Bids for cooling schools $500,000 over estimates

By ED TODD

Progress toward air-conditioning Midland's public schools got another setback Tuesday when trustees of the Midland Independent School District discovered they were at least a halfmillion dollars shy of funds to get the

The seven-member board examined eight bids on air conditioning 20 schools not now cooled. But the bids, ranging from $4.5 million to $5 million, out-distanced the $4 million in bonds the trustees had figured they would sink into the air

Last September, Midland voters approved issuance of $4.2 million in bonds to air-condition the schools, but at least $224,000 of that amount is obligated as fees to Preston Geren

Associates, the architectural and engineering firm laying out the plans and specifications for the proposed air conditioning.

The board postponed further consideration on the bids until 1 p.m. next Wednesday.

"I think we need to make a decision as rapidly as possible," James E. Winget Jr., board president, said. And he expressed displeasure with what he indicated was a time lag between the bond passage more than six months ago and the offering of Sternly and face-to-face, Winget told Geren engineer Bob Jackson:

"I think it took much too long for you people to get the bid package together." The board president hinted at inflation over the last half-year increasing the cost of labor, material and equipment by several notches. Board member Johnny Warren, apparently trying to match the $4 million in bond money with a low bid, suggested a cutback in the airconditioning plans. "I think the community has indicated its intent to have air conditioning," he said, "but obviously we can't have all we want.' So Warren, in a money-saving move, proposed not air conditioning such places as the elementary school cafeterias where pupils spend relatively little time.

"We don't want to get the cafeteria people down on us," however, Warren The eight bids, from the lowest to

Jimmy Carter upsets upset win by Udall in Wisconsin

Udall, who prematurely claimed a victory in Wisconsin's Democratic primary that belonged to Jimmy Carter, said today he had stopped "the Carter landslide.

"It was practically a dead heat in Wisconsin," the Arizona Democrat told a group of United Auto Workers Union officials in Detroit this mor-"If Carter had his way, his people would have wiped me out. But there are still 22 primaries to go.

'The election is going to be won or lost in the big industrial states and Carter's record is not great in them,' Udall said. "The Carter landslide has been stopped," he insisted.

The former Georgia governor had gone to bed trailing Udall, but votes from Wisconsin's more conservative rural districts thrust Carter into first place early today. Within minutes, Carter was back with 300 screaming supporters, waving a Milwaukee newspaper over his head.

The President's sixth primary victory earned him all of Wisconsin's 45 delegates to the GOP national nominating convention, distributed on a winner-take-all basis in congressional districts and statewide.

Democrats will choose delegates in proportion to each candidate's showing, and Carter was guaranteed 26 by his finish, Udall 25. Wallace was assured of 10 delegates, Jackson 6 and Mrs. McCormack 1.

Mao dismisses Teng,

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) - China's Chairman Mao Tse-tung dismissed First Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping from all his party and government posts today and elevated Acting Premier Hua Kuo-feng to premier and party first vice chairman - No. 2 man in the

The action climaxed months of official campaigning against Teng and followed violent demonstrations in his favor in the heart of Peking two days

The promotions catapulted Hua into the role of heir apparent to the 82-year-old Mao.

Teng, 72-year-old protege of the late Premier Chou En-lai and inheritor of his moderate policies, became for the second time in nearly a decade a loser to the radical wing of the Chinese Communist party. He was ousted from his jobs as vice chairman of theparty and chief of the army general bership conditional on future good behavior. The 56-year-old Hua was former staff. He retained his party mem-minister of security and former party boss in Mao's home province. Besides the premiership, which became vacant with Chou's death from cancer on Jan. 8, Hua was given the post of first vice chairman of the party.

A one-paragraph resolution of the Central Committee, distributed by Hsinhua news agency and monitored here, described the violence in Tien An Men - Gate of Heavenly Peace -Square on Monday as "counterrevolutionary incidents.'

A two-paragraph Central Committee resolution reported the meteoric rise of Hua. It implied that Teng was behind the protest by up to 100,000 people and said that, on Mao's proposal, the party Politburo "unanimously agrees to dismiss Teng Hsiao-ping from all posts both inside and outside the party while allowing him to keep his party membership so as to see how he will behave in the future.

Udall's investment. Jackson scores New York victory short of landslide he predicted

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson said today he believes his victory in New York's Democratic presidential primary will help him win an "all-out fight" in his next test in neighboring Pennsylvania.

"We'll carry Pennsylvania,"-Jackson predicted in an interview with The Associated Press. "New York is a symbol of political power and movement. Any time you win over 100 delegates in an election, it has political impact. Bolstered by his strong support from Jewish voters, labor and organization Democrats, Jackson won claim in Tuesday's election to 107 of the state's 274 delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

His closest challenger, Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, finished with 69 delegates, and former Georgia Gov.

Jimmy Carter won 33. Another 65 uncommitted delegates were selected. Jackson claimed today that "at least one-quarter" of the uncommitted delegates supported him.

Though he-didn't achieve the landslide-majority win in New York he had repeatedly projected, Jackson said he stood to gain more from his solid victory than his rivals did from their close one-two finish in Wiscon-

Jackson originally had predicted he would win in New York by a 2-1 margin, but later revised his hopes downward to 51 per cent, or 138 of the state's delegates.

Tuesday night, he professed no disappointment in the results.

Speaking to a rally of supporters, he declared, "We've got our landslide; we just missed the majority. We had the largest harvest of delegates."

At least 16 of the uncommitted delegates have endorsed Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, currently an avowed noncandidate. Many New York Democratic politicians said privately that Humphrey could get a large share of Jackson's delegates if (Continued on Page 6A)

'First Mama' Betty Ford pitches woo to voters over CB

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) - The husky growls of burly truckers warning each other of smokies and their radar traps and advising of detours around the weight station mingled with the dulcet tones of a woman calling

It was Washington's newest Citizens Band radio freak trying out her fresh new CB license and calling for Wisconsin voters to cast their ballots for her husband, President Ford.

A White House spokeswoman said Mrs. Ford tried out her new license on Wisconsin voters over the weekend and liked campaigning by radio so much she probably will do it again during other primary campaigns.

The First Lady has been trying to decide on a "handle," which is what CB fans call their nicknames, the spokeswoman said. Some have suggested she use "First Mama. The President's wife made hasty application for a temporary Federal Communications Commission license so she could use the Citizens Band radio to communicate with Ford campaigners in Wisconsin.

So when a group of some 240 Ford backers from the President's home town of Grand Rapids, Mich., were campaigning in Madison, Wis., with a blitz convoy equipped with radio communications, Mrs. Ford joined in

She urged the Michigan convoy to "keep on talking for President Ford" and added. We appreciate your help in keeping the Fords '10-20' (location) at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. (the White House)."

An FCC spokesman said the CB network is the only communications outlet where there are no restrictions on politicking. FCC officials say most major candidates in the past have applied for CB licenses. But so far, spokesmen at the FCC said, Mrs. Ford is the only prominent political applicant in Washington who has applied for licensing in 1976.

If she uses the radio on her expected campaign trip to Texas, she could get an audience of 287,762 - the number of persons the FCC-says are licensed in that key primary While addressing the, Michigan group, Mrs. Ford could have been heard by any of 56,600 CBers the FCC says are licensed in Wisconsin.

If any of them warned the First Lady that the smokies (police) had set up a radar trap near the scales, the White House didn't mention it.

Reagan campaigns in East Texas today

LUBBOCK, (AP) -Buoyed by what he called a victory in the Wisconsin primary-a better than expected vote total in a loss to President Ford-Ronald Reagan moved to East Texas today to campaign for a big showdown with Ford in the state's May 1 primary.

It was the second day of active campaigning by Reagan in a state he is confident will give him an important victory after a series of losses to the President.

On Tuesday, Reagan campaigned in four Texas cities and renewed his attacks on Ford's energy policy, foreign policy, and also fired a few salvos at big labor and crime.

In his last stop here late at night, Reagan received reports of his loss to Ford in the Wisconsin primary, 55 to 44 per cent of the vote, and said 'This, in my view, represents a very sizeable victory for me. I am extremely pleased. We had not anticipated anything over 30 per cent (of the vote). He opened his Texas campaign Tuesday with a speech at Southern Methodist University where he was greeted by nearly 2,000 mostly friendly students for a question and answer rather than "innocence or guilt."

In a speech marking Law Day, Reagan criticized the courts for deciding cases on "technicalities".

He criticized Ford's foreign policy and said: "If we were No: 1 in military strength in the world we would know that Mr. Ford's branding Castro an"international outlaw' and Dr. Kissinger's warnings to the Cubans to forego further African adventures would be more than just words. We would have seen them backed by actions by now,

The former California governor also lashed out at big labor saying union leaders are out of step with the rank and file workers "who are more afraid of the shop steward than the company boss.' Reagan also was critical of "those phony politicians who say they are going to tax big business. Anyone who says that is a liar. If the tax on business is increased, the only one (Continued on Page 6A)

Autopsy reveals Hughes died of kidney failure

By NICHOLAS C. CHRISS The Los Angeles Times

HOUSTON - U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon ordered agents to "put a guard" on the body of Howard Hughes and to undertake 'our own independent investigation to ascertain the identity," it was learned

Meanwhile, an autopsy disclosed that the 70-year-old recluse who died Monday en route to Houston was the victim of chronic renal (kidney) disease, not a stroke as first reported.

The autopsy also revealed the billionaire, who in his prime weighed about 150 and stood 6-ft.-4, at the time of his death had shrunk to 90 lbs. and

A Treasury Dept. spokesman said Simon ordered agents to obtain and send to Washington a separate set of Hughes' fingerprints from the athologist who performed the

He said the procedure was unusual but Simon considered it advisable because of the obvious tax implications.

Simon specified there were other concerns about identification, the spokesman added, but he declined to reveal them. "I think Howard Hughes led such a mysterious life so long before he died that the secretary wanted to be sure," the spokesman added. Although he said two Internal Revenue Service Agents were ordered to be "near or around the body," none was visible during the autopsy, according to Dr. Henry McIntosh, attending physician of record during the postmortem surgery

Dr. McIntosh is chief of internal medicine at Methodist Hospital, where the one-hour, 40-minute autopsy was performed and where Hughes' body was taken after he died in midair Monday.

The IRS said if Hughes left his fortune to medical research, as Los. Angeles attorney Greg Bautzer said Hughes had planned, it will escape taxes. Otherwise, the maximum estate tax of 77 per cent might apply against much of Hughes' riches, estimated at more than $2 billion.

Representatives of Hughes' Summa Corp. declined Tuesday to disclose if the eccentric industrialist had left a will and, if he did, where it would be filed for probate.

Another jurisdiction in addition to the federal government indicated interest Tuesday in establishing beyond a doubt that the emaciated corpse was that of Howard Hughes,

"We are very interested in positive identification," said Pete Echeverria, chairman of the state gaming commission in Nevada, where the Hughes organization has vast gambling and mining interests.

He said Nevada wanted the fingerprints compared with those of Hughes that have been on file since he became a pilot and a major defense contractor during World War II.

After the autopsy, four funeral home employes swiftly removed Hughes' body on a metal stretcher, covered by a bright yellow blanket, into a black hearse backed up to a hospital door.

Dr. McIntosh said the secrecy in handling Hughes' body was purposely in keeping with his lifetime desire for

Asked what the corpse looked like, Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk, Harris County's chief medical examiner, replied:

"He looked like any other human being. Lost weight. He had a short goatee. There was longish hair, but not overlong, just perhaps average.

"But I can assure you he did not have three-inch-long fingernails." Meanwhile, a spokesman for the George H. Lewis and Sons Funeral Home reported that Hughes' relatives, including an aged aunt and cousins living here, had asked for "private services and will not announce any arrangements." However, he said, the body would not be cremated but would be buried alongside his mother and father in a family plot in a tree-lined, century-old cemetery in the shadows of downtown

Houston.

Other surviving relatives include several first cousins in the Houston area - Dr. Frederick Lummis Jr., a physician; William R. Lummis, an attorney; Mrs. John Lindsey; Mrs. George Neff; Mrs. Platt Davis, Howard Gano and Pat Houston. Another cousin, Mrs. Paul Russell, lives in Chestnut Hill, Mass., near Hughes first wife, the former Ella Rice, also lives here. Her present husband, James O. Winston Jr., said she had not seen Hughes since the 1920s and would have no comment on "crazy about Howard," although they have not been in touch for many years.-However, the relative said, Hughes sent her a congratulatory telegram on her 80th birthday. Mrs. Lummis is the sister of Hughes' late mother and once lived with him when he was a boy.

While the Methodist Hospital announcement about autopsy findings said Hughes died of kidney failure, the physician who performed the surgery was absent from a news conference that followed - and which also raised some questions.

The man who conducted the autopsy was Dr. Jack Titus, chief pathologist at Methodist. Officials said Titus was "too busy" with his pathology report to appear at the news conference.

Also absent were the two doctors and an administrative aide who had accompanied Hughes on the flight from Mexico to Texas. They have not been seen by reporters and have refused requests to be interviewed. They are Drs. Wilbur S. Thain of Logan, Utah, and Lawrence Chaffin, an 84-year-old Los Angeles general surgeon, and John N. Holmes Jr.

The two men who took part in the news conference, Drs. McIntosh and Jachimczyk, did not know how long Hughes had been ill with kidney permission for the autopsy. A relative said she is 85 years old and was disease and said the physicians who flew with Hughes to Texas did not bring medical records with them McIntosh was asked if he knew when Hughes' illness had been diagnosed the first time. 'I really don't know," he said. "We have not known the medical records so I can't answer that."

He also was asked why the attending physicians had brought none of the records with them.

'Well he (Hughes) died en route, in Texas, there's no need for us to look into it (the medical record)," McIntosh replied. "It's (kidney failure) something that creeps up, when it starts we don't know. Jachimczyk said, "There was absolutely no evidence of foul play" in the billionaire recluse's death.

McIntosh said it was clear to him that Hughes' kidney failure was caused principally by old age. "It is clear these are changes we expect in the aging process," he said. "If I looked at it, this man has lived a full life and we have only evidence that the kidneys played out.

"Oh, I'm sure that when we get to looking, we'll find there was a little here and a little (disorder) there.

Self-dealing bank transactions declared common

By RONALD KESSLER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - A Washington Post investigation of banks and their regulation has found self-dealing transactions - in which money from banks is put into the pockets of their directors and officers - are widespread throughout the country.

While such insider transactions are generally hidden from the public. The Post has found from review of state and federal bank examination reports that bank regulatory agencies often are aware of such practices but either ignore them or take no effective action to stop them

When action is taken, it is often too late. Self-dealing has been found by bank regulatory agencies to be the leading cause of bank failures and to be involved in three of the four banks considered by regulators to be serious problems because of their financial "Examination and problem bank reports reveal that all too often control groups view the controlled bank as a private money machine geared to operate at their pleasure," says George A. LeMaistre, a former banker who is one of the three directors of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which insures deposits in nearly all the nation's banks.

"Historically, the bankers have tried to portray themselves as leaders and tribal priests, and the banks have been built on the model of temples,' says Edward J. Kane, an FDIC consultant who is professor of banking and monetary economics at Ohio than anyone else. But because they operate with a special product money - there's more temptation," says Kane, noting that the loss to a bank from a typical self-dealing transaction often exceeds the take from a bank robbery.

Besides causing banking failures and wasting depositors' and stockholders' money, self-dealing transactions by bankers may mean a community's money, in the form of its bank deposits, is being "misallocated or allocated irrationally," LeMaistre told the Texas Bankers Conference in

The effects of such a misallocation are difficult to overestimate. Banks control nearly $1 trillion in assets, most of it in the form of loans. By will rise and which will deteriorate; what industries will prosper and which will languish.

Despite this power, bankers are not eager to discuss with outsiders how they exercise control over other people's money.

"Banks are not accountable to the public mainly because existing regulatory agencies are all entwined with the banks," said Rep. Henry S. Reuss (D-Wis.), chairman of the House Banking Committee, in an interview. "The banking lobby is very effective, and the public is almost not represented in the legislative pro-

The Post's investigation has found that the most prevalent self-dealing transactions by bankers are lowin a reciprocal relationship; legal or consulting fees paid by banks to their directors, and leases or sales of a bank's buildings by its most influential directors or stockholders.

Since interest rates on commercial loans vary widely, bankers and regulators privately concede it is almost impossible to detect a preferential interest rate of a few percentage points provided a director of an officer. Yet a 1 per cent break on a $1 million loan can mean a loss to the bank of $10,000 a year.

However, a businessman who was involved in obtaining loans from banks through political connections says, "The whole secret isn't the interest rate. It's whether you're entitled to the loan based on the purpose

Bankers often argue that their directors would be expected to receive a substantial volume of loans because they represent the larger businesses in town. If they could not get the loans from their own banks, they would have to resign or seek loans from other banks that might have a reciprocal relationship, according to this argument.

However, according to John J. Early, director of the FDIC's bank super-vision division, "When you have a heavy volume of insider loans - more than 5 per cent of total loans - unless, it's a small community with one or two banks, it may mean the bank in turning down other creditworthy loan applicants and keeping the loans to

How to shop for a house or apartment

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures
Unless they seek help, young people may make some mistakes shopping for a house or apartment. Many pay exorbitant rents, some are in bankrupt condominiums and many find they know absolutely nothing about the house they have bought. Meanwhile, they struggle to meet all the payments.

Spring is house shopping time for many young couples who will be so preoccupied in trying to find a house they can afford, they may forget all

That is why many will ask themselves later whether they have copper or galvanized pipe in the new

One young couple moved from an apartment into a house and a year later do not know where their well or septic tank are located. They do not know much more about their house than what they can see, and they've been too busy working to pay the mortgage to find out.

"The real estate woman was very nice but she didn't tell us very much," the new owner observed.

That may be par for the course. Ask and you will find out. Don't ask and you will find out, maybe the hard way, later. Some real estate people will put a $10 breakfast order in the refrigerator for the new owners and place a $5 plant on the window sill and then call it quits as they pick up their commissions.

People must learn to ask the important questions. Not only should they know where the septic tank is located, but they should know how old it is and when it was last serviced. In fact, they should insist that it be serviced before they buy the house.

Some years ago a couple bought a beautiful old house only to learn from an exterminator that the house was under service for termites.

These days any house shopper must be armed with a good book which explains the house detective role that must be played before the house is purchased

If the house is on low ground the chances of dampness are increased. In addition to the inconvenience of a wet cellar, there is the danger of wood posts rotting.

The chimney should be inspected. The prospective buyer should climb a ladder and make sure it is in good shape. It is a good time, too, to make sure the roof looks sturdy. Bad framing can cause it to sag.

One couple noticed some irregularities-broken putty pieces around windows, gaps in doors, "but the house was enchanting" and they decided to take it without a quibble Great. Trustees give fourth-graders opportunity to fiddle around

By ED TODD

The strings music program that floundered three or four years ago in the Midland public schools was given a chance for a resurrection in a 5-2 vote Tuesday by the trustees of the Midland Independent School District.

Voting against the measure were trustees Johnny Warren and Don Sparks, who said they were hardpressed to justify spending $16,050 to fund the program beginning at the fourth-grade level in the - 1976-77

The strings program died out a few years back when interest in that musical field dwindled at the secondary school level, said Bill Cormack, director of fine arts for the school system.

However, he attributed that largely to failure of a strings instructor to excite students' interest in the violin, cello, viola and other string in-

And trustees, too, appeared somewhat concerned of a repeat performance that again would put a damper on enthusiasm for strings.

"If this program is going to last, if it going to benefit the community " said Trustee Gilbert C. Tomp-t, "(then) the people in the program are going to have to be (effective, motivating) teachers

"They (teachers) are going to have to relate to the children," Tompson further commented. "Otherwise, nothing is going to happen.

'It's going to have to be people who can relate to the pupils, . . . and inspire them," he said. Tompson said he was somewhat apprehensive about hiring a strings teacher who could "play beautifully . but could do absolutely nothing to inspire a child."

the program but that the school would furnish the larger and, generally, costlier instruments.

First-year cost of the teaching program would include $12,800 to pay a strings teacher's salary.

In its first year, the program will be limited to fourth-grade students in elementary schools that are in the Goddard Junior High School attendance area in northwest Midland. Each year thereafter, the program will be offered in one additional grade up through high school Opposition to proposed program came from Sparks:

"I personally think we've got other pressing situations where the money can be better spent, (such as) trying to raise the level of academics, if nothing else, or expanding the vocational program," he said.

Sparks referred to the school system's already "fine music program, and I would prefer to see our money spent in another field. Trustee President James E. Winget Jr. said the strings program would 'give them (students) advantages they would not have otherwise."

Trustee C. Wallace Craig, somewhat cautious, said the program should be given a "thorough evaluation" once it gets well un-

The study will determine if public transportation in some form is needed, if it is economically reasonable and if people would use it if put into operation.

Public transportation possibilities include not only the usual fixed route bus lines, but also dial-a-bus, park and ride facilities, mini-buses and other methods. The study will explore inter-city and intra-city transportation under financing through a grant from the Urban Mass Transportation Administration.

The study process began last March when PBRPC and the Voorhees staff started collecting information as to existing transportation services available to the public. Work was done in a week of interviews in both communities with agencies such as Senior Services, Department of Public Welfare, church organizations, Chambers of Commerce, MH-MR, both colleges and UTPB.

The next step includes distribution of questionnaires to determine public attitudes and needs among specific target groups within the area, especially senior citizens, minority and low-income. groups. Senior Citizens Centers will distribute written questionnaires, while lowincome and minority groups will be surveyed by telephone.

A status report is expected to be completed by the end of May for presentation to the governing bodies in both Midland and Odessa. The final report is due the first part of August.

Morton stops slated today

President Gerald Ford's national campaign manager Rogers C.B. Morton will be making three appearances in Midland today.

He will arrive at Midland Regional Air Terminal from Dallas at approximately 4 p.m. and hold a press conference at the Terminal. At 5 p.m., he is scheduled to attend a public reception in the First National Room at the First National Bank. At 6 p.m., he will meet with Midland and Odessa professional, business and civic Moslems claim Christians 'arming to the teeth'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Leftist Moslems charged today that their right-wing Christian foes are "arming to the teeth" to wage a new round of civil war in Lebanon.

Two newspapers that support Kamal Jumblatt, the leader of the eftist private armies, claimed that three foreign ships unloaded 30 armored cars, 10 gunboats, 5,000 machine guns and 5 million rounds of ammunition in the Christian port of Jounieh, 12 miles north of Beirut, during the past few days. The identity of the ships and the source of the arms were not reported. There was no immediate comment on the charge from any of the Christian leaders. Jumblatt charged last week that Syria had been holding up supplies to his forces for three weeks to force him to accept a ceasefire, and there has been no word since whether these arms have been released to the Mosiems.

Plans for a Parliament session Saturday to arrange for President Suleiman Franjieh's replacement were endangered by fighting Tuesday around the supposedly neutral site chosen for the meeting, the Villa Esseilly, near the only crossing point between the Moslem and Christian halves of Beirut.

Police said fighting in the area tapered off today, and Jumblatt and his allies among the Palestinian guerrillas pledged to help the Lebanese army guard the parliamentary session.

The meeting has been called for adoption of a constitutional amendment ending the Christian president's term six months early so that the legislators can elect another Christian who will not block political reforms demanded by the Moslems. The opposing forces are now in the sixth day of a 10-day cease-fire forced on them by Syrian President Hafez Assad so that Franjieh's removal could be arranged. A police spokesman said 41 persons were killed and 21 were wounded in sporadic clashes in Beirut and suburban neighborhoods after midnight Tuesday. He said the rest of the country was calm.

In London, a British shipping company said one of its small cargo ships was fired on Monday by a Syrian gunboat in Lebanese waters off Tripoli. Sea Containers Chartering Ltd. said the 1,592-ton Cheshire Venture was hit seven times above the water line but that there were no casualties. The ship arrived Tuesday night in Cyprus for repairs.

A spokesman said the ship was bound for Saudi Arabia and was at-tacked without warning. A British government source said the British ambassador in Damascus had been instructed to make a strong protest to the Syrian government and to demand compensation for the damage and the time lost by the ship.

Uncle Sam might sue if NYC doesn't pay

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Ford administration says it probably would take New York City to court if the city fails to repay emergency federal

Although the federal government technically would have first claim on city money if there was such a default, Deputy Assistant Treasury Secretary Robert Gerard said Tuesday he doubts a court would rule in Washington's favor.

Gerard made the statement at hearings by House and Senate appropriations panels on the Treasury Department's request for $1.25 million to administer the federal loans during the next fiscal year. The city currently owes the federal government $1.26 billion which it must repay by June 30. The city is expected to ask for another loan on July of approximately $1 billion which should meet the majority of its needs at least through November.

During the hearing before the House panel, Gerard was asked by Rep. C. W. Young, R-Fla., what would happen if New York City defaulted on its loan payments to the federal Gerard said the government would exercise its right to get the taxpayers' money back. "The government would have first priority over every nickel in the city treasury," he said.

Man held in trooper's death

During the Senate panel's hearing,

Gerard was asked what would happen if the city had enough money either to repay a loan, or to meet fire and police payrolls and chose the latter. "I suspect we'd sue for our money." Gerard said. "I have my own personal doubts that a court faced with paying firemen and policemen would pay Uncle Sam the money," he said.

The chairman of the Senate panel. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., asked Gerard if a labor contract negotiated with New York transit workers might 'destroy any chance of the financial plan's succeeding.'

The state emergency Financial Control Board, wich has the final say on the contract, is yet to rule on the pact that incorporates a 22 cent per hour cost of living adjustment that includes a 3.3 cents per hour increase for each percentage point the consumer price index rises.

Gerard said it would be a "real risk" for the city if the contract is approved. He said the treasury estimates that if the same cost of living increase was given the city's 230,000 employes, it would cost New York $250 million.

Sens. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., and Roman I. Hruska, R-Neb., chief sponsors of the measure, were members of a commission appointed by the late President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1966 to recommend revision of federal criminal laws. The legislation is the outgrowth of the commission's studies.

Some features of the bill as it has evolved over the years have aroused controversy and have been denounced by opponents as repressive.

In recent weeks McClellan and Hruska have been negotiating with a trio of Senate Judiciary Committee liberals, Sens. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and James Abourezk, D-S.D., in an effort to reach a compromise. In a statement Tuesday, McClellan and Hruska said they felt they had "gone more than halfway in making the concessions necessary to bring about an accommodation," adding, "Some of those concessions were extremely difficult for us to make." One of the concessions was to agree to drop from

Halting of cable cars raises hackles of tourists

By TONY LEDWELL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -Cramped in an 1890-vintage barn in a quiet Chinese residential area near the heart of San Francisco, 38 rickety cable cars stand idle, their brass bells

The cable car - one of the world's oldest, most durable and most nostalgic transportation systems — is the most famous casualty of the weeklong strike by city workers.

workers in a dispute over wage policy, has curtailed some other city services as well, including the zoos and municipal swimming pools. Pickets have closed the Municipal Railway, shutting down all city buses and streetcars, including those clanky wooden vehicles that, according to song, "climb halfway to the stars.

The strike, triggered by city craft at nine miles an hour no longer hums, and the pungent odor of brakes burning against steel rails no longer lingers in the mornino fog at hilly intersections.

Gone for the moment are an assortment of nerve-wracking experiences for passengers who choose to ride the open-air benches on each side, holding on for dear life as the car rounds corners or plunges down steep hills emid the whine of brakes and

Seven million persons a year, mostly tourists, ride the green and cream cable cars to Fisherman's Wharf or Ghirardelli Square, catching some of the best views of San Francisco Bay as the cars crest hill after hill.

The San Francisco Visitors and Tourists Bureau says visitors to the city for the past week have complained loudly about the absence of cable cars, which have operated for 102 years and were declared a national historic landmark in 1964. Ed Winton, a Miami, Fla., a radio station manager, brought his wife, Linda, and two children, Lance and Rhonda, to San Francisco for a weekend visit but left disappointed and angry "My children, ages 5 and 7, have waited two years for their trip to San Francisco to ride the cable cars," Winton said in a letter to Mayor George Moscone. "How can you permit a local civil strike to interfere with the running of an accredited national historical monument?"

Moscone's press secretary, Corey Busch, asked about Winton's letter, said, "What can we say? It's a shame for all the people who came here, and even for the people who live here, that they are inconvenienced by the strike

Officials say it will take "at least several days" to check out the cars and get service going again once the strike is settled.

Abortion controversy threatens to topple Italian government attempts would be made to reach agreement.

The Socialist leader also planned to meet today with Communist chief Enrico Berlinguer.

Although the Christian Democrats are Italy's largest party, they do not have a majority in the Chamber of Deputies, and Moro's 56-day-old government survives only because the Socialists, the country's third largest party, agreed not to vote against it on major issues.

The Socialists are threatening toabandon this arrangement and force Moro into an election because the Christian Democrats, under pressure from the Vatican, joined forces with the neo-fascist Italian Social Movement last week and passed an amendment restricting legislation to replace the 1930 law making all abortions illegal.

The Socialists want unrestricted abortions but agreed to a bill to mitted to the government.

This latter liberalization was erased by the amendment, which would allow only therapeutic abortion and abortion following rape.

With only 267 seats in the 630 member Chamber of Deputies, the Christian Democrats cannot form a majority gove nment without the 61 Socialists or the 179 Communists, and so far the right wing of the Christian Democrats will not agree to a coalition with the Communists.

I have found a delightful way to re-heat leftovers.

Whenever I cook one of those vegetables that comes in its own plastic cooking bag, I wash the bag well and save it.

Then when I have a small amount of something leftover, I place it in one of those bags, secure it tightly with a rubber band, and store it in the refrigerator or freezer.

When I want to re-heat it, I place the bag (or bags, as the case may be) into a pot of boiling water and in no time everything is heated through.

DEAR ERICA: In my latest project, I've used tent stitch for my central design and Hungarian (Bargello) for the background. What do I do with the canvas around the design? The Hungarian stitch doesn't cover it because it's vertical. If I use tent stitch over the threads of the canvas that show, do they enter the same holes that Hungarian stitches do? How, pray, can you keep a neat looking piece of needlepoint?-Mrs. Ida Chapnick, St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR MRS. CHAPNICK: You can either cover the unfinished canvas around the central design with small Hungarian brick stitches or with the tent stitch in the color of the background. Whatever stitch you choose must share the holes with the stitches you've already completed; that way you'll have a lovely, even canvas with no bare spots peeking through around the outline of, your central design.

DEAR ERICA: After putting a transfer pattern on some pillow cases, I noticed the print had gone through to the back side of the cases. I wonder if you can tell me how I can get this print off. I don't want to use bleach and don't know if it would come out if I did. I've tried tetrachloride, but that doesn't do a thing. Another problem: The transfer lines are heavy and show around my embroidery. Hope you can help .- Mrs. C. L. Thompson, Easthampton, Mass.

siderably-the transfer pattern on the FABRIC, though; work in slow back of the case. Another solution would be to embroider the back of the pillow slip, too!

About those transfer lines you didn't cover when you stitched: Don't worry because they'll fade with time. Next time take heed; stitch boldly over the design lines as you work! Transfers are becoming more and more popular these days, and judging from the letters I receive, there's some question as to how they should be used. Usually the transfer you buy will have a test design or letters of some sort on one corner. Save yourself lots of muttering later on and use it! Take a scrap of the fabric you'll actually be using and stage a dress rehearsal!

Get your iron to a moderate heat, place it on the paper (which should be face down on the fabric) and hold for about the count of five. As you lift the tissue paper, the whole thing should lift off easily, because the wax will have melted, leaving a clear impression on the fabric. If it sticks, put the iron down again and hold it longer. If you have to tear the paper away as it adheres to the cloth, you may end up with only a faint impression that is hard to follow.

I usually find I have to lightly scorch the paper to get it really clear. Take great care not to scorch the stages. Practice makes perfect, and it's not nearly as hard as it sounds!

Transfer inks vary from manufacturer to manufacturer. As you can see with your pillow case, the one who made your transfer was a bit overenthusiastic, since the ink actually reproduced another transfer on the other side! If you try pillow cases again, remember to put a sheet between the front and back as you

By MORTON MINTZ The Washington Post

In December, 1972, a young Washington woman asked her obstetrician to recommend a contraceptive method. He suggested the Dalkon Shield, an intrauterine device (IUD).

To help her make up her mind, the doctor gave Pat Jones - not her real name - a brochure prepared by the manufacturer, A. H. Robins Co. of Richmond.

The brochure was filled with soothing phrases: ..."Convenient protection" "Local protection" 'Medically safe protection' ... "Prolonged protection.

She told a reporter, "I felt assured that there was for safety, effectiveness, and a third factor relevant no danger to me unless there was a pregnancy." And the brochure talked of "approximately 98 per cent" effectiveness.

She wore the Shield without difficulty for almost two years. One morning in November, 1974, however, she did not feel well, had a slight fever and stayed home from work

Tens of thousands of persons have been injured, hundreds of them fatally, by needlessly hazardous IUD's, heart pacemakers, operating room equipment and a wide variety of other medical devices.

Over a dozen years, the government has failed to require manufacturers to show devices to be safe Since 1938 the law has required manufacturers to

In 1968, when IUDs had been inserted in about 1 million women and usage was skyrocketing, an FDA advisory committee warned that certain designs were needlessly hazardous, had caused numerous serious and even fatal injuries, and ought to be banned. The committee pleaded without result for a

Also in 1968, however, the FDA won two crucial lawsuits - one in the Supreme Court - which empowered it to define as "drugs" IUDs, soft contact lenses, pregnancy-test and weight-reduction kits, and a wide range of other devices.

An FDA physician, Joseph B. Davis, concerned about the spring, then proposed that it be taken off the market as a "drug" of unproved safety. Or, he said, th FDA might seize it as a "danger to health." The FDA did neither.

In March, 1973, the FDA learned that the staff of the House Intergovernmental Relations Subcommittee had begun an investigation of the agency's handling of IUDs.

Shortly the FDA directed its inspectors to make a second inspection at Anka. They found 36 additional complaints from doctors.

The inspectors reported that many users "are experiencing a great deal of discomfort, pain, torture, and serious injury ...

Knowing that subcommittee hearings were about to begin, the FDA seized the 9,000 Majzlin Springs that were still unsold.

By that time, subcommittee chairman L. H. Fountain (D-N.C.) told the FDA at a hearing in May, it didn't matter much: the manufacturer, beset by lawsuits, had stopped selling the spring the year before the seizure, except to buyers who carried their own liability insurances.

Court documents show that the FDA proposal to classify as drugs IUDs containing heavy metals deeply concerned A. H. Robins, the Dalkon Shield supplier, because it was made of a plastic in which fine particles of copper - a heavy metal - and copper sulfate were embedded.

Had the Shield been classified as a drug, Robins would have been required by law to authenticate or not make claims about safety and effectiveness such as those in its ads, and to file reports with the FDA on majority were experiencing "favorable results." adverse reactions and other key experience with the

The Robins documents in the liability suits suggest that classification of the Shield as a drug would have caused the company big headaches.

The papers reveal, for example, some odd twists and turns on the use of copper.

The Copper "will enhance the effectiveness," Robins told its salesman in a Shield manual distributed in advance of marketing. Sales training director Ray Hanchey, in a newsletter to the salesmen a month later, on Dec. 8, 1970, also imputed to the copper a chemical effect on the body such as a drug might have. The copper, he said, has a "special ability ... to enhance the contraceptive actions.

Eight days later, however, another Robins executive, R. W. Nickless, reversed course. The presence of copper should be viewed as: "1, experimental, 2. confidential," he said in a Dec. 16 of Midland is among 46 memo. In an inspection of company files in May of that year, FDA inspectors found 41 complaints from doctors: One said to remove the vice he twice had to insignificant.

> Dermatology published a report on a woman who had severe allergic skin reaction that clearly had been caused by an un-named "copper-containing intrauterine contraceptive device.'

> Dr. Ellen J. (Kitty) Preston, a Robins physician, established that the IUD in question was a Shield. But, she said in an internal memo, she saw no reason for the company to research the matter. And, she pointed out, "we already have the 'no drug-no contraception ruling from the FDA."

The pregnancy rate in Shield wearers cited in Robins' ads and in Preston's letters to doctors was 1.1 per cent. That rate had been reported by two researchers, including inventor Davis.

But company files were crammed with complaints from doctors about much higher rates or pregnancy - many of them "late-occurring" - in women in whom, the salesmen verified, the Shield had been properly inserted.

In February, 1971, a Providence, R.I., obstetriciangynecologist reported for that of 50 women in whom e had inserted the Shield, four (8 per cent) had become pregnant - and 10 more required "painful and difficult" removal. Three colleagues in his office building reported "similar results," a distressed Robins salesman told the company.

A sampling of Robins correspondence from doc tors in other cities showed them reporting ex periences such as these: 6 pregnancies out of 12 insertions; 7 out of 56; 6 out of 70; 8 out of 50; 7 out of 82; 5 out of 50; 4 out of 50.

Three months after that, in May, 1973, Robins told the Fountain subcommittee that 10 studies it had sponsored showed a pregnancy rate after 16 months of only 1.6 per cent, that scattered reports of higher rates might be attributable to improper insertion, and that a survey of major users showed a large

In an ad in November, 1972, Robins cited a Planned Parenthood study showing that after nine months of Shield use the pregnancy rate was 1.9 per cent. But seven months earlier, Fountain brought out, the same study had shown that after 18 months of Shield use the rate, was 5.1 per cent, more than twice as high. The ad did not note the higher-rate. By mid-1974, there had been numerous reports associating the Shield with a disproportionate share of septic abortions, or infection-induced miscarriages. Currently, the FDA knows of 15 fatal and 247 non-fatal septic abortions in Shield wearers. After suspending sales in 1974, Robins in August, 1975, abandoned plans to sell the Shield again.

We like traditional furnishings and I am looking for an idea for softening the window but not adding traditional heavy drapes. Do you have any suggestions? — T.S.C.

A. Two designers, Jane Rosemond and Norma Farr Hall, treated just such a window in a most attractive way. They hung drapery fabric on a standard drapery rod at the top of the drapery once in the traditional manner, they tied it back twice. The fabric billowed out softly, was caught back and billowed out again to be tied back. This left the majority of the window glass exposed and yet gave a dramatic look to the window. The fabric chosen for the window was a stylized print in salmon, hunter green and gold. It was combined with a rich, warm doeskin-colored carpeting, hunter green walls with woodwork antiqued in a lighter pine green. A polka dot in salmon and white on a love seat added a light touch to the room filled with wood pieces in rich, warm wood tones. Q. I would like some advice on upstairs bathroom, once a porch which we enclosed. We had to build around our brick chimney so I would like some suggestions for tying the chimney in with the decor of the room. I had in mind to use the vinyl paneling available for bathrooms but I haven't really decided on the color

A. I suppose it is just a personal feeling, but I do not think the vinyl paneling manufactured for bathrooms is very decorative. About all it has going for it, from my point of view, is that it is easy to wipe down. I would strongly recommend that you consider a high-quality vinyl wallpaper or vinyl wall covering rather than the paneling because the decorative possibilities are so great. If you feel you must use the paneling around the tub and shower, why not choose a solid color that you can live with and wallpaper most of the walls matching the background of the wallpaper to the vinyl paneling? White would be a natural and give you plenty of decorating latitude. Is your brick chimney exposed in the bathroom? If it is, I would simply paint the brick the same color as the background in the wallpaper.

Hang some interesting accessories on the painted brick wall which can be a definite decorating plus because of the textural interest it can offer.

Student attitudes toward business seem changing

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) - In the late '60s students pounded at the structure of business and government. They heckled politicians speaking at college forums and booed corporate recruiters off the campus. At worst, their dissent turned to riots and sometimes tragedy.

Today, students are yet to come full circle, but hostility and criticism, while still pointed, have cooled.

This was the assessment of business leaders who recently spoke at a fourweek seminar here for 51 college students from across the country. Views expressed by students at the "Operation Enterprise" seminar sponsored by American Management Associations showed they: -Talk of growing distrust of society's institutions. -Temper idealism with the realities of business. Are uncompromising in their view that there should be no corruption in business and govern-

-Fault business for waiting for government regulations to push it into action rather than initiating changes itself.

and the state of t

-Feel business may be able to solve the nation's problems through continued technological advancement.

-Have a growing anti-union sentiment because unions do not seem to be working in the best interest of their members.

"In some ways students have returned to where they were in 1963 when we began the seminars," says Robin Schade, director of young adult activities for AMA, a nonprofit, management educational organization. "I can't say they have become conservatives, but they have certainly moved in that direction. For instance, in the latest seminar only one of the 30 or so men had shoulder length hair. Five years ago the ratio would have been reversed." One thing that has continued as strongly as ever over the years, leaders agree, is the students' independent thinking. Though many of them are sent to Operation Enterprise under sponsorship of companies such as Dow Chemical, Nabisco, and ITT, they have no qualms about criticizing business.

The purpose of the seminars is to give a clear, balanced picture of the real world of management, rather than sell students on the pleasant trappings usually associated with executive suite activities, according to AMA president James L. Hayes.

"Let's face it, there's a dirty side to being a manager," says Hayes.

"Textbooks tell you layoffs are a function of the business cycle. But it's quite different when you have to look employes in the eye and tell them you're shutting down operations for a

Early day screening system at airports to return April 15

LOS ANGELES - The profile system of passenger screening used in the early days of airport hijacking will return to the nation's airports in modified form April 15 as a defense against sky bombing.

Before it was eliminated by X-ray machines and magnetometers that today search passengers and carry-onluggage, the profile system used by airline personnel sought to spot would-be hijackers through specific assessment of appearance and ac-

The new system developed by the Federal Aviation Administration will incorporate a combination passengerbaggage profile that should under certain circumstances alert airline personnel to require either hand search or X-ray of checked luggage for possible explosives.

'The new system applies only to checked luggage," explained Jay Adsen, chief of air transportation security for FAA's Western region, who said the screening should have an almost negligible effect on departure

"The system should impact only about 2 per cent of the traveling public," he said, "and this 2 per cent would have to do some further things to clear for boarding, such as producing positive personal identification No further details of the steps required once a passenger or his luggage are questioned were released by FAA or the airlines "because this would obviously defeat the purpose of the program.

"In a sense we have gone back to the profile system," Adsen said. "We are still using some of the parameters used in the early days, but we have eliminated those not applicable today and added new ones.'

Guidelines for using the system, the security chief said, include the identification of baggage that could contain explosives. The system also is designed to assure that no baggage goes aboard an airliner unless a passenger accompanies it on the "Passengers with luggage not fitting the combination profile will notice no difference from normal boarding procedures," Adsen said.

"And the system is designed to clear those who might be questioned quickly as possible so they will not miss their flights."

Adsen said all airline personnel involved in processing passengers and their check-in luggage will be a part of the system. Such persons have been trained for some time in a series of FAA seminars.

Dr. John McLucas, FAA administrator, said he believes air travelers will understand the need for the new screening and accept it as they have accepted the screening process for carry-on luggage.

Meanwhile, he added, the agency will continue research on new devices to automatically inspect all checked baggage quickly and effectively.

Man finds relaxation, beauty in river-rafting

Copley News Service

OAKLAND, Calif. - In the Peruvian jungle, at a village named Pebes on a remote tributary of the Amazon, is an 8-year-old girl whose name Lou Elliott doesn't remember. But he loves her, he says, as he loves other children whose faces flash before him when he recalls years of rafting down rivers all over the world.

"I'm one of the world's most for-tunate people," Elliott says as he approaches his 76th birthday. "For years I've been doing the things people work all year to do.

Elliott has lived two lives. For 34 years he worked as a printer in Oakland. But river-running was his

So 20 years ago he formed the American River Touring Association, a non-profit organization that has since carried more than 50,000 persons down rivers on five continents.

"Floating down a river is the finest relaxation in the world," he says. The rapport between people in a raft is so powerful that it's almost scary. Or take 14 paddlers in one canoe with a strong stern man giving orders, and I can't describe the euphoria that sets

In his beginning years with river rafts, Elliott worked with the Sierra Club. He and club officials saw rafting as a way to enjoy wilderness rivers and build a constituency to protect the remaining wild rivers from pollution and damming. "All dams aren't bad," Elliott says.

"Many of them are a godsend. I hated to lose Glen Canyon, but that dam has evened out the flow of the lower Colorado

The most popular among ARTA's catalog of river tours is the two-day trip down the Stanislaus from near

Angel's Camp in the Mother Lode. It's a nine-mile run, inexpensive, and close by the San Francisco Bay Area.

But Elliott may be best-known for his Grand Canyon runs that range in cost from $310 for a five-day oar trip to $560 for a 14-day trip that combines oar rafting with hiking trips to relatively unexplored side canyons.

Close behind in favor are the Rogue River trips in Oregon's Siskiyou Mountains, shorter trips that cost as little as $170. There are home-cooked meals and comfortable beds at night.

There are other series of raft trips this summer through Yellowstone River, along the Yampa and Green rivers of Utah, through Westwater and Cataract canyons on the Colorado, and along the Salmon and Selway rivers of the Northwest. Canoe trips are run through Minnesota and Wisconsin waterways.

More exotic items in the ARTA catalog include a 10-day raft trip in British Columbia down the Chilcotin and Fraser rivers, a 15-day excursion in native sailing boats along the tropical Colombian coast, and a 15day tour which Elliott calls the ultimate in river adventure, in the headwaters of the Amazon along the Urubamba River with a side visit to annual

Statues stolen

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Seventeen jade statues valued at more than $40,000 have been stolen from the home of author John Ball, police said

'It's taken a while to convince people that it's safe for everybody,' Elliott says. "Now half of our rafters are women, and there are lots of

"We have 150 people working for us, and about one-fourth of our boat people are female. When you see those women rowing a boat full of gear and six people through Grand Canyon, you know you're all right."

For Elliott, the hardest thing has been to give up river-running as ARTA has grown, and to resign himself to administrative chores. Whenever he can escape his office he still scouts new river runs with his movie camera. He'll be going back to Peru this summer.

'Some of the greatest runs are in Australia and Spain, and one of the loveliest is in Austria," he says. Every winter for eight years we took rafters along the Mexican coast from Puerto Vallarta to San Blas, 110 miles of open sea. It was beautiful. But I refuse to go to Mexico anymore; every petty official has his hand out. We'll be running more trips along that Colombia coastline, and probably up in Alaska.'

Elliott's advice to river rafters is to travel light.

"You can get sick of dragging a lot of gear off the raft up to the campsite each night," he says.

Camera buffs should go to surplus stores and buy end-opening 50-caliber bullet boxes and line them with foam. That's what Elliott does, and he's never lost a camera. He's had good luck filming rapids through a plastic sack after equipping his camera with a neutral density filter.

Elliott came closest to losing his favorite Canon - and his life - on the Death Rapids of the Columbia River near Revelstoke, British Columbia, long since covered by a reservoir. 'I'm the only man who ever swam them and came out alive," he says. "On purpose?

Glasscock potential reported

J. C. Williamson and D. W. Underwood of Midland filed an offical potential test for No. 2 Clark, a Fusselman oil pay opener, 34 mile northeast of the Fusselman gas discovery in the proposed Apple Creek field of Glasscock County.

The 24-hour pumping potential test gauged 144.05 barrels of 61-gravity oil and 32.1 barrels of water, with gas-oil Production was from open hole at 9.588 feet, where 51/2-inch casing was set, and 9.631 feet, total depth. The pay was treated with 12,000 gallons of Earlier, the company had reported a calculated, absolute open flow of 3.8 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-liquid ratio measuring 2,114-1.

Top of the Fusselman was picked at 9,580 feet, under ground elevation of 2.610 feet.

Amoco Production Co. No. 1-A Margaret F. Alford, Crockett County test, has been completed as a second well and nine-mile northwest extension to the Whitehead (Strawn) gas field, about 16 miles southeast of Calculated, absolute open flow was for 4.5 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, producing from pay opposite perforations at 8,715-8,924 feet, which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons.

Scheduled as a wildeat, it was drilled to 9,100 feet, and has 41/2-inch casing set at 8,996 feet. The pluggedback depth is 8,967 feet.

Wellsite is - 900 feet from south and 1,320 feet from east lines of section 3, block G, GC&SF survey.

The discovery, in Sutton County, was completed in December, 1975 by Wewoka Exploration Co. No. 2 Whitehead had a calculated, absolute The Washington Post open flow of 2.25 million cubic feet of gas daily, through perforations at 3,376-8,439 feet.

Virginia resident lives in fear of highly explosive methane gas

By BILL MCALLISTER

RICHMOND - For nearly 20 months, A. G. Richardson, 72, a retired Virginia state education official, has lived with his windows open at night and in constant fear that his modest two-story frame house will be blown apart. Methane gas - colorless odorless

It had a calculated, absolute open and highly explosive - has been flow of 150,000 cubic feet of dry gas seeping from old Richmond landfills per day, producing through per- threatening the homes of Richardson and about 1,000 other families who live on or near the landfill sites.

The gas has forced the closing of two elementary schools built on what was once hailed as the "reclaimed land" of an old dump. It has caused at least one explosion in which a woman suffered first degree burns, and forced the condemnation of an apartment building.

... A Los Angeles consultant has told methane seeping from landfills may be a nation-wide problem that is only beginning to be recognized.

The methane problem is relatively. unknown because sanitary landfills, which produce the gas, are com-paratively new to America. They were first introduced after World War II and it is just now, the officials believe, that trash in the landfill is beginning to decay on a massive

It is underground decay, in the absence of oxygen, that produces methane — an extremely volatile gas responsible for most coal mine explosions and also known as "swamp

Yates Petroleum Corp., Artesia No. 1-EW Morley Communitized, has been completed as a second well and %-mile northeast extension in an undesignated Pennsylvanian sector of Eddy County, N.M., three miles southwest of Artesia.

A preliminary potential flow gauge for the shut-in well, was 1.415 million cubic feet of gas per day, on a 12-inch choke, and through perforations at 6,551-6,645 feet.

Drilled to 8,443 feet as a wildcat, it has 41/2-inch casing set at 6,774 feet, the plugged-back depth.

It is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 27-17s-25e. The Pennsylvanian strike, Yates

Offset staked in Edwards

North American Royalties, Inc., operating from Midland, filed application to drill No. 8-9 Jack Mann as 34-mile west offset to production in the Jack Mann (Pennsylvanian) field of Edwards County. .

sewer and other pipes or through underground fissures, endangering nearby houses. Richmond officials discovered the danger on Jan. 8, 1975, when a woman in an apartment alongside a city landfill saw a blue flame dart from a bedside lamp across the room and explode in her living room. Fire Chief John F. Finnegan said

"it is amazing" that neither the woman nor her husband was more seriously injured in the explosion that blew out the apartment door and two windows. The woman suffered firstdegree burns of the hand and her husband's hair was singed, Finnegan

The damage forced condemnation of the two-story brick apartment building and prompted city officials to launch a prevention program. Now hundreds of residents are being told to keep their windows open two-inches year-round and their closet doors open in hopes of avoiding a second explosion. Fire officials have checked more than 1,000 homes and found a potentially dangerous level of gas in one, Finnegan said.

After the explosion in the apart- DRILLING REPORT ment, 40 to 50 gas-detection devices were installed in two elementary schools. The chief told school officials to close the schools when gas levels in the buildings began triggering the alarm systems so frequently that he feared for the children's safety.

City officials are convinced that the hazard is a major one and fire officials regularly check homes in two of the neighborhoods.

Although the problem may exist in other cities, in Richmond it is probably more serious than elsewhere because, as homeowner Richardson put it, "here the city put the landfills in residential areas.

Methane is "an inherent problem" in landfills according to John Schilf, a Washington, D.C., solid waste disposal official.

In Richmond, thanks partly to a history of having some 400 to 500 privately-operated dumps in the city during the Civil War days, landfills in the city became an accepted practice, according to Stone.

Sale brings record bids

AUSTIN (AP) - Renewed interest in offshore oil development sparked record prices for the right to lease state school lands, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong says.

Armstrong said the average acre price was $75.63 compared to last October's sale average of $39.03 an

A total of $9,370,000 was bid for the tracts Tuesday. A new record high bid of $1,657,915 was made by Corpus Christi incheasing at 12,677 feet.

Leaseholds Inc. for an offshore Union Texas No. 1 Matagorda County tract. The second high bid was $961,012 from Houston Oil and Mineral Corp., for a tract off Galveston County.

'The sale reflected a renewed interest in offshore development as opposed to bays and inlets," Armstrong 'said. "Overall the sale reflected a high degree of interest from previous active bidders but also attracted several new bidders to the public lands. I think this sale reflects the industry's recognition that prices have now been stabilized by congressional action and although many people were not happy with the outcome, at least they now know where they are going and what they can anticipate.'

Armstrong noted the Public School fund will receive onefifth of the market value from all oil and gas produced from the tracts, plus the Furthermore, Richmond officials became convinced after World War II that a properly-developed landfill with trash firmly compacted by huge earth-moving equipment — could become the source of "new land" for development. Yet all landfills produce methane gas, regardless of how well the trash is compacted. Nevertheless, until the Jan. 8, 1975, explosion, Richmond officials say they were unaware of the hazard.

"This gas problem is kind of a phenomenon of the modern technology of landfills," said Cy Lynn, an assistant to Richmond's city

Despite the initial furor caused by the explosion and the closing of the two elementary schools, city officials have continued dumping at a landfill alongside the condemned apartment building. Chief Finnegan said city officials are working only to "cap" the landfill, which will be the site of a pilot project to attempt to capture some of the gas before it escapes.

Under the $1 million project, wells would be dug into the city's major landfills and the methane gas pumped out before it could escape into nearby homes or schools. If enough gas is captured, city officials believe it could be sold commercially.

Smaller amounts of the gas could be burned at the wellhead, much the way methane gas is collected from sewage plants and burned. In Southern California, methane gas from a landfill on which an amusement park has been built is used to light the park's tiki-torch lanterns.

The neighborhoods around the two most troublesome Richmond landfills are nearly all poor and black. Some residents believe this has delayed action on the methane problem "We know we've been ignored."

said Dorothy Wilkinson, an eightgrade school teacher who has led néighborhood groups in repeated appeals to city officials.

Kissinger link denied in hiring

By EDWARD WALSH The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Civil Service Commission Chairman Robert E. Hampton said there is no evidence to support an assertion published in Tuesday's Washington Post that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger "forced the Office of Education to hire his brother-in-law, David Maginnes. In a letter to The Post and a telephone interview Tuesday, Hampton said a Civil Service investigation of the case produced no evidence linking Kissinger to the hiring of Maginnes. A commission report on the case. which formed the basis for The Post's story, said "the preponderance of evidence" was that Maginnes was considered a "must hire" by the Office of Education and was given 'preferential treatment' in seeking a job covered by Civil Service regulations.

The report, citing "direct con-tradiction in (sworn) testimony," did not say why Maginnes was given special treatment or who, if anyone, sought the special treatment for him.

The first paragraph of The Post's story Tuesday, to which Hampton specifically objected, said "Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger forced the Office of Education to hire his brother-in-law, David Maginnes, even though there was no work for him to do, the Civil Service Commission said in a report released yesterday (Monday)."

In his letter to The Post, Hampton said: "The commission's intensive investigation did not uncover any evidence, either documentary or testimonial, that linked Dr. Kissinger to Mr. Maginnes' appointment, or which suggested in any way that he had taken any action to influence it. Nor did the CSC report state that Mr. Maginnes' appointment was so in-

Both Hampton and John Lafferty, deputy director of the commission's Bureau of Personnel Management conducted the Evaluation, which investigation, said there was insufficient evidence to draw any conclusions as to why Maginness was afforded preferential treatment.

'The reasons for it and the source of it we were not able to determine,'

Denton slates area visit

Lane Denton, Democratic candidate for the Texas Railroad Commission, will visit in the Midland-Odessa area Thursday, according to Vernon Chandler of Midland, area campaign manager.

Denton, of Waco, is a three-term member of the Texas House of Representatives. He is owner of a farm-ranch, an educator and school administrator and a graduate of Baylor University.

"kick-off" meeting for April IV" program will be held at 4:30 p.m. Thursday in the council chamber in Midland City Hall.

The representatives will review and select their specific projects in which assignments made.

The public may visit with Rep.

Denton at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Midland Regional Air Terminal. A reception for the candidate will be held later at 8 p.m. in the upstairs banquet room of the Midland they will be engaged in the program. Plans also will be mapped and special

Action in the upcoming program is scheduled the weekend of April 30. "Christmas in April" is a program designed to repair and improve the sub-standard homes of elderly and handicapped persons. It is a volunteer program from start to finish, sponsored by the Human Relations Council of Midland.

Sponsors hope to repair and improve 50 homes in the forthcoming observance. In addition to volunteer workers, approximately $10,000 will be needed in cash contributions to purchase materials and supplies.

Car-bicycle accident sends boy to hospital

A 4-year-old Midland boy is in stable condition today, at Women's and Children's Hospital at Odessa with head injuries he received in a car-bicycle collision at 5:57 p.m. Tuesday, officials at the hospital and at the Midland Police Department

Paul David Babcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Griswold, 4513 Roosevelt St., suffered cuts and bruises on his head and was transferred from Midland Memorial Hospital in satisfactory condition, a Midland Memorial Hospital spokesman said.

The boy was riding his bicycle in the 4500 block of Roooevelt Street when struck by a car driven by Jamie Lynn Hale, 17, 4601 Mercedes St., police

TWO MIDLANDERS ARRESTED A Midland couple have been charged with felony possession of marijuana and other dangerous drugs, a spokesman for Justice of the Peace John Biggs said.

Bond was set at $5,000 each by Peace Justice John Biggs for Richard Lee Williams, 18, his wife, Charlsye Jean Williams, 19, both of 1120 E. Pine St., the spokesman said.

Police said they arrested them at 12:12 p.m. Tuesday at their home where narcotic officers reportedly found six plastic baggies and one large plastic bag of the drug having a street value of $90.

Police reportedly found eight capsules of various drugs and a syringe, they said.

MONEY STOLEN A money bag containing a reported $780 in cash and checks was reported stolen from Kent Service Station at 810 E. Florida St., police said.

Officers have arrested one man, but have not filed charges, they said. Employes told police four men came into the station at 4:15 p.m. Tuesday and allegedly took the money bag while both employes were busy at the pumps.

CASH STOLEN Cash totaling $100 was reported stolen from the Air Way Lounge at Midland Regional Air Terminal, Midland police said.

The money was in a bank bag and was taken from a storeroom in the kitchen, police were told Tuesday.

'Never knock somebody ,who fails," Dr. Norris said in discussing the problems of the smoker who is trying to give up his cigarettes.

One of the things to do during the initial phases of withdrawal from tobacco is to develop some other physical activity, Norris said. 'I jogged until I jogged a vertebra out of place," said Dr. Norris. By accident, Norris developed a habit which helped him get over the longing for the busyness cigarettes provide for a smoker's hands. He tears off small pieces of paper from his appointment calendar and rolls them between his fingers. And it helps, he reports. The hell of withdrawing from tobacco has more than one facet. In addition to the very real addiction to nicotine, there are all the habits associated with smoking which must he subdued one way or another.

Nicotine is a drug which has some of the effects of alcohol and other addictive drugs.

Dr. Norris remembers waking up in the middle of the night needing to smoke, just as an alcoholic will develop a craving for a drink as the level of alcohol recedes.

Nicotine is a brain stimulant and the brain is modified by it, according to Norris. Smokers who stop smoking at first have abnormal brain wave patterns, according to Norris.

Within a week or so, after the initial withdrawal phase is completed, the brain waves will return to normal, he Norris believes that the deeper the person inhales, the tougher it will be for him to quit smoking. It is possible to smoke and not become addicted, he said, but those persons don't inhale the smoke at all, or inhale with a relatively shallow intake of smoke into the lungs.

The uptight person who keeps himself under pressure as he strives to succeed will find it very difficult to stop smoking, according to Norris. This is the Type A personality who is most prone to heart attacks.

When he smokes, he inhales, and he inhales deeply, because that's his style of doing everything. Nicotine causes the small passages in the circulatory system to become smaller and that makes the heart work harder. Smoking is even more destructive to the heart and circulatory system than it is to the lungs

The Type B personality who is more relaxed and not as likely to feel himself under stress and pushed, smokes less, doesn't inhale as deeply and has less trouble quitting cigarettes, Norris said.

Nicotine is an extremely addictive drug, Norris warned. All kinds of substances have been tried as substitutes but they won't work. However, a shot of nicotine or chewing tobacco will relieve the pangs of withdrawal because the nicotine addict is getting what he has come to need.

"Smoking to a smoker becomes a part of his life," Norris said. "If you take it away from him, it upsets his Norris has known smokers to become suicidal after they quit smoking. Within two hours after one patient resumed smoking his desire to kill himself subsided, Norris said.

Dr. J.A. Stocker, a veteran specialist on diseases of the lungs, also looks on nicotine as an addictive

Nicotine has nothing to do with lung cancer or other lung diseases, Stocker said, but it is a nerve poison which alters the thinking processes and reduces the level of awareness. "Human beings have an inherent desire to alter their thinking processes," Stocker said.

In recent years attempts have been made to reduce the potency of the tobacco used in cigarettes. The compounds which result in tars have been reduced and nicotine content also has been lowered

The result was that smokers smoked more, apparently to get their regular amount of nicotine, Stocker reported. Some consideration has been given to adding nicotine to tobacco so that the smoker will smoke less, Stocker said. That way he would get a reduced amount of tar in his lungs, because he could get his jolt of nicotine without smoking so much Stocker, who smoked heavily in the 1930s, believes there is no way to stop smoking except to throw away the cigarettes and just not smoke anymore.

"It takes most people weeks and months to get over a habit of 10 or 20 years." Stocker said Both Stocker and Norris believe there are persons who cannot quit

Stocker himself was frightened into giving up his cigarettes. "I stopped smoking under great duress," Stocker said. "I was afraid of dying. When he is working with patients who are trying to stop smoking, Stocker encourages them to get rid of their cigarettes first and then their lighters and matches.

CHICAGO - Eighty-two-year-old Mayer Patur says his hand-rolled cigars are free. His customers pay only for his labor.

Patur is surrounded by antiquated machinery in a small enclosure at Ye Old Chicago Tobacco Co., where people watch as he meticulously sorts tobacco and forms the leaves into La Patur cigars.

Patur has been shaping and forming cigars for the last 65 years. He was a young boy living in a small town in White Russia when his uncle brought him to America. Patur started working in his uncle's cigar factory and the tobacco business got into his blood.

It's a good trade," he said while preparing the tobacco leaves for an 80-year-old destemming machine. The iron machine cuts the stem from the leaves and rolls the tobacco leaves around a drum. 'Nobody wants to do it anymore," Patur adds, because they can get a higher paying job on an

Patur worked for many years at his tobacco shop in Chicago. He was one of only three men in America who made their living making cigars. One has since died and Patur said he hasn't heard from the other

His shop is filled with a small workbench, many old wooden cigar forms, the destemming machine, two old presses and a crate of tobacco leaves. Patur carefully removes the tobacco leaves from the cylinder on the destemming machine. He stacks them near the old block, which is worn deep where his fingers have worked the tobacco over the years. 'The cigar makers have all gone," he said. "They fade with the progress." He also believes a decline in the taste for a good cigar is responsible for his craft's He works with two different types of tobacco. The first is a "binder leaf," which is used to bind the cigar, and the second is a special blend, which is used inside the binder. The special blend is an easterngrown tobacco. The binder tobacco is from the South. Each leaf is cut and placed on the block. He grabs a handful of the special mixture and begins shaping

He knows exactly where the cigar is a little light or a little heavy.

The old man wraps the binder leaf around the mixture and rolls the strands of tobacco until the cigar begins to take form. The semifinished product looks like a bumpy cigar that has been loaded with a small blast. Shreds and strands hang from one end.

'You can't buy machine-made cigars that burn this evenly," he said, holding up one of the cigars. Patur says he has been smoking cigars for 65 years and cigar smoking, like cigar making, is an art.

"The true cigar smoker doesn't inhale the smoke." he said. "He draws in through his nose to stimulate BAYTOWN, Tex. (AP) - The summer nights are the worst. Those balmy, "easy livin" evenings along the Texas Gulf Coast are long, dark hours of uncertainty and fear for Baytown's Brownwood subdivision, a neighborhood under seige.

The subdivision is sinking, slowly, centimeter by centimeter. The once picturesque waters of Crystal Lake and Scott's Bay have become relentless threats of life and property.

It takes only a strong southerly wind out of the Gulf, whipping across Galveston Bay and up the long channel toward Baytown, to send high tides lapping over roads, across yards and into houses.

"VOLUNTEER FIREMEN will come in the night knocking on doors and warning us that the tides are coming up," says Mrs. Victor H. Appelt, whose family has lived in Brownwood for 16 years.

'We woke up one night and heard sirens," she recalled "My husband and I got in the cars and drove out through fender-deep water, dodging floating logs.

During the summer months, she said, "the outside lights burn all night and people worry about every little storm.

"Most people keep things ready to move away from rising water during the summer," said Mrs. Doc George, a neighbor of the Appelts. "It's an everyday threat and you worry about getting a warning. I know some who have heard too late and were trapped. They had to spend the night in their attics.'

One couple awoke in the night to find their home awash. They splashed through darkness to their baby's room and found the infant floating on a crib

BOATS ARE PARKED in the driveways at some residences. Some park their cars on nearby elevated streets.

"It's all been a gradually intensifying way of life for many Brownwood residents for several years now. And there's no hope of improvement.

Brownwood is slowly being wiped out by a phenomenon called earth subsidence. The ground is literally sinking, collapsing like a leaky bafloon. Since the community is beside an arm of Galveston Bay, the sea nibbles away at the shoreline, slowly claiming broad expanses of land.

Once Brownwood was a gracious neighborhood of large, comfortable waterside homes. Tall trees arched gracefully over roadways and shaded wide, verdant lawns. The backyards of many homes sloped gently to the water. The bay was a peaceful playground for fishing and sailing.

'It was just beautiful," Mrs. Appelt said. But subsidence has turned the playground into a battleground. In the last decade, homeowners have spent thousands of dollars on seawalls to hold back the water and on home repairs when the walls failed. Their efforts have beeen brushed aside by the invading sea. Some homes are now inundated for several days each year. One brick two-story home stands surrounded by water.

EXPERTS SAY Brownwood is paying the price for the massive thirst of nearby Houston and its industries

Houston is atop an aquifer in the Beaumont Clays. a geologic formation deposited thousands of years ago. A huge underground reservoir of water is trapped in pockets of sand within the clays.

About 170 billion gallons of water annually are pumped from the aquifer to quench the needs of the area's flourishing population and its industrial com-As the water is pumped from the sands, water flows from the clays. The fine sand compresses in an effect similar to that of a sponge shrinking as it dries. The result is subsidence. As the deep pockets compress' surface ground above sinks steadily.

Since Brownwood was built, some areas of the neighborhood have sunk as much as six feet. Subsidence also has affected other areas around Galveston Bay.

The cities of Kemah, Seabrook, Pasadena and La Porte all suffer some effects of subsidence flooding. The San Jacinto Battleground State Park, just across the channel from Baytown, has lost many acres to subsidence flooding. Some park roads are constantly under water. At the Johnson Space Center, buildings are sinking up to five inches a year.

But Brownwood is the worst. The Army Corps of Engineers conducted months of complex studies on ways to rescue the subdivision. PLACED, IT MUST RUN But experts determined there was no economical ONE DAY salvation for Brownwood.

"We decided the best thing to do would be to permanently evacuate the residents, level the land and surrender it to the sea," said Chester Pawlik, a government chief engineer. "There are 750 acres and 448 families involved. The cost is estimated at $16.9 million.

After the homes are razed, he said, the area would be used as a park. But eventually it will be covered by water.

The homes would be purchased by the government, which would pay 'Mair market value," Pawlik This value, he said, would be based on "a comparison of recent sales in the area. At that rate, Mrs. Appelt says, "we'll be getting peanuts for our property.

Baytown Century Twenty-One Co. realtor Jim

Setley agrees.

"Those properties are selling for about half of what they would bring in another area," he said. "While houses have doubled in value elsewhere, just the opposite happened in Brownwood. And some of it was really exceptional property.'

A LOT OF PEOPLE there, he adds, "are going down the tubes. Some subdivision homeowners have already abandoned their houses in despair, Mrs. George said. "They've been forced out and are still making house payments on homes they can't even live in,

she said. "Some of them are just ruined." Pawlika said the government is empowered by the Uniform Relocation Act to award grants of up to 48 FROZEN FOOD LOCKERS

$15,000 to "help make up for the loss" that some of the homeowners will experience. But even this grant would not be enough to equalize the loss by some, Setley said.

"Many of them will never be able to afford houses as big as the ones they're leaving," he said.

The Texas Legislature created a Subsidence District, the first in the state, for Harris and MAPARTMENTS UNFURNISHED Galveston counties. The district is limiting the 62 HOUSES FURNISHED number of water wells and the amount of water pumped. Heavy industrial water users have been told to start switching to surface water. A series of canals has been constructed by an Industrial Water Authority to bring surface water to industries along the Houston Ship Channel from reservoirs to the north.

These efforts may head off subsidence in the future but they will have no effect on areas already flooded

because of sinking land. Scientists who have studied the problem said even | BRESORT PROPERTY SALES if all water pumping was halted, it would take years & BUSINESS PROPERTY SALES

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Is Johnny Jones he bionic man?

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

Is Lampasas' Johnny Jones the real six million dollar man?

Oh, I know he pulls his pants on one leg at a time just like any other human, but after the San Angelo Relays Saturday, I'm certianly not sure that someone has not been tinkering around with the art of bionics. If Jones is human, then he is super human.

For those of you that were not there, we should at least list his accomplishments just for the record. However, whatever is written about Jones will lose something in the translation. Words are a poor excuse for what the eye can see and what the brain can imagine from the visual moment of historic importance.

Jones ran a 20.7 in the 220. That sounds bland enough, but just try to realize that the time is just one-tenth of a second off the national record. Remember that it was only the second time in his life that Jones had ever run the event:

THE FIRST time he ran the 220 was Friday in the preliminaries. He had a 21.0, a meet record and the best time in the state. In the mile relay, Jones took the baton on the final leg some 30 yards behind Odessa Ector's Larry Callicut, and won the race with 20 yards to spare. To make up the 50 yards, Jones officially clocked a 45.6. The crowd couldn't believe it and skeptical sports writers were saying from the start that he couldn't make up the difference, much less, finish 20 yards

Jones also won the long jump with a leap of 22-0% feet, but here was merely a human effort in an event he never works on. His best is 24-014.

Somehow the 20.7 in the 220 just didn't register at the time. Anyone of what he had shown in spring training here, Donnie Moore thought that runs as effortless as Jones, just doesn't impress you until you hear the final time.

HE WAS far out in front, but the pure glide left the impression that he wasn't trying. I put out more effort walking up a flight of stairs. But when he has to make up the difference in a large lead, like in the mile relay, you begin to sense just how superior Jones really is.

What really boggles the mind, however, is that Jones will be heading to the University of Texas next fall on a football mission. Darrell Royal must be losing a lot of sleep over that prospect. He is such a good athlete that one wonders where Royal will use him.

His blazing speed from a halfback position would never allow a lineman to block in front of him. Well, that makes it easy for fensive linemen. Someone said that he would make a great pulling guard, and he could lead those awesome Wishbone sweeps, but that brought about the response, "Jones would be so far in front of the play that he would never be able to hold a block that long

ANOTHER REPLIED, "Yea, but have you ever been hit by a bullett." An athlete like Jones comes around about once in a life time. Two like him is just too much to ask for. So, Jones ruins the fun for everyone. Track may never again be the same. How is this writer going to endure anything above 47.0 in the 440 or anything above 21.0 in the 220. A 9.5 in the 100 will only be average from now on after Jones has posted a 9.2. He ran a 9.5 at San Angelo and everyone was disappointed.

Bulldogs win despite errors

The Midland High Bulldogs couldn't catch a ball Tuesday at the Memorial Stadium diamond, but they finally erupted at the plate to shake off what has been a season long weakness to score a District 5-4A victory over Odessa High, 17-13.

The victory kept the Pack from plunging into the 5-4A cellar, but there was times that the Purples looked as if their hands were tied in the field. The Pack committed 12 errors, and every man in the starting lineup was guilty of at least one miscue. The Pack, however, raised its season record to 6-15 and 1-4 in district.

The Pack has been almost punchless at the plate this season, but they got some of it out of their system Tuesday with 13 hits, including three not so cheap home runs. It was a welcome sight the year. Odessa scored two in the fourth after the Bulldogs made a couple of errors, but the Pack posted four as Pearce drove in two more with a single. Gaddy and Gary Merritt also drove in runs.

Midland fell apart again in the fifth with four errors and Odessa scored six times on five hits to chase winning pitcher Kevin Pearce.

MIDLAND MADE sure the Bronchos' record would fall to 6-12 and 0-5 in the bottom of the fifth when the Pack roared for seven runs. Gaddy had a two-run homer to left and Clellan Pearce drove in his fifth run of the game to highlight the inning.

Clellan Pearce led the Bulldogs with three hits in four trips with five rbi. Gaddy drove in three with three hits while Johnston had a homer and a double for three rbi. Merritt and Minton also had a couple of hits each. The Bulldogs had a chance to make this one a laugher, but they kept the Bronchos in the game with the 12 errors, which was a bit like a old English comedy. Midland made at least one error in every inning execpt the sixth.

Asked what would happen if Miller couldn't build such a group to take the club off Mrs. Brown's hands, her husband admitted that "Ellie and I will take a good look at each other and decide what we should do.'

Miller noted that the Browns are willing to take a bath financially to keep the team in Louisville. He said the majority stock is effered "at about a quarter of what it cost them."

Brown said that he has no doubt that the franchise can be sold to a group from some other city - and for a larger price than that announced in Tuesday's news conference.

"We've had three other cities contact us," Brown said, "We could sell Artis Gilmore (Kentucky's 7-foot-2 center) for more than we are syn-

The Cougars, Steers, Eagles and Bobcats all are 4-1 in loop play with the two big upsets.

Lefthander Rodney King threw a five-hitter for the Cougs as Cooper secred three runs in the seventh inning to post the big victory. Cooper is 9-4 on the year and Big Spring is 14-5.

Rusty Hamric hit a solo home run home run for the Cougars while teammates Mark Allen and Mark Beale added a double and triple. Abilene's victory gives the Warbirds an 11-3 season mark with Welden Bragg picking up his seventh victory of the year against no losses. Bobby Lawson of Abliene and San Angelo's John Jeschke had two-base hits. The Bobcats are now 12-1 on year with the loss.

NEW YORK (AP) - Leroy Selmon, Oklahoma's destructive defensive lineman, and Chuck Muncie, California's pile driving runner, figure to be the top two picks-by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and Seattle Seahawks, respectively-in the National Football League's annual college draft.

Selmon and Muncie are rated as superstars in this "Year of the Running Back." There's a ton of running backs, starting with Muncie, a 6-foot-3, 235-pounder who rushed for 1.460 yards last year, fourth in the nation, and scored 15 touchdowns. In his wake will come names like

Ohio State's Archie Griffin, the first 5,000-yard career gainer and the first two-time Heisman Trophy winner as the nation's top college player. Some scouts call the 5-9, 184pound Griffin too small. Others, though, point to the pro success of "little" runners like Mack Herron, Greg Pruitt, Mike Garrett, Johnny Rodgers and Anthony Davis.

Other running backs expected to go in Thursday's early rounds are Joe Washington of Oklahoma, Tonys Galbreath of Missouri, Sonny Collins of Kentucky, Jim Jensen of Iowa. Bubba Bean of Texas A&M and Mike

Nicklaus dominates Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) - The imposing shadow of Jack Nicklaus falls like a shroud over the 40th Masters Golf Tournament, starting Thursday, and the words of his strongest challengers sound like carvings on a tombstone.

"Nicklaus," said Hubert Green, winner of three straight tournaments in the last four weeks on the Florida any facet of the game, and in Jack's case it is either excellent or better.'

"It is his marvelous tempera-ment," added South Africa's Gary Player, who with Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer once formed golf's Big Three. "He is unshakeable. He never

CALIFORNIA'S explosive Johnny Miller, who with Tom Weiskopf carried Nicklaus down to the final hole last year in the most exciting of all Masters finishes, agreed. 'The difference between me and Jack," Miller said, "is that when Jack losses and one tie. he shoots par, and when I shoot badly, I wind up with an 80. From 25 feet in, there is no greater putter in the world.' WEISKOPF, the towering stylist from Jack's home town of Columbus, Ohio, conceded that Nicklaus' advantage lay in his remarkable concentration and ability on the putting 'Actually, they are intertwined," said Weiskopf, a former British Open winner. "Still, I think if Jack teed off with an iron instead of a wood on. every hole, he still would find a way to win. He is that good.

An international, hand-picked field of 72, including 49 of the toughest practitioners on the U.S. tour, will tee off Thursday in the first round of the tournament that will extend through

THE SETTING is perhaps the most sumptuous in all the universe of golf-the lush pinestudded and flower-bedecked plantation that makes up the Augusta National Golf Club. The tournament was the creation of the late Bobby Jones, an amateur golfing immortal, and quickly developed from a cozy invitational gathering of friends to one of the maior events of the sport.

The course itself, with its wide open fairways, meanders through clusters of dogwood, Chinese fir, yellow jasmine and magnolia, and offers natural amphitheaters for the thousands of spectators who flock here for the carnival weekend.

It measures 7,030 yards. It plays a routine par of 36-36-72, which seems to escalate in the extreme pressure of the occasion.

Even Nicklaus, at 36 and winner of close to $3 million in official prize money and an alltime record of 16 major titles, acknowledges that he is not immune to this assault on the human nervous system.

"I am one nervous guy when the Masters gets close," the big, goldenhaired superstar said, "I get fever

ALTHOUGH he has made the Masters his personal domain by winning five championships, one more than Palmer, Nicklaus refuses to regard himself as a shoo-in, although unofficial oddsmakers have made him a prohibitive 4-1 favorite.
"There are more young players than ever before-strong, smart and good," he said. "No one man canclaim a lock on any tournament-not even the Masters.' Nicklaus is unable to forget the close squeak be had a year ago when he had to sink a snaking 40-foot putt on the 70th hole for a 276 and then watch Weiskopf and Miller come to the fina hole with chances to tie.

Miller first took aim on a putt from about 16 feet-and the ball slid past the lip of the cup. Then Weiskopf tried from nine feet. He struck the ball well-but it failed to break as expected and he missed by less than an the home-ice advantage for the opener, the sites of the first two games of the series were reversed because Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium had been booked by a basketball game.

In Tuesday night's other games, the Toronto Maple Leafs stopped the Pittsburgh Penguins 4-1, the New York Islanders beat the Vancouver Canucks 5-3 and the Los Angeles Kings edged the Atlanta Flames 2-1. The second game of each series will be played Thursday night. 'Those first two periods, I don't think we've played better all year,' said Blues Coach Leo Boivin, who's team took a 3-0 lead in the first period and battled Buffalo to a scoreless draw in the second. "It was a super 40 minutes of hockey.

DEREK SANDERSON scored on a slap shot with just 4:14 gone, Lefley notched a shorthanded goal four minutes later and Larry Patey put home a rebound to give the Blues thier commanding lead after the first period. Garry Unger made it 4-0 at 1:56 of the final period before Rick Martin finally got Buffalo on the scoreboard at 8:37. Goals by Lefley and Buffalo's Jacques Richard completed the scoring.

Staniowski, a veteran of just 11 NHL games since being brought up from the minors March 5, came up with 37 saves, including sparkling stops against Jerry Korab and Danny Gare in the opening period.

'I was fortunate," he said. "I got hit, but not hurt. Those two big stops in the opening period settled me down in a hurry. "If I had been able to score," said

Gare, "it would have turned the game around. I thought for sure it was a Sabres Coach Floyd Smith said he was "not happy with the way we played. They got ahead of us and then we played catch-up. It's a short series, and they had to get their win at home or they'd have been out of it."

Aggressive checking, plus solid goaltending by Wayne Thomas, marke the Maple Leafs' triumph over explosive Pittsburgh. Thomas turned aside 35 shots and held the Penguins scoreless until 4:17 of the third period, when he was beaten by Stan Gilbertson. But by then Toronto had a 3-0 lead on goals by Jim McKenny, Lanny McDonald and Bob Neely.

"We weren't flat," contended
Pittsburgh Coach Ken Schinkel. They just came out and hit us.

"We checked well," agreed Toronto Coach Red Kelly. "That's what we had to do to contain them." And Thomas added, "The key tonight was that we just outworked and outplayed Islanders 5, Canucks 3

Lorne Henning's shorthanded tally just 10 seconds into the second period started a threegoal outburst that carried the Islanders to victory. Henning's 30-foot shot snapped a 2-2 tie, and Bill MacMillan and Bob Nystrom added goals for New York later in the second period.

Henning said the Islanders were tense in the opening period—a case of playoff pressure. "But in the second period we got unwound," he said."In a short series, if you get too uptight, before you know it you're going home.

Kings 2, Flames 1 Tommy Williams scored 50 seconds into the opening period and assisted on Bob Nevin's goal at 2:40 of the second to lead Los Angeles past Atlanta. Barry Gibbs' 50-foot blast with 5:24 to play spolied the shutout bid by Kings goalie Rogie Vachon, who was credited with 20 saves.

pitcher Jim Gideon-apparently just missed the cut after working out with the Rangers in spring training this year, and Gideon will pitch Wednesday night. For one inning, the game will match Gideon and Texas lefthander Richard Wortham, the one-two pitching punch that carried the Longhorns in 1975 to their first national title in 25 years. Gideon, a two-time All-American righthander signed with the Rangers after his junior year last season, but Wortham, who won the 1975 title game with a four-hitter, rejected major league bids because he said they were not high enough. Gideon reportedly will be sent to Sacramento, Calif., following the Texas game. Wortham, who has won 43 games as a Longhorn to break Gideon's school record of 40 victories, will be relieved after an inning to save him for the crucial Southwest Conference series here this weekend against Texas A&M. Texas leads the SWC with a 11-1 record and A&M is 9-3.

petition for Oakland probably will come from the Kansas City Royals and Texas Rangers. The hungry Royals have some strong hitters in John Mayberry and Amos Otis and solid pitching with Steve Busby, Dennis Leonard and Doug Bird. The Royals' big off-season trade was for second baseman Dave Nelson, who probably will provide speed and manuverability in an already standout infield.

THE RANGERS were a team of the future two years ago under Billy Martin and could be a team of the present if their pitching matures in a hurry. Texas traded veteran righthander Ferguson Jenkins during the off-season to the Boston Red Sox for outfielder Juan Beniquez. He'll join a group of fine young players headed by Mike Hargrove, Toby Harrah, Len Randle, Jim Sundberg and Jeff Bur-

Minnesota has a new manager in Gene Mauch and an old problem-no speed. The Twins didn't do any significant trading during the offseason and that means a familar stand-pat lineup that has produced little success in the past. Minnesota, though, does have one of the best pitchers in the American League in Bert Blyleven and the perennial batting champion in Rod Carew.

Because of flashy Bill Veeck, the Chicago White Sox will be flashy, but they won't be competitive. Veeck, who produced pennants in another era at Cleveland and Chicago, has traded power hitters Ken Henderson and Bill Melton and pitcher Jim Kaat, and Manager Paul Richards has little else to display in Veeck's sideshow.

The toughest inter-divisional com- Nolan Ryan and Frank Tanana. But right-handed pitcher Doc Medich for the Angels have too many holes to make any noise in the West.

The defending AL champion Boston Red Sox have the best of both worlds in youth and experience, and that should spell another East pennant for Darrell Johnson's gang.

Centerfielder Fred Lynn was a star in his rookie season last year, picking up such prestigious individual awards as the AL's Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year-the first time that ever had been accomplished. Led by the omnipresent Lynn, the Red Sox have rare over-all strength including Carl Yastrzemski, Carlton Fisk, Rico Petrocelli, Rick Burleson and Dwight

The Red Sox are deep all around with the only possible weakness being a capable backup for shortstop Burleson and the second-line relief pitching behind Tom House and Jim Willoughby. The Red Sox acquired Jenkins to shore up their starting staff that includes such standouts as Luis Tiant, Rick Wise and Bill Lee.

The Orioles stengthened themselves considerably with the acquisition of Jackson and Holtzman from Oakland. The Orioles long were in the market for a power-hitting outfielder, but few expected them to land Jackson, who hits the longest home runs in baseball. He had 36 last year and knocked in 104 runs, and has predicted another "Most Valuable Player" season for himself in 1976. Jackson won the award in 1973.

Jackson joins Paul Blair and Ken Singleton in a sparkling outfield, and Holtzman joins Cy Young winner Jim Palmer and Mike Cuellar on the mound, giving the Orioles excellent a quantity of players. The Yankees restructured their makeup from power to speed, but comebacks by Elliott Maddox and Ron Blomberg would be welcome to go along with Chris Chambliss, Thurman Munson and Roy White, all of whom had good seasons in 1975. Hunter leads the pitching staff in victories and salary.

Cleveland had a slow start and a big finish in 1975 under rookie Manager Frank Robinson and made some good trades in the off-season, but the pitching staff will have to surprise some people if the Indians are to challenge anyone this year. Milwaukee has enormous young talent but can't go anywhere because of the other talent in the East. The Detroit Tigers added Rusty Staub in an off-season trade, but they'll still be the worst team in the American League, despite what Manager Ralph Houk says.

The probable finish: East-Boston, Baltimore, New York, Cleveland, Milwaukee, Detroit. West-Oakland, Kansas City, Texas, Minnesota, Chicago, California.

Flu bills get action

Meanwhile, Texas public health officials took the lead in clearing the way for an all-out mass immunization effort next fall to vaccinate 10 million Texans against a feared epidemic of swine flu-

Both actions were very much in order, as was the President's original suggestion in the matter.

One of the two bills passed by the House authorized a nationwide immunization program this fall and the other appropriated $135 million for it.

It is significant also that the money measure was approved by *a 354 to 12 vote.

The program authorization bill cleared the House by voice vote after having been brought directly from the Commerce Committee's health subommittee.

The funds were provided so techne can be purchased by the Reral government and tributed free to state and local alth agencies.

Under the authorization bill, there would be a national flu immunization program including development of an effective vaccine to be prepared in sufficient quantities.

It is a tremendous undertaking course, and time is short. This the reason for the quick action at federal and state levels.

It is understood that pharmaceutical manufacturers are reparing the vaccine now, soping to have enough for nationwide distribution by Sepfember.

Just to vaccinate 10 million Yexans will require considerable Manning and doing at state and local levels. Hopefully, it can be accomplished in three months

It has been pointed out by the President that there is a "very real possibility that unless we take effective counteraction, there could be an epidemic of this dangerous disease (swine flu) next fall and winter" in the United States.

More than half a million persons died from the flu in the U.S. in 1918-19. Worldwide, the total was 20 million.

Responsible for the mass immunization program is the fact that there is indirect evidence that a virus found earlier this year among military recruits at ft. Bix, N.J., is similar to the World War I virus.

As government health officials have said, "It is safer to risk dollars than human lives.'

It is a gamble, yes, but in this case, risking dollars will be favored by most Americans. The program may be considered as an insurance policy.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

'Counterforce' concern voiced

WASHINGTON - In a private letter to President Ford, two conscientious congressmen have raised some urgent questions about counterforce.

This is a term that global strategists use to describe a nuclear blitz attack that would destroy another nation's nuclear forces and wipe out its capability to coun-

The concerned pair - Rep. Bob Carr, D.-Mich., and Rep. Tom Downey, D. N.Y. - both members of the powerful House Armed Services Committee, fear the President's nuclear policies could lead the Soviets some day to strike the United States with a "counterforce" blow:

The congressmen cite the U.S. emphasis on achieving a counterforce capability rather than on finding a diplomatic solution. The real problem, the plead, is to prevent any country from developing a first-strike ability to destroy another's retaliatory forces.

"Matching the Soviets would do nothing to decrease their ability to strike us first," Carr and Downey wrote the President. "Counterforce, first-strike capability can be used only to commit aggression, not to deter it. Our only hope is to prevent the Soviets from developing it, and

The prevailing wisdom is that the two superpowers, each equipped with enough nuclear power to devastate together in peace. Atomic scientist Robert Oppenheimer once illustrated the theory with the analogy of two scorpions in a bottle

Both scorpions possess stingers that could kill the other. But each scorpion is aware that the venom is slow acting. Thus the victim, before dying. would deal an equally lethal retaliatory blow against the aggressor.

Carr and Downey contend that counterforce would change this. If the scorpions should ever develop counterforce stingers with quickacting, paralyzing venom, either scorpion could kill the other without suffering retaliation.

"Each would be sorely tempted," warn the congressmen, "to save himself by striking first. Sooner or later, carnage would be inevitable."

an unassailable counterforce. What worries the congressional pair is that both superpowers are rushing pellmell toward counterforce while their diplomacy is dragging. 'We believe," the congressmen wrote President Ford bluntly, "your security advisers are misleading you.'

They liken the current situation to when the late President Lyndon Johnson's advisers misled him during the Vietnam War, According to the congressmen, Johnson's advisers placed great stress on bady counts and computerized measures which proved "irrelevant to the contemp of the war. the war.

But their unfortunate preoccupation with these aen significant measures apparently blinded them" to other factors and "doomed us to failure regardless of the quality or quantity of our military effort. "Similarly," declared the congressmen, "your present advisers would have you be greatly concerned over numerical comparisons of U.S. vs. Soviet strength which are erroneous, unimportant or both.

"At the same time, they would have you disregard the growth of the strategic counterforce capabilities of both major powers, which is immensely threatening to the future military security of the American people.

Footnote: President Ford hasn't had a chance to respond to the congressmen's letter. A Pentagon nuclear strategy expert, however, told us the counterforce concern was "fuzzy" and somewhat theoretical.
"Basically," he said, "the question comes down to what constitutes a credible deterence."

SOVIET MICROWAVES! We broke the story on May 10, 1972, that the Soviet Union was beaming microwaves into the U.S. embassy in Moscow. This has now developed into a major controversy because the heavy concentration of migrowaves apparently has affected the health of

"Health Officer Tells How to Cure Common Cold."

That cooked my goose with the health department, and from that day forward I couldn't even go in there to weigh on their free scales unless I made certain first that the good doctor was out. Just goes to show what a headline can do to a good story. And to a reporter.

So far this morning I have had these suggestions:
"You should be in bed. That's the only way to fight a cold. In bed.' "Don't let it get you down. Once you give up and take to your bed, you've had it. Stay on your feet and fight it.'

These prescriptions came from sources of about equal nonmedical standing, leaving me in somewhat of a hoarse quandary, which is an unpleasant kind of quandary.

Then there is the stand-up comic who says: "Surest cure is that cough syrup, about 100 proof. Straight. Since colds seem to afflict my drinking and nondrinking companions about equally, I question this recommendation "Dose yourself with aspirin," says one. "Het lemonade," says another. From six people you are likely to get six recommendations of prefabricated medications.

One even suggested that I see a doctor. But doctors catch cold, too. And it would be embarrassing to both of us were I to ask a sniffling physician how to cure my sniffles.

So, doped with such panaceas as I have been able to locate among the lotions and salves in the bathroom medicine chest, I propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer.

Mark Russell says

First President Ford threw out the word detente. Now he's getting fougher with the Russians. It's amazing that when Ford makes a speech. Reagan doesn't even move his lips.

Even Carter is in the act with his latest anti-Kissinger speeches. I hope to see Ford and Carter make a speech while Reagan drinks a glass of water at the same time.

Those who think there's too much bad news in the papers, take heart. The swine flu virus that knocked off 20 million people in 1918 may hit us again. At least it will take your mind off politics.

Our President is on the top of the impending flu situation. He plans to inoculate every Republican voter in the country.

The Republican strategy is to give out flu shots first in New Hampshire. If nobody dies in New Hampshire, it's South's jump to three diamonds said: "Not interested in a penalty double. I have a sound bid with unusual length in my two suits." Later, South's refusal to double or pass five hearts made it clear that he had only one heart at most.

West could count on getting a heart and a spade, but these two tricks would not defeat the contract. East could hold nothing of value except perhaps a heart honor.

SURPRISING TRICK

This was to guide West. Instead of opening the king of hearts, he led the six, East won the first trick with the queen, much to his surprise.

East recovered from the shock in time to work out what had happened and why. He returned a diamond to give West the ruff he had sought so desperately, and the ace of trumps eventually took the setting trick. DAILY QUESTION

However, there was no report of a renewal of the violence of Monday when an estimated 100,000 square and militiamen battled demonstrators protesting the removal of commemorative wreaths placed in the square the day before.

The official Peking People's Daily forecast a new and probably decisive stage of the struggle against First Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping by radical supporters of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, the Yugoslav correspondent continued. He said the paper, in an unusually short editorial that was evidently approved by the top leaders of the Chinese Communist par-ty, forecast that the action will not be without 'great difficulties."

The Yugoslav report said the editorial seemed to destroy all bridges for a compromise between Teng and his opponents.

In contrast to the violent attacks by young Red Guards during Mao's Great Cultural Revolution in the late 1960s, the editorial warned that "no fighting groups and fac-tions" should be formed. Steel Belted Radials SAVE $24 to $80 in sets of 4
