Carter's energy plan faces House

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House on Friday started moving on President Carter's plan for changing the country's energy habits.

Carter's national energy plan was put before the House essentially as he had outlined it in his April 20 energy message. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said the President should be extremely pleased.

'Ninety per cent of the package is there," the speaker said.

The House then decided in a procedural vote to take up the program, setting the stage next week for debate and several major floor challenges from Republicans and dissident Democrats on some of the

Over-all, the program provides tax incentives and federal aid for improved insulation in homes, hospitals and schools. Other taxes would be levied on crude oil and gasoline to encourage conservation and to prod utilities and industry to use coal instead of oil and natural gas. Major floor tests were set on the oil and gasoline taxes. Furthermore, a coalition of Democrats and Republicans will try to free natural gas prices from federal controls.

Carter's plan would continue price controls but allow the price to rise

Still. House committees approved a provision to double the federal tax on gasoline to eight cents a gallon. There will be a major floor vote on raising that further or throwing out the idea all together.

The administration backs the gasoline tax hike as a conservation symbol and a means of raising revenue for energy research and mass transit programs. Taxes oncrude oil plus a gasoline tax hike could add another dime to the cost of a gallon of gas.

During debate Friday on what rules should be followed next week, Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., said the House leadership and the Carter administration were rushing the program in pell-mell fashion.

Democrats, he said, were more concerned with time than the content of the program. But Anderson and GOP leader John Rhodes later spoke for the floor plan set by the Rules Committee, saying it was the best deal possible under the circumstances. It does did offer the House a chance to vote on an alternative GOP energy program, they pointed out.

City dampened by spotted rains

Spotted rainfall, sometimes signaled by flashes of lightning, dampened the Midland area Friday afternoon and night. And lightning apparently set off a grassland fire east of Lamesa.

A quick "gullywasher" was reported in downtown Midland. But northwest of town, at Westview Estates, nary a drop fell, said Bill Crawford.

About five miles south of Midland on the Rankin Highway, 2.10 inches of rain was unofficially reported, said a weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal

At the weather bureau, only 0.01 of an inch was measured. No rain is in the forecast for the weekend. About 10 miles east of Lamesa, lightning evidently touched off rangeland fire that burned off 41/2 sections on the Wright Ranch and 60 acres on the Dean Ranch late Friday

Firefighters from Lamesa and O'Donnell joined ranch hands in fighting the fire which was extinguished in about three hours.

A light sprinkle fell on Lamesa but stopped short of the range fire. Midway between Stanton and Garden City, a Stanton fire engine caught fire battling another grass fire. The engine remained in driveable condition and was safely returned to the Stanton fire station. A second unit dispatched to the area was not needed, said Martin County sheriff's dispatcher Jo Byrd.

Over at Andrews, light rainfall only "teased" the town, said Andrews County sheriff's dispatcher Mary Jen-Crane remained dry late Friday night. Rankin, too, reported no rainfall. McCamey, however, got a "good rain" early in the afternoon.

"We're always the last one to get it," commented Irma Herring of

'Battle of Bands' ends in melee at Hogan Park

It started off as a "Battle of the Bands." But before the rock 'n' roll concert had barely begun before it Smith said... "They started throwing ended in a melee at Cubs Stadium in Hogan Park Friday night.

A score or more of concert-goers, mostly teenagers, were arrested by gun-toting police and sheriff's deputies after a scuffle broke out between young women at the stadium.

They, along with 1,000-plus young people, were at Cubs Stadium for the city-sponsored "battle" among rock

Three bands were set up around homeplate when the fight broke out.

When two policemen keeping watch t the concert tried to break up the fight, several in the crowd started throwing bottles and rocks at the officers. Surrounding the wrangling women and the officers trying to quell the fight were hordes of teenagers who came to the concert.

Police, sheriff and Department of Public Safety units were dispatched to the stadium to back up officers already there:

Many of the police and sheriff's deputies were armed with riot shotguns.

No shots were fired however, Among the "armed" was Midland bottles and rocks. No serious injuries were reported. However, at least one women was reportedly bloodied.

"I wouldn't call it a riot," said Darrell Ward, who witnessed the confused fighting, the melee. He was one of the judges at the concert. "The chicks were fighting, and the cops were trying to break it up,'

After the fight broke out, the contest among the bands was cancelled. Set up to play were Electric Stage, Sweetbriar, and Fantasy Star.

The armed lawmen evidently were successful in quelling the distur-"It looked to me like the cops were trying to keep it cool," Ward said. One or two of the bands had played for little more than an hour ending the musical concert when the fight broke out Bob Thomson, director of the city's parks and recreation department, was obviously distressed by the belligerence that crashed into the musical battle.

"This was kind of the . . . apex, as it were, of the summer teen program," said Thomson.

index takes slight drop

WASHINGTON (AP) - A government barometer indicated on Friday a downturn in the economy but officials predicted continued growth in the second half of the year.

The Commerce Department's index of leading indicators declined six tenths of one per cent in June, mainly because of reduced demand by manufacturers for raw materials.

The decline followed a drop of two tenths of one per cent in May, after a strong showing at the start of the Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, speaking in St. Louis, said the decline would be a cause for concern only if it "translated itself into a substantial slowdown in the months ahead.

"You can't draw conclusions on a month-by-month basis," he said. He repeated his prediction of an annual economic growth rate of about five per cent in the second half, coming after a seven per cent growth rate in an exceptionally strong first to make a small reduction in its targets for the nation's money supply.

Economic growth generally means more business, earnings and jobs

although it also can create inflation. Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns disclosed Friday that a concern for inflation prompted a federal reserve committee last week committee that parts of the economy may slow down in the second half but that by siness investment and spending by state and local governments may pick up.

What these various trends suggest is a change in the character of the expansion, with the over-all growth rate slowing but still high enough to produce some further reductions in unemployment.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Rex Granum defended the strength of the dollar, saying its downward trend against other currencies does not mean the economy is slipping.

He said at a White House news briefing that recent decreases in the exchange value of the dollar in relation to other currencies resulted from increases in the values of the other currencies.

"Clearly, the strength of that dollar depends on the health of the American economy. We feel the economy is healthy," he said.

A higher layoff rate was one of the factors contributing to the decline in the index of economic indicators. Others were fewer orders for plants and equipment, smaller money supply and lower prices for raw materials - meaning smaller demand.

However, four indicators increased: the average work week, vendor performance, stock prices

A government economist said the June index does not show a major trend because the decline was confined to little more than half the indicators.

The index in June stood at 129.4, which means that economic activity is 29.4 per cent higher than it was in the base period of 1967. The June decline was the second largest since the recession of 1974-1975, surpassed only by the 1,3 per cent decrease last January. In another report Friday, the Labor Department said the productivity of American workers declined in the second quarter of 1977 after a sharp increase in the first three months of Productivity, the hourly output of workers, fell at an annual rate of 1.8 per cent, compared to a 6.1 per cent increase in the first quarter, as the number of hours worked rose at a faster pace than output. Output rose 7.9 per cent while the number of hours worked increased 9.8

per cent, the biggest gain since the second quarter of 1959, largely because of a substantial rise in the number of farm hours.

Hourly compensation, including the cost of wages and benefits, increased 6.3 per cent in the second quarter, compared with an 11.7 per cent rise the previous quarter. But real hourly compensation, which is hourly pay adjusted for inflation, declined 2.3 per cent in the second quarter compared with a 3.3 per cent rise in the first three months of the year.

Alcan line gains boost

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Alcan pipeline project, a proposed $8 billion venture to feed Alaskan natural gas overland through Canada to the lower 48 states, got a crucial boost Friday with the unanimous backing of U.S. companies that previously supported a competing plan.

All eight American companies that. earlier had supported the alternative Arctic Gas Project, a pipeline that would have followed a different route, announced they now "look forward to participating in the planning, construction and operation of the Alcan project."

The Arctic Gas proposal was effectively scuttled earlier this month when the Canadian National Energy Board recommended approval of the Alcan plan to Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau. A decision by President Carter and the U.S. Congress is due this fall.

A third alternative, the El Paso Natural Gas Project, would construct a natural gas pipeline only from Alaska's North Slope to its southwest coast, where the gas would be liquified and pumped aboard ocean tankers for shipping to California.

Midkiff clan may be legendary, but not for having broken laws

RANKIN - Of all things, that fellow Midkiff was not an outlaw. He was, let it be known, beyond reproach and within bounds.

Ol' Roustin' About was mixed up in a goof that made it to the printed page in last Wednesday's column.

And, through a series of errors, it seems, a fellow identified as Tyson O. Midkiff inadvertently was linked to outlawism. At least, that was an interpretation.

First off, there was no "Tyson O. Midkiff" among the West Texas Midkiffs of ranching repute. There's not one today.

More significantly, there were not, nor are there today, any outlaws within the Midkiff clan.

That clarification comes from one who knows - Edward Tyson Midkiff, an old-timer who ranches in Upton County and who lives here.

Roustin' About's role in the "mix up" came a week ago today on a Rock Ruin tour that took in Midland, Upland, Rankin, McCamey and which skirted through Crane and hit the fringes of Odessa.

Thirty-five folks, who each paid the $12 fare, made the six-hour trip in a roaring bus chartered by the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame in Midland

It was getting a bit "hot" inside; the air-conditioning system on the bus failed. The touring folks were chatting, as friendly and amiable people Along the way, historian and part-time museum archivist Betty Orbeck talked and read about the history of the locale and of the route. The bus passed near Midkiff, a farming and ranching community in the northeast corner of Upton County But the community by the same name originally was located early in the 1900s in the southeast corner of Midland County.

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

"Old" Midkiff and "new" Midkiff are about two miles apart. Orbeck, talking over an underpowered sound system, mentioned place names along the route. And her typewritten notes, which she prepared for the tour, tend to bear out what she said into the microphone. One line reads: Midkiff was apparently a town that stayed just ahead of the sheriff." The community, she said, was established in 1902 on the Midkiff Ranch and "apparently was named after Tyson O. Midkiff, an early pioneer Midland (County) cowboy and rancher.' Roustin' About reported thus;

About 30 policemen went with dogs to disperse 200 students demonstrating at a school in Soweto, the black township of 1.2 million people outside Johannesburg. Police said the students, who were displaying placards denouncing the quality of black education, scattered before the dogs but stoned the officers, who opened fire.

A girl later identified as Regina Nhlapo, 19, was shot in the head. Police told reporters that one officer became entangled in wire and was being stoned when he opened fire on the students.

At least six pupils were treated for cuts received when they ran through windows to escape police dogs. Other students were bitten.

Brigadier J. J. Gerber, acting commissioner of police in Soweto, said police fired five shots. He said a black constable shot one black man dead in a milk-truck robbery unrelated to the student demon-

Alyeska had, in fact, kept a threeyear-old promise to deliver oil to

Valdez by Aug. 1. But it was a trouble-plagued maiden run, during which the line had to be shut down several times because of human errors that caused two leaks and a fatal explosion. The explosion killed one man and destroyed a pump station after a valve was apparently opened by mistake. It also reduced the line's capacity by one-third.

While pipeliners and residents of this once-sleepy fishing town celebrated through the night, oil began gurgling into storage tanks at the $1 billion terminal.

When Alyeska officials think they have sufficient reserves stored, they will give the order to begin loading the oil aboard tankers for the trip to the lower 48 states.

Wilburn Collins has lived here since 1966. He said he has known David Daughtry, who lives across the street, for about five years.

Daughtry, the 23-year-old cousin of Collins' wife, would-occasionally talk with some of the neighborhood boys during the friendly football games. But something went wrong on London street Thursday night.

Collins said he was sitting in his living room. Suddenly, gunshots ripped through the youthful noise outside. Tommy Hall, 12, lay bleeding in the street. He died of head wounds hours later in a Dallas hospital. His companion, Kevin Collins (Wilburn's 14-year-old son) was hit by 410 shotgun pellets in back, but was treated at a local hospital and Daughtry was arrested at the scene. He was charged with murder and assault Friday morning after young Hall died.

non native and known by many of the town's 12,000 people. Vernon Police Chief Wayne Hendricks said Daughtry, who is being held on bonds totaling $150,000, is "just real mixed up." Investigators theorize the shots were the result of the mounting pressures from marital problems that have been nagging

"He's been crying since his arrest and he's very upset," Hendricks said. Daughtry had returned from Oklahoma Thursday night where custody proceedings involving his son are under way. Hendricks said Daughtry apparently began drinking when he came home to London Street.

When officers arrived at the scene Daughtry was standing in the middle of the street, hands on his head and a shotgun laying at his side.

"He (Daughtry) just never gave us any problems," the elder Collins said.

spurs search

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) A strange new twist has been added to the search for the killer of three Girl Scouts who were slain at their summer camp here June 13.

Authorities had returned to Camp Scott Wednesday to conduct another search, prompted when a security guard reported seeing the silhouette of a man in the woods.

The search turned up nothing, but as officers were returning to the command post they found a pair of tennis shoes, with the hand-written name of slain Girl Scout Denise Milner on them.

'They weren't there an hour before," said R. C. Cowherd, owner of Guardian Security Co., hired to guard the camp. "Whoever is out there must have come back and put them there."

That prompted another futile search on Friday. Gene Leroy Hart, a 33-yearold escaped rapist from Locust Grove, has been charged in the killings.

A massive search was conducted in late June for a man believed to be hiding in the heavy woods around the camp. Officers still believe the man is there, but nobody has actually seen him.

The bodies of the Milner girl, 10, and Lori Lee Farmer, 9, both of Tulsa, and Michelle Guse, 8, of Broken Arrow, were found beaten and sexually molested about 150 yards from their tents their first morning at Camp Scott.

The shoe development has led officers to place more credibility in a theory that someone - possibly the killer — is stalking the grounds near the murder

NEW ORLEANS*(AP) — Plans for a $700 million Louisiana "superport" (Loop) received a jolt Friday when a big-money backer of the project pulled out, only days after a similar Texas project foundered. Union Oil Co. complained of uncertainty about government restrictions on the superport, an offshore depot that would handle oil from tankers too big for other Gulf and Atlantic ports. 'I guess the way-to say it is that it's tough to play a ball game when you don't know what the rules are going to be," said Chuck Yoakum, a Union spokesman in Los Angeles. LOOP officials, in Washington to discuss whether Oil companies backing both the Texas and Louisiana projects have complained that the government restrictions would cut into their profits.

The Louisiana superport would be built 18 miles off the Gulf coast, in water deep enough to handle big oil tankers that need water up to 100 feet deep. Most U.S. ports have water 45 to 50 feet deep, or less.

At the superport, huge oil tankers would hook up to the offshore dock and pump oil ashore through an underwater pipeline. The port could handle 1.4 million barrels of crude oil per day.

The oil companies say the superports would be much safer than the way oil is shipped now - in smaller tankers that have to navigate through crowded harbors in natural ports.

Union, in pulling out of the Louisiana superport combine, cited the court fight over the price oil companies will receive for shipping oil through their trans-Alaska pipeline.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Friday in favor of an Interstate Commerce Commission ef fort to knock down that price.

Strange twist Carter speech noted?

By DAN FISHER The Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW - The Soviet Union is apparently responding to the conciliatory tone of President Carter's Charleston, S.C., speech on Soviet-American relations with some newfound moderation of its own.

Since that speech nine days ago, noted one diplomat here, there have been no further personal attacks on Carter in the Soviet press. There had been a steady stream of such attacks for several weeks preceding the speech.

'The reaction (to the Charleston address) has been a little bit better than we've been accustomed to in the Soviet press in the past couple of months,' agreed another diplomat.

What the softer tone of the criticism in the controlled press means and what it portends regarding the more substantive issues dividing the two countries is much less certain.

The official press continues a steady stream of criticism on such favorite topics as human rights, the cruise missile, and the neutron bomb, for example. The difference is that now the one in the black hat is not Jimmy Carter personally, but "Washington," or "the military-industrial complex." By depersonalizing the criticism over such issues, the Soviets are making a conscious effort to cool a propaganda blast that threatened to get out of hand, some observers here conclude.

'They couldn't have kept on with a barrage like that without having done serious damage to relations," commented one diplomatic source. The attacks on Carter were disturbing enough to him that he warned at a July 12 news conference in Washington that: "The public statements that the Soviets make attacking me personally, or our own nation's good faith, are both erroneous and illadvised.

"Carter made it clear he didn't like those personal attacks," the diplomatic source said. "They might well have been looking for a way to tone things down, and the speech was the excuse.

Press comment in the past few days more closely resembles the cautious tone of the early days of the Carter administration, this source added.

What in retrospect looks like a hint of changes to come appeared in the Soviet weekly "New Times" the day before the Charleston speech. "The European and the world press generally is giving a great deal of space at present to Soviet-American 6 Oak Ridge Square relations and concern is widely voiced over the hitches encountered in these relations." magazine editorialized. "But the situation should no be dramatized: It is essential to display restrain

Whether or not the change in the Soviet's public tone will be translated into any softening of the Soviet positions on the substantive issues dividing the two countries today is debatable. Asked directly if he thought the thaw would carry over to the SAL negotiations, on high level Western diplomat said "probably not."

Slow pitch tourney

Again this weekend, the Tall City of Midland is the site of another very tall sports event the Men's State Open Slow Pitch Softball Tournament:

The tourney, which opened Friday night on three of the four Hogan Park diamonds, will continue through Sunday.

This is a tremendous event, attracting hundreds of players and fans to Midland.

Forty-one top-ranked teams are entered in the tourney, assuring tough competition all-the-way. The teams are from Wichita Falls, Amarillo, Andrews, Angleton, Big Spring, Brownwood, Cleburne, El Paso, Fort Stockton, Freeport, Gainesville, Huntsville, Killeen, Lake Jackson, Lamesa, Lewisville, Lubbock, Midland, Odessa, Paris, Roundrock, San Angelo, San Marcos, Seguin, Tomball, Waco. A great big, typically West Texas WELCOME is extended to all players and others who are in the Tall City for the Men's State Open Slow Pitch Softball Tournament-It is hoped that they will have a an enjoyable time while here and that they will come back to see us soon and often.

Vietnam in U.N.

It is difficult to find anything uplifting in the admission of Vietnam to the United Nations, but at least anyone who admires the ironies of life could get a momentary twinge of pleasure at the incongruity of things.

One day before the U.N. acted. Vietnam signed a treaty with Laos that reduced the latter to the status of a colony. The treaty gives Vietnam complete military. political and economic control over Laos. The presence of about 40,000 Vietnamese troops illegally in Laos forced the treaty and will help to assure its observance. And a joint communique by Communist leaders, in Vientiane for the ceremony, attacked Thailand and Malayaia, hinting at two future targets.

The United States stood by silently while the U.N. embraced Vietnam. But in view of Vietnam's annexation of Laos there is no need for the U.S. to compound danger by offering economic assistance to Hanoi, a subject being discussed by Congress. United States aid could only give Vietnam more resources to continue its efforts to dominate the Indochinese subcontinent.

Is this a part of the new United States foreign policy? One begins to wonder.

As for the U.N., we suggest

Vietnam's integration into that body begin by having Hanoi's new ambassador vow publicly that Vietnam promises to obey the U.N. charter - - particularly that provision which says the purpose of the international body is to remove threats to peace and peace and security.' The vow might not help Laos. Thailand or Malaysia very much but at least it would give the lover of irony another momentary chuckle. .

And that's the way it is in the U.N. today - with the U.S. standing by silently.

A CHANGING WORLD:

Reds like U.S. foreign policy

By JOHN PINKERMAN Copley News Service

With six months of frenzied global activity behind him since succeeding a president (Gerald Ford) whom he called a "do-nothing," this may be a proper time to look at the accomplishments of Jimmy Carter. The accomplishments may be few but the pattern seems abundantly clear, particularly in foreign affairs. President Carter appears convinced that buttering up America's enemies is far more important than buttressing ties with the nation's friends. This can be dangerous and to some it is disheartening. The result already is a strengthening of communism around the world.

Mr. Carter apparently listens to his fellow Georgian, U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young first, last and always. recklessness, endorsed by the President, is U.S. support of military aid for Mozambique. You don't need to be a foreign affairs genius to know that Mozambique is the prize Soviet satellite in Africa

There are other threads to the Carter-Young policy pattern that, while one cannot call them plainly pro-Red, have the net effect of advancing Communist goals around the world. They run clearly contrary to traditional American instincts and policies to stand firm against enemies of freedom

They might be said also to runcontrary to Mr. Carter's muchadvertised "human rights" rhetoric. However, the President's inner need to do something dramatic continues to consume him and in fulfilling this need he seems to feel regarding the Reds that there is greater chance for drama in dealing with our enemies than with our

Beyond Mozambique, there is the new bid to mollify Cuba's Fidel Castro. The Cuban Communist is working hand and glove with Moscow in trying to make a Red continent of Africa. He never has and still does not renounce Cuba's massive subversion apparatus active in seeking to destroy democratic government in Latin America

Mr. Carter also has said anew that one of the primary aims of his presidency is to establish full diplomatic relations with Communist China, at the same time dumping America's traditional Chinese friends on Taiwan. He adds that Taiwan will continue to enjoy economic ties with the United States

Full recognition of the terroristic regimes of Havana and Peking is considered by the President, Young and many others as the "pragmatic" thing to do, the "realistic" thing that America no longer should stand almost alone in defense of national honor. Other Western nations have such ties with China and Cuba so why not the United States'

Critics of Mr. Carter, however, point out that the United States never has reneged on a formal treaty, and it will do so regarding the Mutual Defense Treaty of 1954 if it dumps the Taipei government. Others, perhaps prouder of the nation's heritage, say that the United States is a big enough country and a good enough country to stand alone in the world if necessary in defense of what is right, not what is currently popular or pragmatic.

The President, too, seems determined to damage Israel in behalf of that tiny nation's Arab enemies perhaps all in the interests of Arab oil for the United States. He trods a very dangerous path in this policy, lecturing Israel on bowing to Arab demands one day, then "recovering" at subsequent news conferences with lofty phrases intended to reassure American Jews.

His latest trial balloon that a U.S. naval base may be established in Haifa is part of that reassurance and policy "clarification" - and it is dangerous talk.

Upcoming is a Peking trip by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance. Mr. Carter also has gone to bended knee to send Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev word that he craves a summit session with the big Red boss. Simultaneously with these plans, the White House continues to scold America's traditional friends as not hewing to his human rights standards.

Strong words in defense of human rights are fine by themselves, but the London Daily Telegraph may be putting the whole issue in proper focus when it says:

"If America is to offend friendly but democratically less-than-perfect countries (that is, the vast majority) around the world, many will turn to Russia for arms and become totally undemocratic - and also unfriendly.

Mr. Carter may still possess lofty. ideals but he continues to indicate he is a neophyte in foreign affairs, a man embarked on a policy designed "to punish your friends and reward your enemies." This is the reverse of the traditional and does little for the honor of a great nation.

In other words, without respect to the threats which may exist to our security, Mr. Carter proposes to set a dollar ceiling on what we are prepared to spend for survival, and stick to it.

This is not an original Carter proposition.

We have seen it before. It resulted in our woeful unpreparedness for the onset of World War II. It encouraged the North Koreans to initiate the Korean War. In both cases the ultimate cost to us in blood and treasure was incalculable and, in the eyes of history, indefensible.

The B-1 is certainly a massively expensive piece of machinery perhaps $100 million per airplane, and the price of 244 of them - the proposed number - is staggering. However, the dollar cost needs to be weighed in light of several factors.

First, what would it bring us in terms of enhanced security?

Second, are the alternatives Mr. Carter offers really calculated to provide us the maximum of national security, or do they simply delete important defense capability?

And, third, what is the real downstream cost of the decision?

Taking the questions in order, the elimination of the B-1 adds nothing to our security. It declares that we are determined that the manned bomber is dead. The Russians, for their part, don't think so. They have created a fine manned aircraft, the Backfire, which gives them, among other things, the virtue of human decision up to the final moment of bomb release, the valuable option as to target selection, even the option of abortion of the mission.

In this regard, the President does note that we can always go back to the B-1 if "more cost-effective alternative systems should run into difficulty. Under those circumstances, however, we need to ask how much more the B-1 would cost; how much the lost time would be worth.

As to the matter of the alternative concept - redesign of the aging B-52 to permit its marriage with the cruise missile — it is an attractive prospect. taken by itself; something we probably should do. However, it is in no sense duplicative of the capability of the B-I, with its low-level supersonic dash speed, something beyond the limits of the B-52.

Nor can we assume that the cruise missile is a peculiar American preserve, a capability our enemies cannot acquire. The fact is, the Russians have cruise missiles now. Admittedly, they are bulky, slow, easy to detect, short of range and inaccurate.

As of this moment, ours are of much higher quality. They are small and capable of flying very low, and thus hard to detect on radar. Their guidance system is excellent, giving them good accuracy at long ranges.

We need them, must have them in our arsenal in all modes — air, surface and submarine launched.

There is good evidence that the Russians are hard at work trying to overcome our cruise missile lead. One of their objectives is to negotiate away the range superiority of our cruise missiles, and they seem to have made some progress in this endeavor.

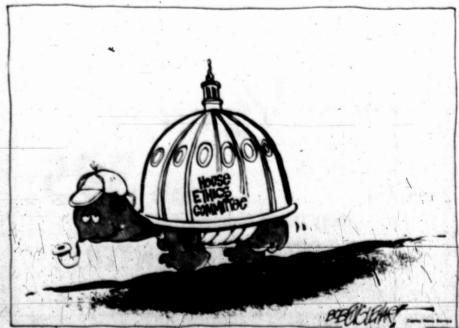

And, finally, there are the downstream dollar considerations

It will certainly cost us a lot to stay in the manned bomber world, but we had better be there if we do not wish to surrender a major weapon capability.

Great though these costs are, they cannot be regarded as excessive until the unhappy day when we make a conscious decision that we can no longer afford to defend ourselves. Let's hope that never happens.

INSIDE REPORT:

Jordan gets job of selling new Panama Canal treaty

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Top presidential aide Hamilton Jordan has been given an unannounced new assignment of the utmost difficulty and political sensitivity: to make sure President Carter gets the two-thirds Senate vote needed to ratify a new Panama Canal

That means Mr. Carter is turning to his most trusted lieutenant, architect of his presidential nomination, for what promises to be one of the most heated treaty ratification fights in Senate history. Jordan, who gets bored with philosophic consideration of issues, tells friends he is delighted with the prospects of a knockdown fight for votes, reminiscent of the presidential campaign.

Selling the canal treaty is only one f several new responsibilities for Jordan that underline his primacy on he White House staff. He also is in charge of relations with the American-Jewish community. supervised negotiations with Congress on the water projects and will be responsible for Senate ratification of any arms limitation (SALT) treaty signed with the Soviet

In privately claiming there are only 0 hard-core Senate votes against the eanal treaty, Jordan may be un-derestimating his task. During a recent chat with the President, Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina counted 41 opposition votes (nine more than needed). Other foes of the treaty believe the total may climb over 50 once a major media blitz begins playing on naturally deepseated apprehension by the public.

A footnote: Assignment of White House aide Joe Aragon as Jordan's deputy on the canal treaty betrays some dubious political thinking. Aragon, formerly head of the Democratic National Committee's Latin American division, is supposed to line up Spanish-speaking Americans for the treaty.

BIZARRE ALLIANCE

A bizarre alliance of corporate big business and liberal White House aides is burying one of President Carter's tax-reform campaign promises: ending double taxation of corporate profits and stockholder

This coalition's success is made all but certain by the fact budget director Bert Lance has just joined it. Presidential confidant Lance's reason for opposition: the $14 to $18 billion revenue loss.

Business opposition, led by the influential Business Roundtable. results from the fear of corporate managers that a stockholders' tax credit to offset taxes paid at the corporate level will squeeze corporations for higher dividends. Liberal aides in the White House, led by policy chief Stuart Eizenstat, see the proposal as making the President vulnerable to charges that he favors rich stockholders over blue-collar wage-earners. A footnote: Business wants a drop in the present 48 per cent corporate income tax rate, along with, more rapid depreciation based on replacement costs. Despite liberal misgivings. Lance is willing and the President may go along. CONGRESS AND KOREA

In his first attempt to justify to Congress removal of U.S. ground troops from South Korea, President Carter ran into surprisingly unanimous criticism - running the gamut from Sen. Hubert Humphrey. the pioneer arms control advocate, to defense-oriented Sen. Sam Nunn of

At a hush-hush White House meeting July 20, the President, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance were handed this hard consensus by more than 20 key members of Congress: now is not the time for action that might be interpreted as leading from weakness. Not a single member of Congress who heard the President and his advisers defend the withdrawal plan fully supported it. Even ultra-liberal Rep. Don Fraser of Minnesota spoke out against it. Fraser's rationale: it would make South Korean President Park "more repressive.

YARMOLINSKY RETURNS Despite official denials, director Paul Warnke's quiet purge of hard-liners at Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) continues with a new assistant director bound to raise eyebrows at the Pentagon: Adam Yarmolinsky, now a University of Massachusetts professor. Yarmolinsky infuriated the military as a Defense Department civilian aide in the 1960s, and his selection shows how much Washington has changed over a decade. In 1966, President Johnson dumped him as deputy director of the poverty program when right-wing Southern Congressmen complained Yarmolinsky was too far to the left. In 1977, his appointment by President Carter to an incomparably more sensitive post at ACDA should win easy Senate confirmation.

HCUSTON (AP) - A University of Houston pharmacist has developed a new kind of popsicle, one that will help cancer patients who ofter are required to take the bitter drug called nykstatin.

Ron Ballentine, a 29-year-od associate professor of clinical pharmacy, has come up with a grapeflavored frozen concoction that at least reduces some of the discomfort of the drug.

Nystatin is used for treatment of sores which may form inside a cancer patient's mouth during chemotherapy treatment.

The sores, a common side effect of some drugs, occur because of a rapid turnover of cells in the mucous membrane which lines the mouth. They can be painful and can become a breeding ground for infections and fungi. Nystatin is an antibiotic that combats these germs.

But, the drug is so bitter that few patients can keep recipients Friday and "To people like my contraceptive services it in the mouth for more than a few minutes.

He will be the 31st permanent deacon ordained within the San Angelo diocese. The diaconate program, reestablished by authority of Pope Paul VI in 1967. accepts men who are married at the time of their ordination. Permanent deacons have authority of ministry comparable to that of the priesthood, with the exception of administering the Sacrament of the Sick, the secration of bread and wine (mass) and granting of absolution (forgiveness of sin) to penitents.

Jewish law computerized

By LARRY THORSON

TEL AVIV (AP) - The wisdom of Judaism, recorded over the centuries as widely scattered sages interpreted Jewish law, is being inscribed electronically on magnetic discs in a monumental marriage of tradition and computer technology

With 10 years of labor on the Responsa project, computer scientists at Bar-Ilan University so far have entered in the computer some 18,000 questions out of the total 250,000 in the Responsa literature.

'The Responsa is like case law." said Dr. Yaacov Choueka, 40, director of the project. "It covers traditions of over 1,000 years of rabbis' pronouncement on all subjects of life.

The older questions in the Responsa often came from isolated Jewish communities in Europe, North Africa and Asia, where local religious authorities were stymied by a controversy. They wrote letters to the currently recognized sages - in Babylonia, Spain, Palestine — for a ruling.

Compiled in sepaate volumes starting in the eighth century and continuing today, the Responsa contributed mightily to the development of the ethical precepts of Judaism and also helped to unify Jews in one way of life no matter where they lived.

To today's scientist, the Responsa can be a "storehouse of information for all kinds of research, including history, sociology, linguistics, business and of course Judaica,' Choueka said

'The problem is that there is no index. You would have to look through 3,000 books to find what you want." Thus all this information - 14 million words of unadulterated text so far-is key-punched into the computer memory so that it can be pulled out again in a systematic way.

"The program now can scan the whole input, looking for a word or key phrase," said Choueka, an immigrant from Egypt whose specialty is information retrieval, one of the fastdeveloping fields in computer

In less than a minute the computer produced page and line references that would permit the linguist to compare the usage of Rabbi Moses Ben Nachman, who lived in 13th century Spain, with that of Rabbi Ovadia Yosef, the present chief rabbi of Israel's Sephardic community.

Other queries have involved marriage, divorce, widowhood, business practice and religious ritual.

In ancient times messengers on horseback carried the questions and answers around the Jewish diaspora. Soon, if Barllan's plans work out, a satellite link will be set up to New York so that scientists or rabbis at Yeshiva University there can query the big IBM 370-168 computer here, which also does other work for Bar-

Are we able to admit, face up to wrongs?

Bible study for the whole family. Psalms 139: 23-24-"Bring your flashlight. Lord, and go through the dark places of my soul. Blest my weak spots. Travel my mind for negative thinking. Find any wrong I have overlooked; and lead me back the right road forever.

Psalm 139 has been called "the most beautiful poem ever written on self-honesty." It is labeled "a Psalm of David." If he wrote it when he was king, that gives it a special flavor. David had sinned a big sin and Nathan, the prophet, was pointing his finger at King David to say, "You, sir, are not what you ought to be."

The angels in heaven must have beem bending low to hear his response. He had the power to remove Nathan from the scene permanently. But somehow David knew that true peace cannot be bought with any other price than self-honesty.

family rates highest in self-honesty? Do you think people have a lower or higher opinion of those who say, "I did wrong and I'm sorry"? In a college bull-session a freshman boy said something we all appreciated. "The person I want to be like more than anyone else is my dad." When we asked him to enlarge on that, he added, "My dad was always so honest. If he blew one, he'd admit it and apologize. And you know, every time he did, I thought a little bit more of him."

Then he went on to tell us that his father isn't living now. But the number one legacy he left that boy was a beautiful self-honesty.

QUESTION FOR DISCUSSION: What can we do in our home to make it easier for everyone to admit "I did wrong-and I'm sorry"? Prayer in unison:

MIDLAND BIBLE CLASS MEETS AT 9:30 A.M. SUNDAY IN THE LARGE AUDITORIUM. GOLF COURSE ROAD CHURCH OF CHRIST, 3500 WEST GOLF COURSE ROAD CURRENT STUDY: THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT

Whether it's someone baking a cake, a contractor building a house, a lawyer arguing a case, or boys playing marbles, we have to go by the rules. There are rules, patterns, recipes, or blueprints for nearly everything constructive we do. This is accepted as normal and right. It is the expected thing.

There could be no games, businesses, municipal organizations, and very little else if we did not have recognized and duly constituted authority by which things could function.

, And there must be authority in religion as well. Conflicts in religion arise from different sources of authority. There must be the divine standard to which we can appeal in deciding our religious activities: God has given us that standard or rule of religion in the commands of his Son. The religious leaders of Jesus' day asked him - "By what authority doest thou these things?" (Matthew 21:23). God's answer for all time was: "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him" (Matthew 17:5). God gave Christ all authority in heaven and on earth.

The commands of Christ, therefore, are the authority in religion. His word alone must be the eternal criterion of faith. The apostles of Christ recorded his will in the form of the New Testament; its pages contain the commands of the Master. Paul writes: "Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God. Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; comparing spiritual things with spiritual' (1 Corinthians 2:12,13).

The revealed will of Christ must be our sole authority in religion. We must not add to, or subtract from the divine revelation (2 John 9). We will be judged by the things that are written in this book. Our Lord plainly says, "He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day" (John 12:48).

"But if an agrement cannot be reached, there should be no doubt that the United States can and will do what it must to protect its security and insure the adequacy of its strategic posture."

-Carter talked next about "some negative comments from the Soviet side" about arms limitation talks and American-Soviet relations in general. He drew no outward reaction when he added, "If these comments are based on a misconception about our motives, we will redouble our efforts to make them clear." TERRY WILLIAMSON Only smiles from 'the Kid'

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

DALLAS - It's easy for the "Kid Coach" to smile these days. The top of the world is in Lubbock or nearby.

Steve Sloan, the 32-year-old youngster who is the head football boss at Texas Tech, is the one with the big grin, and according to him it's all that Lubbock dirt that helps his smile.

"A little dirt in your mouth encourages brushing your teeth," Sloan says. "In other words, you can always turn a disadvantage into an advantage if you have a positive attitude.

Actually, that statement came after he was asked if Lubbock presented any recruiting problems. Obviously, Lubbock is not the garden spot of the world, and there is a problem in drawing recruits into the area.

Still, after sharing the Southwest Conference title with Houston last year and earning enough respect to be picked to win again this season by sports writers across the state, there are very few negatives at this point in time, as far as the Tech program is concerned. And Sloan is enjoying all

They say that "The Kid's" smile is natural. He's just that type of guy. But he has so few problems going into this season that smiles would come to even Buster Keeton.

To start with, Rodney Allison returns to Tech this fall. Allison is money in the bank as far as quarterbacks go. It's like having stock in IBM at the beginning or dating Farrah Fawcett-Majors. You know you are in good hands.

Also there are 27 seniors returning with three and two letters. That's not a bad place for leadership, to begin. General Patton never had it that good, and you know what he did.

Then there is that little matter of eight returning starters on defense and the like number on offense from a team that was 10-2 a year ago. There are some negatives, however. Take the kicking game.

Tech lost it all, and there is apparently one that has come to the front at this point. Walk-on Russell Wheatly of Odessa Permian is the front runner for field goals and such.

"The kicking game is 30 to 35 per cent of the game," Sloan says without a trace of losing that smile. "I guess if I had to choose a weakness, however, would want it there instead of offense or defense.

SMU coach Ron Meyer said that Sloan probably did the best coaching job in the country last year. Sloan's still smiling.

"I don't think Tech came close to being the most physical team in the conference last year," Meyer said. "Sloan did a tremendous coaching job out there. When the ball bounced, it bounced right for Tech. They created a lot of mistakes from their opponents, and they didn't make many. But they weren't that physical."

When Sloan heard of the remarks by Meyer, he replied, "Well, I don't know if I agree with him or not, but I'm sure my wife would. I don't know if anyone else would though." Smiles accompany quote.

Naturally, Sloan was asked if Tech had reached the point of being a power. First, he smiled.

'We are pleased with what we've done at Tech. But you have to prove yourself every year. To judge a program, you have to look at it over a long period of time. Tech is 16th in the country in winning percentage over the last five years. What we need to do is to maintain that kind of showing. Obviously, Tech had a good program

"Still, at some point in time, we need to get off that bus and play in the Cotton Bowl. Tying for the conference was a big plus for us last year because Tech had never done that. That's good, but now we need to play in Dallas. There is nothing like Big D."

That's when the smile stopped. There always seems to be a limit to PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Tom Kite has a theory about golf tournaments. 'You can't win a tournament in the first round, or the second round, or the third round." he said.

"All you can do on those days is try not to lose the golf tournament; jockey for position; try to put yourself in position where you can win it on the

And Kite, defending the only title he has ever won, has done just that.

He went two over par after seven holes of Friday's second round and was in danger of losing his spot among the leaders, and, possibly, his chance at eventual victory in the $200,000 Philadelphia Classic

But he rallied with birdies on five of six holes beginning on the ninth to salvage an erratic, two-under-par 69. That gave him a tie for the halfway lead with New Zealand's John Lister. at 135, seven under par on the tight, testing little 6,687-yard Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course

"It wasn't." Kite smiled in understatement of his four-bogey, sixbirdie, eight-par effort, "a very classical round.

But it was very important. "I kept myself in the ball game," he said.

"It sounds kind of funny, but that's sometimes the kind of round you get when you're playing good. I really didn't hit that many bad shots and I turned an over-par round into a decent one, almost a good one.'

A bogey from a flying lie-a problem with relatively long grass on the fairways that has plagued all the players-on the final hole kept it from being a good one. And it cost Kite sole control of the lead, dropping him back into a tie with the lanky Lister, who putted his way to a six-under-par 65.

Three share Pocono lead

PONONO MANOR (AP) - Amy Alcott, Dot Germain and Dot Stone fired three-under-par 70s Friday and shared a one-shot lead in the $75,000 Pocono Northeast Clasic.

Miss Alcott, of Santa Monica, Calif., birdied two of the final four holes on the par 37-36-73, 6,468-yard Pocono Pocono Manor Golf Club, to grab a piece of the lead, while Miss Germain, of Greensboro, N.C., and Miss Stone. of Miami ad slightly more erratic

"It's a very good, sporty course You get into the trees here and nobody will find you." said Miss Alcott. "You have to keep the ball in bounds. I finessed it around for a 70.

Miss Germain, a non-winner on the tour, posted an eagle in her round that also included six birdies and five "I don't always have it under control and I don't always have a good day on the par-fives," she said. Miss Stone knocked in short birdie putts on three of the first four holes to post a four-under 33 for the front nine.

A heavy rainstorm hit Hogan Park just prior to the opening of the Men's State Open Slow Pitch Softball Tournament Friday, causing a twohour delay in getting the big three-day meet underway. Goodrich Service Center of Midland flexed its muscles in an opening round game, blasting the Big Spring Merchant's, 29-0 with Bud Glaspie and Al Wootan paving the way for the Tiremen.

Two other opening round games were still being played and there was an upset in the making on Field No. 1 where C&H Sports of San Angelo were leading the Lubbock Radiers, 17-11 in the sixth inning.

Lubbock was one of the pre-tourney favorites in the strong 41-team field, but C&H exploded for 12 big runs in the first inning and the Raiders were trying to play catchup to the Concho River outfit.

IN ANOTHER first round game that was switched from Field No. 3 to

The rain forced the 7:30 p.m. openers to be moved to 9:30 p.m. in order for the ground crews and helpers get the water off the four diamonds.

Rains delay tournament

Instead of the final first round games starting at 11 p.m. Friday, they started at 1 a.m. or 1:30 a.m. today with the two-hour delay. Other top-rated teams were in San Angelo Spectrum was to meet Carpet Warehouse of Amarillo in a 9:50 p.m. game that was moved back to 11:50 p.m. starting time.

ABILENE BARRETT'S, another powerful entry, was set to battle the Surrey Shop of Weatherford, originally at 11 p.m. Friday, but that game too, was set back to 1 or 1:30

Fulfilling a father's dream

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

George Spalding had dreamed of the day when his daughter, Diane, would get a chance to compete in the World Games for the Deaf and battle for a gold medal. And he dreamed of being there with her when that proud moment came.

Part of that plan became a reality last week, when Diane, a 19-year-old teenager from Wichita Falls, who is attending Gallaudet College in Washington D.C., and has been deaf since birth, won a gold and a bronze medal in the tennis competition at the 1977 Games in Bucharest Romania. But her father was not there to see it. He died of a heart attack five mon-

It's difficult to try and imagine just what it must be like to go through life without being able to hear. Just as I'm sure it's difficult for Diane to imagine a life filled with anything but silence. Since the day she was born, nearly two decades ago, the blonde-hairded youngster has been fighting an uphill battle - struggling to stay on a par with a society that's been one-up on her from the start. But from the looks of things, I'm not quite sure just who is one-up on who.

"She's an intelligent, head strong girl," explained her older sister, Jan, who lives in Dallas. "And she's always been competitive and wants to do the best in everything she's involved in. She always wants to win."/

SPORTS CHATTER

Obviously. By the time she graduated from Wichita Falls High School a year ago. Diane had been selected to "Who's Who Among American High School Students," was a member of the National Honor Society, and had a 3.9 grade average.

And she's not too bad with a racquet in her hand either. Tennis has been the unifying force in a family that has had to cope with Diane's handicap, as well as that of her 11-year-old brother. Christopher, who has also been deaf since

"Mother and daddy really put a lot of themselves into Diane and Christopher's lives." explained Jan, "just trying to help them get along better.

"Diane and daddy were just real, real close. And when she became interested in tennis in junior high, he helped her. When he was in the hospital shortly before he died, he knew that Diane might have a real chance to go to the World Games, and he kept telling her that if she got that chance, he'd be over there with her. But he died shortly after that.

George Spalding'a death was a crushing blow for the entire family, and even now, five months later, it was difficult for Jan to talk about it over the telephone.

When the news finally came that Diane had indeed made the U.S. team, her mother agreed to make the trip to Europe with her, and Jan believes the whole thing was God-sent.

"It sort of gave my mom a goal to look forward to after daddy's death," she said. "Something that was really important in all our lives."

At 19, Diane was the youngest competitor in the women's field, but she was seeded first in the singles event, and a heavy favorite to win doubles with her partner, Gwen Rocque of New Rochelle, N.Y.

The two did indeed win the doubles gold medal, but Diane's bid for a sweep was not to be. On the morning of her allimportant match against second-seeded Marina Rocco of Italy, she came down with a virus and a 102-degree temperature to boot. She refused to give up without a fight though, and went out and gave her Italian opponent all she could handle, before the fever beat her.

"It's typical of Diane," said Jan. "She wanted to win so badly that she went ahead and played in that condition."

If I were a betting man, I'd say what made Diane want to win so badly was the memory of a father who talked of sharing this moment with her, on his deathbed. "You know," Jan concluded. "She may have lost that one match, but I wouldn't exactly call what Diane accomplished over there losing.

Neither would I. And you know something? George Spalding wouldn't

Hunt sets record

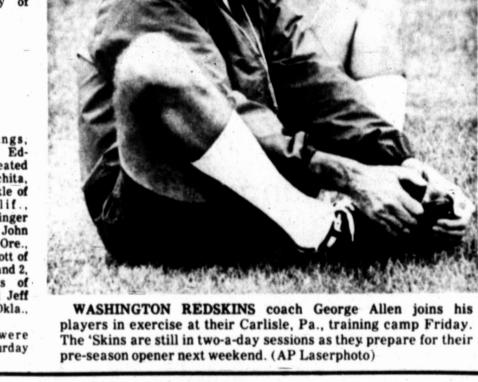

HOCKENHEIM, West Germany (AP) - World champion James Hunt of Britain clocked a record time Friday as trials began for Sunday's German Grand Prix.

Hunt, ignoring predictions that 12cylinder Formula One racers have an edge over his eight-cylinder McLaren-Ford, established a lap record of 1 minute 53.68 seconds for an average speed of 133.5 miles an hour on the 4.2-mile circuit. The old mark of 1:58.8 was set in 1970 by Belgium's Jacky Ickx in a Ferrari. Running in rainy weather with frequent training interruptions, Hunt was chased by the predicted 12-cylinders with Frenchman Jacques Lafitte's blue Ligier-Matra reaching second slot at 1:53.97 for 133.2 m p.h. Third was Britain's John Watson in Brabham-Alfa -at 1:54.12.

CANTON, Ohio (AP) - The Chicago Bears, mindful they came within four points of sweeping the 1977 Super Bowl opponents, are confident they can spring into National Football League contention this season. "Our realistic goal is to contend with Minnesota for the divisional championship," said Bears' Coach Jack Pardee, who starts in that direction Saturday in the year's first exhibition against the New York Jets.

The annual Hall of Fame game, to be telecast nationally over ABC-TV starting at 3:30 p.m. EDT, follows the enshrinement of Bart Starr, Forrest Gregg, Gale Sayers, Frank Gifford and Bill Willis.

PARIS, Ky. (AP) William Michael McCandless of Nashville, Tenn., was arraigned Friday in connection with the theft of a $500,000 mare in foal to 1973 Triple Crown winner Secretariat

McCandless, 30, did not enter a plea and his bond was reduced from $500,000 to $50,000 by Bourbon County Judge Guy Ormsby, However, Mc-Candless remained in jail. He waived preliminary hearing and is scheduled to be arraigned in Circuit Court on Sept. 12.

McCandless is charged in connection with the theft of Fanfreluche. a 10-year-old mare that, at the time she was stolen June 25, was in foal for two months, officials said.

Owners of the mare said she is not insured but that she is worth $500,000 because she is in foal to Secretariat. They also have said that the horse is a "chronic aborter" and without proper drugs will lose the foal. Authorities say they have no idea where the horse may be

McCandless has told his attorneys he is innocent. He also reportedly told the FBI and state authorities that he had no idea where the horse is, that he had nothing to do with the theft and that he has no idea why he became the suspect in the case.

PARIS, Ky. (AP) - William Michael McCandless of Nashville, Tenn., was arraigned Friday in connection with the theft of a $500,000 mare in foal to 1973 Triple Crown winner Secretariat.

McCandless, 30, did not enter a plea and his bond was reduced from $500,000 to $50,000 by Bourbon County Judge Guy Ormsby. However, Mc-Candless remained in jail. He waived preliminary hearing and is scheduled to be arraigned in Circuit Court on Sept. 12. McCandless is charged in connection with the theft of Fanfreluche. a 10-year-old mare that, at the time she was stolen June 25, was in foal for two months, officials said.

Owners of the mare said she is not insured but that she is worth $500,000 because she is in foal to Secretariat: They also have said that the horse is a "chronic aborter" and without proper drugs will lose the foal. Authorities say they have no idea where the horse

Fanfreluche disappeared from Claiborne Farm, one of many horse

farms in the Bluegrass area o

Raymond McConnell, acting for the Bourbon County attorney, argued against bond reduction. He said McCandless listed his trade as "professional gambler" and that McCandless had given authorities a false address when he turned himself in. Attorneys for McCandless say he is "self-employed."

McConnell also said McCandless could face a fine of up to $1.5 million if convicted on the charge of theft by taking the mare.

McCandless has told his attorneys he is innocent. He also reportedly told the FBI and state authorities that he had no idea where the horse is, that he had nothing to do with the theft and that he has no idea why he became the suspect in the case.

Kentucky.

McCandless turned himself in last week after the FBI issued a warrant charging him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. That charge was dropped when McCandless turned himself in to state authorities.
