Society advocates going underground

The name sounds weird enough: the American Underground Association. It could be a society of subway buffs or perhaps publishers of porno newspapers, maybe even a veterans' organization for those who served with the OSS during World War II.

What it is is a professional society, with 50 members now and expectations of up to 1,000 within three months. Its purpose is to persuade people that they might be a lot happier living underground.

'The time is ripe for us now, and we're getting a lot of real support," says the group's executive director. Thomas C. Atchison of the University of Minnesota's department of civil and mineral engineering. Atchison, who spent a good part of his 25-year professional career thinking about the underground when he was with the U.S. Bureau of Mines, explains the underground movement this way:

"The real thing that brought it to a head is the energy crisis, and then there's just the general problem of land use. Surface is simply at a premium in most urban areas of the West and East Coasts, yet we've got a lot of space untapped underground."

The underground movement until recently mining men like Atchison or tunnelers, mass excavators, civil engineers or mineral experts is drawing members from among urban planners, sociologists and environmentalists who feel that the landscape is being raped. (Association members expect their ranks to swell when they hold their first convention in June.)

The new underground group's primary mission will be to educate the nation's architects on the beauties of underground architecture. What the visionaries see is the kind

Behind the serious movement is a Bureau of Standards study estimating that during the next 25 years the nation could save $100 billion heating bills if all residences were placed underground.

The high-cost, land-scarce suburbs are ripe for a true underground development, advocates of underground building say. The new town of Reston, Va., near Washington, is building $n earth-covered elementary school. In Cherry Hill, N.J., architect Malcolm Wells points to his own sunken office as an example of the direction that small businesses could take. Outside Chicago, in Urbana, the University of Illinois has built its new library under a tree-shaded mall.

11 killed in 'copter

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) - Communist guerrillas shot down a Royal Malaysian Air Force helicopter today in deep jungle, killing all 11 persons on board, security officials

They said that in the 28-year history of Communist guerrilla warfare in Malaysia this was the first time that the guerrillas had shot down an aircraft.

The officials said the American-made Sikorsky F61 helicopter was ferrying troops for antiCommunist operations in the Gubir area, about 320 miles north of this capital city and 20 miles from the Thai border; when the guerrillas opened fire "with powerful weapons" from the ground.

The officials said the helicopter was flying low, preparing to put down the troops when it was shot at.

GOP absentee voting heaviest

Republican turnout was outpacing that of the Democrats by more than 25 per cent in the absentee balloting in Saturday's primary elections, according to figures released today by Midland County Clerk Rosenelle Cherry.

Absentee voting ends at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Ballots cast in her courthouse office through Friday totaled 247 on the Republican ticket and 181 under the Democratic party's banner.

Including the mail-out ballots, Mrs. Cherry said, the taily Republican votes and 257 by Democrats.. "And we're going real fast this morning," Mrs. Cherry said today of the absentee-vote casting. In addition to local races, ballots by the two political parties include a presidential preference.

The Republican party's ballots carry names of four delegatecandidates for President Gerald Ford, four for former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, and one uncommitted. The Democrats' ballots list names of three delegate-candidates each for presidential contenders Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen; Alabama Gov. George Wallace, and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter. Three additional delegate-candidates, representing the liberal faction of the party, are uncommitted

The election outcome opened the way for the ouster of the Moscow-line Communists from the government of this member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for the first time since the military revolution two

With about 92 per cent of Sunday's votes tallied, the Socialists had 35.07 per cent of the vote compared to 37.9 per cent in the election for the constituent assembly last year.

The centrist Popular Democrats were in second place with 24.04 per cent compared to 26.4 per cent last year, and the Communists had 14.54 per cent, up slightly from 12.5 per

The only big gainers were the conservatives of the Social Democratic Center. They had 15.83 per cent of the votes, double their showing last year, and nosed ahead of the Communists to take third place.

When the underground school was proposed, he said, "There were very few people who expressed an opinion one way or the other. They (the school board) had no trouble passing the

There were several reasons for building the subterranean structure 'and one of them was NOT for an atomic bomb shelter." Yater, added, however, the Primary School has developed an unforseen use as an unofficial community storm shelter.

The primary reasons were low maintenance, reduced heating and cooling costs and elimination of allergens.

At the time it was built, the Primary School was located across the street from a cotton gin and grain elevator which was a major health problem for allergy-plagued

Yater said his own son had missed an average of one day's schooling each week because of allergy problems before completion of the underground facility. Once finished, however, he said the youngster. missed no more school because of allergies. Now, although the gin and grain elevator are gone, elimination of allergens still remains a "plus" because West Texas as a whole remains a high incidence area for allergies. "All the air entering the building is filtered air." Yater explained, so allergy problems are nil.

Being underground also reduces building maintenance - there's minimal painting, no broken windows and scant opportunity for vandalism. On the inside, classrooms tidier because dust can't blow in through windows and doors.

"It's an easy building to keep clean," said Yater, who has been principal of the elementary grades 18

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate intelligence committee decided today to let the full Senate decide whether to make public how much this country spends on spying. The committee voted 6-5 to let the Senate determine whether to release publicly the overall budget figure for U.S. intelligence agencies. The vote came shortly after CIA Director George Bush urged that the figure be kept secret. He testified at a closed session hours before the committee planned to make public its report on CIA overseas operations. The committee had voted 8-3 to release the budget

After testifying, Bush told newsmen that his position remained "that we ought not to make budget figures public." The agency contends that disclosure of the budget would harm national security.

Trade deficit grows

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's foreign trade balance fell deeper into deficit for the second straight month during March as imports of coffee, cars and other manufactured goods increased and a decline in U.S. farm exports virtually leveled off, the government said

The Commerce Department said imports exceeded exports by $650.9 million in March, compared to a $140.8 million deficit in February. The trade figures have run in the red since the 1975's record $11 billion surplus.

A deterioration in U.S. trade-had been expected this year but the drop so far has been sharper than most analysts expected. Commerce estimated that continuation of the three-month trade performance so far this year would leave the nation $3.46 billion in deficit for 1976.

Shooting-kidnap spree leaves four dead

JACKSON, Ga. (AP) - As he forged a bloody trail through Georgia and Florida, an ex-convict snorted cocaine and bragged about his shooting and kidnap rampage that left three dead and 13 wounded. He ended the saga by killing himself,

When he talked about all those people being dead, he would laugh about it," said Susie Critton, hostage who escaped unharmed. "He was smiling about it like he was glad. He had no regrets. He just kept talking and sniffing the cocaine."

Moses Pearson Jr., 31, apparently was angry at being cheated in a cocaine deal when he started the crime spree in his hometown of Jacksonville, Fla., on Saturday night, authorities said. He left two men dead there and six wounded.

Then he fled north into Georgia, killing a third man and wounding seven others.

Along the way, he abducted six women who escaped unharmed three who drove him into Georgia and a Bay Village, Ohio, woman and her two teenage daughters, abducted on a Georgia highway.

Pearson began his rampage with three shootings within a 30-minute span in north Jacksonville, police spokesman Mike Gould said. At all three locations he demanded money.

"Robbery was at least a partial motive, but we feel there's a strong possibility of a drug tie-in in all those cases. Either he was ripped off or had been ripped off in the past," Gould said. "We know he had an argument with some of these people.

Gould said Pearson shot and killed Horace Fallen, the manager of a used car lot, in Fallen's office. Two others there were wounded. Gould said investigators believe a cocaine deal was the source of "bad blood" between Pearson and Fallen.

As authorities reconstructed Pearson's wild odyssey, he then went to a roadside wig shop where he shot and killed the manager, George Quarles, 52, who had sworn out warrants for Pearson after a robbery at the shop last week.

After wounding three persons at the nearby home of a woman who worked in the wig shop, authorities said,

Pearson abandoned his car at a drivein liquor store and abducted Mrs. Critton and Anita Cockfield, 22, and her sister Sharon, 18.

Pearson forced the women to drive him to a wooded area where he picked up a suitcase filled with money, two other guns and a change of clothes. Then they drove north to Georgia.

At a truck stop in Cordele, Ga., 170 miles north of Jacksonville, the four went inside for coffee, Mrs. Critton said. When Pearson allowed Sharon Cockfield to go to the bathroom, she managed to tell a waitress about the abduction

When police arrived, Pearson wounded two deputies and two bystanders. The sisters escaped, but Pearson kept Mrs. Critton as he sped

In Pinehurst, 20 miles north of Cordele on Interstate 75, Pearson tried to rob a service station and, shooting wildly, killed attendant George Griffin Jr., authorities said. During the shooting, Mrs. Critton escaped.

A short time later, Pearson wounded another service station attendant in a robbery attempt on the highway north of Pinehurst.

Still driving north on 1-75, authorities said, Pearson rammed into the rear of the car of the Leslie Janda family, heading home to Ohio after a Florida vacation. Pearson shot Janda in the arm, commandeered the car and abducted Mrs. Janda and their two teen-age daughters.

"Sometimes he was nice to us," Jodee Janda, 16, said later. "But he kept talking about how it's a white man's world and a black man can't even enjoy the birds, the trees and the

But Carl Chappell, an agent for the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, said there was "nothing to indicate any racial angle at all" for Pearson, who was black. Chappell said the victims included both blacks and whites and 'it wouldn't have mattered what

Janda said he flagged down a truck driver with a citizen's band radio who called police. Police set up a roadblock at Macon, but Pearson eluded

Forty miles from Atlanta, in Jackson, Pearson lost control of the car and crashed.

He shot once at Mrs. Janda but missed, and she fooled him by playing dead, authorities said. Pearson then shot himself, but officers said he managed to fire a shot at them as they approached the car. Pearson was dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Police said Pearson had two .38caliber revolvers and a .22caliber pistol on him when he was stopped. Another pistol was found at one of the service stations.

Jacksonville police said Pearson was free on $2,500 bond after his arrest April 1 on charges of impersonating a police officer. Gould said fingerprints also linked Pearson to a robbery last week at a Jacksonville grocery store where three people were killed and one wounded Gould said Pearson's criminal record also included charges of breaking and entering and grand larceny. Records show he served time in jail on a 1966 fedral conviction formail theft and forging government A BAND OF RAIN is forecast to span the Rockies to the Gulf coast, with rain also in northern New England. Clayton panel rapped by utility rate group

AUSTIN-Members of the ad hoc committee on utility regulation have criticized Speaker Bill Clayton and the House Administration Committee for hampering their efforts to develop legislation to curb rising utility rates.

"It was aimed directly at the ad hoc committee," Rep. Ed Watson of Deer Park, a chairman of the special utility panel charged.

"The committee ruling came just at the right time, The Speaker and everybody knew what our intentions were, "he said.

The conservative administration committee, consisting of some of Clayton's closest political allies, has ruled that no more than two legislators can pool their staff expense accounts for ad hoc purposes. The ruling could affect not only the ad hoc utility panel, but also a House study group, and minority caucuses that have not entirely agreed with the House leadership in the past.

Clayton refused to discuss the ruling with Rep. Latham Boone of Navasota, the other co-chairman of the ad hoc utility group. Instead, he directed all comments to Rep. Pete Laney of Hale Center, chairman of the appropriations committee.

However, the speaker was quoted as saying that the administration committee "probably did the right thing" by prohibiting groups from hiring staff members jointly. But Clayton denied that the move was 'aimed at any particular group.'

Rep. Sarah Weddington of Austin is a member of both the special utility panel and the House Study Group and called the ruling "ridiculous."

The administration committee said it was prohibiting members from pooling part of their $3,000-per-month

Yater said the all-electric building has lost its juice only once in 10 years.

The school has emergency generators, located in the second above-ground building, along with an escape hatch. As a result, the building experiences total darkness only seven to ten seconds. Each teacher is equipped with a flashlight, he said.

Because the building is unusual in terms of conventional school architecture, it has been visited by educators and architects from as far away as Canada and Ireland.

It's not the only school of its kind in the Southwest, Yater said. Schools of similar design are located in Dallas and Del Rio in Texas and Carlshad and Roswell in New México.

Although the idea of underground architecture may be about to "catch on," the Stanton principal said with a "This school was built during the beginning of the underground movement.

voters in the primary election cannot cross party lines in vote-casting.

Should a person, for example, your in the Republican primary election, he by law cannot switch parties and vote in the Democratic party's run-off election, should one be held.

Conversely, one casting a vote in the Democratic primary must vote Democratic - if he votes at all - in any run-off election. However, one may vote in the runoff whether or not he has voted in the first primary

Democrats in Midland County could find themselves voting on up to five run-offs. The Republicans, however, stand a chance here at only one race going into the runoff, which would fall on June 5, the first Saturday in that Possibly going into a second primary election would be these Democratic party races: U.S. senator, four contenders; Texas Railroad Commissioner, eight candidates; judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals, three; Midland County sheriff, three, and Midland County commissioner for Precinct 3, three candidates. The Republicans' possiblity of asecond primary election would come in the three-way race for that party's nomination for U.S. senator. The name of the party to which the voter pledges himself in the primary election will be stamped on his voter registration certificate.

Primary choices

Texas' primary elections are scheduled Saturday, and interest seemingly is at an unusually high pitch, particularly in the presidential delegate balloting.

But there also is mounting interest in state and local elections. Hopefully this show of interest will result in heavy balloting Saturday.

In the statewide races on the Democratic party side, The Reporter-Telegram makes the following recommendations.

In the U.S. Senate race, this newspaper favors the nomination of Phil Gramm, the Texas A&M University economics professor on leave-of-absence, over the incumbent, Lloyd Bentsen.

Gramm preaches and practices the philosophies of conservative government and sound fiscal responsibility in which we believe and for which there is a great - presently chief justice of the need in Congress today.

He has called the shots as he sees them without fear of conno uncertain terms for the deregulation of natural gas and for other measures favorable to the petroleum industry. He is a brilliant student of government and economics and has the answers to some of the nation's problems.

Bentsen, on the other hand, launched his campaign for presidential nomination soon after taking his seat in the Senate. It is felt by some that in so doing he deserted his constituency and that his words and votes, under this particular circumstance, did not always represent the best interests of the Lone Star State. Neither did this newspaper favor Bentsen's seeking two public offices at the same time.

On the Republican side, The Reporter-Telegram favors the nomination of Congressman Alan W. Steelman of Dallas in the race for United States senator from

INSIDE REPORT

By ROWLAND EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

Newton appears to be well qualified for the post, having served on a number of energyrelated boards and commissions as a state legislator. He has served on the House Energy Resources Committee, the Interstate Oil Compact Commimsion, the Mining Council, the Governor's Energy Advisory Council, and the Special Energy Committee of the National Conference of State Legislators.

This is a most important position insofar as the petroleum industry is concerned, and this makes it doubly important for Midland and other cities and counties in the oil patch. In visiting with Jon Newton, he appears to be the man for the job.

In the state court races, The Reporter-Telegram recommends Judge Charles W. Barrow, Court of Civil Appeals in San Antonio, in his bid for nomination to the Supreme Court of Texas. He tradiction, and has spoken out in-has visited in Midland on two or more occasions this year and is well known by Midland attorneys. He merits advancement to the Supreme Court.

> This newspaper also favors the nomination of Criminal District Court Judge Jerome Chamberlain of Dallas to the Court of Criminal Appeals to succeed incumbent Judge Truman Roberts.

In the race to succeed retiring Judge W.A. Morrison on the Gourt of Criminal Appeals, it appears to be a toss-up between Commissioner Carl Dally and State Attorney Jim Vollers, both of Austin. Both are said to be well qualified for the court position.

This Watergate-style cover-up may well be in violation of federal laws. The controversy centers on last winter's battle over the deregulation of natural gas prices. Only by removing controls from natural gas prices, the industry and FEA said, could a crippling natural gas shortage be avoided.

House Energy subcommittee chairman John Dingell, D-Mich., was disturbed by FEA's use of public funds to trumpet the oil and gas industry's position favoring deregulation. So late last year, he demanded information from FEA on its contacts with the natural gas magnates. Dissatisfied with FEA's answers, Dingell dispatched a team of investigators last month to set up an office within FEA itself. The Congressional sleuths began interviewing officials and collecting documents in their locked office. Their probing sent shockwaves through the upper echelons of the agency. Two officials of the agency's 'Natural Gas Task Force," executive director James Rubin and deputy general counsel Eric Fygi, huddled after hours to sift through documents that were supposed to be turned over to the Dingell investigators.

But instead of handing everything over, they stuffed some embarrassing evidence in the trash to keep it out of Dingell's hands.

For example, one damning memo, dated Dec. 16, 1975, began with a derisive comment about how FEA could "shove it to Mr. Dingell," who was then leading the antideregulation fight on Capitol Hill. The memo, addressed to Rubin, was thrown out.

Two other memos, one written by FEA conservation expert Lee James, and one written by Rubin himself, were also disposed of before the Dingell investigators could read them.

As it turned out, the committee staffers were able to find duplicates of the discarded memos in other files.

Rubin and Fygi both candidly admitted that they "pitched" the documents, and told us that they now regret their actions. But now Dingell suspects that additional documents may have been withheld from him. For an internal FEA memo directed that all material relating to FEA contacts with the oil and gas industry be hand-carried to FEA general eounsel Michael Butler.

The memo prompted at least one agency employe to turn his files directly over to the Dingell subcommittee. He feared that Butler's

But the Congressman remains unconvinced of FEA's good intentions. His investigators are now checking to see if any documents were destroyed by employes on weekends.

Our own investigation of FEA's ties to the oil and gas barons has turned up at least one disturbing link.

An FEA pamphlet called "The Natural Gas Story" was actually cleared by the gas industry's trade group, the American Gas Assocation. FEA officials admit that the booklet, which touted deregulation, was sent to the gas group for review. It was done innocently, they claim, "to make sure it was accurate.

Footnote: An aide to John Hill, head of FEA's Natural Gas Task Force, said Hill had "absolutely not" approved any file destruction. Hill was 'amazed" when he heard what Fygi and Rubin had done, he added.

matter who wears the presidential

Echeverria picked a longtime personal friend, Jose Lopez Portillo, as the governing Institutional Revolutionary Party's candidate for the presidency in the coming July 4 election.

What is more, Echeverria's administration is working up an economic plan that will program Mexican government investments up to the year 2000. Besides, political observers say, Echeverria saw to it that the PRI congressional nominees included a sufficiently large number of representatives of the governmentdominated labor and peasant organizations to insure automatic majorities for whatever radical programs may be sent to the legislative branch. That also could mean prolonged agitation in rural areas, with further confiscations of producing farms, and continued labor

In Mexico, where presidents are limited to 1 six-year term and where the official party has never lost a presidential election, it is taken on faith that the man in office picks his successor and seeks to influence the new chief executive in the conduct of his government.

So far as Mexican historians have been able to determine, only two presidents in modern times have really broken with their predecessor or with the strong man of the period. First was Gen. Lazaro Cardenas, who ruled the country from 1934 to 1940. Echeverria is generally considered to have been the second 'To judge by what Lopez Portillo says in his campaign speeches and tells interviewers, he has no fault to find with Echeverria's programs, either domestic or foreign. He talks of Mexico's "mixed economy" much the way Echeverria does. "The system of which I think fundamentally is continuity of the effort," Lopez Portillo says.

That means government monopoly in nuclear energy, petroleum, electric power, and many other fields, as well as further deterioration of the business climate, in the view of the private sector.

That seems not to worry the candidate. When he discusses the lack of confidence private Mexican businessmen seem to have, he lapses into jargon that can only heighten their fears. "Those private initiative exemists would like to establish a system of exploitation of the peasants and the workers; that there be no raises for the workers nor better prices for the peasants; that is that the whole system work to make them ever richer, and in no way can we permit this. He also says he shares the Echeverria administration's concern over Mexico's "dependence" on the United States, but he does hope that the United States understands how important a client Mexico is.

Of all the things that Lopez Portillo has had to say recently, the newspaper Excelsior commented in ar editorial that the most important foreign policy point was his statement that he "respects Cuban reasons" for sending troops to Angola.

Gun enthusiasts organize political funding

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - For the first time, gun enthusiasts have mounted large-scale fund-raising drives designed to pour millions of dollars into fighting gun-control candidates and ballot initiatives at the state and national levels this year.

A Sacramento, Calif. based group, the Gun Owners of America Campaign Committee '76, already has collected over $700,000 in a nationwide direct-mail campaign run by Richard A. Viguerie, chief fund raiser for Democratic Presidential candidate George Wallace and various conservative causes.

"Gun enthusiasts are one of the great untapped money markets for the new right," Viguerie said in an interview at his Falls Church, Va., office near here. "The gun lobby's impact in the past was overrated, but I think it is reaching its potential in spades

GUN OWNERS OF AMERICA has given money to a few candidates so far, but it has plowed most of its proceeds into further direct-mail efforts aimed at raising more than $1 million for support of numerous political campaigns, according to California State Sen. H.L. Richardson, the committee's founder.

At that rate the committee undoubtedly would be one of the biggest money-giving special interest groups in the country this year.

Meanwhile, the Washington-based National Rifle Assn. - leader of the gun lobby on Capitol Hill and around many statehouses - is in the process of organizing a political campaign committee similar to the Gun Owners of America.

A fund-raising goal has not been set, but there is the potential for a multimillion dollar war chest. Over the last year, Viguerie's direct-mail firm has netted $2.5 million for NRA's lobbying operations.

The NRA's chief lobbyist, Harlon Carter, said creation of a political donation committee "can spell the difference on Capitol Hill."

"It could have some impact," conceded Charles J. state this year, the letter said. Orasin, assistant director of the National Council to Control Handguns, "but the pendulum is swinging, and we think the politicians will come out on our side

Orasin said his organization and other gun control groups also plan to get involved in campaigns, but with issue-oriented mailings, media ads and UNTIL NOW, PRO-GUN groups have participated very little in campaigns. A group based in Bellevue, Wash. - the Right to Keep and Bear Arms Political Victory Fund - has made mostly $200 and $300 contributions to a handful of congressional and state legislative candidates around the country in the last tion committee is just getting organized, but solicita- watch a rehearsal.

Explaining how Gun Owners of America was conceived, Richardson said:

"I got together with a lot of gun people I know across the United States and talked about going on the attack instead of staying so defensive. Most organizations are primarily organized to fight existing legislation. I thought it was time to see if we can elect a few people to public office.'

THE NEW ATTACK strategy comes in the face of at least two developments that are being viewed with alarm by the gun lobby:

-A bill moving through Congress that would tighten up licensing of gun dealers, establish a 14-day screening period for handgun buyers and ban the manufacture of small, cheaply made handguns used widely in crime and known as "Saturday night specials" While limited the bill is feared by gun owners as a forerunner of stricter controls.

-Froposed ballot initiatives in California and Massachusetts that would outlaw the possession of nearly all handguns in those states.

The appeals for money are being made with considerable emotion.

'This coming election day, you and I will face the most powerful threat ever posed to the safety of our families and our constitutional right to private ownership of firearms," a solicitation letter signed by Richardson begins. 'Our federal and state legislatures are literally flooded with proposed laws that are aimed at total confiscation of firearms from law-abiding citizens, the letter says. (Actually, few regulatory proposals call for "total confiscation," and most apply only to handguns, not to long arms.)

THE PROPOSED LAWS "are being sold to us as 'cure alls' for skyrocketing crime," the letter continues, but "if the criminal element knew we could not legally own firearms to protect our families and our property, I believe crime would double.

The letter concludes that "radical," "gungrabbing." "soft on crime" politicians must not be allowed "to destroy our Constitution and unleash what could well be the most terrifying crime wave in modern history."

Listed on the letterhead as serving on the Gun Owner's of America advisory board are Reps. John H. Rousselot (R-Calif.) and Lawrence P. McDonald (D-Ga.), members of the ultra-right John Birch Society. Also on the board are Sen. Jesse A. Helms (R-N.C.), seven other congressmen and various gun

Georgia last colony founded

The fourth of the original 13 colonies to ratify the Constitution, Georgia was the last colony to be founded. It was named to honor George II of England and was founded for economic and political reasons.

James Oglethorpe was the first Englishman to arrive in 1733. His object was to found a settlement which would be a refuge for poor debtors from England and for Protestants who were persecuted in Europe: But the British government had political and economic reasons for wanting Georgia settled. Politically, the new settlement was intended to keep the Spanish from coming into South Carolina from Florida. Economically, the new colony was expected to provide silk, wine, flax, potash, indigo, and other products for English trade.

The people of Georgia were secure as a royal colony under the control of the British Parliament, they were affected by the desire for independance as were the other colonies in the 1770's. Although no delegates were sent to the First Continental Congress, Georgia joined the other colonies at the Second Continental Congress and declared their independence in 1776. During the Revolution, Georgia did not become a battleground until 1778. There were many small clashes with British troops after that. By 1779, most of the state was under English control. Most commonly Georgia is known as the "Peach State." The state is one of the country's leaders in peach production. During colonial days Georgia was nickmaned the "Cracker State." There are two popularly held ideas on the origination of this nickname. One says that the term "cracker" was used to describe poor whites in the rural area of Georgia, The term seems to have been derived from the cracking of the whip by farmers driving from the rural areas into the towns. The second idea says that the name came from early Scottish settlers who used it to describe idle boasters.

Gun Owners of America originally was named Target '76, with the group's letterhead symbol depicting a bullseye superimposed on the dome of the Capitol. Viguerie said the softened new name has more meaning" for prospective contributors.

Viguerie suggested that seeking money at the grass roots level on such emotional issues as gun control, abortion and busing may be a powerful trend in

"It's not easy to find people who will give $5, $10 and $25 to a political candidate, such as Wallace," Viguerie said, "but we are having great success in getting people to support their right to own a gun." Richardson said the mail campaign has been so successful that Gun Owners of America is moving beyond the usual lists of magazine subscribers to precinct lists of registered voters. According to Richardson, Gun Owners of America will supply pro-gun candidates not only with direct financial assistance but also with campaign managers, advertising consultants and research ser-

Ret. Gen. Maxwell E. Rich, executive vice president of the NRA, wrote that gun control advocates seek even "the removal of all police revolvers, all sporting rifles and target pistols owned by law abiding citizens" - an assertion that the National Council to Control Handguns calls false.

'The situation is extremely serious," Rich warned. "In the last election (1974), 27 congressmen who supported private ownership of firearms were defeated. At the same time every congressman who sponsored anti-gun legislation was reelected."

In his letter, Rich asked the return of four enclosed computer cards containing questions on firearms regulation for a "National Opinion Survey on Crime Control." Results of the survey would be sent to the news media and lawmakers, Rich said.

Sheriff Ed Darnell's 29 deputies are proud to be working for the best sheriff in Texas - and they do an outstanding job of providing us with the most modern, most efficient and best-organized Sheriff's Department in West Texas. Combined, they represent a total of 354 years of experience in law enforcement. Many have already earned or are pursuing college degrees in the science of law enforcement. . . and all of them attend law enforcement training schools in order to keep themselves informed of up-to-the-minute law enforcement methods and techinques. To Sheriff Ed Darnell and these deputies, the safety and security of your streets, your homes and families, are the most important things in the world. In doing their jobs they are under constant admonition of Sheriff Darnell to "do a better job of law enforcement today than we did yesterday."

We in Midland County are extremely fortunate to have the best law enforcement in Texas, headed by Sheriff Ed Darnell. His character, ability and experience are needed now more than ever before. Let's keep the best . . . for our county , our children, and for all of us!

Democratic hopefuls concentrate on Pennsylvania

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter says Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington is being "absolutely ridiculous" when he blames unemployment in the North on lower wages paid workers in the South

"I don't think it's fair to say that we have unemployment in Pennsylvania because the South has cheap labor or right-to-work laws," Carter said Sunday on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" program.

"To blame the unemployment in Pennsylvania on right-to-work laws that have been there ever since Harry Truman's day I think is absolutely ridiculous," Carter said.

The program featured Carter, Jackson and three other contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination - Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and Sen. Frank Church of Idaho. All but Church are on the ballot for Tuesday's primary election in Pennsylvania.

As the Democrats focused their attention on Pennsylvania, President Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, battling for the Republican nomination, prepared for more work in Texas, where voting is Ford is scheduled to campaign in Texas Tuesday through Thursday, and Reagan is due there Thursday.

Reagan picked up support over the weekend from Republicans in four states, including South Carolina. where he was assured of 26 of the state's 36 GOP-national convention delegates.

South Carolina's state Republican convention gave four delegates to Ford, and six were not committed to any candidate.

The challenger also won backing in Oklahoma, Missouri and Arizona, while Minnesota's Republicans favored the President in partial returns from GOP district meetings.

Jackson, with strong backing from Pennsylvania's labor leaders, has argued in campaigning for the state's primary that Northern jobs have been lost to Southern states with rightto-work laws, among them Georgia.

The so-called "right-to-work" laws prohibit union shops, and Jackson maintained that this encourages lower pay and thus flight by industry to the South. He didn't cite specific differences in pay. Udall, Jackson and Carter anguished, meanwhile, over the halt in distribution of federal matching money that has left their campaigns short of funds.

Jackson and Udall blamed President Ford, while Carter, admitting he, too, would like to hang the problem on Ford, faulted Congress for not swiftly reviving the federal campaign law knocked down by the Supreme Court.

The high court said the Federal Election Commission, which handled distribution of the matching money, was unconstitionally comprised. Congress did not reconstitute the commission by a deadline set by the Supreme Court, and distribution of the matching money was stopped.

"It's really unfair, and Gerald Ford's aiding and abetting the while thing," Udall said. "I can't get the money I need to make my case in Pennsylvania.

"Well, of course," Jackson said. "He (Ford) doesn't want Ronald Reagan to get his matching funds, and the President has the most Carter observed, "I'd like to blame President Ford for all we can, but it looks to me like the Congress is the one that hasn't acted Udall agreed that some Democrats may have gone along with a delay, hoping it would lead to a deadlocked convention that might open up a presidential draft for Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

But Udall insisted the chief culprit was Ford because he refused to tell the country he would sign a new campaign spending law expected to be passed this week.

Jackson, Udall and Carter continued their cross-state campaigning today - Jackson in Harrisburg, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Johnstown; Udall in Philadelphia, Erie, Johnstown and Pittsburgh; and Carter flying from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia. Udall canceled all of his Sunday appearances after the ABC-TV telecast to work in a five-minute speech he planned for tonight on national television.

On "Issues and Answers," the candidates were asked who will win Tuesday's election. Wallace: "I wish that the national news would indicate that I am a candidate....I ran second here in 1972....I want the people of Pennsylvania to know I am running, but I can make no prediction.

Udall: "I'm handicapped with money ...but we're going to do all

Jackson: "I feel I am going to win the delegate contest. The preferential contest, popularly referred to as a beauty contest ... is going to be close. I feel a surge in the last two or three days and I got a good chance of winning the beauty contest as well."

Carter: "We started out way behind in Pennsylvania....I think most of the voters are for me. But there is a great deal of emphasis placed on machine politics in Pennsylvania....If we have a good turnout I'll come in first. If we have a poor turnout then I may not." There are eight candidates on the Democratic popularity ballot: Carter, Jackson, Udall, Wallace, antiabortionist Ellen McCormack; Gov. Milton J. Shapp of Pennsylvania, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana and former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma.

Shapp, Bayh and Harris withdrew from the presidential race too late to have their names removed from the

Where does Texas Electric get electricity?"

UNDERSTANDING YOUR ELECTRIC BILL

Electricity doesn't come in barrels or by pipeline or by boat. It's not in veins or fields lying around waiting to be discovered. We have to make it out of something else.

Most electricity is produced when steam turns a generator. The steam comes from boiling water.

To heat the water, we have to burn fuels like natural gas, oil or coal. Or we can use the heat from a nuclear reactor.

The hardest thing about making electricity these days is making sure we have plenty of fuel. Natural gas, currently our main fuel, is running out.

That's why we're building new power plants that run on cheaper, more abundant fuels - like lignite coal and uranium.

If you'd like more information about where we get electricity, call or write Texas Electric.

Mitchell shrugged his shoulders and led a diamond to dummy's ace. "You do all right even with no partner to help you," East grumbled as he dropped the singleton king.

Mitchell apologized as he ran his nine tricks. "Your partner couldn't have the king of diamonds as well as the ace of spades and still pass your opening bid," he explained.

It was ture. East surely held the king of diamonds, so South could not gain by finessing. It took skill to work this out, but it was sheer luck that the king of diamonds was unguarded.

Congress returns to veto threats

Regarding two bills up for action this week, President Ford has criticized one and said he would yeto the other if it is passed. In adition, votes probably will come up next week on whether to override Ford's vetoes of two other measures.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is back from its spring recess with a common four-letter word on its mind:

On the Senate calendar today was a bill that would limit grain inspection at U.S. ports to federal employes and state inspectors approved by the Agriculture Department.

In a speech two weeks ago in El Paso, Tex., Ford said he definitely would veto the bill prompted by disclosures of widespread corruption and bribery among grain inspectors employed by private firms.

Action is expected later in the week in the House and Senate on a compromise bill restructuring the Federal Election Commission. No one objects to the restructuring to comply with a Supreme Court order requiring that all members of the commission be presidential appointees, but the bill also includes other changes in the election laws which Republicans have said the President finds obiectionable.

Following a Supreme Court decision, the commission lost its authority & disburse campaign funds to presidential candidates. Seven candidates have asked the court to permit the commission to resume disbursing money while action to change the law continues.

In other action on Capitol Hill this week, the House may act on both the foreign aid authorization and appropriations bills.

Ford also has threatened to veto the appropriation bill if Congress adds more aid to Israel than he requested.

The House also is scheduled to take up the congressional budget resolution, part of the new process by which Congress sets its own budget standards to parallel those submitted by the executive branch.

The budget resolution passed by the Senate just before the recess set a $412.6 billion limit on spending fo the 1977 fiscal year. The two bills Ford vetoed before the recess were a measure to give states $125 million to meet new federal standards for day-care centers, and amendments to the Hatch Act to free federal employes to engage in partisan political activity.

The vote on the day-care center veto is expected to be close. Backers of the Hatch Act revisions are given little chance of being able to muster the two-thirds margins in the House and Senate needed to override Ford's veto of that measure. Ford today vowed to check the more vetoes."

Ford vows to battle Congress on spending

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford, who has been predicting the Democrats will nominate Sen. Hubert Humphrey for president this year, today lambasted a key Humphrey jobs bill as "dangerously deceptive" and an "election-year boondoggle."

Ford, in a speech prepared for the 64th annual convention of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, also vowed to check the increase in government spending "if it takes all summer and more and more vetoes.

He singled out a bill co-sponsored by Humphrey and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., which would set a national target of 3 per cent unemployment within four years and guarantee jobs — government jobs if necessary — to all adults willing to

The bill has been embraced by many leading Democrats. Ford said it is one that "I am against.

Humphrey, from Minnesota, is willing to run as the Democrat's presidential candidate, but has declined to campaign for the nomination.

In his speech, Ford called the Humphrey-Hawkins bill a "vast election-year boondoggle" and said the measure would "get the federal government deeper and deeper into social and economic planning on a national scale unprecedented in all our history."

Citing recent encouraging economic statistics, Ford told the audience that in the past year, his administration had turned around the worst recession in 40 years. "We are assembled this spring in the full surge of recovery."

Now, Ford said "we face a tougher test"—that of sustaining the economic recovery and insuring stable growth without starting another cycle of inflationary boom that could lead to another recession.

He said 'the dread shoals of unemployment' still loom and creation of an economic climate in which every American who wants to work can have a job is a primary

But he added: "Sometimes senators and congressmen seem to think they can abolish unemployment by passing new laws, such as the Hawkins bill." He called it "a classic example of the way the misguided majority in recent congresses reacts. Anything that seems wrong with the economy, the federal government must rush in and fix, mainly by spending more billions of dollars."

Excess costs blamed for housing lethargy

DALLAS (AP) — The slow recovery in the nation's housing industry is because many of the new homes today are too expensive for most families to own, according to the president of the American Bankers Association.

"For the past year and a half financial institutions . . have had plenty of money available for mortgage loans," J. Rex Duwe said here

"And even with this supply of funds, the housing recovery is only now beginning to pick up steam," he said in remarks prepared for the keynote address to the association's national conference on real estate finance.

Duwe said the private sector can solve the nation's housing problems if left "unhindered by ill-conceived government intervention-and, most important, if inflation is kept under Duwe praised the home builders who introduced the "no-frills homes. The price tag on these translates into home ownership for many who had been priced out of the market," Duwe said.

The association is now studying a proposal by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) dealing with graduated payment mortgages, Duwe said.

"These offer real advantages to many borrowers," he said. "It makes it possible for young families to buy their homes earlier when prices are lower, even though they might not be able to afford conventional, levelterm mortgage payments."

Duwe called for a re-examination of the 1968 national housing goal of 2.6 million housing starts a year. He said this year's estimated housing starts are only 1.5 million, up from 1.2 million in 1975.

"Numerical housing goals make no sense," Duwe said, "unless we un-derstand what kind of shelter we're talking about, where it needs) be located, how we are going to finance it and how we are going to make it affordable for the average American

Boilermaker claims he's heir to Hughes

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— On March 25, a Houston, Tex., boilermaker asked W.A. Jones, a Nashville genealogist, to check out his great grandfather's generation.

Eleven days later, billionairerecluse Howard Hughes, died while on board a private jet en route to Houston from Mexico.

Jones says the boilermaker, Jeff Milton Hughes, is a cousin to the man who tranformed his father's tool company into a billion-dollar business conglomerate. The boilermaker could inherit as much as $250 million from the Howard Hughes estate if the direct link to Hughes can be established.

Hughes has agreed to pay Jones 10 percent of the amount he eventually inherits, plus the expenses Jones incurs during the search in determining the relationship between the boilermaker and the billionaire. "There's no doubt that Jeff Hughes is a cousin. Howard Hughes' grandfather and Jeff Hughes' grandfather were brothers," Jones said Sunday.

"We have already established that from an old family Bible that is more than 100 years old.

"With the absence of any children, and none have file any claims, the estate is to be divided equally between his mother's kin and his father's kin. This is the basis of Jeff Hughes claim.' So far there have been no indications that Hughes left a will. Mrs. Frederick Lummis Sr., Hughes' 85year-old aunt, was apparently the only relative at Hughes' brief funeral

About three weeks after Hughes' death, Jones said he was contacted by Mrs. Josephine Hughes Crowder, Chester, Va., who also believes she is related to Howard Hughes.

Jones also looked into her claim and said he believe she, too, may have a valid claim to a share of the Hughes' estate. Jones said he has agreed to look into Mrs. Crowder's claim under the same terms as he is doing for

Unsatisfactory products draw increasing protests EDITOR'S NOTE - Got a gripe? f Jeff Hughes

Now more than ever, there is someone out there willing to listen. As more Americans speak up for their rights, more government departments and private buinesses have learned that the complaining conbrief funeral sumer has a loud voice.

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Fed up with products that don't produce and services that don't serve. Americans have learned that it pays to complain.

No one keeps statistics on the number of complaints received by private industry and government agencies. It would be impossible because there are so many overlapping departments, bureaus and offices and the number is growing steadily.

FIVE YEARS ago, for example, there were nine consumer agencies at the state level, according to the Office of Consumer Affairs of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Today there are 135.

Dorothy Burkhardt who heads the complaint division of the federal consumer affairs unit said her office alone received almost 27,000 complaints in the first 11 months of 1975, compared to 24,000 complaints in all of 1974. A 1975 study by the Office of Consumer Affairs showed that 15 federal agencies - a relatively small section of Washington's bureaucracy - spent $6.4 million annually answering complaints.

plain to all institutions," said E. Patrick McGuire, senior research analyst at the Conference Board, a New York-based nonprofit business group.

"They expect more of products and services ... They are more cynical of companies' attempts to redress their grievances.

Robert Sable, an attorney with the National Consumer Law Center in Boston, said: "There is substantially more consumer litigation," partly because consumers have more legal rights than they used to. "There is a whole host of new consumer laws," he said, citing legislation involving interest rates, warranties and credit. "Ten years ago, there wasn't a whole lot an aggrieved consumer could do except make a stink."

No one knows just when Americans started thinking of themselves as "consumers." The late President John F. Kennedy set up a Consumer Advisory Council in 1963 and listed four basic consumer rights: the right to be heard, the right to a choice, the right to be protected against unsafe products and the right to a response to a legitimate complaint.

MANY PEOPLE believe the real consumer drive started in 1966 with Ralph Nader and his book, "Unsafe at Any Speed." Nader's disclosure, at a Senate hearing, that General Motors had private detectives investigate him because of his crusade

PIRGS - across the country are in-American life.

THE INDIVIDUAL citizen who wants to complain has more outlets for his anger. There are almost 50 complaint agencies for federal departments and more than 225 county and city consumer offices.

The government publishes a 39page "Guide to Federal Consumer Services," with information on where to go with questions and complaints about everything from advertising to work regulations. The booklet is available free of charge from Consumer Information Center, Dept. 6, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

ON THE BUSINESS front, some 500 companies have consumer affairs units. The Better Business Bureau as expanded its complaint-handling mechanism, in baddeing an arbitration program that has grown from three cities in 1971 to about 100 today. And volunteer groups and news media "action line" programs are ready to tackle local problems.

McGuire said the surge in complaints "began long before the recession" that prompted concern over money. "It began when people learned there's a response.

Previously, he said, the East and West coasts were "the most fertile field for complaints." In between was "a desert - or an oasis," depending public interest research groups — income groups, McGuire said. These are the people who have the volved in just about every facet of . knowledge, the time and the determination to complain.

"It hasn't trickled down to the ghetto yet," he said. "When it does, you'll have an avalanche of complaints" because there are so many people in-

THE TYPICAL complainant on a nationwide basis, McGuire said, has two or more years of college, is over 30, "is more likely to be WASP than ethnic" and is in a managerial or semiprofessional job.

If the item involved cost less than $100 - food, clothing or small appliances — the complainant is likely to be a woman, McGuire said. If it cost more than $100, the complainant is probably a man.

CONSUMER AGENCIES say they Mayor are solving more problems than ever

The Office of Consumer Protection of the Wisconsin Department of Justice received 5,780 complaints in 1971 and recovered about $214,000 for consumers in court judgments and informal settlements.

LAST YEAR, the office received 14.678 complaints and recovered almost $675,000, an increase of about 154 per cent in the number of complaints and 215 per cent in the amount of money recovered.

Bob Tuttle, statistician for the National Council of Better Business Bureaus, said local groups received over 61/2 million calls of all types last year. Thirteen per cent were complaints. The rest of the callers wanted of overall complaints increased steadily in the late 1960s and early 1970's, from 324,000 in 1966 to almost 1.5 million in 1973.

The trend was reversed in 1974 and by 1975 the number of complaints formal and informal - was down to 846,000.

The decline does not necessarily mean that people are complaining less, although Tuttle said he hoped it indicated greater customer satisfaction. Other factors causing the decrease include the sales slump of 1975, Tuttle said. People bought less and therefore had fewer new products to complain about.

The increased availability of complaint outlets also contributes to a drop in the number of complaints received by any one agency.

The Office of Consumer Affairs, in a report on complaints to state and local agencies, said automobiles are the most common focus of dissatisfaction. Automobile gripes accounted for 18 per cent of all complaints in 1974. Home repairs were the second most common area of dissatisfaction, representing 11 per cent of all complaints in 1974.

The Better Business Bureaus statistics showed mail order businesses accounted for 15.3 per cent of all complaints in 1975. Automobiles were second with 5.9 per cent of all PHILADELPHIA - Across the television screen slides an envelope with the familiar Gulf Oil Corp., seal and a voice says: "Congressman Heinz, here's $4,000.

As a hand takes the envelope, a second voice says, "Thank you, heh,

It is only a few seconds in a 30 second political commercial that is playing all over Pennsylvania these days. But it is a vivid reminder that there is political as well as legal danger to the members of Congress who admit that Gulf gave them cash. Rep. H. John Heinz III, R-Pa., who once appeared an odds-on favorite for the GOP nomination to succeed retiring Sen. Hugh Scott R-Pa., is being challenged in Tuesday's primary election by former Philadelphia district attorney Arlen Specter and George Packard, the former executive editor of the Philadelphia

As of April 17, the multi-millionaire congressman had put $505,000 of his money into his campaign, not only to make sure he had as much as he needed, but also to undercut the idea that he took money from Gulf because he wanted or needed it.

Heinz is still thought to be ahead in the race, but it apparently be become close. In February 35 Republican poll showed Heinz Ah 27 per cent of the vote, Specteent and per cent, Packard with 5 p spot, said: "We could not do a battleship, so we built a torpedo. And Tuesday we'll see if it hits. For four months, Heinz has tried to shake the Gulf issue - but the news media, the Watergate special prosecutor and his opponents have refused to let him. Heinz' trouble began last September when a former Gulf Oil lobbyist named Art Harris told a rand jury about corporate money he had distributed to political cam-As disclosed in a later court deposition, Harris said he gave money to a Heinz aide in 1971.

FBI agents contacted Heinz and his staff to track down the contribution. That, Heinz said later, was the first time he learned there had been any Gulf contributions to his campaigns.

By questioning D. Grant Peacock, his campaign treasurer, Heinz learned the 1971 cash donation from Harris was $2,000. Heinz also learned there had been a Gulf cash donation in early 1972 of $4,000. It had been delivered in Washington by Gulf's Washington vice president, Claude C. Wild, Jr.

Under federal law at the time the contribution was received, the money did not have to be reported. But after April 7, 1972, it should have been listed in reports as cash on hand and later. in January 1973, reported as an expenditure on election day. None of this

Heinz says he learned all this at the same time it was being disclosed publicly that Scott had been receiving $10,000 or more from Gulf for at least

In late October, Heinz was asked to disclose the facts of the 1971 contribution to John J. McCloy, the New York lawyer who was investigating Gulf as part of a settlement with the Securities and Exchange Commis-

Heinz decided to use the McCloy request as the means of making public the second Gulf contribution, which had not been known to government investigators.

News of Heinz' admission leaked to the Philadelphia Bulletin in mid-December. His primary opponents were quick to pick up the issue.

Packard made public appearances with a Gulf oil can beside him. Specter sent Heinz a list of questions he wanted answered. In February, Heinz held a two hour press conference solely on the Gulf contributions. On March 28, the Gulf issue took a new twist. The Philadelphia Bulletin carried a copyrighted story which said, according to unnamed sources,

The results of a parking lot occupancy study to determine the necessity of increasing parking meter fees downtown will be presented Tuesday to the Midland City Council.

The issue first came up about a month ago, when the city's traffic division presented a survey showing that downtown meters are often misused by all-day feeders rather than those coming to town to visit or do business in a short period of time. The increase being considered is to 25 cents an hour.

Council will discuss a total of 47 items at its 1:30 p.m. session, most of which had been postponed from the last session when three members left early with other business and a quorum was not ach ieved.

Also to be considered is a request by Tall City Cable TV Co. to discuss certain proposed rate increases. The cable company hopes to hike its monthly fees from $5.75 to $7.25. Council will also hold a public hearing on the request of Martin Allday for a zone change from singlefamily residential district to planned district on 20 acres south of Cimmaron Street and east of Garfield

The change has been recommended to council for approval by the city Planning and Zoning Commission despite considerable opposition during that public hearing.

Plans for the area call for construction of 10 patio townhouses on the western end of the land, seven inside lots for home construction, a "common area" consisting of ponds and fountains, a guard house and a tennis

Much of the opposition was centered around the tennis facility, which would be partially submerged into the ground, landscaped on the eastern side, contain two courts and a dressing area and be 28 feet high. Area residents objected to the facility, saying it will devalue property, will be aesthetically unpleasant and would decrease outdoor sun activities because of its height.

In other action, council will consider: - A report on adobe-type construction within the city:

Matthau has heart surgery

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - Actor Walter Matthau was listed in satisfactory condition at a hospital here after undergoing a successful "by-pass procedure" heart operation.

Doctors at Daniel Freeman Hospital described the operation Saturday night as elective rather than emergency surgery Matthau, 52, stars in the current movie "Bad News Bears." A spokesman said he was expected to recover in time to begin work on a new film scheduled for production in early summer.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The head of a group representing U.S. foreign service officers says he is worried about the possibility of an "official coverup" in the State Department's handling of the Moscow microwaves affair.

Prouty dies at Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) - Parker F. Prouty, general manager and president of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal for more than 40 years, is dead at the age of 75. Prouty died Sunday of a cardiac arrest. He had been in serious condition at Methodist Hospital here since surgery March 25. His funeral was scheduled for 10 a.m. Tuesday in St. Paul's Episcopal Church Prouty became general manager and president of the Avalanche-

Journal in 1931. He retired in 1972. Before joining the Avalanche-Journal, he worked for the Amarillo Globe-News. He served as director and member of the executive committee of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association and was a former director of the Texas Daily Press League Prouty was a member of the board. of directors of the Globe News and a director of the Plains Broadcasting Corp. of Lubbock and Amarillo. A native of Kingfisher, Okla., Prouty went to public schools in Oklahoma City and attended the University of Oklahoma. He is survived by his widow, the former Faye Underwood of Amarillo; a daughter, Mrs. John W. Root of Chicago; a sister, Mrs. C.O. Burnside of Oklahoma City, and five grandtogether a nixed commission of experts' including several with no government ties o look into the situation, Hemenwa, said in an interview. Meanwhile, a classified State Department document caims that aluminum screening recently installed at the Embassy is 90 per cent effective in blocking out ratiation that the document ays comes from two searchlight-like microwaye beams aimed at the building. The document, prepared for use in closed briefings of U.S. Embassy employes, provides the first detailed official explanation of issues surrounding the microwave issue. Although the U.S. report cites a variety of technical data, it fails to provide firm answers to several basic questions - such as the purpose behind the Soviet electronic bombardment. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has called the issue "a matter of great delicacy which has many ramifications," adding that the United States is involved in talk with Soviet officials in an effort to get the radiation stopped.

However, U.S. officials in Washington and Moscow have repeatedly refused to give any detailed public account about the microwave problem since it broke into headlines in early February.

foreign service association's board earlier this month that he believes the Soviet microwaves, first detected 15 years ago, "were not calculated to pick up intelligence but to cause physiological effects on personnel.' He said the Soviets apparently intended to induce effects including malaise, irritability and "extreme fatigue. Hemenway also asserted that the radiation might be linked to more serious conditions such as cataracts, blood changes inducing heart attacks, malignancies, circulatory problems and "permanent deterioration of the nervous system. "The possibility of a Department of State official cover-up should not be overlooked," said Hemenway, a vocal Kissinger critic who took charge of the association last summer. He later indicated the basis for this suspicion was his view that some members of the association panel looking into the problem "are creatures of Kissinger" who would not embarrass the secretary of state. Lawrence S. Eagleburger, deputy undersecretary of state, said Hemenway's report to the meeting was "full of inaccuracies, misstatements and erroneous assumptions." He accused Hemenway of voicing "wild charges" unsupported by scientific evidence.

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) - Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere met with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today and later told newsmen 'the war has started" for black-majority rule in Rhodesia.

'It can't be avoided," Nyerere said. "The United States might not support the war. We will not quarrel with that," Nyerere added. "I did not get the impression that Dr. Kissinger will support us in prosecuting the war." Kissinger came to Tanzania after opening a twoweek African tour in Nairobi, Kenya; over the weekend where he promised the United States would use its political and economic weapons to bring about black majority rule in southern Africa. Nyerere said he would like to see the United States and all other countries fully support the black liberationists who are fighting to topple the whiteminority government of Rhodesian Premier Ian

But when asked if he would like to see American arms introduced into the conflict, Nyere e sidestepped a direct answer and said he understands there "are limitations" to what Washington can do. Kissinger has said the U.S. government "does not plan to give military aid in any form to the nationalist movements in Africa.'

Nyerere said the United States has an obligation to support the U.N. economic embargo against the Smith government, which represents about 273,000 whites among a nation of 5.7 million blacks.

Nyerere spoke to reporters as Kissinger ended a 23-hour visit to Tanzania, his second stop on his seven-nation tour. During his stay, Kissinger shared a front-row box with Nyerere for a military parade marking the 12th anniversary of the formation of Tanzania through the union of Tanganyika and where he was to meet President Kenneth Kaunda who was expected to press for military aid for Rhodesian nationalist groups. During the weekend, Kaunda said 10 years of negotiations had failed to find a peaceful solution in Rhodesia and it was now too late for negotiating.

The next stop on his agenda was Lusaka, Zambia,

Black Rhodesian leader Joshua Nkomo was due in Lusaka to meet Kissinger. The leader of the domestic wing of the African National Council (ANC) is one of the few black Rhodesian nationalists to agree to see Kissinger. Kissinger met Sunday in Nairobi with President Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya before flying to Dar es

Police said 78 persons were killed and 96 wounded since midnight Sunday in Beirut and neighboring summer resorts as well as north Lebanon. Lebanese supporters of Syrian President Hafez

Assad's socialist Baath party publicly called for an all-out Syrian military intervention to disarm, warring Moslem and Christian private armies in "This is the only way to reestablish law and order because there is no Lebanese security force left to do the job," said Kamal Chatilla, head of the Syrianbacked Nasserite group in Beirut. Syrian troops, tanks and gunboats control key points on the Lebanese border and coast, blockading arms supplies to leftist Moslem militias critical of Syria's growing influence in Lebanon. Chatilla's call came as Moslem Parliament Speaker Kamel Assaad arrived in Damascus to discuss security arrangements to convene Lebanon's 99-man Parliament to elect a successor to Christian President Suleiman Franjieh. Assaad said the election will take place May 4 if security allows.

The Moslems, now a 60 per cent majority in Lebanon, are fighting for a larger voice in the government, which has been dominated by the Christians since World war II.

Society advocates going underground

ABLES

The name sounds weird enough: the American Underground Association. It could be a society of subway buffs or perhaps publishers of porno newspapers, maybe even a veterans' organization for those who served with the OSS during World War II.

What it is is a professional society, with 50 members now and expectations of up to 1,000 within three months. Its purpose is to persuade people that they might be a lot happier living underground

"The time is ripe for us now, and we're getting a lot of real support." says the group's executive director, Thomas C. Atchison of the University of Minnesota's department of civil and mineral engineering. Atchison, who spent a good part of his 25-year professional career thinking about the underground when he was with the U.S. Bureau of Mines, explains the underground movement this way:

"The real thing that brought it to a head is the energy crisis, and then there's just the general problem of land use. Surface is simply at a premium in most urban areas of the West and East Coasts, yet we've got a lot of space untapped underground."

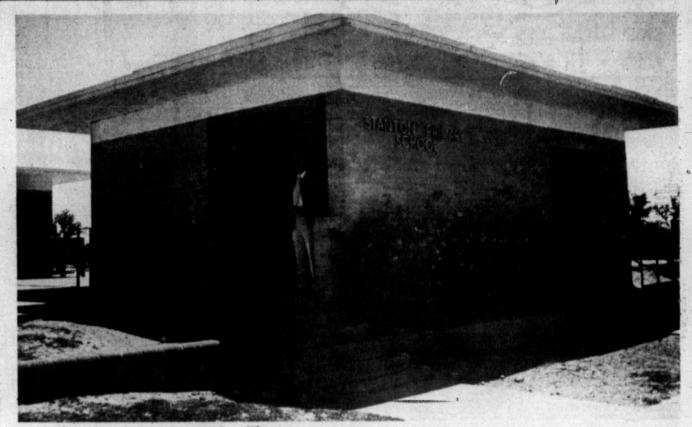

The underground movement until recently mining men like Atchison or tunnelers, mass excavators, civil engineers or mineral experts is drawing members from among urban planners, sociologists and environmentalists who feel that the landscape is being raped. (Association members expect their ranks to swell when they hold their first convention in June.)

The new underground group's primary mission will be to educate the nation's architects on the beauties of underground architecture. What the visionaries see is the kind of semi-submerged building in which a slight hillock on the horizon turns out to be a onefamily home, complete with light-filled courtyards opening to the sun and a sod roof that doesn't disrupt the landscape.

Behind the serious movement is a Bureau of Standards study estimating that during the next 25 years the nation could save $100 billion heating bills if all residences were placed underground.

The high-cost, land-scarce suburbs are ripe for a true underground development, advocates of underground building say. The new town of Reston, Va., near Washington, is building $n earth-covered elementary school. In Cherry Hill, N.J., architect Malcolm Wells points to his own sunken office as an example of the direction that small businesses could take. Outside Chicago, in Urbana, the University of Illinois has built its new library under a tree-shaded mall.

Underground movement nothing new to Stanton

STANTON - Going underground may be a new frontier to a lot of traditional architects, but it's "old hat" to Stanton school children. The Stanton Primary School is, in fact, 'getting to be an old school," according to elementary principal J. M Yater. It was built in 1965 at a cost of $125,000. Yater said construction ran about $15 per square foot compared to the $13 per square foot which would have been spent on a more traditional

Two small buff-colored brick buildings are the only above-ground "You immediately lose the ser evidence that a school exists on the being underground," Yater said.

Inside is a small foyer and a-stairwell — the entrance to the un-

When the underground school was proposed, he said, "There were very few people who expressed an opinion one way or the other. They (the school board) had no trouble passing the

There were several reasons for building the subterranean structure and one of them was NOT for an atomic bomb shelter." Yater, added, however, the Primary School has developed an unforseen use as an unofficial community storm shelter.

The primary reasons were lowmaintenance, reduced heating and cooling costs and elimination of allergens.

At the time it was built, the Primary School was located across the street from a cotton gin and grain elevator which was a major health problem for allergy-plagued youngsters. Yater said his own son had missed an average of one day's schooling each week because of allergy problems before completion of the underground facility. Once finished, however, he said the youngster missed no more school because of allergies. Now, although the gin and grain elevator are gone, elimination of allergens still remains a "plus" because West Texas as a whole remains a high incidence area for allergies. "All the air entering the building is filtered air," Yater explained, so allergy problems are nil.

Being underground also reduces building maintenance - there's minimal painting, no broken windows and scant opportunity for vandalism. On the inside, classrooms fidier because dust can't blow in through windows and doors.

"It's an easy building to keep clean," said Yater, who has been principal of the elementary grades 18

Bush argues against revealing intelligence spending budget administration is making a last-ditch effort to convince the Senater intelligence committée not to reveal how much the nation spends on

CIA Director George Bush was scheduled to appear before the committee at a closed meeting today to argue that disclosure of the intelligence budget would be harmful to national security.

The committee already has voted 8 to 3 to include the budget figure in its report on foreign and military intelligence activities scheduled to be released today.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi also was expected to meet with the committee in what one source said was an attempt to alter that panel's recommendations that call for stiff, new restrictions on electronic surveillance. Those recommendations, which this source said would permit domestic wiretaps only in cases in- last week urging that the intelligence volving criminal conduct, are expected to be made public later this week as part of a separate committee report on domestic intelligence operations. Bush's appearance was arranged in response to a letter President Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's foreign trade balance fell deeper into deficit for the second consecutive month during March as higher imports of coffee, cars and other manufactured goods overcame an increase in American agricultural exports, the government sai today.

The Commerce Department said imports exceeded exports by $650.9 million in March, compared to a $140.8 million deficit in February. The trade figures have run in the red since the 1975's record $11 billion surplus.

A deterioration in U.S. trade had been expected this year but the drop so far has been sharper than most analysts expected. Commerce estimated that continuation of the three-month trade performance so far this year would leave the nation $3.46

JACKSON, Ga. (AP) - As he forged a bloody trail through Georgia and Florida, an ex-convict snorted cocaine and bragged about his shooting and kidnap rampage that left three dead and 13 wounded. He ended the saga by killing himself, authorities say. "When he talked about all those people being dead, he would laugh about it," said Susie Critton, a hostage who escaped unharmed. "He was smiling about it like he was glad. He had no regrets. He just kept talking and sniffing the cocaine." Moses Pearson Jr., 31, apparently was angry at being cheated in a cocaine deal when he started the crime spree in his hometown of Jacksonville, Fla., on Saturday night, authorities said. He left two men dead there and six wounded.

Then he fled north into Georgia, killing a third man and wounding seven others.

Along the way, he abducted six women who escaped unharmed three who drove him into Georgia and a Bay Village, Ohio, woman and her two teenage daughters, abducted on a Georgia highway. Pearson began his rampage with three shootings within a 30-minute span in north Jacksonville, police spokesman Mike Gould said. At all three locations he demanded money.

"Robbery was at least a partial motive, but we feel there's a strong possibility of a drug tie-in in all those cases. Either he was ripped off or had been ripped off in the past," Gould said. "We know he had an argument with some of these people.'

Gould said Pearson shot and killed Horace Fallen, the manager of a used car lot, in Fallen's office. Two others there were wounded. Gould said investigators believe a cocaine deal was the source of "bad blood" between Pearson and Fallen.

As authorities reconstructed Pearson's wild odyssey, he then went to a roadside wig shop where he shot and killed the manager, George Quarles, 52, who had sworn out warrants for Pearson after a robbery at the shop last week.

. After wounding three persons at the nearby home of a woman who worked in the wig shop, authorities said,

Pearson abandoned his car at a drivein liquor store and abducted Mrs. Critton and Anita Cockfield, 22, and her sister Sharon, 18.

Pearson forced the women to drive him to a wooded area where he picked up a suitcase filled with money, two other guns and a change of clothes. Then they drove north to Georgia.

At a truck stop in Cordele, Ga., 170 miles north of Jacksonville, the four went inside for coffee, Mrs. Critton said. When Pearson allowed Sharon Cockfield to go to the bathroom, she managed to tell a waitress about the abduction. When police arrived, Pearson wounded two deputies and two bystanders. The sisters escaped, but Pearson kept Mrs. Critton as he sped

In Pinehurst, 20 miles north of Cordele on Interstate 75, Pearson tried to rob a service station and, shooting wildly, killed attendant George Griffin Jr., authorities said. During the shooting, Mrs. Critton escaped.

A short time later, Pearson wounded another service station attendant in a robbery attempt on the highway north of Pinehurst.

Still driving north on 1-75, authorities said, Pearson rammed into the rear of the car of the Leslie Janda family, heading home to Ohio after a Florida vacation. Pearson shot Janda in the arm, commandeered the car and abducted Mrs. Janda and their two teen-age daughters.

But Carl Chappell, an agent for the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, said there was "nothing to indicate any racial angle at all" for Pearson, who was black. Chappell said the victims included both blacks and whites and "it wouldn't have mattered what color you were.

Janda said he flagged down a truck driver with a citizen's band radio who called police. Police set up a roadblock at Macon, but Pearson eluded

Forty miles from Atlanta, in

. Jackson, Pearson lost control of the car and crashed. He shot once at Mrs. Janda but missed, and she fooled him by playing dead, authorities said. Pearson then shot himself, but officers said he managed to fire a shot at them as they approached the car. Pearson was dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Police said Pearson had two .38caliber revolvers and a .22caliber pistol on him when he was stopped Another pistol was found at one of the service stations.

Jacksonville police said Pearson was free on $2,500 bond after his arrest April 1 on charges of impersonating a police officer.

Gould said fingerprints also linked Pearson to a robbery last week at a Jacksonville grocery store where three people were killed and one wounded. Gould said Pearson's criminal record also included charges of breaking and entering and grand larceny. Records show he served time in jail on a 1966 fedral conviction formail theft and forging government
