Judge wants to close Midland court

By ED TODD

Midland may lose its regional federal court if Chief Judge Adrian A. Spears of San Antonio follows through with his plans toward downgrading and centralizing some of the more remote courts in the 68-county Western District of Texas.

"He does not propose to abolish the Midland-Odessa and Del Rio Divisions," said Midland attorney Reagan Legg, "but he proposes to accomplish the same thing" by transferring cases to metropolitan areas to the east and west.

Opposing Spears' move are the Midland County Bar Association, U.S. Rep. George Mahon who in effect brought the federal court to Midland in the late 1960s and individual attorneys.

"I am shocked at the present threat that the Midland-Odessa court will be downgraded," Mahon said Thursday.

Spears' proposal, which is being challenged by Midland and Odessa lawyers, calls for the transferring of criminal cases to El Paso for trial and "eventually all civil cases" to San Antonio, Legg said.

"The only reason he gives (for the caseload shifting), as far as I know," Legg said, "is for the convenience of the judges."

The Midland-Odessa Division is without a resident judge, although legislation is pending in the U.S. Senate possibly to provide the division with a full-time judge.

It does, however, have a visiting judge in Dorwin W. Suttle of San Antonio. Periodically, he and his staff of law clerks fly here to handle civil and a criminal cases set for hearings or trial.

"The business here justifies the division," Legg said. "We worked pretty hard in getting it, and we don't want to lose it." Legg was president of the Midland County Bar in the late 1960s when the court division here was created.

"Lawyers here better get up in arms," urged a federal court insider who preferred not to be identified. "And so they are."

Two Midland lawyers, W. B. Browder Jr. and William Monroe Kerr, and an Odessa attorney, W. O. Shafer, argued their court-keeping case in private before the judge in his San Antonio chambers.

Reportedly, he did not budge from his position and became somewhat angered when the lawyers, too, remained steadfast.

Spears is out of San Antonio this week and was unavailable for comment on his proposals.

Likewise, Browder, Kerr and Shafer were out of their offices on business and could not be reached Thursday. But Browder today in a telephone call from Lansing, Mich., confirmed the lawyers' confrontation with an unyielding Judge Spears.

Browder said the chief judge would be in conference May 21 in San Antonio with his four district judges to, perhaps, settle on the fate of the Midland-Odessa, Pecos, Del Rio and Waco divisions of the Western District.

Judge Suttle, he said, differs with Spears' viewpoint. Browder said Suttle has been "firm" in his stance that "Midland-Odessa criminal matters should be handled in Midland" and not transferred elsewhere.

Judges serving under Spears are Suttle, Jack Roberts, John H. Woods Jr., and William S. "Bill" Sessions, who is stationed at El Paso.

Warren Burnett, an Odessa attorney, was somewhat critical of Spears' decision, however firm it may be. He was in federal court here Thursday for a criminal pre-trial hearing before Suttle.

"I feel that it would be a tremendous disservice to the federal judiciary and to the people," said Burnett.

"The whole idea since the year 1066, at least since the Magna Carta, is to make the courts available to the people—not to make the people come to the courts."

The Midland County Bar Association unanimously passed a resolution opposing the chief judge's proposal. "It (the bar) opposes any change in the operation of this division," Legg said.

Legg said the removal of the cases to distant courts would be costly in time and money to lawyers and clients alike. Besides, he said, "there are many cases that can only be tried in federal court."

The transferring of witnesses hundreds of miles for a series of hearings and trial would "make the cost almost prohibitive for anybody," Legg said.

"The judges require so much paperwork now that it almost bankrupts a client... It's ridiculous, frankly," he said of Spears' virtual shutdown proposal.

Mahon, who has been waging a quiet campaign to counter Spears' moves, first heard of the proposal about two weeks ago.

"The lawyers and the people, the litigants, should not be compelled to go to El Paso or to San Antonio" to settle questions of justice, Mahon said.

He said the Midland-Odessa Division already has a heavy enough caseload to justify the continued operation of the division and a resident judge. In addition, the records of the federal courthouse Pecos Division are maintained in the federal courthouse here. The Midland-Odessa Division covers six counties, and the Pecos Division, 10.

Mahon said he has not yet talked to Spears about the proposal. However, he said the chief judge feels centralizing the courts would somehow make for a "feasible compliance" with the Speedy Trial Act. Mahon

MISD files reply to Justice Department motion

By LUANNA CROW

The Midland public schools this morning filed a reply in district court contending the schools should not be required to desegregate three schools whose heavily minority enrollments are not results of intentional segregation.

The reply, filed by Midland Independent School District attorney Thornton Mardie, also asserts the school district should not be asked to submit desegregation plans before it has its day in court.

The MISD reply follows 10 days after the Justice Department entered a motion with the District Court for the Western District of Texas, Midland-Odessa Division, which seeks to implement the order of the circuit court to "dismantle the dual system" of education in Midland elementary schools.

The Justice Department's motion, however, includes three schools — Pease, Milam and Crockett — not specifically ordered by the court to be dismantled. Attorneys for the United States earlier had stated they sought changes only at Washington and De Zavala.

Their motion also urged the court to demand redistricting plans even before the two factions meet again in court so that "an additional hearing may not be necessary" if the district court judge rules in the Justice Department's favor.

Hardie, in his reply, submitted that "although 'convenient' for the government, such a requirement would be extremely burdensome to the defendants, who are possessed of a staff and a tax base somewhat smaller than that of the federal government."

"Although the government thinks it may be convenient to present contingency plans, the defendants insist that to do so would be an entirely unnecessary added burden on their taxpayers. Surely, they are entitled to a judicial determination as to exactly which schools are to be the subject of an order before the defendants are required to prepare any such plans — taking into consideration that the government had long previously admitted, as a result of their own investigations, to being satisfied regarding all schools except Washington and De Zavala."

The question of the three schools arose when the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans named them "racially identifiable" in a ruling which overturned a district court opinion that only Washington need be desegregated. The appellate court did not specifically instruct the MISD to include those three schools in addition to De Zavala, which has an enrollment of almost all-Spanish-surnamed students.

The MISD pointed out the lack of clarity in the order in its effort, through a petition for a writ of certiorari, to be heard by the U.S. Supreme Court. The Justice Department, however, filed a brief in opposition stating, "Nothing in the court's opinion or judgement requires the school board to correct racial imbalance where that imbalance is not the result of intentional segregation."

Milam, Pease and Crockett all opened in originally all-white neighborhoods which through the years have changed in racial composition.

Hardie's reply, commenting on the Justice Department's stance in the matter, says: "At that time, when its now apparent motive was to defeat review of the matter by the Supreme Court, the government was certain (underlined) that the 5th Circuit's opinion did not require the district to correct racial imbalance nor the result of intentional segregation.

"Having successfully defeated the application for certiorari and having advanced to the next objective, the government now discards, without apparent conflict of conscience, its interpretation of the 5th Circuit's opinion."

Making reference to his own legal experience, Hardie, in his reply, said "this kind of duplicity by officers of the court is not tolerated by our system of jurisprudence nor by those whose duty it is to administer that system."

When the Justice Department filed its motion 10 days ago, it cited the Keyes vs. School District No. 1 case in support of its including three more schools. According to that decision, "the burden is now on the school board to demonstrate that the remaining minority schools are not the product of its de jure (intentional

Pursuit of 'hot leads' proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA and FBI lied to the Warren Commission about the assassination of President Kennedy, a Senate intelligence committee member said today. The senator also suggested "we pursue some hot leads" to answer for certain who killed Kennedy.

Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., a member of the panel's subcommittee investigating the assassination, said "there is no question in my mind" that the two intelligence agencies lied to the commission which conducted the government's first, massive probe of Kennedy's death.

Schweiker said he has found no new evidence about who killed Kennedy but declared: "If we pursue some hot leads, we may well answer that question." Schweiker refused to elaborate on what he meant by "hot leads."

Schweiker made his statements on the CBS-TV "Morning News."

He said the subcommittee has turned up "significant new material (Related Story, Page 6A) about defects and deficiencies in the investigation" of the assassination, noting — as he has before — the CIA's failure to inform the Warren Commission of its schemes against Cuba's Fidel Castro and the FBI's destruction of a note by Lee Harvey Oswald, whom the commission named as Kennedy's sole assassin.

Schweiker and Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., are the only members of the subcommittee, which investigated the "performance or non-performance" of the intelligence agencies during the initial probe of the assassination. Hart has said he has seen no evidence to discredit the Warren Commission's report that Oswald acted alone in killing Kennedy.

But Schweiker said today he disagrees. He said the deficiencies in the original investigation invalidate the Warren Commission's conclusion. Schweiker said he believes the key to Kennedy's slaying lies in Oswald's relationships with both pro- and anti-Castro factions.

Schweiker said some of the deficiencies by the CIA and FBI were "deliberate."

Schweiker and Hart are expected to deliver a written report to the intelligence committee by the end of the month. The full committee must approve the report before it is made public.

The question of why Oswald killed Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963, in Dallas, Tex., will be one of the first questions to face a proposed new Senate committee that would watch over the workings of U.S. intelligence agencies.

The Senate intelligence committee voted Thursday to recommend that the LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Authorities have let it be known they are not amused by the rash of "wills" that has descended on the courthouse here to cash in on the billion dollar plus estate of the late Howard Hughes.

In fact, Clark County Dist. Atty. George Holt finds the whole situation so unamusing, he is considering an investigation into felony complaints of forgery, fraud or perjury that could land the authors of the "wills" in prison for 1-to-10 years.

about the will would be guilty of perjury," he said.

According to Holt, the key issue is whether a person knows the document is phony. Anyone who comes into possession of an apparent will must file the document with the clerk, he said, even if the will turns out to be forged. But a person filing such a document without knowing it was forged would not be subject to prosecution.

The late, eccentric billionaire left an estate estimated at between $1.5 billion and $2.5 billion.

In Austin, Tex., State Comptroller Bob Bullock said he had "fairly conclusive proof" that Hughes was a Texas resident. Bullock said other states were attempting to claim Hughes as a resident. "But I think we've got them beat. Once a Texan, always a Texan."

Hughes was born and died in Houston. The inheritance tax could add as much as $335 million to Texas state coffers if Bullock is right.

And in Salt Lake City, Salt Lake County Atty. Paul Van Dam said he has forwarded information to Las Vegas that alleges several persons were involved in a hoax relating to the first purported Hughes will. He would not elaborate.

The first document was found at Mormon church headquarters in Salt Lake City. Much of the Hughes' estate was left to the church in the "will."

"We have no legal basis on which to get into the thing," Van Dam said, explaining his decision to send the evidence to Nevada authorities.

Rhodesian assails U.S. Congress

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesian Defense Minister Pieter van der Byl accused the U.S. Congress today of "cowardly and treacherous behaviour" in opposing President Ford's efforts to sustain pro-Western liberation movements in the Angolan civil war.

Speaking at a parade of Rhodesian light infantry recruits, Van der Byl said Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro had been encouraged in "his historic role as the revolutionary Communist liberator of Africa" because of the U.S. refusal to become involved in Angola. He forecast that Castro would "try another adventure somewhere else."

The minister was reviewing young white troops at a time when the draft has been extended and reserve soldiers have been mobilized to meet the threat of intensified guerrilla offensives on the 800-mile eastern border with Mozambique.

Van der Byl asserted that the conflict on the borders was "no racial war."

"Both black and white oppose us — black terrorists and white-skinned Communists," he said. "We on our side are deploying black and white troops of the highest quality, fighting shoulder to shoulder against the common foe."

In other African developments:

—In Pietermaritzburg, South Africa, 10 black South Africans were ordered held today on charges of activities aimed at overthrowing the government. The 10 are among 50 men arrested since the end of last year by security police who have linked them with the uncovering of an underground network recruiting black South Africans for guerrilla training abroad.

Trial of 10 under South Africa's terrorism laws is scheduled to open before the Supreme Court on July 12.

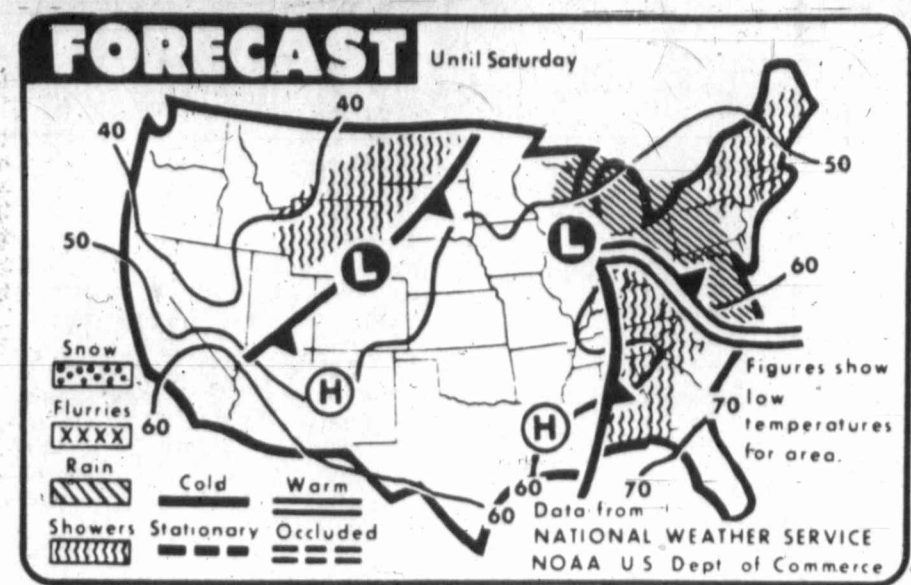

—Angolan authorities plan to put a group of mercenaries of unspecified nationality on trial next month, Angolan President Agostinho Neto was quoted as saying by the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug. A Tanjug report said Neto addressed new members of the Peoples Revolutionary Court and told them "the revolutionary justice will have to reflect the will of the people that was harmed by the most barbarian reactionaries."

He said the trial will be conducted in the presence of a commission of foreign observers "to acquaint the world with the justice of the court trial, regardless of what the verdict of the National Revolutionary Court may be."

segregation system." Hardie's reply, however, challenges application of the Keyes decision to the Midland case, noting that inferior education in minority schools was a factor in the Keyes decision.

The reply states, also, "The school board replies herewith that it has met this burden and has continued to meet this burden throughout the trial of this case as admitted by the United States of America in its own discourses with the trial judge and in its briefs filed in this case at various times..."

Hardie's reply asks that the court not require the MISD to desegregate all five schools and that the court "notify all parties that the (Justice Department's) motion will be heard at a time and place satisfactory to this court and prior to the entry of further order."

The MISD and the Justice Department — acting for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare — have been at odds for six years. The case has bounced from court to court during that time.

Although the district court in 1971 approved the MISD's plan to desegregate Washington, which has a nearly all-black student population, it was appealed by the Justice Department because the plan did not include De Zavala. Because of the continuing legal battles the elementary school boundaries have been unchanged since 1968.

Although the Justice Department pointed out the high minority count at Crockett and Pease in 1971, their attorneys stated they did not seek legal action because the enrollment resulted from shifting population patterns. Milam remained unmentioned until August when the appellate court remanded the case to the district court with instructions to "dismantle the dual system" of education.

Lions name Petree firefighter of month

Jerry R. Petree, a five-year member of the Midland Fire Department with the rank of driver, was named "Firefighter of the Month" by the Midland Downtown Lions Club at its Wednesday meeting in the American Legion Hall.

Petree, a native of Stanton, has resided in Midland since 1952. He is a graduate of Midland High School and holds an associate degree in Applied Science from Midland College. He is presently enrolled at Midland College, lacking only two classes toward earning an associate degree in Law Enforcement. He is a state certified emergency medical technician, a state certified firefighter, and is a graduate of the Midland Police Academy. He also is a graduate of the United States Navy Interior Communications Electronic School.

He is a four-year U.S. Navy veteran.

Mr. and Mrs. Petree and their son and daughter reside at 1404 W. Kansas St.

He is an instructor in both Standard and Advanced First Aid for the American Red Cross Chapter, and also is an instructor for Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation for both the Red Cross and the American Heart Association.

Jerry Petree
The firefighter is active in Boy Scout work and is a den leader for Webelos. He is a member of The Christian Church of Midland and the Parent-Teacher Association.

The princess was said to be anxious to return to competition since she wants to earn a place on the British equestrian team for the Montreal Olympics. The five riders to compete at Montreal are to be named July 11.

UTPB professor reviews Ford, Reagan stands on Panama Canal

Dr. Frank Samponaro...discusses Panama Canal

By LYNNE WELLS

The major difference between Gerald Ford's and Ronald Reagan's stand on the Panama Canal is the President does not feel it is as important to our defense and economy as it was years ago, while Reagan feels the canal is still vital to America's economy and defense.

This is the contention of Dr. Frank Samponaro, a member of the history faculty of The University of Texas at Dallas who spoke Thursday at the Downtown Rotary Club's noon luncheon.

Two things in the Panama Canal controversy are certain, Dr. Samponaro said. One is that nothing permanent will be decided until after November's presidential election.

The other is that all Latin American governments view the issue as a test of the United States' good will toward Latin America. All Latin American governments are "solidly" behind the Panamanians, Dr. Samponaro said.

In the early part of the 18th century, Panama was simply a "neglected" part of Colombia, Dr. Samponaro said.

This country's first interest in the area came during the California Gold Rush in the late 1840s, because westward travelers would take a ship to the Isthmus of Panama, and travel on foot to the Pacific Ocean side of Panama to take another boat to California.

In 1850, we signed a treaty with Great Britain, who had the world's greatest navy at that time, providing for joint control of any canal that should be built through Panama. Dr. Samponaro said. However, neither country moved to build a canal.

The French company that built the Suez Canal spent 11 years in Central America working on a waterway through Panama, but was forced to abandon the project because of "financial mismanagement and corruption," Dr. Samponaro said.

After the Spanish-American War, the U.S. realized it was a world power, and saw the Panama area as a strategic one in defending its new Caribbean Sea territories.

In 1901, Theodore Roosevelt negotiated a treaty with the British that nullified the 1850 agreement. Roosevelt negotiated a treaty with Colombia in 1903 allowing for a rental of a strip of land in Panama for the purpose of operating a canal. However, the Senate refused to ratify the agreement.

As the President was "unwilling to wait for further negotiations," the Panamanians revolted against Colombia, Dr. Samponaro said. The small revolt was "carefully prearranged," he said, and Roosevelt had full knowledge of what was happening in Central America.

Three days after Panama was independent, the U.S. formally recognized the country, and signed a canal agreement with Panamanian leaders two weeks later.

Teddy Roosevelt would later boast, "I took the Canal Zone," Dr. Samponaro said.

The U.S. was given complete sovereignty over a 10-mile wide strip of land across the Isthmus. The U.S. also had the right to defend the land and paid an initial fee of $10 million, and a rental of $250,000 year, as spelled out in the canal agreement. The annual rent is now $2.3, Dr. Samponaro said.

The canal, which opened in 1914, was an engineering wonder of its time, and is "still a marvel," Dr. Samponaro said.

The Panamanians have grown "quite resentful" of American presence in their country, Dr. Samponaro said.

Their main objections are that the circumstances of the treaty are a farce; U.S. control of the Canal Zone is an affront to the dignity and sovereignty of Panama; the wealth and luxury of Americans living in Panama is a stark contrast to that country's poverty; and Panamanians working on the Canal are paid less for the same work than are Americans, and they can't hold jobs of authority, Dr. Samponaro said.

There has been open violence twice — in 1959 and 1964. After the 1959 uprisings, Dwight Eisenhower allowed Panama's flag to fly along the American flag in one section of the canal zone. However, in 1964, 21 persons died as a result of the violence, Dr. Samponaro said.

Negotiations for a new treaty were re-opened in 1964 by Lyndon Johnson, but are going so slow because "the issue is so sensitive and emotional," Dr. Samponaro said.

Besides a difference of opinion over the Canal's importance to the economy and national defense, Ford and Reagan have other areas of disagreement on the issue.

Ford feels a new, sea level canal could be built in a few years, and the U.S. could then leave Panama. Also, a new canal would be useable by large ships. The President says the canal cannot be defended in the event of a nuclear attack. He also says Latin America is watching the dispute closely, and if they are not happy, may attempt to damage the canal.

Reagan claims, however, that the Canal Zone is American property, bought and paid for. He also says this country should not back down to the demands of a "tin horn dictator."

The U.S. wants the following points in a new treaty: the right to defend the canal for 45 years, and the right to maintain military bases in the area for this purpose; and they want to continue to operate the waterway for a period of time less than 45 years, Dr. Samponaro said.

The Panamanians are demanding that the U.S. leave the area completely within 25 years, Dr. Samponaro said.

He said if Ford was elected, a treaty could be concluded by 1977, however, if a new President is elected, "the controversy will probably continue for some time to come," he said.

Because there is "strong political objection" to giving up the Canal Zone, Dr. Samponaro said it is "very doubtful" the Senate would vote to ratify any agreement.

Dr. Samponaro also noted the Cubans are something the U.S. must think about in its dealings with Panama. It would be hard to defend the canal from Soviet planes in Cuba, but he feels it is "unlikely right now" that the Cubans would try to help Panama get the U.S. out of that country.

The government of Panama is right-wing, and would not want to get a Communist nation involved in the dispute, he explained.

Judge wants to close Midland's federal court

indicated that a full-time presiding judge in Midland could more practically insure compliance with the act.

The congressman said he has talked with "numerous" West Texas lawyers, businessmen and community leaders who disagree with Spears' viewpoint.

"I am sure the members of the bar will continue to press for some satisfactory solution," Mahon said. The "remedy" Mahon foresees is the permanent stationing of a federal judge here.

"That would be great," he said. "I think this would be the ultimate solution...in forcing some sort of remedy."

Mahon said a bill pending in the House would provide for two additional judges — for the Western District. The Senate measure, which passed April 1 under the leadership of Sen. John Tower, would add one more judge to the district. The Senate bill calls for 45 new judgeships nationwide and five in Texas, and the House bill calls for 52 and 10.

However, the congressman pointed out that the positioning of any new judge or judges in the district would be up to Chief Judge Spears and his staff judges.

"I am very sensitive to the issue," Mahon said. He was instrumental, not only in locating a federal court here, but in the building of a downtown Federal Building-Post Office complex earlier in the 1970s.

"I don't want to see it (the court) abandoned, in effect," said

Navy veterans among Midland College grads

Ceremonies are commonplace for those who serve in the U.S. Navy, but Robert and Francesca Wadkins will be attending the Midland College graduation ceremonies with special delight Saturday evening.

Between them, they had completed 42 years' Navy service before beginning their college educations. Francesca will receive her associate degree in behavioral science, while Bob needs just one more semester to complete work at Midland College in business. Both have attended classes under the G.I. Bill.

The third Midland College graduating class will receive degrees in Saturday's ceremony, scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Lee High School auditorium. # FBI official, Nashville publisher subpoenaed

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee has summoned a high FBI official and a Nashville newspaper publisher to testify next Thursday on the FBI's relationship with a fired copy editor whose background is becoming more and more mysterious.

The hearing by the Small Business subcommittee on energy and environment will explore the charge that Jacques Srouji, 31, was an undercover agent for the FBI while serving as a copy editor for the Nashville Tennessean and, before that, as a reporter for the Nashville Banner.

As subcommittee aides prepared for the hearing, there were suggestions that Mrs. Srouji had passed along to the FBI information on radical groups she was covering for the Banner during periods of antiwar activity, protests by blacks and student unrest.

A subcommittee investigator said reports are being checked that Mrs. Srouji also had talked of making "some kind of contact with the Soviet Embassy with the encouragement and support of the FBI."

It was said that Mrs. Srouji recently had joined the Navy as a reserve officer and, while on a tour of duty in the Washington, D.C., area, was found by a subcommittee investigator inside a highly classified military base.

She allegedly told the investigator that she had a security clearance and was involved in Project Sanguine, a developing worldwide system for communicating with submerged submarines.

Whether she had a clearance and was working on the project is being checked out.

To go into these and other details uncovered by investigators, the subcommittee — headed by Rep. John D. Dingell (D-Mich.) — has asked for testimony from Tennessee Publisher John Seigenthaler and James B. Adams, assistant to FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley.

Seigenthaler has agreed to appear, and a letter was delivered to Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi Thursday seeking Adams' appearance. The FBI previously refused to turn over documents in the Srouji case, and if there is resistance on the request for testimony, Adams will be subpoenaed, a Dingell aide said.

As for Mrs. Srouji, she was fired by Seigenthaler after testifying at a subcommittee hearing April 26 about 1,000 confidential FBI documents in her possession.

She has denied being an FBI undercover agent, but has been unavailable for comment since she left home last Friday with two of her three children. She did not tell her husband, a state highway engineer, where she was going, according to the husband.

Seigenthaler said he had determined from discussions with Mrs. Srouji that she had a "special relationship" with the FBI. Recently, he said, the FBI attempted to have her plant a story in the Tennessean.

Seigenthaler would not elaborate, but an investigator said the story, which was never published, could be viewed as seeking to widen a factional split within the FBI. The story reportedly cast favorable light on an agent for his handling of a confrontation with militant Indians at Wounded Knee, S.D.

Seigenthaler said he also was disturbed that "the FBI asked (Mrs. Srouji), while she was reporting to them about other matters, about at least two members of the newspaper's staff." Although she professed worry about the request and said she reported only favorable things, Seigenthaler said it was unwise for the paper to have such contact with the FBI.

The subcommittee got involved with Mrs. Srouji last December. She was writing a book on atomic energy and planned a chapter on Karen Silkwood, who was killed in a November, 1974, car accident following a dispute over nuclear safety regulations with her employer, a Kerr-McGee plutonium processing plant in Oklahoma City.

According to aides, the subcommittee had been investigating the Silkwood case, and Mrs. Srouji sought information. At the same time, she showed investigators some of the 1,000 FBI documents she had obtained on the case, apparently from agent Lawrence Olson. Olson had been in charge of the Silkwood case in Oklahoma, and Mrs. Srouji met him upon his transfer to Nashville.

When the subcommittee sought to obtain copies of the documents from the FBI, it was turned down. The panel then had Silkwood display and discuss the documents at the April 26 hearing — an attempt to undermine the FBI's rationale for withholding them.

Congress' okay of budget ceiling may provoke fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford and Congress apparently will spend the summer at each other's throats in what could be an historic confrontation over the federal budget.

Acting under a new budget procedure, Congress has for the first time approved its own federal budget. In the past, Congress has worked on a budget submitted by the president.

Under the new procedures, Congress has approved its own spending ceiling of $413.3 billion for fiscal 1977.

But Ford said Thursday he is determined that it will be his budget of $395.8 billion that will regulate government spending and not the congressional budget.

"The Congress should be on notice that it is my intention to hold federal spending to the lower limit I proposed," Ford announced after the House gave Congress' budget ceiling final approval on Thursday. "I will not be a willing partner to the risk of another round of double-digit inflation."

Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, had warned when the Senate approved its spending ceiling on Wednesday that if Ford tries to cut the congressional budget figure by veto it would mean "a long-summer-of futile confrontation between Congress and the White House."

Democratic leaders say Congress' higher spending is the way to keep the nation's economic recovery going, largely by creating an extra one million jobs and continuing Congress' $17 billion tax cut through 1977, rather than granting a $28 million tax cut Ford proposed.

Democrats, including House Budget Committee Chairman Brock Adams, D-Wash., contend it is Congress' tax cut and extra money for federally aided jobs that have started economic recovery, not Ford's efforts to cut federal spending.

The $413.3-billion congressional budget ceiling envisions a $50.8 billion deficit compared to Ford's $44.6 billion.

The essential differences in Ford's and Congress' budget approaches to economic recovery rest on taxes and jobs.

Congress' $17 billion tax cut is focused on low- and middle-income Americans and assumes they will spend the money and stimulate the economy. Congress also wants to spend some $6 billion to create a million new federally aided jobs.

Congress' economists say that will cut unemployment to 6 per cent by the end of 1977, compared to 7 per cent under Ford's budget proposal.

Now's time for planting

By MRS. ROBERT KNOTT LANCASTER GARDEN CENTER
Now that our spring blooms are beginning to fade, it is time to get ready for summer color with annuals. They may be planted earlier when danger of frost is past, but if you have not done so, set plants out now or sow seeds in early May.

Fine seeds such as petunias may be kept from getting too dry by covering them with paper or burlap held in place by stones or soil. Remove the covering as soon as the seed germinates. Plant long-stemmed seedlings like cosmos with roots an inch or so deep, but avoid burying crowns of plants that have their leaves borne in rosettes. Tall, lanky growths may be pinched back to two or three sets of leaves.

SHASTA DAISIES can be divided or set out readily now. These plants require lots of room, and should not be allowed to flower too freely the first year.

VIOLAS grow in full sun, but tolerate some light shade in hot weather. They do not grow well in shade. Set them about 9 inches apart in good soil. They are delightful perky little flowers with shining dark green foliage.

ANNUAL ASTERS grow in any type of soil. Plants prefer full sun, but will do fairly well in partial shade. Alternate location every year. Seed may be sown through June 1.

All types of tender plants can be set out in May—cannas, caladiums and all summer bulbs.

Annuals to take the place of tulips and daffodils may be sown now—Drummond's phlox, California poppies, nasturtiums, zinnias, to name a few.

GLADIOLUS can be kept free of thrips by soaking corms for six hours in a solution of Lysol—four teaspoons to one quart of water, before planting. Make three successive plantings at 10 day intervals to give a long season of bloom. Phosphate is the most important fertilizer to use when growing gladioli.

Daffodil foliage, like that of other spring bulbs, should not be removed until it turns brown.

Kept faded flowers picked from pansies; also cut off old blooms from most flowers to encourage new blooms for color all summer.

With almost a minimum of effort in May, a lovely garden may be enjoyed all summer long.

ST. NICHOLAS' EPISCOPAL CHURCHWOMEN have elected officers for the coming year. Mrs. Frank L. Schatz, left, outgoing president, is pictured with Mrs. John D. Carey, new president.

DEAR ABBY PaperGIRL to get her own shirt, tie

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a paperGIRL, and I deliver to approximately 80 households.

My problem is that I am constantly being called a paperBOY, and I hate it. There are a lot of girls who deliver newspapers, and it's time people realized it.

Our newspaper company had an awards banquet, and the invitation read: "Please wear a shirt and tie." Well, I turned down the invitation. When my adviser asked me why I didn't attend, I said, "Because I don't have a shirt and tie!"

He said I was silly because if I had been there, I might have been voted paperBOY of the year.

Abby, can you do something about my problem? All of us paperGIRLS will be very grateful.—PALM SPRINGS PAPERGIRL

DEAR PAPERGIRL: If the newspaper is delivered on time, the boy or girl doing the job will be called "Blessed." (P. S. I'm sending you a shirt and tie for the next awards banquet.)

DEAR ABBY: Our son and his girlfriend, who are both in their early 30s and divorced, live in California about 50 miles apart. They openly admit that they sleep together on weekends to find out if they are compatible for marriage.

They flew here last December to spend the holidays with Dad and me. When we showed them his bedroom for HER and the hideaway bed in the den for HIM, they decided to stay at a motel.

Dad and I were hurt because we see our son only once a year, but we didn't say anything, and off they went.

When our son returned to California, he phoned to tell us that his expenses for the trip, including the motel room, was $748, so we sent him a check but said this was the last time we would pay for a motel room since there was plenty of room at our house.

Do you think we were wrong in refusing to let them sleep together in our home? Even though we knew they had slept together elsewhere, it would have made us very uncomfortable.—SQUARE IN ILLINOIS

DEAR SQUARE: No. When children (of any age) visit their parents, they should live by the rules of the parents' home. You were far more generous than most parents would have been. Since your son preferred to stay at a motel, HE should have paid for it!

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column about the daughter who is the only one in the family who visits her sometimes senile mother in a convalescent home. (Her sisters and brothers can't stand the smell, and they get too depressed seeing old people.)

I'll tell you a better one than that: My mother is 80, and lives in her own little house, which has no hospital odor, and she's not one bit senile. One of my brothers lives right next door to her, and he stops in to see her maybe once a month for a few minutes.

The other brother lives only 15 minutes away from her, and it's the same thing with him. Neither brother has ever offered to mow the lawn.

rake the leaves, or do any painting or repairing for her. Do you know who looks after my mother? My husband—her 60-year-old son-in-law! (My brothers are not yet 50.)

By the way, my brothers run to the

Ford snubs Soviet chief by delaying pact signing

The Washington Post

MOSCOW — Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev was dealt an unmistakable snub Wednesday when President Ford abruptly put off a planned ceremonial signing by the two leaders of a pact limiting the size of underground nuclear explosions for peaceful purposes, in the opinion of informed Soviet sources.

These sources confirmed that Mr. Ford indefinitely postponed the session, which was to have been held Thursday with Brezhnev and the President joined by television satellite as they signed the accord. Brezhnev, said the sources, was merely told that the timing was inconvenient.

Soviet sources were assuming, however, that the real reason for the delay was Mr. Ford's unwillingness to be seen making a sensitive agreement with Moscow at a time when the President's campaign is in trouble after a series of primary election losses.

"We are learning all about your political zigzags," one Soviet commented.

Mr. Ford's opponent, former

California Gov. Ronald Reagan, has accused the President and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger of sacrificing American military superiority and strategic interests in an effort to improve ties with the Kremlin. Mr. Ford has countered by adopting "peace through strength" as the motto for his policy toward Moscow.

The Soviet bid to have the peaceful nuclear-explosion pact — which was tentatively approved five weeks ago and initiated in Moscow Wednesday — signed so speedily at top level was evidently aimed at taking some of the recent chill out of Soviet-American relations. Moscow apparently wanted to stress its continuing interest in reaching disarmament accords with the United States.

No doubt Brezhnev also hoped to give new impetus to his image at home as a peacemaker. Preparations had been made to show the signing live on Soviet television at a peak viewing hour.

The pact, which limits the size of individual underground tests for peaceful purposes to 150 kilotons, also contains provisions for carrying out inspections of explosion sites — considered an important breakthrough in the arms control field.

The accord complements a still unratified 1974 treaty limiting underground tests of nuclear weapons to 150 kilotons. This accord was held up pending completion of the section on peaceful blasts. Once the pact is finally signed, it will be submitted to the Senate for ratification.

Sources said the Soviets had all but completed complex arrangements for the formal signing, which was to be held in a Kremlin hall, when word came through Moscow's embassy in Washington sometime after midday Wednesday that the affair was being called off for at least a week.

News of the turnaround leaked out because American correspondents had already been invited to an "important event" at the Kremlin Thursday evening and pressed here and in Washington for details of the occasion. Thursday morning Soviet Foreign Ministry officials acknowledged that the event — never actually described — would not take place after all.

Ceremonial appearances by Brezhnev, such as the one envisioned for the signing, are unusual, particularly one which foreign correspondents have been invited to attend. Hence, the sense among diplomats and Soviet sources that Brezhnev has been given a rebuff.

Soviet sources said that no public comment on the matter is likely.

Austin school proposal rejected

AUSTIN, (AP) — The Austin School Board had an emergency executive session scheduled today to study the second rejection by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals of the school district's desegregation plan.

The court rejected the Austin plan Thursday, remanding it to the U.S. District Court in Austin to implement one that will eliminate all discriminatory segregation of Mexican-American and black students in the district's 74 schools to meet federal standards.

The court order in effect did away with a three-year-old plan that the district had implemented while it was still being appealed. The court said the plan is not good enough and may be continued only as a stopgap.

"The constitutional duty of the school authorities is to establish a unitary system, not a unitary grade," the decision said aiming at the main feature of the plan that apparently displeased the appeals court.

The Austin plan had been set up to avoid massive busing and concentrated only in the sixth grade. It set up six sixth grade centers and estimated it would require the busing of about 1,900 students, 62 per cent of them Anglo.

The 5th said the plan approved for the AISD "leaves untouched the students in grades K-5 (kindergarten through fifth) and 7-12."

"The district court should consider appointing a master to prepare a comprehensive desegregation plan," the 5th added in remanding the case back to U.S. District court in Austin.

The AISD encompasses the city and some outlying areas of Travis County. It has some 55,000 students, 62 per cent of them Anglo, 23 per cent Mexican American, 15 per cent black.

Of the two minority classes, the 5th said 42 per cent of the blacks and 45 per cent of the Mexican Americans still attend schools where the enrollment is over three-fifths minority.

Austin School Board president Carole McClellan called the meeting after being told of the court's decision.

School District Supt. Jack L. Davidson said he would work with the board "step by step" to implement whatever the federal court orders.

Sam Biscoe, attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) said of the court's decision: "Excellent, excellent."

It was the second time the appeals court had rejected the Austin school desegregation plan. A plan submitted in 1972 also was rejected.

Austin now assigns students in grades kindergarten through the fifth to schools closest to their homes. The 5th said this will not do.

"It is apparent that assignment on a strict neighborhood basis will not suffice in the AISD although it may suffice as to some schools. To the extent that it does not suffice, the district court will proceed to employ other methods of desegregation."

Connally sees no need for new probe

ATLANTA, (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally, who was wounded during the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, says he knows of no new evidence that warrants a reopening of the investigation of the 1963 slaying.

Connally also took a swipe Thursday at Sen. Frank Church, whose Senate Intelligence Committee voted to recommend a congressional probe of the assassination.

The former Texas governor said he deplored congressmen "using committee chairmanships purely as a vehicle to promote presidential ambitions." Church, D-Idaho, is a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Speaking at an Emory University forum, Connally called the Republican presidential race a tossup between President Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

He said he has no interest in being on the ticket.

"I have no plans to throw my hat into any ring," Connally said. "I would really prefer not to hold any elective or appointive office, to tell you the truth."

In his speech, Connally said the terms of presidents, congressmen and federal judges should be limited to help remove politics from governmental decisions.

He suggested that presidents be limited to a single six-year term, senators to a single eight-year term, House members to two four-year terms, and judges be forced to retire at age 70 and made subject to Senate reconfirmation every 10 years.

At present, presidents may serve two four-year terms, judges are appointed for life and congressmen may serve without limit.

KEVIN CLARK, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Clark of 1013 Tarleton St., has been tapped to receive one of 250 National Honor Society scholarships given annually by the National Association of Secondary School Principals. Clark, a Lee High School senior who plans to attend Baylor University, was selected from among 12,000 applicants.

Ford prepares for whistle-stop Michigan tour

By WALTERS R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

Ronald Reagan is playing for the Democratic crossover vote in Michigan's key presidential primary, saying that America's problems cross party lines and so should the voters.

It could be an important factor in his challenge in President Ford's home state, where Jimmy Carter and Morris Udall are wooing those same voters as they square-off next Tuesday in the Democratic primary.

Ford today was embarking on a campaign journey to Johnson City and Memphis, Tenn., Louisville, Ky., and Michigan, where he begins his whistle-stop train tour through the state on Saturday.

Carter today is meeting AFLCIO President George Meany for the first time — a session that could be the key to winning enthusiastic support from organized labor if he captures the Democratic nomination.

Both Ford and Reagan hope a victory in Michigan will send their campaign on the road to victory at the GOP convention. Carter wants a victory to consolidate his position as Democratic front-runner following this week's loss in Nebraska and to stymie Udall's bid.

"We have to win a state like Michigan," Ford has said. Most observers agree that a loss to Reagan in his home state could cripple Ford's campaign effort.

Four of Reagan's victories over Ford have come in states that do not register voters by party and — like Michigan — permit voters to choose candidates from either party during primary election balloting.

The President, too, has invited Democratic voters to cast Republican ballots for his cause. But the odds are that Democrats who choose to vote Republican in Michigan will do more for Reagan than for Ford. "I don't think it will hurt us," Reagan said in Battle Creek Thursday.

Reagan and Ford seek the votes of past supporters of Alabama Gov.

George C. Wallace, who won Michigan's Democratic primary in 1972 but has been all but eliminated as a factor in the 1976 campaign.

Reagan campaigned today in Flint and Detroit, winding up his 25-hour mission in Ford's home state. His effort is built around personal appearances and $50,000 worth of weekend television broadcasts.

Meanwhile, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., demanded that the Ford campaign stop using tapes of Goldwater criticizing Reagan's position on the Panama Canal, it was learned. The Ford campaign complied.

Goldwater told a news conference 10 days ago that Reagan's statements opposing the administration's Panama Canal negotiations "reflect a surprisingly dangerous state of mind."

Tapes of the news conference were broadcast on Ford's behalf in Nebraska, where Reagan defeated Ford last Tuesday.

Besides his meeting with Meany, Carter was scheduled to be back in Maryland today, along with California Gov. Edmund "Jerry" Brown Jr., his chief opponent in Tuesday's Maryland Democratic primary.

For the most part, Brown on Thursday found receptive ears for his platform of full employment, conservation of natural resources and "planetary realism" in the nation's foreign policy.

Brown announced that he'll stage a write-in effort in Oregon's May 25th primary. He had previously planned campaigns in California and Nevada as well as Maryland.

The late-starting presidential hopeful was buoyed by results of a Baltimore Sun poll published Thursday showing him trailing Carter by 1 percentage point among registered Maryland Democrats.

"If I can virtually move into the lead in Maryland in two weeks, why can't I take the lead nationwide in two months," Brown said.

Hundreds of railway cars sent to quake areas for housing use

By HILMI TOROS
Associated Press Writer

UDINE, Italy (AP) — The Italian government has rushed hundreds of railway cars to Friuli province to house earthquake victims driven from their tent camps by flooding rains.

Police warned the homeless in five camps that they might have to move.

Rescue squads stopped digging through the debris for bodies and dug drainage ditches around the tent camps. But officials said there was no health hazard yet.

The storms caused more landslides along roads of the devastated region in northeastern Italy, isolating several communities. Clearance operations were hampered by darkness and the threat of more slides.

Another threatened village was evacuated Thursday night, adding more than 3,000 persons to more than 100,000 persons made homeless by the first severe quake May 6. It was the fifth village evacuated in two days.

Strong north winds blew over some tents and brought somewhat colder weather. Authorities tried to speed up deliveries of cots and blankets to the tent cities.

The government set up a court in one tent to try four men accused of possessing goods stolen from damaged houses.

Nine more bodies were found in Gemona, raising the total to 923 bodies recovered. A police spokesman estimated that 400 to 500 more persons were missing and probably dead, an increase of 100 to 200 over previous estimates.

More than 2,000 injured still were hospitalized.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, after a visit to one of the tent camps and a hospital on Thursday and a meeting with Italian officials, told reporters the government had done a "splendid job."

The vice president said he was certain the House of Representatives would approve the Ford administration's legislation to allocate $24 million to the Italian government for relief and reconstruction. The Senate has already passed the bill.

American officials said the United States already has sent more than $600,000 worth of tents, supplies, food and medicine to the quake area.

Flu shots scheduled

HOUSTON (AP) — Baylor College of Medicine Influenza Research Center officials say they will give swine flu vaccine to older persons next week.

Dr. Thomas R. Cate said Thursday about 500 persons 55 and older will get the shots.

It will be the second phase of the national tests to determine dosages for mass production.

Two weeks ago, a group from Baylor's influenza center administered the vaccine to 260 inmates at the Ramsey Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections.

Ag promotes thumb wrestling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has spent $44,000 so far for a series of "assertive awareness" seminars in which women employees learn to cope with their jobs and male bosses by engaging in Danish thumb wrestling contests.

The department's Animal and Health Inspection Service began the sessions about 18 months ago. The three-day seminars involve lectures and discussions, in addition to the Danish thumb wrestling.

R. M. Gurley, the agency's training officer, calls the program "a leveling process" and says it is recommended highly by activist women's groups throughout the country. About 220 women employees of the department have participated in 11 of the sessions held so far in Washington and in various locations, including Philadelphia, Atlanta and Ames, Iowa, he said.

"For the women who are a little bit on the super-aggressive, super-hostile side, it has a leveling process," Gurley said Thursday. "For the ones that are a little shy and timid and reticent, it brings them up to a level where they can communicate with ... male supervisors."

About Danish thumb wrestling, Gurley admits "I'm really not sure what it is, but it involves touching."

However, another Agriculture Department spokesman described Danish thumb wrestling as "two people interlocking fingers and then trying to pin each other's thumbs." Gurley said the sessions have averaged about 20 women each. He said the cost to the government for paying salaries and other expenses of qualified outside instructors has been $44,000, or about $200 per employee.

Callaway to testify today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's former campaign manager, Howard H. Callaway, faces a new round of questioning before a Senate panel probing his efforts to expand his Colorado ski resort onto federal land.

Callaway was to testify today as the Senate interior subcommittee on the environment wraps up its hearings on the matter.

The former Army secretary began his testimony last month, but the hearings were recessed when he complained that three Colorado residents, whom he described as his original accusers, had not been called to testify.

On Thursday all three residents of Crested Butte, Colo. — Mayor Tom Glass, County Judge John Levin and newspaper editor Miles Arber appeared.

Glass and Levin said they had gone to Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., last October to report allegations that Callaway was using his influence as a Ford administration official to try to persuade the Forest Service to approve expansion of his Crested Butte ski resort onto federal land.

Arber said he summarized Glass and Levin's information in a "confidential report" he delivered to Haskell in November. He said when it became clear that Haskell intended to launch a Senate probe in Callaway's conduct, he published a story on it in the March 11, 1976, issue of his weekly newspaper "The Crested Butte Chronicle."

All three denied that they had accused Callaway of wrongdoing, claiming they had just passed along their suspicions to Haskell.

Haskell, chairman of the panel, said he never regarded the three Coloradans as key witnesses. He said they only provided the preliminary information that allowed Senate investigators to begin their own independent probe.

Callaway resigned in March as President Ford's campaign manager after published reports that he had met last July 3 in his Pentagon office with top Agriculture Department and Forest Service officials, during which he argued for expansion of his ski resort.

Six months after that meeting, the Forest Service issued an environmental impact statement reversing an earlier recommendation by local forest rangers urging that the expansion be delayed.

Callaway owns a two-thirds interest in the ski resort company.

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz told the panel Thursday that he had forwarded to a subordinate last summer a memorandum from his then under-secretary of agriculture, J. Philip Campbell, urging that the Forest Service be persuaded to issue an environmental impact statement favorable to the proposed expansion.

Butz insisted this was his only personal involvement. "As far as I can recall, I never even discussed this with Mr. Callaway," he said.

Butz said Callaway's efforts to influence the Forest Service were no different from requests made routinely by members of Congress.

He said in the first three months of this year, there had been 698 inquiries to the Forest Service from members of Congress and that Haskell had made 38 such requests from March 1975 to March 1976.

Carter-Meany meeting could be key to labor vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter is heading for his first face-to-face meeting with AFL-CIO President George Meany—a meeting that could be the key to winning enthusiastic support from organized labor if he captures the Democratic presidential nomination.

Aides to both men described today's meeting in Meany's office across Lafayette Park from the White House as a chance for them to get to know one another. No endorsement was expected to come from the session.

Carter headed into the session fully aware that labor leaders generally preferred Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey or Henry M. Jackson. But he also knew that with his candidacy gaining momentum, labor may need him more than he needs them.

The former Georgia governor's stunning victory in the Pennsylvania primary showed that he could win the "lunchbucket" vote, despite the opposition of several important union leaders who endorsed Jackson.

Carter has had help from a coalition of liberal unions and in recent weeks has stepped up his efforts at wooing new labor support.

Democratic presidential candidates have traditionally benefited from the AFL-CIO's support in terms of money and manpower. A rare exception was in 1972 when the candidate, Sen. George McGovern, incurred Meany's wrath and the labor federation sat out the election.

Meany, who at one time or another has met with all of the Democratic candidates except Carter, has said any of them would be acceptable with the exception of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Although known to be cool to Carter, he told his political strategists last month to stay out of any stop-Carter drives.

AFL-CIO official said today's meeting would give Meany a chance to study Carter and find out where he stands on issues concerning labor, such as jobs and the economy.

"If Meany sees that Carter can level with him while sitting across the table, it will help," the official said.

Some labor leaders are weighing individual endorsements for Carter and there has been some talk that the AFL-CIO ought to abandon its preconviction neutrality. But officials of the giant labor federation insist that no endorsements would be made until after the conventions.

Ford facing Rhodesia issue

By LAWRENCE L. KNUXTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is being pulled in opposite directions over attempts to repeal a law that exempts imports of chrome from a trade embargo against the white supremacist regime that runs Rhodesia.

The eventual outcome of efforts to repeal the amendment could have profound effects on U.S. relations with black African nations.

Authored by Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., Ind-Va., the exemption has become a symbol in black Africa of a test of U.S. willingness to match policy statements favoring majority rule with concrete action.

Pulling Ford in one direction is the conservative Byrd, who maintains his only concern in the issue is that the world has only two major sources of chrome, Rhodesia and the Soviet Union.

Pulling the other way — toward repeal — are most members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who say ending the exemption is needed to restore U.S. credibility in Africa.

And Ford is faced with political pressure from his GOP challenger, Ronald Reagan, who has taken a dim view of efforts to "dictate" settlements to African nations.

But Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has been building an African policy out of the concept of U.S. support for efforts of African blacks to obtain majority rule in nations where a white minority holds political power.

Kissinger made repeal of the amendment allowing U.S. chrome purchases from white-ruled Rhodesia one of the major elements of a 10-point African policy he announced in a speech in Lusaka, Zambia, earlier this month. And repeal may be seen as a signal to Africans that the Ford administration intends to follow through on that policy.

But within days of Kissinger's statement, criticism of his support of black majority rule was injected into the presidential primary campaign by former California Gov. Reagan.

Reagan, challenging Ford for the GOP nomination, said during a campaign swing through Texas in the last week of April that Kissinger's pushing for black majority rule in Rhodesia "has literally undercut the possibility for a just and orderly settlement."

He added that "We seem to be embarking on a policy of dictating to the people of southern Africa and running the risk of increased violence and bloodshed ..."

Kissinger, in the midst of his African trip at the time, labeled Reagan's statements "totally irresponsible."

In an interview, Byrd pointed out that Ford himself — while a House member — voted against repeal of the chrome amendment.

But Kissinger told the Foreign Relations Committee on Thursday that it was his "understanding" that Ford will campaign actively to convince House and Senate members to vote for repeal.

But there were some suggestions of concern that Ford might turn his back on his own African initiatives for fear of losing conservative votes to Reagan.

New regulation provides for buyers of lemons

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the new car you just bought is a lemon, federal regulations that take effect today mean you may not have to pay off the bank or loan company that financed it.

The regulations end the 200-year rule of a market-place philosophy known as "holder-in-due-course," which forced consumers to pay for products bought on credit even if the products were not delivered or broke down.

The new rules, promulgated by the Federal Trade Commission six months ago, make creditors just as liable for customer satisfaction as the original seller.

Under "holder-in-due-course," a consumer who sought to withhold payment for unsatisfactory goods or services was not able to do so if he or she owed the money to a creditor rather than the original seller.

"Many creditors are participants in the ...practice (and) it is unfair and deceptive," the FTC said in issuing the new rules last November. The new FTC regulations seek to remedy that situation.

If the new car you bought today breaks down tomorrow, you can now stop payment to the bank or credit agency which extended the loan for the car.

The rules allow the consumer to stop payment and demand a refund of previous installments in cases where he can reasonably demonstrate that the purchase was never delivered, was damaged or was fraudulently represented — in the sale. Courts remain the final arbiter.

FTC spokesmen have said the new rules do not mean that a buyer cannot be sued for the unpaid balance of a bill, but that it gives a consumer a strong defense if the evidence shows the product was defective.

Installation sales purchases, beginning today, must include a conspicuous notice relating the consumer's right to assert legitimate complaints against any credit company which purchases a contract from the original seller.

Widow files suit against truck owner

HOUSTON (AP) — The widow of a man killed when an ammonia tank truck exploded has filed a $1.3 million lawsuit in state district court against the owner of the truck.

Sadie Bell McAdams of Conroe filed the suit Thursday against Transport Co. of Texas in Corpus Christi.

Gordon McAdams, 40, was one of five persons killed Tuesday when the tank truck crashed through an overpass rail and exploded on a freeway.

The suit filed by Mrs. McAdams alleges negligence on the part of the tank truck's driver, William Gregory Schmidt, 20, of Corpus Christi, one of the five killed.

Others dead at the scene were David B. Whiteman, 48, of Houston and George H. Pearson, 33, of Sugar Land.

Mrs. Grace Gillebaard, 33, of Houston died Wednesday night in a Houston hospital.

Authorities said nearly 200 persons, most of them overcome by fumes, were injured in the accident. Most of them have been released, although three persons remained in critical condition in area hospitals Thursday night.

Federal, state and local agencies continued investigations to determine the cause of the accident.

South Korean doctor may have solved mystery

By JOHN SAAR
The Washington Post

TOKYO — A South Korean doctor's isolation of a rare virus in a field mouse has apparently solved a major medical mystery and may lead within two years to development of a vaccine against the dreaded hemorrhagic fever.

For years, hemorrhagic fever has defied efforts by U.S. and Soviet scientists to identify its cause. Since the 1950-53 Korea War, about 3,000 American servicemen stationed in Korea have been stricken by the fever and at least 140 are thought to have died from its effects.

After seven years of research financed by the U.S. Army, Dr. Lee Ho Wang, a U.S.-educated microbiologist, announced in Seoul earlier this month that he had found the virus in the lungs and kidney of a single species of field mouse and successfully isolated it.

Hemorrhagic fever infects thousands of people annually in China, the Soviet Union and other countries and is on the increase among South Korea's civilian population.

Although known for more than 60 years in Russia and Manchuria, it leapt to medical prominence when 827 front-line GIs caught the disease in the first year of the Korean War.

The outbreak caused "great panic," according to Dr. Lee.

"It occurred explosively between the Chinese and American forces and some Americans thought it might be microbiological warfare," Dr. Lee said in an interview last week. "But eventually they found out the Chinese and North Korean troops were suffering too."

Eight hundred American soldiers caught the fever in 1951 and Dr. Lee estimates that from 5 to 10 per cent of them died from its effects — shock, hemorrhaging or kidney failure.

In 1952, 833 men caught the fever and American microbiologists flown to Korea to investigate the epidemic searched desperately but unsuccessfully for the viral agent. Between 1951-75, a total of 2,895 GIs were hospitalized with the unexplained fever.

American military and diplomatic officials in Seoul recall the onset of the epidemic.

"It was a horrible, frightening thing at the time," a diplomat said. "You wondered how many would get it and would the army be able to keep on fighting."

These officials do not remember any rumor suggesting that the disease was being spread deliberately by the North Koreans. No such allegations were officially made by the United States. Germ warfare charges were made however, by North Korea, China and the Soviet Union categorically denied by the United States.

Aluminum sheets reported missing

Approximately 65 sheets of aluminum, valued at $2,000, were reported missing from a storage lot at 1604 Garden City Highway, police said. The lot is owned by Don's Metals, 3010 W. Front St., police said.

The metal, which belonged to Midland College, was taken sometime during the last five weeks, police said.

TOOLS TAKEN

A tool box, two sets of socket wrenches and change from a cigarette machine were reported missing Thursday from the Terco Corp., 5000 W. Industrial, Tom McGinnis of the Midland County Sheriff's Office said.

The incident occurred between Wednesday night and Thursday morning, McGinnis said.

Entry to the building was gained by forcing the back door open, he said.

McGinnis estimated the value of the goods at $175.

THREE FIRES

Three fires were reported to the Midland Fire Department Thursday afternoon, but none of them caused any damage.

Firemen received a call at 4:20 p.m. to a trash dumpster fire at 4319 W. Illinois Ave., a fire department spokesman said. The cause of the fire is unknown, he said.

A cutting torch was blamed for a lumber and insulation fire at U.S. 80 and Fairgrounds Road, firemen said. The fire involving the scrap material caused no damage, firemen said.

A grass fire at 12:42 p.m. was reported at a railroad intersection two miles west of Midland on U.S. 80, firemen said. The cause of the fire is unknown, firemen said.

AUTO MISHAPS REPORTED

Three Midlanders were injured in separate car accidents Thursday and Friday morning, police said.

Eugene Grelle of 3311 Cammie Ave. and Columbus Cooper of 416 Stokes St. were treated and released at Midland Memorial Hospital for minor injuries, a hospital spokesman said.

The 7:58 a.m. accident Thursday occurred at the intersection of FM 868 and Lamesa Road, police said. The Grelle vehicle was eastbound on FM 868 and the Cooper vehicle was traveling north on Lamesa Road when the collision occurred, police said.

A Midland man received minor injuries in a one-vehicle accident at 5:20 a.m. today, a Department of Public Safety spokesman said.

Curtis Frierson, 29, of 1612 Maple St., was treated and released at Midland Memorial Hospital with a laceration on the forehead, a hospital spokesman said.

The accident occurred three-tenths of a mile north of U.S. 80 on FM 715 in Midland County, the DPS spokesman said.

Frierson was attempting to make a right turn when he missed the roadway and ran into a tree, the spokesman said.

The mishap was investigated by David Jones of the Texas Highway Patrol.

Contract agreement announced

President of Southwestern University Thursday night announced a contract between the university and The Brown Foundation, Inc., of Houston which challenges Southwestern to raise more than $8 million in 10 years to get a matching grant near $11 million.

Durwood Fleming, president of the Georgetown university, made the announcement here during an alumni gathering at Ranchland-Hill Country Club.

"Assuming Southwestern will be able to generate its part of this challenge grant, the university's opportunity to develop its marvelous educational potential will be assured," Fleming said.

"The ultimate goal for a private, independent college or university is to become fully self-supporting, thus eliminating the need to go outside the private economic sector for assistance."

The contract is the first of its kind. Unlike most campaigns to raise funds for capital improvements, the foundation challenge is designed to bring in operational funds for today's needs while at the same time building the endowment of Southwestern.

'Older Americans'

"Older Americans Month" is being observed here and across the land, with a wide variety of activities being staged by the various groups involved in working with senior citizens. One of the top attractions locally will be the Senior Programs Showcase scheduled all day Saturday in the Dellwood Plaza Mall.

Sponsored by Senior Services of the First Christian Church and open to the public, the Showcase is designed to acquaint the public with the organizations and agencies offering programs and services especially for older Midlanders.

Twenty-seven different organizations are listed in a directory compiled and distributed by Senior Services. Among those participating in the Showcase are Midland College, Tape Lending Library, Midland County Public Library, Volunteers in Midland, Visual Aids News-Mobile (VAN), National Association of Retired Federal Employees, Midland Retired Teachers, Midland Senior Activity Center, Texas State Commission for the Blind, Terrace Gardens Nursing Home, Social Security Office, Senior Citizens, Inc., and First Christian Church Senior Services.

This is a real opportunity for Midland and area residents to get a glimpse of a very important community program in action.

Persons visiting the Showcase will discover that many of the volunteers manning the exhibits are themselves senior citizens, demonstrating their own belief that Midland is a community where the "Image of Aging" is that of continuing activity.

This really is the significant part about the whole program — continuing activity. It is amazing the tremendous amount of volunteer work being done by retired persons. And the surface barely has been scratched.

A snappy, meaningful salute is directed to all older citizens, and to all the organizations and groups which serve them in various ways, during Older Americans Month.

Along with the salute goes a message of appreciation to all those Older Americans serving and willing to serve the community in varied volunteer capacities.

HHH plays it safe

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey is credited with having a quick mind and superb political instincts.

He exhibited both when he declined to conduct an active campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination during the remainder of the primary election season.

Not running is the best long-shot chance that he has to achieve his life-long dream of occupying the White House.

Had the Minnesota senator decided to compete, he would have faced a great risk of defeat. And Humphrey is one who shies away from defeat in any situation.

Columnist Robert Novak quotes Humphrey as confiding to Sen. Walter Mondale just prior to announcing his decision not to challenge front runner Jimmy Carter: "Remember, I'm no Harold Stassen."

Humphrey's constituencies, principally the most liberal elements of the Democratic party and organized labor leaders, already have thrown their Sunday punches at Carter and failed to stop him. Some of them now have endorsed Carter. There is no reason to believe that the others would be any more successful if they had an active instead of a phantom candidate.

From a personal standpoint, a defeat at the hands of a newcomer would be an almost unbearable blow for the senator who has built a national political career since he emerged in 1948.

At best, Humphrey had the longest of long shots had he entered the primary campaigns. His long shot chance is scarcely less because he did not enter the primaries personally.

OFFBEAT DIARY:

A time to remember at historic Horse Thief Creek

By JOHN PINKERMAN
 Copley News Service

HORSE THIEF CREEK, Calif. — The beer is cold, the shallow and narrow stream is running rapidly, Heidi is having a ball and 75-year-old Gordon Gardner is quietly boasting of how easy it is to out-hike his much younger pal.

This is the life. The locale is deep in Martinez Canyon, a good up-and-downhill four miles from civilization. It is quiet except for Heidi's panting, this reporter's occasional tired muscles groaning and the wonderful music of Horse Thief Creek.

The problems of ringing telephones, needling bosses, complaining readers and ridiculous politicians are seemingly centuries and thousands of miles away.

There are many places across America with the same lure and the same natural beauty as this particular locale: four miles into the wilderness on Caetus Trail from Pinyon Pines, population 47. The busy Pines to Palms Highway (California 74) runs not so far away — from the 5,000-foot level of the San Jacinto Mountains to the desert floor of Palm Springs.

It is a well-traveled road, particularly in the winter, spring and fall, but the travelers merely look with awe at what Gardner, four-legged friend Heidi and reporter are enjoying here. Those city folk just don't get to taste the real outdoors that is all around. It would do them good if they did.

There not only are some of the most wonderful examples of nature here but there is history, too. And, that's how Horse Thief Creek got its name.

This particular visit included views of Santa Rosa Mountain, of dolomite mines long abandoned, of Dry Creek. It included frequent shouts of warning to Heidi to stay clear of the many rocky outgrowths — it's rattlesnake time. There was occasional company — families, couples and a "caravan" of young backpackers that would reassure lots of elderly who think the younger generation has 100 per cent gone to pot — figuratively, and literally.

The group of young men and women we met were moving at the brisk pace that some young people can move. They were heavily laden — and they were singing, joking and enjoying all the wonders of a wholesome outing.

On inquiry one learned that they were Riverside City College students, and this was part of their learning process: It was a "credit course."

What was the name of the course — something like "the physical properties of the land?"

"Heck, no," one 21-year-old girl replied, "the name of the course is 'backpacking.'" College curriculum designers must be coming down to earth. Heidi and Gordon kept plowing ahead, upward but mostly downward, and when the younger reporter paused to rest and drink from his canteen, they did not pause with him. They kept moving ahead, then walked back, always in motion, admonishing the more weary companion, "It's time for you to get going again."

There were chalk-like shafts of rock

Secret police files uncovered

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The pernicious practice of branding prominent Americans as Communist sympathizers didn't die with the late Sen. Joe McCarthy. His murky disciples are still circulating a smear sheet, called "Information Digest," to police departments.

This has resulted, incredibly, in the establishment of secret police files on a host of celebrities such as Eddie Albert, Candice Bergen, Leonard Bernstein, Dick Cavett, Dustin Hoffman, Shirley MacLaine, Carl Reiner and Richard Widmark.

Several political figures, including Rev. Ralph Abernathy, ex-Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, New York City's former Mayor John Lindsay, auto workers boss Leonard Woodcock and various members of Congress have also wound up as the subjects of police dossiers.

The evidence has been uncovered by New York State Assembly investigators William Haddad and Thomas Burton, who conducted a painstaking investigation of "Information Digest." In a confidential report that eventually will be released to the public, they charge that the insidious smear sheet has been used as a "confidential informant" by the New York State Police for years.

"Names negatively mentioned in the publication," the Assembly investigators found, "were the stimulus for the creation of a dossier on the individual." Copies of the smear sheet were found in police files stamped: "The information contained herein is of a classified nature intended solely for the New York State Police and any other agency authorized by them."

The information was then shared with police across America, often "without independent checking by the police as to the validity and source of this derogatory information."

The chief source, according to the study, is the office of Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., a bush-league McCarthy who uses his congressional immunity to malign prominent people. He spreads wild charges against them in the Congressional Record. This permits Information Digest to republish the charges without risk of libel suits.

In fact, Information Digest has acknowledged in one of its bulletins that it "is indebted to the Congressman for his in-depth analysis" of Communist Party activities in the United States.

McDonald's colleagues on Capitol Hill tend to regard him as more of a clown than a menace. They may change their minds, however, after they discover his office has helped Information Digest portray many of them to the police as Communist sympathizers.

The sleuths have identified the smear sheet's chief contact in McDonald's office as a $14,000-a-year researcher named S. Louise Rees. A McDonald aide told our associate Bob Owens that Ms. Rees worked "on projects directly for the boss" and was often out of the office. Neither the congressman nor his researcher would comment on the charges.

EYE ON CUBA:

Action in Angola explained by Castro

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
 Copley News Service

To judge by what Premier Fidel Castro says, Communist Cuba's military instructors must be about the best in the world.

In one month, Cubans arrived, set up a recruit training camp and taught Angolans who had had no prior military instruction enough to defeat some of the best-trained troops in Africa, Castro would have you believe.

This is the way the conflict in the former Portuguese African colony went, according to Castro.

In spring, 1975, the United States spent tens of millions of dollars on arms and instructors to counterrevolutionary groups in Angola.

In the summer, regular army troops from neighboring Zaire, at the instigation of the United States, entered Angolan territory, and South African forces occupied the Cunene area of Namibia from where they sent arms and instructors to the Angolan UNITA movement.

"At that time there was not one lone Cuban instructor in Angola," Castro said in a speech broadcast from Havana, the transcript of which Copley News Service obtained.

"The first Cuban material aid and the first instructors arrived in Angola at the beginning of October, at the request of the MPLA (the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola) when Angola was already being shamelessly invaded by foreign forces."

Then Castro may have made a slip of the tongue.

"However, no Cuban military unit had been sent to Angola to participate directly in the conflict, nor was it planned to do so," he said. Insertion of the word "directly" in the sentence may have been inadvertent, or it could have been meant to suggest that Cuban military units were there in some other role.

"On Oct. 23, equally instigated by the United States, regular army troops from South Africa, supported by tanks and artillery, crossed the frontier of Namibia, invaded the territory of Angola and penetrated deeply into the country, advancing 60 to 70 kilometers a day," Castro said.

"The third of November, they had penetrated more than 500 kilometers (310 miles) into Angola, encountering the first resistance in the vicinity of Benguela, offered by the personnel of a recently organized school for Angolan recruits and their Cuban instructors who disposed of virtually no means of containing the attack of the South African tanks, the infantry and the artillery.

"The fifth of November, 1975, at the request of the MPLA, the leadership of our (Cuban Communist) Party decided to urgently send a battalion of regular troops, with antitank weapons, to support the Angolan patriots in their resistance to the invasion of the South African racists. This was the first unit of Cuban troops sent to Angola," Castro affirmed.

"When it arrived in the country from the north, the foreign interventionists were 25 kilometers (15 miles) from Luanda, their 140mm artillery was bombarding the outskirts of the capital, and the South African fascists had penetrated more than 700 kilometers (435 miles) through the south, from the borders of Namibia, while Cabinda was being defended heroically by the combatants of the MPLA with a handful of Cuban instructors."

Castro was careful not to mention the numbers of Cubans in Angola. "It is enough to say that, once the battle was joined, the men and the arms necessary to conclude it victoriously were sent."

U.S. intelligence estimates ranged up to 13,000 Cuban troops involved.

He said Cuban losses in Angola were minimal.

More Cuban soldiers died in three days battling the ill-fated exile landings at the Bay of Pigs in April, 1961, than in the four months that the Angola action lasted, Castro claimed.

Castro scoffed at President Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger for blaming the U.S. Congress for the defeat of anti-Soviet forces in Angola. By December, when Congress denied additional funds for the Angolans who opposed the Communist takeover, Castro said the troops from Zaire had been repelled, the South Africans had been halted "and no arms shipment by the Central Intelligence Agency would have been able to change the inexorable course of events."

How lucky can any mortal be, and it is too bad more city people can't or won't taste such outdoor luxury.

(But, then came the return climb up to the 4,500-foot level of the Pines to Palms Highway. The trail seemed rockier, steeper and tougher in every way. Even Heidi slowed to a walk; master to a near crawl. But, friend Gordon Gardner, at his ever-so-steady pace, showed no sign of fatigue. South ruffed the third round of hearts and drew two rounds of trumps with dummy's queen and jack. When East discarded the deuce of diamonds, South led a low club from dummy and lost the king to West's ace.

West returned a heart, forcing dummy to ruff. Now South could not get to his hand; for when he returned a diamond, West took the setting trick by ruffing.

LED WRONG CLUB

South earned his misfortune. He should lead the queen of clubs from dummy instead of the low club.

If West takes the ace, South can later get to his hand with the king of clubs. If West refuses the first club, South can draw trumps and run the diamonds.

The clue to the winning play came when East discarded the deuce of diamonds.

If West had the singleton ace of clubs, he would have three diamonds; and East would have only two diamonds and seven clubs. With such a hand, East's first discard might be a club or it might be the higher of his two diamonds; but it would not be the deuce of diamonds.

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — On the last day of the Johnson Administration in January 1969, outgoing Treasury Secretary Joseph W. Barr dropped a little bomb on Congress.

He told the Joint Economic Committee that 155 individuals with income over $200,000 in 1966 — including 21 with incomes over $1 million — had paid no federal income taxes.

Furthermore, he testified, they had done it legally. They had simply taken the ultimate advantage of all the special preferential provisions in the tax laws.

The news caused a great stir — and an embarrassed Congress responded later that year by enacting a minimum income tax.

That minimum tax was supposed to limit the use that any individual could make in any one year of all the tax-reducing loopholes in the law.

Actually, however, the minimum tax had almost as many loopholes as the basic law it was supposed to shore up. The Internal Revenue Service provided evidence of that last week when it reported there were 244 individuals with income over $200,000 in 1974 who paid no federal income taxes — and a total of 3,273 non-payers who had incomes over $50,000.

And now a major floor fight is shaping up in the Senate over strengthening the minimum income tax.

The minimum tax is actually one of several tax provisions involved in the fight, which is likely to occur next month. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, (D-Mass.), is leading one side, Senate Finance Committee Chairman Russell B. Long, (D-La.), the other.

At issue is tax legislation Long's committee is now writing that would do two things. First, it would extend the anti-recession tax cuts Congress passed last year, thus averting a tax increase, since the cuts will otherwise expire June 30.

Second, it would make assorted other tax revisions. As a basis for these changes, the committee is working partly from a complicated tax bill the House passed last December.

The House bill contains some provisions that would cost the government revenue, such as a liberalization of the existing tax write-off for child care. But these would be outweighed by various revenue-raising reforms; the bill as a whole would increase government revenues about $1.4 billion in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

There are three main revenue-raising sections of the House bill. One would strengthen the minimum tax, so that it would yield about $1.4 billion next fiscal year instead of the $230 million it yields now. Another would crack down hard on so-called tax shelters, ways of creating paper losses to make an individual's income look smaller than it is and thus reduce his taxes. The third would reduce an existing tax subsidy to exporters. Kennedy wants to go beyond the House bill and enact enough changes to net $2 billion in additional revenue. He says it can easily be done — for example, by tightening the minimum tax a little more than the House, and reducing the tax subsidy to exporters.

Both the House and Senate have also voted indirectly for $2 billion in reform in the budget resolutions they have passed for next fiscal year, and on which they are supposed to take final votes this week.

These tax and spending resolutions are only targets, but they add to the pressure on Long. With tax legislation being presented as a way to reduce the federal deficit, Kennedy may be able to look to liberals and fiscal conservatives for support.

While the House bill would raise about $550 million by virtually outlawing use of paper losses to reduce income and income tax, the Finance Committee has so far voted to raise only about $200 million this way.

Instead of outlawing tax shelters, the committee has merely put certain limits on their use and decided to subject sheltered income to the minimum income tax.

Broadway masterpieces plentiful

NEW YORK — Among the many things right with the Broadway theater these days is the plentiful supply of theater masterpieces lovingly revived.

A surprising percentage are American in origin. Others are more international in flavor as well as birth.

Currently running, for instance, are excellent productions of "Henry V," "Threepenny Opera," Ibsen's "The Lady from the Sea" and "My Fair Lady," which must be classified as a joint American-British progeny in deference to George Bernard Shaw.

The "Henry V" is that of England's Royal Shakespeare Company imported for just three weeks at the Brooklyn Academy of Music in a production already widely acclaimed since its debut last year.

Terry Hands has directed with care to see the play as a Shakespearean sampler of comedy, tragedy, irony, history and theatrics enough for all. While not the definitive "Henry V" some have claimed, this production is complete, accurate, sturdy and inspiring, a worthy comparison for the historic World War II film version of Laurence Olivier.

The film, produced as high-art propaganda during dark war days, hung a warmonger, jingoistic reputation on the play that this production does much to dispel simply by including the "battle scene" in which two clowns represent the entire actual Battle of Agincourt, about which the play revolves.

Also, Hands has constructed some fascinating illumination around the character called Chorus, who spends much dialogue on exhorting the audience to provide imagination for filling in the lacks of the theater. This

Chorus, played as a friendly, chatty, spectator's representative a la "Our Town's" Stage Manager, begins the show, like the rest of the cast, in contemporary garb. Unlike the

The German theater will be represented during the coming weeks by a new translation of the Bertolt Brecht-Kurt Weill "Threepenny Opera," produced at Lincoln Center's Vivian Beaumont Theater by Joseph Papp and the New York Shakespeare Festival.

It's bound to be the most controversial show of the season, this dense, mysterious, disturbing production directed by Richard Foreman, an experimental theater hoiden with no previous commercial credits.

Central to the controversy is the collective memory of the 1954 Off

Broadway version by Marc Blitzstein which ran for 2,611 performances and put the song "Mack the Knife" into the repertoire of Louis Armstrong and Bobby Darin.

Without German, it's hard to know about the accuracy of Brecht translations, but all indications are that the Blitzstein show, no matter how stirring, was not what Brecht had in mind, while this new version, by Ralph Manheim and John Willett, is.

The acid sarcasm and the jagged syntax are here and the stark, furious poetics of lines such as: "What's breaking into a bank compared to founding a bank?"

ENTERTAINMENT

others, he remains so dressed throughout.

The others, including the superb Alan Howard in the title role, gradually and gracefully change into the traditional trappings as the play begins to unfold and, when an apparatus of cloth and wires which has hung overhead since the informal beginning of the show suddenly blossoms into an enormous, billowing panoply of heraldic designs, one grasps fully the magnitude of the concept.

The actors are, without exception, breathtakingly excellent. The decor, by Farrar, is sparse in quantity but rich in quality with the costumes of particular eloquence in contrast between the ragged British and the over-elegant French.

Touches such as the presence of 11 musicians playing brass, woodwinds and drums; the clever and innovative lighting design of Stewart Leviton; and the complete absence of microphones in the enormous hall (with no audio problems) reminded one of the occasion of a too-brief visit by one of the English-speaking theater's most glorious ensembles.

Dinosaurs sluggish

LONDON (AP) — A British zoologist claims the brontosaurus, a 35-ton dinosaur of 125 million years ago, lumbered through the plains of what now is Colorado, Texas and Wyoming at a sluggish two miles an hour.

Prof. Neil Alexander, writing in the weekly science magazine Nature, said he studied the speed and stride of present-day horses, elephants, rodents, ostriches and even his own children, Jane, 11, and Gordon, 13.

He used fossilized footprints to calculate the stride of the brontosaurus. Then he took a formula for working out the speed of ships and adapted it to animals.

Smaller dinosaurs moved at about eight miles an hour, he calculated.

McNeil: pride and joy of public television

Newsday

NEW YORK — He's no Barbara Walters, but Robert MacNeil is public television's pride and joy. And his nightly 30-minute "MacNeil Report" has been hailed widely and glowingly, and described as everything from an "electronic op-ed page" to "news with meat on its bones."

The 44-year-old MacNeil is the antithesis of the current crop of padded news anchors who race through the evening news like sprinters trying to set a record.

MacNeil, a refugee from NBC and the British Broadcasting Corp., is a self-effacing, quiet-spoken man with a reputation for being articulate. On television, he is courteous to his guests but seldom allows them to stray far from the point of the discussion.

The "MacNeil Report" began in October in New York and is now carried by 40 stations in major cities. More are expected to come aboard as scheduling problems are ironed out.

What makes the show unusual is that it disdains the ticker tape approach to the news, covering instead just one issue or program in depth.

"We think of each story as a little river," says the sandy-haired MacNeil. "Either you can dip a cup into it at any given moment or, if you choose, you can dam it up and look at it for half an hour."

What MacNeil and public television officials hope is that there are enough viewers who will be attracted to alternative newscasting.

"Our feeling is that perhaps people are becoming bored by these rushed recitals," he says. "There is a frenzied air about newscasts where, regardless of the importance of a story, you hear the same tone of voice. It's a rush through the headlines. There's a suspicion that there might be a communication overload."

Printing paper theft case may go to trial June 21

AUSTIN (AP) — Alex Martinez' lawyer says he and the district attorney's office have agreed tentatively to a June 21 trial on charges that Martinez, former head of the Texas Senate print shop, and Penni Stoner stole printing paper valued at $200-$10,000.

Martinez was fired for allegedly stealing the paper and went to the district attorney with complaints about Martinez' boss, Senate secretary Charles Schnabel, which led to indictments against Schnabel.

Schnabel is charged with theft, official misconduct and forgery. His trial on one of the charges — still to be determined — is scheduled for July 12.

Martinez' lawyer, Laird Palmer, said the only problem with the June 21 date is that it is the same day Rep. Greg Montoya of Elsa is scheduled to go on trial on theft charges that have been pending for more than a year.

Should the Montoya trial start on schedule, the next available date for the Martinez Stoner trial would July 12 — the same as Schnabel's trial

Tower's press secretary off the hook

HOUSTON (AP) — A spokesman for U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex. says no disciplinary action is planned against Tower's press secretary who confirmed he gave off-hours help to the Ronald Reagan camp while his boss campaigned for President Ford.

The Washington Bureau of the Houston Post quoted Mike Kelly Thursday as saying he has written one speech on education for the National "Citizens for Reagan" office, has advised Reagan's staff on some issues and he has been elected as a Reagan delegate to the state GOP convention in Virginia.

Kelly denied being a "pipeline" from the Ford camp to the Reagan camp.

After being questioned about it by the Post, Kelly said he informed Tower, who was chairman of Ford's Texas campaign and who is scheduled to be the President's floor manager at the Republican National Convention in August.

Kelly said he had "never made a secret around the (Tower) office of my feelings about Reagan" but had not previously told his boss about his active work for the former California governor.

Edwin Skiles, Tower's administrative assistant, told the Post Kelly made a "judgment error" in not fully informing Tower. However, Skiles said no disciplinary action will be taken.

"Tower does not try to monitor our lives," Skiles said. "The rule around here is no politicking on the job. Whatever Mike wants to do in his own free time is his own business." Skiles said he would feel differently if he thought any Tower "confidences had been betrayed" by Kelly.

"Granted, I would prefer that everyone on the staff have a great deal of zeal for President Ford," Skiles said. "It would make life easier. But so long as it doesn't affect his work, I'm not troubled by it."

The Post said a source in the Reagan's Texas campaign referred to Kelly as "our pipeline" into the Ford camp. Both Kelly and Jeffrey Bell, an issues coordinator on Reagan's national staff, denied it.

"My conscience is clear about that," he said. "I have not violated my loyalty to the senator in any way."

Bell called the remark by the Reagan source "a bum rap."

"That's absolutely false," Bell said. "All Kelly's work has been in the issues area. Reagan has used material from the speech. It's been revised and used pretty frequently.

"But I don't know of any confidential or sensitive information Kelly ever gave us. That's just absolutely false. I have no knowledge of anything like that. I'm convinced he did nothing unethical."

Kelly, a former Washington correspondent for the Dallas Times Herald, was an unsuccessful Republican Congressional candidate in his native Wisconsin in 1972. He became Tower's press secretary Jan. 20, 1975.

Agents arrest man in insurance scheme

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Agents of the FBI have arrested a man here who was reported by his "widow" to have drowned near Corpus Christi, Tex.

Roger Sullins, the reportedly drowned man whose government life insurance policy his wife was trying to collect in Corpus Christi, was arrested at his parents' home.

Sullins, his wife Kimberly and a friend, Jim Turner, were charged with conspiracy to defraud the government of $20,000. Mrs. Sullins posted bond and Turner was held in the Nueces County jail after both were arraigned Thursday.

Sullins, meanwhile, was in the Mobile city jail pending arraignment before a U.S. magistrate Friday.

Police officials in Corpus Christi said it all started last month when Sullins was reported to have drowned while swimming off Padre Island.

Engineer of jail break ready for consequences

DALLAS (AP) — Don Fielden posted a $5,000 bond Thursday after he was arraigned on charges of engineering a jail break in Mexico that freed 14 U.S. citizens.

The 31-year-old ex-Marine sergeant strode into the U.S. Marshal's office here in the company of his attorney, Ernest Kuehne Jr. shortly before noon. Arraignment was before U.S. Magistrate Bailey Rankin.

"I just want to get it all behind me," Fielden said.

A warrant was issued in Houston Wednesday alleging Fielden violated

U.S. neutrality laws by taking arms from Eagle Pass across the Rio Grande March 12 to free the prisoners at Piedras Negras.

Fielden said he was hired by Dallas psychologist Sterling Davis to free Davis' son from the jail where he was held on drug charges.

Davis said he paid Fielden $5,000 to stage the breakout because he had been unable to free his son through other means.

Fielden told the Dallas Times Herald he burst into the jail armed with a sawed-off shotgun and freed all of the U.S. prisoners, all of them held on drug charges.

"I'm prepared to face whatever I have to face. It's been on my conscience and I just want to get it all behind me," he said.

Authorities said it is likely—if the case comes to trial—that Fielden will be tried in Del Rio, Tex.

Mexican authorities have made no effort to ask for extradition.

A group calling itself U.S. Citizens for Don Fielden has scheduled a news conference for today in Dallas. The group announced Thursday night that it will seek to "raise funds and sway public opinion" for Fielden.

Chairperson Sally Thompson said her group has only a skeletal membership at present, but that interest has been shown by several individuals and groups, including the National Rifle Association and the American Civil Liberties Union.

SERVED ITS PURPOSE?

Depressing sight, isn't it? And what is it we say when something old, familiar, once-cherished, once-useful has succumbed to the ravages of time? It served its purpose!

Could all the churches in our town someday look like this? They could! Maybe they will...

if they have served their purpose...

if we don't need them anymore!

Even if you haven't been to church recently, I think you'll protest that we DO need our churches. We need the truth they teach—the faith they instill—the hope they inspire—the God-given strength with which they undergird our life. This is the very point: WE ALL need our churches. And to bring ALL of us to realize and fulfill our need... That is their purpose!

Church to install assistant pastor

The Rev. Charles W. E. Meyer will be installed as assistant pastor of Midland Lutheran Church Sunday morning.

The service of installation will be conducted by Dr. Vernon A. Mohr, Austin, bishop of the Southern District of the American Lutheran Church (ALC), of which Midland Lutheran is a unit.

The new assistant pastor here, Mr. Meyer, is a native of Seattle and a 1966 graduate of the University of Washington with a degree in sociology. He holds a master of divinity degree from Pacific Lutheran Seminary at Berkeley, Calif.

For the last five years, Mr. Meyer has served as pastor of Grace Lutheran Church at Eagle Lake, during which time he also has been dean and chairman of the Brenham Conference's youth committee. He is descended from Lutheran ministers, both his grandfathers having served parishes in the Midwest and in Canada.

In his new post here, Mr. Meyer will be active in all phases of Midland Lutheran Church's ministry, including education, evangelism and youth work.

Bishop Mohr, as installing officer at the 11 a.m. Sunday event, will be featured speaker in the service. He and Mr. Meyer will be honor guests at a fellowship luncheon scheduled at the church following the special service, said the Rev. David Herman, pastor of Midland Lutheran Church.

Royce Lee Measures

Measures gets degree

FORT WORTH — Midland native Royce Lee Measures, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Measures of Midland, received a doctor of theology degree in spring commencement exercises held today at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

The largest graduating class in the seminary's 68-year history, made up of more than 280 degree candidates from the seminary's three schools, received degrees and diplomas from Dr. Robert Naylor, president of the seminary. Included were 16 doctoral candidates, of which Measures was one. Commencement speaker was Dr. Jaroy Weber of Lubbock, current president of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Catholicism class held

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The Rev. Kenneth Baker, concerned that many students entering Catholic colleges and universities have little knowledge of their religion, conducts an experimental class in "Remedial Catholicism" at Gonzaga University here.

Baker, a former president of Seattle University and current editor of the Homiletic & Pastoral Review, said initial reaction to the class was so great that it had to be shifted to larger facilities.

"The first assignment directed the students to write a letter telling me about their religious history," Baker said. "Those letters make most interesting reading. It's too bad our bishops cannot see them. Of the 41 students, only one claims any basic knowledge of the faith, though most are graduates of Catholic schools."

Church to hear special music

The Gospels, Midland-based singing group, will present special music during the Sunday evening service of South Memorial Baptist Church, 1700 W. Carter St.

The quartet presents gospel and inspirational concerts throughout this area, said the Rev. Jimmy Stovall, South Memorial's pastor, and he is inviting the public to hear the ensemble Sunday evening. The service will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Jews publish Bill of Rights

NEW YORK (AP) — Agudath Israel of America, an Orthodox Jewish organization that sponsors diversified programs for Jews, has published a "Bill of Rights" for Jewish hospital patients.

Patterned after an American Hospital Association "Patient's Bill of Rights," the Agudath publication lists what a Jewish patient can expect from a hospital administration.

While the Agudath form is not legally binding, the organization said, however, "We are confident that a polite but forceful request for any or all of these rights will be honored."

Program ends choir year

Crestview Baptist Church will conclude its 1975-76 choir year with a special program next Wednesday.

Pre-school and youth choirs will be participating in the program in the sanctuary, scheduled to begin at 7:15 p.m. Special musical numbers will be presented and outstanding choir members will be recognized. The public is invited to attend the event.

Crestview Church is at 3300 Thomas St.

Church revival set to begin tonight

A special weekend revival will begin tonight at Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, 2800 Mogford St., continuing through Sunday.

The emphasis will be initiated with a covered dish supper beginning at 6:15 p.m. today. This will be followed by the opening service at 7 p.m.

Saturday events will include a women's luncheon and a picnic for children, both beginning at 11:30 a.m.; a luncheon at 12:30 p.m., and a hamburger fry for church youth at 6 p.m. The Saturday night worship service will begin at 7.

Sunday events will include worship services both morning and evening.

Laymen will be in charge of the weekend revival. C. J. Humphrey, an Amarillo attorney and outstanding Southern Baptist layman in the state, will be the featured speaker. He has served on many state boards of the Baptist General Convention of Texas and is a past president of Texas Baptist Men. He has made a number of evangelistic trips abroad, to Europe, Japan and elsewhere, and only recently returned from evangelistic campaigns in Nigeria, Africa, and in Spain.

Music leader for the revival is George Stout, a professor emeritus of the University of Houston music school. Currently he serves as outreach director for First Baptist Church of Pasadena.

The weekend services and special events will be open to the public.

Dr. Jack Baskin

Rev. E. J. Brinson

Baptist church to host Dr. Baskin, Rev. Brinson

Kelview Heights Baptist Church will have pulpit guests during its Sunday morning and evening services.

Dr. Jack Baskin, executive vice president of Pacific Coast Baptist Bible College, San Dimas, Calif., will be the speaker at the 10 a.m. worship service, and the Rev. E. J. Brinson, pastor of Bethel Baptist Church at Arlington, will preach at the 6:30 p.m. service.

Dr. Baskin, a former missionary to Korea who has spoken in Midland on several past occasions, will speak on "Missions — the Faith Promise Way," while Mr. Brinson's topic is to be "The Importance of Home and Foreign Missions to the Individual Church Member." The Rev. Frank Johnson, pastor of Kelview Heights Church, is inviting the public to hear the two speakers.

Rev. Hillier to be guest

The Rev. Bill Hillier of Abilene, known as the "Gospel Ventriloquist," will be a Sunday visitor at Parklea Baptist Church, 2906 Franklin St.

Mr. Hillier will be accompanied by his two puppets, "Chris Christian" and "Barney Baptist," when he presents a special program in the Midland church at 10 a.m. Sunday. The presentation will include personal interviews with both Chris and Barney special feats of "Gospel Magic," plus a special Black Light message.

Mr. Hillier is becoming increasingly known throughout West Texas and adjacent sectors for his unique and imaginative gospel ministry which is aimed primarily at children but which also is enjoyed by adults.

The Rev. P. T. Stewart, pastor of Parklea Baptist, is inviting children and grown-ups of the city to attend the special program Sunday morning.

Pipe organ dedication slated at Midland church

Dedication of the new pipe organ at Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Highway, will be a Sunday event in the city.

The dedicatory service at 7 p.m. Sunday will be highlighted with a recital played by Emmet G. Smith of Fort Worth.

The service also will feature the church choir, directed by Debbie Pope and accompanied at the organ by Smith, in several vocal works, including "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" by J. S. Bach and "How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place" by Brahms.

Smith, professor of organ at Texas Christian University and widely hailed as a concert performer and recitalist, has selected works by Bach, Vivaldi, Clerambault, Dandrieu, Bingham and Widor for his program. Smith has been a Midland recitalist in the past and several local organists are former students of his.

The Memorial Christian organ, an 18-rank instrument made by Moeller, was installed earlier this spring and first used on Palm Sunday. It is one of three new pipe organs installed in the city this year.

A reception honoring Smith, choir members and members of the organ selection committee at Memorial Christian will be held in the church fellowship hall following the dedicatory service. Both service and reception will be open to all members and friends of the church.

Emmet G. Smith

Methodist church slates Choir Recognition Service

First United Methodist Church's 26th annual Choir Recognition Service will be held at 5:30 p.m. Sunday in the sanctuary, North Main and Ohio streets. The public is invited.

Continuing a tradition, the theme will be "A Festival of Psalms," and in keeping with that theme, the service will present musical settings of many of the Psalms.

The program will feature the three singing choirs and the adult and youth handbell choirs of the church.

Leading off the program will be the Carol Choir in a presentation of "Psalm 100" as set to music by Dallas composer Jane M. Marshall, and the Junior Choir in "A New and Joyful Song of Praise" as set to an early American tune by Kenneth Staton.

Other works programmed include "Lift Thine Eyes" (Mendelssohn) by the Youth Handbell Choir; "Some Trust in Chariots" (Martin Shaw) by the Chancel Choir; "Like As A Father" (Cherubini) by the Junior and Chancel choirs; "Ring A Bell of Joy" (Ellen Jane Lorenz) by the Chancel Choir, with accompaniment by the two bell choirs; "St. Anthony Chorale" (Johannes Brahms) by the adult handbell ensemble, with organ accompaniment.

All choirs will join in singing "Lead Me, Lord" by Samuel S. Wesley, to continue a long tradition of the yearly choral programs, and also will present "Brother James's Air," as arranged by Gordon Jacob. They will conclude the service with "Pastorale" by Alinda B. Couper.

The annual choral event marks the conclusion of the choir year. The Carol Choir has served at seven services during the year, the Junior Choir has performed five times, the Youth Choir has performed in three services and the adult Chancel Choir has participated in more than 60 worship services during the past season. The adult handbell ensemble, an ecumenical group, does not play in church worship services but has presented special programs in the church and throughout the city.

Sunday's special program is under the direction of George DeHart, organist and choirmaster for First United Methodist Church.

First Christian Church to hear Dave Marquis

A young man who is making a name for himself throughout the Southwest as an orator and story-teller will be featured speaker Sunday evening at an all-church fellowship dinner at First Christian Church here.

He is Dave M. Marquis, a native of Lubbock and graduate of Austin College, Sherman. In the tradition of Mark Twain and Will Rogers, he has taken up old-time oratory and story-telling and has developed a series of Bicentennial lectures — or one-man shows, as he terms them — which intelligently, often humorously, discuss the American condition. He also has written a book titled "Celebrate America."

After graduating from Lubbock High School in 1969, where he was named outstanding speaker, he studied American history, literature and government at Austin College.

Following graduation, he taught American history and literature at Plano before developing his "one-man shows" which now take him to cities and towns not only in the Southwest but in many other parts of the nation as well.

The dinner, scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. Sunday in the church fellowship hall, will honor all graduating high school seniors of the congregation. Special music will be presented by several of the church's choral groups, and longtime members of the congregation will be recognized.

Church choir plans musical

The Sanctuary Choir of Bellview Baptist Church will present a Christian musical, "The Good Life," during the church's Sunday evening worship hour.

The musical, by John W. Peterson, in its presentation here is under the direction of W. L. Card, Bellview's music director. Accompanists will be Mrs. Jay Hardy, pianist, and Mrs. John Bostwick, organist. Narrator for the work will be Steve Drummond and solo vocalists are to be Mrs. W. L. Card, Mrs. Wayne Woody, Jay Hardy and Tim Johnson.

The 6:40 p.m. Sunday event will be open to the public, said the Rev. Elbert Smithen, pastor of Bellview Baptist Church, 1710 N. Big Spring St.

Choral groups plan musical

A special musical presentation is planned Sunday evening by two choral groups at St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St.

The Candle Choir and the Cross Choir will present a special Bicentennial musical work, "America," during the evening worship hour, scheduled to begin at 7. The two ensembles are made up of children of the congregation. The presentation is directed by Jackie Stumpf, Jamie Jones and Pat Hildebrand. The public is invited to hear the "America" performance and to attend a special reception immediately following the service.

Special concert planned Sunday

A special concert of sacred music is planned Sunday at St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Boyd of Oklahoma City, natives of Belfast, Northern Ireland, will present the musical program, a baritone, formerly was Boyd, associated with the Billy Graham evangelistic team and now is active as a singer and song leader for crusades and revivals throughout the Southwest and elsewhere. Mrs. Boyd, an accomplished pianist, is her husband's keyboard accompanist. Both have had extensive formal training in music.

The 7 p.m. concert in the sanctuary will be open to the public at no charge although a free-will offering will be received, according to the Rev. Tommy Nelson, host pastor.

Bike-hike set Saturday

Young people of Church of Christ congregations in Midland will be involved in a special "bike-hike" Saturday.

One hundred or more church youth are expected to participate in the event.

Planners of the event say its purpose is to provide a day of fellowship, devotionals and recreation.

The youth will gather at their respective home churches at 9 a.m. Saturday, after which they will converge on the grounds of San Jacinto Junior High School. There, they will have a devotional period and will receive instruction in bike safety from representatives of the Midland Police Department. Noon will find the participants at Hogan Park for lunch and for a period of recreation and games. A devotional service at 3 p.m. will conclude the day's events.

Revival slated

Travis Baptist Church, 1000 E. Gist St., will hold a spring revival next week.

Gary Elmore of Midland will be the evangelist for the revival and Roy Reynolds will be the song leader, said the Rev. O. N. Reed, host pastor. Services on Sunday are scheduled for 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., while weekday services will begin at 7:30 p.m. All will be open to the public.

Surgeon general favors swine flu inoculations

By ERNEST VOLKMAN
Newsday

NEW YORK — To the untrained eye, they look under the microscope like a series of fuzzy, crystalline shapes. But to the trained eye, the shapes are silent carriers of death — swine flu viruses so deadly they could wipe out an army of millions.

Which is why Lt. Gen. George E. Schafer, the Air Force surgeon general, says, "I'll be the first on line when the flu vaccination program begins. The situation is simple — I don't want to get the flu."

Schafer's perspective on the developing controversy about whether 200 million Americans need to be inoculated against the swine flu virus is twofold. As the Air Force surgeon general, that service's chief medical officer, he is concerned about the fate of the thousands of fighter pilots, flight missile crewmen who form the backbone of the U.S. strategic deterrent. If those men were immobilized by a deadly flu, the U.S. would be virtually defenseless.

But Schader is also a public health official, and in that capacity feels just as strongly that all Americans ought to be inoculated, the sooner the better. "Admittedly," he said during a recent interview in New York following meetings with civilian public health officials on the inoculation program, "I am not an expert epidemiologist. But based on what I have heard from those with outstanding qualifications on the matter of the type of flu and the means necessary to combat it, I feel strongly that the (inoculation) program must be carried out."

Schafer occupies something of a central position in the swine flu question, since he is running one of the critical testing programs for the vaccine. Working in conjunction with the National Institute of Health, the program will test the vaccine on about 1,000 adults between the ages of 18 and 45 at various military bases, to try to determine: (1) Is the vaccine effective; and (2) does it cause harmful side effects?

Since President Ford last month convinced Congress to approve a $135 million program to inoculate all Americans against the swine flu by December, there has been a growing controversy among medical scientists over whether the program will work. Ford acted after an advisory board of scientists, including Drs. Jonas Salk and Albert Sabin, developers of the polio vaccine, warned him that a new strain of flu bore strong resemblance to the flu virus that killed 20,000 people during the pandemic of 1918-19.

The virus was detected last February at Fort Dix, N.J., when a 29-year-old Army recruit died after contracting flu and 12 other soldiers subsequently fell ill with the same symptoms. Many prominent virologists, including Edwin D. Kilbourne of the Mount Sinai Medical School, warned federal officials that since Americans had no antibodies against the new strain of flu virus, swine flu could attack millions of Americans during the flu season this coming winter.

But other experts aren't so sure, and question whether newly developed anti-swine vaccines will work. Others fear bad side effects. Dr. Francis Ennis of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has estimated that up to 15 per cent of vaccine recipients could suffer side effects, including fever and severe headaches. Others, including Dr. Martin Goldfield of the New Jersey Department of Health — he first isolated the swine flu virus — believe that the incidence of swine flu this winter will be very small and that the flu outbreak will be of the A-Victoria virus, the flu type against which many Americans are already inoculated.

Schafer is on the pro-vaccine side. "I think the business of side effects is mostly myth," he said. "Based on our experience, what side effects that do occur are usually quite mild and in a low percentage of recipients. I think what happens is that people tend to exaggerate what side effects they do get. Any flu outbreak is critical for us, of course, and I want all people to get vaccinated." Using mobile inoculation teams, Schafer wants to inject at least 80 per cent of all Air Force personnel. "I feel secure that the vaccine is safe," he said. "Our testing program will, I'm sure, prove that. If I didn't think the vaccine was safe, or that swine flu wasn't a serious threat, I would not let anybody in the Air Force get a shot."

One major unknown in the swine flu vaccination programs is how young children might react to the injections, which are manufactured from flu viruses injected into fertilized hens' eggs, then sterilized with formaldehyde. To answer that question, U.S. health officials will begin an unprecedented series of clinical trials at a dozen medical centers around the country.

Dr. John Seal, deputy director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, said the children involved in the testing program will require informed parental consent.

Attorneys meet to work out supersonic jet controversy

By D. B. FEAVER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Attorneys for the United States, France and Great Britain visited suburban Fairfax County, Va., Tuesday to see if there were not some gentlemanly way to avoid an international incident over the possible arrest of the Concorde supersonic jet transport. "Just a routine lawyers' meeting," said John Hart Ely, the general counsel for the U.S. Department of Transportation. The other routine lawyers attending were Charles Goodell, former senator from New York, now representing France; and William Ruckelshaus, former deputy attorney general and head of the Environmental Protection Agency, now representing Great Britain. Their host was Frederic Lee Ruck, former assistant corporation counsel in the District of Columbia and now the Fairfax County attorney. The subject of this meeting was a noise ordinance that the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors passed April 13. It has the effect of banning the Concorde from Fairfax County. (A half mile of one Dulles Airport's runway extends into the county and a quarter of a mile of another).

British Airways and Air France plan, nonetheless, to formally inaugurate Concorde service from Paris and London to Dulles International Airport on May 24.

"Obviously, the inauguration of Concorde service is inconsistent with the laws of Fairfax County," said County Board Chairman John F. Herrity. "You can count on our ordinances being enforced."

"But this is not an ordinance that can be enforced until there is a violation," said Ruck after the meeting Tuesday. "We hope we don't have to get to that issue."

Corpus under suspicion

AUSTIN (AP) — State and local police believe Corpus Christi is a "major stockpiling and distribution" point for "narcotics going to other cities in Texas and the United States," a report on organized crime says. "Corpus Christi is located beyond geographic Border Patrol checkpoints, thus taking some pressure off traffickers there," the report said.

The report was prepared by the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council, which is under the direction of Atty. Gen. John Hill and director Wilson Speir of the Department of Public Safety.

The report noted that at the stockpiling centers 100 per cent pure heroin is diluted by half with milk sugar or some other non-narcotic substance that is similar in appearance to heroin and packaged in one-pound lots.

"Where there is heroin traffic," the report said, "there also is organized crime."

"In the Corpus Christi area," the report added, "the Nueces County Organized Crime Control Unit confronts what they feel is a very serious narcotics trafficking problem. Officials estimate that there are seven major suppliers and approximately 64 street pushers. "They believe that there are about 1,500 users in the area. Police have established that some rings based in the area are so organized that they have their own chemists to accompany heroin buyers."

"Police have detected connections as far as the east coast, along the southern coast, Ohio, Wisconsin, and major Texas cities. During one operation in June, the unit seized nearly two pounds of high-grade heroin having an estimated street value of over $1.5 million. During 1975, the unit seized over 56 ounces of heroin."

Tyrone's 7th, Doland's 4th pace 5-2 Cubs' win

BY TED BATTLES

No one is going to believe Wayne Tyrone anymore. He opened the second inning with a bunt single down the third base line, which is a little like Raquel Welch, which is a little like Phyllis Diller role. Then in the fourth after Bill Huisman walked to lead off, Midland trailing 2-0 and in an obvious "bunt" situation, Wayne reverted to character by hitting one over the left field fence, his seventh home run of the season. The blow ignited a four-run rally that paved the way for a 5-2 Midland Cubs victory over the San Antonio Brewers in Texas League action at Cubs Stadium on an ideal night for baseball.

THE BREWERS and Cubs clash in a doubleheader tonight at 6:30 with Steve Hamrick, 3-2, and Chuck Rogers, 2-3, scheduled to pitch for Midland while Marty Martinez will go with Jeff Byrd, 0-0, and John Poloni, 0-1, less than a year out of Arizona State.

The series concludes Saturday with a 7:30 p.m. 25 cent Beer night. Lefty Dave Geisel, 0-1, will start for Midland.

In the past there has been no such thing as a bunt situation for Tyrone, who two years ago shared the Texas League home run title, but taking advantage of the defense is part of Wayne's new philosophy this year. "They gave it to me," said Wayne. "So I took it. If they keep playing me that deep, I can add 20 points to my average."

AFTER Tyrone's homer tied it, Tony Franklin walked Ron Norman for a walk, stole second and scored on Ed Putman's bleeder which barely reached the outfield grass behind short. Mike Gordon then rattled the boards in left for a double that plated Putman and made it 4-2.

That was all the encouragement that Wayne Doland, now 4-0, needed.

Doland was nicked for a suspicious run in the first after walking leadoff batter Bobby Thompson. Terry Pyka hit a liner to right that Putman misjudged and Thompson, running with the pitch, scored While Pyka wound up on second. He moved to third on John Astroth's infield hit, but was gunned down at the plate after Earle Chew took Dan Duran's short fly to center.

San Antonio got its other run in the second on successive one out singles by Brian Doyle, Tim Brookens, and Keith Chauncey and had runners on second and third with two out.

Doland and second baseman Bill Huisman then worked the county down pick off to pluck Thompson for the third out.

AFTER THAT, Doland breezed through until he issued a two out walk to Astroth and Jay Temple came on to nail down the win, although giving the crowd several moments of anxiety by loading the bases with two walks and an infield hit after retiring the first two batters in the ninth.

"I hadn't pitched in six days and it was a struggle," Doland said after the game. "My curve wasn't breaking and I had to come in with a lot of fast balls. I just didn't seem to have good rhythm."

Manager Denny Sommers wasn't complaining, however. "I thought he did a good job of changing speeds,

Pack's baseball coach announces resignation

Arlen Dickson announced his resignation as Midland High baseball coach today to enter private business. Dickson had been head baseball coach at MHS for three years, succeeding Gary Hinds.

Athletic Director Sam Cox said a search for a successor would begin immediately.

Dickson served as Bulldog JV baseball and football coach for several years before moving up to head baseball coach in 1974, the year after the Purple Pack had won the state AAAA title.

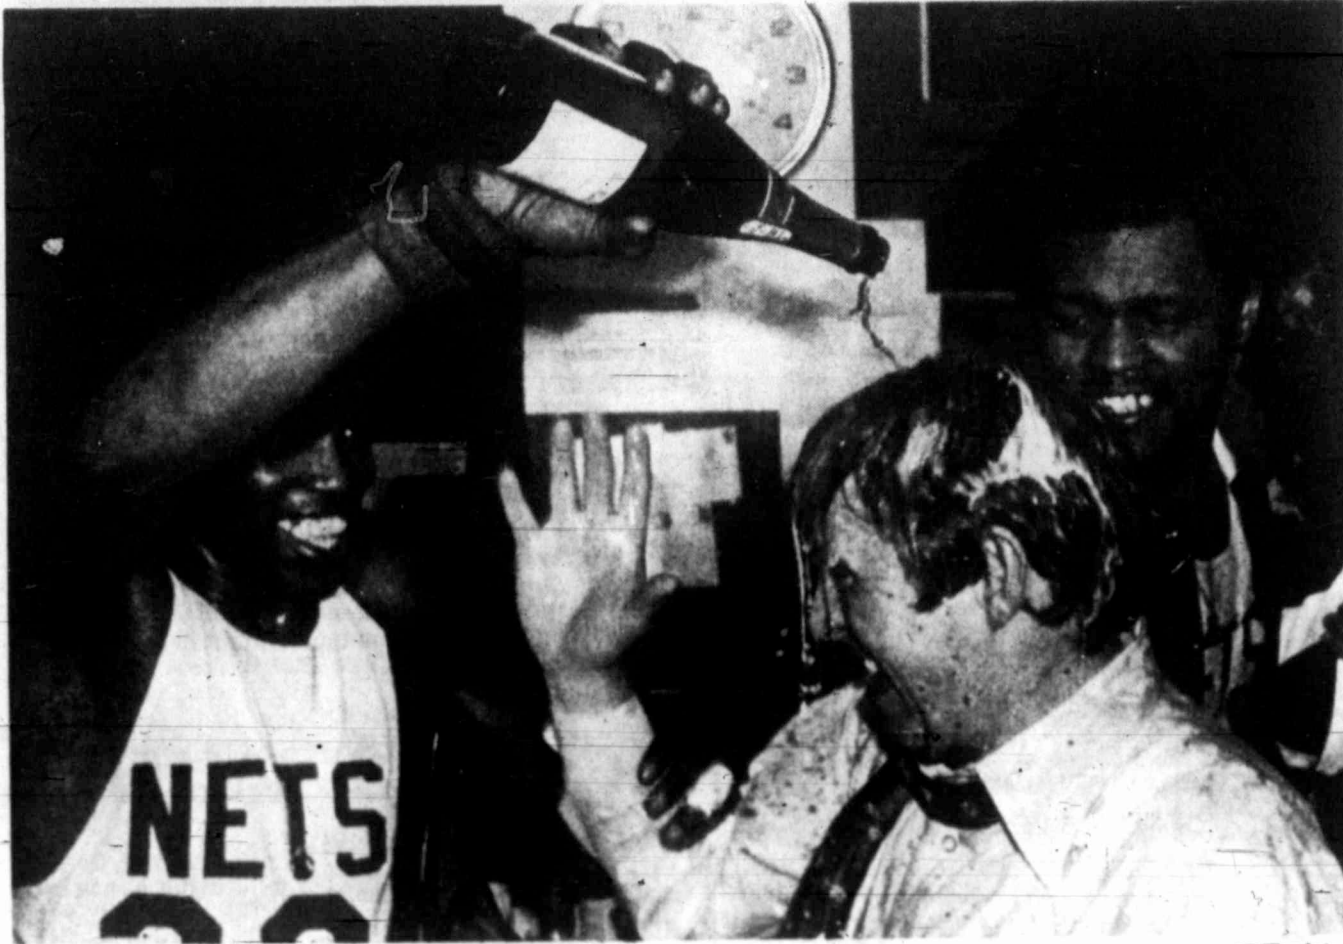

Midland had an 11-15 season, 6-8 in District 5-4A, in 1974 and then posted 10-20 and 6-24 records in 1975 and 1976, respectively. Both years Midland finished with 1-13 records in district play.

DICKSON PLANS to remain in Midland, and has taken a job in chemical sales.

"I just could not pass up this opportunity," Dickson said. "I would have liked to have left with a better record than we had this year, but this season had nothing to do with my decision."

"I would like to thank everyone in the school system for their support, especially Audrey Gill, Tugboat Jones and Sam Cox," Dickson said.

Dickson has been in the Midland school system seven years. He spent his first two years at Edison Freshman School and the last five at Midland High. Dickson has worked with the Junior Varsity football team all five years, and was the Junior Varsity baseball coach the first two seasons before replacing Hinds.

Nets capture ABA championship

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Nets were struggling. They had fallen 22 points behind the Denver Nuggets with 5:07 remaining in the third quarter of the sixth game of their American Basketball Association championship series.

Their shooting was off-target. Their offense was disorganized. The Nuggets, particularly David Thompson and Dan Issel, were destroying their defense.

The situation appeared hopeless...and it seemed a seventh and deciding game would have to be played in Denver Sunday.

Then, suddenly, the game turned. The Nets, the best defensive team in the league throughout the regular season, began playing the defense that had distinguished them during that time. And because of it, their offense prospered.

They forced the Nuggets into costly mistakes, turnovers that resulted in Nets points, or missed shots.

They began to close the gap. And they were gathering momentum.

The Nuggets, in the championship series for the first time, were coming apart at the seams.

By the end of the third quarter, Denver's lead was down to 92-78. And one period later, the Nets had completed their incredible surge from behind, beating the shocked and frustrated Nuggets 112-106 Thursday night.

The victory gave the Nets the series 4-2 and was their second championship in three years.

"You can only make a comeback like that when you have the guys who can play pressure defense," said New York Coach Kevin Loughery, his clothes dripping with champagne. "And we had them."

Loughery, who also led the Nets to their first league championship in 1974 in his rookie season as coach, ordered the Nets into a full-court press in the opening minute of the fourth quarter with Denver ahead 92-79. It was the turning point of the game.

For the entire last quarter, the Nuggets made only four field goals, two of them layups, after having connected for a total of 38 in the first three periods. Thompson, who had bombed the Nets for 38 points during the opening three quarters, was held to four foul shots in the final period.

Meanwhile, John Williamson got the Nets offense in high gear. He fired in 11 straight New York points, cutting the Nuggets lead to 96-92 with just over eight minutes remaining.

Then, with about four minutes left, and the Nuggets still ahead, 104-97, New York finally charged ahead for the first time since the opening period. Eleven straight points put the Nets in front 108-104 with 1:46 to go, and Denver couldn't recover.

Williamson, with 16 points in the fourth quarter, finished with 28. Julius Erving, the series' Most Valuable Player Award winner, scored 31, including 18 in the third period, and wound up with two championship records—226 total points for a 37.7 average. He also had a game-high 19 rebounds.

Brian Taylor contributed 24 points and Jim Eakins, playing in place of starting center Kim Hughes, who was on crutches after suffering a severe sprain and a muscle tear in his left ankle during Game Five, had 15 points and 13 rebounds.

Thompson finished with 42 for Denver and Issel scored 30. But they didn't get enough help.

"I don't ever expect to see this team give up," said the joyful Loughery. "They have too much confidence in themselves to do that."

Brewers' Poloni, Cubs' Umfleet old rivals

CUBS BRIEFS—A year ago John Poloni, one of San Antonio's starters in tonight's doubleheader at Cubs Stadium, and Midland Cubs third baseman Mike Umfleet were opponents in the College Baseball World Series at Omaha.

"Yes, I remember him," says Mike. "I ought to, he eliminated us (Oklahoma University) from the playoffs...1-0...in 14 innings."

Big John, a native of Detroit, was playing for Arizona State University. Poloni hasn't exactly burned up the Texas League in first season. For one thing, it hasn't stopped raining long enough.

"I've had only two starts," says John. "And 13 innings pitched. It not only rains the night I'm scheduled to pitch but the next night as well, which means I get scratched from the rotation and they pick up the next pitcher."

So far the Brewers have been rained out 15 times in the first month of the season....

Returned to the starting rotation, Dave Geisel says he's happy. "Mainly, because it will give me some work.".... Manager Denny Sommers doesn't feel he can afford to have the luxury of Geisel in the bullpen just to face a lefthanded batter in the late innings. "The way he's pitching, I need him in the rotation"..... Bernie Beckman, who has been struggling to put it together this spring, will go to long relief....

Permian, Rankin take lead in state golf meet

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Odessa Permian took the firstround lead Thursday in the state schoolboy golf tournament here.

Permian's team total was 313, good enough for a six-shot lead over second place Tyler Lee.

Class 4A medalist was Terry Snoegrass of Permian with 76.

Berkner High of Richardson led 3A teams with 324, two shots ahead of Sour Lake Jefferson.

In 2A, Willis leads Devine, 333 to 336; Rankin carries a three-shot lead over Memphis in Class A and Booker has a four-shot bulge over Throckmorton in Class B.

Blaine McAllister and Kirk Walker, both of Sulphur Springs, tied for medalist at 78 in 3A; Ronald Koerth of Ozona and Mark McCrary of Winnboro tied for 2A medalist at 77 Keith Booke of San Antonio Lackland tie at 76 in Class A; and Campbell's Kenny Hartline led the B shooters with 81.

Palmer survives shaky showing

By The Associated Press

The mound was "flat" at Milwaukee's County Stadium — and so was Jim Palmer.

"It wasn't really one of my better games," said the Baltimore right-hander. "I kind of got a little tired in the end."

As Palmer lost his vitality, his fastballs lost their velocity and the Cy Young winner had to be content to struggle through an eight-hit, 5-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Thursday.

Palmer's condition was not enhanced, either, by the condition of the Milwaukee mound — a situation that has bothered Palmer and other pitchers around the American League. Palmer has been the most vociferous critic of what he calls its "flat" surface.

"I got hit pretty hard in Kansas City last Sunday, so it was pretty hard to look forward to pitching in Milwaukee. But you can't do much about it. It's like throwing straight up in the air. You've got to make sure you release the ball from on top, or you'll throw a lot of high fastballs and they'll hit it out of the park on you all day."

Red Sox 7, Indians 5

Rick Miller drilled three hits and drove in three runs, sparking Boston over Cleveland. It was the second straight victory for the Red Sox after 10 straight losses.

Luis Tiant, 4-2, gave up nine hits and three of Cleveland's runs in 62-3 innings. Jim Willoughby, the second relief pitcher, pitched the last two innings for the Red Sox and gave up two runs in the ninth on sacrifice flies by Doug Howard and Ron Pruitt.

Tigers 3, Yanks 2

Busty Staub's three-run homer with two out in the eighth inning following an intentional walk to Willie Horton lifted Detroit over New York. Chris Chambliss' home run in the bottom of the seventh had given the Yankees a 1-0 lead, snapping a scoreless duel between winner Vern Riffe, 3-0, and loser Rudy May, 2-1.

Royals 13, White Sox 2

George Brett smashed three hits for the sixth straight game and John Mayberry belted three hits and knocked in two runs to lead Kansas City past Chicago. Mayberry took a .182 batting average into the game.

Cubs win

getting the ball over and mixing his pitches.

The win leveled Midland's record at 11-11, but Sommers feels the Cubs won't begin to move until Jose Ortiz is ready to play again. "I'm looking forward to when we can get Jose back in the lineup. We really need him to generate out offense. He can do so many things for us offensively." A muscle pull has kept Jose on the sidelines.

Midland nicked Bobby Cueller, San Antonio's third pitcher, for its final run in the eighth when Steve Verban beat out an infield hit and Mike Umfleet tripled into the right centerfield alley.

but pounded two singles and a triple. Also contributing to the 16-hit Kansas City attack was Cookie Rojas, who drove in three runs with an eighth-inning double.

Angels 7, Rangers 5
Orlando Alvarez, recalled earlier in the day from the minors, blasted his first major league homer, a three-run shot in the fifth inning, to power California over Texas. Alvarez, a 23-year-old outfielder acquired from the Los Angeles Dodgers this spring, played as the designated hitter and delivered his homer off Stan Perzanowski as the Angels built a 7-3 lead.

Giants 9, Cubs 5

Willie Montanez tripled in the tying run in the ninth inning and scored on a single by Steve Ontiveros as San Francisco erupted for five runs to defeat Chicago. The Cubs had broken a 4-4 tie in the bottom of the eighth inning of the rain-delayed game when they scored a run without a hit on walks to Jerry Morales and Manny Trillo, a sacrifice bunt by Steve Swisher and Dave Rosello's sacrifice fly.

Stockton, Green share golf lead

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Talking like a pair of Las Vegas high-rollers, Hubert Green and Dave Stockton resume their swashbuckling duel today in the second round of the $200,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

"Yeah, I'm a gambler," Stockton said after dropping a clutch 10-foot par putt on the final hole Thursday for a 67 and a share of the lead with Green.

"I think most good players are gamblers. There are very few who sit back and wait for something to happen. I think the definition of a positive person would be one who takes sensible gambles.

"So I attack."

Green, bidding for his fourth title of the year, recorded his three-under-par 67 hours before Stockton toured the 7,190-yard Colonial course, but the script was similar.

"I'm not going to hit every green, because I don't play safe," said Green. "I go for the pin. If I'm under par it's not my game to lay back and play it safe."

"I attack the golf course."

Then, with a smile and a shrug, he added: "You might as well attack this golf course because it's going to bite you one way or another. It's better to get bitten going after it instead of it going after you."

The historic Colonial course, whose terrors include the Trinity River, was once called "Hogan's Alley" as a tribute to Ben Hogan, a five-time winner here.

First day leader Hubert Green had to settle for a bogie 5 when he went into a sandtrap on the 18th hole of the Colonial National Invitation tournament in Fort Worth Thursday.

Canadiens win, 3-2

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It was a triumph of inconsistencies. Using at right wing a Venezuelan-born defenseman who hadn't played forward since he was 16 years old; getting two goals from a power play that had been useless in the last two games, and entering the contest with a 2½-year string of winless games here, the Montreal Canadiens still managed to defeat the Philadelphia Flyers in Game Three of the National Hockey League's final playoffs.

The game-winning goal by Montreal defenseman Pierre Bouchard, a low 50-foot slap shot, was screened from the view of Flyers goalie Wayne Stephenson by Rick Chartraw — a 21-year-old Caracas native who was making his first playoff appearance.

Chartraw, who played only 16 regular season games for the Canadiens and last played forward during a junior tournament in 1971, was forced into action when Yvon Lambert suffered a leg injury. He said "I just planted myself in front and tried to make myself as big as possible so I could screen the goalie's view."

That he did. The puck skimmed through Chartraw's legs and beat Stephenson at 9:15 of the third period to break a tie, give the Canadiens a 3-2 triumph over Philadelphia and lift Montreal into an overwhelming 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven final. A victory in Game Four Sunday would give Montreal the 18th league title of its 59-year history.

"At the end of the second period, there was that something extra when we came into the dressing room," observed Canadiens goalie Ken Dryden. "We were tied 2-2, we were ahead 2-0 in the series, and we said, 'If we can win the third period, it's really going to give us a good position.'"

So they went out and did exactly that. It seems they've been doing as they pleased virtually since the series began Sunday night, and things continued that way Thursday despite a six-game winless string here dating back to Oct. 25, 1973 and eight consecutive failures during power play situations.

The power play was the first to come around — in strange fashion — after just 3:17 of play when a tired Steve Shutt lofted a 75-foot shot toward Stephenson so he could get off the ice. "I just wanted to get it on net and go to the bench," explained Shutt, who was surprised as everyone else when the shot dropped two feet, bounced off the little Flyers netminder and into the net.

"I saw it hit Stephenson, then I turned my head because I thought he had it. Then I heard the guys yelling," said Shutt, somewhat amused. Philadelphia left wing Bill Barber was off the ice at the time, having drawn two minutes of punishment even though his elbow — directed at a Montreal skater — instead found teammate Jack McIlhargey and incurred a 14-stitch facial cut.

Just over 5½ minutes later Reggie Leach scored the first of his two goals, also on the power play, to tie the game. Before the encounter, Philadelphia had scored 10 goals in 49 advantages and Montreal just six in 44.

Leach blasted his 18th of the postseason campaign past Dryden with 1:46 remaining in the opening session after taking the puck from rookie Montreal defenseman Bill Nyrop and walking in on Dryden. "Nyrop threw the puck away and I happened to get it," said Leach, who despite the performance wore a grim look after his club had fallen within a loss of relinquishing the crown it has worn for the past two seasons. "We've dug ourselves in a darn big hole," said Leach. "But I'm not counting us out yet."

BATTLE SCENE

LACC reunion in Cubs dugout

BY TED BATTLES

Even if he does come from the hostile Cincinnati Reds organization, we've got to have a rootin' interest in Tony Franklin. Besides, he's a Cub now.

After all, how often is it that a couple of Los Angeles City College exes hold a reunion in a Midland, Texas, baseball dugout?

Come to think of it, the last time we rekindled acquaintances with an LACC ex was backstage at MHS when Billy Barty, an old classmate, was touring with Spike Jones and his City Slickers.

Tony and the writer contemporaries? Franklin must have come a year or two later, although when we asked Tony if the Vermont Ave. trolley that terminated alongside the Student Union was still as crowded as ever, he looked at me like I was an antique.

BEFORE SIGNING with Midland last week, the 25-year-old Franklin had been with the Reds' organization since 1970, reaching Indianapolis last year after stops at Tampa and Three Rivers in the Eastern League.

For a second baseman, that could be considered a dead end with Joe Morgan at Cincinnati.

"Perhaps, but you've got to feel you're pretty good if you get as far as AAA with the Reds, it's such a strong organization and they have so much talent. This year, the Reds made some trades and wound up with an extra infielder at Indianapolis and obviously wanted to go with an extra infielder.

"I had some feelers out to Pacific Coast League clubs, but hadn't heard from anybody. Vedic Himsi (Chicago Cubs farm director) found out about me through Bill Schweppes of the Dodgers while he was in LA and we made a deal."

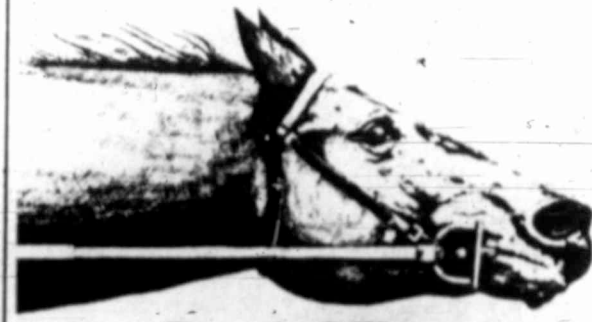

TONY STILL has hopes of making the big jump. Next year's expansion brightens the hopes of a lot of players languishing in the high minors who have the experience, but not the opportunity.

Born in Portland, Me., Franklin moved to Compton, Calif., when he was five, so he really doesn't consider himself a New Englander.

He played baseball and basketball at Compton Centennial. "I averaged 15 points a game in basketball and we had a good team, but we were just the other team in town. That was when Compton High had its 30-0 powerhouses for two years. Still, I got a basketball scholarship offer from San Francisco State. I often wonder if I should have taken it."

Instead he went to LACC and was named second team all conference shortstop and was grabbed by the Reds.

Houston Aeros grab WHA playoff lead

HOUSTON (AP) — night in Hartford, Conn., and rallied for a hard-fought 4-2 victory Thursday night to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series.

"We got halfway through the game with a big lead and then we went to defense," Dineen said of Tuesday's game. "So I told them to play the way they did for half the game Tuesday night, only do it for 60 minutes."

After the rugged Whalers, who played the most physical game of the series, took a 1-0 lead in the first period on Tom Webster's goal 15:32, the defending WHA champion Aeros started following Dineen's advice.

Rookie John Tonelli, unhappy with his performance during the regular season, tied it at 7:08 of the second period on a breakaway shot and Frank Hughes put the Aeros ahead to stay at 17:01 with a backhanded shot past ace rookie goalie Cap Raeder.

"I was forcing myself during the regular season," said Tonelli, who has seven playoff goals. "I was getting down on myself. But I've tried to make up for it in the playoffs."

Tonelli said Thursday's game was the most important of the series. "This puts the pressure on them," he said. "If we had gone up there with a loss, we'd be behind the eight ball."

Terry Ruskowski, Tonelli's linemate on the Aeros "Kid Line", cushioned Houston's lead only 53 seconds into the third period and Andre Hines got his second playoff goal at 13:39 to give the Aeros a 4-2 lead.

With time running out for a comeback, New England's Rick Ley scored the Whaler's final goal at 16:08.

The game was by far the most physical of the series, with at least three players leaving the ice with injuries. Houston's

Engineer says rough seas could not have overturned capsule

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An engineer for the California firm that built a rescue capsule in which 13 offshore oil workers died has testified that high waves alone could not have toppled the capsule.

The workers were drowned when the craft overturned in high seas as it was being brought alongside a tugboat.

"We don't think there's a sea state that could turn the boat over," Jerry Laidson told a Coast Guard board of inquiry Thursday.

The board may recess Friday until it can hear testimony from the man who might be able to settle a key issue. The man, Thomas Loftin, was in the hatch of the capsule as towlines were passed back and forth with the tugboat. Loftin is recovering in a hospital.

The key issue is whether or not the last of the tow lines was still attached when the capsule flipped.

Laidson said his firm, Whittaker Corp. Survival Systems Division, La Mesa, Calif., feels certain that tension on the towlines caused the craft to go over. But crew members of the tug have said that the last line between the two already had been lost overboard.

Laidson said the fiber-glass rescue craft had survived hurricane winds and seas without tipping. But he said tests had determined that if it were forcibly turned upside-down, the capsule could take on 200 gallons of water in two minutes.

The craft was floating upside down in the water with 13 bodies inside when it was retrieved the morning after the April 15 disaster.

The capsule was not designed to be self-righting, Laidson said, although similar craft made by Whittaker were self-righting to meet British safety laws. A self-righting boat will automatically turn right-side-up if overturned.

The Coast Guard board has granted Whittaker status as a "party of interest" in its inquiry, giving attorneys of the company a chance to question witnesses. The board is investigating the loss of the oil rig "Ocean Express," which the men fled as it sank in a sudden gale off the Texas Gulf Coast.

Higher prices spark upturn in exploration

TULSA — Higher energy prices and improved exploration incentives have sparked a sharp upturn in drilling in western Canada. The Oil and Gas Journal reports.

The resurgent level of action has seen the average number of active rigs increase to 221 during the first quarter of this year, up about 25 per cent from the first three months of 1975.

The Journal says the upturn, halting a two-year decline in activity, is most evident in Alberta, Canada's biggest oil and gas producing province. British Columbia and Saskatchewan are sharing in the recovery, but to a lesser degree.

Fueling the rebound is an easing of federal and provincial tax policies to give producers a larger share of increased prices for oil and gas. The response is a sizeable jump in capital outlay by operators—to record levels for some firms.

Still, the weekly business magazine reports, most Canadian operators believe the industry's share of wellhead prices is too low. They point out government has claimed the biggest share of income from earlier price hikes.

One analysis shows that provincial royalty, income and other taxes claim $3.74 of the $8 operators receive for a barrel of Alberta crude oil produced for the Canadian market. Federal income tax claims another $1.57 a barrel. That leaves operators with $2.69 a barrel, but out of this comes $1.35 for drilling and exploration costs and 50 cents for lifting costs, leaving a netback of only 84 cents.

Operators hope for more improvement in their netback as a result of future price increases.

Crude on the domestic market, for example, could advance to $9.50 to $10 a barrel when a price agreement between the federal and provincial governments expires June 30. And Ottawa has promised the price of natural gas, which was increased recently, will soon rise to parity with crude.

Focal point for much of the current drilling surge is the Rocky Mountain foothills of western Alberta from the U.S. border north to the Peace River. Strong, gas-oriented exploration plays are under way across a 300-mile-long front in this region and farther north in British Columbia.

Sources in Calgary expect industry spending to top $100 million this year in the foothills.

Most of the foothills tests are projected to 10,000 feet and deeper.

Shallower areas to the east also are experiencing renewed activity as some of Canada's biggest oil companies shift their exploration and drilling emphasis from northern frontiers to established producing areas.

Despite the shift to the south, however, no one is predicting Canada can meet its future energy needs without supplies from the frontier.

But for the moment, the feeling among most large companies is that they are nearing the saturation point in long-term exploration investments in the frontier. So the trend is to stepped-up levels of spending in established areas where the outlook is better for a quick outlet for production and a faster payout.

Also, no one is predicting an influx of rigs into Canada from other areas such as the U.S. share of the Rocky Mountain region. The present inventory of Canadian rigs, although trimmed by an exodus of more than 40 units to the United States a couple of years ago, is believed large enough to handle increased levels of activity.

Illinois researchers build 'savings' house

LOS ANGELES — Researchers at the University of Illinois have come up with a home design that cuts fuel consumption by about 75 per cent through the judicious use of insulation and window placement.

Professor Rudard A. Jones revealed design plans for the house, worked out by a team of university engineering and architectural professors, at the American Petroleum Institute's 41st Midyear Refining Meeting here Thursday.

The house, designed for the Midwest climate, is 28 by 36 feet, with a gross area of 1,568 feet. It has three bedrooms; a living room, two baths, kitchen-dining-family-space and appropriate storage.

Jones said two principles were followed in the design — "minimize heat loss from the house by means of improved construction, primarily using super-insulation, and design the house to utilize the sun's heat in a passive mode; that is, design the house itself as a collector, thereby avoiding the expense of installing complicated solar collector-storage facilities.

"The major deviation we have made from the typical frame house construction is in the walls," he added. "We are using a double exterior wall, and spacing the two walls in such a fashion that we can install insulation. Double exterior walls sound expensive, but actually we are only doubling the framing and the insulation; there is still only one exterior skin and one interior skin. Also, we are placing studs farther apart than usual. Nevertheless this is a costly item."

Floor insulation also is used, unlike most conventional houses.

Another major innovation is the placement of windows, Jones said.

"East and west windows were eliminated because they are double losers. They gain heat excessively in the summer, and have a net loss in the winter. North-facing windows are heat losers in the winter, and their contribution to summer cooling are minimal. We could not eliminate all the windows to the north, but we have held them to a minimum."

The most beneficial windows are those facing south, Jones explained. They provide substantial solar gains in winter, and their excessive heating in summer can be reduced by proper shading. Thus most windows in the experimental house are placed on the south side, and the major dimension of the house is facing that direction.

"Our calculations indicate that it is likely the house can be heated with 125 gallons of oil per year — a more conventionally built house would probably require about 500 gallons per year," Jones said.

Jones estimated that the cost of the special construction measures would amount to about $3,000, with about $1,000 of this offset by the reduced cost and size of heating and cooling equipment.

He also estimated that, with the $2,000 additional expense resulting in a 375 gallon savings per year, at 40 cents a gallon of fuel oil the dollar saving would be $150 per year.

Rowan to build rig

HOUSTON — Rowan Companies, Inc., has announced an agreement with Marathon LeTourneau Co. for construction of the self-elevating, mobile offshore drilling platform, "Rowan-Odessa."

The unit will be capable of operations in water up to 300 feet deep, and drilling to a depth of 30,000 feet. Marathon's facility at Vicksburg, Miss., is the construction site.

The "Rowan-Odessa," owned 100 per cent by Rowan, is expected to be operational in the first quarter of 1977. The rig will be essentially identical to two new wholly-owned rigs, the "Rowan-Alaska" and "Rowan-Louisiana" delivered in 1975.

The Carriage Co. REALTORS
OAKRIDGE SQUARE 484-5881
Multiple Listing Service

We enjoy and appreciate our Carriage Company reputation for having happy, satisfied customers. Probably eighty-percent of our real estate business comes from referrals—friends and relatives of previous customers of ours. When we show a property to select listings we would actually be willing to purchase for ourselves. And once we "sell" we do not forget the new friends we make; we stay with it and help them become established and feel at home in our community.

Truly we would rather NOT sell anything that might make a customer unhappy than to make a sale just for the sake of "selling". Pressure techniques are not our style. We are relaxed and reliable, facts you will recognize once you come to see us at 202 Oakridge Square where we wait to be of service to you.
