Few brave bad weather to go to polls

By The Associated Press

Bad weather and apathy combined today throughout the heavily populated areas of the state to keep voter turnout to a minimum as Texans decided seven proposed constitutional amendments and local issues such as school and mayoral elections.

Houston, the largest city in the South, was choosing a new mayor but only small numbers of voters braved the morning rain.

In Dallas, where voters were deciding on $215 million bond proposal, rain also kept the turnout down.

Thunderstorms were reported in Colorado, Austin, Fort Bend and Wharton counties in Southeast Texas. Rains also hit most of North Central Texas. Flashflood watches were in effect for South Central portions of the state and a tornado warning was issued for Harris County near Houston.

Bad weather reports came from other sections of the state. In the Rio Grande Valley, election judge Lucille Kendrick of San Benito said about 12 people had voted by midmorning.

"Usually, in an election where we're voting people, we would have 200 by now," she said.

The Texas Election Bureau, which gathers unofficial returns for Texas newspapers and radio-TV stations, estimated a 20 per cent turnout.

However, the secretary of state's elections division thinks the turnout will be as low as 12 per cent, or about 700,000 voters.

The seven proposed amendments to the constitution make a total of 358 submitted since the state's policy document was adopted in 1876. A total of 221 changes have been made, so far, and 130 rejected.

Eight more proposed changes will be on the 1978 November ballot.

Here briefly are the seven proposed amendments:

—Proposition No. 1 would increase the size of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, which is about a year behind in considering appeals from district courts, from five to nine members. The enlarged court would be allowed to sit in panels of three to speed review of some cases. All capital punishment cases would still be considered by the full court.

Proponents include Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who supports all seven amendments; the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association, Texas Judicial Council, Texas Civil Liberties Union and the Texas District and County Attorneys Association.

Opponents, including former Chief Justice Robert W. Calvert of the Texas Supreme Court, say a system unifying civil and criminal courts, not separating them, would be better.

The second most talked-about amendment, No. 6, would let the legislature pass laws allowing state and national banks to use electronic devices in shopping centers and other remote locations.

Supporters, including the Texas Bankers Association, say it would give bank customers an optional and speedier method of handling their money.

Apathy abounds citywide

Midland voters stayed away in droves from polling places in today's state constitutional election.

"About all we've done is sit around and read the newspaper," J. H. Beatty, election judge at Fire Station No. 6, reported this morning. He said 25 to 30 voters had cast ballots there by 11 a.m. today. Polls will be open until 7 p.m.

Voters throughout the state are voting today on seven proposed state constitutional amendments.

Heaviest voting was at Bowie Elementary School, where about 85 persons had voted by 11 a.m.

At the Public Safety Building on East Texas Avenue, only 13 persons from four voting precincts had voted, and only 10 had voted at Greenwood, election officials reported this morning.

At the Midland County Exhibits Building, 17 had voted at 11 a.m. "I was just thinking about how much it's costing to run this election. Maybe the weather is going to blow them in," said Joanne Bowman, election judge.

"We have not been overwhelmed," Election Judge Al Homes said of the vote at the Westside Fire Station, where 16 persons had voted.

And at the Northside Fire Station, only 23 persons had voted.

Sixty-seven persons had voted by 11 a.m. at Fannin Elementary School, 37 at Midland High School and 39 at Lee High School.

County Clerk Rosenell Cherry said the election seemed to be going smoothly and that no problems had been reported to her.

Downcast gunman vents emotions

By JOSEPH BONNEY

NEW ORLEANS (AP).— A former Internal Revenue Service auditor accused of wounding 10 persons in a citywide shooting spree was said to be depressed by unemployment and marital problems.

Four of the wounded were in critical condition today and paralyzed, maybe permanently, from spinal wounds, doctors said.

Carlos Poree, 35, had been acting differently since last Dec. 17, when he was fired from his $19,332-a-year government job, said his mother-in-law, Dorothy Broussard. The IRS will not say why Poree was fired.

Three weeks ago Poree's wife, Diane, 34, left him.

Diane and her father, Alvin Broussard, 61, were the first victims Monday. Shot at Broussard's house in a quiet section of uptown New Orleans near Tulane University, both are partially paralyzed with wounds of the neck.

Police said that after Poree shot them, he drove three miles to midcity and gunned down eight apparent strangers.

Poree was booked with 10 counts of attempted murder, one count of resisting arrest, three counts of simple battery on police officers and one count of armed robbery — the alleged theft of a car at gunpoint.

Poree was hospitalized with serious eye injuries and several facial cuts suffered in a scuffle with police at the city jail.

Police Sgt. Tony Buonagura said Poree attacked an officer and that Poree's face hit the floor in the ensuing fight. Buonagura said the prisoner was not beaten.

Three tourists were wounded in a small French Quarter park after Poree allegedly stopped his car in the middle of Bourbon Street, walked into the park and fired his .38-caliber pistol.

In stable condition were Henry Luther, 67, Gadsden, Ala., and Richard Quarles, 26, Nashville, Tenn. Douglas Martin, 20, also of Nashville, was in good condition.

Police said half an hour later and more than a mile away, Poree commandeered a car. A few minutes later, three other men were wounded, two of them critically, in the office of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, a large stock brokerage firm in the business district.

Two men walking by outside were shot on the sidewalk.

Robert Barrell, 45, of Metairie, La., and George Held of New Orleans were listed in critical condition with severed spinal cords. Barrell was paralyzed from the chest down; Held from the neck down.

In stable condition were Wesley Russel, 30, Kenner, La., wounded in the right eye; Alben Carlson, 30, Bay St. Louis, Miss., wounded in the chest; and Hans Anderson of Norway, wounded in the neck.

"He didn't say a word. It was just bang, bang!" said Joyce Saylan, a secretary who was headed out to lunch with her young son when the gunman brushed past her on the way inside.

"The guy walked in the door, went down the hall and started shooting ... Everybody thought it was a joke with a cap pistol because it was so quick. Then everybody started screaming," she said.

Two plainclothes policemen driving nearby heard the shots, stopped their car, jumped out and ordered Poree to "Freeze!" The officers said Poree surrendered peacefully.

Shooting given to jury

GARDEN CITY — Facts in the Sunday shooting death of a Mexican prisoner by a retired Stanton deputy sheriff will be presented to a grand jury, Don Richard, assistant district attorney in the 118th Judicial District, said Monday.

Tiburcio Griego Santome of Juarez, Mexico, was shot to death Sunday night in the back seat of the squad car of Glasscock County Sheriff Royce "Booger" Pruitt, Richard said.

Richard said the shooting followed a knife attack by Santome on Pruitt and retired Stanton deputy G.B. Therwanger.

Richard said Therwanger was visiting with Pruitt when Pruitt was called to a disturbance at a festival in Saint Lawrence, about 15 miles south-west of Garden City.

Santome was arrested at approximately 7:30 p.m., Richard said.

"Apparently, from all of the witnesses, they were having quite a bit of trouble arresting him. They used a pat-down search. It was a thin, kitchen-type knife that would be hard to feel, and they just missed it in the search."

"He was kind of acting up, and they couldn't get him cuffed, so they just put him in the back seat. They thought he had quieted down," Richard said.

On the way to the jail, the man pulled the knife and slashed at Pruitt, according to Richard.

The sheriff reportedly was cut on the hand, and Therwanger's arm also was cut. Richard said Therwanger grabbed an automatic pistol from the front seat and fired four shots at the prisoner.

"The sheriff was trying to get his gun, but trying to drive and stop and protect himself before he or Therwanger were injured further was a little difficult," Richard said.

Santome was dead on arrival at a clinic in Big Spring.

"Now as it stands, we will not file charges but will present it to the grand jury. They will decide what charges, if any, will be filed," Richard said.

"Since there isn't one scheduled, we'll have to call a special one. It will take some time, but we'll do it as soon as possible," he said.

Richard said the Texas Rangers were called in on the case to add credibility to the findings.

"They're about as independent a group as you can get," he said.

Charitable Jaycee-ettes help to feed hungry artists

Coming up in Midland Thursday, Friday and Saturday is the Midland fifth annual Starving Artists' Sale.

The show, at the Dellwood Plaza mall, is to benefit the hungry-for-sales artists and the causes of the Jaycees' wives.

About 90 artists, sculptors and craftsmen from several states each will be paying the Jaycee-ettes $35 to display their wares, arts and crafts.

What the Jaycee-ettes rake in will be going to such causes as Teen Challenge, a drug-outreach program; the Permian Center for Mental Health-Mental Retardation; the Opportunity Center for the handicapped, and for a needy family "adopted" by the women's auxiliary.

"We're ready for a big sale this year," said Tedda McAnear, who's ramrodding the show.

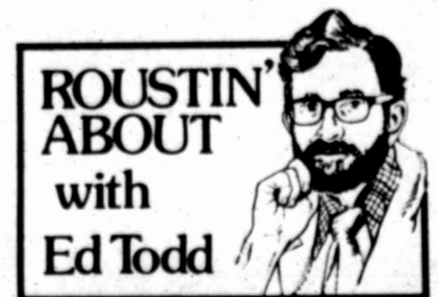

The sale will be from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

The Jaycee-ettes will be running a food booth and gift-wrapping shop during the sale.

There'll be some cold turkeys at the sale, too.

If it would do any good, Tillie Womble might put a classified ad in the paper. What she's missing probably has been thoroughly ground into the sand.

She, her son Chuck Womble, 18, and his girlfriend, Kristi Huffman, 16,

Police think heart attack caused crash

A 47-year-old Midland man was pronounced dead at Midland Memorial Hospital Monday night after his car crashed into a house at 2213 Princeton Ave.

Police said they believe a heart attack caused Frank E. Lasater of the 2600 block of W. Wadley Road to lose control of his car in the 1300 block of North Garfield Street about 7:30 p.m. Monday.

However, an official ruling on the cause of death is pending autopsy results, police said.

According to police, Lasater was northbound on Garfield Street when the vehicle jumped the curb, crossed an alley, then struck a guy wire and knocked it loose.

The car crossed a driveway at 2213 Princeton Ave., went through the house's playroom and storage room, then came to rest after knocking down a bathroom wall, police said.

No one in the house was injured in the incident, police said.

Student inspection found dam solid shortly before it collapsed

By JACK STILLMAN

TOCCOA, Ga. (AP) — Some college students inspected the Kelly Barnes dam two hours before it broke early Sunday and reported it appeared "as solid as a rock."

Tom Perdue told a news conference that David Fledderjohann and several other students inspected the dam because of the torrential rains...

The earthen dam burst about 1:30 a.m. Sunday, sending an avalanche of muddy water, boulders and trees to the lowlying campus area of Toccoa Falls Bible College.

According to Perdue, Fledderjohann, a volunteer fireman and student at the college, was responsible for checking the dam. He died when the dam burst while trying to warn residents in the trailer park of the possibility of danger. Perdue did not specify to whom Fledderjohann reported after the inspection. He said the men continued to watch the creek below Toccoa Falls after they returned to the campus area.

"Last year," Perdue said, "the college received $39,500 from the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration for repairs along the creek bank, some roads and some buildings because of flash flooding which occurred Memorial Day last year."

The FDAA did not include any money for the dam, because it had not been damaged. Part of the money was used to repair the approach road to the dam and F. R. Hanson, vice president of the college, made a visual inspection of the dam Nov. 2 to look at road repairs made as a result of that money.

Hanson and two employees of the highway department walked the road across the dam Nov. 3. Hanson inferred to me that visual inspections of the dam were made at least three times a year and more often when there are heavy rains.

Meanwhile at the disaster scene, unbroken 100-watt lightbulbs rested atop muck and debris only yards from crushed cars and overturned trailer-homes hit by the wall of water that smashed into the lower section of the college campus.

"Up that way there were four brick houses. I knew everybody who lived there ... Now most of them are gone," said Dr. Harold Windus, director of elementary education at the tiny school.

Everywhere was evidence of family life disrupted. Part of a child's tricycle and a pink and yellow baby book, its pages blank, were stuck in the mud.

The few houses that still stand are stained by a muddy waterline. Officials want to know whose responsibility it was to inspect the 37-year-old Kelly Barnes earthen dam, which apparently broke under the stress of an 80-acre lake swollen by heavy rains. Survivors today are digging out of the ruins of their homes and classrooms — and preparing to bury their friends and family members who perished in the flood waters Sunday.

Bill Anderson, a Bible college student from Glen Dale, Md., lost his wife, Karen, 29, and two of their five children — Joey and Becky — when their trailer was ripped apart by the roaring current. Services for them will be held here at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Services for six other victims are scheduled at the Toccoa Alliance Church at 2 p.m. Wednesday. Most of the victims will be buried in their hometowns around the country.

The search continues for the body of Paul Williams, 76, a college maintenance worker and the only person unaccounted for.

Man treated at hospital after alleged assault

A 21-year-old Lamesa man was treated at Midland Memorial Hospital and released Monday afternoon after he was reportedly assaulted at a bar in the 400 block of Lamesa Road about 5:30 p.m.

Sammy Castillo told police several men beat him and cut him once on the right side after he tried to break up an argument between a friend and one of the men.

Castillo told police he and some friends were playing pool in the bar when one of his friends and a man got into an argument.

After trying to intervene, Castillo told police, he left the bar, but the men chased him.

After the reported attack, police were told, Castillo managed to get back to the bar and call the police.

'Natural causes' ruling in death

FORT STOCKTON — Natural causes have been ruled by Fort Stockton Peace Justice Theile Sook in the death of well-known television weatherman Dave Castle Saturday night.

According to investigating Police Officer Sam Murry, cause of death was a "probable heart attack."

Employed in Odessa, Castle and his son had stopped in Fort Stockton at approximately 12:30 a.m. Saturday on their way to Marfa for the opening of the historic el Paisano Hotel, Murry said.

The son told police that when the wake-up call came that morning, he tried to wake his father, discovered Castle was dead and called the police department.

On their arrival, the police called Sook, Murry said.

Castle had been employed since Nov. 8, 1974, at KOSA-TV, channel 7, in Odessa.

Services are pending with Jack Rowe Funeral Home in League City.

Arrest made in armed robbery

Midland police arrested a woman Monday afternoon in the armed robbery of the Hernandez Food Store, 500 E. Louisiana Ave., about 3 p.m.

Detective I. Earl Luckey said a woman was arrested at a house within an hour after the robbery occurred. The woman was in the Midland City Jail this morning.

Juvenile officers, who apprehended a runaway youth at the same house earlier Monday, tipped off detectives after they received a description of the woman, Luckey said.

Bernandina Hernandez, an employee of the store, told police a woman walked into the store and was purchasing a pair of gloves.

As Hernandez rang the purchase on the cash register, police were told the woman opened her purse as if to get some money, but instead pulled a gun and demanded money.

After taking an undetermined amount of money, the woman left the scene in a car, police were told.

Jaycee-ettes to help feed hungry artists

Patricia Ann Menchaca of the 100 block of East Pine Street remained in serious condition early today at Midland Memorial Hospital, according to a hospital spokesman.

Police said the 17-year-old girl was injured at approximately 9 p.m. Sunday when she was struck by a car as she attempted to cross the street in the 1700 block of Lamesa Road.

Police said the driver of the car, Ronnie Earl Wilson, 19, of the 400 block of East Dornard Avenue, told them he did not see the girl before the car struck her.

Winter increases poison danger

By MARLEEN RAY

The danger of carbon monoxide poisoning increases as Midland residents turn on their heaters and close up their homes to fight off the winter chill.

Midland Fire Inspector Jerry Petree said he couldn't recall any deaths here caused by carbon monoxide poisoning, but some residents have called the fire department in the past complaining of waking up with headaches. Fortunately, the cause of the carbon monoxide was detected and stopped early enough to prevent any serious injury or death, he said.

At least 1,400 deaths are attributed to carbon monoxide poisoning in the United States each year. Last year Texas had 148 deaths. More than 10,000 persons nationwide each year are poisoned by carbon monoxide, the Texas Department of Health said. Those not killed may suffer temporary or permanent damage to the brain with serious disturbances of vision, hearing, speech and memory.

A colorless, odorless and tasteless gas, carbon monoxide is produced by any fire not burning properly because of a lack of fresh air and adequate ventilation, Petree said. Carbon monoxide is not to be confused with carbon dioxide, a heavy odorless gas exhaled by any living organism.

"The average person when exposed to carbon monoxide concentrations of more than 1.28 percent of the air becomes unconscious after two to three breaths," Petree said. Within one to three minutes, that person may be dead.

Though it is not the most toxic substance produced by fires, carbon monoxide is the number one cause of fire deaths, Petree said. The leading contributors to carbon monoxide poisoning are space heaters, range ovens, floor furnaces and automobiles, with other fuel-burning appliances following close behind. Electrical appliances do not contribute to this type of poisoning.

In order to prevent carbon monoxide poisoning, the state health department recommends each heating system be checked by a skilled maintenance person before it is turned on. Fresh air should be circulated constantly, pushing out stale air through the ventilators of the building.

Petree said combustible materials shouldn't cover or touch an open flame or mantle in a fuel-burning appliance. In addition, he warned that cars shouldn't be left running in closed garages because of the danger of carbon monoxide build-up. He said a state inspection, required by law, checks for leaks in a vehicle's exhaust system in order to prevent carbon monoxide poisoning while in a car.

Another potential cause of lethal carbon monoxide build-up is leaving the range on to heat up the house. Petree said this is not a wise method of keeping warm.

If residents find themselves yawning, feeling nauseated and dizzy, accompanied by headaches, a ringing in their ears or even abdominal pains, they may have symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning. They should get to fresh air immediately and lie down and stay warm. A physician should be called promptly, and oxygen or an oxygen-carbon dioxide mixture should be administered, the health department said.

'TV trial' defendant given life sentence

MIAMI (AP) — Ronny Zamora, who was defended in a murder trial on grounds that television violence drove him insane, stood silent before the TV cameras that recorded his sentencing to life in prison.

Judge Paul Baker brushed aside sentencing advice from famed psychiatrist Karl Menninger and others on Monday as he sentenced the 15-year-old to a minimum 25 years in jail.

Defense attorney Ellis Rubin, in his final plea for leniency for Zamora, waved psychiatric reports and even petitions from schoolmates in front of Baker.

Baker interrupted, saying: "I've even had a letter from Dr. Karl Menninger. But it is not their business. Unfortunately, it is mine."

Zamora's trial and sentencing were open to television and still camera coverage under a one-year experiment ordered by the Florida Supreme Court.

Before sentencing the teenager in the murder of his 83-year-old neighbor, Elinor Haggart, Baker offered Zamora a chance to make a statement to the court. But Zamora stood silent and the judge went ahead with sentencing.

Baker said Zamora should be placed in a "youthful offender facility" where he could receive psychiatric help. Rubin had pleaded that Zamora was "sick" and "suicidal" and should not go to an adult prison.

Watching impassively was Darrell Agrella, 15, who faces a separate trial on the same charge. Agrella's lawyer is challenging the grand jury selection system in the other case.

Zamora's mother sat nearby, wiping tears from her eyes.

During the trial Rubin asserted that the teenager lost his ability to judge right from wrong because he had become lost in a make-believe world kept alive by TV violence.

Rubin attempted to have the case thrown out Monday on several points.

Nixon lawyer renews argument over tapes

By RICHARD CARELLI

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public release of 30 White House tape recordings about the Watergate scandal would expose Richard M. Nixon to embarrassments "far more offensive" than the former president already has suffered, the Supreme Court was told today.

Nixon lawyer William H. Jeffress Jr. told the nation's highest court that the 22 hours of tapes played at the 1974 Watergate cover-up trial of Nixon's top advisers should not go public.

Jeffress said release of the tapes, "having served their purpose as evidence in that trial," would only serve to further embarrass Nixon.

"Tapes are susceptible to uses that are far more offensive" than trial transcripts, he said.

Transcripts of the tapes were widely published during the 1974 trial of former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and ex-White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

Jeffress said Nixon and others would suffer "mental anguish" if the tapes were released to "every disc jockey, every television entertainer... to be played relentlessly."

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington ruled in October 1976 that the tapes could be released for broadcast on television and radio and copied for sale as records and tape cassettes.

Arguing for those who want the tapes released, Washington attorney Edward Bennett Williams claimed, "I don't know of any common law right not to be embarrassed by one's incalculatory words."

Williams said Nixon's arguments could be reduced to those of "an alleged co-conspirator" fearing embarrassment.

Williams was in court representing Warner Communications, which wants to reproduce the tapes and market them for home sale.

New York lawyer Floyd Abrams represented the three commercial broadcast associations and a broadcast news directors association who also want the tapes released.

Abrams said he was arguing "the right of the public not present in the court to hear the tapes."

Park interview agreement told

The Washington Post

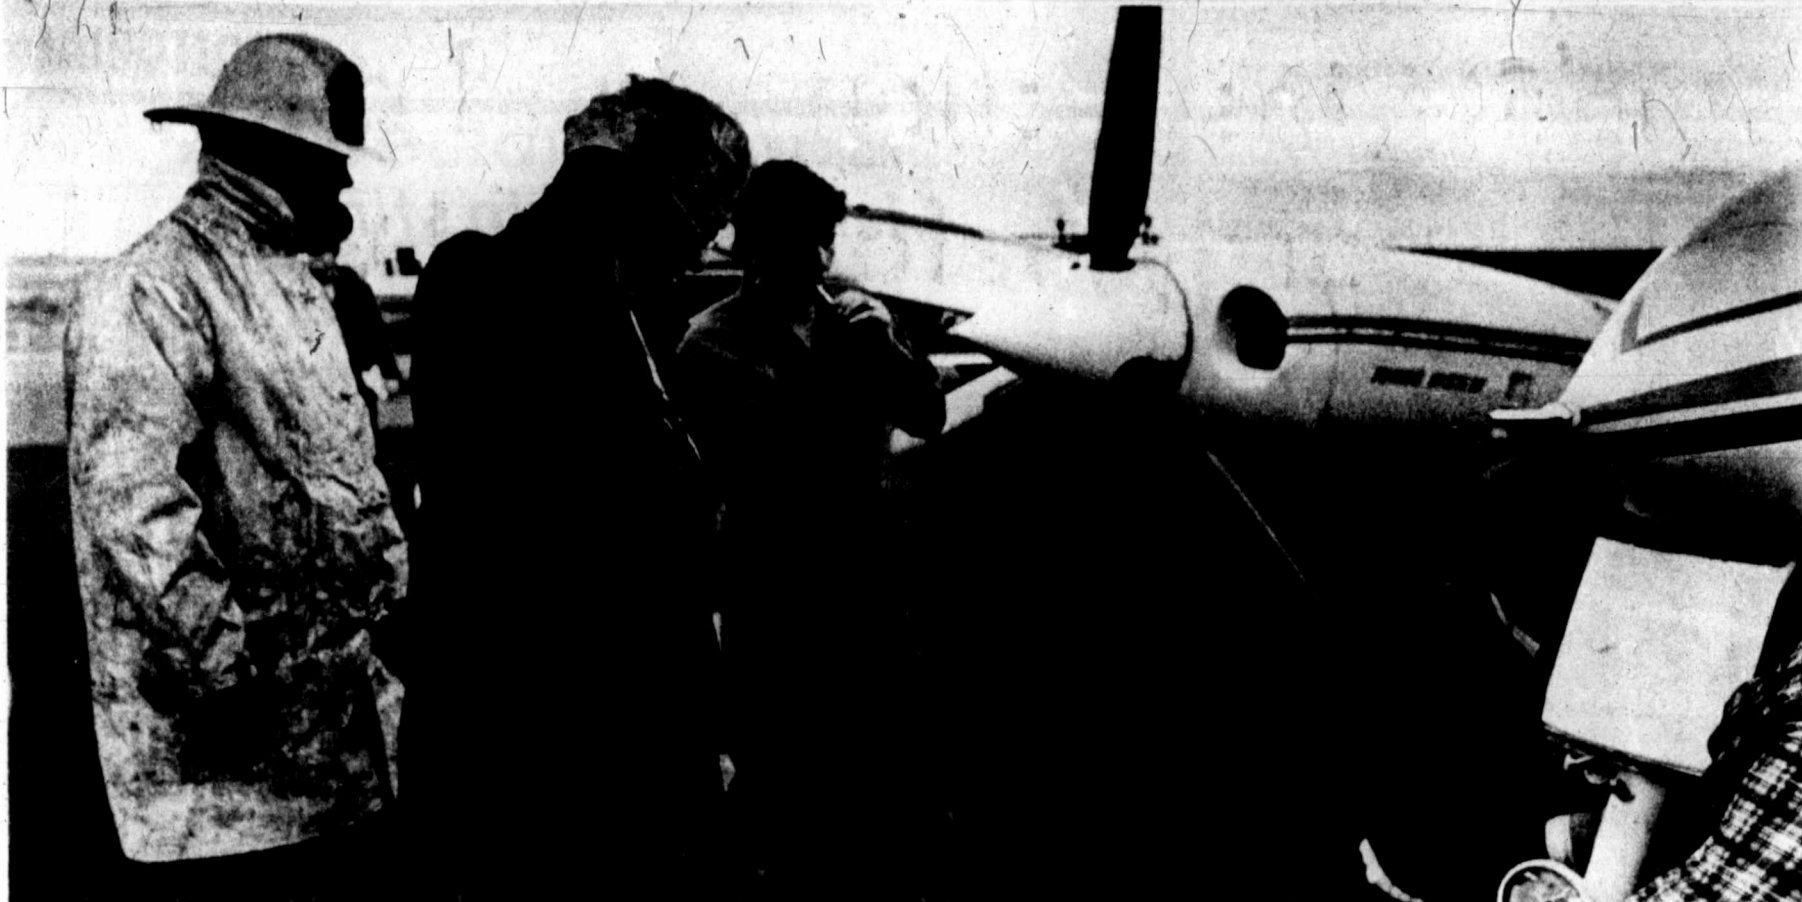

SEOUL — South Korea and the United States will announce agreement this week to have Tongsun Park interviewed in the U.S. embassy here, sources here said Monday.

However, the sources said an arrangement for a detailed interrogation of Park is not yet in sight and may take a long time to negotiate even if he is willing to submit to questioning.

A date for Park's preliminary interview was not disclosed, but Seoul newspapers, quoting government sources, said it may be this week or next.

The preliminary interview was agreed on after a week of negotiations here between U.S. Ambassador Richard Sneider and South Korean Foreign Minister Park Tong Jin.

Aides were putting the finishing touches on the agreement Monday.

Pilot manages to land safely

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

In spite of landing gear which did not come down properly, a small twin-engine airplane managed to land without incident Monday afternoon at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

The pilot, 61-year-old Richard M. Johnson of San Clemente, Calif., set the plane down in a 10-knot, west-southwesterly wind about 2:40 p.m.

The pilot burned fuel — to reduce the chance of explosion during the emergency landing — by circling the airport about three hours.

An air traffic controller said he first alerted emergency vehicles about 11:40 a.m. when he learned of the crippled Cessna 320.

Three fire engines and an ambulance went to runway 220, which is parallel to U.S. Highway 80, as the aircraft began to make its final approach. Curious onlookers, who somehow had heard about the damaged airplane, lined their cars along U.S. Highway 80 to watch the airplane land.

While landing, Johnson attempted to keep the airplane's nose up as long as possible before the nose gear touched down.

Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation at air terminal, said it looked like the landing gear locked into place when the nose touched down.

Johnson appeared calm as he exited the airplane, and he apologized to firemen, mechanics and Banks for "causing them so much trouble."

"I'm sorry to cause you guys this trouble and to tie up your runway this way," Johnson told Browning.

When asked about his thoughts during the three-hour ordeal, Johnson replied, "My God, I wonder how much it's going to cost to fix this thing."

"I felt like I was flying all over creation up there," Johnson added.

Johnson, who said he had 17 to 18 years of flying experience, added that he never had experienced landing gear trouble.

However, he did say he once "lost" an engine in California.

Johnson said he left San Clemente Sunday night and spent the night and refueled in Roswell, N.M. He was flying to Midland, Dallas and Little Rock, Ark., on a business trip.

"When I call a conference, nobody comes."

Many out-of-town conferences consist of groups of people who keep minutes and waste days. My time's too valuable. That's why I hold a lot of my meetings by phone — on Long Distance conference calls.

I just dial "0" and ask for a conference operator who can connect me with up to 58 other telephone numbers. Coast to coast. Even overseas. The call is put through as soon as possible, or I can arrange to have a conference call placed at a specified time. And if I want to communicate important announcements, instructions or one of my famous pep talks to our other offices — without back talk — I can ask to transmit only. My telephone becomes a microphone.

Conference calling isn't expensive, either. For example, my 15-minute teleconference with the managers in St. Louis, Los Angeles and New York this afternoon cost about $30, plus tax. A sound investment, considering all four of us discussed my proposal at the same time. I didn't have to make additional calls to repeat information, and none of us had to spend our valuable time traveling. But most important, we got the job done. Today.

So if out-of-town conferences are your problem, remember the system is the solution. And a Long Distance conference call is part of the system you can use to keep people informed, and keep them working... simultaneously.

Bentsen opposes tax

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., has spoken out loud and clear against the oil and gas "use" tax part of the President's national energy program, which he said really misses the mark.
 He said also that the people who would pay for this mistake, far more than anyone else, are consumers in Texas.
 The senator is right as can be, and it is hoped that he will do all within his power to defeat this and other objectional sections of the measure.
 The Texas Energy Advisory Council has said that the oil and gas "use" tax would add $288 a year to the electric bill of every family in the Lone Star State. Texas families, it is said, would pay 37 per cent of the total tax collected nationwide.
 This is but another example of the unreasonable, unwarranted, unfair aspects of the President's energy package.
 Sen. Bentsen said he determined some months ago to stand in all-out opposition to the "use" tax.
 "In the first place," he said, "it discriminates against Texas consumers."
 "And in the second place, both the General Accounting Office and the Congressional Budget Office have examined the 'use' tax and decided it won't shorten the time necessary (for electric power companies) to convert to coal."

 "In spite of this the House of Representatives approved the tax, after providing for an exemption for people who live in some areas of the Northeast. They granted no exemption to those millions of Texans who depend on natural gas for their electricity."
 The senator, during September, persuaded the Senate Finance Committee to kill the "use" tax and, even though the full Senate later revived a substantially watered down version of the tax, "this still leaves Texas consumers in much better shape. Instead of $288 a year the Senate bill by rough estimate, for example, would cost a Houston family $17 to $20 a year by 1990."
 But the big catch to this is that a House-Senate conference committee now is meeting on the subject, and who knows what will happen.
 Bentsen said he will be fighting in the conference to eliminate the tax or, failing that, to see that the Senate version prevails. More power to him.

Welcome, Major Dees!

A most cordial, sincere, typically West Texas "WELCOME TO MIDLAND" is directed to Maj. Ira William Dees, the new commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety's Region 4, headquartered here. The welcome also includes Mrs. Dees and other members of their family.
 Major Dees, who has served as a highway patrol captain in the Corpus Christi District the last six years, succeeds Maj. E. K. Browning Jr., retired, as commander of the Midland District, which includes 49 West Texas counties.
 The new commander joined the Department of Public Safety in 1957 and since that time has held assignments at San Antonio, El Paso, Beaumont and Corpus Christi. He is a native of Alvarado and was reared at Kyle.
 Midland and Midlanders are delighted to have Major Dees and his family as residents of the Tall City, and they are invited to join right in as full-fledged residents of Midland.

Midland has been blessed with top-flight men as commanders of the regional headquarters of DPS since the office was located here several years ago now.
 The first two commanders of the Midland headquarters now head up the State DPS, Col. Wilson E. "Pat" Speir, director, and Lt. Col. Leo Gossett, assistant director. Then, of course, Major Browning took over and did an outstanding job during his years of service.
 They have been good citizens of the community, just as are other DPS personnel stationed here, and we are sure that the new commander will be no exception in this regard, as he becomes acquainted with the city and its residents.

NICK THIMMESCH Chairman Peter Wallace Rodino's indiscretion cited

WASHINGTON — Peter Wallace Rodino, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, caused a ruckus here by invoking Watergate, that sour chapter in the American experience, to attack the Republican candidate for governor of the glorious Commonwealth of Virginia.
 Now Virginia is a law-and-order state, proud of its political and philosophical heritage which dates to the founders of this republic. And Rodino was a demi-hero during Watergate when he headed the investigation to determine whether President Richard Milhous Nixon, now retired, should be impeached.
 Rodino, sitting in a studio back-dropped by lawbooks and other symbols of what is right and just, spoke on behalf of the Democratic candidate by proclaiming:
 "As chairman of the committee that conducted the impeachment inquiry, I learned, with you, about Watergate and about the terrible abuses by people who tried to undermine our system of free elections.
 "This year many of these same practices have been used in the Virginia campaign for governor. I believe it is time to leave Watergate and all that it means behind us, and for all citizens to insist that all campaigns are conducted in the sunshine. That's why I'm supporting Henry Howell for governor."
 The Rodino effort, or stunt, instantly angered Republicans and caused even a few droll sorts to wonder if the chairman wasn't spending his virtue foolishly.

Capitol Building and operated on public funds, should be used for purposes which ultimately are political.
 When Virginia Republican Rep. Caldwell Butler, a committee colleague of Rodino, told his chairman that Dalton had disavowed the independent mailing, Rodino asked that the televised commercial be stopped. But it was continued on several radio stations, thus causing more gnashing of teeth.
 Smarting from charges that he had smeared Dalton, Rodino explained to me: "Because of my experience during the Watergate period, I feel a special responsibility to work against practices which look like Watergate. I'll campaign against such abuses anywhere — in Virginia, Montana, anywhere."
 Rodino says Virginia Democratic Rep. Herb Harris persuaded him to make the commercial so that it could be telecast into the liberal precincts near the D.C.-Virginia line. Rodino insists that he paid the $60 recording fee out of his own pocket, and did not deceive the House Recording Studios' managers when he got their approval for the taping.
 For some reason, the Howell camp imported an array of big names to speak for their candidate of the "common man." The "outsiders" squad was led by President Carter and followed by Vice President Mondale (obedient as all Veeps are), White House heavies, Hamilton Jordan and Robert Lipshutz and

Illegal tactics used in manhunt

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN
 WASHINGTON — The FBI, which used electronic skulduggery in an effort to discredit Martin Luther King Jr., tried to employ similar illegal tactics to catch his murderer.
 Long-buried FBI documents reveal that then-director J. Edgar Hoover personally approved a break-in and illegal electronic bugging aimed at innocent relatives of James Earl Ray, who was later convicted of killing King.
 For years, Hoover had conducted a vicious smear campaign against King. The FBI peddled anti-King stories to the press and had sent doctored tapes concerning King's personal life to his wife. When King was slain in 1968, whispers about possible FBI involvement put Hoover under great pressure to find the assassin.
 While FBI agents were hot on Ray's trail, a May 13, 1968 memo, prepared for top Hoover aide J.P. Mohr, outlined elaborate illegal plans to catch the murderer.
 As part of the overall investigation, code-named MURKIN — an acronym for murder and King — a memo was written which declared: "consideration is given to microphone installations on certain properties of Albert and Carol Pepper," the brother-in-law and sister of James Earl Ray.
 "The proposal," cautioned the memo, "raises a question concerning the legality of any action taken against the subject of this case on the basis of information obtained from the microphones." If Ray called the Peppers and the bugged conversations were used to arrest him, the memo said, Ray "then could claim that the surveillance violated his right of privacy." This could prejudice the court case against him.

 But if certain precautions were taken, the memo continued, "the worst that could happen" is that the arrest would be declared illegal. Using tortured logic, the document insisted that Ray could still be convicted despite the FBI lawbreaking.
 The FBI plotters bluntly admitted that the whole scheme was unconstitutional and a "technical violation" of the law. "Be aware," the memo warned, "that since they have at least a theoretical cause of action for damages against those who installed the (bugging) devices by trespass." "Trespass" is FBI lingo for a break-in.
 If the Peppers sued the FBI and won, the memo insisted, the taxpayers would bail them out. "The government of the United States should surely be willing to pick up the tab for any judgment against those who installed the microphones," the memo concluded. At the bottom, Hoover scrawled "OK," and added his characteristic "H." Six other FBI officials also initialed their approval.
 We have been unable to determine whether the FBI actually bugged or burglarized the Peppers' home. Indeed, assassinations expert Harold Weisberg has developed evidence indicating the Justice Department vetoed the plan. But inside sources insist the FBI did use dubious and possible illegal means to capture Ray, who later pleaded guilty to murdering King and was sentenced to 99 years in prison.

INSIDE REPORT: Israel's Begin stirs 'mood of excitement'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

JERUSALEM — Only a glimmer of fundamental changes in Israeli psychology wrought by Prime Minister Menachem Begin is visible today, but the boldness of that change shows that, if his health holds up, Israel will be far more formidable on the world stage than ever before.
 Following 30 years of rule by the Labor coalition, flabby and scandal-ridden when it lost the election last May, Begin shows none of the self-conscious reserve of a Levi Eshkol or a Yitzhak Rabin, two of Labor's prime ministers. Israel's new mood, a flattering and revealing reflection of Begin himself, is one of uninhibited militancy about Israel's place in the sun.
 For the first time since Israel conquered East Jerusalem from Jordan, an American official was snubbed by Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek, and the snub made headlines. The issue was Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal's routine request to Kollek for an "official" tour of West Jerusalem, but not East Jerusalem. The U.S. does not recognize Israeli sovereignty over former Jordanian territories.
 Although every U.S. official has handled this political problem the same way, Kollek refused to play host for Blumenthal. Kollek claimed he needed no U.S. approval for the unification of Jerusalem — "the city was already unified, by King David."

 The rebuke was symbolic of Begin's militant, didactic politics of psychology. In Washington last summer to meet President Carter, Begin was briefed by aides on questions he would be asked on "Meet the Press." He answered the first rehearsal question with an evocative recital of the fall of the second temple in Tisha Bav, the ninth month in the Hebrew calendar, in 70 A.D. He told his surprised briefers: whatever the first question I am asked, this will be my answer.
 Begin often talks about "mamlachti" — a word embodying liberty, sovereignty and dignity. A teacher as well as philosopher and disciplined politician, Begin above all is a true believer in the mystical link that connects modern Israel with the Kingdom of David and, later, the cataclysm of Bar-Kochba, the doomed Jewish revolt against Rome in 130 A.D. which ended in slaughter of the Jewish remnant.

"The world does not pity the slaughtered," Begin wrote in "The Revolt," his brilliant, chilling description of his terror campaign against British control of Palestine, "it only respects those who fight."

He has created a mood of excitement and purpose that revolves around himself and has infected many of his people (but dismayed and frightened some). He commands the strongest Knesset majority ever, outfoxing the new Democratic Movement for Change (DMC), headed by dovish Yigael Yadin, which joined his Likud coalition two weeks ago on humbling terms. ("If the Americans think they are getting a vice president in Yadin," one Beginite told us, "they don't know Begin.")

In sharp contrast to previous governments, Begin totally dominates the issues he believes important: defense, foreign policy and, most important of all, relations with the U.S. Elsewhere, he dislikes interfering with his generally undistinguished ministers, although, of course, such major (and politically risky) decisions as devaluation of the pound and the cut in consumer subsidies were made in the prime minister's office.

The change in the Knesset is equally dramatic. Begin insists on attending all sessions of the parliament — shunned by his predecessors as time-consuming and boring. Naturally, his ministers do the same. So far, he has left the civil service virtually untouched, despite fears of wholesale housecleaning.

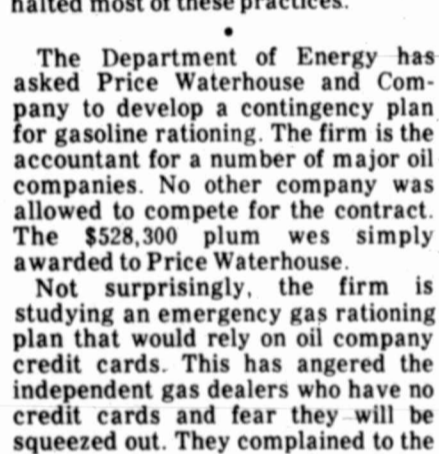

Likewise, factional politics and playing favorites seem beneath Begin. When one very important Israeli ambassador started cutting corners around foreign minister Moshe Dayan, for private communication with Begin, Dayan "with the express knowledge of the prime minister" ordered him to stop.

One Begin problem dwarfs all others: the U.S. connection. Significantly, Moshe Arens, a Begin ally and fourth-ranking member of Begin's Herut Party, warned in the Jerusalem Post 10 days ago that Israel "is just at the start of a long dispute (with U.S.), a contest for public opinion... We must decide on what issues we can but the impression of flexibility and on what others we must draw the red line." That exactly reflects Begin's political strategy in his battle for the U.S. Congress.

In "The Revolt" Begin extolls "the fighting Jew... a specimen completely unknown to the world for over 1800 years." He wants American Jews to become "fighting Jews" for Israel in the political battle ahead. If Begin's charismatic leadership here is an indicator, Mr. Carter will need every weapon and every strategem he can lay his overburdened hands on to prevail.

The Country Parson

by Frank Clark
 "It's easier to get what you want than to enjoy it after you have it."

It's cynical, perhaps, to realize that if Democrats can run for years against the depression, that Republicans can charge that all wars were started by Democrats, and that athlete's foot in Thief River Falls, Minn., was caused by L.B.J.'s Vietnamese war. We must be prepared to see and hear Watergate invoked as a bloody shirt for decades to come.

Mislead declarer to defeat contract

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When you play a hand, you don't know where all of the missing high cards are. Always remember that your opponents suffer under the same handicap. You can win many an "impossible" trick if you paint a false picture for an opponent to stare at.

North dealer North-South vulnerable

NORTH: 10 9 6, 9 6, A K Q J 8, K 6 4. WEST: K 5 2, Q J 10 4, 7 6 4, A Q 2. EAST: 7 4, 8 7 5 2, 9 5 2, J 9 8 3. SOUTH: A Q J 8 3, A K 3, 10 3, 10 7 5.

North 1 Pass, East 2 Pass, South 3 Pass, West 4 All Pass.

Opening lead - ♠ Q

Put yourself in the West seat to defend against four spades. South wins the first trick with the ace of hearts, but East's deuce tells you that he does not have the king.

South next leads a diamond to dummy and returns the ten of spades for a finesse. You win with the king of spades and must think of something new. What is your next play?

You need three club tricks to defeat the contract, but you can't possibly get them. That is, you can't win three club tricks if declarer knows what you know.

TRADE ON IGNORANCE

South doesn't know who has the ace of clubs. If you switch to the queen of clubs, South will assume that the lead is from Q-J, in which case he should duck the first trick.

Your next step is to lead your low club. South will probably assume you are now leading low from J-x-x. He can make sure of a club trick, in that case, by playing low again.

This allows East to win the second club trick with the jack. He returns a club to your ace, and you enjoy the sight of declarer's face as you defeat the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player passes. You hold: SK52; HQJ104; D784; CAQ2. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one heart. The hand is a shade too light for a jump to 2NT. Bid your suit and make a further response at your next turn to show your strength.

Plan to aid steel industry considered

By ART PINE The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration is considering a new plan to aid the American steel industry that would automatically slap stiff tariffs, or extra duties, on imported steel that is sold here below a specific "minimum" price.

The proposal is the centerpiece of a broader package to help domestic steel-makers being prepared by a special administration task force headed by Anthony M. Solomon, the undersecretary of the Treasury for monetary affairs.

The group met Monday with key administration economic officials and apparently received broad support for the plan. A final decision on the Solomon recommendation is expected within two or three weeks.

Adoption of the new policy almost certainly would spark protests from abroad. U.S. sources estimated the plan would trim Japan's steel exports here by as much as one-half, and could wipe out European sales here entirely.

The effect of the new Carter plan would be to eliminate present delays in imposition of tariffs for "dumping" — the selling of imports here at a price below their cost of production and transportation.

It has been this long period of delays — often running seven months to a year — that has made industry wary of anti-dumping procedures in the past and has sent steel-makers clamoring for import quotas. Carter promised the steel producers last month he would speed up the whole process.

Under present procedures the government responds to dumping complaints from a domestic industry by conducting a lengthy investigation of whether overseas producers are violating the anti-dumping laws. The process usually takes from 7 to 10 months.

The case then goes to the U.S. International Trade Commission, which then must decide whether the domestic industry has been injured by the dumping — a three-month procedure. If injury is found, tariffs are imposed.

The Solomon plan would hasten the entire process by computing a so-called "reference" price for imported steel products, and then in effect assessing duties immediately on any product found selling here below that price.

The reference price would be set by taking the production and transportation costs of the most efficient producer in each bloc of exporting nations and treating it as a minimum price for all products in that line.

Soviets cap anniversary with military showing

By DAN FISHER The Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union capped its 60th birthday celebration here Monday with its biggest show of military strength in three years and with a lavish tribute to its president, Leonid Brezhnev.

Both the tribute and the military display came during a three-hour parade through Red Square commemorating the day in 1917 when Vladimir I. Lenin's Bolshevik Party toppled the provisional government that had taken power after the overthrow of the czar.

The display of military equipment was more than twice as large as either the 1976 or 1975 showings, and it included for the first time the Soviet Union's new main battle tank, the T-72. Also introduced was a new anti-tank missile known in American military circles as the Fagot and two new self-propelled artillery pieces.

Not since 1974 had the Soviet Union displayed tracked vehicles at the Revolution Day parade.

"That was the greatest display of Soviet military strength I've seen since Aug. 21, 1968," said one Western diplomat who had been in Prague on that fateful morning when the Kremlin ordered the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

For all the military hardware on hand, however, the Soviet leadership made sure this was no cold war parade.

Defense minister Dmitry Ustinov struck the carefully-balanced tone of the festivities in a brief speech delivered from the special viewing stand for Politburo members on Lenin's Tomb. While "considerable progress has been made in easing international tension, strengthening peace and the security of peoples," he said, "the Soviet Union's defense potential is maintained at such a level so as to discourage anyone who may risk disturbing our peaceful life."

There were other signs of détente, as well. There were no intercontinental ballistic missiles on display, for example, which were last shown in 1974.

The 60th Anniversary parade provided a sharp contrast with the Golden Jubilee in 1967. That year, the Soviet Union boasted five new nuclear missile systems at the Revolution Day parade, and Ustinov's predecessor, the late Andre A. Grechko, blasted the United States as the "main bulwark" of imperialism and the aggressor in "the criminal war" in Vietnam.

Ustinov also keynoted the honoring of Brezhnev, calling him the "true continuer of Lenin's cause." At one point, marchers wheeled a 25-foot-high portrait of a smiling, waving Brezhnev in front of Lenin's Tomb. Suddenly bulbs around the perimeter lit up and thousands standing in formation on the cobblestones shouted in tribute. Simultaneously, others in front of the giant gum department store across the square let loose 80 clusters of balloons as a large marching band struck up.

The only pictures larger than Brezhnev's were two of Lenin. One, standing some five stories high, was hung from Gum. The other was paraded through the square on its own lighted billboard. Lenin is revered officially here in an almost god-like fashion as the founder of the modern Soviet state.

Brezhnev, who watched the entire parade from the special Politburo viewing stand, is probably used to the lavish tribute by now. There was a special stamp in his likeness issued last week — the first time something like that has happened since Stalin turned 70. And he has generally finished a strong second to the revolution during a week's worth of 60th Anniversary celebrations.

For all the adulation of Brezhnev, however, the military display still captured the spotlight here Monday. Including a march-past by several thousand goose-stepping soldiers, sailors and marines, that part of the parade lasted for only about 35 minutes. It took 2 1/2 hours more for all the workers and students — who had begun assembling on Moscow's streets before dawn — to march through the square.

Of the 35-minute military segment, the equipment took only nine dramatic minutes to thunder through the square. After the last group of military men had marched past Lenin's Tomb, the band suddenly stopped playing and withdrew toward Gum.

Travel big business for 12 area counties

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The U.S. Travel Data Center has released figures on the impact travelers had on the economies of Texas counties during 1976.

The impact is broken down by categories. "Travel expenditures" is calculated from money spent by in-state and out-of-state businessmen and tourists on local travel industries including motels and hotels, gas stations, entertainment and state and national parks and historic sites.

"Generated payroll and employment" reflects travel industry-generated jobs in the local economy.

The data also contains amounts of state tax receipts collected on the local level through local-option motel and hotel taxes, a portion of which is returned to the community (listed as local tax receipts) and gasoline tax from travel dollars.

Here is the data for major travel counties in the Midland area.

Partisan funding feud waged

By CHARLES R. BABCOCK The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A partisan feud is developing in the Senate over a Republican campaign committee's intention to pay for a wide range of members' "non-political" office expenses.

The Federal Election Commission, the Senate ethics committee and Common Cause, the so-called citizens' lobby, all are involved in the debate over the proposal which one detractor claimed could "create a massive institutionalized slush fund."

At issue is the National Republican Senatorial Committee's plan to pay for office expenses ranging from constituent lunches to mailing lists to the salaries of staff and speechwriters.

In late September, the committee asked the FEC for an advisory opinion that the program would comply with federal campaign spending regulations.

Steve Saunders, a spokesman for the committee, said Monday the request was necessary because of ambiguities in new Senate rules on such expenditures.

The GOP committee has been paying for its senators' newsletters and television shows back home for years, Saunders said. But a package of reforms passed by the Senate earlier this year seemed to ban this aid, he added.

The same package prohibited the use of personal office accounts after Jan. 1 unless they were funded by campaign money that is subject to FEC requirements on disclosure and size of donation.

The Republican committee has thus asked the Ethics Committee to reconsider its rulings.

"It's the old story of the left hand and the right hand," Saunders said. "The FEC says one thing, the new Senate rules something else."

Pair promotes student exchange program

Wilburn and Jann Buttery are looking for families who enjoy teenagers and for students who want an educational travel experience.

Mr. and Mrs. Buttery, 3216 Frontier Dr., are area representatives of Youth For Understanding, a non-profit international student exchange program that began in Michigan in 1951 and has participants in 24 countries.

"We are always looking for families to host the foreign students who live in West Texas," Mrs. Buttery said.

Six foreign students from Denmark, Switzerland, Finland and France live in the Midland area.

In Midland are Torben Qvist of Denmark, living with the Delbert Dicksons and attending Lee High School; Francoise Meny of France, living with the Don Hellinghausens and attending Lee; and Mare Ojala of Finland, living with the Richard Westlakes and attending Midland High School.

In January two students from South America will arrive in West Texas. A home is needed for one of them, according to Mrs. Buttery.

"About this time we are beginning to look for homes for students who will arrive in August, 1978, for the school year," Buttery said.

"A second part of our responsibility is 'spreading the word' about Youth For Understanding to American students and their families so they can take advantage of this fantastic experience," Buttery said.

American students who are interested in participating may call the Butterys for information and applications. There is a two-month summer program as well as a year program. The summer program costs $1,180, including transportation, preorientation and administrative costs. Local partial scholarships are available from service organizations, businesses and interested individuals to help defray costs.

Anyone interested in serving as a host family may call 694-4206 for additional information.

Young Europe-bound

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Nearing the 100,000-mile mark as a diplomat, Andrew Young is off to Rome and Stockholm this weekend for his seventh foreign trip in nine months as the chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations.

But unless a new emergency mission to Africa is required, the peripatetic American envoy may be ready after his return to put away his passport for a while, aides say.

Young next week is making a twice-postponed visit to

Treasurer coming to Odessa

ODESSA — State Treasurer Warren G. Harding will be in Odessa Wednesday for a 10:30 a.m. press conference and a 10:45 a.m. public reception in the Inn of the Golden West.

Harding, former Dallas County treasurer, was appointed state treasurer by Gov. Dolph Briscoe after the death of then Treasurer Jesse James Sept. 29.

Harding had been Dallas County treasurer since 1951.

Sweden, whose people he described last May as "terrible racists."

That remark, made during one of his impromptu airborne news conferences, caused a brief international flap and a standing invitation for him to get acquainted with the Swedes at home.

The visit was planned for July, then postponed when Young learned most Swedes would be on vacation. It was delayed again last month by the Security Council debate on South Africa.

Young will fly first to Rome, where he will visit agencies affiliated with the United Nations and speak Monday at a conference of the U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization. He goes to Stockholm next Wednesday and for three days will meet with government officials and private citizens.

By the time he returns to New York on Nov. 19, he will have logged 96,000 miles on trips to 32 nations on four continents.

The U.S. Mission at the United Nations does not keep comparative records. But longtime observers agree Young already has traveled far more than his 14 predecessors.

"The job was not considered quite so important before," was the explanation by one of Young's aides.

That added importance is due chiefly to one thing: President Carter has given Young the task of helping improve relations between the United States and the black governments of Africa. That has sent him to Africa three times since February, visiting 13 countries and traveling 63,000 miles.

Young helped British Foreign Minister David Owen put the British-American plan for transition to black majority rule in Rhodesia before the white and black Africans involved. That peace effort seems to be faltering now, raising the possibility of an emergency rescue mission by the same diplomatic team.

Carter also dispatched Young to the Caribbean region on a 10-nation tour in August.

The U.N. ambassador has been just as mobile at home, criss-crossing the United States for speeches, meetings, dinners and other events.

Plan to change beef law may require months

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new plan by the National Cattlemen's Association to change the law so it will be easier to gain approval for a national beef promotion program may take many months to carry out.

Even if the association succeeds in getting Congress to change the law, the normal rule-making process by the Agriculture Department would require several months before a new vote could be taken.

The maneuvering involves the Beef Research and Information Act, which was put into effect in May 1976. It provides that, if approved by two-thirds of the cattle producers who vote in a referendum, a system of check-offs can be put into effect to pay for projects aimed at promoting beef.

In a nationwide referendum conducted by the department last June 6-17, 231,027 votes were cast. Of those, 130,386 or 56.4 percent were in favor of the program and 100,641 or 43.6 percent were against.

The association's board of directors at a recent meeting in Denver decided that an attempt will be made through new legislation to change the 1976 law so a program can be put into effect if approved by a simple majority — more than 50 percent — of those voting in a new referendum.

But the press of congressional business virtually rules out action on changing the law this year. Thus, even if an amendment is successful by next spring, it could be late in 1978 or possibly 1979 before another program is set up by the Agriculture Department a vote taken on whether to carry it out.

As presented last summer, the plan would have raised an estimated $30 million to $40 million a year from assessments of up to three-tenths of 1 percent of the value of all cattle sold.

The check-offs or assessments would have been mandatory, but producers who did not want to participate would have been able to get refunds. The money raised would have paid for research and promotion projects aimed at increasing beef consumption.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland was cool to the idea, particularly spending money on consumer advertising. He is not expected to support an effort to change the law to make it easier to approve a check-off program.

Suit claims migrant transport dangerous

CHICAGO (AP) — A classaction suit filed in federal court charges that thousands of migrant workers are shipped around the country under conditions that are dangerous and unfit even for cattle.

Kristine Poplawski, an attorney for the Illinois Migrant Legal Assistance Project which filed the suit last week, said Monday it is the first of its kind and ultimately could have an impact on hundreds of thousands of migrant workers nationwide.

The action asks for about $100,000 in total damages.

The suit said that every spring, migrant workers are hauled from Texas and Mexico on flatbed trucks to fields as far away as Washington State. During the picking season, it said, migrant workers are often shipped far distances every day from their camp to the fields.

Filed on behalf of five farm workers, the suit names among its defendants the Interstate Commerce Commission, the U.S. Department of Labor, the U.S. Department of Transportation and Stokely Van Camp Inc.

It accuses the government agencies of failing to carry out their duties with respect to migrant farmworkers in violation of federal laws.

It accuses Stokely Van Camp and its recruiters of violating farm workers' rights under employment and safety laws.

Officials from the federal agencies or from Stokely were not available for comment.

The suit was filed on behalf of asparagus pickers who were recruited in Texas and Mexico. Some of them were transported in fruit and vegetable trucks to Hoopston, Ill., and others provided their own transportation.

Administration awkwardly postpones Carter trip

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Administration officials asked Monday for "understanding" abroad as they went through the awkward business of formally announcing the postponement of President Carter's trip to four continents starting Nov. 22.

There is no discreet way to put off a 25,000-mile whirlwind trip to 5 nations in 12 days that disrupts the personal schedules of heads of governments and elaborate national ceremonial and security arrangements. No American government ever has faced that embarrassing task before.

The official postponement was handled in as low a key as possible, not by the White House, which announced the whirlwind trip on Sept.

23, but in a statement to the press issued by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

Vance said in the statement that over the weekend chiefs of governments were notified that Carter "would postpone his trip because of the need to remain in Washington during congressional consideration of the administration's energy program."

The trip, originally planned between Nov. 22 and Dec. 2, but with an extra day intended to be added, is still desired by the President at "a mutually convenient date...in the near future," foreign governments were told.

Carter, Vance said, explained to the foreign leaders that "his personal involvement was vital" for passage of the administration's energy program. This program, Vance said, is considered by the President to be "crucial to the overall health of the American economy and of great importance to all energy-producing and energy-consuming nations."

"The reaction so far," Vance said later Monday at the Capitol, "has been one of hope on the part of the various nations involved, that we will be able to reschedule the trip in the near future..."

from the outset over what they regarded as a "hodge-podge," "themeless trip," were privately pleased over the postponement. Others expressed concern over the damage that could be caused by the postponement, which put a priority on domestic vs. foreign considerations.

In official cables back to Washington, one source said, "Of course everybody says, 'We understand' — that's the diplomatic thing to do."

A rumble of criticism, however, also is developing in some of the world's press, with complaints that the long-dangling trip plan only reinforces the "amateurish" or "capricious" nature of the new administration's foreign policy.

The President was scheduled to visit Venezuela, Brazil, Nigeria, Saudi Arabia (added to the original itinerary), India, Iran, Poland, Belgium and France.

Some American diplomats, critical

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell told reporters that "Obviously there was some disappointment that the trip will not go forward as scheduled. But there is a recognition and a sharing of concern that the national energy plan go forward."

Postponing such a trip "is unfortunate," Powell said, "but we have made our priorities quite clear."

Carter repeatedly has said in recent weeks that he might have to postpone the trip because of the delay in completing the energy bill.

Miserable weather keeps national voters home

By The Associated Press

Miserable weather greeted voters electing governors in Virginia and New Jersey and in most of the 38 major cities that were choosing mayors today. In Virginia, the polling booths did good business early, but elsewhere the turnout was light to moderate.

In other major elections, the story was the same: rain, ranging from threatening to heavy. In some areas there was flooding or the prospect of it.

In New Jersey, early voters included Democratic Gov. Brendan Byrne and his Republican challenger, state Sen. Raymond H. Bateman. The statewide turnout was reported moderate despite the heavy rain.

In Virginia, the vote in white-conservative Richmond suburbs was heavy, but light in the city's black areas. There was a heavy turnout in Norfolk, the hometown of Democrat Henry Howell. His opponent is Lt. Gov. John Dalton, a Republican.

New York had rain described as torrential and the turnout in its mayoral election was very light.

Advance estimates fell by the wayside in some mayoral elections. By 10 a.m. the turnout in Detroit was 36 percent below that of the city election four years ago. And in Cleveland, an elections official stuck to his forecast that 70 percent of registered voters would cast ballots; the early turnout ranged widely from light to strong.

Despite persistent rains, 6 percent of Boston's voters had gone to the polls by midmorning — about the same rate as in the last election.

The three northeastern Rhode Island communities of Woonsocket, Central Falls and Pawtucket, all undergoing heavy showers, said voters were coming out in moderate numbers to vote for mayor.

In several cities, black candidates are trying to capture city halls.

Rain has historically benefited Republicans but in New York, Democrat Edward Koch was expected to win regardless of the weather. The Daily News straw poll gave Koch 53 percent of the vote to 39 for his nearest rival, Secretary of State Mario Cuomo.

Cuomo is the Liberal Party choice. Republican State Sen. Roy Goodman and radio personality Barry Farber, the Conservative Party entry, also are running, but with little hope.

Neighboring New Jersey still has its overriding issue, the state income tax that Byrne supports and Bateman wants to kill.

Byrne, who weathered a tough Democratic primary, had been trailing Bateman, but both sides now agree the outcome is in doubt.

The New Jersey contest was financed mostly out of public funds, with each candidate receiving $1 million from the state treasury.

In Virginia, Howell has said the state's largest electric utility, major banks and insurance companies reflect a "Tory plantation" policy represented by Dalton.

Dalton, a millionaire lawyer, has said Howell is a liberal and a big spender who would bring the state higher taxes and labor control of the government.

Henry offers opinions

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Warnings, disclaimers and analysis were offered by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger Monday in an address to more than 1,000 students and teachers at the Lyndon B. Johnson Library auditorium at The University of Texas.

The man who made "shuttle diplomacy" famous said the failure of the United States to aid "local forces" in Angola's civil war could encourage military solutions to problems elsewhere in Africa.

He also said the Chilean regime of Salvador Allende fell not because of American intervention but because of Allende's own mismanagement.

Kissinger received standing ovations, some boos and was the target of a small band of protesters who carried a cloth banner with the words "Smash Imperialism."

In the audience was Lady Bird Johnson, wife of the late President Lyndon Johnson.

"I am sure history will understand him (LBJ) better than some of his contemporaries did toward the end of his term," said Kissinger, noting that he knew what Johnson "went through."

Kissinger said in the years since Congress refused to send arms to "local forces" in the Angolan civil war, "the pattern of Cuban intervention and Soviet intervention in Africa has continued after Angola, and it may be that we will have to pay eventually—or somebody will have to pay—a heavier price later on."

Now, he said, Communist bloc military assistance is appearing in the Ethiopian civil war, "and the danger is that if every problem in Africa is settled by the introduction of outside arms, that forces will become the arbiter of affairs in a continent that should be left to its own development, free of outside intervention."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON
Don't get discouraged

Dear Dr. Solomon: About a month ago, I started noticing a slight swelling in my fingers. I went to the doctor and had some tests taken, and it is what I was afraid it was—rheumatoid arthritis. I'm only in my thirties, so it is all pretty depressing, especially as I know how much my mother had to go through with arthritis. I am taking aspirin regularly, and the doctor says I should try not to let myself get discouraged. But it is hard not to be. Do you think there is half a chance I can keep on top of this? I gather there is still no hope for a cure.—Betsy D.

Dear Betsy: It is true that there is no cure for arthritis, but this does not mean that today's ways of keeping it under control are not effective, particularly when treatment starts early, as it has in your case.

There is a very interesting survey that was done at the University Hospital in Groningen, Holland. It began in 1948. At that time, the average age of patients with rheumatoid arthritis who were seen at the hospital was 54. They had suffered for four years before seeking treatment. Eventually, 25 percent of them became totally crippled by the disease.

By 1975, however, the average age of a patient visiting the hospital for the first time was 40. And the duration of the disease before contacting the hospital was a year and a half rather than four years. With this earlier treatment, total disability decreased to 5 percent—instead of the earlier 25 percent.

So be sure to work out a comprehensive plan of care and exercise with your doctor. If you do this, I certainly think you have a very good chance of keeping on top of it. And, as you may already have found out from your mother's experience, the Arthritis Foundation is a valuable source of information and advice—for exercise charts, among other things. It's address is 475 Riverside Drive, New York, N.Y. 10027.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My daughter's husband has developed a terrible drinking problem, and she doesn't know where to turn for help. It is so hard on her—and on her two young children, too. I would like to be able to pass on to her any advice you might have to give me.—X.

Dear X: Alcoholics Anonymous—AA—has a really extraordinary record of help. There is also a sister organization, called Al-Anon—which provides a self-help program for relatives and close friends of alcoholics. Both are doing great and much-needed work.

There are AA and Al-Anon groups in most communities. They are usually listed together in the telephone book. Why not suggest to your daughter that she try getting in touch with both of them?

New meditators claim defiance of gravity laws

By KAY BARTLETT

SOUTH FALLSBURG, N.Y. (AP) — They talk about smooth liftoffs and bumpy landings as pilot trainees, stewardesses and hang-glider addicts might.

But this is at the Capital of the Age of Enlightenment, a handsome campus of the transcendental meditation movement, and "they" are advanced disciples who claim they can fly — levitate — with mind power as the sole propellant.

"We are in the beginning stages of flying," says John Konhaus, acting director of the TM movement in the United States. "It comes in stages. At first it looks like they're hopping like frogs. Then they become lighter and lighter as growth of consciousness develops."

SOME DEVOTED FOLLOWERS think the movement's credibility will be badly strained by the levitation claims. There's skepticism within TM.

Joseph and Devanie Wagner are meditators. She says, "I have no doubt that I will leave the ground." Her husband, a systems analyst for a research firm, says the whole business is a hoax.

Mrs. Wagner hasn't seen the flying but has heard it. "I saw a lot of them take pillows and foam rubber, and I stuck around by the door. I heard a lot of knocking and thudding."

The TM levitators assert they can rise one or two feet from the full lotus, a position with the left ankle on top of the right thigh and vice versa, and then move forward three, six, maybe 10 feet.

Could a skilled gymnast perform the feat? "No way," says Dick Mulvihill, director of the National Academy of Gymnasts in Eugene, Ore. "With the full lotus, there's no way to gain thrust."

In addition to the beginning, or hopping stages, TMers talk of reports about initiates actually hovering with greater mastery over gravity.

"At this stage, we have most control in taking off," says flier Gale Merman, secretary to magician Doug Henning. "Landings tend to be rough."

SAYS ALLEN SOLOF, a daily flier and one of 450 TM executive governors in the United States: "There is a great deal of group consciousness. If one person begins to fly, it starts the other people up. It's like popcorn. Once it goes, they all start going."

Konhaus runs the Capital of the Age of Enlightenment near this Catskills community. The guests usually are serious professional men and women. The men wear three-piece suits, the women afternoon apparel or party dresses. The atmosphere is serene, the meals vegetarian and those who smoke must do so outside.

VISITORS ARE WELCOME to see the flying rooms—one for men and one for women. The floors are covered with foam rubber, and there's more foam rubber stacked in the hallways.

Konhaus says he believes the Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, the guru of the movement who lives in Switzerland, eventually will allow a demonstration that will persuade the skeptic.

"We don't want to create a circus atmosphere," says Konhaus.

If you want to learn to levitate, as some early TM ads beckoned, bring money.

First, you enroll in preparatory classes from four to eight weeks, depending upon one's stage of meditation. That's Phase I and costs $245 a week, including room and board. Phase II is four two-week courses at $375 a week.

You don't get your money back if you don't fly. Miss Chun spent $2,000 this summer at South Fallsburg and thought it was worth every penny.

AT LEAST ONE COMPLAINT regarding TM advertising has been filed. A student at the Maharishi International University at Fairfield, Iowa, says he was told his course would take four weeks. Then he was told it would take eight.

"They promised levitation, and then halfway through they said come up with another $1,500," says Steve Rozman, an associate professor and chairman of the social science division at Tougaloo College near Jackson, Miss.

He complained to the Iowa attorney general's office and was blacklisted, he says. "They wanted me to operate on a show-my-faith basis. They told me I didn't have the proper attitude."

JULIAN GARRETT, assistant attorney general in charge of consumer protection, says his office is investigating the TM claims but progress is slow.

"We're inclined to think this is a very questionable claim, but it's a little difficult to get students to talk about it."

Konhaus says the advertising since has been toned down. "We're like any business. We use our advertising to attract the public." Though flying is a by-product, it does make people take notice ... maybe even sign up.

Patricia Carrington, psychologist, mediator and author of "Freedom in Meditation," wishes the movement would give a proper demonstration or quit talking about levitation.

"If you're serious about something, you must permit a controlled observation for the scientific community," says Dr. Carrington. "The TM movement has been a very conservative one up to this point. They did a world of good in spreading the word about the benefits of meditation. This is an about-switch."

"EVEN URI GELLER allows himself to be studied. I am just bewildered by these claims."

Actually, the levitators did "show" once — last May at Iowa's MIU, which used to be Parsons College before the college went out of business.

Twenty-two persons — two of them non-meditators — were invited to the demonstration conducted by four young men. It got mixed reviews. Some of the meditators thought they saw levitation. Others thought they saw some hopping around that they figured a good athlete might be able to duplicate.

DR. HERBERT SPIEGEL, a Manhattan psychiatrist who teaches at Columbia University and is an expert on hypnosis, feels self-hypnosis might be the answer. The people who describe their flights believe they are flying.

Konhaus contends that physical laws have been disproven or suspended before, but Spiegel argues that "the law of gravity applies to everyone, regardless of creed, race, color and TM."

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission has reduced the most efficient rate of production (MER) for the Salt Creek field in Kent County by 5 percent.

The decision of Chairman Mack Wallace and Commissioners Jim C. Langdon and Jon Newton during last week's conference on Oil and Gas Division matters lowers the Salt Creek MER to 36,000 barrels of oil per day from 37,800 barrels per day.

The new MER includes all allowances which can be earned under the applicable field rules and applies to the wells located outside of the salt Creek Unit that have been operated by General Crude Oil Co. of Houston, since its creation in 1952.

Supreme Court agrees to review ceiling rule

The Washington Post WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court Monday agreed to review a ruling that threatens the growth and possibly the long-term survival of nuclear power plants.

The ruling held unconstitutional a $560 million ceiling on damages for nuclear accidents and property losses that all victims could collect in a nuclear accident.

The ceiling is in the Price-Anderson Act of 1957. Congress passed it because equipment suppliers and electric utilities were unable or unwilling to make substantial investments in nuclear power unless their liability were limited.

The law had a 10-year deadline. Congress extended it in 1966 and again in 1975 without raising the $560 million limit to allow for inflation, for increases in reactor size, and for estimates that the harm caused by a nuclear accident could be twice as great as assumed 20 years ago.

Under the 1975 Price-Anderson extension, private insurance bought by plant owners would pay up to $140 million. Assessments of up to $5 million each on the owners of the 65 plants now operating would pay up to $325 million more. The government would be liable for the balance of up to $95 million.

Federal Judge James B. McMillan, in a ruling last April 15, said that a so-called core-melt accident "can reasonably be expected to produce hundreds or thousands of fatalities, numerous illnesses, genetic effects of unpredictable degree and nature for succeeding generations, thyroid ailments and cancers in numerous people, damage to other life and widespread damage to property."

"Areas as large as several thousand square miles might be contaminated and require evacuation," McMillan said in his opinion, issued in Charlotte, N.C. "It would not require death or serious injury to many people to exceed the $560 million limitation."

Potential victims "have no source from which they can get insurance against loss or damage from atomic radiation; insurance companies, regardless of the odds, won't write policies to cover such losses," the judge continued, adding:

"The court is not a bookie ... under the odds quoted by either side, a nuclear catastrophe is a real, not fanciful possibility." He went on to say:

"Without the protection of the Price-Anderson Act, regardless of the desires of the nuclear-power industry, power companies would probably not be able to obtain the necessary financing, supplies and architectural skills to build nuclear power plants and to maintain them once construction is complete."

But, McMillan said, the law violates the constitutional guarantee of due process "because it allows the destruction of the property or the lives of those affected by nuclear catastrophe without reasonable certainty that the victims will be justly compensated."

And, he said, Price-Anderson violates the constitutional guarantee of equal protection of the laws "because it provides for what Congress deemed to be a benefit for the whole society (the encouragement of the generation of nuclear power), but places the cost of that benefit on an arbitrarily chosen segment of society, those injured by nuclear catastrophe."

McMillan also said that Price-Anderson "tends to encourage irresponsibility in matters of safety and environmental protection rather than to encourage responsibility on the part of builders and owners."

Environmentalists hailed his ruling. The nuclear industry — including trade associations representing consumer-owned power companies and rural electric cooperatives — denounced it.

The government, joining the Duke Power Co. in appealing McMillan's ruling, told the Supreme Court that the judge "has confronted the operators of nuclear power plants and those who supply equipment for use in such plants with the threat of enormous unindemnified liability, a threat that might act as a substantial deterrent to private participation in the development of nuclear energy."

Solicitor General Wade H. McCree filed the government brief for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, which licensed Duke Power to build two huge nuclear power stations near Charlotte.

The Carolina Environmental Study Group Inc., the Catawba Central Labor Union and 37 persons who live from a half-mile to 20 miles from the stations sued the NRC and Duke Power separately in 1973.

Children judge 'how-to' book by constructing play house

Newsday

If how-to books were rated like movies, "Housebuilding for Children" would rate for hammers.

That finding is based on strawblossing a crew of four children — three of my own and a friend of theirs — while they built a (play)house according to the book's instructions. They got so involved that the oldest had a hard time one day deciding between studding out a window and going to the beach, an otherwise all-time favorite activity.

Not that you have to have the book to do it. If you can understand the following paragraph, you can probably plan one of these yourself.

The house is built using hand tools small enough for children to handle, such as a 10-ounce hammer or 12-inch crosscut saw; 1-by-2s for studs, 8 inches OC; homosote for sheathing and 2-inch cement-coated nails (although 1 1/2-inch galvanized work well enough and may be easier to find). The walls are 4 feet by 4 feet, the roof a gable with 2-foot, 10-inch rafters, cut at a 45-degree angle. It sits on a 2-by-4 base. Conventional balloon construction techniques are used throughout.

But even if you understand that, it's a good idea to buy the book. As one of my crew put it, "The way the book explained it makes it easy to understand, so you can build it without much trouble."

And building it is something that children love, particularly since the end result is something they can use and brag about. If you know just enough to wield a hammer and saw, and enjoy spending time with your children, this miniconstruction job can become a terrific fall weekend project. Not to mention how quickly the children go to sleep those days that they're going at it hammer and saw.

Be prepared for children wandering off for a snack, a look at a butterfly or a romp with the dog or a friend, or forget about it. They'll come back in a reasonable time, and they need such breaks.

About that book: "Housebuilding for Children" was published last summer by The Overlook Press. Besides the wood-frame house that my crew is building, Walker provides plans for five other kinds of houses, four small practice projects, such as tool box and a toy tugboat, and detailed discussions of the tools to get and how to use them. The illustrations include 150 line drawings and more than 90 photographs. It's a hardcover book, priced at $10 and worth it.

Walker aims at children roughly 7 to 10 or more, using his experience as an untutored childhood housebuilder and in running a recent carpentry class at the Woodstock Children's Center in upstate New York. He succeeds in his effort to "make an interesting contribution to the housebuilding 9-year-olds of the world."

Whether or not you use the book, you should be aware of these factors, some of which are also emphasized by Walker: Time — Even though it's a little house, it takes time to build. Time will vary with the size of your crew, but figure on at least two good days, unless you have lots of tools available and a large crew. My four still had some window-studding, all but the first four rafters and the sheathing to finish after about 11 hours of work, but they'd had to share one hammer and work with only two saws.

Concentration — Be prepared for children wandering off for a snack, a look at a butterfly or a romp with the dog or a friend, or forget about it. They'll come back in a reasonable time (although sometimes not until called), and they need such breaks, even if you're a tiger about it. After all, they're doing the work — or should be.

Preparation — Because they're going to do the work, the children should read the book — or work out plans with you — before they start, so they thoroughly understand what to do. So should you. Walker also recommends lots of practice sawing and nail-driving, but it's possible to dispense with that after a brief run-through with each child on how to saw and how to nail. We did.

Tools — It's a must to have child-sized tools such as those recommended by Walker. My crew got along with my adult-sized 16-ounce hammer, because I didn't allow enough time to be able to find a smaller one when I bought materials. But they were able to do it only by gripping the hammer about halfway along the handle, and that plus the weight hurt their accuracy and tired their arms more quickly.

Supervision — It's also a must — to answer questions, to mediate fights (they're kids, right?), to help where no one gets hurt. The questions come up because children are children, not adults with enough knowledge and experience to know how to handle an unexpected problem or to improvise when needed. With the right tools, and plans as good as Walker's book provides, the children are capable of building a house by themselves, but it does help if an adult can help brace an unfinished and therefore wobbly frame wall while someone's hammering.

As for safety, stop and think how many times you've seen your children waving sticks. They'll do it with tools and lumber, too, and forget warnings until someone gets hurt if on one's supervision. My crew also seemed at times unable to watch someone saw or hammer until close enough to rub their noses on the stud — and get those noses sawn or hammered off in the process.

Cost — The materials came to $48.63 for the wood-frame house, without any shopping around. Buying any child-size tools needed is extra. That bothered me until I stopped to think about it. Fifty dollars is a good price for a well-built, 16-square-foot playhouse that will last for years if painted properly, as my crew intends to do.

Ability — Children don't need any to start with. Part of the idea is that they learn as they're doing, and they do. And if you build a wood-frame house, and your stud lengths vary by a quarter-inch, don't worry. Some of ours did. But the house is coming along fine anyway, and no one notices but me.

What a particular child finds most difficult, or even impossible, to do varies with both age and inclination. Here's a sampling from my crew:

Rachel, nearly 11: Trying to hammer upward from below.

Danielle Souweine, 10: Sawing. (She liked hammering best.)

Deborah, nearly 10: Nailing the rafters, even though she liked nailing best otherwise.

Douglas, nearly 8: Nailing from below.

Those nearly 9 on the ages are important. Although Walker includes 7-year-olds, a child who's just 7 will have a much more difficult time of it.

Worth — "It's fun to build and you can make it any way you want," Deborah said.

AT WIT'S END

Food fighting ugly publicity

By ERMA BOMBECK

I was leafing through a magazine the other day when my eyes fell upon a full-page ad of a potato with two eyes, a mouth, and two little gloved hands saying, "I AM NOT FATTENING."

I wanted to believe the little devil. He seemed so sincere. Besides, I never met a potato I didn't like. It occurred to me that lately a lot of foods have been fighting back at ugly publicity.

Health enthusiasts have made me uptight over milk products, paranoid over sugar, and a couple weeks ago I ate a glazed doughnut and felt so guilty I established a Weight Watchers Scholarship in my name.

If more carbohydrates would take a stand, it would certainly make it easier for those of us who are weak and motivated by your basic hunger.

I went to lunch the other week with my friend, Ellie, who gives me a royal pain with her dieting. When my hamburger came with a mound of French fries, I thought she'd break out into a rash.

"Ah...ah...ah...naughty...naughty!"

"You are wrong," I said, "Carbohydrates offer you important vitamins and minerals such as Vitamin C, B6 and Niacin."

 "Where did you hear that?"
 "On Mery Griffin's Salute To Starches night."
 "You're lying. You do that all the time to get out of dieting."
 "That's not true. I always buy dietary bread."
 "And put gravy on it."
 "I ate a carrot stick last week."
 "With two pounds of dip on the end of it."
 "Didn't I buy a whole box of caramel appetite killers?"
 "And melted them to put over your ice cream."
 "Why would a potato lie to you? What's in it for them?" Addressing the potatoes I asked, "Have we ever met before?"
 "I think you've popped your cork," said Ellie.
 "No, I want to pursue this. Why would some strange potato single me out to deceive me?"
 "I can see you are not motivated to being thin."
 "That's all you know," I said opening my purse and sanctimoniously popping a small artificial sweetener pill into my cappuccino.
 Hopefully the potato ad is a trend. I mean if you can't trust a chocolate éclair looking you in the eye and saying, "I am not a crook," whom can you trust?

Jo Ellen Wynne weds Ralph Gregory Johnson

Mrs. Ralph Gregory Johnson

Ralph Gregory Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. "Bud" Johnson of 4510 Pasadena St., married Jo Ellen Wynne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Wynne, 2204 Gulf St., at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity. The Rev. Carroll McPherson performed the double ring service.

Mrs. Paula Smith of Nacogdoches was matron of honor. Leslie Farmer of San Marcos was the bridesmaid. Bridesmatron was Mrs. Dana Green of Carrollton, sister of the bridegroom. Gypsy Stewart of Austin was flower girl.

The best man was Jim Crockett of Irving. Groomsmen were Skeet Mitchell of Midland and Rob Wynne of College Station, the bride's brother. Ushers were Jeff Johnson, brother of the bridegroom, and Bill Green of Carrollton, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

Music was furnished by John Bryant, organist, and Wendell Heckathorne, violin soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of candlelight French lace and imported tulle. The molded bodice of lace with short shirred sleeves featured a wide picture neckline outlined with scallops. Cascades of the same lace were applied over the bouffant skirt which swept to a chapel train.

Her single-layered veil of tulle, handmade by Mrs. Ernie Johnson of Midland, was attached to a tulle bonnet sprinkled with seed pearls, which also was worn by her mother. She wore matching lace gauntlets and carried a cascade of yellow Sweetheart roses surrounding blue spider mums, baby's breath and stems of eucalyptus.

A reception was held in the Parish Hall of the church.

Following a trip to South Padre Island, the couple will reside in Midland.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents in the Branding Iron. Special out-of-town guests were the bride's grandmothers, Mrs. H. E. Moore of Holliday and Mrs. G. O. Franklin of Nocona; and the bridegroom's grandparents, Mrs. Lydia Clem of Ranger and Mr. and Mrs. Osce Wakeland of Godley.

DEAR ABBY

Jealous wife fears problem could hatch with hubby's job

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a very attractive middle-aged man who has never fooled around as far as I know.

The company he works for sends him and a professional female co-worker out of town together (just the two of them) on business trips for several days' duration.

It seems to me that since it wouldn't be proper for just the two of them to have dinner together here in our home city, it's hardly fair for the company to send them out of town together.

My husband says it's strictly a business relationship, and I believe him. But she's pretty, young and single, and being only human, all that togetherness away from home could hatch a problem that's bigger than both of them.

How should I handle this?—JUST PLAIN JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: What's to handle? Say nothing. Continue to trust him; expect the best and you'll probably get it. Any other action on your part would be unwise.

DEAR ABBY: Our son and his fiancée are being married soon. Our names were not included on the wedding invitations. When we asked our son about this, he said it was strictly up to the bride, and she selected the firm that omitted the names of the bridegroom's parents.

Our friends and relatives disagree. They say that it is a slap in the face and a snub to us, and if we had an ounce of pride, we would not attend our son's wedding. After all, he wasn't laid on a log and hatched by the sun!

Who is right, Abby? What would you do?—HURT IN PENNA.

DEAR HURT: The standard American wedding invitation does not include the name of the groom's parents, so the bride should not be faulted for having selected the style. I would go to the wedding and bear no grudge.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the article about the girl who wore braces on her teeth. She said her boyfriend also wore braces, and when they kissed it was like running into a barbed wire fence, and it hurt.

Well, I'm a 22-year-old guy who's been wearing braces for three years, and I know exactly how she felt. When I used to kiss a girl with braces, it was like two freight trains colliding head on!

Braces have improved my kissing. I now kiss very slowly, gently and tenderly. I get compliments on my kisses all the time. I'm sure if it weren't for my braces I never would have learned how to be such a neat kisser.—BETTER THAN EVER

Rules eliminate hazards with appliance cords

COLLEGE STATION—Follow safety rules for appliance cords, urges Dr. Carolyn McKinney, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

For home safety, consumers should make a special effort to protect their families from appliance hazards—through proper use and care of appliance cords.

Always disconnect the appliance cord from the wall outlet before disconnecting the cord from the appliance. To disconnect, grasp the plug instead of the cord, Dr. McKinney says.

Keep oil and grease away from cords and do not run cords under floor coverings.

Store cords in a cool and dry place. To lengthen their lives, roll appliance cords loosely (never wrap tightly). Or hang them over a smooth, broad surface.

Wrap cords around cooled appliances—such as toasters or irons—never still-warm ones, the specialist says.

BRIDAL PARTIES

Julia McNair, bride-elect of Richard A. Chatwell, was honored with a miscellaneous display shower in the home of Mrs. John R. Stringer with Mrs. Edwin Thomas and Mrs. Gary Thurman as co-hostesses.

Special out-of-town guests included Mrs. Erma Wright and Mrs. Susie Grass, the bride-elect's aunts, and Mrs. Pat Bullock, the bride-elect's cousin, all of Andrews.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Pat McNair and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie D. Chatwell. The couple will be married Nov. 26.

Nancy Caussey, bride-elect of Roberto Tepichin, was honored with a dessert party in the home of Mrs. Duke Jimerson.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. C. E. McKenzie, Mrs. Fred McMann, Mrs. Percy Tate and Mrs. H. K. Thomas.

The bride-elect's chosen colors of burgundy and rosewood were used. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Caussey.

Miss Caussey and Tepichin will be married Dec. 27 in Mexico City, Mexico.

Defense contends Farr had enemies

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Attorneys for millionaire murder defendant Cullen Davis probe deeper today into a "benefit gambling party" which they contend was a "ripoff" by gunshot victim Stan Farr.

They say only Farr benefitted from the party at the Pelican Bay Yacht Club near Fort Worth and that the spring 1976 incident could be linked to a subsequent shooting spree at the Davis mansion.

Chief defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes said he intends to show Farr, 30, was killed by angry business associates and the slaying most likely was drug-related.

Haynes was to resume questioning of Fort Worth barmaid Becky Burns today after sequestered jurors were escorted around town to vote on state constitutional amendments and a state senate race.

Haynes contends it was someone other than Davis, 44, who killed Farr and Andrea Wilborn, 12, the defendant's stepdaughter and one of four victims of the summertime shootings.

Davis' estranged wife, Priscilla, 38, and Gus Gavrel Jr., 22, were wounded in the midnight attack at the mansion where Mrs. Davis and Farr were living at the time.

Davis had moved out after the couple separated in July 1974 and says he was at the home of his blonde girlfriend when the shootings occurred.

Haynes paraded an unusual assortment of witnesses to the stand Monday, including two ex-convicts, a car salesman nicknamed "Slick," and the brown-haired Miss Burns, 27.

Miss Burns said she was the night bartender at the Rhinestone Cowboy night club Farr managed until shortly before his death, and that drug usage was not uncommon there.

She said she once entered the kitchen and saw cocaine lying on a table surrounded by Farr, western singer David Allan Coe and Horace Copeland, who was slain at a Fort Worth apartment a year after the mansion shooting.

"What were they doing?" Haynes asked.

"They were sniffing it," Miss Burns replied.

She said it was one of two occasions when she observed a "white, powdery substance" at the club, but that the prescription pain-killing pill Percodan was more prevalent.

"Did you see Priscilla Davis participate in giving or receiving the pills?" Haynes asked.

"Yes," she replied.

There was an incident one night, she testified, when Mrs. Davis called Farr a "dumb son-of-a-bitch," pulled his hat off and jumped up and down on him.

She said she could not remember what touched off the episode.

Miss Burns testified that shortages in club receipts were running about $200 a week during an unspecified time and she implied that Farr was responsible.

"We were all asked by the owners if we were taking it," she said.

Ex-convicts Bubba Harris and Rowe Bright and car salesman Tom "Slick" Hubbard all testified they were present at different times and places with Mrs. Davis when various drugs were being used.

Bright and Hubbard's testimony indicated the blonde socialite was seeing a marijuana-smoking character named David Hack between love affairs with Arlington electrician W.T. Rufner and Farr.

Officials map details of prisoner exchange

By RICK SCOTT

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Detailed plans for returning more than 200 Americans held in Mexican prisons are being formulated here today at a closed meeting of federal officials from Washington and several southwestern states.

The return of about 240 Americans to this country from Mexico is expected some time early next month.

The Justice Department expects that 50 to 60 of the returning Americans will be free as soon as they arrive back in the United States.

Others will be held for a short period and probably be granted parole in January, according to Michael Abbell, who is directing the exchange program.

The return will occur under a treaty and enabling legislation that President Carter signed recently allowing the United States to exchange prisoners with Mexico and Canada.

Abbell, who is in San Antonio to attend today's planning session, said earlier that 585 Americans are held in Mexican jails.

Initial interviews with those prisoners indicated about 240 of them will return next month, Abbell said.

The remainder, he said, either have not been tried or have appeals pending in Mexico; were convicted of immigration law violations or political crimes; or prefer for various reasons to remain in Mexico.

Following today's meeting here, a group of U.S. officials will go to Mexico this weekend to inform prisoners of their rights and duties if they choose to return to the United States.

Abbell said earlier that the Justice Department expects to charter four airplanes to bring the Americans out of Mexico about Dec. 9. Initially, they will be taken to a prison near the border, but officials won't disclose the exact location until the prisoners have arrived.

Names of the Americans who will be returned have not been released.

Lucien B. Campbell, federal public defender for the Western District of Texas, said today's planning group would include nine U.S. Magistrates, a dozen public defenders from the Southwest and representatives from the U.S. Courts administrator's office, the Justice Department and the Texas attorney general's office.

The meeting was expected to last all day.

Youngster in one heap of trouble

HOUSTON (AP) — Police say a 15-year old high school student took a teacher's car at gunpoint, sent football players scattering with the vehicle, played through a fence and slammed into a garage of a nearby house.

No one was injured in the Monday incident, authorities said, but a considerable amount of property damage resulted.

The youth, a freshman at J. Frank Dobie High School, ran away after ramming the attached garage, police said, but was caught several blocks away by a group of athletes.

Officers said he would be referred to the Harris County juvenile probation department on charges of reckless conduct, felony criminal mischief and aggravated robbery.

Police quoted a teacher as saying the boy pulled a pellet pistol out of a paper sack and demanded her car. When she told him she couldn't find the keys, he ran to her car, found the keys and drove away.

He returned later, police said, and drove onto the football practice field, narrowly missing several students and sending a practicing freshman football team in all directions.

Kathy Adcock told police she had just returned home when the car smashed through a fence and made a 8-to-10-foot hole in a brick wall of her garage. She said the vehicle damaged several appliances and caused structural damage to the house. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Student's Klan stand controversial

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Carol Kendall says her motive was pure but the words somehow didn't quite come out right.

The 17-year-old Judson High School senior found herself this week in the midst of a controversy over the student newspaper's endorsement of the Ku Klux Klan's "border watch."

Miss Kendall is editor of the weekly Satellite and she wrote the editorial blasting the illegal entry of Mexican aliens into the United States.

"We should be grateful that the KKK is dedicated to upholding the U.S. Constitution," she wrote, adding that she considered the KKK's tactic "an act of Americanism."

The Klan has announced it is patrolling the U.S.-Mexico border and will inform federal authorities of any illegal crossings it detects.

The Klan's action has been denounced by officials at nearly every level who contend that watching the border and enforcing immigration laws is the job of federal police authorities, not the KKK.

So readers of the San Antonio Express-News were shocked Sunday when columnist Paul Thompson told of the student newspaper's support for the Klan's activities.

"The KKK means nothing more or less than the right to take the law into your own hands in the name of white supremacy," one newspaper reader told Thompson.

Judson School District Superintendent William Sevier was apologizing to parents and school board members Monday morning, but he said it was too late to do anything about the editorial, which was published last Friday.

"If you can tell me how to unring the bell, then I'll tell you what we're going to do," said Sevier, adding that no disciplinary action was anticipated.

"How in the world it got past the faculty sponsor is beyond me. This is the very, very poor journalistic effort on the part of one student. It is certainly not in any sense a reflection of the opinion of the staff or student body," he said.

The faculty sponsor, Bill Slaughter, 32, a former editor of the weekly Seguin Enterprise, said he approved the editorial's publication but disagreed with its content.

Slaughter said the editorial, with an accompanying cartoon showing a white-sheeted Klansman, was supposed to have carried Miss Kendall's byline but it was dropped in the printing process.

Much of the editorial is written in first person by Miss Kendall.

She said she researched the piece and was aware of the KKK's past history.

"If I was writing it again, I'd change the wording. I'm not in favor of the KKK and I don't condone anything they have done in the past. But I am in favor of somebody patrolling the border and catching the illegal aliens," she said.

Miss Kendall said a lot of students disagreed with her editorial, "but nobody has been nasty about it."

Slaughter said the newspaper will carry differing opinions from students in the "Letters to the Editor" section of its next issue.

Sevier said the Judson School District has about 8,100 pupils and ethnically is "very mixed" with blacks, Mexican Americans, Vietnamese and American Indians.

"If there is such a thing as a melting pot, I'd say this was it," the superintendent said.

Governor reappoints 3

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe announced the reappointment Monday of three University of Houston regents — Dr. Davis Armistead of Lubbock and Robert Grainger and James Elkin Jr., both of Houston.

Briscoe also appointed Charles Schmidt of Amarillo as a regent at West Texas State University and reappointed Dee Osborne of Houston as a regent at the Canyon school.

Schmidt is replacing Donald Curry of Fort Worth, whose term expired.

Other appointments included: —Statewide Health Coordinating Council, Dr. John Selby Sr. of Lubbock.

—Board of Tax Assessor Examiners, Norman Register of Dallas.

—Criminal Justice Division Advisory Board, Chief Justice Joe Greenhill of the Texas Supreme Court; State District Judge Herman Jones of Austin; and executive director C. Raymond Justice of the Texas Judicial Council.

Light vote expected in Houston race

By ROB WOOD

HOUSTON (AP)—A light turnout, estimated by city officials at no more than 200,000 of the city's some 650,000 registered voters, is expected today as voters select a new mayor of the nation's fifth largest city.

Twelve candidates—including a millionaire businessman, a black activist, a member of the Socialist Workers' Party, a member of the Nazi party, and a man who said he is running because God told him to do so—are on the ballot.

With Mayor Fred Hofheinz refusing to seek re-election to a third term, the list of candidates began to grow and almost insured a runoff election between the top two vote-getters on Nov. 22.

The front runners are Frank Briscoe, 51, former-Harris County district attorney, a law-and-order conservative beaten by about 1 percent of the vote in the 1975 campaign; Nobel C. Ginther Jr., 44, a millionaire attorney-businessman, making his first political venture; and Jim McConn, 49, a builder and developer and former city councilman.

These three have spent more than $1 million in an effort to win a job that pays $20,000 a year plus $5,000 in expenses.

Briscoe has listed expenses of $466,589; McConn $428,116 and Ginther $290,492.

Considered as possible runoff candidates because of the lack of voter interest and the grumblings against the big-spenders are Bette Graham White, 38, a community organizer and leader in Hofheinz' 1975 campaign, and Dick Gottlieb, 53, an advertising firm owner, television personality, former city councilman and twice an unsuccessful candidate for mayor.

"Your taxes too high? They are for sure if you're self-employed and not under a tax-sheltered retirement plan.

Let's talk retirement."

Briscoe takes campaign stands

By JOETTE MOFFETT
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — A firm commitment to improved state education and "no new taxes" will form the backbone of Gov. Dolph Briscoe's bid for a third term as Texas' highest official, which would give him an unprecedented 10 years in that office.

In a campaign-opening fundraiser Monday night, Briscoe pledged his support to the state government's current devotion of 47 percent of its income to education.

But he reiterated his firm stand against additional state taxes, saying, "There have been no added state taxes in Texas since 1971, the year before I took office. And as long as I'm governor, there won't be any."

The fund-raiser, which attracted about 7,000 people and added about $175,000 to the Briscoe campaign coffers, was highlighted by a multi-media show that presented scenes from the Uvalde native's years as governor.

Briscoe's wife Janey greeted the well-wishers with opening remarks. Among prominent Texans introduced were Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, the three railroad commissioners and new State Treasurer Warren G. Harding.

Briscoe approached the podium as the strains of "The Eyes of Texas" filled the Dallas Convention Center. The crowd waved flags and cheered, frequently interrupting his remarks with applause.

The governor took the opportunity to blast the Carter administration's energy policy, and blamed the president's support of natural gas price regulations on "misguided philosophy."

Midwifery trial begun

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The trial of a Brownsville man that prosecutors acknowledge will "test the waters" of public opinion concerning the practice of midwifery got off to a fast start Monday.

Midwifery is a generally accepted practice among the predominantly Mexican-American population of South Texas.

Lawyers seated a seven-man, five-woman jury in less than four hours Monday to hear the case against Miguel Oriuela, 44, charged with injury to a child.

Paper finds dereliction in dam upkeep

The Los Angeles Times

TOCCOA, Ga. — For centuries, the stream rushed down from mountain reaches graced in pine and laurel to cascade over a rocky ledge to the valley floor 186 feet below.

The Cherokee Indians were awed by the sight. When white settlers came, they, too, found it beautiful.

In the valley, within sight of the falls, religious educator Richard A. Forrest built a bible college in 1907. Thirty years later, manufacturer-evangelist R. G. LeTourneau built an earthen embankment in a narrow gorge above the falls, and donated the dam and lake to the college to provide its campus with water and electricity.

The college grew and prospered, sending its graduates to minister in every state and 56 foreign lands. The dam's water and power usage was discontinued years ago and the structure was largely neglected — until it was too late.

In Sunday's early morning darkness, the dam collapsed. An estimated 112 million gallons of water — a force weighing 480,000 tons — thundered over the falls and through the sleeping campus below.

Within moments, 27 people — over half of them children — were killed and another 45 persons injured as the roaring water devastated college dormitories, a street of faculty homes and a mobile home park where many married students lived. At nightfall Monday, two more persons were still missing and presumed drowned.

Authorities on the scene Monday said the cause of the dam collapse may never be known because the structure itself was totally destroyed. But independent inquiries by The Los Angeles Times found evidence that the dam's safety had been neglected for years.

There were no indications that the structure had ever been inspected by government or private safety engineers. Local residents said the dam's embankment had leaked in the past, and that 40-foot-tall pine trees grew on its downstream face — both signs of potential hazard, according to dam safety experts.

And The Times learned Monday that the dam, although recorded as being built in 1937, was merely an earthen embankment placed on the foundations of another smaller dam dating back to the turn of the century — a construction procedure which could have figured in its eventual collapse.

Locally-based U.S. Department of Agriculture experts said 6-to-9 inches of rain had fallen in the 48 hours preceding the dam's collapse. This amount, while extraordinary, is far from a record storm. The dam which brought Sunday's sudden disaster is not unlike thousands of other privately owned, rarely inspected, high hazard dams in all parts of the country which officials acknowledge are unable to withstand the pressures brought by heavy storms.

Five years ago, Congress enacted a national program to inspect the nation's 45,000 large private dams. But it was not until recently, after a series of articles by The Times, that the dangers posed by these dams were documented, that the first money was voted on to begin the inspection.

It was $15 million, an amount a White House aide said Monday will hardly dent the backlog of what one federal engineer calls "timebombs ticking away, unnoticed." And, although the money has been voted by Congress, no federal inspections have been made yet. The funds are still bottled up within the bureaucracy.

Some laid on blankets, some on stretchers. There were 18 in one room, 19 in the other. All were covered with sheets, each with a paper tag bearing a number.

Shortly after 9 a.m. the relatives began to arrive, walking slowly, quietly, between the two lines of bodies spread out on the wood floor of the cavernous Pond Street gymnasium.

By mid-afternoon the task was completed. All 37 victims of Sunday morning's disastrous dam collapse had been formally identified, their numbers changed to names.

Twenty of the bodies were those of children. There was one family of four. A father viewed his wife and four daughters. A second group of five bodies were survived by only a child.

There was little emotion, the quiet was broken only by muted conversation of survivors, nurses and civil defense workers.

"These are deeply religious people," explained Toccoa undertaker Frank Davis. "They're not the type people to let bitterness enter into their feelings."

They will begin burying the dead on Wednesday. "One of God's miracles" is how Barbara Ebeby remembers it.

She and her husband, David, the college's dean of men, and their three children, Kimberly, seven; Kevin, five, and Kelly, two, lived in a small, frame house — the first to be caught in the crashing avalanche of water.

"It sent our house rolling, twisting, spinning — and believe me, all of us prayed," Mrs. Ebeby said in an interview.

For several harrowing minutes, she said, they clung tenaciously to partitions and to each other, for dear life. David Ebeby, clad only in his undershorts, was swept through a gaping puncture in the ceiling and onto the roof.

"Kimberly got washed up there, too," Mrs. Ebeby said, affectionately stroking her eldest daughter's golden hair. "The rest of us just prayed — and hung on."

Soon the worst was over. The surging stream had hurled the structure askew, and it wedged halfway onto an embankment. The Ebeys escaped with their lives, but their belongings and home are gone.

"It was God who saved us," Mrs. Ebeby said. "Are the Ebeys upset that the dam had been largely neglected?"

"Our minds are clear on that," Mrs. Ebeby said. "If something had been wrong with it, I'm sure it would have been corrected."

Apparently no records detailing the dam's construction history exist. A check of federal and Stephens County records and a search through local history files showed no trace of the dam.

And the state of Georgia has never required approval of dam plans or periodic dam inspections — one of 25 states in the country without effective programs to police the safety of private dams.

The only official mention of the deadly structure is a single line in a three-foot-high stack of documents published by the Army Corps of Engineers last year — the inventory of the nation's large dams. And that line ends with a single numeral — 1 — the code indicating that the dam had a high-hazard location, meaning that its collapse could cause loss of life.

More than 80 other dams in Georgia — and 5,000 others across the nation — have been placed in this same high-hazard category.

Why haven't these dams been inspected — especially in light of the growing number of dam collapses in the country?

"The states had principal responsibility for looking into these dams," Maj. Gen. Charles McGinnis of the Corps of Engineers said from his Washington office.

Baltimore wins mud game with 'Skins

BALTIMORE (AP) — It was another Monday night victory, not as impressive as a year ago, perhaps, but right on schedule as far as the Baltimore Colts were concerned.

The Colts slogged through the mud in Memorial Stadium to score a 10-3 decision over the Washington Redskins, with a 12-yard pass from Bert Jones to a diving Freddie Scott providing the winning points early in the final quarter.

While it pushed Baltimore's record to 7-1 and kept it atop the AFC East, the hard earned triumph in the defense dominated clash of neighborhood rivals was in sharp contrast to the last Monday night game here, one year ago against Houston.

The Colts hosted the Oilers, also in the season's eighth week, and thundered to a 38-14 victory. It proved to be their best effort of the year as they dropped two of their final five games before being easily eliminated in the first round of the playoffs.

But although the margin of victory over the Redskins was much smaller, the Colts felt their latest nationally televised win would show up more decisively in the long run.

"We're hitting our peak at the right time this season," said defensive end Fred Cook. "Last year, I think, we reached our peak too soon. The Houston game was our best, seven weeks before we really needed it. This time we're more confident."

Cook, a four-year veteran, and the rest of the Colts' "Sack Pack" front four put intense pressure on Redskins quarterback Joe Theismann, sacking him five times and helping to create a pair of interceptions by linebacker Stan White.

The Baltimore offense, meanwhile, was controlling the ball, with Jones & Company running off 80 plays to Washington's 54 and using up 12½ more minutes of playing time.

"I said early in the week that we couldn't leave our defense out there walk back slowly and take their time," Washington Coach George Allen said. "But he (the official) had stopped the clock. If that's the case, then either the clock is wrong or we had a touchdown."

A poor play by the special teams, a perennially strong point of Allen-coached squads, led to the Colts' winning points in the game played in a steady rain on a field soaked by two days of downpour.

Late in the third period, with the score knotted on field goals by Toni Linhart and Mark Moseley, Washington punter Mike Bragg shanked a 22-yard kick out of bounds at the Baltimore 39.

From there, the Colts moved steadily downfield, with Jones suddenly finding the range on passes that earlier that had been sailing over the heads of open men or splashing in the mud in front of diving receivers.

"It was hard to really zip the ball in this kind of weather," said Jones, who completed 13 of 27 passes for 180 yards.

On a third-and-seven situation, Jones hit Scott with a bullet over the middle, gaining the first down by inches at the Washington 14.

'Bad Earl' becomes rose

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Ann Campbell remembers when one of her 11 children was "Bad Earl" and a brush with the law was just one step away.

But "Bad Earl" blossomed into the "Tyler Rose," the University of Texas' earth-moving fullback Earl Campbell now appears just one step away from college football's coveted Heisman Trophy, but to Mama he's just "a little boy who grew up in the sand."

And the 6-1, 220-pound Earl, one of three Campbell brothers on the Longhorn roster, credits his mother with keeping him on the right course.

"You will never meet a person as great as my mother," said Campbell, who leads NCAA rushers and has sparked the Longhorns to a No. 1 national ranking.

When she was widowed in 1966, Ann Campbell gathered her seven boys and four girls around her in their one-story wooden house down a black-top country road outside of Tyler. Earl was the fifth oldest and in the fourth grade when she laid down the ground rules.

"We sat down together, and I told them I wouldn't be able to pay any fines to get them out of jail," she said. "But if they stayed out of trouble, I could feed them and keep clothes on their back."

She worked as a maid and the whole family helped with the Campbell garden that included the famous Tyler roses, peas, potatoes, corn and watermelons. The paint withered away outside their house, but over the years the family spirit remained intact.

"I was strict," said Mrs. Campbell. "I believed in them coming home and going to bed here. If you get in at a decent hour, I can give in, kind of."

"It got through their heads," she said, adding that she never even had to pay a traffic fine for her children.

"It's kind of funny how your mom can see things you don't as you're coming," Earl said. "Hey Earl," she'd say, "you're gonna do things."

"In order to appreciate the good things, you got to be down," he said, referring to the "Bad Earl" days.

"To be honest, I did some bad things. To be honest, I'm proud I did them. That's where my mother comes into the story. I was fighting to survive. I didn't want to do those things. I fought to stop."

Mrs. Campbell explained that period of her son's life. "He was going over fool's hill," she said. "Smoking maybe two packs of cigarettes a day in junior high school."

"He was hanging out with the wrong crowd of guys. I got on his tail about that. He was doing a little gambling, starting to drink a few beers.

"I told him that if he kept on and got involved with the police, he'd just have to stay in jail because I couldn't pay to get him out."

"One more thing she did," Earl said, "was put more emphasis on the teachings of Jesus Christ. It made me the football player I am and the guy I am when I'm not playing football."

The lectures worked. Even now,

Earl travels with his brothers Tim and Steve, also UT players, to weekly church services in Austin. And his mother laughs when she recalls the story of how the "Tyler Rose" was thrown out of an Austin nightclub for ordering orange juice without alcohol.

"I feel good when I read in the papers about Earl and the way he is," she said.

Chaps win cage lifter

Midland College took a little something old and blended it with a lot of new to paint a Blue Monday for McMurry College, 104-74, in the season's basketball opener at MC gym.

Three veterans from last year's 23-9 Region V finalists and a flock of freshmen combined to give Coach Jerry Stone a rousing sendoff in his Chaparral coaching debut.

The Chaps swung back into action tonight, 7:30, against Laredo Junior College at the MC gym.

After a weekend which was so pleasant that the last thing anybody wanted to do was go indoors for a sport, the weather turned nippy just in time to give the cage opener some semblance of timeliness.

IT TOOK the Chaps 10 minutes to warm up to their task and in three minutes time a game that was 20-19 McMurry was suddenly 29-23 Midland as the Chaps began to move on the fast break and feed 6-6 Ricky Hudgins inside.

By halftime, the Chaps were leading 51-35. Hudgins had contributed 14 points and after picking up a quick third personal in the second half, took the rest of the night off.

Ron Jones, the outside sharpshooter, wound up with 19 to lead the Chaps who had seven players in double figures.

Richard Holland had 14, Henry White, a good looking prospect from Chicago, had 12 while Luis Alvarado, 6-7 freshman not only scored 11 points, but had the distinction of becoming the first Chaparral to foul out this season.

Five-nine Cullen Mayfield, Texas' high school player of the year last season in leading Dallas South Oak Cliff to the state AAAA championship, directed the attack while he was in the game and scored 10 points, as did Alvin Mayes, the letterman from Tulsa.

Jerry Woster led McMurry with 17. IT WAS White and Hudgins who ignited the Chaps spurt to a 16-point halftime lead while Mayfield, Mayes and Jones kept the rally going with some plain and fancy outside shooting to up the difference to 61-42.

McMurry rallied from a 71-49 deficit to trail 77-57 with eight minutes left, but MC took it out of reach with a 15-0 spurt that made it 88-57.

Newcomers Holland, who scored all of his points in the last half, Ricky Murdoch, Alvarado and Mike Denny combined with Jones and Mayes as the Chaps increased its advantage to 98-64 with a 25-5 surge.

The Booger is not a nose guard

ANDREWS—With a name like Booger Brooks, the Andrews quarterback could have been your average athlete and received more ink than hundreds of other high school athletes, but he may become a legend in the likeness of Ted Nelson after what he did Friday night.

The Mustangs faced their biggest challenge of the year Friday when they met the previously undefeated Fort Stockton Panthers in a battle that decided the 2-AAA playoff representative. Brooks knew what he had to do, and he did it. That's how legends are created.

The Booger rushed for 273 yards on 35 carries, scored three times (all of Andrews' touchdowns) and completed one of four passes for 13 yards. That one completion got Andrews out of a hole at their own 11-yard line. And once, when Andrews was on the two-yard line and leading by a mere point, The Booger danced 58 yards, to seal the fate of the game. You can't ask any more of one player.

EVEN MORE impressive is the fact that all of this came against a team that had given up only 177.3 total yards per game to the opponents; this year. Fort Stockton is not a team that Led by No. 1-ranked Texas, the nation's nine top college football teams retained their positions today in The Associated Press ratings while defending champion Pittsburgh reappeared in the Top Ten and unbeaten Colgate cracked the rankings for the first time ever.

Texas defeated Houston 35-21 to remain No. 1 for the third week in a row. The Longhorns, 8-0-0 and the nation's only perfect-record team besides No. 20 Colgate, received 61 first-place votes and 1,308 of a possible 1,320 points from a nationwide panel of 66 sports writers and broadcasters.

However, a week ago, with 59 panelists voting, Texas received all but two first-place votes, the others going to runner-up Alabama and seventh-ranked Kentucky. This time, Alabama and No. 5 Notre Dame received two votes apiece with one for Kentucky.

Alabama, a 24-3 winner over Louisiana State, totaled 1,072 points to 1,020 for No. 3 Oklahoma, which thrashed Oklahoma State 61-28. Fourth-ranked Ohio State trounced Illinois 35-0 and received 908 points while Notre Dame crushed Georgia Tech 69-14 and earned 798.

Next came Michigan with 688 points off a 63-20 whipping of Northwestern, followed by Kentucky with 568 after a 28-6 triumph over Vanderbilt. Eighth-ranked Arkansas, a 35-9 victor over

Longhorns still supreme; Aggies slip in grid poll

By The Associated Press

Florida State, Southern Cal, California and Louisiana State with Arizona State and Iowa State tied for 19th.

However, California lost to Washington 50-31. LSU bowed to Alabama and Iowa State was knocked off by Colorado 12-7.

Texas Tech, which had been in the Top Twenty until losing to Texas a week ago, climbed back in by beating Texas Christian 49-17. North Carolina made it for the first time this season by holding Clemson to a 13-13 tie and Colgate flattened Bucknell 49-17.

Texas goes to well for fourth backup

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — If the name Sam Anselmy doesn't exactly ring a bell for you, have a little sympathy for Texas Coach Fred Akers.

It's likely that the freshman quarterback will be at the helm Saturday when the No. 1 Longhorns take on Texas Christian.

Anselmy was projected into the role Monday night when it was learned that a knee injury to Randy McEachern would keep him out of the contest.

Anselmy will be thrust into the spotlight the same way McEachern was when first string quarterback Mark McBeth fell to an injury, to be followed to the dispensary by backup Jon Aune, all in the same quarter.

McEachern came on in the rough contest with Oklahoma and led the Longhorns to victory and the climb to the nation's No. 1 ranking.

Anselmy has run four times for four yards this season, and completed his only pass for 15 yards.

McEachern had some encouragement for Anselmy. "Sam knows what we're doing," McEachern said. "He's been at it in practice all fall and been at our meetings."

Akers wasn't so convincing. "Somebody's got to play," he said. "McEachern, who was Texas' third-string quarterback when the season started, will try to rehabilitate the injury in time for the televised game against Baylor Nov. 19 in Austin."

Rudy Izzard, a junior defensive back who was a quarterback at San Angelo High School, is a possible backup to Anselmy.

Junior Ted Constanzo, who is still recovering from summer knee surgery and was being redshirted, has worked out along with starting strong safety Ricky Churchman, who was a quarterback at Pearland.

"We have gone eight games with Constanzo as a redshirt," Akers said of his reluctance to trust the San Antonio player into action. "We'll just have to see what happens."

Groomsmen included former Dallas teammates Dan Reeves and Dave Manders.

About 750 persons, including Morton's parents, attended the ceremony.

When the Rev. Bill McRae of Canada pronounced the couple man and wife and introduced them to guests as Mr. and Mrs. Craig Morton, the guests broke into a long round of applause.

The newlyweds left the church in a carriage pulled by giant Clydesdales. A 13-year pro football veteran, Morton played college football at California and then joined the Cowboys in 1965. He was traded to the New York Giants in 1974 and went to Denver this year.

Denver QB ties knot

DALLAS (AP) — Veteran quarterback Craig Morton, who has led the Denver Broncos in their best season ever this year, married longtime sweetheart Susie Sirmen in a candlelight ceremony Monday night.

Morton, 34, and Miss Sirmen, in her 20s, had been close since Morton's days as a Dallas Cowboy. She is a Dallas model.

Before the lengthy ceremony at the downtown First Presbyterian Church, Morton stood at the altar smiling and waving at friends that included Dallas Coach Tom Landry and a former teammate and now coach Mike Ditka.

Jardine gives fans wish

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — What sickened John Jardine's players most about his sudden resignation Monday was that some ill-mannered fans got their wish.

And Jardine acknowledged that an ugly scene after his University of Wisconsin football team lost a fourth successive game last Saturday was the main factor in his decision to quit after nearly eight seasons as head coach.

Several fans sitting near the tunnel commenting the field and locker rooms taunted Jardine with refrains of "Good-bye Jardine, Good-bye, Jardine, Goodbye, Jardine, we're glad to see you go." The players also were jeered and some were pelted with apples and toilet paper.

"The fans pay their eight bucks and they can do whatever they want. I mean that sincerely," a red-eyed and drawn Jardine, 41, told a hastily arranged news conference.

fans Saturday had been the main factor in Jardine's decision.

"It was the reaction of the fans, and what that did to the players," Houston said. "He didn't want that for his family. We love him very much. He's a super guy who means a whole lot to us."

Defensive end Scott Erdmann deplored Saturday's incident.

"It was very low class," Erdmann said. "I'd rather have 10,000 real fans behind us than 80,000 like that. It gave me a gut rot feeling. It was like hearing someone in your neighborhood saying something bad about your father, and Coach Jardine is like a father to me."

Suit could sink NBA teams

NEW YORK (AP) — A lawsuit filed in New York state court could sink the American Basketball Association's season if it is not resolved by the end of the year.

The suit, filed by the American Basketball Association, is against the National Basketball Association and its players' union.

The suit claims that the NBA and its players' union have violated the antitrust laws by refusing to allow the ABA to compete for players.

THE NETS did not pay a $320,000 installment due in September on their $1.5 million debt to the Knicks, and failed to meet several extensions of the deadline, including one last Wednesday.

The indemnity agreement allowed the Nets 20 years to complete payment, but the Knicks called in the entire outstanding debt when no payment was made last week.

Carter, who frequently has engineered out-of-court settlements in basketball cases, did so in the earlier Nets-Knicks case. The Nets agreed to pay the Knicks an additional $1 million when the New Jersey team moves into its own facility in East Rutherford, N.J., now under construction.

Arkansas runs into problem

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Even before stepping onto the practice field, Arkansas encountered problems Monday in preparing for its Southwest Conference game Saturday against Texas A&M.

"How do you impersonate a 275-pound fullback and a 9.3 (seconds) running halfback?" said Razorback Coach Lou Holtz. "I think we'll tie the two guys together."

Holtz was referring to Texas A&M's fullback George Woodard as well as the Aggies' halfback sprinter Curtis Dickey.

"A&M gives you a lot of problems before you go on the field. They also run the wishbone, which is a formation we haven't seen this year," Holtz said.

ABC lures Pitt with TV date

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The University of Pittsburgh's football program may have cost itself a cool million bucks when it decided to switch the game with Penn State from Nov. 19 to Nov. 26 to accommodate the television people from ABC.

The Panthers will pick up $250,000 for appearing on national TV, but they may have moved themselves out of a shot for the $1 million Orange Bowl invitation.

The bowl bids will officially be extended Nov. 19 and the way things stand right now, Pitt will have to settle for the Gator Bowl and a $350,000 payday.

"We couldn't turn down the $250,000 for appearing on national TV," explained a Pitt spokesman. "We knew we were taking a risk, but we felt we had no choice. Turning down the ABC offer would have been like taking a field goal off the board for a touchdown."

The bowl people, as a general rule, are a fidgety lot who like to take the best available teams at the earliest date. By switching its game with Penn State, Pitt has put itself in the position of asking — no make that begging — the bowl committees to hold off a week before making a final decision.

"Pitt decided to move the game and they'll have to live with that decision," said Bob Lafferty, chairman of the Orange Bowl Selection Committee.

"It would probably be impossible for us to wait. You know the Cotton's going to go on Nov. 19, you know the

Dorsett learns calculus offense

DALLAS (AP) — Tony Dorsett admits that the Dallas Cowboy offense is so complex he is just now beginning to run with the abandon he flashed as a Heisman Trophy winner out of Pittsburgh.

"In the early games, I would be in my stance trying to concentrate on the count just hoping that (quarterback) Roger Staubach wouldn't audible," says Dorsett. "I remember coming out of class one night thinking 'Wow, this is just like calculus.'"

DORSETT, the leading ground gainer in college football history, is slowly but surely being worked into the Dallas system by headmaster Tom Landry, the only coach the Cowboys have had.

"I'm not complaining about my playing time because it has taken a period of adjustment," says Dorsett. "Coach Landry has shown he has confidence in me. He is leaving me in there as a receiver now on third down. We didn't pass much at Pittsburgh but I'm improving as a receiver."

DORSETT SAYS, "I'm doing most of my running on instinct. It will probably take several years for me to completely pick up all the defensive patterns and the different blocking schemes."

"It's exciting being here on a team like Dallas. I just wished I had done more studying at home earlier in the year. Of course, I got injured in camp and that set me back."

Dorsett says at one time he didn't really feel that he was part of the team. That was early in the season when he wasn't playing a lot.

"That's something I had never experienced before," says Dorsett. "I got the impression some people didn't care but I feel much more comfortable now."

Dorsett brashly set his goal at 1,500 yards in summer camp. He has earned 472 hard yards in eight games, including a brilliant 77-yard scoring dash against the St. Louis Cardinals, longest in the Dallas record books.

Dorsett has also proved invaluable around the goal, scoring five touchdowns with his explosive inside running.

"I still think 1,000 yards are possible," says Dorsett. "That other figure (1,500) is way off."

He says, "If we keep winning it doesn't make any difference. Winning—that's the main thing."

DORSETT SAYS there is the feeling on the Cowboy team that they have yet to play an outstanding game although they lead the National Football League in offense.

"We haven't really played a solid offensive game all year and we're hoping that will come against St. Louis Monday night," says Dorsett.

Dorsett says other teams are starting to key on him when he comes into the game as a replacement for starter Preston Pearson.

"My biggest asset is my speed and I think they are keying on me—particularly to the outside," says Dorsett. "I'm just going to have to start running inside more."

Minnesota probation lifted

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — University of Minnesota Athletic Director Paul Giel says he is impressed with the National Collegiate Athletic Association decision to lift an indefinite probation against all university men's sports except basketball.

"I'm sorry the basketball probation was extended," Giel said. "But considering how long all of this has been going on, the lifting of the probation on our entire program should be a morale booster for our athletic department."

The university basketball program remains on probation until Oct. 28, 1978, the university said Monday.

The lifting of the probation was expected after the university ended an impasse with the NCAA by declaring basketball players Mike Thompson and Dave Winey ineligible.

University Vice President Stan Kegler said he expects a decision early next week on the type of suspension the NCAA will hand Winey and Thompson.

That decision is expected to be announced before the Gophers' first basketball game Nov. 16 against the Cuban national team.

The NCAA had contended that Thompson, the Big Ten scoring champion last season, had sold season tickets for more than their face value and that Winey had accepted free lodging at a lake home from a university booster.

The basketball probation dates from the day University President C. Peter Magrath informed the NCAA of the ineligibility action taken against the two 6-foot-10 basketball players.

The basketball probation actually amounts to an increased penalty and means the team will not be able to appear in post-season tournaments next spring or on NCAA-sponsored television games this season.

Niekro faces problem

ATLANTA (AP) — Veteran Atlanta Braves pitcher Phil Niekro says the team officials considering whether to make him the next manager of the National League team are worried about his ability to pitch and manage at the same time.

"The biggest thing everyone is worried about is whether I could pitch and manage on the same day. That's the big question," he said Monday following a meeting with Braves' owner Ted Turner and Bill Lucas, director of personal management.

"Bill and Ted and I strictly talked the managing end today. We talked about what coaches I would have working with me, pitchers, any trades I would make. We talked at length," the 39-year-old Niekro said.

"I still feel the same as I did when I said I wanted to manage," he added. "I haven't backed off at all."

Niekro, who has been with the Braves organization for 18 years, said he would make some surprising decisions if he were hired to fill the slot left open when Dave Bristol was fired last month.

"I would make some changes. I'm not apt to say what. The Braves have some good talent, but the changes I would make would surprise a few people," he said.

Niekro has stiff competition for the job, including minor league manager Ken Boyer, Braves Richmond farm team manager Tommie Aaron, and New York Yankees Coach Bobby Cox.

Cox, a former Braves farmhand and a Class AAA manager at Syracuse, is considered the frontrunner.

But Niekro said, "Lucas and Turner said nothing about it (choosing Cox)," and said he felt he was as much a contender as anyone.

The Robert E. Lee Rebel Booster Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the Lee Cafeteria and will honor the varsity football team along with Rebel band and Rebelettes.

At the same time, the Midland High Bulldog Booster Club meets in the MHS Cafeteria.

The film of Lee's 24-6 loss to Abilene will be shown while Bulldog fans will look at the 34-8 loss to Abilene Cooper.

Midland and Lee wind up the 1977 football campaign in Memorial Stadium Friday night.

Sports in brief

TENNIS — Unrated Keith Richardson upset thirdseeded Eddie Dibbs and Francisco Gonzalez surprised fifthseeded Bob Lutz in the $10,000 Stockholm Open Tennis Tournament.

Richardson ousted Dibbs 7-6, 3-6, 7-5 while Gonzalez, a little-known Puerto Rican, struggled through two tiebreakers en route to a 6-4, 6-7, 7-6 triumph over Lutz.

In other matches, Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia ousted 19th-seeded Peter Fleming 7-6, 4-6, 7-6; fourth-seeded Mark Cox of Britain topped Boris Mitton of South Africa 6-2, 6-2; sixth-seeded Sandy Mayer defeated Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia 6-2, 7-5, while 13th-ranked Jan Kodet of Czechoslovakia beat Bill Lloyd 6-1, 7-5 and South Africa's Ray Moore, seeded No. 14, beat Britain's John Lloyd 7-6, 7-6, 6-2.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — The president of the West Texas Club at Forest Hills, N.Y., says he has been negotiating with the Women's Tennis Association to hold the women's U.S. Open there in 1978.

The U.S. Tennis Association has moved the U.S. Open to Flushing Meadows, N.Y., next year. West Side President Lindley Hoffman said his club is interested in hosting the women's event to preserve tradition at the West Side club, which has hosted the U.S. Open since the early 1900s.

FOOTBALL — Safety Glen Edwards, who left the Pittsburgh Steelers last week because he wanted more money, will return to practice today, a team spokesman said.

Edwards, a seven-year National Football League veteran who played in the past two Pro Bowl games, walked out last Thursday and missed the Steelers' 27-17 loss to Denver Sunday.

A team spokesman said that Edwards had met with Steelers President Dan Rooney and agreed to return. He apparently will do so under his current contract, which has one year and an option year remaining.

COLLEGE — An indefinite probation against all men's sports at the University of Minnesota — except basketball — has been lifted by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the school announced Monday.

The university basketball program remains on probation until Oct. 28, 1978, the announcement said.

The lifting of the probation was expected since the university ended an impasse with the NCAA by declaring basketball players Mike Thompson and Dave Winey ineligible for NCAA rules violations.

BASKETBALL — Madison Square Garden, owners of the National Basketball Association's New York Knicks, filed a $3.2 million lawsuit against the New Jersey Nets in U.S. District Court Monday.

The suit was over indemnification payments the Nets must pay as part of the pro basketball merger for the right to operate an NBA franchise within the Knicks' territory.

BOWLING — Paul Moser of Southwell, Mass., won his second Professional Bowlers Association title with a 300-pin victory over Johnny Petraglia in the $60,000 Syracuse Open.

Moser, grabbing a permanent lead after the second round, began the final round with a 31-pin lead and never was challenged.
