Tax cuts on income hurt poor

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Federal income tax cuts are a political ploy and work against the interests of poor people, Minnesota Gov. Wendell Anderson has told a Lyndon B. Johnson Library symposium.

The symposium on social programs of the Kennedy-Johnson era resumes today with an address on medical legislation by Wilbur Cohen, former secretary of health, education and welfare.

During Monday's session, University of Texas executive Bob Hardesty read a statement from Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, who had been invited to attend, along with President Ford.

"If I am elected president, I will try to build on the enduring framework of the Great Society and the New Frontier. I will not abandon the vision of an America where poverty has vanished and injustice is no more," the Carter statement said.

But, he added, "we have been forced to recognize that federal resources are not infinite." Anderson asserted in his remarks that "Every time they (Congress) have supported a tax reduction, they have created a problem for local officials and a burden for the poor."

He said that when federal funds for state and local programs are reduced because of tax cuts, "property taxes and sales taxes go up, and those are the taxes that poor people pay."

Speaking in a state whose governor, Dolph Briscoe, is dedicated to a no-new-taxes governmental philosophy, Anderson spoke with pride of passing increases in personal and corporate income taxes through the Minnesota legislature.

"What did we do with the money? By and large, we tried to help poor people," Anderson said. He said property taxes were frozen and state income tax exemptions were provided for the "working poor."

Minnesota provides state aid of $1,300 per high school pupil, he said, and another $1,100 per pupil is added to a school if at least 11 per cent of its student body is receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

"I think that is a poverty program worth talking about. When I see Congress and the administration getting together to give us tax rebates, I view it as a political ploy. What kind of poverty program is that? If you are committed to helping the poor, you should be against that kind of tax policy," he said.

Another panelist, black Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley said Great Society and New Frontier programs of Presidents Kennedy and Johnson helped overcome many of the obstacles facing black people and poor people of his generation.

But there remain many without jobs or adequate medical care and education, he added.

"I hope we can take a commitment from this symposium that we have got a long way to go in this country," Bradley said.

McManus plea for restraint not granted

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has denied a request for a temporary restraining order that sought to stay any prosecution of criminal charges against McManus, 33, until he could have a hearing for a preliminary injunction.

That injunction would attempt to restrain prosecutors from making public statements concerning the case.

The request was assigned to U.S. District Judge Ross N. Sterling and could be taken up again next Monday when the judge returns from a trip.

McManus filed a petition complaining that state prosecutors have made prejudicial statements in public that prevent him from getting a fair trial on two capital murder indictments.

McManus and Paula Cantrell Derese, 26, are charged in the July 24 slaying of Mrs. Derese's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Harvey Cantrell of Baytown. They were found strangled and slashed in their Baytown home.

Mrs. Derese and McManus have pleaded innocent to the charges. They are free on $50,000 bond each.

McManus contended in his petition that a gag rule ordered by a district judge has been violated by Dist. Atty. Carol Vance and two assistants, Mike Hinto and L.H. Stewart.

Vance and the two assistants were not available for comment and Ted Busch, chief of the district attorney's trial bureau, declined comment.

A witness the district attorney's office contends is familiar with the case spent 90 minutes before a grand jury Monday. The panel is continuing an investigation into the slayings.

San Augustine files class suit on school taxes

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — A federal class action suit filed here Monday by San Augustine, Tex., school board members claims the way the state collects school taxes is unconstitutional.

The school board members want three federal judges to rule on the matter of constitutionality.

The suit alleges that the 64th Texas Legislature drew up a school financing bill based on the information which the suit said does not accurately reflect tax revenues and the bill should be declared unconstitutional.

According to the suit, the legislature required school districts to provide a computation of property within their districts but, the suit claimed, this information was provided only as an advisory and was never intended to be a definitive article.

The suit said the computation fails "to take into account a list of value of all those vast quantities of tangible and intangible personal property which are not on the tax rolls even though the constitution and laws of the State of Texas say they are taxable."

Tarver resigns post

Midland Fire Marshal Bill Tarver has resigned his position at the city fire department after 21 years, two and one-half months of service.

Tarver's resignation, effective Sept. 3, was due to his retirement from the department, he said.

Fire Chief Melvin Little will appoint a successor to Tarver upon his return from vacation, the retiring fire marshal noted.

Assistant City Manager Fred Poe said Tarver's resignation came after the former marshal elected to take early retirement under the firemen's retirement plan. Tarver said he had no immediate plans.

Tarver is a native of Morton, west of Lubbock. He moved to Midland in 1953 and joined the city fire department in June 1955.

The retiring fire marshal holds a degree in fire science technology from Midland College. He has taught at the firemen's and fire marshals' training school at Texas A&M University the past 14 years. He is a state certified instructor in the fire department and is certified as an advanced inspector, fire investigator and fireman.

Tarver also is certified as a law enforcement officer and a law enforcement officer instructor. He was an instructor in Midland's radiological monitors, civil defense work, and served as custodian of the city's cobalt source set.

He is first vice president of the Arson Investigators Association of the State of Texas and has gained note for his home fire prevention demonstration put on throughout the state. Midland's good fire credit rating has increased five per cent each year he has been marshal.

Tarver is a World War II veteran and received the air medal with two oak leaf clusters and the distinguished flying cross with an oak leaf cluster among other citations. He is a charter member of the city's accident review board and is active in Midland Little League. He also is credited with being the first man president of PTA in Midland, serving as president of the Austin Junior High School PTA.

Fathers 'suffer'

By ERMA BOMBECK

During a pregnancy, it is not uncommon for an expectee to break out with hives, lose sleep, or become morose and not want to talk about it. Some even have stomach cramps.

And those are just the men, according to British authoress Betty Parsons.

She has just written a book for expectant fathers describing their turmoil and anxiety.

And if that isn't enough to choke you up, a laborite member of Parliament is introducing a bill that would give a man three days holiday with pay when his wife has a baby. (That's like tipping the Boston Strangler for making a house call.)

To quote, "It is inhuman and monstrous that men should be deprived of this vital family entitlement. It will enable a man to be present to keep his wife company while she is in labor."

I'd like to see this "sharing" go a step farther. When does a husband get custody of the baby for the first nine months preceding birth?

I'm not your neighborhood sadist or anything, but I'd sure like to cut down on some of the dumb questions husbands seem to spew out. These are my favorites:

Upon being told you are pregnant, a husband will invariably ask, "Are you sure?" (If Rona Barrett said it, you'd believe it!)

"Are you really nauseated?" is another favorite. (Just because I am hanging out of the no-draft, clutching the radio antenna and praying for death . . . is that what you think?)

"Are you comfortable?" (This, in your 11th month on an elevator when a man has just set a pipe on your stomach and announced, "We seem to be stuck between floors. Someone has just tilted us over capacity.")

I know men should be more involved in birth, but I personally liked it better when they lived in ignorance. When they thought I was performing a miracle that only I could do. That I had to go into maternity clothes at two weeks and sit in soft chairs and not carry anything heavier than a dish of ice cream. And that after birth, I had to stay in bed 30 days to get my strength back.

Men won't stop with a three-day maternity leave. First, they won't be able to fit into anything they wore before the baby . . . then they'll have to get away for a few days . . . and the post-natal depression could last as long as 15 years. ET.

Teach children fire survival

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Fire Prevention Week is October 3-9. This is the fourth in a five-part series by Dr. Gary S. Nelson, a safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, designed to help parents teach their children and themselves how to survive a house fire.)

COLLEGE STATION — Children must practise fire protection techniques if they are expected to react correctly in an emergency. The following is the last of six "fire drills" offered in this series designed to teach children how to survive a fire.

The drill called "Man the Hoses" teaches some principles of fire fighting. Every fireman knows how to put out a fire, and your children can learn elementary firefighting techniques. Although a child will never fight fire extensively, his quick action could save his life or your house.

Stage a small paper or wood fire in the backyard—in a box, barbecue pit or trash burner—where you can control it. Show youngsters how to put it out with a bucket of water or a hose. A coarse spray nozzle is better than a steady stream. If you own a fire extinguisher, and you should, have everyone learn to use it.

A practice session is worth the cost of a refill, for an extinguisher is useless unless you know how to work it.

Warn children never to throw water on an electrical fire because of the shock hazard or on a grease fire because it may spatter, spreading the flames. Only an extinguisher designed for electrical fires will work on electricity. To quell small grease fires, put a lid on the flaming pan or throw on several handfuls of baking soda (never flour; it may explode).

For ordinary combustibles such as wood, paper and cloth, water is the surest extinguishing agent.

Wearing a terry cloth apron when you sew any type of slippery material will keep the material from sliding off your lap.

PUBLIC NOTICE

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS GENERAL ELECTION NOV. 2, 1976

NUMBER ONE ON THE BALLOT (S.J.R. 49)

Repealing Sections 49-d and 49-d-1 of Article III of the Texas Constitution, S.J.R. 49 amends Section 49-c of Article III of the Texas Constitution to provide for and authorize an additional $400 million in Texas water development bonds that may be issued on approval of two-thirds of the members of each house of the Legislature for such water development purposes as the Legislature may prescribe.

The amendment contains a specific prohibition against the use of state funds for the development of water resources from the Mississippi River and also requires that before any single water development project may be undertaken requiring the expenditure of more than $35 million in bond proceeds, it must be approved by resolution of the Legislature.

The amendment removes the constitutional requirement that certain revenues must be used to retire water development and water quality enhancement bonds and removes the constitutional interest rate limit on such bonds.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

The constitutional amendment authorizing an increase of $400 million in the amount of Texas Water Development Bonds that may be issued on approval of two-thirds of the legislature, amending and consolidating provisions of Sections 49-c, 49-d and 49-d-1 of Article III of the Texas Constitution; and repealing Sections 49-d and 49-d-1 of Article III of the Texas Constitution.

NUMBER TWO ON THE BALLOT (H.J.R. 99)

H.J.R. 99 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to increase from $100 million to $200 million the aggregate principle amount of Texas water development bonds which may be issued and outstanding by the Texas Water Development Board to provide grants and loans for water quality enhancement purposes as established by the Legislature.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

A constitutional amendment to increase from $100 million to $200 million the amount of Texas Water Development Bonds that may be issued for water quality enhancement purposes.

Andrews, Devils keep records unblemished

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

Andrews and Rankin remained undefeated after the first two weeks of area high school grid action...

It was a good showing for the area teams Friday, but Lamesa, Crane and McCamey are still searching for that first victory.

Andrews matched its total win output of a year ago when it bested the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes in the feature game of the week.

STANTON GAVE David Thompson his first win as a head coach when it pumpled the Wink Wildcats, 24-0.

Crane, the defending 7-AA champion, played one AAA team too many as they dropped a 41-0 bombshell to Monahans.

race appear to be headed for a real shootout. Rankin was also greeted with good news when Iraan was tied by Eldorado, 13-13.

Stanton's victory over Wink was to serve as the Buffaloes' only good news of the week since 5-A frontrunners Plains and Seagraves waited to victory.

Howard honored

By Associated Press

Texas Tech's defense was regarded slightly ahead of the Maginot Line before the 1976 football campaign began.

Coach Steve Sloan was concerned about opponents going around it, through it, and over it.

"Our defense was so maligned that it got to be one of those 'having to prove something' deals," said Sloan.

Led by fierce linebacker Thomas Howard, the Red Raiders "proved" it to Colorado Saturday night in a 24-7 runaway.

Ford on television from White House

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford is continuing his White House-based political strategy with a nationally televised interview from the Oval Office.

Ford scheduled an appearance on the NBC Today Show in which he was to be in the White House and his interviewer in New York. He also planned routine bill signings and a meeting with Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller later in the day.

He arranged to huddle with his speech writers to give Wednesday night at his alma mater, the University of Michigan. That will be his first venture outside of Washington this month, and aides have billed it as the kickoff speech of his fall campaign against challenger Jimmy Carter.

After that, it will be back to the White House where he may remain most of the month. Ford's strategy is intended to show he is running the country and will campaign only when it does not interfere with his presidential duties.

His only other scheduled appearance away from Washington this month is the first of three debates with Carter on Sept. 23 in Philadelphia.

The President was very visible to reporters and photographers Monday during a series of presidential acts, mostly involving bill signings.

He posed for pictures in the Oval Office with United Nations Am-

Census survey planned

A representative of the Bureau of the Census will survey the area next week to determine the extent people have been immunized against selected diseases.

Judith Flett of 2009 Sands St. will survey Midlanders Sept. 20 through 27 as part of the annual census to provide information on immunization against measles, influenza, polio, diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, rubella and mumps.

The information gathered is needed for administration of health programs geared to disease prevention. The questions are in addition to the usual ones asked in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment by the bureau.

Personal information supplied in the survey will be strictly confidential. Results will be used only to compile statistical totals.

Carter agrees with Ford stands

By The Associated Press

Jimmy Carter agrees with President Ford's refusal to allow Vietnam to join the United Nations and says the men appointed to the Supreme Court by Ford and Richard Nixon are doing a good job.

Those stands apparently were part of an effort by the Carter campaign to put a more conservative foot forward in the second week of the candidate's travels in search of votes. But that didn't slow down Carter's criticism of Ford's leadership.

Carter began the day in the South, then chased the sun across the country, ending his day in Arizona.

For Ford, the second week of the campaign began like the first week — with the President studiously remaining away from the campaign trail.

Although he was not seeing any potential voters, plenty of them were seeing him as he signed bills at ceremonies designed to put him before the television cameras and emphasizing his White House residency.

Ford, who has left the White House only once since the campaign season began on Labor Day, plans to leave Washington on Wednesday for a speech at his alma mater, the University of Michigan. He planned to meet with his speech writers today to polish the Michigan address.

After the speech, Ford is to return to the White House and may not leave Washington again all month except for the first of his debates with Carter on Sept. 23 in Philadelphia.

Meanwhile Sens. Bob Dole, the Republican vice presidential candidate, and Walter Mondale, his Democratic counterpart, were crisscrossing the country seeking votes.

Carter, whose own style is to shake as many hands, kiss as many babies and personally touch as many voters as he can reach, groused about Ford's stay-at-home campaign last week, accusing him of hiding in the White House.

But Monday, Carter had kind words for the Supreme Court of Warren Burger, appointed by Nixon, and he said he would have vetoed Vietnam's membership in the U.N., just as Ford did earlier Monday.

"I believe the Burger court is moving back in the proper direction," Carter said in a speech to county officials in Oklahoma. "We went too far and it got so that sincere, honest, dedicated competent law enforcement officers found it almost impossible to comply with all the technicalities that might be raised."

Earlier in the day, Ford had given instructions to William Scranton, U.S. ambassador to the U.N., to veto for the second straight year the Vietnamese application to join the organization. The veto in the Security Council was linked to Hanoi's failure to account for Americans still listed as missing in Vietnam.

Carter, in Phoenix, Ariz., met with about 25 persons whose relatives still are listed as missing in action in Southeast Asia, promising "an all-out effort" to determine the fate of those still missing.

Carter said he also would not move to establish normal relations with Hanoi "until I was convinced personally that the Vietnamese government had done everything humanly possible to provide a complete accounting of our men who are listed as missing in action."

Carter started out the day in Birmingham, Ala., where he got a warm greeting from Gov. George Wallace before telling an audience of businessmen, "I can't recall a single thing that our incumbent President has done in a two-year period to indicate a capacity for leadership."

Dozen primaries today

NEW YORK (AP) — New York's Democratic voters pick a U.S. Senate nominee today from a five-candidate field that sprawls across the party's ideological spectrum. It includes a flamboyant congresswoman, a loquacious professor, a former U.S. attorney general, a party warhorse and a man who builds parking garages.

When the voting is over, the Democrats — who have lost every Senate race in the state but one in the past 25 years — will have just seven weeks to patch up the wounds of a divisive campaign and try to beat incumbent Republican-Conservative Sen. James Buckley, who faces a challenge himself.

Primary elections also were being held today in 11 other states: Minnesota, Massachusetts, Colorado, Nevada, North Carolina, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, Utah, Wyoming and Wisconsin.

In the New York primary, the Democrats' choice could be Rep. Bella Abzug, an aggressive campaigner who wears big hats, strikes liberal themes and explicitly appeals to the women's vote: "I may not look like a senator, but I'm what I think a senator should look like."

Or Daniel Patrick Moynihan, the Harvard University don and former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, who says the Democratic party has drifted too far left and may be forgetting that America is "very much worth defending."

Or Paul O'Dwyer, president of the New York City Council and the party establishment's official choice, who says the others' "bickering" may have jeopardized chances for a Democratic victory.

Or Abraham Hirschfeld, a Brooklyn parking garage magnate who said Monday: "When a person has a toothache, he goes to a dentist, not to a politician. New York has economic problems, and it needs a practical businessman."

In the first statewide Republican primary in 50 years, Buckley is opposed by Rep. Peter Peyster of Westchester County. Peyster is a moderate who says the deeply conservative Buckley has ignored the needs of New York.

But the crew-cut, first-term senator will be on the Nov. 2 ballot as the Conservative party nominee even if he loses to Peyster. Buckley won just such a three-way contest against a moderate Republican and a Democrat in 1970.

Buckley continued Monday to ignore his opponent, issuing a statement that denounced the five Democrats and didn't mention Peyster. Peyster again attacked Buckley for refusing to debate him.

With only a plurality needed to win the five-way Democratic race, much hinges on the composition of the expected light turnout among the state's 3.6 million enrolled Democrats.
