Ford talks of new major tax cut in 1979

WASHINGTON (AP) - Although unemployment remains high, almost everything else in the economy is starting to look good and Americans may be entitled to another major tax cut in 1979, President Ford said today.

"The underlying fact about our economy is that it is steadily growing healthier. My policies for 1976 are intended to keep us on that upward path," Ford said in his annual economic report to Congress. He also said, "Regrettably, a full recovery of the economy will take time."

Despite the prospect of job gains this year, Ford's economic advisers "unemployment will almost surely remain distressingly high.... "Even under the best of circumstances the return to full employment cannot realistically be accomplished this year or next.' Ford did not indicate how much taxes could be decreased in 1979, but he said the decrease would be on top of the $28 billion in permanent tax decreases he already has proposed for this year and next He also tied the prospect of future tax reductions to support for his spending recommendations, including the $394.2-billion budget he is proposing for fiscal 1977. "If we continue in the years ahead to pursue the kind of budgetary restraint which I am recommending. another major tax cut will be feasible by 1979," he said.

Ford's economic report, which Congress receives annually from the President and his Council of Economic Advisers, stressed that the worst is over for the economy. It said Americans can take satisfaction that the nation's economic system has come through intact.

There have been "appreciable gains" in reducing inflation, which declined from 12 per cent in 1974 to 7 per cent in 1975, with an additional slowdown expected this year, Ford

"While I do not regard the events of 1975 as fully satisfactory by any measure, we should find it reassuring that our economic system withstood severe strains and displayed inherent strengths during the year," he said. Unemployment remains a serious problem. Ford said, but "it is slowly moving in the right direction." Any attempt to bring the jobless rate down quickly could ignite new inflation and make matters worse in the long run,

Ford's economic report gave the following outlook for this year:

-Unemployment will decline to about 7.3 per cent by the end of the year, down from 8.3 per cent in December 1975. That means nearly 6.6 million jobseekers still will be unable to find work.

-Inflation will decline to about 6 per cent during the year, compared with 7 per cent last year.

-The economy will grow between 6 and 6.5 per cent, as measured by the nation's Gross National Product. The GNP declined 2 per cent in 1975 and 1.8 per cent in 1974.

The report said Americans will have about 5 per cent more money to spend this year, even after inflation is taken into account. Consumption purchases should increase about 6 per cent, because Americans are expected to save slightly less this year than in 1975.

Also in the 1976 economic outlook is an increase in business investment of 4 to 5 per cent, a rise in housing starts to a rate of about 1.75 million units by the end of the year, new gains for auto sales and a jump of 25 per cent in business operating profits.

Ford said that the unemployed will be cared for. He said programs in his fiscal 1977 budget will provide 3.6 million Americans with opportunities for training and employment. He also said the best way to reduce unemployment is by creating jobs in private industry, and he said he will support steps to increase investment by industry in new job-creating plants and equipment.

House panel demands intelligence shakeup

WASHINGTON (AP) - The staff of the House intelligence committee is recommending that a huge Pentagon intelligence agency be abolished and that stiff sanctions be imposed against government employes, in-cluding members of Congress, for leaking secret information.

Another recommendation calls for the House to create a permanent intelligence oversight committee and empower it to publicize secrets if the panel voted to do so by majority vote.

The recommendations are to be tacked onto a 338-page final report, approved by the panel 9 to 4 on Friday. It estimates that total U.S. intelligence costs are $10 billion a year, three or four times the amount listed in the annual defense appropriations bill.

The recommendations do not call for prohibitions against covert U.S. operations but would require that they be approved by the entire National Security Council.

The staff recommends that the Pentagon's Defense Intelligence Agency be abolished and that its functions, including the military

President may this spring

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford probably will undertake a fivenation tour of the Middle East this spring in a search for possible new solutions to Arab-Israeli disputes, a senior American official says.

The purpose of the trip would be to keep an American hand in the region even as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's step-by-step diplomacy may be nearing an end.

Stops on the trip, which would come as the U.S. political scene is dominated by presidential primary elections, probably would include Israel, Egypt, Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia, the source said.

Truce team separates Beirut foes

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Syrian, Lebanese and Palestinian army officers launched a 36-hour program today to separate the Moslem and Christian combatants in Lebanon's Truce teams toured a six-mile front line bisecting Beirut, ordering militias on both sides to pull back. Using bullhorns, they announced that the leaders of the Christian and Moslem private armies had agreed that military equipment could be moved in to remove all street barricades.

A police spokesman reported Moslem militiamen kidnaped a Syrian and a Lebanese officer in the downtown business district but freed them after 15 minutes.

In the Moslem half of the capital, steel-helmeted troops of the Palestine Liberation Army stood guard at hotels, shops, money changers' stalls and street markets that reopened for the first time in two months.

PLA patrols also policed fashionable Hamra street and the seaside Raouche residential area.

With the new cease-fire in its fourth day, police reported five persons killed and seven wounded in sniping and other scattered incidents in Beirut during the night. But a spokesman said this was "minor, with no serious effect on the ceasefire or the steady progress toward resuming normal life in the country.'

All Lebanon's international highways were declared open for traffic, and food and fuel shortages in Beirut eased. Truckloads of flour and vegetables rolled in from Damascus. Fuel trucks arrived from the refinery in Zahrani, 30 miles south of Beirut.

Thousands of Beirut residents celebrated the return of peace under the watchful eyes of Palestinian patrols Sunday, but occasional gunfire was heard at scattered points along the dividing line between the Moslem and Christian sectors.

Truckloads of Palestine Liberation Army (PLA) troops rode through the streets of Moslem-controlled western Beirut on Sunday, looking for looters. Loudspeaker trucks blared Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat's warning that gunmen in the streets would be shot without warning.

The loudspeakers also announced that Arafat's guerrillas would protect Christian villages in Moslem regions.

Police reported that two leftist Moslem Lebanese were shot to death Sunday evening in downtown Beirut. A police spokesman said Palestinians had killed seven gunmen and arrested scores of other gunmen and looters Saturday in a campaign against anarchy.

Moslem Premier Rashid Karami, who withdrew his weekold resignation Saturday, said the joint cease-fire committee of Lebanese, Syrian and PLA officers was supervising the reopening of roads and removal of street barricades.

Karami said the Moslem and Christian militias agreed to remove all their barricades and gunmen from the capital's streets by Tuesday.

Officials said Syria assured Christian leaders that its participation in the peacekeeping process would not infringe on Lebanese sovereignty and was not a step toward Syrian annexation of the country.

A presidential palace source said the Syrians also repeated a pledge to ensure the early withdrawal of some 2,000 PLA troops whose move from Syria into Lebanon last week helped to force the Christians into agreeing to political concessions demanded by the Moslems.

Police blamed Moslem gunmen for the looting and burning Saturday night of Christian Interior Minister Camille Chamoun's mansion 10 miles controls the second largest Christian militia, assured Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam that the destruction of his home would not affect the cease-fire.

Pittsburgh to reopen strike-bound schools

PITTSBURGH (AP) - The city teachers union, on strike for 57 days, reached tentative contract agreement with the school board early today. Teachers met for a ratification vote and the school board made plans to re-open classes Tuesday.

Union officials said they would recommend ratification, but discussion of the contract and voting by written ballot were expected to take most of the day.

When the tentative pact was announced, the board said it hoped to reopen school later today if the pact was ratified. But then lengthy discussion started at the teachers meeting.

The two-year pact was agreed on at an all-night bargaining session. Some 4,400 members are eligible to vote on

The city school board said it tentatively planned to call the district's DETROIT (AP) - Detroit today became the largest U.S. city to implement a court-ordered school integration plan as 203 buses peacefully transported thousands of black and white elementary pupils to classes.

Although only a few pupils were picked up at some stops, school board officials noted that only kindergarten through fifth grade children had classes today and middle and high school pupils were to report for class Tuesday. Nevertheless, drivers today followed routes that called for them to make stops at middle and high school boarding points. No demonstrations were planned by the city's antibusing groups, but the organizations, which claim membership of 2,300 families, called for a "yellow flu" boycott of classes.

School officials said attendance figures would not be available until later today. Detroit was experiencing freezing rain which made for treacherous driving on icy streets. While the buses made their initial runs, scores of handpicked policemen stood at two staging areas. Hundreds of volunteers and paid monitors guarded bus stops, school hallways and cafeterias. Monitors also were assigned to each bus.

Police reported no demonstrations and no problems.

Meanwhile, city officials called for peaceful acceptance of U.S. District Court Judge Robert DeMascio's order, which called for busing 15,000 elementary school students beginning

"I really don't think we're going to have problems with the students, school Supt. Arthur Jefferson predicted. "It's the adults I'm worried about."

A total of 21,800 pupils will be going to school on 250 new yellow buses by Tuesday, when semester break ends for middle schools and high schools - grades 6 through 12. Another 6,200 pupils have been transferred to other schools but will not be bused.

Under the court order, predominantly white schools at the extreme ends of the city will exchange pupils with a similar number of nearby majorityblack schools.

The entire plan will leave about 160 schools half white and half black while the remaining 140 schools stay

More than 75 per cent of the city's 247,000 pupils are black. The "yellow flu" boycott was called by Mothers Alert Detroit, which claims 2,000 members in northeast Detroit, and Metro Area Parents, with a membership of 300 in the south-with a membership of 300 in the south-west. Both groups are virtually all-white, although they claim many blacks also oppose busing.

The two groups staged three relatively small demonstrations last week but called on parents to stay away from the schools today to avoid

A final protest was staged Sunday when about 250 cars joined three motorcades and converged on the downtown City-County Building

Causing a traffic jam as they tried to circle the building, some of the cars displayed antibusing signs, such as "Paul Revere Never Rode a Bus" and "Busing is Child Abuse."

Area towns get city sales tax allocation

AUSTIN - State Comptroller Bob Bullock has mailed checks totaling $11.4 million in city sales tax to 493 Texas cities and towns and announced a cooperative effort between his office and the cities to collect the hotel occupancy tax.
The checks represent the January allocation to those cities collecting the one per cent city sales tax. Bullock said that during the first two months of each quarter, checks are not mailed to cities whose allocations are under $500. Midland /area cities and the amounts they received include: Andrews, $4,514,09; Big Lake, $1,681,20; Big Spring, $17,416.19; Lamesa, $7,864.20; Midland, $87,603.75; Odessa, $147,860.74; Rankin, 0 (allocation of less than $500); Stanton, 0 .

Bullock also said he is beginning to mail to all cities having a hotel or motel printouts of state hotel occupancy tax records. The state collects some $13 million each year from the three per cent tax on gross room rentals. Cities can levy up to a three per cent tax, and Bullock said cities not collecting the tax can see from the printouts what the tax

Bullock said he hopes cities collecting the same tax will reciprocate by sharing some of their tax data with his tobacco products division, which administers the state hotel occupancy tax.

"We're all public servants and dip from the same water barrel," he said. 'There's no reason we can't trade information and save legwork and tax

Wallace still tops in South?

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) - Alabama Gov. George Wallace says his victory in Mississippi's Democratic precinct caucuses is proof that his popularity in the South has not slipped. As returns continued to trickle in from Saturday's caucuses, Wallace led former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia by a margin of better than 3 to 1. Wallace said Sunday that the showing would help his campaign, but he refused to speculate on whether the results would hurt Carter's bid for the presidential nomination. "I think some of the national press was ready to write that Wallace was slipping in the South, that he'd lose in Mississippi," Wallace said. "It turned out ... we certainly haven't slipped.' Carter, meanwhile, said the results indicated that Wallace remains a stronger presidential candidate than some had thought. Saturday's caucuses, held at 2,133 precincts across Mississippi, were the first of four steps leading to the selection of the state's delegates to Democratic national convention.

Trustees to comply with fee ruling

varmest spot in the natio

Midland public school trustees will make the necessary changes in district policy Tuesday in order to comply with the attorney general's ruling on school fees. Texas Attorney General John Hill last fall issued an opinion stating school district may not collect student fees for driver training, workbooks and various school supplies. Dr. James H. Mailey, superintendent for the Midland public schools, earlier had said the opinion might cost the district between $9,000 and $15,000 during this school year. He anticipated district would "find ways to adjust" to the abbreviated income In addition to officially adjusting to the ruling, trustees, who will meet at 1:30 p.m. in the administration building, also will act on proposals for two new courses' geology and "manmade world.'

Charges filed against Midlander

Charges of aggravated robbery have been filed against Jerry Don Moore, 22, of 1309 College St., in connection with the armed robbery of Furr's Cafeteria, police said.

Moore allegedly heldup the cafeteria on Jan. 15 and took more than $200, police said.

The robbery suspect turned himself in to authorities in Las Cruces, N. M. and reportedly told them he was tired of running, police said.

Moore remains in Midland's city jail in lieu of $25,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace John Biggs.

for puzzle

The answer to last Saturday's crossword puzzle (which was published on Friday) does not appear in today's paper.

The reason for the mixup. though fairly complicated probably is more simple than the puzzle. The Reporter-Telegram has switched puzzles Both the old puzzle and the new come from the same feature syndicate, and the syndicate sent the wrong puzzles.

The missing answer will be published as soon as possible.

Council to consider acceptance of bonds for street improvements

By DEBBIE PIERCE

Midland City Council will study and consider acceptance of $2 million in general obligation bonds for street improvements at council's 1:30 p.m. session Tuesday at City Hall.

The bonds are part of the $6 million approved in September by voters and designated for street rebuilding and maintenance over a four-year period. Street work is expected to get under way this spring.

At 3 p.m., council will continue their public hearing on a request by the Fraternal Order of Eagles for a specific use permit for a lounge and the sale of alcoholic beverages for onpremise consumption at the Eagles' Lodge north of Highway 80 and east of Midland Drive.

Taking more time for living might give person more time to live

By MARION WELLS Copley News Service

Sometimes it hangs heavy on our hands, but all too often most of us find it slipping through our fingers. We're apt to waste some of it, then try frantically to squeeze more into what's left. We only have so much of it in life, but none of us knows exactly how much till it's gone. We can lose it or save it, but never slow it, stop it or turn it back. What is it? It's time, and how you use it matters to your own and loved ones' health.

Psychologist James Dobson, Ph.D., writes that in both our cities and rural areas, he has found "...extremely busy people running faster and faster down the road to exhaustion.'

Yet, taking more time for living might give you more time to live. His experience in counseling has convinced Dr. Dobson, who is director of behavioral research in the Division of Child Development, Children's Hospital of Los Angeles, that time pressure and fatigue are among the major causes of depression in women. Dr. Dobson writes that "...every obligation which we shirk is a source of guilt. When there are more commitments than we can possibly handle, then self-esteem is further damaged by each failure.

How can you stop fighting time and make it work for you? Experts offer the following hints on how to save time and gain precious added hours to invest in more meaningful ways.

1. Plan your work. One top business executive found that "...every hour he spent planning saved three to four in execution." 2. Set priorities. Which tasks are most important to complete? Which can wait? Are there any which may take care of themselves (such as watering the lawn on a day when rain is expected)?

3. During which times of the day do you work best? The answer may vary with the individual. Reserve those hours for your most important jobs.

4. It may help to "schedule similar tasks together. In tackling kindred jobs one after another, most people hit a pace that knocks off chores in amazingly short order." Can you combine errands to eliminate extra driving time?

5. Buy clothes and appliances with an eye to timesaving features and maintenance.

Don't read this once but twice and perhaps three times before you belittle it. Because we all have problems of ALL sorts.

Yeah, even little ol' me! Your troubles ARE my torubles. You dump them in my lap daily. I do the best I can to answer them. And I am going to keep trying until I win. And believe it, I will, SOMEWAY and somehow

Now, let's talk about mental health

We all have days when all our troubles just seem to pile up into mountainous troubles. And they do. It is really not any one thing that sets them off. It could be (and usually is) one little trouble piled upon another that causes the big troubles. Then we THINK that we just can't take anymore. But we can and we will.

This little "1, 2, 3" booklet tells us what to look for and how to recognize our very own symptoms. Can you imagine that?

It divides our problems - which you will recognize when you read it into three categories. Stop, listen, read and learn. Perhaps you will set your own family or friends some of the symptoms..

Many of these problems are the result of a lifetime of poor eating habits that do not register as a negative until middle age or beyond.

And after

To begin a new dietary pattern, the older person may possibly have to eliminate former ideas about his nutritional needs. For example, he may not feel he needs milk anymore. because milk has long been associated with youth and growth.

Teeth problems or poor-fitting dentures may result in a haphazard choice of foods. Meats, fruits and vegetables that are difficult to chew are avoided, and sugary, highcarbohydrate foods are substituted because they are easy to chew.

As age advances and these practices are followed, many metabolic and absorption abnormalities may develop. Fatigue, anemia, loss of appetite, constipation or diarrhea can be manifested as undernutrition

One of the most important nutritional factors in the diet of older people is the amount of calcium. Osteoporosis, a bone deterioration, in people over 65 is fairly common, occurring six times more frequently in women than in men.

There are many contributing factors to osteoporosis other than dietary calcium insufficiency.

These include endocrine imbalances, inadequate protein synthesis and mechanical skeletal stresses and strain.

A high-calcium diet that contains low-fat or skim milk and dairy products helps restore the bone mass. Exercise, on a daily basis, is important. Inactivity contributes to bone Sometimes in older people, the stomach begins to secrete less hydrolic acid and subsequently iron is not properly absorbed. Irondeficiency anemia may develop.

Study reveals quality of surgery slipping

By VICTOR COHN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A startling onethird of the deaths and nearly half the complications in much of the surgery in 95 hospitals have been called "preventable" in a searching new study of the quality of American

The unprecedented review of 1,493 operations found 1,696 "untoward incidents" or complications, with 796 of them — including 85 deaths — deemed avoidable.

In most cases, the surgeon was blamed.

Dr. Charles G. Child of the University of Michigan — chairman of the study by two surgeons' groups — warned that they did not try to look at a representative sample of surgeons or operations or to produce statistically typical results. Instead, he said, the study was an "on the spot" analysis, intended to encourage all hospitals and doctors "to examine their own untoward incidents" and try to prevent more of them.

Some complications were "trivial," the report also noted. But many were called "critical," ranging from lifethreatening mistakes and infections to serious errors in judgment.

Some preventable incidents were blamed on "the hospital," mainly meaning errors by personnel other than surgeons—staff doctors, nurses, anesthetists— or in many cases infections running through the hospital. But the bulk of these at a representative sample of complications were called surgeonsurgeons or operations or to produce related.

The 1973-75 study was made by the American College of Surgeons and American Surgical Association at hospitals in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Michigan, North Carolina, Ohio and Washington. None was named.

The results were reported in Medical World News, a magazine for doctors.

Among 210 appendectomies, six of 11 deaths were called preventable, as were 18 of 52 deaths in 272 gall bladder operations, nine of 24 deaths in 94 duodenal ulcer operations, 20 of 65 deaths in 208 colon cancer operations, two of five deaths in 298 hysterectomies, and 10 of 17 deaths in 55 lung operations.

In 576 preventable incidents in the six most common operations—appendectomies, hysterectomies, hernia surgery and operations on the gall bladder, colon and prostate bland—78 per cent were called surgeon-related, 10 per cent hospital-related and 12 per cent "patient or community-related."

Where fault lay with the patient or "community," the problems ranged from patients who didn't seek care early enough to doctors who didn't recommend surgery early.

Where surgeons were at fault, the problem 65 per cent of the time was with "surgical technique," meaning the way the surgeon did the operation.

Poor post-operative care was blamed in 18 per cent of the cases, and faulty diagnosis, judgment or pre-operative care in the rest.

A great message

Texas Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace really laid it on the line last Thursday in addressing the Midland Jaycees' annual Distinguished Service Award-Bosses Night Banquet.

He said America is suffering more acutely from a lack of political leadership than it is from an energy crisis rooted in dwindling fossil fuels.

Wallace, ending his message on an optimistic note, received a well merited standing ovation from his large and appreciative audience.

Latins face difficult financing situation

By WILLIAM GIANDONI Copley News Service

Latin America's more-developed countries - Brazil, Mexico and Argentina - will have to tighten their belts a bit more this year and next.

The foreign loans they have been getting with relative ease are going to be harder to obtain, international banking experts are warning.

J. Johannes Witteveen, managing director of the International Monetary Fund, visited Mexico recently and spelled out the situation to President Luis Echeverria and other Mexican government officials.

Although he spoke there specifically of Mexico, much of what he said can also be applied to the other hemisphere republics.

What Witteveen recommends can be summed up briefly. The developing countries will have to work to live within their incomes and to balance their accounts.

Latin America, and the rest of the world, are facing a very difficult economic situation. High oil prices, and the inflation and recession that resulted, have forced most nations, including the Latins, to spend much more than they earned in recent years.

Estimates are that the current account deficit in the less-developed countries in 1975 amounted to $35 billion the world over, and the guess for 1976 is $31 billion.

Up to now, the less-developed countries have been making up part of the difference by borrowing abroad, from international agencies, from the United States, the Arabs and other wealthy countries.

But, as Witteveen has put it, "a number of developing countries have already borrowed large amounts so that their debt burden is increasing; on the other hand, banks have increased their lending to developing countries importantly and may reach limitations or not wish to increase it to the same extent.'

Mexico, Brazil and Peru, particularly, are known to be among those countries that are heavily in debt to foreign private as well as international banks.

Because the higher oil prices will go on creating serious problems and although the world economy is starting to recover now, Witteveen predicts "a temporary, very difficult situation in financing for the developing countries" over the next one and a half or two years' time.

With specific reference to Mexico, Witteveen sounded relatively optimistic. In a press conference, he did note that "Mexico has a very high deficit in its balance of payments,' but indicated that should be corrected with economic recovery in the United States and other industrialized countries. He also pointed to Mexico's growing oil production and good world credit rating, but suggested that the budget be balanced to reduce the deficit in the public sector.

Quite obviously, international bankers do not consider Mexico or Brazil or Argentina poor countries, that is to say countries that might benefit from the trust fund to be set up with profits from the sales of International Monetary Fund gold, or from other soft loan sources.

According to the fund, poor nations are those with per capita incomes of less than 300 Special Drawing Rights. which amounts to almost $352 (U.S.).

In that category, presumably, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Honduras, Paraguay, Bolivia and Haiti would be included. They are the countries whose per capita incomes fall below the Latin American average.

The bigger Latin nations, those that have achieved a higher level of economic development, will have to rely on the capital markets and bank loans to see them through their shortterm financing problems. By all accounts it is not going to be as easy

PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE:

The two sides of diplomatic immunity

By BENJAMIN SHORE Copley News Service

WASHINGTON - For many who choose to live and work in the Washington area, part of the attraction is the large number of residents from foreign lands. These residents are, for the most part, employed by embassies and international organizations. Many of their children attend local schools and the families can make fascinating

But there is another side to this coin diplomatic immunity

Most Americans in the Washington and New York areas (which have the highest concentrations of diplomatic personnel) are exposed constantly to diplomatic immunity, especially while driving These two cities are crowded with cars bearing "DPL" license plates which entitle their owners and drivers to break every parking and moving violation in the book without fear of Diplomats' cars are found doubleparked on busy thoroughfares. parked in front of fire hydrants, parked anywhere that suits the convenience of the drivers. Tickets can be ignored, and offending cars rarely are towed away. In short, the police and citizens of Washington have accepted this abuse as part of the price of international relations.

It matters little to inconvenienced. law-abiding citizens that the overwhelming majority of diplomatic personnel obey our laws and otherwise do their best to observe our customs. Many ambassadors send home junior diplomats who abuse their immunity.

But so huge is the diplomatic corps in Washington and so obvious are the DPL plates that the small percentage of abusers stand out and give the foreign community a bad image. Furthermore, department store managers can tell endless stories about shoplifting that goes unpunished and bills that go unpaid. Apartment managers have had it up to here with diplomatic tenants who refuse to abide by lease terms, damage apartments and leave town with unpaid rent.

One owner of 1,600 apartment units in the Virginia suburbs stopped renting in 1970 to embassy personnel from countries that had given him headaches. The State Department sued him in 1975, charging housing discrimination, and won its case.

The cases of persons literally getting away with murder (primarily fatal automobile accidents, hit-andrun, drunk drivers hitting pedestrians) are few but well-publicized. In 1970, a local doctor was injured in an automobile accident caused by an official of the Panama Embassy. The injured doctor, paralyzed from the neck down, cannot sue because of diplomatic immunity, and Panama's ambassador has stated officially that his nation will make no "offer of indemnification.

It has been proposed that Congress reimburse citizens who suffer monetary losses because of diplomatic immunity, but Congress shows little interest.

Jimmy Carter's clouded victory in Iowa caucuses

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

INSIDE REPORT:

WASHINGTON - Jimmy Carter's sweeping triumph in the Iowa Democratic precinct caucuses, more conclusive and therefore more influential than expected, is clouded by what made it possible: the abortion question.

Political newcomers flooding caucuses across Iowa Monday night to back the former governor of Georgia for President include heavy numbers of single-minded "pro-life" (anti-abortion) partisans convinced Carter was on their side. But at the moment of Carter's triumph, some of his pro-life backers were complaining they had received no commitment in return. Learning that Carter has publicly opposed an anti-abortion constitutional amendment while privately giving the opposite im-pression in Iowa, one Catholic priest told us the morning after the caucuses: "I think I've been sand-

That suggests Carter's Iowa tour de force, capturing anti-abortion con-servatives while not losing proabortion liberals, cannot be repeated elsewhere - for example, in the first primary state of New Hampshire, with its substantial Catholic antiabortion vote. Long before the Feb. 24 balloting there, Carter will have to do what he avoided in lowa: take an unequivocal position on abortion.

This points up an obstacle to Jimmy Carter's impossible dream of 1976 never encountered by George McGovern's Cinderella candidacy of Actually. Carter is potentially stronger in early delegate contests than was McGovern. Private polls show him near the top in New Hampshire. A strong showing against Gov. George Wallace in Florida March 9 could produce irresistible momentum.

But whereas McGovern's unexpected early victories energized a ready-made anti-Vietnam constituency, Carter has no such natural base. Rather, his triumphs could divide his support by forcing him to make clear where he stands, not only on abortion but in the general political spectrum.

That poses this question: is Carter's remarkable lowa coalition - conservative farmers and small town merchants, fundamentalist Protestants, the United Auto Workers, the Polk County (Des Moines) courthouse crowd, some old McGovernites - held together not only by the candidate's superb campaign style but also because its elements really do not know what he stands for? That may be particularly true of his invaluable pro-life allies.

The anti-abortion movement made the difference between first and second place for Carter in Iowa. The only Catholic running for President,

Sargent Shriver, was expected to win a rock-bottom 10 per cent; opposing any anti-abortion amendment, he fell short of 4 per cent - a humiliating performance carrying grave national repercussions - with the balance apparently going to Carter.

The pro-life network passed the word that Carter would support antiabortion legislation. As reported earlier, we heard Carter tell antiabortion leaders that "under circumstances. I would support" a constitutional amendment against abortion. Removing all doubt, the word to back Carter was sounded from Catholic church pulpits across the state the day before the caucuses.

A typical result was one Des Moines precinct where around 30 voters usually turn up for a caucus. On Monday night, an astounding 100 one-fourth of the normal Democratic primary vote - attended to elect Carter delegates to the county caucus. "I think their hearts were with (Ronald) Reagan." Democratic leader told us, "but they were for Carter last night."

The tide drastically reduced the first place margin for Sen. Birch Bayh in Sioux City, his strongest area. thereby contributing to a so-so statewide showing for second place well behind Carter that did Bayh no good nationally.

But at the eleventh hour in Sioux City. Carter's contradictions on abortion began catching up with him - with ominous implications for the future. Democratic national committeeman Don O'Brien, managing the Shriver campaign, desperately tried to convince anti-abortion forces they were being had - and finally succeeded with Monsignor Frank Brady of Sioux City. Given documentary evidence of Carter's public opposition to constitutional admendments, Father Brady telephoned Carter campaign headquarters in Atlanta.

In cold fury, the priest next wrote a statement asserting he had been "misinformed" about Carter's position and had learned from his Atlanta phone call that Carter opposed "any" constitutional amend-

Although Father Brady's statement, read over local television just before the caucuses, had no effect, it could disenchant some Carter delegates at the county caucus level. But Carter cannot now be deprived of momentum gained from Iowa. His problem lies in the future, when he will be forced to choose between antiabortion and pro-abortion voters. It will not be the only moment of truth confronting him as he emerges from the protective cocoon of anonymity.

It wasn't a clean sweep, but Texas students nevertheless held their own in the 14th annual National Young Artist Competition here this past weekend.

Of the four student musicians selected as performing winners (who will return a month from now to perform with the Midland-Odessa Symphony in its next pair of subscription concerts) three were Texans, and the fourth was from Minneapolis, Minn.

Two other students were named winners (but not performing winners) in the competition, and of these, one was a Texan.

Two other students who were among the 11 finalists going into final competition Saturday night in Midland High auditorium also were Texans. They were baritone Tim Jenkins, student at North.Texas State University, from Amarillo, and pianist Ronald Clinton, student at Stephen F. Austin State University, who lives at Snyder. Other finalists not declared winners included violinist Alison Dalton of Provo. State University. -Pianist David Martin, 17, resident of Miami, Okla., who attends high school in that city.

Finalists, winners and performing winners shared the $5,600 in prize money offered by the competition. The funds are provided annually through the interest and generosity of Mrs. Raiford H. The Washington Post WASHINGTON - "Farm fresh" eggs and those sold in supermarkets don't have much in common, especially if "farm fresh" means eggs faid no earlier than the day before they are consumed. The only way to get them is to have a farmer deliver them to the house or go out to the farm and pick them at the hen

Eggs, when they arrive at the supermarket, are likely to be from 6 to 10 days old. This does not mean they are any less nutritious: as a matter of fact, they can be a month old and be as nutritious as ones just laid. But, as eggs age, they lose quality, the greatest percentage of it in the first seven to 10 days, according to a Department of Agriculture egg inspector, Doug Snyder.

Grade AA eggs (top quality) becomes GradeA eggs in that time; and a Grade A egg becomes a Grade Begg in 2 to 3 more weeks.

QUALITY is based mainly on freshness. It has nothing to do with size. Quality affects the taste for someone with a sensitive palate as well as the look of the egg after it is cooked. More importantly, since the cost of eggs is determined by quality as well as size, it is deceptive to sell top-graded eggs for the highest price when they have deteriorated to the lesser quality and lower grade.

One grocery chain here does not sell Grade AA eggs for that reason. According to Vince McGuire. merchandise manager of Grand Union, the chain doesn't sell them "because of the distribution system. We can't guarantee," he said, "that Grade AA eggs are still of that quality when the shopper takes them home.'

Giant approaches the problem differently: the "pull date", the date on which the eggs can no longer be sold, on their Grade AA eggs is five days; the "pull date" on Grade A eggs is 10 days.

There are mandatory and voluntary federal standards for quality grade, minimum size and processing methods for eggs which move in interstate commerce. Cartons of eggs which carry the federal shield must conform to the mandatory standards.

THE GREATEST percentage of eggs sold in the Washington area are Grade A. Grade B eggs are available in a few stores; Grade C eggs go only to food processors.

Grade AA eggs are less than a week old, the best buy for soft-cooked, poached, scrambled and fried eggs is Grade A. Grade B eggs are a good buy when used in recipes calling for other ingredients: casseroles, baked goods,

There are two methods for determining the freshness of eggs at home. When an egg is broken open and placed on a flat surface, the height and firmness of the white indicate the freshness. As the egg grows older the white becomes runnier. Second, truly fresh eggs in the shell float; old eggs sink.

While the "pull date" on the carton, (and all eggs in four supermarkets surveyed had pull dates,) is a rough clue to the age of the eggs, there are several things that date doesn't tell: How long it took the eggs to reach the packer after they were laid; whether they were kept under constant refrigeration; and how close to the "pull date" the eggs were actually packed.

Federal law allows eggs to be sold up to 30 days from the packing date. Some stores use the full 30 days as the "pull date;" in Washington Grand Union uses 10 days, Safeway 12 days, not available from the A&P.

The four Washington contracting business for wall lamps are also to be supermarkets surveyed say they keep several years, has been found. Beautiful tiffany their eggs under refrigeration at all

What is even more detrimental to quality, according to Snyder, is constant temperature change.

In addition to quality, egg prices are determined by size. There are federal standards for minimum egg sizes. A dozen jumbo eggs must weigh at least 30 ounces; extra large, 27 ounces; large, 24 ounces; medium, 21 ounces and small 18 ounces. In The Washington Post survey of eggs from four supermarket chains and three smaller stores, all of the eggs in each size weighed within the minimums

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) -School board presidents and school officials from throughout Texas gathered today to complain about a new legal ruling that prevents them from collecting special fees from pupils.

The day-long hearing was set before a special study committee set up by the State Board of Education after it refused Jan. 10 to remove its backing of Atty. Gen. John Hill's legal opinion. Hill said collecting special fees for such as workbooks, driver education, band uniforms and other extracurricular uses was unconstitutional. Results of today's hearing will come before the State Board of Education Feb. 14 when it will consider again requests that the implementation of the fee ban be delayed until next school year at least.

Texas Education Agency surveys have shown Texas school districts will have to dig up about $22 million more this year to replace the fees formerly paid by Woodrow Bean, member of the State Board of Education from El Paso, has calledstoday's hearing "an exercise in futility...nonsense." He also claimed that he personally would see that any school that continues to collect the fees will lose their scholastic accreditation. "Every district is going to abide by the law and we're not going to let them get to the poor people." Bean

Florida wheeler-dealer to keep operation after major bankruptcy

MIAMI (AP) - To the owner of Kennedy & Cohen, the "You've got my bird on it" tagline in advertisements was a dare to customers to find a better deal.

But last week. Mel Landow had the stuffing knocked out of his highly promoted venture in retail appliances when Kennedy & Cohen filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws.

"We even owe money to the man who sells us turkeys," said Landow. referring to his offer to give a free turkey to any customer who could buy an appliance cheaper than the price at Kennedy & Cohen.

Under a ruling by a bankruptcy referee. Landow, at least temporarily, retains control of the Miami-based company. Courtappointed receivers usually take over in such cases.

The ruling means the nineyear-old firm, already in default on a $21.7million revolving credit loan and involved in litigation over another. can continue to operate. However, the firm has closed its 17 stores outside South Florida and dismissed hundreds of employes.

"The money isn't everything: I'd rather dig coal than go through this experience," said Landow, 56, who started in sales after World War II as a door-to-door Fuller brush man.

He said there is no Kennedy or Cohen in a responsible position with the firm; the names were chosen when the firm was founded because they were catchy and suggested ethnic harmony.

Landow, whose personal wealth will remain untouched by the bankruptcy action, said Kennedy & Cohen has few assets.

"That's true," he said. "The creditors can only benefit if the company is successful. If the company doesn't stay in business there is nothing. Zero.'

Landow avoided using his own money to buy merchandise. He obtained large inventories by working out a revolving credit loan with the First National Bank of Chicago Stores and delivery trucks were million in 1974 with virtually no investment of his own capital.

Thus. Landow had sales of $52.4

As long as sales volume stayed high, Landow said he was able to pay the $200,000-per-month financing bills for merchandise and other costs such as rent and advertwsing.

According to Landow, the company's financial problems started in 1974 when General Electric Credit Corp., the firm financing all consumer installment purchases, initiated a more restrictive credit

"They began rejecting 45 per cent of the cusomers instead of 15 per cent and demanded that we pay an additional 21/2 per cent on top of the interest paid by the borrower,' Landow said.

Kennedy & Cohen tried other financing, but Landow said the credit firm's move was largely responsible for a drop of $10-million in sales in July 1974 to $7 million in August.

In addition, there were other setbacks. The firm lost $500,000 from a leased-department venture with a furniture company and had problems with the take-over of World Associates, a franchise that operated stores in northern states, he said.

"Even though we had made some progress in cutting expenses, the economy began to turn down and the industry suffered a one-third decline in sales," Landow said.

Landow's problems also include an investigation by the Federal Trade Commission about alleged deceptive advertising practices.

"We sell all the specially priced merchandise we advertise," Landow said. "Why would we buy it if we didn't sell it?"

Landow, freed temporarily from making payments on his loans, said he believes the company will be able to operate at a profit in the Miami-Fort Lauderdale-Palm Beach areas.

He said the $6-million inventory being shipped from closed stores will permit mammoth promotional sales in coming months in South Florida.

"It's a crushing blow to be unsuccessful," Landow said. "But I look upon this as only a temporary

APPAREL MANUFACTURING LABOR SURVEY

One of Canada's leading apparel manufacturers is considering locating a plant in Stanton which, when in full operation will employ more than 100 people. A major factor in making this decision will be the number of genuinely interested people who would be available for employment. All forms should be returned to Martin Co. Industrial Foundation no later than Friday, January 30. Interviews will be conducted Thursday and Friday February 5 & 6 at Martin Co. Community Ctr. from 10:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. No previous experience in the apparel industry is required.

Now that Arkansas has put some suspense back into the Southwest Conference basketball race, the Razorbacks get their immediate reward—a tough game on the road. And if tonight's match against Baylor in Heart O' Texas Coliseum isn't exciting enough for the Razorbacks, they can plan an upset party for SWC leader Texas Tech Wednesday night in Barnhill Fieldhouse where the Texas Aggies took the gas. Then it's off to Dallas for a Saturday night game with highscoring Southern Methodist.

The point? Nobody is going to have it easy in what may be the wildest of all SWC races.

AS Houston Coach Guy Lewis, participating in his first conference title race, pointed out: "People keep talking about us not winning on the road...if they only knew how hard it was to win at home.

Arkansas finally subdued the Aggies 93-91 in double overtime Saturday night to drop Coach Shelby Metcalf's crew to 4-1. Texas Tech, the preseason favorite, outlasted SMU 72-69 to take over first place by percentage points on a 6-1 ledger.

Texas A&M figured it got the short end of the time keeper's judgment at John Barnhill Fieldhouse Saturday

"I'm just sick...we got (bleep) twice," raged Metcalf. "We worked so hard. I'm not upset at the officiating-just the timekeeper."

Time was kept by stop-watch throughout the thriller because the Arkansas clock was out. Metcalf contended that Arkansas scored baskets after time had expired in both the first and second overtimes.

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton said 'I think there was enough time for us to score (in the second overtime). If I were Shelby, and I know he's upset, I would question the end of the first

"It's a tragic thing and unfortunate thing to happen in any game. But it happened to us in Austin last Tuesday

"EVERYONE IN THE league was rooting for us," said Sutton. "Now everyone has lost one, and everyone still has a chance. It was a must game for us. If we'd lost, it would have killed us confidence-wise.

Sutton concluded "A&M deserves to be on the top of the league. They play excellent basketball.

SWC executive secretary Cliff Speegle said "The conference is as balanced as it has been in the last nine years. And nobody is really out of it because of the tournament at the end of the year. There's really a lot of SMU Coach Sonny Allen was looking forward to the roundrobin, already just about ruling out his team for the regular season title.

"We're probably out of the running for the top spot," said Allen. "I've been very disappointed in our guard play. I thought we could win this game.

But as Lewis pointed out, you've got to be thankful in the SWC this year just to win your games at home.

Chaparrals to tackle NMMI tonight in WJCC

BY TED BATTLES

Midland College has drawn some tough assignments at home in Western Junior College Conference play, but tonight's game with New Mexico Military Institute may be the toughest of all.

Coach Gary Cardinal's Broncos are 15-2 for the season, best overall record in the league, and they are tied with Western Texas for first place at 6-2. NMMI holds two victories over defending national JC champion Western Texas, which accounts for two-thirds of the Westerners' losses this season. Although NMMI doesn't have any scorers in the top 10, or top 15, for that matter, the Roswell, N.M., cadets have five players, led by 6-5 Reginald Franklin from Houston Yates, in double figures. Franklin is averaging

OTHER STARTERS are 6-0 Joe Blueford, El Paso Bowie; 6-3 Dave McConico, Louisville, Ky., Ahrens; 6-8 Frank McClelland, Las Cruces, N.M., while 6-3 David Romo, Albuquerque, and 6-5 Martin Zeller, McHenry, Ill., alternate at the other starting spot, depending on the size and style of the opposition.

NMMI is coming off two big victories last week over WTC and South Plains, but Cardinal isn't taking MC lightly. "They are a good, physical ball club and come to play. Cardinal goes on, "You can't take anyone lightly in this league. Although New Mexico JC is 2-6, they are going to beat someone they shouldn't before it's all over."

Midland College is 13-6 for the season and 4-4 in conference, and as everyone knows by this time, all the defeats, embarrassingly enough,

IN THURSDAY'S win over NMJC, Coach Chester Story made an adjustment that seemed to give the Chaparrals more offensive movement when he shifted Ricky Daniel from guard to forward and teamed Ken Adams up with Tommy Parks in the back court. Six-eight Dan Vanderzee started at the post and 6-5 Jackson Pace at the other forward. Parks, a six-footer out of Fort Worth Poly, carries a 19.3 scoring average, seventh best in the conference. "You are watching a major college guard when you see him play," Story says of Parks. Sim Nickerson, who seldom starts, has a 15.6 average and Daniel is a 13.8 scorer. Tipoff is at 8 p.m. and concludes the first full round of play in the WJCAC race.

The NCAA also ordered Michigan State to "sever all relations between two representatives of its athletic interests and its intercollegiate athletic program.

In addition, Michigan State was ordered to prohibit one assistant football coach from any recruiting during the probationary period. A second assistant is restricted frtm recruiting off campus during the first year of the probation while a third was ordered admonished to guard against a recurrence of violations of when an unidentified school filed a complaint about Michigan State. The complaint concerned a reported 70 violations the university made in recruiting high school athletes, particularly in Ohio.

NCAA regulations. The NCAA's probe began last April

At the time, Coach Denny Stolz was quoted as saying, "We have done nothing that would constitute Michigan State being put on probation." He called the allegations typical of what happens when a young program becomes successful."

Various Michigan newspapers have reported that most of the allegations involve assistant coach Howard Weyers, who joined Michigan State in 1973, the same time as assistant coach Charles Butler, who reportedly was also involved to a lesser extent.

Area students get UTPB degrees

ODESSA - Twelve students from Midland and three from Andrews received degrees from The University of Texas of the Permian Basin at the close of the fall semester.

The three Andrews students received B.A. degrees from the College of Arts and Education. They are Rita Dill Woodall, sociology; Joseph P. Neal, history, and Catherine Harrelson, speech.

Midlanders earning B. A. degrees in the College of Arts and Education were Lucille Wemple, mass com-munications. David T. Sites, government; Cecilia Reyes, Spanish; Linda Sue Dillard, literature; Diana E. Fishel, history, and Kenneth Hun-nicutt, sociology.

Receiving B.S. degrees in the College of Science and Engineering were Nancy E. Mayberry, earth science, and Arleen Ritter, life

M.A. degrees in the College of Arts and Education were awarded Sarah Davis, special education; Stephen Thomas, counseling; Judy Schmidt, elementary education, and Jan Preston, secondary education.

Political poker hands dealt for solar pot

Associated Press Writer

A political poker hand is being dealt in more than a dozen states. The pot: the National Solar Energy Research Institute and its $48 million budget and 1,500 jobs. A site for the institute, created under the Solar Energy Research Act of 1974, will be chosen this year by the Federal Energy Research and Development Administration, ERDA.

Although ERDA has yet to release guidelines for the location competition already is keen because of the Major contenders include Arizona. California, Colorado, Florida, New Mexico, New York, Texas and a coalition of the six New England

"It's like getting into a poker game with 27 other guys," says Robert Handy, director of the Arizona Solar Research commission. "You have to play with four or five decks, and hidden within those decks, you have wild cards called 'political influence.' "You don't know what you have until the cards are laid down.' Most interested states have set up organizations to work on location proposals and they are awaiting the ERDA guidelines, due this month.

Then the game will be on. "The whole process is going to be swept up in presidential and congressional election-year politics,' Handy says.

"We are in deadly competition with other states," says William E. Seymour, head of the science and technology division of the New York State Commerce Department. "We would be naive to assume that the political forces will not have an im-

Seymour says New York Gov. Hugh Carey will ask the state's congressional delegation to lobby for the institute.

Officials in two other states say they are wary of politics entering the selection process, including California's Ted Edlin.

But Edlin, acting director of research and development for the California Energy Commission, says the state will lobby if necessary. "If it seems appropriate, we're prepared to "We think our chances our very good if the politics are kept to a minimum," says Hank Rase, who is working on location proposals for Colorado's bid. Besides politics, officials in Florida and the southwestern and western states say they think a factor will be the sunshine, of which they boast "The institute must be in what I call the correct psychological environment," meaning a sunny state, says Arizona's Handy. "Putting it in a cloudy location would be criminal."

Colorado's Rase says that among other factors, his state has "the solar resource itself." Officials in California, New Mexico, Texas and Florida also are emphasizing their abundance of sunshine

Other contenders can't do that, so they emphasize other areas.

'We have the academic, technical and industrial resources to make the (institute) a success," says Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis on behalf of the New England Regional Commission. "No other part of the country needs alternatives to fossil fuels more acutely than New

New England's technology impressed one federal official enough to set off a political exchange with the governor of Arizona.

An administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency in Boston endorsed New England for the location, but Arizona Gov. Raul Castro told EPA Administrator

Beatty is a native of San Angelo and served in the armed forces during World War II.

Russell Train the endorsement was inappropriate. Train apologized and said the EPA will not take a stand.

New Mexico has allocated $4 million in the last two years for solar research. But for the most part, the competing states report little money spent directly on the effort to attract the

The Texas Legislature has not appropriated funds for the drive and it is not scheduled to convene again until next year. California's Edlin says his state is spending $80,000 to lure the institute, while Colorado's Rase says the state has spent $40,000 and he expects another $60,000 to be spent. Florida has given its solar energy research institute task force $36,000. In Arizona, Handy says he got $75,000 originally, then another $62,000, and is expecting more.

New York will raise funds privately and will add "a small amount of additional funds" from the state if necessary, says Seymour.

The next move is up to the dealer.

Recovery symposium slated March 22-24

TULS.A. Okla. — An estimated 1,200 engineers, scientists and managers from oil ; roducing areas of the world will participate in a Symposium on Improved Oil Recovery here March

The symposium, sponsored by the Mid-Continent Section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME, will be held in the Tulsa Assembly Center.

Improved oil recovery technology is aimed at developing new and improved techniques to permit recovery of a portion of the 250-300 billion barrels of oil originally in place in the United States that is now termed "unrecoverable" by conventional recovery methods.

Some authorities believe an additional 25-55 billion barrels can be produced through use of new techniques including miscible, chemical and thermal recovery methods.

General Chairman R. C. Earlougher of Godsey-Earlougher, Inc., of Tulsa, said "the symposium series on improved recovery techniques, first held in Tulsa in 1969. has become a leading forum for reports on new technology aimed at increasing recovery from oil reser-

Earlougher said the three-day program will include 43 papers, with sessions on residual oil determination methods, reservoir definition, mobility control and field case histories of improved oil recovery

A display area featuring major service, supply and manufacturing companies will complement the technical program with exhibits of the latest products and services for enhanced oil recovery.

The Society of Petroleum Engineers is an international technical and professional organization for engineers, scientists and managers in the opploration, drilling and production phases of the petroleum industry. The society more than 22,000 members in 45 countries.

Nader says 700 largest U.S. firms should be under federal charter

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Concluding a five-year study of America's largest business enterprises, consumer advocate Ralph Nader said they have become the dominant institutions in daily life and should be subjected to new chartering by the federal government.

Charging that the average citizen's control over government has been 'outflanked" by the rise of huge organizations "never dreamed of by the Founding Fathers," Nader called for sweeping reforms to prevent big companies from escaping the sort of accountability that a democracy imposes on its power centers. UNDER NADER'S PLAN, the nation's 700 largest companies whether owned by the public or privately - would have to be incorporated under a new Federal Chartering Act, rather than under laws of the various states today.

Specifically, the proposed law would require of these firms:

-A fulltime board of directors, made up of nine persons who are not officers of the companies, to monitor management performance with the aid of a paid staff. The board would establish executive salaries and have veto power over key decisions. —"Community impact statements"

when plants are to be relocated. providing an input from cities whose economic fortunes are linked closely to local businesses. -Control by actual shareholders and not by large institutions — such as pension funds or insurance companies - who today vote their stock in a bloc. Any shareholder or group of stockholders with one-tenth of 1 per cent of stock could nominate three persons for director and each director would be responsible for one particular constituency (such as workers, local community, marketing or environmental problems). -More disclosure to the general public, such as each instance where there is a toxic substance in a working establishment; plant-by-plant minority hiring data; substantiation for advertising claims; expenditures for lobbying; investments in joint ventures with other firms; sales contracts with federal agencies; the largest 100 stockholders.

-"An "employe bill of rights," prohibiting retaliation against workers who speak out about bad company practices, preventing such devices as hidden microphones that invade individual privacy and allowing workers to see their personnel files - a practice already followed at International Business Machines Corp.

-Agreement not to acquire any firm among the eight largest in any industry where four or fewer firms control 50 per cent or more of the market - and to the extent that acquisitions could take place in other industries, federally-chartered firms would have to divest within three months other operations with comparable assets.

Most of these provisions would be enforced by the Securities and Exchange Commission although the Federal Trade commission could handle disclosure and the Justice Department's antitrust division would deal with the antimonopoly sections, Nader said.

Covered by the proposed law would be any industrial, retail or transportation firms with annual sales of $250 million or more, or which employed more than 10,000 persons, or which are listed on national stock

Of 1.8 million industrial, retail or transport corporations in the U.S., about 700 would be required to switch to federal registry. Regardless of future sales volumes, these firms would remain under federal charters, Nader said. Excluded from the charters would be banking companies, utility firms and insurance businesses, which already are under more strict federal or state supervision and regulation.

Nader's proposal, detailed in a study called "Constitutionalizing the Corporation: The Case for the Federal Chartering of Giant Corporations," would bring under federal charters such diverse firms as IBM, Exxon, General Motors, U.S. Steel Corp. and Lockheed Aircraft.

The federal chartering idea, community and to lawyers.

Mark Green and Joel Seligman, will be the subject of Senate Commerce Committee hearings this spring and some key members of Congress are known to support at least the broad

In an interview, Nader said his plan will be circulated to all candidates for the presidency to date, Oklahoma Democrat Fred Harris has endorsed the program and Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) favors chartering for petroleum companies.

Nader alsosaid the chartering idea will be taken to the business

CRMWD expenditures, revenues reach peak

BIG SPRING — The string of years showing record production was broken during 1975 for the Colorado River Municipal Water District, with not only revenues but also expenditures reaching a new peak.

Total revenues for the year were $5.6 million compared to $5.5 million for 1974. Operational expenses were. $1.9 million compared to $1.7 million the previous year

CRMWD reported that revenues from the sale of water rose to $5.4 million, up $45,000 partly because of higher monthly fixed charges to cities to generate sufficient revenue and to higher rates to oil companies and other industrial users.

The last of the $4.6 million series 1958 bonds were retired, and the $825,000 City of Midland waste water disposal bonds underwritten by the district were retired. The district had a net increase of $171,000 in the cost of electric power, although the 18.5 billion gallons pumped were 1.9 billion gallons less that those pumped the previous year. Member and other cities took 11.7 billion gallons, some 1.7 billion gallons less than in 1974. Oil company requirements of 7.4 billion gallons were up by 442.5 million gallons.

Revenues from the operation of recreational facilities at Lake J. B. Thomas and at Lake E. V. Spence were $62,538, up by $2,000 over the previous year's revenues. Recreational expenses, however, were $74,737, up by $4,000. With the help of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission, CRMWD installed three new concrete boat launching ramps two at Lake Spence and one at Lake Reserves in district-owned reservoirs increased by about 11,000 partly because of substantially reduced deliveries. The total inflow into Lake Thomas and Lake Spene was down 31,000 acre feet from 1974, but the combined storage at the end of the year was 213,000 acre feet. Although the Big Spring area had its fourth wettest year on record during 1975, rain fell at times and in amounts which stimulated vegetation that retarded runoff. However, Lake Spence reached a new record level.

CRMWD removed 25,722 tons of salt from water going to Lake Spence, resulting in a 20 per cent improvement in the water's quality. Tonnage was down from 30,602 the previous year, reflecting the success of the cleanup.

The district diverted 10,122 tons of salt at Colorado City, some 4,000 tons less than that of 1974 and reflecting the cleanup progress. The Beal's Creek diversion above Big Spring resulted in 15,600 tons of salt being diverted, some 10,000 less than that of the previous year.

The district noted several new additions during the year, especially the opening of its new headquarters building in Big Spring at a cost of $405,000.

Another addition was the purchase of the district's own airplane, the hiring of its own meteorologist and the operation of the weather modification program, now in its fifth year, on its own. Efforts were correlated with the Texas Water Development Board and the Bureau of Reclamation in weather modification research.

CRMWD assisted Cosden Oil and Chemical Co. in relocating 4,262 feet of 42-inch main supply line at Cosden expense around a new water quality control lake south of Cosden.

In the area of personnel, the employe retirement program was altered to meet new federal retirement act specifications, which required an additional $20,000 to fund. Russell Yorgesen succeeded Lyle Deffebach in June as new director from Snyder. Two employes were lost by death, one of natural causes and the other in an automobile accident. Personnel numbered 62 at the year's end, and the payroll was $252,000.

Chamber to hold breakfast Thursday

The Midland Chamber of Com merce's first early bird breakfast of the year will be held at 7 a.m. Thur-sday at Ranchland Hill Country Club. Games, prized and cash awards will be given out as part of the breakfast's program.

Reservations for the monthly event may be made by calling the chamber office at 683-3381 by Wednesday. The cost is $3 per person, and all chamber members and their guests are invited to attend.

This month's sponsor for the break-fast is the Coors Distributing Co.
