Florida primary voting heavier than expected

By LARRY HOBBS
Associated Press Writer

Voting was heavier than expected today as Florida residents cast ballots in the second major match between President Ford and challenger Ronald Reagan. The primary also pits three leading Democratic presidential contenders.

Election officials in several areas reported heavy voting despite rain and threatening skies which darkened much of the state. Officials had predicted that less than half the state's 3.4 million registered voters would go to the polls.

In Dade County, which includes Miami and is the state's most populous county, officials said that if the voting pace of the early hours was sustained, some 70 per cent of the county's 615,021 registered voters would cast ballots.

Neighboring Broward County, the state's second most populous, also reported a heavy turnout and expected at least 50 per cent of the voters to go to the polls.

Despite rain in the Florida panhandle, Leon County officials predicted a turnout of 55 per cent to 60 per cent based on early balloting.

Rain or cloudy, threatening weather was the rule throughout most of the state early in the day, but a number of points reported clearing skies around midday. A tornado warning issued early in the day for north Florida was lifted several hours later.

Only a smattering of last-minute campaigning was expected today. At least four of the six candidates who actively sought support in Florida were elsewhere — or headed elsewhere — to concentrate on other upcoming primaries.

The Republican balloting was seen as an important test of Reagan's challenge to Ford.

And though 12 Democrats were on the other side of the ballot, only four went after votes. The primary featured the first Deep South primary test for Alabama Gov. George Wallace and Jimmy Carter, the former Georgia governor who won the New Hampshire primary.

Washington Sen. Henry Jackson, fresh from victory in Massachusetts, could spoil the Wallace-Carter matchup. Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp was not expected to be a maior factor in the race.

"It looks good," said Rogers C.B. Morton, Ford's chief political adviser. "In fact, it looks so good that I'm afraid to predict."

Lou Frey, Ford's campaign chief in the state, said the President would carry the state, though narrowly. "If you get 50 per cent plus one, you're a winner," he said. "If you don't, you're a loser."

Reagan predicted a close race, discounting talk that a loss to Ford would severely damage his effort. But whatever happens, he said, "there won't be any folding of my tent and slipping away."

"I'm in this all the way to (the Republican national convention in) Kansas City," Reagan told about 1,000 supporters in Champaign, Ill., as he began a five-day campaign swing through the state.

Ford beat Reagan in New Hampshire with less than half the vote, carried Massachusetts where neither candidate campaigned and won Vermont where Reagan was not on the ballot.

Both Wallace and Carter predicted

Moslem deserters take another fort

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem army deserters took over another southern Lebanese garrison before dawn today, and President Suleiman Franjeh warned that a chain of mutinies might encourage Israel to invade south Lebanon and trigger a new Middle East war.

Parliamentary sources said units from the rebel "Lebanese Arab Army" occupied the garrison at Rachaya, a strategic town that controls supply routes from Syria to Palestinian guerrilla bases in south Lebanon.

The sources had no immediate information whether there was a shootout in Rachaya, the main station at the end of the so-called "Arafat Trail" on the western slopes of Mount Hermon just six miles from the Israeli border.

The Lebanese Arab Army is led by Lt. Ahmed Khatib, a Moslem who defected from the army just before a Syrian-sponsored cease-fire began the current 47-day lull in Lebanon's civil war.

The sources said Rachaya was seized barely 24 hours after another group of mutinous Moslem soldiers took control of a major artillery base in the south, five miles north of the Israeli frontier.

The sources said Syrian truce enforcers, however, talked the rebels into abandoning the artillery base at the Crusader-era Beaufort Castle today, allowing them safe conduct to push east and join Khatib's forces unmolested.

The first hint about the Rachaya attack came from Moslem Premier Rashid Karami at an extraordinary parliament session that extended the legislature's term 26 extra months.

The 99-man parliament's term expires in April. But insecure conditions after 10 months of sectarian warfare were deemed unfit for new general elections.

Karami told parliament the Beaufort Castle mutiny Monday and "what happened later in Rachaya" were part of a plot to "partition the army into Moslems and Christian factions."

Beirut newspapers said Franjeh told an emergency session of Karami's cabinet that "the takeover may touch off a chain of similar mutinies and plunge the army into an open Moslem-Christian confrontation."

"The takeover may also provide Israel with the pretext it has long been seeking to invade and annex south Lebanon. Of course this would touch off a fifth Arab-Israeli war at an absolutely unfavorable timing for the Arabs."

City officials, from left, Fred Poe, Ernest Angelo Jr. and James Brown, investigated conditions at the old Belmont and Columbia Apartments in a pre-council session Tuesday morning.

DPW 'red tape,' legality of regulations queried

By LYNNE WELLS
R-T Staff Writer

ODESSA — Excessive amount of paperwork, disagreement with discipline guidelines and the question of governmental authority in controlling day care centers and private schools were the main topics of discussion at Monday's public hearings in Odessa on the Department of Public Welfare's standards for child care facilities.

Approximately 75 people attended the afternoon hearing at the Ector County Coliseum, with about twice that number coming to the evening meeting.

"The red tape is ridiculous," Wiley Brown, director of Midland Christian School, said.

Most of the other day care providers and private school directors echoed his sentiments.

Mary Alice Townsend believes the records on child development are an "invasion on my privacy and my child's." She added there are no provisions for destroying the records after a certain period of time and no restrictions on who has access to them.

Jack Kyle Daniel, administrator of the High Sky Child's Ranch in Midland, submitted his proposals on ways the paperwork could be reduced by combining some of the forms. He added, however, that he has better records of the girls at the ranch due to the records he must keep.

Strong opinion prevailed that corporal punishment in a private school day care center was necessary if discipline was to be maintained. Several Christian educators from the Alpine-Fort Davis area quoted the Bible, saying the "rod of discipline" was necessary to keep evil out of a child. Ray "Sonny" Hollis, principal of the Odessa Christian School, stated he was "opposed to cruelty and brutality and child abuse in any form." He noted, however, there would be a "definite erosion of sound, practical, positive discipline" if corporal punishment is prohibited. Wiley said corporal punishment should be used as a "last resort, but it needs to be there."

Thais changing minds

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Thai government announced today that American "technicians" would remain in Thailand if the United States agreed to some general principles by March 20, deadline for the withdrawal of all U.S. combat forces from the country.

The announcement said that if agreement was not reached by that date, "the facilities and the technicians which the United States proposes to retain in Thailand will also have to be withdrawn within a reasonable period to be determined by the Thai government."

It is believed the facilities referred to include a sensitive electronics intelligence center at Ramusen, 300 miles north of Bangkok, which Thai sources say the United States hopes to maintain since it provides a valuable "electronic eye" on Communist Indochina.

The U.S. Embassy declined to make its own statement on the withdrawal, saying consultations between the two parties were continuing.

The Thai military and certain key members of the government have made it clear they considered a continued U.S. military presence highly desirable for the country. But leftist groups have demanded the end of all U.S. military involvement.

The first official statement on the withdrawal in recent months said that initially it had been decided that after March 20 only U.S. military advisers in Thailand under the 1950 military assistance agreement, who now number 270, would remain. But the statement added:

"Recently, however, the United States government proposed to the Thai government certain projects of cooperation which would require the continued presence of a number of American technicians after the March 20 deadline."

The announcement said "there is possibility for agreement" on the American proposals as long as the United States agreed to certain principles designed to safeguard the sovereignty and national interests of Thailand. Observers believe there should be few obstacles to the United States agreeing to such general principles.

The statement concluded that the withdrawal of U.S. troops would in no way impair good relations between Thailand and the United States and that "cooperation will continue undiminished within a new framework."

City Council investigates apartments

By LUANNA CROW

Two city council members and other city officials investigated conditions at the old Belmont Apartments this morning in preparation for today's council meeting.

Among those who attended the pre-council meeting were Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr., Councilman Martin Neill, City Attorney Joe Nuesse, City Manager James Brown and Assistant City Manager Fred Poe.

The council agreed during its meeting two weeks ago to tour the old apartments which have been branded a health, fire and safety hazard by city officials. The site is one block west of Edison Freshman School.

Councilman Carroll Thomas, who toured the area earlier, said the apartments are beyond rehabilitation and suggested that a bulldozer should raze the area. Although the Columbia

Commissioners revamp overtime provisions for sheriff's deputies

By ED TODD

Midland County sheriff's deputies, "due to the shortage of help" in the sheriff's department, will be receiving overtime pay for any duty past the 40-hour workweek and will be sided by up to four "trainees," Midland County commissioners decided Monday.

However, Commissioner Durward Wright cautioned Sheriff Ed Darnell to beware of any sloughing on the job by his deputies working overtime.

"But it's human nature," Wright said, "for them to sit around with the boys and drink coffee while the clock's running."

The commissioners unanimously approved the sheriff's overtime request.

Previously, the commissioners on Feb. 13 approved overtime pay (1 1/2 times the hourly rate) past 48 hours. Prior to that, overtime pay for the deputies did not start until the average workweek had exceeded 60 hours.

Nichol Chrysler, Plymouth Service Dept. open Thursday nights until midnight. Also 24 hour service. 694-1806.

"That leaves a pretty good taste in my mouth," Darnell said after the commissioners had reworked the overtime rules affecting deputies.

The four commissioners further overhauled the overtime rules. They ordered that pay for those first eight hours in overtime be based strictly on the regular hourly pay scale — $4.21 per hour based on a $790 straight monthly pay.

But beyond 48 hours a week, the hourly rate is to be boosted to 1 1/4 times the hourly rate.

Despite his plea for revamped overtime, Darnell said he tried to avoid having his deputies work overtime.

"I wouldn't work any of them overtime if I could hire the help," the sheriff said.

At present, the sheriff's department has 25 deputies on the payroll. The current work force is eight fewer than the 33 slots allowed for deputies.

Darnell, in order to strengthen his short-handed department, asked for, and received, permission to hire temporary help, at $3.50 per hour.

The commissioners allowed the sheriff authority to hire "up to four" aides, who, apparently, will be law enforcement students at Midland

College. Wright suggested the aides be called "trainees."

"I'm not going to deputize (them) or anything like that," the sheriff assured the commissioners. "I'm going to stay away from that."

The aides, who will not carry firearms, will "work communications" and handle some paperwork, the sheriff said.

In other business, the commissioners:

— Agreed to donate $5,000 toward completion of the restoration of the Sarah Dorsey home just east of downtown Midland. Commented Nancy McKinley, the project's leader and president of the Midland County Historical Society.

"You all know so very well that there are few things to restore any more. Most of our roots have already been paved over."

Mrs. McKinley said the Midland City Council earlier had allocated $5,000 toward that restoration.

The restoration is the society's Bicentennial project. Mrs. McKinley said.

Loan application to be studied

Directors of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission will study a mortgage insurance loan application plus three preapplications for Community Development funds when they meet in regular session at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at Air Terminal. Landmark Properties Inc. of Dallas has applied for the mortgage insurance loan from the Federal Housing Administration for an apartment project in Midland. The structures, titled "Hyde Park Apartments," are expected to consist of 100 units and be located on 7.12 acres in the southeast corner of Wadley Avenue and Tarleton Street. Community Development applications to be studied are being made by Midland County, Ector County and the City of Goldsmith. Midland County's preapplication to the Department of Housing and Urban Development is for $54,000. Included in the preapplication is $37,620 to construct a rehabilitation and counseling facility for operation by the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation, plus $16,380 to pave 10 blocks of existing dirt streets in various residential areas. Ector County's preapplication is for $124,000 to extend natural gas service to residents of the "El Rancho" addition immediately north of the Ector County Airport. The 276 residents there now rely on liquid petroleum gas for heating and cooking; the cost of this has risen and its availability is not constant. The City of Goldsmith is requesting $124,000 in CD funds to be used to improve the existing water and gas systems. A 1973 study by PBRPC showed the city's water system is unsatisfactory, and its gas system is deteriorating. The city has developed a plan to renovate both systems at a fraction of the cost of doing the two systems separately. PBRPC directors will also consider a request by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation for $133,200 from the Federal Highway Administration to construct ramps at Country Club Drive south of Pecos. The project will provide for a complete interchange at the site with new entrance and exit ramps for the freeway. In other action, the board will consider: — The application of the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation for $255,997 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, to be matched locally with $137,845, to staff the Ector County Centers for a year; — A resolution accepting the regional project priorities for Criminal Justice funds, as set forth by the Criminal Justice Advisory Committee in the Criminal Justice Plan for 1977; — A resolution authorizing the executive director to submit an application to the Department of HEW for second-year funding for the Emergency Medical Services System; — Approval of the 1977 Manpower Plan, and — New appointments to the EMS advisory committee, including Bill Kilgore, training chief at the Odessa Fire Department; Frank Russell, police chief at Andrews; Fred Faulkner, Firestone Test Center at Fort Stockton; and Fred Worsley, volunteer fire department at Seagraves.

Regulations questioned

(Continued From Page 1A) "hat of secular schools. "My judgement as a parent should override any government agency" who tries to interfere with or control day care facilities, contended Bennie J. Lane, an Odessa attorney. Frances Esmond, an Odessa housewife, called the rules a "calculated plan to the government can step in and sell big public day care centers to us." Moag, quoting Lester Rooff, said the welfare department is "neither well nor fair."

State Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson said the thrust of the Child Care Act of 1975 was to "prevent neglect and abuse of children in facilities. We have lost sight of some aspects of the bill," he added. He said the legislature didn't want to "impose the state in areas in which it should not be," nor was it legislative intent to put anyone out of business. Rep. John Hoestenbach, of Odessa, who voted against the act, said he is concerned with the separation of church and state. He said bureaucrats have gotten "carried away." Hoestenbach hopes to "bring a little bit of sanity back into these regulations." R. C. "Eric" Augesen of Odessa said many people who find the cost of child care too expensive must hire someone to come into their home to care for their children. As a result, these children "don't receive any of the social benefits children of their age need," which can best be obtained by interaction with other children and adults in day care facilities, Augesen said.

Plans for expansion continue at college

Midland College trustees continued planning for two new campus buildings and an addition to a third one Monday when they met in a special session with architect Preston Geren. Geren and the board discussed working plans and drawings for the construction of an academic classroom-fine arts building, the addition to the present occupational-technical building, and a new multi-purpose center (dubbed Chaparral Center by the architect). Geren, who had been consulted with Midland College instructors on some facets of the architectural planning, told the board final plans likely would be complete in three months. He projected taking bids in July on the projects which should be ready for occupancy in August, 1977. Dr. Al G. Langford, college president, told trustees that a $6.3 million in bonds approved by voters in February will be sold at 4 p.m. March 30. Additional preparation for the bond

Doctor portrays Patty Hearst as 'queen' of SLA

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dismissing portions of Patricia Hearst's defense as "unbelievable," a government psychiatric expert has portrayed her as the reigning monarch of a rag-tag army of revolutionaries she lifted to international fame.

"She was the queen" of the Symbionese Liberation Army, said Dr. Joel Fort. "She brought them international recognition, the excitement, the press attention.... She enjoyed the status and recognition this brought her."

Fort, a physician with psychiatric training, took issue on Monday with several key elements in Miss Hearst's own story of fear and sexual assault inflicted by her SLA captors.

The government is trying to prove to the jury that Miss Hearst took part willingly in a 1974 bank robbery. The defense claims, and Miss Hearst has testified, that she participated out of fear for her life.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. spent most of the day eliciting Fort's picture of the 22-year-old newspaper heiress. Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey had just begun his cross-examination when court recessed for the day. He planned to resume his questioning today.

Fort, his opinions based on four jailhouse interviews with Miss Hearst as well as other material, declared that the defendant was "a voluntary member of the SLA" when she and four comrades robbed the Hibernia Bank on April 15, 1974.

"She did not perform the bank robbery because she was in fear of her life," Fort said over strenuous objections by Bailey. U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter allowed the answer to stand but instructed the jury that it was strictly Fort's opinion.

When Browning asked about Miss Hearst's contention that she shot up a sports store in the Los Angeles area to rescue two underground companions because of a "reflex" action drilled into her by the terrorists, Fort said, "I find it unbelievable."

An enraged Bailey jumped to his feet, but Carter overruled his objection, again cautioning the jury to treat the answer as one man's opinion.

Fort appeared to push Miss Hearst to the point of an angry outburst when he specifically contradicted her emotional tale of rape in a tiny closet where she was held captive in the weeks after her Feb. 4, 1974, kidnapping.

Miss Hearst told him, Fort said, that she submitted to now-dead SLA terrorists Willie Wolfe and Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze because they asked to have sexual intercourse with her and she thought it would help keep her alive.

"She said she had had intercourse with Wolfe a couple of times prior to the bank robbery," Fort said. "She did not indicate he in any way forced himself on her or that directly or indirectly rape was involved."

Miss Hearst, who had wept when recalling for the jury that she had been forced to have sex with a man she despised, stirred in her chair and Bailey placed a restraining hand on her shoulder.

The defendant occasionally turned toward her parents, Randolph and Catherine Hearst, and sneered slightly as Fort gave his testimony.

When Fort said that "enthusiasm seemed to be absent" when she was reunited with her family the night of her Sept. 18 arrest, she whispered to her parents a sally characterization of the witness.

The Hearsts laughed, and the defendant's younger sister, Vicki, moaned, "Oh, my God."

Miss Hearst frequently scribbled notes and handed them to her attorneys as Fort described her as having an "extremely independent, rebellious" youth, experimenting with drugs and "becoming sexually active at age 15."

He pictured the defendant as bored and restless before her kidnapping, "a chance exposure at a time when she was looking for something" and found it in the excitement of life on the run.

He said her relationship with her wealthy family ranged "from dislike to hatred" and that she had a "desire to get away from the name and nature of the Hearst family."

When six members of the terrorist tribe were killed in a shootout and fire in May 1974, he said, Miss Hearst had a "mourning reaction." She had developed particular "affectional bonds" for Wolfe and SLA soldiers Angela Atwood and Nancy Ling Perry, he said.

"I was impressed with the sincerity when she spoke of her love for Willie Wolfe" on a taped eulogy less than a month later, Fort said. Miss Hearst has renounced that recording as made under duress from a script prepared by others.

Fort, who has appeared as an expert witness in nearly 200 trials, was on the stand as a consultant to the government. He said he spent about 15 hours examining the defendant.

needed municipal water supplies and sewer facilities instead of the mass irrigation projects favored by growers.

Justice John Paul Stevens, who joined the court three months ago, registered his first dissents Monday. With Justice William J. Brennan Jr., Stevens said the court should not have disposed of the water case without first hearing oral arguments. And, allying himself with Brennan and Justice Thurgood Marshall, the court's two most liberal members, Stevens said California prison officials had not shown "sufficient threat of irreparable injury" to justify the court's emergency order.

Snake handlers lose high court plea

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court Monday left intact a lower court ruling that followers of a religious sect in the hills of Tennessee have no constitutional right to handle poisonous snakes and drink strychnine at worship services.

The justices refused to hear the claims of the Holiness Church of God in Jesus Name that a Tennessee Supreme Court order prohibiting such rituals interfered with its members' free exercise of religion under the First Amendment and intruded on their privacy.

tion was the Tennessee court's declaration that "Tennessee has the right to guard against the unnecessary creation of widows and orphans" and the "right to protect a person from himself."

Two parishioners had died from drinking poison and several had suffered rattlesnake bites at the Cocke County, Tenn., church when the local prosecutor in 1973 sought an order padlocking the church as a public nuisance.

In other actions Monday, the court: —Blocked, on a 6-3 vote, the order of a federal district court judge in San Francisco requiring San Quentin State Prison officials to overhaul their treatment of dangerous inmates confined to the maximum security quarters known to prisoners as "the hole" (Enomoto vs. Spain, A-719).

In a civil rights suit brought by five accused murderers, U.S. Dist. Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli ruled in January that the "degrading conditions" in San Quentin's adjustment center, particularly the "abhorrent and shocking use of excessive restraints," constituted "cruel and unusual punishment" in violation of the Eighth Amendment.

Zirpoli ordered California corrections officials either to release the five men into the general prison population or to justify their continued segregation at a full-scale disciplinary hearing. Authorities were also told to curtail the use of tear gas and to drop the practice of shackling convicts with neck chains.

—Ruled summarily, 7 to 2, that Mexican-Americans living in slum "colonias" in the Rio Grande Valley were not denied due process when they were excluded from water improvement districts (Jimenez vs. Hidalgo County Water Improvement District, 75-1004).

Twin tornadoes injure at least 18 Alvin residents

ALVIN, Tex. (AP) — Residents of this Southeast Texas community surveyed damages today from twin tornadoes that dropped out of gray skies Monday injuring at least 18 persons.

No deaths were reported from the twisters, which were accompanied by severe thunderstorms that left about 50 families homeless in the Alvin area.

Four persons were treated and released from hospitals and four others were admitted for observation.

At least one family of two found shelter at the Holiday Inn in Alvin. Red Cross officials said the motel made 200 rooms available to the homeless.

The damages included two houses destroyed, three homes heavily damaged and nine other houses slightly damaged. Fourteen trailer homes were destroyed and eight others heavily damaged according to Edwin E. Arnold Jr., district representative of the Texas Gulf Coast Division of the American and National Red Cross.

Pateco Lumber Co in downtown Alvin was virtually destroyed by the high winds.

The raging winds filled the air with flying debris parts of roofs, broken glass, branches and kitchen pots and pans.

Donna LaJuanie of the Willow Ben subdivision, told of escaping her careening refrigerator, then with her husband helping to dig a 9-year-old boy out of the rubble.

"I was in the kitchen getting ready to go to work and we heard something like a train coming," she said. "Then we felt the house twist off the bricks (foundation). We just held on to each other. My refrigerator missed me by an inch."

Alvin police kept a lookout late Monday night as a precaution against possible looters.

Seven South Vietnamese flee homeland in helicopter

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A young South Vietnamese air force lieutenant, accompanied by his wife, four children and a mechanic, flew a helicopter 300 miles from South Vietnam to Thailand on Monday in the first known airborne escape from South Vietnam since last May.

The pilot took off from the Mekong River city of Can Tho early Monday morning and was forced to land near a rural gasoline station about 130 miles southeast of Bangkok when his craft ran out of fuel, the governor said. The pilot reportedly was trying to make it to the U.S.-run Utopia air base southeast of Bangkok.

The governor identified the pilot as 30-year-old Ho Kan Hai. The other escapees were his 28-year-old wife, Nuygen Pikan; their four children aged 3 to 9 years; and a 27-year-old airplane mechanic.

There was some question, however, about the spelling of the names and ages of the refugees. The governor said they were under Thai provincial custody today.

The "Husy" helicopter — the standard type used by the United States in the Vietnam war — was emblazoned with a yellow star in a red field, the symbol of the South Vietnamese regime, the Thai governor said.

Tips given on shopping

Copley News Service

Everyone is concerned about today's high food costs. While shoppers want to reduce their food bills, they still want to get the most nutrition for their money. By adding a little wisdom to your shopping list, you can ease the strain on your pocketbook and help the hearts of every member of your family. You can lower your grocery bill and still enjoy interesting, tasty foods.

Foods which claim the biggest chunk of your grocery dollar are those highest in cholesterol and saturated fat. These same foods may help keep your blood cholesterol levels high. Most scientists agree that a high blood cholesterol level furthers the development of heart and blood vessel diseases.

Saturated fat and cholesterol are found in all meat, fish, poultry, whole milk, cheese, butter and eggs — foods which are usually the most expensive. If you purchase moderate amounts of fish, poultry and lean meat, and buy low-fat dairy products, polyunsaturated margarines and vegetable oils, you will probably be eating less saturated fat and cholesterol. In fact, vegetable oils which contain polyunsaturated fats help lower cholesterol levels.

Whole grains, legumes, dried fruit and nuts are nutritious foods and you need not pay high prices for them. One of the secrets of good menu planning and economical shopping is to use fresh produce when it is in season — when it is at the peak of flavor and when prices are generally lowest.

AT WIT'S END
There you go again telling me what to do

By Erna Bombeck

I got a mimeographed sheet from school the other day listing 18 things I can do to help my child.

They ran the gamut from giving him responsibility at home (he's already in charge of returning the complete set of dishes under his bed to the kitchen) to promoting his cultural development by taking him through a bakery or General Motors.

One of the suggestions that made my body tingle all over was No. 7. It read: "Send your child to school happy. Try to avoid arguments before school."

Are they kidding? I have a child who makes Jane Fonda look like Betty White.

"What day is it?" he grumbles.

"Tuesday."

"Are you sure?"

"It's just a guess because yesterday was Monday."

"Where are my shoes?"

"In your boots."

"Who put them there?"

"Eat your breakfast."

"How long has the milk been out?"

"I set the alarm and got up early so it would be warm."

"That's not funny."

"Neither is your room. Did you make your bed this morning?"

"I'm airing it out."

"Here's your lunch."

"I suppose I have to carry all of that and take the bus?"

"I'm splitting."

"What's the matter?"

"You were expecting a cab?"

"Do you want an advance on your allowance?"

"He's looking at me! (His brother.) He does it all the time to bug me. Did you wash my gym clothes?"

"I'm sending them out for estimates. Here!"

"I need money for paper. I've borrowed from everyone since September. The teacher says I'm a moocher and that no one is to lend me anything anymore."

"I hate to borrow."

"Have a good day."

"There you go. Always telling me what to do!"

The Candy Stripper Mother and Daughter Banquet will be held April 3 at Los Patios Restaurant. New officers will be installed.

Members of the Joseph Black Society, Children of the American Revolution, presented a Bicentennial play entitled "We, the People," at a meeting of the Lt. William Brewer Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in Midland Woman's Club.

SORORITY NEWS

A ceremony of the jewels was conducted for Mrs. Sam Daugherty, Mrs. Craig Holly, Mrs. Ralph Maness and Mrs. Jerry Yeager when Beta Omega Chapter, Epsilon Sigma Alpha, met in the home of Mrs. Butch Barker, 2807 Haynes St. Mrs. Frank Felts, district president, conducted the ritual.

Mrs. Larry Wilson, awards chairman, presented the second degree Pallas Athene award to Mrs. Dale Ballard and Mrs. David Cooper; fourth degree, Mrs. Gene Coppedge, and fifth degree, Mrs. Tony Watson.

In a business session, the following 1967-77 officers were elected: Mrs. Cooper, president; Mrs. David Wood, vice president; Mrs. Larry Hill, corresponding secretary; Mrs. John Brinlee, recording secretary; Mrs. Ballard, treasurer; and Mrs. Larry Wilson, parliamentarian.

The chapter will assist Beta Eta members with a party to be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at St. Nicholas Episcopal Church for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital at Memphis, Tenn. Both chapters are encouraged to invite friends and to take outside orders from those unable to attend the party.

A gift was presented Mrs. Coppedge as outstanding ESA'er of her chapter. She will compete on district level at a meeting in April at Fort Stockton. Winners of district competition will compete for the title of outstanding member of the state at a May meeting. A gift also was presented Mrs. Wilson, winner of First Year's Award. She also will compete in state district and state.

An educational program, "Women's Liberation," was given by Mrs. David Cooper. She reported that today there are 37.4 million women in the United States, ages 16 and over — and nearly half of these are holding jobs. In small figures, that is two out of every five workers.

She said over seven million women have a college education, yet many are working as clerks or in offices because the job market isn't ready to accept women in high positions. The female, she said is moving in political circles also; more than 700 hold an elective office.

It was announced a Bicentennial party will be held March 16 in the home of Mrs. Daugherty, 709 Lanham St. Each member is to bring a covered dish, along with the recipe, that has been handed down in the family.

The chapter presented a scholarship to Mrs. Maness. Mrs. Reggie Medley, district coordinator, attended as a guest.

Q. Will washing the hair every week cause it to fall out?

A. No, although washing the hair will remove those hairs which have already separated from the scalp. If the amount of hair which comes out when washing seems too great, perhaps there is some scalp condition present which would benefit by expert treatment.

Rodino: Nixon state concerned committee

WASHINGTON — The House Judiciary Committee was concerned about Richard M. Nixon's state of mind during impeachment proceedings and was aware of three articles of impeachment.

Rodino said several members of Congress told him about Nixon's remarks and one member, whom he identified only as a Southern Democrat, "was so upset that he went directly home from the White House and almost puked."

The Southerner, The Los Angeles Times learned, was Rep. William Lehman (D-Fla.), whom a spokesman quoted as saying, "I didn't almost puke, but it scared the hell out of me."

"Nixon said he could go over and pick up a telephone and in 20 minutes or something like that, 35 to 50 million Russians would be dead," Lehman was quoted as saying.

Nixon's remarks about his power to order a nuclear attack were made in November, 1973, at a White House meeting during which he was trying to dissuade a group of congressmen from supporting impeachment.

Rodino, in a luncheon meeting with reporters, said that in private sessions in 1973 and 1974 Judiciary Committee members discussed their concern about Nixon's mental health, but concluded their only course was to continue with impeachment proceedings.

The committee abandoned the proceedings only after Nixon resigned as President in August, 1974, following committee approval of three articles of impeachment.

The fact that Nixon made his remarks about a nuclear attack was first reported recently by Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.), who did not attend the White House meeting, and confirmed by two congressmen who were present — Reps. Charles G. Rose III (D-N.C.) and Clem R. McSpadden (D-Okla.).

Rose and McSpadden said that while they did not consider Nixon's observation to be a threat, the remarks came out of context with the rest of the conversation and they viewed it as peculiar.

At the time of President Ford's pardon of Nixon — a month after Nixon's resignation — there was widespread speculation that the action was partially motivated by concern for the former President's mental health.

Ford has never mentioned such a motive. And in explaining his motives to the Judiciary Committee in 1974, he denied a report that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger had expressed concern that Nixon might attempt suicide.

Rodino also told reporters he sees the pardon emerging as an issue in the presidential campaign, with people debating "whether there was a deal or wasn't a deal" between Nixon and the man he appointed as vice president and heir apparent.

Rodino reiterated his own belief that there was no deal, but said "the issue is that Ford showed bad judgment in a matter of tremendous significance."

When Ford first took office, Rodino said, "there was an opportunity for new confidence in government and a restoration of fairness in the system, of calling to account anyone no matter who it is."

The sudden pardoning of Nixon without waiting for the bringing of criminal charges, Rodino said, "is something that is going to continue to be in the minds of the people."

Texas GOP to vote

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Republican voters will have a chance May 1 to have a say on forced busing of school children and crime in the streets.

Five different questions were approved by the State Republican Executive Committee for the May 1 primary ballot. All will be non-binding on the state legislature or any other government agency and merely an expression of voter opinion.

The State Democratic Executive Committee did not approve any referendum questions for the Democratic primary ballot.

Whether voters want a constitutional amendment banning forced busing of school children for racial balance.

Whether voters want a constitutional amendment to deny bail to repeat felons while awaiting trial.

Whether voters want state legislation that would require mandatory, non-parolable prison sentences for felony offenses involving the use of deadly weapons.

Whether voters favor the use of oral confessions in a trial.

Whether voters favor the use of electronic surveillance to fight organized crime.

Another resolution adopted was designed to end the controversy between State GOP Ray Hutchison and the Associated Republicans of Texas (ART) over use of campaign funds raised by ART.

U.S. says Thai talks talk false

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The U.S. Embassy denied today that independent talks are being conducted with the Thai military about keeping U.S. advisers here after the scheduled March 20 withdrawal of all American combat troops.

Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj alleged Monday that such talks were going on and said the Thai armed forces "can't negotiate foreign affairs matters with the U.S. military.... The Americans can't bypass the Foreign Ministry."

Some Thai military leaders say the Communist takeover of neighboring Indochinese nations requires a continued U.S. military presence in Thailand, and Thai military sources have said a U.S. military advisory force of about 3,000 men might remain after March 20.

U.S. troop strength here, which reached almost 50,000 during the peak of the Indochina war, is now down to fewer than 5,000.

Official sought in five slayings

COLUMBIA, N.C. (AP) — A U.S. State Department official is being sought by police for questioning in the bludgeoned deaths of five members of his family, whose burning bodies were found in a swampy grave near this eastern North Carolina village.

The victims were identified Monday as the family of Bradford Bishop Jr., 39, assistant chief of the special trade activities office of the State Department's economic and business section.

North Carolina Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten said Bishop, who had not reported to his office for a week, "is being sought for questioning," although Edmisten added that Bishop could be "lying dead somewhere."

Police in Montgomery County, Md., where the family lived, have listed Bishop as a missing person, pending further investigation.

The burning bodies of Bishop's mother, wife and three children were discovered a week ago, piled in an open, gasoline-soaked pit nearly 300 miles from their home in the Washington, D.C., suburbs. The bodies were found by a state forest ranger investigating a three-acre brush fire that had spread from the burning grave.

Identity of the victims was a mystery until Montgomery County police were told Monday by a neighbor of the Bishops that the family had not been seen for days.

North Carolina authorities already had been focusing their search for the identity of the victims on the Washington area because a shovel bearing the label of a Montgomery County hardware store had been found near the grave.

The victims were identified from photographs as Bishop's wife, Annette, 37; the Bishops' three children, William Bradford III, 14; Brenton G., 10; and Geoffrey, 5; and Bishop's mother, Lovellia Bishop, 68.

Montgomery County police say they believe the killings occurred about 6:30 p.m. March 1 at the Bishop's $100,000, split level home in the exclusive Carderock Springs section of the Washington suburb of Bethesda, Md.

Bloodstains were found in all four bedrooms of the house, police said, as well as bloody trails to the driveway.

Police said there was no sign of forced entry at the Bishop home, no weapon has been found and there was "no struggle in the home as far as we could tell."

Police said it appeared the bodies were carried out the front door of the home, loaded into the family's 1974 station wagon and driven the 275 miles to the isolated eastern North Carolina burial site.

The station wagon reportedly was seen near the gravesite about 10 a.m. the next morning.

Woman missing after explosion

EAST CAMDEN, Ark. (AP) — Rescuers continued the search today for a woman missing after an explosion at a munitions plant here that killed three of her co-workers and injured 21 others.

The firm that owns the plant, meanwhile, launched an investigation to explain how a lightning bolt could have triggered the explosion. The plant was supposed to be protected against lightning.

The blast on Monday tore apart the Celco Industries, Inc., facility, which manufactures explosive photo flash cartridges used in military reconnaissance planes. It was lunch time, and only 35 of the 200 workers employed at the plant were inside.

In the hours after the initial blast, four lesser explosions hampered firemen as they searched for two missing workers, both women. One was found alive.

Widely varying groups kept under surveillance by agencies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women's libbers, Communists, militant blacks and Jews and taxpayers protesting against taxes were among the targets of domestic surveillance by government agencies, a Senate committee says.

The Senate intelligence committee released nearly 1,000 pages of documents Monday, detailing domestic FBI wiretap and surveillance operations and Internal Revenue Service undercover spying.

One memo shows the FBI used informers during 1969 and 1970 to keep track of the women's liberation movement in several U.S. cities, but never turned up any evidence of revolutionary or violent activity.

The panel said it found that informers were employed in New York,

Baltimore, Kansas City, Mo., Columbia, Mo., and Lawrence, Kan.

But a May 1969 memo from the head of FBI offices in New York to the late Director J. Edgar Hoover said informers found the women's lib movement "is not an organization as such but rather a cause and philosophy" interested in such issues as birth control and abortion.

One informer told the FBI that members of the women's movement "are not revolutionaries and would not help anyone in a revolution until the oppression of women was solved first and completely," the memo said.

Committee documents also showed the IRS used undercover agents to monitor activities of tax protesters in Los Angeles and Chicago. One memo said an IRS undercover agent in Los Angeles gave the Justice Department advance information on the legal strategy planned by a protester facing trial for refusing to pay his taxes.

A memo describing activities of the "undercover operative" said the agent had been able to obtain a copy of the tax protesters' legal brief several months before it was filed in court.

U.S. envoy to Japan called in Lockheed probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators are seeking testimony from a former Lockheed Aircraft Corp. vice president who now is U.S. ambassador to Japan in their probe of bribes paid by the defense contractor to foreign officials, according to State Department sources and others.

Ambassador James D. Hodgson, 61, who served as secretary of labor from 1970 to 1973, has not been linked to the scandal which has shaken the governments of Japan and other countries, and it was unclear why the investigators were seeking his testimony.

Hodgson was scheduled to testify in private Wednesday before the Senate's subcommittee on multinational corporations, it was learned.

His appearance has been cloaked in some secrecy, and it was said that officials did not wish to disclose the fact he would testify before he had a chance to leave Japan.

The Senate panel has been taking testimony from former and present Lockheed officials in hope of learning

Arabian sheik, U.S. oilmen continue talks

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Top-secret negotiations between an Arabian sheik and executives of four U.S. oil companies over ownership of the world's largest oil producer entered a third day today with government and political figures interested but still on the outside.

The concerns of federal officials and a presidential candidate were fueled more by the dearth of knowledge on negotiations between Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, and representatives of Exxon, Texaco, Mobil and Standard Oil of California.

As from the beginning, there was no news from inside Monday on how the talks were going or when they might end. A statement from the ArabianAmerican Oil Co. said the should pay for the American interest in the firm and insistence by the companies that they be guaranteed continued access to Saudi oil at equitable prices.

Shapp, campaigning in a Miami suburb, said the session "symbolizes and highlights what is wrong in America and the world today."

"A handful of powerful sheiks and the heads of a few major American oil companies are deciding the future economic destiny of billions of people throughout the world."

Shapp also said Ford should call for nationalization of U.S. oil firms if he finds the agreement is not satisfactory for U.S. consumers.

However, a Federal Energy Administration official in Washington said that because of current U.S. reserves it is not believed the negotiated sale of Aramco will raise domestic gasoline prices.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

meeting concerned "the transfer of ownership" of Aramco from the American companies to Saudi Arabia.

Frank Zarb, director of the Federal Energy Administration, said the talks over nationalization of the firm are "just one more indication we have lost influence over the control of world oil prices."

Zarb told a news conference in North Canton, Ohio, that the talks at the tightly guarded Bay Point Yacht and Country Club here should goad Congress into passing an energy conservation program.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen called the meetings "an additional warning on why Congress should get busy and start adopting more of the President's plans to make the United States independent of foreign oil."

Nessen said in Washington that no U.S. government observer was at the talks because the conference involves private parties.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, campaigning for Florida's Democratic presidential primary today, pointed to the talks as a possible impetus for nationalizing U.S. oil companies.

Yamani and the oil executives arrived by private jets late Saturday for the talks, which are expected to culminate in total withdrawal of U.S. interests from the world's largest oil-producing firm.

The main issues reportedly being discussed are the price Saudi Arabia

Grayburg produces

C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., Midland, has completed No. 1 Harwood as a Grayburg oil strike in Crockett County, 10 1/4 miles southeast of Iraan.

It gauged a 24-hour potential on the pump, of 14 barrels of 36-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio measuring 120-1. Production was through perforations at 1,804-1,902 feet, in 5/8-inch casing seated at 2,201 feet.

A reentry, it originally was drilled by Texas Oil & Gas Corp., as a project in the Clara Couch field, and plugged and abandoned in July, 1975, at 5,783 feet.

Top of the Grayburg was reported at 1,710 feet, elevation not reported.

Wellsite is 1,490 feet from south and 674 feet from west lines of section 7, block GG, H&OB survey, 1/4 mile northwest of shallow oil production in the Clara Couch field.

Wildcat pair, reentries slated in counties of Permian Basin

A pair of wildcats and two re-entry projects have been announced in West Texas counties, and a Grayburg well has been completed in Reagan County.

MWJ Producing Co. of Midland staked an 8,900-foot wildcat in Irlon County, 20 miles north of Barnhart.

It is No. 1-11 Clark, 2,923 feet from south and 835 feet from east lines of section 11, block 27, H&TC survey.

Drillsite is 2 3/4 miles southwest of shut-in Fusselman gas production. CONCHO PROJECT

Farmland International Energy Co. of Houston staked location for a 3,650-foot wildcat four miles east of Paint Rock in Concho County.

It is No. 1 Ellen Sims in the depleted north portion of the Paint Rock (Strawn gas) field.

Drillsite is 330 feet from south and 430 feet from west lines of Heinrich Schumacher survey No. 310, abstract 737.

SCHLEICHER PROJECT

Jack McQueen of Abilene announced plans to reenter and clean out to 5,790 feet for completion attempt in the former Westbrook Oil Co. No. 1-A A. L. Baugh, depleted Strawn gas gas opener of the Baugh field six miles northeast of Eldorado in Schleicher County.

Bottomed at 5,790 feet, the project will be operated as No. 1 A. L. Baugh.

Location is 2,173 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of section 8, block M, GH&SA survey.

ANDREWS REENTRY

Texaco Inc. will reenter its No. 4-R State of Texas, former Ellenburger well in the Block 12, East field of Andrews and plug back to 7,700 feet for tests of the Wolfcamp.

Location is 28 miles west of Andrews and 550 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 15, block 12, University Lands survey. It is 1/4 mile northwest of Wolfcamp production.

REAGAN PRODUCER

Regal Petroleum Corp. of Dallas No. 8-B Ella Owens has been completed as the second Grayburg well in the Barnhart multipay area of Reagan County.

One and one-half miles east of the field's other Grayburg well, No. 8-B Owen finished for 12.4 barrels of 29.6 gravity oil, plus 5.51 barrels of water with a gas-oil ratio of 806-1.

Production is from pay behind perforations from 2,038 to 2,439 feet after a 100,000-gallon fracture treatment.

Location is 10 miles east of Big Lake and 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 6, HE&WT survey. Hole is bottomed at 2,482 feet, with 4 1/2-inch casing at total depth.

Shallow test slated in Culberson sector

A shallow prospector has been scheduled in Culberson County, and a pay extension was completed in a Sterling County field. Gulf Oil Corp. staked site for No. 1-A J. B. Foster-State, a 1,700-foot Permian test in Culberson, 2 3/4 miles northwest of Kent. Drillsite is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 22, block 88, PSL survey. There is no nearby production.

It was drilled to 8,050 feet, where 5 1/2-inch casing is seated.

Wellsite is 1,159 feet from north and 1,250 feet from west lines of section 17, block 31, T-S-S, T&P survey.

Workboat missing

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Coast Guard launched a search for four persons today after an oil rig workboat was reported missing in the Gulf of Mexico and an empty life raft was spotted.

A spokesman said two aircraft and the cutter Point Hope were enroute to the area 165 miles southwest of New Orleans and 80 miles southeast of Calcasieu Pass.

The spokesman said the workboat Explorer 1 was reported missing about 7 a.m. He said an empty 12-foot life raft was seen in the area about one-half hour later.

Flow rated in Lea test

Teal Petroleum Co. No. 1 Federal-TSS, project in the Hat Mesa (Morrow) area of Lea County, N. M., is shut-in after rating a flow of gas.

From Morrow perforations at 13,770-13,862 feet, the project flowed gas at the rate of 1.3 million cubic feet per day, with an ungauged amount of condensate. The flow was natural.

The project is 1/4 mile west of production, 35 miles northwest of Eunice, 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 3-215-32e.

Cooperative official says firms getting to Central Texas people

GIDDINGS, Tex. (AP) — "The people in Central Texas are being raped by the gas companies," snapped Henry Unscheid, who heads the Bluebonnet Electric Cooperative here.

"If it had happened to everyone at the same time, there wouldn't have been so much pressure on us. But, unfortunately, we were the first."

"Somebody needs to explain the situation so people can understand what has happened to the cost of power. That would take a lot of pressure off some innocent people."

The problem at Bluebonnet actually is not unique. The company is but one of many customers of the Lower Colorado River Authority, a state agency providing electricity to 41 municipalities and cooperatives.

Since the bulk of its own electricity is generated by natural gas, the LCRA must meet the price demands of the gas companies to stay in business.

As it turns out, the LCRA gets its gas supplies from LoVaca Gathering

Co., the pipeline subsidiary of controversial Coastal States Gas Producing Co.

Admitted executive miscalculations by Coastal forced LoVaca to surrender its oil, low-cost gas contracts and begin purchasing new gas at sharply increased prices.

Rick Fish, information director at the LCRA, said the Coastal-LoVaca disaster increased the authority's gas costs $50 per cent.

"We went from around 20 cents per thousand cubic feet into the neighborhood of $1.80 per mcf," he said.

"We've been shopping for gas elsewhere and we can't find any in sufficient quantities any cheaper...if we could buy cheaper gas we certainly would. But apparently LoVaca's is as cheap as anything available in the quantity we must have."

The LCRA also is shipping coal from Montana to a new coal-fired unit near La Grange, a move designed to provide an alternative to gas.

But what it boils down to is that LoVaca now pays top dollar for the natural gas it buys from producers. It then passes along those costs to its customers, like the LCRA, which in turn must pass them through to customers such as Bluebonnet.

And then Bluebonnet must recoup its costs from angry, frustrated consumers of gas and electricity.

It is rather ironic that the LCRA is a nonprofit enterprise, a legislative creation whose 15-member board is appointed by the governor.

"We received no tax money," Fish said. "We're required to operate on the revenues produced by the services we provide. We're not permitted to make a profit. But at the same time we're not permitted to go into the red."

By contrast, one of the most successful electricity companies in Texas is Dallas Power & Light, one of three North Texas firms under the Texas Utilities umbrella.

DP&L rates are among the most attractive in the state, a fact which vice president Bill Aston attributes to "long range planning and taking the right action at the right time."

Says Aston: "Our rocket was already half way to Mars fore most people re assembling the mounting 'their third age. That's because he started back in the 1960s switch chng off exclusively from oil and gas to generate electricity."

"Using lignite coal from East Texas while most others are still 100 per cent on gas and oil. That's the real difference. We can fuel our boilers with lignite at less than 30 cents per million (BTU) while gas would be in the range of $1.85 for a million BTU."

Aston said DP&L still uses about 70 per cent gas and oil, explaining: "We haven't been able to switch over entirely to lignite. That will take several years. But we started making electricity with lignite in the early '70s and that puts us pretty far ahead of the game."

DP&L is involved in the construction of the nuclear power units at the Comanche Peak facility near Glen Rose and "that also will give us a fuel that will be less expensive than oil and gas."

Martin County success due to working together

Susan Holcomb and her Reserve Champion Steer Blackjack.

HOUSTON — Tana Yates' Grand Champion steer at the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo won championship honors for Maine-Anjou steers en route to the big title.

Tana's 1,149-pound heavyweight steer was bred by John Scott of Hardin, Mont.

Tana, a 17-year old from Tarzan, in Martin County, showed the reserve champion steer at the 1975 Houston Livestock Show. She exhibited the reserve champion steer at Dallas in 1974. Her numerous showmanship awards include a sixth place finish in the National Hereford Association competition.

"We couldn't do it if we didn't work together," Tana said of her family's work in preparing livestock for shows.

Susan Holcomb, whose Limousin steer took reserve champion honors at the Houston Livestock Show, showed her animal to Champion status in the Limousin steer competition in the Junior Steer Show Friday.

Susan, the 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Holcomb, raised the 1,143-pound Limousin-Angus steer as a Martin County 4-H project. The animal, "Black Jack," was bred by the Premier Cattle Company of Colorado.

Reagan Brooks of Big Spring won second place in the medium-weight division in the Limousin steer competition.

Bart Griffith of Big Spring captured first place in the medium-weight division of the Brahman Steer competition.

Midlander Kathy Knox showed her Angus steer to a fourth place finish in the medium-weight category for that breed.

In the Charolais competition La Rhonda Buchanan of Big Spring took a fifth place in the medium-weight division. In the lightweight class, Danny Cobb of Midland brought home a second place and Jim Noles of Midland finished fifth.

In the Hereford competition, Button Senter of Lamesa took a fifth place in the lightweight category.

Kevin Newman of Stanton showed his 15-month old heifer, Honey, to Championship honors in the junior Hereford competition. Kevin, the 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Newman, is a member of the Martin County 4-H Club.

Kevin's heifer has not been beaten in her class in any show, winning championship honors at Dallas and Abilene and taking reserve championship honors at the National Register of Merit Show in Fort Worth this year.

In the junior heifer calves class for animals born after Jan. 1, 1975, Kathy Knox of Midland won first place. Kevin Newman's champion heifer took first place in the winter heifer calves category, for animals born in the winter of 1974. Stantonites Kendall Newman and Tana Yates won fourth and fifth, respectively, in this class.

Kathy Knox took a third place finish in the senior heifer calves class, for animals born in September or October of 1974.

Kevin Newman captured second place for his summer yearling heifer, born between May and August of 1974.

Koy Blocker of Stanton exhibited the reserve champion Brangus in the Junior Show at Houston. Koy, 11, called the animal his "Bicentennial steer" after it was ear-tagged as 200. The 1,029-pound steer was bred by the Marathon Ranch at Marathon. Koy is the son of Charles T. Blocker of Stanton.

Koy's animal took first place in the medium-weight Brangus division, and Stantonite Clay Holcomb took first place in the lightweight category.

In the Chianina Steer show, Judith Yates of Stanton showed her heavyweight steer to a second place finish, and Midlander Carla Adams won the same honor in the lightweight division.

Big Spring exhibitor Toni Hale showed her mediumweight Santa Gertrudis steer to a fourth place finish. D'Ann Hall, also of Big Spring, finished second in the lightweight class with her animal.

When this hand came along, West was a manly type, with a strong chin and a clear eye. You could see self-reliance in the set of his shoulder, and perhaps also in his partner's bilious face.

The trouble with being self-reliant at the bridge table is that it plays hob with your partner. The poor fellow goes to great trouble to make the right bid or the right play, only to discover that nobody is listening to him.

In this case East took the trouble to indicate a good opening lead by doubling two clubs. When North later bid two notrump, it became clear that a club opening lead would come through strength.

NOT LISTENING

But West wasn't listening. He squared his shoulders and led the king of spades.

This made life easy for South. He won and returned a spade. West stepped up with the jack of spades and shifted, too late, to the five of clubs. South could play low from dummy, win any return, and lead another spade toward dummy to set up the ten of spades as his ninth trick.

Egypt safe;

Austria risky

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Records show the safest country to drive in is Egypt and Austria is the most risky.

However, the death rate is only one factor to consider in judging a country's driving record. There are many other factors such as the number of cars on the road, road conditions and population density.

Asbestos found in 9 baby powder brands

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Asbestos fibers, found in thousands of products from food to building insulation, have been discovered in 9 of 19 baby and baby powders studied by researchers at Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York.

Asbestos can cause mesothelioma, a rare form of chest and abdominal cancer, and asbestosis, scarring of lung tissue. In 1972 Dr. William J. Nicholson of Mt. Sinai reported that these diseases caused nearly 40 per cent of the deaths of New York-New Jersey asbestos workers.

Dr. Irving J. Selikoff of Mt. Sinai, a leading expert on occupational disease, said, "We do not know a safe threshold level for a carcinogen like asbestos." Once asbestos fibers enter the body, he said, they stay there.

Researchers at Mt. Sinai's Department of Environmental Medicine tested one sample each of 19 baby and baby powders. Arthur M. Langer, head of the physical sciences section of the department, said samples contained asbestos fibers in quantities ranging from "2 to 20 per cent."

THE POWDERS with the greatest concentration of asbestos fibers, ranging from 8 to 20 per cent, were ZBT Baby Powder with baby oil, Cashmere Bouquet Body Talc, Coty Airspun Face Powder and Rosemary Talc.

Bauer & Black Baby Talc, no longer on the market, had a 15 per cent concentration of asbestos fibers, the researchers found.

Smaller amounts of asbestos fibers — under 5 per cent — were found in Faberge Brut Talc, Yardley Invisible Talc, Yardley Black Label Body Powder, Mennen Shave Talc and English Leather After Shave Talc.

Officials of Colgate Palmolive, which makes Cashmere Bouquet, Sterling Drugs, Inc., manufacturer of ZBT Baby Powder and of Coty said they are certain their products are safe. They said no asbestos had been found in their testing.

The manufacturer of Rosemary Talc could not be reached for comment.

THE OTHER POWDERS studied were Ammen's Medicated Powder, Avon Bird of Paradise Beauty Dust, Diaperene Medicated Body Powder, Johnson's Baby Powders — one made in England and one in the United States — Johnson's Medicated Powder, Mennen Bath Talc, Yardley After Shave Powder and Yardley Original Body Powder. None of them contained asbestos. One, Diaperene, contained no talc. It is made of corncstarch.

The Food and Drug Administration said in 1972 it would propose regulations to govern the use of asbestos-contaminated talc in cosmetics.

The director of FDA's division of cosmetics technology, Heinz J. Eirmann, said recently the agency had not issued regulations because it had not found a "fast method" for determining the presence of asbestos at low levels. The sophisticated method used at Mt. Sinai, electron microscopy, is too time-consuming and expensive, he said.

The Mt. Sinai researchers, who have conducted the study under a grant from the National Institute of Environmental Health Services since 1973, also investigated the powders for the presence of other metallic elements, including nickel.

WITH THE EXCEPTION of Rosemary Talc and Diaperene, which contained no nickel, 16 of the powders contained from 4 to 710 parts per million (ppm) of nickel. A sample of Johnson's Baby Powder contained 2,200 ppm.

Surprised at what they regarded as a high nickel content of the powder, the researchers purchased seven more samples. Five of them had 1,800 ppm or more of nickel; two had fewer than 710 ppm.

Langer said researchers "don't know if the nickel is hazardous at high levels."

Dr. F. William Sunderman Jr., head of the department of laboratory medicine at the University of Connecticut and an expert on nickel said: "We're trying to find out which nickel compounds do cause cancer and which don't. Certain nickel compounds are carcinogenic when inhaled; others are not."

Johnson & Johnson's associate director for public affairs, Robert Kniffin, said the nickel in the talc is "harmless," because "it is biologically inert" and won't react with body tissues.

A study revealed last September by Dr. J.C. Wagner of the Pneumoconiosis Research Unit at Penarth, Wales, raised the question of the safety of talc itself, the major ingredient in most powders. Wagner found that asbestos-free talc caused fibrosis, lung scarring in the test animals "at the same rate as asbestos."

Epidemiological studies have shown that talc workers develop talcosis, another form of lung scarring, from exposure to large amounts of the mineral.

Gun safety bill attacked

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Half the federal firearms tax money the states receive for wildlife conservation would have to be diverted to hunter education and target ranges under legislation moving through Congress.

Rep. Abner J. Mikva (D-Ill.) charged that National Rifle Association lobbying is responsible.

"The NRA is running roughshod through the legislative process and is turning the 94th Congress into a National Rifle Association convention," Mikva said.

A wildlife conservation bill, adopted by a Merchant Marine and Fisheries subcommittee and approved Thursday by the Ways and Means Committee, would require states to spend 50 per cent of revenue from excise taxes on guns and ammunition for target ranges and hunter education. The other half would go for wildlife conservation.

The bill would add $5 million to the present $17 million raised by extending the tax to ammunition reloading components.

At present a state can choose whether to devote all its gun-tax money to wildlife conservation or to spend up to 50 per cent for target ranges or hunter training.

Mikva said it has been revealed that the target ranges and shooting programs in more than 40 states are run in cooperation with the National Rifle Association.

He said he was asking the General Accounting Office to investigate how much money in the conservation fund has gone to the NRA or its affiliates.

Chief NRA lobbyist Richard Corrigan said, "This is not an NRA bill." He said Mikva was indulging in a "cheap attack" on a "well-intentioned and worthy program," because "he thinks we are thwarting him on passage of gun control legislation."

NRA lobbying helped persuade the Judiciary Committee to send a gun control bill back to subcommittee earlier this week.

Tide ends 20-year SEC drought

By Associated Press
Eighth-ranked Alabama has fulfilled a dream night by capturing its first outright Southeastern Conference basketball title in 20 years.

However, the nightmare is just around the corner. The Crimson Tide simply earned the deadliest path possible to a national championship when freshman Reignald King poured in eight points in overtime to give Alabama an 84-77 triumph over Vanderbilt Monday night. The victory ended ninth-ranked Tennessee's hopes of sharing the SEC crown.

IT PLACES Alabama in the NCAA Midwest Regional tournament against such awesome opposition as top-ranked Indiana, second-ranked Marquette and No. 5 North Carolina, the Tide's opening round foe at Dayton Saturday.

Coach C. M. Newton wasn't too worried about that, though. "When you are in a tournament with the top 32 teams in the country, it doesn't make a difference who you play or where you play," Newton said. "They are all going to be tough."

Newton, who had shared SEC titles the last two years with Vanderbilt and Kentucky, respectively, said he told his wife, Evelyn, before the game that "if you want something this badly, it's got to be sinful."

The Alabama coach had already left Nashville before it was learned that his coaching opponent, Vandy's Roy Skinner, was resigning.

Skinner, bowing to what he called the pressure of coaching, had said repeatedly this season that "this team is destroying me with all these overtimes and close games."

HE HAD gone through four overtimes before Monday night—winning them all. "I was all torn up inside as I watched this one, just like all the others this season."

There were only three other major college games in the nation Monday night—all in the SEC.

Kentucky, bound for the National Invitation Tournament, slipped past Mississippi State in overtime 94-83 in the final game ever in the Wildcats' Memorial Coliseum. Gary Redding scored a career high 30 points as Auburn smashed Mississippi 103-88 and Florida erupted at the start of the second half with a 17-2 spurt that produced a 94-81 rout of Louisiana State.

Tennessee, which ended its regular season Saturday night, got a break in the NCAA tourney when Alabama won. The Vols will play Southern Conference champion VMI in the East Region which has only two other ranked teams—unbeaten Rutgers, No. 3, and No. 13 Virginia.

Tourneys snub 22-4 N. Texas

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — North Texas State, which had the biggest turnaround of any school last season after a poor record in 1974-75, apparently will have to do even better next year if it hopes to play any postseason games.

The Eagles posted a 22-4 record, seventh best in the nation, after finishing only 6-20 the previous season.

But both NCAA and National Invitation Tournament selectors ignored the Eagles, which left NTSU Coach Bill Blakeley shaking his head.

"They should rename their tournament 'the EIT' for Eastern Invitational Tournament," Blakeley said Monday when he learned that NIT selectors had left out the Eagles in favor of 12 other teams, most of them from the East.

North Texas' record was 16-4 against major college competition but two of the teams it lost to, Bradley and West Texas, also were defeated by the Eagles during the season.

"Our kids have picked themselves up by their bootstraps," Blakeley said. "We set some goals at the beginning of the year. I told them that if we reached them, we could win a berth in a postseason tournament. We accomplished everything we set out to do, but we're sitting here at home."

North Carolina State (19-8), San Francisco (23-7), Kansas State (20-7), St. Peter's (19-10), North Carolina-Charlotte (21-5) and Holy Cross (21-9) were Monday's final selections for the NIT.

Hopkins to fly with Wing-T

BY TERRY WILLIAMSON
Jerry Hopkins, Midland High's new football coach, made his Tall City debut Monday night before more than 100 Bulldog boosters in a reception at the MHS Youth Center. Hopkins, who comes to Midland from Seguin where he posted a five-year record of 36-19-1, told the boosters that "trying to teach the kids to try to win is the most important thing in football."

"I think it would be a great injustice if we didn't teach our players to try and win," Hopkins said. "Winning is important and we want to win here."

Hopkins has been in Midland only a few days, but he already is in full swing and has met with his 1976 squad. "I think I know most of the names of the players and positions they have played, but I don't know all the faces that go with the names yet," Hopkins related.

WHEN THE Bulldogs take to the gridiron next fall, Midland High fans will see a new Wing-T offense and a 5-2 defense.

"I've used the Wing-T and the 5-2 all of the 16 years that I've been coaching," Hopkins told the group. "I think the Wing-T is adaptable to whatever talent you have. You have to live with the home grown boy because you can't recruit in high school.

"A lot of people used to say that I'm behind the times, but Darrell Royal used the Wing-T one year and won a championship, and then everyone said I was ahead of the times. Formations go in cycles, but we've stuck to what has worked for us."

Things have worked pretty well for Hopkins in the past. He has an overall record of 144-42-3 in 16 years. He also has eight district titles and three state crowns to prove the Wing-T works.

Fairmont wins, but 3 seeded teams tumble

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Three seeded teams fell by the wayside Monday in first round action of the NAIA national tournament with third-seeded Alcorn, Miss., the most notable casualty.

Lake Superior State, Mich., here by virtue of something of a miracle in the first place, whipped heavily favored Alcorn, 88-79.

The other upsets found Lincoln Memorial, Tenn., knocking off seventh-seeded Guilford, N.C., College, 101-95, and Doane College tumbling 12th-seeded Norfolk State, 80-79.

Other first-round action Monday saw top-seeded Fairmont, W. Va., survive a scare to pull out a 58-52 victory over Howard Payne, Tex.; Illinois Wesleyan whip Southwest Baptist of Bolivar, Mo., 100-84; Coppin State whip Bowling Green 78-55; California Baptist overcome previously undefeated Henson College 91-85 and Texas Southern out West Florida 81-59.

Lake Superior Coach Ed Douma

said his club had a little luck riding with it Monday night, but not as much as the playoff game which brought them to the nationals.

"We played Grand Valley State (Mich.) and we were 23 points down with 18 minutes to play and 11 down with 2 1/2 minutes to play," Douma recalled. "We tied the game, took it into overtime and fell five behind with 1 1/2 minutes to play in the overtime. Then we won by one."

Lake Superior gave notice to Alcorn it had a battle on its hands by building a 46-44 halftime edge. Alcorn showed a spurt of the brilliance that brought it to national prominence when it took a 49-48 lead in the second half, then stretched the margin to 57-50 with 14:02 left. That was the high-water mark.

Fairmont State, now the only unbeaten team in the tourney with a 28-0 record, shook off an upset bid by Howard Payne by hitting eight straight points down the stretch to pull away.

An urgent message

The oil industry must stand up and be counted as favoring the free enterprise system — a system which has made this nation the "greatest country in the world."

This was the urgent message voiced by Congressman Harold Runnels, D-N.M., in addressing a joint meeting of the Permian Basin Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute and the International Association of Drilling Contractors here recently.

"Everyone should be educated as to what the free enterprise system is and what it means," Runnels said.

He explained that it means profits, and profits mean jobs and many modern conveniences, and "most important profits mean a high standard of education, hospitals, churches and a high standard of living."

This was a tremendous "sermon" in itself, and it is hoped that everyone felt the full impact of its significance.

The oil industry has done and is doing a great job in battling for its very survival, but it actually is the free enterprise system which it is defending.

It really is free enterprise which many of the opponents of oil and gas are after. Without free enterprise, there would be no petroleum industry as we know it today. Neither would there be any other of the great industries which have helped build this great and free nation.

This is what free enterprise means... and this is what Runnels was talking about. Other industries should not be naive enough to think that nationalization, for instance, would stop with oil.

Runnels, in his masterful address, said the domestic petroleum industry faces a bleak future "unless we become involved in the game of politics right now." He said the nation is in "financial and energy trouble now."

"I am perturbed about what is going on in Congress," he said. "This year our spending deficit will be $75 billion. And, President Ford is urging that we lower that figure to $50 billion next year. That is money spent that we do not have.

"And we haven't improved our energy situation since the valves were closed on Middle East oil in 1973. At that time, we were 40 per cent dependent on foreign oil. Now, it is 43 per cent."

He went on to explain that if the OPEC countries ever again decide to close their valves, the U.S. would be brought to its knees in a matter of months.

This is a serious predicament, indeed. One wonders why all members of Congress do not grasp the seriousness of the situation. Oil state congressmen do not represent enough people.

"There is a narrow strip in the East that outnumbers us by the millions, and it is their representative that must be convinced that the oil industry and the country are in trouble," Runnels said.

"Those people in the East want only one thing — gas and oil — and as cheap as they can get them," he continued.

Yes, those very same people would break up the oil industry... wrecking it completely. And they seemingly don't care if free enterprise goes down the drain as a result of their hatchet work.

"If they think that the oil industry is a monopoly, they should look at other industries if they are interested in breaking up something just because it is big," the New Mexican declared. He cited news-gathering concerns, automobile manufacturers, television networks and computer companies as examples.

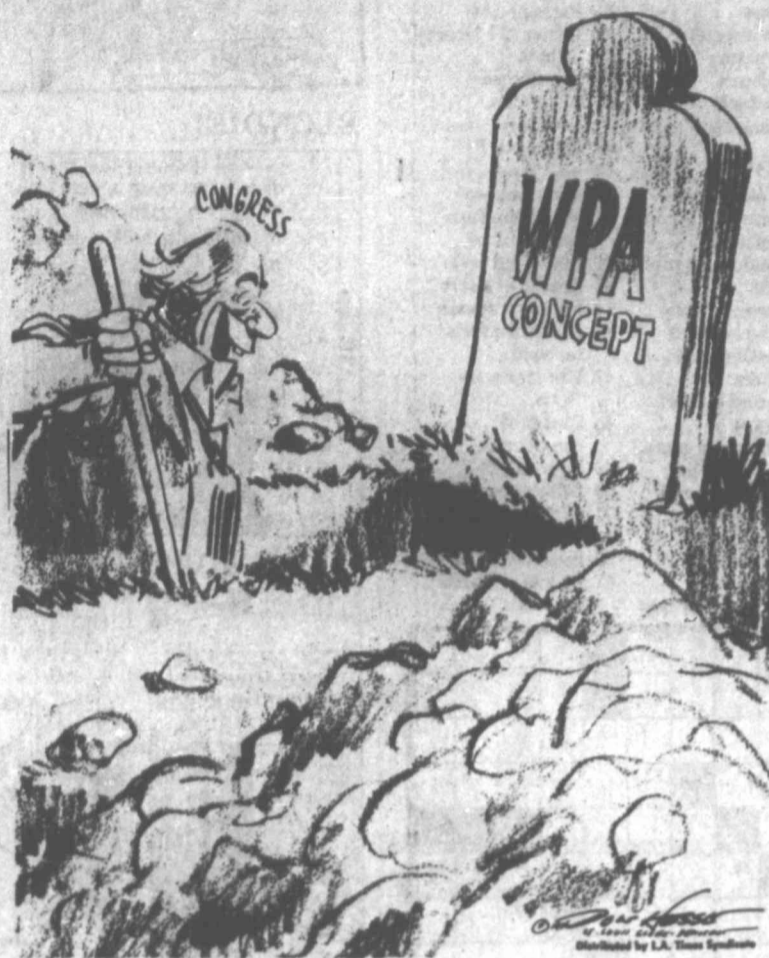

He went on to say that of the 12 candidates for President, not one is waving any flags or campaigning for the betterment of the oil industry.

He pointed out that the oil industry is being "out spent and out bought" by organized labor.

He said also that new energy sources must be developed as quickly as possible, no matter what they are.

It was a great message — one which must be preached again and again across the width and breadth of the land.

CIA traps falcons for sheikhs

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The Central Intelligence Agency has trapped rare falcons in Alaska and has presented them to Arab sheikhs. For a prize falcon is one of the most valuable gifts the CIA can offer an Arab potentate who has everything.

In some sheikhdoms, an agreement is cemented with the gift of a falcon. It is more binding than a handshake or a signature.

Middle East monarchs reportedly will pay up to $25,000 for a fine falcon. The most magnificent are peregrine falcons and gyrfalcons. But because they are an endangered species, it is against U.S. law to export them without a permit.

Arab falcon fanciers routinely are denied permits. But for a favored sheikh, the CIA can arrange an occasional falcon. Inside sources tell us that the CIA has wangled secret permits to export both peregrine falcons and gyrfalcons to the Middle East for bargaining purposes.

For someone without the right CIA connections, however, trafficking in falcons can be risky. A wealthy Chicago businessman, named Anthony G. Angelos, hoped to entice Sheikh Zayid of Abu Dhabi into a business deal by presenting him with a pair of falcons. Unable to get a permit, Angelos plotted to smuggle two peregrine falcons out of the United States.

The sheikh, a swashbuckling desert chieftain who heads the oil-saturated United Arab Emirates, is an avid hunter. His proudest possession is a flock of 50 prize falcons. When he gets bored with the affairs of state, he takes off for Pakistan with his falcons for several weeks of hunting.

The sheikh rides into the fields, with a fierce falcon perched on his fist. When he lets the falcon loose, the majestic bird soars to great heights, sometimes as high as 2,000 feet, and begins circling.

Its sharp eyes can spot the quarry — a small quail, say, or rabbit — far below. Then the great bird folds back its wings and dives, hurtling through the air at incredible speeds of up to 180 miles per hour.

As the falcon approaches the ground, it forms a fist with its large claws, slams the prey and stuns it. Almost instantaneously, the amazing falcon opens its claws, clutches the prey and soars again into the sky.

Experienced hunters describe the flight of the peregrine falcon as a breathtaking sight. In olden times, peregrines were restricted to nobility; ordinary citizens caught with the birds could be put to death. A pair of peregrines, therefore, was a gift fit for the sheikh of Abu Dhabi.

The enterprising Angelos recently began making discreet inquiries about obtaining a couple of contraband falcons. But the word got back to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife

ART BUCHWALD

He still has a great game plan regardless

WASHINGTON — What happens when a presidential candidate becomes a noncandidate after being defeated in the early primaries.

I ran into one sitting on a park bench in Lafayette Square the other day, gazing across the street at the White House.

He was all alone, and I hated to break into his reverie.

"It's a nice house," I said, trying to think of something to say.

"We could have made it nicer. My wife was going to redecorate the entire second floor," he replied. "We were going to have great parties and dances, and I was going to order new uniforms for the White House guards. I had a lot of plans for the place."

"It must be tough to be a presidential candidate one day and nobody the next," I said. "What do you miss the most?"

"My Secret Service detail. They were a great bunch of guys. They drove me anywhere I wanted to go. I never had any trouble getting a hotel room or on an airplane. You can't imagine how it feels driving down the main street of a town with six men running alongside your car. They searched every place I was going to appear, and they watched my house day and night. It was the only time I really felt safe in Washington."

"I guess once you drop out of the race, there is no danger to your life any more."

Art Buchwald

"That's what you think. How about all the people who contributed to my campaign and saw their money go down the drain? I need the Secret Service now more than I did during the primaries. There are a lot of people mad at me because I didn't do better."

"I forgot about them."

"I also miss the press. People think presidential candidates don't like the press, but they're wrong. Those cameras and lights and fellows poised with their notebooks really gives you a sense of power. Ever since I dropped out, not one person has asked me where I stand on abortion. Do you want to know where I stand on abortion?"

"Not particularly," I said. "I'm more curious as to what you thought happened to you in New Hampshire and Massachusetts?"

"My campaign staff did a lousy job; I didn't have enough money; the people weren't interested in my plans for nuclear energy; the weather was lousy so my constituents didn't turn out; I couldn't get on the good TV shows, and my car broke down in Worcester. But I'm not blaming anyone."

"It takes a big man not to blame anyone for his defeat."

"I thought the press was wrong to play up my labor support. They never did give the correct version of my stand on busing, and the Catholics, Jews and Protestants never gave me the help I needed in their neighborhoods. The blacks and women were coned by my opponents, and the senior citizens misunderstood my Social Security reforms. Outside of that, I think I ran the best campaign of anyone in the race."

"It sounds that way to me," I said. "What now? Have you given up your presidential ambitions?"

"No, I haven't. As I see it, Jimmy Carter, Scoop Jackson and Mo Udall are all going to come to the convention thinking they can trade off enough delegates to win it. But George Wallace is going to stalemate them. Hubert Humphrey will then make himself available, but Carter, Jackson and Udall will be so angry that they worked their tails off, they will refuse to give it to Humphrey. So they'll look for a compromise candidate."

"That only leaves Fred Harris and Milton Shapp," I said.

"And me. I'll offer Carter the Vice Presidency, make Humphrey secretary of state, Udall secretary of defense and Mayor Daley attorney general."

"What about George Wallace?"

"He can be ambassador to the United Nations."

"It's a heckuva game plan, if you can swing it."

The defeated candidate looked across at the White House once more. "How would you like to be my press secretary?"

"Wow, would I! What do I have to do?"

"Just tell me which bus I take back to Bethesda."

THE BIBLE CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER

1. Over 1,000 years B.C., the head of the Israelite nation told his people. "A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall you hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you." Who was he? Acts 3:22

2. What miracle changed the language of the earth? Genesis 11

3. Was it Enoch, Elisha, or Elisha where the wandering Israelites found the twelve wells of water and seventy palm trees? Exodus 15:27

4. What apostle did Simon the tanner have as his guest in Joppa for "many days"? Acts 9:43

5. "So then faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word." Romans 10:17 Four correct... excellent. Three... good.

BIBLE VERSE

"The sower soweth the word." — Mark 4:14

NICK THIMMESCH

Those fanciful John Connally rumors are debunked

HOUSTON — John B. Connally's sturdy corps of fans here only wish the rumors about him being in the presidential race were true. Alas, it speaks of a confusion to note the fanciful tales of a calculated campaign by Connally for somebody's nomination this year. A debunking is in order.

The most eerie scenario is that offered by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller who claims a secret Connally campaign is being run out of San Clemente, Calif. Since that town seems to be preoccupied with real estate and beach-front properties, one must conclude from Rockefeller's shy suggestion that one Richard M. Nixon must be the political promoter he has in mind.

But think of it. Could Nixon, even with his Peking travel stickers, quietly mastermind, say, even a campaign for the constable of Laguna Beach?

Is there no end to this business of assigning all the republic's mischief to the former President? Must the United States be depicted as a new locus for Byzantine conspiracies, just because Nixon resigned office? And isn't Connally shrewd enough to stay the hell away from such an absurd scheme?

Likewise, with the yarn that Connally is trying to win support for the nomination by inviting all the Republican state chairmen to his Pecos ranch next weekend for a friendly barbecue. The vision of 50, count them, 50 state chairmen flocking to the Connally spread to listen to the commanding voice and hear the view of the square jaw, the silver hair and the straight-look-in-the-eye, well, that might be potent politics indeed.

The trouble is that Connally didn't invite the party chairmen; Ray Hutchinson, the Texas state chairman, did (by letter), and Hutchinson invited them for a two-day program, not just to enjoy Connally's barbecue.

The Texas Republican Party will conduct a seminar on March 12, in San Antonio's St. Anthony Hotel, headquarters for the meeting. The seminar will deal with techniques to elect Republicans on the state and local level. The following day, March 13, another seminar — this dealing with congressional races — will be held at the Connally ranch.

The Texas Republicans figure that if 15 state chairmen accept the invitations, and come to San Antonio at their own expense, the turnout will be considered good. Hardly an occasion for Connally to launch a presidential campaign, as rumored in the prints. Now we must study that write-in campaign, conducted in New Hampshire for Connally, by Richard Viguier, an otherwise intelligent man who makes a bundle from the political direct-mail business. Viguier's folly was to run a campaign at his own expense, without telling Connally, and to put his hero on the Democratic ticket instead of the Republican.

One of Viguier's principal accounts is George Wallace, a bona fide Democrat. Anyway, the New Hampshire Viguier campaign was a disaster, but, naturally, caused rumors.

Finally, there's the question of Connally's heavy travel schedule. The man is work-driven, and relishes flying about the world, making financial deals, some of them in Houston's favorite product, oil. Nothing unusual about that.

Connally also hits the fund-raising circuit for his adopted party, the GOP, and makes speeches when he does. Nothing too unusual about that either. He is an assertive man who was disgusted with congressional inaction on developing new energy sources, and he says so whenever he can.

A Connally speech is direct, strong and with no words minced. He tells businessmen that they must show backbone, must explain the American enterprise system in simple terms.

"Don't let a lawyer write a brief," he preaches. "Don't let an advertising man write an institutional ad for you. Tell the people what the facts are." Connally goes on to urge businessmen to speak their minds in the community, to convince other business people, that, for example, "There's more to the oil and gas business than driving up to the pump and saying fill her up."

As a consequence, Connally is very popular with industrial and commercial executives today. Given the timidity of many a poor soul in an executive suite these days — a poor soul more worried about his expense account and pension plan than in debunking much of the nonsense about business — it's natural that Connally is looked to as a leader.

This summer, he will sponsor a "vital issues" program on five college campuses, dealing with finance, inflation and energy problems. Perhaps there will be political speculation on that, too. Anyway, Connally can't get the Democratic nomination (and probably couldn't even as a Democrat) because he left that party. Unless the Ford campaign suddenly collapses, which is unlikely, Connally can't get at the GOP nomination. And though there is considerable independent sentiment across the country, it's far too late this year for even the likes of a Texas dynamo like Connally to muster.

New Low Tar Entry Packs Taste Of Cigarettes Having 60% More Tar.

'Enriched Flavor' idea succeeds—increases taste of new 9 mg. tar MERIT without the usual increase in tar.

You can write today for a study conducted by the American Institute of Consumer Opinion for Philip Morris showing new MERIT delivers as much—or more—flavor than five current leading low tar cigarettes.

Brands having up to 60% more tar than MERIT!

The reason is 'Enriched Flavor.' An extraordinary taste find developed and perfected after years of research at our Richmond Research Center.

And it's only in MERIT. At 9 mg., lower in tar than 98% of all cigarettes sold today.

If you smoke—you'll be interested.

Taste-Tested By People Like You

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of filter smokers were involved, smokers like yourself, tested at home.*

The results were conclusive.

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar than MERIT, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now smoke the cigarette.

MERIT. Unprecedented flavor at 9 mg. tar.
