New earth tremors hit Italy

UDINE, Italy (AP) — New earth tremors rolled through northeastern Italy early today as the government came under sharp press criticism for alleged failures in rescue work and emergency aid.

Rain added to the misery of many thousands of homeless persons and contributed to the problems of rescue workers digging through debris from Thursday's severe earthquake. No new casualties were reported from the new tremors, but the death toll rose to 815 from the first quake. About 50 aftershocks have hit the area since Thursday.

Rome's leftist newspaper Il Messaggero accused the government of forgetting some villages for three days after the quake struck, and said inadequate supplies had been sent to hard-hit areas.

Turin's La Stampa said the quake had revealed "national failures," and said "The state negligence, the scarcity of emergency aid are undeniable."

The ruling Christian Democrats have already come under fire in the campaign for national elections scheduled June 20-21 for failure to deal with extremist violence and Italy's severe economic problems.

Hundreds of tents were arriving in the quake-stricken area, but about 150,000 persons still homeless from the massive earthquake Thursday night had to spend their fourth night in temporary shelters.

Officials talked about moving some of the homeless into nearby hotels and discussed using the retired ocean liners Raffaello and Michelangelo for temporary living space. One official said the liners could hold 3,000 persons each.

"Most of the homeless will be staying in temporary housing at least until the end of the summer," said one official in Osoppo. But thousands made homeless by an earthquake in western Sicily in 1968 are still living in "temporary" shacks.

Many of those with homes still standing spend nights in their cars or in tents because of the tremors that continue to shake the area.

At least five tremors shook the area today and two strong quakes were felt Sunday in northeastern Italy and western Yugoslavia. In Udine, the city's historic center was roped off for fear that ancient palaces and churches would collapse.

Rescue operations continue in the villages. Three women were found alive early Sunday, more than 50 hours after the quake. Police officers expressed the belief that at least 400 more persons were buried in the debris, and there was little hope of finding any of them alive.

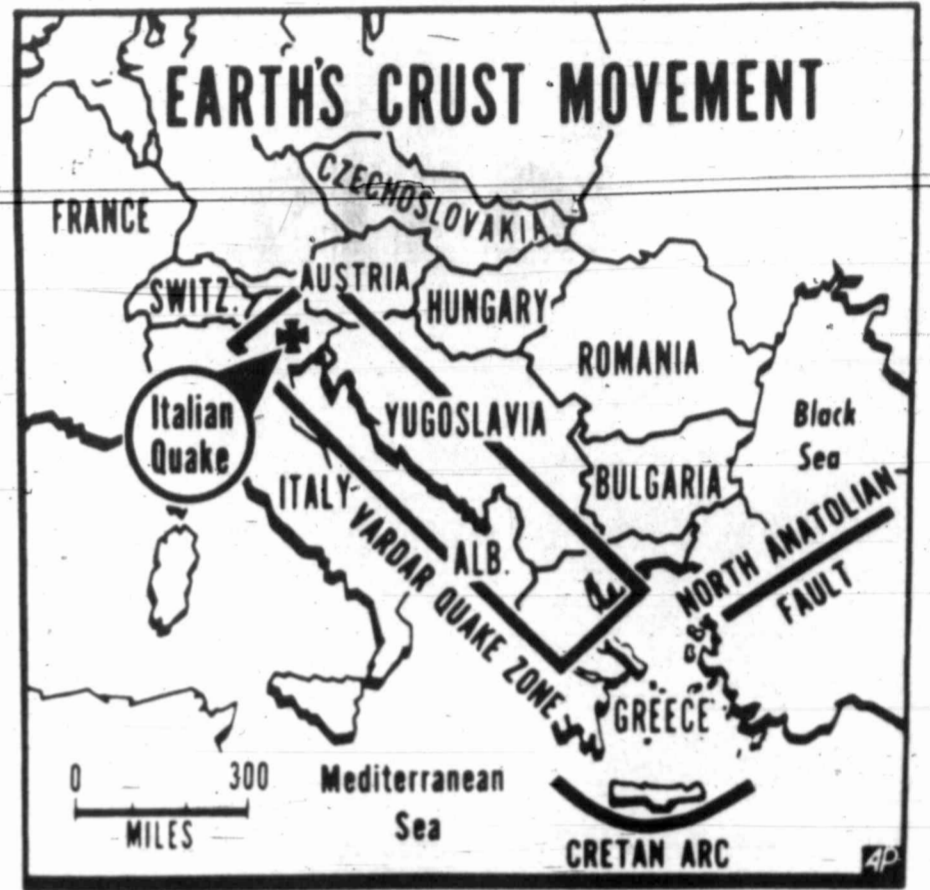

The first mass burial was held Sunday in Maiano, where 89 coffins were lowered into the earth.

Health Minister Luciano del Falco said inoculations against typhoid fever were proceeding satisfactorily, and adequate supplies of serum were arriving.

Officials estimated that 30,000 persons, or 70 per cent of the work force in the region, have been made jobless by damage to industrial plants.

Among the art treasures destroyed or badly damaged by the quake were the 14th-century cathedral and the castle at Gemona, the 6th-century cathedral of Venzone and the castle of Monte Albano.

facade of the hilltop cathedral at Gemona was destroyed along with the organ and two precious frescoes. The rest of the facade has numerous cracks. Several big square blocks are all that remain of the bell tower.

A large part of the castle disappeared into a deep crevasse which opened under it. The Shrine of Santa Maria degli Angeli was badly damaged. Two other churches with rare wooden ceilings were destroyed. The cathedral at Venzone, which had valuable frescoes, was badly damaged.

U.S. to retain right to defend Panama Canal

By RICK SCOTT

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The United States will retain in any treaty with Panama its right to defend the Panama Canal from either internal or external takeover, Deputy Secretary of Defense William Clements said today.

Clements said the right of the United States to "participate in the defense of the canal is a continuing right—and is fundamental to any treaty negotiated."

Clements, although not identifying Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan by name, assailed recent "campaign rhetoric" that implied the United States is negotiating to give away the canal.

"There are those now who are publicly charging that the treaty negotiations now under way with Panama are some sort of 'giveaway' and that we are engaged in them because we're somehow afraid of threats of force," Clements said. "This is simply not true," he told the Texas Association of Insurance Agents.

"We are negotiating with Panama because it is in our own best interest to do so. We want to make sure the canal remains open for the commerce of the world and that it is efficiently operated on a non-discriminatory basis at reasonable prices," he said.

"The best way to do that is to develop a full partnership with a friendly Panama."

"Stonewalling, on the other hand, is the best way to make sure that none of those goals is achieved, by embittering our relations with Panama," Clements said.

He said it is not true that the United States entirely owns the canal. He added that the canal no longer has the strategic military importance that it once did to the United States.

Clements said the proposed treaty with Panama would ensure the security of the canal.

By LEWIS H. DIUGUID and DON OBERDORFER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Last June, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who had turned briefly to journalism while warming up for his presidential campaign, began writing newspaper columns and delivering radio broadcasts against a U.S. "giveaway" of the Panama Canal.

The reaction was a trickle of mail and other comments that encouraged Reagan to say more. As his national campaign got underway, he added the canal issue to his basic speech in Florida, Louisiana, Texas and other southern states.

"In New Hampshire, where we used the question and answer format, we began getting questions on the canal and then we began getting questions everywhere," recalled speechwriter Peter Hannaford. "It touched a much deeper chord than we envisioned."

Encouraged, Reagan began attacking, claiming that President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger are planning a "giveaway" through secret negotiations of "sovereign U.S. territory" to Panamanian Gen. Omar Torrijos, "a tinhorn dictator."

The canal issue became the centerpiece of Reagan's campaign oratory in the Texas primary, and he won consistent cheers when he declared, "We bought it, we paid for it, we built it and it is ours, and we intend to keep it."

Mr. Ford's first response was the claim that "the United States will never give up its defense rights to the Panama Canal and will never give up its operational rights." In fact, the administration position in negotiations with Panama envisions a new treaty limited in duration which means U.S. rights eventually could be terminated.

Shifting to counterattack, Mr. Ford charged that Reagan's "irresponsible" position could produce "a bloodbath" in the Canal Zone and turn all of Latin America against the United States.

The counterattack was backed by Sen. Barry Goldwater, (R-Ariz.), who charged that Reagan's position "could needlessly lead this country into open military conflict." Goldwater said his fellow conservative would change his views on the canal if he knew more about it.

Democratic frontrunner Jimmy Carter, drawn into the debate by reporters' questions, said he would be flexible on some issues in the U.S. negotiating position. He added, however, that "I cannot foresee a time when I would relinquish effective control of the operations or defense of the canal."

The oratory over the canal — which has become the surprise issue of the 1976 campaign to date — reflects deep national pride in a famous achievement of America's past and a nostalgia for glories of old.

Behind the debate is a struggle between Latin nationalism and the United States, as well as a longstanding national policy struggle in Washington over the canal's future. As Reagan was stating his canal position last summer, American policy was shifting and some of his expected allies — the joint chiefs of staff and Goldwater, for example — were changing their views.

The root of the problem is in history, which is seen by many Americans as glorious and by many Latins as shameful and unfair.

In 1903, the United States inspired the revolt that created the Republic of Panama, and then virtually imposed a treaty granting "in perpetuity, the use, occupation and control" by the United States of a five-mile zone on either side of the planned canal.

The United States built the canal, one of the great engineering feats of its time, in 1904-1914 at a cost of $380 million. The U.S. did not buy the Canal Zone and does not own it, in the official Washington view. The U.S. initially paid $10 million to Panama for the extensive Canal Zone rights plus $250,000 a year "compensation," which is equivalent to rent. This has been raised in stages to the present yearly fee of $2.3 million.

America's Canal Zone enclave, which cuts Panama in half, has been bitterly opposed by many Panamanians in the modern post-colonial era. Riots broke out in the zone in 1964, leaving 21 Panamanians and three Americans dead. President Johnson responded by opening negotiations on a new treaty.

Due to political sensitivities on both sides, treaty progress was slow.

Draft agreements negotiated in 1967 were attacked in both countries when leaked to the press and formally repudiated in 1970 by Panama. A frustrated Panama took its case in 1973 to the United Nations, where the United States was forced to use its veto to block a pro-Panamanian resolution.

To avert more serious setbacks in Latin relations and the possibility of renewed fighting, the U.S. brought in senior diplomat Ellsworth Bunker as negotiator and placed new priority on a Panama settlement.

Setting the groundwork for new talks, Kissinger flew to Panama in February 1974 to sign a joint declaration of eight "principles." The U.S. agreed then that a new treaty would be for a fixed period of time rather than "in perpetuity" — phrase and concept that deeply offends the Panamanians.

Opposition in Congress was immediate. Within a month, 34 senators — enough to block ratification of any eventual treaty — had signed a resolution insisting on "undiluted sovereignty" by the United States in the Canal Zone. The effort was tacitly supported by the U.S. military, which maintains nearly 10,000 troops and extensive installations.

Moving into crucial stages of negotiations last summer, Mr. Ford insisted that the State and Defense Departments resolve their bureaucratic war over the canal by preparing a unified government position.

This was thrashed out in intensive deliberations, including two National (Continued on Page 2A)

Canal: surprise campaign issue

Church takes campaign to church

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Idaho Sen. Frank Church took his Democratic presidential campaign to churches and taverns over the weekend, working for an upset victory over Jimmy Carter in his first primary here Tuesday.

Church said that with united support he could score "a stunning upset" that could be the "springboard" to later campaign victories.

Nebraska's Democratic presidential ballot carries the names of 11 candidates including Sens. Hubert Humphrey and Edward Kennedy, who unsuccessfully tried to have their names removed.

President Ford faces Ronald Reagan in their race for the Republican nomination in Nebraska and in West Virginia the same day. Democrats vote in both states and in Connecticut.

After weekend GOP caucuses and conventions in five states, Ronald Reagan pushed past the one-third mark in his drive for the 1,130 national convention delegates that would give him the Republican presidential nomination.

The former California governor had 396 delegates to 309 for President Ford. In addition, 347 uncommitted GOP delegates had been selected.

On the Democratic side, Carter picked up additional delegates in Maine and Wyoming to reach a total of 569. Washington Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who announced an end to his active campaigning a week ago, had 199 delegates and Arizona Rep. Morris K. Udall 187.5 delegate votes.

In addition, 281.5 uncommitted Democratic delegates have been elected.

President Ford spent the weekend campaigning in Nebraska and Missouri, seeking to regain the lead in Republican delegate strength. He was back at the White House on Sunday. Aides said he would campaign in his home state, Michigan, on Wednesday, and there were reports he would work there Saturday as well.

Reagan spent Sunday in Los Angeles.

Church has concentrated on Nebraska since entering the Democratic race several weeks ago, and he hurried from town to town over the weekend in an effort to round up support. The Idaho senator was a late starter because he was busy as chairman of the Senate intelligence committee.

Carter has predicted a victory in Nebraska, though he has said he is behind in Maryland where he faces still another newcomer, California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Ford and Reagan are on the Republican ballot in West Virginia. On the Democratic side, Senate Majority Whip Robert C. Byrd is entered as a favorite son candidate against Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

In other weekend campaign developments:

—California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. said Sunday that he would meet with uncommitted convention delegate candidates in New Jersey on May 18, the same day as the Maryland primary, in an effort to win their backing. He also scheduled a brief campaign swing for Wednesday in Colorado, where his supporters set up a campaign headquarters on Sunday.

—Rep. Morris Udall, scolding President Ford for not promptly approving a new Federal Election Commission, was in Connecticut to campaign until the final hours before that (Continued on Page 2A)

Court denies Ray's appeal

CINCINNATI (AP) — James Earl Ray's appeal from his plea of guilty in the shooting death of civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was denied today by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The unanimous decision concluded that the U.S. District Court for the western district of Tennessee was correct in refusing Ray's motion for a new trial.

The district court said Ray failed to prove that his defense attorneys, Arthur Hanes or Percy Foreman, provided Ray with ineffective assistance, improper investigation or that Ray was induced to plead guilty on March 10, 1969.

The appellate court said Ray's testimony at his guilty-plea hearing made it plain he understood his actions before receiving a 99-year sentence.

Texas area forecasts

North Texas: Clear to partly cloudy in west portion through Tuesday. Cloudy tonight in north central area and partly cloudy Tuesday. Mostly cloudy south central and east portions through Tuesday. Low tonight 60 to 65. High Tuesday 80 to 85.

Port O'Connor to Brownsville: Southeast winds 10 to 15 knots through Tuesday. Seas 2 to 3 feet.

South Texas: Chance of drizzle in north late tonight and Tuesday morning. Considerable cloudiness through Tuesday. Low tonight 62 to 72. High Tuesday 80 to 88.

West Texas: Fair through Tuesday except some early morning cloudiness Tuesday in southeast portion, and partly cloudy with scattered thundershowers extreme northeast tonight. Low tonight upper 60s north and mountains to upper 30s south. High Tuesday upper 70s Panhandle to lower 90s Big Bend.

Extended Texas forecast

Wednesday through Friday

North Texas: Clear to partly cloudy and mild Wednesday through Friday. Chance of showers Friday. Highest temperatures in the 80s. Lowest temperatures in the 50s to mid 60s.

South Texas: Chance of thundershowers northeast Friday otherwise partly cloudy with mild 60s and warm days. Low to mid 80s to low 90s south. In mid 80s with few low 90s southwest.

West Texas: Partly cloudy Wednesday through Friday. Widely scattered showers and thundershowers mostly north Thursday. High in the 80s except 90s Big Bend. Low in the 50s and 60s.

New Mexico, Oklahoma

New Mexico: Fair and warmer through Tuesday. Breezy northeast plains Tuesday. Low tonight in 30s and 40s mountains, 40s and 50s elsewhere. High Tuesday 60s and 70s mountains and 70s and 80s elsewhere.

Oklahoma: Showers and thundershowers east today ending tonight with decreasing cloudiness. Fair to partly cloudy tomorrow.

Spring may return to Permian Basin area

Warm, spring-like temperatures should once again return to the Permian Basin, as cloudiness and a Canadian cold front that caused colder temperatures both pass through the area.

Muggy weather enveloped the greater part of Texas today and it was expected to breed scattered thundershowers over about the northeast two-thirds of the state.

Tuesday morning will still be cloudy, but as the cloud cover burns off, temperatures will warm up quickly, a National Weather Service spokesman said.

It was overcast and damp in Andrews, with cool morning temperatures. Lamesa and Midland reported overcast skies and fog. Temperatures were also cool in both towns. No winds were reported in Lamesa, but Midland had slight breezes. Skies were partly cloudy in Stanton and Big Lake, with very little winds. Morning temperatures were warm in Stanton and cool in Big Lake. Skies were clear and sunny in Rankin and McCamey, although a slight fog was reported very early this morning. There were no winds, and temperatures were cool.

Tonight's low should be in the low 50s, with winds light and variable. Tuesday's high is expected to climb into the low 80s, the spokesman said.

Light rain already was falling in early morning from the Central Texas Hill Country to the East Texas lakes section. The mixture of showers and drizzle concentrated in areas from around San Antonio across the Brazos Valley near College Station and Lufkin into Louisiana.

Prompted by a 25-mile-wide band of heavy thundershowers in the vicinity, forecasters posted a flash flood warning for low areas from southwest of Lufkin to near Alexandria, La.

While it was somewhat drier in western parts of the state, early morning fog was widespread from the Permian Basin in West Texas to the Sabine Valley in the extreme east. Skies were at least partly cloudy everywhere except a few points in the west.

Temperatures near dawn ranged from 75 degrees at McAllen in the Lower Rio Grande Valley down to 47 at Amarillo in the Panhandle. Sunday's top mark went as high as 90 at Presidio in far West Texas.

state's primary on Tuesday. Udall was the only one of the five candidates in the race scheduled to stump the state today.

At a Sunday rally at the Yale University Law School, the Arizona congressman accused Ford of delaying approval of a new commission so his Democratic and Republican opponents would have less campaign money for the May 18 Michigan primaries.

Also entered in Connecticut's primary are Carter, Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, anti-abortionist candidate Ellen McCormack of New York, Church and former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said Sunday he would be ready and willing to serve if called on to be the Democratic presidential nominee.

"I'm not out of the presidential race any more than I ever was. And I'm not in more than I was," Humphrey said Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

Humphrey said he could decide after the primaries end June 8 whether to make an active bid for the nomination. "If it appears that no one has a commanding lead for a first- or second-ballot victory, I will then make a decision," Humphrey said. "I'm not sure yet what that decision will be."

Reagan picked up 18 delegates in caucuses in Oklahoma, nine in Louisiana and three in Kansas, while Ford got 11 from Kansas, three from Missouri and three from Minnesota.

Wyoming's Republicans picked 17 delegates over the weekend, but state rules do not require them to make their preferences known.

On the Democratic side, Carter got nine delegates over the weekend from caucuses in Maine, Udall got four and six were uncommitted, while in Wyoming, Carter, Udall and Brown got one delegate each and three were chosen uncommitted.

Udall won 15 delegates in final caucuses in his home state of Arizona, Carter received four and Wallace one.

Single shot downed 'Red Baron'

By LYNNE WELLS

The story of the Red Baron, the World War I German flying ace, as presented by Charles Schultz, is not the correct version of the famous pilot's demise.

The version told by Oliver "Boots" Le Boutillier of Las Vegas, Nev., is very exciting, however. He says he is the last surviving witness who saw Baron Manfred Von Richthofen, "The Red Baron," shot down on April 21, 1918.

Le Boutillier is a retired Royal Air Force captain who served three years during World War I. He told his story while visiting friends in Midland last week.

Le Boutillier was leading a patrol at 12,000 feet above the ground on the cloudy Sunday morning, when 15 RAF planes encountered 28 German planes.

A red triplane crossed the Allied lines and Capt. Roy Brown of the RAF fired a single shot into the cockpit, Le Boutillier said.

He got in position to intercept the red plane in case the pilot turned around, but the wounded German crashed landed instead near the Somme River in France.

Le Boutillier flew over the wreckage, still unaware that the dead pilot was the German ace, Baron Manfred Von Richthofen.

He reported the crash to his base, and later learned from the Australians that the great "Red Baron" had been shot down.

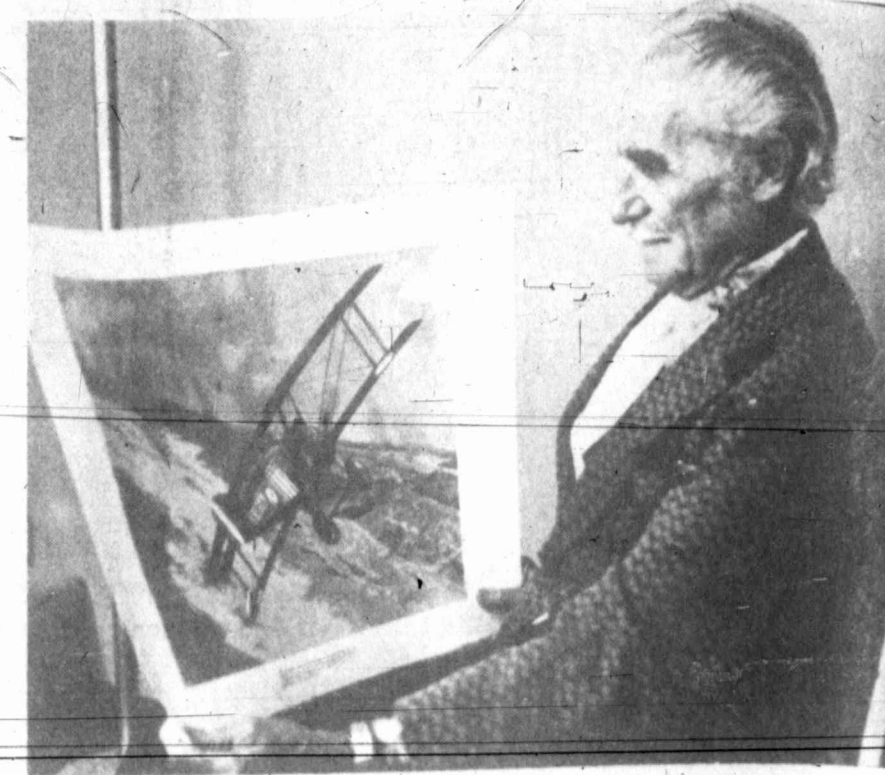

Le Boutillier felt no regret for the Red Baron's death, or no animosity toward him.

"They (the Germans) were out to get us," the retired captain said. "They lost their leader," which Le Boutillier says was the turning point of World War I.

Von Richthofen was buried in "tremendous style," Le Boutillier said.

"In the early days of air combat, there was mutual admiration and respect among pilots, Le Boutillier said. Nor was there mistreatment of captured enemy pilots, he said.

Ironically, the Red Baron was the only German pilot shot down that spring day in 1918. Le Boutillier said.

Oliver Le Boutillier studies a watercolor of the plane he was flying on patrol when the "Red Baron," Baron Manfred Von Richthofen, was shot down April 21, 1918. The painting, by Houston artist Bob Carlin, was completed after two years of historical research by the artist.

To dramatize the Pentagon's new stand, Gen. George Brown, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, flew to Panama early last September and publicly announced U.S. military support for the negotiations. Since Brown has been present at background briefings on the canal issue in Washington, lending symbolic backing to the Ford Administration position.

The Pentagon also has presented a definite list of "lands and waters" it wishes to occupy in the Canal Zone for defense purposes.

These U.S. positions are still unacceptable to Panama, which seeks a treaty of about 25 years duration and wants to take over more of the land in the Canal Zone. Nonetheless, movement toward agreement has been notable — at least until the issue erupted in GOP primaries.

possess legal sovereignty in the Canal Zone.

The preamble of the 1903 treaty states that the United States was authorized to acquire "control" of the Canal Zone, "the sovereignty of such territory being actually vested in the Republic of Panama."

The fundamental reason for the U.S. decision to renegotiate the 1903 pact is that Panama and other Latin nations reject it — and this opposition, if not curbed, could lead to the crippling or destruction of the canal.

Radio news commentator Paul Harvey will be the featured speaker at Tuesday's God and Country Rally here.

Paul Harvey

The 7:30 p.m. event in Midland Memorial Stadium is sponsored by Midland Baptist Association, composed of Southern Baptist churches and missions in the city and county. It will be free to the public. No collections will be taken.

Harvey, widely known for his dynamic and outspoken views about America presented on his daily radio broadcasts and in his frequent public addresses, will arrive in Midland by private plane Tuesday afternoon and then return to his home base, Chicago, after the rally that night.

The rally, an official Bicentennial event in the city, will be initiated with a flyover of aircraft from Webb Air Force Base, Big Spring, followed by posting of the colors by a special color guard from the base.

Patriotic and inspirational music will be presented at the rally by the Truth Singers, 17-voice ensemble from Mobile, Ala., which has performed in virtually every state in the union in recent years.

Joe Dominey, representing Midland's Bicentennial Commission, will serve as master of ceremonies at the rally. Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo will introduce the guest speaker. Several Midland Baptist ministers also are to actively participate in the program.

In the event of bad weather, the rally will be moved from Memorial Stadium to the auditorium of First Baptist Church nearby. It was announced.

DEATHS

Carl Vandiver services set

Services for Carl M. Vandiver, 29, of El Paso and formerly of Midland, will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Thomas Funeral Home Chapel, with burial at Resthaven Memorial Park.

Vandiver, who was in Midland on leave from Ft. Bliss, died Friday in a motorcycle accident at Air Terminal.

Infant dies in San Angelo

Michael Lane Horton, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Horton of San Angelo, died early this morning in a San Angelo hospital.

Services are pending with the Newbie W. Ellis Chapel.

Survivors include the parents, a brother, Thomas Ray Norton of the home; and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Stark of Midland and Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Witch of Waco.

Midlander's brother dies

FREEPORT — Paul Renick Sr., 55, of Freepport, brother of Mrs. Charles L. West of Midland, died Saturday in Freepport after an apparent heart attack.

Graveside services will be at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday at Hopewell Cemetery in Liberty Hill.

Renick was born in Liberty Hill and had lived in Freepport 26 years.

Survivors include the widow, two sons, one other sister and a grandson.

Maria Ortiz services set

CAMP WOOD — Maria A. Ortiz, 47, sister of Mrs. Vicente Hernandez of Crane, died Friday night in a San Antonio hospital after an illness.

Services will be at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Camp Wood Catholic Church with burial at Camp Wood Cemetery directed by Nelson Funeral Home.

Midlander's mother dies

WINTERS — Mrs. T. A. Lindley, 85, of Winters, mother of Mrs. Dell Manning of Midland, died Sunday morning in Midland after a long illness.

Services were at 2 p.m. today in Spill Memorial Chapel with burial at Lakeview Cemetery.

Mrs. Lindley was born Dec. 27, 1891, in Springdale, Tenn. She married T. A. Lindley in 1907 in Fort Worth. They moved to Tom Green County in 1915 and to Runnels County in 1920. In 1928, they moved to Winters and operated a grocery store for several years. She was a member of the First Baptist Church and had lived in Midland for the past six years.

Survivors include a son, three sisters, nine grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren.

John Cole dead at 82

McCAMEY — John Cole, 82, longtime West Texas rancher, died at 9 p.m. Sunday in a hospital here, following a long illness.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday in McCamey's First Baptist Church.

Cole ranched in Sterling County for years before moving to McCamey in 1938 to operate his Upton County ranch. He was prominent in ranching circles of the Southwest.

He was a former member of the board of education of the McCamey Independent School District.

Ford gets 'cover-up'

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A wild shop owner says he's sending President Ford his very own cover-up — a $120 wig.

"For a President who already has earned a reputation for having nothing to hide, certainly you can take the liberty of this one harmless 'cover-up,'" Dan Pendergast said in a note pinned to the hairpiece he's ready to mail to the White House.

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You are an ignorant woman for giving your approval to a traditional church wedding for a 23-year-old "bride" who was being married for the first time and who admitted to having had an illegitimate child. She said it was her "heart's desire," and even asked if her illegitimate child could plane fare, so I guess I am expected to pay it. We are both working girls, and I doubt if her parents can foot the bill for my transportation, although they are putting on the wedding and the plans are quite lavish. Should I write and mention my plane fare? Or do you think I should just assume that I'm expected to pay it myself? When she asked me to be her maid of honor she said that her parents were buying the gowns for the girls in the wedding party, but we would have to buy our own shoes. Hurry your reply.—NEEDS TO KNOW DEAR NEEDS: Since nothing was mentioned about your plane fare, it's safe to assume that you are expected to pay your own way. If she sends you a ticket, it will be a pleasant surprise.

Here's how to save energy and money when doing your laundry.

- You'll run your washing machine and dryer less often if you do full loads.
• When you do a partial wash load, use the correct water setting. If you use more water than you need, you're wasting money.
• Most clothes will come clean in warm or cold water. Hot water costs you more, and it is needed only for white or colorfast cottons and linens.
• Don't overload your dryer. It will just have to work longer and harder, and this tends to wrinkle your clothes.
• Don't overdry your clothes. This also wastes energy, and wrinkles and shrinks many fabrics.
• Clean the lint filter each time you use your dryer. Free air circulation allows the dryer to operate as efficiently and quickly as it can.
• For more energy and money saving ideas, call Texas Electric. We'd like to help.

The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all the local news printed in this newspaper, as well as all AP news dispatches. Rights of publication of all other matters herein also reserved.

JAMES N. ALLISON (1902-1975)
PUBLISHER
ADVERTISING RATES: Display advertising and legal notice rates on application. Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation which may occur in the columns of The Reporter-Telegram will be gladly corrected upon being brought to the attention of the editor.

He means it, too!

Publisher James Roberts quite often comes up with some really great ideas, observations and criticisms in his "Drifting Sands" column appearing on the front page of his Andrews County News.

In the newspaper's May 6 edition he hit the nail squarely on the head in a letter addressed to Roy Henderson, Secretary, Public Utility Commission, 7800 Shoal Creek, Austin, Texas.

Noting that the commission has asked public comment on the 88-page document containing staff proposals for rules governing rates and services of Texas utilities, which come under the commission's jurisdiction, Roberts wrote:

"We take strong exception to Section 032 (6) A which would limit advertising, contributions, and donations by utilities to 50 per cent of the actual expenditure as a cost and such sum shall not exceed one per cent of the gross receipts of the utility."

"Let us hasten to add that this newspaper, as most newspaper and radio stations in Texas, can survive quite well, financially, without the benefit of utility advertising."

"We realize that your new commission has a duty to perform to the consumers of this state but we feel that the same duty and obligation ought to extend to the taxpayers who are synonymous with consumers."

"If it is wrong for a utility company to advertise its services to get its message over to the people, then the same principle should apply to all state agencies."

Roberts then pointed out that during the previous week his newspaper had received 59 news releases, in as many separate mailings, from 20 state agencies, which he listed.

The same number of releases undoubtedly went to the 111 daily newspapers, 524 weeklies, 280 AM radio stations, and 69 TV stations in Texas. This would amount to 1,178 pieces of mail per week, for a total of almost 70,000 pieces mailed at taxpayer expense in one week, or a total of more than 3.6 million in a year's time.

Figure the postage alone and then add to that the cost of maintaining a public relations staff to write the handouts, the cost of printing, paper and envelopes, and one comes up with a substantial figure, all at the expense of the taxpayer, for getting messages across to the people.

"The only difference," Roberts said, "is the fact that the utilities people must pay for their space in the newspaper, while all of the above, including your agency, want their messages printed free."

"If the utilities in Texas do not have a legitimate message to the taxpayer, neither do the agencies and institutions of the state government."

"If the savings to the taxpayer is the goal of your commission, then it appears a greater savings can be made by starting at Austin rather than on the utilities."

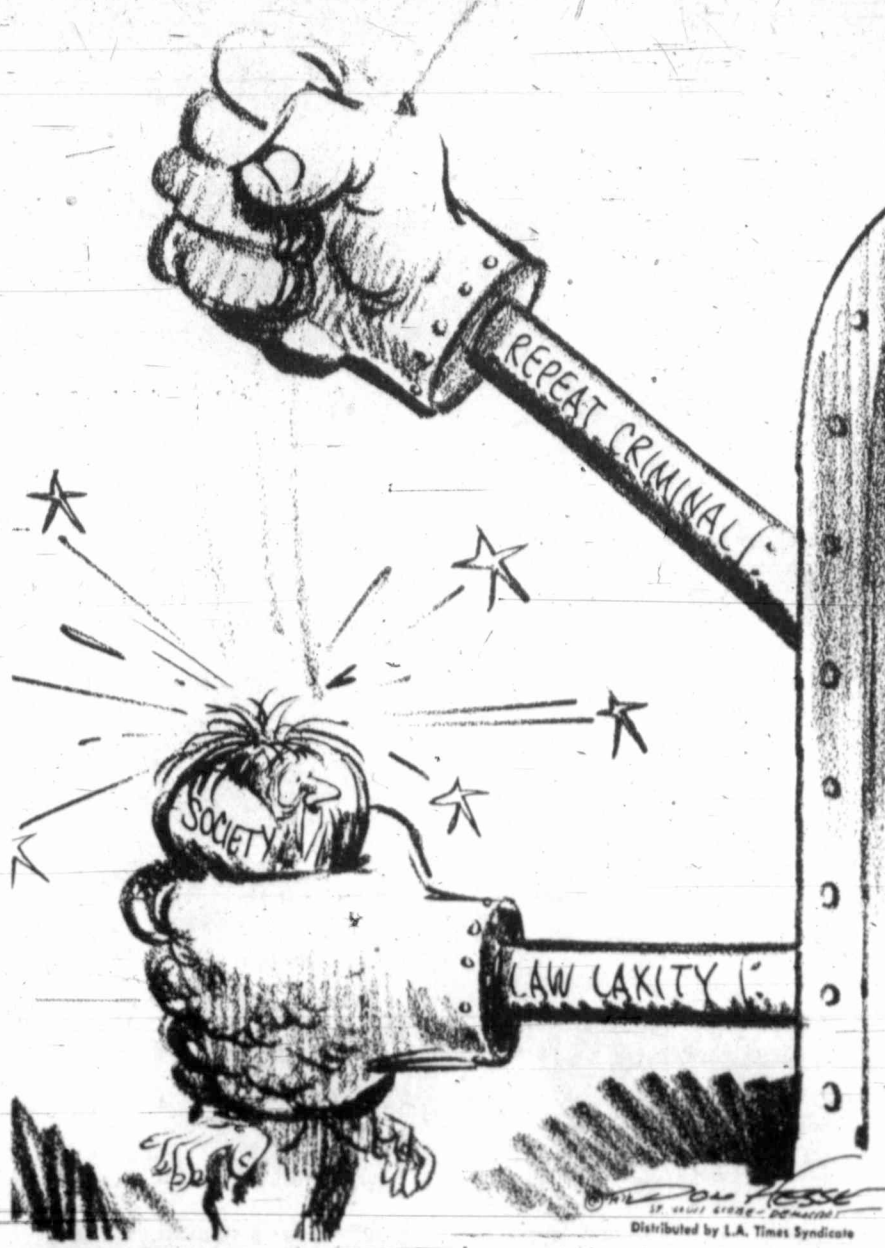

"If your commission insists on limiting utility advertising, we personally will solicit media associations of the state to ask their members to refuse to print any state agency messages. And we will work within our associations to introduce legislation that would ban all tax-supported public relations offices, publicity blurbs and news releases."

"As you can see, we believe firmly in the old adage of what's sauce for the goose applies equally well for the gander."

Roberts is just as right as can be in his sage observations, and he certainly would have the all-out support of media associations should he be forced to launch a statewide campaign, as pledged.

In addition to the news media associations, Roberts undoubtedly could count on like support from chambers of commerce, service clubs, United Fund organizations, welfare groups, industrial foundations and the like which would be hampered severely if cutoff from both manpower and financial support from utility firms which always have been strong supporters of community and regional activities.

The proposed Section 032 (6) A of the commission's document is not the American way of doing business.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Senator Cannon's flying high

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The re-election campaign of stocky, sun-tanned Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., is flying high — thanks to contributions from the aviation industry he oversees.

Cannon holds three posts which give him a powerful influence over commercial aviation and aircraft manufacturing:

- 1. He heads a Commerce subcommittee, which has jurisdiction over the Civil Aeronautics Board. The board, in turn, regulates the airlines.
- 2. He also chairs an Armed Services subcommittee, which gives him power over Pentagon purchases of military aircraft.
- 3. He is a key member of the Space Committee which strengthens his voice in aviation affairs.

The able Cannon, who speaks softly but swings a big stick in the Senate, has solicited campaign contributions from aviation executives who are beholden to him.

His fundraisers sent out 12,000 letters, many of them to industry people. The mailing brought back an astonishing quarter of a million dollars. We were able to trace at least $21,000 to aviation executives.

The list of contributors reads like a Who's Who of the industry. For example, nine Page Airways officials, including board chairman James P.

Wilmot, coughed up $1,000 apiece. Similar $1,000 contributions were made by Edward Daly, World Airways president and hero of the Vietnam babilift; Robert Six, president of Continental Airlines; Edward Uhl, president of Fairchild Industries; and J.F. Stallings of Capitol International Airways.

Three executives of the Flying Tiger Line contributed a total of $1,400. We found contributions running into the hundreds from executives of Eastern Airlines, Frontier Airlines, United Aircraft, National Airlines, Western Airlines and TWA. There were donations, too, from such defense contractors as Boeing, Grumman, General Dynamics and Northrop.

Peculiarly, the individual donations from the defense contractors were received and recorded the same day. Nonetheless, the employees reached by our associate Bob Owens denied they had been pressured by their companies to contribute.

Footnote: A spokesman for the senator contended that "if we eliminated everyone who does business with the Space, Armed Services and Commerce committees, we'd eliminate almost everyone in American business." He insisted there is no relationship between Cannon's votes and his campaign contributions. The contributor list,

A CHANGING WORLD: Burger understands concerns of public

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Editor, Copley News Service

Every now and then U.S. Chief Justice Warren Burger emerges from the solemn and insulated dignity of his black robes to say something incisively pertinent to the times all of us live in.

Most times he seems to be warning lawyers to behave and to give more heed to their responsibility to the public good. He has done that again — but he has done more this time, too.

In a recent speech in St. Paul, Minn., which received very little press coverage he spoke of Ezra Pound's famous admonition of 70 years ago.

Pound told lawyers to get away from using the administration of justice as a "sporting contest" in which they merely sought to outmaneuver and out-slick each other and turn to "a genuine search for the truth." In court and lawyer reform, Pound also said that "we should stop merely tinkering where comprehensive reform is needed."

"It is in this latter approach to reform that Burger speaks to an issue that bewilders most Americans, particularly those living in high-crime big cities. It is the matter of bail for repeated offenders, some of whom face a dozen indictments simultaneously, the crimes having been committed while out on bail."

Burger speaks of the bail reform law, an act designed to free jails of indigents and others awaiting trial — when it seems likely these persons will not flee the court's jurisdiction. He thinks this "reform" is one that needs a second look, and he urges that most reforms be given periodic examination. Sometimes the reform creates more problems than it solves.

"The lawyer supplied to an indigent," Burger says, "does, as he should, satisfy his client's lawful requests. Inevitably, the first request is 'get me out.' And, the odds are, under the Bail Reform Act, that the accused will be released pending trial in all but a rare case involving murder."

At this point Burger demonstrates an understanding of public anguish and public concern over how the law works.

"It now appears," he says, "especially in larger cities, crimes are committed by persons while released pending trial. It is not uncommon for an accused, when finally tried, to have other indictments pending. And, if the matter is disposed of by a guilty plea, after conviction on one charge, there is a tendency to dismiss or defer other charges and to impose a single sentence."

"In high crime rate communities, law abiding citizens must be forgiven if they ask whether such practices are giving rise to a belief that a criminal can commit two, or even three, crimes and pay the price for only one."

Burger then raises the point that the new federal bail law relates only to the risk of the accused taking flight.

"No consideration," he says, "is given to possible danger to the community... and we need a review of the Bail Reform Act to determine how many arrests have been made of persons who were released pending trial on a prior charge..."

"It is a very serious matter when whole communities become emotionally aroused, as they are, by a constant stream of news accounts of serious crimes. We (lawyers and judges) should not be heard to complain at the loss of public confidence in our legal institutions if people come to think that government is impotent to protect its citizens. One danger is that loss of belief in governmental institutions leads to what is euphemistically called 'self-help' and too much self-help can lead to a disintegration of the social structure. A civilized society should not have vigilantes."

"This underscores the need to keep new programs (easier bail) as well as old ones under surveillance." Burger said more, particularly to lawyers. He warned against some inclination to the idea "that the courts were the private property of lawyers rather than instruments for the benefit of people."

He had other admonishments for lawyers, and those gentlemen should pay heed. However, the greatest contribution in the St. Paul speech was his understanding of public fear of ever-increasing crime and his tacit suggestion that more strict bail laws might reduce this threat to city life.

INSIDE REPORT:

President Gerald R. Ford's campaign crisis cited

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Having undergone primary election humiliations not experienced by a President since William Howard Taft in 1912, Gerald R. Ford is being braced with this stern advice: You will lose the nomination unless you place your house in order, starting with the sacking of Henry Kissinger as Secretary of State.

Dr. Kissinger's African safari, blamed for transforming defeat into catastrophe in Texas, has expanded the dump-Kissinger chorus into a howling mob. Party leaders are also calling for pro-Ford campaigning instead of anti-Reagan counterpunching, which hit counterproductive bottom with demands for release of Reagan's 1975 tax returns. Therefore, these politicians want an experienced wise man to travel full time with President Ford to protect him from the noxious gimmicks dredged up by press secretary Ron Nessen, author of the Reagan tax play.

But the President may ignore such pleas, particularly if he sticks with his political operatives who publicly and privately attribute Reagan's stunning victories to the "cross-over" Democrats rather than basic Ford campaign problems. They seemingly fail to comprehend the full gravity of the President's crisis, threatening him with the repudiation of an incumbent President, last suffered by Chester Arthur, if the contagion of primary defeats spreads.

That contagion began with the May Day massacre in Texas, a many-sided disaster for Mr. Ford. The landslide generated not only an estimated 10 per cent vote turnaround in Indiana which led to Mr. Ford's stunning upset there but also brought his lavishly financed campaign to virtual bankruptcy. On the road to defeat, Mr. Ford's agents engaged in profligate spending of nearly $1 million (four times Reagan's spending) in Texas. The result is not only job layoffs at the Ford campaign committee here but a parity of poverty between the Reagan and Ford campaigns.

Perhaps the most critical aspect of Texas, however, was the point of no return for Henry Kissinger. His championship of black majority rule in Rhodesia is blamed for the magnitude of Reagan's win by Ford partisans who are publicly describing the Ford-Kissinger relationship in extraordinarily blunt terms. An example is Rep. Ed Derwinski, a conservative Republican and Ford delegate from Illinois. "You don't go down to Africa and promise away the federal treasury four days before the Texas primary," Derwinski told us. "I think the President is a captive of Henry K. The subordinate is controlling his chief." Derwinski months ago urged Mr. Ford to fire Kissinger, but that idea is generating new disciples — such as conservative Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, once an ardent Kissinger fan, but also including some moderates.

Besides a new Secretary of State, Mr. Ford is being pressed to name a cool head to travel with him and provide instant wisdom of the kind given Reagan by Dr. Martin Anderson. That became clear the day before the Indiana primary when Nessen talked the President into demanding that Reagan release his 1975 income tax returns. When Reagan released the gross figures but not the actual returns, Nessen moralized that Reagan had not learned the lessons of Watergate.

That helped not at all in Indiana but generated instant outrage at the Treasury, where Secretary William Simon — a steadfast Ford loyalist — sent word to the White House that Reagan's personal income tax is nobody's business but his own. Other Republican politicians were appalled that the President had joined in county-level politicking.

Nessen's ploy was but a particularly maladroit aspect of the Ford campaign's dominant theme: undermine Reagan. In the wake of Tuesday's triple defeat, pro-Ford Republican politicians outside his campaign organization feel he must try to forget about Reagan and concentrate on positive issues.

Whether Mr. Ford will take any of this advice, beginning with the easing-out of Dr. Kissinger, is by no means certain. Far more than the public generally realizes, the President is strong-minded to the point of stubbornness — as is reflected by a strange incident while campaigning in Indiana last weekend.

Winding up his Hoosier campaign, Mr. Ford asked an Indiana Republican Congressman, Rep. John Myers, for helpful hints. Myers had two: first, don't mention the Panama Canal; second, stop promising to keep Kissinger at the State Department. The President nodded, then did exactly the opposite on both points at his next stop.

Jerry Ford's ability to take advice may become critical over the next three weeks when he could well lose eight out of 10 primaries. Such losses conceivably could cost him the nomination, not in terms of delegates but in shredded prestige.

Accordingly, the President's supporters who regard Reagan's domination as a limitless disaster are frantic that Ford heed their counsel, not to move right but to assume the presidential pedestal and shift attention to the booming economy. He cannot do that by applauding Henry Kissinger, defending the dictator of Panama and thrashing about with innuendo about Reagan's taxes.

added the spokesman, is "very clean, above board and honest."

CONTAINING CARTER: Democratic leaders have been burning up the long-distance telephone lines discussing what to do about Jimmy Carter. They want to slow his momentum enough that he will have to consult them, at least, about his policies and appointments.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., for one, has told leaders he intends to travel around the country and speak out on the issues. His intention is to bring public pressure on Carter to support Democratic principles.

"I'm not going to let him back down on our responsibilities to the cities and the poor," Humphrey has told party leaders.

Some leaders are sizing up Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, as the candidate who might slow Carter's momentum. The private polls show Church gaining strongly on Carter in such states as Nebraska, Oregon, Nevada and Idaho. Calls have already gone out urging key Democrats in these states to unite behind Church.

Some Democrats point out that Carter must win on the first ballot, that he has little second-ballot strength. And they doubt that he'll go into the Democratic convention with enough delegates for a first-ballot victory.

HUGHES WILL: Within the tight, little circle of close associates who surrounded the late Howard Hughes, there is disagreement over the validity of the mysterious will that turned up in Salt Lake City.

It was typical of Hughes to share a secret with only one aide and to swear him to absolute silence. The eccentric billionaire, therefore, could have revealed the will's existence to one of his Mormon attendants, with instructions on how to handle it after his death. The attendant could have arranged for the delivery to the Mormon Church in Salt Lake City.

This is the view of one intimate who believes the handwriting, misspellings and bequest to gas station operator Melvin Dummer not only are authentic but characteristic of Hughes.

The tycoon was known to wander, incognito, from his penthouse hermitage in Las Vegas. He also had periods of mental confusion. It is entirely possible that he could have wound up lying alongside a desert road, bleeding.

CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER

1. In the book of Ezekiel there's an unusual story, an allegory, about two harlots, who were sisters. The idea seems borrowed from Jeremiah 3. The ideal situation portrays a man and his wife, as God and His people, much as Christ and His church. Few people know the name of these sisters. Do you? Ezek. 23:36

2. This was told as a lesson to all women. What? Ezek. 23:48

3. Which of Jesus' miracles is accompanied by the words, "Give them to eat." Luke 9:13

4. Who lost his horses and chariots in the Red Sea? Ex. 14:26-28

Don't get in too big of a hurry to get cooled off

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Consumers trying to get a head start on beating the summer heat may find themselves caught in a maze of confusing terms and conflicting claims when shopping for an air conditioner.

How big a unit should you buy? Which one uses the least energy? How much will it cost to operate?

Manufacturers generally suggest asking the dealer, who then checks a cooling guide. But consumers can do their own checking with the help of a free pamphlet from the National Bureau of Standards.

Air conditioning cooling ability is measured by BTUs — British Thermal Units. This rating indicates the amount of heat an air-conditioner will remove from a room each hour. There is no firm rule telling you how many BTUs you will need for a particular area.

In addition to room size, you have to take into account the place where you live, the amount of sun, the number of people who use the room, the location of the area to be cooled in relation to other air-conditioned rooms and the type of room involved.

The Bureau of Standards booklet gives step-by-step directions on choosing an air-conditioner. Charts explain how many BTUs to add or subtract for different factors. Here's how the system works:

Suppose you live in Dallas and want to cool a 12-by-15 kitchen-dining area. That's 180 square feet of floor space. A chart in the booklet shows that the unadjusted amount of cooling needed for this area is 4,700 BTUs an hour.

Next look at the "climate factor" for Dallas. It's 1.05, indicating that Dallas is warmer than average. Multiply the 4,700 by 1.05 to get 4,935 BTUs an hour.

For every foot of wall that adjoins another cooled room, you subtract 30 BTUs. Assume the 15-foot wall is next to the cooled room and subtract 450

BTUs, bringing the amount of cooling you will need down to 4,485 BTUs an hour.

How many people will use the room? If fewer than two will use it, subtract 600. More than two? Add 600 BTUs for every additional person. In this case, since the kitchen probably will be used by only one person during peak cooking periods, subtract the 600 BTUs. Finally, since the room is a kitchen, add 4,000 BTUs. The total amount of cooling you need is 7,885 BTUs an hour so you should look for models providing between 7,500 and 8,500 BTUs.

Once you have decided what size air-conditioner you want, you should compare models to see which gives you the greatest amount of cooling for the least energy.

Most manufacturers of room air-conditioners participate in a voluntary labeling program developed by the Bureau of Standards to provide a guide to energy efficiency. New labeling standards, required by law, are in the works, but will not be ready until next year.

The existing labels — the ones you can expect to see this summer — use a concept known as the Energy Efficiency Ratio or EER. It tells how much cooling you get for every watt of electricity you use. The EER is obtained by dividing the number of BTUs by the number of watts.

Suppose, for example, an air-conditioner has a capacity of 6,000 BTUs and takes 820 watts to operate. The EER is 7.3. The higher the EER, the more efficient the model.

The energy guide label developed by the Bureau of Standards includes the EER for the model in question, as well as the number of BTUs and watts. It also includes the range of EERs for similar models.

The bureau's booklet on picking the best air conditioner and determining approximate operating costs is called, "Energy Efficiency in Room Air Conditioners." It is available, free of charge, by writing Consumer Product Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Study urges shutdown of LEAA

WASHINGTON (AP) — An independent study of the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration concludes the agency has performed poorly in its $4.4-billion effort to combat crime and should be abolished.

"LEAA is unclear as to its mission, and what it has attempted it has done poorly," the study concluded. It urged Congress to shut down the LEAA and shift part of its funds to general revenue sharing.

The study was most critical of a $160-million LEAA "high impact anti-crime" program launched by the Nixon administration in 1972.

In announcing the administration's "high impact" project, former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew heralded the plan as an "across-the-board attack on street crimes and burglaries" in eight major cities.

But the report by the private Center for National Security Studies said the "high impact" project succeeded only in generating mountains of red tape and has had no significant effect on crime statistics.

The report by the non-profit research group is to be issued later, but a draft copy was obtained by the Associated Press. Entitled Law and Disorder IV, the study is the fourth in a series of highly critical examinations of LEAA directed by Sarah C. Carey, a Washington attorney.

In urging Congress to dissolve the LEAA, the report said, "The federal government has greatly increased its expenditures to combat crime, but these expenditures have had no effect in reducing crime. "Not only has the LEAA failed to halt the rising crime rates, but (LEAA) administrators haven't yet determined the steps or procedures that can be taken to achieve that goal," it said.

The study aimed most of its specific criticism at the "high impact" program, which had been an effort to fulfill the Nixon administration's promise to reduce burglaries and street crime in the eight target cities within two years.

The eight cities were Atlanta, Ga., Baltimore, Md., Cleveland, Ohio, Dallas, Tex., Denver, Colo., Newark, N.J., Portland, Ore., and St. Louis.

Post Office may go electronic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, concerned that traditional mail service may become obsolete, is studying ways of harnessing new technology to send some types of mail electronically.

Concepts now under preliminary consideration would use microwave and satellite technology to transmit messages.

In the two centuries since Benjamin Franklin established the nation's postal system, mail handling has always meant hand-shipment of a message from one point to another. But postal officials say the concepts now under study are:

SUPPORT TALL CITY OPTIMIST DRUG ABUSE PROGRAM

—An "urgent message service," under which a message could be transmitted electronically between post offices. A facsimile of the original could be picked up at a distant post office within an hour of when it was sent. As an alternative, the copy could be delivered to a business address within four hours.

—"Lettergram," a service similar to the present Mailgram but designed for mass mailings. Electronic transmission could be used to send one message to post offices in various locations. Copies could then be delivered to individual recipients.

—An airline ticketing service, whereby an airplane ticket could be ordered by telephone. The ticket could be printed in a post office and delivered by the Postal Service the day after it was ordered.

Postal officials discussed the concepts at a recent conference of the Direct Mail Marketing Association.

Robert R. Jordan, director of the Postal Service's office of product management, said in an interview that none of the concepts is close to being put into practice and all would be subject to tests.

The closest thing to electronic mail yet tried is Mailgram, which postal officials consider a success. That service began in 1970. Now 95,000 Mailgrams are sent daily through Western Union's electronic transmission facilities and delivered by the Postal Service.

Under the systems now being considered, the Postal Service itself could for the first time transmit messages electronically.

Postal officials are looking into new services as use of traditional mail declines. The drop in mail usage is expected to continue as more postal functions are taken over by electronic systems.

Rich man seek annulment

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A San Antonio jury is expected to get the case today of an oil millionaire who is seeking to annul his three-year marriage and a $500,000 marriage contract.

John McFarlin, 62, also is seeking return of $350,000 he said he paid the former Joan Manning, a British singer, to marry him in 1973.

McFarlin claims the marriage never was consummated. But two housekeepers said in testimony Friday that the couple shared a double bed for the first three months of their marriage.

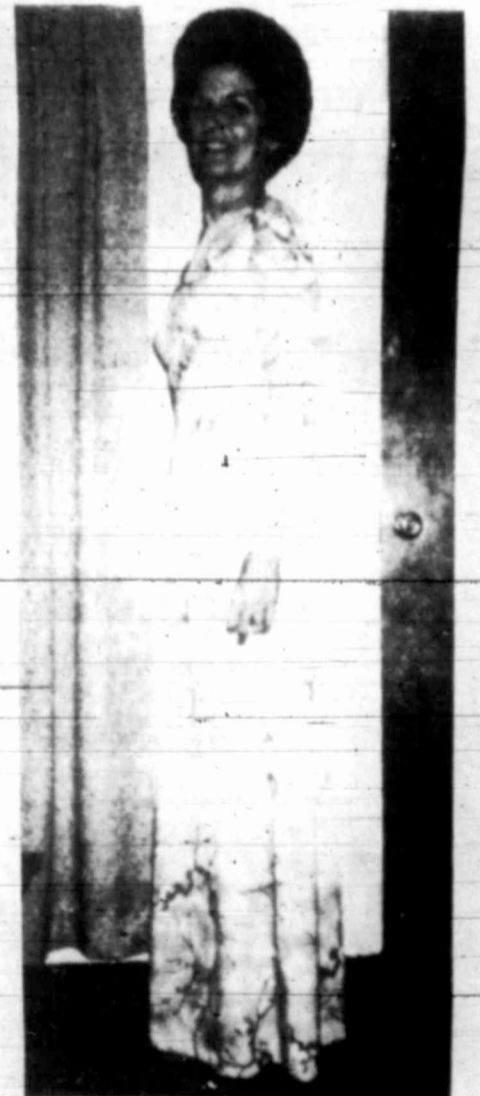

McFarlin said he entered the marriage contract because, "I had such a fear of loneliness in my mellow years which I am in now. Since my marriage, I've never been lonelier."

AFTER

"Three years ago I made a New Year's Resolution to do something about my weight.

I started the Pat Walker's Program the 19th of January. The first year I lost 104 3/4 lbs. The following year I lost another 20 lbs. This past year I have maintained my weight.

I enjoy shopping for clothes. I went from a size 24 1/2 to size 10 and some 8's.

Needless to say I am a different person outside as well as inside.

I have received encouragement from my family and the personnel at Pat Walker's.

Over the years I had tried every kind of diet but the Pat Walker Program is the only one that worked.

I intend to keep the weight off and I know I can with the Pat Walker Program.

If you have a weight problem, the Pat Walker Program can work for you, too."

South must play the hand carefully to make up for the unlucky placement of the ace of hearts, the king of diamonds and the trumps.

West opens the queen of hearts and continues with the jack of hearts. Declarer again plays low from dummy, and East naturally plays low also. (If East were a mindreader he would take the ace of hearts and return the nine of diamonds.)

South ruffs the third heart, draws one round of trumps with the king and then tests the clubs by taking the queen and leading a club to dummy's king. When the clubs break normally, South can resume drawing trumps by leading a low trump to the queen.

BAD BREAK

If trumps broke well, South could draw the last trump and run the clubs. Since trumps break badly, South leaves the ace of spades in dummy and leads another club.

East ruffs and leads a diamond, but South steps up with the ace of diamonds and leads a trump to dummy's ace. This draws the last trump and enables declarer to discard diamonds on the good club.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S5 HQJ109 DKJ1087 CJ104. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds, planning to raise hearts next. The sequence of bids shows about 11 or 12 points in support of hearts, too much for a single raise but not enough for an immediate jump to three hearts.

Report covers FBI break-ins

By DAVID C. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has conducted hundreds of break-ins, "despite the questionable legality of the technique and its deep intrusion into the privacy of targeted individuals," a Senate intelligence committee staff report says.

The break-ins, officially known as "surreptitious entries," were conducted for the purpose of photographing or seizing documents and installing bugs, according to the report released today.

The report is one of a series prepared by the intelligence panel's staff to back up recommendations in the committee's final report.

The Justice Department still permits the bureau to conduct break-ins to install bugs and refuses to rule out the possibility of using unauthorized entries or "black bag" jobs to obtain documents from foreign intelligence targets, the 17-page report noted.

"Although several attorneys general were aware of the FBI practice of break-ins to install electronic listening devices, there is no indication that the FBI informed any attorney general about its use of black bag jobs," the report said.

An FBI memo cited in the report stated that "we do not obtain authorization for black bag jobs from outside the bureau. Such a technique involves trespassing and is clearly illegal."

The FBI was unable to provide the committee with a complete accounting of the total number of break-ins because most records were destroyed soon after an entry was accomplished, the report said.

Figures provided by the FBI showed there were at least 242 break-ins against suspected domestic subversives between 1942 and 1968 and that since 1960 the FBI conducted more than 500 break-ins to install bugs.

"Almost as many surreptitious entries were conducted in the same period against targets of criminal investigations," the report said.

The report named the Ku Klux Klan and the Socialist Workers party as two of the targets of FBI black bag jobs.

As described by the report, agents who performed break-ins would sometimes request the cooperation of a landlord in entering the premises. In other cases, the agents simply would enter through unlocked doors or pick the lock, the report said.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover banned black bag jobs in 1966, although the Justice Department has not ruled out their future use in foreign intelligence cases, the report added.

The committee has recommended that the FBI be required to obtain a judicial warrant before conducting future break-ins.

Fire kills 4, injures 3 others

KENNER, La. (AP) — Four little girls died and three other children were injured Sunday when fire swept through a frame house where they slept, Fire Chief Thomas Tintorello reported.

Two adults and an eighth child escaped uninjured.

The dead were identified as Bridget Davis, 3, Ena Lane, 6, Elisa Lane, 7, and Gail Lane, 12.

Johnny Lane, 9, was reported in guarded condition at a hospital, and the other two children were said to be in fair condition.

"They were all living when we got them out," Tintorello said. "They were all breathing. We gave them mouth-to-mouth and did everything we could, but four of them didn't make it."

Kenner police said a child who escaped injury discovered the blaze — 13-year-old Arthur Taylor, a cousin. He awoke his uncle, Wilbur Davis, father and stepfather of the other children.

Carter's steamroller flattens opposition

By The Associated Press

Jimmy Carter's steamroller campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination flattened any major opposition at Democratic party district conventions this weekend. The former Georgia governor won Saturday a large share of committed delegates to the state convention June 18 and 19 in Houston.

Carter's steamroller did hit a few rocks along the way. Travis County Democrats selected seven delegates pledged to Gov. Jerry Brown of California, the liberal Democrat now also seeking the presidential nomination.

In the Republican conventions former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who swamped President Gerald Ford by taking all 96 delegates in the state primary on May 1, saw his backers dominating most of the action.

The Republicans must choose four more delegates at their state convention next month to send to their national convention in Kansas City.

The Reagan forces showed their muscle in Harris County where they refused GOP congressman Bill Archer and Republican National Committeewoman Pat Archer as at-large delegates from District 15 to the state convention in Fort Worth. They also declined to send former Texas Gov. John Connally as an alternate delegate.

Reagan representatives said the four had refused to offer their support to Reagan.

Carter won 92 of the 98 delegates up for grabs in the May 1 primary by defeating Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and Alabama Gov. George Wallace. Another 32 national delegate are to be picked at the state convention.

Carter supporters dominated the Dallas conventions, splitting delegates with the uncommitted groups and Wallace forces. Observers noted, however, that some conservative Democrats apparently got themselves elected as Carter delegates.

But a check of conventions throughout the state showed that Carter was carrying most of the conventions with the rest of the delegates going mostly to the uncommitted groups. And even the uncommitted, observers said, include a lot of liberal Democrats that probably will support Carter at the state convention.

The seven Brown delegates were chosen in Austin where Carter took 43, Bentsen six, Morris Udall three, Fred Harris 1 and Wallace 4.

Margaret Clark-Walter of LaJolla, Calif., a certified NGPT adjudicator, will hear piano students in the annual National Guild auditions which got under way today in the First Christian Church.

Auditions begin for students

Piano students of 15 Midland music teachers are to participate in annual National Guild auditions here this month.

The auditions, sponsored by the Austin-based National Guild of Piano Teachers, began this morning in First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana St., and will continue through May 26.

Margaret Clark-Walter of LaJolla, Calif., a certified NGPT adjudicator, is hearing the students.

Often called "the biggest piano-playing event in the world," the Guild auditions are held each spring in cities and towns from coast to coast, involving more than 80,000 keyboard students all told.

In Guild auditions, students are not competing against each other but are playing to prescribed standards of excellence, so that each is rated on his or her own abilities. Top-rated performers receive the Guild's coveted gold medal, and other students receive lesser awards. All receive certificates and membership in National Fraternity of Student Musicians. Concert finales scheduled

The National Guild of Piano Teachers was organized in 1929 at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene by Dr. Irl Allison. The Guild has been headquartered in Austin for many years.

This year's adjudicator, Margaret Clark-Walter, is a native of Havana, Cuba and she made her keyboard debut at the age of 8 at Havana's Teatro Nacional. She continued her studies in New York with Martha Ideler and with Walter Hendt, later receiving a scholarship for study at Columbia University's Chatham Concerts tonight and Tuesday night will conclude the current season of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorus.

Highlighting the events will be performances of a new work, "Permian Earth Song," featuring full orchestra and the choral ensemble. The work, by American composer John Krance, was created under special commission from the Midland Symphony and Chorus Association through a grant from Mobil Foundation, Inc.

Tonight's event at 8 p.m. will be in the auditorium of Odessa's Bonham Junior High School. The Midland concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday will be in Lee High Auditorium.

For the public, general admission tickets will be for sale at the doors before the start of each concert, priced $4 for adults and $2 for students.

French actresses lack household familiarity

By JOSEPH GELMIS
Newsday

NEW YORK — France produces more sophisticated actresses than any other country. But they don't travel well. They have yet to become household names in America.

Catherine Deneuve is better known as the Chanel model than as the actress here. Delphine Seyrig sounds, to the average moviegoer, like something spelled backward. Stephanie Audran makes critical hearts palpitate but creates not a tremor in middle America. They have found acceptance among critics and limited audiences here in their French-made movies. But when they have traveled to the United States and made films here aimed at mass audiences, they have failed.

Sex kittens such as Brigitte Bardot can reach their audience by erotic osmosis. The sensual Jeanne Moreau straddled that line between sister and mother, lover and wife — her coordinates shifted constantly. The chic, civilized beauties — Audran, Deneuve and Seyrig — are archetypes of the Parisian woman, an ideal whose time may or may not be over as women redefine their role in our society.

Paris is a fashion center, the center, because the traditional female mystique was refined there over the centuries. Paris is the mature woman's mecca. It is still arguable that the Parisian woman can do more with what she's got than any of her sisters elsewhere in the western world. The amalgam of nature and science which is the Parisian woman sets the pace, the style, is the showcase, for all women everywhere who can afford to follow suit.

Thus, these actresses, in their prime, embody a classic serene beauty — the princess at work. An actress with that regal style is French, wherever she lives. In America, our elegant "Parisian" in films, Grace Kelly, came from Philadelphia and married a prince.

Bette Davis and Katharine Hepburn were great movie actresses, but dowdy. And I suspect that the reason that the classy French actresses don't become as popular here as they are at home is that they lose their poise in our idiom and we don't have adequate roles for the dimensions they bring to any female character.

Consider two movies that opened last Christmas day. Stephanie Audran co-starred George Segal in "The Blackbird..." And Catherine Deneuve costarred with Burt Reynolds in "Hustle." I had not seen these women do extraordinary things in French-language movies I would have surmised from their American movies that they were only modestly endowed actresses. Yet each has starred in a Luis Bunuel masterpiece — Deneuve in "Belle du Jour" and Audran in "The Discreet Charm of the Bourgeoise."

What they endured in Hollywood was no worse than what every American actress must contend with — uninspired scripts for women. But there is also the reality that the kind of female personality which is rewarded as Barbra Streisand, who mocks herself, is sexually aggressive and brash. And she's often a victim. In their characteristic French films, Seyrig, Audran and Deneuve maintain a space, a distance, a reserve. They watch us from a far shore within, across some psychological

Pumps pushing nation forward

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — The steady throb of oil pumps working in the jungles is pushing this Andean nation ahead, even while some critics are saying that oil is more a curse than a blessing.

"That's private industry out there," says a Western diplomat from embassy offices overlooking Quito's new modernizing city center, tucked at the base of 15,700-foot Mt. Pichincha.

"Those cars out there are privately owned. Ecuador is building dams, a refinery, roads. This country is developing."

A host of Ecuadorian and foreign businessmen, bankers and even some government officials and a growing middle class are beginning to agree — despite continuing strikes and sporadic violence.

Oil is taking Ecuador rapidly away from the days when bananas and cacao were kings, they assert.

An Ecuadorian banker said, "We're learning to live with the new money. With oil, perspectives here are entirely different. Exports run close to a billion dollars. That's four times what we exported before."

60 per cent in four years. When sugar was upped from the equivalent of 7 cents to 10 cents a pound in January, labor unions marched. The government fell days later but the price of sugar remained at the new rate.

Yet most bankers and oilmen will say that annual per capita income has at least doubled to $500 and that inflation slowed from a record 22 per cent in 1974 to 12-18 per cent last year, and is still falling.

Quito, a Spanish-designed city, relied heavily before 1972 upon tourism for development capital.

Travelers to Ecuador have tripled in number since then and hotel men say that most of the "tourists" are actually businessmen bringing in money and technology.

According to the general petroleum law set in motion by Ecuador's military government in 1974, all oil revenues are specifically earmarked for 22 items on the national planning budget.

They range from 33 per cent for the budget, 25.4 per cent for infrastructural projects, 11 per cent for rural electrification, 11 per cent for military development, and 5 per cent to the state oil company. Also included is money for housing, universities, ports and labor funds.

Some Ecuadorian businessmen say most of the money goes toward meeting a large 1975 budget deficit, but many projects of importance are moving ahead.

For example, a $320-million hydroelectric complex will make southern Cuenca a new pole of development at the entrance to the eastern jungle's main access to the Andes, engineers and bankers predict.

Others note that Ecuador is still the world's largest producer of bananas — 1.3 million tons in 1975 — and a major exporter of cacao.

Half of Alaska line reported in place

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — One-half of all mainline pipe for the trans-Alaska pipeline project is installed.

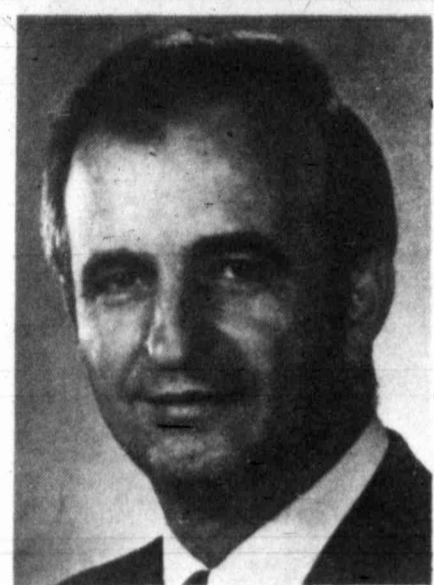

At mid-April, 400.9 miles of pipe were in place along the project's route — 156.6 miles above ground, 220.3 miles below-ground and 24.1 miles at river crossings.

The longest continuous stretch of completed pipe extends 41 miles from just south of Pump Station 1 to just north of Pump Station 2 on Alaska's North Slope.

The pipeline — 800 miles long and 48 inches in diameter — is to be completed by the end of this year. Construction of pump stations and the Valdez marine terminal will continue into 1977. Completion of the project is scheduled for mid-1977.

As of April 18, an estimated 19,500 persons were at work on the pipeline, at the pump stations and the terminal.

Rice president named to Pennzoil Co. board

HOUSTON — Dr. Norman Hackerman, president of Rice University, has been elected to the board of directors of Pennzoil Co.

Hackerman, in addition to the presidency of Rice, is professor of chemistry and a specialist in electrochemistry and corrosion research.

The Pennzoil board of directors has declared a quarterly dividend of 33 cents per share on its common stock, payable June 15 to stockholders of record on May 28. This is a three cent increase in the quarterly dividend rate paid since the second quarter of 1974.

The shareholders of Pennzoil Louisiana and Texas Offshore, Inc. (PLATO) have voted to allow the company to expand its area of interest from the Gulf of Mexico to all offshore areas of the Outer Continental Shelf of the U.S.

With partners, the company has set twelve drilling and production platforms and has ten additional platforms on order.

Fortune to charity

LONDON (AP) — J. Paul Getty, reputed to be the world's richest man, says he plans to leave most of his fortune to charity.

The American oil tycoon, who has lived here the past 20 years, was quoted in a copyright interview in the Sunday People as saying he wanted to give the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people.

The newspaper said Getty, 83, has made provisions for his three surviving sons: Ronald, 45, Gordon, 42, and Paul, 41.

City Council resumes hearing on development

Midland City Council Tuesday will continue its public hearing on a zone change to allow development of a 20 acre area south of Cimmaron and east of Garfield as requested by Martin Allday.

Council spent about an hour and a half discussing the proposed change at its last session, but decided to postpone action on the request until 3 p.m. tomorrow.

Development would include construction of 10 patio townhouses, seven lots for construction of homes, an area consisting of ponds and fountains, a guard house, service facility and tennis facility. Opposition has centered mainly around the tennis facility which would have a 28-foot high curved wall surrounding two indoor courts.

Council will convene at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday to witness the official swearing in of Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. and councilmen Mark Martin and G. Thane Akins, who were elected April 3.

An amendment to the Building Code to allow adobe construction in the city will also be considered. At council's last session, Public Works Director Fred Baker said that properly constructed and maintained, adobe would be acceptable for construction in Midland.

Council will discuss awarding a bid on the Community Development paving project. The original bids were too high, so the group deleted New York Street from the list and has re-advertised for bids.

In other action, council will consider:

— Guidelines for operation of the emergency ambulance service;

— Altering the parking in the 100 block of S. Main Street;

— A request for a flashing signal and school crossing at the intersection of Wall and M Streets;

— Initiating a new assessment paving program;

— A request by George Yeloz for a specific use permit for the sale of alcoholic beverages for on-premise consumption at the Monterey Spanish Kitchen, 323 E. Illinois Ave.;

— An ordinance on second reading on the West Side Lions Club's request for a zone change to allow construction of an addition to their building at the intersection of Thomason and Midland Drive;

— An ordinance on second reading on John Guest's request for a zone change to allow construction of 137 townhouses at No. A and Neely Streets;

— Authorizing the execution of leases for Budget and Dollar Rent-A-Car agencies for service center sites;

— Possible replacement of old T-hangers at Air Park;

— Approving official change orders on the tennis center complex being constructed jointly by Midland College and the city;

— Authorizing the submission of a request for aid to the Federal Aviation Administration for participation in ramp strengthening work;

— A request for angle parking adjacent to Haley Library;

— A resolution amending the lease with Perma Sand;

— A request for the closing of an undedicated alley;

— A request for a water main extension on Moss Street;

— Extension of the contract with the Governor's Office of Traffic Safety;

— Renewal of the lease with Shell Oil Co. for a radio antenna site;

— Authorizing purchase of a base station and console for the ambulance service radio;

— A request by Buckeye Inc. for water and sewer service to their property at 2301 W. Francis Ave.;

— Authorizing final payment on the re-routing of the sewer line around Furr's Super Market property at Big Spring and Scharbauer;

— Writing off certain delinquent accounts as uncollectible;

— Authorizing the refund of over- and double-payment of taxes;

— Approval of payment to the Chamber of Commerce for tree-planting at Midland-Regional Air Terminal;

— An updated report on the effluent situation, and;

— An executive session to discuss land acquisition and personnel matters.

The hearing set on the application was cancelled because of the lack of protests. No time for a decision on the request has been indicated.

The application by Midland Savings Association had been set for a hearing with that of Citizens Savings and Loan Association for a branch office in the Dellwood Plaza Shopping Center.

But the associations requested that the consolidated hearings be split to allow separate hearings, and the Citizens application remains set for a hearing at 9:30 a.m. June 3.

No protest has been received on that application.

The hearing will be held in the Department's offices, 1004 Lavaca, Austin.

The Carriage Co. REALTORS

OAKRIDGE SQUARE 684-5841

We enjoy and appreciate our Carriage Company reputation for having happy, satisfied customers. Probably eighty-percent of our real estate business comes from referrals-friends and relatives of previous customers of ours. When we show a property to select listings we would actually be selling to purchase for ourselves. And once we "sell" we do not forget the new friends we make; we stay with it and help them become established and feet at home in our community.

Try we would rather NOT sell anything that might make a customer unhappy than to make a sale just for the sake of "selling". Pressure techniques are not our style. We are relaxed and reliable, facts you will recognize once you come to see us at 202 Oakridge Square where we wait to be of service to you.

Rangers reel off 8th straight

By Associated Press
There's no panic in Boston ... perhaps because Manager Darrell Johnson of the Red Sox has no buttons left to push.

"There's not much we can do with our line-up with three people laid up," Johnson said Sunday after the defending American League champs saw their losing streak reach nine in a row—longest since 1963—with a 6-5 come-from-ahead loss to the Texas Rangers.

With center-fielder Fred Lynn, shortstop Rick Burleson and third baseman Rico Petreocelli all sidelined, the Red Sox bore little resemblance to the club that took Cincinnati to seven games in the 1975 World Series before losing on a bloop single in the ninth inning.

SEVEN OF the setbacks in Boston's losing streak—the last-place Red Sox are 8½ games out of first—have come at the hands of the Rangers, whose eight-game winning string is a club record.

This time, the Rangers rallied for two runs in the eighth inning on a walk, singles by Jim Sundberg and Juan Beniquez and second baseman Denny Doyle's throwing error on a potential double play ball.

Boston's third miscue of the game, The Red Sox had an early 4-0 lead as Cecil Cooper and Jim Rice homered.

A's 4, Yankees 3
Bert Campaneris' sacrifice fly in the 12th inning scored Sal Bando as the A's defeated Hunter behind Paul Lindblad's brilliant seven-inning, one-hit relief stint.

Bando walked to start the inning and went all the way to third on Larry Lintz' sacrifice bunt when the bag was left uncovered. Hunter got to the base late and took a throw, but umpire Rich Garcia ruled he missed the tag. Campaneris then hit a line drive to right field to end the game.

Billy Williams homered for Oakland while Munson had a two-run double for New York, which saw its five-game winning streak snapped.

Twins 6, Brewers 4
The Twins snapped a tie with two runs in the eighth inning on rookie Butch Wynegar's triple, an intentional walk and a passed ball and throwing error by Milwaukee catcher Darrin Porter.

Reliever Bill Campbell outduelled Milwaukee relief ace Ed Rodriguez to earn the triumph. Campbell pitched four innings allowing just two hits and striking out six.

White Sox 4, Tigers 2
Wood, only pitcher in White Sox history to win 20 games four years in a row, blanked Detroit on three hits for 5-2-3 innings before he was hit by Ron LeFlore's line drive. The fractured kneecap may sideline him for the rest of the season.

Manager Paul Richards said Wood would be taken to Chicago "to determine if an operation is necessary and to see if they can do something to see if he can pitch again this year. But that's very doubtful."

Richards said he is considering replacing Wood with any of four pitchers—Pete Vuckovich, Jesse Jefferson, Francisco Barrios or Dave Hamilton.

Royals 7, Orioles 4
Bob Stinson and Frank White drove in two runs apiece as the Royals scored five times in the third inning and to defeat Jim Palmer and record their sixth victory in seven games.

Singles by George Brett and Al Cowens around a walk to Hal McRae got the first run home. Stinson doubled for two more and White's two-run single, after an error by third baseman Brooks Robinson, finished Palmer.

Angels 3, Indians 2
Ex-Indian Rusty Torres cracked a two-run triple off Dave LaRoche to cap a three-run eighth inning rally. Meanwhile, Frank Tanana fired a three-hitter and struck out eight for his first victory since April 19, allowing only one hit after Doug Howard's two-run double in the second inning. Until the eighth, the Angels managed only three hits off Fritz Peterson.

Jackson nips Arkansas, 2-1 Gurney surveys Formula 5000's woes

By The Associated Press
El Paso rode the getting of Joe Zagarino to win second game of a twinbill with Midland Sunday to stay ahead in the Texas League West pact.

In other games, Jackson beat Arkansas 2-1 in the second game of a doubleheader while dropping the first game 3-1. Shreveport and Lafayette also split, with Shreveport winning the first 9-6 and Lafayette taking the second 6-5.

In the East, Arkansas's Ernie Rossau scored on a wild pitch in the first game but the Mets came right back and tied it in the second when Rich Miller, who tripled, scored on a double by Rich Dyer. Arkansas then got two runs in the third when Rossau scored on a fielder's choice and Mike Ramsey walked with the bases full.

Mets' pitcher John Andrews evened his record at 1-1 by winning the second game, Shad Roll got the winning run in the sixth when catcher Mike Stone let a pitched ball bet by him and Roll scored from third base.

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — Dan Gurney is spending a lot of time these days trying to figure out which came first: The chicken or the egg.

"If I could do that," Gurney says, "it would help solve some of the problems that Formula 5000 racing is in."

Gurney, a top flight road racer himself until retiring in 1971 and now America's foremost builder of open wheel race cars, now finds himself in the unfamiliar role of activist.

HE WAS elected Sunday as president of an interesting new group known as the North American Grand Prix Association. The election coincided, not coincidentally, with the opening of the F-5000 season at Pocono International Raceway near here Sunday.

"The first priority of the NAGPA," Gurney explained, "is to get enough members together to mean something when we say something."

"Next we have to contact promoters, organizers and officials of the Sports Car Club of America and U.S. Auto Club to gather a lot of information."

Until that is accomplished, Gurney and those problems, which have seen the series' popularity grow steadily in popularity until last season.

"We don't know if the series became popular on its own, bringing better known drivers and bigger crowds, or if the better known drivers brought the popularity," Gurney said. "It's one of those 'chicken or the egg' questions."

"WE SEEM to have those questions everywhere we look here."

The diagnosis is F-5000 is dying. The symptoms: Exit of the most popular drivers, short fields, spiraling costs, lower purses and dwindling crowds.

"Formula 5000 now costs more to run than Formula 1," said Don Nichols of the Shadow team, which has cars in both series.

F-5000 has lost regulars like Mario Andretti and Al Unser, Gordon Johncock and Bobby Unser. In the past two seasons, plenty of top name drivers, like Johnny Rutherford, Tom Sneva, Mike Mosley, Jody Scheckter and James Hunt, have competed in F-5000.

About all that's left is Brian Redman, the methodical, seemingly unstoppable series champion the past two seasons. He gave everyone a preview of things to come this year by winning both heat races and the 98-mile feature race Sunday at Pocono's 2.8-mile road course. Less than 10,000 people showed up.

"We still have some very good international drivers in this series," offered Redman, who has won 13 of the last 24 F5000 features. "But I wonder if the American public will appreciate what we're doing, without drivers they can more easily identify with."

Though qualifying for Sunday's race yielded nine drivers within two seconds of the pole position speed, the races found only a small handful of cars capable of really racing.

Only 16 cars of a possible 22 cars took the green flag. Two others rolled out of the garage area and joined the race in progress.

"Promoters want to know how many cars, which drivers, before they will schedule these races. Those are pretty important questions," Gurney said. "And SCCA can't answer. They don't know the answer."

They can more easily identify with."

They can more easily identify with."

They can more easily identify with."
