Wallace, Jackson, Daley back Carter nomination

By DAVE GOLDBERG Associated Press Writer

Jimmy Carter picked up new political support from former opponents today, moving the frontrunner still closer to the Democratic presidential nomination.

Carter emerged from Tuesday's primaries with more than 1,100 of the 1,505 delegates needed for nomination. Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who sought the nomination himself, said today he was throwing his support to Carter. "I feel that Gov. Carter will be the nominee," he said.

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley also announced his backing of the former Georgia governor and Carter said that Sen. Henry M. Jackson, a one-time candidate, had promised an endorsement. "I can announce without quoting him (Jackson) that I have no doubt about his support and as many delegates as he can talk to. He will have an announcement to make next week," Carter said. He said the new endorsements give him "much more" than he needs for the nomination.

It was not immediately known exactly how many delegates Carter will pick up by the endorsements or how many will be free under the law to vote for him on the first ballot.

On the Republican side, President Ford and his challenger Ronald Reagan fought to a standoff that virtually guarantees a fight at the GOP convention in Kansas City two months from now.

As he has through much of the justcompleted primary season, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey remained the big question mark for the Democrats. He said he would talk to Carter and California Gov. Jerry Brown before announcing his plans later today.

Carter won only in Ohio of the three big states that held primaries on Tuesday. But he picked up more than 200 delegates, giving him more than 1,100 of the 1,505 needed for nomination. Most of Carter's rivals seemed ready to concede him the nomination.

The exception was Brown, who won big in his home state and, with Humphrey, was backed by an uncommitted delegate slate that won in New Jersey. "I will go forward," Brown said. "I think the nomination is Humphrey, who has refused to become an active candidate, but has remained available for the nomination, said he was "very pleased" with the New Jersey outcome. He added, however, that Carter "has a very comfortable lead and I think it would be very difficult to really overcome that lead.

Here is how the delegate count looked with the primaries over:

Carter, who picked up 211 delegates on Tuesday, now has 1,118 of the 1,505 needed for nomination. His closest pursuer is Rep. Morris K. Udall, who has 332.5. Brown, who won 204 in California, has 229 and a number in the uncommitted bloc of 470 delegates. On the Republican side, counting 67 New Jersey delegates who are nominally uncommitted, but generally back the President, Ford's total would ce 962 of the 1,130 needed for nomination. Reagan has 865.

Reagan took the Calfornia primary and with it, the 167 delegates that go to the winner there. But Ford won almost all of Ohio's 97 delegates. along with support from uncommitted New Jersey delegates.

Stevenson could not be reached for comment immediately, but he said Tuesday, "I have no intention of releasing my delegates now."

Alabama Gov. Wallace has 168 delegates pledged to him. But his support is scattered in several states and it was not immediately known how many of the delegates would be free to vote for Carter on the first ballot if they chose.

As the votes were counted Tuesday and even before, it was clear it would be a day for jumping on the Carter bandwagon.

Architects unveil plans on airport improvement

Schematic drawings of proposed improvements at Midland Regional Air Terminal total $4,389,689, the architectural firm of Hudgins, Thompson and Ball of Oklahoma City told the Midland City Council Tuesday.

Harry Hill presented the architect's plans for updating the Terminal building and parking lot, noting the firm had received input from airport master planners Arnold Thompson and Associates of San-Francisco, aviation officials and the two airlines now serving the airport.

Council agreed to apply for federal funds more which soon may become available to cities for airport improvements. If funds prove unavailable, council may decide to call a bond issue if the city can work out an agreement with Continental Airlines and Texas International Airlines to return some of the city money through rental of facilities in order to retire the bonds. City Manager James Brown and his staff were instructed by council to talk with officials from the two airlines at Terminal and work out an agreement since several of their suggested improvements for rehabilitating the apport are costly. Architect Hill said a major improvement at Terminal would be construction of second level parkingover the existing parking provide spaces for about 790 vehicles. The road in front of the Terminal building would be widened to five lanes to provide smoother flow of traffic and more efficient loading and unloading of passengers and baggage.

An enclosed pedestrian bridge would be located in two spots for the second-level parking garage, he said. The Terminal building itself would

Vets seize Statue of Liberty to protest loss of GI Bill benefits

NEW YORK (AP) - A small band of Vietnam veterans seized the Statue of Liberty to protest the loss of education benefits under the GI Bill. About 15 members of the Vietnam Veterans against the War refused to leave the statue at closing time Tuesday. Instead, they ordered about 10 employes out and barricaded themselves inside.

No hostages were taken and Luis Garcia, the National Park Service's manager of the statue, called the occupation peaceful.

Before midnight Tuesday, U.S. Dist. Judge Milton Pollack signed an order temporarily restraining the veterans from continuing the occupation. There was no immediate response to the order from the veterans

U.S. Park Police, New York City Police and the FBI were kept informed of the situation but said no plans were being made to remove the protesters

Shortly after taking over the statue, the veterans draped a banner from the crown that read, "Extend and Expand the GI Bill."

In a statement read from a Manhattan office after the move on the statue, the veterans said, "We are not rising up to beg but to demand that the GI Bill be extended and expanded." The cutoff of the education benefits, the statement said, "is forcing thousands of us onto the streets, with no jobs to be found and no income to survive. We will not starve.'

He said he expects the board to put all administrators on a salary tied to the salaries of teachers. Salaries of principals, assistant principals and district coordinators are already on such a formula.

In addition to salary supplements, two other matters relating to the athletic program were discussed. Cox said he now is searching for a

Syrian advance on Beirut stalls

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) Palestinian guerrillas and their leftist Lebanese allies today held back the Syrian advance on Beirut and ran Syrian tanks out of Sidon as foreign Arab leaders tried to arrange a ceasefire in the Lebanese war.

The Syrian drive on Beirut was reported stalled at the mountain resort of Bhamdoun, 12 miles to the east. Syrian tanks sent to control the port city of Sidon, 25 miles south of the capital, were pushed back three miles to nearby groves. Associated Press correspondent Edward Cody reported from Sidon that the tanks were lobbing occasional shells on the heavily damaged downtown area. He said guerrillas and the Moslem allies were

December after being authorized in 1964 for flood control and irrigation. The spokesman said bureau experts speculated that once the seepage washed a channel through to the reservoir side, the high-pressure reservoir water began pouring through, rapidly enlarging the break until the dam burst.

The pressure of water at the base of a dam can be enormous; a water depth of 100 feet exerts a pressure of some 6,240 pounds - more than three tons - per square foot.

Explaining the current theory of the dam's collapse, the bureau spokesman said engineers knew they could not build a successful earthen dam without protecting it against direct water seepage through its foundation and its anchor points in the canyon walls.

To prevent such seepage, he said, they dug trenches into the riverbed and into the canyon walls and lined them with concrete.

Water which might have flowed through natural channels across those areas then was blocked and forced to detour underground around the ends of those barricades, called "grouts." These grouts extended beyond each end of the dam to divert underground water away from the dam.

He said this underground water was expected to reappear as seepage from canyon walls at a safe distance downstream. At first it did.

But then, he said, a much larger seepage recently appeared where it was not supposed to be - where the front of the dam itself met the canyon wall. Last Thursday, the local authorities began to get worried.

Their fears were confirmed, he said, when a whirlpool developed in the reservoir just behind the dam. evidence that water was flowing rapidly out through a new channel.

Finally, with a public evacuation already under way downstream, the dam burst open Saturday and sent its water smashing down the valley.

The spokesman said the Bureau of Reclamation did not know whether seeping water somehow got through the grouting that was supposed to stop it, or whether the grouting did its job of diverting the underground water which then found some hidden, unknown channel through the surrounding rock back to the face of

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The United States and Mexico announced Tuesday that almost all the opium poppy fields in Mexico - the source of most of the heroin entering the United States - have been destroyed by an intensified eradication program.

The announcement was made jointly here by Attorney General Edward H. Levi and Mexican Attorney General Pedro Ojeda-Paullada. They said that the eradication campaign can be expected to reduce the availability of Mexican heroin in the United States by late this year.

Their statements were made in an atmosphere of cordiality. But they came against a background of reports that efforts to stem the cross-border drug traffic may be endangered by growing rancor between narcotics agencies of the two countries.

Washington Post Special Correspondent Marlise Simons reported from Mexico City that Mexican officials are extremely angry at what one characterized as the "insolent and inept behavior" of U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents operating in

The charges were denied here in Washington by Ojeda-Paullada and by DEA Administrator Peter B. Bensinger. Ojeda-Paullada told The Washington Post:

"There is no crisis in our relations, because Attorney General Levi and Mr. Bensinger have accepted fully that U.S. officials in Mexico must act in strict accordance with Mexican laws and authority. There have been — and I am sure there will continue to be from time to time — differences of opinion at lower levels. But there is absolutely no crisis." Some DEA sources said privately that the Mexicans had certain complaints about individual DEA officers but that they have been acted on by Washington and resolved. Bensinger, although declining to discuss specifics, characterized the reports from Mexico as "inaccurate, exaggerated and out of date." Still, the reports of friction have been so persistent that many lawenforcement sources are inclined to believe that they have some basis in fact. There were hints, in the guarded comments of some officials, that the Mexicans might indeed have been the situation resulting from its in-

However, a ranking State Department official says Syrian troops have had their noses bloodied by the Moslem leftists in the fighting over the past day or two in spite of the reinforcements and the use of tanks violence turning viewers off

WASHINGTON (AP) - The president of the nation's largest advertising agency says a survey conducted for his agency shows that many television viewers are turning off violent TV programs and may also be rejecting the products advertised on those programs.

Don Johnston, president of the J. Walter Thompson, Co. said a poll conducted in March shows that 10 per cent of viewers apparently consider not buying products because they are, advertised on programs they consider excessively violent.

Eight per cent reported "consciously not buying a product," he told the annual convention of the American Advertising Federation nere Tuesday.

He said that even if subsequent polls show only 4 per cent of viewers He planned to return to reject products because they are Washington today to join advertised in connection with the House in action on key violence, "I cannot imagine any legislation which forced advertiser who would want to risk

Johnston also said he personally opposes excessive violence on TV, and so does the agency. "We are questioning that part of TV programming that exploits violence." he said. "We believe it is socially and psychologically damaging to large sections of the population.

Johnston said the agency's poll was conducted among 200 adult TV viewers. He said the agency has decided to expand the survey "to verify the preliminary results.'

Among these results, he said, is that two of every five persons said they avoid watching programs they consider too violent.

Also, one of every five men and one of every three women said they prevent their children from watching programs they thought were excessively violent, he added:

Johnston said the agency's analysis of existing scientific and social research on TV violence reveals the following areas where it believes 'damage is caused.'

Dallas dam dangers cited

DALLAS (AP) - An engineering consultant has told the city of Dallas that White Rock Lake Dam in the northeast part of the city could fail during a heavy flood and cause "significant" loss of life and

The report by USR-Forrest & Cotton, Inc., said the dam should be about six feet higher. The firm also recommended raising an embankment and reinforcing the back slopes of the dam to increase stability

The dam could be flooded over two to 10 feet during heavy flooding, causing rapid erosion that would leave the dam useless, the engineering firm said. A flood of that magnitude is not likely, but could occur, the report said.

A recent Texas Water Rights Commission report also said the dam is not capable of holding the maximum projected flood.

The city has known about problems with the dam since 1965, and did raise the height by three feet in 1971. The recent report estimated it would cost the city $777,000 to make the recommended improvements.

The report said the dam has settled considerably since it was built, and said development of land in the White Rock Creek watershed has increased the amount and speed of water runoff during heavy receiver would be added where the present rail is situated. He said a carrousel probably would offer better service, but that facility is more

He said an area of the lobby could be used to display the museum pictures now separated in a building at the rear of the Termin al building. Offices on the second level could be used for rental purposes and provide income. Bronze sloping glass will encompass this area. The offices of the city aviation department also could be moved upstairs to provide room for a proposed third carrier at Terminal

Hill said a drop ceiling would keep the same height inside Terminal but would be more aesthetic and easier for maintenance. A seven-foot sloping ramp would begin inside the Terminal building and take passengers and others through a security check at the intersection of two opposite-leading ramps to waiting areas. Six gates (two for ground-level loading and four for pedestrian loading bridges) will be provided in the improvements. Restroom facilities would be provided in these Hill told council allowances were made for future airport expansion in several areas. He said the proposed second-level parking area could be constructed to cover the present ground-level parking area entirely.

He said an alternate parking plan would extend ground-level parking to the east and omit the second level. This would provide 832 spaces, but also would force passengers to walk about 900 feet fron the far east end lot to the Terminal building.

One improvement suggested by Continental officials is an office and maintenance area on the ground level beneath the passenger loading ramps.

Hill said the figures in the cost estimate are quotes based on 1977 prices. If all the improvements are made, $1,235,564 will be used for the parking structure and rehabilitation of the ground level parking; $71,381 for the new second-floor offices; $138,840 for both enclosed pedestrian bridges, one leading to the ticket counter and the other to the baggage claim area; $426,922 to remodel the Terminal building; $1,857,943 for a new addition to terminal; and $659,039 for passenger loading bridger, for a total of $4,389,689.

The proposal of bringing into the city limits 100 acres at the northwest corner of the intersection of U.S. 80 and FM 1369 will be discussed at 2 p.m. July 13.

Annexation of a part of the Magnatex Corp. property north of Midland Air Park will be considered at 2:30 p.m. July 13.

Council noted annexation of the proposed 100 acres would clear the way for development of a regional shopping center for the Permian Basin. The annexation as proposed by Midland attorney Martin Allday and General Growth Properties Inc., the mall's prime developer, was approved last month by the city Planning and Zoning Commission and recommended to council for its ap-

Part of the Magnatex Corp. property is seeking voluntary annexation. Council had considered taking the entire tract under study for annexation, but John Kelly of Magnatex told the group Tuesday the northernmost section would oppose annexation. Council agreed to exclude discussion of that portion during the public hearing.

Council took no action on a request by the city Parks and Recreation Commission to apply for a grant from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation for construction of an additional nine holes for the city golf course.

Parks Director Bob Thomson noted that funding for golf courses had not been available from the BOR in Texas for more than five years. He said that procedure varies from state to state. but such funds would probably continue to be unavailable from the BOR.

Thomson was instructed to pass this new information on to the parks commission, who had also agreed earlier to place the additional nine holes on the proposed $4.3 million bond issue before the city. Council appeared Tuesday to favor leaving the proposal on the bond issue and not apply for the federal funds. In other action, the council:

Despite the previous bombings, an Executive Protection Service spokesman said there were no EPS guards standing watch outside the Communist mission when the blast occurred shortly after midnight.

The EPS is a federal agency that protects foreign diplomats and their buildings.

Calling the bombing a "repeated terrorist act," Yugoslav Ambassador Dimce Belovski complained that U.S. authorities have not solved any of the attacks. The diplomatic mission is located

New face gives 15-year-old Ida Hays new life

NEW YORK (AP) - Ida Hays stole a glance in the mirror, her first since they took the bandages off, and laughed for joy.

She had made a pact with herself not to look until the swelling went down but she could not resist. After all, what she beheld was not just a 15year-old girl with a new face but Ida Hays with a new life.

She studied the face: "I like it," and contemplated the life: "Now no one will stare at me, I will be happy."

Ida Hays is the celebrated girl from La Grande, Ore., who underwent a remarkable operation May 19 to repair a face deformed from birth. Interviewed Tuesday for the first time since the surgery, she pronounced the operation an unqualified success.

"Not just for me but for other people," she said. "A boy at the hospital has the same problem I had but was afraid of the operation. Now he's going ahead with it because of me. Isn't Ida's problem was that her eyes were separated by twice the normal width. In a 10-hour operation, a team at New York University Hospital reduced the space from slightly more than two inches to slightly less than one, rebuilt Ida's nose, and filled the resulting gap between her eye sockets. and temples with bone taken from her hip. It was the most severe case of orbital hypertelorism, as it is called, in the experience of the hospital's Institute of Reconstructive Plastic

Ida's deformity was not, of course, her only problem, but it was the cause of all the others.

Once again in the company of her parents at their hotel near the hospital, and in a truly ebullient mood, Ida could reflect with equanimity on a childhood of stares and taunts now, she believes, behind

Kennedy asks CIA not to trash records

Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) urged the Central Intelligence Agency Tuesday not to destroy any of its records concerning illegal and improper activities.

In a letter to CIA Director George Bush, Kennedy, as chairman of the Senate administrative practices subcommittee, asked that the agency "defer any such planned destruction for the foreseeable future."

Bush notified Senate leaders last week that the agency was planning to get rid of a backlog of routine administrative records and documents compiled over the past year that were "subject to investigation" congressional committees and the Rockefeller Commission.

Although the CIA has said the planned destruction would be consistent with all applicable laws, Kennedy, whose subcommittee has jurisdiction over freedom of information legislation, said he did not see how this assurance could be accepted without prior, outside review of the documents to be destroyed.

"Obviously," Kennedy wrote Bush, "any after-the-fact assessment would be fruitless where the proposed action would obliterate the only material which would provide the basis for such assessment.

Rep. Bella S. Abzug (D-N.Y.), chairwoman of the House subcommittee on government information, lodged her own protest, against the CIA's plans Monday.

WTCC president voices optimism

Midland and West Texas generally are forging ahead at an unparalleled pace businesswise, with present economic conditions appearing bright and with an even brighter tomorrow in the making.

This was the optimistic observation cited by W.H. "Bill" Collyns, editor of The Reporter-Telegram and president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, in addressing the meeting of the Midland West Rotary Club Tuesday noon at the Rodeway

He said that one of the most encouraging bits of business news recently is the report that optimism on the part of the public is back in vogue. This will result in increased buying by consumers at all levels. Collyns said

National problems, he said, are troublesome, particularly during a presidential election year, but he predicted that the United States will make it through its Bicentennial year 'with flags waving and heads held high in the real spirit of America."

Collyns also spoke briefly concerning the program and work of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in the 132-county area which it serves.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Survey shows Carter delegate

In some states, the pro-Carter vote has been understated, as in Wallace's own Alabama. There, Wallace won 27 delegates, Carter won 3 and five are uncommitted. All five of those uncommitted delegates are black, and all clearly will go with Carter, officials said Tuesday.

Carter's support in Texas also has been obviously understated. So far, 92 of Texas' 130 delegates have been allotted to Carter, with 6 uncommitted. Thirty-two more will be chosen June 18 at a state convention. Almost all will go to Carter, it was reported Tuesday, and a move may be made at the convention to have the entire delegation declare for Carter.

Carter's "boiler room" has been operating under the 24-year-old Hutcheson for several months. It now consists of eight people, each assigned a geographic region, with responsibility for keeping count of all the delegates, keeping dossiers on them, and maintaining contact with

Tunney easily defeats Hayden

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES - U.S. Sen. John V. Tunney handily turned aside the challenge of former radical activist Tom Hayden the Democratic Party primary election early today and retired educator S.I. Hayakawa won the Republican nomination to oppose him in November.

Tunney built up an impressive lead as the returns rolled in and shortly before midnight Tuesday Hayden conceded his campaign to unseat the incumbent had been unsuccessful

"I am the senator for at least one million Democratic voters in this Hayden told disappointed

The "MVP" in Joe Morgan's credits not only stands for "Most Valuable Player"-but "Most Versatile Player" as well.

"I'd say he's one of the most complete ballplayers I've seen since I've been in the big leagues," says Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh of the gold-plated Cincinnati second baseman.

PARIS (AP) - It was the tournament Arthur Ashe really wanted, the one to finish off his page in the record books, and it got away from him - just the way he had feared, just the way he had expected. After winning all of tennis' big tournaments and being proclaimed the sport's top player for the first time at 32, the French Open, the one he called the toughest competition in the world to win, turned out to be just that. Ashe was out of the tournament before it got to the quarter-finals, beaten by a 22 year-old Hungarian, Balacz Taroczy, in five sets.

Well, maybe some other time," Ashe said afterward. "I would have like to play-him two out of three, or now, get him at Wimbledon.

All the difficulties Ashe foresaw to block winning in Paris turned out as he envisoned. All the toughest clay court players in the world, 80 per cent of the global best, come out of the woodwork here, Ashe had said, and a big serve - and - volleyer like himself has sharply minimized chances compared to those in tournament on grass or concrete.

Ashe got the hot weather he wanted to bake the red clay courts hard and give the tournament's low pressure balls some more bounce. But he admitted that dealing with the clay still confused him and that he had changed his game for Taroczy. The change to patted lobs and chops worked for the first two sets that Ashe won, but the Hungarian finally caught on of the Andy Messersmith free agency sweepstakes earlier this year, get to take the lid off today's secondary phase of the baseball draft and they've narrowed their choice to a pair of speedy Californians.

It will be either Gerald Price, an 18-year-old infielder with fast feet and a quick bat, or 19- year-old Ron Roenicke, a switch-hitting center fielder, who will leadoff the draft for previously selected but unsigned players.

Both Price and Roenicke were selected before by Detroit but went back into the hopper because the figures the Tigers offered to sign were too small.

HOUSTON apparently has whispered acceptable. figures to prime prospect Floyd Bannister of Arizona State, who was selected by the Astros Tuesday as the

No. 1 pick in the regular phase of the free agent draft. The Astros had said they would not draft Bannister if they felt they could not sign him. But Tuesday they drafted him, and a Houston spokesman said, "We do expect to sign him."

The Astros said they would not approach Bannister about signing a contract until Arizona State finishes competing in the College World Series in Omaha. Neb. career in the minor leagues. BANNISTER'S TEAMMATE, Ken Landreaux, the sixth player chosen who was selected by the California Angels, has the opposite philosophy.

"I've seen the Angels play on several occasions," said Landreaux, a center fielder who batted .413 with 14 home runs and 87 runs batted in this season. "I think I can play in the big leagues now, if given the

> SOME OTHER BASEBALL families got into the act on the first day of the scheduled three-day affair, which will reseume with primary phase drafting after completion of today's secondary phase.

In the first round, the Chicago White Sox picked pitcher Steve Trout, son of the late Tiger pitcher.

"My only regret is that his dad is not here to see this," said Pearl Trout, Steve's mother. "When we first moved here I remember him pointing out to a neighbor his seven sons who were playing in the field. He pointed to Steve who was only five or so at the time and said: 'That's my ballplayer."'

Pitcher Dominic Chiti, son of former major league catcher Harry Chiti, was selected by Atlanta on the second round. Ossie Virgil Jr., a catcher and the son of former major league infielder Ossie Virgil, was picked by Philadelphia in the sixth round. Third baseman Earl Battey, son of ex-major league catcher Earl Battey, was picked by the San Diego Padres in the 14th round.

Top NBA pick considers tennis

NEW YORK (AP) - Can John Lucas find happiness on both the basketball and tennis courts?

He's going to try. Lucas, a college All-American in both tennis and basketball, was the No. 1 pick in Tuesday's National Basketball Association draft, by the Houston Rockets.

After quickly signing a five-year, no-cut contract for a reported $850,000 with the Rockets, the 6-foot-4 Lucas said he also was negotiating with a franchise in World Team Tennis and probably would sign with a WTT member-which he did not idenand Greensburg, Pa.

Zarley and January finished with identical seven-under-par 136s, one stroke ahead of club pro Roger Watson of Cary, N.C., in the scramble for 54 places in the 150-man Open field.

Seventeen players tied at 144 and engaged in a sudden death playoff for the last three places.

"I was playing basketball ... when they came and told me that Houston had the No. 1 pick and they wanted me," said the quick, confident Lucas. "It really pumped me up. I knew other teams had been interested in me. I consider it their loss." The Rockets and the other teams, meanwhile, chose 175 other players in the 10-round draft which lasted 2 hours, 5 minutes.

FOUR OF THEM were from Indiana's national champions. All-American forward Scott May, the College Player of the Year, was the No. 2 pick, by the Chicago Bulls. Two others, guards Quinn Buckner and Bobby Wilkerson, also were drafted on the first round. Buckner, like May a member of the U.S. Olympic team, was selected by the Milwaukee Bucks, and Wilkerson went to the Seattle SuperSonics.

Indiana forward Tom Abernethy was chosen on the third round, by the Los Angeles Lakers.

The only starting member of Indiana's NCAA winners to avoid the draft was All-American center Kent Benson, a junior.

The other 1976 Associated Press All-Americans, forwards Adrian Dantley of Notre' Dame and Phil Sellers of Rutgers, were high picks inthe draft. Dantley, a junior who decided to pass up his last year of college eligibility for the pros, was taken by the Buffalo Braves in the first round. Sellers went to the Detroit Pistons in the third round.

Yea, Tugboat Jones!

The Midland Downtown Lions Club did itself proud at a recent meeting in honoring Thurman L. 'Tugboat" Jones, who is retiring as athletic director of the Midland public school system after long years of faithful, fruitful service.

copy. Advertising orders are accepted on this basis only

The wording on the attractive plaque presented to the veteran coach and athletic director said: "In appreciation of his invaluable services and work with the youth of the community over the years.

This hit the nail squarely on the head in this particular case, since Tugboat Jones has been a tremendous influence for good among the youth of Midland for more than a quarter of a century. as much perhaps as any other one

Thus, he has bequeathed to the Tall City something which will be paying rich dividends in many ways for many years to come.

Tugboat Jones merits all the recognition which a grateful community and its citizens can bestow upon him, yet the modest Midlander would shy away from any public display of appreciation. Nevertheless, he has earned same, and it is great that he presently is receiving words and acts of recognition and appreciation.

Sponsors of the public reception held recently at Ranchland Hill Country Club honoring Coach and Mrs. Jones also are due commendation for their thoughtfulness in this regard.

lugboat Jones, in working with and for the youth of the community, has built from scratch in the school system a far-reaching athletic program second to none.

He has been interested in developing a program reaching and involving as many students as possible in some form of athletics. This is a program which is and long will pay rich dividends to the individuals, the school system and the community.

At the high school level, both Midland and Midland Lee have fielded strong contenders in football and other sports during Jones' tenure as athletic director. Lee High, for instance, gave the Tall City its first AAAA district football title ever in 1974.

Tugboat has every right to be proud of the overall accomplishments of Midland athletes in all areas in the last six years - five district basketball champions, district and state champions in baseball, volleyball, swimming, tennis, golf and track. This very likely sets some sort of a record among high schools of Texas and beyond, and it has all been achieved under the guidance and organization of Tugboat Jones' administration as athletic director.

It is no wonder that this fine gentleman is held in such high respect and esteem in high school athletic circles from local to national levels.

Sports Editor Ted Battles did an excellent, thorough job in wrapping up these and the many other achievements of Tugboat Jones as player, coach and athletic director in a special column appearing in last Sunday's issue of The Reporter-Telegram. Tugboat has had a great, colorful and most successful career in the field of athletics. One may rest assured that he is not about to give up his interest in sports just because he is retiring. He merely will be observing from a different angle.

One more thing of special interest and importance about this fabulous person... he is not going to leave Midland, which speaks well also for the Tall City which he has helped make even taller. Midlanders are delighted that he and Mrs. Jones will remain in Midland.

"Ruth and I are going to stay right here in Midland," Jones said. "We wouldn't give up Midland or its people for any other city.

Stay right in there, Tug ... your fellow Midlanders wouldn't trade

And may you and Ruth have many happy years of retirement

Congress is cautious on proposed changes

By EDWARD NEILAN Copley News Service

SOCIAL SECURITY:

WASHINGTON - Congress shows no strong inclination to make participation in Social Security mandatory for state and local government employes.

The issue is one of several involving the Social Security system which Congress has been mulling over in recent months.

The spotlight of publicity was focused on the question in April when New York City gave the required two years notice that it intended to withdraw from the federal Social Security system effective April 1, 1978.

The House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security opened hearings on the issue on April 26.

But, by the time the hearings concluded, no legislation dealing with the question had been introduced, although several lawmakers said they were considering offering bills that would lead to mandatory participation of state and municipal employes, even if they were covered by pension plans in their own jurisdictions. Under the Social Security law any state or local government or division thereof may voluntarily join and voluntarily withdraw from the system, which under law is compulsory for all other workers. To sign up for the program requires

To withdraw requires only a twoyear advance notice from the employer, which New York City Mayor Abraham Beame delivered on April 1.

During that notice period the city may switch its position and elect to remain within Social Security. However, once outside there is no rejoining.

Because it involved New York City. the move drew considerable publicity. But, there have been other withdrawals over the years.

Citing the high costs of financing Social Security, state employes in Alaska last December filed notice they wanted out.

Nine million state and local workers are a part of the Social Security system voluntarily. Fewer than 100,000 have withdrawn over the years through the end of last year. But, as of Dec. 31, 1975, 322 withdrawal notices were pending involving more than 50,000 participants. During the last two years, most of the withdrawal notices came from California, Texas and Louisiana.

"Distrust of the Social Security" system and rising costs are the main . reasons why those who can are opting. out." Barron's magazine reported in March

The federal program is now paying out more in benefits than it is taking in, and critics predict a time when the cost of the system will become too large a burden for the taxpaying worker.

The Social Security system is currently paying out $5.7 billion a month to almost 32 million retired or disabled Americans, their dependents and survivors. They represent one American in every seven and their number is growing faster than the growth rate of the total population.

Payroll tax increases have driven the Social Security bite higher and higher.

President Ford proposed in his 1974 State of the Union message that beginning next Jan. 1 the combined tax on employes and employers be official residence of the U.S. consul raised to 12:3 per cent, up from 11.7 general, a post Shelton will assume per cent. next month over loud congressional to buy their own telephone equipment instead of paying the phone companies. The Federal Communications Commission contends that the freedom to purchase would offer telephone users a better deal. But the companies warn that they would have to raise rates to make up for the revenue loss.

Story of great phone hang-up

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON - An epic battle over telephone equipment is raging in the backrooms of Congress. The brouhaha has brought the telephone industry's top brass, led by American Telephone and Telegraph chairman John deButts, to Capitol Hill for some stormy meetings.

The arguments are complicated, with legal and engineering entanglements. But it all boils down to the question of whether a telephone monopoly or increased competition will provide the customers with better

Senators who have been caught up

The. FCC has issued a series of complex rulings, which has had the effect of eroding the telephone companies' natural monopoly. The Bell System quietly looked around for someone to sponsor legislation that would nullify the FCC rulings. Bell bigwigs sounded out Senate Commerce Chairman Warren Magnuson, D.-Wash., and Senate Communications chairman John Pastore, D.-R.I. These two key senators finally consented to meet several of the telephone industry's Pastore can be as feisty as one of his state's red roosters. In sizzling language, he told the telephone executives that he didn't want their legislation in his subcommittee. It was "the wrong time and the wrong place," he snapped.

Undeterred, the deButts group finally persuaded amiable Sen. Vance Hartke, D.-Ind., to sponsor the telephone bill. On the House side, Rep. Teno Roncalio, D.-Wyo., agreed to introduce it.

Once the bill was in the legislative works, the Bell System, began a massive lobbying campaign. For the first time in its history, AT&T asked all three million of its stockholders to write their congressmen, urging them to vote for the legislation.

Phone company executives were also summoned in from all corners of the country to pay personal calls on their senators and congressmen

We spoke to several AT&T executives who argued that their customers will lose if competition is forced on the industry. They said the Bell System loses money on every private home phone line but subsidizes the home service by offering specialized equipment. If competitors are permitted to sell this equipment. said the phone men, then the rates

But the FCC claims competition can only improve the telephone system, citing a New York State study which shows the phone companies would not lose money from competition.

WATCHDOG ON SPIES:

U.S. Senate approves revolutionary check on CIA will be from any other committees.

By BENJAMIN SHORE Copley News Service

WASHINGTON - In 1955 Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana introduced a resolution to create a joint House-Senate committee to watch over the budget and activities of the Central Intelligence Agency The full Senate gave the measure the courtesy of a vote, but few senators could see the need for such a congressional activity Today things are different. Nearly three years of seemingly endless revelations of U.S. intelligence agencies straying far beyond the limits of their congressional mandates and abusing the rights of tens of thousands of Americans have resulted in a new attitude on Capitol

The CIA, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Internal Revenue Service, military intelligence agencies and others allowed themselves to be misused by past administrations.

Furthermore, the involvement of the CIA in foreign policy through its fomenting of coups and insurrections has forced Congress to question whether such actions were envisioned when Congress created the CIA.

And, revelations of the massive long-running program of intercepting mail, cable and telephone communications between Americans and citizens of certain foreign countries cast a dark shadow over the supersecret national security agency.

With everything brought into painfully public focus by the Church committee in the Senate and the Pike committee in the House, there was little resistance in the Senate (May 19) as it approved a resolution to create for the first time a select intelligence oversight committee.

There have been suggestions in the House that a joint committee be created, and Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., called for the House to establish its own oversight committee, but no specific legislation is under formal consideration there at the moment. So, the Senate will begin now to create its own committee and start moving into uncharted waters.

Where the Church committee was concerned only with uncovering wrongdoing by intelligence agencies, the new committee will have legislative and budget authority over the agencies.

It will try to treat government intelligence activities much as other committees are involved in defense. agriculture, commerce, education, foreign policy and the rest of the executive branch's operations.

The only difference is that this oversight committee is the product of an adversary relationship with the executive branch, beginning with the Watergate hearings and persisting until it was obvious that Congress could not turn its back on such highly publicized abuses.

Yet support for involving Congress in intelligence oversight has come from the executive branch. Opposition, based primarily on a fear of leaks from Capitol Hill, has been voiced, but the basic recent view has been one of endorsing oversight. The special panel appointed by President Ford and chaired by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller to catalog the sins of the CIA recommended 11 months ago that Congress establish an oversight committee.

Former CIA Directors William Colby, Richard Helms and John McCone testified in favor of it, as did many top officials of former administrations.

Dean Rusk, secretary of state from 1961 to 1969, said he thought he had known everything about CIA activities that could affect U.S. foreign policy - until recent revelations showed that much had been kept from

The Senate is entering this new venture with an attitude of flexibility, ready to adjust the oversight committee's scope and activities where experience indicates/it is required. The committee will have 17 members, nine from the majority party and eight from the minority. Two members each will be drawn from Appropriations, Armed Services, Foreign Relations and Judiciary committees. The other rine

Storage space aids neatness

By The Associated Press

In providing rooms that accommodate the needs and aesthetic preferences of their youngsters, parents may find that proper planning and easy care go hand in hand, advises long-time interior designer Mary Knackstedt of Harrisburg, Pa.

Mary K., as she is known, has had a wide variety of decorating ventures including one for 1,500 orphaned boys at Hershey, Pa., a community that was founded in the early 1900s. Her interior design involved about 150 units which were being expanded and renovated to accommodate the needs of the boys and the community.

"People often complain that their children are sloppy, but I have found that many children are not given things that are necessary to keep their rooms

What does a child need in a room? In addition to a bed and a comfortable chair, needs include convenient easy-to-reach wardrobe and storage areas, good light for study - things like that, she explains. And children should be asked what they like in color and pattern to make their surroundings more pleasant and to encourage prideful occupancy of

"At Hershey the boys were consulted and blue was found to be an overwhelming color favorite, with red second. In fact, they preferred intense colors to pastels. They like patterns that are real - horses that look like horses - things that can be recognized. They like traverse draperies that can be opened and closed." she notes.

She was surprised, she said, and "learned quite a She had thought they would like colorful graphics and splashy contemporary patterns. In fact, she had planned to use drawings made by young children, but the boys turned them down.

Older boys tested furniture for comfort and as a result some dining chairs were raised to accommodate them. Choices in furniture were so consistent that scaled-down sizes are now used for younger boys as well. All boys need shelves and storage space that is accessible "so they don't need to crawl around oh floors looking for things," she contends. And carpet is preferred flooring "because they like to sit on floors.

Public opinion polls: politically used and abused

The Los Angeles Times
In the Mad Hatter's world of election campaigns, the public opinion poll may be the most used and abused - form of political gamesmanship.

Americans have a fascination for knowing who the winner is going to be, who is leading the league, who is slipping, who is gaining.

If poll-taking is an inexact science - and reputable pollsters freely acknowledge that it is — the manipulation of poll figures by politicians often borders on alchemy.

Recent polls in the California race for the GOP nomination for the U.S. Senate provided a classic example of the process. The average voter might have trouble even naming the four Republican candidates toiling in the shadow of the more exciting primary struggle between President Ford and Ronald Reagan.

Among the polling organizations, one major independent firm - the California Poll produced by Mervin D. Field - enjoys almost universal respect in California political circles. Its major polls are conducted for news organizations, not for individual candidates.

Each fresh report of the California Poll is, a major campaign event, and anxious candidates and campaign workers know days in advance when a recent poll on the Republican Senate contest would be published and broadcast.

The poll of 447 registered Republicans showed former Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch and S.I. Hayakawa running neck and neck with 23 per cent each.

Then came Rep. Alphonzo Bell with 17 per cent and former Lt. Gov. John L. Harmer 9 per cent. The remaining 22 per cent was split among lesserknown candidates or was undecided. That seemed like a simple, un-

But there are other polls, some commissioned with professional firms by the candidate's campaign, and others done by campaign volunteers.

Two days before Field's California Poll was to be announced Harmer's press secretary called reporters to tell them that, by the reckoning of the Harmer campaign, Harmer was the front-runner by an astounding poll. margin. Harmer's press secretary, Rich Buhler, proudly announced that 12,107 Republicans had been polled by Harmer volunteers over a three-week period and that Harmer was leading with 5,424 supporters, or 44 per cent. Finch had a tiny 2 per cent and Bell and Hayakawa 1 per cent each. The next day, still a day before release of the California Poll, the Bell campaign called with its own poll, conducted by Dorothy Corey Research. In that poll, Bell had-a more respectable 20.4 per cent of 613 registered GOP voters contacted, trailing only Hayakawa, who had 27.7 per cent, and leading Finch, who had 20.1 per cent. Harmer was down the list at 5.5 per cent.

Then came the Hayakawa poll as reported by Jack McDowell, a former Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter who is managing the campaign of the former university president. That poll was commissioned by the Hayakawa campaign with the firm of DMI and was based on a telephone tally of 506 Republicans taken May 6-8. (Field's survey was taken during the same three days and also by telephone). Guess who led the poll with a fat 38.3 per cent of those contacted by DMI, also a highly respected firm? That's right. It was Hayakawa, with Finch in second place at 20.6 per cent, Bell 12.9 per cent, Harmer 3.9 per cent and 24.4 per cent undecided.

derstandable report of the pollster's The Finch camp was silent, for his campaign had not commissioned a poll. Bill Roberts, Finch's campaign manager, said, "If I had the dough and could have done it early - 8 or 10 months ago - I would have done it."

But, as with most other candidates, Roberts said he would not have paid precious campaign dollars merely to find out how his man was doing in relation to the other candidates known as the "head-to-head" part of a

The head-to-head is a frill — to be used for political puffery if it shows the candidate doing well - or kept a closely guarded secret if he is not.

Roberts said he would have done it to determine what potential voters think about issues, to measure the candidate's name identification and to assess factors most likely to sway a voter to his side.

Such information, if accurate, can be of immense value to campaign strategists, telling them, for instance, the best area to invest advertising money and which market to target.

The beauty contest part of a candidate's own poll rarely is used by the news media because of the suspicion that it might be slanted to make the candidate look good. A good poll standing can help create a bandwagon effect and convince reluctant campaign contributors that the candidate is a likely winner and it is time to get on board.

Conversely, a poll can have a devastating affect.

In the 1972 California Democratic presidential primary, the California Poll reported just five days before the election that Sen. George S. McGovern had an overwhelming lead in his contest with Hubert H. Humphrey. The poll results had a demoralizing impact on Humphrey and his organization, and Humphrey insiders said contributions dried up

Even so, McGovern carried the state by only about 5 per cent over

Humphrey on election day. That series of events so angered then-Assemblyman Walter Karabian, a Humphrey backer, that he spon-sored a bill in the next session of the Legislature to put political pollsters virtually out of business in California. The bill was killed.

Field emphasizes that a poll is merely a sampling of voter attitudes. at the time the poll was taken and is not in any way intended to forecast who will win. His poll reports note that fact, along with details on how, when and where the poll was conducted and the likely margin of statistical error.

Candidates and pollsters alike defend the disparity of poll results on candidates' standing.

Why, for instance, would there be such a difference in the California and DMI polls taken during the same period in May?

Results can depend on the way the would-be voters are chosen, how the questions are asked and a variety of other factors going into highly sophisticated methods of statistical

While the Field and DMI polls were done by telephone, the Corey poll on Bell's behalf was conducted by workers who talked to voters face-toface. Jewell Alderton, the company's vice president, argues that this kind of interviewing is generally more

But Field argues that experience and research allow his company to conduct an accurate telephone survey by compensating for those persons without phones.

Mrs. Alderton also contends that voters tend to be more hostile when contacted by telephone, more open in face-to-face interviews.

"There is no way to duplicate the type of rapport that you have on a question as personal as who you're going to vote for and why," she said.

Those being polled are not told whether any one candidate is paying for the poll, she added.

One campaign manager who declined to be quoted by name said that although polling is expensive, polling for campaign strategy purposes is no place to skimp on funds.

"An inexpensive poll is worthless," he said. "You're better off going on gut instincts rather than being misled."

Kremlin starts applying squeeze to East Germany

By PETER OSNOS The Washington Post

EAST BERLIN - The increasingly wide gap in living standards between the Soviet Union and East Germany poses a sensitive problem for the two countries, still bound together in a relationship that is part victor and vanquished, part patron and protege.

The German Democratic Republic is now, on the whole, the Eastern bloc's most prosperous nation, and the first-time visitor from Moscow is astonished by some of the differences. Food is more plentiful and varied, clothes are better made and more stylish, quality in other consumer goods is consistently higher.

To deal with the disparity, diplomats here say, Moscow is tightening its hold on the East German .economy, extracting larger sums for essential raw materials and demanding greater participation by East Berlin in Soviet projects. The result, according to experts, is likely to be a slowdown in East German

The Kremlin is curbing a trend that began in the early 1960s when East Germany was permitted a period of substar" il development, mainly to counteract the invidious comparison with West Germany that had promp-

On every count East Germans appear to have more consumer goods than Soviets do. In 1973, 21 out of every 100 East German households had a car, the West German Institute of Economic Research reported; in the Soviet Union only 4.2 had automobiles.

By 1980, based on present rates of increase, nearly every family in East Germany will have a refrigerator, washing machine, television and radio - still a far distant dream for

The advances made here are all the more notable because the East German economy, crippled by defeat in the war, was stripped of most of its remaining resources when the Soviets took over. Whole factories, railway equipment, timber and livestock — in all material valued at between $10 and $20 billion - were shipped to the

A full decade assed before Moscow agreed to ease its insistence that East Germany turn over a portion of its output as reparations. East Germany, moreover, had been cut off from its traditional suppliers of raw materials

Today, East German workers are said to produce one-third less per hour than their West German counterparts. Nevertheless, their success in reviving the economy against enor-mous obstacles is attributed to common national characteristics: a pen-chant for efficiency and thoroughness, an instinct for work.

"After all," a Berlin writer observed with a grin, "we are Ger-

The Soviets doubtless were also worried about the impact of East German wealth on the 400,000 Soviet troops stationed here and the large numbers of visiting Soviet tourists.

Italy's Neo-Fascists battling to hold own in next elections

ROME (AP) -Italy's Neo-Fascists. accused of resorting to violence in an anti-Communist crusade, are battling to hold their own in the upcoming national elections.

The Neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement-MSI-won more than two million votes on the strength of an anti-Communist line four years ago, becoming Italy's fourth largest party.

The political heirs of World War II dictator Benito Mussolini's shattered dreams haven't changed their message this year. They have plastered cities with posters proclaiming, "no to communism, yes to freedom." Party leader Giorgio Almiranted crisscrosses the country declaring the MSI crucial to save Italy from its leftward lean.

But the party, which claims 420,000 members, has been badly tainted by campaign violence, including the slaying of a Communist youth during an MSI rally near Rome. An MSI member of parliament, Sandro Saccucci, has been implicated.

The MSI also faces the dilemma of having its anti-Comunist message backfire in the June 20-21 voting. The campaign could scare potential voters into the camp of the Christian Democrats, where their ballots would be more effective in the battle against the Communists.

One pre-election poll by the Demoskopea public opinion organization shows this may be happening. It said the Christian Democrats were taken to keep foot-and- in check by the natural making a slight gain, mainly at the mouth disease (FMD) barrier of the vast Darien expense of the MSI, and no change for the challenging Communists.

The poll shows the MSI getting 5.5 per cent of the vote, down from almost 9 per cent in the last national election in 1972.

In recent years the party has shown slippage in local and regional voting. At its last congress, in 1973, the MSI resurrected the image of Mussolin and pledged "peace and order in the country by all means.'

In line with its campaign to depict itself as the party of law, order and patriotism, the MSI had enlisted a number of retired generals and other military officers to its ticket this year.

One of them, Gen. Vito Miceli, former head of the Italian national intelligence agency, spent time in jail on charges of conspiracy in an alleged rightwing plot two years ago.

The charges are still pending, although Miceli would be protected by parliamentary immunity if he is

In the last election the MSI signed on Adm. Giono Birindelli, who resigned as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's Mediterranean naval chief to run for parliament. But he quit the party two years later, claim ing other MSI leaders had refused to take court action to fight charges it been completed. There have been plans for years to build a road through the wilderness as the final link in the Pan-American Highway from Alaska to deep within South America. But fears of opening an avenue for FMD to invade Central and North America have been part of the reason for the delay.

Environmentalists also have feared that completing the highway link through the Darien Gap would jeopardize plant and animal life in the tropical area.

The department's advisory panel "took a strong stand against completing the PanAmerican Highway until adequate safeguards" are set up to prevent the spread of FMD northward, officials said Monday.

Although the disease is prevalent or is likely to break out in much of South America, countries north of Colombia are free of the disease.

Livestock producers and many others are concerned that with the highway's completion, infected livestock or products carrying the disease could move into the northern areas.

The last reported case of FMD in the United States was in 1929. The most recent major outbreak was in 1914-15, when the disease spread to 22 states before it was stopped by slaughtering thousands of livestock. Canada's only FMD outbreak was in 1952 and the disease was eliminated in Mexico in a massive cooperative campaign with the United States in 1947-54 at a cost of about $135 million.

The disease afflicts clovenhoofed animals, including cattle, swine, sheep and goats. It can also decimate similar wild animals, including deer and elk.

According to the department, if FMD should become established in the United States, it could reduce meat and milk production by 25 per cent.

Oil, chemical companies buying lignite deposites in Louisiana

Several major oil and chemical companies, along with Southwestern Electric Power Co., have been quietly acquiring leases on lignite deposits in northwest Louisiana.

Lignite is a low-grade soft coal, an energy resource that hasn't been tapped in oil-rich Louisiana. But now the state's output in oil and natural gas is beginning to decline.

SWEPCO has been acquiring lignite leases in DeSoto Parish and in East Texas, the Marshall-Hallsville area, for several years.

In 1973, SWEPCO announced plans to build a power plant in the mid-1980s to be fueled by lignite.

Olin Corp., Dow Chemical Co. and Phillips Coal Co., a subsidiary of Phillips Petroleum, have been acquiring leases in Louisiana, but have no definite plans for use of lignite, spokesman for the companies Union Texas Petroleum Corp. No. 1-56 Farmar has been completed as a Canyon discovery six miles west of Mertzon in Irion County.

The well was finaled for a 24-hour flowing potential of 140 barrels of 39gravity oil, plus 12 barrels of water, through a 10/64-inch choke and perforations from 7,122 to 7,145 feet.

the third in a series of hearings devoted to implications for U.S. policy of the relationship between multinational petroleum companies and the oil-producing cartel.

Throughout, Kennedy has been asking whether there is any way the U.S. government can exert pressure on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to get fuel prices down. The oil companies and the administration have taken the position that the only way to influence OPEC countries is to develop alternate fuel sources at Republican colleagues Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois and Sen. Jacob Javits of New York Tuesday joined Kennedy in criticizing the administration and the American public. Percy sad he felt there was no sense of urgency about conservation. Javits challenged the administration to come up with a better altenative for bargaining with OPEC than through the giant oil companies. Commerce Secretary Elliot L. Richardson and Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb both argued against changing the status quo and establishing a central oil buying authority plus breaking up the big companies on the grounds such moves would be ineffective.

They urged congressional action on President Ford's proposals, including deregulation of natural gas prices, quick delivery of natural gas from Alaska's North Slope, insulation tax credits and creation of an energy Independence Authority. This brought strong criticism from Kennedy, who said it was about time the administration stopped talking about energy self-sufficiency by 1985 He called it "misleading the American people." Instead, the country is becoming more dependent or foreign oil. Current FEA estimates put imports at around 6 million bar rels a day by 1985; not the 3.5 million or fewer it predicted two years ago. Zarb agreed to change "independence" to "embargo-proo

He testified that the United States would have to pay $35 billion for im ported oil this year compared with $27 billion in 1975. As for next year, he added, "I am certain that OPEC is not going to miss another chance for a price increase." The reference was to the recent conference in Bali where OPEC ministers were unable to agree on a price increase.

Deputy Secretary of State Charles W. Robinson declared, "It is clear ou protection against more changes in price is the strength of the (big) of companies." He opposed having the government conduct or attend oil con tract negotiation sessions. Moreover he said he could thini of no "unaccep table" negotiations in recent years that might have required a government veto. Kennedy concluded, "The ad ministration seems satisfied with the status quo." Then, looking at his friend, State Department Consumer Affairs Adviser Joan Braden, who was in the audience, the senator added. "But is the interest of the oil companies identical to the interest of the consumer?" Robinson promised to seek consumer input in the future.

drifts ahead in trading

NEW YORK (AP) - 'The stock market drifted ahead slightly in slow, unen-thusiastic trading today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up .98 at 960.95, and gainers held a very narrow edge on losers in the over-all count of New York Stock Exchange-listed Brokkers noted nothing to account for the market's slight upward bias, except for possibly a touch of hope that interest rates might be levelling off after their recent upward move. & Central & South West was

special in the economic news

the volume leader among NYSE issues, down 1/2 at 131/2 in a 400,000-share block that traded in the over-thecounter market.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks was up .09 at 52.71, and the American Stock Exchange market value index tacked on .19 to 101.65.

Volume on the Big Board reached only 5.98 million shares by noon after one of the slowest mornings of the year. Turnover had totaled 7.17 million shares in Tuesday's first two hours.

Brokers said investors showed some favorable response to California voters' rejection of a proposal to put stiff new conditions on nuclear power usage. In uranium stocks, Kerr-McGee gained 1/4 to 74 and United Nuclear was up 5% at 281/s.

Stock market England's new prime minister very different

By ADAM RAPHAEL The Observer, London

LONDON - James Callaghan has been at No. 10 Downing St. for just over two months but though his style is restrained, there are already marked differences to his predecessor, Harold Wilson, in the conduct of business.

Gone are the flamboyant Wilsonian touches, the acerbic retorts in the House of Commons, the obsessive preoccupation with presentation of policy and newspaper criticism. Gone too are some of the old political associates of the Wilson era like former Health Minister Barbara Castle and Lady Falkender while business friends of Wilson like Sir Joseph Kagan are on their way to the House of Lords having been ennobled.

The new prime minister is a less complicated character and, as he would gladly admit, a duller man. He has no personal coterie. His friends are old political colleagues like Merlyn Rees, the secretary of state for Northern Ireland and Gregor Mackenzie, minister of state for industry. In his first nationwide broadcast, Callaghan set out to portray himself as an unashamed square when he asked: "Do you, like me, sometimes feel that we have been slipping? Then join me, join all of us, in a national effort to uphold our values and our standards."

This homespun image has been reinforced by Callaghan's refusal to move into 10 Downing Street. To the dismay of the security services, he is insisting on staying on with his wife Audrey in the tiny two room apartment he rents in Kennington, a distinctly unfashionable suburb across the river from the Houses of Parliament. Similarly, Callaghan prefers to spend weekends at his 138-acre Sussex farm than use Chequers, the country residence of prime ministers. He lives a very quiet life. He neither smokes, nor drinks, and doesn't even enjoy eating much because of weight problems. When the Queen invited her new prime minister to her birthday party, he promptly delcined, pleading "pressure of work.

The solid, sensible, pragmatic outlook which has always been "Sunny Jim's" political drawing card has also been fully displayed in matters of policy. The first crucial reshuffle of the cabinet was hailed by commentators variously as representing a shift to the left or a shift to the right; a tribute to the neat balancing act it, in fact, was.

It also dealt a shrewd blow to the political prospects of his two most serious rivals.

Home Secretary Roy Jenkins, in almost total political eclipse, now appears headed for the presidency of the European Commission, having been denied the Foreign Office. Michael Foot, who came a close second in the leadership race, has been stymied no less subtly. As secretary of state for employment was was a major power in the land and keeper of the government's pact with the trade unions. Now without a major department behind him, he is discovering how difficult it is to combine leadership of the House of Commons with his reputation as a champion of parliamentary liberties.

A third, and possibly the most formidable rival. Energy Minister Tony Benn, the tribune of the left, has also been effectively silenced. The nature of the agreement that has been reached between him and the prime minister is not clear. But a strange, if temporary peace has descended on relations between the Labor party's National Executive Comittee and the cabinet crowned by the en asculation of the left's proposals for import controls and direct intervention in running industry

With his political rear covered, so to speak, Callaghan has been free to concentrate on running the show. It is clear that he is determined to take charge of what he sees as the government's most important task, the cementing of relations with the unions. Already this task has taken him to Ayrshire, Blackpool, Scarborough, and Bournemouth to address union conferences of boilermakers, shop workers, tax collectors, engineers and post office workers.

The pay agreement looks as though it will receive substantial backing at a special Trades Union Congress meeting later this month. But overhanging the 4.5 per cent plus tax cuts deal is the state of the pound and the fickle state of foreign confidence in Britain's economic future.

Not for the first time, Callaghan, a former chancellor of the exchequer, is faced by a sterling crisis. So far he has taken no initiative, seemingly content to let the present Chancellor Denis Healey get on with it. But gibes are already beginning to be voiced, by Edward Heath among others, that words are no substitute for action.

Callaghan has already displayed his pragmatism to advantage in welcoming Brazilian President Ernesto Geisel despite rumblings from the left and inending the "Cod War" with Iceland despite pressure from the fishing industry to continue with 'a no win" struggle. It is unfortunate that he should have to face a major economic crisis so soon after becoming prime minister. If there are doubts about his political skills, it is in the field of economic management. But it is on this more than anything else that his premiership is likely to be judged.

Construction union contracts being negotiated

WASHINGTON (AP). - Labor contracts in the construction industry are being negotiated without the strikes and inflationary wage settlements that former Labor Secretary John Dunlop warned of six months ago

Federal officials say the moderation is mainly due to high unemployment and competition from nonunion labor. With two-thirds of the 2,800 construction union contracts up for negotiation this year already settled, industry strike activity is at its lowest level in five years. Officials say the wage trend in contracts has been toward moderation. Federal labor officials say the moderation is due to the high unemployment rate in the industry, which has yet to recover from the recession, and a realization among union leaders that non-union contractors are taking a larger share of the business. "It has resulted in a bit more realistic and rational/ approach to bargaining," chief federal mediator

James F. Scearce said Tuesday. "There seems to be an air of accommodation at the bargaining table,"he commented in an interview "The number of strikes is way down, about half what they were last year up to this point, and indications are that the settlements are more moderate.' First-year wage settlements are averaging about 7 per cent, less than the 8.1 per cent average for 1975.

Chile pressed on rights issue

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) - Chile's military government was under new pressure from the United States and some other American countries today to free the 4,000 political prisoners it is estimated to be holding or at least to respect their human rights. Secretary of State Henry A Kissinger warned the ruling junta that U.S.-Chilean relations will remain cool unless it improves its performance on human rights. Venezuela and Jamaica called for a largescale release of prisoners. A Chilean representative said the demands for release of the prisoners was "demagogic and simplistic."

The U.S. secretary of state told the annual general assembly of the Organization of American States Tuesday that the situation "has impaired our relationship with Chile and will continue to do so."

Kissinger cited the report on human rights in the hemisphere made to the meeting by the OAS Human Rights Commission. He said it showed there has been a drop in the number of cases of abuse of human rights in

"Nevertheless, the commission has asserted that violations continue to occur, and this is a matter of bilateral as well as international concern, Kissinger said. "In the United States," concern is widespread in the executive branch, in the press, and in the Congress.'

Kissinger said the commission's report "confirms our worst fears of Cuban behavior." Informed sources said the report told of continuing repression, women prisoners being kept nude in overcrowded cells prisoners being denied visitors and mail, and prisoners' meals being served deliberately at erratic hours. U.S. officials said Kissinger also discussed the human rights issue at a meeting Tuesday with Gen. Augusto Pinochet, president of the Chilean junta. But there was no information on whether the secretary linked the issue to economic and financial support the junta gets from the United States and international lending agencies it controls. There also was no indication of what Pinochet told Kissinger.

Chilean delegate Sergio Diez told the OAS session his government is trying to improve the human rights situation "within the framework of the emergency situation in which we have been living.

"Human rights should be respec-ted, but the situation is not the same in a country where terrorism and subversion launch periodic attacks as in another country where things are more tranquil."

Police cadet class delayed

HOUSTON (AP) - A new police cadet class due to begin this week has been delayed because of a funding snag but the city will use $3,000 in state and federal funds to come up with a song promoting a car pool

The car pool program' already has been declared the most successful in the country and the expenditure for the successful program didn't escape Councilman Larry McKaskle Tuesday. He suggested costs could be cut by getting the new police cadet class to sing it.

A new cadet class due to start Monday was delayed because City Controller Leonel Castillo refused to certify its funding until the City Council adopts a budget for the current year.

The ordinance appropriating money for the car pool song was actually approved by council April 13 but had to be amended Tuesday because of additions to the contract with Bisell's Arranging Service.

HOUSTON (AP) - Final arguments were scheduled today in the trial of a lawsuit in which two Houston businessmen are suing Texas Supreme Court nominee Donald B. Yarbrough.

State District Court Judge William N. Blanton Jr. has allowed each side 90 minutes to argue its case before the 11- member jury. One juror was excused last week to undergo open heart surgery. The six-man, five-woman jury has heard testimony in the case in which Rex L. Cooper and Douglas Ford accuse Yapbrough of defrauding them of $117,500 in a 1974 bank deal.

Mrs. Masters testified she loaned Yarbrough $25,000 "to get the ball rolling" in a March 1974 plan to obtain controlling interest in the Commer-cial State Bank of Houston.

She testified that when she pressed him to pay off the note when it came due in the summer, he offered $2,500 in cash and a $22,500 note backed by Gold and Silver Limited Inc. She said he represented himself as vice president of the company.

Government neglect possible contributor to high medical costs

By MIKE CAUSEY The Washington Post

Government failure to check the insurance coverage its own workers buy does them a disservice and may be a major contributor to skyrocketing medical costs for nearly every American.

Thousands of federal workers now pay premiums for special optional dental, health and life insurance coverage in addition to coverage they get under one of more than 30 regular carriers in the federal health program. Some of the optional plans, as outlined here June 3, turn sour when workers try to collect or face premium jumps of 100 per cent or more once enrolled.

Regular health insurance programs sponsored by the government cover 8 million civil servants and family members. Those plans - like Blue Cross-Blue Shield and Aetna - set benefits and rates after bargaining with the government. Critics say the government is too soft in fighting rate hikes, which they say lead to jumps outside government perpetuating medical inflation. But the plans have been in business a long time and generally have a good track record of paying benefits due and of not raising rates in mid-contract. The optional programs, at least a number of them, are ignored by the government and they are a different story.

One "optional" dental plan, for instance, was offered to HEW employeees with the endorsement of the recreation association. But some workers complained it took months to get brochures explaining benefits and, meanwhile, rates more than doubled. Finally, some were stunned to learn that they had to pay two different $50 deductibles for each family member in one 12- month period. Now they've been told the contract will be canceled in September.

Federal officials say it is not unusual for an "optional" plan that seeks out people anticipating heavy medical bills to raise rates, then go out of the insuring business.

In that case — which is not unusual - workers should have read the fine print. And they should have figured out that $300 per year for total family dental care costs - especially in a "optional" plan - isn't realistic. But they didn't and their agencies did not give them any guidance in the matter.

A solution might be for the Federal Insurance Administration (FIA) to be given authority to check into plans being offered government workers before well-meaning but unsophisticated recreation associations can endorse them.

The FIA, an agency of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, could check out plans and give workers an unbiased pro-and-con fact sheet which would help them make an intelligent decision. The fact that the FIA was looking over their shoulders might cause some of the firms who have funny benefits, trick deductible language or plans to raise rates to look elsewhere for customers.

FIA, meantime, has tackled the even larger problem, that of the government possibly permitting itself to be had by allowing employees to join plans that they either don't need, or plans that encourage the wrong kind of health maintenance and care, the type that crowds hospitals and facilities and increases rates.

Last May the FIA tooked at an inhouse program being offerd to workers in its paent agency, HUD. The "guaranteed hospital insurance program" FIA reported to HUD brass "internally inconsistent" anguage in its brochure regarding how and when rates could be raised.

FIA also found tha this, and other insurance contracts, "provide maximum incentive for overutilization of our hospitals and provide disincentives for the use of extended care facilities, home care programs and the like which are calculated to reduce the burden on our overtaxed hospitals." FIA said the program being offered to HUD workers "appears to encourage duplication of benefits" and appeared to make it more attractive to keep injured workers in the hospital after they could and should

Cutting the FIA into the government health insurance oversight business might save all of us, civil servants and plain old taxpayers, future increases in health and

Berlin Wall still tourist attraction

The Los Angeles Times

EAST BERLIN - Tourists still come to photograph it, although it is no Eiffel Tower or Sistine Chapel. Some get off the West Berlin sightseeing buses and simply stare at it. They nudge each other, point and

It has been 15 years since that barrier to freedom known as "The Wall" sealed off the Soviet sector of Berlin and the world was left to wonder what went on beyond. To see it is a sobering experience. It is still the number one tourist attraction in Berlin - on the West side, that is. Here in East Berlin, they do not drive you past it and invite you to photograph it. The East Germans' reluctance is understandable. The wall looks as if it had been built from leftover rubble by unskilled laborers in a hurry to get to beer. The architecture is early junkyard.

What is going on behind that wall? Here is what a reporter saw, heard, read and was told recently during a seven-day visit to East Berlin, Leipzig, Karl Marx Stadt and some rural areas.

The easiest way to get in - if you have a visa - is to take a plane. I did it the hard way, walking through Checkpoint Charlie. The taxi driver stopped 25 yards short, handed me my two bags and pointed east.

In the next 50 yards, my passport was inspected four times. You must buy 6 1-2 East German marks (one is worth 40 cents) and you must have a visa to stay more than 24 hours. A visa for the seven days costs $6. Oddly, after I was asked to open my luggage. the guard hardly glanced at it.

The guards were not impolite, just unfriendly. They made me feel uncomfortable, leading to the conclusion that East Germany needs a new public relations man if it expects to make it as a tourist attraction.

At first glance. East Berlin - over here it is just Berlin; the other side is West Berlin - looks like a town you would like to show to relatives. There are clean, wide streets, fancy new buildings, shops, fountains and so forth. Its showcase is Alexanderplatz, a huge square dominated by the 37story Stadt Berlin Hotel, the city's largest and most modern. Most of Alexanderplatz has been built in the last five years and East Germans are proud of it. Their pride is understandable; it is an attractive area and the natives like to stroll around it with their children and dogs.

Dozens of high-rise apartment buildings have been built recently near the city center and others are under construction. The apartments are small and reasonably modern.

But Alexanderplatz is like a movie set. It is a facade, hiding parts of the city that still look like a back lot at Universal. Roughly 80 per cent of the city was damaged in World War II and evidence of the destruction remains in many parts of town. A bombed-out church stands near Alexanderplatz as a memorial.

East German officials say that housing and schools are still major problems, but despite the strain their good friends, the Russians, have put on their economy, the East Germans have achieved the highest standard of living among Eastern European

Before the war, Berlin had a population of about 6 million. Today, East Berlin has 1.1 million and West Berlin 2.3 million.

What s life like for East Berliners? Here is a look at the life-styles of two Max Drescher was studying the front page of one of East Berlin's six daily newspaperss as the bus sped along the autobahn between East Berlin and Leipzig. He had bought the

Appeals court drops Midland man's appeal

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN- The Court of Criminal Appeals today dismissed the appeal of Edgar Johnson, who was convicted in Midland County for attempted. murder and sentenced to life.

The appeals court said it was forced to dismiss the case because the judgement against Johnson did not contain all of the requisites required by the penal code.

In an Ector County case, the appeals court ruled that Eden P. Flores must be released from the state prison to stand trial again for the unlawful sale of heroin. He was previously convicted and sentenced to 250 years in prison. Flores sought a writ of habeas corpus on grounds that the state admitted into evidence a void prior conviction in Midland County for possession of marijuana. That conviction was overturned by the appeals court because Flores was denied legal counsel. The appeals court ordered Flores to be turned over the the Ector County sheriff for a new trial in the 161st District Court.

Diet pill ads curbed

WASHINGTON (AP) - Marketers of the "X-11" diet pill must stop using advertisements that claim its pill has a unique ingredient allowing people to lose weight without eating less.

The advertising claims are false, a Federal Trade Commission administrative law judge, Daniel Hanscom, said today.

The judge said the pill does not cause most users to lose weight unless they cut caloric intake. The key ingredient, phenylpropanalomine, is used in several other over-the-counter diet products, he noted.

The marketer, Porter & Dietsch, of St. Paul, Minn., along with its president, advertising agency and the Pay'n Sav drug store chain, all were cited as respondents in the FTC order, which could be appealed.

The Porter & Dietsch president is William H. Fraser. The firm's ad agency is Kelly Ketting Furth, Inc., of immortality in song and legend. But still the people come to the old frame house where Casey Jones lived with his wife and children, to partake of a bit of railroad nostalgia and breathe a bit of a legend.

Old Casey Jones home houses railroad museum

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP) - It's been 76 years since John Luther Jones left Memphis' old Poplar Street station and rode the Cannonball Express into

Visitors to the Casey Jones Railroad Museum average about 250 a day and there have been as many as 800 trooping through the wood-floored house to inspect the memorabilia of a lost age.

Outside the house, surrounded by a 10-foot-high brick wall, stands a sister engine of the Baldwin locomotive in which Casey died at Vaughn, Miss., April 30, 1900. Like Casey's engine, the locomotive bears the number

When Casey had his accident, it only did about $1,300 damage, but it killed him," explained J. C. Barlow, a retired insurance man who manages the museum for the city of Jackson.

'They put the engine back up on its tracks and repaired it. The IC (Illinois Central Railroad) used that old engine right on up into the '40s, then cut it up for scrap. When they opened this museum in 1957, they brought this old engine in. It's almost like Folklore and a dozen versions of the song about Casey moved his last run to the west and placed the wreck itself on "Reno Hill." According to the legend, Jones could have saved his life by leaping from the cab as did his

This part of the legend is true, according to information in the museum.

Jones, who was filling in for a sick engineer, left Memphis 95 minutes late with the crack Cannonball Express, a mailpassenger train. He had almost made up the time when he reached Vaughn, where the rear end of a northbound freight stuck out on the main line at a sidetrack.

Jones didn't see the warning lantern until too late. Ordering his fireman, Sim Webb, to jump, Casey. reversed the throttle, slammed the brakes into emergency and stayed in the cab. Jones was the only fatality.

It was 47 years before Jones' grave at Jackson was marked with a permanent stone. And it was another 10 years before the city acquired the house in which he lived and began converting it to a museum.

Inside, the bedrooms and kitchen have been furnished just as they were the day Jones left for work 76 years ago. In two of the rooms old railroad uniforms, signal lanterns, parts from locomotives and cabooses and an old locomotive whistle are on display.

The whistle is a duplicate of Casey's personal "whippoorwill," whistle, which was his trademark along the IC

"But there's really not a lot of Casey's belongings there," Barlow "It's really just a collection of railroad items from a long time ago. But it sure brings in the old railroad men. They love to come in here and .. and talk."

Substance may prevent amputations

WASHINGTON (AP) — A glass-like material that fsses directly into bone could lead to saving thousands of liobs now amputated because they aren't suitable for artificial bone implants, a researcher says.

Dr. Larry L. Hench reported Monday that artificial bone attached to the real thing with a substance called bioglass has been successfully tested in animals and the result's show 'great ,promise'' for human use.

Hench, director of the Biomedical Engineering Program at the University of Florida and the inventor of bioglass, said human trials are under way in Europe and are likely to start in the United States within two Addressing a symposium sponsored by the American Chemical Society and 12 other scientific organizations, Hench said bioglass was used successfully to install hip joints in sheep. artificial leg bones in dogs and parts of jawbones in baboons.

One of the most exciting possibilities for bioglass is to bind replacement sections to long bones, as in legs and arms, when a seriously damaged section has been removed, Hench said.

It is extremely difficult to replace such sections because the forces they must withstand in use were too much for normal attachment methods, he said. As a result, otherwise healthy limbs often must be amputated.

The bioglass bond is strong enough to overcome such difficulties, he

Bioglass is similar to window glass, but contains carefully formulated amounts of certain elements chiefly calcium and phosphorus which make it resemble hydroxyapatite, the principal mineral

This chemical closeness results in the interaction between the artificial implant and bone when brought into contact, and the two gradually fuse together, said Hench.

This interaction forms a layer of byproducts that eventualxly stops the chemical reaction and prevents the bioglass from being totally absorbed by the bone, he said.

"Bioglass has the capability of forming a true bond with bone whereas normal (bone) adhesive agents don't - they just cement,' Hench said in an interview.

Picnic time here again

By TOM HOGE AP Newsfeatures Writer

Noel Coward once penned a lyric about mad dogs and Englishmen venturing out in the midday sun. He might have added picnickers.

With the approach of balmy weather heralding lazy summer days and blossom-scented breezes. thoughts turn once more to life in the open. The time is near for breaking out the family food hamper and filling it with those intriguing mixtures of sandwiches, sausages and salads that form the basis of most picnics, whether they be enjoyed at the seashore, beside a woodland brook or on the backyard patio.

I never went in for those Lucullan outdoor banquets of foie gras, jellied eggs and pheasant in aspic you read about in English novels. Such a repast is not only a headache to prepare, but you can wind up with an oily, unappetizing mess, if the weather is hot. True, a thermos jug will keep most foods intact for hours, but by the time you have spread these delicacies onto a cloth under the searching rays of Coward's noonday sun, it won't take long for the perishable stuff to wilt.

In England, where picnics are a time-honored custom, they may lean toward perishables, but there is also sensible, hardy fare, such as cold pork or game pies or chilled, spiced beef cut in slices. French picnics are noted for such dishes as cold, paperthin escalopes of veal fried in egg and breadcrumbs and raw mushroom and

Behind him stands a museum, bigger than the local hospital, with one wing devoted to what must surely be the largest collection of Churchilliana outside of England.

This exercise in colonial nostalgia is the work of the nowretired Sultan Omar Ali Saifuddin, who is still a great power in this territory even though his son now sits on the throe. The sultanate is entirely self-governing, but the British still handle Brunei's foreign affairs, with a defense commitment as well, and the old sultan, who fears his neighbors, loves the British.

The Churchill museum was built by the Sultan Omar "as an inspiration and a challenge of the youth of today and tomorrow," after he attended Churchill's funeral in 1965.

Through the vast rooms of the Churchill museum wide-eyed Malay boys and an occasional tourist wander. Admission is free. Near the entrance there is a figure of Churchill's ancestor, the first Duke of Marlborough. Near it is a clay model of a small boy, the young Winston, playing with lead soldiers.

Farther on there is a tiny model of the room in which Churchill was born in Bleheim Palace. Next to it is a straw boater with a sign saying: "This is the hat that Harrow schoolboys still wear. Young Churchill probably enjoyed this, as he was to become a collector and wearer of remarkable hats.

There are more hats — a hussar's shako, a polo helmet, a Boer War felt. Still farther on are a pinstripe suit and one of the tank suits of the type Churchill wore during the war.

Under the shako there is a sign saying: "The uniforms of these times had a romantic appeal for young men ... and young ladies.'

Bicentennial boosts business

LONDON (AP) - The American Bicentennial is 18th century Yanks rather fouled up the original bell booming business at the 550-year-old Whitechapel Bell Foundry which cast the Liberty Bell in 1752.

'You couldn't say we're swamped, 'says Douglas Hughes, one of the partners in the fosndry, "but orders have suddenly pepped up because of the Bicentennial. It will keep us going for part of this year anyway.

Besides the six-ton Bicentennial Bell delivered in Philaxdelphia last week as a gift from Britain, the foundry is turning out two dozen replicas of the Liberty Bell and thousands of scale models in various sizes.

It has completed 14 full-size, one-ton replicas and has 10 more on order for states, cities and organizations. Each takes two weeks to cast, finish and tune to the E above middle C, Hughes said.

Made of copper and tin with the original mouldmaking gauge, they are exact duplicates of the Liberty Bell "as it left here in 1752," Hughes said. He stresses "as it left here" because, he says, the ring an A, for America.

'People do not realize how brittle bell metal is," he said. "You can break a piece of it with a hammer in your hand because your hand prevents it from vibrating.

"There is no record of precisely what happened, but probably it was hung wrong because it cracked when it was struck.

It was recast, but "they didn't do a very good job. The two people who recast it were not bell founders; they were brass founders. They put too much brass into the new bell and it was too soft. It wouldn't

A second recasting restored the proper brittleness, but still something wan't just right. The bell cracked again in 1835.

Some 'humanitarians' dispute GAO lunch figures

By JEANNETTE SMYTH The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - People take lunch hours that are far too long. Did you need the Government Accounting Office (GAO) to tell you that bureaucrats take 15 minutes too long for lunch which costs the taxpayers $1.2 billion a year?

In a report submitted to the House Government Operations Committee, the GAO went after dissipated federal employes like a terrier down a molehill. The GAO asked the heads of 19 agencies and 38 military and civilian operations in or near Washington just how much time they thought people wasted over lunch. "They generally agreed," said one committee spokesman "that employes take three-quarters of an hour, to an hour for lunch." instead of the half-hour allotted.

SOME HUMANITARIANS on Capitol Hill point out that it takes nearly half an hour to get through the line in crowded government cafeterias; that the GAO's recommendation, to add 15 minutes on to the end of the day to make up for dawdled lunches, might cause traffic jams; and that no one has quite been able to figure out how the GAO tabulated the $1.2 billion figure.

The GAO, in any case, seems to be the only place in town where they take lunch seriously. Rep. Jack Brooks (D-Tex.), chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, says, "I don't see Congress acting very shortly on the recommendation. I think it more likely that the agencies will have a varied effort: By varied, I mean some agencies will issue hard directives and still have two-hour lunches. Others will issue mild directives, and people will go home, happy and healthy, at 5:30, having been ready with their coats on and their desks cleared since 5:15."

ON THE HILL, humanitarians and congressmen alike guffawed, recently, when a reporter went around asking them what they did for lunch.

They said they never eat lunch. They said they're too busy to lunch, poor souls, just a hard-boiled egg and humble pie at the cloakroom snack bar just off the House floor. They said they do business at breakfast because the House meets at noon. They said they were out to lunch, ho ho. They said, how long a lunch do reporters take, anyway, ha ha?

"I just had lunch with the Texas delegation in the Speaker's dining room," said Brooks. "Cost me $2.25. Was it any good? Fine ground, fine ground," he said. "I go downtown maybe once a year. It takes too much time. I usually eat in the Capitol cafeteria or the cloakroom."

REP. FRANK HORTON (R-N.Y.) ranking Republican on the Government Operations Committee, said, "As far as I'm concerned, you're talking to the wrong person. I don't eat lunch., I watch my weight. In the professional world, that's the way a lot of buisness is done, but not here." Horton schedules business breakfasts because they are "quick to serve. You don't have to sit around and wait for dessert." Besides, he says, with congressmen taking four-day weekends, "for practical purposes, breakfast on Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday is the only time you can schedule anything."

Rep. Pete McCloskey (R-Calif.),
former presidential candidate and another Government Operations committee member, waxes philosophical about lunch. "What I have seen in the halls of places like HEW or GAO is that the work load expands to fill the day. That's basically why I'm a Republican. I think government will always be that way."

THE CAPITOL HILL lunch, he thinks, was dealt a death blow when the time it took to take roll call was reduced from 25 to 15 minutes."Some of the guys used to go down to The Rotunda restaurant and have an alcoholic lunch. I think that's why some of them are retiring. They've only got 15 minutes to get on the floor now.

Besides, says McCloskey, "There are no good places to eat on Capitol Hill. Eating here can be very depress-

Hill staffers have discovered an escape, even if their bosses haven't. One recent lunchtime the southbound Metro subway was filled with wellstuffed staff on their way back to the Hill after a long lunch downtown. What was a reporter doing on the train at lunchtime? Fasting, boss.

Coffee bonanza speeds Colombianization process

BOGOTA, Colombia - Soaring world coffee prices have resulted in an worth at least $150 million in 1976, but bringing the danger of an imbalance to the economy. To cope with the bonus the Colombian government will spend the money on a bid to achieve controlling interests in foreign companies in the country.

This is in line with the Andean Pact's Decision 24, under which member countries are supposed to control foreign investment and gradually buy up majority shareholdings. For Colombia the quest for a home-controlled industry is not merely a long-term ideal. It is also the avoidance of an immediate economic disaster through uncontrolled inflation.

President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen has been successful in improving the country's economic situation with foreign reserves now at an all-time high. Since the beginning of this year there has been a steady reduction in the rate of increase in the cost of living. But if the new coffee dollars were allowed to circulate at once the effect would be to push up the prices Republic now takes 90 per cent of all of many foodstuffs and consumer earnings on prices over $1.20 per goods, starting a politically dangerous inflationary cycle.

Special funds have been established to absorb the money; one of the funds stops some of the dollars even entering Colombia, and holds more than $35 million abroad.

Since the disastrous frost in Brazil destroyed two-thirds of the crop in July last year (winter in the southern hemisphere) the price for Colombia Milds has soared fron 65 cents to over $1.50 per pound. The Bank of the earnings on prices over $1.20 per pound to hold a special fund for the Coffee Growers Federation for future emergency use - such as crop failure or an abrupt drop in the world price. Leonidas Londono, a major producer and coffee policy theoretician, foresees exceptional profits continuing for five or six years. So what to do with all this money? Treasury Minister Rodrigo Botero has announced the immediate creation of a $50 million credit fund giving low-interest seven-year loans to allow Colombian companies and individuals to put up shares in foreign corporations. He made it clear this is likely to be steadily increased to speed up the "Colombianization" process.

Foreign companies now have close to $400 million invested in Colombia. and at the beginning of the year President Lopez passed a decree ordering all foreign banks to be brought under Colombian control by selling 51 per cent of shares to local interests. He has long wanted to take measures to give his country economic autonomy and to make it "The Japan of South America." The new fund is likely to be an important instrument in attaining this goal.

CARE changes emphasis in 30 years since its b decades has rushed to the scenes of foreign disasters and crises to feed and clothe the distressed and help rebuild their communities.

CARE, a nonprofit organization supported by donations from U.S. and Canadian citizens and government grants, has provided an estimated $1.9 billion worth of aid to 77 countries during the last 30 years.

Originally called Cooperative for American Remittance to Europe, Inc., CARE was created at the end of World War II primarily to guarantee that packages mailed by families in the U.S. would reach friends and loved ones in Europe.

packages - often containing such items as cooking oil, sugar, powered eggs, canned soup and toilet paper were sent to any needy person in Europe for a small fee.

Over the years the CARE package changed. First it contained only food, then food and clothing, then gardening tools, plows to till farmland and bulldozers used to cut through jungles and build roads.

In 1967 the CARE package delivery service was finally phased out after more than 100 million boxes of food, clothing, school supplies and work tools had been distributed throughout the world.

because we felt our resources could be better used in developing basic plans for such things as improving education and increasing agricultural production," said Ronwyn Ingraham, director of the Washington office of CARE. "In Europe the CARE package was obviously a stopgap measure to help those countries return to their normal way of life." As CARE has moved into developing countries such as Bangladesh "the goal was to help people improve their way of life," she said, adding this is preferable to handing out a CARE package of food to a family one month and then coming back each month after that to distribute more food.

"Another way to help that family is to show them how to grow their own food so they can begin to become selfsufficient where food is concerned,' Ingraham said.

In 1975, more than 24 million people in 37 countries were helped by CARE through feeding, increased agricultural production, food-forwork projects and CARE-MEDICO training and treatment health programs. The organization was able to provide $5.13 worth of assistance for every dollar donated by the public.

In addition to its focus on Bangladesh, CARE is also engaged in a food-for-work program that pays poor unemployed workers wheat or other grain for their families in return for labor. CARE workers also distribute high-protein foods at more than 1,500 motherchild health centers and operates a feeding and health education program for primary and preschool children.

CARE also responds quickly in times of natural disasters. Within hours after the recent earthquake in Guatemala took 25,000 lives and devastated 250,000 homes, CARE representatives were dispatched to the announcement of the discovery of the name of Paul Revere's horse. Loyal readers know that its been an object of fran-horses ... You mentioned didn't come up with reference to Larkin, tic historical pursuit here diaries as a possible anything of real in-especially in the list of for more than a decade.

For those not exactly up on the details of this significant matter, a pause for a review. First, it should be pointed out that the question about the name of Revere's horse is the most asked query at the Massachusetts Historical Society. Though it is a small matter, there are many who revere that horse and want to know its name.

Revere, you might remember, rowed across the Charles River from Boston to Charlestown for his ride to Lexington and Concord, April 18, 1775. He was 40 at the time and he rode 15 miles warning the British were coming before he was caught by British soldiers. He was forced to dismount and turn his horse over to a British sergeant. The beast was never heard from again.

We- do know from Revere's own diaries that he "got a horse of Deacon Larkin ... I set off upon a very good horse." That's all we know, other than that many names attributed to the horse have proved to be false either made up out of the cloth or mistakenly handed down through the years with no particular verification.

The only claim with some legitimacy was the name Brown Beauty. It is in a book entitled "Some Descendants of Edward Larkin" (Knickerbocker Press. 1930), which states, "Samuel Larkin, born Oct. 22, 1701, died Oct. 8, 1784; he was a chairmaker, then a fisherman and had horses and stable. He was the owner of Brown Beauty, the mare of Paul Revere's ride mare was loaned at the request of Samuel's son. Deacon John Larkin, and owner

Brown Beauty has some credentials, but furverification is needed to convince any worthy historian. The pursuit continues, and I am thrilled now to announce a new development. It is the emergence of a bona fide scholar who has galloped into the chase for the name of the horse and who has done herculean work of which I am in awe. He is David Stevens of LeRoy, N.Y., a 33-year-old graduate student in librar, sciences. His pursuit started earlier this year as a result of an assignment in a course in government documents in which the instructor asked him to find a poem about Revere's horse which appeared in the Record.

Loyalists of this space would know that the poem was written by James A. Rhodes, current governor of Ohio.

The poem twitted the people of New England for not knowing the name of Revere's horse. It was inserted in the Congressional Record of April 7, 1948. Stevens found that out handily enough Scholar that he is, the subject piqued his interest, and he has been hot on the trail ever since.

Somewhere along the line, Stevens ran into a book that said Revere's horse was named Brown Betty. He discovered that to be a typographical error, that the author meant Brown Beauty and that he had gotten his information from my findings on the subject. Stevens then checked me out, and a recent exchange of correspondence persuades me that Stevens is the man who may yet track down the elusive name of Revere's borrowed steed.

Stevens mentioned that he had gone through the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, histories of Charlestown; he has searched catalogues of manuscripts, dozens of history books and just about depleted the upstate New York libaries on the subject. He writes, "And the newspapers of the time are of no help either. The 'Boston Gazette' for Dec. 17, 1807, includes a short
