Influx of military aid to Ethiopia reported

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Soviet Union and Cuba have more than doubled their military personnel in Ethiopia in the last three weeks in an apparent prelude to an Ethiopian counteroffensive against Somali forces in the embattled Ogaden region, U.S. sources said Friday.

The State Department voiced concern Friday over a "substantial increase" in the number of Soviet and Cuban military advisers that has accompanied massive shipments of Soviet arms to Ethiopia.

A spokesman declined to give precise estimates on the influx of foreign military except to note that the department had said earlier there were about 400 Cuban and 100 Soviet military advisers in Ethiopia a month

Privately, officials said more than 1,000 Soviet and Cuban military personnel are currently in Ethiopia and that some of them are believed to be with the Ethiopian troops in the Ogaden area, now largely in Somali

.The influx of arms and personnel appears to reflect Moscow's deterleftist Ethiopian government.

The Soviet effort in Ethiopia has become a major issue in the current round of Soviet-American negotiations on limiting arms sales to Third World countries, which began here

Earlier this week, State Department officials accused the Soviet Union of flying without permissionover several countries in an effort to covertly conduct its airlift of

The Soviet airlift, which started three weeks ago, reportedly involves unauthorized flights over a number of countries including Egypt, Pakistan, Turkey and Yugoslavia. It supplements sea shipments of heavy equipment and also involves deliveries of Soviet-built MIG jets.

The Soviets are apparently pulling out all stops to resupply Ethiopia, replacing the long-time U.S. role as the key arms supplier.

Sadat hopes to join Carter-Begin talks

By EDWARD CODY

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat said Friday that he may meet Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin and President Carter soon. But he said he was waiting for a message from Carter on the outcome of the American leader's talks with the Begin in Washington.

Carter telephoned Sadat on Friday night, White House spokesman Jody Powell said, and there could be further communications between the two. But Powell said he knew of no plans for a Carter-Sadat meeting. Sadat called a news conference for

10 a.m. (3:00 a.m. EST) Saturday. Sadat's statement and the Begin-Carter meeting overshadowed the preparatory peace conference here between Egypt and Israel. The meeting, which recessed until Monday, is aimed at laying the groundwork for a full-scale peace conference in Geneva. The Egyptian president, speaking after Friday prayers at a village mosque at Harraniya near the pyramids, said he might meet with Begin within two weeks, perhaps in Egypt. He said it also was possible he would accept Carter's invitation to visit Washington, apparently to discuss proposals Begin submitted to the American president.

Sadat rejected a reported Israeli suggestion that residents of the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River decide their future in a plebiscite after 20 years.

"But let us wait until we see the outcome of the visit of Begin to President Carter and after that I shall be in a position to answer whatever you ask," he told reporters.

Begin met for two hours with Carter to outline "a process for resolving the Palestinian Arabs" proposals for future Israel-Egypt relations, a White House statement

Sources said earlier that Israel was rethinking its position on the West Bank and speculation centered on proposals for some local self-rule for the 650,000 Palestinian Arabs living

"We discussed the most important problems concerning the peacemaking process in the Middle East," Begin said after he left the White House. Earlier, he told reporters there was a "real possibility" he would meet Sadat "in the very near future." But he said he could not say where or when.

The direct contacts and high-level exchanges returned the United States to a principal role in Mideast peace efforts. Washington's position had diminished after Sadat's bold trip to Jerusalem on Nov. 19 which set off a series of fast-moving events.

Officials accompanying Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance on his sixcountry tour of the Middle East said Thursday that Israel was showing 'new flexibility" in its approach to the West Bank, which Sadat says must be returned to the Arabs as part of a complete Israeli withdrawal from

Budget trimmers challenge MX

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's budget trimmers are challenging the Pentagon's call for full development in the next fiscal year of a powerful intercontinental missile that would use a roving launch pad, according to administration

Defense Secretary Harold Brown met with Carter Friday to discuss defense budget matters. It is uncertain when the President will make his final decision on the fiscal 1979 budget, due to go to Congress in January

As things stand, the Pentagon is proposing military budget authority totalling up to about $128 billion for fiscal 1979. But the White House's Office of Management and Budget has been arguing for a limit of about $125 billion

Regardless of the outcome, either figure would be a record and Carter is bound to be reminded of his 1976 campaign pledge to cut defense spending by $5 billion to $7 billion.

Defense officials contend that even with the record totals in prospect, mostly because of inflation, the Carter administration's new defense budget will be at least $7 billion or so below what former President Ford had projected for fiscal 1979. This, they say, would meet the Carter

The mobile missile, or MX as it is known, is one of the more significant issues still unresolved in the Pentagon

Administration sources say OMB believes that full-scale development of what could be a critical U.S. weapon of the future can safely be

Carter already has delayed that stage of development once by trimming the final Ford administration defense budget covering this 1978 fiscal year.

Brown reportedly has concluded that the next major step in development should begin in fiscal 1979 even though some technical questions about the mobile concept remain. Tests due to begin early next year are expected to provide answers to those questions.

Defense officials say they are concerned that a further delay in MX development would reduce the likelihood that the mobile missile could be ready for combat by the mid-1980s. That is when Soviet missile power is expected to reach a size even within the terms of a new nuclear arms limitation agreement as to threaten possible destruction of the fixed land launch bases of the present U.S. Minuteman missiles.

There is also the feeling among Pentagon officials that proceeding with the development of the MX may help assure support by the joint chiefs of staff for a new SALT pact with Russia. The military chiefs are reported to be uneasy about some of the tentative understandings already reached by U.S. and Soviet

The Pentagon has proposed alloting $245 million for MX development work in the 1979 fiscal year, which will start next Oct. 1. This is only a small fraction of the more than $30 billion cost of a completed system of about 300 multiple warhead missiles hidden in miles of underground concrete covered trenches and moved about periodically on rails.

And the one - the basic - segment of the economy which the nation plainly could not do without is that group of businessmen called farmers and ranchers

Food and clothing are basic. Now, it's so very improbable that the nation's farm and ranch operators are going to pull up stakes and move into the city. They'd starve, too.

The people and the government wouldn't allow agriculture to die out. Perhaps tilling the soil is so basic that it's taken for granted by most. What would happen should commercial farming suddenly decline? For one thing, ascending food and clothing prices would make the inflation of the past few years seem mild, even insignificant

For another, victory gardens would be sprouting up in every other backyard. It would be another kind of

Wind-driven sand does little damage in city

By ED TODD

Sand and just plain dirt driven by winds that gusted up to 69 miles per hour created a day-long dust bowl Friday in Midland and in much of West Texas.

No major damage or injuries attributed to the unusually high winds were reported.

However, some houses and trees in Midland were damaged, and some households and businesses throughout the city temporarily were without electrical power after fuses to seven transformers were blown out, said a spokesman for Texas Electric Service

Some minor traffic mishaps were blamed on the high winds that cranked up about 7 a.m. Friday and finally died down 12 hours later.

The highest gust, 69 mph, was recorded at 11:57 a.m. at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Throughout the day, the sustained wind speed averaged between 35 and 40 mph, said weatherman Richard

By 7 a.m., the wind was gusting up to 40 mph and more and by 11/2 hours later, the whipping air was up to 50 Commercial air traffic at the airport was virtually unaffected by the winds, said Ed Stevens, assistant chief of the control tower. Only one aircraft was delayed a few minutes because of the high gusts.

And the prevailing westerly winds were "pretty well aligned with the runway," he said.

"Fortunately, the wind was within a few degrees of runway two-eight," Stevens said. Some light airplanes were flying in the turbulence, he said.

Area towns, particularly those near broken farm lands, were literally showered by the blowing and drifting

"It got pretty raunchy," Andrews County sheriff's dispatcher Mary Jennings said of the persistent winds, which may be a sign of cold gales to

Agencies join study of newest flu virus

deferred for another year.

ATLANTA - An influenza virus called a "distant cousin" of swine flu - reported mostly among children and young adults in 10 Soviet Union cities and Hong Kong — is being tested here by the U.S. Center for Disease Control and by a World Health Organization office in London to avert a possible worldwide out-break, the CDC reported Friday.

Dr. Walter Dowdle, director of the CDC Bureau of Laboratories virology division, said that there is "evidence that the virus is spreading" and that it could reach the United States "before However, Dowdle described the Soviet and Hong Kong outbreaks as 'moderate" and explained that the testing of specimens by the CDC and the WHO Collaborating Center for Influenza are merely precautionary at this point.

'The Soviet Union, through their good offices, let us know about it as soon as it happened - it's for our benefit," Dowdle said in an interview. 'We are now going through the preparations for making a vaccine. If a decision is made by our government to go ahead and produce one, we will

Briscoe pushes carol sing with 'challenge'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Gov. Dolph Briscoe urged state employees Friday to turn out for Christmas carols at the Capitol next Tuesday to answer the "challenge" of atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair.

'My fellow state employees, a challenge has been raised. started a letter from Briscoe.

Press secretary Bob Bain said the letter was in response to Mrs. O'Hair's pledge to confront employees at the Christmas sing-song.

Mrs. O'Hair told a news conference at the Capitol Tuesday she had filed a $9 million suit against the governor to remove a nativity scene from the base of a huge Christmas tree in the Capitol rotunda.

It was then, Bain said, that she made the comments about challenging the carol celebration.

"This is, or should be, a time of peace and fellowship among all people," Briscoe's letter said. "It is our right to gather peacefully, without fear of disruption, in a lawful assembly.

"There may be some who would disagree but there is no necessity to be disagreeable.

"I am confident," Briscoe said, "that attendance at this year's Christmas Carol Hour will evidence overwhelming support for the right of free citizens to express through their presence the high regard held for such traditions

"I hope you would join me in inviting others who would like to share this traditional celebration.

'This year's Christmas Carol Hour could be considered a tribute to those who helped create a nation of free people and ensured that we can join together for the occasion. 'I am looking forward to meeting with you Tuesday."

Mrs. O'Hair was on the West Coast and unavailable for comment and it was not known if she would be back in Austin by Tuesday.

Witness says Hughes interested in home for an expensive Houston development said a representative for the late Howard Hughes had inquired on New Year's Eve of 1975 about spending $1.5 million for three condominiums as a residence for the late recluse millionaire.

Lillian White said she showed the penthouse suite of the St. James Courts, on the outskirts of Houston, to Ray Tedrick, who identified himself as a representative of Summa Corp. and Howard Hughes.

As the first witness called by the state, Ms. White said Tedrick was especially interested "in security, privacy and space.

"He asked about the installation of an outside elevator so Mr. Hughes could be brought in and out without being seen. Mr. Tedrick said he was looking for a Houston home for Mr. Hughes, "she testified.

"Mr. Tedrick also inquried if a helicopter could land on the roof of our high-rise complex. We couldn't answer the questions without first checking with the engineers who built the building. He said to let him know the answers, but there was never a follow;up from Mr. Tedrick or the

The Texas trial of the vast estate, which has been recessed until Jan. 3, is aimed primarily at proving the Houston-born Hughes always considered himself a resident of the state, despite the time he spent in Nevada, California, Boston and in several foreign countries.

At stake for Texas is at least $100 million in inheritance taxes.

The case also involves the validity of the so-called Mormon will left on a desk in the headquarters of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Salt Lake City, Utah.

A similiar trial is now underway in Las Vegas, Nev.

Attorneys for Annette Gano Lummis, 89, and William Lummis, 38. are arguing that Hughes was a legal resident of Nevada, where there is no inheritence taxes.

Also entered into evidence Friday was a deposition from Mary Johnson, manager of the St. James Court ced that Hughes would purchase the three penthouse condominiums until "the time I heard of Mr. Hughes

2,500 voter cards miss their marks

At least 2,500 Midiand County residents did not receive their new voter registration cards which were recently mailed. Voter Registration Deputy Janeice Builta said Friday.

The cards, which become effective March 1, were sent out recently by non-forwardable mail, Mrs. Builta said, and at least 2,500 have been returned to her office by the U.S. Postal Service.

Those who did not receive their cards need to act immediately, she said, or they will be purged from the voting rolls in January.

She said persons who have moved since they registered without notifying her office can follow the instructions on their current blue registration cards. In some cases, she said, rural route numbers have been changed, and those persons also need to file a change of address.

Other persons who did not receive registration cards should go to the tax office in the basement of the courthouse or telephone the tax office for assistance.

Alcan pipeline given nod

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission issued a conditional certificate Friday allowing construction to start on a natural gas pipeline to stretch nearly 5,000 miles from northern Alaska to the lower United Spokesman William Webb said the commission bypassed customary procedures in issuing the conditional certificate because it had no choice after Congress directed it to authorize the pipeline.

Webb said the Alcan Pipeline Co. and its partners have not even submitted a formal application for a permanent certificate.

He said the commission concluded, however, that it should issue a conditional certificate allowing construction to take place while it proceeds to consider the terms of a final certificate through its usual procedures.

The commission had considered possible environmental impacts of the project when it was proposed in competition with other Alaska gas pipeline projects which have since been abandoned.

Blaze contained in New Mexico

LOVINGTON, N.M. (AP) - A wind-whipped fire that destroyed several square miles of range land growth south of Lovington was under control Friday afternoon, but fire fighters were battling two cotton gin fires in the same area.

Fire officials said a blaze at the Custom gin might have been started by the range fire, but that the fire at the second facility, the Lawrence gin, was not. Both gins are north of Hobbs.

Officials said they had been battling the Lawrence fire since late Thursday

The range fire briefly threatened several homes in the area, but officials Friday afternoon had no reports of any houses being burned. Efforts to control the blaze were hampered for several hours by winds gusting up to 60 miles per hour.

Fire officials said about 20 cotton trailers at one of the two gin fires had been burned. Cotton was reported on fire around the gin.

Fire fighters from Lovington, Hobbs, Eunice, Maljimar and Tatum, which had battled the range fire earlier, were fighting the gins fires Friday evening. They were joined by

State official lauds nursing home measure

By JIM STEINBERG

"The passage of Senate Bill 9 markedly strengthened the ability of the Texas Department of Health to regulate nursing homes, including the closing of a home to alleviate an immediate threat to the health and safety of residents," said Dr. Raymond T. Moore while in Midland Friday

Moore a deputy commissioner of the state health department and in charge of the department's Bureau of Long-Term Care, which administers the new law. "The primary problem (before the new legislation was passed) was that the health department and the welfare department were given divided responsibility for nursing home care. "Now it's been pinned down with us," Moore said. The bill also "toughened up enforcement and provided legal protection for people in nursing homes. All district attorneys have been given authority to follow-up and investigate complaints," added State Senator Chet Brooks of Pasadena.

Brooks and Moore were in Midland Friday for the state's fifth public hearing by the Senate Human Resources Committee, on the effectiveness of the legislation to date. Brooks is chairman of that com-

"The hearings are a chance to see if there are any weaknesses in the legislation," said Brooks, who authored the bill.

'Before the passage of SB 9, abuse of an elderly person in a nursing home was not a crime under Texas statutes. What the legislation did was extend the philosophy of the child abuse laws to the elderly, who are in many cases as helpless as the children the old laws provided protection for," Brooks Because of a terrific number of complaints about the treatment of persons in nursing homes and a number of what Brooks called questionable deaths" in nursing homes, the Texas Legislature went into special session in July to pass the act. It went into effect on Oct. 1.

"As a means of providing a realistic impression of the level of care given in nursing home facilities, the act provides that surprise inspections shall be made. The (health) department has instituted a schedule of unannounced inspections - outside of normal department working hours and will continue this practice as the situations warrant. Some of our inspections are being made at night and on Sunday mornings," Moore said.

"To better meet the needs of the public and make complaint reporting easier, the department has installed a toll-free telephone number, that is manned during working hours, and will record calls at other times,' Moore said.

But before using the to register a complaint, Moore strongly urges people to talk to the administrator of a nursing home first.

The number is 1-800-252-9106. Since the installation of the toll free federal judge temporarily blocked the City of Lubbock on Friday from enforcing its solicitation ordinance against members of Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church.

Members of the church, known as 'Moonies," asked U.S. District Judge Halbert Woodward for the order to prevent the city from arresting them for seeking money without a permit required by the ordinance.

In granting the temporary injunction, Judge Woodward agreed with the Moonies' claim that the ordinance is too vague and that it violates First Amendment rights of

They said their permit applications had been tabled twice on the recommendation of the Better Business Bureau because they wouldn't provide financial information about the church.

Pretty Boy's departure comes at a bad time

Kenneth Guthrie is appealing to the public on his 92-year-old mother's behalf in order to find Pretty Boy in time for Christmas.

Pretty Boy, Lula Guthrie's dog, disappeared from the Kenneth Guthrie backyard in the 3700 block of Monty Drive over a week ago. Guthrie was keeping the dog for his mother while she attended the funeral of a son in California it, but all the tag had on it was the veterinarian's name in Anson, where my mother lives.

What makes it sadder on my part is that my mother has a sister in Anson who was going to keep the dog. But she lives out in the country near a highway, and I insisted that it would be better that I keep him because I had a fenced yard. I was afraid that he would try to go home and get loat or hurt on the highway," he eaid.

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP)- A West Texas beef packing plant, yielding to striking farmers' demands for a shutdown of the facility agreed Friday to a 48-hour halt of most meat shipments.

A caravan of tractors rolled toward this West Texas city early Friday morning, Rystad said. MBPXL corporate officials from Wichita, Kan., flew in for Friday morning session.

A committee of four farmers talked with company officials. Rystad said at 2:30 a.m. the committee came out of the meeting and a second committee, made up of 16 farmers from various areas, went in to complete the negotiations.

The farmers agreed we would let the selected loads of beef go and we would retire from the picket lines at the end of a 48-hour period. We have left a token force there." Rystad said Friday afternoon.

The agreement also included a MBPXL promise to write letters to government officials expressing their support for the plight of the farmers.

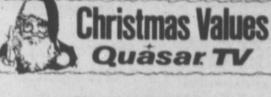

Rystad credits the roadweary farmers who drove their tractors here during the night for the success. When only 20 or 30 showed up they felt we weren't serious. When they realized others were on their way they knew we were serious," he said. "It was an impressive sight.' Rystad said the farmers were planning to go home

'We're rookies at this. We need to reflect on what has happened and what we have accomplished," he Rystad refused to comment on "phase two" of the farm strike. He had previously said it would included more "militant" actions, but no violence.

Church taxation again an issue

Jesus, on the subject of taxes: "Render to Caesar, to restrict freedom of religion. the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." -Mark 12:16

By JOHN DART The Los Angeles Times

The possibility is rather remote that churches, perts in church-state relations. And yet:

-The Rev. Dean Kelley, the National Council of Churches' director of religious liberty, has a book out this year called "Why Churches Should Not Pay

-A church-sponsored conference last month on "Taxation and the Free Exercise of Religion" included pro and con talks on whether churches should

In Washington, D.C., a City Council-appointed citizens' commission has proposed that churches, museums, libraries and other tax-exempt institutions pay 10 percent of what would be their taxes in order to lower the average tax rates. Regardless of the proposal's chances of adoption, it reflects the pressures on governmental bodies to broaden the tax base into nonprofit areas.

-Some government officials are asking whether "church" and "religious" can be defined in legal terms so as to prevent the proliferation of phonys churches as a tax dodge.

A brothel-"church" has been known to offer sisterly love to male parishioners in exchange for donations, according to an Internal Revenue Service at-

The best known instance of bogus religion is the "religious" residents of the Hudson Valley township of Hardenburgh, N.Y.

At last count, 235 of 239 private individuals owning real estate there had been granted a religious tax exemption by the assessor because the owners declared their property to be branches of the Universal Life Church, a mail-order "denomination.

The New York State Division of Equalization and Assessment has challenged the validity of the Hardenburgh exemptions. Similar applications for exemptions have been made in six nearby towns, but only a "sprinkling" were approved in three of the communities.

Main-line church leaders generally prefer a certain vagueness or lack of definition of religion in the law. The form and content of religious practice itself varies so greatly, they say, that legal definitions tend

The hands-off principle that American churches have come to cherish is based on the opening lines of the First Amendment: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof..." Religious organizations often do pay some taxes and assessments. The three-county Los Angeles Catholic Archdiocese, for example, last year paid temples and other houses of worship will soon be $1.6 million in taxes and assessments on rectories, under pressure to render taxes to Uncle Sam, say ex- land held for future use and other property not used for strictly religious purposes.

Church-owned "unrelated businesses" filed federal income tax returns for the first time this year a change in the tax law which major religious bodies suggested to Congress for its Tax Reform Act

During the interim grace period allowed by that act, the Akron, Ohio, Cathedral of Tomorrow cut loose its much-mentioned girdle factory in Brooklyn. Just how many businesses have been affected is unknown, but they include Catholic diocesan newspapers that now pay taxes on their advertising

Before 1970, the U.S. Supreme Court had never dealt with the broad question of tax exemption and the churches.

But that year it upheld a lower court denial of lawyer Frederick Walz' contention that church property tax exemption violates the First Amendment stricture against establishing religion. Walz contended the New York State Tax Commission's exemption of churches indirectly required him to contribute to religious bodies.

In writing the 7-1 majority decision, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger denied that the tax law attempted to establish religion. "It is simply sparing the exercise of religion from the burden of property taxation levied on private profit institutions," Burger said. 'The legislative purpose of the property tax exemption is neither the advancement nor the inhibition of religion; it is neither sponsorship nor hostility," he said, but one of "benevolent neutrality." The question is not forever resolved," says Leo

Pfeffer, special counsel for the American Jewish Congress and a man who has argued more churchstate cases before the U.S. Supreme Court than any other attorney. Pfeffer happens to believe that houses of worship should not be tax-exempt, that they should "pay their fair share of the tax burden." But he also believes that church exemption is "safe" for many years to come, despite the continuing pressures for more tax

Religious tax exemption has had wide popular support in American history even though three Presidents have spoken against it.

James Madison, Ulysses S. Grant and James A. Garfield viewed it as a violation of church-state separation. Grant said in his seventh message to Congress: "I would suggest the taxation of all property, equally, whether church or corporation, exempting only the last resting place of the dead, and possibly, with proper restrictions, church edifices.' 1-The IRS requirement, new this year, that many church-related hospital and other agencies have to file Form 990, which gives financial information,

2-The fear that tax exemption will be lifted by the government in cases where it deems a religious organization's attempts to influence legislation are "substantial." Church groups are fighting mad on the first item

Although filing Form 990 does not require them to pay taxes, religious leaders believe the new IRS ruling enters dangerous territory by talking about what is or is not "exclusively religious:

'Smothered' is right

Oklahoma City's Daily Oklahoman says editorially that irony abounds in the dilemma in which Lawton, Okla., officials find themselves as they contemplate the effect on the city's image of pursuing a federal grant which could provide needed financial relief.

It's the same old story as told and retold in communities across the land, when local government units seek and receive federal funds.

Here's the Lawton story, as told by the Daily Oklahoman:

"To obtain a share of $400 million available nationally under a federal community development action grant program, Lawton would have to qualify as a 'distressed' city. It already meets three of the seven criteria specified by the government. Four 'distress' symptoms are necessary to qualify for a grant.

"Another sympton Lawton municipal officials are considering is the fact the community's economy depends heavily on the nearby Ft. Sill military base. Thus, an entity that has been so important to Lawton's economic health and so much a part of its image now is deemed the key to its being labeled a 'distressed' city.

"Even more ironic is the conprogram's aims. The idea of the grants is to help cities to react cies.

'Yet Lawton civic leaders fear. with good reason, that a 'distressed city' label would only drive away prospective investors. Nothing is as valuable to a city in the hunt for new industry as its good name and a reputation as a thriving, dynamic community.

"Lawton's dilemma is a classic demonstration of the stranglehold Washington gets on local government. Its Big Brother act ends up smothering the cities in red tape.

City of Midland officials know exactly the situation with which Lawton is faced when it comes to federal grants. Plenty of strings, and red tape, are attached. pointing out once again that there is no such thing as a free lunch.

This is but another reason why the Midland City Council, by a 4-2 vote, decided last Tuesday not to apply for a fourth year Community Development Block Grant, after officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development had turned down the city's application for 1977 because the city would not give in to one of HUD's requirements, which the city

YOU WANT WHAT? - HO HO HO HO '

CHARLEY REESE:

Many strategic minerals come from South Africa

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. - South Africa has the ability to start a one-nation embargo against the U.S. that would make the Arab oil embargo seem pleasant by comparison.

Dr. Jack Penn, one of the world's foremost plastic surgeons and an English-speaking South African, said his country could do that because the U.S. gets so many of its strategic minerals from South Africa.

Raising a gin and tonic to his British colonel-looking moustached mouth, he smiled and said, "Of course that's the last thing in the world we want to

He did not smile, however, when he said the current policies of the U.S. . calculated to sever friendship, leading to disaster for all concerned

English-speaking white South Africans like Dr. Penn are viewed by the Afrikaaners, white descendents of early Dutch immigrants, as liberals. The English speakers, for example, have traditionally opposed some aspects of apartheid, but the Afrikaaners National Party has been in power for 30 years.

They are in an even stronger position now thanks to the Carter administration, Dr. Penn said.

Your White House must have been swamped with telegrams of gratitude from National Party candidates," he

But what's most interesting and important for us is that even the liberal white South Africans are in agreement with the Afrikaaners on three important points, according to Dr. Penn:

1. White South Africans will never under any circumstances consent to the one-man, one-vote black majority rule demanded by Vice President Walter Mondale. To do so would mean death and destruction as the various tribes repeated the intertribal warfare that has wracked every black African nation since the departure of European rule

2. The black African states to the north, neither together nor singly nor with Cuban help, can defeat South

3. If the U.S. will leave them alone, South Africans will work out their own destiny in a way that will be equitable for all the people in the country.

Those points are important because the Carter administration is apparently acting on the assumption that the white government of South Africa is doomed - a theory put forth by Jules Nyerere, the Marxist president of Tanzania, in the July issue of "Foreign Affairs," an establishment publication.

"It's absurd," said Dr. Penn, who was a close friend of the late Dr. Albert Schweitzer. I think many Americans would agree with him. In the first place, it's none of our business how any nation runs its internal affairs. How Carter can justify an arms embargo against South Africa and at the same time encourage trade with the Soviet Union, one of history's most murderous dictatorhsips, is beyond the realm of common sense. In the second place, the Marxist countries Carter's catering to are no friends of ours although they're pleased enough to spend American money and sucker us into backing their attempts to install Marxist regimes in Rhodesia, Southwest Africa and South Africa.

In the third place, the majority of white South Africans are not nearly the inhuman racists they are painted by leftist propagandists. South African blacks have a higher standard of living than most people in the so-called independent African nations, not a one of which, by the way, has one-man, one-vote majority

Dr. Penn pointed out, for example, that in the last election every one of 36 extreme rightwing white candidates were soundly defeated by moderates:

It should be obvious, too, that in a country where there are 17 million blacks and only 3 million whites that not all the blacks are screaming oneman, one-vote or they would have it tomorrow

As a matter of fact, unlike the U.S. where black Americans differ only in color from white Americans, South Africa's 17 million blacks are divided into nine major tribes, each with its own culture, language, and customs.

What the whites and a majority of the blacks want is separate development and that is the way the South African government is proceeding, setting up and granting independence to what are called homelands. Within these homelands, the tribes have complete authority to run their own affairs, except for national defense and foreign policy which are handled by the South African government.

Whether any of that seems proper to us or not is beside the point. If it is to be our policy to liberate every ethnic group which does not have its own one-man, one-vote democratic government, then we must go to war tomorrow with the Soviet Union which confines 21 separate nationalities within its own borders.

Bureaucracy through the ages

WASHINGTON - C.N. Parkinson,

pansion can be seen at every period of the bureaucratic age, from its infancy in France to its maturity in America. The birth of the first modern bureaucracy was heralded by the appearance of a handful of royal officials in the French Court late in the 12th century. So feverishly did they multiply that by 1303, a royal decree had to be issued ordering the dismissal of four out of every five

Last August 25, a section of the seventh floor shifted, and several bricks came spattering down. Fortunately, it happened after midnight, when the sidewalks were empty of pedestrians. Otherwise, several people could have been killed.

The morning after the bricks spilled down from seven floors above, limited emergency repair work began. But it quickly came to a halt because of new bureaucratic fuddle. Typically, a spokesman for the housing agency disavowed any responsibility, and the assistant U.S. attorney handling the case brusquely refused to answer our

The inefficiency of the government bureaucracy has been documented again and again. Yet the American people continue to call upon the bureaucrats increasingly to direct and control the nation's activities. The bureaucracy's dominance over other sectors of our society is becoming all-encompassing.

Not only does government at all levels now consume 40 percent of the gross national product, as compared to 10 percent 40 years ago, but every private enterprise of any consequence is now ensnarled in government red

Bureaucratization entails the rigid observance of set rules and procedures, the interminable seeking of permission for any divergence Kept within its proper sphere, such rigidity is beneficent. Imposed upon society at large, it results in

It is also well-established that those segments of the population in the benevolent toils of the bureaucracy become apathetic and succumb to the nothing-can-be-done-anyway syndrome. We frequently see television interviews, for instance, with tenants of public housing. They may well be the descendants of those who cleared the wilderness. Yet they complain listlessly that weeks have passed and no one has come around from the housing authority to fix the toilet or scrape off the flaking paint. All is left to the authorities, but no one trusts them to perform. Eventually this mistrust and resentment will spread to all authority, although the dependence on it does not lessen.

We have seen in our time the fulfillment of de Tocqueville's warning that citizens who do not take part to some extent in the public administration will forget how to make use of their franchise, will stop exercising it and will become disillusioned with elected representatives.

INSIDE REPORT:

President Jimmy Carter's New Year's resolution

Novak

And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Hopes inside the Carter administration for better things next year have been boosted by this word coming out of the Oval Office: Jimmy Carter wants to rid himself of as many decisions as possible in the second year of his presidency.

That is an unpublicized New Year's resolution both Carter cronies and key officials devoutly hope the President will not forget. The overflowing in-basket that has become the trademark of this presidency not only means Mr. Carter may be devoting to much time to the wrong activity, it is also viewed inside the administration and on Capitol Hill as a source of positive harm. But bluntly, the President in solitary contemplation sometimes gets the wrong ideas about matters better left to the experts. This remarkable fact tells much about bitter disappointments, of the first Carter year felt by many of his supporters. Supremely confident of his own intellect, he has developed neither a top-notch White House staff nor a trusted kitchen cabinet of experienced counselors. This leaves no way to protect him from his own misinterpretation of the facts. Accordingly, his New Year's resolution to step back from the deluge of details is welcome news in the administration.

When Carter intimate Charles Kirbo visited here from Georgia recently saying how much older his friend looked, he echoed a prevailing theme of Washington. While the conventional holiday wisdom of 1974 and 1975 was that president Ford ought to cancel his annual skiing vacation and get down to work, the conventional wisdom today is that President Carter ought to let up on his work and get down to play. Actually, there is divided opinion in his official family about the seriousness of the President's workaholic affliction. Some officials point out he is seldom at his desk much after 5:30 p.m. and obviously enjoys weekends at Camp David. But others note that whenever and wherever Mr. Carter takes time off, he carries that obiguitous file folder bulging with work-and actually plunges into it.

The danger of this is best shown by tax reform. Entering the presidency with his campaign litany that the tax system is "a disgrace to the human race" but with precious few details, he became immersed in a self-taught cram course on the Internal Revenue Code.

According to congressional tax experts, Mr. Carter got a few things wrong - dangerously wrong. The decision to set aside comprehensive tax reform because of the needed quick tax cut next year saves him from most such mistakes. But insiders report that, as a self-educated tax expert, the President had checked the wrong box too many times on the option sheets.

There are hordes of tax experts at the Treasury and in Congress whose advice the President could tap."But I ask you," one expert told us, "who is going to stand up to the President, ook him in the eye and tell him, 'Mr. President, you've got this stuff you studied all wrong'?"

Herein is reflected a deeper problem of the Carter presidency. His White House staff is regarded as grossly deficient in organization and partially deficient in high-caliber talent. With Kirbo and Bert Lance both in Georgia, there is no peer who can look the President in the eye and tell him he is wrong.

Mr. Carter is not happy over the way his time has been allocated this year. He has expressed dissatisfaction with the endless meetings selling the Panama Canal treaties and is now signalling that he really would like to delegate deskwork in a more traditional way.

He has asked Vice President Mondale to establish priorities for next year. This time he is devoting a mere fraction of the days spent on the previous year's economic review. Although he has studied the defense budget for unprecedented hours, this is supposed to be a one-time operation. "Everybody figured it would come down to this," said Baltimore Coach Ted Marchibroda. "Everybody figured that the race would go down to the very last Sunday and it has."

With one weekend remaining in the National Football League's regular season, three teams are tied for first place and a playoff berth in the American Conference East. Baltimore, New England and Miami all are 9-4 but, in the mysterious world of the NFL, the Colts' 9-4 is. better than the other two and only by winning can the Dolphins keep their title hopes alive. And if they win, the Dolphins would eliminate New England because of the complicated tie-break formula.

The Patriots will play in Baltimore Sunday and when they take the field, they'll know if they're still alive. An upset by the Bills would keep them in business.

The Colts, meanwhile, are the only team of the three that can decide their own fate. If they beat New England Sunday, they're in. If they lose, they're out. It's as simple as that. Winning for the other two Baltimore, it would be.

Ex-Bama aides lose appeal

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Two former assistant coaches at the University of Alabama lost their appeal Friday of a ruling that upheld the National Collegiate Athletic Association's right to limit the number of coaches.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said that the NCAA rule limiting football teams to eight assistant coaches and basketball teams to two was not unreasonable

The ruling referred to a suit filed by Lawrence Hennesey, assistant football coach at Alabama for 16 . years; and Wendell Hudson, Crimson Tide assistant basketball coach for

The NCAA established the limits on the sizes of coaching staffs in 1976. Because Hennessey and Hudson were on staffs that were larger than the NCAA allowed, they were made parttime coaches

They filed suit against the rule in U.S. District Court in Alabama, but District Judge Sam Pointer upheld the NCAA's right to impose the rule on its voluntary members.

Norton pilot calls Ali bombshell just a ruse

NEW YORK (AP) - Bob Biron, Ken Norton's manager, said Friday that, contrary to Muhammad Ali's bombshell announcement, he doesn't think the champion is ever going to

"It isn't going to happen," he said, responding to Ali's statements Thursday that he had signed with promoter Bob Arum - for $12 million - to fight Norton next September.

Biron, citing a World Boxing Council edict calling for an Ali-Norton bout no later than next May, threw a gigantic monkey wrench into Arum's plans for the September bout - and he may have cost Arum $125,000 as Ali's announcement jolted what was supposed to be a news conference to promote his title bout against young Leon Spinks in Las Vegas, Nev., Feb. 15.

ARUM, OF Top Rank, Inc., also promoting the Spinks bout, said he only needs Norton's signature and that he has deposited $125,000 in a bank to serve as part of the purse. The money goes to Ali if Norton fails to sign by May 1.

"I see no problems in getting Norton," Arum said. "I can't say that I have him, though, because I don't."

Regazzoni signs up with Shadow team

PARIS (AP) - Swiss racing driver Clay Regazzoni has signed with the U.S.-run Shadow team for the 1978 World Championship Grand Prix season, it was learned here Friday.

Regazzoni, one of the veterans of the racing world, had been driving for the small British Ensign team this year after leaving Ferrari.

In the Shadow team, run by Don Nicholls of Chicago, he will be partnered with German Hans Stuck. The team is developing a new car which is expected to be ready for the South African race, according to sources close to Shadow.

That's not what Biron said, after Spinks.""

"It's just a ploy to get Ali some cheap fights," he said. "Come September he'd either retire or claim he's hurt...Arum wants to get a couple of cheap fights for Ali to make money. Butch Lewis (one of Arum's assistants) kept that off in the release when he said, 'We have

BIRON suggested Arum and Ali dropped the bombshell as a means of circumventing a promise Ali made to the WBC, in which he said he would not fight anyone after the Spinks bout, that he would begin negotiating by mid-March for a bout against Norton, that an agreement would be reached no later than April 5 and that the bout would be staged Ali signed up for two more fights within 60 days of the agreement.

Wisconsin hires Ball State's Dave McClain

46-25-3 record in seven seasons as head football coach at Ball State, Indiana, was named head coach at the University of Wisconsin Friday.

McClain, 39, succeeds John Jardine, who resigned Nov. 7 effective at the end of the 1977 season. The Badgers had only one winning season in eight under Jardine, including 5-6

McClain, 39, was given a four-year contract, the first year of which calls for a salary of $33,000. That is the same amount paid to Jardine this

Wisconsin Athletic Director Elroy McClain, who compiled a glittering Hirsch had received more than 60 applications for the job and said he personally interviewed 14 of them.

"I'm very happy the search is over," Hirsch said. "I apologize for taking so much time, but we had a lot of fine applicants. Dave stood out very well. McClain, whose Ball State teams had records of 9-2, 8-3 and 9-2 the last three years, said he was delighted to be selected. He said Wisconsin's excellent academic reputation should be an asset in recruiting.

McClair, said he expects to have his new staff chosen by Christmas,

last game with Redskins

"It's a hard game to figure out," Allen admitted Friday after his fourth closed practice of the week. 'This is probably the best overall Ram team in the last five years. "They have more stability at quarterback, Pat Haden's done an outstanding job. They have more spread all the way around, and their defense, I believe, is No. 1 in points allowed in the league."

Actually, the Rams have given up seven more points, 129 then the NFLleading Atlanta Falcons. But L.A. has huge statistical advantages over the Redskins in almost every offensive and defensive category. The Rams average 330 yards of offense, the Redskins 259, they have scored 34 touchdowns this season, the Redskins 17. They have held opponents to an average of 256 yards per game, the Redskins have yielded an average of 294. HADEN LEADS the NFL in passing with a 58.7 completion average, 11 touchdown tosses and five interceptions. Running back Lawrence McCutcheon, who probably will start but not play the entire game, already has rushed for a teamrecord 1,213 yards.

NOT ALL of the Dallas Cowboys cheerleaders are native Texans. Tami Barber originally hailed from Omaha, but is now a private secretary in Arlington. With 14 years of ballet and six years of jazz dancing, she's well-qualified. (Staff photo)

Dallas-Denver is battle of No. 1s

When Dallas and Denver meet at Texas Stadium Sunday, it will be the No. 1 defense against the No. 1 offense.

Denver not only boasts the best record in pro football this season, with one game to go, but the Broncos show the best defense against the rush in the American Conference.

Morton's feelings? "I don't know how I feel about Dallas. I haven't thought about Dallas..'

Still, there must be memories for Craig, who quarterbacked Dallas to the Super Bowl in 1970 where the Cowboys lost to Baltimore 16-13 as some labeled the former California star "the worst passing quarterback" to play in the Super Bowl.

MORTON BEGAN the 1971 season as No. 1, but Staubach was tired of waiting in the wings and running back Calvin Hill took note of Roger's business-like determination. "Let's just say I'm glad Roger isn't running second string at my position.

By the opening of the season, Morton and Staubach were alternating at quarterback. But Landry soon opted for Staubach and it paid off with 10 straight victories.

The following summer, Staubach hurt his shoulder and Morton took over. The team made the playoffs, but many felt it was despite Craig and not because of him. Most overlooked five touchdown passes dropped by teammates during the season.

That was the year that Staubach produced the miracle rally of 17 points in the final six minutes to beat San Francisco in the playoffs, 30-28.

Staubach rélieved Morton in the third quarter of that game and with his performance regained his No. 1 role. Strangely enough, Morton, the following Wednesday, was named the winner of the Most Popular Cowboy contest.

Morton was finally traded to the Giants in 1974 where he languished in the futility of a losing team. He became popular in New York to blame Craig when things went wrong,

But Denver appointed Red Miller coach and Red recalled the words of Dallas scout Red Hickey, who observed of Craig, "One of these days somebody is going to figure out there aren't many quarterbacks who have taken a team to the Super Bowl. The guy that figures it out may get himself a championship." ... enter Miller.

Despite his recent slump, Dallas Cowboys' quarterback Roger Staubach ranks No. 2 overall in passing efficiency going into the final weekend of the National Football League season.

Roger's rating is 85.9, which is second only to the 90.4 of Los Angeles' Pat Haden. That includes both the American and National conferences. Ratings are based on percentage of completions, average yards per pass, percentage of passes for touchdowns and percentage of interceptions. The relation of his standing in each caregory in to other quarterbacks determines his rating. For example, Staubach in the NFC is second in percentage of completions with a 57.2 to Haden's 58.7. In average yards per gained per pass, Roger is third at 7.21 to Haden's leading 7.57 and Jim Hart's 7.30.

In percentage of touchdowns on passes, Staubach is third with 4.7 while Haden again leads with 5.6 and Philadelphia's Ron Jaworski is second at 5.5, although his total rating of 59.2 places him 10th in the league.

In percentage of interceptions, Staubach is first with only 2.3 while Haden is second at 2.6 and Washington's Bill Kilmer is third with

In preseason speculation, the Razorbacks were picked to finish in the middle of the Southwest Conference. Holtz, in his first year as Arkansas coach, had to replace some defensive ends.

"I felt going into the season we could be competitive if a lot of people came through. I didn't realize we would lose certain athletes during the course of the season. We felt we had a chance to have a competitive football team. And that's all you can ask going into a season is to be competitive.

We felt we would have quite a few close games. We didn't have as many as we thought."

"I felt we would be a pretty good defensive football team but I didn't know we would be as good defensively

RON CALACAGNI would break off a big run. We'd intercept a pass or recover a fumble.

"I don't remember exactly but in quite a few of our games - maybe in eight of them - the average score at halftime, I bet, was 21-0. Yet it wasn't one of those where you went out and just dominated the other team or anything like that."

Holtz said the Arkansas offense kept getting better and better.

We didn't put ourselves in real bad position very often with a punt return or with a turnover in our territority. I think in 11 games, only 13 times did we turn the ball over in our end of the feld, which is a pretty good statistic."

Ron Calcagni, a question mark when the season began, ended the year as the All-SWC quarterback.

"It was like night and day. He and Houston Nutt, they made excellent progress on the football field in the mechanics, etc., but the greatest improvement was in the handling of the squad, checkoffs, just being a coach on the field.

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Larry Costello, former Milwaukee Bucks' coach, said Friday he is interested in coaching the Detroit Pistons, but he has not been contacted by the National Basketball Association team.

Costello now is chief scout with the Houston Rockets. His name, and those of Al Bianchi, Gene Shue and K.C. Jones, have been mentioned for the job vacated when the Pistons fired Coach Herb Brown Thursday.

'I'm interested in getting back," Costello told a Milwaukee Journal reporter by telephone from Newark, N.J. He said he thought the Pistons knew he was available, and that he had been seen enough around the league so that the National Basketball Association team would know "I'm on top of everything.

But, Costello said, "I haven't been in touch with anyone. I haven't heard anything."

After vicious attack, Evel's world collapsed

The Los Angeles Times Syndicate

In 1968, when he announced he was going to jump the Grand Canyon, Evel Knievel was the toast of America. The greatest authentic Western hero since Gen. Custer. Wyatt Earp on a motorcycle. George Hamilton made a movie on his life. Crowds followed him. State fairs competed for his services. So did The Tonight Show. The Today Show. The White House. They brought out a line of Evel Knievel toys. And they outsold Mickey Mouse's.

Miamican't day-dream against Buffalo today

MIAMI (AP) - Visions of playoffs may dance in their heads, but the Miami Dolphins say there's no danger of daydreaming through Saturday afternoon's game with the Buffalo

"Ever since we put ourselves in the position that we couldn't lose anymore," says Miami cornerback Curtis Johnson, "every game's become a big game. This one, we can't lose.

The Dolphins must win today to have any stake in the New England-Baltimore matchup on Sunday. Game time is 4 p.m. each day before a national television audience.

If Miami and Baltimore both win, it's another 10-4 tie, but this time the Colts would take the title because of a better record in the conference.

The Patriots are not completely eliminated. A Miami loss to Buffalo followed by a Patriots victory over the Colts would send New England into the playoffs with a 10-4 record compared to 9-5 for the other two clubs. But Miami's immediate problem is the Bills, who have dropped 15 in a row to the Dolphins and view the streak like a long-overdue bill.

"It has gone through our minds that we could keep Miami out of the playoffs," says Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson. "We'd still owe them after losing so many to them, but it would be a heck of a start toward paying them back.

The Bills' 14-10 victory over the New York Jets last week improved Buffalo's record to 3- 10. One of the three victories was over New

Joe Ferguson

"They beat New England at New England," Dolphins Coach Don Shula said of the Bills. "We know how tough it is to run against New England and we have to show a lot of respect.'

In beating the Patriots 24-14 in November, Buffalo was able to rush for 224 yards, including 155 by Roland Hooks, who was moved in when O.J. Simpson was lost for the season with

"They're going to want to try and control the ball on us. That's going to call for a lot of running on their part," said cornerback Johnson. "They want to keep the ball away from our offense. We're looking for a ball control baseball bat at Sears Roebuck and broke the arm of a relatively puny, 140-pound, cheerful little press agent named Shelly Saltman in a methodical, seemingly senseless, onesided beating in the parking lot of 20th Century Fox's commissary — and the music promptly stopped.

The guy on the phone wasn't the President, it was the district attorney. The offers dried up. Evel had missed this jump, all right. This was not a part for George Hamilton. This was a part for Conrad Veidt - a guy in jackboots and a monocle

Suddenly, Uncle Sam was at the door with a bill for $1.5 million in back taxes. Bankruptcy loomed. The $10,000-a-month payroll was in jeopardy. So were the $20,000-a-month payments. The diamond-headed cane went into mothballs.

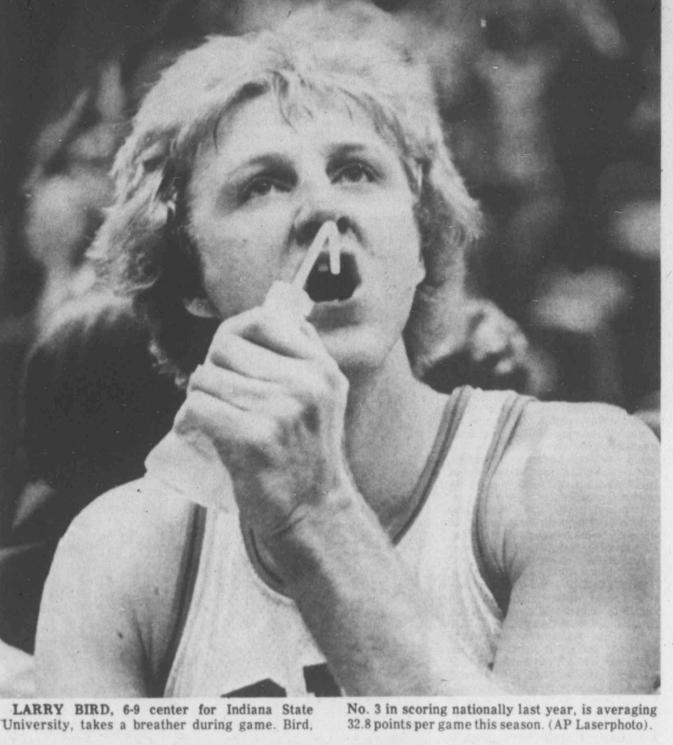

Nobody wanted the image of a red, white and blue hero beating up a little publicist with a ball bat. Evel had really broken his back this time. He wouldn't clear these sharks.

What had happened? Well, Shelly Saltman had written a seeminglyharmless little diary-type book on his adventures as Evel's press agent on the Snake River Canyon jump. It was hardly "Roots" or "Gone With The Wind." Bob Kirsch didn't review it. Neither did Time Nor the New Yorker. It never even came out in

AMONG THE people who didn't read it was the guy it was about. Evel Knievel says he didn't even know it was published till one day he went to a newsstand in Hollywood to buy a book on Elvis Presley. Right next to that, he saw a book about a person he knew better, "Evel Knievel On Tour," it was titled. "The Inside Stuff On The High-Living Daredevil Hero No PG-Rated Movie Could Ever Show!"

The man who had tried to jump the Snake River in a wingtip fuel can-nister, who had orbited sharks in a sputtering Yamaha, who proposed to jump 40,000 feet into a haystack without a chute, was driven into a rage by a paperback. Once again, he hit the wrong lever. He did the one thing you shouldn't do with a damaging book: Put it on page one.

I got a call from Evel the other day Once again, he is trying to put the bones back together, to reconstruct the image. Once again, Evel Knievel has scattered pieces of himself all

NEW YORK (AP) - While the high-priced, well-publicized New York Yankees fussed, feuded and made things miserable for each other last season, Ron Guidry was pitching his heart out.

The 27-year-old left-hander who barely made the team after an horrendous spring training wound up the most effective starter on a championship ball club. And he earned only $30,000 for his troubles.

"I was just glad to make the team rking lot. His image is at after I couldn't get anybody out in the spring," Guidry said. "I didn't know year extension of his contract at a what plans they had for me. I was just happy to be with the team.

Yankees Manager Billy Martin didn't expect much from Guidry, either. But sore arms and assorted injuries to other pitchers forced Martin to turn to the Louisiana fireballer in May. Guidry won a start in Oakland, then another start. He reeled off eight straight victories eventually compiling a 16-7 record, 176 strikeouts and a 2.82 earned-run

Now Guidry can feel comfortable in New York as one of the aces of the Yankees staff. He also can live hefty raise - between two and three times as much he earned in 1977.

DENVER (AP) - The University of Southern Colorado football team has been placed on one-year probation by the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference Presidents Council, Commissioner Paul W. Brechler announced Friday.

Brechler said the probation period started last

He said the decision to place the Southern Colorado football team on probation was made by the presidents council following an investigation of alleged use of ineligible players "in certain football contests and a grant-in-aid violation.'

The presidents council ruled that the Pueblo school's football team would not be permitted to compete for the 1978 RMAC championship and would not be permitted to participate in a post-season game or activity during the 1978 football season.

Because the incidents detailed in Commissioner Brechler's report are both conscious violations of Rocky Mountain Athletic Copnference regulations and breaches of acceptable ethical conduct, and because they reflect negatively on the inntegrity of the RMAC and thus cannot be ignored," the councilsaid, "the football program of the University of Southern Colorado shall be placed on probation for a period of one year, commencing immediately.

Southern Colorado earlier was forced to forfeit three RMAC games for using ineligible players.

Crime of piracy now flourishes in overcrowded Nigeria seaport

LAGOS, Nigeria - Last Saturday morning at Bar Beach, on the rich residential Victoria Island in Lagos, a number of men, mostly young, are executed by military firing squads.

Sobbing parents and relatives can often be seen among the small groups of people for whom this routine event might still be a novelty. The makeshift site of the executions changes from week to week, but it is never far from the $36,000-a-year rented houses of company directors and diplomats and the ultramodern Eko Hotel, where unknowing international businessmen gather to stake their claim in Nigeria's future.

The economic boom caused by oil exports and industralization, and the increasing gap in income between a minority of affluent Nigerians and the overwhelming majority of the population has certainly had a direct bearing in the rise in violent crime. Those executed are sentenced by special courts for crimes that are reminiscent of those that prevailed in Europe and America in previous centuries pirate raids on ships and armed attacks on travelers on interstate roads.

But where the occasional ambush on iorries and air-conditioned cars involves mostly Nigerians, the pirate raids on ships berthed or moored in Lagos and Port Harcourt, the outlet for most of Nigeria's oil, have wider international repercussions.

With an average of three armed robberies and frustrated attempts a week on the thousands of international ships that call at Nigerian ports every year. protests and demands for action by the Nigerian authorities have been made from time to time. Over the past few weeks, at least two British, two Liberian and four Greek ships were attacked while in Nigerian harbors or waters.

About two weeks ago, the situation took a dramatic turn. The Danish Cargo ship, Lindinger Ivory, carry-

Frederiksen, was last seen bleeding from bullet wounds, being dragged overboard by African raiders, perhaps to be thrown into the shark-infested waters. His body has not been

As for the circumstances of the attack, it can be assumed that they involved a high degree of preparation and expertise. A number of Africans, emerging from what sounded like three fast-speed boats or motorized canoes, climbed up the ship, shooting their way into the communications room before ransacking the cabins

The crew's inadequate resistance was rapidly overcome by the raiders, armed with a machine-gun, several guns, knives and machetes. The value of the goods and equipment stolen was not known, but their degree of sophistication leads to the conclusion that the gangs operate within a well-organized network.

The news of the attack and the brutal circumstances of Frederiksen's death brought the foreign shipping and business community together. With a widespread suspicion that complacency so far might have been caused by a desire on the part of company agents and diplomats to keep good business relations with the Nigerian authorities, the incident soon became a major international trade union issue. Scandinavian, German, British, Greek, American into committees to appeal to their respective embassies for strong action against the Nigerian government. Within a few days, and while rumors of other frustrated attacks, including one on an Israeli ship, were circulating, there was news of a joint protest from the EEC-countries.

Mounting international action in turn brought other unexpected repercussions in Lagos. Several Nigerian newspapers, taking a defensive nationalist began to blame the attacks on gangs from neighboring countries. In a series of raids on fishing villages in and around Lagos, police claimed to have found some of the goods stolen from the Danish ship. Fifty people were arrested in Ibesche, a fishing village 10 miles north of Lagos, whose 800 inhabitants were described by the Lagos press as being mostly moored offshore within sight of Lagos' overcrowded The attack on the Lindinger Ivory was regarded as docks. The first descriptions of the attack were given "an act of terrorism against Nigeria," and the village of Ibeshe as a "launching pad by illegal immigrants for nocturnal attacks in Nigerian waters."

After interviewing several ships' captains and experienced people in the port services, one can only conclude that piracy is a well-established crime, brought about by the peculiar conditions in Lagos

The docks have been chronically congested. At the time of the attack, despite the fact that ships have to give two months notice before arrival, there were 100 ships berthed at the older Apapa docks, and the new West German-built port of Tin Can, or moored offshore waiting their turn for berthing. Congestion, pilferage and piracy have been issues worrying successive Nigerian governments; they were given priority by the present military regime when it seized power in 1975.

However, most people were unanimous in stating that port security arrangements were hopelessly inadequate. When it was suggested that perhaps pirates keep a permanent watch on any slackness in routine police patrols, most captains laughed.

They remarked that the only probable deterrent was the knowledge that ships, with the help of local company agents and at great expense of time and money, have made their own security arrangements. Some suggested that police patrols might be working with professional gangsters and that one could never and Russian ships' captains organized themselves be sure whether a contracted watchman was a genuine guard or a gang spy.

East wins the first trick with the king of spades and returns the nine to South has two sure tricks in each in diamonds. There are two ways to play the diamonds, and South must

One play is to cash the ace of diamonds and then get to dummy with a spade to try the diamond finesse. This works if East has the queen of diamonds

The other play is to lead out the ace, king and jack of diamonds. This will set up dummy's nine if the suit breaks 3-3 or if the ten of diamonds drops early. South's jack of diamonds will be good if the queen drops early. DOUBLE CHANCE

Few players would know the exact odds, but experienced players should judge that a double chance is better than a single chance.

The finesse is only an even money shot; the odds are better than 2 to 1 in favor of playing for a drop.

South should lead both top diamonds. When the ten drops, South leads the jack of diamonds to set up dummy's nine

DAILY QUESTION Partner opens with 2-NT (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes. You hold: SK93; HQ1097; D107; CJ1086. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three clubs, the Stayman Convention. Asking partner to bid a major suit of four or more cards. If he bids.three hearts, you will raise to four hearts; if he bids anything else, you will bid 3-NT.

Rhodesian raids into Mozambique take heavy toll deep into this newly independent "frontline" nation are creating havor for tens of thousands of civilian refugees from the Rhodesia war living in camps

United Nations to step up assistance to cope with an additional 8,000 to 10,000 refugees who have reportedly fled from rearbase and transit camps belonging to guerrilla force, following the latest Rhodesian incurment's effort to keep outsiders, even international agencies like the U.N. High Commission for Refugees, from visiting the camps. No foreign relief officials, not even doctors, are stationed in the camps, according to Western diplomatic sources. Only in the past couple of weeks has Mozambique allowed reporters to visit the camps.

While the Rhodesians insist they are only hitting camps of the Zimbabwe People's Army, each raid seems to leave death and destruction among the policy or an "accident of war." Some international refugee officials say part of the problem lies in the failure of Rhodesia's nationalists to clearly separate the civilian population from the guerrilla camps.

the Zimbabwe People's Army, the main nationalist sion. The guerrilla force takes its name from the African word for Rhodesia.

The plight of the Zambabwean refugees is one of are difficult to reach even in the dry season.

It is also partly due to the Mozambique govern-civilian refugees as well. It is not clear whether this is deliberate Rhodesian

There are already about 35,000 refugees settled in three U.N.-assisted and Mozambican-run camps. The largest is at Doroi, about 20 miles northeast of

The death toll is still mounting as more wounded refugees die in the hospital here and in the port city of Beira and in Tete City, 220 miles to the north. The latest official estimates are that about 100 refugees were killed in the Nov. 23-24 attack on the Mecombezi guerrilla camp outside this Portuguese-built colonial town and nearly 250 at another camp at Tembue in Tete Province. The number of wounded is put at 700.
