Senate majority leader says Lance resignation inevitable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director Bert Lance's resignation is "inevitable" because his effectiveness has been destroyed and it's impossible for him to regain his credibility, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said Saturday.

Byrd, assessing the political impact of disclosures about Lance's finances, also said that any "slippage" in Carter's standing with the public or with Congress because of the Lance case can be repaired unless the situation is allowed to drag on.

"Mr. Lance's effectiveness has been destroyed," he said during his regular Saturday news conference. "The cloud of suspicion is continuing to broaden and it will not be possible for him to regain his credibility.

"It is inevitable that he will resign. I think he should have his say before the (Senate Governmental Affairs) committee on Thursday and then resign."

Carter, campaigning Saturday in New Jersey for Gov. Brendan Byrne, said he respects Byrd's opinion. "But I agree with him that Bert also should have a chance to explain his position," Carter said.

The President also said he was unaware of most of Lance's financial affairs before he nominated Lance to be budget director.

"The only thing that I knew was that he had a problem in the 1974 campaign and it had been resolved," Carter said. This apparently referred to checking account overdrafts incurred by Lance's campaign committee during Lance's unsuccessful run for governor of Georgia.

Carter said he will hold a news conference Wednesday to talk about the Lance case.

Lance will appear before the Senate committee to explain financial transactions described in reports by the Comptroller of the Currency and the Internal Revenue Service and in other investigations.

The same committee confirmed his nomination last January as director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Federal bank examiners have been looking into Lance's overdrafts of checking accounts at banks he headed and at loans he received from large banks that received interest-free deposits from Lance's banks.

Byrd declined to characterize Lance's finances.

Byrd said allegations that the news media have treated Lance unfairly are "inevitable."

"I think the press has a responsibility to investigate and report and I think it has fulfilled its responsibility in this instance," he said.

Paralyzed man identifies Davis

By MIKE COCHRAN

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Gus Gavrel hobbled into a courtroom on crutches Saturday and in a chilling monotone identified Cullen Davis as the "man in black" who gunned him down one incredible summer night in 1976.

Gavrel, 22, partially paralyzed as a result of the midnight carnage, said it was Davis who wordlessly and without warning fired a single shot that struck him below the rib cage.

"It felt like a horse kicking me in the chest," he said.

The muscular, brown-haired witness said he "played dead" as the black-clad gunman later strode past him, looked down and said: "Oh, my God!"

A hushed courtroom and a suddenly attentive jury listened in silent fascination as Gavrel, asked to point out the gunman, solemnly looked at the unblinking Davis and said:

"He's the man sitting beside Mr. (Phil) Burleson and the gentleman with the blond hair."

Davis, 43, is on trial for capital murder in the Aug. 2, 1976, slaying of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn.

The millionaire Fort Worth industrialist is accused also of wounding Gavrel and Davis' estranged wife, Priscilla, and killing her live-in lover, Stan Farr, 30.

Mrs. Davis, the state's star witness, previously named her husband as the gunman who triggered the savage attack at Davis' palatial mansion on Fort Worth's west side.

Gavrel told the jury he "heard a woman screaming" upon arrival at the Davis mansion that evening.

As he stepped from his car with a date, Beverly Bass, he said he heard a woman's voice saying, "I love you. I've always loved you."

A man was telling her, "Come on, come on," he continued.

He said the man was dragging the woman up a walkway toward the mansion, but he did not at that time recognize either of them.

"What are you doing? What's going on?" Gavrel said he asked the man.

"Come on inside," he said he was told.

Gavrel said they moved down a darkened walkway and when the man stepped into a lighted area, Miss Bass turned to him and said, "Bubba, that's Cullen."

"What happened next?" prosecutor Joe Shannon asked.

"He turned around and shot me," Gavrel replied.

Gavrel said he fell down and then tried to get up, but could not, adding, "Nothing worked from my waist down."

He said the gunman chased Miss

'Comments' crop up with talk of profit

Charlie Green was wrapping things up with words in the closing moments of a Midland County farm-and-ranch tour.

He was talking about this 'n that when another Charlie, Charlie Welch, tried to get in a word or two edgewise.

About 80 folks, including some city types, were listening to the wrap-up of the morning tour.

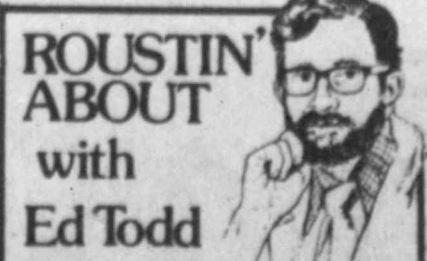

"Tell 'em, tell 'em . . . about the end result" of all this farming and ranching, farmer-stockman Welch told County Agricultural Agent Green.

Welch cued in the other Charlie.

"The end result," Welch hastened to say, " . . . is cheaper food and fiber for the consumer."

That remark somewhat startled some of the folks who are in agriculture not only because they like it but for a fair profit.

"What worries me is it (food and fiber) being available," Greenwood farmer-rancher Alvey Bryant commented at back of the crowd.

Neither Charlie could hear. Mickey Cappadonna picked up on Bryant's candor.

He said he was concerned about "enough profit"

Back up front, Charlie Green grabbed hold of the other Charlie's suggestion.

But you would have thought he somehow overheard the Bryant-Cappadonna exchange on availability and profit.

Well, the county agent told the folks

Septemberfest lures 200 persons per hour

About 200 persons per hour were filing through the ticket booth for a hot, but fun, and artsy Septemberfest Saturday afternoon.

Glassblowing, pottery, paintings, hand puppets, cotton candy, ball toss and face painting were among the attractions on the grounds of the Museum of the Southwest.

Today is the final day of the three-day festivity and the gates of Septemberfest open at noon and will remain open to 6 p.m.

Among the displays was a glassblowing display and a kiln from the Midland Crafts Alliance.

"We decided to get this thing together last (Friday) night to see what interest there was in forming an association of Midland artists," said Jack Hickman, one of the organizers.

What the crafts alliance has in mind is possibly forming a co-op for buying material, like clay, and having people with artistic know-how critique the work of others, Hickman said.

Many exhibitors reported Saturday was terrifically successful for them and others could not be reached for comment because of the crowd around their stands.

City gets best rain in months

Midland received the best rain Saturday that the parched Tall City has experienced in at least two months.

While the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal recorded .08 inch of precipitation, unofficial reports within the city indicated up to .25 inch may have fallen in some areas.

Streets carried water in the downtown area, and Wadley Avenue, a useful barometer of rainfall for northside residents, indicated substantial precipitation.

Rankin, Big Lake and Big Spring also reported rain Saturday. Andrews, Lamesa, Crane and Stanton experienced clear to partly cloudy skies and no rain.

Although thunderstorms remained in the area late Saturday night, the official forecast contained no mention of rain.

Saturday was another hot day with the mercury reaching 96. The overnight low had been 66.

Local group will use March of Dimes funds

When Midlanders contribute to the March of Dimes this year, part of the money will be used in Midland, said James R. Shelton, chairman of the board of the newly-formed Midland chapter of the March of Dimes.

Kathleen L. Adkin has been employed as executive director of the new organization.

Shelton said the Midland group split off from the seven-county Permian Basin chapter "now that we have someone who is a real pro in looking after March of Dimes affairs."

Mrs. Adkin was employed three years by the Dallas chapter of March of Dimes.

Mrs. Adkin was employed three years by the Dallas chapter of March of Dimes.

The purpose of the March of Dimes is to try to prevent birth defects, through efforts before and after birth. "So much can be done in the first few hours after birth to prevent birth defects, Mrs. Adkin said.

Forty per cent of money raised in Midland this year will be used in the city. The emphasis will be on an education program, but some money will be budgeted to help parents pay for medical care for children with birth defects, Mrs. Adkin said.

The other 60 per cent goes to the national organization which conducts research programs and provides printed materials free of charge, she said.

Fund-raising efforts this year will include three mailings to previous donors, other citizens and businesses. Other projects scheduled are the Mothers March in January and a walk-a-thon, probably in early spring, Shelton said.

More information about March of Dimes services may be obtained by telephoning Mrs. Adkin at 682-2573.

Congressional energies move to minimum wage

By JIM ADAMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is about half finished with President Carter's energy proposals and will take up legislation that would increase the minimum wage.

The following is the status of other major legislation in Congress:

—Panama Canal. A Senate vote on ratifying the new treaty is not expected until next year. But an administration source says Carter and Senate leaders would press a vote anytime this year they thought they could win.

—Welfare. There may be hearings on Carter's welfare overhaul proposals. But with less than two months of scheduled session left, no votes are likely this year even in House or Senate committees.

—Hospital Costs. Carter's proposal to prohibit hospital costs from rising more than 9 per cent a year is ready for Senate floor action but is still in committee in the House.

—Social Security. Committees in both the House and Senate are considering ways to bolster Social Security, which is threatened with bankruptcy in two years. No more than temporary measures are likely to be approved this year.

Carter won final congressional approval last week of his decision to halt production of the B1 strategic bomber which had been proposed to replace the present B52s.

Positive, negative points of amendments given

Editor's Note: On Nov. 8, Texans will go to the polls to vote on several proposed constitutional amendments.

The following sums up the arguments for and against those amendments, with much of the information drawn from a special legislative report by the House Study Group chaired by Rep. John Bryant, Dallas.

Larry Springer and Bill Kidd put together the summary which follows:

Senate Joint Resolution 3 — Denial of Bail

At present, the Texas Constitution provides that bail may be denied to a person accused of a felony if he previously has been convicted of two separate felonies.

Denial of bail in this situation is preceded by a hearing at which the prosecutor must produce evidence that "substantially" shows the guilt of the accused.

If a person is denied bail under this provision, he must be tried within 60 days or the order denying bail is set aside.

The Court of Criminal Appeals may hear an appeal from an order denying bail.

The proposed constitutional amendment, SJR3, would expand the denial of bail provision, allowing two additional groups of accused felons:

—Persons accused of a felony "less than capital," committed while on bail for an indictment for another felony; and —Individuals accused of a felony involving the use of a deadly weapon, after conviction of a prior felony.

The proposal would be more restrictive in one sense since it would allow only district judges to order a bail denial. Currently, any judge of a court of record or any magistrate may deny bail.

Another new provision requires a bail denial order to be entered within seven days after an accused person is jailed.

As in existing law, a bail denial order must be set aside if the accused is not brought to trial within 60 days after arrest, but not if the defendant has asked for a trial delay.

The Court of Criminal Appeals is directed to give preference to bail denial appeals.

According to an analysis drafted by the House Study Group, SJR 3 has several arguments, both for and against, it.

PRO: Its purpose is to reduce the crime rate. Law enforcement officials say it is a common occurrence for someone to commit a felony while out on bail after indictment for another felony.

Five such cases occur each day in Dallas, the local district attorney's office estimates.

They say defendants usually do not want a speedy trial and would prefer a delay in order to make it more difficult for the prosecution to get witnesses together and adequately recall the incident in question.

Passage of this amendment, they say, will help keep criminals off the streets.

The proposed amendment provides safeguards against the abuse of the bail denial procedure, it is argued.

Proponents say it would be very difficult for police or prosecutors to use denial of bail to violate the rights of an accused felon.

They point to the seven day requirement for the issuance of a bail denial order after a person has been jailed. This, they say, prohibits the use of bail denial to delay proceedings.

Additionally, bail denial orders would be restricted to district judges and then, only after a hearing showing the substantial guilt of an individual.

A speedy trial is assured by the 60-day limit on the bail denial order.

Proponents further argue that it follows that it will be difficult for police and prosecutors to get bail denial except for those who should be off the streets.

CON: Opponents argue that the current bail denial provisions rarely are used since a prosecutor hardly ever has a case ready for trial within 60 days.

An even more significant reason that the amendment likely will not reduce crime or bail denials, say opponents, is that a bail denial provision is not needed by prosecutors who are able to get the bail set so high defendants are unable to pay it.

Opponents take exception to the Dallas DA's contention that five persons a day are arrested for a felony while out on bail from another felony indictment.

If this is true, they say, it is not the state norm. In Austin, they point out, only one arrest of this type is recorded every month or two.

Opponents claim the amendment appears to be a political ploy intended to make proponents look good before the public as crime fighters.

Others argue that amendment could open the way for abuses of individual freedoms by police and prosecutors.

They call denial of bail "preventive detention"—the jailing of a person without trial on the basis of a prediction that if not jailed he may be a danger to the community.

This, they say, has no place in a free society and is unconstitutional, a violation of the 8th and 14th Amendments.

Finally, opponents note that if this expansion of bail denial were to work as well as proponents hope, it would further jam crowded court dockets and produce a crisis in prisons which already are overcrowded.

SJR 3 is supported by the Texas District and County Attorneys Association. It is opposed by the Criminal Defense Lawyers Association and Texas Civil Liberties Union. If passed, TCLU plans a court test of its constitutionality.

SJR 18 — Expanding the Court of Criminal Appeals from five to nine judges and allowing it to meet in panels of three judges

This proposed amendment was spawned in an attempt to get a handle on the overcrowded dockets plaguing Texas courts. From 1975 to 1976, the number of cases appealed to the Criminal Appeals Court jumped 32 per cent.

If adopted, the amendment would enlarge the appeals court from five to nine judges with two members of the commission in aid of the court becoming judges and with the governor to appoint the other two members.

The expanded court could sit in panels of three judges except for consideration of those cases calling for capital punishment and other cases required by law to be heard "en banc."

PRO: The Criminal Appeals Court is an average of one year behind on its case docket. This delay, proponents argue, is unfair to society and defendants alike.

Three judge panels can hear more cases than the full court, with the full court to meet when disputes arise among panels.

It is not unfair to have three, rather than nine, judges hear an appeal, proponents say. The court had only three judges from 1891 to 1967.

Additionally, noting the defeat in 1975 of a proposed integrated court system with intermediate courts, many proponents believe this is the only politically acceptable solution to the crowded court situation.

CON: Those opposed to this type of court crowding remedy have branded the proposal as patchwork.

They claim what is really needed is to combine the civil and criminal jurisdiction under one supreme court with one system of intermediate appeals courts.

Former Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert Calvert has said that intermediate courts could cut the caseload of the Criminal Appeals Court by one-half to five-sixths, noting that the state's civil appeals courts are the final step in 52 per cent of the civil cases on appeal.

The amendment is supported by the present Court of Criminal Appeals Judges and the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association.

SJR 30 — Changes in the Judicial Qualifications Commission

The Judicial Qualifications Commission, created in 1965, is composed of nine members. Two are Civil Appeals Court Justices, two are district court judges, two are members of the State Bar and three are citizens.

The JQC is empowered to investigate the actions of any judge of any state court and recommend his or her removal or censure. The Supreme Court is charged with acting on recommendations of the commission.

The proposed amendment would, among other things, change the name of the JQC to the State Commission of Judicial Conduct and increase that panel's membership from nine to 11 members, adding one Justice of the Peace and a third citizen member.

SJR 30 would allow the commission to suspend a judge with or without pay if he is indicted for a felony.

Additionally, a judge could be suspended after a sworn complaint has been filed for conduct inconsistent with the proper performance of duties or conduct casting public discredit on the judiciary. This would require Supreme Court action.

The amendment would allow the commission to publicly reprimand an errant judge. It now may issue a private reprimand or a public censure.

The Supreme Court would be allowed to bar a judge from holding any future judicial office once the judge has been removed by the court under the proposed amendment.

The proposal sets out special provisions for removal of a Supreme Court justice allowing a special court comprised of seven members of the Courts of Civil Appeals selected by lot to consider the commission's recommendations.

PRO: The amendment would update the commission, allowing it to be more efficient and responsive, proponents say.

They note that the provision calling for suspension pending formal action will allow the commission to further protect the integrity of the office and would have kept Judge O.P. Carrillo and Justice Don Yarbrough off the bench had it been enacted previously.

Allowing public reprimand without burdening the Supreme Court also increases effectiveness, proponents say.

And a major defect of the existing commission is its inability to bar individuals from holding office again—a situation which proponents say this amendment would correct.

CON: Opponents argue the commission is an affront to the maintenance of an independent judiciary.

They note the proposed commission would only have four judges as members with the majority being composed of four citizens and a Peace Justice who may not even hold a law degree.

This, opponents say, would tend to compromise the judiciary's independence.

SJR 5 — Tax relief for cultural, historical and natural resources

This proposed amendment allows the Legislature to pass laws providing tax relief for various historic sites, unique natural areas or other significant resources.

Such relief could be by total exemption from ad valorem taxes or by other means, with the Legislature permitting a political subdivision to designate appropriate property.

(In 1976, Congress passed, as part of a tax reform act, legislation allowing commercially-used property listed in the National Register of Historic Places to recover the cost of restoring such property through tax relief.)

PRO: Many historical structures, particularly in urban areas, may be destroyed because of economic considerations—and the same is true of natural areas.

Historic landmarks are "socially unifying"—and allow the past to be passed on from one generation to the next.

But it's frequently economically infeasible for an owner of such property to keep it up—or often to keep it at all; tax relief, however, could provide the means and incentive for doing so.

Moreover, the impact on local tax bases would appear to be limited, and local governments would have the option to grant or deny such tax relief.

CON: Any tax exemption would increase the burden on other non-exempt property owners, particularly individual homeowners, and probably would have the effect of allowing commercial business organizations to get a tax break.

Additionally, private property owners would have to give up some rights to get exemptions—and there's nothing to guarantee public access to privately-owned sites.

In short, Texas has too many tax exemptions already; no more are needed, for whatever reason.

SJR 13 — Veterans' Land Fund

Under this amendment, the Veterans' Land Board would be allowed to issue and sell an additional $200,000,000 in bonds, and the unmarried surviving spouse of a veteran who died in the line of duty would be eligible for the program.

The program first was set up in 1946; the last $25,000,000 in bonds from $100,000, authorized in 1973 is being sold.

Maximum loan under the program is $15,000; loan terms are 40 years at six per cent interest, with a five per cent down payment.

PRO: The Veterans' Land program is one way Texans can demonstrate their support for veterans who have served their country and state.

The program has been hampered by lack of funds in recent years, and while veterans of World War II and Korea may still apply, the greatest impact will be on Vietnam veterans.

The program is self-sustaining, the default rate is low, and defaulted lands can be sold to other veterans.

Adding unmarried spouses amounts to a small gesture on behalf of the small number of persons who would be eligible.

CON: The program has outlived much of its original usefulness and authorizing additional bonds would only make the program harder to continue.

Time to get serious

Now that school is back in session and functioning smoothly, the Labor Day holiday is behind us, and delightful September mornings are with us, it is time to get really serious about the hospital propositions on which Midland County voters will cast ballots next Saturday.

The proposals call for the creation of a hospital district and the issuing of $10 million in bonds to expand and renovate Midland Memorial Hospital, bringing it up to date as a first-class hospital facility.

Polls taken during the last week show that a high percentage of potential voters yet are undecided as to how they will vote. Well, since the voting date is only a few days away, it is time for one and all to study the issues in order to reach an intelligent decision by election day.

Never before perhaps has so much factual information on such issues been presented for public scrutiny. The Citizens for Health Committee is making every effort to lay the facts on the table for one and all to see and study. Its members are speaking before public forums, clubs and groups of all kinds in an effort to get correct facts and figures before as many persons as possible, and to correct some of the misinformation which has spread through the community. Question and answer sessions have been and are being held following the formal presentations.

This program of factual information will be stepped up between now and Saturday. There is no reason for anyone to be uninformed on the subjects at hand.

This is serious business indeed for residents of the city and county. It is a matter of having or not having adequate hospital facilities and equipment in order to assure top-quality health care for all residents of the city and county. It's as simple as that.

We like the slogan, "It takes years to build a good hospital, but only seconds to need one." This hits the nail squarely on the head, and every citizen should ponder that statement in determining how he or she will vote in Saturday's balloting. Hopefully, you won't need a hospital for a long time, but it is possible that you may need one tomorrow, or even today. And when you or your loved ones do need hospital care, you want it to be in a modern, fully equipped facility.

Midland can and will have such a hospital if the proposals as submitted are approved in Saturday's election.

And please be assured that this is not a rip-off of taxpayers in any sense of the word. If persons could just know and realize the hours upon hours of study and effort which have gone into this particular project in the last two or three years on the part of hospital trustees and other interested persons, they would know that the recommendations of the trustees come from the heart and are made with only one thing in mind — to provide the very best hospital and health care for all Midland County residents.

It is a tough, thankless job which they have had, but they have not complained, and they have come up with a workable plan which they consider to be the best and most practical possible.

Midlanders are safe in placing their trust in the top-caliber men and women involved in the hospital matter, as well as those trustworthy persons who will serve without financial remuneration as the district's first directors if the district is created. By approving their plan, we can have the kind of hospital to which citizens of this progressive, prosperous community are entitled.

We happen to think that a vast majority of the good people of Midland County realize full well the importance of the project at hand and that they will respond favorably and in large numbers at the polls. By their favorable action, they will make possible a fine, modern hospital of which all citizens justly may be proud.

So, let's gear up now to give this high-priority matter the green light in creating a hospital district and in approving the hospital bond issue as proposed.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Feds are losing the crime war

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — To protect themselves from the dishonest and the disloyal, the American people have created a federal enforcement complex that has grown beyond precise measurement. A recent attorney general, William Saxbe, has estimated that it costs the taxpayers $12 billion a year.

Yet by all accounts, organized crime not only is flourishing but is extending its tentacles from the underworld into legitimate commerce. The mob controls most of the rackets from gambling to drug smuggling, then uses the illegal profits to purchase banks, insurance companies and other businesses.

The crime lords have formed secret combinations, which are operating at all levels of business and government. For the ugly truth is that the federal government is losing the war against organized crime.

This does not reflect favorably on the enforcement complex, which appears powerless to cope with the crime syndicates. The federal agents, however, show little embarrassment over their failure to curtail the mob.

The more menacing organized crime becomes, the more money they require to fight it. So at appropriations time, they point to the growing problem not as evidence of their incompetence but as justification for bigger budgets.

Yet the federal bureaucracy, as the troubled Saxbe pointed out, is already crawling with investigators. They do not, however, seem to be investigating the right people. The lords of the underworld are doing a thriving business in drugs, pornography, gambling and other illegal enterprises, with little interference.

This raises some obvious questions: Where are those hordes of government gumshoes? Are they all playing gin rummy in the backrooms? Why can't they get results? They are engaged largely, Saxbe told us, "taking in each other's wash." That is, they exchange confidences; they read one another's reports; the same information is kept in constant circulation. They also keep an eye on the headlines. Once a person becomes implicated in a public scandal, investigators from a dozen federal agencies pounce upon him like a wolf pack on an injured caribou.

The federal pack is also inclined to pursue the easy cases and resist the difficult investigations. While Lyndon Johnson was in the White House, for example, he gave the FBI an opportunity to reduce crime. He noted that drug addiction was foremost among the causes for the soaring crime rate; men enslaved by drugs used the gun, knife and yoke to get the money they needed to finance their habit.

Johnson thought that since the FBI had more manpower than any other enforcement agency, it should be enlisted in the fight against drug abuse. He discussed his idea with J. Edgar Hoover.

The late FBI director, whose bulldog visage had become a national symbol of the fight against crime, was too formidable a public figure even for presidents to challenge. And Hoover had no intention of risking his reputation in so uncertain an imbroglio as the war against drugs. He politely declined the opportunity and continued to engage his agents in more statistically satisfying pursuits, such as tracing stolen automobiles.

This attitude leaves most federal investigators with a lot of time on their hands. But if they are to avoid the hard-to-crack organized crime cases and still earn their salaries, they must investigate someone. This could be almost anyone who deals with the government or makes out a

INSIDE REPORT: Removal of troops provides flexibility

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The same Carter administration document that contemplates losing one-third of West Germany to a Soviet attack contends that removing U.S. troops from South Korea gives Washington "flexibility" to determine whether or not to intervene against Communist invasion from the north.

PRM (Presidential Review Memorandum) 10, a top secret inter-agency study of U.S. force structures, also is gloomy about holding the South Korean capital of Seoul against invading North Koreans today. Even with U.S. air and naval intervention and U.S. troops still stationed in South Korea, the study suggests Seoul cannot be held.

All this contradicts President Carter's assurances that his decision to remove the 2nd U.S. Infantry Division does not undercut the U.S. commitment to South Korea. It also undermines current military doctrine based on the retention of Seoul as a necessity. Thus, South Koreans face the same problem as the West Germans: shall they believe public pronouncements of U.S. leaders or private documents of their staff experts?

The administration's claim that PRM-10 merely discusses options is simply untrue. Just as PRM-10 states that present allied forces could not hold one-third of Germany, its disturbing comments on Korea are based on conditions before and after the U.S. troop pullout, not on any option.

"Once the U.S. land forces are out of Korea," says PRM-10, "the U.S. has transformed its presence in Asia from a land-based posture to an offshore posture. This... provides the U.S. flexibility to determine at the time whether it should or should not get involved in a local war."

The document goes on to reveal an unpublished reason for removing the 2nd Division: to give Washington the choice of whether or not to intervene. With the troops gone, says PRM-10, "the risk of automatic involvement (which was a major factor in removing land forces from Korea) is minimized. However, should the U.S. decide to intervene, military forces would be readily available."

Even with the 2nd Division still on station and the U.S. supplying "initial air and naval support on D-Day," PRM-10 spins a grim scenario: "If the North Koreans were to achieve tactical surprise, it is possible that they could at least temporarily attain their most likely major objective — the capture of Seoul."

While predicting North Korea could not win "a sustained combat," it predicates this on major U.S. help. "With the U.S. contributions of land and carrier based tactical air assets and material support, it would appear that the U.S. and ROK (Republic of Korea) would prevail against North Korea in the longer term, but with possible initial setbacks — including perhaps the fall of Seoul."

Without U.S. help, the situation is desperate, according to PRM-10: "The level of forces which could be brought to bear at the front on D-Day would generally favor North Korea over the ROK in all categories... The ROK has widely spread infantry forces with limited mobility and vulnerable stocks of war material."

The document implies a return to the old U.S. strategy of keeping allied troops away from the DMZ and instead falling back on Seoul. Now-retired Lt. Gen. James Hollingsworth changed that when he took command nearly four years ago, contending the North Koreans wanted to capture Seoul quickly and then start debilitating peace negotiations. So, allied strategy changed to a forward defense of Seoul.

Such a defense requires Korean confidence in U.S. readiness to supply indispensable airpower. South Korea long has worried that its defense pact with Washington provides a less automatic U.S. response to invasion than does the NATO treaty. President Carter's July 25 letter sought to reassure President Park Chung Hee that the U.S. troop pullout does not mean "any change whatsoever in our commitment."

PRM-10 undercuts all of South Korea's expectations. While emphasizing that only U.S. air and naval intervention could stop an invasion, it now makes that intervention a matter of choice rather than automatic response.

After our column reported the PRM-10 assessment of a Soviet attack in Central Europe, a senior West German army officer secretly visited Washington to find the truth. Interviews with 30 people, the general said, left "not the shadow of doubt in my mind" that the column was accurate despite White House denials.

Thus the power of investigation, which is supposed to be used for the good of the citizens, is often used instead against the citizens. The contractor who won't accept the government's terms, the taxpayer who contests a ruling, the individual who trips over an unnoticed regulation may find himself hounded by gumshoes.

Although most federal agents try to be fair and most agencies don't condone coercive investigations, the bureaucratic system tends to uphold the abusive. They usually are able to summon the massive weight of the U.S. Government behind their actions.

For most agency heads, unfamiliar with the details of a case, are inclined to accept the judgment of their subordinates. Investigators are held sacrosanct in many federal bureaus. Once they start bloodhounding a case, only the boldest official would dare to intervene.

"It isn't safe to stick your nose into an investigation," an official has admitted to us. "What if the guy turns out to be guilty? The next thing you know, the inspectors will be trying to link you to the case."

The federal government's 2.8 million employees, more than others, feel the breath of the investigator on their necks. They have been subjected to psychological tests, psychiatric interviews, lie detectors, loyalty oaths, background investigations, financial disclosure forms, and a host of regulations for speaking, writing and even thinking.

The scrutiny that is applied to federal employees, moreover, is increasingly brought to bear upon private citizens. A government agency is incapable of dealing with a member of the public, it seems, without demanding his complete life history.

The crime lords, meanwhile, are getting away with every crime in the books, including murder. The Justice Dept. has put together the story of muscle and murder from the reports of 24 federal enforcement agencies. It adds up to a picture of underworld savagery that makes the wildest TV blood chiller seem mild; the truth is sometimes more terrifying than any fiction.

In these mob slayings, arrests are rare; even rarer are convictions. Yet the truth is that most of the murderers are known. A federal agent has told us that he knows one man, still walking free, who has been responsible for 32 "hits" — the underworld euphemism for killings.

The agent has heard of other hit men, longer in the trade of death, who have notched up as many as 50 murders.

Yet thousands of federal investigators are too busy snooping into the trivial affairs of their fellow citizens to do anything about it.

NICK THIMMESCH

Tongsun Park is now the heavy in 'Koreagate' caper

WASHINGTON — It was predictable that Tongsun Park would be indicted, and become the heavy in the "Koreagate" scandal involving Congress. After all, he is from the inscrutable Far East, and apparently dropped money and favors on innocent American congressmen. Goodness sakes!

Since all politics today is theater, Tongsun Park (especially with that name) fits his role beautifully. The only problem is that in the real world, the security of South Korea is involved, and congressmen who know better might conclude that a vote for Korea is a vote for Korruption.

Now the attorney general, Mr. Griffin Bell, can announce that 36 felonious counts are leveled against the alleged briber, Tongsun Park, who is sequestered in his South Korean sanctuary, and allow that it's tougher to make a case against alleged bribes, meaning U.S. congressmen, mostly of the Democratic persuasion.

The federal bribery statute (201-F) proclaims that bribery is not necessarily a joint offense, although according to the Common Law (and my common sense) bribery is an example of two doing the tango.

Somehow, the Justice Department did cite former congressman Richard T. Hannah, a California Democrat, as an undicted co-conspirator, claimed he was Park's man on Capitol Hill and that he received $100,000 from him.

While not charging them, the department did name 20 House members and four senators as recipients of money from Tongsun Park. The "hot" names are Rep. John Brademas, Democratic House Whip; Rep. John McFall, former Democratic Whip; Rep. Morris Udall, who ran in last year's presidential primary; Thomas Kleppe, a Republican, who served in Congress and later as secretary of Interior; former Gov. Edwin W. Edwards, a Louisiana Democrat, who got a $10,000 campaign contribution; and Rep. Thomas Foley of Washington, one of the most influential Democrats on the Hill.

The list goes on. The point is that there are those who don't want to see Koreagate take on Watergate proportions, especially now that Bert Lance looks like a fat man ready for roasting. Jimmy Carter is having a tough time these days, isn't he? Will he phone Nixon to find out how it feels?

Young Rep. Bruce Caputo, a New York Republican, dodged this Koreagate story to the point that he was spit on by a congressional colleague. As a member of the House Ethics Committee (a designation which almost sounds contradictory), Caputo now asks, how come the Justice Department waited until Tongsun Park left England (with whom we have an extradition arrangement) for Korea (where we don't) before nailing him?

Casputo also notes that Benjamin R. Civiletti, as chief of the criminal division at Justice, testified on July 28 that there wasn't enough evidence to indict Park. Caputo also wonders how come his own committee, being counseled occasionally by Leon Jaworski, the Watergate whiz, hasn't interviewed members of Congress who might have been involved with the Koreans?

Caputo claims that the ethics of Congress (he just arrived) are far worse than those of members of the New York Legislature where he once served. He is astounded, he says, the way Congress and the Justice Department have dragged their sore feet on the Koreagate matter, given the fact that the information has been around for several years.

But now Caputo wants to cut $114 million in aid to Korea, because the Korean government refuses to cooperate in the Tongsun Park matter. The money, Caputo claims, is marked mostly for economic and not military purposes.

That's where this Koreagate situation can make serious trouble. President Carter has already traumatized the Koreans with his too-loud declaration of a troop withdrawal plan. If congressmen become fearful that by voting for funds to strengthen the Korean military, so it can do without our ground troops, they will be judged as "on the take," well, we could have some vexing international problems.

What happened here is that the Koreans, Tongsun Park in particular, are so taken with the American way of life that they extended customary Asian hospitality to the likes of Brademas, Speaker Tip O'Neill and others, and also laid some money on American congressmen, in hopes of generating customary good will, American public relations style.

A blunder, yes, but the congressmen didn't resist these charms or favors, and are far from virginal in politics. If the American puritan drive to root out such sin continues, will we be investigating, say, Israel, South Africa and Japan next? They and their surrogates have also bestowed many favors on American elected officials to influence U.S. policy.

POSITIVE THINKING

Here's how to make your job easier

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

There is a way of working on a job that is unique, successful and power-filled. So many people tug and pull and strain at their job, always making hard work of it. And so they find no pleasure in it.

I'm not saying that hard work isn't important. I believe in hard work. I've never known anyone who amounted to anything who didn't work hard. Our country was built by hard work. Even genius, as Edison pointed out, is only one per cent inspiration and 99 per cent perspiration.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker once told me how poor he and his family were when he was young. All members of the Rickenbacker family had to work, and his hard work gave him a lifelong pride in the fact that by effort he had been able to make something of himself.

Of course, in addition to a willingness to work, Eddie Rickenbacker had superlative ability and great courage. But most important of all, he learned how to make his job easier so that he could enjoy it and do it better.

When I left him after a visit I said, as we all do, "Don't work too hard, now."

His answer was immediate: "I wouldn't enjoy living if I couldn't enjoy work and neither would you."

But some people are workaholics so much they make their labors unnecessarily hard — a habit both wasteful and discouraging. Well, we have worked out a technique for making hard work easy. Here are 10 rules for taking the hard work out of any job.

First: Don't get the idea that you are Atlas carrying the world on your shoulders. The world would go on even without you. So don't take yourself all that seriously.

Second: Tell yourself that you like your job, and mean it. Then it will become a pleasure without drudgery. Perhaps you do not need to change your job to get an easier one. Change yourself and your job will seem different.

Third: Plan your work — work your plan. Lack of system produces that "I'm swamped" feeling.

Fourth: Don't try to do everything at once. That is why time is spread out.

Fifth: Get a healthy mental attitude, remembering that ease or difficulty in your job depends on how you think about it. Think it's hard, and you will make it hard. Think it's easy, and it will tend to become so.

Sixth: Become always more proficient. "Knowledge is power" over your job. It is always easier to do a thing right.

Seventh: Practice being relaxed. Easy always does it. Don't press or strain.

Eighth: Discipline yourself not to put off until tomorrow what you can do today. Accumulations make the job harder than it should be. Don't drag yesterday's burdens along with you. Keep your work plan up to schedule.

Ninth: At the start of every day thank God you have a job. Then give that job all you've got and then some.

Tenth: Think and become practiced in thinking. There is always a better way to do a job. And that better way is an easier way.

Clip these rules and put them in your purse or wallet. Carry them around with you and refer to them when things begin to pile up. You'll find it helpful.

TV complains about pressure groups

WASHINGTON — TV Guide had an article a few weeks ago which contained an interview with five television producers on the question of TV violence. The producers were upset because pressure groups such as the Parents Teachers Assn. and the American Medical Assn. were leaning on the TV networks to cut out violence in their shows.

The networks and advertisers, the TV producers said, were caving in to the pressure. The producers considered this a form of censorship and said no one should be able to dictate how much violence there should be on television.

My friend Joanie Conway who reads TV Guide said to me: "Do I look like a pressure group?" I looked her over. "I don't think so."

"Well, I read this article which said that people like myself were ruining television because we were complaining to the networks about the violence they were showing in what they like to call their 'action movies.'"

"You mean they didn't want you to write in to show your displeasure?"

"I think so. They said the pressure groups were deciding what people could see or not see because the networks hate to get mail. Now my question is, if I don't like violence on television how do I get my opinion over if I don't write to protest?"

"That is a toughie," I admitted. "If you write, you're putting pressure on the networks. If you don't write, you'll keep getting violent shows. I would say you are within your rights to write."

"But the producers claim the people who write in are ruining TV for the public. Aren't I the public too?"

"I should think so," I said. "I suppose the producers were saying the mass audience likes violence on television, but the minority of the people who write letters to the networks don't. But minority opinion prevails because the networks hate to get any mail criticizing their programming."

"How do they know the mass of the people like it?"

"Because of the audience ratings. The violent shows have high ratings."

"I think people will watch anything on television."

"What do you have against violence on television?"

"People keep getting killed or knifed or beaten up; cars keep crashing into each other, and the impression you get is that the country is full of psychos. The police aren't that nice, either. They're always beating up anyone who won't tell them what they want to know."

"The producers claim they aren't showing violence for the sake of violence. They have to have the violence so they'll have action. The TV viewer likes his action."

"Well, I don't like it and I think it's bad for kids to see it. They show them how to rob stores, make bombs and blow up safes. That's not my idea of show biz."

"But it does raise a problem. Killing on television is as American as apple pie. I'm not sure TV could survive without it."

"That's what the producers said in TV Guide," Joanie told me. "They said if they can't have violence in their shows there would be no conflict, and the American public would be cheated out of good television."

"They may have a point," I said. "Murder, rape, arson and dope peddling does have a lot of conflict in it."

"But how much of it do we have to take? The producers claim they make these shows because the public wants them. Well, I'm the public and I don't want them, and so when I write in they say I am a pressure group. If I liked them what would that make me?"

"A pro-violence consumer, I guess."

Joanie said, "I'd rather be a pressure group."

"Go ahead if you want to, but if you can't beat up and murder people on TV any more, it's going to be on your conscience."

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Presidential primaries seen differently

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Presidential preference primaries have more support from the voters than from party officials — at least as far as the Democrats are concerned.

That, at least, is the conclusion of long-time Democratic Party worker Carrin Patman, who now serves on the Winograd Commission, a party group looking at (among other things) presidential primaries.

A straw vote at a commission meeting indicated "very little support for national or regional primaries," Mrs. Patman says, although political scientists have told the group most people in the country favor them.

Party officials view primaries as a drain on the time and resources of candidates, and feel the "rather superficial press treatment" can lend momentum to a candidate who wins in an early primary, she says.

Accordingly, party officials are trying to "devise incentives to get states to go from primaries to caucuses at conventions," she explains.

Another reason party officials don't like primaries, Mrs. Patman adds, is that the primaries "dilute the purpose of a political party."

"The party should be conceived of as a leader of public opinion, not a follower," she says, reduced to "rubber stamping the preferences of a primary."

Not everyone sees the situation in that way, of course.

Speaker Bill Clayton is pushing the concept of a regional primary, and has charged the House Committee on Elections with looking at that matter along with other possible election law reforms.

Clayton envisions Texas with five or six other Southern states — perhaps as many as 15 — holding regional primaries on the same day.

Such a system would allow candidates to concentrate in one area, and would provide a better picture of what the electorate in a given area want, Clayton argues.

"I may be a loner in this," Clayton says, "but I'd like to see a preference primary not tied to party."

That doesn't mean, he adds, that he's opposed to the party system; he feels it's needed.

"But I don't think the party should take away any real decision from the people," he comments.

Mrs. Patman says — and Clayton agrees — that persons attending political conventions are more sophisticated, generally than the majority of voters.

"I've also seen deals cut at conventions," Clayton says.

Despite all the arguments against primaries, Clayton concludes, "I still favor people expressing themselves."

What the official position of the Texas Democratic Party will be on primaries remains in doubt — but the Texas Republican Party remains officially committed to a winner-take-all presidential preference primary.

What the Democrats do may be affected by what the incumbent President wants since Jimmy Carter used the primary system to secure his victory.

So far, Mrs. Patman says, the Carter representatives on the Winograd Commission haven't said — but they're suspected to be favoring retention of the primary system.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor:

One of the reasons the Midland Taxpayers Association gives in opposing the hospital bond issue and hospital district is that the hospital district will lead to socialized medicine. Just how they reached this conclusion I find hard to understand. It seems to me that the opposite is true. The defeat of the issues will bring us one step nearer socialized medicine. The federal government has a way of stepping in to do things for us when we cannot take care of them at the local level.

The Taxpayers Association would have a private organization come in and run things. If this is such a good deal, why hasn't someone come in long ago and run it as a money-making affair? Apparently hospitals are just not making too much money these days.

They also admit that they hadn't thought about who is to pay for indigent care. Midland Memorial Hospital would be in pretty good financial condition if they had not had to write off several hundred thousand dollars each year in unpaid accounts. Yes, I know we have a private hospital in Midland. I also know that the services offered by this hospital are rather limited, they do not have an emergency room and I doubt if they are interested in charity cases.

Midland continues to grow and its population increases. New apartments and homes are being built, new office facilities constructed and new leisure-time improvements, such as Midland Community Theatre's new building, are being offered. But, the same hospital which served us five years ago should serve us now seems to be the thinking in some circles. Where will it all end, they ask. To let it end before we have adequate medical facilities is not the answer.

One of the main fears of the professional staff at the hospital is that the issues will fail, needed improvements not made and the hospital lose its accreditation. This should be the fear of every Midland resident and especially those under medicare or those under any type of hospital policy.

To my way of thinking the proposed hospital district issue next to the questions of adequate water is the most important issue to have faced Midland voters in the twenty-seven years I have lived in this community.

E. F. Lehker

To The Editor:

It should be noted that next week will be a week of major decisions in our community. Firstly, next Tuesday our City Council will have to make a decision on community development funds. Secondly, the hospital bond issue will be voted on Saturday, September 17.

I feel, it is time that the people of Midland showed logic and consistency in their thinking. This is a community of approximately 70,000 people with various special interest groups all over. I definitely feel that all the people want to be heard and represented in all matters of government.

In considering the community development funds issue, I feel that if the funds are disapproved due to our not caving down to government blackmail on rental subsidy, it will be a great injustice to a segment of our community that deserves attention to its needs and desires consistent with their support of the needs of other parts of our community. Haven't we in fact been saying that government is too big and too demanding, and it's bureaucracy is going to strangle our great nation; but, it's alright that we accept government subsidy for our airport, schools, ambulances, roads etc., that serves the larger parts of our community and make our stand and show our defiance when it won't hurt but a few. Remember that few are voters, taxpayers, and citizens of this community, and sacrificing their needs is Tokenism. Either take your hand out of the cookie jar or get enough for everyone.

On the hospital issue, I need only say that there are people paying taxes on schools that have no children, paying taxes on a college that they will never use, paying taxes on an airport and don't fly, but balk at taxing themselves for a hospital that they will all more than likely need at some time in the future. Anyone who takes time to vote should take time to find the answers to their questions. A little logic will lead you a long way.

The human factor

To The Editor:

The upcoming question to be decided by the City Council regarding the resubmission of the request to HUD for community improvement funds is one about which all arguments have seemingly been made.

One group argues that HUD's strong-arm tactics should be overlooked in view of the availability of federal funds for local use; others contend that the City of Midland should not, as a matter of principle, be coerced under any circumstances.

All the arguments on either side of the question seem insignificant in view of the fact there are literally hundreds of families in Midland who live in substandard housing with no means of improving their situation.

It is easy to make an argument on the basis of principle when the person making the argument will not be directly affected by the outcome. The question of whether or not Midland should request federal funds for community improvement should not be decided simply on the basis of the alleged principles involved. Rather, the outcome of the issue should be determined in light of the human element. There are an appreciable number of Midlanders who need the aid which is available.

We urge the council to consider the question with a view to this human factor.

To The Editor:

In regard to the person writing to you about my son's hair: I am sorry you are ashamed to sign your name. I would be too if I didn't know what I was writing about.

If you believe Midland has no dress code, just try to send a student to school barefooted or a girl braless. I guarantee they will be sent home immediately.

I'm not against a school having a dress code and enforcing it. I just want to see Greenwood's dress code modified to where everyone can be happy. I do not support long hair, and I don't want to be a cowboy either. I am just asking that a modest haircut above the collar be accepted. I feel this is very reasonable.

I am all for obeying the laws of the country, but this hair code isn't a law. This code is local and the law says I can have it changed if I can get enough support for the cause. This is what the American system is all about.

I really feel sorry for your children for you complain about students blowing smoke in your children's eyes. The law says you don't have to have smoke blown in your eyes if you have guts enough to stand up for your rights as an American.

If you want a dress code to enforce, don't sit and cry about it, get out and let your school board know your feelings. It's your right!

I don't feel a haircut is a little thing, and for your information, my children know good discipline and no school board gave it to them. I am not "sorry" or "mistaken" and my son will get a good education.

I agree many of the youth today are not learning to obey the law, but no school board is at fault. It is the parents that don't care and won't stand up and fight for their children's rights.

I visited the Greenwood school board meeting and wasn't impressed at all. These men do not represent the people of their district, but their own personal feelings. This is my gripe, and I want to see a personnel change in this district.

Mr. Richard Nelson
Rt. 2, Box 198, Space 22
Midland

Don't be concerned

To The Editor:

One should not be too concerned about the plight of any Greenwood resident in matters involving education and religion. They live there by their own choice and many of them, by their own admission, are there to practice their own prejudice in matters of race, religion, education etc. They and no one else are the cause of the plight of both themselves and their children. When one plays in the dirt, one gets dirty.

Point of view

To The Editor:

The credibility of a twenty-three year old, underpaid, over ambitious and from the East sportswriter is questionable. Paul Donowitch is suffering from all of the afflictions, to his own admission in last Sunday's editorial. For the obvious reasons stated in his article, Donowitch would do well to spend some time with Jack Cowan, San Angelo Standard Times, a REPORTER, who is fair, objective, and not an opinionated EDITORIALIST hiding under an assumed name of SPORTSWRITER.

This now being Donowitch's home town, in which football fever does indeed run high, one would think that he would get on our side, the coaches side, and the town's side and report fairly and leave his opinions out of it.

Everyone interested might consider the following points regarding this entire ludicrous matter:

(1) The infringement in question that Lee High School is accused of and now stands condemned of was turned into the Athletic Director by the coach of another 5-4-A school, who refused to allow Lee High School the pleasure of "cleaning their own back yard" as was stated by the Abilene coaches they had done.

(2) Coach Acree and his boys were refused any defense, hustled before the U.I.L. within 24 hours, before they could even realize what was happening to them. Within this same 24 hours, the whole future of a brilliant coach and a football team with glorious possibilities of walking away with the State Title were on the line. Senior boys with their whole college futures ahead of them have been put into a spiritless position, some of them with no other means for college educations available to them than football scholarships. The other teams in question, even the Abilene team with an eye witness to their infringement, have had a week to prepare a defense and for the press to adequately sway opinions.

(3) The executive committee has interpreted the rules to suit the need, one set for Lee High School, another for their own teams, since the "other" infringers were in the majority.

(4) No one bothered to ask what the 1975 infringement was, so the use of it in any press stories or in the UIL's decision is ridiculous. Coach Acree and his boys were allowed no defense in 1975 nor 1977, but anyone who knows the kind, unostentatious person Coach Acree is would understand his not making a big fuss either time. A good reporter would have gone to the trouble to state a few of the facts that would have shed a little better light on "their" coach, he being "their" coach if they intend to make a home in Midland, Texas, and whether they be Midland Lee or Midland High supporters.

The film in question was not stolen, it was in fact borrowed from the same drawer, the same television station, for the same reasons that is had been borrowed every week every football season for several years. The copying of the film was not done maliciously, but it was done for the obvious reasons — the desire for a fair evaluation to be made and if for no other reasons, to show the instability of the charges made originally, and the railroad of a fine coach and football team.

We did not choose to fight this battle only for the boys of Lee High School, but for a dear friend and good man. We chose ourselves to do this because we are not politically conscious or otherwise fearful or selfishly concerned for our own reputation. We do not have a case of "take your medicine-it's" when we don't feel anyone was sick.

If Paul Donowitch is half the reporter he fancies himself to be, Good Luck Reporter Telegram. He has not once contacted us to discuss this matter, nor reported any of the facts in a manner that could have shed a good light on Lee High School, that could have helped unite the people to stand against a wrongdoing, even when the consequences are no more than "just a game."

The outcome of Wednesday's meeting should speak for itself, WHAT A PUT UP JOB.

Sign me proud to be behind Coach Acree and his football team, and prouder still that our letter, unlike the original charges and other letters, was not signed Anonymous.

Insulted

To The Editor:

I feel personally insulted as a Midlander and as a Texan when I read, in Sunday's sports section, the very harsh insulting comments in Paul Domowitch's column, "Sports Chatter," if that article was sports chatter, then I am Paul Domowitch's mother. And in that respect, at least, I have been blessed!

I am amused that he referred to one year ago when he was a kid fresh out of college. He is a fresh kid who should be out of a job.

His comments about what "fools" parents are around here and his suppositions concerning our attitudes in the sixties about the Vietnam war etc. etc. are unspokeable insults from this fresh, smart alec Eastern kid, and demand an apology. Master Domowitch was about eleven years old in 1965 and should have been learning some manners.

Perhaps you should help him pack his dirty laundry and pay his expenses back to his beloved New York. We don't need him!

To The Editor:

I have looked and searched but nowhere can I find where I am endowed with the authority to vote YES for the hospital bond which would place squarely upon the shoulders of my neighbor an indebtedness of 18 million dollars. For if my neighbor should not be in favor of this action then deep would be my sorrow because by my actions I would be coercing him (against his will) to give up the fruits of his labor that I might accomplish my goal.

If I do not have this authority then there is no way in which I can delegate that authority to someone else.

As my neighbor, it is my prayer you will also recognize the same absence of authority.

This same principle should be applied by our good neighbors in favor of accepting grant money from the federal government. When we take from government this action inevitably will place more tax burdens on our neighbors which we do not have the right to do.

Let us learn God's laws and govern ourselves accordingly.

Claire Ford

Tennessee girl wins black title

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The first thing Claire Ford did after winning the Miss Black America crown and returning to her motel room was to order up a juicy hamburger and some french fries.

"I didn't eat anything all day because of the swim suit competition, but I'm ready now," Miss Ford, 18, the Tennessee entrant, said in a telephone interview Saturday.

The 5-foot-10, 135-pound teenager was crowned Friday night during the first television broadcast of the event. Miss Ford won the crown over a field of 30 other candidates from the United States and Puerto Rico.

During the talent portion of the show, she sang, "Everything Must Change," by Quincy Jones. In addition to a $10,000 cash prize, she will be given a screen test at Universal Pictures and the National Broadcasting Co. Studios.

Mary Bentley, 20, of Indianapolis, Ind., was first runner-up. She sang "Lean on Me," by Vance McCoy to win the talent prize among the 10 finalists. Miss Bentley is a telecommunications major at Indiana University and wants to be a broadcast journalist.

Miss Ohio, Nina Maria Lucas, 18, of Dayton, was second runner-up.

GOP plan stirs quick opposition

By EDMOND Le BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican plan to revamp Social Security has run into quick opposition, with criticism centering on a proposal that would ultimately mean most Americans could not retire with full benefits until age 68.

Republican leaders say they will mount a concerted drive for their package, which would also allow retirees to work without sacrificing retirement benefits, when a House Ways and Means subcommittee begins on Monday tackling the problem of keeping the huge retirement system solvent.

The Democratic chairman of that committee and the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare sharply attacked the proposal, which was announced Friday.

The Republican plan would begin raising the retirement age from 65 in 1990, reaching 68 by 2001. People retiring early would have their checks reduced.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the Ways and Means committee, said his panel is more concerned with what happens to the system in the next five years.

Without legislation to bail out Social Security, the disability retirement fund is projected to be bankrupt in two years, with all old-age aid ending by 1983.

The committee wants to find ways to avoid depleting Social Security reserves to gain time. Ullman said, to consider more fundamental changes in the system.

He said the committee may recommend tax increases or allowing the Social Security Administration to move money between its various programs as needs arise.

The Republicans included such a proposal in their plan. Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. charged that the Republican proposal "shatters the solemn promise of the federal government to the American people."

House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona said the proposal to extend the retirement age, coupled with the lifting of earnings restrictions, is consistent with the desire of many Americans to remain productive.

The plan would lower payments 5 per cent overall, while raising the tax rate paid by employers and employees 0.5 per cent beginning in 1982.

Republicans say their plan would guarantee the system's fiscal soundness for at least 75 years. Social Security now collects taxes from 108 million individuals, while sending checks to 33 million.

Disability benefits overlooked by many

Many disabled wives overlook the possibility they may be eligible for Social Security benefits because they only have worked at jobs on and off, according to their families' needs. Erven L. Fisher, Social Security district manager at Odessa, said.

He said it is not necessary for a married woman to have worked continuously to be qualified for disability benefits. Also, the impairment need not have occurred while the wife was working.

Fisher said generally, a woman between 30 and 45 years of age who becomes disabled has to have worked at jobs covered by Social Security for at least five out of the last 10 years to qualify for benefits. Younger women need even less employment time, while older women may need slightly more time, he said.

A wife who has enough employment time can get disability benefits if her impairment is so severe that it would prevent her from working for 12 months or more, or if her disability may result in death.

Fisher said women may contact the Odessa Social Security office at 516 First National Building for more information or to apply for benefits. It is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The telephone number is 332-9423 or, for Midland residents, 563-0027.

U.S.S. Texas crewman set ship's first watch

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Crewmen of the U.S.S. Texas, the Navy's seventh nuclear-powered missile cruiser, went aboard here Saturday at a command to set the ship's first watch.

The $252.8 million ship, which will be based at the Norfolk Naval Station, was commissioned under bright skies as a crowd of 3,000 looked on from a pier along side.

Rep. George Mahon, a Texas Democrat who is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, called the ship "a strong testimonial to the proven capabilities of nuclear propulsion in naval ships."

"The world is more at peace than at any other time in recent history. Yet it is necessary that this nation maintain the mightiest arsenal the world has ever seen," Mahon said.

"The two conditions are not accidental; one requires the other."

A delegation of about 300 Texans attended the ceremony. Among them were Gov. Dolph Briscoe and his wife Jane, who christened the ship when it was launched in Newport News Shipyard & Drydock Co. in 1973.

Briscoe presented the ship with a picture and two goblets from the battleship Texas that served in both world wars.

The battleship now sits at San Jacinto, site of the battle that ensured Texan independence from Mexico.

The governor also gave the new ship a $25,000 silver service, bought by donations from Texas citizens.

The traditional setting of the first watch began with the order from Captain Peter B. Fiedler, who will command the crew of 497.

At the sound of a whistle, called the Bo'sun's pipe, the radar fixtures on the huge gray ship — strung with red, white and blue bunting — began turning, and its rocket launchers lifted.

The crewmen went aboard and lined each deck, while a band played "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You."

Watching the ceremony was retired 70-year-old Captain G. L. Schetky of Newport, R.I., the last skipper of the battleship Texas.

His grandson, Lt. (j.g.) Malcolm Patterson, is an officer on the new ship. The 565-foot, 11,000-ton cruiser is the third U.S. ship to bear the name Texas.

The second was Schetky's ship. The first was the Navy's first battleship, launched here in 1889, and christened by the granddaughter of Texas patriot Sam Houston.

Carter covers campaign bases

The Los Angeles Times

TRENTON, N.J. — President Carter shouted down hecklers, buttered up fat cats and pleased several thousand well-wishers Saturday as he stumped New Jersey for the re-election of the state's governor, Brendan Byrne, in his first formal campaigning as President.

Appearing in three different settings with Byrne, who appears to be running behind his GOP challenger, State Sen. Raymond Bateman, the President turned heckling into applause as he rebutted Republican attacks on Byrne as a backer of the state's new income tax.

Foes of the tax Byrne signed into law a year ago almost drowned out Byrne as he introduced Carter to a crowd of about 3,500 in a courtyard on the new Newark campus of the State College of Medicine and Dentistry. The school is near the section of Newark that bore the brunt of the 1967 riots and minority students make up a fifth of its enrollment.

While most of the predominantly black audience stood silent, a determined hubbub was concentrated around about 20 white men wearing replicas of Colonial-era cocked hats and straw hats with bands reading "Tax Revolt."

With the public address system turned up loud, Carter opened his talk with words of praise for "the great courage and good judgment of Brendan Byrne in putting into effect, along with your legislature, a state income tax which cuts your own property taxes by...hundreds of millions of dollars."

The heckling died down and audience interest picked up when Carter declared that the income tax, which takes 2 per cent of taxable incomes up to $20,000 and 2 1/2 per cent of higher incomes, has helped bring a reduction of real estate taxes and has blocked a boost in sales taxes.

He won applause when he added: "The income tax is designed to be paid by rich people who can afford it best, rather than the working people and the older people of this country."

With the conviction he learned in long years of stumping for himself, Carter sold Byrne — a graduate of Princeton and Harvard law school — as "a man who will fight for you if you don't have a job...if you are a working-class family...if you want better health care, better housing, better education."

And Carter predicted that Byrne, who signed a bill this year that legalized gambling in Atlantic City, will prove to be "one man that is strong enough and honest enough to keep out corruption" in that rundown shore resort.

Homicide may be cause of death

ODESSA — Ector County Sheriff's deputies said late Saturday they are not ruling out the possibility of homicide in the death of a 30-year-old Denver City man Friday morning.

The body of Daniel Parker Hobgood was found by a rancher in a pasture 10 miles west of here on the Kermit Highway about 10:30 a.m. Friday.

A spokesman for the sheriff's office said a preliminary autopsy revealed no evidence of violence. "There were no bullet wounds, knife cuts or bruises found on the body," the spokesman said.

The body has been sent to the Department of Public Safety autopsy lab in Austin to determine if the man may have been poisoned, or if he suffered from a drug overdose, the spokesman said.

Fraud crackdown nets convictions

ODESSA — In a continuing crackdown on Social Security fraud, two more convictions for that offense have taken place in the Southwest region, said Ervin L. Fisher Jr., district manager of the Odessa Social Security office.

Fisher said the two convictions were in Oklahoma and New Mexico. In one case, the person convicted was fined $500 and in the other the person was sentenced to three years probation.

Police investigating Delwood Mall theft

Police are investigating the reported theft of approximately $500 worth of coats, removed Saturday from a storeroom in Dunlap's in Delwood Mall.

According to police, six to 10 coats were reported taken from the storeroom at approximately 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

Cooperative picks incumbents again

Lt. Gov. Hobby to visit Rotary

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby will keynote a special program to be presented Thursday noon at the meeting of the Midland Downtown Rotary Club in the Midland Hilton.

Gov. Hobby, in his address, will assess the local impact of public education, transportation, health and other legislation enacted by the recent 65th Legislature.

The session was arranged through the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Fred Tyler, executive vice president of the chamber, said the meeting is one of about 25 being held throughout the state to achieve greater public awareness of the actions taken by the legislature. Local chambers of commerce are coordinating the functions.

Ted Kerr is the Rotary Club president.

State Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson and State Rep. Tom Craddock, both of Midland, will be recognized at the session, as will Marshall McCrea Jr. of Midland, a director of the Texas Good Roads-Transportation Association.

A number of statewide organizations have been cooperating in the "local impact" seminars, including the Texas Municipal League, Texas Association of Counties, Texas Association of School Administrators, Texas Association of School Boards, Texas Good Roads-Transportation Association, Texas District and county Attorneys Association and Texas Hospital Association, together with local and regional chambers of commerce.

Representatives from the

district highway office at Odessa also will attend the session.

Gov. Hobby will fly to Midland from El Paso after addressing a breakfast meeting there. He will leave Midland at 1:45 p.m. for Fort Worth, where he will speak at an evening session.

Hobby, a native of Houston, was graduated from Rice University in 1953 and soon thereafter joined the United States Navy where he served three years in the Office of Naval Intelligence.

He is president of the Houston Post and long has been active in Nouzton civic affairs.

He is chairman of the National Conference of Lieutenant Governors and is a member of the executive committee of the Council of State Governments. He also is chairman of the Texas Energy Advisory Council.

Justice of peace for Greenwood to be discussed

A proposal by Midland County Commissioner Charlie Welch to establish a justice of the peace precinct for the Greenwood community will be one of the topics considered when the commissioners court meets at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the county courthouse.

Welch said the population in that area of the county is "growing by leaps and bounds. We just need another justice of the peace because that's what you have to have to get a constable."

Further, he said, Midland County's two peace justices are overloaded with work.

Although there technically are four peace justice precincts in the county, all the inhabited areas of the county are included in Precinct 1, he said.

What Welch proposes to do is to expand Precinct 2 from one section of land on the east side of the county to include voting precincts 2 and 16.

Welch said the Greenwood community in the past did not need a peace justice or constable, but the population is large enough to require a constable for law enforcement in that area.

Also at Monday's meeting, the commissioners are to consider a request from the Midland Community Action Agency (MCAA) for office space in the courthouse annex.

The request was first made at the last regular meeting but Welch's motion to give them the space died for lack of a second.

Commissioner Durward Wright was presiding in the absence of County Judge Barbara Culver and Commissioner Jack Leonard was hospitalized at the time of that meeting.

Commissioner Win Brown declined to second the motion because he said he had reservations about giving space to an outside organization.

The MCAA must find new space for their administrative offices because their current offices at the old Bunche Elementary School are needed by the school district.

In other business, the commissioners will consider a resolution adopting an affirmative action plan as part of the county's community development fund application.

Also, the commissioners are to consider a resolution to participate in the National Flood Insurance Program.

Consideration of the proposed resolution was delayed from an earlier meeting in order for the commissioners to receive more information.

Consideration of location of office and salary of veterans service officer personnel also is scheduled for Monday.

Klondike to talk about gym

KLONDIKE — The Klondike Consolidated Independent School District's board of trustees will meet at 7 p.m. Monday in the high school library to discuss the gymnasium floor.

The board also will discuss the Prichard and Abbott contract, the cafeteria, the Texas School Board and Texas School Administration Convention in San Antonio Sept. 24-26 and improvement projects.

Passenger enjoys car ride, proves it

TARENTUM, Pa. (AP) — James Sims gave some unexpected passengers a ride home in his car recently.

Sims went to work as usual at 6 a.m. When he returned to the car at 2 p.m., he found that a cat befriended by his children had given birth to four kittens in the back seat.

"We've had a stray cat loafing around at home, and the kids have been feeding it," explained Sims. "My son had the car yesterday, and I guess he left the window open."

Session slated on variances

There will be a special board of appeals meeting at 3 p.m. on Tuesday in the basement of City Hall, Room 40 to consider the following variances:

to use one exit from basement for mercantile.

Scott Shelton of 600 N. Loraine St. requests a variance to open exit doors to inside of building and variance to construct open shed car storage on property line building.

Democrats' chairman 'own' man

People should vote for the candidate and not the party — that's a common idea, but it's less than common coming from a Democratic Party county chairman.

Darrell F. Smith, recently named Democratic Party county chairman, replaced 23rd District Judge Vann Culp in the position after Culp was named to fill that judicial post.

People "shouldn't make a career out of being Democrats and Republicans, but they ought to get involved in the system."

Smith said he does not believe a political party should run candidates for office who are less qualified than incumbents who might be from a different party.

There's no purpose in running a candidate against a "good public servant" like Democratic State Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson or Republican County Judge Barbara Culver.

"If you can come up with someone who is better qualified, it's good to upgrade the stock," Smith said.

What happens if someone unqualified runs as a Democrat? "At that point, I thank God for the secret ballot," Smith said.

Of course, he said, the Democratic county chairman does not have a right to choose candidates. "Walk-ins" often run for office.

"As a party chairman, if someone comes in with loser written all over them," Smith would advise him on his chances, "but you can't turn those people away. You've got to believe it will work itself out."

Even losing and "going down in flames," a candidate still performs a service. "Only a loser like me can love another loser."

Smith lost his race for state representative for a district which included Kleberg County, where he lived. He lost by about 147 votes "depending on which count you want to go by."

The 34-year-old attorney said he is "very happy" now that he didn't win then.

If a person believes in voting for the candidate and not the party, why should he become involved in partisan politics?

"If you really are an independent, how do you ever get your candidate on the ballot?" Smith said.

He is a Democrat because "ever since I've been voting in Texas," the only place he has been able to be effective is in the Democratic Party.

"Historically, it's been a party that's been open," Smith said. "Even though there are some artificial criteria for convention representation, the 'McGovern Rules" assure a broad spectrum of participation, he said.

Darrell F. Smith

If people don't participate, political machines take over, he said, and fresh input is needed.

If Midland did not have a Democratic Party, the Republicans would be like the Democrats in South Texas) with all philosophies in the same party, Smith said.

There are two basic differences between the Republicans and Democrats, Smith said.

First, Democrats have taken affirmative action to open the party to broad participation, he said.

Second is the determination of whether to emphasize freedom or equality, "two conflicting words" in the Declaration of Independence, he said.

The two concepts are "meaningless without one another" but the Republican Party tends to emphasize freedom and the Democratic Party, equality, "at least for now," Smith said.

This conflict between the two concepts is necessary in the U.S. system of government" he said. "When they don't, we have a totalitarian state."

But, Smith said, "I may change my mind tomorrow. You and I grow, and if we ran into the people we were 10 years ago, we might not even like them."

Expert says TESCO needs to build plants

A financial expert has told the Public Utility Commission that Texas Electric Service Co. must build new power plants to avoid "a terrible fuel situation."

H. Russell Fraser, vice president of Paine-Webber, a nationwide brokerage firm, said Texas Electric's heavy reliance on short-supplied natural gas is the root of the problem.

Fraser told the commission that TESCO has a good supply of coal and lignite, but added, "Big deposits of coal are helpful, but you have to build power plants to burn the coal."

Texas Electric is seeking a 23.6 per cent rate increase to help finance construction of lignite and nuclear-powered generating plants.

Three-fourths of Texas Electric's construction budget must be provided by investors. The company says a rate increase is needed to attract enough investor money to support the fuel-changing construction program.

On measure of investor confidence in a company is the rating placed on the company's bonds. In written testimony filed with the PUC, Fraser said, "Without substantial rate relief, TESCO's triple-A rating must be reduced."

A triple-A rating is the top bond rating. It allows a company to borrow money at a lower interest rate than lower-rated companies.

Referring to his most recent study of TESCO's finances, Fraser testified, "It was my conclusion that without adequate rate relief, TESCO's triple-A rating was in serious jeopardy."

"In my opinion, Standard & Poor's would have downgraded TESCO some time ago if the company had not been a part of the Texas Utilities System," said Fraser, a former vice president of Standard & Poor's an investment rating firm.

"A good bond rating keeps the cost of electricity down and helps assure a dependable supply of electricity in the future," Fraser added.

"It's especially important to the ratepayers that the company keep its triple-A rating during this construction program," he said.

Agency says sun's energy can be put to work within 5 years

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Electricity generated from sunlight can be made cheap enough for widespread use within five years if the government begins buying solar plants in large numbers, says a federal agency.

The Federal Energy Administration says the cost of solar power for many everyday uses could be brought down if the United States converts conventional power plants to solar units at many federal installations.

Such a move would mean mass production of solar power cells in place of today's handwork industry, a consulting firm says in a report to the FEA.

A preliminary version of the report went largely unnoticed when it was released July 20.

An FEA expert who declined to be identified said Thursday the agency will issue its final report within several weeks. He said the draft version is being reviewed and its basic conclusions are expected to stand.

The report, by a suburban Washington company, is raising the hopes of solar enthusiasts, such as ecologist Barry Commoner, that the world may be on the verge of a clean, safe and virtually everlasting new source of energy.

The report estimates that government spending of $440 million on solar plants over five years could cut the cost of the power cells from the present $15.50 per watt of peak generating capacity to 75 cents or less.

Meeting scheduled

The Sept. 19 meeting of the Permian Basin Landmen's Association will be a joint event with the New Mexico Landmen's Association.

The meeting will be held in the Sheraton Inn in Santa Fe, N. M. The meeting date is the day prior to the New Mexico Land sale.

Hoover Wright and the Federal Abstract Co. will sponsor a golf tournament in conjunction with the meeting.

Teetoff times are 9 a. m. through 2 p. m. Following the golf tournament there will be a social hour at 6:30 in Section B, Kachina Ballroom of the inn. A dinner will follow at 7:30.

Midland and other West Texas members of the PBLA should make their own room reservations in Santa Fe, Don Janssen, president of the association, said.

TO&G to be honored

Officials of Texas Oil & Gas Corp. from Dallas, Denver, Colo., Corpus Christi and Midland will be the guests of honor at a reception given by The Midland Wildcat Committee Wednesday in the Petroleum Club.

The reception hours are from 5 to 7 p. m.

The guests of honor include Louis A. Beecherl, chairman of the board; William L. Hutchison, president; J. Ralph Ellis Jr., executive vice president; T. E. Lohman, senior vice president; John Morgan, senior vice president; Bob Young, general counsel and secretary, and H. P. Schrauff, vice president, finance, all of Dallas.

M. A. Odegard, vice president, Denver; Lou Little, vice president, Corpus Christi, and Charles L. Canfield, vice president, Midland.

Robert L. Wood is chairman of the executive committee of the host organization.

The report suggests that the solar cells could provide enough electricity to power street lights, light parking lots and airport runways and run irrigation pumps.

Davenport to speak

The regular monthly meeting of the Permian Basin Chapter of National Association of Corrosion Engineers will be held Tuesday at Conner's Banquet Room, beginning with a social hour at 6:30 p. m., with dinner at 7:30 p. m.

Orville W. Davenport, with Exxon Co.-USA, will be the speaker. His subject will be "Inhibition of Sucker Rods." He has been associated with Exxon 29 years.

Well loggers will meet

The Permian Basin Well Logging Society will hold a luncheon meeting in Ranchland Hill Country Club at 11:25 a. m. Thursday.

Charles E. Konen of Chicago will speak on "Wellsite Log Analysis and The Programmable Pocket Calculator."

Konen is a senior staff engineer with Amoco International Oil Co. He was graduated from Kansas State College of Pittsburg with a B.S. degree in Mathematics in 1963, and received an M.S. degree in Petroleum Engineering from the University of Tulsa in 1969.

Reservations for the meeting should be made by Wednesday noon with George Horst of Midland, telephone number 694-9561.

E. E. Runyan

Midlander on board

E. E. Runyan of Midland has been elected to the board of directors of Weeks Natural Resources of Westport, Conn.

The announcement of Runyan's election was made by H. Arthur Nedom, managing director of the company.

Runyan, president of WPC, Inc., and an independent oil producer, joins board members from Spain, Norway, Australia, the United Kingdom, Bermuda and the U.S. in directing the affairs of the company.

Weeks Natural Resources, Ltd., a Bermuda company is engaged in worldwide exploration for oil and gas.

The solar cells could even begin to meet some household electricity needs, the report predicts, besides becoming a major energy source in developing countries where conventional power is very expensive.

WASHINGTON OIL

Refining shortage may increase energy woes

By CLYDE LA MOTTE

WASHINGTON — The prospect of a shortage of domestic oil refining capacity may further complicate the nation's future energy problems.

The Carter Administration's emphasis has been on conservation measures and on forcing industrial users of oil and natural gas to switch to coal. There is nothing in the President's energy plan aimed at assuring adequate domestic refining capacity.

In fact, some critics of the program as it now stands say that the administration's policy actually flings open the door to increased imports of petroleum products.

Sen. J. Bennett Johnston (D-La.) spoke of this in a speech last week before a meeting here of the board of directors of the National Petroleum Refiners Association.

"Unwittingly, foreign refinery capacity will become the only source of capacity to meet increases and surges in domestic demand for refined products," he said. "The President will force the export of domestic refining capacity."

Administration officials say this isn't so. They argue that existing capacity, plus expansions that are already in the works, will provide enough domestic capacity, particularly in view of the reductions they anticipate in the consumption of gasoline and in the saving of residual fuel oil by those plants switching to coal.

Johnston said the trouble with that line of thinking is that it is not realistic. For one thing, he does not believe that the President's goals, such as a big increase in coal use and a resulting reduction in oil use, will materialize by 1985.

"In 1985, all segments of our nation's economy will still depend to a great extent on natural gas and petroleum products," Johnston said. "That means that domestic refinery capacity will be an essential part of our energy superstructure. We cannot afford a shortfall in domestic refinery capacity," he said.

He also warned there will be a need to develop refining capacity for handling an increasing proportion of heavy, sour crude oil because the world supply of light, sweet crude is dwindling.

"World crude supply in the 1980s will be adequate," he said, "but it will be predominantly heavy, sour crude."

Johnston noted that in spite of this, over one-half of the U.S. refining capacity cannot now process such crudes.

One of the roadblocks to any substantial increase in domestic refining capacity has been the difficulty in obtaining sites for new plants. Many people who agree there may be a need for more facilities don't want refineries built in their areas.

Johnston told the NPRA group that environmental laws and local opposition, particularly on the East Coast, have "wreaked havoc" with domestic refinery construction.

He noted that the Federal Energy Administration has listed 13 refinery projects in the Northeast and in Florida which have been cancelled due to local opposition.

Johnston termed New England as the most vulnerable area to world price fluctuations and supply interruptions, "not to mention the environmental danger of fuel oil spills from the heavy tanker traffic." He said we must come to grips, nationally and locally, with the problem of siting refineries.

Present U.S. refinery capacity is about 16.5 million barrels daily. However, last year imports amounted to over 11.3 per cent of petroleum product demand. This translates to imports of about 1,968,000 barrels of products a day.

Johnston proposed the following steps, which he said he will incorporate in a bill he plans to offer soon, probably this week:

Soviet grain harvest near record forecast

By DON KENDALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's 1977 wheat crop will be slightly smaller than forecast earlier, but total grain production still will be near the record 220 million metric tons projected a month ago, according to the Agriculture Department.

The department's Outlook and Situation Board said Friday that Soviet wheat output now is expected to be 100 million tons this year instead of the 105 million estimated on Aug. 10. But coarse grain production — barley, oats, rye, corn and millet — will be 105 million tons, up from the forecast of 100 million a month ago. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

In addition, Soviet production will include 15 million tons of rice, buckwheat, peas, beans and other crops counted in the country's total. That estimate was unchanged from last month.

The 220 million tons estimated for the Soviet harvest would be the third largest on record, ranking behind last year's 223.8 million tons and the 1973 harvest of 222.5 million.

Commenting on the reduction in 1977 Soviet wheat prospects, officials said that "winterkill was somewhat higher than earlier expected" when it appeared that the crop had survived last winter's cold in better shape.

"On the other hand, the feed grain forecast was increased because of larger-than-earlier estimated areas now to spring barley, oats and corn," the report said.

Although Russian farmers have been hampered by rain and cool weather in some areas, the grain harvest has moved more rapidly overall than usual, with only about 20 per cent of the crop remaining to be threshed by early September.

The second bumper grain harvest in a row means that the Soviets probably will not have to increase imports sharply as sometimes has been the case when yields were poor. In 1975, for example, the grain harvest plummeted to 140.1 million tons, the smallest in a decade, and forced the Soviet Union to import heavily, including large quantities of U.S. wheat and corn.

This led to a long term grain agreement under which the Soviets promised to buy a minimum of six million tons of U.S. wheat and corn annually — roughly half and half — over five years beginning last Oct. 1.

Purchases under the agreement for the first year, which will end Sept. 30, total about six million tons, the minimum specified. The Russians have bought some wheat and corn — about 1.7 million tons — for delivery in the second year beginning Oct. 1. Thus they have about 4.3 million tons of additional grain to buy for 1977-78 under terms of the agreement.

The United States has plenty to sell, including the largest wheat stockpile in 13 years and the most corn in five years.

Present U.S. refinery capacity is about 16.5 million facilities to use heavier crudes with higher sulphur content.

A procedure for expediting the siting and issuance of permits for new construction.

An "appropriate" recognition of the role of small refiners.

Thomas P. O'Neill III, the lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, told NPRA that the attitude toward location of refiners in New England is changing, certainly so in Massachusetts.

"Things have changed in my state," he said. "We have been trying to bring about a balance, a balance that will allow economic development while at the same time maintaining our quality of life."

O'Neill noted that in a referendum vote in Massachusetts last year, voters favored by 2 to 1 a plan to look at refinery and deep water port development.

"I recognize that New Englanders and especially people from Massachusetts have not been considered friends of the oil industry," he said. "We have a reputation of taking the environmental ethic to the extreme and of expecting the rest of the country to bail us out of any economic woes that might befall us." But, he emphasized, that attitude has undergone a change.

He declared that New England and the oil producing states can work effectively to resolve problems of mutual concern.

His major responsibilities will include gas compressor sizing and preparation of formal quotations on gas compressors packaged by CSI.

Crisis starts with 'words' in 1954 law

DENISON, Tex. (AP) — The nation's energy crisis dates back to an improperly worded law passed by Congress in 1954, according to a leading Texas petroleum researcher.

Dr. Paul Crawford, assistant director for the Texas Petroleum Research Committee at Texas A&M University, said in a speech prepared for a local civic club that the law inadvertently gave the Federal Power Commission regulatory power over the price of natural gas.

Crawford said that shortly after the law was passed, the U.S. Supreme Court issued a majority opinion stating Congress had apparently unknowingly approved it.

"Two members of the high court wrote in their opinions Congress must not have intended to pass the law since no hearings had been held concerning the effect of price regulation on natural gas producers," he said.

"The law had a chilling effect on the oil and gas finders of our nation. Two-thirds of the drilling rigs were to stop searching for oil and gas."

Crawford aid when gas pricing regulatory power was handed over to the FPC there were 30,000 drilling rigs actively looking for oil and gas.

By 1972, he said, there were fewer than 5,000 rigs in operation.

Gas production in Texas told

and gas wells produced 635,346,272 thousand cubic feet of gas in June 1977, up .13 per cent from field runs a year earlier.

Marketed gas production totaled 539,951,976 thousand cubic feet and reflected a .16 per cent increase from the June 1976 volume. Marketed production is the total gas to transmission lines, carbon black and plant fuel and lease use.

Gas exported from Texas in June totaled 256,663,056 thousand cubic feet, and included some 69,089,658 thousand cubic feet of imported gas.

Exports of Texas produced gas in June totaled 187,573,398 thousand cubic feet and reflected an 8.71 per cent decrease from the year-earlier month. Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America was the month's largest exporter, moving 73,770,647 thousand cubic feet of gas, of which 37,860,950 thousand cubic feet was Texas-produced gas.

Texas gas production in June 1977 came from 193,526 oil and gas wells. Texas wells produced 627,040,772 thousand cubic feet of gas in May, 1977. Marketed gas production in May totaled 531,686,584 thousand cubic feet.

Venture revealed

Petrolane, Inc., announced it has entered into a partnership with PGP Gas Products, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Perry Gas Companies, Inc., of Midland, for the purpose of building and operating gas processing facilities.

The first project of the partnership will be the construction of gas gathering lines and a new gas processing plant in Richland County, Mont.

Charles Weise, president of the LP Gas Division of Petrolane, said "the expected up-trend of gas well drilling in the United States and the increased value of gas liquids makes feasible the construction of similar processing plants wherever natural gas is produced."

MINOLTA'S NEW CONSOLE

AMERICAN BUSINESS EQUIPMENT, INC. INTRODUCES LOWEST-COST REDUCING COPIER ON MARKET

Minolta Corporation's new Electragraphic 201 — the most exciting office copier on the market today — is now available at American Business Equipment, Inc., at 3415 Brentwood Street in Odessa and 2101 South IH 35, in Austin.

According to Mr. Pat Sorrells of American Business, the new Electragraphic 201 is the lowest-cost reducing copier on the market today that provides a copy with plain paper quality. "The 201 is one of the most remarkable and versatile machines on the market today. And, because it's made by Minolta, I know it's reliable," said Mr. Sorrells.

"This new streamline console model features Minolta's exclusive Electragraphic process in addition to offering an almost 50 percent reduction capability. It's the perfect copier for a small office, yet rugged enough to handle the demands of a larger office," said Mr. Popaditch of American Business Equipment in Austin.

Other Electragraphic 201 features include: a digital computerized control panel, a "memory" which eliminates the frustrating experience of having to interrupt the machine while it's in a multiple-copy mode in order to produce a single copy, and a requirement for standard line current (115 volts A.C., 15 amps), thus allowing the machine to be used almost anywhere in the office.

"With all these features, we're sure we have a big seller on our hands. And, of course, we're excited about the marketing support program Minolta offers all its dealers," Messrs. Sorrells and Popaditch added.

Minolta is the only company in the United States which markets office copy machines using the unique "Electragraphic" process. This process, which is patented by Minolta, combines the quality of plain paper copies with the economy of coated paper copies.

Cotton Petroleum Corp. of Midland announced potential test for No. 4 Huff Estate, fourth Devonian well in the Amacker-Tippett multiphase field of Upton County, 12 miles northwest of Rankin. The well finished for a daily flowing potential of 134 barrels of 47-gravity oil, plus 80 barrels of water, through a 3/4-inch choke and perforations from 11,070 to 11,446 feet. The zone had been fractured with 100,000 gallons. Gas-oil ratio was 620-1.

The new oiler is 1/4 mile southeast of other Devonian production and 1,980 feet from south and 3,275 feet from west lines of section 20, block Y, GC&SF survey. Hole is bottomed at 11,790 feet, and 4 1/2-inch casing is cemented at total depth. Plugged back depth is 11,750 feet.

The Rocksprings (Cisco) field of Sutton County has been extended 1 1/2 miles north with the completion of William Periman of Houston No. 1-37 George Brockman.

Twenty-four miles southeast of Sonora, the well finished for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 470,000 cubic feet of gas per day. The production is from pay behind casing perforations from 2,875 to 2,879 feet after 1,500 gallons of acid and 30,000 gallons of fracture solution.

The well is 923 feet from south and 1,700 feet from west lines of section 37, block 7, TW&NG survey.

Canyon gas production in the Shurley Ranch (Canyon and Strawn) field has been extended 1 1/2 miles northeast with the completion of Windsor Gas Corp. of Houston No. 3-189 Duke Wilson. Well site is 11 miles southwest of Sonora. Operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 600,000 cubic feet of gas per day. The gas is from pay behind perforations from 7,637 to 7,764.3 feet. The zone had been fractured with 67,000 gallons, following 630 gallons of acid.

Location is 2,076.2 feet from north and 1,623.2 feet from west lines of section 189, block C, Russell. It is in abstract HE&WT survey.

SHALLOW TEST

World advised to turn to solar energy

WASHINGTON (AP)—and the world should abandon nuclear power and turn to solar energy "Earth Day" instead, or else face a future of increasing danger and authoritarian government.

In a book published Saturday, entitled "Rays of Hope—The Transition To A Post-Petroleum World," Hayes argues that even peaceful nuclear power reactors will inevitably carry the threat of accidental radiation releases, the spread of nuclear weapons, sabotage and terrorism.

Complete safeguarding of nuclear installations and fuels, Hayes contends, would require serious new limits on personal freedom. Hayes, now a researcher for the Worldwatch Institute, a private non-profit study group, says solar energy, on the other hand, would be safe and decentralized—scattered widely in individual units and not subject to concentrated control by government or huge corporations.

Hayes' views are contradicted to a large extent by most government and industry officials: the nuclear industry claims that nuclear power is safe against major accidents; president Carter wants to halt the spread of nuclear fuel processing abroad, limit the spread of weapons, and go slow on development of the plutonium-producing "breeder reactor," but supports substantial nuclear power increases; and the general view is that solar energy can not substitute for nuclear or fossil-fuel energy in a major way in the foreseeable future.

Hayes disagrees. His 240-page book, based on research and a trip around the world that included interviews with a number of foreign energy officials, charges that conventional energy policies have failed to consider fully their environmental, social and political consequences.

"The range of possible energy options is narrowed," Hayes writes, "by factors other than just the scarcity of certain fuels." "Long before all the earth's coal has been burned, for example, coal use may be halted by the impact of the rising atmospheric carbon dioxide levels on climate."

"In the developed nations," Hayes notes, "a lack of water in the American West, a scarcity of suitable land in the Netherlands, and a lack of healthful air-over much of Japan have all acted as brakes on energy growth."

While there is strong disagreement by some energy experts with Hayes' criticisms of nuclear power and coal, there is little criticism of solar energy—if, in fact, it can be harnessed.

As now envisioned, it would create no additional air or water pollution, would add no heat that is not reaching the earth anyway, and would not generate radiation, and would carry few risks of serious accident.

But there is disagreement whether solar energy is as close to practical, economical operation on a large scale as Hayes believes, and whether it can ever provide enough energy to sustain society at a high standard of living.

Hearing closes

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The second phase of the railroad commission's Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. rate hearing ended Friday with a Minnesota utility consultant saying the strength of Lo-Vaca's corporate parent should be taken into account in deciding a new rate level.

George F. Hess, a consultant hired by San Antonio, said the financial well-being of Coastal States Gas Corp. had a bearing on Lo-Vaca's solvency.

Lo-Vaca is asking the commission to increase the "spread" between its passed-through gas costs and the price it charges its customers.

Lo-Vaca now has a spread of five cents per 1,000 cubic feet (mcf) but wants that increased to 16.7 cents.

Broken wheelchairs lay in the backyard of the Americana Healthcare Center in Indianapolis, after a car crashed into a group of residents picnicking there. (AP Laserphoto)

Bodies, wheelchairs, food fly as car hits oldsters at picnic

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "We were just getting started and bringing out the food," Beverly Cook said about the picnic for residents of the Americana Healthcare Center. "Suddenly people were lying all over."

Without warning, a car driven by 81-year-old Leo M. Schulte of Indianapolis — who police say was soon to enter a nursing home himself — jumped a curb and plowed through the crowd of about 100 picnickers, many of whom were in wheelchairs.

Two were killed and 21 injured in the accident Friday.

The injured ranged in age from 47 to 93. At least 13 of them were more than 70 years old, eight of them in their 80s.

"I saw a car pulling up behind me," Schulte told reporters. "I jammed on my brakes to avoid hitting it. Then I put the car in forward. I thought I was hitting the brakes, but I must have hit the accelerator and that was it."

"Bodies, wheelchairs and food went in every direction. No one could move because most of the people were old and were in their wheelchairs," said Eunice Cope, a member of the Volunteers Association, which sponsored the picnic. Mrs. Cook is president of the group.

Leona Shrewsbury said Schulte backed against the side of her vehicle as he was driving out of a parking lot of a professional building adjacent to the nursing home. Police said Schulte had just had an appointment with an eye doctor at the building.

"The next thing I knew, I heard his tires squealing, and it looked like he panicked and drove right into the yard of people," she said. "He just plowed right into them. I felt kind of sick."

"He not only drove into the crowd, he backed into a second group of residents," said Fred Moon, administrator of the nursing home. "I guess he panicked. I know he pushed the pedal to the floor."

Schulte was released after questioning. Police Sgt. Alvin Dunkin said the case will be sent to a grand jury.

"The man was licensed to drive, although I don't know how," said Dunkin. "We were able to impound the car, but had to let him go. It's a sad thing. Schulte was going into a nursing home himself on Oct. 1."

The two dead were identified as Virginia Dicks, 89, and Nellie Ford, 83, both residents of the home.

One person remained in critical condition Saturday, and four others were listed in serious condition, hospital officials said.

The other injured persons had either been released or were listed in fair or better condition.

Road toll unchecked

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Traffic deaths continue to run six per cent ahead of last year, the Department of Public Safety reported Saturday.

DPS statistics show 2,282 traffic deaths so far this year compared with 2,145 for the same period in 1976.

There have been 1,996 street and highway mishaps in which persons were killed.

Tower says pact in trouble

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — have a senator of each U.S. Sen. John Tower says he thinks that if the Senate voted now, President Carter's Panama Canal treaty would fall to win the necessary two-thirds majority.

"I think if the ratification vote were held next week, the treaty would be defeated," Tower said on State Capitol Dateline, an interview program produced by the Wendell Mayes stations.

Tower said he has "no thoughts about early retirement" and is "99.99 per cent sure" he will run for re-election next year.

If retired from the Senate, voluntarily or involuntarily, Tower said he would like to return to what he did before his first election in 1961, college teaching.

He said issues have not yet crystallized for next year's campaign for U.S. senator from Texas.

A desire of voters to therefore do nothing to. Tower said the president "has taken bad and reliance on external vice" and adopted "a sources of energy," he said.

He said there are "compelling considerations" for maintaining U.S. control over the canal and for voting against the treaty that would turn it over to Panamanian control in the year 2000.

Tower said he favors construction of a sea level canal across Nicaragua, "but ... it's not even on the drawing board ... I think we should have gotten on with it much earlier than we have."

He called the Carter administration "inadequate."

"I don't think that they've competently dealt with any major substantive issues," Tower said.

Carter's energy bill "is calculated to discourage additional production and

Most families don't need the Consumer Price Index to remind them of the soaring increases in the cost of living since 1967.

Inflation isn't all bad, however. True, prices of everyday commodities and services have risen dramatically. But those people who have invested wisely will find the value of their investments also have grown.

One of the most common investments - though most people don't think of it that way - is the family home. As an investment, housing has more than kept pace with inflation. While the overall Consumer Price Index "market basket" of goods and services in 1975 averaged about 61 percent higher than the 1967 basket, increases in residential construction costs substantially exceeded that rate of growth - 83%. That's why real estate investment is considered the best inflation hedge of all.

Plea agreement admitted into Bolles murder trial

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — After an hour-long huddle at the bench, a copy of admitted murderer John Harvey Adamson's plea agreement was admitted into evidence in the Don Bolles murder trial.

Maricopa County Superior Court Judge Howard Thompson said during arguments Friday, "We are trying to locate the original (plea agreement). It is not available at the present time."

Suburban Chandler plumber James Robison 55, and Phoenix contractor Max Dunlap, 48, are charged with first-degree murder and conspiracy in the reporter's death in June 1976. Adamson admitted his part in the car-bomb slaying in January of 1977, implicating Dunlap and Robison.

Chief prosecutor William Schafer III interrupted Paul Smith, Dunlap's attorney, often during the first day of his cross-examination, as Smith questioned Adamson closely about conversations he had with Phoenix police department officers and attorneys.

Adamson invoked attorney-client privilege twice during the cross-examination, and refused to answer questions about conversations with attorney Mickey Clifton. He, also, would not say why his court-appointed attorneys furnished him with police reports to read in jail, but said, "There was material in that bunch of material that had his (Dunlap's) name as the subject of reports."

Adamson said he talked with Detective Jon Sellers of the Phoenix Police Department two or three times before his confession and told Sellers and Schafer about Robison's and Dunlap's involvement on Jan. 4, 1977. Adamson said he had not discussed testimony with Sellers since he took the stand Thursday.

Adamson testified he was not directly involved in plea agreement negotiations, but consulted with his lawyers before signing the document.

The plea agreement, released Jan. 15, 1977, stated that Adamson would be imprisoned for 20 years and two months on a second-degree murder charge. In return, Adamson said he would, "plead guilty and testify against various people... in four cases." Adamson said he received a list of other crimes he would not be prosecuted for a "few months" after the agreement was signed. Adamson said he was guaranteed immunity in cases, "in which I was the subject of police DR's (departmental reports). I didn't know which (crimes) they were at the time."

Those charges included the attempted bombing of the Indian Health Services building in Phoenix, an attack on a Scottsdale booking agent, the arson of the Ashford

Plumbing building and La Strada Restaurant, the bombing of Top's Tavern, burglary, receiving stolen property and flooding a house for insurance purposes, all in Phoenix, as well as first-degree murder and conspiracy charges in the Bolles killing.

Later in the day, Smith charged that Adamson's police statements did not match his testimony. Smith also said Adamson told Sellers he could not remember accurately events prior to April of 1976.

Smith's cross-examination will continue Monday.

Balloonists Ben L. Abruzzo and Maxie L. Anderson start to lift off into the night sky. (AP Laserphoto)

New Mexico balloonists try new Atlantic flight

MARSHFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Two New Mexico men, hoping to complete a flight that has failed at least 14 times during the last century, have begun another attempt to cross the Atlantic Ocean by balloon.

Ben L. Abruzzo, 47, and Maxie L. Anderson, 43, both of Albuquerque, slowly lifted off Friday night as about 2,500 onlookers cheered when one of them leaned over and smashed a bottle of champagne on the helium-filled balloon's gondola.

Saturday, they were located by trackers about 2,100 feet in altitude, heading to the north-northeast at 25 to 30 miles per hour.

The planned flight path was to take the balloon over Maine and Newfoundland before they were expected to gain altitude and catch prevailing westerly winds. They expected to land in northern France sometime Monday.

Five persons have died during the previous attempts.

Persian Gulf area given high priority in secret directive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Persian Gulf, especially Iran, is receiving new importance in U.S. planning to protect its rich oil reserves from "foreign aggression," U.S. officials say.

President Carter issued a secret directive last month expanding U.S. strategic priorities to include defending the Persian Gulf against any Soviet attack.

The memorandum, which followed a six-month study by the National Security Council, was sent to the Pentagon. The United States now receives more than 40 per cent of its oil from the Middle East, and that dependency is expected to continue in the near future.

In recent years, the Soviet Union has become a new importer of oil. A study by the Central Intelligence Agency, released last April, said Moscow could begin competing with the United States for Middle East oil in the next decade.

The CIA report said: "During the next decade, the USSR may well find itself not only unable to supply oil to Eastern Europe and the West on the present scale, but also having to compete for OPEC oil for its own use."

Carter's policy directive appeared to be an effort to begin preparing for any Soviet attack on Iran or the Middle East.

The United States already is committed to the security of Israel and has special relationships with Iran and Saudi Arabia. Both nations have conservative governments that could become vulnerable if conflict arises in that area.

Suggestions that the memorandum conflicted with Carter's public proposal to eliminate great-power military forces from the Indian Ocean were vigorously disputed by U.S. officials.

These officials said contingency plans that outline the possible use of ground forces, supported by air and naval units, in the Persian Gulf or Middle East do not contradict administration policy.

Train toll up to 26

CAIRO (AP) — Authorities Saturday raised to 26 the official death toll in the crash of a train that derailed and plunged down an embankment in southern Egypt.

Officials said more dead were believed trapped under the twisted wreckage.

"They are still waiting for cranes to reach the scene and lift the wreckage," an Interior Ministry spokesman said. "There is a big possibility that more bodies will be found."

At least 120 persons were injured in Friday's train wreck of the "Upper Egypt Express" traveling from Cairo to the town of Assiut. Officials said the driver apparently ignored warning signs of an approaching detour. He was arrested shortly after the incident.

Presley statuette touches off dispute

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A nonprofit Memphis group and a private Delaware corporation are at odds over who has authority to market an eight-inch Elvis Presley statuette.

John Stevens, executive director of the Memphis Development Foundation, says his group feels it has a right to distribute the statuettes for a charitable cause.

But officials of Factors Etc. Inc. of Bear, Del., said they would file suit if necessary to halt distribution of the statuettes. The firm says that on Aug. 23 it reached an agreement with Presley's father, Vernon, and the late singer's business manager, Col. Tom Parker, to market all Presley memorabilia.

Daniel Lidman, a Beverly Hills, Calif., attorney representing the Delaware company, said the nonprofit status of the development foundation makes no difference.

The foundation announced last week that Pennsylvania sculptor Eric Parks had been commissioned to design and build a 25-foot, 50-ton bronze statue of Presley at an estimated cost of $151,000.

Funds for the statue, to be placed in Memphis, are to come from donations, Stevens said. The group has offered the Presley statuette to persons giving $25.

CAB approves bargain standby London fares

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four major airlines have won approval for a new $256 roundtrip fare for standby passengers flying from New York to London.

The rates, which would compete directly with a new British charter service, would go into effect on a trial basis Sept. 15, pending review by President Carter.

The Civil Aeronautics Board has approved the standby rates on Friday, but rejected two other reduced fare plans submitted by the four airlines — Pan American World Airways, Trans World Airlines, British Airways and Air India.

Under the approved plan the airlines will sell seats to customers who show up at the airport on a standby basis. If there are seats available they will be filled on a first-come-first-served basis.

The standby fare plans are the airlines' answer to Britain's Laker Airways "Skytrain" service which on Sept. 25 will begin offering no-frills charter tickets for $236 on New York-London flights.

Young is the owner and founder of Western Auto Associated Stores in Hobbs and Lovington and president of Young Investment, Inc., which financed the mall. # Texas farm prices log another decline

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Prices received by farmers and ranchers declined by another one per cent last month, according to reports released this week by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Cotton, potatoes, hay and fresh fruit were the only crops to increase in price.

Slightly higher prices for calves, sheep, lambs and milk were more than offset by lower prices for beef cattle, hogs, broilers and eggs, officials reported.

According to the variable index used to measure prices, farmers and ranchers are receiving six per cent less for their products today than they were one year ago.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown noted that prices paid by farmer for equipment, services, taxes and wages decreased by one-half of one per cent since July, due mainly to lower feed prices.

Brown also complained that consumers certainly are not benefiting from the lower prices received by farmers and ranchers.

"As well as dropping farm prices, the increasing spread between farm and retail prices is another factor behind the recent farm protests," he said.

Grain prices, the subject of recent farmer protests in Central Texas, continued to slide, according to the Department's monthly price index.

Milo showed a 27-cent per hundredweight decline, while wheat prices dropped an average of 17 cents per bushel.

Corn prices were down from $2.03 per bushel to $1.74.

The department price list showed upland cotton gaining one cent per pound over July, selling for a statewide average of 66.7 cents per pound last month.

The index report did bring good news to hay producers, as prices on all baled hay continued to climb, increasing by $1.50 per ton to $48.50.

Potatoes also showed a gain of 10 cents per pound.

Very slight price increases were recorded for sheep, lambs, calves and milk products.

However, these were more than offset by sliding prices on beef cattle, broilers and eggs, accompanied by a $1.60 per cwt drop in hog prices.

Beef cattle selling for $33.60 per cwt in July, were being auctioned for $32.90 last month, the department said.

Craddick appointed to compact

AUSTIN — State Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland has been appointed to the Interstate Compact for the Conservation and Utilization of Natural Energy and Water sources by House Speaker Bill Clayton.

When ratified by at least two more states, the compact will exist for the purpose of promoting the conservation and wise use of natural energy and water resources through interstate cooperation.

The Texas Legislature ratified the compact in 1977. The other states involved, Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Oklahoma, have yet to ratify it.

Clayton said since Craddick is chairman of the House Natural Resources Committee this legislative session, his expertise in this area would greatly benefit the compact commission.

DIRT, SQUIRT & QUIRT Glasscock County cotton tour scheduled Tuesday

By CHARLES GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent

Higher than normal temperatures and continued dry weather are carrying over into September in the West Texas area. A general rain at this point would probably not benefit cotton a great deal, but the prospects for another year are declining with each passing week and the depletion of soil moisture reserves.

The planting of cover crops to help prevent erosion this winter and next spring hinges on the receiving of adequate rainfall within the next few weeks. Depending on the arrival of frost and dormancy, a rain now could help produce forage on native rangelands that might have time to cure properly.

There will be an informal tour of a cotton demonstration on the Lawrence Jost farm at St. Lawrence (Glasscock County) Tuesday. Dr. Luther Bird at Texas A&M University will be present to discuss his cotton breeding program with producers. Dr. Bird has been instrumental in developing cotton lines with multiple adversity resistance that have been widely acceptable by Texas cotton producers.

Most of the varieties or lines in the demonstration on the Jost farm were developed by Dr. Bird. There are several okra leaf, frego-bract varieties in the demonstration. Dr. Bird will comment on the development of these new varieties in regard to disease and insect resistance as well as agronomic and yield advantages. The Jost farm may be reached by turning north on FM 2401 at the Co-op Gin, traveling 7 miles, then turning back east to the first house on the left. Interested Midland producers are invited to attend.

The question of how much and how late to water trees of various kinds is coming up quite frequently in recent days, especially in view of the fact that much freeze damage was noted in the West Texas area following last winter. There were a few "spells" of cold last winter when temperatures dropped down in the low teens, but the damage was caused more by the sequence of the cold rather than the severity.

Some of the lows came in November after only a few light frosts and freezes and caught a lot of plants not sufficiently "hardened." Shade trees, pecans, fruit trees, shrubs and even grass can be "hardened" by controlling water and fertilizers in the early fall. Rainfall, of course, can alter the best planned program. In general, however, the gardener and orchardist should begin to check the condition and growth of the above mentioned plants with the idea in mind to gradually reduce water and refrain from using high nitrogen fertilizers too close to the first expected killing freeze.

A pecan tree carrying a load of nuts must have enough moisture available in the soil in September to complete the filling out of the nuts. If the weather remains warm and dry, and supplies, considering depth of soil and extent of root system, are limited, one should probably water with a thorough soaking throughout the soil profile at least once toward the latter part of September. Then the amount should be reduced and the interval lengthened until about mid-October, when watering should cease until after full dormancy of the tree.

After dormancy a watering about once a month to maintain the soil in a moistened condition is also important, even though the leaves are gone and the tree is dormant. One point should be made clear. A tree or shrub that has been watered well to this point should not be just shut off suddenly of all irrigation to achieve hardening. If the weather continues in the same pattern this could result in injury. Each gardener must assess his own situation and act accordingly.

A widely distributed little pest, the parasitic nematode, causes a lot of damage and stress on plants in the sandy soils of West Texas. Nematodes are small, worm-like animals that live in the soil and the parasitic types feed on root systems. The control of nematodes is based on several different techniques.

Drying out the soil in late summer or fall is one method. To do this the garden or bed should be free of any plants or plant roots and spaded or raked regularly to thoroughly dry the soil. To live, nematodes require a layer of water around the soil particles. When this layer is removed the nematode will die. If the dry weather continues now would be a good time to employ this technique in vegetable garden and flower bed areas.

Governors endorse Carter welfare plan

DETROIT (AP) — The nation's governors have ended a week-long national conference with their leadership expressing confidence that the governors have strengthened their political impact.

It wasn't long ago that the governors were complaining that they were the forgotten chief executives, subservient to an all-powerful federal government.

"I think that governors are having more of an impact than ever before for a couple of reasons," said Gov. William Milliken of Michigan, who was elected the new chairman of the National Governors Conference.

"For one thing we have better staff to do research and ground work. President Carter's welfare program really reflects the ground work that our staff did," he said. "I think the governors concluded that working together can make a much stronger force."

The Democratic-dominated conference by a vote of 31-4 Friday approved a resolution endorsing the Carter administration welfare plan.

Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts called the Carter plan "almost a carbon copy of what we recommended." Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa, a former chairman of the conference, said Carter had delivered "a welfare program that was basically put together by us governors."

The Carter administration paid what many here considered extra-special attention to the conference. Jack Watson, Carter's assistant for inter-governmental relations, spoke to the governors and attended the entire meeting.

Earlier in the day, the governor will join the ranchers and their friends to tour the James L. Powell Ranch near Fort McKavett. The tour features ways of improving grassland and programs for selecting, breeding and feeding livestock.

Bynum said Briscoe will talk after a barbecue lunch hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Powell at Fort McKavett.

The event is being sponsored by the Texas Section of the Society for Range Management, the Eldorado-Divide Soil and Water Conservation District, the Soil Conservation Service of the U.S.D.A., The University of Texas System and Texas A&M University System.

Suit against Agnew postponed by judge

BALTIMORE (AP) — the suit brought by Sam Action on a $2 million suit, against former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has been put off pending a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court on whether he should be compelled to testify under oath.

U.S. District Court Judge Roszel C. Thomsen on Friday declined to consider motions from Agnew's lawyer, W. Lee Harrison, for dismissal of the hearing in the civil case.

Polur, who filed the case, contends Agnew was partially responsible for financial losses that he says he suffered as a result of the Arab oil embargo.

Thomsen also refused to rule on a motion that on Friday he held in consideration motions from Agnew's lawyer, W. Lee Harrison, for dismissal of the hearing in the civil case.

BILLY TAYLOR (32), Texas Tech fullback, picks up short yardage Saturday in SWC opener with Baylor in Waco as Paul Hurst (53) of the Bears, moves in to make stop. (AP Laserphoto).

Tech trips Baylor, 17-7

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Texas Tech quarterback Rodney Allison worked his magic twice against Baylor on a 54-yard touchdown run and a four-yard touchdown pass Saturday, leading the eighth-ranked Red Raiders to a 17-7 Southwest Conference victory over Baylor.

Tech, the defending SWC co-champion, had all it could handle in the brutally intense heat that was 112 degrees on the floor of Baylor Stadium.

Allison, an All-SWC senior, cooled off the feverish Bears late in the first quarter and again in the second period with plays out of Houdini's handbook.

Allison faked a pitch to running back Billy Taylor and yanked the ball back as though it were on a string as he streaked 54 yards untouched for a touchdown late in the first period.

On Baylor's next possession, wingback Greg Hawthorne bolted 80 yards, tying the score 7-7.

The Red Raiders drove 75 yards late in the first half for a touchdown.

Allison, on third and two from the Baylor four, faked a dive play, put the ball on his hip and hit Jimmy Williams seven yards in the end zone for a touchdown.

Tech fans got a scare when Allison had the wind knocked out of him in the third period. But Allison came off the bench to whip the Red Raiders to the Baylor seven-yard-line, where sophomore Bill Adams drilled a 24-yard field goal with 13:32 left to play.

Down 17-7, Baylor unleashed a final drive to the Tech 43. On fourth and one, Gary Blair was brought down by safety Larry Flowers and Baylor was dead.

Texas Tech displayed a swarming defense which sacked Baylor quarterback Sammy Bickham four times.

Red Raider linebacker Mike Mock led the charge in the bruising game with three solo sacks behind the line of scrimmage.

Linebacker Don Kelly was also active and intercepted a long Bickham bomb.

Tech defensive back Eric Felton also blocked a Bear field goal attempt as Tech Coach Steve Sloan's secondary blanketed the Bear receivers.

Baylor suffered a blow to its defense late in the second quarter when noseguard Gary Don Johnson went down with a twisted knee.

Tech played conservatively in the second half after it built a 10-point lead and the only other Red Raider scoring opportunity failed when Adams missed a 37-yard field goal attempt.

It was only the third time in 15 games at Waco that Texas Tech had emerged victorious.

Longhorns whip Boston College

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Punting champion Russell Erxleben boomed three field goals and Texas' gambling young defense shut down Boston College without a first down for more than a half Saturday in an easy 44-0 inter-sectional victory.

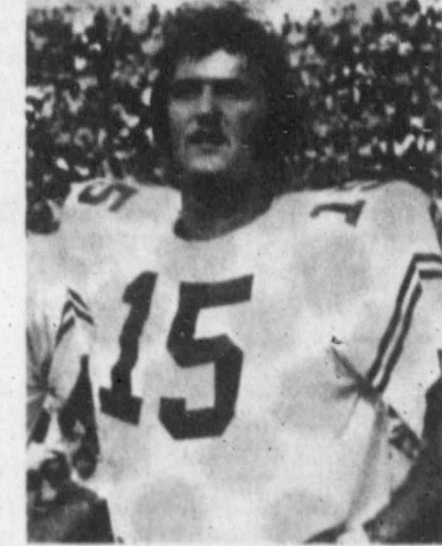

It was the debut for Coach Fred Akers at Texas. He succeeds 20-year-coach Darrell Royal.

True to his promise, Akers unveiled a much more active passing attack that included an 88-yard touchdown pass and run from quarterback Jon Aune to Alfred Jackson for a school record.

Sophomores Aune and Mark McBath alternated in the 96-degree heat, with McBath throwing scoring passes of 13 yards to Ronnie Miksch and 29 yards to olympic sprinter Johnny "Lam" Jones.

Erxleben, the nation's leading college punter last year with a 46.5 yard average, kicked field goals of 45, 57 and 38 yards. The 57-yarder was a display of Erxleben's leg strength, as he had to halt his motion to wait for the ball to be set down and got only a one-step approach. The kick tied his school record.

tignoni keyed a Longhorn defensive charge that held Boston College without a first down until 13:31 was left in the third quarter.

Sophomore safety Johnnie Johnson repeatedly punched back soaring punts by Jim Walton of Boston College, sprinting 57 yards with a 54-yard kick to set up Erxleben's 38-yard

Tampa Bay tops Colts by 14-0

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Top draft pick Ricky Bell scored two touchdowns, one on a pass from fourth-string rookie quarterback Randy Hedberg, to lead the Tampa Bay Buccaneers to a 14-0 upset over the Baltimore Colts in a preseason game Saturday.

Bell, a 6-foot-2 running back from the University of Southern California, scored first on a seven-yard pass play from Hedberg, 14 seconds before the half.

Fighting Irish ease past Pitt

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Favored Notre Dame kayoed Pitt quarterback Matt Cavanaugh on a first-quarter touchdown pass and turned a series of turnovers into two field goals and a touchdown in the final period, beating the Panthers 19-9 Saturday and spoiling their first attempt at defending college football's national championship.

The turnovers were just too much to overcome. Freddie Jacobs, a sophomore running back, fumbled the ball away to Notre Dame at his own 41 late in the third period but the Irish got nothing out of that break.

Adams fumbled at his own 26 early in the final period and again Notre Dame came away empty-handed.

But it was far from an impressive triumph as third-ranked Notre Dame managed just those 13 fourth-period points out of five fumbles and an interception in the final 22 minutes.

The Fighting Irish, with a whopping edge in possession of the football, finally overcame Pitt's gallant defense on field goals of 35 and 26 yards by Dave Reeve and a clinching four-yard touchdown run by Terry Eurick with 3:10 remaining.

It was the opening game for both teams and seventh-ranked Pitt seemed bent on making Coach Jackie Sherrill's debut a smashing success when it grabbed a 9-0 lead on Cavanaugh's 12-yard touchdown pass to Gordon Jones late in the opening period plus a safety on the second play of the second quarter.

But Cavanaugh, who spotted Jones all alone in the end zone after scrambling frantically, was smashed to the ground by defensive end Willie Fry and immediately headed to the dressing room clutching his left arm. X-rays disclosed a break in the radius, a major bone in the arm just below the wrist, and Cavanaugh will be sidelined for at least six weeks.

KENNY KING (30), Oklahoma fullback, finds the going tough as he falls into the grasp of Vanderbilt's Ed Smith (86), during Saturday's inter-sectional football opener for both teams in Norman. The Sooners took a narrow 25-23 win. (AP Laserphoto).

Sooners down stubborn Vandy

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Freshman quarterback Jay Jimerson came off the bench in the fourth quarter to lead the Oklahoma Sooners to a 25-23 come from behind football victory over Vanderbilt Saturday.

Down 15-11 early in the final quarter, Jimerson directed the Sooners scoring the touchdown on a 20-yard keeper. Then with Vanderbilt deep in OU territory, the Commodores tried a field goal, but it was blocked by Bud Hebert and defensive end Barry Burget scooped up the ball and raced 64 yards for the final Sooner score.

THE SOONER WISHBONE offense, which had been touted as one of the most powerful ever, sputtered all afternoon.

Senior quarterback Dean Blevins, filling in for the injured Thomas Lott, simply could not move the team. Blevins made numerous mental mistakes, had three wild pitchouts and one intercepted pass.

Finally, in the third quarter, head coach Berry Switzer inserted Lott, but it was obvious his leg injury was hampering him and the Sooners had to go to the young freshman.

Vanderbilt got on the board first by picking up a safety when Billy Sims was tackled in his own end zone after a bobbled pitch-out. Then two field goals by Greg Martin, of 32 and 20 yards, and a six-yard run by quarterback Randy Hampton gave the Commodores a 15-0 lead. Oklahoma finally got its offense a little untracked and cut the margin to 15-11 by halftime, setting the stage for Jimerson and Burget.

VANDERBILT GOT its final score on a 12-yard run by Frank Mordica with just about a minute left.

Vanderbilt took advantage of the many Oklahoma errors, with all of the Commodore scoring coming after bobbles by the Sooners. Vanderbilt had trouble moving against the Oklahoma defense, but Hampton came up with the big play when he had to have it to keep the Commodores in the game.

But the Oklahoma defense proved to be too tough for the Commodores as two blocked field goals made the difference in the game.

With only nine seconds left on the clock, Vanderbilt lined up for a 53-yard field goal attempt by Martin but Reggie Mathis blocked it to preserve the victory for the Sooners.

The other blocked field goal was the one that Burget scooped up to give the Sooners what proved to be their narrow victory.

JIMERSON LED the Sooners on their only sustained drive of the game early in the fourth quarter when he took them 55 yards in 10 plays for the go-ahead touchdown. Burget's score followed a few minutes later and then it was up to the Oklahoma defense to fight off the furious last-minute rally by Vanderbilt.

Mustangs ruin debut by Dry in 45-21 rout

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Freshman quarterback Mike Ford tossed two touchdown passes to wingback Emanuel Tolbert Saturday as Southern Methodist thrashed Texas Christian 45-21 and spoiled the Southwest Conference coaching debut of new Horned Frog Coach F. A. Dry.

The season-opening loss was the 12th in a row for the hapless Horned Frogs, who have won only two of their last 32 games.

Ford connected with Tolbert for a 14-yard touchdown in the first quarter and lofted a 17-yard scoring pass to the sophomore in the third quarter.

Running back Paul Rice, who transferred to SMU this year after a problem-plagued career at two other schools, darted 38 yards for the Mustangs' first touchdown. His backfield partner, Arthur Whittington, added an 11-yard touchdown and reserve running back Derek Shelton had a four-yard touchdown gallop.

TCU's first touchdown came after defensive end Jerry Gaither picked off a Ford pass and returned it 31 yards. Steve Bayuck ignited the sputtering TCU offense for a 44-yard drive, capped by Duncan Still's one-yard touchdown play. Bayuck hit Michael Milton for a touchdown and also connected with Mike Renfro for a 12-yard touchdown.

SMU blunted the Frogs' lifeless attack with four interceptions, including one by David Hill as he returned 44 yards for a touchdown that gave SMU a 20-7 halftime bulge. A fumble recovery set up an SMU field goal in the third quarter by John Dunlop.

Ford, a heavily recruited high school prospect from Mesquite, completed 13 of 25 passes for 161 yards in his college debut. He was intercepted twice.

The poised freshman guided the Mustangs on an 84-yard drive in their first possession and engineer'd a 90-yard march in the first quarter.

Whittington had 102 yards in 20 carries while Rice, who galloped for more than 5,200 yards in his high school career at Lewisville added 60 in 14 carries in his first game as a Mustang.

Renfro, an All-SWC receiver, breathed life into the TCU attack with seven receptions, and 109 yards and one touchdown, giving him 119 career catches for more than 2,000 yards.

Southern Cal tops Missouri behind Hertel

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Rob Hertel tossed touchdown passes to Randy Simmrin and William Gay and scampered 10 yards for another tally, to lead fourth-ranked Southern Cal to a 27-10 victory over Missouri in the football season opener for both teams.

Navy downs The Citadel

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Navy, bottled up on offense for most of three quarters, broke loose for three touchdowns in the final 20 minutes of play for a 21-2 season-opening victory over the Citadel Saturday.

A blocked punt in the end zone by Dale Williams with 45 seconds left in the first half gave the Citadel a 2-0 halftime lead, and it looked for a while as if the Bulldog defense would make it stand.

But Navy quarterback Bob Leszczynski finally got his offense going midway in the third quarter, moving the Midshipmen 97 yards in three plays. Leszczynski connected on three consecutive passes for 78 yards to cap the drive, with the touchdown coming on a 28-yarder to Richard Celson.

Navy scored again early in the final period after split end Phil McConkey returned a punt 51 yards to the Citadel 21 yard line. Freshman tailback Steve Callahan got 16 of those 21 yards on three carries and scored the touchdown from nine yards out.

Hertel, throwing with pinpoint accuracy, drove the Trojans 73 yards midway through the fourth period after the Tigers closed to within three points. In the final seconds, his 10-yard touchdown burst clinched the victory and avenged a 46-25 loss the Tigers inflicted on Southern Cal in last year's opener.

Charles White, the latest in a long line of great Trojan tail backs, gained more than 150 yards and scored USC's first touchdown with an 18-yard dash in the first quarter.

With two minutes remaining in the first half, USC took over on its own 24 but a penalty left the Trojans with a second-and-23 situation. Hertel, who amassed 193 passing yards in the first half, hit Simmrin for 32 yards. Then, with eight seconds remaining, he dropped back and threw 25 yards to Simmrin in the end zone.

USC—White 18 run (Soree kick); USC—Simmrin 22 pass from Hertel (Soree kick); MO—Granville 1 run (Brookhous kick); USC—FG 23 Brookhous; USC—Gay 1 pass from Hertel (kick failed); USC—Hertel 10 run (Soree kick); A—65:28.

Cougars upset Cornhuskers

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Jack Thompson threw two touchdown passes and Paul Watson added a field goal to lead unranked Washington State to a 19-10 upset victory over No. 15 Nebraska in a non-conference college football game Saturday.

It was something of a homecoming-style victory for Cougar Coach Warren Powers, who left Nebraska's coaching staff last year. His victory over NU Coach Tom Osborne marked his head coaching debut.

After a scoreless first quarter, Washington State's Cougars grabbed a 7-0 lead in the second stanza when Thompson hit split end Brian Kelly with a 19-yard TD pass.

The score was set up when the Cougars recovered Husker Mike Linder's fumble on a punt return at the Nebraska 25.

Junior quarterback Tom Sorley came off the bench to lead Nebraska 79 yards in 10 plays, the last a 20-yard scoring run by I-back Rick Burns with 3:27 left in the half.

Thompson hit Kelly with a 20-yard scoring pass with 4:05 left in the third quarter, giving the Pacific 8 visitors a 14-7 lead over their Big 8 hosts.

Aggies capture opener

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Fullback George Woodard ripped for three touchdowns and halfback Curtis Dickey raced 48 yards for another Saturday as ninth-ranked Texas A&M overpowered Kansas 28-14 in the non-conference football opener for both schools.

Woodard did all his damage in the second period as the Aggies marched to a 21-0 halftime lead.

Kansas threatened to make the game close when it struck for two touchdowns in the third quarter.

Two of Woodard's scores came in a 2:36 span of the second period when the Aggie defense victimized Jayhawk quarterback Brian Bethke recovering two fumbles.

An errant Bethke pitchout set up the Aggies at the Kansas 14. On the next play, the 265-pound Woodard slashed through the Kansas line, broke three tackles and stumbled into the end zone.

Bethke fumbled again on the next Kansas possession giving A&M the ball at the Kansas 20.

Five plays later Woodard crashed over from the one-yard line to give the Aggies a 14-0 lead.

The Kansas offense failed again and the Aggies started at their own 47 after taking a punt.

After Dickey gained two yards, Woodard ran to his right, cut back to his left and raced 51 yards for his third touchdown, carrying a Kansas defender on his back the last six yards.

Dickey's 48-yard touchdown romp in the third period finished the Aggie scoring.

Woodard finished the day with 150 yards on 20 carries and Dickey had 136 yards on 14 rushes.

Kansas lost its starting quarterback, Mark Vicendese, when he twisted his ankle on the fourth play of the game, and backup Bethke finished the game for the Jayhawks.

Kansas finally scored on a razzle-dazzle play with 4:18 left in the third period.

Decision will leave scars

Four days have passed now since the District 5-4A Executive Committee met in Big Spring, and there still is a great deal of bitterness over what happened there. The outcome, and more specifically, the way the entire incident was handled has left some deep scars that probably will never disappear.

The fact of the matter is that Wednesday's meeting was a joke. There's simply no other way to describe it. Looking back on it now, I really think the Keystone Cops could have handled the whole thing better than the UIL and the 5-4A Executive Committee did.

THE FAULT of the UIL is that they didn't handle it at all. Like a modern day Pontius Pilate, they cleansed their hands of it all. Bailey Marshall, the League's director general in Austin, believed that it was up to the district to "clean up its own house," even though it was clear even to a fool to see that there weren't enough objective people in the district to do that.

Lee had already been punished for breaking Rule 24 of the UIL code, and Odessa, Abilene and Big Spring were being charged with doing the same. If you're counting, that left San Angelo as the only school district which wouldn't be looking at the case through tinted glasses.

But the UIL didn't see it that way — if indeed they saw it at all. There has been quite a bit of speculation as to just how much actual communication there was between the league office and the executive committee during the whole affair. Some people are of the opinion that Bailey Marshall didn't, and still doesn't know all of the facts.

Some people may be right. I tried to get in touch with Marshall for two solid days to ask him about it, but his secretary told me he was in Tunisia or some place like that.

SO, THE executive committee met Wednesday to clean house, and they did it in a way that challenges even my limited intelligence. Big Spring, Odessa and Abilene were being charged with breaking the same rule Lee did, and after two and a half hours of debate, all three were given the right to vote on the subject of their own guilt or innocence.

There is absolutely no way anyone can justify that. When Lee was charged and convicted two weeks earlier, Dr. James Malley, the Midland schools superintendent, not only didn't get to vote on behalf of Lee, but was also denied the right to vote on behalf of Midland High. At Wednesday's meeting though, the superintendents in Abilene and Odessa not only got to vote for Permain and Cooper, who were not being charged with anything, but for the accused schools as well. It boggles the mind, doesn't it?

WHAT IT comes down to is that the three superintendents had the power (five of the eight district votes) to kill this thing before it even got started. And they did.

Just imagine if our American legal system operated on that same premise. People like the Boston Strangler and Charles Manson could have served on the same juries that were hearing their murder cases. It's very unlikely that they would have voted guilty, although I haven't talked to either of them in the last few weeks.

It's a totally ridiculous idea, and yet that's exactly what the executive committee did Wednesday, and more. I say more because the accused were actually in the majority at the meeting, and controlled the vote. The committee handed Abilene, Odessa and Big Spring the power to acquit themselves, and not being fools they used it.

The charges against Odessa and Big Spring were never really that solid, but the same cannot be said of the Abilene case, and many people close to the whole picture feel Abilene just flat out lied at Wednesday's meeting when they said they never used the blocking dummies during contact drills.

THERE IS a coach in West Texas who has absolutely no reason to lie, and he still claims to have seen Abilene use the dummies for contact. But it would do absolutely no good for him to come forward and call them liars because it would be just his word against theirs, and that would never hold up in a court of law let alone another Executive Committee gathering.

This thing hasn't died yet. In fact, there may still be repercussions from all of this. No one is quite sure yet whether or not another district has the power to lodge a protest against 5-4A once the football playoffs begin later this year. And God only knows who there going to let interpret that rule. Maybe me.

THE GUILT or innocence of the three schools that were charged is not my gripe here. It's true that the charges were probably made more out of bitterness and a belief that Lee had been railroaded than anything else. And it's also true that the letters sent to the UIL by Don Luttrell and an anonymous junior high coach were loaded with inaccuracies.

But they were charges just the same and they should have been investigated properly, not like something out of a Three Stooges show.

For the sake of Texas high school athletics, the UIL is going to have to re-examine its entire reason for existence, and especially it's "clean up your own house" policy, which is commendable but not very sound.

What happened Wednesday has left a bad smell in the air, and if the UIL had taken a stand on what was going on instead of sitting on their rears down in Austin, that smell could have been avoided.

field goal as the first half ended. Texas led 23-0 after two periods.

Boston College never advanced past the Texas 19. On fourth and two from the 19, quarterback Joe O'Brien was stopped by linebacker Morgan Copeland and defensive end Henry Williams for a two-yard loss.

Subs played the final quarter for Texas, and the second team offensive line was in the game when Aune threw to Jackson at midfield. Jackson caught the ball backing up and, after the defender fell out of bounds, sprinted for the long-range touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Halfback Earl Campbell, a 220-pound senior, apparently returned to his All-Southwest Conference form by running 17 times for 87 yards, including a 31-yard dash that set up Mike's catch for Texas' first touchdown.

In addition to his three field goals, Ersklen had two punts of 47 yards, including one that was down on the Boston College one-yard line.

Texas' margin might have been even greater, except for a sensational performance by linebacker Rich Scudellari of Boston College.

Swab paces Rice to 31-10 victory over Vandals

HOUSTON — Sophomore quarterback Jeff Swab, leading a parade of would-be replacements for All-American Tommy Kramer, tossed a 76-yard touchdown pass to David Houser and Bo Broeren scored twice Saturday night to ignite Rice to a 31-10 college football victory over Idaho.

Swab, who inherited the starting job from the graduated Kramer, failed to move the offense in the first quarter and Coach Homer Rice also used freshman Randy Hertel and junior college transfer Mark Snyder, both California imports.

But Rice returned to Swab in the second quarter and the Tulsa, Oklahoma product responded by hitting Houser on a slantin pattern for the 76-yard bomb.

Wes Hansen kicked a 30-yard field goal earlier in the second quarter to give the Owls a 10-0 halftime lead. The Vandals got out of their own end of the field only twice in the sluggish first half.

Broeren gave the Owls a 24-3 bulge with touchdowns runs of 38 and five yards in the third quarter when the Owls had already rushed for 153 yards, topping their best 1976 effort of 152 yards.

Earl Cooper, who sparked the strong Rice rushing attack with 167 yards on 24 carries, scored Rice's final touchdown with a 66-yard run with less 1:42 left in the game.

Ralph Lowe kicked a 30-yard field goal between Broeren's touchdown runs for Idaho's first points. Vandal quarterback Craig Juntunen set up the kick with a 43-yard keeper.

Juntunen romped 12 yards with 41 seconds left in the third quarter for Idaho's touchdown to complete a 90-yard drive.

The Owls, one of the top passing teams in the nation last year behind Kramer, fulfilled a promise by Coach Rice that the running game would be improved.

Cooper, who gained only 99 yards on 31 carries as an Owl freshman last year, led the Owl rushing revolution. Rice finished with 240 yards rushing and 183 passing.

Houser, one of the leading receivers in the nation last season, fielded Swab's bomb at his own 34-yard line in the second quarter. Houser headed for midfield and ran untouched into the end zone boosted Rice to its 10-0 halftime lead.

Broeren, a sophomore squadman, took over in the third quarter with his 38-yard run. He bulled through the middle for a short gain, broke a tackle at the 10 and ran into the end zone standing.

Broeren was back in the end zone again with a five-yard touchdown run late in the third quarter. Charlie Taylor helped set up the score with a 55-yard kickoff return to the Idaho 38.

Lee girls place 4th in tourney

SAN ANGELO — The Midland Lee volleyball team placed fourth here Saturday in the Angelo State Volleyball Tournament of Champions.

The Rebels of Coach Linda Weikel made it all the way to the semifinals of the 16-team tournament before they were beaten by Big Spring, 15-4, 15-2. In the consolation game for third place, Snyder downed the Tall City club, 15-7, 15-4.

Midland High was also in the tournament, but was beaten in the second round by El Paso Coronado, 14-4, 14-3.

Big Spring won the event, defeating that same Coronado team in the championship final.

Lee was led by all-tournament performer Julie Ochsner, who demonstrated some extremely strong spiking in the competition, and setter DeAnn Cravens.

The Rebels downed Dunbar in the first round, 15-6, 15-13, and then went an hour and a half with Brownwood before winning that one, 7-13, 15-11, 15-13.

They came back in the second game behind some key spikes by Ochsner and outstanding court play by Deb Korthauer and Cheryl Guthrie.

In the loss to Big Spring, the Rebs were hurt by a lack of consistency, and a collapse of their spiking game.

Joining Ochsner on the all-tournament team were Coronado's Tana Beall, Snyder's Eva Rich, San Angelo's True Evans, and Big Spring's Rose Majors and Becky Ragan.

Auburn downs Arizona by 21-10

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Jorge Portela made his varsity debut by kicking four field goals, and running back Joe Cribbs piled up 121 yards and Auburn's only touchdown Saturday in leading the Tigers to a 21-10 football victory over Arizona in the season's opener for both teams.

Portela, a 5-9, 187-pound sophomore from Miami, Fla., booted a 36 yard field goal in the second period and came back in the final quarter with three more — 47 yards, 37 and 30.

The four field goals tied the Auburn record shared by John Riley and Neil O'Donoghue. Portela also kicked four in a game last year when he played on the junior varsity.

Cribbs, a 5-10, 190-pound sophomore from Sulligent, Ala., broke through for 8 yards and a touchdown in the first quarter. He walked off the field at the end of the game with 121 yards in 17 plays for an average of just over 7 yards per carry.

Razorbacks rip New Mexico St.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Running back Ben Cowins rushed for 156 yards and Arkansas' two quarterbacks — Ron Calcagni and Houston Nutt — accounted for a total of five touchdowns as the Razorbacks whipped New Mexico State 53-10 Saturday night.

The victory marked the debut of coach Lou Holtz, who left the New York Jets last year to succeed Frank Broyles as head coach of the Razorbacks.

Cowins, the leading rusher in the Southwest Conference last year, gave the Arkansas offense some consistency while the Razorbacks ironed out the first-game kinks.

Calcagni, the No. 1 quarterback, hooked up with wide receiver Donny Bobo on an 81-yard pass play and raced 23 yards for another touchdown. Holtz had promised that Nutt and the No. 2 offensive unit would get plenty of play in time, no matter what the situation.

Nutt scored on a one-yard run and three two scoring passes. Arkansas' three touchdowns in the game equaled the 1976 Razorback output.

The Aggies, who opened the season last week with a 29-7 victory over Southern Illinois University, could do little against the Arkansas defense, led by linebacker William Hampton, end Cornelius Smith and noseman Dale White. In fact the Aggies did not make a first down under their own power until six minutes deep in the third quarter. At that time Arkansas led 22-7.

Despite the lack of offense, the Aggies held a 7-0 lead with less than two minutes gone in the game. Alan Trotter intercepted Calcagni's pass on Arkansas' first play, and returned it 31 yards to the Arkansas eight.

Quarterback Rick Horacek scored from the two on second down.

Arkansas came right back and went 94 yards in nine plays. The big play was a 51-yard run by Cowins on a third-and-two situation at the Arkansas 14. Cowins, who carried 17 times before leaving the game at third quarter, scored six plays later on a three-yard run.

The Razorbacks scored again late in the first period when Bobo turned an underthrown Nutt pass into a 38-yard gain with a leaping reception in front of safety Frank Domanguex at the Aggies' three. Nutt scored on fourth down.

Hampton gave Arkansas a 167 half-time lead when he blocked a punt out of the end zone late in the second quarter.

Calcagni's long pass to Bobo made it 22-7, five minutes deep in the third period.

Texas A&I wins

LIVINGSTON, Ala. (AP) — Quarterback Martin Stroman sprinted for 117 yards, including a four-yard touchdown run, and hit Glenn Starks for a 59-yard touchdown pass to lead Texas A&I to its 40th consecutive victory, a 21-13 non-conference decision over Livingston State.

The two teams were tied 7-7 at the half. A&I's Larry Collins went over from two yards out for the Javelinas' final touchdown.

Livingston scored on its first possession.

It was the opener for both teams.

Bulldogs prevail

SEATTLE (AP) — Touchdowns and fullback quarterback Bruce Dennis Johnson rushed for 113 yards and caught a TD pass as 16th-ranked Mississippi State defeated Washington 27-18 in the Huskies' season-opener Saturday.

Saints winners

NEW ORLEANS — A tough defense and an outstanding quarterback job by Bobby Scott gave the New Orleans Saints a 20-16 victory over the Houston Oilers in a National Football League preseason game Saturday night.

The defense was at its strongest in the second half, holding the Oilers to two first downs and picking off three passes by aging quarterback John Hadl.

Scott hit 13 of 17 passes for 197 yards before leaving the game. The Oilers scores came on a six-yard pass from Dan Pastorini to wide receiver Ken Burrough, a three-yard burst by running back Ronnie Coleman and a 38-yard field goal by Skip Butler as the gun went off to signal the end of that period.

Dave Marler kicked field goals of 36 yards in the second period and 44 yards in the third quarter for the Bulldogs, who beat North Texas State in their season opener last week.

Wyoming's deepest penetration was the Air Force 16 in the third quarter when sophomore kicker Dan Christopolis failed on a 33-yard field goal attempt that fell wide to the left.

Invitational meet set

By PAUL DOMOWITZ

Defending women's singles champion Anne Smith will be returning to defend her title next weekend when the Midland Tennis Club-sponsored Invitational Tennis Tournament begins its 17th run in the Tall City.

The festivities get underway Monday with a kick-off luncheon scheduled for noon in the executive dining room of First National Bank.

Smith, the hard-hitting 18-year old who won the women's title a year ago while still in high school, will be looking for her second straight Invitational crown, this time under the banner of Trinity University.

Trinity is just one of the many outstanding college teams entered in the tournament. Others include TCU, SMU, Texas A&M, Pan American, Texas Tech, West Texas State, Central Texas, Oklahoma, Baylor, Midland College, Odessa College, and UTPB, as well as a host of top independents.

While Smith will be back to defend her title, 1976 men's champion Keith Diepraam will not. A scheduling conflict will keep the Midland Country Club pro out of the competition.

With Diepraam out, and 1976 runner-up Bill Matyastik out on the pro circuit, the early favorite and likely number one seed will be Trinity All-American Larry Gottfried. Gottfried was seeded second last year, but was upset in the quarterfinals by David Bryant, 6-4, 6-2.

Gottfried's Trinity teammate and doubles partner, freshman Erick Iersky from Toledo, Ohio, is also highly-regarded.

TCU's Randy Crawford and Tut Bartzon, Jr. are two of the best netmen in the Southwest Conference and cannot be taken lightly either. Crawford was the number three seed at the 1976 Invitational, but was beaten in the fourth round by Tom Courson of Texas A&M. Bartzon was not seeded a year ago, and was eliminated in the third round by Pan American star John Picken. Picken will be back again this year.

Smith is assured of the top seed in women's singles, and it doesn't seem likely that anyone in this year's field is capable of de-throning her. It's not that the rest are that poor. It's just that Anne is that good.

The Dallas resident has played Wimbledon and Forest Hills this summer, looking impressive in both.

Twice, she gave Billie Jean King all she could handle. Many people are speculating that she'll just stay at Trinity long enough to win an NCAA championship before turning pro.

If anyone can offer Smith a challenge, though, it will likely be SMU's Kim Steinmetz. Steinmetz, who was seeded third last year behind Vicki Lancaster Kerr and Smith, was beaten in the quarterfinals by her Mustang teammate, Wendy Hitt. Hitt has since graduated.

SMU has another outstanding performer in Anne Broyles, who made it all the way to the final round of eight in 1976 before succumbing to Kerr, the former national junior college champ from Midland College, 1-6, 6-3, 6-1.

A girl who could surprise is 18-year-old Angela Bartzon, a freshman at TCU who won the girls' Texas high school AAAA title five months ago.

Two high school netwomen who can not be taken lightly are Beaumont French's Susan Fancher and Midland High's Vicki Vasicek. Fancher lost to Bartzon in the AAAA finals in three sets, while Vasicek, just a junior at MHS, had Bartzon on the ropes in the AAAA semifinals, before the humidity got to her.

Japanese writer defends Mr. Oh

(Mr. Shibusawa, a veteran sportswriter for the Tokyo newspaper, Yomiuri Shimbun, has responded to a column last week in the Washington Post in which Ken Denlinger wrote that Sadaharu Oh's home run feats were not comparable to Henry Aaron's American major-league record of 755 home runs.)

By RYOICHI SHIBUSAWA
Special to The Washington Post

TOKYO — I see nothing to be gained by comparing the two great home run hitters — Sadaharu Oh of the Tokyo Giants and Henry Aaron, formerly of the Atlanta Braves and Milwaukee Brewers.

To arrive at some valid judgment, we need a legitimate standard of comparison, which we of course don't have. Oh himself dealt with the issue of a comparison best when he told the packed stadium and national television audience on the night of home run number 756: "I don't care whether my record is the number one in the world, I am satisfied that people know that in Japan a man hit 756 home runs."

INEVITABLE, OH's achievement of belting 756 home runs has stimulated comparisons with Aaron, some have argued that it took Oh only 19 years and 2,425 games to better a mark set by Aaron in 23 playing seasons and 3,275 games.

On the other hand, it must be read-ly admitted that there are more powerful hitters in the American major leagues than the 5-foot-8, 170-pound Oh. And the U.S. ballparks are indisputably bigger and the fences farther. If a power-hitting American played 19 years in Japan, it is conceivable that he would have hit more round-trippers than Oh.

It is also conceivable that had Aaron played 23 seasons and 3,275 games in Japan he would have hit fewer than 755 home runs. One of the few weaknesses Aaron had was hitting the low breaking ball, which happens to be the strength of so many Japanese pitchers.

Actually, some of Oh's other numerous records are more brilliant, if less celebrated, than his home run total. He has won the triple crown twice and is presently pursuing his 15th home run title in his 19-year career. And he has been named the league's most valuable player eight times (no American has won the honor in more than three seasons).

MR. OH, as he is known in Japan, is more than just a great baseball player. He is the national hero in Japan and a source of tremendous national pride. His unorthodox "flamingo" stance, with his front leg raised and bat cocked as he waits for the pitch, and his booming home runs have made him the most exciting athlete in the country.

But it is Mr. Oh's human qualities that have most endeared him to so many millions of Japanese. He has worked tremendously hard to perfect his batting style and timing and build up his strength. He is always modest and polite, traits that are highly valued here. And, through all the glory and fanfare, he has remained a consummate team player.

But in one area Mr. Oh is without comparison. The love of his countrymen. I understand that Aaron's 755th home run flew out of the stadium without anyone going after it.

Pagel claims TL homer title

Midland Cubs outfielder Karl Pagel, despite a power slump the final month and a half of the season, wound up the Texas League home run champion with 28 boundary belts.

Pagel, who reports to the Fall Instructional League in Arizona this month, beat out El Paso's Steve Strouther, 25, and Amarillo's Ivan Murrell, 24 while El Paso's Jay Peters finished fourth with 22.

El Paso's Tommy Smith won the batting title with a .366 while Tulsa's Billy Samples finished second at .348.

Pagel, the former University of Texas outfielder, wound up with a league-leading .637 slugging average after carrying a .700-plus power mark most of the season.

STROUGHTER TOPPED the TL in runs batted in with 116 while Pagel finished second with 104. Sample led in triples with 13 while Strouther had the most doubles, 35.

The Diablos' Gil Kubski compiled the most at-bats, 542; runs, 113; and hits, 176.

In addition to his slugging and homer titles, Pagel won two others, one he'd just as soon forget about: walks, 88, and strikeouts, 117.

Tulsa's speedy Eddie Miller, called up to the Texas Rangers at the season's end, was the stolen base leader with 80 in 94 attempts.

In pitching, Shreveport's Rick Honeycutt posted the best earned-run average 2.47 while compiling a 10-6 won-lost record. JACKSON'S MIKE Scott led in victories with 14 and complete games with 14. Top relievers were Arkansas' Bryan Kurosaki and El Paso's Chuck Wilson, both finishing with 14 saves.

Jackson's Juan Berenguer was the strikeout king with 160.

In team statistics, El Paso posted a remarkable .311 team batting with a TL topping 161 homers, easily outdistancing second place San Antonio's 91 homers. Midland finished second in team batting with 280 and led the league in men left on base with 992.

Midland posted the league's best fielding average .969 while El Paso was second with .966.

Midland's pitching staff finished seventh in ERA with a 4.79 and led the league in home runs surrendered, 116, 10 more than El Paso pitchers allowed.

THE CUBS did lead in most complete games, 39, beating out Tulsa, the shutout leader with 13, by one.

El Paso won both halves in the West while Tulsa won the first half in the East and Arkansas, which finished with an overall 63-67 record, took the second half and gained the championship finals by defeating Tulsa.

Midland took second in both halves, posting a 34-30 record to finish five games out of the first half and a 36-30 record to windup three games behind the Diablos in the last half.

No blue ribbons, but good year

Midland's Cubs wound up their sixth season of Texas League residency in the Tall City as a Chicago Cubs farm club, the first under local ownership, and while there were no blue ribbons, the memory lingers of an entertaining and successful year, artistically and maybe, just maybe, financially.

Midland was one of only three clubs to finish the season with a better than .500 record, second best in the entire league, for that matter, yet knows how Colgate felt in 1932 when the Red Raiders were unbeaten, untied, unscored upon and uninvented.

The Cubs took the Diablos, the team with the best overall record, to the final week in both halves before fading from the running.

"LET'S BE honest," reviews General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr., "they just had a better club than we did. I don't know where they keep coming up with the talent they bring through this league year after year. It's just as strange in view of their success here, it hasn't eventually shown up on the major league level."

The depth of El Paso's quality manifested itself in two ways. The Diablos won the first half pennant, lost many of the key players responsible when the Angels made wholesale mid-season promotions to Salt Lake, yet still had sufficient talent from the Class A Salinas club in the California League to win the second half.

And amazingly, the Diablos became only the fourth club in Texas League history to bat better than .300 as a team. The others were Wichita Falls in 1930, and El Paso in 1962 and 1974.

AFTER FIVE years of outright ownership by Chicago, Midland became a working agreement affiliate at the season's start when Max Christensen and Bernard Lankford purchased the club.

After a slow start at the gate, attendance picked up as the race turned into June and the season produced two all-time Midland Texas League baseball crowds, 3,357 July 4 for a Kiwanis Club baseball fireworks bargain bill. And later, well over 2,000 packed the park for a First National Bank night.

Bill hasn't checked the figures for previous seasons, but we're willing to bet the Cubs drew more 900-plus crowds than ever before.

"We still have money in the bank," says Rigney, "but we won't know until we pay August's bills how close we'll come to breaking even."

SEASON BOX seat holders who didn't use their tickets in the first half of the season were allowed to turn them in for grandstand seats in the second half. The benefit was reflected at the gate in June, July and August and, encouragingly, an increasing number of young family groups began showing up regularly.

Midland thus seemed in step with the nationwide trend, which, according to a recent Harris poll, has seen baseball ascend to its premiere position in the hearts of the nation's sports fans, causing Rigney to remark, "Good, I'm glad to hear it, but I never knew it had been away."

On the field, the Cubs probably were the youngest in point of experience ever to represent Midland, yet the Cubs made a race of both halves and might even have upset El Paso, but for injuries and a bullpen that often let games out of the bag in the late innings.

ALTHOUGH FANS sometimes weren't aware of it, Jim Saul's managerial options were seriously hampered. Early in the season he lost infielder Karl Gordon, injury, and Bill Huisman, retirement, depriving him of late-inning maneuverability.

And the final week of the season, Saul was forced to make a short-handed run at the pennant when two regular outfielders, Karl Pagel and Joe Hernandez, were sidelined by injuries.

But it was a hot-and-cold blowing bullpen that hurt the Cubs most. When Andy Muhlstock was moved into a starting role, Saul lost his top reliever, eight saves. His best lefthander out of the bullpen, George Riley, went to Wichita for a month and Byron Wilkerson, so effective the first two months after conversion from a starter to reliever, was mysteriously afflicted by gopherballitis, a malady that made his life miserable the last half of the season.

Things were so bad at times, that when it became obvious a starter was laboring and needed rescue, when you saw who got up in the bullpen, Saul's dilemma became most obvious. You figured his best bet was to gamble a little longer that the struggling starter might rescue himself.

IT WAS a season of extremes for VP

But in the last month and a half he couldn't buy or beg either and wound up with 104 rbi, four short of the club mark, and with 28 homers, one short of the record.

Muhlstock, a throw-in in the Bill Madlock-Rob Sperring for Murcer, Ontiveros trade with the Giants, wound up as Midland's top pitcher with a 12-5 record and those eight early-season saves.

The Penn grad will get a good look from Turner next spring along with Darrell Turner, 13 wins, Jack Ledbetter, 12 wins, and perhaps Jeff

Zorn no longer running

SEATTLE (AP) — Jim Zorn, the Seattle Seahawks' gifted young quarterback, isn't running as often as he did last season, and it's getting him in trouble.

"I've been hesitant in scrambling, but I think I should do more than I have," Zorn said. "I've been trying to pass every time. That's gotten me in trouble."

In his first National Football League season in 1976, Zorn tied running back Don Testerman as Seattle's second-leading rusher with 246 yards. Many of Zorn's jaunts were crowd-pleasing sprints for first downs. Four of them were for touchdowns.

In five preseason games this year, Zorn has rushed only 15 times for 35 yards. His longest gain has been four yards.

Albert, 9-11. The Cubs got solid performances out of iron man shortstop Steve Davis, 13 homers and a steady glove; Kurt Seibert, who came up from Pompano, after the departure of Keith Drumright to Wichita, to play second and become a prime instigator of Midland rallies with his ability to reach first and make things happen.

After two previous tries, Aaron Randall proved a valuable and versatile hand as a switch-hitting outfielder, first baseman and DH Duane Gustavson, a former All-Big 10 pick at Wisconsin, came into the season as one of Chicago's brightest catching prospects and batted .291.

The Cubs finished with four .300 hitters, Hernandez at .302 and Mike Umfleet at .300 after returning from Wichita and, of course, Pagel's .334. But the Jimmy Buckner was the year's biggest surprise...and find.

Released by the Orioles in 1976, Bill's kid brother got a look from Midland in the final week of spring training at Scottsdale, but there was no room. He went home to California and played semipro ball until May when injuries left Midland short-handed and hunting. Collecting 12 hits in the final series at San Antonio, Buckner wound up hitting more than .310.

It was also a year in which Midland got a look at the Chicago Cubs No. 1 draft pick, Gary Martz, a football quarterback at South Carolina who decided to try pitching this spring.

In his first year of college ball, all he did was go 14-0 and win the game that put the Gamecocks in the World Series finals against Arizona State. For this he was named All-America.

Life in the Texas League wasn't quite so rosy, but the righthander from Elizabethtown, Pa., won four games and with a little luck could have won a couple of more.

So it's over for another year until spring brings its annual promise of riches and glory in late summer. Some of the 1977 Cubs will be back. Some, hopefully, will go on to higher leagues.

Midland's success in 1978 probably will depend on replacements up from the Class A and rookie leagues and the prospects there are much better than they were a year ago, which gives Cubs fans something to look forward to.

Lee's Hopper takes second

ODESSA — Steve Hooper took second place in the Odessa West Texas Running Club's cross-country meet Saturday. The Midland Lee junior ran the two-mile course in nine minutes, 56 seconds.

Allen Jones took fourth and Robert Samuels fifth. Holly Franz of Lee, running in the Girls Open Division, three miles, finished second. Lee's next meet is Oct. 1, the Odessa College Invitational.

BOWLING BEAT

Junior bowling proves popular

By RANDY ISENBERG

Junior bowling heads the topic in this week's bowling beat. In many areas of the country, including cities in Texas, youth bowling has gained in popularity outstripping football, baseball, and other organized sports.

It has become a part of many Junior and Senior high school physical education programs; and is one of the most popular P.E. courses taught in college.

The need for developing bowling lies in one simple principle. Occupy youngsters with worthwhile recreational activities and they will develop positive goals thru which they will apply to their everyday lives and help them as they mature into adults.

Anyone can make the bowling team. And in most youth bowling programs a certified coach is on hand to help with the instruction. Bowling builds confidence, because as a youngster improves on the lanes through hard work and dedication he gains emotionally by this self improvement.

But most important is that bowling is fun. Kids love it. They meet with their friends once a week on a regular basis, meet new friends and develop new interests together. Lifetime friendships are made on the lanes in their weekly meetings.

Now is the time to get your youngsters involved in youth bowling. For more information about youth bowling in Midland, call Super Bowl, at 694-9521 and Air Park Lanes, 683-4683.

THE FALL bowling season is getting under way in Midland and around the world in ABC and WILBC sanctioned league plays. League secretaries are encouraged to leave copies of their high games and series bowled in their leagues each week as well as any other notable accomplishments. Leave copies at the control desk or phone them into Randy Isenberg, at 683-4683. The deadline is Friday noon.

IN TOP form during the week were Mike McCreary who while bowling in the Petroleum National League exploded for a fine 244 game to pace the men and Wanda Robertson turned in a fine 228 game edging out Jo Ann Bowen who rolled a 223 in the Sparettes Ladies League.

Lillian Naquin who bowled consistently for her fine 572 series and "Last year, if the pass wasn't there, I'd run with it," said Zorn, the National Conference's Offensive Rookie of the Year in 1976 when he passed for 2,571 yards and 12 touchdowns.

"This year the pass hasn't been there, and I've been trying to force it in there." The result has been 10 interceptions, including seven in Seattle's last two games.

No one has told the 24-year-old Zorn not to run with the ball. "It's always been, 'Run if you've got it.' I'm not going to change my play," said the lefthanded quarterback. "If the pass isn't there, I'm going to be scrambling to run."

"I like to run. It's fun. I don't make many yards because the pursuit is so good in pro football. I'm not going to crack anybody's head. I don't want to be put out of a game by some linebacker that I try to run over. If I see them closing in, I go down. That's what I'm told to do. I'm not out to be the leading rusher on the team."

Jack Patera, Seattle's head coach, says, "We never wanted him to be a scrambler. We do have certain plays where he has the option to run. But if he can make 20 yards throwing, why run for five?"

"He wasn't sure what to do last year. He'd call a pass into the wrong defense. But there also were more offensive breakdowns last year. He's so much better this year there's no necessity to come out running helter-skelter."

He's throwing interceptions, but he's also calling a lot of good plays. Last year he ran when he should have thrown. This year he has thrown when he should have run for five. That'll work itself out."

Minnesota wins grid opener

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Paul Rogind booted an 18-yard field goal with six seconds left to give Minnesota a 10-7 victory over Western Michigan in a nonconference college football opener Saturday.

The Gophers pushed the ball down to the one-yard line, but couldn't punch it in on two plays up the middle and settled for the field goal.

Western Michigan tied the game 7-7 early in the third quarter. Elmer Bailey fumbled at his own 26 on the Gophers' first offensive series after the kickoff and George Bullock recovered for Western Michigan.

Steeler fan Dorsett unhappy with Cowboys

BY TED BATTLES

Tony Dorsett is a Pittsburgh Steeler fan, but that's not why he is unhappy with the Dallas Cowboys.

"I grew up as a Steeler fan and I know most of the guys," explained the 1976 Heisman Trophy winner, who as a rookie is counted upon as Dallas' ticket to the Super Bowl in January.

"I'll be rooting for them to win next week and I'll be rooting for them to win every week until Nov. 20," Tony went on Nov. 20 is the date the Steelers and Cowboys meet again.

Dorsett, despite sentiment, is hoping that one comes out like Thursday's game and so does everybody else, but no one really believes it will be that easy.

MENTAL PREPARATION was the difference in Thursday's 30-0 lark for the Cowboys. Humiliated a week earlier by the Houston Oilers, the Cowboys were out for redemption against a class opponent before the home fans.

It was a matter of restoring the fans faith in what this year might be.

The Steelers, closing out the exhibition season on the road, couldn't have cared less. A few years ago, a younger and hungrier Steeler team took the field with something to prove, be the game sham or real. But after two Super Bowls and four years of outstanding success, this is a team that no longer feels obligated to prove anything to anyone and it eases into the NFL season at its own leisure.

LAST YEAR it was the sixth game of the regular season (four losses in the first five starts), before Pittsburgh got serious.

Still, even in make believe, Dorsett confirms that the roughians in black and gold hurt when they hit. "I got clothes-lined early and it taught me a lesson in a hurry."

Although Dorsett actually has done little to warrant the attention, the media just naturally gravitates to his locker after a game. Perhaps it's the promise of the wonders and miracles he is expected to accomplish in a Dallas uniform.

Thanks to the Heisman and playing with a national championship team and the accompanying exposure, Tony handles himself as well in an interview as he does in a broken field, exhibiting a poise not usually found in a rookie or a lot of veterans, for that matter.

So Dorsett was holding court when he revealed his unhappiness with the Cowboys, well, at least, unhappiness with the progress he is making.

"I haven't come along as I expected to," he clarifies at a summer practice, in which two leg injuries have kept under wraps, concluded.

second nature yet. I still have to think about everything before I do it."

Dorsett added, not in the form of a complaint, but as a matter of existing fact. "We have so many backs, I'm not getting enough work, enough to make the progress I'd like to. The more I carry the ball, the better I read defenses."

IN GAMES in which Dorsett has played, Tony, while limited to cameo appearances, has shown enough to whet a hungry fan's appetite, and he's learning a little something in the process.

Like the other night in the fourth quarter against the Steelers, he took a Danny White pass and almost broke it.

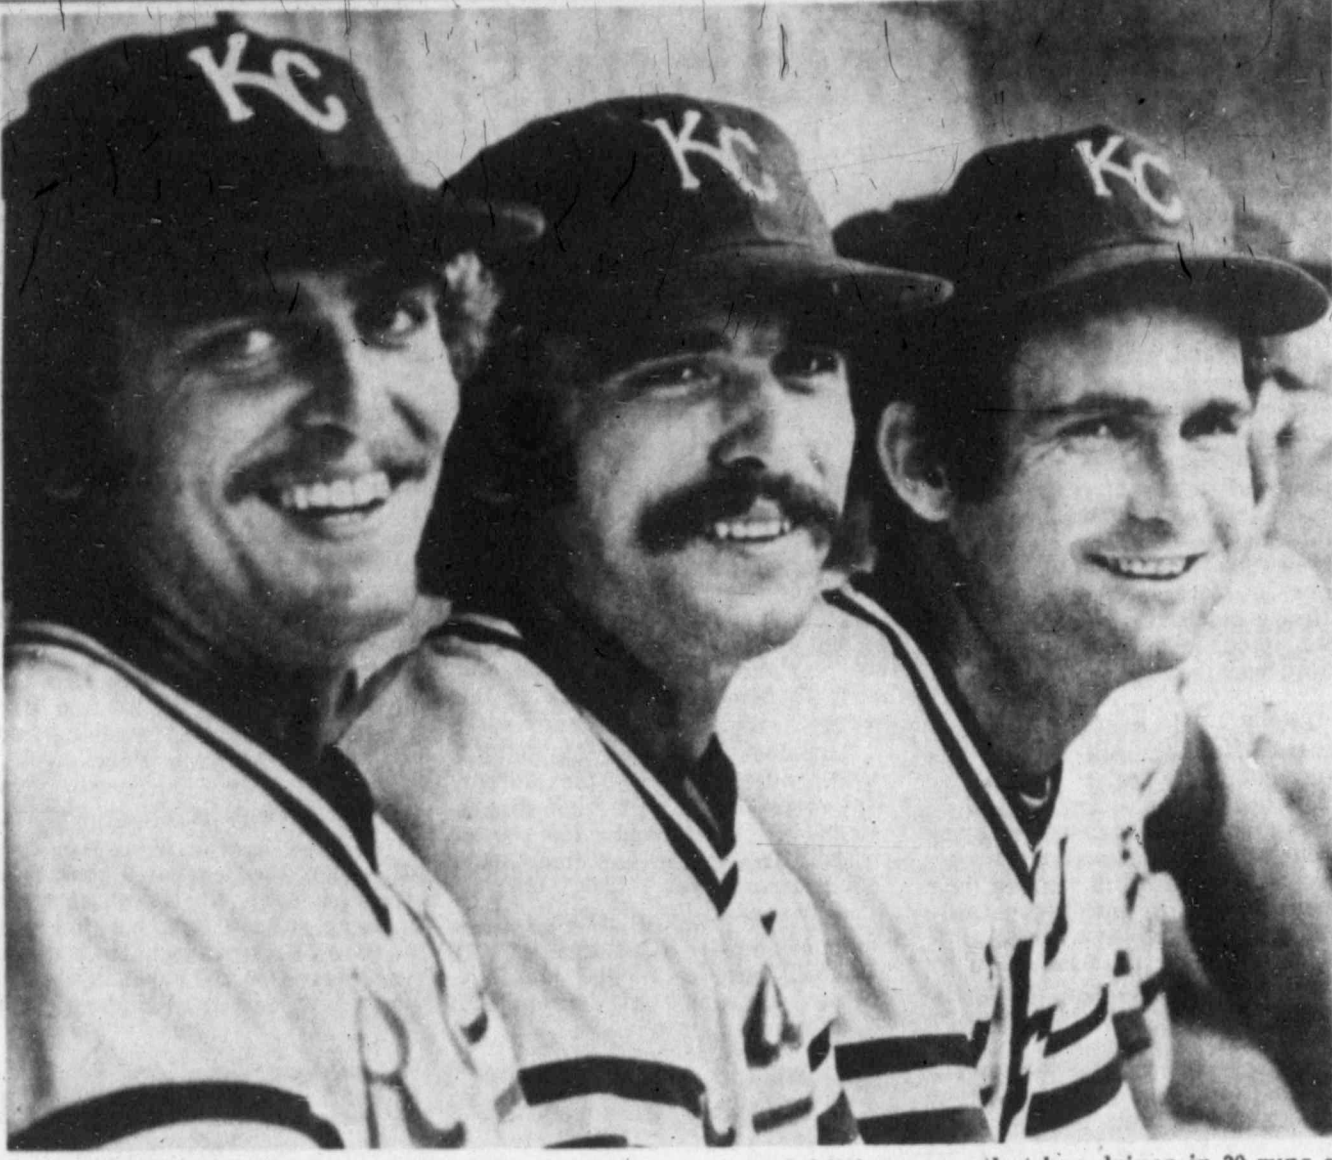

"I think I could have gone all the way, if I made a cut on Tony Dunny, (the safety from Pittsburgh). But when I caught the pass I saw that flag flutter to the ground and I was indecisive. At first, I started not to run, then decided, what the heck..."

As it turned out the penalty was against Pittsburgh. "I learned I'd better go all-out all the time in this league."

Unwinding the wrapping bandages that held foam rubber over his knees and ankles, Dorsett said, "I'm okay now. The doctor told me I don't even need to put these on any more. I just did tonight as an extra precaution."

Dorsett was obviously saying he was fit and ready for full duty to make up for the early weeks.

"But I can't complain about my playing time as long as we win. Still, there's no teacher like experience and that's what I need now."

Former Midland Cub Pete LaCock, left, Joe Zdeb, center, and John Wathan give Kansas City a .304 pinch-hitting corps that has driven in 30 runs and delivered eight game-winning hits.

Potent bench is vital to Kansas City success

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Pete LaCock is a favorite subject of baseball trivia buffs, being the son of television star Peter Marshall.

John Wathan boasts a John Wayne impression that's good enough to make the Duke's own horse do a double-take.

And Joe Zdeb has baffled more than one broadcaster with his Polish surname.

A more disparate trio might be hard to find, but LaCock, Wathan and Zdeb are three hidden reasons why the Kansas City Royals have rushed to the top of the American League West.

"Just a lot of hard work," says Charlie Lau, the Royals' hitting coach. "Most of these guys are fringe players with not all the ability in the world. But somewhere along the line they've realized the secret of making it in the big leagues."

LA Cock, WATHAN and Zdeb are the cream of a pinch hitting corps among the most consistent in the majors this season. The Royals, whose pinch hitters batted an anemic .200 in 1976, are now racing along at a .304 pace with a league-high 30 runs batted in.

"We've really got a lot of pride. We work pretty hard and everybody's got a job to do," said LaCock, who owns a .364 pinch-hitting mark.

LaCock was a member of the Midland Cubs when they made their 1972 debut in the Texas League.

Wathan is batting .375 as a pinch-hitter and Zdeb stands at .357. Zdeb, a rookie, also has three of the team's eight game-winning pinch hits, one of them with a home run.

The secret, they say, is versatility, depth, confidence and superb handling by Manager Whitey Herzog, who admits the Royals have a more versatile bench this season with left-handed batters LaCock, Joe Lahoud and Tom Poquette and righties Cookie Rojas, Wathan and Zdeb.

"PINCH HITTING is funny. Early this season we just didn't get the job done and everyone said we had no bench," said Herzog. "You just gotta get the guys up there you think hit the pitcher the best."

Herzog believes that giving his backup players some occasional start makes them more effective when a pinch hitter is needed.

"It seemed like when I was playing and I got up two or three times a week, I could always pinch hit," he said. "But I only got in five games my last year in Detroit and I couldn't do a thing."

Wathan, a second-year catcher, says a certain temperament is needed to be a successful pinch hitter. A player has to be aggressive at the plate, yet patient in waiting for his turn.

"I feel pretty relaxed up there, and just swing the best I can," he said. "There's no use crying about it. I look at it this way: not much is expected of me. If I get a hit, it's a big bonus. If not, that's it. There's no use putting more pressure on yourself."

All three pinch-hitting aces hope to get steady big-league jobs—but nobody is complaining right now.

"I like to do anything in the big leagues," said Zdeb, a 24-year-old outfielder. "It's good experience to come right in to a contending club and a pennant race."

Wathan agrees. "If you're on a losing ballclub and not playing, that's one thing," he said. "But if you're on a winner, how can you fault anyone?"

Kentucky tops North Carolina

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky quarterback Derrick Ramsey completed a crucial fourth-down pass and later braved through on a one-yard lunge late in the fourth quarter as his team scored a 10-7 college football victory over North Carolina Saturday.

Ramsey carried four straight times, starting on the three-yard-line, but was stopped twice for no gain by the rugged North Carolina line when the ball was just inches from the goal line.

North Carolina had led 7-3 on quarterback Matt Kupac's short touchdown pass to Mike Finn early in the fourth quarter. But Kentucky's break came when Mel Collins of North Carolina fumbled a punt with 7:01 to go and Kentucky's Freddie Williams recovered on North Carolina's 38.

MCC crowns net winners

The Midland Country Club Tennis Association held a member-guest tournament Wednesday, with five flight champions being crowned.

The winners in the respective flights were: Study Bedford and Sandy Bramlett, Lalque Flight; Janet Pollard and Peggy Hilton, Pewter Flight; Jody Blake and Barbara Waller, Lladro Flight; Shirley Green and Barbara Craig, Waterford Flight; and Charlotte Seay and Marvel Goodwin, Hummel Flight.

Gifts of imported crystal, pewter and statuary were awarded to the winners.

Michigan romps

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Rick Leach hurled two touchdown passes and Harlan Huckleby scored twice to power second-ranked Michigan to a 37-9 victory over Illinois Saturday in a Big Ten football opener.

A record opening-day Illinois crowd of 60,477 saw Illinois take an early 3-0 lead on a 42-yard field goal by freshman Dave Finzer, but the rest was downhill in Gary Moeller's coaching debut.

Leach spiced Michigan's awesome ground attack with touchdown passes of 30 yards to Ralph Clayton and 11 yards to Gene Johnson, while Huckleby ripped off touchdown runs of 15 and three yards.

The mighty Wolverines capped the scoring by recovering a fumble on the Illinois four-yard line, with Russell Davis carrying over on the very next play.

With 5:29 left in the game, Michigan Coach Bo Schembacher went to his second stringers. Huckleby finished the game with 128 yards gained in 24 carries while Davis accounted for 92 yards in 18 attempts.

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP)—Leamon Hall threw five touchdown passes, three to Mike Fahnestock and one each to Keith Wilson and Tony Landry, as Army opened its 88th season of college football Saturday by defeating the University of Massachusetts 34-10 for its 500th victory.

Army marched 76 yards in four plays after the opening kickoff, with Hall hitting Fahnestock for 10 yards and the score.

Massachusetts went ahead as quarterback Pete Fallon directed a 53-yard, seven-play drive, which culminated with Dennis Dent swinging off tackle 22 yards for a touchdown. Dave Crossdale's extra point put the Minutemen ahead 7-0.

Hall, who set an Army record by upping his career touchdown passes to 27, surpassing Pete Vann's mark of 25 set between 1951 and 1954, then hit Fahnestock with a 54-yard scoring strike to cap a six-play, 77-yard drive.

Age-wise Yeoman eases young Donohue's mind

HOUSTON (AP) — Veteran Houston Coach Bill Yeoman has some advice for UCLA's youthful coach, Terry Donohue, as the 11th-ranked Bruins prepare to meet the 14th-ranked Cougars Monday night in the AstroDome before a national television audience.

Having a home field advantage is largely a myth—unless you're visiting Tuscaloosa, Ala., Yeoman said. "As I've expressed many times, most of the football fields are the same size," said Yeoman, who led the Cougars to a Cinderella 10-2 record and victory over Oaryland in the Cotton Bowl last year.

"THE ONLY expandable field I've ever seen was at Tuscaloosa," Yeoman joked, referring to the home field of Coach Bear Bryant's Alabama Crimson Tide. "When you had the ball it was long and narrow. When he had the ball it was short and fat."

Many coaches shudder at the thought of having to play in the unfamiliar indoor surroundings of the AstroDome. As a prerequisite to entering the Southwest Conference last year, the Cougars had to agree to give the other SWC schools the option of playing Houston at nearby Rice Stadium or the AstroDome on their first trips to Houston.

"Yeoman says the home field advantage however, is not as serious as coaches like to pretend.

"I'VE FOUND when we were really ready to play we had a better chance to win than when we weren't ready to play," Yeoman said. "I think that (home, field advantage) is vastly overrated.

"Many of our best games here at the University have been on foreign soil—Michigan State, and we played a magnificent game at Kentucky."

Yeoman would prefer, however, for the Bruins to worry about the AstroDome's air-conditioned spaces long enough for his youthful defense to find itself in the season opener.

Graduation, defections and injuries have made rebuilding Houston's defense a must for the 1977 season. Four key starters have graduated including All-American tackle Wilson Whitley.

ANOTHER DEFENSIVE stalwart, linebacker David Hodge, quit the team before fall practice and starting nose guard Robert Oglesby and his backup Harry Wright both are sidelined with injuries.

Houston's offense again will be directed by quarterback Danny Davis, who will make the big plays when necessary and hand off to a fleet corp of rotating running backs. Donohue's problems are on the offense where only three starters return from last year's 9-2 team that lost to Ohio State in the Liberty Bowl. Donohue's undecided between two quarterbackbacks Steve Bukich and Rick Bashore.

"Both are adequate runners and adequate passers," Donohue said. "When I say adequate, I mean adequate enough to lead UCLA to a successful season. How successful depends on a number of factors other than the quarterback."

Both teams will discover how adequate they are at 8 p.m. CDT.

Munson may be back to haunt Seahawks

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Seattle Seahawks select Bill Munson packing and the veteran quarterback may try to whip them for it Sunday.

The Seahawks play Munson and the rest of the San Diego Chargers in a National Football League preseason game. Seattle beat the Chargers 17-16 in last year's exhibition.

Allowing the Chargers to pick up Munson on waivers a week ago was part of the Seahawks' reorganization.

In the past few days, they acquired defensive back Autrey Beamon and linebacker Amos Martin from Minnesota in exchange for a draft choice. They placed rookie defensive back George Adzick on injured reserve and signed rookie running back Al Hunter.

Hunter was selected in a supplemental draft after he was suspended by Notre Dame, where he was the first back to gain 1,000 yards rushing in a season.

Special events key to fair fun

ODESSA — The second annual Ector County Fair and Exposition opens at 10 a.m. Wednesday, continuing daily through next Sunday.

Site of the big show is the Ector County Coliseum and the show barns located on the coliseum grounds at 42nd street and the Andrews Highway.

Ector County's first fair last year, planned and held as the climax event in Odessa's year-long Bicentennial celebration, was so successful that a second fair was an assured thing. This year's exposition is expected to be even more successful and well received by Permian Basin area residents.

Following its Wednesday opening, the fair will offer its visitors a variety of displays and special exhibits, including those in business and industry, creative arts, social and public services and farming and ranching, in addition to a special Land, Water and Air Show.

But, along with these educational or enlightening exhibits, the fair also will offer a variety of purely "fun" events.

First is the traditional midway, without which no fair is truly complete. The carnival, offering rides and game booths, will be located just south of the coliseum itself. The midway area will be open every day until midnight.

Then, to provide added zest to the fair, a variety of special entertainment events are planned. These include the Miss Ector County beauty contest, scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday; a special style show, to be presented at 8 p.m. Thursday; a "Sandhill Grassburrs" entertainment, scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday.

Saturday's special events will be many and varied: Beginning at 10 a.m. will be the Lone Star novice chili cookoff and the Lone Star menu cookoff; at 2 p.m., the Lone Star horned toad race, followed by special entertainment provided by talented singer

Kelly Warren of Lamesa; at 3 p.m. by Lakota Indian dances, and at 4 p.m. by the Lone Star jackrabbit roping contest. Beginning at 5 p.m. will be the Lone Star tobacco spitting contest, and at 7:30 there will be special entertainment by the Sandhill Grassburrs.

Sunday, the final day of the fair, will have the Lone Star State Championship Chili Cookoff, beginning at sunrise. At 1 p.m. that day, the state championship horned toad race will be held, followed by the Lone Star state championship chili judging. At 2 p.m. Sunday, the Lone Star championship chili pepper eating contest is scheduled, followed by Lakota Indian dances. The World Championship Jackrabbit Roping Contest will begin at 3 p.m., and finals in the championship tobacco spitting contest will begin at 4 p.m. The fair officially closes at 6 p.m.

Following Wednesday's opening day, the remaining fair days have been given special designations: Thursday will be Senior Citizens Day, with senior citizens of the area to be honored with special entertainment and games between 1 and 6 p.m.

Friday has been designated Youth Day at the fair, while Saturday has been titled Out-of-County Day, with residents of surrounding towns and communities of the Permian Basin having a special invitation to be fair guests.

Exhibitors and entrants in the various competitive segments of the upcoming fair will begin moving in Monday morning. Entry time for the Creative Arts Division, one of the largest departments of the fair, will be between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. at the following locations:

Home economics, Exhibition Halls A & B; china painting, Hall A; dolls, coliseum lobby; crafts and hobbies, Hall R; relics and antiques, Hall A; fine arts, Hall A.

Judging of entries in all Creative Arts departments will take place Tuesday.

Residents of the entire Permian Basin area are eligible to submit entries in the various segments of the Creative Arts Division of the fair. Additional information on various departments of the division and entry categories is obtainable by telephoning 366-3087 or 366-2428.

For many, the name Calder has long been synonymous with mobiles and stables as he continued to develop and refine these art forms from the mid-1920s until he died last year. In an effort to demonstrate the richness and scope of Calder's long career, the new DMFA exhibition brings together toys and jewelry, wallpaper and airplanes, gouaches and household objects in addition to the mobile and stable works that brought him greatest fame. Using wood, metal, bone, cloth, paper, wire, string, cork and plexiglass, Calder's multi-faceted genius produced the art that achieved his oft-stated purpose: "I want to make things that are fun to look at."

The Railroad Roundup, so named because of Colorado City's historic status as a railroad for a vast area of West Texas during the latter part of the 19th Century, will open at 10 a.m. Saturday, continuing until late afternoon. Evening activities will include an old-fashion street dance sponsored by a local square dance club, and a "watermelon bust."

The art and crafts festival reopens at 1 p.m. Sunday, continuing until 6 p.m.

Live music will be presented for the entertainment of visitors both days, and there will be booths selling a variety of foods and special delicacies.

A special highlight of the weekend will be the championship cutting horse contest presented under auspices of the Texas and New Mexico Cutting Horse Association. It will begin at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

'Battered' Emmy gets award chance tonight

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bruised and battered Emmy finally is getting her show on the road tonight with "Roots" expected to sweep the national prime time television awards.

NBC is televising the 29th annual awards after a four-month delay caused by internal turmoil in the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

"Roots," the most popular series of programs in TV history, seems sure to take the lion's share of Emmies. Alex Haley's history of slavery in America captured a record 37 nominations.

All of the nominees for lead actor in a single performance in a drama or comedy series are from "Roots" — John Amos, LeVar Burton, Louis Gossett Jr., Ben Vereen. The nominees expressed their solidarity by taking out a trade paper advertisement telling of their devotion to "Roots."

Four of the five nominees for supporting actor in comedy or drama series also came from "Roots" — Ed Asner, Moses Gunn, Robert Reed, Ralph Waite.

The prime time Emmys were to be presented last May but the Hollywood chapter of the Academy staged a walkout, claiming that the Academy was dominated by trustees in New York and other cities. Most series stars, such as Mary Tyler Moore and Carroll O'Connor, refused to appear on the telecast. No stars, no show.

After lawsuits were filed and accusations swapped between Hollywood and New York, a compromise was reached out of court — Hollywood, which formed a separate organization called the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, would handle the prime time awards and the National Academy the rest.

Daytime awards were presented at New York's Lincoln Center on May 11.

Tonights' show, with 40 awards handed out, is scheduled for 2½ hours.

The program will appear at 8 p.m.

'Oaks' to play

ODESSA — The Oak Ridge Boys, one of the nation's most popular country music groups, will play a return engagement at Odessa College next week.

The "Oaks" will perform at OC on Tuesday evening, Sept. 20. Tickets for the concert are on sale in advance at the OC bookstore, priced $2 for the public, $1 for OC students. At-door prices on performance evening will be $2.50.

Billed as one of the most in-demand groups in the country music field today, the Oak Ridge Boys will be appearing in Odessa at the same time the group's new LP album "Y'all Come Back Saloon" is being released nationwide. The group's single recording of "Y'all Come Back Saloon" currently is among the top 20 songs on record charts around the country.

Formed two decades ago as a gospel group, the Oaks converted to the country music sound because country music is, basically, singing about a way of life. "Country music tells about people and their lifestyle, not about geography," says Richard Sterban, vocalist for the group. The Oaks won a Grammy award in 1974 as country music's most exciting group, and more recently copped another Grammy award for their gospel hit, "Where the Soul Never Dies."

The Oak Ridge Boys initially performed at Odessa College last April and were enthusiastically received. The group is being brought back in response to popular demand.

Calder exhibit prepared

DALLAS — The Dallas Museum of Fine Arts is preparing to open a major retrospective exhibition of works by one of the most vital and innovative artists of the 20th Century, the late Alexander Calder.

The retrospective, "Calder's Universe," opens Wednesday at the DMFA, to continue on view to the public through Oct. 30.

Fifty years of Calder's work are encompassed in the 200 pieces included in the new show. They will be displayed in 17 different sections, each representing Calder's imaginative accomplishments in a particular artistic medium.

"Calder's Universe" has been assembled under the direction of Jean Lipman of the Whitney Museum of Art in New York City through a generous grant from Champion International Foundation.

For many, the name Calder has long been synonymous with mobiles and stables as he continued to develop and refine these art forms from the mid-1920s until he died last year. In an effort to demonstrate the richness and scope of Calder's long career, the new DMFA exhibition brings together toys and jewelry, wallpaper and airplanes, gouaches and household objects in addition to the mobile and stable works that brought him greatest fame. Using wood, metal, bone, cloth, paper, wire, string, cork and plexiglass, Calder's multi-faceted genius produced the art that achieved his oft-stated purpose: "I want to make things that are fun to look at."

The Railroad Roundup, so named because of Colorado City's historic status as a railroad for a vast area of West Texas during the latter part of the 19th Century, will open at 10 a.m. Saturday, continuing until late afternoon. Evening activities will include an old-fashion street dance sponsored by a local square dance club, and a "watermelon bust."

The art and crafts festival reopens at 1 p.m. Sunday, continuing until 6 p.m.

Live music will be presented for the entertainment of visitors both days, and there will be booths selling a variety of foods and special delicacies.

A special highlight of the weekend will be the championship cutting horse contest presented under auspices of the Texas and New Mexico Cutting Horse Association. It will begin at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Network offers 'soapy' defense

By JUDITH MARTIN
The Washington Post

Some shocking claims have been made by ABC for "Soap," premiering Tuesday night. The network has been characterizing it in advance statements as moralistic, socially redemptive and instructive — just the kind of send-off every comedy series needs to start an audience yukking.

It was also described by ABC's Entertainment President, Fred Silverman, as "not a satire of daytime soap operas," but "an adult character comedy with a continuing story line."

Perhaps some background and translation would help clarify this. The word "adult," as every child knows, means "dirty." But we do not put dirty programs on network television, do we? But sometimes we are forced to use sexual material in order to make a moralistic, socially redemptive and/or educational point, are we not?

And "Soap," at least according to the Entertainment President, is a program with a message. "The clear message," said Silverman, "is not 'do what they do,' but 'laugh, enjoy and learn what not to do.'"

Very well. On the early programs we learn many things not to do:

— "Screw around," as one male lead is described on the air as doing, "with everyone but his wife." The reason not to do this is that he is often on the verge of getting caught and it prompts his old mistress to pour hot coffee on his lap.

— Have an affair with one's tennis instructor, because, as it turns out, this leads to remorse when the woman discovers that her daughter is also having an affair with him, and her nephew is interested in him, too.

— Kill one's wife's previous husband, because this leads to guilt feelings which in turn lead to impotence.

— Quit the Mob, because the parting assignment may be a difficult one. However, when it comes to really offensive behavior, the moral point is brushed aside.

At least once in every episode there is a major food-throwing fight, not just with pies, but every nutrient needed by the body being rubbed into people's hair, clothes and clean kitchen floors. It is true that one character repeatedly asks the others to stop doing this, but no attention is paid.

College, theater course set

A new course in creative communications will be offered under co-sponsorship of Midland College and Midland Community Theatre Inc.

The course will begin Thursday evening in the children's room at Theatre Centre, 2301 W. Indiana Ave., and continue each Thursday through Oct. 20. Hours will be 7 to 8:30 p.m. weekly.

The course will answer questions on how to teach creatively and how to create and communicate at the same time, by opening new perceptions for teachers of young people, spokesmen said. Enrollment is limited to 30 participants. Registration fee will be $10 per person.

The classes will be taught by Deborah Waddell, director of children's theater at Midland Community Theatre. She holds a BA degree in theater from the University of California at Davis, and a master's degree from Dallas Theater Center through Trinity University.

Additional information on the course is available from Miss Waddell, Theatre Centre, 682-2544.

The continuing characters on "Soap" are the families of two sisters, Mary Campbell and Jessica Tate. Jessica's family consists of the philandering husband, three horrid children and a sassy butler, to say nothing of the communal tennis instructor. Mary has the impotent husband, two horrid children and the tennis instructor, who turns out to be her husband's son by a previous marriage.

Among them, they are involved in adultery, incest, adultery, organized crime, adultery, homosexuality, adultery, and adultery. Or, as the network puts it, "the human condition."

Obviously, all of these subjects have been dealt with on television before, sometimes even humorously. In fact, you will recognize some of the scenes.

The bedroom scene in which the impotent husband is trying to keep alert in order to protect himself is straight from "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman."

And yet there is a difference — a difference which could go under the vague heading of "taste." Mary Hartman's Grandpa the Flasher was not offensive; there may be people who find Mary Campbell's Grandpa the War-Nut tasteless.

True soap opera deals all the time with adultery, crime and incest. The characters involved always come to a bad end, and ABC has promised in advance that "Soap" characters will, too.

Soap opera, and dramatic comedy, too, generally rely on pacing techniques in which the viewer has time to muse that he might do the same thing under the same circumstances. Soap opera is famous for its pacing — the long moral debates, the meaningful silences over the coffee cups.

There are no silences, no pauses on "Soap." Only an hysterical laugh track, so out-of-control that it bursts forth with abandoned mirth after such lines as "Oh, go away."

And as the ABC executive said, it is not a satire of daytime soap operas. So why, pray, is it called "Soap"?

Well, not all the familiar scenes are out of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman." The mother-daughter-shared-lover sequence, and the executive-dealing-with-mistress-in-office one are from — what? From "Shampoo."

"THE BELLE of Amherst," a one-woman show on the life and works of Emily Dickinson composed by Timothy Helgeson, will star Julie Harris. Harris, above, poses in the costume and setting chosen for next week's Phoenix Theatre opening in London. (AP Laserphoto)

Should minimum wage be backed?

By KRISTIN GOFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Should Americans help subsidize minimum wages through tips?

Congress seems to be opposing that idea with provisions in both the House and Senate versions of minimum wage law.

Both bills would increase the minimum wage from $2.30 an hour to $2.65 for all workers and set up a formula for cost-of-living adjustments in future years.

But they also take aim at a long-standing provision in minimum wage laws that credit a portion of the tips earned by waiters, bartenders, doormen and others toward meeting the minimum wage.

Under current law, as much as half of an employer's minimum wage may be met through the tip-credit provision.

A waitress may be paid at an hourly rate of $1.15 an hour, and still meet the minimum wage, providing her tips average enough to make her total earnings at least $2.30 an hour.

A Senate version of the minimum-wage bill, approved by the Senate Labor subcommittee this past week, proposed to reduce the tip-credit from a maximum of 50 per cent to 45 per cent initially and gradually phase it out entirely by 1983.

A House version of minimum wage legislation would reduce the tip-credit but leave a $1 offset in effect by 1983.

Unions and other critics of the tip-credit provision argue that the system is unfair to employees and forces the public to pay wages that should be paid by employers.

But restaurant owners see that view as unrealistic and complain that it fails to take into account full earnings a workers receives—regardless of the source.

The hourly earnings for a waitress in a coffee shop currently averages between $4 and $5 an hour including tips and wages, the National Restaurant Association estimates.

"What Congress is doing is thinking only in terms of wages," says a spokesman for the association, which represents about 125,000 food service establishments.

He estimates that the net effect of eliminating the tip-credit provision will be the loss of jobs for waiters, waitresses, doormen and others who depend partly on tips.

The association has no figures on projected job losses for the 2.4 million food-service employees who work in "tipped jobs." But it estimates the combined effect of increasing the minimum wage and reducing or eliminating the tip credit would be the loss of about 175,000 jobs among the eight million workers in the food-service industry.

BUSINESS

Trudeau announced agreement on a plan to build a trans-Canada pipeline that would transport natural gas from Alaska to the lower 48 states. The 2,700-mile route represented something of a compromise over two other routes and still must be approved by each country's legislative body.

If plans are implemented, the $10 billion pipeline would be privately constructed by a consortium headed by Northwest Pipeline Corp. of Salt Lake City and Foothills Pipe Lines Ltd. of Calgary, Alberta.

The government's investigation into alleged questionable financial practices by President Carter's budget director Bert Lance widened. The Senate Governmental Affairs Committee opened hearings on financial dealings by the former Georgia banker and planned to call Lance to testify next week.

The government reported a modest increase in capital spending plans of U.S. businesses. The Labor Department's quarterly survey showed businesses planned to spend $136.49 billion on new plants and equipment this year. That's an increase of 13.2 per cent from 1976 spending, or about 8.1 per cent when adjusted for inflation.

Americans owed a total of $198.97 billion through various installment plans and credit card systems at the end of July, an increase of 14.4 per cent from installment credit a year earlier, the Federal Reserve Board said.

The board reported a strong $2.32 billion increase in consumer installment credit in July, up from a gain of $2.28 billion the previous month but less than the $2.52 billion increase reported in May.

New lending was down 1.1 per cent, at $18.42 billion, and repayments were off 1.4 per cent at $16.10 billion from record levels in June. But there were increases in home improvement credit, bank credit card debt and in miscellaneous loans from commercial banks and finance companies.

In a separate report, the Fed announced a surprisingly large rise in the nation's money supply, rekindling worries over inflation and rising interest rates in the investment and business community.

The Fed had been tightening credit—pushing up interest rates—through the summer in an effort to keep the too-rapid monetary growth from fueling inflation.

The Fed reported $3 billion increase in the nation's basic money supply to $330.4 billion in the week ended Aug. 31 and a similar rise in its more broadly defined category, which includes time deposits at commercial banks.

Rare sculpture now in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — "Putto with a Dolphin"—the rare bronze sculpture on loan to the Detroit Institute of Arts—was on display here recently.

On loan from Italy, the statue is 507 years old and described as priceless, although it arrived on a routine cargo flight.

Theater plans auditorium

Plans are being made to convert Howard Hodge Theater, 200 Plaza St., into twin auditoriums. Mrs. Veda Hodge, owner of Midland Theatres, and Bernard McKenna, general manager, announced Saturday.

Each auditorium will seat about 500 people and new screens will be installed, McKenna said. In addition, the walls will be draped to maintain perfect sound quality, and seating will be re-arranged for maximum viewing pleasure.

McKenna said the latest in automated, film projection equipment with Xenon lamps and the finest sound equipment will be installed in the new auditoriums. Xenon lamps constantly throw out light and do not flicker like the older bulbs do. Thus, "a more vivid image" is projected on the screen, he said.

The twin auditoriums will enable us to provide greater flexibility of programming through an appealing choice of features and to offer extended runs where the picture warrants.

business beatitudes

by Bill Beattie

Everyone of us at almost every moment is either part of the problem or part of the solution. At one time we may be part of the problem, making things difficult for others; at another time we may be part of the solution, making things easier.

If we hurt other people's feelings or get our own feelings hurt, which may be worse, we are part of the problem. If, in an international business or labor conference, we stubbornly refuse to recognize or take full account of the facts presented, we are part of the problem.

If, in considering what stand we shall take in a controversy, instead of projecting our own interests, we think only of what is good for all concerned, we are part of the solution. If we do our part, are concerned about what is good for our community, then we are part of the solution. If, in dealing with every matter we are moved by reason and love, then we are part of the solution.

The public man has no difficulty in seeing himself as others see him. All he has to do is look in the newspaper at the cartoons, the editorials and the letters to the editor, or just read his own mail. We, as private persons, have to use more imagination.

A man's character is revealed by what has the power to upset him. If we are easily upset, of course, we are lightweight. As the size of what it takes to upset us increases, so our substance and stature increase. When this occurs, we are part of the solution more than we are part of the problem.

A character standard is far more important than a gold standard. The success of all people, businesses, and economic systems is still dependent upon righteous leaders and righteous people.

If I take care of my CHARACTER, my reputation will take care of itself.

BUSINESS NOTEBOOK

Statistics on business conditions in Texas reflect continued growth

By BILL KIDD

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Business conditions in Texas appear to reflect continued growth, judging from some statistics coming in from various state agencies.

Comptroller Bob Bullock reports revenue, including sales taxes, coming in at record levels.

New charter applications filed with the secretary of state's office show an increase of 21 per cent over the previous fiscal year — with 23,440 Texas domestic profit charters filed for fiscal 1977 (compared to 19,304 the previous year).

William Kimbrough, head of the secretary of state's corporation division, also reports that "the last four months have consistently gone over 2,000 charters per month, and that trend has held up pretty closely since March" — meaning record levels there.

And the State Securities Board reports applications filed during the past fiscal year came to approximately $2 billion for the first time in the 21-year history of the agency.

In fact, issues of stocks, bonds and other securities came to $2,029,027,689 for the fiscal year, breaking the record set in 1972 by $312,000,000.

Of that amount, $1.5 billion was registered for sale in Texas.

Applications to the Securities Board in August came to $227,918,204 — which is nearly double the $136,000,000 which it handled during its first year of existence.

Other indicators may be seen in construction, with the total there (as calculated by the Bureau of Business Research, The University of Texas at Austin) reaching the third highest level ever recorded in July, even though it was done from June's level.

That level was higher than any month for 1976 — and the first seven months of 1977 show total construction up 28 per cent over the same months for 1976.

New construction was up 29 per cent for the first seven months — with new residential construction up by 48 per cent and non-residential up eight per cent.

Additions, repairs and alterations were up by 17 per cent.

Analysis of the permits issued, the Bureau says, indicates "the increase in single-family units has been the most consistent factor statewide," with 14 of the 25 standard metropolitan statistical areas reporting increases of more than 15 per cent in the number of single-family permits issued in the first seven months of the year.

Largest increase — 64 per cent — was in the Lubbock SMSA, the Bureau notes. Lubbock also had a large increase in the number of apartment units authorized — 106 per cent (608 units) — while other SMSAs also recorded significant increases in the number of apartment units authorized.

Bryan-College Station had a 208 per cent increase (791 units); Dallas-Fort Worth, 193 per cent (6,707 units); and San Antonio, 192 per cent (1,075 units).

"Only in El Paso and Waco did the absolute gain in the number of single-family units outpace the absolute gain in the number of multi-family permits," the Bureau says.

Those figures point to the continued growth of the state's economy, with no indications growth is going to fall off anytime soon.

State Board of Insurance members are expected to act soon on recommendations by its staff on worker's compensation claim reserving practices.

At issue is the use of "incurred" or "paid" losses in calculating "experience modifiers" used in determining rates paid by employers.

"Incurred" losses include anticipated future losses held in reserve, and employers' groups have argued in the past that using that basis has driven up rates charged by insurers.

The board ordered a study of the situation in April 1976, and the committee appointed to investigate reported that most of the 27 carriers studied actually have been under-reserving for claims — so the group recommended keeping the current "incurred" loss system.

OUR HOSPITAL FACILITIES ARE SUBSTANDARD, BUT, FOR JUST A FEW PENNIES A DAY, YOU AND I CAN MAKE THEM FIRST-RATE, BUT THERE'S ONLY ONE WAY TO DO THIS... BY VOTING FOR A HOSPITAL DISTRICT ON SEPTEMBER 17.

WHAT WILL THE HOSPITAL DISTRICT PAY FOR?

(1) $10 Million in bonds to finance the desperately needed improvements and expansion which will make our hospital first-rate, and

(2) Relief for our paying patients, who, for years have borne the burden of indigent care and bad debt. Midlanders believe that, if a man can pay for his medical care, he should do so. In fact, they insist upon it. (Midland Memorial currently collects 93% of all debts—well above the national average).

(3) If a person in need cannot pay, however, Midlanders do not turn them away sick because we believe in taking care of our own.

(4) In the past, the indigent care/bad debt burden has been carried almost exclusively by the paying patient—the sick people flat on their backs. A hospital district, however, will allow all Midlanders and not just the sick to share in this community responsibility.

HOW MUCH WILL A HOSPITAL DISTRICT COST US?

IF YOUR HOME IS VALUED AT	...YOUR ANNUAL TAXES WILL BE	WHICH, PER DAY, IS ONLY
$10,000	$11.25	$0.03
$20,000	$22.50	$0.06
$30,000	$33.75	$0.09
$40,000	$45.00	$0.12
$50,000	$56.25	$0.15

(These figures include the entire cost of repaying the bonds as well as the expected 1978 cost of indigent care/bad debt. The cost of indigent care/bad debt, however, will likely change from year to year. The lower the cost, the lower the tax rate).

WILL YOU GIVE A FEW PENNIES A DAY TO BE SURE THAT YOU AND YOUR FAMILY GET THE KIND OF MEDICAL CARE YOU NEED WHEN YOU NEED IT?

IF SO, VOTE FOR ON SEPTEMBER 17.

IT TAKES YEARS TO BUILD A HOSPITAL.

GAS PROCESS ENGINEERS.

Does making more money while working overseas appeal to you? Aramco needs Gas Processing Engineers in Saudi Arabia and is willing to pay you well if you're qualified. As a rule of thumb, you can expect your net pay in Saudi Arabia to be approximately equal to your gross pay in the U.S. You would also experience the challenge of working for the world's largest oil producing company on some of the world's largest projects.

The job.

It is preferred that you have experience in cascade refrigeration systems, fractionation of liquid LPG products, gas sweetening, gas drying, and sulfur recovery. We will give preference to applicants who also have valid experience in instrumentation and with mechanical equipment.

You would first spend approximately 18 months in the U.S. as a part of a project team developing process computer systems for gas plants. Your primary function during the project cycle would be to provide process-oriented guidance and input, while learning the capabilities and uses of process plant computers.

After the computer system is completed, you would transfer to Saudi Arabia for a permanent assignment in the plant for which the system was procured. A computer background is desirable but not absolutely essential since your work in Saudi Arabia would not necessarily be exclusively devoted to computer functions.

The requirements.

You must have a degree in Chemical or Mechanical Engineering with a minimum of 5 years' process engineering experience in gas processing plants.

Other benefits Aramco offers.

Medical care for you and your family is furnished at no charge by the company while you are in Saudi Arabia. On the average of every 12 1/2 months, you'll receive 40 days' paid vacation plus round trip air fare to the U.S. for you and your family. And to this time off, add another 12 paid holidays each year.

Aramco also offers you good savings and retirement plans. And in addition to your salary, you receive a generous, tax-protected expatriate premium.

Want to know more?

If you're qualified and want more information, write for an application. We will be back in touch with you as soon as possible.

State board upholds teacher's discharge

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The State Board of Education upheld Saturday the firing of an East Texas high school teacher for using a magazine's "masculinity" survey in her psychology class.

Ouida Dean said the board's 15-7 decision would be appealed to U. S. District Court Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler, who already has an academic freedom case arising from her dismissal.

Mrs. Dean, 42, was fired March 30, 1976, by the Timpson School Board, four days after the superintendent suspended her. She now is a student at Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches, where her husband is a mathematics professor.

Her lawyer, Larry Daves, said due process of law required more than four days' notice, as well as a formal statement of the reasons for her dismissal.

"She was physically distressed and unable to prepare a defense," Daves said.

Grover Russell, the school district's lawyer, said Mrs. Dean had been orally warned the year before against using "controversial" material. But nonetheless, she had some of her students answer questions in a Psychology Today magazine survey entitled, "Masculinity — What Does it Mean to be a Man?" he said.

"I don't know what is controversial in Austin or what is controversial in Houston, but in Timpson, questions such as 'How would you describe the size of your husband's or lover's penis?' and questions such as 'How important is penis size to sexual satisfaction?' are controversial. Anyone who has taught for six years in East Texas should be aware of that," Russell said.

Daves said Mrs. Dean did not intend to expose students to such questions. "It was a case of an overworked teacher who had to prepare for five different courses," he said.

Mrs. Dean later said eight or 10 black and white students of both sexes were given the survey during "free time" by an 18-year-old student who had been instructed to read them only certain questions.

"I told her not to read any of them that assumed you were married or sexually active," Mrs. Dean said.

Board member Paul Mathews of Greenville urged that the dismissal be upheld.

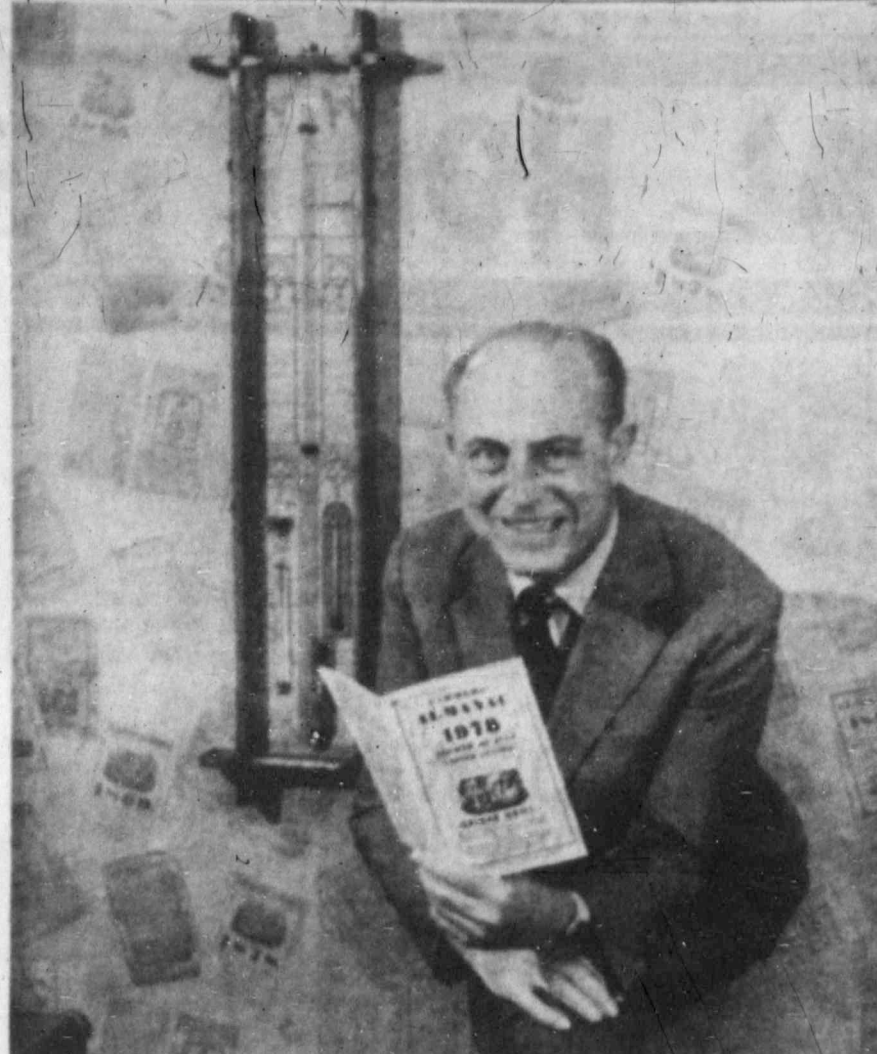

"Our policy has always been to respect the opinions of the local school districts. I feel this is a case of flagrant violation of ethics and decency, and it would be a black mark on this board if we didn't decide with the local board on an issue as fraught with danger to boys and girls as this one," Mathews said.

Chairman Joe Kelly Butler of Houston said the case showed that the Texas Education Agency was not adequately enforcing the board's rule requiring all districts to have written policies governing such matters as dismissals.

Moluccan riots spur Dutch police search

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — Hundreds of police supported by armored cars moved into the South Moluccan neighborhood at first light Saturday to search for weapons.

Sporadic gunfire was heard as police searched through homes, and one policeman was reportedly slightly injured by a sniper.

Police declined to say whether any weapons were found or whether anyone was arrested.

The raid followed two nights of violence in this northern Dutch town by Moluccans protesting the trial of eight compatriots charged in the 20-day siege of a train and a school near Assen last spring.

A similar weapons raid Friday morning sparked an hourlong gunfight between police and Moluccans.

On Thursday night, Moluccans went on an eight-hour rampage through the town, setting fire to schools and shooting at firemen and police.

Before police entered the neighborhood Saturday, they warned Moluccans through loudspeakers to stay in their homes and the district was sealed off by armored vehicles.

A similar search was mounted in the Moluccan district in the village of Bovensmilde, about three miles south of Assen, where four Moluccan gunmen held over 100 children and their teachers hostage last May.

At that time, nine other Moluccans hijacked a train nearby with about 50 passengers, and the twin sieges lasted 20 days until Marines stormed both locations. Six of the nine Moluccans on the train and two passengers were killed.

Militants in Holland's 40,000-strong Moluccan community have been waging a campaign of terror to force the Dutch government to back their fight for independence of the South Moluccan islands in the Indonesian archipelago. The islands, like the rest of the former Dutch East Indies, are part of Indonesia.

Opinion okays 'Hippie Hollow' skinny dipping

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Lower Colorado River Authority ordinances designed to discourage the use of Lake Travis "Hippie Hollow" skinny-dipping paradise are invalid, County Atty. Jim McMurtry says.

McMurtry issued a legal opinion saying the ordinances exceed the authority of the LCRA, which had been under pressure to eliminate automobile access to "Hippie Hollow."

The LCRA ordinances prohibit overnight camping or firebuilding at the site, an effort to at least limit it to daytime traffic.

But McMurtry said the LCRA has legal authority only to pass penal ordinances that attempt to control pollution of the Colorado River and its tributaries. He also said the ordinances are invalid because there is no penalty for violating them.

Even children need a home of their own

By PATSY GORDON

Almost all living beings need a home of their own, especially children. All children without homes have a great need. But those who are no longer infants or of pre-school age, those who have a handicap, those who have been abused or who are of a racial minority—these children have the greatest need to find love and security.

Most infant and pre-school children are placed through private adoption agencies, which must be licensed by the Texas Department of Human Resources, formerly known as the Texas Department of Public Welfare.

But the harder-to-place children, or "special needs" children, those who have been removed from their parents' custody for neglect or abuse, who are of school age or are black, these are available for adoption directly through DHR's adoptive services program.

This is where Joan Bennett Wiersum, adoption worker for Region 17 of the DHR, comes in. Mrs. Wiersum takes these children with "special needs" in 17 counties covered by the region and tries to match them with families who want to provide love and security.

The older children needing adoptive parents fall in the 6-14 years of age category. According to Mrs. Wiersum, "We have very few black applicants and very few who want sibling groups of two or three."

Prerequisites for adopting a child include "being a mature couple with a stable and happy marriage, a stable income that need not be necessarily large, an ability to manage money and a love of children."

While procedures may vary from one case to the next, there are a series of steps which usually take place in adopting through the DHR.

First, interested parents should contact Mrs. Wiersum at the Midland office of DHR at 2301 N. Big Spring.

An informational meeting is held each month where policies and procedures of the adoption program are explained and applications are distributed. Mrs. Wiersum goes over the types of children available for adoption and where the children are obtained.

If the couple is still interested in a "special needs" child, the application is filled out and returned to Mrs. Wiersum, who then will conduct a series of contacts with the family and their references to determine what kind of child might be placed with the family and if the family can provide for and accept the child.

The home study, said Mrs. Wiersum, consists of "home interviews with the couple, individual interviews, interviews with school-age children in the home, a home visit, contact with at least three references and paperwork concerning medical and financial forms and autobiographies."

Major considerations in an adoption home study are: the readiness of both husband and wife to adopt, the family's comfort with the fact the

"We have very few black applicants and very few who want sibling groups of two or three. Everyone who applies is not necessarily approved. It may not be possible to find an appropriate child because of problems in the home and the couple's inability to cope with an older child or handicapped child."

Joan Bennett Wiersum, adoption worker child will be adopted and come from a background not their own, the family's expectations of an adopted child, the quality of the marital relationship and of the parent-child relationship which may already exist in the home, the emotional maturity of the prospective parents, financial stability and the family's ability to meet the physical and needs of the adopted child.

Mrs. Wiersum emphasizes that "everyone who applies is not necessarily approved. It may not be possible to find an appropriate child because of problems in the home and the couple's inability to cope with an older child or handicapped child."

She pointed out that "the feelings of the extended family, such as grandparents, are also considered in adoptions."

Factors that are considered in selecting adoptive applicants include the following:

— The parents selected should be over 21 years of age and within the usual age range for natural parents of a child of that age. Exceptions will be made to meet the needs of the specific child.

— DHR will not place a child with a couple unless their marriage has been legalized by civil registration.

— Generally a couple shall have been married at least two years before an adoption application and home study is initiated. Couples who have had previous marriages and divorces will be screened individually after their present marriage has survived a minimum of three years.

— Single persons will be considered for adoptive placement for the child for whom DHR cannot secure two parents.

When a child has been found that seems to match appropriately with an approved family, this match will be submitted for approval by the supervisors of all units of the DHR involved.

The couple and child will be prepared for placement of the child. For the older or handicapped child, considerable pre-placement must be done. "The child is allowed to go for weekend visits to the applicants home and then go back to the foster home. We watch to see if child and family are accepting each other."

After placement of the child, a six-month minimum time period must elapse before legal consummation of the adoption is possible. During this time Mrs. Wiersum makes several home visits and is available to help with any adjustment problems.

Some of these problems are "extreme hostility, or the child is withdrawn and may start to regress. Also, the other children in the home might not accept the adoptive child."

"I am there to reassure," said the adoption worker. They will test the parents a lot because they have been rejected by their own parents and placed in foster homes and they wonder if this will be a permanent home or will they be sent back to foster care.)

"They are going through feelings about natural parents and aligning themselves with their adoptive parents who must understand it is important for a child to remember positive things about natural parents in order to accept themselves."

These problems are a part of the reasoning behind the emphasis placed on "urging the adoptive parents to give lengthy consideration to the question of adoption."

Because of the real need for parents who want to adopt "special needs" children, all couples who want to know more are urged to contact Mrs. Wiersum at 683-5411.

'Welcome Back Luncheon' opens Woman's Club year

The Woman's Club of Midland Thursday officially opens its doors for the fall season. The "Welcome Back Luncheon" has become a tradition—setting the stage of activities for the coming year.

To insure the success of the annual event, the various committees have planned for the gala occasion. The decorating committee, whose chairman is Florence Shade, has created an interesting and colorful background for the luncheon activities.

The arts exhibits committee has arranged for a showing of the works of Eleanor Leeper of Wichita Falls. Mrs. Leeper is a graduate of West Texas State University with a degree in art and elementary education, and has studied under Dr. William King and Dr. Emilio Caballero. Her works have been accepted in the Southwestern Area Art Show, the Odessa Art Association and the Texas Fine Arts Association Citation Show. The artist will exhibit watercolor, lithograph, pen and ink and pencil sketches. Her show opens today at the Woman's Club and will continue through September.

Bright decorations will greet members and guests at 11:30 a.m., setting the mood of a traveler departing on an imaginary cruise for scenic places unknown, and they will greet and renew acquaintances at the Bon Voyage Party (social time).

The imaginary travelers will be served a luncheon from the "Captain's Buffet" in the tea room. After dining in the Starlite Dining Room, "Traveling Pretty" fashions from Grammer-Murphy's will provide the entertainment. New fall colors in the latest designs and styles suggest a busy schedule of sight-seeing and guided tours of the South Sea Islands. For dining pleasure aboard the cruiser, elegant dinner gowns will be viewed. Soft leather goods to enhance the smartest outfit; dark glasses to soften the sun's rays and compliment the wardrobe will provide the group with helpful tips for traveling and will create a desire for all women to travel pretty, yet be comfortable in the proper attire.

The hospitality committee will be easily identified and will encourage each one attending to "make yourself comfortable," theme of the event.

"SHOE" Is The World's Newest Comic Strip ..... Enjoy It From The Very First Day!

SHOE

My creator is a Pulitzer prize-winning political cartoonist, but he's branched out into a comic strip about a bunch of birds. The transition probably is not that great, but whoever saw a bird in sneakers smoking a pipe? Anyway, that's me, P. Martin Shoemaker, editor of Treetops Tattler Tribune.

Over here is Perfesser Cosmo Fishhawk, our resident sage. He also works for me in my capacity as editor of the world's only airborne under-ground newspaper. The Perfesser actually has never been a real perfesser. See, he's between opportunities since 1938, when he got his doctorate from Rutgers in dirigible aero-dynamics.

The PERFESSER

This is Loon, a nice buy, but he's not playing with a full deck. He can hardly fly which hampers his efforts to become a Navy pilot. The Perfesser is always trying to help Loon by applying his aeronautical knowledge. So far, the only thing that has helped Loon has been an old pair of roller skates he wears. They help in takeoffs and landings.

SKYLER

Last and least, the Perfesser's nephew, Skyler. He spends his vacations from prep school with his Uncle Cosmo, and The Perfesser, deep down, can't stand the little twerp.

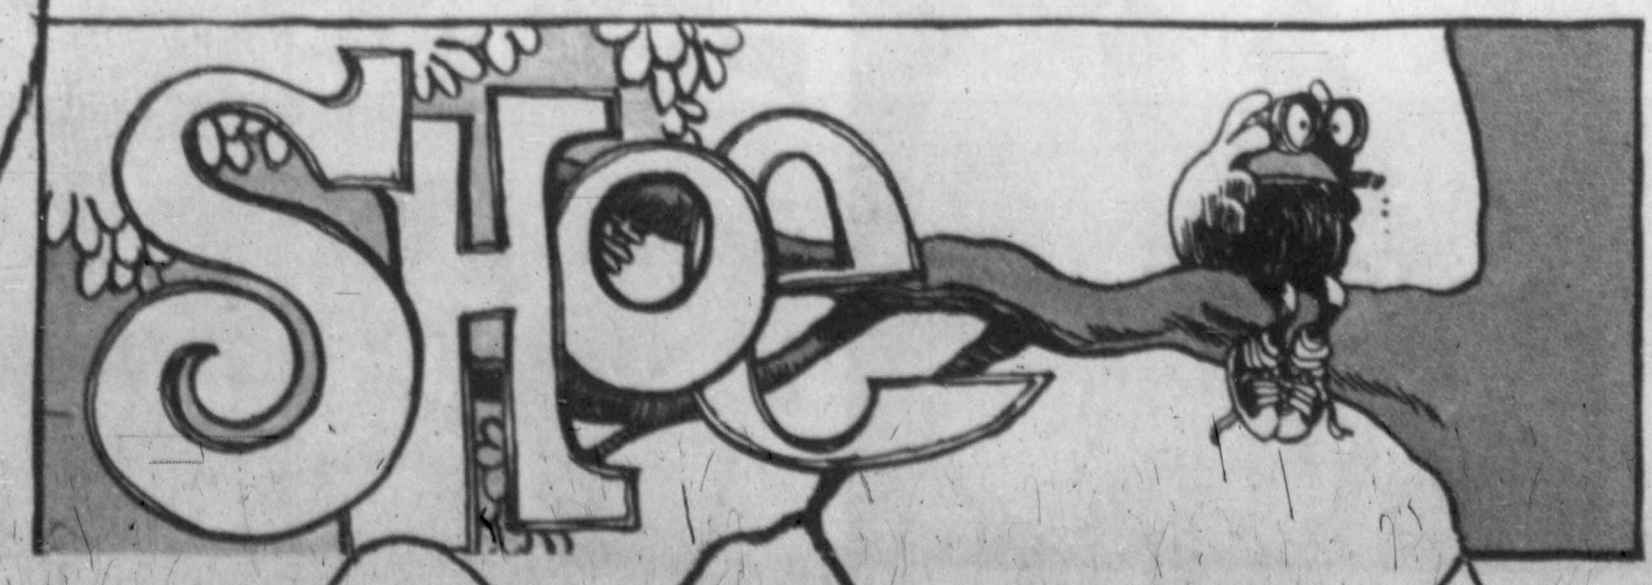

ROZ

And this Roz, our resident barperson. She's also a shrink. A real honey (tweek!) ("Why don't you get lost, you sawed-off creep?") Roz thinks the Perfesser is cute, but I think she's in love with me.

Creator of "Shoe" is Jeff MacNelly, 29. At age 24, he won the Pulitzer prize for editorial cartooning. His eye for "ridiculousities" as he calls them and his superb craftsmanship have put his work in a class by itself. His editorial cartoons now are carried by more than 300 newspapers. The trees Shoe and his friends roost in come from some of Jeff's favorite forests: a "perfesser" recalled from the University of North Carolina where he was graduated and where he did his first cartoons for the Daily Tar Heel.

She devoted last 15 years resizing large jeans to fit

By ERMA BOMBECK

I think I'm safe in saying that I have devoted the last 15 years of my life to jeans.

I've shrunk 'em, raveled 'em, patched 'em, bleached 'em, and pounded the wrinkles into submission. Cooped up in a utility room with nothing but jeans for that long can make you strange.

"If you ask me," I said to my husband, "jeans have gotten out of hand. They're all anybody wears anymore."

"What's the matter with that?"
"I read the other day where a bride went through her entire ceremony with her fly open."
"You exaggerate."

"I do not exaggerate. I went with your daughter the other day to one of those places with wall-to-wall, ceiling-to-floor jeans. I was the only one in the entire store with a skirt. I looked like a chair. Someone tried to put a wad of bubble gum on my knee."

"Why are you buying more jeans?" I asked her.
"For once, why don't you buy a nice wrap-around skirt and a T-shirt with a little sweater knotted around your neck like Mario Thomas? Aren't you sick and tired of sounding like you're trying to start a fire without matches everytime you walk across the floor? If you don't want to consider me, think of your Grandmother who asked me just the other day if we couldn't chip in and buy you a pair of legs."

"Look Mom," said our daughter, "I'm an individual person. When I dress I want to be unique. Don't you understand? I want to be me."

"She said this surrounded by 25,000 pairs of jeans all alike. I'm worried," I said to my husband. "If jeans get any tighter...do you know there's a place in New York where you actually lie down on a car bed under a mirrored ceiling and three salespeople zip you into your jeans? According to them your eyes should bulge when you put them on."
"The fat has to go someplace," he said logically.

"You haven't heard the worst of it. Our daughter came out of the fitting room, flung her jeans at me and said, 'Mom, you'll have to shrink 'em two inches in the waistband, three inches in the hips and four inches off each leg. Then, rip out the pocket, take out the hems and fray the legs so they'll drag on the ground, wash them 15 times just to soften 'em up and bleach them for 15 minutes in the seat.'"

"Why are you buying them?" I asked tiredly.
"Because," she said, "They're perfect!"

The molded bodice featured a Princess Anne neckline framed in pearl-beaded flowers. Long tapered sleeves were accented in a vertical row of cut-out beaded lace medallions, ending in petal points. The trim A-line skirt formed a princess silhouette with trellised lace appliques down each side and continuing around the hemline. Her cathedral-length train also was sprinkled in beaded lace medallions. Her matching mantilla veiling was caught to a Camelot capulet of beaded lace and was encircled with Alencon lace scallops of Gothic points, extending beyond the length of her train. The bride carried a lace handkerchief which belonged to her maternal grandmother and a bouquet of white Butterfly roses, stephanotis and baby's breath fastened to an ivory and lace fan which belonged to her paternal great-grandmother.

The reception was held in the home of the bride's parents before the couple left on a trip to the Virgin Islands. They will reside in Midland. The parents of the bridegroom hosted the rehearsal dinner in the

DEAR ABBY Old column opens eyes of new driver

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last summer you wrote something that virtually saved my life—and maybe the lives of many others. I had just gotten my driver's license and that column really opened my eyes. I think about it every time I turn on the ignition in my car. I am enclosing it. Please run it again. And run it every year for those kids who may have missed it.—LOVES LIFE AT 18

DEAR ABBY: Seldom has a column made such an impact as the one to which you refer. I shall repeat it with pleasure: PLEASE GOD, I'M ONLY 17

The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheeled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded. "All the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off—going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow.

heard the deafening crash and felt a terrific jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened; it was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head. I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight. I am supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please, somebody, wake me up! Get me out of here. I can't bear to see my Mom and Dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can barely walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody! No one can believe this. And I can't believe it, either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance.

Please, God, I'm only 17! Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper.

Drinking women bear more deformed babies

By DANIEL Q. HANEY Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Women who drink heavily are twice as likely to bear sickly, deformed babies as mothers who use liquor moderately or not at all, a new study shows.

"There is definitely increased risk to offspring of women who drink heavily during pregnancy," said the study in the New England Journal of Medicine.

The study said the health of the babies of moderate drinkers — women who drink more than once a month but do not fit into the category of heavy drinkers — and teetotalers was virtually the same.

The findings are based on a review by Boston University doctors of the drinking habits of 633 pregnant women at Boston City Hospital.

Earlier studies have warned of the dangers of drinking to the unborn, but this is the first report that measures the odds of this damage occurring. Dr. Eileen M. Oullette, who directed the study, said she recommends that women give up drinking completely while pregnant.

"It's unknown whether there is a safe amount that can be ingested," she said in an interview. "Alcohol crosses the placenta and goes directly into the baby."

Some of the women cut down on their drinking during pregnancy, but the doctors said only two of the 27 women who drank heavily throughout pregnancy had normal infants.

The study defined heavy drinkers as those who consume five or more drinks daily, or an average of more than 1 1/2 ounces of pure alcohol a day. However, the heavy drinkers in the test consumed an average of more than 6 ounces of pure alcohol a day.

The doctors discovered a variety of abnormalities among the babies of the heavy drinkers.

Without morals, people seek to understand sex

(The sexual revolution has created as much anxiety as it sought to dispel, says a noted sex therapist. Avodan K. Offit, author of the recently published "The Sexual Self," is a psychiatrist and coordinator of the Sexual Therapy and Consultation Center of New York's Lenox Hill Hospital.)

By AVODAN K. OFFIT
Special to Newsday

What do we expect of sex? I suppose, as a nation, we have fallen in love with it. We seem to expect that "good sex" will put our tempers right, alkalize our national indigestion, solve our financial problems by making us indifferent to money, and possibly prevent heart attacks. Being in love with sex is like any other fall into passion. We idealize; we expect all bounties to flow from that one perfect source. We worship at the sexual altar.

We are, however, fooling ourselves by trying to buy supersex from the magazine racks or by attempting to free ourselves by following the gurus of the "new sexuality."

The media are selling an assortment of plumbing manuals with names that suggest mystic pleasures. They teach us how to do it, or better still, how to fix it. Under titles that imply joy, mystery, love, and romance, we may learn what to push, pull, and jiggle in order to assure ingress and egress, but not necessarily progress.

When we are not tempted by the do-it-yourself, Popular Mechanics model of sexual functioning, we may be lured by the slick pages of the formerly domesticated magazines. These offer a compulsive housekeeper's guide to cleaner sex, a world of immaculate transactions conducted in fresh makeup, new clothes, and preferably beneath new sheets.

If plumbing guides and domestic perfection are not variety enough, we may turn to double page, fold-over color spreads of kinky coupling. We may also turn to black and white woodpulp versions of the same, with or without Vaseline on the lens, hand, or other demonstrated part. These magazines and newspapers offer hard and soft focus views of what everyone knows is there but isn't supposed to look at.

Pornography — the depiction of the sexual behavior of prostitutes — is the ultimate in commercial sex. People who get paid for sex also get paid for posing in sexual attitudes. Others get paid for writing about the people who pose. The consumer pays for it all. Since pornography is such a totally commercial venture, it seems not to be the medium which most of us would choose for the education of our sexual sensibilities.

However, chosen or not, I would estimate that it comprises at least 75 per cent of the sexual education of our nation's men, and a growing percentage of the education of women. Pretty soon a fee for service may become a standard part of every sex act.

Beyond the pornographers and the pornographers, there is a rarer world of sexual advisers: the academicians, the gurus of social and psychological "science." These are the leaders of the sexual "revolution," the teachers of those idealistic precepts which are supposed to lead the sexual freedom.

These highly intellectual people generally have sex with one another indiscriminately, often without knowing each other's names. They "roll" each other; they take baths in the nude together. They are committed to immensely high and utopian standards of loving one another sexually without jealousy or possessiveness or any of those old-fashioned and unpleasant emotions. They write books about doing all of this.

And in the future, they will probably seem as silly as the Victorians, with their equally unattainable ideals of monogamous trust, in thought as in deed, unimpeachable virtue, and total jealous possessiveness.

If we are not being sold diluted Lydia Pinkham's remedy for the sexual blahs, we are being molded into performing robots by the mechanists or sledgehammered into promiscuity by the sexual mafia. Failing to be turned in in any of these ways, we may try becoming mindless repositories of sensuous trust for all, the new expression of liberty and equality.

Without the old moral guidelines, which at least gave many people the pleasure of feeling virtuous, even if they achieved little sexual delight, the people who come to my office are often totally at sea in their search for an understanding of what constitutes sexual pleasure. As one couple jokingly put it, "We've tried everything. We're not inhibited. We've even tried it by the light of the refrigerator, because we'd never done that before. Nothing works. We can't seem to get turned on to each other anymore."

There have been, of course, many positive effects of the "sexual revolution," an overturning of sexual mores that went far beyond releasing us to have sex — at least informally — without sanction of church and state. We can now talk openly about sexual problems to those who can help us to solve them with reasonable competence. We need not suffer the irrational tortures of guilt and shame for all those normal sexual feelings and actions — fantasy, masturbation, attraction to more than one person — which so distressed our forbears.

And that most conservative of establishments, organized medicine, has begun to accept sexuality as a physical function, like eating or breathing. Newer (and even some older) doctors are asking the important questions about sex without being considered indecently curious. "How is your sex life?" often follows such questions as "How is your appetite?" and "How are your bowel movements?" in a natural and necessary sequence.

Yet as much anxiety has been created as alleviated by the odd directions in which those who would exploit the new sexual freedom have led us. Patients report all manner of confusion and disturbance in response to the pressures of the hustlers on the sexual bandwagon. A woman complains, "My husband thinks that he's liberated and I'm hopelessly uptight. He gets turned on by pictures of women in thigh-high stockings and pearls. I become aroused by the thought of a man caressing me with love. My husband thinks he's really sexy and I'm childish; but I think my husband is the unliberated sex prisoner. Can you free him to love me and have sex with me at the same time?"

Sex is, no panacea. It has been famous in more than one century for its ability to induce confusion and dissent. In the '70's, the sexual revolution has created as much anxiety as it sought to dispel. Yet let us not indict sex for the frailties of human character which make cohabitation so highly marketable, so misunderstood, so vulnerable a meeting ground for the truths between people.

Corps of hospital workers relieves anxiety of patients

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

MANHASSET, N.Y. (AP) — In the usually scary business of being sick in a hospital, little things can loom large.

But an expanding corps of hospital workers — usually called patients' representatives — is trying to help patients keep things in perspective.

"We show patients we are trying to give a bit of extra care," says Sylvia Lester, director of Patient Relations at North Shore University Hospital in Manhasset, N.Y., on Long Island, and a volunteer worker at the hospital for 24 years.

"And we are an extra pair of eyes and ears for the administration of the hospital," said Mrs. Lester, one of 16 volunteers at the 600-bed hospital.

The recently formed Society of Patient Representatives of the American Hospital Association in Chicago reports an expanding membership now totaling more than 500.

Alexandra Gekas, society director, estimates that about 1,000 of the nation's 6,100 hospitals have some kind of patient representatives "to make the hospital a less anxiety-producing place, a more human place, and to help solve problems."

Giving almost full time herself, Mrs. Lester can count on an average of six hours a week from each of her volunteer staff. This permits twice-weekly visits to each floor and nursing station, with calls made on all patients except those in intensive care or psychiatric units. When patients are very ill, volunteers talk with family members.

The volunteers, from surrounding communities, don't ask what a patient's health problem is, and they respect confidentiality.

Giving patients medical advice is banned, and any legal matters are referred to the administrator. But volunteers sometimes are told, or sense, that a patient is worried about scheduled surgery or tests, and ask a doctor or nurse to explain what is involved.

Nurses or doctors may advise patient representatives that certain patients are unduly depressed or anxious, so they may better interpret what the patients say.

All patients receive an information kit explaining hospital procedures — including meal service, admission, rates, blood bank, insurance payments. Each receives a copy of "Your Rights as a Patient." Each volunteer leaves his personal card and hospital telephone number for follow-up on questions or problems.

"Nurses and doctors are the first ones to handle patients' fears and anxieties. We're just a bit extra."

WINE DRINKER

California finishes third

By TOM GABLE
Copley News Service

Natives of California, which produces about 75 per cent of all wine consumed in the United States, consumed almost 82 million gallons during 1976, up from 79 million gallons in the previous year.

But the Golden State imbibers finished third in per capita consumption at 3,732 gallons, compared to 5,001 for first place District of Columbia and 4,324 for Nevada, both of which depend heavily upon the lavish spending of the visitors from other states and nations.

This is no major breakthrough, however, in comparison to consumption in other countries. Where the average American consumes just over a gallon a year, Italians and the French go for more than 30 gallons a year for every man, woman and child.

Back in the United States, the leading wine consumption areas after Washington, D.C., Nevada and California are Oregon (2,860 gallons per capita in 1976), New Hampshire (2,584), Vermont (2,547), Rhode Island and Washington (2,542).

While those on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts appear to be firmly committed to increasing their intake of spirits.

the grape, those in the South, Plains States and parts of the Rockies seem intent on other pursuits.

Coming in 50th (last) in per capita annual wine consumption in 1976 was Iowa (0.507 gallons), followed by Kentucky (0.519), West Virginia (0.524), Tennessee (0.630), Kansas (0.633), Arkansas (0.646), Mississippi (0.647) and Utah (0.717). Some of these states have been retarded in their access to wines by archaic state laws. Others? Who knows.

But overall, consumption of wine in the United States continues to increase as more and more Americans discover how well this natural grape product goes with good food and how it can serve as a healthier substitute for headier, higher-alcohol spirits.

Cooks used rum for centuries

By The Associated Press
Using rum to liven up desserts is a time-honored custom, but I learned only recently that it was apparently first tried by King Stanislas of Poland.

Back in the 17th century, when Stanislas was vacationing in France, he decided to experiment at the end of an evening meal. Dinking pieces of cake in rum, he proceeded to set them afire.

Man has enjoyed rum in one form or another for about three centuries. An English admiral named Robert Blake is said to have begun issuing a daily ration to the Royal Navy as insurance against mutiny. And he had a point since I'm told the stuff they drank ran a formidable 151-proof.

Another account says that in 1745 rum was served to the crews of cargo ships.

Again, Puerto Rican light rum is usually advised since dark rum may give a stronger taste.

When cooking with rum, it is wise to use the liquor sparingly at first. You can always add more as you go along.

Rum gives a decided filip to baked carrots.

ADDRESSING INVITATIONS for a luncheon and style show slated Sept. 20 in Midland Country Club for Trinity School, sponsored by the school's Parents Club, are left to right, Susie Burnett, Barbara Price, Sandra Staley, chairman, Jan McMillian and Talley Landua. The event will get underway at 11:30 a.m. with the social period, followed at noon with the luncheon and the program at 12:45 p.m. Also to be featured are personalized stationery, Christmas cards, accessories and handbags. An El Paso store will provide the fashions. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

Wine magazine starts

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A group of Italian journalists have launched a quarterly magazine in the United States and Canada which will be devoted mainly to the wines of that country. It will also seek to acquaint American readers with some of the better Italian food specialties.

"We have no intention of trying to compete with your American wine and food magazines," said Vincenzo Buonassisi, senior editor of the publication which is called "Italian Wines & Spirits." "We merely want to give Americans a fuller knowledge of our wines, since they do stand in first place now among wines imported by your country."

Total Italian wine imports to America for 1976 came to 17.6 million gallons, or a little more than one out of every two bottles brought into this country.

The Italians, who go in for cooking with wine in a big way, have some set rules about how to go about this. For instance, if you use wine as an ingredient to cook a certain dish, you should use the same wine to drink with that dish.

Shisha embroidery started in India

By ERICA WILSON

Shisha, it's not what it sounds like. It's got nothing to do with sneezing. Shisha is the Indian name for "mirror," and in the province of Kutch in Northern India, there began a tradition for a most unusual form of embroidery that's recently become the rage all over. Small rounds of mica or mirrors are sewn all over the embroidery, setting them into the cloth like jewels with the stitching.

I've made a denim work shirt of ovis with "shisha" eyes, and a pair of blue jeans with a lattice of birds climbing up the legs in "shisha" circles. But this is only a beginning. You could make a "shisha" evening collar, belt or handbag, add touches of mirror embroidery to an evening skirt or combine it with other embroidery. Since mirrors aren't the easiest thing in the world to work with, I've found a 20th century improvement: mylar. It's a linen-backed aluminum fabric, and like the real mirror pieces, it is found in many art stores. Because mylar is technically a fabric, you can cut out the circles easily and work them into your embroidery. And because of the aluminum, they shine just like mirrors. I got a letter recently from a shisha stitcher in Topeka, who's been working successfully for years cutting circles out of tin cans. But if simplicity's what you're after, stick with mylar. If you do work on blue jeans (which, to my mind, is a great place to

Furniture sets apartment mood

Copley News Service

Apartment residents must rely much more heavily on furnishings to set the mood of the room instead of wallpaper and window treatments which may not meet with the approval of the landlord. Fortunately, there's a wide selection of furniture and accessories for every type of budget. The new look in home furnishings is referred to by interior designers as eclectic. It is a term simply used to describe rooms in which a variety of styles and materials are mixed to create a more personal look.

It's easy to end up with a hodgepodge, but if careful selection is made, you can create a room in which furniture and accessories of different styles and materials are compatible. The important thing to watch for is scale and the feeling each piece adds to the room.

Some effective rooms have been created by combining chrome, glass and wood. The glass, which gives an airy look, is particularly an asset in small apartments. It also is easy to maintain.

Wood, on the other hand, adds warmth which sometimes is lacking in an exclusively modern decor. If you buy wisely, the furniture pieces can become interchangeable so that when you move you can mix and match them for use in different rooms of the apartment.

Furniture also should become an integral part of the room's color scheme.

Pieces with a glazed white finish or a warm wood tone enrich the color scheme by accenting the rest of the colors and making them more appealing.

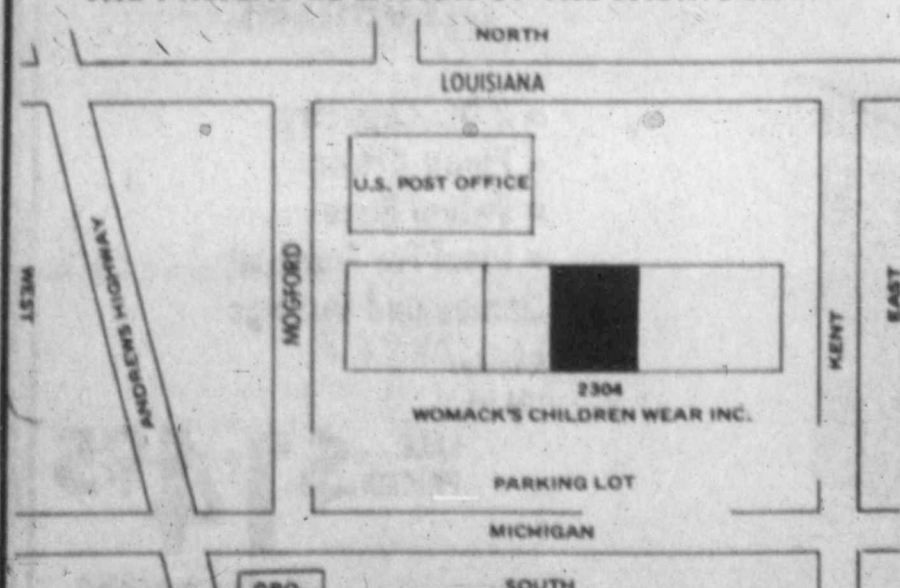

Browns in the wood create a warm, natural feeling. The color scheme for the rest of the room should depend on the purpose of that particular living area.

An all-purpose room, such as the living room or family room, requires bright colors. A cheerful color scheme carried out on walls, furnishings, windows and upholstery makes the family, and guests feel welcome.

Many British wives face growing economic straits

By TAD BARTIMUS

LONDON (AP) — Patricia Tweddle and Rosemary Smith are loving mothers, loyal wives, frugal shoppers, tidy housekeepers. They also are examples of Britain's new poor — they are convicted holdup women.

Pat Tweddle, 35-year-old mother of five, says her only regret is that she got caught.

"It happened sort of innocently. Rose was short of money and I was short of money. The subject came up. The more we talked about it, the more it seemed it could happen. We were desperate. We didn't have — and still don't have — any money. There seems to be no way out.

"More and more people are getting this way," Mrs. Tweddle's husband had been unemployed for a year, since being laid off as a lathe operator at an aircraft factory.

He had been earning $154 a week after taxes, affording fresh vegetables and fruit, strawberries and cream in the summer, good cuts of meat on cold winter days.

Now the Tweddles must make do with about $81 a week from the government, plus whatever Mr.

Tweddle can earn from odd jobs as a laborer. He turned down the offer of a steady job because it paid only $51 for a 40-hour week.

The family lives in a government-owned apartment for which they pay $17.95 a week.

"I'm $340 behind in my rent and they can take my home away anytime they want," says Mrs. Tweddle. "I'm waiting for the electric people to come and turn my lights off."

"The last time I bought a new dress was six years ago, but at least before we could buy new things for the kiddies. Now I comb the second-hand shops for their clothes and shoes."

Thousands of British women face the same dilemma. The National Consumer Council recently issued a report saying one wife in three has received no housekeeping increase from her husband in three years.

But today's shopper needs more than five times as much money as she spent in 1951 to buy the same amount of food. Prices have risen nearly 450 per cent. House prices have multiplied six times.

The average weekly wage for a skilled worker is 72 pounds, or $122. In 1951 it was about one-eighth as much, but rising prouderly. The socialist country's inflation rate is 17.5 per cent.

Britons save nearly seven times more than they used to, yet the compulsion to consume and acquire seems to be growing. Today, one person in three has a television, compared with one in 66 in 1951. There is one car for every four Britons, while 25 years ago only one in 20 had a car. One home in three has a telephone, compared with one in 10 in 1951.

But the biggest contrast is in employment. In 1951, some 203,000 Britons were jobless. This year, in a country of 54 million, unemployment stands at 1.3 million.

"I saw my husband, Vic, going off to work that morning without even the price of a cup of tea in his pocket," said Rose Smith, 33, remembering that chilly day in late March.

"It was the last straw. If you really love someone you are willing to make any sacrifice for him."

So the mother of three and her pal, Pat, went through the telephone directory and found a post office address in another neighborhood.

At 5:25 p.m. they walked into the post office and locked the door behind them.

"I went up to the counter and Rose and I looked at each other and nodded," recalled Mrs. Tweddle. "That meant 'go.' Then I took a hammer from my pocket, which I'd brought from home, hit the glass twice but didn't smash it, only cracked it, and Rose took the gun from her pocket and faced the man behind the counter."

"He was terrified. As soon as he saw the gun he started throwing money at us and yelling 'take it, take it' while Rose was yelling 'give us more, give us more.'"

"He also set off the foot alarm and the burglar bell was ringing the whole time. We put the money in an empty grocery bag and then stuffed all the money in it and slowly walked out of the post office, turned the corner and started up a hill."

The road was a dead-end alley. As the women retraced their steps, a police car pulled up beside them. "We panicked and ran. They pulled in front of us and asked what was in the bag. I just handed it over while Rose said 'you wouldn't believe it.' Then they took us to jail."

The haul was $3,502, or 2,060 pounds.

Mrs. Smith posted 500 pounds bond after two days. Mrs. Tweddle waited five days before being released on her own recognizance. At a hearing Judge Alan King-Hamilton revoked bail and sent them to Holloway prison for three weeks.

Neither woman had ever been in jail before. Their husbands stood by them; their children were told.

When they again appeared before Judge King-Hamilton at the Old Bailey, London's central criminal court, he gave them suspended sentences and placed them on probation.

Mrs. Tweddle and Mrs. Rose say they'll stay out of trouble.

"I love my kids too we're on probation. For the next 24 months if I so die, whose children range much as pick up a match in age from 13 to five, off the street that doesn't belong to me. I can be suspended sentence and sent back to jail."

Remodeling? Here's answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q — I have been doing a lot of reading about kitchens lately because we are thinking of having our kitchen remodeled in about six months. Several times I have come across the expression "work triangle" to indicate an ideal layout from the standpoint of efficiency. While I have a vague idea of what this means, I am not quite sure about the details. Can you help me?

A — A work triangle refers to a step-saving arrangement which places a major appliance at each point of the triangle. Under an ideal setup, the three points of the triangle would be equal distances apart, but it is not always possible to achieve because of differences in the shapes of kitchens. At one point of the triangle pattern should be the refrigerator, at one the sink and the remaining one the stove. Usually, you move from the refrigerator to the sink to the stove, so the sink center should be between the two others, with the whole idea to cut down backtracking. An essential element of a good work triangle is that it is one through which no traffic passes.

Q — Our house has very old wooden gutters that are generally in good shape. But there is one small section where the wood has rotted a bit. How can this be repaired without cutting out the section and replacing it, which might be a difficult job?

A — Most hardware stores and building supply dealers sell patching kits for that purpose. Some consist of pieces of fiber glass with instructions on how to apply and spar varnish got its name secure a patch. Or you can place a heavy piece of canvas or aluminum supported the rigging on foil over the leaky area, setting it in roofing cement and then holding down the edges with the same cement.

Q — I would like to make a small pool for our backyard garden. I intend to make it of concrete. Would it be practical to use a drain pipe at the bottom so the water can be emptied out occasionally?

A — Yes, but be sure it leads to a point lower than the bottom of the pool where the drainage is good.

Q — I know that spar varnish can be used outdoors, but is it good for furniture that is kept outside all year round in both hot and cold weather? Also, how did it get its name?

A — The traditional spar varnish got its name because it was, and still is, used on the spars that of canvas or aluminum supported the rigging on ships. It is sometimes called marine varnish. While it is very durable, it is not meant for furniture, inside or out.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Blood pressure affected by salt

Dear Dr. Solomon: My brother has been told to cut down on salt because his blood pressure is too high. I'd like to know if salt is really what does this—or is it just something that makes it worse? Would it be a good idea for all of us to eat less salt or only for somebody who's got a tendency towards high blood pressure?—Ellie C.

involved in hypertension, and he says that perhaps only 15 to 20 per cent of Americans are susceptible to excess salt. But there is, he feels, no sure way to identify these people—and, in any case, the American blood pressure may be too high in general.

Dear Ellie: The way most authorities put it is that reducing salt consumption helps bring down high blood pressure, but there is no conclusive evidence that salt as such can cause hypertension in a normal person.

Salt appetite is determined by early eating habits and has no relation to salt needs, Dr. Page says. His recommendation is to reduce salt intake, starting with earliest childhood—and I agree with this. You do not need more salt than what you get naturally in foods—and that does not include the highly salted snacks and other products we are surrounded with. You would be surprised by how good and how varied foods taste when you stop oversalting them.

However, a number of experts feel that salt—which does, after all, permeate so much of our diet—plays a bigger direct role in hypertension than has been thought. One of these is Dr. Lot B. Page, chief of medicine at Newtown-Wellesley Hospital in Massachusetts, who took part in several Harvard expeditions to the Solomon Islands to study health and ways of living in a number of tribes.

The Harvard investigators found that as islanders took up Western habits, their blood pressure went up. By a process of elimination they concluded that diet was what was causing this, and that the key dietary factor was salt.

Dr. Page has compared their findings with studies from other parts of the world and says that low blood pressure societies are, without exception, low salt societies. Nobody in these groups has high blood pressure, and a rise in blood pressure with age is rare. Often the daily salt intake is about half a gram—a tenth (or less) than the American average.

This pattern, Dr. Page says, is worldwide. The low-blood-pressure groups are all pre-industrial peoples not yet assimilated into Western civilization. They include Chinese aborigines, Greenland Eskimos, Melanesian tribesmen, Polynesians, Easter Islanders, Australian aborigines, Kenyan nomads, the Masai tribesmen of Tanzania, Congo pygmies, bushmen of the Kalahari Desert, Malaysians, and various Indian tribes in Central and South America. Some primitive groups do eat a lot of salt (the Gashkai nomads on southern Iran are a good example) and they have high blood pressure.

Dr. Page agrees that genetic and other factors besides salt are usually involved in hypertension, and he says that perhaps only 15 to 20 per cent of Americans are susceptible to excess salt. But there is, he feels, no sure way to identify these people—and, in any case, the American blood pressure may be too high in general.

Southern Louisiana suffers near-epidemic of Tut glut

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Football and food used to be what folks talked about in these parts. But not anymore. It's just Tut, Tut, Tut and more Tut.

"It's not the art — it's the Egyptian mystique, Boris Karloff mummy movies, all that stuff, that's grabbing them," says Betty McDermott, the coordinator of the King Tut exhibit which opens next Sunday.

Take the case of Chris Ehrhardt, your typical 6-year-old boy, who ran away from home to play with the toys of another boy who has been dead 3,300 years.

Chris had heard so much about Tut that he waited outside the museum, knapsack in hand, all afternoon to see the Boy King. Unfortunately, he arrived on Aug. 7, when Tut was still in Chicago. He's scheduled to come back this month for a personal tour of the treasures after they open here.

Or how about Alice St. Martin Lyons, a 79-year-old member of the New Orleans Museum of Art for much of her lifetime and whose mother was in Egypt in 1922 when Howard Carter discovered the King Tut artifacts.

Mrs. Lyons says she vividly remembers how excited her mother was seeing Tut then and that she is so thrilled about her chance to see it she may go to the exhibit two or three times.

And then there is 93-year-old Gypsy Bell Petty of Ida, La., a tiny town about 400 miles from here near the Arkansas border. She wants to see Tut so much she became a member of the museum for $15 so she wouldn't have to stand in line to get in.

Those are just three Tut stories. There may be eight million of them in the Crescent City.

"We have a social club and our members wish to visit the King Tut Exhibition on your group plan. The best time for us is either Friday, Nov. 23 or Sunday, Nov. 25," a Houston woman wrote the museum when group tours were being booked. At the end of the letter she added: "P.S. Come to think of it, I am having a baby at that time! Please change our request to some weekend in January."

A man off the street walked into the museum with a question: What color is Nile Blue? After being told that shade was a creation of a national paint company, he said he would contact the company. "I'm going to sell Tut T-shirts," he said. "And I want to get the color right."

More than 1,200 groups with more than 118,000 members have booked anywhere from an hour in the morning to an entire night to see the exhibit privately. The Royal Canadian Ontario Museum of Toronto, The Egyptology Society of Miami Cowboys and Indians of Dallas, Luigi's Historical Society of New Orleans, They're all coming.

So are more than 500 newsmen at a press preview showing on Sept. 14.

As well as the ambassador of Egypt, the president of Exxon's U.S. branch, the chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, the governor of Louisiana and a myriad of titled politicians at the museum's state dinner Sept. 15.

And 250 blueblood couples who paid up to $1,500 to attend the museum's annual Odyssey Ball fundraiser — which was turned into an Odyssey weekend, including the state dinner and an exclusive showing of Tut, because of the tremendous demand.

Those folks who belong to no groups and aren't members of the museum will follow for the next four months until the exhibit closes Jan. 15 — Super Bowl Sunday.

At what time, this city may go back to talking about football and food instead of Pharaohs and jewels.

School plans to burn wood chips

GRAND MARAIS, Minn. (AP) — They're bringing the old pot-bellied wood stove back to the schoolhouse here, but it's going to be considerably more expensive.

A proposed wood heating system for the community's 750 student school will cost $288,000. It will burn wood chips instead of fuel oil, saving the district about $16,000 yearly in fuel bills, said Supt. Vern Lueth.

Grand Marais is about 100 miles north of Duluth in Minnesota's timber country. The community lacks rail service, so all fuel oil must be brought in by truck.

The two connected buildings in the school complex have used an average of 65,000 gallons of fuel oil per year, at a cost of $26,000 annually for the past three years, Lueth said. He said the school board had been worried about rising fuel costs, plus hikes in the cost of bringing fuel up in the North Woods.

"We saw the solution in the tremendous resource we have around here," Lueth said. "Just from trees that have fallen, we could get enough wood." The new heating system, to be installed for use by the first of next year, will burn about 1,000 tons of wood chips per year at a cost of about $10,000. Two lumber firms near Grand Marais already produce the chips needed for the heating system.

The new wood-fired furnace requires a separate building and a 30-foot silo to store the wood. The chips will be fed by conveyor into the plant and shot into the furnace firebox by a blower. The furnace will run a conventional hot-water heating system.

"Nothing at all you can burn is cleaner than wood," Lueth said. "I foresee no problems with pollution control agencies."

School officials estimate the new heating system will pay for itself in 18 years. And they're fairly certain that oil prices will shoot up much faster than the cost of wood during the same period.

Electronic calculators gaining ground in schools

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The pocket calculator has invaded the classroom, overcoming opposition from some parents and educators who fear that electronic wizardry will replace simple mathematical skill.

Retailers advertise — and parents buy — "Back to School" specials, not only for the college student, but for his younger brothers and sisters. Prices for the simpler models are under $10.

In a 1976 study for the National Science Foundation, Marilyn N. Suydam, director of a federally funded Calculator Information Center at Ohio State University, estimated that between 25 and 50 per cent of U.S. schools used calculators to some degree.

The National Assessment of Educational Progress, a project of the Education Commission of the States, will include a calculator section next year in its second, full-scale test of students' math skill at ages 9, 13 and 17.

"We have a whole test booklet using the calculator throughout," says Jane Armstrong, math coordinator for the testing group.

Using calculators was never even discussed when the group first tested math ability in a 1972-73 survey. But this year, math educators around the country said that calculators were a must.

The National Council of Teachers of Mathematics has endorsed the use of calculators in class. At what age level? Council President John C. Eggsgard says, "We're only going to know by trying. My personal belief is that it is possible to let the child use the calculator at an early age and still insist that he learn the basic facts."

Eggsgard and other teachers say children will need to learn fundamentals — addition, subtraction, multiplication, division — so they understand the principles involved. You need the basics to make the calculator do what you want it to.

At a higher level, says Eggsgard, who teaches grades nine through 12, he still wants his students to learn how to find the square root of a number, using paper and pencil, so they understand the concept.

Youngsters who were turned off by the boredom of dozens of repetition problems may gain new interest in mathematical concepts and the uses of numbers. "People are going to enjoy math because the drudgery is gone," says one teacher.

Both the National Institute of Education and the National Science Foundation are considering proposals for research projects into new ways of using calculators. Such projects might include an exploration of whether a calculator can be used to help a child learn to count or whether computation of decimals can be introduced at an early age.

Miss Suydam says there have been about 20 studies of varying quality into the effects of calculators on children. Most have centered on whether use of the calculator impairs the child's ability to understand such things as multiplication and addition, and Miss Suydam says most of the data "looks positive. The achievement level is at least as good or better" as among children who have not been exposed to calculators.

The positive effect of calculators — whether they help children learn more — is unmeasured because their use in the classroom is too new for long-range studies. But, Miss Suydam says, "Some evidence is beginning to surface that ... you can use the calculator as the first step and then develop the meaning."

Some educators believe handheld calculators can be used as early as kindergarten to introduce children to numbers. Others would wait until junior high or high school. Still others would allow the use of a calculator only to check problems and eliminate routine computation; they would ban them from tests.

Almost all agree, however, that like it or not, there's no way to stop the calculators. "Even though you tell the kids not to use the calculator at school, they've got the things at home," says Eggsgard. A survey last year by a market research firm showed that 43 per cent of American homes had a calculator and that the number is growing. Many families have more than one.

Industry sources estimate that 1977 sales of four-function personal calculators — the kind you use to balance your checkbook, figure your income tax or add up the grocery bill — will top $300 million. They say that by the end of this year, almost 73 million hand-held calculators will have been sold. If they all were still in use, that would come to about one calculator for every three Americans.

In her study, Miss Suydam wrote that as year for the agency's full-basic arithmetic teachers and parents use calculators themselves, educators found that even their reluctance to the use of computers in the classroom is likely to diminish.

Will children unfamiliar with calculators be at a disadvantage? No, says Miss Armstrong of the National Assessment of Educational Progress. In preliminary trials this still have trouble with scale test in 1978, students who had never used calculators before could handle them successfully after about five minutes of instruction.

Eggsgard says the calculator can stimulate slow students because it gives them a chance to solve interesting problems, even if they

Ringling the bell

With BOB TIEUEL

Barbara Jordan— Look at the Black Experience: Congresswoman Barbara Jordan's charisma cannot be disputed. Ms. Jordan herself has been quoted as saying "Now everybody knows that I have some God-given traits which bring me to the attention of the public, but if I have anything special that makes me influential, I simply don't know how to define it!" Is charisma the only measure of a politician? How do we measure Barbara Jordan?

She has been described as a very ambitious person, who uses her eloquence not only on behalf of high principle, but also to get ahead. At 41, she is one of the most powerful women in America today.

In 1976, after election to her third term in the U.S. Congress, Ms. Jordan said, "I'm neither a Black politician, nor a woman politician. Just a politician." Writes Ms. Gant in Essence recently, "If Barbara Jordan now says she's just a politician, then we'd better scrutinize her as we would any other political figure. It is no longer in the interests of Black people to simply applaud political success with analyzing the motives and machinations behind it."

When questioned about her criticism of the Black Caucus in Washington, Ms. Jordan's answer was, "I have told my Black Caucus colleagues that we cannot try to be the Urban Coalition, the Afro-Americans for Black Unity, all rolled into one. We are legislators, and we ought to remember that is our role."

Ms. Jordan claims, "My faith in the Constitution is whole, it is complete, it is total. I felt many years that somehow George Washington and Alexander Hamilton just left me out by mistake. But through the process of amendment, interpretation and court decision, I have finally been included in 'We the People.'"

And yet it seems to this correspondent that it is up to "We the Black people" to start assessing our Black politicians and leaders more realistically than we have in the past.

Bellinger sources indicate that James Farmer, founder of the Congress of Racial Equality (Core) has been named executive director of the 4 million members of Coalition of American Public Employees. A native of Texas who was graduated from college at age 18, Farmer has spent a lifetime as an activist for civil rights and social reform. The Coalition was formed in 1972 by leaders of public employees organizations in an effort to coordinate programs of political, legal and legislative action and public education at the national and state level.

Bellingers will recall that in 1969, Farmer was appointed assistant secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, by then President Nixon, who had chosen "Black Capitalism" as the nation's way out on the economic plight of Blacks. Farmer resigned in frustration in 1971. Later, he founded Soul City in the Carolinas, after securing millions of government dollars for its development from the Nixon administration. Word received since is that the project has folded.

A. Phillip Randolph, chairman of Black Americans to Support Israel Committee, has announced the first recipient of the Bayard Rustin Scholarship, which will enable a black student from the United States to participate in a one year study program at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

A project for the development and promotion of a nationwide apprenticeship program to train 5,000 automobile mechanics, body repairers, and painters has been launched by the U.S. Department of Labor and the Automotive Service Councils, Inc.

Toll-free hotline helps track welfare chiselers

By DAVID AMMONS

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — By means of a toll-free hotline and a promise of anonymity, Washington State has enlisted its citizens in tracking down welfare cheats.

It's proven economical and effective, officials say, though critics object to the idea as repugnant. In one year of operation, the system has led to discovery of $106,970 in welfare chiseling, officials say. Its cost to taxpayers: $3,900.

The program has its detractors. The American Civil Liberties Union, welfare rights groups, church groups and others say that encouraging neighbors to rat on each other smacks of totalitarianism.

"Oh, sure. We're criticized as using Gestapo techniques," says Robert Neilson, a former newspaperman who heads the parent Office of Special Investigations. "But I just weigh the values. As far as I am concerned, the hotline does more good than bad."

Neilson says welfare fraud is a felony "and failure to report it if you know about it amounts to aiding and abetting it. It's like watching a guy rob a bank and not turning him in."

When you call the hotline, a recorded message asks you to give the name and address of the party you suspect, along with what you think is illegal.

If you leave your name and phone number, you get a report on the outcome. You can phone anonymously, however, and 75 per cent of all callers do.

Neilson says the first thing his office does is feed the name of the suspect into a state computer. Many times, the person is not getting welfare benefits, but Social Security, workmen's compensation or other aid, if anything.

Many complaints don't pan out. But of 4,128 calls logged so far, 1,566 have been approved as legitimate complaints to be investigated. Most of the tips are about people the state has not been suspicious of, Neilson says.

The next step: Referral to the local welfare office. The recipient is asked to explain. If the caseworker decides that fraud is involved, it can be handled administratively, meaning restitution, or the case is turned over to the county prosecuting attorney.

So far, the hotline has uncovered 331 persons the state believes have defrauded the system. They owe the treasury a total of $106,970.

The debt is withheld from monthly welfare checks if they still are on welfare. Others use a repayment plan.

The prime instances of fraud are by welfare mothers and persons illegally using food stamps, Neilson says.

"Everybody thought we'd be a bunch of rednecks, but we try to bend over backward to give welfare recipients all of their rights. We aren't there to harass," said Neilson.

Complaints often come from neighbors "who work for a living and see a man next door who doesn't work but drives a big car, things like that. He resents it. And so do we."

Kremlin getting facelift

By SETH MYDANS

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin is getting a facelift, a complete restoration.

The 10-year, multi-million-ruble project has reached the stage where the grand red brick walls and towers along the Moscow River are enmeshed in forests of scaffolding.

Oleg N. Devyatov, deputy director of the project's workshops, said in an interview that great pains have been taken to duplicate the original materials and methods of construction of the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries when much of the present-day Kremlin was built.

Earlier restorations have been stopgap projects and have tended to involve additions in later styles rather than preservation of the past.

The over-all plans for the current renovation has aroused some controversy among architects and preservationists, because the Kremlin has been continually added to and rebuilt since the first oak ramparts were put up around the Kremlin Hill in the 12th century.

Those who lobbied for preservation of the latest version, with all the scars and character of history, lost out in the planning stages in the early 1970s.

But the restorers have agreed to keep the Kremlin's characteristic onion domes and pointed tile roofs, added in later centuries, "because people are used to them," Devyatov said.

At this point, more than 7 million rubles, or close to $10 million, has been spent and 75 per cent of the restoration has been completed, he said. The project is due to be finished by 1980, "in time for the Moscow Olympics."

Though the Kremlin is no longer the religious center of Russian Orthodoxy, and is the seat of an actively atheist government, the churches within the fortress where the tsars were baptized, married and buried are maintained with great care.

The five domes of Uspensky Cathedral alone, darkened by pollution from a power plant across the Moscow River, are being replated in gold leaf at a cost of a half million rubles, Devyatov said.

The restoration is concentrating on the churches, walls and towers of earlier centuries, and leaving aside the sedate yellow palaces of the 19th century that now house the Soviet Presidium and Council of Ministers.

These buildings, along with the modernistic Kremlin Palace of congresses, are well maintained and not in need of restoration.
