Under-age voungsters used to brag about being able to buy alcoholic beverages, but nowadays it's so easy there's no big deal, says one Midland high school student.

Why is it so easy? "Most of the stores just want the money. If one store won't sell it to us. another high school

In Sunday's Reporter-Telegram, reporter Kay Hord looks at how underage teenagers buy alcoholic beverages; including how they obtain fake identifications.

About 5 per cent of all Americans who use credit eventually face bills they can't pay, and a growing. number are charging toward disaster. However, there is somewhere to turn a credit counselor. Senator may block debt-ceiling bill

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) - A leader of a Senate filibuster on natural gaspricing said today he's ready to continue blocking legislation to raise the national debt ceiling until the Senate rejects a proposal to free gasfrom price controls.

The move by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D.; threatens the government's, ability to pay its bills. If the debt ceiling bill is not passed by Saturday morning, the beginning Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., called Abourezk's tactics "unconscionable.

Baker and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, meanwhile, reported little progress in efforts to resolve the stalemate that has stalled Senate action on the natural gas portion of President Carter's energy program for 10 days.

Baker said there is only a "fiftyfifty chance" that competing sides in the issue will be able to even agree to set a time to vote on various alternatives. A Saturday Senate session was scheduled and Baker said it might be another week before the issue is finally resolved.

Meanwhile, in a quick shuffle almost unnoticed by Senate leaders. the Senate today actually voted approval of a compromise proposal by Byrd and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., to allow gas prices to rise more than the President wants but without lifting the price controls.

It was by a quick voice vote engineered by Abourezk when few senators were on the floor. Had the action stood, the gas-pricing dispute would have been over and the industry deregulation plan rejected.

But Senate leaders, when they realized what had occurred, obtained another voice vote overturning the action - and the impasse continued.

The development involving the debt ceiling came shortly before the Senate adjourned late Thursday night after efforts to reach agreement on the gas legislation dan't work.

Skies should be fair through Saturday with cooler temperatures on that day. Westerly winds decreasing to 5 to 15 mph are predicted for tonight, the weatherman said.

Mennonites given Jan. 31 reprieve

WASHINGTON (AP) - An eleventh-hour reprieve by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has allowed the 500 Mennonites now living in West-Texas four more months to secure permanent visas.

Weatherman to initiate full reports

Around-the-clock weather reports will be provided for the Midland-Odessa area by the National Weather Service at the Midland Regional Air Terminal probably by the end of the year,

The reports, done in conunction with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, will include updated forecasts, radar summaries, weather warnings and other climatological information. Jim Lunney of the service said.

A transmitter will be set up in the Midland-Odessa area, and one will be constructed in Big Spring. Both will transmit at 162.4 megahertz VHF. A VHF receiver is needed to pick up the broadcasts because a conventional radio cannot do so.

The nationwide, 24-hour service was started to help fishermen and other persons sailing in the Gulf Coast waters keep up on changing weather conditions. The weather service wishes to expand it so that 90 per cent of the people in the country can receive

Lunney is unsure now whether area towns, such as Andrews and Crane, will be able to pick up the reports, but the Midland-Odessa area will receive "total (weather) coverage," he said.

The large metropolitan areas in Texas, already use the broadcasts. "Almost all the weather stations in West Texas will get (the weather reports) in," Lunney said.

He hopes the school systems will take advantage of the reports in order to stay informed of tornadoes and other severe oil men in Texas, Charles Vernon 'Cap' Lyman, 83, of 501 N Marienfeld St. died Thursday morning in a Phoenix, Ariz., hospital after a brief illness. He was living at his winter home in Scottsdale, Ariz., when he became ill.

Construction of the transmitters and acquisition of the equipment is under a national contract.

Memorial services will be Saturday at 11 a.m. MST in St. Barnabas-on-the-Desert Episcopal Church in Scottsdale, Ariz., with Dr. Ralph E. Hutton

Lyman had been associated with the oil industry almost continuously since the close of World War I. Since 1935 he was a resident of Midland, from which point he supervised his extensive holdings in various fields of

A native of Texas. Lyman was born at Taylor in Williamson County Jan. 29, 1894, but left there with his family in his infancy and moved to El Paso where he was educated in the public schools. Lyman, a star athlete in several sports, was graduated from El Paso High School in 1911. He later continued his studies at the University of Virginia where he studied mining engineering and was graduated in 1915. He also studied at the University of Sewanee, where he played on the football team in 1916. He earned letters in football, baseball, basketball and track and was:a 55year member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

After leaving the University of Sewanee, Lyman operated the Santa Maria Gold Mine in the District of Rayon, State of Chihuahua, Mexico. In April 1917 he enlisted voluntarily in the U.S. Army. Lyman was a member. of the First Officer's Training Camp at Leon Springs, Tex., and continued his studies at the First Corps School La Valbonno, France. Commissioned a second lieutenant, Lyman was promoted to captain and served in a number of the more important engagements of the war. Twice wounded, he was decorated for bravery in action, receiving two Purple Hearts, the Croix de Guerre and the St. Mihiel Medal. He

Justice officials to meet with Koreans over Park

WASHINGTON (AP) - Justice Department officials will meet in Seoul with South Korean government authorities to discuss "satisfactory terms and conditions for communicating" with Tongsun Park about alleged Korean influence buying in Congress, the department said today.

Park, a millionaire Korean rice dealer, so far has refused to return to the United States to face trial on federal charges of bribery and corruption.

The brief department announcement was the first official indication that U.S. authorities may be approaching some sort of agreement to question Park outside the United States.

Informed sources in Seoul had said earlier that the South Korean government would allow Justice Department officials to question

They said the agreement in prin-ciple was reached Thursday at a meeting in New York between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Korean Foreign Minister Park

The Justice Department announcement gave no further details about the time of the meeting.

RAIN is expected today from the northern Plains to the Ohio Valley. The National Weather service also predicts cool temperatures in the northern states, warm temperatures in the Gulf states and mild temperatures elsewhere. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Weiss and his supporters said the neutron bomb would "lower the threshold" to nuclear war. They said military leaders might feel less inhibited about using the neutron bomb since it has less destructive power than large-scale nuclear weapons. That could make it easier to introduce nuclear weapons into an altercation that could touch off a nuclear holocaust, opponents said.

"I am frightened to death of this weapon," said Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif. "Once you start down the road to a nuclear war, there is no turning back. Once we make nuclear war thinkable, we make it possible, and once we make it possible we make it inevitable.

But the attorney general, appearing as the Administration laid out its basic case for the new treaties signed by President Carter Sept. 7, said records of the Constitutional Convention, the text of the Constitution, and decisions by the Supreme Court indicate that U.S. property can be transfered by self-executing treaty.

Unquestionably, however, the House must approve legislation to implement the two treaties. One treaty provides for the gradualtransfer of the canal to Panamanian control, and the other establishes the permanent neutrality of the waterway linking the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans at the isthmus of Panama.

Herbert J. Hansell, a State Department legal adviser, said the implementing legislation will be ready for submission to Congress by the end of October, a comment that caused some members of the Foreign Relations Committee to complain that they are being asked to move ahead in the dark because they have not seen the legislation.

Throughout the opening round of

Committee has struggled with dife fering U.S. and Panamanian interpretations of the treaty language - particularly on U.S. right of intervention to assure neutrality of the -canal, the priority passage of U.S. warships in emergency, and the obligation of Panama to keep the waterway open.

Sen. Richard Stone (D-Fla.) called Thursday for the Administration to spell out official understanding of the controlersial passages so they could be attached to the treaties when they come to a ratification vote.

As the Senate committee pressed ahead with its hearings Thursday, Carter made a pitch for the treaties during a White House meeting with Republican congressmen, many of them already on record as strongly opposed

Rep. Robert K. Dornan (R-Calif.) said that Carter warned that sabotage and rioting could erupt in the Canal Zone if the treaties are rejected by the United States, but vowed U.S. troops would defend the waterway if that became necessary.

Dornan said the President referred to Gen. Omar Torrijos, the Panamanian government leader as a dictator, but "a dictator who cares about his people."

Soviets' space station may link

The Washington Post

MOSCOW - The Soviet union launched a new, unmanned space station into earth orbit Thursday in possible preparation for a manned mission to coin cide with the 20th anniversary next Tuesday of the Russian launching of the "Sputnik" satellite which

with other crafts

ushered in the space age. The space station, called Salyut-6, was said to be functioning normally, according to Tass, the official Soviet news agency. Some Western sources speculated that the Salyut might be joined in space by another Salyut and some Soyuz manned spacecraft for a space spectacular next month or in time for the celebration Nov. 7 of the 60th anniver-

Salyut has an apogee of 170.5 miles and a perigee of 135.8 miles from the earth, according to Tass. It said the station "has been launched for the purpose of conducting scientific and technical research and experiments and for checking on the design; on-board systems and equipment of orbital stations." The announcement was made after the space station was successfully launched and in orbit. Soviet television carried the announcement, but showed no film of the launch. Both the delayed announcement and the lack of video news are standard custom here, where space experiments always have been carried out in a much more secretive manner than in the United

The new space station is being controlled from a center near Moscow, using tracking and communications stations well to the east and aboard specially equipped vessels in the Atlantic Ocean, according to Russia's last manned space station experiment was made February when two cosmonauts, Viktor Gorbatkov and Yuri Glazkov, conducted an 18-day mission aboard Salyut-5.

Consider, if you will, the recent AFL-CIO executive council meeting in Washington, where Mr. Meany captured headlines one day by announcing his personal support for the Panama Canal treaties, and expressed the hope that Congress would approve

The next day he was back in there swinging at President Carter for failing to keep campaign promises, for not making jobs the number-one issue of his administration, for not taking care of Arthur Burns, head of the Federal Reserve Board, and for not providing public service jobs. He concluded that organized labor has no reason to be happy with Mr. Carter.

This has all the appearance of 'carrot and stick

Granted, on the basis of rhetoric Mr. Meany has some reason to be unhappy. During the recent Carter said, among many other, common constituency.

President must find a new 'best friend'

WASHINGTON - The thing that struck me as President Carter announced Bert Lance's resignation last week was when he said that he was losing his best friend

Everyone at the White House admits that Bert Lance had a special rapport with the President, and that he was the only person who could tell Mr. Carter when he was wrong or off the track. This role in the White House is not to be underestimated.

It is so important that I believe before we find a new head of the OMB. we must find President Carter a new best friend

This country can afford to go along without somebody managing its budget, but it cannot allow the President of the United States to six in the White Pouse without a best friend for one more day than is absolutely necessary.

I would go one step further and say a new position in the White House should be created entitled. "The President's Best Friend." The person filling the position would have as his only function to be Mr. Carter's confidant and bosom buddy.

This would avoid any conflict of interest with another job in the Administration. More importantly, the person holding it would not have to undergo the scrutiny and heat that Mr. Lance was subjected to, because. he, also was head of the Office of Management and Budget.

Since "The President's Best Friend" would be on the White House staff, he would not need Senate

He would have to answer to no one on The Hill as to what he did before he came into the Administration, nor would he have to reveal how much money he had in the bank, or owed banks, whichever the case might be.

Neither the FBI nor the IRS would have to be consulted as to whether he was qualified to be "The President's Best Friend," because only a President would know that.

I think that the search for a new best friend for the President should begin immediately.

It is my opinion that, from what we know about President Carter, we should start looking for someone who comes from the South, preferably a small town in Georgia. He doesn't necessarily have to be a banker, buthe should be a successful businessman. He must have an impeccable family relationship, be a nondrinker and a good storyteller. He should be gregarious, while at the same time firm when he believes Mr. Carter is wrong. He should also be able to play tennis and softball and know something about the peanut

. It wouldn't be hard to find such a person to fill the job. I know thousands of people who would like to be the President's best friend. Many of them could be persuaded to come to Washington, at great sacrifice to themselves, for the opportunity to chew the fat with Mr. Carter whenever he needed someone to talk

To safeguard himself against another Lance affair. I believe that, besides appointing his "Best Friend," Mr. Carter should also have the authority to designate a "Deputy Best Friend." Then if anything happens to his best friend, the President would have another one to fall back on.

President Kennedy and Johnson had many best friends. Nixon had only one - Bebe Rebozo. At the moment President Carter has none. Unless this situation is rectified immediately, the country could come to a standstill

While the search is on I am sending President Carter a copy of "How To Be Your Own Best Friend." It isn't the same as having Bert Lance, but hopefully it will fill the gap.

U.S. keeps dictator in power

By JACK ANDERSON and LES

WASHINGTON - This is another report on the private world of Anastasio Somoza, the vainglorious dictator who runs Nicaragua like a private estate. We have dubbed-him the Idi Amin of Latin America.

Somoza is caught up in the vision of ficult to assess. According to the his own grandeur. He is a tin-medal tyrant of unmilitary bearing, who loves to dress like a military peacock and adorn himself with sashes and

He is not as heroic, however, as the medals would attest. He prefers to speak to his subjects, for example, from the safety of a bulletproof booth inside a three-sided, steel-plated shed, surrounded by a fence. The bulletproof glass grossly distorts his owlish, ogling face.

In the tradition of his dictator father. Somoza uses his power to bleed his people. This massive transfusion has enriched his own bloodstream; he has amassed a personal fortune that runs into the though not as painful, to him as the Lance affair. A majority of Americans are against what President Carter already signed and is asking the Senate to ratify. How he can turn the country around is a question which his cleverest aides in the White one, the Lance affair will be wiped out in the public mind. The largest event on the President's calendar, of course, is his 11-day trip scheduled to take him to eight nations. The preparation alone for such an exhausting journey (it's Tuesday, could this be Lagos?) is enough to orcupy him for a couple of weeks.

To be briefed on the chiefs of state and principal officials of that many nations and to do a crash-course on their concerns and interest about the United States are enough to boggle even Mr. Carter's bright mind, because the man is a greenhorn at international relations.

To him, it might seem just like a jumbo version of two weeks' campaigning across the United States for the office he now holds, but this international stuff is another game altogether. How he conducts himself and what he says will be remembered by the people who make decisions, and, unlike campaigning, the exercise won't be to sway crowds or media audiences. Six of the eight nations he is scheduled to visit do not have what wecall full-blown democracies. The crowds might cheer, while the leaders in their private moments react differently. The President showed last weekend that he still relishes campaigning. He made appearances for Henry Howell, Virginia's Democratic candidate for governor, and the first major politician in that state to endorse Mr.

Carter last year. Mr. Carter even affected hiswold Populist self in stumping for Howell, who wallows in populism. Mr. Carter lambasted the gas industry for its lobbying against his energy program and also lit into Howell's Republican opponent - but not by name - for failing

WASHINGTON - When the federal government worte its rules on handling employee complaints of discrimination, it ordained that they "shall be resolved promptly. They aren't

At the ACTION agency it took 1,145 days to decide discrimination complaint on its merits, according to Civil Service Commission figures for the fiscal year that ended June 30, 1976

At the Community Services Administration it took 560 days; at the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, specialists in fighting discrimination, it took 567 days, and at the Civil Service Commission, which made the rules after Congress enacted the Equal Employment Opportunity Act in 1972, it took

"The bulk of our work here," said John Schultz, acting chief of the CSC's discrimination complaints and enforcement section, "is harassing the agencies on timeliness. Agencies do not process decisions timely. Of course the commission - 385 days - is no model

The Civil Service Commission wants complaints of discrimination to be processed within the 180 days can file suit in federal court. But the government-wide average for processing 7,018 complaints in fiscal 1976 was 398 calendar days.

More distressing to Schultz was the statistic his office found on how long it took an agency, on the average, to reject a discrimination complaint on the ground that it was not filed in timely fashion - 87 days. At the Defense Mapping Agency it took exactly one year to determine that a complaint had been flated, Schultz said, because they include the period involved in lawsuits where employees have gone to court 181 days after a discrimination complaint has been filed but been decided on its merits.

But, he said, "that's no excuse for having that kind of processing.

In fiscal 1976, only 3 agencies on the processingtime list fell under the 180-day deadline - the General Accounting Office of Congress, the Interstate commerce Commission and the Railroad Retirement Board. The 3 handled 13 discrimination complaints.

The year before 6 agencies fell under the 180-day provision, and the government-wide processing average was 295 days.

Two years ago the Civil Service Commission enforcement section started taking over discrimination cases that were more than 75 days old in an effort to get faster resolution. Last year, Schultz said, his section took over 454 cases. In addition to that, he said, "we send a lot of very unpleasant letters.

Delays in processing discrimination complaints hurt government employees, Schultz said. "They clearly work to the disadvantage of the comset in the law to run until the complaining employee plainants." both in emotional toll and in losing opportunities to get "fresh facts" by holding investigations as close in time to the alleged discriminatory act as possible.

In reporting data compiled from the federal agencies, the Civil Service Commission said that 40,047 employees received equal-employment counseling in fiscal 1976, out of which 7,018 formal complaints were filed - both increases from fiscal 1975, when 36,931 were counseled and 5,563 complaints filed.

Of the 7.018 formal complaints, almost 52 per cent were based on allegations of racial prejudice, almost 19 per cent on allegations of prejudice against women, 11 per cent on age bias, almost 10 per cent on national-origin bias, 6 per cent on bias toward men and almost 4 per cent on religious-prejudice allegations.

In that year, according to the commission data agencies disposed of 5,704 complaints.

'Utilizing recycled aluminum, copper and other metals, as well as paper and other recycled materials, saves vast quantities of energy ranging from 30 to 95 per cent," Mighdoll says. He points out that at present recyclables make up these percentages of the total raw materials used in the U.S.: 25 per cent of the aluminum; 42 per cent of the copper; 46 per cent of the lead; almost 14 per cent of the zinc; and about 18 per cent of

Hiking fine if company desired

By MARGARET NELSON

FRANCONIA NOTCH, N.H. (AP) - When Anne Briggs and her boyfriend went to spend a quiet weekend recently in New Hampshire's wilderness, turns they found 500 people there with the same idea.

"If I had wanted to see this many people, I could . have stayed in Harvard Square," Ms. Briggs com-

The couple described their hike along a trail on Mt. Washington as "like a forced march, with people walking in front and behind us

Droves of hikers, lured by the country's awakened love of the outdoors, are tramping their way up and down trails in New Hampshire's White Mountains.

But forest officials say all this love is wreaking havoc with the miles of trails in the northern part of the state. And during the summer, enthusiasts who come to commune with nature are more likely to run into a neighbor from down the street than a deer or raccoon. In fact, Ms. Briggs did meet a neighbor.

'On an August weekend the popular trails in the Presidential range look more like downtown Boston than the wilderness," said Ned Therrien of the White Mountain National Forest information office

"People find themselves walking right on top of each other and it must certainly detract from their

Currently Gotcher easily performs with the minute accuracy required for his exacting work. Housing clearances on fuel pumps, for example, must be accurate to within two-tenthousandths of an inch.

He measures those tolerances with special micrometers and feeler gauges. But primarily it is Gotcher's incredible sense of touch that serves him best on the job.

"What you do is line up the parts so that they are working smoothly," he explains. "Any part-that doesn't work properly is rejected and you get another one.

Gotcher received all his training on the job. Because of his handicap he didn't go to school as some of the others here did. He just started to work and picked up his skills from his sighted co-workers as he went; His proficiency has earned him several awards that recognize his outstanding job performance.

5 more cases reported

By The Associated Press Three more cases of Legionnaires disease have been confirmed at an East Tennessee hospital, and another two cases, both resulting in death, were reported at a Vermont hospital.

The national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said three of 21 persons being treated for atypical pneumonia at Holston Valley Community Hospital have the disease, according to Tennessee health of

Of the 21 being treated, seven were confirmed not to be suffering from the ailment which killed 29 of 160 people who contracted the disease after attending or being connected with an American Legion convention in Philadelphia in 1976.

Dr. Charles Chapman, director of the Sullivan County Health Department, said blood samples from 10 of the 21 patients have been sent to Atlanta so far, and others would be sent today

"This is because positive confirmation cannot be made through the testing if the disease has not progressed enough," he said

The two Vermont cases, at the Medical Center of Verment in Burlington, bring to six the number of Legionnaires disease victims reported there since July Three have died. Robert Burger, a spokesman for the Vermont medical center, said health officials believe four of the six victims caught the disease at the hospital. Tennessee officials said one of the 21 Kingsport residents - an 80-yearold man - died Monday, but they would not say if he was one of the three diagnosed as having Legionnaires disease

PADDING

Penalty may soon be dated

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES - The fuel economy penalty which California cars have suffered because of the state's tougher pollution control laws may soon be a thing of the past.

According to Environmental Protection Agency mileage estimates, some 1978-model Ford and General Motors cars equipped with a new smog device achieve exactly the same miles per gallon as identical models sold in states where pollution limits are not as strict.

In the past, California's cars frequently got as much as 15 per cent fewer miles per gallon. Use of the new, three-way catalytic converter system, which was first installed on 1976 four-cylinder Volvos in California, may mean the elimination of the California penalty once all cars are equipied with it.

The system will be standard equipment on all 1978 California Ford Pintos and Mercury Bobcats with 2.3liter, four-cylinder engines, and on all Pontiac Sunbirds, Chevrolet Monzas · and Oldsmobile Starfires with 151cubic-inch, four-cylinder engines.

It is also expected to be available in several months as an extra-cost option on Buick Skyhawks with 231cubic-inch V-6 engines.

The EPA estimated that the Ford cars with automatic transmission would achieve an estimated 24 m.p.g. in combined city-highway driving. Manual transmission versions were. estimated to get 29 m.p.g. Both estimates are identical with those for Pintos and Bobcats sold elsewhere without the new system.

On 1977 models, there was a penalty of 2 m.p.g. on California cars.

The GM four-cylinder engine, which is available only with automatic transmission in California, was estimated to get 26 m.p.g. - which also is identical to 49-state cars with the same engine. There was a 4 m.p.g. penalty for California cars in 1977.

"The three-way catalytic converter offers us the opportunity to achieve better emissions control while greatly reducing the fuel economy penalty normally associated with tighter pollution limits," said Alex C. Mair, general manager of GM's Pontiac division, in an interview.

GM had previously indicated it plans to expand the use of three-way catalytic converters to all its California cars in 1980 and to all cars nationwide in 1981.

California air pollution officials had praised the new system when Volvo introduced it, but U.S. auto makers initially were reluctant to use threeway converters because they require an expensive rare element called rhodium. Also, the Detroit companies said they were concerned because the Volvo system used expensive fuel injection instead of a conventional carburetor.

The three-way catalytic converter is so-named because it acts to reduce all three chemical components of exhaust emmissions, while converters used on most cars since 1975 act on only two.

The new system improves fuel economy and performance because a car's engine no longer needs an exhaust gas recirculation device, and other engine adjustments can be made to make the car run smoother and more efficiently than with conventional control gear.

October hearings sought in Korean influence probe

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The House Com mittee on Standards of Official Conduct expects to open public hearings next month on South Korea's efforts to buy influence in the U.S. Congress. @

The committee's special counsel, Leon Jaworski, said Thursday he hopes hearings can be held before the end of October, but did not indicate the specific subjects to be covered. After a closed meeting with Jaworski committee members said the sessions will deal not with misdeeds of individual members of Congress, but with the general pattern of Korea's effort to win friends and influence on Hearings would presumably rekindle public interest in the Korean affair and thus increase the pressure on the South Korean government to cooperate with the several U.S. probes of the influence-buying program.

In his statement announcing the hearings, Jaworski complained that "full exposure of the facts ... does not seem achievable without the unrestricted cooperation of the government of South Korea."

The former Watergate special prosecutor coupled that complaint with an indirect but unmistakable threat that Congress might cut economic aid to South Koera if it does not provide information sought by the in-Vestigators.

Jaworski noted "the feeling of the American people that it is quite incongruous for us to extend ... ald when reciprocal cooperation in this important investigation is not forthcom-

The Carter administration has made several attempts to convince South Korean President Park Chung Hee to send back to the U.S. Tongsun Park, the Korean businessman who has been indicted on charges that he tried to bribe members of Congress: Seoul has resisted those efforts.

At the United Nations Thursday South Korean Foreign Minister Park Tong-chin told reporters "we might have something to say in the next few days" about requests that Tongsun. Park be made available to U.S. investigators.

The foreign minister met in New York with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance to discuss the case - their second meeting in a week on the matter.

In his statement though, Jaworski indicated that the "cooperation" he is seeking is not limited to the return of Tongsun Park. He said he has "indications" that the influence-buying effort "may extend to the activities of other citizens of South Korea.

Jaworski went on to say that the policies of government of South Korea 'are not a target of our search.'

Two days ago the Justice Depart ment formally implicated the South Korean government in the influencebuying scheme. In an indictment of Hancho Kim, a naturalized American, citizen charged with conspiracy, the department said the South Korean, embassy here had provided cash used to gain influence with members of

Judge denies Davis mistrial motion

District Court Judge George Dowlen told jurors today to disregard a mistrial in the Cullen Davis murder

Dowlen, who debied the mistrial motion, said he has since examined the document and "I am satisfied that there have been no alterations. The incident evolved almost humorously, but suddenly erupted into the most explosive confrontation between state and defense lawyers since testimony began six weeks ago. Fort Worth Police Det. Greg Miller faced a new round of questioning today as prosecutors resumed presentation of their case against Davis, 44, a Fort Worth industrialist on trial in the death of his young stepdaughter. Twelve-year-old Andrea Wilborn was the first to die in the shooting spree at Davis' Fort Worth mansion on Aug. 2, 1976. The defendant's estranged wife, Priscilla, 36, was wounded, her lover Stan Farr, 30, was slain and a mansion visitor, Gus Gavrel. 22. was left partially paralyzed by a gunshot

Thursday's stormy episode unfolded moments after defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes completed cross-examination of Miller, a member of Fort Worth's Crime Scene Search Unit

Committee forwards 'work off' plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - States would be able to force welfare recipients to earn their benefits by working at special jobs under legislation being sent to the floor of the Senate

The Senate Finance Committee gave its approval to that provision Thursday as part of a package of proposed changes in the federal welfare laws. The plan was sent to the Senate floor on an 8 to 3 vote.

Under the so-called "work off" proposal, state or local welfare officials would be allowed to require adults receiving aid under the huge Aid to Families with Dependent Children program to pay for their package to a measure aimed at bailing out the finan-contains no provisions for meaningful job training benefits by working at a variety of jobs

The "work off" provision says the welfare reci pients would be paid the local prevailing wage or the state minimum wage, whichever is higher for jobs such as cleaning up parks or public facilities, yardwork or serving in publicly operated child care centers. In some states this wage probably would be below the federal minimum wage.

All such jobs would have to meet health and standards, the provision says, and would have to serve a useful purpose

Localities could not use welfare recipients in jobs that would displace other workers doing jobs at normal wages, according to the welfare provision.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio - The members of Steelworkers Union Local 2163 here were jam-packed into their union hall, confusion, uncertainty and bitterness mirrored in their faces.

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) - After weeks of dramatic testimony, jurors steeled themselves today for a numbing parade of character witnesses for two former Houston policemen on trial for murder in the death of a Mexican-American prisoner.

Defense attorneys began calling character witnesses Thursday afternoon for Terry Denson, 27, and Stephen Orlando, 21, who are charged with beating Joe Campos Torres and shoving him into the murky waters of Buffalo Bayou.

Campos Torres' body was pulled from the bayou on May 8 only a few blocks from Houston police headquarters.

Defense attorney Mike Ramsey said he expected it would take through today to present all of the character witnesses. Campos Torres' former U.S. Army sergeant, Sgt. Donald Myers of Ft. Bragg, N.C., testified Thursday that Campos Torres once told him "he jumped on a couple of civilian policemen" while in the Army. . Myers told the jury that Campos anything different now, but all of a sudden everybody is buying a lot more of our records and paying attention to us," says George McCorkle, guitarist with the Marshall Tucker Band.

That's the result of "Heard It in a Love Song," the band's first AM hit that came five years and six albums after the Spartanburg, S.C., group's conspiracy ...it wouldn't record with a hot single that carries the album up the be good for the country to charts. But the Tuckers got their five gold discs by playing 300 concerts a year and receiving widespread FM airplay. "Nobody knows why it was a hit." says singer Doug Gray. "We don't cut singles — we cut Marshall Tucker Band songs. We obviously have a strong, loyal following out there, people who have been buying our albums for years. All of a sudden a lot more people have started buying them. Their music contains all the hard-rocking guitar associated with Southern bands, combined ith country, blues and jazz licks that allows it to move in a variety of directions. Jerry Eubanks' sax and flute are used to soften many songs. "In the early days we had great potential singles but the radio stations would not get behind the band because we're weren't playing to the right crowd the teenyboppers," says McCorkle, who wrote one of the band's biggest crowdpleasers, the country-tinged 'Fire On the Mountain.' 'We don't wear costumes, explode fire bombs on stage - we just go out and play as well as we can,"

The band still has faith in those earlier songs. As their followup single they have rereleased "Can't You See," a song from the first album that was a country hit for Waylon Jennings. In November, the Tuckers plan to release a double live album that will resurrect another earlier song, "This Ole Cowboy," in hopes it will be a hit the second time around.

"Heard It in a Love Song." written by guitarist Toy Caldwell 18 months ago, tells of a rambler who leaves his lover before getting tied down and losing of the Old West, rather than their South Carolina roots. his freedom. Most of the band's songs center on tales

There is no one named Marshall Tucker in the band. The six group members - McCorkle, Gray, Eubanks, drummer Paul Riddle Toy Caldwell and his bass-playing brother Tommy - all hail from-the Spartanburg area and took their name from a blind piano tuner they knew.

Carter makes appeal for energy program

ABY EDWARD WALSH The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - President Carter appealed to the Senate Thursday to halt its wholesale dismemberment of his energy program and indicated that he is willing to accept a compromise on the use of revenues from a proposed increase in the wellhead tax on oil and natural gas production.

The President opened a nationally televised news conference with the energy appeal, which was most striking for its mildness and lack of criticism even for those who in the past he has characterized as "the: special interests.

Of the administration's nine major. energy proposals, two - an increase in the federal gasoline tax and tax rebates on high mileage cars - were killed in the House. Of the remaining seven, two have been killed by Senate committees and four are considered to be in varying stages of trouble. Only the administration's proposal for tax credits for installation of insulation and solar heating equipment has had relatively smooth sailing

In response to a question, Carter indicated he is willing to back off his original position that the revenues generated by a higher wellhead tax be returned to consumers through a complicated system of rebates. He said he would consider use of some of the funds for such energy-related programs as mass transit as "options" for the use of some of the

"There are some alternatives that I could accept without too much reluctance." the President said.

The oil and gas industry wants the proceeds form the wellhead tax used as an incentive for increased exploration and production. In a recent preliminary vote in the Senate Finance Committee, the industry prevailed and Carter's rebate plan was rejected.

A This and the other defeats in the Senate clearly prompted Carter's statement Thursday. But in an apparent shift in tactics, the statement was conciliatory in tone, contrasting sharply with Carter's denunciation earlier this week of "special interest lobbyists" who are seeking to deregulate the price of natural gas. Thursday, the President described some of those lobbyists as "wellmeaning people." He also praised the Senate leadership, saying he knows that its task in dealing with the energy program "is a difficult job ... and at times an unpleasant one.

Carter recalled that when the nergy program was introduced it encountered initial resistance in the House but eventually was passed without damaging changes.

"I think the Senate is now in that posture," he said. "I think the Senate realizes that this is the major domestic legislative product that weexpect this year. And for us to devote a full year of work and come out with an inconsequential or inadequate energy program is something that I don't believe the Senate will face. They have their own reputations to

"I am not criticizing them." the President added, 'but I think that as they (senators) hear the voice of the American people, as they realize the consequence of the absence of a courageous action, then I think they will move to adopt the major parts of the program.

Carter also made clear that he is banking on the House to continue to support his positions when differences in the House and Senate versions ofthe energy legislation are resolved in conference committees. He predicted that the House "is going to be very adamant in maintaining (its)

In his opening statement, the President again voiced his objections to deregulation of natural gas and mentioned four other proposals as particularly important to the energy program. He said these are the wellhead tax, a proposed tax on lowmileage "gas guzzler" automobiles. measures to shift industry to the use of coal rather than other fuels and changes in utility rate structures to encourage conservation.

The gas guzzler and utility rate structure proposals have been killed by Senate committees. The other two proposals are considered in trouble in

On another-topic, Carter said Attorney General Griffin B. Bell has not discussed with him the possible indictment of former Central Intelligence Agency Director Richard Helms on perjury charges growing out of his testimony before a Senate committee. He said Bell may make a recommendation to him "fairly

Record expected

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) -New production fields in the Gulf of Mexico are expected to boost Marathon Oil Co.s' natural gas output in North America to record levels this year.

Production is expected to be 10 per cent above last year, and should continue to grow the next two years. Marathon President Harold D. Hoopman told the Cleveland Society of Security Analysts on Wednesday

Marathon holds interests in 66 leases offshore Louisiana and Texas, Hoopman said. There are; 24 drilling and production platforms on these leases. 19 operated by Marathon.

The company has strong crude oil reserves. Hoopman continued in the first half of this year, the company produced nearly 190,000 barrels of crude oil and condensate daily in the .U.S. and Canada.

Marathon's $190 million expansion of the Garyville, La., refinery will increase the plants unleaded gasoline capacity to 100,000 barrels a day, and reduce the yield of heavy oil, he

Producers think 'development' key to good movies

By WAYNE WARGA The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD - No doubt there are as many ways to make movies as there are people making them, and these days it seems most movie makers have given into the delusionary insanity of the blockbuster mentality. It seems there is no longer such a thing as a moderate success; a film that comes without the covers of Time and Newsweek proclaiming a national trend, lines around the block from the box office and all the related pomp and publicity.

It appears the definition of the very word success has been redefined to apply only to those films that break box-office records and become what the business calls "event movies" or "blockbusters." The pity is that for every blockbuster, literally hundreds of other projects fall by the way. Some succumb as outlines, others as become actual films. Fewer still turn a noticeable profit

"It's rather like being a wildcat oil driller," Larry Turman says. "You hit a lot of dry wells hoping for a gusher. The movie business is so shrunken, so small and so very expensive. There is a great deal of both outside and inside competition. A lot of really good screenplays don't even get made.!'

Turman knows whereof he speaks. His greatest gusher - still producing profits - was "The Graduate." His 'Pretty Poison' attracted a loyal cult but not a great deal of money. He

Turman and his producing partner David Foster ("The Getaway" and "McCabe and Mrs. Miller") have become heavily involved - as have many others - in the business of development, coaxing several projects along at the same time, hoping that some will finally become films.

There is a certain pragmatic sense about the process, whereby the beginning may be as little as a short story or an outline that, step-by-step - with the producers, writer and financing studio participating - is written andrewritten until, hopefully, it becomes the stuff that can become a movie. If scripts, and a special few survive to ' it doesn't, it usually ends up a shattered dream and a tax write-off. If it does, the fate can be anything from bonanza to bust, acclaim to

> It is a process that Turman and Foster enthusiastically support. Two developmental projects of theirs will reach the theaters Nov. 4: "First Love" from Paramount and

> "Heroes" from Universal. "Shakespeare said, 'The play's the thing," Foster says, "and as it applies to films - if you've got the script, you're way ahead.

"If you've done your work well and by that I mean the writer and the ed out to be a guy named Joel producer - most of the job is done before shooting starts!" Turman adds. "You've got your plan, your blueprint. It's insanity to begin a film without a / completed script, and rewriting in the middle of shooting spells disaster to me. You are in deep trouble.

Which does not necessarily mean unyielding adherence to a script.

"It's impossible to improvise a movie," Turman says. "A film is so complex and requires the kind of organization you need to fight a war or build a building. You can easily improvise a line of dialogue or make other small changes as you go along. but you simply cannot alter the basic structure or concept.

"Like many other people, I loved Woody Allen's 'Annie Hall.' The whole thing seemed to be improvised. I got a copy of the script. It's meticulous and it's almost all there. One of his many special talents is to make what's planned look spontaneous."

"First Love" and "Heroes" are differing examples of the development process. Their only similarity is their release date (which Turman and Foster would prefer wasn't so). Each came from widely diverse sources, and "First Love" took a full year longer to get going.

"Heroes" began with Foster's sons raving about Henry Winkler's The Fonz on TV. Foster watched, then saw Winkler in the film "Lords of Flatbush." He was impressed.

."He is so imaginative. I tracked down his agent, who at the time turn-

Steinberger He's since left the business, but we had lunch and he brought along Joan Scott, Winkler's present agent. I told them I had no script, no project, but that I'd be very interested in doing a picture with Winkler. No project was mentioned during the meal, but when we were leaving, Steinberger pulled a script * out of the trunk of his car. He said

Henry liked it. "It was 'Heroes' and it was written by a fellow named James Carabatsos. It was - and is - autobiographical, about a guy who'd been in Vietnam and some experiences he'd had. Larry and I thought it had potential. but needed quite a bit of work.

Carabatsos did two additional drafts on the script, and though the producers and Universal Studios ex ecutive Ned Tanen all felt more work should be done, they decided to bring in a director. After looking down the list of important names, they chose to go with a relative unknown. Jeremy Paul Kagan, because of his television work and because Vietnam was very much a part of his generation's experience.

After Kagan's involvement, the decision was made to bring in another

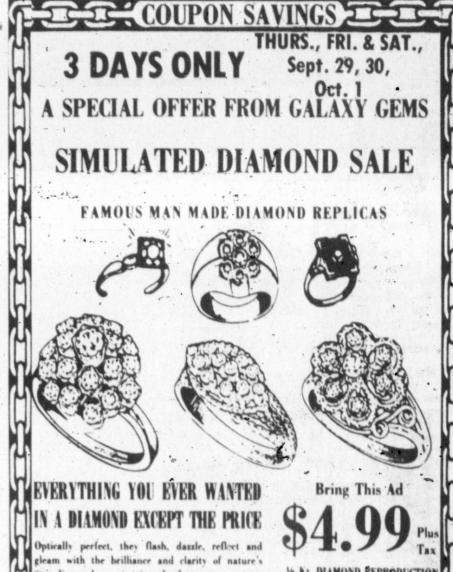

"Carabatsos was disappointed." Turmair says, "but he accepted our decision graciously and has remained involved. We brought in David Freeman, who had worked with us before. The final credit on the film is Jim Carabatsos alone - the Writer's Guild arbitration board, for reasons of their own, decided the credit should

.a substantial contribution.'

Two-and-a-half-million dollars later, the film is done and the final test. Turman and Foster say, will be whether people will pay $3.50 to see the results.

Arrest of Bhutto may have brightened his political future

By SHARON ROSENHAUSE The Los Angeles Times

ISLAMABAD, | Pakistan -Deposted Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali. Bhutto's political fortunes have brightened since he was arrested by Pakistan's military government.

Although his almost six years in power is denounced as tyrannical and even criminal, sympathy apparently has developed for him

Observers here in the capital say Bhutto, 49, is seen as a man under siege. This, they point out, could add up to votes in the Oct. 18 election. In this part of the world, politicians traditionally go to jail for a cause, and (political prisoners wear badges of courage that invariably help at the Analysts, in fact, recall that Bhutto established his political presence in 1968 when he was arrested for his protest against the martial law government

But nobody is predicting that prisoner Bhutto will emerge this time as handsomely as he did before, when he became the head of government. In March, Bhutto's political foes charged that he rigged parliamentary elections. Violent protests led to a bloodless coup July 5 in which Bhutto's appointed army chief of staff, Gen. Mohammad Ziaul Haq.

Since then, Bhutto has been arrested three times — most recently. Sept. 17. He faces 18 civil and criminal charges, including murder. The current parliamentary elections pit Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party against the Pakistan National Alliance. The prime minister will be selected by the winning party from party, members who gain parliamentary seats. So far, no frontrunner has emerged for the alliance, Ziaul Haq is not running for a seat.

Nobody seriously believes that Ziaul Haq, the chief martial law administrator, wants to help Bhutto, because his return to power almost certainly would result in treason charges against the general

People who know Ziaul Haq say he's arrest without thought of political not a politician at all but wholly a soldier. "He acted like a soldier bluntly, '(an observer says.

The practical effect, after more than a week of the campaign, is that Bhutto appears to have picked up strength, making g u use e of his

Shy boyfriend worries girl

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D. Copley News Service

Dear Doctor: I am 15 and there's a guy I go out with who's 16. I don't think he's ever been involved with a girl before. He's very shy and doesn't talk much and has never touched me, even though we go out together alot. I am worried because he may be a homosexual. When I told this to mother she said the teacher was crazy and that I still couldn't eat anything that contained sugar. I enjoy chocolate, so I hope the teacher is right. Is she? - Vera, St Petersburg, Fla

Dear Vera: Your teacher is correct. There are three types of sugar: refined, raw and natural. All three supply energy to the body, but raw and refined sugar are devoid of nutritional value. Stay with the natural sugar found in fruits, grains and milk; it will supply all the sugar your body needs for

Dear Doctor: I'm starting to think about my future. I would like to take vocational training in school, but I also want to take classes with my friends who won't be in vocational training. What should I do? - M.M.

Dear M. M .: Your question is one of my easier ones to answer. Take vocational training. You will have plenty of time to spend with your friends after school and on the

Dear Hugh: Unintent muscular jerks like these can be brought about by a-misfiring in the electrical signals that are transmitted along the motor nerves from the brain to the various muscles. Occasional twitches are perfectly normal. Fangue or excitement can do it. So can a slight injury in the nervous system-or any of a number of other factors. Dear Dr. Solomon: Do you know those bluish lights they use so much on streets and in parking lots? Are they completely safe? People on our block say they have an awful lot of ultraviolet radiation. - Vernon

Dear Vernon: If the outer glass is broken, there is indeed a danger fromthose mercury vapor lamps. It exposes a passer-by to intense ultraviolet light from the bulb inside. It can produce severe eye irritation and reddening of the skin-just the way a sunburn can. The Food and Drug Administration wants the lamps to turn off automatically within two minutes after the glass is broken and is asking manufacturers to comply with this safety measure.

1921 until he moved his headquarters to Midland in 1935.

During the years Lyman was engaged in the oil business, he made a number of discoveries, including the location for the discovery well in Fisher County. He financed the Cooper-Henderson Oil Co., which conducted some of the earlier operations in Stephens County. In more recent years. Lyman brought in several new fields in South Texas and drilled the discovery well in the Emperor-Ellenburger field at Wink in Winkler County.

Lyman was a member of the American Legion and the Society of the First Division, as well as a number of civic organizations. An excellent golfer, Lyman participated in tournaments all over the South.

Lyman held various political jobs in the state. Under the administration of Gov. Beauford Jester, he served as industrial commissioner. He was executive committeeman of the 29th senatorial district for the Democratic

Odessan convicted

SAN ANTONIO - A former Odessa savings and loan executive convicted of misapplying nearly $2.2 million Thursday was sentenced to five years in federal prison.

Warren Boydston Moore, 39, of Odessa was sentenced to five concurrent five-year terms after being convicted Sept. 15 in a Midland nonjury trial of five counts of misapplication of funds.

The misapplication of funds took place while Moore was vice president of First Savings and Loan Association of Odessa

The manager of the savings and loan association testified at the trial all but $24,000 of the money had been recovered through Moore's cooperation.

Maximum sentence that could have been levied was 25 years in prison and a $25,000 fine

Oswald's threat told

NEW YORK (AP) - TFormer CBS newsman Daniel Schoor says that during a visit to the Cuban embassy in Mexico City on Sept. 27, 1963, Lee Harvey Oswald threatened fo assassinate President Kennedy but officials threw him out because they thought the threat was a 'provocation."

lso reports in the current issue of The New York Review of Books that the Warren Commission, which investigated the Kennedy killing, was told of Oswald's threat but did not to . follow it up.

The commission, Schorr said, did not "press the CIA for information about Oswald's Cuban association, this despite the fact - or perhaps because of the fact - that one of its members was former CIA director Allen Dulles.

'The Cuban ambassador in Mexico City had reported the incident to Havana," Schorr wrote. "It had not been taken seriously at the time, but after Kennedy's assassination, Castro had come to suspect that the effort to get Oswald/into Cuba was part of a right-wing conspiracy. Oswald would return from Cuba then assassinate the president, and it would look as though Castro had been to Allgood's youngest daughter,

"I like to tease him." Holland says of the old man with the mystical powers and a straw hat atop his head. 'I don't much believe in it, but he sûre makes that stick bend.'

Allgood is used to skeptics. Among their number is his oldest daughter's husband, Clyde Word, a water-well driller over at Fort Stockton.

He frowns on witching. But Allgood, figures he really shouldn't. Among Allgood's "followers" is his wife of 70 years, Ila Mae. And, of course, there are the many believers who are drinking well water from veins Allgood sensed with his peach tree branch. As long as he can still get around and carry a stick, Allgood will be witching for water. And he doesn't plan to go up on his prices. "It's just a little bit of money, but I want everybody to have water," says Allgood, who used to farm cotton and peanuts before he moved into Brownwood town to work years ago. Still does. "I'm not going to be here always," says Allgood, who'll be water witching with integrity. "I don't want to go to hell for cheating."

Senators long on words in debate

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate deadlock over natural gas prices is threatening to block action on a crucial debt-ceiling measure, leaving the government without the authority to borrow money and pay its bills.

Leaders of a filibuster aimed at stopping efforts to lift federal price controls on natural gas switched tactics Thursday and took aim at the debt-ceiling bill in an effort to force a Senate vote on a gas-pricing com-

One of the best known independent oil men in Texas. Charles Vernon "Cap" Lyman, 83, of 501 N. Marienfeld St. died Thursday morning in a Phoenix, Ariz., hospital after a brief illness. He was living at his winter home in Scottsdale, Ariz. when he became ill

Memorial services will be Saturday at 11 a.m. MST in St. Barnabas-onthe-Desert Episcopal Church in Scottsdale, Ariz., with Dr. Ralph E. Hutton

Lyman had been associated with the oil industry almost continuously since the close of World War I. Since 1935 he was a resident of Midland. > from which point he supervised his extensive holdings in various fields of

A native of Texas. Lyman was born at Taylor in Williamson County Jan. 29, 1894, but left there with his family in his infancy and moved to El Paso where he was educated in the public schools. Lyman, a star athlete in several sports, was graduated from El Paso High School in 1911. He later continued his studies at the University of Virginia where he studied mining engineering and was graduated in 1915. He also atudied at the University of Sewanee, where he played on the football team in 1916. He. earned letters in football, baseball, basketball and track and was a 55year member of Phi Delta Theta

After leaving the University of Sewanee, Lyman operated the Santa Maria Gold Mine in the District of Rayon, State of Chihuahua, Mexico. In April 1917 he enlisted voluntarily in the U.S. Army. Lyman was a member of the First Officer's Training Campat Leon Springs, Tex., and continued his studies at the First Corps School at La Valbonno, France. Commissioned a second lieutenant. Lyman was promoted to captain and served in a number of the more important engagements of the war. Twice wounded, he was decorated for bravery in action, receiving two-Purple Hearts, the Croix de Guerre and the St. Mihiel Medal. He

Congress gives Carter go-ahead on neutron bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress is giving President Carter approval to produce the neutron bomb, a new . atomic weapon that opponents fear will greatly increase the risk of allout The House of Representatives on Thursday approved an authorization bill to enable the President to spend money for the neutron bomb if he chooses to do so. The Senate . previously approved a similar bill.

The neutron bomb is a small warhead that would be placed on Lance missiles and artillery shells. It produces twice the deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb but less. than a tenth as much explosive power. heat and fallout. This means the bomb !

can kill people while causing little damage to buildings.

The warhead is designed to replace the approximately 7,000 nuclear warheads now deployed in Europe.

Carter has not announced whether he intends to approve production of the controversial weapon, but he did ask for the authorization that both houses have now granted.

The key House vote came on an amendment by Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y. The amendment would have blocked Energy Research and Development Administration money from being used for the neutron bomb. But the amendment was defeated 297 to 109.

Although INS officials maintain the four-month delay is designed to give those being deported time to settle their business affairs, it also gives Texas legislators time to shove through special legislation that would allow the group to stay in the country.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, has promised to introduce such a bill and number of other congressmen, including non-Texans, have volunteered to cosponsor it.

A group of local businessmen in Seminole have bought a recreationalvehicle manufacturing plant and they are trying to get the Department of Labor to allow them to hire the Mennonites to run it, thus giving the group a legal basis for staying in the coun-

But the Labor Department demands a widespread advertising for any job before it allows the importation of foreign workers. The advertising requirement has not yet been met

The extension of the deadline will give the Seminole businessmen enough time to go through the labor certification process and perhaps enable the Mennonites to stay by that

Otherwise, the INS' Jervis said, there is no way his agency can allow the Mennonites to remain in the country indefinitely.

Weatherman to start new reports

Around-the-clock weather reports will be provided for the Midland-Odessa area, by the National Weather Service at the Midland Regional Air Terminal probably by the end of the year; Jim Lunney, meteorologist-incharge said.

. The reports, done in conjunction with the National Oceanic and Atmosphesic Administration, will include updated forecasts, radar summaries, weather warnings and other climatological information. Lanney said.

A transmitter will be set up in the Midland-Odessa area, and one will be constructed in Big Spring. Both will transmit at 162.4 megahertz VHF. A VHF receiver is needed to pick up the broadcasts because a conventional radio cannot do so.

The nationwide, 24-hour service was started to help fishermen and other persons sailing in the Gulf Coast waters keep up on changing weather conditions. The weather service wishes to expand it so that 90 per cent of the people in the country can receive in Texas already use the broadcasts. "Almost all the weather stations in West Texas will get (the weather reports) in," Lunney said.

He hopes the school systems will take advantage of the reports in order to stay informed of tornadoes and other severe weather.

Construction of the transmitters and acquisition of the equipment is under a national that George Meany, at the age of 83, is seeking another term as president of the AFL-CIO. Yes. that is correct - age 83.

The old gentleman apparently doesn't intend to step down until he reaches what he considers retirement age.

And whether or not one agrees with Mr. Meany, which we most often do not, one cannot but admire the doughty old-timer for his spirit.

He is unswerving in his pursuit of what he believes to be right for organized labor, and there are really no tricks in his methodology.

Consider, if you will, the recent AFL-CIO executive councilmeeting in Washington, where Mr. Meany captured headlines one day by announcing his personal support for the Panama Canal treaties, and expressed the hope that Congress would approve. them.

The next day he was back in there swinging at President Carter for failing to keep camjobs the number-one issue of his administration, for not taking care of Arthur Burns, head of the Federal Reserve Board, and for not providing public service jobs. He concluded that organized labor has no reason to be happy with Mr. Carter.

This has all the appearance of "carrot and stick."

Granted, on the basis of rhetoric Carter said, among many other common constituency. things:

The full Employment Act of 1976 should be fully implemented. That the Carter administration would never use unemployment as a tool to fight inflation. That as President he would strive to achieve a 4 per cent unemployment rate by the end of his first term.

That he would encourage private industry to prevent

That he would support numerous urban and housing programs advocated by labor. Labor was unstinting in its support of Mr. Carter. During the campaign the AFL-CIO fielded 120,000 volunteers, installed 20,000 telephone, banks and made 10-. million telephone calls, issued 80 million pieces of literature. As a Quite naturally, then, the least that labor expected from Mr. Carter and Congress was repeal of right to work laws, a common situs picketing law, a $3 minimum wage, federal hobbling of multinational corporations, trade protection and a myriad of other beneficial laws.

But, as the saying goes, politics is the art of the possible. Common situs was defeated, forcing labor to abandon its drive for repeal of right to work laws. Federal jobmaking legislation, while ambitious, is not up to Mr. Meany's expectations. The minimum wage legislation has been scaled down.

These actions all were in the best interests of the nation, insofar as we are concerned, but Mr. Meany most certainly would

President must find a new 'best friend'

WASHINGTON - The thing that struck me as President Carter announced Bert Lance's resignation last week was when he said that he was losing his best friend.

Everyone at the White House admits that Bert Lance had a special rapport with the President, and that he was the only person who could tell Mr. Carter when he was wrong or off the track. This role in the White House is not to be underestimated.

It is so important that I believe before we find a new head of the OMB. we must find President Carter a new best friend

This country can afford to go along without somebody managing its budget, but it cannot allow the President of the United States to sit in the White House without a best friend for one more day than is absolutely necessary

I would go one step further and say a new position in the White House should be created entitled. "The President's Best Friend." The person filling the position would have as his only function to be Mr. Carter's confidant and bosom buddy.

This would avoid any conflict of interest with another job in the Administration. More importantly, the person holding it would not have to undergo the scrutiny and heat that Mr. Lance was subjected to, because he also was head of the Office of Management and Budget confirmation. And, while he would be expected to maintain the high moral standards Mr. Carter has set for all his people, he would not have to dispose of his stock or reveal his personal finances to the public.

He would have to answer to no one on The Hill as to what he did before he came into the Administration, nor would he have to reveal how much money he had in the bank, or owed banks, whichever the case might be. Neither the FBI nor the IRS would have to be consulted as to whether he was qualified to be "The President's Best Friend," because only a

President would know that. I think that the search for a new best friend for the President should begin immediately. It is my opinion that, from what we know about President Carter, we should start looking for someone who comes from the South, preferably a small town in Georgia. He doesn't necessarily have to be a banker, but he should be a successful businessman. He must have an impeccable family relationship, be a nondrinker and a good storyteller. He should be gregarious, while at the same time firm when he believes Mr. Carter is wrong. Hershould also be able to play tennis and softball and know something about the peanut business.

It wouldn't be hard to find such a person to fill the job. I know thousands of people who would like to be the President's best friend. Many of them could be persuaded to come to Washington, at great sacrifice to themselves, for the opportunity to chew the fat with Mr. Carter whenever he needed someone to talk

While the White House could set up Best Friend Search Committee, the final decision would be left solely to the President after his staff presented him with a list of likely candidates.

To safeguard himself against another Lance affair, I believe that, besides appointing his "Best Friend," Mr. Carter should also have the authority to designate a "Deputy Best Friend." Then if anything happens to his best friend, the President would have another one to fall back on.

President Kennedy and Johnson had many best friends. Nixon had only one - Bebe Rebozo. At the moment President Carter has none. Unless this situation is rectified immediately, the country could come to a standstill.

While the search is on I am sending President Carter a copy of "How To Be Your Own Best Friend." It isn't the same as having Bert Lance, but hopefully it will fill the gap.

Mark Russell says

Jody Powell: "I have a story about Senator Percy taking illegal flights on the Bell and Howell plane.

Reporter: "Bell and Howell doesn't own a plane.

Powell: "Does this mean you're not going to use the story?". Powell: "Senator Percy, I'd like to apologize. I can't tell you how sorry I am - that you didn't use the plane illegally." Lately, Jody spends his time praying that the plane will be discovered inside a pumpkin.

Bert Lance will now begin work on his memoirs. It will be the only best seller in history to bounce.

Just because Lance is gone doesn't mean the government can't recruit other able and talented people. There are many out there who are willing to submit to scrutiny. They are all monks, but they are out there.

The exact wording of the resolution to be submitted to the national committee Friday was still being worked out. Sen. Richard Stone (D-Fla.) called Thursday for the Administration to spell out its official understanding of the controversial passages so they could be attached to the treaties when they come to a ratification vote.

As the Senate committee pressed ahead with its hearings Thursday, Carter made a pitch for the treaties during a White House meeting with Republican congressmen, many of them already on record as strongly

Rep. Robert K. Dornan (R-Calif.) said that Carter warned that sabotage and rioting could erupt in the Canal Zone if the treaties are rejected by the United States, but vowed U.S. troops would defend the waterway if that became necessary.

Dornan said the President referred to Gen. Omar Torrijos, the Panamanian government leader as a dictator, but "a dictator who cares

The fate of the aircraft was given a big boost by the committee Wednesday, but quickly became clouded Thursday when the President told a group of congressmen at breakfast that he would fight hard to block the additional spending.

Complex parliamentary maneuvers will decide whether the planes are ever built. Under a 1974 law, approval by both Houses of Congress is needed to rescind or remove items from the budget. The law was passed in reaction to former President Richard M. Nixon's impoundment policies.

Money remains in the budget unless rescinded within 45 legislative working days after a removal request from the President. For Carter's request to kill the B-1 funds, the deadline is Oct:

Soviets' space station may link with other crafts

The Washington Post

MOSCOW - The Soviet union launched a new, unmanned space station into earth orbit Thursday in possible preparation for a manned mission to coincide with the 20th anniversary next Tuesday of the Russian launching of the "Sputnik" satellite which ishered in the space age. The space station, called Salyut-6, was said to be functioning normally, according to Tass, the official Soviet news agency. Some Western - sources speculated that the Salyut might be joined in space by another Salyut and somespacecraft for a space spectacular next month or in time for the celebration Nov. 7 of the 60th anniversary of the Soviet nation. Salyut has an apogee of 170.5 miles and a porigee of 135.8 miles from the earth, according to Tass. It said the station "has been launched for the purpose of conducting scientific and technical research and experiments and for checking on the design, on-board systems and equipment of orbital stations." The announcement was made after the space station was successfully launched and in orbit. Soviet television carried the announcement, but showed no film of the launch. Both the delayed announcement and the lack of video pews are standard custom here, where space experiments always have been carried out in a much more secretive manner than in the United

GENERAL NEWS

Smithsonian agrees to changes

By STEPHEN J. LYNTON The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Smithsonian Institution, after more than a year of congressional scrutiny and criticism. has agreed to consider itself a federal agency and to modernize its management and its methods of dealing with

The moves - recommended by a special consultant and approved by the Smithsonian's board of regents are intended to bring significant changes in the financial and administrative practices of the giant, 131-year-old, research and museum

They would give Congress broader authority to examine and control the "the new Department of Energy Smithsonian's budgets, limit the institution's right to dispose of property without congressional consent, and bolster the Smithsonian's own management and auditing staff. They would also apparently remove longexisting uncertainty over whether the Smithsonian is a quasi-federal institution - partly governmental and part ly private - that can avoid federal strictures.

The recommendations - implifitly critical of the Smithsonian's management practices, though couched in mild terms - were drawn up by Phillip S. Hughes, a former assistant U.S. comptroller general now a nominee as an assistant secretary of The Smithsonian's board of regents chaired by U.S. Chief Justice Warren Burger, the Smithsonian's chancellor, adopted Hughes' findings and proposals without dissent at a board meeting Tuesday, according to to Smithsonian officials. Smithsonian Secretary S. Dillon Ripley later praised the consultant's report, saying "I think it does a great deal to clarify where we have been and where we are

The Smithsonian has been a focus of recurring controversies and federal investigation since March, 1976, when was disclosed that Ripley maintained a now-abandoned discretionary fund of about $1 million, apparently unknown to Congress.

The General Accounting Office, Congress' auditing arm, concluded in a report March 31 that the Smithsonian had created two private corporations to convert millions of dollars of U.S. funds to,"private money," which it then spent without observing federal restrictions. The Smithsonian, as a result of congressional action, is moving to eliminate or separaté itself from the two corporationis criticized

The Hughes report made public this week goes considerably beyond the points raised by GAO, focusing on what it describes as "the broader questions of relationship between the Smithsonian and the federal govern-

On the central issue of whether the Smithsonian is a federal or partly private institution, the Hughes report" concluded it is 'practically and operationally a federal instrumentality, agency, or 'establishment' which was created by Congress to the various competition carry out the trust objectives of the (James) Smithson will." Smithson. an Englishman, left his fortune to the U.S. to set up the institution.

A Smithsonian spokesman said that the regents, in adopting Hughes' report, had accepted Hughes' description of the institution as accurate. About 90 per cent of the Smithsonian's approximately $100 million a year in net operating expenses is financed by federal appropriations, grants and

The decision to characterize the Smithsonian as a federal agency caused some concern at the regents' meeting, according to a reliable source, because of what was described as a possibility that it could have a "chilling effect" on private donations to the institution. Nevertheless, the source added, the regents accepted

Safety week announced

- Texas Railroad Grade Crossing Safety Week has been proclaimed for Oct. 3 through 9 by Governor Dolph Briscoe, to urge Texas drivers to observe signs and signals at the 13,800 railroad crossings in the state

The proclamation reminded motorists that all possible help is given through grade separations, signals and protection devices, but only obeying the message of the devices can make

Eamonn F. Grant, vice president of the Texas Safety Association Railroad Section, noted that grade crossing accidents, and the death, injury and property damage that results, could be eliminated if all motorists would obey existing traffic laws and approach every crossing expecting a train to be

Grant urged motorists to consider grade crossing signs as 'lifesaver' signs, whether they are the familiar crossbucks or the more sophisticated electronic gates, bells and lights. A red light at a rail grade crossing means the same as a red light at the intersection of streets - stop - Grant

Wyly once. flew high

By GEORGE WHEELER Newsday

NEW YORK - The announcement did not attract much attention: A near-death notice, of an obscure Texas company — the Wyly Corp. of Dallas.

The item carried on financial wires, and pretty much ignored otherwise, said the company was making its "last and best proposal" to its debtors. If it didn't succeed, the Wyly Corp., added, the company would "solicit acceptances of a plan of arrangement to be filed under Chapter IX of the bankruptcy

But hold on a nanute! This really is not an obscure company. Wyly Corp. would be better known under its former name, University Computing, and even better known as one of the hottest stock issues of the past decades. It once sold as high as 166; now, when the New York Stock Exchange lets it trade, it's quoted around 1 1-2. In 1967, in the unimited horizons for anything connected with computers of those days, its value increased in less than a year by nearly 14 times. Even in that high year of 1968, a trader could have more than tripled his money. buying at 57 and unloading at the high of 186.

It was a firm run by two flamboyant brothers Sam and Charles Wyly - a pair who spoke in lowkeyed Texan drawls and, though of middling height, stood out in any crowd because each sported a shock of hair the color of corn silk. Charles left the firm a year or so ago, while Sam, the founder, is still

Back at the beginning of the decade, anything to do with computers, programing or data processing was to Wall Street as tulips were to Dutch speculators a few hundred years ago, or what at various times in our own financial annals, barge canals, railroads, automobiles, electronics, semiconductors and fastfood franchisers have been to the inhabitants of lower Manhattan. Sam Wyly caught the imagination of the Wall Street crowd. One of his first sales was a data processing service for Southern Methodist University. His first computer, bought from a dying California firm, was located on the campus, hence he named his firm University. He was a frequent contributor to financial conferences and panels all over the country and stirred his listeners with challenging talk, particularly when he promised a challenge to the biggest business of all, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

He would compete with Ma Bell, he said, not in telephone communication, but in the transmission of data, linking computer to computers so they could talk to each other. There are many measures of the success he had, such as the tripling of revenues from 1967 to 1971, but the most telling, in Wall Street's eyes, was the price-earnings ratio for his stock. It's a measure of what investors pay to get $1 of profit, and it ranges from about eight to 16 for the average going business in the Standard & Poor's group of 500 representative stocks. In 1971, the price-earnings ratio of Wyly's company reached a peak of 124; in other words, investors were paying 124 times the profits per share for the stock. Since then, though, there has been nothing but losses each year; the price-earnings ratio is now nonexistent.

What happened to all that energy, those challenges, the promises? Well, for one thing, the company branched out into the casualty insurance business early in the 1970s and inflation during that period made that business the biggest casualty of all

The crowning blow was Wyly's failure to make good on his challenge to AT&T. In a twist on the old 'you can't fight City Hall' idea, Ray Hannan, a longtime assistant to Sam Wyly, says: "You can't fight the telephone company if they are determined to kill you." Hannan says the company has filed a civil antitrust suit alleging that Ma Bell's enmity led to the drying up of capital that ordinarily would have been available, but a trial is "years away." In any case, the Wyly subsidiary that was to have made good on the challenge to the telephone company -

Datran - was liquidated a year ago.

Can amateur investors top professionals?

NEW YORK (AP) - Can amateur investors whip the pros, or are claims to that effect mainly the boastings of individuals who live in a fantasy world where victories are recorded and losses forgotten? Let the statistics speak, says the National Association of Investment Clubs. Officials there maintain that 9 per cent of professionally managed funds fared worse than the market over the past 10 years; but that 58 per cent of clubs did better.

The association cites more figures: The median rate of return of the typical professionally managed fund for 10 years through 1976 was 4.2 per cent. The median for investment clubs was 5.9 per cent, or 42 per cent better.

Compare investment results to the market averages, it continues, and there's an even bigger difference. Managed funds, it says, earned 2.5 per cent less than the Standard & Poor's 500 average. The clubs exceeded S&P by 3.83 per cent. And so, based on what it says is the record, the association has just issued a report containing an unequivocal subhead. Amateurs Whip Professionals," and a morally certain investment homily, to wit: "If you want to make money in the stockmarket, it's the solid, old-fashioned principles of investing that produce results. Computer addicted analysts and the fast track boys don't seem to really be in the running.

What are those principles that seem to work so well for at least some of the 5,216 member clubs in the association (which accepts club and individual memberships at its office in Royal Oak, Mich.)? As

1. They invest a sum of money regularly, usually once a month, over a long period of time.

2. They add dividends received to their monthly investments. 3. They make an effort to invest in good quality companies that seem reasonably certain of making greater progress than industry in general. Says Tom O'Hara, chairman: "We compare inresting to planting a maple tree from which we

Former librarian long on tall tales continues job as free-lance storyteller

By DEBBIE ZAHN Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES - Scheherazade, the woman who postponed death by weaving fantastic tales for her captor has nothing on

Carol the Storyteller, as she likes to be called, won't suffer an untimely demise should her stories fail to entertain - but the

A year ago the ex-librarian traded a circulation desk in New Jersey for a place in the spotlight in California.

'I gave myself one year to see if I could possibly make a living as a free-lance storyteller," she says, perched Indian-style on the couch in her apartment here.

And though she confesses that the earnings of a storyteller have been somewhat meager, things are looking up. The third Monday of every month, Carol will create a "magig happening" with her folk and fairy tales at the Los Angeles Craft and Folk Art Museum.

But the story hours are not just for small fry. "I don't think the stories are cute," says Carol adamantly.

"They're powerful, moving, dramatic and sometimes very

"And that's why adults can get involved too. She thinks the frightening aspects of some of the stories reflect the basic fears' all children have. Abandonment, for example, is a common theme of fairytales and psychologists say a child's fear of being abandoned by his parents is very formmon

It's better to get the subject out in the open, says Carol, and what better way than a fairytale?

The violence that saturates many fairytales upsets some parents to the point of censorship.

'The stories don't mince words," she says. "However cruel it. may seem, for every violent act, there always is an equally violent punishment.

Her stories have been heard by senior citizens (who she says always have some of their own to tell), handicapped children, families and hospital patients.

She embarked on her career as a storyteller while taking a class on the subject. "After the second meeting," she recalls, "I knew I wanted to be a storyteller.

"At the time, I didn't really know what that was," she admits." 'Later on, my teacher told me she thought I was a little crazy." But Carol isn't so much crazy as she is unwilling to conform to

As a librarian, she was continually experimenting with ways to bring the library to those who rarely set foot in one, She and her colleagues would bring books to prison inmates, migrant farm workers and children in reform schools.

Now she wants to bring a generation raised on television the delights of an ancient art form.
"Children don't know how to listen anymore, she says. Listening requires the imaginary powers, which she says have been usurped by the tube. Once she has selected her story, there's a technique to work on. A controversy surrounds the question of just how theatrical a storyteller should be.

Carol likens the argument to "a tempest in a teapot," but believes the storyteller should cut down on artifices. 'It's not that I'm against puppets, costumes or props," she says, "but I think those things hide the person." Voice is also a critical aspect in storytelling. "You look at the feelings behind the character, but from your own perspective with no mimicking," she says.

Has she ever drawn a blank while telling a story

"Never," she says. "That's because I don't memorize them. First, she reads a story out loud a couple of dozen times. Then she tells it to heraelf in her own words. That way, even if I forget a specific line, I'll still know where new house if you feel cramped in the one you own. Often the solution may lie in utilizing existing space through a few good, do-ityourself For example, many people fail to utilize space under stairs, an ideal location for storage. Such space usually has good depth so that it can be partitioned to accommodate bulky and outsize articles.

A luggage section can be built to the dimensions of the largest suitcase and be large enough to accept all the luggage in the house. A narrow space could be used for golf clubs, skis, fishing rods and other tall things. Bins of different sizes are ideal for storing baseball gloves, skates and heavy outdoor jackets.

Neatly finished with a door, it could have small pull-out sections so that bins may be reached easily. Properly done, the storage units should be unobtrusive.

In the kitchen, a storage pantry can be made out of a closet. It does not need to be deep to make kitchen articles more accessible and available in a tidier arrangement. Narrow shelves on the doors could be wide enough to hold jars of home preserves and cans. The shelves could be built into a frame with a molding on each shelf to keep jars and cans from sliding.

A low storage wall between a dining-living area can provide neat storage for many objects. Shelves can open on either side, where they are most useful. On the living side, there might be room for television. records, stereo. On the dining side, space could be used for china. glassware, placemats and other accessories. Doors could be put on. some of the partitioned areas to make the unit more serviceable and a prettier design. Putting casters on a divider or bulky storage piece can make it more practical.

Children's closets may be more serviceable if they are rearranged.

> This leads to what I would call a relative malnutrition - relative insofar as, for example, we are now short in those constituents of B complex which once were in wheat but have been removed in the milling process and not restored in the enrichment program

Q. Were we better nourished at the turn of the century?

A would have to say we must have been at the turn of the century. We did not have heart disease, we had much less diabetes, we had less mental disease, which I think also can be attributed to improper nutrition. We had infectious diseases, of course, but we did not have the type of nutritionally induced ones that we now have.

Q. What is your super energy diet

A. When we study patients, we find that a high precentage have fluctuating levels of blood sugar or tendencies to show hypoglycemis. In a super energy diet we restructure the diet to stabilize the blood sugar response. This means a low-carbohydrate diet, which has been shown to be the best for management of hypoglycemis in the overweight population. For people who are not overweight, we must include some carbohydrates. The emphasis here is to space. the carbohydrates through the day. We eliminate the quick-reacting, fine carbohydrates and incorporate the long-acting, starchy whole-grain carbohydrates.

Q. If we all do this, will we feel better?

A. I have found in my own experience that about 80 or 90 per cent of the patients who undergo this type of dietary maneuver will spontaneously report that they feel considerably better.

The other aspect of the super energy diet involves the vitamins in a very specific way. Recognizing that the B complex really is there to serve as a catalyst to the metabolic breakdown pathways that lead to energy, the emphasis is on the B complex. We found that there are certain key points in the B complex which seem to be neglected in most vitamin forms work. now available. We found that by augmenting these. we have been able to increase the energy response and decrease fatigue

Q. Does the medical profession as a whole accept

A. The leadership of the medical profession has taken a stand opposed not only to my diet but to most of the nutritional therapy which I have found to be effective, such as orthomolecular psychiatry or vitamin C therapy for the cold, vitamin E for peripheral circulation or for menopause

Q. On what grounds? A. They will look for whatever grounds they can find to support what really must be a preconceived notion on their part.

Arrest of Bhutto may By SHARON ROSENHAUSE

The Los Angeles Times

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan Deposted Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's political fortunes have brightened since he was arrested by Pakistan's military government.

Although his almost six years in. power is denounced as tyrannical and even criminal, sympathy apparently has developed for him

Observers here in the capital say Bhutto, 49, is seen as a man under siege. This, they point out, could add up to votes in the Oct. 18 election. In this part of the world, politicians traditionally go to jail for a cause, and political prisoners wear, badges of courage that invariably help at the

Analysts, in fact, recall that Bhutto established his political presence in 1968 when he was arrested for his protest against the martial law government

But nobody is predicting that prisoner Bhutto will emerge this time as handsomely as he did before, when he became the head of government.

In March, Bhutto's political foes charged that he rigged parliamentary elections. Violent protests led to a bloodless coup July 5 in which Bhutto's appointed army chief of staff, Gen. Mohammad Ziaul Haq. took power.

Since then, Bhutto has been arrested three times - most recently Sept. 17. He faces 18 civil and criminal charges, including murder The current parliamentary elections pit Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party against the Pakistan National Alliance. The prime minister will be selected by the winning party from party member's who gain parliamentary seats. So far, no frontrunner has emerged for the alliance.

Ziaul Haq is not running for a seat. Nobody seriously believes that Ziaul Haq, the chief martial law administrator, wants to help Bhutto, because his return to power almost certainly would result in treason charges against the general.

not a politician at all but wholly a soldier. "He acted like a soldier bluntly," an observer says.

brightened his political fortunes

The practical effect, after more than a week of the campaign, is that Bhutto appears to have picked up strength, making g u use e of his underdog or martyr image.

It is widely believed that Ziaul Hag, a religious and highly moralistic man, was so personally offended and outraged by Bhutto's acts and alleged

People who know Ziaul Haq say he's arrest without thought of political consequences.

Ziaul Hag's motive, sources say, was merely to let the voters know everything about candidate Bhutto. This is the only way Pakistan can have the free and fair elections Ziaul Haq promised when he took power, observers note:

That assumes, of course, that the vast majority of voters - the poor, illiterate and rural people who are the heart of Bhutto's political strength crimes that the general ordered the will be informed and will care.

Shy boyfriend worries girl

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D. Copley News Service

Dear Doctor: I am 15 and there's a guy I go out with who's 16. I don't think he's ever been involved with a girl before. He's very shy and doesn't talk much and has never touched me; even though we go out together alot. I am worried because he may be a homosexual. His family is very close and they are with us almost everywhere we go. What do you think? — B.P. San Mateo, Calif.

Dear B.P.: I think you have a boyfriend who is shy, doesn't talk much and appears to be a gentleman.

Dear Doctor: Mother gets upset whenever I eat anything with sugar in it, but in homelyaking class the teacher said that sugar is a fast supply of energy and all teens need it.

When I told this to mother she said the teacher was crazy and that I still couldn't eat anything that contained sugar. I enjoy chocolate, so I hope the teacher is right. Is she? - Vera, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Dear Vera Your teacher is correct. There are three types of sugar refined, raw and natural. All three supply energy to the body, but raw and refined sugar are devoid of nutritional value.

Stay with the natural sugar found in fruits, grains and milk; it will supply all the sugar your body needs for

Dear Doctor: I'm starting to think about my future. I would like to take vocational training in school, but I also want to take classes with my friends who won't be in vocational training. What should I do? — M.M.

Eye twitch may reveal problem

Dear Dr. Solomon: What is it that Dear Dr. Solomon: The other day. casues a twitching eye? Mine goes on someone in our office who happens to the blink every once in a while and it drives me nuts.-Hugh F.

Dear Hugh: Unintentional muscular jerks like these can be brought about by a misfiring in the electrical signals that are transmitted along the motor nerves from the brain to the various muscles. Occasional twitches are perfectly normal. Fatigue or excitement can do it. So can a slight injury in the nervous system-or any of a number of other factors. Twitching that is unusual or severe should be checked by a doctor, as it may indicate some underlying trouble that requires medical atten-

Dear Dr. Solomon: Do you know those bluish lights they use so much on streets and in parking lots? Are they completely safe? People on our block say they have an awful lot of ultraviolet radiation -Vernon be single insisted that unmarried people are much healthier than anyone else. She says it is an absolute fact. Is she right? I hate to think so (I've been married 26 years!).—Kathleen D.

Dear Kathleen: The National Center for Health Statistics doesn't put it quite that way. They have found that people who are single stay home from work an average of 17 days a year because of illness or injury. Married people are out sick 17.6 days-so it is pretty close and she is being pretty finicky. The ones who have the really poor record are divorced men and women. They lose 27.2 days a

Dear Dr. Solomon: My boss had a bad accident with the battery in his car, of all things. There was some sort of explosion, and his eyes are in awful shape. I don't know that much about cars, but if there are any special precautions one should take about batteries I would like to be aware of them -Kitty G. Dear Kitty: The liquid in a battery releases a very volatile gas that can explode if there is anything around to ignite it. So be careful not to light a match or smoke any time you are checking the battery-if you ever do. HOLLYWOOD - No doubt there are as many ways to make movies as there are people making them, and these days it seems most movie makers have given into the delusionary insanity of the blockbusten mentality. It seems there is no longer such a thing as a moderate success, a film that comes without the covers of Time and Newsweek proclaiming a national trend, lines around the block from the box office and all the related pomp and publicity.

It appears the definition of the very word success has been redefined to apply only to those films that break box-office records and become what the business calls "event movies" or "blockbusters." The pity is that for. every blockbuster, literally hundreds of other projects fall by the way. Some succumb as outlines, others as scripts, and a special few survive to become actual films. Fewer still turn a noticeable profit.

"It's rather like being a wildcat oil driller," Larry Turman says. "You hit a lot of dry wells hoping for a gusher. The movie business is so shrunken, so small and so very expensive. There is a great deal of both outside and inside competition. A lot of really good screenplays don't even get made.

Turman knows whereof he speaks. His greatest gusher - still producing profits - was "The Graduate." His "Pretty Poison" attracted a loyal cult but not a great deal of money. He

many others - in the business of development, coaxing several projects along at the same-time, hoping that some will finally become films...

There is a certain pragmatic sense about the process, whereby the beginning may be as little as a short story or an outline that, step-by-step - with the producers, writer and financing stadlo participating - is written and rewritten until, hopefully, it becomes the stuff that can become a movie. If it doesn't, it usually ends up a shattered dream and a tax write-off. If it does, the fate can be anything from bonanza to bust, acclaim to

It is a process that Turman and Foster enthusiastically support. Two developmental projects of theirs will reach the theaters Nov. 4: "First Love' from Paramounts and 'Heroes' from Universal.

'Shakespeare said, 'The play's the thing," Foster says, "and as it applies to films, - if you've got the script, you're way ahead."

> 'It's impossible to improvise a movie." Turman says: "A film is so complex and requires the kind of organization you need to fight a war or build a building. You can easily improvise a line of dialogue or make other small changes as you go along. but you simply cannot alter the basic structure or concept.

> 'Like many other people, I doved Woody Allen's Annie Hall. The whole thing seemed to be improvised. I got a copy of the script. It's meticulous and it's almost all there. One of his many special talents is to make what's planned look spontaneous

> 'First Love' and "Heroes" are differing examples of the development process. Their only similarity is their release date (which Turman and Foster would prefer wasn't so). Each came from widely diverse sources, and "First Love" took a full year longer to get going.

'Heroes' began with Foster's sons raving about Henry Winkler's The Fonz on TV. Foster watched, then saw Winkler in the film "Lords of Flatbush." He was impressed.

'He is so imaginative. I tracked down his agent, who at the time turned out to be a guy named Joel

Henry liked it. 'It was 'Heroes' and it was written by a fellow named James Carabatsos. It was - and is - autobiographical, about a guy who'd been in Vietnam and some experiences he'd had. Larry and I thought it had potential, but needed quite a bit of work. Carabatsos did two additional drafts on the script, and though the producers and Universal Studios ex ecutive Ned Tanen all felt more work should be done, they decided to bring in a director. After looking down the list of important names, they chose to go with a relative unknown, Jeremy Paul Kagan, because of his television work and because Vietnam was very . much a part of his generation's ex-

Carter makes appeal for energy program

By EDWARD WALSH The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - President Carter appealed to the Senate Thursday to halt its wholesale dismemberment of his energy program and indicatedthat he is willing to accept a compromise on the use of revenues from a proposed increase in the wellhead tax on oil and natural gas production.

The President opened a nationally televised news conference with the energy appeal, which was most striking for its mildness and lack of criticism even for those who in the past he has characterized as "the special interests.

Of the administration's nine major energy proposals, two - an increase in the federal gasoline tax and tax rebates on high mileage cars - were killed in the House. Of the remaining seven, two have been killed by Senate committees and four are considered to be in varying stages of trouble Only the administration's proposal for tax credits for installation of insulation and solar heating equipment has had relatively smooth sailing

In response to a question, Carter indicated he is willing to back off his original position that the revenues generated by a higher wellhead tax be ... returned to consumers through a complicated system of rebates. He · said he would consider use of some of the funds for such energy-related programs as mass transit as "options" for the use of some of the

The oil and gas industry wants the proceeds form the wellhead tax used as an incentive for increased exploration and production. In a recent preliminary vote in the Senate Finance Committee: the industry prevailed and Carter's rebate plan was rejected. This and the other defeats in the Senate clearly prompted Carter's statement Thursday. But in an apparent shift in tactics, the statement was conciliatory in tone, contrasting. sharply with Carter's denunciation earlier this week of "special interest lobbyists" who are seeking to deregulate the price of natural gas.

Thursday, the President described some of those lobbyists as "wellmeaning people." He also praised the Senate leadership, saying he knows that its task in dealing with the energy program "is a difficult job ... and at" times an unpleasant one.

Carter recalled that when the energy program was introduced it encountered initial resistance in the House but eventually was passed. without damaging changes.

"I think the Senate is now in that posture," he said. "I think the Senaterealizes that this is the major domestic legislative product that we expect this year. And for us to devote a full year of work and come out with an inconsequential or inadequate energy program is something that I don't believe the Senate will face. They have their own reputations to

'I am not criticizing them," the President added, "but I think that as they (senators) hear the voice of the American people, as they realize the consequence of the absence of a courageous action, then I think they will move to adopt the major parts of the program. Carter also made clear that he is banking on the House to continue to support his positions when differences in the House and Senate versions of the energy legislation are resolved in conference committees. He predicted that the House." is going to be very adamant in maintaining (its)

In his opening statement, the President again voiced his objections to deregulation of natural gas and mentioned four other proposals as particularly important to the energy program. He said these are the wellhead tax, a proposed tax on lowmileage "gas guzzler" automobiles, measures to shift industry to the use of coal rather than other fuels and changes in utility rate structures to encourage conservation.

The gas guzzler and utility rate structure proposals have been killed by Senate committees. The other two proposals are considered in trouble in

On another topic, Carter said Attorney General Griffin B. Bell has not discussed with him the possible indictment of former Central Intelligence Agency Director Richard Helms on perjury charges growing out of his testimony before a Senate committee. He said Bell may make arecommendation to him "fairly

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)y-New production fields in the Gulf of Mexico are expected to boost Marathon Oil Co.s' natural gas output in North America to record levels this year.

Production is expected to be 10 per cent above last year, and should continue to grow the next two years, Marathon President Harold D. Hoopman told the Cleveland Society of Security Analysts on Wednesday.

Marathon holds interests in 66 leases offshore Louisiana and Texas, Hoopman said. There are 24 drilling and production platforms on these leases, 19 operated by Marathon.

The company has strong crude oil reserves. Hoopman continued. In the first half of this year, the company produced nearly 190,000 barrels of crude oil and condensate daily in the U.S. and Canada.

Marathon's $190 million expansion of the Garyville, La., refinery will increase the plants unleaded gasoline capacity to 100,000 barrels a day, and reduce the yield of heavy oil, he

Council asks for more safety or less nuclear power plants

WASHINGTON - The Council on Environmental Quality recommended that the government stop licensing nuclear power plants in the near future, unless it finds a safe way to store deadly radioactive wastes.

Spent atomic fuel, which is piling up rapidly at the nation's nuclear plants, remains radioactive for at least a quarter of a million years. Up to now. no safe permanent storage sites have . been found

The three-member council, which advises the President on environmental issues, also said that, before building more nucléar plants. utility companies should prove that strict conservation measures or development of solar energy cannot blunt energy demands.

The proposals, outlined in a speech by council member-Gustave Speth before an American Bar Association convention here, come in during an administration debate over how to shorten the average of 11 years it now takes to get a nuclear plant into operation. Speth and other nuclear critics have been vying for influence over nuclear policy with Energy secretary James Schlesinger who takes a less pessimistic yiew of atomic power Changing the rules for licensing plants - as Carter has proposed to Congress - is not enough, Speth suggested. "Licensing reform ... is not a panacea ... Industry and government energy officials (must) address the underlying and unresolved issues affecting nuclear safety," he said.

"We favor a national decision which would make the expanded use of nuclear power contingent on a clear showing ...that nuclear power's

Speth proposed a "nuclear deadline" for solving the waste disposal problem. If by the deadline (two years or so, he said in an interview after the speech) no solution has been found licensing of new nuclear plants should be halted.

Institutional problems may be more severe than the technical problems. Speth suggested in the speech. "The sorry history; of radioacive waste management in this country to date provides no basis for confidence that things will work out," he said, citing abandoned wastes at West Valley. N.Y., and unsuccessful attempts to find a storage site in Kansas.

Scott Peters, a spokesman for the Atomic Industrial Forum said nuclear wastes can be solidified and buried in stable geologic formations such as salt mines. The Energy Research and Development Agency has begun such a program but "there has been a problem getting on with the job." he acknowledged.

Speth denied that his speech was a tactical move in any policy struggle with Schlesinger, but said. "The administration position on this issue is not firm. We hope to stimulate a robust discussion which will have an impact on the administration.

Smithsonian agrees to changes

By STEPHEN J. LYNTON The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Smithsonian Institution, after more than a year of congressional scrutiny and criticism. has agreed to consider itself a federal agency and to modernize its management and its methods of dealing with Congress. .

The moves - recommended by a special consultant and approved by the Smithsonian's board of regents are intended to bring significant changes in the financial and administrative practices of the giant.

They would give Congress broader onominee as an assistant secretary of authority to examine and control the the new Department of Energy Smithsonian's budgets, limit the institution's right to dispose of property without congressional consent, and bolster the Smithsonian's own management and auditing staff They would also apparently remove longexisting uncertainty over whether the Smithsonian is a quasi-federalinstitution - partly governmental and partly private - that can avoid federal strictures. The recommendations - implicitly critical of the Smithsonian's manage. ment practices, though couched in mild terms - were drawn up by 131-year-old, research and museum o Phillip S. Hughes, a former assistant U.S. comptroller, general now a

Burger, the Smithsonian's. chancellor, adopted Hughes' findings' and proposals without dissent at a board meeting Tuesday, according to to Smithsonian officials. Smithsonian Secretary S. Dillon Ripley later praised the consultant's report, saying "I think it does a great deal to clarify where we have been and where we are unknown to Congress.

The General Accounting Office, Congress' auditing arm, concluded in a report March 31 that the Smithsonian had created two private corporations to convert millions of dollars of U.S. funds to "private money," which: it then spent without observing federal restrictions. The Smithsonian, as a result of congressional action, is moving to eliminate or separate itself from the two corporationis criticized

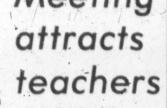

The Hughes report made public this week goes considerably beyond the points raised by GAO, focusing on what it describes as "the broader meet, which includes questions of relationship between the Smithsonian and the federal govern-

On the central issue of whether the Smithsonian is a federal or partly private institution, the Hughes report concluded it is "practically and operationally a federal instrumentality, agency, or 'establishment' which was created by Congress to carry out the trust objectives of the (James) Smithson will." Smithson, an Englishman, left his fortune to the U.S. to set up the institution-

The decision to characterize the Smithsonian as a federal agency caused some concern at the regents' meeting, according to a reliable source, because of what was described as a possibility that it could have a 'chilling effect,' on private donations to the institution. Nevertheless, the source added, the regents accepted

Safety week

Railroad Grade Crossing Safety Week has been 18 roclaimed for Oct. through 9 by Governor Dolph Briscoe, to urge Texas drivers to observe signs and signals at the 13,800 railroad crossings in the state.

The proclamation reminded motorists that all possible help is given hrough grade separations, signals and protection devices, but only obeying the message of the devices can make them serve their purpose.

Eamonn F. Grant, vice president of the Texas Safety Association Railroad Section, noted that grade crossing accidents, and the death, injury and property damage that results, could be eliminated if all motorists would obey existing traffic laws and approach every crossing expecting a train to be

Grant-urged motorists to consider grade crossing signs as 'lifesaver' signs, whether they are the familiar crossbucks or the more sophisticated electronic gates, bells and lights. A red light at a rail grade crossing means the same as a red light at the intersection of streets - stop - Grant reminded.

Initial step taken

BIG SPRING - The Board of Directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District took the initial step this week toward a revenue bond re-funding issue.

The district has about $35 million left to pay out of $61,500,000 in obligations, which were issued to construct the district's system.

'A plan was proposed to issue enough new revenue bonds to equal the principal and interest requirements of the outstanding bonds.

In other business, the board approved the abandonment of a Snyder water well. Production from the well was found to be uneconomic.

The general manager of the district, O. H. Ivie/ said the district continues to receive inquiries from potential new customers. He also said the district is experiencing unprecedented demands for its services for this time of year.

Market Wyly once advances somewhat flew high

By GEORGE WHEELER

Newsday NEW YORK - The announcement did not attract much attention: A near-death notice, of an obscure

Texas company - the Wyly Corp. of Dallas. The item carried on financial wires, and pretty much ignored otherwise, said the company was making its "last and best proposal" to its debtors. If it didn't succeed, the Wyly Corp., added, the company would "solicit acceptances of a plan of arrangement to be filed under Chapter IX of the bankruptcy

But hold on a minute! This really is not an obscure company. Wyly Corp. would be better known under its former name, University Computing, and even better known as one of the hottest stock issues of the past decades. It once sold as high as 186; now, when the New York Stock Exchange lets it trade, it's quoted around 1 1-2. In 1967, in the unlimited horizons for anything connected with computers of those days, its value increased in less than a year by nearly 14 times. Even in that high year of 1968, a trader could have more than tripled his money, buying at 57 and unloading at the high of 186.

It was a firm run by two flamboyant brothers -Sam and Charles Wyly - a pair who spoke in lowkeyed Texan drawls and, though of middling height, stood out in any crowd because each sported a shock of hair the color of corn silk. Charles left the firm a year or so ago, while Sam, the founder, is still chairman. Back at the beginning of the decade, anything to do with computers, programing or data processing was to Wall Street as tulips were to Dutch speculators a few hundred years ago, or what at various times in our own financial annals, barge canals, railroads, automobiles, electronics, semiconductors and fastfood franchisers have been to the inhabitants of lower Manhattan. Sam Wyly caught the imagination of the Wall Street crowd. One of his first sales was a data processing service for Southern Methodist University. His first computer, bought from a dying California firm, was located on the campus, hence he named his firm University. He was a frequent contributor to financial conferences and panels all over the country and stirred his listeners with challenging talk, particularly when he promised a challenge to the biggest business of all, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

He would compete with Ma Bell, he said, not in telephone communication, but in the transmission of data, linking computer to computers so they could talk to each other. There are many measures of the success he had, such as the tripling of revenues from 1967 to 1971, but the most telling, in Wall Street's eyes, was the price-earnings ratio for his stock. It's a measure of what investors pay to get $1 of profit, and it ranges from about eight to 16 for the average going business in the Standard & Poor's group of 500 representative stocks. In 1971, the price-earnings ratio of Wyly's company reached a peak of 124; in other words, investors were paying 124 times the profits per share for the stock. Since then, though, there has been nothing but losses each year; the price-earnings ratio is now nonexistent.

What happened to all that energy, those challenges, the promises? Well, for one thing, the company branched out into the casualty insurance business early in the 1970s and inflation during that period made that business the biggest casualty of all.

The crowning blow was Wyly's failure to make good on his challenge to AT&T. In a twist on the old you can't fight City Hall" idea, Ray Hannan, a longtime assistant to Sam Wyly, says: "You can't fight the telephone company if they are determined to kill " Hannan says the company has filed a civil antitrust suit alleging that Ma Bell's enmity led to the drying up of capital that ordinarily would have been available, but a trial is "years away." In any case, the Wyly subsidiary that was to have made good on the challenge to the telephone company -Datran - was liquidated a year ago.

Can amateur investors top professionals?

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) - Can amateur investors whip the pros, or are claims to that effect mainly the boastings of individuals who live in a fantasy world where victories are recorded and losses forgotten? Let the statistics speak, says the National Association of Investment Clubs. Officials there maintain that 9 per cent of professionally managed funds fared worse than the market over the past 10 years; but that 58 per cent of clubs did better. The association cites more figures: The median rate of return of the typical professionally managed median for investment clubs was 5.9 per cent, or 42 per cent better. Compare investment results to the market averages, it continues, and there's an even bigger difference. Managed funds, it says, earned 2.5 per

House members seek solution

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS

WASHINGTON (AP) - Members of the House are studying a Senate compromise that would expand the use of tax money for abortions while dropping a controversial "medical necessity" provision.

A House-Senate conference committee trying to settle the question of when the federal government should pay for abortions set another meeting next Monday after failing to reach agreement in a three-hour session Thursday.

The committee members were freed, however, from any concern that their delays would halt checks for welfare recipients and - at least for the time being - for hundreds of thousands of federal workers.

House members of the panel asked for time to consider the compromise. proposed by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, the chief Senate negotiator.

Under his plan, the government would pay for abortions when a woman's life was in danger, in cases of rape or incest or if the woman or the fetus would suffer serious, per-manent health damage.

This language would replace the-Senate's insistence on paying for abortions when "medically necessary," a provision House critics say is too liberal.

The House has backed the present, law providing federal money only when a woman's life would be threatened by a full-term pregnancy.

The dispute is holding up $60.2

billion to run the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare for the fiscal year that begins Saturday. The impasse - now in its third month - means the agencies must curtail grants, contracts, travel and administrative expenses, says Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, head of the Senate conferees.

The Magnuson proposal received a mixed reception. Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass. sponsor of the language adopted by the full Senate, said he had reservations about the plan and wanted time to study it. Rep. Edward Roybal, D-Calif. predicted that it would not be adopted by the House even if the conferees accepted it.

Rep. Daniel Flood, the head of the House conferees, said it was "opening up the door again," The Pennsylvania Democrat found fault with each of the Senate conferees proposals, saying they were too lenient.

Medicaid paid for about 300,000 abortions last year - most for poor women - at a cost of $500 million.

Scientists' subject to be right beneath their noses

By PEGGY ANDERSEN

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - As scientists ponder the use of icebergs at a conference in Iowa next week, they will be watching their subject melt in their cocktail glasses.

Wet-suited divers planned to slip into the icy waters of a lake at the foot of Alaska's Portage Glacier south of here today to commandeer a 2,500-pound ice slab from a floating glacial

The ice will be used at the First International Conference on Iceberg Utilization at Iowa State-University Sunday through Thursday. Representatives of 18 nations are expected to

After the divers wrap a three-cubic-meter hunk of ice in nets, the chilly package will be slung from a helicopter and flown to Anchorage International Airport. From there, a commercial airliner will fly it to Minneapolis, and then it will be trucked the last leg of its journey to Ames, Iowa

They're using ice from up here because it's the most available freshwater ice," said Ed Cronick of Anchorage, coordinator of the operation. "It does make the best cocktail ice." Glaciers winding up in salt water tend to be porous and the salt tang could be an unwelcome addition to some drinks, he said. He said Portage Glacier is a relatively small, young glacier, with ice in the small lake at its oot about 200 years old. Ice from larger glaciers is thousands of years old, he said.

Earnie Shavers follows through after lan-champion Muhammad Ali in their title bout in sday night. The action came late in the fight, New York's Madison Square Garden Thur- but Shavers couldn't put the champ away.

Yankees fail to nail down title

By The Associated Press

The New York Yankees are in a holding position ... and Earl Weaver is in a hoping position

"People can still say Billy Martin hasn't won two championships in a row." says the manager of the Baltimore Orioles. Weaver's reference is an obvious needle aimed at the New York Yankees manager, who has laid claim to the American League East title. when in truth it is not officially his their games. The Red Sox defeated end, he doesn't see things quite the the Toronto Blue Jays 7-3 while the Orioles stopped the Detroit Tigers 6-3.

"That was a funny quote." said

Weaver, referring to a statement by Martin that is getting more notoriety by the day. After the Yankees clinched a tie for the East title with a victory over Cleveland Wednesday night, the New York manager said that he could now be credited with two consecutive division titles in the same city. The Yankees won the AL East last year Minnesota and Detroit

"To tell the truth," said Weaver, 'that's the way I used to think. When the other team could do no better than a tie, I always thought it was ours? But now that Weaver is on the other

same way, Joking that a local undertaker was creeping around the Orioles' ballpark during the game Thursday night, Weaver noted:

When they flashed that New York score onthe board, he made reservations for Boston.

Weaver's reference was to the opening of tonight's threegame series with the Red Sox. Each team must hope for a sweep, and for the Yankees to lose their three-game set with otherwise · Martin premature announcement will be a reality before the weekend is over.

In other AL games Thursday night, the Kansas City Royals defeated the California Angels 6-3 and the Seattle

Wayne Garland's six-hitter led Cleveland's victory over New York. Garland, one of last winter's free agents who signed a 10-year contract with Cleveland, posted his 13th triumph in 32 decisions and took some solace after a disastrous campaign by averting a 20th setback.

"Foremost in my mind was pride." said Garland after his overpowering performance. "I always have and I- to Shavers on the cards of the two would have been the biggest letdown of my life if I had tost, because I know I'm not a 20-game loser looked on national television, it was all over after the 12th round. As many as 50 million people in the TV audience knew Earnie Shavers would lose. Muhammad Ali said he knew it.

Then, why didn't Shavers know it? 'I thought I was ahead. My corner told me I was ahead," Shavers said after losing his only shot at the world heavyweight title in a 15-round decision to Ali Thursday night at Madison Square Garden

'I threw a couple of pretty good shots, but I didn't hit him real hard. I was trying to save myself," said Shavers. "I didn't go after him because I thought he might have been

THE SIMPLE facts of the matter was that after the 12th, the TV audience had been informed by NBC which was revealing the referee's and judges! decision round-by-round that Ali had eight check-marks on his side of the card. Shavers' only chance was a knockout.

Over on Ali's side of the ring, they were keeping track. Trainer Angelo Dundee had arranged with Eddie Hrica, a Baltimore area fight promoter, to shuttle between the dressing room TV set and ringside to keep tabs on how things were going.

No such arrangements had been made on Shavers' side of the ring, and no one in the Garden audience of 14,613 was aware of the cards. After some discussion, John F.X. Condon, head of Garden publicity, said it was decided not to transmit the NBC information to the live audience or to reporters. The New York State Athletic Commission had recommended against it as being possibly disruptive, Condon said.

'But we didn't tell Ali," Dundee said. "We didn't want him to know. He might have let up, and you can't do that against a guy like Shavers."

ALI, HOWEVER, said he had been told at one point during the fight that he was ahead, and that he would have thought so anyway. He looked like a fighter trying to hang onto his lead in the 13th and 14th rounds, which went Bianco.

'I took some punches that would have knocked any man out," said Ali, his face swollen from the beating he had taken from Shavers, considered one of boxing's all-time hardest hit-

'Hurt me? Yeah, he hurt-me a couple of times," Ali said. "I was almost knocked out two or three times. I was out on my feet. But the experts told you right. I can take a punch ... I knew had it won ... I am the greatest fighter of all time."

Greg Wood will start at quarter-After the 12th round, the two judges' cards had Ali ahead 8-4, and LoBianco had it 8-3 with one even. That's when Shavers, who had never gone past 10 rounds in his career, came on strong.

SHAVERS WON the 13th on four solid rights to Ali's head, while thechampion danced, covered up and hardly threw a punch. The 14th went to · Shavers in a more spectacular fashion.

Shavers came out swinging those lumberjack fists that have scored 19 first-round knockouts in 54 victories (52 knockouts in all). He caught Ali in the corner and a mighty right landed.

Ali's feet went out from under him. and the count on the auditorium loudspeaker went to "two" before Lo-Bianco waved off the count, saying it was a slip. But Ali was in trouble.

Shavers continued to press, and hecaught the champion with another right as Ali layed against the ropes.

"My corner told me I was three rounds ahead on points;" said Shavers. "I knew Ali was hurt, but I couldn't tell whether he was faking it. He's good at that. He always fakes it when you hit him.

The 15th round - by which time Shavers was expected to have been showered, dressed and on his way back home to the farm in Warren, Ohio - was a stugfest. Not since Ali-Joe Frazier in Manila was there such a round in heavyweight boxing.

ALI HAD Shavers in the corner, pounding combinations, hooking off the jab, and Shavers was wobbling. Both fighters were exhausted. Shavers found one more punch, and it saved him from a knockout.

He threw a looping left that connected squarely with Ali's forehead. The punch still had enough to rock the champion - "It almost knocked me out," said Ali - and it bought Shavers

At the bell signaling the end, Shavers was nearly out. "Another 30 seconds, and I would have knocked him out," said Ali: 'I haven't been this tired since the fight in Manila," he said. "I knew I had it won but that closing show in the 15th really made it look good, You've got to realize I've got a lot of heart. I'm a real champion. My hapds hurt, my knees hurt, my back hurts. I'm 35 years old, and with the wear and tear I've been through, it's a miracle I did that for 15 rounds. BOTH JUDGES - Tony Castellano and Mrs. Eva Shain, the first woman ever to judge a heavyweight title fight with the ninth round even. The Associated Press scored it 10-5.

"Now it's time for me to scrutinize things. I've got to get out while I'm still on top," said Ali, renewing his old theme of possible retirement. "It's time to say good-bye to this thing."

It has been rumored that Ali will fight South African Gerri Coatzee in November, but Ali said nothing was : definite. Coatzee made an appearance at the news conference, told Ali that he wanted to fight him and, was quickly told to leave the stage. "Let's not turn this into a vaudeville act," Condon said

Bob Arum of Top Rank Inc. had said he would meet today with Ali to discuss a fight, but Ali denied that

'They've got to talk to me before they do anything," Ali said. "But I'm yonna think about this. I've got 12 months before I have to fight again.

With 182 years of experience, you'd think we could make this whiskey faster than we do. We could, but we won't. We make 101-month-old Beam's Sour Mash Whiskey to be enjoyed, not guzzled.

Once we start aging Beam's Sour Mash for 101 months, there isn't much to do. Mostly, we take it easy while this slow, careful, uncompromising process turns out the Sour Mash Whiskey we've been looking for. We're not sure why slow-aging a minimum of 101 months is the secret of this whiskey. All we know is that at 90-Proof. it yields a Sour Mash of truly exceptional taste.

Something else we discovered. By charcoal-filtering after aging instead of before (like some whiskies), we assured even more mellow smoothness.

The result is a Sour Mash Whiskey that is about as close to perfection as anybody's going-

Enjoy it without hurrying. Savor it the same way we make. t , it Slowly and leisurely

Back trouble hinders Rankin in Civitan golf

DALLAS (AP) - Officials of the Rankin and Sandra Palmer $50,000 Dallas Civitan Open were hoping today that a bad back wouldn't keep the LPGA's leading money winner Judy Rankin out of the tourney already crowded with members of the circuit's top ten money list: Rankin, a Midland, Tex, native, has question mark, defending champion Jane Blalock and four other members of the LPGA top ten money winners were on hand

Blalock, who is No. 3, was joined by Texas natives Kathy Whitworth and Sandra Palmer, Debbie Austin and U.S. Open winner Hollis Stacy. Tour glamour girls Laura Baugh and Jan Stephenson were in the field of the 54-hole tournament, as was rookie sensation Nancy Lopez. Meanwhile, retired Sandra Haynie, the LPGA's fourth alltime money winner, was to be only a spectator, since she says she hasn't touched a golf club since February and has: played only one round of golf in the Haynie's $490,337 in career earnings

Carlton, John in bad tuneup

By The Associated Press

It wasn't the best of ways for Steve Carlton and Tommy John to prepare for the National League playoffs, but nobody is about to panic.

The two pitching stars may have gotten clobbered Thursday night, but don't expect it to happen when they oppose each other in the opening game of the National League playoffs next Tuesday.

Carlton, the 23-game winner of the Philadelphia Phillies, was racked for four runs in the first inning as the Montreal Expos beat the Phils 7-2. And John, the Los Angeles Dodgers' 20-game winner, was reached for 10 hits and four runs in six innings as the Houston Astros defeated the Dodgers-

"Don't worry about him," said Carlton's designated catcher on the Phils, Tim McCarver. "He had good stuff. It's just like we wouldn't get overly excited if he pitched a threehitter. He threw as well as ever.

John, meanwhile, said, "I was out there trying to win. But at the same time. I wanted to work on a few pit ches. I was trying to throw a lot of breaking pitches because against the Phillies you have to use everything in your arsenal

I have to think we are as evenly matched as two teams can be," John added. "It could be a series of breaks, taking advantage of a passed ball; a- to leave Thursday night's game

Expos 7, Phils 4

Carlton's troubles started when a group of Marines had trouble hoisting the flag in pregame ceremonies at Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium Manager Danny Ozark finally had to help out.

Steve waited for 10 minutes and through two national anthems (the Canadian and American)," Ozark said. "Sitting around like that could bother anybody. If a pitcher has that kid of delay, someone might score 10

The Expos only got four, two of them on a single by Larry Parrish, but that was enough to beat Carlton. 23-10. The lefthander settled down and

Astros 4, Dodgers 2 Bob Watson belted a two-run homer in the fifth inning for the big blow off John, 20-7. It was Watson's 21st home run of the season and gave him 108 runs batted in, a Houston club record. Floyd Bannister and Gene Pentz combined on a five-hitter for the Astros, but Pentz gave up a home run to the Dodgers' Steve Garvey. It was Garvey's 33rd home run of the year, the most by a player since the club moved to Los Angeles after the 1958 season

Pirates 5, Mets 2

Phil Garner had two singls and a triple, drove in two runs and scored one as the Pirates beat ex-teammate Doc Medich, making his first start for the Mets.

Terry Forster, 6-4, recently moved from the bullpen to the starting rotation, got the victory with ninthinning relief help from Kent Tekulve.

Figueroa suffers muscle strain

NEW YORK (AP) - Ed Figueroa, the New York Yankees' top pitcher last year with a 1910 record and a 16game winner this season, was forced against Cleveland when he suffered a muscle strain in his left side.

The injury occured while Figueroa was pitching to Andre Thornton in the third inning. There was no immediate. indication whether the injury was a serious one. Figueroa, a right-hander, missed several midseason turns with a sore muscle just below the right shoulder blade

Hogs, Frogs change time

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) - Texas Christian University officials say they are yielding to the unseasonal heat and moving Saturday's game with Arkansas from a 4 p.m. start to 7:30. The change has left Southern Methodist University Athletic Director Dick Davis in an unusual position. Three weeks ago, when Southwest Conference teams were roasting in near-100 degree weather. Davis asked for a league study of the late afternoon starting times.

Nevertheless. Davis is not overloyed at the TCU decision. Seeking additional crowd support for Saturday night's Ohio State-SMU game at the Cotton Bowl, Davis recently toured Arkansas and advertised a three-game football, weekend in the Texas Stadium.

Mysterious Bulldogs face tough Permian Cats

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

It might not be time yet to call in Kojak on the case, but the sub-par performance of the Midland High football team in their first) three games is developing into quite a mystery, and Coach Jerry Hopkins is hard-pressed to find some answers.

"I just haven't been able to figure it out," a puzzled Hopkins said of his team's poor early showing. 'The kids. have been really putting out in practice, and we've got the talent to play a whole lot better than we have been. But something's wrong.

'If [we move | well inside against them, said Hopkins, "it could open things up for us. That's where I think the whole key might be for us.

The 'Dogs have a capable offense. and probably one of the better defenses in the district, which is why their early season difficulties have created so many questions.

Their running game is led by 175pound junior halfback Walter Bryson, who is averaging more than 51/2 yards a carry thus far.

One of the areas of concern for Hopkins in the preseason was at quarterback, where he had to find a replacement for graduated signal caller Kevin Widner, but Doug Atnipp has stepped in nicely, and Hopkins is pleased with his performance.

'He played very well in the Monterrey game," the coach said of At-"He was on target, and if things had gone differently in other areas, he probably would have had an even better game."

The 170-pound senior passed for over 100 yards, and a couple of his passes, which could have gone for long gainers, were dropped.

Athipp had been a two-way starter. playing the rover position on defense as well, but against Permian he will only do the quarterbacking.

"It's just too much to ask for him to go both ways and do an effective job. 'added Hopkins. "And this way he can concentrate on getting our offense moving and nothing else." Replaying Atnipp at rover will be Steve Cole, a 160-pound senior.

The only other change in Midland's starting lineup tonight will probably find sophomore Tracy Gann starting workouts this week because of a bruised elbow.

No one's quite sure just how good Permian is, not even their coach. John Wilkins. "Sure, we've executed well," he said in the understatement of the year, but the quality of the opposition is in doubt. Also, we really haven't been taxed at all, and we haven't had to play our first team very much since every game has been one-sided:

Permian does nothing fancy. They come straight at you and make no secret about it. Their running game is led by senior tailback Greg Lambert. who has gained 350 yards already, for a modest 9.4 yard a carry average.

'They're not quite as big as last year's team," said Midland's Sommers in the process. plin.

Lee beat Odessa, 14-13 in 1975 and then the Red Hosses turned the trick last year by one point in Midland's Memorial Stadium.

BOTH TEAMS own 2-1 records they chalked up in non-district action. Odessa lost its opener to Amarillo High, 16-6, but has come on strongly in beating a good El Paso Burges outfit.

Rebels invade Odessa 27-19 and then two weeks ago, ripped Hobbs, N.M., 54-6.

Lee beat El Paso Austin, 12-7 and then lost in a real surprise to Plainview, 21-14. The Rebs came back strongly last week to blister El Paso

Junior fullback Jeff McCowan, a talented 204-pounder, leads the potent Lee ground attack. He has rushed for 315 yards on 53 darries and scored three touchdowns. He has scored another TD on a 64-yard pass from quarterback Todd Clements.

Marvin Iglehart is the second leading ground gainer for the Maroon Platoon with 218 yards in 34 carries. Odessa, meanwhile, is led by Scotty Caywood; a 175-pound tailback who has picked up 225 yards in 38 carries. Larry Jones, the other Broncho

The Odessa High junior vasrity roared to a surprising 40-13 victory over the Robert E. Lee Stonewall Brigade Thursday night in Memorial Stadium

OHS scored first on a four-yard run by Benny Carlisle and Manuel Diaz booted the PAT for a 7-0 lead.

The Red Hosses scored again, this time on a 47yard scamper by Trey Hains. Diaz' kick was true for a 13-0

McCowan has been slowed down somewhat with a sprained ankle this week while Stan Carter, a 208-pound senior, is out from three to four weeks with a broken right hand. The injury came in the Irvin game. Running back John Marks, a quick-moving 180pound senior, was also hurt in the Irvin game, but is expected to play tonight.

CHUCK OWEN, a 190-pound senior, will take the place of Carter in the Lee line and is a capable replacement for the Rebels. .

LEE HAS plenty of size in the interior line with Mark Scrogin and Pat Calhoun, a pair of 230-pound seniors, anchoring down the line.

Terry Padgett and Herb Pearce also give the Rebels size at 200 and 208 pounds, respectivley. Odessa has more size than last year in Ricky Jorgenson (210), Terry Baer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Eagles' quarterback Ron Jaworski, who has a voice like a Bourbon Street barker, will lower it this Sunday when Philadelphia meets the Detroit Lions in a National Football League game.

It's a new wrinkle in the Eagles's offensive repertoire: keep the opposition from hearing what goes on in the Eagle huddle.

That happened last Sunday and the Eagles got blown away 20-0 by the Los Angeles Rams,

'We'd call '39-F' and one of their guys would be yelling '39F," Eagles Coach Dick Vermeil lamented this

Okay, so the Cleveland Browns are for real-but do you really expect this fairy tale to go on forever?

Butler controls British Masters

Butler, the 45-year-old English veteran of more than a quarter offered a mild criticism of some of the sport's younger stars after establishing firm control of the secondround lead in the $70,000

he queried, eyebrows

elevated in surprise. "You can play in the wind as well as no wind. It's a matter of adjusting, isn't it? I think some of the younger players have difficulty because they hit the ball too high and they're unable to adjust their

Butler-as American national champion Hubert Green pointed out missed the worst of the gale force blasts with his early starting time. He birdied three holes in a row before the winds reached full strength and finished with his two-under-par 69 early in the day.

His 139 total for two trips over the 6.628-yards Lindrick Golf Club course was three-under-par, three strokes ahead of the field and nine in front of the Green, the U.S. Open champion.

'The Cougars are a good team both offensively and defensively, and you know they've got a great passing attack, said USC Coach John Robinson

Southern Cal has whipped Washington State in the last 10 meetings, and has a 3-0 record this fall The Trojans also own the longest winning streak in college football, 14 games stretching back to last season.

The Cougars, however, have proved they can play with anyone. They knocked off Nebraska 19-10 in their season opener, then bested Michigan State 23-21. WSU lost its first game last Saturday, falling to Kansas 14-12 when a 32-yard Cougars field goal attempt missed at the gun.

Robinson said that his Trojans have yet to face a stern test this fall, then added, "Our defense hasn't played a" great offensive team yet, but the're going to get tested against Washington State.

The Trojans will remember Thompson from last year, when the WSU quarterback connected on 26 of 50 passes for 340 yards in the Cougars' 24-13 loss to USC. The 6-foot-3 junior from American Samoa currently ranks fourth in the nation in passing with 63 completions in 107 attempts for 831 yards and four touchdowns.

Wade, Tanner battle for WIT's top prize

Wade and Roscoe Tanner were to battle it out for points today as each tried for the $50,000 first prize in the World Invitational Tennis Classic

The title hinged on today's mixed doubles finals, which matched Ms. Wade and Vitas Gerulaitis against Tanner and Kerry Melville Reid.

Tanner and Ms. Wade had three points each entering the final day of competition in the week-long $220,000

Ms. Wade beat Evonne Goolagong Cawley 6-4, 6-7, 6-3 Thursday to claim the women's singles title, then teamed with Gerulaitis to defeat John Newcombe and Dianne Fromholtz 62. 6-2, in a mixed doubles semifinals

Tanner, meanwhile, teamed with Bjorn Borg to win the men's doubles title from Newcombe and Gerulaitis

In the women's singles, Ms. Wady Patriots' vice president Charles had a struggle before winning the 21/2-7 hour match over Miss Goolagong.

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) Miss Goolagong said "After all, I was Wimbledon champion Virginia playing the world's No. 2 player. To win a set off her at this stage of my comeback was excellent, I think. "Miss Goolagong had a baby in May.

TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN RESOURCES

TITLE XX PLAN

The 1978 social services program for Texas residents has been prepared by the Texas Department of Human Resources (DHR)-formerly Department of Public Welfare-in cooperation with citizens groups. across the state

> COMPREHENSIVE ANNUAL SERVICES PROGRAM PLAN FOR TEXAS (CASPP) October 1, 1977 to September 30, 1978

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN PROPOSED AND FINAL PLAN-The proposed Title XX plan was published June 1, 1977. An addendum was published July · 2. Public comments were accepted through August 15. Changes in the final plan show updated estimates of the number of people to be served and program cost, and include comments which were received. A summary of the major differences between the proposed and final plan follows:

FORMAT-The format of the plan was changed to two volumes. Volume I for statewide information; Volume II for the plans of DHR regions.

GENERAL INFORMATION-Topics were reorganized in a more logical

STATE OFFICE STRUCTURE - Regional organization charts are in Volume II because administrative structures vary from region to region.

INCOME ELIGIBILITY-Income eligibility for family planning services was changed to 53 percent of the state median income, because the program did not receive enough funding to serve all eligible clients at 60 percent of the state median income. FEES FOR SERVICE-In response to public comment, day care fees were reduced from 2 percent to 1.5 percent of the client's gross monthly income. The weekly fee for additional children in the same family was reduced from one-half the fee for the first child to one-half percent of the family's income. CITIZEN PARTICIPATION - This section contains a detailed description of citizen participation activities. The scope of the Social Services Advisory Committee was changed to include financial service programs. PLANNING AND NEEDS ASSESSMENT-These sections have been revised to describe state office and regional planning needs assessment activities for the 1978 program year. SERVICE DEFINITIONS - Definitions of most services were revised to read more clearly. Because of lack of funds, room and board were deleted from Protective Services to Children, Services to Unmarried Schoolage Parents, Emergency Homemaker Services, and Community Treatment Services. The Family Care Services definition clarifies that this service is provided by a family member or person with a family-like relationship with the client.

STATEWIDE EXPENDITURES-This section has an updated estimate of the number of clients for the 1977 and 1978 program years. Estimated expenditures, statewide, were updated to show the DHR appropriations approved by the legislature and Governor. Funding increases, compared with 1977 funding, are $2,604,798 (new total is $15,396,261) for Family Planning; $6,742,081 ($63,546,517) for Community Care for Aged, Blind, and Disabled Adults; and $850,280 ($4,791,664) for Protective Services to Children. Funding decreases, compared with 1977, are $1,874,863 (new total is $31,721,161) for Day Care; $1,515,205 ($15,967,801) for Employment Services; and $8,307,335 ($11,054,665) for State Contracts.

STATEWIDE INTERAGENCY AGREEMENTS-This section lists current interagency agreements, including a contract with the State Commission for the Deaf. The contract with the State Commission for the Blind was increased to $800,000.

REGIONAL CASPPs-This section contains the regional plans, including narrative and expenditure parts, and an updated regional list of purchase of service contracts.

INSTITUTION STANDARDS Proposed federal regulations deleted the requirement that the CASPP include a summary of standards used in regulating institutions serving Supplemental Security Income (SSI) recipients. Since regulation rests with other state agencies, the summary is not included in the CASPP

GETTING COPIES OF THE PLAN-The complete plan may be read or reviewed in the DHR offices listed below, or obtained free by writing to Title XX, John H. Reagan Building, Austin, Texas 78701

MORE INFORMATION-To ask questions about Title XX, contact any of the offices below or the Title XX Information Center. To apply for any of the services in the plan, please contact an office listed below.

PUBLIC COMMENTS-A summary and file of public comments can be examined from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays in the Title XX Information Center, John H. Winters Building, 200 E. Riverside, Austin.
