of the U.S.S.R. Friday by hosting a reception at the Kremlin for ambassadors of more than 90 foreign countries. He appeared to be in vigorous good health and told the envoys they must make an "unbiased assessment of any concrete proposals or actions by the Soviet Union."

One Western diplomatic source who has had numerous first-hand dealings with Brezhnev called the Kremlin leader's performance before ambassadors eager to judge for themselves the state of his health a "tour de force."

The Soviet chief did not mention any of the sharp points of conflict that have arisen between the U.S.S.R. and the Carter administration since January. He asked the diplomats to "convey to your heads of states and leaders" that the Soviet Union seeks peaceful solutions to international tensions.

The reception marked formally for the outside world Brezhnev's standing as the top Soviet leader — president of the country as well as general secretary of the Communist party, now firmly on a protocol par with his Western counterparts such as President Carter.

Brezhnev, whom French diplomats last week reported to be in declining health, spent about 75 minutes at the reception, shaking hands and chatting in an amiable way to each foreign representative. But Brezhnev reportedly did not spend more than a brief moment with U.S. Ambassador Malcolm Toon, with whom he met for an hour and 40 minutes on Tuesday in a spirited discussion of human rights, strategic arms talks and other issues of contention between the two superpowers. Friday, Brezhnev reportedly told Toon in pleasant tones, "we've already had a long talk and I have nothing more to add."

Reliable Western diplomatic sources said Brezhnev's "diction was better today than for some time." There have been persistent rumors in the West that Brezhnev is suffering from a serious chronic jaw ailment that flares up intermittently, causing his speech to deteriorate. Friday, his voice had the clarity and timbre of an elderly but robust man who was enjoying an official event in his honor.

At last count, 94 nations are represented by diplomatic missions here in the Soviet capital. Friday, they gathered at a respectful distance across the reception room from their host and those in the rear lined up for a clear view of the new chief of state, who has run the country for more than 10 years as leader of the Communist party.

Western diplomatic sources said Friday that Brezhnev and Toon at their Tuesday meeting had discussed the stalled strategic arms talks, the stalemated peace-seeking efforts in the Middle East and languishing U.S.-U.S.S.R. trade as well as the human rights issue.

The Carter administration has championed the cause of the small group of dissidents that is still vocal here after nearly five years of harassment, imprisonment and exile by the Soviet government. Western diplomatic sources said they believe that if the Soviets conduct a show trial in the case of Anatoli Scharansky, who reportedly has been charged with the capital crime of treason, "it will make relations more difficult" between the Kremlin and Western nations.

Among the human rights charges are Alexander Ginsburg, facing a formal charge that carries up to seven years' imprisonment, and Yuri Orlov, who faces a formal charge that carries a three-year term. Ginsburg had administered a fund for jailed dissidents from book royalties earned by exiled author Alexander Solzhenitsyn. Orlov founded a dissident group last year to monitor Soviet compliance with the human rights guarantees of the Helsinki accords on European security, which the Kremlin signed in 1975. The 35 signatory nations are scheduled to meet in Belgrade in October to assess their compliance. The White House expressed concern when Orlov was arrested. The Soviets have vehemently objected to American gestures on human rights, saying the Americans are meddling in internal affairs of the Soviet government.

The one topic the Brezhnev-Toon meeting did not touch was the July 4 incident in which Toon was barred from delivering a televised speech to Russians because it contained a human-rights reference.

Later Friday, sources reported, Toon met with Vasily V. Kuyunetsov, deputy foreign minister, for what was said to be "a good exchange of views" on the Middle East. It was one of a continuing series of consultations between the two countries on major problems between them.

The Kremlin originally notified the diplomatic corps about six days ago that Brezhnev was going to meet with them sometime Friday before noon.

Enough ships to transport oil?

By CHRIS FRENCH

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil from Alaska will blunt the United States' dependence on imports — if there are enough American tankers to get it where it's needed.

The government says there are enough, but some shipping and oil industry officials argue there are not.

About 1.2 million barrels of oil will be available per day by 1978 at the Alaska oil port of Valdez. That's about 6 per cent of this country's daily needs. West Coast refineries will be able to absorb only about 600,000 barrels.

It had been proposed that the remainder be shipped to Japan. Japan in turn would give up its share of Arabian crude oil, which would be shipped to the American East Coast. This also would have allowed the use of foreign flag tankers, easing the burden on the U.S. flag fleet.

But the Washington Post and the Wall Street Journal said Friday that the Carter administration has decided to ban selling Alaskan oil to Japan. So far there has been no official confirmation.

The alternate plan is to ship the extra 600,000 barrels of Alaskan oil through the Panama Canal to the East Coast. But by law shipments between ports of the United States must be carried in American-owned, built and manned tankers.

"It's so tight that there is a great fear that there will not be enough ships to carry the oil needed, especially if we have another very cold winter," said Phillip J. Lorie of the Federation of American Controlled Shipping, an organization of American owners of foreign flag tankers.

Others have pointed out that the government has already admitted the shortage of tankers for Alaskan oil by allowing U.S. ships subsidized for the overseas trade (such as from Saudi Arabia to the East Coast) to operate between Alaska and U.S. ports. The inter-American port trade had been restricted to U.S. flag tankers operating without any government subsidy under what is called the Jones Act.

"Initially there will be enough tankers if they can bring back the subsidized tankers now used in foreign shipping but there are not enough Jones Act tankers," said Larry Goldstein, chief economist of the Petroleum Research Foundation in New York.

"What this all means is real pressure on the East Coast," Goldstein said Friday. "The East Coast gets a lot of products from the Gulf Coast and the pipelines are running at capacity. As we need more and more from the Gulf Coast the cost will rise and rise because fewer tankers are available."

"We could have some shortfalls in the next year," said Walter Oates of the U.S. Maritime Administration. "But we have tonnage under construction and we promulgated regulations to put subsidized tankers into this service."

someone will do. Pay the SPCA a fee, and she's yours, unless someone has beaten you to the draw. Just ask for case No. 209. (Staff Photo)

Administration officials find intelligence wanting

"... I told my people that I wanted to know about something before it happened. When I did not, it meant we were not doing our job, that it was an intelligence gap."

—William Colby, former CIA director
By MARTIN SCHRAM
Newsday

WASHINGTON — Top policy officials in the Carter administration say they are dissatisfied with the caliber of information analysis provided by the U.S. intelligence community.

Those officials, including White House National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, believe that the material reaching their desks often is not well analyzed and at times has failed to alert them to major developments in the world. Their concerns were made clear during a series of interviews with leading policy makers and their assistants, current and former intelligence officials, and intelligence experts on Capitol Hill.

"The United States does seem to have a particular fascination with technology and gadgets," Brzezinski said. "I would say that the American information-gathering techniques are the best in the world — the equipment is absolutely remarkable. But it is the analysis of the information that is so important. And I think there is not enough attention given to the ability to say what all the information that is collected means."

Secretary of State Vance also is known to feel that there is a problem. Vance says there is too much information and there is a need to decide on priorities and then to do a better job on the priority matters.

Officials of the Carter White House say they were not able to obtain timely or adequate intelligence analyses on such matters of international significance as the recent invasion of Zaire, the removal of Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny, and the strength of the conservative Likud party in the Israeli election campaign, forecasting the possibility of a new hard-line era in Israeli leadership.

And the complaint is not limited to the new administration. Similar concern was expressed by officials of the Ford and Nixon years, especially on intelligence concerning such areas as Angola, China, Cyprus, Portugal, the Mideast and Vietnam. One of the most publicly critical of those former officials was Richard Nixon himself, who said in his nationally televised interviews with David Frost recently that the intelligence agencies at the State and Defense Departments, as well as the CIA, had provided poor information in Indochina and had failed to predict the start of the 1973 Yom Kippur War in the Mideast.

"I was not surprised to see our intelligence drop the ball," Nixon said, in talking about the Mideast war. "I thought basically that our intelligence community needed a shaking up."

In a series of interviews with Newsday, the intelligence experts cited several major reasons for the problem:

—There is too much emphasis on gathering information and not enough emphasis on analyzing what it means.

—The fragmented, bureaucratic structure of the intelligence community often prevents vital information from reaching decision-makers in timely and usable form.

—Intelligence agencies do not know what the decision-makers expect of them, in part because the decision-makers do not ask the right questions and make the right requests of the agencies.

—At times decision-makers receive good intelligence but disregard it for their own reasons of policy and-or politics.

Rep. Otis Pike (D-N.Y.), whose House Committee on Intelligence first publicly raised the question of the quality of intelligence, defined the problem this way: "The real question is: Are we getting timely knowledge in the proper fashion? Are the cost and the risk justified by the end product?"

About 80 per cent of the U.S. intelligence budget is spent on military affairs, according to an informed source. But now decision-makers are saying there must be greater emphasis in the intelligence community on political analysis. "They hate like hell to predict the future," one Carter national security official said. "They don't want to accept it, but that is their job. That is what we expect of them."

Two of the staunchest defenders of the capabilities of the intelligence community, George Bush and William Colby, both former CIA directors, concede that there are major shortcomings in the system — but add that there are real problems in trying to satisfy the demands of decision-makers.

"There is a desire that we have a crystal ball," said Colby, director of the CIA from May 1973, to January 1976. "The problem is that there are so many variables — if you understand that, okay."

"If the agency does not predict something that happens, that is an intelligence gap. I told my people I wanted to know about something before it happened. When I did not, it meant we were not doing our job."

George Bush, CIA director from January 1976, to January 1977, acknowledged one problem: The intelligence information collected is so voluminous that it cannot be properly analyzed and used by policy-makers. "I don't think the highest level policy-makers get swamped," Bush said. "But the middle levels have a helluva lot of information. It's a lot to sort and analyze."

Bush said he thought the CIA does, all in all, an "excellent" job of gathering and analyzing. "The CIA does have shortcomings and does make mistakes, Bush said, "but it could be that some of the problems are that leaders are not asking the right questions."

Threats by university unions bring army alert

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican Army was alerted for possible student trouble Friday after a number of university unions threatened strikes and marches to protest a police raid at the National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM).

Defense Secretary Gen. Felix Galvan said the army's 75,000 men were ordered to barracks the day before "and to stand ready to keep the peace" in case of violence. Some 6,000 police raided the autonomous university, strike-bound since June 20, and arrested 531 strike leaders and pickets. They were charged with disturbing the peace and destroying UNAM property.

The UNAM union dominated by a group of Communist leaders called the strike to back demands for a 20 per cent wage increase, a single collective labor contract and the rehiring of a dozen union men fired some months ago.

A labor conciliation board declared the strike illegal.

Students, employes and faculty staged partial work stoppages Friday in a number of the 34 other universities throughout Mexico to protest the intrusion of police on the UNAM campus. Strike leaders claim it was unlawful for police to enter the campus, even though the raid was carried out with a warrant from the attorney general's office.

UNAM has 17,000 teachers and administrative workers and its student body of a quarter of a million makes it the largest institution of higher learning in the Americas.

Sandy's mother back in prison

By MARGARET GENTRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Texas prison escapee whose young daughter went to the White House to plead for her mother's freedom was behind bars again Friday after surrendering to the FBI. Patricia Gale Boake turned herself in at FBI headquarters at mid-morning and was questioned by an FBI agent. She was then taken to a federal lock-up in the basement of the U.S. District Court Building. Federal district marshals were planning to take Mrs. Boake back to Fort Worth within a day or two. When she arrived at the bureau's block-square J. Edgar Hoover building on Pennsylvania Avenue, she was accompanied by her three daughters. One of them, 9-year-old Sandy Chandler, in early June spent her savings on a plane ticket from Fort Worth to Washington to see President Carter and ask for help. When Sandy appeared at the White House grounds, she was allowed to talk with a Carter staff member. She was not permitted to see the President. "It was all a waste. The only person I did not see was the President. He was too busy playing tennis," the disappointed child said later. Two weeks after Sandy's futile journey, Mrs. Boake escaped from the federal prison in Fort Worth where she had served about nine months of a three-year sentence for jumping bail. FBI spokesman Tom Coll said Mrs. Boake "called us Thursday from quite some distance and said she wanted to talk to the FBI because no one else would listen to her." Friday morning, she called the bureau to say she was "catching a cab and would arrive shortly," Coll continued. An FBI agent met Mrs. Boake and her daughters at the entrance and talked with them for about an hour before turning Mrs. Boake over to the custody of federal marshals. Coll declined to elaborate on the agent's conversation with the family but said the talk produced "no indication of any federal violations" other than Mrs. Boake's escape. He said it will be up to federal authorities in Texas to determine whether to bring charges against her for the escape. Sandy, along with her sisters, Dillah Chandler, 20, and Mrs. Pepper Summers, in her twenties, were not taken into custody and were free to return to their homes "at any time," Coll said. Mrs. Boake, 43, was convicted of bail jumping in Phoenix, Ariz. She had been charged with perjury and was free on bail, but fled before the trial.

Chairman says haste could hurt education

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Rep. John Bryant, chairman of the House study group, said Friday public education will be the loser if the special legislative session on public school finance lasts only a week. Bryant, 30, D-Dallas, organized support that blocked passage in the House of a school finance bill in the final hour of the regular session that ended May 30. He told interviewers on the television program "Texas Weekly" that it is possible the special session, convening Monday, could be over in a week, but he added: "I hope it is not over in a week because I don't think we can adequately deal with the issue, education, that we spend over half of the state budget on, in one week's time. And if we do it in a week, it'll be because it will be rushed through and hurried up and I don't want to see that happen." Bryant said he and others have introduced a bill that "takes us a little farther down the road towards trying to equalize the gross discrepancies between the rich, the very rich and the very poor school districts in Texas." He said a bill supported by Speaker Bill Clayton "is a step backwards" in that it "gives more money to rich districts." The tax relief promised in the Clayton bill, Bryant said, is "phony."

Grand jury turns in 51 indictments

A Midland County grand jury Thursday handed down 51 indictments, the Midland County sheriff's department said Friday. There were 14 burglary indictments, seven indictments for credit card abuses and six charges of possession of marijuana. Three persons were indicted on charges of heroin possession, four on aggravated assault charges, one on an aggravated robbery charge and one on a charge of indecency with a child. There were four theft charges and two theft by check charges. Two persons were indicted on charges of hindering secured creditors and one on a forgery charge. Another indictment was for unlawfully carrying a weapon.

CHURCH OF CHRIST

All called to ministry, nuns say

BY ROBERT di VEROLI
Copley News Service

The idea that only priests are ministers is fading in the Roman Catholic Church, say four nuns in interviews.

The idea now, they say, is that all church members, laymen included, are called to a ministry of their own to spread the Gospel and minister to the needs of the faithful.

This was a New Testament concept, they add, but one in effect abandoned with the virtual restriction of the idea of ministry to the formally ordained clergy.

The nuns say the ordination of women priests is not the biggest issue in the whole ministry question. "I think the women's ordination is a very minor part of the whole idea of women ministries," says Sister Juliana Casey, theology professor at St. Meinrad's School of Theology in St. Meinrad, Ind., and one of four Servants of the Immaculate Heart of Mary nuns of Monroe, Mich. Adds Sister Mary Ellen Sheehan, theology professor at St. John's Seminary in Detroit: "We assume that women do have a ministry in the church. The purpose of the institute is to clarify some of the expressions of that and problems connected with it simply because women are women and not men."

Helen De Laurentis, director of an educational ministry program at the University of San Diego, Calif., says women's work in educational and other church programs has never Asked if she seeks some formal title to recognize such activities, she said: "I think some women feel that way, that until women are actually asked to become officially part of the church they will never be able to bring about change. That's true to an extent. At least it was true as long as there were insufficiently trained women who knew how to speak out, to put their case and speak as peers with men, but that is no longer true."

Sister Margaret concedes that many church women don't want any official role in the church.

Catholic women have been conditioned to feel pastors should make all the decisions and that they themselves lack the ability to do so, added De Laurentis.

The Ralph Hagemeyer Family

Missionary family to be church's guests

An Assemblies of God missionary family will be guests of Midland's First Assembly of God Sunday.

The Rev. Ralph Hagemeyer and his wife Shirley, missionaries to Tanzania for the last nine years, will be in the Sunday evening worship service at First Assembly, 100 W. Wadley Ave. The public is invited to attend the 7 p.m. service and hear the couple's report on their work in Africa.

According to the Rev. J. W. Farmer, host pastor, the Hagemeyers have been involved in evangelism, youth work, Bible school classes, Bible training seminars and in establishment of new churches. Mrs. Hagemeyer has directed the work of Women's Ministries groups.

Before entering the missionary field, the Hagemeyers served churches in West Columbia and Anton. They are graduates of Southwestern Assemblies of God College at Waxahachie and parents of two daughters, Stephanie, 14, and Melody, 12. The family will return to Tanzania at conclusion of a furlough in the U.S.

IT'S IN THE BOOK

When you really don't know, ask for guidance

By CHARLIE SHEDD

The Bible has always been a best seller. Suddenly it has become "hot copy," which means individuals, couples, families are turning to scripture for answers. Dr. Charlie Shedd has been asked to do a weekly Bible study for the whole family.

When was the last time you wondered what you should do? You couldn't decide what was the right thing. One day, you felt sure; the next day you weren't certain. Sometimes your heart said "yes, sometimes 'no.'"

This is the story of Judges 6: Gideon was wondering. He lived in a day when Israel was in big trouble, and who would be their leader? God had already decided, so He sent His angel to tell Gideon, "You are my man."

Gideon could hardly believe what he had heard. So he thought up a test. That night he put a piece of wool out and told God, "If it is wet in the morning and the grass around it is dry, I will know you mean me."

That's what happened: the wool was wet and the grass dry. Yet Gideon still wondered. So he did a switch. This time he said, "Tomorrow morning, let the wool be dry, and the grass wet."

Next morning that's how it was. Now Gideon knew. (Dad or mom sometimes objects add to Bible study. Lamb's wool is like a sponge. It is available at most drug stores, and inexpensive.)

Thoughts for discussion: Is there anything wrong with telling God what we are wondering? Not if we do it right, and this story tells two ways to do it right.

First: Our prayer should be "Lord, it isn't that I'm questioning you. But I really can't tell whether I'm interpreting right what I think I'm hearing, would you give me more definite guidance?"

God knows if we're on the level, and throughout this story there is a beautiful honesty about Gideon.

This is secret number two: We cannot know God's will for certain until we pray. "If you will show me clearly what to do, THEN I WILL DO IT."

Did you ever tend to pray, "Lord, show me what to do so I can decide whether I want to do it?" Always, the Bible makes it plain that great praying is based on honesty, plus a strong "Yes, Lord, I'll do what you want. Show me."

For discussion: How honest are we

Verkerk among special guests

The Rev. Dyke Verkerk, a former Midland resident, will be among special guests at the Sunday night worship service at Gardens Assembly of God, 2901 W. Kansas Ave.

Mr. Verkerk, a graduate of Midland High School, is the son of former MHS coach Raymond Verkerk.

Mr. Verkerk and his wife will accompany a singing group, the Assurance, to Midland for the Sunday night service. The 13-member ensemble from Southwestern Assemblies of God College at Waxahachie will be ministering in word as well as song at the 7 p.m. event. The Rev. Paul Cox, Gardens Assembly's pastor, has invited the public to attend the service.

in our family? With each other? With ourselves? With God?

Rev. Schauner P. Vance

Rev. Vance succeeds Rev. Burke

The Rev. Schauner P. Vance is now pastor of Midland's First Free Methodist Church, 4712 Shadylane, succeeding the Rev. Gerald Burke.

Mr. Vance was appointed to the Midland pastorate during the recent annual state conference of the Free Methodist Church of North America. The meeting took place at Kimball Church in Dallas. Presiding at the conclave was Bishop Elmer E. Parsons of Winona Lake, Ind., national headquarters of the Free Methodist denomination.

Delegates from Midland attending the Dallas conference were Henry Ceballos, representing the Latin Free Methodist Church, and Lawrence F. Houston, representing the First Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Houston were chosen secretaries of the conference. Houston was elected conference treasurer for the eighth year.

Pastoral appointments announced at the conference included the reappointment of the Rev. Julio Castillo to the Midland Latin Free Methodist Church, and the selection of Mr. Vance as pastor of the First Church here.

Mr. Vance comes to Midland from Port Neches. A native of Oklahoma, he has served as pastor of several Free Methodist congregations in Oklahoma and southeast Texas. His wife Kathryn is a former Free Methodist missionary to Africa.

been called a ministry because this term has been reserved for ordained ministries such as the priesthood.

"But as baptized Christians we are all called to a ministry," said De Laurentis.

Sister Mary Ellen said as a result, laymen have never had a clear idea of what their ministry as Christians is.

"This has had negative consequences because the laity was always viewed as somewhat in opposition to the official, public ministry," she said.

"But now, since Vatican II, in a particular way the general notion of the priesthood of all the faithful recovered in some sense.

"We're struggling now with that, as a church, with the idea that ministry is a function of the whole Christian community rather than a segment of it."

She says women have special problems because they have never been admitted even to the church's ordained ministries.

"Until a very short time ago, in fact, we used to define Catholic action as the participation of the laity in the apostolate of the hierarchy," said Sister Margaret Brennan, general superior of her order.

In other words, she says, the ministry belonged to the hierarchy and priests, with laymen as helpers.

"The nuns were asked to pinpoint specifically what activities women were barred from in the past and whether women have not always been permitted to serve the church.

"Women have always served but they have never had any official title whatsoever," said Sister Margaret. "They've always been considered as a sort of auxiliary even when they were being most innovative."

"The fact is that we don't have any official role in the church even though we are doing things and being called upon to do them under the auspices of bishops and pastors."

CHURCH NEWS ROUNDUP UTPB professor to be pulpit guest at church

A pulpit guest Sunday morning at CHRIST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, 2801 N. Garfield St., will be Dr. Munro Shintani, a member of the faculty of The University of Texas at the Permian Basin.

Dr. Shintani is an associate professor of pedagogical studies at UTPB. His sermon topic for the 11 a.m. worship service is to be "The Great Computer in the Sky - VIII." The public is invited to attend.

Charles Scott

The congregation of the NORTH AND TENNESSEE STREETS CHURCH OF CHRIST will be host to Charles Scott as guest speaker at the Sunday morning and evening worship services.

Mr. Scott and his wife, Ann, who has accompanied him to Midland, are engaged in evangelistic work in India, and the local congregation helps support their work there. The couple also is visiting other congregations in this region which help support their work.

25th anniversary

The congregation of ST LUKE'S UNITED METHODIST CHURCH will mark the church's 25th anniversary with special events on Sunday, July 17.

The birthday celebration is being planned around a "Faith in Action" theme, said Mrs. M. D. Abel, general chairman for the anniversary event. A reception, worship celebration and luncheon are among events scheduled.

A Thursday deadline is announced for making reservations for the luncheon. Members of the congregation, members of other United Methodist churches in the city, and friends of the church may telephone the church office, 694-2571, to make reservations.

Gospel meetings slated

A series of gospel meetings will be held next week at Northside Church of Christ, 715 N. Lamesa Road.

The series will begin Sunday and continue through Friday with services 8:15 p.m. daily. A. C. Christman of Tulsa, Okla., will be the featured speaker.

To initiate the series, a fellowship gathering and luncheon is scheduled for 1 p.m. Sunday in DeZavala Elementary School, to be followed by an afternoon worship and song service beginning at 3 p.m. at the church.

Mr. Christman has listed in several Who's Who publications and serves on the planning committee for National Lectureships.

The public has an invitation to attend the special services here next week.

Which is your attitude?

toward the BIBLE?

Do you have a Bible? Most people do. Do you read the Bible? Most people don't. What is your attitude toward the Bible? It is the most loved and the most hated book in the world. In between these two extremes there are many other attitudes toward the Bible.

Antagonism: There are some like Jehoiaquim of the Old Testament, who took the word of God addressed to him and cut it to pieces with his knife (Jeremiah 36:23). He despised God and any word of God. There have been many like him. Emperor Diocletian in the third century decreed that all copies of the Bible should be destroyed. He also decreed death as the penalty for reading the Bible.

Ridicule: The atheist Thomas Paine, like Communists of today, scoffed at the Bible and said that it would soon become a mere museum relic. Paine is dead, and yet the Bible is our nation's "best seller" today. The Bible forewarned of such scoffers (2 Peter 3:3).

Superstition: Many people look on the Bible much like a superstitious person who carries a rabbit foot or a buckeye. They do not read it, but feel safer if it is close by. They lay their hand on it when they swear, but they never handle it aright as the word of truth (2 Timothy 2:15). They clutch it in fear in foxholes but refuse to read it in times of peace.

Indifference: There are many who neither hate it nor love it. Their indifferent attitude results in ignorance.

Prejudice: Many people read the Bible to prove their point. They use the Scriptures for their purpose (2 Peter 3:16). They do not read their Bible with the sincere desire to find what the word of God is.

Loyalty: In contrast to the extreme attitudes of Jehoiaquim and Diocletian, there have been great men like John Wycliffe and William Tyndale. Wycliffe, who lived in the fourteenth century, was dedicated to the proposition that the "Scriptures are the property of the people." He was hated for this attitude, and 40 years after his death people dug up his body and threw his ashes into the River Swift as an expression of their violent hatred for a man who loved the Bible so much. Tyndale was determined that even a plowboy should know the Scriptures. He was forced to work in secret because his life was in danger. As a result of his efforts thousands of copies of the Bible were circulated in England in the sixteenth century. For all of this he was imprisoned, treated shamefully, and finally strangled and burned.
