Belle swipes New York; damage heavy metropolitan area cleaned up and bailed out today from its first major hurricane in more than a decade as the storm, downgraded in strength, carried its heavy winds and heavy rains north through New England.

Flash flooding in the wake of Hurricane Belle, now a tropical storm, posed serious problems for Vermont and other parts of New England.

"There are just too many to list them. We're in real trouble," said Earl Osgood, operations director of Civil Defense for Vermont when he was asked about flooded roads and washed out bridges.

The impact of Belle, which made its first landfall on suburban Long Island severe as had been expected in the metropolitan area. But it was bad enough to flood basements, snarl traffic and leave hundreds of thousands of people without electricity after fallen trees snapped power lines.

"God was with us," said Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso this morning. Observers said the worst of the storm, which had packed winds of up to 110 miles an hour during its threeday journey up the Atlantic Coast, was over by noon.

But the danger of flooding from heavy rains remained and flash flood watches were posted in parts of Connecticut, Massachusetts and northern New England. Five to eight inches of rain were expected in Connecticut; up to six inches was predicted for Ver-

Osgood said almost all the towns from the Massachusetts line to Shrewsbury, Vt., about 12 miles south of Rutland, were threatened by severe flooding. The National Weather Service advised that the storm would intensify, not abate as expected, before moving northward out of the area.

At 6 a.m. the center of the storm was near Springfield, Mass. "It's lost its punch," said Tony Gregory, a weather service forecaster in Boston. "It will weaken quite rapidly as it moves over the

Only one fatality was directly attributed to the storm, the first major hurricane to hit New York since Donna killed 36 persons in 1960. A 19year-old Long Island woman, out to see the storm, was hit by a falling

The Deerfield River in the Green Mountains of Vermont overflowed its banks and the National Weather Service urged valley residents to evacuate their homes. By 7 a.m., the ches of rain on New York City overnight, had left 4.3 inches in West Dover, Vt., and 3.3 inches in Becket,

Dozens of families in southern Vermont were evacuated from their homes and major highways were cut off as Connecticut River tributaries

Seventy flights were canceled at Boston's Logan International Airport, many of them because the planes had been ferried to other airports for safekeeping. Many morning flights at the Albany, N.Y., Airport also were canceled.

Temporary power outages were widespread — almost 228,000 without in electricity in Connecticut, 60,000 blacked out on Long Island, 25,000 in Rhode Island, 20,000 to 30,000 in the lower Hudson Valley of New York, 10,000 in New Jersey.

The Boardwalk in Atlantic City. N.J., was severely damaged. One witness said the torn-up sections "looked like a roller coaster."

Conrail canceled service to New York City on the New Canaan, Conn., commuter line of its New Haven division because of a power failure. The other New Haven branch — the Danbury one - was in service, as was the main New Haven to New York line and the Harlem and Hudson Divi-

The east-west roads across Central Park in New York City were closed by flooding, as were some sections of suburban parkways. Most of the trouble was cleared up before noon, however. Police in Connecticut said all major roads were clear.

Belle entered Connecticut at Nor walk, a New York City suburb, and was rapidly reduced to a tropical storm as it moved inland. Winds ac-companying the storm briefly reached a high of 81 miles per hour, reported in Bridgeport, but dropped to 50 m p h by early morning to 50 m.p.h. by early morning.

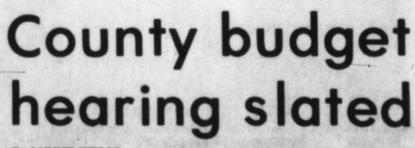

Frank Mancuso, director of the Connecticut Office of Civil Preparedness, said it would take several days to estimate wind and water damage. He said the worst crop damage probably was to peaches and Mancuso said 2,500 persons were evacuated from coastal and inland areas threatened by flooding. Schools and other municipal buildings became shelters. A group of Girl Scouts from Camp Laurel in Lebanon, Conn., spent the night in the local elementary school.

State police said damage was far less than expected. Mancuso agreed, but added: "How big is a storm? There are 227,400 without power. We were prepared. And we're glad it wasn't worse.

New York officials had no preliminary estimate of the over-all damage. But the Long Island Light

The county anticipated $3,757,244.34 in financial resources, from such sources as ad valorem taxes and receipts such as fees, fines and revenue sharing funds.

Midland County expects to recieve $267,698 in general revenue sharing funds, which is budgeted for the Meals on Wheels program and various permanent improvements to county-owned property.

"We plan to set the same 95 cent tax rate and use the same 32 per cent in assessing we have had for several years," Judge Culver said. "This means no raise in county taxes."

According to the proposed budget, the county would end the year with a surplus of about $150,000, provided the likes of 45 costumed pioneer some unexpected expense does not occhildren, but my favorite event of the Judge Culver said some surplus is necessary in the budget, because something always develops that costs the county money.

Another expense Midland County must plan for in 1977 is $115,000 for payments on courthouse and jail

Some of the larger items in the budget include $717,367 for ad-ministrative and road expenses of the county Road and Bridge Department; $502,683 for the Sheriff's Department and operating expenses of the County Jail; $300,252 for the County Library; $243,000 for the Tax Assessor-Collector's Office and $157,168 for the

The jury apparently believed the Harrises' contention that Miss Hearst, a codefendant, willingly took part in the shooting that led to the assault charges.

The jury delivered its verdict unaware of a controversy about possible bias against the Harrises. Without dismissing the jury and ending the trial, the judge scheduled an unusual hearing today to in-

This was the scene today after Hurricane Belle struck the Long Island town of Freeport.

In a surprise move, the jurors asked and were permitted to remain sequestered at a guarded hotel overnight to prevent contact with publicity they were ordered to avoid.

The sources of possible jury bias included reports of the construction of two mock hangman's nooses by potential jurors, the smuggling of an inflammatory newspaper article into a jury room and an allegedly biased remark by a juror who took part in the

"I don't think this verdict will stand in any court," said chief defense attorney Leonard Weinglass. "...It was the most tainted of verdicts."

Unless the verdict is set aside, Weinglass said he would appeal on numerous grounds.

Chief prosecutor Sam Mayerson said if prejudice were shown at the jury hearing he would join in a motion to set aside the verdict and seek a new

The soft-spoken ex-Shakespearean scholar also noted communities like Sterling City provide much of the spiritual strength of America and an abiding demonstration of the value and the appeal of the fellowship and involvement of the small town.

It's been my experience in recent months that small towns provide most of the best barbecue too. Two 30-foot hooded pits were stuffed with toothsome flesh simmering in its own juices, and it seemed every bit of it would be needed to satisfy what must have been nearly 3,000 neighbors and hungry visitors.

Bonham group to fight all three plans

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

A group consisting predominantly of parents from the Bonham Elementary School area agreed Monday night to oppose all three desegregation plans submitted by the Midland school board to federal court.

Most of the discussion at the meeting, attended by approximately 120 persons, centered on plan J-1, which would create sixth grade annexes to junior high schools. Bonham would become the annex for Alamo Junior High School.

But the group in an overwhelming vote agreed to oppose the plans C-1 and C-2 also. Plan C-1 would cluster the fifth and sixth grades of Washington, Travis and South elementary schools at a re-opened Bunche Elementary School. Plan C-2 would reassign fifth and sixth graders at De Zavala Elementary School to Bowie and Houston elementary

In discussing plan, J-1, one parent commented on the inconvenience of providing transportation for her children to another elementary school if Bonham were made an annex, requiring reassignment of grades one through five.

Another parent said she did not want her children to attend Jane Long Elementary School because she does not want her children in open classrooms.

Roy Marshall, who called the meeting, suggested several ways sixth graders could be integrated without creating annexes. They in-cluded using the Carver and Bunche facilities and using temporary buildings, either at Carver or on junior high school property.

The group agreed to form a committee, to be appointed by Marshall, to gather information and work with other committees formed by eastside and southside persons A large number of those attending signed a petition in favor of neighborhood schools which was written by Mr. and Mrs. Gary Thurman.

Trustees David Grimes and James Ramsoure attended the meeting. They said they were attending as individuals rather than board

A number of persons attending asked the two school board members uestions about the plans and how they could address the board. Grimes encouraged them to attend today's school board meeting

"The school board is open and they are not secret," he said.

Susan Edwards, executive director of the Human Relations Council, urged citizens to get official information about the plans. "I'm concerned that people may be acting without sufficient information," she said.

The council has been available for about a week and a half to answer questions about the plans. Mrs. Edwards aaid the response has not been large, but many of those calling have said they favor plan J-1 as the most equitable of the three plans.

Before agreeing to oppose all three plans, the group discussed a suggestion that it support plan C-1 in light of acceptance of that plan by a predominantly Negro group meeting Monday night.

Dr. Viola Coleman, Negro physician who presided at that meeting, said her group would discourage such an endorsement.

The plan, she said, was accepted "with reservations," because it accomplished what the group went to court to do in 1971 — keep Washington open and re-open Bunche rather than bus children from that neighborhood

The plan does bus children from Travis and South and "the success of that plan must depend on the willingness of the parents from Travis and South to bus their children into Bunche," Dr. Coleman said.

She said the parents from those two schools should be "as free as we were" to oppose one-way busing.

Although it accepted C-1, the group which met Sunday night was "unalterably opposed" to plan J-1 because the group foresees the possibility of including more grades in that plan and requiring more "one-way busing." Dr. Coleman said.

"We are through with one-way busing." she emphasized.

After the meeting, Grimes said the gathering was "part of the process" of informing the community of the plans. Many of those present were exposed to the content of the plans for the first time, he said.

Dead woman, children found

MARIETTA, Okla. (AP) - An officer who stopped a car for possible traffic violations found the beaten body of a Texas woman and four huddled children in the trunk early today, police said.

The driver of the auto fled into a brushy area near this town just above the Texas border and eluded a search by officers.

Love County Sheriff Wesley Liddell said Teresa Vaughn, 23, of Gainesville. Tex., apparently was beaten to death. Her body and her four children, ranging in age from 3 to 8. were found in the car's trunk by Patrolman Jack Caldwell, the sheriff

Love County deputies and Marietta officers were searching for Donald Vaughn, 36, also of Gainesville.

Liddell said a truck driver spotted the car stopped in the middle of a Marietta street about 12:30 a.m. and called police. Caldwell responded and followed as the auto made erratic movements north on U.S. 77.

"Caldwell and the truck driver followed the car out of town and stopped it" about four miles north of Marietta, the sheriff said. "The subject walked back to Caldwell and handed him his driver's license." As the officer looked into the car, the driver "took off running into the brush." the sheriff said. Officers found no trace of the driver despite an all-night search. Sheriff Liddell said the driver's license bore the name of Donald Vaughn.

The four children were placed in the children's shelter at Ardmore, Okla., and Mrs. Vaughn's body was taken to Oklahoma City for an autopsy, Liddell

Woman injured in auto crash

A Midland woman and her daughter were being treated for undetermined injuries early this morning at Midland Memorial Hospital following a two-car collision at the intersection of Oak and Main streets.

Midland's Red Cross seeks disaster relief contributions

The National Red Cross is conducting a campaign to raise $10 million for disaster relief, according to Ray P. Moudy, chairman of the Midland County chapter of the Red

The campaign has become necessary since resources currently available to the Red Cross are inadequate to support its expenses and-or commitments of more than $33 million for this year. Moudy noted that the $33 million, an all-time record high for disaster relief, is due to the unprecedented number of major disasters confronting the organization during the current fiscal year. Moudy said Midlanders seeking to aid in the disaster relief may send their checks, earmarked for disaster relief, to the Midland County Chapter, American Red Cross, P. O. Box 1706, Midland, Texas 79701. The annual report of the Midland County chapter shows six board members reelected. They include M. G. Cole, communications supervisor at the Texas Department of Public Safety: Paul W. Cooper, equipment chief at Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.; George R. Gibson, geological consultant; Mrs. Lynn Hunt; James R. Tom, financial consultant; and R. E. Womack, senior vice-president at Commercial Bank and Trust Co.

Bobby R. Edwards, a well test engineer for Northern Natural Gas Co. and a multimedia first aid instructor, was elected to the board to fill the unexpired term of Perry E.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) -Juvenile authorities held a 16-year-old youth today in connection with an auto crash that killed four teenagers and injured 14 others. Officers said the crash occurred about, another car moving at high speed roared through the spectators, authorities said. "It was just a tremendous impact,

If more steers are fed to full weight that will add about 50 pounds per carcass, notes the Agrciulture Department's Hoffman. At 40 million head slaughtered, upping the average weight by 50 pounds is a "lot of beef," he says.

Even so, Hoffman expects reduced supplies of beef - and higher prices - soon after Labor Day. Hespe of Dean, Witter expects they will start a serious rise much later probably not until winter.

Finney, of the Cattlemen's Association, said that the latest government figures show that cattle are being slaughtered faster than his group had projected. While this has kept cattle prices do 'compounding the already difficult price problems of cattle producers and feeders, 'also means that the industry may get well sooner than many people had expected" as herds are reduced more quickly than expected.

This is one driver who won't be hurt if America's oil companies are broken up.

However, if your car runs on gasoline...

There's a lot of talk in Congress these days about divestiture-breaking up America's oil companies. Some people claim this would lower oil prices. Exxon doesn't think it would. In fact, divestiture could put our country's economy on the same course as Junior's sidewalk racer—speeding downhill.

Tossing a good system out the window.

Breaking up companies like Exxon would shatter the most important benefits we offer: the experience, reliability and efficiency with which we serve you.

The key to this efficiency is something called vertical integration. More than 50 oil companies have integrated three or more phases of the oil business-exploration and production, transportation, refining, and marketing. Without this integrated system, layers of middlemen would enter the petroleum supply chain and efficiency would go out the window. The result: needless gasoline price increases

It's worth noting that some 15 major U.S. industries, including autos, steel, textiles, rubber, food and newspapers also find vertical integration the most efficient way to do business.

More dependence on foreign oil.

Breaking up America's oil companies would also mean becoming more dependent on high-priced foreign oil. This is because divestiture would cause years of confusion and litigation. With the future structure of the industry unclear, few companies could commit to the risks and the huge investments it takes to explore for and develop new reserves of oil. As a result, domestic energy production would drop and more oil would have to be imported.

Thousands of competitors.

Finally, many who advocate breaking up the oil companies do so in the name of creating more competition.

The truth is America's oil companies comprise one of the most competitive industries in the world. More than 10,000 companies explore for and produce natural gas and oil. Over 100 companies operate interstate oil pipelines. Some 130 companies compete in the petroleum refining business. 15,000 companies sell bulk petroleum products. About 300,000 independent retail outlets sell gasoline. And no company in any of these areas has as much as 10 percent of the business. Breaking up the oil companies would not change any of these percentages. There would still be the same number of companies competing at each level.

In short, breaking up the oil companies would not increase competition. It would increase our dependence on imported oil. Today, more than ever, we should be building up America's energy capability...not breaking it up.

Jury returns indictments

BIG LAKE-The grand jury for the 83rd Judicial District returned four indictments in a session Monday.

Ronnie Truitt, 29, of San Angelo, was indicted on a charge of murder and carrying a gun on licensed premises in an alleged shooting death at a bar at Big Lake.

Burglary indictments were returned against Alfred Joe Quick, 30, and Willis Derrell Branch, 21, both of Midland, in connection with the burglary of Community Baptist Church near Stiles.

An indictment of theft of a pickup truck was also returned Gerald Robert Boylan, 20, of Illinois. Boylan pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced by District Judge William H. Earney of Marfa to two years in Texas State Penitentiary at Huntsville.

PBRPC to discuss air terminal

An application by the City of Midland for $2,299,895 from the Federal Aviation Administration for improvements to the Midland Regional Air Terminal Building and area will be studied at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday by directors of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

The City of Midland would con-tribute $2,386,098 on the project, for a total of $4,685,993.

Included in the improvements are remodeling of the Terminal Building to provide second-level departure areas and holding room, second-level parking, pedestrian bridges to serve the proposed parking area, new second-floor offices and needed building roof repairs. An additional improvement is the widening of the ticketing lobby.

PBRPC directors also will study two applications by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation for funds from the Federal Highway Administration. One application is for $265,000 for a construction project on FM 3334 in Reeves County, from 5.1 miles west of Texas 17, west 2.8 miles to FM 2903. Reeves County would furnish a minimum of 120 feet of right-of-way for the two traffic lane project. The other application to the FHA is for $377,000 for a construction project on FM 2052 in Dawson County. The

Mercury stays in high range

Hot temperatures once again beat down upon residents of the Permian Basin area, and no promise of a let-up is coming any time soon, according to the National Weather Service.

Early morning temperatures were in the 60s across most of the area. Skies were clear and winds were calm in Lamesa, Crane, Stanton, Rankin and Big Lake. Only Andrews reported a slight morning breeze.

The Weather Service said tonight's temperatures should be in the upper 60s again, with the mercury climbing to the mid-90s on Wednesday. The southerly winds tonight will decrease to 10 to 15 mph throughout the region. Texas weather stayed dry and scorching hot today, the Associated Press

A few thundershowers teased the northwest part of the Panhandle during the night, but none delivered appreciable moisture. Skies were monotonously clear except for a few scattered clouds over Texas-New Mexico border, and mostly south breezes fanned the state at less than 10 miles per hour.

Dead woman, children found

MARIETTA, Okla. (AP) - An officer who stopped a car for possible traffic violations found the beaten body of a Texas woman and four huddled children in the trunk early today, police said.

The driver of the auto fled into a brushy area near this town just above the Texas border and eluded a search by officers.

Love County Sheriff Wesley Liddell said Teresa Vaughn, 23, of Gainesville, Tex., apparently was beaten to death. Her body and her four children, ranging in age from 3 to 8, were found in the car's trunk by Patrolman Jack Caldwell, the sheriff

Love County deputies and Marietta officers were searching for Donald Vaughn, 36, also of Gainesville.

Liddell said a truck driver spotted the car stopped in the middle of a Marietta street about 12:30 a.m. and called police. Caldwell responded and followed as the auto made erratic movements north on U.S. 77.

"Caldwell and the truck driver followed the car out of town and stopped it" about four miles north of Marietta, the sheriff said. "The subject walked back to Caldwell and

handed him his driver's license." As the officer looked into the car, the driver "took off running into the brush." the sheriff said. Officers found no trace of the driver

despite an all-night search, Sheriff Liddell said the driver's license bore the name of Donald Vaughn. The four children were placed in the children's shelter at Ardmore, Okla., and Mrs. Vaughn's body was taken to Oklahoma City for an autopsy, Liddell

Woman injured in auto crash

A Midland woman and her daughter were being treated for undetermined injuries early this morning at Midland Memorial Hospital following a two-car collision at the intersection of Oak and Main streets.

Injured in the accident were Mrs. Christine Soloman, 52, and her daughter Iola D. Prince, 19, both of 406 Cedar St.

Patrolman E. L. Houchins investigated the accident and said the women's injuries appeared to be of a minor nature.

Houchins said the accident occurred when a vehicle driven by Albert Ray Prince, 20, of 406 E. Cedar St., and a vehicle driven by Charles R. Alexander, 17, of 2801 Delano St.,

The campaign has become necessary since resources currently available to the Red Cross are inadequate to support its expenses and-or commitments of more than $33 million for this year. This is one driver who won't be hurt if America's oil companies are broken up.

However, if your car runs on gasoline...

There's a lot of talk in Congress these days about divestiture-breaking up America's oil companies. Some people claim this would lower oil prices. Exxon doesn't think it would. In fact, divestiture could put our country's economy on the same course as Junior's sidewalk racer—speeding downhill.

Tossing a good system out the window.

Breaking up companies like Exxon would shatter the most important benefits we offer; the experience, reliability and efficiency with which we serve you.

The key to this efficiency is something called vertical integration. More than 50 oil companies have integrated three or more phases of the oil business-exploration and production, transportation, refining, and marketing. Without this integrated system, layers of middlemen would enter the petroleum supply chain and efficiency would go out the window. The result: needless gasoline price increases.

It's worth noting that some 15 major U.S. industries, including autos, steel, textiles, rubber, food and newspapers also find vertical integration the most efficient way to do business.

More dependence on foreign oil.

Breaking up America's oil companies would also mean becoming more dependent on high-priced foreign oil. This is because divestiture would cause years of confusion and litigation. With the future structure of the industry unclear, few companies could commit to the risks and the huge investments it takes to explore for and develop new reserves of oil. As a result, domestic energy production would drop and more oil would have to be imported.

Thousands of competitors.

Finally, many who advocate breaking up the oil companies do so in the name of creating more competition.

The truth is America's oil companies comprise one of the most competitive industries in the world. More than 10,000 companies explore for and produce natural gas and oil. Over 100 companies operate interstate oil pipelines. Some 130 companies compete in the petroleum refining business 15,000 companies sell bulk petroleum products. About 300,000 independent retail outlets sell gasoline. And no company in any of these areas has as much as 10 percent of the business. Breaking up the oil companies would not change any of these percentages. There would still be the same number of companies competing at each level.

In short, breaking up the oil companies would not increase competition. It would increase our dependence on imported oil. Today, more than ever, we should be building up America's energy capability . . . not breaking it up.

Schweiker's impact varies

By GEORGE SKELTON
The Los Angeles Times

One week before the Republican National Convention begins, there still is no hard evidence that Sen. Richard S. Schweiker is carrying his weight as Ronald Reagan's running mate — let alone helping to push the ticket toward victory.

The senator may not be excess baggage either in Reagan's uphill, last gasp sprint for the Republican presidential nomination, but that is not good enough—not in helping attract the number of new delegates that Reagan needs to overtake President Ford before the roll is called at Kansas City.

An analysis

SCHWEIKER'S IMPACT on delegates varied from state to state during Reagan's just-completed, four-day campaign swing his last prior to the convention.

day campaign swing, his last prior to the convention.

The new Reagan-Schweiker team met privately with delegates in five states. Subsequent interviews with 60 delegates in three states indicated general disapproval in Mississippi, mixed feelings in Pennsylvania and enthusiasm in West Virginia.

What it netted out to was only four more delegates committed publicly to Reagan — two in New York and one each in New Jersey and West Virginia. (There were promises of more to come this week.)

This meant that since Reagan's surprising announcement two weeks ago that he had chosen the liberal Pennsylvanian as his running mate — in a bold move to pry delegates away from Ford in the Northeast — the conservative Californian has been able to cite only 11 additions to his delegate column.

(The names of eight others also were disclosed, but they already were being counted for Reagan on a number of delegate lists.)

Delegate counts vary, but every independent survey shows Ford ahead. With 1,130 delegates needed to be nominated, the Associated Press calls it Ford 1,103, Reagan, 1,035, and uncommitted 121. United Press says it is Ford 1,120 Reagan, 1,038, and uncommitted 101.

The consensus of most neutral political observers

The consensus of most-neutral political observers is that while Ford is a slight favorite, the contest-still is too close to call.

Whether Schweiker's selection is the political coup of the century will not be known until at least the Mississippi delegation caucuses Sunday night, and perhaps not until the convention roll is called three nights later.

RIGHT NOW, Reagan and Ford seem like two boxers who have clinched at the bell and just returned to their respective corners in Los Angeles and Washington to rest before coming out for the final round next week in Kansas City.

Interviews with delegates in Mississippi, Pennsylvania and West Virginia — three states that span the Republican philosophical spectrum — failed to reveal any single pattern of thinking concerning Schweiker. But there were some common trains of thought, a few of them contradictory:

Many delegates felt Schweiker had sacrificed his liberal principles in order to gain Reagan's acceptance, and they did not respect him for it.

"If he were elected Vice President and something happened to Reagan, who knows what he would do? If somebody made him an offer he couldn't refuse, he might sell the country out," asserted Roy E. Dixon, 64, a Philadelphia bar and restaurant owner.

Dixon, a Ford delegate, said he always had backed Schweiker in the past, but added, "He is finished as far as I'm concerned. Trying to pull a trick like that doesn't show too much integrity. It shows whatever is beneficial to him, he'll do."

SEVERAL DELEGATES criticized Schweiker for telling conservative Southerners that some of his liberal Senate votes were mere "acts of symbolism," necessary politically because he represented labororiented Northerners, and for indicating he would be more moderate in representing a national constituency.

"That I don't go for at all. If he has to vote, he

"That I don't go for at all. If he has to vote, he ought to vote his convictions," said Daley Miller, treasurer of the Republican Party in Pennsylvania and a Ford supporter.

An uncommitted Mississippian, banker Jim Speed, said, "If he is a liberal, tell us he is a liberal. I want him to show his colors."

A minority were disappointed in Reagan because they believed he had gone back on his word to choose a philosophically compatible running mate.

"It's not so much Sen. Schweiker, but that Gov. Reagan would do such a thing," said Mrs. Jan Rasch of Vicksburg. Miss., who switched from pro-Reagan to uncommitted after Schweiker's selection.

However, a significant number, chiefly in Pennsylvania, accepted the Schweiker move as politically justified.

"If you're being considered for one of the highest offices in the land, you can't be blamed for reevaluating your positions a little," said uncommitted delegate Kathy L. Hewston, a Greensburg, Pa., teacher.

Further, many delegates, largely in Pennsylvania and West Virginia, agreed it was high time the Republican Party began forging a coalition made up of conservatives and liberals, Southerners, Vesterners and Northeasterners.

Vesterners and Northeasterners.

"If Democrats can go all the way from (Mississippi Sen. John C.) Stennis (to Minnesota Sen. Walter F.) Mondale (the Democratic vice presidential nominee), we ought to be able to do the same thing. Democrats have been in power a long time. Maybe they're doing something right," said uncommitted delegate David E. Wade, a Harrisburg,

FOR MANY UNCOMMITTED delegates, the determining factor in their convention vote will come down to practical politics: Which candidate has the best chance of beating Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter.

Pa., printing shop owner.

"I have got to grapple with the issue of who can win in November. That's the most important thing to me," said Joday Smirl of Huntington, W.Va., who added, "One week I lean one way, the next week I lean the other."

A substantial number said they were being guided by the desires of their friends and neighbors, the people who elected them as delegates — an indication of representative democracy at work.

"As soon as Reagan announced his vice presidential choice, I got so many calls. They told me in no uncertain terms that I couldn't support Reagan. I had to go for Ford. I had been uncommitted and trying to keep an open mind," said housewife Ethel Zook of conservative Lancaster, Pa.

SOME DELEGATES were impressed by Schweiker in their meetings with him.

"I was leaning toward President Ford. But now I'm leaning straight up and down. I think Sen. Schweiker is a very genuine man," said Robert Harman, a Keyser, W.Va., school administrator.

While there was disagreement over Reagan's selection, the overwhelming majority of delegates interviewed praised the concept of a candidate announcing his running mate ahead of the convention. Many called on Ford to do the same. (The President has said he won't.)

Lobbyist attacks judges

The Washington Post ATLANTA — Civil rights lobbyist Clarence Mitchell has charged that some federal judges are using their judicial positions to discredit civil rights laws and the lawyers who try to enforce them. "There are too many judges who seem to regard their courtrooms as forums for expressing unfair criticism of civil rights legislation," Mitchell said.

Mitchell. Washington representative of the NAACP, made the charge in a speech to the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, which is meeting here in connection with the American Bar Association Convention

The committee, formed by bar leaders in 1963 at the request of President Kennedy, has financed major civil rights litigation in the South and several northern cities.

Mitchell cited a recent opinion by U.S. District Court Judge D. Dortch Warriner in Richmond, Va., as an example of utterances he said were "made primarily to em-barrass lawyers handling civil rights cases and to slow down efforts to achieve a full measure of civil rights protection."

Warriner ruled June 1 in favor of a white job ap-plicant who charged job favoritism for female workers. In his opinion the judge said, "The primary, the only beneficiaries of 'affirmative action' plans are the thousands of persons engaged in the civil rights business bureaucrats, lawyers, lobbyists and politicians.

Mitchell, a lawyer who has worked for passage of the major civil rights legislation of the past two decades, said it was "unethical" for judges to go beyond the confines of the cases before them in order to make such comments. He said judges who do so "must know that their remarks will be picked up by the press and published widely." Discrimination persists in the federal course of southern and border states, Mitchell said partly because senators from those states "will not recommend blacks for appointment."

Rapping the Ford Administration for recent proposed anti-busing legislation, Mitchell said he felt recently "for the first time in many years" that civil rights forces did not have "a national administration that is fully committed to the im-plementation of existing laws and favorable court

Many balk at fleeing hurricane

By The Associated Press

They all had their own reasons, the many who refused to flee the path of Hurricane Belle.

Many residents of low-lying areas from the Outer evacuate to safer quarters. Banks of North Carolina to the New England shores of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts stubbornly refused to evacuate their homes, despite warnings that the results could be disastrous.

Other people felt drawn toward the rampaging wind and rain, like children in calmer times who stand bravely at the edge of the water until a wave rolls up on the beach and chases them away.

Many said they were ready for anything the storm could give them - they had done it before and didn't believe in panicking. One motive was hardly a matter of bravado. Many were scared of looters if their homes were abandoned

Mrs. Margaret Smith of Dennisport, Mass., spent the morning in the supermarket, loading up on bottled water and soup. "We're battening down the hatches," she said. "We'll be ready for anything

In Narragansett, R.I., police wrote down names of those who refused to leave their homes after the town council president declared a state of emergency and ordered residents to evacuate.

In several small communities around Charlestown, R.I., police had to issue a direct order before residents consented to leave. "People have ridden it out before, and they figure they can ride it out again," said one officer who noted many elderly residents were reluctant to leave antiques in their homes unprotected.

Seven families on Pilots Point in Connecticut and five or six residents, some of them elderly, of a nearby mobile home park in Westbrook, Conn., also refused to heed warnings to leave.

"There's nothing we can do legally to force them out," said State Police Commissioner Edward

After one week of intensive investigation, the source of the legion outbreak remains a mystery. The medical researchers have all but ruled out viruses, bacteria or a fungus. They are focusing on a toxin, or poison. Among those being considered are heavy metals, insecticides and herbicides.

I've been a waitress for many years in two of Seattle's finest restaurants, and it positively infuriates me when a lady speaks to me through her escort as though I am not good enough for her to speak directly to.

Ford forces battle Reaganite pressure

By WALTER R. MEARS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) -President Ford's campaign strategists, trying to counter a move to require advance announcement of his vice presidential choice, are holding out the longshot possibility that Ronald Reagan might wind up as his running mate.

That couldn't happen if the choice had to be disclosed before the presidential nomination is settled so the Ford men say some Reagan delegates may wind up voting against the rule proposed by the challenger's campaign manager.

They're ready to fight all week and they may have to - against the vice presidential rule proposed by John P. Sears, who wants the Republican National Convention to require that candidates name their running mate at least a half-day in advance of the roll call on the White House nomination

With that maneuver, and with pressure in the platform committee, the Reagan camp is testing Ford's clout in convention preliminaries. hoping to gain strength for the main

The process continued today, as a Republican rules committee considered a requirement that delegates be compelled to vote in accordance with the verdicts of binding primary elections in 20 states.

Otherwise, delegates now bound to one candidate by primary election could be freed to switch to the other. with Reagan the likely beneficiary. Ford supports the rule binding the delegate votes. Reagan opposes it.

The surprise vice presidential proposal Sears advanced on Monday would make the rule moot anyhow by declaring that no delegate could be bound to support a presidential candidate who failed to name his vice presidential choice by 9 a.m. on the day of presidential nomination, Aug. 18 in this case.

Reagan already has named his, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania. Ford has said he will stick to the traditional route and will disclose his choice after the presidential presidential nomination in forecasting defeat of the Sears

Reagan has said he would not accept the vice presidential nomination. and a top aide said he means it. Ford at one point said he accepted Reagan at his word. He now has asked for financial and health information from more than a dozen Republicans he is considering as possible vice presidential choices.

Richard Hermann of Lincoln, Neb., who is handling convention rules strategy for the Ford campaign, said that doesn't mean that Reagan is out as a potential running mate. Hermann said some Reagan delegates want their man in second place if he can't win the top spot, and therefore will vote against the Sears proposal.

Dean Burch, a former White House aide and another member of the Ford strategy panel, added that despite the customary denials "it is not unusual that candidates for president wind up on the same ticket.

The Sears maneuver was rejected by the rules panel of the Republican National Committee, but that was expected. White House loyalists dominate that committee. Sears said he would push the proposal again in the separate convention rules committee, where Reagan has more support although Ford delegates apparently are the majority.

And if necessary, Sears said, he will take the issue to the convention floor. That could produce a fight foretelling the presidential nominating vote.

Burch said a convention floor vote might be close, but he said Ford would win it. "I think this has simply got to be considered as a ploy, a gambit," he said.

Sears denied that his vice presidential proposal was designed to embarrass Ford or to gain votes for Reagan. He said the delegates have a right to know who they are voting for. for vice president as well as

"President Ford's committee has been anxious to say that they have the nomination all locked up, so I don't see how this could cause them any difficulty," he said. "Of course, we would dispute that.'

Sears claims Regan has more than enough votes to win the nomination.

The Associated Press delegate count shows Ford with 1,104 votes, 26 short of a nominating majority. Regan with 1,033, with 122 still uncommitted

Brooke, Brock box out of veep contest

WASHINGTON (AP) - As Ronald Reagan pressed President Ford to name his running mate, two senators Ford was considering for vice president said they don't want the second spot on the Republican ticket.

The two, Edward Brooke of Massachusetts and William Brock of Tennessee, said they would prefer to remain in the Senate rather than undertake a national campaign.

DPS says speeders winning

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)-Despite more than 700,000 speeding tickets a year, the Department of Public Safety is losing the fight to get Texans to obey the 55 miles per hour speed limit, Col. Wilson Speir says.

Speir. DPS director, said Monday he needs more troopers.

He acknowledged at a budget hearing Monday that he deliberately held down the DPS budget request for 1978-79 because of the "no new taxes" policy of Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

"I wanted real bad to request 100 (additional) troopers a year. .. I wish I had gone ahead and asked for the full 100," Speir said. In his budget document, he said Texas has half the troopers recommended by national standards. Speir said Texas has one patrol car unit for every 100 miles of highway. but that was on a 24-hour basis, "and you can't drive 24 hours a day.'

'There are not enough to hold the line on speeding. . . We are getting. behind. We do not have enough people to keep up with the increase in traffic," he said. Speir told reporters he hoped his agency would continue to receive the major part of its money from motor fuel taxes and license plate fees. Briscoe wants to cut the DPS' share from $70 million to $20 million a year as part of a plan to increase funds available for highways. "I feel it would be proper for us to continue to be funded from that source. We would hope, of course, to be funded from this source," Speir said in an interview following the hearing on the DPS money request by examiners for the governor and the Legislative Budget Board. 'If we are taken out, that would put us in the general revenue fund, which is a highly competitive fund . . . and somewhere down the line, the department could stand to get hurt."

Speir said. The DPS seeks a legislative appropriation of $89.9 million for 1978 and $97.6 million for 1979, an 18 per cent increase.

Included are 50 additional uniformed troopers each year, but only 26 would go to the highway patrol.

Others would be assigned to license and weights, driver licensing, motor vehicle inspection and special auto theft duties.

Noting that California has 5,000 troopers, he said he would like to see 1,000 men added to Texas' present force of 1,481 highway patrolmen, but this would cost $20 million a year.

Speir sought no increases in the 94man Texas Ranger force. He said a major priority was to increase salaries to a level that 'would equalize us with the City of

A highway patrolman with three years' experience would earn $15,108 in the first year and $15,624 in the second year of the biennium.

Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas and Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond also revealed Monday that they have been asked for personal information by the White House as part of Ford's effort to screen possible running mates.

The five joined Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa and Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson on the list of those who have admitted White House inquiries about their health and finances.

In Kansas City, Mo., where the GOP convention opens next Monday. Reagan forces stepped up their efforts to get Ford to name a running mate, as Reagan did in picking Pennsylvania Sen. Richard Sch-

Brock said in a letter to Ford that he would prefer to continue his campaign this fall for election to a second term from Te inessee.

"The senator feels obligated to the people of Tennessee to run for the Senate," said Brock spokesperson Susan Hammond. "He sent a letter to the President asking that his name be withdrawn.

Brooke, the only black member of the Senate, gave similar reasons:

"I am pleased by the President's inclusion of my name among others as a possible vice presidential running mate, but I am committed to running for re-election for the U.S. Senate in 1978 where I feel I can best serve the country, the people of Massachusetts and my party

Defense bill rests in conferees' hands

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate negotiators will take the next step toward a final decision on whether to begin production of the controversial B1 bomber.

The Senate gave 82 to 6 approval Monday to a $104-billion defense-spending bill that would prohibit the outlay of $1 billion for the B1 until after next Feb. 1.

But the vote on the B1 put the Senate bill in conflict with a defense bill passed by the House. On June 17 the House voted down an amendment that would have delayed orders for the first three B1 bombers until after the next presidential inauguration. That leaves it up to a House and Senate conference committee to negotiate the differences.

The conference is to begin after Congress returns Aug. 23 from a week's recess for the Republican National Convention

Supporters of the B1 delay said they wanted to give the president taking office next Jan. 20 a chance to decide whether a proposed fleet of 244 supersonic B1s is worth the estimated $22-billion price tag.

The Ford administration proposes to place initial orders for the first three planes in November. The Democratic party and its presidential nominee, Jimmy Carter, want a review of latest prototype flight test data early next year.

Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, a leading Senate critic of the B1, said the absence of a challenge on the Senate floor to the B1 postponement, recommended by the Senate Appropriations Committee, showed a solid Senate majority favors a delay in spending.
The $104-billion total in the Senate bill is $3.9 billion under Ford administration budget requests and $1.4 billion less than the total voted by the House. But the Senate total is $11.6 billion more than defense appropriations were for the 12 months

Court extends HRC contract

By LYNNE WELLS

The Midland County commissioners voted Monday to extend the county's contract with the Midland County Human Resource Center to Sept. 30, with no

The agreement provides Midland County will write the payroll and bill payment checks for the Human Resource Center and the three administrators of the Manpower program. The Manpower program also pays the county token rent on an office in the Midland County Courthouse Annex.

During the remaining two months of the agreement, Human Resource Center personnel will prepare to take over operation of the program, and give the county commissioners authority in hiring and firing employes and setting salaries.

The Commissioners Court, presided over by John Thomas in the absence of County Judge Barbara Culver, who is attending the Republican National Convention in Kansas City, Mo., heard bids for floor covering in office and working areas of the jailhouse. Sherwin-Williams was low bidder, giving a bid of $2,687, to cover the lobby, three offices, hallway, kitchen and dining area with industrial sheet vinyl. Other bidders were Canton Woodworks, $3,460; Mid-Tex, $4,248, and S&H Paint and Floor Covering,

No action was taken on the matter, however, because the commissioners want more information from Sherwin-William regarding mannor of installation and starting date and amount of time required to complete the job.

Thomas announced two public hearings in September scheduled by the Texas Department of High-ways and Public Transportation.

One is for the North Loop around Midland, set for Sept. 15 in the Midland City Council Chambers at City Hall. The other, for the Inter-City Loop between Midland and Odessa, will be Sept. 16 in the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale Building at the Midland Regional Air Terminal. Both hearings will begin at 7:30 p.m.

In other action, the commissioners: - Authorized the county auditor to advertise for bids for a new car for the county road and bridge superintendent

- Designated the 27 polling places for the Nov. 2 general election, and designated the county courthouse as the absentee voting polling place.

- Postponed action on setting fines for parking violations in the Courthouse parking lot until Assistant County Attorney Ron Tefteller draws up a

Stantonite flies to new record

OSHKOSM, Wis. - Leeon Davis, 46, of Stanton set a new world endurance record for a home-built airplane Saturday while fighting a stuck fuel gauge and fuel leak for 22 hours. Davis landed at 4:27 a.m. Saturday at Whittman Airport at Oshkosh after 15 laps of a course between Fond Du Lac, Wis., and Burlington, Wis. He covered 2,260 miles.

Davis estimated he had 20 gallons of gasoline left from the 84 he had when he took off in the all-metal airplane at 6:46 a.m. Friday.

The new record, if verified, would beat one set by Burt Rutan, who flew a Veri-Eze during the Experimental Aircraft Association at Oshkosh last Davis said his fuel gauge became stuck on take-off. leaving him solely dependent on computation to figure his gasoline consumption.

"To complicate the fuel problem, I had gas leaking periodically on my right leg in the cockpit the whole flight," Davis said.

Davis plans to return to Stanton sometime this week in time to enroll three of his children in school.

He had hoped to fly more than 30 hours.

Public plans in several large cities that grant pensions of over 100 per cent of final take-home pay might be considered

New York City union leader Victor Gotbaum said in a recent interview that the facts only show that workers in private industry are getting a raw deal, not that city workers are ripping

Others say that the sharp increases in city and state benefits, added to a 93.6 per cent rise in Social Security benefits in the last six years, created a postretirement bonanza for public workers that government at all levels will be hard pressed to pay for in future years.

Jump says that if a city or state provides Social Security coverage in addition to the basic pension and "if a person works for 30 years and retires at age 62, he's almost certain to get higher postretirement income than his after-tax final pay." "Personally I think that's too high,"

A hotel spokesman said little renovation was done to prepare the $325 per night suite for Ford and his family. But some changes were required on the suite down the hall, Royal Suite, which will be used as the presidential office for about a week during the convention. Desks and some of the presidential trappings, to make it more like the executive office, have been brought Meanwhile, challenger Roald Reagan, former California governor, will definitely not be roughing it. His $200 per night fiveroom Presidential Suite at the Alameda Plaza Hotel offers such amenities as six balconies, a large walk-in wet bar off the master bedroom and a full-size kitchen. For entertainment, if time permits, there is a baby grand piano in the living room, although a hotel spokesman admitted he doesn't know if any of the Reagans have the skills required for its use.

But Pat Greene, hotel resident manager, knows the makings of the lavish suite well since he did a large share of the decorating.

But he backs off a bit when asked what style decor the suite is.

"It's really a mixture." he explained. "A few pieces tend toward Queen Anne and a few pieces are mainly Mediterranean offered under some public employe retirement plans," Schmitt says.

The bottom line shows city or state employes often making more after they stop work than before, a rarity in

A study conducted in New York City this year by Mayor Abraham D. Beame's Management Advisory making $11,300 after 38 years' service and retiring at age 63 could count on retirement pay, including Social Security, equal to 106 per cent of his final take-home salary.

By contrast, the study found, workers at seven top corporations with similar salary and seniority get retirement benefits from 13 to 43 per cent below the New York City worker.

At Exxon, retirement pay, including Social Security, totals 82.9 per cent of final take-home salary; at General Motors, 93 per cent; at Union Carbide, 70.2 per cent; at AT&T, 67.1 per cent; at Con Edison, 73 per cent;

at Citibank, 84.8 per cent; and at Metropolitan Life, 64.6 per cent.

Another comparison drawn by Jump showed nonuniformed city workers who had been making $15,000 with 30 years' service at age 65 were getting 127 per cent of final after-tax pay in New York City, 116 per cent in Detroit and 129 per cent in Philadelphia, including Social Security benefits.

This beats even the best retirement deals offered in private industry, Jump says. At Eastman Kodak, a worker with similar salary and seniority would get 100 per cent of final after-tax pay in retirement benefits, Social Security included. Workers at New York Telephone likewise get 100 per cent.

At International Business Machines Corp., retirement benefits total 94 per cent of final pay, and at Bankers Trust of New York, the total is 99 per

Some city plans fall well below those levels. In Atlanta, a $15,000 nonuniformed worker with similar age and seniority gets 54 per cent of final takehome pay in retirement benefits, in Chicago 62 per cent, in Dallas 64 per cent, in Los Angeles 68 per cent and in Washington 64 per NASA's Viking spacecraft has landed on the surface of Mars. No small feat in itself.

Even more incredible is what its lander carries inside: a complete biological laboratory, capable of making three separate, sophisticated tests to discover if life exists on this forbidding red planet.

That lab is our baby. It was our assignment to work with the biological scientists, to figure out a way to miniaturize three rooms full of complex lab equipment — down to about one cubic foot, for space travel. We did it.

Soon after Viking landed, a sample of Martian soil was scooped up and measured amounts of it sent to three different places in our lab. Then the experiments began to discover if there are hard scientific answers to the questions and dreams of scientists and storytellers as far back as the Greek philosophers.

Does carbon-based life like ours exist on Mars? What we're looking for are micro-organisms. Tiny, tiny little bugs, if you will. Who knows, maybe even little green ones.

To be alive, an organism must consume something, and leave may not be asking the right some sign of having lived, breathed, eaten, reproduced. Finding evidence that those kinds of things have happened - or are happening - is precisely what our labs are designed

"In effect, we're going to give them 'chicken soup' — and see if they eat it!" one scientist said. The first experiment searches for signs of a life process we call photosynthesis. We'll offer any Martian micro-organisms an atmosphere containing carbon dioxide and carbon monoxide, seasoned with a radioactive tracer. Then check later to see if anything living consumed the mixture.

Another experiment searches for signs of metabolic activity. Metabolism is the process by which all organisms live on Earth. It is such metabolism that this experiment can detect, by offering Martian micro-organisms a meal of radioactive Carbon-14 organic compounds, then monitoring the experiment continually to see if any radioactive gases are released. The third experiment checks the environment offered to the micro-organisms to find out if it is altered by the presence of living somethings. We do this by placing the Martian soil sample in a sterile solution for an incubation period. Then if traces of, say, methane or hydrogen are found - and we don't find the same mixture in the "cooked" control sample something, indeed, may be alive in

Of course, these experiments questions.

But some good logic says we're on the right course.

On Earth, micro-organisms are our most widespread life forms. So we have assumed that life on Mars, if it exists, is reasonably similar to life here.

There are six other instruments in the lander besides our lab, all designed to do several very special scientific jobs. But the excitement of this incredible NASA mission is to look for signs of life on the surface of Mars itself. Very simple signs to be sure.

But since all life evolves from the simple towards the complex, the discovery of Martian microorganisms would be an astounding

The trip is more than just 400 million miles through space.

It is across centuries of time as well, as Earth man finally begins his first direct search for life on another planet.

Midland not Tall City in 1930's

By GEORGE JOHNSTON

For many college students, American history is just another one of those courses that must be studied in order to get a degree. But Dr. Geraldine Box, history instructor at Midland College, is trying to change that attitude. Dr. Box has recently begun some research on Midland during the 1930s because, she said, "I wanted to give my students some concrete examples of the New Deal era.,' Dr. Box first became interested in the New Deal recovery programs of the depression while a student at Texas Tech University.

"A friend of mine took me to her grandfather's farm near Ropesville. which was started by the government," she said.

While she has already uncovered a wealth of information about Midland in the 1930s, Dr. Box said she has only scratched the surface.

'For instance, I have found out that the school district had applied for Works Project Administration (WPA) funds in 1937 in order to build a new gymnasium and elementary school, but I haven't found out if the funds were granted or not.

The city was beginning to grow rapidly at the time - there were about people here and the elementary school and gymnasium had to be built whether the funds were granted or not, she added

Dr. Box also had not yet determined the exact date when oil was first discovered in the Permian Basin

"All I can tell is that it was in the 1920s because the first tall building in the city , the Petroleum Building, was constructed in 1929," she said.

closed after the stock market crash until 1933, when economic recovery

In the 1930s, the Petroleum Building, which was 12 stories, and the Thomason Building, which was six stories, were the only skyline Midland had, she added.

Some of the major highways in the city were built with government and WPA funds in order to get the workers to the oil fields, she said.

'The Andrews Highway," Mrs. Box said, " was built so the workers could get to oil sites in Ector and Andrews Counties," she said, adding that Odessa did not like the highway because they thought it would cut off their trade.

The Rankin highway was built and many of the city's streets were also paved with government funds, she The oil industry was not the only economic area that was assisted by the government during that time. Dr. Box said. Many farmers were about to lose their farms because they could not get any credit, she said. "Without any credit, the farmers could-not even buy the seed for their

"The Agriculture Adjustment Act - an act which supported prices if the farmers agreed to cut back on production - was greeted with enthusiam by farmers until it was ruled uncostitutional by the Supreme Court," she said.

The farmers, townspeople and the chamber of commerce held mass meetings and appealed to their College.

Also, a Hughes Tool Company was congressman, which was then and started at about the same time, but it still is George Mahon, to make the act constitutional.

And Congress did change the act enough to suit the Supreme Court, she added.

"Three-fifths of the farmers were tenant farmers and they expected to lose their farms when Franklin Roosevelt came into office," she said, "but by 1936, not one farm was for sale.

"They were becoming more optimistic.

It was interesting to see how the farm programs operated and to see the restriction placed on the farmers.

"They had to prove they were interested in farming and they would help to support their families," she said. For instance, the women had to can a certain amount of food each

The people of Midland were very industrious during the period and they would get behind every project, Dr. Box said

In June, 1935, she said, the people decided they wanted a fair, and in three months the fair grounds were completed with and exhibition build, a race track and many other facilities.

Dr. Box said she is mainly interested in the programs of the New Deal and how they affected the people of this area, but she is also interested in things that interest people.

If she is as interesting to her students as she was talking about her favorite subject, then history will not be "just another class" at Midland

AUSTIN (AP) - Houston lawyer Tom Lorance is officially a write-in candidate for the Texas Supreme Court, opposing the Democratic nominee, Don Yarbrough.

"There is a chance to right a wrong," Lorance quipped to reporters afterwards in reference to his race against Yarbrough Yarbrough, also a Houston lawyer,

Cotton vote on research fund planned

LUBBOCK - Cotton producers, possibly in December, will vote on whether to increase their investment in the cotton research and market development work of Cotton Incorporated.

Meanwhile, the same producers are being asked to indicate to the Cotton Board, the amount of the increase on which they wish to vote and whether they want the increase to be on a flat dollars-and-cents basis or on a percentage of bale value.

The legislation authorizing the vote only says the rate to be proposed in the referendum cannot exceed "one per cent of the cotton's value." Details of the supplemental rate, to be assessed in addition to the current dollar a bale contribution, are to be supplied by the Secretary of Agriculture.

The report of the Agriculture Committee of the House states "The Cotton Board would be expected to engage in such meetings or communications with cotton growers as it deems necessary to arrive at a rate or rate procedure for the recommendation to the Secretary.

In accord with this expectation of the House Agriculture Committee, coupled with an expressed desire to follow producer wishes, the Cotton Board is mailing questionnaires to an estimated 12,000 individual producers and has scheduled a series of 14 meetings with certified producer organizations across the Cotton Belt. The Cotton Board, made up of cotton producers appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture from nominees supplied by certified cotton interest organizations, manages producers funds and contracts with Cotton Incorporated to carry out approved programs.

The board is tentatively set to make its final recommendations with regard to the upcoming referendum following a meeting on Aug. 20.

The Board of Directors of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, one of the certified interest organizations, in July, 1975, adopted a policy favoring a producer vote on contributions based on a percentage of each bale's value at the time of sale. W.B. Criswell of Idalou, current president of PCG, which represents producers in a 25-county area surrounding Lubbock, thinks this policy, and the reasons behind its adoption, is worthy of producer study before filling out and returning individual questionnaires. "At first glance, it might seem that a flat rate assessment would be simpler and better," Criswell said, "but there are strong arguments in favor of a percentage-type contribution. The major consideration of the PCG Board in arriving at its position involves keeping, as nearly as possible, producer contributions on a fair and equitable basis, the PCG official points out. "Obviously it would not be fair for a producer of 100 bales to contribute the same dollar amount as the producer of 200 bales," he explains, "and it would be just as unfair for the producer who sells his cotton for $175 per bale to be assessed the same dollar figure as the one who sell for $350 per bale. Criswell also notes that a smaller per bale contribution when cotton prices are low would be less burdensome on producers, while larger payments when prices are high would be more acceptable. All producers will not receive a questionnaire, but any producer who wishes to comment is invited to write directly to the Cotton Board, Box 4948, Memphis, Tenn., 38104

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - This summer 1,095 school districts across Texas are working to prepare school budgets by an Aug. 20 deadline. In each one of those districts, the public is invited to review and comment on the budget in a public hearing.

Only most taxpayers don't understand the budget. and even if they do, they don't know how to judge whether it's a good budget or a bad one. This summer could be different, however, because the Texas Research League in Austin has prepared a publication called "Bench Marks for 1976-77 School District Budgets in Texas." In it, they tell the average citizen just how to compare their school district's budget to the rest of the state. This could be a particularly difficult job this year.

because the last session of the Texas legislature substantially changed the ground rules governing the distribution of atate aid to local districts. These changes were designed in part to correct some of the major defects in a "chaotic and unjust" financing aysten — so described by the Supreme Court in 1973 in Rodriguez ys. San Antonio.

The old system had forced poor districts to a high tax rate with low revenues for school funding, with the opposite true in rich districts. To correct this, the legislature made four major fiscal changes in the state aid program. It made estimated market value of taxable property the measure of a local district's ability to support the basic Foundation Program, or "floor spending level of all districts. It also expamded the Foundation Program in an effort to narrow the spending gap between districts. The average local share of the program was doubled to absorb some of the local tax money previously spent on "enrichment," and $50 million in state funds were provided to help equalize the enrichment spending above the Foundation Progran level. However, recognizing the impact of these major reforms, the legislature has spread the changes over a two-year period for some of the most favored districts under the old system.

The report states that most local districts had a increased state funding, including sharp salary boosts, through, and maintain the existing level of enrichment, or they could retain a spending level more nearly in line with the expanded Foundation Program.

But districts opting for the pass-throughs may be in for a shock this year when they pepare their budgets. These moves were planned to equalize spending in the state's districts, and the Research League points out that as the favored district protections are phasedout and a second step increase, in the local share of the Foundation Program is instituted, the moves "will produce some hard realities of 'equalization.'

State aid per student will be down in many districts, and that may mean either spending restraints or a tax increase, or both.

In judging an individual budget, it will be useful to compare the state as a whole. In 1975-76, the average expenditure in Texas was $1,343 per student, $146 more than was actually spent the year before.

Only 3 per cent of all districts, which included 0.4 per cent of all students, provided no enrichment funds at all. Most provided between $1 and $300 local enrichment, with the state average for all districts being $240. Nearly a third of the districts representing 40 per cent of the students, however, spent more than $300 per student above the state aid

Midland spent $279 per student in 1975-76 in local enrichment.

Salary costs, including faculty, staff and administration, amounted to about 70 per cent of local school budgets statewide, and thus was one of the prime determinants in school budgets.

The Research League outlines seven major questions to ask to get a good picture of your local school district budget.

1. Does the district project an increase in student attendance? 2. Does the district propose to reduce its ratio of pupils to professional personnel?

3. Does the district propose to increase current expenditures per student? 4. Is the district's estimate of state aid reasonable? (Multiply the estimated number of students in attendance by the district's projected state aid per student and compare with the district's estimate of total aid.)

5. Does the district expect to increase its enrichment per student? (Divide the estimated maintenance tax revenue by the projected number of students, subtract the estimated local share of the Foundation Program costs per student, and compare the result with the enrichment per student for the past year.)

6. If the district proposes to increase its salary schedule (so that professional employes will receive more than the normal increase for a year's experience), does the increase seem justified? Compare the district's average salary with that of the state and region, the increase in 1975-76 over the prior year, and the relation of the local schedule to the state minimum. Similar comparisons may also be made with other districts of the same general

How does the district's anticipated beginning balance for 1976-77 compare with its projected ended balance for 1975-76?

Candelaria tosses no-hitter at Dodgers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — It was "Candy Night" at Three Rivers Stadium and Pittsburgh Pirate lefthander John Candelaria gave everyone a treat.

The first 10,000 fans entering the stadium Monday night received a free candy bar in honor of the occasion and Candelaria followed that up by pitching a 2-0, no-hitter over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I've been dreaming about this since I was five years old," said the 22-year-old pitcher known as "The Candy Man" to Pirate fans. "I don't know if I'll come down. It's going to

Only in his second major league season, Candelaria, 11-4, became the first Pirate pitcher to throw a nohitter in Pittsburgh since Nick Maddox accomplished the feat at old Exposition Park in 1907.

He extended Los Angeles' losing streak to six games as he walked one batter and struck out seven. With the exception of the third inning, Candelaria retired the Dodgers in order.

A walk to Steve Yeager and two Pirate errors loaded the bases before Candelaria got Bill Russell to ground out to end the inning.

In the first inning, Al Oliver made a running grab of Davy Lopes' fly ball and Dave Parker made a shoestring catch of Ted Sizemore's sinking liner to snuff out possible hits.

Frank Taveras caught a line drive off Sizemore's bat in the sixth and Oliver ranged far to his left to make a running catch of Ron Cey's fly ball an inning later.

"If Cey pulled that ball a little more, it would have been in the seats," Candelaria said. "That was some catch." The last out in the ninth was also the last threat to the no-hitter. Russell

"I'm gonna drink beer all night," he said with a broad grin. "I don't think anyone can blame me.'

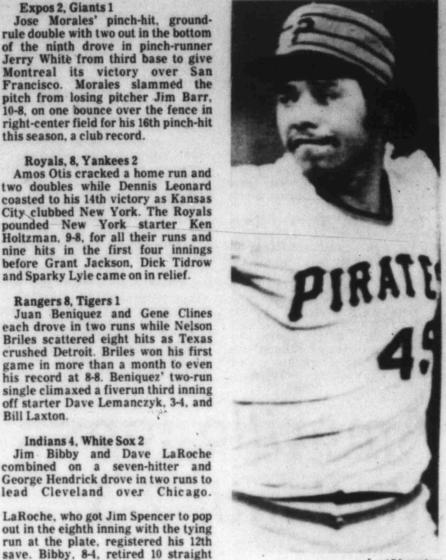

Before he left the stadium, Candelaria ducked into a photography darkroom adjoining the clubhouse where he called his mother in Staten Island, N.Y. She had seen the last three innings of the game on television.

"What do you think, mom?" he asked. "It's unreal. I still have time to close down a few bars.'

In other National League games, the Houston Astros routed the St. Louis Cardinals 13-4 and the Montreal Expos nipped the San Francisco Giants 2-1. In the American League, the Kansas City Royals beat the New York Yankees 8-2; the Texas Rangers crushed the Detroit Tigers 8-1 and the Cleveland Indians turned back the Chicago White Sox 4-2.

Astros 13, Cardinals 4 Cesar Cedeno drilled a home run, triple, double and single and knocked in five runs to help Houston beat St. Louis. Three of Cedeno's RBI came on a double in the seventh inning and snapped a 2-2 tie.

"The last time I hit for the cycle, it was tougher," said Cedeno. "I hit a double, home run and single and had to follow it up with a triple. These things are nice, but the big thing is to win. That's the only thing that

Ali to buy star house

MIAMI (AP) - Muhammad Ali says he'll buy a house for the family of sprinter Houston McTear with no expectations of being paid back because, "when you give from your heart, you don't need no return.

Ali said he made the decision recently after learning that the McTear family of 10 lived in a small rural home, called by some persons a shack, in the Florida Panhandle town

The National Football League preseason game proved nothing. since both coach Dick Vermeil of the Eagles and Chuck Noll of the Steelers were unable to evaluate the young talent striving to make both teams.

"I thought the winner tonight (Monday) was Hurricane Belle," said a disgusted Noll after his team drove 72 yards on nine running plays for the winning touchdown scored early in the fourth quarter.

"It was a very difficult game because the circumstances to look at people were less than favorable. said Noll. "You really didn't even get a chance to work on a rainy day offense, because usually it rains only a little bit. The ball got heavier and heavier as the game went on, and it certainly was difficult to evaluate anybody.

Noll's view must have been a disappointment to rookie running backs Jack Deloplaine, a sixth-round draft choice from Salem (W. Va.) College, and Tommy Reamons from Missouri.

Deloplaine carried the ball 14 times over the slippery surface for 83 yards, including a 20yard run for the winning TD. Reamon gained 29 yards on six

As a matter of fact, in the Steelers' 72-yard winning drive, Deloplaine carried four times for 44 yards, and

Reamon five times for 28. The 205-pound Deloplaine, who gained some 80 yards against New Orleans, was more upset about a punt that he botched, than the fine running he did against the Eagles. He did think his chances of making the team were better, as a special team performer than as a running back. The NFL champion Steelers are pretty solid with such runners as Franco Harris, Rocky Bleier, John Fuqua, Reggie Harrison and Mike Collier. 'It was slipperier than hell out

Jones needs racing win this month

LEXINGTON, Ohio (AP) - A commitment to drive in the Dutch Grand Prix and the failure to get on the track in Sunday's Formula 5000 race at Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course has dimmed Formula 5000 series points coleader Alan Jones' assault on the season championship.

Jones, of London, England, went to Sunday's fifth race of the season at Mid-Ohio a favorite to take the championship with 84 points to 60 for fellow Briton Jackie Oliver, 48 for Al Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., and 44 for Brian Redman of Skipton,

But Jones ran into shifting problems in a heat race before Sunday's 100.8-lap feature. His crew tore down the gearbox, but couldn't get it back together in time for the race, and Jones found himself in a tie for the lead with Oliver at 84 points each. Oliver finished second behind Redman, who now is close on the heels ofthe leaders with 80 points.

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) -Eddie Sawyer, the former college professor who managed the 1950 Philadelphia Phillies to the National League pennant, came here to see one of his Whiz Kids nducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame.

"Late in '48 I knew he'd make it big," said Sawyer following the in-duction of Robin Roberts and five others into the Hall of Fame Monday. "We brought him up from Wilmington (Del.) of the old Interstate League. One of our coaches, Cy Perkins, who knew pitching, watched him pitch two games and said, 'This kid can't Sawyer added, "He had ability and desire. He wanted to pitch every day. If we had 20 players like him there would have been no stopping us. He made my job easy."

The former Ithaca College professor said he was the one who started counting pitches thrown by his pitchers. "Robbie was smooth and fast with great control. He was remarkable. Many times he threw only 70 to 75 pitches a game.

"He was a good athlete," Sawyer said. "That's what it takes to be a good pitcher." Of the present day players, he compared Roberts with Jim Kaat of the old Phillies, a hard worker who doesn't throw many

Rain washes away game in New York

By The Associated Press

The New York Jets' switchboard was flooded with calls during the afternoon while their temporary playing field was being flooded with rains from Hurricane Belle-a storm of such intensity that even the race horses at Yonkers and Atlantic City knew to go inside and stay there.

In consideration of their fans-not necessarily of George Steinbrenner's pet playing surface-the Jets postponed Monday night's scheduled National Football League exhibition game with the Giants at Yankee Stadium. With winds of 70 miles an hour forecast for gametime, not to mention the prospect of flooded high ways and subways, "We just felt there was too much danger involved for our fans," a Jets spokesman said. There was no argument from the Yankees, who said they were relieved to hear of the Jets' decision.

Steinbrenner, owner of the American League baseball team, has gone to great lengths to protect his turf in the past- preventing the Joe FrazierGeorge Foreman heavyweight fight from being held there last June, for example. But he had no hand in the postponement of Monday night's contest because the agreement for use of the city-owned stadium between the City of New York and the Jets does not give the Yankees power of cancellation over a football game.

That was not the case in the contract with the New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League, whose scheduled home game at the Stadium tonight was threatened by Belle's fury. The Yankees, keeping in mind the rain's effect on their cherished field, are empowered by contract to cancel the NASL encounter as late as four hours before gametime.

'We're going to have to seriously look at things on the field and make a decision," said a Yankee spokesman. Such was the extent of the heavy storm on the 1976 sports scene. The last time a football game was hurricaned out was in 1961, when the American Football League's Boston Patriots pushed a Friday night game back to Sunday afternoon.

It wasn't immediately known what would become of the Giants-Jets game, which had expected a crowd of 40,000 at $9 per ticket. The Cosmos were scheduled for tonight with Wednesday and Thursday as rain dates and another football game-Jets vs. Oakland-on Friday.

And Team USA, the collection of hockey players with United States citizenship who will play in the international Canada Cup tournament next month, had to do without center Larry Pleau. Pleau, who plays for the New England Whalers of the World Hockey Association, owns a marina in Massachusetss and had to batten down his hatches for the storm

'This is our job -to adjust," said the 23-year-old pro Monday night after defeating Mexican star Raul Ramirez 7-6, 4-6, 6-3 to capture the title in a transplanted $100,000 international tennis tournament.

The hard-hitting Connors' victory came in a match played at a private indoor tennis club after rains and reports of the coming of Hurricane Belle forced tournament officials to give up their hopes of completing the competition Monday afternoon on the red clay courts of North Conway. The match had been scheduled for 1 p.m. in North Conway, but was then rescheduled for 3 p.m. It eventually began at 5 p.m. at the Algonquin Tennis Center, on the way to Logan International Airport in Boston, Ramirez, the Mexican Davis Cup star who was seeded fourth in the North Conway tournament. He said the bouncy, artificial surface on which the final match was played was far different from the slow clay surfaces he was accustomed to. "This court was fast after playing

Arkansas trips Lafayette nine

By The Associated Press Texas League fans were treated to some flossy pitching Monday night. Arkansas' Bill Rothan retired 15 straight batters without a hit en route to a 6-4 victory over Lafayette and El Paso's Jim Dorsey set down 12 in a row in beating San Antonio 5-2. In other games Amarillo measured Midland 7-5 and Shreveport defeated Jackson 8-7.

Rothan, 3-0, was backed by some steady hitting but needed help in the sixth inning from Ryan Kurosaki in putting down a Lafayette rally. Mike Rowland, 5-11, was the loser. Dorsey, 9-7, recorded his hitless skein in the fifth through ninth frames, and his teammates collected 11 base knocks off San Antonio pitcher John Poloni. Facing left-handed pitching for the sixth time in seven games, southpaw batters accounted for seven of those El Paso hits. Reliever Vic Bernal strode to the plate in the ninth inning for Amarillo and struck out Midland's Ed Patman with the bases loaded to record his 15th save of the season. Jay Franklin, 4-3, was the winner and Steve Hamrick, 9-8, the loser. Amarillo's Lin Hamilton socked two home runs.

Sifford ready to play for PGA championship Antonio and they told me, 'You can't

WASHINGTON (AP) - Old Charlie Sifford is back, still puffing on a black cigar and harboring bitter memories. seeking to collect some debts from a game that treated him like an orphan

"I'm not worried about making a big killing. I'm just looking around and studying things," the 54-year-old black pioneer of the golf tour said after checking in for the 58th PGA Championship at the Congressional Club, starting Thursday.

"I can't cut it on the tour any more Those Monday morning qualifying grinds are too much for me. I just want to get me a nice professional job at a country club and spend the rest of my life capitalizing on what I've learned "I don't think that's too much too

The crusty, mustachioed native of

Charlotte, N.C., qualified for the PGA by winning the PGA National Seniors Tournament in 1975, beating out such stars as Sam Snead and Tommy Bolt. He currently is running a municipal course in Cleveland- Sleepy Hollow-where he works from 6:30 a.m. until dark

'There have been some openings on the West Coast that I was interested in," he said, "but it's the same old song- looks like nobody wants ol' Charlie Sifford. I am willing to invest if the right proposition comes along."

Big-time tournament golf still has conscience pains over what it did to Charlie Sifford.

For years he was blacklisted, denied PGA membership under a "Caucasian clause" later ruled illegal. When he was permitted to play in 1960, he still ran into Jim Crow barriers in the Deep South.

"I couldn't play half the tour," he said. "Once I drove all the way from Greensboro, N.C., to Houston only to be turned away. Then I drove to San play here. 'That was only half of my problems. Almost every golfer on the tour-good, bad and indifferent-had some sort of sponsorship. He didn't have to worry about where his next meal was coming from. He got clubs, balls and a lot of his clothing for nothing. But nobody was ready to give a black guy anything. Charlie stuck in there for 10 years.

starting in 1960, and always finished in the Top 60. He won the Hartford Open in 1960 and the Los Angeles Open in 1969 but never got an invitation to the Masters. Finally, when the rules were changed to make every tour winner eligible, it was too late. Last year his tour earnings amounted to only $1,080.

Landry is unhappy with play of team

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) -Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry wasn't very happy with what he saw Saturday night against the Los Angeles Rams, and the last week of Cowboys training camp here won't be picnic as a consequence.

Landry has set up a harsh week of workouts to correct what he considers to be the team's problems.

Dallas will break camp at the end of the week and return home for Saturday's pre-season game against. the Denver Broncos in Dallas.

End sweep defense is high on Landry's priority list this week after the Rams ran extensively around the corners in downing the Cowboys 26-14 last Saturday

"The Rams looked awfully good for this time of year." Landry said. 'They were doing most everyuthing well, which made us look pretty bad.'

Landry said the only bright spot he saw against Los Angeles was the Cowboys' pu. ing. Punterquarterback Danny White and rookie Bill Farris each punted four times, White for a 47.5 average and Farris for a 36.5

Fullback Robert Newhouse was the only serious casualty from the Rams' contest. He reinjured a groin muscle and is expected to miss the home opener against Denver.

All-pro offensive tackle Rayfield Wright signed a multiyear contract to provide at least one other bright spot in the Cowboys' week.

With a $40,000 check in his pocket, the 36-year-old resident of Santa Clara, Calif., said he and his wife Ann had planned to spend the rest of this week with their 3-year-old daughter Jennifer on an Atlantic

"We won't be going there because of the hurricane," he said Monday shortly after winning the $200,000 B.C. Open title with a 13-under-par 271. "I guess we'll fly to California. I know there's a lot of sun there and besides we've had too much rain unday night.

The rain, caused in part by the approach of Hough p Hurricane Belle, became so heavy Saturday that the third round in the 72-hole event at the par-71, 6,868vard En-Joie Golf Club was postponed until Sunday.

Then, after that round was completed in the Pro fron morning, a deluge flooded the course late Sunday and forced a halt in final-round play until Monday morning, with 11 players still out on the links.

At the time, Wynn and rookie Bob Gilder were leading the 64 survivors of the cut, tied at 12 under par. They had two holes to play. With the sky filled with leaden clouds Monday, the pair went to the 17th tee. Golder's six-iron shot on the New York (Ellis 114) at Kansas City Itassler 1-7) (n) Boston (Jones 4-1) at California (Ross par-three, 175-yard hole put him two feet from the pin. "I thought I got him there," said Gilder, winner of the Phoenix Open this year in his second pro start. He made his birdie.

So did Wynn, who putted it "straight in." Both found the rough at the 18th, Gilder to the right

PGA event since he joined the tour in 1971. He had a 69, as did Gilder. The victory qualified Wynn for the PGA, which opens Thursday at the Congressional Country Club in Bethesda, Md. But he already had decided to pass it punter, and Garry Keithiey, quarterback.

"I hadn't planned on the PGA," Wynn said, "and that's why I wanted a week off. So I guess we'll fly to California and then fly back for the Greater Hartford

Gilder's 272 earned him $22,800 and raised his season earnings to $91,769, against $74,419 for Wynn. Terry Diehl, George Knudson, Jerry McGee and Ed Sneed pocketed $9,750 each for their third-place

College football going to Japan TOKYO (AP) - Grambling State

University of Louisiana faces Morgan State of Pennsylvania in Tokyo Sept. 24 in the first regular-season U.S. college football game outside the Western hemisphere.

"It will be a unique game and a significant move. I hope it gives the same kind of attractions Americans are getting out of football to Japanese sports fans," Collie Nicholson, a spokesman for the Grambling Tigers, widely known as the "black Notre Dame," said Monday. The bringing of two U.S. college teams to Japan, where American football enjoys steadily increasing popularity, is in commemoration of the U.S. Bicentennial. The game is sanctioned by the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the American Football Association of Japan, sponsors said.

The game on the artificial turf at Tokyo's 50,000-seat Korakuen stadium will be televised live and nationwide in Japan and on a delayed tape basis in the United States, they Besides 60 Morgan and 60 Grambling players, 25 NCAA officials and the 175-member high-stepping Grambling marching band are coming, they said. This group also is to visit U.S. military installations in Japan, they added.

We have good players like quarterback Doug Williams and running back Merlin Williams, and I hope we have a good chance to win," Nicholson said. The Tigers in 1975 won the Southwestern Athletic Conference title with a 10-1 record.

"We finished fourth or fifth last year, but now we have a new coach, Henry Lattimore, to beat Grambling. It will be a tough but good game," said Athletic Director Earl Banks of Morgan State, which won four games in 1975 against five losses and a draw.

Predicting more and more college football games will be played outside the United States in the next five years, Nicholson said, "It's a plus. It has educational advantages such as giving the athletes chances to meet various people and cultures and I hope to come back to Japan."

Atsushi Fujita, who arranged the game, refused to say how much it will cost, but sources said it will be at least 60 million yen-$200,000. Admission for the game is from $5 to $17, Fujita

For Grambling, ranked fourth in The Associated Press' small college poll in 1975, the trip will be another in a series of firsts. The Tigers sent the first black player into the ranks of pro football in 1949.

The Grambling marching band also is scheduled to hold two concerts and a parade in Tokyo's plush Ginza District during its stay, sponsors said.

Connors, who beat Raul Ramirez in a $100,000 international tournament at Manchester, N.H., Monday, will play Australia's Colin Dibley in the first round here, probably on Thursday. Ramirez, seeded fourth here, opens against Sherwood Stewart, Goose Creek, Tex.

Miss Hunt was one of six seeded women who advanced to the second round on byes.

In other women's first-round action, No. 4 Linky Boshoff downed Nana Sato 6-3, 6-3; No. 7 Kathy Kuykendall stopped Candy Reynolds 6-3, 6-1, and No. 12 Val Ziegenfuss beat Susan Mehmedbasich 6-1, 6-4.

Jeanne Evert, younger sister of four-time Clay Court winner Chris Evert, won a first-round match against Pam Whyteross of Australia, 6-1, 6-4. Miss Evert, unseeded in the tourney, will face Miss Boshoff in the second round.

Chris Evert, the defending champion, and many other top women players passed up this year's tourney because of World Team Tennis commitments.

Seven other seeded players were in action Monday, and the only upset was by Heidi Eisterleiner of West Germany, who downed No. 9 Marise Kruger of South Africa 6-1, 4-6, 6-1.

The only former champion in the women's field, Gail Lovera of France, also lost in the opening round. Mrs. Lovera, the former Gail Chanfreau, won the tournament in 1969. She was unseeded this year and lost to Fiorella Bonicelli of Uruguay 62, 6-1.

Other ranked players who won firstround matches included No. 6 Harold Solomon, who took three sets to beat Kim Warwick, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2; No. 10 Francois Jauffret, who downd Hans Kary, 6-2, 6-1, and No. 11 Wojtek Fibak, who stopped Erik Van Dillen, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2.

A powerful alliance

Clarence M. Kelley, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, believes strongly that a powerful alliance of law enforcement and concerned citizens, acting individually and collectively, can provide much of the impetus needed to counter the oppressive growth of crimes. particularly those against property.

Writing in the August issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, Kelley reports that many citizens today are tyrannized by the fact and fear of crime. Their concern over crime, he said, is demonstrated by their increased willingness to join law enforcement in doing something about it.

He said that although some measure of encouragement may be drawn from the knowledge that serious crime rose only 10 per cent in 1975 as compared with the previous year — which recorded a shocking 18 per cent rise over 1973 - the vast and growing numbers of citizens victimized by crime find little consolation in this statistical comparison. The grim and inescapable fact remains that crime in the United States continues to occur at an intolerably high level.

This is what terrorizes the public — the continued high level of crime. And this, of course, is of concern to every law enforcement agency from local to highest

Kelley explains that crimes of violence are under-standably most feared by the public, yet they compose a relatively small - even though extremely serious and threatening — part of the nation's total crime count.

"Offenses against property are by far the most common form of criminal activity in this country," he continued. "During 1975, approximately 10 of every 11 reported serious crimes were of this nature, and among them. those categorized as 'larcenytheft' accounted for 53 per cent of all serious crimes committed."

The FBI director said that while it is true that the shoplifter, the pickpocket, and others involved in larceny-theft offenses generally pose no physical danger to the public, they do strike hard at the country's economic well-being and contribute greatly to the country's climate of crime. They reach staggering proportions.

He said that theft-incurred losses suffered by businesses have become of critical concern. During the period 1970-75, shoplifting offenses alone soared 73 per cent. The cost of these crimes to the business world has resulted in increased insurance rates, expenditures for security personnel and systems, loss of business, and other direct consequences. And ultimately, of course, the individual citizen, as a consumer, shares the heavy burden of these increasing losses.

This is true in Midland as well as anywhere else in the nation.

Kelley explains that from a law enforcement standpoint, offenses of this sort represent a formidable challenge. He said that in 1975, an overwhelming 6 million larcenytheft crimes were reported to police. Together with other factors, the absence of witnesses and the difficulty of identifying the goods stolen often thwart the successful investigation and prosecution of these cases:

"Despite these problems." Kelley said, "much more can be done to reduce the incidence of this costly and serious crime challenge. Without question, many of these offenses could be easily prevented through the adoption of simple precautions and safety measures. Toward this end, law enforcement agencies may provide both leadership and knowledgeable guidance in the development of programs specifically designed to assist all elements of the community in combating these crimes."

This is a program which definitely will work to a marked degree, as proven in Midland. The Midland Police Department for several years has conducted a program emphasizing preventative measures. The only reason that it has not been more effective is the fact that more citizens haven't taken advantage of it.

The FBI and the police department of Birmingham, Ala... presently are conducting a Crime Resistance Program which also appears to be quite effective.

This is where law enforcement and concerned citizens can join hands in curbing the growth of crimes, particularly against property. Let's all do our part in this battle against crime.

You're only as much as what you're wearing

WASHINGTON - There is something going on in the clothing industry of which you may or may not be aware. Designers and manufacturers are now putting labels on the outside of their clothes instead of on the inside. It started a few years ago when Pierre Cardin, Courreges, Christian Dior, Gucci and others discovered that since women had paid so much for their outfits, they wanted everyone to know where they bought

The practice soon spread like wildfire and the saying "You are what you eat" has been replaced by "You are what you wear.' I was at a party the other evening and I noticed a lady with a large "CD" on the back of her fur coat. "What a beautiful Christian Dior coat," I said.

"How did you know it was a Dior?" she said in amazement. "I just guessed from the cut of it," I replied. I helped her off with the coat and she gave me her silk scarf. It had "Givenchy" printed all over it.

"What a beautiful Givenchy scarf," "Oh, is that what it is? I just grabbed one out of a drawer.'

"I'd know a Givenchy scarf anywhere. Say, is that a Pucci blouse you have on?

I blushed modestly and then said, "It goes beautifully with your Diane von Furstenberg skirt.' "Don't tell me your wife has one just like it."

"No. she doesn't. I just noticed the 'DVF' embroidered along the entire hem - on the outside." She looked down. "Why, of course. I never noticed that before. "Would you be insulted if I told you I've never seen anyone look better in Pierre Cardin black silk stockings?"

"Now how on earth did you know they were Cardin stockings." I was looking at your Gucci shoes with the big 'G' on each toe and my eye naturally traveled up to the 'C' which is stitched every inch along the seams of your stockings.'

Watergate springs new leaks

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON - One Watergate secret never leaked out during all the investigations that brought down ex-President Richard Nixon. It's the story of how Nixon used the notorious White House plumbers to try to discredit his detractors on Capitol

The intent was to prove that Nixon's congressional critics were violating national security. The plumbers enlisted the Pentagon's top sleuth, W. Donald Stewart, to investigate security leaks on Capitol Hill.

He found alleged security breaches in the offices of Sens. Frank Church, D.-Ida., William Fulbright, D.-Ark., Henry Jackson, D.-Wash., and William Proxmire, D.-Wis. But the investigation also caught the venerable Sen. John Stennis, D.-Miss., in an incident of political black-

The stern, stately Stennis not only is a symbol of Senate rectitude, but he is a staunch defender of existing establishments.

He was ready, therefore, to defend the presidency against the ravages of Watergate. Nixon was so sure of Stennis' loyalty that he later sought an agreement, permitting the Mississippi senator to listen to the damning White House tapes and to rule whether they were incriminating.

After Stennis became implicated in the plumbers' probe, Nixon suddenly seemed to lose interest in it. The story of the abortive investigation is told by Stewart himself, now head of Stewart Security Services, in his unpublished

It's a story that began in May 1969, with the publication in the Washington Post of a report about scuttling atomic submarines. The sensitive information apparently came from a document that had been slipped to the Senate Armed Services Committee, which Stennis heads.

Stewart isolated seven military officers who had access to the document. Six of them offered to take lie detector tests. The seventh refused and hired a lawyer. As Stewart zeroed in on the seventh officer. Stennis' office brought pressure on the Pentagon to halt the investigation. Stewart reported this backstage development to the White House plumbers. He wrote that Stennis "became quite irritated because the Pentagon undertook (the) investigation." The angry senator threatened to investigate the Pentagon in retaliation. He would drop his investigation of the Pentagon, however, if the Pentagon dropped its investigation of his committee, it was suggested. As Stewart put it in his memo for the plumbers: "Sen. Stennis indicated that he intended to initiate an investigation of the Pentagon because of its investigation in this matter. Informally, we were advised by the Stennis Committee that if we dropped the investigation within the Pentagon that the Stennis Committee would drop its investigation. Added Stewart curtly: "Our investigation was terminated."

Whether Nixon was intimidated by Stennis' tactics or merely wanted him for a friend, the White House didn't push the investigation of the Stennis committee. There was more enthusiasm for investigating Nixon's Orders for this investigation were relayed by David Young, chief of the White House plumbers, to the Pentagon's chief counsel, Fred Buzhardt.

The gumshoe work was directed by Stewart, who reported his findings in a Teb. 13, 1973, memo which is still hidden in Pentagon files. The memo was sharply critical of

Sen. Church, an outspoken Nixon critic, who heads a subcommittee on terminating emergency executive edicts. Stewart reported that some of the subcommittee's documents "did not bear proper classification covers and were cabinet. Others were transmitted without the proper double envelopes and special markings."

Employes without security clearance handled classified documents, the memo charged. Stewart also found that several classified documents on herbicide use in Southeast Asia were provided to Church. The last delivery was made on Aug. 3, 1972. Within a few days, the Washington Post carried a major story based on the classified herbicide Concluded Stewart: "It appears that the security leak in this matter came from Sen. Church's office advertently on inadvertently, but this cannot be stated positively.

The reason for Stewart's unwillingness to draw a final decision was that the Defense Department had obstructed his investigation. As Stewart explained in his memo, the department declined to obtain "appropriate clearances" for him to interview Church and his staff.

Subsequently, Church directed the Senate investigation of the Central Intelligence Agency, with a minimum of security problems. Most of the leaks came out of the House Intelligence Committee.

Most leaked documents contain legitimate news that the public is entitled to read. Washington officials tend to use security stamps to cover up their embarrassments. Since there are no censorship stamps in Washington, officials often censor the news by classifying it.

Footnote: A spokesman for Stennis said the senator had "no recollection" of the incident described by Stewart. Church said he was satisfied that no serious leaks came from his office. A spokesman for his subcommittee conceded there had been some minor security violations but denied they were as drastic as Stewart claimed. Spokesman for Jackson, Fulbright and Proxmire also denied any improper leaks.

Ford right in congressional tax privilege veto

WASHINGTON - A majority of senators and congressmen had the gall to pass a law exempting themselves from paying state and local income taxes in Maryland where so many of them live and enjoy the benefits thereof

It took a veto last week by President Ford to stop this selfish, narrow legislation. Hooray for the President.

Ever since Watergate equipped most of Congress' popinjays with permanent halos, and especially since the Democratic landslide of 1974, these pious rogues think they can get away with about anything from Elizabeth Ray to House Majority Leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neil's overseas freeloading to using federal law for their private tax relief. Here's how the latest outrage came about.

There are 23 senators who either live in Maryland or recently moved from there. There are between 80 to 100 House members in the same category. They live in pleasant suburban areas, which have wellfunded schools, good highway systems and above-average public acilities and services. Like all other citizens living in this area, they are required to pay Maryland state income tax.

It turns out, however that the majority of these senators and congressmen have never paid the taxes they owe Maryland. One, Sen. Howard Cannon (D-Nev.), got into a publicized dispute when he got caught in a computer check of delinquent state taxpayers.

My, oh my, what did Cannon,

Nick Thimmesch

chairman of the Senate Ethics Committee, (that's ethics, folks) do? Why he began hustling for a bill to exempt members of Congress from paying state and local income taxes in states other than where they were

All manner of tax reform-minded senators living in Maryland admit they haven't paid their taxes there. This group includes Dale Bumpers, Frank Church, Thomas F. Eagleton, John Culver, John Glenn (Ohio's Eagle Scout), Gary Hart (Mr. True-Blue), Joseph Montoya (The Watergate Kid), Edmund S. Muskie (Old Fiscal Integrity Himself), Ted Stevens, (Alaska's Square Shooter), Hiram Fong and Pete Dominick.

Some other senators had been paying to both their home states and Maryland. Most of them were able to deduct their Maryland payments by reciprocal agreement with their home states. But this group is now waiting to find out how the vetoed bill finally comes out before they pay their Maryland taxes.

Now the Constitution specifies that only "inhabitants" of a state may represent it. Therefore, members of Congress must have legal residence in their home states, and thus pay income taxes there. Moreover, the two other areas where congressional folk dwell - Virginia and the District of Columbia - do exempt members of Congress from paying local income

So the bill's sponsors, Sens. Roman Hruska (R-Neb.) and James Eastland (D-Miss.) (neither lives in Maryland) could argue that members of Congress were in jeopardy of having to pay state income tax twice.

But Maryland's senators, Charles Mathias and J. Glenn Beall Jr., oppose the bill and point out that if their colleagues would check their homestate tax laws, they would discover that most do have that reciprocal feature which takes them off the hook If that feature isn't there, these squirming solons should work to change it. Or as Mathias put it: "If members of congress want to vote themselves what in effect is a salary increase, let them do it directly, not through the tax immunity device.

President Ford, in his veto message, pointed out it is one thing for a jurisdiction to voluntarily exempt members- of Congress, and quite another for Congress to do it through federal interference. And guess who passed the D.C. law exempting congressmen from paying D.C. income taxes? Why, Congress, of course, the same as they are forever passing laws exempting themselves from this or that.

Citizens gaining power

By The Associated Press

Recent Supreme Court rulings have given communities and their residents new power to decide such issues as what kind of development should be allowed and who has control over area growth.

Some experts fear that the rulings could open the way to the same kind of economic and racial discrimination that the courts have been trying to overturn in recent years.

Among the recent decisions was a June 21 ruling that upheld an Eastlake, Ohio, ordinance requiring an automatic voter referendum on all property rezonings.

the majority opinion. Chief Justice Warren Burger rejected arguments that the ordinance was an unconstitutional delegation of egislative power.

"Under our constitutional assumptions, all power derives from the people who can delegate it to representative instruments which

Justice Lewis Powell, in the minority, disagreed, saying, "The 'spot' referendum technique appears to open disquieting opportunities for local government bodies to by-pass normal protective procedures for resolving issues affecting individual rights.' Opponents of voter-controlled zoning say it is designed to keep minorities out of the suburbs. They also point out, however, that it could involve industrial growth.

An Associated Press survey showed only a handful of cities and towns across the country use referenda for determining zoning changes. Most communities require approval by a legislative body - usually the city council - in conjunction with public hearings.

George James, director of the state bureau of Regional Planning and Community Assistance in Wisconsin, said, however, that he anticipated new interest in requiring voter ap-

"I can foresee increased pressure now for the referendum method and we could end up with some very poor development," he said. "The founders of our country chose representative government over direct democracy, so to speak, so as to make things more orderly.

Exclusionary zoning, with ordinances designed to limit growth by setting minimums for the size or cost of new homes, has been a major focus of the attack on suburban housing discrimination. The battle has resulted in a series of lower court decisions against zoning laws that prohibited certain types of housing or made housing too expensive for many economic groups.

Supporters of open-housing won a battle in April when the Supreme Court ruled in a Chicago case that federal courts can in some cases require the construction of federally financed low-rent projects in white suburbs.

Exterior important to history

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures There is a lot of interest now in reviving old buildings for their architectural importance. But you don't need to live in the past just because you want to preserve something old, says architect and interior designer Kenneth Walker of New York City.

You can do anything on want inside of an historical home - take town the walls, if you ike, but the exterior really is in the public domain, so nothing hould be changed," he ays. Walker works with andmark commissions nd the National Historical Trust and he would "probably gut the uside of such a building ecause he wouldn't want live in a museum.

Walker, a member of ommittee of the American Institute of Architects, points out hat people can educate hemselves about old buildings. There are many sources that provide this kind of information. In addition to he National Historical frust, there is the American Institute of Architects and many egional sources, such as andmark commissions. hat one might contact. local public libraries and building departments can often direct people to proper sources if they don't know how to go

Other logical steps may be taken, he explained. If a house is Victorian. here is a Victorian Society of America that might be contacted. The Society of Architectural Historians has a regional news letter.

Some interiors - for example, old country court houses - may have more architectural merit than their exteriors and should be preserved because the public has access to those areas," he

But he considers it colonial architecture in public buildings Reproducing the past ust for a facade is dead wrong," says Walker, who has done a number of restorations now in use as offices, stores and showrooms.

In a Colonial town there should be certain restrictions in terms of materials, set-back, the way landscapes should be reated in relationships to other buildings, and so on, but "why build false images" such as new Colonial buildings - for example, banks of red brick with cupolas. Twentieth-century architecture would do more for such towns, he maintains.

In making an important name for himself n redesigning stores he has just done the new Burdines store at learwater, Fla. Walker has succeeded in breaking up traditional mixes."
