Government may force hirings of minorities

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - The Labor Department is considering a regulation that would require companies to train extra women and minority workers as part of an affirmative action program.

A firm might pay the costs of training 15 people although it needed only five new workers. The proposal aims at increasing the pool of skilled women and minority group members in the work force.

The training program is included in one of two alternatives being considered by the Labor Department for its policies concerning government contractors. The first proposal calls for written goals and timetables to increase the hiring of minorities and women. The alternate system calls for hiring and promotion plans, plus the training program.

A training requirement for employers would be a new approach for the Labor Department, which previously concentrated primarily on hiring and promotion. Under Wednesday's proposal, "the contractor does have an obligation..." to

North loop proposal attracts area crowd

By DEBBIE PIERCE

A standing-room-only crowd filled the council chambers at city hall Wednesday night to receive information and provide input on the proposed development of a north arterial loop road around Midland's urbanized area.

Bert Peeples, district administrative engineer for the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation in Odessa, explained that the project would take about eight-and-one-half years from its conception to its completion.

The Texas Highway Commission in Austin will make the final decision on which proposed route the road will follow, and both the commission and the department of highways and public transportation will decide whether the project will be un-

Paul Coleman, highway department district engineer, told the crowd the project was requested by both Midland city and county officials and would be a cooperative effort among the city, the county, the highway department and the Federal Highway Administration.

He said the 17-mile proposed route. called "route A," would extend from the junction of FM 1369 (Holiday Hill Road) and Interstate 20 west of Midland along the western, northern and eastern edge of the city to intersect with I-20 east of Midland.

John Aldridge, highway depart-ment resident engineer from Midland, added that the project would be a four-lane divided road built in various stages. He said two one-way frontage roads would follow the loop road throughout its route. He said access to the loop road would be provided by diamond-type interchanges at various intersections with highway routes and arterial

Aldridge said a minimum of 300 feet right-of-way would be needed for development of the project, which should "be constructed near existing development so it will be used.'

He said all the proposed routes would cost about $40 million to develop fully and would follow Holiday Hill Road. He said route A was the highway department's preferred route, as it is nearer the city and already has some right-of-

Highway department public affairs officer Bill W. Jones said that studies show about 22,000 vehicles per day would use the north loop road by 1995 if traffic and population figures follow their current trends.

Midland County Judge Barbara Culver and Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. both urged construction of the loop road, especially the proposed route A.

Possible Webb closing debated officials are scheduled to meet today with Sen. John Tower (R.-Tex.) and U.S. Air Force officials to discuss the proposed closing of Webb Air Force Civic leaders in Big Spring ex-pressed disappointment Wednesday with an Air Force draft environmental impact statement (EIS) based on the proposed closing of the base. The statement, which also studied Craig Air Force Base, Ala., was filed with the President's Council on Environmental Quality.

The EIS indicates that closure of the base could improve the natural environment but might cause significant socio-economic impact in the areas of unemployment, housing vacancies, school enrollment and loss

Big Spring city leaders, however, said the study did not reach conclusions or take up alternatives suggested by Mayor Wade Choate. Meanwhile Mayor Choate has written to Thomas C. Reed, Secretary of the Air Force, listing areas where the city would be adversely affected by the closure.

In the letter, Choate cites calculations from the Texas Industrial Commission, the University of Texas and the Permian Basin

Regional Planning Commission.
The Air Force EIS estimates that as many as 7,668 persons (military, civilian and their dependents) or about 19.1 per cent of the Howard County population, would be affected by the closure. About 6,239 persons probably would move from the

In matters of employment, the statement predicts that the Howard County unemployment rate of 2.8 per cent would rise to about 12.9 per cent. The unemployment increase would be caused by about 1,065 secondary job losses, about 252 federal civilian base employes, according to the statement.

The closure also would create a decrease in regional output of $49.7 million, or an 11.2 per cent loss in the Howard County current regional output of about $443 million.

In addition, the statement estimates a decrease in Texas state retail sales tax revenues of about $788,151, or about .06 per cent of the total state sales tax collected.

Regional banking and savings deposits of personal income could be reduced by about 16.9 per cent in Howard County, the statement continues. Even contributions to charity would be affected, for Webb Air Force Base, employes contribute about $34,000 each year.

Webb AFB also contributes about enrollment for the Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan school districts. The statement estimates that local private schools could lose a maximum of 43.8 per cent of their total combined enrollment.

In addition, the local medical services may lose as much as $472,510 worth of expected incomes if the base were closed, according to the environmental impact statement.

Webb is an Air Training Command base, primarily used for the training of U.S. and foreign pilots. Alternatives named in the EIS were Columbus Air Force Base, Miss. Laughlin Air Force Base at Del Rio; Reese Air Force Base at Lubbock and Vance Air Force Base, Okla. Each of these bases is an air training command undergraduate pilot training base. Mayor Choate heads a delegation of five other Big Spring officials in Washington studying the EIS. Big Spring Herald Publisher J.

LAMESA - The poster doesn't tell it all.

"This is cotton country," it graphically proclaims.

And, as if that weren't enough by itself, County Agent Lee Roy Colgan and a whole slew of cotton farmers will be somewhere close by to vouch for those four words. The sign is posted in the exhibition barn where agricultural products from Dawson and neighboring counties are being displayed in the four-day Dawson County Fair that winds down Saturday night.

And cotton, though the idol of the rich and the poor who depend on the fruit of the plant for their livelihood and luxuries, is grossly outnumbered at the fair.

Vegetables, from the gumball-size cherry tomatoes to the overblown legof-elephant squash, took up a fair share of the exhibition barn. Still do. And cotton sort of took a side step at the fair, as agricultural judges Sherry Etheredge of Tahoka and Roy Jones

Four Midlanders earn

Merit semifinalist ratings

Four students from Midland and seven from area schools have been named semifinalists in the 1977

National Merit Scholarship Program. They were selected on the basis of their high scores on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. From Midland High School,

Michael L. Mauldin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim A. Mauldin of 1500 Murray St., was selected. Semifinalists from Lee High School are Deborah D. Brotherton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brotherton of 3617 Shandon St.; Darlene K. Dodson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Dodson of 2310 Cimmaron St., and Randall D. Keys, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory J. Keys of 1704 Cessna St. From McCamey, John J. Anglada was named semifinalist. Students on the list from Odessa were Joel M. Rees and Kevin E. Snow, both from Odessa High School, and M. LeAnn Binford, Charles M. Gibbs, P. Beth Turner and Mary M. Walker, all of Permian High School.

To advance to finalist standing, semifinalists must meet requirements that include being fully endorsed and recommended for scholarship consideration by their secondary school principals, presenting school records that sub-stantiate high academic standing and confirming their high qualifying test scores with equivalent scores on a second examination. More than 90 per cent of the semifinalists are expected to qualify as finalists and receive certificates of merit next February.

Merit Scholarship winners will be chosen from among the finalists.

Semifinalists were selected on a proportional basis with each state receiving a share based on the per-centage of the nation's high school graduating senior class.

Government officials discuss Webb closing

Tom Graham, one of the delegates, said Wednesday night that he was disappointed with the EIS. Graham said the six alternatives suggested by Mayor Choate to congressional leaders were not dealt with. Those suggestions, unlike the Air Force proposals, include missions outside of the Air Training Command. Statistical data presented in the statement's comparison of the six bases in "does not support closing Webb," Graham said, adding that the adverse impact on Big Spring would be much worse than at some of the other bases.

Graham also said that two of the Air
Force's original reasons for proposing the closure of Webb had been downplayed in the statement.

for closure were that Webb had only runways rather than three: that its facilities are not up to par with those of other bases; and that urban encroachment has become a problem.

Graham said he saw almost nothing in the statement about urban encroachment and very little to indicate that Webb does does have a facility advantage.

"It makes me think the situation is more political than based on Webb's merits," Graham said. The EIS and its six supporting documents were made available at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

In a press release from the U.S. Air Force, public officials and private citizens were urged to review the EIS and notify the Air Force of to any discrepancies or any new information not considered by the Air Force.

Comments on the statement have been requested from a number of agencies including the Environmental Protections Agency, Housing and Urban Development, Health Education and Welfare and the states of Alabama, Mississippi,

Oklahoma and Texas. Public hearings will be held in all of the areas affected, including the alternative locations, in the near future. The time and place will be announced when available, according to the realease. Citizens, organizations and government agencies may also submit comments concerning the EIS by writing to the Special Assistant for Environmental Quality, SAF/ILE, office of the Secretary of the Air Force, Washington, D.C. 20330.

Trooper needed track shoes

The end of the day for two highway patrolmen was the start of a threehour chase and search involving 25 men and a Department of Public Safety helicopter.

At 4:20 p.m. Wednesday, Trooper
Jim Swain 29, said he clocked an eastbound car on Interstate 20 cruising at 67 miles per hour.

It seemed routine, Swain said, as the driver pulled over about one-quarter mile from Cotton Flat Road. But that changed when the man bolted from the car and began sprinting.

Trooper David Jones, 24, leaped out of the squad car in pursuit, while Swain radioed for assistance, and attempted to follow the chase along attempted to follow the chase along back-roads.

At 7:30 p.m., the fugitive, later identified as Bennie Edward Jackson, 27, of Odessa, "just sort of gave up" when he was found hiding underneath a pick-up truck near a residence in the Cotton Flat Road area.

Jackson was taken to the Ector County Juli and booked on a charge of alleged possession of methamphetamine on an indictment by the Ector County Grand Jury, officials said.

Deadline for receiving comments on the draft statement in Nov. 8. Comments received in public hearings and in writing from individuals and agencies, will be used in preparing a final environmental statement. The final decision to implement or deny the proposed actions will be made after considering the information contained in the final

Warm weather ownplayed in the statement. Primary reasons given last March in West Texas

Summer temperatures are due to linger in the Permian Basin with a forecast from the weatherman of temperatures in the upper 80s Friday.

Wednesday's high was 88 degrees and today's low was 63 degrees. The low tonight is due to be in the mid-60s. Winds should be south and southeasterly at 5 to 10 mph tonight.

Partly cloudy skies are expected through Friday with a 20 per cent chance of thunderstorms tonight, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

Cool weather was reported this morning in Andrews, Lamesa, Big Lake and Crane. Warm weather was the rule in Stanton, Rankin and Garden City. Skies were clear, except for partly cloudy weather in Andrews and Crane and overcast skies in Big Lake. All the area cities reported little or no wind this morning.

Rains tapered off and skies cleared over much of Texas today, the Associated Press reported.

Moisture measurements Wednesday ranged up to 2.62 inches at McAllen, deep in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, but generally were less than an inch. Some of the heavier showers fell in the Texas Panhandle during the night.

Cooling temperatures overnight helped produce nearly 100 per cent humidity and some fog in East and South Texas by early morning. Readings near dawn ranged from 76 degrees at Corpus Christi on the coast down to 62 at Dalhart in the Panhandle. Top marks Wednesday reached a maximum of 94 at Alice and Cotulla in the south.

Forecasts promised little change anywhere in the state.

"I got on to them first when I was with the Navy in Japan," said Ray Costello, president of Santa Barbara Hotubs. 'First you'd take a bath, then climb into the tub with water at 115 to 118 degrees. They almost had to haul you out. You'd be like overcooked spaghetti."

Santa Barbara Hotubs began supplying tubs in 1965, "to create the same feeling I had in Japan." Now Costello's tubs, assembled from redwood slats like a puffed-up barrel, are shipped in kit form all over the United States — and even back to the Orient.

"Installed, they run from $2,164 to about $2,800, depending on the size of the tub, but you can get a complete kit for $1,402," Costello says.

Many people find they are comfortable bathing nude with friends where they might not be at ease in another unclothed situation, according to Costello. "There's a whole range of modesty - It's up to the people who are there."

Bellone got into the business last December when he founded the Aquarian Hot Tub Company. "I wanted to put one in my backyard, but after seeing the major firms' prices, I did my own thing by opening my wn company." Bellone and fellow ireman Dave Baca had to hire seven people to keep up with the demand or their tubs, which Bellone says cost from 200 to $600 less than his

The tub itself is mounted on a level slab with a gas, electric or solar water heater and a filter to clean the water. Costello says redwood insulates so well that if the tub is covered the water temperature drops only 15 per cent in 24

Schorr contempt unlikely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television newsman Daniel Schorr apparently will not be charged with contempt of Congress for his refusal to name the person who supplied him with the House intelligence report.

Nine times during Schorr's sworn testimony Wednesday, Ethics Committee Chairman John J. Flynt Jr., D-Ga., warned him that he could be held in contempt of Congress and be jailed or fined if he refused to identify his source and answer other questions about the source.

'Trust' byword of Ford in opening campaign talk

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford, launching his election bid amid spirited heckling, is placing heavy emphasis on the question of trust, hoping to make it a campaign issue.

"It is not enough for anyone to say 'trust me,'" Ford told a noisy, student-dominated crowd of more than 12,000 in a University of Michigan arena at Ann Arbor on Wednesday night. "Trust must be

Ford, whose speech sometimes drew boos, inspired a standing ovation as he expanded on the question of trust in terms that unmistakably were intended to bring Democrat Jimmy Carter to mind. He never mentioned Carter's name.

"Trust is not having to guess what a candidate means," Ford said. "Trust is leveling with the people before the election about what you are going to do after the election. Trust is not being all things to all people, but being the same thing to all people.

Trust is not cleverly choosing words so that each separate audience can hear what it wants to hear, but saying plainly and simply what you mean - and meaning what you say."

Ford and Carter are to address the same audience here tonight - a dinner of the Italian-American Foundation, but their schedules should keep them from meeting each other. Ford will then attend another ethnic-oriented event — a post Mass reception at the Roman Catholic shrine of the Immaculate Conception, marking National Hispanic Heritage

Even before Ford entered the arena on the campus of the school where he was a football player more than 40 years ago, mention of his name drew resounding boos and catcalls from many of the students in attendance. Booing was so prevalent throughout the program that it greeted mention of everyone save Mrs. Ford and the president of the university senate. Mrs. Ford got two standing ovations, and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger emerged clearly as the person booed most lustily.

Afterwards, Nessen said the heckling had been "fully expected" and that "we all expected much worse than that."

Nessen said it would have been easy to have found a friendly audience, but that Ford wanted to launch his campaign at his alma mater because his speech focused on goals and programs for the future.

Nessen said Ford "feels he was well received. He feels it went well and it was a great way to kick off the campaign. Ford took the heckling in stride and

African strike grows; police step up patrols

JOHANNESBURG South Africa (AP) - Thousands of blacks streamed back to work in Johannesburg today after a three-day general strike, but in Cape Town a similar work boycott was spreading.

Police in the Cape Town area, which has a large population of 'coloreds," as persons of mixed race are officially called, stepped up patrols of segregated colored and black townships to prevent any attempts to intimidate people trying to go to work

Up to midday there were no reports of violence, but at Wellington, about 40 miles from Cape Town, about 500 armed white residents patrolled the streets during the night. Groups of men armed with shotguns stood guard on almost every street corner and on the roofs of some factories.

The two-day Cape Town boycott got off to a slow start Wednesday, apparently because many workers thought it had been postponed until next week. About 20 to 40 per cent of the colored work force of 200,000 was believed to have stayed home.

But today, although there were no estimates available on the number of workers involved, dozens of small companies were reported to be crippled by the strike, and larger firms were just managing to operate with reduced staffs. Government officials said essential services were being maintained by skeleton crews.

In some colored areas, all stores were closed. Activity at Cape Town's harbor slowed to a crawl after hundreds of black stevedores stayed home.

A dried-fruit factory sent trucks with armed guards to bring colored employes to work and reported 100 per cent attendance. But other firms said none of their colored and black workers showed up.

Employers said those who joined the boycott would not be paid.

The boycotts protest the white government's racial policies, the killing by police of hundreds of blacks and coloreds in three months of antigovernment disturbances and the arrest of hundreds more.

During the three-day strike by blacks in the Johannesburg township of Soweto, 60 to 90 per cent of the 250,000 black workers stayed away from their jobs in Johannesburg, according to the local chamber of commerce.

Unofficial reports said at least 16 blacks were killed in violence accompanying the Soweto boycott. All but two were reported shot by police.

Kissinger told reporters he does not yet assume that his mission is a failure.

House expected to pass tax bill critics of a step to increase taxes on property heirs are waging a last-ditch fight as the House casts its final votes on the tax package that also extends the multibillion-dollar income tax cut.

Key Democrats expect to win the showdown today and the House then is expected to approve the bill, sending the wide-ranging measure to the Senate for final congressional action and on to President Ford. The measure was approved last week by Senate House negotiators.

While supporting most of the bill, Reps. Herman T. Schneebeli, R-Pa., and Barber B. Conable Jr., R-N.Y., senior GOP members of the House Ways and Means Committee, told colleagues Wednesday that one taxhiking plan should be deleted.

That plan would hike income taxes on heirs who sell inherited property and would gain $162 million for the treasury by 1981. The new method would require the heir to value the property at the price that the deceased paid for it, rather than at the price at the time of the deceased's

Thus, if a person buys corporate stock for $10,000 and 10 years later wills it to a relative when it was worth $55,000 and the heir later sells it for $60,000, present law would tax the $5,000 difference. The bill would change this to tax the $50,000 difference between the original cost and man of the Ways and Means Committee, termed it a "delicate and responsible compromise on estate and gift tax reform

Compared to 7 per cent under existing law, the bill would exempt from taxes all but the wealthiest $3 per cent of U.S. estates.

For practical purposes, it would mean no estate worth under $525,000 would pay the federal levy. The treasury's annual revenue loss would be $1.4 billion by 1981.

Ullman, arguing for the bill Wednesday, stressed the income tax features of the package. He said that "recent economic developments speak clearly to the importance of continuing the tax cuts" enacted last

The legislation would be the most comprehensive since the 1969 Tax Reform Act.

The new bill would continue through 1977 the $15 billion tax cut - worth $180 to a typical family of four making $15,000 a year.

The legislation would hike or cut taxes in hundreds of other ways. For example, it would increase taxes on some wealthier investors through changes in the so-called minimum tax. Curbs would be put on taxshelters in various fields.

Taxes of working parents would be cut up to $800 a family to offset child care costs, steps would be taken toward tax-deferred pensions for many housewives, and there would be simplification in some tax laws and

Quake victims giving up hope

UDINE, Italy (AP) — Thousands of residents of the quake devastated Friuli region abandoned their homeland today in an exodus to the Adriatic coast or the Dolomite mountains, seeking ground that doesn't

Long lines of cars, trucks, buses and horse-drawn carts left the streets of this area of northeastern Italy. The fleeing thousands left behind the ruins of homes leveled by a series of quakes that began May 6

The government assigned three army units with hundreds of trucks to assist those choosing to leave. Several thousand persons have already reached hotels and empty houses at summer resorts on the coast or in the mountains.

Thirty-five tremors were recorded Wednesday, two of them nearly as strong as the first quake four months ago that killed nearly 1,000 people and put 70,000 homeless into tents. The May quake registered 6.9 on the Richter Scale.

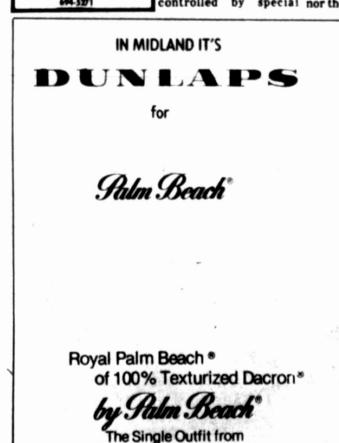

"A wave of persons are abandoning their towns."

6.9 on the Richter Scale.

"A wave of persons are abandoning their towns," said Luigi Gui, head of a parliamentary commission that toured the quake area. "The new quakes haven't just destroyed more houses. They have killed the hope and determination to rebuild which had survived for all these months."

Since last Saturday, eight more people have died, so have been injured and the government estimates 20,000 more people have been made homeless.

ELGIN, Ill. - It's the ol' razzledazzle.

First you see the egg...and then you don't. It appears and disappears faster than the eye can follow. The magician explains how he fooled you, and you relax.

And watch the trick again. Zounds! He astounds you because the explanation wasn't right at all.

The trick is called the "Egg Bag" and Clayt Wood's been opening his magic act with it for 50 years all over

Over the years, Clayt's put magic into lives both young and old.

He's played one-nighters and spook shows, the circus and the clubs, the schools and the circuits. "As far as show business is concerned, I'm just one of many. But you know, it's fun to be fooled. If you did know how it's done, you'd feel foolish. I suppose that's why most people say they don't want to know. They say, 'Don't tell me.' But it's usually very simple. So simple, you overlook it."

Magic has been good to Clayt over the years, although his fortunes have risen and fallen with its popularity.

"There's never any shortage of work for clowns and magicians. But television probably killed off magic for awhile. It just wasn't popular anymore.

'Now. I could do the same show I did 40 years ago and fool the audience. "After all, it's a whole new audience.

There are 22 children in 15 foster homes in Midland at this time, but no adults in foster homes. Although foster care costs the state much less than institutionalizing elderly persons would cost, the Department of Public Welfare finds it is hard to place such persons. Funds received through this concert may help in finding a foster home for elderly persons, a DPW spokesman said.

"Ed Reno — a magician on the Red Patch circuit — was visiting Will Rahn who lived down the street. You know, whenever magicians see a bunch of kids, they just have to show off some tricks," he recalls.

BACKYARD GARDNER

Fall is prime time for seeding new lawn

Copley News Service

I have found, after years of planting new lawns at each new home we moved to, that the best time for seeding is in the fall when the days are cooling off and it's easier to maintain the surface moisture which is so essential for good germination.

The first and most important step is to prepare the seedbed. If yours is a newly built home, then you must check to see whether the builders have buried rubbish in your proposed lawn site.

If this is indeed the case, the trash must be dug up and removed or it will cause problems later and it will only have to be dug out after the lawn is established

So better to do it before you start. The lawn site must be well and deeply dug, either with a heavy enough machine that the soil will be dug deeply, or by hand so it will be dug down 12 to 18 inches at least. Then it's raked smooth. During this operation, a slight slope away from the house should be established for good drainage.

After the site is raked smooth, it must be rolled down. Rollers can be rented in most communities from a rent-all firm or you can ask around the neighborhood and you'll likely find someone who would be glad to lend you one, since it's not something that is used every day. I've known cases in new subdivisions where a whole block of home owners have gone in on the purchase of a roller and prepared their lawns like the barnraisings of yesteryear.

Push the roller back and forth over the lawn site in one direction, and then again go over the site in the same manner, but this time at right angles to the direction you took the first time. This rolling will reveal any hollows or bumps which can be corrected after the first rolling.

All this preparation will seem like an awful bind but, believe me, it's well worth taking the time in terms of the finished product.

Now you are getting closer to the easy part of actually seeding the lawn. With the seeder, spread a nitrogen fertilizer on the site. Use ammonium sulfate or sodium nitrate at one pound per 100 square feet. The lawn seed is spread on top of the fertilizer, then raked in to make sure it is evenly spread. Rake it in one direction, then again at right angles to the first raking. Iron-toothed rakes are best for this job.

There are many ready mixed lawn seeds available on the market, and it is worthwhile inquiring what type of seed suits your area and your needs best. I have had my best luck with a 50-50 mixture by weight of Kentucky bluegrass and creeping red fescue, spread not too thickly.

A veteran gardener once told me that all you really need is 12 plants per square foot for a good lawn. In fact, if the lawn is too thick there will be problems with matting and lack of air to the root system of the lawn. It's quite a temptation to broadcast the seed on the heavy side so it is evident at a glance that there is going to be some grass growing on that bald earth pretty soon, but I'd urge you to follow the instructions on the grass package carefully so as not to over-

Once the seed and fertilizer are raked in, the site is rolled again. The next most essential requirement for the proper germination of the grass seed is that the seedbed surface be kept constantly moist.

To help keep it moist, some sort of mulch is often used. I have had the best success in this regard with grass clippings gathered from the neighbors. They look unsightly until the seedlings come up but they then soon disappear and add nourishment to the soil. A word of caution - don't distribute the clippings too thickly or they'll tend to mat and smother your grass seedlings. And use only short, fine clippings, not long, coarse stuff. If you plant in the fall, your chances are good that there will be rain to keep the seedbed moist. If the rain is inconsistent however, care must be taken to sprinkle enough to maintain that surface moisture

'Alice in Wonderland' not quite the same

DALLAS (AP) - It was all for education and, anyway, as one of the members of the East Dallas Garden and Talk Society put it, "It was better than sitting around and crotcheting."

That's how a group of over-70 senior citizen ladies decided to go to an X-rated movie for their study project" of the week.

The movie was "Alice in Wonderland," which resembles the classic fairy tale only in title. The rest of the movie is not the sort of thing you talk about with grandma.

'It was really something deciding what we were going to see," said 76-year-old Tassie Coleman. "We finally decided on the new version of 'Alice in Wonderland.' ... We really wanted to see something called 'Misty Beethoven,' but it was playing at a theater near Southern Methodist University. We didn't think that would be right for ladies our age. We didn't want to be mixed up with those hippie college kids."

Another of the movie viewers, Mrs. Crenshaw, who declined to give her first name, said another reason for choosing "Alice in Wonderland" over "Misty Beethoven," also X-rated, was that it sounded like a nice movie in explaining to their grandchildren where they were going. As the eight women, ac-companied by a reporter, filed into the theater, sneers came from young persons sitting by

"I don't think those grandmas know what they've walked into," said one loudly. "I know one thing," Mrs. Crenshaw snapped, turning to the young man. "When I was your age, I had a lot more manners than to talk about people loud enough for them to hear

The first of the group to walk out was a 74-year-old who said the pornographic musical was not anything like her favorite Rodgers and Hammerstein plays.

About 40 minutes later, two others left. One was embarrassed; the other said she was bored.

Two others followed minutes later, commenting about the country going to hell with such movies.

After the movie, Mrs. Crenshaw said it had been some experience: "You think because we're old ladies, we don't know anything. Well, we came here to study something and we studied it. I don't think we will come again."

Mansfield ends Senate career

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, a gen-tle scholar who wastes no words but whose words have influenced more than three decades of U.S. history, is spending his last day in the Senate. The 73-year-old Montana Democrat, who earlier this year decided not to seek re-election, after today is traveling to the People's Republic of China and won't return before the Oct. 2 end of the congressional session.

Mansfield, an acknowledged authority on Far Eastern affairs who once taught the subject, and Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, are traveling together for what Mansfield described as a work-and-study session.

In customary fashion, Mansfield has said little about his pending departure from the Senate floor, his place of business since 1953. But when coaxed by interviewers, he has obligingly discussed the most memorable successes and failures of Congress since he arrived as a House freshman in 1943. He has talked about gaining the vote for 18-year-olds, the Senate's investigation into Watergate, creation of an intelligence oversight committee in the Senate and the joy of saving a Montana lake, Flathead. And about the tragedy of Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

In a letter to President Ford shortly after his decision to leave public of-fice, Mansfield wrote in part:

"My years in the Congress en-compass one-sixth of the nation's history since independence; the ad-ministrations of seven presidents, the assasination of a president and other extreme outrages against human decency; able political leaderships and seamy politics and chicanery; the dawn of the nuclear age and men on the moon; a great war and a prelude of more wars and an uneasy peace....

I ask now that this trust be shifted to

His 16 years as party leader in the Senate exceeded by no man, Mansfield always appeared an unlikely choice for such longevity in a rough-and-tumble business.

KEEPING ON TRUCKING, Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter prepares to ride a tractor that will cut silage on a farm near Hartford, S.D., Wednesday where he toured and later spoke to a predominantly farm crowd.

Ford to concentrate on 10 strategic states

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite bold talk from both sides about contesting every state, the presidential campaign is being ruled by hard numbers that indicate President Ford will be concentrating his efforts in just a handful of states.

Polls show Democrat Jimmy Carter running ahead almost everywhere, while Ford's strategists concede that their battle is uphill.

Ford starts out, however, with the knowledge that his own polls show him leading only in his home state of Michigan among the 10.

So it was not just because Michigan is his home state that Ford chose it for his first formal campaign trip Wednesday.

From whatever base he can build on among the 10 swing states, Ford hopes to turn to what Baker called "our traditional states, the Midwestern and the Rocky Mountain

But Baker admits that Ford backers are disappointed in surveys from border states, particularly Tennessee, and "less than ecstatic" about results from Ohio and Wisconsin, two of the "swing" states.

Meanwhile, in Atlanta, Carter manager Hamilton Jordan is looking at private polls which, although incomplete, show Carter trailing in only a half dozen states.

"There are not many states in the BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) -Seven students at the state university campus here were trapped in a stalled elevator for 30 minutes. They had just left a psychology survey in which one of the questions was, "Are you afraid of confined places?'

Maintenance workers rescued the students from the elevator in the psychology building on Monday night.

country we don't have a chance of winning," Jordan said, refusing to list priorities. "So, why give up at the outset the one advantage we have over Ford, which is flexibility? Their problem is they've got to win just about every state they go after....We lose the biggest advantage we have on the front end if we start writing off

The result is that Carter is coming closer to what both candidates are claiming, a 50-state campaign. He plans to run everywhere unless he finds trouble spots where he needs to concentrate.

Ford handlers faithfully reflect in public his promise to challenge Carter in every state, but they have picked their battle grounds.

The final duel will be in about 10 key states, says Jim Baker, Ford's campaign manager. He lists New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, California, Texas and Florida.

"It's going to be those 10 swing states, which are swing because of the large amount of electoral votes, and because it's reasonably close in all of them," Baker said.

Those states account for 256 electoral votes. It takes 270 to win. Neither side is bold enough to claim all of them this early, but whoever controls the bulk of them is likely to be the next president.

Ford campaign treasurer Royston Hughes says: "We are not conceding any state. I'm mailing out checks to headquarters in 50 states. But obviously the polling and the refinement will go on. We don't want to misplace our dollars."

So much for the particulars of a fun weekend. (You know the word "gala" originated in Spanish.)

But I have had a very warm place in my heart for Chicanos since I taught journalism at La Bowie (High School) in the Chamizal Zone of El Paso some 15 years ago. (And it'll be nice to visit the one large group in Midland where I won't have to explain the meaning or pronunciation of the word "oeste," which not so subtly acknowledges my personal and this area's appreciation for the noble and charming people who passed this way some 436 years ago with a fantastic terranaut (fully as gutsy and visionary as our men who recently walked on the moon) named Coronado

Of course there are problems involving linguistics, culture, economics, and identity in the amalgation of two such distinct tribes as the white Anglo-Saxon Protestant and the brown Latin Catholic. But there are immeasurably more delight Lincoln, to observe that the whole civilization (as opposed to the blind parochialism that sees everything different as a threat)

I think it is as amusing as ridiculous to see turistas carry on about charming Latin traditions they could have shared across town-and can share this weekend in East Midland. And the idea of maintaining a racially distinct school because it houses a bilingual program is abhorrent to me because a truly bi-lingual program ought to be carried out in every school in Texas (and it would be enjoyed and profited from more in the long run by criminally unilingual Anglos than by the Chicano kids who are obliged to learn English in any case)

And I have one timely plea for radio announcers, teachers, sportscasters, and everyone who has occasion to use a Spanish surname from time to time (which is all of us): please spend a few minutes and learn the simple rules for pronouncing common Chicano names like Perez (PEH-riz), Munoz (moon-YOHSS), Lopez (LOHpiz, Juarez (WHAH-riz), Hernandez (ehr-NAHN-diz), Gomez (GOH-miz), Gallardo (ga-YAR-doh), Duran (doo-RAHN), Castillo (cas-TEE-yoh), and Avila (AH-vee-lah)-all of which I found in the Midland telephone directory and most of which you can hear butchered any day in Texas. (And I hasten to add my phonetics are only approximate, but they will be at least recognizable to Chicanos.)

As a last resort, call me at The Reporter-Telegram (682-5311) and spell the name and I'll tell you how to pronounce it. Anything to help us Gavachos learn to deal language that was common hereabouts before we were

Robert E. Lee's Rebels may get a little road weary before they get to play in of front the home crowd.

Friday, they hit the road for the second consecutive weekend, taking on the Plainview Bulldogs in Plain-

The Rebels took a season-opening 14-7 victory over El Paso Austin last week while Plainview was posting a 7-0 win over Amarillo Tascosa.

Lee may be without the services of its stellar running back - Clyde Gary, who at this time last year, was also slowed down with injuries. The 188-pounder came back, however, to lead District 5-4A in rushing and this is what Coach Jim Acree is hoping this time around.

With Gary doubtful, sophomore Jeff McCowan will come in at a fullback slot and Brian Crowell will move to the tailback position.

Brad Wright, senior quarterback, gets the nod to start again this week with David Hobbs backing him up. It was Wright that scored the winning touchdown in last week's come-frombehind win over Austin.

Robert Ochsner will start at the wingback slot to round out the Rebel

While Lee may be without the services of Gary, Plainview's top runner, Ricky Ellis is also out. The speedy junior injured an ankle in the season-opener to Lubbock Estacado Crowell had a great opening game in El Paso, rushing for 131 yards in 15 carries and had a beautiful 76-yard TD scamper for the Maroon Platoon.

The Rebel defense appears to be ahead of the offense at this stage which pleases Acree and his staff. Todd Clements, Donald Salinas, unit stood out in El Paso last week. One thing that worries Acree is the fact that so far, he used eight players both ways in the opener.

Plainview, meanwhile, two-platoons with 11 fresh faces coming in on defense even though a lot of the athletes go both ways, but don't start on both units. Lee has won the last two outings,

BENSON WASN'T happy with the criticism, but he agreed.

"What we're doing this week is polishing things up," Benson said before a practice session. "Our pass protection broke down against Stanford. So we're working on the little things, the basic things to correct that problem." STILLWATER, Okla. worked out in full pads

An aggressive blocker, Benson tried to explain the lacklustre performance of the offensive line against

"We let up after we got that lead (15-0 in the first period), and then when we had to pick up the pace again it was hard. We couldn't do it. So this week we're working on maintaining our intensity three we just in our properties."

Penn State hasn't forgotten a 17-9 loss to the inckeyes last fall. The Nittany Lions were trailing by 10-9 late in the final period when a penalty killed big opportunity to pull the game out.

The reasons for the players dropping off the team varied.

According to Bryant, sophomore running back Jeff Barnes transferred to Illinois "after talking to me." Barnes, from Delta, Ohio, was redshirted last year after suffering an injury.

Russ Waddell, a junior offensive guard, decided to leave the team also, Bryant said. Waddell was injured most of 1974 but saw some playing time. Last season, he was held out last year because of injuries.

The coach said Wednesday, "I guess Ralph McElreath has given up football. I haven't seen him since Friday." McElreath, a senior offensive tackle, decided not to play in Janet Hall followed in order.

1974 and played little last season. Another scholarship player, Robert Durkee, will remain at Alabama but not play football Bryant said. Durkee. a sophomore safety, was redshirted last year.

The only non-scholarship player, pre-med student Butch Douthit, had decided to stop playing football to devote more time to his class work, Bryant said.

Texan Wed-

School has been is session only three weeks, but Stanton and Rankin already face their first real exam Friday on the football field.

Both flunked the same exams last year, and both want passong marks this year.

Stanton hosts long-time rival Mc-Camey in what could be a heated brawl, but the Buffaloes feel they have to to beat McCamey this year to avenge last years 21-19 loss to the Badgers

Stanton scored two fourth period touchdowns only to fall two points shy of victory a year ago, but after fueling a 24-0 win over Wink last week, the Buffs feel they have a little momentum going.

McCAMEY HAS lost two games in a row this year, and would like nothing entertain 2-AAA favorite Pecos in an better than to pull an upset to get in the win column for the first time as a Class A team. McCamey's first victory this year will be a history making event of sorts for the school.

Rankin, on the other hand, travels to Jal, N.M., Friday with a bit of hot smoke in their eyes. Last year's game with Jal holds no fond memory for the

Jal upended Rankin by a narrow 14-13 margin, and the Devils lost the game when they failed to convert a two-point conversion in the last minute of the fourth period. The undefeated Red Devils would like to change that this year to keep their victory express rolling. While those two games hold most of effort to chalk up their first victory of the season, but it won't be easy.

THE TWO teams already have one common opponent this year to help draw a parallel. Lamesa dropped a 7-3 decision to Carlsbad, N. M., during the first week of the season, and Pecos destroyed the same team, 33-8, last week.

If that is any indication of things to come, Lamesa will be in for a long night. However, the Tornadoes have shown a lot of defensive strength this season, and have given up only 19 points in two losses. If the offense can come around, Lamesa could make a

The undefeated Andrews Mustangs will try to keep their new found strength rolling Friday when they travel to all-defeated Brownfield. The Mustangs are expected to roll.

The Reagan County Owls, feeling victory for the first time as a Class A school last week, hope to improve their record when they travel to Iraan, the defending 6-A champ. It should be a good test for the Owls. who many think will make a strong run at the 9-A title later this year.

CRANE, THE defending 7-AA champions who have dropped two straight games this year to AAA teams, will host undefeated Class A Van Horn this week. Crane must get into the win column Friday to produce a morale booster if nothing else.

Two losses to AAA squads is nothing to hang the head about, but a loss to a Class A team this week can't help the Cranes' cause. Second year coach Joe Allen would like to win this one, but Van Horn appears to have a pretty good ball club.

Other top games will come from District 3-AAA teams this week. Undefeated Lubbock Estacado will meet their second straight AAAA foe Friday when they tangle with Lubbock Coronado while undefeated Lake View will travel to Odessa to face Ector undefeated Snyder will host AAAA Big Spring in another tough encounter, and Lubbock Dunbar will travel to Fort Stockton to face the undefeated Panthers.

TERRY WILLIAMSON What is a 'Booger'?

What is a "Booger"?

Lamesa knows. Big Spring knows. And I'll bet you will know before the current football season has elapsed into faded memory.

A "Booger" is a Brooks, as in Andrews Mustangs. They call him a junior quarterback, but he is really a game winner. Some are calling him a grid savior in Andrews, and you really can't blame Mustang fans for being so high on a "Booger" after suffering through two straight 2-8 seasons.

His grid heroics have covered only two weekends this year, but both showings was enough to give the Mustangs a perfect 2-0 record. You might say that Andrews is way ahead of schedule with that kind of record. After all, they have already matched last year's win mark. AGAINST BIG Spring, Booger was named as The Reporter-Telegram's player of the week when he rushed for 193 yards-he had 213 at one point but lost nine on his last carry of the game to end up with 193-and he scored a couple of touchdowns while passing for an additional 58 yards.

Last week against Lamesa, Booger had a bad outing compared with his showing against the Steers. Brooks had only 92 yards rushing and eight yards passing—his receivers dropped a couple. That's not bad, however, but when you add the fact that his 49-yard fourth period touchdown proved to be the difference in a 12-6 game, you have another game winner, and that's really what football is all about

There is no telling to what heights this youngster can climb to the rest of this season and next. Andrews football will be exciting to say the least.

Now if we can keep him from riding brones during the off season, coach Tommy Watkins can rest easier. BROOKS GOT off to a slow start this year when he was injured in one of his bronc riding tries. I really don't know if he is fully recovered from his injury, but if he's not, I would hate to play against him when he gets well.

Now back to the picking game for this week. I was 27-10 last week for a season mark of 51-23. It's getting STANTON 21, McCAMEY 14-Stanton to get a little revenge, but it might not be easy. I'll be there Friday to see how it comes out.

RANKIN 21, JAL 20-Rankin to win by one point this year. Rankin's Wayne Walker will help us out PECOS 22, LAMESA 6-The Eagles will blow over the Wind Machine. Greg Watkins will cover this one.

ANDREWS 34, BROWNFIELD 14-It won't take long for the Cubs to find out what a "Booger" is.

REAGAN COUNTY 24, IRAAN 13— The Owls begin to assert themselves. Mike Werst will be there for this one.

CRANE 30, VAN HORN 20-Cranes get on the scoreboard in this one. Byron Battles will be there Friday.

BUFFALO (AP) - The Buffalo Bills, without a place kicker since they gave John Leypoldt the boot Tuesday, may have found a golden toe in Benny Ricardo.

Ricardo, 22, looked good in a tryout at Rich Stadium Wednesday. He made all three attempts from 35 yards out, two of three from the 42, all three from the 47 and one each from the 52 and 57.

He also is the man who beat the Bills in a National Football League preseason outing with a 38-yard field goal when he played for the Detroit Lions. Ricardo was the last player cut by Detroit

Who really knows?

America at long last may know where it stands in diplomatic relations with China, now that Chairman Mao-Tse-tung is dead.

This is the firm belief of Dr. Betty M. Unterberger, an internationally recognized historian at Texas A&M University.

She believes the demise of Mao finally should "let us know where we stand."

The distinguished professor and international author said there has been a prevailing uncertainty of American-Chinese relations since the aging Mao and former President Richard Nixon normalized those relations earlier in this decade.

Mao Tse-tung's death is the most unique event in Communist China's past, but Dr. Unterberger said further that a radical departure from the chairman's long-time policies should not be expected.

She is of the opinion that the historical tradition of struggles for dominance will prevent any bettering of relations with the Soviet Union, which has seized more Chinese territory than any other nation in history.

Nor should observers expect a departure from Maoist doctrine. since Mao steadily had been turning over the reins of power to hand-picked proteges, especially in recent years.

At the same time, and this is important, Dr. Unterberger cautions that "What will happen now is anybody's guess."

She explained that the Communist Chinese never before have faced a problem of succession, as have the Soviets. They very well could use the Soviet example as a guide, thus giving them less trouble with the transition. But the A&M professor doesn't expect this to happen. Neither does she look for a return to normal relations with Russia.

She says that China won't be happy until it is allowed to return to its historical dominance of

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., who returned recently from a trip to mainland China, quoted a Peking official as saying that the Peking leadership is ready "at any time to talk to representatives of Taipei and to trade with Tiawan."

This also is an interesting development. Politically, the two groups are antagonistic, and Mao's Communist government has a long record of opposing trade by Taipei - with anyone.

But who knows for sure right now what effect Mao's death will have on the views expressed by the Peking spokesman or the policy of the Red government in this regard.

Thus, the question of where America - or anyone else stands with Red China remains a mystery. It is hoped, as Dr. Unterberger believes, that America now many discover for sure where it stands in diplomatic

'Family Fair' time

The really big entertainment event in the Tall City this weekend is the annual St. Ann's Family Fair.

The 28th annual edition of the celebration planned and staged for every member of the family is scheduled Saturday - all day and into the evening — on the grounds of St. Ann's School.

It is due to attract thousands of men, women and children from Midland and vicinity.

The festival through the years has become one of Midland's most popular and best-attended county fair-type celebrations.

A carnival, a traditional part of the fair, will be set up across the street west of the school grounds. It will open for business Friday night.

The fair will feature art and craft booths, specialty boutiques. food counters, games of all kinds for young and old, and what-haveyou. It truly is a family function.

Each year in the past, St. Ann's

Fair has promised fun, fellowship and entertainment for all, and it never has failed to live up to its pledge. It is said that this year will be no exception. If anything, the fun festival will be "bigger and better" than ever. Members of St. Ann's Catholic parish plan and stage the festival from start to finish. It is no small task, demanding the involvement of practically all parish members. All proceeds go to help fund parish programs and projects.

The big show will be in full swing from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. Saturday — and you are invited.

THE THOUGHTS OF CHAIRMAN BREZINGY

WASHINGTON MERRY — GO — ROUND

Clements browbeats Navy brass

By JACK ANDERSON With LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON - Shouting profanities, Deputy Defense Secretary William Clements browbeat the highest naval procurement officials this summer into supporting the disputed claim of a major corporation.

His voluble assault on the officials took place behind closed Pentagon doors. He never expected the public to find out about it. We have obtained a fidential minutes.

Clements accused an assistant Navy secretary and an admiral of dragging their feet on a deal, which could cost the taxpayers as much as $1 billion. "Why in the hell haven't you done it?" he demanded fiercely.

Clements took the side of the Newport News Shipbuilding Co. against his own Navy lawyers. The company is a subsidiary of the huge Tenneco oil and gas combine. It may be merely a coincidence that Clements made his own millions in the oil industry.

The Tenneco subsidiary has been building cruisers, carriers and nuclear submarines for the Navy. The company claims the Navy owes it almost $900 million for construction changes and other cost escalations. A Tenneco settlement could set a precedent for payouts to other companies. The claims come to a grand total of $1.8 billion.

In an hour-long talk with us, Clements denied his past oil industry ties had anything to do with his pressure for a settlement.

"Absolutely not! Hell no!" he spluttered. His only interest, he said, was in getting Navy ships built.

The confidential minutes show that he tried to rush through a settlement on terms favorable to Tenneco. He summoned a dozen admirals and civilian officials into his office on the afternoon of July 13. With fiscal abandon, he opened up on Adm. Hyman Rickover, who has tried to hold shipyards to their contracts without excessive cost adjustments.

Then Clements confided that he had met with Newport News Co. president tlement, which happens to be the subject of a legal battle between the company and the Navy. Yet the Navy and Justice Dept. lawyers responsible for the litigation weren't invited to the tete-a-tete Glaring at the procurement people in his office, Clements declared: 'Diesel wants to settle the overall problems he has with the Navy and get on with the business of building ships.

As a first step, Clements directed that "a provisional payment can be made" to Tenneco on a submarine claim

If the Navy refused to settle the claims, he warned, then he would do He cited as a precedent the Pentagon's celebrated multimilliondollar bailout of Lockheed Asst. Navy Secy. Jack Bowers and

Adm. Fredrick Michaelis appeared to be cowed by Clements. "We are going to do it," they told him, meaning they would begin payments to Tenneco. "Why in the hell haven't you done

?" growled Clements. Michaelis responded plaintively: "I don't think we will ever get them done

as fast as Diesel wants.'

Bowers volunteered that he had spoken to Diesel on the telephone. Telephone conversations, grumped Clements, weren't enough. "You have to talk with him directly - eyeball to eyeball," he said.

He invoked the names of Senate Armed Services Chairman John Stennis, D.-Miss., and House Armed Services Chairman Melvin Price, D.-Ill. "They have lost absolute confidence in what the Navy is doing and they are not going to approve any unless they get this claims mess cleaned up," said Clements.

Clements said he was "convinced that Newport News is serious in their threat to stop building ships for the Navy if things do not improve."

Siding outrageously with the company in its court battle against his own department, he said he also "agrees with Newport News that the Navy has not negotiated in good faith."

At the close of the meeting, the irascible Clements noted almost as an afterthought that he "wants the government's interest fully protected." But he immediately added: 'The President and the Congress are losing confidence in the Navy." The minutes summed up Clements' comments tersely: "If the Navy won't settle these claims, he will.

Meanwhile, Sen. William Proxmire. D.-Wis., chairman of the Joint Economy in Government subcommittee, has asked Atty. Gen. Edward Levi to investigate possible fraud in the Tenneco claims.

"It is apparent to me." Proxmire, "that there are officials in the Defense Department who would sacrifice the public interest by turning over to the shipbuilders sums of money far in excess of the amounts agreed to in the contracts

A Tenneco settlement, Proxmire warned, could "compromise the government's ability to enforce (all) contracts.'

Footnote: Clements told us that a settlement probably could be reached for about 35 per cent of the $1.8 billion sought by the shipbuilders. He denied that the Navy's court case had been undercut by his dealings with the Newport News president or his remark that the Navy had not negotiated in good faith. The shipbuilders, it should be noted, deny there is fraud in their claims. Adm. Michaelis denied that the Navy was intimidated.

John Ehrlichman at ease as prison term looms

WASHINGTON - John Ehrlichman might go to jail soon or he mightwin pseudo-freedom during new appeal actions, or he might luck out through the long-shot possibility of not going to jail at all.

Whatever, Ehrlichman, like many another soul in deep trouble, turned his anguish in creative directions, and thus found a new life. His novel about the CIA, "The Company," got good reviews and movie rights were bought by Paramount. He's writing a second novel. Most important of all, at 51, Ehrlichman is discovering himself.

The jaw doesn't jut toward the North Star in defense of Richard Nixon any more. Stonewalling doesn't become him. Ehrlichman lives alone in an old adobe house in Sante Fe. N.M., a bearded, philosophical fellow who could do considerable time for his Watergate offenses.

"I've tried to comb the bitterness out of my beard," he told me the other day. "I'm not holding any bad feelings. Whatever apprehension I had about jail is worked out of my mind. I will handle it if it comes."

For many months, Ehrlichman was out of the public's sight by his own choice. He was busy writing the novel whose characters are about as close to the Watergate cast as his beard is to his chin. So we encounter the likenesses of Nixon, Richard Helms, H.R. (Bob) Haldeman, E. Howard Hunt, Henry Kissinger and Ehrlich-man (in Irish-American form). John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Spiro

Agnew and Hubert Humphrey are around, too.

Ehrlichman's effort is surprisingly good for a first novel. The story moves to a tense climax when the CIA director successfully blackmails the President in a situation akin to Watergate.

Ehrlichman's president is suspicious, mean and grouchy. If Ehrlichman once liked Nixon, he doesn't like President Monckton now. Nor is he admiring of anybody else. The Kissinger character comes off as charming, brilliant, but spineless, always willing to please the President to stay on his good side.

The Ehrlichman character keeps out of trouble, so the real Ehrlichman spared himself the agony (or bother?) of trying to understand his own complicated role in Watergate. But Ehrlichman has others posing the question of how culpable a high government official is for carrying out orders, though they might involve

Indeed, this is the very question which must still haunt Ehrlichman, though he seems to not suffer its jagged edges any more. As a hardcharging, get-the-job-done power in Nixon's White House, Ehrlichman firmly concurred in the plan to trap and then destroy Daniel Ellsberg, thief of the Pentagon Papers. It was after Kissinger had screamed to Nixon about leaks and the danger of Ellsberg running loose that Ehrlichman got his orders to form what became the "Plumbers," with one of Kissinger's top aides (David Young) and Ehrlichman's favorites (Egil Krogh) as co-chiefs.

It's all too much to rehash here, but Ehrlichman could still nurse bad feelings against Nixon (for getting him into it in the name of patriotism), Kissinger (for acting so innocent and escaping investigation), David Young (for betraying Ehrlichman and playing stool pigeon for immunity), and John Dean (for nailing Ehrlichman in testimony). Though he did wrong, Ehrlichman is the fall guy in the "Plumbers" case, and shall forever remain so. He could go nuts if he let all this get the best of him. So he spends part of his time helping Indians by phoning Washington bureaucrats of his acquaintance on their behalf, and the rest on the second novel. He writes carefully in longhand, and says this second work is a character study in a Washington setting and bears no relationship to the Watergate period Ehrlichman got $50,000 for "The Company," (75,000 copies printed) and undisclosed amounts for the pocketbook and movie rights, and the second book contract. His legal bills are around $400,000, thus he is hardly one-third of the way toward paying them off. He says his lawyers don't push him for the money, so he is relieved of that pressure. Still, he's alone in Santa Fe, and sees his family in Seattle on occasion. He'll never practice law again. He will always carry the indelible tattoo of Watergate. He is a victim who can blame himself for his grief, and yet be satisfied that he possessed the resources to reflect, create and face

High school class didn't grow up in 10 years

PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. (AP) Thank heavens for Lany Tyler.
Eleven years out of high school, the former cheerleader and homecoming queen is still a winner.

But it's been a rocky road for many others in the class of '65 at wealthy Palisades High School. It was this class that Time magazine spotlighted in a 1965 cover story about the new generation of "smarter, subtler and more sophisticated kids" heading into "Golden Era" of education.

Then came the Vietnam war, the draft, the drugs, the demonstrations. It was a hard time to grow up, "Pali" grads found.

The quarterback of the football

Succeed, became a Hollywood masseur and a reverend in a religious cult. The boy voted Most Popular committed suicide. One of the top students is in a mental hospital.

"A lot of tremendously sad things have happened," said David Wallechinsky, one of two '65 Pali grads who tracked down 350 of the 504 people in their class and wrote a new people in their class and wrote a new book titled "What Really Happened to the Class of '65?"

"I was definitely disappointed finding out what had happened to the class," agreed co-author Michael Medved. "The process of doing the book was horribly depressing."

Medved and Wallechinsky tell the stories of 30 students in their book.

Many of the tales are bizarre, but the authors say they chose

"It was not our intent to portray a freak show," said Medved, who added that many of the strangest stories were not included in the book.

They didn't write about the top student who is now a professional psychic, the alcoholic attorney, the heroin addict, the popular student whose marriage broke up after he was shot by his wife, the medical student who tried to commit suicide, or either of the two students who went underground and cut off all contact with their families and former

"It came to the point where we were actually looking for a normal person to balance the book," Medved said.

Lany Tyler, the most popular girl in school, the Homecoming Queen and cheerleader, earned a Ph.D. and now teaches history at Princeton. It's a relief to read about her.

And the car-crazy leader of a prestige gang of tough guys and athletes is a self-made millionaire with a chain of clothing stores. One of the other students remembers him as "the only person in high school who bought a cover for his car. He'd park it and put the cover on it, and then sort of pat it."

Even today he has a rare Ferrari 1963 Super America. "Whenever I feel bad. I go out to the garage and start the car and just listen to it," he says in

The class tough guy, recalled by others as a "bully" and an "enormous, frightening character," married a girl from the class and settled down into a real estate career. Medved and Wallechinsky were "astonished."

They were also amazed at the changes in one of their friends, described by a former teacher as a squeaky-clean, patent-leather kid with plastered-down hair. He now has an unkempt beard and long hair and wears scraggly old clothes at his homemade cabin in the Northern California countryside. He grows a few plants and lives with a girl who intellectuals had gone through a half-dozen religious cuits and was now running for Congress as a John Bircher in Kansas City.

The student voted Most Reserved is now a member of the Hare Krishna sect. The class flirt is a prosecuting attorney who a few years earlier was kicked out of college on a drug bust. The class surfer, almost thrown out of school for his long hair, now teaches school for his long hair, now teaches at Pali, where some of his disapprov-ing teachers now have longer hair than he did.

The authors tracked down one of the class outcasts, described by another student as "a sad sack" with "droopy eyes, droopy jowls, a droopy walk." Whenever he spoke up in high school, the rest of the students delighted in shouting, "Shut up, Reilly!"

Secure Carter courting congressional IOUs

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Much of Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter's campaign is being geared toward collecting political IOUs from next year's Congress.

In the past, the nominee of the outof-power party at this stage would be scrambling to raise money, furiously incurring political debts to business interests, unions or politicos.

This year, because of the new, post-Watergate campaign finance laws, Carter's relationship with the moneyed and with other candidates for office is the old relationship stood on its head.

For the first time, 1976's presidential candidates will not be competing with other candidates for campaign funds. Carter and President Ford each have accepted $21,820,000 in public funding for their fall campaigns. Having accepted public money, they cannot accept even a single dollar more in private money.

Candidates for the Senate and House are under no such prohibition, and literally hundreds of members of Congress and prospective members have been begging Carter's campaign scheduling aides to arrange a Carter visit to their district.

"The big difference," says Robert Lipshultz, Carter's campaign treasurer, "is that we're not competing with any of them anymore for money. That's a dramatic change that can have great benefit."

Carter and President Ford are apparently taking different approaches to the congressional campaigns.

Mr. Ford has assumed a "presidential stance," and therefore probably will not be available for much campaigning in others' behalf.
In fact, only one event has been planned so far that would involve the President in raising money for others, a Washington dinner Oct. 7 to be televised over closed circuits to 20 or 30 other cities.

Further, the weak state of the Republican Party, with a paltry registration percentage nationally and the aftershock of the Watergate scandals still in evidence, is causing many Republican candidates to attempt to appear as little Republican as possible. Some candidates in New England and in the South are using campaign literature and billboards which omit mention of their party affiliation.

The reverse is true for the Democrats, and Carter is performing almost as if he, not Ford, were wielding the power of incumbency.

He is viewed as expert at tapping people for money. One Southern political veteran says that people at the Democratic National Committee were "awed by how good he was. Here they'd been trotting out all the superstars all these years, and here he's raised fund-raising to the level of an art."

"He's dynamite," says Louisiana

Sen. J. Bennett Johnston Jr., chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee.

"He never ceases to amaze me at how good a candidate he is," says Johnston. "He's very good at everything he does politically, including raising money."

"He has been very effective," says Lipshultz, who adds that Carter was not always good at raising money and not always good at raising money and had to overcome a strong dislike of it.

Since the law prevents the presidential nominees from accepting any private contributions. congressional candidate cannot fly the presidential or vice presidential candidate to his district to campaign or raise money for him and then pay the bills. Doing so would amount to a contribution, according to the Federal Election Commission.

Thus the limit under which the candidates will be working — the $21,820,000 and an additional $3.2 million from their party's national committee — will circumscribe the amount of help the presidential candidates will be able to give to others.

Rep. James Corman of California, chairman of the Democratic National Congressional Committee, says that he is "making every effort to let them (Congressional candidates) know what Carter's doing for the committee and for individuals."

Husband, wife team serving as ministers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - A husband-wife ministerial team says the relatively new concept "keeps the church honest.

The Revs. Joe and Ellen Culpepper - who answer comfortably to their first names — are team ministers at Indianapolis Arlington Heights Christian Church. Each is receiving complete theological training and serves the church in a complete

'In some ways, it keeps the church honest," Joe said. "In the past, when churches have hired a minister, they expect the wife to do a lot of work without paying her. It's very unfair that way.

Ellen agreed. "No longer is being a minister's wife a career," she said. "Churches now expect the wife to have a fulltime career, and this way they are paying her for it."

A senior student at Christian Theological Seminary, where Joe received his degree in June, Ellen presides with Joe at the communion table and the two take turns delivering the sermon.

"The most meaningful thing to us and our congregation is that we both preside at the communion table every Sunday," Joe said.

"It's kind of fascinating, but our people have a family feeling about communion." Ellen said. "Seeing us up there as husband and wife gives them a strong feeling of being together before God."

Premarital counseling is another area where Joe and Ellen feel that team ministry has an advantage. During the counseling period, the Culpeppers invite couples into their home and discuss both the good and bad aspects of their own marriage.

"They see us acting out an equal interaction in our own home," Ellen said. "That's very important for a marriage. Joe will offer them coffee and that way they see how a marriage really works."

Later, the Culpeppers perform the wedding together.

The Culpeppers' church had women elders before the couple arrived. And the ministerial team was readily accepted into the church community. But still, there are problems.

"I don't think people have too muchtrouble accepting it intellectually." Ellen said. "But they just feel that a minister is a man. We have to work at educating their feelings."

Ellen still finds people treating her as a "minister's wife" rather than a minister in her own right — they even introduce her that way at times.

Singer entertains in kitchen

HOLLYWOOD - Singer Johnny Mathis likes to cook so much, he even does his own cooking when he's on tour. "Cooking is really not difficult. All you need is to be able to read a cookbook and to remember the things your parents taught you. My mother and father taught me and my six brothers and sisters to cook when we were youngsters." Johnny's parents worked as domestics for a wealthy San Francisco family. Since the Mathis family was originally from Texas, Johnny started out cooking dishes like chili and fried chicken. "Virginia ham and grits are still staples in my house," he said. When Johnny goes to the kitchen for a bite to eat, he doesn't just fix a sandwich or heat up whatever's around. "I usually end up making sukiyaki, chili or wild duck and rice, always enough for any friends who might drop by!" He enjoys entertaining at home since he has finally settled down in a place of his own in the Hollywood Hills. His one-bedroom house, which was built by Howard Hughes for Jean Harlow, is one of the few in Hollywood with an inside swimming pool. He's done considerable renovation of the house: by knocking out a few walls, adding a guest bedroom and removing the roof over the pool, he's made the swimming area a foyer and the focal point of the house. "Every room is immediately adjacent to the pool," he said happily. "I like the idea of being able to jump out of bed into the pool, then climbing out the other side to grab my breakfast!"

The master bedroom and bath are off another corner of the pool. Complete with Roman bath and sauna, the room also houses a closed circuit TV system that provides a constant view

The most recent change in the house is the kitchen, which has been enlarged, modernized to Johnny's exact specifications and filled with all the latest cooking gadgets. "Since I love to cook and entertain at home, I needed a kitchen designed to make the cooking part as easy as possibleand also large enough to accommodate my guests so I wouldn't be stuck in the kitchen by myself," he said with a laugh. He's installed an indoor barbecue, so he can cook ribs in any weather, and a microwave dinner parties. Many of Johnny's specialties were learned on his travels around the world. After he discovered that the Japanese use chrysanthemum leaves for sukiyaki, for instance, he immediately planted one in his backyard. When he was in port at the Canary Islands, on the Queen Mary's last voyage, he learned how to fix bananas flambe from the master

oven to help cope with last-minute

One of his standby menus includes roast duck and wild rice, mustard greens and an elegant apricot dessert. After dinner, Johnny and his guests usually migrate to the recreation room, which houses a full-sized billiards table, a jukebox and a movie screen that lowers from the ceiling. A door leads to the subterranean wine cellar, filled with rare vintages. "This is where I serve the last course,' Johnny said with an expansive smile.

Johnny Mathis can currently be heard on his new album, "I Only Have Eyes For You." Recipes from versatile chef Mathis follow:

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor I'll call Sue who has done more for me than my own sister has. Sue's kids are the ages of mine, so she keeps my kids so I can go on the road with my husband for a few days. She also chauffeurs my kids around with her own so I won't have to. Sue has even done my marketing for

She's a very handy friend to have and I appreciate her, but here's the problem:

She runs in and out of my house just like it's her own. If she sees that I have company, she comes right over and joins us. She asks the most personal Shower tetes questions, and I have no privacy whatsoever. She's a good friend, but she's a terrible pest. How can I keep her from coming over whenever she feels like it? I Miss Goolsby don't want to end our friendship because she's been a good friend, but enough is enough.-TOO MUCH OF

DEAR TOO MUCH: By accepting favors from Sue, you've become obligated to her. If you want your privacy, you will have to quit accepting favors from her. If you can't do that, face it: You've made a deal and you're stuck with it.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 and have recently taken an office job where other women are employed. This honored with a recipe isn't the first office job I've held, but it's the first place I've been asked questions I would rather not answer. With regard to something I am wearing: "Is it new? Where did you get it? Was it expensive?" Maybe I'm wrong, but I think these questions are personal, and I don't know how to get out of answering without appearing to be stuck-up and unfriendly. Can you (or anybody else) help me?—ON

DEAR ON: It's your right to refuse to answer questions you regard as being too personal. And there's nothing wrong with saying, "I'd rather not answer that." DEAR ABBY: My sister is 18 and know who should tell her. her husband is 19. They've been married for two years and have two children. The problem is her tell her if you think I should. Please help me housekeeping. Her house is so filthy it smells. She decide.——OLDER SISTER wasn't raised that way. My mother, my two sisters and I keep clean houses and we can't understand mad when you've hinted, mind your own business. If what's wrong with that girl. She doesn't keep herself her husband doesn't object, I see no need for anyone clean, either. In fact she smells of B.O. We don't know how her husband can stand to be near her.

Anyone for Oz? WESTWOOD

By MARY FIESS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - A brand new bus carrying a versatile cast of characters embarks this fall on a quixotic quest for the attention of New York State's children.

Its destination will be any school that welcomes it.

The baggage on board will be

everything necessary to transform dusty school auditoriums into the places where such old favorites as "Peter Pan" and "The Wizard of Oz" cast their spells.

The passengers — the 15member acting ensemble of the New York State Youth Theater Institute - will be missionaries with one objective: getting their youthful audiences excited about the arts. To each elementary and secondary school it visits, the institute ensemble will offer a kind of three-day crash course in the theatrical arts. The course will feature productions of two plays and workshops centered on

No one, of course, can yet predict the responses of the audiences waiting along the bus's itinerary. Will it be standing ovations or polite welcomes? Or a diverting break from Behind the institute and its touring program, however, stand almost two years of planning. And the woman who has supervised most of the planning, institute director Pat Snyder, spoke recently of the institute's expectations.

"The arts should be accessible. Yet in many communities there is no children's theater or even a regular professional theater. It's considered a frill, not a necessity," she said.

"We think the arts are a necessity The arts can get youngsters to think about other people. A play like 'The Miracle Worker' can help a child understand the experience of being handicapped even if he has never known a handicapped person."

Through its touring program, the institute intends to bring first-rate productions of plays right into the schools, where they can both educate and entertain the student audiences.

The plays themselves — this season's offerings include "The Miracle Worker," "Our Town," "The Wizard of Oz" and "You Can't Take It With You" - constitute only one part of the innovative educational package that will arrive on board the institute

"We won't go into a school without our workshops. When we visit a school, it's for three days. If a child sees no time was given to something, he doesn't value it," said Mrs. Snyder.

The institute hopes the workshops will be an education for students and teachers alike.

The children will watch the performers put on their makeup and costumes. They'll learn about the historical period in which the play is set. They will discuss playing a role and may even try some acting themselves.

When the institute bus actually takes to the state's highways some time in October, it will mark the culmination of an effort begun two years ago.

In May 1974, the state's lawmakers unanimously passed an amendment to the state education law which declared that the children of New York State needed greater exposure to the creative arts. The amendment created the Empire State Youth Theater Institute to remedy the situation. One Sunday morning recently, the 25 finalists vying for one of the 15 "teacher-artist" ensemble positions gathered in a bare rehearsal hall at the State University of New York campus here. The university administers the institute.

For the next eight hours, the finalists - chosen from more than 300 original applicants - displayed their dancing, singing and acting abilities to a critical panel of judges.

'It's so difficult to choose," said Mrs. Snyder during a break. "We want people who love theater, who are competent in performing and communicating. But they must also have an ability and strong desire to work with young children," she said.

"If they are just interested in developing themselves, they're not for us. We're not training people to take Broadway by storm.

About 30 student interns - undergraduates earning credit toward their degrees by working at the institute - will supplement the main ensemble. The interns will concentrate on the technical aspects of theater, such as lighting, set design

TAMA, Japan (AP) - When 8-yearold Ryuji Satomi finds himself stumped by a difficult English sen-tence, he doesn't always have to run to his parents for help.

If it's a Monday or Wednesday afternoon, the Japanese schoolboy merely flips on the television set, picks up a special telephone and asks the assistance of the amiable image on the screen. There, a qualified English teacher responds by closed circuit broadcasts that go to several hundred families in what is called the world's first "wired city." At the Tama New Town housing

But officials found it difficult to recreate the traditional neighborhood feeling, which the Japanese like, within the clusters of concrete apartment blocks. They hope Tama New Town's experimental "Living Information System" will help supply part of this intangible element.

The small television studio where the experiment is based produces several hours of daily programming - all with the housing project's

The station recruited 10 housewifereporters to keep tabs on area hap-

Project officials say some of the devices in the experiment, like the pay-TV services - although free during the two-year period - are already in use in some countries. But they insist the experiment, now offering nine separate services, is the most diverse of its type.

The morning paper is delivered directly into the living room through a special facsimile machine, which also provides a sports and a business newspaper, a children's daily, and local news bulletins.

By pressing a button, an apartment dweller can have the news flashed on the television screen. Other buttons bring local community news, a weather forecast, sports reports or a guide to shopping bargains.

The Still Picture Request Service teaches cooking, infant care, English grammar and multiplication tables. Need an inexpensive weekend hideaway in the country? Ask the television. It provides tourist information. Curious about your horoscope? Again, consult the tube.

The most popular feature is the broadcast and response service that teaches English conversation and and teachers are able to com-municate directly through the audiovisual hookup.

The experimental program, which costs nothing, also gives the housing project children the opportunity to communicate with foreigners, by practicing their English with Kristie and Debbie Dalebout, teen-age daughters of a U.S. Navy officer from Washington Washington.

Using the push button telephone, viewers answer multiple choice questions flashed on the television screen. The answers are automatically fed into the studio's computer, which periodically prints mathematics to children of primary out "report cards" for mailing to the school age, officials said. Students

Fauvism art showing. draws record crowds

FORT WORTH - "The 'Wild Beasts': Fauvism and Its Affinities" is the first major retrospective exhibition of Fauvist art in 25 years in this country, and its current showing at the Kimbell Art Museum of Fort Worth is the first for the Southwestern U.S. It is attracting record crowds.

The show was organized by the Museum of Modern Art of New York to reacquaint the public with the importance of the Fauve artists whose short-lived movement in 1905 07 revolutionized the subsequent course of modern art. The origins of the movement and its influence on later artists also are traced.

In this first art movement of the then-new century, color was the overriding concern of the loosely-organized group of artists who produced brilliant landscapes, still lifes, portraits. Parisians attending the Autumn Salon of 1905 were shocked at the art produced by the rebels who were termed "les fauves" - the wild beasts. But Fauvism led to modern acceptance of arbitrary color, distortion of forms and the spontaneous application of paint.

The retrospective includes more than 100 paintings plus a few related drawings and sculptures by the adherents of the new movement. Represented with works in the show are such giants of 20th art as Andre Derain, Maurice de Vlaminck, Georges Raoul Dufy, Kees van Dongen and Henri Braque, Piet Mondrian, Calude Monet, Matisse, along with such less widely-known painters as Charles Camoin, Henri-Edmund Cross, Emile-Othon Friesz,

Alexey Jawlensky, Ernst-Ludwig Kirchner, Henri Manguin, Albert Marquet, Emil Nolde, Jean Puy, Paul

Signac, Louis Valtat, Max Pechstein. Because of the historic as well as aesthetic interest of the Fauve show, the Kimbell Museum has scheduled a series of special programs and events during the exhibition in Fort Worth. continuing through Oct. 31.

The first special program was a lecture, "Matisse and Fauvism," presented Tuesday night by John Elderfield, curator of painting and sculpture at the Museum of Modern Art. A similar lecture on "Matisse and the Meaning of Still Life" is scheduled Oct. 14 by Theodore Raff. professor of art history at Columbia University in New York City.

In addition, a series of lectures by members of the Kimbell Museum's professional staff will be presented at 3 p.m. each Sunday. The first in the series on Sept. 26 is titled "Matisse and His Earliest Followers."

This Sunday will feature a concert by the Gallery String Quartet. The concert will offer music of the Fauvist period, by French composers Gabriel Faure and Claude Debussy. The 3:30 p.m. concert will be open to the

In addition to the other special events, daily film programs are presented at noon and 2 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday weekly.

Teurore sieffed onions for another celebration

Pork-filled Sweet Spanish onions highlight a menu planned for a more informal "fest." The attractive onion cups are stuffed with a taste-tempting mixture of ground pork and rice blended with Cheddar cheese soup and seasoned with dill weed. The soup, enhanced with pan drippings, does double duty as a savory accompanying sauce.

Ground pork is routinely available in many markets. If you do not see it, ask your retailer to grind pork for you. Ground pork is a versatile meat choice that is delicious when formed into patties, balls or loaves and when used in casseroles.

The giant size and extremely mild flavor of Idaho-Oregon Sweet Spanish onions make them the perfect onion for stuffing. They also are favored for using raw in salads and sandwiches or cooked in casseroles and other entrees. These gentle giants differ in appearance from other onions by their plump, round shapes and bronze parchmentlike skins.

Served with the stuffed onions is a tangy Waldorf Salad — a traditional pork accompaniment — featuring Delicious apples grown in Washington State.

Pork Stuffed Onions

2 pounds ground pork

4 large Idaho-Oregon Sweet Spanish onions

(3-4 inches in diameter) 2 teaspoons salt

34 teaspoon dill weed

1/8 teaspoon pepper 1 cup cooked rice

1 can (11 ounces) condensed Cheddar cheese soup

1 egg

one-third cup diced green pepper

1 tablespoon flour ¼ cup milk

thin pimiento strips

2 slices bacon, cut in 1-inch pieces and fried Peel onions and cut in halves crosswise. Parboil in salted water 5 minutes. Drain. Remove centers of onions' leaving about 1/2inch thick shells. Chop enough of the onion centers to measure ½ cup.Sprinkle salt, dill weed and pepper over ground pork. Add chopped onion, rice, two-thirds cup of the cheese soup, egg and green pepper; stir lightly to combine. Divide mixture into 8 portions and place a portion in each onion cup, rounding the top. Place stuffed onions in roasting pan. Pour 4 cup boiling water into pan, cover tightly and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 50 minutes. Baste onions with pan liquid and bake, uncovered, 10 minutes or until done. Remove onions to warm platter and keep warm. Pour off all but 1/2 cup pan liquid; stir in flour to blend. Add milk to remaining soup in can, stirring to mix; add to pan liquid and cook, stirring constantly until blended and thickened. Arrange a pimiento strip in a circle on each onion and fill with pieces of bacon. Serve cheese sauce with the stuffed onions. 8 servings.

Harvest Waldorf Salad

Restocking America's larder is the big event of the fall harvest season and the culmination of a year's labor in our agricultural world. This is a happy time for shoppers since abundant supplies of fruits, vegetables and grains come to market. Washington State Delicious apples and Idaho-Oregon Sweet Spanish onions are prominent among the bountiful produce now beginning a new season.

Harvest time also is the time when pork supplies begin to build after summer's scarcity. This year promises more pork for the table — especially welcome news after last year's much lower than average pork production. More fresh pork cuts, such as loin roasts, chops, steaks and ribs, as well as more smoked hams and shoulder rolls, will be appearing in the meat cases everywhere. The big tax bill pending in taxation. Congress has some bad news for many ordinary taxpayers. If you are accustomed to getting tax-free sick pay from your employer, or if you've been taking a deduction for maintaining a part-time office in your home, you may find your taxes going up.

Furthermore, deduction for a vacation home may be in jeopardy, and you can expect Uncle Sam to take his share of your big gambling winnings before you get yours. These provisions, along with continuation of individual and business tax cuts and a variety of special tax benefits are included in the bill which Congress may give final approval to this week.

Here is how some of the changes would affect ordinary taxpayers:

SICK PAY The bill eliminates the present exclusion and replaces it with a much narrower exclusion that benefits only permanently disabled persons who retired before age 65.

"In the 1950s when incomes increased, most people made the traditional switch from pork to beef," Roy said 'With recent income hikes, people have stayed with pork and actually increased their consumption.'

Roy, a professor of agricultural economics, recently completed the first phase of a longrun demand analysis of pork. Based on the analysis, Roy has projected pork demands for the next 10 to 15 years.

"Production and prices go through a cyclical process," Roy said. "The industry calls it the 'hog

"If the hog sector uses our projections, eventually it will help in reducing the price and production fluctuations," he said. "This will be beneficial to the consumer and the producer as well."

Roy statistically analyzed data and projected data from the 1950s through the 1970s. "The effect of rising income was our biggest concern," Roy said Earlier studies have indicated that rising incomes reduced pork consumption."

Roy's study showed that in the 1950s when consumers' per capita incomes rose by 10 per cent, pork consumption declined about 2 per cent. But between 1964 and 1973, when income rose at the same rate as the 1950s, pork consumption went up 5 per cent. Roy said one of the factors affecting the increased desire for pork is the improved quality of the meat.

"Production improvements have caused buyers to lose their fear of getting trichinosis from pork while giving them a leaner, tastier product," Roy said. "The consumer has more confidence in his pork."

Roy said he hopes to see more studies like the one he conducted on pork. "Usually we are almost at the mercy of the market," he said. "Something happens and we try to respond."

"But with better long range projection, we can perhaps reduce prices and control production fluctuations."

Residency clause crackdown has city workers leading double lives

By SUSAN NELSON The Washington Post

CHICAGO — Only a scrap of paper in his wallet, with "in emergency call number, would link "T. J. Fisher" to the phone that rings in a modern, split-level house in a subdivision south of Chicago. The phone there is unlisted and is billed to another name. All his identification cards bear a third name - his real one - and a Chicago address

They indicate that he shops, drives, votes, insures, and saves in Chicago. More than anything else, they show that he lives in Chicago

'Fisher." in his mid-30s, is neither a gangster nor a double agent. He is a Chicago fireman and, in order to protect what he calls his "suburban investment" so that his wife and two young children can live in their quiet neighborhood near what they feel are good schools, he's willing to lead three livs: fireman activist, suburban resident and city employee

He regrets that his children are learning the hypocrisy that to lie is bad, unless they lie to protect daddy's

The City of Chicago's residency requirement is currently being strictly enforced, and now is not the time for Fisher to get caught violating it. His city salary is far more than he could earn in a suburban fire department He rationalizes his actions because his tax base is Chicago, and he tried to live there himself.

Chicago is just one of several cities across the nation involved in disputes about what to do to half flight to the suburbs and it isn't alone in requiring municipal employees to live in the city. But Chicago has only recently begun enforcing its ordinance, on the books since 1901, and in an unorthodox way: sending investigators to find out where employees live.

Fisher and his family haven't yet been visited by city payroll investigators who come to the door of city "residences" or "suburban investments" any hour of the day or night to ask questions. But other city employees have complained of such

Narrow passages, wet bedding all part of fun to cave explorer By DIAL TORGERSON Cave in Kentucky, which may stretch days linking up the different passages

The Los Angeles Times

NAIROBI, Kenya — All over the world, explorers with lights in their helmets, peering into dark passages. are trying to plumb greater distances below the ground. Already the discoverers here of what is claimed to be the world's longest lava cave are planning to go back underground -to try to make it even longer.

Leviathan, as they call their cave 100 miles southeast of Nairobi, is measured at 11 kilometers (almost 6.88 miles), one kilometer longer than the previous record claimed for a lava cave in Hawaii.

Members of the Cave Exploration Group of East Africa found side passages in Leviathan which remained to be explored. In speleology, the exploration and study of caves, side passages count. The group is laying plans to return to the site later this year to add the side passages to Leviathan's total, and

This, they feel, will protect them from other cavers (also called and speologists. sometimes spelunkers) doing the same with the Hawaiian lava flow and surpassing the Kenya record. A lava cave is the tunnel left by cooling in the core of what was once a flow of lava from a volcano. The lava, cutting a path down the slope, cools from the inside out, contracting and leaving the tunnel at the core.

Eventually it is covered with dirt and lies hidden below the soil, an underground river of rock with a passageway down the middle. Lava caves, of course, are much shorter than limestone caves, like Mammoth more than 100 miles.

Jim Simons, 35, a geologist, paleontolgoist and at present a professional bat guano miner, discovered the cave near Kibwezi, in Chyulu forest of southeast Kenya. He was studying aerial photos for sources of commercially practical bat guano, a valuable fertilizer.

Places where the roof had fallen in, termed "collapses" by cavers, appeared at intervals on the surface in a straight line down the lower slopes of the Chyulu hills beneath a nameless volcano cone about 7,000 feet high. What he discovered when he made a preliminary search in September, 1975, was disappointing to a bat guano miner - but exciting to a speleologist. It was clear that the series of passages, although in places narrowing to tiny tunnels barely large enough to crawl through, were interlinked into a cave which extended many kilometers. He named his entry point "Discovery Collapse." That October, Simons and a small party of fellow cavers plotted the cave's course by compass through the forest to an undiscovered collapse which opened into a huge tunnel, bigger than a subway tube, stretching down into the impenetrable darkness. The new entry was called "Compass Collapse.'

"The tunnel was big enough for a train to pass through," said Simons. 'It even has ledges at the sides which look like the benches in a station on the underground, and roots along the roof which look like wires and pipes."

The "Goliath Passage," as it was named, stretched almost a mile, toward other collapses downhill. A full-scale expedition was organized last April. It spent nine

"I guess it's the idea of being the first one there. The sense of discovery. You walk along on the grass on top of the ground, and you know that underneath you there's this whole different, secret world places no one has ever been, things that no one has ever seen before. That's what makes it worth it.'

"We find that lots of people want to explore a new cave," said her husband, Chris, 27, an ecologist who is completing his doctorate at the University of Nairobi. "But if it's a cave that people have been in before, no one cares much. It's the exploration that is exciting.

famous and otherwise. Faye's has become the favorite haunt of Jimmy Carter's camp followers. largely because it offers the best steaks in the area and a relaxed atmosphere for informal socializing, all at prices that big-city folks find hard to believe.

For $5.50 for a onepound T-bone steak, complete with baked potato, tossed salad, maybe a vegetable or two and all the sugary iced tea you can drink, it even becomes possible to overlook the fact that the juke box has played Carter's "Why Not the Best?" campaign song four times during dinner.

In any other town, 40year-old Faye West would probably still be serving barbeque plates and sandwiches to 30 or 40 people a day, which is what she was doing until last spring when some friends introduced her to a Secret Service agent who was helping guard Carter at his home in Plains, 10 miles away.

She suggested that the agent drop by for lunch, and he did. "Then the next week a bunch of agents, maybe six or eight of them, started coming every night and finally they all came," Faye recalled recently. "They'd call the first thing when they got back to town and they'd say, Faye, what have you got tonight?', and I'd say, 'What do y'all want'. We cook steaks, barbeque'd chicken, whatever they wanted."

Gradually, as the press corps moved into town and into Faye's as well, she stopped opening for lunch and switched from barbeque to steaks, although she still fixes barbeque now and then, when she has the time and the high price of pork doesn't drive her away from the counter.

She figures she serves about 75 people a night but has never tried to make an accurate count. Most of her customers now are journalists, campaign staffers and agents (some of whom keep coming back even though they've moved their lodgings to Albany, Ga., about 45 miles away).

Although Carter has never eaten at Faye's his mother and sister Gloria join the throng for dinner once or twice a week, and brother Billy and his family come now and

Faye proudly notes that she fixed a take-out chicken salad plate for Rosalynn Carter when Walter Mondale came to Plains for his vice presidential screening in early July and made barbeque for a party that Carter and Mondale threw for the press and campaign staff after the nominating convention.

Faye became something of a celebrity when the press corps took her to New York's "21" Club, when Carter flew there for a campaign visit during the summer. It was her first plane trip and first foray north of Atlanta, and Faye said all the predictable things about New York prices, prompting a flood of mail, some complimentary and some not.

She has more or less duplicated the chopped steak she had at "21," the main difference being that she sells it for $2.95 instead of $8.50 and calls it "Villa 21."

Whenever she has the time, Mrs. West cooks up one or more vegetables, which she throws in free of charge on a first-come, first-serve basis. The regetables — fresh when

Change of Senate committees urged

By SPENCER RICH The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A special panel has come up with proposals to reorganize and simplify the Senate committee system, and the reason is illustrated by the multiple responsibilities of men like Sen. Howard W. Cannon (D-Nev.).

Cannon, fast becoming one of the senior barons, is only one person, but he is a member of five Senate committees - Armed Services, Space, Commerce, Ethics and Rules — and is chairman of two — Ethics and Rules.

He also serves on 14 subcommittees of the five committees and is chairman of six of the subcommittees, including the Aviation Subcommittee of the Commerce Committee and the Tactical Airpower Subcommittee of Armed Services.

He also serves on two joint committees - Printing and Library - where he is chairman or vice chairman.

Right now there are 31 standing, special, select and joint Senate committees with 174 subcommittees. The average senator serves on at least 18 panels, compared with an average of four 30 years ago.

Being spread that thin puts a tremendous burden on a senator, especially when two or more of his subcommittees meet at the same time in different

Senators miss some meetings, some committees must adjourn for lack of a quorum, business is delayed.

The committee structure has long been recognized as a crazyquilt of overlapping jurisdictions, so much so that on one recent energy bill involving serveral different committees, 25 of the Senate's 100 members were named to the House-Senate conference committee on the bill.

The most recent change in Senate committee structure came two years ago when the Budget Committee was created. But the last major reform of committees occurred in the 1946 legislative reorganization.

A Senate Select Committee on Committees, headed by Adlai E. Stevenson (D-Ill.) and Bill Brock (R-Tenn.), has offered three proposals to make the Senate committee system a little more rational, a little less burdensome, a little more efficient.

'There is no perfect system which will enable the Senate to do all that it wants to do," Stevenson and Brock said. But they said they hoped to make final recommendations in time for the 95th Congress when it convenes in January.

On Wednesday the Committee on Committees will begin drafting a single proposal after hearings Tuesday on the three now being offered.

The first is to keep the present 31-committee structure, but cut the number of subcommittees from 174 to 120, limit a senator to four committees and eight subcommittees, and provide more rational jurisdiction with less overlapping of functions.

Possible jurisdictional changes under this alternative are merging the Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees into a national security committee, and giving the Committee on Public Works sole responsibility for environmental matters, and the Interior Committee sole responsibility for energy matters (which now are handled by five or some as yet unformed alternative - will go into six different committees). Also suggested is effect may well depend on Howard Cannon. As establishing a new science and technology com- chairman of the Rules Committee, Cannon could mittee and eliminating the Joint Atomic Energy

Included in the first alternative is rotation of committee memberships and chairmanships perhaps every six years, to give younger members more opportunity for good assignments and to preclude committee members from becoming cozy with agencies and groups over whom they have jurisdiction.

A key element of the plan would be to give one unit - perhaps the Rules Committee or the Secretary of the Senate's office - authority to set up a system for central scheduling of meetings to avoid time con-

Another key element would give the majority and minority leaders, acting jointly, power to create temporary committees to handle special matters in order to break jurisdictional deadlocks, or to make joint referral of matters to several committees by majority vote instead of by unanimous consent only.

The second proposal is to cut the 31 committees to 12, with a maximum of 120 subcommittees, only two committee assignments per senator, only one committee chairmanship per senator.

This plan would meld the Intelligence, Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees into a national security unit, combine the Labor, Nutrition, Veterans and Aging committees into a human resources unit, combine most of the functions of the Interior, Public Works and Joint Atomic Energy committees into an energy-science environment committee.

The plan also calls for rotation of committee memberships and chairmanships and greater powers for the leadership to break jurisdictional deadlocks. Most of the committees would be organized around some function. The Appropriations and Budget committees would remain essentially the

The third alternative would cut the 31 committees to five broad-function "management" units, each of which would establish an annual program in its area and have 20 members and 12 subcommittees. A senator could belong to only one of the five committees. He could serve on two of its subcommittees and on one subcommittee from one of the other four

The five major committees would be: governmental resources (communications, revenue sharing, management of all government business, judicial matters, post office, etc.); human resources (health, labor, education, welfare, aviation, etc.) financial resources (banking and monetary matters, budget goals, taxes); defense and foreign policy, and natural resources (environment, energy, minerals, fisheries, agriculture), each of the five broadfunction committees would handle all legislation, program authorizations and appropriations for the areas within its jurisdiction - subject to the overall budgetary targets set by the financial resources

This plan, like the other two, calls for rotation of memberships and added powers for the leadership to break jurisdictional disputes and to create ad hoc combinations of subcommittees.

Whether any of these three reform plans - or have a large say in any changes in rules affecting th committee structure.

Moslems reject decrees

(AP) - The Lebanese Moslems today rejected decrees from President Suleiman Franjieh concentrating all constitutional powers in Stitutional powers in Christian hands for the first time in Lebanon's 32 years of independence. A Moslem spokesman said a cabinet reshuffle decreed by the Christian president Wednesday night amounted to the virtual dismissal of Moslem Premier Rashid

Karami "This is a precedent no Moslem can accept or allow to happen at any cost," said a spokesman for the Grand Mufti, the spiritual head of the Moslem Sunni sect that has held the premiership since independence from

"Moslems originally took up arms 17 months ago to achieve equal powers with Christians,' the spokesman continued. "Franjieh's new move shows the man is not willing to budge. The cumbent shake up the government that will stitutionally within a week?" the Phalangist broadcast asked. "The trouble created by the cashuffle appears absolutely unneccessary." Franjieh's decree took control of the ministries of finance, defense and information away from Karami and transferred them to former President Camille Chamoun.

Texas White House: aging owner seeks to sell it

By ROB WOOD

LA PORTE, Tex. AP - Paul Barkley sat on the south portico of the White House and watched two oil tankers slide silently along the horizon of Galveston Bay.

A small flock of kildeer darted up from the salt grass, turned and vanished west toward a qall of haze covering Houston, 30 miles away. No, the White House hasn't been moved. But it is up for sale. At least Barkley's White House, a carbon copy of the real thing—is up for sale.

Barkley, a 76-year-old Texan who made his money in banking, pipelines and investments, bought a replica of the White House in 1961, and is now ready to sell the property, fronting Galveston Bay, for $415,000.

The house is a replica of the home where presidents live, actually about three-fifths the size of the one in Washington, but containing 34 rooms. The second of the three floors includes nine bedrooms and nine bathrooms. There's no politics involved. Barkley said he will sell to a Republican or a Democrat or an Independent, just as long as the buyer has the money.

The home, built in 1926 by former Texas Gov. Ross Sterling, sits on five acres of land, with 597 feet of water- legend," he said. front on the bay. Murkey water laps on a sandy beach and the wind blows clear and cool each day, eliminating the need for air-conditioning-a near must in nearby Houston.

Barkley purchased the house about 16 years ago "as an investment. Never really thought about living here, you know with 21,000 square feet of space under roof. But I guess the wife and I fell in love with the place. It is just too much now to keep up, as we both are growing older. It should be perfect for someone who wants a great place to give parties, and by golly we have done that many a night.' Barkley and his wife get a kick out of entertaining the local Catholic church bingo games, or a group of fraternity boys from a nearby college, or the astronauts from the Johnson Space Center down the road, or the Houston opera company. Or you name it Barkley is proud of the history of the nonpolitical White House and he wants it to go to someone who will appreciate it.

"It's not just us selling the White House or somebody saying they own it. It's seeing this place taken care of and people remembering the history and keeping it a part of the Texas

First, the history of this home that seems to leap from the pages of the Great Gatsby, or another F. Scott Fitzgerald novel, or a Hollywood dream

According to legend, Sterling pulled a $20 bill from his wallet and told the architect, "Make it look like this."

Sterling founded Humble Oil & Refining Co., now Exxon. Sterling, worth $28 million, paid $1.4

million for his house. As time passed, Sterling lost some of his money, in fact most of his money, and the second White House was turned over to the Houston Optimist Club as a home for wayward boys.

Those 70 homeless boys almost destroyed the place, ripping out light fixtures, sliding down its expensive banisters and kicking out slats in solid maple doors. Barkley doesn't criticize the boys, but just wishes there had been some other place for the over-active youngsters to burn up their energy. There are 15 all-tile bathrooms, seven fireplaces, three kitchens and all of this is in addition to the bedrooms, and a big entrance room.

Barkley, bouncy and alert, enjoys showing visitors the improvements he has made over the years and brags about the fact he furnishes the White House with left-overs from other homes and give-aways from friends, and even "a few things I picked up from the Salvation Army.'

Barkley admits, "If I were younger, I would try to furnish the place with antiques. Not now. It is too much of a burden. Well, the school property taxes alone are $3,000 a year.'

For the past five or so years, Bertha Russell has attempted to restore the interior of the residence to what it was once meant to be.

She had to stop work for a few mon-ths because of the constant smell of paint and fluid needed to restore the native wood.

returned to work. The old place is beginning to look more and more like it once did, back in those days of the By ALFRED SHEINWOLD mid-1920s

Barkley won't tell what he paid for the new White House, but admits he has spent more on repairs than he did for the original cost.

When the jack dropped, South led a heart to the ten but couldn't get back for the ace of hearts. He led a club from dummy, but East took the king and led a spade, defeating the contract.

CRIMINAL IDENTIFIED

It should be easy to spot South as the criminal. He was last seen leaving the scene of the crime wearing a gray suit and a broad smile. Only a confirmed criminal could smile after misplaying this hand, but a man may smile and smile and be a villain.

South should begin with the hearts instead of the diamonds. When the jack falls, he can take the ten of hearts and then get back to his hand with the queen of diamonds to cash the last heart. Only then should he go after the diamonds.

This play permits South to make the contract if either red suit breaks favorably. If neither suit breaks well, South should keep a stiff upper lip. Into each life some rain must fall.

Three blocks away they caught him, grappled with him and got the purse. The thief broke loose and ran.

By RICHARD T. COOPER

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - The Interior Department, overruling its own top officials in Anchorage, has ordered federal inspectors on the Alaska pipeline to use stop-work orders more aggressively as a means of forcing greater attention to quality control and repairs.

The order, issued by Undersecretary Kent Frizzell, is based on a special report by Interior Department investigators, who concluded that the pipeline construction company has been "slow to improve quality control and to fully correct welding and radiography deficiencies" found by inspectors.

Issuing orders halting construction whenever serious deficiencies in work quality or quality control are found will stimulate "increased responsiveness' on the part of Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., the consortium of eight major oil companies that is building the pipeline, Interior Department investigators said.

The Interior Department report said spot checks indicated that the pipeline's much-criticized quality control program generally is now "functioning effectively" and "no evidence of wrongdoing, negligence or impropriety" was found on the part of federal officials in Alaska.

The report appeared to lend some support, however, to recent charges by House investigators that welding and x-ray problems plaguing the line in 1975 have continued to trouble it in 1976 — charges that were vigorously denied last week by Frizzell and other Administration officials.

Twenty-two out of the 68 reports of incidents of critical construction deficiencies written by inspectors during April, May, and June of 1976 were for the same types of problems "strongly objected to during 1975, yet no stop-work orders were issued for these type welding or quality control problems," the Interior Department investigators said.

In approving the recommendation for more aggressive use of stop-work orders, Frizzell overruled objections raised by the Alaska Pipeline Office. which is the federal office with direct responsibility for monitoring work on

Although the federal government's agreement with Alyeska authorizes the halting of construction whenever substandard work is detected, APO officials argued that aggressive use of the stoppage power might not result in improved performance.

Until now, they said, APO's policy has been only to notify Alyeska quickly when problems were spotted and request remedial action. On the controversial question of whether or not Alyeska is keeping quality control inspectors on duty as required, APO

SEPM sets meeting

The Permian Basin Section of Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists will open its monthly noon luncheon meeting schedule Tuesday in the Civic Room of the Hilton Hotel.

The buffet style luncheon will begin at 11:40 a.m. Reservations must be made by Friday, Sept. 17.

John F. Houser, Shell Development Co., New Orleans, will be the speaker. His topic will be "Bed Continuity and Permeability Variations of Recent Deltaic Sediments." The subject is applicable to several producing clastic trends in the Permian Basin.

Houser is currently section leader of geological engineering for Shell. He has been associated with several research projects involving offshore Gulf Coast tertiary sediments since he began working for Shell in 1967.

Eddy fields are extended

Yates Petroleum Corp. of Artesia, N.M., completed No. 1-GC Federal Communitized as the third Morrow well and 14-mile northeast extension to that pay in the Richard Knob field of Eddy County, N.M. It gauged a final flow of 3.7 million require an inspector to be on site for 100 per cent coverage of all operations."

Interior makes move

In urging more frequent use of stopwork orders, however, Interior Department investigators argued in effect that the government program of spot checks is essentially a deterrence strategy which assumes that some deficiencies will go undetected by federal inspectors but counts on the possibility of detection to stimulate vigorous quality control by Alyeska itself. Thus if detection of substandard work does not result in strong federal action, there may be little incentive for vigorous monitoring by the company, the report implied.

The investigators' recommendation, adopted by Frizzell in an order to the APO, is that whenever it is found that no quality control inspector is present on a site while critical activities are going on, work should always be ordered stopped.

Also, stoppage orders should be used more aggressively when in-spectors find substandard work that requires immediate action or that threatens the integrity of the pipeline

Midland.

Vance E. Payne Jr, is landman and R. Paul Robbins is senior landman.

Payne, a graduate of Stephen F. Austin State University, worked in the land department of Amoco Production Co. and prior to joining Enserch, he was employed by Prairie Producing Co. in Houston.

He is a member of Permian Basin Landmen's Association (PBLA), Houston Association of Petroleum

Houston Association of Petroleum Landmen and American Association of Petroleum Landmen (AAPL).

Robbins formerly was associated with the land department of Mobil Oil Corp. for 13 years. He has been an independent landman in Midland and Abilene since 1965.

Three different adult education courses offered

Beginning Tuesday, three different adult basic education courses will be offered under the sponsorship of Midland College.

General Education Development (GED) and Adult Basic Education (ABE) courses will be offered at the Carver Building from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Instructors will be Pat Magness, Roy Dennis and Margaret Williams English as a second language will be taught at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church by Dora Zepeda from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. Similar courses will be offered through the Permian Basin Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center at times to be scheduled. Instructor will be

The college has taken over operations and supervision of the programs from the Midland In-

GED is structured to assist those who were high school drop-outs. After training, students may take the GED test that is usually accepted as the equivalent of a high school diploma.

As part of their training, the various Midland instructors will attend a two-day adult education workshop Sept. 17 and 18 at Odessa College. Leading the workshop will be George Beene, field consultant with the Texas Education Agency; Ann

Couvillion, who teaches adult education at the Big

concerned with adult education programs for the College of the Mainland. "Our aim is to teach basic skills and life-coping skills simultaneously," Mrs. Aldridge siad. "For example, we teach math and how to use a catalog and read an ad; we teach English and how to make a job application; we teach social studies and such necessities as how to read a map or get a driver's

Market turns upward

NEW YORK (AP)-The stock market turned in a mixed showing today, failing to extend Wednesday's modest gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up .67 on Wednesday, had dropped back .25 to 979.06 by noon today.

Gainers held onto a 4-3 lead over loser's among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers noted a paucity of encouraging economic news to sustain the scattered buying that set in Wednesday. At today's opening the government reported that personal income in August registered its smallest rise in 13 months.

Jostens was the most active Big Board issue, down 16 at 23. A 147,100-share block traded at that price. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks edged up .04 to 55.71. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .15 at 102.38. Volume on the Big Board tapered off to 6.87 shares over the first two hours from 7.60 million in the comparable period Wednesday. Servomation added 11/8 to 164. The company announced a plan to offer $17.50 apiece for 700,000 of its outstanding common shares.

International Proteins topped the Amex active list, down ¼ at %.

An interesting main dish comes from Ecuador. It's called Llapingacho (pronounced Yapingacho) and consists of potato cakes, cheese, fried eggs, peanut sauce and a garnish of lettuce.

When I called the Ecuadorean Consulate General in New York to check on the spelling of Llapingacho, he told me that the word is from Quechua (pronounced Quechwa), the language of the Incas. He said, too, that although Llapingacho is especially popular with the Indians of the Andean valleys, it is a truly national Ecuadorean dish.

Although a recipe for Llapingacho was published in a U.S. cookbook over 50 years ago, the dish is not well known here. When I discovered that a New York restaurant serves Llapingacho, a friend and I tasted it there several times; it varied in execution, ranging from good to poor. We decided to devleop our own version of the dish and the recipe follows.

LLAPINGACHO, U.S.A.

Potato Cakes Peanut Sauce, recipe follows 8 slices Munster or Mozzarella cheese, cut into 21/2-inch rounds Steam-fried Eggs, recipe follows Shredded Iceberg lettuce,

for garnish

Potato Cakes: Pare 114 pounds (4 medium) potatoes and cut into 1-inch cubes. In a heavy medium saucepan bring the potatoes to a boil with 14 cup water and 1/2 teaspoon salt; boil gently, covered, until tender — about 15 minutes; drain off any tiny amount of water. Mash smooth with 2 tablespoons butter; cool; makes about 2 cups. Using about ¼ cup for each, form into eight 3-inch-wide cakes. Coat with about 2 tablespoons flour. Set aside.

Make the Peanut Sauce and keep hot as directed. Fry the Potato Cakes: In a heavy 10-inch skillet heat 2 tablespoons butter; add 4 of the Potato Cakes; brown on both sides. Remove to a heatproof platter in a warm oven. Heat 2 tablespoons more butter and fry remaining Potato Cakes the same way; add to the platter in the oven.

Top each of the Potato Cakes with a slice of the cheese. Continue keeping warm while you steam-fry

Top each of the Potato Cakes with an egg as directed in Steam-fried Eggs recipe and spoon a little of the Peanut Sauce over each; pass remaining Sauce separately. Garnish with the lettuce and serve

PEANUT SAUCE

In a 1-pint measure dissolve 1 bouillon cube in 1 cup boiling water; whisk in ¼ cup creamy peanut butter, 1 teaspoon tomato paste, 1/8 teaspoon nutmeg and cayenne pepper to taste. In the top of a double boiler over direct heat, melt 1 tablespoon butter; add 1 tablespoon minced onion, 2 tablespoons minced celery and a tiny clove of garlic (minced); cook gently over direct heat, stirring constantly, for several minutes; stir in the bouillon mixture and cook over moderately low heat until thickened and boiling. Fill the bottom of the double boiler with hot water and place the sauce over it; keep hot, stirring occasionally, over low heat. Makes about 14 cups. If sauce is thicker than you like, add a little bouillon.

STEAM-FRIED EGGS

butter. Crack each of 4 eggs into 4 custard cups. When there are tiny bubbles in the melted butter, add the eggs; let the edges of the eggs set. Sprinkle with 11/2 tablespoons hot water. Cover tightly and continue cooking over low heat until eggs are done as much as you like. Top 4 of the Potato Cakes in the oven with the eggs; steam-fry 4 more eggs in the same fashion and arrange over remaining Potato Cakes.

FOOD QUESTIONS

The Los Angeles Times

Question — Does honey spoil? A jar of clover honey that I have stored in the refrigerator for more than 2 years has crystallized. Can I still use it?

Answer - Honey is a natural food that crystallizes but does not spoil. You can use it as a spread or reliquify it. To reliquify, place the jar in a pan of hot (not boiling) water until it becomes liquid. Another trick is to place the jar in an extremely low oven (no higher than 200 degrees). Honey should be stored in a dry place as it absorbs moisture. Keeping it in the refrigerator will hasten crystallization.

Q. — I recently canned some beets but was surpsied to see them turn grayish white. What caused

A. — When beets turn white, it is usually because of the variety used. When beets are too old they lose their pigmentation. Choose the very dark variety such as Harvard beets and make certain they are young and freshly gathered. Vinegar or lemon juice will also help beets keep their red pigment.

Q. — When making butter cream frosting. I boil the specified amount of sugar and water to 230 degrees. Meanwhile, I beat egg yolks in a mixer bowl and slowly pour in the hot sugar syrup, beating constantly. Could you please tell me why the sugar syrup sometimes hardens upon contact with the yolks and I end up with clumps of crystallized sugar?

A. — I used to have the same crystallization problem during my early attempts to make French problem during my early attempts to make French butter cream with sugar syrup. I quickly found the following causes: (1) The syrup had very little water, either because little was added in the beginning or it had evaporated too fast, (2) the syrup was boiled too long, nearing caramelization, or left to stand and not added immediately to the egg yolks and (3) the egg yolks were too cold causing quick hardening of the syrup upon contact with each other.

Syrup added to the yolks should be clear and not too thick and the yolks should be warm enough to prevent cooling and hardening of the syrup. Julia Child in her "French Chef Cookbook" suggests slowly adding the hot syrup while beating the eggs (she uses 1 egg and 3 egg yolks) with a wire whip and "...set the bowl of eggs over pan of almost simmering water and beat with a wire whip until mixture is very hot to your finger, and when a bit is lifted it drops back onto the surface forming slowly it drops back onto the surface forming slowly dissolving ribbon. Set bowl in mixer stand (or over cold water) and beat until cool - 5 minutes."

Q. — Do you have a quick method for making French Fried Eggs and Deviled Eggs?

A. — Try this technique taken from Doubleday's "Eggs Cookbook": "Dip shelled hard-cooked or poached eggs into beaten eggs, then roll in fine bread or cereal crumbs. Chill 2 hours. Heat cooking oil 1 1-2 inches does in small saucenanto 285 does not be the cooking oil 1 1-2 inches does in small saucenanto 285 does not be the cooking oil 1 1-2 inches does in small saucenanto 285 does not be the cooking oil 1 1-2 inches does not sauce the cooking oil 1 1-2 inches does n inches deep, in small saucepan to 385 degrees. Copley News Service
If you have tried enough Mexican dishes to satisfy your taste for tortillas and tomato salsa for awhile, move on to South America for a dish of "fejoada completa."

A regional dish from Rio de Janeiro, it is now considered the Brazilian national dish. It is a complicated mixture of meats and black beans, served with rice, black beans and a citrus fruit.

Here, the traditional six meat dishes are simplified, but the flavor is superb. In this streamlined version chubby sausages and a loin of pork basted with an orange sauce are accompanied by a really exotic bean sauce.

Made a day ahead, the sauce features kidney beans simmered slowly with sausages and smoked meats and flavored with garlic, onion and raisins for just a touch of sweetness.

In true Brazilian style, the meal is served buffet-style. Guests heap their plates with the pork, sausages, bean sauce and rice. Bowls of marinated onions, sliced oranges and baked bananas round out a superb but surprisingly easy-to-do dinner. GLAZED LOIN OF PORK

4 lbs. loin of pork

1 tsp. salt Ground pepper

1 cup orange juice One-half cup brown sugar, firmly packed One and one-half tsps. ground ginger

One-fourth tsp. ground cloves

Sliced oranges Rub pork with salt and pepper and insert meat thermometer. Roast at 325 degrees 35 minutes to the pound, or until thermometer reads 170 degrees. Simmer orange juice, sugar and spices over low heat for 30 minutes. Use to baste pork during last 30 minutes of roasting.

To serve, slice loin and garnish with orange slices.

Makes six servings.

SAUSAGES

One and one-half lbs. smoked sausages (Portuguese linguica or Spanish chorizo)

Saute the sausages in oil over very low heat until they are heated through, about 20 minutes.

Serve on a platter with the pork and oranges. Makes six servings.

BEAN SAUCE 1 (16-oz.) pkg. kidney beans

7 cups water One-fourth lb. beef chuck

One-fourth lb. salt pork, sliced 1 pickled pig's foot, quartered (optional)

1 cup raisins 1 tbsp. olive oil

1 small onion, chopped

2 cloves garlic, minced Salt and pepper to taste

Place beans, water, beef, salt pork and pig's foot in large, heavy kettle:

Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer, covered, for one and one-half hours or until beans are tender. Remove from heat and discard meat. Add raisins.

Heat oil in a small skillet, add onion and garlic; cook until just tender. Stir into beans along with salt and pepper to taste. Refrigerate overnight to allow flavors to blend. Heat for an hour before serving, stirring occasionally. Makes six servings.

MARINATED ONIONS

3 tbsps. olive oil

3 tbsps. red wine vinegar 2 tbsps. Tabasco

One-fourth tsp. salt

Peel the onion and slice it paper-thin.

Drop onion rings into boiling water; drain and rinse with cold water. Combine the remaining ingredients in a mixing bowl.

Add onion rings and marinate at room temperature for at least three hours. Makes six servings.

One and one-half cups long-grain rice 1 onion, peeled and thinly sliced

2 tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped

2 green chili peppers, seeded and chopped One and one-half cups beef broth

Two-thirds cup golden raisins (optional) One and one-half tsps. salt

Heat oil in a medium-sized skillet. Add rice and onion; cook over very low heat for 10 minutes.

Stir in tomatoes and green chili peppers.

Pour in the beef broth slowly to avoid spattering.

Stir in raisins and salt. Bring rice to a boil, lower heat and cook for 20 to 25 minutes. Makes six ser-

SURPRISE HAM STEAK

PD About 30 minutes before serving, preheat oven to 325 degrees. Trim any excess fat from a one-pound ham steak. Place steak on a bake-and-serve platter. Bake 15 minutes, turning once. Meanwhile, in a small bowl, mix three-fourths cup low-fat cottage cheese, one tablespoon horseradish and one tablespoon white vinegar. Spread over top of ham steak. Continue baking five minutes more to heat through. Makes four servings.

ORANGE BAKED CHICKEN

6 whole chicken breasts, skinned One-fourth cup minced onion One-half tsp. paprika

One-half tsp. paprika

1 tsp. salt
One-fourth tsp. rosemary
One-eighth tsp. pepper
2 tbsps. flour
2 cups orange juice
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Spread chicken breasts open, arrange in large shallow baking pan, breast sides up, not overlapping. Sprinkle with onion and seasonings. PD In medium bowl, thoroughly blend flour with one-half cup orange juice; stir in remaining juice; pour it over chicken. Bake, uncovered, for one hour or until tender, basting occasionally with juice in pan. Stir pan juices to blend and pour over chicken. Makes six servings.

Camera can help you buy, sell or remodel house

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Writer

If you are planning to buy a house, remodel a house, sell a house or even decorate a house, you can get a lot of mileage out of a camera, suggests Alfred Howarth of New York, an architect and interior designer.

'In our business a color camera provides a useful record of many things. If we must travel to see a house, we may forget certain details that are important, but the photograph can refresh our memories so that we do not need to take another trip." He uses the camera for architectural and interior design pur-

"In addition a camera can give you something to work with after you leave a project - it often reveals things you haven't even noticed when you looked at a house."

In fact, in one photograph Howarth, who studied architecture in Canada. noted that the ridge of a roof was bowed. It had not been apparent when he was on the site, but the camera emphasized the disrepair. On a new house such a problem means deterioration, he explained, so repairs would be necessary before they could proceed with other plans.

"You really must be willing to get up on a stepladder and photograph the roof, which can reveal conditions you might not be able to see from the ground. It might mean shoring up an area before you can work below.'

In another example, a photograph picked up a strong shadow on a wall, an indication that the old house to be remodeled had been partitioned at some time or another. Exploratory work in the attic above that room revealed that one area was sagging because the partition had been removed.

In the architectural business, the cost of a consultation can be cut down considerably by using a camera to record the elevations and various angles of the house if a client wants to do so in advance of meeting with the architect whose fees are set on an

Little photographs can be blown up later if one needs larger prints and color cameras can provide instant snapshots even with space on the bottom border to jot down details. But it really doesn't matter what kind of camera you use so long as it serves your purpose, says Howarth, who has been serving as a homes specialist consultant to the Polaroid Corp. He is also a member of he American Society of Interior Designers.

"It is expensive nowadays to get scaffolding built, so if you want to get good view of the ceiling, a photograph can be very helpful. This can be done on a ladder," he advises. Pipes, wires and even studs in old photographed to serve any number of purposes - to indicate where they are located or to prove what is behind the walls if you ever must do so.

As for people who are planning to buy a house, which might necessitate some costly trips to another city, a lot of information can be passed on to a mate by taking photographs. Real estate people often supply snapshots but these may be little flattering views of the best angle of the house. The house shopper can do more. Photographs showing negative aspects may prove to be a saving factor — removing the house from serious consideration. On the other photographs may be a selling point with one's partner, saving time and money.

Cameras long have been useful to interior designers as Howarth maintains, especially useful when one wants to capture colors, motif and style for future reference or to show to another interested person. They can be used to photograph oddshaped windows to assist in their draping and might be used also to photograph furniture that might need reupholstering. Photographs are useful also when one wants to remember the pattern and colors in rugs and fabrics on shopping trips.

Japanese Defense Agency sources said dismantling would start Friday.

The agency has requested assistance from U.S. military authorities in transporting the sophisticated interceptor from the commercial airfield at Hokkaido to a Japanese Defense Agency airfield aboard giant U.S. Air Force C-5A Galaxy aircraft, the ources said.

The sources said it would take about a week to dismember the MIG, in particular removing the wings and tail sections.

Defense agency experts will make a thorough examination of the plane at the military air base, the sources said. (In Moscow, the official Soviet news agency Tass said Japanese authorities are planning to airlift the MIG to an American base for examination by American experts.
