Address reaction varies

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Anwar Sadat's address to the Israeli parliament was greeted with support from moderate Jordan, silence from Saudi Arabia, a Palestinian vow to assassinate him and calls by Syria and Libya for his overthrow.

Activity in Beirut and other Middle East capitals virtually halted Sunday as Arabs clustered around radios to hear the broadcast of the first speech by an Arab leader to the Knesset, Israel's parliament.

Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin, who spoke after Sadat, did not answer the demands specifically but repeated his position that "everything is negotiable" at a peace conference.

The Egyptian president's speech was "excellent because Sadat did not deviate from the Arab line," a Jordanian government source said. "He explained the Arab stand fully within a humanitarian framework, and this will bring new benefits."

The Saiqa Palestinian guerrillas, who are controlled by Syrian President Hafez Assad, charged Sadat with "the ugliest treason in the history of the Arab nation" and said: "The blood of the traitor must be shed. He must be followed to the farthest corners of the world until the death sentence is carried out."

A Syrian government statement broadcast by Damascus Radio called on "our brothers of Egypt ... to restore your national honor and dignity ... disgraced and besmirched by the visit (to Israel) of the traitor Sadat."

Libya, which broke diplomatic relations with Egypt because of Sadat's trip, urged "Egyptians in every town and village to rise, take arms and topple the traitor."

Iraq's Baghdad Radio said: "Sadat the traitor has recognized the Zionist entity through his speech."

Sadat returns to hero's welcome

By LARRY THORSON

CAIRO (AP) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt ended his historic journey to Jerusalem and returned to Cairo today after pledging with the leader of Israel: "No more war."

Millions of Egyptians lined the route from the airport to Cairo, hailing their returning president as a "hero of peace."

In his final statement to Israel's cabinet members in Jerusalem, Sadat said: "Let us raise two slogans — no war, and security."

"No war. Let every girl, every woman, every mother, here and in my country, know that we shall solve all our problems through negotiations around the table rather than start wars.

"We've had enough — four wars in 30 years," said the Egyptian president who risked his political future and the unity of the Arab world to speak in the capital of his enemies.

Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin echoed the sentiment: "We have decided, no more war between our nations. We will establish peace and live in peace."

He then gave Sadat a gift of nine ancient candlesticks and said: "From time to time, have a glimpse of it and remember your friends in Israel."

At a news conference earlier in the day, Sadat said it was now Israel's turn to take "hard and drastic decisions."

"I have already taken my share of risk in my decision to come here," he said. But he repeated that there could be no compromise on Arab demands for the return of all territory captured in 1967 or on the creation of a homeland for the Palestinians.

Begin pronounced the visit "a real success for both countries and for the cause of peace."

Sadat left Jerusalem in his special Boeing 707, flanked by four Israeli Kfir jet fighters, at 4:14 p.m. A 21-gun salute thundered over Cairo Airport 40 minutes later as his jet touched down.

At the foot of the ladder Sadat was hugged and kissed by Vice President Hosni Mubarak, Prime Minister Mamdouh Salem and Sayed Marei, speaker of the Egyptian peoples' assembly.

Many of the greeters at the airport had been bussed there from as far away as the port city of Alexandria. Supporters hoisted multi-colored signs reading: "Welcome hero of peace," "Long live the leadership of Egypt," "God bless your moves for peace" and "Welcome to your land of peace."

After shaking hands with members of his cabinet, parliament, the armed forces and the diplomatic corps, Sadat boarded an open limousine for the seven-mile ride to the presidential mansion on the banks of the Nile.

Security at the airport was exceptionally tight, apparently because of the assassination threat against Sadat by the Syrian-backed Saiqa guerrilla organization. In his open car Sadat was flanked by security men forming a human shield.

In Jerusalem, the departure scene was almost a replica of Sadat's triumphant arrival on Saturday, 44 hours and 16 minutes earlier.

Sadat stood at attention flanked by Israeli President Ephraim Katzir and Begin for the national anthems of Israel and Egypt and inspected an honor guard.

A 21-gun salute boomed across the airport, three trumpet fanfares were sounded. Bouquets of flowers lay at Sadat's feet. The huge pennant reading "Welcome President Sadat" in Hebrew, Arabic and English still hung across the terminal building.

Asked for a last comment on Israeli television, Sadat said: "Thanks for everything. Thanks for everything."

At the news conference, Begin said that the chief achievement of Sadat's visit was the start of a "serious direct dialogue ... not only between Israel and Egypt but with all the other states."

"The key word is continuation," said Begin. "We agreed we are going to continue our dialogue, and ultimately out of it will come peace."

Sadat said he was "deeply touched" by the emotional reception he received on the first public visit to Israel by an Arab leader. Begin called it a "momentous visit."

Sadat said the main aim of the two countries should be "no more war, whatever happens to us."

Murder charges filed

Evelyn Smith, 63, remained in Midland County Jail today after she was charged with murder in the shooting death of 53-year-old Johnnie West, of the 400 block of South Benton Street, Sunday night.

According to detectives, West was shot once in the left shoulder with a small caliber weapon about 9:30 p.m. Sunday.

Peace Justice John Biggs pronounced the man dead at the scene.

Police said they believe a woman left the shooting scene and went to a neighbor's house to call the Midland Fire Department ambulance. It was at that time, detectives said, they were notified of the shooting.

Detectives said West was dead when the ambulance arrived.

Bond for Smith was set at $10,000 by Biggs.

Action now women's top concern

HOUSTON, Texas (AP) — The National Women's Conference is ending its historic meeting by debating how to implement its far-reaching recommendations on equality, including federal aid for poor women's abortions and civil rights for lesbians.

The only one of 26 proposed resolutions that has not been adopted — calling for a Cabinet-level women's department — was held over for discussion today.

Many delegates opposed such an agency for fear it would lessen rather than increase women's power.

The other 25 resolutions were approved easily Sunday in a session that saw little conflict between conservatives and others at the conference.

Delegates endorsed proposals to end discrimination against homosexuals in housing, jobs, credit, public accommodations, the military and child custody cases.

"We must not oppress any part of our society or of womanhood," said Eleanor Smeal, president of the National Organization for Women, who said she spoke as "a homemaker and the mother of two children."

Betty Friedan, considered the mother of the modern feminist movement, admitted she had been wrong in crusading to keep lesbians out of the movement for years, calling lesbians "the lavender menace."

"This issue has been used to divide us too much," she told a hushed convention hall. "It has alienated many of us. As someone who grew up in Peoria, as someone who perhaps has loved men too well, I have had trouble with this issue."

But, she said, "we have all been mistaken in our focus on this issue ... I believe we must protect the women who are lesbians in their own civil rights."

The delegates and the thousands of observers roared their approval, many of them taken by surprise by Ms. Friedan's switch.

The opponents to the provision ranged from Dorris Holmes of Atlanta, head of Georgia's Equal Rights Amendment ratification council, who said "this issue has always been an albatross around the neck of the women's movement," to Kathryn Nelson of Maitland, Fla., who said, "It's against the law of God."

At the conference's third session Sunday, minority women scored a major coup by getting massive approval for a proposal on their concerns that was much more comprehensive and specific about the problems of minorities than the one originally put before the session.

Afterwards, black, Hispanic, Asian and Indian women said the adoption of their proposal meant that minorities would begin participating more freely in the women's movement.

Four killed in accident

Four persons were killed about 2:35 a.m. Sunday in a pickup accident about one-tenth of a mile east of Midland on U.S. Highway 80, according to the Department of Public Safety.

The dead were identified as Reynaldo Hernandez, age unknown, and Delia Hernandez, age unknown, both of the 600 block of West California Avenue in Midland. Also killed were Rita Hernandez, 20, and Andres Hernandez, 25, both of Big Lake.

The DPS said Delia Hernandez and Rita Hernandez were both pronounced dead at the scene by Peace Justice John Biggs. Andres Hernandez was pronounced dead at Midland Memorial Hospital on arrival and Renolado Hernandez died about an hour later in the hospital.

According to the DPS, a pickup driven by Andres Hernandez, was westbound on U.S. Highway 80 when it left the road on the north side and overturned three times. The pickup finally came to rest on its wheels in a vacant lot.

All four persons were thrown from the pickup, according to DPS reports. The accident was investigated by DPS Trooper Ronnie Watson.

Former Scoutmaster has enviable legacy

RANKIN — At this juncture in time, you wouldn't exactly call Roy Bell a pioneer.

But he's contented with the foundation he helped prepare for kids back when he was Scoutmaster here from 1933 to 1945.

"Oh, I'm proud of some them (boys)," Bell said. "They turned out fairly well. I don't know if I had anything to do with it."

Likely he did. Seven of his Scouts worked their way up to Eagle ranks. Three of 'em were his sons: Howard, Bobby and Roy Lee Jr.

"That's kind of a record, I believe," Bell said. "I don't know."

Bell was the depot agent for the Santa Fe Railroad here for 37 years. He retired in 1969.

He still has his old Scouting outfits. For the past several years, Bill

Greek conservatives victorious, but opposition party makes gain

By PHILIP DOPOULOS

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Premier Constantine Caramanlis and his conservative party won re-election today with a reduced but safe majority to maintain Greece's pro-Western policies. But Andreas Papandreu's anti-American, anti-Western party made big gains.

With 95 percent of the votes in Sunday's general elections counted, Caramanlis' New Democracy Party had 42.2 percent of the vote and 174 of the 300 seats in the single-chamber parliament, a majority of 48.

The New Democrats got 54.3 percent of the votes and 220 seats in the 1974 elections, a majority of 140 seats.

Papandreu's Panhellenic Socialist Movement took 25.2 percent of the vote and became the major opposition party with 91 seats, up from 13.5 percent of the 1974 vote and 15 seats.

Caramanlis' victory meant he could continue his campaign to get Greece into the European Common Market and his efforts to seek a solution to the bitter dispute with Turkey over Cyprus, which caused Greece to withdraw from participation in the military programs of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Papandreu, a former American citizen who headed the economics department of the University of California at Berkeley, waged a well-organized, nationwide campaign opposing membership in the Common Market and NATO and American bases in Greece. He called for a social revolution for the benefit of the agricultural and working classes.

Much of the Socialists' gains appeared to be at the expense of George Mavros' Union of the Democratic Center, which waged a low-key campaign. The party got only 12 percent of the vote, sharply down from 20 percent and 61 parliamentary seats in the 1974 elections.

Caramanlis apparently lost considerable support to a new ultra-right National Camp Party, which supporters of the military dictatorship and monarchists backed to embarrass the premier for jailing the leaders of the junta and holding the plebiscite that ended the monarchy in 1974.

The National Camp got about seven percent of the vote.

Warmer forecast

Warmer weather is in sight.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said that Tuesday should be warmer with the high temperature reaching the upper 60s, and the low tonight only in the upper 30s.

The overnight low Monday was 33 degrees with the high Sunday reaching a balmy 78 degrees.

Winds tonight, the weather service said, should be from the southeast at 5 to 10 mph.

The record high temperature for Nov. 20 is 83 degrees set in 1942, and the record low temperature for Nov. 21 is 23 degrees set in 1975.

Most area towns reported cold temperatures, clear skies and winds early today, with Rankin reporting cloudy skies.

The National Weather Service issued a severe thunderstorm warning just before dawn for four counties in the Golden Triangle area.

Jefferson County Airport officials reported rain falling at a rate of an inch and a half an hour and winds gusting at almost 50 miles an hour during the storms. Small hail was also reported in the Port Arthur area.

Growth strikes few city areas like avalanche

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series on Midland's growth and its effect on city government. The third part of the series, dealing with more problems and some possible solutions, will appear in Tuesday's edition of The Midland Reporter-Telegram.)

By JIM STEINBERG

An influx of 7,000 new residents has been estimated to have taken place in Midland between 1970 and 1977. Most of that population gain—amounting to roughly 12 percent—occurred within the last three years.

For some departments in city government, the sudden growth in population has hit like an avalanche. A good example is the building inspections department.

In 1973, building permits for $12 million in new construction were issued by the building inspections department. But in 1976, permits for $59 million were issued. And the same-sized crew of city inspectors were called upon to supervise the necessary on-site checks while these new projects took shape to meet the needs of a decidedly growing city.

City Manager James Brown said the work stresses placed on the building inspectors got so heavy the situation became "something of a morale problem." As a stop-gap measure, the zoning code inspector was shifted over to work on building inspections, Brown said.

On August 24, the Midland City

Argentine jet crash claims 79

BARILOCHE, Argentina (AP) — A chartered Argentine jetliner with 79 persons aboard crashed in stormy weather near this southern resort early Monday and all aboard were feared dead.

A spokesman for Austral Airlines said the BAC-111 twin jet carrying 74 passengers and a crew of five, left Aeroparque Airport at Buenos Aires about 10 p.m. EST Sunday on a direct flight for Bariloche, a lake resort in the foothills of the Andes 1,000 miles southwest of Buenos Aires.

Aviation authorities declared an emergency after the plane failed to arrive on time Sunday night.

A search plane said it spotted the wreckage in a rocky area about 20 miles from here, but officials said it reported no signs of survivors.

Military and police patrols headed toward the wreckage but progress was slow because of bad weather.

An airline spokesman said the plane was carrying tourists but their nationalities were unknown.

A GROUP OF DELEGATES at the National Women's Conference in Houston whoop it up after the adoption of the controversial sexual preference resolution at the session Sunday night.

MC board to consider telephones

The Board of Trustees for the Midland Junior College District will consider Tuesday whether to expand the present telephone system with Southwestern Bell or with a private company, Communications Corp. of America.

"With the addition of the fine arts building, Chaparral Center and the occupational-technical addition, we have gone past our capacity to add phones to our system," said Midland College President Dr. Al G. Langford at the last board meeting.

"Up until today (recently), we had only looked at the Bell Telephone system, but we were contacted today (at the last meeting) by a private company, Communications Corp. of America, who is in the business to supply equipment that you can buy or lease-purchase," Langford said.

In other business the board will consider a budget amendment, liability insurance and personnel matters.

Growth hits few city areas like avalanche

Council approved the 1977-78 budget which included a provision to hire 32 additional employees to meet the increased demands of Midland's "reboom."

Because summer road work crews and building construction workers often accidentally cut into existing water lines, the burden on these city pipe workers was doubly hard, said Public Works Director Fred Baker.

ployment has to offer although he admits that at the entry level of $546 to $572 a month paid by many city jobs, some employees may not be able to appreciate those benefits.

Among those hired have been two new inspectors to add strength to the inspections department which has already issued permits for more than $55 million of new construction in Midland this year.

Prosperity and growth has come to Midland in obvious ways, like the rising skyline, and less obvious ways, like the increasing flow of sewage.

"If it's better, I haven't noticed it," said one building contractor who preferred his name not be used as he frequently deals with city government.

In the 1971-72 fiscal year there were 4.355 million gallons of sewage flowing daily into the city's treatment plant at Cloverdale Road and Interstate 20. And this year there are 5.268 million gallons flowing daily into the sewage treatment plant, said City Utilities Director John Lowe.

Going into October, the department had 21 jobs to fill, and entering November there were still 11 positions open. Not reflected in these figures is the tremendous turnover in personnel experienced by the department.

And from another perspective, Corky Bosworth, president of C. A. Gray Plumbing, said the city is still behind 45 to 60 days on the taps.

On Tuesday, Lowe will discuss with the city council the hiring of a consulting engineering firm to study the needs for future expansion of Water Pollution Control Plant No. 1 to handle the increased volume predicted in the middle 1980s.

"We have to get going five or six years ahead of time to be ready," Lowe said.

He added that Odessa does not seem to have the backlog: "I don't know why but they seem to be handling the problem better," Bosworth said.

Perhaps the hardest hit division in the city government has been — and will continue to be — the Public Works Department.

It is there that problems related to increased construction, traffic and trash pick-up converge.

North loop on council's work agenda

The Midland City Council will consider a resolution—in the form of minute orders—on road construction from the Texas Highway Department during Tuesday's city council meeting at 1:30 p.m. in the council chambers of City Hall.

One aspect of the orders covers the participation of the city in the north loop road around the city and the other involves the proposed Midland-Odessa north connecting road.

Council members will discuss the possibility of hiring a consulting engineering firm to study the needs for future expansion of the Water Pollution Control Plant No. 1.

And negotiations for right of way necessary for the extension of A Street southward to U.S. Highway 80 are expected to continue during the council meeting.

In other action the council is expected to:

- Discuss a proposed contract with the Midland Independent School District, Midland College, and the Midland Memorial Hospital District for the City Tax Office to assess and collect their taxes.
- Consider a request of contractor for an extension of time on demolition work in connection with the Exhibition Hall.
- Consider resolution authorizing the advertisements for bids for removal of the downtown water tower.

Annual Christmas parade set Dec. 10

Midland merchants are making arrangements for the seventh annual Midland Christmas Parade scheduled for 10 a.m. Dec. 10.

The parade is sponsored annually by the Retail Committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce with the city's retailers underwriting the cost of the community event, which includes the Christmas decorations seen along Wall Street and downtown.

"Many people don't realize it, but putting a parade like ours on the street is a major effort that involves a huge number of people, and each year the Midland merchants have successfully financed the project," said Sam Blanck, chairman of the 1977 parade.

Blanck said the parade has grown to be larger than anyone ever expected seven years ago and indicated the 1977 edition of the parade would certainly rank as one of the best ever. Blanck said last year's parade drew an estimated 35,000 to 40,000 persons, many of whom came from out of town.

"One of the main reasons we have the Christmas Parade is to get people outside and to get them in the Christmas spirit. Christmas shopping, especially on weekends, can become a real headache, and having such an event that pleases the children and the adults helps alleviate some of the problems," Blanck said.

The parade is open to all groups and organizations that wish to participate and a total of $1,500 is being offered to the top five winners in the non-commercial float category. Commercial groups and retail stores also are being encouraged to enter. Trophies will be awarded to the top three units in the commercial category.

Persons interested in entering the parade may telephone the Chamber office at 683-3381 prior to the entry deadline of Dec. 2.

FBI prepares to spill secrets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is spilling 53,000 pages of secrets about its efforts to harass civil rights groups and radical political organizations between 1956 and 1971.

The files, being made public in response to requests under the Freedom of Information Act, are expected to yield a harvest of fresh details about the widely criticized counterintelligence programs, called Cointelpro in FBI lingo.

Although the bureau has turned over several thousand pages of Cointelpro files to various groups during the last five years, today's action represents the biggest single chunk of Cointelpro material the FBI has ever released.

But bureau officials said some files will be kept secret because they deal with national security and foreign intelligence matters.

In essence, Cointelpro was the FBI's "dirty tricks" operation. It was a campaign to wreak havoc among militants of the right and left by sending anonymous letters, attempting to get activists fired from their jobs, fostering dissension among political allies and spreading derogatory rumors about militant leaders.

The effort has been roundly denounced by dozens of congressional leaders and legal authorities, and few in the FBI attempt to defend it anymore.

FBI Director Clarence Kelley last year issued a public apology for the bureau's past "abuses of power," including some Cointelpro actions.

Former Attorney General Edward Levi once said of the Cointelpro tricks, "All of them were foolish and some of them were outrageous."

A Justice Department report in 1974 called some Cointelpro practices "abhorrent in a free society."

Kelley and other FBI officials insist that no Cointelpro operations have been carried out since April 1971.

The operation began in 1956 when then-Director J. Edgar Hoover ordered a campaign against the Communist Party U.S.A. In later years, other political dissidents became Cointelpro targets.

Name-calling dominates runoff

HOUSTON (AP) — Frank Briscoe and Jim McConn end their million dollar campaign for mayor Tuesday after trying to lure reluctant voters to the polls with charges and countercharges. Observers predict a runoff turnout higher than the 23.7 percent vote in the Nov. 8 general election race but somewhat smaller than the 45.3

percent recorded in the 1975 runoff. Briscoe, 51, a former district attorney, and McConn, 49, a builder and former city councilman, are after the $20,000 a year job now held by Mayor Fred Hofheinz, who did not seek a third two-year term. Briscoe led McConn, 54,472 to 37,621, two weeks ago when 10 other mayoral candidates were eliminated.

Name-calling has figured more prominently than issues in the runoff campaign. Sharp exchanges between the two candidates followed rapid Nov. 14 developments when Hofheinz blasted Briscoe, his 1975 runoff opponent, and two powerful black organizations called Briscoe a "racist" who persecuted blacks while district attorney. Briscoe accused McConn of "orchestrating" the charges by both Hofheinz and the blacks. Briscoe repeatedly referred to McConn as "my bankrupt opponent." McConn, who has acknowledged a $412,000 indebtedness resulting from the recession several years ago, answered by calling Briscoe a "sick man" who has "absolutely no understanding of finances."

Hofheinz said he is considering filing a slander suit against Briscoe for planting rumors that led to a grand jury investigation of the mayor last spring. The jury later reported it could find no evidence to support allegations a high elected city official had been arrested in a drug or vice raid but released after intervention by a high police official. Briscoe denied the charge.

The two black groups, the Harris County Council of Organizations, which sat out the Nov. 8 election, and the Black Organization for Leadership Development, endorsed McConn and called for a huge black voter turnout.

Only 18.4 percent of eligible blacks voted two weeks ago, with McConn receiving 29.2 percent and Briscoe 4.3 percent. Two years ago there was a 55.6 percent black turnout, with Hofheinz taking 97.5 percent to Briscoe's 2.5 percent.

Through last Tuesday, Briscoe had reported $533,586 in expenditures, McConn $546,022.

Houston city elections are non-partisan but both Briscoe and McConn are Democrats.

Girlie magazine publisher says he'll make magazine religious

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — "Hustler" magazine publisher Larry Flynt says he's seen the light and will turn his girlie magazine away from nudity and sex and toward religion—and it's all due to President Carter's faith-healer sister.

Flynt, 41, and his wife, Althea, were surprise guests of Mrs. Ruth Carter Stapleton at a revival at the independent Church of Castle Hills Sunday night.

It was a night of surprises all around. Before Mrs. Stapleton announced Flynt's identity to the crowd, she told them she "learned prejudice" while attending the Plains Baptist Church—the same church President Carter belongs to and teaches at when he is in Georgia.

"I had a strange kind of conditioning," she said. "I learned not to be good is to burn in hell. I learned prejudice. I learned all of this from the Plains Baptist Church. I lived the first 20 years of my life feeling guilty—feeling guilty of being a human being."

Mrs. Stapleton said Flynt's first real admission that he accepted Christ came in a telephone call from the outspoken publisher Friday night in San Antonio. Flynt was in the Alamo City Thursday to testify before a state legislative committee on child pornography.

During an impromptu interview at San Antonio International Airport before the church service, Flynt said he planned to change the magazine and would incorporate religious articles.

"We won't be discriminating toward women and we're going to deal with different topics," he said. "If we do deal with sex, it'll be promoting a healthy attitude toward sex rather than a perverted one. The way they have it now, man created God in his own image and everything else has gone to hell."

Flynt said he attended the service as proof of his belief in the philosophy of "inner healing" espoused by Mrs. Stapleton and his acceptance of Christ.

"We are in the process of evaluating changes," he said when questioned about the fate of the magazine that has already gotten him convicted on obscenity charges in Ohio.

"We've got to remember Hustler isn't a cause, only a symptom. The readers—the 15 million of them—are reflective of the problems of society and most of them really need help."

Drab mobile homes house airborne narcotics agents

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — To the uninformed, the rather drab huddle of mobile home offices at Kelly Air Force Base here might be just another of those federal programs that gobble up tax dollars.

But looks are deceiving. The trailers are headquarters for 11 men who serve as the country's first line of defense against airborne drug smugglers swooping into Texas from Mexico.

The U.S. Customs air branch is something less than a money gobbler, being composed of "way less than 10" second-hand airplanes that are mostly devoid of sophisticated tracking devices.

Despite the limited funds, Tom Bailey, chief of the air support branch for the San Antonio area, said his office and the Dallas branch office seized 17,386 pounds of marijuana between Oct. 1, 1976 and Sept. 30, 1977.

They confiscated 14 airplanes involved in marijuana smuggling and arrested 53 persons, but Bailey said the seizures account for only a fraction of the known and suspected drug traffic being flown into the country.

The air branch chief said there are 533 known violators involved in various kinds of smuggling activities in his area—all of Texas west of a line from Lubbock to near Del Rio and small portions of Oklahoma and Louisiana.

"Our success rate is increasing, but the problem appears to be increasing a hell of a lot worse," he said. "We're identifying more violators. Maybe we're getting luckier, but maybe we're getting more violators there."

Due to the limited number of aircraft, Assistant Chief of Air Branch Support Charles Miller said Customs pilots play the game of individual surveillance

White House cautious in Middle East comment

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin stand at center stage, President Carter remains in the wings, awaiting the outcome of the historic meetings in Jerusalem.

He described the two men's speeches Sunday to the Israeli parliament as "a moving occasion and a contribution to the cause of peace," but the White House carefully avoided more detailed comment.

"We got the folks together. Let's see what happens," White House press secretary Jody Powell said. "We're not trying to be looking over their shoulders every minute."

It was felt at the White House that the United States' role in the Middle East would be unchanged by the talks and that in the immediate future the administration's primary task would be to encourage and facilitate comprehensive peace talks.

According to administration thinking, Sadat, seen as a high-risk player, took the gamble of traveling to Jerusalem to create a psychological advantage but also out of concern that any progress achieved in the last eight months was about to be undone by stagnation.

It was felt that if Sadat returns to Cairo having paved the way for negotiations over the future of the Palestinians, he may be able to overcome the negative reaction provoked by his visit.

After the president watched the televised speeches by Sadat, Begin,

Teacher tells U.S. oil plan

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A history professor says the United States had a plan in 1917 for invading Mexican oil fields in case of a World War I energy shortage.

But Dennis O'Brien, of the University of California at Sacramento, said the plan became unnecessary because the oil companies cooperated completely, diplomacy was effective, Mexican President Victoriano Carranza was acquiescent and passive, and the United States was just plain lucky.

O'Brien said the existence of the plan was first publicized recently in an article he wrote for a University of Mexico publication. A review of the article was published Sunday.

He said that in November 1917 when the plan was prepared, President Woodrow Wilson was outwardly manifesting a policy of good will and nonintervention toward Mexico, but feared possible Mexican seizure of U.S. oil operations in Mexico.

Mexico didn't nationalize its petroleum industry until 1937.

The plan, revised in 1918, called for the preliminary seizure of the Tampico and Tuxpan oil fields by naval forces, after army officers had been sent as covert agents in the guise of oil workers to prepare the way for the landing.

and Israeli opposition leader Shimon Peres, he consulted with Vice President Walter Mondale and national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

In a statement issued Sunday by the White House, Carter said the talks were characterized by "candor and a spirit of conciliation."

"In that spirit we hope and believe it is possible to move toward lasting peace," he said.

The president participated in a special early-morning prayer service at the First Baptist Church in Washington and then told reporters that Sadat's visit "might very well break down the barrier to peace."

Before rushing back to the White House, missing the first five minutes of the Egyptian's speech, Carter described the Sadat-Begin talks as "a major step forward" that would improve the likelihood of a Geneva peace conference.

Carter, recognizing the strident criticism Sadat faces in the Arab world as a result of the trip, said such opposition was an obstacle to peace because some Middle East leaders fail to respond to the peaceful desires of their people.

"I think it is obvious that the people of the world want peace and pray for peace," he said. "President Sadat is trying to break down the barriers and go directly to the people."

The president suggested that opposition would decrease when Arab leaders see Sadat is not seeking a separate peace.

CDC says some aortic valves contaminated

By B. D. COLEN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — During the past 13 months at least 20 patients with heart disease have been given replacement aortic valves that have turned out to be contaminated with bacteria, according to the federal Center for Disease Control.

A firm that prepares aortic valves of pigs for use in humans, Hancock Laboratories Inc., of Anaheim, Calif., has voluntarily recalled all the valves processed between October, 1975, and July, 1976, to be exchanged for new valves.

Officials of Hancock, the CDC and the federal Food and Drug Administration all stressed that there have not been any deaths associated with the contaminated valves, and that the 20 are a minuscule percentage of the more than 10,000 similar valves implanted during the same period.

Two patients, including a 55-year-old man who had one of the valves implanted at the Washington Hospital Center last December, have become ill with symptoms normally associated with Mycobacterium chelonae, the "but" found on test "coupons" packaged with the valves.

The "coupon" is a small piece of the material which forms the valve, and is packaged with the valve in order to give the hospital implanting the device a way to test the sterility of the valve.

The valve itself cannot be tested because it must be implanted as soon as the package is opened to prevent the valve from being contaminated in the hospital.

Dr. Mack Hooten, the CDC official monitoring the problem, said that "as far as the risk to patients, it's up in the air. We're at a loss here as to what way things should go." However, he said, "We're taking it seriously."

Dr. Manuel Tascon, medical director for Hancock labs, has suggested that any contamination that may have existed most likely originated in the hospitals where the surgery was performed.

Additionally, Tascon said in a telephone interview Saturday that "There have not been patient complications to our knowledge, except maybe, maybe, one... The patients are alive due to the valve itself," said Tascon, who expressed great concern that patients would be unduly alarmed by any publicity about the problem.

In the case of a woman who received the valve in a St. Louis hospital, bacteria similar to the bacterium that causes tuberculosis, were found in her body as well as on the coupon packaged with the valve.

The Washington case, however, is a bit more circumstantial. The bacteria were found in the coupon several weeks after initial implantation. After the valve was removed six months later a slide revealed remnants of similar bacteria taken from the patient's heart.

The man in Washington did well immediately after the pig valve was implanted in his heart, said Dr. James A. Curtin, chief of medicine at the Washington Hospital Center.

The bacteria were not found until after the implant because the valve must be used as soon as its packaging is opened. It takes several weeks for the bacterium to grow.

Bell seeks new trial

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell goes back to court today seeking a new trial that could offset the jury verdict earlier this year that awarded two ex-employees $3 million.

James Ashley, fired Bell executive, and the family of the late T.O. Gravitt, who headed the telephone company's Texas operations until he committed suicide, won the initial battle in a lengthy courtroom fight that was muddied by claims of improprieties among Bell officials.

Bell's request to State District Judge Peter Michael Curry for a new trial contained 767 items of alleged error or exception to the earlier trial proceedings.

The telephone company claims the court erred because of alleged juror misconduct and because of alleged "prejudicial misconduct" by Ashley's and the Gravitts' attorneys.

Bell also claimed the judge should have granted a change of venue for the original case from San Antonio.

Pilot attempted to try again, survivors say

FUNCHAL, Madeira (AP) — Survivors of a crash that killed 130 of 164 persons aboard a Portuguese jetliner say the pilot apparently realized he landed too far down the runway and tried to take off, but the plane plunged 200 feet down an embankment and burst into flames. TAP, the Portuguese national airline, said the Boeing 727 that crashed Saturday night in a rain was carrying 91 Portuguese passengers, 65 foreigners and eight crew members on a flight from Brussels, Belgium, and Lisbon. No Americans were reported aboard. The forward section of the plane cartwheeled onto a rocky beach, throwing some of those aboard into the surf. "The pilot could not find the position for the final approach and circled three or four times," said survivor David van Beetz of Amsterdam. "At the last moment he came down, overshooting the field. The plane was going far too fast. I saw half the plane ripping open. I passed out." The 62-year-old department store executive said when he regained consciousness, the plane was burning around him and he crawled out. "I came in water up to my waist," said Marie Paule Oosterlinck of Antwerp, Belgium. "I tried to get my mother out of the water but couldn't because of my broken arm. Then my son... well, I didn't see him any more. I had to get out of the water myself. I was near the fire and couldn't stand it." Her mother and three-year-old son were listed as missing. Her husband survived. Six of the eight crew members were killed including the pilot, Joao Costa, and his copilot. The Portuguese government ordered an inquiry into the crash. The runway extends across a narrow neck of land that juts into the ocean on the south side of the mountainous Portuguese island 400 miles west of Morocco.

Birth rate levels off

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States' birth rate, which has been dropping steadily since 1959, seems to be leveling off around 14.7 live births per 1,000 persons, according to the American Council of Life Insurance. The Council says the U.S. Bureau of Census predicts an increase of eight percent by 1980 in the number of women of child-bearing age. This factor will push up the number of births slightly, as it has in recent years. Women in the 20-29 age group, which is the period of greatest fertility, account for a large part of this increase, the Council said.

Pittsburgh, Harris whip Dallas, 28-13

PITTSBURGH (AP) — They won Super Bowl IX and Super Bowl X, and the Pittsburgh Steelers smell money again.

"We played like champions," Franco Harris said Sunday after rushing for a career-high 179 yards and two touchdowns, one on a 61-yard dash off tackle, to lead the once-struggling Steelers to a 28-13 victory over the suddenly twice-beaten Dallas Cowboys.

"We're gettin' that old feeling back," echoed Terry Bradshaw, who passed for two touchdowns.

"We win when it counts," said defensive back Jim Allen.

"When things are tough, that's a pretty good trait to have," appraised Coach Chuck Noll.

All those comments were made with big smiles. And there weren't a lot of those in the Steelers' locker-room in weeks past as they labored through contract holdouts, grumbled about officials, cursed their league-leading turnover totals, and endured injuries they escaped in seasons past.

YET THE VICTORY over Dallas keeps them tied with Cleveland atop the American Conference Central at 6-4, and the Steelers are assured the title if they win their last four games with the Jets, Seattle, Cincinnati and San Diego.

While Pittsburgh is riding high following wins over Cleveland and Dallas, the Cowboys have dropped two in a row after winning their first eight. And their National Conference East lead is now just one game over onrushing St. Louis, which beat them Monday night.

"They whipped us this afternoon," Cowboy Coach Tom Landry said here. "We got so far ahead (in the division race), we lost the competitive instinct. We've got to get it and get going again."

The defeat spoiled the homecoming and first NFL start for Cowboy rookie Tony Dorsett, who rushed for 73 yards on 17 tries in his first game here since he led Pitt to the national collegiate title a season ago.

Sensibaugh injured

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals' victory over the Philadelphia Eagles proved costly Sunday when the Cards lost safety Mike Sensibaugh with a broken right arm.

Sensibaugh, a seventh-season National Football League veteran, was injured during the first half of the Cards' 21-16 triumph.

Redskins try Packers in TV game tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — This time a week ago, Washington Coach George Allen knew little about Green Bay quarterback David Whitehurst. He knows now.

"I don't know whether we can rattle him or not," said Allen who admitted watching 500 feet of film on Whitehurst in the past week. "He looks good. I'm impressed with his poise. We're just going to play good sound football and not take any wild gambles — make them earn everything they get."

Whitehurst, 22, an eighth-round draft choice from Furman, will make his debut as a starter tonight when the Packers take on the Redskins in a nationally televised National Football League game.

Whitehurst, who has completed only two of five passes in his two mop-up roles, got the starting assignment after regular quarterback Lynn Dickey broke his leg a week ago against Los Angeles.

Whitehurst took a cram course last week. "His progress has been good," said Packers Coach Bart Starr. "He just gobbles up coaching. He's a sharp young man and he is obviously extremely thrilled with this opportunity. But he's going to be nervous. Anybody would."

"It's the epitome of pressure to go into the nation's capital on Monday night television and face a team as formidable on defense as the Redskins have been," said Starr. "It would pressure anybody and he will play well."

The Redskins, with a 5-4 win-loss record, hope to control the first-down situations against the Packers, 2-7.

Whitehurst's inexperience is likely to show most against a confusing "nickel" or "dime" defense, something that troubles even veteran quarterbacks.

ticularly to be happy about," Dorsett told reporters after finishing the game with one touchdown and a fat lip.

"They really deserved to win," Dorsett added. "We've been playing lousy offensively the last month."

THE STEELERS have played their best offensively the last two games, though they started shakily Sunday as Harris lost a fumble at the Pittsburgh 37-yard line in the first quarter.

Dorsett followed with a 13-yard touchdown run that gave Dallas a 6-0 lead after the extra-point kick was blocked.

The next Steeler play opened the second quarter. Harris cut off the left side, and stepped away from a shoestring tackle by Ed "Too Tall" Jones on his way to a 61-yard touchdown run.

Harris was untouched after he eluded Jones, and he flashed rare speed for a 230-pounder.

"I felt bad when I fumbled, but Terry called the very same play when we got back on the field and I broke it," said Harris.

"After the play I told Terry, 'Hey man, thanks a lot. Thanks for calling my number again.'"

"That's the kind of thing we really need, and that really made me feel good."

With 5:26 left before halftime, Roger Staubach slickly faked a handoff to Dorsett and threw a 23-yard touchdown pass to tight end Jay Saldi to give Dallas a 13-7 lead.

BUT BRADSHAW put Pittsburgh ahead to stay at 14-13 with 2:50 on the second quarter clock with a 9-yard scoring pass to Lynn Swann.

Pittsburgh added two third-quarter touchdowns on a 28-yard pass from Bradshaw to John Stallworth and a two-yard run by Harris, set up by 48-yard interception return by Allen.

"We lost again, but we're getting better," said Landry.

"We played a better ball game over the whole game than we did against St. Louis. Pittsburgh just made two or three great plays."

Meanwhile, Harris agreed with an appraisal Landry made of the Steelers before the game.

"Pittsburgh is as good as it wants to be," Landry said.

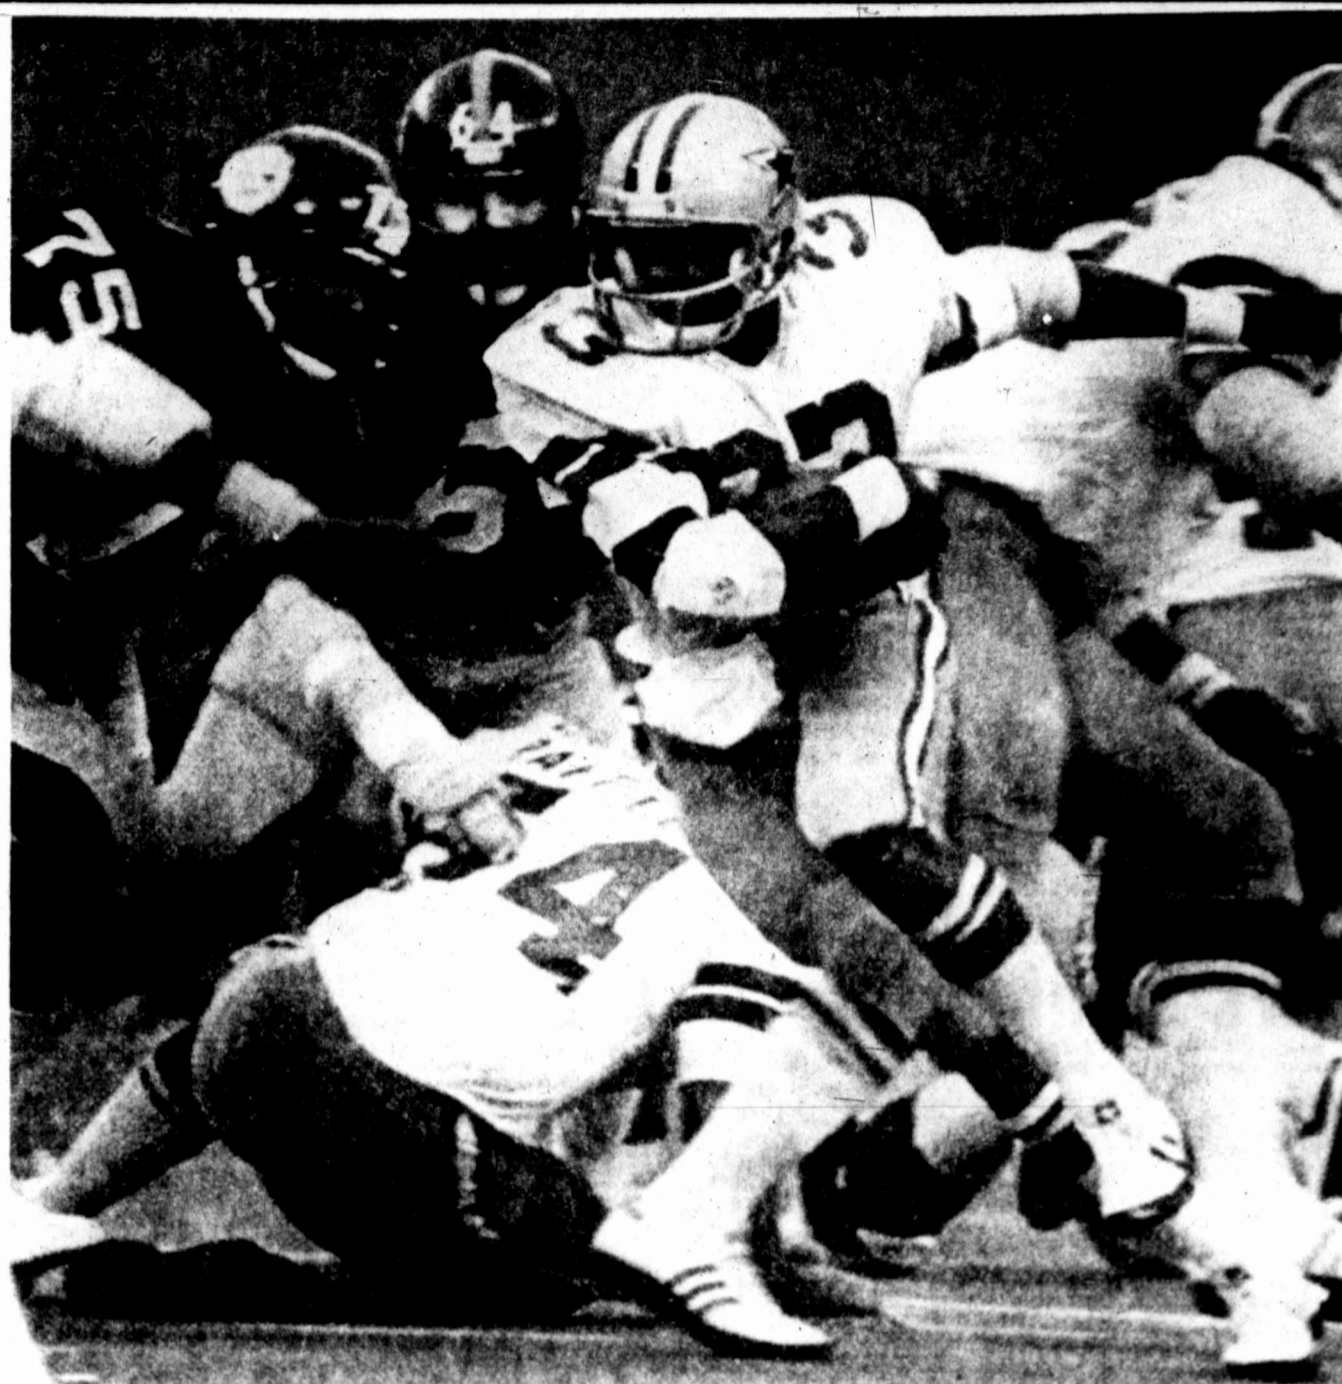

"Tom Landry summed it up," said Harris.

"I think we just limit ourselves. Right now, we just want to go, do it and be the winners we can be."

Walter Payton sets single game rushing record with 275 yards

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

They don't pay Walter Payton to be conversationalist.

They pay him to run with the ball — and he does that better than anyone else in the National Football League.

He proved that again on Sunday, running up a record 275 yards — two more than O.J. Simpson did last Baylor quarterback Greg Woods (9), is jarred loose from ball in second period of action with Texas in Austin Saturday afternoon. Mike Hartinger of the No. 1-ranked Longhorns puts the hurt on the Bear player. Texas won, 29-7, to set up showdown battle with Texas A&M in College Station Saturday. (AP Laserphoto).

Thanksgiving Day — to rechristen Chicago's Soldier Field as "Payton Place" and lead the Bears past the Minnesota Vikings 10-7.

In Sunday's other games it was San Diego 12, Oakland 7; Denver 14, Kansas City 7; Pittsburgh 28, Dallas 13; Cleveland 21, the New York Giants 7; Baltimore 33, the New York Jets 12; Los Angeles 23, San Francisco 10; New Orleans 21, Atlanta 20; Cincinnati 23, Miami 17; New England 20, Buffalo 7; St. Louis 21, Philadelphia 16; Houston 22, Seattle 10, and (of course) Detroit 16, Tampa Bay 7.

Tonight, Green Bay plays at Washington. And next Thanksgiving Day it's Chicago at Detroit and Miami at St. Louis.

"I don't like my teammates running up to me and telling me I've done this or that. It breaks my concentration," Payton said after his explosive 40-carry performance that included Chicago's lone touchdown on a 1-yard burst in the second period.

"The holes were there and I just ran... All I can say is that this was a day when everything went right and we got a big win."

It pulled the Bears (and Detroit as well) within one game of the first-place Vikings in the National Conference's Central Division. "The victory means more to me than the record because we tightened the playoff race," Payton insisted.

They don't pay Minnesota Coach Bud Grant to be a conversationalist, either. They pay him to figure out how to stop guys like Payton. This time he didn't earn his pay.

"Walter Payton's achievements were outstanding," he said. "I can't say anything that hasn't been said before. If I were better with words, maybe I could."

Bob Thomas kicked a 37-yard field goal to give the Bears a 10-0 halftime lead and the Vikings, without Fran Tarkenton, could only muster one touchdown, when Matt Blair blocked a third-period punt and ran it 10 yards for the score.

Chargers 12, Raiders 7

For the second time this season, Denver grabbed first place in the American Conference West. This time it was compliments of San Diego, which kayoed Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler with a first-period knee injury, then beat the Raiders on rookie Rolf Benirschke's field goals of 22 and 46 yards.

"You hate to see it happen," Oakland Coach John Madden said of Stabler's injury. And what he didn't expect to see was replacement Mike Rae's inability to move Oakland. "Who would believe the Raiders would only pass for 30 yards?" Madden mused. "It was really frustrating."

Broncos 14, Chiefs 7

The play that got Denver its winning points was a 23-yard TD pass from Craig Morton to Haven Moses with about 4½ minutes to play — but the plays that made them stand up were made by cornerback Louie Wright and the rest of Denver's defense.

In the final minute, the Chiefs tried a fake punt. Raymond Burks slipped through the line and dashed 51 yards with the ball on the play — 1 yard short of a touchdown.

Browns 21, Giants 7

Linebacker Gerald Irons broke a third-period tie with an interception and a 53-yard run for the first touchdown of his pro career, then Cleveland locked up its victory over the Giants when David Mays, playing in place of injured Brian Sipe, passed, 18 yards to Paul Warfield for a fourth-quarter score.

Colts 33, Jets 12

Bert Jones' scoring strikes of 53 yards to Raymond Chester, 33 to Glenn Doughty and 28 to Lydell Mitchell, plus Miami's loss to Cincinnati, enabled the Colts to widen their AFC East lead over the Dolphins to two games. Mitchell also ran for 52 yards and raised his career total of 5,212, breaking Lenny Moore's Colt record of 5,174.

Rams 23, 49ers 10

Pat Haden threw a 26-yard touchdown pass to Billy Waddy and Lawrence McCutcheon rumbled 42 yards for a score as the Rams beat San Francisco and opened a two-

Longhorns face Aggies Saturday

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Now that Texas has a share of the Southwest Conference football title, the No. 1 ranked Longhorns would like to defeat the Texas Aggie Saturday so they can have a rubber match in the Cotton Bowl with Notre Dame.

The Irish Eyes will be on the Eyes of Texas in College Station Saturday when the formidable Aggies try to spoil Texas' perfect season.

Actually, Texas only needs a tie to earn the host spot against Notre Dame, which lost to the 1969 Texas team but beat the 1970 Longhorn outfit in the Cotton Bowl.

Should Texas A&M, which is 5-1, defeat the 7-0 Longhorns then the Aggies would have to whip Houston Dec. 3 to get into the Cotton Bowl under the Southwest Conference's "last appearance" rule.

Two teams with post-season dates in Florida will tangle in Lubbock Thanksgiving Day before the national television cameras.

Arkansas, which is 9-1 and Orange Bowl bound against the winner of the Big Eight championship, meets Tangerine-Bowl bound Texas Tech.

The best Arkansas could do would be to finish with a 7-1 SWC record since Coach Lou Holtz's club lost to Texas 13-9 earlier in the year. Should A&M beat Texas and Houston then the SWC race could end in a three-way tie. Both Texas and Arkansas have been to the Cotton Bowl since Texas A&M.

Texas swamped Baylor 29-7 Saturday while Aransas was mauling Southern Methodist 47-7. Texas Tech suffered a 45-7 humiliation to Houston but will play Florida State on Dec. 23 anyway. In the other game, Texas A&M blasted Texas Christian 52-23 and announced it will play in the Bluebonnet Bowl Dec. 31 if it doesn't go to the Cotton Bowl.

The big surprise of the day to some was Arkansas' invitation to the Orange Bowl.

However, Holtz said "I wasn't surprised to get the bid because I think we have a very fine football team. I've never seen a football team any happier than ours was today."

SMU Coach Ron Meyer said or Arkansas "They're one of the best defensive teams in the nation. We're lucky it wasn't 80-0."

That quote came after Meyer was hit in the head by an Orange thrown from the stands.

Notre Dame made its first bowl appearance in modern history on Jan. 1, 1970 and lost to national champion Texas 21-17. The next year Notre Dame defeated Texas 24-11.

But the Aggies stand in the way of Longhorn dreams for a perfect season.

"The Aggies are next," was the way Texas Coach Fred Akers put it after the Baylor game.

Dalton chosen by Milwaukee in shakeup

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Harry Dalton, who built a baseball dynasty at Baltimore in the late 1960s, has taken over as Milwaukee Brewers' general manager after a stunning weekend purge in which General Manager Jim Baumer resigned and Manager Alex Grammas and player development chief Al Widmar were fired.

Dalton, California Angels' general manager since Oct. 27, 1971, will be given a virtually free hand to strengthen a team that has not been close to a winning season since its inception as the Seattle Pilots in 1969.

Baumer, Grammas and Widmar were victims of the Brewers' most disappointing season since the club moved here in 1970. Despite high hopes and a typically fast start, the Brewers faded in early June and finished sixth in the American League East with a 67-95 record.

Baumer, general manager since 1974, said he resigned Friday night and had been thinking about it for two weeks. He has been offered a job of an unspecified nature in the Brewer organization. If he accepts, he probably would assume Widmar's former duties.

Grammas, former Cincinnati Reds' coach hired by the Brewers' two years ago, will be paid in full for the year remaining on his contract.

The purge was disclosed in an exclusive story by Hank Stoddard, sports director of WTJM-TV, Saturday night. Grammas said he learned of his firing Friday night, hours after the Brewers had held a news conference to introduce former Minnesota Twins' outfielder Larry Hisle, whom they had signed as one of the plums in baseball's free agent re-entry draft.

"We are grieved by the whole situation, but we concluded after months of long and agonizing thought that it simply was time for a change," Brewers President Bud Selig said.

Dalton, 49, joined the Baltimore organization in 1953 and was named the Orioles' player personnel chief in 1965. In his six years in that capacity, the team that had moved to Baltimore as the rag-tag St. Louis Browns in 1953 won four American League pennants and two World Series. He was named major league executive of the year in 1970.

Dalton is considered one of baseball's shrewdest judges of talent. The farm system he developed produced the nucleus of the Orioles' championship teams of the late 1960s and early 1970s, and he supplemented that talent with trades for stars such as Frank Robinson, Mike Cuellar and Don Buford.

Dalton's first task will be to seek a new manager. There was speculation a leading candidate is Robinson, former slugger who in 1975 was appointed by the Cleveland Indians as the major leagues' first black manager. After the Indians fired him in midseason this year, Dalton signed him for the Angels as batting coach.

Dalton, his sales pitch sweetened by some $6 million of California owner Gene Autry's money, signed free agents Joe Rudi, Don Baylor and Bobby Grich for the Angels a year ago. Largely because of injuries to Rudi and Grich, the Angels were one of baseball's most disappointing teams in 1977.

Sporting a California tan and wearing a gray sport coat, Dalton arrived in Milwaukee Sunday night.

Hayes not sorry for hitting photographer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Woody Hayes' punching of a national television cameraman has stirred another storm of criticism from the media.

The Ohio State football coach, livid over quarterback Rod Gerald's fumble in the waning minutes of a 14-6 loss at Michigan, struck ABC-TV's Mike Freedman.

"I make no apologies," Hayes told his weekly Columbus television audience hours after the incident Saturday. "I'm doggone tired of cameras being pushed in my face."

Freedman said Hayes swung a right-handed blow at his stomach. The cameraman said he blocked the punch with his elbow while he was operating a hand-held camera near the Ohio State bench.

"I'm not pressing charges," said the Los Angeles-based Freedman, "unless somebody can tell me how to get $8 million."

"I'm just an ordinary guy trying to make a living. I have as much a right on the sidelines as he does."

Sports writers and broadcasters did not dismiss the incident so lightly.

One writer asked Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke if he planned any action. A broadcaster suggested Ohio State Athletic Director Hugh Hindman do something.

Columnist Joe Falls of the Detroit Free Press termed it a pitiful performance. "For a man who is supposed to be a leader of youth."

Falls, in his Sunday column, said he witnessed the incident through his binoculars and later asked Duke about it in the Michigan Stadium press box.

"Duke said he hadn't seen it and offered only three comments: 'No comment, no comment, no comment,'" Falls wrote.

"If ABC tolerates such action," added the columnist, "it should be ashamed of itself. Its man was only doing his duty."

Jerry Green, a Detroit News columnist, wrote in Sunday editions, "...it was a day when Woody Hayes should have returned to the nursery playpen to twiddle with his rattles."

Hayes did not escape the pens of Ohio writers, either.

"I felt sorry for the old boy," wrote Hal Lebovitz, sports editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer. "I almost forgave him when he went after an ABC-TV cameraman who was focusing on him. In that moment of anguish, he wanted privacy."

"Of course, he couldn't be forgiven completely because he isn't in a private business. But he had to swing out at somebody in his frustration — and in typical Hayes fashion he did."

Loud penalty double reaps poor harvest

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Even a completely unknown bridge player may rival the experts in the way he plays for a single hand. Fellow named Alan Truscott, or something of the sort, played today's hand and then was never heard of again.

The final contract was reasonable, but West doubled in a tone that threatened trouble. West obviously thought he was looking at four sure trump tricks.

Truscott took the king of clubs, cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond. He got back with the ace of clubs to ruff another diamond, cashed the top spades and ruffed still another diamond.

Declarer next led the queen of spades. West, reduced to his four trumps and a club, ruffed with the nine of hearts, and Truscott discarded dummy's last club.

West couldn't afford to lead the ace and ten of hearts. South would ruff a spade in dummy and give up only three trump tricks.

West therefore tried to get out with his last club. Truscott ruffed in dummy and led the last diamond from dummy to discard his last spade.

West had to ruff and lead from the ace-queen of hearts to declare's king-jack.

Sometimes it doesn't pay to double a rabbit. He may be a lion in disguise.

Retired coal miners now worry about pensions, if strike comes

EDITOR'S NOTE — When they worked the mines, they worked with picks and mules. When they joined the union, they feared for their jobs. They're coal miners from the '30s, retired now on pension. Plenty of time to reflect on what used to be — and project what might be if there's a strike next month.

By STRAT DOUHTAT

MOUNT HOPE, W.Va. (AP) — Charley Massey and a friend were reminiscing about the notso-good ol' days when they mined coal with mules and dynamite.

The men, both retired miners, were sitting on Massey's front porch in nearby Price Hill, a small southern West Virginia community once owned by a coal company.

"I started working around the tippie when I was nine," said Massey, 65. "It was that or starve after my daddy died. Later, when I was 14, I went inside the mine. My job was lighting squibs and shooting powder."

"That was back about 1930 wasn't it?" asked his friend, William "Bill" Coleman. "They went to using blasting caps after that. And I'll swear, I believe they were even more dangerous than the squibs."

"I don't know," Massey replied, rubbing the stubble on his chin and reflecting on those long-ago times. "A lot of men were hurt by squibs. They'd think the thing had gone out and they'd go back to take a look, only to have the fool thing explode in their face."

"That's true," conceded Coleman. "You still see a lot of old miners whose faces are pitted with coal dust. I've even seen them with those blue spots in their eyeballs."

His comment brought a long yawn from the yellow tomcat, lazing nearby in the afternoon sun. The frazzled old fellow got up and ambled away, as if bored with conversation he'd heard many times before.

Massey laughed as he watched the cat's retreat. "He's about as old as I am, I reckon. We've had him about 15 years. Let's see, we moved into this house back in 1945. It used to be a boss's house, but the company pulled out in 1938 and I bought it from a realtor."

He paused a moment, watching the mist rise from the hills across the narrow valley. When he resumed talking, he was back on blasting.

"I had a face full of coal dust for awhile. Had myself sandpapered in 1950. The doctor said it was the first time it had ever been done around here. Look, you can't see even a speck now."

"Now mules," he added suddenly. "That's something else."

"They were still using them where I went to work, back in the early '30s," said Coleman, a 62-year-old lay preacher who chain smokes and wears a Tom Dewey moustache. "They'd have carbide lamps on their heads, just like the men; and some of them were smarter than the men. They'd get educated and could do their job better than most men. But they'd get mean every once in a while and try to squeeze you up against the rib."

"Personally, I never worked with mules," said Massey. "But I worked under almost all conditions back in 1929 and '30."

He got down on his knees and showed how he used to shovel "low coal," in a shaft no more than 30 inches high.

Coleman nodded. "And I could tell you about crawling back under the mountain with my dinner bucket in my mouth. Sometimes I'd crawl 1,000 feet to get to the face. That's where the money was when you were loading coal. I've loaded for 35 cents a ton and I've cut coal with a pick, too."

The topic shifted again, this time to the United Mine Workers.

"I joined in the fall of 1931," said Massey. "I signed up out in the bushes. You couldn't do it in the open in those days or you'd lose your job. A deputy sheriff would come around and if there was a bunch of us at the company store, he'd tell us to break it up and go home; he'd say the company didn't want us congregating."

"That's the way it was," agreed Coleman. "Those deputies would carry long sticks and they'd rap you on the shins and tell you to go home. Why, they didn't even allow you to visit each other."

Massey and Coleman are among the some 80,000 retired UMW miners who fall under the 1950 pension plan. Another 5,000 miners get their pensions under a 1974 fund.

"I retired in 1969, after slate fell on me," said Coleman. "My pension is $225 a month, but the fellows in the '74 fund get about twice that much. I don't think it's fair to have separate funds. Us oldtimers built the union and now the young ones are reaping the seeds we sowed while we have to do without."

Massey, who retired in 1970, refused to discuss the situation.

Conservatives raise funds from firms fined by OSHA

By JOHN B. LENGEL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Conservative Union is raising money for a court fight against a federal job safety agency by canvassing businessmen that were cited and fined by the agency's inspectors.

The organization has raised some $200,000 to take a case involving the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's authority to inspect job sites to the Supreme Court.

The organization went to the agency in July 1976 and requested the names of companies that had been inspected, cited for violations and fined. Under the federal Freedom of Information Act, the agency had to comply with the request.

Gary Jarmin, head of legislative affairs for the organization, said letters were then sent to about 180,000 businessmen who had been fined by the agency.

The appeal was made over the signature of Rep. George V. Hansen, R-Idaho, the chairman of the organization's "Stop OSHA" project. The first line in the letter was "Now you can stop OSHA inspectors at the door."

The contributions are earmarked for financing the Supreme Court case brought by one of Hansen's constituents, F.G. Barlow, a Pocatello plumbing and electrical contractor.

Barlow contends that the agency's inspectors should not be allowed into the work place without a warrant. A federal appeals court has agreed with him.

Agency spokesmen say spontaneous inspections are critical to enforcing safety regulations.

The ultimate point, Jarmin said, is to force Congress to rewrite the inspection section of the safety law.

Jarmin said the ACU and other organizations have tried unsuccessfully for years to have the House and Senate labor committees hold hearings on revising the law, and "we were stone-walled."

You can lower your heating bill 24% this winter by lowering the temperature in your home from 74° to 68°.

A setting of 68° during the winter is the one Texas Electric recommends for both comfort and energy efficiency. For each degree above 68° the energy used for heating your house is increased by approximately 4% per degree. As shown by the chart the difference between the recommended thermostat setting and 74° is 24%. At 78° the increase in energy usage is 40% or more. Clearly, the lower you set your thermostat the lower your heating bill is going to be. And after last winter, one of the coldest on record, we think a lot of people are going to be trying their best to use less energy. Remember to change the filter in your heating system regularly, too. A dirty filter causes your heating system to work longer and that costs you more. Check the filter at least once each month. All forms of energy are costing more these days. If you're serious about saving energy and money, request a copy of our energy efficiency tips booklet on the comment portion of your electric service bill.

Confusion surrounds ERA, its predicted effects

By PHILIP HAGER
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — True or false: under the Equal Rights Amendment, women would be subject to the draft, separate public schools for boys and girls would be abolished, and men would have the same right to alimony as women.

The answer: "True," according to most legal authorities on the ERA.

True or false: under the ERA, prohibitions on homosexual marriage would be overturned, unisex public restrooms would be mandated, and separate college dormitories for men and women would be prohibited, the answer to all these questions is "false," according to these authorities.

But confident as authorities are on these questions, based largely on the stated intent of Congress in passing the amendment, confusion and uncertainty still surround the ERA. And authorities concede that nobody really can know for sure all of the ramifications of the ERA before such an amendment has gone into effect, and has been interpreted and applied by the courts, legislators, and government officials.

The operative section of the ERA is stated simply: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

At first, the amendment seemed destined for quick ratification. State after state rushed to approve it. But now, as an anticipated deadline of March 1979 approaches with the amendment still at least three states short of the 38 required for ratification, the ERA seems stalled by a growing controversy over what it would do.

Meanwhile, the Supreme Court in recent decisions has extended new constitutional protections to persons claiming sex discrimination — raising the question of whether the ERA really makes any difference anymore.

Amid the debate, there is widespread agreement on one point: whether or not the ERA is adopted, there will be plenty of lawsuits over sex discrimination for years to come.

If it is adopted, the lack of specifics in the ERA's language will, over the years, provide the flexibility judges like so that they can shape the law to changing times. But in the short run, they will have plenty of interpreting to do.

"The language of the ERA is written in the same grand manner in which many constitutional guarantees have been written," observes University of California at Los Angeles law professor Kenneth L. Karst. "That's an advantage to courts in the long run. But in the near future — assuming it's ratified — lots of litigation will be required."

Some of the ERA's supporters concede that, initially at least, they might face some setbacks when the courts begin to apply the ERA to existing laws that give women special protection.

"The minute ERA is adopted, there'll be lots of lawsuits by men attacking everything from child support for mothers to maternity leave for women workers," says Ann Fagan Ginger, an ERA supporter and associate dean of the New College of California school of law in San Francisco.

"And in those lawsuits I believe that male judges, with no sympathy or understanding or acceptance of equal rights for women, are going to come down with opinions that may destroy the purpose of ERA for a period of time," she said.

The ERA was passed by Congress in 1972 with relatively little opposition in either house. Its stated aim was to ensure that legal rights of men and women would not be determined on the basis of their sex. Thus, for example, a job requiring strength could not be reserved for men strictly on the basis of sex — but would be open to members of either sex who could meet the strength requirements.

At first, ratification by the required three-fourths of the states seemed assured. But opposition developed and controversy spread until now there is almost as much debate over procedure as there is over ERA's substance.

Three states have voted to rescind earlier approval, and there is a squabble over whether they can legally do so.

Also, ERA supporters want Congress to extend the original seven-year deadline for ratification, and there is another legal squabble over that. Opponents liken such a prospect to adding four more quarters to a football game that's nearly over.

Opposition to the substance of the ERA has formed around two concerns.

First, there is philosophical concern that the ERA would vest too much authority in courts and rulemakers in the federal bureaucracy; that it would erode the concept of the family; and that it would subordinate the individual to the group: people would not be judged as people, but as members of one sex or the other.

"The problem with ERA is that it would reshape society on the basis of sexual characteristics," says Howard Phillips, national director of the Conservative Caucus, a lobbying group that claims to have 250,000 members. "It would overload the courts with lawsuits and would result in justice being meted out not on the basis of individual decisions but on arbitrary, federally imposed standards seeking uniformity of result, not opportunity."

Second, there is the practical concern that the ERA is too vague in its purpose and too uncertain in its potential impact.

Former Harvard Law School Dean Erwin N. Griswold, testifying at a congressional hearing last month, raised several questions about how the ERA would be construed by the courts. For example, he wondered, would it absolutely prohibit any sexually separate educational institutions and activities?

"There is the question of boys' choirs and the participation of women in contact sports. Is this the sort of thing we really want from the Equal Rights Amendment?" asked Griswold.

"Is it clear that we want to say that Wellesley College and Mount Holyoke College (women's schools) are unconstitutional?"

(Since Wellesley and Mount Holyoke are private institutions it is not clear whether they would be affected by ERA. However, it is generally agreed that public schools would be.)

On the outside, ERA supporters say such opposition either is based on misunderstanding or is purposeful distortion.

"I sometimes feel we'll be debating over this for the rest of our natural lives," says Anita Miller of Sacramento, president of the National Association of Commissions for Women. "... Family problems, abortion, lesbian rights and some other issues raised by opponents uniquely do not have anything to do with the ERA. The opposition has been very astute and very effective in raising red herrings."

Just what would be the impact of the ERA?

When courts interpret laws, they often look to the laws' "legislative history" — the legislators' statements, hearings testimony and committee reports that attempted to set out the intent of the laws.

If and when the courts are called on to interpret the ERA, they will rely on, among other things, the Senate Judiciary Committee's report on the amendment, stating the ERA's aims.

By no means does the report answer all the questions that would arise in the courts. But it does offer considerable guidance in assessing the probable results of the ERA.

The report, submitted March 14, 1972, says the ERA would affect only governmental action, not private actions and the private relationships between men and women; that otherwise qualified women, like men, would be subject to the draft and to combat assignments; and that labor laws (minimum wages, health and safety rules) must be applied equally to men and women.

The report states further that criminal punishment for men and women must be the same; that state schools and colleges now limited to one sex must admit both sexes; that if spouses have equal resources and earning power, neither would be required to support the other.

Turning to things the ERA would not require, the report specifies that government need not establish "quotas" for men or for women "in any of its activities"; that colleges, prisons and the military do not have to put men and women in the same barracks; and that separate public restrooms are not prohibited.

(Similarly, proponents note, there's nothing in the ERA that prohibits government officials or judges from exercising common sense about such matters.)

Ironically, while debate on the ERA has continued, the federal government, the states and the courts already have invalidated many laws and practices based on sex.

Federal law now mandates equal pay for equal work and prohibits sex discrimination in employment and in federally supported educational institutions. Several states have enacted their own ERAs and have revised state laws based on sex.

In recent years, the Supreme Court has struck down laws that provided certain different Social Security benefits for men and women; that set different ages of majority for men and women; and that favored men over women as administrators of estates.

But the court also has declined to invalidate a private company's exclusion of pregnancy-related disabilities from its disability insurance program. And it has refused to overturn a lower court ruling that upheld the legality of separate public schools for scholastically superior boys and girls. Had there been an ERA, its supporters say, at least the school case might have been decided the other way.

Nonetheless, the court last term expressed new concern over laws treating sexes differently.

Striking down an Oklahoma law that set different legal beer-buying ages for men and women, the justices ruled that henceforth laws based on sex would have to meet a stricter standard of review. Such laws would be declared invalid, the court said, unless they "serve important governmental objectives and (are) substantially related to the achievement of those objectives."

The new standard is not so strict as the one the court applies to laws based on race — which, being "inherently suspect," are highly likely to be struck down. But as a practical matter, the new standard means that laws treating the sexes differently must have more than just a "rational basis," the standard for most other laws.

Is the ERA still needed?

Its supporters say it is — to bring a conclusive end to sex discrimination. They contend that its adoption would be of symbolic importance and, conversely, if it fails, its rejection might lead to a loss of rights once gained.

"Even though some barriers seem to be falling, there is still a definite need for the ERA," says Kathleen Peratis, director of the Women's Rights Project of the American Civil Liberties Union. "If ERA dies, it can't be doubted that a lot of the reforms we've achieved will just be shelved."

CIA proposed ways to kidnap leaders of N. Vietnam, but couldn't find them

The Washington Post — During the Vietnam War U.S. intelligence agents proposed ways of kidnapping North Vietnamese leaders, but "we couldn't even identify where the North Vietnamese lived, much less kidnap them," a former CIA official said Sunday.

Frank Snepp, who spent five years in the Central Intelligence Agency's Saigon office, said in an interview on CBS' "60 Minutes" that the proposal by the CIA and the Pentagon was made in response to a request by then National Security Adviser Henry A. Kissinger.

Kissinger, Snepp said, was frustrated in late 1971 and early 1972 in Paris negotiations with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho and asked for the intelligence contingency studies to see if there was "some way to get those negotiations off dead center."

Snepp discussed the kidnapping study, which he said was "rather amusing," in connection with the publication of his book, "Decent Interval."

The book charges that the April, 1975, American evacuation of South Vietnam was a disaster caused by major intelligence failures by U.S. officials in Vietnam and Washington.

The CIA has charged that Snepp violated his secrecy oath and a specific promise to CIA Director Stansfield M. Turner that Snepp would submit his manuscript to the agency for security clearance before publication.

Snepp repeated in the television interview, which was taped a month ago and released Sunday night, what he wrote in his book: that he decided to disregard his oath because the CIA had made selective leaks to the press in order to "whitewash its role" in the evacuation.

In his book but not in the interview, Snepp said one CIA and Pentagon proposal "called for the assassination and/or kidnapping of one or more of North Vietnam's leaders, on the theory this might precipitate such turmoil in Hanoi the survivors would be obliged to bow to U.S. demands."

But he added in the book, "Our intelligence on the life and times of the North Vietnamese was something less than perfect."

Kissinger could not be reached for comment. However, "60 Minutes" interviewer Mike Wallace said Kissinger denied any knowledge of a plan to kidnap North Vietnamese leaders.

"What would we have done with them if we got them?" Kissinger asked, according to Wallace.

Snepp also said Kissinger's negotiations with the North Vietnamese were so secret that the CIA first learned of their progress "from our best agent inside the Communist command."

"As a matter of fact, Kissinger so misled the South Vietnamese that on the very day of the ceasefire, President (Nguyen Van) Thieu didn't even have a complete copy of the Paris accord. He didn't know what Kissinger had negotiated for him," Snepp said. Describing the chaos of the last days of the Thieu regime before the Americans left and the North Vietnamese took over, Snepp said U.S. embassy employees in Saigon had been ordered to burn stacks of American money.

"It almost got burned up," Snepp said, "but the fellows who were to do the burning absconded with some of the funds. They took it out under the dresses of their Vietnamese girl friends." Snepp added that they took out $80,000 to $90,000.

He also said South Vietnamese officials were working to get $220 million in gold, the remainder of their government's national treasury, out of the country.

Bananas carry on in traditional style

Bananas add a mellow touch to holiday fare. Try them in Steamed Banana Pudding for dessert, or in Chunk Banana Condiment to complement holiday meats.

NEW YORK CITY—How varied are the origins of our holiday traditions! As chroniclers of winter holiday customs have noted, we hang ancient Teutonic sun-symbols on our doors and decorate Alsatian trees. We feast on turkey, first domesticated by the Aztecs, and follow it with a Christmas pudding redolent with tropical spices.

Steamed Banana Pudding, then, is right in keeping with tradition. Although the festive holiday pudding originated in England, this version draws its mellow goodness from fresh bananas, the sweet fruit from warm, sunny climes. They are combined with graham cracker crumbs and aromatic spices and added to standard ingredients that give the pudding its cake-like texture. The mixture is poured into a mold, tightly sealed and placed in a deep kettle along with boiling water. Simmer for about 1 1/2 hours.

The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association says that the pudding is most delicious topped with tangy, native American fresh Cranberry Sauce.

The meats traditional to winter holiday dinners also have diverse cultural origins. While turkey is, of course, from the New World, ham has long been favored in Scandinavia. And roast pork is the choice in parts of Central Europe. Whichever you choose to serve, Chunky Banana Condiment is a marvelous accompaniment. Simultaneously sweet and savory, this relish blends the flavors of ripe bananas, chopped fresh onions and colorful red grapes in a syrup of sweetened fresh orange juice.

These banana dishes add more than tradition to the holiday menu. Bananas contain a wide assortment of nutrients, including Vitamin C. And they pack an additional nutritional bonus in that they are low in calories and sodium, and contain virtually no fats.

Choose bananas according to the way you plan to serve them. Greentipped, or slightly underripe, they are fine for broiling and sauteeing or, as some prefer, for eating out of hand. Full yellow is the degree of ripeness most commonly chosen for eating raw. For baking purposes, however, those bananas with a brown-flecked skin will usually be sweetest.

STEAMED BANANA PUDDING

- 2 cups sliced, very ripe bananas (2 large)
- 1 1/2 cups graham cracker crumbs
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/4 cup all-purpose flour
- 1/2 tsp. baking powder
- 1/2 tsp. ground cinnamon
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. ground ginger

Grease a 4-cup steam pudding mold and lid. A well-greased double thickness of aluminum foil fastened tightly in place may be used in place of a lid. In large bowl, combine all ingredients; stir until well blended. Pour into prepared mold and seal tightly with lid. Place mold on cake rack in deep kettle; add boiling water to measure halfway up side of mold. Cover kettle and simmer 1 1/2 hours, or until a toothpick inserted in center of pudding comes out clean. Remove mold from kettle, cool on wire rack 15 minutes. Loosen pudding with small knife and invert onto serving platter. Serve with Cranberry Sauce. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CRANBERRY SAUCE

- 1 cup fresh cranberries
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1/2 cup fresh orange juice
- Combine all ingredients in saucepan; stir until sugar is dissolved. Cover, bring to boiling. Cook until berries pop, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat, cool. Serve with Steamed Banana Pudding. Makes one cup.

CHUNKY BANANA CONDIMENT

- 1 tbsp. butter or margarine
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 cup red seedless grapes, halved
- 1 tbsps. fresh orange juice
- 2 tbsps. brown sugar
- 3 ripe bananas, cut in 1/2-inch slices

Melt butter in large skillet; saute onion until soft, 3 to 5 minutes. Add grapes and saute 2 minutes. Add orange juice and sugar; stir until sugar dissolves. Cook over low heat until sauce is bubbly. Add banana chunks and stir one minute. Serve warm with ham, pork or poultry. Makes about two cups.

Most too sedentary

BOSTON (AP)—Many Americans may be leading such sedentary lives that they are "virtually motionless," moving about little more than if they remained in bed 24 hours a day, Dr. William Kannel, director of the famed Framingham Heart Study, said here recently.

Kannel said 16 percent of men and 21 percent of women in a group studied in Framingham achieved activity scores of 29 or less. He said that spending 24 hours in bed rates a score of 24.

DEAR ABBY

Her chances of catching bachelor slim

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm an attractive, self-supporting divorcee. (No children.) I've been dating a gorgeous, middle-aged, well-to-do bachelor for six months, and I think I've fallen in love with him.

The problem is that he dates several other women. I know I'm No. 1, but he dates others as a kind of "protection" against marriage. He doesn't lie. He always tells me when he's going off on a weekend with another woman. I think he envisions himself as some kind of "sexual social worker" who dates a whole string of unfulfilled divorcees and widows.

Should I continue dating him in hopes that he'll eventually marry me? He's the only one I see because I want to be available in case he calls—even at the last minute.

From what I've told you, what are my chances of winning him?—PLAYING TO WIN

DEAR PLAYING: Slim. Date others. If you're not available when he calls, he'll appreciate you even more. Set a deadline. If he doesn't pop the question in three months, let the other "unfulfilled" charity cases have your piece of his action.

DEAR ABBY: I am a father who is trying to raise two motherless daughters, ages 10 and 12. My problem concerns some of the stuff they read about in your column.

Can't you soft pedal the sex, Abby? There's enough of it on TV, even in daytime programs. There's hardly a movie they can go to anymore, but do they have to get it in the newspaper, too?

Please don't identify me or the town from which this came. They'd never forgive me. I'm not square; I'm only trying to raise my daughters right.—TRYING HARD Heavens we took your advice and hired a professional anyway.

Well, you guessed it. Something was wrong with "Cousin Jake's" film (all of it!) and not one of his pictures came out! That one paragraph in your booklet certainly saved the day for us. Please print this for other couples who are contemplating marriage.—GLORIA AND DOUG MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): If you follow through with the wishes of higher-ups you find you can advance more quickly. Be logical.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): New projects should be looked into and studied well provided they are practical and well-recommended. Avoid one who is a troublemaker.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Make sure that you carry through efficiently with promises you have made to others. Express kindness to family members.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Contact clever individuals who have been helpful to you in the past and can be of further assistance to you now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Organize your work so that you can reap finer benefits from it. Make the evening a happy one at some social function.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Good day to study new ways for adding to present income. Take time to improve your appearance. Think constructively.

Keeping things hidden from children is no way to "protect" them.

DEAR ABBY: I sent for your booklet "How To Have a Lovely Wedding," and never in my life did I get so much for a dollar. On page 26 you wrote, "Now, for some unasked-for advice: Don't make the mistake so many couples make. Do NOT rely on Cousin Jake to take all the wedding pictures, even though he's a 'good' amateur photographer and has a lot of expensive equipment. Hire a professional! It's not inexpensive, but at least you'll be assured of having some lovely pictures; after the wedding it will be too late to wish you had heeded this advice."

Abby, we have a "Cousin Jake" in the family who insisted on taking our wedding pictures, but thank heavens we took your advice and hired a professional anyway.

DEAR ABBY: How do you think our young people compare with the generation before them?—INTERESTED

DEAR INTERESTED: Despite all the crime, violence and rebellion that has surfaced today, I have seen more compassion, love and caring and less bigotry, prejudice and selfishness than was evidenced 20 years ago.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell those women libbers not to feel slighted when the pronoun "he" or "him" is used when referring to people in general.

"She" and "her" is always used when referring to battleships and tornadoes.—BIG AL

DEAR AL: True. But who wants to be a battleship or a tornado? I notice that "He" and "Him" is always used when referring to God.
