No new taxes in budget

A city budget of $15.9 million for 1976-77 was approved Tuesday by the Midland City Council, and the tax levy for the year was set at $1.14 per $100 of assessed valuation.

The city has a 75 per cent assessment ratio on real and personal property, finance director Robert

Aid given regional terminal

WASHINGTON - The Department of Transportation has awarded $3,720,000 to the city of Midland for runway improvement at the Midland Regional Air Terminal, Congressman George Mahon announced today.

The funding award was made possible by recent action of Congress on the Airport and Airway Development Act, Mahon said.

All the money made available to the city comes from the Aviation Trust Fund, which is supported by tax on airport tickets and aviation fuel, the 19th District Congressman pointed

The funds will be used for 26,000 feet of runway and taxiway to complete 95,000 feet of usable runway area on runways 16 right and 34 left, according to Wilson Banks, aviation director at the terminal.

Massengale noted. This means that, for a person owning a home worth $40,000 on the city tax roll, city taxes of $342 would be levied for this coming

According to Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr., no new taxes will be required under the budget, though expenditures in the general fund have increased. This increase will be met by an appropriation from the general fund unappropriated surplus, he said.

City Manager James Brown noted that the tax levy for the coming year is the same as levied last year.

Included in the $15,910,819 city budget are $10,518,513 in the general fund, $4,470,572 in the water fund, and $921,734 in the airport fund. The city's general fund was the only figure changed from the city staff's original recommendation.

Alterations in the general fund include the addition of approximately $26,000 for compensation insurance, $4,968 for the municipal court, $790 for one salaried person, and $27,127 for the city zoo. Other alterations in the general fund are the deletion of $6,276 for one salaried person at Hogan Park Golf Course and of $500 from the Midland Chamber of Commerce's requested $52,250.

Roy Kimsey, president of the before council urging the addition of the funds into the budget to allow the facility to operate for another sixmonth period until action can be taken on a proposed $5 million bond issue for a new zoo. He said if the bond issue is called, the funds in the budget will insure the zoo can be maintained until a new zoo can be put in operation without the disposition and repurchase of animals.

Kimsey also urged the council to call that $5 million bond election on the proposed new city zoo. He cited as deterring factors to the present zoo the proximity of the city dump, the sanitation plant, the police firing range and the facility's hard-to-find location. Council expressed concern, not over the necessity of the bond election, but toward the amount requested. The group did agree the present facility is one-that no one's proud of, according to the mayor, and the citizens should be given a chance to determine the fate of a new zoo. Angelo urged the zoological society to come up with alternatives regarding the cost of the proposed new zoo and told Kimsey. 'we'll pursue this (bond proposal)

The deletion from the general fund regarding a salaried person at the golf course also was an oversight, according to Brown, but the deletion from the chamber's requested budget was due to what council termed "duplication of services" regarding Midland Zoological Society, appeared the printing of maps and brochures.

Freshman footballers put on bargain show

Area sports coverage czar Terry Williamson didn't send me to a game last weekend and I'm going to be at the Odessa Chili Bowl this weekend, so I got my ration of gridiron goingson Saturday morning at the simply appointed but beautifully turfed gridiron at Edison Freshman School. (Actually, I was passing through and saw a crowd and decided to investigate.)

But it occurs to me that some of the most entertaining football this side of Texas Stadium—particularly if you don't like crowds or professional tickets-goes on in just such "arenas" every week. And if you think

Staubach and Landry take it seriously, you ought to see one of these freshman coaches locked in earnest colloquy with an errant

Wildcats meeting Bonham at Edison Field at 10 a.m. Saturday, and the Edison Purple traveling to Odessa High School Stadium to meet Crockett of Odessa at the odd time of 6:55 p.m. Thursday.

Saturday's confrontation at Edison was about as tight a game as you could hope for without a tie, as the Rangers carried home a 6-0 tally after scoring on a short keeper by quarterback Gary Butler set up by a heads-up interception by teammate Jimmy Fox. A bigger edge may have been averted by an 85-yard punt return negated on a clipping penalty minutes later. (Austin's Orange, meanwhile was drubbing Bowie by 22-

But the Edison Wildcats were there to play too, and I saw two different gridders shaken up enough to call for mid-field analyses before the lads returned to the fray.

All parties approve school cluster plan

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Five years of legal dispute over desegregation of Midland elementary schools may have ended this morning when an agreement was signed by the school district and other parties to the

Incorporated in the agreement, which was in the form of a consent decree, was plan 1C, which calls for clustering Midland elementary schools in groups of three, with pupils attending fourth, fifth and sixth grade at different schools within the cluster group. The plan will be implemented at the start of the 1977-78 school year with certain preliminary steps being taken this year.

Special master John Skogland said the plan will be submitted to U.S. District Judge D. W. Suttle through regular legal channels. Skogland must report to the judge on the desegregation situation by Friday. He said his report will consist of a statement that the parties in the case have reached agreement.

Attorneys for both the U.S. Justice Department and the school district have said they expect the judge to accept the agreement.

"I think it's a fair plan that treats all parts of the community equally," school board president Joe Dominey

He said he is relieved that the legal battle is settled. "We're assured now that we have fully integrated our school system," he said.

Yoshinori H. T. Himel, Justice Department attorney, said he is happy with the agreement.

Council okays shopping malls

By DEBBIE PIERCE

The Midland City Council Tuesday agreed to "let the free enterprise system take its course" and cleared the way for two proposed major regional shopping centers to be located in the city.

Developers of one site, 155.32 acres at the intersection of Midkiff Road and FM 868, were seeking an amendment to a planned district. The acreage now is owned by Paul Rochester, but Paul Broadhead and Associates of Meridian, Miss., and Mel Simon and Associates of Indianapolis, Ind., the developers, want to replat it and buy the property.

Spokesmen for the other proposed shopping center, to be located at U.S. 80 West and Holiday Hill Road, were seeking annexation of 100 acres to be developed by General are made for a left-turn lane at the Growth Properties Inc. of Des site.

Moines, Iowa. The recommendation to allow both sites to be developed into shopping centers came from Marvin R Springer of Dallas, an urban planner and area development consultant, at the request of council.

Springer told council that both developers are experienced and capable of developing their sites into shopping centers. He said both plans of development are about equal in size

However, Springer said, some problems regarding access at both sites would have to be worked out before the centers could operate

The northwest site, at Midkiff Road and FM 868, should not create traffic problems provided the two roads are improved as planned. He said access "basically could be handled better" at this site than the other if provisions isn't the only group talking about buses these days.

Mass transit debated

The Midland City Council got into the act Tuesday, but council was referring to buses for public transportation, not for desegregation purposes.

Jerry Tschauner, planning director at the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission. and Jim Watt, a representative of Allan Voorhis and Associates, appeared before council with a progress report on alternatives for the Midland-Odessa Regional Mass Transit Study.

According to Watt, the Voorhis firm has spent seven months studying transportation needs in Midland and has come up with several suggestions regarding bus service.

He said the city could operate a seven-bus system to provide service each 60 minutes, or a 10bus system to provide service each 30 to 45 minutes, both of which would be on a fixed route: or the city could have door-todoor service by bus using 13

Watt noted the costs of the first alternative, the seven-bus service plan, would be from $430,000 to $675,000 a year; the second alternative, for 10-bus service, would cost from $680,000 to $1 million a year: and the third alternative, the 13-bus demand-response plan, would cost up to $586,000 a year.

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. noted council had turned down this program less than a year ago and he personally still opposed it. He said, "This looks like an unbelievably expensive way to approach the problem. I don't see any grounds for approving something we can't see a need for."

Watt explained that surveys taken by the Voorhis firm showed a need for public transportation for the elderly, low income and handicapped residents in town. He said the very minimum plan suggested would be a coordination between the city and agencies now providing such services. Tschauner noted that approval to one of the alternatives "would only make it possible for the city to get into the program in the next five years, if council so decides.

Senior Services coordinator Marion Fisher also appeared before council and said that, while some transportation needs are being met, "we're severely limited in the number of services we can provide." She stressed that many Midlanders really cannot afford taxicab rates and must depend on others for transportation.

Angelo noted the city, as chartered, "is not supposed to handle welfare." Councilman Martin Neill agreed, urging the council not to "incur deficit spending" by providing services already provided. Mrs. Fisher said these alternatives would not be welfare but a public service "that people have a right to."

Council agreed to defer action on the alternatives suggested until further information is

Ford strike may be long

DETROIT (AP) - United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock today cautioned against assuming his union's nationwide strike against Ford Motor Co. will be a short one.

"I am not optimistic it will be a short one," he said in an interview on the NBC-TV "Today show." "I just have no feel as to the length it will

Some labor observers, including Labor Secretary W. J. Usery, have predicted any strike against Ford would be brief. The strike began at midnight when 170,000 UAW members struck Ford, forcing auto operations in 22 states to a halt.

The UAW has sent its bargainers home and said it will recall them early next week for more talks.

Woodock said he hopes to meet with Ford officials before negotiations resume for "probing sessions" to lay groundwork for future bargaining

Woodcock and Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter both will be at the Michigan AFL-CIO convention tonight in Dearborn where Ford headquarters are located.

Woodcock was the first national labor leader to support Carter. Henry Ford II, board chairman of Ford Motor Co., also is supporting the former Georgia governor over President Ford.

The President, meanwhile, is to make a campaign appearance tonight in Ann Arbor, about 30 miles from

Woodcock today rejected the notion there is anything embarrassing for Carter in the timing of his campaign appearance on the first day of the

Moynihan triumphs in New York

By The Associated Press

Daniel Patrick Moynihan, whose outspoken speeches at the United Nations set the stage for his entry into electoral politics, won New York's Democratic Senate nomination Tuesday by narrowly defeating the equally flamboyant Bella Abzug.

Elsewhere around the country, Sens. Edward Kennedy, Hubert Humphrey and William Proxmire won primary contests with little trouble. But Philip Noel, Rhode Island's controversial governor, hovered on the edge of failure in his bid for a Senate

Moynihan, who entered the Senate race after quitting his U.N. post, took a narrow lead early in the counting and held it all evening over Mrs. Abzug, who had criticized him for his work with Republican administra-

Trailing badly were the other three contestants: former U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, New York City Council President Paul O'Dwyer and businessman Abraham Hirschfeld.

Kennedy defeated two antibusing candidates in Massachusetts' Democratic primary; Proxmire won against a writein candidate in Wisconsin, and Humphrey defeated a token opponent who campaigned little in Minnesota. Gerald W. Brekke won the Republican primary in Minnesota and will oppose Humphrey.

In another Massachusetts race, Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., in line to be speaker of the House, claimed victory over a little-known opponent.

And in Nevada, Democratic Sen. Howard Cannon, chairman of the Senate Rules committee, easily won renomination. In final unofficial returns in the Rhode Island contest for the Senate seat being vacated by Sen. John O. Pastore, auto dealer Richard Lorber held a 361-vote edge over Noel, who has encountered difficulties since a derogatory remark earlier this year about blacks. But there were 3,111 absentee votes still to be counted.

This is how the other races stacked up on a day in which there were primaries for statewide office in 12 states, where a generally light turnout was estimated at ranging from 17 to 33 per cent:

NEW HAMPSHIRE: Outspoken conservative Gov. Meldrim Thomson ran away from moderate Republican Gerard Zeiller to win nomination for a third term. On the Democratic side, Harry V. Spanos, a former state senate leader, was ahead in a threeway race and declared himself the victor. And in a Republican Congressional primary, John Adams, an unemployed 61-year-old taxi driver who did little campaigning, held a lead over favored Edward Hewson.

VERMONT: Gov. Thomas P. Salmon won the Democratic Senate nomination over Scott Skinner, former director of a public interest group. Salmon will face Republican Sen. Robert T. Stafford, who was nominated easily.

NORTH CAROLINA: Howard Lee, the former mayor of Chapel Hill, failed in his bid to become the first black elected to statewide office. He was defeated in the Democratic runoff for lieutenant governor by James Green, speaker of the North Carolina House. Moderate Republican David Flaherty won the gubernatorial nomination in a runoff over Coy C. Privette, a Baptist minister and anti-liquor crusader.

WYOMING: State Sen. Malcolm Wallop easily defeated two opponents for the Republican nomination to face

Sen. Gale McGee, who was unopposed for renomination. Democratic Rep. Teno Roncalio was also renominated

COLORADO: Rep. Frank Evans. a six-term Democratic congressman, won in his bid for renomination. He was the only incumbent being challenged.

UTAH: There were tight races in both parties for governor with Dixie Leavitt, the Senate Minority leader leading Atty. Gen. Vernon Romney on the Republican side and attorney Scott Matheson leading John Preston Creer among the Democrats. In the GOP Senate race to face incumbent Democrat Frank Moss, trial lawyer Orrin Hatch had a 2-1 lead over former Asst. Interior Secretary Jack

Boycotts continue in Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - The three-day strike by black workers in Johannesburg eased slightly today on its last day, but many of Cape Town's 200,000 nonwhite workers began a two-day work boycott despite leaflets postponing it a week.

Three more blacks were killed by police gunfire Tuesday night in Johannesburg's Soweto township, raising the toll to at least 16 dead since the start Monday of the job protest against the white government's racial policies, the city's leading black newspaper reported.

The docks, the building industry, bread and milk deliveries, large manufacturers and business houses were hit by the new strike in Cape Town, on the coast 800 miles southwest of Johannesburg. Business houses and shops were open in all areas, but the streets were comparatively empty and business houses were hard hit Steadily decreasing absenteeism was reported in Johannesburg, but the number of strikers was still apparently considerable. The South African Press Association said employers reported no more than 60 per cent of their black workers absent today. The maximum figure Tuesday was 70 per cent, and the chamber of commerce estimated that on Monday, when the strike started, 70 to 80 per cent of the city's 250,000 black workers stayed home.

The news agency said Johan nesburg business houses and in-'dustries reported "millions" of man hours lost

The black newspaper The World said riot police in Soweto opened fire and killed three persons Tuesday night when striking blacks attacked workers returning from Johannesburg after defying the strike call.

There was no immediate comment on the report. But Maj. Gen. D.J. Kriel, the chief of riot control, said reports in The World that police killed nine blacks earlier Tuesday were "nonsense." He said the only casualties Tuesday reported to him were two blacks wounded when police opened fire with birdshot to disperse demonstrators.

The police appeared to have brought Soweto under control Tuesday night, The World reported.

Revenue sharing fate in balance running short for the House and Senate to reach a compromise on legislation that would renew the federal revenue-sharing program that has channeled billions of dollars to local governments to use pretty much as they wish.

Members of a House and Senate conference committee are faced with a $16.3-billion difference in two revenue-sharing bills, and they have 21/2 weeks to resolve differences before adjourning Oct. 2.

The Senate on Tuesday voted 80 to 4 for a 5%-year extension of revenuesharing that would return $41.2 billion to state and local governments. The House version, passed last June, would continue the program for 3% years at a cost of $24.9 billion.

Paul Myer, the White House staff member who worked closely with members of the House and Senate seeking to continue the program, said, "We like the Senate bill." He predicted that few "onerous" changes would be made in the House-Senate to act quickly," he said.

In a statement issued after the Senate vote, the White House said President Ford was "extremely pleased" by the bill's passage. He urged the House and Senate to work quickly on a compromise so he can have the legislation on his desk before "To do less would only serve to aggravate the fiscal problems of state and local governments and undermine economic recovery," he said.

Ford said the Senate bill "closely follows my legislative recommendations for renewal of this important domestic program.'

He said Democratic leaders in the House delayed for more than one year their work on the renewal legislation and had "jeopardized the fiscal and economic stability of our cities."

Time also is running out for the local jurisdictions receiving the revenue-sharing money, many of whom are completing budgets outlining how the money will be spent.

Davis has been denied bond in the death of his stepdaughter. Andrea Wilborn, 12, and a $500,000 bond was set in the death of Farr.

Dallas lawyer Phil Burleson asked the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals to set reasonable bond in the girl's death and to reduce the other bond.

The state obtained capital murder indictments on the contention that the killings occurred during a burglary, committed when Davis entered his mansion, where his estranged wife

Burleson argued that a burglary charge was improper in that it was Davis' home, too. In addition, Burleson said, Davis had the consent of the co-owner of the house, his brother Ken, to enter when he wanted

Columnist Kilpatrick predicts one-party rule if Carter elected

By JUDY JOHNSTON R-T Staff Writer

ODESSA — If Jimmy Carter is successful in his bid for the Presidency, columnist James Kilpatrick predicts the Democratic party should gain a majority in both houses of Congress and the United States will have one party rule for the first time since the turn of the cen-

Speaking Tuesday night at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, Kilpatrick noted the minority party in Congress has had a blocking one-third of the vote for veto power and to maintain a set of checks and Democrats now have almost a two-thirds majority in Congress, Kilpatrick said, and should have more than that amount after the general election in November. Another possible consequence if whether or not Carter would win the Presidency, but predicted that the race would be very close, rather than the predicted landslide.

"I have a feeling Carter's Southern base is not so solid as he assumes it to be," Kilpatrick said.

Persons backing Carter, he ex-plained, assume all Southern states as well as all the remaining liberal states will vote for Carter.

Three of the other six visits will be on-campus visits within the fourth through sixth grade cluster. Joint field trips will also be included in the desegregated activity program.

at Travis will be exempt. Dominey said Travis was exempted through grade five because all grades at that school are naturally integrated. Sixth grade was assigned to Washington in order to allow space in the school building for kindergarten and first grade now assigned to an annex, the former Bunche Elemen-

Thunderstorms may be barking in and around the Midland and Odessa areas tonight and Thursday, the National Weather Service at Midland Air Terminal reported this morning.

The weatherman suggested a 20 per cent chance of the rain-dropping storms on a night that should offer temperature readings in the mid-60s. The high Thursday will be in the Over Midland and Odessa, skies were mostly clear Wednesday morning. However, some high-flying scanty clouds were overhead.

Area towns this morning reported clear-sailing weather. And, in the mid-morning hours at least, no storms seemed to be brewing.

But rain or no rain, the precipitation thus far this year is right at the yearly average. The normal rainfall through September is 11.12 inches, the weatherman reported, and the 1976 rainfall so far is pegging 11.07 inches. "So, we're right in the ball park," he said.

Thick fog cloaked much of Northeast Texas today, dropping visibility to zero at times, the Associated Press reported.

Scattered thundershowers fell around the west tip of the state and occasional showers moved ashore through the coastal plains. Patches of low clouds overhung the middle of South Texas and it was clear to partly cloudy elsewhere.

Temperatures near dawn sagged to the 50s in the West Texas mountains and to 63 degrees at Amarillo in the Panhandle. Readings at other points ranged up to 77 at San Antonio. Tuesday's top mark was 87 at Presidio in the Big Bend of West

(The contemplated sale of the former North Elementary School is not affected.) Another provision calls for no bus route changes implemented "unreasonably without prior approval of the court.'

The school district also agreed to expand existing bilingual programs where possible and maintain the quality of the programs. Such programs will follow reassigned pupils "unless the school district finds such relocation to be unnecessary."

The plans will be implemented for the 1977-78 school year by the school district. However, during this school year preliminary plans will be begun within each cluster for students who will be attending fourth, fifth and sixth grades next year.

These activities may include visits to the Midland Community Theatre, museums or the planetarium and activities at elementary schools, such as field days or Christmas and Thanksgiving programs.

The school district also agreed to publicize and otherwise encourage students to take advantage of the existing majority-minority transfer policy which allows students to transfer from a school where his ethnic group is in the majority to one where it is in the minority.

The school district will report to the court yearly until further order from the court and supply information about various aspects of the plan. This year the district will file quarterly reports. In signing the decree, all parties agree not to appeal the order, should it be approved by the judge, except for issues of non-compliance.

Dominey said busing will be necessary for all clusters for the fourth through sixth grades. Mailey said he anticipates the school district will have to purchase about nine additional buses, at a cost of approximately $15,000 each, and recondition some buses already owned by the school district.

s more problems with access, according to Springer. The access planned would use two direct entrances from U.S. 80 and one from Holiday Hill Road, Springer said. He said those routes for access would be unacceptable and questioned "whether the General Growth Properties site can be provided adequate access without compromising the traffic capacity and safety of U.S. 80 and Holiday Hill Road."

Springer said the northwest site is oriented more toward primarily serving Midland proper, while the other site attempts to attract Odessa and surrounding residents. He said most of the volume generated by either site would be from Midland.

Upon contacting several major retailers, Springer told council that Sears Roebuck and Co. had a definite preference toward locating at the northwest site, and that the J. C. Penney Co. saw a need to serve Midland with better facilities but expressed no preference over either proposed shopping center site. He said Penney's also indicated it would major retailers in a center." to spring up there" at the Broadhead However, he added, "a truly regional site. market would be halfway between Midland and Odessa."

Springer also addressed himself to the attitudes of each developer, noting that the Broadhead-Simon group has no objection to competing sites, while the General Growth Properties group 'desires exclusive shopping center zoning.

The consultant told council it could either choose one site over the other, reject both sites hoping for a more truly regional proposal, or approve both sites.

Council expressed concern over whether, if both sites are allowed to develop, the city "would be left with two partly-developed shopping centers." Springer disagreed, saying that major retailers will usually go into the same mall and that both developers "are talking about quality

Martin Allday, representative for General Growth Properties, told council he had questions on whether two major regional shopping centers could survive in Midland and over one facility becoming second-class. He said paving the way for both sites would only confuse the major retailers and allow "a small operation

Scooping arm still immobile on Viking 2

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - A photograph received from the Viking 2 lander on Mars showed today that no pebbles are stuck in the immobile soil-scooping arm.

Scientists said a faulty position switch apparently caused the arm to stop and believe that time commands to override the switch can solve the difficulty.

The robot arm stopped as it delivered soil from the surface to miniature laboratories aboard the lander. It had not yet reached the organic chemistry experiment, which is considered most important to the question of life on Mars.

question of life on Mars.

Commands to deliver the sample to the inorganic laboratory by Friday have been sent to the lander. Scientists said they hoped that by next week the robot arm could dig soil for the organic laboratory.

Scientists said that seismographic instruments aboard the lander have detected the movement of the arm, but have not yet registered any Marsquakes.

citizens in utility rate cases.

Nader said Tuesday at the University of Arlington he thinks these groups - which he called Residential Utility Consumer Action Groups (RUCAG) - are necessary since users cannot depend on state regulatory agencies.

"Any government regulatory group that is exposed to the one-sided advocacy of utility companies will be weak and unresponsive to citizens,"

Nader said he expects the Texas Legislature to weigh the RUCAG idea in 1977.

He said the concept has been considered by "about half a dozen state legislatures, including New York and Maryland, but has not been adopted yet anywhere in the country."

Funding for the groups would come through a "checkoff" system on utility bills, he said.

Inclusion of a checkoff space on utility bills should be allowed by utili-ty companies "in return for being legal monopolies in a state," he said.

Even if only 2 per cent of the residential utility customers in a state contributed to a consumer group, Nader said, "millions of persons could be provided with skilled advocates to appear before a public utility commission."

He was scheduled to speak in Dallas today at Southern Metiledist Universicompetitive system take its course." Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. expressed confidence in the competitive system. but councilman Mark Martin said the western site "stands a better chance to draw from other areas and still serve Midland." Councilman Charles Tighe said the question "really comes down to whether we think one center can really attract more regional shoppers than the other." Council approved Broadhead's requested amendment with the notation that construction begin within two years. If a "good faith effort" is being made but construction isn't begun during this period, council agreed it could extend the deadline for the developers. Council postponed consideration of a preliminary plat of the Broadhead site until its next session Sept. 28. Regarding the General Growth site. council approved on second and final reading the annexation of 100 acres for the shopping center and established a planned district zoning for the location. The zoning was approved on emergency reading (meaning only reading will be necessary). Angelo noted the zoning's emergency reading was not done to 'give an edge" to these developers over the Broadhead group, but was 'something council had intended to do all along," considering the length of time since this plan was first proposed.

Ford to leave White House for Michigan

By The Associated Press

President Ford is making his first campaign trip outside Washington, a brief jaunt for a speech at his alma mater that will take him within a few miles of where Jimmy Carter is to make a major address.

Ford, who has been under fire from Carter for staying in the White House instead of meeting voters, says there will be "some surprises" in his speech tonight on domestic and foreign policy at the University of Michigan.

At the same time Ford is to speak at Ann Arbor, Democratic nominee Carter is to deliver what aides called "a major speech" to a state AFL-CIO convention about 30 miles away in the Detroit suburb of Dearborn, Mich.

Ford is to depart immediately after his speech and his aides say he may not leave Washington again all month except to fly to Philadelphia for the first of his debates with Carter on Carter started out in Arizona on Tuesday and worked his way to Montana and the Dakotas. Both he and his running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, accused the Ford administration of poor management that has turned the Medicare program into a "national disgrace.

Mondale and Carter were to join forces today for appearances in Minnesota.

Ford spent the day at the White House, but his running mate, Sen. Bob Dole, was campaigning in the West. In Phoenix, Ariz., Carter said, "I'd like to know why, after eight years of a Republican administration, we're still losing 25 to 50 per cent of all the Medicaid money that's supposed to be for good health care."

A Senate subcommittee recently documented instances of unneeded and duplicated health exams and laboratory work paid for by the government, and Senate investigators estimated that perhaps as much as half of the money spent annually on Medicare is wasted.

The Democratic nominee said he wanted to know why Ford, as a congressman, had voted against Medicare, adding: "When an administration opposes the basic concepts of helping with public funds to provide good health care for our people, it is almost inevitable that health properly."

And Carter continued to twit Ford for his stay-at-home campaign strategy, scoffing at Ford's contention that he won't leave Washington until Congress adjourns because he is afraid the House and Senate will "go off the deep end" without him.

Carter noted that Ford wasn't afraid of leaving Congress alone in Washington during the Republican presidential primaries, recalling that Ford traveled extensively to such states as Mississippi in order to win delegates from Ronald Reagan.

Turning to his plan for a national health care system, Carter said: 'Our country's ready for it, you're ready for it, I'm ready for it, and we're going to have it."

He later said he had no firm figure on how much the program would cost, but said he has received estimates ranging up to $15 billion.

Carter said $60 billion a year in new money for such a health care program would be available to the government by 1981 if the unemployment rate is cut to 5 per cent or 5.5 per cent and if the national economic growth rate is 4 per cent or 5 per cent.

Carter also rapped Ford's economic and farm policies, saying, "Our farmers are going broke, producing food that consumers cannot afford to buy. That's got to be changed. We need a predictable agriculture policy.

He said a new basic farm policy law must be written and he said Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz should be replaced with someone who would worry more about small farmers than agricultural corporations. "Almost anybody would be an improvement," Carter said.

Mondale, speaking to retirees in Florida, agreed with Carter on Medicare, saying scandals in the pro-gram are caused by "A government that is not in charge and rich folks ripping off senior citizens."

But moving to Illinois later Tuesday, Mondale admitted a "difference in emphasis" with Carter on the decisions of the Supreme Court.

Carter had praise Monday for the decisions of the Burger court, dominated by appointees of Ford and resigned President Richard M. Nixon. Carter said the court under the late Earl Warren went "too far ... and obviously guilty people were released unpunished.'

Mondale, in Champaign-Urbana, Ill., said he backs punishment "under terms of law," but "at the same time. I have always supported those deicisons which protect the constitutional rights of defendants.'

He added: "There may well be a difference in emphasis between the governor and me on this issue.

As for the Burger court, Mondale said, "I've had trouble accepting some of the recent decisions of the court." Neither candidate specified any court decisions.

Dole told a San Francisco business group that Democratic programs would lead to raging inflation and could cost $100 billion.

Dole noted Carter has said he might have to delay some of his programs. but suggested Carter "will be hardpressed to indicate what he's going to abandon, or to actually abandon anything, because a very substantial part of his hardcore constituency favors those spending programs.

STANTON — Twenty-four persons are enrolled for a 120-hour emergency medical technician course which begins Thursday in Stanton.

The first session of the course, coordinated by Midland College, will be at 6 p.m. in the Texas Electric Service Company Reddy Room here.

Sessions will run from 6 to 10 p.m. for a total of 80 hours of classroom instruction, plus another 40 hours of observing hospitals and emergency medical technicians in action. Five emergency runs in an ambulance also will be taken . Instructor will be Ken Truelove of Midland.

Almond flavor gives spirits special tang

AP Newsfeatures Writer

A bright ornament in the world of spirits is the cordial or liqueur, which is gaining in popularity in the United States. In 1974, Americans consumed nearly 10 million cases of this sweet, aromatic drink.

I was interested to learn that cordials can be traced to the 13th century when alchemists in quest of a liferestoring elixir began flavoring spirits with a wide range of seeds, roots, fruits, berries and flowers, among other things.

As far as I know no magic elixir of life was ever found, but these early experiments did make contributions to medicine. During the 16th and 17th centuries, the flavoring of alcohol with herbs and plants was practiced by some monasteries, but mainly by apothecaries who were descended from the alchemists of the Middle

The nonmedicinal cordial came into its own in the 18th century when raw sugar and fragrant spices from the far corners of the earth began arriving in quantity in Europe and commercial production of liqueurs got under way. Monasteries that had been making herbal elixirs yielded up their secrets and distilleries began refining them for the general public.

For many years crushed almonds have been added to brandy in Italy. But interestingly enough, amaretto itself is produced not from almonds but from the pit of the apricot, which has a bitter-almond flavor. Now amaretto has been given a subtle suggestion of chocolate, producing a cordial that not only makes a good digestif but a fine addition to a dessert like these cookies.

¼ pound blanched almonds, ground

2 egg whites ¼ teaspoon salt

1 cup sugar 1 tablespoon chocolate amaretto blender and set aside. Beat egg whites, with salt added, till frothy. Add sugar, beating in 1 tablespoon at a time. Add chocolate amaretto, continuing to beat. When mixture is stiff, fold in ground almonds. Drop teaspoon of mixture on cookie sheet

Grind blanched almonds in electric lined with unglazed paper, leaving a linch space between each spoonful and each row. Bake 20 minutes in preheated 350-degree oven till cookies which will be served in the are golden brown. Yields about 3 dozen cookies.

Old art of pretzel making gives life new twist

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) Some people eat them with mustard, other folks fancy them with ice cream or cheese spread. They are sold hot and soft directly from the oven or crisp and crunchy in Pretzels, a food that dates back to the fifth century, annually compile sales of well over $160 million wholesale in the United States, according to the National Pretzel Bakers Institute — hardly a crumb for an item regarded as a snack.

One person who can attest to the popularity of protype is Julius Young popularity of pretzels is Julius Young, an enterprising Russian immigrant who parlayed a small stall in Livonia, Mich., into 130 stores selling soft pretzels in shopping malls in 24 states. He has since sold the chain.

Young, born Joseph Jagniatinsky, arrived in this country in 1938. Two years later he changed his name.

"I got tired of spelling Jagniatinsky over the phone," he says. "To tell the truth, I had trouble pronouncing it myself."

After studying psychology at Wayne University in Detroit and serving three years with the infantry in the Pacific, Young sold surplus Army coveralls until the supply of merchandise petered out.

"For want of something better to do
I designed a contraption with a tea bag suspended from a plastic disc that was put over the cup to keep the water hot until the tea was steeped. The industry did not beat a path to my door," he admits.

Young was at a loose end when he went to Atlantic City to compete in a bridge tournament in 1965. (He and his wife are life masters). He saw a line at a boardwalk booth and joined it out of idle curiosity. It was a concession for hot pretzels baked in a

Young invested a few hundred dollars in a pretzel machine and rented a small stall in the shopping mall in Livonia, a suburb of Detroit, calling it Hot Sam at the suggestion of

The stand was opened on March 24, 1966, and instant disaster loomed, he recalls. The first pretzel came out of the machine a sickly white blob in-stead of a golden brown delicacy. "Since I didn't have a razor to cut

Weiser of Boston College, who has written a book on early Christian legends, traces the origin of the pretzel to a monk in northern Italy. To reward pious children at Easter, the monk took strips of dough for Lenten bread, folded them in the shape of the crossed arms of a praying child and sprinkled salt on the dough after it was baked. sleep answers By ELEANOR HOOVER The Los Angeles Times WASHINGTON, D.C. - Some people take naps primarily to make up for lost sleep. But others - the 'appetitive nappers' - do it more or less routinely, whether fatigued or not. They are more likely to nap at times of stress and, according to Wilse Webb of the University of Florida, they derive benefits from the nap that are not necessarily related to the physiological need for

Scientists seek

Napping and other sleep activities were explored by Webb and other researchers at a symposium of the American Psychological Assn., which held its 84th annual convention here recently. The new focus in sleep research is on how much sleep humans actually need — and the best way to obtain it. Previously, sleep research concentrated almost solely on the physiology of sleep. Scientists don't yet have the answers, but they are pursuing some intriguing possibilities, as in the studies of nappers.

Some nappers, said Frederick Evans of the Institute of Pennsylvania Hospital, can more or less "turn it on or off at will." Another psychologist, Harold Williams of the University of Oklahoma, speculated that this talent, which the astronauts possessed, might be related to creativity.

Napping is much more common than previously believed. People of all ages — not just the young and the elderly — take naps during the day.

In one recent study of adults, the symposium was

One reason for the napping studies is to discover whether shorter periods of sleep result in more satisfying and efficient sleep than the traditional eight hours.

Researchers can't answer that, but everybody's needs are not the same.

The true biological day for humans averages out to be about 25.5 hours with wide individual differences. For some people, 28 hours a day is the normal cycle," Webb said.

His findings come from studies where subjects were allowed to sleep and wake at will, free from time and schedule pressures. Webb defines a 'day' as having a waking-sleep ratio of approximately two to one - for example, 16 hours awake, 8 hours asleep.

In Webb's opinion the wide individual variations in sleeping and waking patterns are "individual, functional rhythms which are seldom related to personality factors as such." Webb cited the case of a female in her late teens who came to his sleep laboratory complaining that she normally slept about 20 hours a night unless "rudely awakened." This was clearly a case of what Webb called "a faulty wake-up mechanism," but most idiosyncratic sleep patterns appear to be more or less normal. Thomas Edison for example, regarded nighttime sleep as one of mankind's most extreme forms of Robinson of the over indulgence. In retirement areas, the very nature of the community contributes to alcoholic problems, said Don Hickerson of the Alcoholism Council of Southern Arizona.

"You play bridge, you have a drink. You play golf, you have a drink," he said. "These people have idle time and they generally don't have to drive. They have good incomes and don't have to show up for work or be responsible to anyone."

'There's only so much golf, fishing and traveling you can do," said Emerson Barker, a recovered alcoholic who helped start Alcoholics Anonymous here.

Retirement ends the need to control a drinking problem, Barker said, and many elderly persons drink more because there is no restraint. The common problems of the aged also contribute. specialists say. Boredom, loneliness and illness drive many older persons to drink. "If your spouse dies, you get lonely and turn to booze," Barker said. A study done in New York City in the 1960s found alcoholism among elderly widowers in one area of Manhattan to be

Council now reconsiders curfew for city parks

An ordinance establishing a 10 p.m. curfew on all neighborhood parks except Ulmer is being drawn up by the city legal department at the request of the Midland City Council.

Tuesday, council agreed maybe its former rejection of a curfew proposed by the city parks commission was not the way to solve alleged misuse of Wadley-Barron and other city parks. Council also noted its individual meetings with police chief Wayne Gideon had "not achieved the desired results" because two council members had not had the opportunity to meet with the chief.

Two residents of the Wadley-Barron Park area, Charles Koch of 901 Country Club Drive and Ed Reigle of 900 Country Club Drive, appeared before council and stated that recent publicity regarding alleged activities at the park "had greatly improved the situation."

Koch said the young people using the park "for the proper purposes" were out by 10 p.m. and that there was no need for council to place additional restrictions on use of the park.

Reigle noted that most of the "objectionable" activities occur in the streets surrounding the park, and urged council "to restore the use of the park to the people as a whole and not let a small minority take it over."

Council took note of a "misunderstanding" among some police officers regarding their possible control of certain activities at the park and agreed to discuss this also with the chief.

Council will discuss the curfew ordinance in two weeks.

Council then ratified staff action in efforts to intervene in the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. proposed rate increase.

City Attorney Joe Nuessle told the group that, while some areas of the state would not have a great increase in telephone rates, Midland would see a tremendous jump in its rates, both for personal phones and business phones. Nuessle was authorized to represent the city in participation on a statewide level through the Texas Municipal League and in cooperation with other cities in efforts to intervene in this case.

A tired group of city staff and council members finally called it quits shortly after midnight Tuesday when they'd waded through a 58-item agenda. A total of 10 and one-half hours were required for discussion of the items.

During its lengthy session, council: Approved on second reading annexation of a portion of the Magnatex Corp. property north of Midland Air Park;

Soviets launch manned craft

Soviet spacecraft launched today is on a short mission and does not plan to dock with the Soviet space laboratory already in orbit, one of its cosmonauts

In a television interview taped before the launch, cosmonaut Vladimir Aksenov said the Soyuz-22 is "self-contained craft for the fulfillment of economic tasks."

His mission with cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky is mainly a photographic

The official news agency Tass said Bykovsky, 42, rode Vostok 5 into space in 1963. Tass said Aksenov, 41, had been active in the development of new spacecraft systems and testing them in flight since 1963.

It had been expected that they would link up with Salyut 5, the space laboratory which has been in orbit since June 22. Cosmonauts Boris Volynov and Vitali Zholobov were sent up in Soyuz 21 on July 7 and spent 48 days aboard the space lab performing scientific experiments. They returned to earth on Aug. 24.

Tass said Bykovsky and Aksenov would "check and improve methods and means of studying from outer space geological and geographical characteristics of the earth's surface in the interests of the national

This was the basic mission of the last flight and presumably would be carried out aboard the Salyut station.

Quakes rock Italy

UDINE, Italy (AP) — New ear-thquakes struck northeast Italy today and were felt in wide parts of northern Italy, Austria, Yugoslavia and even in Strasbourg, France. At least five persons were reported dead and dozens were injured.

Police said they had received reports of cars having been buried under landslides but were unable to say whether anyone had been trapped

The tremors, two of which measured more than 6 points on the Richter scale, struck in a quick series before dawn, then resumed again before and after noon. Tens of thousands jumped out of beds running for safety in Udine, Trieste, Venice and Yugoslav Adriatic resorts.

The quakes were felt as far south as Florence and west to Genoa.

The fresh jolts brought down buildings that had been damaged earlier by the some 230 jolts that have hit the Friuli region since the disastrous May 6 quakes.

In Friuli, telephone and electric power lines were cut. Rockslides blocked roads and rail lines, including the line from Udine to the Austrian border. A bridge fell isolating the villages of Camplago and Alesso. The belitower of Maino collapsed. Buildings were reported to have collapsed also in the Yugoslav village of Tolmino.

One of the victims was a man who died of a heart attack at Gorizia, near the Yugoslav border.

Authorities announced they were starting to evacuate residents of the worst-affected area to empty hotels and summer houses in seaside resorts on the Adriatic coast.

Numerous wrongdoings in welfare, chief says

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Commissioner Raymond Vowell says the welfare department uncovers up to 400 cases a month of persons using food stamps illegally, with some even substituting them for money in poker

Vowell told a House subcommittee Tuesday he wants the 1977 legislature to enact laws to punish those who misuse the stamps and to protect "abused, neglected and mistreated"

Vowell said one incident of the misuse of stamps that was not prosecuted, however, occurred as he was stopping for a sandwich at a

He said he noted that a fairly welldressed man had used stamps to buy food, and Vowell took down his car license. An investigation revealed that the man was a part-time preacher and received as a salary whatever was in the collection plate. Occasionally, he said, members of the congregation put in food stamps, and he used them.

"He promised he wouldn't do it anymore, and we didn't bother him," Vowell said.

Some people, however, are "discounting, trafficking and playing poker with them (food stamps)," Vowell said.

Vowell said there are 9,000 Texans over 100 years of age and up to 90,000 who are over 85.

"These people," Vowell said of the elderly "are exploited and misused and need protection from themselves, as well as others."

He told of an incident where 19 old persons in Jefferson County were "being kept in unsanitary and unsightly" housing and "being ripped off of whatever money" they had.

A bill allowing the state welfare department to intervene in such cases failed in the 1975 legislature, when it was pulled off the "local and consent" calendar twice, Vowell said.

Vowell said that when he tried to learn the objections to the bill, a legislator told him, "In West Texas, if people get welfare, they want it called welfare."

Vowell said 100,000 children already are getting protective services, such as foster care.

Vowell said he also would ask the legislature to enact laws that would: Eliminate the one-year statute of limitations on paternity suits.

-Prohibit the transfer of assets from one person to another to qualify for medical assistance, such as was $30,000 to his daughter and divorce his wife to obtain welfare. "The have been a number of other (such cases," Vowell said.

—Provide stiffer penalties welfare fraud.

-Require all welfare fraud cases be tried in Travis (Austin) County. -Provide state subsidies for pe sons who adopt handicapped and emer-tionally disturbed children, because it is "cheaper than keeping them in

-Remove some restriction against political activities by welfard workers to conform with the federa Hatch Act.

-Provide state funds for stat welfare workers or welfare volunteers who are sued in the line of duty, including possible traffic at cidents while transporting welfar

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has been asked by the Justice Department and the Houston Teachers Association (HTA) to halt formation of the proposed Westheimer Independent School District (WISD).

Officials of the commission said the organization is in the midst of its "larges" voter registration drive.

However, Dallas attorney Mike Myers, Connally's administrative assistant, said Connally backed a liquor-by-the-drink proposition in order to correct "the ridiculous private club situation." Myers also

West German election to be close

The Washington Post

WETZLAR, West Germany- "Vote with your head. But don't forget.' West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt told a rally here last week That the heart lies a little to the left of center.

Not long ago, Schmidt probably did not think it would be this close for the left-center coalition government he heads to stay in power.

Since taking over in mid-term after Willy Brandt resigned in May, 1974, the articulate, 57-year-old chancellor has become the dominant political figure in Western Europe.

He is widely credited with steering West Germany through a global recession in better shape than any other major industrial nation. He has attracted more respect in the economic councils of Europe than any post-war chancellor before him.

Furthermore, the man picked by the opposition last year to challenge Schmidt is Helmut Kohl-an amiable but not expecially inspiring 46-year old governor of the state of Rhinland-Palatinate who has never held any federal office.

Yet, with only three weeks before almost 40 million West Germans go to the polls, the race between the "Two Helumts" is too close to call.

Opinion surveys give Schmidt's Social Democrats and the small but vital Free Democratic Party of the ruling coaliton a tiny edge of about one per cent over the rejuvenated conservative forces of Kohl's Christian Democrats and their still more conservative sister party in Bavaria, the Christian Social Union headed by Franz-Josef Strauss.

The difference is within the margin for error, a fact that frustrates Schmidt while it delights and pumps new enthusiasm into what has become a strong campaign by Kohl.

Upon the outcome of the Oct. 3 vote hangs not only the question of who will govern Western Europe's economic giant and strongest military power for the next four years, but also whether West Germany, after seven years of Social Democratic rule: will take a new and more conservative

By most standards, things should not be so close for Schmidt.

The country's economy is growing again. The consumer price increase this year of about 4.6 per cent is the lowest of any nation except Switzerland and is down from the 7.5 per cent peak here in 1973.

Unemployment is down to 940,000 or 4.1 per cent of the work force, a figure as Schmidt stresses well below most other nations and the postwar high of 1.5 million hit here last year. There are; however, a troublesome 100,000 young people under 21 among the unemployed.

West Germany's already powerful Deutschmark has also gained about 8 per cent more in value against many major currencies since January.

Nevertheless; a complex array of factors have made Schmidt, and more specifically his party, vulnerable over the past year, and observers are now intrigued with the question of whether voters will actually turn Schmidt out of office.

Schmidt is clearly on the conservative side of his slightly left-ofcenter party. Thus, the chancellor himself is smack in the middle of West Germany's political spectrum and personally not out of tune with the generally more conservative trend of voters since the recession, nor with many in his own party who have moved to the center.

The Chanceller, according to the polls, also remains more personally popular than Kohl. But Schmidt is also more popular than his own party and in order for him to retain power e must bring his coalition once again nto a parliamentary majority.

The frequently rambunctious Social Democrat left wing, particularly the more extreme elements of the Young Socialists, have kept quiet during the exmpaign, in part due to Shemidt, who puts them down, and in part by on decision to try not to jeopare the election for the party.

be back in full voice after the election. the Polish treaty debate this year. pushing the country toward a brand of Communist East Germany

Thus, while Schmidt has wide appeal in the political center, the opposition strategy is not to allow him to be separated in the eyes of the voters from his party, especially its left

The movement toward the middle in both parties also raises problems for the Free Democrats, who got only 8.4 per cent of the vote in 1972 but are the tail that wags the political dog here. Without them the Social Democrats, who only get about 42 per cent of the vote, could not govern.

Traditionally, the Free Democrats have been the compromise party between the Social Democrats and Christian Democrats. The center, however, is pretty crowded now. Despite some of th rhetoric, there are no great emotional issues this year that sharply divide voters as in 1972 when Willy Brandt's bold "Ostpolitik" policy to improve relations with Eastern Europe renewed the Social Democrat's lease on the chancellery.

Rather, the campaign is more one of attitudes and uncertainties about where this relatively contented society should go now.

'Model Deutschland," the Social Democrat posters proclaim, suggesting that West Germany is a bastion of enlightened social welfare benefits, labor peace and industrial cleverness that is the envy of other nations.

The Christian Democratic posters warn that West Germans must now choose "freedom instead of socialism" before the country is lulled by the Social Democrats into such massive government domination of individual and business life that it will slip subtly all the way into socialism. Both posters are exaggerated, and West Germans seem to sense it.

Although the opposition attacks on a broad front, it has, in fact, refrained from offering any specific example of where it would change things. Both sides in past year have contributed to the expansion of what is now a huge and expensive health, welfare and pension system, and major changes are virtually impossible.

Campaign rhetoric aside, the general platform principles of both sides are hard to tell apart. Kohl is from the moderate wing of the Christian Democrats, perhaps equivalent to a traditional Republican in the United States: One poll last week showed that 78

per cent of the voters thought it would make little or no real difference if Kohl is elected. All of this contributes to Schmidt's problem.

This rather relaxed view of the outcome, however, may be misleading. because Kohl is committed, if elected, to bring into his government as finance minister and deputy chancellor the ultraconservative Strauss and other party leaders such as Karl Carstens and Alfred Dregger, who are also viewed as well to the right of the moderates.

A Kohl victory thus would mean replacing Schmidt with Strauss as West Germany's economic centerpiece. It also raises the question of whether Strauss could successfully push the country into a harder line policy toward detente policies with the East and toward handling terrorism and internal dissent.

Strauss performed well as finance minister during the years of West Germany's Grand Coalition in the late 1960s when there was no opposition, and top Christian Democrat officials claim that the Bavarian is too in-telligent to bring with him to the federal government the same rightwing positions he needs for success at

The tone of detente policies will be set largely by the United States, they add, and no West German administra-tion would put itself into opposition on

Kohl has skillfully exploited fears that point. Furthermore, Kohl has that the Social Democrat's young lef- shown himself able to override tists and older socialsit reformers will Strauss when necessary, such as in

Nevertheless, the prospect of socialism somehow similar to that in Strauss and other strong conservatives in the Kohl cabinet could give a much more dramatic right-wing tilt to a new West German government than is now evident when the campaign is viewed as largely a battle between Schmidt and Kohl

Poison control funding sought

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN-A statewide network of 21 local "poison control centers" which helped more than 6,000 Texans last year could be given a major boost if recent budget requests by the Texas Department of Health Resources are approved by the next legislature.

The system has been operating several years as 21 information sources on poisoning in local areas, but so far has always been funded by local sources. But now the depart-ment is asking in their budget for the next biennium for $444,000 to help the centers for a two-year period.

Some of the major advantages that state money would bring would be a greater amount of coordination among the centers, a public information and education program, and a Texas State Poison Referral Center.

Horace Adrian, coordinator of the Poison Control Center Program for the department, said that each center is essentially a local operation, with most operated in or adjacent to the emergency rooms of publicly supported community hospitals.

Poison control centers are located Midland Memorial Hospital, 684-8257, and at Medical Center Hospital in Odessa, 337-7311, ext. 250

However, Adrian says that the department has had an active role in establishing and maintaing the system by acting as a "focal point" for accumulation and distribution of data and educational programs.

Each poison control center serves essentially as an information source with data on potentially toxic substances filed and cross-indexed to the appropriate emergency countermeasures and treatments. The centers serve both the medical community and the general public, with many inquiries handled

But the department explains that the centers have information only on the centers have information only on about 35,000 products, only small portion of the more than 500,000 substances on the market to by. The centers must also be concer ed with poisonous plants, snakebiles and other toxic substances in the inviron-ment, although, Adrian say, these are a much smaller concern than in-gested or inhaled, chemic is and

NEW YORK — The kingdom of Oz was in disarray, with most problems traceable to economic failure. Oz had an unemployment rate of 10 per cent and was suffering from a 12 per cent annual rise in consumer prices. Something had to be done, and the Ozians did it. In the next general election they rejected Wizard I and elected a new man, who promised government-sponsored programs to put people back to work.

His plan was simple enough. Those who couldn't find work in the private sector would get government-created jobs. In this way, Wizard II said, we will get our unemployment rate down to 3 per cent in less than a year.

The plan didn't work out as well as advertised. Hundreds of thousands of the jobless were given work in day care centers, many planted trees, quite a few helped maintain roads, and the like. All of these were worthwhile endeavors, but none added to the stock of goods purchased by the citizenry. At the same time, the now-employed workers received salaries. More money was chasing the same amount of goods.

Now Wizard II tried a new idea. He

Now Wizard II tried a new idea. He opened government factories to produce those good affected by inflation, bread in particular. This well-meaning plan ended in chaos.

The government factories hired-more workers than were needed (for political reasons) and ran at a loss (also for political reasons). Government bread sold for 80 cents a losf, for example, while private bread went for $1. Faced with this sitution, the private firms cut back on production and some went out of business altogether. Thus, the nation, in the end, produced little more bread than before, and less efficiently. Government loans to subsidize bread and ment loans to subsidize bread and other goods added to the inflation, which hit the 35 per cent level the following year. It was then that the people turned Wizard II out of office, and replaced him with Wizard III, who promised to end inflation. His plan was simple enough. Wage and price controls were the answer. And for a while the program seemed to work. But the government couldn't control the prices of raw materials, which continued to spiral. Manufac-turers could not make profits on goods sold under these conditions. Some went out of business.

Others found ways around the laws, while strong unions and manufac-turers associations were able to win 'special adjustments" and considerations. A huge black market developed, and in some areas barter replaced the money economy. Wixard III bragged that bread now cost 50 cents a loaf. The trouble was, no store carried bread (it could be obtained on the black market, however, for $1.50 a loaf). It was then the people turned Wiard III out of office and replaced him with Wizard IV.

The new man was rather odd. All he did was end controls and curtail government programs. Then he went off for a while and concentrated on golf and tennis, occasionally interrup-ting his play to give inspirational what happened next was very strange. The price of labor declined when the minimum wage law was repealed. Feaful of losing their positions, many workers became more productive, and this led to higher profits. Interest rates declined, since the government to leavest had to so to the government no longer had to go to the market for loans. Wigard IV had no new programs to fund, and so government borrowings also declined. All of this helped young people who needed mortgates to buy houses and those who wanted loans for autos and other large consumer purchases. Housing and auto sales began to rise, and the companies in the two industries advertised for additional workers.

The decline in unit costs resulted in

The decline in unit costs resulted in price wars. Within a few months the markets were saturated with more goods than there were purchasers. Prices declined steadly, so that bread once again was selling for 40 cents a loaf—and this time it was available.

loaf — and this time it was available.

Lower prices helped spur consumption, and this in turn resulted in increased production. The factories hired more workers, who now had more disposable income, and then the process repeated itself, as the economy spiraled upward. Within two years inflation had come to a near halt, and unemployment figures.

rejection of Wizard IV and his replacement by a man who would get the country moving again — no direction was specified. They won, and in the process made the restoration of Wizard I possible.

Wild geese finding medical aid, refuge

LOVELOCK, Nev. (AP) — Bill Milich operates a home for wayward and handicapped geese.

Those big, graceful Canadian honkers fleeing the cold climes stop on southern treks to rest for a while or to spend the winter on Milich's familiar need.

to spend the winter on Milich's familiar pond.

They have a better chance there than they would if they were flying in front of the sights on his favorite 16-gauge shotgum.

Milich has been mothering geese for years. Come fall, the honkers move southward through the spacious valleys of Pershing County and alight on the Milich property. He often feeds them on his front lawn.

"There are times when maybe 400 geese will fly over here," he said, waving his arm to the sky. "People stop on Highway 80 and cause traffic jams just to eatch the birds."

Milich is a sportsman — a conservationist first and one of the state's most highly touted geese hunters second. He has a federal Fish and Wildlife license to raise the henkers and some other game birds. But his favorite is the goose.

other game birds. But his favorite is the goose.

Why does a hunter spend as much time as Milich does hunting fowl, then take the time and care to raise them?

"It's good for the hunters out there and good for the geese. It keeps up the population. I raise about 100 a year and sell them or give them away for more breeding," he said.

Milich got started on his goose farm by bringing back crippled geese from hunting trips, nursing them to health and then keeping them for breeding. Some of the geese on his pond can fly but most can't because he's clipped their wings.

He began his orphanage in 1944.
"I pushed the Department of Fish and Game into letting me get this thing started and I've been fighting with them ever since," Milich said. "I got so mad at their policies one year I

That usually results in a few more cripples and more problems for the former county commissioner. He's well known in Lovelock, both for his county service and his goese.

"I've killed more goese than anyone in this state," said Milich. "I've taught people how to hunt them. Before I came around, I don't think there were many good goese hunters in this area. Most people don't realize how fast they move and how big they are, so naturally people shoot at them from too far away. That leaves cripples and I find them and bring them back here."

Milich has killed many of the beautiful birds and released perhaps 2,500 in his 30-year avocation. He still keeps up nests and sees that untended eggs are hatched by stray ducks or a bunch of bantam hems he keeps as surrogate mothers for the goese.

nation's searches take place in California, which had 65 search missions in 1965, said Civil Air Patrol officer Frank Burnham of Los Angeles. California has 17 per cent of the nation's private aircraft and six of the 10 busiest airports.

Most of the planes missing over Michigan and Florida presumably sank in water. In the West many missing aircraft are probably sitting on mountain-sides, not in plain sight but not necessarily lost forever.

Some of those planes in the mountains turn up years later, perhaps spotted by a hunter or

The aircraft apparently broke up badly upon hitting a mountain in Southern California and the wreckage fell into cre-vasses where it couldn't be seen. Heavy snows of a couple of years ago apparently shifted the wreckage or the rocks, and the plane was visible last year.

Massive program predicted

TULSA, Okla.-The oil industry is set to take off on a massive exploration, drilling, production and refining program in the United States and abroad, an industry magazine predicted

The Oil Daily, in a story noting its 25th anniversary, listed several reasons for the bright outlook.

'The U.S. economy is good, with a favorable future," it said "A newly-elected president will be able to take positve steps to ease the coming energy crunch from pent-up demand. "Drilling on the outer continental shelf will start in the very near future, following the current $1.2 billion bids for East Coast sites."

The magazine, in a release here, predicted there will be " more practical consideration of objections by environmentalists.

The public, which has cut back on driving, home heating and other forms of energy conservation, is becoming impatient and will make its voice heard in Congress for more energy and will be less preoccupied with restricting the growth of oil com-panies, drilling offshore and building refineries," the magazine said.

"On the other hand, public concern about nuclear power will continue and probably increase."

Exxon pays huge pollution penalty

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Exxon Corp. has paid a civil henalty of $100,000 for discharging polluted water from an oil-drilling operation into the Beaufort Sea in northern Alaska.

Justice Department attorneys said Tuesday it is the largest penalty levied against a corporation for violating a 4-year-old law prohibiting such discharges without a federal permit.

The discharge occurred over 10 days in June and July 1975 on Flagman Island, a site on the Alaskan North Slope where Exxon has been drilling an eploratory well.

A mud pit near the oil rig was partly drained, dumping 540,000 gallons of water containing pollutants into the Beaufort Sea. Justice Department attorneys said it was believed that quantities of mud and oil also were discharged into the sea, but Exxon denied that and a settlement with the company specified only that polluted water was discharged.

The discharge was noticed by an employe of a drilling company, who reported it to the Alaska Department of Ecology, which notified the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

On Sept. 1, the Justice Department

filed a civil suit seeking penalties of $10,000 a day for each day of the discharge. On the same day, the Department and Exxon jointly filed in U.S. District Court an agreement in which the corporation agreed to pay a $100,000 civil fine.

According to lawyers in the Department's Land and Natural Resources Division, the penalty is the stiffest levied under 1972 amendments to the Water Pollution Control Act. The amendments allow discharges of pollutants only with a permit.

Part of the settlement with Exxon requires the company to obtain permits from the Environmental Protection Agency for any future discharges into U.S. navigable

A spokesman for Exxon in Houston said that the large pit adjacent to the drilling rig had to be drained "to avoid an emergency.

The spokesman, Clay Hooper, said the pit had filled up with water from thawing snow and ice in June 1975. The water level of the pit had to be lowered to prevent water from overflowing into the drilling hole, he said. "There were no indications of any harm to wildlife and fish."

No. 15-1 Wire Fence Canyon Federal, in Duchesne County, flowed 951,000 cubic feet of gas per day from a zone between 315-387 feet, and 756,000 cubic feet of gas per day, from a second interval between 3,975-4,015 feet. Both are in the Green River formation.

The test is bottomed at 4,757 feet and operator is preparing to wash over a fish before drilling ahead on a 5,150-foot contract.

The strike is eight miles from the nearest Green River production and 12 miles north of the nearest gas production.

The national swine flue immunization program will "cost a lot more in terms of manhours and actual dollars" because of the delay across the country in delivery of the Federal health officials predicted in June that 100 millions doses would be ready in September, but Berry said the first shipment will arrive here between Oct. 1 and 15.

Two Connecticut residents were injured in a two-car accident at the intersection of FM 715 and the north service road of Interstate 20 late Tuesday morning

Reported in satisfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospital today are Marianne L. Wagner, 6l, and John Wagner, 62, both of Suffield, Conn.

Mrs. Wagner was westbound on the I-20 service road and a car driven by Herman Walters, Jr., of 9105 Connel was northbound on FM 715 when the accident occurred, city police said.

Fort said all states except Vermoni plus more than 47 foreign countries have had visitor representation.

"July was our best month, with 4,169 persons viewing the exhibits,"

Financial figures for the museum are on a calendar year basis, but thus far in 1976 about 30 per cent of museum operating expenses are being raised through admissions fees, gift shop fees and auditorium rentals,

Fort said. The non-profit museum is beginning a membership campaign by which it hopes to raise a minimum of $140,000 to fill the remaining "income gap." The unusual museum, with its Disney-type exhibits, outstanding paintings and extensive audio-visual displays, has earned wide publicity.

Fort said that publications issued by Gulf Oil, Exxon, Northern Natural Gas, Cosden, El Paso Natural and other companies have done outstanding jobs in featuring the museum

Japanese links PCBs to cancer

The MidLand REPORTER-TELEGRAM, WED., SEPT. I

COLD SPRING HARBOR, N.Y. —
A toxic industrial chemical that recently was found in the milk of 65 of 67 tested American nursing mothers was linked to liver cancer in humans Sunday by a leading Japanese scientist.

The chemical, polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), is believed to be present in the fatty tissue of nearly every person in the United States, Japan and possibly other industrialized countries.

The association of PCBs with human liver cancer — which is always fatal generally within a year — developed from an episode in which about 1,000 persons in Yusho, Japan, over a period of a few weeks in 1968 ate rice oil accidentally contaminated with a total of 0.5 to 6.0 grams of PCBs.

Varying but apparently extremely high amounts of PCBs ingested persisted in several of the victims' bodies. Many still report fatigue, headaches, fever, cough, numbness in the limbs, severe skin eruptions, and digestive and menstrual disorders.

Some infants born to victims had PCBs in their tissues at birth, and also had severe skin discolorations.

PCBs, extremely stable chemicals, are used in electrical equipment, paints, printing ink, adhesives and other products. They have been used widely for 45 years but were not regarded as environmental contaminants until 1966.

Dr. Tjkeshi Hirayama, a specialist in tracing the causes of human disease at the National Cancer Center Research Institute in Tokyo, told an international conference on cancer here that five of the Yusho victims died of liver cancer within five years after eating the contaminanted cooking oil. This figures out to a rate of 500 per 100,000, compared with the expected rate of 31 per 100,000.

Hirayama, in an interview later, said that the association between PCBs and liver cancer was definite in two cases and possible or probably in the remaining three. The two definite cases along translate into a rate six times higher than normal, while all five cases translate into a 16-fold higher incidence, he said.

Hirayama's presentation followed a report by pathologist James R. Allen of the University of Wisconsin, who warned that "any level" of human exposure to PCBs "may be injurious to human health."

The Yusho rates — reinforced by data on brain changes in monkeys and other adverse effects in animals cited by Allen — suggest a "high prossibility" that PCBs caused the liver cancers, Hirayama said.

As for the hundreds of millions of persons who have ingested much smaller amounts of PCBs, mainly in their food, Hirayama said, "I am concerned about the implications for people everywhere ...There is no question the problem is serious."

question the problem is serious."

Although Hirayama previously had reported the liver cancer risk calculations in Japan, they came as a surprise to several attending scientists who specialize in causes of environmental cancer.

Hirayama's disclosure "is one of the most worrisome sets of data that we have recently seen," said Dr. Irving J. Selikoff of the Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York City.

The Environmental Protection Agency recently reported that PCBs had been found in tests of milk of mothers who live in 10 states. EPA and Department of Health, Education and Welfare officials have set Sept. 23 for a meeting with obstetricians and pediatricians about how to advise mothers about breast feeding.

The concentration of PCBs in the mothers' milk fat were highest, 10.6 parts per million, in a Michigan woman, while it averaged 1.4 ppm in 18 Virginia women. Overall, the average was 1.7 ppm.

The temporary maximum allowed by the Food and Drug Administration is 0.2 ppm for infant and junior food, but is 2.5 ppm for cow's milk on grocer's shelves.

In recent studies reported by pathologist Allen, female monkeys that consumed PCBs at a rate of 2.5 ppm had much higher concentrations—up to 16 ppm—in their milk fat. Exposed to this "severe toxicity," Allen said, their breast-fed infants developed skin discoloration, acne, loss of eyelashes, and swelling and congestion of the eyelids.

After Mao's death the Schlesinger party at first was told by the Foreign Ministry that it would not be able to complete the planned trip. But the ministry reversed itself Sunday and arranged for the party to fly Tuesday to Kweilin and remain there through the seven-day period of mourning for Mao, when no traveling by foreigners is to be allowed. Schlesinger visit to China has special meaning

The Schlesinger party has been shown a number of military activities: an exhibition of how tunnels are used in guerrilla warfare, of mock tank warfare in which the tank is demolished by a soldier running up the tank and placing an "explosive package" on it (the term "Molotov cocktail" is not in favor here), demonstrations of how to rig a mine to explode when an enemy soldier opens a chicken coop, and of infantry troops going at each other with pugil sticks.

The U.S. party includes Bing West, a professor at the Naval War College; Richard Perle, an aide to Sen. Henry Luttwak, of the Johns Hopkins Center of Foreign Policy Research, and William Whitson, of the Congressional Reference Service's foreign affairs

All along the journey the American military experts have been told that "weapons are not decisive, people are." The Chinese believe that their greatest secret weapon is the spirit of their people.

Tunnels? Sticks? Mines in a chicken coop? Hand-to-hand warfare with a tank? Spirit? This, to oppose a supermassive super-power like the Soviet remember that all the supersophisticated American weaponry proved insufficient when the U.S. ran up against the "little men in black pajamas" in Vietnam. The Americans know it, and the Chinese know. The Chinese also want to make absolutely sure that the Russians know it. So the Soviet Union is the common link in this visit. Can the Chinese stand up to the Soviets?

Maybe. And maybe is probably a good enough answer these days for the U.S. That the Chinese foot soldiers in sneakers could pin down 1 million Soviet troops in Siberia would be just fine with Washington.

Probably not. What the theoreticians call "parallelism" can be encouraged, but it probably ends there. The Chinese do what they have to do and so do the Americans. But both will acknowledge being temporary stockholders in the same enterprise.

Can Americans and Chinese reconcile all their earlier differences? Not really. At the 3d Garrison Division the other day the Chinese commander giving the briefing mentioned that his division fought in North Korea in 1950 "against" American aggression," and that they 'killed 10,000 enemy troops."

Schlesinger's first comment when his turn came to speak was to tell his host that "his remarks were not in keeping with the historical record,' and that, moreover, he had "strained the rules of hospitality.'

The spat ended before it began when the Chinese translator softened the tenor of Schlesinger's response.

Stock prices rebound

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rebounded from an early decline today in an upswing attributed to technical forces within the market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, off 3 points in the early going, was up 1.99 at 980.63 by noontime on Wall Street.

Declines outnumbered advances by about a 6-5 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, but the spread had shrunk from nearly 2 to 1 earlier.

As expected, the United Auto Workers called a nationwide strike against Ford Motor Co. Tuesday evening with contract negotiations deadlocked. But traders began doing some buying at mid-morning, apparently convinced that the market had taken the strike into account with the 9.74-point decline in the Dow Monday and Tuesay.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .07 to 55.61. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .16 at 102.17.

Army to open squirrel 'war'

WASHINGTON — The Army opens its offensive this week against 10 million California ground squirrels and their fleas for fear either may give bubonic plague to people at the Ford Ord military complex near Monterey, Calif.

To the relief of several environmental groups which contend it would be premature to resort to allout warfare because nobody there has yet gotten plague, it will be a limited campaign — at least until Instead of attacking squirrels with the lethal Compound 1080 — which the National Audubon Society argues would kill other animals as well — the Army for the moment will settle for a milder type of poison used against rats. Victor V. Veysey, an assistant Army secretary who is the Pentagon's strategist for the spring offensive, said that he had been advised to mobilize the Nation's unwanted cats rather than wage chemical Veysey, assistant secretary of the Army for civil works, said he received the cat advice from a San Francisco caller who made an earnest argument. The weapon the Army will use in this first phase of the squirrel war, Veysey said, is grain baited with the poison diaphacione. The poison usually does not kill a squirrel until it has returned to its burrow - thus minimizing the risk of other animals ingesting it if they eat a squirrel, according to Army specialists. This part of the campaign is expected to open at Ford Ord The fleas — up to 238 on each squirrel, according to the Army - will be attacked by dusting squirrel burrows with a powder called carbaryl. Environmental groups — including the Defenders of Wildlife, National Audubon Society and Sierra Club — already have gone to battle stations to stop the use of Compound 1080. They contend that the poison not only causes a horribly painful death, but amounts to overkill because 1080 remains lethal as one animal eats another.

The Army has not decided whether to use 1080, Veysey stressed. The Interior Department has said zinc phosphide - which is not passed along like 1080 - might do the job.

Before the Army escalates its anti-squirrel effort above the current baiting of grain, Veysey said, it will file an environmental impact statement on its

A 1972 executive order banned the use of poisons on public lands which have a so-called "secondary" effect - unless there is an emergency situation.

Army specialists contend they do have an emergency situation on their hands because the squirrel population has increased from one million to 10 million since 1972 when the ban went into effect. Army health leaders fear the squrrels and their fleas may give people in the Fort Ord area bubonic plague - once a fearsome disease called "black death" but one that can be cured with anti-biotics if diagnosed in

The full battle will be joined in the spring. Veysey said, because there is not enough time for an all-out campaign before the squirrels go into hibernation. Neither the Defense Department nor the Interior Department is eager to take the lead in any mass killing of squirrels. Veysey recently told Interior that his lawyers had concluded that Interior is responsible for control of ground squirrels on federal lands not the Army. A few days ago, Nathaniel P. Reed, assistant secretary of the Interior for fish, wildlife and parks, wrote a Dear Vie' letter to Veysey in which he said his department lawyers took the opposite view The Justice Department will have to settle that argument, Veysey said.

In the meantime, the Army is drawing up the battle plan which the Air Force and Navy are expected to follow at installations in California and

New Mexico that are overrun by squirrels. The ground squirrels — and their fleas — that the Army plans to attack are scurrying around 125,000 acres of the Ford Ord complex near Monterey which includes Hunger Liggett Military Reservation and Camp Roberts. About 20,000 military people and 3,000 civilians work at the complex.

House approves mining curbs in national parks

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - The House voted 352 to 9 Tuesday to sharply curtail strip mining in picturesque Death Valley National Monument.

The bill, similar to one passed by the Senate, also restricts mining in five other units of the national park system.

They are Glacier Bay National Monument, Alaska; Mt. McKinley National Park, Alaska; Crater Lake National Park, Ore.; Coronado National Memorial, Ariz., and Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument, Ariz. House and Senate conferees are expected to work out differences in the bills and send a compromise measure to the White House before Congress adjourns Oct. 2. President Ford is expected to sign it. Both the House and Senate bills would permanently bar the staking of any new mining claim in the six national preserves. An amendment by Rep. Don Young (R-Alaska) to exclude the westernmost portion of Glacier Bay National Monument from the ban was soundly defeated.

Under the Senate bill, mining at Death Valley, Organ Pipe Cactus and Mt. McKinley that began prior to last Sept. 15 could proceed on a limited basis. Digging could continue below ground level but not on

Powell denies McCarthy's bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell refused late Tuesday to stay an order by a three-judge federal court panel in Austin, Tex., that denied former Sen. Eugene McCarthy a place on the Texas ballot as an independent candidate for president.

Powell said he consulted with six of his eight fellow justices and all said they would concur with his decijustices and all said they would concur with his decision not to stay the order.

He said the Supreme Court does not have jurisdiction in McCarthy's suit, but the candidate could go to a circuit court of appeals to seek relief.

The federal judges in Texas had agreed with McCarthy that a portion of the Texas Election Code which does not allow independent candidates to run for president and vice president is unconstitutional.

But the panel said McCarthy had waited too long to get on the ballot by gathering signatures on petitions, and could only run a write-in campaign in Texas.

The University of Texas faculty representative for Southwest Conference affairs says the conference may have to keep two sets of minutes as a result of an attorney general's opinion.

Midland and Lubbock Monterey clash in a big headliner in Memorial Stadium Friday in a game of Class AAAA unbeaten schoolboy football

Last week, Midland disposed of a good El Paso Eastwood team, 21-6 and Monterey was handing Wichita Falls Rider its second straight loss, 20-15, to set up the big battle in the

Going into the third weekend of football here are this week's picks:

MIDLAND HIGH got its offense going against Eastwood and has played well in recent years against Monterey. The Purple Pack will chalk up victory No. 3 on the season to send them into the District 5-4A opener with Permian on Oct. 1, with an umblemished record. Midland 20,

Bulldogs lose end David Isby with injury

Midland High's starting split end David Isby will be out of action for at least six weeks with a broken thumb, coach Jerry Hopkins reported Tuesday night at the Midland booster get together in the school cafeteria.

Isby, who was on the receiving end of a 25-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Kevin Widner in last week's 21-6 Bulldog win over El Paso Eastwood, injured the thumb on a pass route in the third quarter of the contest, and underwent minor surgery earlier this week.

Hopkins expressed concern to the boosters about his team's eflectiveness without Isby "David meant a lot to our offense," the first year mentor explained. "He had deceiving speed, and he was the man we counted on when Kevin went to the air. We're gonna miss him.

Some much more pleasant highlights of Tuesday's meeting was the introduction of Midland High's varsity and junior varsity girls' volleyball teams, a scouting report on Lubbock Monterey, the Bulldog's grid opponent this Friday, and the game film of the Midland-Eastwood contest.

Coach Jo Ann Martin introduced her volleyball units, and they received an enthusiastic reception from the crowd. The varsity still sports an unblemished record, and Martin expressed confidence that her team will be a definite threat when Stock Car Racing they begin district play next week.

Assistant football coach Stan Moore, who scouted Lubbock Monminutes of play, gave a brief report on which should be great the Plainsmen.

"They're a lot better team than they were a year ago," Moore said. Midland beat Monterey 28-14 last season. "They are primarily a running team, but they can throw when they have to."

Oakland is running out of time in race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With time running out and a stalemate developing in the American League West, the pressure rests squarely with the Oakland A's, and Manager Chuck Tanner is beginning to feel it.

"Wejust have to win," Tanner said after splitting a pair Tuesday with Minnesota-winning the first game 4-2 and losing the nightcap 4-3. "I don't know what Kansas City is doing but we have to win.

Tanner should know what the AL West-leading Royals are doing—the same thing as his second-place A's. Starting last week, the two teams have been pacing each other, almost stepfor-step.

A week ago today, Kansas lost to California, and Oakland lost to Chicago. On Thursday, both teams won; on Friday, they both lost. Both teams again won on Saturday and Sunday, On Monday, Oakland was rained out, and Kansas City split a pair with Chicago. The Orioles scored four runs in the seventh inning, two on Detroit right fielder Rusty Staub's throwing error after he caught a bases-loaded foul fly, and came back from a 6-0 deficit to beat the Tigers.

Pitt coach undecided on starter

PITTSBURGH (AP) - University of Pittsburgh Coach Johnny Majors has inserted a little mystery into preparations for his football team's weekend visit to Georgia Tech.

Majors isn't ready to say whether Robert Haygood or Matt Cavenaugh will start at quarterback.

One starter is certain as Majors' club puts its third place national ranking on the line. Tony Dorsett will be in the backfield. Majors hopes his Panthers will use last week's victory over Notre Dame as a foundation-not a cushion. "It's something to build on, not to sit on," Majors said Tuesday. Pitt was ranked ninth before its 31-

10 victory over Notre Dame. After a loss to South Carolina last week. Georgia Tech remains unranked. "Their situation will be like ours was going into the Notre Dame game," Majors said. "They'll know what it means to win a big game. In fact, from now on, everybody will be shooting at us."

Everybody will likely be working to stop Dorsett, too. The Heisman Trophy canidate ran for 181 yards against the Fighting Irish and Georgia Tech Coach Pepper Rodgers had only praise for the Pitt running

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

NEW YORK (AP) - Like the rich old grad once told the poor old coach,

"We're with you...win or tie." Here then are some thoughts on wins and ties...courtesy of some winners and tie-ers.

Ron Meyer of Southern Methodist, a 34-14 winner over Texas Christian: "We buried TCU in the grave at 7:30, p.m., Sunday. You can only enjoy a victory a sweet 24 hours.'

Tom Osborne of Nebraska, a 6-6 tie against Louisiana State: "A tie at this stage might look discouraging, but at the end of the year a tie in the first game will look much better than a loss.

So will a win in the second game. Nebraska's upcoming opponent in their home opener is none other than Indiana, losers of last week's Upset Special, as well as this week's nonupset special...Nebraska 38-0.

Last week's score was 37 right, 25 wrong and two ties for a .597 percentage. The offense was pretty good but the defense needs shoring up and the alumni are getting decidedly restless.

Southern Methodist at Alabama Meyer told the Mustangs early in the week "not to board the plane if they don't feel we can beat Alabama. We're going down there with the sole idea of beating Alabama, not just looking good. We're going to beat Alabama." Only trouble is the last time Bear Bryant lost two regularseason games, much less two in a row, was in 1970...Alabama 35-7. Ohio State at Penn State: Two of the great names in football get together for only the sixth time with Ohio State

Saban angry with kicker

BUFFALO (AP) - Coach Lou Saban of the Buffalo Bills, angered by John Leypoldt's three missed field goals against the Miami Dolphins, fired him and was set today to try out up to a dozen booters. "I've had calls from all over the country asking for a chance to take over," Saban said Tuesday night, only hours after he axed Leypoldt, who had kicked 74 three-pointers in his six seasons with the Bills.

"If none of them come through," Saban said. "I'll use Marv Bateman Sunday against Houston.' He said Bateman, the Bills' punter can kick off and boot field goals. Leypoldt's first attempt against the Dolphins, a 30-21 winner in Monday night's National Football League seasonopener, was blocked. He had two other tries, from 39 and 27 yards, and both were wide right.

"I guess I'm just pressing, Leypoldt said after the game. "I'm pressing now and I don't know why." Leypoldt hadn't made a field goal since the first game of the six-game preseason.

Saban said that if one of the tryouts looked good "we'll keep him." He said most, whose names he declined to reveal, had little ex-

'Some were very good in college, but they were released in other teams' training camps," he said. He said Dan Hunter, formerly with the Hamilton Tiger Cats of the Canadian Football League was not among the dozen aspirants.

Hunter was with Buffalo most of the reseason, but was cut. He fared fairly well on extra points and shortrange field goals, but was weak on kickoffs.

Leypoldt, who quit a job with a power company to sign with the Bills as a free agent, was strong on kickoffs; often booting the ball out of the end zone. Minutes after the Monday night game, Saban said, "There's no question about it. The three missed field goals did it."

Saban noted that linebacker Merv Krakau, filling in for the injured Jim Braxton as a fieldgoal blocker, failed to pick up Miami's Bryan Salter and Salter blocked Leypold'ts first fieldBASEBALL STANDINGS #15 — 549 919 507 1519 472 2019 465 2119 441 25 Cincinnati Los Angeles Houston San Diego San Francisco Atlanta Tuesday's Games Oskland 4-3. Trojan coach still sees bright spots

LOS ANGELES (AP) - New University of Southern California football Coach John Robinson says his friends were quick to console him after his Trojans suffered a 46-25 humbling at the hands of Missouri.

Robinson said a number of people, including his former boss at Oakland, Raiders Coach John Madden, called

"And they all finally got around to saying 'What the hell's wrong with you,' '' Robinson recalled with a grin

Robinson, although predictably unhappy with the onesided loss in his first game at the Trojans' helm. nevertheless saw some good things in his team's play Saturday.

He said he was particularly pleased with the passing of quarterback Vince Evans and the running of Ricky Bell. "I really believe Vince played very effectively," Robinson remarked. "He completed 10 of 18 passes, and had no interceptions.' Well,it may not have looked it," Robinson said, "but I still expect our defense to be one of our strong points. Robinson said perhaps the polls and the press - both of which in the preseason rated USC among the nation's top teams - made the Trojans overconfident.

"Perhaps external pressures - the polls, the people saying we were great - seduced us before and that's why we lost," Robinson said.

Pirates lose second straight to New York

By The Associated Press

In May, when everybody is a contender, a loss is just a number. But in September, when just a chosen few are contenders, a loss can be a "Time's running out on us," said Pittsburgh's Jim Rooker after the second-place Pirates were knocked off by the New York Mets for the second day in a row.

The Mets won 4-3 with a pair of runs in the ninth inning, sending the Pirates to their fourth defeat in 19 games. The last time the Pirates lost twice in a row was Aug. 20-21.

And this was not the best time for the Pirates to turn cold, especially since the Phillies' flame seems to be rekindled. The Phillies beat Montreal 3-2 for their third straight victory after losing 13 out of 15. The last time the Phillies won three straight was Aug. 22-24.

Tony Taylor, in his 40th September, stroked an important single in the three-run fifth inning that carried Philadelphia over Montreal.

The Phillies, fading fast just three days ago, now hold a sixgame edge over Pittsburgh in the race for the National League East title. The two Pennsylvania rivals open a twogame set in Philadelphia tonight.

"Our hands are full, but they've been full all year," said Rooker, who yielded Ed Kranepool's run-scoring single and Bud Harrelson's RBI grounder in the ninth. "When you go into the ninth with a one-run lead, that's the type of game you have to win," said Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh.

Elsewhere in the NL, Los Angeles blanked Cincinnati 9-0; San Francisco nipped San Diego 7-6; the Chicago Cubs beat St. Louis 6-3, and Houston and Atlanta split a doubleheader, each team taking a 4-3 victory. Taylor was a 28-year-old regular 12 years ago when the Phillies blew a big lead and the NL pennant. In perhaps his last time around, he's doing what he can to get into the first World Series of his 18-year major league

"Don't bring up my age," said Taylor, the Ben Franklin of Philadelphia's geriatric sports set. 'My age has nothing to do with it.'' Woodie Fryman, a 36-year-old left-hander who beat Pittsburgh twice in the past 10 days, walked Greg Luzinski and Dick Allen starting the fifth. Ollie Brown singled, loading the bases, and Bob Boone's grounder cored the first run. of scouting experience a territorial scout in Taylor was sent to bat for with the California Washington and Oregon. scored the first run.

Philadelphia pitcher Jim Lonborg, and he came through with a single between short and third to score the tying run. Hot-hitting Garry Maddox then extended his hitting streak to 10 games with his game-winning double.

"I'm not supposed to get a hit off him (Fryman)," said Taylor, who is 5-for-18 this season. "He told me I'd never get another hit off him, and I believed it. "I hit a pitch I didn't expect. He usually smokes me. I never expect him to throw a slider, but he did." Dodgers 9, Reds 0 constitutes peace is a pinhead on which many statesmen have danced. Whatever the case one or the other appears to be prevailing in most of the Middle East — and the calm itself is almost unsettling.

Aug. 31, the first anniversary of the Israeli-Egyptian interim agreement to neutralize a part of the Sinai, slipped by without much fanfare. Israel is so calm that it is actually taking a "vacation" one of its statesmen said recently.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt thundered out about Israel's "illusions of superiority" and said that it "needed a new lesson" at the conference of socalled unaligned nations in Sri Lanka recently. But at the same time he was moving his troops from the Israeli to the Syrian border.

And it is evident now, beyond doubt, that Syria intervened in behalf of besieged Christians in Lebanon in order to tame the Palestinians and thus reduce tensions in the Golan Heights region. Syrian President Hafez Assad does not appear to be eager to permit the leftists and strength.

The interesting aspect of the calm is who is most worried about it. Near the head of the class is the bring leverage against Syria to while would help.

Whether the absence of war withdraw from Lebanon so that PLO could regroup.

> And over a week ago the Soviet Union began calling upon Syria publicly to throw its support to its "natural allies" or the Middle East revolutionaries. When Syria ignored a Soviet-Afro-Asian Committee resolution urging her to withdraw troops from Lebanon, the Soviet Union added weight to her first request by repeating it in the official newspaper, Prayda. More recently Moscow threw its full support behind Moamar Khadafy of Libya, the most radical and unpredictable leader in Arabia.

> The Soviet Union's agitation of the Middle East in a relative period of calm when negotiations might begin makes the absence of a major war deceptive.

> The words of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes at the turn of the century come to mind: "Certainty is illusion and repose is not the destiny of man." The lull is the one before the storm.

It is doubtful whether anything could deflect the Soviet Union from what it perceives its national interests are in the Middle East. However, there could be some Palestinian Liberation satisfaction to U.S. negotiators if Organization in Lebanon to regain at the next meeting on detente they asked their Soviet counterparts why it is muddying the waters in the Middle East.

By EDWARD NEILAN Copley News Service

The recent flap over the possibility that the Republic of China has been secretly reprocessing spent nuclear fuel for weaponry underscores a very real problem of modern statecraft.

If a small nation — be it Taiwan, Pakistan, Israel, South Korea, Iran or you name it — suspects it cannot rely on the nations with whom it has treaties in effect, then the natural inclination is to take steps to provide for its own security. That is only common sense.

It should be no great shock to anyone, therefore, if rumors persist that South Korea is exploring ultimate weapons to defend itself in case of abandonment by the United States or if Taiwan is marshaling the technology and the technicians to do likewise in case the much-discussed break in relations with the United States should occur. While we are thinking the unthinkable, it is very, very likely that should the United States renege on its commitments to the Republic of China and then withdraw from South Korea also, Japan would turn to the realities that dictate a more realistic domestic defense posture.

Signing the nuclear nonproliferation treaty is one thing if allies will keep agreements. But how can a nation induced to sign the nonproliferation treaty on the basis of protection under the U.S. nuclear umbrella be expected to behave if the umbrella is withdrawn?

These questions are the kind that make diplomats squirm. They are not part of proper current scenarios and position papers.

It is about time that these questions be dragged out into the full glare of reality. For example, if the United States should abruptly break relations with Taiwan and recognize Peking, at least six nations in Asia could be expected to speed up their own independent defense plans - in some cases including nuclear options.

Until that happens, however, we have the word of our ally on Taiwan that allegations about secret processing of nuclear fuel are groundless. Ding Mou-shih, the astute director-general of the Government Information Office in the Republic of China, said that his nation's nuclear activities are subject to every international regulation criteria that have been devised. In addition to visiting teams from the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), Ding said, "There are surveillance cameras taking pictures of the reactor top and the surface of the storage pool which reveal all operations taking place and make records in a logbook. Allegations about this country or that country cutting corners on nuclear agreements miss the point. As we have seen in India - which pulled the wool over nuclear partner Canada's eyes — nations will do what they must to guarantee their survival. Nothing makes a national government more squeamish than to learn that its main guarantor is thinking of unilaterally abrogating a mutual defense treaty. U.S. authorities must keep this in mind and realize that Northeast Asia's geopolitics are more complicated than they seem at first glance. A wrong move by Washington.

APPALACHIA NIGHTMARE: Strip miners are literally blasting the impoverished residents of Appalachia out of their homes. Walls have been cracked, windows shattered and a child hit by flying rock.

The Federal Bureau of Mines, which is supposed to give some protection to the strip miners' neighbors, has devoted less than one per cent of its budget to this problem.

A study by the Center for Science in the Public Interest charges that the blasting caused "over $200 million damage in 1975 to 10,000 private citizens." Over the past ten years, 75,000 people have been affected and the damage has exceeded $1.5 billion.

The blasting has used almost as much explosive power as was expended per square mile in the Vietnam war. Terrain has been torn up. In some localities, wells have caved in and the water table is falling.

The explosions have also produced serious human problems. A child playing in a yard was hit by flying stone. A woman lost two houses from the erratic vibrations. And it is the victims, not the mine owners, who pay for repairs.

The Bureau of Mines has the power to end some of the devastation by issuing new guidelines for state enforcement agencies. But they plan to wait almost two years before taking Footnote: Mines Bureau Chief Thomas Falkie told our reporter Chris Wright that further study is needed before new regulations can be issued. He said the Center's facts are not well-documented.

INSIDE RPORT:

Columnist describes Jimmy Carter's marred debut

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

PITTSBURGH - Jimmy Carter opened his fall campaign emphasizing the unwanted issue of abortion and the irrelevant issue of Clarence Kelley's valances because of blunders by the campaign organization and his own lack of discipline. Those shortcomings obscured carefully constructed plans for a dramatic contrast: Carter going into the nation's neighborhoods while President Ford hides in the White House. Instead, the overriding portrait of Carter during two days in the critical Northeast was a candidate not fully in control of his campaign and sometimes not of himself. At times - particularly in his visit to Pittsburgh - Carter displayed the superb campaigning style that brought him from obscurity. Nevertheless, this week's performance by candidate and organization hardly pointed to the assured victory once taken for granted.

The fall strategy, worked out by the Carter high command during those long summer weeks in Georgia, was valid. Instead of asking the public to come see him at public rallies, he would go see the public in suitable-fortelevision neighborhood walking tours - the people's candidate, contrasting with the secluded President. Simultaneously, Carter would arrest his leftward drift by moving back toward the center.

To begin with, Carter's Labor Day opening in his Southern heartland was impressive. Trouble started Tuesday when he crossed the Mason Dixon line. A last-minute New York schedule change placed Carter at 7:45 a.m. outside a Manhattan subway stop which, unfortunately, attracts no passengers at that hour. That was his organization's fault. What happened next was his own. Speaking at Brooklyn College, Carter stunned aides by calling FBI Director Kelley "a disgrace" for having government carpenters build two window valances in his home. In fact, Carter told questioning reporters, he would have fired Kelley. No Carter strategy council had discussed Kelley. But Carter, perceiving another Ford administration weak spot, took an approach that distorted his first day's campaigning in the North.

Much worse awaited Carter in Pennsylvania, considered his Northern stronghold. Once again the warpath leading "pro-life" forces. Aggravating matters were blunders trouble was self-induced. Carter's illconceived meeting with the Catholic bishops had aroused anti-abortion forces. Cardinal John Krol, Archbishop of Philadelphia, was on the descending order of damage. (1) cancellation of a Carter event in a Catholic church, producing headlines about abortion; (2) a dreadful walking tour - the presidential candidate wandering through North Philadelphia in desperate search of voters; and (3) a session in a Lutheran church where Carter was the captive of COACT. Attempting to escape from turgid complaints about federal housing practices, Carter lashed out stridently at Republican corruption, Clarence Kelley's valances and even Richard M. Nixon.

The next stop, Scranton, Pa., was a nightmare. The abortion issue once more made headlines when a pro-life demonstration mobbed Carter in front of his hotel. He left at 6:40 a.m. the next day to greet workers at the gates of a Scranton factory only to find nobody there, narrowing Carter's blue eyes and obliterating his smile. Through 13 hours in Scranton (including sleeping time), Carter delivered no speech and personally greeted only a handful of voters.

What saved Pennsylvania from being a disaster and what showed his truly formidable assets as a candidate was his Pittsburgh stop. Set-ting aside harsh anti-Ford rhetoric, he charmed residents of Polish Hill heavily Democratic, totally Polish Catholic, overwhelmingly anti-

Carter also showed his flexibility last week. With polls indicating disapproval of his leftward drift, Carter moved right. Addressing shipyard workers at Groton, Conn., he called for increased naval construction to counter the Soviet threat, never mentioning his proposed $5-7 billion defense cut. He won applause everywhere promising to stop welfare for able-bodied men who refuse to work. Talking with unemployed workers in Scranton, Carter never mentioned the Humphrey-Hawkins jobs bill he had endorsed back in Organizational incompetence that sent Carter wandering through empty streets of Philadelphia and Scranton will presumably be corrected. More worrisome for Democrats is whether their candidate will be repeating his masterful performance of Polish Hill or will lead the campaign into deadend streets of stridency and

Most CBers help; some are nuisances, police say

By CHRIS FRENCH Associated Press Writer

Good neighbors outnumber bad apples on the CB channels, but police say misuse of citizen band airwaves can be annoying — and sometimes deadly.

An Associated Press national survey of state and local police indicates that for the most part the estimated 6 million CBers in this country have been helpful. And the down

Sergio Costa Ribeiro, academic staff coordinator for the vestibular foundation, said, "What is tragic is not so much bad teaching we detect from test results - but no teaching at all." He said test scores show students "are receiving high school degrees without having heard of certain basic facts."

Students from both public and private schools often enroll in "cursinhos" - private classes specifically aimed at getting students through the vestibular.

'The big problem with CBers is overreaction," said David Arnold, a New York State trooper. "They overreact and get all excited in an emergency situation. But I don't think they are a nuisance."

Other law enforcement agencies reported that the CB operators have helped foil burglaries and car breakins, made reports that resulted in the arrest of a man wanted for the slaying of a police officer, the capture of another sought for killing his wife. and helped gather clues in the Cowchilla, Calif., kidnaping of 26 children and their school bus driver.

"It's an absolute asset to law enforcement," said Sheriff Bernard Grysen of Ottawa County, Mich. Grysen said the deputies monitor the CB channels, and there have been numerous cases where citizen band operators have helped in recovering stolen cars and catching traffic violators.

But in Livingston County, Ill., Sammie J. Graham was ticketed on a charge of interfering with a police

"I have a very positive feeling toward the ability of the officer to communicate with the citizen," said Lt. Col. Alton Crystal, assistant chief of the Iowa Highway Patrol. But he said troopers have to be wary of CB reports and make their own cases.

In Idaho recently, a CB operator whose camper-truck was sideswiped by a pickup, broadcast a description. The result was a 75-mile high speed chase which ended when police intervened. The CB chasers were chagrinned to find they had been pursuing the wrong truck. The pickup driver was charitable enough not to press charges, police said.

'We've had a few isolated incidents where they were playing vigilante," said Al Brockway, assistant police chief in Helena, Mont. analysis showed that death rates among those who smoke cigarettes low in tar and nicotine were still far higher than the death rates of those who never smoked regularly.

The findings were based on an analysis of the deaths of one million men and women over a 12-year period and were reported here Tuesday at a meeting on the "Origins of Human Cancer" at the Cold

For purposes of the study, "high" tar-nicotine cigarettes were defined as those containing 25.8 to 35.7 milligrams of tar and 2.0 to 2.7 milligrams of nicotine. "Low" tar-nicotine cigarettes included those with less than 17.6 milligrams of tar and less than 1.2 milligrams of nicotine. "Medium" tar-nicotine smokes were defined as those falling between those two groups.

Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond, who presented the findings, said there had been concern that death rates among smokers of low tar and nicotine cigarettes might increase because they would inhale more deeply and thereby take in more carbon monoxide, carbon dioxide and "secret additives."

The survey showed that lung cancer deaths among smokers of "medium" tar-nicotine cigarettes were 10 per cent fewer than among smokers of high sidue cigarettes. Lung cancer deaths from "low tar-nicotine cigarettes were 26 per cent fewer than among high tar-nicotine cigarette smokers.

Corresponding figures for heart disease deaths were 8 per cent fewer for medium tar-nicotine smokers and 14 per cent fewer for low tar-nicotine

Minicomputers likely in autos

The Los Angeles Times

Barring some unexpected breakthrough in technology, minicomputers are likely to be part of all new cars by 1980-81 to help meet pollution limits and demands for better fuel economy, according to a top executive of American Motors

George E. Brown, AM's executive director of vehicle emissions and safety, said that in order to meet the double goals of economy and pollution control cars of the 1980s will have to make progress in three areas: more control of exhaust gas as it leaves the engine, more precise ignition control, and better control of the fuel and air mixture being burned.

"I'd think microprocessors (miniature digital computers) are probably in the cards in order to help us maintain the pinpoint control in all three areas which will be needed," Brown said in an interview

Federal laws require stricter pollution control in 1979 and 1980 while also demanding across-the-board improvements in fuel economy.

Brown said minicomputers are one of the few currently known ways to meet both standards - "unless we have some oddball breakthrough."

General Motors Corp. recently announced that it would make the first use of a microprocessor aboard a production automobile on some 1977 Oldsmobile Toronados. The small computer device will be used to continually adjust the car's timing for better fuel economy and pollution control, GM said.

GM and the other auto makers are also studying ways to use the com-plicated electronic devices for other purposes on new cars.

The general manager of GM's Oldsmobile divisions says he isn't too forried about the sales impact of the company's new and highly touted smaller "big" cars on the hot-selling Olds Cutlass.

model, has become the No. 1 selling U.S.-built car over the past two years. For 1977, Oldsmobile — like its sister GM divisions — is bringing out new versions of its full-sized cars which have shed up to a foot in length and about 700 pounds in weight.

"Based on our market studies, I don't think the downsizing of the big cars will impact on the Cutlass," Olds General Manager robert J. Cook said at a Los Angeles press conference.

About 85 per cent of Cutlass buyers order the sporty 2-door coupe model while traditional buyers of the fullsized cars want more room and space and therefore order family sedan versions, Cook said.

In response to a question, Cook also said that a new diesel-burning V-8 engine for passenger cars which his division is readying for introduction sometime during the 1978 model year could be utilized on pickup trucks if pollution control restrictions make it impossible to use the powerplant in Congress is considering a change in federal pollution control laws which would ease limits on emissions of nitrogen oxides and permit use of diesel engines in passenger cars.

If the proposed changes are not passed, the engine could be converted for use in light trucks, said Cook, although I'm not sure we (Oldsmobile division) would do it." The Olds unit does not build trucks.

He said "good progress" on the engine had been made, adding that he expects the Olds diesel to show a "significant" fuel economy improvement over comparable gasoline

"Normally, diesel engines are 25 per cent to 30 per cent better on fuel economy than similar gasoline engines, and we expect to be in that range with our V-8," he said.
