'Legionnaire's disease' toll reaches 22

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) - State health officials said today they don't know when they will be able to identify the mystery "legionnaire's disease" that has killed 22 persons who attended an American Legion convention two weeks ago.

rsons who h disease have now recovered and that may aid researchers in tracking down the flu-like agent, state Health Secretary Leonard Bachman told a news conference.

Doctors also do not know how to treat the 122 persons still hospitalized with symptoms of high fever, congested lungs, and chest pains, Bachman said.

"Some are getting antibiotics and some aren't and that hasn't had an effect one way or the other," he said. There are no signs that the outbreak was abating. A 73year-old Philadelphia woman died Tuesday night and a Pittsburgh man died early today, bringing the death toll to 22.

'The disease has not leveled off," said Bachman. "Apparently both the number of deaths and the number of new cases have increased and are increasing."

More than 1,000 federal and state medical researchers have been mobilized to identify the disease. At the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, researchers planned today to examine the first cultures grown from tissue samples taken from victims of the illness.

The cultures could provide a clue. "We are ruling out nothing," said Dr. Walter Dowdle, director of virology at the center. "This could be

All of the known victims of the disease — including two hospitalized in New Jersey and one in New York — attended or were in some way con-nected with a state American Legion vention in P 11 days ago.

It was earlier reported a Con-necticut man also had the disease, but Connecticut health officials later said he does not have it.

The 21st victim, James Sykes, 79, of Pittsburgh, died early today at Presbyterian Hospital in Pittsburgh. Hospital officials said he had attended the convention and showed the same symptoms as other victims.

There has been no confirmed evidence of secondary spread of the disease. Bachman said, but he added that it was still too early to discount the possibility that the disease may be spread to others.

In an interview early today, however, a state health department spokesman said there were six unconfirmed reports of the disease among people in Philadelphia who did not attend the convention.

"That has not been verified," said the spokesman, Bob Costello. "It looks like it might be so." All of the victims have experienced the same flu-like symptoms: headache high fever, congested lungs and chest pains

Bachman said those symptoms are consistent with the swine-type flu that appeared in New Jersey this year, prompting plans for a nationwide immunization program. They are also consistent with viral pneumonia, he

Eastside citizens' group opposes school plans

A group of Midlanders has announced its opposition to all three desegregation plans submitted by the school district to federal court and its intention to seek an injunction against any plan involving "one way busing" of De Zavala Elementary School

The group, which has taken the name Concerned Citizens from the Eastside, released the following statement today:

"It is our contention that all three desegregation plans submitted by the school trustees are unfair, lack good faith and do not integrate the elementary schools of the Midland Independent School District.

"We take this position simply because it calls for one way busing of minority students. We further feel that if busing is to come, it must be both ways. That is, busing students from De Zavala and neighborhood schools to the Westside area and vice

"In addition to the above, we would like to announce that it is our intention to hire an attorney to file an injunction of any desegregation plan that includes one way busing.

"Furthermore, this group will continue a concerted effort to prevent the promotion of any of the plans proposed by the school board."

Mrs. Dorothy Smith, acting chairman of the group, said the organization's original membership of six members, drafted the statement at a meeting Tuesday night which was not open to the public.

She said the group consulted an attorney for legal advice but has not be sought from money-raising functions and from direct donations to pay attorney's fees, Mrs. Smith said.

The group would definitely seek an injunction to prevent implementation of Plan C-2, which involves assigning fifth and sixth grade students now in the De Zavala attendance zone to Bowie and Houston elementary schools, she said.

The school board has announced its readiness to implement C-2, as well as C-1, a plan to cluster the fifth and sixth grades of Washington, Travis and South elementary schools and assign them to a re-opened Bunche Elementary School.

Another plan, J-1, submitted to the court in response to an order to design plans to desegregate five elementary schools, would reorganize the entire elementary system in the city by moving sixth graders into junior high School trustees have promised to appeal any order to implement Plan J-1, which was submitted to the court under protest.

Mrs. Smith said the Concerned
Citizens from the Eastside had made no specific plans to seek injunctions to prevent implementation of either C-1 or J-1, but the group is opposed to all three plans.

The group will meet Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church parish hall. The meeting is open to the public, Mrs. Smith said.

She said the purpose of the meeting is "to get more people in the community involved" and to "make them aware of what's going on."

Mandatory deductibles proposed

AUSTIN (AP) - A state insurance board consultant said today that this year's second car insurance rate increase could be limited to an average of 5.9 per cent if mandatory deductibles were slapped on collision and comprehensive coverage.

Charles Edwards, a consulting actuary from Dallas, proposed a man-datory $50 deductible on comprehen-sive insurance and a $200 deductible on collision coverage.

The 5.9 per cent figure compares with a 19.3 per cent average increase proposed today by the board's staff and 27.9 per cent recommended by the

Today's session was a continuation of the annual auto insurance hearing that began July 15.

In the past three years, the board on several occasions has adopted Ed-wards' recommendations over those of the staff, and there was speculation it would do the same this year.

rates seen $49 higher

AUSTIN—The rate increase proposed by the staff of the State Board of insurance may mean a boost in the cost of auto insurance in Midland and Ector counties, with a fairly typical Midland driver paying $49 a year more for insurance.

That increase would apply to class 1B — no male operator under 25, no unmarried female operator under 21, no operator over 65 and the automobile not used for business, but driven to and from work.

The costs to drivers vary depending on class (with 18 different classifications), type and age of car, bumper discounts, and other factors - as well as which of the 40 rating territories drivers live in.

For the 1B Midland County driver, the changes would be as follows: Bodily injury and property liability.

$100 deductible collision coverage. up $26. Full coverage comprensive, up $9. All coverages combined, up $49.

The same rates would apply in Ector, Howard and Scurry counties. In other counties adjoining Midland, and in most West Texas counties, the changes would be: Bodily injury and property damage, up $10. $100 deductible, up $27. Comprehensive, up $9. All coverages combined, up $46.

An unusually strong distaff cast headed by Marilyn Myrick and Patricia Angelin Skemp as the con-fused lovers set the lively pace for the pastoral fantasy, but understudy Billy Nelson upheld the best traditions of theater with an engaging romp as that most famous sprite of all, "Puck."

And James Bottom-as the comic thespian "Bottom" of course- and his motley troupe often stole the limelight from the lords and ladies and their netherworld neighbors. But the entire production is first-

(My only question about the production and the supportive 'professional repertory" cast is: why aren't there more Texans-and, specifically, Oestexans-on hand? The actors from Michigan and Georgia and Pennsylvania are firstrate, and the Globe program is great experience for them. And I'm not really a Texas Firster, but there must be many fine actors closer to home who could and would love to do Shakespeare at the Globe.)

But Oestexans particularly ought to be represented in the audiences during the remainder of the season closing Aug. 22.

The schedule is easier to keep up with now: Regina Walker McCally's adaptation of the "Life of Christ" on Wednesday nights and Sunday afternoons, Shakespeare's "The Merry Wives of Windsor" Thursday and Saturday nights, and "Dream" on Thursday nights, with evening curtains at 8 and matinees on Sunday at

Big cities not his bag

By ED TODD

Dan Campbell was both bored and terrified by big cities. So he got out. He left his native Michigan and its cold winters and journeyed south to a less bustling and warmer West Texas. And, for a time, he is finding comfort in what pleases him most - the solitude of painting billboards alongside busy highways.

"I just wanted to get away from big cities," Campbell said of his south-ward move. "I wanted to get away from Michigan winters."
On this day, the 26-year-old Campbell was midway in artistically brushing paint — mostly black, red and blue — on the white billboard six miles west of downtown Midland and alongside U.S. Hwy. 80.

The turn of the brush Campbell was deftly wielding had this ultimate objective: to persuade travelers to fly Texas International Airlines on their next trip to Dallas. And the next and the next and the . .

"Dallas — 3 daily nonstops" says the lettering. And below that, in a pitch black backdrop, was the friendly outline of a star-tailed TI twin-jet airliner. Campbell was in serious and deep concentration as he was painting the billboard from the hanging scaffold. Occasionally, his concentration would be broken briefly by the shrieking sound of squealing tires along the highway. He would cast a piercing glance — almost a stare — to his left. Then he would go back to his work.

He said nothing. Hummed nothing.

Whistled nothing. Then, after awhile, he would lower himself from the scaffold, walking along the billboard platform, and would climb down the ladder and onto the ground with the nonchalance of a naturally nimble cat. He backed off to examine his

Second urban parks study under way in Midland

The second phase of a national urban parks study got under way Tuesday with Midland park enthusiasts and representatives of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation(BOR) and the Department of the Interior kicking around ideas for the use of open spaces.

Mike Fairbanks of the BOR and Derek Hambly of the Department of the Interior said the first phase, which began late last month, was to collect data. Midland was chosen as one of 28 cities nationwide to be part of an Interior Department urban parks study this summer and fall.

The second phase was to analyze the data and present ideas and alternatives regarding methods of establishing and operating urban

City parks superintendent Wayne Kohout added that the master plan for parks in the city "calls for a lake to be constructed in the Hogan Park vacinity."

Midland County Judgy Barbara Culver noted the "get-up-and-go" of Midlanders. She said, "Our people are our greatest resource. We've made the best we can out of our environment. For us here to sit down and say what we've heard people say they want in Midland is difficult. We need to say this area is going to develop and some portions should be segreated out to meet the needs as we grow into them."

Judge Culver added that the city could build a lake, "but that's part of the fun — going somewhere. Midlanders are mobile and enjoy this sort of thing. She said the area between Midland and Odessa (since both cities are growing more in a "together" direction) should be set aside to develop into a recreational area.

Viking's robot arm jams for second time

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - A balky robot arm on the Viking 1 lander has jammed for the second time, thwarting scientists' efforts to make an organic analysis of the highly active Martian soil that could determine if it

A decision on how to get the arm moving again was expected today.

Viking officials reported Tuesday night that the mechanical arm used to collect soil for experiments in the lander's sophisticated automated laboratory had not completed its programmed accent after digging into the surface.

One of the laboratory instruments, a gas chromatagraph mass spectrometer, "did not receive a soil sample today," said Viking spokesman Larry King. The extension arm reached out 95 inches, dug up some soil and retracted about six inches before it stopped, he said.

Viking officials met during the night to determine what might have caused the arm to jam. It had also jammed during preliminary testing, but scientists then found a way to dislodge a pin that blocked the arm from moving. Frank Bristow, Viking news chief, said scientists believed the problem might be in a failsafe mechanism of the lander designed to halt the arm in case of some related problem. The arm had previously delivered soil to two other experiments using separate mechanical sequences.

Bristow said that Viking scientists have theorized that in order for life to exist on Mars the rust-colored soil must contain organic molecules. The organic experiment that was temporarily stymied by the stuck arm would help to determine whether such compounds are present.

Meanwhile, Viking scientists said they now believe an unexpected abundance of oxygen produced from the Martian soil in another of Viking's test cells probably was not the result of life forms.

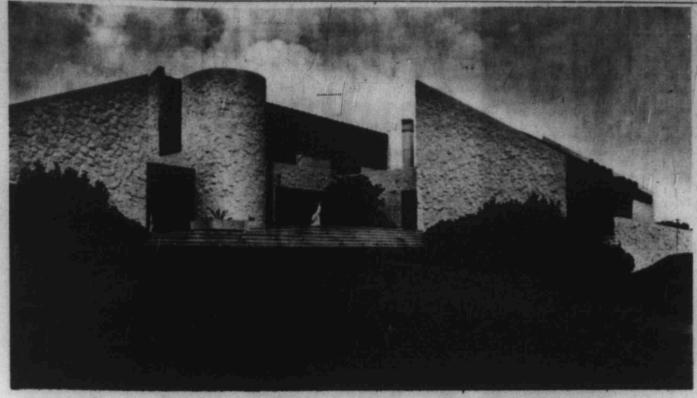

The researchers said Tuesday the unexplained generation of gas from a soil sample had almost ceased.

"We are gravitating closer toward a nonbiological explanation" of the gas production, said Dr. Harold P. Klein, head of the Viking biology feam. "But we are not 100 per cent sure it's not biological."

The strange gas emission from the soil sample probably resulted from a chemical process in which surface oxygen, released by sunlight, decom-posed a liquid food added to the soil in the test cell, scientists said.

At first there had been speculation that the emission was caused by some life form breaking down the nutrient.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Millionaire Thomas Cullen Davis, charged with two counts of murder and two counts of attempted murder, was free today under $80,000 bond. The oil industry heir was charged in a shooting spree early Tuesday at the mansion of his estranged wife, Priscilla Davis, 35, who was wounded.

Police identified the dead as Stan Farr, 30, a former basketball star at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, and Andrea Lee Wilborn, 12, Mrs. Davis' daughter by a previous marriage.

Mrs. Davis had often been seen with Farr. She filed for divorce from Davis in July 1974, but those proceedings have been stalled over property settlement. Davis is president of Stratoflex, Inc., makers of oil field equipment fittings. The couple married eight years ago.

Mrs. Davis was reported in fair condition at a Fort Worth hospital, suffering from a gunshot wound in the stomach. Also wounded, and in critical condition, was Gus Gavrel

Davis was arrested at a private home across town from the shooting scene. Justice of the Peace W. W. Matthews set bond, and honored a prosecution motion to have Davis examined by a Dallas psychiatrist.

Davis refused to answer questions of Dr. John Holbrook, the psychiatrist, and returned to Fort Worth Tuesday afternoon to post the Police recounted at a news con-ference how they said the killings occurred:

Mrs. Davis and Farr returned around midnight to the darkened mansion, where they found the body of Andrea Wilborn in the basement, shot once in the chest. A gunman tried to force the couple into the basement.
Farr was gunned down and Mrs.
Davis was wounded.

About that time, Mrs. Davis stumbled from the home. A neighbor, Clifford Jones, said Mrs. Davis ran "about a quarter of a mile," arriving at Jones' house in a semihysterical patio door and broken glass when they arrived at the Davis mansion. Farr's body lay in the kitchen and Andrea's body in the basement.

Officers said Davis surrendered meekly when ordered. They said five weapons were found in his car.

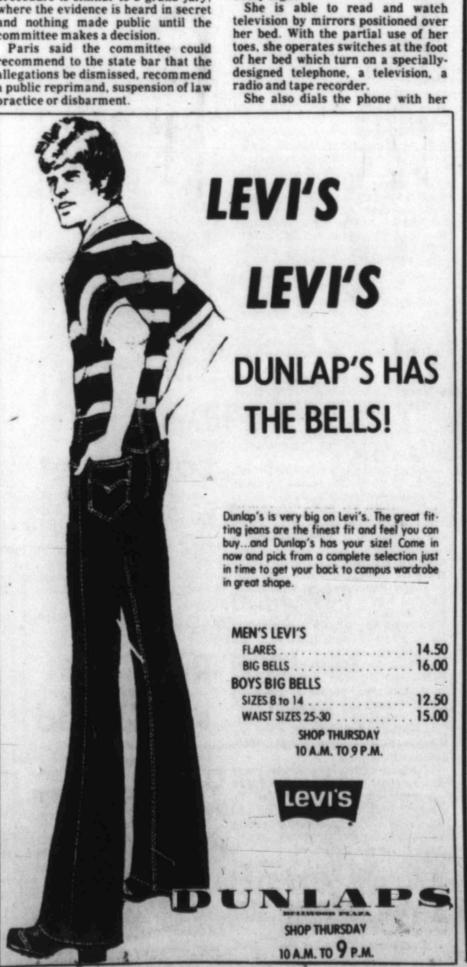

After his arrest Davis first ap-peared before Municipal Court Judge Jerome Hennigan at a preliminary hearing. Hennigan said Davis was "red-eyed and haggard looking, but he wore a very nice suit and was clean-shaven. He didn't have anything to say except 'yes' when I asked him if he understood the nature of the case against him."

Observers said Davis was dressed in a sports outfit Tuesday afternoon when he posted the bond.

Hemphill backs Southwest bid

AUSTIN - Odessa Mayor Dan Hemphill testified Tuesday in favor of Southwest Airlines' application before the Texas Aeronautics Commission, saying that current air passenger service offered to Midland and Odessa is "not frequent enough — and quite often overloaded."

"You can't get commitments to get on (an interstate carrier)," he said, adding that Southwest would provide a varied schedule, low fares, and an opportunity for residents of Midland and Odessa to travel to other parts of the state.

Southwest currently serves, Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, and Harlingen and is seeking authority to serve Midland-Odessa, Lubbock, El Paso, Austin and Corpus Christi.

The city of Odessa could also save money on the travel expenses of its employes. Hemphill said, since they often must travel to Austin and Dallas on businss trips. And because Southwest flies to Love Field at Dallas, service from Midland-Odessa to Dallas would be more convenient to downtown Dallas than the services offered by interstate carriers which land at Dallas/Fort Worth Regional Airport, Hemphill testified.

Although he admitted that a reduction of interstate service in the area could be "conceivably detrimental" to Midland-Odessa, Hemphill said he does not think that Continental Airlines or Texas International Airlines will curtail their services in the Midland-Odessa market if Southwest is allowed to take on more intrastate passengers.

George Berry of Midland, a consultant to banks and savings and loan institutions, said Southwest service would be valuable to businessmen in the Midland area.

Berry, who said he has made 57 business flights since January, noted that most of those trips have been within the state, primarily to Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, the Rio Grande Valley, Lubbock and El Paso.

"The friendly service of Southwest is certainly contrasted to the service I have received from Texas In ternational and Continental,"

"Their service is speedy, and they're more often on time than th carriers currently serving the area."

The fares Southwest proposes, h added, are lower than those charged by the state's current carriers, and Southwest plans to serve Dallas Love Field rather than Dallas-Fort Wortl Regional Airport are more convenien than flights offered to DFW by Con tinental and Texas International.

State Rep. Wilhelmina Delco c Austin also testified in support of th application.

Frank Erwin, former chairman o the University of Texas Board o Regents, also said he favors the Southwest application because i would be a 50 per cent savings in air transportation costs for student: attending the University of Texas a Austin.

According to university figures Erwin said, 22 per cent of the more than 43,000 students at the university come from home towns that would be served by Southwest if its application is approved - including 685 students from the Midland-Odessa area.

"If this application is granted and Southwest implements the flight it proposes at the rates it proposes. almost 10,000 students - or almost one in four - can take advantage of those rates."

University officials can also save money on their official business trips around the state if Southwest's service is implemented in Austin, Erwin said, and the capital city and university system would become more accessible to all Texans.

Other witnesses at Tuesday's hearing included municipal and business representatives from Lubbock, Austin, Houston and Hidalgo. Southwest is scheduled to call two more public witnesses -Larkin Lay and Decker Dawson from Midland on Wednesday before the hearing is recessed until Aug. 16.

"My father said, 'Well, would you like to learn how to paint?

Become a billboard painter or, if you like, artist?

The son's answer was to become a 'yes." And his father, Cecil Campbell, was in an ideal situation to help him break into billboard-painting work. The older Campbell is an executive of a Lansing-based outdooradvertising business that pretty well covers the state.

"In 32 years," the son said of his father, "he has done everything (in billboard advertising). Now he's vice president. I guess it's true," Campbell reflected, "if you stay with something long enough, you can get some place."

So the younger Campbell, who had worked as a mailman, decided to give his father's vocation a try. "Up until that time, I hadn't done any painting," he said, "and didn't know if I had any artistic inclination.' He soon found out. "And what better job can you have than working outdoors all the time?" For six years, mostly in solitude. Campbell painted billboards in the Lansing area. And, again, he remembered his father:

"My father's been in the business. well, he's 50, and he's been in it since he was 18. And he convinced me with this type of trade you can go anywhere in the country and find a

So, young Campbell packed up. He was ready to leave that cold Northern climate and the "big city" of Lansing for a slower-paced. Southern-styled living and for a cut in pay. "I'm terrified of big cities."

Campbell said. He mentioned crime-riddled Detroit which, at 1.5 million people, is about 10 times more populous than Lansing. And Lansing, which lies to the northwest of Detroit, is about twice the size of Midland "And it (Lansing) is turning into a 'big city' - crime. drugs, everything negative is on the ncrease. "I can remember the time when Lansing was a beautiful city Now, it's three-fourths ghetto. He doesn't want to go back. Rather, for now, he prefers Midland - his of Midland. However, he said that "It seems like many people my age don't like it" despite the city's lack of much of the "negative." They, apparently, long for the social environment and the things-to-do offering of larger, more cosmopolitan cities.

"I came from a city where there was all those things to do, and I was bored with that . .

As it has turned out/ Campbell has given up a bustling, do-most-anything big city life for the friendliness of notso-big a city called Midland.

"Here," he said, "you can say 'Hello' to anyone and then they will say 'Hello' back and pass the time of day." Not so, up at Detroit or Lansing or, let alone, New York City, which

"People are more personal here, and the living's a lot slower." he observed.

So, billboard artist Campbell climbed back onto his suspended scaffold and resumed his day's work And he sees significance in his task a billboard-less highway makes for a most boring drive.

What's more, he recalls with nostalgia those bygone days of the Burma-Shave roadside rhyming signs that gave verse and an unboring lightheartedness to millions of travelers across the country.

"Remember? Does your husband Misbehave Grunt and grumble Rant and rave Shoot the brute some Burma-Shave.

Carter attacks Ford on vetoes

MANCHESTER, N.H. - Jimmy Carter Tuesday accused what he called the "Nixon-Ford administration" of governing by "vetoes and not vision ...scandal and not stability ... rhetoric and not reason 'WIN' buttons and empty promises instead of progress and prosperity."

In an attack that was both slashing and scornful, he also accused President Ford of "neglecting the basic responsibilities of leadership" in order to chase "an ex-movie actor around the country in search of convention delegates."

The distinctly partisan assault on the Republicans - staged in the state that gave him his first primary election victory six months ago contrasts sharply with the low profile Carter has kept back home in Plains, Ga., since he accepted the Democratic presidential nomination

Carter's impromptu remarks at a noontime rally here preceded his prepared speech on proposals to strengthen the American family, in which he charged that existing governmental policies are "antifamily" and urged a broad range of specific reforms as well as a pattern of decision making on all levels that includes what he called a "family impact analysis."

His prescription for a "pro-family" policy included "comprehensive program of family planning" to discourage illegitimacy, encourage adoption and reduce abortions, closer relations between families and schools, a national health care program, attention to the needs of single-parent families, changes in Social Security rules that prevent many elderly couples from marrying and a nationwide day care program along the lines advocated by his running mate, Sen. Walter F. Mon-

He said tax policies, the welfare system, urban renewal, and even transfer and assignment policies of the armed forces must be retooled with family stability in mind.

Carter's comments on family planning, stressing alternatives to abortion and making no mention of contraceptives, appeared aimed at overcoming misgivings about him among Catholic voters.

In his speech, he announced that Joseph A. Califano Jr., a Washington lawyer and a leading domestic adviser in the Johnson Administration, would be joining his campaign to assist in developing familystrengthening policies.

for the rally and a fund-raiser benefiting the New Hampshire Democratic party. fighting words and style — which he himself likened to Harry Truman appeared aimed at squelching charges that he is overconfidently coasting through the summer on his early lead in the polls.

"To the extent that anyone thought we might sit on our lead and play cautious politics," said Carter press secretary Jody Powell, "I think this (speech) would answer any

In his speech before about 1,500 people at a downtown shopping center, Carter disputed suggestions that he suffers from the same preelection overconfidence as Thomas Dewey did in his bid to unseat Truman in 1948.

"The Republican party, as it was in 1948, is still a party of backwardness and a lack of progress," said Carter, who told interviewers during the Democratic convention last month that he intended to downplay partisanship in the fall campaign. The Democratic party, on the other hand, said Carter, is "one of progress, looking to the future."

He made only passing reference to the contest between President Ford and Ronald Reagan for the Republican presidential nomination, but it was a stinging one. "In the last few months, we've seen an almost unbelievable spectacle in Washington - the President of the United States, deeply concerned about an ex-movie actor traveling all over the nation to get a handful of delegates here, a handful of delegates there," he said.

While such campaigning is "okay," added Carter, the President has been "neglecting the basic responsibilities of leadership in governing the greatest nation on earth.

His reference to the "Nixon-Ford administration" was not new, but his continued use of the term signals an apparent attempt to emphasize the link between the two presidents. Carter also continued to use the word "scandal," although he has said he will not try to make the Nixon pardon an issue in the campaign

Rescue efforts bog down

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Efforts to evacuate more wounded from the mate. Tal Zaatar camp and an armistice to end the 16-month-old Lebanese civil war bogged down today.

An International Red Cross convoy to the besieged Palestinian refugee camp in Christian east Beirut was delayed leaving the Moslem sector. Security sources said Red Cross delegate Jean Hoefliger and Arab League mediator Hassan Sabri Kholi were having trouble getting the Christians to renew the temporary cease-fire which allowed the removal of 91 casualties from Tal Zaatar on Hoefliger said he planned a convoy of 15 to 20 vehicles today and hoped to evacuate at least 150 wounded. A Swedish doctor in Tal Zaatar reported there were 4,000 wounded in the camp and said 1,400 had been killed since the siege began six weeks ago. The convoy of nine trucks and two ambulances Tuesday was the first the Red Cross had been able to get the Christians to let pass. Hoefliger said he hoped to arrange more limited cease-fires on a daily basis until all the wounded were evacuated. But Christian leaders raised doubts that this could be arranged.

Reagan to face tough questions in Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) - Ronald Reagan, launching his final preconvention campaign swing, can expect "tough questions" from the crucial, uncommitted Mississippi delegation about the man he wants as his running mate, an aide says.

The conservative former California governor planned his first public appearance here today with liberal Sen. Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania. Reagan has made no public appearances or statements since announcing on July 26 that he wanted Schweiker as his vice presidential candidate if he captures the Republican presidential nomination.

Reagan is visiting five crucial states where he hopes to firm up his once-solid support in the South against recent inroads by President Ford and exploit new opportunities in the Northeast. It is his last scheduled campaign outing before the Republican National Convention Aug. 16 in Kansas City.

Billy Mounger, Reagan's Mississippi campaign chairman, said Reagan and Schweiker would meet with delegates in private soon after arriving in Jackson. The two also planned to meet tonight with the 37 members of the Alabama GOP delegation, who are committed to Mounger said Reagan would have to convince delegates that Schweiker is needed on the ticket to ensure a

Reagan's chief aide, Mik e Deaver, said Reagan would hold 18 t.o 20 hours of private meetings with delegates over the next four days, and stage joint news conferences with Schweiker in Mississippi and Pennsylvania.

Most party leaders had considered Reagan the majority choice of Mississippi's 30 delegates and 30 alternates until he picked Schweiker. A month ago, Reagan predicted a sweep of the delegation after a warm reception here.

The meeting was proposed by the Wednesday Group, an organization of about 35 moderate Republican congressmen.

Although Connally was acquitted of bribery charges in a trial that grew out of the scandal, Cohen said Ford should study evidence that was not admitted at the trial. The evidence includes the transcript of a White House tape of a conversation in which Connally promised Nixon he would have at his discretion "a very substantial allocation of oil in Cohen said the tape was among several that the House Judiciary Committee subpoenaed, but the White House failed to turn over before the impeachment inquiry ended. A transcript of the tape became a matter of public record in Connally's case only after his trial had ended.

Today, only 75 people live in Copperopolis, in the Calaveras County foothills of the High Sierra 40 miles east of Stockton.

There are three saloons, a firehouse, a school, a 115-year-old post office, a church built in 1863 which serves as the community auditorium, and a scattering of old

"Mr. Hanchett had a grand vision about the property," she explained.

Libertarian candidate has recognition problem

By THOMAS COLLINS

It's not easy running for President of the United States if Walter Cronkite doesn't pay any attention to you. Yet that is what Roger L. MacBride has been doing for most of this year, flying from one state to another in a vintage DC-3 and espousing the somewhat iconoclastic views of the Libertarian Party.

Neither Cronkite nor the rest of the national news media have given him much coverage, but he gets a pretty good play from local newspapers and TV stations wherever he goes, and he is not discouraged. Any day now, he is sure, there will be a call from "Meet the Press," and his candidacy will

MACBRIDE, 46, who is in-dependently wealthy, is experiencing the usual difficulties of a presidential candidate who is not a household name and represents a party that is younger than his 6-year-old daughter. The Libertarian Party, which fiercely opposes governmental controls of any kind, was formed in 1972 but qualified to run a presidential candidate in only two states that year. This year, Mac-Bride says, it is already on the ballot in 17 states, and he anticipates being eligible in 40 states. As soon as the dust settles on the Republican National Convention next month, he says, the news media will wake up to the fact that he is someone to contend

Right now, he said in a telephone interview from the La Costa resort in San Diego, where he was resting between campaign trips, "if I stood naked in Saks Fifth Avenue, it might rate a mention in New York." But, he added, "I'm not frustrated or impatient. It's perfectly normal. It takes a while for eyes to open."

MacBride does not like to think of himself as a fringe candidate but as a member of a party that is growing steadily and eventually will replace the Republican Party, which the Libertarians consider dead.

THE ESSENCE of libertarianism. he said, "is our conviction that we own our own lives. The government has no right to be interfering with us." Translated into policy, this would mean that a Libertarian administration would adopt a noninterventionist foreign policy, fire Henry Kissinger, allow free enterprise to compete with the U.S. Postal Service, deregulate the broadcast industry to promote free speech, and do away with such victimless crimes as gambling, drug abuse and consentual sex between unmarried persons by repealing various

As he told one interviewer recently, "We're updating the ideas of America's first Libertarian revolution in 1776.

The party's headquarters is in Washington, D.C.., and it claims organizations in all states, although Ed Crane, the party's national chairman, concedes that some of them exist only on paper. There are no membership rolls, but Crane said that there are 10,000 financial contributors whose small donations, plus about $75,000 of MacBride's personal money, have kept the campaign alive.

MacBride, who graduated from Princeton University and Harvard Law School, was elected to the Vermont legislature in 1962 and later moved to Charlottesville, Va., where he lives in a house designed by one of his heroes, Thomas Jefferson. He speculated successfully in the stock market and in Vermont land and became a co-creator of the television series "The Little House on the Prairie," through a life-long association with Rose Wilder Lane, whose mother, Laura Ingalls Wilder, wrote the books on which the series was media campaign this fall if the can raise enough money. He has already spent $20,000 for a five-minute commercial that ran on CBS on July 16 and which received some attention from the news wire services.

But the key is the network news shows, which so far are unconvinced that his candidacy is news. Said one CBS executive, "He has to prove that he has a constituency, and so far he hasn't done it."

New indexes show economic recovery

By HOBART ROWEN The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Economic recovery in the United States and four other major industrial nations appears to be picking up steam, according to new composite indexes developed by the National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER).

The NBER is a private, non-profit research group which engages in studies of business cycles.

A "co-incident index of economic performance putting together in one figure current data on production, income, employment, unemployment and trade volume shows that economic recovery in Canada and the United States is farther advanced than in Japan or Western Europe.

The U.S. index dropped 12 points during the recession, rose 10 points by May 1976 and thus recovered 83 per cent of the decline, according to the NBER. Canada's recovery percentage is 100, France's 8, West Germany's 25, Italy's 10, Japan's 56, United Kingdom, 0.

A "leading" index composite, in-corporating statistics that are sup-posed to anticipate swings in the business cycle, shows future prospects good for Canada, which again has an index figure of 100, for West Germany, 100, for Japan, 75; for the United Kingdom, 67; and for the United States, 93.

Leading indicator indexes are not yet available for France and Italy, but NBER said the prospects there were favorable for continued recovery.

The advantage of the NBER's new composite index showing recovery percentage to date is that it presents a more balanced picture than given by the index of industrial production, usually the only statistic available without delay.

The production index, NBER points out, outperforms the composite in many countries. But NBER economists Georffrey H. Moore and Philip A. Klein note: "A substantial recovery in industrial production may not reduce the unemployment rate much."

To illustrate the difference between the production index and the NBER's new composite co-incident index, industrial production in France by April 1976 had shown a 65 per cent recovery. But the NBER composite index for France was up only 8 per cent. For the United States, the comprable figures were 93 and 83 per cent; for the United Kingdom, 27 per cent and zero.

In all countries, the reduction in unemployment has lagged behind other mesures of recovery. In the United States, the peak recession jobless rate has been cut by only 33 per cent — and this is by far the best record of the seven countries. The unemployment recovery has been only 8 per cent in Canada, 19 per cent in West Germany, 18 per cent in Japan, and nil in France, Italy, and

Pirates find termites having lunch on bats

By The Associated Press

Four runs in the last 38 innings, four osses in the last five games for the Pittsburgh Pirates. It seems there are termites in the Lumber Yard.

That's what people were calling the Pirates earlier in the season, when the power-laden lineup was hitting baseballs out of sight and first place wasn't 13 games away. But in the last eight games, three of which have gone extra innings, just 17 Pittsburgh runs have crossed in 83 innings.

TUESDAY NIGHT, Don Kessinger of St. Louis drove in more runs than the Pirates could manage in their doubleheader, though Pittsburgh managed to beat the Cardinals 2-1 in before aropping nightcap 4-2.

Pittsburgh's opening-game triumph went to Jim Rooker, who pitched a six-hitter and drove in a seventhinning run with a sacrifice fly.

Fisk, Burleson may sign today

Fisk and shortstop Rick Burleson were expected to finally get around to signing their 1976 baseball contracts after the Boston Red Sox arrive in Detroit today for a series against the

The two, who have been playing so far this season without contracts, came to terms on multi-year agreements, the American League club announced here Tuesday. Team officials said the two reached agreement in telephone talks from Cleveland where the Red Sox had games Monday and Tuesday Jerry Kapstein sat in on the talks as player representative, the team reported.

The signings left only outfielder Fred Lynn to come to terms on a current contract. General Manager Dick O'Connell said he expects a Lynn agreement in a few days.

No details on the contracts were announced managers might have lifted Rooker for a pinchhitter in hopes of getting the run home. But the way Pittsburgh bats have been flailing and failing lately, Manager Danny Murtaugh let Rooker swing away.

"I had no idea of hitting for him because I knew he could make contact with the ball and probably get the run in," said Murtaugh. "I'm not that bad a hitter," added Rooker, who entered the game batting .238. "I can usually make contact."

But it's usually the Al Olivers and Willie Stargells who drive the runs in. Pirates batting coach Bob Skinner knows all about it.

"I don't think we've been pressing in the last few games because of our precarious position in the Eastern Division race," said Skinner. "It is more a case of Al Oliver-who had been leading the league in hitting-and Frank Taveras, who had been on a hot streak, cooling down," said Skinner.

"With those two unable to get on base and with Willie Stargell striking out several times in those games (back-to-back shutouts by Montreal and St. Louis), we just weren't able to get on the scoreboard.

PITTSBURGH went 27 innings without a run before Rooker scored Bill Robinson from third with his sacrifice fly. "It didn't surprise me Danny didn't send up a pinch hitter," Rooker said. Catcher Duffy Dyer broke the 1-1 tie with two outs in the ninth, driving a Bill Greif pitch out of the park after an unusual conversation with Cardinals backstop Joe Ferguson.

"When I walked to the plate, recalled Dyer, "I told Joe this would be a bad time to go into extra innings, it being the first game of a doubleheader. Joe just laughed, then I hit that fastball into the leftfield stands" and into the Lumber Yard the Pirates remember longingly.

Kessinger, who plated the St. Louis run with an eighth-inning double in the opener, drove in all four in the nightcap.

"Getting 14 quarterback sacks by the end of the year would please me.' said Furness, a fifth-year defensive lineman, during a break in a recent Pittsburgh Steelers workout.

In exhibition victories over the College All-Stars and the New Orleans Saints, the 6-foot-4, 255-pounder has four sacks, as many as any three other members of the Steelers front

BUT THAT front four provides the major obsacle to Furness achieving his ambition. As the team's fifth defensive lineman, his playing time is usually determined by the condition of the starters.

Furness has been splitting playing time this preseason with All-Pro tackle Joe Greene, who is recovering from a pinched shoulder nerve that sidelined him much of last season.

"It takes a freak accident where someone gets hurt for me to get a chance to get in there," Furness admitted. "Our front four is the most consistent in football. It's hard to do anything about that."

When Greene missed four games last year and saw only limited action in four others, Furness stepped right

HE STARTED six regular season games and the first-round playoff game against Baltimore, and ended up third on the team with 61/2 quarterback sacks, behind tackle Ernie Holmes and end Dwight White.

"Greene and White helped me with my technique," said Furness. "I'd say that my technique is a combination of theirs."

A fifth-round pick from Rhode Island in 1972, Furness spent most of his first season on the taxi squad. "If it wasn't for the special teams, I

Yankees feed Fidrych ration of bird seed

Mark Fidrych is usually the main attraction when he pitches, but the New York Yankees won't be upstaged by the Birdman of Detroit.

"bird seed", Fidrych was feeding the Yankees fastballs. Both Roy White and Oscar Gamble hit them out of the park, helping New York to a dramatic 4-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers and their flashy rookie.

"I would have loved to beat the Yankees," said Fidrych. "The crowd didn't come out to see me. They came out to see the Yankees beat me.'

WHATEVER THE crowd of 44,909 came out for at Yankee Stadium, they weren't disappointed. They not only got to see their Yankees win, but they also saw Fidrych's showy routine of talking to baseballs, bouncing around the field like a berserk billiard ball and, yes, even eating beans off the

Stram's honeymoon ends fast

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — New Orleans Saints owner John Mecom Jr. abruptly ended the honeymoon and slammed the checkbook on Coach Hank Stram Tuesday.

Stram has made a point of displaying "first-class" additions to the Saints' environment since he took on the job of revitalizing the National Football League club.

"As long as the money was being spent towards football, I had no ob-jection," Mecom said. "But when it comes to these frivolous things that have been going on with the cherry Mecom called Stram onto the carpet Tuesday morning — and Stram was visibly shaken by the owner's remarks. His only comment was: "I'm flabbergasted!"

the plush facilities built by and for baseball's Los Angeles Dodgers is estimated at $500,000 by the Saints. The figure didn't include some of the Stram ordered four additional goal posts to make sure each practice field had a complete set, the rationale being that a football practice field ought to look like one. The posts cost $4,700 each. The television set and the general are in Stram's office at shag carpet are in Stram's office at Saints headquarters. The personal staff is his two administrative assistants.

The "20 other things" include everything from glow-in-the-dark parking signs for players to a request for three charter buses to take the team from training camp to the Vero Beach airport — four blocks away.
"Even if the Saints sell out every game this season, we stand to lose $1.3 million," Mecom said. "Now, not all of that is Hank's fault. Some of it is just the rising cost of doing business. "All of this stuff about football being a tax write-off is just stuff. Our

The Saints were held without a first down most of the opening half while the Steelers were rolling up a three-touchdown lead. When the Steeler reserves took over, the Saints managed to score twice and lose 20-14.

"I just can't accept that rationale. I'm not trained to think like a coach. I know one damned thing — losing looks the same whether you're spending $500,000 or $2 million. I can't stomach it either way."

Midland High's James Zachery proves individuality

BY TERRY WILLIAMSON

I think it can safely be said that Midland High's James Zachery played an exceptionally fine game last Thursday in the 42nd annual Texas High School North-South All-Star football game held in the

His game stats verify the point. The linebacker, who is headed for Texas A&M in two short weeks, rocked the South rushers with six head busting tackles. He was also credited with six

That was only a good starting point, however. Zach, as his teammates call him, also broke up a pass, recovered a fumble and caught a 29-yard pass in his only offensive series. The pass was nullified, however, when James was called for offensive pass interference.

Anyone would be proud to claim such a showing in any All-Star game, but he left even a greater impression on those that were there for the week of the game. ZACHERY WAS not formed from any existing mold. He is an in-dividual; and as far as I'm concerned, individuals are what makes the world of sports breathe freshness into our lives. He turned out to be a goodwill ambassador for Midland. Zachery received praises from virtually every corner. Coaches, fans, sports writers and teammates were all impressed with him. If the most valuable player award had been divided into offensive and defensive catagories, Zachery would have won the defensive honors hands down. Abilene Cooper's Ray Overton, who coached the North team was one of the first to sing the praises of James Zachery. He later proved he meant what he said when he made Zachery a co-captain for the game.

"ZACH IS a super ball player, but that is not the most important thing," Overton said. "He is a unique individual, and he has his way with his teammates. They all respect him, and that is hard to find. I think he is a natural born leader, and I would like

Zachery's A&M coach-to-be, Emory Bellard, is also one of Zachery's fans. "He was definitely one of the best linebackers we saw while scouting last fall. We were really pleased to get him. He also has leadership traits that we like to see on the field. You saw him out there, he was always picking that defense up'" Bellard said. One Texas Tech recruiter, who wished to remain nameless, said, 'We wanted him in the worst way. I think he will be an all-conference linebacker in the Southwest Conference if injuries don't slow him. We rated him as all-state-plus."

THROUGH IT all, James never changed. As some like to say, he knows where his head is, and is full of confidence in the future.

Zachery praises his former coach John Reddell. "Coach Reddell taught me a lot. He teaches good technique, and his assistant coaches knew a lot. That's why I think I will be ahead of some of the other players when I get to college. I know I've got a lot to learn, but I've learned some things that I will never forget," Zachery

"The people of Midland have also been good to me. I'm proud to be from Midland, but my father has taught me more than anyone. He never stood in the way of what I wanted, but he helped me to see what had to be done if I wanted to succeed. I think he is the sure to say that."

GALBERSON ZACHERY, who is James' father, is no stranger to Midland High grid fans. He had five sons that played for the Bulldogs before James even suited up in the Purple threads. James, however, is the first one to make the Texas All-Star team, which is surely an oversight in view of the fact that all have been better than your average

Those words come from a lady that has been hailed more than once as "Fort Smith's No. 1 Fan."

IMOGENE KROPP seems a little embarrassed when she is referred to as No. 1 fan and was even hesitant about this story being written.

She's a regular subscriber to season tickets for Northside High School, Southside High School, Westark Community College and University of Arkansas games.

to keep up with four different teams that play a couple of times a week," Mrs. Kropp said about her favorite sport, basketball. "But it used to be worse. My husband and I used to even take in the sandlot games."

Even though the basketball months are harried, it doesn't take a second guess to know that the No. 1 Fan thoroughly enjoys every moment. "I'm just elated when the season finally gets here" Mrs. Kropp takes what she calls her "roost" in the stands and can cheer or razz with the best of 'em.

AT BASKETBALL games her favorite "roost" is next to the scorer's table. Why that particular spot? "So I it's a call she doesn't like.

The fussing is the good natured type, but Mrs. Kropp said she has been offered the whistle more than once. "One referee came, over one night and tried to explain the rule to me. I told him to just go on. I knew the rules better than he did."

Most of the referees know Mrs. Kropp and it's a familiar sight to see them shaking hands with her before the game starts.

THERE IS little doubt that Mrs. Kropp does know the rules of sports they have been a part of her life for more than seven decades. It was at age six when the No. 1 Fan first became interested in sports, perhaps because of family tradition. Her father played for Vanderbilt in the

"When I was about seven, Gene Davidson (who played football for the Razorbacks) used to take me to Fayetteville with him to see the games," she said. "My mother would take us to the train station in our Model T and we could catch the 6 a.m. train to Fayetteville. After the game it was back to the train station and back to Fort Smith.

"I can't remember much about the games, that was about 1915 or 1916, but it seems like they played in an open field and I can't recall seeing any stands. But to a little girl the crowds looked huge."

after she left the halls of ivy. For many years Mrs. Kropp and her "old wooden station wagon" could be seen on the main thoroughfares of noron the main thoroughtares of nor-thwest Arkansas and southeast Oklahoma. "We would load up with pep squad members and here we would go," she said. The old station wagon became somewhat of a trademark in local sports circles. "We drove it for years. Finally it got so old the wood would fall off when you slammed the door. I noticed a few tears when I told the pep squad girls I had to trade it off."

THE TEAM that stands out most in Mrs. Kropp's mind was a junior high basketball team of 1948 that got beat in the semifinals of a Little Rock tour-the coach's car pooped out," she said:

"Rather than miss and forfeit the game, I asked the coach to let me take the starting vie players on to the game. I stopped at Conway to send a mechanic back to the stranded coach and paid him a dollar to hurry. We didn't know what we were going to do if the coach failed to get there by game time, but we weren't about to forfeit. To our relief, he made it to the game just a few minutes before the game started."

"During the tournament my son Bill ran up to me, pointed out a player and said, watch him, he's really a good player. His name was Brooks Robinson. I always thought he was better at basketball than baseball."

The interviewer was leaving when he said, "I'll see you at the next

White-collar pay may catch up to inflation rate

NEW YORK - It's nice to wear a white collar to work - as long as no one notices the fraying.

The officeworkers have had a grimy time throughout the '70s, trying to live the good life while inflation kicks dust in their faces. Unless they have received some decent promotions, white-collar workers have been watching their real income being sliced by about 2 per cent a year since 1972.

It is a marked contrast to the '60s. when white collars always managed to stay ahead of the inflation rate. In the early part of that decade their fast as the cost of living.

But if — and it's a big if — the pace of inflation keeps slowing, there's a chance that this year the white-collar workers may get some small chance to catch up. An analysis of the latest preliminary survey conducted by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics shows that in the period from March, 1975 to March, 1976 white-collar pay was up 7 per cent while the cost of living was

A study of the figures shows that the problem has resulted more from a spendthrift economy than from cheap bosses. In the previous year salaries rose a hefty 9 per cent but inflation for that period was about 12 per cent.

From the latest survey from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which covers white collar employes working for private concerns, here's a run-down of who's making what in some of the most popular occupations:

Lawyers: The survey covered those working for companies rather than for themselves and showed that those "performing entry-level work in-volving clearly applicable precedents and well-established facts" earned an average of $15,413 a year while those at the top (what the government calls a Grade VI attorney) averaged $43,747. This made them the highestpaid group of white collars studied.

Chemists: The top level worker were the second highest-paid group, averaging $40,723 a year. Newcomers made $12,473.

were eight experience and respon-sibility levels for engineers. The lowest started at $13,918, the highest made $36,236.

Technicians: With an average raise of 7.8 per cent over the year, they did better than almost any other group, certainly better than professionals just out of school, who received only a 5.6 per cent increase. The ex-perienced engineers, professionals and executives who were the bosses of the technicians only got a 6.6 per cent increase. The hitch is that top-level technicians only make an average of $16,086, about half of what the toplevel professionals make. (Entry-level technicians made $9,064, about one-third less than the entry-level salary of the usually college-educated computer operators were roughly in line with other technicians, making about $15,000 tops

Accountants: Average between $11,453 and $23,402, while Chief Ac-countants (classified by the government by "the scope of their authority and the complexity of the accounting program") ranged from $20,460 to $33,916. Auditors receive between $11,769 and $19,952.

Clerical: In general, the clerical group received a larger increase over the year, 7.3 per cent, than did the higher-status white-collars, who jumped only 6.7 per cent. Secretaries' salaries ranged from $8,882 to $12,342 a year; typists, from $6,827 to $7,975 and keypunch operators from $7,666 to $8,811. Keypunch supervisors, the only clerical supervisory group studied, earned from $9,939 to a high

Ornaments of domestic felicity, delicate sources of inheritance and heirs, chaste stewards of hearth and household, ladies were never, heaven forbid, an en-

Abigail Adams, wife of one president and mother of another, springs to mind. A woman of uncommon intellect, her famous letters to husband John from Braintree, Mass., are studded with wit, exhortation and love as well as advice for the Continental Congress meeting in Philadelphia. Harry Truman once remarked that Abigail Adams would have made a better president than her spouse. She was ardent in America's cause. In 1777, when the outlook was particularly bleak and it seemed Washington's army might falter, she penned, "We possess a spirit that will not be conquered. If our men are all drawn off and we should be attacked, you would find a race of Amazons in America.' But she was also a realist. Whatever fame or fortune awaited her, she knew, depended entirely upon the accomplishments of her mate. She dearly wished

American musicians seek jobs in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) - At the beginning of 1975 there were two Americans playing in the Brazilian Symphony Orchestra. Today there are nine

The young musicians say it is easier for them to get jobs in foreign countries, such as Brazil, than in the United States, a country they say provides the best musical education in "The United States trains the best musicians, then doesn't give them a place to play," said David Johnson, 24, a tympanist who studied at the New England Conservatory of Music.

'There are loads and loads of fine musicians driving taxi cabs in New York and Boston," said Tom Tritle, 29, a French horn player from Brookings, S.D.

In Rio, Tritle said, "you're getting almost the same amount of performance experience you would in the Chicago Symphony - the standard repertoire," but he added that the chances of a recent conservatory graduate getting a job with an important American orchestra are "very slim."

Charles Mitchell, a 25-yearold St.

Louis, Mo., cellist who graduated from the Cleveland Institute of Music, said he came to Rio because "I know the job situation in the United States. I had lots of friends who were auditioning and not getting jobs. Competition is very, very stiff."

Johnson, a native of Fayetteville, Ark., explained that "there are 30 orchestras in the United States where you can make a living.' "There may be one opening per year and 200 people who apply for it," he sad.

Johnson said string players have an easier time finding jobs and that teaching jobs are easier to find than orchestra jobs. But more graduate musicians who actually want to perform are going out of the country, especially to Germany.

Viking another 'giant step'

pecial to The Los Angeles Times

After a three-century pause to gather wherewithal, mankind has once again entered a time of epochal voyages of exploration and discovery. The caravelles which discovered the Americas, plied the Pacific and circumnavigated our planet were man-ned. The interplanetary exploratory vehicles of the late 20th century are unmanned, complex and ex-quisitely instrumented devices from Earth, partly under control of the distant home planet and partly

But the lengths of the voyages then and now are comparable. Compared to the gross national product of Spain, England or France in the 16th century, the relative costs of exploratory missions are now much cheaper. In both cases we humans are seeking a New World — figuratively then, literally now.

MANY HISTORIANS believe it no coincidence that the Rennaissance and the Enlightenment coincided in time with the great age of European exploration and discovery. In a relatively ingrown and insular Europe, the journeys of Marco Polo and Magellan opened visias, broadened possibilities and provided profound and novel perspectives. There were other lands, other peoples, other ways of viewing the

The circumstances today are similar. Our planet has been explored. We are in the midst of a great cultural and technological homogenization, in which common habits of thought and a shared world view are rapidly embracing even the most distant and obscure parts of our small planet. At just this moment comes an opportunity to examine other worlds, neighboring planets in space which are in some ways similar and in some ways profoundly different from our own familiar world.

By studying the geology, the meteorology and the biology, if any, on these other worlds, we have a unique opportunity to broaden both our theoretical and our practical understanding of the Earth. For these are sciences of global scope, and it is neither easy nor prudent to perform experiments on a global scale. But the neighboring planets are natural experiments on the alternative pathways that worlds may take. I believe the eventual practical benefits from this scientific perspective will pay many times over for the cost of unmanned planetary voyages.

But there is another sense of perspective, which speaks to the deepest human questions, longings and aspirations. By examining other worlds we have a significant chance of improving our understanding of the nature, origin and fate of our planet and ourselves. It is possible to see how planetary explora-tion is already beginning a deprovincialization of the planet Earth, has landed on the surface of the red planet and returned a stunning bonanza of scientific information. The Viking mission is in its earliest stages. Even so it is already clear that we have obtained more essential scientific information about Mars with Viking than in the entire previous history of space flight.

VIKING HAS LANDED on Mars. For the first time in human history an artifact, a messenger from the

The lander's cameras have revealed the nature of a single place on Mars. We see a reddish rock-strewn desert extending to a horizon nearer than the horizons are on Earth. Framed against the bright, pinkish sky are hills and mesas and the eroded remnants of the rims of impact craters. There are billowing sand dunes through which marches a line of boulders on the crest of a ridge. Many of the rocks are quite ordinary looking, although there are rocks and furrows and pits which seem, at least at first, somewhat strange and unearthly.

Overall the scene has a haunting familiarity. It looks very much like semi-desert environments all over the planet Earth — in the American Southwest, for example. One can almost imagine a weary and grizzled prospector, leading a mule, suddenly appearing over a nearby hill, glancing briefly and in-curiously at the Viking Lander in the foreground, shaking his head and wandering on. But we have seen no such prospector. There are no cactus or grasses or rabbits on this landscape - at least so far

There may or may not be microorganisms in the reddish soil. One major objective of Viking is to test that entrancing proposition. Viking's discovery of nitrogen in the atmosphere supplied the last missing ingredient necessary for life of a terrestrial sort on Mars. But necessary conditions need not be suffi-

IT IS ALSO POSSIBLE that there are organisms, either large ones or small ones, that will be detected not early but late in the lifetime of the two Viking landers. The question of life on Mars remains very much an open one.
But consider the two alternatives.

If we find life on that planet it will be, I think a monumental event in human history, as well as the most significant discovery in the history of the biological sciences.

But suppose that the planet, after intensive study by Vikings 1 and 2 and more sophisticated later vehicles, proves indeed to be lifeless. In that case, too, we will have gained. For then Mars will be seen as a world in many respects similar to the Earth, as a place where winds and running water have transformed the landscape, but as a place without

Then Mars must illuminate the question of the origin of life on Earth. For we will then have examined two planets near each other in space, equally old, with rather similar environments, but life has begun and evolved on one but not the other. Why?

When I look at Viking 1's panorama I have an eerie sense that this may be what the Earth looked like before the origin of life — an interesting, reworked, eroded, developed landscape, but one without the transmuting presence of biology.

PHILIPPIANS 4:8

This scribe, like many of our readers, has had to pass through those melancholy times when one has to say goodby to his dear old mother or father when they kept their appointment with death. I lost my aged mother a couple of years back, and it has been the hardest adjustment in life that I have been called on to make thus far. She was well-grounded in the faith, and as gentle and loving person that you could know. She was a good mother, and in my father's day, she had been a good wife. But readers, SHE WAS NOT DIVINE! Nothing she ever said or did in religious matters was right because she thought they were. IF, indeed, she was right spiritually, it was because of a higher standard than she was able to produce.

People have a tendency to put too much stress on the old lines of a song, which said. "What was good for mom and daddy, is good enough for me." That is alright, if we can determine that mom and dad were right. But they and daddy, is good enough for me. That is angle, can determine that mom and dad were right. But they were not right because they were your loving parents. In spite of the great love you had for them, and the sweet recall of them in your memory, in no way made them more than mortals. The prophet of God said, relative to mortals having ability to determine what is right and wrong for them in the absence of divine direction. "O Lord, the way of man is not in himself: it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps." [Jer. 10:23]

It is not my purpose to be disrespectful to and reader, nor to meddle with the fund memories of our loved ones, for I too have such cherished memories. I would not for a moment call on you for a cessation of such fond recollections. I do, however, call on you not to let such human

When the apostle Paul (at the time known as Saul) heard the truth he did not confer with his relatives, but rather he straight way did the will of God. When Christ declared, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," [Mk. 16:16] what difference does it make if mother belived it was necessary to be baptized? Mother will have to answer for mother in the day of judgment. What do you believe the Lord meant when He uttered those words? That is the issue. Think about it.?

1732 the French built a fort on its banks here to discourage British infiltration and protect the fur trade. By the time of the Revolution the Redcoats had won the post, renamed it Ft. Sackville and were using it for a base of frontier operations as well as a place to foster Indian attacks on rebel settlements.

In 1779, George Rogers Clark, a Virginian with a secret commission from Gov. Patrick Henry. captured the fort by surprise after an epic winter march across Illinois. It ended the British presence in the west and secured what are now the states of Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin as well as a portion of Minnesota — the Old Northwest Territory for the fledgling United States. Jefferson's Louisiana Purchase might not have been possible without the acquisition. Ft. Sackville's site is marked by a four-story, marble columned George Rogers Clark Memorial. A visitor's center features period exhibits and an interpretative film of Clark's feat. Other points of interest include the first territorial capitol, a twostory, wood-frame building, and the impressive brick mansion of the Old Northwest's first governor, William Henry Harrison, ninth president of the United States.

In addition there are a recently rediscovered home built by a Frenchman in the 1790s and now being restored, a prehistoric Indian mound, a model of one of the earliest newspaper offices in the region, and a monument commemorating Abraham Lincoln's passage through Vincennes on the way to settle in Illinois as well as his other associations with the

Dieters also can enjoy spuds

Counting calories at a backyard barbecue or picnic can really spoil the fun. But take heart. Some of those traditional summer dishes you have been avoiding may be lower in calories than you think.

Potatoes, for example, are actually a good food for dieters. They are relatively low in calories, high in nutritional value and can be prepared in ways that fit your calorie needs.

A medium-size potato (3 per pound), peeled and cooked, is only 80 calories. What's more, unlike most other fruits and vegetables in reducing diets, potatoes have a staywith-you power ich helps keep you from feeling hungry between meals.

Speaking at a meeting of the Welfare Department's Medical Care Advisory Committee, DPW official Roy Wiese said the agency is preparing to go on a "barnstorming tour" of the state to inform druggists of the requirements of the new pricing regulations.

Wiese, himself a druggist, said physicians wil have trouble prescribing brand name medications when his profit margin is reduced to very little or

The regulations do not specify brand names, only generic names.

Wiese, however, noted that the pricing regulations also will specify an estimated acquisition cost, often called the average wholesale cost, which will set out the rates at which pharmacists may be reim-bursed under Medicare or Medicaid for certain prescriptions.

Advisory committee chairman Dr. Milton Davis of Dallas noted "The regulations aren't saying that you can't prescribe certain drugs they're saying they're only going to pay so much."

Davis said that the ef fect of the regulations will be to put the squeeze on pharmacists, alluding to the 24-hour pharmacies which he conceded do often charge more fo certain medications.

"They are making a profit on a few drugs," he said. "But this has been blown all out of context. They couldn't afford to stay open without that profit.

Boys Town saga may hold lesson

By DONALD P. BAKER

OMAHA, Neb. - The director of Father Flanagan's Boys Town here thinks that there may be a lesson for the Pallottine Fathers of Baltimore in the experience of Boys Town over the last four years.

Boys Town was described in a Pulitzer Prize winning Omaha Sun series in 1972 as having a "money machine" that was increasing its net worth by $16 million to $18 million annually. That figure was three to four times what it was spending to take care of its boys. It relied for its reputation largely on the almost sainted name of its founding father.

LIKE THE PALLOTTINES, Boys Town got most of its money from emotional, direct-mail appeals.

Like the Baltimore-based religious orders, Boys Town's directors were using the money for something other than what donors thought.

Boys Town's present director, the Rev. Robert P. Hupp, said the publicity has so adversely affected direct-mail contributions that it no longer may be a good method of supporting the institution.

More important, according to Father Hupp, is that reforms resulting from the publicity have brought Boys Town closer to being the kind of place envisioned by Father Flanagan than anyone thought

Instead of trying to cover up its sins, Boys Town went public: It replaced the director who had been handling the money, hired an accounting firm to examine its books, and embarked on an ambitious building program that promises to bring new luster to the tarnished name of Boys Town.

AMONG ITS PROJECTS is the Boys Town Center for the Study of Youth Development, now under construction on the campus of Catholic University in Washington. Dr. James P. O'Conter, said Boys Town is committed to spending $14 million to train investigators and conduct research on adolescent problem cases.

Other Boys Town centers are under construction at Stanford University in California and at Creighton

The Omaha Sun, a weekly newspaper, won a Pulitzer Prize in 1972 for a series of stories that revealed that Boys Town was sitting on a net worth of $209 million at a time while the school's enrollment was declining and its facilities getting run down. The newspaper said Boys Town "has a money machine" that was bringing in $25 million a year in public donations and investment income.

Financial success came late to Boys Town, however. Founded in 1917 on $90 of borrowed money by the Rev. Edward J. Flanagan, an Irish-born priest assigned to a downtown Omaha parish, Boys Town remained a local institution until it was the subject of a 1938 movie starring Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney.

One of the persons who saw that movie was Theodore Miller, a promoter-fund raiser. The day after he saw "Boys Town," Miller called Father Flanagan and struck a deal to move to Nebraska and promote Boys Town.

MILLER BECAME the architect of Boys Town's successful direct-mail solicitation campaign. Before he died a multimillionaire in 1962, Boys Town had become successful enough to have the third-busiest post office in Nebraska, and a world-wide reputation as "the city of little men." Father Flanagan died in 1948, just as the money was beginning to pour in. He was replaced by the Rev. Nicholas H. Wegner, who was according to Father Hupp, "tighter than a clam eating alum," both in what he did with the money, and what he revealed about his activities.

By the time the Sun looked into Boys Town's finances. it had accumulated $157 million in securities. The school had more than $7 million in IBM stock, $4 million of Xerox, $4.5 million of Disney Productions, $4.9 million in Simplicity Patterns and $3.7 million of Avon Products, to name just a few. The autocratic rule of Father Wegner was reportedly abetted by a board of directors that, according to Father Hupp, limited its concern to "sitting around a table once a year, for an hour, at the annual meeting. Whereas the Pallottines loaned money to political figures, including a $54,000 loan that helped Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel finance his divorce, there wasn't a hint of misuse of funds" at Boys Town, Father Hupp said. There was secrecy, however, and Father Hupp said, "I don't believe in hiding information, especially when people have a right to know, and if they are making contributions, the books ought to be open for inspection.

Father Hupp said "that was not the policy when I came here" in October, 1973, but now, in making its financial report available to contributors, Boys Town also sends a copy to the Better Business Bureau and anyone else who requests it.

Despite the housecleaning, "our income has gone to pot," Father Hupp said. "Fund-raising is almost counterproductive." because of the combination of publicity and pressure being put on charitable fundraising by various congressional committees.

mail," he added. "Some pending bills would be the death kneel." The cost of first class postage already is making the technique costly and "people don't even look at third-class," he said.

knowledge of the Pallottines, he said, "I know that crowd" because along with millions of other persons, "I used to get their fund-raising letters all the time."

Until Father Hupp replaced Father Wegner, the letters sent out by Boys Town were not greatly different from the appeal of the Pallottines.

In 1971, for example, Boys Town mailed 33 million copies of a letter that said "there will be no joyous Christmas this season for many homeless and forgotters have a letter that said "there will be no possible to the same as the season for many homeless and forgotters have a letter that said "there will be no possible to the same as the season for many homeless and forgotters have a letter that said "there will be no possible to the same as th ten boys ... With your help we can make a home at Boys Town for as many of these homeless boys as we can accommodate."

The appeal, signed by Father Wegner, featured the familiar sketch of a small boy carrying another boy on his back, with the caption, "he ain't heavy, Father...he's my brother." The appeal brought in about 25 million

BY CONTRAST, the 1975 Boys Town appeal talked about construction of the new Institute for Communication Disorders in Children, the Center for the Study of Youth Development and a successful tour by the Boys Town Choir.

The new appeal also said "financial statement on file with Internal Revenue Service, or write Boys Town direct." In that space on the old letters was written: "We employ no solicitors or fund-raising organizations — we pay no commissions."

One of Father Hupp's first reforms came when he hired Edwin J. Hewitt, a certified public accountant, as deputy director for administration.

Hewitt, who had retired after 17 years as finance director for the city of Omaha, brought Boys Town's cities. books in line with normal accounting standards for

The audit at Boys Town showed that income has dropped since revelations of its massive investment portfolio, but it still is financially solid.

In 1970, Boys Town took in more than $17 million in response to its mail appeal. Last year, the comparable figure was $4.5 million. Fund-raising expenses totaled $2.9 million, or about 65 per cent.

Total income at boys Town in 1975 was $19.6 million, with just over half ($9.9 million) coming from public sources, in the form of contributions, legacies and bequests. The other $9.7 million was in vestment income.

Unlike previous years, however, Boys Town didn't salt away its funds. In fact, it spent more than it received, selling stock worth $8.8 million to help finance $12.9 million in new construction projects. THE BAD PUBLICITY hasn't slowed applications

Mahon tells 'em!

Three cheers for Congressman George Mahon who has called upon the secretary of Labor to review the performance and take corrective action against officials of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration responsible for a "ricliculous waste of taxpayers' money" to produce a booklet, "Safety with Beef Cattle," which has been held up to scorn by farm and ranch groups across the nation.

At the same time, Mahon lashed out in a House speech last Friday at OSHA officials for proposing field sanitation standards for farms and ranches. He said the standards "are totally unworkable and ridiculous."

The Lubbock congressman, whose district includes Midland, used these examples to complain about harassment of the private citizen by government personnel charged with the administration of laws passed by Congress.

These very same examples were cited in a n editorial, "Speak softly to cows," appearing in last Sunday's Reporter-Telegram.

The OSHA actions mentioned are just about the most absurd ever, and it is high time that members of Congress speak out against such things, as George Mahon has done on this occasion.

Sen. John Tower of Texas also has spoken out against the OSHA rubbish which "insults the intelligence of everyone who has ever worked on a farm or ranch.... I can't imagine a more frivilous waste of the ta xpayers' money."

In his speech before the House of Representatives, Mahon pointed out th at those responsible for the OSHA actions "do not have to answer to the public for the outrages they perpetrate in the name of administering the law. By their actions they bring contempt on the government. If there is to be a free democratic society, the people must support and believe in their government. Without this trust, government breaks down. We must find a way to instill in the federal worker that he is a servant of the people and that he holds a public trust.'

Mahon hit the nail squarely on the head with this comment: " ... he is a servaint of the people." In all too many cases persons who land government jobs do not realize this, or else they soon forget it, as the importance of their positions goes to their heads. Holding a government job does not give a person the right to harass private citizens. Yet, that is exactly what many of them do - even to the point of insult in many instances.

As Mahon said, some way must be found to call a halt to the present intolerable situation. More power to him and other interested members of Congress.

Referring to the "Safety with Beef Cattle" booklet, Mahon said the time has come to cease tolerating such ineptness. "We must declare war on this kind of practice if respect for government is to be restored and maintained."

He presented the names of the people who appear to be responsible for the booklet and the way it was distributed and, at the same time, called on their employers — ultimately the secretary of Labor — to review their performance and determine what best may be done by way of corrective action.

"During our discussion on this matter," Mahon continued, "Dr. Corn, director of OSHA, stated that these proposed standards (field sanitation) were never meant to be a final product, but only a vehicle to which people could react and make proposals.

"That is slight consolation. The real issue is why a federal agency would issue standards in the first place that were not intended to be implemented and would obviously have to be changed."

"Such actions cause untold concern and consternation among people affected by them, in this case the nation's farmers and

"In my opinion, this is an outrageous situation and one that the Department of Labor should not tolerate."

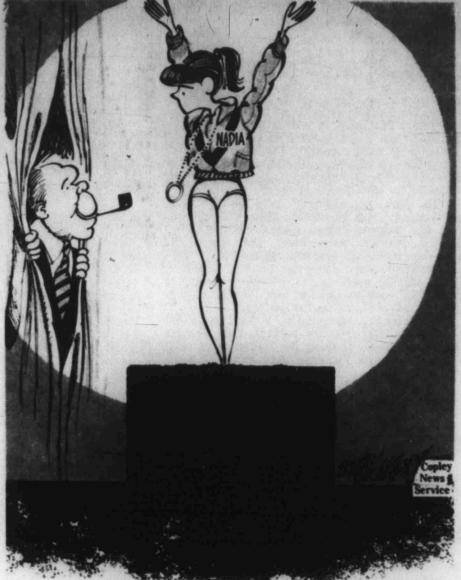

The congressman said further, "I fear for our future if government employes continue without reprimand or admonition to harass needlessly our citizens and to make a mockery of programs that are intended to help people, rather than hinder them.

"We must stop such actions and we should do it now." Mahon

Soviet naval menace is revealed in book

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - The father of the modern Soviet navy has drafted a frightening blueprint that for the first time publicly projects Soviet naval power "to effectively utilize the world ocean in the interest of building Communism" in direct contradiction

This projection is the heart of a new book by the brilliant Soviet naval strategist, Admiral of the Fleet Sergei Gorshkov. While contradicting official Kremlin policy, his grand strategy is viewed by officials here as an accurate mirror of Kremlin

There are indications that Gor-shkov's book, "The Sea Power of the State," was designed strictly for internal consumption by Communist party leaders and cadres within the Soviet military. Accordingly, excerpts which have reached the West are being closely studied in military and intelligence circles for a rare glimpse of inner Soviet strategy on maximum use of sea power in the struggle for world supremacy.

For the first time, that strategy emerges vividly with propaganda wraps stripped away, raising obvious implications for the current debate over U.S. naval construction.

Desire to keep Gorshkov's study out of Western hands is understandable. Gorshkov's repeated references to the 'enemy" - that is, the U.S. - are incompatible with the official Soviet Gorshkov, Soviet navy chief for 21 years, was architect of its shift from a coastal to a blue-water navy with an extraordinary variety of ships and weapons. His vision is without limits, as in this candid assertion: "Establishing the conditions for gaining sea control has always required prolonged periods of time and the execution of a series of measures while still at peace."

What are these measures? According to Gorshkov, they include: adequate ships and weapons in constant readiness for combat; disposing of naval forces in prospective war theaters so that 'they will have superiority of position over the enemy"; building up "a base system" to handle these forces together with a system for controlling Gorshkov thereby spells out as the modern role of Soviet naval power a system which almost exactly fits the routine Soviet description of capitalist imperialism, the declining system of Western preeminence that Gorshkov evidently intends the Soviet Union to make its own.

The astonishingly rapid development of the Soviet navy is no secret. It has reached virtual equality with the U.S. in the Mediterranean (where the Russians recently introduced their first aircraft carrier), the Pacific and the Indian Oceans. With the ships and weapons come Soviet bases strategically placed such as in Cuba off the U.S. coast and in Somalia on the Red Sea coast. But never before Gorshkov has the meaning of this rapid advance toward sea power equality and future superiority been so starkly or publicly spelled out by a Russian.

The "military aspects" of Soviet naval power, Gorshkov writes, are by no means the only ones "that exert an effect on the role of navies... Navies, while indispensable (for) armed combat, also are constantly being utilized as an instrument of state policy in peacetime. The sea is a noman's land, and therefore navies do not encounter in their activities many of the limitations which prevent utilization of other branches of the armed forces in peacetime for Thus, today's navies have assumed new political significance. This, says Gorshkov, includes "influence on coastal countries" when military conflicts threaten and the ability "to extend a military threat to any level, beginning with a show of military strength and ending with the disembarkation of a landing party.

shkov's treatise as a clear reflection of new Soviet policy arising out of last February's 25th Communist Party Congress. A minority, however, thinks it signifies a debate, with Gorshkov making the case for naval preeminence within the Soviet military apparatus.

rising trend of Soviet naval power since Gorshkov took over in 1955, the safe assumption is the majority position: Gorshkov is spouting clandestine but official Soviet policy.

The menace to the U.S. has now been made explicit. Mix Gorshkov's fearsome naval potion with the quixotic brew of detente and the result could be deadly for the West.

The dark side of Haiti exposed

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

The government discourages areas, where the peasants are starving while their rulers feast. Foreign reporters, who have ventured too far, have been hustled out of the country on the next available plane. One bold young Haitian reporter named Gassner Raymond dared to write a story criticizing the government. Two weeks later, his body was discovered in a roadside ditch.

We sent our roving reporter, Hal Bernton, to the tiny, mountainous Caribbean nation to seek out the stories the government would like to suppress. Posing as an itinerant student, he traveled with a knapsack on his back into the forbidding area.

Bernton began his investigation at Port-Au-Prince, the bright side of Haiti, where tourists loll in elegant hotels, drink cool glasses of tropical rum punch and dance after dark in sleek discotheques. But if Haiti is a tropical paradise for the foreign tourists, it is a land of luxery for the ruling class. They are dominated by the amazing Duvalier family, who have amassed a pirate's fortune since the late "Papa Doc" Duvalier seized power in 1958. His place has now been taken by his 24-year-old son, Jean Claude Duvalier, more affectionately known as "Baby Doc." who governs under the watchful, maternal eye of his mother, "Mamon Simone" Duvalier. They impose a special tax on nearly all the principal goods the impoverished nation produces. They clusters of mud-walled houses, with roofs of palm fronds. Young children, with the thin arms and swollen bellies that betray malnutrition, stood naked in the dust. Some stared sullenly; others shouted greetings.

Haiti is the poorest nation in the Western hemisphere. Bernton made his way into its poorest region. He hiked the last 10 miles to an isolated village. Along the way, he passed through a desolate land of charcoaled

United States bankers earn Latin American friends

By WILLIAM GIANDONI Copley News Service

In Latin America, U.S. bankers may be succeeding where the diplomats failed.

In some countries politicians used to make headlines trying to convince people that the greed of "the capitalist imperialists," by which they mean the United States, is the root of all evil. Now the tune is changing.

Peru is a good example. Whereas for most of the last eight years Peruvian leaders have been castigating capitalists, foreign and domestic, Gen. Francisco Morales Bermundez, the current president, said recently that "we must convince good investors and businessmen that...the revolutionary government of the armed forces does not deem these indust rialists as its enemies nor the enemies of the people. What is be hind this apparent zigzag in high-level thinking? It is simply the belated recognition that Peru and other Latin countries need foreign financial and industrial enterprise and that the United States can and will fill the need While there is competition in the developing world for the U.S. dollar and for U.S. technology, no industrialized nation is seriously competing with the United States for the right to bankroll the Latin American countries. The Europeans generally are very selective in their banking policies. French banks make loans to help finance the purchase of French goods. German banks, German products,

The Soviet Union is the stingiest of them all, which may be one reason why Soviet goods are so scarce in But U.S. banks, private U.S. banks, have been relatively generous in their dealings with the other American republics.

One estimate is that the 21 largest U.S. banks have loaned Mexico, alone, $5.8 billion. Brazil is said to have obtained $5.5 billion.

So heavily indebted are some of the Latin American and other lessdeveloped countries that fears have been expressed that a financial panic could be created were there to be widespread defaults on the billions of dollars of loans received from U.S. and other Western banks.

Some Latin Americans have tried to heighten that concern: Oil-rich Venezuela, for example, suggested earlier this year that the poorer nations, whose plight has been worsened by the quadrupling of oil prices by Venezuela and other oilexporting countries, declare a moratorium on their foreign debt

In Brazil, opposition Sen. Saturnino Braga predicted that his country will have no alternative except to default on its public debt this year.

Brazilian Treasury Minister Mario Henrique Simonsen promptly denied the possibility

'We are taking a number of really heroic measures to reduce the current account deficit in the balance of payments, which is the cause of our increased debt." some $22 billion the end of 1975 and probably between $25 and $26 billion this year, he said.

Mexico, another Latin country with a large foreign debt estimated at $18 billion or more, also has taken measures to reduce its public sector deficit

Other nations, too, Argentina, Peru and Chile, are among them.

Clearly the tendency in Latin America today is toward more orthodox financial and economic policies, and along with them is coming a decline in official hostility toward the United States.

It seems that Latin American governments have been won over by the U.S. and other foreign bankers with whom they deal

Mexico, for example, is coming to realize that if only because private U.S. bankers have almost $6 billion invested in the country, they are as eager as the Mexicans to see the nation progress.

What is more, the Latins are discovering that foreign bankers can be eloquent, convincing propagandists if given the opportunity. For instance, Citibank, formerly

First National City Bank of New York, the second-largest commercial bank in the United States, recently devoted almost the entire issue of its Monthly Economic Letter to a

For one thing, "the overwhelming preponderance of bank credits to LDCs (less-developed countries) are those extended to governments and quasi-governmental agencies." Governments that qualify for private bank credit "are by definition those most determined to protect their credit ratings and avoid even the threat of debt rescheduling.

William Bishop case puzzles FBI y DONALD P. BAKER

he Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Having received no response washing for — Having received no response from its registered letter ordering him to return to work, the U.S. Department of State, in the emolonless manner of a huge bureaucracy, is preparing to terminate the career of missing foreign service officer William Bradford Bishop Jr.

Bishop, who is sought for the murders of his mother, wife and three sons, walked out of his office in Room 3531—At about 4:45 p.m. on Monday, March complaining of a cold.

Now, five months later, the once-promising iplomatic career of Bishop is about to be officially WHAT REMAINS open is: Whatever happened to rad Bishop? Brad Bishop's 40th birthday, if he is still live, was Investigators admit they have not a single clue to his whereabouts. Bishop has been charged formally with the murder of his mother, Lobelia, 68; his wife, Annette, 37, and his sons, Brad III, 14, Brent, 10 (who would have been 11 July 30) and Geoffrey, 5.

After five months of scrutiny, police have no more motive for the mass killings than they did the day the bodies were discovered in a fiery grave in a North Carolina swamp. There is no evidence of infidelity, or financial problems or job worries.

The one hint of a rational explanation is that it was the act of an irrational person. Investigators now know that — unbeknownest to his closest friends and associates — Bishop had been seen at least three diferent psychiatrists in recent years.

The "working assumption" at the State Depart-ent is that Bishop is alive, and out of the country. A Yale grduate with two master's degrees (in Italian from Middlebury and African studies from UCLA), Biship held diplomatic posts in Italy, Ethopia and Botswana. He speaks Italian and Serbo—croatian Bishop, who held the rank of foreign service of-ficer—4, at a salary of $25,962, was assistant chief of the special trade activities office of the State Department's economic and business section. That position was filled about a month after his disappearance. His pay was stopped immediately. Until the formality of sending him notification that he was being fired for being absent without leave a couple weeks ago, he had been listed in "over-complement status." This is jargon meaning that a spot was being held open for him should he return.

THE ONGOING SEARCH for Bishop is the respon-

$15.50 worth of sporting goods in Jacksonville, N.C., about 100 miles south of Tyrell County, N.C., where the bodies were discovered earlier that day.

"There is no question he was in Jacksonville that day," Quinn said. Investigators said it was the only known use of the credit card by Bishop, who had no other credit cards.

There have been literally thousands of reported sightings of Bishop in the intervening months, throughout the U.S. and Canada, and abroad.

One of the more recent leads concerned a so-called wig bandit, resembling Bishop, who held up nine small savings and loan associations in the San Francisco Bay area. That prospect fizzled with the arrest of a suspect on July 16 who, Quinn pointed out wryly, "was not identical to Bishop."

The Immigration and Naturalization Service has been alerted to watch for use of Bishop's passport, but none has been noted. Quinn believes it would be more difficult to travel abroad on Bishop's diplomatic passport than on a normal one "because when a dilomat makes an unscheduled appearance in a foreign country, the host government will wonder what he's doing there."

OFFICIALS who have scrutinized Bishop's personnel files at the State Department in search of clues say that, in retrospect, there are bits and pieces of in-formation that could raise previously unthought of questions about Bishop.

The State Department apparently had no record of Bishop's psychiatric history. Invesigators have learned that Bishop first consulted a psychiatrist in California, apparently while studying at UCLA in Before going to Botswana later that year, he saw a medical doctor in Washington, complaining of physical pain. That physician diagnosed the problem as psychosomatic, and referred him to a second psychiatrist, according to the FBI.

While he was in Africa, Bishop continued to complain of back pains, apparently without telling anyone about his earlier visits to psychiatrists according to the FBI.

Upon his return to Washington in 1974, he began seeing a third psychiatrist. That doctor, who has since given up private practice and returned to military service, told a reporter he would neither confirm nor deny treating Bishop, saying "if he turns up, he could sue me" for violating a doctor-patient

Before Bishop disappeared, that third psychiatrist had prescribed the drug Serax, to treat symptoms of depression and insomnia

A QUANTITY of Serax was found in the glove compartment of Bishop's rust colored 1974 Chevrolet station wagon, which was recovered March 18 at a resort campsite deep in the Great Smoky National Park. The FBI circulated information about Bishop to a large number of pharmacies, on the assumption that he might try to have the prescription refilled, but again, without results.

With the discovery of the station wagon, which contained a blood-stained blanket, an ax and a shotgun, massive search of the park followed, by air and on foot. Except for some early false reports, there was no trace of Bishop, or the family's golden retriever, Leo, which also remains missing.

"That car and that location has been the end of the trail," said Quinn. "When he stepped outside that car, he left no indication of the direction he went." Haywood Starling, director of North Carolina's State Bureau of Investigation, told Associated Press editors in that state last month that Bishop "is probably deceased back there where his car was found.' Starling speculated that Bishop "in his apparent state of mind could have wandered off and shot himself somewhere. With the wild boars and other animals in those woods, he'd never be found."

ANOTHER POPULAR THEORY is that Bishop was killed by one of the 500 bears that roam the halfmillion acre park. Dick Moeller, chief ranger, said that while "anything is possible," there is no known substantiation of a bear ever attacking a human" in the park. He said, however, that bears have been known to eat a dead body. Quinn said tht from what FBI investigators have learned about Bishop, he believes that "he's capable of surviving outdoors for long periods of time." But Quinn thinks it's more likely Bishop would be hiding

Robinson's

North "A" at Scharbauer Dr

sibility of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, but George Quinn, agent in charge of the FBI office in Baltimore, admits that "we don't have a thing."

The last confirmed contact with Bishop occurred March 2 when he used his BankAmericard to buy $15.50 worth of sporting goods in Jacksonville, N.C.,

Maj. Wayne G. Brown, director of the Montgomery County, Md., police's criminal investigation division is one of the investigators who believes that "he's around." Brown said that "the most traumatic time would have been when the bodies were set afire. If you can take that, there's no need to do yourself in Another theory is that Bishop also was a victim of the mass murders, and that his body was dumped in a different location.

Police repeatedly have said that Bishop is "our on-suspect." adult physical fitness, ladies self-defense, youth

It was learned that police discarded the possibility that Bishop also was slain in the house when they failed to find any of his blood type among the stains throughout the house.

Investigators have concluded that the first victim was Annette Bishop, who was slain in the den of the split level home. They theorize that Bishop's mother, Lobelia, returned from walking the family dog and surprised the killer, who hurriedly placed one of Brad Bishop's jackets over Annette's body.

After the two women were fatally bludgeoned, the three boys, who were clad in their pajamas and apparently asleep in upstairs bedrooms were then killed with powerful blows to their heads.

THE VICTIMS' BODIES were discovered about noon on March 2, by a forest ranger who thought their flaming bodies were the start of a forest fire. It was almost a week before police connected the cahr-red bodies from the North Carolina swamp to the Bishop family.

The killings went undetected until March 8 because neighbors in the Carderock Springs section of Bethesda, Md., thought the family had taken a late spring ski vacation, and Bishop's co-workers at the State Department thought he was at home with a

Finally, a worried neighbor called Montgomery County police and said that the boys had not shown up for school and that she had not seen any family member for 10 days.

A county police officer recalled reading a news story about five bodies being found in North Carolina, and called that state's FBI. Within a few hours, as North Carolina attorney general Rufus Ed-misten recalled, "Suddenly, everything fell into

It later was learned that after he left his office March 1, saying he was sick, Bishop drove to a shopping center where he bought a five-gallon gasoline can and had it filled at the Texaco station there. The news of the killings turned the Bishop family's normally quiet neighborhood into a beehive of activity, with police, reporters and sightseers prowling the snow-covered grounds outside the Bishop house. SINCE THAT FIRST shock wave hit Carderock Springs, a teen-aged neighbor of the Bishop's, Robert Angell, has been charged with killing two police officers while fleeing from a bank robbery, and at least three of the $100,000-and-up contemporary homes have been burglarized.

One neighbor, who sells real estate, pleaded with a reporter last week to "leave us alone. Every other car that comes by here slows down and asks, 'which house is Bishops?' It's a strain on our children, and besides, that, it's hurting property values."

The trees have obscured a view of the Bishop house, which sits vacant and, as a result of an auction last month, empty of furnishings.

The once-tidy lawn is turning to weeds, and an untrimmed willow blocks the path to the red front door, beneath which police have chipped away six bricks to obtain blood samples. A note attached to the door reports that water service to the house was disconnected on June 26 for nonpayment of a past due bill of

The events that occurred inside the house on the night of March 1 remain a mystery, but the investigation goes on.

'We never lose our enthusiams for sightings," said the FBI's Quinn, who encourages publicity about the killings. "It's through sightings that we're going to find him. The bureau's hallmark is persistency. It took two years to find Patty Hearst. One day we'll get a call, and go to a location, and there will be William Bradford Bishop."

Big bikes regain ground lost to lighter imports

By HARRY ANDERSON The Los Angeles Times

Big motorcycles - the "hogs" which some environmentalists thought had been consigned to the automotive scrap heap - are making an unheralded comeback, while lighter-weight two-wheel vehicles are still in the sales doldrums.

And nobody could be happier about the renewed interest than Harley-Davidson Motor Co. Inc., the only remaining major U.S. motorcycle manufacturer.

"We have a good opportunity to improve our share of market because the trend has been to larger motorcycles, which are our bread and butter," says John A. Davidson, president and chief executive of Milwaukee-based Harley-Davidson, a unit of AMF Inc., White Plains, N.Y.

Davidson notes that 85 per cent of the motorcycles sold in the United States are made by Japanese firms. Harley-Davidson takes just 7 per cent of all U.S. cycle sales. In the past two years, motorcycle sales have tumbled significantly - down 25 per cent in 1975 alone. Most of the decline has come in the lightweight motorbikes which became very popular in the late 1960s and early 1970s, he says.

"We didn't feel the crunch like the Japanese because we've always been identified with the big bikes," he says. And now, as the economy has strengthened, the buyers of larger motorcycles have returned to the showrooms while the buyers of smaller bikes - who tend to be younger - have not.

"Big motorcycle buyers are people who are really committed to the sport, and they tend to have more stability and larger incomes than smaller bike buyers," Davidson says.

Harley-Davidson sales are up about 15 per cent so far this year, he says.

He concedes, however, that declining U.S. birth rates probably mean that motorcycle sales will dwindle in the long-term future. Most cycles are sold to persons under 35, and as that age group shrinks so may

And tough new environmental rules which have mandated the use of noise and air pollution gear on motorcycles may also turn off future buyers,

"The biggest worry of motorcycle manufacturers right now is what the buyers are doing to the bikes after they buy them," he says. Many are ripping out the power-robbing pollution control gear and noisemuffling equipment, he says, because they take away the performance and "rumble" associated with motor-

"We are capable of meeting the proposed government standards, but the buyers aren't standing for it," he

Davidson thinks sales will climb both this year and in 1977, but not nearly as much as they did five years

"The boom years are behind us. I don't see the market jumping 30 per cent or anything close to it. But we've come back from the decline last year and I think we'll stay up."

To balance the expected slow growth of motorcycles, the firm has expanded its golf cart business. That industry, says Davidson, has shown almost uninterrupted growth with record sales expected this year.

Zarb says people don't want to hear about energy crisis

By ERNEST CONINE The Los Angeles Times

Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb, remarking on the neartotal indifference of press, public and politicians to the frightening realities of the energy crisis, mused not long ago that "sometimes you get the feeling you're living in one of those societies that used to behead the bearers of bad news. People don't want to hear about it anymore." It's a fair comment.

Project Independence has bogged-down; the United States is more heavily dependent on foreign oil than at the time of the Arab embargo three years ago. The implications, both in terms of the economy and national security, are alarming. Yet Americans obviously don't want to believe there is a crisis. Big cars are back in fashion. The 55-m.p.h. speed limit is being increasingly ignored. Those big, garish neon signs are all ablaze again.

Congress, loath to challenge voters in their complacency, has proved unwilling to deal seriously with the problem. President Ford has been resolute only in spurts. Energy policy does not loom as a major campaign

The energy crisis may be invisible, at least for now, but it is far from

As recently as 1971, the United States spent only $3.7 billion on foreign oil. This year the oil-import bill is expected to reach $35 billion. Even if the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries settles for modest price increases in the future, Americans will be paying close to $60 billion a year for foreign petroleum by

Whereas the United States was importing 33 out of every 100 barrels of oil consumed at the time the Arab oil embargo was imposed in 1973, the figure is now up to 44 out of 100 and is still climbing.

As a study by the Library of Congress said, "An Arab oil embargo billion to $56 billion in the U.S. gross national product, and cause additional unemployment of 1 million to 1.5 million, if the embargo were to last

"A domestic economic disaster of such proportions would most cer-tainly spread to Western Europe and Japan, even it those nations did not become targets of the embargo," the study added. "Hopes for major economic recovery from the world-wide recession would be dashed under such circumstances."

Some analysts believe that another embargo is unlikely, and they may be proved right. But as former FEA official Eric R. Zausner countered in a recent interview, "What's the likelihood of fire in your house? Can you afford not to buy insurance?'

Even in the absence of another embargo, increasing dependence on the OPEC cartel involves serious drawbacks.

For one thing, the greater that OPEC's control of the world oil market becomes, the more frequently it will be able to raise prices. And the more dependent the United States becomes on foreign oil supplies, the greater the temptation for the Soviet Union to try to gain leverage by achieving military or political control of those supplies - and the greater the danger, consequently, of a big-power collision over oil.

To quote the Library of Congress study again, energy could become this nation's "Achilles heel ...in the same way as agricultural shortages are for the U.S.S.R."

Unfortunately, it is easier to describe the energy crisis than to

The Administration's Project Independence, released two years ago, said oil imports could be virtually eliminated by 1985 if major efforts were made to increase oil and gas production from offshore fields. Even without such efforts, it was estimated that petroleum imports could be cut in

Gulf announces three service anniversaries

Gulf Energy and Minerals Co.-U.S. has announced service aniversaries for three employes in the Midland Production District.

J. L. Burba Jr. completed 35 years with the company July 3. He started his Gulf career in 1941 as a roustabout

He entered military service in 1942 and returned to Gulf in 1944. In 1948, he was promoted to petroleum engineer, serving in the Goldsmith and Judkins areas, and in 1955 he was named drilling fluid engineer.

Later the same year, Burba became a drilling foreman and served this capacity in areas around Odessa, Monahans and Crane. He was promoted to area drilling superintendent in the Monahans Area in 1966 and transferred to the Crane Area in the same capacity in 1970. He is a resident of Odessa. O. W. Wickman of Midland, senior communications technician in the Comptroller Department, completed 30 years with the company June 16. He joined Gulf in 1946. Most of his tenure has been in the Midland District in communications. He was promoted from communications technician to senior communications technician in 1974.

B. D. Harris of Imperial, production supervisor in the Crane Area, completed 15 years with Gulf June 26. He started his Gulf career in the Midland District office in 1961 as a clerk.

FPC seeks to lift lid on rate hike

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Power Commission wants a federal appeals court to lift immediately its lid on a $1.5 billion-ayear natural gas rate incease.

The FPC, in a brief submitted to the U.S. Court of Appeals on Tuesday, argued that losses to natural gas producers could be significant if the FPC rate hike is not allowed to go into effect. The FPC also opposed a court review of the rate hike.

The appeals court, acting on a challenge by 16 groups, temporarily blocked the increase on July 28, the day after the FPC authorized it. The court will hear oral arguments on the delay Thursday. The rate hike would boost con-sumers' gas bills almost immediately, with increases averaging 4 to 8 per cent over the next year, the FPC said. The impact would vary according to the amount of gas used and the location. In Florida, the FPC estimates, the average gas bill would increase only $5.20 a year, while in Ohio it could go up by $23.14.

The antirate hike coalition includes consumer, labor and farm groups, state officials and mayors. It charged that the hike is not in the public in-

The FPC countered: "The Supreme Court has recognized that the public interest embraces adequate supply as well as the lowest reasonable price...It is in the public interest to take adequate steps to maintain and if possible, increase the interstate

Senate overrides coal leasing veto

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Senate voted 75 to 18 Tuesday to override President Ford's veto of coal leasing amendments, controlling the way in which vast deposits of coal on federal lands in the West will be leased to commercial operators for development.

The Senate override margin was 13 votes more than the required twothirds. The House is expected to take its vote on whether to pass the bill over the President's veto Wednesday.

Mr. Ford, in vetoing the bill July 3, said he did not object to a key provision of the bill raising the state share of the revenues received by the federal government from the leases from 37.5 per cent to 50 per cent.

However, Mr. Ford said a number of other provisions would cause procedural delays in leasing procedures that "would inhibit coal production on federal lands, probably raise prices for consumers and ultimately delay our achievement of energy independence."
On the Senate floor Sen. Paul J.

Fannin (R-Ariz.), supporting Mr. Ford, said there already has been a five-year moratorium on new coal

Reef well potentials

A Canyon reef confirmation was completed in the Frankirk field of Stonewall County by Texland, Rector & Schumacher of Fort Worth.

No. 1 James Anderson finaled to flow 444 barrels of 41-gravity oil daily, through a 16-64-inch choke and perforations at 4,992-5,004 feet, after washing with 500 gallons of mud acid. Location is 1,400 feet from south and 50 feet from east lines of section 8, block U, T&P survey, seven miles southwest of Aspermont.

Monsanto Co. No. 1 Jackson, second well and 34-mile west extension to the Taurus (Ellenburger) gas field of Ward, five miles south of Pyote, had a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 10.205 million cubic feet of dry gas per day.

Completion was through perforations at 17,254-17,348 feet, which had been acidized with 30,000 gallons. Earlier, a flow gauge of 9.8 million cubic feet of gas per day had been reported for the confirmer. Location is 467 feet from northeast and 1,980 feet from northwest lines of section 58, block 34, H&TC survey.

The pool opener, HNG Oil Co. No. 1-57 HNG Fee, was completed in 1975, for 68 million cubic feet of gas daily through perforations at 17,502-17.507

Dorchester Exploration, Inc. of Midland has completed No. 7-A Spade as a fourth well and location north extension in the Beals Creek (Wichita-Albany) field of Mitchell.

It finaled to pump 108 barrels of 29.4-gravity oil and 11.82 barrels of water on 24-hour potential test taken through perforations at 3,604-3,635 feet. The section had been acidized with 12,000 gallons. Location is 200 feet from south and leasing rules were made, and now, with the bill, further delays could block development of the coal needed to build big new steam-electric plants and fail to ease the energy shortage.

1,550 feet from east lines of section 6, block 18, SPRR survey, 25 miles southwest of Colorado City.

Among the new provisions cited by Sens. Fannin, James A. McClure (RIdaho) and Mr. Ford himself:

-The raising of royalties charged to coal operators from 5 cents per ton to 12.5 per cent, which would raise operator costs and therefore prices. -The requirement that any leased area be put into production within 10 years, which Fannin said wouldn't allow enough time to develop the huge financial arrangements sometimes necessary to get large-scale work underway on electric plants and associated coal operation.

-Authority for a state governor to block for at least six months a surface-mining lease within a National Forest: and requirements for various types of public hearings.

-A directive to the Interior Department to conduct a comprehensive survey of all federal coal lands to determine where the coal is and how much there is, and a requirement that any portion leased must be included in a comprehensive land-use plan.

American Exchange

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market posted a slight gain today, levelling off a bit after Tuesday's strong ad-

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up .17 at 990.50 after an 8.07-point jump Tuesday. Gainers held a 7-4 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed Analysts said traders' spirits had been lifted a bit by the rally Tuesday, which was led by the two most widely owned stocks in the list—General Motors and American Telephone. But they noted persisting doubts about the market's ability to about the market's ability to continue climbing much further in view of its repeated failures to hold above the Dow1,000 level this year. AT&T and GM each gained more than a point on Tuesday. Today Telephone added another 1/8 to 59, but GM slipped back 1/4 to 69% in profit taking.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .06 to 55.67. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .28 at 104 even.

Volume on the Big Board stepped up to 9.61 million shares over the first two hours from 6.91 million in the comparable period Tuesday. The buying in AT&T stemmed from a Federal Communications Commission official's ruling against a proposal to require the company to divest itself of its Western Electric manufacturing subsidiary.

GM raised its dividend back to its pre-recession level.

Doomsday prophecies gain millions of believers

By RUSSELL CHANDLER he Los Angeles Times

The old bearded prophet of doom with his sandwich-board message leclaring that the end is near has been around for a long, long time.

But now, millions — many who rould not classify themselves as religious — are taking the message seriously, or are at least fascinated by

With the aid of the modern news media, a foreboding scenario spawned by Bible prophecy has been spread: events are coming together in the exact pattern that signals the end of this age and the return of Jesus

AMONG REASONS for the resurgence of Bible-inspired predic-

-Bible prophecy popularizer Hal Lindsey's "The Late Great Planet Earth," which has sold 10 million copies, and similar paperbacks which beckon from supermarket and drugstore racks.

-The new movie, "The Omen," fueling already-flaming fires of speculation about the Antichrist and the demonic, an "Exorcist"-inspired —Seemingly supportive evidence of impending world doom from secular sources - environmental, population, economic and energy experts.

Even if the current interest (geared to expect the final unraveling within this decade) dies down, critical analysts expect doomsayers to find new audiences for predictions tied to the ominous approach of 2000 A.D., the start of another millenium.

THE MOST POPULAR prophecy package today, which draws upon news events as much as scattered Bible verses, unfolds something like

Millions of true Christians will very soon vanish suddenly and inexplicably from their jobs and homes to be snatched up to heaven as Jesus summons them from the clouds.

Little known to a mystified world, this disappearing act called the "Rapture" marks the start of a 3 1-2 year period when the balance of world power shifts from the giant nations to a confederacy of European nations, possibly involving some Arab coun-

A man who miraculously survives a head wound arises from that confederacy as a world leader, one who has engineered a seven-year peace treaty in the Middle East. The dictator — none other than the predicted Antichrist, "the beast" — may bear the mark of his satanic origins, the numerals 666. IN ANY CASE, the Antichrist and his aide, the False Prophet, compel everyone to be stamped on the hand or forehead with the numbers 666.

This policy is enforced about the start of the next 3 1-2 years period when the Antichrist, who had been reigning in Rome, moves to Jerusalem where he blashphemes God in the rebuilt Jewish Temple. Political chaos and oppression commence. Stars fall from the sky, earthquakes rip the land, islands plummet to the ocean bottom.

As the end draws near, armies from the West and East (including 200 million Oriental troops) converge and clash in an Israeli valley containing the ancient Hebrew town of Megiddo, referred to in the Bible as Armaged-

The fighting rages for about a year, then moves to Jerusalem when Jesus Christ appears in parted heavens and wreaks destruction on the remaining armies. A 1,000-year reign of peace is launched, the long-awaited "Millenium."

From Baptists and Pentecostalists to Seventh-day Adventists and Jehovah's Witnesses, there is widespread agreement that signs of the "last days" are abundant.

THEY CITE instances of crime and immorality, famine and earthquakes, increased popularity of the occult and "false" religions. In fact, hardly a crisis or world political development occurs without it being seen as one more sign of the end.

Most important is the return of Jews to their homeland - the establishment of the state of Israel in 1948. Some groups have believed that the final Battle of Armageddon will come within a generation of that date.

But the length of a generation, in Bible reckoning, is variously inter-preted. Instead of 1948, some have placed emphasis on 1967 as the departure point, the year Israel took full control of Jerusalem.

If Israel is "God's timepiece," as the Bible prophecy teachers and preachers say, there is usually caution taken nevertheless to avoid setting the alarm for a specific year.

A Redondo Beach, Calif., writerpreacher, the Rev. Charles R. Taylor, wrote in a book two years ago that there was "overwhelming evidence" that Sept. 6, 1975, "could be" the date of the Rapture.

"He blew it," commented another Bible prophecy specialist. Bible prophecy claims that it sticks to the Bible for its predictions. But the sources are a patchwork of verses from the Old and New Testaments. BY CONTRAST, some groups of believers go into seclusion to await the end based on a special "revelation" to its charismatic leader or to the group as a whole. Scriptures are used to bolster this private word from God.

A recent example that drew news media attention was a group of 30 per-sons in Grannis, Ark., which holed up in a small house for 10 months, expecting the Second Coming and the end of the world.

This month federal marshals evicted the pale and silent vigil-keepers because they hadn't kept up the mortgage payments on the house.
"They based their plans on the assumption that the Lord would come before we arrived," said U.S. Marshal Lee Owen.

Scoffers may smile at such happenings, and at bumper stickers like ones reading "The Great Snatch" and "In Case of Rapture This Car Will Be Driverless," pasted by earnest believers on their cars.

But, according to a sociologist who has made a special study of doomsday and ecocatastrophe movements, "a pervasive pessimistic mood, collective dread, an atmosphere of crisis, all coalesce to produce a sense of impending doom — the appeal of the long-expected apocalypse."

Evan Vlachos, sociology professor at Colorado State University, believes the time is ripe for wide receptivity to eschatological (end times) explanations because "in the eyes of many there exists a bewildering, runaway world, and a feeling of social vertigo..."

IN A PAPER presented at the annual meeting of the Society for the Scientific Study of Religion last fall in Milwaukee, Vlachos said that a barrage of bad new and doomsday emphasis "has produced a psychic numbness concerning the explanation for the string of troubles that seem to beset us and the gathering dark clouds of an unraveling world.

"Millenarianism and utopian escapes, then, promise to provide exactly a meaning, an explanation, some control, and, hence, ultimate salvation." Vlachos further speaks about the "irresistible attraction" of the year

Daniel Cohen, former editor of Science Digest, agrees that the next 24 years will see "an increasingly strident chorus of Doomsday prophecies."

Besides the fact that the year 2000 is "nice round number," Cohen told an American Humanist Assn. meeting that popular psychics such as Jeanne Dixon and the late Edgar Cayce have forecast an end to the world as we know it by that year.

Cohen wrote a book in 1973 titled "How the World Will End," summarizing the major apocalyptic scares over the centuries and concluding with the scientific view that the earth will not perish for four or five billion years and the human species sometime before that.

MOST REACTIONS to his book, he said, were angry - from people who wanted the world to come to an end because the Bible said it would and, significantly, because they could not see any other way out.

world was so sinful it deserved to be destroyed," he said.

"The nonreligious people, and there were plenty of them, also felt the world deserved to be destroyed and that the destruction was inevitable,' Cohen added.

The relative popularity of the two points of view (scientific vs. apocalyptic) was indicated by the

Two area men gain releases

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - The State Board of Pardons and Paroles has released two persons convicted of crimes in Ector and Midland Counties.

Dale A. Lange was convicted of theft of service over $200 in Ector County in May, 1975. He was paroled to Tarrant County after serving or receiving time credit for a year and eight months of a four-year sentence.

J.B. Porter was convicted of burglary with intent to commit theft in Midland County in September, 1974. He served or received time credit for three years and five months of a fiveyear sentence and was paroled to Midland County.

The popularity of Lindsey, 46, a onetime Mississippi riverboat captain turned author and lecturer, is amazing. Since he left the ranks of Campus Crusade for Christ in 1968 and began writing "The Late Great Planet," his books have sold a total of more than 15 million copies.

He recently addressed a large gathering of military leaders at the Pentagon Plaza, and he has spoken on the military aspects of prophecy at the War College in Alabama. Standing-room-only crowds turned out in Europe to hear Lindsey while he was on tour, especially in West Germany. The "young and unchurched" were particularly interested,

In recent months, six motion picture companies have approached Lindsey about making a dramatic "documentary" out of "The Late Great Planet Earth." A film version will be released in early 1977, Lindsey said during an interview near his home in Pacific Palisades, Calif.

With the advent of that book in 1969, interest in prophecy "took off as rarely before," Lindsey said. Though prophecy interest appeared to peak about 1974, the last six months have again seen a surge in the sale of books on the

with the tightly constructed sequence worked out by Bible prophecy

Nevertheless, the doctrines of Last Days, Tribulation, Rapture, Antichrist and Second Coming are all included in the sermonic arsenal of evangelist Billy Graham.

The late Kathryn Kuhlman, at her healing services, would frequently refer to the Rapture as if it could occur at any mome

The bulk of Christianity, however, avoids obsession with the subjects, alluding to New Testament verses indicating Jesus would return "like a thief" — unexpectedly — and that no one would know the hour or day.

Liberal scholarship is unwilling to grant a major Bible prophecy premise, that Jesus actually predicted his physical Second Coming. Those scholars also say it is difficult to know for sure just how much of the gospels accurately report what Jesus said.

It is broadly agreed, however, that beleaguered first-century Christians believed their savior would return at BIBLE PROPHECY specialists acknowedge that, but claim a correct reading of the Bible and current events places the Second Coming in this era.

The apocalyptic-style Bible books of Daniel and Revelation are prime prophecy sources, especially for the 10-nation confederacy expected to rise in world power in a kind of revival of the Holy Roman Empire, with the Antichrist eventually assuming its leadership.

Search for victims continues

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — As flood waters receded and residents returned to shattered homes in Big Thompson Canyon, authorities stepped up security procedures today to prevent looting in the debris left by a flash flood whose confirmed death toll stood at almost 100.

About 40 men were added to an estimated 60-man security force, patrolling the vacation area on foot, on horseback and in four-wheel drive vehicles. At the same time, recovery teams fanned out through the canyon to continue the task of digging out

Joe Ellis of Kibbey Funeral Home, which is responsible for all bodies brought out, said 74 bodies had been recovered and two dozen remain inside the canyon.

Capt. Rich Hovey of the Larimer County Sheriff's Department dismissed suggestions of widespread looting, although three persons were arrested Tuesday on suspicion. Gary Simms, a policeman at nearby Fort Collins, said the suspects had knives and rifles when arrested. "If we can catch about 10 pilferers.

put $15,000 bond on them and spread the word," looting won't be a problem, said Sheriff Robert Watson. One problem for authorities was the return of canyon residents to the piles of debris that once were their homes. Five roadblocks were set up on the stretch of U.S. 34 leading to the spot where the floodwaters had spilled onto the lowlands west of Loveland.

A 12-foot wall of water from rains barreled through the twisting river canyon on Saturday, floating away houses, smashing mobile homes against the towering rock walls and burying the dead under silt and slime.

National Guardmen, volunteers and search and rescue teams began a Javits fourth day of searching today among logjams of twisted metal and splin- raps labs tered wood for more dead. Watson, who earlier predicted an eventual death toll of 200, scaled down the figure to 100150. But he admitted to reporters, "Your guess is as good available if necessary. Watson estimated it would take a year just to clear out the tons of debris. Reconstruction, he said, won't come as quickly. One of the first priorities for cleanup crews was Drake, the largest town in the the canyon. Reporters, given access for the first time since the flood, described on Tuesday a scene of almost complete destruction, bodies partially buried in the mud and furniture half-submerged.

Twelve-foot boulders torn loose from the canyon had tumbled into the area, crushing anything in their path.

"Broken necks, broken backs, you see, the violence of the water was so great that we have a feeling that most of them probably died before they had a chance to drown" said Michael Charney, deputy Larimer County coroner.
