Texas sheriff moves county judge into men's room

COOPER, Tex. (AP) — The sheriff of Delta County, who moved the county judge's furniture from his office to a courthouse restroom, says he plans to ask the Civil Liberties Union for help in trying to improve the county jail.

Sheriff Benny Fisher said Wednesday he moved the furniture to the men's restroom of the courthouse

"because I just thought that was a proper place for him ... I wanted to get his attention. I wanted him to know that he does not own the courthouse, and that I am tired of his cutting off my orders for supplies for the county jail."

There has been a running feud in the Northeast Texas county between Fisher, 33, and county commissioners over funds the sheriff claims are needed "for jail facilities and proper law enforcement in Delta County."

County Judge George Bolger, who found his furniture in the men's room Wednesday when he showed up at the courthouse, said he had passed the matter to County Atty. Jack Neal of Sulphur Springs.

"I think the sheriff was unfair when he singled me out," Bolger said. He said when he came to the courthouse he found all his furniture in the men's room, even pictures.

"He took my picture and the picture of other commissioners and hung them up on the wall, neat as you please," Bolger added.

"It was just one of those things. He (Fisher) is unhappy with the operation of county commissioners' court."

Bolger said he spent the day in the commissioners' room except for occasional trips to the restroom to look at his files or get some documents he needed.

Fisher said he has been sheriff the past eight years and has been trying to get jail facilities improved, but the commissioners refuse to give him the money to buy supplies for the jail.

"I have only one deputy," he said. "And the jail is in bad shape. I think that when a man violates the law he still retains some basic human rights. He should be treated as a human being."

He said the jail lacks a good plumbing system, enough beds and everyday supplies "to keep it clean."

Kissinger: overt aid to Angola pondered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today the administration is now considering whether to ask Congress for overt financial aid for anti-Soviet factions in Angola.

Kissinger told the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on African affairs that the Soviet Union's massive and unprecedented intervention in Angola "is a matter of urgent concern."

Both the House and the Senate have approved amendments to bar continued covert military aid to anti-Soviet forces in Angola.

"The effort of the Soviet Union and Cuba to take unilateral advantage of a turbulent local situation where they have never had any historic interests is a willful, direct assault upon recent constructive trends in U.S.-Soviet relations and our efforts to improve relations with Cuba," Kissinger said.

"Those who have acted so recklessly must be made to see that their conduct is unacceptable," he added.

Kissinger said that peace in the world requires a sense of security that depends upon some form of equilibrium between the great powers.

"And that equilibrium is impossible unless the United States remains both strong and determined to use its strength when required," he said.

"This is our historic responsibility, for no other nation has the capacity to act in this way."

Referring to overwhelming votes in the House and Senate denying military appropriation funds to continue covert military assistance in Angola, Kissinger said, "Congress has deprived the President of indispensable flexibility in formulating a foreign policy which we believe to be in our national interest."

He appealed for a new cooperative relationship between Congress and the executive.

"On the issue of Angola," he said, "the administration is now seriously considering overt financial aid and we will soon be consulting with the Congress on this possibility."

Kissinger said that, "if a continent such as Africa, only recently freed from external oppression, can be made the arena for great power ambitions ... then all we have hoped for in building a more stable and rational international order is in jeopardy."

Kissinger said Angola represents the first time since the aftermath of World War II that the Soviets "have moved militarily at long distances to impose a regime of their choice."

Petroleum Museum presents six awards

Six "For Service" awards were presented Wednesday afternoon at the annual meeting of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame, and Emil C. Rassman, chairman of the board of executors, delivered "state of the museum" message.

"For Service" awards were originated by the museum three years ago to honor those persons "who have given an extraordinary number of manhours to museum work or rendered unusually valuable service," Ford Chapman, vice president of the board of trustees, said in making the awards.

The award recipients are Joseph I. O'Neill Jr., Mrs. Reg F. Hyer, Mrs. Charles Cole Jr., Richard L. Denham, Marvin E. Harges and the employees of George T. Abell.

O'Neill was cited for his work as chairman of the 1973-74 building fund drive. Mrs. Hyer and Mrs. Cole were recognized for their work in organizing the "Santa Rita Club," a volunteer group devoted to working for the museum. Denham and Harges for their "outstanding work" in planning or supervising the museum's earth-science exhibits. The employees of Abell, the founder of the museum and chairman of the board of trustees, who received the joint "For Service" award are Lester Van Pelt, Jim Trot, Mrs. Joseph Luchini, Mrs. Pauline Schwartz, Mrs. Delores DeArmond and Dean Whiteley of Fort Stockton. Rassman announced a $60,000 gift to the museum that was made through the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Abell.

"Gladys and George, together, have done the museum another service, the latest in a long line," Rassman said.

"Last month they offered to make a very generous challenge grant to the capital fund drive for Trinity Towers. The challenge was this: that those involved with Trinity Towers raise at least $60,000 for the museum's building fund. I am delighted to report that the challenge got a magnificent response. The money was raised," Rassman said.

"Two obviously good things happened. Trinity Towers was given a great deal of help through the Abells' generosity, and the museum received a very substantial sum," Rassman stated.

In his "State of the Museum" message, Rassman said:

"The museum was first chartered in 1967. Now, though, we have, actually in being and at work, a museum."

"In 1975, after President Ford dedicated the museum, we found something exciting happening. People began telling us we had built something far better than they expected. We expected some praise, frankly, but not this much and not of this kind."

"We had 11,500 paid visitors during the period from Sept. 14 through Dec. 31. We checked the guest register from Oct. 15 to Dec. 15, leaving out the period right after the opening and the Christmas rush. During those two months, we found that 22 per cent of the visitors were from out of state. Another 21 per cent were from Texas, outside the Midland-Odessa area."

"We have the potential for making this one of the Southwest's great tourist attractions.

"We certainly are in better financial shape than we expected to be at this time. We must not forget, though, that virtually every museum has some sort of problem with operating expenses. We are not immune from that problem. Adequate reserves and a growing endowment are the best answers to the problems. These we intend to build."

Officers of the two governing boards of the museum were re-elected for 1976 at the meeting held in the 1st National Room of The First National Bank. The board of trustees has as its officers Abell, chairman; Russell J. Ramsland, president; Chapman and Paul L. Davis, vice presidents; Richard Donnelly, secretary; Tom D. Fowler, treasurer; John E. Younger, assistant secretary; Kenneth M. Jastrow, assistant treasurer, and Homer T. Fort, executive vice president. Officers of the board of executors include Rassman, chairman; Maurice Bullock and Frank Stubbeman, vice chairmen, and William L. Kerr, secretary.

Ten members of the board of trustees, whose terms expire this year, were re-elected for three-year terms. They are Martin L. Allday, Conrad E. Coffield, Sid Lindley, Hamilton E. McRae, R.C. Tucker, W. Watson LaForce Jr., Tom Welch, Chapman and Donnelly, all of Midland, and Charles R. Perry of Odessa.

Five members of the board of executors were re-elected and two new members elected for five-year terms. Those re-elected are Lee O. White of Fort Stockton, C.J. "Red" Davidson of Fort Worth, Frank F. Lovinger of Odessa, and Stubbeman and John P. Butler, both of Midland. The new members are J. Rudolph Wright and Jack M. Shepherd, both of Midland.

Members of the nominating committee were Butler, chairman; L. Roy Prescott and W.H. "Bill" Collins.

Soviets hint willingness to end strife

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government indicated today it would help reach a political settlement of the Angola conflict by endorsing a coalition government "of all the patriotic forces working for genuine independence and free development of their country."

The official government newspaper Izvestia, while reaffirming Moscow's support of the Popular Movement (MPLA) as the "legitimate government" of Angola, issued an authoritative article stressing the need for a peaceful settlement in Angola and unity in Africa.

Izvestia took what appeared to be the most conciliatory stance on Angola in weeks, and it comes at a time when the Moscow-backed faction is reported making considerable gains on the military front.

Up to this time, Soviet propaganda has concentrated on justifying this country's support for the MPLA and attacking outside interference from "imperialist" forces of South Africa, aided by the United States and some African countries.

The Izvestia article was signed by "an observer," the usual designation for a direct spokesman for the Kremlin hierarchy. The importance of the statement was underlined by the fact that Tass, the official Soviet news agency, ran a complete text of the article.

Power bills due to rise

Midlanders' electric bills will be about 9 per cent higher next month as the result of a rate increase by Texas Electric Service Co.

The 9 per cent rate increase was approved by the Midland city council Nov. 11, 1975, and will become effective Feb. 1.

A TESCO spokesman said the original effective date of Dec. 1, 1975, was delayed until Feb. 1 "so Texas Electric would treat all customers as uniformly as possible." The increase will be reflected in bills issued shortly after March 1.

The exact size of the increase for an individual depends upon the amount and pattern of use, according to TESCO officials.

A typical customer whose yearly electric bill averages $20 will experience a 7.4 per cent annual increase. The price hike generally will be less for users of small amounts of electricity and more for larger amounts.

Officials say the rate increase will enable the company to continue building new power plants that use cheaper and more available lignite coal and nuclear fuels. Without such a program, the company would have to depend on expensive natural gas and oil therefore boosting electric costs even higher.

Company spokesman said reliable supplies of gas and oil are difficult to obtain. In addition, the Texas Railroad Commission recently ordered that use of new supplies of natural gas to make electricity will not be permitted without the commission's approval.

MAJ. WAYNE GIDEON has no comment as he leaves an executive session of Midland City Council at 1 p.m. today. The emergency session was called this morning to discuss "personnel matters," City Secretary James McCullough said. The council was to reconvene at 4 p.m. to continue their discussion.

Expert says Patty really brainwashed

LONDON (AP) — Patricia Hearst was "brainwashed, forcibly converted, and coerced in thought and deed" into joining the Symbionese Liberation Army after her kidnaping, British psychiatrist William Sargant, a leading expert in terrorist brainwashing techniques, said Thursday.

Dr. Sargant interviewed Miss Hearst at her family's request last year. He wrote in the Times of London Thursday that after five long talks with her, he was convinced "there is not a shred of truth in any allegations that she cooperated in her kidnaping."

The 21-year-old newspaper heiress, now on trial in San Francisco on federal bank robbery charges, was kept blindfolded in a cupboard for 60 days after her capture and was subjected to threats against herself and her parents, Sargant said.

"My own view is that she was not really 'broken' until around the 50th day of the blindfolding, but the blindfold was only removed after 60 days. And when it was removed she had a short period of unreality and a distortion of her body image which was alarming to her in the extreme."

"She was glad to be captured finally without being shot. On my fifth and last interview with her she said that if she was ever released she would go back to her still loving parents, but not to her former life, and try to do social work."

Copy machines coming back to Post Office

The photocopying machines at the Midland downtown post office and at Graves and Village postal stations will be returned to service "just as soon as we can get things squared away with Xerox," Darrell J. Hood, director of customer services for the U. S. Postal Service here, said this morning.

"I'm sickled to death to hear it," he said. "We're going to get back" into the photocopying business. "That's great."

He said postal authorities here were notified this week by wire that the service, discontinued less than a month ago, would be resumed. Competitors for photocopying business complained that the postal service's copiers constituted competition because the U. S. Postal Service, though a quasi-independent enterprise, is subsidized

Patty Hearst jury selection takes place in secret

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst's trial for bank robbery, described by the judge at the start as the "most fully covered case in the country," has gone behind closed doors while the jury is picked.

A critical preliminary phase — the questioning of prospective jurors about the effects of massive publicity given Miss Hearst between her 1974 kidnaping and her arrest last Sept. 18 — is being conducted in private.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter left more than 100 reporters representing newspapers from many parts of the world outside in a corridor Wednesday as he questioned prospective jurors.

Four women were tentatively seated on the panel and three dismissed. Carter, who had hoped to seat a jury Wednesday, told attorneys he anticipates completing the selection by Friday.

The four tentative jurors selected

Wednesday, subject to peremptory challenge later, were Carol Waller of San Francisco, wife of a loan officer at the Wells Fargo Bank; Barbara Lawson, an employee of the San Mateo Heart Association; Jean Witte, a Danville housewife and mother of three; and Marilyn Wentz of Hayward, a dental assistant with four children.

It appeared likely the defense would challenge the seating of Mrs. Waller because of her husband's employment in a bank.

Twelve jurors and four alternates will be seated to hear the case.

During the one-hour open court session Wednesday, Miss Hearst stared intently at each of 36 prospective jurors when each was asked by the judge to rise and state name, residence, occupation and marital status. Her eyes followed the row of potential jurors and rarely wandered.

She and members of her family were allowed to be present with attorneys in the case for the individual questioning of the jurors later by the judge.

In another development, the 21-year-old newspaper heiress was granted an official request to "trim and cut" her shoulderlength, chestnut-colored hair. Carter signed the order required by the San Mateo County Jail, where she is kept when not in court, and her attorneys indicated another prisoner probably would do the job.

Meanwhile, the New York Daily News reported in today's editions that at least four persons who visited a San Francisco hideout of the SLA after Miss Hearst's kidnaping will be called to testify at the trial.

The newspaper reported that Donald DeFreeze, identified by the FBI as one of Miss Hearst's Symphonese Liberation Army kidnapers, showed off the young woman to strangers he met on the street and occasionally invited them to the SLA's Golden Gate Avenue hideout.

DeFreeze was one of four other persons who allegedly took part in the April 15, 1974 Hibernia Bank robbery for which Miss Hearst is on trial.

Senate overrides Ford veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats who overrode President Ford's veto of a $45-billion spending bill now are moving toward a new confrontation over a $6.1-billion public works measure that backers claim would create some 800,000 jobs.

Beside authorizing money for projects designed to create jobs, the public works bill before the House today would grant federal funds during times of high unemployment to state and local governments faced with the alternatives of firing employees or raising taxes.

The Ford administration opposes the measure, and House Republican Leader John

J. Rhodes of Arizona described it as a prime target for a veto if it is passed.

The measure comes up for floor action a day after the Democratic-controlled Congress overrode Ford's veto of a bill funding politically popular health, welfare and job programs at a level almost $1 billion above the President's budget.

Ford lost his first spending battle of the election-year session Wednesday when the Senate voted 70 to 24 to override the veto. The margin was seven more than the two-thirds vote needed to override. The House voted Tuesday to override, 310 to 113.

Ford, in vetoing the measure, said it would "contribute to excessive deficits and needless inflationary pressures." He said the measure would add 8,000 people to the federal payroll, saying, "I find it difficult to believe the majority of the American people favor increasing the number of employees on the federal payroll."

But Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., GOP manager of the bill, declared that the measure was only 2.6 percent over Ford's budget, "which was woefully inadequate to begin with."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, said the bill did not exceed Congress' own budget, although it was over Ford's budget. He said the legislators, in adopting their own budget, decided more funds should go into programs of the Health, Education and Welfare Department and Labor Department and less into programs such as the military.

Brooke said if Congress had not overridden the veto there would not have been adequate personnel to enforce industrial health and safety laws, important medical research programs would have been impeded and funds for training of mental health professionals would have been cut along with budgets for maternal and child health programs.

The biggest increase in the bill was a raise in Ford's proposed spending for research programs of the National Institutes of Health, with cancer and heart, lung and stroke research getting the largest hikes.

MPLA said confident of victory

By The Associated Press British correspondents in Angola report that the Soviet-backed Popular Movement (MPLA) is confident and optimistic, while its Western-supported foes in the civil war are short "of almost everything."

Nicholas Ashford of the Times of London reported from Luanda, the MPLA capital, that the confidence and optimism there following rapid advances by MPLA troops and their Cuban allies contrasted sharply with the nervous tension that gripped Luanda last November when Angola gained independence from Portugal.

Then, the National Front (FNLA) was only 18 miles to the north, while forces of the National Union (UNITA) led by South African armor were racing up from the south.

"Now the military positions are reversed, and the MPLA feels it is only a matter of time before its forces achieve complete victory on both the northern and southern fronts," Ashford wrote.

The MPLA has taken most of northern Angola from the FNLA, and Ashford said the MPLA-Cuban force that last week captured Novo Redondo, the Atlantic port 150 miles south of Luanda, was understood to be moving rapidly along the coast toward Lobito, the chief port for the Benguela railroad across central Angola to the copper mines of Zaire and Zambia. Lobito is 80 miles south of Novo Redondo.

"At the same time, part of the main body of the MPLA-Cuban army... is said to have deployed westward along the road leading from the Alto Hama road junction to Lobito," Ashford said.

He said another MPLA force was reported advancing on Luso, another major town on the railroad and UNITA's military headquarters for eastern Angola. The MPLA already controls the railroad at Teixeira de Sousa, 15 miles from the Zaire border.

Stewart Dalby of the London Financial Times reported after a recent visit to Luso that radio contact between UNITA forces was unreliable and that they are "short of almost everything."

He said UNITA is acutely short of fuel and clearly is not getting enough weapons. But he said it claims to have 15,000 men with small arms and to be able to put another 15,000 in the field if it had weapons for them.

Computers get faster

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The fastest computer in the world today, the Star, can perform up to 100 million results per second, according to its manufacturer, Control Data Corp., here. Computers in the 1950s were capable of only tens of thousands of instructions per second. During the 1960s speeds of a few computers increased to 12 to 15 million per second.

The new super-scale computers are currently supporting vital U.S. aerospace and energy research programs.

Future applications for the machine include guiding world weather forecasting, petroleum research and even education and medical research, Control Data engineers report.

Hotel man not a saucier, but wine expert

By JOHNA BLINN
Los Angeles Times

BEVERLY HILLS—"I'm not a saucier! I don't cook, but I've learned an awful lot about food preparation and presentation. Chefs know that I know enough about it so they respect me," said hotel man Hernando Courtright, over lunch in the elegant La Bella Fontana Room in the posh Beverly Wilshire Hotel. Hernando lives in the hotel he owns and made famous as the hideaway of a glittering clientele, including movie stars, a result of discipline in the realm of aesthetics. It must be learned."

Hernando's favorite menus reflect his discipline and preference for simple foods. "I don't work with my hands. I'm not out running around, so I don't work up that kind of appetite. When I'm traveling, I always like to bring back things to try out here. For instance, I was recently served a dessert that involved oranges sliced on the bias, marinated in Grand Marnier and topped with toasted, slivered almonds. Now that's a dessert everyone will eat because it won't put weight on. When I go out for dinner and they wheel in that dessert cart laden with cakes and pies, I want to see something I can eat and enjoy in good conscience, too!"

"I had something in San Francisco I liked. I don't usually like Alaskan crab, because it's stringy and fibery, but the chef up there cooked it in a way that softened up the texture and served it with a delicious sauce. I didn't know what the sauce was but I made it a point to find out."

Selecting the opening course is important. "Everyone gets tired of the same old things. You walk into a restaurant and it's always smoked salmon or prosciutto ham and melon and one or two other things and that's that. I love shrimp and limestone lettuce, just served with our house dressing. It's the simple things that are hard to come by! For luncheon, I like the simplest food I can have. I don't know why more people don't have it. I like cold roast beef, thinly sliced, served with a little Dijon mustard on the side. I could eat that day in and day out! Sometimes I add a few vegetables. Another thing I like is almost a classic: cold lobster with some green beans with a glass of wine. We use a nice sauce verte. Tartar sauce is too strong for lobster. Mainly that's for things you want to cover up, like something that stayed in your refrigerator too long! We often have ceviche. It's absolutely great. It's light and has no calories. It's 'cooked' by combining lime juice and vinegar with fresh raw fish."

Hernando's knowledge of foods and wines gets a good workout when they put on gourmet dinners at the hotel. These occasions often tax the energy, imagination and tact of the innkeeper, to say the least. For instance, there was the night actor Bob Stack was being initiated into the Chevaliers du Tastevin. "We were seated on the stage. The chefs had planned everything down to the last detail. It was a real production number! I walked down to the end of the table to have a word with Bob when I heard something that sounded like Musak. The program didn't call for music, so I called over the headwaiter. He said, 'That's not Musak, that's a siren!' I raced out through the back to the hotel and found a three-ring circus. It seems that Elizabeth Arden, who was staying in a room on the fourth floor, had ordered dinner served in the room for her manager and her manager's husband. He was late, so they'd left his dinner in the warming oven and stuck the cart out in the foyer. One of the things they had ordered was asparagus and for some reason, unknown to me, my kitchen always serves asparagus on napkins. The napkin had caught fire and smoke was pouring out. Somebody decided the hotel was on fire and called the fire department. In they marched through the back door into the kitchen with their helmets and axes. The production line in the kitchen was a shambles, but they managed to get it straightened out with remarkable speed. By the time I got back to the table they were already on the dessert. Then a friend leaned over and said, 'I wonder when they are going to serve the meat course!'"

During a recent visit to the hotel by Hirohito, the Japanese Emperor's entourage took over a whole floor, including Courtright's personal kitchen. "I saw the menu they had. It started with scampi, then went to a Senegalese or Mulligatawny soup, then to a hot veal picatta. I told George White, the general manager, that it looked like a strange assortment, but he said, 'That's the way they want it,' and that's the way they got it!"

Hirohito liked the food and hospitality so much he invited

Courtright in for a private talk. He even asked for the recipe for Mulligatawny soup!

Recipes from Hernando Courtright from the kitchens of the Beverly Wilshire Hotel follow:

HERNANDO COURTRIGHT'S ORANGE REFRACHES

Serves 4
4 large navel oranges few tbsps. Grand Marnier or Cointreau
6 tbsps. toasted almond slivers, confectioners' sugar to taste
Peel oranges carefully to remove outer skin and white pith. Slice oranges thinly on the bias; marinate in small glass bowl with Grand Marnier or Cointreau. Chill well. When ready to serve, arrange slices in the centers of salad-size glass plates with small amount of liquid. Garnish with almond slivers. Dust lightly with confectioners' sugar.

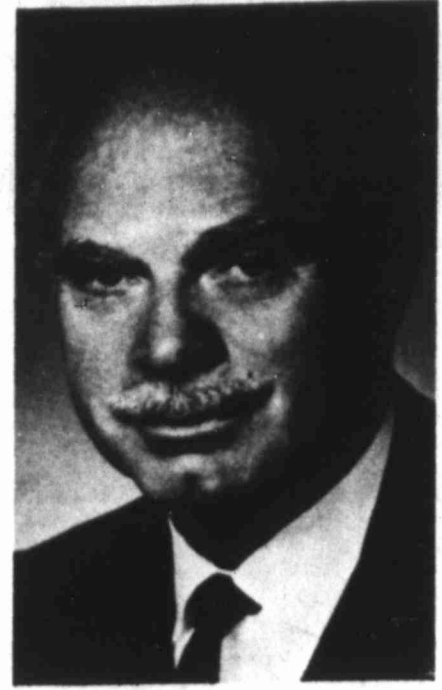

AFTERTHOUGHTS: If desired, omit almonds and sprinkle with small amount of coconut instead. Like its name, the dessert is refreshing and light!

BEVERLY WILSHIRE HOTEL MULLIGATAWNY

Serves 8
2 quarts chicken stock (homemade or canned)
2 stalks celery, diced
3 small carrots, peeled, sliced
2 small onions, peeled, sliced bouquet garni: pinch thyme, sprig parsley, small piece of bay leaf, tied in cheesecloth bag
3 tbsps. mushroom parings
3 tbsps. butter
1 tbsps. flour
1 tbsps. curry powder
1 cup cream
few pieces cooked, boneless chicken, cut in julienne strips handful cooked rice

salt, ground white pepper to taste
Simmer together chicken stock, celery, carrots, ½ sliced onions, bouquet garni and mushroom peelings for 30 minutes. Strain soup; return to clean pan. In separate pan, brown remaining sliced onion lightly in butter. Sprinkle with flour and curry powder; stir well with spoon to blend; cook over low heat. Moisten onion-curry mixture slightly with small amount of strained chicken stock; add remaining stock. Cook gently 15 minutes longer, stirring. Add cream, chicken strips and rice; season to taste. Heat to serve.

Hernando Courtright

AFTERTHOUGHTS: If desired, soup can be made with turkey stock as well. Cut up boned white or dark meat to float in the soup. Emperor Hirohito's import from America is delicious and not too calorie!

WOMEN'S NEWS

visiting heads of state, musicians and politicians

"Running a hotel is made up of many small details," he said. Not the least item in the "small detail department" is his feeling about food. The splendidly dressed, blue-eyed gentleman, has exquisite tastes and is a connoisseur of fine wine. The wines and viands served in all of the hotel's restaurants strongly reflect his palate. "Preparation is important but so is presentation. Many hotel people are only interested in coming in on the side of the money. They couldn't care less if their menus are stereotyped. I can tell what's going on just by walking into a kitchen—even though I'm not a qualified saucier!" he said, laughing.

"Even with the most skillful chef, the challenge is to run a kitchen well and still run a profit!" Of great value to this innkeeper is the experience he has gained from dining in the finest restaurants and hotels all over the world. "We cater to a very special kind of clientele: the people who know what they want. They want their meals to have personality and character. We pay attention to the individual guest and try and give him the kind of thing he would get at home—only better."

Catering to his clientele is increasingly geared to the concept of physical thinness. "There's no use kidding yourself. Every woman and almost every man, too, tries today to avoid gaining weight. I, too, have revised my eating in the past few years by cutting down, but I'm not going to stop drinking wine! I get a real satisfaction from great wine." He ordered a lovely sauvignon blanc, a dry California white wine. His idea of an elegant meal includes champagne throughout, starting with a brut (very dry) and working up to a sweet for the dessert course.

Courtright is probably one of the most knowledgeable wine experts in California. He helped found the California chapter of the Chevaliers du Tastevin and the Beverly Hills Wine and Food Society. "There can only be three things wrong with champagne: too cold, too sweet, or too much," he said. "But then, I suppose you could say the same thing about all wines!" He believes that taste for wine must be cultivated, as it must be in art, music, and all other cultures. "One is not born with it. It

AT WITS END

By ERMA BOMBECK

A while back, my son did an essay on "Things My Mother Taught Me."

Of all the wonderful, profound bits of wisdom I have passed on to him, he preferred to dwell on my logic: "If you fall off that swing and break your neck, you are not going to the store with me," etc.

A group of kids in a mass media class were enchanted with the column and sent me more "Momisms" as they remembered them.

You're welcome to read them . . . if you can bear the pain of seeing yourself in print.

"If you don't stop crying, I'll give you something to cry about."

"People who talk don't know what they're talking about."

"If you cut off your finger with that knife, no one is going to put it back on for you."

"If you don't stop watching all that violence on television, I'm going to put a dent in your behind."

"If you go to the movies tonight, you can't go tomorrow night."

"You have a good time at your aunt's house . . . or else!"

"Clean your plate. Half of the world wants your leftovers."

"Shut the door! Are you part Eskimo?" (YOU don't know?)

"Don't you think I know when you have to go to the bathroom?"

"Never put your hand in the broiler unless you want broiled hands for dinner."

"Go to your room this instant . . . DON'T TURN

'Things my mother taught me'

YOUR BACK ON ME WHILE I AM TALKING TO YOU."

"If Mommy didn't love you, she'd never smack you."

Maybe it's the association with parents, but kids have also been known to come up with a peculiar kind of logic. How about, "Anyone who says I'm not mature is a dumb, old, stupid sweatdog, and I'd like to punch in their face."

"I love you . . . just don't speak to me in public."

"I have to be free, independent, stand on my own two feet. You got a buck for gas?"

I am not saying there is anything wrong with parents' logic or with children's logic. It is only when we start to understand one another's logic that we are all in trouble.

Oriental Shrine priestess will make her official visit

Lady Mary Ann McGuire of Hawaii Court No. 60, Honolulu, grand high priestess of Ladies Oriental Shrine of North America, Friday and Saturday will make her official visit to Midland's El Kantara Court No. 70, composed of both Odessa and Midland residents.

The Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine was organized in New York City Sept. 28, 1872 as Mecca Temple.

The first Shriner's Crippled Children's Hospital was opened in 1922 in Shreveport, La. The Shrine now operates 19 orthopedic hospitals and three burn institutes. Texas is fortunate to have one of each, Crippled Children's Hospital, Houston, and Shriner's Burn Hospital, Galveston.

The L.O.S.N.A. was organized in the jurisdiction of Osiris Temple, A.A.O.N.M.S., Feb. 14, 1903 in Wheeling, W. Va. This court was banded together for the purpose of extending good fellowship among families of nobles. The Grand Council was organized in 1914 and incorporated in 1954.

Members of El Kantara Court meet once a month, except July and August, at First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana St. They work for the crippled children's homes and burn institutes, sponsored by the men Shriners.

The women of El Kantara Court sponsor projects each year to obtain monies to purchase linens, toiletries, toys, clothing of all types for the children. Many articles are sewn by the women of El Kantara Court, but articles of clothing for children five years of age and under must be made of non-flammable materials. A cash contribution is given each year to the Galveston hospital to help defray expenses incurred in treatment of severely burned patients, as well as for research.

Mary Ann McGuire

DEAR ABBY

Best advice to non-smokers simple, don't take up the habit

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 14. Almost 15. My parents won't let me smoke. My brother got to smoke when he was 15, but when I ask my parents if I can smoke, they say, "No, it's not feminine."

Abby, I milk cows, bale hay and even clean cow gutters, and you sure can't say THAT'S feminine. All my girl friends get to smoke in front of their parents, so why don't they let me run my own life?

MYSELF

DEAR MYSELF: Because they don't want you to run it in a way that may be damaging to your health. I'm with them. The best advice I can give to nonsmokers is—DON'T START!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited to a dinner party at the home of a very high-class, prominent society leader who has a reputation for entertaining beautifully.

My husband's widowed sister came to town unexpectedly so I phoned my hostess and asked if we could bring our houseguest.

She asked, "Is your houseguest a male or female?"

I said, "She's my husband's sister." And would you believe this so-called high-class society lady replied, "That's too bad. We already have three extra women. If you could bring a man, I'd be delighted, but we don't need any more women."

Have you ever heard of anything to top this?

SPEECHLESS

DEAR SPEECHLESS: No. And I thought I'd heard everything.

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't help but smile when I read your comment about people who run ads in the classified section to meet a partner. Agreed, they must be desperately lonely, and they do run the risk of meeting some creepy characters that way, but did you know that this practice is entirely acceptable in Europe, specifically in Germany?

Believe me, I have run into creepy characters in the U.S.A. and Canada in distinguished public places where a lady would think she is safe from creeps. I also know that many Europeans have found decent companions by placing ads in newspapers or going through a marriage agency. The adage, "different countries, different customs" still holds true, so please don't condemn that custom altogether. For some, it works.

DEAR T.L.K.: Many wrote to defend the practice of advertising in a newspaper for companionship, and even marriage. But those who wrote were invariably winners. I'd like to hear from some losers.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Rosalie Kelly had interesting life while legally dead

The Washington Post — Rosalie Kelly was declared legally dead in 1939 after disappearing from her Baltimore home eight years earlier.

Last week, after a nomadic life as a freelance writer, tutor and social secretary in New York and Paris, Miss Kelly, 84, walked into a courtroom in Baltimore to declare that she was still alive. And entitled to a small inheritance.

"I was in New York when a friend informed me that, whether I knew it or not, I was dead," she said during an interview in a Prince George's County, Md. nursing home.

"I found that amusing," she said, raising her hand to hide a sudden, uncontrollable grin. "If someone had declared you dead, wouldn't it be amusing if you were still alive?"

In May 1931, Miss Kelley, then 39, walked out of the Baltimore home she shared with an older sister. After not hearing from her for seven years, the sister went to court to have her declared legally dead. Court officials and relatives say that Miss Kelly's sister did once travel to New York to look for her before having her declared dead, but no one could say why she did not look harder. The sister, who is a few years older, now also lives in a nursing home and cannot remember the episode, relatives said.

The Baltimore City Orphan's Court did receive a telegram believed sent by Miss Kelly the year after she was declared dead. The telegram accused lawyers and relatives of trying to take her $3,000 inheritance, according to court records.

The court placed the money in an escrow account until Miss Kelly came forward to claim it. But she did not show up for 36 years.

"I got travel fever," Miss Kelly said. "I wanted to go to Paris. During (the 1930s), a lot of Americans were going to Paris had friends over there and thought it would be nice."

Relatives said Miss Kelly had long been the maverick in a family of four girls whose parents died of illness when Miss Kelly was 12.

During her teens and throughout her 20s she marched on Fifth Avenue in New York in support of women's rights, relatives said. Although she was not formally educated past elementary school, she managed to take an array of college courses at Columbia University and Pennsylvania State.

While living in New York, she applied for a job as a tutor for children of what she called a "very prominent American family, known worldwide." She later became a social secretary for the family and traveled with them to Europe, she said.

In the late 30s, Miss Kelly left her job and traveled to Paris alone. She paid for such trips with money earned from freelance writing and tutoring. Living in Paris' 16th Arrondissement, where many Americans lived, she said she worked as a writer for the now-defunct Les American newspaper, using her influence as a onetime social secretary to secure interviews with the French aristocracy.

Miss Kelly said she "forgot" that she was supposed to be dead while traveling back and forth from Europe "and never made much of it. The family was not closely knit. I had been on my own for a long time. That's why I never told anyone," she said.

Sometime during 1964 Miss Kelly wrote her great nephew, Dr. Richard Whiteford of Lanham, Md., a letter in which the declaration of death was mentioned. Whiteford said and his great aunt corresponded briefly and he tried to get Miss Kelly to return to court to prove her existence, but the efforts were in vain.

When Miss Kelly stopped writing to Whiteford, he said he started worrying about her. He said he called the New York city police department's missing persons bureau to locate her.

Police followed up a tip on a welfare assistance application and found Miss Kelly two years ago living with a Catholic charity organization. She had over $40,000 in a checking account and "considerable amounts in assets and securities," at that time, said E. Warren Colgan, chief judge for Baltimore's orphan's court.

Whiteford said his aunt saved and invested her money in the stock market "which she was very conversant in." Her writing and tutoring also paid well, he said.

Judge Colgan said the orphan's court is currently attempting to determine how much Miss Kelly's original estate of $3,000 is worth today.

The Internal Revenue Service said Miss Kelly may owe taxes on the money she earned while she was supposed to be dead. An IRS information assistant was asked if a living person who was erroneously declared dead is obligated to pay income taxes.

Without hesitation he said, "Yes, they would have to pay." When asked why, he said, "Gee, I figured you'd ask that." He did not answer.

Whiteford brought Miss Kelly from New York to a nursing home in Lanham about two years ago after New York police located her at his request.

She is a tiny, drawn-up woman who refused to have her picture taken because she was concerned about the way her hair looked.

Judge Colgan said he asked Miss Kelly during her recent court appearance if she remembered her old home in Baltimore and who visited her most. When she answered the questions correctly, the judges were satisfied and "we restored her among the living," Colgan said.

Nursing home employees at the residence where Miss Kelly had lived for two years before the court appearance described her as cantankerous and somewhat forgetful, but full of 'spunk.' They could hardly believe her story.

Poor showing in Oklahoma could force Bentsen out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's Democratic presidential campaign is facing a crucial test in Oklahoma in nine days and a poor showing there could force him out of the national race, according to sources close to the senator.

The Texas Democrat was fourth in a field of five candidates in the Mississippi caucuses last week with less than 2 per cent of the delegates. He needs a respectable finish in Oklahoma's Feb. 7 caucuses to prove he has support in his own region of the country.

One source close to Bentsen said if the senator comes in a weak third in Oklahoma, trailing former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and the state's former senator, Fred Harris, he may have to drop out.

"It would be pretty tough" to overcome such a poor showing, the source said. "He'd have to slide out or say it ain't possible. That's his neighboring state. He's got to run strong."

Meanwhile, busing to achieve school desegregation was brought up as an issue in campaigning Wednesday. Republican challenger Ronald Reagan, campaigning in New Hampshire, said he opposes busing but "the law is the law." And Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, a Democratic candidate touring Massachusetts, called for a constitutional amendment that would make busing voluntary.

The Bentsen source said that after talking with Oklahoma politicians he believes that in a statewide, popular ballot "Bentsen would win hands down." But in party caucuses, moderate candidates have difficulty persuading supporters to participate.

Until the poor showing in Mississippi, Oklahoma was important to the Bentsen campaign, but it was just one in a series of states where Bentsen hoped to show he could attract support while some of his competition was eliminated in the early primaries.

The loss in Mississippi, where he finished behind Wallace, Carter and former Ambassador Sargent Shriver, forced him to view Oklahoma as a crucial contest before any of his opponents had suffered damage in the first primaries.

There were these other political developments on Wednesday:

—Reagan, trying to wrest the GOP nomination from President Ford, said in New Hampshire he would enforce court busing orders because "the law is the law." But he opposed busing "as a social experiment" and "would do everything in my power as president to eliminate and make unlawful the forced busing of school children."

—Wallace said at Chicopee, Mass., that he favors a "freedom of choice" amendment to the Constitution that would make busing voluntary. Wallace said busing causes too much social ferment and is making ineffective and would cost $300 million next year. "Long-term certainty in the tax law is what businesses need to plan investments," he said. "A much more effective and less expensive way of creating new jobs would be to enact an employment tax credit."

He has proposed giving a 20 per cent credit of up to $800 per worker on the wages of new employees hired this year and next year. He says this would create up to one million jobs by the end of 1977.

—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey said the country needs a Democratic president "to manage the economy to benefit all Americans."

—Former U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark said in Oklahoma City he supports Arizona Rep. Morris Udall over Harris for the Democratic nomination because "Fred has been more remote recently from the mainstream of political power." He said Udall "has voted the public interest consistently."

—Bentsen said in Washington that Ford's proposal to cut business taxes to encourage new investment in high unemployment areas would be ineffective and would cost $300 million next year. "Long-term certainty in the tax law is what businesses need to plan investments," he said. "A much more effective and less expensive way of creating new jobs would be to enact an employment tax credit."

He has proposed giving a 20 per cent credit of up to $800 per worker on the wages of new employees hired this year and next year. He says this would create up to one million jobs by the end of 1977.

—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey said the country needs a Democratic president "to manage the economy to benefit all Americans."

Humphrey, D-Minn., who is not an announced presidential candidate, told a Washington meeting of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers that Ford has "proposed policies that will keep over 20 million people out of work this year...which will hold down industrial output again this year...He proposed still higher energy prices."

—Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., campaigned for the Democratic nomination in Columbia, Md., where he was confronted by a group of abortion opponents who chided him for not endorsing a constitutional amendment against legal abortion.

Man held in death of boy, 6

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — A 21-year-old man who, police said, often played with school children, was in jail today charged with capital murder in the slaying of a six-year-old Woodlawn Elementary School pupil.

The child, Randy Brown, was found dead Tuesday morning under a bed in the home of Justin Fox whom police arrested later and charged with the murder.

He was held without bail.

The medical examiner said the youngster had been sexually abused.

Randy was buried Wednesday. His body was accompanied to the cemetery by his schoolmates and friends.

Brown disappeared Monday afternoon while walking home from school.

Earlier Wednesday parents of elementary school children in this Gulf Coast city took steps to protect their children from violent assaults.

A group of mothers representing the Parent-Teacher Association (PTA) and the Woodlawn Community Advisory Committee was mapping strategy to protect children.

The parents met with Woodlawn Principal Richard Battles and came up with a list of actions to protect children walking to and from school.

A "block mothers" program will be started. In it, a volunteer in each block near the school will display a sign in his window so children who are sick or in trouble will have some place to go.

Battles also said the school would begin confirming the absence of any child from school by telephoning his home. And, he said an assembly will be called for pupils to remind them not to talk to or accept rides from strangers.

Fox, who police said often played with children in the area, was arrested at a friend's home early Tuesday after his stepmother found the child's body under a bed in Fox's home late Monday.

School officials said Wednesday that more parents than usual appeared to be bringing their children to the school and picking them up in the afternoon.

Brown's teacher, Mrs. Marion McGinnis, was visibly shaken by news of the slaying. She said the other children in her class were upset, but that "They are all too young to know what death is." She described Brown as "a very fine little boy who was always obedient."

Battles said Brown seemed "bashful and shy, not one to go with strangers."

The child was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Brown of Corpus Christi.

School officials said a section of the library would be renamed the Randy Brown Memorial.

Rabin asks continued support

The Washington Post — WASHINGTON — Declaring that Israel can expect no justice from the United Nations in its present form, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin asked a Joint Session of Congress Wednesday for continued understanding and support for a strong Israel.

Rabin's address, amid a busy day of meetings with President Ford, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and key members of Congress, restated Israel's diplomatic positions in temperate language but without major modification.

Congress responded with warm applause for the professional soldier and former Ambassador to Washington, who is the first Israeli premier to address a Joint Session. A prime reason for the occasion, as in so much else during Rabin's current visit, is that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat had the same opportunity last November.

"I am ready to meet with any Arab head of government, at any time and at any place, for the purpose of peace talks," declared Rabin. The lawmakers applauded, even though no Arab leader is considered likely to accept in the absence of major changes in policy and circumstances.

Rabin also called — as Israel has before — for reconvening of the Geneva peace conference on the basis of the December 1973 letter of invitation. There was no indication that Israel is prepared to negotiate at Geneva or anywhere else with the Palestine Liberation Organization, which is planning an increasingly prominent role.

As a gesture of flexibility Rabin made a last minute addition to the text of his address: offering to open Israel's ports to passage of Arab goods.

Porkers spook Raiders, Ags alone on SWC hill

By The Associated Press

The Texas Aggies own the Southwest Conference basketball leadership today thanks to another dose of double overtime lightning in the Ozarks only the victim this time was Texas Tech.

The Aggies, who lost a controversial 93-91 double overtime game in Arkansas last week, ripped Texas 72-60 in Austin and immediately asked what had happened to Tech against the Razorbacks.

What happened was a 92-86 Red Raider loss in spooky Barnhill Fieldhouse with three Tech starters, including Rick Bullock fouling out. Bullock left the screaming crowd of 5,100 fans with a gesture which will

THE AGGIES are now 6-1 and a half-game ahead of the 6-2 Red Raiders. Southern Methodist (6-3) bashed Rice 90-67 to pull within a game of the leaders. Baylor bounced Texas Christian at Fort Worth 71-68 in the only other game of the night.

Tech Coach Gerald Myers said Arkansas' victory "definitely puts A&M in the driver's seat. It was a bitter defeat."

As far as Bullock's parting gesture when whistled for a fifth foul in the second overtime, Myers said "Rick is one of the finest persons I've ever been around. In this battle he broke, and I've never seen him do anything like that before. He was hacked, pushed and took a lot of punishment, but it shouldn't have happened."

Bullock was high point man for the game with 28 fouls by Arkansas' Ron Brewer with 24.

Tech was whistled for 28 fouls compared to Arkansas' 22 and was outshot at the free throw line. The Razorbacks hit 28 of 34 and Tech 14 of 19.

"IT'S GREAT for the fans, but it's a heck of a way to make a living," said Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton, referring to yet another double overtime. "Tech is the best man-for-man defensive team we've played."

Myers said Tech still wasn't dead in the conference race and predicted "three or four losses will still win it. Arkansas has a great team. I'm surprised they've lost four. They may be as good as anybody we've played in the league."

The Aggies unleashed their famed "Barry and Sonny Show" on Texas. Barry Davis scored 24 points and collected 13 rebounds. Parker added 18 points and 11 rebounds.

Texas incredibly led 54-53 with 11:03 remaining and didn't make another field goal. The Longhorns went the last six minutes without a point.

A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf still had the loss to Arkansas on his mind. "I think we ought to be undefeated but Eddie (Sutton) and that

Nastase threatens to default

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Defending champion Marty Riessen is gone, fiery Ilie Nastase says he will default his match today, but it's business as usual at the $115,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championships.

Riessen lost 6-1, 6-4 Wednesday to Alan Stone of Australia, while Nastase polished off 18-year-old Billy Martin of the United States 5-7, 6-3, 6-3 in a stormy second-round match marked with protested line calls by both players.

THEN NASTASE, who had refused to appear at the customary post-match news conference Tuesday, arrived in the press room and told reporters, "I have the flu and I am defaulting my next match."

The Rumanian star, who is seeded fourth in the tourney, was scheduled to play American Eddie Dibbs today. Dibbs beat Dick Crealy of Australia 2-6, 7-6, 6-3 on Wednesday.

Tournament officials downplayed Nastase's statement because he did not tell the referee.

At the news conference, Nastase lectured his young opponent for California for yelling at a linesman. "When you have won Forest Hills and Wimbledon like me, then you can act like me, Nastase said."

AFTER NASTASE had left the room, Martin suggested, "I don't think he was that sick. He was irritated with the crowd."

There were some upsets in the competition which stretched until 1:24 a.m. today. Bob Lutz of the United States won 6-3, 6-3 over ninth-seeded Tony Roche of Australia, and Mark Cox of Great Britain took a 3-6, 6-3, 7-6 decision over 11th-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis of the United States.

Lutz called the Philadelphia event "the toughest indoor tournament to play."

TOP-SEEDED Jimmy Connors, playing his first singles match, was extended through a 34-minute first set before winning 6-4, 6-0 over former U.S. Davis Cup captain Dennis Ralston.

Fran favors pro draft

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Both Minnesota Vikings' quarterback Fran Tarkenton and Ohio State All-American running back Archie Griffin favor the National Football League player draft.

Tarkenton and Griffin picked up trophies and portraits of themselves Wednesday night from the Maxwell Club, the Vikings' star as the outstanding pro of 1975, and the Buckeye running back as the No. 1 college player of the past season.

The 35-year-old Tarkenton said he didn't believe in tearing down a system (the draft) that has been successful.

"But people see something that is successful and they're determined to find something bad about it. Pro football is successful, so tear it down."

"I'm not saying it shouldn't be torn down, but what are the consequences

BATTLE SCENE

Sam's the man

BY TED BATTLES

For years every time we saw Stan Cobb, we had to bite our tongue to keep from saying Sam. And every time we bumped into Sam Cox, the temptation was to say Stan.

We don't know why. The names, maybe, are a little similar, but physically they are about as confusing as Racquel Welch and Phyllis Diller. It all stems from the days when both were assistants on the Midland High staff many years ago.

We've probably called Stan Sam and Sam Stan, but both were too polite to correct us.

At any rate, both have long since gone into the administration end of education. Stan is assistant principal at Midland High and Sam is returning to Midland as athletic director.

COX'S SELECTION may have come as a surprise to some, although his name always figured prominently in the speculation, but there was never any doubt Thurman "Tugboat" Jones, retiring athletic director, felt Sam was the obvious man for the job.

"A lot of schools go out and hire a football coach who doesn't want to coach any more," said Tug, "but we didn't want that. It's too much of an administrative job.

"Sam served as an assistant coach at Midland High and assistant principal at Midland Lee, so he knows both schools and they know him. Before he left for Klien, he helped me out a lot, especially with crowd control, so he's already familiar with the job and what it will require."

Tug added, "He's a fine person, good organizer and a strong person. He knows a lot of the things we do, and he's for the city of Midland."

Superintendent of Schools, Dr. James Mailey, also was pleased with the choice of Cox. "Sam possesses a lot of administrative skill and has a lot of knowledge about the program. With the size of the program in Midland, it's definitely an administrative job in which he needs to provide services for all of the schools."

Cox's appointment is timely since he could have a hand in picking the new head coach at Midland High, where a hunt is currently underway for a replacement for John Reddell, who resigned to become head coach at Trinity High School in Euless.

Many names have been mentioned in connection with the Midland vacancy, the most prominent of whom is Doug Ethridge, who once coached at Monahans and last year led Port Neches-Groves to the state AAAA title.

"I THINK Doug was more interested in the AD job than the coaching job," Tugboat admitted.

Some of the names kicking around for the MHS position include Milt Tenopir, third year U. Nebraska assistant with 12 years in high school coaching; Joe Jones, a 9-year assistant at Tulane; Dee Jones, former Midland High and Midland Lee aide who won a state A title at Troup in 1973 and whose Liberty team was ranked No. 1 in AAA much of the year; John O'Hara, former Lee assistant now at Baylor; Darrell Davis, Dallas Northeast; L.G. Wilson, Floydada; and Pat Blessing, San Marcos.

Asked about the names, Tugboat said, "We've had a lot of inquiries. I wouldn't call them all applications, but I'm not ready to discuss names yet."

Jones hopes to get a better view of the picture when he goes to the Dallas Kodak Coaching Clinic in Dallas this weekend.

"All of the coaches will be there from all over the state," Tug said, "And I plan to talk to as many as I can, even Ray Overton Cooper and Merrill Green, (Bryan), although they haven't applied. We'll find out then who is really interested and who is doing some window dressing for the folks back home in hopes of getting a raise."

Demon quits Wake's once-feared Deacons

By Associated Press

Will the real Wake Forest basketball team please stand up?

At the beginning of the season, the Demon Deacons couldn't lose for winning. Now they can't win for losing.

"Right now, we just need a victory more than anything else to bring out the best in the team and get us back where we were in the beginning," Wake Forest Coach Carl Tacy said Wednesday night following an 88-85 overtime loss to fourth-ranked North Carolina.

THE LOSS was the fifth straight and sixth in the last seven games for Wake Forest, an enigmatic team that at one time had a 10-0 record and a place in the nation's Top Ten.

The Demon Deacons included North Carolina, North Carolina State and Maryland, three formidable Atlantic Coast Conference colleagues, among their victims earlier in the year.

But unfortunately two of the games did not count in the league standings and as a result, the onetime giant killers are saddled with a 1-5 ACC record and a dismal outlook for the near future.

"I think when you're in a winning rather than a losing streak like we've been in, you have a better chance of pulling out a game like we had tonight," Tacy said. "I think the team gave it everything they had and played well."

In other games involving ranked teams, seventh-ranked Maryland beat eighth-ranked North Carolina State 102-84; 10th-ranked Notre Dame routed DePaul 89-68 and No. 20 Virginia Tech crushed William and Mary 105-79. MITCH KUPCHAK scored 26 points and Tom LaGarde added 19 to help North Carolina squeeze the life out of Wake Forest. Kupchak and LaGarde combined for five vital points in the overtime period as the Tar Heels outscored the Deacons 11-8.

The regulation game ended with the score tied at 77 as Wake Forest's Skip Brown missed what could have been the winning basket in the last two seconds. The victory gave North Carolina an ACC-leading 6-1 record and a 14-2 record overall.

"You have to hand it to our team—to keep its poise under those conditions and still come out with the win," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith.

"WAKE FOREST was very well prepared and we were surprised by the press early in the game. (Wake Forest jumped to a 12-3 lead). That was a very good move on the part of Carl Tacy. I thought the key to our win probably was the defense late in the game."

Guards John Lucas and Mo Howard combined for 59 points, with Lucas equaling his career high with 34, as Maryland beat North Carolina State.

"This is a particular good win for us coming off two straight losses," said Maryland Coach Lefty Driessel. "I think it proves we still have an excellent team."

Adrian Dantley moved into second place on the all-time Notre Dame scoring list with 31 points to lead the Fighting Irish past DePaul. Russell Davis converted 19 free throws and scored 27 points to pace Virginia Tech past William and Mary.

Midland and Midland Lee open the 1976 golf season in the San Angelo Invitational Tournament Friday and Saturday.

Coach David Adams of Lee and Coach Robert Young of Midland return veteran teams, but the favorites once again will be San Angelo and Odessa Permian when District 5-4A play opens in early March.

San Angelo has four of five players back from the 1975 AAAA state champions while Permian returns three from the team that won district and regional and took third in state.

Midland Lee has all five players back, including all-district selections, Chris Brown and Wendell Fallin. Young returns all five of his starters, Greg Lutke, John Kennedy, Kelly Eng, Kirk Branum and Hal Thompson.

THE REBELS and Bulldogs travel to San Antonio for an invitational at Breckenridge and Riverside courses Feb. 6-7 and on Feb. 13-14, the Midland Invitational is scheduled for Ranchland Hills CC and Hogan Park. All 5-4A members will participate plus Lubbock, Lubbock Coronado, Lubbock Monterey, Pampa,

Rozelle regime threatened

(Third in a series) National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle has been a man for all seasons as far as the NFL is concerned, but his czar-like rule of football's professional pastime is being threatened.

Rozelle has been praised for making the NFL what it is today. Practically no one has attacked the commissioner's ability for taking care of league business. He has groomed the league into an attractive package that has virtually changed America's Sunday afternoon habits of millions of football fans.

He has had the final say in virtually all league matters, and many believe that his ability to use his awesome powers has ballooned football to heights equal to Mount Olympus.

The iron fist of Rozelle has been protected through the years by the NFL owners because they trust his judgement and of course, they remember how far he has brought the league. Faith is not easily lost when there is such a solid rock to rest on.

Anyone, however, that has much power as Rozelle must come under criticism at one time or another. There are some sore toes along the way, and it has been the NFL players that have been holding their feet. They claim Rozelle has too much power over their lives.

THE PLAYERS have rallied to oppose the league's controversial Rozelle Rule. It is only fitting that the name of the commissioner of the NFL has his name attached to the rule.

The rule simply states that a team may not sign a free agent, who has played one year past the final year of his contract without compensating the player's former team. That compensation can take the form of players or draft choices, or both. If the two clubs can't agree on compensation, Rozelle makes the decision.

The rule has stopped a free flow of free agents seeking employment with other clubs since Rozelle has the power to say what a player is worth, in terms of money. Other players or draft choices. In many respects, the rule has the same effect as baseball's reserve clause, which we discussed earlier.

ALSO LIKE the reserve clause, the Rozelle Rule is under a biting attack in the courts. Last month, Judge Earl Larson of the U.S. District Court ruled that the Rozelle Rule violates antitrust laws, and that elimination of the rule binding a player to one team would not harm the NFL's competitive balance or quality of play.

The ruling, in effect, said the NFL can't restrict players from selling their services in a free and open market. Judge Larson's ruling came nearly six months after completion of a trial in a suit brought by former Baltimore Colts player John Mackey and 14 current and former NFL players.

The end is not at hand with Larson's ruling. The matter is sure to end up in the Supreme Court. There is now an appeal by the owners to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

Rozelle was naturally shocked by Larson's ruling. "We continue to believe that collective bargaining offers the best solution to the broad range of labor-management issues in football," he said. "Team equalization rules have served and will continue to serve the interest of fans, players and clubs alike. This decision could tax the very essence of the game with players changing teams every year. There will be chaos.

MACKAY CALLED the ruling a "victory for every player in America." He feels the ruling will have a positive effect on players' dealings with club owners.

"All owners are not bad, but it's (the ruling) going to make those owners who are bad, who haven't learned how to treat players properly, treat them with respect."

THERE IS a good chance, when all is said and done, that baseball's reserve clause and the Rozelle Rule will be a thing of the past, and it could have a major bearing on the direction that pro sports takes in the future.

I'm not sure, from a personal standpoint, just how much of an effect there will be from the two rulings on the two pro sports. But I have a gut feeling that there will be some changes, and maybe it's the players that better take a long look at the situation.

I really think that the fan might produce a sports revolution in this country, and that will be the topic of another column.

NEXT: Can the fans stand the change?

Tarkenton favors pro grid draft

many would want to go to New York or Los Angeles.

"It might destroy competition. Players might lose jobs. Fans might stop coming to the games," he said. "So who is better off? Everybody might be worse off. It's a drastic move I think we should make a small move. Let's know where we're going."

Tarkenton said the lawyers are being paid a lot of money and one of these days both sides will run out of money, then they'll sit down and get together. He sees the whole situation as deplorable.

"It's not only football," he observed. "It's everything. Build something up and people want to find something bad and knock it down."

Griffin is impatiently waiting to be drafted. He wants to play pro football, and he doesn't care with what team or where.

Nicklaus not alone in bad hole misery

By BOB ADDIE

WASHINGTON — When Jack Nicklaus led the final round of the Crosby tournament, people said: "Here he comes." When Nicklaus hacked out an 82 Sunday, his all-time high competitive score as a pro, people said: "There he goes."

Nicklaus took a jet out of San Francisco for Tokyo Sunday night and will miss this week's Hawaiian Open. What he is doing in Japan?

"Jack has a couple of golf courses he built there," his business manager, Larry O'Brien, said in Florida. "As to his terrible round, he was properly embarrassed. Jack had no excuses and didn't think it was because of lack of practice."

Many people do. Nicklaus was once one of the hardest-working in golf but he confessed at the PGA Championship in Akron last summer (which he won for his 18th major title) that he just couldn't get himself to hit a lot of practice balls any more.

"GUESS I used to practice as much as anybody in history," Nicklaus mused as he sat in the locker room waiting to go out for his first round. "But I've changed. My temperament is such now that I can only practice a lot when I have something specific in mind, so I've given up hitting buckets of practice balls just for the sake of hitting."

Nicklaus was 36 years old on Jan. 21. That is not old in golf but the critics point out that Arnold Palmer never won another major title after 35.

THERE HAVE been other terrible performances by the masters of the fairways. Nicklaus has had bad rounds before. He had an 80 in the American Golf Classic at Akron's Firestone course in 1965 — the same course on which he won his PGA title last year with a four-under-par 276.

In 1969, Nicklaus had another 80 in the Tournament of Champions.

THEN THERE was the fine English player, Brian Barnes. (He beat Nicklaus twice in match play last summer.) Barnes took a 12 on the par-3, 12th hole at Augusta in the 1972 Masters. And, just to show it was no fluke, he did it again on the same hole the following year.

Nicklaus triple-bogeyed the par-4 14th at Pebble Beach Sunday, double-bogeyed the par-3 17th and bogeyed the 18th. And he could have won the 1975 U.S. Open at Medinah (Ill.) by paring the last three holes. He bogeyed all three.

The Guinness Book of World Records could give aid and comfort to Nicklaus.

IN ONE Crosby tournament, an amateur named Hans Merrell took 19 strokes on the par-3 16th hole on the Cypress Point course.

The highest score in a British Open for one hole is a 21 by a mercifully anonymous golfer in 1860. In more recent times, Ray Ainsley of Ojai, Calif., took 19 strokes on the par-4 18th hole at Cherry Hills Country Club, Denver, in the 1938 U.S. Open. Most of the strokes came when Ainsley tried to get the ball out of a brook.

A top woman amateur was playing in the qualifying round of the Shawnee Invitational at Shawnee-on-Deleware one year and took a recorded 186 strokes on the par-3, 130-yard hole. Her tee shot went into the river, and floated a mile and a half downstream until it was beached. Her husband rowed her to the beached ball and counted every shot. There is no mention of a subsequent divorce.

Purple tops 9th grade standings

The City ninth grade basketball race boiled down to a two-team affair after Edison Purple beat Edison White, 93-69, to move into first place with an 8-1 record. Austin Orange is 7-2 with Edison White and Austin Red tied at 5-4.

Walter Bryson scored 36 points for Purple while John Leede scored 14.

STANDINGS — Purple 8-1, Austin Orange 7-2, Edison White 5-4, Edison Red 4-4, Austin White 1-8. Edison Gold 1-4.

Southern Idaho ranks No. 1

COLLEGE BASKETBALL — Southern Idaho replaced Mercer County, N.J., as the No. 1 team in the weekly ratings of the National Junior College Athletic Association. Wednesday 51 is 16-0 while Mercer is 14-1. Completing the top 10 are Independence, Kan. 19-2; DeKalb South, Ga., 17-2; Alpena, Mich., 13-1; Eastern Utah, 13-2; SW Oklahoma, 21-3; Pensacola, Fla., 16-4; Meramec, Mo., 18-2; McLennan, Texas, 18-1.

Pan American's Marshall Rogers leads major college scorers with a 36.1 average while Portland's Freeman Williams is second at 30.5. In other NCAA statistics, Nevada-Las Vegas upped its scoring lead to 108.8, but Rutgers is the new leader in scoring margin, 25.7.

PRO BASKETBALL — Boston Celtic forward Don Nelson, 35, the leading shooter in the NBA last year with a .539 field goal average, plans to retire at the end of the season. Nelson said Coach Tom Heinsohn "feels I can't contribute like I used to."

BOWLING — Johnny Petraglia held a 76-pin lead over Earl Anthony after the first two rounds of a $70,000 pro bowling tournament in Kansas City. Petraglia's six game average of 242 dipped to 230 for 12 games, although he increased his pin lead by 13.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL — Pat Jones, Arkansas, has been named defensive end coach and Bob Cope, assistant head coach at U. Pacific, has been named line coach at SMU.

TRACK — Ghana sprinter Dan Phillips, recruited by Howard Payne, has been refused permission to leave Ghana until after he competes for his country in the Olympics in Montreal this summer.

BASEBALL — No surprise! The Cincinnati chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America named second baseman Joe Morgan as the Cincinnati Reds' MVP for the second straight year — John Goryl, 42, a one time major leaguer with the Chicago Cubs and Minnesota Twins, has been named manager of the Reno Silver Sox, the Twins' Class A California League farm.

Big Spring hires Robbins

BIG SPRING — Don Robbins, 40, who led Big Spring to second place finishes in District 5-4A in 1963 and 1964, has been hired as head football coach and athletic director at Big Spring High to replace Bob Burris.

Robbins has been out of coaching for three years. Robbins left Big Spring in 1966, compiling a 22-17-1 record in a four-year tenure to become an assistant at UTEP. Later he became head coach at the University of Idaho and led the Vandals to their most successful season ever.

Robbins, the son of former Odessa athletic director Cooper Robbins, played high school ball at Breckenridge and later under Paul "Bear" Bryant at Texas A&M. Robbins received a two-year contract at $20,000 per year.

Before coming to Big Spring as an assistant under Emmett McKenzie, present superintendent of schools at Big Spring, who then was football coach, Robbins served as an assistant at Fort Arthur, Jefferson and Snyder. In 1963, Robbins 8-2 record and second place finish earned him coach of the year honors.

Chaparrals travel for Amarillo

Midland College's 72-71 victory over New Mexico Military Institute on Tommy Parks' free throw with seven seconds to go Monday night propelled the Chaparrals right back into the thick of the Western Junior College Conference basketball race.

The Chaps find themselves in a four-way tie for fourth place in the race as they head into the Panhandle tonight to play Amarillo College.

Creighton of Conroe, who scored five straight baskets in the final 2:38 as Amarillo overcame an 81-73 lead. Midland had led by 14 points with six minutes to go.

A win tonight would give Midland's hopes of landing one of the three automatic WJCC playoff berths in the regional a boost.

Monday night MC comes home for another tough one against Howard College, boasting the nation's leading scorer in Marvin Johnson. MC beat Howard, 112-108, in a wild game at Big Spring earlier in the season.

timekeeper up there won't give it to us," said Metcalf, referring to the fact official's time was kept with a stop watch in the A&M-Arkansas game because of a clock malfunction.

It was only A&M's 11th victory in 48 games at Gregory Gymnasium.

Arnie anxious for victory

HONOLULU (AP) — Arnie's trying it again.

"If I played badly all the time, I'd quit," Arnold Palmer said. "But I don't. I go home and work on my game and it starts getting pretty good. It starts feeling good, like I've got something to work with."

"Then I come out and play and maybe I don't play too badly. But it seems like every time I'm in a position to win I always seem to do something, something stupid, to mess it up."

It happened in the Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament last year.

Western Texas leads the race with a 7-2 record while Amarillo and NMMI are tied for second with 6-3 records. MC is just two games off the pace with a 5-4 record.

"Tonight's game marks the second round of WJCC play and this time the Chaparrals will be playing most of the tough opponents on the road."

"OF COURSE, it makes it tough," said Coach Chester Story, "but we have played well on the road so far. I just hope we can keep it up."

Midland College was 1-4 at home in conference play in the first half and Amarillo was one of the teams that defeated Midland, 83-81.

The winning shot came with eight seconds left, an 18-footer by Mark

Texas Coach Leon Black said "It's unbelievable a team can go that long (11:03) without scoring. The Aggies have great material and you can't let down against a bunch like that."

"Rice Coach Bob Polk said of SMU: 'They've got more than Ira Terrell. They throw a lot of things at you. It seems they're hitting those 15 to 17 footers from the wings all night.'"

SMU Coach Sonny Allen said "When we started running, it was all over. But the press really got 'em, I felt."

In games Saturday, Baylor is at Rice in a 1 p.m. televised encounter, and Arkansas is at SMU, Texas Tech is at Houston, and Texas A&M is at TCU.

PALMER, STILL one of the most popular players the game has ever known, came within a four-foot, par-saving putt of a probable victory.

The aging champion, now 46, backed off from that key putt — then missed it. And with that putt he missed his greatest chance for victory in three years.

Now he's trying it again in the 72-hole test for a $46,000 first prize that began today on the 7,154-yard, par 72 Waialae Country Club course, a picturesque beauty of an oceanside layout under the shadow of Diamond Head.

PALMER, the game's first millionaire and the man generally credited with bringing golf to its current level of popularity, has won only once in four years of tour activity. He has not won in the United States in three years.

If you grow sorghum on sandy soils, it's time you tried Igran.

Because Igran® is the sorghum herbicide that really fits the sandy soil conditions in the South High Plains and South Rolling Plains.

And because it fits, Igran is easier to use. There's no guesswork or experimenting with rates. Just follow the label directions.

Then watch your sorghum come through clean and healthy. Because Igran controls those tough broadleaf weeds like carelessweed and annual morningglory. Controls them early, before they have a chance to rob your crop of vital soil moisture and nutrients.

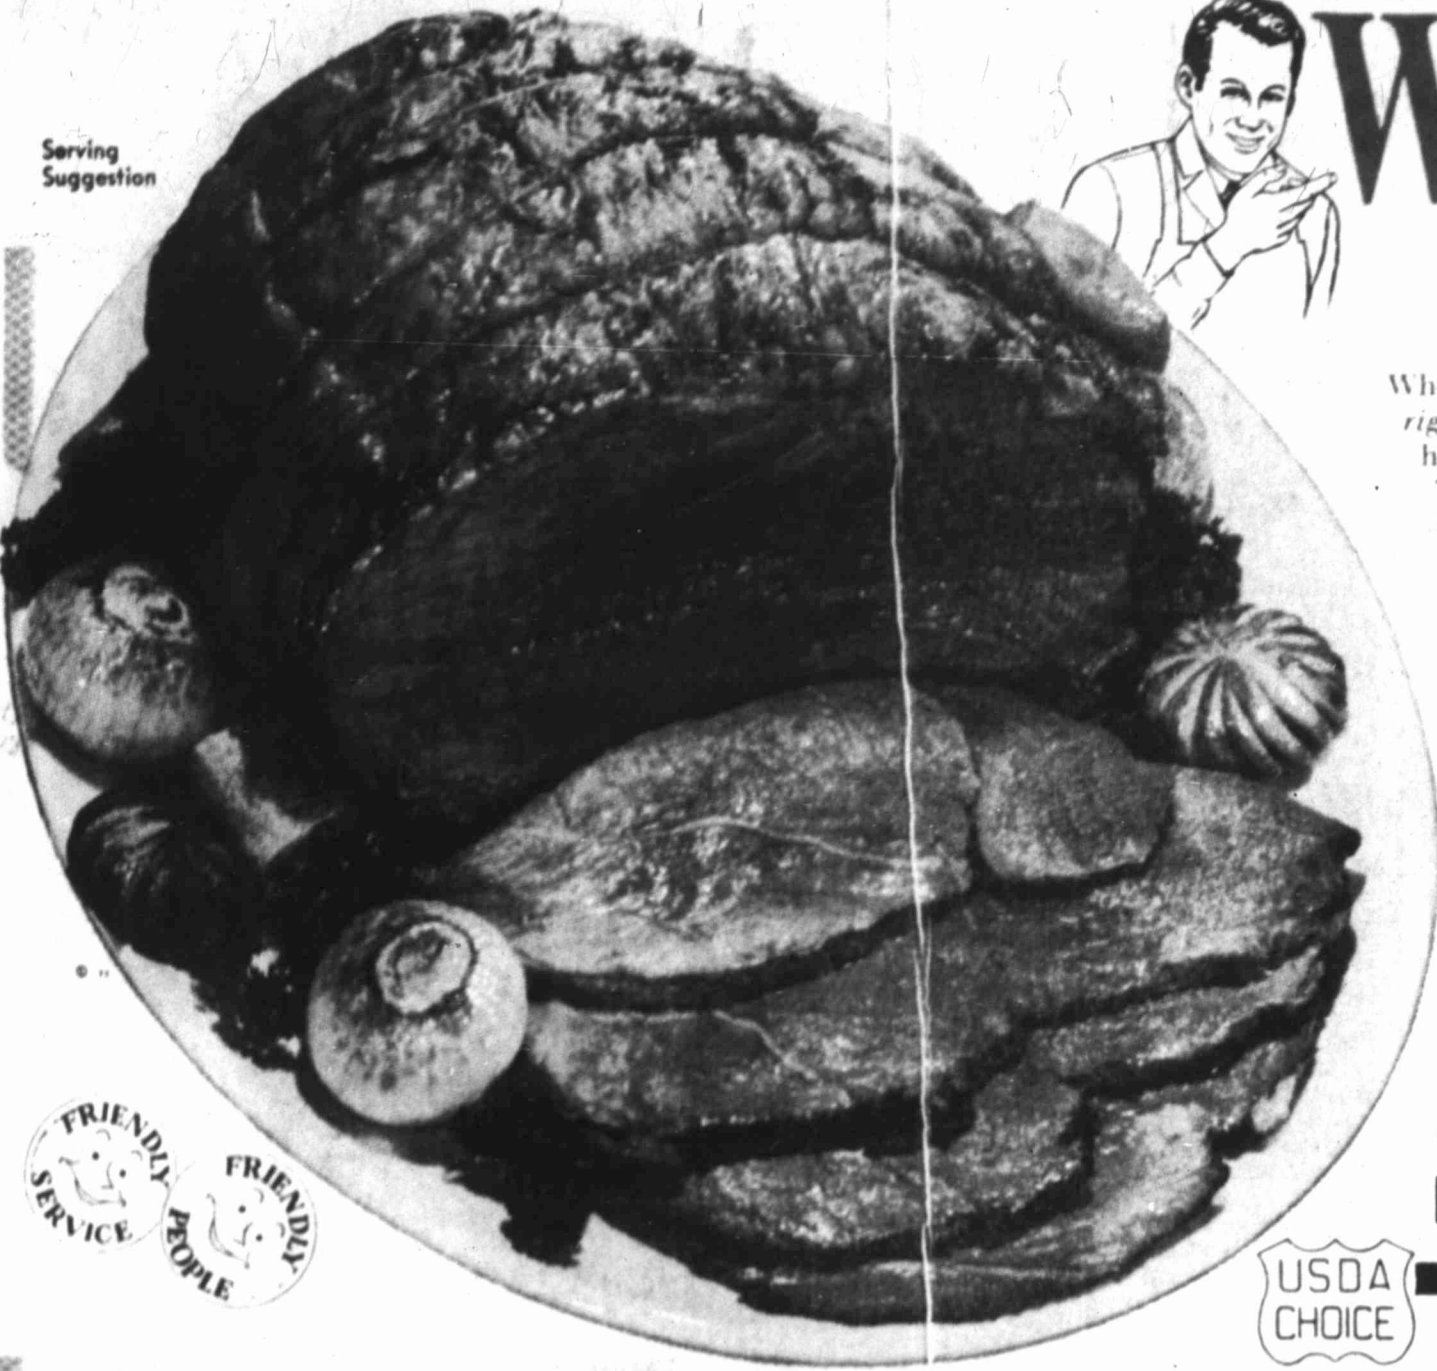

Igran. Once you try it, you'll keep on using it. Because now you've got a sorghum herbicide that really fits your sandy soil conditions.

'Dark Victory' remade for TV

By BILL KAUFMAN
Newday

NEW YORK — A good plot, it was recognized in Hollywood ages ago, is something that never grows old. Like durable clothing, it can be passed on down to succeeding generations. The theme of love pitted against an untimely but inevitable death has long kept scriptwriters busy and audiences misty-eyed.

One of Warner Brothers' crowning achievements of 1939 was a movie, "Dark Victory," which starred Bette Davis and George Brent in a melodrama about a vibrant young socialite who lived gaily. To be sure, she smoked and drank a little more than she should have, but what the heck — it was fashionable. Her recurring headaches eventually prompted her to see a brain specialist and after some initial hostility toward him, the inevitable love affair ensued. He had already operated on her for a brain tumor, which he knew would ultimately prove fatal.

The plot derives its thrust from the fact that the woman accidentally learns of her condition and adjusts her life radically in an attempt to prepare for her destiny.

"Dark Victory" was originally based on a 1932 Broadway play by George Brewer Jr. and Bretram Bloch. The 1939 movie (which also starred Humphrey Bogart and Ronald Reagan) proved so successful that it was remade by United Artists in 1963 as "Stolen Hours," starring Susan Hayward.

Now it has once again been reworked and will be telecast as a special film-for-television Feb. 5 on NBC (8-11 P.M.). Elizabeth Montgomery has the role of the ill-fated woman and Anthony Hopkins is the physician who diagnoses her terminal situation and falls in love with her.

The television version has been completely updated, however, and instead of a horsey Long Island socialite as in the Bette Davis film, the woman has been portrayed as Katherine Merrill, a hard-driving morning TV talk show producer. The special also stars Michelle Lee as Delores Marsh, hostess of the talk show and Katherine's close friend who first suspects the dreadful truth.

Numerous aspects of the two other screenplays have also been altered, to conform more realistically with today's values and standards of entertainment. For instance, unlike the Bette Davis film, there is no scene at the end with an ethereal angle-like chorus singing as the doomed woman goes up to her bedroom.

"We strove very judiciously to eliminate all the soap-opera qualities and the corn," Miss Montgomery said recently. "It's essentially a poignant and very possible story about an every-day situation. It's a marvelous love story and though it's sad — it's not totally sad." The actress explained that in addition to changing the names of the characters, the dialogue has been modernized and "it's not just another medical drama either — the subject is treated frankly and honestly. I feel that the underlying theme is one of philosophy." Miss Montgomery said that the producers of "Dark Victory" attempted to inject a basic philosophy, gleaned from many accepted ones, "on how a person faces and meets death — it often becomes a very personal thing but religions and psychiatrists have struggled with the problem. There are moral values at stake as well."

Miss Montgomery said the television movie will be a departure of sorts for a portion of her audiences. Some of them grew up watching her on the widely popular "Bewitched" series, which is now in syndication and seen on 125 stations as well as dozens of foreign nations. "Bewitched," in which she plays Samantha, a beautiful and magical witch capable of appearing and disappearing with a twitch of her nose, ran on ABC for eight seasons. The comedy series is still one of the top shows, primarily among children.

THE McNEIL JUBILEE SINGERS, with founder-conductor Albert McNeil, left foreground, will present a program next Wednesday night for members of Midland Community Concerts Association. The concert, fourth entertainment event of MCCA's current season, will be in Midland High Auditorium, with admission by season membership card only.

Tech band, symphony slate concert tonight

LUBBOCK — A array of works by contemporary composers are programmed for a concert tonight by the Texas Tech University concert band and the Tech Symphony Orchestra.

The 8:15 p.m. event in Municipal Auditorium is another in the series of free to the public special concerts, offered in conjunction with the 25th Annual Symposium of Contemporary Music and the 9th Annual Comparative Literature Symposium, both under way on the TTU campus.

The university's concert band, under the baton of Dean Killion, will offer performances of Vittorio Giannini's "Symphony for Band," Claude Smith's "Eternal Father" and the "Symphony for Band, Phantasm," by Claude Hudspeth Jr.

Paul Ellsworth, conductor of the university symphony orchestra, will lead the ensemble in a performance of "Echoes of Time and the River," the 1968 work which won its creator, George Crumb, the Pulitzer Prize for music. Crumb currently is a guest lecturer at TTU during the opening week of the contemporary music symposium.

Also programmed for tonight's concert is a work by Texas Tech music professor Mary Jeanne van Appledorn, "Darest Thou Now, O My Soul," to be presented by the Texas Tech Singers under the direction of William Hartwell. The Van Appledorn work was composed on commission by Hood College in Frederick, Md., for its International Women's Year observance. The Tech Singers will be accompanied by organist Dr. Judson Maynard tonight.

In all, eight concerts are being presented free of charge during the contemporary music symposium, which opened Tuesday and continues through Feb. 7.

Exhibition honors woman photographer

ROSWELL, N. M. — Laura Gilpin, widely hailed for her definitive and sensitive photographic studies of Southwestern Indians, is being honored with a retrospective exhibition at the Roswell Museum and Art Center. The show will remain on view through February.

The retrospective, organized by the Museum of New Mexico at Santa Fe, is being circulated among member institutions of the Western Association of Museums.

Gilpin, born in Colorado in 1891, has resided in Santa Fe since 1946. During World War II she was a public relations photographer for Boeing Aircraft in Wichita, Kan., during which time she became extremely interested in recording the changing culture of the Indians of the Americas. After she moved to New Mexico she began devoting the majority of her creative effort to her Indian studies. Her post-war career has led to outstanding accomplishments in creating a visual documentary, especially in portraying the land and the peoples of the Southwest and Mexico. Characteristic of her work is the directness which reveals a compelling insight into, and sympathy for, her subjects. Her photographic studies have been published in book form, and she has been honored with solo shows in many museums, including those in San Francisco, Colorado Springs, Denver, New York City, Fort Worth, Santa Fe and Washington, D. C.

Midland singer to join 'Opry'

ODESSA — Sherry Lynn, talented and popular young singer from Midland, will return to the stage of the Globe of the Great Southwest as one of the headliners of the next "Odessa Brand New Opry" presentation Saturday night.

The "Opry," a popular winter series at the Globe, is a weekly attraction at the theater during the months when no stage production is on the boards. The Globe's regular season will begin with the musical "1776" in late February.

Sherry Lynn, who attends Greenwood High School, is becoming well-known throughout this sector of the Permian Basin as a result of her many personal appearances with "The Workin' Men" band. Backing her in the engagement at the Globe will be Jerry Shankle, rhythm guitar; Glenn Shankle, lead guitar; Rick Matlock, lead and rhythm; Jim Washburn, bass guitar, and Del Trolinder, drums.

Also on the bill for Saturday night's "Opry" is singer Shirley Jackson, whose newest recording on the Phonogram-Mercury label is "Easy Lies." Among others booked for the upcoming performance is the Roman Roads, gospel trio from Midland.

Tickets for the performance are $3 for adults, $2 for students and $1 for children under age 12. Showtime is 7:30 p.m. and the Globe box office will open to the public at 6:30 p.m.

'Rin Tin Tin' beefed up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What can possibly be new about a television series made 20 years ago?

Nothing, as a rule. But the folks who decided to put "Rin Tin Tin" into reruns on independent stations across the country a few weeks ago were looking to do more than simply cash in on the nostalgia boom.

They wanted a quality product that not only would attract big advertising bucks but also a new generation of children — thereby creating a market for merchandising "Rin Tin Tin" toys and games.

So SFM Media Service Group, the company that is syndicating the program, edited a few minutes out of each of the 164 episodes and rounded up Rin Tin Tin VII to film new, color introductions and epilogues to each one. In addition, the black and white film from the original was tinted so there would be some color to it.

And they did one other thing. They found actor James Brown and persuaded him to appear in the new prologues as Lt. Rip Masters — the role he starred in from 1954 to 1959 when the original "Rin Tin Tin" was made for television. Now, with rustic Kanab, Utah, as the setting, Masters acts as a storyteller for visiting children. "Why, I remember the time Rinty and I..."

How does Brown feel being back in that old cavalry uniform after all these years?

"Great," he says, still tall and handsome at 55. "That was my favorite role of them all — that and the first picture I did for Howard Hawks, 'Air Force.'"

Brown's reference to that 1942 film should clear up any confusion you have about his name. This James Brown is neither the football star-turned-actor, Jim Brown, nor the soul singer, James Brown.

But never mind the sentimentality of it. Brown was happy to get any work at all. He'd been attempting an acting comeback for two years, and it was going so poorly that he says he was ready to accept one of several job offers to return to the business world, where he'd labored happily from the late '60s through 1973, first as head of a health product firm and then as customer relations manager for Faberge.

So the folks at SFM Media aren't the only ones hoping that "Rin Tin Tin" still has the old drawing power. James Brown does, too.

Housewife qualifies for campaign money

The Los Angeles Times
 WASHINGTON — A New York housewife, running as a Democratic candidate for President, apparently will qualify soon for at least $100,000 in federal matching campaign funds which she says will be used mainly for a national advertising blitz against abortion.

Supporters of public financing expressed fear that the strategy of Ellen McCormack — conceived by a Long Island "right-to-life" group — could endanger the concept of federal funding of political campaigns.

Rep. Charles E. Wiggins (R-Calif.), who fought the 1974 public financing law, called the McCormack candidacy a "perversion" that could open the Treasury floodgates to candidates seeking to promote controversial causes, not win office.

The law already faces a precarious future, with the Supreme Court due to rule soon, possibly Monday, on its constitutionality.

"This kind of ideological candidacy (McCormack's) was never contemplated by Congress. It could be a tremendous blow to public financing," Kent C. Cooper, an official of the Federal Election Commission, said after Mrs. McCormack told the FEC she was about ready to qualify for funds.

The wife of a New York City deputy police inspector, Mrs. McCormack is a prominent figure in the drive for an anti-abortion constitutional amendment. She never ran for public office until she declared for President last July.

BRIDGE Don't complain about hard luck

"I put up dummy's queen of spades," Don told me, "but the king came up, and I had to take the ace. Now I led the jack of hearts. West had the king of hearts halfway out of his hand. But at the last moment he gave me a peculiar look and played the low heart. At miserable luck."

Mistreatment charges substantiated by study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says it has substantiated nearly 250 complaints by Americans who say they have been mistreated, denied access to American officials or subjected to physical abuse while being held in Mexican jails.

Reporting the results of a study of such complaints, the department said Tuesday it could reach no conclusion on the validity of some 400 complaints and found approximately 130 others to be unsubstantiated.

The study, conducted by a special panel under the supervision of the department's Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs, was prompted by congressional pressure following reports of inaction by the U.S. Embassy and consular officials in Mexico to assist the Americans. Most of them young people held on drug charges.

Leonard Walentynowicz, administrator of the bureau, reported to the House international political and military affairs subcommittee that the panel had a difficult time substantiating complaints of physical abuse because allegations were made months after the incidents.

He said problems existed in confirming allegations that personal property was confiscated from prisoners because few receipts were given or records kept.

However, he said, "the panel believes that these complaints and allegations have some merit since they form a credible pattern."

My doleful friend will never know that West was tempted to put up the king of hearts but then took another look at who was playing the hand and decided that Don didn't have the nerve to lead the jack of hearts from a suit headed by the ace-king.

West decided that his partner had the ace of hearts, and he was right. At was so lucky about making a sensible decision?

REALLY WERE LUCKY
 Actually, East and West were lucky that the hand was played by Doleful Don instead of by some sensible declarer.

After winning the first spade, South should run four rounds of clubs, discarding two spades from the dummy. If an opponent ruffs the fourth club with a low trump, the ace and king of trumps will fall together. This is the right way for declarer to try to clash the ace and king of trumps together on a single trick.

DAILY QUESTION
 Declarer bids one heart, your partner doubles, and the next player passes. You hold: S-Q64; H-Q8654; D-J109; C-AQ. What do you say?
ANSWER: Bid 1 NT. Your hand is good enough for this encouraging bid, but your hearts are not solid enough for a penalty pass of one heart doubled. You can afford a penalty pass only when you expect to draw trumps yourself.

Study debunks 'pot' fears

NEW YORK (AP) — Marijuana, the "killer drug" of the 1930s and 1940s, is being exonerated of the more extreme charges made against it.

New evidence, based on studies of heavy, chronic use in Costa Rica and Jamaica, fails to show any signs of brain damage or other significant differences between users and non-users.

there were fears that the drug would cause brain damage and it was associated with insanity and murderous conduct. Now a panel of scientists says new research shows that's not so. "The evidence is fairly clear," said Dr. Max Fink of the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Coral Gables business capital of Latin America

By ROBERT E. DALLOS
The Los Angeles Times
CORAL GABLES, Fla. — A funny thing has happened to this palm-shaded Miami suburb of 47,000. It has become the business capital of Latin America.

Well, sort of. Tired of dealing with foreign bureaucrats and trying to choose a central place to operate without offending anybody, American corporations by the dozens are choosing Coral Gables as their Latin American headquarters. Borden, Inc., which maintained its Latin American headquarters in Caracas, Venezuela, is typical of the companies that made the move to Florida.

For years its executives were forced to get up in the middle of the night to make plane connections to other Latin countries. They had to deal with the endless red tape — four to five hours of waiting for telephone connections, Venezuelan requirements that 75 per cent of the work force had to be hired locally and even tough traffic laws.

"In these Latin American countries," said E. I. Piernick, president of Borden's Latin operations, "if you have an accident, they throw you in jail and then decide if you're guilty. In my position, I had to be mobile and I couldn't afford that kind of thing."

So Piernick, who is a good driver, was forced to hire a chauffeur. "If anything happened, (the chauffeur) went to the jug," he said. Other reasons for the exodus to Florida include the tradition of Latin payoffs, problems of political instability and terrorist activities.

Early next year, Coral Gables will welcome the 51st company to make the move in the past decade. And now the city fathers are encouraging European companies with Latin operations to join the crowd.

It has already met with some success. ICI, Ltd., the large British chemical combine, settled its Latin American operations here as did Tate and Lyle, Ltd., another British firm that is in the shipping and cSwedish Match Co.

American corporate giants whose Latin American affiliates have set up headquarters here include Exxon, Texaco, Gulf Oil, Dow Chemical, Coca Cola, Pfizer, Goodyear and ITT (recently moved out of Buenos Aires).

In most cases, they chose Coral Gables for similar reasons: proximity to Miami International Airport and its busy flight schedule to South America, a plentiful supply of bilingual Cuban personnel, and greater operational savings in Coral Gables than in most Latin cities.

In Coral Gables, the cost of having a telephone installed is $41, while in Mexico a company must purchase telephone company stock for about $400 to get one. In Rio a new telephone installation must be purchased from a private broker for $1,000 to $1,700, while in Sao Paulo the tab is between $3,571 and $6,429.

A telephone can be installed in Coral Gables in less than two weeks. But in Montevideo, Rio and Sao Paulo, it can take up to several years.

Another major advantage corporate executives cite is the exchange of ideas that takes place when so many companies with common interests and problems are located in one place.

"In our business, we live by information," says Ricardo J. Robles, executive vice president of Cargill Americas, Inc. "In Coral Gables, information is exchanged at social gatherings, at civic meetings and even at sporting events. You're always going to run into someone no matter where you go and you've got people from a very select group of the top echelon of 51 companies. We talk shop about agriculture, monetary policies, balance of payments and other factors."

He adds: "I can learn more in 30 minutes about a country from a top executive here than I could if I spent two weeks in the country."

Cargill, a large multinational grain exporter, has had its Latin American headquarters in Coral Gables for about four years. But for a decade before that, it located this operation in New Orleans.

According to Robles, its executives on their way to Latin America from New Orleans had to connect through Miami. In the year that the company contemplated the move, its nine traveling executives spent a total of 22 working days sitting at the Miami International Airport awaiting connections. By being located in the Miami area, Robles contends, there is much less time wasted. From Miami, it is possible to visit a number of countries in the south, get a day's work done and be at home the same night.

Father of three cancer victims stricken by disease

MIAMI (AP) — First, his 4-year-old son died of leukemia. Then, a second son underwent surgery for cancer, and a third son had a leg amputated to stop the spread of the disease. Now, Raymond Southerland is in a hospital with a brain tumor.

"We told them what could happen, the pros and the cons," Southerland said Tuesday. "It was a bad blow, but they handled themselves well. They tried to keep my spirits up."

"My children, after what they have been through, are very sturdy," said the 37-year-old Dade County policeman. "When we talk about cancer, we don't leave anything out."

His son, Stephen, 15, made national headlines in 1974 when he and Ted Kennedy Jr. became friends after both underwent leg amputations to stop the spread of bone cancer. Stephen and young Kennedy, the son of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., still correspond.

Stephen's 4-year-old brother, Jeffrey, died of lymphatic leukemia, a form of cancer, in 1969. A second brother, Michael, now 10, underwent surgery in 1972 for a malignancy in the lining of his spinal nerve.

Doctors at the National Health Institute in Bethesda, Md., were to examine Southerland today in an attempt to learn if the tumor is malignant. The family already is the subject of a study by the National Cancer Institute.

"He had been suffering from blackouts for the past three years," said Stephen. "The doctors thought it might be his nerves because of having all three kids in the family coming down with cancer."

"I felt a dizziness," said

Southerland, who works in a school-police liaison program and sometimes substitutes as an airborne traffic reporter for a Miami radio station. "But it was crazy, so weird that it wasn't something you'd complain about."

"I've been so worried about Stevie that I never had time to worry about it."

Midland Youth Chatter

By CORRINE CAHOON, CAROLINE KEMPER and SUSAN TIGHE

Save your ears (and your appetite), bring your loose change to feed the jukebox or else you will be punished by listening to the music of Rascio's choice. (And we all know what that is.) Good entertainment is only a nickel, and it is worth it.

Order your honey (or enemy) a Valentine from the National Honor Society. The National Honor Society Singers (NHSS), who luckily have not gone pro, will be with us again this year to sing those special songs or one of your own compositions at your request for a small fee. Also there is a fine dramatic reading troupe to present your valentine to your favored one. Of course we have the silent valentines for the quieter types and even carnations to really make them wonder. You may order your valentines in the trophy room during both lunch periods, beginning Monday. The NHS members who are signed up to sell need to talk to Paul Beique or Bill O'Neill.

And while we are on the subject of valentines, you might as well dig up a date for the Valentines Dance at the YC, on Feb. 14. The dress is casual (jeans if you like!).

Hot Item! Seniors who did not go to advisory Tuesday (all seniors) need to pick up a slip at the Youth Center to select the bands for the all-night party.

The MHS speech and drama teams traveled to San Angelo last weekend and placed second out of 40 teams. Six students qualified for the Texas Forensic State meet in March. They are: David Smith, Lois Foster, Danny Chick, Vicky Goodenough, Ann Yronka, Biff Taylor, and Alternate Elaine Landry. Yes team!!!

Chris Brown, we hope you enjoyed your trip to Washington D.C. for the Presidential Classroom. Good to see you back in the halls! You didn't miss much while you were away.

There was one thing you missed last week if you weren't in school and that was the Catoico Court announcement. Da-da-da-dump-da-da-the court is as follows: Betsy Allday, Debbie Freshour, Jeanne Horvath, Caroline Kemper, Mary Raschke, Shawn Verkerk, and Cindy Yeager, and Trainbearers Susan Mendenhall and Katie Arnold. The Queen will be elected from the court on Feb. 3. America was chosen as the theme for this year's Coronation.

Junior Rotarians this week are Pat Brown and Shannon Dillard. The Junior Lion for last week was Paul Beique. Sorry we're late, Paul.

The MHS basketball team played a close game against Abilene Cooper last Friday before losing 54-59. Friday, they play Odessa Permian there, with the JV starting at 6:30 and the Varsity at 8. Pulverize the Panthers!!!

The golf team plays San Angelo there on Saturday, FORE!

The tennis team traveled to Abilene last weekend to play the top team in the state, Abilene Cooper. They took their first defeat in District play 12-6. This Saturday, the Varsity team travels to San Angelo and the JV travels to Seminole.

Arab prisoner manages to retain political attitudes

By COLIN LEGUM
The Observer, London
William Naguib Nasr is one of Israel's 2,786 Arab prisoners. Convicted of crimes from mass killing of civilians to organizing political resistance. Still only in his early thirties, he is soft-spoken with a gentle manner and very tender eyes. He had an Arab father and a Jewish mother. He has already served seven years for his part in a political murder, but his time in prison has done nothing to alter his political attitudes.

Ignoring the two warders who accompanied me into the "political's" exercise yard in Ramle prison, he introduced himself to me as a member of el Fatah — the Palestine Liberation Organization. I explained that I had been given permission by Israel's Minister of Police Shlomo Hillel to visit any — or all — of the prisons in which Arab political prisoners were held, to examine reports of ill-treatment.

"Why," he asked, "did you choose Ramle? This is the Hilton of all the prisons." I had, in fact, deliberately chosen Ramle because a prisoner who had escaped from there reported in Beirut that regular mass public beatings of prisoners occurred there in the presence of the minister of police and the director of prisons.

"Of the score or so of prisoners I spoke to in Ramle prison — and I left it to each of them to approach me voluntarily — all said that none of them experienced physical violence in Ramle. Nasr, however, told me that prisoners had been punished for talking politics before the October 1973 war. What kind of punishment? "We were sent into solitary confinement, denied canteen privileges or put in the dungeons. Some, including myself, were sent to a special punishment prison at Ashkelon, where we were made to kneel, forced to address prison officers as "Sir," and where we were beaten as many as three times a day. Nothing like that has happened here, but I am told it is still going on at Ashkelon."

At Ashkelon and at other prisons, similar stories are told — but all the reports refer either to events before 1970, or are still believed to occur in "the other prisons."

Israel is one of the few countries that allow the International Red Cross access to all their "political" prisoners, on a routine basis. The Red Cross keeps a special team in the country for this purpose. The Israeli agreement amounts to accepting international supervision of their prisons. Their visits are on a weekly basis and prisoners can talk to them without any warders being present. So anything disagreeable would find its place in the Red Cross reports.

Israel's minister of police told me he would welcome publication of their reports, but the Red Cross rules don't allow for this. So, though I read through four years of their reports, I am precluded from quoting directly from them. There are many complaints such as overcrowding and inadequate reading material, but none of violence in prisons. Some of the prisoners told me that they were ill-treated at the interrogation centers, but not in prison. Ali Mohammed Jeddah, a handsome six-footed, told me that he was a member of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine — the most extreme wing of the PLO. He was arrested after placing bombs in a public place in 1968. "I was beaten when I was caught, but not tortured," he said. "But some of my friends were tortured. The situation now is very different. I came here in 1969 when conditions were very difficult. If things now are a little better, it is not because they have changed their policy or because they believe in human rights; it is because of all the outside pressures backed up by our own hunger strikes." The "political's" are allowed to receive Israeli papers and journals and to listen to Israeli broadcasts, and their conversations show them to be remarkably well-informed. It is clear that they continue to operate, even in prison, as lively elements in the PLO struggle. Their morale is high and they continually think up ways of demonstrating their callous disregard for prisoners. Most of her active resistance — by human rights and the rule of protests and hunger of law? Felicia Langer, an Israeli lawyer and proto have occurred immediately after the Six Day War in 1967. There are few cases after 1970. Clearly, the situation has improved considerably since 1970.

Banquet set for singers
Midland's Permian chapter, Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, Inc., will hold its annual banquet Saturday night.
The event, scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. in Elks Lodge, 1000 W. Cuthbert, will be highlighted with the installation of chapter officers for the coming year. Wives and other family members may attend, and reservations should be made in advance, said president Ed Smith. Plans for the chapter's annual "Parade of Harmont" scheduled here in April also will be presented at the gathering.

Growth, shift in populations pose problems

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — One of the gravest problems facing Latin American development is population growth and migration, says the United States executive director of the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB).

"It is very clear that a solution needs to be found if the benefits of hard-earned economic growth are not to be lost to increased population demands," John Porges, an IDB director, told a Rotary Club luncheon Wednesday.

Porges said Latin America's present population of more than 300 million could become more than 650 million by the end of the century. It has been the world's fastest population growth region for the past decade.

A COMPONENT of the population problem is mass migration from rural to urban areas, he added.

"Rural areas in Latin America lack the job opportunities and services which one associates with city life," Porges said. "Consequently, the attraction has been strong."

The banker said Buenos Aires now has 10 million population, almost 34 per cent of Argentina's total. Brazil's Sao Paulo will have 12 million by the 1980s, he said.

And Caracas, Venezuela, which had 600,000 in 1950, will have 3 million persons by 1980.

"The economic and social systems of the developing countries are in most instances fragile and extremely vulnerable to the stresses of combined population growth and urban migration," Porges said.

"Even in the relatively more advanced countries, jobs and services cannot be generated quickly enough to accommodate such large numbers of people."

HE ADDED that the results are "the shanty towns which have sprung up all across Latin America."

He said the IDB's 24 member nations have tried to help through lending for health purposes.

"We have been increasing our emphasis on pre- and postnatal care and counseling," he said. "In the countryside, we have encouraged the construction of small clinics in an effort to reach larger numbers of the rural poor."

"Finally, by providing increased job opportunities and better services such as portable water and electricity, we have sought to create reasonable alternatives to city migration," Porges said.

IDB WAS FOUNDED in 1959 as an international lending institution owned by 24 countries.

Japan and 11 European countries are expected to be admitted to membership later this year to increase capital to almost $17 billion.

IDB has been the primary source of official external development assistance for the governments of Latin America and the Caribbean nations, Porges said.

Dallas launches police shakeup

DALLAS (AP) — Two dozen officers in the vice control division received reassignment orders Wednesday night from Dallas Police Chief Don Byrd.

The orders, effective over a 90-day period, were said to constitute the biggest shakeup in the history of the police department. They were issued after Byrd met earlier in the day with Dist. Atty. Henry Wade to review progress in the department's internal investigation of its narcotics division.

A city official, not otherwise identified, was quoted as saying that Byrd "has discovered that somehow the rules for performance (in the vice control division) have changed. He believes that vice operations have been perpetuated and condoned, and he's not going to have it."

Some of the 24 reassigned officers have been on the force as long as 17 years. They were reported to include a vice division lieutenant, a narcotics division lieutenant, three vice sergeants, three narcotics sergeants, a vice detective and two narcotics detectives. The rest are investigators.

Among those listed in drawing transfers were: Vice division — Lt. Neil Southall, Sgt. Billy Fowler, Sgt. T. E. Williams, Sgt. B. A. Riley and Detective R. D. Rogers.

Narcotics division — Sgt. Dan Ashbill, Sgt. Rudy Diaz, Sgt. Larry Pope, Detective T. O. Trotman and Detective Don Green.

With Byrd's orders, the number of men transferred, suspended or resigned in his department rose to 31 since last September. In September he suspended a narcotics investigator and reprimanded three others for investigative irregularities blamed for dismissal of 129 criminal cases.

The Dallas chief suspended patrolman Judge C. Fite indefinitely Jan. 20 for refusing to give information about misconduct in the narcotics division which he was said to have disclosed to reporters. Fite is expected to appear before the county grand jury this week.

D. L. Burgess has been in command of the vice control division for about 18 months and is among those remaining. He announced the transfer orders at a special assembly of its personnel.

The police chief and Wade were said to have discussed at their session whether the district attorney would grant immunity to Fite in return for testimony before the grand jury.

Baby food firm accused of trying scare

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — One of the nation's largest makers of baby foods is trying to scare mothers away from using homemade foods for their infants, the city's consumer affairs department charges.

Roberta Wieloszynski, the city agency's director, said Wednesday she has subpoenaed executives of the Baker Beech-Nut Co. to a Feb. 4 hearing to justify distribution of 700,000 flyers warning of the potential dangers of homemade baby food.

Beech-Nut Vice President William Mallison said, "While it may appear to be self-serving, our intent was to inform mothers to avoid particular items. We felt we were performing a public service."

A Beech-Nut lawyer added that the city has no jurisdiction over the firm, because "Beech-Nut is not engaged in doing business in Syracuse."

Mrs. Wieloszynski replied, "If the flyer could be supported, why not do so? Why suggest to Syracuse mothers who've been buying Beech-Nut products that the company doesn't do business in Syracuse? I'm sure that must come as some surprise to people who have trusted and bought Beech-Nut products in Syracuse stores."

The flyer warned mothers of the danger of exposing their babies to a disease called methemoglobinemia by feeding them home-cooked baby foods. A survey has shown "exactly one such case" in the United States, Mrs. Wieloszynski said.

The consumer affairs official said the company based its flyer on a syndicated column by Harvard nutritionist Dr. Jean Mayer. But she said Mayer told the consumer affairs unit that he had never been consulted by Beech-Nut.

"I too deplore the fact that an article of mine was misused by a commercial baby food company," the doctor was quoted as saying in a letter to the consumer affairs unit.

Mayer had said the rare instances of the disease have been traced to contaminated water and not to foods.

The flyer stated, "With too much methemoglobin, baby's skin turns blue and asphyxiation could result."

Mayer said, "Methemoglobin comes from home prepared baby food but it is very rare. It is easily avoided, all that is needed for it not to happen is to give a child a mixed diet. People certainly can make baby food at home if they are careful."

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration said Syracuse officials had written them about the flyers. An FDA spokesman said the letter was being studied.

State-run fund may end doctor slowdown

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The proposal of a "state-run, doctor-controlled fund" for malpractice insurance and the decision of most doctors to renew coverage before a midnight deadline offer hopes of an end to a month-old medical slowdown.

But as the prospects for resolution of the problem in Southern California improved, about 600 San Francisco area physicians voted to begin a slowdown of their own Saturday if the malpractice insurance crisis hasn't been settled by then. That's when their coverage expires.

GOV. EDMUND BROWN JR. said Wednesday the proposed voluntary insurance would cost doctors an average of $4,000 for the first year. He refused to detail the program, but said the legislation would be introduced Friday.

Brown's aides have been holding lengthy negotiations since Jan. 1, when Southern California doctors, protesting premium increases up to 327 per cent, started a work slowdown. Under the increased rates, some doctors must pay as high as $36,000 for malpractice coverage.

By noon Wednesday, about half of Los Angeles County's 10,000 doctors had paid new, more costly premiums. The report was from Johnson and Higgins, an insurance broker for the area's physicians.

LATER FIGURES on the final 12 hours before the midnight deadline were not immediately available. Travelers Insurance Co. increased rates some time ago, but allowed doctors until Wednesday midnight to pay premiums.

"The big unknown is, will they continue to withhold their services a while longer even though they have decided to pay?" said Leon Hauck, a spokesman for the Hospital Council of Southern California.

PRIVATE HOSPITALS have been hardest hit, with physicians at most refusing all but emergency work. Hundreds of private hospital workers have been laid off because of the slowdown.

The slowdown has put strain on the area's government-run hospitals. The most recent report from Los Angeles County's eight public hospitals listed 3,845 patients, 84 over the budgeted limit.

High HUD official resigns under fire

The Los Angeles Times WASHINGTON — H.R. Crawford, assistant secretary of housing and urban development, has resigned at the order of the White House and is under Justice Department investigation for possible conflict of interest violations.

Crawford, one of the highest placed blacks in the Ford administration, was asked to resign his $40,000-a-year job, a HUD statement said Wednesday, "because of possible conflicts of interest arising from communication with persons outside the department concerning employment after government service."

The case apparently involves suspected violation of a criminal code provision forbidding participation by any Federal officer in proceedings affecting any organization in which the official, his family or prospective private employer has a financial interest. Violators are subject to a maximum penalty of two years in prison and $10,000 fine.

Crawford, 36, was named in March, 1973, by former President Richard M. Nixon as assistant HUD secretary for housing management, a post that gave him supervision over 2.7 million subsidized housing units. He was known as a competent, energetic real estate manager in private industry when he came to HUD and maintained the reputation while he was at the department. He announced some time ago his intention to leave the government in April.

Nader is at it again

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader has declared his overall intention in announcing his latest plan. He would discard the free enterprise system, one of the basic freedoms which has made this nation great. There never has been too much doubt as to Nader's goal in his attacks on business, but now it is quite clear. In place of the free enterprise system, Nader would institute a system of federal licensing of business. He doesn't come right out and state in so many words his opposition to free enterprise, but he does say that his federal charter plan would result in "corporate democracy" and would "restore competition."

act, rather than under laws of the various states today.

The proposed law, among other things, would require of each firm a full-time board of directors, made up of nine persons who are not officers of the company, to monitor management performance with the aid of a paid staff. The board would establish executive salaries and have veto power over key decisions.

Also required would be "community impact statements" when plants are to be relocated; more disclosure of information to the general public; plant by plant hiring data; substantiation for advertising claims, and what-have-you. There also is an "employee bill of rights," which is something in itself.

Nader's proposals are detailed in a study entitled "Constitutionalizing the Corporation: The Case for the Federal Chartering of Giant Corporations."

It would bring under federal charters such diverse firms as IBM, General Motors, Exxon, Lockheed Aircraft and U.S. Steel Corp.

Any retail, industrial or transportation firm with annual sales of $250 million or more, or which employed more than 10,000 persons, or which are listed on national stock exchanges would be covered by the proposed law.

Call it what you will, Nader's plan is nothing more or nothing less than another step toward nationalization of American business. First, it would shift a state right to the federal government. It also would institute a system of federal licensing which unquestionably would lead to federal regulation and control of all American business, large or small.

And if you don't consider this frightening enough, consider the fact that Nader's federal chartering idea will be the subject of Senate Commerce Committee hearings this spring, and that some key members of Congress are known to support at least the broad concept.

Nader's ill-advised, unwarranted and unjust proposal is hazardous to the nation's economic welfare ... and to the general public, in the long run. Everything possible should be done to nip it in the bud.

Apples with or without worms: Which do you prefer?

WASHINGTON — The other day, Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) discovered a crate in his office, brimful of red Delicious apples, a gift from Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. (D.Va.), whose family has been raising these beauties for three generations.

Sen. Kennedy picked up one of these large, shiny apples, remarked how inviting it was and gave one to a visitor and another to Iowa's Democratic Sen. John Culver, an old friend who happened by. Kennedy's enthusiasm for the marvelous fruit rubbed off on everyone around.

But only a short time before, Kennedy was just as earnest in warning of the horrors of pesticides, and the chemical poisoning he believes is being inflicted on the American public.

Given the eye-openers we've experienced on the harm chemicals have done to man, beast and plant, there is reason to pay attention to such warnings. The current revelations on how Allied Chemical Corp. produced the pesticide Kepone in conditions unsafe for plant workers only increase the concern.

But in this age of alarm, it's best to sort out fears from reality. Kepone gets a bad name because of the way its producers mishandled it, thus causing employees to become ill. Any chemical, any pesticide, can be dangerous if mishandled. So the question should be, is this substance being manufactured, or used, with strict controls as to its safety?

Sen. Kennedy, like most people,

"IF YOU RUSSIANS DON'T BEHAVE - WE'LL BAST YA."

CIA cuts off aid to police

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN
WASHINGTON — Because of the criticism, the Central Intelligence Agency has cut off aid to local police. The aid ranged from Buck Rogers devices, which showed whether suspects had handled a gun or explosives, to translators, which helped police question witnesses in exotic languages. Some police still have CIA bugging and other equipment, which the CIA wants them to keep.

BUTZ BALKS: The secret minutes of an Agriculture Department policy meeting reveal that Secretary Earl Butz fought a direct order from the White House to spend $300,000 on a bicentennial exhibit. Butz thought this would be a waste of the taxpayers' money. Declare the minutes: "Bicentennial will be at a minimum expense of $300,000, and (President) Ford himself has insisted on it. Butz tried to get out of the expense, but was overruled by Ford."

BISCAYNE BAILOUT: Richard Nixon's millionaire crony, Robert Abplanalp, is bailing out of the Nixon compound in Key Biscayne, Fla. He bought a house next door to the former President's vacation home for $150,000 and then leased it to the government for $18,000 a year. The taxpayers also put in $1,666.90 worth of improvements. Now Abplanalp has accepted a deposit on the house. The selling price: $222,000. Neither Nixon nor his other neighbor, Rebe Reboro, have yet unloaded the other two houses in the compound.

ASTRONAUT PARTIES: Rockwell International, the giant space contractor, threw weekend parties for the Apollo astronauts at the Tahitian Village in Downey, Calif., while they were preparing for their flights. The company brought both booze and babes to the Tahitian Village soirees. Before the launch-offs, the company also held cocktail parties for space officials at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

MUZZLING MURPHY: The International Association of Chiefs of Police is trying to muzzle New York City's outspoken ex-police chief, Patrick Murphy, who has been campaigning against police corruption. IACP president Richard Clement wrote Murphy that he resented the talk of "widespread corruption." The peppery Murphy wrote back that there is "too often the reality" of police corruption and that he plans to keep on discussing it.

ROYAL FLIGHT: Princess Ashraf, the vivacious twin sister of the Shah of Iran, flew into Washington last week from Paris. Her entourage took up half the TWA plane. She was accompanied by three other princesses, more than half-a-dozen handmaidens and three dogs. When the plane landed, the non-royal passengers were hustled out the back while the princess and her party were treated to pomp and circumstance.

'Let's Make a Treaty' stars Dr. Kissinger

WASHINGTON — The United States has just signed a new military treaty with Spain. In exchange we will, of course, supply the Spanish with armaments so we can keep our bases there.

It seems that we can't make a deal with any country without giving them arms in exchange for friendship. There is a suspicion that the State Department has been influenced by all the TV game shows and it seems to me that since the American people pay for most of the military aid, we should at least be permitted to watch the U.S. hand out the stuff on television in a game show format.

This is just a suggestion. Every week the State Department would produce a TV program called "Let's Make a Treaty."

Henry Kissinger would be the master of ceremonies and the audience would be made up of ambassadors from all the countries of the "free world."

He would call out a number and the ambassador from that nation would jump up on the stage.

Henry would say, "Where are you from, sir?"

"Zambia," the ambassador would reply excitedly. (Applause)

"All right, I'm going to ask you a question. If you can answer it correctly I will give you $100 million. Are you ready?"

The ambassador, jumping up and down, says, "Yes, yes."

"The question is: 'Who is the President of the United States?'"

The ambassador hesitates. "Gerry Ford?"

"That is correct!" Henry shouts, and he counts out $100 million. The ambassador hugs and kisses Mr. Kissinger as the audience goes wild.

"Now don't go away," says Henry. "You can keep the $100 million or give it back to me in exchange for what is behind one of the three curtains over there. Joan Braden, will you tell us some of the prizes that are behind the curtains?"

"Henry, we have the new version of the Hawk missile, a 1976 Super Sherman tank, a year's supply of cruise missiles, a complete nuclear energy plant which will be installed absolutely free, and a squadron of F-15 fighter planes."

"All right, Mr. Ambassador," Henry says, "do you want to keep the $100 million or do you want to go for the prizes behind the curtains?"

The ambassador clutching the money looks out at the audience. "Keep the money," some ambassadors scream. Others yell, "Go for the curtain."

The ambassador says to Henry, "Can I consult with my government?"

"I'm sorry, we don't have time. What's it going to be?"

The ambassador hands back the $100 million. "I'll go for what's behind the curtain."

The audience applauds loudly.

"All right," Henry says, "He's going for what's behind the curtain. We have curtain number one, curtain number two and curtain number three. Which one will you choose?"

The ambassador hesitates as the audience shouts out, "TWO!"

"ONE!" "THREE!"

Finally, he says, "Curtain number three."

The curtain opens and there is a pile of rotten wheat.

The audience groans.

"Well, Mr. Ambassador, it looks like you made a mistake. But since you've been such a good sport we've got a consolation prize for you. Joan, what's the consolation prize?"

Ms. Braden pushes away the pile of rotten wheat and behind it is a brand-new nuclear submarine.

Henry, grinning, says, "You gave up $100 million in cash, but you have won a new nuclear submarine which is worth $450 million! Here are the keys to it."

The audience goes crazy as the ambassador jumps up and down and rushes over to the nuclear submarine and climbs up on the conning tower.

Henry, beaming, says to the audience, "Well, that's it for tonight, folks. If you are an accredited member of any freedom loving country in the world and you would like to be on 'Let's Make a Treaty,' write to me at the State Department for tickets. All the prizes given away on this program were donated through the courtesy of the American taxpayer in the interests of world peace. Thank you, God bless you, and we'll see you all next week."

87 people want to be President

The Washington Post — everyone from President Ford and a host of familiar politicians to a man who pops in every day to ask a clerk, "How are you doing with Jesus, these days?"

"One man comes in here from Oklahoma. He says his name is Accountability Burns, and he wears black and a cowboy hat," said Fran Hagan, commission receptionist.

"There was a man with a shaved head who used to come in here four times a day, each time in a different suit," she said. "He said he was from the Peace Party, and his campaign button was a peace sign formed by two people in the love act."

From Conrad M. Abbott, a Democrat from Plum Tree Road in Sunderland, Mass., to Frank P. Zeidler, of Milwaukee, most of the presidential candidates on file at the commission are a collection of obscurer Americans who say they know what's best for the country.

Ira R. Waggoner of Illinois wants to tow icebergs to California, melt them and use the water to irrigate American deserts.

Ernest Wayne Whitford, of California, advocates a national health program to end constipation.

Paul T. Lanyhow, address unknown, says his political symbol is the ram — "the sheep who fights back."

In addition to the better-known candidates, Reagan, Ford, Carter, Bayh and others, there are candidates from the Peace Committee, the Libertarian Party, the Commonwealth Party, the Restoration Party, the Frank Ahern for the Citizens to Elect Stanley Arnold.

Next to a thick file on Ford, Gerald R., there is one for Gabor, Patrick William, an Alexandria, Va., candidate who lists cash on hand as "None" and signs his correspondence "Love, Peace and Happiness to All."

"You can run into these guys from time to time, usually in the streets of the big cities," said Kent Cooper, chief of the public records division for the elections commission. "They say they are running for President of the United States, and they are serious."

By law, all candidates must register with the elections commission, located at 1325 K St. N.W., and make periodic reports on the financial state of their campaigns. The only requirement is that they be at least 35, and a U.S. citizen. There is no filing fee.

The 87 candidates who have filed so far are a marked increase over the 36 who came forward four years ago.

"Maybe it's the press coverage — it seems like there are more reporters looking for angles this year," Cooper offered. "Or maybe it's the possibility of federal campaign financing that is attracting them. There seems to be a religious trend among some. Maybe more people are receiving messages from above this year."

"Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ," is how Don DuMont of Chicago begins his campaign literature. He describes himself as "founder-director of God's Own People of the U.S.A." and his goal, he says, "is to infiltrate Christ in myriads ways into government affairs."

DuMont, according to a short newspaper article in his file, began his campaign by diving into a neighborhood swimming pool "to symbolize diving into the Presidential swim."

Then he took a bus to Washington, stayed in an Arlington motel, and filed with the commission.

Waggoner, the man from Champaign, Ill., spells out his platform in curt sentences. Among them:

1. Universities should be returned to learning; no sports. 2. I'll find out about the trouble in Chile. 3. I understand we have some foreign intelligence agents here. 4. There are lots of Mexicans on the wrong side of the Rio Grande. 5. I'll pick up all the junked cars and turn them into farm machinery.

Teddy Roosevelt said speak softly and carry a big stick. Waggoner wrote, "I'll add a rope ... It's been a long time since we've had an iron hand in Washington, but I have just that."

To this platform, he added a postscript: "I'm looking for someone to run my campaign."

Whitford, the candidate from San Pedro, Calif., explains his war on constipation in a letter to the commission: "It's the number one cause of illness. We will require all manufacturers to add bran or 7 per cent roughage to all processed foods." He lists no election funds are listed at $200 "personal cash on hand."

Accountability Burns, who says he is 47 and lives in Tulsa, Okla., wants to make Dec. 24 and Feb. 28 national holidays. He was born on Christmas Day and feels cheated out of a holiday, he explained.

Robert L. Kelleher of Billings, Mont., filed as the candidate of "The Committee to Elect the Rest President." Rev. James Allen Burner of Summit, W. Va., lists as a qualification his appearance on Candid Camera, March 28, 1965. "If you folks come to look for me I may be in the VA hospital and may not have long to live," he wrote last month.

Paul T. Lanyhow says he is running under an assumed name. "My real name wouldn't mean anything, anyway, because I am generally unknown," he said. Among his planks, he would restore patriotism by "making everyone get a Marine haircut (Yes, gals, too!)."

A man from Washington, D.C., who said his name is Robert J. Roosevelt ("Elect Roosevelt in 1976") filed as a relative of Theodore and Franklin Roosevelt, William McKinley and Ulysses S. Grant. He urges supporters to "contribute generously at once." Due to "terrorism and threats," he wrote the commission, "it has been necessary (sic) to cancel fund-raising dinners."

There are others.

Carter's success bring slip-ups into spotlight

The Washington Post
 NASHUA, N.H. — Jimmy Carter, basking in the spotlight of his victory in Iowa's precinct caucuses, was winding up his answer to a question at the Hillsboro County Democratic Committee's presidential candidates' night. The question was on mandatory school busing, which Carter opposes; and he concluded by saying:

"Voluntary integration, yes. Forced integration, no."
 And then he sat down, as eyebrows arched upward throughout the audience. Forced integration? Surely Carter could not have meant what he said. Even Gov. George Wallace of Alabama wasn't advocating opposition to integration anymore.

Only moments earlier, the former governor of Georgia had said that "the best thing that ever happened to the South" was passage of the federal civil rights acts. Clearly, he must have meant to say "forced busing." Reporters rushed to ask him for a clarification, but he was out of the hall before they could reach him.

The next morning, Carter told reporters that staff aides had informed him of what he had said. Of course, he said, he had misspoken; he was sorry if he had confused anyone and he hoped nobody misunderstood.

A few short months ago, had Jimmy Carter made such a slip, few probably would have noticed. Then he was an obscure longshot who drew little press coverage and even less public attention.

But today, as a result of his early 1976 success, Carter is both the man to watch in the great Democratic presidential elimination contest and a man who must watch his words more carefully, lest he talk himself into trouble.

Georgian who had been methodically working the nation's precincts like some political Willy Loman, finds his route crowded with reporters and television cameramen, poised with tape recorders and notepads to capture and transmit whatever he says.

As he campaigns through New Hampshire in quest of another victory in the nation's first 1976 primary on Feb. 24, he is interrogated repeatedly on issues of real or suspected vulnerability. Doggedly, but always with his trademark smile, he answers — choosing his words more prudently now, aware of the higher stakes for which he is playing.

"It's an understandable position to be in," Carter says, "and I'm at ease with it. The close scrutiny that I can expect to undergo is reasonable and proper, and if I can't stand up to the scrutiny and answer the detailed questions that are put to me in a reasonable way, then I don't deserve to be president. I don't feel inadequate. I don't feel threatened and I think it is becoming obvious I'll have to be very careful..."

Carter's "forced integration" slip was only the latest in a series of difficulties he has recently encountered as a consequence of the closer scrutiny being applied to him.

In Manchester, N.H., last week, he was quoted as calling Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) a "loser" and, after the story went out around the country, complained that his remarks had been "incorrectly interpreted as being critical of my friend," Humphrey. He was only saying, he explained, that as one who had been "a losing candidate in previous elections," Humphrey would have trouble in another general election "unless he proves his ability to win in the 1976 primaries."

 Of greater moment were remarks attributed to him on the subject of abortion in Iowa, where a Catholic newspaper and newsletter had him saying he was against an anti-abortion constitutional amendment, but would support "a national statute" that might restrict abortions.

Opponents in the Iowa caucuses accused Carter of intentionally creating a murky view of where he stood, and thus seeming more anti-abortion to the right-to-life constituency than the other candidates, all of whom were categorically opposed to a constitutional amendment.

This is the way Carter now explains that flap:

"The confusion in Iowa did not originate because of any change of position of my own. I've had a very consistent position on abortion for several years. I think that abortion is wrong. I don't think the government should do anything to encourage abortion. I believe that positive action should be taken in better education, better family planning programs, the availability of contraceptive devices for those who believe in their use, better adoption procedures to minimize abortions.

Mexican election one-sided

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexicans won't have to make a choice July 6 when they vote for a new president. It appears the only name on the ballot will be that of the ruling party candidate—Jose Lopez Portillo.

The situation came about this week when the National Action Party (PAN), the major opposition party since 1939, decided not to field a candidate for the six-year term that begins in December.

Not that it really makes any real difference. The Revolutionary Institutional Party, known as the PRI, has never lost a presidential election since its founding in 1929. Its 10 presidents have ruled during their terms of office as near dictators.

Lopez Portillo was a sure bet. Besides the support of the PRI, he had been nominated by the other two legally registered parties, the Popular Socialists and the Authentic Revolutionary Party.

Only the Communist Party has nominated an opponent, Valentín Campa, a 72-year-old union leader, but his name will not be on the ballot because the party is not legally recognized.

The PAN decision publicly upset some Mexican politicians.

Lopez Portillo tried to make the best of it, telling newsmen during a campaign break, "We are going to open a new period in Mexican history—an election with only one candidate, won by an overwhelming majority."

He called it "one of the most unusual and curious challenges: to fight without an enemy, to fight for the advancement of democracy."

Minister of Government Mario Moya Palencia said it was "paradoxical" that the Communist Party, which is not registered, would have a candidate, but the PAN would not.

The PAN held two conventions to choose a candidate, but a party split kept the delegates from giving anyone the necessary majority, at this week's second convention.

Several party leaders said they had petitioned the executive committee to hold another convention, but it seemed unlikely they would be successful.

Party President Manuel Gonzalez Hinojosa cancelled a meeting scheduled Tuesday night to discuss the situation. He said he was sick in bed.

Lopez Portillo, who will succeed President Luis Echeverria, had been the finance minister since Echeverria and other PRI powers nominated him last September. He will be 56 years old when he takes office, the oldest Mexican president in recent history.

Citizens of Bridgeport hopefully the first city to make use of solar energy, had the following comments. Roy Bean, right, said it sounds like a workable idea and he's for it if cheaper electricity can be had. Mary Quinn, upper left, thinks it's fantastic, especially being the first to do it. Lower left, E. L. Smith, vice president of Lone Star Gas Co., thinks it's worth a try. "I don't know that much about it, but it is something new and I would like to see it tried. Everybody I've talked to is really sold on it."

Citizens of Bridgeport reaching for the sun

BRIDGEPORT, Tex. (AP) — This rural North Texas community is reaching for the sun—literally.

Power from the sun?

"Horsefeathers!" snaps Riley Irwin, a local locksmith. "It won't work. Not for this town, anyway."

"It's not a ripoff," counters Bridgeport City Manager Maury Brown, who is spearheading an effort to make this town of 5,500 a model for the nation.

Most residents are lined up behind Brown and the City Council.

"It's going to get us cheaper electricity, isn't it? If that's right, then I'm for it. It sounds like a workable idea," says Roy Bean after interrupting his street corner meditation.

Smiling across the counter at Mada's Dress Shop, Mary Helen Guinn says, "I think it's fantastic. Especially being the first to do it."

Such are the comments floating around Bridgeport as it moves helter-skelter toward acquisition of a solar energy plant.

Threatened with an electricity blackout because of a rate dispute with a power company, Bridgeport is negotiating to become the first community in the nation powered by solar energy.

"The project has tremendous humanitarian value," contends Brown, a retired Air Force veteran hired a year ago as city manager of the lake resort town.

"If we can make solar energy work, all people will benefit," he said. "We have done something to control the cost of living. For humans, it's got more potential than the atom bomb."

Although details of the proposed project are not fully known by anyone, including the principals—it ideally would involve private enterprise, partial government funding and contributions.

At a cost of perhaps $6 million, Solar King Inc. of Reno, Nev., would install a sun-powered system it reportedly has developed over the last few years.

New Mexico regions gain pair of strikes

Two discoveries have been completed in Eddy County, N.M.

Corinne Grace, Roswell, No. 1-X Livingston Ridge Unit has been finalized to open Atoka gas production in the Cabin Lake (Morrow) gas field, 23 miles east of Carlsbad.

It was reported as abandoned in October, 1975.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 990 feet from west lines of section 4-24s-26e, two miles southwest of Strawn and Morrow production in the Carlsbad, South field.

The calculated, absolute open flow potential gauge was for 3.45 million cubic feet of gas per day, producing through perforations at 12,826-12,874 feet.

Drilled to 13,875 feet, it has a 7-inch liner set at 13,780 feet, and is plugged back to 13,740 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 990 feet from west lines of section 36-21s-30e.

The 24-hour potential test pumped 14 barrels of 37-gravity oil and 105 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio measuring 100-1. Production was through perforated interval at 1,680-1,690 feet.

Drilled to 12,070 feet, it has 9½-inch casing set at 5,414 feet, and is plugged back to 1,900 feet.

Top of the Atoka was picked at 12,409 feet, and top of the Morrow at 13,022 feet, elevation not reported.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 990 feet from west lines of section 36-21s-30e.

C&K Petroleum, Inc., Midland, completed its No. 1 Allied-Chemical-Federal as a Delaware oil strike, 12 miles southwest of Carlsbad.

The Commission notice Tuesday said the Exxon gathering system was shut in for repairs and testing on Jan. 26. The system, based on commission production records, transports about 26 million cubic feet of casinghead gas per month.

Because of the shut in, the 23 leases, which produced 74,500 barrels of crude oil a month, have been shut down.

The authority to make the transfers is limited to 21 days.

RRC candidate makes visit to Permian Basin

State Rep. Jon P. Newton, D-Beeville, Wednesday brought his campaign for the Texas Railroad Commission to Midland a little over one week after announcing his candidacy.

Newton is a candidate for the seat being vacated this year by Ben Ramsey who is not seeking reelection. Other announced candidates for the post include Rep. Dave Lane Denton, D-Waco; Houston attorney Terence O'Rourke; Rep. Dave Finney, D-Fort Worth, and former commission executive Walter Wendlandt, Republican from Austin.

"The Railroad Commission is the most important state regulatory agency in the United States," Newton said. "It is critical that we have a united voice from Texas speaking to our federal government because our state is being victimized by the policies of the national Congress and bureaucracy."

Newton said the compromise energy bill passed by Congress last fall and signed into law in December has a bad effect on Texas and its regulation of the price of oil.

He said, "It's ridiculous to regulate the price of oil produced in Texas at a low level and, at the same time, to remove the $2 import tax imposed on foreign oil."

"Meanwhile, we need to do all we can to encourage the deregulation of the price of natural gas. Texas currently produces some 40 per cent of the oil and gas produced in this country, so it's absurd for the people on the East Coast and in New England to pay only a fraction of what we pay for natural gas delivered to their areas," he said.

The 34-year-old Beeville attorney said Texas is depleting its oil and gas reserves and subsidizing consumers and economic growth in the rest of the country.

He said, "If elected Railroad Commissioner, I will do all I can to ensure that Texans receive a fair price for our diminishing natural resources."

At a coffee held Wednesday morning in Newton's honor by Midland attorney Tom Sealy, the RRC candidate was asked if he favored immediate or phased deregulation of natural gas and said he was for immediate deregulation.

Newton was born in Postville, Iowa. He graduated as valedictorian of his high school class in Beeville in 1959 and received a BA degree in 1963 from Southern Methodist University. He received his law degree in 1965 from the University of Texas.

Since 1965, Newton has served as a member of the board of directors of the First National Bank of Beeville. He has been a member of the Texas House of Representatives since 1970.

During the legislature's last session, he served as chairman of the House Energy Crisis Committee, delegate to the Interstate Oil Compact Commission, vice chairman of the House Oil and Gas Subcommittee, and member of the Governor's Energy Advisory Council, the Special Energy Committee of the National Conference of State Legislators and the Board of Governors of the National Society of State Legislators.

He currently serves as vice chairman of the Energy Resources Committee and is a member of the

Jon P. Newton

House Appropriations Committee and the Wholesale Petroleum Advisory Committee of the Federal Energy Administration.

Newton was recently reappointed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to the Interstate Oil Compact Commission and appointed to the new Mining Council of Texas. This year, House Speaker Bill Clayton appointed him to the 10-member Governor's Energy Advisory Council and the Special Task Force of the Intergovernmental Relations Committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures.

He is also the only Texan recommended to President Gerald Ford and endorsed by both Texas Sen. John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen to the Federal Power Commission. Newton is married to the former Judy Gant of Beeville. They have two sons.

The Kingdom, North (Abo) field of Terry gained a location southeast extension to production with completion of Gulf Oil Corp. No. 4-A Investor's Royalty Co., 20 miles northwest of Brownfield.

It gauged a 24-hour potential of 220 barrels of 28.4-gravity oil, plus 15 barrels of water, producing through perforations at 7,796-8,060 feet.

Well site is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 6, block D-14, C&MRR survey.

RRC okays 23 transfers

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Railroad Commission has told 14 operators in Rusk and Gregg Counties they can transfer gas production allowables of 23 leases in the East Texas field to other leases while emergency repairs are made to a major casinghead gathering pipeline.

The Commission notice Tuesday said the Exxon gathering system was shut in for repairs and testing on Jan. 26. The system, based on commission production records, transports about 26 million cubic feet of casinghead gas per month.

Because of the shut in, the 23 leases, which produced 74,500 barrels of crude oil a month, have been shut down.

The authority to make the transfers is limited to 21 days.

Permian Basin areas draw 65 oil, gas operations

Sixty five petroleum tests were scheduled last week in the Permian Basin Empire of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico.

The count dropped 30 from the 95 planned two weeks ago.

Elevan exploratory tests were scheduled last week, with Railroad Commission District 7-C topping the list in that category, with five wildcats.

Twenty one field projects were staked in RRC District 8, headquartered in Midland. District 8 reported three wildcats, as did the District 8-A RRC office at Lubbock.

Mrs. Linda Williams is one of two teachers for a family life class at the state reform school located at Ellora, Iowa.

Reform school offers sex education course

ELDORA, Iowa (AP) — Boys ready for parole at the state reform school are lining up for a new sex education course. Many have been surprised to learn there is a lot they don't know. "They're pretty experienced in sexual matters," said Linda Williams, 33, one of the course's two teachers. "But even though they might have quite a bit of factual knowledge about the mechanics of sex, most of them don't know how to put it into perspective in life. "They come into the class thinking that girls and women are things — things to be used. But by the end of the course that attitude seems to change, and they develop a real feeling for what family life is all about. "The course — voluntary and requiring parental consent — was designed "to get the topic of sex out of back alleys," said Ronald Christensen, principal of the school where up to 200 teen-age boys are housed for weeks or months without seeing a girl their own age. "It's a course that was really needed here. The misconceptions the kids have when they come here — wow, you wouldn't believe," he said. The comprehensive and highly descriptive course is "outstanding — one of the best family life programs I've ever seen," said Esther Walters of Des Moines, director of consumer affairs for Planned Parenthood of Iowa. "Few high schools anywhere have anything like it," she said. Sex has been — and still is — a highly controversial issue in many communities when it reaches the point of determining how — and how much — sex education is to be incorporated into school curriculums. "Unfortunately, it's a situation in which a young person in Iowa almost has to be arrested before he or she can get good sex education," he said. The course was designed about four years ago by a former teacher who spent a year doing research and developing materials, said Christensen.

Moynihan wins backing

By MURREY MARDER
The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Daniel P. Moynihan, the irrepressibly outspoken U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, pulled off another high-wire diplomatic survival act Wednesday. For the second time in two months, Moynihan extracted a public declaration of confidence and support from President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, after his blunt language set off a Moynihan-style tempest. This time Moynihan's blunt language was aimed at what he labeled "the experts" in the State Department who are so wedded to "conventional wisdom" that they produce "organizational failure."

JAMES ZACHERY, son of Mr. and Mrs. Galberson Zachery of 1222 E. Cuthbert St., is Downtown Optimist Club's young Texan of the month. Zachery, who was picked for the Class AAAA all-state football team, also was named to the all-region A Capella choir.

"This (United States mission to the United Nations) does not expect such persons to change their minds," Moynihan said in a private diplomatic cable. He said, "We do ask, however, that out of a decent respect for their profession they stop blabbing to the press what is not so."

The 2,000-word Moynihan cable, which Moynihan described as "this brief essay," was transmitted worldwide by the State Department on Monday — with one section deleted, with Moynihan's agreement. The deleted section was the especially blunt poke at those in the department who most resent Moynihan's style — a style Moynihan's cable was intended to show is a success.

Troops bring tighter order in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Three hundred Lebanese army commandos equipped with armored cars and personnel carriers took control of the Beirut hotel district, commercial center and port section today.

Publication of the Moynihan cable Wednesday in The New York Times set off alarm bells in Washington, at the United Nations, and probably in other capitals around the world. In the cable, Moynihan described his U.N. efforts in "breaking up the massive blocs of nations, which for so long have been arrayed against us in international forums and in diplomatic encounters generally."

It was the Lebanese government's first attempt to re-establish its authority in its capital since warring Christian and Moslem private armies and Palestinian guerrillas took over the city months ago.

Talking tough, he maintained, has paid dividends for the United States. Moynihan, in November, came out on top of a furor that became public when Britain's ambassador to the U.N., career diplomat Ivor Richard, without explicitly naming Moynihan, portrayed Moynihan as a loose cannonball.

Previous attempts by the army or the police collapsed when the street fighting resumed, but "the army now has Syria's backing," said a member of the armistice commission. "This could mean all the difference."

Richard said Moynihan was like Wyatt Earp looking for shootouts at the OK Corral, Savanarola

"preaching retribution and revenge," and King Lear raging in the storm that "I shall do such things — what they are I know not, but they shall be the terrors of the earth."

Privately, many traditional diplomats agreed Moynihan, many critics suspected, had his real signs set on politics, not diplomacy; breaking diplomatic glass to build attention as a Senatorial candidate from New York. Moynihan disavowed any such intent, on the contrary, he said, he was doing exactly what he was hired to do — "speaking out with the truth," as revolutionary as that might be at the U.N.

Any temptation the Ford administration may have had to dump its maverick ambassador in November, and Moynihan suspects that Kissinger might be tempted, was overtaken by American public acclaim for his tough language. Politically, Moynihan was too hot to fire.

When Moynihan in November dangled a threat to resign unless he was publicly supported, President Ford and Kissinger both declared their "complete confidence" in him. The same script was replayed Wednesday. The President and Kissinger quickly pledged new support of Moynihan after the latest flap over the blunt, leaked cable, followed by a Ford-Moynihan meeting at the White House.

"The President completely approves of and supports the way Moynihan conducts his office at the United Nations," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said. Kissinger similarly said "I support Moynihan" who is "doing a serious and dedicated job," on "the instructions of the President and the secretary of state." Said Kissinger, "In the formulation of policy, different points of view inevitably are expressed. There is backbiting in every bureaucracy."

Under the agreement, Egypt regains up to 30 miles deep a further area east of the Suez Canal, and also recovers two oil fields.

Liljestrand, in keeping with his U.N. neutrality role, declined to discuss political, military and logistical problems which have arisen during the Israeli withdrawal, and the Egyptian advance — with U.N. forces always in between. But he said any disagreements were minor and were resolved on the spot, or in quickly called meetings of higher Israeli and Egyptian officers at which U.N. officers negotiated.

The one disagreement publicized was over the size and exact location of the Egyptian electronic surveillance outpost to be built near the Giddi Pass, and it was quickly resolved.

Liljestrand said the Israeli withdrawals have been preceded by an Israeli turnover of maps of the vacated area showing minefields and facilities such as water wells as an accommodation to the U.N. forces taking over the area.

Fire destroys trailer home

ODESSA — A fire at about 2 a.m. today destroyed the trailer home of Raymond Stewart, 9401 Tridale St. Odessa. A spokesman for the Odessa Fire Department says a cause for the fire has not been determined.

The Los Angeles Times CAIRO — The withdrawal of Israeli troops from their Sinai positions, and the concurrent shift of the U.N. buffer zone eastward and the Egyptian occupation of the old buffer zone, is now half completed, the U.N. force commander said Wednesday.

This delicate phase of the second Sinai disengagement accord negotiated by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in September has been carried out without major incident, Swedish Lt. Gen Bengt Liljestrand said.

Terrorists kill two executives

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Fifteen terrorists including two women burst into the offices of the local subsidiary of the Bendix Corp. of New York today and shot and killed two Argentine executives, police said.

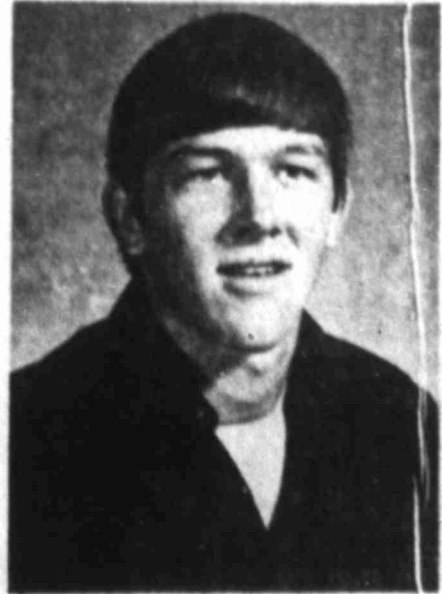

A provincial policeman was killed when the terrorists exchanged shots with company guards during the rampage, police added. The motive for the attack was not immediately known.

In a separate incident, police shot and killed three leftist terrorists trying to avoid a vehicle checkpoint in a Buenos Aires suburb. Two policemen were slightly injured in that incident.

On Wednesday, terrorists shot and killed one policeman and wounded another as the policeman stood on a street. A merchant and his two young sons were wounded by stray bullets. More than 1,700 persons have died in political violence since Isabel Peron assumed the presidency following the death of her husband, Juan D. Peron 19 months ago.
