Two Midland lasses gain admittance to Annapolis

By ED TODD

"We ain't got dames" used to be the sailors' lament, but two Midland girls will soon help change all that.

The future midshipmen are seniors Stefanie Goebel of Midland High and Susan Stapler of Lee High.

They are among the first women ever to be admitted into the heretofore exclusively-male military academy in its 131-year history.

Nationwide, 80 girls are being inducted into the academy's Class of 1980 this year. They will, in the Navy's vernacular, turn into "plebes" when they are formally inducted at Annapolis July 6.

Statistically, odds seem to weigh heavily against two persons, above all, girls, from Midland being appointed to the academy. "Jimmy the Greek, he wouldn't have bet on it," remarked Jim Stevens of that unlikelihood. He is a neighbor of the George Goebel family, 1005 Stanolind St.

"It's a great honor for the town, the school district, for Midland . Stevens said. "We must be doing something right at MISD (Midland Independent School District)."

"There will be no rivalry on this score," he said of Lee's Miss Stapler and of Midland's Miss Goebel.

Both girls — athletic, scholarly and 18 - were nominated to the academy this year by U.S. Rep. George Mahon. Both are happy, delighted, and, a bit

"I don't know what to think," commented Miss Stapler. Surprised? Well, in a way I am.

It's a good opportunity," she said. "You can get a great education, and it's got athletics, too," said Miss Stapler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stapler of 13 Chatham Court.

She was notified Tuesday of her appointment. An aide to Congressman Mahon called.

And Miss Goebel was personally congratulated by Mahon a day later in a phone call from Washington, D.C. "I'm just super honored," Miss Goebel said. "It's really incredible I really didn't expect to hear from the academy (or Mahon) at I'm highly honored. Two people from the same city — I was just so surprised. I had definitely given up hope.

Both Midland girls had more or less chalked off Annapolis. They were told, faithfully, that if they were not notified by May 1 that chances were their nominations had been refused. More than a week had passed.

"It makes me a lot happier," Miss Stapler said after she learned that her good friend was accepted by the academy. The two are back-packing and hiking comrades who share a flair for the out-of-doors and the wilds.

Both, coincidentally, rank 10th in their graduating classes of hundreds. (There's more than 400 in the Midland High's 1976 graduating class, and 600plus in Lee High's).

The two young women are members of the National Honor Society at their respective high schools. And both have won and earned enough honors to make them yawn and murmur "Oh, wow" disinterestedly were they to hear a recounting of the

They're outstanding youngsters. The two Midland women got interested in the Naval Academy late last autumn - shortly after the U.S. Congress finally made Annapolis, like West Point and the Air Force Academy, co-educational.

They were attending a college forum and learned that Annapolis was, for the first time, taking in a limited number of girls - 80. Miss Goebel's father, a jet aircraft mechanic, was there. He turned to his daughter.

"My father, from off the top of his head - he was in the (German) Navy - said, 'Why don't you go check that out?"' Miss Goebel recalled.

"I'm very effervescent now," Miss Goebel said the afternoon of Mahon's telephone call. "I'm really excited. I can't believe it. It's unreal.

But, then, quickly, her effervescence seemed for fade for awhile: "It kind of messes up your summer to leave on July 1 (for the academy),

"I'm really curious to see how it's going to work out with the girls and the guys in the school," Miss Goebel said. She became even more discerning, it seemed: "The ideal situation would be to create a girls' academy. You have to admit that something is taken away when you make it co-educational." (Miss Goebel is interested in studying languages and linguistics; Miss Stapler's academic interest seems to be in science. However, the Naval Academy encourages its students to major in engineering.)

Looking briefly back on it all, Miss Stapler said getting into the academy, though a yeoman's task, wasn't "that" difficult grade-wise. "You don't have to have a real high (academic) grade average: A's and B's - mostly A's." Hers, like Miss

of State Henry A. Kissinger said today new U.S. policies toward Africa have reduced the possibility of another Cuban intervention there.

Reporting to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on his recent trip to black Africa, Kissinger declared: "We made, I believe, an immense and welcome impact in Africa on those ... who truly care for peace, independence and justice.'

He said an important result of his trip was agreement by a number of African leaders that outside powers should not deal directly with liberation movements in southern Africa.

This means, the secretary said, that "I believe that it is becoming more unlikely that other African countries will invite Cuban troops.

He said Cuban participation in the Angolan civil war was considered an inevitable development by African leaders, something beyond their power to prevent. "I believe many African leaders now see that there is an alternative," Kissinger said, "and that they can coalesce around a peaceful approach which will deprive the Soviets and Cubans of any plausible reason for remaining in force in Africa.' Kissinger, who returned from Africa May 7, reviewed his two-week trip and the programs he outlined in the six nations he visited.

These included pledges of economic development support for the nowunderdeveloped countries as well as political, moral and economic backing for nationalist movements in southern Africa.

On his arrival at the Aviano NATO base 30 miles from this provincial capital, the vice president praised the government for doing a "splendid job" in reacting to the quake. The Italian government relief efforts have come under some fire from opposition newspapers and some survivors.

Rockefeller and his wife, Happy, accompanied by U.S. Ambassador John Volpe and Italian officials, flew over the area in an Italian helicopter, then landed at the tent city.

The vice president embraced and kissed many survivors and went into some tents to speak with those too weak to come out.

"He kissed me twice, he embraced me. He cares for us and we should feel better." said 73year-old Lena Casasola, a widow, tears rolling down her face. "I lived alone. I lost the only thing I had in life - my home.'

"We are in bad shape," one survivor told the vice president. "We don't want to live in barracks. We. need our homes and we thank you for your aid.'

"I know," the vice president replied. Rockefeller was greeted on his return to Udine by a crowd of residents who applauded and shouted

The vice president is also expected to discuss American aid for the victims of the quake. The United States has spent more than $600,000 so far in supplies, medicine and foodstuffs, American officials said. President Ford's proposal to spend another $25 mill on is now before Congress.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the Soviet Red Cross will send 500 tents and a large consignment of medical supplies to the earthquake

At least 914 persons died in the earthquake by official count. Officials say another 300 persons are missing and feared dead and more than 3,000

War heats up again

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) -Christian forces attacked leftist Moslems on two new battlefronts in eastern Lebanon today. A police spokesman reported 88 persons killed and 116 wounded, raising the toll in the 13-month-old civil war to more than 68,500 dead.

Police said fighting was heaviest along an 11-mile front in the Faraya ski area 25 miles northeast of Beirut. Right-wing Christians launched an attack there Wednesday night after a day-long barrage of howitzers and tank guns. The attack was an attempt to outflank four Moslem mountain villages that overlook the Mt. Lebanon Christian enclave. They have withstood repeated Christian attacks since the election Saturday of President-elect Elias Sarkis, a Christian.

Lightning causes some damage in area towns

Wednesday's thunderstorm produced only slight rainfall in the Permian Basin area, but lightning caused some damage around the region, the National Weather Service

About 5:43 p.m. yesterday in Midland, an electrical surge caused by lightning blew out the burner on an electrical stove at 910 W. Louisiana Ave. No fire resulted, but Midland firemen unplugged the stove.

The same electrical surge blew out two lights in a residence at 902 W. Louisiana Ave., and firemen replaced Lightning also reportedly struck an oil tank owned by Atlantic Richfield Co. about 12 miles east of Crane on Highway 329.

Area cities in the Permian Basin were hit by blowing dust and slight rains about 7 p.m. yesterday. Andrews had a trace of rain, while Rankin reported a light shower and Stanton had sprinkling rain. Crane had about .5 inch during two different rainfalls yesterday, and Big Lake had .2 inch in a late afternoon and evening

Other amounts of precipitation in the area were a trace at McCamey, .30 inch at Big Lake and .40 at Odessa. Midland Regional Air Terminal registered .19 inch yesterday.

Today dawned clear and slightly cooler across the area. Andrews and Crane reported fair skies, calm winds and cool temperatures this morning. Rankin was sunny and cool, while a light wind blew through Stanton and Lamesa. Big Lake was sunny and cool continue through Friday in the Permian Basin, with a warming trend on Friday. Tonight's low should be in the upper 40s, warming up to the mid 80s on Friday.

· Winds should be light and variable tonight, the Weather Service said.

Tornadoes danced across numerous areas from North to Southeast Texas and storms dumped flash-flooding rains in turbulent weather which broke out during the night and persisted in some sections today.

At least two of the twisters inflicted property damage but there was no word of any persons suffering injuries. There also were reports of widespread minor damage from hail a many points as the thunderstorms kept spreading across the state toward the southeast.

In the wake of a cold front generating the rough weather, skies cleared west of the Pecos River in West Texas and in parts of the Panhandle-Plains sector by this morning, The Associated Press reported

It was at least partly cloudy everywhere else with rain continuing in Southeast Texas, where a flash flood watch covered the countryside east of a line from Bryan to Palacios, and Southwest Texas from around Del Rio toward the southeast.

One of the tornadoes struck northwest of Fort Worth near Weatherford, wrecking two barns and injuring a cow. Another knifed into a suburban business center on the north side of Austin and tore the roof off a

Aircraft makes emergency landing at Air Terminal

A single-engine aircraft made a safe emergency landing Wednesday afternoon at Midland Air Terminal, Joe Hogan, chief of the Midland control tower, said.

William Claypool of Odessa, pilot of the plane; radioed the control tower at 3 p.m. that the landing gear under the nose would not come down, Hogan

Claypool landed on the two main landing gears at 3:47 p.m., Hogan said. It was a "real smooth" landing, he added.

The aircraft then tipped over on its nose as it was almost stopped. Hogan said. Damage to the plane consisted of scratched paint and a "few square inches" of sheet metal, he said.

Midland firemen stood by during the emergency landing, which is a routine, precautionary measure taken when trouble might develop during a landing, Hogan said.

Neither Claypool nor his passenger were injured, a fire department spokesman said.

The plane was on a training flight over Midland County, practicing landings and take-offs, when the trouble with the landing gear developed. Cal White of Aquilla Aviation said.

Midlanders to join Navy

Goebel's, were the latter.

Miss Stapler said she wanted the Naval Academy - or nothing at all (among the three military academies). She was mentally preparing to join her sister Terry at the University of Oklahoma should Annapolis reject her.

"Well, the Naval Academy would be the only one I'd be interested in." Miss Stapler said. "My dad asked me if I didn't get in the Naval Academy would I be interested in the Air Force Academy

"I said 'no.' The Air Force just doesn't excite me. I really don't know why; it's strange, but I don't know Initially, Miss Stapler said she wasn't too concerned about her rejection or acceptance by the "It didn't bother me (at first). Then it really began to bother me if I didn't get accepted.

She did, and she's delighted, partly because she's a competitor.

"I do," she said. "I have a very competitive spirit. So, apparently, does her father, who helped her get aboard the academy. "He was really excited" over his daughter's appointment. "I am," Miss Stapler said. "I just don't show it." (Her father and mother, Bill and MyCay, were in Phoenix, Ariz., on business when their daughter was notified of her appointment. Stapler, an independent oilman, is vice president of Saturn Oil Co. in Midland.)

The sports program at Annapolis has a strong appeal to Miss Stapler. "You participate in every sport," she said, but quickly nixed football, lacrosse and rugby for the girls. "But they teach you every other sport.

"I just like all- sports," said the 5foot-9 prospective plebe, midshipman, ensign and who knows what

Their past deeds seem to forecast a promising future.

Glenn Woods, assistant principal at Lee, said Miss Stapler is "most outstanding" and displays "tremendous enthusiasm ... in all the activities she's been involved in at Lee." She starred in volleyball and track, played tennis and is getting into golf. She's also a swimmer and

Her Spanish teacher, Rosemary Patterson, described Miss Stapler a "a fine student, a fine lady, too, very thorough, a hard worker, cooperative, intelligent, thoughtful, well-liked."

Similarly did Kaye Horchler describe Miss Goebel. "She's a very bright, intelligent, quick witted young lady," said Mrs. Horchler, an instructor in Spanish at Midland High. 'She has a tremendous ability for writing and expressing her opinion and has an aptitude for languages.' (Miss Goebel speaks fluent German, Spanish and English.

'She's a dependable young person most universities would be proud to have as a freshman. . . . One of our finest high school graduates."

Proud, too, are her parents, George and Heidi Goebel

"I'm just as happy as a guy my age gets three times in his lifetime. Goebel said. "That's the way I feel."

His daughter's appointment to the academy "makes me as proud as a guy can be," he said.

Suttle dismisses suit against Mashburn, Wall

Federal Judge D. W. Suttle has dismissed a $50,000 lawsuit in which Midland bail bondsman Odell Walker claimed that Dist. Atty. Jim Mashburn and his chief aasistant, Rusty Wall, badgered and maligned him in an effort to force him out of business.

Walker, who lodged the suit last January, alleged that Mashburn and Wall "acted in bad faith and outside their authority as prosecutors" in filing bond-forfeiture suits against him in state court.

Mashburn had asked for the bond forfeitures after defendants in criminal cases had failed to appear in court. Walker is the leading bail bond-underwriter in the county. In dismissing the Walker suit;

Suttle referred to immunity the law grants quasi-judicial officers in carrying out their duties. The judge granted the Mashburn-

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) -Nancy Reagan says she feels "as if I'd been stabbed" by Sen. Barry Goldwater's criticism of her husband's stand on the Panama

The wife of the former California governor responded at a news conference Wednesday to questions about Goldwater's statement that Ronald Reagan's views on U.S. sovereignty over the canal stem from ignorance or "a surprisingly dangerous state of mind."

Reagan has said that the canal is U.S. property and that if elected president he would not give it up. Goldwater said Reagan's position

Ma Bell stays off sale block

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The huge Pacific Telephone Co. came within a few days of seeing its downtown headquarters on the auction block to pay a disputed $11 debt.

Louis Gary, who boasts of paying his residential telephone bill at the last minute "as a matter of principle," filed suit against the powerful utility charging it cut off his service without the customary five days

He contended that his payment was mailed on time. "They said they didn't get the payment," said Gary. "I said they did.

They said tough luck and disconnected the telephone.' When the telephone company admitted in court that it had received the payment but charged him $11 anyway to reconnect his service. Gary went to City Hall and filed suit in small claims court: On April 12, Municipal Court Judge Louis Garcia ordered the company to pay Gary the $11 despite Pacific's contentions that tariff regulations required the charge. When the company did not comply with Garcia's order by May 3, Gary filed a lien on Pacific's headquarters in San Francisco's financial district with an assessed value of nearly $1 Garcia ordered the payment made by May 23. Gary said he would foreclose and ask Sheriff Richard Hongisto to put the property up for sale to pay off the debt. A spokesman for Pacific Telephone. Roger Orr, said Wednesday the payment had been made by special messenger. "It was an oversight on our part," he said. Orr declined to discuss the case, citing "privacy restrictions. Gary, however, said he feels vindicated each time he needles the telephone company. "My over-all feeling is that I get pushed around.

Gary said his long distance bill to friends runs $200 to $300 monthly and that he deliberately waits until "the last possible day to pay. The delay costs them some money, even though it is only pennies." Gary, a programer for a shipping firm, said he feels his telephone service is "exorbitant. My monthly local service fee is $14.50 and it isn't worth The company has complained about his payment methods before, he said.

MC gets HEW grant

Rep. George Mahon's office this morning announced a $10,286 grant to Midland College from the office of education in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare

The grant, which should accomodate 19 students, came through approval of awards to institutions participating in the supplemental educational opportunity grants program

The grants are awarded to students with exceptional financial need.

Midland College has received grants also in the past two years. Last year's grant was $13,057, according to the college business manager Bob Phillips who said the amount of the grant is based on the number of students who qualify for the program.

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist party general secretary Leonid Brezhnev, wearing his Army uniform and new marshal's star for the nation's highest military rank, has met with surviving wartime comrades of the 18th Army.

The 69-year-old Soviet leader congratulated the veterans Wednesday for their "huge contribution to the victory over fascism and your work during the years of peace."

Brezhnev served as a political commissar in World War II with the 18th Army, which fought inside Soviet territory and later in Eastern Europe. He attained the wartime rank of lieutenant general.

Her attorney raised it again Wednesday in asking that Miss Hearst not be required to enter a plea to kidnap, assault and robbery charges because there is doubt as to her mental competence. Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler set May 28 for a hearing on the question.

The newspaper heiress' appearance collapsed lung last month. It also marked the first time since last September that she has been in the same room with two Symbionese Liberation Army members who were her fugitive traveling companions — William and Emily Harris.

All Three are charged with 11 felony counts stemming from a May 1974 crime spree that began when the Harrises were accused of shoplifting in an Inglewood sporting goods store.

Except for a single, icy stare that Mrs. Harris leveled at Miss Hearst before leaving the courtroom at the conclusion of the proceedings, there was no interaction between the couple and Miss Hearst; no indication that they even knew each other. They sat at the same counsel table but were separated by their attorneys, and they were kept apart as they entered and left the courtroom.

But Miss Hearst, 22, won a legal battle against the Harrises when Brandler declared it will be impossible for her to stand trial with

Thrilling observance

The God and Country Rally held Tuesday night at Midland Memorial Stadium was one of the greatest ever ... a tremendous success from every standpoint.

It attracted a large and most enthusiastic audience. Everyone there appeared to be glad that he came. Those persons who weren't there were the unfortunate ones. They missed a real treat.

An official Bicentennial event, the rally was a thrilling, spectacular observance, which served to arouse latent interest in and enthusiasm for God and the United States of America.

From the time the four T-38s from Webb Air Force Base flew over the stadium in close formation, exactly on schedule, to open the rally, until the singing (audience participation) of the spine-tingling "Battle Hymn of the Republic," which concluded it, the program was inspiring and the audience response superb.

The internationally acclaimed "Truth Singers" of Mobile, Ala., presented a great and meaningful concert, which was accorded a well-merited standing ovation at the conclusion of their performance.

And the featured speaker, the popular, internationally known columnist, commentator and radio personality Paul Harvey, was at his best. He, too, received a well-deserved standing ovation from an appreciative audience.

The Midland Baptist Association is due commendation from a grateful community for arranging and staging the rally, in cooperation with the Midland County Bicentennial Commission.

Vietnam recently were calm and orderly - nothing like the turbulent political life of that country a few years ago.

This time, however, there was no one to vote for but candidates put up without opposition by the Communist leadership that took over a year ago. It was the dutiful trek to the polls familiar in totalitarian countries.

Instead of the free elections promised under the 1973 truce agreement, the South Vietnamese voting was only ratifying the membership of a national. assembly, hand-picked by leaders of the National Liberation Front, which will get on with the business

The elections held in South of unifying North and South Vietnam under a Communist government. Thus the Vietnamese elections were a travesty on the democratic process and the principle of self-determination.

The Saigon radio described the election turnout as "enthusiastic, jubilant and orderly." Orderly, we can believe. All political events in a state under policeimposed one-party rule are orderly if nothing else. But enthusiastic and jubilant? For a people who fought a bloody war for the freedom to choose their own government, and lost, an election rigged from Hanoi to impose a new dictatorial regime hardly sounds like an occasion for dancing in the streets.

WASHINGTON - I stopped by Stanislaus' house the other day to return his lawn mower and I found him dressed in his World War II U.S. Marine Corps uniform.

"Stanislaus," I said, "what the heck are you doing?

"I just wanted to see if it fitted or not," he said. "I may be needing it again.'

"What for? You're 52 years old." "Haven't you been watching the news?" he asked. "Reagan says we may have to go to war over the Panama Canal.

"That's just campaign rhetoric," I said. "Reagan isn't serious about going to war over Panama."

'Oh yeah? Well, he won Texas, Georgia and the Indiana primaries because we may give it away. If Reagan wins the nomination and the election, and Panama makes one false move, it's going to mean the Halls of Montezuma all over again."

"Stanislaus, I can't believe that this country would go to war over the Panama Canal. "That's because you haven't listened to Reagan," he said. 'The United States dug that canal with its bare hands. Our boys died from yellow fever and malaria and dysentery. We're not going to let some

Would you please put down that rifle and bayonet?" I begged him. 'Nobody believes in the Panama Canal more than I do, and I certainly wouldn't want it to fall into the wrong hands. But the canal is in Panama and we should be able to work out some sort of treaty with them that would assure us the use and defense of it, in return for giving the Panamanians sovereignty over their own country.

Stanislaus got red in the face. "The Panama Canal is sovereign American territory as much as Louisiana or Alaska. We paid for it with American dollars and they promised we could keep it forever. Teddy Roosevelt must be twirling in his grave knowing the State Department is negotiating new terms with a clique of barefooted natives who can't even speak English.

'What are you doing with those hand grenades?" I asked him.

"Just checking them out to see if they're any good. Listen, boy, if we have to go into the canal it's not going to be a cinch like Vietnam. We're going to have to fight them in the jungles, in the swamps and up to our butts in mud. We may have to take on all of Central America and South America before we're finished. But, by God, we're going to make them think twice before they take another canal away from us. "I didn't realize Ronald Reagan would get you so worked up," I said. 'Look, Stanislaus, there must be another solution besides war. Would you agree to have us fill in the Panama Canal with dirt so they couldn't use it for themselves?" "I hadn't thought of that." he admitted. "But what about yellow fever? Don't forget the Americans rid Panama of yellow fever.' 'Okay, we'll give them back vellow

> Signs multiplied Wednesday that the mystery behind the first - and most seriously considered - "will" of

> Howard Hughes is swiftly unraveling. A genealogist hired by some distant relatives of Hughes told a Chicago news conference that he had heard from a person in Salt Lake City who claimed to be one of five forgers who concocted the document as a "gag."

> The caller was not publicly identified. In another development, it was revealed that a Bellflowers, Calif., woman related to Melvin dummar had easy access to an Orange County, Calif., magazine's extensive files on Hughes lore.

> Dummar, 31, is the Utah service station operator who soared to national attention as the apparent beneficiary of some of the Hughes millions because of a good turn he said he did for a man who claimed to be the eccentric billionaire in 1968.

> Since then it was revealed that Dummar had been tried in 1969 on charges of forging a coworker's signature on a paycheck. The prosecutor dropped the charges after a jury failed to reach a verdict.

Developments in the matter of the first will - the only one filed for probate — came as two more purported Hughes wills were filed Wednesday in Las vegas. One named as sole beneficiary "Richard Robard Hughes, aka Joseph Michael Brown,' who previously has claimed to be the billionaire's bastard son.

A day earlier, a second will surfaced in Las Vegas court, bearing obvious earmarks of a hoax, according to Summa Corp.

Summa, the holding company for the bulk of the Hughes properties, also has told a Delaware court that it believes the first will "is not genuine." But it has not said why it holds that belief.

A concrete indication of its spuriousness came Wednesday from genealogist William A. Jones, president of Heir finders Inc., Nashville, Tenn., who last week pronounced the first will a forgery after it was examined by a handwriting exChicago that he was told the five mar. Brown, who said he lives in Los perpetrators would admit they forged the will if they were granted immunity from prosecution. 'It all started as a joke," the product of a weekend of liquor and drugs in Las Vegas, Jones said on the basis of the call from Salt Lake City.

He quoted the caller as saying the iokesters did not intend the purported will to be filed in court.

The document reportedly was found mysteriously on a desk at the Mormon Church's world headquarters in Salt Lake City. Purportedly dated March 19, 1968, the three-page, handwritten, unwitnessed document bore instructions to deliver it after Hughes' death to the "Las Vegas Court House.

The Mormon Church was named as a major beneficiary in the purported will. Dummar also is a Mormon, as are a number of aides who served Hughes while he lived as an ailing recluse in his later years.

After Dummar shot to prominence April 29, he held a press conference organized by Ronald Brown, who

Jones told a news conference in identified himself as a cousin of Dum-Angeles, said he identified himself as an investment consultant.

> Later, at his own press conference at the Salt Lake City airport, Brown said he already had plans for investing Dummar's share, which he said could amount to $37 million after

It was revealed Wednesday that Brown's mother, Mrs. Bonnie Dummar, is a "press representative" of Millionaire Magazine, a privately circulated publication headquartered in Orange, Calif.

The 52-year-old woman, now married to Dummar's uncle, Richard, of Bellflower, was quoted by the Associated Press as saying she had nothing to do with the disputed

Ed Kelly, the magazine's publisher, told The Los Angeles Times that Mrs. Dummar had easy access to extensive files of Hughes' "memorabilia," which includes samples of his writing and much biographical material.

"She is in and out of the office."

Kelly said. "I wouldn't say it came from our files, but I have everything that was in the will. He said the anecdotal material included a story about Hughes' borrowing a dime to make a telephone call when his auto ran out of gas. Dummar has said he gave a quarter to an ill-dressed, unshaven "bum" he picked up on the Nevada desert in January, 1968, and gave a lift to the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas. He said the man identified himself as Hughes.

Hughes lived in seclusion in the penthouse of the Desert Inn, which he owned along with the Sands and other hotels. A Summa spokesman said Tuesday that logs and other information indicated Hughes never left the hotel during his residence from 1966 to 1970.

Kelly noted that his magazine in 1972 published an article, "The Other Side of Howard Hughes," and has prepared an unpublished book manuscript on Hughes.

The article was by Ed Lund, who was Hughes' co-pilot on his 1938 round-the-world flight. In the same issue, Kelly said, was an article by Bonnie Dummar about a San Diego business venture featuring Ronald Brown, her son by her first marriage.

Meanwhile, in Las Vegas, new wills continued to proliferate Wednesday.

Grover Walker, who previously has claimed to have worked for Howard Hughes for five years, walked into the courthouse with a typewritten purported will. It bore signatures purported to be those of Donald Fessenden and James W. Simmons, both Las Vegas casino employes. Walker said the document was given to him recently by "Richard Hughes," who claims to be the billionaire's son born out of wedlock in 1945. Richard Hughes (Joseph Michael Brown) is wanted in New Mexico on a fugitive warrant charging him with bilking a couple out of $15,000 by telling them he needed it to obtain access to a supposed Hughes trust fund

The Sandoval County district attorney's office said: "We'd like to know where he is. All we heard was that he might have been in Mexico."

Walker, who was accompanied to the Las Vegas courthouse by three apparent bodyguards, said he had met with Hughes-Brown recently but declined to say where he is.

Hughes-Brown previously testified in New Mexico that he kept in touch with his father with a transmitter surgically implanted in the roof of his mouth. He said he activated the transmitter with his tongue, and messages were received by a control

Later Wednesday, a document printed in green and purporting to be Hughes will arrived at the Desert Inn. A cover letter, signed "Howard Hughes Jr.," said he did not want to 'clame (sic) any of my father's inheritance." The document left all the money, except a few million dollars, to the U.S. government "to give jobs for the people.'

... while game destroys another

LOS ANGELES - Math-minded people from Los Angeles to London have discovered a numbers game in the nine purported Social Security numbers used to identify "10 living American individuals' as beneficiaries in one of the alleged Howard Hughes wills.

Unscrambled, the numbers are in an orderly sequence that seems to make it impossible that the originator was identifying real persons. The game, which was fairly simple and easy, to spot, appeared to put the second so-called Hughes will - filed

Tuesday in Las Vegas - into the category of a prank or playful hoax that was designed to become transparent upon examination.

The Los Angeles Times received a number of calls Wednesday from persons who solved the game - including finding the missing tenth number.

The numbers cited in the "will" were in the following order:

"009-22-3345, 339-555-6648, 669-88-9951, 999-11-2254, 119-33-4446, 449-66-7749, 779-99-0052, 229-44-5547 and 559-77-8850.

The pattern in the numbers is ap-the missing number would be 889-00-Some of the amateur sleuths who deciphered the ciphers also theorized that the missing number in the sequence would provide the identity

Some observers, though, thought the author would not care to make his identity quite so plain. The Social Security Administration does not give out the identity of registrants, according to reports attributed to official sources, but it is presumed that law agencies would be excepted from the rule.

Several of the numbers listed in the will have prefixes which have not will have prefixes which have not even been issued as Social Security reaffirmed numbers, according to the same sources. These are 669, 779 and 999.

Convention report made

Evelyn Gould, local action chair- a national program for the next two person of the League of Women Voters of Midland, has returned from New York City, where she attended the league's national convention.

The new national program adopted for 1976-78 was the reaffirmation that the league will continue to push for ratification of the ERA, and there was an announcement the league will extend its Presidential Forums series to debates between between the two major presidential candidates in November's election

It was a week of debates, caucuses, action and decision for the delegates for the 1,500 attending the 32nd national meeting years, which includes three new study items: Cities/urban crisis, reexamination of the UN and energy. The league announced it is planning a series of debates between the two major presidential candidates. The debates will mark the first time since the Kennedy-Nixon debates 16 years ago that Americans will be exposed to head-on discussion by candidates on major campaign issues.

Delegates also voted to keep the League of Women Voters as the official name for the next two years. At the 1974 convention in San Francisco. it was voted to provide men with full voting membership in the league.

Steiger poet, gourmet, actor

Los Angeles Times

BEVERLY HILLS-Rod Steiger is a gentle soul and an adventurer at heart. He's also an enthusiastic gourmet, a poet and actor extraordinaire. "I believe in cating the specialty of the house," he said to the waiter in the Polo Lounge at the Beverly Hills Hotel. "Therefore, I'll have some of your famous German apple pancakes-I shouldn't, but I will."

The last time we spoke. Rod had talked about his wife, Sherry, and her "slim gourmet" cooking. . He had said then, "Once I had a voracious appetite, but not since I've discovered diet gourmet cookbooks. You can do things like chicken marengo and make them taste the same, but with twothirds of the calorie

Now, Rod has turned once more to indulging his palate for rich, high-calorie fare, particularly since he was required to quickly acquire 40 pounds for the starring role in the new movie, "W.C. Fields and

"I still haven't taken the weight off," Rod said, generously lathering the crisp, platter-sized pancake with sour cream and strawberry preserves. "Sherry put on a series of gourmet meals for me while I was working on the film that were sensational." He smiled at his blonde wife.

To cook up the gourmet delights, Sherry said, "I started at one end of the cookbook and worked my way right through to the end. I thought Rod needed company. He'd come home too tired to go out. I couldn't see dragging him to other people's houses, so I'd fix dinner parties for six or eight people."

"Sherry's an excellent cook, and when we entertain, I just attend! I always hanker for her chicken grand marnier. She's finally solved the mystery of making linguini primavera: the sauce must be made with all fresh ingredients-we even grow the fresh basil in our garden. It took her almost two years to conquer that recipe.

'The sauce must not be cooked," Sherry said That's the real secret. You peel and chop tomatoes into a mixing bowl and then add the other ingredients, but you don't cook them. If you do, the tastes of the individual ingredients all blend together and the sauce doesn't taste special anymore. When it's made correctly, it tastes like the garden!'

Typically, during lunch, Steiger's choice of conversational subjects ranged far and wide. He's a poet, and writes in longhand in a red, leather-bound notebook, often jotting down the emotions he feels at the moment. A recent poem, for example, that he says expresses his basic approach to life, is:

Man is born an adventurer a hunter and an explorer

When he plays safe, he ceases to discover to hunt, to adventure

He hangs his helmet on the most convenient hook He begins his death as long as he lives.

Sherry said that Rod's sensitivity and vulnerability make him more like W.C. Fields than any character he's ever portrayed. "Sure, I'm an adventurer. I took a hell of a chance with W.C. Fields," he said. "Rod takes big chances in his professional life, but not in his private life," Sherry said. "He likes to stick to old routines. He never gets into the car without knowing exactly where he's going. It's difficult to get him to go to a new place, and once he's there, it's hard to get him to leave.'

"And that's enough of that," Rod said, teasing MON. TO SAT. 10-6 students will present Sherry. "You see, I'm greedy for life. I'm greedy for happiness and for a sense of fulfillment, which you displays. A Bicentennial very seldom get. I'm a survivor. My curiosity is what keeps me going. Human beings were meant to be

Give up that sense of self-respect and you'll lose yourself-in the biggest house, the biggest car, the most impressive place to live. I don't think there's any monetary reward worth your respect for yourself. I haven't changed my basic thinking in over 30 years.

Actors are "mobile poets," Rod says, "Mobile" refers, of course, to their instruments-themselves: their faces, hands, legs-anything that moves. Actors are gifted with a poetic perspective of life. That means they can view the pain of getting through one day with the necessary compassion to explain it dramatically. The essence of drama-examining and presenting life-is, in a sense, poetry.

It's easy to understand why Rod is not a partygoer or involved in the fashionable colony life at Malibu, where he and Sherry live. "We live down the old road. The colony is too incestuous for me. People always invite me to parties, but I think it's because they know up front that I won't go!" He laughed Recipes from the Rod Steigers follow:

Some women sub-total

By ERMA BOMBECK

Of all the marriage manuals that have come out of this decade, the one that has intrigued me the most has been "The Total Woman" by Marabel Morgan.

In one of her chapters, she tells of a plan to make your husband want to hurry home. One of her students. Janet, tried it. She called her husband, Jack, at 4 p.m. one day and said, "Honey, I'm eagerly waiting for you to come home. I just crave your

There was a lot of heavy breathing in the phone followed by a return call from Jack who couldn't believe it either and said, "Would you please repeat slowly what you said five minutes ago?" (They also do that when you order pizza on the phone so they won't get stuck with it.) -

I figured what the heck. I never call my husband at work. The shock alone would be worth the effort. I dialed the number. The phone lifted off the hook. "Don't say anything," I whispered, "just come home early. I crave your

For one thing, the freedom of crewel gives you the possibility of individual artistry, whether or not the design is your own. Secondly, because none of the stitches used in crewel is exclusively a "crewel" stitch, it's easy to mix and match—that is, draw from other needle crafts for inspiration and variety.

Have you chosen a crewel project yet? Crewel is ideal for anything that's soft and supple, such as cushions, coverlets, curtains or clothing. It's also great for pictures and wall hangings.

The texture of the wool and the color of the background fabric shouldbe chosen carefully for items such as benches, chair seats, handbagsanything where the fabric is stretched tight and the needlework will receive a lot of wear.

But crewel projects are as neverending as your imagination slippers, eyeglass cases, room dividers, tabletops under glass, men's ties—they're all just a beginning.

DEAR ERICA: Hope I'm not tapestry exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum in New York, I've been curious about something: Why is it that the unicorn pops up on so many tapestries?—Ms. Jill Coyle, Port Washington, L. I.

DEAR JILL: The fabled unicorn on so many tapestries- -that clovenfooted horse with a goat's beard and a long, fluted horn-has more to do with symbolism than zoology, according to the Met's book "Masterpieces of Tapestry.

The unicorn was known to be so wild and swift that no one-not even the most proficient hunters-could take him by chasing. In order to capture him, a maiden had to be left in the forest, and the untamable beast, as legend has it, would come and sleep with his head on her lap. Only then, could he be seized Actually, the beautiful animal was rather a "scapegoat," so to speak, for the weavers of the time; he became the central figure for so many other figures-delicate maidens, dapper hunters, dramatic white horses-to be woven around! (Erica Wilson welcomes questions from readers. While she cannot reply to them all individually, she will answer those of general interest in her column. Write to Erica Wilson in DALLAS (AP) - A former Marine who led a raid on a Mexican prison that freed 14 U.S. citizens is now facing the possibility of going to prison himself for violating the U.S. Neutrality Act by carrying unregistered weapons into Mexico.

Don Fielden, 31, an unemployed truck driver described by his attorney, Ernest Kuehne, as a "typical East Texas country boy, was planning to surrender to U.S. marshals today.

The husky former Marine sergeant said earlier this week he was aware of the possibility of charges being filed against him, but added he was not worried about them. "Like that old song says, 'if you can't do the time, don't do the crime'.'' he told Kuehne said Fielden faces a posible two-year sentence and a $25,000 fine Fielden was named in an arrest warrant charging him with violation of neutrality laws following an investigation by U.S. Customs officers of his activities in connection with the March 2 raid on the Piedras Negras jail. Fielden had told the Dailas Times Herald Sunday that he and two other Dallas men conducted the raid which was financed by a Dallas psychologist, Sterling B. Davis, whose son was jailed in Piedras Negras on a drug charge.

Young Davis and 13 others were released by Fielden and his companions who held 10 policemen at gunpoint while opening the jail cells. Most of those released swam back to Eegle Pass across the Rio Grande and surrendered to county officials or simply made their way to their homes. Young Davis turned himself over to authorities to face charges of parole violation and is currently at El Reno prison in Oklahoma monetary confrontation between the Democratic Congress and the Republican White House.

The Senate approved the budget ceiling by a vote of 65 to 29 on Wednesday and there were indications the House would give the plan final approval today.

The measure is based on the assumption that temporary individual tax cuts in effect this year will be continued through 1977.

The floor manager for the bill, Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, quickly warned Ford against touching off a

Moss told the Senate that efforts by Ford to use a veto to cut Congress' billion proposal would bring "a long summer of futile confrontation between Congress and the White House. If the President wants political confrontation instead of a sound fiscal policy these differences can become a battlefield and the public will be the Democratic backers of the budget legislation contend the higher spending figure, including $6.3 billion to be used to create 1.1 million more jobs, is needed to maintain economic recovery, but Ford contends higher spending risks more inflation.

The $413.3 billion spending target envisions a federal deficit at the end of the fiscal year of $50.8 billion, compared with a deficit estimated at $44.6 billion under Ford's budget proposal

The ceiling is part of Congress' new machinery for setting its own federal budget rather than simply acting on presidential proposals.

The $413.3 billion is broken down into 17 spending ceilings, which congressional committees and then the full House and Senate are to meet in approving regular spending bills.

When the new fiscal year starts Oct. Congress will set final, binding limits on the spending it can approve.

The $100.8 billion target for defense spending included in the Congressional measure is only $300 million below Ford's proposal.

But Congress included major increases of $23 billion for education, training and employment - 5 billion more than Ford proposed; $3.9 billion for health - $2.4 billion above Ford's figure; $15.7 billion for energy and resources - $2 billion above Ford's Congress' ceiling also include $19.5 billion for veterans benefits, which is $2.3 billion above Ford's proposal, and $139.3 billion for income security, $2.2 billion above Ford's figure.

Love Field fight back in federal court fight over whether all air lines that serve the Dallas-Fort Worth area must use the new $600 million regional airport is back in federal appeals

Lines that use the new Dallas-Fort Worth regional airport, known as DFW, appealed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals after they were enjoined against pursuing Southwest Airlines in state court.

They asked that a federal court injunction be canceled so that a state court suit, filed in Austin, may proceed. The 5th took the issue under advisement Wednesday with no indication when it will rule.

Southwest operates between Dallas, Houston and San Antonio. It has stayed at Dallas' old, convenient and cheaper Love Field despite outcries from air lines lodged at the new

For Dallas residents, Love Field is closer. It takes $3.50 for the cab ride, compared to $20 to DFW. And critics complain that almost every move one makes at DFW costs 25 cents or more.

Other air lines contend that Southwest's refusal to move to the newer airport gives it an unfair competitive advantage and indirectly costs DFW lines an extra $1 million a year.

But when they filed suit in state court at Austin, a U.S. district court said that amounted to an attack on a 1973 federal court judgment won by Southwest stating it could not be forced to leave Love.

Robert S. Harkey of Atlanta, Ga., representing Delta Air Lines, American Airlines, Frontier Airlines, Ozark Air Lines and Eastern Air Lines, largued that the wrangle involves state law, not federal.

"Only the state court can rule authoritatively on the state law." Harkey said in asking that the federal injunction be cancelled.

President Ford says victory in Michigan vote absolute must

By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent

President Ford says victory in Michigan is a must in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, and he's asking his home-state voters for more than a comeback against Ronald Reagan. He wants a mandate.

Challenger Reagan is taking over the Michigan GOP stage with a night and day of campaigning beginning in Kalamazoo tonight.

Meanwhile, Democratic front runner Jimmy Carter addressed a conference on nuclear energy and world order at the United Nations in New York. Carter aides billed the speech as the first in a series of major policy statements by the former Georgia governor.

Ford spent 101/2 hours in a crowdpulling hunt for votes in Detroit and its suburbs on Wednesday, returning to Washington late Wednesday night. He'll be back in Michigan for the weekend.

His stepped-up campaign itinerary he had planned only one Michigan trip - was evidence of the Ford camp's concern at a campaign pattern that has seen Reagan win five of the last six primaries.

"We knew that May would be the most vulnerable time," Ford said in Detroit. Despite Reagan's lead in GOP delegate commitments, Ford said "we are in pretty good shape" with uncommitted delegates.

"But we can't rest on our oars," he said. "We have to win in a state like Michigan, we have to do well in Maryland and we have to do well in some of the other primary states." Michigan and Maryland hold primary elections next Tuesday. Through a long day of speechmaking and handshaking, Ford sounded 4506 Wilshire St., boy over and over his theme of prosperity, peace and trust. He said he brought those hallmarks to a government shaken by Watergate when he took over from the resigned Richard M. Nixon on Aug. 9, 1974.

The turnout in Birmingham was estimated by police at more than 10,000 people, and there was another big crowd at the Roseville shopping mall, in an area that supplied a crop of votes for Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace when he won Michigan's Democratic primary four years ago.

Wallace is entered again, but has lost his punch in the Democratic primaries and Ford strategists are afraid conservative Democrats may decide to cross into the GOP primary to vote for Reagan.

Ford made a point of saying that he wants crossover votes, too. "I want every person in the state of Michigan who identifies with my political philosophy, who believes in the program that I've outlined of prosperity, peace and trust, to vote for me whether they call themselves Republicans, Democrats or independents," he said.

Asked whether he expects to win Ford replied: "You bet I do.

New evidence may crop up in Callaway hearing

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says he's prepared to offer "new evidence" to a Senate subcommittee trying to determine if former Army Secretery Howard H. Callaway used improper pressure to win permission to expand his Colorado ski resort on federal

But Butz, scheduled to testify today as the Interior Committee's subcommittee on the environment resumes its hearings, wasn't saying in advance exactly what the "new evidence" would be.

Subcommittee chairman Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., said in an interview that he's got no idea what's on Butz' mind - unless Butz plans to follow through on an earlier claim that he's prepared to list members of Congress who have sought to influence Forest Service decisions.

The panel is attempting to determine if Callaway, as Army secretary and later as chairman of President Ford's election committee. used improper influence to get the Forest Service to approve expansion of his Crested Butte ski resort onto a learby federal mountain The service, which is part of the Agriculture Department, tentatively approved the expansion in December. overruling a preliminary recommendation against the expansion

Haskell recessed the hearings last month after Callaway protested that the panel hadn't called his original accusers to testify.

Those witnesses, Crested Butte Mayor Tom Glass, Gunnison County, Colo., Judge John Levin and Myles Arber, a Crested Butte newspaper publisher, are scheduled to testify following Butz. Haskell has said the three first came to his office in the fall of 1975 to accuse Callaway of trying to pressure the Forest Service into approving the expansion of his ski resort. Butz became involved when a panel investigator said a note in Butz' handwriting was found on an Interior Department memo urging that the Forest Service be encouraged to approve the resort expansion.

Former Agriculture Undersecretary J. Phillip Campbell told the panel he sent the memo to Butz in July 1975, shortly after a meeting in Callaway's Pentagon office at which Crested Butte was discussed

Butz has acknowledged seeing the memo, but said he sent it to a subordinate and did not become personally involved in the matter.

Butz recently said, "As I indicated previously, I want to get the record straight on this thing: As a matter of fact. I have some new evidence to put in the record." When asked to elaborate. Butz dismissed the matter by saying, "that will go into the

Earlier, Butz hed responded to the allegations that Callaway had exerted influence on the Forest Service by noting that many members of Congress had done the same thing. Haskell said he has no reason to doubt that, and that on at least one occasion he himself had asked the Forest Service to speed up a decision affecting Colorado lumber operators. Government records show Haskell once intervened on behalf of an Illinois developer who wanted 6,600 acres removed from consideration as

In a 1973 letter to the head of the U.S. Forest Service, John McGuire, Haskell asked the agency to remove 6,600 acres from land under study for designation as a wilderness area. The land figures in plans by a Skokie. Ill., developer to build a ski area on San Juan National Forest land in Colorado.

"I would like to request that you give serious consideration to deleting an area in Archuleta County, Colorado, from your Final Environmental Statement which lists Roadless and Undeveloped Areas to be considered for possible wilderness designation," Haskell wrote. Speaking from his Washington office Wednesday night, Haskell said the letter was "routine" and denied it was an effort to exert political pressure on the Forest Service. "I think this is normal procedure. If in a person's state somebody wants to put in a project that benefits the citizens of a locality, obviously the elected representative asks the agency to take a good, careful look at Haskell said he recommended to the Forest Service that it examine the proposed ski area. Final action on the matter is pending.

Haskell said in his letter that the change in the government's decision had been urged by local county commissioners "to facilitate development of a ski resort" by Daniel F. McCarthy

Haskell, who had no financial interest of his own in the project, asked the Forest Service to "evaluate the project's potential and make a determination of its economic stability and viability....If you are convinced of the project's worth, I would simply like to request that the area be deleted from the final list," the letter said.

Carter urges worldwide atom plant moratorium

Jimmy Carter today called for a worldwide voluntary moratorium on the purchase and sale of nuclear fuel enrichment and reprocessing plants "to make the spread of peaceful nuclear power less dangerous.

Speaking at a conference on nuclear energy and world order, the former Georgia governor and frontrunner for the Democratic presidential nomination presented a speech described by a source close to his campaign as his first attempt to set out a detailed statement on foreign

The source said the prepared speech was the first in a series of major policy statements that Carter will offer, and that it represents a new stage in his campaign. A background session on the speech for reporters lasted one hour and 40 minutes.

The conference is not an official UN

Carter, who has a degree in nuclear engineering, said the danger in the spread of peaceful nuclear power is not so much in the spread of nuclear reactors themselves. He said he was not advocating that the sale of nuclear reactors be halted.

"The far greater danger lies in the spread of facilities for the enrichment of uranium and the reprocessing of spent reactor fuel," Carter said, because highly enriched uranium can be used to produce weapons; and because plutonium, when separated from the remainder of the spent fuel, can also be used to produce nuclear

Carter said the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna is considering ways to improve the protection of explosive material involved in the nuclear fuel cycle.

"Until such studies are completed, I call on all nations of the world to adopt a voluntary moratorium on the national purchase or sale of enrichment or reprocessing plants. I would hope this moratorium would apply to recently completed agreements," he said.

The recent agreements Carter cited, the source said, involved France and West Germany. France has sold a reprocessing plant to Pakistan and West Germany sold a reactor to Brazil offering plutonium technology in the deal.

The Carter campaign source said it is known that a substantial military element in Brazil wants that nation to have a nuclear bomb. The United States and other nuclear.

powers have refused to export plutonium reprocessing plants. The other nuclear suppliers are the Soviet Union, Canada, Britain and Japan.

The United States has sold or is considering selling nuclear reactor plants to several foreign countries. However, the Ford administration has sought assurances that the plants would be used for only peaceful purposes.

In making several other recommendations, Carter said there also is a need for new international action to meet the energy needs of all countries while limiting the reliance on nuclear energy and a need for action to limit the spread of nuclear weapons. He called for the creation of a world energy agency and multinational fuel centers.

Danish queen plays many roles in capital

By WILLIAM GILDEA The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Queen Margrethe of Denmark played many roles Wednesday: fascinated tourist at the Capitol; first reigning queen ever to appear before the National Press Club; royal spokeswoman for the Danish furniture industry.

It was the second busy day in Washington for the queen and prince, Henrik, who will depart today for Chicago, the next stop on an extensive U.S. tour that lasts until June 1. Already weary Danish and American journalists wonder if she can keep up

Wearing a bright orange suit and matching blue and orange blouse and turban, the six-foot-tall queen began her day by sipping coffee, then tomato juice next to House Speaker Carl Albert, and other congressional leaders, in the Rayburn reception room at the Capitol. A passel of senators and representations led her into the rotunda, where a tour guide explained the surroundings.

Then it was off to the Renwick Gallery, where, it just so happened, an exhibit of contemporary Scandinavian furniture design by Danish architect Arne Jacobsen is on display. She and the prince viewed the exhibit quickly, paused briefly in the gallery, took in the other exhibits and took off, for the National Press

She seemed a bit embarrassed as her extensive schooling was chronicled during her introduction. This included law and other studies at the University of Copenhagen. Cambridge, the Sorbonne and London University. Archeology, at Cambridge, was among those other

She speaks five languages, it was noted, and underwent military training in the Danish Women's Royal Air Force. She likes music, books and sketching

She also is just one of the girls, Press Club president Robert Alden indicated. She plays bridge and enjoys skiing. She even wears pigtails and jeans in private. Friends call her Daisy and sometimes she and the prince have guests over for snacks in the palace kitchen.

Denmark's constitution forbids her to answer questions about her country's politics or foreign policy, the audience was told. She displayed a good sense of humor answering some of the questions, whith were written on cards and handed up; some she declined to answer; some were in poor taste, in the opinion of several

Sample: "Have you ever knighted Danny Kaye or Victor borge and, if so, which do you prefer?" Pianistcomedian Borge, seated at the head table, made a joke of the question by quickly heading for the exit. Maintaining a smile, she replied: 'Questions involving specific persons answerer." With that, Borge returned, to the delight of the 800

She declined to answer the question, "What do you think of birth control?" Nor would she name her favorite American author.

To an inquiry about the future of royalty, which seemed to suggest it might pass from the scene, she "Nobody can predict the future." A mother of two, she was asked for "advice" to American parents on raising children. "If I could answer that, I'd be a prophet.

She was presented with a windbreaker "for her skiing and archeological trips," and responded: 'I do imagine the windbreaker will keep off some of the gusts of difficult

The prince submitted a last question. "How do you like being married to a Frenchman?" "Just fine," she said, immediately realizing whose question it was. As she sat down, she threw Henrik a kiss.

Late in the afternoon, having changed into a green dress and long white spring coat, Margrethe arrived as scheduled at the Scan furniture store, a major importer of Danish furniture in the United States.

She walked through the exhibit, featuring 13 complete room settings created by four Danish designers, at one point opening the drawer to a nightstand, apparently to check on space. She also posed for photographs with two designers present, Ebbe Gehl and Soren Nissen.

Freeway explosion death toll rises to 5

HOUSTON (AP) - Investigators for the National Transportation Safety Board continued a probe today into the freeway explosion of en ammonia carrying tank truck that killed five persons and injured nearly 200 others.

The truck plunged through a guard rail on the busy West Loop 610 Southwest Freeway interchange Tuesday and plunged 20 feet onto the Southwest Freeway.

The vehicle exploded on impact, releasing a white toxic cloud. Most of those injured were overcome by Grace Gillebaard, 33, of Houston died in a Houston hospital Wednesday to become the fifth person to die as a result of the accident.

Four bodies were recovered at the scene Tuesday. They were William Gregory Schmidt of Corpus Christi, driver of the truck, Gordon D. McAdams of Conroe, George Henry Pearson of Sugar Land and David Randall Whiteman of Houston.

Forty-nine persons remained hospitalized Wednesday night, including five listed in critical condition.

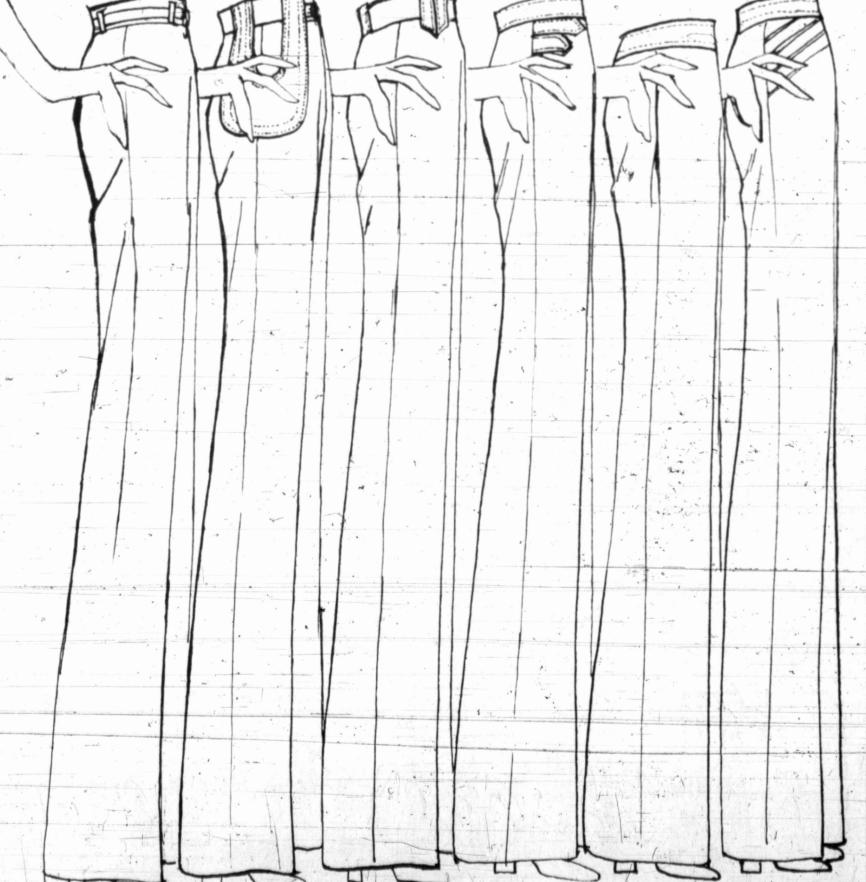

One of those listed in critical condition was Mrs. Gillebaard's fivemonth-old son, Robert.

Also listed in critical condition was Bill Mayes, 47, of Goodrich, who jumped from his car with his fiveyear old son Toby wrapped in a blanket but collapsed before he could outdistance the ammonia fumes.

Other motorists fleeing the toxic cloud grabbed Toby and carried him to safety, police said. The boy was listed in fair condition.

Police said Wednesday 22 vehicles were involved in the accident. Only two of them, both passenger cars-were hit by parts of the exploding truck, police said.

Authorities said other vehicles which were damaged were tossed around by the shock of the explosion or struck by chunks of flying

Championship got underway.

The respective values of those two baseball players are receiving considerable attention these days, in light of their early-season performances.

Messersmith, the pitcher who landed a million-dollar contract with the Atlanta Braves after turning free agent last winter, can't buy a victory so far. Wednesday night, he dropped a 6-3 decision to the New York Mets for his fourth loss in six starts in an

was Kingman, who continued to hit baseballs with unusual authority. Kingman, purchased for a relatively cheap $125,000 during the offseason from the San Francisco Giants, collected four hits-two of them his 13th and 14th home runs of the season. "Messersmith has thrown much better than he is now," said Kingman, whose two shots pushed him into the major league lead. "I have had terrible success against him in the past-which is no success at all. But right now, he is not even close to the pitcher he can be. Hitters go into slumps and I guess pitchers go into them, too. I guess he must be in one.

Messersmith, who has obviously seen better days with the Los Angeles Dodgers and California Angels, can't understand his current predicament. "I just don't know what the trouble

The Giants, meanwhile, are sorely missing Kingman's long range bat. They suffered their third straight shutout Wednesday, losing a 1-0 decision to the Chicago Cubs in 11 innings. In the other National League games, the Los Angeles Dodgers whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3; the San Diego Padres blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 4-0; the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Cincinnati Reds 6-3 and the Montreal Expos ripped the Houston Astros 7-2.

Steve Swisher knocked in the game's only run with a two-out single in the 11th inning as Chicago beat San Francisco. Jerry Morales singled after Andy Thornton had grounded out in the 11th. Manny Trillo's bouncer put Morales in scoring position for Swisher's base hit to right. "Swisher's really picked us up, and compared to last year he's really turned us around, "said Chicago Manager Jim Marshall. "His attitude, his confidence and everything is just a whole lot better. This could be Steve's year.'

Dodgers 6, Cardinals 3 Ron Cey snapped a tie with an eighth-inning double, leading Los Angeles over St. Louis for the hot' Dodgers' 15th triumph in 17 games. Cey, who entered the game hitting .333 with eight home runs and 21 RBI, delivered his game-winning blow off reliever Harry Rasmussen. Cey had also singled home a run in the second.

Padres 4, Phillies 0 Left-hander Randy Jones threw a six-hitter to become the first National League pitcher to win six games this season as San Diego beat Philadelphia. Jones, who has lost twice, struck out two and walked three in snapping the Phillies' threegame winning streak and handing the league's secondbest hitting team its second loss in 11 games.

Pirates 6, Reds 3 Willie Stargell lined a two-run double as Pittsburgh scored four runs in the fifth inning to defeat Cincinnati. Jim Rooker, 4-1, who knocked in the Pirates' first run in the fifth with a double, stopped the hard-hitting Reds on eight hits and walked only one-an intentional walk.

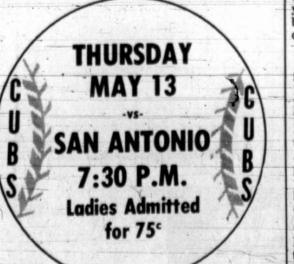

Expos 7, Astros 2 Gary Carter's two-run single broke a 1-1 tie and Larry Parrish's two-run homer capped a four-run Montreal eighth inning as the Expos defeated Houston. Woody Fryman, 4-2, scattered four hits over the first seven innings in picking up his first victory over Houston in five years. Houston starter J.R. Richard, 5-2, was charged with the first four Montreal runs as the Expos broke the righthander's five-game winning streak.

For 12 days in May and the last seven in April, the Red Sox hadn't won a game as the Texas Rangers. Kansas City Royals and Cleveland Indians cast 10 consecutive spells over the defending American League champs, the club's longest losing streak.

Manager Darrell Johnson, at a loss what to do, kept sending the same pitchers out day after losing day. Then, a Boston radio station signed a free-agent witch, Laurie Cabot of Salem, Mass., to do something about

"I don't know a thing about baseball," she said.

Welcome to the Red Sox, Laurie, who spent 10 games trying to prove that very point. A slow-starting witch, it took her 11 innings to come up with the right spell. She said incantations are not part of her routine, but rather the use of clairvoyance.

So with Ms. Cabot sitting behind the Boston dugout in flowing black witch's garb, Doug Griffin, leading off the 12th, clairvoyanced a bloop single off Dave LaRoche and, after a sacrifice, so did Cecil Cooper. That sent Griffin to third and he scored the tie-breaking run on Carl Yastrzemski's long fly. Cooper took third on a another bloop hit by Rick Miller and scored-hex, hex!-on a balk by Tom Buskey, giving the Red Sox a 6-4 witchery—er, victory—over the Indians. A solo homer by Lee Mazzilli and a two-run clout by Ken Perry put Jackson ahead 4-2 in the sixth inning. Lafayette pulled even but handed the victory to the home club on four walks in the eighth.

Don Alfano's bases-loaded single in the ninth frame drove home Tucker Ashford with Amarillo's winning run. Pitcher Bob Shirley, now 1-4 for the season, claimed the mound decision on a steady seven-hitter.

LOS ANGELES - Six-year-old Keissa Houston's tiny hands grasp the calculator in gentle fashion. The digital red numerals flash and flicker as she presses the small, black keys.

"OK, the next number is six," declares Jose Castaneda, a student teacher at the E. 93rd Street School in Watts. He holds up a card with the number "6" on it.

HOUSTON (AP) — The president of Associated Milk Producers, Inc. (AMPI) says inflated costs of producing milk have not been adequately recognized under the price support program.

Irvin J. Elkin said it is time for Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz to recognize his legal mandate to consider long range prospects for adequate supplies of milk.

Elkin, a dairy farmer from Amery, Wis., addressed a meeting Wednesday of the AMPI board which represents the organization's 32,000

Satisfied, she turns to the calculator she has been guarding with one hand and presses the "1" key six times.

The red lights flicker. "I've got it! I've got it!" she yells triumphantly to the others seated at the table including classmates, mothers and teachers. "Bingo!"

Keissa is one of 24 kindergarten and first-grade children at the E. 93rd Street School learning math by using calculators.

The pilot project, one of several nationwide, is sponsored by Texas Instruments, Inc. The nationwide program includes nearly 800 youngsters and is directed by a staff from Syracuse University.

The Los Angeles project, which began in October, is being conducted in cooperation with the Los Angeles Head Start Primary Continuation Learning Program, under the auspices of the Foundation for Early Childhood Education Head Start Agency, funded by the Office of Child Development.

"The emphasis in the schools is on the development of reading and math skills," explained Shirley Cloke, program director for Head Start.

"An awful lot of money has been spent to help develop these skills, but there are a number of children whose deprived background tends to turn them off to learning.

'That's part of the reason we allowed this calculator program to be introduced at this school. We wanted to combine the development of these skills with an enthusiasm for learn-

Use of the calculator units is combined with specially developed math games that enable the child to link concrete objects (such as plastic frogs, marbles or crackers) to abstract numerical representations.

Kahn, decreased the once-high delinquency rate of the students.

"It is much more than a game," Kahn said. "It reinforces what they have learned and becomes enriching. It grabs their attention and enthusiasm.

Campaigner Fonda: not so plain Jane acquires new role

By JOHN KERN Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD __ She is 38 - and doesn't look it - slim, with long, flowing brown hair, and hands that rarely stop moving.

She is a wife, mother, actress, political activist and campaigner for her husband, Tom Hayden, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for U.S. senator in California.

Her name is Jane Fonda. Fonda on Hayden:

"This is a mind that is very unique. He is one of the few people who thinks strategically, who is really a leader.

"There's been a few of them -Martin Luther King was one for the black people — and you know, I knew this before I fell in love with Tom and lived with him, because I've read what he's written.'

Fonda on Fonda

"I'm not a political leader. I'm not a visionary. I'm of average intelligence, I'm a good public speaker, I'm a famous person, I have a lot of energy and so my strength as a political person is in public, is in going out and going on the media and speaking and mobilizing people. I'm not a strategic thinker.

She uses her name and reputation and familiar face as tools - things to be employed to accomplish a task:

CBers' takeover provokes protest

Some hobbyists who guide their model boats and airplanes by radio control are up in arms over a proposal that would allow citizens band radio enthusiasts to take over some of the modelers' radio chan-

The FCC says it is receiving letters from modelers protesting such a takeover, proposed as one means of providing the jammed CB airwaves with more channels.

With almost one million Americans a month joining the CB craze, there are an estimated 15 million CB sets on the air in each community.

Why are you penalizng the radio control enthusiasts, who never break FCC regulations, and reward the CB operators, who flagrantly break FCC regulations and brag about it," wrote Dan Amburn, vice president of the Temple Aero Modelers Model Airplane Club of Temple, Tex. "We need more frequencies, not less. The proposal to let the CBers move into the 27 megahertz band used by the radio control hobbyists is part of a plan to provide as many as 99 channels for CBers. But the plan is stymied now by technicians trying to eliminate the interference that is created by more than 44 channels. In addition to six frequencies in the 27 megahertz band, the radio control hobbyists use seven channels in the 72 megahertz band, but the normal equipment cannot use both.

Steven Hansen of Glenview, Ill., wrote the FCC to complain the proposal would "create a great cost burden on the people who are equipped with radios set up to operate on the 27 megahertz frequencies. My cost alone would be in the area of $500 to replace or convert my radio

ATLANTA - When the General Electric Co. evaluated its financial training program last year, it found that blacks were performing below expectations. So a special meeting was held that summer with blacks who were moving up the corporate ladder to determine the roots of the

The problem lay not in the business skills, the company discovered, but in areas that had been taken for granted. "We found a real gap in the business language," Robert Canning, manager of the GE financial manpower operation, said last week at a seminar during the annual convention of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business.

Acronyms were a particular problem in the language area, Canning said. Another problem was transportation, since "most blacks don't own cars." Decent housing was often difficult to find, he said, and there was the added burden of loneliness for the employee. Many of the blacks were from small schools in the South near their homes and were assigned to plants in alien communities "with no effort to fit them in," Canning said.

General Electric's training program combines two years of work in various jobs by day, and five courses of 16 weeks each by night. About 10 per cent of those in the program are black, Canning said. But their accomplishment "leaves something to be desired." There is a need, he said, for the colleges and universities to offer career counseling as early as possible. The schools must explain business and the system to minorities, he said. "We need competent, smart young minorities and we need your

Earlier, two deans from disparate sections of the country said they have seen a decline in corporate interest in hiring blacks. John Day of the Purdue University School of Industrial Management said the disinterest particularly affects the mediocre student thought to have good potential for development.

William Dill of the New York University Graduate School of Business Administration said that disinterest by business matches a disinclination by blacks - and Hispanics - to invest more time in than others. "The Indianapolis black masters degree programs in business. The problem is particularly acute among products of the black

"They've got to learn the language the rest of the country speaks," Dill said. "They have to learn to live in an integrated society, to pick up the feeling of what the world out there (beyond the ghetto) is like." And before they can even begin to stretch their boundaries, Dill said, they must first overcome poor teaching and lack of encouragement.

But some ghettoes are more equal

At the seminar, Milton Wilson, dean of the Howard University School of Business and Public Administration, spoke of the need to get more and better blacks into the business "pipeline." One way, he said is to send more blacks through masters' and doctorate programs at traditionally white schools, and to recruit more quality whites to teach at predominantly black schools.

The corporate interest is needed to sustain that movement, and it has begun to wane, according to Sterling Schoen, a professor at the Washington University School of Business and Public Administration. Schoen also heads a recruitment effort of a consortium of six universities.

"There seems to be a cooling of enthusiasm and a slowing of effort,' Schoen said. He quoted an unnamed corporate vice president as remarking that after a decade of working hard to recruit blacks, "Everyone is

Chicago cracks down on smoking violators

CHICAGO - "One time, when I told a young woman on an El train to put out her cigarette she refused, and blew smoke in my face," said patrolman James Tait, 31, of the Chicago police department's mass transit unit.

"When I told her she was under arrest, the woman said the only way I'd take her was bodily. So, I called for help, and me and the other officers lifted the woman, and three of her friends who tried to block us, off the

The woman's three companions were charged with interfering with a policeman and the smoker with resisting arrest and smoking in a public conveyance. She wound up paying a $50 fine for the latter offense in Smokers Court - the newest addition to Chicago's court system and the city's strongest weapon in its effort to eliminate smoking on buses or on elevated trains.

Officially, Smokers Court is called Public Safety Court. It was established July 1, 1975, to hear minor cases involving the city's gun control ordinance and violations of the antismoking ordinance, and it may be the only such court in the country.

The antismoking ordinance, passed in 1955, wasn't strongly enforced until

Wachowski, presiding judge of the municipal district which includes Smokers Court, "a rising number of complaints" from citizens about smoking on public transportation forced police to step up their enforcement

In the past, smoking cases "farmed out to various misdemeanor courts with no uniformity of decision," said Wachowski. Under Chicago's ordinance, it is illegal for anybody "to smoke or carry a lighted cigarette, cigar or pipe in any... elevated train or subway and in any public conveyance having a capacity of more than seven passengers operating within the city

Later amendents also prohibit smoking in large retail stores and elevators. The fines were $5 per offense at first. Now, they range from $50 to $300, although the maximum is seldom imposed. Offenders are issued citations to appear, and no jail sentences are prescribed but defendants sometimes serve time in jail when they cannot make $25 bail. The goal of Smokers Court "is to put some sanctions in the law," declared associate judge Walter B. Bieschke, who is currently hearing cases there. "Sometimes, you'll see someone sitting there on a train, puffing away,

Does Smokers Court cut down on smoking on public transportation, as its planners hoped? Almost everybody connected with it emphatically says "yes." "There's no doubt about it being effective on elevated and subway trains," Police Capt. James Delaney, commander of the 300-man mass transit unit that enforces the ordinance on the trains and in stations. Delaney said there were 803 arrest citations in 1975 for smoking violations, and 587 from January to April of this year and that some smoking arrests also result in charges on other offenses, such as possession of a weapon or narcotics, or disorderly conduct.

Smokers Court is a small, welllighted, pleasant room, tucked into a first-floor corner of the city's traffic court building. Traffic court judges, such as Bieschke, rotate in hearing its and most defendants plead guilty. Public defender Harold Cowens and patrolman Tait agree that the case load is now decreasing - a strong indication that the courts effectiveness is getting across to

Credit rules changing for widows, divorcees

NEW YORK (AP) - When a divorced woman goes to a bank in search of credit she would be wise to bring along copy of the court order stipulating the size and terms of the alimony she receives.

Who says so? The American Bankers Association, which has just completed a statement on some of the new credit conditions introduced recently because of laws, social pressures, and changes in banker attitudes.

The new conditions, some of them relatively minor in themselves, add up to a significantly new credit world for the 15 million divorced or widowed women, a world that many of them still might not understand

One of the biggest changes is that regular payments awarded to a woman in a divorce action can be used to demonstrate creditworthiness. Before last October, most creditors automatically discounted its importance.

A provision in the Equal Credit Opportunity Act changed that. Creditors now must consider alimony, child support and maintenance payments in assessing a woman's ability to effectively handle credit.

And then, as there is in most matters matrimonial, there is the other side of the story.

The woman is liable for debts taken on jointly with the husband, whether she is divorced or widowed, although she is not liable, of course, for debts the man took on individually,

"If your ex-husband's bad credit history damages your chances of getting credit, you should be prepared to present the creditor reasons why that should not reflect on your personal willingness or ability to pay," the ABA says.

Perhaps, it suggests your husband had personal habits that kept your family over its head in debt, or maybe was laid off or injured and couldn't

"Proof of this type of situation may help convince your creditor that you were not responsible for the black marks on your credit history," the ABA says, summarizing with this interpretation: "Simply stated, then, if your husband — as your partner — had a good history, you can take advantage of it. If he had a poor history, you don't have to take the blame for it.'

Federal law now makes it illegal for creditors to force women to reapply for credit, or to impose new conditions on existing credit, solely because of divorce or the death of a husband.

Creditors retain the right, however, to determine whether the financial arrangement with the former husband is an oral or written agreement or a court order, and to ask how long and how regularly payments have been received, and how good the ex's credit is.

Instead of ignoring part-time income, creditors now must consider whether it might be considered reliable, but in doing so they may question whether this income will continue to be received-Therefore, says the ABA, a signed letter from the employer, verifying the long-range stability of the parttime employment, may help in obtaining credit.

When a woman applies for credit on her own she can capitalize on the credit history of accounts carried in her ex-huband's name, if she also used those accounts.

It is also to the woman's benefit if she cosigned with her husband for a mortgage, car loan or personal loan, and these were paid off properly according to the loan agreement, the ABA says, adding:

"It even counts in your favor if you can show - through check records that you managed the family finances and were responsible for seeing that installment loans and credit bills were paid off, even though your name was not on the loan.'

But the law says lenders can ask a woman to file a new credit application if the ability to pay seems seriously affected by the new status, the ABA says. And because of lower income, the woman might have to offer collateral.

Significant also is that creditors no longer can ask a woman to obtain a cosigner on a loan that a married man or bachelor with the same credit record would obtain without an additional signature.

Egyptian vice president proving quite capable

By THOMAS W. LIPPMAN The Washington Post

CAIRO - The only man in Egypt who occasionally commands bigger headlines than President Anwar Sadat is his ubiquitous vice president, Hosni Mobarak.

The former fighter pilot was a relatively obscure figure when Sadat selected him to replace a figurehead predecessor, but after little more than a year in office Mobarak has gained recognition and respectability.

Many Egyptian and foreign analysts believe that Mobarak, whom Sadat has entrusted with one sensitive mission after another, is being trained to play a leading role in Egypt's political future.

"He has grown immensely on the job and now must be taken seriously as a candidate for the succession, said a Western military analyst who knows Mobarak well.

He was speaking shortly after the vice president's return from a visit to China that was portrayed here as an unalloyed triumph. Mobarak headed a high-ranking Egyptian delegation that negotiated arms and trade agreements with the Peking government, but there is some question about how many of the trip's accomplishments were the result of work by Mobarak personally.

Similar doubts, arising from Mobarak's political inexperience and lack of intellectual accomplishments, have been expressed after his abroad. But officials who have worked and traveled with him say he is a hard worker and a fast learner who now must be taken much more seriously than when he took office. There is no sign that Mobarak's views on Egypt's foreign or domestic policies diverge in any important way from those of Sadat. His elevation to prominence is seen by some observers as an attempt by Sadat and his advisers to assure continuity in the country's future course.

At 48, Mobarak is nine years younger than Sadat. Unlike Sadat, former President Gamal Abdel Nasser and the other "free officers" who led Egypt's 1952 revolution, he was commissioned into the military previous troubleshooting assignments after World War II and représents a new generation in the Egyptian leadership.

A vigorous man who likes to play squash every day, Mobarak brings an image of youthful energy to a government dominated by aging figures. He was commander of the air force during the 1973 war with Israel and is said to have performed well, an important qualification in a country where the approbation of the military is an essential element of governmental authority.

The occasional mention of Mobarak as a possible successor to Sadat may be premature. Under Egyptian law, the vice president does not automatically take over if the top job becomes vacant, but he, or someone else, is nominated by The People's Assembly.

Since Mobarak's political prominence was bestowed upon him by Sadat, it is not clear whether Mobarak has developed any personal following or could exert any influence beyond his role as Sadat's right-hand

The Egyptian vice president has become a familiar figure in the Arab world as Sadat has sent him out on a variety of assignments over the past year. It was Mobarak who drew the touchy chore of mediating the dispute among Morocco, Algeria and Mauritania over the future of the debate on Angola. He has been dispatched to see Syrian President Hafez Assad, from whom Sadat has been estranged for some time. Mobarak went to several Arab countries to explain Egypt's decision to sign last year's second Sinai disengagement agreement with Israel.

Reagan staff long on dedication, but short on political experience

By LOU CANNON The Washington Post

The staff Ronald Reagan has assembled in his uphill battle for the Republican presidential nomination is long on dedication to the candidate but short on practical political experience.

In tone, temperament and outlook it is an accurate reflection of Reagan, who tends to be reserved in private and uninterested in the details of practical "People are always saying that the governor should mix more with politicians, but you have to press secretary, has had successful campaign remember that he is a very private person," says Michael K. Deaver, the Reagan chief of staff. "And I tend to be that way myself."

Deaver has been accused by California rivals of the former governor for precisely this reason. Reagan to follow the familiar pattern of campaign-Reagan likes his quiet time in the interludes of presidential campaigning, and Deaver, for eight years the No. 2 man on the gubernatorial staff in California, usually sees that he gets it.

The Reagan staff has no nuts-and-bolts, high level political organizer compared to Stuart Spencer on the President Ford Committee or F. Clifton White, who managed Reagan's brief presidential campaign in 1968 and was Barry M. Goldwater's chief delegate hunter in 1964.

Of the top level only Lyn Nofziger, normally a management experience. He was in charge of Richard Nixon's California campaign in 1972.

John P. Sears, the national campaign manager, was a Nixon delegate hunter in 1968 at the age of 27. But Sears, in the words of one Reagan intimate, is "a strategist and a conceptualizer, not a political

Of the others in high places on the Reagan staff, Deaver managed Reagan's losing campaign for a tax-limitation initiative in California, research director and speech writer Peter Hannaford lost his only race for public office, and Jim Lake, who has become press secretary while Nofziger attempts to organize the California campaign, had his first campaign experience as the Reagan field man in New Hamp-

The absence of a high-level national organizer has made Reagan heavily dependent upon in-state advice from such politicians as former New Hampshire Gov. Hugh Gregg and former Florida GOP Chairman L.E. (Tommy) Thomas, both of whom urged

Reagan has never liked this kind of campaigning. In California he was at his best when he dropped the traditional barnstorming and relied on television, of which he has superb command.

In an interview during his first swing through Texas early in April, Reagan said he has proposed his national telecast over the objections of some staff members. The telecast revived Reagan's campaign

Some Reagan aides are keenly aware that their candidate's campaign might have benefited from more organizational experience at the national level. But Sears rejects the notion that anything done for Reagan organizationally might have made the difference in New Hampshire, where Mr. Ford had 49.39 per cent of the vote to Reagan's 47.96 per cent.

numbers to vote for the President or against Reagan. The closely knit Reagan staff has struggled from the outset to overcome the logistical difficulties of having a candidate based on the West Coast, a campaign headquarters in Washington and a media headquarters in New York. The five top staff members - Sears, Deaver, Hannaford, Nofziger and Lake — confer frequently by telephone and try to arrange staff meetings on the now-infrequent occasions when Reagan is near the East Coast, as he was recently in Savannah

The staff is small, all-male, all-white and largely Protestant. Except for Sears, a Catholic New Yorker, it has a strong California flavor.

Sears, a 35-year-old attorney who was former deputy counsel in the Nixon White House, was sought by both the Ford and the Reagan committees.

Cool and calculating, Sears has spent most of his time trying to make a challenge to an incumbent President seem realistic. Sears believes that Reagan could be elected if he could be nominated, and expresses the near-unanimous view in the Reagan camp that Democrat Jimmy Carter is very capable of beating Mr. Ford.

Sears based many of his original assumptions on a Reagan New Hampshire victory; he still maintains that "everything would have been different" if Reagan had prevailed there.

Among other staff members Sears is personally respected and liked but some, even in the inner circle, have doubts about his management abilities. Others say that he has been handicapped by Reagan's penchant for dealing directly with different supporters and staff members rather than giving Sears overall effective control of the campaign.

Deaver, a 38-year-old Sacramentan, has the most administrative experience.

Although his political judgment has been questioned repeatedly by Reagan California appointees now in the Ford camp, Deaver is valued by Reagan as quiet, competent and well-organized.

Hannaford is a close friend of Deaver. The two men set up an advertising agency, after Reagan left office in 1973, to manage the former governor's affairs and help establish a lucrative column and radio program for him.

France forging ahead with plans for new 160-mph train service

The Observer, London

PARIS - As France begins building its first major railway line in more than 70 years, the train is about to make a startling comeback in Europe — at more than 160 miles an hour.

Trains are now seen as the transport of the future in the Common Market as Britain, Germany and Italy go ahead with high-speed passenger train services. But nowhwere is there likely to be a more spectacular plunge into the "new" form of transport

The government has just approved the building of a 257-mile link between Paris and Lyons for a high speed, milti-frequency train that is already being called the two-city metro.

When it comes into service in 1982, the orange train with its shark-like profile will be operating at a frequency of at least one every half an hour, while in summer it will leave every five minutes. The journey from Paris to Lyons will be cut from more than four hours to just two hours.

The old dog-leg track to Lyons via Dijon will be freed for a second-phase revolution in which France will make the railway a focus for freight traffic.

THE PARIS-LYONS passenger express, known as the TGV (for "tres grande vitesse," very great speed), is described by French railroads chairman

PEKING — Security measures have been visibly stepped up in Peking for Chinese and foreigners alike as a result of last month's incidents in the capital.

Following clashes between rioters and security forces in Tien An Men square on April 5 and the death of a Chinese on April 29 as he threw a bomb in front of the Soviet Embassy — also killing two Soviet sentries - the streets of the capital are now patrolled at night by groups of militiamen armed with clubs and soldiers with fixed bayonets.

These precautions were particularly strict on May Day in Peking's parks where all the top Chinese leaders appeared in the midst of crowds largely composed of soldiers and militiamen.

At the fireworks display on the evening of May Day, access to the official platform was more kept a close eye on the crowds of Chinese and on foreign diplomats and journalists.

Security measures have also been tightened around distinguished foreign visitors to China. This was the case first of all during the visit by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Crosland when journalists were firmly kept further back than usual in the room where official talks began. Last week, this correspondent was not allowed - an unusual step — to follow a state visitor from his own country, French Health Minister Simon Veil, into the Great Hall of the People where she was meeting Premier Hua Kuo-Feng.

This week, during the visit of Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew parking in reserved parking places in front of the same building was for the first time forbidden for journalists based in Peking during the official talks

Jacques Pelissier as the "democratization of speed" and part of an overall railway program to achieve a "more just and humane economic balance."

But this philosophizing on the social role of France's railways disguises a shrewd business analysis that is shared by other Common Market countries. The French decided to go ahead with the TGV after studying the profitable Japanese "bullet train." The final incentive was the oil crisis.

It was estimated that the TGV would use a fifth of the energy per passenger than the cheapest European shorthaul jumbo, the Airbus, and a quarter of that for a standard car.

Station to station, it is expected to have the edge over air travel and could easily have been much faster if 161 mph had not been judged its most economic operating speed in present fuel price conditions. The TGV, in fact, runs at over 185 mph.

'WE ARE EXPECTING 15 million passengers a year," a railroad spokesman said, explaining that there would be at least 55 services a day in each direction. "We expect to have recuperated the 5.6

Power will be by electricity and a run in the orange train on the 37-mile test track between Bordeaux and Hendaye is an eerie experience. As kilometer posts pass at the rate of one every 12 seconds, the only marked noise is that of the air conditioning. The noise of the 5000-watt turbines is left behind.

The main technical problem is braking. There are four independent braking systems but it still needs nearly four kilometers to bring the train to a halt from its top speed. It has taken 10 years to bring the TGV into being but its consecration will be the visible effect of the renewal of the railway. Before it went on to the drawthe big nationalized industries.

THE TGV will be developed to cover the whole of the key south-eastern region of France, eventually linking Paris and Marseille in five hours while steadily releasing more track for tremendous invest-

This year, about 3.3 billion francs (about $7 billion) is being spent as part of a five-year program to replace the old, green compartment trains with coral-colored coaches with aircraft style seating and air conditioning. At the same time, more money is being spent on experimental trains such as the Special 2000 from Paris to Nice which has movies, a

'nightclub'' and hostesses on board. One of the fall-outs of the investment program will be a boost to export schemes: half of France's rail equipment production is sold abroad. The inspiration is the success of Paris's rubber-tired underground railway system which has won the state-owned Paris carefully protected than usual and dozens of soldiers transport authority contracts to build metros in Teheran, Cairo, Montreal, Mexico City and Santiago.

> THE NEXT PHASE of the rail traffic renewal pean countries when big improvement programs in Britain and Germany are finished.

> Europe of 25,000 miles of key links has been drawn up while standardization of electrification systems will give a big boost to such systems as the 300,000-coach Europ" poll which crosses all national boundaries.

Old Mint impressive

By DARYL LEMBKE The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — The second-graders touring the Old Mint here were obviously impressed by the stack of 71 gold bars.

Pressing her nose against the plastic case of the exhibit, a little girl exclaimed: "It's a trillion

The boy standing next to her had a word for it too, and corrected her.

'No, it's a skillion!" he said.

Actually, the gold bullion in the exhibit is worth about $4 million at market prices, and the nuggets displayed with the bars are worth an additional

Even richer historically is the Old Mint that houses them - a sandstone-faced brick building in which many other remnants of the Old West are displayed. After a controversy over whether to tear it down or preserve it, the proud old building has been declared a National Historic Landmark, and its restored interior is open to the public as a museum. Now the exterior of the building is being repaired. Heavy overhead cornices are being replaced with firmly anchored and lighter plastic replicas because it was feared that the old ones would be a hazard to people on the sidewalk in an earthquake. Iron reinforcing rods, crumbling mortar and broken stones are also being replaced.

Robert Winn, superintendent of the restoration work, said the exterior rehabilitation should be completed by July.

"When we get it done, it should last another 100 years if it's properly maintained," he said.

At the time the Old Mint at 5th and Mission Streets was completed in 1874, the San Francisco Call reported: "The fire department will have little trouble quenching any conflagration that may arise within its walls, and unless earthquake gives it a subterranean quietus, it bids fair to stand up for cen-

That, it turned out, was putting it mildly. The old building survived both a horrendous earthquake and a disastrous fire. Most of the rest of the downtown area was wiped out by the earthquake and fire of April 18, 1906, but the Old Mint was saved by its employes and soldiers. They had a water supply from the two wells in the inner court and fought a successful seven-hour battle against the flames. The mint then played a vital role in the city's recovery. An account of that period, issued by the U.S. Bureau of the Mint, explains it this way: "Left standing virtually alone amid the rubble of the disaster, with $200 million in gold in its vaults, the mint was the only financial institution in the city able to open its doors for business. The subtreasury had been destroyed, bank buildings lay in ruins; the banking system ground to a dead stop.

An orderly flow of money in and out of the city was vital to its survival...Only the Mint was in a position to begin accepting and administering the relief funds that poured in and, until the banks could once again operate, the mint handled all remittances to and from the city and disbursements within the city

When the city had recovered, the mint went back to stamping out coins until more space was needed. It was deactivated in 1937 when a new, larger building was opened out of the downtown area on Market Street. Various federal government agencies then used the Old Mint until 1968, when it was vacated en-

History buffs sought to have it made into a museum. They pointed out that the structure is a fine example of "federal Greek revival architecture," the first building of that style built in the West and the last major example of that style erected in the

A decision had to be made on whether the federal government should spend $2 million to wreck the building, which had fallen into disrepair, or should spend $3 million to restore it.

Mrs. Mary Brooks, director of the Bureau of the Mint and a woman with a keen sense of history, made an inspection tour and then pushed hard for restoration until the decision was made.

Now the building houses both the museum and offices where millions of mail orders are processed for special coins and medals produced by the Bureau of

The trip was a smashing success. The Junior Council Seniors returned from a weekend at Big Bend. Everyone had a great time hiking and swimming in the hot springs. A great big thanks goes to Mr. Rasco and family for helping us and putting up

Sports around MHS are becoming scarce. The seasons are over, and for many sports the spring training has started. The spring sports banquet is scheduled Friday. Besides sports other UIL competition ended last weekend with the speech and drama contests in Austin. Our representatives did very well. Mike Bishop won third place in informative speaking, Vicki Goodenough and Kay Rever were both finalists, Wanda Holland and Clay Guthrie placed second and third in poetry. The One Act Play won third place against stiff competition. Mark Folger and Wanda Holland were named to the State All Star Cast. Congratulations to Mr. Buchanan, Mrs. Holt and both teams.

The senior All Night Party is May 27, from 11 p. m. to 5 a. m. at the Midland County Exhibit Building. All seniors and their dates are invited. Tickets will be on sale from May 17-21 for $6 a person. Seniors, get your tickets early.

On the academic side of school there have been several awards presented in the last week. Mike Mauldin received the Rensselaer Medal for excellence in math and science. Mike Bishop received the outstanding science student award. David Turner was named salutatorian. And Jeff Webb and Susan Tighe were honored by the Elks. Way to go.

Detroit now second only to Big Apple

DETROIT (AP) - Detroit, the nation's fifth largest city, is second only to New York City in the financial problems it is facing, but it is unlikely that the Motor City will find itself in as much money trouble as the Big Apple.

City officials and civic leaders are quick to point out that the problems are different. The Detroit situation suggests that while America's urban centers face complex fiscal problems, it is unlikely that any other city will go the route of New York in the near future.

Tough Michigan laws make it practically impossible for Detroit to borrow its way into trouble the way New York did. Also, default on bonds and notes is nearly impossible.

"Whatever happens, we will not go the route of New York City," said Detroit's Mayor Coleman A. Young as he surveyed this city's struggle against fiscal disaster. Nonetheless, he and other city officials describe the city's problems as critical.

Detroit became one of America's most financially-plagued cities because:

-Its unemployment rate is 17.5 per cent, the highest of any major U.S. city. Its jobless rate has been the worst in the country throughout the 1970s. -As in New York, and other older cities, businesses and skilled workers have fled Detroit's center city in the past decade. Left behind are half of Michigan's elderly — 200,000 persons over 65. About 15 per cent of the city's families live under the pover--Detroit's population has declined by 20 per cent in 20 years, from about 1.85 million to 1.5 million. -The city's mainstay, the auto industry, has perked up in recent months after its deep slump, but many of those jobs have left the inner city for the suburbs. Many auto related businesses have gone bankrupt. There are no firm figures on the relationship between the auto industry and the city, but some city experts estimate the automobile accounts for half the city's total employment.

—The city's budget has grown from $322.2 million in 1958-59 to a current $808.7 million, a far smaller percentage increase than New York City, where the budget grew in the same period from $2.2 billion to a present $12.7 billion.

All this has left Detroit with a rapidly dwindling tax base unable to fund services for residents badly in need of them.

"I will not try to kid you," Young told the Detroit Economic Club recently. "Detroit is not feeling the (economic) upswing being felt in other parts of the

In the past four years, city tax revenues increased by only 16 per cent, while the city's expense budget grew by nearly one-third, from $622 million in 1972 to the current $808.7 million.

The city has found itself unable to balance its $808.7 million budget this fiscal year without massive layoffs and service cuts.

Detroit's workforce, which a panel of the city's top businessmen, bankers, union and civic leaders found to be lean in the first place, has been cut 18.5 per cent from about 24,000 in July 1974 to a present 19,500.

Another 1600 are scheduled to be laid off in July. In the most recent round of layoffs, the city eliminated 1,200 workers, 825 of them police. This will leave Detroit, with one of the nation's highest crime rates, with a police force of about 4,300 patrolmen, about one-sixth the number in New York City. Even before the cuts. Detroit stood 16th among the top 24 cities in terms of city employes per 10,000 citizens, according to the task force study, known as the Pelham-Fraser Report.

The cuts are part of a current effort to erase a $103-million budget deficit in the fiscal year beginning July 1. Under tough Michigan laws, Detroit's mayor soon will have to present a gimmick-free, balanced budget to the city council, and later the state legislature.

Thus. Detroit, with one-fifth the population of New York City, will be left with well under one-tenth the 253,000 municipal employes the eastern city has, even after massivè cuts.

New York provides such services as higher education not supplied by Detroit.

Despite the current crisis, Detroit's city administration, in office for 27 months, has gotten high marks for management ability and candor from citizens, bankers, businessmen and unions alike.

"We have been impressed by "... the accuracy of these deficit estimates and we have developed confidence in the validity of the figures." concluded the Pelham-Fraser study.

By comparison, a team of auditors, and the U.S. Congress can't figure out the extent of New York City's troubles because of the mess its financial books

Detroit, unlike New York, has not and cannot under state law run up huge operating deficits year after year or borrow to cover everyday expenses.

Detroit has outstanding bonds and notes equal to $390.2 million, about $265 for each citizen. New York has built up a debt of about $12 billion, about $1,500 Still, in the past year Detroit has had trouble borrowing money. Its interest rates reached as high as 9.9 per cent on one bond borrowed last August, and were still over 9-per cent in its latest borrowing. And the bond rating agency, Standard & Poor's, recently lowered the city's credit rating to a medium-grade triple-B from a stronger single-A.

S&P suspended New York City's credit rating a year Late in March, Detroit's top banks refused for the first time in memory to purchase the full value of a $40-million note, picking up only $27 million. In an accompanying statement, the banks said they had no intention of financing a growing city deficit as did New York's banks. State law makes it practically impossible for

Detroit to default on bonds or notes because the city must set aside a separate fund out of property tax revenues to cover debt service. Detroit did, in the depths of the Great Depression in April 1932, default on its payrolls. Ironically, several New York City banks agreed to extend about $7.5 million in ceredit to Detroit in 1932, on condition that they be repaid first. In February 1933, Detroit had no choice but to default on a note when Michigan declared a bank holiday and the city could not get to its deposited money on time.

City and state officials recently agreed to ask the legislature to approve an eight-point package providing about $35 million in direct state aid for the city Officials still are struggling to gain new revenues for the city, including either a one per cent increase in the city's resident and nonresident income tax, or an increase in state taxes on liquor and cigarettes. Legalization of casino gambling or, greyhound racing have also been suggested by Young.

Gov. William G. Milliken opposes all those measures, and they are given no chance of passing the Republican legislature this year.

In the last 16 years, according to the Pelham-Fraser report, the city's property tax rate has climbed 20 per cent and the school tax has nearly doubled. A utility user tax also was enacted, and the city introduced a resident and nonresident income

Folk festival gaining strength

KERRVILLE — The Kerrville Folk Festival, almost washed out by heavy rains in 1975, is coming back stronger than ever in 1976 to mark its fifth anniversary

The festival, scheduled May 27-30, will offer four evening concerts, two special workshops and three afternoon concerts, plus the annual National Yodeling Contest and the traditional Folk Mass.

Site of most of the events will be Quiet Valley Ranch nine miles south of Kerrville on State Highway 16.

The festival will be held concurrently with the annual Texas State Arts and Crafts Fair, scheduled on the grounds of Schreiner College in Kerrville, and certain folk festival events are planned at the fair for the convenience and enjoyment of fair

The folk festival's big evening concerts will showcase the talents of more than two dozen Texas-based performers and their bands plus almost a dozen out-of-state performers, to mix things up a bit.

Favorite performers returning for a second, or third or fourth, year include Steve Fromholz, Bill and Bonnie Hearne, Kenneth Threadgill, accomodations also may be obtained Carolyn Hester, Peter Yarrow, Allen from that address.

Damron, Guy Clark, Bobby Bridger and Chubby Wise. There also will be many first-timers for the festival programs.

TV soap operas given party

By JUDITH MARTIN The Washington Post

NEW YORK - Adam Drake, the lawyer, moved easily through the party crowd at the Players Club, sometimes with his daytime wife and sometimes with his nighttime and weekend wife. He happened to be with both when his fiancee, the assistant district attorney, ran up to give him a kiss.

At the Pinnacle Club the next night, Lisa Colman found a quiet corner for a moment's chat with her first husband, Bob Hughes, before her other admirers surrounded her again.

"You know, I always go after Bob when he's single," she said merrily. Mrs. Colman is now married to someone else - "Disappointingly, I've only been married four times, but I have had 32 lovers' - and runs a bookshop with Hughes' second wife, Sandy, from whom he is also divorced.

"Well, I'm single now," he replied with a big, challenging smile. His third wife was recently killed, leaving him with a small child.

You can't really say, "Well, that's New York for you." Adam Drake and everybody at the Players Club were from the city of Monticello. Lisa Colman. Bob Hughes and their crowd at the Pinnacle Club are from Oakdale.

As millions of television viewers know, and know intimately. Monticello is the locale of the soap opera 'The Edge of Night," and Oakdale is where "As the World Turns" takes place. The writers of both describe the towns in terms of Cincinnati, Ohio, which, as all soap opera writers know, is the home of Proctor and Gamble, which sponsors six major soap

Each of the soap operas is given an anniversary party every five years, and last week marked 20 years on the air for "As the World Turns," which is on CBS, and "The Edge of Night" on ABC. Proctor and Gamble's head of daytime programming presented a silver bowl from Tiffany's to one, a silver tray from Tiffany's to the other, and gave both

The shows' logos had been put into icing on cakes which were ceremonially cut - a smoky skyline for 'The Edge of Night;'' a three-dimensional globe for 'As the World Turns.'

The fact that there was a dramatic "Edge of Night" view all around the "As the World Turns" party was only because the Pinnacle Club is high in mid-town Manhattan. What the "Edge of Night" party had at the Players Club was a welcome from Arthur H. Nations, a in an Austin dinner American movies filmed president Alfred Drake and a notice to members on the bulletin board not to mind the crowd because the revenues were important to the club.

There were more than 200 at each event - the acting company with their off-hours spouses or

The estate's rustic opera house, with its commanding view of the valley below, could be used as an exhibit hall and its sprawling horse stables could be converted into art classrooms, she said.

A SAGGING, old dormitory-like building — called the Villetta and previously used to house the casts of performing companies - might be used again as a visitors' residence, Wangler added.

"We will try to revive Byrdcliffe, because that clearly is what Peter Whitehead intended in his will. But it's not going to be done next year, I can assure you that," said Wangler, reflecting the wariness of several other Guild directors. To make the place alive again will take much doing. Byrdcliffe looks like a fading Adirondak hunting camp. Its winding mountain roads have been partly washed away by heavy spring rains, and its once stately cottages have sunk on their foundations and become shoddy with time. Floor boards have become warped and ceilngs have begun to leak.

'If the Guild is up to saving that old place, the more power to them. But a lot of people wonder if there's that much vitality in the Guild," said Geddy Sveikauskas, co-editor of the weekly Woodstock Times.

"PETER WHITEHEAD was a good tennis player and a prodigious drinker, but he had few intellectual interests. He let Byrdcliffe go a little. But with good management, the Guild might be able to pull it out," said Alf Evers, an author form nearby Shady who is Woodstock's recognized historian.

It is impossible to contemplate Byrdcliffe's future without making an attempt to understand its past.

Byrdcliffe was the foundation of the "Woodstock Nation" that thousands of flower children created overnight in a dairy pasture 40 miles from here in 1969. But long before the flower children — or even their parents were born, an irreverent, rebellious movement was under way in

WORLD OF STAMPS

Four-stamp strip due for July 4th issuance

The approval of The Declaration of Independence by the Continental Congress on July 4, 1776, will be commemorated by the issuance of a strip of four 13-cent stamps in Philadelphia July 4.

The four stamps in the strip form a design entity and reproduce John Trumbull's famous painting, "The Declaration of Independence.

In addition to appealing to philatelists and mail users, the July 4 issue is expected to be of interest to millions of others because it provides an opportunity to obtain an inexpensive memento of the nation's 200th birthday. For 52 cents the public can receive the four stamps and the "July 4, 1976, Philadelphia, PA'' first day of issue cancellation on envelopes addressed to the sender of the order. Persons placing such orders must provide their own envelopes.

Contrary to what is often assumed, July 4 is not the anniversary of the Declaration being signed by the delegates to the Continental Congress. The only person to sign the document on July 4 was John Hancock, the president of the Continental Congress, whose signature was attested by Charles Thomson. Secretary of the Congress.

Hancock's signing marked the adoption of the Declaration and this was signalled by the ringing of the document took place at Independence Hall on July 8 and it was read before Washington's army on July 9.

Members of Congress present on August 2 began affixing their signatures to the parchment copy on that day. The last to sign was Thomas McKean of Delaware, on May 29, the opening day of Interphil 76.

The stamps were designed by Vincent E. Hoffman, the Director of Communications Production for the Postal Service, who also deisgned the Spirit of 76 stamps issued on January

The image area size of the strip of four stamps is 1.44 x 3.81 inches, or 36.5 x 96.7 millimeters. The overall size of the four stamps, with perforations, is 1.57 x 3.96 inches or 39.8 x 100.5 millimeters.

Perforations divide the strip into four individual stamps. In the upper left corner of each stamp, in two lines of type, appears "USA 123c." Across the bottom of each stamp, in one line of type, appears "July 4, 1776."

Customers desiring first day cancellations should address their orders to "Declaration of Independence Stamps, Postmaster, Philadelphia, PA 19104." Orders must include self-addressed envelopes to which the stamps will be affixed. The cost is 13 cents per stamp (52 cents for the strip of four) and remittance should be by check or money order instead of cash. Postage stamps will not be accepted as payment. Each envelope should be marked lightly in pencil in the upper right corner showing which stamps are desired. The return address should be written low and well to the left. especially when the order is for the strip of four, and a filler of postal card thickness in each envelope will help to assure clear cancellations and to prevent damage to envelopes.

Orders must be postmarked by July 4. Because of an anticipated heavy workload, delays in filling orders up to 60 days may be anticipated.

A Bicentennial mint set containing a collection of 30 mint U.S. postage stamps commemorating the Bicentennial of the United States was placed on sale earlier this month.

The 32-page, hard-cover limited edition album is being sold at 103 philatelic centers and windows throughout the country and is also available by mail order from the Philatelic Sales Division in Washington. The price is $7.50.

The mint set portrays the commemoration of the Bicentennial through text and illustrations related to the Bicentennial Era stamps contained in the set. These include such U.S. issues as the Boston Tea Party block of four stamps, the single

What to do with trash?

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Writer

What do you do with trash and outdoor debris until the town carts if away or permits you to burn it# That's a problem faced by some of Lexington and Concord and Bunker suburban and country dwellers.

> The problem itself is bad enough, agreed a group of women at a coffee gathering, but the situation can also touch off husband and wife feuds.

"Frustrated, I finally raked last autumn's leaves that were used as winter mulch around some bushes. But my husband challenges me:

Who is going to clean up the mess you have made?' he will say or 'Why don't you finish the project you have started?'"

It is difficult even to get the man of the house to decide where such debris should be stashed meanwhile. One woman suggested that women start compost heaps to take care of the leaves, and a brush pile, she says, can add to the attractiveness of the landscape. Her husband has grudgingly accepted her solution to the brush, but she thinks he prefers a tidier outdoor

Actually, the ladies decided, many city-bred men often cannot abide the casual rustic look which many women prefer. Women, who enjoy moving furniture about indoors and changing the decorating look from time to time, like to have something they can move about outdoors. In lieu of portable bushes and trees, compost, brush and wood piles have certain advantages in that direction. Men often prefer the easy-care conformity of smooth lawns, little round bushes, tall trees.

Comparing their experiences, many women believe there is no outdoor togetherness anyway, unless a husband invites his wife to get into the outdoor work act.

'My husband would rather have his garden tools rust from disuse than have me use them," said one woman who claims that she is usually accused of not returning the tools to their proper slot in the basement.

Such events get top priority at coffee gatherings where the aim is to play washline psychiatrist and relieve

One woman remarked that she and her husband are entirely compatible until good weather when they begin running into each other outdoors.

More or less the women came to the conclusion that some psychological factors are involved, and these are tied into neatness, tools, safety, and outdoor rights.

Owning one's own tools is a step in the right direction, and discussing projects in advance coudl be one

But as one woman says, "Why bother?" She doesn't have the slightest qualm watching her husband do yard work. She putters around in her flower garden and other times she just lies on her chaise longue and watches him work.

Unlike many hobbies, bottle collecting has been described as a bargain hobby

"There are many interesting categories of bottles common enough to acquire at a reasonable price," says Norman Heckler, an antique dealer and appraiser who specializes in American glass bottles.

Heckler first began collecting and dealing in bottles while attending Willimantic State College in Connecticut and continued the hobby during his graduate work at the University of Connecticut and while he was a teacher in the Connecticut public school system.

Today he is one of only six full-time antique bottle dealers in the United

"I taught school for 16 years," he said in an interview, "and this is more lucrative.

'I started out by digging for bottles throughout New England but today the dig areas have been used up. Heckler said. "People didn't throw away bottles back then. They reused them. They were valuable con-

According to Heckler there are more than 100,000 bottle collectors in the United States and more people are taking up the hobby every year.

Some of the types of bottles people are collecting these days include: perfume and cologne, medicine, molded flasks, bitters, sodas, mineral water, figure-molded and ordinary whisky bottles.

'It's a pastime the whole family can enjoy," he noted, "rather than a lonely pursuit.

But there are things to watch out for when you start to collect bottles. Here are some suggestions from Heckler: - Start out by reading some of the bottle magazines. Go to bottle shows and meet dealers and collectors and decide on which type(s) of bottle(s) to collect. (Heckler suggests historical - Seek out a reputable dealer who Embossed bottles are also valuable and easier to catalog.

- Avoid machine-made bottles, reproductions, bottles with screw caps or marred containers. While attractive, their potential is limited.

 Most bottles you find require cleaning. For best results, soak them in water several days.

A clear casting resin can restore damaged containers.

 You can also tell the age of a bottle by the mold seam. Machineblown seams go all the way through the bottle's mouth. Made in 1903 and after these bottles are not valuable. If the seam goes part way up the neck, the bottle was made before 1903 and

BACKYARD GARDNER

Plump up flowers with warm water

By PATRICK DENTON Copley News Service

More and more people are catching onto the very practical idea of retaining a patch in their garden for flowers to cut for bouquets.

Quite often, this area is just a few rows in the yegetable plot. In this way, the backyard gardener has a good spot for glads, zinnias, asters or whatever - flowers one doesn't mind keeping cut because this patch is not a border or some place designed for a display of constant color.

Many people receive cut flowers on such special occasions as St Valentine's Day, Mother's Day, anniversaries and birthdays, as well, so here are a few tips'for keeping cut flowers, whether they be from the florist or fresh from your summer cutting garden.

All of these tips center around one key factor: the flowers cut must be handled in such a way as to allow them to retain a maximum supply of water throughout their tissues and

Once transpiration - the loss of moisture into the air - exceeds the rate of water intake of the flower, it will quickly wilt and fade. For this reason, flowers should not be picked in the heat of the day, but rather in the cool of morning or evening when transpiration slows down. Ideally, they should be put immediately into a pail or vase of warm water as you pick them, warm water being taken in by the flower stem more quickly than cold water. The cut should be as clean and sharp as possible, so the stem is not crushed to the point where water intake is inhibited. Also, if you cut just above a side shoot, there soon will be flowers to replace the ones you have

When the vase or pail is filled but not overcrowded, put it in the cellar or some cool place right away so the rate of moisture loss from the plant tissues will be slowed down, while at the same time the warm water will be easily taken in by the flowers.

In this way, you will "plump up" your flowers. After about two hours of this lying around soaking up the good life, your flowers will be ready to arrange in whatever style suits your

Whatever type of holder you use, be sure that at least two inches of stem is under the water. A ball of scrunchedup chicken wire is, I suppose, the cheapest flower stabilizer for 'arranging although "frogs" made especially for the purpose are nice and handy

The spike holder type and plastic foam block are often used. If the stems are too fragile to stick into the foam, make a hole first for them with a slim stick or pencil.-

Remember to give your cut flowers fresh water every day, and keep it warm - around 100 degrees Fahrenheit (38 Celsius). The ideal is to empty the vase and completely refill it each time; however, many of us take the lazy man's way out and merely dump a little fresh in each

Keep your flower vases and containers - whether you use teapots, wine glasses or puneh bowls - very clean so unwanted bacteria does not hang around to clog the stems and curtail their ability to absorb water.

Don't overcrowd the containers and be sure to remove leaves that will fall below the water level. This will help keep the water clean and fresh for the flower stems to drink up with ease.

Friendly dog needs to be trained to bark

By H.P. JANS, D.V.M. Copley News Service

Q. I own a 1-year-old basset hound. What is the average weight? And how much dog food should he be fed daily? - S.H., Cloquet, Minn.

A. The average weight of the basset hound is 55 pounds. The male weighs more than the female. The weight may range from 40 to 60 pounds, depending on sex, bone size, height and body type. The amount of good food required per day would be approximately six cups (eight-ounce measure). Naturally, this amount would vary with the amount of activity and what your yeterinarian tells you is a good weight for your pet, based on height, bone size and body

Q. We would appreciate it if you could tell us how we could train our 10month-old German shepherd, a female, not to be friendly with strangers. She has been spayed. She wants to be petted by everybody. She is very obedient. Any information on home training would be helpful. J.W., Orange, Calif.

Campaign buttons seem to be sliding into oblivion

By WILLIAM ENDICOTT The Los Angeles Times

Thanks a lot, television!

First, you came up with those damnable computer projections and took all the fun out of watching returns on election nights.

And now you are cutting into the campaign button market.

In a sign of the changing times, campaign buttons appear in this election year to be following whistlestop tours and torchlight parades into political oblivion.

'I think the fellows who are holding the purse strings on the presidential candidates are facing big bills on television advertising," said Mark Rodman, who runs the Button Works in Nevada City. "And, in their list of priorities, buttons are way down the list somewhere."

Can it be that we are headed toward a day when people no longer can wear their allegiance on their lapels, when there won't be any more slogans such

"In McKinely We Trust, in Bryan

"Off the Rocks With Landon and Knox.

"Courage, Confidence and Coolidge.' "Nixon's the One." "Betty's Husband for President."

Ralph Callies of Madison, Wis., has been selling and collecting campaign buttons for 20 years and fears that not only television but voter indifference might be hurting the button business. The idea of wearing buttons is getting to be a little passe," he said. "But I would say that in the last 10 years television has had the major impact and the button field has dropped way off. The average person is getting to know candidates through the media.

"A picture button years ago was a real big thing, but today they don't mean anything because we see all these candidates all the time on TV.'

William Crookston, president of Western Badge and Trophy Co. in Los Angeles, said his company has handled just a few political orders so far this year!

"We've done about 78,000 (Gov. Edmund G.) Brown (Jr.) for President buttons, and we've had a couple of small orders from the (Fred R.) Harris people - more like souvenir items. And we've done a few (Ronald) Reagan but tons.

"We could get lucky in a couple of months, nearer the conventions, but money is tight with the committees.

"Television, direct, mail, radio and press represent exposure dollars which some of these new candidates need to have. A button requires a fairly active campaign base - lots of offices, lots oy people involved. A button symbolizes a commitment, and too many people are apolitical."

In better button days, it was common for manufacturers to recesive orders for 100,000 or more buttons from national candidates and look forward to several reorders. Now, the orders are 5,000 to 10,000 at a time, once in awhile as high as

Jimmy Carter's California news secretary, Robert Bush, said the Carter headquarters has bought only 20,000 buttons to distribute during the California primary race and is using them as fund-raising items.

They are green, about the size of a nickel, and say simply, "Jimmy Carter for President," not exactly a slogan to rank with "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too.'

Said Bush: "Part of the problem is button collectors. A lot of people want to collect them, so they take them but don't really wear them like we'd want them to. So we says that's fine, but we want a little donation. Most people are willing to pay a little for a button."

Unfortunately, said Bush, the donation usually covers just the cost "Collecting fever," in fact, has become such a problem that the president of the American Political Items Collectors, Larry L. Krug of Villa Park, Ill., recently urged his membership in a newsletter not to

He said some collectors were passing themselves off as teachers conducting mock elections in order to obtain quantities of buttons, "or using similar stories to gain quantities of items for free.

"This is nothing but blatant, spurious greed which is giving our hobby a real black eye.' Depending on the size and design, buttons usually sell for about 6 cents apiece, plus an initial charge for the first one. Rodman in Nevada City has some elaborate designs that cost as much as 25 cents each.

All this is not to say there are no buttons available this year. Actually, there is quite an assortment - there just aren't as many.

In the absence of big orders from the candidates' national headquarters, local groups such as Republican women's clubs or city and county campaign committees are ordering in small unantities.

Ronald Reagan appears to have the most, said Callies, the Wisconsin dealer-collector. "He's got a mess of stuff out. But Carter has only about four items out and, I understand, won't put out any more. Fred Harris has about 50 different buttons out but just 2,000 of this, 3,000 of that.' Rodman has made about 50,000 heart-shaped buttons for Reagan with such slogans as "California Loves Reagan" and "I Love Ronnie.

The most common Reagan button, being distributed by his national headquarters, is red, white and blue with stars and his name. His headquarters initially bought 500,000 of

The most widely distributed button for President Ford is a simple blue and white design with the words, "President Ford." His headquarters bought 1.2 million of them at a cost of $24,231 and probably will not order any more.

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama ordered millions of buttons early in his campaign from a manufacturer in

Points don't tell the whole story

By ALFRED SHEINLD

Almost all good players rely on the point count for their bids, counting 4 points for each ace, 3 for each king, 2 per queen and 1 per jack. For some bids, however, you count playing tricks rather than points.

> South dealer East-West vulnerable NORTH ♠ K752 EAST ♠ Q 6 4 None ♡ A K J 10 6 4 ♦ KQ10864 9543 SOUTH ♠ A J 10 9 8 3 Q Q 9 West North East Pass Pass Pass Pass 5 All Pass Opening lead - ♥ 8

East took two heart tricks and continued with a third heart. South decided to ruff the third heart with the jack of spades, and West's overruff defeated the contract. "Only 15 points were missing," South explained, "So I assumed that all of the points were with the player who had made all the bids.

It was naive of South to think of points in this situation. East needed 11 or 12 red cards to bid his suits to the level of five. The queen of spades would be a liability to East, not an asset. East needed tricks, not points. PROPER REASONING

Proper reasoning would lead to the right answer. If East has only one black card, then West has seven; and the odds are 7 to 1 that West has the queen of spades. Even if East has two black cards (his maximum), West must have six, and the odds will be 6 to 2 that West has the queen.

Using this information and reasoning, South should ruff the third heart with the ace of trumps and lead the jack of spades for a finesse through West. The rest would be easy.

DAILY QUESTION As dealer, you hold: SNone HAK-J1064 DKQ10864 C8. What do you say?" ANSWER: Bid one heart. You can virtually guarantee a game, but it is dangerous to open with a forcing twobid with less than 4 quick tricks. All too often, your partner puts you in an unmarkable slam because he has high cards that are useless to you.

Battle of breath begins for mouthwash market

The Los Angeles Times

A battle is shaping up in the giant mouthwash market that is designed to take your breath away.

For some time now the two top mouthwash producers — Procter and Gamble Co. and Warner-Lambert Co. - have been putting each other's products down in television com-

P and G claimed Warner-Lambert's Listerine "tastes mediciny," and Warner-Lambert said Procter and Gamble's Scope "tastes like soda

But now P and G is test marketing a new mouthwash that is designed to compete with the "mediciny" product and W-L is promoting a new mouthwash that falls into the "soda pop"

Americans have a hangup about halitosis - spending more than $250 million a year on mouthwash, more than the rest of the world combined. Last year Americans used 28.6 million gallons of mouthwash — the equivalent of 3.66 billion one-ounce doses. Canadians, the No. 2 mouthwash users, consumed only 256 million one-ounce doses.

Industry sources say 72 per cent of adult Americans use a mouthwash. A 1975 psychographic study of mouthwash users and nonusers concludes that users consider themselves "more independent, more compulsive and more concerned with leadership" than nonusers. The study also shows that users "tend to worry a good deal and are careful to lock doors.

These millions of compulsive doorlockers fall into two distinct categories: those who prefer therapeutic mouthwashes which claim germ-killing ability and those who favor a good-tasting flavor which promises only breath-freshening power. Therapeutic brands currently have 58 per cent of the market and good-tasting brands 42 per cent.

Industry sources say Listerine holds nearly 50 per cent of the entire mouthwash market and Scope nearly 20 per cent.

Five years ago Warner-Lambert began development of Listermint, a green, mint-flavored "soda pop" mouthwash, after studies showed that good-flavor users tended to be younger and more urban than those buying therapeutic brands. They also discovered that new users are more likely to begin with the more palatable flavors.

But when Listermint was test marketed in Atlanta, Denver and Indianapolis three years ago, the results were not what the company had hoped for. Warner-Lambert found that instead of luring Scope users, Listermint was cutting into Listerine sales. The problem, the company discovered, was packaging.

Listermint was packaged in green bottles shaped the same as Listerine's. Consumers apparently thought Listermint was just a "new, improved" Listerine. Scope users stuck to Scope and Listerine users tried the new product. "When we discovered that, we went back to the drawing board," a Warner-Lambert spokesman said.

Late last year the Federal Trade Commission ordered the makers of Listerine to stop advertising entirely or spend $10 million on ads saying they have been lying since 1921 about how Listerine will cure or prevent sore throats and colds.

Warner-Lambert called the FTC order unfounded and said it would appeal it to the federal courts. Meanwhile, the company now promotes Listerine as "more than a

Jersey City lays claim to Statue of Liberty

Newsday

NEW YORK HARBOR - Keep your tired and your poor, but give us your Statue of Liberty, the Bicentennial committee of Jersey City has demanded of the Bicentennial corporation of New York Jersey City, which is better-known as the home of crime and congestion, now claims in its Bicentennial literature and memorabilia to be home of the Statue of Liberty as well. New York City, the traditional site of the Statue of Liberty, also maintains that claim in its Bicentennial literature and memorabilia.

So a battle over the symbol of peace and freedom is on.

"This goes back 19 years," said Morris Pesin, chairman of the Jersey City committee and the man who instigated the controversy. "I was standing at the Jersey shore with my children, who are grown up now, and I said to my wife, 'This is crazy. Look how close the Statue of Liberty is.' I said to her. 'If it toppled over, it would fall on New Jersey.

Pesin, 64, a retired clothing manufacturer who has born and raised in Jersey City, decided his home town deserved proper credit as the site of the Statue of Liberty, and since then he has lobbied for recognition with state and federal governments and has canoed from the Jersey shore to Liberty Island twice to dramatize his stand.

Seven years ago, he was elected to the Jersey City Council on his Statue of Liberty stand and other issues. As chairman of the city's Bicentennial commission, he recently directed the manufacture of a commemorative medal inscribed, "Jersey City - the city nearest the Statue of Liberty and sponsored a Bicentennial art.

contest for pictures of historic Jersey City sites. One of the winning paintings - to be announced next week - is of the Statue of Liberty.

Ronald Gaudreau, executive vice president of the New York City Bicentennial Corporation, at first said, "I don't think we want to get into an argument one way or the other. The most important thing is that the Statue of Liberty is a spirit, not a locale." Asked if he were conceding to Jersey City demands, he replied with spirit, "Nobody from New York City ever backs down from a fight. If t comes to that, we're ready to bat-

Everyone agrees that Liberty Island itself is owned by the federal government and operated by the National Park Service, which in its literature lists the Statue of Liberty address as "New York Harbor, New York - New Jersey," and even maintains two Statue, of Liberty phone lines - one with a New York area code and one with a New Jersey

Lo-Vaca, congressman agree sales tax on utilities unfair

AUSTIN (AP) - Rep. John Wilson and his frequent adversary, the president of LoVaca Gathering Co., agreed on one thing today: hardpressed gas and electricity customers shouldn't have their misery compounded with sales taxes.

Wilson, D-La Grange, and Bill Greehey of Lo-Vaca testified before members of three House committees whose work could determine whether there will be a special legislative session on utility rates.

The committees on energy resources, state affairs and ways and means are trying to learn whether it would be worthwhile for Gov. Dolph Briscoe to call such a session.

"Whether you think the sales tax amounts to anything, at $1.97 (per 1,000 cubic feet of gas) it makes a difference to us," Wilson said. He added that revenue from the 5 per cent state-local sales tax was rising by an estimated $120 million over the current two-year fiscal period because of higher utility costs.

'Whether you call it 'new taxes' or not, it is new tax revenue coming from the pockets of those least able to afford it... We don't need it with a $2.6 billion surplus," Wilson said.

WASHINGTON - In a move to break the long deadlock over natural gas price deregulation, six senators who had fought bitterly over the issue joined forces Wednesday introduced a compromise bill calling for partial deregulation.

After months of negotiation the bill was introduced just before the Senate adjourned by Sens. James B. Pearson, (R-Kans.), Ernest F. Hollins, D-S.C., Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., who is Commerce Committee chairman, Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., and Paul J. Fannin, R-Ariz.

Pearson, Bellmon and Fannin had been strong advocates of broad pricederegulation proposals, while Hollings, Magnuson and Stevenson had fought strongy against such pro-

Congress has been deadlocked since the Senate last year passed a Pearson deregulation measure, removing price ceilings on natural gas sold interstate, only to have the House vote 205 to 201 on Feb. 5 to tighten price controls over major producers.

Pearson, after introducing the compromise Wednesday, said he hopes for quick action. "I think it's a fair comconsumers and to the possibility of stimulating increased production. No one should be misled - it will mean increased prices, but not precipitious and not rapid. And it will get us some more production.'

. Here are the key provisions of the compromise:

-Offshore natural gas would continue premanently under federal. price regulation when sold interstate. The maximum price now for regulated gas is around 52 cents per 1,000 cubic feet at the wellhead However, newly discovered offshore gas would be allowed to rise to about $1.35 per .1,000 cubic feet at the wellhead, applicable to discoveries from Jan 1, 1976, on. As the cost of living rises, the ceiling price could rise accordingly.

-New discoveries of on-shore gas would continue to be controlled for seven years, but the current 52-cent maximum price will be raised to $1.60 (with a cost-of-living escalator) retroactive to discoveries from Jan 1, 1976, on. After seven years the price cap would be removed altogether.

However, old natural gas - from previously discovered wells - would continue under existing 52-cent regulations. -Gas sold within the same state in which it's produced would continue to be free of price regulation. It now sells for about $1.30.

-The use of natural gas for "boiler fuel" - low-priority industrial uses for which other fuels can serve would be phased out over 10 years. Home heating, heating of public service places like hospitals and stores and agriculture would receive the highest priority in case of shortages.

Advocates of deregulation have aruged that regulated prices are too low to stimulate industry to search for more supplies.

Colorado City tank explodes; one man killed

COLORADO CITY, Tex. (AP) - An oil tank on the Col-Tex refinery tank farm one mile southwest of here exploded while being dismantled by two Colorado City men Wednesday afternoon, leaving one dead and the other injured.

Johnny Lee McKinney, 20, died en route to Webb Air Force base at Big Spring. He was to have been transported to Brooke Army Hospital in San Antonio for burns treatment.

His father, John McKinney, 49, was in a stable condition at Root Memorial Hospital here Wednesday night.

The two were cutting a steel stairway from a tank when the explosion occurred, officials said. Colorado City Fire Chief Pat

McKinney, who is not related to the victims, said the dead man was on topof the tank cutting away steel beams which support the stairway when the explosion occurred. He said the cutting torch apparently touched off fumes at the top of the tank, setting off the explosion. Johnny Lee McKinney was thrown about 30 feet from the tank by the explosion and suffered burns over 60 per cent of his body.

The fire burned late into Wednesday night.

Interior moves to help mining "There is nothing magical about the original contours of the land," he

By MARGOT HORNBLOWER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Interior Department issued regulations Wednesday designed to allow the strip mining of vast federal coal reserves in the Western states.

'We need to double our coal production by 1985," said Interior Secretary Thomas S. Kleppe, adding that the United States is "at the mercy of foreign bracket oil and gas unbracket producers who could implement another embargo at any

Kleppe said the federal coal will be "in an environmentally sound manner," by minimizing pollution and restoring land to its "approximate original contours" and

The regulations were criticized by the coal industry Tuesday as "much too strict" and by environmentalists as "extremely weak." Rep. John Melcher (D-Mont.), who led an unsuccessful fight in Congress for a federal strip mine bill, said the regulations will have "a devastating effect on the Western states." He said they do not adequately protect the underground water supply. 'Water is the lifeblood of Western states. These regulations could leave us dry. They could also leave us naked.'

William E. Hynan of the National Coal Association, however, said the regulations do not provide enough 'flexibility" to mine operators in controlling water pollution and relaiming the land.

said. "Variances (ion the regulations) are seldom available to us as a practical matter." The variances allowed for in the regulations were described by Louise Dunlap of the Environmental Policy Center as "huge loopholes that make. it possible for Western strip mining to be conducted without any reclamation at all."

Dunlap and Melcher said a strip mine law is needed to protect the rights of surface owners. Many Western ranchers and farmers own land to which the federal government retains mineral rights.

"Under these regulations, millions of acres of private land in the West could be condemned for strip min-ing." Dunlap said. "Only a congressional bill can adequately protect these agricultural lands."

President Ford vetoed strip mine legislation in 1974 and 1975. A revised bill was tabled by the House Rules Committee in March, but environmentalists are trying to have it discharged by petition.

The administration's opposition to the strip mine bill, and its promulgation of what Kleppe called more "flexible regulations" under existing law stem from a determination to promote coal development as an alernative to dependence on foreign

Kleppe said he hopes to increase the production of federal coal -now 32 million tons annually -to 305 million tons at the start of the hearings Tuesday that repealing the sales tax on utilities would deprive cities of more than $20 million a year in needed revenue.

Greehey also recommended elimination of the sales tax, as well as a reduction in the amounts city-owned utilities add to bills in lieu of property taxes as a means of shoring up their general funds.

He supported the Texas Railroad Commission's proposal that would base gas well allowables on what purchasers say their needs are. This would replace the present use of producer estimates of output as the basis for allowables

This, Greehey said, would reduce obligations under "take or pay" contracts that result in purchasers paying for highpriced new gas they do Greehey said the take or pay requirements have "cost our customers as much as 11 cents per 1,000 cubic feet in a given month.' He also said gas should be taxed at

so many cents per 1,000 cubic feet

instead of a per cent of value, as it is now, even though this would not reduce costs to consumers. Greehey denied that LoVaca's 100 per cent passthrough had caused it to pay more than the market warranted for gas and had bid up the price other companies must pay. "In some instances we matched the highest price others bid on a package of gas, but we have not exceeded their bid." he said. Lo-Vaca's prices have been high because its system contains little gas bought under long-term contract when prices were low, he said.

In Wednesday's testimony, Emil Ogden, president of Chapparal Minerals of Abilene, said direct subsidies appear to be the only way to ease the impact of rising utility costs on fixed income families

Rep. Joe Hanna, D-Breckenridge, chairman of the energy resources committee, asked Ogden about the problems of consumers, particularly those on fixed incomes.

"We subsidize everything else under the sun. Why should this be any different?" Ogden replied.

Ogden said that while gas prices have shot up, so have the costs of drilling new gas wells. A shallow well_3 000 feet_costs $396, 200 to drill when one takes into account the fact that drillers average seven dry holes for every successful attempt.

Clayton Williams Jr., a West Texas driller who said he is the largest independent supplier of Lo-Vaca Gathering Co., said it now costs $3 million to drill a four-mile deep well in the Gomez Field, compared with $1.3 million two years ago.

Williams said he had "taken in a lot of money from these increased gas prices. . . I have taken that money and I have wildcatted it and brought more gas to you.

Oil and gas men testifying before the committees sounded a common theme: Natural gas is as cheap now as all other competitive fuels. High prices have encouraged exploration and provided Texans plentiful gas. Regulation of prices at the wellhead would discourage exploration and dry High gas prices encouraged development of the huge new South Laredo Gas Field, and there may be more like it awaiting discovery if prices hold up, said Brian E. O'Brien, a producer in the field.

O'Brien, partner in the Sanchez-O'Brien Petroleum Group of Houston and Laredo, said there was a definite link between gas prices and the rate of development of the field, which produces more than 220 million cubic feet of gas each day.

The Washington Post WASHINGTON - Ending a year of silence on the subject, the Ford administration has indicated to Congress that it plans to bury the nation's radioactive wastes in deep salt and rock formations in remote regions of the United States. The radioactive disposal plan described by the Energy Research and Development Administration cameas no great surprise, except that it seemed to exclude such notions a burying the wastes in the Antarctic ice sheets and inaccessible parts of the Pacific Ocean floor ERDA implied that both plans might prove useful far in the future but poses too many technical difficulties to consider for the next 10 years.

Abandoned also for the time being appears to be the plan to rocket radioactive wastes to the sun, only partly because the success of the rocket could never be guaranteed. ERDA also pointed out that the scheme would cost too much and could never remove all the radioactive wastes because of the amounts invovled. In testimony before the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, a team of Ford administration energy, officials said they are in the midst of a study narrowing the repositories for nuclear waste down to a handful scattered through the least populated of the lower 48 states.

MC seeking students for scholarship program

Midland College currently is seeking candidates for its "top 5 per cent" scholarship program which is available to students living within a 150-miles radius of Midland.

The scholarships, including fees, tuition and books, are offered to students who graduate in the top 5 per cent of their respective classes. The program is for two years if the recipients maintain satisfactory grades.

Sixteen students now attend Midland College with the aid of these

Excluded from the offer are those students whose towns have a college. Candidates are drawn from 91 high schools in 39 counties. "We have had very good response from this scholarship offer," said Bill Burns, college financial aids officer who administers the scholarships. We expect that the number of student accepting these scholarships will double this fall."

The scholarships are funded by the Midland College Foundation which also has provided funds for such items as a parking lot, landscaping and other scholarships.

Auditor says military meat-buying 'unusual'

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pentagon specifications for beef served to servicemen are too rigid, drive up the price of military meat and cost taxpayers unnecessary millions of dollars each year, a congressional auditor says.

Richard W. Gutmann of the General Accounting Office said today military meat-buying requirments are "unusual and confusing," making the meat purchased by the Defense Department far more expensive than that bought by other government institutions.

Gutmann made the comments in testimony prepared for a Senate Government Operations subcommittee's third day of hearings into a multimillion-dollar military meat purchasing scandal. The panel is studying allegations that officials of two New England meat-packing houses sold substandard beef to the military while plying Army inspectors with bribes, gifts and other favors, including prostitutes.

Also to testify today were Army Secretary Martin R. Hoffman and Ferdinand Romano, former former general manager of the G&G Packing Co. of Boston. Romano has been granted immunity from prosecution by the subcommittee to testify against his former employers.

Gutmann said the GAO, an investigatory wing of Congress, concluded that the high price paid by the military for beef is a direct result of "stringent requirements" that

As an example, he said the Defense Department and the Veterans Administration both awarded contracts for 30,000 pounds of diced beef on the same day last October. But he said the military paid $1.54 per pound and the VA paid $1.12 per

In another instance, he said, both agencies bought approximately the same amount of pot roasts, but the military paid $1.80 per pound and the VA paid $1.19 per pound.

"If these differences were applicable to the total defense purchases of diced beef and pot roast for fiscal year 1975, the Defense Department paid an excess $9.4 million for these cuts of beef," Gutmann

Witnesses have told the panel that the G&G firm in Boston and Blue-Ribbon Frozen Foods of Hamden, Conn.. were using ungraded and inferior cuts of beef to fill Army orders for choice steaks and roasts and that the Pentagon paid as much as $3.85-a-pound for these cuts.

Panel chairman Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., calculated that the meat packers allegedly involved sometimes made up to $192,000 a day in illegal profits in 1974 and 1975.

In testimony Wednesday, six Army officers - from Capt. James O. Flom, who headed the Army's Boston foodinspection unit, to Maj. Gen. Spurgeon H. Neel Jr., commander of the Army Health Services Command - denied knowledge of the alleged bribes, gifts and other favors.

As early as April, 1975, President Ford — a strong supporter of the $30 billion program that returns federal tax dollars to local governments and lets them set their own spending priorities, urged the lawmakers to act swiftly to extend the program so the funds would be available to local and state officials.

The program is scheduled to expire at the end of this calendar year. A bill to renew it was approved; 39 to 3, last Wednesday by the House Government Operations Committee and is expected to be taken up on the House floor within two weeks

Over 39,000 jurisdictions, ranging from state and county governments to the recognized governing body of Indian tribes and Alaska native villages, have received revenue sharing funds since 1972. Revenue sharing was established in that year as part of the Nixon Administration's "new Federalism," which the former president said would return "power to the people." Funds for such projects as public works, police and fire departments and health facilities are awarded to

Evening Lions hear McCain

C. E. McCain of the Southside Lions Club presented the program Tuesday to members of the Evening Lions

McCain showed a film entitled "A Work of Love," which described the housing, care and activities of the Texas Lions Camp for Crippled and Diabetic Children located at Kerr-local governments on a quarterly basis with few strings attached and a minimum of red tape.

The revenue sharing program has received wide support from such organizations as the National League of Cities, the United States Conference of Mayors, the National Assn. of Counties and the National Governors Conference. An intense lobbying campaign aimed at renewal of the program has been under way since last year.

While revenue sharing has bipartisan support, the program has also received bipartisan criticism - from civil rights and civic organizations and from both conservatives and liberals in Congress.

Studies by such groups as the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Civil and constitutional Rights, the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights and the League of Women Voters have charged that there is discrimination. mainly in hiring practices, against women and minorities in programs funded by revenue sharing

Despite numerous complaints, the groups have charged, the Treasury Department's Office of Revenue Sharing, which administers the program, has been lax in enforcing guidelines prohibiting discrimination and providing for termination of funds to those jurisdictions found in violation.

Revenue sharing funds have only been withheld in one case, an incident involving alleged discrimination in the hiring practices of the Chicago police department. In that instance, federal court, not the Treasury Department, blocked the money.

The studies-also have cited a lack of citizen participation in setting priorities for spending revenue sharing funds. As a result, according to the studies, local leaders tend to use the money for building projects and governmental operations rather than social service projects.

Criticism of the revenue sharing program by some conservatives centers on their charge that local of-

Congress may close some tax loopholes

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rich investors whose large deductions for interest and other expenses allow them to escape paying federal income tax may be in for an unpleasant surprise when they file their tax forms next

The House and the Senate Finance Committee have voted to close some loopholes and raise taxes of the wealthy by about $1 billion a year.

The Senate committee, in voting 10 to 0 Wednesday for tightening the loopholes, also approved a $270million tax break for wealthy Americans who do pay large sums to the federal government.

Congressional tax experts had no immediate estimate of how many persons would benefit from that tax break, aimed at those who now pay as much as 70 per eent of their income to the government.

But they said that under the plan for cracking down on investors who don't pay taxes, the number of persons subject to a minimum tax would jump from the current 30,000 to 40,000 to some 540,000.

The current minimum tax on the type of shelters used by those who pay to faxes is 10 per cent.

Under the Senate committee's plan, the tax rate would be raised to 15 per cent, a $30,000 exemption would be removed and the individual would be allowed to subtract his regular income tax or $5,000, whichever is higher, from the minimum he would have to pay

This would raise the minimum tax for those already paying it and would increase the number of persons subject to the tax, experts say. The House approved a similar plan that would bring in slightly more money but would apply to only 130,000 wealthy Americans.

The loophole-tightening plan adopted by the Senate panel fell short of what liberals demanded. But chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., said, "I think it's about the best we could hope to achieve at this time. I don't think you are going to get to heaven in just one leap

The Senate committee approved the $270-million tax break for the rich at the insistence of Long. This was done. by allowing a lower rate of taxation on a share of investment income, such as that from rent and dividends, to those who now pay large tax bills.

The Internal Revenue Service released a report last week showing that the minimum tax, adopted in 1969, is not assuring that every individual with significant income pays some federal tax.

IRS reported that 244 individuals with incomes above $200,000 and 3,053 persons making $50,000 to $200,000 paid no tax in 1974. Five of them are millionaries.

These non-taxpayers, acting within the law, used large deductions, mainly interest, depreciation and charitable contributions, to reduce their taxable incomes to zero.

ficials take a cavalier attitude toward the money because it comes from the federal government, not from local taxpayers to whom they are accoun-Under the federal program, all jurisdictions, rich or poor, are eligible for a minimum amount of funds. Allocation is based on a formula that takes into consideration the per capita income of the community. Some liberals, and officials from financially hard pressed urban and rural areas, argue that the formula should be based on a community's poverty-line statistics. This formula would reflect need, and would be based on the community's ability, or inability, to raise taxes. Citing Treasury Department figures indicating that most of the revenue sharing funds are being used for government operational programs such as public safety, street maintenance etc. - some liberals would like to see specific guidelines included in the renewal legislation mandating funds for certain programs, mostly in the social field. According to a June, 1975, report from the Office of Revenue Sharing. 24 per cent of the money was spent on public safety, mainly police and fire departments. Another 21 per cent went for public transportation, 10 per cent for health programs, 5 per cent for recreation and 4 per-cent for projects for the poor and aged.

But spelling out specific programs to be funded would make revenue million annual increase would be sharing less appealing to local ofbuilt into the program to cover the cost of inflation.

We enjoy and appreciate our Carriage Company reputation for having happy, satisfied customers. Probably eighty-percent of our real estate business comes from referrals--friends and relatives of previous customers of ours. When we show a property to select listings we would actually be willing to purchase for ourselves. And once we "sell" we do not forget the new friends we make; we stay with it and help them become

Truly we would rather NOT sell anything that might make a customer unhappy than to make a sale just for the sake of 'selling''. Pressure techniques are not our style. We are relaxed and reliable, facts you will recognize once you come to see us at 202 Oakridge Square where we wait to be of service to

Doctors' radio

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The two-year-old Physicians Radio Network - financed by pharmaceutical advertising — is broadcasting to 21,000 doctors in 23 cities round-the-clock seven days a week, according to testimony of its top executive.

By year's end the network "should be on the air in 30 cities, reaching 75,000 physicians," J. E. Raebentold a hearing of the Senate Small Business Subcommittee on Monopoly on the role of the drug industry in the educating of practicing doctors.

Raeben said the PRN's longer-term goal is to have an audience of about 150,000 physicians, or "far more than half" of the total who prescribe drugs for

"Advertisers play no part" in the network's selection of news stories, Raeben said.

Without referring to the PRN, Subcommittee Chairman Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) charged in an opening statement Monday that there is a "systematic bias in what industry passes off as educational material, but which is in reality part of the industry's promotional efforts.'

Each physician who wants to listen to the PRN's "medical news, information and education service" is given a receiver worth $35 that picks up the FM broadcasts on frequencies leased from Federal Communications Commission licensees, Raeben

Currently, the network is operating at a loss, he said, because the $2 million a year paid by five drug firms to advertise on the PRN falls short of expenses.

The network broadcasts a one-hour program that it repeats 24 times a day and changes each day. This summer it plans to change the program twice a day. In addition, the PRN is starting a series of 15-minute "continuing education" programs.

Raeben is president of Visual Information Systems, a division of Republic Corp. VIS for 11 years also has operated the Network for Continuing Medical Education, which annually distributes 69 different videotape casettes to 700 hospitals.
