Fired Army officers lose first round

Secretary Martin R. Hoffman today refused to reinstate thousands of career officers who say they were illegally passed over for promotion and dismissed from the service.

Instead, Hoffman said the Army will convene special promotion boards which will decide if the officers should have been promoted to the ranks of major and lieutenant colonel and senior warrant officer grades.

Military sources indicated it was unlikely that more than a handful of the 5,500 former officers would be romotions initially denied them.

members of an organization called the Promotion Research Committee.

A lawyer for the committee said he will seek back pay for those affected twice for promotion. Members of the Promotion Research Committee discovered that promotion boards convened in 1974 and 1975 failed to have reserve officers as members, as required by federal law. In several federal court suits and in testimony before an Army records review board, the committee sought to have the officers reinstated and their military careers resumed. Hoffman, however, refused to take that action. Pentagon officials said the reconsideration process will take at least several months. The Army said to recall the officers while their promotions are reconsidered "would subject them to further disruption of their civilian lives only to again subject them to the trauma of release in the near future.' "Thus, recall would be a wholly unjustified inconvenience to the individual and expense to the government," the Army said. Hoffmannsaid officers promoted by the new boards would be reinstated as if they had been promoted by the earlier boards which were improperly creased at an annual rate of 9 per cent, which he said was double the rate in the first half of the year.

"This is an ominous development ... if the rate of inflation quickens through the year, this undoubtedly will pose a threat to the pace of economic recovery," Burns told the House Appropriations Committee.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department said its index of leading economic indicators, designed to provide a clue to future economic activity, climbed four-tenths of a per cent in December.

At the same time, Commerce revised its original estimate of the index's performance in November to show no change. November had been reported originally as showing a fourtenths of a per cent increase.

Burns, testifying before the House panel on President Ford's proposed $394.2 billion budget for fiscal 1977, said the President's proposal for cutting expenditures and taxes 'strikes me as sound.'

Burns also said he might oppose renewing the 1976 tax reductions after mid-year, saying his decision would depend on how well the economy is doing at that point.

"We certainly ought not to cut taxes could threaten economic recovery unless we also cut expenditures." he said. "I for one think we ought to cut expenditures more than we cut

Burns said the "critical question" for the economy is how far and how fast the recovery from recession will proceed, but added, "Neither I nor anyone else can speak with great confidence about the future."

In other developments, the government reported good news for prospective home buyers - thrift institutions are reporting a continuing record flow of deposits, meaning that lower borrowing costs may come.

But the nation's balance of trade books, while showing a record surplus for the year, saw a sharp incline in imports for December, signaling a possible sustained erosion of the U.S. trade position. And worker productivity was down in December, the government said.

The latest performance of the economic indicator index means that its figures have been virtually unchanged over a four-month period as a result of slight fluctuations both up and down. The December index stood two-tenths of a per cent below its position in August.

Midland, Dallas banks low bidders on bonds

By DEBBIE PIERCE

The Midland City Council Tuesday sold the first $2 million in street improvement bonds to First National Bank of Midland and First National Bank of Dallas, which entered a combined for a bid of 4.78885 per cent

Thirteen bids were received for the bonds, which are approximately onethird of the $6.2 million approved by Midland voters. The banks' bid will mean a net interest cost to the city of $864,388.98. The gross cost bid was $864,450, less a premium cost of $61,02. Acceptance of the banks' bid was recommended by city fiscal agent Joe

W. Smith of the First Southwest Co. "The two First National Banks' bid is the best interest rate on any municipal bonds in the state of Texas in a long time," Smith said. He also said he was very pleased with the 13 bids received.

The remaining 12 bids received by council, their net interest costs and effective interest rates were! ### Thomas seeking reelection

By ED TODD

John Thomas, Midland County's Precinct 3 commissioner, is seeking reelection to that post he has held

"You've got to have good people" in elective offices, Thomas said. "If you're going to stay in a community, you've got to fight for what is right.'

Thomas, now 57, is a petroleum engineer who entered politics in 1972. That year he narrowly defeated the incumbent, Clark Moreland, a 12-year veteran of county politics, in the Democratic party's primary runoff election. (Four candidates had bid for the spot in the primary.) Thomas was unopposed in the general election. "I set out to accomplish these things," he said:

- To create a "cooperative attitude" with local governmental bodies. "And I think we have done that." That attitude has led to "much better" working relationships than previously existed, he said.

- To generate "a better atmosphere in the commissioners' court. And that was a hassle." - To hold down taxes by eliminating duplication and waste. Thomas, however, does assert that he can best serve as commissioner of Precinct 3, which takes in Midland's southeast and southcentral sectors and comparable sections of the county's rural areas.

Sam Cox to return as athletic director

A former Midland coach and freshman school principal has been named to replace Thurman "Tugboat" Jones as athletic director for the Midland public schools.

Sam C. Cox, currently assistant principal at Klein High School in Spring, Tuesday afternoon accepted the post which became available when Jones announced he planned to take early retirement. Jones has been the athletic director since the spring

Cox received unanimous approval from the school board, who took the action following an executive session. They set his salary at $22,000, plus $100 per month expense allowance and use of a district car.

Although Cox will be instrumental in hiring a new football coach to replace John Reddell, the date when he officially begins work has been left open. The new director-designate is expected to work with Jones through most of the spring.

Cox has experience in football, basketball and track, all on the junior high school level, and football and track in high school.

He first came to Midland in 1957 when he was involved in the athletic program at San Jacinto Junior High. In 1959, he moved over to Midland High School as B team coach and assistant varsity basketball coach. The following year, he became the school's head B team coach.

Cox's administrative career includes assistant principal at the former Cowden Junior High, and Lee High School. He later was principal at both Alamo Junior High and Austin Freshman School.

Cox, whose wife Paula is a 15-year veteran of the Midland schools as a primary teacher, left the district in 1974. Before taking the post at Spring. he served 10 months as an assistant building manager in Houston.

A graduate of Sul Ross State University with a B.S. in physical education and a M.A. in educational administration, he has completed additional graduate work with Northern Arizona University.

His own athletic career includes high school participation in football, basketball, baseball and track. Cox was an all-district player two years in each basketball and football and was an all-region player one year in basketball.

Sam Cox

He also qualified for the state track meet one year as a member of the sprint relay and mile relay teams and won three varsity letters in football while attending Sul Ross.

OPEC to aid poor countries

PARIS (AP) - Finance ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries reached unanimous agreement today on establishing a $1 billion special fund to help poor nations worst hit by increased oil prices.

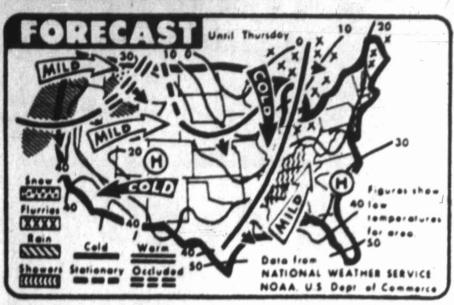

The agreement was signed by the 13 OPEC ministers at the end of a threeday meeting held under extraordinary security precautions in the international conference center here. It was the first OPEC meeting since the organization's oil ministers were taken hostage in Vienna last month and it was protected by 2,500 French riot police, plain-clothesmen and sharpshooters posted on surrounding roofs.

An OPEC spokesman said details of the individual member countries' contributions to the fund and of the method of distribution to the recipients would be announced after ratification by the 13 member states probably within a month.

The spokesman said each government would announce the amount of its contribution to the fund, which is to be disbursed as long-term loans without interests

Spring-like weather invades West Texas

Spring-like weather has invaded Midland and other West Texas towns with warmer afternoons, clear and sunny skies - beautiful days for being outside, the National Weather Service says. Midland had an overnight low of 26 degrees which is expected to soar upward to the mid 60s today and Thursday. Skies were sunny and clear in Stanton with a chilly morning tem-

It was 25 degrees at 7 a.m. in Andrews where the skies were also sunny and clear with light nor-

Both Lamesa and Rankin reported cold morning temperatures with sunny and clear skies.

Cold temperatures were warming in Crane and the skies were sunny. Big Lake had an overnight low of 24 degrees which climbed up to 32 degrees by 8:30 a.m. They had a light wind with sunny and clear skies. Rain and snow continued in parts of the Northeast today.

A bad weather system moving along the Atlantic Coast produced snow from Northern Maine into West

Virginia and Ohio while rain fell along the northern and middle Atlantic

Flash flood watches remained in effect from Southern New England into the southeastern portions of New York, Pennsylvania and Northern New Jersey, The Associated press reported. Heavy snow was expected from West Virginia into Northern Maine today while some snow hit the Northern Plains and Northern Minnesota. Gusty winds also caused some blowing snow in the area.

Travel advisories were in effect for Minnesota and Eastern North Dakota due to snow and wind and a winter storm watch was posted for Wisconsin.

Warm temperatures moved across portions of the Northern Plains. Some areas in Eastern North Dakota and Northern Minnesota were more than degrees warmer than early Tuesday. Grand Forks, N.D. registered 33 early today after being 26 below zero 24 hours earlier.

Temperatures overnight ranged from 9 below zero at Green Bay, Wis., to 70 at Miami and Homestead, Fla.

engineering," Thomas said.
"I've brought a better approach to (solving) our problems than what we've had (before)," he said.

Thomas is seeking to lengthen his stay in county government to eight years. He will be after the Democratic party's nomination in the May 1 primary election. Should he get that, he will enter the Nov. 2 general

So far, he is unopposed. (Filing deadline is 6 p.m. Monday, Feb. 2.) Thomas said he wants to see a drift toward increased say-so by nometowners on econonic and "I want local decisions to be made locally and not in Austin or Washington. Decisions that affect us locally should be made locally."

Thomas has spent most of his productive years in Midland. His father, "Skipper" Thomas, in his 90s, lives with him and his wife, Frances, at 2000 W. Holloway St. in Midland. John and Frances Thomas have three children: Bob, who is serving in the U.S. Air Force in England; Ann, a graduate student at the University of Kansas, and Bill, a student at Angelo

Thomas pretty well rounded up his approach to county government, and politics, when he said:

"If it's good for the community, it's good for me. And if it's not for the good of the community, then it's not good for me."

Council rejects airline's request

By DEBBIE PIERCE

Continental Air Lines' request to substitute Rio Airways for all direct service from Midland to Oklahoma City-Tulsa was unanimously turned down Tuesday by the Midland City Council

After stating their opposition to the proposed contract between the two air lines, council suggested the request be re-filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board to leave the way open for other carriers to pick up the route

Jim Mitchell, Continental's vice president, appeared before council to present background information and reasons for the request.

"Continental is the smallest of the trunk-carriers in the U.S. and, as is the case with all airlines, has taken an appreciable loss this past year.' Mitchell said. "We expect our losses to be about one-quarter billion dollars due to the high cost of fuel and inflation

"Losses can be remedied through fare increases, improved efficiency of operation or federal subsidy, though no airlines have been subsidized sirice 1951," Mitchell said. The Continental executive explained that the airline had determined the Midland-Odessa to Oklahoma City-Tulsa route was their largest loss route, about $2 million annually, he said. With that kind of loss, we had to do something so we consulted with Texas International to see if they'd take over the route. They wouldn't, and neither would Ozark Airlines. Then we talked to Rio Airways, who first was negative on the proposal but later agreed when we said we'd subsidize their losses." Mitchell said.

He said Continental was asking the CAB to approve their request without a hearing, which could take two to WASHINGTON (AP) -The Federal Aviation Administration will test airport bomb detection devices that could increase the price of airline tickets and cause passengers delays of up to three hours.

FAA Administrator John McLucas told a news conference Tuesday the tests, if successful, could lead to a recommendation that all bomb detection equipment.

However, he said the FAA would consider the delays caused by the equipment and the cost of the machinery before bonds. making a final decision.

McLUCAS said the development and testing of explosive detectors was an outgrowth of last month's LaGuardia Airport bombing in New York that killed 11 persons McLucas said the equipment is not very accurate in sorting out bags that possibly contain explosives. He said about 50 per cent of luggage still must be searched by hand.

He said the FAA estimated flights could be delayed between one and three hours if all baggage destined for an airplane was checked.

Currently only baggage airline passengers are carrying into the passenger section is checked. Baggage for the plane's cargo hold is not searched.

McLucas said he had not yet decided which airports should be used in any test of explosivedetecting equipment but that likely candidates are National Airport and Dulles International Airport near Washington. Both airports are owned

HE ESTIMATED installing the bombsensing equipment at all major airports could increase the cost of an airline ticket by 50 cents. This security charge would be in addition to the 37-cent surcharge already on airline tickets to pay for security guards and metal weapon

McLucas also announced he has recommended to Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. that all subsonic jet planes that do not meet the FAA's noise requirements be modified to make them

The administrator said he envisioned a six-year program to quiet the estimated 1,200 aircraft which do not meet FAA noise standards. The program would cost between $650 million and $800 million, he estimated, and would be paid for by imposing a 50 to 75 cent surcharge on all airline tickets.

IS SOMETHING WRONG?"

There is something wrong with a local church and her program when her leaders feel the necessity, or impulse, to use various gimmicks in order to traw crowds. With true churches

The thing that disturbs this scribe the most (and those promoters with whom we have reference to could care less) is that liberal preachers and elders ave apparently fed the members a false concept of the church and her relationship to man. They are being taught that the "whole man" concept of responsibility is scriptural. In this idea, the advocates of the teaching tell us that the church is just as responsible to the physical man as the inward man; hence the social gospel." Something like this had to be taught o try and justify the building of the kitchens and eccreation halls in the church buildings; a way to atmpt to justify, from the Bible, spending the Lord's oney for a place of fun and frolic.

Through this unholy perversion of the Holy Bible our brethren have come up with YOUTH RETREATS, BUS TRIPS, BANQUETS IN HONOR OF CIVIC GROUPS, and whatever else they car ream up to promote something.

The man is not alive who can take his Bible in hand nd authorize the church of the Lord to be engaged in such activities. I am fully aware that some of our eaders will just laugh and continue to carry on in this fashion without any serious thought to the matter, but I assure you, that if you cannot find Divine ivities as is employed by the "social gospel concept," then you are certainly endorsing some matters that will eventually lead you to eternal torment. (1 PE.4:11: 2 TH 1:7-9)

Honest reader, turn and read in your Bible Fimothy 3:16.17. From this reading you will learn that "the Word of God is complete and is sufficient to furnish man unto every good work." When we read hat his needs are, teaching, reproof, correction, and nstruction in righteousness, please tell me what room s made in the passage for the physical man. The plain ruth is that the needs of the physical man IS NOT e work of the church and those who so make it have absolutely left their first love. Is this what YOU want to be identified with? ### Bush approved for CIA post

WASHINGTON - The Senate confirmed the nomination of George Bush as director of the embattled Central Intelligence Agency Tuesday, rejecting protests by some Democrats that his political background would thwart restoration of public confidence in the CIA.

The vote was 64 to 27, with only one Republican, Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, voting against the nomination. Helms said Bush was not the best qualified man for the Another Republican, Lowell P Weicker Jr. of Connecticut, voted "present." Weicker said he could not support Bush because of his past political activities but could not oppose him otherwise.

Although Bush was opposed mainly by Democratic Liberals - 26 Democrats voted against him - he also received considerable liberal support from among the 30 Democrats and 34 Republicans who

Bush's most recent job has been chief of the U.S. Liaison Office in

But it was Bush's political past, particularly his role as Republican national chairman in the waning months of the Nixon Administration, that generated the opposition to him. Bush also has been a two-term House member from Texas, twice an unsuccessful candidate for the Senate, and a U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Even his Democratic critics conceded Bush had demonstrated integrity and ability in all of his jobs and said they could support him for almost any other post in government. But they argued that at a time when the CIA was reeling from disclosures of misdeeds and illegal activities, Bush was not the right choice to restore public trust in the agency.

"we cannot have a rehabilitation of the agency without a restoration of public confidence," said Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre (D-N.H.), leader of the opposition. "A person so vulnerable to political subornation doesn't inspire confidence.

On the other hand, some of Bush's supporters contended his political background could be an asset by providing him with the political astuteness to stand up to a President who wanted the CIA to undertake a

"All of the recent (CIA) directors have told me they have done things they knew were wrong but that they did them because the President wanted them to do it," said Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), one of Bush's strongest defenders. "I think George Bush has demonstrated the ability to stand up to the President.'

Mrs. Javits gives up jobs

The Washington Post

NEW YORK - Marion B. Javits, the wife of Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.), said Tuesday she has resigned her $67,000-a-year public relations consultant's job for Iran National Airlines because of the "appearance" of a conflict of interest

Mrs. Javits said she is also resigning her job as a senior vice president of the Ruder and Finn Co., a New York-based public relations firm, because of suggestions of conflicts of interests that might arise in the future

She said she was saddened that despite recent advances by the women's movement. "the American public is not yet sure whether it feels comfortable about extending that privilege or right to the wife of a public official.

Her primary reasons for leaving her public relations work, Mrs. Javits said, is the "unjustifiable, painful criticism" that has been leveled at

Justice Department checking testimony of ITT head, others

WASHINGTON (AP) - Justice Department lawyers are scrutinizing the testimony of ITT Chairman Harold Geneen and others about the firm's role in Chile because of apparent conflicts between that testimony and evidence taken by the Senate intelligence committee.

Geneen testified under oath before the Senate subcommittee on multinational corporations in 1973 that ITT did not supply money to block the election of Marxist Salvador Allende. But last December, the Senate intelligence committee staff reported that, with CIA knowledge and advice, ITT passed $350,000 to Allende's main opponent in Chile's 1970 election.

The Senate intelligence committee staff report said its findings were based on the record of the multinationals subcommittee plus 'new information," including CIA documents.

Meantime, the Overseas Private Investment Corporation has begun a separate review of ITT efforts to keep Allende from becoming Chile's president. The federally financed corporation paid $95 million in insurance to ITT after Chile's government confiscated ITT property. The multinationals panel alerted the Justice Department to its record of testimony when its hearings ended, because chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, thought someone had lied to the subcommittee

One informed source said Tuesday that as recently as last month Justice Department lawyers were still interviewing persons to determine "whether there was any reason to believe the testimony of Geneen and all the other witnesses was not accurate." The interviews roughly coincided with release of the new information by the Senate intelligence committee staff

In sworn testimony in April 1973 before the multinationals panel, Geneen denied ITT contributed 'money to any person or to any agency of any government to block the election of Dr. Allende.

Last December, the intelligence committee, which is also headed by Church, reported, "During the period prior to the September (1970 Chilean) election. ITT representatives met frequently with CIA representatives both in Chile and in the United States and CIA advised ITT as to ways in which it might safely channel funds both to the Alessandri campaign and to the National Party. CIA was kept informed of the extent and the mechanism of the funding. Eventually at least $350,000 was passed by ITT to this campaign.

Jorge Alessandri was Allende's chief opponent. The National Party was a conservative group opposed to

Thursday. Two men found shot to death in car trunk

troopers, suspicious when they found blood on the bumper of an abandoned vehicle, opened the trunk and found two men shot to death near here

One of the men had a large sum of cash wadded up in his pocket.

The Department of Public Safety identified the two as Willis Edward Pond, 24, of Houston, and Arnaldo Ortega, 20, of Edinburg. A DPS spokesman said that papers found on Pond indicated he may also have lived in Edinburg.

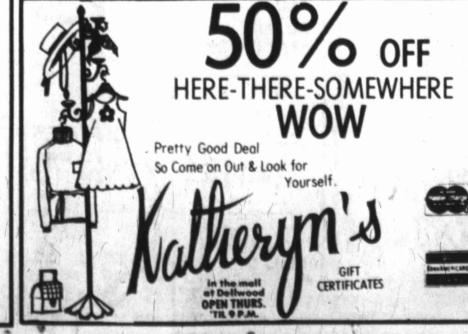

Guadalupe County sheriff Pete

Kallies said both men had been shot and an autopsy will be conducted by the Bexar County medical examiner. The car was parked near FM 1150. approximately 400 feet from its intersection with Texas 80 in the northeast part of Guadalupe County. ### Reagan suggests September list be discarded

The Los Angeles Times

CHARLOTTE, N.C. Ronald Reagan said Tuesday that he had had no intention last September of providing details concerning his plan to shift certain federal programs to the states.

In an exclusive interview with The Los Angeles Times during a campaign stop here, the former California governor said, "I simply announced a broad program last September. I made no pretense of fleshing it out.'

As for a detailed list of federally funded programs he gave to newsmen at the time he unveiled his proposal a list designed to show the scope of his proposal - Reagan snorted

'I never did pay any attention to that list. That was just some stuff the economists gave me. I didn't even agree with all the things on that list."

He suggested that newsmen should now discard the September list of prospective targets for the shift of programs from the federal government to the states, and he explained that he probably would not express his own opinion on which of the programs should be junked rather than continued by state and local governments.

in September, when he announced the plan, Reagan talked about balancing the federal budget by cutting up to $90 billion from federal expenditures by transferring programs to the states.

Today, he talks about the shift only

And he no longer talks about achieving a balanced budget as a direct result of the shift, or of granting an average 23 per cent personal income tax cut, or of making a $5 billion payment on the national debat.

What caused him to change his approach?

"You can't expect a man to have a plan all worked out in detail," he said. There are more than 1,000 separate programs in the social welfare field, he added, and there may be some he would want to continue under Washington's control.

When he first unveiled his program, Reagan said, his objective was "to tie spending and taxing functions together wherever feasible, so that those who have the pleasure of giving away tax dollars will also have the pain of raising them."

But today, he steadfastly refuses to discuss how the states would pay for the programs now funded Washington, except to suggest that some taxes now levied and collected by the federal government might be used at the state and local level 'without making the roundtrip to Washington and back minus a heavy freight charge.'

Last September, Reagan said, "An immediate (federal income) tax cut, some of which might have to be balanced by tax rises in the states, would only be the beginning of the savings that could be achieved."

Angolan aid cutoff 323 to 99. House leaders argued the United States cannot bring victory in Angola and thus should get out entirely.

Asked if the vote means that the United States has lost its attempt to help block a takeover by Soviet-and Cuban-backed forces in the Angolan civil war, Kissinger replied, "I'm not prepared to make this judgment."

Kissinger said he will have a more detailed statement on Angolan aid when he testifies before a Senate committee Thursday.

"The President has said this is a problem that will not go away,' Kissinger said. "And it should not be judged in terms of a victory of one branch of the American government over the other.

Tree rings called nature's recorder of temperature

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Galileo Galilei, that incomparable Italian mathematician from whom so many good things scientific flowed, is generally credited with the invention of the first crude thermometer, sometime near the end of the 16th

Without disparaging Galileo's talents in the slightest, Dr. Leona Marshall Libby of the University of California at Los Angeles nevertheless believes that the credit for that invention is more properly due to nature, for fashioning the first object capable of recording atmospheric temperature changes:

Dr. Libby, an adjunct professor of engineering, and her colleague, Louis J. Pandolfi, a senior chemical engineer, are claiming to find evidence in tree rings of yearly changes in air temperature.

THE EVIDENCE is in the relative amounts of certain isotopes (varients) of hydrogen, oxygen and and oxygen came from rainwater absorbed by the three that year in adding a new layer, or ring, of cellulose and the carbon came from atmospheric carbon dioxide.

Specifically, the two UCLA researchers are proposing that the average temperature of a given year can be read in the relative proportions of oxygen-18 to oxygen-16, deuterium to hydrogen, and carbon-13 to carbon-12 within the appropriate tree heavier forms of these common elements).

(Oxygen-18, deuterium and

Attempts to pin down the temperatures of long-past eras with any degree of precision have not been crowned with much success, Dr. Libby said. Estimates based on core samples taken from ocean bottoms, she said, become blurred by the actions of worms and other marine organisms and so aren't much more accurate than one value averaged over approximately 1,000 years.

But with the tree ring technique, determine the average temperature of the atmosphere on a yearly scale over a span of several thousand years. That assurnes, of course, that trees with a lifesp an that long can be

EUROPEAN coll-eagues, like Bernd Becker of the University of Stuttgart, have retrieved huge oaks from West German river beds, she said, and these trees may enable scientists to work back to the last great Ice Ages with a time and temperature

Tree rings have drawn the attention of scientists before now. Since a tree adds a new ring every year, except under some exceptional drought conditions, archeologists have used slices of old trees to count backward in time and thereby date certain

Rings have also been taken as indicators of past climatic conditions. A wide ring is interpreted as being indicative of a good growth season, one marked by sufficient rains.

Virginia City boasts of having more watering holes per capita than any other place in America - 25 gaudy remnants of the glorious days of the Comstock

THAT'S ONE BAR for every six men and women of drinking age in the West's liveliest ghost

The drinking spots are of such importance to the well-being of the old mining town that they are permitted to stay open around the clock - and many

In summer, thousands ride up Geiger Grade to the 6,100-foot high Victorian (in architecture only) town 20 miles southeast of Reno to hoist a few at the historic saloons

"The long winters kill us." sighed Don McBride, 48, owner of the century-old Bucket of Blood. "We're spread too thin from October to June.

To get a consensus from townspeople, Virginia City commissioners sent out a questionnaire with last month's water bill.

The replies: 56 want to reduce the number of saloons, 36 want to retain the present policy of deciding each January if more bars should be permitted to open, and 19 are for no restrictions whatsoever about anything.

Now, commissioners have declared a 90-day moratorium on any issuance of new licenses or transfer of old licenses until a new ordina nce can be drawn up.

SALOONKEEPERS say 15 to 18 bars at the most would be enough. Fut none of the present 25 bar owners wants his establish ment to go under that's the rub

"What the bar owners want is no new s aloons and when a place goes broke, that's it, no new license issued," explained Henry Bland, 45, chairman of the board of commissioners and a salocinkeeper.

Some of the most famous saloons in the country are here - sa loons first made famous by Mark Twain and Bret Harte when they were reporters on the old 'Territorial Enterprise and later in their short stories and

Huge ornate bars brought around the Horn in the 1850s and 1860s and carried from San Francisco to Virginia City by wagon train are still in use

Original gold and gold leaf chandeliers hang from ceilings in many of the establishments. Each saloon has been designed by the state of Nevada as a historical landmark.

"To close any of the saloons would be a terrible shame. The history of these places is incredible," said Maggie Marks. 57, owner with her husband, Bill, of the Crystal Bar built in 1867 and in continuous operation ever

The Marks family has owned the bar since 1900.

DURING PROHIBITION the Crystal Bar became an ice cream parlor and so it is still today - a combination ice cream parlor and saloon where children sit at circular tables eating ice cream scooped up from behind the bar and adults sit or stand along the rail and drink whisky and beer.

"We have to serve more than booze to keep our heads above the water," said Mrs. Marks. In the Silver Queen Saloon you

EVERY SALOON in Virginia City has a small printing press for printing custom-made headlines on newspaper front pages. Slots and gaming tables are another source of revenue.

Enrico Caruso sang in the Virginia City saloons. Buffalo Bill demonstrated his fancy shooting. Ulysses S. Grant and Thomas A. Edison bellied up to the bar here.

At Virginia City's height in the 1870s the town boasted a population of 30,000 and 110 saloons.

"It's going to be a tough decision for the commissioners to make," admitted Lora del Carlo, a telephone operation and one of the three members of the board. Her son is the local sheriff.

"Saloons are our lifeline in Virginia City. Without them the town might just dry up and blow away. But with so many, it's hard for any of them to make

College bond issue

Excellent judgment was displayed by trustees of Midland College in calling a $6.3 million bond election for erecting three additional buildings on the yearold campus to meet present and future growth needs.

This is something which demands prompt attention and the trustees again acted wisely in setting Feb. 10 as the election date.

Prompt calling of the election in the amount mentioned also is in line with the bond issue priority rating given the college district by the Past Presidents Committee of the Midland Chamber of Com-

The proposed bond issue isn't something which has developed on the spur of the moment. It became apparent with the formal opening of Midland College "on campus" last year that additional buildings would be needed to take care of enrollment, which, even then, was far beyond expectation.

Enrollment at the college has continued to increase rapidly ... to the point that expansion becomes an urgent need.

This is great. Midland College is forging ahead at an unprecedented pace, not only in enrollment but in scholastic achievement and community sérvice.

This is why it is necessary to meet its growth requirements as promptly as possible.

More than 2,000 students now are enrolled, occupying facilities which were planned for 1,500. More space must be provided.

Actually, the trustees didn't have a great deal of choice other than to call the bond election. It is hoped that voters of the college district will flash the "go" signal by approving the bond issue by a top-heavy margin, thereby showing their continued interest in their Midland College.

Two separate propositions will be before the voters in the upcoming election.

The first, construction of an academic and fine arts building and an addition to the occupational-technical building. would cost voters $3.7 million. The second proposition, a multipurpose facility, carries a $2.6 million price tag.

The need for the expanded occupational-technical building and an academic-fine arts building is "critical," due to the spiraling enrollment.

The proposed academic-fine arts structure, with approximately 60,000 square feet of floor space, will provide urgently needed classroom space. One wing would house 15 classrooms and a laboratory room.

A 250-seat lecture hall could be used also for community service workshops and small meetings of various kinds. This building also would enable the college to offer a music program which is in demand.

Another wing is planned to accommodate additional art classes, journalism and publications.

The proposed addition to the occupational-technical building will provide additional classroom space for those courses already in existence as well as others planned for the future.

The multi-purpose facility also will fill an urgent need on campus as well as in the community. It will include 61,000 square feet, providing room for an estimated 3,700 permanent seats and 1,400 movable seats.

CASTRO'S ADVENTURES:

Africans are easier prey than Latins

By WILLIAM GIANDONI

Copley News Service Cuban Premier Fidel Castro apparently feels that Cuban troops can better serve the Communist cause in Africa than in Latin America.

The successes that the Cubans claim in Angola are in marked contrast to the failures of Cuba's revolutionary exploits in the other American republics.

The techniques used in Latin America in past years differ from those of the current campaign in the former Portuguese colony. In Latin America, the Cubans always acted clandestinely. They sought to make it appear that the invasions, the arms smuggling. the attempts to spark guerrilla warfare were led by natives of the country under assault. Never was there any massive Cuban participation.

In Africa now, Castro boldly admits that Cuban arms and men are participating in the conflict.

The ill-fated effort that cost the lives of Castro's one-time right-hand man, Ernesto (Che) Guevara, who had fought in the Congo, and other seasoned Cuban guerrillas in Bolivia in 1967 illustrates the tactical switch.

Although Guevara started trying to organize a guerrilla band in the landlocked South American country in November, 1966, every effort was made to keep his identity a secret.

It was not until sometime after April 20, 1967, when the French writer, Regis Debray, was captured by Bolivian authorities that rumors of Guevara's presence at the head of the small guerrilla band were confirmed. What is more, Guevara never had more than a score or so of men with him and he lacked logistical support of any kind, even food.

In Angola, on the other hand, according to intelligence estimates, more than 10,500 well-supplied Cuban troops are on the scene. At least five top-ranking Cuban military officers are commanding units there. That is in addition to the 400 advisers and $200 million in military equipment that the Soviet Union reportedly has sent to support the Popular Movement for Liberation of Angola (MPLA).

Now Castro shows no compunctions in acknowledging the presence of Cubans in Angola or, for that matter, in other countries.

At one time or another in recent weeks, Castro has boasted that the Cuban Communists have helped Marxist revolutionaries in Algeria, in Guinea-Bissau, in Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, Yemen and Syria over the

His mention of Cuban aid to Algerians in their fight against France makes it clear that Castro was exporting revolution to Africa prior to July, 1963, which was when Algeria achieved its independence from the French.

Castro has said that "we have supported the progressive governments and revolutionary movements of Africa from the very triumph of the revolution. And we will go on supporting them.

However, Castro is starting to try to quiet Latin American fears that he may begin paying unwanted attention to the other American republics, once Cuba finishes in Angola.

"Is it possible that socialism can be established in other countries in Latin America?" Castro was asked at a recent press conference in Havana.

To judge by the tone of Cuban propaganda, Castro's prime target in the hemisphere is the United States. He plans to go on harassing the United States by encouraging the independence movement in Puerto Rico, the associated state of U.S. citizens in the Caribbean, and by supporting Panama's demands for jurisdiction over the Panama Canal.

He strokes the agate's smooth surface, rubbing it softly with his left thumb, eventually putting it down just as unconsciously as he picked it up.

Gov. George Wallace's style

When he speaks, Wallace gestures expansively with both hands, often punctuating a remark by pointing a long, smouldering La Corona cigar. Occasionally he clears his throat and ejects the mucus unerringly into the classic brass cuspidor next to the wastebasket at the right of his

He speaks easily, glibly, discussing politics, embroidering stock political cliches with a southern charm that freshens old phrases. He often uses harsh humor to attack the bureaucrats, the press and the shadowy "they" who oppose him.

His finely tuned campaign machine is zeroing in on the Democratic presidential nomination but is quietly preparing to run him as a conservative, third-party, coalition choice. Charles Snider, the former aeronautical engineer who directs the Wallace campaign, told our associate Jim Grady that the campaign organization is working full time for the Democratic nomination. "But on my own, separate from this campaign," he added slyly, "I've been working with a number of these groups." He referred to the conservative splinter groups, which he has "counseled" to resolve their differences and work together. Wallace's campaign organization traces its roots, almost without a break, back to the early 1960s. It is now an efficient machine, guided by professionals and powered by the most important ingredient in American politics - money. Under Snider's direction, Wallace used most of the first $2 million he raised to find and tap the conservative money wells. He now has a computerized list of known, active financial backers while other candidates are still scrambling to put their solicitation drives together. "We expect that $2 million to bring in about $8 million," said Snider, "much of which we can match with federal funding." Most of the contributions come from Alabama. followed by Texas, Florida, California and Georgia in that order.

Wallace disavows reports that he makes money by running for office.

Wallace wrinkled his brow and raised his bushy eyebrows as he also pooh-poohed charges that Alabama has done poorly under his reign. The man who likes to cite voting percentages in his own favor grumped: "You can juggle statistics any way

INSIDE REPORT:

Defense spending back of Brezhnev's SALT hunger

By ROLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Although U.S. negotiators always seem the desperately anxious suitors, top Kremlinologists here believe Soviet party boss Leonid Brezhnev needs political help at home from a new arms limitation agreement far more than does President Ford.

The U.S. drive for agreement is based not only on defense budget pressures but also on Mr. Ford's quest for election-year accomplishment and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's desire to climax his detente diplomacy. But these factors, Kremlinologists believe, are dwarfed by Russian needs: economic crisis in the Soviet Union that may reduce present massive defense bending. Soviet hunger for SALT (strategic arms limitation talks) puts an ironic cast on last week's talks in Moscow. Hard-liners in Congress and the Pentagon believe Dr. Kissinger arrived there with an official position that gave away too much and fear he went further in bargaining.

Brezhnev goes before the Com-munist party Congress Feb. 24 with the worst record of economic achievement since the early days of World War II, when German invaders ravaged the country. The five-year he German invasion that has not met principal economic goals. The roduction, forcing the Kremlin into the world grain market for undented purchases from the apitalist West. With the price of gold now $50 an ounce below the spectacular high of a year ago, the Soviet government is oath to raise money today by substantial sales from its hoard of gold.

That means insufficient feedgrains for promised fattening of beef cattle and other meat animals. Likewise, output of consumer goods is lagging far behind original schedules. Result: the long promised availability of consumer goods has once again proved illusory.

Thus, some Kremlinologists here are convinced the economic shortfall is about to trigger a major internal battle over the level of Soviet defense spending in the next five-year plan. Their conclusion: defense spending will be forced downward simply because financing at present levels will not be available, with money drying up because of foreign purchase of grain.

Perhaps more damaging to Brezhnev's reputation high in the Communist party are shortfalls in his foreign policy. He never has been able to convene a Europewide parley of Communist parties; party leaders in Yugoslavia, France, Italy and possibly other countries have refused to toe the Brezhnev mark.

Similarly, the European Security Conference finally held in Helsinki last summer has fallen far short of being the significant Soviet triumph it was touted to be. Nor has Breznney made progress with the West particularly the U.S. - in thinning out European force levels.

Believing, therefore, that Soviet military spending will have to go down anyway, hard-liners in Washington question why the President and his Secretary of State have pushed so insistently for a new SALT agreement.

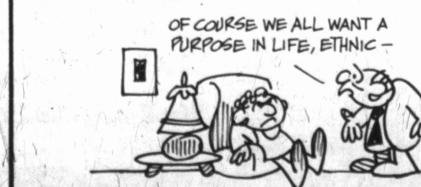

The answer lies in Mr. Ford's political needs and Dr. Kissinger's desires to complete his diplomatic grand design. MORE FORD FUMBLING

Entertainment tribute in Freedom Train exhibit

A special tribute to America's entertainers— the movie stars, radiovaudeville personalities and radio-TV greats - who brought happiness, diversion and enjoyment to millions of American during the earlier years of this nation, will be featured in a special multi-media presentation on the American Freedom Train when it comes to this area.

ENTERTAINMENT

The Freedom Train will open to the public at noon Saturday, Feb. 7, to remain open until 10 p.m. On Sunday and Monday, hours will be 8 a.m. to 10

To be located at Midland Regional Air Terminal, the train will provide a unique moving walkway to take visitors past four continuously operating movie projectors showing such classics as a Charlie Chaplin silent epic, and actor Al Jolson declaring "You ain't seen nothing yet" in the world's first talking picture, 1927's "The Jazz Singer."

For a brief time, movie fans will be reunited with James Cagney's Oscarwinning performance in 1943's "Yankee Doodle Dandy," along with a swashbuckling Errol Flynn dueling with Basin Rathbone in "Captain Blood," and tough-guy Edward G. Robinson as "Little Caesar."

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy will be heard again in "Indian Love Call," Johnny Weissmuller will be seen in the famous "Tarzan, the Ape Man," and Bette Davis and Franchot Tone will be spellbinding audiences with their performances in "Dangerous." Not least, Rita Hayworth will be seen and heard again as she vamps her way through "Put the Blame on Mame," while Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers will singdance and their way through a segment of the movie "Top Hat."

The Freedom Train's tribute to the silver screen also includes such items on display as the first movie projector, comedian Harold Lloyd's glasses. Rudolph Valentino's jacket, Shirley Temple's Teddy bear from "Captain January," Vivian Leigh's brooch from "Gone With the Wind," Judy Garland's dress from "The Wizard of Oz," Robert Redford's costume from "The Sting" and Cecil B. deMille's script from his "The Ten Commandments.

Also to be on view in the train's entertainment car are such memorabilia as a 1930 TV set, Jack Benny's famous violin, Will Rogers' rope, Bob Hope's manuscript of his well-known theme song, "Thanks for the Memory," and the stethoscope used by Robert Young in his "Marcus Welby, M.D." series on TV.

Recognition for outstanding accomplishment has always been an important part of show business and the Freedom Train houses some of the most outsanding of these awards, including an "Oscar," an "Emmy," the Look Award, the People's Choice

Award, the Entertainment Hall of Fame Award and the gold medal presented by President Franklin De-Roosevelt to showman George M: Cohan "for patriotic service."

Rounding out the entertainment. presentation are excerpts from famous and classic radio programs, including "The Shadow" and "The Lone Ranger," and TV programs "See It Now, with Edward R. Murrow, and "The George Burns"

Family viewing support hollow

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- Norman Lear didn't buy it when TV Guide magazine reported last December that a nationwide survey it had commissioned found a whopping 82 per cent of the adult population in favor of television's controversial "family viewing" policy.

That's the plan that restricts TV programming between the hours of 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. - 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the Central Time Zone — to material that is "inoffensive to a general family audience." idea is to reduce the amount of sex and violence on the air.

The magazine's findings must have been a blow to the Writers Guild, Directors Guild and Screen Actors Guild, which have filed suit against the policy on grounds it is censorship and violates the First Amendment. They certainly looked to be in a small minority.

Lear, who brought "All American television and currently supervises production of six other TV comedies as well (including "Maude" and "Good Times"), wasn't convinced. He hired a former MIT and UCLA professor who specializes in testing the validity of other people's surveys to analyze the TV Guide

Private eye specializes in terrorist kidnapings

By STEPHEN FOX
LOS ANGELES (AP) - The businessman on the phone has a multimillion-dollar problem. Foreign terrorists have kidnaped one of his top executives and are demanding a huge sum for his release.

It may sound like a scene from a movie, but it's not. The drama has been played out frequently at the offices of the John T. Lynch Co., an international private investigation firm headquartered here.

Lynch said. His staff is primarily composed of what Lynch calls 'Exmen ... ex-FBI IRS or CIA."

Lynch says that kidnapings are likely to increase both here and abroad.

"It's a very profitable business," he said. "Where else could you get $1 million or $2 million, in one case $14 million, in a few hours tax free? There's no other occupation that pays so well - outside the U.S. Inside the U.S. I wouldn't bet a nickel on a kidnaping being successful because of the FBI. Lynch said his men have come face to face with organized crime and, although none has ever been shot, some have been threatened.

"We get them out of the geographical area," he said. "They require 24-hour protection."

Lynch said banking executives are particularly vulnerable to kidnapers. "It's like Willie Sutton said ... he robs banks because that's where the kidnaper, he takes the banker's family because he knows he's going to get his money quickly, "said Lynch.

Although his firm makes a lot of money from kidnapings, Lynch said the company stresses prevention and offers a special seminar "designed for top executives who must travel and those in the banking field." He tells an executive to cut down on risks by "not announcing to the world what his itinerary is and by not going into high-crime areas."

If an executive has received a kidnaping threat, or is fearful of an attempt, Lynch also will provide around-the-clock protection for a fee of about $2,500 a week.

"That would include protection of the wife and kids," he said. "We'd drive the kids to school and provide a residence watch while the family is sleeping."

In addition to kidnaping cases, Lynch's company also concentrates on tracking down embezzlers. A typical embezzler, he said, "is a corporate officer in a position of trust who has access to millions of dollars and dips in up to his elbows.'

In such cases, Lynch said, his men begin a "methodical pursuit" of the embezzler, tracing him wherever he may flee.

Lynch, who describes himself as being in his "mid-50s," says he became a private eye after 10 years with the FBI.

"I decided Hoover (J. Edgar Hoover, the late FBI director) was never going to quit, so I'd never get his job," he said.

Junior Miller put on quite a show Tuesday night in the Lee Gymnasium, ripping the cords for 37 points in leading the Midland Lee Rebels to an impressive 76-62 victory over the Midland Bulldogs.

Miller, a 6-6 senior, connected on 17 field goal attempts out of 25 for an amazing 67.7 per cent and added three free throws and left the game with 2:11 remaining. The crowd gave the gifted athlete a standing ovation.

best performance of the year, teammates Billy Ray Ennis and Brent Huckabay chipped in with 13 and 12 points, respectively.

Miller's 37 points moves him to the top in District 5-4A scoring with 155 points in seven games. San Angelo's Arnold McDowell scored 16 in the Bobcat victory over Big Spring, to give him a 153 points as the first half of the district race closes.

Midland played well in the first half, but a lack of height hurt the Purple Pack as Lee outscored Midland, 35-30, in the second half.

Baseball's reserve clause due ruling by Oliver on Monday

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Said Judge John W. Oliver with a bit of whimsy, "Baseball has had its share of judges and lawyers; I'm glad I don't have to judge whether that's good or bad."

His comment came Tuesday during a hearing in his U.S. District Court which questions a federal mediator's jurisdiction in major league baseball arbitration cases.

The judge said testimony and "final housekeeping chores" in the litigation would be completed today, and he will render a decision by Monday At stake is an arbitrator's ruling last month which owners maintain strikes at the heart of baseball's reserve clause governing the control of players. In that ruling, federal arbitrator Peter Seitz declared that pitchers Andy Messersmith aand Dave McNally were free agents after playing out their option year.

Under the reserve clause, owners have historically retained the unilateral option of renewing a player's contract.

The losing side is sure to appear Judge Oliver's Greenwood Rangers decision. Attorneys for the 24 baseball club owners, opened District 11-B's who filed the case in November, say a ruling adverse second half cage race to their clients could unleash a fleod of players with a 59-53 victory over playing out their options. This, they say, could be Water Valley here Friday disastrous to the national pastime.

The legal hassle has spawned reams of briefs, filings and notes from members of a joint study Water Valley in the first committee which briefly considered baseball's round to finish third in the reserve clause in 1969, and from participants in first half race, but now contract negotiations in 1969, 1970 and 1973.

Much of the testimony Tuesday was spent reviewing the notes of Richard Moss, general counsel for the Major League Baseball Players Association; Alexander Hv Hadden, general counsel for the American League; and Louis Hoynes, National League general counsel.

The 10 attorneys, seven for the owners and three for the players, went to the judge's chambers three times as he continued efforts to cut through the legal sparring and bring the proceedings to a close cohesiveness prevailed over pure talent, but a sizzling rookie named David Thompson gave a record crowd what it came to see in the American Basketball Association All-Star

Thompson scored 15 of his game-high 29 points Tuesday night, helping the Denver Nuggets pull away in that period to a 144-138 triumph over an AllStar team comprised of players in the other six teams in the league.

The Nuggets, who won the right to play the All-Stars by residing in first place in the ABA, outscored their opponents 52-41 in the final period. turning a five-point deficit into a victory that winning coach Larry Brown called "thrilling. Both Brown and All-Star Coach Kevin Loughery of the New York Nets agreed it was Denver's team play in the final quarter that made the critical difference. "Down the stretch, a team thay has experienced at playing together should be at an advantage and we were," said Brown.

"In a close game like this, you tend to suffer when you are not organized," said Loughery, who had to mold 12 ABA standouts into a team with a minimum of practice.

The game, played before an alltime ABA record crowd of 17,798, was surrounded by an almost carnivallike atmosphere-an attempt. perhaps, to obscure the financial troubles that plagued the league.

Times change at A&M

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer Changing times have finally caught up with that last citadel of conservatism, Texas A&M University.

Marijuana, or Mary Jane as it's called by the dope pushers, has reared its illegal head at a school which prides itself on academics, cadet corps, and football and basketball teams and clean living.

All-American defensive back Pat Thomas, running back Skip Walker, and former All-SWC basketball player Cedric Joseph have been charged with possession of misdemeanor amounts of marijuana.

The innocence of those charged will be proved in the courts. The very fact such a thing happened has sent shock waves through the administration and "It's a scandal and now we know why the team tailed off last season," said a letter written to The Associated Press by one Aggie supporter.

For such a thing to happen at Texas A&M probably is a scandal in the eyes of many alumni. But smoking marijuana is a problem that has been available on the campus of 25,000 students for years, just like other schools. Texas A&M has never been immune nor will it ever are be from the controversial weed. As for the football team, there's no evidence marijuana was the cause of losses to Arkansas and Southern California after 10 victories which rocketed the school to the No. 2 positions in the country.

"We talked to our kids all the time about the dangers of marijuana," said Melvin Robertson, the coordinator of college football's No. 1 defense. "You can tell in someone's performance if he has been messing around with that stuff. I saw no indication whatsoever. You can tell it by little things, missed assignments, snap counts,"

Robertson said "I think we have a problem that's no different than anybody else. It's prevalent on every campus and marijuana is here. But smoking the stuff is against the law."

In a candid telephone interview, Robertson said "marijuana had nothing to do with us sagging at the end of the season. I really have no straight answer why we tailed off. We were working as hard as we did

"I think a lot of folks thought our season was wrapped around the Texas game...that we were over the hump when we beat them ... sort of subconscious, you know."

Robertson said "There are a lot of things without answers- why can't Michigan beat Ohio State?...why does Alabama have trouble winning bowl games? But our problem wasn't marijuana."

A group of about 50 schoolboys visited the Texas A&M campus over the weekend. Texas A&M Coach-Emory Bellard openly discussed the marijuana

"Those kids came right back and told us that every party they go to in their high schools marijuana is available," said Robertson. "They said if they really cared about it they could get it at lunch hour. They said marijuana is even prevalent down in the junior high school area now."

Robertson said, "What those kids were trying to tell us is it's there if you want it no matter where you Bellard explained to the prospects he wanted only kids with good character on his team. He was deluged with committments to come to Texas A&M from the schoolboys, Robertson said.

'We're going to have a super year, probably the best we've ever had," said Robertson. "We're getting blue chippers like you can't believe."

$16 million in taxes for county with 140 persons

MENTONE, Tex. (AP) - Loving County out in far West Texas has plenty of oil and gas and tax money. It lacks only two things - water and

While drilling rigs spin - there are 14 of them within a five-mile radius of Mentone - and work crews and heavy equipment come and go each day, the population remains about the Right now there are 140 persons in the 647-square-mile county, about half the size of Rhode Island. The tax roll last year was $16 million.

County Judge Don Creager said in a recent interview, "I suspect the tax rolls will be up another $10 million this

With all that tax money rolling in from the drilling operations, why hasn't the population grown?

"The lack of water. Nobody wants to move to a place where they have to haul water. But, they don't realize it is a fact you soon learn to live with. I every drop of our water," the judge said.

Mentone, the county seat with a population of 44, has a combination grocery-cafe-bar, a gas station, post office and a courthouse

Most of the folks hereabouts are ranchers. A third of the population is

The judge sits in a cubbyhole of an office at the courthouse where the walls are peeling and the concrete floor is worn smooth.

"People keep asking what a county with only 140 people is going to do with all that tax money," he said. "Well, the first thing we will do is catch up and make up for all the years of neglect when we didn't have any tax money. Some of the money will go to remodel the courthouse and bring up the salaries of the county employes," he said. Creager said other funds would go to buy maintenance equipment and repair roads.

The Los Angeles Times It's costing you plenty to own your car, even as you sit quietly reading the Sunday paper with the Belchfire parked at the curb.

You probably don't think about it except when paying gasoline bills or repair charges, but automobiles gobble up piles of money constantly for other things - insurance. depreciation and maintenance among them.

The American Automobile Assn. figures the average American with an 8-cylinder intermediate-sized car spends $3.25 a day before using a drop of gasoline or paying a cent on his auto loan.

Since an individual can't do much about the rates an insurance company charges or the declining value of a car as it grows older, the key to reducing diriving costs, say experts, is to know your car's quirks and improve your driving habits.

They recommend taking action on three fronts: gasoline mileage, preventive maintenance and repairs. The AAA estimates that gasoline and oil — the largest "controllable" driving expenses — now cost the average American about 4.8 cents a

BUT THE TIME to start improving mileage is before you buy a car. Remember that a vehicle's weight and engine size, more than any other factors, determine its fuel consumption.

According to the Federal Energy Administration, a 5,000-pound car will generally require twice as much fuel to drive around the city as a 2,500pound car. A 4-cylinder Chevette with an 85-cubic inch engine, for example, is estimated to get double the gasoline mileage of an 8-cylinder Chevrolet station wagon with a 454-cubic inch

The optional equipment on a car also directly affects its gas consumption. The FEA figures that air conditioning reduces mileage by about 10 per cent in city driving, and an automatic transmission may reduce mileage 5 per cent to 15 per cent on some models.

Comfort features like power steering, power brakes, carpeting and electric windows add weight to a car - and therefore decrease its fuel efficiency. Once you select a car, the way you drive it will also have a big influence on gasoline mileage. Newer cars with tough pollution control equipment don't respond very well when they are "gunned" for a quick getaway, so jackrabbit starts are just a waste of "GUNNING" can rob up to 15 per cent of a car's fuel economy over more moderate acceleration, according to government studies. The FEA says the best fuel economy for all cars occurs at speeds between 30 and 40 m.p.h. with no stop sand no rapid speed changes.

The kind of tires you put on a car also affect gasoline consumption. Tire industry studies show that radialdesign tires may improve gasoline mileage 5 per cent to 10 per cent over standard four-ply tires. They cost more initially, however.

Underinflated tires also have an effect on fuel consumption and tire life. Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. says a tire designed to run with 24 pounds of pressure but which carries only 16 pounds may wear out in half the time and rob the driver of several miles per gallon.

OVERINFLATED tires improve fuel economy but end to wear out in the center faster and may reduce your braking ability.

Earl Scholb says.

ALL EXCLUSIVE DIAMOND GLOSS COLORS — WITH GENERAL ELECTRIC SILICONES"

Most cars have the recommended tire pressure pasted in their glove compartments or on the side of the Professional economy-run drivers advise that the best way to improve fuel consumption on the road is to pretend you have a raw egg under the accelerator pedal and apply pressure "as if your foot were a feather."

They also say that anticipating stoplights and slowing down gradually will help your mileage, as will cutting down on idling time.

Though it's difficult to eliminate idling altogether, FEA estimates that an idling engine burns a pint of gasoline every six minutes.

Riding the brake pedal or making unnecessary stops will also cut down on mileage, as will stop-and-go driving and short trips.

Since more than half of American families now own two or more cars, driving costs can be reduced by making more "strategic" use of big and small cars. For example, a family with one small car and one big station wagon could save money by piling the whole family in the wagon for outings and using the small car for short trips to the supermarket.

It's cheaper to use one big car fully loaded — than two small cars on family trips.

PERFORMING ROUTINE maintenance on your car on a scheduled basis is absolutely essential in reducing driving costs,

"Americans are lousy carmaintainers," complains an auto industry official. "They think running it through a carwash and having a station attendant check the dipstick will keep the car running smoothly ''

With the trend toward smaller cars and engines, preventive maintenance by owners is likely to become more important, he says.

'Smaller engines work harder at highway speeds than the big gasguzzlers do, so they need to be watched closer.

A good way to get in the habit of performing necessary maintenance chores is to follow the schedule supplied by the manufacturer when a car is purchased. It's estimated that half the problems which develop after a car is two years old could be eliminated or greatly diminished if owners would follow the recommended maintenance schedule.

Don't be afraid to look under the hood. Most owner's manuals contain a diagram of the engine's parts, and it is a good idea to familiarize yourself with the location of the fan belt, oil filter, carburetor, brake cylinder and

YOU CAN SAVE a considerable amount of money by following the manufacturer's schedule and replacing things like the air filter and windshield wiper blades yourself. That may even give you the confidence to try more complicated operations such as oil and filter changes and routine lubrication. Keep an eye on fluid levels in the various units under the hood. Once a week or so, check the crankcase oil level and the radiator coolant level. If you have power steering, check the fluid level in that unit, and check to see that there is sufficeint fluid in the brake master cylinder.

Most experts also recommend that you rotate your tires periodically to insure even wear. Four-ply tires (but not radials) ought to be rotated every 5,000 to 8,000 miles, they say. Radials

usually don't need to be rotated unless Group picks coodinator for District 19

AUSTIN - Mrs. Mary Kirchhoff of Plainview has been named congressional district coordinator of District 19 for the President Ford Committee in Texas.

District 19 encompasses Andrews, Martin, Midland and portions of both Dawson and Ector counties.

As district coordinator, Mrs. Kirchhof will coorinate "an intensive grassroots campaign,' assist in recruiting county chairmen supporting Ford and form county Ford Steering Committees.

She also will chair the congressional district committee meeting which will pick Ford delegates whose names will appear on the May primary ballot.

REPAIR with

Remember to include the spare when you rotate tires; otherwise, you may be stuck with one perfectly good tire when the other four are worn out.

WHEN TIRES are being rotated is also a good time to have the front alignment of your car checked. But be cautious. Most manufacturers say that once a car's alignment has been set it should last 50,000 miles unless you drive frequently over chuck holes and rough pavement.

Unnecessary front alignment service is a favorite ploy of unscrupulous repair shops.

To perform the routine maintenance required to hold down driving costs, most experts recommend that you carry a few common tools in your car.

Basic tools for simple maintenance would include pliers, screwdriver, a wrench and a pen-type tire gauge. It is also smart to carry a spare fan belt and a flashlight.

An improperly tuned car can cost you up to one gallon of gasoline in every six, according to industry estimates. And a car in poor tune will also create more pollution than one running properly.

Car manufacturers usually specify how long a particular vehicle should be driven between tuneups. With the widespread installation of electronic ignitions in the 1976 models (which eliminate points and condensers), the

MOST 1975 MODEL and older cars require a tuneup after 10,000 to 15,000 miles, while the new models may go as much as 22,000 miles between tuneup interval has been extended.

A common mistake many people make is to assume that a tuneup will correct most car troubles. But when you request a tuneup at most repair shops, it will usually include only a change of sparkplugs, points and condenser and an adjustment of ignition timing.

One way to avoid having other troubles overlooked when you take the car for a tuneup is to patronize repair shps which use engine diagnostic equipment. Such equipment will indicate whether your car needs more than a simple tuneup

Lobby group opposes new area prison

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - A proposal to create a new state prison branch in West Texas has brought a cry from a lobby group that "Texas can't afford another cotton pick-

Warehousing more prisoners will increase crime, taxes and racial conflicts," says the group called Citizens United for the Rehabilitation of Errants

CURE said Texas has the most prisoner of any state in the United States, nothing that the Texas Department of Corrections has 19,000 prisoners out of a population of 12 million persons while Illinois, with 11 million population, has only 9,000. CURE said California with 20 million population has 17,000

The organization said the corrections department does a good in providing educational and vocational programs in a limited amount of time for inmates. but too many prisoners are confined to stoop labor. CURE fears a new West Texas facility would be operated the same way.

'The corrections department justifies this 'rehabilitation' by stating that good work habits are taught," CURE said. "Even if this is true, an exconvict still cannot find a productive job unless he has an employable skill. Without work, return to

Seminar series on sulfide slated

mission of Texas' Oil and Gas Division has scheduled a series of safety seminars on coping with hydrogen sulfide leakages or escapes in Texas oil and gas producing

The first seminar, for the division's safety coordinators, will be held Feb.

ENERGY

10-11 at the division's safety training school at Kilgore.

Upon their return to their stations across the state, the coordinators will conduct seminars on hydrogen sulfide handling for other commission district personnel.

The Oil and Gas Division will conduct seminars for public safety personnel. A preview of these seminars will be presented Feb. 26 in Austin during the 15th Annual Preparedness Conference of the Texas Department of Public Safety's Division of Disaster Emergency

Six one-day seminars for public safety personnel - Department of Public Safety, county and local safety officers — will be conducted by the Oil and Gas Division in Austin, San Antonio, Tyler, Corpus Christi, Lubbock and Midland on dates to be announced.

The division also will take a lead role at hydrogen sulfide seminars for industry safety personnel to be held March 16 at Odessa, March 17 at Dallas and March 18 at Houston. These seminars are being sponsored by industry

The Oil and Gas Division is developing a curriculum for a hydrogen sulfide rules enforcement school to be held in April for commission personnel. Also, a handbook on enforcement guidelines is expected to be available in April.

The commission is revising its Statewide Rule 36 pertaining to operations containing hydrogen

Court rules for Exxon

AUSTIN - The Texas Supreme Court today ruled in favor of Exxon Co.-USA in a suit brought to stop the forced pooling of an oil field in Pecos County.

The Supreme Court upheld a decision made by the El Paso Court of Civil Appeals in reversing a Midland trial court decision.

The suit was brought by Maurice Bullock and First National Bank of Midland, trustee, against Exxon in an attempt to prevent pooling in the 673acre Gomez field in Pecos County.

The state railroad commission intervened in the suit on the side of Exxon, but the trial court held that the bank was correct. This was reversed on appeal and the El Paso court said the bank had no authority to represent the state— in this case, the Railroad Commission- in: bringing action against the pooling arrangement.

Island tougher

on cars

SINGAPORE (AP) ingapore's war on the rivate automobile has tensified, and stunned ptorists have started to climb out from behind the

The government's latest offensivedesigned to curb pollution and traffic congestionwas unleashed on the last ay of 1975. Highway axes were increased for e second time in nine nonths, registration charges were boosted and he fee for a special Licker to drive downtown morning rush hours with fewer than four people per car was raised from the equivalent of $24

All this means that it now costs about 145 per pent more than the list price, insurance and shipping to put an imported car on the road in singapore.

Some cities in the Inited States seek to discourage automobile se in their business enters but none has saken measures so drastic as Singapore.

One newspaper called the crackdown here the most Draconian measure to date to curb he growth of motor vehicles in Singapore... This may or may not be the last time the government raises its car taxes. jut it will find it increasingly unnecessary o do so again as cars in Singapore are now just bout the most expensive in the world."

This crowded islandnation of 2.2 million eople has only 226 guare miles of land for estimated 275,000 registered vehicles, 111,700 of them privately

Many traffic woes are blamed on inadequate gublic transport and Earlier efforts to imgrove traffic flow induded one way streets. pecial lanes for buses, acreased vehicle taxes and staggered office bours. They didn't work.

Last June the "area licensing scheme" was introduced to untangle norning rush hours jams. Private cars and axis carrying fewer than four people pay for the privilege of entering the central business district between 7:30 and 10:15 m. Parking fees were acreased at the same me and congestion was ased but not eliminated. Private cars and the 300 taxis now pay four singapore dollars (about 1.60) a day to enter the entral business district buy a monthly sticker r 80 dollars ($32). The rates were three ollars ($1.20) per day ad 60 dollars ($24) per

The 23,000 cars owned business firmsntifiable by a "Q" in e license number-had their entrance fee coosted from three to light dollars ($3.20) a lay. One soft drink ompany promptly with-rew cars assigned to bout 80 executives.

Milton Tan, president of the Automobile Association, called the new measures "a stun-ning blow" that would fuel inflation and in-crease the cost of living. Owners of small cars tere hit hard. Road taxes were increased 75 per ent on vehicles with an engine size of less than 1,000 cubic centimeters.
One expert said it cost 134,40 a month to maintain a subcompact ast November and now he price was almost $200

Terror stalks district

By JOHN VINOCUR NOGENT-SUR-OISE. France (AP) - This is the France of vacant lots, no-star restaurants. mud-caked sidewalks and a madman who has killed eight women.

He murdered again this month, dragging a 20-year-old typist into the garbage-strewn yard between a carpentry shop and a 12-room hotel.

The newspapers talked about the assassin of the shadows, the suburban Jack the Ripper and the monster from the banks of the Oise River, but the names were easy tags for a man who has brought a very glacial kind of terror to a very ordinary place. It is the banality of the killer and his victims, the apparent Monday-Tuesday-Wedne sday mediocrity of their lives, that the police say is making it hard for them. Like the salesmen and secretaries, their trousers too narrow, their skirts too unfashionably short, who file into the little station for the 7:14 to Paris, neither the murderer nor the dead women have offered enough distinguishing marks or clues to help.

"We have nothing," says a bearded detective transferred from Lille, 120 miles away, for the case. "I'm not kidding, nothing," he repeats, "No leads. What we know about the guy is public record.

"He's a hunter, he's meticulous, he's intelligent. He seems to get his pleasure out of preparing and watching his victims, because the crimes are committed very quickly. The women are not molested. although their underclothes are removed, and usually the killer takes their purse with him. We figure he may be impotent. But there's nothing unusual or inter-related about the women he's hit except that they are all brunettes. And there's nothing special about him obviously, because a minute after it's over, he blends perfectly, absolutely noiselessly, into this charming

The setting is a four squaremile area in Nogent, population 15,636, and the neighboring village, Villers-St. Paul, population 3,939, about 30 miles north of Paris. It is a grey and black place of eggbox apartment buildings facing rows of attached houses of scabby brick. What there is left of a horizon is smothered by the smoke rising from the tanks and piping of the chemical plant just beyond the railroad tracks.

The killer knows the communities and their rhythms perfectly and acts at their only real moment of flux: when people are walking in the darkness to catch the train to Paris, or returning home at nightfall. Over the seven-year period that the killings have continued, they stop as the days lengthen out of winter and light comes to the commuting hours. The series goes back to January 1969, when Andree Lecron, preparing her husband's dinner, was wounded in the shoulder by a .22 caliber bullet fired through a window. Thirteen days later, the first killing took place.

Carsons win court ruling

CHICAGO (AP) - The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that "Tonight" show host Johnny Carson and his wife are entitled to a jury trial in their libel suit against a Chicago-based national newspaper.

Carson and his present wife, Joanna Holland Carson, filed a $22-million libel suit in 1972 against the National Insider after it reported that Carson moved the "Tonight" show to California to be closer to Miss Holland, the woman the newspaper said caused the break-up of Carson's former marriage.

rket report Reagan getting in shape for New Hampshire bout

The Associated Press

Ronald Reagan begins his third campaign swing through New Hampshire today, focusing his attention on the etate's midsection. including the capacity of Concord.

The former California governor, who is waging a strong challenge to President Ford in the nation's first primary here Feb. 24, has already spent six days in the state since Jan. 5 and plans to be here another nine days before the election.

Reagan scheduled a news conference, his first in the state, for shortly after his arrival on a chartered flight from North Carolina, where he campaigned on Tuesday.

Primary voting will be "very close" between Reagan and President Ford, but Ford doesn't have to win all the primaries to secure the Republican presidential nomination, outgoing Secretary of Commerce Rogers C.B. Morton said.

Morton, in California for a threeday tour he said was at least partly political, told a Los Angeles news conference on Tuesday that the President is "in much better shape than you'd think he'd be in" to tackle Reagan in the important June 8 California primary.

In Boston, meanwhile, Ford was challenged by Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace to go to the U.S. Supreme Court and request a moratorium on-

Beneficiaries may need to file

Social Security beneficiaries under age 72 and whose outside wages or self-employment income exceeded $2,520 last year are required to file a report with the Social Security office, according to Erven Fisher of Odessa.

Fisher is the Social Security district manager for a 22-county area in West Texas. He said those who are required to file the report should also have received all of their benefit checks in However, most folks receiving

Social Security benefits are not required to file the report. "Most of them don't need to file one," Fisher Fisher or any of his office assistants may be contacted by dialing 563-0027 He said 40,000 folks in his district are receiving Social Security benefits.

Saddle taken from truck

A saddle, valued at $500, was reported stolen from the cab of a pickup truck belonging to Paul Renfro of 601 W. Cutert St., police said.

Renfro told police the saddle selonged to his father-in-law, Capt. Roger Meurer of the Midland Police Department. He told officers the burglary oc-school busing. Wallace was cheered by a crowd of about 500 in South Boston, where schools have been the scene of racial violence since an integration order was issued in September 1974.

The Alabama governor arrived Tuesday afternoon to begin about 10 days of intermittent campaigning for the March 2 presidential primary election in the Bay State. Campaigning in Florida for the state's March 9 primary, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash, told a Miami Beach audience that any country which voted for the recent United Nations resolution identifying Zionism as racism "should be cut off without a dime of U.S. aid." Democratic presidential candidate

Fred Harris, meanwhile, began a three-day campaign swing through his home state of Oklahoma, saying Americans are being overtaxed by their government and overcharged by utility companies.

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., submitted on Tuesday his letter of entry for the North Carolina presidential primary

A Udall spokeswoman said the letter was sent "to keep our options open." She said no decision has been made by the Udall campaign staff on whether to make an active effort to win some of North Carolina's 61 Democratic delegates.

A spokesman for Sen. Birch Bayh. D-Ind., said the Indiana senator would not enter the North Carolina primary.

In Washington, five candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination will try to field delegate slates in the District of Columbia primary May 4. However, most of more than 2,000 D.C. Democrats who caucused Tuesday night remained uncommitted.

Udall, Sargent Shriver, Harris and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter will be on the ballot throughout the city. Sen. Frank Church will be on the ballot in only four of eight wards.

IRS employe gets five years for fraud

By ROBERT RAWITCH The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — A former Internal Revenue Service employe who fraudulently obtained $565,000 in income tax refund checks and went on a brief but wild spending spree was sentenced Tuesday to five years in federal prison.

Although saying an even stiffer prison term might be proper, U.S. District Judge Robert J. Kelleher approved a proposed sentence agreement reached by the government and David Glen Robinson.

Terms of the agreement called for the 31-year-old former revenue collector to cooperate fully with the government in explaining how he fraudulently obtained the three U.S. Treasury checks and assisting authorities in recovering any money and tangible assets to offset the $565,000 he received.

Once released from prison. Robinson will also spend three years on probation. Kelleher questioned Asst. U.S. Atty

A. Howard Matz on why the sentence should not be more severe for what IRS authorities have called the largest fraud ever perpetrated on the IRS by a single taxpayer.

Matz responded that it was the government's belief that a longer sentence would not have been acceptable to Robinson and possible would have prevented his cooperation

Stating that he normally disapproves of plea bargains, Kelleher explained that he was accepting the proposed agreement because Robinson had already fully cooperated with authorities after pleading guilty to three counts of making false statements. The judge also noted that that cooperation enabled authorities to recover an estimated $335,000 in cash and assets - more than the IRS otherwise might have found.

With the money he got from the IRS. Robinson in the last six months of last year bought seven luxury sports cars, an airplane and a luxurious home.

As a condition of probation, Robinson, who had a tax counseling service known as Robinson Group, Inc., is prohibited from assisting anyone in the preparation of federal income taxes.

But in an ironic twist, Kelleher granted a motion by Robinson's attorney that authorities at the Correctional Institution in Terminal Island, Calif., provide Robinson with an adding machine so he can file his own 1975 income tax returns and continue his cooperation with the government to recover lost funds.

The defendant is not the Paul J. Robinson, formerly of Pasadena, Calif., who once ran a tax and bankruptcy counseling service that was also known as Robinson Group,
