West German police nab gunman, release hostages

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A gunman who held two hostages for 29 hours at a Frankfurt courthouse and demanded release of an accused robber was seized by police today, authorities reported.

The two hostages, court clerk Dieter Hoss, 32, and Gottfried Schaffrath, 59-year-old salesman, were released unharmed, authorities said.

Details of the arrest were not immediately given or the gunman's identity disclosed.

Police said the gunman was injured in the hip by a bullet from his own gun. Police said the two hostages had jumped the gunman before the bullet was fired.

Armed with two pistols, the gunman took the hostages after a vain effort to force release of 26-year-old accused bank robber Gerhard Linder from court trial early Tuesday afternoon.

Authorities earlier gave the gunman $400,000 ransom and promised him unhindered passage to the airport where a Lufthansa Boeing 727 jetliner was readied to meet his demand for a flight to Cuba. The condition was that the two hostages be released unharmed at the courthouse.

A spokesman for Lufthansa, the West German airline, said, "There are three volunteers for the cockpit and a steward, plus a backup crew which could go along to fly the plane home."

Frankfurt Police Chief Knut Mueller told reporters the decision to comply with some of the gunman's demands was made by the Hessian state government meeting in a crisis session in the nearby capital of Wiesbaden.

Mueller also said there appeared to be signs of growing solidarity between the gunman and his hostages after an initial period of confrontation, and that Hoss was actively participating in the negotiations.

At one point, Mueller said Hoss rejected a police offer to provide a driver for a car ride to the airport, saying "we'll do that ourselves."

Mueller said there had been "very critical phases" in the negotiations and that the gunman had been threatening dire consequences if his demands were not met.

The wiry gunman, wearing a green ski mask, burst into a courtroom Tuesday, firing into the air and trying to free a defendant in a robbery trial. A bailiff pushed the defendant into a side room and the gunman grabbed two hostages.

Over the next few hours, the gunman demanded a flight to Cuba, $3.2 million in ransom and that the prosecutor and presiding judge in the case be swapped for the hostages. These demands were not repeated, however.

Nevertheless, the state radio broadcast the gunman's demand for unhindered passage nine miles to the airport to board the special flight and a statement claiming that maneuvers by more than 150 heavily armed police ringing the courthouse were endangering lives.

President Ford, Carter rack up victories in Florida primary

MIAMI (AP) — President Ford has run his early primary election record to four-for-four with triumph in Florida, and he is in clear command of his Republican contest with Ronald Reagan as the focus shifts to Illinois.

Jimmy Carter, meanwhile, swept past George Wallace in Democratic balloting Tuesday in the state once claimed by the Alabama governor. It was their first head-to-head primary clash in the South — though Wallace was quick to label Florida "cosmopolitan" — "not exactly a so-called Southern state."

Even though the President and Carter emerged clearly ahead, it was — as usual — hard to find a candidate who interpreted his share of the vote as a losing one.

Ford beat Reagan — the former California governor's campaign had claimed a 2-1 advantage over the President six weeks ago — with 53 per cent of the vote. The President picked up 43 GOP delegates to the party's national convention, Reagan 23.

Carter got 34 per cent of the vote in the Democratic race to knock off Wallace, a big winner in Florida in 1972 with a 42 per cent plurality. The Alabama governor got 31 per cent this time.

Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington ran third with 24 per cent of the total vote cast.

Triumph gave Carter 34 of the state's 81 Democratic delegates.

Wallace 26 and Jackson 21. The final Republican vote was 318,844 for Ford, 282,618 for Reagan. Among the Democrats, Carter had 439,870 votes, Wallace 392,105 and Jackson 306,120.

The ballot listed a dozen Democrats, but Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp was the only one besides the top three to actively seek support. He got 31,024 votes, or 2 per cent of the total. That was slightly more than Arizona Rep. Morris K. Udall — who didn't campaign in the state but got 26,257.

Three per cent of the votes — 37,348 — voted no preference.

Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh, who announced suspension of his campaign last week, trailed Udall with 8,552 votes, followed by Miami evangelist Arthur Blessitt, 8,171; profile candidate Ellen McCormack, 7,461; Sargent Shriver, the party's vice presidential nominee in 1972, 5,871; Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia, 5,910; former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris, 5,668; and Idaho Sen. Frank Church, 5,458.

"I'm just overjoyed with the results," the President said of his latest victory. He didn't mention the boasts of his Florida campaign chiefs — that the election had ended the Reagan challenge. "Tonight is not a night to talk about victory, except to thank people for the fine job they did," Ford said in Washington.

With primary triumphs in New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Vermont and now Florida behind him, Ford turns his attention to Illinois. The White House said he will travel to the state for a two-day campaign swing before the primary there next Tuesday.

"I have to tell you that we are all delighted on our side," Reagan said as he watched the Florida returns from Illinois.

3-2 vote rejects zone change bid

By DEBBIE PIERCE

A request for a zone change to allow construction of a drive-in restaurant was narrowly defeated Tuesday by the Midland City Council.

The request, presented at council's previous session last month, was by Ralph Mason and sought a zone change from local retail to local retail-1. Mason wanted to establish a Sonic Drive-In on three lots at 2100 W. Wall St.

Councilman Martin Neill said he still believed the restaurant should be allowed if owners made a provision to have a screening fence and landscaping on the property, and the entrance and exit be off N Street.

Councilman Carroll Thomas reminded the group that the city Planning and Zoning Commission had recommended denial of the request, due to the probable traffic hazard such a restaurant would create.

Thomas said the property on three sides of the lots in question was zoned for an office district. He said these lots, too, were originally zoned office district but changed to local retail to allow construction of a sit-down restaurant. The area is a good potential office space, he noted.

With Councilman Charles Tighe abstaining, the request was turned down by a 3 to 2 vote, Councilmen Neill and Mark Martin voting to approve and Councilmen Thomas and Frank Cahoon and Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. voting to turn down the request.

Council also approved aviation director Col. Wilson Banks' recommendation on the possible location of future rent car service stations at Midland Regional Air Terminal. Banks said future traffic at Terminal will change when the proposed improvements there become a reality, so the present service stations must also be changed.

The location approved will have the service stations about the future road leaving Terminal, located to the south and west of the agencies' maintenance and storage areas. In this way, council agreed, the Terminal area can be reserved for future expansion.

The group also approved a 15-year lease agreement with the rent car agencies.

In other action Tuesday, council: — Approved a three-month lease at $350 per month for National Car Rental at Air Terminal.

— Approved payment of $750 for a three-month extension of a lease for the city's back-up ambulance, with the notation that the vehicle will be returned at the end of this month.

— Approved sale of property at 1708 S. Harrison St. received through delinquent taxes, turned down sale of property at 404 S. Tyler St. because of the low bid price for purchase, and decided to check out further the property for sale at 1232 Elm, 1234 Elm, 1236 Elm and 1238 Elm, 1231 Cottonwood and 1239 Cottonwood.

— Approved a request by the County of Midland for sewer service

Building code changes asked to allow adobe construction

The possibility of construction with adobe is being considered by the City of Midland.

At council's Tuesday session, the group studied a request to modify part of the city's building code to allow adobe construction, which has not been used in the city for several decades.

Mark Maloney of 810 Stanolind appeared before council with the request.

Maloney pointed out that adobe properly constructed could save on heating and cooling costs since it kept homes warmer in winter and cooler in summer than commonly-used construction materials. He said the adobe could be protected from the weather by covering it with a thin layer of stucco. The adobe itself could also be made with an emulsified asphalt base to hold up in higher humidity climate.

The city is currently under the Southern Standard Building Code, according to Public Works Director Fred Baker. The code could be modified to allow adobe construction, but two problems exist with adobe.

Baker said adobe has the ever-present problem of weathering and wear, especially considering the constant use of water sprinklers on city lawns, and the sealing around doors and windows of adobe structures is difficult to do and do right.

Baker said adobe construction is popular in the western section of the country (California, for example) and noted that Midland's seismic zone would be good for adobe, in that this area doesn't have earthquakes as regularly as the western United States.

The council agreed that, since Baker had had some experience with adobe construction and was familiar with the city's building code, the public works director should study the issue more thoroughly, talk to local architects and builders, and make a recommendation to council.

Council gives approval for sale of Belmont, Columbia apartments

By LUANNA CROW

Midland City Councilmen voted Tuesday to sell the old Belmont and Columbia Apartments, described earlier by City Manager James Brown as "a cancer on the city."

Although details have not been ironed out yet, the council approved selling the property to realtor R. C. Maxson who has agreed to raze the Belmont property and rehabilitate, "if possible," the Columbia site. If rehabilitation proves impossible, Maxson has told city officials the old apartments will be removed. Six months would be required for completion.

Maxson's offer involves paying $23,000 toward more than $40,000 in delinquent taxes not paid by the previous owner, Montreal Securities of New York. Maxson had managed the two properties, both located within a block of Edison Freshman School, for Montreal.

The city obtained the property when it was struck off at a sheriff's sale, but Maxson also obtained a judgment against Montreal right on the heels of the city authorities. Neither the city nor Montreal, however, holds the deed to the apartments.

During the council's Feb. 24 meeting, Mayor Ernest Angelo read a letter from Maxson charging the city had no right to the property. However, City Atty. Joe Nuessle told councilmen Tuesday Maxson no longer is contesting city authority in the matter.

Nuessle explained that Maxson lost his claim to the property when the mandatory two-year period for redeeming delinquent tax property expired in June.

The city earlier had tried to sell the property, but was obliged to tell potential buyers about the missing deed, a problem which Brown feels "could be surmounted by a little more effort."

Maxson already is aware of the title problem and had, in fact, sought its whereabouts himself.

Although council members discussed the possibility of opening the property for bids, they decided against that procedure. "I sort of feel an obligation to Maxson," Brown said. "I feel like he ought to have first crack at it."

Nuessle presented the council with Maxson's financial records pertaining to the two old apartment complexes. He said the records indicate only a minimal profit during the past eight months for Maxson who has continued to manage the property.

The city attorney said he would negotiate a formal agreement with Maxson and present it to council members at the next meeting.

He told them, however, he would seek a purchase performance bond for removal or renovation. He said also he would investigate time

They also awarded the contract for a Universal weight machine to be used at Edison Freshman School to Taylor Sporting Goods, Inc., of Midland. Cost is $3,472.40. agreements as well as "some fairly accurate description" of standards for cleaning up the Columbia Apartments.

The two apartments have been described as a safety, fire and health hazard by both city and school officials. Personnel with the Midland Independent School District have expressed additional concern because of the proximity to a major school.

Dr. James H. Mailey, superintendent, said, "That's great," when told the outcome of the city council vote. He said their decision and the provisions which likely will be attached to the sale reflect "exactly the feelings of the school board."

R. L. Williams, principal of the neighboring Edison Freshman School, echoed Mailey's sentiments. In addition to the improved safety conditions near the school, he said, "It'll be wonderful to look across to the Rankin Highway and not have to look at all that."

Sailors form new club

The Destroyer-Escort Sailors Association has been formed to provide communication and fellowship among the thousands of men who served on these ships during World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam conflict.

There are few of the original vessels remaining, even in the mothball fleets. The primary mission of destroyerescorts was anti-submarine warfare, although they performed a variety of tasks.

Any former Destroyer-escort officer or enlisted man in the Midland area may join the association by writing Frank R. Crawford, P.O. Box 1280, El Cajon, Calif., 92022.

Bailey, witness engage in verbal warfare

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For an entire day, Patricia Hearst's attorney and a government witness waged a verbal battle that was a virtual standoff — and left the defendant all but lost in the war of words.

Miss Hearst, on trial for a terrorist bank robbery, heard her name mentioned fewer than a half-dozen times Tuesday, prompting U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter to sigh at one point, "We're losing sight of the Hearst trial."

Her attorney, F. Lee Bailey, and psychiatric expert Dr. Joel Fort traded thinly veiled insults and lengthy questions and answers tinged with sarcasm on matters dealing with Fort's attitudes and qualifications.

Bailey was expected to complete his cross-examination of Fort today, and U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. planned further questions as he tries to prove Miss Hearst was a convert to terrorism and thus took part in the bank robbery willingly. Miss Hearst says she participated only in fear of her life.

During the course of one argument outside the presence of the jury, the defense counsel conceded that Fort's testimony suggesting his client willingly became a terrorist was the most damaging yet.

Alluding to the jurors, he said, "If they accept his opinion, that's the end of the case."

Twice on Tuesday, the judge mildly prodded Bailey to wrap up the interrogation. When he once reminded Bailey that he had said he would finish by the end of the day, the attorney replied, "I'm trying to get to it but I'm getting some very long answers."

Obviously impatient at times, the attorney snapped at Fort once, "Can't you answer a question without delivering a lecture, doctor, or do you insist on it?"

Fort replied that lengthy answers were frequently necessary because Bailey was distorting his views.

"Your way of phrasing questions is based on your own lectures on how to destroy a witness you do not like," argued Fort.

Bailey repeatedly attempted to portray Fort as unqualified to declare, as he did Monday, that Miss Hearst was a dedicated member of the Symbionese Liberation Army when it robbed the Hibernia Bank in April 1974.

Fort had said that Miss Hearst, kidnaped by the SLA two months earlier, found an excitement in the underground that she had never known and embraced it vigorously.

He testified Tuesday that he received a "death threat last week. The threat was if I testified for the U.S. government, I'd be killed."

Bailey asked, "Where did the threat come from?"

"I wish I knew," Fort replied. "Do you know anything about it, Mr. Bailey?"

15 Kentucky miners killed in methane gas explosion

OVEN FORK, Ky. (AP) — A twelve-hour effort to rescue 15 miners trapped six miles deep in a Southeast Kentucky mine ended in despair early today. Rescuers found the bodies of all 15.

Nine of the men had apparently been killed instantly in a methane gas explosion Tuesday, rescuers said. The other six had tried to build an airtight barricade to keep out deadly gas but apparently suffocated when the barricade leaked.

The explosion occurred at the Scotia Coal Co.'s No. 1 Black Mountain mine at 1:15 Tuesday afternoon.

Company officials said 108 men were working underground at the time but all the others escaped safely.

Rescue efforts began immediately and continued through the day. At least eight rescue teams worked in relays, clearing the 8-foot-high passage section by section. They pushed ventilating equipment behind large screens, clearing boulders from the smoky, gas-filled passageway.

Thirteen bodies were found before midnight, said Harrold Kirkpatrick, state commissioner of mines and minerals. The other two were found at 1:20 a.m.

Kirkpatrick said the cause of death could not be determined immediately. He said a full investigation by both federal officials and the mining company would begin at once.

The 15 men, who were in one of several crews working in the mine at the time, were laying rails to be used by mine cars to remove coal from the shaft. They were about four miles from the mine entrance and about 1,600 feet below ground.

The explosion blew out concrete block walls that guide air through the tunnel, according to state police spokesman Steve Owen. Methane gas is found in deep coal seams, and the air helps keep it from collecting in large quantities.

Carl Smithers, retired district superintendent for the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, said the explosion apparently occurred at the company's "A" coal seam.

"A" seam has been classed as gassy ever since they started working on it," he said. "It's been pretty hot with gas the whole time. They have to keep more ventilation in it. They have to check for gas before they go into every working place."

Industry dates back to 1873

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — The California orange industry can be traced to Brazil.

A farmer's wife in Riverside in 1873 sent for two seedless orange trees from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. She planted them near her kitchen door and watered them with dishwater. The trees belonged to the Washington navel variety originally imported from Brazil.

The two trees adapted themselves to the California climate and within a few years an industry was born.

42 persons die in Italian mishap

TRENTO, Italy (AP) — "I suddenly saw customers rush to the window. I looked up and saw the cableway loosening. The car swayed and crashed and the huge bar on its roof smashed down on top with an awful noise."

Franca Scarian, a barmaid, was describing the scene Tuesday when a seven-foot high red cable car filled with skiers plunged 200 feet to the ground near this northern Italian city, killing 42 persons, including women and children. Most of the victims were West Germans.

Only one person survived the crash, a 14-year-old Italian girl. Doctors said her leg and pelvis injuries were serious but that she had a chance to survive.

The cause of the accident was not immediately known. A spokesman for the cableway's management said the eight-year-old system had been inspected by safety officials last November.

Authorities and witnesses gave this account of the disaster:

The cable car, carrying skiers from the slopes of Alpe Cermis, was only 600 feet from the valley station when the cable loosened and sent the car swinging until the steel cable snapped.

The car crashed onto the frozen fields and the huge metal bar connecting it to the cable smashed down on the roof, crushing the cabin like a matchbox.

Patman rites held

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP) — A delegation of about 80 members of Congress flew into this Northeast Texas city today to pay final tribute to Rep. Wright Patman, a quixotic Texas populist who built a reputation as an enemy of big financial interests during his 48 years in Congress.

Patman, 82, died Sunday in Washington of pneumonia. His body was flown here Sunday night for burial.

Funeral services were held at 11 a.m. in the First Baptist Church, with burial in Hillcrest Cemetery.

Long lines of residents of this district slowly moved past the casket Tuesday at the Texarkana Funeral Home. For many of them, Patman was the only congressional representative they knew and their first contact probably came when Patman sent them congratulatory notes upon their high school graduation, a traditional Patman gesture.

House Speaker Carl Albert and minority leader John Rhodes headed the congressional delegation. Reps. Jim Wright of Fort Worth and George Mahon of Lubbock delivered eulogies.

"THINKING" with ODOM
PHILIPPIANS 4:8

My school teacher said to me one time, "Leon, THINK! It may be a new experience for you." She was probably right. She was most of the time. Such may be said of a lot of us if we would be truthful with ourselves.

Have you ever done much thinking about why anyone would want to baptize a little baby? IN thinking through the New Testament we learn three things that baptisms does for the mortal who is baptized. (1) It "washes away sins." (Ac. 2:38; 22:16) (2) It puts one into Christ. That is, into fellowship with Christ. (Ga. 3:26, 27) (3) And last of all, it puts one into the body which is His church. (1 Co. 12:13) But suppose a person does not want to wash away his sins. Suppose he does not want to be in fellowship with Christ. And just suppose one has no desire to be a member of the church of the Living God. We could not force one to become a servant of Christ. God wants people to make the choice for themselves as to whom they will serve. IS THAT NOT CORRECT?

Well, when I think about the matter just a little bit, I am made to realize that should I baptize a little baby I would have to do so WITHOUT his consent. There was never a case of infant baptism but what the child's desires were not even taken under consideration. It would seem as though to this scribe to take a gun and point it at another adult and say to him, "Either you be baptized or die," as to take a little helpless baby in mother's arms and let some uninformed preacher or priest get that infant wet without his consent. Doesn't seem hardly fair to the baby when you think about it.

In the event some reader might be "thinking too hard," let me add to all this that should your infant die, that baby will not go to hell, as some reckless affirm. Calvin was dead wrong when he said, "There will be infants in hell not a span long." Little babies do not need to be baptized for the remission of sins because they have no sins. Little babies do not need to be saved because they are not lost. Babies are not saved because babies are SAFE.

Anyway, if it is not too painful, it is something to think about.

Nifty tip presented on zipper application

By BETTY W. KINSER Copley News Service

A tip on zippers: To prepare your seam for a zipper application, baste seam by machine. Clip every fourth or fifth stitch of the top thread. Press seam open. After finishing zipper application, you will be able to remove the basting with one easy pull on the bobbin thread.

Dear Mrs. Kinser: I enjoy your column and feel as though I'm having a pleasant chat with a neighbor while reading it. I have a problem! I love fabrics and have noticed some pretty hand-washable floral print velvet which is only one yard wide. I don't know how much extra I need "with nap."

I was afraid to wash it before cutting as I have never worked with velvet. I was stupid and destroyed your article on velvet, not realizing it would be valuable to me. —Mrs. Kenneth M. Bray, Emporia, Kan.

Dear Neighbor: Thank you! The floral print velvet is indeed lovely. Just remember to wash with care, following the care instructions to the letter.

With 36-inch-wide fabric you will have a bit of waste because velvet must be folded lengthwise, never crosswise. For "with nap" (if not stated on your pattern) allow at least a quarter-yard extra. Be sure to lay all pattern pieces in the same direction. If you choose to have the nap running "up," the color tone will be darker than if the nap runs "down."

Do not put an iron to velvet! If steam is needed, lower the iron NEAR the fabric, but not on it. The fabric should be face down on a needle board, or on a second piece of velvet that is face up. Your bathroom makes a good steam room for velvet. Turn on all the hot water faucets and close the door. Hang your fabric or finished garment where it can get steam from all sides, and let it be for awhile.

Since this is your first time with velvet, I would suggest a very simple line pattern — one with few pieces, few seams and no complicated details.

Let me know how you get along, OK? We all learn together.

—Staff Photo

Mrs. Kenneth W. Williams, first vice president of the Odessa Branch, AAUW, Mrs. Margaret Harrell, president, Pecos Branch, Mrs. Dan Kallus, president-elect of Midland Branch, and Mrs. Jim

Brig. Gen. James C. Rose, executive director of the Texas Water Development Board and advisor to Gov. Dolph Briscoe, has called upon the American Association of University Women to help avert a water crisis in the state.

Rose, who advises Gov. Briscoe in five areas, state and regional planning, energy, youth, water and the military, said, "Contemporary life not only demands you fulfill a physical role, but that you assume places of public leadership never dreamed of by your pioneer sisters. I would like to challenge you today to devote some of this expertise and leadership to the solution of another problem in our state — the management, development, conservation and the efficiency of our present natural resources."

He was speaking at a guest day brunch held jointly by the Midland and Odessa Branches of AAUW in Midland Country Club, during which officers of the Midland group were elected.

New officers are Mrs. Dan Kallus, president; Mrs. John Knepler, first vice president in charge of programs; Mrs. Cary Geron, second vice president in charge of membership; Mrs. Barton Evans, third vice president, study groups; Mrs. Larry McIntosh, recording secretary; Mrs. E. J. Holm, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Jack Jordan, treasurer.

Kim Sloane of the Odessa Branch announced that the Dallas Branch of AAUW has introduced a referendum and initial proposal altering the organization's policy toward busing of school children. The AAUW now is against busing "as a means of achieving racial integration." Formerly, the organization supported busing, but only as a last resort.

As director of the Texas Water Development Board, Rose is concerned about the shortage of natural resources, water in particular, in the state. He was asking the women to take an active role in curbing these shortages. "The life of women today requires the same inherited ingenuity, courage and resourcefulness as pioneer women had because you are on the new frontier," he said.

He compared Midland County

Judge Barbara Culver, Congresswoman Barbara Jordan and Mary Anne Armstrong, recently named as ambassador to Great Britain, to such pioneer women as Susanna Dixon who survived the Battle of the Alamo and Ma Ferguson, one of three women governors in the United States.

Rose explained that by the year 2020 "the population in Texas will almost double. We will go into that period of time from a little over 12 million to almost 23 million people in our state.

Today about 550 communities maintain a public drinking water supply that does not meet the minimum quality standards that have been laid on by federal law. World population is projected to reach almost six billion human beings by the year 2000."

"We kinda let the energy crisis happen because we failed to act ahead when we had the option to act. Now the same could happen with water, our most precious resource. We just not let that happen," said Rose.

NPA revision to be discussed

Kenneth L. Rinker, TNA executive director, will conduct the forum. Included in the program will be the introduction of the initial draft of the proposed revision of the NPA written by a TNA task force, a slide tape presentation and a question and answer session.

Homemakers given tips on repairing serious wall damage

COLLEGE STATION — Cracks, holes and missing plaster not only make walls unattractive, but also may let insects and moisture into the house.

With only a few tools and supplies, homemakers can repair even serious-looking wall damage.

Cracks in wallboard usually are caused by settling and shifting of the house. Mrs. Patricia Seaman, housing and home furnishings specialist, says. She is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Patching plaster—Must be mixed with water to the proper consistency. Patching plaster is the least expensive patching material. Use it to patch large holes and cracks.

However, holes in walls result from accident, abuse or removal of fixtures or wall-hung items.

For the job you will need patching compound, perforated tape, gypsum board scraps, gypsum board fasteners, putty knife, hammer and screwdriver.

Choosing a Patching Compound

Spackel (powdered form)—Must be mixed with water to the right consistency. Cheaper than the ready-mix, powdered spackel is practical for major repairs. It sets more slowly than patching plaster.

Spackel (ready-mix)—Easy and convenient to use. Ready-mix spackel costs about $2 a quart, but it is ideal for small jobs.

French toys are making their debut in the United States, where their "old world craftsmanship and unique function" are expected to turn on Charlie and Carol just as they have intrigued Mimi and Pierre.

At the moment there are no dolls that cry "mama" in French. But someday, who knows, dolls may cry "mama" with French accents, said Marty Forman, general manager of the five French toy companies that have introduced their lines in this country in a joint venture. There are educational, high fashion, mechanical and squeeze toys and the line includes Christmas ornaments.

"The plush animals are mostly made by hand, the squeeze toys are made of pure rubber, and some of the toys — the crane and the bus — are so different we can't keep toy buyers from playing with them," Forman said.

The lifelike quality of the plush animals is especially emphasized by such toys as the American buffalo and family, which have long silky hair and real leather horns. Such toys are different from stuffed toys, Forman explained, because they are filled with "pure virgin kapok." Stuffed animals which are mass merchandised are made with filler materials. Plush animals, of course, are plush-priced. A 16-inch toy might sell for $40, whereas a stuffed animal of that size might be about half that price.

Squeeze toys for infants include the well known nursery characters, Donald, Mickey, Pinocchio, Bambi and Pluto, as well as pigs, elephants, mules and giraffes. Although these don't have French-sounding squeaks and they resemble their American counterparts, "they are safe, natural rubber rather than imported plastic and other materials," Forman emphasizes. Colors are chewable, nontoxic, and safety whistles do not come out, he maintains.

Although the teddy bear, which makes up 20 per cent of their line, is still the most popular animal with children, a survey revealed, the monkey is now runner-up, Forman says. And they have some interesting-looking monkeys in the line, along with giraffes, black panthers, gorillas and little foxes.

DEAR ABBY

Divorced grandfather feels Cupid's arrow for first time

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I'm crazy, but I am a 55-year-old divorced grandfather who has fallen in love for the first time in my life.

I thought I was "in love" many times before, but those experiences were nothing compared to this.

You will think I am crazy for sure when I tell you that the little lady who has me walking on air has been married and divorced four times!

It's not my style to live with a woman, Abby. I want to marry her. My friends think I have lost my mind to consider marrying a woman with such a poor track record, but I cannot describe the happiness I feel when I'm with her. I know in my heart that the feeling is mutual. It's not our fault that we didn't meet 35 years ago.

Do you think I'm crazy, and what is your advice?—WALKING ON AIR

DEAR WALKING: No, I don't think you're "crazy." I congratulate you on your compassion. I believe you sincerely love this little lady, and if the feeling is mutual, I say, go ahead and marry her. Sometimes it's the last key in the bunch that opens the door.

DEAR ABBY: My husband insists that he doesn't know where he belonged in this situation, and he asked me to ask you.

At his father's funeral, he walked with his mother instead of with me.

His mother was well able to walk by herself, but my husband was at her side, "supporting" her.

I was pushed in the background, along with lesser relatives such as cousins and nieces and nephews.

I am not putting his mother down, but I just want my husband to know where you thought his place was at a time like that.—DAILY READER

DEAR READER: I think your husband "belonged" at his mother's side. But I see no reason why you couldn't have been alongside your husband, too.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a doctor for three years. We are both 29. We live in a nice neighborhood, and our neighbors are wonderful people, except for one thing: Whenever someone in their household becomes ill, they call Dave, my husband.

We were awakened at 4:30 a.m. by a neighbor whose daughter had difficulty breathing. She had a cold, and nose drops would have done the trick.

Abby, this isn't an occasional happening, this goes on all the time. No matter how trivial the illness, they call Dave. He works 18 to 20 hours a day and needs his rest. These neighbors have their own physicians, but they call Dave because he's handy. They never invite us to any of their parties. We hear from them only when somebody's sick.

When they call, I can't say he isn't home because they would see both our cars. We've considered moving, but the same thing would probably happen wherever we went.

How can we get these people off our backs without destroying our friendship?—DOCTOR'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: What "friendship"? Tell them to call their own doctors and to please call Dr. Dave only in an emergency.

Park's planning director finds her job has variety

By JOY STILLEY

AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Marion Knott is still working on the farm where at age 12 she served chicken dinners to help her sharecropper parents out during the Depression.

But now the farm is a 150-acre entertainment complex and Marion Knott at age 53 is director of design and planning for Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park, Calif.

"I was born right on that farm and I've been there all my life," the attractive blue-eyed blonde said on a visit to New York to publicize Bicentennial events in the West. "When I was a little girl I picked berries that my parents sold at a roadside stand."

Raising and selling berries didn't quite feed the four kids of Cordella and Walter Knott, their daughter recalls, and her mother started serving sandwiches, pie and coffee at the stand, an enterprise that grew into the chicken dinners.

"We had such long lines waiting for the dinners," the former waitress explains, "that my father thought there should be something for the people to do and he started a ghost town that eventually grew into the present theme park."

The elder Knott continued to live right in the midst of the bustling park until Mrs. Knott died a year and a half ago. Since then the old farmhouse, where Miss Knott was born, has been used as an office.

"Where we have a freeway and all that traffic now, it was just a dirt road. It was strictly country back in the early days," she says. "Where our Roaring '20s area is now was a dairy farm where I used to play as a child."

"We deal in the history of our country," she says of her choice of the '20s period as the latest in the nostalgia theme started by her father and which includes Fiesta Village, which she created as "a tribute to the Spanish-American heritage in California."

"The 1920s was a great period between the wars, full of excitement and happiness, appealing to people of all ages," she says. "That's what amusement parks are for — to take people out of their problems of the present and put them in a different era."

In her role as designer and planner Miss Knott picks a theme, makes sure that everything, including music and costumes, is in keeping and plans the area in detail.

"From the design to the day we open it's my project. I've had a lot to learn about construction," she admits. "I couldn't design the actual plan, but I can read blueprints, draw to scale, that sort of thing."

What a bond issue!

A $193 million bond issue proposal will be before Houston voters on April 3.

Yes, that's correct — $193 million, which is a whole lot of money, especially outside the realm of federal government spending. A $10 million bond issue ranks pretty high in most West Texas cities.

Yet the mayor of Houston says the city can finance the issue without increasing its tax rate or assessment ratio, due to its growing tax base and superior bond rating.

Houston, of course, is the fastest-growing large city in America, but it still is amazing that a bond issue of such proportions can be handled without an increase in the tax rate. The tax base really has been on the increase. The bonds are said to be critical to Houston's continued growth.

Houston's tremendous growth also is responsible for the urgent need of the capital improvement projects. Progress can be right expensive at times, but it also is wonderful and well worth the expense. It is noted that $89 million of the total bond proposal would be used for paving and topping streets. Midlanders, having had experience along this line, know that street improvements are expensive.

Another $30 million would be used for drainage facilities, and $17 million for parks, including eight swimming pools.

The remaining funds would be allocated as follows: Police Department $14 million, Fire Department $11 million, transit $8 million, general improvements $8 million, health $5 million, traffic control $5 million, libraries $4 million, and solid waste $2 million.

The Houston mayor explained that voter approval also would permit the city to obtain more federal, state and private funds for parks and transit through matching programs.

Houston voters last approved a general obligation proposal, for $145 million, in 1973. And here they go again. More power to them.

A threat to NATO

The "cod war" between Iceland and Britain has been allowed to snowball into a serious crisis for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Iceland is hinting that its "break in diplomatic relations with the British could be followed by withdrawal from NATO and the expulsion of U. S. military forces from the air and naval base at Keflavik.

As one of the nations which is claiming jurisdiction over fishing to a distance 200 miles off its coast, Iceland is allowing an economic grievance to jeopardize its own security and that of its 13 NATO allies. This course cannot be supported, no matter where justice lies in the dispute between British fishermen and the Icelanders. The "cod war" is simply one more reason why the Law of the Sea Conference this year must somehow settle the conflicting claims involving fishing rights in many parts of the world.

The Keflavik base is crucial to surveillance of a strategic area of the North Atlantic and as a fuel stop for transatlantic airlifts in the event of a crisis in Europe or the Middle East. Pressure from the other NATO allies can surely induce Britain and Iceland to consider a truce in their dispute until the Law of the Sea delegates convene again in April. This falling out between two countries that have every reason to be friends has gone far enough.

Florida field workers earn little

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Not far from the luxurious hotels and sparkling beaches of southern Florida, where the affluent live in the sun, lie sandy, snake-infested fields where stoop laborers toil under the sun.

Each is just another pair of hands in the army of migrant workers who harvest the winter vegetable crop.

On some of the great corporate farms, he earns barely enough to pay for three tasteless meals, a filthy mattress to sleep on and a bottle of wine to dull his backache. Unable to pick vegetables fast enough to keep up with the charges that are deducted from his paycheck, he lives in virtual bondage.

We have received complaints that such penance is commonplace in Florida. We sent our reporter Mal Bernton to Florida, therefore, to infiltrate the field crews and to find out what their lives are like.

It was a dangerous assignment. He was warned that the growers sometimes use brute force to keep their field hands in line, that he could not expect protection from the local police and politicians, some of whom are on the side of the agriculture empires.

Bernton dressed in grubby clothes, grew some face stubble and bedded down in a flop house in the town of Immokolee. For two days, he hung around skid row where, he was told, recruiters picked up derelicts to work in the fields.

At last, he was approached by three buxom women who offered him steady work, three daily meals and decent wages. He climbed into the back of a blue van, which he shared with two grizzled old men, both of them in an alcoholic daze.

The van rattled off into the steamy Florida night over dusty, back-country roads, which pushed through scrub pines, scraggly palmettos and everglade swamps. The route took them about 50 miles to a tomato farm south of Naples. It was part of the international farming empire of A. Duda and Sons.

The entrance to the Duda property was marked by a huge "No Trespassing" sign. At the work camp down the road, a ferocious Doberman pinscher strained at his leash and snarled at the new arrivals.

The camp was a depressing place — row after row of battered old trailers upon a parched site that was barren except for scattered, empty wine bottles and tin cans. The wind whipped up the sandy, acrid dust until Bernton had to squint tightly to keep the sand out of his eyes.

Each trailer was divided into four compartments. He shared a tiny compartment with a bleary companion who lurched around at night. The room was streaked with grime and stank of urine. Our reporter slept fitfully on a cot equipped with a filthy, pillowless mattress.

The workers were rousted up with the sun. They crowded into a leaky metal hut for a modest breakfast that was charged against their paychecks. The dreary, starchy meals were overpriced. At the end of the week, at least $42 was deducted from each

HEMISPHERE REPORT: Kissinger revives Latin jealousies

By WILLIAM GIANDONI Copley News Service

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's trip to Latin America rekindled old jealousies among some of the other hemisphere republics.

Kissinger's message to the effect that the United States no longer is willing to turn the other cheek seems to have pained Venezuela, Colombia and Mexico, in particular.

When the secretary went so far as to single out Brazil, a country that seems to think and act more like the United States than the others, for special consideration, some Latin leaders fumed and sputtered in indignation.

Colombia never would get down on its knees to the United States, Colombians commented.

Mexico never will be another Brazil, the Mexicans proclaimed.

Who's Kissinger to go around handing out such honors, the Venezuelans asked.

Clearly, Latin American jealousies have surfaced.

The tendency long has been for the Spanish-speaking countries to try to cut Portuguese-speaking Brazil down to size, a difficult task, as Brazil is three times as great as Argentina in area and twice as populous as Mexico.

What further upsets the other large Latin countries is that Brazil was making far greater economic strides, at least until the oil-exporting countries quadrupled petroleum prices. And Brazil mostly was following capitalist economic patterns in contrast with the socialist schemes they were trying.

Traditionally, Argentina has been Brazil's sharpest rival in South America. But now, with the political and economic chaos that has been compounding itself since the Peronists returned to power in 1973, Argentina seems to be out of the running.

What started the current fuss was Kissinger's nine-day, six-nation visit to Venezuela, Peru, Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica and Guatemala. It was his first extended Latin American trip since becoming secretary of state.

There is no doubt that the secretary would have come in for criticism, no matter what he did.

Latin Americans have chided Kissinger the last two years for not touring the hemisphere.

Yet as soon as it became known he was going to make a swing around the Americas, there were those who insisted the trip was unnecessary, certain to be unproductive, too long overdue.

But he touched a Latin sensitivity when, at a foreign minister dinner in Brasilia, Kissinger termed Brazil "a nation of greatness — a people taking their place in the front rank of nations, a country of continental proportions with a heart as massive as its geography, a nation now playing a role in the world commensurate with its great history and its even greater promise."

Latin Americans know that what the secretary said is true, though they prefer not to hear it.

What is more, the fact that Brazil has been under the rule of a military government almost a dozen years and that most of its progress has come since the last civilian president was run into exile, makes the reminder even less palatable.

Before he left the country, Kissinger and his Brazilian counterpart, Foreign Minister Antonio Francisco Azeredo da Silveira, signed a formal agreement establishing a mechanism of regular, high-level consultations that will lead to intimate and intensive deliberations between the two countries on major world and bilateral issues, as the secretary described it.

It was the first such arrangement between the United States and a Latin American country.

Some non-Brazilians insisted that the new special relationship with Brazil amounted to an effort by the United States to "divide" the Latin American countries.

In actual fact, that division has long existed, although it seemed not to be recognized in Washington.

Mexico, Cuba, Venezuela and, to some extent, Peru have been making an effort in recent years to demonstrate their "independence" of the United States.

The nations of the "Southern Cone" — Brazil, Chile and, to a lesser extent, Argentina — are countries generally in ideological agreement with the United States.

Despite the new arrangement with the United States, though, Brazil seems to be planning to keep a foot in both camps, if possible.

INSIDE REPORT:

Castro's next move worries White House officials

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The chilling prospect that Fidel Castro intends further use of his 12,000 Cuban troops in Angola to "free" South African-controlled Namibia is causing far more concern inside President Ford's White House than Cuba's original Angolan intervention.

Unlike Castro's quick Angolan triumph, a move into Namibia would confront South Africa's predominantly white army and threaten bloody racial warfare. To high officials in Washington, it is out of the question that any such Cuban adventure would go unchallenged.

While the White House vows Castro will not be allowed to use military force again anywhere, the question is how to stop him. One possible answer under tentative discussion is an outright U.S. naval blockade of Cuba itself.

It was precisely this bleak prospect that led the President and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to move against the pro-Soviet, Cuban-backed Angolan independence movement — an action vetoed by Congress. But if Congress balked at such limited aid, would it consent to substantial intervention (such as a naval blockade) in league with the white supremacist South African regime? Castro apparently is sure enough Congress will say "no" to risk overplaying his hand in Africa.

Both congressional reluctance and Castroite boldness are buttressed by the fact a Cuban move to "free" Namibia would be done under cover of international legality, with Castro claiming United Nations support.

Evans Novak

Namibia (formerly Southwest Africa) is legally a UN trusteeship, though South Africa has never relinquished its long control over the huge, sparsely settled territory on its northern border. Accordingly, Cuban military operations in Namibia would be given a superficial sanctity, with or without specific UN action.

The reasoning at high administration levels is that 12,000 Cuban troops were far more than was needed to pacify Angola. That raises the ominous thought that Angola only begins Communist Cuba's renewed pursuit of world revolution.

"We will defend Angola and we will defend Africa," Castro said last December in a speech being sharply scrutinized here. "When we say defend, we mean it. When we say fight, we mean it. Let the South African racists and the Yankee imperialists know it." Realists in the Ford administration are belatedly believing Castro means exactly what he said.

TONG WAR CONCLUDED

While national liberal leaders talked of uniting behind one candidate to stop Jimmy Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination, a bloody backstage struggle between the two top liberal hopefuls — Sen. Birch Bayh and Rep. Morris Udall — was concluded in New York when Bayh suspended campaigning.

The aggressor was Bayh, who after trailing Udall in New Hampshire and again in Massachusetts needed a big win in New York April 6. Consequently, Bayh's campaign had launched what one neutral party pro called a "long war" against Udall: challenging Udall's somewhat skimpy petitions in New York.

With Udall filing delegate slates in only 23 of New York's 39 districts, Bayh had hoped to eliminate him from another nine or 10 because of faulty signatures.

This conflicted with the informal agreement over lunch at Washington's Federal City Club in Washington Feb. 11 among three influential liberal Democrats — Joseph Rauh, veteran liberal leader; Leon Shull, executive director of the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA); and Alan Baron, political adviser to Sen. George McGovern.

They agreed the party's left should unite behind the clear winner between Udall and Bayh in New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

A footnote: Gov. George Wallace's sloppy petitions, filed in 21 New York districts, may be thrown out on a wholesale basis. If so, Wallace will stop up contentions that the party hierarchy is out to get him.

PASSMAN'S THREAT

A House subcommittee's highly unusual rejection of an extra half-billion dollars in military and economic aid to Israel resulted from a private threat by tough old Rep. Otto Passman of Louisiana.

Passman, longtime chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on foreign aid, is a conservative Democrat who describes himself as "very pro-Israel." Nevertheless, he warned subcommittee members that if Israeli aid were raised he would insist on equivalent boosts for Egypt, Syria and other Arab nations.

He got private backing from Secretary of State Kissinger, who informed the subcommittee through Passman that special treatment for Israel would harm President Ford's diplomacy in the Middle East. That marked a switch from Kissinger's earlier approval of the $500 million extra fund for Israel. Under strong political pressure, Kissinger had told Sen. Hubert Humphrey he would not object to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee authorizing the extra amount.

He had a terrible intolerance for intruders. Once he intercepted two investigators from the Florida Rural Legal Services, threatening them angrily. "I ought to blow your heads off," he yelled at them.

A chuck wagon brought a lukewarm lunch of beans, rice and cornbread to the fields. The workers wolfed down the food, stuffing it into their mouths with unwashed hands covered with pesticides and tomato stains.

At the end of the day, the workers were fed another poor meal. Not long afterward, they would line up behind the trailer of the straw boss. It was "wine time." With few exceptions, each worker bought a bottle of wine at triple the store price, then slowly drifted into an alcoholic haze.

As the night wore on, the men would begin to stagger around the camp, sometimes laughing, sometimes quarreling.

By payday, the charges for food, rent and wine had decimated their pay. They would sign over their checks to the straw boss to pay their accumulated debts. Often, they had no money left at all.

Lockheed may have bribed high Japanese officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials have obtained information which strongly suggests that Lockheed bribe money was paid to high-level Japanese officials during the last 10 years.

The information, according to these officials, is based on the private conversations of a prominent former Japanese official. This official has been a principal focus of attention concerning Lockheed payoffs since the scandal broke last month.

A U.S. official who has followed the Lockheed case closely quoted the former Japanese official as telling intimates in Tokyo, "If I get caught, I'm going to take a lot of people with me."

The Japanese official could not be identified, but he was reliably reported to have held a high office in Japan during the latter half of the period covered by the payoffs. The payoffs are said to have begun in the late 1950s when, with American help, the Japanese began rebuilding their military forces.

Lockheed officials have reported payments totalling $12 million to promote airplane sales in Japan, including more than $2 million paid to Japanese government officials.

Several U.S. officials said they doubt that Lockheed documents made available to the Securities and Exchange Commission are sufficiently conclusive to identify any Japanese officials as bribe recipients.

Lockheed's new chairman, Robert W. Haack, told a congressional panel last week that most of the firm's documentation on the Japan payments is in the category of "rumor, gossip and hearsay."

Thus, officials believe that most of the information on the scandal will have to be uncovered by the Japanese themselves, although the Ford administration has pledged to assist the Japanese as much as possible.

At this point, seven weeks after reports of the payoffs began appearing, officials predict that the scandal most likely will not have a long-term adverse effect on U.S.-Japanese relations even though the ruling Liberal

Democratic party in Japan may be in for a tumultuous period in the months ahead.

Nixon reportedly says he didn't pick wiretap subjects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon reportedly claims he did not personally select persons who were the objects of wiretaps early in his presidency, a statement that apparently contradicts the views of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

According to published reports, the former president says in a deposition that he approved an over-all wiretap program in 1969 but left the specific targets to Kissinger, then Nixon's security adviser. The deposition was to be filed in court today.

Nixon's position would appear to conflict with Kissinger's sworn statement that "while his (Nixon's) authorization was in general terms and not limited to specific individuals, my understanding was that he then directed surveillance of Morton Halperin and certain others."

Halperin, a one-time national security aide who was one of 17 persons wiretapped, is suing the former president, Kissinger and others for damages that could exceed $3 million.

Nixon gave the deposition — a question and answer session under oath — at his home in San Clemente, Calif., on Jan. 16 in connection with the Halperin suit. Nixon had sought to avoid giving the deposition but was ordered to participate by U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr.

Four days before Nixon testified, Kissinger said in a sworn statement that when he walked into an Oval Office meeting already in progress on April 25, 1969, Nixon was discussing leaks of sensitive information with FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

"I was told that the President had decided to go back to the previous practice of using wiretaps as the most effective means of discovering leaks," Kissinger said.

He added he was asked to supply the names of key individuals who had access to information that had been leaked and "I was assured that the wiretap program envisioned was entirely lawful...."

Kissinger said Hoover assured Nixon that wiretapping in similar situations had been a common practice in previous administrations.

At that meeting, Kissinger said, Hoover identified four persons as security risks, including Halperin.

"It was my understanding that President Nixon directed surveillance of the persons then suggested by Director Hoover," he said.

Group urges changes in expansion planning

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Research League, a privately-financed organization, thinks some changes should be made in planning for expansion of state agencies around the Capitol in Austin.

Currently, such planning is in the hands of two agencies—the State Building Commission, which plans and oversees construction for state agencies, and the State Board of Control, which manages the buildings after they are constructed.

"The state service agencies still do not know how many employees are on the state payrolls, even in the Capitol Complex," said the League in a special report. "They use different means of projecting future space needs, with vastly different results. There is no state construction plan, even for the Capitol area, which goes beyond the biennial appropriation bill."

The League added that: "For taxpayers, the answers indicate it's time for somebody to blow the whistle."

"The number of new bureaucrats and the amount of space they will require is no academic issue to taxpayers," the Research League said.

"Using even the most conservative estimates, the average cost for constructing the state-owned space for each additional employee probably will approximate $6,000 and the annual cost of salary and fringe benefits will average close to $14,000, not counting future inflation."

The League suggested that state capital planning should be made a permanent feature of the state's regular fiscal planning process and not left to widely differing estimates and plans of the State Building Commission and the State Board of Control.

GOP retreat closed affair

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Major sessions of the Republican State Chairmen's Retreat Friday and Saturday will be closed to the public and press, Texas GOP officials said Tuesday.

The meeting of state GOP chairmen was called by State GOP Chairman Ray Hutchison to discuss local and state races, particularly the congressional campaign.

Both Hutchison and former Texas Gov. John Connally, who will be host to the chairmen Saturday at noon, have denied the session has any connection with reports of Connally as a possible GOP presidential candidate.

State GOP Headquarters said Tuesday there will be a 4:30 p.m. news conference on Friday at the St. Anthony Hotel by Hutchison, followed by a reception for state officials.

The chairmen will convene at 7:30 p.m. for the first session which will be closed to all but retreat participants, Hutchison said.

Irish leader to issue appeal to Americans on arms flow

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave will intensify his government's campaign to curb the flow of money from Irish Americans that he claims bankrolls Irish Republican Army guerrillas, government officials said today.

Cosgrave, a major opponent of the IRA, will launch his high-powered attack on the guerrillas by addressing the U.S. Congress next Wednesday at the start of a six-day visit to the United States.

He will also meet with President Ford to spell out the IRA threat in Ireland and the urgent need for U.S. efforts to crack down on guerrilla fund-raisers and gunrunners operating in America.

Later during his trip, his first to the United States as prime minister, he will address Irish-American organizations.

It is these organizations, the British government claims, that have provided much of an estimated $1.5 million that has been used by the IRA's Provisional wing to buy weapons and explosives since 1971.

The IRA is fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland and unite that Protestant-dominated province with the mainly Roman Catholic Irish Republic. However, it also aims eventually to topple the Dublin government.

Irish and British government ministers have urged Irish-Americans to stop giving money to organizations that claim to be collecting for relief work in war-torn Northern Ireland. Both administrations claim the bulk of the funds go to the IRA.

The British army claims that 85 per cent of the weapons it has captured in Northern Ireland are either U.S.-made or supplied by sympathizers in the United States.

British officials believe Cosgrave's personal appeal to Irish Americans will carry considerable weight. But some Irish officials concede Cosgrave could put his popularity at risk by attacking the IRA at a time of high Irish emotionalism during the St. Patrick's Day celebrations in the United States.

However, there are signs that the recent anti-IRA propaganda campaign waged in the United States by both Britain and Ireland may be paying off. The New York-based Irish Northern Aid Committee, which both governments charge is the main IRA fundraiser in America, has claimed its collections have fallen in the last six months.

Abourezk's son on food stamps

The Washington Post — Charles Abourezk, 22, son of Sen. James Abourezk (D-S.D.), is living on food stamps on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota, officials have confirmed.

Sen. Abourezk, reached by phone, said his son hasn't lived with him for some years, that he went off on his own after he was graduated from Washington's Wilson High School four or five years ago.

The senator said his son goes to a community college on the Pine Ridge reservation.

The younger Abourezk has been receiving food stamps off and on for some months.

In February, he paid $10 to the food stamps office and received $92 in food stamps in return. He is certified for an identical transactions in March.

Three-year freeze voted

The Washington Post — A three-year freeze on current auto emission standards was adopted Tuesday by the House Commerce Committee by a 23-20 vote.

The sponsor of the three-year freeze, Rep. William Brodhead (D-Mich.) described it as a "reasonable middle ground" providing a balance between what the auto industry wanted and environmentalists wanted.

The auto industry, supported by the White House, wanted a five-year delay until model year 1983 in imposing more stringent standards called for under the current Clean Air Act.

E. Emerson Galloway, center, confers with Joe Feagan, left, member of the Natural Gas Men of the Permian Basin, and Darrell Smith, division manager for Texaco here, at Tuesday meeting at Midland Country Club. Galloway, of Houston, Texaco gas department manager, was the meeting speaker.

Fields wells complete in West Texas pools

Four field wells have been completed in West Texas fields. The Myers multiphase field of Sutton County gained a new well with the completion of Way and Mills of Midland No. 1 Hicks in Sutton County. The third Canyon gas well in the pool, it finished for a calculated, absolute open flow of 4,200,000 cubic feet of gas per day. Production is from perforations at 3,127-3,656 feet. Location is 1/2 mile east of the closes production in the field, 19 miles southeast of Sonora and 990 feet from north and 2,223 feet from west lines of section 37, block 14, TW&NG survey. Five and one-half-inch casing is set at total depth of 4,248 feet.

IRION OILER
Amoco Production Co. No. 7-G Ela C. Sugg, drilled as a wildcat, has been completed in the Irion County portion of the Spraberry Trend Area. Twelve miles north of Barnhart, the oiler pumped 36 barrels of oil per day, plus 15 barrels of water, on potential test. Gravity was 36.3 and gas-oil ratio 1,459-1. Production is from perforations at 5,360-6,315 feet after a 30,000-gallon fracture treatment. Drilled to 8,300 feet, the hole has 5 1/2-inch casing at 8,229 feet. Location is 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 104, block 14, H&TC survey.

FISHER WELLS
C. G. Braun & Co. of Houston No. 1 Etheredge has been completed as the second well and 1/2-mile northeast extension in the Pescador (Strawn) field nine miles southwest of Rotan in Fisher County.

On 24-hour potential, the well pumped 51 barrels of 42-gravity oil, plus 60 barrels of water, from pay behind perforations from 6,374 to 6,406 feet under 1,500 gallons of acid and 40,000 gallons of fracture fluid. Gas-oil ratio was 1,842-1. Location is 1,500 feet from north and 1,982 feet from east lines of section 64, block 3, H&TC survey.

The Sylsenter (Goen) field gained its second producer with the completion of R. L. Foree No. 1 Perkins. One location of the other well, No. 1 Perkins finished for a 24-hour flowing potential of nine barrels of 41-gravity oil, through a 3/4-inch choke and perforations from 5,316 to 5,333 feet.

Pay was treated with 500 gallons of acid and fractured with 12,000 gallons. Well site is 3,800 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of T. Ayers survey No. 324.

Kent region gains project

Marshall R. Young Oil Co. of Fort Worth has announced plans to drill a one-location east stepout to production in the weo-well Beggs (Ellenburger) field of Kent County. The project, 16 miles west of Clairemont, is No. 1 George Beggs Trust. Slated for an 8,000-foot bottom, it is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 37, block 7, H&GN survey.

Wildcat tests announced

Musgrave & Thomas of Abilene will drill a 3,500-foot wildcat in Chaves County, and Gene A. Snow of Lovington, N. M., will reenter and cleanout to 1,500 feet in an Eddy failure as a wildcat.

Musgrave & Thomas No. 1 Sams Ranch is 13 miles west of Hagerman, 660 feet from north and west lines of section 7-14s-29e and one mile west of production in the Sams Ranch field. Snow No. 1 Gulf, originally drilled to 6,560 feet in 1973 by Hondo Drilling Co. and abandoned, is 660 feet from north and 545 feet from west lines of section 31-18s-27e.

Gulf Oil makes tax payment

The Washington Post
NEW YORK — Gulf Oil Corp. announced Tuesday that it has released to the Peoples Republic of Angola $102 million in tax and royalty payments that the company had placed in a special escrow account pending resolution of the Angolan civil war. "The next step is to establish discussions with the Angolan government" on resumption of oil drilling operations in that country, a Gulf spokesman said.

Texaco officials says oilmen target of congressional attack

A Texaco Inc. official warned that the free enterprise system in the United States is under attack and that the petroleum industry is the first and foremost target.

E. Emerson Galloway, general

ENERGY OIL & GAS

manager of Texaco's gas department in Houston cited a number of actions either already taken or now under consideration by Congress which extend federal regulation and control of the petroleum industry. "I fear that Congress is more interested in punishing the oil companies than in seeking solutions to cure the shortage of domestically produced energy," he said.

Emerson made his remarks at the monthly meeting of the Natural Gas Men of the Permian Basin at the Midland Country Club Tuesday afternoon.

Speaking of congressional efforts to deregulate natural gas, Galloway mentioned the Smith Bill, recently passed by the House of Representatives, which, he said, "holds out the delusion of deregulation to approximately 3,500 producers but a close reading of the fine print dealing with joint operations, and farm-out and farm-in transactions will greatly reduce the volume of sales getting an exemption from regulation."

Galloway warned "the strategy is to get to the majors first and take care of the independents as soon as it is evident that an adequate gas supply is not forthcoming."

A major portion of his talk was directed to current efforts by Congress to break up the integrated oil companies.

"If enacted, this type of legislation could be the most damaging of the punitive measures taken to date to the ability of the petroleum industry to provide essential energy fuels and products at reasonable prices," he said.

Galloway mentioned a number of "horrible consequences" of divestiture:

— Consumers would pay more for petroleum products because of higher costs arising from loss of efficiency, economies of scale and duplication of management and facilities.

— Shareholders would have the integrity of their securities undermined and placed in doubt while the assets and debts of the integrated company are being allocated to each of the new firms created.

— Divestiture will lessen competition rather than increase it. Divestiture would be the catalyst that speeds the creation of a relatively few high volume outlets and the demise of many small jobbers and dealers.

— The borrowing capabilities of the severed entities would be eroded because of higher risks when operations are confined to only one area of the industry, and under divestiture it would be exceedingly difficult to obtain the required capital funds for future projects.

— Divestiture would discourage the development of new U.S. petroleum supplies and substantially increase our dependence on foreign sources of crude oil and our vulnerability to further cartel price increases.

— Divestiture would make it impossible to achieve the goals of Project Independence. By increasing the risks and decreasing the efficiency of the companies involved in exploration, divestiture would curtail the flow of investment and diminish the supply of crude oil and natural gas.

— Divestiture would be a one-way road to disaster, with no opportunity to turn back. If carefully evolved organizations are suddenly dismembered by congressional fiat, there is no way that the pieces can later be picked up and fitted back together.

"The U.S. economy needs to grow," he said. "This cannot be achieved through negative actions. Our legislators and regulators must be made to realize that the energy companies must be able to expand their operations and this can best be done within the free markets of the private enterprise system."

Mineral Wells official says his city 'soaked'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — City manager Bill Rivers of Mineral Wells says Brazos River Gas Co. has soaked Mineral Wells for higher rates and let nearby towns coast along at old, lower rates.

In a hearing tinged with a couple of emotional outbursts, Rivers told a railroad commission hearing examiner Tuesday that Mineral Wells paid rates up to 30 per cent higher than Weatherford, which also is in the Brazos system.

Rivers and city attorney Jim Ashby testified before examiner John Camp on whether the commission should allow a recent rate reduction to stand.

Last August, the Mineral Wells city council granted Brazos 85 per cent of its requested rate increase after Rivers had recommended granting the full increase.

On Feb. 20, however, also on Rivers' recommendation, the council cut back the rates. The minimum net charge per meter per month, for example, was lowered from $3.53 to $3. This would be for the first 1,000 cubic feet of gas. The charge on the next 3,000 cubic feet was reduced from $2.11 to $1.68.

"Mineral Wells was derelict in its responsibility as a rate regulatory agency," said Austin lawyer C. C. Small Jr., representing Brazos. "It ignored the facts and circumstances presented to support the rate increase. It was an irresponsible action on the part of the council."

Another Brazos lawyer, Duncan Gault of Mineral Wells, said the cost of gas to Brazos from the Palo Pinto Field had risen from 36.5 cents per thousand cubic feet in November 1973 to 87.5 cents in August 1975 and to $1.26 in January.

"There is no way the company could survive under the rate reduction proposal," said Gault.

Even with the reduction, said Rivers, Mineral Wells' rates "are still higher than in Weatherford. This is apparent discrimination."

Asked why he had changed his recommendation on rates, Rivers said he decided Brazos "did not need the amount of money they said they did as shown" by the company's failure to pursue higher gas rates in a nearby cities.

Testers set in WT areas

A Wolfcamp wildcat and a long field outpost have been announced. HNG Oil Co. of Midland No. 1-48 Jackson Unit will be tested for Wolfcamp production in Ward County, 10 miles southeast of Ptole.

The project, temporarily abandoned in December 1975 at 17,910 feet, will be tested above 12,900 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from southwest and 1,320 feet from northeast lines of section 48, block 54, M&TC survey.

Texaco Inc. No. 1 C. S. Moore is a 2 1/2-mile south outpost to the Nine Mile Draw (Fusselman) field in Reeves County.

Slated for a 14,220-foot bottom, it is nine miles southeast of Toyah and 2,900 feet from south and 4,222 feet from west lines of section 22, block 54, T-7, T&P survey.

Deep test slated in Atlantic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department has given approval to plans to drill a 17,000-foot-deep hole in the ocean bottom off New England as a first step toward possible oil and gas exploration there.

The hole will be drilled 75 miles east of Cape Cod in the Georges Bank. Work will begin after a similar probe off the coast of New Jersey is completed.

The Georges Bank probe is designed to bring up samples of sand and rock that lie beneath the 140 feet of water. It is not intended to find oil or gas deposits.

The first step in offshore petroleum exploration will come in May, when a proposed sale of oil and gas leases for the mid-Atlantic region is scheduled. A sale of leases for the North Atlantic is tentatively scheduled for August.

The drilling is being conducted by Ocean Production Co., for a group of oil companies cooperating as the Continental Offshore Stratigraphic Test Group.

The department said 31 companies would divide the estimated $9 million cost of drilling the Georges Bank sampling hole and share the information derived from it.

Board takes second look at proposals

By LUANNA CROW

School board members were expected to approve plans for stadium dressing facilities during their Tuesday meeting, but, instead, ended up taking a second look at the idea.

The trustees earlier had agreed to ask for plans for women's dressing facilities at Midland Memorial Stadium, partly in response to the new Title IX statute forbidding discrimination on basis of sex.

Renewed discussion of the matter came when trustee Johnny Warren called the project a stop-gap measure which would fail to remedy the crowded conditions in the Midland High School physical education facilities.

The proposed dressing facilities would be used largely by Midland High students because adequate facilities exist on the Lee High campus. The Midland students would ride a shuttle bus to the nearby stadium. Audrey Gill, Midland High principal, explained the space situation at his school, telling trustees the grounds daily marching not contain enough space to time for the band as well as physical education activities in the fall.

The high school was built in 1949, utilizing part of an old junior high school erected in 1927. Additions were made in 1952, 1956 and 1958.

Located near downtown Midland, the school now is boxed in by both businesses and private residences.

Trustees inquired about using the Midland High School Annex (formerly North Elementary School) to provide growing room, but Gill said the annex is almost completely utilized for school programs.

L. A. Klebold, director of school plant maintenance and grounds, told board members the annex campus is only 300 feet square, smaller than they had anticipated.

Following additional discussion, the board went into executive session to discuss the possible purchase of property. No action was taken.

In the meantime, they tabled action on plans for the dressing facility which would cost an estimated $100,000.

Warren earlier had said trustees should investigate acquiring more land for Midland High "regardless of future planning" for the city's secondary education program.

He pointed out Midland High "doesn't even have as much room as Austin or Edison (Freshman Schools) or even San Jacinto (Junior High)." He noted, too, the school has a severe space shortage for parking. "I don't see the problem getting any better. I would like to at least look at the economics (of acquiring more land)," Warren stated.

Gil Tompson was another trustee who expressed some concern about the wisdom of erecting a dressing room facility without any further deliberation.

"I don't think we've thought it through carefully enough," he said. "And I'm not sure it (an added facility) is in the right place."

Although citing the need to encourage sports participation among the women students, Tompson said he was alarmed at the high price of the proposed dressing facility.

Telephone Pioneers meeting here today

The Telephone Pioneers of America, Lubbock Council, is meeting today at the Ramada Inn, 3601 W. Wall Ave.

All Linder of Amarillo, president of the group, said membership is open to any active or retired telephone company employe with 19 or more years of service. Dues are $3 annually.

The four chapter executive officers are meeting in Midland to report on club projects in various communities and "emphasize" future plans, Linder said.

Officers of the Lubbock Council, which covers all of West and South Texas as far east as San Antonio, are: Gertie Grosskopf of Austin, president; Jim Deal of San Antonio, first vice-president; Chester Nelle of Austin, second vice-president and George Brooks of San Antonio, secretary-treasurer.

Linder, an engineering associate in Amarillo, is president of the Lubbock Council. Laverne Moler is president of the Midland chapter.

Projects of the Telephone Pioneers include repairing talking books for the blind and converting teletype machines for the deaf to use in emergencies, Linder said. The group also manufactures "beep" baseballs and field equipment so blind persons may play the game, he said.

The Lubbock Council recently donated a $5,000 kidney dialysis machine to Hendricks Memorial Hospital in Abilene.

The group also works with the poor, elderly and retarded children, Linder added.

The Telephone Pioneers is basically a "community service" organization, but they share in fellowship activities. They take care of members and their families when emergencies or illness occurs, Linder added.

Over 99 per cent of eligible telephone company employes belong to the group, Linder noted.

Problems of business, industry to be analyzed

Problems facing business and industry will be analyzed and discussed in an industrial relations seminar to be held Thursday at Ranchland Hill Country Club.

The seminar is being sponsored by the Midland-Odessa membership of the Texas Association of Business (TAB), formerly the Texas Manufacturers Association.

Seminar leaders, their business-industry roles, and topics of discussion will include:

Luther Holcomb, an executive for Shell Oil Co. in Houston, discussing problems and problem-solving.

E. E. Graves, assistant district director for the Texas Employment Commission (TEC), outlining TEC's account executive program.

Dan Kahonec, TEC's supervisor of appeals, offering time- and money-saving tips on handling of a company's unemployment compensation cases.

B. D. "Bill" Chandler, administrative director for the Southwest District of Phillips Petroleum Co., Odessa, talking on the 1974

Pension Reform Act. Jack Camden and Martin L. Barrow of the Department of Labor's Wage and Division office in Midland, discussing changes in the minimum wage, employers' responsibilities with regard to the Age Discrimination and the Equal Pay Act, and provisions of the Child Labor Law.

The seminar, open to those inside and outside of TAB membership is to attract TAB members from Midland, Odessa, Lubbock, Abilene and San Angelo.

Registration fee is $10 per person. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. Thursday, and the seminar gets underway at 9 a.m.

Companies wishing to be represented at the seminar may contact TAB's office in Midland at 684-7881.

Holcomb, the program's featured speaker, for nine years was vice chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in Washington, D.C.

Seminar on arthritis scheduled for Thursday

SAN ANTONIO — "Arthritis Update," a seminar for health professionals, is scheduled for Thursday at Midland Memorial Hospital.

The seminar doctors, which will feature four, will originate from the University of Texas Health Science Center in San Antonio at 12:30 p.m. It will be received in Midland by means of a live two-way communications hookup with the San Antonio school.

Dr. Daniel McCarty, who first isolated "pseudogout" as a separate arthritis type, will discuss recent advances in its treatment.

Additional information will be presented concerning new medications for arthritis, new diagnostic techniques and the value of fluid analysis from inflamed joints.

Panelists will include Dr. McCarty, professor and chairman of medicine at the University of Wisconsin Medical College; Dr. Charles Singleton, clinical assistant professor of medicine at the U.T. Health Science Center and director of rheumatology at Wilford Hall U.S. Air Force Medical Center and Dr. James Wild, clinical instructor of medicine at the U.T. center.

Moderator for the discussions will be Dr. Robert Persellin, professor of medicine at the San Antonio center.

Area information calls answered here

When you dial long distance information anywhere in area code 915 there's an even chance the operator who answers will be in Midland. By the end of March it'll be a sure thing.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. this week began operation in Midland of the area 915 Number Plan Area. Initially, about 50 per cent of the directory assistance calls reached by dialing 535-1212 are being handled by operators on the fourth floor of Southwestern Bell's new building downtown. Royce Brookmole, district manager, said today.

By March 28, the Midland office will take on the entire operation.

Location of the operation in Midland has created 45 new jobs in Midland, Brookmole said, and by May that number will have reached 94. Some of these jobs were filled by transfers of Bell personnel from surrounding cities. Some new operators were hired locally.

The area served by area code 915 is the largest in Texas, Brookmole said.

"This is the first development of several to come to Midland," he said.

"The others will include conversion to electronic switching, which means faster service with some modernistic optional features. In about a year we will have conversion of zero-plus dialing, making it possible to dial calls which now must be placed through an operator."

By 1979, he said, Midland will be the headquarters for all directory assistance throughout the 915 area, including local assistance in other cities throughout the area, which stretches from El Paso on the west to Llano on the east, and from north of Seminole to the Big Bend.

Brookmole, in announcing the new operation, noted that today is the 100th anniversary of the Bell System.

Group elects W.L. Tarver

Fire Marshal William L. Tarver was elected first vice president of the Arson Investigators of the State of Texas.

He is to assist in the control of arsonists and is next in line to the office of president should it be vacated.

Tarver learned of the position Tuesday night when received a call from Austin's Fire Marshal Jim Laughlin.

Bobby Vinton back again

Copley News Service HOLLYWOOD — Frank Sinatra did it first: the long slide into oblivion and then the comeback into enduring superstar status.

Now it seems to be the turn of Bobby Vinton, the teen-age idol of the sixties who for awhile stayed frozen in time with that decade, but now has surged to the top out of nowhere in the middle of the seventies.

It's a new, more mature Vinton this time around. The voice is richer and more powerful, the phrasing taking on a master's touch.

What launched Vinton this time was a single he recorded awhile back for ABC Records called "My Melody of Love," a salute to Bobby's Polish heritage. Vinton backed the song with his own money, and it rose to No. 1 in the country. So did Vinton, with his own TV show and those lush, lucrative appearances in Las Vegas and elsewhere.

Democrats on panel say Ford budget 'stingy'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats on the congressional Joint Economic Committee said today that President Ford's proposed $394-billion budget is so stingy it will point the nation into another recession while doing little to curb inflation or create needed jobs.

In the committee's annual report, the Democrats called for sharp spending increases, the creation of one million emergency jobs and a voluntary program to limit wage and price increases.

They said adoption of their recommendations will result in a total budget outlay in fiscal 1977 of between $412 billion and $418 billion, some $16 billion to $24 billion more than the President proposed. The new fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

The majority report, which was opposed generally by the committee's Republicans, also said increased spending will not add to the federal budget deficit because the spending will trigger increased tax revenues and cut spending for unemployment insurance, food stamps and other support programs.

The 378-page report bears the stamp of Committee Chairman Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., who said administration proposals will weaken recovery and perhaps interrupt it altogether. The report constitutes a major Democratic attack on Ford administration economic policies in an election year when the economy will be a major issue.

The committee's Republicans, led by Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, said the Ford administration's optimism about the economy will be justified if Congress can be prevented from enacting the majority's recommendations.

However, the GOP minority report itself said that, "Optimism about the solid recovery which is now underway must be tempered somewhat by the concern for the lingering unemployment of Americans who have been affected by the recent recession."

The report said the President's estimated budget deficit of some $43 billion actually will be nearly $60 billion because of administration over-optimism which the report said

"cannot be taken seriously."

Meanwhile, there were these economic developments:

—The president of the National Association of Home Builders said Tuesday the government must reduce its role in the housing markets if the industry is to provide people with reasonably priced housing.

John C. Hart, an Indianapolis builder, said builders are becoming disenchanted with the rental subsidy program because it is not producing any new housing units.

Kissinger rejects atomic fuel proposal

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Tuesday rejected proposals that the U.S. and the Soviet Union cooperate to halt nuclear weapons proliferation by threatening to shut off atomic fuel to France and West Germany.

Such superpower cooperation, proposed by Chairman Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.) in a Senate Government Operations Committee hearing, would amount to U.S. "blackmail" with Soviet concurrence against close NATO allies and thus would have "the gravest foreign policy consequences," Kissinger declared.

The congressional concern arose from fears that the two European nations are facilitating the spread of atomic bomb capabilities throughout the world through their commercial deals.

Over U.S. objections, which Kissinger described Tuesday, France is selling Pakistan a nuclear fuel reprocessing plant capable of producing bomb material, and Germany is selling an even more extensive plant to Brazil.

The United States and the Soviet Union are the only suppliers of enriched uranium, the fuel used by nearly all nuclear reactors now in operation. This monopoly of fuel supplies will continue at least until 1981, according to experts, enabling the two superpowers to enforce their views on other nuclear production nations by threatening to deny essential fuel.

Kissinger and the lawmakers agreed at Tuesday's hearing that the nuclear proliferation problem could dictate the fate of millions of people and ultimately of mankind itself, and that time is running out on important controls. However, Kissinger called for problems to be solved through the existing framework and without rupturing U.S. military alliances, while senators argued for far stronger measures.

"Why don't we go to the United Nations and world opinion on this horrible problem? Isn't it time to go over the heads of the leaders to the people of France and West Germany?" Ribicoff demanded. "I see no reason for the U.S. to continue to be so timid."

Kissinger virtually confirmed reports that France and Germany blocked a U.S. proposal — made in recent session of a secret nuclear "suppliers conference" — that would ban export to individual nations of reprocessing plants usable for bomb production.

—A new survey of business spending plans for this year shows little change from earlier estimates, indicating a modest contribution to the economic recovery from that sector.

—The Senate Finance Committee approved a bill raising the limit of the national debt and requiring that a minimum interest be paid on U.S. savings bonds held for at least two months.

The measure, which already has won House approval, would require that at least 4 per cent interest be paid on Series E bonds that are held at least two months before redemption. Under present rules, no interest is earned until a bond is held for at least six months.

Grand jury continuing investigation of deaths

FORT WORTH, Tex (AP) — The Tarrant County grand jury has issued subpoenas for six persons to testify today in its probe of last month's slayings of five people in the suburban community of Blue Mound.

Today's prices top Gold Rush

COLUMBIA, Calif. (AP) — Gold Rush prices may have been pretty high, but some of them weren't as high as today's.

In the Mother Lode town of Columbia in 1860 miners spent $4,898 to build their first school house. But when it was restored recently the cost was $60,000.

Those called to testify included the chief of psychiatry at Peter Smith Hospital and the mother of one of the five victims.

Gregg Joplin, 23, the sole survivor of the Joplin family, testified before the grand jury for more than three hours Tuesday.

The night of the slayings, Joplin told police he shot Terry Trice, 17, after returning from his aunt's home and finding his mother, father and two brothers dead in the family home. Joplin said he fired inside the house at an intruder, which later turned out to be Trice, a longtime friend.

Picnic table may be longest

UPLAND, Calif. (AP) — A mile-long picnic table on Euclid Avenue Parkway between Upland and Ontario, Calif., is probably the longest in the world.

Residents of the two cities gather there every 4th of July for their "All States Picnic."

Pike claims CIA ran 'media event'

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Rep. Otis Pike (D-N.Y.), who chaired the House intelligence committee, accused the Central Intelligence Agency Tuesday of "running a media event" last week designed "to discredit our committee" with a story that 232 classified agency documents sent to the committee were missing.

In a tough speech on the House floor Pike said his committee staff members Monday located 105 of the supposedly missing documents among committee files stored at CIA headquarters.

Pike said CIA officials were unable to produce signed receipts for another 95 of the documents to show the papers had been delivered to the committee.

A CIA spokesman took issue with Pike's description of what had been found.

"I am not disputing that the staff found (105) documents," he said, "but that has not been verified."

He said the committee staffers "said they found" missing documents "stapled together with other papers." However, the spokesman went on, that finding "was not verified" and the committee staff "declined to return to CIA ... to resume the inventory."

The CIA spokesman also said flatly the 95 documents without signed receipts had "been supplied to the committee ... in large packages with signed courier receipts."

When playing today's hand, Los Angeles expert Edwin Kantar thought of drawing trumps to protect dummy's high diamonds. But then he saw that he had to ruff a club in dummy and that he couldn't do so if he drew trumps.

It wasn't safe to draw even one round of trumps. The defenders might lead a second trump on being given their first club trick, and then a third trump on being given their second club trick.

Kantar got off to an early start by leading a club from dummy at the second trick. East won with the queen of clubs and returned a diamond to dummy's king.

NO RISK
Declarer gave up another club, and West led a third diamond. There was no need to risk dummy's ace of diamonds. Instead, Kantar played a low diamond from dummy and ruffed in his own hand.

The time had finally come to draw two rounds of trumps. Then declarer ruffed his last club with dummy's last trump. He could safely cash the ace of diamonds, discarding a low heart, and the defenders could get only the queen of spades in addition to the two clubs they had already taken.

DAILY QUESTION

Friendship still holds

DETROIT (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham says the Watergate affair did not damage his friendship with former President Richard M. Nixon.

"He's still my friend and I'm still his friend. A religious leader does not desert a person because he is in trouble," Graham said at a Detroit news conference.

Communists rule Mexican slums

MEXICO CITY, Mexico (AP) — In front of the cardboard and scrap wood shack, three men strummed guitars and sang the words of a song that has become popular in Mexico City's numerous squatter towns.

"How sad my people are, living in houses of cardboard...how happy live the dogs in the house of the exploiter," the lyrics say.

No one knows who wrote the song but many are singing it in the shantytowns that have sprung up on privately owned or government land.

"They're fighting," said Francisco de la Cruz, a self-professed Marxist who is the leader of an organization he says is active in most of the 585 shantytowns or "lost cities" ringing the capital, as they do in many Latin American cities.

"The insurrection of the poor people is knocking at the door," he said. "We can't wait for a government that serves capitalism to help us."

De la Cruz and some of his aides made it clear that they think communism is the only way Mexico's slum problem will be solved.

De la Cruz's organization, set up in brigades, has established learning centers for slum children who do not attend public schools. The children get heavy doses of Marxist doctrine. Tots there shoot clenched fists into the air and chant leftist slogans in unison.

Names of slum streets, which look more like narrow dirt alleyways, sometimes bear the names of prominent Communist leaders—Che Guevara, Ho Chi Minh, Fidel Castro and others.

Brigades of de la Cruz's leftists can always be found working in the slums. Some brigades teach, some run health clinics, some organize cleanup campaigns and others collect money for "the cause."

A de la Cruz assistant said the organization has steady contact with Chilean refugees living in Mexico. The refugees fled Chile in 1973 after a military coup toppled the regime of the late Marxist President Salvador Allende.

The de la Cruz operation also has contact with underground leftist leaders in Santiago, Chile, and in Guatemala, the assistant said.

Mexico has enjoyed half a century of political stability and the chance of anyone organizing a successful revolution in the near future is remote.

The government continues to try to cope with the problem of housing. But it cannot keep up with the 3.7 per cent annual growth rate of the population, one of the highest in the world. The U.S. population growth rate has reached a virtual zero point.

The government says that in the last five years it has replaced 157 lost cities, where 10,000 persons lived, with government subsidized housing. In the 1960s a giant housing project in the capital provided homes for 100,000 families.

Despite this, the slums keep multiplying.

The shortage of housing was four million units, according to the 1970 census. A recent study indicated the shortage will rise to almost nine million houses by 1980, more houses than Mexico has now.

"We are many and we will be many more," de la Cruz said, "and the majority is going to solve this problem."

"The battle," as de la Cruz calls it, is not always fought with just words.

In the first two months of this year, seven men and three children in the northern industrial city of Monterrey were killed in confrontations between the police and squatters.

The police said they were attacked by the squatters. The squatters said the police had been harassing them and then started shooting without cause.

It is not unusual to see the Mexico City slums surrounded by riot policemen. The police say they are there to prevent violence. The slum leaders say the police presence is harassment that leads to confrontation.

Policemen sometimes tear down the squatters' shacks during the night and then stand guard to prevent the families from carrying away the materials to build elsewhere.

"Almost all of those who live here came to the capital because they were desperate, unable to get a piece of land in the countryside," de la Cruz said.

Peasant demands for land are bringing violence to the countryside, too.

Land seizures have increased, spreading to six states.

Groups of peasants as small as a dozen or as large as several hundred have been swooping down on privately owned ranch and farm land in the states of Sonora, Sinaloa, Veracruz, Hidalgo, Oaxaca and Durango.

The squatters move in overnight, setting up tents and shanties.

The government, including President Luis Echeverria, has made urgent appeals to both sides—to the peasants to stop invading lands and to the landowners to stop killing the squatters.

Aliens costly

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — It has cost school districts along the United States-Mexico border $50 million to educate legal aliens, according to a study made by an official of the Region 1 Education Service Center here.

The report was made by Jim Hensley, deputy director of the education center, at the request of the State Board of Education. It covers 61 school districts on the border.

Of the 281,845 pupils attending the 61 schools, Hensley said, more than 26,000 of them are aliens who pay no taxes but must be accommodated by the schools.

The main cost to the school district is in the form of buildings, Hensley said. He said that although the state and federal governments provide funds for programs for aliens, the school district receives little aid in paying for the additional classroom space needed because of the alien influx.

"The burden for educating these children should be shared by the state and federal governments," Hensley suggested in the report.

The city of Brownsville is one of the hardest hit districts, Hensley said, noting that the school district there had to build 30 extra classrooms to accommodate the alien pupils.

Absurd British lawsuit interests almost everyone

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN
The Observer, London

LONDON — A bizarre, an absurd court case is being tried here. It is not of the slightest importance. It is sexy enough to keep some of the exact details out of the newspapers. It concerns events of 50 years ago. It affects who is to succeed to a not very distinguished barony, who in fact is to be the next Lord Amphil.

Who cares? Apparently almost everyone.

The third Baron Amphil died in 1973. Hold on to your coronets; from here grows complicated and sad and improper.

The late Lord Amphil's first wife, Christabel, died in Ireland recently at the age of 80. She insisted all her long life that on her wedding night the marriage had never been consummated. She also said that her husband, then plain John Russell, had used "hunnish behaviour," and that when, in due course, she gave birth to a son, Geoffrey, she was still a virgin.

There was a great deal of contradictory litigation. There was also a good deal of money to pay for it. Christabel divorced her husband before he became Lord Amphil, and he married twice more and had a son, also a John. Both Christabel and her lord led successful lives. He made a lot of money in business. She wrote and acted in films and ran a shop. But the two sides of the family never spoke, in proper feud and feudal tradition.

When Lord Amphil died, Geoffrey and John both claimed the title. Now the case is being heard by a committee of the House of Lords. Previous legal decisions about the legitimacy of Geoffrey have been called into question and there has been some dispute about blood tests.

The case is being heard by nine Peers of the Realm, four of whom are both judges and lords. The families sit as far away from each other as they can in a vaguely Gothic House of Lords committee room decorated with pictures of sovereigns and coronations. John is 25 and Geoffrey is 54. Both wear pin-stripe suits and both are doing well and do not have to worry about where the next case of tolerable champagne is to come from.

But they have chosen to bring up all this 50-year-old scandal, to mark themselves again for life as the Russell claimants when the old cases had all but been forgotten, to disgrace at least one of their parents, and to act out, at vast expense, a dispute that a few centuries ago would have been neatly and cheaply settled by a discreet murder or a ceremonial duel. One of them wants to be called "Lord." There appears to be no inheritance of value in question.

It is of course a great advantage, and not only in Britain, to be a lord. To get it right, and leaving out the Royal Family for the sake of some simplicity, the hierarchy goes downward thus, from duke, to marquess, to earl, to viscount, to baron. All these automatically get a seat in the House of Lords. They get about $20 a day for clocking in whenever Parliament is in session. They do not actually have to stay and listen to a debate, far less join in.

But there are advantages. To be a peer does something wonderful for your ego, though it is essential to pretend that it does not. It improves your credit and gets you undeserved directorships in the City of London. It makes you more popular and more invited out. You will be called "my Lord" by servants. You will have to be sensationally stupid or reckless to fall into poverty — though a surprising number of them manage to do it.

But it is the British peerage that the world admires. Not even the Russians can suppress their admiration. French titles are often of doubtful validity and anyway many were given by usurpers. German titles are well organized but over-complicated, like their wine labels. Italian titles are charming but are held by Italians and their antiquity is often only challenged by their ormanic unlikelihood. Scandinavians are rather ashamed of their titles.

The British titles are as strictly scrutinized — by the College of Heralds — as the blood line of thoroughbred horses. And you cannot do better than that. Moreover, the real title only ever goes to the eldest son. Not for Britain the multiplicity of foreign princes. The politicians and aging trade unionists who now crowd into the House of Lords are only peers for their own lifetimes and their sons will just be misters and their daughters will never be able to call themselves "Honorable."

Really, it is all the purest snobbery and, as far as I can see, does no real harm to anyone and gives a lot of worth to old men and some arrogant young ones a good deal of innocent pleasure.

The delight comes from being different. From having a melodious name with a handle to it.

U.S. must pay paralyzed chemist

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — The federal government has been ordered to pay $975,000 in damages to a 31-year-old chemist who was paralyzed when a tree, found to be under the government's care, fell onto his automobile here on a clear and calm day seven years ago.

U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant awarded the payment, which will be added to a $250,000 verdict brought in by a federal jury last year against the District of Columbia government in the same case.

Bryant's award is believed to be the largest ever awarded by a judge in a personal injury case here, although jury verdicts have been higher. The tree was located on the property of the Indian Embassy, and embassies are immune from such civil suits.

However, the U.S. government was found liable, because it had made a 1945 agreement with the embassy to maintain a 4-foot strip of property on which the tree was located. The D.C. government was found liable because the tree overhung a public street.

The victim, Andrew A. Husovsky, was a 24-year-old graduate student at Georgetown University when the tree fell on his car.

He has since earned a doctorate in research chemistry but said his career is limited because of his restriction to a wheelchair and other injuries suffered in the accident. He is currently an editor for the American Chemical Society.

He was driving on Aug. 19, 1968, when a 90-foot trunk from a triple-trunked tulip poplar located on a slope nearby broke away from its base and fell onto his car.

Part of the falling trunk struck the rear part of Husovsky's car, causing it to go out of control and ultimately come to rest on its roof.

Husovsky's spinal cord was severely damaged, and he was hospitalized for seven months. He receives medication regularly and faces kidney failure, according to Bryant's opinion.

At the time of Husovsky's injury doctors predicted that he would not live more than a few years. However, after "highly surprising" developments in his physical and mental condition, doctors have changed their prognosis and expect Husovsky to live a normal life span.

The arguments over the federal government's liability centered on a 1945 agreement that the National Park Service would continue to maintain the tract of land that had been purchased by the Indian Embassy.

Bryant ruled that the park service had not inspected the tree since the original agreement, had not determined whether there was any rot that might cause it to fall and gave no consideration to bracing or cutting the portion of the tree that fell.

Judge Bryant computed the amount of future medical costs and Husovsky's future loss of earnings in reaching the $975,000 figure.

Owners, players still far apart

Will McMillan

NEW YORK (AP) — Representatives of major league baseball's players and club owners, apparently further apart than they've ever been in their current complex contract negotiating sessions, meet again Thursday in Tampa, Fla., with the first order of business to heal the wounds of Tuesday's meeting.

The owners took salvo from two different directions Tuesday. On one hand, Marvin Miller, the executive director of the players' association, leveled a blast at them, accusing them of issuing misinformation and trying to divide the players.

But the biggest blast of the day came from the relative calm of a courtroom in St. Louis where a three-judge Appeals Court ruled unanimously against the owners and affirmed the decision of arbitrator Peter Seitz, who granted free-agent status to pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally.

It effects only the two pitchers this year—but if the decision stands and no compromise between the players union and owners is forthcoming, it could mean every player without a multi-year contract could be a free agent by the start of the 1978 season.

It was the second court setback for the owners. They have only one more appeal—the U.S. Supreme Court.

The players' 24 player representatives, two league representatives, plus Miller and players union counsel Dick Moss will be holding an executive board meeting Thursday in Tampa.

They invited the 24 club owners to attend but the invitation was accepted instead by the owners' Player Relations Committee and John Gaherin, its chief negotiator.

The next official bargaining session is set for Friday in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Tuesday's three-hour session, the 26th thus far, ended in acrimony with Miller charging the owners with "negotiating over our heads... Their public relations campaign creates a lot of problems. We have to spend a lot of time correcting the misinformation that the owners put out."

Miller said he had uncovered an attempt by one club—he declined to identify it—to put out a phony survey of its players. He said the players were asked one question, then the players' answer to a different question was placed on a telegram.

Miller also said the recent public statements of several players was proof that the owners were conducting a "campaign of misinformation. We can't spend our time continually putting out the fires... I'm not complaining. I'm merely explaining the results of their action."

Miller said a major problem remaining was the owners' insistence

U. S. netters respect Russians

MOSCOW (AP) — The first U.S. professional tennis team to ever compete here in earnest left Moscow today with a respectable lead in the Soviet-American tournament and a new respect for the caliber of Russian tennis.

The six-member U.S. squad, all professionals on the World Team Tennis circuit in the states, compiled a 52-40 advantage in games after opening a five-match series with the Soviets.

Despite the American lead, nearly all the one-set matches played before capacity crowds here were hard-fought contests. The U.S. men had a particularly tough time, failing to win any of their three singles matches against the comparatively young and internationally unshooled Soviets.

The American women, headed by team captain Billie Jean King, fared better by winning two of their three singles matches. Ms. King had to overcome a 2-5 deficit Tuesday night to beat Olga Morozova, ranked No. 1 in this country.

In the only American loss of four matches Tuesday, Taimuraz Kakuliya came back from a 6-3 deficit to beat Vitas Gerulaitis, ranked No. 4 in the United States, 7-6.

In the strongest U.S. showing of the second round, Gerulaitis and Alex Mayer trounced Kakuliya and No. 1-ranked Soviet Alex Metreveli 6-2. In mixed doubles, Ms. King and Mayer edged Metreveli and Miss Morozova 7-5.

The 5-4 American advantage in matches so far more accurately reflected the two days of competition than the game total, which is the method of scoring this $100,000 series. The two sides meet for the third round in Philadelphia Saturday before moving to Cleveland Sunday and Indianapolis Monday.

Americans, however, was the playing caliber of three unknown Soviet youngsters whom U.S. Coach Earl "Butch" Buchholz called the Russians' "secret weapons."

Natalya Chmyreva, a longlimbed 17-year-old, beat Rosemary Casals in a 7-6 cliffhanger Monday night to the delight of some 14,000 Soviet fans in Lenin Stadium. "She is definitely a player of the future, and I think she could even be a great tennis player," Billie Jean said after the Casals-Chmyreva match.

Vadim Borsov, 21, beat Mayer 6-4 the first night with a rocket serve and baseline drives. Konstantin Pagarayev, also 21, also beat the best-ranked U.S. team player, Marty Riessen, 7-5 Monday, but this was an exhibition match which did not count in the series.

Lee Rebels whip Coronado, 7-2

LUBBOCK — Midland Lee gained some revenge Tuesday by whipping Lubbock Coronado's Mustangs, 7-2, at Connie Mack Park.

The Mustangs stormed into Midland last Saturday and swept a doubleheader from the Rebels by scores of 4-3 and 7-5, but Coach Ernie Johnson's outfit had their hitting shoes on and pounded out 10 hits to bring their season mark to 3-2.

Lee faces Lubbock Monterey Friday at 12:30 p.m. in the opening round of the Midland Invitational Baseball Tournament at Cubs Stadium, in its next outing.

Will McMillan knocked in three runs for the Tall City team with a pair of hits while Raymond Munoz had three hits to drive in a pair of runs.

McMillan belted a double and triple while teammate Rusty Laughlin also had a three-bagger for the Rebels.

Big gun for Coronado was pitcher Jimmy Foster with a home run while teammate Lee Brock came up with a pair of doubles.

Coronado's only runs came on a solo homer by Foster and Brock's double in the fourth inning after falling behind 4-0.

A walk to Robert White along with a single by Greg Howard and sacrifice fly by Laughlin, gave Lee a 1-0 lead in the first.

A single by Howard followed by back-to-back sacrifices by Laughlin and Alan Neal and a walk to Scott Dudenhoefter, got the Rebs off to a good start in the third. McMillan doubled in two runs and scored on Munoz' single for a 4-0 lead.

Singles by Neal and Dudenhoefter along with a two-run triple by McMillan, made it 6-2 and Munoz knocked in McMillan with his third hit of the game.

Dick Schmidt picked up his second victory of the season against no losses.

Snyder defeats Pack despite top pitching

SNYDER — The Snyder Tigers took advantage of two throwing errors Tuesday afternoon to tumble the Midland Bulldogs, 3-2, in a non-district baseball game.

Billy Shock and Kevin Minton combined to throw a two-hitter at the Class AAA Tigers and outfielder David Johnston slammed a 360-foot homer with teammate Chris Gaddy on base in the second inning, but it wasn't enough to pull the Purple Pack out of it.

Midland Coach Arlen Dickson was encouraged by the play of his team after suffering a surprising 6-2 defeat at the hands of Odessa Ector Monday in Midland.

The game was the final tuneup before the big Midland Invitational Baseball Tournament at Cubs Stadium Friday and Saturday.

"Both Billy and Kevin threw well.

In fact, Shock struck out eight hitters, but we still aren't hitting the ball well," added Dickson.

Midland takes a 3-5 mark into the tourney when it faces the Alamogordo, N.M. Tigers at 10 a.m. Friday in the opening round of the two-day affair.

Snyder scored the winning run in the fifth innn inning on a walk, stolen base, passed ball and throwing error by catcher Bruce Knowlton.

The Tigers got two runs off Shock in the second inning without benefit of a base hit.

Besides Johnston's homer, other hits turned in by the Bulldogs were singles by Shane Fletcher and Kevin Wlwiner.

Steers blank Eagles

The Big Spring Steers won their sixth game in seven outings Tuesday, taking a 3-1 victory over the Class AAA Pecos Eagles in non-district baseball action.

Righthander Pat Carroll picked up the victory for Coach Larry Horton's team which now enters the Austin Invitational Tourney and takes on LBJ High School Thursday in the opening round of action.

In other high school baseball in the area, powerful Lubbock Monterey won its fourth straight without a loss, whipping Odessa High, 8-1. Monterey is entered in the Midland Invitational Baseball Tournament at Cubs Stadium Friday and Saturday.

Scott Gardner, a 6-5 senior righthander, threw a two-hit gem at the Bronchos and struck out 14 OHS batters.

Lubbock pounded Abilene, 11-4, for its fifth win without a loss. Big guns for the Westerners were Marvin Simpson and Jerry Duffy.

Kim Smith won his third game of the year on a one-hitter, thus giving him two one-hitters and a no-hitter in the first two weeks of action. He fanned 10 Eagles.

Plainview posted a 3-1 victory over Amarillo Palo Duro while Amarillo bombed Class AAA Dumas, 19-4. Brownfield took an 8-2 victory over Seminole and Clovis, N.M. swept a twin bill from Amarillo Tascosa, 3-3 and 14-4.

The Andrews-Levelland game was called due to darkness with the score tied, 6-6.

San Angelo Central finally got to play a game, besting Class AAA Fort Stockton, 6-3 with John Jeschke throwing a two-hitter for the Bobcats who are now 3-0 on the season. Jerry Bary had a single and triple for the winners.

Baseball talks hit snag again

that he retroactively strip his players of their rights won in the Seitz decision and now upheld by two federal courts.

The owners insist any basic agreement would retroactively cancel out the Seitz decision, which allows every player with a 1976 individual contract to become a free agent in 1977 if he doesn't sign for 1976 and in 1978 if he does sign in '76 but refuses to sign for '77.

Miller says taking away the players' free agent rights would open the union to potential damage suits. Two of his suggestions to end the retroactivity problem, he said, were again rejected by the owners.

In one, he would try to get as many players as he could to sign waivers of their rights won in the Seitz decision. Meanwhile, the players and owners would arrive at a collectively bargained change in the reserve system and a new collective agreement.

The owners would decide on what they consider a non-tolerable number of non-waiver players, then match that figure against Miller's number of waivers. "If the non-waivers are under the tolerable figure, we'd have an agreement," Miller said. "If not, all bets are off."

The second suggestion would be for Miller to get permission from his executive board to allow teams to approach players individually about inserting special covenants in their contracts. In those covenants, a player could promise not to play out his option for an individually agreed-upon number of years.

In the meantime, while appeals and negotiations go on, spring training camps remain closed on the owners' orders, exhibition games are being canceled and the start of the 1976 season is being threatened. The owners have said they won't open the camps until an agreement is reached or there is real progress towards reaching one.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who could order the owners to open the camps and get activity under way, has thus far remained pretty much out of the picture so far.

"I continue to urge daily meetings between the two sides in an effort to get this thing solved. If they will really stick at it, I am confident they can get the job done," Kuhn said after Tuesday's bargaining session.

And when asked why he has maintained virtual silence, the commissioner said: "I think enough and maybe too much has been said publicly by everyone involved." He declined comment on the St. Louis court decision.

Moss, the players union counsel, said he was "delighted with the result. Hopefully this will be the end of the matter and the owners can now devote their time to the negotiating table and not to litigation."

The owners, of course, were less than delighted with the rejection of their appeal. A statement issued by their Players' Relations Committee said, in part, that they were "naturally disappointed with the decision...There has been no opportunity to read or evaluate the decision."

Pikeville upset in NAIA cage tournament

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The basketball championships of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics moved into the second round today with its seeded list intact except for four first-round casualties.

Pikeville of Kentucky was the only seeded upset of Tuesday's first round, dropping a 94-84 decision to unranked Alabama-Huntsville in the final opening round game Tuesday night.

The other upsets occurred in Monday's first round. Eliminated with Pikeville in the first round were Norfolk State, Alcorn State and Guilford College.

Defending champion Grand Canyon of Arizona stumbled to a 57-52 victory over Central State of Ohio, leaving Grand Canyon Coach Ben Lindsey wondering how.

"It's amazing that we can win without Bayard Forrest getting a basket," he said. Forrest, his 6-foot-10, all-NAIA center, was held to only five of six free throws in the hard fought defensive battle.

Lindsey lauded guard David Everett, who led the victors with 18 points. "He really saved us tonight." The coach attributed his team's victory to the fact that the defense stopped the Central State fastbreak.

A crowd favorite, Marymount of Kansas, raced away from dogged Eastern Montana in the final eight minutes to post a 93-76 finish, paced by Tom Rothschild with 22 points and Jim Hearn with 20. Marymount led at halftime by only three, 43-40.

"The key to the game was the fatigue factor," said Marymount Coach Ken Cochran. "The last eight minutes they were tired, and we took it to 'em."

In other first-round games Tuesday, sixth-seeded Henderson State routed Bethany Nazarene 80-67. The coach attributed his team's victory to the fact that the defense stopped the Central State fastbreak. A crowd favorite, Marymount of Kansas, raced away from dogged seeded Edinboro State beat Gustavus Adolphus 88-73.

Today's schedule:
Lincoln Memorial vs. Calif. Baptist, 9:30 a.m.
Lake Superior vs. Edinboro, 11:15 a.m.

Fairmont vs. Texas Southern, 1 p.m.

Coppin vs. Wisconsin-Parkside, 2:45 p.m.

Kapp trial jury nixes game films

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The jury in the Joe Kapp trial, having endured some repetitious questioning of the plaintiff-quarterback, nevertheless voted no when given an opportunity to watch some football films.

"We've been over this too many times," U.S. District Court Judge William T. Sweigert said Tuesday as yet another attorney for the National Football League asked Kapp why he'd previously signed NFL standard player's contracts yet refused to sign one with the New England Patriots in 1971.

"This has to stop somewhere," Sweigert said later, sustaining an objection by Kapp's attorneys to the questioning.

Sweigert, in a partial summary judgement in Kapp's favor, said in late 1974 that some NFL rules were unconstitutional and ordered the trial in which damages will be determined.

Kapp's attorneys asked early in the trial, which began March 1, if they could show a 15-minute film. Then the defense said it would present its own film if a pro-Kapp movie was shown. Sweigert asked the jury Tuesday if they wanted to see the films which would give them a break from the testimony. The first vote of the nine-person panel including three alternates was 6-3 against with all six women voting no. Sweigert postponed a decision.

The films presumably show Kapp, who had several successful seasons at Minnesota before going to the Patriots, at his best and at his worst since he seeks a multimillion dollar settlement from the NFL, which he alleges forced him out of football.

Texas drills in Florida on its own

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Texas Rangers officials are violating the spirit of major league baseball owners' agreement to lock out players from spring training, Gabe Paul, president of the New York Yankees, says.

Paul said Tuesday he has filed a complaint with the American League that he believes management of the Texas Rangers is organizing and supervising workouts for the team on a softball field here.

The Rangers have 23 players, more than any other major league team, in town working out on their own. By comparison, the Yankees, who train down the road at Fort Lauderdale, had only four players present.

Rangers player representative Bill Singer issued a statement Tuesday saying the players are working out strictly on their own without help from management personnel.

Major league owners, currently in a dispute with players over the reserve clause, are staging a lockout of training camps which forbids workouts in which team officials or managers participate.

Paul said he called Rangers owner Brad Corbett and General Manager Danny O'Brien to complain that someone from management had to be organizing or supervising the workouts.

"When 23 players can get together and work out at the same place, in this situation, it has to be more than a coincidence," said Paul. "Either we're (owners and management) all together in this or we're not...This is a clear violation of what the owners decided when we made the decision to keep the spring training camps closed."

Paul also complained about a dinner given by Corbett Tuesday night for Rangers players and wives.

"I'm proud of this, really proud," said Rangers Manager Frank Lucchesi of the player turnout for workouts. "We've got guys on this team who want to play. The fact that this many, including those who don't make a lot of money, would come down here and pay their own way to practice together is really something."

Lucchesi was informed Monday of a shortage of baseballs for the players' workouts.

About an hour later, one player reported, an automobile drove by the players' softball field and case of about 12 dozen baseballs tumbled into the street.

"Isn't this a wonderful coincidence," infielder Jim Fregosi said. "We need baseballs and I found a case of 'em right here in the street."

UNM problem with Blacks over

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — University of New Mexico Athletic Director Lavon McDonald says a dispute between basketball coach Norm Ellenberger and five black players may be nearing resolution. McDonald said he met with two of the players Tuesday, and they told him they didn't want a hearing before the university's athletic council.

Dr. Harold Bailey, director of Afro-American Studies at UNM, requested the hearing Monday.

Nicklaus gets nod as Doral Tournament opens

MIAMI (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, always the man to beat, has a few extra factors working in his favor this week as the $200,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament.

First of all, there's the fact that his awesome game is building to a peak. After a couple of unsuccessful challenges early in the year, he won the Tournament Players Championship with the best score of the season in his last start and commented:

"My game is in pretty good shape. There's just a couple of little things I want to work on."

"There's one club in my bag I'm not completely satisfied with. And there's a couple of little things in my swing. But, over-all, my game really is in pretty good shape."

Secondly, there's his affinity for the 7,065-yard, par-72 Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club, site of Thursday's start of this chase for a $40,000 first prize.

Nicklaus won on this course last year, launching one of the most successful seasons of his incomparable career—a season in which he took six American titles, including the Masters and the PGA, along with the Australian Open and Player of the Year honors.

He has won this tournament two of the last four times it's been played and has finished fifth or better in this event seven times.

Also in Nicklaus' favor is the absence of some of his more frequent challengers. Among the missing are Johnny Miller, Lee Trevino, Hale Irwin, Arnold Palmer and British Open champ Tom Watson. All are taking time off.

But the 156-man field contains a number of familiar foes, with South African Gary Player at the head of the list. The little man in black, winner of more than 100 international titles in a globe-trotting career, has won $22,647 in only three American starts this year, finished third once and shot an amazing, 10-under-par 62 last week in the Citrus Open.

Some other standouts include Tom Weiskopf, Australian Bruce Crampton, Gene Littler, Hubert Green, San Diego Open champ J.C. Sneed and Ben Crenshaw, a two-time winner this year.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be telecast nationally by CBS-TV.

Aggie baseballers take doubleheader

COLLEGE STATION, shutout that helped Texas A&M to a 6-3, 2-0 college baseball doubleheader relief help from David Gibson won his fifth game sweep over Oklahoma City.

Clint Thomas won first game for the Aggies with relief help from David Lockett. Texas A&M is now 12-0.

Major League players could collect unemployment

NEW YORK (AP) — Can you imagine Johnny Bench, Fran Tarkenton, Bobby Orr and Rick Barry standing on line, waiting for their unemployment paychecks? Don't laugh: It's possible. Because most of them are paid on a seasonal basis, professional athletes are technically eligible for unemployment benefits, according to an official of the Department of Labor.

Robert Seebol, associate regional administrator of the employment training administration, said that a player's income during the period he is paid by his team would not enter into the question of his eligibility for unemployment benefits.

Several Milwaukee Brewers players have been receiving benefits, according to Bud Selig, president of the baseball team.

"Normally, yes, they would be eligible," said Seebol. "High earnings would not bar them from receiving benefits during the period when they are not employed."

The key to the whole matter is the period of paydays for pro athletes. Most baseball players normally are paid twice a month starting from April 15 and running through the end of the season. They are not paid in the off-season. The same is true for football players, most of whom are paid over the 14-week schedule of the regular season from September until December. Almost all hockey and basketball players also receive their salaries twice a month during the season.

There are, of course, exceptions. Some players choose to be paid on a 12-month basis to assure regular income all year long. They would not be eligible for unemployment benefits. But technically, said Seebol, when athletes are not receiving paychecks from their clubs, they are unemployed.

"Each case is taken individually," the Labor Department official said. "The claims examiner would look at the applicant's over-all salary. He would have to be available for suitable work and if he was not looking for work, they'd probably give him a hard time."

The basic rules for collecting unemployment are that the applicant have worked 20 of the previous 52 weeks, that he have been out of work through no fault of his own and that he be ready, willing, able and trying to find employment.

Refinements of those general rules vary from state to state.

Seebol said the only way to prevent athletes from applying for benefits would be to have a specific statement written into the law dealing with maximum annual income levels.

Most major leaguers don't apply for benefits, according to one agent who handles basketball and hockey players. "But it's a very common practice for junior hockey players in Canada and many minor leaguers, who aren't making big salaries."

Seebol said high-paid actors sometimes show up on jobless lines.

"Adolphe Menjou used to drive up to the regional office in Hollywood in a chauffeured limousine to pick up benefits. The amount he received probably didn't even cover the chauffeur's salary, but it was his right to get it as long as he met the criteria."

City divided by rails

ELKO, Nev. (AP) — More than 40 times a day, this northeastern Nevada town of 9,500 is split in two.

Lying on two main east-west railroad lines, the city's central district is riddled with rails. There are 17 track crossings in an eight-block area alone.

Lengthy transcontinental freight trains lumber through Elko about twice an hour. Traffic is hopelessly snarled and entire neighborhoods are completely isolated. Local authorities say a couple of lives are lost each year at the crossings, including motorists who make a last minute dash across the tracks to avoid the wait — and don't make it.

OCCASIONALLY the right combination of railroad traffic makes it impossible for cars or pedestrians to cross anywhere in the town for periods up to three hours.

But Elko's railroad woes may be easing with the implementation of an experimental federally-funded bypass program that eventually may be used to solve the track problems of hundreds of American cities that grew up along rail lines.

UNDER a pending federal demonstration project, a 5.6-mile consolidated track corridor will be laid through downtown Elko to solve the traffic problems and provide more efficient rail service.

The Federal Highway Administration has approved a new alternate route for the corridor, which will replace the central city sections of both the three-track Western Pacific line and the twin-track Southern Pacific line. The five tracks will become two along the new consolidated stretch.

SENATE and House versions of the Federal Highway Act of 1975, currently under joint conference consideration, both include $16 million for Elko's Project Lifesaver. The federal government will share 95 per cent of the cost, with the city, state and railroads sharing the rest.

IRA RACKLEY, a consulting engineer working on the project, says construction may start within a year, with all phases of construction to be completed in about five years.

After almost two years of city-financed planning work, Elko is the first of four demonstration sites in the country to have a final environmental impact statement and route approved, Rackley said.

Some 185 U.S. cities have formally notified the federal government that they are interested in similar railroad bypass projects in their downtown sections.

But Congress has decided that it won't provide funds for more projects until the demonstration projects are completed.

Jews win Catholic awards

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — Two prominent Jerusalem residents — Mayor Teddy Kollek and Jewish theologian Shemaryahu Talmon — were presented with Roman Catholic medals Tuesday in a challenge to the recent U. N. resolution denouncing Zionism as a form of racism.

The Catholic Academy of Bavaria announced that the two were awarded the Romano Guardini prize, commemorating a noted Catholic theologian. It is given, without religious preference, for outstanding service in "interpreting time and the world in all areas of spiritual life," a spokesman said.
