Networks threaten no debate coverage

By STEPHEN ISAACS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The four national television networks are threatening not to cover the debate between the two major presidential candidates next Thursday.

Officials of the networks say they are outraged that they will not be permitted to televise reactions of members of the hand-picked audience that has been invited to watch the debate in Philadelphia's Walnut Street Theater.

They claim that the restriction amounts to prior censorship and insist they cannot stand for it.

The restriction was agreed to earlier by the sponsor of the debate, the League of Women Voters, at the request of the candidates themselves.

News officials of the three commercial networks and the Public Broadcasting System have demanded a hearing Saturday before the League to get the restriction changed.

The networks themselves had tried to get a waiver of the equal time provisions of broadcast law to hold the presidential debates themselves, as they did in the 1969 presidential election year. Their proposal called for the debates to be held in a studio with no audience whatever.

Congress refused to waive the provisions of the equal time law — which would require the networks to give a long list of presidential candidates an equal forum — as it did for the 1960 debates.

The networks have aimed their ire mostly at James Karayn, the project director for the debates, on the assumption that the guideline, of not allowing them to focus in one members of the audience, was his decision.

But Karayn, it was determined Friday, is actually carrying out the insistence of the candidates' representatives.

Walter J. Pfister Jr., a vice president of the American Broadcasting Co. — which has been chosen by the networks to be the "pool" agency for all of them and film the first debate on Thursday, said Friday that:

"We have a major problem, and that is that Karayn and the League say we cannot take reaction pictures of the audience. They're forbidding us to light the audience or 'mike' it (put microphones in the audience) or to have a camera put on it."

"We are covering this as a news event, covering it as we would any other news event. The audience is part of the news event and we should not be denied the right to cover that part."

Pfister said that, at a meeting Tuesday in Philadelphia, Karayn "got tough on it and said, 'That's our position and these are the rules. If you don't want to cover it under the rules, that's your own decision.'"

Michael Duval, special counsel to President Ford, who told of the networks' threat to in effect boycott the debates because of the guideline, said, simply:

"I suppose we could have the biggest newspaper and radio show in modern history."

The League of Women Voters chose three persons to negotiate a format for the '76 Presidential Debates' (four debates are planned, one of them between the two vice presidential candidates), two of these persons — called chairmen — will be at Saturday's appeal meeting.

One chairman, former Nixon administration official Rita Hauser, said Friday that "CBS wants to do a number of things that we're not prepared to have them do."

CBS also is insisting that it have its own camera on the set, in addition to the nine pool cameras planned although the other networks are not apparently making an issue of the extra camera — called a "unilateral camera" — for themselves.

"We don't want the networks to show reactions," said Hauser, "and the candidates feel strongly about it. The respective candidates don't want the audience to be a factor in this. We

Brotherhood is main feature of fiesta

10th of September Fiesta Patron George Maita noted the sponsoring Eastside Lions scattered some $4,000 around town in public service projects last year and have committed more than $3,000 for scholarships this year. The Mexican Independence celebration is the major source of such funds.

But you only need to spend about 10 minutes at the four-day affair on Midland's east side—from the first guitar-assisted mass under the soaring beams of Nuestra Sena de Guadalupe church to the final mariachis and tamales at Hogan park late Sunday—to realize the main idea here is simply hermanismo—brotherhood.

I must urge you to see and feel and share in the warmth of our Latinesque neighbors at first hand during this fiesta instead of reading about it here or anywhere else. (Which is also an unnecessary plea since more than 10,000 souls participated last year.)

And I only wish the major address of the Thursday night banquet by Dr. (of education) Patricio Haramillo of UTPB had been taped for re-play on every radio station in the Southwest. I cannot do it justice here, but the wise and eloquent professor called on the ghosts of the conquistadores, Cortez and Pizarro and Coronado, and the revolutionists Padre Hidalgo and Morelos and the men of Cuauhtemoc, the peasant zealots like Benita Juarez and Zapata and Pancho Villa and the philosophers like Jose Vasconcelos, and summed it all up (although it's criminal to simplify what was simply an epic poem about the brown people of Mexican America) with the final, simple description of the current state of La Raza: "confused, bewildered—but PROUD."

It was a magnificent moment, and a standing ovation from some 300 celebrants was little enough recognition of that fact.

But it was a night of sweetness and joy, from the Rev. Fr. Ron Marlowe's surprisingly Hispanic Spanish rendition of the events at Cuauhtemoc in 1810 that brought freedom from Spain for the sons of the Aztecs, through lovely Mexican music like "Viva Mexico" sung by Grace Rayos and plucked by her father, George Velos, Sr., and the presentation of a awards to friends and supporters by Lions President Ruben Vargas and the presentation Queen Elida Ochoa and Princess Isela Gracia and the often witty always business-like remarks by pharmacist Leni McKinzie and —one of the nicer moments of the first evening, I thought—the moment of silent contemplation about the "deaths of good Mexicans" at Cuauhtemoc and elsewhere before Jeweler Phil Bustamante led the pledge of allegiance to the American flag.

Space shuttle unveiled

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP) — Mr. Spock was on hand and the Air Force band played the music from "Star Trek" as a red, white and blue tractor pulled America's Space Shuttle orbiter into the sunlight Friday for its public unveiling.

The stubby, 122-foot-long orbiter is the next stage of the U.S. space program. The craft, described as "part spacecraft, part launch vehicle and part airplane," will take ordinary passengers into space and back.

The orbiter was to have been called

Odessa school suit not settled

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Although the Midland desegregation case is closed, cases in Odessa, San Angelo and Lubbock are still pending, the U.S. Justice Department said Friday.

The Odessa case, in which the Justice Department is a party, has not been dismissed, Joe Rich, Justice Department attorney, said Friday in a telephone interview with the Reporter-Telegram.

"It's still before the courts. It hasn't been dismissed. It's never been fully tried," Rich said.

Midland and Odessa were both originally sued in 1970. The late U.S. District Judge Ernest Guinn entered an order in 1970 regarding Odessa faculty and transportation.

"The decision left the student assignment question open as far as the extent to which they would have to desegregate and what kind of plan they would have to come up with. Since then, the case has never been tried on that issue," he said.

"We have several school districts throughout the state (Texas) which

Teacher group endorses Carter

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

The nation's largest teacher organization endorsed Jimmy Carter on Friday while the president of an even bigger farm group said he's probably going to vote for President Ford.

The announcements of support came as the two candidates entered the final week of preparation for their first nationally broadcast debate next Thursday, which might have more effect than any endorsement.

But to show how highly he values his endorsement by the National Education Association, Carter went personally to NEA headquarters in Washington and took along his running mate, Sen. Walter F. Mondale.

About 7,000 representatives from the 1.8 million-member organization voted more than 4 to 1 to endorse the Carter-Mondale ticket rather than Ford and Sen. Robert Dole, said NEA President John Ryor.

It was the first presidential endorsement in NEA's 119-year history. Ryor pointed to teachers' high education level, past record of more than 90 per cent voter turnout, and the NEA structure of more than 12,000 local associations to show the value of the endorsement.

After accepting the endorsement, Carter flew south to campaign in Mississippi with Sens. James O. Eastland and John Stennis.

While Dole planned speeches later Friday at the Minnesota Farm Fest and in Birmingham, Ala., Ford stayed in Washington, as he has done most of the time since the campaign opened on Labor Day.

But an afternoon appointment with a group of Republican women illustrated how the President brings his campaign to the White House when he doesn't go on the campaign trail himself.

Ford also won the tentative endorsement of the president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the nation's largest farm organization.

Allan Grant of Visalia, Calif., said Ford's farm policies are more popular among farmers than proposals offered by Carter.

Grant told a news conference in Wichita, Kan.: "The Republican platform is more nearly in line with Farm Bureau policy than the Democratic platform, and Mr. Ford's public speeches are more nearly in line with Farm Bureau philosophy than Carter's public speeches."

"On the basis of that at this point, I would probably vote for Mr. Ford," he said.

The 2.5-million member farm bureau as an organization does not endorse either candidate, he added.

There were these other political developments:

—A White House spokesman said Ford will go home to Grand Rapids, Mich., on election eve, Nov. 1, vote the next morning, then return to Washington to await results and a hoped-for victory party at the White House.

—Dole told a conference of the Multiple Sclerosis Society that a national program of catastrophic health insurance will be enacted next year regardless of who wins presidential election.

Dole, whose right arm was permanently injured during World War II, said he "can be somewhat of a symbol for those who have a problem. You can advance being handicapped — my standing here shows that."

—Carter's issues director, Stuart Eisenstat, said in Atlanta that Carter presidential news conferences might be arranged so that television viewers could call in questions, and that Carter might schedule sessions at which people with complaints, problems and requests could come see him without appointment.

Eisenstat said Carter "wants us to explore ways in which to open government up."

—A judge in Maine ruled that the Democratic nominee can go on that state's ballot under the name "Jimmy Carter" instead of "James E. Carter" or "James Earl Carter." The judge ruled that Carter's use of Jimmy was in the pattern of past presidents who had switched first or middle names.

—Mondale named his campaign plane Viking I, alluding to the Scandinavian origins of early migrants to his native Minnesota. One of the losing entries in the plane-name contest was "Why Not Second Best?" — a play on the title of Carter's book, "Why Not the Best?"

—Steve Ford will leave Newport Beach, Calif., Saturday in a 27-foot motor home to campaign for his father in rural areas and farm communities of 11 Western states. Accompanied by two male friends, Ford, 20, expects to travel up to 250 miles a day and cover 6,000 miles by election day, said a White House spokeswoman.

Carter, in accepting the NEA endorsement, said "my commitment is to the public school system of our country." He again said he would send his daughter, Amy, 8, to a public school in Washington if he moves into the White House.

The Democratic nominee also generally repeated other past pledges in the education area, including one for a comprehensive program to improve education.

Crane pastor named top rural minister

COLLEGE STATION — A Crane minister has been selected Texas rural minister of the year.

The Rev. Carl Treat of the First United Methodist Church of Crane and of the Methodist Church in Imperial will be honored during the 31st annual Town and Country Church Conference Sept. 30 to Oct. 1 at Texas A&M University. He will receive an engraved silver tray from "The Progressive Farmer" magazine, who sponsors the award.

Dr. David Ruesink, rural sociologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and general chairman of the church conference, made the announcement.

Dr. Larry Morgan, agricultural economist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and chairman of the minister of the year committee, said the award honors those ministers "who make outstanding contributions to rural life."

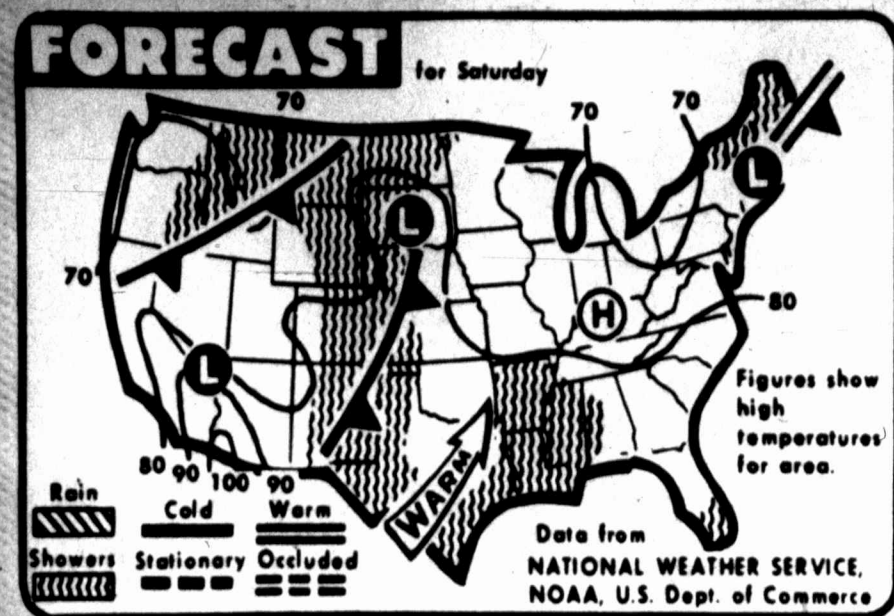

Selection is based on participation of the minister and his church in community activities and his efforts toward agricultural improvement, Morgan said.

The Rev. Treat was chosen by an all-denominational committee representing the Extension Service, Experiment Station and the Departments of agricultural economics, rural sociology and sociology.

Midland Democrats split in caucus vote

Austin Bureau: FORT WORTH — The closely divided 25th senatorial district tilted slightly in the conservative direction in preliminaries to the state democratic convention here.

The Midland delegation was divided, as usual, and on one vote split its 17 delegates evenly, 8.5 to 8.5.

The caucus preceding the convention, which apparently will be ratified at the official caucus Saturday, saw the ouster of Juanita Camfield of San Angelo as state committeewoman. She was defeated

DEATHS

Midlander's father dies

HOBBS, N.M. — Kenneth McCasland, 53, father of Mrs. Sandra McBride of Midland, died early Friday in a Hobbs hospital following an apparent heart attack at his home.

Services are scheduled for 3 p.m. today in Taylor Memorial Baptist Church of Hobbs, with interment to follow in Memory Garden cemetery here under direction of Griffin Funeral Home.

McCasland, a 20-year resident of Hobbs, was an employee of the Kerr-McGee Potash Co. here.

Survivors in addition to the Midland daughter include the widow, Doris, and two other daughters, Mrs. Norvell Bergland of Lubbock and Mrs. L. B. Hamilton of Hobbs, and three brothers and one sister.

Mrs. Wilson dies at age 94

SAN ANTONIO—Lula M. Wilson, 94, of San Antonio, mother of C. F. Wilson of Midland, died Thursday in San Antonio after a brief illness.

Services are pending with burial to be at Sunset Memorial Gardens in San Antonio.

don't want the audience all across America to prejudice this because someone in the audience has a reaction."

Hauser said that when representatives of the candidates met with League officials several weeks ago to set up the format for the debates, "We discussed the fact that the audience would only be a passive factor, and that the reaction of 150 million viewers would not be influenced by one, two or 10 people who might be in the hall. We thought that was a reasonable requirement."

Duval, who was the President's spokesman at those negotiations and who is responsible for briefing the President for the debates, said "the characterization I got from the President out of Vail (Colo.) was that it was not to be a television show, a theatrical event, but it was to be done seriously, and that's why the whole format was done this way. We've got, by way of agreement, exactly that."

be exclusively on the stage."

The networks, Duval said, "can do what they call 'two-shot reaction shots.' They can take them from the side, the front, the back. None of that stuff bothered us. But the coverage ought to be on the candidates or on the questioners, and not on the other stuff."

Barry Jagoda, one of three representatives for Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter in the negotiations, said "from our point of view, we would rather have it (the coverage) focus on the debates."

Jagoda said he came to Washington "very concerned about distractions and disruptions that would detract from the substance of the debate, no matter where they might come from, from the questioners or from booing or cheering from an audience or from extraneous 'cutaway' shots."

What the candidates fear is the cameras' cutting away from President Ford or Carter, as they speak, onto someone in the audience who is showing some emotion that might color or reaction to what the candidate is saying.

Aides to both candidates said they fear a "Monday Night Football" syndrome, when ABC camera crews often scan crowds in pursuit of pretty girls if the National Football League game on a Monday night turns dull.

represent the event that transpires. We understand how important this is to the whole electoral process." Duval points out that, in 1969, in the debates between John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon, the "candidates got together and dictated to the networks how it would be, and they were so hungry they took what they offered. It wasn't open and it wasn't probing."

Saturday's meeting with the League of Women Voters will be closed, as have been all the meetings to plan how the public will view the debates.

for the Band Booster Club; assisted with middle school and high school track meets, and has worked with the County Extension agent (home economics) and served as leader in the program "Teens Explore Parent Education."

In 4-H Club work, Treat is a member of the 4-H Leaders Association and 4-H Parents Committee. He also works closely with 4-H swine and lamb projects.

Treat, 45, was raised on a cotton, alfalfa and bean farm near Deming, N.M. He attended New Mexico State University and was graduated with a B.S. degree in agricultural education. He then taught seven years in high schools.

He took his ministerial course of study at Southern Methodist University's Perkins School of Theology. He was pastor in New Mexico and Texas churches for about 12 years before coming to Crane.

Treat and his wife Helen have six children.

Other leading nominees for rural minister of the year were the Rev.

Ned Walker of the Pilgrim Journey Baptist Church in Richmond and the Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church in Booth; the Rev. H. R. Robinson of the Mt. Vernon United Methodist Church Mt. Vernon; the Ebenezer United Methodist Church of Richmond, and the Rev. Jack Garrett of the First Christian Church of Brownfield.

4-H selects new officers

New officers of the Green Valley 4-H Club are President Paul Folgers, Vice President Kami Boyce, Secretary Kim White, Council Delegate Theresa Folgers, Alternate Andy Schumann and Reporter Angie Casbeer.

During the club's recent meeting at the Valley View Community Center Mrs. Judy German discussed the home demonstration fair and members signed up for cooking projects.

Gilbert Casbeer, adult leader, discussed livestock projects.

Youths taught fitness, citizenship at Boys' Club

At the age of 16, a young Midland man was caught stealing an automobile.

Placed in care of the Boys' Club, he would come to the club after school and work for three hours and work on his homework for one and a half hours.

Under the guidance of the Boy's Club staff, he gained a respect for the rights of others and developed a morality code of his own.

The young man is married now and has a family. A strongly religious man, he is respected within the community and still works with the Boys' Club, according to the agency.

Without the help of the Boys' Club, the man will say, he probably would be in prison now or have committed some crime more serious than the automobile theft.

Developing juvenile decency for a better community is the motto of the Boys' Club. The Midland Boys' Club provides guidance for boys 6 to 17 years old through a varied program which teaches good citizenship, government and religion, an agency spokesman said.

Founded in 1964, the Midland Boys' Club initially was funded by private donations from the community. Now the club is funded by the Midland United Way, which provides 98.9 per cent, or $33,000 of the 1976 budget of $33,360.

The Midland Boys' Club is located at 110 E. New Jersey St. and has two full-time employees. It operates between 3 p.m. and 9 p.m. during school hours and between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Saturdays and during the summer months.

Human Relations Council looking for storage space

Christmas In April, a project of the Midland Human Relations Council, is looking for a house — no, not a house to repair for a needy Midlander, but a house for storage.

Susan Edwards, director of the HRC, said project materials during the year are usually stored in the Salvation Army warehouse. But the Salvation Army is in the process of expanding that their building and rearranging that warehouse, so the project material needs a "home" at least until January.

Lumber, doors, plumbing fixtures and other material — enough to fill a two-car garage — will need a storage place until the beginning of next year, according to the HRC executive director. The only requirement for the storage space is a large, accessible door which can be locked.

Those able to assist in the search for a suitable storage space or those able to provide such a space may call the HRC at 684-5866 or 683-1585. Bobby Trimble, chairman of the Christmas In April project, will be available to answer questions at 684-7111.

Nearly $600 worth of merchandise was taken from Thornton's Department Store in the Delwood Plaza early Friday, Midland police reported.

The thief apparently entered an unlocked door in an uncompleted section of the shopping center located at Illinois and Midkiff. Officers said the thief then used a paint scaffold to go through the ceiling of the store and, take a citizen's band base radio unit, mobile station and binoculars.

The opening of Democratic headquarters and the kick-off campaign for Democratic candidates will be at noon Tuesday at 115 E. Wall St., across from the new post office.

Vann Culp, chairman of the Midland Democratic Executive Committee, said the opening will feature barrels of peanuts, all kinds of peanut butter sandwiches, drinks, music and a speaker from the Carter-Mondale Campaign Committee, plus prizes and surprises.

4-H Club picks new officers

Lee Schweitzer was elected president for the coming year of the Green Acres Chapter of 4-H at the group's first meeting after the summer break.

Other officers chosen were Mike Rutledge, vice president Joe Bond, secretary James Finley, reporter; and John Jones and Mary B. Rutledge, council representatives.

Projects soon to get underway by the group include veterinary science, home improvement and interior decorating, recreation, citizenship and foods and nutrition.

are not fully desegregated. We review them as our resources permit. Odessa is one of them," he said.

Before the Justice Department could reactivate the case, it would have to be reviewed and a determination made on whether or not to proceed, Rich said.

San Angelo and Lubbock schools are both in the same situation as Odessa, Rich said.

The Justice Department is a party in both cases and neither has been resolved finally.

The Justice Department is not a party to any action regarding Big Spring, Rich said the situation there is still in the hands of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Water district expenses and revenues increase

BIG SPRING — Revenues and expenses are once again for the Colorado River Municipal Water District during the month of August.

Revenues of $564,745 for the month pushed the eight-month total for 1976 to $4,264,719, while operating expenditures of $204,703 increased the year's total through August to $1,524,130.

The CRMWD said energy and debt service costs were the prime factors in the higher expenditures. Revenues have stayed ahead because the district raised rates at the beginning of the year in anticipation of heavier debt service requirements, according to the CRMWD.

For eight months, energy costs stood at $776,382, up $211,593 (38 per cent) over the same period in 1975. Items adding to the higher operating costs were maintenance labor, up $13,000; general expense and administration, up $15,000; general maintenance, up $12,000; and operation labor, up $11,000.

The excess of revenue over operating costs amounted to $2,740,588 through August, up $402,000. The district transferred to the net revenue fund for debt service and the Constitution. President Ford changed the name to "Enterprise" after a letterwriting campaign from fans of "Star Trek," a long-running science fiction television program.

"Enterprise" was the name of the television starship dispatched into intergalactic space on a "five-year mission to go where no man had ever gone before."

The Space Shuttle won't go quite that far. It is designed to go no farther than earth orbit. But it will carry four passengers in addition to its crew.

Initial tests of the orbiter are scheduled for early next year with the first space flight planned for March 1979. Unlike previous spacecraft, it is designed to make at least 100 round trips into space before overhaul.

The shuttle takes off vertically, using the power of two rocket boosters that separate and are recovered after parachuting to earth. It flies in an orbit around earth and returns to ground in a glide, landing on wheels like an airplane.

The orbiter is flown by a commander, a pilot and a flight engineer. They sit before an array of instruments in a cockpit resembling that of an airliner.

They will have hammocks for sleeping, a kitchen area with cooking facilities and a small refrigerator for the concentrated foods.

Missions will last from seven to 30 days.

Scouts group meets Sunday

Explorers Post Officers' Association of the Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, will hold their regular quarterly planning meeting at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the Airport Lanes Bowling Alley.

The group will review upcoming Council Explorer activities and the proposed constitution for the association.

A training series for adults working in Exploring will be held at 10 a.m. Sept. 25 in the conference room of the FAA offices at Midland Air Terminal.

The sessions are divided into two main titles: "What is Exploring" and "Program Planning." The fee for the training session is $2, which includes a noon lunch.

Police department at Big Lake resigns

BIG LAKE—The two-man police department resigned here this week following a city council meeting where no agreement could be reached on the officers' grievances.

Also leaving will be the town's police dispatcher, the police chief's wife.

Big Lake Chief J.T. Harrison, 33, said it was an impossible job for he and his assistant Sherman McKasie, 32, to effectively patrol the city of 4,000 residents.

Both men will start as patrolmen in Seminole after their resignations take effect Sept. 30.

Another factor in the resignation decisions was economic. As a patrolman in Seminole Harrison will receive the same pay as he does as Big Lake Chief, according to Mrs. Harrison. For McKasie it will be a pay raise, she said, uniforms will be provided by the city in the new jobs, she added.

State Democratic boss fighting to keep post

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Texas Democrats plunged into a medley of party business Friday with chairman Calvin Guest calling for unity, forecasting sweeping victories and fighting for his political life.

He said integrity will be the major issue in the presidential campaign sweepstakes and predicted that Democratic standard bearer Jimmy Carter will win a clear Texas majority over President Ford.

The beleaguered chairman, facing a serious liberal threat for the post he's held since 1972, led off a news conference Friday by declaring, "This country can not stand eight more years of a Nixon-Ford administration."

The convention officially opened Friday evening.

Guest, fielding some questions but side-stepping just as many, said the often discordant Democrats will emerge from their convention this weekend unified and ready for battle.

He said he indeed stands behind a statement distributed around the convention hotels in which he proclaimed:

"We have our priorities in perspective and have disbanded our circular firing squad, replacing it with a phalanx with all weapons pointed in the same direction."

He said the 3,400 delegates are "launching an all-out blitz" to "rid our country of an eighty-year Republican blight."

The party chairman sought to downplay his own skirmish with Lufkin attorney John Henry Tatum and the liberal forces of Democratic national committeewoman Billie Carr of Houston.

He said he had the votes to win Saturday, but that unity was the overriding issue.

In supporting Tatum for chairman, Mrs. Carr said, "We need to get the party out from under the governor's answering support."

Some say, however, that Briscoe, like Gov. Preston Smith before him, has been less than vigorous in participating in his own party's affairs.

Guest disclosed Friday that Mrs. Jimmy Carter will be campaigning in Texas Sept. 22, and 23 and that Carter will join her on the 24th.

He said, however, the campaign schedule is still tentative.

Guest was questioned sharply about party finances, a growing issue in his bid for re-election. He contends he inherited a party debt of $150,000 four years ago and has cut it to $110,000.

"I don't believe there was a $150,000 debt," Tatum told newsmen. "If the debt was really there, they would bring forth the figures ... I think the $150,000 is just a figure they reached into the hat for and brought out."

Guest meanwhile met privately with leaders of different groups such as the Carr forces, labor and a conservative-moderate caucus in an effort to head off lengthy debate over the party platform.

Connally gives Briscoe advice about campaign

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Jimmy Carter is "an out-and-out liberal—more liberal than McGovern," and Gov. Dolph Briscoe ought to be only lukewarm in his enthusiasm for Carter, John Connally said Friday.

Connally flew around the state to announce at several news conferences the appointment of Amarillo lawyer Wales Madden as chairman of Texans for Ford.

At the Capitol news conference, Connally was asked how "a good conservative like Briscoe" could be for Carter if Carter is so liberal.

"I was governor, and I supported a lot of things I didn't like," Connally said.

Connally said Briscoe owed a lot to the party that elected him. Connally recalled that he supported Hubert Humphrey in a frantic final-day drive in 1968. "I wasn't real happy about it."

He and Briscoe are close, personal friends, Connally said, and he thinks the governor has done a good job.

Connally called Carter's program "fiscal irresponsibility" and said it would add $100 billion to a budget that already is in the red.

He said Carter's energy policy

would "destroy the economic base of Texas."

Those are things Briscoe cannot be for, Connally said.

"Each day that passes, I become more convinced that President Ford will carry this state," Connally said. He said Ford has "a good chance to carry several states in the South, as well as this state."

Momentum is swinging to Ford just as it does in a football game that is dominated by one team for one half, only to have the other team dominate the second half, he said.

If the 1968 campaign had lasted one week longer, the Humphrey momentum would have put him in the White House, Connally said.

He said Carter peaked at "the Democrat Convention."

Asked about dropping the last two letters of "Democratic," he conceded he had done it deliberately.

Would he then agree with Harry Truman, who said he'd go along with that Republicanism if the Republicans would agree to drop the first two letters of their party's name?

Connally laughed and said, "I might go along with that."

Monroe defaults on payroll

MONROE, La. (AP) — The first American city to default on a payroll in six years went about its normal routine Friday, as its policemen, firemen, garbage collectors and other municipal workers stayed at their jobs without their paychecks.

The city's 1,100 employees, who are paid every two weeks, had a chance of getting their money Monday. But there was still some grumbling among rank-and-file workers that the city knew the financial crisis was coming and simply waited too long to do anything about it.

Mayor Jack Howard, who went through a city strike and financial hard times when he became mayor of Monroe in 1956, got his first bit of hope when the state advised him that $176,600 in federal disaster aid would arrive Monday.

The grants cover the cost of rebuilding projects after three straight years of flood damage.

If the money covers a project already paid for by the city, that grant and the cash still remaining in city coffers would be enough to write the paychecks Monday. Less than $2,000 would be left over.

City officials said they would not know until the money arrives whether it must be dedicated to a specific use or can be put in the city's general fund.

Mayor Howard is waiting for attorneys to tell him how he can float a bank loan for this city of 56,400 persons for $1 million to tide the city payroll over until year's end. He said he expected their opinion by Monday.

Louisiana municipalities are barred by state law from deficit spending. Loans must be secured by an anticipated excess of taxes.

The city defaulted on a $167,000 payroll Wednesday and a $143,000 payroll Friday. Harlan Pringle, the city's commissioner of finance, said that anticipated revenues would fall $3 million short of expenses by the end of the fiscal year in April.

The city owes about $500,000 in bills for other city expenses and has no money to pay them.

Connally forms pro-Ford group

HOUSTON (AP) — John B. Connally announced Friday the formation of a "Texans for Ford" committee to attract Democratic and independent support for President Ford.

Connally, head of the Texas President Ford Committee, named Wales Madden, an Amarillo businessman, as chairman of the new group.

Madden is a former member of the University of Texas board of Regents.

Connally, who switched to the Republican party in 1973 after serving as Texas governor in 1962-68 as a Democrat, said Madden actually will be in charge of much of the Ford campaign organization in Texas.

In addition to heading the Texas campaign, Connally said he also plans to campaign in 46 congressional districts in 14 states.

Connally said both of the Texas committees will be financed through the use of federal campaign funds but that the national campaign committee has not decided as yet just how much money will be available to Texas.

Connally repeated earlier predictions Ford can carry Texas even though he now trails Jimmy Carter, the Democratic nominee, by several percentage points in the state.

"The Reagan people will support Ford almost to a man," Connally said.

Red Chinese leaders watch Mao's widow

By JACQUES LESLIE
The Los Angeles Times

HONG KONG — When a grief-stricken Chiang Ching arrived at Peking's Great Hall of the People last Saturday to mourn the death of her husband, Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung, many Chinese officials undoubtedly hoped she was beginning her last series of public appearances.

For 61-year-old Chiang Ching (pronounced jyang cheeng) is not merely Mao's widow. She is now the fifth-ranking member of the Chinese Communist Party and a leader of the "radical" faction which has held sway over Chinese politics intermittently during the last decade.

Because of her sometimes vituperative manner and her rise to power based on her relationship to Mao, she often has been compared to the Empress Dowager Tzu-Hsi, the strong-willed ex-concubine who ruthlessly ruled China at the turn of the century.

On a television broadcast of last Saturday's mourning ceremony, Chiang Ching appeared with other members of the Communist Party Politburo. She looked pale and exhausted. She wore a silk scarf on her head and a black trouser-suit.

A wreath placed inside the hall was inscribed, "deeply mourn the esteemed great teacher, Chairman Mao Tse-tung." It was presented by

"your student and comrade-in-arms, Chiang Ching," and other members of Mao's family.

Chiang Ching again attended mourning ceremonies Sunday, but has not appeared since.

Because the chief source of Chiang's Ching's power was her ability to act as Mao's spokesman and messenger, his death probably will result in the decline of her influence. John Fairbank, the well-known American scholar of modern China, recently predicted that she would "quietly go to teach school somewhere" after Mao died, and a few other Western observers already have written their political obituaries of her.

But all that seems at least premature. "The fact that she has continued in her Politburo rank during the mourning period indicates her acceptance as a member of the group," one Western diplomat said. "But that could be short term."

Apparently in anticipation of Mao's death and the unrest it could provoke, China's leadership began a month ago to stress the need for national unity. That theme was reiterated as late as Thursday, a week after Mao's death, in an editorial appearing jointly in three major Chinese government organs.

NEW OFFICERS of the Midland County 4-H council include, from left, Elaine Evans, treasurer; Rainy Calhoun, secretary; Lee Schweitzer, vice chairman; and Kathy Knox, chairman. The group was installed during the council's annual meeting.

More women apply for credit

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A growing number of women are applying for—and getting—credit in their own names these days. But industry officials say it is too early to measure the full impact of a 1975 law prohibiting creditors from discriminating on the basis of sex or marital status.

A spokesman for Master Charge—the largest of the bank credit cards with just over 37 million cardholders—said women held 26.5 per cent of all Master Charge cards in 1973. By the end of 1975, women held 34.7 per cent of Master Charge cards, an increase of almost a third.

There are no figures available for 1976. The Master Charge spokesman said he could not determine the full effect of the anti-discrimination law—the Equal Credit Opportunity Act—because some provisions have not yet been implemented.

American Express, with over 7.5 million cardholders, reported that from September 1975 to June 1976, 18 per cent of all new members were women with accounts in their own name. Figures for the same period a year earlier showed only 16 per cent of all new members were women.

I.W. Martin, president of Commercial Credit Corp., with 750 offices across the country, said "we have had some" increase in loan applications from women since the law was passed, but he had no exact figures. "I don't think it's been dramatic yet," he said. "There's a lack of awareness by women."

The Federal Reserve Board recently announced a seven-month delay in the effective date of one key provision involving credit history.

Credit history is the record of your dealings with a creditor: how much you have borrowed or charged, how frequently you paid bills, etc. The information is forwarded to credit bureaus by banks, card companies, stores and others you deal with. When you apply for new credit, the record will be used to decide how good a risk you are.

In the past, lenders reporting to credit bureaus on accounts used by both a husband and wife usually listed in the information in the man's name only. A woman who was divorced or widowed had no credit history and therefore was turned down if she asked for a charge card, loan or other type of credit in her own name. Even a woman who established a credit history while she was single and then married, lost her credit identity.

Under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, creditors must list information on all new joint accounts in both names. They must provide separate listings on existing accounts if asked to do so.

The provision was to take effect Nov. 1, 1976, but was delayed until June 1 to allow lenders and credit bureaus more time to comply.

Joseph P. Garcia, executive vice president of Diner's Club, said he believed the regulation will have "a very favorable impact" for women, but added: "It's going to take a while."

Garcia said the number of women applying for Diner's Club cards had not really increased since the Equal Credit Opportunity Act took effect.

"Most of the abuses dealt with younger women," he said. "Our type of person is pretty well established. Our market is generally women executives with an income over $10,000."

Martin of Commercial Credit said, "The impact is going to come on married women." He added that he believed single women always had fewer problems establishing credit in their own names.

The delay in implementing the credit history regulation has caused problems for the Federal Trade Commission which enforces the act.

A spokesman said the commission printed about 50,000 copies of a pamphlet on the law for distribution through the FTC and the Consumer Information Center. The pamphlet includes the now-erroneous Nov. 1 date and the FTC has to put out correction slips for distribution with the original information.

The Federal Reserve System is preparing its own information booklet on the law, but it will not be issued until final details of all provisions have been worked out.

The FTC pamphlet is available free by writing the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 49, Pueblo, Colo., 81009. Just remember that the Nov. 1, 1976 date has been changed to June 1, 1977.

Among other provisions of the law, already in effect:

—Creditors may not discourage applications on the basis of sex or marital status nor may they use sex or marital status as a basis for refusing to grant credit. You may open an account in your maiden name even if you are married.

—Creditors may not ask your marital status unless both spouses will use the account. There are some exceptions, however. Creditors may ask about marital status in community property states or where state law requires such information in connection with regulations governing finance charges or loan ceilings.

Alaska sending crime fighters to boom town

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — The governor of Alaska is sending an emergency force of judges, prosecutors and public defenders into this trans-Alaska pipeline boom town to crack down on prostitution, mugging and robbery.

Gov. Jay Hammond also volunteered state troopers to patrol the streets, but city officials turned that offer down.

Hammond said Thursday he took the steps because of advice "from people in the Fairbanks area that the situation on the streets has become serious, if not outright dangerous."

Street crime has increased in Fairbanks since the influx of pipeline workers began two years ago. It has mushroomed again this summer as the project nears completion and workers begin to be laid off. Fairbanks is the only major community on the pipeline route through central Alaska. The pipeline is scheduled to be completed next year.

Police Chief Richard Wolf said the city's crime problem resulted from free-spending pipeline workers, a reluctance by the city to raise the taxes to hire more police, inadequate laws, lenient judges and the "old last frontier syndrome of Fairbanks."

"We've always had hookers and drunks down on Second Avenue," Wolf said. "But the influx of people from the pipeline just caused everything to explode."

"Nobody knew what the impact was going to be and all of us just sat here with our heads on our shoulders until it got unbearable," Wolf said.

There was one armed robbery arrest in Fairbanks in 1973. That figure went to nine in 1974 and 24 in 1975. There were 12 armed robbery arrests in the first eight months this year.

Arrests for aggravated assault went from 24 in 1973 to 41 in 1974 and to 52 in 1975. There have been 37 such arrests so far this year. Prostitution arrests have jumped from one in 1973 to seven in 1974, to 82 in 1975 and to 69 so far this year.

Arrests for theft and disorderly conduct have likewise increased. And for the first time in anybody's memory, Fairbanks has five unsolved killings.

Midland Democrats split in caucus vote

Austin Bureau: FORT WORTH — The closely divided 25th senatorial district tilted slightly in the conservative direction in preliminaries to the state democratic convention here. The Midland delegation was divided, as usual, and on one vote split its 17 delegates evenly, 8.5 to 8.5. The caucus preceding the convention, which apparently will be ratified at the official caucus Saturday, saw the ouster of Juanita Camfield of San Angelo as state committeewoman. She was defeated

DEATHS

Midlander's father dies: HOBBS, N.M. — Kenneth McCasland, 53, father of Mrs. Sandra McBride of Midland, died early Friday in a Hobbs hospital following an apparent heart attack at his home. Services are scheduled for 3 p.m. today in Taylor Memorial Baptist Church of Hobbs, with interment to follow in Memory Garden cemetery here under direction of Griffin Funeral Home.

Mrs. Wilson dies at age 94: SAN ANTONIO—Lula M. Wilson, 94, of San Antonio, mother of C. F. Wilson of Midland, died Thursday in San Antonio after a brief illness. Services are pending with burial to be at Sunset Memorial Gardens in San Antonio.

Networks may boycott debates

(Continued from Page 1) don't want the audience all across America to prejudice this because someone in the audience has a reaction." Hauser said that when representatives of the candidates met with League officials several weeks ago to set up the format for the debates, "We discussed the fact that the audience would only be a passive factor, and that the reaction of 150 million viewers would not be influenced by one, two or 10 people who might be in the hall. We thought that was a reasonable requirement." Duval, who was the President's spokesman at those negotiations and who is responsible for briefing the President for the debates, said "the characterization I got from the President out of Vail (Colo.) was that it was not to be a television show, a theatrical event, but it was to be done seriously, and that's why the whole format was done this way. We've got, by way of agreement, exactly that." "I agree totally with the League's decision," Duval said, "and in fact recommended it, along with Mr. Carter, that the television coverage be exclusively on the stage." The networks, Duval said, "can do what they call 'two-shot reaction shots.' They can take them from the side, the front, the back. None of that stuff bothered us. But the coverage ought to be on the candidates or on the questioners, and not on the other stuff." Barry Jagoda, one of three representatives for Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter in the negotiations, said that "from our point of view, we would rather have it (the coverage) focus on the debates." Jagoda said he came to Washington "very concerned about distractions and disruptions that would detract from the substance of the debate, no matter where they might come from, from the questioners or from booing or cheering from an audience or from extraneous 'cutaway' shots." What the candidates fear is the cameras' cutting away from President Ford or Carter, as they speak, onto someone in the audience who is showing some emotion that might color or react to what the candidate is saying. Aides to both candidates said they fear a "Monday Night Football" syn-

Water district expenses and revenues increase

BIG SPRING — Revenues and expenses are up once again for the Colorado River Municipal Water District during the month of August. Revenues of $564,745 for the month pushed the eight-month total for 1976 to $4,264,719, while operating expenditures of $204,703 increased the year's total through August to $1,524,130. The CRMWD said energy and debt service costs were the prime factors in the higher expenditures. Revenues have stayed ahead because the district raised rates at the beginning of the year in anticipation of heavier debt service requirements, according to the CRMWD. For eight months, energy costs stood at $776,382, up $211,593 (38 percent) over the same period in 1975. Items adding to the higher operating costs were maintenance labor, up $13,000; general expense and administration, up $15,000; general maintenance, up $12,000; and operation labor, up $11,000. The excess of revenue over operating costs amounted to $2,740,588 through August, up $402,000. The district transferred to the net revenue fund for debt service and

Shuttle unveiled

Scouts group meets Sunday

Explorers Post Officers' Association of the Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, will hold their regular quarterly planning meeting at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the Airport Lanes Bowling Alley. The group will review upcoming Council Explorer activities and the proposed constitution for the association. A training series for adults working in Exploring will be held at 10 a.m. Sept. 25 in the conference room of the FAA offices at Midland Air Terminal. The sessions are divided into two main titles: "What is Exploring" and "Program Planning." The fee for the training session is $2, which includes a noon lunch.

Police department at Big Lake resigns

BIG LAKE—The two-man police department resigned here this week following a city council meeting where no agreement could be reached on the officers' grievances. Also leaving will be the town's police dispatcher, the police chief's wife. Big Lake Chief J.T. Harrison, 33, said it was an impossible job for he and his assistant Sherman McKasie, 32, to effectively patrol the city of 4,000 residents. Both men will start as patrolmen in Seminole after their resignations take effect Sept. 30. Another factor in the resignation decisions was economic. As a patrolman in Seminole Harrison will receive the same pay as he does as Big Lake Chief, according to Mrs. Harrison. For McKasie it will be a

Youths taught fitness, citizenship at Boys' Club

At the age of 16, a young Midland man was caught stealing an automobile. Placed in care of the Boys' Club, he would come to the club after school and work for three hours and work on his homework for one and a half hours. Under the guidance of the Boy's Club staff, he gained a respect for the rights of others and developed a morality code of his own. The young man is married now and has a family. A strongly religious man, he is respected within the community and still works with the Boys' Club, according to the agency. Without the help of the Boys' Club, the man will say, he probably would be in prison now or have committed some crime more serious than the automobile theft. Developing juvenile delinquency for a better community is the motto of the Boys' Club. The Midland Boys' Club provides guidance for boys 6 to 17 years old through a varied program which teaches good citizenship, government and religion, an agency spokesman said. Founded in 1964, the Midland Boys' Club initially was funded by private donations from the community. Now the club is funded by the Midland United Way, which provides 98.9 percent, or $33,000 of the 1976 budget of $33,360. The Midland Boys' Club is located at 110 E. New Jersey St. and has two full-time employees. It operates between 3 p.m. and 9 p.m. during school hours and between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Saturdays and during the summer months.

Human Relations Council looking for storage space

Christmas in April, a project of the Midland Human Relations Council, is looking for a house — no, not a house to repair for a needy Midlander, but a house for storage. Susan Edwards, director of the HRC, said project materials during the year are usually stored in the Salvation Army warehouse. But the Salvation Army is in the process of expanding that their building and rearranging that warehouse, so the project material needs a "home" at least until January. Lumber, doors, plumbing fixtures and other materials — enough to fill a two-car garage — will need a storage place until the beginning of next year, according to the HRC executive director. The only requirement for the storage space is a large, accessible door which can be locked. Those able to assist in the search for a suitable storage space or those able

Thief takes CB units

Nearly $600 worth of merchandise was taken from Thornton's Department Store in the Delwood Plaza early Friday, Midland police reported. The thief apparently entered an unlocked door in an uncompleted section of the shopping center located at Illinois and Midkiff. Officers said the thief then used a paint scaffold to go through the ceiling of the store and, take a citizen's band base radio unit, mobile station and binoculars.

Democrats set opening of headquarters

The opening of Democratic headquarters and the kick-off campaign for Democratic candidates will be at noon Tuesday at 115 E. Wall St., across from the new post office. Vann Culp, chairman of the Midland Democratic Executive Committee, said the opening will feature barrels of peanuts, all kinds of peanut butter sandwiches, drinks, music and a speaker from the Carter-Mondale Campaign Committee, plus prizes and surprises.

Odessa suit still unsettled

Before the Justice Department could reactivate the case, it would have to be reviewed and a determination made on whether or not to proceed, Rich said. San Angelo and Lubbock schools are both in the same situation as Odessa, Rich said. The Justice Department is a party in both cases and neither has been resolved finally. The Justice Department is not a party to any action regarding Big Spring, Rich said the situation there is still in the hands of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

State Democratic boss fighting to keep post

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Texas Democrats plunged into a medley of party business Friday with chairman Calvin Guest calling for unity, forecasting sweeping victories and fighting for his political life.

He said integrity will be the major issue in the presidential campaign sweepstakes and predicted that Democratic standard bearer Jimmy Carter will win a clear Texas majority over President Ford.

The beleaguered chairman, facing a serious liberal threat for the post he's held since 1972, led off a news conference Friday by declaring, "This country can not stand eight more years of a Nixon-Ford administration."

The convention officially opened Friday evening.

Guest, fielding some questions but side-stepping just as many, said the often discordant Democrats will emerge from their convention this weekend unified and ready for battle.

He said he indeed stands behind a statement distributed around the convention hotels in which he proclaimed:

"We have our priorities in perspective and have disbanded our circular firing squad, replacing it with a phalanx with all weapons pointed in the same direction."

He said the 3,400 delegates are "launching an all-out blitz" to "rid our country of an eighty-year Republican blight."

The party chairman sought to downplay his own skirmish with Lufkin attorney John Henry Tatum and the liberal forces of Democratic national committeewoman Billie Carr of Houston.

He said he had the votes to win Saturday, but that unity was the overriding issue.

In supporting Tatum for chairman, Mrs. Carr said, "We need to get the party out from under the governor's thumb."

Some say, however, that Briscoe, like Gov. Preston Smith before him, has been less than vigorous in participating in his own party's affairs.

Guest disclosed Friday that Mrs. Jimmy Carter will be campaigning in Texas Sept. 22 and 23 and that Carter will join her on the 24th.

He said, however, the campaign schedule is still tentative.

Guest was questioned sharply about party finances, a growing issue in his bid for re-election. He contends he inherited a party debt of $150,000 four years ago and has cut it to $110,000.

"I don't believe there was a $150,000

debt," Tatum told newsmen. "If the debt was really there, they would bring forth the figures ... I think the $150,000 is just a figure they reached into the hat for and brought out."

Guest meanwhile met privately with leaders of different groups such as the Carr forces, labor and a conservative-moderate caucus in an effort to head off lengthy debate over the party platform.

Connally gives Briscoe advice about campaign

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Jimmy Carter is "an out-and-out liberal—more liberal than McGovern," and Gov. Dolph Briscoe ought to be only lukewarm in his enthusiasm for Carter, John Connally said Friday.

Connally flew around the state to announce at several news conferences the appointment of Amarillo lawyer Wales Madden as chairman of Texans for Ford.

At the Capitol news conference, Connally was asked how "a good conservative like Briscoe" could be for Carter if Carter is so liberal.

"I was governor, and I supported a lot of things I didn't like," Connally said.

Connally said Briscoe owed a lot to the party that elected him. Connally recalled that he supported Hubert Humphrey in a frantic final-day drive in 1968. "I wasn't real happy about it."

He and Briscoe are close, personal friends, Connally said, and he thinks the governor has done a good job.

Connally called Carter's program "fiscal irresponsibility" and said it would add $100 billion to a budget that already is in the red.

He said Carter's energy policy

would "destroy the economic base of Texas."

Those are things Briscoe cannot be for, Connally said.

"Each day that passes, I become more convinced that President Ford will carry this state," Connally said. He said Ford has "a good chance to carry several states in the South, as well as this state."

Momentum is swinging to Ford just as it does in a football game that is dominated by one team for one half, only to have the other team dominate the second half, he said.

If the 1968 campaign had lasted one week longer, the Humphrey momentum would have put him in the White House, Connally said.

He said Carter peaked at "the Democrat Convention."

Asked about dropping the last two letters of "Democratic," he conceded he had done it deliberately.

Would he then agree with Harry Truman, who said he'd go along with that Republicanism if the Republicans would agree to drop the first two letters of their party's name?

Connally laughed and said, "I might go along with that."

Monroe defaults on payroll

MONROE, La. (AP) — The first American city to default on a payroll in six years went about its normal routine Friday, as its policemen, firemen, garbage collectors and other municipal workers stayed at their jobs without their paychecks.

The city's 1,100 employees, who are paid every two weeks, had a chance of getting their money Monday.

But there was still some grumbling among rank-and-file workers that the city knew the financial crisis was coming and simply waited too long to do anything about it.

Mayor Jack Howard, who went through a city strike and financial hard times when he became mayor of Monroe in 1956, got his first bit of hope when the state advised him that $176,000 in federal disaster aid would arrive Monday.

The grants cover the cost of rebuilding projects after three straight years of flood damage.

If the money covers a project already paid for by the city, that grant and the cash still remaining in city coffers would be enough to write the paychecks Monday. Less than $2,000 would be left over.

City officials said they would not know until the money arrives whether it must be dedicated to a specific use or can be put in the city's general fund.

Mayor Howard is waiting for attorneys to tell him how he can float a bank loan for this city of 56,400 persons for $1 million to tide the city payroll over until year's end. He said he expected their opinion by Monday.

Louisiana municipalities are barred by state law from deficit spending. Loans must be secured by an anticipated excess of taxes.

The city defaulted on a $167,000 payroll Wednesday and a $143,000 payroll Friday. Harlan Prestridge, the city's commissioner of finance, said that anticipated revenues would fall $3 million short of expenses by the end of the fiscal year in April.

The city owes about $500,000 in bills for other city expenses and has no money to pay them.

More women apply for credit

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

A growing number of women are applying for — and getting — credit in their own names these days. But industry officials say it is too early to measure the full impact of a 1975 law prohibiting creditors from discriminating on the basis of sex or marital status.

A spokesman for Master Charge — the largest of the bank credit cards with just over 37 million cardholders — said women held 26.5 per cent of all Master Charge cards in 1973. By the end of 1975, women held 34.7 per cent of Master Charge cards, an increase of almost a third.

There are no figures available for 1976. The Master Charge spokesman said he could not determine the full effect of the anti-discrimination law — because some provisions have not yet been implemented.

American Express, with over 7.5 million cardholders, reported that from September 1975 to June 1976, 16 per cent of all new members were women with accounts in their own name. Figures for the same period a year earlier showed only 16 per cent of all new members were women.

I.W. Martin, president of Commercial Credit Corp., with 750 offices across the country, said "we have had some" increase in loan applications from women since the law was passed, but he had no exact figures. "I don't think it's been dramatic yet," he said. "There's a lack of awareness by women."

The Federal Reserve Board recently announced a seven-month delay in the effective date of one key provision involving credit history.

Credit history is the record of your dealings with a creditor: how much you have borrowed or charged, how frequently you paid bills, etc. The information is forwarded to credit bureaus by banks, card companies, stores and others you deal with. When you apply for new credit, the record will be used to decide how good a risk you are.

In the past, lenders reporting to credit bureaus on accounts used by both a husband and wife usually listed in the information in the man's name only. A woman who was divorced or widowed had no credit history and therefore was turned down if she asked for a charge card, loan or other type of credit in her own name. Even a woman who established a credit history while she was single and then married, lost her credit identity.

Under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, creditors must list information on all new joint accounts in both names. They must provide separate listings on existing accounts if asked to do so.

The provision was to take effect Nov. 1, 1976, but was delayed until June 1 to allow lenders and credit bureaus more time to comply.

Joseph P. Garcia, executive vice president of Diner's Club, said he believed the regulation will have "a very favorable impact" for women, but added: "It's going to take a while."

Garcia said the number of women applying for Diner's Club cards had not really increased since the Equal Credit Opportunity Act took effect. "Most of the abuses dealt with younger women," he said. "Our type of person is pretty well established. Our market is generally women executives with an income over $10,000."

Martin of Commercial Credit said, "The impact is going to come on married women." He added that he believed single women always had fewer problems establishing credit in their own names.

The delay in implementing the credit history regulation has caused problems for the Federal Trade Commission which enforces the act.

A spokesman said the commission printed about 50,000 copies of a pamphlet on the law for distribution through the FTC and the Consumer Information Center. The pamphlet includes the now-erroneous Nov. 1 date and the FTC has to put out correction slips for distribution with the original information.

The Federal Reserve System is preparing its own information booklet on the law, but it will not be issued until final details of all provisions have been worked out.

The FTC pamphlet is available free by writing the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 49, Pueblo, Colo., 81009. Just remember that the Nov. 1, 1976 date has been changed to June 1, 1977.

Among other provisions of the law, already in effect:

—Creditors may not discourage applications on the basis of sex or marital status nor may they use sex or marital status as a basis for refusing to grant credit. You may open an account in your maiden name even if you are married.

—Creditors may not ask your marital status unless both spouses will use the account. There are some exceptions, however. Creditors may ask about marital status in community property states or where state law requires such information in connection with regulations governing finance charges or loan ceilings.

Red Chinese leaders watch Mao's widow

By JACQUES LESLIE The Los Angeles Times

HONG KONG — When a grief-stricken Chiang Ching arrived at Peking's Great Hall of the People last Saturday to mourn the death of her husband, Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung, many Chinese officials undoubtedly hoped she was beginning her last series of public appearances.

For 61 year old Chiang Ching (pronounced jyang cheeng) is not merely Mao's widow. She is now the fifth-ranking member of the Chinese Communist Party and a leader of the "radical" faction which has held sway over Chinese politics intermittently during the last decade. Because of her sometimes vituperative manner and her rise to power based on her relationship to Mao, she often has been compared to the Empress Dowager Tzu-Hsi, the strong-willed ex-concubine who ruthlessly ruled China at the turn of the century.

On a television broadcast of last Saturday's mourning ceremony, Chiang Ching appeared with other members of the Communist Party Politburo. She looked pale and exhausted. She wore a silk scarf on her head and a black trouser-suit. A wreath placed inside the hall was inscribed, "deeply mourn the esteemed great teacher, Chairman Mao Tse-tung." It was presented by

"your student and comrade-in-arms, Chiang Ching," and other members of Mao's family.

Chiang Ching again attended mourning ceremonies Sunday, but has not appeared since.

Because the chief source of Chiang's Ching's power was her ability to act as Mao's spokesman and messenger, his death probably will result in the decline of her influence. John Fairbank, the well-known American scholar of modern China, recently predicted that she would "quietly go to teach school somewhere" after Mao died, and a few other Western observers already have written their political obituaries of her.

But all that seems at least premature. "The fact that she has continued in her Politburo rank during the mourning period indicates her acceptance as a member of the group," one Western diplomat said. "But that could be short term."

Apparently in anticipation of Mao's death and the unrest it could provoke, China's leadership began a month ago to stress the need for national unity. That theme was reiterated as late as Thursday, a week after Mao's death, in an editorial appearing jointly in three major Chinese government organs.

Alaska sending crime fighters to boom town

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — The governor of Alaska is sending an emergency force of judges, prosecutors and public defenders into this trans-Alaska pipeline boom town to crack down on prostitution, mugging and robbery.

Gov. Jay Hammond also volunteered state troopers to patrol the streets, but city officials turned that offer down.

Hammond said Thursday he took the steps because of advice "from people in the Fairbanks area that the situation on the streets has become serious, if not outright dangerous."

Street crime has increased in Fairbanks since the influx of pipeline workers began two years ago. It has mushroomed again this summer as the project nears completion and workers begin to be laid off. Fairbanks is the only major community on the pipeline route through central Alaska. The pipeline is scheduled to be completed next year.

Police Chief Richard Wolf said the city's crime problem resulted from free-spending pipeline workers, a reluctance by the city to raise the taxes to hire more police, inadequate laws, lenient judges and the "old last frontier syndrome of Fairbanks."

"We've always had hookers and drunks down on Second Avenue," Wolf said. "But the influx of people from the pipeline just caused everything to explode."

"Nobody knew what the impact was going to be and all of us just sat here with our heads on our shoulders until it got unreasonable," Wolf said.

There was one armed robbery in Fairbanks in 1973. That figure went to nine in 1974 and 24 in 1975. There were 12 armed robbery arrests in the first eight months this year.

Arrests for aggravated assault went from 24 in 1973 to 41 in 1974 and to 52 in 1975. There have been 37 such arrests so far this year. Prostitution arrests have jumped from one in 1973 to seven in 1974, to 82 in 1975 and to 69 so far this year.

Arrests for theft and disorderly conduct have likewise increased. And for the first time in anybody's memory, Fairbanks has five unsolved killings.

Rebels sack Plainview, lose quarterback

BY BOB DILLON
R-T Sports Writer.

PLAINVIEW — Most of the offensive fireworks took place in the first half while the defense dominated the second half play.

Midland Lee's Rebels took a 27-7 victory over the Plainview Bulldogs Friday night in Bulldog Stadium, but it may have been a costly victory.

Starting quarterback Brad Wright was injured early in the third period when he was tackled at midfield. The 6-3, 190-pound senior suffered a dislocated arm during the pile up.

The injury occurred to his left arm and Rebel Coach Jim Acree feels it is not a serious injury.

"WE ARE thankful it was his left arm rather than his right arm, because of his throwing ability."

Although Acree's Rebels piled up 351 yards total offense, he still was unhappy with the mistakes his team made. Lee's defense was superb in the second half, allowing just three first downs with two of them coming in the final two minutes.

"Our defense is still ahead of our offense, but once we get Clyde Gary and Wright back into harness, we should be okay."

David Hobbs came in to direct the Rebels following Wright's injury and responded with a good performance. The 180-pound senior hit 7 of 14 passes and rushed for an additional 66 yards in nine carries.

Lee got on the scoreboard first in the opening period thanks to a tremendous punt by Donald Salinas and a heads up defensive play by end Eric Stewart.

SALINAS BOOTED a 36-yard punt out on the Plainview two and on the next play, Bulldog quarterback John Horne fumbled the snap with Stewart pouncing on the ball in the end zone for a touchdown.

Sophomore Jeff McCowan booted the extra point for a 7-0 lead with 7:32 left in the initial period.

Plainview then drove to the Lee seven where the Rebels held with Mike Kerley and Robin Barnett stopping quarterback Jaime McAllister on a fourth and two.

Lee cranked up and drove 93 yards for another touchdown with junior halfback Jerry Moore scampering 44 yards to the Plainview 39. John Marks, another junior, ripped off 13 yards and Wright hit Robert Ochsner for nine yards.

The touchdown came when Wright hit Ochsner with an 11-yard pass with 9:06 left in the first half.

got loose on a 47-yard run with Dick Lynch tripping him up at the Lee 19. Four plays later Ralph Hayes scored from the one and McAllister's extra point made it 14-7 with 5:59 left in the second quarter.

Lee got one more score before halftime, going 52 yards in five plays. McCowan ripped off eight yards and then Hobbs fired a 42-yard pass to split end John Lowery to the Plainview three with 14 seconds left.

McCowan booted into the end zone from the three, but his extra point try sailed wide right, making it 20-7 at intermission.

Both teams battled on even terms in the third quarter, although on Wright's injury he fumbled the ball at the Lee 40, but the Rebels led by Barnett, Salinas and Lynch stopped the Bulldogs cold.

SALINAS GAVE the Rebels a break at the start of the fourth period by recovering a fumble at the Plainview 15. But this time the Bulldogs dug in and a 27-yard field goal attempt by McCowan sailed wide right.

Lee's final score came on a 51-yard drive in six plays with the key gainers being a 20-yard pass from Hobbs to Stewart and an 11-yard run by Hobbs on a keeper. Moore scored the final TD on an eight-yard run and McCowan tacked on the extra point to make it 27-7.

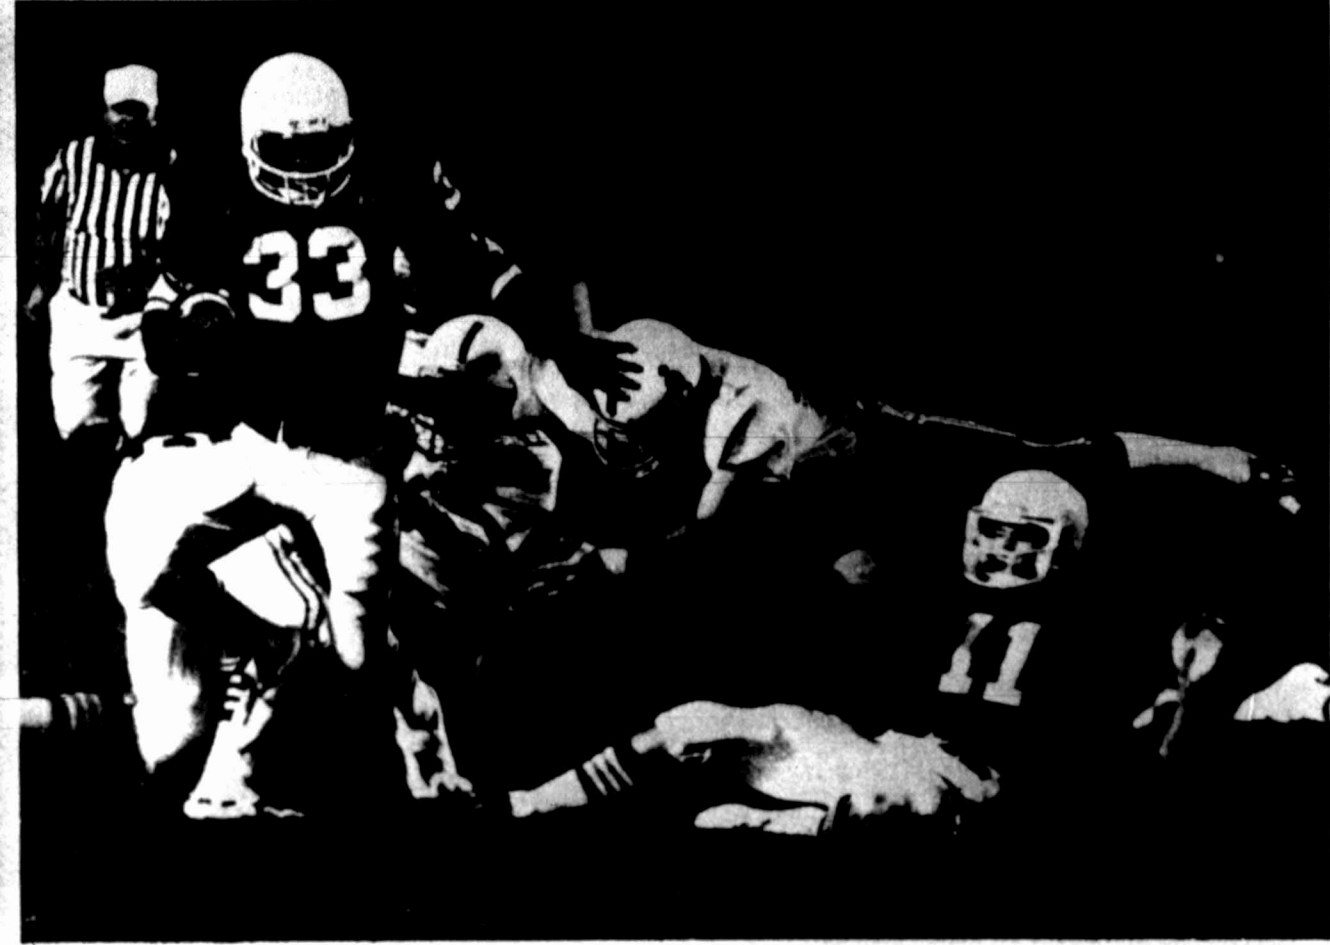

Moore was the leading ball carrier with 94 yards in 12 carries to go along with Hobbs' 66 and McCowan's 45. Lee grounded out 260 yards and added another 121 through the air. Leading rusher for Plainview was Long with 73 yards on 11 carries.

Lee winds up non-district play Friday in their home opener in Memorial Stadium by taking on El Paso Irvins Rockets. Plainview meets Amarillo High.

Monterey hands Pack first setback, 17-13

By PAUL DOMOWITZ

Time is an element of tremendous versatility on a football gridiron. It can be the best ally in the world to one, and the bitterest enemy to yet another. The ticking away of seconds can spell triumph and disaster concurrently.

Friday night at Memorial Stadium, time was anything but a friend to coach Jerry Hopkins and his Midland High Bulldogs, as it swept the carpet from under them, and helped Lubbock Monterey sweat out a 17-13 win over the Purple Pack. It was the third straight victory of the season for the Plainsmen, while Midland went down to their first defeat.

With just over two minutes to play in the contest, Monterey took possession of the football on their own 15, needing only a single first down to cement their four point advantage.

Plainsmen quarterback Ronny Reeves was not about to risk a fumble on a handoff, so he called his own number three consecutive times. His third carry got the needed yardage for the first down, but a holding penalty moved Monterey back to the ten.

Midland received a break moments later, when a short punt left them only 38 yards from what would be the winning score, but there were only :43 left. Halfback Phillip Ward picked up two on the ground, and quarterback Kevin Widner scampered for another nine and the first down, but the timer was down to twenty seconds and the Bulldogs were still 27 yards away from the endzone.

With no timeouts left, Widner went to the air, and connected with split end John Northington on a ten yard sideline pattern, but the youngster couldn't get out of bounds, and the final seconds of life were squeezed from the Bulldog carcass with the ball lying a scant 11 yards from victory.

While time was certainly not an aid in their final surge, it was not the major factor in the defeat. Turnovers were. Despite the fact that they dominated almost every imaginable offensive category, the Bulldogs fumbled the ball away four times. Two of the turnovers led to Monterey scores, and the other two cut short scoring drives of their own.

The Bulldogs got on the board first, when fullback Rusty Maroney, who rushed for more than one hundred yards for the third consecutive game, bulled over from the one to cap off a four play-14 yard drive.

Defensive back Tom Ready set up the Bulldog scoring drive, when he recovered a Monterey fumble in the final minute of the first quarter.

Monterey tied the ball game less than six minutes later, when Reeves jaunted in untouched, from 13 yards out. The score came seconds after Plainsmen cornerback Tim Hendrick recovered a Phillip Ward fumble.

The two teams traded punts during most of the third period, but Monterey took advantage of a poor kick with 6:02 on the clock, and drove 47 yards in nine plays, with Reeves once again going over from the two.

Before the Bulldogs had an opportunity to regroup, they fumbled the ensuing kickoff, and Monterey took over on the Midland 22. A penalty for having an ineligible receiver down field erased a 15 yard pass play, and the Plainsmen settled for a 38-yard field goal by kicker David Walden, to give them a ten point lead.

The Purple Pack refused to give up yet, and took the ball on their own twenty, and marched eighty yards downfield on the clutch running of Maroney and Ward. Maroney busted in for his second score of the game from two yards out with 6:08 to play. The two point attempt failed, as Hopkins tried to get his team close enough for a field goal to win it.

Crane sticks to ground to beat Van Horn, 15-7

BY BYRON BATTLES
R-T Staff

CRANE—A contest between Golden Cranes and Eagles would suggest an aerial battle, but the game here Friday evening was almost exclusively a down-to-earth encounter as Crane rolled past Van Horn 15-7. The Crane starting Backfield rushed for a total of 229 yards with halfback Chris Brightman being the top Crane rusher.

The winning score, however, was a 19-yard rollout toss from Crane quarterback Dale Mitchell to fullback Steve Holifield early in the last period.

After gaining possession when the Eagles failed to make a first, Crane's offense seemed to gain momentum from a solid defensive effort and drove 87 yards to score at 2:31 in the second quarter for the first score in the contest.

Van Horn ruined Crane's shutout on their next possession. Initiating their own offensive push, the Eagles used a combination of quick openers up the middle with Back Gaylor Scott and pithouts to halfback Victor Barrera to move 75 yards and score on a pass from sophomore Hector Lujan to end Martin Santiago. The conversion knotted the score at 7-7.

LAUNCHING a drive after a touch-back on an Eagle punt, the Golden Cranes mounted a 12-play, 80-yard march to paydirt. Consecutive rushes by senior Roy Hodges picked up one first down. Short runs by Holifield and Mitchell plus an offsides penalty advanced the ball to the 37 where Brightman broke a 16-yard scamper to set up the TD toss two plays later at 3:46 in the quarter.

The game started as a comedy of errors when Crane recovered the opening kickoff deep in Eagle territory. They were unable to score but Van Horn could not sustain an offensive effort either. The first period settled into a defensive stalemate.

The defenses of both teams dominated both the third quarter. Each club ball was forced to give away the ovaloid via punt.

Following what proved the eventual winning score Van Horn acquired the ball in good field position and moved to the Golden Crane 39 before a penalty, an incomplete pass, and a bad pitchout snuffed out the drive. The Eagle defense again rallied and the offense managed to get to midfield as the clock ran out to give Crane the win.

Crane was without the services of five starters in last night's game while workhorse Steve Holifield was nursing a bonespur.

scored from 17 yards out after James Miller set up the score with a fumble recovery on the Jal 36. Quarterback Randy Doege later scored on a 32-yard run and Lynn Parker kicked the extra points both times.

Clarke Turner scored from seven yards out in the second period, and Parker's kick made it 21-0 at the half.

Doege scored on a quarterback sneak from the one in the fourth period and Turner added a 21-yard scamper as Luckie ran for the conversion to make it 35-0 with only 2:55 left in the game.

Jal finally got on the boards with 1:37 left when Sidney Frymier scored from 61 yards out on the Rankin reserves. It was Jal's only threat of the night. Jal fumbled four times in the contest.

Rankin hosts Jim Ned next Friday in a bid for their fourth straight victory of the season.

Opperman listed as satisfactory

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Race car driver Jan Opperman was removed from the intensive care unit Friday and hospital officials listed his condition as satisfactory for the first time since he was injured last weekend.

"He is sitting up and talking," a Methodist Hospital spokeswoman said. "He has been taken off the intensive care unit and placed in the constant care section."

Pecos thunders past punchless Tornados

By GREG WATSON

LAMESA — About the only tornado at Lamesa's stadium Friday night was the white type that is advertised to leave things spotless.

Unfortunately that funnel cloud of cleaning belonged to the District 2-AAA Pecos Eagles, who devastated their District 3-AAA counterparts, 35-7.

Lamesa fans, hoping for their team's first victory in three starts, should have known what was in store when, on the third play from scrimmage, Eagle defensive back Linvel Mosby intercepted a Guy Price pass and lopez 25 yards for a score. Charles Weinacht booted the first of four extra points.

The Tors hadn't seen the end of that duo, either. Or bruising fullback Dennis Wilkins. Or stop-and-start dashman Curtis Johnson.

When the last two weren't scooting across the ground for 57 yards each and a couple of TDs, quarterback Weinacht was completing serials to the flanker Mosby.

A 47-yard pass play between the pair the first time Pecos had the ball offensively eventually enabled Wilkins to pop across from the 3.

interference play. In contrast, at the end of the second period in which Pecos drove twice inside the Lamesa 22 net to score, Lamesa had but 28 net yards rushing, 28 of them by Glen McCurley. In passing alone, Mosby had three catches for 104 yards.

Lamesa came out strong momentarily after the second-half kickoff thanks to a Johnny Lawler recovery of a Peco fumble at the Pecos 20. Anthony Manuel darted 10 yards, dragging a defensive man or two, for Lamesa's 15th point overall on the season and but the second TD allowed by Pecos. Clay Wright boomed the extra point, however as time worn on so did the Tors.

McCurley had to be taken by ambulance to the hospital. Reserve quarterback Johnny Hernandez, who engineered the sole scoring march, had to relinquish to Price after being hit while passing. And to top that, Price had to be assisted off the field not to return after making a tackle.

The larger-numbered Eagles, who managed to drastically outman the Tors in the halftime ceremonies by assembling a band of 17, kept coming on and off the field in waves. Weinacht rarely played in the final 24 minutes.

The quality of play naturally deteriorated with the onslaught of newcomers earning their few moments of glory, yet Pecos managed to keep registering the first downs — and points. Johnson cracked in from the 1; and Wilkins from the 3.

Incidentally, Pecos is 3-0 and still the district favorite. Just ask Lamesa.

Cuypers falls to Turnbull

ATLANTA (AP) — Unseeded Wendy Turnbull of Australia continued to upset the top players Friday in the early rounds of the USTA Womens National Indoor Tennis Tournament.

Miss Turnbull, 23, beat last year's semifinalist Brigitte Cuypers of South Africa 6-4, 4-8, 6-3 in the quarterfinals. Earlier in the tournament, Miss Turnbull ousted third-seeded Rosie Casals.

Sixth-seeded Dianne Fromholtz, one of only two of the eight seeds left, beat Joann Russell of Naples, Fla. 4-6, 6-3, 6-1 in the only other singles match of the day.

Stanton's tough defense blanks McCamey by 20-0

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
R-T Sports Writer

STANTON—Chalk one up for the defense in Stanton's 20-0 non-conference shootout with the McCamey Badgers Friday night in Buffalo Stadium.

The Stanton trenchmen stopped two serious McCamey threats and turned the ball over to teammate Marvin Jones enough times to make the difference. Two interceptions and a couple of fumble recoveries by the hard hitting Buffs certainly didn't hurt either.

Jones skipped through the McCamey defense for 166 yards rushing in 19 carries and scored two touchdowns for the offensive spark, but without the stout defense, headed by Tim Glynn, Tommy Halslip, Miles

Tollison, Mike Swinson, Scott Creech and Bimbo Allred, it might have been a different story.

THE TWO defensive minded squads fought to a 0-0 deadlock through the first quarter, but Swinson intercepted a Bobby Acosta aerial midway through the second quarter at the McCamey 48. Jones turned the lucky break into a 48-yard TD scamper that moved down the right sideline before breaking across the grain for an untouched maneuver that propelled him into the endzone. The extra point boot was blocked by McCamey, leaving Stanton with a 6-0 lead with 5:54 left in the half.

McCamey came right back and moved from their own 20 to the Stanton 23 as quarterback John Anglada went to the airways with two completions to Servando Carrasco and another to Elias Alvarado.

Stanton managed to hold as time ran out in the half when Anglada misfired on a fourth down play with one second left in the half.

McCAMEY CAME storming back in the third quarter to make their final bid of the night, and it turned out to be a back breaker for McCamey and sweat lifter for the Buffs.

McCamey took the opening kickoff and marched all the way to the Buff six-yard line before the roof caved in again.

Anglada had masterfully moved the Badgers to the threatening position with key passes to Randy Nichols, but the door closed on a fourth and goal at the seven-yard line when Jones and Tollison dropped Anglada with a 15-yard loss on a desperation passing try. It proved to be the end for McCamey and the start of the onslaught for Stanton.

Stanton couldn't move out of the hole and had to punt but McCamey fumbled the ball away on their first play when Anglada had the ball knocked away by Creech and recovered by Glynn at the McCamey 25.

JONES RIPPED off 24 yards to the two, and scored on a dive for a 12-0 lead. Stanton tried to run for two, but quarterback Todd Smith was dropped for a loss on the play.

The only other score of the night came when Allred intercepted an Anglada aerial and returned it 45 yards with 8:08 left in the game. Todd connected with Oscar Perez for the conversion.

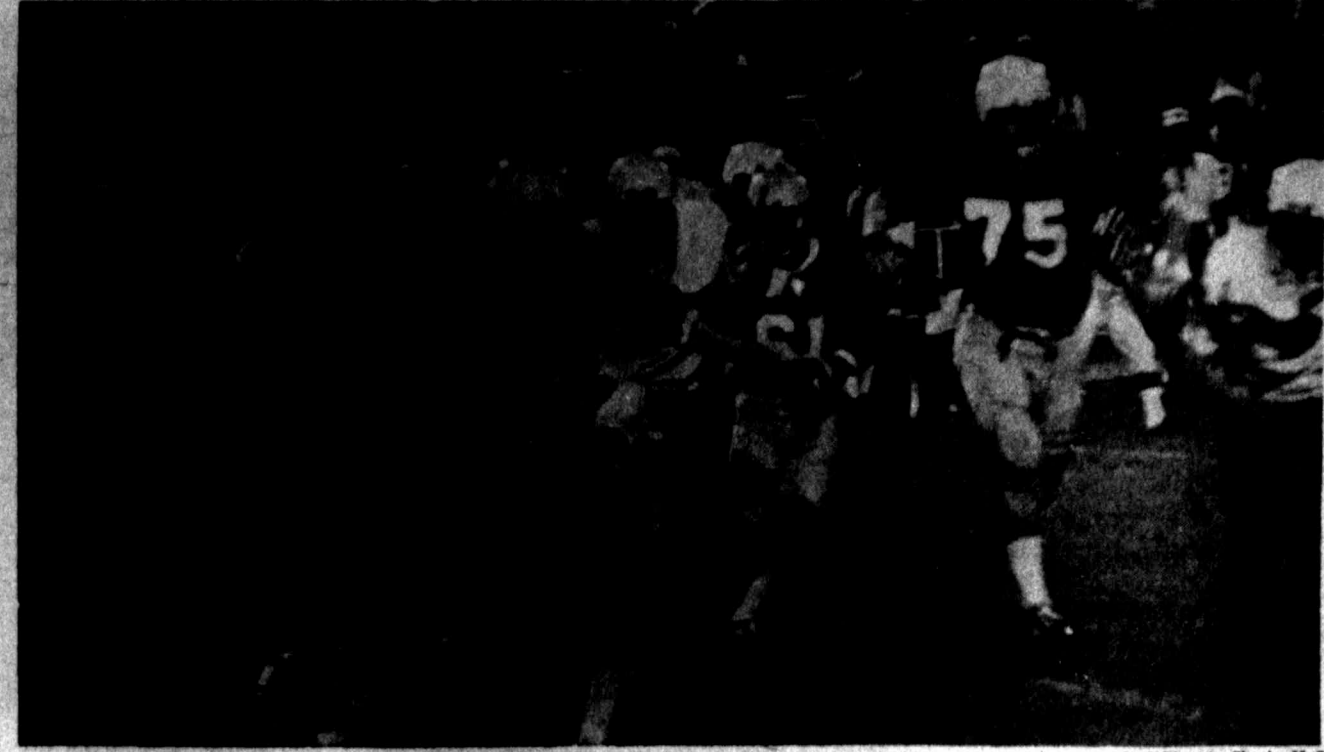

McCamey's Raul Arana raced 44 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter, but a motion penalty wiped it out. Mad McCamey converted on the two drives and the long run, it could have been a different story.

"The goal line stand was really the turning point in the game," said the slated Buffalo first year coach David Thompson after the game. "Our defense won it for us, but that goal line effort in the third period was really the difference. And what about Marvin. He did pretty good for a kid."

JONES, A junior, did have a good night. His 166 yards rushing accounted for almost all of the Buffs' 185 yards on the ground. He had over 150 yards last week against Wink in a 24-0 win.

McCamey's Al Glenn and Nichols were impressive on defense for the Badgers, but the youthful McCamey team again made too many mistakes. They had nine turnovers against Reagan County last week. The Badgers are 0-3 on the year and still looking for that first victory as a Class A team.

Stanton is now 2-1 on the year, and seem to be headed in the right direction under Thompson. McCamey will host powerful AA Ozona next Friday while Stanton entertains Roscoe.

Mustangs notch third straight

BROWNFIELD — Andrews Mustangs reeled off their third straight victory, surpassing their victory total of a year ago, by smashing Brownfield's Cubs, 26-0 here Friday night in a non-district AAA football game.

The Mustangs scored 19 points in the first half and costed from there to victory.

Jesse Madrid broke the scoring ice with 10:44 left in the opening quarter on a 15 yard run.

In the second period, Mike Reid took a pitchout from quarterback Booger Brooks and skirted end for 15 yards and a TD to make it 12-0.

A bit of trickery was involved in the third score with reserve quarterback Jeff Phillips passing off a fake field goal to Ricky Cheshire for 14 yards and a score. Cheshire then kicked the point.

Andrews, which rolled up 495 offensive yards to 137, scored in the third period on a 26-yard run by Mike Mace with Terry McCabe this time kicking the extra point.

Reagan whips Iran

IRAAN—The surging Reagan County Owls upended defending District 6-A champion Iran, 20-9, Friday night in a non-conference grid battle.

Iran got off to a fast start and a 6-0 lead with 8:43 left in the first period on a quick play. Roseles punted for Iran, and the ball hit a Reagan County player and bounced into the endzone where the Braves swarmed on it for the TD.

The Owls came back strong as quarterback Jennings Teel scored on a three-yard burst to tie the game at 6-6.

Britt Poyner bolted over in the second period on a short yardage situation to cap a 79 yard, eight play drive, but the conversion failed again for a 12-6 Owls' lead.

Roseles kicked a 27-yard field goal in the third period to narrow the margin to 12-9, but with 9:02 left in the game, Poyner struck again from a yard out and ran for two points to sew up the contest.

Odessa scores easy win

ODESSA—Odessa Bronchos finished their predistrict 5-4A schedule 3-0 by defeating Hobbs, N.M., 19-2, Friday night in W.T. Barrett Stadium.

Quarterback Darrell Shepard's 60-yard scamper in the first period gave the Bronchos a lead they never relinquished.

The Red Hossees led 6-2 at half, but pushed over touchdowns in each of the last two periods with Jeff Holder cracking over from the four and Ronnie Perry high-tailing for a TD on a 22-yard run.

Odessa's defense was the deciding factor in the game, limiting Hobbs to 74 yards rushing and only 18 passing.

Auburn ready for Baylor

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn Football Coach Doug Barfield says there will be a "lot of changes" made when the Tigers meet Baylor in their home opener here today.

Barfield, who succeeded Ralph Jordan as coach this year, is hoping to make up for the Tigers' 31-19 loss to Arizona in their season opener last Saturday.

The Bears, picked to challenge for the Southwest Conference title in preseason polls, dropped their first game to Houston 23-5.

THE AUBURN coach said he is still experimenting to see who his best players are and will "probably dress 60 players Saturday and play 60 players" against Baylor.

Bobcats crack victory circle

SAN ANGELO—Bill Woodard scored three touchdowns in the first half to lead the San Angelo Bobcats to a 33-6 victory over hapless San Antonio Roosevelt Friday night.

San Angelo produced its first victory of the season and is now 1-2 on the year. Woodard scored on runs of 11, 49 and 72 yards in the home man show.

West Evans scored on a 37-yard run to open the game before Woodard got untracked with his three straight scores.

Vin Smith, who replaced Woodard in the third period when he came up with a bruised rib, scored the Bobcats other touchdown.

Garden City strikes late for 16-0 win

KLONDIKE — Garden City's Bearcats cruised for 16 straight points to beat Klondike, 16-0, here Friday night for their first victory in three starts this season.

The first TD came in spectacular fashion as Steve Smith blocked a Klondike punt attempt from the Klondike 46, scooped the ball up and raced 30 yards for a score.

Court rule bonanza to Dorsett

PITTSBURGH (AP) — University of Pittsburgh running back Tony Dorsett, well aware a federal judge has ruled the pro football draft illegal, says he's looking for a big gain at the bargaining table.

"I don't care to mention the figure I have in mind, but I'm definitely looking for six figures," says Dorsett, who this season could become college football's all-time rushing leader.

"The way they're paying the pros today, I'm hoping to get one of those better contracts," he added in advance of Saturday's game at Georgia Tech.

If the federal court ruling stands, Dorsett would be eligible to sign with the professional team of his choice instead of being limited to bargaining with one club.

"First, I'd wait to see who's interested in me," said the 5-foot-11, 192-pounder, who rushed for 181 yards last week against Notre Dame.

"If we can't come to an agreement, then I will go elsewhere," he said. However, Dorsett said he expects the National Football League and its players union will agree on a modified version of the draft.

"But you'd better believe I'm going to get everything I can," he said. "I'm going to negotiate for big terms."

"I hate to say it like this, but it's the truth — once I leave here it's survival," he added.

"It's bread and butter; it's financial security."

Barring injury, Dorsett figures to surpass Archie Griffin's all-time college rushing total of 5,177 yards.

With 10 games to play, Dorsett already has 4,215.

Coach Homer Smith of Army, a former assistant at Southern Cal, had high praise for Dorsett last season.

"I have not seen a running back like Tony Dorsett since O.J. Simpson," Smith said.

Is Dorsett looking for a contract like Simpson's with Buffalo, reportedly a three-year deal for some $2.5 million?

"That could be stretching it for me," he said.

Mets' Grant charged with pressure tactics

NEW YORK (AP) — For briefs from both sides Grant denied any M. Donald Grant, chairman of the board of baseball's New York Mets, was accused in a complaint Friday of attempting to bring pressure on a man involved in a commodities trading dispute with Grant's brokerage firm, Fahnestock and Co.

Arthur J. Johnson, director of station clearance and co-op sales for NBC-TV, filed the complaint with the Federal Commodity Futures Trading Commission under a new adjudication procedure.

Johnson's complaint charged that Grant violated antitrust laws by attempting to pressure NBC-TV to clear his station's broadcast of the Mets' game on Sept. 10.

Johnson is seeking $22,000 he contends he could have made if the firm had executed an order he sought to place July 18, 1975. The previous day Fahnestock had said it would take no new orders from him.

Administrative Law Judge George H. Fehner reserved decision, calling

Orioles' Robinson nears trail's end

BALTIMORE (AP) — Brooks Robinson's long, illustrious tenure with the Baltimore Orioles may be over at the close of the 1976 season, but he is not yet ready to end his baseball career.

Even if he is through, however, the 38-year-old third baseman will walk away without regrets — and with his usual style and grace.

"It won't be a traumatic thing," Robinson said Thursday before leaving on a road trip. "Even if it's all over, I figure I've already beat the law of averages by a few years."

Robinson is convinced he still can play regularly and he is almost certain the Orioles won't protect him when Seattle and Toronto begin stocking their new franchises in the American League's expansion draft.

"I think I can play, and I'd like to find out if I can," he said. "If I can't, I'll go away happy and still in the prime of life."

Robinson, a brilliant fielder who says he never was paid for his defensive skills, has played in 2,200 games with the Orioles over the past 23 seasons.

Prior to this season, the durable Robinson had played in 97 per cent of Baltimore's games since being recalled from the minor leagues for the last time in 1953. He ranks

KC Kings trade McNeill

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Kings of the National Basketball Association will send forward Larry McNeill to the New York Nets for an undisclosed amount of cash and a middle-round 1977 draft choice, it was learned Friday night.

The trade follows a deal earlier this week in which Kansas City sent high-scoring guard Nate Archibald to New York.

BATTLE SCENE

Midland's Glen Ray helps stir NTSU grid revival

BY TED BATTLES

Glen Ray, after two seasons on the bench at the University of Nebraska, came back home to Texas, but when he got here, he discovered he hadn't left all of his problems in Lincoln.

"At Nebraska, he saw the handwriting on the wall, I suppose," reflected Hayden Fry. "There were three quarterbacks ahead of him and all were super athletes."

The North Texas State University coach went on, "And when he got here, it looked like the same situation. He was running No. 3 behind Ken Washington, Joe's little brother, and Ken Smith, and it showed in his lackadaisical approach."

Fry admits he was disillusioned by the former Midland High quarterback's attitude. "He may have assumed that he didn't have a chance, but there was never any doubt as to his potential."

"AT 6-4, 220 pounds, he had all the natural tools of the quarterback."

Then, before the Tennessee game last year, both Washington and Smith were drydocted simultaneously by injuries. "So I took him aside and said, 'It's your ball club.' Glen's turnabout in attitude and performance not only won the Tennessee game, the biggest victory in NTSU's history, but he quarterbacked us to wins in our last four games."

As a result, Fry now enjoys the happy dilemma of three quarterbacks of starting ability. Ray started the UT-Arlington game last week after almost pulling out the Mississippi State opener and today Washington will be starting against Texas.

"But I won't hesitate to go the bullpen if the offense isn't moving," Hayden quickly assures.

"NO, WE didn't recruit Ray. Actually, Midland Lee Coach Jim Acree was responsible. He and Jerry Moore had been on my staff at SMU and Moore was at Nebraska when Ray decided to change schools and funneled the word to Jim."

Fry now is glad he did.

"You can't say too much about him, as far as I'm concerned, after the job he's done for us," Fry said.

When we contacted Fry at Denton Thursday, he wasn't around, so we were a little surprised when he returned our call Friday morning. After all, he had Texas starting him in the face and it was suspected he had more pressing matters than a phone call to West Texas, even if it was from his native area.

The fact that he called back in itself tells you a whole lot about Hayden.

FRY QUARTERBACKED Odessa High to a state championship in 1946, played at Baylor and later coached at OHS in the 1950's before moving on to the college ranks.

His first head job was at SMU, where his Mustangs earned Sun, Astrobluebonnet and Cotton bowl invitations. Until Grant Teaff brought a SWC title to Baylor in 1974, Fry's 1966 SWC title at SMU was the only one by a non-state school since 1960.

His last season at SMU in 1972, the Mustangs weren't all that bad...7-4 and second in the SWC.

Even though he won the Missouri Valley Conference title in his first year at NTSU in 1973, "It was an environment of apathy."

Fry talked NTSU officials into going independent and, as he points out, "The response has been unbelievable, both in fan enthusiasm and financial response."

"WE CAME within a couple of thousand of filling our stadium last week, although we play all our big games at Texas Stadium in Irving."

Fry describes the Texas game today in Austin as the biggest in NTSU's history. "Darrell (Texas Athletic Director Darrell Royal) has graciously agreed to split the gate so it will be by far the largest money gate ever for us."

As an independent, Fry has done a hard to believe job of lining up a schedule liberally sprinkled with major, name opponents.

"Going independent was the smartest thing we've ever done. It gives us greater flexibility in our schedule. Most of the games with major teams have come through friendships, but I'm running out of friends."

As an example, NTSU and Tennessee were talking about a series until the Eagles upset the Vols before 73,000 fans in Knoxville last year. That ended the talks.

STILL, THE well hasn't run dry. North Texas has four-year contracts with Oklahoma State and Mississippi State. "We start a two-year series with Miami, Fla., next year. I think we have a game with Kansas. We have another game with Florida State and also have a four-year contract with Louisiana Tech during the state fair at Shreveport. There are two games with SMU and I'm still holding a 1977 date open in hopes that something will turn up."

Fry points out, "As an independent we have more than tripled our income."

Last year, NTSU finished 7-4, not bad for a schedule that listed seven teams that had been to bowls the year before. "And except for a two-point loss to Memphis State and a three-point loss to Mississippi State, we could have been 9-2," Hayden reflects.

FRY THINKS that NTSU eventually might become a candidate for SWC membership. "If we can upgrade our overall program, like Houston did, they might ask us to join. We've got the ball rolling. Last year we were 22-4 in basketball."

Fry believes if NTSU were to join the SWC, it would be as a replacement, not as an addition. "Some of the private and church schools are experiencing problems financially and I wouldn't be surprised to see one drop out in the next five years."

With 14 players injured and seven who haven't worked out all week, Fry isn't optimistic over NTSU's chances against the Longhorns, even if Earl Campbell is out of the lineup.

"We just aren't in their class and any psychological edge we might have had was lost when Boston College beat Texas last week. They'll be out to reestablish themselves in the national rankings."

"I'M JUST hopeful it will be an interesting game. We can't afford to be blown out of the tub."

Fry feels his main problem at NTSU is depth. "The key to our season is the injury situation. We have no depth. And if we get a bunch of people hurt, we can hide them for only so long."

Despite injuries, fan interest is at fever pitch around Denton. "About 7,000 fans will make the trip to Austin," says Fry. "There are 20 Continental Trailways buses and 36 mobile home units going."

Since Fry's arrival, the athletic atmosphere at Denton has undergone a revolutionary change and people who hadn't been back since the 0-10 season the year before Hayden arrived could confuse it with Columbus or South Bend.

Stunned elite to try again

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

On the subject of opening games, John McKay once summed up how many of the nation's top teams must have felt last Saturday.

"I'd rather open with a second game," he quipped.

And for many members of the preseason elite stunned by opening-game upsets, the second time out of the chute this weekend marks probably the last chance to open a bid for national and regional honors. Another slip could be fatal.

Nebraska, preseason choice to win the national championship, was held to a tie by unheralded Louisiana State and dropped to No. 8 but gets a chance to rebound Saturday against equally unheralded Indiana.

A LOSS to Mississippi sent Alabama reeling from sixth to 14th and the Crimson Tide makes its home debut in Birmingham against Southern Methodist.

Texas skidded from seventh to 19th by losing to Boston College and the Longhorns entertain North Texas State in a night game. Southern Cal, which bowed to Missouri in John Robinson's debut as McKay's successor and plummeted out of The Associated Press ratings, begins its Pacific-8 Conference schedule at Oregon.

In other games involving the Top Ten, No. 1-rated Michigan hosts Stanford, Ohio State, the poll runner-up by only one point, visits seventh-ranked Penn State in a confrontation between two of college football's biggest names, third-ranked Pitt is a Georgia Tech under the lights, fourth-ranked Oklahoma's defending national champs entertain California, fifth-ranked UCLA hosts Arizona, No. 6 Missouri is at home against Illinois, ninth-ranked Georgia visits Clemson and No. 10 Maryland is at West Virginia.

ELSEWHERE, IT'S Kansas State at No. 11 Texas A&M, Oklahoma State vs. No. 12 Arkansas in a Little Rock night contest, Kentucky at No. 13 Kansas, Oregon State at No. 18 Louisiana State after dark, Northwestern at No. 17 North Carolina and Tulane at No. 20 Mississippi. Boston College, rated 15th, and No. 18 Arizona State—ranked third before an opening loss to UCLA—are idle.

"Rankings are irrelevant this early in the season anyway," says Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne, adding, "We're going to have a good football team, but we're probably not the No. 1 football team."

Neither is Alabama, according to Bear Bryant. "We played Ole Miss just like we had played in practice."

he said, "and that is what I was afraid of. Everyone is saying we'll get better and it will be just like last year when we lost to Missouri in our opener and then won 11 straight. Well, it won't just happen. It's up to the players if they want to reach down and do something about it."

"There are no answers if you lose," added Darrell Royal of Texas, another veteran coach unaccustomed to losing. "The backfield we played most of the game had a total playing time of 10 1/2 minutes. It is inconceivable that with that kind of inexperience anybody could deserve a high national ranking."

MICHIGAN and Oklahoma, which usually put the ball in the air only on plane trips, expect to learn how the other half lives. Michigan runs into Stanford's Mike Cordova, who passed for 205 yards against Penn State last week, while Oklahoma must contend with Cal's Joe Roth, fresh from a 379-yard bombardment against Georgia.

To complicate matters, Michigan's Bo Schembechler isn't happy with his defense after watching Wisconsin's Mike Carroll riddle it for 25 completions and 268 yards.

"We are just not breaking for the ball quick enough," he says. "When that ball is in the air, the defense has as much right to it as the offense. We've got to put more pressure on the passer, too."

Schembechler called Cordova "a passer, a REAL passer. You and I know they're gonna get 200-300 yards passing."

LIKE SCHEMBEACHLER, Oklahoma's Barry Switzer knows his secondary can't do it alone, even though it's one of the best around.

"We'll have to put some pressure on Roth up front," Switzer says. "I hope we can. He's big and tall and reminds me of Jim Plunkett. He's the best passing quarterback we've faced since Lynn Dickey (Kansas State, Class of '71). Roth is awesome. The key is to try to keep him from throwing the long one. If we can't rush him, if we can't get to him, it's going to be a long day."

Ohio State and Penn State, however, are likely to slug it out on the ground.

"This team (Penn State) is a very good team with a tradition similar to ours," says Ohio State's Woody Hayes. "It's a pressure game of different circumstances than the first one."

Says Penn State's Joe Paterno: "It's a great time for us to play Ohio State. We're coming off a win over a good Stanford team. Ohio State won its first game. It's on regional television. It's an incentive to our people."

Texas Tech's Tommy Howard, named Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week, shows why as he catches Colorado halfback Terry Reed from behind with Tech halfback Eric Felton, 20, coming in to lend a helping shoulder in game at Jones Stadium.

NTSU bids for Irish of South

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Hayden Fry took over at North Texas State, he announced his intentions to make the independent school "The Notre Dame of the South." Fry gets his big chance Saturday night in Austin.

NTSU knocked off Tennessee and Houston last year in upsets but to beat the University of Texas in Austin—well, that would just about register a 9 on the 10-point Richter Scale.

Texas hasn't lost a game in Memorial Stadium since 1967. That's a string of 41 contests.

THE FIRST meeting in history between the two schools is one of the highlights on a widely varied Southwest Conference football menu this weekend which finds four league teams playing on the road against Southeast Conference toughies.

Texas, with or without injured fullback Earl Campbell, is a 15-point pick over north Texas. And Fry agrees.

"We'll have to gamble on defense and hope we guess right most of the time," said Fry. "It almost impossible to defend Campbell inside and those fast halfbacks outside."

He added "trying to stop Campbell is like tackling a tree. He has probably the greatest stiffarm in college ball."

Fry won't know until game time whether his rugged noseguard, Walter Chapman, will be available for duty. Chapman was injured in an opening 7-0 loss to Mississippi State.

THE SWC will have some difficult struggles as Baylor, Southern Methodist, Houston and Texas Christian hit the road against SEC teams.

Baylor is a 5 1/2 underdog to Auburn. Alabama is a 22-point pick over SMU. Florida is an 8-point selection over Houston, and Tennessee is an 18-point pick over TCU.

Eleventh-ranked Texas A&M hosts Kansas State at College Station and the Aggies are 19-point picks. Arkansas is a 3-point choice over unbeaten Oklahoma State at Little Rock.

Sports quotes of the week:

"If I had to go on what I saw today, I'd cut everybody." —Cleveland Cavaliers Coach Bill Fitch, watching is National Basketball Association game through its first day of preseason training.

"I sat in the dressing room between the third period and the overtime, said to myself, 'Maybe I'll score the goal that wins it.'" —Darryl Sittler after scoring the goal that gave Team Canada a 5-4 victory over Czechoslovakia and the championship in the Canada Cup ice hockey competition.

"It's not 'us' any more. Ara." —ABC football play-by-play announcer Keith Jackson, reminding Ara Parseghian that he is no longer

Notre Dame coach.

"Thank God for Ralph's Money." —A sign at Rich Stadium after Buffalo Bills owner Ralph Wilson got star runner O.J. Simpson to return to the team for a $2.5 reported million.

"Maybe externally I'm not upset, but I am very upset inside." —Philadelphia Phillies Manager Danny Ozark after first basemen Dick Allen didn't show up until a half hour before a game with Pittsburgh.

"That's a big break for us." —Ara Parseghian, former Notre Dame coach and now an ABC college football commentator, after Notre Dame recovered a fumble against Pittsburgh.

Mets' $50 loan to Koosman in 1966 finally pays off

NEW YORK (AP) — It was after Jerry Koosman had struck out his third batter in the ninth inning of his 20th victory Thursday night, after the cheers of the 5,472 Mets fans had brought him out of the dugout for a tip of his cap.

Joe McDonald, the Mets' general manager, walked up to the 32-year-old left-hander. "You're costing me money with that win," he said of the bonus he'd likely have to pay for the lefthander's first 20-triumph season.

"You've got a lot of it," was Koosman's reply as he lifted to his lips a glass of the champagne he had just used to toast his teammates.

THAT THE METS had loaned Koosman $50 in the spring of 1966—a petty cash transaction that may have kept him with the team—seemed ironic after all these years of comebacks for the veteran pitcher.

While management decided on final roster cuts before the 1966 campaign, there was heavy consideration given to discarding a pitcher from Appleton, Minn. who sported a 5-13 record in his first minor league season.

"But wait," McDonald said that day in spring training. "he's got $50 of Mrs. Payson's money." The Mets' late owner had loaned Koosman the money to repair the auto that was his lone source of transportation.

They kept him until the loan could be paid off, and by 1968, Koosman was on his way to a 19-12 rookie season and a 2.08 earned run average. He came within a vote of beating Cincinnati's Johnny Bench for National League Rookie of the Year.

NOW, EIGHT seasons later, Koosman has become the club's second 20-game winner.

"It is the night of my life," Koosman said Thursday after reaching the 20-victory plateau. "This is the night I have waited for since I was 16 years old."

It was a night Koosman may never have seen, had the Mets followed through on plans to keep him in the bullpen this season. After middling records of 11-12, 14-15, 15-11 and 14-13 in his last four seasons, Koosman appeared destined for

Favorites advance in MTC play

Defending champions Bill Matyastik and Vicki Lancaster Kerr won their opening matches in the Midland Tennis Club's 16th annual Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament Friday to lead the way into today's play.

Matyastik defeated Artie Kurtz of Central College while top-seeded Ms. Kerr won over UTPB's Karen Meares, 6-4, 7-6 in no-easy fashion. There were no startling surprises in the first two rounds of men's and women's singles play Friday.

Matyastik meets Armando Rivera, New Mexico State, this morning.

Rivers defeated Todd Reed, West Texas State, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

SECOND SEEDED Larry Gottfried, Trinity University, will meet Skipper Parker, Baylor, who had a tough match in winning 6-7, 6-4, 6-0 over David Carter. Gottfried won by default.

Anne Smith, who gained the finals last year against Ms. Kerr, won over Lisa Booker, Texas Tech, 6-1, 6-0.

Also advancing were Kim Steinmetz, SMU, against Julie Sanderson, Odessa College. Midlanders Amy Tompson and Vicki Vasicek won first round matches, but lost in second round play.

Third seeded Randy Crawford, TCU, won over Neal Wade, 6-1, 6-0, and Craig Richardson, OC, 6-0, 6-4, while fourth-seeded Tony Giammalva, Trinity, defeated Mike Davidson and Jay Meyers.

MIDLAND COLLEGE'S Dennis McKeown advanced with wins over Rocky Berg, Texas Tech, and George Puigmidul, OC, and faces Giammalva this morning.

Midlander Jeff Bramlett won a hard-fought second round match over

Jo Dan McBeth, West Texas State, 7-5, 1-6, 7-5.

Tut Bartzan, Jr., TCU, also was a double winner.

MC players falling by the wayside were Tony Luttrell to TCU's David Kelly; Ron Cetron; Reg Luttrell to A&M's Tom Courson and Derek Edmonds in a second round match to Trinity's Dave Benson.

Plays resumes at 9 a.m. today with the winning playing at Lee High while the men will be playing at Midland High and Midland College.

Finals in all divisions are scheduled for Sunday at the Midland High courts.

ABC seeks right 'chemistry'

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC-TV, still experimenting with what it calls the "chemistry" of its baseball broadcasts, has dropped broadcasters Bob Prince and Norm Cash from its upcoming playoff coverage.

Prince and Cash, who worked Monday Night Baseball for ABC during the 1976 season, were not listed in plans ABC revealed Thursday for coverage of the National and American League playoffs starting Oct. 9.

"We do not make announcements when people are dropped," an ABC spokesman said. "We are also not saying that Prince and Cash will never broadcast baseball for us again. We are just saying that they are not in our plans for playoff coverage."

However, four of the six broadcasters who manned the mikes for regular season ABC coverage will be used in the playoffs. They are Al Michaels, Bob Gibson, Bob Uecker and Warner Wolf, and ABC has left open the possibility of adding additional talent before the initial playoff telecast.

Prince was dropped by the Pittsburgh Pirates last year after several years as their radio and TV voice. He became the voice of the Houston Astros this season in addition to his Monday night network chores. Cash is a former Detroit Tigers first baseman.

Apparently the initial ABC baseball broadcast teams of Prince, Uecker and Wolf for primary games, and Cash, Gibson and Michaels for backup games, did not reach the expectations that ABC president for sports Rooney Arledge had for them when they were hired in the spring.

Consequently, when ABC switched to a more regional approach, sometimes doing three games on Monday nights late in the season, the broadcasting teams were changed in an effort to gain more informality in their approach.

Finally in the last regular season telecast on Sept. 5, the network assigned Wolf and Michaels to do one game and Uecker and Gibson to the other, leaving the regular viewers wondering about Prince and Cash.

ABC officially said, "We appreciate the time and effort that Bob Prince and Norm Cash put into our baseball broadcasts, but we are continually striving to improve our product and get the right balance."

ABC claims that regionalization of the telecasts helped improve Monday night ratings some 20 per cent over last season's figures by NBC, but that is not a fair comparison because NBC did not regionalize its telecasts. Instead, NBC stuck with a primary game (seen by most of the nation) and a backup game (seen in only a few markets) concept.

"Even though we had higher rating figures, we had to do much experimenting on the air and we were not that happy with the chemistry among the broadcasters," the ABC spokesman said.

ABC's playoff coverage, based on present standings, will begin Saturday, Oct. 9 with the New York Yankees at the Kansas City Royals at 1 p.m., and the Cincinnati Reds at the Philadelphia Phillies at 8 p.m. On Sunday, Oct. 10, ABC will air the NL playoff at 3:30 p.m. and the AL playoff at 8 p.m.

Monday is a travel day and ABC Monday Night Football, so the series will resume Tuesday, Oct. 12 with the NL game at 3 p.m. and the AL game at 8 p.m. If necessary, games of Wednesday, Oct. 13 will have the AL at 3 p.m. and the NL at 8 p.m.

If a fifth game is needed to decide either series, it will be played Thursday, Oct. 14—the NL game at 3 p.m. and the AL game at 8 p.m.

Beth Stone forges LPGA lead

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Beth Stone, a non-winner since joining the women's professional golf tour in 1961, shot a four-under-par 69 for a three-stroke lead after the opening round of the $45,000 Portland Classic Friday.

The 36-year-old pro from Muskogee, Okla., collected five birdies and one bogey en route to the first-day lead in the 54-hole LPGA tourney.

Seven others shared second place at 72. The group included Donna Young, Clifford Ann Creed, Sue Berning, Judy Kimball, Marlene Floyd, Mary Lou Crocker and Marlene Hage.

Jo Anne Carner, a pre-tournament favorite, shot a 73. She is the LPGA's second leading money winner this year with earnings of $81,270.

More than half of the tour's top 30 money winners have skipped the Portland tournament, apparently to relax before the big Carlton Grand Prix next week.

JoAnn Washam, the defending champion, was well down the list, shooting a five-over-par 78 on the Portland Golf Club course.

Carter's trial moved

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — A judge ordered Friday that the trial of former boxer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter and John Artis be moved to Jersey City, citing what he termed "prejudicial publicity."

Defense attorneys maintained it would be impossible for Carter and Artis to get a fair trial in Passaic County.

Grambling considers quitting conference

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Grambling University says it may pull out of the Southwestern Athletic conference (SWAC), claiming the school was the victim of a double standard which resulted in a year's probation.

"We feel the treatment is unfair and we are going to take a serious look at our situation in the league," said Collie Nicholson, the school's sports information director. "It is possible we can't afford to be associated with the league anymore."

Grambling was suspended by the conference for all sports in the 1976-77

Aching Mike Hill takes lead with hot putter

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Mike Hill, his injured leg "aching like a toothache" in light rain, used a torrid putter to produce a six-under-par 64 Friday and earn the midpoint lead in the $150,000 Ohio Kings Island Open Golf Tournament.

The younger, quieter brother of controversial Dave Hill stood at 134, six-under-par for two trips around the 6,837-yard Nicklaus Golf Center layout.

One shot behind, after a second consecutive subpar round, came New Zealander John Lister 135. He fashioned a 67.

David Lundstrom, once a star basketball guard for Bradley University, shot the best round of his brief pro tour career, a 66, to claim third at 138.

Tom Weiskopf, who shot 68, and Australian David Graham, in with 67, were in a logjam for fourth place at 137 which included first day co-leader Danny Edwards, with a 71. Ben Crenshaw, with a 69, was another blow back at 138.

Jack Nicklaus, who designed and built this well-manicured course, fired a pair of birdies, his first ones of the tournament, shot a 69 for 140.

Don Pooley, the other opening round leader, ballooned to a 75 and had 141.

"I've made one cut in a row now," cracked Nicklaus, alluding to his miss last week in the World Open. Prior to that, the game's all-time money winner had made 105 cuts in a row.

Miller Barber, who won this stop the last time it was staged in 1974, posted a 70 and remained in contention at 141.

Lee Trevino came in with 71 for 144 and missed the 36-hole cut by one shot. The low 70 and ties will play the final rounds Saturday and Sunday in search of the $30,000 first prize.

The younger Hill, 37, a beer truck driver for three years before he turned pro at 29, hurt his right leg in a motorcycle accident in April 1975.

"I nearly lost my leg," he said. "I'm not playing as well as before I got hurt. Maybe I never will. On a day like today, my knee aches like a toothache."

Still, he drilled in nine oneputters, seven for birds, and applied a new approach to a 27-putt round. "I stood a little closer to the ball today. I pushed a lot of my putts yesterday. It really worked," he said.

Lister shook off an erratic driver with excellent iron play. "I came out smelling like roses when I drove it bad," said the tall, lanky foreigner, the Quad Cities champion this year.

Teacher scores upset in Hall of Fame play

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Rookie Brian Teacher pulled an upset in the $35,000 Hall of Fame Tennis championship quarter-finals Friday, defeating third-seeded Colin Dibley of Australia.

Teacher broke Dibley's serve in the fifth game of the first and third sets, winning 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Teacher, a former UCLA star from San Diego, who turned pro earlier this summer, had been scheduled to play in Bermuda, but came to Newport on short notice because of the grass courts here. But the games were moved indoors Friday because of inclement weather.

In other quarter-finals, Vijay Amritraj of India defeated John James of Armonk, N.Y., 6-2, 6-1; Mike Estep of Waco, Tex., defeated Anand Amritraj of India, 6-3, 2-6, 6-0, and Paul Kronk, 21, of Australia, defeated George Hardie of Long Beach, Calif., 6-1, 7-5.

Vijay Amritraj meets Kronk and Teacher will face Estep in semifinals Saturday. The finals are scheduled Sunday with the winner earning $12,500 first prize.

The tournament is sponsored by Miller High Life beer.

Pro expert seeks to better 13-1

By HAL BOCK

NEW YORK (AP) — Psst. Hey, buddy. Yeah, you. Looking for an upset in the National Football League this week? Sure, you are. How tough is it to figure Dallas over New Orleans and Miami over New England? All the guys in the office pool will have those. But how about Tampa Bay over San Diego? Now, there's one that could give you the edge. How could the pro picker, that bastion of football reliability, have the nerve to try and tout you onto the Buccaneers? This is a team that will be playing only its second regular-season NFL game. And this is a team that neglected to score any points in its first one. So why should it win?

Well, for one thing, despite last week's victory, San Diego is no powerhouse. And for a third, the pro picker had a 13-1 opening week, missing a clean sweep by 45 seconds when Washington overtook the New York Giants at the end of their game. So he can afford a far-fetched pick like Tampa Bay. The picks: Tampa Bay 14, San Diego 10. How will the Bucs score 14 points this week when they couldn't score any last week? Have faith. Minnesota 23, Los Angeles 10. The Rams are down to thirdstring quarterback Pat Haden with regular James Harris still nursing a broken thumb and backup Ron Jaworski's shoulder broken. The Vikes have won six of the last seven meetings against LA. Pittsburgh 38, Cleveland 14. The Steelers are angry after blowing last week's opener in Oakland. Baltimore 21, Cincinnati 17. The home field gives the Colts a little edge in this match between two of the NFL's finest young quarterbacks, Bert Jones of Baltimore and Ken Anderson of Cincinnati. San Francisco 20, Chicago 14. The 49ers have beaten the Bears six straight times. Oakland 35, Kansas City 10. The Raiders scored 17 points in less than three minutes against Pittsburgh. Can you imagine what they might do against the Chiefs? Detroit 16, Atlanta 14. The Lions never have lost to the Falcons and they've faced better Atlanta clubs. Washington 24, Seattle 17. The ambitious, young Seahawks threw a king-sized scare into St. Louis in their opener. You can't scare those tough, old Redskins. St. Louis 28, Green Bay 13. So what if Terry Metcalf won't run back kicks for the Cardinals? He does everything else, doesn't he? Dallas 32, New Orleans 13. Poor Hank Stram. If only the Saints could stay close, he would think of something. Houston 23, Buffalo 14. The Bills will use O.J. Simpson full-time this week. NY Giants 24, Philadelphia 14. Miami 33, New England 7.

Rocketing ticket prices, free TV pose problem for NFL

By JOHN HANNEN Toledo Blade

TOLEDO, Ohio—Watching the National Football League try to live with television in the next few years is going to be more than a little interesting. When an individual paints himself into a corner, it's supposed to be the height of stupidity. The NFL isn't too far from that position as it struggles to control its own destiny and still get its greedy hands on as much TV money as possible. Professional football has been selling its product twice in recent years. That's like having your cake and eating it, too. Even little kids know that is a no-no. THE NFL has been selling its show to television for a nice round figure like $60 million also selling it live at the stadium gate.

Ticket prices at most NFL stadia averages $11 and that's not exactly family entertainment prices. What the NFL faces in the near future is whether to curb its exposure on television in an effort to force people into the stadia. Or, whether to increase its exposure on TV and turn the stadia into TV studios. NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle will be negotiating a new TV contract this year and he will be seeking more money. If he is going to get it, TV will want more concessions from the NFL. It is a vicious circle old Pete is running. WASHINGTON this season was expected to have the first $4 million payroll in the history of the NFL. That is $2 million higher than five years ago. It's the day of the big buck for the players in the NFL, but the glory days may be about over. Season ticket sales in the NFL have shrunk, 160,000 since the peak year of 1973. That's a 17 per cent drop worth $1.6 million. Overall attendance is down only four per cent, but crowds at exhibition games averaged less than 38,000 in comparison to 54,000 in 1973. TV ratings have not diminished. The schedule on the tube gets more attractive every year. To qualify for its $60 million, the NFL has trapped itself into providing its finest game for viewing at home, yet it still wants to entice fans into the stadium. THE SECOND games of TV doubleheaders usually match the stronger teams in the NFL. On a cold, winter afternoon, they are quite an attraction. Unless you are a rabid fan of the home team, it is very easy to take your football on the tube.

Peterson captures golf title

Retha Peterson won the Ranchland Hills Country Club Women's Golf Championship this week while Betty Howell took first place in the first flight. Other winners included, Pat Cheyney, second flight; Mary Witcher, third flight; Patty Fuller, fourth flight. Mary Ann Wieseppa took the nine-hole championship while Golda Morgan won the Cry Baby flight. Winners in the Ranchland Hills Country Club Women's Golf Tournament were, from left, Golda Morgan, Betty Howell, Mary Witcher, Retha Peterson, Pat Cheyney, Patty Fuller, and Mary Ann Wieseppa.

Knicks hire Levane as scout

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association announced on Friday that they have hired former coach Fuzzy Levane as a scout.

Reds' pitchers rely on bullpen

CINCINNATI (AP) — No team has ever won the National League pennant without at least one of its pitchers winning 15 games, but this year the Cincinnati Reds are in a position to smash that record. The Reds have no 15-game winner. They have no 14-game winner. Only Pat Zachry has won 13 games. Three teams won National League pennants without a 16-game winner. The 1930 St. Louis Cardinals won with their top winner being "Wild" Bill Hallahan, at 15-9. The 1952 Brooklyn Dodgers won with Joe Black, at 15-4, and last year the Reds won with three 15-game winners—Don Gullett, Gary Nolan and Jack Billingham. The Cincinnati theory this year has been a "staff concept" with the entire staff being asked to contribute. "I DON'T care which of my pitchers gets the win, just so the Cincinnati Reds win," said Manager Sparky Anderson. That doesn't mean that Anderson wouldn't love to have a big winner. "I love a (Tom) Seaver or a (Jon) Matlack," Anderson said. "I'd stay with them through seven or eight, maybe longer. But we don't have Seaver or Matlack." What Anderson has is a team that, as a rule, scores its runs late in the game. He has pitchers who hold the other teams close. "I use what we have," the Reds manager said. "We have 10 pitchers. I'm using them. You can't quit on a guy. If you do, it might be right at the time when he's gonna get hot." That is why, early in the year when Rawly Eastwick was going badly, Anderson stuck with him. The result is that Eastwick has 11 victories, 23 saves and a 2.16 earned run average. "EASTWICK OUGHT to win the Cy Young award," declared catcher Johnny Bench entering the youngster's name into contention for top pitching honors. Anderson knows that his starters are sometimes irked with their sudden departures from the mound. He's heard the behind-the-back whispers. "A lot of pitchers believe they don't get a chance to stay in long enough," Anderson said. "Well, I have a belief too. I believe a lot of earned run averages would be higher if I left those pitchers in to pitch out of those jams." Anderson set the trend on the Reds. His theory is one he has sold his pitchers, but it is not accepted everywhere else. "When Atlanta was here," recalled pitching coach Larry Shepard, "Andy Messersmith was taken out of a close game. He went crazy. He believes he should finish what he starts. On clubs like that, the pitcher sets the rule, rather than the manager."

Catholic bishops deny candidate endorsements

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The head of the nation's Roman Catholic bishops attempted Thursday to remove the church hierarchy from its controversial entry into the presidential campaign by insisting that Catholic bishops have not endorsed either candidate and will not do so.

Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin of Cincinnati said in a press conference here that he regretted widespread "misperceptions" that the church leaders support President Ford over his Democratic challenger Jimmy Carter because of Mr. Ford's stronger anti-abortion stance.

The press conference was called at the U.S. Catholic Conference headquarters here after the national bishops' 50-member administrative committee issued a unanimously approved statement also "rejecting" the notion they favor Mr. Ford.

Bernardin conceded he and other Catholic officials have received a "considerable amount" of mail commenting on their public statements after recent private meetings with both presidential candidates.

"Some of this mail has been supportive," the prelate said. The critical mail responses have dwelt on two "misperceptions," he said — "that we have endorsed either directly or tacitly one candidate or another" and "that we are giving the impression we are not involved in any issues but abortion."

"I reject totally the label of being partisan," the bishop added.

The church leaders found themselves in the fray when after a meeting with Carter Aug. 31, Bernardin, speaking for the bishops executive committee, said they were "disappointed" with the Democrat's position on abortion.

The bishops are in the forefront of a battle to pass a constitutional amendment banning abortions. Carter has said he is personally opposed to abortion and is against government funding and is against government funding for abortion but that he does not support two proposed constitutional amendments banning abortions.

After a similar meeting at the White House with Mr. Ford on Sept. 10, Bernardin said the executive committee was "encouraged" by the President's position on abortion.

President Ford also is personally opposed to abortion and supports a constitutional amendment that would broaden states' powers to regulate abortion.

But Bernardin insisted Thursday the words "disappointed" and "encouraged" have been too broadly interpreted to cover all issues, not abortion alone, that the bishops and the candidates discussed.

"You've made a great deal of these words 'encouraged' and 'disappointed,'" he told reporters with a sigh. "I feel in a sense like Pilate (who was blamed for Christ's death but contended it was the people's will). What is written is written."

He explained that the bishops agreed to meet with Mr. Ford and Carter at the candidates' request.

"We did not ask to speak with either candidate," he said.

He conceded that the bulk of both meetings was devoted to discussions about abortion but he contended that was mainly at the candidates' request.

As for other issues mentioned — such as the church's liberal positions on health insurance, housing, foreign policy, employment, food and civil rights, Bernardin emphasized there were "many areas of agreement" with Carter. Ford's positions were generally "somewhat different than the approach of the (bishops) conference," he said.

Last November, the bishops conference launched an unprecedented campaign directing every Catholic to join the battle for a constitutional amendment against abortion and calling for "well-organized pro-life" lobbies in every congressional district.

The bishops' recent remarks on abortion and the presidential candidates have led to criticism from some prominent Catholics that they are making the church appear to be overly identified with one issue. Such a position, the critics have said, is bad for the church's credibility as a broader social force and would not be accepted by millions of Catholics.

Bernardin said Thursday the bishops will not back off any of their positions on political issues.

Bernardin attempted Thursday to identify the anti-abortion position as a "constant teaching of the Judeo-Christian tradition." In fact, however much of American Protestantism and the Reform Jewish community has organized the religious Coalition for Abortion Rights, a lobby pressing for the right to abortion.

In their statement, the bishops administrative committee Thursday said they were obligated to "make clear the moral and religious dimensions of secular issues" and "to point to God's word as an authentic norm for social and political life."

UNCF week ends today

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. has proclaimed the week of Sept. 12-18 as United Negro College Fund week in Midland.

Several churches in Midland will have speakers in behalf of the fund drive Sunday and many residents will be making contacts in the city.

Money raised by the drive will be donated to six predominately Negro colleges in Texas, Bishop in Dallas, Houston-Tillotson in Austin, Jarvis Christian in Hawkins, Paul Quinn in Waco, Texas College in Tyler and Wiley in Marshall.

Presbyterian Assembly adopts 1977 budget

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—A 1977 budget of $3.5 million was approved Friday by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in America.

The new budget is $1 million more than the church's 1976 budget, and church spokesmen said more than half of the increase would go for support to pastors organizing some 30 new churches.

They added most of the new churches will be established outside the South, where the conservative PCA was formed more than three years ago by churches breaking away from the more liberal Southern-based Presbyterian Church in the United States.

The PCA also adopted a new policy on the final day of its meeting here that churches should not use rummage sales, suppers and bazaars to raise money.

"This is advice to the churches and is not binding," temporary Moderator Jackson Williamson, of Greenville, Ala., told the church's fourth annual convention.

The policy says "the Lord has ordained that giving should be an act of worship and thus a means of grace." But it adds that "commercial activities designed primarily to provide a ministry, such as a book store, are proper."

The assembly voted to hold its 1977 convention in Atlanta and to accept an invitation to hold its 1978 assembly at Calvin College in Grand Rapids, Mich., which is operated by the Christian Reform Church.

The convention in Michigan will be the PCA's first assembly outside the South.

The PCA has 60,000 members, and churches in 13 Southern states, as well as California, Arizona, New Mexico, Washington, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Connecticut and New Jersey.

First Presbyterian to host Dr. Russell

Dr. Henry E. Russell of Memphis, Tenn., will be a guest of Midland's First Presbyterian Church Sunday and Monday.

Pastor emeritus of Memphis' Second Presbyterian Church, Dr. Russell will come to Midland to lead a special emphasis on wills and bequests. He will preach at the 11 a.m. Sunday worship service of First Presbyterian, and will meet with officers of the congregation at 6 p.m. that day in the church parlor, after which a special meeting for all interested persons will be held at 7 p.m.

Persons interested in making wills and bequests to their church, or in finding out more about such wills and bequests, will be able to make appointments to confer with Dr. Russell throughout the day on Monday. Dr. Russell's visit here is being sponsored by the stewardship committee of First Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Russell, who has served as pastor of Presbyterian churches in Montgomery, Ala., Atlanta and LaGrange, Ga., retired in late 1975 from the ministry of Memphis' Second Presbyterian Church. He recently returned from seven months' travel and study in Europe. He has conducted preaching missions for the U.S. Air Force and has conducted numerous retreats and spiritual life conferences in the U.S.

Rev. Ann Gilbert

Rev. Gilbert accepts call as minister

The Rev. Ann Gilbert has accepted a call as minister of the Permian Church of Religious Science.

The newly-formed congregation meets for services at 11 a.m. Sundays in the Midland Hilton Inn. Study group meetings are held at 8 p.m. Tuesdays in members' homes.

A native of Oklahoma, the new minister here attended Oklahoma College for Women, the University of Oklahoma and the Ministerial Training Institute of Oakland, Calif. She served as assistant minister of the First Church of Religious Science in Albuquerque, N.M., and prior to that was leader of the Religious Science Center in Livermore, Calif.

Miss Gilbert describes Religious Science as "a Christian, metaphysical teaching. Some call it 'new thought' but actually it is quite old. It is what Jesus taught." She said the church has had rapid growth in Texas within the last few years, with congregations now existing in Dallas, Fort Worth, Lubbock, Houston and San Antonio. There are study groups in several other cities in the state.

Dr. A. B. Lightfoot

Evangelist to preach for revival

Revival services next week at Midland's Fannin Terrace Baptist Church will have widely-known evangelist Dr. A. B. Lightfoot as the preacher. Dr. Lightfoot is a former pastor of churches in Odessa, Snyder and Big Lake who has preached in various Midland churches on numerous past occasions.

The revival series will begin Sunday, continuing through Friday. Sunday services are scheduled for 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. while weekday services will begin at noon and 7:30 p.m. Fannin Terrace Church is at 2800 Mogford St.

Dr. Lightfoot, now a resident of Kerrville, is a graduate of Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth. In addition to filling area pastorates, he also has been superintendent of missions for Austin, Midland and Odessa Baptist associations and was instrumental in establishing numerous new Baptist churches. He has conducted evangelistic crusades and revivals in many parts of the nation as well as in Europe and Central America. He also is in demand as an after-dinner speaker, being widely-known as a humorist and amateur magician. He frequently conducts "magic with a message" programs for youth groups.

Mike Bedford of Lubbock will be music leader for next week's revival services, which will be open to the public.

Alamo Heights to host evangelist for revival

In conjunction with the Week of Prayer for State Missions currently under way in Southern Baptist churches in Texas, Midland's Alamo Heights Baptist Church is holding a missions revival this weekend.

The emphasis began Friday and will continue through Sunday morning, said the Rev. Bruce McNair, pastor.

Evangelist for the revival is the Rev. Jesse Pedroza of Van Horn. Mr. Pedroza serves as pastor in the Spanish department of Van Horn's First Baptist Church and also is pastor of three Baptist churches across the Rio Grande River in Mexico.

The revival will conclude with services at 7:30 p.m. today and 10:55 a.m. Sunday.

Jessica Pickett

Miss Pickett slates lecture in Midland

A lecture by Jessica Pickett of Chicago will be presented at 8 p.m. Thursday under auspices of Midland's First Church of Christ, Scientist.

The program in Midland Theatre Centre, 2301 W. Indiana St., will be open to the public at no charge.

Miss Pickett, a member of the Board of Lectureship of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, will speak on "Individualizing God's Power" in the program here. It is the first of two special lectures planned here this season under sponsorship of the Midland Christian Scientist congregation.

Miss Pickett, a native of Atlanta, Ga., is a graduate of the University of Chicago and later did public relations work in Chicago before becoming a fulltime practitioner of Christian Science.

Rev. Jesse Pedroza

Program resumes Sunday

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The Lutheran Hour, one of the world's widest and oldest religious ministries on radio, will begin its 44th broadcast season Sunday.

The English language program, sponsored by the International Lutheran Laymen's League, features Dr. Oswald Hoffmann as speaker and is carried by approximately 1,100 stations across the U.S. and Canada. Fifty additional stations in the two countries carry programs in French, Spanish, Slovak, Finnish, Chinese and Japanese, while some 700 overseas stations carry programs in 45 other languages.

The Lutheran Hour first went on the air in 1930 with Dr. Walter A. Maier Sr. as speaker.

Following his death, Dr. the broadcasts, and Dr. Lawrence Acker and the Hoffmann was selected Rev. Armin Oldsen as Lutheran Hour speaker in 1955.

Church begins choir program for children

Christ Presbyterian Church is instituting a choir program for children.

According to Jane Huddleston, director of choral activities for the church, musical playtime will be offered 3-year-olds, while regular choir sessions are planned for children of kindergarten age through sixth grade level.

The youth choral activities will be open to all children of the community, not just to offspring of members of the Christ congregation. Persons interested in enrolling their children in the music program are invited to contact the church office, 694-6542, or Mrs. Huddleston at 694-8930 for additional information.

Midland woman serving as congregational head

Mrs. Norman Gould of Midland is the congregational president of Temple Beth El in Odessa, the Permian Basin synagogue serving Jewry in Midland, Odessa and numerous other cities in this area.

The temple currently is preparing for Rosh Hashonah, the Jewish New Year, which marks the beginning of the Ten Days of Awe, a period of prayer and introspection culminating in Yom Kippur, or Day of Atonement.

Rosh Hashonah begins at sundown Thursday and the Jewish High Holy Days will continue through Oct. 4, the Day of Atonement, Mrs. Gould said.

Mrs. Gould, who succeeds Dr. Bernard Tucker in the Temple Beth El presidency, is the first woman to head the congregation. Several other temples in the state also now have women serving as presidents or as board members, she says.

Mrs. Gould, a native of New York, is the wife of Dr. Norman Gould, a Midland optometrist. The couple has two sons and one daughter.

Mrs. Gould is active in the League of Women Voters here, having served as president and in numerous other positions of responsibility in the organization. She and Dr. Gould are longtime members of Midland Community Theatre and have worked in numerous MCT productions, backstage or onstage, in the past.

Mrs. Gould said that the High Holy Days services at Temple Beth El will be conducted by Rabbi Emanuel Kumin of Shreveport, La. Rabbi Kumin will be serving the Temple Beth El congregation on a one-monthly basis beginning this fall. He succeeds Dr. Josef Zeltin who has served the congregation for several years until his recent retirement.

Forum includes archaeology presentation

Mrs. Francis C. Stickney will present a program on archaeology for members and guests of the Midland Unitarian Church during the Sunday morning Forum at the church, 3400 North A St.

Mrs. Stickney will illustrate her talk with film slides showing a field archaeology project.

A member of the Texas State Archaeological Society and first vice president of the Midland Archaeological Society, Mrs. Stickney is active in Las Manos of the Museum of the Southwest and has served on the Vestry, or governing body, of St. Nicholas Episcopal Church.

The 10:30 a.m. Forum will be open to all interested persons.

Film scheduled for Sunday

"The Late Great Planet Earth," described as a film for people who are concerned about current events and their impact on the world, will have a showing at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in Midland's Latin Free Methodist Church, 411 S. Terrell St.

The motion picture is an adaptation of author Hal Lindsey's book of the same title, a best-seller which has now sold well over 6 million copies. Portions of Lindsey's book have been featured in several other recent films, including "The Return," "Revelation" and "The Final Hour."

The Rev. Julio Castillo, pastor of the Latin Free Methodist Church, has invited all interested persons to attend the special screening Sunday evening.

Policeman guest at meeting tonight

The Midland chapter of Houston at its meeting the Full Gospel Business tonight in Rodeway Inn, Men's Fellowship In-1000 W. I-20. The event will begin international will be host to Capt. John Le Vrier of with a Dutch-treat supper at 6:30 p.m., followed by the program at 7 p.m.

Le Vrier, a member of the Houston Police Department since 1936, currently serves as captain of police in charge of the accident division. He is a longtime member of Houston's First Baptist Church, where he serves as a deacon, and is active as a speaker at meetings of church and civic groups in the Houston area and elsewhere in the Southwest.

'... Not all bad'

Dick Hagelstein of the Midland unit of the Soil Conservation Service is firm in his belief that "The Feds are not all bad," and he doesn't hesitate in saying so — and in explaining why.
He says that most persons on hearing the word "Feds" used immediately associate it with "all of those elusive government workers who appear to go around spending taxpayers' money and telling someone what they can or cannot do."
This attitude possibly is justified in a lot of cases, he said, "but not always."
He cites the case of the United States Department of Agriculture — Soil Conservation Service as an excellent example of the case in point.
A single agency, one of many in a large department, cannot really be considered a "Fed," even in the most extreme case, he continued.
Why is this possible? Let's let Hagelstein answer the question, as follows:
"It is possible because of the far-sighted efforts of a group which, 30 years ago, organized and created Soil and Water Conservation Districts. They knew that local groups were best suited to work out their own problems. Provisions were made to organize as local subdivisions of state government.
"So, Soil and Water Conservation districts over the nation began to organize on a local basis. These districts were operated by local landowners interested in preserving their soil and water resources. As they were organized, requests were made for technical assistance from SCS to help the local people carry out their programs. It was and still is a voluntary program.

"SCS people consider themselves part of the local communities, sympathetic to the needs of local people. No one tells any landowner what he has to do, except where cost-share funds are involved. Even then standards also are developed on a local basis that fit the situation. These standards are accepted by the landowners before entering into a contract, so potential problems are almost non-existent.
"There are at the present time more than 3,000 districts conducting programs of great proportions, serving every American.
"Midland Soil and Water Conservation District is dedicated solely to this purpose."
Thank you, Mr. Hagelstein, for your interest in providing this specific information having to do with the Soil and Water Conservation Service, with which many persons perhaps are not too familiar.
Any agency which is operated at the local level, as is the SCS, is bound to be much more efficient and certainly less expensive.
Those who know always are quick to praise the SCS for its program and work in the best interests of soil and water resources. The Midland SCS certainly is to be commended for its good work through the years.

Mexico's proposal

The proposal by President Luis Echeverria Alvarez of Mexico to reform his country's penal laws is a frank bid to salvage bruised relations with the United States.
Approximately 600 American prisoners in Mexican jails would be allowed to serve the remainder of their terms in the U.S. under one provision of the program.
Reports of inhumane treatment of prisoners south of the border, marked by a series of protests by American men and women held on mainly drug charges, helped spur the president's action.
The gesture, almost certain of legislative approval under Mexico's one-party political control, should stimulate a response among our own Congress and legislatures. Some sort of a treaty or agreement is essential if men and women are to be held in custody in the U.S. under charges brought and prosecuted in another country.

American distress over penal conditions in Mexico cannot obscure the fact that the potential beneficiaries of the program have been convicted of breaking a neighbor's laws and should pay a fitting penalty.

THE CARTER CAMPAIGN:

Some strikeouts -- but better watch out for homer

By JAMES CARY
Copley News Service
PLAINS, Ga. — Jimmy Carter's campaign for president already is striking on its own distinctive style, strength and presumed weaknesses.
As the campaign progresses, impressions become part of the perception of what the future holds for the Democratic nominee.
If those impressions could be expressed in baseball terms, the early box score might show that Carter struck out on foreign policy, was guilty of numerous errors in dealing with the economy and may be in the process of hitting a home run in the methods he uses to reach and influence voters.
His three-strikes-and-you're-out performance came in an address Sept. 8 to the national convention of B'nai B'rith, Washington, D.C. There the former Georgia governor charged that the foreign policy conducted by President Ford is too pragmatic and cynical, that it does not reflect the human and moral values imbedded in the Declaration of Independence, Constitution and Bill of Rights.
"The leaders of this administration have rationalized that there is little room for morality in foreign affairs," Carter claimed, "and that we must put self-interest above principle."
That may be good political rhetoric, but it is difficult to find proof in history that morality ever has been, or can become an influential force in foreign policy.
On the other hand, the dominant role of national self-interest is evident everywhere.
Many examples spring to mind.
South Korea, a highly authoritarian state that deals harshly with any of its citizens who advocate a return to democracy, is an American ally, although the two nations have little in common in ideology. South Korean governmental methods are repugnant to American principles.

But South Korea is a close American ally because of U.S. self-interest. It keeps the southern half of the Korean peninsula in friendly anti-Communist hands. If South Korea were taken over by the Communists, they would move within a short distance of Japan's main island of Honshu.
And Japan — the world's third-ranking economic power — is the Asian anchor of the U.S.-Western security system that extends from Tokyo through the United States to the NATO nations of Europe.
Self-interest dictates that the United States must retain South Korea as an ally. Without it to shield Japan the whole structure of U.S. foreign policy would be threatened.
Likewise morality played no part in the U.S. decision to move closer to Communist China in 1972. There is virtually nothing in the U.S. Constitution, Bill of Rights or Declaration of Independence that China could agree with. The United States and China are at opposite poles in political morality.
But both Washington and Peking understood in 1972 that the growing strategic strength of the Soviet Union made it imperative that the world's greatest democracy and the world's most totalitarian state move closer together.
Self-interest was and had to be the operating force. It dictated a move that helped restore the balance of power in Asia.

NOT SO EASILY BURIED

WASHINGTON MERRY—GO—ROUND

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — President Ford made a billion-dollar mistake when he delayed federal aid to New York City last year.
Ford first denied all aid to the financially strapped city. Later he did an about-face and allowed the federal government to guarantee the city's debts.
But in the interim, the uncertainty caused by New York's shaky financial position drove interest rates up for other cities. The higher interest rates cost cities like Boston, Philadelphia and Detroit a whopping total of $1.4 billion.
These are the findings of the House Monetary Affairs subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Ben Rosenthal, D-N.Y. The subcommittee report also charges that the Ford administration grossly miscalculated the nationwide effects of a New York City default.
For example, a September 1975 internal memo from Treasury Undersecretary Edwin Yeo to his boss, William Simon, reported that only 104 American banks held significant amounts of New York City debt obligations.
Based on those figures, Ford administration officials concluded that a New York bankruptcy would not cause havoc among the nation's financial institutions. But Rosenthal's subcommittee challenged the figures and demanded a new survey.

The poll first revealed that 546 banks actually held significant amounts of New York notes. Further checking showed that a total of 954 banks would be left holding the bag if New York went under.
The Treasury had underestimated the impact of a New York City default on American banks by 900 per cent. A default, the study concludes, could have caused an economic disaster for the nation.
Fortunately, Ford changed his mind. But not before it cost other urban borrowers more than a billion dollars.
ETHNIC POLITICS: The Republican National Committee has taken a leaf from Richard Nixon's 1972 campaign notebook and dispatched fund-raising letters to Spanish-American federal employees and contractors.
In a dear "amigos" letter, the chairman of the Republican Hispanic Assembly, Ben Fernandez, urged attendance at a testimonial dinner for Spanish-Americans in the Ford administration. Fernandez asked for a minimum contribution of $30. The message was clear to Spanish-American federal employees and contractors: If they want to protect their jobs, they had better cough up.
A spokesman for the GOP Hispanic Assembly said he saw no impropriety in the solicitations.

ART BUCHWALD Columnist describes conditions in France

PARIS — There is not too much happening in France at the moment. The biggest controversy seems to be that a French bishop insists on saying the Catholic Mass in Latin instead of French, and the Pope is very mad at him. The country is now divided on the issue with the Gaullists supporting the bishop, the Independent Socialists the Pope and the Communists demanding a television debate before they decide how to vote.
The American tourist, long the symbol of U.S. imperialism in France, has virtually disappeared and has been replaced in all the first-class hotels by large families of Arab sheiks, their wives and children. The lobby of the Hotel George V is now full of little Saudi Arabian princes and princesses playing soccer between the chairs while their parents are out trying to figure out how to spend millions of dollars' worth of oil royalties in Paris shops. The employees of the hotel have strict orders not to remonstrate the children for anything they do because an average Arab kid in a Paris hotel spends $100 a day ordering from room service.
There has been a drought in northern France, and this has given the French merchants an excuse to raise their prices not only on food products in the drought zone, but on other things that ordinarily would not be affected by water.
A handbag I priced on the Faubourg St. Honore cost $450. The lady in the store explained to me it was "because of the drought."
A man's shirt in a window near the

Art Buchwald

Place de l'Opera had been marked up from $40 to $50 "because of the drought."
Even a Louis V table in an antique shop had increased by $8,000 because of the dry weather in Normandy. The antique merchant explained that because of the lack of water the dealers had to slaughter all their Louis V tables, since they couldn't afford to feed them any more.
The big question I was constantly asked in Paris by the French was, "What do the Americans think of Giscard d'Estaing and France?"
I had to be honest and explain that Giscard was probably as well known in the United States as Richard Schweiker, and the last time France was mentioned in the United States was when some Croatians hijacked an airplane flying from New York to Chicago.
"But it isn't our fault," I explained to my French friends. "Most Americans are only interested in the countries and people who are interested in. At the moment Henry has decided he prefers Africa to France, and we have to go along with him."
"Why?" a Frenchman asked me.
"Because Henry knows best," I replied. "The national interests of the United States are inextricably tied to Namibia, Rhodesia and South Africa. It came as a surprise to most of us, but if Henry says, 'That's where it's happening,' we have no choice but to put our prestige and money on the line. Henry doesn't fly around the world for nothing."
My French friend said, "He's making a big mistake getting into that stew."
"Ordinarily I would agree with you, but as an American I cannot question Henry's reasons for taking such a big interest in southern Africa. Besides, he may have something going for him in Capetown that none of us knows about."
My French friend said, "Do you think Kissinger will stay on if Ford is elected President?"
"He'll have to," I said. "He can't quit until Namibia is a free nation."
"Where is Namibia?"
"If we Americans knew," I replied testily. "do you think we'd tell you?"

IT HAPPENED HERE—

Forty years ago (Sept. 18, 1936):
Members of the First Baptist Church are called to meet Sunday afternoon to plan a building program for present and future needs.
G.B. Brock, Army Airways radio operator at Sloan Field here, contacted San Angelo with his short wave radio broadcasting set at 12:45 a.m. today and was able to get reports on flood conditions at San Angelo. The flood was said to be the worst in the history of that city.
Darold F. Wilson, field executive of the Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, arrived in Midland to confer with John Howe and Scoutmaster Claude Crane concerning the organization of Cub Scout units here.
Dr. W.L. Sutton is in Abilene attending an Optometrist clinic.
Vann Mitchell was complimented by a bachelor dinner at his home, 1106 W. Illinois St., honoring him on his birthday. A steak dinner was served to Wallace Wimberly, H.L. Straghan, Don Oliver, Archie Estes, Britton Greene, Jack Cusack, J. Homer Epley and the honoree.

Top-secret jet rolls into sea off carrier

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy said Friday it will try to recover an F14 Tomcat, the newest and best of its carrier based fighters, that is resting on the ocean floor off Scotland with secret weapons and communication systems intact.

Friday that various electronic components of the weapons and communications systems aboard the aircraft remain military secrets despite sales of the plane and its Phoenix missile system to the Iranian Air Force.

At the same time, Navy officials would not say whether a Soviet cruiser that had been in the area still was nearby, possibly marking the location for a Soviet salvage attempt.

There is concern about the existence of the Phoenix on the plane and possible Soviet efforts to recover it from the international waters 70 miles northwest of Scapa Flow, Scotland, where it lies. Recovery of the plane by the Soviets could mean an intelligence coup as significant to them as the MIG25 flown to Japan by a Russian defector earlier this month is to the United States.

In addition, the plane's primary weapons system, the Phoenix missile, is capable of being launched at six targets simultaneously. The Phoenix guidance system itself is so far immune to any electronic counter measures known.

The Navy spokesman in Washington said he did not know whether any Phoenix missiles were aboard the plane.

Time to count those calories in kilijoules

By ED MEAGHER
Los Angeles Times

The United States moves one step closer to metric age this month as grade school youngsters en masse begin studying metric measurements for the first time.

But the changeover itself, once Americans get well into it, juggling liters for quarts and the like, is expected to kick up a storm.

The switch to metric will cost billions of dollars, take 10 years or more to complete and, in effect, send all American adults back to school for a while.

To most Americans the advent of the metric system still seems far away.

But that may change abruptly in the next few weeks when grade school children start to bring home assignments in metric measurements.

Experimental classes in metrics have been held previously at various schools in California and elsewhere around the country, and many individual schools have been introducing metrics on their own, but this is the opening year of mass student participation.

Because study of formal measurements usually begins in the third year of school, the nation's third-graders are in the spotlight, leading off the first metric generation.

Many educators doubt that either the schools or the nation is ready for the new system. Textbooks and courses are not standardized, some complain. And others say that participation by schools around the country will be too spotty, with many staying with the old system.

All of this simply may be the continuation of a national rhabarbar over metric adoption.

"There's going to be hell to pay," says R.A. Hopkins, a Tarzana, Calif., writer and publisher of metric books and teaching materials. "The public's going to learn there's a lot more to the metric system than they thought."

England may be providing a preview of what will happen in the United States. The English have been at the task of converting to metric for almost 11 years and are still floundering.

But American experts tend to think the British experience will not be repeated here. They point out that Australia, New Zealand and Canada are making relatively easier moves to metric than England. But at the same time, they warn, going metric is not going to be easy.

Strange new terms and mind pictures will have to be learned, and the old standbys of a lifetime forgotten. The older the person, the tougher it will be.

But the change seems inevitable. The nation was formally committed last Dec. 23 when President Ford signed the Metric Conversion Act to encourage — but not mandate — the changeover.

As a result, Americans soon are going to start thinking meters, kilometers, grams, liters, kilijoules and so on through the metric nomenclature.

Kilijoules? Well, they are to replace calories in the language. They are what weight watchers will count and worry about and use in sentences such as:

"No, no thanks — far too many kilijoules for me. I'm afraid," spoken as the dessert cart bears down. (A calorie is equivalent to 4.1868 kilijoules. The 2,000-calorie regimen of today will be tomorrow's diet of roughly 8,400 kilijoules.)

About the same time, clothing will be sold in centimeter sizes, excepting shoes which will be sized in millimeters.

The present shoe size designations involving numbers and letters will give way to numbers only — two sets of them, for length and width, separated by a slash, looking something like this: 235-94.

Body measurements will be in centimeters, each of which approximates 2-1/2 inches.
