Ford edges by Reagan; Carter comes out on top

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — President Ford edged out Ronald Reagan in New Hampshire's leadoff primary, and Jimmy Carter strengthened his claim to frontrunner status with a comfortable triumph in the crowded Democratic field.

With only partial returns from one precinct missing in what had been a night-long seesaw race, Ford had 54,786 or 51 per cent to Reagan's 53,544 or 49 per cent.

Former Georgia Gov. Carter defeated four major candidates on Tuesday's Democratic ballot. His percentage total dropped one point to 29 per cent in late returns today. Arizona Rep. Morris K. Udall was second with 24 per cent and Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh was third with 16 per cent.

Ford said today his victory in the New Hampshire primary is "a great springboard" to the Republican nomination and to victory in the November presidential election.

"If we win a couple more, and I think we will, we'll be ready for the finals, and I think we'll win there, too," Ford told a meeting of his senior staff at the White House.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said New Hampshire was Reagan's "best state in the North. He went all out in campaigning. He gave it his best shot and couldn't win it."

But a tired Reagan told a post-midnight news conference before the final results were in that "I feel what's happened tonight is a victory." He claimed at least a moral victory compared with his stated pre-election goal of 40 per cent of the vote.

Leaving his hotel in Concord this morning, Reagan was asked whether he was still claiming victory over President Ford.

"I certainly am," he said. "No one has ever done this to an incumbent. I think it's great and we'll go on from here."

Presidential adviser Rogers Morton, a former Ford cabinet member, scoffed at claims that Reagan's 49 per cent showing was actually a victory.

"There seems to be a lot of rhetoric about the advantages of coming in second in this primary. I heard the Democratic candidates say they achieved all their goals when they ran second and third," Morton said on NBC's "Today" show. "This is a new politics. I've always felt that it was better to win."

Carter, who like Reagan waged a campaign against the Washington establishment, flashed a victory sign to cheering supporters in a Manchester hotel ballroom and declared he would win the Democratic nomination on the first ballot.

Appearing on the "Today" show, Carter said today that he was satisfied with the outcome in New Hampshire.

"We were hoping to come in first or second. I thought we would for the last month or two. This is a good indication that in New England I can do well."

Carter said he would run an active campaign in advance of the March 2 Massachusetts primary. But, in an interview on the CBS "Morning News," said opposition from Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace will provide the "big test" for him when the two Southerners meet in the Florida primary on March 9.

Carter said Wallace must do as well in Florida as he did in 1972 when he won the primary. Carter added, "I'm convinced and determined that he will not do as well in '76 as he did in '72."

Like Carter, Udall had campaigned in New Hampshire for more than a year. Udall said his showing vaulted him to the front of the liberal pack.

The "beauty contest" presidential preference votes, which are non-binding, attracted the spotlight in the nation's first primary. But voters also cast ballots for 17 Democratic and 21 Republican delegates to the national party conventions.

In that category, despite the closeness of the preference votes, delegates pledged to Ford were leading 19-2. Delegates pledged to Carter held 13 seats and Udall had 4.

With 97 per cent of the anticipated vote counted, the lineup was:

—Carter 22,806 or 29 per cent.

—Udall 18,309 or 24 per cent.

—Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh 12,374 or 16 per cent.

—Former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris 8,691 or 11 per cent.

—Sargent Shriver, 1972 Democratic vice-presidential nominee, 6,547 or 9 per cent.

—Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey — who has said he will not run for the nomination — 4,255 write-in votes for 6 per cent.

—Wallace 1,019 write-in votes or 1 per cent.

—Ellen McCormack, antiabortion candidate, 989 votes or 1 per cent.

—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts — who has said he won't be a candidate or accept a draft — 219 write-in votes.

Reagan got 893 write-in votes on Democratic ballots and Ford 403.

Reagan said his showing in the Republican primary "far exceeds our expectations." He reiterated that he originally had expected to get only about 40 per cent against an incumbent president.

The candidates still face 30 more primaries before the nominating conventions, and Reagan said of New Hampshire: "One primary does not a summer make."

Among eight minor Democratic candidates, only Mrs. McCormack, of Bellmore, N.Y., showed in the ranking, with 1 per cent.

As had been the case for most of the campaign, the Reagan-Ford matchup grabbed most of the attention election night.

Reagan jumped into an early lead with a strong showing in Manchester, where the Union Leader, the state's largest newspaper, had strongly backed the former California governor.

Then it was Ford ahead, then Reagan, and Ford again as returns slowly began to come in from Keene in the far southwestern part of the state. The President had visited Keene, and his supporters expected a strong showing there.

City councilmen to inspect apartments

By LUANNA CROW

Midland city councilmen plan to see for themselves the potential hazard of the Belmont and Columbia apartments before taking any action to have them razed.

Meeting in council chambers Tuesday afternoon, council members heard the knotty legal background on the old apartments as well as a challenge that the property is not city-owned.

Although City Attorney Joe Nuesle contends the property is owned jointly by the city and the Midland Independent School District as the result of a tax lien, Mayor Ernest Angelo told councilmen he earlier had received a hand-delivered letter from The Maxson Co. saying the city has no "valid title and has no right to destroy" the property.

The Maxson Co. had managed the apartments for Montreal Securities

Corp., the New York firm named in the judgement for delinquent ad valorem taxes.

Chester Pringle, a salesman for Maxson, attended the council meeting. He told council members his firm also is "highly dissatisfied with the situation" whereby neither the city nor Maxson has a deed to the property.

The deed is a "missing link" in the chain of events for those two apartment complexes, both just one block from Edison Freshman School. The Belmont Apartments, contained within a four-block area, house only an estimated 15 persons in three run-down apartments. The rest of the area is abandoned.

It has been described as a health, fire and safety hazard by numerous local officials.

The neighboring Columbia Apartments, which house about 40 people, are "recoverable to some extent," Pringle said. He told councilmen his firm earlier had sought to sell the abandoned Belmont dwellings for salvage under the supposition the property belonged to Maxson.

He said the project was dismissed, at least temporarily, when the firm learned Montreal Securities had failed to register the property deed.

Ambulance pact approved by council

The Midland City Council Tuesday unanimously approved the lease agreement with the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission and set aside the city's portion of the cost for three Emergency Medical Services ambulances.

The move came at the recommendation of Councilman Charles Tighe and despite a plea by former Councilman Jim Kent that the group not take action on the issue.

Kent said he had made a study two years ago on the pros and cons of a city-operated ambulance service as opposed to a privately-operated service and had arrived at the conclusion that it would cost the city three to four times the current cost of subsidizing an ambulance service if the city operated the same service.

"Granted, no ambulance service is a profitable enterprise, but there's no reason for the city to operate the service at three times the cost the private service does now," Kent told the council. "Gentlemen, there's a limit to the number of services we can continue to provide, even though our taxes are low and our tax rolls consistently high."

Kent said that Thomas Funeral (Continued on Page 6A)

Trustees may seek rehearing

Midland public school trustees will "take under study" the possibility of filing a petition for a rehearing before the U.S. Supreme Court over the district's desegregation suit.

Board members decided to study the matter during their Tuesday meeting after being briefed by the superintendent on possible legal action facing the district. They have 25 days in which to decide.

Dr. James H. Mailey, superintendent, told trustees the district's attorney received a collect telegram for $5.25 informing him Monday morning the school district's request to be heard was denied.

In discussing whether the school could file for a rehearing, trustee C. Wallace Craig suggested, "We might send them (the Supreme Court) a wire collect and ask them."

Later in the afternoon, following a telephone conversation with school district attorney Thornton Hardie, Mailey told the board filing for a rehearing must be based upon circumstances which have "intervened" since the original petition was filed.

Hardie also had told him a petition (Continued on Page 6A)

Air service possibilities outlined

By DEBBIE PIERCE

The Midland-Odessa area has one choice in air transportation matters — become more regionally served or become part of the major air transportation system.

Clint McCutcheon, economic consultant on air transportation matters from Washington, D.C., told a joint meeting of the Midland and Odessa city councils and the Midland-Odessa Air Service Committee Tuesday that, though some local service might decrease if a major air carrier to the East came here, at least service to the East would then be provided.

McCutcheon noted that the application filed by Midland and Odessa to the Civil Aeronautics Board about six weeks ago has "a good chance of getting a hearing." He said Braniff Airlines' recent application to have their offer of service to the East from Midland Regional Air Terminal considered with the two cities' application would have an added boost for the hearing.

The timing for the application to be heard is uncertain but should be soon, he added.

However, a proposed application by Southwest Airlines for service in the Midland-Odessa area may complicate things, McCutcheon told the group.

Southwest, an intrastate airline, announced its intentions of filing an application with the Texas Aeronautics Commission next month.

McCutcheon said, "The advantages of this proposed application are that Southwest is a good, profitable, popular intrastate airlines; it would offer good service to the Dallas area with five round trips; and it would offer a lower fare than is currently sought by present carriers serving this area. This could stimulate the local market.

"However, the disadvantages are that Southwest will only offer flights to Dallas Love Field, and the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport is the lifeblood of Midland-Odessa service; it is likely that the present service to D-FW (Continued on Page 6A)

Agents face contempt citation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House panel recommended today that five federal agents be held in contempt for refusing to testify about government interception of cables to and from American citizens. The agents said the attorney general and a deputy defense secretary ordered them to refuse.

Chairwoman Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., of the government information subcommittee warned the five agents — three with the FBI, one formerly with the FBI and one with the National Security Agency — that they were in contempt and liable to jail terms and fines.

Contempt of Congress carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

President Ford has ordered the Justice Department and Defense Department to refuse compliance with a subcommittee subpoena for records about the cable interceptions.

A spokesman for the subcommittee said Tuesday the panel had been told that Ford was prepared to invoke executive privilege to keep the subcommittee from obtaining information on Operation Shamrock, the now-defunct cable interception program.

The subcommittee said late Tuesday that Ford ordered Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi and the Defense Department in a memorandum last week to refuse to comply with the panel's subpoenas for all records on the interception of cable traffic.

Committee aides said Levi and Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements agreed to let the agents appear before the panel, but indicated their testimony would be limited.

Meanwhile, the Reporters' Committee for Freedom of the Press said it will not accept any money from the weekly Village Voice in connection with the printing of the House intelligence committee's final report.

CBS newsmen Daniel Schorr, who arranged for publication of the secret report, had said he specified in his dealings with the Village Voice that the Reporter's Committee should get any fee due him from the New York paper.

A quiet struggle is developing in the Senate over whether a proposed new panel to oversee U.S. intelligence agencies should have exclusive jurisdiction to monitor all government spy activities.

The Senate Government Operations Committee voted Tuesday to create a new committee with power to monitor domestic and foreign intelligence operations conducted by all government agencies.

But it was learned that members of the Senate Judiciary Committee don't want to give up their traditional responsibility for overseeing domestic intelligence activities, particularly those by the FBI.

The resolution also provides for punishment up to expulsion for senators who leak information.

Nixon denies criticizing Helsinki document

By SAUL PETER
 PEKING (AP) — Richard Nixon today denied criticizing the Helsinki Declaration or applauding a song calling for the "liberation" of Taiwan during his visit to Peking.

"My God," he said to an aide when asked about the controversy over the toast he made at a banquet Sunday night. "I've used that statement a dozen times before and I used it in a general context. It could apply to the United Nations charter or the Shanghai Communiqué or any international document."

The statement referred to by Nixon was interpreted in some quarters as criticism of President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for joining the Soviet Union in the Helsinki agreement on European security and cooperation.

Nixon in his toast talked about the Shanghai Communiqué he signed four years ago with the late Premier Chou En-lai and then commented:

"There are, of course, some who believe that the mere act of signing a statement of principles or a diplomatic conference will bring instant and lasting peace. This is naive. There cannot and will not be lasting and secure peace until every nation in the world respects the security and independence of every other nation large or small."

Several State Department officials were angered by Nixon's comment, but both Kissinger and the White House said after reading the full text of the toast, they did not interpret it as a criticism.

Nixon also denied that when he applauded during a concert Monday night, he was clapping for a song calling for the ouster of the Nationalist Chinese regime from Taiwan.

"Like hell I did," he said. "I didn't really stand. It was just a gentleman-to-a-lady gesture. I stood for a lady who was standing, not for the song."

Chiang Ching, the wife of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, sat at Nixon's left during the concert and directed his attention to an English translation of one song which said:

"People of Taiwan, our own brothers, day and night, you are in our hearts. We are determined to liberate Taiwan Province and let the light of the sun shine on the island."

At the end of the song, Chiang

Ching jumped to her feet applauding, and the other Chinese members of the official party also rose and clapped.

Nixon rose partially, applauding limply.

Nixon on Tuesday afternoon had his third talk with Acting Premier Hua Kuo-feng and in the evening attended a small, informal dinner given by Hua in the Great Hall of the People.

Today, the chairman of the Revolutionary Committee of Tsinghua University, Chi Chuan, confirmed to Nixon that the man Chou En-lai picked to be his successor, First Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, is once more in disgrace.

Teng was purged during the 1966-69 Cultural Revolution. Chou rehabilitated him as part of his campaign to end the turmoil, get government operations back on a smooth basis and resume industrial development. But after Chou's death, Teng became the target of a critical wall-poster campaign, and Hua was named acting premier.

Panel ok's gun ban

The Washington Post
 WASHINGTON — A stringent ban on "concealable" handguns was adopted by an 18-to-14 vote in the House Judiciary Committee Tuesday.

The amendment offered by freshman Rep. Martin A. Russo (D-Ill.) would prohibit the importation, manufacture, sale and distribution of new "concealable" handguns by licensed firearms manufacturers and dealers. It would not affect possession and sale of such handguns already in existence.

Supporters of the amendment consider it stronger than a ban on "Saturday night specials" since most definitions of Saturday night specials consider cost, caliber and other factors, while a single factor — its size — is enough to ban a concealable handgun, a small but aggressive handgun.

Carter opposition surfaces at meeting

The Washington Post
 WASHINGTON — An undercurrent of opposition to the presidential candidacy of Jimmy Carter emerged Tuesday at the National Governors' Conference mid-winter meeting here among some Democrats who have worked closely with the former Georgia governor.

"Some people say Lester Maddox knows him (Carter) better than anyone. And maybe he's (Maddox) right about him (Carter)," Ford said.

Maddox, a former Georgia governor, traveled to New Hampshire last week to campaign against Carter, accusing him of deceitful behavior in state politics.

Democratic Governors Conference while governor of Arkansas.

The incident considered potentially the most damaging to Carter occurred at a governors' meeting at Huron, Ohio, in April 1973. According to Gov. Philip W. Noel, D-R.I., who describes himself as a "friend of Jimmy Carter's," the former Georgia governor introduced a resolution "to protect the institution of the presidency against scandal" at the meeting.

attempts to obtain a copy of the resolution were unsuccessful Tuesday and several key governors said they don't recall the incident.

Aides to Sen. Bumpers, chairman of the Democratic governors at the time, said only loose records were kept of such meetings and they could find no written record of the incident.

A spokesman for the Carter campaign in Atlanta said a search of wire service news clippings of the meeting showed no mention of the resolution, but indicated Carter had criticized several aspects of the Nixon administration.

Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel, who has been privately expressing misgivings about Carter for weeks, said there was "no anti-Carter movement," but that a number of influential governors hold deep-seated resentments about Carter's actions at governors' conferences in the past.

The complaints most often repeated are that Carter wants to eliminate states' from the federal revenue sharing program, that he proposed a pro-Nixon resolution at a crucial juncture of the Watergate scandals, that he sided with George Wallace in several gubernatorial battles, that he frequently misled governors about his intentions at several points, and that he "tells everybody what they want to hear."

"These are things that we remember and bother us," said Mandel, who would like to see Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey as the Democratic nominee.

Kentucky Sen. Wendell Ford, a former chairman of the Democratic Governors Conference, said, "I don't know of any governors or former governors that he has contacted for support. That might indicate how much support he has among his former colleagues."

The House Agriculture Committee Tuesday approved a bill that would cut spending for the food stamp program by about $300 million and reduce the number of beneficiaries by 3 to 4 million.

The measure, a compromise hammered out in six days of committee meetings, contains many key changes sought by the Ford administration, including a provision limiting the program to those whose incomes fall below the poverty level.

The Senate group deadlocked, 7 to 7, on several attempts at a compromise before finally approving, 8 to 6, an amendment proposed by Sen. James B. Allen D-Ala. The amendment would require a beneficiary to pay 27.5 per cent of his monthly income for the stamps, after deducting a flat $100.

Persons presently receiving benefits pay from 18 to 30 per cent of monthly income, depending on income category and number of dependents. They are also allowed to itemize deductions from income, such as medical bills.

Senate panel kills Ford SS tax hike plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's plan to raise Social Security taxes by as much as $1 a week per worker apparently is dead, a victim of the battle between Congress and the White House over economic policy.

The Senate Finance Committee's action rejecting Ford's proposal came as no surprise. And while the decision could be reversed by the Senate and the House, the prospect in this election year is unlikely.

Without a formal vote, the Finance Committee agreed Tuesday that its spending and tax plans for 1977 would not include an increase in Social Security payroll deductions. The panel delayed until later this year a decision on whether money should be taken from elsewhere in the federal budget to pump up the Social Security system.

In addition, the committee agreed tentatively to increase benefits under the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program by up to $900 million next year. That program provides federal checks each month to 4.3 million needy elderly, disabled and blind persons.

How that $900 million will be spent was not decided, although a large portion may be used to insure that state contributions to SSI are not cut when federal benefits are raised.

The decisions on Social Security taxes and increased SSI benefits, coupled with the committee's agreement to rely on congressional economic predictions rather than those of the Ford administration, would mean a $5.1-billion increase in the $43-billion deficit Ford is predicting for 1977.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, told his colleagues there is no reason for Congress to rush more money into the Social Security system now, although checks mailed out each month to the retired, disabled and survivors of workers are exceeding revenues poured into the fund by payroll taxes.

By all accounts, the system will remain solvent at least through 1981, although the gap between incoming tax money and benefits paid out will continue to widen.

Kissinger finds basic accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger found basic agreement with American foreign policy during his Latin American trip, including his concern over new Cuban aggression.

A senior American official told newsmen on the flight home Tuesday night that Kissinger found no sense of confrontation in any of the six nations he visited, including the one he thought might be troublesome, Peru.

He also visited Brazil, Venezuela, Colombia, Costa Rica and Guatemala.

Kissinger's nine-day visit in Latin America was his first trip to the area since he entered the government in 1969. His last stop was a two-hour layover in Guatemala, where he examined earthquake damage in Guatemala City. Before leaving, he promised to do his "utmost to respond to the courage of the Guatemalan people."

But it was the over-all trip that occupied the senior official as the plane headed for Washington. And the official seemed to dwell on Cuba in spite of Kissinger's public claims that the tour was not a crusade to drum up opposition to Fidel Castro.

The only leader who didn't share Kissinger's perception of Cuba as a hemispheric threat in the wake of its Angola intervention was Peruvian president Francisco Morales Bermudez. But even Morales Bermudez didn't say he opposed Kissinger's determination to stop any Cuban intervention in the hemisphere.

In a stop in Costa Rica Tuesday, Kissinger spoke to officials of five Central American nations and warned that the Cuban action in Angola might be a precedent for Cuba's resumption of Latin American attempts to export revolution.

Any such effort will be opposed by the United States using the collective security machinery of the Rio Treaty, which set up a process to prevent outside interference in the affairs of hemisphere nations.

In his last day in Latin America, Kissinger also met in Costa Rica with Gen. Juan Tack, Panama's chief negotiator in talks about a new Panama Canal treaty.

A U.S. official said both men agreed on the importance of reaching a new pact to replace the one signed in 1903.

However, Kissinger and Tack agreed as well that a great deal of work remains, the official said. The problems deal with the length of a treaty and over how much of the Canal Zone now held by the United States will be returned to Panama.

Marianas to become new U.S. territory

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 14 Mariana Islands in the Pacific will become the first new U.S. territory in 51 years under legislation nearing final congressional approval.

The commonwealth covenant extending U.S. citizenship to 14,000 island residents was approved by the Senate on Tuesday, 66 to 23. The House passed a slightly different resolution last July 21.

All that remains is for differences to be resolved, probably in a House-Senate conference.

The Senate resolution lacked House-approved authorization for the president to extend federal aid grants and loan programs to the Marianas and other U.S. offshore territories.

The Marianas, located north of Guam some 5,400 miles west of San Francisco, are part of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. The Trust Territory, which includes the Marshall and Caroline islands, has been administered by the United States since 1947 under a trust agreement with the United Nations.

H. Allen Smith dies in California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — H. Allen Smith, newspaperman and humorist who took irreverent pokes at humanity in more than 40 books he authored, is dead at the age of 68.

A maid discovered Smith dead in his room at the Clift Hotel Tuesday. An autopsy was scheduled to determine the exact cause of death.

Friends said Smith had been visiting here for several days and was scheduled to be in Los Angeles Tuesday night for a party with members of the International Chili Society.

Smith and his wife, Nellie, moved to Alpine, Tex., in 1970 and lived there at the time of his death.

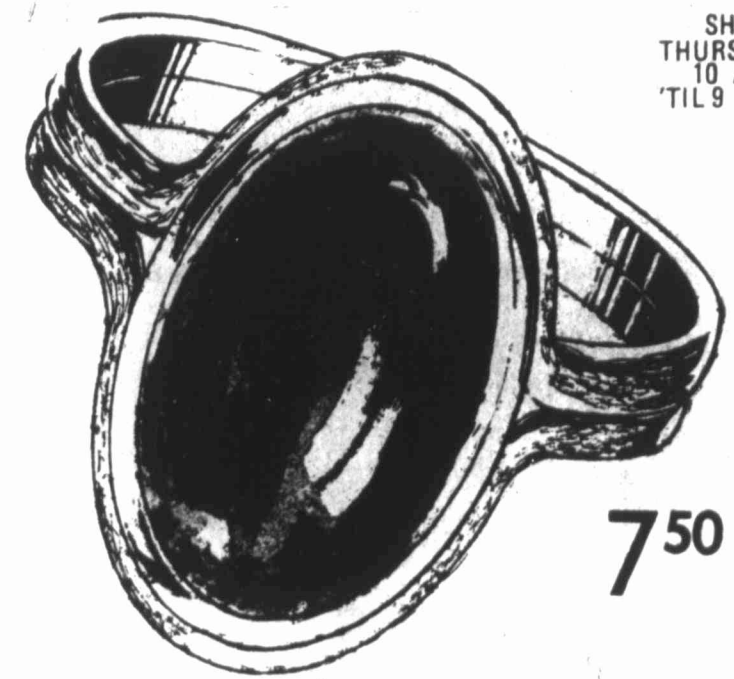

His best-known books were "Low Man On A Totem Pole" and "Life In A Putty-Knife Factory," published in the early 1940s. In the latter, Smith recounted his experiences as a cub reporter for a Midwest newspaper and as a columnist in New York City.

A native of McLeansboro, Ill., Smith began his writing career at 15 as a reporter on the Huntington, Ind. Press. His career there was cut short when a mildly pornographic tale titled "Stranded on a Davenport" was imprudently distributed by a friend.

The sofa tale also ended his academic career, but Smith was untroubled by the turn of events. He later explained that as a youngster, he had fallen down a well head-first and was discovered two hours later, contentedly eating mud.

"This," he said in one of his books, "was an adequate preparation for a journalistic career — the equivalent of two years of college."

Smith's sense of the absurd and his keen wit brought him some notoriety, and he became a friend of writers, actors and artists. He once in fun kidnaped Albert Einstein from a banquet, greeted financier J.P. Morgan with a flippant "Hi, Toots!" and made sure he went on record as having downed the first legal drink after the repeal of Prohibition.

Personal Rapid Transit System 'right on target'

By JENNIFER KERR
MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — The church-bound students shivered on the concrete platform one chilly Sunday, but the computer-run signs over the space age little cars stubbornly maintained: "Do Not Board." It was 14 per cent time for West Virginia University's experimental Personal Rapid Transit System — PRT.

After three months of testing with real people riding it, the reliability of the $62.4-million, 5.4-mile automated system is up to 86 per cent. That means that for every 20 rides you try to take from the system's three stations, it won't be working right on about three trips. "We think it's on schedule," said

Samy E. G. Elias, the industrial engineering professor who conceived the project almost 10 years ago. "Our reliability has improved steadily over the past two months. "But we're still some distance from our aim of 96 per cent."

Since the federal Urban Mass Transit Administration, which financed and built the prototype, turned the system over to the university Oct. 3, the 45 beige yellow and blue symmetrical cars have carried about 200,000 passengers over about the same number of miles, Elias said. It runs 13 hours a day during the week and five hours on weekends.

Right now the system has three stations: Walnut Street in downtown Morgantown, Beechurst Avenue near the main campus buildings and Evandale at the engineering school. Two more stations — at the Towers dormitory and the Medical Center — will be built with another expected Department of Transportation grant of $53.8 million, Elias said the engineering design for the extended concrete guideway and stations is done. He hopes construction can be started by July and completed by early 1978.

When the system was first proposed in 1967, the projected price was $18 million — but then no one had ever built a PRT.

"This system was designed to demonstrate the feasibility and public acceptance of an automated transportation system," says the explanatory sign on the lower level of the concrete Beechurst station. "The driverless vehicles are computer controlled and offer privacy and service unlike any other transportation system."

Another sign warns of the system's test period — "Shutdowns are expected that will in no way endanger your safety."

All the shutdowns do is try the students' patience. During the Sunday shutdown, the students calmly waited while a worker scurried about, pulling knobs on the backs of the 15-foot-long vehicles, which hold eight persons seated and 12 more standing. The computer is supposed to send a car to a station when potential riders insert their special tickets in the turnstile. The cars were there, but their doors would not open to let the riders in. And while three cars sat defiantly humming beneath the "Do Not Board" sign, other cars eerily started up and glided away, empty, to the other stations.

"I'm one of the few people who likes this," said Holly Hudson, a freshman from Rockville, Md. "They're always on it when it breaks down."

"The yellow flashing light — on top of the station signaling a breakdown — seems to be going around quite often," said Tom Martin, a sophomore from Beckley, W. Va.

More students arrived, but the turnstile refused to return their tickets, which let them ride free — others pay 25 cents.

The worker came out again and retrieved the cards. But student John Chan's was damaged and he was told he'd have to get a new one Monday.

"But how do I get back?" asked Chan. "You'll have to pay a quarter," he was told.

Chan waited for awhile, then stomped off to find a bus. Several of the students also left, but others had kind words for the system.

Arizona tree cutter sticks with story of space kidnaping

By JON HALVORSEN
Associated Press Writer

Travis Walton was cutting trees for $6 an hour in the forests of northern Arizona when he saw the light, a bluish-green ray that he and six witnesses say knocked him to the ground.

Three months after what he says was an encounter with an unidentified flying object, Walton says it is still difficult to lead a normal life.

At dusk last Nov. 5, as Walton tells the story, he was struck by the ray of light from a UFO in the forest and taken off in the spacecraft by strange creatures. He was missing for five days until, his family said, they found him slumped in a phone booth in Heber, Ariz., pale and shaken.

In the days that followed, reporters from as far away as Australia pursued the Walton story; psychiatrists interviewed him; UFO groups studied the incident, and Navajo County Sheriff Marlin Gillespie, whose men had combed the woods in vain for Walton, confessed he found the case the "most exasperating" in his 18 years with the sheriff's department.

Walton, 23, now unemployed and living alone in a rented house in Snowflake, Ariz., says he's barely existing financially. He has considered finishing his college education at Northern Arizona University, where he completed one year, or seeking a job in electronics.

But the tall, slender young man says he has kept busy. In recent weeks, he said, he has:

- Been "working with an artist to reproduce some of the things I've seen and writing a book" about the incident, tentatively entitled "The Walton Experience."
- Traveled to Toronto for a "news quiz show" on television and to Hollywood to film a TV pilot called "The Unexplained," in which he was interviewed by Leonard Nimoy, the point-eared Mr. Spock of "Star Trek" fame.

- Passed a lie-detector test about the UFO incident.
- Walton said he received only expense money for his Hollywood and Toronto trips.
- Five of the six young men who were with him Nov. 5 passed a polygraph test about what they saw; the test on the sixth man proved inconclusive.
- Mike Rogers, 28, who passed the test, is one of Walton's closest friends. Rogers still insists he saw the UFO. He says he and the others saw it as they drove along a bumpy mountain road about 12 miles south of Heber. Walton jumped out of the moving truck, ran toward the brightly glowing object hovering about 15 feet above the ground in a small clearing. He was knocked down by a ray of bluish-green light, Rogers said.
- Rogers, who said he and the other men were still sitting in the truck about 25 yards away, drove off in fright. When the men returned 15 minutes later, there was no trace of Walton or the UFO, Rogers said.

Rogers, a father of four who was the foreman of the woodcutting crew, said in words similar to Walton's: "I would prefer people to believe me, but there's nothing I can do about it if they don't."

Walton's story — he says he remembers only about two hours of the five days he was missing — is that he woke up on a table in a white room and found himself being examined by several creatures with bulging eyes and no fingernails. He said he seized a piece of plastic pipe and swung at the creatures, who backed out of the room.

Walton said he walked down a hallway into another room where he saw a chair with buttons on the side. He began playing with the buttons and saw a large screen filled with stars.

Candidates entertained

The Lt. William Brewer and Col. Theunis Dey Chapters, Daughters of the American Revolution, honored three candidates for offices in the Texas Society, DAR, with a tea Monday in the Midland Woman's Club.

Guests included representatives of chapters in Division 9, DAR, and the San Angelo DAR chapter.

The honorees were Mrs. Georgia Bingle Edman of Houston, candidate for state regent; Mrs. Kenneth L. Wickett of Fort Worth, state treasurer candidate, and Mrs. William Burgett of El Paso, candidate for corresponding secretary.

Hostesses to the tea were Mrs. Jim Allison Jr., Lt. William Brewer Chapter, and Mrs. John P. Butler, Col. Theunis Dey Chapter.

Mrs. Edman served as state treasurer during the state regency of Mrs. Walter G. Dick, and as state corresponding secretary with Mrs. B. Wynne Woolley, regent. She has been state chairman of public relations and press book and is completing a three-year term as state chairman of the DAR School Committee. On the national level, she has served terms as national vice chairman of public relations and as national vice chairman of Constitution Week.

JELLY SIDE DOWN

Ghost of Christmas past

By Nancy Stahl

It is decidedly depressing to find the ghost of Christmas past still lurking about the house in February.

To stumble out into the living room without your slippers at 7:00 A.M. on a Monday morning, looking for your glasses so that you can find the coffee pot, only to impale your left foot on a two-inch pine needle which is lying, pointy-end-up, in the shag carpet.

To realize that you are still nagging the children to write thank-you notes to Uncle Fred and Aunt Zelda for having sent them those keen Walky-Talky transmitters for which you still haven't gotten around to buying batteries.

To notice that whenever you turn on the porch light in the evening, yours is the only house on the block whose entire roof not only still lights up, but spells "PEACE ON EAR..." in red lights.

To know that whenever you lower the lid on the toilet seat, you will find yourself staring at Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer.

To live with a child who still has a partridge in his pear tree and insists on humming "God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen" whenever he brushes his teeth.

To look in the refrigerator and discover that not only do you have six packages of leftover turkey in your freezing compartment, but that the nasty red gunk in the refrigerator jar is probably eight-week-old cranberry sauce.

WOMEN'S NEWS

To realize that at the rate at which you are presently reducing your Mastercharge account, your Christmas bills won't be paid before August 27.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RUGHTER (Thurs., Mar. 4)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is good for using your vitality to get much done and to test your abilities. The afternoon and evening bring obstacles to dampen your ardor.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you get an early start at whatever is important, you have fine results following. Enjoy the social side this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get the support needed from a higherup for an important project you have in mind. Obtain data from the right source.

GEMINI (Mar. 21 to June 21) Friends can be helpful in the morning but are likely to be testy later, so use good judgment. Sidestep an argument.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to handle a confidential matter wisely. A career plan should be put in operation without delay.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan some changes you want to make early and then handle regular routines. Cultivate a new acquaintance in the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can handle an obligation well, but avoid persons whose views are different from yours. Use good judgement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure you keep a promise you've made to an associate. A plan you have in mind may not work out as you wish.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are enthusiastic in the morning about your work but later become lackadaisical. Don't neglect needed exercise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Engage in those creative outlets that are important early in the day and then go for recreations you enjoy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Use wisdom in the handling of any problematical affairs at home and you avoid trouble. Take it easy tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle important tasks early in the day. Later study your financial situation. Use extreme care in motion tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You know how to handle a practical affair so put your talent to work early in the day. Use your own good judgement.

STYLES BY Yvonne's Apparel will be shown at a guest day style show planned March 5 by the Ranchland Hill County Club Ladies Bridge Association. Bridge games begin in at 10 a.m., followed by luncheon and style show, with Mrs. William Henry as commentator. Dorothy Moring, left, will be a model and Mrs. John A. Banister, center, is the new second vice president and Mrs. John Brooks Campbell, right, is the incoming president. Other officers to assume duties at this event are Mrs. James C. McNatt, first vice president; Mrs. Roger Guthrie Jr., treasurer, and Mrs. V. S. Purdy, secretary-reporter.

DEAR ABBY

Guy says 'good girl' is one in a million

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive, natural blonde who was raised by strict parents. I love the Lord and have been saved.

I've dated quite a lot, but I never let a man get too close to me because I wanted to keep my virginity for my husband.

Five months ago, I met a 29-year-old man to whom I was attracted like I couldn't believe was possible. One thing led to another, and I finally told him that I was a virgin.

He said that I was "one in a million," which I took as a compliment, but he never called me after that. Thinking maybe he was sick, I called him. He sounded rather cool and distant, and said he had been busy with his work and would call me soon.

Well, it's been a month, and he hasn't called. I really care for him, Abby, and I'm afraid my virginity has scared him off. Perhaps he thinks I'm abnormal to be a virgin at 27. Now, instead of being proud of myself, I feel like an overlooked wallflower.

I'm considering going to a gynecologist and asking him to surgically deflower me. Do you think he would do it? —CAROLINA VIRGIN

DEAR VIRGIN: Probably, but since a virgin is someone who has never experienced sexual relations, it wouldn't alter your status as a virgin.

The advice from here is to stay as you are and be proud of it. And if you "scared him off" for that reason, you haven't lost much.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding what to say when confronted with a baby or a picture of one who is obviously very homely, yet whose parent clearly expects a compliment:

A doctor friend once told me that when he delivers a homely or—might as well say it—very ugly baby, and the parent(s) look at him expectantly for some kind of word of praise, he simply grins broadly and says, "Now, there's a REAL boy (or girl)!"

Obviously, it's not a crocodile or platypus, so the doctor hasn't been dishonest and the parents are satisfied.—TOM

DEAR TOM: Beautiful. But occasionally the doctor is mistaken.

DEAR ABBY: Every time I say, "I love you" to my girlfriend, she says, "Thank you." She never tells me that she loves ME, and that is what I want to hear.

Any suggestions?—ME IN BURLINGTON

DEAR ME: When she says, "Thank you," say, "You're welcome. Now how do you feel about ME?"

Affirmative action about human rights

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

By an informal survey of people I meet, I've come up with the following information regarding affirmative action: 30 per cent love it; 30 per cent hate it; 30 per cent don't know what it is; the other 10 per cent said that exactly what this country needs is a third political party, and therefore we should all support affirmative action.

The last 10 per cent were so enthusiastic about their opinion that I hesitated to mention (in fact I didn't) that affirmative action is a philosophy by which the employer takes the responsibility to end discrimination in hiring, training and promoting women and minority race people.

It's turned out to be one of those philosophies that everyone likes until they discover that they themselves will have to participate.

Beginning with the government itself, the concept has experienced ups and downs. The executive branch has been accused of not enforcing the order which bans discrimination by federal contractors. Thirty per cent of the contractors sampled by the congressional audit agency had been awarded contracts without prior determination of compliance.

On the other hand, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has been so diligent in pursuing equal opportunity goals that some colleges have refused federal funds rather than cooperate. They feel that a professor should be employed on strictly individual characteristics regardless of race, religion or sex.

College presidents are as difficult to argue with as the engineering supervisor of a government contract I once knew who became upset when he heard a woman was interviewing for a position in his department. First he tried to get out of it, but when he found he had to at least talk to her, he worriedly asked his colleagues for advice. Had they ever interviewed a woman engineer? What reason had they given for not hiring her?

He did finally conduct the interview and found that her experience in engineering was somewhat less golden than that of the fellows he'd been interviewing, so he was justified in hiring a male applicant. One can only wonder how the woman will ever catch up with her male counterparts, under the circumstances.

The mayor of Atlanta, Maynard Jackson Jr., feels that it takes a strong administrator to see that minority workers are able to garner some of that valuable experience. Any white-owned business winning an Atlanta city contract must employ 15 to 25 per cent blacks — as joint venture partners or subcontractors. His purpose is to give "black-owned firms experience" and to show that their previous experience had always excluded them," says Business Week magazine.

Obviously, there are many who object to his philosophy, especially since it will delay the completion of Atlanta's airport about one year. But Jackson is holding firm. "No project," he says, "is too big to involve human rights."

President's daughter models for magazine

By JACQUELINE TRE SCOTT
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Susan Ford, the 18-year-old daughter of President Ford, has been hired by Family Circle Magazine as a model for their June issue.

Spending the last two days on location in Palm Beach, Fla., she received $800, the standard modeling fee of $400 a day, plus transportation. She wore a variety of outdoor and leisure-style fashions that the eight million plus readers of Family Circle, the world's largest circulating women's magazine, will be able to make.

In the past, members of the First Family have not been paid when they have modeled for magazines. Susan's mother, Betty Ford, appears on the March cover of Good Housekeeping and describes inside how she stretches her wardrobe by the use of accessories. Mrs. Ford, who was once a professional model, did not receive a fee.

In January 1974, Susan Ford modeled ski clothes for Ladies Home Journal and didn't get paid. Ladies Home Journal has used both Patricia Nixon and her daughter, Nixon and her daughter, Tricia Nixon Cox, on their covers. Mrs. Nixon did not receive a fee. A donation in Tricia Cox's name was given to the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York City.

It has not yet been decided if Miss Ford will appear on the Family Circle cover. "I have to see the photographs first," Arthur Hettich, the magazine editor, said. Hettich said Miss Ford was chosen because "she has a marvelous, outdoor look, not only because she's a well-known girl," in the past, Family Circle has done articles with Mrs. Ford and Julia Nixon Eisenhower but they were not modeling assignments.

Susan Ford, who will rejoin her freshman class at Mt. Vernon College next week, has worked as a photographer and has expressed an interest in modeling.

Because the magazine approached Miss Ford on a "professional basis," said Sheila Weidenfeld, Mrs. Ford's press secretary, "there wasn't a question about the fee. The circumstances were different than in the past because Susan would be going on location."

HELOISE

Dear Heloise:

My hint is for those who like to sew.

Lately, I've noticed many cutting tables in fabric stores have grooves to guide the scissors to cut a straight line.

I discovered a good substitute at home for this the other day while trying to cut a bias strip from some material.

I used the slight groove between where a leaf is added to my kitchen table.

If the groove isn't quite large enough for the bottom edge of your scissors to fit, simply separate the table from its leaf a bit.

Cindy Coy

Your're a clever cutie, Cindy (and I do like to sew).

Wouldn't this be fantastic when cutting any strips of material where a straight edge is needed?

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

My hint for us shorties was discovered by accident.

I always have had problems trying to see just what cans were stored on the above-eye-level shelf in my kitchen.

One day, one of the cans fell upside down and I could read the label and see what it was.

Happy day!

Now the cans are stored upside down. I can see the wording and the PICTURE and don't have to use a step-ladder.

So simple—but such a help to this shortie.

Shirley

Dear Heloise:

One of your readers recently wrote that she found the messy job of cutting up dates made easier by wetting the knife. I have found an easier way yet is to cut up the dates with a pair of scissors which have been dipped in water first too.

The job can be zipped through in nothing flat.

Psychiatrist: Hearst 'shattered' by long ordeal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— Patricia Hearst was a confused young woman with "a variety of behaviors" and virtually no identity of her own in the weeks after her arrest, says a court-appointed psychiatrist.

Dr. L. J. West, a professor of psychiatry and an expert on prisoner of war torture, spent the entire day Tuesday on the witness stand at Miss Hearst's trial for bank robbery.

Asst. U.S. Atty. David Bancroft, who repeatedly questioned West's interpretations of Miss Hearst's mental state, planned to continue his cross-examination today.

During direct questioning by defense counsel F. Lee Bailey, West portrayed Miss Hearst as a "shattered" survivor of a 19-month ordeal in the terrorist underground.

West said Tuesday that Miss Hearst, who had been given the name "Tania" by her Symbionese Liberation Army captors after she proclaimed her allegiance to the terrorist band and took part in the bank robbery, became "Pearl" for much of her time in the underground.

Miss Hearst testified earlier that SLA member Emily Harris gave her the name "Pearl" after the May 17, 1974, shootout in which six SLA members died in Los Angeles.

West said the heiress had made a "remarkable improvement" in her condition in the past few months but still showed signs of anxiety and the fear for her life that characterized much of her own testimony.

West was one of three psychiatrists appointed by U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter last fall to help determine whether Miss Hearst was competent to stand trial. He spent a total of 23 hours examining the 22-year-old defendant and was called as a witness for the defense.

The other two experts who examined her on behalf of the court have not testified at the trial.

Bancroft attempted Tuesday to discredit West's sympathetic picture of Miss Hearst and elicited the fact the psychiatrist had written the Hearst family months before he ever met the defendant.

West defended his letter to Randolph and Catherine Hearst as "one parent to another," written sometime while Miss Hearst was sought as a fugitive.

"I think I expressed some sympathy and told them they should not despair of their daughter's condition because if she were ever returned to them alive she might be in a condition to be helped and possibly defended," he said.

West and the judge confirmed that the court was aware of the letter prior to West's appointment by Carter to the case.

The prosecution contends Miss Hearst willingly joined her SLA kidnapers, helped them rob a bank and remained with them on her own volition until her capture last Sept. 18.

Miss Hearst contends she cooperated with her kidnapers and desperately wanted them to believe she had joined their terrorist ranks because she felt it was her only means of survival. Any sign of betrayal or lack of commitment, she said, would mean death.

West said she "lived for the moment as a sort of psychological armor" to blot out the pain of being a hostage of the SLA and a fugitive of the law.

The defendant has testified that she was raped by now dead SLA members Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze and William Wolfe twice in the weeks after her Feb. 4, 1974, kidnapping.

She has described surviving SLA member William Harris as a brute who blackened her eye at least four times and who, along with his wife, Emily, kept her in fear after six SLA members died in a shootout in May 1974. The Harrises are now in jail.

During another part of his cross-examination, Bancroft made a point of mentioning that West is a professor at the University of California at Los Angeles and that the defendant's mother is a UC regent. He also asked why the witness had had dinner with the Hearsts and West said it was "necessary to interview the parents to gather information on Miss Hearst's background."

Earlier Tuesday, West had said Miss Hearst initially could not recall some details of the bank robbery for which she is on trial. "It was like a dream," he quoted her as saying. She did not remember two bystanders who were shot in the holdup even though she had to step over their bodies to leave the bank.

"Patricia Hearst, improved as she is, still trembles at mention of the SLA," he said. West examined her less than 10 days ago and said she told him, "My biggest worry right now is staying alive."

Miss Hearst has testified that her renunciation of her role as "Tania" in the underground has upset some radicals who view her as a traitor and want to kill her.

Senate debating DST options

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Senate is debating whether Daylight Saving Time should be extended to eight months, as it was last year, or whether it should run for six months or less.

Unless Congress acts, the country automatically goes back on six months of standard time and six months of DST. This means Daylight Saving now is set to run from April 25 to Oct. 31.

If Daylight Saving is extended to eight months under a bill before the Senate, it would run from March 7 to Nov. 14.

The eight-month option — plus an additional week in November to avoid changing times in the last week of the presidential election campaign — is thought to have the edge in the Senate. But similar legislation is bottled up in the House Commerce Committee, leading some observers to doubt whether any bill can pass Congress this year.

Congress began experimenting with longer Daylight Saving Time periods as an energy-saving effort during the Arab oil boycott of 1973. The experiment started by extending DST through the entire year. For the next two years it ran for eight months.

Wendell Ford, D-Ky., both called for the defeat of any extension of Daylight Saving Time that would include the winter months. Ford has proposed cutting it back to five months.

"Its particular fault lies in the fact that it ignores the concern of many more people, particularly parents, who are fearful of putting their children on a street or a country road in rain, sleet or snow in the dark of morning to wait transportation to school," Talmadge said.

"To claim that the extension of Daylight Saving Time will conserve fuel and energy is to indulge in fantasy," he said. "People getting up to go about their business while it is still dark have to turn on the lights

When it is cold they have to turn up the heat. That doesn't save energy. It costs energy."

Ford sounded the traditional refrain of opponents of DST that it is an inconvenience to farmers.

The Senate Commerce Committee, which approved the legislation, said it is relying on a Transportation Department report that says there are small but significant energy savings of about 1 percent involved in extending DST to March and April.

In addition, the department reported that in the period when March and April were covered by DST about 50 lives were saved and 2,000 injuries prevented from auto accidents.

2 children die in fire

HOUSTON (AP)— Two small children died and a third was critically injured Tuesday night when a fire swept through their home.

Dead is Brenda Dancy, 3, and Michael Todd Kearney, 6 months. Charles Dancy, 4, was listed in poor condition at a hospital with second degree burns over 50 percent of his body.

Authorities said the parents of the children were at a house next door when the fire broke out.

Officers quoted Jimmy Lee Kearney, father of the children, as saying he dashed through the front door and pulled Charles from the living room but fire and smoke forced him back from the bedroom where the other two children were in bed.

Arson inspectors said the fire is believed to have started when one of the children set a broom on fire with matches and the flames spread to the wallpaper.

Prevent grass fires

Grass fires, fanned and spread by the high winds of this particular season of the year, are much more hazardous and expensive in West Texas than many persons realize.

The grass on vacant lots in the city and on rangelands throughout this section of the state is tall and powder dry at this particular time. It is a constant fire hazard ... and it will remain as such until a good rain soaks the region.

It takes only a spark to start a blaze, and one little grass fire in town or adjacent ranch country can get out of hand quickly, spreading rapidly and consuming any and everything in its path.

The costly blaze which did so much damage at a Midland lumber yard early last week is an excellent example of the case in point. A grass fire is blamed for the conflagration.

And the multi-million dollar fire which swept a vast section of Big Spring last Friday is another example of the devastation which can result from a raging grass fire.

The winds last Friday and Saturday were unusually high, and there simply is no way of stopping a grass fire whipped along by such a breeze. Buildings, bales of cotton, grass, equipment and most anything else, including humans and animals, don't stand a chance when caught in the path of a roaring, wind-swept prairie fire.

The Big Spring fire jumped one or more broad, well-traveled highways, as well as other obstacles usually capable of turning or stopping a grass fire.

Numerous other fires have been reported on ranches in the Midland area. These fires particularly are costly to ranchers in that they destroy valuable livestock feed.

Every person in town and country should be interested in doing everything possible to prevent fires, particularly at this season. And we think that they are.

Yet, 13 grass fires were reported to the Midland Fire Department last Sunday alone, according to Chief Melvin Little. This prompted the comment in the opening sentence that many persons perhaps do not realize the seriousness of the situation.

Let's not give grass fires a chance to get started in the first place!

Pampered Congress

Sen. Barry Goldwater wasn't defending the military exactly — he was scolding his colleagues "in this glass house on the Hill."

The Arizona Republican was spurred, however, by contemplated cutbacks of military benefits to make his speech earlier this month detailing the "blatant privileges" of Congress.

Not forgetting "the tacky example" of the congressional cost-of-living raise last year, Goldwater detailed the exhaustive list of taxpayer-supported goodies available to senators and representatives.

Among the "side benefits," the senator said, are free haircuts and free towels, free picture-framing, free potted plants from the Botanic Garden, free medical examinations and free prescriptions, free law books and free trunks to store them in, free rooms for parties and dinners and free help to serve them.

In addition, Goldwater said, members of Congress enjoy treatment at two of the world's finest hospitals at cut rates, look forward to generous pensions, participate frequently in world junkets and work short hours.

"Summed up," he concluded, "we take pretty good care of ourselves and congressional press releases don't indicate any of us are upset about it."

As the senator insisted, abuses in the military services should be exposed and corrected, but those critics who worry so noisily about the military commissaries should apply the same standards to their own role in government.

INSIDE REPORT:

Alliance of political strangers formed in Florida

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — An alliance of political strangers is insensibly forming in Florida, not for the national Democratic party's decade-old purpose of stopping George Wallace but for a new and more pressing cause: slowing the amazing momentum being built up by Jimmy Carter's quest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

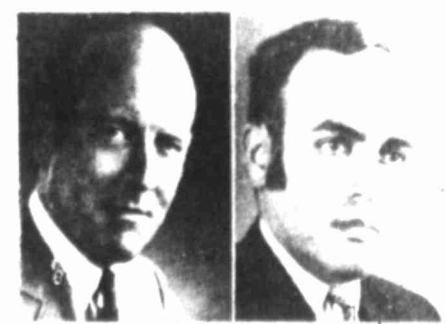

There is more that links the strange anti-Carter bedfellows than mere concern over his momentum. Two principals in the shadowy anti-Carter alliance — Wallace himself and anti-Wallace Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida — have old scores to settle with the tough little former governor of Georgia.

A third principal, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, worries about Carter for a more practical reason: if Carter follows a possible win in New Hampshire by edging out Wallace or even running a tight second in Florida, Jackson — and the rest of the Democratic pack — may be hard put ever to catch him.

Accordingly, Democrats worried about the Carter phenomenon feel he must be stopped in Florida.

But Jackson cannot stop Carter. Not even trying for a statewide total contesting Wallace and Carter, Jackson is seeking a mere 15 per cent in a dozen or so congressional districts to guarantee himself one delegate in each of those districts.

The role of Carter-stopper, therefore, falls by necessity to George Wallace, an old symbol of racism deny national Democrats dare speak well of.

Ironically, Carter originally was supported by some liberals as the best candidate to stop Wallace in Florida. Now, many Democratic politicians consider Carter, not Wallace, the more serious threat. That is why Wallace has some unusual Democrats silently rooting him on in Florida.

It is not necessary to endorse Wallace to help him here. The highly respected Gov. Askew, perhaps the most popular Democrat in Florida history and the antithesis of Wallaceism, passes the word on every occasion that he will vote "no preference" March 9 — a vote for uncommitted delegates.

Askew's influence within the party here is such that he probably could turn thousands of voters out for Carter and away from Wallace — if he wanted to.

But that's not what Askew wants. It was Carter — then Gov. Carter — who tried in vain to block Askew's election as chairman of the Southern governors in 1974 after promising to support him. Askew has not forgotten.

Although Askew's advisers deny

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Nixon altered White House tapes

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — One question mark has continued to hang over the Watergate scandal: who doctored the White House transcripts? We have now established that the culprit was none other than Richard Nixon himself.

On April 29, 1974, Nixon made a dramatic TV appearance to announce he would release the transcripts. This was intended to head off the growing demands for access to his controversial White House tapes.

The House Judiciary Committee, however, obtained the tapes and compared them to the Nixon transcripts. Counsel John Doar found the transcripts "not accurate."

Mysterious gaps appeared in the transcripts where there were none on the tapes. Strange distortions put words in Nixon's mouth that couldn't be heard on the tapes. And passages, which were deleted from the transcripts as "unintelligible," turned out to be perfectly clear on the tapes.

The ex-President's loyal, professional attorney, Fred Buzhardt, was widely blamed for the misrepresentations. But sources with direct knowledge of what happened have told us that Nixon personally altered the incriminating transcripts.

After White House stenographers finished transcribing the tapes, Buzhardt carefully listened to many of them through headphones. He did his best to correct the mistakes of the stenographers and to make the transcripts as accurate as possible.

Some of the passages were damaging to his eminent client, so he discussed the most disastrous parts with the President. Listening in dismay, Nixon kept mumbling, "It didn't happen like that," and other similar comments.

Then, to Buzhardt's absolute amazement, the President excised material to make the transcripts conform to his own version of what happened. He disregarded the clear evidence of the tapes and Buzhardt's own scrupulous inspection.

As Nixon edited the damaging passages, he dismissed some of the changes and deletions with the cryptic explanation, "It was unrelated to presidential action."

The tension of representing a man he knew to be dishonest helped to break Buzhardt's health. On June 13, 1974, after working all night to meet a federal court request for documents, he collapsed with a serious heart attack.

Now he is practicing law in Hilton Head, S.C. Citing his client-attorney relationship, he told us, "I'd like to comment on it, but I can't." Nixon has never returned our calls since he left the White House. This time he couldn't be reached for comment because he was traveling in China.

SINAI SENSORS The United States is quietly preparing to relocate the sensors which American technicians have planted in the Sinai desert.

A CHANGING WORLD: Tom Bradley's star said 'fading fast'

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Editor, Copley News Service

Tom Bradley, mayor of Los Angeles and the Great Black Hope of blacks and whites alike, is having his difficulties. This is unfortunate because when he was elected to the top post in the nation's third largest city he seemed on the way to big things.

Along with Massachusetts Sen. Edward Brooke and Associate Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, Bradley's achievement in knocking off Mayor Sam Yorty made him one of the most admired blacks — and one possibly headed for the vice presidency of the United States.

All that has changed, however, since his 1973 election. There are those who say his rapid descent as a national figure with great potential is much his own fault, due to his failure to realize the nature of his Los Angeles job vis-a-vis the L.A. City Council that he must tussle with on a daily basis.

Events, too, have hurt him and some of these events have been beyond his capacity to control. Others have found him boxed in when certain signs should have warned him of pitfalls ahead.

He retains considerable popularity with Southern California television viewers as he shows up at ceremonial affairs or appears on numerous "Meet the Press" type regional shows. He exudes a "good guy" image, the image of a man interested in his fellow citizen, black or white.

The fact that he has not attempted radical steps that some white voters feared has helped him with a broad segment of the public.

But, two futile efforts have hurt him nationally:

1. He tried, and failed, to win the 1976 Democratic National Convention for Los Angeles. He started with an offer of $500,000 if the Democrats would come to L.A., eventually raised the ante to $1.7 million. However, the convention went to New York City on the clever maneuvering of that city's Mayor Abe Beame. With that decision, the Democrats stopped talking about Bradley as a possible vice presidential candidate.

2. He tried, and failed, to get the 1980 Olympic Games for Los Angeles. He was the visible leader in this futile effort in Vienna. He got a polite hearing then watched as the Olympics committee calmly awarded the games to Moscow.

At home, on more local issues, perhaps he should have been forewarned of troubles ahead.

He had spent 10 years on the L.A. City Council before election as mayor. During that time, he must have recalled, Yorty had encountered constant difficulties because he would not recognize that the 15-member council is "the governing body of the city" with the mayor's job relegated to "careful supervision" over municipal affairs.

Yorty took on the council — and lost, his prestige and power suffering substantial deterioration after six years of struggling. Bradley, unfortunately, did not learn the Yorty lesson and in only two and a half years he has reached the low point with the council that Yorty found after six years.

Bradley has had trouble with his pre-election promise to give the city the start of a mass transit system within 18 months.

Thirty months later the city is little closer to that goal than it was when he raised his right hand to take the oath of office in July 1973.

He has had other troubles in his job, as well. He has had to revitalize downtown Los Angeles and this project is bound to be a long, hard one. He has had to deal with the housing of two million people in an offshore oil exploration, and suffered a sharp setback when he again forgot to consult sufficiently with the "governing body." And he has had troubles with his own advisers, political and otherwise. These troubles have reflected adversely on his leadership.

Despite all these difficulties, one gets the impression that Bradley is a man who is vitally interested — and unselfish — in doing a good job for his city. This makes it all the more unfortunate that national office and local achievement seem to have passed him by.

City Council postpones zone change request

By DEBBIE PIERCE

Midland City Council members tried everything in the book Tuesday to settle a zone change request for a drive-in restaurant at 2100 W. Wall St., but ended up postponing action on the matter until their next session.

The request was for a change from local retail to another classification of local retail to allow construction of a Sonic Drive-In on the three lots in question.

Gary Gerard, Oklahoma City attorney representing Ralph Mason, said over 365 Sonics are now operating in the U.S. Sonic management believes in local ownership and local control, would hire 40-50 employees and is expected to gross between $250,000 and $350,000 annually, he said.

When the issue came before the city Planning and Zoning Commission, its proponents received notification the group would recommend council deny the request due to the probable traffic hazard the drive-in would create. Some 20 persons appeared at that session to voice their opposition to the request.

Film slated on Israel

A film dealing with present-day headlines from the Middle East, "The Coming Invasion of Israel," will have screening tonight at Alamo Heights Baptist Church, 1305 N. Midland Drive at 7 p.m.

The film, using the Bible as its authority, reviews God's plan for Israel as that nation faces grave crises in the future.

Gerard told the council that any business placed on the three lots would create additional traffic in the area. He said the current zoning of the area would allow a sit-down restaurant, "even one with a drive-in window."

Jim Allison Jr., owner of one of the lots in question, said the property had been vacant a number of years and he had hopes of selling to a business which would be productive and pay taxes to the city.

LaDoyce Lambert, trust officer at First National Bank in Midland, said the bank holds trust in one of the lots and that, though the property owners had tried for some eight years to sell the land, Sonic had presented the first viable offer.

Dr. Norman Fry, who has a business office in that area, said the drive-in would worsen traffic conditions and decrease the value of neighboring property. Dr. Jack Young added that the drive-in would present a great trash problem.

Gerard assured the group that trash would be picked up, patrons would not be allowed to leave their cars while at the restaurant and even if an office building were located there, cars would still be turning off from Wall Street and obstructing some traffic.

Councilman Martin Neil proposed accepting the request, with the condition that a screening fence and landscaping be added and that the entrance and exit be off N Street. The motion died for lack of a second.

Councilman Carroll Thomas then proposed denial of the request, a motion which also died.

Councilman Charles Tighe said he would disqualify himself, thereby leaving the group without a quorum (two members were absent) and unable to take action.

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. suggested council defer action, until their next session to enable Councilmen Mark Martin and Frank Cahoon, the absent members, to hear testimony before action was taken. That suggestion was approved, with Councilman Tighe abstaining.

In other action, the council: — Agreed to notify Area Rent-A-Car their rental agreement for a service station site at Air Terminal was up and they should vacate immediately.

— Approved a request by the Bicentennial Commission to close off streets around the courthouse July 3-4.

— Approved the study and its payment of $4,500 to Freese, Nichols and Esmond for the swimming pool study.

— Approved executing a contract with Freese, Nichols and Esmond to prepare plans for the renovation and repair of Half swimming pool.

— Approved the request by the Midland Boys' Club for additional property to expand their building.

— Approved the request by the Girl Scouts for use of Wadley-Barron Park March 12 and for use of Elkin Park June 7-11.

— Approved a request by Andres Covarrubias to sell snow cones in Hogan Park on Sundays.

— Approved the request by 1 Ministerial Association to use Wadley-Barron Park July 4 for a Bicentennial service.

— Approved a zone change request by Frederick Haltom to allow construction of a plumbing shop at 211 W

Carter St.

— Recessed until their next session a zone change request by Louie C. Koonce from temporary single-family to local retail on Midkiff Street north of FM 868, as no one was present on the request.

— Approved the request by Landmark Properties to remove 7.12 acres at the intersection of Tarleton and Wadley Streets from the fire district and repeal the restrictive agreement.

— Approved a request by Pierce, Pace & Associates to remove 4.35 acres at Pecos and Scharbauer Drive from the fire district.

— Approved on second reading a request by McDonald Construction Co. for a zone change to construct a medical clinic at 201 W. Cottonwood.

— Approved on second reading a zone change request by G. A. Veloz to relocate his business at 1501 N. Big Spring St. and for on-premise consumption of alcoholic beverages.

— Approved the refund of over- and double-payment of taxes.

— Postponed until their next session appointments to the Board of Equalization to allow further study.

— Approved 66 feet for a passenger loading zone at the new Hilton Hotel.

— Approved an ordinance to repeal another ordinance which granted exclusive use of portions of Texas and Colorado Streets to the owners of the Shell Building.

— Approved the 1976 Urban Transportation System map of the city.

— Approved the request for a refund of an oversized water line in the Skyline Terrace Addition.

— Approved authorizing execution of a maintenance agreement with the Texas Pacific Railway Co. and the Highway Department for the grade crossing at Midkiff Street.

— Approved on second reading an ordinance clarifying action with regards to secondhand dealers in the city.

Space shuttle crews selected

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Space officials announced the selection Tuesday of four astronauts who will fly the critical approach and landing tests for the space shuttle, a reusable spacecraft now under development.

Fred W. Haise 42, a veteran of the Apollo 13 moon mission that narrowly escaped disaster, will command the first free flight test of the airplane-like shuttle craft. His crewmate will be Charles G. Fullerton, 39, an astronaut who has never flown in space.

A second crew of approach and landing test astronauts were also named. They are Joe Engle, 43, the commander, and Richard Truly, 39, who will act as pilot.

BRIDGE Spotting danger best first step

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It's easier to play well on a piece of paper than at the bridge table. For example, you'll see the danger in today's hand, and you'll spot the right play. Good for you. But would you see them if you held the South hand at the bridge table?

no trouble finding the shift to the deuce of hearts. South put in the ten, and West won with the jack. West returned his low heart to the ace, and back came another heart. The defenders thus took a diamond and four hearts, defeating the contract.

South should have seen that his contract was in danger. He is safe if West starts the hearts, but not if East does.

SAFE PLAY
Try the safe line of play. Win the first club with dummy's ace and lead dummy's ten of diamonds for a finesse. Since it happens to win, you collect five diamonds and a total of ten tricks.

But imagine that West is able to win the first diamond. He returns a low heart to the ace. A heart comes through you, and West beats anything you play. What next? How can the defenders get more than three heart tricks?

Add Q-10-8-x to your little list of combinations that are safe only if led to by the opponent at your left.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S-K 8 2, H-6 4, D-AK 10 9 2, C-A 5. What do you say?

ANSWER— Bid two diamonds. You have time to bid no trump later. Show your suit first. There may be a slam at diamonds, but you will never find out if nobody every bids the suit.

Robbery nets little

KERRY Ore (AP) — A clean but immodest armed robber got nothing but a few food stamps and some canceled checks when he held up store owner Kenneth Helliwell at his home here.

Helliwell told Josephine County sheriff's deputies he had just returned to his home after closing the Kerby Market when a naked man wearing a pillow case over his head and an electric cord around his neck stepped from his bathroom.

The man, who had just used Helliwell's shower, pointed a pistol and ordered Helliwell to give him the money bag he was carrying.

The robber looked in the bag, which contained no money, and pulled out a few food stamps and checks. Then he fled — after returning to the bathroom to dry off.

Elevator blast toll reaches 9

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities said today they believe they have recovered the bodies of all the persons who died in an explosion at a Houston Ship Channel grain elevator.

The eighth and ninth bodies were found Tuesday beneath the rubble of the Goodpasture Inc. grain elevator that was practically demolished Sunday by an explosion.

Six bodies had been recovered earlier and a seventh victim died in a hospital.

The two bodies recovered Tuesday were those of Robert Black, 32, a Goodpasture employe, and Roberto de la Rosa, 30, a grain inspection laboratory worker.

De la Rosa's body was in a chair in a corner of the control room for the elevator. Black's body was found crushed by a slab of concrete.

De la Rosa's pregnant wife ended a 36-hour vigil she had kept by the gate leading back to the elevator when she went into labor Tuesday afternoon.

"We have no reason to look for anyone else," said I. J. Saccamanno, an attorney for Goodpasture.

Diplomats detect signs of rift in Czech regime

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — As the Czechoslovak Communist party congress approaches, Western diplomats here say they detect signs of a split within the Prague regime over how to rid the nation of the lingering trauma of 1968.

The party — or at least a faction thereof — has floated what diplomats here regard as a "trial balloon" of reconciliation with the purged members of Alexander Dubcek's 1968 "Prague Spring." However, this was quickly followed by a stiff warning from ultraconservatives that Dubcek's former followers still posed a menace.

"It is a very divided leadership," according to one diplomatic source. "The issues left over from 1968 are the most neuralgic point."

Those in and out of favor are not counting on an ideological truce at the 15th party congress which convenes in April — two months after the pace-setting Soviet congress which opened in Moscow on Tuesday.

It will be Czechoslovakia's second "legal" congress since the Soviet-led invasion in August 1968, put an end to Dubcek's "socialism with a human face." A post-invasion congress of Dubcek supporters later was declared null and void.

Now, the hardliners in the party — notably Vasil Bilak — still regard the germ of Dubcek liberalism to be so virulent that the least relaxation of its quarantine will cause a new epidemic.

Bilak, who is responsible for ties with foreign Communist parties, has been insisting that any move toward liberalization was "entirely unacceptable and politically very harmful."

There is speculation that President Gustav Husak, who also is the party leader and regarded as a middle-of-the-roader, would like to increase industrial efficiency and overcome political apathy by granting absolute to purged plant managers as a first step toward general rehabilitation.

Husak, himself, was jailed during Stalinist purges and later rehabilitated to become a prominent figure in the "Prague Spring." After the invasion, he threw his support to the Kremlin and became Dubcek's successor.

The nearly 500,000 Czechoslovak party members purged after the 1968 invasion remain outcasts. Few have recanted.

"Why should I?" said a former high-ranking technocrat, who now holds a menial job. "I've done nothing wrong."

A Communist for more than 20 years, he says he foresees no chance of regaining his party card without an unexpected, drastic shift in political policy. His former post is filled by a more orthodox Communist who could not be expected to yield it graciously.

The political spoils system and not ideology, sources here say, is the chief barrier to an internal truce. In their estimation, opportunists have taken advantage of the purges to "make a career for themselves."

Number of marriageable males now growing

By ANN BLACKMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're a preteen-age girl who hopes to marry a man some day, take heart. By the time you're of marrying age, there will be more eligible young men than young women.

That's just the opposite of the present situation in which there are 100 women of marrying age for every 96 men, giving the males an opportunity to be more choosy.

And it means that, barring a major war or dramatic change in marriage partners, young women who reach marrying age by the mid-1980s will have a greater selection of mates than young men will.

Paul Glick, senior demographer in the Census Bureau population division, explains the situation like this:

In 1970 there were 93 men aged 20 to 26 for every 100 females age 18 to 24. In 1980 there will be 98 men for every 100 females in the same age groups. And by 1985 there will be 104 men for every 100 females.

Population experts base their judgments on the fact that in America it's now traditional for young women to marry men two or three years older than they are. Government figures show that the median marriage age for women is 21.1 years, and it's 23.1 years for men.

Also, the experts say that there are generally 5 per cent more male babies born than females, but the mortality rate for male babies is higher than for females, and by marrying age, the ratio is almost even.

During the post-World War II baby boom, there were more babies born than at any time in American history, and the number of births continued to increase until 1961.

That meant that by the mid-1960s, there were more women aged 18 to 24 entering the marriage market than men two or three years older who had been born during the war. By 1965 there were 91 men of marrying age for every 100 females.

The biggest baby boom years were between 1957 and 1961 when there were 4.3 million babies born annually. They are now between the ages of 15 and 19, and the young women will soon be entering the years when they are most likely to marry.

There's a good chance that a 19-year-old woman who was born in 1957 will be looking for a mate born several years before her. In 1953, for example, there were about 400,000 fewer babies born than in 1957. That means that there are presently fewer 23-year-old men than there are 19-year-old women.

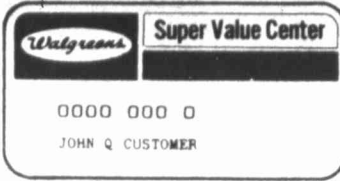

In 1961, the number of births began to fall, and it continued to do so until about 1968 when the number rose slightly for a few years, then dropped off again.

As a result, when young women born between 1962 and 1965 reach their early 20s — in the mid 1980s — chances are they will be looking for marriage partners several years older than they are.

And census studies show that by 1985, there will be 26 men of marrying age for every 25 women.

Typewriter reported stolen

A typewriter, valued at $700, was reported stolen from Applied Mechanics Co., 2045 S. Holiday Hill Rd., after noon Tuesday, sheriff's deputy said.

The secretary had been ill and had not come to work. Bruce McKague told deputy Tom McGinnis. When he walked into the reception area to go to lunch, McKague noticed the electric typewriter wasn't there.

He told McGinnis that he hadn't heard anyone entering the office.

Missionaries show slides

Mr. and Mrs. Wally Schmidt, former missionaries to Korea, gave a slide presentation on Korea and Japan at the Tuesday meeting of the Evening Lions Club.

The couple's recent trip, from August to December last year, was directed by the Foreign Missionary Board of the Southern Baptist Commission.

Firemen were busy

The City of Midland Fire Department last month stepped up its activity from January a year ago, with firemen making 169 runs compared to 115 for January, 1975.

The city progress report said the fire department had a total of 359 man hours at the 142 fires last month, compared to 187 man hours at 93 fires during January a year ago.

A total of $45,433 in insurance losses were reported last month, a substantial increase over the $3,423 reported in January, 1975.

Last month the city fire department also made 41 runs in the county, compared to 15 from January a year ago. Forty fires with 168 man hours at them occurred last month, compared to the 13 fires and 98 man hours for January, 1975.

Baptist-sponsored rally to feature Paul Harvey

Paul Harvey, nationally-known news commentator and radio personality, will be a Midland visitor May 11 when he comes to speak at a "God and Country" rally sponsored by Midland Baptist Association.

The association is composed of a dozen and a half Southern Baptist churches in the city and county.

Joining Harvey in the rally in Memorial Stadium here will be the "Truth" Singers from Mobile, Ala. The rally will be open to the public without charge and, although sponsored by Midland Baptists, is described as "a community-wide rally, not just a Baptist meeting."

Announcement of Harvey's forthcoming visit was made this morning at a news conference. Conducting the event were the Rev. John Riggs of Wishire Park Baptist Church and the Rev. Bruce McNair of Alamo Heights Church.

They said they believed the rally to be "one of the most significant events of this Bicentennial year in Midland."

Nixon's visit outshines Ford

France-Press PEKING — The "private" visit here by former President Richard Nixon is becoming more glittering every day, overshadowing President Ford's recent official visit to Peking.

Since his arrival in the Chinese capital on Saturday evening, Nixon has been treated not only like a head of state but also as a "friend" of China, which was far from the case with President Ford when he visited last fall.

By Tuesday evening, Nixon had had in three days about eight hours of political talks, the same length of time that his

1975 safest travel year

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council says that — on a mile-for-mile basis — 1975 was the safest year for motor vehicle travel in American history.

The council says preliminary traffic safety statistics for the year show "the mileage death rate, dropped to 3.5 fatalities per 100 million vehicle miles traveled — the lowest mileage death rate recorded in the 52 years it has kept motor vehicle statistics."

In 1974 the mileage death rate was 3.6 fatalities per 100 million vehicle miles.

Crafts group gains grants

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Crafts Council says it has received grants from the Robert Sterling Clark Foundation and from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Donald I. Wyckoff, council president, says "the funds will be used to develop a prototype of a portable modular unit for exhibitions."

New day care regulations drawing complaints

By LYNNE WELLS

Unnecessary paperwork, hassles with getting children's immunizations and several seemingly contradictory regulations by the Department of Public Welfare have drawn complaints from several Midland mothers and day care center operators.

The DPW was authorized under the Child Care Act of 1975 to set up and enforce guidelines for different types of child care facilities. Sixty days of public hearings, which began last week in Austin, are presently being held so interested persons may suggest changes in the DPW regulations. A public hearing has been scheduled for March 8, in Odessa.

"We (the DPW) admit the paperwork is a problem so far, but we are looking for suggestions on how we might cut down," Pete Heinlein of the DPW district office in El Paso said. Enrollment, attendance and health records that must be kept are required by other state laws, Heinlein said. Regarding financial records, the DPW's guidelines have been changed to require keeping food receipts and invoices for only 30 days, and severe behavior problems and allergies are the only information required on child development records, he said. Heinlein added child development records are confidential.

"We wade through it constantly," replied one Midland child care center director when asked about the volume of paperwork.

Carolyn Wilson, director of the Covenant Presbyterian Church Day Care Center, said, "The paperwork was not a big problem for us." She said the only addition to the Center's files was a discipline paper the parents must sign. Mrs. Wilson said no parents "squabbled or questioned" about having to sign this form.

Another day care center director, Mrs. Brenda Helms of the Midland Student Child Care Center, said the paperwork required to obtain a state license is "time consuming," but keeping records on the children is not Operators of group day care homes, which provide day care for seven to 12 children in their own home, feel much of the paperwork is unnecessary, but they are not tied to their file cabinets.

Mrs. Sue Tripp, who is in the process of applying for a license for her group day care home in Midland County, said, "health records are good," and that she must keep tax records for income tax deductions.

Day care center operators commented that keeping immunization records up-to-date on each child is a constant chore. "It's hard to get a doctor appointment for a healthy child," said one director. Other problems are the expense involved and the child's mother missing time from work.

Another medical requirement is an emergency release form signed by the child's parents, in case they cannot be reached during an emergency. The parent must also give written permission each time the day care provider administers medicine to a child. All of the day care center and group day care home operators agreed this is for their own protection. One woman commented it is sometimes a hassle, because many children take antihistamines daily due to the climate in the area.

Most day care center operators interviewed said the rules were quite extensive but their facilities already meet most of the standards.

Clyde Beauchamp, director of the G&G Nursery, a group day care home in Odessa, said the regulations are necessary. Mrs. Mary Selby of Midland believes they are "not strict enough."

Mrs. Tripp feels the government is trying to control all day care centers. She said she cannot understand why the state "interferes" if mothers are pleased with the quality of day care their children receive. She is especially unhappy about the discipline provisions proposed by the DPW, because they are not practical. One Midland day care center director said the strict standards and the high cost of running a nursery may force her out of business.

The DPW guidelines set down specific rules for the education and training of the child care staff, operation of the facility, care of the children, the program of activity, food, rest and play requirements, and standards for the buildings and grounds, to name a few. Standards for day care centers, which may accept more than 12 children, are similar, but more strict, than those for group day care homes. The legal requirements outlined in the Child Care Act of 1975 also apply to day care centers and group day care homes.

Unlike registered family homes, day care facilities providing care for more than seven children must be licensed by the DPW. The license is good for two years, and the requirements are basically the same as those for registered family homes.

Some of the rules seem unreasonable to many observers. One regulation states a darkened room must be provided for naps during the day, but a light must be provided at night so a room is never in total darkness. Another proposed rule forbids cigarette smoking in a room with children, but many children's parents smoke at home. Heinlein said this rule was adopted because of medical findings that cigarette smoke is dangerous to young children's health.

The DPW proposals say 35 square feet of space should be allowed per child. "That's an awful lot of space," Mrs. Rita O'Riley, director of the Sunshine Nursery in Odessa said. She noted that most of the children tend to play together in one spot, regardless of the amount of space available.

Pete Heinlein said the DPW would most likely grant waivers on certain conditions where it was not "economically feasible" or easy for a day care director to comply with a standard, and where it would not pose a dangerous situation for the children.

Mrs. O'Riley said the parents of the children she cares for "seemed very unconcerned" about the proposals, but Mrs. Tripp said, "My mothers are very upset with the whole thing."

Most of the day care providers seem pleased with the work of the DPW licensing representatives in Midland. Mrs. O'Riley said at first she did not intend to go through the licensing procedure, but the DPW representative was very helpful. Other day care operators had praise for their representative, and felt they were qualified to do their work.

One woman said she did not feel her licensing representative was qualified, and that they should have actual child care experience. She also complained that DPW personnel on occasions have operations around to find out about her instead of contacting her directly and identifying themselves as DPW employees.

Johnny M. Adams, a licensing representative with the Midland office of the DPW, said, "I don't think we ever do anything really sneaky." He said the DPW checks newspaper classified advertisements to try and locate unlicensed day care providers, and contacts them to explain the requirements and give them an opportunity to get their license. Pete Heinlein said a DPW licensing representative caught using sneaky tactics to do his job would be dismissed.

Adams said he doesn't think the proposals will force child care rates to go up or increase the number of "underground babysitters" in Midland, as some opponents claim. Heinlein said he doubts the "underground" business could get very large because it is illegal for unlicensed facilities to advertise. Many working mothers, however, find out about babysitters through word of mouth, and Heinlein said, "we (the DPW) are more or less at a loss to police things like that."

A DPW licensing representative must be a college graduate, preferably with some background in sociology. They must complete a training course and attend in-service training every year. Heinlein said the licensing representatives are constantly reminded they are not policemen or detectives.

Stiffer child care laws came following two incidents in 1973. The first was the death of a "little girl" at Artesia Hall in Liberty, said Heinlein. She died after eating poison that had been left in an open place. Artesia Hall, a foster home, was closed after the child's death, and has never reopened.

Lester Roloff, a Corpus Christi minister, is the main reason laws regulating registered family homes were passed. In 1973, Roloff challenged existing regulations for child care facilities for fewer than six children, and the laws were declared unconstitutional because they were vague and unspecified. Heinlein said Roloff then divided his facilities into trailers, each housing six girls (he only had girls in his day care centers) to get around the law. Roloff had a qualified staff and provided quality care, Heinlein said. He still operates a group of day care centers in the Corpus Christi area.

The DPW was criticized for being too lax after the 1973 incidents, and now they are under fire for being too strict. Many people say the regulations are trying to take away the parents' authority, and that the state thinks it can do a better job of child care than parents and day care center operators can. The DPW maintains the laws were designed with the best interests of children in mind.

Yarn may carry anthrax

AUSTIN (AP) — Deadly anthrax germs might be contained in skeins or balls of yarn from two companies, state health authorities warned Tuesday.

The Texas Department of Health Resources issued explicit instructions to those who might have bought hand-spun yarn distributed by Creative Handweavers of Los Angeles and Tahki Imports, Ltd., of New York City.

Tahki's products are labeled with the company name but those from Creative Handweavers are unlabeled, the department said.

It said if yarn from either firm has been made from it should be sealed in airtight plastic bags. Then, the agency said, one should call the city or county health officer or public health regional medical director for guidance on disposing of the yarn.

"Consumers should not attempt to sterilize the yarn, incinerate it or throw it away because of the risk of further contamination. Articles contaminated with anthrax spores may remain infective for years," the department said.

The department said the contaminated yarn is sold in fourounce skeins or balls and may include camel hair, goat hair, sheep's wool and wool blends. The yarn is imported from Pakistan and may be sold in natural colors such as white, gray, tan or red or dyed into various colors.

Ambassador denies charges

CANBERRA — The newly-appointed United States Ambassador to Australia, James Ward Hargrove Tuesday rejected suggestions that the Central Intelligence Agency was involved in the dismissal of the Labor Government in Australia last November.

He said the allegations, made by some Labor members of Parliament were absurd. The allegations claim that the CIA move was inspired by reports that the Labor government was considering closing down a tracking station in Central Australia believed to be part of the United States early warning system against missile attack.

Some parolees getting Labor Department funds

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)—The government is giving away a small fortune in taxpayer dollars to ex-convicts to see if the money will keep them from returning to a life of crime.

Hundreds of former Texas prison inmates are being paroled and then regularly handed money in an experiment termed Transitional Aid Research Project for Ex-Offenders.

The Amarillo Sunday News Globe said the project involves 1,800 ex-convicts in Texas and expenditure of more than $500,000 from U.S. Department of Labor funds.

Aim of the program is to see whether a steady paycheck—regardless of whether a man is working—will keep him from resorting again to crime. Researcher Joe Reed of the Texas Department of Corrections (TDC) told the News Globe. "This is a project we are trying to keep low-key because it is experimental. We have nothing to hide, however."

A Texas Employment Commission memo states that convicts released during the four months beginning last Jan. 1 "will relocate to 31 counties in the state. The level of compensation they receive is dependent on their employment status. For example, they will be compensated only when unemployed, and they are encouraged to find employment. One group will be compensated on a sliding scale, continued partially even upon employment. The remainder will receive no compensation upon employment and they are required to seek jobs. This is a pure research project to determine if a level of compensation upon release from prison will divert the incidence of rearrest."

A similar experiment is being conducted in Georgia.

The experimental groups will be broken down this way, the News-Globe said:

—150 ex-convicts will receive $63 a week for 26 weeks

—125 will receive the same amount for 13 weeks

—125 will receive $63 a week for 13 weeks but, if employed, will receive the assistance on a sliding scale adjusted to their earned income.

—200 will receive special job placement assistance, not financial help.

—200 will be assigned to a project control group and receive a token $10 a week.

—1,000 will not be contacted directly but will be monitored through arrest reports from around the state.

Keep air intake valves open

The two major dangers of open flame gas heaters are the air intake valve becoming clogged and using all the oxygen in small, unventilated rooms, a spokesman for Pioneer Natural Gas Company said.

complete combustion is taking place, and the fumes can be deadly. The flame should be blue.

The air intake valve on these heaters, three to five inches from the floor, acts like a vacuum when the heater is on. The lint and dust picked up by this action will eventually clog the air intake valve, the spokesman said. When this occurs, pure gas with no air mixture is being burned, and strong carbon dioxide and carbon monoxide fumes will come off the heater, he continued.

A second danger comes from these unvented heaters using all the oxygen in small, unventilated rooms. It is safer to turn open flame heaters off, especially when persons are sleeping in a room, the gas company spokesman said. If a heater is left on, a window should be raised a few inches to bring fresh air from the outside into the room.

Open flame heaters were one of the first and most economical ways to heat homes, and are safe as long as the necessary precautions are taken, the spokesman said.

Continental boardings dip

Boardings at Midland Regional Air Terminal were down last month for Continental Air Lines and up for Texas International compared to figures from the same time last year, and statistics for the two fiscal years show the same results.

According to the city progress report, last month had 14,872 boardings for Continental, compared to 18,017 for January a year ago; TI had 3,123 boardings during the month and no boardings the same time last year due to the strike.

The fiscal year's figures show Continental had 64,133 boardings this fiscal year, down from the 67,176 for last fiscal year. TI had 12,116 boardings this fiscal year and 6,243 for last fiscal year.

Last month, $14,999 was taken in for parking lot revenues, compared to the $12,114 taken in during January, 1975.

In other progress for the department, new chairs were installed in the lobby at the Terminal building, a new ticket dispenser was installed at the entrance to the parking lot and new hangar construction has begun at Air Park. The contract for Terminal building improvements was awarded to Hudgins, Thompson, Ball & Associates.

Permit valuation soared in January

The city inspection department issued almost $1 million more in building permit valuations last month than during January a year ago, according to the city progress report.

The figure from last month was $2,333,300, while January, 1975's figure was $1,694,341.

Included in the permits issued last month were 45 for new residential, 11 for new commercial, and 60 for residential and commercial alterations and repairs. These figures compare to 40 new residential permits issued during January a year ago, nine new commercial and 48 for alterations and repairs.

The city issued 418 electrical permits last month compared to only 70 during January, 1975, a total of 431 plumbing permits were issued last month, compared to 238 issued during January, 1975.

The city made 1,473 inspections last month and removed 62 junker cars. These figures compare to the 1,152 inspections made in January a year ago and the 107 junker cars removed.

A break-down of the permits issued last month shows 36 issued for single-family residences at a value of $1,406,600; eight for duplexes at $375,000; two for warehouses at $50,000; one restaurant at $90,000; three commercial retail at $75,000; one shop at $6,500; one lounge at $93,000; one barbershop at $9,200; one storage building at $12,000, and one sign at $500.

There were 12 commercial alterations and repairs permits issued during the month of January, 1976, totaling $75,700 in value. Forty-eight residential alterations and repairs permits valued at $139,800 were issued, too.

Shelter use decreases

The number of dogs and cats sheltered at the SPCA shelter last month was considerably lower than the figure from January a year ago.

According to the city progress report, 344 dogs and 57 cats were housed last month at the shelter, compared to 422 dogs and 72 cats housed during January, 1975.

A total of 1,526 dogs and 423 cats have been sheltered this fiscal year at the SPCA shelter. The figures compare to 1,402 dogs and 372 cats housed last fiscal year.

Fees collected last month totaled $1,477 bringing the fiscal year's total to $4,900. At this time last year, the shelter had collected $774 in fees with a yearly total of $2,258.

Tax collections show decline

The City of Midland collected $716,737 last month in taxes, down from the $1,196,412 collected during January, 1975.

Figures for the fiscal year stand at $3,631,299, compared to last fiscal year's figure of $3,576,937. Percentages of collection were 87.10 per cent this past fiscal year, and 89.94 per cent for last fiscal year.

Golf course attendance increases

The Midland Parks and Recreation department reported attendance at the golf course was up last month from the same time a year ago, with 3,656 golfing last month and 2,649 in January, 1975.

Revenues, too, were up, from $3,581 in January a year ago to $4,538 last month.

Attendance at Cole Park Zoo was 1,613 for the month, according to the city progress report. Exhibit changes planned include the purchase of new monkeys for the baboon cage, plus an alligator and rattlesnake exhibit.

The parks department completed work at Grafa Park playground to conform with standards set by the Consumer Products Safety Commission, and installed a basketball area at the park.

The department last month also began painting the box seat railings at Cub Stadium, added sand to Hidalgo Park's play area for safety measures and moved two bleachers to Midland Country Club for the tennis tournament.

Vandalism during the month included $145 damage when two trees at Hogan Park were run over by a car and $11 damage when the volleyball court light at Sparks Park was broken.

Classes held last month by the recreation department included those in preschool, ladies keep-fit, ladies swim,

How do you recognize a chartered life underwriter?

He may appear to be like any other businessman with whom you come in daily contact, but he is an especially qualified professional. He is a person who has earned the C.L.U. designation by completing five years of intensive college-level studies and has met the national professional and ethical standards required to become a Chartered Life Underwriter. The objective of the C.L.U. program is not only to help a life underwriter gain the subject knowledge that is needed to serve his client's life and health insurance needs well, but to instill in him the attitude of placing their interest above his own. There is a Chapter of the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters in the Permian Basin. Get to know them better so that they can better serve your insurance needs.

Nessen to be on 'Saturday Night'

The Washington Post WASHINGTON — White House press secretary Ronald Nessen Tuesday confirmed that he will appear as a guest host on a weekly TV show that regularly satirizes President Ford's alleged klutzy. At the same time Nessen defended what he called the President's "sense of humor."

Nessen agreed to host the April 17 edition of "NBC's Saturday Night," a highly rated late-night program that has won a wide following especially among young adult viewers. The most recent "Saturday Night" show ended with an actor playing President Ford falling off a psychiatrist's couch and crashing through a wall.

"Despite what you may have read, we do have a sense of humor over here," said Nessen. "I don't know if the President has seen the 'Saturday Night' show, but I do know he says he laughs off those cartoons about him in the papers."

He has a little cubbyhole off the Oval Office and it's lined with cartoons, many of them critical but funny.

Nessen said he did not check with the President before agreeing to host the show, but did confer with legal counsel Phillip W. Buchen about accepting payment. Nessen said he will either waive the payment or donate it to charity, NBC — where Nessen worked as a reporter from 1962 to 1974 — will pay only his expenses, Nessen said.

The idea of Nessen appearing on the show began when he watched a "Saturday Night" comedy sketch written by series regular Chevy Chase and guest-host Buck Henry. In the sketch, Henry as Nessen prepares Chase as Mr. Ford for a press conference. "Mr. President, you can expect a lot of tough questions," says the Nessen character. "Do you think there'll be any math?" asks the President nervously.

Musicians exhibit expertise in symphony performance

Youth had its day — or its night — at the symphony Tuesday, and acquitted itself in fine fashion. In near-flawless performance, to be more specific. Four exceedingly talented musicians whose combined ages barely reach eight decades were featured performers with the Midland-Odessa Symphony in the orchestra's fourth subscription concert of the season here Tuesday night.

The event was the annual young artist concert and featured were the top winners in the 14th annual National Young Artist Competition which took place here a month ago. As winners in the event, they had won the right to return here for guest appearances with the orchestra in its pair of young artist events in Midland and Odessa, and to share in the $5,600 offered winners and finalists in the annual competition.

But this is all background, nothing new. Of more immediate and current interest is how well they played, once they had returned. To all who heard the four in the Midland concert last night (and undoubtedly, to those who had heard them Monday night in Odessa), one fact stood out: They played with a professionalism, an expertise far in advance of their years. Hearing them tended to be a bit of an awesome experience.

Once again, just as in past years, the choice of "best" performer among the four is strictly a personal one — you had your favorite (or favorites) just as I had mine.

Not knowing your choices, I'll tell you mine: Cellist John Sharp, the 18-year-old high school student from Waco, who gave an exceedingly fine and careful reading of the Saint-Saens First Concerto for Violoncello and Orchestra, and pianist Jeffrey Campbell of Dallas, whose keyboard wizardry in the Liszt Piano Concerto No. 2 was, to say the very least, formidable and quite impressive.

I do not discount for a minute the high musicality and ability of the other two featured performers, violinist Lucinda Marvin and flutist David Aguilar. Both played beautifully here last night, Miss Marvin performing the allegro moderato movement of Jan Sibelius' Concerto in D minor, Op. 47, and Aguilar playing the allegro aperto movement of Mozart's Flute Concerto No. 2 in D major. But since both were heard in shorter selections, neither had quite the opportunity to establish the musical momentum that Sharp and Campbell had in their longer performances.

Cellist Sharp addressed himself to the richly melodic content of the Saint-Saens with deference and, in so doing, provided his listeners with a well-rounded, thoughtful and subtly-shaded performance. It was a delight to hear.

Campbell is quite, quite good at the keyboard — and he knows it, which is just fine as far as I'm concerned. He has a positive approach, a self-assurance that early-on clues the listener something exciting is about to happen. Last night, it did!

The Liszt concerto, although it did not particularly turn me on musically, certainly was a fine showpiece for Campbell's extraordinary proficiency, his lustrous kind of keyboard technicality. Campbell, though, was firm rather than frenzied in approaching this pyrotechnical keyboard item. The piece had more credibility as a result.

Miss Marvin's limning of the one movement of the Sibelius concerto was delicate and deliberate. I wish that it had been possible to hear this gifted young artist in a performance of the entire concerto, inasmuch as I think the work does not, cannot, come truly alive played in truncated form.

Aguilar presented a well-wrought performance of the Mozart flute concerto movement, but the performance was all too brief. The young man displayed real artistry nonetheless.

Backing the guest performers were members of the Midland-Odessa Symphony under the direction of music director-conductor Tom Hohstadt. The instrumentalists provided particularly good support to cellist Sharp in the Saint-Saens, I thought, and to Miss Marvin in the Sibelius. Less satisfactory was the backing provided pianist Campbell in the Liszt but this is such a big and rather complex work that I wonder if the orchestra had actually had sufficient rehearsal time to prepare it, particularly in the company of the solo artist.

Alone, the orchestra provided a brightly bold "Firebird," the famous ballet suite by Stravinsky. This is a work which calls for the best from all orchestral segments and it seemed to me that all segments answered the challenge ably and well last night. The first movement, or scene, full of subtle musical imagery, was quite well done; the second movement seemed almost too bombastic in volume. The subsequent scenes were nicely evocative and, in the main, beautifully played.

In presenting award checks to the four guest artists at conclusion of the concert in Lee High auditorium, conductor Hohstadt paid tribute to the Midland Symphony Guild and National Young Artist Competition chairman, Mrs. John Greer, for a highly successful staging of the here Jan. 23 and 24. 14th annual competition — Roger Southa

Utility accounts up

Accounts and production at the City of Midland's utilities department were up last month from January, 1975 figures, according to the city's progress report.

Last month showed a net of 40 new accounts, compared to 27 from January a year ago. Active accounts were listed at 20,103 last month and 19,510 for the same time last year. The department pumped 249,880 million gallons of water last month and treated 157,377 million gallons of sewage. These figures compare to the 215,797 million gallons of water pumped in January, 1975 and the 140,745 million gallons of sewage treated.

The water purification plant recorded a daily average of 6,809 million gallons, a figure which was down 835 million gallons from December's figure of 7,644.

Revenues taken in by the Municipal Court were somewhat higher last month than the same time last year, according to the city progress report.

A total of $30,466 was taken in last month, compared to $27,374 collected during January, 1975. These figures bring this fiscal year's total to $121,519, an increase over last year's total of $102,745.

Though the number of parking citations issued last month was lower than the number issued during January a year ago, the number of traffic citations issued was higher.

Some 1,283 traffic citations were issued last month, compared to 1,105 issued during January, 1975. The parking citations issued last month totaled 4,624, down from the 4,905 issued at the same time last year. The fiscal year's figure for traffic citations is 4,457 so far, and the parking citations figure stands at 18,467.

Financier Robert Lurie, left, and San Francisco Mayor George Moscone happily hold up San Francisco Giants pennants following their separate meetings with National League owners in Chicago on Tuesday.

National League owners approve sale of Giants

CHICAGO (AP) — Sale of the San Francisco Giants to financier Robert Lurie and former baseball magnate Bob Short was approved Tuesday by National League owners pending certain conditions involving the buyers and the city of San Francisco.

Chub Feeney, president of the National League, said he had no doubts that the conditions would be met by the March 1 deadline.

The sale to the Lurie-Short combine which also includes M.E.I., a Minneapolis conglomerate, assures the Giants of remaining in San Francisco.

Lurie said the purchase price of $8 million had been met with $500,000 in escrow. The remaining $7.5 million in cash was ready, he said.

FEENEY WOULD not reveal what the final conditions of the sale were but said they were not "financial" and the purchase would be automatic when they were met with no need for additional league meetings.

Feeney said the meeting of the National League owners involved only the San Francisco matter. "Expansion was not discussed but we plan future meetings to discuss expansion because our people are very interested in the question," said Feeney.

APPROVAL of the sale to the Lurie-Short group left Toronto out of the National League picture for the time being but representatives from Toronto appeared at the site of Tuesday's meeting.

"We are interested in what happens today," said Don McDougall, president of Labatt's brewery, a firm which previously had offered to purchase the Giants for the purpose of moving the team to Canada.

"We are interested only in the Giants for the time being and not in expansion. If there is expansion we will have to reconsider because that is a new ball game."

MAYOR GEORGE R. Moscone of San Francisco appeared before the owners and later told newsmen he would try to take some economic burden off the new owners including the possibility of removal or reduction of a 50 cents-per-ticket amusement tax.

Lurie also appeared before the owners and later said that he was satisfied with all conditions required by the selling National Exhibition Co., which owns the Giants, but that his partner, Short, also would have to approve.

Short is in a Minneapolis hospital. He sustained a broken pelvic bone and other injuries last week when he slipped on ice. He is reportedly under heavy sedation and in no condition to handle business matters.

Under the new ownership, Lurie will have 50 per cent of the club with Short holding 25 per cent and the M.E.I. the other 25 per cent.

THE GIANTS' attendance in the last two years had dwindled to a little more than 500,000 a season and Horace Stoneham, major stockholder in the National Exhibition Co., reportedly had lost over $6 million in the last eight years.

The club was ready to be sold to Toronto interests for $13.5 million with about $5 million going for legal costs if the city of San Francisco sued to prevent the loss of the team.

Lurie and Short then stepped in and the city received a court injunction to prevent the team from moving.

National League owners then insisted that if the club were to remain in San Francisco any new buyers would have to come up with $8 million and the club would have to be owned mainly by San Francisco interests.

Lurie said he felt his group could succeed in operating the Giants with new ideas and promotions.

"We'll keep the Giants in San Francisco forever," he said. "If not, I wouldn't have bid for the team. We'll double the attendance this season."

Players, owners face huge gap

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Baseball's negotiating committee and the Players Association hoped to remove the impasse that prompted the owners to delay spring training as they met for another round of talks here Wednesday.

Marvin Miller, representative of the Players Association, and some members of the owners' bargaining committee, attempted to narrow the apparent huge gap separating the two interests.

Miller also had a meeting scheduled with members of the Philadelphia Phillies in his tour of the 24 teams. This is his fifth stop after bringing the issues to players in Los Angeles, Chicago, Cincinnati and Houston.

The owners have made public their offer to the players to settle the issue, one of the planks an owners' version of a compromise on the controversial reserve clause. The owners have proposed an "eight-and-one" plan, which would allow a player with eight full years major league experience to become a free agent in his 10th season after playing out an option year.

John Gaherin, the owners' chief negotiator, had described this as a "fair and equitable proposal."

Miller has rejected the reserve clause offer and countered with a "one-and-one" proposal as upheld by an arbitrator and one court. The issue is now before a federal tribunal in St. Louis and appears destined to reach the U.S. Supreme Court.

"The association's position does not respond to the need for a workable solution to the problem of maintaining competitive balance among the 12 teams in each league and assure team continuity," the owners contend.

Miller claims the owners are distorting the facts. He says the players are being asked to give up rights that are legally theirs.

"The dispute has been caused by the owners' demand that we retroactively and in our view illegally strip the players of rights they now have in their individual contracts," Miller said.

Miller says the players want to start spring training, and want to open the season April 8 but that if the owners believe the locked spring camp gates will bring the players to their knees, they should be locked up themselves.

Miller's meeting with Phillies' players shouldn't take too long. Only three Philadelphia players, outfielder Garry Maddox, second baseman Dave Cash and third baseman Mike Schmidt, are in town. The others are in Florida, preparing to workout on public facilities with bats and baseballs they purchased themselves.

The same type of self conditioning is reported from other Florida camps. The entire starting pitching staff of the Pittsburgh Pirates, for example, is at Bradenton, Fla. Also, Willie Stargell, Richie Hebner and other Pirates' regulars are going to work out at a nearby college field.

Evert gets win

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Chris Evert maintained her hot streak here Tuesday in the first match of the $75,000 women's tennis tournament with a 6-3, 6-4 win over Wendy Overton. Miss Evert won $15,000 by defeating Rosemary Casals Sunday in Detroit.

Tar Heels bore fans, but continue to win

By The Associated Press
North Carolina's basketball team either beats you into submission, or bores you to death. In either case, the Tar Heels manage to win.

Tuesday night was time for one of those notorious four-corner delays, a North Carolina specialty that puts the opposition into a deep freeze and the crowd to sleep.

The means justified the end as

Reagan County falls to Socorro, 53-47

ALPINE—The Reagan County Owls' playoff road came to a quick deadend here Tuesday night as Socorro's Bulldogs won a tight fisted 53-47 bi-district cage battle.

Socorro's 5-9 guard Steve Alderete proved to be the difference as he pumped in 22 points with outside bombs.

"They hit from the outside, and we didn't," Reagan County coach Jack Kiser said today. "I thought we were ready for the game, but the ball just wouldn't go for us. I don't want to take anything away from Socorro, because they did a fine job."

Alderete was the only Bulldog in double figures. Phillip Schneemau had 15 points for the Owls while junior Jennings Teel countered with 12. George Thompson had seven. Joel Bertram and Jose Paz each had eight for Socorro in the low scoring affair.

Socorro, now 20-9 on the season, will meet Mortan, the Class AA favorite to win the state title, Friday at 1 p.m. in Lubbock during the regional AA basketball tournament.

Reagan County falls from the playoffs with a 21-12 season mark.

In other area playoff action Tuesday, Odessa Ector advanced to the AAA regionals with a 48-41 victory over District 1-AAA's Canyon, and Seagraves won a bi-district Class A battle over Iraan, 61-59. Monday Lubbock Dunbar fell from the playoffs with a 48-42 loss to AAA Brownwood. Brownwood and Ector will meet in the regionals at a site and date still to be determined.

Pampa won the District 3-AAAA title Tuesday with a 68-65 overtime victory over Borger. Pampa will meet the 4-AAAA winner in the bi-district playoffs.

usual, and the boys in Carolina blue defeated North Carolina State 91-79 to win the Atlantic Coast Conference's regular-season championship.

"We can beat them," snickered the Wolfpack's Kenny Carr. "They're just a bunch of foul shooters."

But that's the point. The Tar Heels sit on a lead as well as anybody in the country and while playing catch on the perimeter of their half of the court, dare the opposition to foul them. Then, someone like Phil Ford makes 16 shots in a row—like he did Tuesday night.

"I was extremely pleased with this team," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "But our goal is winning the (ACC) tournament. You notice that we scored well from the four corners' offense—and I did say offense."

The tactic might have beaten him but didn't impress North Carolina State Coach Norm Sloan. In fact he preferred to talk about his own offense, particularly Carr, who scored 33 points.

"If there's a better one than Carr, name him," Sloan said. "Let's play one-on-one and I'll bet my coliseum against North Carolina's."

While North Carolina was winning the ACC, Texas A&M was tying a rope around the Southwest Conference championship. The No. 20 Aggies, only other ranked team in action Tuesday night, beat Rice 98-67 to clinch at least a tie for the SWC crown.

Eisewhere, Army beat Merrimack 84-73; VMI ripped Central Wesleyan 85-48; Canisius stymied St. Joseph's, Pa., 77-71; Northeast Louisiana whipped Lamar 90-67; Providence walloped Rhode Island 85-66.

North Carolina's triumph not only gave the Tar Heels the regular season ACC championship but virtually assured a spot in the NCAA playoffs. Two teams from the ACC can go to the NCAAs this year and it's probable that even if the Tar Heels should lose the ACC playoffs at College Park, Md., they'll be selected for a berth by the league's directors.

NCAA picks 12 playoff teams

MISSION, Kans. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association picked 12 teams today for its Division II basketball playoffs and also chose eight regional sites for the start of the tourney, which will wind up at Evansville, Ind. March 18-19.

Teams selected by the NCAA Division II basketball committee were Missouri-Rolla, Nicholls State, Old Dominion, Morgan State, Philadelphia Textile, Hartwick, Cheney State, Bridgeport, Tennessee-Chattanooga, Evansville, North Dakota and Puget Sound.

Additional teams will be named March 2.

The regional tourney sites and dates, along with the teams selected thus far, are:

- New England Regional at Fairfield, Conn., March 12-13; Bridgeport, host.
- East at Philadelphia, March 10-11; Hartwick, Cheney State and Philadelphia Textile, host.
- South Atlantic at Norfolk, Va., March 11-12; Morgan State and Old Dominion, host.
- South at Chattanooga, Tenn., March 11-12; Tennessee-Chattanooga, host.
- South Central at Thibodaux, La., March 11-12; Missouri-Rolla and Nicholls State, host.
- Great Lakes at Evansville, Ind., March 10-11; Evansville, host.
- North Central at Grand Forks, N.D., March 10-11; North Dakota, host.
- West at Tacoma, Wash., March 10-11; Puget Sound, host.

Quarter-finals will be played at on-campus sites March 15 with the four survivors advancing to Evansville.

Old Dominion won last year's Division II title.

BATTLE SCENE

TV..key to financial rewards

BY TED BATTLES

Max Patkin, baseball's loose limbed, long running clown prince, was sitting in the dugout at Cubs Stadium before a personal appearance here a couple of years ago just wishing he could get someone to give him some TV exposure.

"I've tried all the talk shows, but I haven't been able to get on," he complained. "Just one appearance and I think I'd have it made. I can't understand why they won't let me on. I think I'd be more entertaining than some of the people who come back time after time."

By "making it", presumably, Max would finally see an end to those long summers and endless roads that somehow just lead to more summers and more roads.

FOR MAX, one guest shot would unlock the gates to the major league parks and provide the paydays that would enable him to be more selective.

Max's plaintive wish perhaps reflects the criteria by which success is judged nowadays...TV exposure.

The ABA and WHA can't make it because they don't have it and even the NHL, which until this year played before packed houses, mourns the loss of its not so fat package.

Baseball franchises rise and fall on TV market potential. Pro football, the TV glutton of all sports, attributes its ascendancy in the sports world directly to its TV popularity.

For athletes, it has meant La Dolce Vita, riches and spoils undreamed of. No, this isn't a harangue on the evils of TV sports, but the refreshing story of the survival of one old and once cherished athletic spectacle that is finding it can survive very nicely, thank you, without TV.

THERE WAS a time, before this bowl business got out of hand, when the East-West Shrine game in San Francisco's Kezar Stadium was of a stature that rivaled the Rose, Sugar, Cotton and Orange Bowls. Everybody knew it was the game "Where strong legs ran so weak legs could walk."

The most glamorous names in college football performed in the game, but as the years passed, most of the glamorous names, tied up with other all-star games and bowl games, no longer were as available as in the past.

What once was an automatic sellout of 60,000 battled unsuccessfully to reach 40,000. The game was shifted to Candlestick Park with no noticeable improvement and then to Stanford Stadium at Palo Alto and the crowds continued to stay away in droves. If they wanted to watch, it was on TV.

Howard Payne wins LSC title

BROWNWOOD, Tex. (AP) — Howard Payne, using its home court crowd to full advantage, has completed a two-day sweep of Lone Star Conference zone champions to capture a berth in the NAIA playoffs.

Tuesday night's 74-68 victory over West Zone winner Angelo State gave the Yellow Jackets the LSC title and the right to meet St. Mary's of San Antonio in the NAIA Dist. 4 playoffs. St. Mary's won the Big State title with a 21-4 season record and is rated 20th in the NAIA rankings.

The first game will be played here Saturday night and the second, and third if necessary, will be played at San Antonio.

On Monday night the Yellow Jackets had beaten East Zone winner and pre-tournament favorite East Texas in overtime.

Ernest Jenkins and Terry Davis combined for 41 points to lead the hot-shooting Yellow Jackets.

Their 61 per cent shooting performance from the floor in the first half gave them a 41-29 lead at half-time. They had a comfortable 70-55 lead with 3:40 left before guards Dennis McLaughlin and Jim Vaszkuss led a brief Angelo rally.

Jenkins led all scorers with 22 points and was named the tournament's most valuable player. Davis contributed 19 points.

J.D. Koehn and McLaughlin had 18 and 16 respectively for Angelo State.

Howard Payne, which came into the tournament as the second place team in the west zone, will take a 20-10 season record against St. Mary's.

HOWARD PAYNE (7) — Jenkins 8, Koehn 8, Davis 8, Johnson 2, Harrison 4, Potts 3, Baker 2, Duda 2, Lippert 2, Totals (62-32). ANGELO (6) — Koehn 8, McLaughlin 8, Vaszkuss 7, Leach 4, Young 4, K. Texas A&M to forsake Wishbone-T offense

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — The Texas A&M football team is forsaking the Wishbone-T in favor of a formation with two running backs, the Aggies' offensive coordinator says.

"The wishbone is no longer a part of the Texas A&M offense," Tom Wilson said in a surprise announcement Tuesday night before the Beaumont A&M club. "We will go to a two-back, split-back offense. I'm looking forward to seeing it in spring training and going into it next fall."

Wilson said this was the first public announcement of A&M's future offensive plans.

The decision is somewhat ironic in that A&M's head coach, Emory Bellard, was instrumental in installing the Wishbone-T while he was an assistant at Texas, which first used the formation in major college football.

"We feel as if the wishbone just did not give us enough versatility," Wilson said. "The wishbone is an offense that you run when you can outpersonnel people, but sooner or later you'll come up against people as good as you who throw nine people up on the line and dare you to throw."

"That happened to us in the Arkansas game (a 31-6 Aggie defeat)."

Chaps split with Frogs

FORT WORTH — Midland College met the TCU Horned Frogs Tuesday in the new TCU Tennis Complex, winning the women's competition, 5-0, but dropping the men's matches, 6-0, to the No. 20-rated team in the country.

Mary Sawyer, Carol Reger, and Carol Draper, all won singles matches with Miss Reger winning twice and in the doubles action, Miss Sawyer and Miss Draper also won.

The MC men will travel to Mason to face last year's Lone Star Conference champions, Southwest Texas State Saturday while the women don't play again until March 6 when they entertain the University of Texas at Austin, hopefully on the new tennis courts.

WOMEN'S TENNIS — Mary Sawyer, Carol Reger, Carol Draper, all won singles matches with Miss Reger winning twice and in the doubles action, Miss Sawyer and Miss Draper also won. MEN'S TENNIS — TCU won all six matches.

NEW YORK Mets pitcher Tom Seaver and his dog "Hot Stuff" are ready to play, no contract necessary. Several Mets players are in their own conditioning program while contract negotiations threaten to curtail opening of spring training.

Insolvent pro teams continue to surface

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The number of insolvent professional athletic teams appears to continue growing.

The President of the World Hockey Association Minnesota Fighting Saints said the club would fold today if the players were not paid at 11 a.m.

"If we don't have the money to pay them, we'll fold the franchise," said Wayne Belisle, president of the club. "Fold it, and that will be that."

Belisle met with the Saints' players Tuesday at a practice to inform them that a possible emergency infusion of money by a group of Boston investors had failed to jell.

"We can't raise the money we need here," he added. "If the town doesn't want a hockey team, okay."

The Saints' players did not receive their Feb. 15 paycheck and they are still without pay for the final two weeks of December. The team was scheduled to meet San Diego tonight, but the players are not expected to continue playing any further without pay.

Since the financial troubles were disclosed in November, two high salaried players have gone to National Hockey League teams, reducing the twice-a-month payroll by $20,000. Rick Smith and Henry Boucha left this month when it became apparent the Saints were plunging further into debt.

Most of our staff has been looking for jobs," said one front office employe Tuesday night. "Some harder than others, but I know we'll all be out tomorrow."

Three key members of the front office left in January including the ticket manager and group sales director. That took care of any group promotions for the duration of this season, which has been reflected in a big drop in Saints' attendance. The club averaged nearly 9,000 fans until news of financial despair surfaced.

Belisle was knocked out of his job the first two weeks of February when a handful of St. Paul businessmen provided the payroll for two weeks. When the next payroll came Feb. 15, that group vanished from the scene and Belisle was back in charge.

Charisma loses charisma

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — A $100,000 yacht went down and a dozen others, including the strong contender Charisma, were disabled on the stormy morning of the Southern Ocean Racing Conference's Miami-Nassau race.

The battered SOCR fleet began staggering into Nassau Tuesday, about 20 hours after leaving Miami in the annual and normally swift 176-mile race. The time was several hours longer than in previous races.

The fleet was minus the sunken Mary E. II, whose eight-member crew was rescued, and a number of boats that turned back after running into gale force contrary winds and rough seas.

"Before we got to the start, we saw four boats turn back," said Dr. Herb Virgin, team physician for the Miami Dolphins football team who was sailing in his boat, Family Affair.

"After the start, we saw six more turn back. And when we turned, I saw another three boats following us. On my experience, I think we had 15-foot seas."

The SOCR, which does not declare race winners this year, had not handicapped all the fleet but observers said the early leader appeared to be Bumblebee, a Sydney, Australia yacht owned by John Kahlbretzer.

The Mary E. II, a 40-footer, sank before dawn Tuesday 25 miles west of Great Isaac Light in the Bahamas. The Coast Guard provided pumps and flotation bags in a futile effort to save the yacht. The cause of the sinking was not immediately learned.

The eight crew members were taken aboard the J&B, a 39-foot sloop owned by Morty Engel of New York City. A race official said the J&B dropped out of the race and put into nearby Freeport.

The crew was rescued by the Osprey, which went on to win the race with the aid of time bonus given for the rescue operation.

Henning becomes superstar

ROTONDA, Fla. (AP) — Former speed skater Anne Henning won five of the seven events she entered in the $69,000 Women's Superstars competition here to easily capture first place honors and claim $35,300.

Miss Henning won the softball throw, half-mile bicycle race and obstacle course event Tuesday to finish with 53 points. She had won rowing and swimming Monday.

The 1972 Olympic gold medalist in 500-meter speed skating threw a softball 189 feet, was timed in 1:16.42 in the bicycle race and completed the obstacle course's scaling wall, tunnel parallel bars, tires, water jump, high jump and hurdle in 24.78 seconds.

Sixteen-year-old billiard champion Jean Balukas totaled 31 points for second place and $13,100. Surfer Laura Blears Ching was third with 27 points for $7,700 and football player Linda Jefferson fourth with 25 1-3 points for $2,533.

Diver Micki King had 24 1-3 points and volleyball-basketball player Karen Logan had 24 points to earn $2,400 apiece. Volleyball player Anne-edore Richter 20 1-3 for $2,033, skier Kiki Cutter 19 for $1,900, former tennis and golf pro Althea Gibson 14 for $1,400 and softball player Irene Shay two for $200.

Sprinter Wyoming Tyus and tennis star Martina Navratilova were scoreless and earned no money.

Finishing in order behind Miss Henning in softball were Miss Balukas, Miss Richter, Miss Jefferson and Miss Logan. Second in the bicycle race was Miss Richter, followed by Miss Cutter, Miss Ching and Miss Logan.

Runnerup in the obstacle course was Miss Jefferson, followed by Miss Logan, Miss Cutter and Miss King.

Miss Ching made 13 of 15 baskets from five different shooting locations to beat out runner-up Miss Gibson, third place finishers Miss Cutter and Miss Balukas, and fifth place finishers Miss King, Miss Jefferson and Miss Richter.

Miss Jefferson ran the 60-yard dash in 18.88 seconds, better than Miss Logan's 19.00.

Aggies clinch SWC crown as Rice falls

By The Associated Press Texas A&M has clinched an outright Southwest Conference title and pairings are complete for the first SWC postseason championship tournament, but some unfinished business must be completed Thursday.

The 20th-ranked Aggies toyed with the last-place Rice Owls Tuesday night, coming out with a 98-67 victory for a 21-5 record, highest victory total ever for A&M.

"We've won more games than the other Aggie teams so it must be the best one," said Coach Shelby Metcalf after being dunked in the showers by his players.

A&M ALREADY had clinched a berth in the finals of the SWC tournament March 6 in Dallas, but a loss to the lowly Owls would have allowed Texas Tech to have a chance for a tie in the standings.

Other games Tuesday night saw Arkansas whip Baylor 86-64 behind Sidney Moncrief's 25 points and 12 rebounds, TCU edge Texas 89-81 as Gary Landers scored 30 points and Houston clip SMU 100-98 behind Otis Birdsong's 33 points.

Saturday's first round tournament pairings include second-place Texas Tech against Rice at Lubbock, third-place Southern Methodist against eighth-place Texas at Dallas and fourth-place Arkansas against seventh-place Texas Christian at Fayetteville.

BAYLOR WILL play Houston in another first round game. Baylor is now in fifth place with an 8-8 record and Houston, now 7-8, plays Texas Tech at Lubbock in the regular season finale Thursday. The Cougars will have to beat the Red Raiders and win a coin toss with Baylor to gain fifth place and a host spot against Baylor in the first round.

Also coming up Thursday is a hearing in Houston by the SWC on the Karl Godine-Jarvis Williams case. The two A&M freshmen players are under the threat of suspension by the conference for alleged recruiting violations.

The players were suspended previously but a Dallas federal judge said they were denied due process and ordered a hearing, which could result in Godine and Williams having to miss the playoffs.

METCALF SAYS the 11-day rest before the tournament finals is especially needed by at least three A&M starters.

"We've got three horses that we've ridden pretty hard. The rest will be especially good for them," Metcalf said, referring to seniors Sonny Parker, Barry Davis and Ray Roberts.

Arkansas' victory over Baylor was perhaps the biggest of the night. The Bears and Razorbacks went into the game tied for fourth at 8-7.

The reason tonight's game was so important was to get the home court advantage," Coach Eddie Sutton said. "We look forward to playing in the tournament. Whoever we play, they'll throw their record out the window. It will be a whole new season."

Houston Coach Guy Lewis said of the performance which kept his team in the race for home berths. "Our kids played their hearts out. Gee, I'm proud of this bunch. That was a sweet win."

Armbrister signs pact with Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ed Armbrister, an unknown who gained fame for his part in a World Series controversy last fall, has come to terms with the Cincinnati Reds.

Armbrister's signing brings to 20 the number of players under contract, according to a spokesman for the world champions.

Armbrister, who hit 185 while appearing in 59 games, was involved in the play in Game Three that brought cries of foul from Boston Red Sox fans. Armbrister, who was punched hitting, laid down a sacrifice bunt that resulted in contact with Boston catcher Carlton Fisk. American League umpire Larry Barnett ruled there was no interference and the Reds went on to win in extra innings.

Ky. House rescinds ERA okay

The Washington Post FRANKFORT, Ky. — After weeks of lobbying with gifts of homemade cookies and jam and arguing that American womanhood was at stake, opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment have won a major victory here toward blocking national ratification.

Kentucky's House of Representatives, after two hours of debate, last week voted 57 to 40 to rescind its 1972 approval of the constitutional amendment as anti-ERA forces cheered in the gallery.

The rescission fight in the Kentucky legislature is one of nine such battles now under way across the nation, according to the national Stop ERA Committee.

Thirty-four (including Kentucky) of the 38 states necessary for ratification by the March 1979 deadline, have approved the amendment, which would make equality for women a constitutional right. Two of the 34 states, Nebraska and Tennessee, have voted to rescind their approval. Sixteen states have voted against ratification.

The rescission movement has raised legal questions — in Kentucky and elsewhere. ERA proponents hold that a state may not rescind ratification of a constitutional amendment after it has been approved, and during the Kentucky House debate, pro-ERA speakers cited a 1937 state court ruling to prove it.

Several anti-ERA sources here conceded that the legal implications are cloudy, saying Congress or the U.S. Supreme Court would have to decide whether rescission is legal, since federal law and the courts apparently have not settled the question.

The battle to overturn ERA ratification in Kentucky began only weeks after the amendment was approved in 1972. The legislature, meeting on other matters in a special five-day summer session, had voted for the ERA with little fanfare and almost no organized opposition.

By 1974, however, anti-ERA forces had gained enough strength to get a bill to rescind introduced, and last week they showed their growing muscle in the House vote over the objections of well-organized pro-ERA groups.

Throughout the debate, critics of ERA argued that ratification would change the legal status of women, taking away such privileges as alimony and adding no rights not now guaranteed under various state laws.

ERA supporters countered that fears of losing privileges were ridiculous, and that restrooms, the draft and insurance rates would not be affected. Rather, they said, the amendment would end discrimination by sex in jobs, salaries and other economic and contractual considerations.

Kentucky's battle over ERA is expected to resume this week. It is expected that the resolution to rescind will be routinely assigned to a Senate committee, six of whose seven members are considered strongly pro-ERA.

Factional jockeying already is under way in the Senate to either have the Senate's leadership assign resolution to a committee less favorable to ERA or to subvert the state's legislative committee system and move the resolution directly to the full Senate for a floor vote.

Thelma Stovall, the state's first woman lieutenant governor and president of the Senate, is a strong ERA supporter. She is expected to have a lot of influence over the fate of ERA in the upper chamber.

Although ERA opponents acknowledge an uphill fight in the Senate, recent efforts to link ERA to pro-abortion efforts by right-to-life forces appear to be swaying some legislators against ERA, especially in predominantly Catholic areas such as northern Kentucky.
