President Ford is greeted by dog Independence upon his neighbor Amy Kendall and her arrival at Vail, Colo., late Friday.

Ford suggests changes in VP selection method

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Ford suggested Friday that the change in vice presidential selection which he defeated at the Republican National Convention might not be a bad idea.

"Some of the things which came up this week ... ought to be looked at," Ford told the Republican National Committee. He indicated he meant Reagan's suggestion that presidential contenders be required to disclose their choice of running mate in advance of their own nomination.

Reagan, who had named Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania as his proposed running mate, lost an attempt to get the convention to force Ford to name his choice in the first big test vote of the convention.

The President and his running mate, Sen. Robert Dole, then flew to Russell, Kan., Dole's hometown, for the first official campaign stop of the Dole also took up Ford's example and challenged his Democratic counterpart, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, to debate him during the campaign. Mondale agreed to it in principle.

Ford's comment about vice presidential selection came at a breakfast meeting of the national committee and apparently was in-tended as a peace gesture to Ronald Reagan supporters. But the President was hardly out of town before Republicans were fighting again.

The national committee accepted

Dole's challenge to debate Mondale in the campaign came one day after Ford had offered to debate Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter and Carter accepted.

Visitors remain to enrich culture

ODESSA-A chat with Sam Groves at the Museum of the Southwest in Midland is the closest thing I know to a session of the celebrated "Round Table" at the Algonquin Hotel. Sam bounces from art to history to archeology and theater and sculpture and back to art like a verbal gazelle, and you feel you've had a crash course in "Culture 1-A" by the time you leave his ivied bailiwick out on Missouri.

What Sam's talking about more and more these days is the archeological coup represented by the acquisition of the mind-boggling collection of Indian artifacts amassed over a lifetime by Col. and Mrs. C. E. "Bud" Bissell, who came out to Midland from Manchester, Conn., in 1942 for the Colonel's duty as commandant of cadets at Midland Army Air Base— long-since mustered into civillan duty as the Midland Air/Terminal.

The Colonel had described the The Colonel had described the collection to mer some 45,000 pieces laboriously hand gathered from prehistoric and more contemporary sites all over Oestexas, including at least 5,000 arrowheads, another 5,000 axes (including the first Indian "sledgehammer" I ever saw, visible in the Bruce Partain photograph of the Colonel and Mrs. Bissell with MSW Director Groves on today's amusements page), and almost countless stone scrapers, knives, axes, points, and every primitlye device imaginable.

"There's a Ph. D. here for somebody who wants to make a comprehensive analysis of the Bissell awe as he showed me a dozen or so home-size asheans filled to overflowing with Bissell beauties, plus a score of smaller pails and dozens of bottles containing more choice finds. "It would take a room this large, Groves said, indicating the basement space about 25 by 50 feet, "to begin separating and studying the collec-

system of classification, reflected in a dozen card-file cabinets in another holding closet upstairs along with a score of shadow boxes painstakingly filled with thousands of points, hand tools, and other Indian implements as well as some historic items from Army campsites and massacre

It will be some time before significant exhibits from the Bissell bonanza can be open to the public, Groves notes, simply because of the time and space requirements for handling such a massive collection. But a MSW intern will soon begin working with the treasure, and some of the materials will be on display as soon as possible.

"I'm very partial to Midland. It's done a lot for me as a town and through the friendships I have here. I always wanted Midland to have it (the collection), and one day about three months ago I just told 'em to come and get it," Col. Bissell told OESTE. And—as with the happenstance of so many good people who have come to the Tall City and stayed to enrich it-future generations of Midlanders and Basiners and perhaps students who never set eyes on Midland will benefit from the years of hard work and the final generosity of Col. and Mrs. C. E. "Bud" Bissell.

Debate ground rules uncertain confront each other in debates. The Washington Post

KANSAS CITY - President Ford and Jimmy Carter are now pledged to hold the first televised presidential campaign debates since 1960, but the format and rules for their encounters are still uncertain.

There is also the unanswered endent candidates will be invited to participate.

After a few seconds, they figured out what to do; they, arm in arm, slowly and awkwardly turned around. They started backtracking across the overgrown weeds and mesquite seedlings. They cautiously avoided stepping on - or even over - some old tires and pieces of tin that might be harboring some of the snake's Penny, who said she had slain a young diamond-back rattler with rocks the other day, said she wished she had brought along her grandma's .22-caliber rifle.

Her friend, now safely out striking range of the reptile in the shade, said it wouldn't be much point in killing the snake. There's more of them out there than you could shake a stick at.

Penny didn't look at it that way. Snakes, she said, reminded her of greater things — or a thing.
"You'd better believe that there's a devil," she said, without a flicker of doubt. "If there hadn't have been for Adam and Eve," Penny explained, "there wouldn't have been a snake in

Then, she talked about how the Biblical couple fell from grace after the snake-in-the-grass devil coaxed Eve to entice Adam to take a bite out of the forbidden fruit that Penny said was an apple. She said "Miss Nip-per," who'll be her fourth-grade teacher over at Albany, Ga., this coming school year, said so in her Bible reading.

By now, Penny and her reporter-friend had made it out of the weeds, passed the hull of another old car, and avoided more tires. Cautiously, they walked over the rubble of what used walked over the rubble of what used to be an old garage at what used to be the oil-boom town of Best.

From their vantage point now, Penny and her friend couid see the old boxy concrete jail that once posed a threat to evil-doers. And just beyond that and across the Santa Fe Railway tracks is the Best post office.

Frances Cruikshank, Penny's widowed granny, has been post-master here since August 1943. She also runs Best's only filling station

"I was practically raised here," Mrs. Cruikshank had said, before she had warned Penny and her friend to beware of snakes in their wanderings north to the old Best townsite. "My family moved here during the (oil) boom of 1923."

She was 2 years old then and grew up with Best, an oilfield supply town that reached a population peak of

"It was a real boom town," she had said, without a trace of sadness or sentiment. "When the drilling boom was over, Best just kind of dried up.

That's the way it is today - dried up. There are a few houses scattered around this spot between Rankin and Big Lake and along U.S. 67. And Mrs. Cruikshank, in stretching a point, perhaps, said the post-office cub-byhole she oversees at the service. hole she oversees at the service station serves 25 or so families.

And though the hordes of people and the instances of strife, trouble and good times are now faded, oil still flows abundantly around here. The derricks have long since been dismantled, though the cash from the oil flow still is stacking tidily.

Meanwhile, Penny and her friend were strolling around the Best that

"There's not much to do here in the Student aid funds still availabel at MC

Some financial aid funds are still available for Midland College students for the fall semester. More than one fourth of the students at the college receive some kind of financial aid. "What it amounts to is that virtually any person who wants to attend Midland College can do so," Bill Burns, financial aids officer, said, Forms of financial aid include scholarships, grants, loan funds and work study programs. The several hundred military veterans who attend classes on the "G. I. Bill" are not included in the 28 per cent receiving Burns said a number of work-study students must be taking a full class load and be able to work at the college a minimum of 15 hours per week. Minimum wage is paid to work-study students.

More than 70 scholarships are available each year through funds provided by interested business and civic clubs and individuals.

The college will receive this year more than $183,000 in federal funds to provide tuition, books and fees for students who qualify for basic

Siamese twins successfully separated

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) -University of Texas Medical Branch officials announced Friday that Siamese twin girls joined at the chest and abdomen have been separated

"Each is currently in satisfactory condition in the intensve care unit," a spokesman said

Charlotte Marie and Paulette Marie were born July 14 at the University's John Sealy Hospital to Mrs. Barbara Ann Jones, 24, the wife of Freddie Jones Jr., a Beaumont bricklayer.

"They were joined at the breastbone, heart cavity, diaphragm, and abdominal cvity," the spokesman

"Separation was without complication and each twin had successful reconstruction of the areas that had been united."

Dr. O. Jean Richardson, director of the University's prenatal division, had said Monday one of the girls has a congenital heart problem that limits oxygen in the blood. She said, however, the situation would not rule out separation surgery education opportunity grants, workstudy programs, supplemental education opportunity grants and law enforcement education programs.

Students who graduate from an area high school ranked in the top 5 per cent of their graduating class can receive a top 5 per cent scholarship which pays tuition, books and fees. More than 25 students have enrolled at the college under this program. Texas military veterans whose G. I. Bill benefits have expired are eligible for tuition scholarships under the Hazelwood Act. More information about financial assistance to attend the college this fall may be obtained from Burns by calling the college and arranging an appointment.

Registration is scheduled for Wednesday and classes start Aug. 30.

State to seek death penalty for Cullen Davis

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) -Millionaire Cullen Davis was charged with two counts of capital murder here Friday in the fatal shootings of his stepdaughter Andrea Dee Wilborn, 12, and Stan Farr, 30, in the home of his estranged wife on Aug. 2.

Tarrant County Dist. Atty. Tim Curry said the state will seek the death penalty in the case. Curry said at a news confernece that the original murder charges against Davis, 41, filed shortly after his arrest would be dropped, but two charges of attempted murder will stand

The Wilborn girl and Farr, a former Texas Christian University basketball star often seen with Mrs. Davis, were shot and killed by a person who entered the elegant Davis homes, "put on a black wig and went wild," according to Mrs. Davis.

Mrs. (Priscilla) Davis and Gus' Gavrel, 21, were wounded during the shooting.

Curry said the capital murder charges were filed before Justice of the Peace Bob Ashmore because investigation showed that the shootings occurred while another felony, a burgary, was being committed.

Davis was returned to the Tarrant County jail without bond.

Curry said Davis, who had been out on an $80,000 bond, was picked up early Friday as he prepared to board a plane for Houston. He was brought to chambers of the grand jury investigating the shooting and he was going to be asked to testify to certain matters, Curry said.

"Before that happened, we were advised by his attorneys he would not testify," Curry added.

LONDON (AP) - Artist Tom Keating flooded the art market with imitations of 19th and 20th century masters in protest against "merchants who make capital out of my brother artists both living and dead," he said in a letter published in the London Times on Friday.

The newspaper said it was satisfied the letter was genuine. Keating could not be located for con-

The letter was expected to end a dispute over the authenticity of 13 drawings supposedly by the 19th century British artist Samuel Palmer that has caused havoc in London's art world the last few weeks.

The letter bearing the name of Keating, 58, appeared one day after the British Antique Dealers' Association ordered an inquiry to determine the authenticity of the disputed Palmers. Experts claimed they were fakes probably made by Keating. Keating indicated in his letter that he had produced fake Palmers, but it was not clear whether he had done all 13 now under scrutiny. One of the Palmers was sold three years ago by Sotheby's, the worldfamed fine art dealers in London, for $30,000, a record for a Palmer. Four others were bought by a top London gallery. The Times letter indicated that there may be many more fakes hanging in galleries and private col-lections undetected by their owners.

"It seems I am held responsible for making of pastiche in the style of Samuel Palmer, the French impressionists, the German impressionists, etc., over the past 25 years," the letter said. "I do not deny these allegations. In fact, I openly confess to having done them.

However, the letter said, "I have generally made sure that my work could be readily distinguished" as phony, with a wealth of clues such as Keating's own name, the word "fake" or "even a rude remark if I felt/the work would reach the target I was aiming for." He also said he used modern paper on imitation Rembrandts, Degas and other old masters "to ensure the work could not possibly long be taken for the master in question."

Keating took a swipe at the art world by adding: "I cannot imagine how anyone could begin to believe the crude daubs being marketed as Samuel Palmer's were authentic. Anyone with a true love of this kindly, generous and devout artist will know that he could not possibly have done this work, even on an off-day." The row over the Palmers began when Times art critic Geraldine Norman reported that the 13 drawings attributed to Palmer were probably imitations by Keating.

Keatings' said he has been work-

A Midland youth, who told emergency ambulance attendants he was 18 years old, received minor injuries late Friday night after the bicycle he was riding and a car collided at the intersection of H and Illinois Streets.

The youth, who gave his name as Chris Hill, said he resided at 719 E. Cuthbert St.

Joe Rawlen Brooks, 16, of 116 S. Eisenhower St. was driver of the 1966 model auto involved in the collision.

Police said the Brooks' vehicle was traveling east on Illinois while Hill was traveling west on Illinois at the time of the collision. Hill was treated and released at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Agency study report given

LAMESA - A study of welfare agencies in Dawson County by the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce has resulted in five recommendations for government representatives to streamline operations here, according to a news release from the chamber of commerce.

Recommendations included arranging for a public forum to study the matter, educating the public and providing for a means of reporting welfare fraud suspects, establishing a coordinating committee for all agencies and recommending that other Chambers of Commerce conduct similar programs.

In addition, the committee recommended reducing the number of agencies handling welfare matters, placing the responsibility of welfare on the individual state government, increasing the policing of agency programs for fraud and teaching 'pride in working for a living.'

The 11 agencies interviewed were Texas Employment Commission, County Welfare, Free Lunch Program, Adult Nursing, Supplemental Security Income (Social ecurity), Aid for Dependent Children (AFDC), Protective Services, Food Stamps, West Texas Opportunities, Inc., Senior Citizens and the Day Care

Little impact seen on gas bills

DALLAS, Tex.(AP) — A Lone Star Gas Co. spokesman said Friday a Texas Railroad Commission ruling that the utility firm return about $2.5 million to its customers will have little impact on individual bills.

The spokesman said that calculations by the utility firm earlier this year indicated that Lone Star actually had collected only about

"Actually, $376,000 for the size of our market is not going to have much impact," the spokesman said. He said persons who paid the pass-through charges will be credited for the amount due them.

He pointed out that not all cities served by the utility paid the added charges and said customers in those cities, chiefly Garland and Dallas, will not be entitled to refunds. Other cities involved in the customer credits will be Irving, Arlington, Richardson, Grand Prairie, Fort Worth, Killeen, Sulphur Springs and Murchison.

The Miami Dolphins square off against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in pro football's newest rivalry tonight, and Bues Coach John McKay has mixed emotions.

"The rivalry will happen," says McKay, "It just depends on when it starts. And if I had my choice, we'd play Florida State."

The Bucs, one of two National Football League expansion clubs, have won one of three exhibition outings so far while the mighty Dolphins are 3-0. Miami has racked up 70 points, Tampa Bay a modest 26. But McKay says his team will not roll over and play dead before their established cross-state rivals.

"It won't be a picnic," says McKay. "We're going to go after them. It superior team."

This will be the first home game ever for Tampa Bay and the Bucs are coming off a 17-3 victory over Atlanta. Quarterback Steve Spurrier, who plunged one yard for one touchdown against the Falcons and directed an impressive 70-yard drive that accounted for the other, leads the Tampa offense, along with running backs Essex Johnson and Louis Carter who rushed for a combined 91 yards last week.

Bob Griese and Don Strock, who shared the Dolphins' quarterbacking in last week's 24-16 triumph over Philadelphia, will probably sit this one out in favor of Jim Del Gaizo. Earl Morrall, who has been bothered by a pulled hamstring, is questionable.

Other games tonight find Los Angeles at Oakland, the New York Jets at Houston, New England at Atlanta, San Francisco vs. San

Sunday afternoon and Cleveland at Philadelphia Monday night.

Los Angeles and Oakland both bring 3-0 records into their nationally-televised clash. The Rams, who used mostly reserves last week in edging Seattle 16-13, figure to go with their regulars this time, including quarterback James Harris. Mark van Eeghen will be the key to the Raiders' ground game. Van Eeghen, playing in place of injured fullback Marv Hubbard, racked up 107 yards on just six carries in a 41-17 rout of the Jets

Both the Jets and Houston are winless in three starts, and the Oilers will be forced to go without their three-man defensive front line. Curley Culp, Elvin Bethea and Tody Smith are all injured.

Atlanta, as usual, has been having problems on offense. The Falcons have scored only 20 points—fewest in the NFL. Quarterback Steve Grogan, heir apparent to Jim Plunkett, figures to play most of the game for New England.

San Francisco, off to a 3-0 start, has averaged 233.4 yards rushing over the first three games. San Diego, still undecided between quarterbacks Jesse Freitas and Dan Fouts, is coming off a loss to St. Louis Monday night in Tokyo.

Chicago, 3-0, has also got its run-ning game in gear, led by Walter Payton who rushed 31 times for 122 yards last time out against Baltimore. Jim Hart and Bill Donkers are expected to split the quarterbacking for St. Louis.

Washington is due to give its ex-pensive new backfield tandem of John Riggins and Calvin Hill a good workout against Kansas City which will alternate Mike Livingston and Tony Adams at quarterback.

Quarterback Steve Ramsey and running back Otis Armstrong, still mending from a hamstring injury, are expected to see a lot of action as Denver tries to get its offense going.
Seattle, which came within three points of Los Angeles last week, will start World Football League refugee Jim Zorn behind center.

Dallas, 0-3, will be trying out fewer new people in an effort to get in the win column, which means Roger Staubach should get a good workout at quarterback.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Bobby Murcer slammed a pair of two-run homers, including the first homer off Dale Murray in two years, and Randy Moffitt doused a late Montreal threat to boost the San Francisco Giants to a 6-3 victory over the Expos Friday

Ed Halicki, 10-13, who had thrown only one pitch this month because of arm trouble, held the Expos to three hits over the first seven innings. Two of the hits were home runs by Larry Parrish, accounting for all the Montreal scoring. Parrish's first homer gave the Expos a 1-0 lead in the first, but the Giants went ahead to stay with two runs off loser Don Carrithers, 6-9, in the fourth, ending a 20-inning scoreless streak.

Singles by Marty Perez, Gary Matthews and Ken Reitz followed by Darrell Evans' double did the damage. Perez' single and Murcer's first homer made it 4-1 in the fifth.

Parrish hit a two-run homer in the seventh and Moffitt was sammoned in the eighth to replace Gary Lavelle and strike out two Montreal batters with two men on base, preserving the Heading into July he didn't seem to be making much progress with a 1-8 record and that lone win in Midland. Since then he has been 5-2.

"Earlier in the year, I couldn't get my curve over and everybody was waiting for my fast ball," he analyzed. "Lately I've gone to the slurb- a cross between a slider and curve- and I used it on the 3-1 count tonight to get the edge."

"IT WAS a good game for the team," Moore said. "We won without too much offense and I think it gave us a mental lift. Willie Aikens was really talking it up and that helped.

Over in the Cubs locker room, outfielder Jose Ortiz was still steaming over a pick off play that resulted in a rundown in the fifth.

'Once his leg crosses the rubber he's got to go to the plate," Ortiz said. "He (Moore) saw me break and threw to first. It was a balk, but the umpire (Steve Story) didn't call it."

Ortiz broke with Moore's move and was plucked clean. Jose was so convinced that it was a balk that he stopped halfway to second and waved his arms, demanding a balk call When there was no response, he resumed running.

Manager Denny Sommers also Felt Moore had come across the rubber with his leg. "But they don't call it."

Giants rip Steelers by 17-0

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Veteran quarterback Craig Morton guided a first-half drive and rookie Jerry Golsteyn passed 10 yards for a second-half score to help the New York Giants hand the Pittsburgh Steelers their first preseason loss 17-0 Friday night in a nationally televised

The Giants, who also beat Pittsburgh 24-8 last year in preseason, forged the shutout with the help of five lost fumbles by the Steelers, three by quarterback Terry Bradshaw.

New York moved the ball consistently on the ground, with secondyear pro Marsh White rushing for 100 yards and rookie Gordon Bell of Michigan picking up 70.

The two-time Super Bowl champion Steelers hadn't been shut out since a 17-0 loss to Oakland in the third game of the 1974 National Football League regular season.

Their best drive of the night, to the Giants' six-yard line, ended late in the second quarter when Roy Gerela's 23yard field goal try was blocked by Giants linebacker Brad Van Pelt.

New York, 3-1 after three preseason triumphs in a row, held a 7-0 halftime lead on the strength of a 70-yard touchdown drive behind Morton.

Morton's 49-yard pass to Walker Gillette carried to the Pittsburgh six. and Larry Watkins scored the touchdown from one yard out two plays

George Hunt, who missed two field goal tries and had another blocked, made good on a 42-yarder for New York 4:51 into the second half. The kick came four plays after linebacker. Bob Schmidt recovered a Bradshaw fumble at the Pittsburgh 26.

Golsteyn, an unheralded 6foot-4 rookie from Northern Illinois, quarterbacked the Giants the entire second half. His 10-yard touchdown pass to tight end Jim Obradovich came with 4:02 left in the game.

Hassler blanks Brewers, 3-0

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Andy Hassler, who had lost straight games before August 6, fired a twohitter and George Brett's two-run triple keyed a three-run first inning. leading the Kansas City Royals to a 3-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Friday night.

Hassler, 3-7 for the season and 3-1 since the Royals obtained him on waivers from California July 5, struck out five and got 16 outs on grounders for his third consecutive victory. It was the 24-year-old lefthander's first complete game of the year.

A leadoff walk to Jim Wohlford started the first-inning uprising against Bill Travers, 1410. Amos Otis followed with a double and Brett tripled into the right-field corner. Brett scored on Hal McRae's sacrifce

Travers finished with a fivehitter and allowed only two hits, one a bunt single by Frank White, after the first. The Brewers had runners on second and third with two out in the second and fifth innings. However, Hassler ended the first threat by getting Von Joshua on a grounder and Robin Yount's fly to center retired the side Eddie Bane, 45, was the starter and loser for the Twins.

Minnesota scored in the opening inning on a double by Dan Ford after Bob Randall had singled. The Twins added their second run in the sixth when Ford doubled and came home on a single by Larry Hisle.

Hobson's fly beats Oakland

BOSTON (AP) — Boston third baseman Butch Hobson hit a sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the ninth inning Friday night, driving in the winning run as the Boston Red Sox nipped the Oakland A's 2-1.

Cecil Cooper, designated hitter Jim Rice and Carlton Fisk all singled to load the bases off loser Rollie Fingers, 8-9. After pinch hitter Rick Miller flied out, Hobson drove the ball to deep center, with Cooper tagging up and scoring the winning run. Luis Tiant, 14-10, scattered seven hits to get the victory.

Cardinals slip past Braves

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Jerry Mumphrey and Willie Crawford drove in two runs apiece and the St. Louis Cardinals withstood four walks by Harry Rasmussen in the sixth inning to outlast the Atlanta Braves 6-4 Friday night. The Cards, with Mumphrey and Crawford spearheading an 11-hit attack, built a 6-1 advantage in the first five innings before wildness overcame Rasmussen, 5-9. Rasmussen issued the four walks.

Willie Montanez' single and a two-run single by Clarence Gaston before Bill Greif relieved and shut down the three-run rally. The Cardinals took a 4-1 lead in the second inning with a five-hit flurry capped by doubles by Mumphrey and Jerry Templeton.

Foster, the major leagues' runaway RBI leader, drilled his 28th homer of the season in the sixth. Bench put Cincinnati ahead 2-1 in the fourth with his 13th homer of the year.

Gary Nolan recorded his 11th victory against eight defeats, needing relief help from Rollie Eastwick, who posted his 17th save.

Burris, 10-12, was victimized by the long ball and some shoddy fielding. He went six innings, allowing four runs on six hits, including the two homers and a triple by Dan Driessen.

Bills erupt over Packers

BUFFALO (AP) - Quarterback Joe Ferguson, having signed a new contract earlier in the day, threw a pair of touchdown passes Friday night to lead the Buffalo Bills past the Green Bay Packers 37-0 Friday night in a National Football League preseason game.

Forguson, who signed the multi-year deal to kill speculation he was playing out his option, entered the game in the third quarter with Buffalo on top 16-0 and hit wide receiver Bob Chandler with scoring passes of nine and four yards. Gary Marangi, who has been Ferguson's backup the last two seasons, directed Buffalo to its first-half lead. It was the Bills' first victory after three losses. Buffalo picked up its first touchdown on rookie Darnell Powell's one-yard run and added another on a one-yarder by Jim Braxton. As the clock ran out in the second period, rookie

Ian Sunter booted a 28-yard field goal. The final Bills' TD came on the last play of the game when cornerback Ike Harrison intercepted a pass by Green Bay's Dennis Shaw and ran it back 36

BALTIMORE (AP) - Mike Strachan's three-yard touchdown run 11:20 into overtime gave the New Orleans Saints a 26-20 National Football League pre-season victory over the Baltimore Colts, who sent the game into overtime by scoring 10 points in the final 70 seconds of regulation. Bobby Scott, quarterbacking the Saints in place of the injured Archie Manning, set up Strachan's winning score by completing three passes for 60 yards. For the game, Scott completed 22 of 44 attempts for 274 yards. New Orleans, after winning the third overtime game of the pre-season, is now 3-1. Baltimore, which sent the game into overtime on a 71-yard pass from Bill Troup to Glenn Doughty, is 2-2. Toni Linhart booted two 24-yard field goals for Baltimore, but missed from the same distance 5:23 into the overtime. Strachan also scored on a three-yard run in the second period.

Scott threw a five-yard scoring pass to Henry Childs and Chuck Muncie scored a 10-yard run as New Orleans built a 20-10 lead with 11:07 remaining. Linebacker Tom MacLeod's 40-yard interception return in the second quarter accounted for Baltimore's only touchdown prior to the last-minute

Athletes' jobs just average

The Los Angeles Times

PALO ALTO, Calif. - College athletes may be big men on campus, but they do not fare any better in the job world than their nonathlete fellow students, a study by a Stanford University graduate student shows.

Paul E. Dubois, 33, earned his doctorate in education from Stanford after studying "the widespread belief in American society that sports can serve as a stepping-stone to later occupational success."

That, Dubois said, is a myth. DUBOIS QUERIED 160 athletes, whom he defined as males who used a year of their sports eligibility while seniors, and 450 nonathletes from three Bay Area state colleges San Francisco, San Jose and

The scale was developed by asking a representative sample of Americans to rank the status levels of various jobs.

DUBOIS DID find a significant gross difference in the earnings of the two groups, but it was the nonathletes who made more money. The nonathletes averaged $11,000 in annual income, compared to $7,600 for the athletes.

Dubois noted, "the 'However. nonathletes tended to be older and to have more work experience. They tended to drop in and out of school while the athletes tended to stay in school until graduation. Texas Lutheran loses players

SEGUIN, Tex. (AP) - Fou starters for Texas Lutheran College, two-time NAIA Division II national champion football team , have been declared scholastically ineligible.

The starters include senior nose guard Willie Gipson, 195, who was an All-American last year.

The other scholastic casualties are Bruce Dickey, a game-breaker at split receiver for three seasons; linebacker David Nichols and offensive guard Carl Tolbert.

Six others failed to make their grades, said new coach Dan Knight. Even with these losses, Knight expected as many as 130 candidates to open football practice.

THE TRAITS and qualifications needed to excel in team sports may give an athlete status among his peers, Dubois said, "but these traits may not be regarded by employers as transferable to occupational,

Dubois found that athletes in individual and dual sports, such as track and tennis, held jobs two years after graduation with significantly lower status rankings on the prestige scale than the nonathletes and the team sport athletes.

"There is some research which shows that athletes in nonteam sports are less sociable, and it may be that, because they are less outgoing and sociable than others, employers may be more likely to pass them over for jobs and for promotions," dubois observed.

"I was watching televison in a seminary school in Venezuela. It was 1970 and the World Series between Cincinnati and the Baltimore Orioles was televised into our country," said the baby-faced 20year-old pitcher whose 1.50 earned run average over seven appearances tops the Reds

"My favorite player was Gary Nolan and I remember Davey Concepcion was 3-for-9. He is very big in Venezuela, even bigger than Johnny Bench is in America," said Sarmiento, a shy 155-pounder who speaks in a near-whisper and grew up wanting to be a nightclub singer.

Two years later, at age 16, he was in a Reds uniform and launching a bid to join his famous countryman.

Sarmiento says he owes it all to Concepcion, the Reds' AllStar shortstop, who spotted the young right-hander in 1971.

so he could play in front of his family, friends and high-school sweetheart. If the catcher-poor Orioles didn't want his services, he hoped the New York Yankees would. "They were my favorite team," he said. "I loved Mickey Mantle. He's the reason I'm a switch-hitter."

focused their attention elsewhere, Minnesota picked Wynegar in the second round of the June, 1974, draft. The Twins sounded fine to Wynegar: he had written just as many fan letters to their players as he had to any other team's. So he signed for a $25,000 bonus and set out for the Appalachian League. In Elizabethton, Tenn., he won the going to go to spring training and work hard and try to impress everybody. But when I got there I read where Gene Mauch was saying that if this 20-year-old catcher can do the job, it was his. He meant the big club. I couldn't beleive it.

Wynegar was still trying to adjust when he found himself in the Twins' starting lineup on opening day in Arlington, Tex. There were upwards of 35,000 people in the stands, most notably President Ford, who was sitting right behind home plate. "I was scared to death," said Wynegar. He knew he was over the shakes a few weeks later when he hit a very special home run. "It was my first in the major leagues; it came in Yankee Stadium off Catfish Hunter! my parents and my girl friend were there to see it, and," he said, pausing for dramatic effect, "it won the game."

Tony Oliva, the erstwhile batting champion whose crippled knees have relegated him to coaching first base and pinch-hitting, is confident Wynegar will enjoy many more like that one. Oliva likes his sharp eye, his diligent approach to hitting and his chances of growing stronger with age. What Oliva doesn't like is the position Wynegar plays.

"If Butch wasn't a catcher, getting banged up and working those doubleheaders," Oliva said, noting the sub.-280 skid his average has taken recently, "he'd be hitting 20, 25 points higher."

Women's tennis group to boycott tournament

TORONTO (AP) - Members of the Women's Tennis Association competing in the Canadian Open this week haven't been formally notified that they won't be welcome at South Orange, N.J., but they've already taken steps to be elsewhere.

With the announcement that transsexual Dr. Renee Richards had entered the $60,000 Tennis Week Open at South Orange, 24 members of the WTA decided Friday to withdraw sanction of the New Jersey tournament and instead play in a subsidiary tournment, the $10,000 prize money and its sanction means an opportunity for the players to acquire additional tour points.

'We've organized it over the last two or three days when we realized we would be participating in a tour-nament that wasn't quite valid," Miss Ziegenfuss said following a closeddoor membership meeting.

She said 24 tour regulars still at the Canadian championships had signed up for the Westchester tourney. Others, eliminated in the qualifying or early rounds who already had departed for South Orange, were keeping abreast developments by phone and most were expected to show up at MIAMI (AP) - Mercury Morris knows that running backs can't play forever, so he's thinking these days about what he'll do when he retires from the Miami Dolphins.

"When you stop playing football your life doesn't end," Morris said. "I could probably have an option of remaining in football, but it doesn't interest me. I'll just drop back into anonymity as far as football is con-

"I'll tell you what I'm seriously thinking about," Morris said. "That's going into auto racing.

"It's something that always in-terested me since I was a kid in Pittsburgh. I contacted the Viceroy black racing team about it, but it was too close to camp, May or June.

"I'm not afraid of speed ...and I like the idea that you're in total control.

There's an element of fate to it." Morris, who plays the guitar, says he's also thinking about a venture into show business-possibly in a musical act with former Miami cornerback Lloyd Mumphord, who is now with the Baltimore Colts.

'It'd be a nice outlet, whether we made any real money on it or not," Morris said. "If we really got into it, I'd probably be a singer, too. Lloyd can sing, but not as good as me."

He thought he had a role in a movie, but he was fired before the film was finished because he complained that he was cast in a stereotype role-a black man exploited by the white establishment.

"They should have filmed all the nings around the set ...then it would have been a good flick," he

"We're all going to have to take it at Forest Hills," she said. Forest Hills, N.Y., is the site of the U.S. Open championships.

Miss Ziegenfuss said the WTA board of directors felt playing against Miss Richards would hurt women's tennis.

"THE WTA is not taking a stand on this," she said. "The players were voting as individuals. But we have a responsibility to our sponsors who pour millions of dollars into the sport. This situation now is a farce.'

Miss Richards, a 41-year-old California eye specialist, is the former Dr. Richard Raskin, a ranked tennis player in the U.S. in the over-35 group who underwent a sex-change operation in 1975.

Miss Ziegenfuss said the meeting of players Friday "was short, just a matter of signing their name as to whether they preferred going to Orange or Westchester."

SHE SAID it also offered the girls 'who didn't understand the situation" an opportunity to hear why the members of the WTA were taking a firm stand in their boycott of the South Orange tournament, normally a final warmup tournament for the Taking the latest initiative was E. Joseph Wheeler, president and chief officer of an oceanographic research and engineering company. He has applied to the Securities and Exchange Commission for permission to sell stock in a publicly-owned corporation created to bring a major league team to Washington.

WHEELER SAID the corporation plans to make a maximum offering of 820,000 shares of Class A stock at $25 a share—hopefully beginning the sale during the World Series—which would give the company $23 million.

The money would be placed in escrow. If the corporation— with Wheeler as chairman of the board, president and treasurer—is unsuccessful in acquiring a team, the money would be returned. WHEELER HAS purchased 1,000 shares of Class B Stock for $25,000, Wheeler said he believes 24 teams-he said he will not take an expansion team including Toronto and Seattle-are available to be purchased. He acknowledged that it would be more difficult to acquire a Cincinnati or Philadelphia as opposed to an Atlanta or Houston.

The 50-year-old Wheeler, a native Philadelphian who said he has been working on his plan for two years, said he prefers National League baseball but would not shut the door on an American League team.

He said he is not concerned about the 75-mile territorial rights owned by the Baltimore Orioles, which would prevent an American League team from moving into Washington.

Hauss disagrees with NFL labor optimism

WASHINGTON (AP) — The optimism of a labor peace in the National Football League as expressed by commissioner Pete Rozelle apparently isn't shared by at least one officer of the NFL Players

Len Hauss, first vice president of the players' union, said by telephone Friday from the Washington Redskins camp in Carlisle, Pa., that the owners and the players are not close to an agreement on a new contract. "There have been no bargaining sessions since June 28 and I don't believe we are close to an agreement," Hauss, a veteran Redskins center, said just before the team left for Kansas City.

The NFL owners put off a decision Thursday on setting a 1976 roster limit, voting instead only on the next regularly scheduled preseason cut.

Rozelle, in a brief news conference following the owners' meeting in New York, said representatives of the 28 teams had voted to require all teams but Tampa Bay and Seattle to be down to 49 players-plus latereporting players who participated in the College All-Star game—by Tuesday. The two expansion teams may continue with their current 60 players plus All-Stars.

The clubs, Rozelle said, deferred until Sept. 1 a decision on the regular-season roster limit. He said the owners believed that representatives of the NFL and the NFL Players Association might reach a bargaining agreement before Sept. 1. A roster limit would be part of such an agreement, he said.

Hauss, along with other union representatives, was in New York Wednesday to meet with the owners but was told a session could not be Hauss said he believed the soonest an agreement could be reached would be in two months.

"If there is a new offer from the NFL, I believe that mid-October would be the earliest time that a vote could be taken by our members," said Hauss. "No vote could be taken until after a board of (team) reps meeting. "Furthermore, prospects for an agreement this year are not good,"

1 in New York. If no contract agreement has been reached, they'll get down to the crunch on the rosters.

The NFL's by-laws set them at 36 players-but each season it has been amended on a oneyear basis to permit more per team, usually in the mid-40s. The last two seasons the limits have been 43. For several years before, during the war with the World Football League, it was 47.

It was understood that during the June 28 meeting, a roster limit of 40 plus five taxi squad members was discussed but no formal action was

The history of this harness racing classic, the first leg of pacing's Triple Crown, is replete with beaten favorites. For instance, in 1959

Adios Butler, probably the last time he went off at 10-1, beat the favored Adios Oregon. In 1963, Meadow Skipper beat the favored Overtrick. In 1972, the 101 Hilarious Way beat the favored Strike Out. And in 1973 Smog, at 5-1, turned back Armbro Nesbit.

It could happen again, and Keystone Ore merit their listing as the 6-5 second choice off their $124,000 Adios.

Foster inconspicious as black baseball shoes

By PAT CALABRIA

NEW YORK - Perhaps more than any other player, it is George Foster — not Pete Rose nor Jo Morgan who is most representative of the mechanical Cincinnati Reds. On a team whose manager demands that his players' hair be clipped short and their stirrups be worn low, Foster is self. Rose and Morgan, two spirited personalities, are generally credited with molding the Reds into a championship team. But it is Foster, bat-

Boxing fans search for bizarre fights

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - P.T. Barnum would have been proud to see his theory proved once again, this time in Paterson, N.J., last week when 2,400 suckers paid $3, $4, and $6 to see a four-round exhibition boxing match between two women. It was twice as large a fight crowd as usually files into Hinchliffe Stadium, no doubt because, as Barnum claimed, the more bizarre the novelty, the easier it is to sell.

The match was between Cathy (Cat) Davis, 24, 5-foot-10, 130 pounds, and 32-year-old Jean Lange, mother of a 6-year-old son. Davis was discovered by part-time boxing promoter Lou Duva at the Silver Slipper in Las Vegas. What caught his eye was not her long blonde hair but the overflow crowd that assembled to watch the former six-time Louisiana state fencing champion box.

Duva appealed to Althea Gibson, New Jersey state athletic commissioner, for sanctioning for a women's match. Gibson, whose father taught her a mean left hook before she turned her attention to tennis, reluctantly gave the women permission for the exhibition.

'She wasn't too satisfied with the way it went off," Gibson's business associate, Gil Fuller, said Wednesday. "She said she would have to take a long look at any other women to be sure they were really fighters before she sanctioned any other bouts. She has to protect fight fans' interests and she's against having matches contrived just for the sen-

BW1 Sensational, it wasn't. Davis landed two rights to Lange's chin before felling her opponent with a left jab 20 seconds into the second round. Lange, who didn't land any punches, announced her retirement from the ring right then and there. She said she would return to Pheonix to train other than those who show." What Foster shows is a .331 average, third in the league behind Bill Maddock's .337 and fellow Red Ken Griffey's .333. Also, Foster leads the league with 106 runs batted in and is third, behind Dave Kingman and Mike Schmidt in home runs with 27. "Obviously, he has the chance to win the triple crown," Morgan said. "That says something might there." "When you work hard for something and then accomplish it, that's gratifying," Foster said. "I don't feel I'm having an extraordinary year. Only your heart and mind know what you can do when you put all of yourself into it. You have to show it," Foster said. "Some people, you know, express their happiness silently and it's more an expression

Morgan insists that Foster should be the league's most valuable player, which would make him the fourth on which would make him the fourth on the present Cincinnati roster, along with Rose, Morgan and Johnny Bench. "No one has done more for a team than he has," Morgan said. "There's no doubt in my mind about it." Foster's emergence, at 27, as a skilled player was not surprising, teammates say Purchased from the teammates say. Purchased from the San Francisco Giants in 1971, he spent the next season with the Reds, then was sent down to the minor leagues for most of the 1973 season. Then he returned to the club with enough promise to spur manager Sparky Anderson into his most important decision of last season

"George was afraid," Anderson said. "He didn't get to play in San Francisco and he didn't play at first with us. One day last year he was standing in the outfield before a game and I went up to him. I said: 'It's about time we found out if you can play or not.' "So Rose was moved to third base less than a month into the season, while Foster, in a far more significant change, was installed in left field. "That's all he needed,"

Foster agrees. "A lot of guys say they don't get a chance," he said. "But if they've been sitting on the bench all game and they're called up to pinch-hit in the ninth inning and they strike out, well, that was their chance. And they didn't make the most out of it."

Foster made the most of his, hitting .300 with 23 home runs last season. This year, without the flamboyant earnestness of Rose or the emotion exhibited by Morgan, he has become a respected hitter and has remained a

"That's what life's all about" he said. "Thinking that you can have something if you work hard enough for it. You have to go out and say, 'I can do this.' And then you work hard to prove you can." Playing with the Reds, of course, has helped Foster.

Morgan, who never batted higher than .285 before he was traded to Cincinnati from Houston, said: "Of course, that helps. You're around better hitters. Then when you do learn to hit, there are guys on base for you."
Foster said, "It's true that success

rubs off on people."

And Foster fits well in the Reds' environment. His hair is short although Anderson allows him wide sideburns, and his uniform is worn neat and simple.

"Gorge Foster" Anderson said, "is just a fine young man.'

Science finally proves home teams own slight advantage

By EARL LANE

Science marches on. For those who might have had any doubts, two sociologists have now demonstrated that the home team in a sports contest really does have the advantage.

Barry Schwartz of the University of Chicago and Stephen Barsky of Temple University studied 1,880 major league baseball games played in 1971; 182 National Football League games and 910 college football games played during 1971; 542 National Hockey League games during the 1971-1972 season, and 1,486 college basketball games played by the Philadelphia area Big Five Teams during a 15-year period.

The researchers found that the advantage of playing at home differs from one sport to another. The home advantage is least decisive in baseball, where teams at home won 53 per cent of their games. Professional football teams won 55 per cent of their home games; college football teams won 59 per cent. (If the games were excluded, the winning percentages would have been 58 for pro football teams, 60 for the college teams. The home edge is most pronounced in the indoor sport of hockey, Schwartz and Barsky found. "Out of every 100 games played at home, 53 are won, 30 lost, and 17 played to a draw," they report. "When tie games are excluded, hockey teams win 64 per cent of the time at home (almost two games in three)."

In college basketball, Schwartz and Barsky found that as a Big Five team moved away from its home fieldhouse, its chances of losing increased. (The Big Five are LaSalle, Pennsylvania, St. Joseph's, Temple and Villanova.)

"When Big Five teams play out-of-towners on home court, they win 82 per cent of their games," Schwartz and Barsky found. "But when they play out-of-town teams in the Palestra, a 'neutral' arena within the city of Philadelphia, they win only 76 per cent of the time. The percentage of victories drops to 64 per cent for games played in neutral courts outside Philadelphia, and reaches its lowest point of 58 per cent in games played outside Philadelphia in opponents' home courts." The two researchers said that "more effective offensive rather than defensive action is the major factor in the home advantage among all sports." In baseball, for example, they found that the home team makes 2.3 defensive errors for every 100 visitor at-bats; the visiting team also makes 2.3 errors for 100 home team at-bats. In offense, however, the home team is tops in the rate of runs scored (11.9 per 100 at-bats vs. 8 for the visitors), extra base hits (6.7 vs. 6.3), and total hits (25.7 vs. 24.7).

The researchers conclude, in less than sporting prose, that "inferences from the data, as well as more direct observations on audience size and its relationship to performance and outcome, justify the conclusion that the home advantage is almost totally independent of visitor fatigue and lack of familiarity with the home playing area; it is mainly attributable to the social support of the home audience." It was too good to be true. Suddenly I found I had the opportunity to visit the land of my dreams — a tropical island! It was long ago when my beloved "rolling stone" uncle visited my home, brimming with stories of the fascinating, delightful South Seas. I had been convinced that life in this land would be a forever-happy thing.

And now the magical moment had come. I found that the sky was, indeed, bluer than blue, the flowers brilliant and luxurious, the sea clear and everchanging. Yes, it was all this and more.

But one day as I stood on the shore listening to the roaring rhyme of the waves, I realized that I was no happier than I had been before. I discovered that my problems were within me. How could I have assumed that happiness would be guaranteed on an enchanted island?

These thoughts prompted me to return to my church which I had ignored for many years. Here I found my faith was renewed, and I found self-respect and understanding that come from loving God and doing His will. I sensed anew that no man can expect to experience true happiness without Him. Hurry to your church — there to find the ingredients to make your days and your life glad and

LDS seeking converts in Utah

BOUNTIFUL, Utah (AP) — For 129 years, the Mormon church has sent missionaries from Utah to convert the world. Now, they're coming from other areas to convert Utah

The Utah missionaries have one of The Utah missionaries have one of the highest success rates in the church, but some Utahns don't appreciate the increased pressure to join a religion that already claims 71 per cent of the state's population.

Elder Steve Osborne, 23, Bristol, England, came to tell Utahns why he was converted 11 years ago to a church based in their state.

Elder Kin Little 20 Manhattan

Elder Kin Little, 20, Manhattan, Kan., a lifelong Mormon, has preached in a neighborhood his family left when he was 9.

Liberation theology takes hold in U.S.

NEW YORK - A controversial brand of theology is taking hold in underdeveloped countries and among the poor in the United States.

Called liberation theology, its basic thrust lies in "bringing people to Christ" by fighting for their economic and social rights. Neither "liberal" nor "con-servative" in its outlook, liberation theology has drawn its supporters from every segment of Christianity — Protestant and Roman Catholic. The fact that the liberation theologians use the tools of Marxist social analysis makes them suspect in many circles, and even the strongest adherents raise the question of whether they are participating in a "new heresy." At the same time they maintain that they are drawing only on the best elements of Marxism without outright espousal of com-munism. In the process they hope that they are adding a Christian touch to Marxist practices.

Only since World War II, and principally in the last few years, has liberation theology become an organized movement, chiefly in Latin America, but it is spreading to Africa and other areas of the poverty-ridden Third World as well as to the ghettos of cities in the United States. Regarded by its practitioners as a

"radical new form of Christian thought," liberation theology is op-posed by some evangelicals as being too secular and overly imbued with social activism. "One of the fundamental messages of the Christian faith is instruction in how to live under adversity," says Rene de Visme Williamson, a leading critic of liberation theology.

science at Louisiana State University, says in an appraisal of "The Theology of Liberation" in Christianity Today, a conservative evangelical "The first fallacy of the theology of liberation is its emphasis on liberty. 'Liberty is not the central theme of the Christian faith...Service to God, to glorify God, and not some abstract idea of liberty, is the reason for Another fallacy, according to Williamson, is the concept of equality espoused by liberation theology. If men are free, he maintains, inequality must result because the ablest always will rise to the top. It may be justly argued that the gaps between rich and poor within a country and between rich and poor nations are excessive, he says, and Christians should do what they can to

"But," he adds, "let us not forget that inequality of some kind is an inescapable fact of life. God did not endow us equally. There will never be complete equality on this earth and perhaps not in heaven, either."

Speaking for the liberationist cause, the Joint Strategy and Action Committee, a coalition of the national mission agencies of major Protestant denominations, maintains that liberation theology represents a combination of a new method of "doing" theology that includes the "use of Marxist tools of social analysis" and a "startlingly fresh way of interpreting the Scriptures."

An issue of its official publication, the Grapevine, devoted to liberation theology, relates that this new ap proach to mission developed in Latin America during the 1960s as an outgrowth of the changing political climate south of the equator and of the liberalizing trends that grew out of the Second Vatican Council.

The council's actions heightened concern for the poor in Latin American Catholic communities "and between church and state which had curbed religious protest throughout Latin America up to that point," the Grapevine reported. As a result, it observed, many Latin American Christians began to work and live among the poor and take up their cause in political struggles.

Rev. Hughes new leader for Methodist district

LUBBOCK - The Rev. Lloyd A. Amarillo districts of the Hughes is the new Big Spring District superintendent of the United Methodist Church. Midland United Methodist churches are within the jurisdiction of that district.

Mr. Mughes, pastor of First United Methodist Church of Clovis, N.M., succeeds the Rev. J. Walter Browers in the Big Spring post. Mr. Browers has been named Amarillo District superintendent of the denomination.

The two appointments were among pastoral changes recently announced by Dr. Alsis H. Carleton, presiding bishop of the Northwest Texas-New Mexico Area conferences of the United Methodist Church. Other appointments involve pastors for-merly assigned to Midland Methodist churches, among them:

-The Rev. J. Weldon Butler, for-merly pastor of Midland's St. Luke's Church and more recently the district superintendent of the Plainview and Posey, a graduate of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth, is now a fulltime concert artist. He currently is on an extensive concert tour of the Midwest and Southwest.

Blankenship, composer of "Kneel at the Cross," is a former minister of music at First Baptist Church of Midland. "Kneel at the Cross" was initially presented at Crestview Church last April. His Lubbock pastorate is taken by the Rev. William Fleming, formerly pastor of Big Spring's First Church.

Another appointment involves the Rev. Fred Witta, formerly pastor of the Garden City United Methodist Church, who has been transferred to the pastorate of the United Methodist Church at Loraine. The Rev. Gene A. Moore, from Elmwood West UMC at Abilene, has been appointed Northwest Texas Conference evangelist. Most of the pastoral changes become effective Sept. 1.

Youth stage starve-in Young people of St. Mark's United Methodist Church recently staged a "starve-in,' to focus attention on

The 24-hour feat enabled the church youth to identify in a small way with the millions of starving or malnourished people in the world today, it was pointed out.

Both the junior high and senior high young people of the church participated. Each youth was sponsored in his or her fast by one or more individuals or business firms, and a total of $378 was/raised by the young people; the money was sent to the Methodist Fund for World Hunger.

Ernest Eberhard, who was then president of the church's Idaho Mission, began sending fulltime missionaries to Logan, Utah. A church spokesman says their success led to establishment of the Utah mission in

The 3.6-million-member church has 23,000 young men and women missionaries throughout the United States and in 53 countries. Most Mormon missionaries are 19 or 20 years old. Nearly all are supported by their families, with the church paying only their transportation home at the end of two years.

A formal program called "Every Member a Missionary Made Easy" is being used to aid the Utah missionaries. Mormon families are instructed to find prospective converts and lead them through 13 steps, the last of which is inviting them to hear the missionaries

The first steps are less direct: "1. Select your family. 2. Get acquainted. 3. Invite them to your home. 4. Go out together. 5. Tell them you are a Latter-day Saint ..." Eberhard acknowledges that the program has been resented by some nonmembers. But he said the church emphasizes that it be done prayer-fully and that friends not be dropped

Workshop draws youth

SAN ANTONIO — Young Presbyterians from Midland recently attended a youth workshop on the campus of Trinity University here.

The young people, representing the Christ Presbyterian Church of Midland, included Kathy Brittain, Robin Sue Hammond, Dale Jones, David F. Judd and Joe Lynch, in addition to Carla Cope, now of Midland who represented Westminster Church of Abilene.

The week-long workshop, sponsored by the Presbyterian synods of the Sun and Red River, had as its theme, "For God's Sake Be Human." The workshop was directed by the Rev. Alan Farquar, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church at Arlington, assisted by Dr. Tom Boyd, faculty member of the religion and philosophy departments at the University of Oklahona at Norman.

Lutherans set rummage sale

Members of the Grace and Hope Lutheran churches will hold a rummage sale Saturday, proceeds from which will aid a refugee family being sponsored in Midland by the two congregations. The sale will open at 9 a.m. and simply because they are not in-terested in adopting Mormonism.

Nonmember Utahns' experiences with the Mormons' aggressive mis-sionary spirit are varied. In contrast with the people who have lived with Mormons all their lives and never been asked to join, a waitress in a downtown restaurant says she has turned away five different sets of Mormon missionaries.

Missionaries acknowledge that some people are concerned about the vast wealth evidenced in the church's Utah business interests and by bad examples set by Utah Mormons who don't live the faith.

But several missionaries inter-viewed at the mission home in Bountiful, just north of Salt Lake City, agreed the good experiences far outweigh the bad.

Eberhard said missionaries find less resistance in Utah and Idaho than in missions where other denominations more actively oppose "The missionaries' work is so easy here, they sometimes don't develop the spiritual muscle as in other places," he said.

Foursquare slates guest

Dr. Lee Fisher, a longtime minister in the Foursquare Church, will be guest speaker Sunday at the Midland unit of the denomination.

According to the Rev. Pete Adcock, pastor of the Midland Foursquare
Church, Dr. Fisher will preach at the 10:45 a.m. and 7 p... services. The Midland church is located at 45 Alta Ave., west of North Big Spring Street.

Dr. Fisher, a Foursquare minister for the last 25 years, serving churches in California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho, also has served as a district superintendent of the denomination. He is a graduate of L.I.F.E. Bible College in Los Angeles and of Baptist Liberal Arts College in Covina, Calif.

The public is invited to hear the guest speaker during the pair of Sunday services.

Evangelism meeting set

El Calvario United Methodist Church, 1209 Garden Lane, will be the scene of an afternoon meeting today on evangelism. The meeting is a sub-district level gathering of the Rio Grande Conference of the United Methodist Church.

According to the Rev. Frank Rodriquez, El Calvario's pastor, the 3 p.m. meeting will be open to all interested persons.
Mr. Rodriquez also is announcing

El Calvario's sponsorship of a special screening of the motion picture, "The Cross and the Switchblade" at 3 p.m. today at the Park Center YMCA, 1509 Orchard Lane. All young people in the city 12 years of age and older are invited to see this adaptation of the best-selling book of the same title by Dave Wilkerson

A vesper service this evening at El Calvario Church will have the Rev. Anthony J. Montez of Odessa as the speaker. The service will be open to the public.

Ready for action!

President Gerald Ford came out swinging in mid-season form in his presidential nomination acceptance speech at the concluding session of the Republican National Convention at Kansas City.

It was a well-prepared, masterfully-delivered, highly inspirational address, one which is bound to have been exceptionally well received by millions of Americans, regardless of party affiliation.

He didn't pull any punches and he didn't fail to call names in stating his position positively for members of his party and for all others listening to his remarks. Mr. Ford is capable of forceful campaigning, regardless of what some persons had thought and said previously.

It is reported that the President's hand-picked running mate, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, also is a tough election campaigner, and if this be true, then the Republican Party has quite an impressive front line team.

Ford's selection of Senator

Dole, a former chairman of the Republican National Committee, was surprising to many persons, some of whom perhaps were not too happy on initial consideration. But after weighing all the facts, Dole's selection appears to have been a wise choice. Those who know him personally are high in their praises of him, his political philosophy, his conservative

His acceptance speech also was right down the line of good government. It seemingly was well-received by the convention delegates.

voting record and his election campaigning capabilities.

Another one of the real high points of the Thursday night session was the off-the-cuff remarks delivered in great style and upon presidential invitation by Gov. Ronald Reagan, who had missed nomination by a comparatively few votes.

His was a great, meaningful, forceful message, delivered in a most gracious and inspiring manner. There is no doubt that he swayed the audience with his observations, his plea for a united party, and for his pledge to support the party and its nominees in the upcoming campaign.

Reagan's talk very well could have been the decisive turning point in reuniting the Republican

Reagan used excellent judgment in declining an audience "speech, speech" chant and platform invitation to speak earlier in the evening. And President Ford used equally good judgment in inviting Gov. and Mrs. Reagan to the platform and then in asking Reagan to "say a few words." It was a great ending to a great and exciting convention.

Back to Mr. Ford's speech, he asked in all sincerity for Americans to give him the votes to transform him from an unelected, accidental President into one with a mandate.

Commenting that America's Bicentennial vision was of limited government and unlimited opportunity, he said, "The mandate I want in 1976 is to make that vision a reality. But it will take the voice and the votes of many more Americans who are not Republicans, to make that mandate binding and my mission possible."

He left no doubt that he liked his job and that he is seeking a fouryear elective term, which he considers "the challenge of a job well begun, but far from finished."

He challenged Jimmy Carter, Democratic Party presidential nominee, to "debate the real issues face to face," declaring that "The people have a right to know where we both stand."

Carter, over in Plains, Ga., was quick to accept the challenge, calling on the President to discuss in one or more confrontations "the choices facing Americans."

Mr. Ford also lashed out at the Democrat-controlled Congress, which he said has failed to act on many important matters.

Referring to Carter's campaign criticism of the federal government, Ford said, "Washington is not the problem — their Congress is the problem."

It was a thrilling GOP convention all the way, with plenty of excitement, yet winding up on a note of unity.

Now, looking to the Nov. 2 general election, the battle lines have been drawn, the principal participants have been selected and are in their corners, ready for the action.

Better get set for a lively campaign!

WASHINGTON MERRY - GO - ROUND

Agnew wins hatemongers' kudos

By JACK ANDERSON with LES

WASHINGTON - But for the diligence of federal prosecutors, Spiro T. Agnew might have been waving his hands in victory from the podium of the Republican National Convention this past week.

Four years ago, Agnew was at the peak of his popularity. Millions cheered from the sidelines as he stridently attacked the media, "radiclibs," and opponents of the Vietnam War.

His standing in the opinion polls gave Agnew a bargaining position that he used to full advantage. When he agreed to run as Richard Nixon's 1972 vice presidential candidate, he elicited the President's endorsement of him as the 1976 heir apparent.

But Agnew's shot at the White House was cut short by 40 pages of evidence that detailed his lawlessness. He resigned to avoid prosecution and a possible jail term. Since his resignation, Agnew has authored a novel, taken over a rightwing public interest group, set up a private consulting business, and used his past prominence as a platform for bitter attacks on Jews.

Many prominent Americans, including President Ford, have condemned Agnew's intemperate statements. However, the hate groups of the far right are using them as proof-positive that they were right all along about the Jewish influence in America.

The B'nai Brith Anti-Defamation League, which monitors the hate groups, has found that Agnew's comments are popular topics in the extremist press.

Would to God that we had ten men of (Agnew's) courage," screamed the July issue of Cross and Flag, a racist tabloid founded by the late Gerald L.K. Smith. "That could save America from the bondage of the

In the opinion of hatemonger William Pierce, editor of Attack! a monthly newspaper, Agnew didn't go

"We've been saying it for years, and now others are beginning to say it too," Pierce puffed in a fund-raising letter for the right-wing group, National Alliance. "But not even Spiro has gone all the way and warned us that our freedom and everything else he holds dear will be destroyed forever unless we break the Jews' stranglehold on America.'

Articles on Agnew's statements also appeared in White Power, the organ of the American Nazi Party. And the right-wing Liberty Lobby is advertising Agnew's novel for sale through their office.

Footnote: Former Agnew intimates fear the worst is yet to come. Agnew, they believe, will become even more vitriolic after his three-year probation period ends on October 10.

EARL'S ETHICS: Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz has been crisscrossing the country on behalf of President Ford, giving political speeches prepared by public employes. Moreover, he has failed to discipline top aides who were responsible for the grain scandal and other fiascos that have plagued the department in recent years.

Butz's own unethical behavior has not deterred him from preaching high ethical standards to his underlings. He recently made a cameo appearance, for example, in a training film on proper conduct.

"As federal employes, each of us holds a position of public trust," says the self-righteous Butz. "The American public has the right to expect, and does expect, that we will maintain the highest standards of formance of our official duties.

GEORGIA FEUD: Jimmy Carter's former lieutenant governor, Lester Maddox, plans to hound Carter throughout the fall campaign. Maddox himself is a candidate for president on the American Independent Party ticket.

Maddox told us that he intends to "pull some hair" in the campaign. He is selling a small brochure, entitled 'Where Does Jimmy Carter Stand?" which bitterly attacks Carter and his

"Of all the dishonest people I have known and worked with," states Maddox, including "some relatives, friends and acquaintances in business, the church and in government," Jimmy Carter" is the most dishonest of all."

CADAVEROUS CANDIDATE: Democratic party hacks in Philadelphia ran a dead man in their primary last April 21. He won.

The cadaverous candidate was Rep. William Barrett, who departed the scene 15 days before the election. The machine politicians kept his name on the ballot hoping that a passive electorate would vote for him.

Their plan worked. So they now have appointed another machine man. Michael Myers, as the Democratic candidate for November.

However, the runner-up to Barret, a blind lawyer named Robert Allman, has taken the case to court.

PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE:

Icebreaker salesman from Finland visits

By BENJAMIN SHORE Copley News Service

WASHINGTON - A long, black imousine pulled up in front of Blair House at 11 a.m. bearing a high government official. He was keeping an appointment with the visiting president of a nation that has a strategically placed 800-mile border with the Soviet Union.

Tourists passing the presidential guest house could be excused for assuming that the Washington meetings of such a head of state might focus on such issues as containing Soviet influence or suppressing domestic leftists by force.

But the subject of this particular morning's meeting was not military strategy.

The official alighting from the limousine was Transportation Secretary William Coleman, the visiting president was Urho Kekkonen of Finland, and the subject was...icebreakers.

While many visiting heads of state bring shopping lists for sophisticated U.S. weapons, technology or food, plus a proposal for an American "loan" to pay for average of the control of th "loan" to pay for everything to help maintain "friendship," Kekkonen had ome to sell.

However, his long-running efforts to get the United States to buy a couple of icebreakers, a specialty of Finland's modern shipbuilding in-dustry, have less to do with economics than the difficulties of a small nation working hard to maintain its neutrality in a world where nearly everybody is aligned in various power

During his Washington visit, Kekkonen would discuss icebreakers twice with President Ford (once moments after the colorful arrival ceremonies, again at a glittering state dinner), mention them in responding to a reporter's question about trade with the United States and include them in conversation with Vice President Nelson Rockefeller over

Meanwhile, the U.S. ambassador to Finland, Mark Evans Austad, who had accompanied Kekkonen to Washington, privately would be urging Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to press for a favorable U.S. reaction to Kekkonen's salesmanship.

Even Sanford N. McDonnell, president of the McDonnell Douglas Corp. that builds aircraft, would be gently pressured by Austad and Kekkonen at the White House dinner to nudge the Ford administration on behalf of Finnish icebreakers.

McDonnell's presence at the dinner was partly in recognition of Finland's many years as a loyal customer of McDonnell Douglas passenger air-craft. Finnair, which is owned by the government, has bought two DC-10 jumbo jets for a total of $55 million and just bought six more DC-9s for a total of $45 million.

Now wouldn't it be nice, Kekkonen suggested to everyone, if the Transportation Department's Coast Guard bought a couple of Finland's $50 million jumbo icebreakers?

This proposal of simple economic equity among friends provides a glimpse of the difficulty of being a neutral nation whose economy is totally dependent upon foreign trade.

A $100 million deal alone would not lift Finland's recession-clobbered economy out of the red ink of massive trade deficits. Rather, it is the international political impact of such a transaction that turns a president into a hardware salesman.

Finland's exports to the Soviet Union and other Communist nations are many times greater than those to the United States. It is very tough to maintain neutrality in fact as well as appearance when such a major and aggressive political bloc is providing so much more of Finland's lifeblood of trade than is the United States.

This subtlety is not lost on the White House. While there are some substantial domestic labor and financial factors to consider, U.S. officials now seem agreed on the meaning of Kekkonen's message:

There would be socko symbolism in a Finnish-built icebreaker, flying the American flag, crashing a path through the ice on the Great Lakes so Soviet ships can carry home the U.S. wheat that Moscow just bought. That's balance.

ST. JOHN'S JOURNAL:

United States' abandonment of war-torn Lebanon

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN Copley News Service

WASHINGTON - "The U.S. State Department policy," observed former Lebanese President Camille Thamoun, "has never been courteous s far as the Lebanese crisis is conerned. America is a superpower with in inferior policy.

Chamoun and other Christian leaders in Lebanon are bitter and ngry at American policy toward heir war-torn country. The blast by Chamoun came in the wake of the U.S. evacuation of some 300 Americans from Beirut and the departure of U.S. Ambassador Talcott Seelye. It has been learned here that Secretary of State Henry Rissinger has no intention of sending eelye back to Beirut. Seelye replaced murdered U.S.

hvoy Francis Meloy Jr. Chamoun, who is now foreign buntry, contends that Palestinian merrillas of Yasir Arafat are esponsible for the murder of Meloy. nere is some evidence to suggest hat Chamoun is correct in his charge.

However, the almost virtual silence the U.S. State Department and ord administration on Meloy's murder, the recall of his replacement and a willingness of the United States to open up contacts and cooperation with the Palestinian guerrillas signals a grim turning point in the almost two years of bloody civil war.

It signals to the Christians in Lebanon that Kissinger is about to settle for one of his now famous compromises" for peace.

In Angola and South Vietnam such compromises led to a Communist takeover. Why, it is being asked here, did Seelye leave after only five weeks in Beirut, with no plans to return? And why during those five weeks did Seelye not meet with the Christian factions in the civil war?

"Perhaps Seelye wanted to convey the impression to the American public opinion," Chamoun commented, "that the Palestinian guerrillas are mightier than the American 6th Fleet, whose units were stationed within sight of the Lebanese coast."

Chamoun must find this fact particularly bitter since he was president of Lebanon in 1958 when he requested and got from then-President Eisenhower U.S. Marines to establish a buffer between Christians and Moslems in a left-wing inspired civil conflict plotted by then Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

This columnist remembers that period firsthand, having covered the Lebanese affair as a newspaper correspondent. Unlike now, the United States was not fearful of using its power. It did not bring in the Soviet Union in an overt action as many had forecast. In fact, direct U.S. intervention in Lebanon in 1958 forestalled the very kind of savage conflict that its inaction, in the wake of Vietnam, has now created. In 1958, the Soviets were active in Beirut, covertly acting directly and indirectly through their proxy Egypt.

One evening in 1958, at the St.

Georges Hotel, now shattered by the savage fighting along the Beirut seaside, an American newsman introduced me over dinner to "a friend," a correspondent for a British daily newspaper. Five years later, in 1963, I was to have the shock of my journalism career when that friend turned out to be none other than the top Soviet spy who defected to the Soviet Union, Kim Philby. The damage that Philby had done to the West, both in the Middle East and elsewhere as a top official and double agent in British intelligence, was extensive.

I tell this story to illustrate that Russian aims and ambitions in the Middle East and Lebanon go back many decades.

Yet, from the news reports and the policy of the Ford administration, one gains the impression that somehow the Soviets and their satellites are not actively aiding and abetting the civil

However, I have learned from a source close to the Greek-Catholic bishop of Lebanon, who is on a hurried visit to Washington, that the Soviets already have intervened in Lebanon on the side of the Moslem leftists.

"We are now fighting," this source told me, "Communist guerrillas trained and armed by Moscow from India, Pakistan and Cuba."

If in fact this is the case, it helps explain why the United States suddenly has abandoned its "neutral" position and sided with the Moslem leftists in the vain . hope that it can achieve a settlement.

Like Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos and Angola, we are watching with this new U.S. policy the abandonment by the Christian United States of the Christians in Lebanon.

Dole recalls humble beginnings in Russell

RUSSELL, Kan. - President Ford brought his new running mate home to the west Kansas wheat country Friday, and the just-nominated Republican vice presidential candidate wept as he recalled his beginnings on the windswept plains.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, hand-picked by Ford only 24 hours before, had to stop speaking, his eyes flooding with tears, when he told his old friends: 'This proves you can come from a small town and don't need wealth and all the material things of this world to succeed - if I've succeeded. "I can recall the times when if I needed help, the people of Russell helped me.' Most of the populace of Russell-a community of some 6,000 - crowded under shade trees around the county courthouse to hear Dole and President

They gave the senator, who started his political career as prosecuting attorney here, a prolonged ovation when his voice choked and he was unable

The President detoured by Russell on his way to a post-convention working vacation at Vail, Colo. Dole planned to fly back to Washington for an appearance Sunday on the CBS news program "Face the Nation" before joining Ford in Colorado for campaign strategy meetings next week.

The first stop in their campaign against Democrats Jimmy Carter and Walter F. Mondale showed Dole to be a witty, self-deprecating and strong speaker.

The crowd that greeted him, he said, added up to more people than passed through the courthouse in all the eight years he had worked there.

Earlier in the day, he told fellow Republicans that when President Ford called to offer him the spot on the ticket, he thought ford had meant to call John Connally and reached him by mistake

"John Connally had the suite next to mine, so I assumed they had the wrong number," he said 'Before I identified myself, I said 'I accept.' " Dole's hometown — where residents earn their livelihood making mobile homes, working in the oilfields, and growing wheat - was as much surprised as the Kansas City convention at Ford's

Ford's 'best speech' ever was no accident

The Washington Post

KANSAS CITY - It was no accident that Gerald R. Ford delivered the best speech of his life here Thursday night, just at a moment he and his party badly needed it.

Weeks of preparation, including two complete trial truns that were videotaped and reviewed by the President, went into Mr. Ford's acceptance speech at the closing session of the Republican National Convention.

In an age in which television dominates politics, and the national political conventions are among the most widely viewed political shows, all the effort seemed worth-while to President Ford's entourage from the initial, overwhelmingly favorable response

'It was amazing, I didn't know he had it in him," remarked George Hinman, the Republican National Committeeman from New York this morn-

"I never heard President Ford give a greater speech that he delivered last night," Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, the vice presidential nominee told a breakfast meeting of the Republican National Committee here Friday. The description of the speech as Mr. Ford's best ever is a subjective judgment, but one widely shared here.

What made the speech, and particularly its delivery, all the more remarkable, was the President's reputation as an often bumbling, lack-luster speaker who in eight months of campaigning reviewed the videotapes concentrating on ways to against Ronald Reagan seldom inspired his au- improve his delivery. ces with either his words or his speaking style.

White House aides were acutely aware of the dangers and opportunities the acceptance speech posed.

It would be viewed by millions and would shape voter judgments that would linger through the fall. It might reinforce the perception of Mr. Ford as a kindly but uninspiring leader, or it might provide the Republican party and the American people with a jolt, a new view of Gerald R. Ford.

and continued intensely for several weeks.

In addition to the President, a senior White House official said, the two key men behind the speech were an ex-newspaper man and an ex-actor

The former newspaper man is Robert T. Hartmann, an old friend of Mr. Ford and his senior speech writer. Several weeks ago, according to the official, Hartmann began soliciting advice from Cabinet members and others about the content of the speech. he wrote the first draft that was the basis for the final text. The President spent hours working with the speech, rewording phrases and polishing. "He spent more time on it than any speech he's ever given," one official said.

He also practiced delivering it repeatedly during the past two weeks with the aid of former actor

Penny, who headed his own television production company and is the former comedy writer, joined the White House staff earlier this year for the purpose of improving the President's speaking style for the election year. His presence was first noted at the annual dinner of the White House Correspondents Association in May, where the President delivered an address with unusual comic touches. Mr. Ford went through two complete rehearsals of his speech that were videotaped, the first in Washington and the second in Kansas City. With Penny at his side, to offer advice, Mr. Ford even with this technical assistance a White House official said, they main ingredient that made the speech successful were the President's own efforts, the importance he placed on it, and his emotion of the moment.

"He wanted to sum up the record of the last two years," the official said. "In part, it was a watershed. Before the speech, he was the President who came to office by appointment. After the speech, he was the man with the mandate of the Republicar party and, we hope in the fall, the American peo-

Accordingly, planning for the speech began early Carter tries to link Ford, Dole to Nixon PLAINS, Ga. - Jimmy Carter said Friday that, in his acceptance speech and general posture at the Republican National Convention, President Ford had a commitment "that the country would continue to drift, that there would be no initiatives from the White House.

In commenting for the first time at length on the Republican ticket in a news conference in front of his home, Carter repeatedly sought to link both Ford and his vice presidential running mate, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, to former President Richard M.

Of Ford, the Democratic presidential candidate declared, "In a completely dormant way, he has simply extended what Nixon evolved, Nixon being a much more active and aggressive President, and I think to that extent, President Ford is responsible for the continuity that exists between the Nixon policies and the Ford policies."

As to Dole, Carter speculated that Ford had chosen him, in part, because of his reputation "as a very effective party functionary, someone who's completely loyal, who stuck with Nixon until the last minute, who is a very aggressive campaignger."

At one point, when a newsman questioned whether it was fair to link Ford and Dole "to a fairly unsavory name," Carter shot back, "Well, you know, it's not my fault that Nixon's unsavory."

In the course of the news conference, Carter also declared that he would let his vice presidential running mate, Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, or his press secretary, Jody Powell, respond to attacks from Dole or from members of the Ford cabinet in the course of the campaign, while he would respond only to such attacks from Ford himself.

And he designated Powell to represent him in talks with Ford representatives about the format of prospective televised debates between the two candidates. Ford challenged Carter to debates in his acceptance speech Thursday night and Carter

Although the former Georgia governor is normally a hard-hitting, if soft-spoken, campaigner, his comments Friday were unusually aggressive.

"I don't recall any new concepts or answers to important questions, nor new proposals nor programs that President Ford has proposed," he declared. "There may be some, but I don't recall

"I think that's going to be the main difference between myself and President Ford — leadership, new leadership in the White House, or no leadership and a condition of drift in this country because of inactivity from the White House.

As for the Republican platform, Carter suggested that Ford "might very well spend one debate period just debating against his platform, because in many ways it criticizes his Administration "It points out, for instance, that President Ford refused to see Mr. Solzhenitsyn and it deplores any federal assistance for education, which I think Mr. Ford has favored, and I think this was evolved because President Ford was so careful not to draw any opposition from the Reagan forces.

They yielded on every Reagan proposal in the platform, some of which were highly critical of the Ford administration," Carter went on. "And President Ford just adopted a dormant attitude in order to avoid a conflict, a confrontation, toward everything that Gov. Reagan proposed. So I think that the Republican platform is one that Mr. Ford would certainly have written differently had he wanted to pursue his ideas aggressively."

Toward Dole, Carter continued to display the scornful attitude that had been evident in the Carter camp from the moment Ford announced his selection of him as his running mate.

The Democratic candidate said his only recollection of Dole was from the 1974 congressional campaign when the senator was campaigning for reelection.

"I was the national (Democratic congressional) campaign chairman in 1974," Carter recalled, "and I was trying to help congressman (Bill) Roy (an obstetrician by profession) in the Kansas election. And think one of the attacks that was made on Congressman Roy by Dole was that he was an abortionist.

"And this was a very damaging allegation made in the last stages of the campaign and may have made the difference in the outcome of the election. But that was my only recollection of Sen. Dole's campaign techniques. I doubt that he would repeat that on a national level, and of course Sen. Mondale and I are not doctors and therefore could never have participated in abortion.'

In any case, Carter said, he doubts whether Dole will be able to upset his (Carter's) temperamental equanimity or that the Kansas senator will prove to be as skillful a "cage-rattler" as some he has known.

"I've had a lot of training for that kind of attack," Carter said. "I spent four or five years dealing with Lester Maddox, while I was governor and he was lieutenant governor, and he's an expert.'

In sum, Carter's news conference, put together with his recent appearances in Manchester, N.H. and Charleston, W. Va., provide strong evidence that his is not going to be a gentle campaign.

In one area, however, he appeared somewhat on the defensive, and that pertained to the insistent Republican attacks at their convention on the record of the Democratic Congress. "I don't intend to defend the Congress," Carter said Friday. "I think it has been a fact that many embarrassing occurrences have taken place in the Congress, and I think the lack of enthusiasm in investigating the disclosure of abuses by the members of the Congress has been something that I certainly would not condone or ignore."
