SS proposals spark Califano's, GOP's ire

WASHINGTON (AP) — HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano today attacked a proposed amendment to eliminate the current $3,000 ceiling on how much retirees can earn annually and still draw full Social Security benefits.

He said such a step, which the House has already approved, would "impose additional taxes on working men and women to enhance the position of a privileged minority — 1.3 million of the nation's 22 million retirees."

More than half the new benefits would go to persons earning more than $10,000, the secretary of health, education and welfare said in a letter to members of the Senate.

Califano praised the Senate Finance Committee's version of the Social Security bill. But he said the Carter administration opposes that panel's proposed increase in the retirement wage ceiling to $4,500 in 1978 and $6,000 in 1979.

He said the administration backs the committee's plan to raise the wage base higher for employers than for employees, and noted that employers can deduct up to half of their Social Security payroll taxes as a business expense while employees "receive no comparable relief."

He also endorsed a proposal to give non-profit employers a tax credit on Social Security payroll taxes. Califano made his comments as the Social Security legislation was sent to the full Senate by the Finance Committee.

Republicans challenged what they called the panel's "soak-the-businessman" approach in having employers for the first time pay more into the Social Security system than their employees do.

Employers eventually would pay almost double what their workers contribute to the system under the committee's bill, which the Senate could start considering as early as today. A House bill passed last week would retain the equal tax burden.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska, ranking Republican on the Finance Committee, says the GOP has a good chance to win retention of equal payroll taxes. He said the American people would reject the anti-business slant of the bill.

Curtis said Republicans also want to keep a House provision that would gradually eliminate the earnings ceiling, which restricts the amount a recipient may earn without losing some benefits.

Both versions of the bill would raise taxes for workers. Under the Senate measure, the tax for the lowest-paid workers would rise about 20 percent in the next decade, and the levy for the highest-paid would more than double.

The purpose of both bills is to save the Social Security fund from running out of money. Social Security now is paying out more in benefits than it takes in through taxes, and the situation is expected to worsen unless remedial action is taken.

Taxes already are scheduled to go up under existing law, but not enough to support the system.

Under existing law, the average worker earning $11,000 annually will pay $22 more next year in Social Security taxes. The ceiling to which taxes are applied will climb from the current $16,500 to at least $17,700 in 1978. And, the maximum tax would rise from the $965 now to $1,071 next year and $1,896 by 1986.

The Senate bill, combined with increases already in the law, would set the maximum tax on employees at $1,525 in 1981. It would rise gradually to $2,263 by 1986.

An employer's maximum would rise to $3,068 in 1979 and $5,625 in 1986.

The House bill contains a maximum tax on employer and employee of $1,945 in 1981, rising to $2,854 by 1986.

The bills would have about equal impact on the $10,000-a-year worker. The $585 he now pays annually would rise to $655 under the House version in 1981 and go to $710 by 1986. The Senate bill would mean a tax of $660 in 1981 and $700 by 1986.

It's an ill wind... that blows no good

A GREAT DEAL of West Texas sand was blowing in the wind Tuesday as wind gusts up to 52 mph blasted the Midland area. For several hours, getting across the street was about all that downtown Midlanders could handle. The peak wind force came at 1:18 p.m. Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal. During the sandstorm, one observer suggested that the only traditional solution to such a climatological event is to "grit and bear it." (Staff Photos by Bruce Partain)

Energy conferees face decisions

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fate of President Carter's program to conserve energy and reduce U.S. reliance on foreign oil rests with House-Senate conferees following completion of floor action.

All elements of the energy legislation, first proposed by the president in a nationwide television address last April, are before the negotiating panel. The committee now has the task of working out a compromise on the complex energy conservation and tax legislation.

The panel must reconcile House measures endorsing most of what Carter requested with Senate bills that reject many of his major proposals. Senate passage of its tax bill earlier this week opened the way for the committee to begin serious work.

But enroute to the committee, how has the president's energy program fared since he unveiled it last April 20?

Here is a rundown on how each house dealt with the major proposals and what decisions are now facing the conference panel:

—Crude Oil Tax: The House approved the President's proposal to make domestic petroleum as expensive as imported oil by 1980 through a tax that would add about 7 cents a gallon to gasoline and other petroleum products.

The Senate's energy tax bill ignored this tax altogether. Democratic congressional leaders hope it, along with other administration tax proposals, can be revived in the conference committee.

—Rebates to Consumers for Energy Taxes: The House passed the administration plan to rebate revenues from the crude oil tax to consumers, at least for one year. It would give about $22 to each adult in a household.

Because the Senate bill does not contain this tax, it did not formally deal with the rebate issue. But the Senate appears to favor using revenues from such a tax — if one is ultimately adopted — to encourage

Bad break sidelines volleyball aspirant

ANDREWS — Beth Hutchinson said she was just "playing a game" at a Sunday afternoon church picnic over at Lamesa when she crashed.

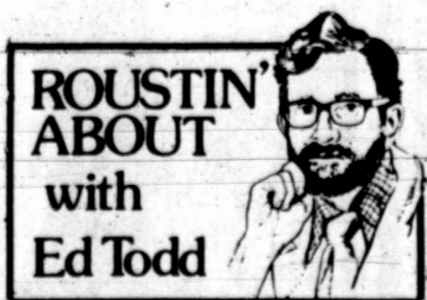

Her father said she was, "You know, horsing around like kids do." From either viewpoint, it was all in fun. And the result was the same. The daughter came home with a tall cast wrapped around her broken left leg.

The two-bone break came just after she leaped from the pinnacle of a human pyramid and tried to span an outstretched rope.

The pyramid was a bit wobbly. "I didn't have good balance when I left and had worse balance when I hit the ground too heavy," said Miss Hutchinson, who now gets around in a wheelchair. The cast is too heavy for her to hobble around on crutches.

The thing most disconcerting to her about the break was her not being in shape to play volleyball for a while. She was on the high school varsity team.

She wasn't worried about how the break might affect her plans to get into the U.S. Naval Academy.

ROUSTIN ABOUT with Ed Todd

"Really, all I was thinking about was that I was going to miss my last seven volleyball games," said Miss Hutchinson, 17.

Her father, Brodie Hutchinson, who happens to be principal of Andrews High School where the daughter is a senior, is taking the mishap in good humor. "It wasn't too bad," he said. "(but) it was bad enough."

"She's a pretty good athlete, or was," he said.

Plus that, she's a good student. She's the prime candidate for valedictorian of her graduating class of 204.

"At this point she's No. 1 in her class," the principal said. "Of course, that could change."

Changing not is her interest in sports and naval matters.

Miss Hutchinson's interest in the Naval Academy was whetted after a couple of her Girl Scout chums over at Midland got accepted into the academy.

The two, Stefanie Goebel and Susan Stapler, will be juniors when (and if) Miss Hutchinson gets into the academy as a first-year midshipman, a plebe.

U.S. Rep. George Mahon, who nominated the Midland lassies for appointments to the academy, may just be the one to shoo Miss Hutchinson in... on her own merits, of course.

Aside from things naval, she plans to absorb herself in life science studies at Annapolis.

Sidenote: It was only last year when Misses Goebel and Stapler were among the first 81 women ever to break into the academy's ranks. Until then, the 1845-founded military school had forbidden dames. Today, women make up about 3.5 percent of the 4,300 midshipmen on board. Of those 81 women who first entered the academy, 22 have fallen by the wayside.

Despite the odds, they're coming along all right.

Here's a possibly savory post-Halloween treat:

Should you have any "un-sculptured" pumpkins left over, you might cut into them, grab the slippery seeds, wash them and dry them out by oven, lamp or sun, and salt.

It makes for good crunching and, if you can believe health nuts, good eating.

PUC sets rate hike at 13.19

By KAY HORD

AUSTIN — In a 2-to-1 decision the Public Utilities Commission this morning approved a 13.19 percent rate increase which will bring in $44,120,674 in additional revenues for Texas Electric Service Company.

According to TESCO Midland division Manager Winston Barclay, the areas affected by the rate increase include Midland County outside the city limits, plus 31 cities that had denied a TESCO request for a 23.6 percent increase.

Barclay said that although the decision today does not directly affect Midland, TESCO has appealed a decision by the City Council granting an 8.33 percent rate hike. TESCO has asked the commission to set rates system-wide at the rates set today.

The PUC order means that the average monthly residential bill will increase from about $24 to about $27.25, according to a quick estimate by TESCO representatives.

Barclay said the rate increase would become effective, where applicable, sometime in mid- or late November.

"Our company will accept this award," Barclay said today. "I am disappointed that they did not

Maurits Caransa

Kidnap victim negotiated own release

By JOHN GALE

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Dutch multimillionaire Maurits Caransa, freed unharmed by kidnapers early today, said he negotiated his own $4.16 million ransom.

The 61-year-old real estate tycoon told a news conference the four abductors who grabbed him last Friday were "out only for money" and first demanded 40 million guilders ($16.64 million) for his release.

"We bargained and came to the sum of 10 million guilders," he said. He said he wrote his board of directors Sunday afternoon and instructed them to get the money from the bank and arrange "a drop in the street."

Caransa, who controls hotels, real estate and other enterprises valued at more than $40 million, was put out of a car in downtown Amsterdam at 1:30 a.m. local time after a 45-60 minute ride from the "dark den" where he said he was held five days, handcuffed to a bed.

The tycoon told a passing woman who he was, and she put him in a taxi and sent it to police headquarters. He was reunited there with his wife, daughter and several friends. After a physical examination, an ambulance took him to his home in Vinkeveen, south of The Hague.

Appearing dapper and relaxed, Caransa later told reporters at a yacht club there that the abductors "were not political gangsters, just criminals" who said they belonged to the "biggest and best" extortion ring anywhere. He said they spoke French and English.

Caransa said the kidnapers never threatened his life.

Caransa was forced into a car early last Friday by four or five persons as he left an Amsterdam club after playing bridge. Anonymous telephone calls to Dutch newspapers and authorities claimed the abduction was carried out by terrorist groups, including the West German Red Army Faction and South Moluccan nationalists. But when no political demands were received after several days, the belief grew that it was a kidnapping for money only.

"If the crime were politically motivated it would seem that the kidnapers would have circulated well-documented claims and photos by now," one source said earlier this week.

Authorities said other telephone calls demanding ransoms ranging from $20,000 to $10 million probably were hoaxes also.

Caransa, born of a poor Jewish family of Portuguese descent, was imprisoned briefly by the Nazis during World War II, but his parents and two brothers died in concentration camps.

Hearings begin today on television sports

By TOM SEPPY

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House communications subcommittee is beginning two days of hearings to discover whether ABC, CBS and NBC are covering or controlling the sports events they broadcast.

Possible conflicts of interest, sports event scheduling to accommodate television and TV's advertising and promotional policies are subjects being studied by the panel.

Alvin Rush, president of NBC sports, was to testify today, followed by Roone Arledge, president of ABC News and Sports, and sportscaster Howard Cosell. Bob Wussler, president of CBS sports, is scheduled for Thursday morning.

"In general, we will try to determine whether the networks have become so involved with arranging, promoting and scheduling sports events that they in effect, have come to control these events," said Rep. Lionel Van Deering, D-Calif., the subcommittee's chairman.

"In other words," he said, "is the public seeing an independent event covered by electronic journalists or an event staged for and controlled by television?"

Among the areas to be probed by the 14-member panel are whether there is a conflict of interest in a network having an exclusive contract with a fighter.

For example, ABC and CBS have exclusive contracts with Olympic champions Sugar Ray Leonard and Howard Davis, respectively.

"What do these contracts mean in terms of coverage?" asked a subcommittee staff member who is working on the probe.

"Do the networks favor putting their own fighters on the air over others? Doesn't the constant exposure build up the fighter whether he deserves it or not?" he asked.

Another area of conflict, the staffer said, is the televising of college football.

He cited allegations that ABC, which has the college television contract, persuaded last year's national champion Pittsburgh to choose to compete in the Sugar Bowl, which ABC televised, in exchange for payments and provisions of additional appearances in future years.

He said the committee also wants to question the networks on the changing in times and sites and even the nature of an event for television.

Wrongdoing denied

By MIKE SHANAHAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst, testifying before a Senate subcommittee, denies he had any illegal role in the awarding of a $24 million Teamsters Union life insurance contract.

Under questioning by a Senate Government Operations panel, however, Kleindienst acknowledged under oath Tuesday that he received $125,000 to help California insurance man Joseph Hauser get the lucrative contract.

After the contract was awarded to Hauser in May 1976, the insurance promoter siphoned off some of $7.3 million in premiums from union members for non-insurance purposes, including investments in Switzerland, according to earlier testimony.

Kleindienst testified that he knew nothing of the alleged misuse of the funds by Hauser. And he steadfastly maintained that his role in the contract award was aboveboard.

Kleindienst, however, conceded that he used his friendship with Teamsters Union President Frank Fitzsimmons to help obtain the contract for Hauser.

Hauser and Fitzsimmons were summoned to testify before the subcommittee today.

Kleindienst, now in private law practice in Washington, was interrogated by senators who are investigating Hauser's operations. In a separate case last March involving union pension funds, Hauser was convicted in Los Angeles of bribing or attempting to bribe union members.

Previous testimony has revealed that while a Teamsters committee was considering competing bids for the $24 million insurance contract, Hauser was seeking to influence the outcome of the award by quietly hiring Kleindienst and arranging other similar contacts.

Besides the $125,000 paid Kleindienst, a second Washington lawyer and a public relations consultant also shared another $125,000. Kleindienst said he did not think those were excessive amounts to be paid for obtaining the award for Hauser.

An independent audit has shown that a competing contract bid by the Prudential Insurance Co., would have provided the same service for less money to Teamsters members.

The Teamsters have filed suit seeking to retrieve the $7.3 million, and at least five firms controlled by Hauser are in bankruptcy.

Convicted Watergate burglar being held

NEW YORK (AP) —

Convicted Watergate burglar Frank Sturgis was held in lieu of $25,000 bail today after allegedly trying to force a change in the testimony that ex-spy Marita Lorenz gave to a congressional committee.

Miss Lorenz reportedly told federal investigators after Sturgis' arrest that he shot at President Kennedy in Dallas.

Sturgis, a 53-year-old former Marine who once fought at the side of Cuban President Fidel Castro, was held on a charge of harassment and coercion.

Over the weekend, the woman he allegedly harassed and coerced reportedly told investigators for the House Assassinations Committee on the same story she recently told a newsman — that she, Sturgis, Lee Harvey Oswald and others drove from Miami to Dallas together in November 1963, a few days before the Kennedy assassination. She said she was sent back to Miami before the shooting.

Sturgis, arrested late Monday at Miss Lorenz' East Side Manhattan luxury apartment, was accused of "instilling fear in the complainant (Marita Lorenz) to refrain from testifying before a legally constituted authority."

The Daily News reported in today's editions that following Sturgis' arrest, Miss Lorenz broke down under questioning and told Robert Blackie, the congressional committee's general counsel, that she had

W. T. Rufner, left, former boy friend of Priscilla Davis, is expected to take the stand today in the Cullen Davis murder trial. He is shown here with defense attorney Richard 'Racehorse' Haynes.

Witness called to judge's chamber

By MIKE COCHRAN

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — W.T. Rufner, a stormy defense witness, was called into the judge's chambers early today along with the defense and prosecution teams, casting some doubts over whether he would actually take the stand later in the day.

Rufner is a former boyfriend of Mrs. Davis, estranged wife of capital murder defendant Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis. Rufner has criticized defense attorneys in the past for the way they cross-examined Mrs. Davis.

A prosecutor said defense team leader Richard "Racehorse" Haynes "is playing with dynamite by putting this guy (Rufner) on the stand. It could blow up in his face, or it could blow up in our face. Nobody knows what this guy is going to say or do."

"It will be interesting," Haynes smiled as he prepared to interrogate Rufner Tuesday afternoon.

"I am ready," declared Rufner, 38. "I've got some things to say."

But as the session opened Wednesday Rufner and attorneys on both sides went into conference with Judge George Dowlen.

At midmorning, Judge Dowlen emerged from his chambers briefly and said the meeting would last at least another 30 minutes.

When asked if Rufner would testify, Dowlen answered: "I would expect so."

Just what bearing Rufner's testimony could have on the facts of the case was unknown, but Joe Shannon, who has emerged as the chief prosecutor, was to handle cross-examination.

"I drew the black bean," Shannon quipped.

It was Shannon who did a devastating job of questioning Davis' girlfriend, Karen Master, about her contention that Davis was home in bed with her at the time of the August 1976 shootings at Davis' Fort Worth mansion.

Davis, 44, is on trial for his life in the slaying of his stepdaughter Andrea Wilborn, 12, one of two killed in the midnight assault. Stan Farr, 30, Mrs. Davis' boyfriend, was killed and Mrs. Davis, 36, was wounded, as was Gus Gavrel Jr., 22, a friend of her elder daughter Dee Davis.

Rufner's name surfaced early in the trial as the man in the red and white Christmas stocking posing with Mrs. Davis in a photograph both suggestive and revealing.

The two were lovers after Davis and Mrs. Davis separated in 1974 and the defense contends, after their breakup, Rufner threatened to kill both Farr and Mrs. Davis.

Before today's appearance, Rufner twice showed up outside the courtroom in a t-shirt depicting himself in the stocking and bearing the inscription: "W.T. Rufner...socks it to 'em."

He confronted Haynes in a brief, bizarre interlude in the hallway at which time Haynes quipped, "I recognize you by your picture."

The defense has attempted three times to enter the photograph into evidence and on each occasion, it has been ruled inadmissible.

In less titillating, but perhaps more significant developments, a Fort Worth surgeon testified Tuesday that he could not recall seeing Mrs. Davis and one of her friends in his waiting room five days before the shootings.

The defense has sought to show that Mrs. Davis and Sandy Meyers crossed paths at the office of Dr. Thomas Simons.

Senate upholds Carter decision against B-1

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — the Senate, setting the stage for a bitter fight with the House, agreed Tuesday to uphold President Carter's decision to cancel funds for further production of the B-1 bomber.

But in another controversial step, the Senate disregarded administration objections and approved $80 million to keep alive the plutonium-breeding nuclear power plant at Clinch River, Tenn.

Both actions came as the Senate unanimously approved an $8 billion catchall supplemental appropriations bill that also includes money for accelerated development of cruise missiles and $4.5 billion to help the states build sewage treatment plants.

The bill, approved by a vote of 90 to 0, would rescind $462 million appropriated last year for the B-1 and $1.4 million for production of its SRAN-B missile.

The president rescinded the B-1 money last June when he cancelled the B-1 program in favor of adapting the nation's aging B-52 bomber fleet as launching platforms for pilotless cruise missiles.

But under the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 a presidential rescission of funds cannot take effect unless both houses of Congress vote to support it within 45 days. The House Appropriations Committee prevented a resolution of approval from reaching either house.

To circumvent that lack of congressional action, the Senate Appropriations Committee inserted a provision in the supplemental money bill to rescind the B-1 funds. The bill now goes to a Senate-House conference committee where House negotiators are expected to object to the B-1 rescission.

"I anticipate a bloody fight over the rescission," a Senate Appropriations Committee source said.

The House, where B-1 sentiment is strong, rejected an amendment last month to restore $1.4 billion in B-1 funds by a margin of 10 votes and only after impassioned pleas by House Democratic leaders. The vote was 204 to 194.

Thus the continuing congressional struggle over the B-1 remains in doubt.

Despite considerable support for the B-1 in the Senate, no one pushed for a vote on the rescission provision. The only comment on the B-1 involved a staged colloquy between Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., a B-1 supporter, and Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., chairman of the Armed Services Research and Development Subcommittee.

Reading from a prepared set of questions and answers, Cranston asked if McIntyre's subcommittee would retain an open mind on the B-1 in considering money for future bomber development.

"I do not believe it (the B-1) should be considered 'untouchable' simply because the president decided against the concept of a pure penetrating bomber force," Cranston said.

McIntyre, reading from a similar set of papers, assured Cranston the B-1 would be considered, along with the F-111, the controversial fighter once known as the TFX.

Justice opinion favors ERA extension

By MARLENE CIMONS The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department has concluded it would be constitutional for Congress to extend the deadline for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment for an additional seven years, a House Judiciary subcommittee was told Tuesday.

Quoting from a legal memorandum sent to the White House Monday, Assistant Attorney General John M. Harmon, of the department's office of legal counsel, told the Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights that Congress has the authority to approve a resolution introduced two weeks ago by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., that would extend the deadline from Mar. 22, 1979, to Mar. 22, 1986.

"The sole responsibility for the exercise of that power is yours," he said, referring to Congress as a whole.

If Congress passes such a resolution, it will almost certainly ignite a bitter national battle. Although the ERA has been ratified by 33 of the necessary 38 states, since 1972, the ratification effort has become stalled recently as a number of states have refused to approve it. In addition, three states have voted to rescind their ratification.

Thus, with time running out, opponents of the amendment have accused its supporters of trying to change the rules of the game when the game is almost over. Calling the tactics of ERA supporters "an act of desperation from those who are losing," ERA opponents have vowed to fight any deadline extension in the courts.

Testifying in a hearing room filled with people wearing both "Stop ERA" and "ERA Yes" buttons and signs, Harmon told the subcommittee his opinion was based on the fact that the ratification deadline is not part of the text of the proposed amendment and therefore can be altered.

"Had the 7-year time limit been placed in the text of the ERA, it is arguable that this Congress could not extend the time limit without beginning the ratification process anew," he said. Instead, Congress specified the 7-year time limit in the resolution under which the ERA was introduced in Congress.

Historically, no time limits were set for constitutional amendments until introduction of the 18th Amendment establishing prohibition. The language of the 18th, as it later appeared in the Constitution, contained a 7-year deadline, as did the 20th, 21st and 22nd. The 19th had no time-limit provision. And the 23rd, like the Equal Rights Amendment, embodied its deadline in the Congressional resolution under which it was introduced.

Harmon also discussed a related issue, that of the three state legislatures — Idaho, Nebraska and Tennessee — which ratified the amendment and later voted to withdraw their approval.

Hobbs residents approve bond issue

HOBBS, N.M. — A $4.8 million bond issue that will provide $375,000 in water improvements and $4,431,000 for sanitary water projects for Hobbs, N.M., residents was approved Tuesday by a vote of 3 to 1.

Voters had the option of accepting or rejecting each proposition separately. The water supply projects were approved by a vote of 1,460 to 474. The sanitary sewer issue received 1,415 votes in favor to 465 opposed.

City officials said sewer projects were needed due to the rapid growth of the city.

Passage of the bond issues mean that Hobbs residents will pay approximately $1.46 per month more in taxes.

Judge sets Nov. 21 hearing for SW Bell

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A state district judge has set a Nov. 21 hearing on Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s request for a new trial in the $29 million slander suit brought against it by a fired executive and the family of another former Bell executive.

Earlier this year, a jury awarded $3 million to the family of the late T.O. Gravitt, former head of Bell's Texas operations, and fired executive James Ashley. The award came after a six-week trial.

The suit alleged that an improper internal investigation slandered the two men, led to Ashley's wrongful firing and drove Gravitt to suicide.

Bell's request to State District Judge Peter Michael Curry contained 767 items of alleged error or exception to the trial court proceedings.

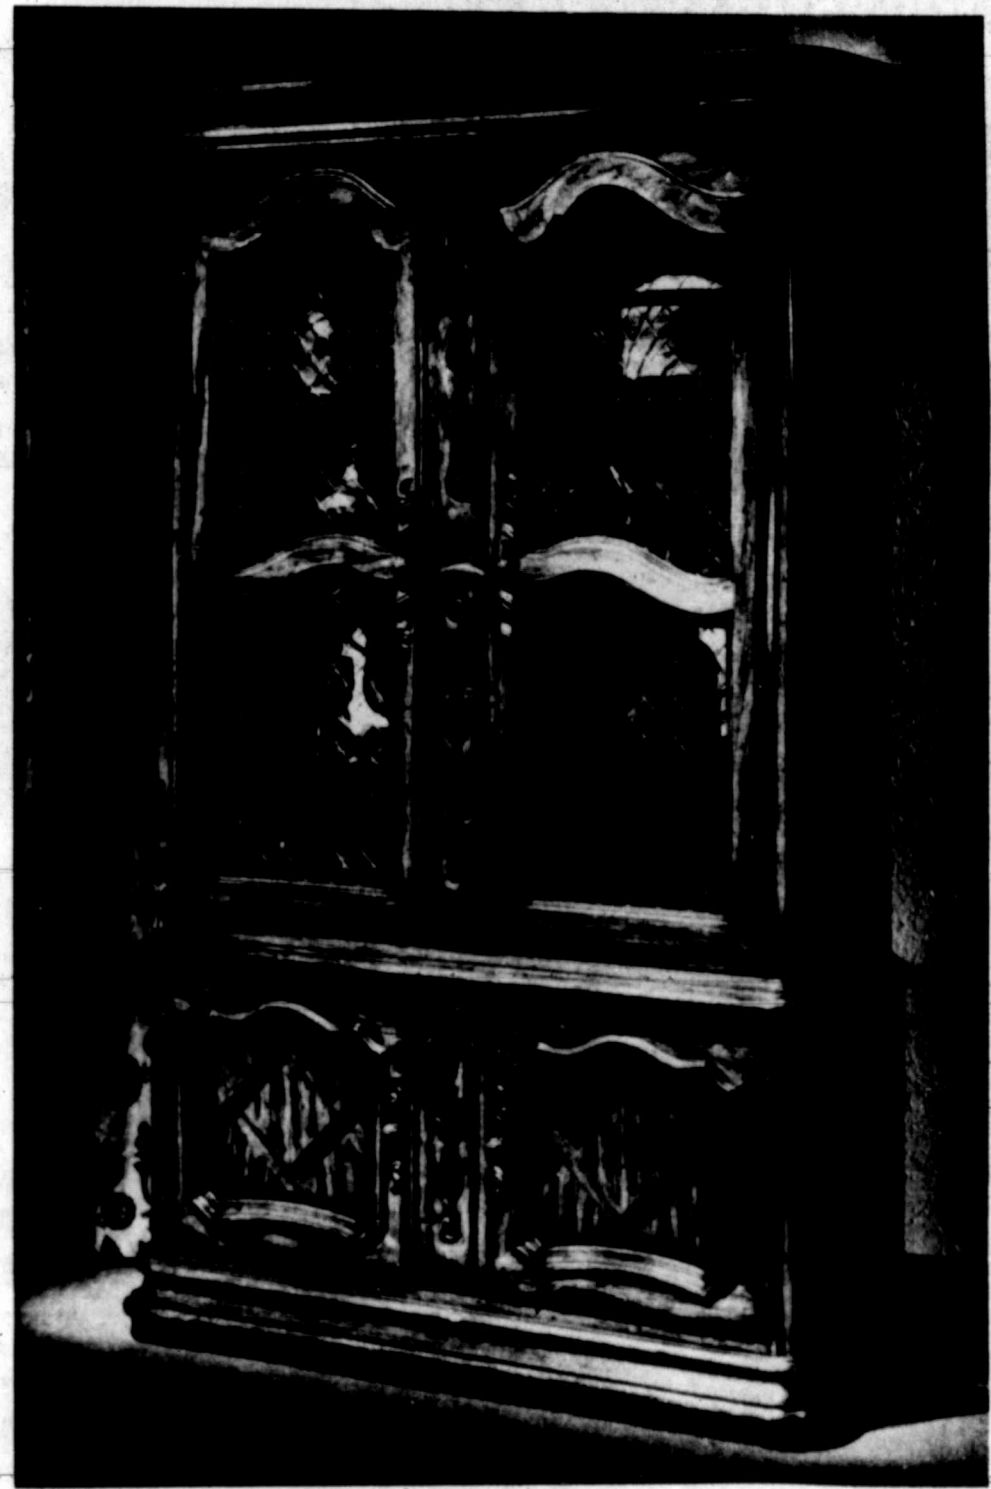

Bell claims the trial court erred because of alleged juror misconduct and because of alleged "prejudicial misconduct" by plaintiffs' attorney in making "sidebar" comments throughout the trial.

Bell also claimed Curry should have granted a change of venue away from San Antonio.

Griffin comments on effects of novel written in the 1960s

By KAREN DE WITT
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Almost 20 years ago, John Howard Griffin, a white novelist and historian, became black. Through a series of medical treatments, Griffin changed his skin color, traveled through the Deep South as a "black man" for several weeks, and later chronicled that experience in the 1961 best-seller "Black Like Me."

The book opened a window to the wider public on the Southern system of racial interaction and changed Griffin's life forever.

Now 57 and living in Fort Worth, Griffin recalled in a telephone interview last week what he had hoped to do in the book and whether there have been substantial changes in racial relations since the 1960s.

"What I was trying to do was to destroy the communication barriers between blacks and whites, to show the oppressor what happens when he is oppressed," said Griffin. "I wouldn't begin to be able to establish what my book did in that regard, though."

What Griffin does see, however, is not a bettering of relations between the races, but "the illusion of a lot more progress. Situations like the Bakke (Allan Bakke "reverse discrimination" case) case are very distressing and fearful because it seems to me the beginning of another regression in racial understanding."

While the book is still being published and is frequently required reading in schools (Griffin recently added an epilogue to the new edition appending the events of the 1960s), it changed Griffin's life as a novelist into that of a proselytizer for better racial understanding. "I thought of myself as a novelist," said Griffin, who had published two novels, the bestselling "The Devil Rides Outside" and "Nunni" prior to "Black Like Me." "I'd never thought of myself as having a vocation to bring an understanding between the races. But I spent all those years of the 1960s fluctuating back and forth between black and white worlds."

Griffin became a consultant on inner city disturbances during the time when the cities were erupting into flames and racial polarization. He expanded his interest to include other minorities: Native Americans; the elderly poor; and Pakistanis in Canada.

Griffin's life has had strange quirks and odd twists. Originally, he'd planned to be a psychiatrist but his career was interrupted by blindness from a World War II accident. He became a novelist instead, remaining blind for 10 years before he miraculously regained his eyesight.

He cites his sightless days as part of the impetus for his book and his involvement in interracial relations.

Ford continues to lower maintenance needs

By HARRY ANDERSON
The Los Angeles Times

Get ready for the maintenance-free car. Well, almost maintenance-free. As part of the auto industry's major redesign and re-engineering program for all its cars by 1981, one goal is to reduce drastically the amount of scheduled maintenance required — even oil changes.

Robert B. Alexander, Ford Motor Co. vice president for car product development, said in an interview that Ford's aim was to eliminate all normal owner-performed maintenance during a car's first 50,000 miles.

Exactly when that goal will be achieved depends on the development of new, long-lasting motor oil additives and other equipment, Alexander said, but cars of the 1980s will be practically maintenance-free compared with their earlier counterparts. Alexander noted that tuneup intervals for all 1973 Ford cars was 12,000 miles. That has lengthened to 30,000 miles on its four-cylinder engines with manual transmission, all V-6s and most V-8s in 1978, he said.

As improvements are made in motor oils and sparkplugs in the next few years the aim is to remove all scheduled maintenance before 50,000 miles, Alexander said. But there is one hitch.

"We may have to put a time limit on it," he said. "It may have to be 50,000 miles or one year, whichever occurs first, because some items need attention after a certain amount of time."

"Call it an investment in the future," said Chrysler Corp. Chairman John Riccardo in commenting at a Detroit press conference on the No. 3 U.S. auto maker's 50 percent drop in profits during the third quarter this year.

Riccardo said Chrysler's huge expense in tooling up for production of new, smaller cars had severely dented its earnings. Chrysler last week reported that net income in the quarter ended Sept. 30 fell to $30.4 million or 51 cents per share from $61.2 million or $1.01 per share a year ago.

Chrysler introduced two smaller "luxury" cars earlier this year — the Dodge Diplomat and Chrysler LeBaron — and will begin selling two new subcompacts — the Plymouth Horizon and Dodge Omni — next January.

Riccardo said small car sales would strengthen in coming years as fuel economy requirements of new cars are tightened. He predicted Chrysler's share of the new car market would increase as small car sales improve.

More than half the cars Mercedes-Benz sells in the United States next year must have diesel engines. This would enable the German auto maker to meet the 18 miles per gallon fleet sales average required by U.S. law, says a Mercedes official.

About 46 percent of the Mercedes cars sold here this year have diesels — a far cry from just 14 percent several years ago.

energy conservation and increased production. Some combination of this proposal, with part of the tax revenues being used as rebates and the rest as energy incentives, appears likely to emerge if the conference committee goes along with the crude-oil tax.

posals to ban new utilities and industries from burning natural gas and oil. Conferees are now considering what to do about existing plants. The Senate approved a much milder version that would allow all but the biggest plants to continue burning oil.

Electric Utility Rates: The House adopted the President's plan to force utilities to revise their rate structures, a move that would make electricity cheaper at night or during other off-peak times and would bar discount rates to industries that use lots of power.

West Texas weather again has illustrated how suddenly it can switch from one extreme to another. A couple of days ago, Midland had spring-like weather and now temperatures have dipped way down with last night's low temperature falling to 36 degrees.

Standy Gasoline Tax: Carter proposed increasing gasoline taxes by up to 50 cents a gallon if U.S. consumption continues to climb rapidly. The House rejected it and no serious efforts were made in the Senate to revive it.

Coal Conversion: Both houses passed, and conferees have already tentatively endorsed, Carter's proposed increasing gasoline taxes by up to 50 cents a gallon if U.S. consumption continues to climb rapidly. The House rejected it and no serious efforts were made in the Senate to revive it.

Conferees have deauthorized over this issue. A possible compromise banning the manufacture of some fuel-thirsty cars while taxing others is a possibility.

Salesman discloses surgeries

NEW YORK — Pacing in front of the shelves crammed with books and journals on orthopedic surgery in his elegant Garden City, L.I., home, William MacKay gave his first public account of the circumstances that led to his own involvement in the surgery by salesmen scandal now engulfing several Suffolk County, L.I., hospitals.

"I have no illusions about being a doctor," said the salesman who has admitted assisting doctors during major operations. "But I'm an expert on implants so that I can help doctors do their job as best they can. I learned as much as I could about my profession. I was driven because I wanted to be the best orthopedic salesman there is," MacKay said.

MacKay, 34, told how he — a salesman of artificial joints who has no formal medical training or even a high school education — performed orthopedic surgery at Smithtown General Hospital in the early 1970s. Medical sources said he also operated at St. John's Hospital, but he refused to confirm this.

Although Newsday identified him early in its investigation — of surgery by salesmen — MacKay agreed to talk only Monday night. This followed publication of his name in Monday's Newsday as the salesman who allegedly bailed out orthopedic surgeons David Lipton and Howard Masoff in a 1975 operation.

Nine surgeons and three hospitals are now under investigation for allegedly allowing salesmen to participate in 17 operations.

12-year-old witness weeps at kidnap trial

By LINDA DEUTSCH

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A 12-year-old Chowchilla girl wept as she faced her kidnappers in a courtroom and recalled the terror of a mass abduction.

Jodi Heffington, one of 26 children kidnapped with their school bus driver, told of being entombed "in a hole in the ground" where it was dark and hot.

The dark-haired girl broke down as she began to describe the bus hijacking of July 15, 1976. "A man got out with a gun," Jodi began, then burst into tears.

Superior Court Judge Leo Deegan called a brief recess while Jodi's father comforted her.

Across the room, the three admitted kidnapers — James Schoenfeld, 28, Richard Schoenfeld, 23, and Fred Woods, 26 — alternately leafed through papers and glanced impassively at the young witness.

"They told us not to do anything bad or wrong or we were gonna get hurt," Jodi said when she resumed testifying.

The defendants are charged with "kidnaping with bodily harm," a more serious offense than simple kidnaping to which they have pleaded guilty.

If convicted of the bodily harm count, the three would be condemned to life imprisonment without possibility of parole. They have chosen a trial by judge rather than jury, fearing jurors would be swayed by sympathy for the children.

Jodi testified she suffered repeated nosebleeds during the 27-hour abduction and also hurt her knee, wet her pants and felt "awful."

"My stomach felt like I was gonna throw up," she said.

Jodi and another kidnap victim, Mike Marshall, 15, remembered the children crying and praying as they lay in a buried moving van.

College sets fund-raising tug

More than 90 area high schools, two dozen colleges and scores of civic groups have been invited to participate in a giant tug o' war contest at 10:30 a.m. Nov. 12 at Midland College.

The event is designed to raise food and money for the undernourished of the world. "Of course we also intend to make this an enjoyable social occasion," said Dr. Jim Cook, director of student activities at the college.

Six-person tug o' war teams with a 1,200-pound weight limit per team will compete in a championship bracket, with a consolation bracket for first round losers. Entry fee is 50 cents and one can of food per person. Organizations can enter as many teams as they want, however individuals may participate only on one team. Following the competition will be a discussion of the world hunger problem and ways in which it might be alleviated.

More than a dozen teams have entered the contest from Midland College organizations and community groups, according to Tommy Tuck, president of the cosponsoring Midland College Student Senate.

Groups wishing to enter may contact Cook for an entry form. Entries must be received no later than Monday, with entry fees paid at that time, Cook said.

Blackout's last legacy bitterness

By LEE LESCAZE
The Washington Post

NEW YORK — It takes Steve Bari and Steve Richards 18 minutes to lock up their furniture store now.

Before July 13, they turned a key in a lock and walked out. Then came the blackout and looters who cleaned out their store on the Grand Concourse in the Bronx, and before they reopened they brought $250 worth of padlocks and 75 feet of steel rolling gates to cover their storefront.

About 80 per cent of the New York businesses looted during last summer's blackout have reopened, according to city figures, but many of the owners, like Bari and Richards, are still struggling to get back where they were.

Few insurance claims have been paid except where fire did the damage. Bari and Richards, armed with shotguns, spent the blackout night guarding their store records and prevented attempts to burn the building down. In his anger at the insurance company for not compensating him for his losses, Bari wonders if they shouldn't have allowed their store to burn.

Bari's anger has other targets. When he tried to stop looters by swinging his shotgun butt, he says, police told him he was being too violent. He and Richards were threatened with arrest as the looters carried off their stock.

After the blackout, the two partners were short of cash with which to make repairs and buy new furniture.

Consolidated Edison sent them a bill and Bari asked for extra time to pay it. The power company whose failure caused the blackout denied his request and warned him that his power was about to be cut off.

"There should be some sort of class action suit against Con Ed," Bari said in an interview. He would be happy to join one.

"You know what I learned from the blackout?" Bari asked. "The people or welfare are right. The system says 'beat me.' That's what it's there for."

During the close seven-candidate Democratic mayoral primary, Bari said, he received letters of sympathy and support from several candidates. "It's all bull," he said.

New York City provided $1,800 maximum to businessmen whose stores were damaged during the blackout. That, plus stretched-out credit terms from some furniture suppliers, is the only valuable assistance Bari and Richards, who store is called Alec Zanders, Ltd., have received, Bari said.

The city also sent him several teenagers to help clean up as part of a citywide program. According to Bari and others, the youths were little help. Most of them couldn't read or write well enough to address envelopes, Richards said.

Eugene Riback manages the Great Union Furniture Co. in predominantly Spanish-speaking East Harlem.

Great Union spent $10,000 on new windows and steel rolling gates, Riback said.

He was luckier than Bari and Richards. The mob took everything from his large ground floor showroom, but he has three floors and the top two were untouched. Riback never had to close and resumed selling furniture while there was still debris and broken glass in the front of the store.

Riback estimates his store lost $80,000 worth of furniture, and his insurance claim has not been paid.

He went to the bank he has used for nine years to get a $40,000 loan and offered $1 million in accounts receivable as collateral, Riback said. The loan was turned down.

"They've redlined the area," Riback said, accusing the banks of refusing to make loans in East Harlem where unemployment and crime rates are high and many buildings are abandoned.

Like Alec Zanders Ltd., Great Union now closes an hour earlier than before the blackout, but otherwise the Third Avenue cluster of furniture stores, of which Great Union is one, appears to have been little changed by the blackout.

"It hasn't changed my thinking about anything. I've been here 15 years," Riback said.

"The people who aren't working now have a good excuse because the economy's gone rotten," he said.

Riback said his neighbors in East Harlem are not his customers. Most of his sales, he said, are to people from New Jersey, Long Island and other parts of Manhattan. They come to him for low prices, Riback said.

Poles hope visits generate returns

By MICHAEL GETLER
The Washington Post

WARSAW — While preparations are underway in this Polish capital for a visit by President Carter on Dec. 1, authorities here are perhaps even more anxious about a less publicized visit by another American just a few days before the President arrives.

The other visitor is the single most potentially volatile problem confronting the Communist regime of Edward Gierak.

The Poles, according to sources here, want roughly to double their grain imports from the U.S. to a level of some five to six million metric tons next year.

The cost also roughly would double to about $500-$600 million.

While the U.S. has plenty of grain, it is "sympathetic" to the Polish situation, and would undoubtedly like to improve ties even further with the most independent-minded people in the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact, the problem is finding a legal way to pay for it.

Poland apparently would be able to finance about half of it through maximum credits with the Commodity Credit Corporation, a subsidiary body of the Agriculture Department that provides terms more favorable than on the general market.

"The Poles want even easier, longer term credit for the rest and U.S. sources say there is no clear answer yet whether it is legally possible to do this. Also, it could open a floodgate of requests for similar treatment by other countries that may have even more dire needs than the Poles.

Both Polish and American officials here tend to see the Carter visit as reinforcing the economic pay-off in U.S.-Soviet relations that return for what is expected to be a warm reception for Carter.

Polish views on the President's trip are mixed. There is some cynicism that the presence of some six million Americans of Polish descent in the United States has made the trip good domestic politics at home for Carter. Others wonder how much inclusion of Warsaw in the four-continent presidential journey was linked to the Polish origins of Carter's chief National Security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Yet the overwhelming view here seems to be that there is indeed a kind of special ethnic and tradition relationship between the two countries, despite the different official ideologies of Poland's post-war situation.

"The authorities have great economic hopes from this visit," says former education minister and government critic Wladyslaw Bienkowski, "but the President can count on an enthusiastic welcome. The people won't have to be herded to go to see him. Polish society is pro-American."

"Maybe one reason," the 70-year-old sociologist jokes, "is that America is a long way away. Maybe if the Soviet Union were further away, we would like them more.

Banking proposal opposed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Passage of Proposition No. 6 on the Nov. 8 ballot would result in "a shift of depository money from suburban and small town banks to the big banks that are already well on their way to taking full control of banking in Texas," Harry Ledbetter said.

Ledbetter, candidate for the Democratic nomination for state treasurer, said the 15 biggest bank holding companies held 15 per cent of the total deposits five years ago and now hold more than 50 per cent of the deposits.

Proposition No. 6 would authorize use of electronic fund transfer cards and eliminate checks. Supporters say this will save money.

DEAR ABBY

Dieters who bring 'dinner' upset hostess

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I had a dinner party recently, and invited five couples. I worked hard because I wanted everything to be just right.

Two of my guests brought their own "dinner" in a jar. It was some kind of diet concoction. I was angry and thought they had a lot of nerve accepting my dinner invitation when they knew they

DEAR ABBY: I read with pleasure the letters in your column from women who thought sex was overrated and said they were tired of "faking it" in the bedroom.

It's about time somebody told the truth about sex. I am a normal man, and I don't go crazy over sex either, but I have to be careful where I make that statement.

Women are lucky they can "fake it" in the bedroom. We men have no choice. We have to "perform" in order to prove our "masculinity," and I, for one, am sick of it! Many times I have wished that I could say, "Not tonight, dear, I have a headache."

Women have no idea how much pressure we men are under.

Care to comment?—PRESSURED
DEAR PRESSURED: If you allow yourself to be "pressured" in order to preserve the "mucho macho" illusion, that's your problem. For my part, a man is just as entitled to have a "headache" as a woman.

DEAR ABBY: Last night I went to sleep with the pillow over my ears to drown out the noise of my parents quarreling. I am the oldest of four, and I feel sort of responsible for the younger ones. My folks have been fighting ever since I can remember.

They fight about little things, like who put gas in the car last, and also over big things like money or my father's not spending enough time with my little brothers.

Abby, this is giving me a nervous stomach because they fight a lot at the supper table. What can a 13-

year-old girl do?—FIGHTERS' DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Parents who quarrel a lot are not likely to accept criticism, advice or suggestions from their young children. Indeed, they would probably resent it, so there's nothing you can do. Just pray (and so will I) that they see this letter, recognize themselves and do something about it.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

WOMEN'S NEWS

weren't going to eat anything. I told them how hard I had worked preparing the dinner, and urged them to "fall off the wagon" for just that meal, but they wouldn't do it.

I finally decided to be a good sport, but deep down I was hurt. What do you think of such guests, and how would you have handled it?—STILL BURNING

DEAR BURNING: Guests who are on special diets should say so when they're invited out. Were I the hostess, and dieters appeared with their own "dinners," I'd have said nothing and permitted them to "drink their dinners" as inconspicuously as possible. (Never would I attempt to get them to "fall off the wagon" or make them feel guilty for sticking with their diets.)

Buyers watch what Paris wears

By NINA S. HYDE
The Washington Post

PARIS — Annie Hall would love it. The favorite togs of young fashion-conscious women this fall on the Boulevard Saint Germain, the Fifth Avenue of Paris with its boutiques and street fashions, are oversized jackets and vests, big, sloppy V-neck sweaters, ties and men's hats, floppy skirts and pegged corduroy pants.

Despite the popularity of the Woody Allen-Diane Keaton comedy here over the last two months, the look has less to do with the film than with an oversize menswear look for women initiated by Paris designer Kenzo for his JAP boutique and picked up by many an imitator. It showed up often in the ready-to-wear collections for spring displayed to buyers and reporters in the last two weeks.

American buyers pay careful attention to what they see on Paris sidewalks because a fresh look on the Saint Germain has a way of turning up not too long after on the streets of Manhattan and other American cities. Paris designers not only study the trends, many of them live the latest look personally.

This year's version bears little resemblance to the primmer, neater, more self-conscious style of many American women.

The ingredients are often alike, but the final turn-out is rarely duplicated because it builds on what the individual already owns, rather than anything assembled by a store or boutique.

"My jacket is fairly new, but the hat and skirt are from an antique clothing store, the wool scarf from a trip to London last year, and the boots I've had for a long time," said a young part-time Paris model taking inventory of her attire last week.

Big blousons show up in leather as well as knits and wool, worn both by men and women. Jackets are never neat and trim, but oversized to give softness and a relaxed look with sleeves pushed up, the collar turned up, and a muffler often tied around the neck.

Frizzy hair has fizzled out. The favorite hair style is the long braid, often a Chinese-style pigtail trailing down the back. Hats, pulled down to the eyebrows somewhat mannishly, are funny knit caps with tiny rolled edges.

Pants are not the strict, man-tailored cut but a softer, often pegged variety. Blue denim jeans appear rarely now, but skintight corduroys are still apparent poking out from some of the biggest blouson sweaters and jackets imaginable.

Graduate Center courses geared to women

Permian Basin Graduate Center is offering three courses of special interest to women.

Presenting Yourself Positively is a two-session series scheduled for Wednesday and Nov. 10 from 7 to 9 p.m. It is designed for persons wanting to improve the image they present to others in a self-assured manner.

The class will meet in the PBGC classrooms in the basement of the Metro Building, 119 N. Colorado St.

Marion Kimberly, instructor, received her bachelor of arts degree from Mt. Holyoke College and her master's degree from The University of Texas at the Permian Basin. She is in private practice as a career counselor and also teaches career exploration courses.

In Presenting Yourself Positively she will use role playing and feedback techniques in teaching how to deal with employes and employers, employment interviews and other situations. The course will teach individuals to learn about and improve how they come across to other people in a one-to-one situation and in a group situation.

Women in Management also will be taught by Ms. Kimberly. The course is designed for women who already hold responsible positions and those interested in advancing into supervisory and management roles.

It will meet for six weeks from 7 to 9 p.m. Nov. 8-13, in the PBGC classroom in the Metro Building.

The course will focus on the special concerns of women as managers. Emphasis will be on developing individual awareness and skills in the areas of working effectively with men and women, understanding organizational and personal power and developing and implementing personal career plans. Reducing Taxes will be taught from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday in the PBGC classroom with Michael D. Cropper as instructor.

Areas to be discussed are advantages of planning, tax shelters available, minimum and maximum tax, capital gains and client information and accountant understanding.

Cropper is an attorney with Turpin, Smith, Dyer and Saxe. He served as a trial attorney for the U.S. Department of Justice, Tax Division for six years. He has been in private law practice in Dallas and Midland specializing in federal taxes since leaving the federal government post.

Information about the classes and fees may be obtained by telephoning the graduate center, 683-2832, or 563-2311.

Controversy over liquid protein diet rages on

By DARLA WELLES
Copley News Service

For most of her adult life, Ramona Quint has been overweight. In fact, severely so. Packing about 60 extra pounds on her 5-1 frame.

"It's been 25 years since I've weighed anything close to what I should have weighed," she says.

"Oh, I've dieted a lot. I've tried just about everything to lose weight except taking those shots. I've never done that. I went on a high protein diet just before I was married nine years ago. I lost 20 pounds. I put it all back on, and probably more, as soon as we went on our honeymoon and I started eating again."

Now Quint, 49, has pared off 59 pounds of body weight — dropping from 189 pounds to 130 pounds — losing in about four months pounds she'd been battling for more than two decades.

Her miracle method?

The protein sparing modified fast. More commonly called the liquid protein diet made famous last year by Dr. Robert Linn's book, "The Last Chance Diet."

The plan is one step removed from total fasting in that dieters are given enough protein in a liquid form to replenish the amount used in the body's day-to-day functioning. Along with that they get water — lots of it — coffee, tea, diet soda and vitamin and mineral supplements. And nothing else.

All decisions about kinds and quantities of food to eat are removed.

The choice to forego food entirely is made at the onset of the fast.

Those who stick with the plan can usually lose at the rate of 20 to 25 pounds the first month and about 15 pounds a month thereafter.

It's THE diet plan of the year. The one everybody's talking about. The one everybody's trying. The one that's stirring a lot of controversy — even among its proponents, who are worried about the dangers of its irresponsible use.

To Quint, it's a godsend. To nutrition consultant Jill Seagren, it's another example of the public clamor for an easy way to lose weight.

To the American Medical Association, it's an experimental diet, unproved as yet by controlled clinical studies.

To Dr. Donald G. Byrnes, who's been treating people — including Quint — with the fasting plan since early this year, it's the quickest, most effective method of weight loss available today.

Byrnes himself has lost 30 pounds on the regimen and keeps a "before" picture in his desk to prove it. Moreover, he's sustained the loss for more than eight months — something he hadn't been able to do on other weight-loss plans.

"I'd been fighting a weight problem for awhile," he says. "Then one of my friends told me about Lessler."

(Paul A. Lessler, a former anesthesiologist who now devotes himself to treating obesity at his clinics in the Los Angeles area.) I talked with him. I read Linn's book and decided that the plan made sense to me chemically.

"I found that it worked so well for me that I wanted to offer it to my patients."

His plan, in affiliation with Lessler, is a controlled, medically supervised program of starvation followed by an equally supervised reintroduction to eating and counseling about eating habits that need to be changed.

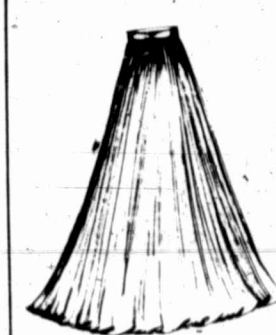

And that, according to Byrnes, Linn, Lessler and the AMA, is the only way that the regimen can be undertaken with the prospect of safety and long-term effectiveness.

In his book, Linn stresses the need for medical supervision.

Lessler says, "This is not just another do-it-yourself weight-loss gimmick. This is a medical treatment plan designed to combat the widespread disease of obesity."

Woman uses buying knowledge to become analyst

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Let the man earn the money. Let the woman invest it. That saying proved so profitable for Betty Wuliger and her husband that it has turned her into a first-rate financial analyst. It was his idea, she says.

"Women are natural investors. They spend their lives shopping and that is what it takes to make good investments. You take the time to learn about the real estate, stocks, bonds, savings banks in which you plan to put your money," she says.

Mrs. Wuliger began her venture with investments in real estate, buying buildings, then she moved to the stock market, to which she had a natural antipathy—her dad had lost everything in the 1929 stock market crash.

Beginning with preferred stocks which "have a little safety edge over common stocks and provide a fixed income," after a while she was "prepared to take more of a chance."

In buying common stocks she didn't deviate from the investment formula she had already devised: find out from the source what the risks are.

"Look at a corporate stock this way: You are becoming part-owner of a business when you invest in it. Would you buy a business without investigating it?"

Her first stock investment was a maker of bowling alley equipment that was to be involved in a new development. She ran her research right up the alleys to the pinboys. What did they think of the proposed equipment? What were their own preferences and why? She eventually bought that stock and made a profit.

She has continued to invest in that fashion, not limiting herself to real estate or stocks. In the beginning, she had chosen apartment buildings, "not to live off, but as eventual retirement investments."

Well-selected income property can provide inflation protection, tax savings and forced savings. But it is a jungle, she says, and you must know what you are doing.

"I set the buildings up as corporations. As money accumulated in each one, I found that if I invested the money in another corporation I could get a favorable tax rate of 15 percent. So for the first time since the stock crash I was forced to become interested in the securities of other banks and gold and silver corporations. It was then coins (good inflation insurance). Government "E" bonds are a great investment, she explained, "You don't really fall in love with one kind of investment, anyway," she points out. "Your money should be put where you get the best offer."

That is the reason she has written "Dollars and Sense," a primer for individual investors that tells about everything in investments, even Swiss at the end of the month. They will be dated from the first of that month and your money can keep drawing interest until the end of the month.

Life story has Roz's character

By DOLORES BARCLAY
NEW YORK (AP) — Superliterate agent Swiftly Lazar said Rosalind Russell's life turned writer named Chris Chase. The result is a breezy romp called "Life Is a Banquet." "One thing I wanted to do but didn't get a chance was too normal to make a hot kiss-and-tell best seller. But before she died last year, Miss Russell completed her non-scandalous, perfectly ordinary and conventional tale of her life. She collaborated with a perfectly unordinary, eccentric actor-turned-model-turned-humoristneeded for doing little things like that just wasn't there anymore." Miss Russell died at the age of 63 last November after a torturous battle with arthritis and cancer. The book was one of her last accomplishments in a career studded with success.

ENTERTAINMENT

"Mine has been a life with a lot of luck in it," she writes at the end of the book. And, then, as the last words in her life's story, "I've had a good ride." Mrs. Chase and Miss Russell worked together for about a year. But during that time Miss Russell never let on that she was dying.

"She came East last year for the opening of her husband's play — 'So Long, 174th Street' — and went to Sloan-Kettering for chemotherapy," Mrs. Chase said. "It was the first time I knew she was sick and tremendously brave."

Even in her book Miss Russell does not dwell too much on her cancer. She does, however, discuss her arthritis at a greater length. "She said one disease in a book is enough," Chris said.

"Life Is a Banquet" reads almost conversationally. It is complete with little Rosalind Russell asides and mannerisms. Sometimes a passage rambles but it returns after pleasant diversions to the original point.

"I wanted to keep her voice as much as possible," Mrs. Chase said. "Ghost-written books are slick, but the flavor of the person isn't in it. I gave her some bridges and some poetry. In fact, her sister read the book and said somewhat bewildered, 'I didn't know Roz knew any poetry.'"

Miss Russell always emphasized hard work and the importance of good, close friends in her personal life. She stayed married to the same man, Fredrick Brisson, a producer, for 35 years.

Many of the anecdotes are not titillating passages of a big film star, but rather tame by that world's standards. She talks about the mechanics of making a movie and the work involved in theater and musicals. When she discusses the war years, she includes her husband's role.

Now that the collaboration is over and the book published, Mrs. Chase has but one regret — that she didn't know Rosalind Russell a little longer. "Had she lived, it would have been a richer book."

BELLY DANCER Rosemarie Park, Chattanooga, Tenn., recently traveled to Egypt, hoping to study under "some of the world's best bellies." Apparently, the Egyptians found her belly was one of the best. Instead of taking lessons, she was asked to perform. (AP Laserphoto)

Downs to host public TV series

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At 56, Hugh Downs isn't a senior citizen just yet. But he agrees with the gripes of older folks that many TV shows either ignore them or poke fun at them to draw laughs from viewers.

He hopes to help remedy their complaints with the first five-day-a-week show he's done since leaving NBC's "Today" in 1971. It's a new public TV series, "Over Easy," for and about older citizens.

Made by KQED in San Francisco, the series is a grant totaling $4 million, it starts on Nov. 14. The lead-off guest is a fairly prominent 79-year-old — Lillian Carter, mother of the President.

Other "Over Easy" guests Downs will interview during the show's first week are comedian Redd Foxx, actor Robert Young, author Jessica Mitford and singer Tennessee Ernie Ford.

Downs says the aim of the new show "is to dispel myths and get rid of prejudices suffered by the older segment of our country's population. And it'll be a mixture of many things."

"It'll be a combination of entertainment, information, talk and variety shows. We're saying we do everything (commercial) television does except hourly news and play-by-play sports." The series will run at least 26 weeks, with each half-hour show taped about four weeks before its scheduled national broadcast.

But Downs said the series also will be able to do special programs on breaking news — such as legislation particularly affecting older Americans — in the same week the news occurs.

Downs, who has been writing, lecturing and sporadically appearing on TV since leaving "Today," spoke by phone from San Francisco, where he now maintains a home in addition to another one in Carefree, Ariz.

He said despite the gripes of older viewers at the way TV shows usually depict them, he detects signs of hope now that senior citizens have become more organized, more vocal and more numerous.

"It may be now they're at the point that blacks were when they were pressuring against the 'Amos 'n Andy' syndrome (on TV)," he said.

Protests from America's elders seem to be having a gradual effect on the depiction of the aged in comedy and dramatic shows, he added, "and we may look back a generation from now and be appalled at what we did in the way of insulting our senior citizens."

Hitler had son?

LONDON (AP) — Did Adolf Hitler have a son? The Sunday Times of London quotes Dr. Werner Maser, 55, a respected historian of the Nazi era, as saying Hitler's son is a 59-year-old Frenchman named Jean Lorret.

Maser says he has known for 12 years that Hitler had a son, located Lorret two years ago and has been working since then to authenticate that he is Hitler's son.

The newspaper said Lorret is seriously ill and willing to talk about his parentage.

According to the Times report, Hitler met Lorret's mother in 1918 while serving in World War I. The boy was given her name and not told his father's identity until 1952 when his mother was dying.

This year's "folly" — the fifth one — played to full houses in two dinner performances in the Trinity dining hall Monday night as a feature of school's annual Halloween carnival. It was obvious that the old saying, "a good time was had by all," applied to the audiences and also to the cast.

The 1977 opus, "The Chalkboard Bungle," was a spoof of schooldays back in the 1950s, complete with rock-and-roll music and dancing, rolled-up bluejeans and bobby socks, and a cast with stage names like Wally Beaver, Gidget Flexall and Tammy Dimples. The plot had something to do with the school's problems in getting special accreditation for the coming year — and the student body's decision (instantaneously) to stage a big show to help get the accreditation. As might be expected, the show did the trick.

"The Chalkboard Bungle," written by Bill Coombes and Jack Hickman, was directed by Liz Pennebaker with assistance from Randy Bonifay, who designed and built the set. Lyrics were by Bill Pomeroy, choreography was provided by Laura Williams and piano accompaniment by Jill Williams. The Rev. P. D. Peterson, headmaster at Trinity School, was narrator. Cast members were Peterson Coombes, Hickman, Mary McFadden, Barbara

Senate committee okays 4,800-mile gas pipeline

By PAUL HOUSTON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Expressing Considerable Reservation, the Senate Energy Committee Tuesday endorsed a 4,800-mile gas pipeline route from Alaska's North Slope to the Pacific Coast and the Midwest.

The committee voted 12 to 0 to recommend Senate approval of the route through western Canada agreed on last Sept. 8 by President Carter and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Both the Senate and the House are expected to approve the Carter-Trudeau agreement Wednesday. The Canadian parliament, which also must endorse the plan, is considered certain to do so.

Despite its unanimous vote, the Senate Energy Committee raised serious questions about the economic viability of the proposed $10 billion Alcan project in a report attached to its recommendation of approval.

Because new gas supplies are urgently needed, some Senate members said they reluctantly supported the Alcan route so that time would not be wasted in seeking alternative routes.

Committee Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said he was concerned that the private sponsors of the project would need federal loan guarantees in order to obtain financing.

Other committee members, led by Sen. J. Bennett Johnston Jr., D-La., shared Jackson's concern but said they were worried that the critical committee report would make it unduly difficult for sponsors to obtain loans.

"We have the duty to make full disclosure," Jackson said. "I have serious questions about whether or not the government will be called upon to guarantee the loan... There are problems. Some of the financial houses on Wall Street are concerned. They would like a straight, positive statement from us. I can't give it."

A major indication of the project's problems, he said, was that its sponsors, Northwest Pipeline Corp. of Salt Lake City and Foothills Pipe Lines Ltd. of Calgary, have substantially reduced their estimates of available gas supplies on Alaska's North Slope.

Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., cited recent testimony that Alcan's proposed gas recovery technique might result in the loss of 2 billion to 6 billion barrels of oil per year that could be recovered from the same fields.

New England is worried more about shortages of home heating oil than natural gas, Durkin noted.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, objecting to report language that "the future of the project is by no means assured," said "we don't want this tilted so far that we prejudice the people seeking finance money."

Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., agreed. "We're going to make it pretty darned difficult" for sponsors to borrow, he said.

Johnston was able to have the report reworded so that emphasis was placed on the statement that the advantages (of the project) far outweigh the disadvantages.

As the House began debate on the Alcan proposal Tuesday evening, Rep. John P. Murtha, D-Pa., assailed it as "another Panama Canal right through Canada," with the pipeline used by Americans but controlled by Canadians.

He said the Canadians could drive up gas prices for American consumers by heaping taxes on the pipeline, and he protested that American steel and workmen probably would not be used on the construction project.

Sterling tests set

Foy Boyd Associates, Inc., Midland, No. 1 Pedro, has been amended from contract depth of 8,500 feet to 8,200 feet, and rescheduled as an attempt to reestablish the Iolanthe (Strawn) field of Sterling County.

It is one location southwest of the depleted discovery well, which was completed in 1947. Drillsite is 1.712 feet from south and 1,846 feet from west lines of section 39, block 2, H&TC survey, 10 miles north of Sterling City.

It has been drilled to 8,381 feet; and plugged back to 8,250 feet, with 5½-inch casing set at 8,355 feet. It was testing through Strawn perforations at 8,211, 8,218, 218 feet, making three barrels of oil and 22 barrels of water in 24 hours, on the latest available gauge.

The discovery well became depleted in 1955. Stoltz, Wagner & Brown, Midland, will drill No. 1-22 Allein as a ½-mile northwest stepout to Canyon production in the Big Salute field of Sterling, 16 miles southwest of Sterling City.

It is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 22, block 32, T-5S, T&P survey. Planned depth is 8,400 feet.

Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., said "I happen to think we can trust the Canadians pretty much" on their promise that taxes would not be unfairly imposed on the pipeline through Canada.

Under previously enacted legislation, Congress has only the choice of rejecting the Carter-Trudeau route agreement or approving it without amendment.

The Alcan route would follow the new oil pipeline from Prudhoe Bay past Fairbanks, then approximately parallel the Alaska Highway through Canada to Calgary. From Calgary a western leg would run south through Idaho, Washington and Oregon and terminate in California. An eastern leg would extend into the Midwest.

In other developments at the White House Tuesday:

—Labor Secretary Ray Marshall announced, as expected, that the United States is withdrawing from the International Labor Organization, a U.N. agency that has come under increased domination by the Soviet Union and Third World nations. Marshall said he hoped the 135-nation ILO would reform its practices sufficiently so that the United States could resume its membership.

Oil stepout scheduled

TIPCO, Oklahoma City, has scheduled No. 11 Edwin Parks as a 12-mile northeast stepout to the Ellenburger pay opener in the Dixon field of Sterling County, five miles north of Silver.

Scheduled depth for the test is 7,300 feet. It spots 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 2, block 12, H&TC survey.

The discovery, TIPCO No. 8 Edwin Parks, finished last September for 48 barrels of 53-gravity oil per day, with gas-oil ratio of 2,396-1, natural, from open hole at 7,119-129 feet, in 5½-inch casing set at 7,119 feet.

The section had been treated with 30,000 gallons of acid.

The project has been shut in. It was drilled to 15,621 feet, and plugged back to 15,556 feet.

TV energy talk slated

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter plans to make a televised speech to the nation on energy, probably on Thursday, White House officials said Tuesday.

Deputy press secretary Rex Granum confirmed that the President will make such a speech "fairly soon," and other sources said the address was being planned for Thursday night, during prime time on television.

The sources said that in its early drafts the speech was largely a renewed appeal for energy conservation and did not dwell on the ongoing battle in Congress over the Administration's national energy legislation.

The speech will be a formal address to the nation from the Oval Office, not a second so-called "fireside chat."

"It is not a chatty subject," one official said.

It is possible Carter will announce whether he is going to postpone his scheduled 12-day trip to nine countries later this month and remain in Washington to lobby for his energy plan.

However, White House officials said that was not the purpose of the speech and they discouraged speculation that a decision on the trip will be made in time for inclusion in the address.

The President is scheduled to leave Washington Nov. 22 on a hopped-scope journey to South America, Africa, Asia and Europe, returning to the United States Dec. 3. But Carter has said repeatedly in recent days that he will postpone the trip if the energy legislation is not enacted by Nov. 22 — a deadline that now appears almost certain to be missed.

White House officials stressed yesterday that the President is serious about his threat to postpone or even cancel the trip to work toward passage of the energy package.

The Senate passed energy legislation on Monday, but it is vastly different from the House-passed version of the package, which is much closer to what the administration proposed last April. The differences must now be worked out by a House-Senate conference committee in what is expected to be a protracted process.

Explorations scheduled in Ward, Pecos sectors

Exploration is planned for Ward and Pecos sectors and an extension has been completed in a Sterling field.

Amoco Production Co. will drill a 13,700-foot wildcat in Ward, six miles northwest of Pyote and one mile southeast of the Quito, East multipley field. It is No. 5-ER University.

Drillsite is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 18, block 18, UL5.

PECOS EXPLORATION

Getty Oil Co. No. 2-26 Mendel, Pecos County test in the Gomez (Wolfcamp) field, has been amended to test in an unidentified wildcat zone.

Slated to 12,400 feet, it was drilled to 11,300 feet, and plugged back to 11,257 feet. A drillstem test in the Wolfcamp from 10,465-10,692 feet, surfaced gas, no gauge, in 15 minutes, and reversed out 38 barrels of oil and two barrels of water. Operator perforated opposite the Wolfcamp more from 10,464-10,620 feet, and acidized with 9,500 gallons, and also perforated from 11,109-11,150 and acidized with 5,000 gallons and fractured with 24,000 gallons and 22,500 pounds of sand.

No tests were reported in shallower zones.

STERLING COMPLETION

Mesa Petroleum Co., Midland, completed No. 1-14 Foster as a ¾-mile west extension to the Conger (Canyon) field of Sterling County, 12 miles southwest of Sterling City.

It gauged a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 2.65 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-liquid ratio of 35,200-1, through perforations at 7,423-7,432 feet, after 1,000 gallons of acid and 23,000 gallons and 28,500 pounds of fracture sand.

Location is 990 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 14, block 21, H&TC survey.

The Crosby County test is 3,050 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 31, S. W. Rafter survey. It spots in Dickens on some maps. Planned depth is 6,913 feet.

The discovery, Ashland No. 1 Durwood E. Woodward, finished in December 1976 for 177 barrels of 32-gravity oil per day, through perforations at 6,913-6,950 feet.

Tool was open one hour on the test taken from 5,396-5,476 feet. Recovery was 30 feet of oil and gas-cut mud.

It is 3,000 feet from south and 2,300 feet from west lines of Thomas Todd survey, abstract 288.

TV energy talk slated

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter plans to make a televised speech to the nation on energy, probably on Thursday, White House officials said Tuesday.

Deputy press secretary Rex Granum confirmed that the President will make such a speech "fairly soon," and other sources said the address was being planned for Thursday night, during prime time on television.

The sources said that in its early drafts the speech was largely a renewed appeal for energy conservation and did not dwell on the ongoing battle in Congress over the Administration's national energy legislation.

The speech will be a formal address to the nation from the Oval Office, not a second so-called "fireside chat."

"It is not a chatty subject," one official said.

It is possible Carter will announce whether he is going to postpone his scheduled 12-day trip to nine countries later this month and remain in Washington to lobby for his energy plan.

However, White House officials said that was not the purpose of the speech and they discouraged speculation that a decision on the trip will be made in time for inclusion in the address.

The President is scheduled to leave Washington Nov. 22 on a hopped-scope journey to South America, Africa, Asia and Europe, returning to the United States Dec. 3. But Carter has said repeatedly in recent days that he will postpone the trip if the energy legislation is not enacted by Nov. 22 — a deadline that now appears almost certain to be missed.

White House officials stressed yesterday that the President is serious about his threat to postpone or even cancel the trip to work toward passage of the energy package.

The Senate passed energy legislation on Monday, but it is vastly different from the House-passed version of the package, which is much closer to what the administration proposed last April. The differences must now be worked out by a House-Senate conference committee in what is expected to be a protracted process.

Lea areas gain tests

Lea County, N.M., drew sites for a wildcat and an undesignated project. Atlantic Richfield Co. filed application for a 15,500-foot Ellenburger venture, eight miles southwest of Eunice. It is No. 1 Langlie Deep.

Drillsite is 990 feet from north and 2,310 feet from west lines of section 28-22s-36e, surrounded by shallow production in the Eunice, South field and eight miles west of Ellenburger production in the Brunson area.

Telephone bills, wheat's farm price illustrate cost-price discrepancies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The main reason farmers complain these days about their financial situation is that the things they buy cost more while the things they sell bring in less money.

Take monthly telephone bills and the price of wheat.

The Agriculture Department says that the average phone bill of farmers this year was $9.62 a month for local service, a 7 percent increase from $9 a month in 1976.

Meanwhile, according to the department's latest monthly price report issued Monday, wheat at the farm nationally on Oct. 15 brought farmers an average of $2.26 a bushel. A year ago, wheat was $2.59 a bushel.

Thus, as their telephone bills climbed 7 percent, wheat at the farm dropped almost 13 percent.

While the telephone and wheat comparisons may not be precise economic indicators, they do illustrate what most farmers have experienced in a cost-price squeeze in recent years.

Going further back to Oct. 15, 1974, wheat averaged $4.85 a bushel at the farm nationally. That was a 14.9 percent increase from $4.22 a bushel a year earlier.

Farmers' telephone bills in 1974 averaged $7.16 a month, an 11 percent increase from 1973, according to department records. Wheat prices gained more than phone bills that year. In 1975, however, wheat averaged $4.02 at the farm on Oct. 15, a decline of more than 17 percent from the $4.85 farmers got the year before. Phone bills in 1975 rose to $7.90 a month, a 10 percent increase.

Last year, wheat on Oct. 15 was $2.59 a bushel, a drop of more than 35 percent from the same date in 1975. Phone bills in 1976 averaged $9 a month, a gain of 14 percent from the previous year.

Thus, according to department figures, wheat prices as of Oct. 15 had dropped more than 53 percent from what they were three years ago.

Telephone bills in the same three years rose more than 34 percent.

Put another way, a farmer three years ago could pay his monthly telephone bill with about 1.5 bushels of wheat. Last month, it took almost 4.3 bushels.

Air control tests scheduled

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Air Control Board announced Monday it will hold a series of hearings over the next two weeks in 24 cities to learn what Texans want to do about new federal air control standards.

The 1977 amendments to the Federal Clean Air Act require designation of areas in each state that do not meet five national ambient-air quality standards, said board executive director Bill Stewart.

"It needs to be clear that the Texas Air Control Board has not yet designated any areas of the state as meeting or not meeting any of the national standards," Stewart said.

"...the impact of the designations and subsequent controls on economic development in Texas may be large," he said.

For areas that do not meet the standards, called non-attainment areas, the states must adopt comprehensive plans by 1979.

Instructor to attend UT course

Dr. Gerald W. Hickman, government instructor at Midland College, will participate in a two-day short course beginning Nov. 14, at the University of Texas in Austin.

The course, "Politics of Government Budgeting," is jointly sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Geared to assist the participants in the development of their own courses, the curriculum will cover ideas that instructors might use in designing courses on budgeting, and the organization of study projects. Recent 1977 cotton crop may be developments in the U.S. budget practices will be explained.

Dawson County farmers taking early cotton crop

LAMESA - Blessed with favorable weather, Dawson County farmers already have taken 162,826 bales of cotton to the area gins as they move towards the end of one of the earliest cotton crops in years.

If the weather continues to cooperate, the 1977 cotton crop may be finished Thanksgiving, according to area ginners.

Last year, the first bale count wasn't conducted until the first part of November. Then it was Dec. 10 before the bale count reached the 160,000 mark surpassed this week.

This week's bale count was up approximately 31,000 bales from last week's count of 131,885 bales. The bale count has jumped at least 30,000 bales from the previous week for the third week in a row.

Most area ginners said the cotton crop was around 80 percent stripped, but thousands of bales are field stored in ricks and modules so it was still difficult to say how much cotton they'll gin this year. Most feel that the final bale count will exceed 200,000.

Alabama, Baylor picked to win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Back in 1949 and 1950 when Charlie McClendon played for the University of Kentucky the coach was a fellow named Paul William Bryant, also known as "Bear."

"He was," McClendon remembers, "the meanest son of a gun I ever saw," adding: "It was a gift from heaven for a boy from Louisville, Ark., to have an opportunity to go to Kentucky. It was certainly the greatest experience for me."

Coach Bryant was a disciplinarian. He knew how to win and he taught me how to win."

Come Saturday, McClendon and Bryant will be on opposite sides of the field in Baton Rouge, La. — Bryant and second-ranked Alabama on one side, McClendon and No. 18 Louisiana State on the other.

For the selection in this game, lend an ear to Bear Bryant, who twitted this corner for fruitlessly picking Mississippi State to beat his Crimson Tide last week.

"I think Alabama's gonna win," he says. Okay, Bear, so do we ... Alabama 24-14.

Last week's score was 52 right, 19 wrong and two ties, a 732 percentage, including Indiana over Minnesota in one of the Upset Specials. For the season we're 350-141-12 — 713.

Texas at Houston: The Longhorns are No. 1, having outscored seven opponents 264-44, but running back

Earl Campbell warns that they "aren't playing as well as we're capable. Something little always seems to slow us down. Maybe we're saving it for somebody down the line." Like Houston, maybe ... Texas 21-10.

Oklahoma at Oklahoma State: Guess which team wants revenge for last year ... Oklahoma 38-21.

Georgia Tech at Notre Dame: Guess which team wants revenge for last year ... Notre Dame 35-7.

Ohio State at Illinois: No revenge motive here. Illinois hasn't beaten the Buckeyes since 1967 and the point difference in the intervening nine years has been 331-90 in favor of ... Ohio State 49-7.

Northwestern at Michigan: Would you believe this as the Upset Special? Not unless you want to be put away ... Michigan 41-0.

Kentucky at Vanderbilt: The Wildcats, on probation, aren't going anywhere after the season, except possibly higher in the rankings ... Kentucky 28-7.

Baylor at Arkansas: Most of the Southwest Conference headlines have gone to Texas, Arkansas, Texas A&M, Texas Tech and Houston and they've overlooked a pretty good club on the banks of the Brazos in Waco. Upset Special of the Week ... Baylor 23-16.

Penn State at North Carolina State: Back to revenge. The Wolfpack beat the Nittany Lions — how's that for an animal act? — in 1974 and 1975 but Penn State got hunk last year 41-20.

And this year ... Penn State 34-14.

Nebraska at Missouri: O! Mizou got back in the upset business last week, shocking Colorado. But the Cornhuskers also seem to be on the right track ... Nebraska 21-17.

Pitt at West Virginia: When these backyard rivals get together you can usually discount things like West Virginia losing its last three games ... Pitt 28-17.

Clemson at North Carolina: Clemson has been one of the nation's surprise teams but the bubble is due to burst. If not this week, then next against Notre Dame ... North Carolina 17-7.

Stanford at Southern California: The Trojans uncharacteristically have lost three of their last four games, beating up only on hapless Oregon. It's time for the real USC to stand up ... Southern Cal 31-21.

Washington at California: Will Washington be looking ahead to Southern Cal or will California be looking back to Southern Cal? The former ... California 34-24.

Wyoming at Arizona State: Wyoming dethroned ASU last year and the Sun Devils don't take kindly to things like that ... Arizona State 29-12.

Colorado at Iowa State: The Golden Buffs, ranked third in the nation just three weeks ago, appear somewhat tarnished after a tie with Kansas and losses to Nebraska and Missouri ... Iowa State 24-21.

Memphis State at Tennessee: Do you know how close Memphis is to being unbeaten? A four-point loss to Ole Miss and one-pointers to Louisville and North Texas State, that's how close ... Tennessee 20-13.

Orange Juice out for the year

BUFFALO (AP) — A depressed O.J. Simpson said four weeks ago that "it will take a miracle" for him to achieve his greatest goal — to play in a Super Bowl.

His Buffalo Bills teammates think that miracle may have come in the form of an injured knee.

After the Bills' humiliating 56-17 loss to the Seattle Seahawks Sunday, Simpson's left knee, ailing for three weeks, was examined by two Los Angeles specialists. Tuesday a Bills announced that Simpson will undergo surgery for cartilage damage early next week and will miss the remainder of the season.

Wide receiver Bobby Chandler said, "There is a feeling that he might not be back, but nothing turn up in the uniform of a National Football League contender next season."

Last season Simpson "luckily the injury asked for a trade to the wasn't a serious thing. It West Coast, preferably won't end his career," the Los Angeles Rams, said Joe DeLamielleure, but the Bills' asking price at any point in his career and offered another round of criticism aimed at the Bills' management, which he said has not helped the team through trades.

He concluded, "I just want to get my years over and get out of here."

Akers, Yeoman deny Longhorns blew whistle

HOUSTON (AP) — The "Darrell Shepard Situation" apparently is the least talked about subject on the universities of Texas and Houston football teams but is a lively topic with everyone else.

Shepard, one of the most intensely recruited athletes in the state early this year, appeared headed for Texas but suddenly changed his mind and signed with the Cougars.

Houston eventually was placed on one-year's probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association for recruiting violations related to Shepard amid unproven rumors that it was the Longhorns who turned in the Cougars.

Sounds like good fodder for stirring up a grudge match when the Longhorns bring their No. 1 national ranking here Saturday against the Cougars, right? Wrong say both Houston's Bill Yeoman and Texas' Fred Akers.

"The only time I ever talk about it is when someone in the news media asks about it," Yeoman said Tuesday. "The kids could care less. All they ever watch is when Darrell throws well or runs hard, then they notice the Darrell Shepard situation. Then if he puts one on the ground, they notice that too."

Akers denied again Tuesday that he reported the Cougars but says he would have if he'd had the information. "I don't think any coach would withhold it if he had information like that," Akers said.

But Akers says he hasn't given it another thought. "I haven't given it (losing Shepard) much thought to tell the truth," he said. "When he signed with someone else, I quit thinking about it right then."

Yeoman doesn't think the Longhorns have forgotten last year's 30-0 Houston victory in Austin that snapped Texas' 42-game home winning streak.

"I somehow feel that on their summer jobs this year, that many of their players, when they threw that shovel of dirt or drove that nail or whatever they had thoughts of this game in mind," Yeoman said. "I think this is what is great about this rivalry."

For a series of only three games, the rivalry really got intense quickly. The series record stands even at 1-1-1. Texas whipped the Cougars 28-7 in 1953 and in 1968 the two teams battled to a 20-20 highly publicized tie in Austin prior to last year's shocker.

Simpson, who changes telephone numbers as often as some people change clothes, could not be contacted at his Los Angeles home for further comment.

Club owner Ralph C. Wilson was shaken by the news from Simpson.

Lee girls absorb loss

Cy Young award goes to Carlton

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Carlton, the left-hander who parlayed power and finesse into 23 victories for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1977, was named winner of the Cy Young Award today as the National League's outstanding pitcher.

It was the second time Carlton has won the honor, awarded annually to the outstanding pitcher in each league after a vote of a committee of members of the Baseball Writers Association of America, two from each league city. He also won it in 1972.

Carlton, the major leagues' winningest pitcher who compiled a 23-10 record in leading the Phillies to the East Division title, was an easy winner in the Cy Young balloting, receiving 17 of 24 first-place votes and 104 points.

Tommy John of the West Division champion Los Angeles Dodgers was second with 54 points, including three first-place votes. Tom Seaver of Cincinnati and Rick Reuschel of Chicago tied for third with 18 points each, Seaver getting two first-place votes and Reuschel one.

Others receiving votes were Pittsburgh's John Candelaria, 17 points and one first-place mention, and Chicago's Bruce Sutter, a relief pitcher, five points.

Five points are awarded for a first-place vote, three for a second and one for a third.

The American League Cy Young Award winner, announced last week, was relief pitcher Sparky Lyle of the world champion New York Yankees.

The 32-year-old Carlton is the sixth pitcher in baseball history to win the Cy Young Award more than once. Seaver, Sandy Koufax and Jim Palmer each have won it three times, Bob Gibson won it twice and Denny McLain won it once and shared it once. The award was instituted in 1956, and in 1967 the baseball writers began making separate awards for each league.

Carlton is currently on a three-week hunting expedition in British Columbia, Canada, a spokesman for the Phillies said. Phils Manager Danny Ozark, from his home in Veró-Beach, Fla., said he felt Carlton would get the award "from September on. He was pitching that well. He won some big games for me."

After winning 27 games in 1972, Carlton tailed off to three mediocre seasons—13-20, 16-13, 15-14 — in Ozark's first three years as manager of the Phils. But last year he bounced back to 20-7, and he topped that this summer.

Ozark attributes the comeback to the Phils' reacquisition late in 1975 of veteran Tim Lincecum, who has become Carlton's designated catcher.

There's more to a game than just playing it

It was an hour and a half before game time and the nearby TV was focused on the field and empty seats outside in Texas Stadium, but the media lunch room was beginning to fill up.

A few tables away, Lindsey Nelson and Paul Hornung were holding court in a boisterous rap session with some folks who obviously weren't Don, Frank or Howard.

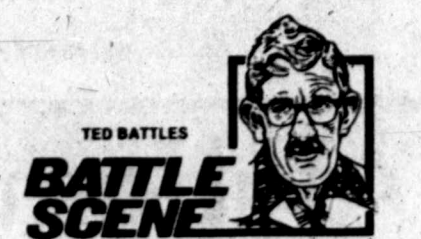

Closer by, three happily fed visitors sat down with a lonesome West Texan in the process of attacking and besting a barbecue sandwich, although not without the scars of battle on his chin.

One of the newcomers wore a blue and red arm band proclaiming "NFL films".

His companions were obviously in the same line of business.

THE SANDY-HAIRED one who seemed to be in charge was telling about a big Bass Fishing Tournament in Orlando he'd just returned from.

"I paid for the trip myself. First time I had ever been on a fishing trip like that. I landed some nice bass, but there was this really big one I had on the hook, but... you know the rest.

He told the story while loading film in a lightproof bag in front of him in preparation for the day's work later.

The guy loading the film said he was with a TV station in Dallas. "I usually do the Cowboys home games, but when they are out of town, I am sent someplace else."

Since filming NFL games is a job similar to that of the officials, once a week, obviously they had to have other occupations.

"THAT'S RIGHT," chimed in the man with the arm band. "I usually work Kansas City, Dallas, Houston or New Orleans. We have a certain section of the country. Last week everybody moved over a notch because of the Baltimore-New England game, where they assigned an extra crew, so I wound up at Pittsburgh for the Houston game."

The guy fiddling with the film while everybody else ate, asked someone to flip the nearby TV set to channel five. "Who wants to look at blue seats. There aren't any people in the stands."

Channel five was showing the NFL highlight film of the previous week's game. Philadelphia was on and even a novice recognized the excellence of the work with the ground-level camera.

"THAT'S CHARLEY. I didn't know he was there," said one of the viewers, recognizing the work of an NFL crew member.

One shot showed quarterback Ron Jaworski up close and then followed the flight of the pass, zooming in so close you could have read the label if the ball hadn't been spiraling. It floated some 40 yards into the hands of a waiting receiver, all in slow motion.

"I shoot from the stands," said the guy with the arm band. "The other crew member shoots from the field. That's all there are, just two of us for each game, unless it's something special."

"Do you work with a Dallas or Fort Worth TV station?" the West Texan wondered.

"Oh, no. I live in Cheney, Kan., not far from Wichita."

"Oh, you work for a TV station in Wichita?"

"No, I'm a farmer. I got into this line of work while attending Kansas State. Hal," he said nodding to the film-fumbler, "needed someone to help him out on a Kansas State game against Oklahoma in 1969. That was the year we beat his alma mater so bad. He's never forgotten. I think he keeps me around just to rub it in every year after we lose."

The farmer explained that the technique for shooting is to pan wide angle and then zoom in on the play. "Sometimes you start out close up and pull away."

"That's usually because you forgot where you left off on the previous play," interjected the OU-ex.

The K-State man watched some more film and then mentioned, "I got earlier in the season. I zoomed in on the play and held it so steady it was scary. No wavering. I'll admit it was a great shot."

"Only thing is, it was kind of an accident. I was so hung over from the night before, my reflexes were so slow that I couldn't jerk the camera."

What's that old saying about taking em off the farm...?

Massey holding big three-stroke lead

TOKYO (AP) — Debbie Massey shot a two-under-par 73 and opened a four-stroke lead over fellow American Hollis Stacy today in the second round of the $100,000 Mizuno Classic golf tournament, an official event of the Ladies Professional Golf Association.

Massey put together a 36-hole total of 145, three-under-par on the 6,925 yard, par 74 Hanayashiki golf course near Kobe in western Japan. Massey, who ranks 21st among the American women money earners, had four birdies and three bogeys for a 36-37 card.

Stacy shot an even par 74 for a two-round total of 148 to move up to second place from the eighth spot.

Sixty-nine women golfers, including 45 Americans, teed off in hopes of winning the $15,000 first prize.

Five strokes behind the leader was Sally Little of Ireland with a 150 total after a second round 73.

The first round leader, rookie Janet Coles, was in a fourth-place tie with fellow American Gloria Ehret, Australian Jan Stephenson and Argentinian Silvia Bertolacini with three-over-par 151 totals.

Kathy Cornelius of the United States scored a hole-in-one on the 150-yard, par 3 third hole and won $800.

Defending champion Donna Young was in 35th place with a 10-over-par 158.

Text: "Several years ago I appeared as a guest speaker before one of the largest denominational bodies in San Antonio to speak on the theme, 'What I Believe And Why I Believe It.' Following the speech there was to be a question and answer period on the subject which I covered in my address. I commended these fine people for their willingness to hear what others believed and to receive it directly from those with whom they differ. I told them that I even had some of my own brethren who were not that honorable. Any way, I pointed out in that speech that I believed that there was but one body for people to be members of (Eph. 4:4) and that the church is that body (Eph. 1:22-23). I suggested to them that the Bible taught that God added the saved to that body (Acts 2:47). That body, I contended, could be identified easily by the worship her people engaged in, identified by the same acts of worship found in the church of the first century. They preached the gospel and they engaged in prayers (Acts 2:42). They met on the first day of the week to observe the Lord's Supper (Acts 20:7). They gave of their means as prospered and not as a title as under the law of Moses (1 Cor. 16:2). They sang praises to God with no evidence that instruments accompanying that singing (Eph. 5:19). I further showed that the government of the church was congregational with elders and deacons (Acts 14:23; Phil. 1:1; Tit. 1:5) I likewise contended that the work of the church was preaching the gospel to the lost and edifying the saints, and when the need arose they assisted the poor among the saints (Phil. 4:15; 2 Cor. 11:9; 1 Cor. 16:1,2). When I concluded the speech, a lady asked this question: 'Mr. Odom, do you believe we are all going to hell because we are a member of the church?' I replied, 'No madam. If any of us go to hell it will be because we are sinners (Isa. 59:12). The problem with people who join denominational bodies is that they have joined something that God never added any body too. God adds to His one body.' Friend, are you thinking with Odom? If we are lost it will be because we are sinners. Let us all obey the gospel and let the Lord add us to HIS church. Isn't that a good deal? I know it is scriptural!" Church of Christ, CUTHBERT & AUSTIN STREET, NEAR MR. ODOM EACH SUNDAY, 9:00 A.M. NCSS 530 NC.

Advertisement for Aggies' Walker honored. Text: "COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — It's not a new story to David Walker, this 'no respect' bit. He was once a 16-year-old starting quarterback at Texas A&M. And his confidence took a licking. Then he got hurt and decided to hook it out of Aggieland because he was being used as a third stringer, shortly before the 1975 season. He returned in 1976 from his Sulphur, La., home and led the Aggies to a 10-2 season that included a Sun Bowl victory over Florida. This year he has directed Texas A&M to a 6-1 ledger. But last Saturday's game was typical. No respect. Southern Methodist said, in effect, 'Walker we're going to guard everybody in the backfield but you. Run if you can.' Walker ran and ran and ran. He gained 182 yards and scored one touchdown. He also passed for two more scores in the 38-21 victory. The performance earned Walker the Associated Press Southwest Conference Offensive Player of the Week award."

Beaumont Hebert 23-game winning streak is broken

By The Associated Press

Defending state 3A champion Beaumont Hebert's 23-game winning streak came to an end and Decatur, ranked No. 4 in 2A, lost to No. 6 Jacksboro, but the rest of the teams in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football poll followed the form charts last week.

Port Neches-Groves in 4A, Gregory-Portland in 3A, Bellville in 2A, Seagraves in A and Wheeler in B all easily retained their places atop their divisions.

Crosby provided the biggest shocker of the week's games, upsetting Hebert 6-0 after losing 72-16 last year in the first meeting ever between the two teams.

Decatur took its upbeaten record and slight favorites' role against No. 6-ranked Jacksboro but lost out 16-13.

Neither however, dropped out of the rankings and no newcomers made it in.

Hebert, which zipped to an unbeaten record last season and was 7-0 prior to last week's game, dropped from seventh to 10th following its 6-0 loss.

Decatur fell from fourth to ninth after its narrow loss to Jacksboro, which jumped to fourth this week.

Port Neches-Groves, which had an open date last week, polled 13 of 18 first place votes. Runnerup Temple had one first place vote. No. 3 Odessa Permian got three and unbeaten Highland Park got the other first place pick.

Gregory-Portland, which massacred Sinton 71-0 last week, continues to rule its division but is getting strong competition from runnerup Humble and No. 3 Brownwood.

Midland's Brently Jackson doubtful Friday

Acree has praise for both Rebels, Panthers

By BOB DILLON

Coach Jim Acree doesn't like losing anymore than any other coach, but the Robert E. Lee headmaster had words of praise for both his Rebels and the Odessa Permian Panthers Tuesday night at the weekly Booster Club meeting in the Lee Cafeteria.

Acree showed the game films of the 10-0 loss to Permian and thought that both teams played exceptionally well on defense. "It was a good, hard-hitting game and the Panthers have an excellent team. One that is quick on defense and their (Permian's) two-technique tackle played great all evening long, referring to Tommy Sager. Permian also has a fine linebacking crew," added Acree.

He quickly praised the play of senior nose guard Mackie McCrea who played a fine game on defense for the Rebels.

ACREE ALSO was pleased with the play of Jeff McCowan and cornerback Alan Funderburg against the state-ranked Panthers. "I was disappointed that we didn't have more offense, but then Permian didn't either with the exception of that one touchdown (A 47-yarder by fullback Alan Swann in the third period)," quipped Acree.

"When we held Permian at our six in the first half, I honestly think that they thought they might not score anymore on us the rest of the night."

Acree feels like Permian will be an excellent playoff representative for District 5-A, but thinks that Mojo will have to come up with more offense somewhere down the line to continue winning.

Lee faces Abilene High in Abilene Friday night and the Rebels suffered some bruises in the game with Permian. "We have been dragging this week after such a good effort against Permian last week and it may be hard for these youngsters to get back up for Abilene," said Acree. Acree also feels like Abilene is much more explosive than Permian and the Eagles

Injuries hitting Midland's ranks

By PAUL DOMOWITZ

Victory often comes with a very high price tag and while Midland's impressive 27-7 homecoming win over Odessa last Friday hasn't left the Pack bankrupt, it has left them hurting.

Four Bulldogs — fullback Brentley Jackson, halfback Gerald Dedrick, defensive back Jimmy Zachry and offensive guard Kevin Murphy all are nursing injuries suffered in the Broncho game, and at least two of them are questionable for Friday's contest at Memorial Stadium with Abilene Cooper.

Topping the list of casualties is Jackson, Midland's talented 200-pound runner, who picked up 94 yards on 15 carries against OHS. He injured his shoulder early in the game and played hurt the rest of the night, and only time will tell if he'll be ready for Cooper.

Zachry went out with a knee injury early in the first half, and is doubtful for Friday. Complicating matters is the fact that besides being a defensive starter for coach Jerry Hopkins, the 175-pound junior is also the backup fullback behind Jackson. And if neither one is healthy enough to play, Hopkins will have to go with junior Robert Montgomery. Montgomery is a very talented athlete, but he has been used basically on defense this season and has seen only limited action in the offensive backfield.

Murphy, a 195-pound senior who has been playing most of the season with a bruised shoulder, banged it up again against the Bronchos, and missed the entire second half. He is questionable for Friday, but will probably play.

Probably the least serious but most painful injury was Gerald Dedrick's hip pointer, which won't keep him out of action Friday, but will prevent him from getting very much contact work in during the week.

And that's Hopkins' biggest problem right now. The rash of injuries is limiting his team's contact work this week.

"I had hoped to get in some extensive contact in preparation for Cooper," he said Tuesday, "but it's gonna be hard to do that with everybody nursing injuries."

Hopkins was pleased though, over his team's performance against Odessa, probably their best overall showing of the entire season.

"Physically, we controlled the game," he said. "And that's exactly what we had to do to beat Odessa. I was real proud of the way everybody played in that game. It was homecoming and I think that helped because the kids wanted to win that much more."

"Things have kinda gone against us all year, but Friday they were going for us, and I hope we can keep it that way for the remainder of the season."

Purple Pack surprises

Last weekend was another of those rare 600 percentage weeks in picking Class AAAA football games, hitting 54 out of 60 games correctly.

This corner was pleasantly surprised when the Midland Bulldogs routed over a good Odessa High outfit, 27-7, in Memorial Stadium.

I must admit that the Pack has me puzzled this year. I'm afraid to pick them to win, because when I do they lose, or visa versa, but it was a great win for Coach Jerry Hopkins and his hard-working staff.

Robert E. Lee played tremendously on offense, but couldn't come up with enough offense to knock off Odessa Permian.

It was a good, clean hard-hitting contest and one that was a pleasure to watch and write about. Both Lee Coach Jim Acree and Permian mentor John Wilkins agreed that it was a clean game and that's the way it should be, especially in high school sports.

Anyway, enough jabber from this corner. On this week's games with some good ones on tap. Oh yes, the record on the year is now 350 right and 77 wrong for an .808 per cent.

MIDLAND HIGH faces a very physical Abilene Cooper outfit in Memorial Stadium Friday night. I would have gone with the Pack to win and still would, if it were not for four key injuries. Anyway, going with Cooper's sophomore fullback Terry Orr to be the difference. 20-13. Sure as I pick the Pack to lose, it will win.

ROBERT E. LEE faces an explosive Abilene High team which only lost to No. 2-ranked Temple, 27-24, but lost to Mojo in the tune of 45-7. The Warbirds are dangerous, but also give up lots of points. Lee to win, 20-14 in a real tough one in P.E. Shotwell Stadium in Abilene Friday night.

ODESSA HIGH will be furious after its 20-point loss to Midland High last week. That loss all but knocked the Bronchos out of the 5-A title chase.

BOB DILLON

OHS will bounce back and bomb Big Spring, 46-6 in Big Spring Friday night.

ODESSA PERMIAN faces the Angelo Central Bobcats in the 5-A title game. A Panther victory and it doesn't matter how Mojo does against OHS next week. A win by the Concho Cats puts them in the driver's seat since they face Big Spring in the season finale. Coach Smitty Hill's Bobcats have beaten Permian three years on a row. A lot is at stake, but that quick-moving Mojo defense will be the difference Saturday night in W. T. Barrett Stadium. There could be as many fans there as in the 1965 game which drew more than 20,000 fans. Permian to win, 20-8.

San Jacinto, Crockett top 8th, 9th grade grid races

Midland San Jacinto continues to lead the 8th grade football race while Odessa Crockett leads the parade in the race for the 9th grade championship going into action this week.

Texas' Jim Langdon

Announcement of Jim C. Langdon's resignation as the senior member of the Texas Railroad Commission, effective Dec. 1, came as a shock to his many friends and supporters across the state, particularly in West Texas.

Langdon was named to the three-member Texas Railroad Commission, which functions as the state's oil and gas regulatory body, by Gov. John Connally in 1963. He was elected in 1964 to the unexpired term and won full six-year terms in 1968 and 1974.

Langdon, with almost 15 years of service on the commission, said he had accepted an offer to join the Dallas-Washington law firm of Akin, Gump, Hauer and Feld, of which his son, Jim C. Langdon Jr., is a partner in its Washington office. The commissioner said he plans to open an Austin office.

He has visited and spoken in Midland on numerous occasions during his years of service as a commissioner. He was here for the dedication of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame a couple of years ago and has been a regular attendant and speaker at meetings of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

Langdon's friends and admirers regret very much to see him leave the Railroad Commission, but at the same time they understand and appreciate his desire to get back into the private practice of law, especially with his son.

Last April, he was a speaker at the annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce here. The regional chamber a few years ago recognized him as a "Displaced West Texan."

Still, he will be missed in many places and situations by his associates, friends and supporters, as well as by the State of Texas at large.

The commissioner also is an honorary member of the Permian Basin Petroleum Pioneers Association and would have attended its biennial reunion here last week had it not been in conflict with his resignation announcement press conference at Austin.

Jim Langdon is one of the greatest and most effective members of the commission ever, and Texans ever will be grateful for his many years of outstanding public service. He has gained widespread recognition as Texas' most forceful spokesman in energy matters during this particular period of energy crisis.

He has participated in and addressed so many other functions over West Texas through the years that it would be impossible to list them all.

Needless to say, however, Jim Langdon is known, appreciated and highly respected throughout West Texas — as a Top West Texan.

His many, many friends, supporters and acquaintances throughout the Lone Star State wish Commissioner and Mrs. Langdon the best of everything, along with continued happiness galore in the future.

Promptly upon the heels of Langdon's resignation announcement, Gov. Dolph Briscoe named a member of his staff, former State Rep. John Poerner of Hondo, to succeed Langdon, effective Jan. 1.

Jim Langdon's roots in West Texas are deep, indeed. He is a former resident, practicing attorney and district judge at neighboring McCamey, prior to his appointment and years of service on the Court of Civil Appeals at El Paso. Three of Judge and Mrs. Langdon's five children were born in Midland Memorial Hospital, while the Langdons were residents of McCamey.

Intervention with limited forces, fiction and fact

By ROWLANDE EVANS
And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A fictional President's dispatch of troops to halt imaginary Communist aggression in the 1980s has generated enough furor here to underscore this haunting question: can a post-Vietnam U.S. government ever again pose a credible threat to intervene militarily anywhere in the world?

The suspicious is novelist Wattenberg, who in the real world is mobilizing Democratic dissent to Carter policies.

In "Against All Enemies," liberal Democratic President Carl Rattigan faces an invasion of democratic Bolivia by Communist Chile. Impeded by campaign promises and his own doubts, Rattigan nevertheless intervenes — though with restraint not reminiscent of Vietnam. Restrained or not, he triggers reflexive horror and a challenge in the New Hampshire primary by his own Vice President.

To conclude a fast-paced story, Duggan and Wattenberg put this New Hampshire victory speech in President Rattigan's mouth: "From now on, this President may be a little more reluctant to risk making hard, unpopular decisions. And future Presidents may be even more reluctant. The lesson... is that we're in deep trouble... if the world's strongest nation isn't willing to defend its values — with steel, if necessary — you can kiss those values goodbye."

This stemwinder follows 450 pages of reluctance and caution by United States or its people." Under that formula, President Rattigan could hardly have sent troops to Bolivia.

That not only confirms the point of "Against All Enemies" but echoes a disturbing view voiced privately by many Carter administration officials. Having left government service in opposition to Vietnam, they now (in Presidential Review Memorandum 10) discuss the option of not defending South Korea in case of enemy attack.

WASHINGTON — Panamanian Ambassador Gabriel Lewis has just concluded a quick correspondence course on how to win friends on Capitol Hill and influence their votes on the Panama Canal treaties.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Lobbying for canal treaties

He was instructed confidentially to court senators at breakfast, lunch and dinner, to buy "a meal or two" for hungry reporters, to pass out contributions to the right senators and, above all, not to count on President Carter's inept lobbyists.

businessmen and labor leaders to contact senators personally, by establishing close contacts with "key opinion-generators in each state" and by creating a citizens committee of "prominent Americans."

Ambassador Lewis sought the advice of a professional persuader, N.C. Livingstone, on what he could do to help persuade the Senate to ratify the Panama Canal treaties. The ambassador got back a candid, five-page memo on the letterhead of Hill, Livingstone Associates, a Washington consulting firm.

The committee, he suggested, should be "used as a vehicle to take out newspaper ads countering those placed in local newspapers by treaty opponents." He also had some advice on the advertising style: "The ads should be full-page, concise, attractive and composed with snappy journalism; no long-winded expositions."

Livingstone cautioned that the White House lobbyists, headed by the harassed Frank Moore, were babes in the legislative woods. Few members of Frank Moore's congressional liaison staff at the White House have any real credibility or demonstrable expertise on Capitol Hill.

Perhaps as an afterthought about the Korean scandal, Livingstone added cautiously: "This is, to be sure, a sensitive matter, but it is in no way unusual in U.S. politics."

Livingstone recommended that the Panamanians "forget about the Washington Post and the New York Times." These eminent newspapers, explained Livingstone, "are already on your side."

Instead, he suggested that they concentrate on smaller papers whose Washington correspondents, he said, are often slighted. "Invite them personally to the embassy, grant them interviews, buy them a meal or two," he advised. Stressed the memo: "Most journalists from the smaller publications don't often get invitations of this kind."

As another effective tactic, Livingstone recommended that the Panamanians generate grass-roots pressure. This could be accomplished, he said, by recruiting

Caribbean nations seek 'own' way out

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

William Giandoni

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — Pessimists say the young nations of the Caribbean are "going to hell in a hand cart."

The optimists are not sure. With Cuba's Fidel Castro traipsing around Jamaica for a week as the guest of Prime Minister Michael Manley, and U.S. government spokesmen saying that they are not worried about the future of the area, some opinion makers in the Caribbean are beginning to get nervous.

It is all very fine that President Jimmy Carter's spokesmen state and restate that it is U.S. policy to encourage Caribbean and Latin American nations to make "independent decisions" on energy use, nuclear development, arms control, economic priorities, human rights and so forth. But there are those English- and Spanish-speaking newspaper editors and publishers who sound concerned at the possibility that the United States may forget it has friends in Latin America who need help.

A panel discussion at the recent Inter-American Press Association assembly here brought out the fact that apparently nobody knows where the "new Caribbean" is headed.

Rafael Herrera, the witty, white-haired editor of Listin Diario of Santo Domingo, suggested that it was simplistic to say that the alternatives are "either Caribe Castro or Caribe Hilton."

Yet that is the way it seems to be. Ken Gordon of the Trinidad-Express complained of the "irrational zeal" with which Britain has been granting independence to its former colonies in and around the Caribbean. Of them all only Trinidad, which is a petroleum-producing country, enjoys good economic health as well as considerable political stability.

Guyana, on the north coast of South America, in the words of Carl Blackman, editor in chief of the government-owned Guyana National Newspapers, has "dared to deviate from the straight and narrow path of free enterprise capitalism."

That is to say Guyana has gone Socialist and there would seem to be no turning back. The most vociferous opposition to the current government comes from Dr. Cheddi Jagan, who is even more radical.

Jamaica, the island nation to which Castro and the Cuban Communists are devoting so much attention, is "experimenting" with socialism but the process is not as far advanced. Prime Minister Manley's government faces a vigorous, outspoken opposition from moderate sectors. And the country's principal newspaper the Daily Gleaner of Kingston speaks courageously for the opposition.

It was Oliver Clarke, youthful, eloquent manager of the Gleaner, who warned of the danger implicit in the United States' hands-off, wait-and-see policy toward the Caribbean.

If the Caribbean's friends stop trying to influence the course of events there, he seemed to be saying, the results of the ideological experimentation in Jamaica will be determined by such as Castro.

What that would mean is clear to many of those who live in the Caribbean area.

Santo Domingo, put it, in seeking to throw off its ties to the United States, Castro surrendered Cuba to domination by the Soviet Union.

"Cuba's dependence has never been greater than it is now," he said.

Italian economy comes in for praise, criticism

By LOUIS B. FLEMING
The Los Angeles Times

ROME — U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal mixed praise for the Italian economic situation with cautious criticism during consultations with top government leaders.

"I expressed my pleasure with the results already achieved," he said after a meeting with prime minister Giulio Andreotti, referring in particular to recent reductions in the inflation rate and improvement in Italy's balance of payments, now in surplus.

But he emphasized that the real test of Italian stabilization lies ahead and concerns two things: progress in reducing the government deficit and in reducing the real cost of labor, now among the highest in Europe.

There was an implied criticism of decisions of the Italian government to allow the public sector deficit to grow this year and next, contrary to deficit reductions promised in April when loans from the International Monetary Fund were negotiated.

Blumenthal was sympathetic, acknowledging the problems that have encouraged some slackening of the deflationary program. Italy has been troubled by rising unemployment, particularly among young people, as industrial production has fallen under the program of restraints.

"Unfortunately, no country has discovered the magic formula that would permit us to solve our problems with the balance of payments and inflation without some temporary effect on economic development and employment," Blumenthal told reporters at the Chigi Palace.

"As we have learned from recent experiences, enormous government budget deficits do not provide an answer to stagflation. Such deficits, in the best of cases, only provide a postponement of fundamental adjustments and reforms."

Italy is hungry for foreign investments and Blumenthal said that the American government would be pleased to see American companies respond.

"The decision will depend in large measure on their judgment as to the success of Italy in stabilizing the economic situation and creating conditions for non-inflationary growth," he said.

Before coming here Sunday, Blumenthal had visited, among other nations, three members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Iran. This led to questions from reporters as to the prospects on oil prices, which have proven the single most destabilizing economic factor for nations such as Italy.

Blumenthal declined to speculate as to what the OPEC nations might do at their meeting next month, noting that the matter of pricing is entirely up to them. But he said he had spoken to the three governments concerning the impact of oil prices on economic stabilization efforts and the fragility of the recovery in some areas.

"No one gains in a situation in which inflation is rekindled in the consuming countries," he said, adding that he was encouraged by the comprehension of these economic realities by the three OPEC governments.

He gave the Italians an encouraging picture of the American economy, predicting 5 percent growth in real terms this year and reporting reductions in both inflation and unemployment.

"The strength and stability of the American economy seem assured," Blumenthal said. He said that he is also confident regarding the strength of the dollar, "which we want to maintain."

He affirmed the continuing commitment of the United States to help nations like Italy with grave stabilization problems. He noted the leadership which the United States has given in creating a supplementary financing facility at the IMF that will make available $10 billion to supplement dwindling IMF loan funds. About half the money is to come from OPEC nations, principally Saudi Arabia, and about half from industrialized nations. Congress will take up the American contribution early next year, he said.

Heavy security surrounded the secretary's visit. He traveled in an entourage of nine cars and six police motorcycles. When he made an afternoon visit at the apartment of Rinaldo Ossola, minister of foreign trade, near the Piazza di Spagna, he was preceded by a truckload of military police.

Opening lead — 3

South ruffed the opening lead, drew trumps and cashed dummy's top hearts.

When East discarded on the second heart, it was clear that the suit was not going to break favorably. South gave up a heart trick to West, but West was not foolish enough to continue with a fourth heart.

The slam then depended on the club finesse, and South was down when this lost.

GIVE UP EARLY

South can make his contract by giving up an early heart trick. After drawing trumps, South should lead a heart to dummy's king to make sure that both opponents can follow suit.

Declarer's next step is to give up a heart. This is the key play.

No matter what West returns, South can lead his third heart to dummy's ace and ruff a heart. This sets up dummy's last heart, and South can get to dummy with the ace of clubs to discard a club on the good heart.

This simple device of giving up an early heart raises the odds to 50 to 1 in favor of the slam. Why be satisfied with less?

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: S-5 H-10 D-AK Q J 9 7 4 C-Q 10 7 3. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one diamond. You are willing to sacrifice at five diamonds if the opponents get to game in a major suit, but there is no need to make a shutout bid. There may be a slam if partner has a club fit and some aces, but a shutout bid will kill such a slam.

Should daughter tell on sister?

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.
Copley News Service

Dear Doctor: My parents recently restricted my older sister because she was seeing a boy she was forbidden to see. Last night, after our parents went to bed, I saw my sister sneak out and see her boyfriend. I told my sister what I saw and she pleaded with me not to tell our parents. I promised I wouldn't but my parents are raising her, not me. What should I do? — Carol, Colorado Springs, Colo.

your parents, but inform your sister that if it happens again, that it will be your responsibility to inform your mother and dad.

Dear Doctor: I want to enter the Miss Teenage America Pageant so badly I can almost taste it. The problem is that my parents are so discouraging that it's hopeless. They say they can name a hundred other kids that have done more things than I will ever do.

The pageant is based more on special achievements than on beauty. I think I qualify and would make a good candidate but my parents say they wouldn't hear of it. They make me out to be a first-class failure when I want to be anything.

What should I do to convince them to let me just enter? — T.N., Seattle, Wash.

Dear T.N.: Talk to a coordinator of the Miss Teenage America Pageant and have them call your parents and explain the value of entering such an affair.

If this can't be done, talk to your school counselor or a friendly teacher and have that person talk to your parents.

You should be allowed to enter if you so desire. Show this answer to your parents. I hope it helps.

Dear Doctor: I don't have a problem; my dad does. His drinking is not only hurting himself, but also the family. My mom, sister, brother and I are kept crying because of his behavior. I said some things to him that I'm now sorry for. I didn't mean to hurt him because I really love him. Please tell me what I can do for him. I have to know. — Jeanne, Lodi, Calif.

Dear Jeanne: I was recently introduced to Alateen by a Columbus, Ohio, reader. Alateen is for the teen-ager who has an alcoholic parent.

If you don't have Alateen nearby, write to Alateen, P. O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York, N.Y., 10010. Their literature is professional and is geared to help you to understand dad's problems in addition to helping dad himself.
