Groucho gone; no more leering grin, impudence

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Groucho Marx, whose leering grin and impudent manner brought him the longest career of the irreverent Marx Brothers comedy team, died Friday Officials at Cedar-Sinai Medical Center said Marx died at 9:25 p.m. CDT of pneumonia.

The comic, whose career spanned more than half a century, had been hospitalized for the past two months with a respiratory ailment. He lapsed into critical condition earlier in the day and slipped in and out of consciousness until his death.

As his condition deteriorated, his doctor, family and longtime companion Erin Fleming stood watch at his

Banks raise interest rate to 7 per cent

NEW YORK (AP) - Several major banks raised their prime interest rate Friday from 6% per cent to 7 per cent today. One economist said a major effect of the moves could be increased housing costs.

The prime rate is a bank's charge on loans to its best corporate customers. It is not directly linked to consumer loan charges but may exert a psychological influence on all loan rates.

Citibank, the nation's secondlargest commercial bank, led off the increases, followed shortly by 12thranked Marine Midland Bank in Buf-

Citibank, which usually moves first in prime rate adjustments and which had held the prime at 634 per cent since May 27, did not elaborate immediately on the reasons behind its

But the change in the prime rate had been widely anticipated because of the Federal Reserve's recent actions to slow the rate of growth in the nation's money supply.

Among others raising their prime rates were San Francisco's Crocker National Bank, the nation's 13th largest; Mercantile Trust Co. in St. Louis, and Harris Trust & Savings Bank in Chicago.

Kennon V. Rothchild, president of Mortgage Bankers Association of America, said in Washington the latest increase would cause an immediate boost in builders' cost of construction financing. "The buiders' increased cost will begin to show in the price of new homes in two or three months," he said. "To the sophisticated buyer of new or existing housing, the real meaning of the rise in the prime rate is that present mortgage interest levels are more favorable now than they may be in a few months."

The bushy-browed, mustachioed comic and his brothers - Harpo, Chico, Gummo and Zeppo developed a style of wise-crarking, zany comedy which delighted vaudeville and movie audiences for more than 50 years.

Groucho went on to star as quizmaster on his own radio and television series after his brothers either retired or went into other businesses.

A seamy courtroom battle over his conservatorship put Groucho back in the news in recent months, at a time when he was in and out of the hospital for treatment of his various ailments. Fleming, a pretty former actress who attached herself to Groucho in 1970 and was his constant companion, battled Groucho's son, Arthur, over the care of the aged comedian.

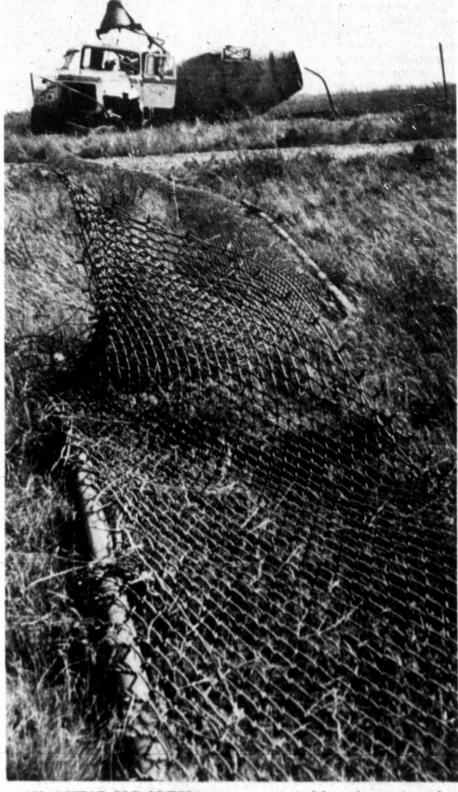

Miss Fleming, 58 years his junior, was hired as his secretary and singlehandedly brought him out of retirement for a triumphant 1972 appearance at Carnegie Hall. Arthur Marx, however, pictured her as Groucho's grim tormentor, who latched on to Marx for his money.

"He was withering on the vine until she entered his life," said a relative. Other witnesses said she badgered him with insults and curses, but friends said she was keeping him alive by her stimulating effect.

AN 18-YEAR-OLD ODESSA man was treated for minor cuts and abrasions at Midland Memorial Hospital and released Friday morning after his cement truck overtured near the intersection of Holiday Hill Road and Interstate 20 about 10:30 a.m. According to a Department of Public Safety spokesman, the truck, driven by Charlie Jeter of 1232 N. Kelley, was east bound on I-20 when the left front tire blew out. The vehicle crossed the median into the westbound traffic lane, hit a fence and overturned once. Jeter was thrown clear of the truck, the spokesman said.

Vance to talk with Chinese about rights

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance intends to register Carter administration regard for human rights during his trip to China while exploring prospects for normal U.S. relations with Peking, according to U.S. officials.

These officials acknowledge that the potential impact on diplomatic relations is not clear but they told reporters the administration believes there is "great value" in informing all countries, including China, about current U.S. policy on human rights.

Vance leaves for the Far East on Saturday. His schedule calls for a stopover in Tokyo before flying to Peking on Monday.

A basic purpose of the trip is to see if conditions are right for moving toward full relations with Peking as implied in the Shanghai Communique signed by former President Richard M. Nixon and the late Premier Chou En-lai in 1972.

But U.S. officials said Vance's four-day visit is not likely to produce a 'breakthrough." Also officials said there is "no sense of urgency" surrounding this first high-level U.S.-Chinese meeting in two years.

"We are not going with any major proposals," Jody Powell, the White House press secretary said Friday.

A top State Department official, who barred use of his name, said the rin would be valuable wit any progress toward normal relations. The two countries now operate liaison offices in each other's capitals. Indications are the human rights discussion will be largely general instead of dealing specifically with Peking's domestic practices. Vance will take up the subject, officials here said, as part of his "global" agenda. which also includes Africa, where the Chinese are said to be anxious about Soviet penetration.

In the second phase of his talks, Vance will take up the issue of normalizing relations as well as trade with China, which now totals about $335 million a year.

President Carter said last May that he hopes to find "a formula" to bridge some of the difficulties still separating the United States and Principal among these, U.S. officials said, is the issue of Taiwan which is bound to this country by a 1954 defense treaty. Peking insists on a U.S. diplomatic break with Taiwan, abrogation of the treaty and removal of the remaining 1,165 American troops on the island as preconditions for normal ties with the United States.

Two heat records fall in one day

Friday was a record-breaking day, following a record-breaking night.

The low temperature at approximately 4 a.m. Friday was 76 egrees, setting a record warmest night on that date, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal. The previous record was 75 degrees set in 1964. The record low for Aug. 19 is 58 degrees set in 1940.

The high temperature for Friday was 103 degrees, breaking the previous Aug. 19 record high tem-perature of 102 degrees set in 1970.

Temperatures should be slightly cooler Saturday and Sunday as the forecast calls for highs in the upper 90s with clear to partly cloudy skies. The low Saturday night should be in the lower 70s. Winds are expected to be southerly from 10 to 20 mph during the days, decreasing to 5 to 10 mph at Scattered showers and thunderstorms hit portions of Southeast and Northwest Texas Friday bringing some cool temperatures to the area.

Rain also was reported in the eastern Panhandle.

Lufkin reported the state's highest rainfall amount with almost four inches. Pampa, in the Panhandle, also registered four inches.

Skies were cloudy over the northern half of the state and over most of the coastal plains. Partly cloudy skies prevailed elsewhere.

Temperatures ranged from the 80s in West Texas to the low 90s in portions of Central Texas.

FBI man won't be prosecuted

By RONALD J. OSTROW The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - The Justice Department has decided not to prosecute John F. Morley, the former FBI superior of retired FBI supervisor John J. Kearney, who is under indictment for wiretapping and mail opening, The Los Angeles Times learned Friday.

The unannounced decision raises the question of whether Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell has decided to drop further FBI prosecutions that department officials had said were supposed to move "up the ladder" of FBI authority, rung by rung.

Spokesmen for both the Justice Department and the FBI declined comment on the case.

Kearney's indictment April 7, by a federal grand jury in New York, has been a source of considerable unrest inside the FBI. Many agents believe that Kearney is being singled out for blame for investigative tactics dicted one agent, the first time an against political radicals that they think had become institutionalized in the bureau

Edward Bennett Williams, Kearney's lawyer, said Friday he was not certain of the significance of the department's decision not to present evidence against Morley to a federal grand jury now investigating the case

Williams termed the case "a total puzzlement.

"It's incredible to me that John Kearney should be the only agent to hang out on the line," he said

Bell, in his review of the continuing investigation of FBI breakins, mailopening and wiretapping by a federal grand jury here, has been making increasingly critical comments about

A month ago, for example, speaking to a Washington business organization, Bell said of the Kearney case:

"Maybe my judgment was bad. I in-agent has ever been indicted. We kept up with the mail for a long time. And when I say kept up with it, there were thousands of pieces. The mail against me was a 100-to-1. And last time we checked. I was losing the one - the one was going down."

In addition, sources familiar with the grand jury inquiry said that recent FBI witnesses have been questioned extensively about whether they had reason to believe the illegal investigative tactics were an unwritten but established procedure inside the agency for decades.

However, at the same time, an official familiar with the case cautioned against concluding that the Morley decision signaled that Bell intended to drop the case and move for dismissal of the charges against Kearney.

The official noted that Morley served as special agent in charge of the internal security division in New York until October, 1972. Thus, the fiveyear statute of limitations covering any crimes Morley might be charged with is about to expire.

Justice Department officials said the indictment of Kearney would not have been returned as early as April if it had not been for the pressures of the same five-year statute. Kearney served as supervisor of

Squad 47 in the FBI's New York office from August, 1970, through June, 1972. The squad, which operated as part of the internal security division, allegedly conducted wiretapping and mail-opening without warrants in searching for fugitives from the Weatherman terrorist organization.

One source said evidence against Morley could have been presented to the grand jury before the statute of limitations ran out if it had not been for a wider investigation ordered by

Cemetery becomes a shrine

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Inside, a white cross of flowers and a scarlet crown. Outside, thousands of pilgrims. Elvis Presley's tomb became a shrine three days after his

Some of Presley's fans waited all night outside the gate of Forest Hill Cemetery. Two hundred were there when the gates opened Friday. Superintendent Ralph Davis figured tens of thousands had passed through by afternoon and there was no letup in the stream.

The mausoleum housing Presley's remains along with those of 300 others was closed for the entire day, the day after his burial to allow the singer's family to visit in private

But the fans could pass by the columed building and receive a flower from the 3,116 displays that hid the lawn under a brilliant canvas of color. By noon, the flowers were gone many destined to be pressed between the covers of books. Some lucky ones got a ribbon.

The visitors then began picking up styrofoam vases, bits of floral wire anything that would be even the remotest souvenir of Elvis.

Many of the women, and some men, wept as they stood before the mausoleum. A few knelt. Most photographed the building.

In a chamber illuminated only by a stab of light filtering through a narrow slit of a window, a three-foot cross of white carnations stood beside Presley's vault. On silken streamers were the names Priscilla and Lisa

Priscilla is Presley's ex-wife. Lisa Marie is their 9-year-old daughter. Both were at the funeral Thursday, along with Presley's girl friend, Ginger Alden. The Presley vault is one of eight in a small chamber in the mausoleum. A wrought iron door permits viewing but bars entry. So far, the vault is unmarked.

Cemetery officials said it will be about a month before a brass plate is affixed to the white marble facing.

A tear flows down the cheek of Kathy Finley of St. Louis, Mo., as she holds a flower of one of the floral arrangements for Elvis Presley. She was one of the first to visit the mausoleum Friday in Memphis after the body of Presley was placed there Tueday. Flowers were given to the visitors as keepsakes. (AP Laserphoto)

Talk to help determine sanity

A stereo, four speakers and several records valued at a total of $369 were taken from the residence of Mrs. Dorothy Walker, 610 S. Webster St., between 2:30 a.m. and 7 a.m. Friday.

Mrs. Walker told police she locked the rear screen door before going to bed. She noticed the items gone about 7 a.m., she told police.

Police said there was a small hole in the screen door by the hook, and it appeared something was used to pry the hook loose.

In the confusion, officials and interested parties in California, Nevada and Texas have been unable to determine whether a valid will exists or even where Hughes resided.

And the case is even more complicated because Hughes had extensive holdings in each of the three states. The job of the courts in each is to safeguard the property within their

Revolt likely without pact

Panamanian negotiator Romulo Escobar Bethancourt said Friday that if the U.S. Senate rejects the new Panama Canal treaty, Panamanians will "take a road of violence" to gain control of the waterway. Panamanian leader Gen. Omar Torrijos has "tried to get the negotiations to work out because we did not want on our conscience the deaths of our youths," Escobar said in a speech to local government officials. The speech was broadcast live over Panamanian radio and television. The negotiator did not explain what he meant by "road of violence" or whether it would be sanctioned by the government.

Some U.S. officials have said they fear an eruption of antiAmerican rioting here if the United States delays giving Panama sovereignty over the canal. Treaty negotiations began in 1964 after a wave of rioting by Panamanian students that left 21 Panamanian and 3 Americans dead.

U.S. and Panamanian negotiators last week signed an agreement on basic principles for a new pact under which the United States would turn over control of the canal to Panama by the year 2000.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jurisdictions until a basic approach to settling the estate is found.

So, without a valid will, the case could remain tied in legal knots in the three states for months or years to

After Hughes died April 5, 1976, Los Angeles Superior Judge George Lake told the administrator of Hughes' holdings in California, Richard C. Gano, to conduct a worldwide search It was only one of several efforts to find such a will, and like the others it has failed so far to produce one that has received official sanction. In Nevada 35 purported wills have been filed, in Texas another 30. Beneficiaries named have included Donald Duck and Mickey Mouse. One will was filed on tape, but no one has listened to it yet.

The most prominent document is the so-called Mormon Will, which divides Hughes' estate among several medical institutions, his aides, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and former Utah gas station owner Melvin Dummar.

In Texas, three trials are scheduled. One will determine whether Hughes was a legal resident of the state, a second whether he left a valid will. If he did not, a third trial will divide his estate among relatives after the Internal Revenue Service takes out 77 per cent.

In Los Angeles, probate proceedings are being held up pending an outcome in the Nevada trial over the Mormon Will.

The search ordered by Lake lasted 16 months but all that turned up was a codicil to a 1938 will and a document leaving Hughes' estate to a task force against organized crime. But no legal

The search scoured 144 banks in 13 states and four nations, questioning everyone known to be connected with Hughes. Searchers spent $600,000.

The Mormon Will is the only document being seriously considered now in the probate court in California or in Nevada. But the Las Vegas trial on its validity has been delayed three times.

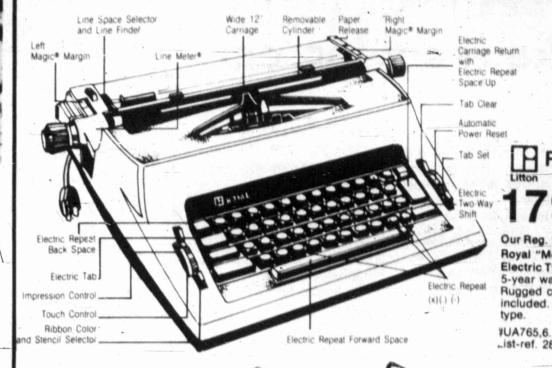

be overshadowed by the fight over where Hughes legally resided -Texas or Nevada. The temporary administrators of Hughes estate want Nevada declared as his legal residence. Nevada has no state inheritance tax and Texas does.

It appears that oil companies and independent operators might as well make room now in their offices to accommodate auditors of the Federal Energy Administration. And we are talking about auditors - scores of auditors - in some instances.

Exxon Co., U.S.A., for instance, has been asked by FEA's Dallas office to provide office space in the company's headquarters building in Houston for 50 FEA auditors. The agency already has 14 auditors on the job there, but the number is being increased to

And we know of at least one Midland independent who presently is providing space for one government auditor in his limited office quarters.

The worst part of it is that this is something which is bound to spread under President Carter's new energy program. Space must be provided somewhere for those 20,000 staff members as authoriz-

MIDDLE AND UPPER INCOME TAXPAYER

U.S. aids Iran's secret police

By JACK ANDERSON and LES

WASHINGTON - American officials have been quietly helping the Shah Of Iran and his notorious secret police force crack down on Iranian

The Americans have been almost SAVAK, Iran's dreaded secret police. They have helped the shah's agents spy on Iranian students in the United States who oppose the shah's imperial rule. In past columns, we have quoted SAVAK's own documents which reveal how its agents routinely tap phones, forge documents and commit burglaries in pursuit of this goal.

Yet U.S. government agencies are still anxiously cooperating with the shah and his secret police. Here are

- Last October, we revealed that the top SAVAK agent in the United States is Mansur Rafizadeh, who claims to be an Iranian attache at the United Nations. Rafizadeh vehemently denied any connection with SAVAK

Now we have obtained a telegram which was sent last November to FBI headquarters from its New York office. It describes an alleged threat against Nasser Afshar, a prominent Iranian dissident and publisher of a stridently anti-shah tabloid called the "Iran Free Press." The FBI document declares unequivocally that "Mansur Rafizadeh is the principal representative of SAVAK in the U.S. and is a foreign liaison source of (the

New York FBI office.' An FBI official acknowledged that Mansur Rafizadeh was a "foreign liaison source" of the FBI. "We have them in just about every friendly mission in New York," said the official. "They give us information, and if we get something on threats or demonstrations, we call them. They are not paid, and there is nothing covert about it.

- Former CIA chief Richard Helms became ambassador to Iran in 1973. A few months later, the shah hinted to Helms that he wanted an orderly reception on a planned trip to the United States. Helms cabled the State Department that Iran "is putting us on notice and indirectly suggesting that we tidy up as much as possible anti-shah elements in the U.S. to reduce or avoid untoward incidents or anti-shah demonstrations during his forthcoming visit...'

- About the same time, the U.S. embassy asked the State Department whether anything could be done to shut down Afshar's anti-shah newspaper. Afshar is an American citizen and his publication is protected by the First Amendment. The shah might win a libel suit, the State Department lawyers advised in an internal memo, but "it would only be in the course of a long and open trial which would focus public attention on this publication.

Helms was later authorized to tell the Iranians that "the department agrees that the Iran Free Press is a scurrilous publication filled with libelous, irresponsible and inaccurate statements." But, warned the But, warned the bureaucrats, "there are no legal steps the U.S. government can take against this paper... - Afshar's newspaper was being mailed to U.S. embassy employees and smuggled onto the streets of Tehran. At the State Department's suggestion, embassy employees refused to accept the tabloids, which were returned to Washington unopened. All were identically stamped: "Refused by addressee. Return to sender.

Two years ago, Afshar filed a freedom of information request for the State Department's file on him. He later got word that papers relating to his case were being destroyed at the U.S. embassy in Tehran. Afshar's lawyer, Jack Novic of the American Civil Liberties Union, received assurances that the files were being kept intact. But when Secretary of State Cyrus Vance later cabled Tehran for information on the Afshar case, he was told that only the files from 1974 to 1976 had been sent to Washington. The embassy cabled that it had "previously destroyed all earlier files in accordance with standard destruction procedures...'

SWEET TALK - The nation's broadcasters, who make a hefty profit from advertisements for diet soda, don't want to tell their viewers that products containing saccharin may be harmful.

Congress may soon require that all saccharin ads include a warning that the sugar substitute may cause cancer. The Food and Drug Administration wants to ban saccharin immediately, but angry calorie counters want Congress to delay any action for 18 months

The National Association of Broadcasters, however, doesn't see any reason to warn the public in the interim. In a private letter to House Commerce Committee Chairman Harley Staggers, D.-W.Va., the NAB complains that any warnings "developed by a federal agency will be too cumbersome to be included in an advertisement and will result in a de facto ban on broadcast advertising." The broadcasters grumbled that they are already being denied a chunk of the $400 million a year in cigarette advertisements which are banned from radio and television. A saccharin warning, they griped, would also "establish a precedent" for those "who find other products to be harmful to health. Rep. Andrew Maguire, D.-N.J., has denounced the broadcasters for "misrepresentations of the public health threat from saccharin." The broadcasters. Maguire told us, are saying that they "ought to be able to hawk any product they want on TV, regardless of the consequences."

An NAB spokesman said a saccharin warning would "discriminate" against broadcasters. But he conceded, "Obviously it would not be great for our profit margin."

MAJOR DISAGREEMENT:

Military and Carter are at odds on Korea

By V.H. KRULAK Copley News Service

When Army Chief of Staff Bernard W. Rogers disclosed to a committee of Congress that the Joint Chiefs of Staff were opposed to the administration's Korean withdrawal plan he did more than give a routine response to a routine question.

He blew the whistle on an attempt to give the administration program the appearance of having complete military support when, in fact, it did

After the President disciplined Maj. Gen. John Singlaub for telling a journalist that withdrawal of our ground forces from Korea would be an invitation to war there was a great and understandable - silence among military men on the subject. Only JCS Chairman George S. Brown spoke, and in equivocal terms, declaring that he perceived no problem unless the North Koreans behaved irrationally.

Now, however, we are seeing another side of the story. Rogers, under questioning, acknowledged that the Joint Chiefs of Staff had recommended to the President "a phased partial withdrawal of 7,000 Army troops over the next five years instead of a full withdrawal of all ground combat forces," which is to say about 33,000 men.

This is a major disagreement. The joint chiefs, as evidenced by Rogers' testimony, favor a continued U.S. ground force presence on the Korean peninsula for an indefinite time - so long as the stability of that part of the world demands it.

The administration does not. While it has recently made some cosmetic concessions as to which troops shall be removed first, the fact is it wants all of our ground forces out, and within a definite five-year period.

Now we may expect the same congressional committee to explore the matter with the heads of the other services and, assuming that they corroborate Rogers' report, it will finally be out in the open; the men who, by law, are the "principal military advisers to the President' are not in favor of his Korean withdrawal scheme.

Henceforward, and for such small comfort as it may provide us, the responsibility for whatever eventuates from the Korean decision is clearly fixed in the White House.

All of the worming and wiggling to get at the true views of our military leadership on the Korean subject is symptomatic of another problem one quite separate from the rights and wrongs of removing American ground forces from Korea.

It is this - in a free land such as ours what is the proper relationship between the elected government and the country's appointed military leaders? Should the judgment and opinions of the professional military men be conveyed only to elected executives? Or should the people, who foot the bill, have the benefits of their wisdom also?

It is not a question of secrecy. No sensible citizen is interested in seeing our country's secrets paraded just to insure that everybody knows what is going on.

Nor is there any issue of civilian control over our military affairs. The United States has two centuries of unbroken fidelity to the principle and practice of military subordination to the civil will, and it is not likely to change.

No, the issue lies in that gray but altogether vital area where political objectives and military strategy converge. Where the military feasibility of a political initiative is significant, where the downstream hazards of a political decision are critical in terms of blood and treasure, then the people and their elected representatives have an abundant right to know the facts.

And that knowledge should come openly and freely - not as a result of a painful catharsis administered to an unwilling executive branch by Congress or the press.

The Korean withdrawal issue is a clear case in point. Congress and the American people are only now beginning to know how their professional military leaders feel about a far-reaching decision that can affect the peace of the Far East. But the knowledge hasn't come easily and it should.

Once this process takes place. however, there can be no mistake, the military man must abide wholly and loyally by whatever decision is made by his civilian superiors or, alternatively take his contrary view with him into civilian life, where he can dissent to his heart's content. That is how our system was intended to operate. We ought to make it work that way.

Carter's decision restrains Cyrus Vance in Peking

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State Cyrus Vance arrives in Peking Monday restrained by President Carter's decision to postpone though definitely not to reject the aggressive new China policy urged on him by expert Sinologists in his administration.

That decision was made at a Washington meeting July 30 presided over by the President himself. Vance in China has authority to talk and listen - but not to grant the condition demanded by the Communist regime as the price for full diplomatic relations with Washington: abandonment of Taiwan.

Abandonment was unmistakably pointed to by a top secret policy paper prepared by the administration's resident China experts, and that paper by no means has been repudiated. Rather, the July 30 meeting determined the time was not propitious for so dramatic a shift. 'The thinking was," one official told us, "that an awful lot had been attempted in foreign policy, with not that many good results."

This suggests the President has not yet decided the China question, a difficult foreign policy area where he has been tugged and pulled at by advisers. After first hinting at the abandonment of Taiwan, candidate Carter shifted ground in the second presidential debate by pledging "the preservation of the independence and freedom of the people of Taiwan." Sinologists brought into the Carter administration regarded this as a campaign "retreat" from the ambiguous Shanghai communique of February 1972, in which President Nixon moved toward eventual recognition of Peking to the exclusion of Taiwan. So a speech by Vance on June 29 went beyond the Shanghai communique by acknowledging the existence of only "one China," and one day later the President chimed in by promising only to "make sure that the peaceful lives of the Taiwanese. the Republic of China, is maintained" - moving away from his campaign support of Taiwan.

Behind this rhetoric is one of Washington's most closely-held and widely-criticized documents: PRM-24, an inter-agency report on China policy. Although the style of listing competing options results in no formal recommendation, there is little disagreement that PRM-24 | leads remorselessly to this policy: A rapid rupture of diplomatic relations with Taiwan and abrogation of the U.S.-Taiwanese defense treaty, permitting full diplomatic relations with mainland China - perhaps setting this up during Vance's trip to Peking. All U.S. governmental facilities would be pulled off Taiwan. However, military aid to Peking would be inadvisable for now.

Behind the smokescreeen of competing options, PRM-24 is wrestling with these puzzlers: if diplomatic and military ties were broken with Taiwan, how could the island be protected? By military aid without a defense treaty? By coaxing Peking into some guarantee?

Whether or not the President's advisers finally realized they were facing an inherent contradiction, the consensus gradually grew in the administration's upper reaches that PRM-24 could not now be followed to its conclusion. The fact Mr. Carter had his hands full - Israel, Panama, Korea, Cuba - was the reason for the July 30 decision to make Vance's journey a goodwill, exploratory visit.

Even so, China policy remains in the hands of the three principal authors of PRM-24. Sinologists Michel Oksenberg of the National Security Council (NSC) staff and William Gleysteen of the State Department want existing ties with Taiwan broken. The third collaborator, NSC director Zbigniew Brzezinski, is far less interested in deserting Taiwan than in strengthening the U.S.-Peking link at the expense of Moscow.

The gray eminence guiding this policy is Sinologist Doak Barnett at the Brookings Institution, who warns that failure to formalize relations with Peking could provoke Sino-Soviet approchement. Harvard Professor-emeritus John K. Fairbank is the policy's father-figure; his New York Times article urging the U.S. to meet Peking's demands for cutting ties with Taiwan is cited favorably by high-ranking U.S. officials.

document on world-wide U.S. military force structures, reflects the hold of the Barnett-Fairbank thesis. It compares a "current presence baseline" (Alaska-Japan-Korea-Okinawa-Philippines) in the Pacific with a "reduced presence baseline" (Alaska-Japan-Okinawa-Guam); nowhere in the massive document is the military significance of Taiwan even mentioned. What reappears intermittently is fear of Sino-Soviet rapprochement Despite the administration's human rights campaign, the moral argument advice of his Sinologists with competing advice from others.

PRM-10, the secret inter-agency against abandoning 17 million citizens of Taiwan who live in incomparably greater freedom than 800 million mainland Chinese does not interest the President's Sinologists. Less idealistically, the President might want to consider what the hardheaded gentlemen in Peking think of a super-power with so little faithfulness toward small allies. By giving Vance a limited mission, the President gives himself more time to compare the tability of that

Castro busy building new image

By RUDY ABRAMSON The Los Angeles Times

HAVANA - Shortly after he loaded Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho) and his wife Bethene into a jeep and began driving them around Havana recently, President Fidel Castro remarked, tongue-in-cheek, "I seem to spend all my time these days showing American tourists around.

Indeed, Americans are coming to Cuba in steadily increasing numbers, and Castro is using them to build a new image of himself in the United States.

After three days with the bearded Cuban president, Church left Cuba brimming with compliments for Castro. And reporters who traveled with the senator went home under the illusion that they had gained an understanding of the Castro phenomenon. At 51, Castro is turning gray. His belly is beginning to protrude over the web belt that supports a holstered 9-mm Russian automatic. He is still a magnetic, compelling figure, sustaining his revolutionary image by racing about in his jeep, pistol on his hip, AK-47 automatic rifle mounted on the jeep's instrument panel. The image is softened at close range, when the fatigue uniform turns out to be well-tailored from expensive fabric and the "combat boots" apparently are made of patent leather.

limousine is stocked with aged Cuban rum and a box of the long Cohiva cigars made especially for him and visiting dignitaries. As the easing of tensions between the United States and Cuba has progressed in recent months, Castro has developed a carefully planned routine for American visitors. Before getting down to serious talks he insists on taking his guests on an extensive tour of the countryside, giving himself an opportunity to perform for his visitors and the American press. About dusk one evening, Castro and the Churches, sipping rum as they rode along in the jeep, came to a railroad crossing that an elderly Cuban had been assigned to guard. The old man did not leave his shack to assure the Jeep that it was safe to cross the tracks, and he appeared stunned when the vehicle stopped and he recognized the driver.

"Shouldn't you check to see if a train is coming?" Castro asked

GENEVA (AP) - For many Third World diplomats, coming to Geneva to attend one of the hundreds of international conferences held here every year is like going to a class reunion.

Arab or Israeli, Iranian nobleman or African revolutionary, many of these politicians have at least one thing in common: they are alumni of the Graduate Institute of International Studies.

The institute, which has won admiration in developing countries, was founded in 1927. diplomats, economists and international lawyers.

The institute operates in both French and English, and its international orientation is reflected in the composition of its faculty and student body, which includes West and East Europeans, North and South Americans, and, making up at least one-quarter of the enrollment, Africans and Asians.

The regular teaching staff, a cosmopolitan group of scientists and development experts, is regularly scowls, shakes his jowls, supplemented by guest lecturers. The economic resources of the students are as varied as their national backgrounds. Flashy sports cars and rusting bicycles stand side by side in the institute's parking lot, and student attire ranges from sweatshirts to Christian Dior originals.

An African student who may aspire to his country's highest office will have to think twice before buying himself a $2 meal at a cheap bistro. But the story is also told of the young Iranian who lived for two years in a luxury hotel before settling in an ultra-chic residential area.

For most students, time spent at the institute is not only a passport to a career but is also an experience in international relations at the personal level.

As one Ivory Coast student put it, "The first lesson we learn at the institute is to leave all our prejudices in the lockerroom. We manage to bypass emotionally-keyed differences and get involved, instead, in really worthwhile discussions.

"We don't let events in the outside world influence our behavior although what most of us are studying. in fact, is that very outside world. But how else could Arab students study with an Israeli professor and Recently, vague echoes of student discontent have been heard at the institute. The student association wants greater participation at the administrative level and is complaining about the length of the doctoral program, which usually lasts six years. They are also concerned about the high dropout rate.

"For many of the Third World students, simply a year or two spent at the institute is thought enough to land them a job of prime minister when they return home." a Canadian student observed.

He indicated to an NBC correspondent recently that he would be available for a long interview. He has been interviewed by CBS and ABC in recent months, and Church jokingly told him he is becoming a matinee idol in the United States.

After hours of private talks with Castro, Church, a high-ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was effusive in complimenting the Castro wanted to discuss the U.S. foreign aid program and began quoting from a speech Church made five years ago, titled, "A Liberal says Good-bye to Foreign Aid.

Church said that talking with Castro was more like conversing with an engineer or a doctor than with a politician. He was impressed, he said, because Cstro expressed no bitterness over his experiences with the United States, not even mentioning the Central Intelligence Agency or its assassination plots against

"He has more facts and figures in his head than anyone I ever knew." Church told reporters. "I never met a national leader with a more intimate acquaintance with the programs of his government."

Although Castro stayed clear of Marxist dogma during his conversations, he did not keep off the subject of politics. Church said the Cuban leader displayed a keen appreciation of the political problems President Carter would confront if he moved rapidly to normalize relations with Cuba.

The new Panama Canal agreement, Castro observed, may well make it even more difficult for Carter to take new initiatives toward friendship with Havana

Sometimes the same thing can happen with another kind of view - when we look at ourselves, trying to find meaning and perspective in our own lives. For there are moments when we are at odds with the world and the ones we love, when we don't know where to turn next.

Well - how about turning to the Church? Just go to church even if you haven't gone for a long time, even if you've never gone. for that matter. Sit back and relax, and let yourself and your problems swing back into focus, there within God's House.

Christian musical scheduled

"Jesus Is Coming," a Christian musical by John W. Peterson, will be presented by singers and instrumentalists of Crestview Baptist Church at 8 p.m. Thursday.

The performance will be in the sanctuary of the church at North Midkiff Drive and Thomas street, adjacent to Dellwood Plaza, and will be open to the public at no charge. The production is directed by Ty Morris Jr., minister of music and youth at Crestview Church

'Jesus Is Coming' is a setting of New Testament scriptures concerning "last days" and the return of Christ to earth.

Midlanders participate

SAN ANTONIO - Seven young Midlanders were among participants at a recent Presbyterian Synod youth workshop on the campus of Trinity University here. They included Carla Cope, Martin Cope, Laura Hill, David Judd, Joe Lynch, Patricia Munson army huddling together, petrified. The poor Israelites were camped on one side of the brook with their worst enemy on the other side. The Philistines had a monster man named Goliath. Twice each day he would come out roaring, "Send one of your men to fight me. If he wins, we quit. If I win, we take over.'

Who would go? Answer: Nobody until David. The shepherd boy had three soldier brothers. He had come to bring them food and take a report back to his father. When David saw the situation, he said, "I can kill the giant with my trusty sling and one smooth stone

The king said, "You are only a young boy. There is no way you can do it." But David answered, "You can count on me, king. I can kill a lion, a wolf . a bear. I can drop an eagle in the air when it swoops down on one of my lambs. Don't be afraid. God will be with me.

In a very real sense it wasn't the stone which dropped Goliath. First, it was an idea in young David's head. Then it was a conviction in his heart that he could do it.

"Never fear, little Davie is here" sounds like braggadocio. Do you think Psychologists sound this note often: "Picture it in your mind the way you want it. Shape it. Plan it. Visualize." Their theme is an ancient theme of the Bible. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he.

conference Sept 23 through 25.

Planners say the conference is aimed at "taking stock of where we are in the quest for the unity of the church in the last quarter of this 'ecumenical century'.'' About 30 ecumenical leaders representing a variety of approaches to unity have been invited to attend sessions on the campus of Seton Hall University.

Focus of the discussions will be eight papers dealing with the theme. 'Ecumenical Convergence: The Way Ahead.'

Presenting the papers will be Prof. Albert Outler of Dallas, Prof. George Tavard of Delaware, Ohio, Dr. William Rusch of New York, the Rev. Lewis Wilkins of Nashville, Sister Ann Patrick Ware of New York, Bishop J. K. Matthews of Washington. D. C., Prof. J. Robert Nelson of Boston, and Dr. Gerald F. Moede of Princeton, N.

Dr. Moede, general secretary of the Consultation on Church Union, headquartered here, said a major purpose of the upcoming conclave is to examine the various strands of unity activity and see how they relate to one another. "The ecumenical movement needs a diversity of approaches." he noted, "but is there not also a need to begin to-examine the elements of a common goal, or at

The congress, which will be entirely in Spanish, will take place in El Paso Civic Center under auspices of the Roman Catholic Diocese of El Paso and its bishop, the Most. Rev. Sidney M. Metzger.

More than 3,000 Catholics are expected to participate in the three-day event, said the Rev. Robert Calles, coordinator

The Rev. Alfonso Navarro missionary priest of Mexico City, will be in charge of the congress, theme of which is "To Evangelize in the Spirit." He is well-known for his work in conducting evangelistic gatherings for the Spanish-speaking in Mexico and the Southwestern U.S. The teaching seminars and workshops for spiritual growth that will make up the congress will emphasize basic Christian concepts, with the aim of uniting all participants in Christian renewal through evangelization and growth in the word of God, planners

Cloud seeding sparks debate

UMBARGER, Tex. (AP) - Cloud seeding. Is it witchcraft or modern wizardry? The question has raised the hair on enough farmers' necks in West Texas and the Panhandle to get them to the polls.

Seeding operations began in the early 1970s. A California firm, Atmospherics Inc., began operating at Littlefield south of Amarillo. About the same time, Frank Moore, a Plainview farmer and rancher, helped launch Plains Weather Improvement Assn. Inc.

Moore said the seeding operations . were started in an effort to curtail the fierce hail storms that attack the

But Moore said other farmers soon began "raising hell" and accusing the firms of decreasing the area's annual rainfall as well.

The opposition gained enough strength to get the last session of the Texas Legislature to pass an amendment to the Weather Modifications Act. The amendment provides for local option elections on loudseeding. Moore says the farmers' fears are unfounded "Look, I've got irrigation (lands) but I'm a dry-land farmer too. Why would I do something to cut my own throat?" he asked. "I must be stupid as hell if that's the case. Moore said Plains Weather Improvement Inc. is a non-profit corporation that seeds only over areas where persons have paid. The operation's annual budget this year was $165,000.

'You know, we've been accused of just about everything," he said. "Why we've even had people say we fly up and hook onto a cloud and drag it off. Hell, this drought right now is everywhere. It goes plumb up to the Canadian border and on over to California. It's not anything we've

Superstition, however, is not a part of Nolan Hinson's arsenal. The cochairman of Citizens for Natural Weather is a former physics teacher at Texas Tech University. He works some 17,000 acres just south of Um-

Hinson said those favoring the seeding are primarily cotton farmers a fine mist rain where we can't."

And that is the problem. Hinson said the seeders tend to disipate the clouds so little more than rainy mists reach the ground, if that. During the summer heat, he said even the mist evaporates before it strikes the ground.

"In the past six years, the annual rainfall around here has decreased by 10 per cent," he said, adding that the figures were obtained from the National Weather Service. "They stopped (seeding) from May until June 2 and we had eight inches of rain through June 1. The rest of June, we had five showers totaling a quarter of

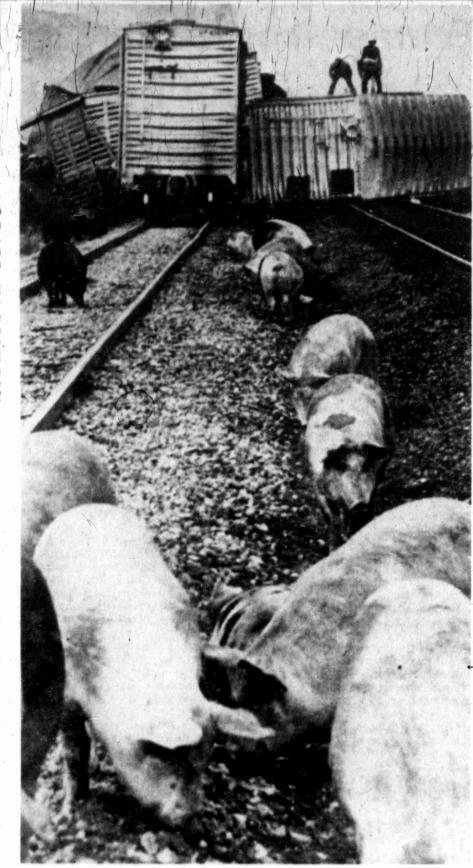

Midland attorney Harold Felder who represented the antiseeding forces before the Texas Water Development Board last June, said all or part of 13 northwest Texas counties are affected by the seeding operations.

The counties include Hale, Swisher, Castro, Floyd, Lubbock, Briscoe, Parmer, Deaf Smith, Randall, Hockley, Lamb, Crosby and Hockley. On July 30, Hinson said voters in Briscoe County's affected precincts turned down future seeding operations by a 430 to 3 vote. Elections will be conducted in Swisher, Randall and Lamb Counties Saturday but the results won't be official until tabulated in Austin. Still more elections will be held in Bailey, Castro and Floyd Counties next Tuesday. Hinson said about one-third of the area's rainfall comes from storms moving down from the North. The rest comes out of the mountains in New Mexico. It is this two-thirds that Hinson and others claim is being dried up by the seeders.

"We really didn't know what was going on until about three years ago.' he said. "A lot of people knew the rainfall had decreased. They'd see a cloud drift off and didn't know why...What we've had to do more than anything is educate a lot of people as to what was going on. Bunk, says Moore.

"People are against everything any more. They're even against motherhood. They say we do this and we do that. Next thing they'll say is

They broke up, and for the past five years Viviane has been on her own giving and organizing parties, traveling, doing free-lane publicity work and arranging celebrity trips for tourism bureaus of various countries. And during this time she has become friendly with the Arabs.

She had already made the connection years before when she became friends with Adnan Khashoggi, the fabled Arab entrepreneur. "I've known Adnan Khasoggi for 12 years," she says. "He's incredible, a wonderful human being. I came to Washington for President Nixon's inauguration with Khashoggi. We had real first-class treatment. We met all the celebrities and all the VIP's. We met (Washington, D.C., mayor) Walter Washington.

It was through Khashoggi, she says, that she first went to Beirut. habits of the Arabs," she says. "I liked what I saw. That was long before the oil boom.

And then, several years ago, she took a trip down the Nile. "I loved Egypt," she says. "I believe I'm the total reincarnation of Nefertiti."

That trip, she says, "actually changed my entire life. It made me realize that one should return to basics. With all this jetting around, one does sort of lose touch. Now I make it a thing to make two trips a year under extraordinary circumstances to extaordinary places."

Through that trip, through her jetset friends who move in and out of London, through her winter trips to Morocco, her summers in Marbella and her frequent trips to Paris, she began meeting a lot of sophisticated Arabs

"I've always liked them, always been friends with them ever since they've been 'in'," she says. "I remember my friends saying that if you're having any Arabs to dinner. forget it. Now the same people can't beg me enough to have them over with my Arab friends.'

"It could be," she says, "that I have an affinity for the Arabs and obviously since the oil boom everything has changed financially for us in London. The Arabs are totally different. They have different customs. I find it all very fascinating. I have been studying Arab recently. I had a teacher come to my house every day for two hours recently. Unfortunately, though speak fluent English, French, Spanish, Italian and German, Arabic is one of my less fluent languages. But I certainly speak it well.

"I love Khalil Gibran," says Viviane. "He is one of my favorite writers. And 'The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam' is absolutely my bible. I'm very ethereal. I love fantasy and I'm into mysticism.

Viviane thinks that one of the problems the Arabs are having in London is that "basically the English are snobs. It is deep-rooted in them. They colonized three-fourths of the world. So I'm very glad to see the Arabs here. They have saved the economy, although," she says with a slight wince, "I think the prices have gone up because of them. Everything is a lot more expensive than it used to be.

'You know," she says, warming to her subject, "there are very few permanent Arabs here in London. All the women try to get pregnant in the fall so that they can come here in the summer and have their babies. The Arab men are all big doers, big businessmen. They're on the move. I like them. I really do. They're so polite and they treat women very kindly and very generously. That's their tradition. We have no right to put it down."

She becomes somewhat heated now. "The Arabs believe that our way of life (for women) is sinful, disgusting, liberated. To them, they are the ones who are civilized. They point to all this marriage and divorce and children of broken homes. And look at the mess we're in. The Arab men have four wives, all equally treated, all treated at the same level, all the women are on the same standing. Don't you wish you could live that way, that it could happen in our

She is sitting up now, her eyes wide with excitement, as she gets more and more wound up. "You know, monogamy is a bad state for men. In theory it is great but in practice it doesn't work.

'The point of the whole thing is to keep the man's temperament happy. And women just don't mind monogamy.

Now she falls back on her pillows and looks dreamily away, drifting off into her own reverie. "I wish I had a husband I could spend the day getting ready for. It's a man's world whether we like it or not. I hope it will remain that way. I long for a man to take care of me. Someone like Sheik Yamani. Why that woman's husband is one of the most powerful men in the world. 'Through him I started learning the Why should she ever want to be anything other than his wife? If I had a husband like that I'd be on my bended knees to this man."

She says that basically she likes very strong, powerful men. "I find that very attractive. I'm a pretty strong person myself. But I like to be able to feel weak. I like men in important places. I admire people who finally get somewhere. I relate to it. Notoriety, to be famous, it all works into one shell. I like doers, goers. I'm a very loyal friend. Even people who've had a bad break professionally. I'm loyal to them. I remember what they were. "It's been four years, five almost," says Viviane, "since John Bentley and I broke up. I've never latched on to anyone. I've never been in love since. It's very difficult to fall in love. I've obviously had sort of romances since then. I guess I've really kept busy. It does get lonely at night.

But that doesn't seem likely to happen to her any time soon and she seems resigned to it.

She grows quiet for a moment, then as though trying to infuse her body with renewed energy and optimism, she returns to her favorite subject:

"What I like is their training to treat women. You can't just push that button on and off.

But she can't shake off her gloom. She looks up dejectedly and says, "They rarely end up marrying European women, though."

Steel price lowered in battle with imports

HOUSTON (AP) - Armco Steel Corp. says it will start offering discounts today averaging $30 per ton on locally produced structural steels to combat record steel imports.

Paul Babb, general sales manager for Armco's Houstonbased Western Division, said the program is being adopted in an effort to save the jobs of about five per cent of the division's work force. Full employment is about Armco announced last week it is again closing its line pipe operations here, which affects about 250 jobs. The shutdown was blamed in part on Armco's losing a major order to a Japanese competitor.

South Vietnamese refugees find life in United States difficult

By VU THUY HOANG The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - A medical doctor who used to perform surgery in a Vietnamese Navy hospital has worked at Clin Lab Medical Services in Falls Church, Va., for $3 an hour.

An attorney with 15 years of experience who speaks French flawlessly has been employed as a cashier at the gazebo in the Washington Hilton Hotel.

The doctor and the attorney are not eccentrics, doing the jobs for charity or for fun.

They are Vietnamese refugees who came to the United States after the collapse of South Vietnam more than two years ago.

Like many other refugees, the doctor and the attorney have had difficulties finding work suitable to their abilities. Although they were trained professionals at home, they are struggling to survive in a country still almost completely unfamiliar to them. Chu Ba Hoc, the bespectacled doctor, has wrestled with English, the barrier to his aspirations to practice medicine here. He passed the medical examination a year ago, but says he took the English test "five times in the past 18 months" before finally passing it. He forced a smile during an interview in his sparsely furnished apartment in Arlington, Va.

"English is tougher than I thought," he said. "The listening comprehension is really a challenge to

A father of two small boys, Hoc, 36, works as a laboratory technician at the lab from 2 to 10 p.m. and attends English courses at the Northern Virginia Community College in the mornings. "He has studied hard at school and at home, listening to the tape laboriously, but his bright star did not rise up early," his wife said. According to her, "he jumped up in elation" the day following Independence Day when he learned he had passed the English test.

Of 482 Indochinese physicians, nearly three-fifths AKRON, Ohio have failed the English test, while only one-fifth have not passed the medical examination, according to the June 1977, report from HEW's Task Forge for Indochina Refugees.

Medical and English examinations are required year. The fraternity was for certificates from the Education Commission for Foreign Medical Graduates, which foreign physicians must have to start on the "long road," as Hoc put it, to get a license to practice medicine in the United States. Without the certificate, physicians cannot be admitted as interns in a medical school or hospital. It takes at least three to five years depending on specialty or state regulations — to pass examinations for medical practice.

Hoc's former colleague, Phan Quang Cuong, passed both the medical and English examinations six months ago, yet he is no luckier. He has sent "more than 100" applications with resumes to medical colleges and hospitals. All answered that "all agencies were filled up," Cuong, 28, said in an interview. He said he believes it is "too late" for him to be admitted for the academic year, 1977-78. But he hopes to find a place for the next year. According to Cuong, about half of his friends who got the certificate last year were admitted to colleges or hospitals.

To support his wife and 3-year-old son, Cuong has worked temporarily at the lab as an attendant.

Despite difficulties. Vietnamese medical graduates have a better chance of returning to their original careers than other refugees. For other professionals, the qualifications they earned in Vietnam are unsuitable, or useless in some cases, in this highly advanced and industrialized nation.

Vietnamese lawyers are among those who have the most problems. Some are employed in law firms, doing research or clerical work. Others change careers. A former judge has become an automobile mechanic in Falls Church, Va.

Nguyen Cong Hoang, 42, who has 15 years of experience in his profession, does not dream of being an attorney in the United States. Vietnamese and U.S. judiciary systems are very different, said the mustached attorney-turned-cashier at a Washington hotel. Furthermore, to practice law here, "we must have an excellent command of English, which cannot be achieved in some years, but in decades," Hoang

Other refugees find that their training and experience in Vietnam are not useful here. Tran Huu Triet. 37. a former civil servant, said that he had teased his former professor in public administration that "your teachings and lectures are gone with the wind now. I would have been better, had I studied English instead." Triet worked at a tire plant in Lebanon, Pa., for several months before moving to Arlington last year. He landed a job at the National Recreation and Park Association four months ago, after being trained in clerical work at the Arlington Career Center.

Career centers and voluntary agencies, as well as American friends, are important factors in helping the refugees find employment. The exiles contend that the chances of being hired are limited for those without American references.

A graduate of Harvard University and former recommendations from the instructor. assistant cabinet minister in Vietnam, Vu Khac Dung, remarked over a dinner with friends that highlevel experience with the Vietnamese government is Nguyen Khoa, a medical graduate, credited his "American long-time acquaintance" with helping him find employment first at a hospital in a New Jersey some months after his arrival in the United States, and later to gain admission to George Washington Medical School.

MC's music staff grows

Donald Wayne Haddad has been appointed as the second fulltime instructor in the music department at Midland College, Dr. Al G. Langford, president, announced Friday.

Haddad had been an assistant professor of music at the University of Kentucky and has judged local and regional band and solo contests. 'I feel we are very fortunate to obtain the services and the expertise of Don Haddad. He adds greatly to the stature of our new music department," Langford said. The music department was started in September 1976. Haddad received his bachelor's and master of fine arts degrees from the University of Ohio and has done graduate study at the University of Colorado.

WASHINGTON - Women workers

National Science Foundation. The series of studies, which have been going on since 1965, has culminated in a book written by one of the researchers, John P. Robinson, a communications professor at Cleveland State University.

"It seems employers are getting a more of women's work investments than men's," he said. That's not all. When working women go home, according to the study, things get worse. The average working wife spends 25 hours a week doing housework - in addition to her job. Her husband works around the house 10 hours or so In addition, the wife must content herself with the dull jobs at home. 'We've found the routine tasks are considered women's problems." said Robinson, "while the decision-making stuff, the balancing of the checkbook and so on, is left to the men. Then, too, there's time spent with the children. Women's time is "custodial," meaning it consists mainly of washing and feeding youngsters. Men's time with their children is "interactional." or playtime

If this is not surprising to you, that may be because you are a woman. The study. Robinson pointed out; is one of perception and not necessarily reality. People keeping diaries, in his words, "may have gilded the lily a

For instance, women see themselves as working 12 per cent harder than men see themselves working, according to a formula used in the study.

Women with both children and jobs see themselves as nearly twice as harassed as women with no children and no job.

The strange thing about the study, according to Robinson, is that women don't seem to mind

For instance, according to Robinson, women may do more housework because they don't like the way their husbands do it.

"In our interviews, we had accounts where men try to help and get rebuffed." said Robinson, "something like the idea of territoriality. Too, the study found that women do

Chinese tunnel webs built in many cities

TOKYO (AP) — China said Friday its workers have dug a network of well-supplied tunnels in many cities as shelters against attack, "an underground Great Wall that no invaders can breach.

The tunnel complexes were built "in line with Chairman Mao Tsetung's teachings: 'Be prepared against war' and 'Dig tunnels deep," said Peking's official Hsinhua news agency.

The agency said the elaborate tunnels are equipped with ventilators. drainage, power and water supply and other facilities, and some house factories, shops, hospitals and theaters. They would serve both as shelters and as fortifications for mass resistance to an invasion.

The Hsinhua report, monitored here, said underground shelters have been built in Peking shopping centers and in neighborhoods by members of factory, school and government organizations.

The shelter in Peking's Tashanlan shopping center has spacious eating facilities and an auditorium seating several hundred, the report said.

"Many foreign friends have visited" the shelter, which is "a link of the citywide network of underground tunnels," Hsinhua said.

Tunnel builders of all ages "share the common belief: 'Chairman Mao's idea of people's war is our effective weapon by which we can defeat the enemy and win victory. We will build an underground Great Wall that no invaders can breach." Hsinhua said.

It has been known for some time that the Chinese were digging tunnels as part of their civilian defense system. In the 1930s and 1940s, caves and tunnels were used extensively by the Chinese in the war against the Japanese.

CIA believes nuclear bomb material diverted

By JIM ADAMS

WASHINGTON (AP) - Central Intelligence Agency investigators say they're convinced that U.S. nuclear bomb-making material was diverted to Israel but they can't prove it, sources said Friday

One congressional source said the CIA's "circumstantial evidence is really overwhelming but (they can't) take it the final step and prove it in acourt of law.'

The source said the CIA investigators came to their conclusion despite a government finding in 1966 that there is no proof of such a diversion.

The CIA's evidence is based on "deductive analysis" of a web of relationships and activities that have convinced the CIA investigators that a Pennsylvania firm diverted the nuclear material, the source said.

The Israeli government has denied knowledge of any such diversion.

House investigators are trying to find out first whether the material was diverted to Israel and, if it was, whether the U.S. government might have been involved

The bomb material-diverting allegations were triggered by a finding in 1965 that the Nuclear Materials and Equipment Corp. at Apollo, Pa., near Pittsburgh could not account for 382 pounds of enriched

It takes about 22 pounds of such uranium to make a bomb.

The company contended the material was simply lost in pipes and refuse over a number of years.

The Atomic Energy Commission announced then that on the basis of investigations by its own staff and the FBI, plus information turned over by intelligence agencies, that there was no conclusive proof the material had been diverted.

Men, married and single, spend 42 minutes weekly in church or Women surveyed found "much satisfaction" in religion on the whole, while men found "some satisfaction

University of Michigan economists Frank Stafford and Greg Duncan, who worked with Robinson on the study, also found that the higher the monthly income of individuals, the more break time they took while on

High-wage earners, young people, operatives and craftsmen spent the most time in coffee breaks and the like, while unmarried women, parttime employes, union members, and professionals expended the most effort on the job. Married men expended a bit more effort at work than did unmarried men, but they also took a little more time off for breaks.

Krueger due in Lamesa

LAMESA - U. S. Rep. Bob Krueger will arrive in Lamesa at 2:15 p.m. today as part of his campaign tour of West Texas in his bid for a seat in the U.S. Senate.

Krueger will leave Lamesa at 3:15 p.m. and will go to Big Spring at 4 p.m. for a three-hour visit.

Krueger has promised to visit all areas of the state before the election. During the month-long congressional recess he will visit 77 towns and make 130 stops.

CROWNED first place winner in the Presentation of Black Beauties beauty pageant in Austin recently was Carla Debose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Debose of Midland. The pageant was held during the State Meeting of Black Women's Clubs. Miss Debose won the local and regional competitons last spring. As the state winner, she will make personal appearances for girls' clubs toughout the state.

Cubs return in 1st place

Midland's Cubs return home tonight the final two games: to face the Amarillo Gold Sox in first place by .003 percentage points after Andy Muhlstock stopped the El Paso Diablos on seven hits, 5-2, in El Paso Friday night.

Righthander Darrell Turner, 12-6, hopes to keep the Cubs on top of the Texas League West Division when he takes the mound against the Gold Sox at 7:30 p.m. today to open the fivegame series at Cubs Stadium.

Midland went into El Paso leading the West, but lost three straight to fall out of first before coming back to win

For Muhlstock, it was his fifth straight win and in the process he snapped a couple of hitting streaks, 24 games for the Diablos Tommy Smith and 11 for Pat Kelly.

ALTHOUGH EL Paso reeled off three double plays in the first four innings, the Cubs took a four-run leading, scoring twice in the first and twice in the fourth.

Kurt Seibert, playing shortstop as Steve Davis, missing his first game of the year, was sidelined with an injury, on Jimmy Buckner's double. Mike Umfleet singled Buckner to third where a wild pitch by Dave Steck, 2-3, let the run come home.

In the fourth, Aaron Randall tripled. Tony Pepper grounded to first and was safe when the play went home as Randall remained at third. Duane Gustavson then singled in a run and Seibert singled to score

SEIBERT'S HIT knocked Steck out of the box and he was replaced by Carlos Perez who retired 10 of 11

walked to open the game and scored batters during one stretch before running into trouble in the ninth. Pepper singled, moved to second on a sacrifice by Gustavson and scored when Buckner singled to right. Rightfielder Jay Peters' throw actually had Pepper out at the plate by a couple of steps, but Pepper knocked the ball loose in an earth-quaking collision that left both Tony and catcher Terry Stupy dazed

A crowd of 4,133 fans, smallest of the series, was on hand for the Dudley Field game.

CUBPRINTS - Pepper and Buckner each had three hits to pace Midland'o 11-hit attack...The Cubs have won seven in a row over Amarillo and 13 of the last 16 between the two clubs.

Lee Booster Club meets

The Lee High Booster Club will hold an organizational meeting Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Lee High cafeteria.

All Rebel boosters are urged to attend this important meeting. The primary purpose of the gathering will be to discuss the pre-season scrimmage with Clovis, N.M., scheduled for Friday, August 26, at Chapman Field in Lubbock.

Final arrangements for the Maroon and White Day chicken dinner planned for Saturday, August 27, as well as the season's activities will also Midiand Cubs catcher Duane Gustavson has been on a hitting binge since July 18, collecting 24 hits in 64 trips for a .375 average, raising his season's mark to .296.

ACREE WENT on to say that his athletes were ready to get into pads and are looking forward to a scrimmage with Clovis, N.M., next Friday evening in Lubbock.

The Lee-Clovis scrimmage will start at 5 p.m. with the two junior varsity teams and the varsity teams to follow suit at 7 p.m. at Chapman Field which is on the Lubbock High School campus.

Lee has 23 returning lettermen, but that is somewhat deceiving in that Acree lettered everybody when his Rebels won the 5-4A crown last year. Lee Medley, Brent Bates amd Jerry bubble gum and a calm night," the 16-year-old explains. (AP Laserphoto).

John Marks, Jeff McCoxan, Marvin Iglehart and Todd Clements all have looked quick in workouts in the Rebel

TIGHT END Doug Guthrie is up to 194 pounds and also has shown quickness on offence and at a linebacker slot

Bates and Medley are expected to be starters at linebacker this season for the Maroon Platoon.

Moore is a running back and an kicker for Lee.

Coach Jerry Hopkins and his staff at Midland High are pleased with the condition of the Bulldogs and they will have plenty of size this year.

Ricky Goode, a 220-pound senior heads returning lettermen this year. He has been switched to center on offense and will still play nose guard on the defensive unit Midland consumed 500 pounds of ice in one day of drills on Monday while going through drills.

The Bulldogs eagerly went full steam in Friday's first drill in pads and they seemed to please Hopkins.

'WE ARE pleased with the physical condition of the team and are looking forward to a good season in 1977, "said Hopkins.

Midland travels to Snyder next Friday for a scrimmage with the at 5 p.m. followed by the varsity scrimmage at 7 p.m.

Goode is a two-year letterman and is a definite all-district and all-state candidate for the Pack.

Quarterback Doug Atnipp has looked good along with backs Brently Jackson, Alvin Price and Walter Brysom

There are three new varsity coaches this year with Eddie Howell replacing Ted Harris at MHS. Howell played football at Sonora and lettered four years. He also lettered three years in basketball and three years in track and played for Hopkins when he was head coach there. LEE HAS two new varsity coaches in Tommy Ratliff and Aubrey Schultz.

Ratliff replaces Val Osborne who went into private business while Class AAA Tigers. The JVs will start. Schultz takes the place of Julian Bush who accepted a similar post in Austin.

Schultz coached at DeSoto High School last year where it had an 8-2 record and graduated from Baylor University in 1975.

Ratliff is a McMurry College graduate and played his high school football at Hobbs, N M. He coached laat year at Coleman High School which wound up with a 7-3 record.

Both Lee and Midland will continue drills twice a day until school opens,

Dorsett can wait, flag fever rages

Just when Big D and most of Texas was trembling in can'twait anticipation of what a Tony Dor-SETT could mean to the Dallas Cowboys, a few miles west an unexpected storm that began to brew in July swept into August and grabbed the state by the lapels and shook it for attention.

While some of the lustre of Dorsett's coming was delayed by a nagging knee injury, the Texas Rangers, who only two months earlier had been the butt of rude jokes over their game of managerial chairs, so cruel that owner Brad Corbett threatened to sell the club, suddenly was leading the American League West and playing the hottest brand of major league baseball this side of the Philadelphia

THE EXCITEMENT the Rangers have kindled in the Dallas-Fort Worth area was no better illustrated than last weekend when the club set a record with two better than 35,000 crowds back-to-back. And then, despite threatening skies, made it 101,000, another all-time Rangers' mark, for the three game series with the Chicago White Sox.

Perhaps the crowds were sedate by Comiskey Park standards, but baseball-blase fans in Texas learn fast.

In urging their Rangers to two out of three over the Sox, the springboard from which they leaped into first place this week. they roared at every pitch, serenaded the Sox with their own famed Na-Na Good Bye chant and even took a leaf from the old Ebbets Field rowdies of long ago by adopting a rookie outfielder as the People's Choice.

AND, APPROPRIATELY enough, perhaps, their late inning rallying-call is a rousing rendition of the William Tell Overture, "made famous" by an old-time radio serial about a cowboy and his faithful Indian. Out in the bleaehers when the tune is played, one fan, wearing a white hat, black eye mask and cowboy outfit stands up and twirls a lasso. In short, where Super Bowl fever is festering, pennant fever is running rampant.

When injuries left the Rangers short of able-bodied outfield hands, they summoned Keith Smith, an unknown whom they had once released, from Tucson and the left field fans immediately adopted him as their

They had sufficient reason. He saved one game with a couple of great catches against Kansas City the night before the White Sox arrived, beat the Sox with a three-run homer in the eighth inning of another game and climbed the wall at the foul line to snatch another game from record of 144-47-5

The teams have met only twice previously with Dallas beating the Dolphins 24-3 in Super Bowl VI and Miami tripping the Cowboys 14-7 on Thanksgiving Day, 1973.

MIAMI OWNS a 2-0 exhibition mark and the Dolphins have captured their last 10 preseason games and 15 of their last 16.

Dallas is 1-1 with a victory over San Diego and a loss to Seattle.

The Dolphins have thumped Tampa Bay and Washington.

Some 50,000 to 55,000 fans are expected to see if Landry unleashes million dollar rookie Tony Dorsett, who missed last week's game with a sore knee

"He may play a little but even at that it won't be more than one quarter," says Landry, "I'll go by feel . I'm not going to put him in too quick."

Dorsett impressed in the Cowboy opener against San Diego with 27 yards on 6 carries. He also flashed his broken field running with 15 yard a screen pass.

THE COWBOYS will continue their shuffle of former Outland Trophy winner Randy White in the game. White, a No. 1 draft choice three years ago, has been moved from linebacker to down lineman. The Cowboys abandoned plans for him to be a middle linebacker then decided to move him again after he had played two preseason games at strongside linebacker.

Miami goes into the game with possible problems in its kicking corps. Both placekickers, veteran Garo Yepremian and fifth round draft choice Mike Michel have pulled leg

That means either quarterbck Don Strock or running back Norm Bulaich will kick extra points and field goals. Strock will start at quarterback with Bob Griese as a backup. For the Cowboys, it will be Roger Staubach at quarterback in the first half and Danny White the rest of the

Sipe passes Browns over St. Louis, 19-10

Brian Sipe passed for two touchdowns to lead the Cleveland Browns to a 19-10 National Footbail League preseason victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night.

Sipe, playing the first three periods, connected on 13 of 20 passing attempts for 163 yards to help the Browns post their first preseason victory in three

The Cardinals, now winless in three

CLEVELAND (AP) - Quarterback starts, moved into a 3-0 lead on a 35yard field goal by Jim Bakken. That capped a 17-play drive that ate up much of the initial period.

The Browns then took the lead for good on a lightening-quick score as Sipe passed to Larry Poole for three yards, fired a 45-yard strike to Reggie Rucker and Poole barreled across from the 10 for the touchdown.

Don Cockroft, who later missed a pair of extra point conversions, made it 7-0 with 2:47 left in the quarter.

Glance, Leonard meet at last in World Games

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Silvio Leonard of Cuba and Harvey Glance of the United States, two of the world's top sprinters, were to face each other tonight in the featured 100meter dash at the World University

Leonard, 21, nearly broke American Jim Hines' nine-year-old world record earlier this month with a 9.98 electronic clocking in Mexico.

He is only the second runner in history to break the 10-second barrier with an electronic clocking. Hines was the first to do it, setting the world record of 9.95 at the 1968 Mexico City

Jim Wiechers, playing so poorly he's considering leaving the tour, oneoutted 10 times on his way to a fourunder-par 67 that lifted him into a seven-way tie for the second round lead Friday in the $300,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

He shared the top spot with Tom Weiskopf, veteran Miller Barber, Leonard Thompson, Howard Twitty. Rod Curl and former Masters champion Charles Coody, all at 135 after two trips over the tight, hilly, 6,603 yard Westchester Country Club

Their seven-under-par totals provided the largest number of players tied for the lead in a Tour event since mine men shared the first round lead in the 1969 PGA National Champion-

"I'VE PLAYED so poorly the last couple of years, I've reached the point I have to make a decision about what I'm going to do," the husky, 32- yearold Wiechers said. "At the end of this season, I'm going to have to sit down and really consider what to do with my life - whether to continue with golf or go on to something else."

He's won less than expenses, only $13,000, in the last two seasons but now has a shot at a $60,000 first prize halfway through this event.

NY Cosmos to tackle Lancers

By The Associated Press

After compiling only a 15-11 regular-season record with a bevy of highly-paid international stars, the Cosmos are finally learning to play Jay together in the North American Soccer League playoffs.

And that spells trouble for the other three teams still alive in the NASL playoff series that culminates with the Soceer Bowl final in Portland,

The Cosmos take on the Rochester Lancers Sunday in Rochester in the first round of the Atlantic Conference finals, while the Los Angeles Aztecs host the Seattle Sounders Sunday night in the Pacific Conference. Both conference championship series are for two games, with a sudden death playoff after the second game if each team wins one game. "We're still not the closest bunch of guys." says Cosmos goalie Shep Messing, a hero in Wednesday night's 3-2 playoff victory over the Fort Lauderdale Strikers, who finished ahead of the Cosmos during the regular season with a 19-7 record in the Eastern Division. "But we've got a different attitude," Messing added. "We were playing like crap for all those fans that showed up to watch us ... We're embarrassed that we finished in second place.'

Earlier this season, the Cosmos had little cohesiveness despite stars like Pele of Brazil, NASL Most Valuable Player Franz Beckenbauer of West Germany and Giorgio Chinaglia of tournament, a seven-under-par 64. Thompson shot a 66, Curl 67, Coody and Twitty 68s and Barber a 69.

Just one shot back of the leaders at 136 were Andy North, George Burns and South African Bobby Cole. Burns and Cole shot 66s on the course that often produces some of the lowest scores on the tour and North had a 70. At 137 were Andy Bean, Forrest Fezler, Bill Kratzert and Mac McLendon. Bean and McLendon had 66s in the mild, hazy weather, Fezler 67 and Kratzert 68.

THAT PUT 14 men locked within two shots of each other at the top. Aside from Weiskopf, however, the glamor names weren't among them. The two men who played off for the PGA National Championship at Pebble Beach, Calif. last weekend both missed the cut for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday. Winner Lanny Wadkins had 77-152 and Gene Littler was 73-150

Weary Jack Nicklaus just made it at 145 after a second round 74. Johnny Miller and Tom Watson, winner of both the British Open and Masters, both improved and were four shots back of the pack of leaders at 139. Miller had a 66 and Watson a 68. Watson, however, said he played poorly, was "frustrated, and I have no hope of winning playing the way I am now."

they sent the kid back down until September. It gave them a couple of days to soothe the feelings of upset fans.

Admiring a cake presented to him by fans in the dugout before a game last weekend, Smith, who does look awkward at times retreating on a fly ball, couldn't understand the reaction to his fielding

"I CAN play defense. I worked hard at it this year. I'll admit in the years before I didn't play too well defensively," he protested.

"I was having a good year at the plate in Tucson, 17 homers and .326 before I was called up and it's not that much different up here. As far as jumping into the middle of a pennant race, it hasn't made me feel nervous. Once you are up at the plate, you don't have time to get butterflies. Kurt Bevacqua came by to drool over Smith's cake and a larger one presented to the Rangers' team. It was a baseball diamond complete with miniature players and inscribed to the American League champions of 1977. It was put in the freezer to be removed when the pennant became fact. Bevacqua came up before

Smith and when the subject came around to batting averages, Kurt showed, despite a .400-plus average with the Rangers, part of his heart was still back in

"Am I still leading that league in hitting," he asked Smith, "I'd sure like to win that title. I understand the Coast League gives a real nice trophy to the batting champ

Just to show how things are going for the Rangers these days, later in the game, Mike Hargrove whacked a drive off his leg and had to retire. It looked like a costly blow since Mike hit three homers in the series.

Bevacqua filled in by merely hitting two doubles.

Austin seizes lead

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Debbie Austin, the surprise success story of the 1977 ladies' pro golf tour, riddled Oglebay Park's difficult Speidel course for a five-under-par 67 Friday and took a three-shot lead in the first round of the $50,000 Wheeling LPGA

Rolling in three birdie putts of 20 feet or more, Mass Austin overcame a potentially disastrous double bogey on the difficult 195-yard, par-three 11th hole in shooting the third best round in the four-year history of the Wheeling tournament.

Joyce Kazmierski, a non-winner during nine years on the tour, had a two-under 70 for second place.
