Maj. Gen. Han Ju-Kyong, chief North Korean delegate to the Korean Military Armistice Commission, proposes Wednesday that its troops and those of the United Nations Command be separated physically in the Panmunjom truce village.

U.S. demands punishment, North Korea proposes line

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — The United States demanded today that North Korea punish the soldiers who hacked to death two U.S. Army officers at the Panmunjom truce village a week ago. North Korea proposed physical separation between Communist and allied guards at Pan-munjom to prevent clashes like the fight in which the two Americans

The U.S.-led United Nations command declared the separation proposal "may be a positive step" and would be studied in detail — but said it meanwhile expects punishment of the North Koreans who killed the Americans in a dispute over pruning a tree.

"I have called this meeting for one urpose ... to inform you that our side calls for punishment of those responsible for the murder of the two UNC officers," U.S. Rear Adm. Mark P. Frudden told the North Koreans during a 48-minute session of the joint commission which oversees the 23year-old Korean armistice.

Ever since the truce was signed in 1953, guards from both sides have had free run of the joint security area at Panmunjom, an area about 850 yards in diameter bisected by the military demarcation line between North and South Korea

Maj. Gen. Han Ju-kyong, the chief North Korean delegate, proposed that in the future North Koreans stay north and the Americans and South Koreans stay south of the line, which also passes through the center of the

used for today's meeting

The general also read out a message earlier conveyed privately in which North Korean ruler Kim Ilsung termed the Panmunjom clash regrettable and urged that both sides seek to avoid such incidents in the future.

Frudden, the chief UNC delegate, said this was a positive step — but still "Your response is unsatisfactory."

The allies, he said, demand concrete action including punishment of those responsible for the killing and orders to North Korean troops against physical contact with or obstructing the movement of allied guards.

"The U.N. Command will study your proposal in detail concerning the JSA (joint security area) and provide our response when that study is completed," the admiral said.

The North Korean general told him, "We believe it is most reasonable to represent the security personal of separate the security personnel of both sides in this area with the military demarcation line between them so that they perform their guard duties in their respective areas only."

The commission met at U.S. request for the third time since North Korean guards killed the two Americans last Wednesday as they headed a working party of South Koreans and Americans pruning a 40-foot tree in the joint security area.

Frudden told the North Koreans the U.N. Command requested the meeting "for one purpose, that our side calls for punishment of those responsible for the murder of the UNC officers.

"Moreover, we insist on assurances that the safety of UNC personnel in the joint security area will be preserved."

City Council rejects proposed parks curfew

By DEBBIE PIERCE

A four-step plan designed to alleviate conditions at Wadley-Barron and other city parks was pushed aside Tuesday by the Midland City Council, but councilmen came up with a plan

Council agreed to have extra patrols in the park area, to authorize additional overtime for a police of-ficer to patrol the area if necessary and to hold a meeting soon with police chief Wayne Gideon to attack the immediate problem with the park.

City buys tormer hotel

The city moved another step closer toward realization of that downtown park proposal Tuesday when the Midland City Council appropriated revenue sharing funds totaling $150,000 for the purchase of the old Crawford Hotel

The building, located at the corner of Main and Wall streets, is one of the purchases needed by the city before the park proposal really gets under way. However, the city still has several vacant lots to purchase in the downtown area, assistant city manager Fred Poe said.

The park proposal originally was developed by the Midland Area Foundation, with plans calling for construction of an exhibit hall, an informal plaza and park area, a Park first came to light last week at a meeting of the city Parks and Recreation Commission. About a dozen park area residents appeared before the commission to protest the use of the park by "alcoholics, dope peddlers and young people who are being misled."

The group complained about the park's reputation among local youths and others as the "in" place to go and about the "deplorable" conditions which had arisen there over the past eight years. They protested speeding traffic, double and triple parking, loud music, littering and the use of "foul" language. They suggested everything from a strictly enforced curfew to a complete shut-down of the park.

The parks commission held two additional special sessions to discuss the situation and finally came up with a four-part plan to present to the

Included in the plan was the in-corporation of additional police patrols of city parks to enforce current statutes on traffic, littering and disorderly conduct; a curfew from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. on the 24 parks classified as neighborhood parks; a no parking zone around the perimeter of Wadley-Barron Park to coincide with the new curfew; and a time period of six months from council approval for the curfew and no parking to be in effect.

In voting against the proposal of the parks commission, Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. noted, "This is a bigger problem than we're going to solve with just a few minor changes to Wadley-Barron Park. The problem is, the police department has about five trouble spots of the same nature going on all at once. I can't even visualize hiring that many people to control a tiny minority." Councilman Martin Neill added that he thought the suggested 10 p.m. curfew would simply move the young people elsewhere. He also suggested letting Chief Gideon study the situation and come up with an overall plan. "We can sit here and make these decisions, but the chief must live with them, so he should have a greater input," he said.

School reunion special time

I thought it was thoughtful of the Lee High School Booster Club to sending out invitations to the Maroon and White Day" kickoff Saturday beginning at 7 p. m. at the Lee Field House, and I expect to be there with my hamburger bib.

But it may take a while for me to ecome a dyed-in-the-wool Rebel fan this year because I ran into a classmate from Abilene High School the other day. We counted both our fingers and toes and discovered this happens to be the 25th anniversary of the Class of '51 at AHS.

Kenneth Green, veteran CPA, has been in Midland so long he's probably forgotten the words to "Dear Old Abilene High," but he tells me there are other, less reconstructed Abilene Eagles around, such as stockbroker Jerry Roberts, and I proposed we get together and talk about whipping up a silver jubilee if there are enough of us alive and out of jail.

I haven't been to a high school reunion since I escaped in 1951, and about the last time I saw Jerry Roberts was when we played hooky from North Junior High in Abilene to go to a carnival, but I'm dying to see how many of our classmates still have hair and their own teeth.

So "Come on, y'all; let's really hear it for the Class of '51," as Helen Haynes and the other cheerleaders would say. If you're near Midland, get in touch with Kenneth, and we'll find a rallying point in Abilene. But what on earth will we do if the Eagles happen to be playing a Midland team the weekend we set up a reunion?

Carter claims family farmer, American consumer neglected

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Jimmy Carter says that if elected president he would never authorize an embargo on foreign shipment of U.S.

Carter, confident he has a strong chance of winning in President Ford's native Midwest in November, was to appear today at the Iowa State Fair, his last stop on a four-day campaign

Aides said his speech in an outdoor arena would be an attempt to capitalize on what Carter believes is significant discontent in the farm belt over Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz and the Republican administration's farm program.

Carter, who feels his background as a peanut farmer will help him in the historically Republican Midwest, has attacked Butz as a supporter of big agricultural businesses who lacks understanding for small farmers.

He also has criticized the Ford administration for what he described as unpredictable, short-range agricultural policies, which he says have financially damaged the farmer.

The Democratic presidential nominee gave a preview of today's speech when he spoke here Tuesday night to representatives of two dozen national farm organizations.

"Under my administration, if I'm elected, there will never be another embargo that singles out farm products," the former Georgia governor said during the meeting with representatives of such groups National Grange, American Farm Bureau and National Corn Growers Association.

Embargoes on shipments of U.S. grain, particularly last October's embargo on shipments to Russia, have been a sore point with many farmers who claim they lost money because of them. The administration has said that no farm sales were lost because all available ports and ships were tied up at the time of the em-

Board discusses school security

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

School trustees discussed "after-chool security at secondary schools" in executive session during their regular meeting Tuesday, school board president Joe Dominey said.

Dominey said the subject was part of a personnel discussion which involved some specific persons.

Dominey said the discussion centered around "who is responsible centered around "who is responsible."

centered around "who is responsible for enforcing security and discipline after school."

"How to insure the security of pupils leaving the campus in the af-ternoon from outside elements" was the board's concern, he said.

School officials have had reports that during the past two and a half weeks of junior high and freshman school band practice there have been some problems, particularly at Austin Freshman School, with older young people coming on the campus and bothering the students, Dominey

Trustees also discussed security on all campuses and were briefed on contingency plans for "what-if"

situations, he said.

During the open portion of the meeting, trustees heard a report on school transportation services for the Total mileage for the 1975-76 school year for all school district vehicles was 941,445 miles. Buses and vans accounted for 611,160 of those miles, with trucks and pickups, station wagons and vans (not used on regular routes), buses not in regular use and the athletic director's car accounting for the remaining mileage.

Dr. James H. Mailey, schools superintendent, said 3,100 to 3,300 students rode on 39 regular routes each day during the school year. About 900 of those were rural students, he said, with the remainder transported within the city. Special education bus students and routes are included in that total.

The school district owns 52 buses and 16 vans and station wagons. Three new buses have been ordered for the coming year.

In the "normal replacement cycle," buses are replaced every ten years, Mailey said. Some, however, are kept longer with mechanical overhauls done in the school district garage and body refurbishing done at Huntsville. Bill Zeitler, director of transportation services, said a new bus costs $15,000 while reconditioning costs $1,400.

Zeitler said some minor changes will be made in bus routes this year as part of continual adjustment to changing needs.

Trustee David Grimes noted that Austin Freshman School starts later than other schools because of bus schedules now and asked if increased using due to desegregation action ould require staggered starting mes for more schools.

Mailey said the district "would almost have to" stagger starting times in that case, citing trouble in recruiting enough qualified bus drivers as a primary reason.

Mailey said no one who does not meet all qualifications for bus driver, including having a chauffeur's license and a satisfactor safety record, is allowed to drive any of the yellow and black vehicles used to transport students regularly. students regularly.

Teachers or coaches sometimes drive students on out-of-town trips in other vans or station wagons owned by the school, however.

by the school, however.

Grimes suggested the school district might remove that "burden" from the teachers and coaches by providing funds to hire drivers.

At the present time, the school district needs six more drivers for the coming school year, Zeitler said. He said the district never had a full complement of bus drivers employed during the 1975-76 school year.

Warehouse personnel who are certified to drive buses are used when Bus drivers work three to five-anda-half hours a day and earn $3.40 per hour of driving time, Zeitler said.

During the Tuesday meeting, trustees also amended the 1975-76 budget to update the accounting and budgeting process. The net increase over the budget as approved last summer was almost $5 million, but $4.4 million of that amount was for

The board approved hiring 23 new teachers and accepted resignations from 10 teachers. Mailey said the school district has hired a total of 117 new teachers this year compared to 114 at this time last year.

He said more than 1,000 persons were actively interested in obtaining teaching jobs in Midland this year.

Board members also approved a request for use of school buildings for the general election Nov. 2 and one for continued use of a school cafeteria for services by a Midland church.

Lots of live Sousas will be there, too. And not one of them, promises John Philip Sousa III, has ever shown one shred of musical talent.

"People keep trying to hand us batons," he said. "I used to take them, but now I've learned to sense them coming, and I head for the men's room. My son loves public appearances—he'll take them and go right ahead and direct a band. LOS ANGELES (AP) - There are some nights the Neither one of us knows an upbeat Tonight, CBS is dealing America something com- go on playing.'

> Sousa III is a writer who is now thinking of writing "a nice account" of his 30 years in administration at Time-Life. Sousa Jr., his father, was a manufacturer of automobile parts and a sportsman. Sousa IV, III's son, is in politics in California. He once ran for Congress in Orange County, Calif., arriving there only two weeks before the election and wowing people with his patriotic name, but he lost.

Sousa II is also the head of the family business, which is frightfully interested in the new copyright laws. Under the old ones, Sousa I's music could be copyrighted only for two terms of 28 years each, in the United States, and the family only retains rights for about 80 late pieces, none of them the biggies.

Sousa I did well financially on his music, which included not only the marching hits, such as "The Stars and Stripes Forever" and "Seinper Fidelis" the Marine Band theme, but opera, ballet, ballads and waltzes. Don't worry about those pitiful figures you hear of his getting — like $35 for "The Washington Post March" commissioned by the newspaper. That was just for the sheet music. Sousa I, who was founder of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, retained the performance rights, which is where the money is.

The family business also protects the image, which is to say it plans to sue a Cuban travel writer in California who uses "John Philip Sousa" as a pseudonymn, and it got an injuctions against a Connecticut opera company preventing it from do-ing "El Capitan" with only a sevenpiece orchestra.

There is no negative feeling about Sousa to fight. He always remained popular, said Sousa III, but "in the last decade or so, he's become a legend. It has something to do with nostalgia. He represents those great old days which may not have been that great, but with all this music ding at you, you think they were.

"It's a pretty true picture of him. He was very patriotic, very upbeat. He was a very Victorian man, morally. We're always trying to get the goods on him, but we've never succeeded. He led a pure life.'

'Fleetwood Mac' hits superstardom

By CAMERON CROWE Special to The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD - Fleetwood Mac, just a year and a half ago, was a band easy to take for granted. After nine years, 10 albums and countless personnel changes, it appeared all but immune to superstardom. The British group's music sold decently — it was always competent and often imaginative — but the spark that could take it higher than a perennial second-billing was nowhere in sight.

These days, no one is wondering why Fleetwood Mac is still together. In an amazing case of rewarded persistence, its 11th album, the now-platinum "Fleetwood Mac," spawned a flurry of hit singles nd has remained near the top of the charts for more than 14 months. Now the group is a coast-to-coast headliner, with each concert a quick sellout.

Drummer Mick Fleetwood, who began the group with bassist John McVie (hence the name) as a blues band in 1967, is nonplussed. "We never thought about quitting or stopping at all. Never," he says matter-of-factly. The rest of the band, gathered together here in its Sunset Blvd. public relations office, nods in silent agreement. "There were times of feeling intense neglect, but we just chugged along. Nobody in the band can do anything else.'

Fleetwood Mac's success story is mostly due to the ingenious addition of two basically incongruous musicians just 10 days before the recording of the break-through album. Singer-songwriters Lindsey Buckingham and Stevie Nicks, a pop-oriented couple-duo from Los Angeles, immediately steered the group into a fascinatingly commercial direction. It was also Fleetwood Mac's second intraband relationship. McVie's wife Christine sings, writes and

"It's all a matter of chemistry," figures Fleetwood. "Everything we've gone through up until now has been worthwhile if it meant getting to the point where the band is now. This is, by far, the most stimulating collection we've had."

Which says quite a bit. There is a standing joke that one out of every four people in the music business has, at one time or another, been in Fleetwood Mac. The group understandably cringes at the thought of detailing past history. It is no easy task remembering the many twists and turns they've taken. "Looking back," McVie says, "I'm very pro-ud of the fact we've never been pinned with a label. We've changed too fast for that.

In retrospect, Fleetwood Mac's greatest asset may well have been its open mind. When Christina McVie was added to the band in '71, it was not exactly in concurrence with the prevailing macho stance of rock 'n' roll. Four years later, they were not afraid to replace departing guitarist Bob Welch with an unknown — Buckingham — and his female partner, Nicks, who handles the vocals.

"I liked the idea," Fleetwood says, "of real fleshand-blood people and not hardened professionals."

Sure enough, it was the two women in the group who scored the momentum-making singles hits. Christine McVie's "Over My Head" came first, breaking big in both pop and easy listening markets. Nicks' "Rhiannon" was the important followup. An infectious tale of an 18th-century Welsh witch, the song validated Fleetwood Mac's hard-rock side as "Say You Love Me," another rollicking C. McVie composition, secured the rare feat - three smashes on one album.

"It's really amazing," remarks Buckingham. "We had no idea any of those songs were hits. Especially not 'Rhiannon.' We figured, for sure, that it was too weird." Buckingham smiles broadly. "Now one more hit and it could almost be called 'Fleetwood Mac's Greatest Hits.

Nicks brightens. "With that kind of thinking, we could buy ourselves another year to do the new

The group's next album, nearly completed, has a mid-September deadline. Already it is by far the longest Fleetwood Mac has ever spent on an album. An exasperated Nicks explains simply. "Nothing has

When the sessions began at Sausalito's Record Plant early this year, the band was tired and spent from six grueling months of grass-roots touring. Most of the material existed only as snips of melodies or lyrics. Weeks of expensive studio time later, the album began to take shape. No sooner did that happen when an overzealous machine—since dubbed-"Jaws"—mangled portions of the completed tracks. A slew of other technical problems sent them to Miami's Criteria Sound Studios and later to a local

"It's not really the pressure of following up the last album that's hung us up at all," states Buckingham. "You create that kind of pressure yourself, in your own head. That's all it is. We all knew this LP had to be good ... and it is."

The reai reason behind the delay, the group readily admits, was the sudden upheaval in their domestic lives. Early on in the recording, five members found themselves in romantically choppy waters. The result — the romantic relationships between members of the group dissolved.

"It was very, very stange..." reflects Christine.
Fleetwood finishes the story. "We all split up during the same two-month period. The grief is all behind us now, fortunately, but there was a very heavy time there when none of us were really up for doing much of anything."

Much of the emotional trauma, says Nicks, was turned into songs. "Every one on the new album," she explains, "is about somebody in the band. Without being dumb or contrived about it, I think we've put together a very nice musical diary. All my songs are about what happens to me, anyway, whereas I got the idea for "Rhiannon" from a book I read.

"It's great that there are three strong songwriters in the band. That's got to be a big reason when it comes right down to it, if the world's greatest rock 'n' roll band had bad songs—forget it. But if you have really good songs, you don't have to be a virtuoso. The songs will come across."

Altrough they may not be virtuosos, Fleetwood Mac's musicianship is certainly more than adequate. Fleetwood is one of rock's most brilliantly functional drummers. McVie's bass work and Buckingham's vivacious guitar and vocal prowess enhance the material. Add Christine's calming influence and Nicks' full-throated warble and you have a first-rate grab bag of English-American styles. On stage, Fleetwood Mac even revisits such earlier material as "Oh Well" and "The Green Manalishi," bringing them a new urgency.

"There is definitely a live album in our future. re reals Buckingham, "but not quite yet. I'd really like to develop in the studio with this band. After the album comes out and we complete the road cycle that will follow it, we're going to lay back a little and spend the time to refine our work even further.

Chances are they will do exactly that. There is no one around to try and convince them otherwise.

"I'm conviced that we wouldn't have made it this ig if we had a manager," Fleetwood maintains. "We've taken a very natural course. God knows what might have happened if there was somebody trying to make an image for us. We have two women in the band, and a manager would probably have made something out of that. We don't. We don't need a manager. We have an agent to book the tours and a lawyer when we need him. So John and I make a few more phone calls, use more brain cells and deal with all the rumors ourselves..big deal.'

Nicks stops him short. "I've got it," she yelps. "Fleetwood Mac's newest album 'Rumors and Hear-

A new school year brings lots of challenges for first graders — and their parents, Mrs. Ilene Miller, a family life education specialist, says.

Mrs. Miller is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. "Each child has to find his place in this new, larger social setting which is quite different from his home. By practicing social skills developed during the pre-school years, the youngster learns to make and keep friends, to work cooperatively and to share with classmates. Nixon would have office without tapes, Jaworski asserts Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski says he believes former President Richard Nixon would have "survived and remained in office" if he had destroyed his tapes.

Jaworski speculates in his new book scheduled to be released today that one reason Nixon refused to destroy the tapes was because they were worth money.
"He hoped to realize a fortune from them," Jaworski writes, "and his background showed him to be a man greedy for both money and power."

The book, entitled "The Right and Jaworski also relates an incident in which Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., describes a sobbing Nixon pleading with the senator to save Nixon from criminal prosecution.

"He was crying," Jaworski quoted Eastland as saying. "He said, 'Jim, don't let Jaworski put me in that trial with Haldeman and Ehrlichman. I

Visual illusions solve problems

Short of tearing down walls there is really no way to actually make a small, cramped apartment increase in

Yet, through design techniques you can make it appear larger and in many cases even "feel"

bigger.
The secret: create a series of visual illusions. One of the problems with many of the newer apartments is that the ceilings often appear to be too low. The solution is to place emphasis on vertical lines which will visualy increase the height of the room.

The vertical elements shoud be placed in the corners of the rooms, at the windows and door frames.

This can be done by using striped wallpaper and draperies which emphasize vertical lines hanging straight from the ceiling to the floor.

A room also can be visually enlarged by keeping backbround colors light and keyed to the carpet color. If it's a condominium and you have a voice in the carpet selection, consider carpeting which is plain and a lighter color.

A fresh approach

The nine members of Midland Junior Achievement who attended the National Junior Achievement Conference (NAJAC) held recently on the campus of Indiana University at Bloomington did a tremendous job while there in relating the true story of the petroleum industry at every opportunity.

And the opportunities were numerous since many of the more than 3,000 Junior Achievers in attendance were from non-oilproducing states and regions, many of whom had been fed a diet of complete misinformation concerning the oil and gas business.

In the first place, the high school youths from Midland chose and wore safety hard hats, like those worn in the oil fields, to identify themselves with and their interest in the petroleum industry. The hats had oil derricks painted on them, along with stickers bearing the names of various major oil companies. The boys and girls also distributed "Good Luck Gusher" business cards, bearing a picture of an oil derrick on one side, a pump jack on the other side, and reading "From a humble beginning to a successful future."

There wasn't any doubt that the youths were from the oil country, and when queried about their headgear, they weren't a bit bashful about telling where they were from and in citing factual information on petroleum — — their home city's major industry.

And in workshop and discussion nationwide.

groups in which the Midlanders participated, the youths from the oil patch recited factual information on the oil and gas business and the important role it has in the nation's continuing progress and general welfare, from grass roots to national levels. They had done their homework and had the facts and figures to back up their statements.

Reports from adult observers indicate the young men and women did a most effective job in setting the record straight and in altering the misguided attitudes and beliefs of many of their associates from other parts of the

They were able, for instance, to correct the false impression of numerous persons that residents of oil-producing regions are able to buy gasoline at much lower prices (30 cents a gallon) than are consumers in other areas.

They also were prepared to present convincing arguments against divestiture, price controls and other regulations which would be disastrous for the oil and gas business. They also had the right answer for those who charged that oil companies thrive on "excessive profits."

In other words, the Junior Achievers from Midland achieved what many other persons and groups have not been able to do in this particular regard.

The petroleum industry might well consider using this fresh approach in relating its true story

A sound solution Many of the nation's families, enjoying annual pay raises pegged to the cost-of-living or beneficiaries of automatic cost-ofliving hikes, are dumbfounded to discover that they still can't cope with inflation. The problem is that taxes also are subject to inflation. But they don't show up in consumer price indexes.

Wage boosts often bring with them a leap to a higher tax bracket, increased Social Security assessments and alterations in allowable credits and deductions.

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, a permanent, bipartisan group of federal and local officials, is considering a recommendation to Congress this fall to "index" all segments of federal and state tax structures.

But government's expenses are bloated by inflation, too, and deficits resulting from lost revenue feed further inflation.

One solution might be for the governments to take a good, hard look at questionable programs with the goal of cutting spending proportionately.

By JACK ANDERSON with LES

WASHINGTON - Blue Cross has been telling the American public that it does more "than just pay bills." That's true. The boys at Blue Cross like to run up bills of their own and stick Uncle Sam with the tab.

They took their families along and charged it all the government. "Charging Medicare for the meetings was a questionable practice," the audit states, "since the meetings were of a general nature, held in settings outside the contractors service area. - Blue Cross officials in Iowa and Wisconsin bought fleets of luxury automobiles, which they charged to Medicare. These costs were "unreasonable," said the confidential audit, and "unallowable for reimbursement to the contractors.'

- Blue Cross workers also charged the taxpayers thousands of dollars for 'business automobiles" which they put to personal use. Employes in Iowa and Maine took the vehicles home after work and used them as if the owned them.

- Blue Cross executives often shunned commercial airlines and chartered private planes. In each instance, the audit charges, commercial flights were available. The public paid.

- Blue Cross auditors who should have halted the waste of federal money simply looked the other way. #### INSIDE REPORT:

Ford's first decision frustrating one for top aides

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK KANSAS CITY - Minutes before

President Ford unexpectedly decided on Sen. Robert Dole, high operatives in his Crown Center Hotel headquarters were frustrated near the point of quitting the campaign. The reason: embarrassing failure to follow a meticulously detailed Thursday timetable for the President calling for an early decision and announcement of his running mate. This failure portrayed a President who, having just been legitimized as chief of his party, was allowing his first tough decision to bog down in unpresidential indecision. The anguish of these aides was relieved by the sudden choice of Dole. A moderate conservative who made lasting Republican centacts during his brief 1972 tour as national chairman, Dole is widely accepted by the party. But the tormented twistings at the Crown Center the night of Aug. 18-19 will not soon be forgotten.

The script as originally drafted by William Timmons, chief of the President's convention strategy, had to be abandoned by Mr. Ford. This further evidence of weakness and procrastination by the Ford high command — and by the President himself — bodes ill for a campaign starting far behind.

There is no doubt now that Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee was the President's choice just up to the moment of decision. But publicity about his wife's alcoholism — an Mness well-known for years to every politician in Washington - simply was not taken into account by the President. Thus, Mr. Ford did not take advantage of ample hours set aside for scrutiny of the vicepresidential question, part of a careful allocation for Mr. Ford made by Timmons. The President did not rule out Baker until early Thursday morning after four straight hours of rambling talk with aides.

The most probable substitute in those pre-dawn hours was William Ruckelshaus of Indiana, a Catholic and something of a Watergate hero. But Ruckelshaus' wife is a prominent feminist who is fervently pro-abortion. "Ruck would infuriate the Catholics, not mollify them," a presidential aide told us. Mr. Ford was told the same thing. In the background was a major disagreement among the President's advisers about the man he defeated for the presidential somination: whether to take seriously the fingerscrossed promises to conservative delegates that Ronald Reagan might well be Vice President. "Reagan has been saying mean things about Jerry." said a Ford intimate who took the prevailing view that Ford-Reagan talk was no more than a necessary fib.

The possibility of the convention drafting Reagan for Vice President, which surfaced in the Florida delegation Wednesday night, was taken deadly seriously by one key Ford operative: Harry Dent, the President's savvy Southern campaign strategist. Dent counselled the President in the first of two long meetings early Thursday morning to "throw the convention open." Then, said Dent, Reagan would have to publicly refuse the draft — which he conspicuously declined to do Wednesday night. Dent's reasoning: depressed and dejected Reaganites had to be shown beyond any question that Mr. Ford had given Reagan a real chance to join him on the ticket.

Listening to Dent, Vice President Rockefeller and New York Republican state chairman Richard Rosenbaum exploded, "Don't throw it open," Rockefeller told the President. You make the choice yourself and don't let them dictate it.'

The President, sitting on the edge of his desk, told Dent that he saw the "peril" of Reaganite sentiment. But he was convinced by Rockefeller's impassioned appeal not to finesse his first important decision as jus' nominated party leader.

Still, having ruled out Baker, Tr. Ford was stuck on dead center for second choice - as the clock tiked on. The Timmons timetable, composed six weeks ago and religously followed by Mr. Ford up to Wednesday night, called for bedme by midnight, breakfast at eigh and a private meeting at nine hursday morning with the vice-pesidential choice. Instead, the President was up until nearly 6 a.m. on the day of his acceptance speech — A event in-tended to cut into Jimny Carter's

The obvious asset in ae unexpected choice of Dole is wid acceptance by both moderates an conservatives, with no major liabilities. That was precisely the movating factor for Baker. But Dole rings one thing to the Ford ticket aker did not have: the ability to ge under Jimmy Car-ter's skin with sharp and abrasive

'Bob Dole ione helluva knife," one of the Presient's cronies told us. "If anyone caput up Jimmy Carter, he can." Unlie Baker, Dole brings with him suppet from politically critical pressure groups: the anti-abortion movement, whose help Mr. Ford needs, and Midwest farmers, whose suppor he is losing Ruenthusiasm over the advent of Dolewas contained. Although popular amag regular Southern party leaers, he is nobody to some Raganites - such as feisty Tom elis, the North Carolina delegation nairman who said his delegates juestioned whether Dole "was some type of pineapple.'

And Jesus said unto him, "No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God." - Luke 9:62.

Dear Ben Pal,

NAW, THERE AREN'T ANY KIDS HERE AT ALL THIS IS THE OLD FOLKS HOME.

and DON SPEICH The Los Angeles Times

Declining student achievement and rampant grade inflation in the nation's schools and colleges are largely the result of a widespread and pervasive erosion of academic standards within the American ducation system, evidence from a Los Angeles Times investigation shows.

The drop in standards was the result of a shift in

Second in a series

social and educational values during the 1960s - a shift to which schools and colleges both succumbed and contributed by reducing the number of basic academic classes, weakening graduation requirements and emphasizing electives that are academically less demanding.

At the same time, vastly greater emphasis was placed on vocational education, further diminishing the importance of the academic curriculum.

Basic course requirements in English, history and foreign language, for example, were cut back or eliminated outright (in college alone by 22 per cent since 1967) and replaced by a host of electives or, in the case of high schools, by vocational education classes where enrollment rose four-fold and funding ten-fold between 1964-74.

GRADES ARE THREATENING to become almost meaningless as instructors drop traditional standards of academic quality and, instead, disperse A and B marks off handedly to a growing number of students. Consequently, students now are not only able to get through school and college more easily and with less preparation but with higher grades than ever before.

At the same time, more high school students have been working part time, absenteeism rates have climbed and students generally have spent less and less time in school over the last 10 years particularly in basic academic subjects.

The drop in attendance is probably one reason for the achievement decline but more to the point is the fact that, because of curriculum changes, students have been spending less time in basic academic classes. Moreover, in college the total number of hours required to obtain a bacalaureate degree has

All of these things - curriculum shifts, drops in requirements, grade inflation, rising absenteeism began in the mid-1960s and then swept through the educational system at an unprecedented rate. It was not until the 1970s, however, that they had their sharpest impact on the nation's schools and colleges.

Much of this can be seen as the result of an educational system which became fragmented and confused about its mission and role as it faced repeated demands in the 1960s to justify the wisdom of past educational practices.

Instead of justification, many educators offered almost instantaneous change.

SUBSTITUTED FOR ACADEMIC RIGOR which, curiously, many found difficult to defend was the notion that learning should somehow be less painful or, preferably, fun. It was an attitude of "I don't care how bright you are as long as you feel good," said Stanford University admissions dean Fred Hargadon in an interview.

And if the pain could not be taken out of learning entirely, maybe a high grade would ease the transitory discomfort of (or at least quiet protest about) having to deal with something which was not easily identifiable as immediately relevant.

In some instances, the rationale behind curriculum changes was based on the legitimate concern of eductors that many of the traditional modes of instruction were far too rigid or arbitrary, leaving little room for the innovation they felt was necessary to motivate disinterested students. Without flexibility in cirriculum, these educators thought, such students would remain untouched by an educational experience based on time-worn - but not necessarily time-proven - methods of teaching.

Meanwhile, as education's academic grade was down, an enormous and highly successful push began to make eduction in the nation's high schools more than ever before a practical means toward a generally low-level occupational end.

All students, it was said as vocational training gained an unprecedented lock on American high schools, should be given skills that would make them immediately employable upon completion of the 12th

A lower keyed but similar attitude also crept into much of higher education. If an academic major ultimately led to an available slot in the labor market it was blessed in high places. If not, it was held suspect — if not threatened with extinction — by many outside of education and not a few within it. It was an attitude that rarely produced real change, but even so it gave higher education more of a vocational and less of an academic connotation than

Collectively, these trends served to undermine the rational and intellectual foundations of education, leading some to question the importance of formalized learning in instutitions which themselves were confused about it.

These are the conclusions of a four-month investigation by The Times. And although the reasons for the achievement decline and the relative importance of each are not as clearly delineated as the decline itself, all indications point to what occurred — or did not occur — within schools and colleges as the critical factors.

Other possibilities, summarized partly in a study by David Wiley of the University of Chicago, focus on the social sphere and assume that it was basically external forces that impinged on education to bring about the achievement decline

ONE SUCH FACTOR is television and its apparent subversive influence on youngsters' study habits and time once spent on an activity that is generally thought to bolster all other academic achievement:

Another hypothesis involves changes in the family structure, particularly the sharp rise in the number working mothers since World War II. The number of single-parent families also has jumped. the implication here is that the presence of adults in the family household has diminished and attention to schoolwork and academic discipline has suffered as

A related factor concerns what many teachers see as reduced student motivation to do well in school, which may be a product of the "permissiveness" growing out of the changes in parental control. Possibly linked to that is the growth of violence and disruptions in school and drug and alcohol use among youngsters, which many school people blame for destroying the atmosphere requisite for learning.

In light of the national controversy over school desegregation, not a few have cited busing as a possible reason, implying that learning has been undercut either by mixing children of different ethnic groups or by the dislocations caused by integration.

However, this argument is easily disposed of: the achievement decline has affected all regions of the country, including the south where there has been extensive desegregation and the North and West where there has been little. And it has affected school districts with desegregation as well as those without. and public as well as private schools.

There is another set of "in-school" factors that some have tried to blame at least partly for the achievement decline, and they have to do with budgets, personnel and the like.

The financial squeeze that some school districts have experienced in recent years is cited.

However, the material condition of public education in the United States has improved markedly in virtually every way over the last 10 years, including the most recent ones.

PUBLIC FUNDS for schools and colleges increased at a record pace and made real advances over and above the growth in enrollments and the Average spending per pupil (kindergarten through 12th grade) climbed nationwide about 60 per cent from $845 in 1963-64 to $1,364 in 1973-74 using constant 1973-74 dollar levels.

Enrollment over the same period rose 12 per cent, CRMWD and while it has dropped around 2 per cent in the last five years, the money spent to operate schools and colleges and construct, refurbish or equip school directors buildings has continued to increase in real terms and is now about double what it was 10 years ago. Teacher salaries, which increased twice as fast in to meet the last 10 years as in the previous decade, also nearly doubled since the mid-1960s. The average pupil-teacher ratio in the nation's schools has been improved steadily since the mid-1930s and in the last 10 years has dropped from 27.9 to 1 to 23 to 1 in elementary and from 21.4 to 1 to 19 to 1 in junior and senior high schools. IT IS THE FUNDAMENTAL and massive shift

Spring. from basic academic requirements to a vast array of electives which seems to be the most direct contributor to the achievement decline in both schools and colleges. The shift was fast, and it was pervasive. In colleges and universities across the country, for example, general education requirements dropped by 22 per cent between 1967 and 1974, according to a recent study by the Carnegie council on Policy Studies in Higher Education. Falling into this category are such things as history and literature survey courses, which, like others, traditionally have been required to assure that all students become acquainted with more than the subject area of their academic major. Additionally, the study noted, requirements in English, foreign language and mathematics 'declined appreciably.

Nathaniel Teich, director of English composition at the University of Oregon, said in an interview; "There was just a staggering percentage of

This broad new direction has been reflected in fall- orders from the White ing enrollments in most academic fields at least House, are actively seeksince 1970. National figures compiled by Wiley, the ing out inflated jobs and University of Chicago researcher, show fewer students enrolled in such subject fields as English, social studies, languages, mathematics and science between 1971-71 and 1972-73.

ELECTIVES in and of themselves are not bad, of course. When used to supplement or enhance if grade inflation is as bad knowledge gained in a bannifhay or English course as they suspect it will they provide for both a more sound and complete education than could otherwise be obtained.

And if taught in an imaginative way and within a disciplined structure, they can accomplish many of the same academic objectives as basic classes. But when they are used in a wholesale manner to an end to "grade creep" replace basic courses, as they increasingly are in that phenomenon of both college, and are innovative in name but marginal in government and private content, as many are in high school, then their worth at the very least is questionable. And it is this latter result in people being type of elective which has gained an unprecedented paid more than they are foothold in american education.

There are some who find this disturbing. Then there is the question of why - why the plan, incidentally, is

The reason the district in 1970 dropped its 9th grade 600 per cent white collar English requirement was because "a lot of teachers federal salary jump in felt they could revitalize interest (in English) by not the past 26 years has been requiring it and making it instead an elective." PHILIPPIANS 4:8

I have a thing that bothers me somewhat. Let me tell you about it. I hear men talk about the love of God, and the need for reproducing that kind of love in our lives. They tell us that with God there is "no respector of person." We are informed that God loves men regardless of the slant of their eyes or the color of their skin. It matters not with God how poor one is or how rich one is—how smart one may be or how slow one might be mentally. And suffice it to say that I am in perfect agreement with all of these points of demon-strated love. But when men show themselves to be a respector of persons it is conspicously incoherent with such divine attributes.

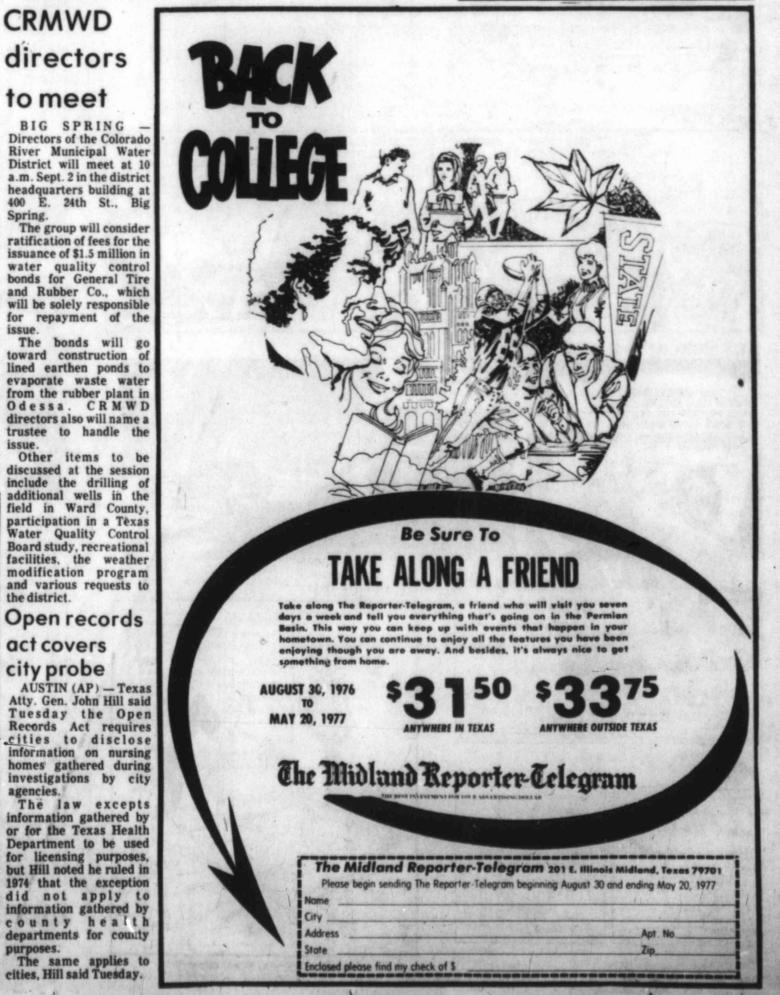

It appears to this scribe that when men wear religious titles which elevate them above their contemporaries, they manifest an attitude completely opposite to that which they attribute to the love of God. What does that make them??? It is not uncommon for preachers to wear the title "Reverend." You hear them refer to themselves as

SOME preachers have ruined the work others are trying some preachers have rulned the work others are trying to do by such ungodliness. They make their appearance to local merchants asking for and hinting toward a "ministerial discount." They receive it and then ask for credit. They get that and then move and won't pay their bills. Such are just as wicked as any drunkard or fornicator who ever lived.

My friend, I write these things because they need to be said. This scribe does not endorse men who preach error in any form. I do not endorse any man-preacher or other wise, who will not practice what they preach to others. It is because of these highpowered promoters, both in the church of Christ and in the denominations, who have

El Paso and Amarillo have the pennant fever, but it looks like the Midland Cubs and San Antonio Brewers have become infected by the excitement of the chase, too.

Midland reeled off its third straight win against the Gold Sox at Cubs Stadium Tuesday night, 8-5, and the only thing that kept it from being disasterous to Amarillo's Texas

League West Division flag hopes was that San Antonio was knocking off El Paso, 5-4, for the second straight

Trailing 5-1 going into the fourth, Midland exploded for six runs to take a 7-5 lead and lefthander Steve Hamrick, now 10-10, shaky in the early innings, settled down to blank the Gold Sox in no-hit style over the final five innings.

Hamrick needed a last out assist from Gary Junge, who came in with the bases loaded and got dangerous Gene Delyon on a liner to left for his seventh save, his fourth this month.

"I thought I was getting the ball low in the first four innings," Hamrick said in explaining the eight hits, "But they were just hitting good pitches. However, I just stayed with it and everything began to fall into place. That, plus I got some good defensive plays behind me."

AFTER MIDLAND got to Jay Franklin for an unearned run in the first, Chuck Baker's two run homer to the right of the scoreboard gave the Sox a 2-1 lead in the second. Delyon singled home a run in the third and singles by Baker, and Gene Menees, an error and Tucker Ashford's double produced two unearned runs in the fourth for a 5-1 Amarillo lead.

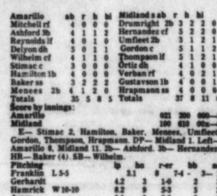

Keith Drumright and Joe Hernandez beat out infield singles to open the Cubs' fourth, then Mike Umfleet, Mike Gordon and Scott Thompson came through with successive runscoring singles. Ortiz was plunked by a pitch and Steve Verban singled home the tying run while Thompson slid home with the go-ahead run as catcher Craig Stimac let the outfield throw to the plate get away.

Another run came home on an in-field out. The Cubs added an unearned run in the fifth and went into ninth eading 8-5 when Amarillo mustered its last threat.

Shortstop Bob Hrapmann turned Menees' grounder into a double play after a walk to Baker, but then Bobby Mitchell walked and Thompson dropped Ashford's fly to left.

WHEN HAMRICK walked Don Reynolds to load the bases, Manager benny sommers went to the bullpen for Junge. "I hated to take Steve out, but I didn't want somebody who had gone 82/3 innings giving up the winn-ing hit. As it was my heart was in my mouth when Delyon hit that ball off Junge, he tagged it pretty solidly."

The win squared the season's series between the Sox and Cubs at 15 games

'Kayoed' A's refuse to stay down for count

By The Associated Press

The Oakland A's have been counted out more times than Joe Louis' old Bum of the Month Club, but somehow the count always stops short of the knockout number.

"They've tried to count us out lots of times but they haven't reached 10 yet," Manager Chuck Tanner said after the A's beat the Baltimore Orioles 5-4 Tuesday night on Gene Tenace's tie-breaking homer in the eighth inning. "We keep coming off the floor and coming back at them.'

The people the A's keep coming back at are the Kansas City Royals, 2-1 losers to the Cleveland Indians. The Royals' lead over the A's in the American League West shrank to 71/2

Most observers, including the Royals, thought the five-time champion A's were finished when they fell 12 games behind earlier this month. But a nine-game winning streak trimmed the deficit to seven

The optimistic Tanner even held out some hope for the Orioles, who trail the Yankees by 11½ games in the Tenace, who has been playing first base rather than catching while recovering from a jammed thumb, hit the first pitch from Wayne Garland in the eighth inning for his 14th home run, snapping the 4-4 tie. Lee May's two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh-his 23rd-pulled the Orioles into the tie. May also had a runscoring single while Joe Rudi drove in three runs for Oakland with two singles and a sacrifice fly.

Indians 2, Royals 1

Rick Waits fired a three-hitter while batterymate Ray Fosse drove in the winning run with a fourth-inning single. Royals ace Dennis Leonard also went the route, giving up just four hits and retiring the last 13 batters he faced

Yanks 5, Twins 4

Rookie Willie Randolph greeted Minnesota relief ace Bill Campbell with a tie-breaking three-run dcuble in the seventh inning and scored what proved to be the winner on Mickey Rivers' triple. Campbell replaced Eddie Bane after the Yankees loaded

Chambliss' double, a single by Graig Nettles and a walk to Otto Velez.

Angels 6, Bosox 5

Terry Humphrey's ninth-inning double following a single by Dave Collins produced the winning run and saddled reliever Jim Willoughby with his 10th loss in 12 decisions. Carlton Fisk hit a two-run homer for Boston while Tony Solaita belted a three-run shot for California. Sox 12, Tigers 7

Shortstop Mark Wagner and second baseman Jerry Manuel, Detroit's rookie double play combination, committed two errors apiece as Chicago rallied for seven runs in the ninth inning. The lead run scored on Jerry Hairston's second sacrifice fly of the game and Bill Stein, Pat Kelly and Jim Spencer singled home insurance runs. Detroit's Bill Freehan hit his 200th career homer with two runners aboard.

Brewers 1, Rangers 0

Tim Johnson looped a single to center field with one out in the 10th inning to score Darrell Porter from second base and give the Brewers their triumph behind the five-hit pitching of Jerry Augustine. Porter led off with a single and was sacrificed to second before Johnson delivered his third single of the game.

Tom Terrific stays cool, gives Giants deepfreeze

"A couple of years ago, if I had gone through one of these streaks, I might have gone through the roof," said a relieved Tom Seaver.

Seaver, the long-time pitching ace of the New York Mets, had ended one of the most frustrating periods of his illustrious major league career, firing a four-hitter and beating the San Francisco Giants 4-0 Tuesday night for his first victory since July 8.

"I didn't despair," Seaver said, "because I had been pitching well.
The main thing I could do was be consistent, and I had done that."

In between victories, Seaver had started seven times, and the Mets had lost each time. He was charged with four of the defeats, two by shutouts and one by one run. In his three nodecisions, the Mets dropped all three games by one run, two in extra innings—including a 1-0 decision.

But Seaver's character and his earned run average didn't suffer. Throughout the drought, he maintained his calm, and the shutout over the Giants reduced his ERA to 2.51best among starting pitchers in the National League.

After Seaver's shutout, his third of the season and the 36th of his career, he confessed, "I had nothing really exceptional, the same fastball as usual and a little better curve."

Nevertheless, it was good enough for Seaver, 10-9, to strike out eight and walk only one in beating the Giants for the seventh time in a row since

Roy Staiger drove in two Mets runs with a single and a sacrifice fly.

Burt Hooton registered his first victory since Aug. 3 and his fourth shutout of the season, scattering seven hits, striking out seven and walking only one in pitching the Dodgers past Montreal.

San Diego fans must be among the most unique in baseball. They show up for the 7 p.m. games early and hold tailgate picnics and barbecues, normally associated with college football games, and you can tell the tourists from the natives, who show up lugging sacks of nick nacks and thermos jugs of whatever you put in

Allen seeks same old solution...more veterans

By Associated Press

The veterans are heading for Washington as usual, while the "old man" may finally be heading for

Washington Redskins Coach George Allen, in an attempt to repair his porous defense by importing proven talent, obtained safety Jake Scott from the Miami Dolphins and defensive end John Matuszak from the Kansas City Chiefs.

In Oakland, the Raiders reportedly placed the "old man"—48-year-old George Blanda—on waivers as the National Football League teams, with the exception of newcomers Seattle and Tampa Bay, whittled their rosters to 49 players by midnight

Blanda, who joined the NFL in 1948 with the Chicago Bears as the thirdstring quarterback behind Sid Luckman and Johnny Lujack, has been sitting on the sidelines this preseason watching rookie Fred Steinfort take over the Raiders' kick-ing chores.

"I DON'T go for being here as an in-surance policy in case the other kicker can't cut it," said Blanda on kicker can't cut it," said Blanda on Monday, speculating that he would be released. "It's been frustrating and discouraging for me after all the years I've helped this team."

After scoring 2,002 points in 340 games over 26 years, Blanda said it was unlikely any other team would be interested in him. They'd have to "be nuts," he said.

Known for his preference of building teams with veterans, Allen obtained Scott and a high draft choice for defensive back Bryant Salter. Then he sent two draft choices—Allen's favorite trading currency—to Kansas City for Matuszak, a 6-foot-8, 275-pounder who was the first player chosen in the NFL's 1973 college draft.

The Redskins' defense, Allen's pride, has given up 80 points as Washington has lost three of its four preseason games.

Miami, besides sending Scott to the "Over-the-Hill Gang" in Washington, shuffled running back Mercury Morris off to the San Diego Chargers for an undisclosed draft pick. Both Scott and Morris had asked to be traded.

Dolphins Coach Don Shula said Tuesday a tentative agreement has been made to bring veteran Nick Buoniconti out of retirement to shore up Miami's injury-plagued linebacking corps.

ALSO ON the busiest auction day of the season so far, Detroit sent running back Altie Taylor to the Houston

Oilers for two undisclosed draft back Moses Denson, linebacker Lonchoices; Houston picked up running nie Warwick, safety Spencer Davis, back Joe Dawkins and offensive defensive end Len Burnham and tackle Dave Simonson from the New quarterback Pat Sullivan, a former York Giants; the Dallas Cowboys sent Wide receiver Cornelius Greene to The Philadelphia Engles placed wide receiver Cornelius Greene to Seattle, and the Los Rams traded center Ron Kecman and cornerback Gregg Butler to the Philadelphia Eagles.

For the 26 established teams, the midnight roster limit was 49 players plus late-reporters from the College All-Star Game. For Tampa Bay and Seattle, the expansion entries, the limit remained at 60 plus All-Stars.

The trim-down date sent many "name" players into the ranks of the unemployed, though injury-troubled Detroit running back Steve Owens sent himself there by announcing his retirement.

Houston cut defensive end Bubba Smith. Washington released running quarterback Pat Sullivan, a former Heismann Trophy winner.

The Philadelphia Eagles placed fullback Tony Baker, tackle Rich Glover and kickerwide receiver David Ray on waivers, and five players, including cornerback Mel Shy, guard John Niland and defensive Kermit Alexander, on the injured reserved list reserved list.

The New England Patriots waived seven players, including veterans linebacker Maury Damkroger, defensive lineman Marty Imhoff and runnive lineman Marty Imhoff and run ing back Leon Crosswhite, while the New York Jets released five players, including Greg Gantt, the worst punter in the American Conference ast season.

San Diego lost rookie running back Joe Washington, who will undergo Rondy Colbert, a defensive back obtained in the veteran allocation draft, was waived by the Seattle Seahawks, while Houston released wide receivers Mike Montgomery and Steve Largent along with punter Leroy Clark.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Walt Alston has been managing the Los Angeles Dodgers for 23 years and it's taken the boo birds that long to get to him. But they've finally succeeded.

The local newspapers and radio talk shows have been swamped recently with letters and calls sharply criticizing Alston, who began his career at the Dodger helm in 1954 when the team was in Brooklyn.

The fans are frustrated.

The fans are frustrated.

The fans are frustrated.

They expected a pennant this year—or at the very least, a club that would be in contention all the way.

Instead, the Dodgers are nine games back of Cincinnati in the National League West and their fans, who've turned out 2 million strong—the largest attendance in the majors—are crying for Alston's scale.

On Sunday, an uncharacteristically irate Alston got into a shouting match with a local sports editor who had written a column calling for the end of Alston's reign. Alston called the writer an "overstuffed pig." But Tuesday, Alston telephoned the writer and apologized.

"IT WAS overblown," he said of the incident. "But I called the guy and said I was sorry because I realize I have no right to make personal com-ments about him. I told him he has a right to his opinions and I have a right

He insists the Dodgers are "definitely still in" the division race and claims he won't give a thought to next year "until the end of October."
He concedes that he really doesn't have much say about his future, despite being the dean of field skipners

"I'll make my mind up after the season," he said. "But, yeah, it's really all up to (Dodger President Peter) O'Malley, anyway.

"I can't think of anything right now that I'd really rather do than manage the Dodgers—that's all I know—but I can't worry about it now.

"We still have a shot at this thing, you know."

Alston said he thought the Dodgers would do better this year than they have, but added: "I've been in baseball long enough to know better than to predict anything."

against Pittsburgh, which I consider a fine club, but we've done just awful against clubs like San Diego and San Francisco. I don't know why.

Russian withdrawal could affect Moscow in '80

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The president of the International Lawn Tennis Federation says the decision of the Soviet and Czechoslovakian teams to pull out of the Federation Cup championship could make other countries "reconsider their positions about going to Moscow in 1980" for the Action delayed on shopping mall proposal

By DEBBIE PIERCE

The Midland City Council Tuesday again post-poned its decision on a request by Paul Rochester for an amendment to a planned district for construction of a regional shopping center at FM 868 and Midkiff

Council will take up the request at 4 p.m. Sept. 14, the same date it will come to a decision on another major regional shopping center proposal, this one located at the intersection of U.S. 80 and Holiday Hill

Harrell Feldt, a Midland attorney representing Rochester in the request, said Rochester and Skyline Inc. now owns the 155.32 acres under consideration. Inc. now owns the 155.32 acres under consideration. However, developers Paul Broadhead and Associates of Meridian, Miss., and Mel Simon and Associates of Indianapolis, Ind., want to replat the land to construct a mall and buy the property from Rochester, he added.

Feldt said Rochester was seeking an additional 16.13 acres "so a sufficient area will be available to develop the area as a first-class mall with plenty of parking room to serve the area." He said the group would go along with requirements of the city that at least 400,000 square feet of mall space be developed before the facility opens and that it be under construction by Sept. 9, 1978.

Council expressed concern over the survival of two major regional shopping malls being proposed simultaneously in Midland.

According to councilman Martin Neill, "We've been told the major retailers will weigh both malls and choose the best site, but there have been several things said to us. It all boils down to money. This is one of the biggest decisions we'll have to make as to the importance to Midlanders."

the importance to Midlanders."

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said he has questions on whether the proposed ordinance contains sufficient restrictions so one proposed shopping mall will not become a "second-class operation" and discourage the other mall developers from coming to the city.

Three citizens spoke in opposition to the request. Midland County Commissioner Durward Wright said the "only thing lacking in West Midland is shopping, and citizens there are unanimously for a regional shopping mall." He indicated the other proposed mall, because of its "scope and location," would attract even area shoppers, and urged council to approve only one of the proposals as a mall site.

Ken Moore of 3201 Haynes Drive protested the Rochester request also, noting the "proposed mall

Rochester request also, noting the "proposed mall site is right in the direction of the present trend of residential development in Midland," and that the proposed access to the site "is severely limited."

Bob Landreth of 3619 Baumann Ave. urged council to deny the request, quoting minutes from a July Planning and Zoning Commission meeting when city Planning Director Richard Hennessy expressed concern over the proposed mall's access and location in a neighborhood. He also said this location is not a regional site, regardless of its size.

Mayor Angelo said the council wants to decide both shopping center matters at the same session, plus have some input from an unnamed consultant on the feasibility of each site. The group recessed the matter until its first

While the minister oke of the history of the ight reformers, and the development of Mexico's constitution up to the present date, he menioned Mexico's stand on international democratic principles, and a new world economic order.

"The third world has not joined forces to present an aggressive face to those (nations) who do not try economic exploitation nor international injustice," he said.
