Palestinian hijackers leave for Libya

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) - Three Palestinians who hijacked a Dutch airliner with 80 other persons aboard over France and surrendered the next day in Cyprus have left for Libya,

The hijackers gave up Sunday without harming the hostages after the Greek Cypriot government promised them safe conduct to the country of their choice. The country was not announced, but a Libyan Embassy official accompanied them to Nicosia after they surrendered.

There were two Americans among the 75 passengers hijacked Saturday. but most of them were Dutch vacationers on their way home from southern Spain.

"The hijackers did not illtreat us." said Otto Horsting of Selma, Ala. "They said this was the only way they could make the world realize what was happening to their country, Palestine. They assured us we would not be harmed. He said the three Arabs were armed with grenades and guns.

Horsting also told reporters the Dutch pilot recognized one of the hijackers as a participant in the hijacking of another KLM plane four years ago. "This is your second time off, isn't it?" the pilot reportedly told the

The KLM DC9 was en route from Malaga, Spain, to Amsterdam and had just taken off from Nice, France, when the three Palestinians took control of it. They ordered the plane to fly to Tunis.

After refueling in the Tunisian capital, the plane flew to Larnaca, on the southeast coast of Cyprus, refueled again, and then flew to

The hijackers radioed that they would blow up the plane in flight unless the Israeli government freed eight prisoners, including Greek Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capudji, the Japanese terrorist who survived the Tel Aviv airport massacre in 1972 and six Arabs. But the Israeli government rejected the demand and blocked the runways at the Tel Aviv airport so the plane could not land.

'The moment we were most worried was when the aircraft was in Israeli airspace and two Phantom jets of the Israeli air force appeared on its tail," said KLM deputy chairman J. F. A. de Zoot. "This made the hiPhantoms were pulled away at the request of the Dutch government.

The plane turned back to Larnaca, and the hijackers surrendered after nearly four hours of negotiations.

The hijackers indicated that they were members of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which has carried out numerous terrorist attacks and hijackings. A spokesman for the Popular Front in Beirut issued the usual denial of any involvement.

No one was hurt in the blast only hours after an antibusing demonstration.

A Jefferson County School official said a radiator was blown off the wall and some windows were broken.

Police and federal authorities investigating the explosion said they did not immediately know what type of explosive device had been detonated. Because of the Labor Day holiday. schools were in recess today.

Male High is a few blocks south of the downtown area and several miles north of the scene of a third antibusing demonstration Sunday night. In that demonstration, police arrested 18 persons and used tear gas when some of the original crowd of about 800 protesters ignored warnings to disperse and began throwing bottles and light bulbs.

Three policemen were injured in the disturbance Sunday night, including one who was treated for glass fragments in his eyes after a window of his patrol car was shattered.

The latest protest came on the anniversary of a violent protest that broke out as courtordered school desegregation went into effect last

There have been no disruptions at the schools since they opened last Wednesday. But there were several arrests during a protest Tuesday night. An antibusing demonstration

Friday night was peaceful. Jefferson County Police Chief Russell McDaniel said Sunday's protest "was totally different in numbers" from last year. "We were dealing with 800 people it was 8,000 to 10,000. I think the people were so much more frustrated last Kissinger optimistic year."

Police first ordered the demonstrators back as they paraded on Dixie Highway toward the Louisville city limits. Then officers resorted to tear gas when some protesters peppered the highway with light bulbs and bottles.

"We gave them much more warning than we said we would," said Jefferson County Police Capt. Leon Jones. He said the warnings were issued through a megaphone from a police helicopter.

Police said they fired "apcroximately 50" canisters of tear gas to disperse the marchers. More were fired when some of the routed

Elsewhere in the nation, plans for school desegregation have generally been implemented smoothly this year. Dayton, Ohio, and Dallas began busing programs without trouble last week. TOKYO (AP) — A Soviet MIG25 jet fighter plane landed today at Hakodate, in northern Japan, and a police spokesman said the pilot apparently was seeking political Officials were questioning the flier. 'The pilot apparently is seeking political asylum, although we have not received an official report yet," a spokesman for the National Police Agency said.

He declined to elaborate. The MIG25 is believed to be the most advanced operational super-sonic fighter in the Soviet air force. Hakodate is about 450 miles north of Tokyo on Hokkaido, Japan's nor-thernmost main island. It is about 500 miles from Vladivostok, the major Soviet city in the Far East.

The single-seat jet fighter landed after two Japanese Phantom jets were sent up to intercept it but failed to find it, the Japanese Air Self Defense Force said.

Witnesses said the twin-jet plane circled over the city of Hakodate "as if to conduct a reconnaissance mission." Then the pilot roared down on the commercial airport, opened a drag chute, overshot the 6,700-foot runway and came to a halt.

A police spokesman said the pilot fired two pistol shots into the air to keep airport workers away shortly after he landed

The spokesman said the pilot was a lieutenant but refused to identify him

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said earlier that the government would return the pilot and the plane to the Soviet Union, in accordance with international practice, "if it was simply an emergency landing." Japan does not give political asylum, but those who have sought it have been allowed to stay in the country until arrangements were made for them to go elsewhere.

The plane presumably will be returned to the Soviet Union if the pilot has asked for asylum.

12 missing airmen now listed dead

PARIS (AP)-The Vietnamese government today gave the U.S. Embassy the names of 12 American airmen it said were killed in the Vietnam war. They had been listed by the United States as missing in action.

A statement from the Vietnamese Embassy said the Communist government in Hanoi "shares the feelings of American families who have relatives who disappeared in Vietnam." It said the list was delivered as a good-will

There was speculation that the Vietnamese move was an attempt to rally public opinion against an American veto of Hanoi's application for membership in the United Nations.

The U.S. Embassy confirmed receiving the list but would not comment further.

More than 900 Americans who fought in the Vietnam war are still listed as missing in action in Southeast Asia.

The Fourth of July recalls our vows to be free, but those vows would have been meaningless if we hadn't spent 200 years working at the system that supports our political freedom. Memorial Day invites remembrance of thousands who made the ultimate sacrifice in the name of liberty—or at least what they construed to be foreign threats to our nation. But our soldiers would have been armed with sticks and dreams if there had not been a constant river of fuel and steel and food and fiber from home, sup-porting both functionally and philosophically the sacrifices on the

Midland Memorial sets nursing, therapy courses

Courses for nursing assistants and respiratory therapy technicians will begin Sept. 13 at Midland Memorial Hospital.

A one-week mini course for nursing assistants, open to men and women, will cover basic nursing care theories and philosophies, Ellen Kennedy, nursing inservice director, said.

Classes will be held at the hospital from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 13 through 17. Registration is limited due to available classroom space. Instructors will be Mrs. Kennedy and Dorothy Hinshaw, both registered nurses at the hospital. Additional information is available from either the personnel office or

Mrs. Kennedy. Also beginning on Sept. 13 will be a five-week training program for respiratory therapy technicians. The program includes four weeks of classroom study and one week of clinical training in the hospital, Wayne E. Ulrich, administrator, said.

Classes will meet Mondays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m.

Participants must be high school graduates or equivalent and must pass a basic examination prior to being accepted. Enrollment is limited eight persons due to limited availability of classroom space.

The course will include professionalism and hospital ethics, medical terminology, cardiopulmonary resusitation, repiratory mechanics, oxygen therapy and operation of numerous types of respiratory equipment.

Instructors will include Billy Owens, chief respiratory therapist; Robbie Trussell, chief pharmacist; Ray Myers, chief radiologic technologist, and Doctors Phyllis Huffman, Frances Simms and Dorothy G. Lowery.

Additional information may be obtained from the respiratory therapy department of the hospital.

Most other big cities can attest to similar experiences. It may sound like small potatoes, but added up over a year and coupled with increasing ex-penses, the sums are knocking city budgets askew.

The Los Angeles City Council has directed a special study to determine the cost of providing security for visiting VIPs. And Mayor Tom Bradley has undertaken to cut VIP entertainment costs, according to Bee Canterbury Lavery, the city's head of protocol.

If it weren't for the honor of the thing, more cities would probably just as soon skip these affairs. One city protocol officer, however, insists there is a simple reason for the sudden popularity of Sun-Belt cities.

"The State Department will not publicly admit this, but they tell me they tried to steer some of these visitors away from a schedule that takes them to New York City or Washington only, because it leaves them with the wrong impression of the country," said the official, who handles protocol for a large Southern

"Washington is in a state of urban decline," he continued. "So it is supposed to be not really representative. They (the State Department officials) want them (the dignitaries) to see a city like Houston that is healthy and growing, slick and shiny. But they won't admit that publicly.

Some of the city protocol officers interviewed ventured that the Secret Service, too, encourages foreign dignitaries to spend more time in newer, more stable sun-Belt cities where the urban decay and difficulties are not so apparent and the protection duties are not so difficult.

Even Chicago, once often ignored by foreign visitors, is getting to be more of a stopping off station than ever before.

Col. Jack Rilley, the city's director of special events, said "people used to just visit in the East but now they have discovered that Chicago is the heart of America — the closest you can come to the true spirit of the United States."

Rilley said that "Chicago once had the reputation of being the gangster capital of the world," but he said the city has been successful in wiping out that image and more and more foreign dignitaries are coming to Rilley said the State Department "doesn't have to sell us on receiving visitors. We'll be in there buying before they get around to selling!'

Chicago may be more enthusiastic about all this than most cities, however. It levies a special tax on hotels and motels to collect money to pay for its bills.

All of the cities try to ease the entertainment costs by "offering" to let private citizens and groups pay as many of the bills as possible.

Rain chances increase

After a fair Labor Day weekend, the chance of showers will increase to 40 per cent Tuesc'ay in the Midland area. Cloudy skies and a chance of showers and thundershowers is the prediction through Tuesday from the National Weather Service at the Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Dole camp denies contribution charge

WASHINGTON (AP) - A spokesman for Republican vice president candidate Bob Dole today denied that Dole took any illegal campaign contributions from Gulf Oil and said anyone who makes such a charge "is dead wrong."

The White House acknowledged Sunday that President Ford knew about allegations concerning illegal Gulf Oil contributions to Dole before picking him as a running mate.

A spokesman for Ford said Sunday that "after conversations with Sen. Dole, the White House was satisfied he had no involvement.'

Dole has said he received no such funds and a spokesman for the Republican vice presidential candidate repeated the denial after another report linked the senator to Gulf money.

The New York Times reported today that sources close to the Gulf investigation said the oil company's former chief lobbyist, Claude Wild Jr., gave a $5,000 to $6,000 illegal corporate contribution in 1973 to Dole through William A. Kats. Dole's then-administrative assistant.

A spokesman for Dole said today, "Sen. Dole has gone over his 1974 campaign records with a fine-tooth comb. He received no money from Gulf in any shape, form or fashion. Anybody who says Bob Dole took an illegal contribution is dead

Dole, who has stressed his distance from the Watergate scandals in the early days of the campaign, acknowledged that he was questioned by the Watergate special prosecutor's office about Gulf contributions before a grand jury last

But Dole denied receiving any illegal donations and said he doesn't know if the grand jury questioning meant he was under investigation.

A spokesman for Dole said he had no knowledge of whether or not Kats got any money from Gulf. "We can't speak for him," he said.

Kats, Dole's administrative assistant from 1960 when Dole was first elected to the House until 1974, issued his own denial. "To my knowledge I never got any money from Wild or anyone else at Gulf. I don't know why Wild would make such a charge.

"If such was ever done, I wouldn't know how or when. I was asked to testify before the grand jury and I did so last January or February. I told them the same thing." Kats said he might have met Wild but never had any dealings or relationship with him.

Wild was acquitted in federal court on July 27 of charges he made illegal political contributions. Although he admitted making a $5,000 cash gift to Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, for his re-election, he successfully argued that the statute of limitations had expired before he was indicted Wild had testified to giving contributions from Gulf to a number of members of Congress, including Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa.

One day last month the presidential veto and the legislative veto crossed paths in the House. In an Aug. 23 veto message. President Ford said he was vetoing an insecticide bill, because it contained a provision giving Congress 60 days to veto any rule or regulation the agency administering the act might write.

In his message Mr Ford reiterated his view that the congressional was unconstituveto tional Within a few hours, however, Rep. Henson Moore (R-La.) succeeded in placing a similar provision in the toxic substances control bill on a 210-to-157 vote.

In response to these congressional veto provisions, President Ford recently asked Attorney General Edward H. UNDERSTANDING YOUR ELECTRIC BILL

We know your electric bill is probably higher this summer - a lot higher - than it was last year. Even though vou're making an honest effort to conserve electricity by doing things like turning lights off, raising your air conditioning thermostat and checking filters regularly.

A higher electric bill isn't much of a reward for that kind of effort. But, we want you to understand the reasons for it, and why it's important to continue using electric energy

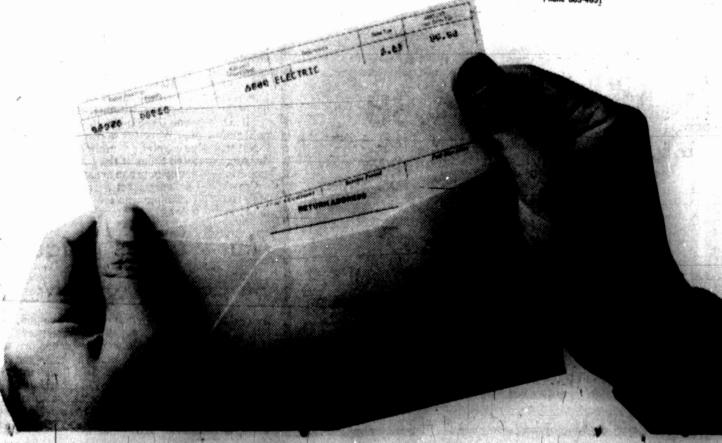

The main reason for higher bills is that it's costing more to make electricity. Our rates had to be increased early this year.

On top of that, fuel costs have gone up — although Texas Electric has been able to keep these increases to a minimum.

We'll continue doing everything we can to keep increases in your electric bills as low as possible. But it's just as important that you keep conserving electricity as much as

Baboon capture ends Rusk's terror reign

KILGORE, Tex. (AP) - Rusk kinds of calls saying he was County authorities had a suspect in custody Sunday after a six-day reign of terror, ending the county's most intensive baboon hunt.

Baboon hunt? Armed with a large net, four Rusk County Health Department officers and two dove hunters Saturday apprehended Handy, a 140-pound baboon, who escaped last Monday from his owner, Ronald Reagan, a Kilgore businessman.

Handy eluded Rusk County sheriff's deputies, shotgun-toting Kilgore police officers and dozens of vigilantes for six days.

He was responsible for at least one assault and one attempted assault while terrorizing citizens and dogs as he bounded around this East Texas county, authorities said

Handy was incarcerated at an animal clinic in nearby Henderson.

A sheriff's department spokesman said Handy will probably be sent to Austin to be tested for rabies.

"He scared the hell out of a lot of people," said Kilgore patrolman Charles Rogers. "We received all everywhere.

"He grew with each call," Rogers added. "One report had him about seven feet tall, weighing 450 pounds and with tusks six inches long.

Reagan's pet escaped in the Laird Hill area Monday morning and bit J. D. Jennings of Laird Hill in the thigh, severing an artery, authorities said. Jennings was hospitalized until Saturday.

Rusk County deputy sheriff Kelly Freeman said about 30 persons steadily searched for the fugitive, including eight deputies and seven Kilgore police officers.

Two Kilgore men, Nathan Haley and Dudley Plaisance, tried to capture Handy with a net Monday.

He threw the net off and fled. Later they tried bananas and a bottled soft drink treated with tranquilizers. Handy threw the bananas back and broke the bottle.

Finally, two Kilgore College students hunting dove cornered the fugitive in a stock pond, where he was netted by the students and four health department officers.

DALLAS (AP) — The official coyote trapper of Dallas County, site of the nation's eighth largest city, says the predators have tripled in the county in the Last week the Dallas county commissioners approved a $100 a month raise for Ellis Crawley, who has been searching for coyotes in the county's timberland and along city streets since 1968. Charles Waymire, owner of Running Duke Ranch n north Dallas County, says he has lost $5,000 worth of stock to coyotes since he began raising cattle and poultry on his 200-acre spread. "I've lost about 2,000 head of poultry-chickens, turkeys, guineas, peacocks, geese and ducks," Waymire said. "I used to have 300 head of goats, but they actually draw coyotes to the place." Waymire called for Crawley' help. The two men set traps across the ranch. Now, Waymire said, the coyote population has thinned out so "we're not even worried about it any Waymire is one of the lucky ones. Bud Moon, state district supervisor at the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife in Fort Worth, estimated coyotes do about $100,000 damage in Dallas County annually. "No way is the coyote in danger of being ex-terminated," Moon said. "Even with the trapping, they've gained on us. He'll get by when the rest of us are starving to death.' Crawley said coyotes prefer sheep and goats. The predators will also attack poultry, calves and colts. "But if worst comes to worst, he'll eat watermelons, mesquite beans and even grass," Moon said.

Currently Crawley uses cyanide guns to kill coyotes rather than snares and traps.

The gun is stuck in the ground, baited with rabbit fur and loaded with a cyanide capsule. When the coyote pulls the trigger by grabbing the bait, the cyanide capsule is fired into his mouth.

According to Steve Wheeless, county extension agent, coyotes are often smart enough to get the bait out of the old style traps without getting caught.

"If he gets one leg caught in a trap, sometimes he'll chew it off," Wheeless said. Naturally the coyotes are more common in the less densely populated areas of the county although they sometimes show up in urban areas.

Crawley said "once I got a call from a lady in a high-rise condominium who said coyotes kept getting in her garbage cans."

Labor Day 1976

observed across the width and breadth of the United States of America.

Members of labor unions most everywhere are celebrating the holiday in one way or another.

The labor unions of this immediate area are staging their annual Labor Day celebration today and tonight at Odessa, as is their usual custom.

But the observance is not limited just to members of labor unions. Other individuals and groups are enjoying picnics and other events, while yet others are just relaxing at home. Most schools in the area are observing the Labor Day holiday.

It is the final holiday of the summer season, and most everyone seemingly is getting in on the act.

This is as it should be ... Americans enjoying themselves and the occasion

It is worth noting, however, that in this Bicentennial year of 1976, just as was the initial observance of Labor Day in 1882, the importance of the working man and woman merits special recognition. The high standard of living enjoyed by residents of this great and free nation largely is a result of the hard work of laboring personnel through the years.

But let us not overlook the fact that although Labor Day originally was created to honor the blue-collar working man, it is upon the labor of all Americans that the strength of today's economy is based, whether their work is done in shop, office, plant on the land.

This makes this historic Bicentennial Labor Day an even more significant event than usual For each and every American.

And in mentioning above "this great and free nation," the freedom of each and every individual is worthy of consideration.

With this in mind, the National Right to Work Committee asked a number of leading American scholars, journalists and others, to share their thoughts on this particular Labor Day.

"If a man cannot labor at the pursuit and at the place of his choosing, he is a slave," responded Joe M. Dealy, president of The Dallas Morning News. "If he is not free to dream and to aspire - but more important, to pursue that dream and aspiration - he is still a slave. If he does his best, though his Jo Ann Seker, educator, Vermillion, Ohio, wrote: "This Bicentennial Labor Day, 1976, let us each resolve to pay tribute to America's work force - by returning to the promise of America. Surely I can look forward to teaching children without paying a union for the privilege! Surely I have the Right to Work where my abilities are needed! Surely, in America, in 1976?"

Dr. Vernon Jones, retired

chairman, Graduate Department of Education, Clark University, Massachusetts, responded as follows: "The story is making the rounds this Anniversary year that Benjamin Franklin, upon leaving one of the important meetings in Philadelphia in 1776, was stopped by a smiling lady who said, 'What have you all done for us today. Mr. Franklin?' 'We have gotten for you a Republic, Madam; if you can only keep it,' he replied. That is our problem today: To keep it, and make it work at least as well as in the past; and better if possible ... to teach children and youth to appreciate freedom, to wisely use it, and to protect it fron self-serving individuals and WASHINGTON - Last spring, Gov. Edmund (Jerry) Brown of California was campaigning hard against Jimmy Carter and others in Maryland's Democratic presidential primary election. His ultimately successful effort was costing a lot of money, especially for television advertising.

So Brown used what has become one of the best fund-raising gimmicks in this year of tight federal control on presidential campaign contributions.

Brown reached for popular rock music stars who would donate their services in the form of concerts that would attract huge crowds willing to pay more than the usual high prices associated with the rock business

Not only would Brown's campaign coffers swell with the gate proceeds, but also part of the take then could be used to obtain matching federal funds earmarked by taxpayers just for presidential campaigns.

However, the success of Brown and other candidates in musical fundraising has developed into a major question of whether the spirit of the campaign finance reform law has been observed as closely as Congress intended.

Take the extremely successful Eagles concert for Brown on May 14. It illustrates the problem which the federal election commission says was discovered in other presidential primary campaigns as well this year.

The Eagles concert, with singer Linda Ronstadt, was advertised in the > outlets. With the entertainers donating their services, Brown's Maryland campaign cleaned up. Then to get federal matching funds, it had to tell the FEC the difference between the price of admission for a normal Eagles concert and what the Brown people charged, with the difference being considered a political contribution eligible for matching funds.

There was only one problem: the majority of the audience apparently had not been aware in advance that they were attending a political fundraiser (Brown did appear on stage with the stars at one point)

The Brown forces had distributed the requisite information cards at the gate for each concertgoer to fill out so the revenue could qualify for matching funds.

But the FEC, before matching the "political profit" of the concert, received some complaints and decided to investigate.

Using the forms distributed and collected by Brown's people at the concert and submitted to the FEC to substantiate the claim for matching funds, the FEC phoned and wrote to a large percentage.

From this sample, the FEC recently determined that only 27 per cent knew they were attending a political fund-raiser and intended that portion of their ticket cost qualify for a federal matching grant. So Brown's Maryland campaign got only 27 per cent of what it thought it would get from the U.S. Treasury.

Under the law, an entertainer's "volunteer activity" is worth the same as that of an envelope-stuffer in a campaign headquarters, although everyone knows that isn't so since money is at the heart of a successful campaign.

While the FEC feels it should not be in the position of telling Linda Ronstadt she cannot give away her time and talent to a presidential candidate but a senior citizen who stuffs envelopes may, the FEC nevertheless will recommend that Congress take a look at the situation.

Then there is the question of possible deception of the public. One FEC recommendation to Congress may be that political fund-raising concerts and those information cards be more clearly labeled.

In the meantime, rock stars with the ability to pack a huge stadium have become, to a large degree, the new political kingmakers.

ST. JOHN'S JOURNAL

The historic summer of '76 reviewed

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN Copley News Service

WASHINGTON - "We had forgotten," wrote historian James Truslow Adams, "that it is impractical to be only 'practical.' Without a vision the people perish."

Adams wrote those lines in his classic "The Epic of America" published in 1930. The 1929 crash of the stock market had hardly faded away as the country was sinking deeper into the greatest economic depression in its history. The outline of the future was clouded by doubt. Americans had believed in a vision of peace and prosperity only to find that it was a vision founded on false and hollow values.

Thirty-six years later the nation faces a similar crisis.

In the 1930s, it was largely a crisis concerned with the material. In the 1970s, it is a moral crisis reflected in the selection of the two candidates for president: Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford.

Both were helped to the nomination of their respective parties by the Eastern liberal establishment. Carter, for example, gained the nomination with the aid of the liberal Eastern-national' press, politicians and labor unions, despite the fact he is a Southerner; Mr. Ford, with the aid of Nelson Rockefeller and the tired liberal GOP wing of the party.

In short, the sons of the Sunbelt States, George Wallace from the South and Ronald Reagan from the West, were wiped out by the liberals.

And this remarkable brace of defeats came about despite the fact the nation is growing overwhelmingly conservative, with its major strength in the 13 states of the Sunbelt from North Carolina to Southern Califor-

Republican and Democratic conservatives who watched both Wallace and Reagan be defeated by the liberals of both parties are now filled with deep depression and despair.

Yet there is more cause for optimism than for despair. The American conservatives have suffered the last and final humiliation at the hands of the liberals. The wipeout of both Wallace and Reagan means that the conservative movement. which began really to organize with the Goldwater nomination only a short dozen years ago, will accelerate the movement that has been under way for a new party to replace the Republicans between now and 1980.

The GOP and Democratic conservatives will vote for the Ford-Dole ticket less out of loyalty and more out of determination to keep Jimmy Carter and his Fabian Socialist followers from establishing a oneparty dictatorship over the federal government, whose legislative branch has been controlled by Carter's party since the FDR New Deal, with the exception of a brief post-World War II period Beyond 1976, Mr. Ford will be at the wheel of a hearse rather than a political party. The President held on to the nomination of the GOP out of the sheer strong-arming of liberals like Nelson Rockefeller, Sen. Hugh Scott (Pa.), William Scranton, Sen. Clifford Case (N.J.), Sen. Charles Percy (Ill.), Sen. Jacob Javits (N.Y.) and others.

All of them belong to the old, tired liberal guard that has presided over the party since killing off conservative Robert Taft in 1952.

Yet they still refuse to admit that the steady decline of the GOP is due directly to their own leadership. The old GOP liberals who united behind Mr. Ford have no real successors. The young and energetic at the GOP convention in Kansas City were not the liberals, but the Reagan con-

When the conservative movement, that has been taking shape, works out a new party structure, this new. young breed will desert the Ford GOP as many Wallace Democrats have already deserted the Democratic Party.

COLUMNIST SAYS:

Better not count President Gerald Ford out as yet

By JOHN PINKERMAN Copley News Service

In the early days following the Democratic National Convention and while President Ford and Ronald Reagan were cutting up each other prior to the GOP convention, quite a few of us ventured that Jimmy Carter would be a sure winner Nov. 2 no matter who the Republicans picked.

Today, as the final campaign gets going in earnest, it appears that Carter may be in for more of a contest than was indicated six weeks ago. There are several reasons for this, the strong Carter straw poll showings nothwithstanding. Some of the reasons may be:

1. Reagan has pledged himself to work for Mr. Ford.

2. Carter is emerging more and more as a liberal headed leftward than as the Southern conservative fed up with liberal Washington bureaucrats he advertised himself to be while campaigning in the primaries.

3. Neither Sen. Walter Mondale nor Sen. Robert Dole adds much to his respective ticket (vice presidential candidates seldom do) but Dole may do less harm than Mondale.

4. The nation is at peace and the economic situation is reasonably good. This, at the moment of truth; will have an effect on normally realistic American voters. The beneficiary of all this has to be President Ford.

Reagan's promise to help Mr. Ford is significant.

Perhaps all those who waged the Reagan crusade will not follow their leader and perhaps Reagan's campaigning won't have the spark his futile drive toward the nomination had, but anything he does will help. And, if his vast array of followers choose to vote at all they'll vote Ford rather than Carter.

Carter sold himself to a substantial segment of the U.S. public as one who would reverse the leftward tilt of the Democratic Party. His choice of Mondale damaged his case some. His more recent love affair with almost everything left-wing has raised considerable question as to the sincerity of earlier stands - even when some were of the "maybe yes, maybe no" variety. His move to the left may well have been part of a Mondale bargain and Mondale's link to the Americans for Democratic Action and the big labor bosses.

Mr. Ford could have selected a far more competent man as his possible successor than Dole but most of those was considering would have alienated Reagan's conservatives.

Thus, Dole doesn't help much, but neither is he much of a negative factor. Mondale will help Carter with the labor unions - which the Democrats usually get anyway - but he is clearly negative with conservative Democrats, all Republicans and many independents who are following a national trend to the right.

The President has been denounced as an appointed president and in almost the same breath as an incumbent not able to muster an incumbent's strength. He really can't be both. This is his first run for the office and it is not valid to expect him to have strong incumbent muscle.

In any event, he has demonstrated some muscle: Making stick 45 of 55 vetoes on legislation sent him by one of the worst Congresses (strongly Democratic) in many years; also a Congress replete with sex and other scandals. Aside from his pardon of Richard Nixon - which he will defend to the end - he cannot be linked with GOP Watergate scandals.

More important, he and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger have had important roles in fashioning what peace exists in the Mideast today, particularly the Israeli-Egyptian truce. Also, the United States is at peace, and that doesn't hurt Mr. Ford. Inflation has been cut in half during his two years in office. There is a sense of honesty and decency in his

White House. Many say Mr. Ford is like a Calvin

Coolidge and a Dwight Eisenhower Neither "did anything dynamic" is the cry. But, remember, there was peace and prosperity with both. And, both were reelected so long as they wanted to be.

Carter got a big head start. Somewhere along the trail he will find a need to reduce rhetorical "say nothing" smiles and address the issues. If he doesn't, underdog Ford may just pull off a Harry Truman upset a la 1948.

What is your ever lovin' handyman worth in cold cash? As labor costs continue to rise, the answer to that question may be "plenty."

It costs so much to maintain the average home today, that you almost cannot afford to own one unless you are well heeled or knowledgeable in the do-it-yourself area. And if you don't try to do it yourself, you may never know that you can.

One family tallied their sayings in recent do-it-yourself projects and house, enclosing a screened porch and repairing a deck.

The house was painted with six gallons of paint at a cost of $98 and brushes, $20. Estimates from three contractors for painting the two-story house ranged from $2,400 to $3,000.

For enclosing a screened-in porch, estimates from two contractors were $2,600 and $2,900. It cost the do-ityourselfer $1,294. Redwood boards (14 feet) for wainscoting, bought because they were less expensive at the moment than clear pine, were $9 a piece.

No estimate was obtained on replacing boards in the deck and putdecided it amounted to more than ting in a new flight of steps but it $5,000. The tasks included painting a might have been a three-day job for Norton and his mount were one of 94 entries that left Frankfort N.Y. on May 31 in a race dreamed up by breeding associations to help celebrate the Bicentennial. Fiftythree were around for the last leg.

For coming in first, Norton won $25,000, which he said was $10,000 more than he spent on the contest. Others among the first 10 finishers split a total of $25,000.

The prize money came mostly from the $500-per-rider entry fees. Organizers said the riders paid for their own food and lodging, their own animal feed and veterinarian services, and fuel for their vehicles. They also paid the organization a $5 daily "logistics fee."

In second place was Juel Ashley of Ada, Okla., whose Arabian went lame near the end of the race. Including the penalty time for not finishing the last leg, his time was 324.60 hours.

The rest of the top 10 included five Arabians, one Appaloosa, one Irish Connemara and another mule.

Some of the animals seemed thin at the end of the race, but Robert K. Hillman, director of the Sacramento Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, said they were "well taken care of."

Viking 2 hunts for Marsquakes

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - Slightly atilt but apparently intact, Viking 2 is using its seismometer to feel around for Marsquakes from its perch on the red planet's northern hemisphere.

Scientists had been worried about the robot's delicate equipment because Friday's landing was a bit rough. But mission director Tom Young said Sunday that Viking 2 signaled that its seismometer was functioning normally and all systems were "going extremely well."

He said that what at first appeared to be a tear on its dishshaped radio antenna may have been a clump of dirt, kicked up during the lopsided landing.

Viking 2's seismometer — which magnifies sounds about 200,000 times - is one of its most valued instruments. The seismometer carried by Viking 1 failed to emerge from its protective casing after the first lander touched down about 4,600 miles to the southwest.

Dr. Gary Latham of the seismology team said Viking 2 can pick up quakes anywhere on the planet that register 6 or greater on the Richter Scale. The scientists also expect each day to detect several smaller quakes closer to the craft.

The Richter Scale is a measure of ground motion in which each whole number increase indicates a tenfold increase in magnitude. On earth, a reading of 6 on the Richter scale can cause severe damage.

Viking 2 also relayed a weather report. The area is cooler by about six degrees Farenheit than Viking 1's station, and the winds are calmer.

Photos from Viking 2 over the weekend surprised scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here by showing the area around Viking 2 — called Utopia to be flat and rocky, rather than covered by sand

The area seemed much like Viking 1's neighborhood, a sandy red plain completely littered with rocks. The sky is pink.

A trench showed up just a few feet from the lander. and scientists think it may be a line separating two different types of Martian geology, both within reach of Viking 2's scoop arm - rocks formed by wind rocks snown from

Public library official battle for funds

NEW YORK (AP) — Clara Jones is desperately trying to find "a place in the sun" for the 35,000 members of the American Library Association (ALA) and for the libraries and communities they represent. As the 95th ALA president — the first black to be elected to that position in the organization's 100-year history - Mrs. Jones feels she must work constantly to improve and expand public library facilities. And, perhaps more important, she must economic adversity and across-theboard cost cutting.

"We have to fight ... really fight," she said in an interview. "If all the libraries were to close their doors tomorrow, our civilization couldn't survive. The library is a basic institution.

One answer, Mrs. Jones believes, is increased federal funding. ALA and the National Commission on Library and Information Services, created fight for their survival in the face of under the Nixon administration, work cooperatively to that end. Mrs. Jones said that federal money accounts for only five per cent of public library costs. Eighty per cent comes from city governments and the rest from donations and state funds.

Ironically, she notes, public libraries are in danger of their lives at the time when they are most needed. "In a time of economic depression people use libraries more. In the 1930s was practically standing room only," Mrs. Jones explained.

She said people turn to their neighborhood branch for escape and information and because they can no longer afford to buy books.

Arcording to ALA figures, there are over 21 million Americans who are functionally illiterate, meaning that they can't write a check, read a sign or pick the best buy in a market, much less read an entire book. Libraries, Mrs. Jones maintains, must try to reach these people and their children and help them learn to read. But they can't do that without money for staff and equipment, she points out.

'You have to get kids hooked on books in elementary school," said Mrs. Jones. "If you think a child's learning is limited by his parents' pocketbook and education, you can't give them much.'

Public libraries across the country provide numerous services, all free, for educational purposes. Films, lectures, story hours and guided tours of the library for school children are all in danger of termination from lack of money, she said.

Mrs. Jones feels that libraries can and do perform crucial social func-tions also. As Detroit Director of Libraries — a job to which she was appointed in 1970, thereby becoming the first woman to run the city's libraries and the first black in such a Something similar is developing on Israel's Lebanese border, where Lebanese are being allowed to cross to buy supplies and receive medical aid which is unavailable in Lebanon because of the civil war.

But the Lebanese frontier gates hardly compare with the Jordan River bridges, which have developed over nearly a decade into major Middle East border points.

For the West Bank's 720,000 residents — and 400,000 more in the Gaza Strip — the bridges are an Gaza Strip - the bridges are an umbilical cord to the Arab motherworld. Jordanian members of parliament are able to live in their West Bank homes and attend sessions in Amman, the Jordanian capital.

The open bridges policy began almost incidentally shortly after the 1967 war that carried Israeli troops to the banks of the River Jordan.

Israeli officers were astounded to discover that West Bank farmers were ignoring the war situation on the river, and fording it with trucks full of produce. There might be a war, the philosophy went, but the apples and olives had to be sold before they Dayan ordered the Allenby Bridge opened. A year later he decreed that during summer, Arabs from neigh-boring states could visit relatives in the occupied West Bank. The following year the Damia Bridge was opened to help handle the growing volume of traffic. Then Arabs were allowed to enter Israel proper.

Former Midland man makes own long rifles

SHREVEPORT, La. - A former Midland man has found his own special way to re-live the past — he makes Revolutionary War rifles from barrel to butt plate.

Capt. Gary Horne of Shreveport, La., recently was featured in The Shreveport Times with his hobby of rifle-making.

"I've always been interested in history," the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Morne of 2409 Camarie Ave. said. "I got particularly interested in black powder rifles about eight to 10 years ago when the replica kits started coming out.

"I got one, but it wasn't authentic enough — it didn't shoot well," Horne

Area students on UT honor roll

AUSTIN - Midlanders listed on the honor roll of the College of Business Administration of The University of Texas at Austin for the spring semester were Morgan L. Copeland of 10 Hanover Drive, David P. Donelly of 5 Winchester Court, Kim Ann Freeman of 2504 Seaboard Ave. and Stephen Joseph Gilles of 2413 Apperson St.

Others from Midland included on the list were Sanford John Hodge of 1602 Stanolind Ave., Sharon Anne Hutchison of 3514 Seabord Ave., Hayden D. McMillian of 2501 Sinclair Ave., Paul Edwin Pesek of 2607 Terrace Ave., John Hogan Webb of 1606 North N St. and Tanya Sue Zoller of 2314 Cuthbert St

Those from Odessa on the honor roll were Vernon Lyle DeBolt III, Richard Ricker Lewis and Robert Michael Weylandt.

Horne is a graduate of Lee High School in Midland and of Texas Tech University. He is now an electronic warfare officer in the U.S. Air Force.

One of Horne's friends helped him construct the first rifle - an 18th Century maple one - completely from scratch.

The Lancaster County, Pa., style firearm is a flintlock, using an actual piece of the stone in the trigger, Horne told The Shreveport Times. He said, When the flint hits the frizzen (a piece near the trigger) after the trigger is pulled, it creates a spark which falls into a pan and goes through a hole in the barrel. There it ignites the powder in the chamber and propels the ball through the barrel."

Horne said the rifle uses black powder invented centuries ago by the Chinese. The powder can be obtained at sporting goods centers, but Horne stressed that it is unstable and highly explosive. It has since been replaced by the modern smokeless type powder, he added.

According to Horne, loading such a rifle is a time-consuming process. He explained that the powder and clothwrapped ball must be packed down in the barrel using a ballstarter and the ramrod, a pole which is attached under the barrel of the rifle. The powder must be measured accurately, and it is carried in a pouch or horn separate from the pouch of Horne told The Shreveport Times that the original firearms, which contained brass hardware and German silver inlays for decoration, had religious or superstitious significance, in that the men thought the rifles would bring good luck or help them shoot better.

He engraves some of the metalwork himself and did some carving on the wooden parts of the rifle.

The rifle is a 45 caliber weapon legal to shoot and hunt with in a 40 caliber Reading County style, is illegal in Louisiana, but he uses it in Texas when visiting.

The Reading has a Roman nose stock, intricately carved and detailed with the hand-engraved metal work. It also is a flintlock rifle - much like Davy Crockett's Old Betsy.

Horne told the Shreveport newspaper it takes from three to six months to make a rifle. The pieces come in "rough" form, and the craftsman must drill, chisle, fit and polish to acquire the end result.

Horne said he first fits the barrel into the stock and secures it with the tang (which holds the barrel to the stock). He said, "Then I add the lock and trigger, then put the hardware

Next, Horne adds the "ramrod" thimbles (which hold the ramrod on), sideplate, trigger guard, toe plate, butt plate and patchbox (a decorative piece formerly used to hold things).

Sanding and polishing the wood, the next step according to Horne, could be the most time-consuming effort of all. He uses grades from 120 grit to 400 or 600 grit sandpaper to get the wood "just right."

He then rubs linseed oil into the wood to make it glossy. He said he is thinking about trying tung oil on his next rifle at the advise of his wife Doris Martin Horne. He noted that tung oil wouldn't turn the wood as dark over the years.

Hawken percusion lock rifle styled after ones used by the mountain men. He said the walnut gun will have very little brass decoration as steel hardware, which lasted longer, was used in the past. He said the hunting rifle probably "could go all the way up to a bear or an elk."

The 50 caliber gun has a 32-inch barrel and double set triggers for accuracy, Horne said. He added that it is also spring loaded, "so there's not much squeeze." The gun uses black powder, balls and percusion caps which create the igniting spark.

Capt. Gary Horne and two long rifles he has made.

Vietnam has trouble handling foreign aid

The Los Angeles Times

BANGKOK - While Vietnam's leaders tour the world seeking more foreign aid, their success is causing trouble at home. The port of Haiphong is choked with loaded ships and the government seems incapable of absorbing the near deluge of money already pledged.

This is the assessment of western diplomats who have studied the flow of aid and who talk to the small but steady stream of foreigners entering and leaving Hanoi on various aid projects. 'My God, if you only knew the trouble we have with red tape and the bureaucracy," one European technician returned from Hanoi recently told an official in Bangkok. "It is not at the top but at the middle and lower levels where they simply do not have enough people who are willing and able to do anything."

Foreigners visiting Vietnam since the Saigon regime collapsed in April, 1975, are almost universally impressed by the vast amount of reconstruction and work in progress. much of it with the hardest kind of hand labor and few machines.

"But that is just it," a European visitor noted. "They are moving at almost top speed with the structure they have. It can't go much faster for the moment "

While Hanoi, capital of the reunified Vietnam remains a relatively unsophisticated city by Western standards, the number of foreigners there is steadily increasing.

Since the dollar amount of aid furnished by Communist-bloc countries is never announced, it is impossible to estimate precisely how much foreign aid Vietnam is now receiving. Some experts believe that current pledges from the Soviet Union, China and the East European nations amount to well over $3 billion. It is probably divided about equally among the three.

Experts say that Chinese aid probably has declined below the Soviet level because the Peking regime has ceased furnishing significant arms shipments and has also cut back or ended shipments of oil and rice. Some experts say the Chinese were irked when the Vietnamese began exporting some rice earlier this year for hard currency in places like Singapore, and expecting donor nations to make up the shortages later.

While Hanoi's appeals to Communist countries are relatively routine, Vietnam's diplomats also have been working openly and quite successfully in other areas - most notably Japan, France and Sweden. Pledges and projects of these three nations alone now exceed $400 million by a most conservative estimate. The inclusion of unpublicized or tentative arrangements with Japan would probably raise that figure considerably.

Japanese trade with Vietnam in 1975 amounted to $90 million and is expected to reach about $300 million this year - with the balance overwhelmingly in Japan's favor. To counter this, Japan's export-import bank is being liberal with credits, including $50 million for a cement plant. In return, Japan has signed an agreement to purchase virtually all the coal Vietnam can export over the next three years.

Possibly the biggest single foreign aid project by non-communist countries is a $200 million pulp and paper complex being financed and built by Sweden in an area about 50 miles north of Hanoi.

European diplomats cite the project as an example of the difficulties being created by the Vietnamese bureaucracy. They say the project, employing 300 Swedes and far more dale beeher. The same may be said of Vietnamese, is costing twice the tricks. originally planned figure and is well behind the plan to begin partial production by 1977.

The Swedes discovered that they would even have to build access roads to the site and encountered endless. costly obstacles raised by lower level officials.

"They got soaked and privately some of them will admit it," said a Western diplomat in Bangkok.

Others say that if Vietnam has any hopes of reaching the ambitious goals of the current 1976-80 five-year plan, government structure somehow will have to be made more flexible to utilize the aid being given.

Prime Minister Pham Van Dong and his colleagues on the politburo are evidently aware of the problem and have been publicly condemning their own bureaucrats and calling for more efficiency. This, however, is a problem of many years standing fostered by the secrecy and suspicions of war time — and the chances for quick improvement are

Residency regulations cause many to resign

By FRANCIS WARD The Los Angeles Times

CHICAGO - John F. Measner, 61, is a 30-year veteran of the Chicago Fire Department who just quit his $29,000-a-year job as a division fire marshal. He was scheduled to retire in two years.

Frank J. Volpi Jr. recently quit his job as a city laborer after 17 years. William Hoban, a police captain who once headed the department's internal affairs division, which investigates complaints against policemen, was fired after 17 years on the force.

What happened to Measner, Volpi and Hoban was the result of Chicago's new crackdown on city workers who live outside the city. On May 4, Mayor Richard J. Daley announced that the city would strictly enforce its 50-yearold ordinance requiring its employes to live in the city. Daley said city workers could better identiy with Chicago's problems if they lived there. Any worker who failed to move into the city by Aug. 1 would be fired, he said.

At the time, many city workers were not sure whether Daley was serious. Measner, Volpi, Hoban and perhaps 3,000 other present and former city employes now know he

The cases of eight workers who admitted that they lived outside the city were considered in the first round of City Personnel Board hearings recently. Three of the eight resigned:

Measner, Volpi and Joseph Vitti, a tree trimmer with the Forestry Bureau. No decision has been reached yet on the other five, said Dr. Charles A. Pounian, director of the City Department of Personnel. Measner was the highest-ranking city worker to resign under the stiffened residency requirements.

Such residency requirements were outlawed in California by the passage of Proposition 5 in 1974, but local residency laws continue to be the subject of sharp debate in Philadelphia, New York, Detroit. Washington and other large cities around the country

Hoban was fired earlier in the year by the police board, which began following a stiffer policy before the mayor's deadline. He has filed suit challenging the residency ordinance.

Whether to quit or move back into the city and give up what they regard as comfortable suburban surroundings is an agonizing choice for many of the affected workers. Some do not understand why, after years of service with the city, they now must suddenly decide to relocate, quit or be fired. For others, it means confronting the decay, crime and congestion of the city that caused them to move to the suburbs in the

NEW PORT BEACH, Calif - As befits a man with so many to his credit, John Wayne has an entire handful of favorite films, titles he likes for different reasons in different seasons. For instance:

- "Stagecoach" - directed by John Ford, 1939. Although he had been in something like 50 films before this, "It was my first role in an 'A' picture that the public went to see. It was also probably one of Jack's best pictures."

-"Red River" - directed by Howard Hawks, 1948. The Scotts also costarred in "Beauty and the Beast," a Hallmark Hall of Fame movie for television in this country and theaters abroad. Next they return to Broadway for "Sly Fox," a reworking of "Volpone" by Larry Gelbart, the man behind TV's "M-A-S-H."

What's it like to work in tandem with George C. Scott?

"George thinks I fuss too much over my work, and I have to tell him. 'Not everyone can act as easily as you.' Usually our interpretations coincide. It's just that I sometimes have a little problem with execution."

Cowboys' preseason lacks fan-stirring drama any more.

BY TED BATTLES

Doesn't anybody love the Dallas Cowboys anymore? There was a time when ink, usually negatively probing and black, flowed like a Niagara Falls, concerned about every whim and woe that afflicted the Pokes. Fans second-guessed Tom Landry's cool exterior as well as his strategy, criticized some players that he cut and some that he kept.

The other night leaving the office about 1 a.m. after finishing our Cubs baseball story, we flipped on KRLD in Dallas where an open line sports talk show was in progress.

There were a few calls discussing the shortcomings of the Texas Rangers, deploring their lack of aggressiveness at the plate, their bumbling ways in the field and in the front office, as well, when it came to trades.

Most of the fans were vehement in their opinions and concern for the slumping

EVENTUALLY, ONE irate fan demanded, "I've been listening to this program for an hour and a half and every call is about the Texas Rangers. This is supposed to be an open line show. Don't these people realize the Cowboys are enjoying one of their best preseasons ever and have a good chance of going back to the Super Bowl? What's wrong with these people?"

When the calls resumed, they still were about the Rangers...Which perhaps tells us why the Daytime Soaps are so popular. Those afflicted and addicted to the malady tune in day-after-day anxious to discover what new woes could possibly be heaped upon a hero or heroine already up to their neck im manmade disasters.

Who wants to watch a Soap where the sun shines every day, the girl gets the guy without subterfuge of the rankest order or the victim of a disease can be cured with time, treatment and

IT'S NOT that the Cowboys have fallen out of favor or the fans have deserted them, but, after all, what's there to get excited about. Dallas just finished whipping the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers like they should have last January, Toni Fritsch hasn't missed a chip shot all summer and, shucks, Duane Thomas isn't even controversial

Clint Longley and Roger Staubach tried to put some life in the exhibition grind, but the flurry was brief and Longley's removal from the scene made it a dead issue before it could really become controversial.

What problems the Cowboys have had have come in the area of injuries and as long as there is time for them to heal before the NFL's official kickoff, why get excited.

BESIDES THE suspicion is that preseason injuries are just a convenient out of an overly long exhibition campaign in many cases.

One fan grumbles, "Oh yeah. If everybody is so Cowboy, how come the fans at Cubs Stadium Saturday night cheered every time it was announced Houston was ahead and pulling further ahead with each passing period? Huh, now how about that?"

Simple enough. All the Cowboy fans were home, reveling in every discouraging moment of the first three quarters and experiencing the ecstacy of that fourth quarter comeback and overtime victory.

Only way they could have enjoyed it more would have been to snap off the game in disgust when the score grew to 20-3 Oilers. Or to have Dallas announce that Scott Laidlow has been cut.

NOW THAT would be vintage Soap Opera, the kind you could sink your teeth into, causing those KRLD phones to jingle.

"It's particularly nice to win when you haven't had your best year," he continued, "and to win a tournament that will be as significant as this. It's already significant."

In fact, if golf's commissioner Deane Beman had his way, this event, as well as the Tournament Players Division championship, would become majors.

"I told Deane if they do become majors in the PGA's eyes, I've won both so you can't shut me out of them,' said Nicklaus, already the winner of a record 14 major professional titles.

Nicklaus now is only two victories away from Ben Hogan's 62 titles, second on the all-time list, and one shy of Arnold Palmer's 61. Sam Snead has won 84 tournaments.

Nicklaus was excited over his final round of one double bogey, one bogey and five birdies. "My play today was awfully good in most places," he said. He blamed poor putting for his not winning one of the Big Four titles this year. It was a different story on

Sander captures amateur

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Sander nearly didn't make it to the tournament but today rules as U.S. national amateur golf champion.

"I just still can't believe I won it." the 20-year-old from Kenmore, Wash. declared after whipping Parker Moore of Lourens, S.C., 8 and 6 in the 36-hole finals at Bel-Air Country Club. Last time someone won the amateur by that score was in 1961 when a fellow named Jack Nicklaus whipped Dudley Wysong. Sander, 20, emulates baseball's Mark Fydrich by talking to the ball, or at least seeming to do it. "Actually," he says, "I'm talking to myself," Sander, at 6-foot-2 and 170 pounds. was the final qualifier at Tacoma for the national championship and he needed a birdie on the 36th hole to grab off that last spot. Then on Monday, he ran a temperature of 102 with

Dr. John Perry, a member of Bel-Air, administered antibiotics and by Tuesday, Sander was ready to go.

"I really didn't think I'd be able to play," the new champ admitted. "I was so weak I couldn't finish a practice round."

Ryan three-hits A's, Blyleven zaps Royals

By Associated Press

When Nolan Ryan's fastball is blazing, hitters have problems seeing his pitches. But that wasn't the problem with the last pitch of the Oakland-California game.

"I never really had much," said Ryan Sunday after pitching a threehitter. "The only thing that kept me in the game was my curve and change. My fastball was nothing.

Still, Oakland's Sal Bando maintains that the home plate umpire. Russ Goetz, the one wearing the 'mask, didn't see the third strike that ended California's 3-2 victory over the BANDO SAYS he checked his swing. Goetz said Bando swung but didn't make contact. Goetz said the contact came later.

"He (Bando) bumped me good on the chest protector, anybody with eyes saw it." said Goetz. "The game was over, so he wasn't actually thrown out, but he can still be taken care of. It is up to (American League President) Lee MacPahil to fine or suspend him.

Bando called both the swing and the ged contact differently.

He said he couldn't recall whether he pushed Goetz. "But how would he know? He doesn't even know how to call pitches," Bando said. "He was so goofed up he didn't even know which way to walk off the field.'

Said Chuck Tanner, the A's manager: "Bando never touched now, but they're swinging the bat, and him. If he (Goetz) thinks he was they're still a good club. bumped he missed that just like he missed the call."

All this arguing about vision indicates that the end of the regular season is in sight, but the A's are still having trouble seeing the Kansas City Royals, seven games in front in the American League West.

THE ROYALS also lost Sunday, victimized by Bert Blyleven's fourhitter. "It was just too much Bert Blyleven," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog after Texas' 3-1 victory. "I've seen him have better stuff, but it was plenty good enough today." Ryan survived a shaky first inning, when he surrendered three straight walks and a run, to post his 12th victory in 29 decisions. He struck out eight and walked five. Tony Solaita snapped a 1-1 tie in the fourth with his eighth homer of the

'They're a nice bunch of guys, and Whitey Herzog is a good manager.'

Twins 18, White Sox 1 'There's nothing to say," said White Sox Manager Paul Richards, who was in the wrong dugout after an 18-1 game. "They just knocked the hell out of us. At that, with a 17-run lead, they showed respect for us by changing pitchers.'

Mike Cubbage knocked in five runs.

The Orioles scored three runs in the eighth inning, with the benefit of just one hit. Catfish Hunter's wild pitch and second baseman Fred Stanley'e error fueled the rally.

Despite the loss, which evened Hunter's record at 14-14, the Yankees remain 101/2 games ahead of Baltimore in the AL East and will claim the divisional title with any combination of 19 Yankee wins or Baltimore losses.

Christenson brakes Phils' skid with bat

By The Associated Press

Larry Christenson stopped Philadelphia's losing streak the way a pitcher likes best-with his bat.

Christenson belted two home runs as the Phillies beat the New York Mets 3-1 Sunday, snapping an eight-game losing streak that was threatening to create a pennant race in the National League East after all.

The Phils, leading Pittsburgh by 15½ games on Aug. 24, saw their margin shrivel to 6½ games before Christenson's effort, coupled with bhe Pirates' 1-0 loss at Montreal, moved it back to 71/2 going into today's Labor Day doubleheader between the crossstate rivals in Pittsburgh.

"I ENJOY hitting, but it is not the 22-year-old Christenson "The last time I hit two home runs in a game I was back in high school. I hit low hanging sliders both times. The second time I was looking for a slider down and in and I got it." The win was Christenson's fifth in five decisions against the Mets this season. He's allowed them just four runs in 35 innings. The Mets loaded the bases with none out in the first inning against Christenson, 11-8, on singles by Bruce Boisclair, Mike Phillips and Billy Baldwin. But he got out of it allowing just one run, retiring Dave Kingman on a grounder, Ed Kranepool on a foul pop and Staiger on a grounder.

"I HAD to make some real good pitches to get out of that jam," he said,

'and I thought I did very well. He did equally well in the third inning, belting his first home run of the season off Mets starter Mickey Lolich, 7- 12, to tie the score. After Greg Luzinski's sacrifice fly in the sixth made it 2-1, Christenson provided an insurance run with his second homer of the game in the eighth

He's the first pitcher to hit two homers in one game since June 23, 1971, when the Phillies' Rick Wise did it while pitching a no-hitter against Cincinnati.

On the mound, Christenson scatterd eight hits until running into trouble in the ninth, when the Mets put two men on with one out. Manager Danny Ozark called for reliever Ron Reed, who promptly got Roy Staiger to bounce into a game-ending double

"I gave him a sinker to get a double play ball," said Reed, who got what he wanted and notched his 13th save. "Now we have the kind of team that can win 10 in a row.

Expos 1, Pirates 0

Woodie Fryman, 11-10, allowed only four hits in pitching the 23rd shutout of his career as the Expos snapped Pittsburgh's 10-game winning streak. An error by Rennie Stennett allowed Bombo Rivera to score the only run of the game in the eighth inning. Rivera led off the inning with a single, was sacrificed to second by when Stennett misplayed a grounder by pinch hitter Jose Morales.

Reds 6, Braves 4

George Foster smashed his 29th home run and Joe Morgan became the first second baseman in 26 years to drive in 100 runs as the Reds remained eight games ahead of secondplace Los Angeles in the NL West.

Morgan singled in two runs in the Reds' three-run second to become only the fifth second baseman in history to reach the 100-mark. He's the first since Bobby Doerr of the Boston Red Sox in 1950.

Dodgers 4, Astros 0 Doug Rau, 14-10, fired a three-hitter as the Dodgers posted their 16th victory in the last 19 starts. Reggie

Smith drove in two runs with a triple and his 15th home run of the season. Cards 1, Cubs 0 Pinch-hitter Ron Fairly singled home Lou Brock with two out in the 11th inning for the only run of the Cardinals's victory. John Denny, Bill Greif and Al Hrabosky combined to stop the Cubs on four hits, Hrabosky coming on in the 10th to pick up the victory and raise his record to 8-6.

Giants 5-1, Padres 0-6 John Montefusco, 14-12, pitched a four-hitter for the Giants in the opener, but San Diego's Rick Sawyer came back with a six-hitter in the nightcap to snap the Padres' eightgame losing streak. The split lifted the Giants out of the NL West celler for the first time since June 6, moving them one percentage point ahead of Atlanta.

Mets, Caps in battle for first

The Texas League's best-of-five championship playoff series opens Wednesday and it's up to Arkansas and Lafayette to determine tonight exactly where that series begins.

BALTIMORE (AP) - Ted Marchibroda, berated by the owner of the Baltimore Colts and stymied in his efforts to make personnel judgments, has resigned as head coach of the National Football League team.

The move by the NFL's 1975 Coach of the Year, just one week before the start of a new season, shocked local fans and could have a demoralizing effect on the team

About 30 players met at the team's training camp Sunday night after Marchibroda arrived back from a six-hour meeting with owner Robert Irsay and General Manager Joe Thomas aboard Irsay's yacht in Milwaukee.

THE PLAYERS, who rallied around Marchibroda when Irsay lashed into the coach following a fourth straight exhibition lost in Detroit last Thursday, declined comment on what they might do, but said another meeting was scheduled for today.

A decision on who would replace Marchibroda was not expected until Irsay comes to Baltimore on Tuesday, but one player asked the rhetorical question: "Who wants to coach this team with the kind of interference you men, must have the authority to call the shots. I couldn't tolerate the interference I was getting. The situation started at the end of last season." As a rookie head coach in 1975, Marchibroda took over a team which had posted consecutive 5-9, 4-10 and 2-12 records, and directed the Colts to the Eastern Division championship in the American Conference with a 10-4 mark.

Baltimore had a 2-4 exhibition record last year, the same as this season, and then lost four of its first five regular season games. Then the five regular season games. Then the Colts rolled up 10 victories in a row, including one in the playoffs, before losing to the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

The 45-year-old Marchibroda, a low-key coach much admired by the players, issued a brief prepared state-

'Game-winning fake injury' ruffles Miami coach

By The Associated Press

Did North Carolina use an unethical play to score a touchdown in its 14-10 triumph over 20th-ranked Miami of Ohio?

The Tar Heels' fake-injury, nohuddle trick play produced a 69-yard scoring run and triggered a lively topic of conversation on a slim opening weekend of the college football

"It doesn't do any good to blast it in public because that makes the game of football look bad, but I don't think it looks good when you have to do that to win," Miami Coach Dick Crum told The Associated Press Sunday night after having more than 24 hours to digest the occurrence.

CRUM WAS strangely silent immediately after the game, saying only, "I have never seen that play before." But the more he thought about it, the more annoyed he became over the play.

'Had it been done with a player not faking an injury...he began. "If you've got to do that to win...Wow!"

This is what happened.
With Miami holding a 3-0 lead in the second period, North Carolina had a first-and-10 on its own 34. Quarter-back Bernie Menapace ran a keeper. losing three yards, and staggered around after the tackle as though in-

"Our kids said he was crying, 'Oh, my arm, my arm,'" Crum said. "The North Carolina players walked away like they anticipated the trainer com-ing on the field. We tell our kids that any time there's an injury to go into a huddle and the officials will bring

So the Miami defense went into a huddle. That proved to be a miracle cure for Menapace. He scooped up the ball and pitched it to wingback Mel Collins, who wasn't touched until his teammates mobbed him in the Miami end zone.

"THE FAKE injury put everybody off-guard," Crum said. "But as soon as the referee marked the ball, he was okay. Without the fake injury I think it would still be shaky, but it would be within the framework of the rules.

This way, it was used to gain an unfair advantage and the rule book says something about faking an injury not being in the spirit of the game. We've tried to legislate that type of thing out of the rules and I think it's worth pursuing.

Miami regained the lead 10-7 but Menapace threw a legal and ethical winning nine-yard touchdown pass to Collins in the final period.

Kansas, ranked 19th, was the only other member of The AP's Top Twenty to see action and the Jayhawks rallied from a 10-0 deficit to defeat

Oregon State 28-16 and spoil Craig Fertig's head coaching debut.

Nolan Cromwell rushed for 113 yards, including a 55-yard touchdown burst with 12 seconds remaining, and Laverne Smith added 87. Cromwell made his first varsity start against Oregon State a year ago and broke Gale Sayers' Kansas rushing record with a 294-yard performance.

"WE MADE too damn many mistakes," growled Fertig. "We made mistakes in the four-down area and that is where you can't afford to Doug Dennison believe they made the team. Efren Herrera wasn't sure. There was no comment from Duane Thomas and Toni Fritsch.

It wasn't just your ordinary preseason National Football League finale at Texas Stadium Saturday

First of all, the Dallas-Houston clash on national television was for the mythical "Texas Professional Football" championship.

Dallas won it in storybook fashion, overcoming a 20-3 deficit with 17fourth quarter points and a 26-20 victory in overtime.

ALSO, THERE were some jobs on the line. In Dallas' case, a running back must go in the cuts this week—and a placekicker. Laidlaw, who scored three touchdowns, isn't fearing "The Turk" now," said the determined secondyear fullback from Stanford, who scored twice on runs of six yards each in the fourth period and ripped 10yard for the game-clincher in sudden death.

Doug Dennison, also spectacular. said, "I think I solidified my spot on the club."

Thomas and Ron Johnson did not have good nights and it appears one of them will get the axe.

Thomas, the prodigal son trying to make a comeback after a four-year absence from the team, again turned in a poor performance. He ended the preseason with less than three yards per carry.

HERRERA AND Fritsch, the incumbent, were locked in a duel for the placekicking job. Fritsch had a low field goal blocked and Willie Alexander dashed 84 yards for a touchdown when he picked up the bounding ball.

"Toni had a hard day but I don't feel I have the team made ... that's up to the coaches," Herrera said.)

It was a sweet way for Dallas to end a 3-3 preseason while Houston lost all six of its games.

"I'm disappointed about not winning any preseason games, but the season starts next week and that's important," said Oiler Coach Bum Phillips. "I think we're ready to open the season.'

Dallas Coach Tom Landry was pleased with his team's progress. The Cowboys lost their first three preseason games. "We played two straight games with a lot of emotion and we finally got untracked against the Oilers,' Landry said.

Asked about the running back situation, he said, "Laidlaw and Dennison were our two best backs out there

But the problem isn 't going to stem from the fact that McCright moved into a starting spot last spring and will be a key factor in how the Raiders' new 4-3 defensive alignment works out this season.

Then Hernandez doubled for two more runs and later scored himself on a wild pitch.

Recruiters, not coaches, are issue, claims Royal

By DAN McLEAN

Copley News Service Darrell Royal long has been a critic of college football ethics. But, said the University of Texas coach, things are getting better Royal's criticisms of recruiting were, for the most part, backed up by five players. Newsmen talked to the group during a National Collegiate Athletic Association-ABC college football promotion tour.

Joining Royal at the session were Ricky Bell of USC, Willie Fry of Notre-Dame, Kirk Lewis of Michigan, Larry Seivers of Tennessee and Brad Shearer of Texas.

being asked about criticism of the size of coaching staffs.

""NOBODY WANTS an excessively large coaching staff," Royal said. "The truth is, everybody wants an excessively large recruiting

"I'm in favor of any restrictions in recruiting - particularly no offcampus contact. Just let them see the high school games. That would tie the hands of the full-time recruiter.

"Limit them to three visits. Anything other than that is just to keep up with the Joneses; keep ahead of the Joneses.

'But if you limit the visits, you Royal turned on recruiting after won't have to tell people to reduce their staff; they'll do it. They don't want a lot of excess people hanging around to do the job eight people can

The NCAA did institute a limit on visits last year, Royal said, but it was confused

"I COULD visit Ricky three times," he said, putting his arm around Bell, USC's Heisman candidate at tailback. "But I could go visit his parents all I wanted. And you know if I visit his parents often enough, he's going to be there some of the time. And Ricky could come in and listen to what I was

"This year, that counts in the three

"I agree there should be certain restrictions on recruiting," said Fry, a junior defensive end, who will be cocaptain of the Irish this season.

The amount of recruiting Fry went through is surprising when his high school record is considered.

"I (Northside High School in Memphis, Tenn.) only won seven games in high school: six my sophomore year, one my junior year and none my senior year.'

STILL, FRY was heavily recruited. "From the experience I had." said Bell, a senior, "I'd say sometimes an 18-year-old can be persuaded to do something he doesn't want to do. "I got tired of being wined and dined and bothered. It got to the point where sometimes a recruiter would call and I'd have my mom tell him I wasn't home. "Like Willie, I found it a good experience and a bad experience." "I definitely think it should be restricted," said Lewis, a senior offensive tackle for Michigan.

"It's ridiculous for a guy who is 17 or 18. The pressure is ridiculous. Every school has something to offer, and they all look good," said Shearer. "WHEN I was a junior in high

"Coach Royal called and said. 'We're really interested in you.'

"I said, 'Don't even waste your time coming out. I want to go to Texas.' "But I know what it's like. Some of the kids even have to go and hide out from recruiters." Shearer also suggested a three-visit limit might eliminate illegal recruiting. "In a lot of visits, the coach gets to know you; know what kind of person

"With three visits, a coach isn't going to know a kid well enough to offer him something above a scholarship.'

British economist says OPEC to up oil prices by 25 per cent in 1977

By ALEXANDER AUERBACH The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES - The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) will raise crude oil prices by 25 per cent, probably early next year, according to a British economist and member of Parlia-

Michael Spicer, managing director of The Economic Models Group, added that the effect of the OPEC price hike will be crippling inflation in many Western European nations that may in turn trigger major political upheavals.

Spicer made his gloomy forecast during an interview at the University of California at Los Angeles' Graduate School of Management. His firm is establishing a Los Angeles office to correlate its worldwide economic forecasting model with the school's computerized mode of the U.S. economy.

"My information is that OPEC will be raising prices for oil by 25 per cent, not the 10 per cent or less that others have been talking about, and that they could do this by early January,' Spicer said.

'I base this on talks I have had with eople who are very close to the OPEC discussions," he added. While moderate price increases, he said, Libya, Iraq and Iran want more - in part, ironically, because they need the money to pay for the enormous amounts of Western goods and services they have purchased since the 1973 oil embargo and subsequent price hike.

"Actually that kind of an increase is open to question. in oil prices bodes quite seriously for the countries of Western Europe." he

A 25 per cent rise in oil prices would increase the U.S. inflation rate from its current 5.5 per cent a year to about 7.5 per cent. While this is a "political sensitive level" in this country, it is nothing compared to what is going on in Europe, and what will happen after an oil price rise, he said.

which he expects the OPEC decision to create, Spicer is concerned by the sharp cyclical trends in world economies that have developed

In the United States, for example, the upturn from the recent recession was expected to continue for at least two more years. But because of higher energy prices, Spicer's firm County, one mile west of Benoit. now projects a downturn here by 1978, and possibly as early as 1977.

We had been expecting 4.6 per cent real growth in the U.S. economy next year, compared to 6.2 per cent or so this year. But now we are projecting 3.5 per cent to 4 per cent in 1977, and zero growth in 1978." Spicer acknowledged that the task of projecting world economic trends is filled with uncertainties. Data for even the larger Western European nations are often difficult to get, either because they are not gathered, as in Italy, or because the government won't release them, as in France. On top of that, any forecast must be based on assumptions about what will happen in the future, and - as in the case of the size of an OPEC price hike - the accuracy of those assumptions

Terminally ill live in conspiracy of lies, experts say

By ELEANOR HOOVER The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - Most terminally ill persons live in "a conspiracy of white lies" to protect themselves from death — a conspiracy aided and abetted by doctors, nurses, hospitals, families as well as themselves.

This assessment was made by a group of mental health professionals working with the terminally ill, at the 84th annual meeting of the American Psychological Assn. in Washington, D.C., Sunday.

The phrase "conspiracy of white belongs to Pennsylvania psychiatrist, Richard Torpie, who told a symposium on "Illness. Loss and Grief," that the "hospital system is sluggish to change.

"The hospital creates patterns of expendability," he said. "And the patient himself is often the victim of his own self-fulfilling prophesy.'

As an example of this, he cited the case of a presumed cancer patient who predicted he would die within a year and did - to the day. Of particular interest, is the fact that he was later found to have no cancer.

Everyone, says Torpie, suffers from the system that shuns death, refuses to allow patients to die with dignity and enforces rigid rules such as the rule which does not allow children under 16 to visit a dying parent.

"These are stupid rules," says Torpie, "they deny the dying the support they should be getting.

'In addition, nurses and other professionals are generally not encouraged to intervene in the workings of the system," said Torpie.

A nurse who was particularly concerned and involved with dying patients was eventually told by a physician, according to Torpie, 'look little girl, just do your work but don't talk to him.' "The physician was referring to the dying patient and the fear was that the intervening and supportive nurse was creating too many other problems for the people around her. The nurse eventually left the hospital and moved to a dermotologist office where she could more easily interact with patients.

Physicians too, "who are probably," says Torpie, "when all is said and done, the single greatest villain in tearing down the support system for the terminally ill," also suffer from the system, he believes.

Psychiatrist David Mendel of the University of Texas Medical School accused of being inarticulate with the parents of a terminally ill little boy. When physicians realized that the doctor had a son of the same age and an inordinate fear of his son's dying. they instituted a special course on death for physicians. Such courses says Mendel, need to be a part of every hospital and medical school. "The patient often falls between cracks," says Dr. Herman Feifel of the Los Angeles Veterans Administration. "Most hospitals are oriented toward acute, rather than chronic illness - the prolonged chronic illness is the type we see most of as we become more technologically advanced.

"The terminally ill patient needs to die with dignity and control," said Feifel. "One way to achieve this is by having open and honest communication with both the patient, the doctor and the family. It brings out the strength of untapped potential in all of them. This means there will be less depression and less blaming of WARREN A. FIELD has been employed as a drafting instructor at Midland College. Field comes to the college from Los Angeles where he received his master's degree in vocational education from California State University and was a part-time instructor at the university. He has worked as a drafting technician and a chemical technician.

"The dying patient is a psychosocial, as well as biological process which is best treated as a support network," said Feifel. "He wants our concern, our presence and our witness to his death. It sometimes comes down to simply being able to hold his

"The challenge," Feifel added, "comes down to improving the quality of the living that is left to the patient, not the dying."

Feifel agrees with the general concept of the "hospice" - a special establishment whre the dying are given attention and consideration. A small number of such hospices exist in the United States but the most notable is at St. Christopher Hospital in London.

However, Feifel also feels that hospices can be "regressive" if they detract from the view that such special attention should be a regular part of the usual hospital system.

"If we can allow and help patients to die with their dignity and identity intact, it will lessen the pain tremendously," says Feifel. "Not just of the patient but the family as well." Feifel noted that the dying patient also "grieves for himself" - a fact not yet sufficiently understood by psychologists. Also that the family PLACED, IT MUST RUN ONE 4 CAMERAS AND SUPPLIES may begin grieving when the patient DAY first becomes seriously ill, so that they have completed much of the grieving by the time of the actual death

Also little appreciated, according to Feifel, is the complexity of dying. "It is seldom simple," he said. "Acceptance and avoidance co-exist at a very deep level of consciousness."
