Ford, Carter prepared

By The Associated Press

Two men, candidates for president, meet face-to-face tonight to debate their plans for America before an audience that may number 100 million people.

For weeks the two presidential nominees have prepared for tonight's debate at 8:30 p.m. CST. Each has studied thick briefing books.

Ford has rehearsed with stand-ins who threw questions at him and critiqued his answers. Carter has crammed largely in solitude.

At the same time, both have tried to play down the amount of work they were doing in preparation for the confrontation.

"I've not lost any sleep," Carter replied when recently asked about his upcoming debate with the Republican President.

Ford danced until 1 a.m. Wednesday at a state dinner at the White House. Was he ready for the debate, reporters asked?

"Of course I am," he said. "I'm getting in training by dancing."

No one could predict whether the debate would be a slugfest or a fencing match, whether the outcome would be a knockout, a narrow decision or a draw.

Not since 1960, when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon debated, have two presidential candidates met in a face-to-face exchange of their views. Political scientists still discuss what effect the Kennedy-Nixon debates had on the outcome of the 1960 election, won by Kennedy.

Carter has said he doesn't believe the 1960 debates led to a dramatic shift in voter sentiment and he doesn't expect his meetings with Ford to be the decisive factor in the election.

FEA failures cost consumers millions

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — High Federal Energy Administration officials acknowledged Wednesday that, partly as a result of the agency's own errors and poor coordination, U.S. oil companies passed along to consumers hundreds of millions of dollars in costs which the FEA had not meant to allow.

And the FEA, instead of ordering refunds, has proposed giving retroactive approval to the unauthorized pass-throughs made last year and permitting companies that have not already taken advantage of the situation to do so in the future.

Officials emphasized Wednesday, however, that this proposal is only tentative. "It's a wide-open issue," Dep. Administrator John Hill said at a news briefing.

Allegations of improper or unauthorized cost pass-throughs and price increases have occurred several times in the past. Some price roll-backs have been ordered, but for a variety of reasons — including the complexity of both federal regulations and the petroleum industry as well as the general upward movement of world energy prices — few noticeable declines in consumer prices have resulted.

The agency has scheduled public hearings on the latest problem for Oct. 13 and Hill said "no decision will be made until after that."

FEA's proposed course of action, however, has drawn sharp criticism from Rep. John D. Dingell (D-Mich.),

MCAA board chairman Williams resigns job

By SAM RENNICK

Dewey Williams, chairman of the Midland Community Action Agency's (MCAA) board of directors, resigned Wednesday night at a board meeting at the Carver school building.

"I have quite a bit of work to do," Williams said in explaining his decision, adding that he lacked the time to give the responsibilities of the office their due.

In a prepared statement released at the meeting, he also said: "I cannot adequately perform my duties normally given to the chief executive of a non-profit organization unless I am consulted, and requested to be present when affairs of the agency are being discussed and acted upon. Actions have been taken without my knowledge and/or advice and consent as the chairman of the board, and the knowledge of the Executive Board members."

Williams said he will continue as a board member.

Yvonne Rice of the Community Services Administration (CSA) in Dallas was present at the meeting and told the board CSA is "concerned about the almost standstill of the agency." An agency, she said, has to move.

Rice explained to board members that MCAA is not recognized by CSA as a community action agency, but, rather, as a limited purpose agency. To be a community action agency, Rice said public hearings are necessary, there must be legal action by the county and the agency must be designated a community action agency by the city or county and so recognized by CSA. This, Rice said, was the process under the Green Amendment. However, she said CSA

Organization pressing on

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Midland Community Action Agency has been in operation since 1966. During the ensuing 10 years, it received little public attention until events of recent weeks indicated the agency was having problems.

This series of articles examines the functions, operations and problems of the agency.

"The board acted to keep the agency going," said James Bradford, a member of the Midland Community Action Agency's (MCAA) board of directors, after the board had fired

Carol Burns, the agency's executive director, at a meeting Aug. 26. Several board members echoed Bradford's sentiment. The general feeling seemed to be that the step, though regrettable, had become necessary. There was little glee or sense of triumph, perhaps because most realized what had been done reflected on them.

Last of a series

That it became necessary to fire the director is a measure of the mess the

Why couldn't Carter have raised chickens?

As the "resident Democrat" of The Reporter-Telegram, I was invited to the opening of the Democratic Headquarters opposite the Midland Post Office Tuesday.

And I don't want to see another peanut for at least a month. They had peanut butter sandwiches, barrels of roasted peanuts, (imported from California, instead of Georgia), peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, and peanut butter cookies of seven different kinds.

Now I like peanuts and peanut butter and particularly peanut butter cookies, but I couldn't help think that—all other things being equal—we'd have had a better lunch if the Democrats had nominated a beef rancher, or even a chicken farmer.

There was a good Democratic melting pot effect in the crowd of some 250, with a sprinkling of black folks and Chicanos and Bryan Bristol from Midland High School.

And, speaking of high school students, you know that 18-year-olds are eligible to vote in November if they get registered by Oct. 1. Which goes for everyone over 18, but youths ought to make a special effort to get themselves qualified to have a say in our forms of government. No vote is so wasted as the one that doesn't get cast, and voting habits are like any other habits in that early patterns tend to prevail.

Ebb Grindstaff of Ballinger (who happens to be a candidate for international office in the Lions Club) once noted, in the course of one of the better speeches I ever heard, that the State of Texas was admitted to the Union by a tie-breaking vote cast by a man who had been elected to Congress by a one-vote edge.

There are two new faces in the Democratic hierarchy for this district: Ben Bock of New Braunfels and Mrs. Cumble Ivy of Robert Lee. In introducing Bock Tuesday, State Sen. Pete Snelson noted Bock has made the ultimate sacrifice for a businessman by covering up all his billboards until after the election. (He happens to be a Ford dealer.)

It was nice to meet some of the candidates and more of the non-candidates. Frankly, I like politicians, and—despite the disclosure of shenanigans from Sharpstown to Watergate—I've found hundreds of office-seekers and office-

A hot air balloon helped to kick off the 1977 United Way of Midland campaign this morning at the Ranchland Hill Country Club.

'Hot air' launches United Way

By JUDY JOHNSTON

Most of the United Way takeoff breakfast this morning at the Ranchland Hill Country Club was not hot air, but perhaps the most impressive event was.

In order to lift off the 1977 United Way Campaign appropriately, a hot-air balloon decorated with the United Way banner and piloted by Fred Stella made a smooth takeoff before a crowd of about 280 persons on the club golf course.

"If I'm not back by lunch, come get me," Stella quipped.

Earlier, representatives of the 20

United Way agencies and United Way volunteers shanghaied the monthly chamber of commerce breakfast from sponsoring company Levi-Strauss.

Led by general campaign chairman Ron Schwisow, the volunteers burst into the dining room carrying agency signs and backed by a five-man band, and proceeded to kidnap the meeting from Herb Etheridge of Levi Strauss.

"We can't afford breakfast meetings so we thought we would just move in," Schwisow explained to an "astonished" Etheridge.

After the takeover, Schwisow announced that at the time of the kickoff, the United Way already had reached more than 30 per cent of its 1977 goals. Some $219,641 of the $671,000 goal had been received.

Schwisow attributed achievement of this amount to contributions from major and independent oil companies and from pilot firms.

The 10 pilot firms were the Orlloff Corp., First National Bank, Texas Electric, Gibson's, Exxon, The Midland Reporter-Telegram, Drilco, American Quasar, Huckabay Chevrolet, and Stubbeman, McRae, Seale, Laughlan and Browder. These firms ran a preliminary campaign to test campaign climate and techniques, to serve as pacesetters for the general campaign and to provide a training ground for the United Way loaned executives program.

The schedule of reporting dates on the progress of the campaign are as follows: Oct. 7, Oct. 14, Oct. 21, Oct. 28, Nov. 4 and Nov. 11. The victory report is set for Nov. 19.

During the chamber of commerce meeting before the United Way "takeover," Etheridge presented master of ceremonies Connie Hood with a pair of Levis — unstitched.

"Now you have the opportunity to put it all together," Etheridge said.

UTPB delegation visits Huntsville facilities

ODESSA — Nine students and two faculty members of The University of Texas at the Permian Basin are participating in a two-day session in criminal justice education in Huntsville. The group, along with nine supervisors from agencies in which UTPB students served criminal justice internships during the summer, flew to Huntsville today. The group planned to visit Texas Department of Correction institutions at Huntsville and attend a banquet to hear director of corrections Jim Estelle. Other scheduled activities included discussions for the internship program. The internships through the Statewide Corrections Intern Program placed two UTPB students in the Ector County adult probation department, one in the Midland County adult probation department, two each in the state parole office in Odessa and the Ector juvenile probation office and one each in the Midland County juvenile probation office, the Texas Youth Council parole office in Odessa and the West Texas Children's Home. Making the trip are Dr. Tom Nicholson and Dr. Clyde Vedder of the university faculty and interns Ross Rucker, Janet Reynolds, Andrea Westman, Manuel Romo, Kelli Gentiles. Agency supervisors attending are Danny Vanderburg, Ron Reed, John Escobedo, Hal Felty, De Anna Hargis, Mike Neely, James Denton, Mike Garcia and Grover Green.

chairman of the energy and power subcommittee of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Dingell, whose subcommittee has jurisdiction over pricing matters, called the plan "a travesty of the public interest" and evidence of what he sees as "the cozy relationship between this regulatory agency and the regulated industry."

Dingell's subcommittee has scheduled a hearing on the problem for Thursday, with FEA chief Frank Zarb expected to be the primary witness. A hearing Monday was terminated when Zarb and Hill were unable to be present, but before Dingell unleashed his blast at the agency.

At FEA's news briefing Wednesday, Hill and Gorman Smith, head of the agency's regulatory division, denied that the problem was rooted in partiality toward the petroleum industry. Instead, they asserted, it sprang from accidental ambiguities in pricing regulations, innocent mistakes by government auditors and a failure of one section of the agency to know what another section was doing.

FEA's failure to prevent the problem from developing "seems utterly stupid now," Smith said, but he argued that "what is so starkly clear and simple to all of us now, was not so starkly clear and simple at the time."

The unauthorized pass-throughs took place between January and December of 1975, when an unintended ambiguity crept into FEA pricing regulations without agency policymakers being aware of it, Smith said.

Taking advantage of the opportunity, many of the nation's oil companies changed their way of computing costs that could be passed along to consumers in the future and thus were able to include in this category certain costs that previously would have been excluded, Smith said. Approval for the companies' actions was never given by an FEA official with the authority to give such approval and, so far as the agency can determine, FEA attorneys were never asked about the ambiguity, Smith said. The situation is clouded, however, by the fact that some government field auditors — acting erroneously and without proper authorization — approved what the companies were doing, according to Smith and others.

The general counsel's office, which is supposed to clear all such interpretations of regulations before they are given to the companies, never approved the advice FEA auditors were giving and did not know what was being done until early this year, when new regulations dealing with the subject were promulgated.

Only cries of protest from the industry over the new rules brought the problem fully to FEA's attention, Smith indicated, but he said officials did not recognize the magnitude of what had been done until recently.

It is because of the alleged ambiguity of the rules last year and the actions of the FEA auditors in encouraging companies to make the previously forbidden pass-throughs that the agency proposed letting companies keep what they have collected and authorizing firms that did not act last year to do so in the future, Smith said.

Asked how the general counsel's office could have failed to catch what the auditors were doing, Smith said

"it could have happened very easily." The staffs in both offices were stretched thin and coordination was inadequate, officials said.

The regulations in which the controversy is rooted have to do with so-called nonproduct costs — that is, costs not directly related to the price of crude oil and petroleum products purchased by a refiner. Under FEA and earlier government rules, product cost increases could be passed through to consumers dollar-for-dollar, either when the increases were incurred by the refiner or at some future time.

$2.6 million FAA grant approved for airport runway improvement

The $2,567,542 grant from the Federal Aviation Administration for runway expansion at Midland Regional Air Terminal was approved Wednesday during a special called session of the Midland City Council.

Last Tuesday, council had authorized Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. to sign the agreement when it came in, but no definite figures were available at the time. However, the next day, Rep. George Mahon announced the grant, estimated at $3,608,381, had been awarded to the city.

Included in the total package is the $2.6 million grant from the FAA, plus a promised extra FAA grant next month of $680,000, plus a city match of $360,838 from its own funds, according to city aviation director Col. Wilson Banks. The project hopefully should get under way in 30 to 45 days, Banks said, and should take about a year to complete.

earmarked for improvements. Funds will provide 26,000 feet of runway and taxiway to complete 95,000 feet of useable runway area, Banks said.

Council also authorized Mayor Angelo to sign a contract with Dahlstrom Corp. of Dallas for $2,444,897.50 as the contractor for the job.

Besides extending the runway and taxiway, Banks said, two pipelines and one power line will be moved, new lights will be placed on the extended taxiway, and existing lights will be replaced along the runway. More security fencing is also in store for the improved area.

City Attorney Joe Nuesse said an estimated $500,000 would be needed to relocate Texas Electric Service Co.'s main transmission line, plus lower about 20 feet pipeline belonging to Texas Pipeline Co. and Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

According to councilman Carroll Thomas, council had originally intended for 90 per cent funding of the runway expansion project to be from the FAA and 10 per cent from the city, leaving the emplanment funds aside for improvements to the Terminal building. Apparently, he said, the FAA "has knocked this down."

The emplanment funds, based on the number of enplaning passengers during a one-year period, will be used at a later date, the FAA said.

Funds for the runway expansion project were made possible by recent congressional action on the Airport and Airway Development Act, according to Mahon. The money made available to Midland came from the Aviation Trust Fund, which is supported by a tax on airport tickets and aviation fuel. The city's portion of the funds comes from the 1973 bond issue approved for airfield improvements.

MCAA is in. Before the firing, some board members said the bylaws were not being observed, that programs existed which had not received board approval, that not all expenditures were adequately explained. Questions were raised about bank accounts, about borrowing, about the books.

Winfree Brown, board member, said two Midland Certified Public Accountants, as well as one in Ft. Stockton, now refuse to audit the books. Investigators from Austin and Dallas have been in town, looking over the agency. "A governmental examination," Brown said, is in the works.

Brown also said Mike Allen, executive director of the Texas Department of Community Affairs (TDCA), Austin, wants the MCAA to continue and is prepared to send help. This assistance would be in the form of establishing guidelines, helping find a new executive director and defining members' roles. TDCA is one of the Midland Community Action Agency's funding bodies.

At least two of the agency's programs, a manpower on-the-job training program and a summer recreation youth program, have earned praise. The former saw the placement of all the individuals involved. The latter, which in fact is still underway (until the end of this month), is a repeat contract for such a program, the one last summer having gone well. It included such projects as tutoring, arts and crafts, work with leather goods, a physical fitness program, a bilingual program, a music hour, film strips and field trips.

At its neighborhood centers, the MCAA provides a number of services. For example, the east side center, 1411 Garden Lane, runs sewing classes, distributes donated clothing, fills out welfare forms, food stamp applications, income taxes and social security papers, handles legal aid referrals and voter registration, places maids, transports senior citizens, does Outreach work for the Texas Commission for the Blind and serves as a meeting place for the Eastside Association.

A pair of mini-buses are coming to the agency to be used to transport senior citizens and the handicapped. The agency has paid its share for them, and insurance has been acquired. A new building, at 404 S. Marshall St., donated to the agency by Howell United Methodist Church, may become the home of the south side neighborhood center, currently housed at the agency's headquarters in the Carver school building. Difficulties produced by conflict between board members and the former executive director no longer exist, Mike Allen, in Austin, wants the agency to go on and is ready to help.

At a recent meeting one board member expressed optimism about the future. Whether his optimism is justified will depend in large part on the commitment each concerned is willing to make to the agency's purpose and to its ideals.

has not recognized new community action agencies in the past several years because of a lack of funding for them. A limited purpose agency, unlike a Community Action Program (CAP) agency, does not require a board of directors, Rice said. An advisory committee, made up of at least 51 per cent representatives of the poor, is sufficient.

However, Rice also said that MCAA, having decided to have a board of directors, is now committed to this setup.

Rice told the board how it should be constituted and said "a board must be properly constituted to function properly." She said training could be requested after the board is constituted.

Rice said CSA is "interested in the $43,000" (sent to MCAA from CSA in fiscal 1975) and is prepared to "assist an audit firm in doing the books." She said CSA is understaffed or it would send its own auditors.

"We (CSA) are interested in two things mainly," Rice said. One, she said, is getting last year's audit done, and the other is going on this year with the program. A new executive director, she advised, should be acquired as quickly as possible. She suggested the board might advertise for a new director in a newsletter put out by the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

It is the board of directors, she said, which CSA holds responsible for the operation of an agency. "We fund a board," Rice said. Also at the meeting Myrtle Hall, temporary executive director, announced the resignation of Juanita Garza, director of the south side center neighborhood association.

holders in at least three states honorable, hard-working, and committed to the general welfare of their constituents. I don't know why they do it; public office seems more often thankless and troublesome than remunerative or fulfilling. And I asked young Trey Lohman—seeking office for the first time—why he'd take time out from a promising legal career to run. "The people who asked me to run were just so nice I couldn't say no," he admitted.

And that goes for Republicans and Independents (a burgeoning non-party whose votes will be crucial in November) too.

The League of Women Voters and partisan groups are conducting registration drives all over town (and all over the Basin, for that matter), or you may register at your party's headquarters or the county tax assessor's office.

You do not have to specify party affiliation when you register, and you vote for candidates of any party in November, so don't feel you must pick a candidate before you register. Some of us won't be making up our minds until we step into the sacred cubicle that maintains our way of life.

But if you're still pondering the top-line question, be sure to hear the first debate between President Ford and would-be president Carter tonight.

Railroads trying to up charge

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The railroad commission called a Nov. 15 public hearing Wednesday on a request by 29 railroads for a 5 per cent general increase in intrastate freight charges.

James Simpson of Dallas, representing the railroads, said the requested increase "are made necessary by increased operating costs, which have not been covered by previous rate increases and which primarily consist of labor cost increases occurring since 1975 and other cost increases occurring since Oct. 1, 1974."

Railroads making the request include the Santa Fe, Missouri-Kansas Texas, Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific and Texas & Pacific.

Shuttle diplomacy shaky as Smith submits plan

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith submitted the British-American plan for black majority rule in Rhodesia to a crucial meeting today of the members of his party in Parliament. There was no advance indication whether the ruling Rhodesian Front's 50-member caucus would reject the plan, as they have two previous British proposals for black power to which Smith agreed.

The prime minister scheduled a radio-television broadcast Friday to outline his white-minority regime's position on the plan, proposed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in talks with Smith last weekend in South Africa.

Smith, who reportedly told Kissinger he would recommend approval of the plan, ended two days of conferences with his 20-member cabinet Wednesday.

He gave no indication of the cabinet's reaction, saying the decision would be made by the caucus, which holds 75 per cent of the 66 seats in Parliament.

Smith was expected to encounter resistance from hardliners still adamantly opposed to handing over power to Rhodesia's 6 million blacks, who outnumber the whites 22-to-1.

Kissinger's African mission ran into new obstacles Wednesday. A top Rhodesian black nationalist said the Rhodesian plan had "very serious flaws," and the vice president of neighboring Mozambique said his government would not support it.

Joshua Nkomo, head of the African National Council faction inside Rhodesia, said in Lusaka, Zambia, that he could not discuss the "flaws" publicly until he had met with the leaders of other factions that are waging guerrilla war against the Smith government. But he said parts of the plan were "ambiguous" and could be distorted by Smith, whom he called "a professional twister and a professional distorter."

What is done next will hinge on what is done about the flaws," said Nkomo, who has met with Kissinger three times during the secretary's current African trip.

Mozambique Vice President Marcellino dos Santos, also in Lusaka, said his Marxist government has no interest in Kissinger's African peace shuttle and does not support his peace proposals for Rhodesia and South-West Africa, the South African territory where black insurgents are also trying to end white rule.

Mozambique is the chief base for the black guerrillas fighting in Rhodesia.

The details of Kissinger's Rhodesia plan, based on a previous British proposal, have not been made public. But it is believed to call for a constitunational conference of blacks and whites leading to majority rule within two years; a $2-billion fund financed by the United States and other Western nations to compensate Rhodesian whites who leave the country to help in the nation's future development, and guarantees by the Rhodesian blacks and their sponsors in black Africa that the security and interests of Rhodesian whites will be safeguarded.

Kissinger was in Nairobi, Kenya, today to seek support from President Jomo Kenyatta, the elder statesman of African nationalism.

Torme custody fight continues

LONDON (AP) — Singer Mel Torme, 50, and his English wife will let a Los Angeles court decide a custody battle over their two children. This agreement was reached Tuesday after legal arguments before a High Court judge in London and out-of-court negotiations.

Smith, who reportedly told Kissinger he would recommend approval of the plan, ended two days of conferences with his 20-member cabinet Wednesday.

Jimmy offers apologies for LBJ remark

PLAINS, Ga. — Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter called Lady Bird Johnson Wednesday night in Texas to apologize for a magazine interview remark in which he appeared to accuse former President Lyndon Johnson of "lying, cheating and distorting the truth."

"He called her and told her he specifically regretted the implications that might be drawn from linking Nixon and Johnson and putting them in the same category," Carter press secretary Jody Powell said.

In an interview with Playboy magazine, excerpts of which were published in newspapers Monday, Carter ended a discussion of his religious beliefs by saying: "But I don't think I would ever take on the same frame of mind that Nixon and Johnson did — lying, cheating and distorting the truth. No taking into consideration my hope for my strength of character. I think that my religious beliefs alone would prevent that from happening to me. I have that confidence. I hope it's justified."

Earlier in the interview Carter had defended Mr. Johnson's motives in pursuing the Vietnam War, saying he "had a mistaken notion he was defending democracy," and crediting him with doing more to "advance the cause of human rights" than any other President with a possible exception of Lincoln.

Powell said Carter repeated to the former President's widow "what he has said repeatedly — that he considered him to be one of the great Democratic presidents."

Powell said he discussed the apology with Carter after the phone call, and Carter told him that Mrs. Johnson accepted the apology and said she was looking forward to campaigning in Texas with Carter's wife Rosalynn Thursday, and with Carter himself on Friday.

French prime minister starts attack on inflation

The Los Angeles Times

PARIS — A major attack on France's persistent and unchecked inflation was launched Wednesday by Prime Minister Raymond Barre, with a three-month freeze on prices accompanied by increases in income taxes, corporate taxes, gasoline, automobile and alcohol taxes.

what is both desirable and sensible," said the new prime minister who took office three weeks ago. In preparing for this first major action by his new government, Barre who also has kept the portfolio of the ministry of finance and economics, has consulted widely with industrial, trade union and political leaders in an effort to produce a package which will be both workable and saleable.

All this preparation and build-up has been accompanied by scare-headline speculation in the Paris press, so that in the end the package comes out as somewhat less extreme than had been anticipated. This is probably to the political advantage of the government, but whether the measures announced will now turn out to be sufficient to accomplish the economic aim remains to be seen.

He has moved, first of all, to try to ensure that the burden of the new anti-inflation programs falls on middle and upper income households rather than on the lower income working class. While income taxes in the middle and upper brackets will go up, he announced a cut in the French "value added tax" — the national sales tax which hits practically everything which anybody buys in this country in the way of goods or services, and which is France's biggest source of state revenue.

Corporate taxes will go up by a 4 per cent on taxes which are paid above the 50 per cent corporate rate, but there will be a new state loan funded for special business investment credit. But as a special and typically French tax gimmick, those hit by the income tax increases will be offered the alternative of subscribing to the government loan for business investment, so they will get their money back in five years.

The annual automobile license fees in France will be increased by anything from 43 per cent to 127 per cent depending on horsepower. The medium-size French cars will now cost approximately $85 for an annual operating license.

The tax on alcohol will go up by 10 per cent, which will put most drinks in the Paris bars up an average of $3 per shot. As for the price freeze, the French have seen price freezes come and go and will of course be pretty cynical about the chances of the Barre government showing any greater success than past administrations have shown. But at least the government is promising to hold down the cost of public transportation, electricity, telephones and other services under its direct control.

Woman labeled utility

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Minnie Hedrick is now officially a public utility.

The Public Service Commission announced Wednesday that it has granted Mrs. Hedrick a certificate to operate a water system. But she has only 12 customers and expects to get rid of them.

The system serves the subdivision that Mrs. Hedrick and her husband developed in 1968, installing a water storage and distribution system to serve people who built homes there.

After her husband's death, Mrs. Hedrick continued to operate the system, buying water from the City of Petersburg to resell to residents. This led to a complaint with the PSC that she was operating without a certificate or approval of her rates.

Mrs. Hedrick told the PSC she will go out of the water business when a new public service district created by Grant County is ready to take over her customers.

Dean book ties Ford to Timmons, scandal

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — A soon-to-be published book by former White House counsel John W. Dean III contains an account of President Ford's conduct during the Watergate scandal which conflicts with Ford's sworn Senate testimony.

In printed excerpts from the book, obtained by The Los Angeles Times, Dean says former Nixon White House aide William E. Timmons told him he had discussed strategies with Ford for blocking a 1972 House hearing into the financing of the Watergate break-in.

Timmons, reached for comment, branded Dean's account of Timmons' alleged talks with Ford "an absolute fabrication." Timmons said he was "distressed" that excerpts from the Dean book were being leaked on the eve of Ford's debate with Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter.

Timmons, now a Washington lobbyist and consultant, has been active in the Ford campaign. The long-awaited Dean book, entitled "Blind Ambition," says Timmons told Dean he had talked to Ford about blocking a move by the House Banking and Currency Committee to subpoena 23 witnesses in October, 1972 — nine months before many were summoned by a special Senate committee set up to probe Watergate.

The House committee was headed by the late Rep. Wright Patman (D-Tex.). Ford, during Senate hearings on his nomination as Vice President in November, 1973, testified that he did not recall discussing the proposed Patman subpoenas with anyone at the White House, including Timmons.

Ford was asked by Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D-W.Va.) if he was contacted by any White House officials about blocking the Patman investigation.

"Not to my best recollection," Ford replied. He acknowledged, however, that as Republican leader of the House he met almost daily with Timmons, who headed the White House congressional liaison staff, on a host of issues.

"I do not recall any conversations concerning this particular matter," Ford said.

Ford acknowledged he had called two meetings with Republicans on the Patman committee that resulted in all 14 Republicans joining six Democrats to defeat the subpoena move by a 20-15 vote. But Ford said he called these meetings at the request of the Republican members themselves.

Dean's book contains a much fuller account of the Patman matter than he gave to the Senate Watergate Committee in June, 1973.

In the book, Dean said then Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, a longtime acquaintance of Patman's, suggested that information on some allegedly questionable campaign contributions to Patman might be "explored."

Dean says in the book that Timmons, "who met regularly with Jerry Ford, had explored with him (Connally's) suggestions about Patman."

Dean says he (Dean) asked Timmons, "What do you think? Do you think we ought to dig into this stuff?"

Timmons, according to the book, replied:

"Well, John, you know this is kind of sensitive and I talked to Jerry about it. Jerry doesn't think it would be such a good idea. And frankly, I'll tell you the problem is that, uh, Jerry himself might have some problems in this area, and so might some of our guys on the committee. I don't think we ought to open this up."

On the overall Patman committee vote, Dean quotes Timmons as telling him:

"It's gonna be close, but I think we can pull it out. Jerry and Dick Cook (Timmons' aide) tell me they're sure every one of the Republicans is lined up. They're gonna march them into that committee room like cattle, all together. Nobody's gonna be off playing golf that day."

Timmons, in a telephone interview, told the Times:

"I never talked to Mr. Ford about that (Connally) matter or about the Patman investigation. That's an absolute fabrication."

He added sarcastically: "Mr. Dean's recollection has improved since he testified under oath before the Ervin (Watergate) committee. He didn't mention these things. This is a brand new charge."

Levi commands FBI to eliminate more domestic security checks

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi has ordered the FBI to halt domestic security investigations of other groups besides the Socialist Workers Party, FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley disclosed Wednesday.

Kelley, testifying before the Senate Intelligence Committee, did not reveal how many probes Levi had called off. But James B. Adams, assistant to the director, later told a reporter the number was less than 10. Adams would not identify any of the groups.

Levi last week ordered the FBI to abandon its 38-year-old investigation of the Socialist Workers, and aides explained that he regarded the inquiry as an unnecessary invasion of privacy because the organization did not constitute a threat to the nation's security.

Kelley told the committee, which oversees the FBI's intelligence work, that the FBI had reduced its domestic security investigations to 626 as of Monday. The figure includes 78 organizations and 548 individuals.

The 626 represented a 87 per cent drop from the 4,868 domestic security cases the FBI had open last March 31 before Levi's restrictive guidelines on such investigations took effect.

Kelley said the reduction resulted mostly from discontinuing investigations on rank-and-file members of suspect groups and concentrating on organizations and higher-ups.

"We are confident that the FBI can meet its responsibilities by focusing our investigations on the activities of organizations and on individuals who are in a policy-making position in those organizations or who have engaged in activities which indicate they are likely to use force or violence in violation of federal law," Kelley said.

Under questioning by Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr. (D-Del.), Adams said the FBI had instituted on Aug. 30 "a most drastic change" in its policy for investigating individuals in domestic security matters.

In a message to all of the FBI's 59 field offices, agents were instructed not to conduct even preliminary investigations of such individuals unless the FBI had indications that the individual was in "a policy-making or activist role," Adams said. The restriction goes beyond Levi's guidelines which would permit a preliminary inquiry to be conducted for the purpose of ascertaining the individual's role, according to Adams.

Adams said the FBI had terminated its investigation of an organization that unquestionably intended to overthrow the government by force and violence because "at the present time, all they're doing is advocating it. They have committed no acts in furtherance (of overthrowing the government) other than advocating it."

He did not identify the group, but an FBI spokesman said later that Adams was not referring to the Socialist Workers Party.

Kelley, Adams and other FBI witnesses came under close questioning from senators.

Texans laud Carter candor

HOUSTON (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter visits Texas Friday and a co-chairman of his Texas campaign says the candidate's comments in a Playboy magazine interview might actually help him in the state.

Carter will campaign in Houston and Dallas and his combined time in both cities is expected to be less than six hours.

He will speak at a noon rally in downtown Houston and then move on to Dallas for a late afternoon speech and a fund-raising reception before departing for the West Coast.

Calvin Guest and Bob Armstrong, co-chairman of the Carter Texas campaign, said Wednesday Carter will return to Texas and that his vice presidential running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, also will campaign in the state.

Armstrong, state land commissioner, was asked about Carter's "adultery in my heart" statement to Playboy.

"What you are really seeing, may be uniquely for the first time, is a candidate who is willing to be absolutely candid, absolutely open," Armstrong said. "The fact that he agreed to do that interview showed strength."

"I don't know whether we are ready to accept that kind of candor as a nation. We'll just have to see whether it makes a difference. It should have a positive effect because it is time for people to level with us."

Guest, state Democratic Party chairman, said Carter's remark to the Playboy interviewer that he committed adultery in his heart if he looked lustfully at a woman was "perfectly biblical."

"It is in the Bible, in Matthew, the Sermon on the Mount... I think we do have a man who is very honest and candid," Guest said.

The Dallas Times Herald reported that Carter personally apologized to Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson for comments he made about the late President Johnson in the Playboy interview.

Study says centers need to expand

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal study says community-based adult day care centers to help care for millions of disabled and chronically ill Americans should be expanded.

The centers are needed for more than 5 million Americans 65 years or older who are not institutionalized but who are limited in the kinds of activities they can undertake, says the report prepared for the Senate Special Committee on Aging.

Community-based adult day care centers would be an alternative to institutional care, the cost for which has been rising steeply in recent years, the report said.

Thefts push crime upward

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thefts increased 11 per cent and violent crimes declined 6 per cent as the overall U.S. crime rate edged upward during the first six months of this year, the FBI reported today.

Of the seven crime categories measured by the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports, theft was the only one showing an increase nationally. But that 11 per cent jump boosted the overall crime rate 3 per cent, compared with the same period in 1975.

The FBI statistics are based on the number of crimes reported by 9,160 state and local law enforcement agencies. Other studies, however, have shown that the number of crimes reported to police is far lower than the number actually committed.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi noted that the 3 per cent overall increase is much less than the 13 per cent surge in the first half of 1975, compared with the same period a year earlier.

"While the trend is encouraging," he said, "there remains a net increase in serious crime — a clear reminder that all segments of the criminal justice system must continue working to solve the problem."

Nationally, the FBI reported that murder was down 12 per cent, rape and assault each declined 1 per cent, robbery dropped 10 per cent, burglary dropped 5 per cent and motor vehicle thefts fell 3 per cent.

The sharp increases in theft occurred in all population categories and in all parts of the country. The surge ranged from 5 per cent in Western states to 18 per cent in the Northeast, and from 9 per cent in cities between 500,000 and one million in population to 16 per cent in cities over one million.

With two exceptions, the four violent crime categories — murder, rape, robbery and assault — declined in all parts of the country. The exception was a 5 per cent increase in rape and a 4 per cent increase in assault in Western states.

Murder and robbery declined in all population categories, but rape increased slightly in medium-sized and small cities and assaults rose from 1 to 5 per cent in cities of 100,000 or less.

Among the nation's largest cities, Chicago, Los Angeles and Philadelphia reported fewer crimes in the six-month period, compared with the same period a year ago, while New York and Houston reported overall increases.

The number of crimes dropped from 109,978 to 104,629 in Chicago, largely because of decreases in rape, robbery, assault and burglary. But murders increased from 408 to 423.

In Los Angeles, 111,403 crimes were reported in the 1976 period, down from the 112,813 a year ago. Philadelphia listed 36,923 this year, down from 39,419 a year ago.

The FBI said New Yorkers experienced 314,000 crimes in the six-month period, up from 264,958 a year ago. Murder, rape and assault declined, but robbery, burglary, theft and vehicle theft rose sharply.

In Houston, the total was up from 42,692 last year to 48,457 this year and most of the increase was in the category of theft.

Mother gets son

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A Vietnamese mother who left her seven children in an orphanage while the Communists advanced on Saigon says "I am so happy I don't know what word you can use" over a court decision returning one child to her.

"I am exciting and nervous," said Doan Thi Hoang Anh, 33, in a telephone interview Wednesday from Great Falls, Mont., where she lives with four of her children.

"It's like losing a son. We were hoping for a miracle," was the reaction of John Nelson, 33, the 6-year-old boy's foster father for the last 18 months. "We're happy we've had a year and a half with Ben."

Iowa Supreme Court Chief Justice C. Edwin Moore wrote in the unanimous decision that "the Nelsons have rendered exceptional service in his (Ben's) behalf. Under this record, someone must be hurt."

Ben, whose real name is Doan Van Binh, is one of seven brothers and sisters who escaped capture in the final days of the Saigon regime. Their mother left them in a Friends of Vietnam Children orphanage with a request to get them out of the country, according to court records.

Their father had just been killed, and the court noted, "It was only after an incredible ordeal Anh and the children were able to escape the same fate."

Miss Anh, as she is known in Great Falls, fled Vietnam and entered the United States as a refugee on Aug. 5, 1975.

She said she never gave the orphanage permission to have her children adopted. When they arrived in the United States, she traced them through the Denver office of the orphanage sponsors.

The Nelsons contended that Anh had abandoned her children and that Binh's best interests would be served by his being left with them.

But the court said Anh was "a woman of extraordinary courage, perseverance and full compassion for her child."

The court also said there was evidence the Nelsons had caused Binh to avoid contact with another Vietnamese family in Forest City, where they live, "...in effect causing him to reject his cultural and racial roots."

The court did ask, however, that there be continued contact between the Nelsons and Binh.

Doan Thi Hoang Anh

Anh, who is training to be a nurse's aide, had already located and reclaimed four of her children from a private home in Denver. One still lives in a foster home in this country and an infant is with a family in France.

Mars find sparks hope

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Viking 2's discovery of frozen water at the north pole of Mars raises the possibility that some form of life may be locked beneath the icy surface, scientists say.

Crofton B. Farmer, an atmospheric scientist at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here, said the discovery announced Wednesday constitutes "another shred of evidence" that conditions on the red planet may once have been suitable for life.

As a result, he said, future searches for traces of Martian life may turn to the planet's north pole.

The discovery by Viking 2's orbiter counters theories that Mars' polar regions are composed mostly of frozen carbon dioxide gas, with only traces of water. Water is generally considered a basic ingredient for the evolution of life.

"I think this shows a much stronger possibility for past life than for present life," said Farmer. "I think future tests will now hold more significance in detailed studies of the polar regions."

Viking 2's orbiter discovered water by using an atmospheric spectrometer to measure the absorption of infrared light by molecules at the planet's north pole, Farmer said.

Tobias Owen, an astronomy professor, said the presence of frozen water at the Martian north pole may mean that organic molecules — the building blocks of life — or actual life forms are frozen in the Martian icecaps "much like on earth where we have dug prehistoric creatures out of the ice."

Farmer said he believes that great quantities of ice were melted by volcanoes erupting sometime in Mars' past, sending rivers cascading across the planet's surface, cutting wide channels.

From there, water probably was absorbed into the Martian soil, Farmer said, where it is now locked in permafrost. Most of the water that dissipated into the air probably condensed at the north pole, while the rest boiled off into space, he speculated. krypton and xenon. They indicate that the Martian atmosphere was once dense enough for water to flow on the surface.

EPA claims 1977 cars getting more mileage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency says the new 1977 model cars are getting better mileage per gallon of gasoline and that 11 of 13 auto makers already meet a 1978 mileage requirement.

The EPA said Wednesday that 1977 model cars will yield 6 per cent better gasoline mileage than 1976 cars and 34 per cent better mileage than 1974 models.

The agency, which said foreign cars are leading the way, found that 1977 model cars tested in its laboratory averaged a theoretical 18.6 miles per gallon of gas, or one mile per gallon better than the 1976 models tested a year ago.

The figure exceeds the 18.0 miles per gallon federal fuel economy standard which will go into effect with 1978 model cars. There was no federal requirement for 1977 models.

Only Ford's and Chrysler's 1977 models did not meet the 1978 standard, the EPA said. The other 11 automobile manufacturers equalled or bettered it, and seven manufacturers, all foreign makers, met the 1980 standard of 20.0 miles per gallon. They are BMW, Nissan, Datsun, Toyo Kogyo, Mazda, Toyota, Volkswagen, Audi and Fuji-Subaru.

The improved mileage is the result of better engines, new engine combinations and changes in the average weight of cars, the EPA said. Slightly more than half the improvements resulted from better engines and new engine combinations, the agency said.

Here are the top performers:

—The diesel-powered Volkswagen Rabbit with an average 44 miles per gallon. The 90-cubic-inch Rabbit diesel averaged 39 miles on its simulated city driving and 52 miles on the simulated highway cycle.

—A four-cylinder Toyota Corolla with a 71-cubic-inch engine averaged 41 miles per gallon.

—The Volkswagen Dasher diesel, 40 miles per gallon.

(The Rabbit and the Dasher diesel models will not be available in this country until next summer.)

—The Mazda 808 with a 78 cubic inch engine, 38 miles per gallon.

—The top American finisher, the Chevrolet Chevette with a 98-cubic-inch engine, finished fifth with 36 miles per gallon.

All of the top finishers had manual transmissions. The top finisher with an automatic transmission was the Chevrolet Chevette, which averaged 30 miles per gallon.

The biggest overall improvement by a manufacturer came from Mazda, which improved the mileage of its line by an average 19.2 per cent. The EPA said 11.4 per cent of that improvement came from changes in vehicle weight and in the mixture of models being offered for sale, and the remainder came from changes in the engine and in new engine combinations.

General Motors also made a large improvement overall, EPA said, increasing its average by 10.4 per cent. The agency estimated that 6.4 per cent of GM's improvement came by reducing vehicle weight and the mixture of cars being sold.

American Motors posted a 4.8 per cent improvement and Chrysler's average went up by 0.5 per cent. Ford's dipped by 1.4 per cent.

Carter partner in state

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Jimmy Carter's wife says she is distressed for the elderly and those suffering mental health problems in America.

Mrs. Carter campaigned at five different functions in five hours Wednesday, continued her schedule in Corpus Christi and flew to Austin Wednesday night.

The former first lady of Georgia said after travelling in 35 states before the primaries and 15 since then that she has become familiar with the American people.

She said there's a lot of talent going to waste with elderly and that they are getting small returns on taxes they payed all their life.

She and her husband worked to revamp the mental health program in Georgia when he was governor, she noted.

Mrs. Carter said at an airport press conference here that she is convinced her husband's statements in the Playboy magazine interview were distorted and taken out of context.

"The article is about what Christianity means to him and his own strict moral code. I think when people read the article, they'll see what he's talking about," she said.

Mrs. Carter said she was convinced of the distortion after she talked to her husband Tuesday night about the interview.

Lady Bird Johnson and Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe met Mrs. Carter at the airport here. Mrs. Johnson made no public statements and neither woman referred to Carter's statements about Lyndon Johnson in the interview, for which he personally apologized to Mrs. Johnson.

Sarkis takes oath as civil war blazes

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon changed Christian presidents today, but the civil war that has ravaged the Moslem-Christian nation for 17 months blazed away without letup.

President Suleiman Franjeh handed over his constitutional authority to President-elect Elias Sarkis in a small ceremony at Franjeh's wartime headquarters in Jounieh, 12 miles north of Beirut. Christian radio stations reported.

The two men drank a toast to the "new era" the broadcasts said, and Sarkis left for Choura, in Syrian-occupied territory 30 miles east of Beirut, where he was to be sworn in before a special session of parliament.

Leaders of the right-wing Christian militia pledged their support to Sarkis and called on their foes in the leftist alliance of Palestinians and Lebanese Moslems to stop shooting and start talking.

Leftist leaders also declared their support for Sarkis but told him there could be no peace until he secured the withdrawal of the Syrian forces who intervened in the civil war last June on the side of the Christians.

Sarkis, 51, was the governor of Lebanon's central bank and unlike Franjeh and other Lebanese leaders has no party militia to support him.

Roy Ash named board chairman

CLEVELAND (AP) — Roy L. Ash, who was U.S. budget director from 1972 through 1974, has been named board chairman and chief executive officer of Addressograph-Multigraph Corp.

Ash, 57, said Tuesday he will be paid $225,000 a year and has bought 300,000 shares of common stock from the company at $9 a share. This will make him one of the largest individual shareholders.

Declarer took the ace of spades, discarding a diamond, drew a round of trumps with the queen and lost a club finesse. He ruffed the spade return, lost a diamond to the king and then lost another club finesse. Down one.

But his candidacy was favored by Syria, and that proved decisive in the election by parliament in May.

"At last I am free," said Franjeh, 66, whose six-year term expired at midnight Wednesday. "I can now rest. I can breathe a sigh of relief."

"I am confident that I am leaving Lebanon in safe hands. President Sarkis deserves the support of every Lebanese, Moslem or Christian."

The leftists had been demanding Franjeh's resignation for six months. But the tough, silver-haired mountain warrior, who defeated Sarkis for the presidency by one vote in 1970, held on until the end of his term so he would not be the first president forced out of office.

The unwritten political agreement under which Lebanon has operated since independence from France 32 years ago allots the presidency to the Maronite sect, the country's largest Christian denomination. The premier is a Sunni Moslem and the speaker of parliament a Shiite Moslem.

On the Moslem side, leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt and moderate Premier Rashid Karami boycotted the swearing-in ceremony because it was being held behind the Syrian lines.

"The new president would have gotten off to a much better start if he took the oath of office away from Syrian occupation bayonets," Jumblatt said in a statement.

Despite the boycott, the Christians were expected to muster the quorum required — at least half of parliament's 98 members — for the inaugural to be valid.

Street battles flared along much of the front line between the Moslem and Christian sectors of Beirut. Rocket and long-range artillery duels also continued to rage around the mountain resorts 12 to 18 miles east of the capital.

Hospital officials estimated that about 70 persons were killed and 90 were wounded during the night. Estimates of the death toll in the war now exceed 36,000.

Penal system revision advised

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — State Sen. A. R. Schwartz, chairman of the Senate Jurisprudence Committee, has told the Texas State Bar the state penal system should be revamped before more money is spent on building new prisons.

Texas Chief Justice Joe Greenhill is to address the Bar today on the function of an appeals court. There will also be sessions on medical malpractice and the Texas death penalty law.

Schwartz, D-Galveston, told the judicial section of the State Bar that it is time judges become more involved in legislation to make sure criminals are "punished swiftly and justly."

He said that legislators in Austin "must hear from judges. We are in a listening mood. We can't operate in a vacuum."

Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill made a surprise appearance in the opening session of the conference Wednesday and praised the judges for their "extra work."

"I'm extremely proud of the judicial system in our state," Hill said.

Hill was in town to visit his daughter.

Rep. Ben Grant of Marshall told the convention he did not know what the state legislature will do next January, but indicated that issues like gun control, oral confession and refusal of parole for repeat offenders will be brought up before the jurisprudence committee.

Grant said that judges should be more involved politically and should be able to endorse candidates for political office.

Mandel prosecution begins

The Los Angeles Times

BALTIMORE — A principal prosecution witness in the political corruption trial of Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel testified Wednesday that one of the codefendants told him that the governor was a secret partner in some of his business deals.

Nathan L. Cohen, president of the 200-acre estate known as Ray's Point, a share of which was allegedly used to bribe Gov. Mandel, said that during the time he and Hess were talking about buying the property, Hess told him that Mandel "had trouble making ends meet" on his $25,000 salary as governor.

Hess reportedly said, he and his partners "take care of him (Mandel) by letting him in on various business deals." Hess also allegedly told Cohen that Mandel's interests "don't appear on the public record...but are backed up by letters among the parties."

Cohen said Mandel's interest in Ray's Point came out of shares held by Hess and William and Harry Rodgers (two other codefendants). Cohen said the governor's name appeared on the original documents reporting the land deal but was later removed.

"Mr. Hess held shares for Mr. Mandel in Mr. Hess' name," Cohen told the court. He said that he never revealed that Mandel was a secret partner in the deal to anyone but his wife.

According to federal prosecutors, shortly after Mandel took office in 1969, Mandel, Hess and the Rodgers brothers set up a scheme to conceal the owners of the Marlboro Race Track, which the prosecutors contend the latter three held an interest in.

stock in two business deals, including Ray's Point, as well as money and other items of value.

The other codefendant, attorney Ernest Cory Jr., allegedly falsified documents to carry out the deal. According to the 23-count indictment handed down by a federal grand jury in November, 1974, letters were sent to each of the principals in the deal and to state officials concealing the scheme.

In return for the business deals, Mandel allegedly helped push through legislation during the 1972 session of the Maryland General Assembly which was favorable to the race track.

In his opening statement Tuesday, Mandel's attorney, Arnold Weiner, denied that his client had been bought off by Hess and the Rodgers brothers, as Asst. U.S. Atty. Barnet Skolnik contended.

Weiner said that Mandel's effort to get the legislation passed was designed to increase revenue for the state from the $20 million horse racing industry.

Also in testimony Tuesday, Mandel's press secretary, Frank A. DeFilippo, told the jury that shortly after Mandel became governor, completing the term vacated by Spiro T. Agnew when he became Vice President, DeFilippo and Mandel discussed the fact that the governor might go into business with Hess and the Rodgers brothers if he was not elected for a full term.

"He told me he had a letter of agreement to join Tidewater (Insurance Associates, which was owned by three) when his political career ended."

Genetic work done secretly

WASHINGTON — U.S. health officials acknowledged Wednesday that the government does not know what companies are trying to create revolutionary new forms of life, or the whereabouts of their laboratories.

Investigating senators expressed distress over disclosure, emphasizing that no one knows for certain whether recombinant DNA research, also called genetic engineering, promises unlimited benefits such as life-saving new drugs and agricultural products, or a "biological holocaust."

It is "equally urgent" for industrial, academic and federal scientists to heed the safety guidelines proposed by the National Institutes of Health for its own researchers, NIH Director Donald S. Frederickson said under questioning at a hearing of the Senate Health Subcommittee.

The guidelines were designed mainly to prevent the most potentially hazardous types of experiments, and to assure that infectious bacteria for which no treatments are known do not escape from labs.

Frederickson testified that nearly all affected federal agencies have said they would comply voluntarily with the NIH guidelines.

One of two possible exceptions was the Agriculture Department. Subcommittee chairman Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.) each said he would ask the White House to press the department to come into line.

The other possible exception was the CIA. Sen. Richard S. Schweiker (R-Pa.) expressed concern that the agency might do genetic engineering secretly. Frederickson said he would "certainly see that those concerns are carried to the Administration."

In a letter to President Ford last July 19 Kennedy and Javits cited "the high potential risks" of the research as a basis for an appeal to Mr. Ford to issue an executive order, or take other steps to require adherence to the NIH guidelines "in all sectors of the research community."

Replying in a letter received after Wednesday's hearing, Mr. Ford said that extending the guidelines beyond the NIH "merits further consideration."

Kennedy called the response "disappointing," saying Mr. Ford could have used his power to make industry comply and lacked a "sense of urgency."

Kennedy disclosed that top officials of the General Electric Co. had refused to testify about GE's recombinant DNA research on the ground that its top scientists in this field was unavailable. Kennedy said that the Manufacturing Chemists Association and two agricultural trade associations also had declined to appear.

In contrast, the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association drew praise from Kennedy. PMA president C. Joseph Stetler and two top aides assured Kennedy that the eight member firms engaged or preparing to engage in recombinant DNA research approve of the NIH guidelines, with minor exceptions, and will voluntarily comply with them.

Frederickson told reporters that last Friday President Ford approved a request for an interagency committee to try to set a uniform government policy, and to find ways to deal with private-sector recombinant DNA research. The committee will hold an organizational meeting in October.

Beeper beeps on intelligence

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Senate's new intelligence overseer, Sen. Daniel K. Inouye (D-Hawaii), has disclosed that he is equipped with a pocket beeper to advise him of the launching of CIA covert operations.

Inouye, chairman of the Senate's Select Committee on Intelligence, revealed the unusual arrangement in a Sept. 13 speech in Honolulu that went unreported off the island.

As he spoke to the Defense Credit Union Council's annual conference, according to Hawaii news accounts, Inouye's intelligence beeper beeped.

"I must be on call at any hour of the day or night..." the Hawaii Democrat explained. "I must carry a beeper so that I can know instantly when a modification of a covert action project has been made by the President."

An Inouye aide explained Wednesday that the beeper can be activated only by his private secretaries in Washington and Honolulu, his administrative assistant and the staff director of the intelligence committee.

"It is supposed to be used for intelligence business only," the aide said.

In another part of his speech, Inouye appeared to break the strict security rules of his own committee by announcing that "my committee has been notified" of new covert CIA operations being initiated.

BERMUDA — "It's really funny," said beautiful Jacqueline Bissett, shaking sea water from her dark hair. "In France, you have those ghastly kitchens, with terrible stoves and sinks so low you have to crouch to reach them, but you also have the most incredibly delicious meals. In America, we have heavenly kitchens, but so often, very little comes out of them. We have so much to work with, it's a pity we don't do more with it!"

Jackie, wearing a loose-fitting yellow robe over her white bikini, talked between takes of her new film, "The Deep," being shot here on location—far under Bermuda's blue waters. "I love to cook," said the gorgeously tanned actress, "but I'm certainly not the greatest in the world, especially considering all the exposure I've had to fine French food and other good cooking. I've noticed that Europeans who are considered merely competent cooks at home are regarded as great chefs in America—although I'm not sure that would apply to me," she added with a laugh. The green-eyed brunette grew up in a 300-year-old thatched cottage 50 miles from London, the daughter of a Scottish doctor and an English-French mother, who had been a lawyer in Paris before Jackie's birth.

"I love American food," she continued, but I do not love Americans' ideas of French cooking! Have you ever had a good meal in the U.S. when it was billed as 'French gourmet cooking'?" She wrinkled her nose. "Besides, I hate that word, 'gourmet!'"

To her, excellence in cooking is "not complicating everything by putting 15 ingredients into a single dish. I like to eat simply. I think most people do. It seems that usually, when people decide they're going to learn how to cook 'seriously,' they start to louse up their cooking. You don't need a stack of ingredients when you make a salad dressing or sauce. I think you're on the way to being an excellent cook if you know how to make a good vinaigrette sauce and a fine white sauce. Half the secret is learning not to kill, but to heighten the flavor of the food!"

Jackie relies on three main ingredients to make her vinaigrette. "I've found an excellent sour vinegar. I use one spoonful of that to three tablespoons of top quality olive oil. Throw in some mustard and that's all. I seldom put herbs in my salads. I like to mix greens; I prefer watercress and endive or soft lettuce, like Bibb."

She entertains often in her Beverly Hills home, a cottage once owned by Clark Gable. She's had great fun doing it over with the antiques and rugs she likes to buy around the world or finds scrounging in little shops in California. She seldom cooks fish. "If I do, I never gloop it up. I just stick the fish in the oven in foil, season it with lemon, salt and pepper and bake it. I love fish cooked over a barbecue fire with salt and oil, the way they do it in Mexico or in southern France."

When she plans menus for guests, she sticks to "simple, basic things: roasts, terrific vegetables, great salads and fine cheeses. I like to do a leg of lamb with slivers of garlic or a pork roast with garlic-seasoned butter. I love the crackling," she said, smiling. "I think most roasts are better when they're covered with enormous amounts of salt and pepper. My roasts are always loaded down with them when they go into the oven!"

She likes her vegetables undercooked in a minimal amount of boiled salted water, seasoned only with butter, salt and pepper. "Sometimes I make a sauce, especially if I cook cauliflower. The most successful dish I prepare is onions and potatoes baked in a white sauce. It always comes out tasting super. It's not extraordinary, but all my friends seem to like it! Sometimes I add grated Parmesan or cheddar to the sauce, depending on what else I'm serving."

Jackie usually serves California wines and caps meals with an assortment of three or four cheeses. "I like a bleu or Roquefort, a Stilton, Italian hard cheese or an aged Cheddar, but my grand penchant is for Brie or Camembert. The soft cheeses always disappear first from my table!" The one thing a successful hostess never does, she says, is "overload your guests so people come away from the table feeling so absolutely heavy, all they want to do is lie down to sleep off the meal!" She serves her meals in a pretty dining room, furnished with a rustic wooden table, French cane chairs, a heavy English chest and French wooden farm implements hanging on the walls.

Her family is full of good cooks, especially her mother. "Unfortunately, though, my mother has never written down her recipes. It's very frustrating when I ask her for a recipe for a dish I remember from my childhood. Right now, I'm looking for a really great lamb curry recipe."

Jackie had never been deep sea diving before she was signed for "The Deep," and she started filming a bit nervously. Now, however, she's overcome her initial fear, and has come to love the ocean. "There's something completely surrealistic about seeing a whole movie crew go to work underwater and seeing the script girl sitting on a rock! It's beautiful down there, especially when you have lights and can see the colors coming out of the coral and all those extraordinary fish."

The best part about making the movie, Jackie says, has been "everyone's total involvement. These divers are real experts, and they've sort of nursed us through everything. I suppose they were skeptical at first about working with Hollywood actors, and we were intimidated to be working with a team of crack professional divers, but the end result has been a truly joyous experience!"

Recipes from Jacqueline Bissett for simplified French cooking follow:

ROAST LEG OF LAMB

Serves 6 to 8
1 leg of lamb weighing about 6 lbs.
2 small cloves of garlic, peeled, cut in slivers salt, freshly ground pepper
Cut small slits in lamb with sharp knife; insert slivers of garlic. Sprinkle outside of lamb roast thickly with salt and pepper. Place roast upside up on rack in an open roasting pan. Roast meat, uncovered, in preheated 350 deg. F. oven allowing about 15 minutes to the pound for rare, 20 minutes for medium. Transfer lamb to heated serving platter. Allow roast to firm up by letting stand 10 to 15 minutes before carving. Remove and discard garlic as you carve roast. Serve piping hot with peas or Brussels sprouts and Jackie's potato-onion bake. If desired, serve mint sauce separately.

POTATO-ONION BAKE

Serves 6
For the white sauce (Makes about 2 cups):
3 tbsps butter
1/2 small onion, peeled, minced
3 tbsps flour
2 1/2 cups hot milk
1 small sprig thyme, optional
1/2 small bay leaf salt, freshly ground black pepper to taste grating of nutmeg to taste, optional

1 cup grated Parmesan or aged cheddar cheese, optional
Melt butter in heavy saucepan or skillet. Add onion, cook over low heat, stirring, until onion is soft but not browned. Blend in flour, cook, stirring constantly over low heat 3 minutes or until flour is thoroughly cooked. Add one-third of the hot milk, stir vigorously while cooking sauce over medium heat until thickened and it begins to bubble. Add remaining milk, thyme, bay leaf, salt, pepper and nutmeg to taste. Cook, stirring until thickened and smooth. Stir in grated cheese, heat until cheese has melted. Strain through a fine sieve.

F. oven about 1 1/2 hours or until potatoes are tender.

TV's Green Room mystifies viewers

By ERMA BOMBECK

If there's one aspect of television that intrigues people, it's the Green Room Mystique. Maybe it's because it's the one room that viewers have never seen. They want to know what goes on in that mysterious hole in the wall that contains the bodies of guests just before they walk out on the Carson, Dinah, Douglas, Merv, or Donahue sets. Do the sweat-soaked stars really place? Are they nervous? Is it really green?

With every book I've published, I do the green room circuit. (I also sell the book door-to-door with a line of vanilla.) This month, with the publication of my newest, "The Grass Is Always Greener Over the Septic Tank," I will visit more than 70 green rooms. (Setting a new Olympic record of 70 spit-ups.)

I am known as the Willy Loman of the green rooms. Rarely do I meet anyone I know or anyone who knows me. In fact, in one green room, I was the only person there not related to anyone on the show by a former marriage.

I take a seat near the door, and ever 15 seconds or so a director will poke his head in the door and inquire, "You okay?" He does this because I am the only person in the room rocking back and forth and humming while sitting in a fetal position.

Occasionally, a man will come in, scrutinize all the faces and come to rest on me. "You! You'd better come to makeup." To which I reply, "I've just returned."

During recent years, I've noted a camaraderie among guests of talk shows, mostly because they have become a rather tight-knit group that tours with some regularity. It is hard to break through. Once, for no reason at all — except I was lonely — I said, "Has anyone heard from Frank lately?"

I've never seen booze in a green room (externally, that is), or a magazine, or a picture on the wall, or much food, or children, a newspaper, a phone, a live plant, or a television set that works.

A green room has the personality of a bus station restroom, the capacity of a life raft, the comfort of a Brahma bull in a chute just before the gate opens . . . and you are mumbling to yourself, "I turn right . . . that's the hand I open mail with . . . and go up one step and kiss the host . . ."

As to why they're called green rooms . . . most of them aren't. They merely reflect the color of the people

THDA began 50 years ago

This week the Texas Home Demonstration Association is celebrating its 50th anniversary. There are 24,000 Texas women in 200 Texas counties involved in home demonstration club work.

1920s. Mrs. Judy Germany is the current Midland County home demonstration agent. Clubs choose the programs they carry out each year. THDA program areas include citizenship, health, family life, cultural arts and recreation, safety and 4-H.

Dating back to 1912, when the first girls' "tomato clubs" were started, the concept of home demonstration clubs in Texas took form when they began to organize in 1915. Formal organization became a reality in 1926 with founding of the THDA. The home demonstration work is under the advisement of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Mrs. Mattie Wright of Breckenridge is the current THDA president.

Midland County has six home demonstration clubs, with Mrs. Arlie Bryant as president of the Midland County Council. Home demonstration in Midland County began in Independence-seeking collegiate should do own laundry

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
 DEAR ABBY: Our son, Jimmy, a junior in college, has just informed his father and me that he is moving out of the house to live on campus, just 30 minutes from here. He plans to share an apartment with another college student. We can't understand why he wants to move. He has a lovely big room here, with all the privacy in the world, and it's free. He says he wants "total independence."

Jimmy has always worked and saved his money so we know he can handle it financially. He's a good boy, makes good grades and has never given us any trouble.

He says after he moves, he hopes he'll be welcome to come home for dinner maybe once a week. We assured him he'd be welcome for dinner anytime. Then he asked if he could bring his dirty laundry home for me to do. I said, "No, not as long as you're living somewhere else."

Was I wrong? My husband agrees with me, but my sister doesn't. BUFFALO MOTHER
 DEAR MOTHER: I'm with you. A totally independent person shouldn't rely on his mother for laundry service.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I plan to adopt a baby without friends and relatives knowing it was adopted. We feel that we would be shielding the child from the many embarrassing questions and remarks to which most adopted children are subjected.

We plan to announce my "pregnancy" three or four months before we actually bring the child into our home.

Could you please tell us where we could buy some "padding" that actresses wear to make them look like they are carrying a child? Thank you.— FUTURE MOTHER

 DEAR FUTURE:

Frederick's of Hollywood has foam rubber fannies that look (and feel) like the real thing. Maybe they could come up with a foam rubber tummy. DEAR ABBY: Where did the custom of kissing a lady's hand originate? And what is the purpose of it?—MADE A BET originated in France. And I suppose it's as good a place to start as any.

 DEAR MADE: It

Patty, Harrises return to court

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The cross-country drama of Patricia Hearst returns to the college community where it began, as William and Emily Harris appear in court charged with kidnaping her 2½ years ago.

Their arraignment today on a 19-count complaint comes just one day before the newspaper heiress herself goes into federal court across the bay in San Francisco to be sentenced for a bank robbery conviction.

The Municipal Court site of the Harrises' arraignment is a few miles from the apartment where Miss Hearst, then a 19-year-old sophomore at the University of California, was kidnaped by members of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army on Feb. 4, 1974.

Attorney Susan Jordan said she would ask Judge Wilmont Sweeney that the Harrises, both avowed SLA members, be given a preliminary hearing instead of being subject to grand jury indictment.

The Alameda County Grand Jury is scheduled to begin hearing evidence Monday against the Harrises — including the testimony of Miss Hearst. Officials said Wednesday they planned to install partitions on the second-floor grand jury wing of the county courthouse to shield the 45 scheduled witnesses from public view.

A grand jury indictment would replace the original criminal complaint and send the case to Superior Court with no preliminary hearing. The distinction is important to the Harris defense because witnesses can be cross-examined at a preliminary hearing, but not at a grand jury hearing.

The Harrises have been transferred to separate jails in Oakland from state prisons where they are serving 11-year-to-life terms for kidnaping, robbery and car theft in a Los Angeles crime spree. Miss Hearst also is charged in that case but has not been tried.

Aides talk of Meany retiring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top officials close to AFL-CIO President George Meany say there is a strong possibility that Meany will retire next year after more than 20 years as head of the giant labor federation.

Meany, who at 82 remains the dominant force in the American labor movement, has been slow to recover from a recent illness. Aides say that while his basic health is good, he has lost his usual vitality and has been forced to curb some activities.

frankly that I've given a little more thought to retirement since my recent illness than I had before," he said.

It marked a sharp departure for Meany, whose pat answer had always been that he would retire when either he or the international union presidents felt he could no longer do the job.

Meany added to the speculation when the question was raised during a network television interview Sunday. "I've not set any date for retirement, but I want to say very

The one-time Bronx plumber has kept an iron grip on the 14-million member federation since 1955 when he brought together the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations. He out-plotted, outfoxed and outlasted his opponents and is the sole survivor of the federation's original 35-man executive council.

Meany hasn't discussed his future plans with even his closest associates. But his aides say his physical condition is getting him down. He has been hospitalized twice since February for treatment of a bronchial condition.

"I've often heard him complain before," said one associate. "But this is the first time there is a note of despair in it."

Meany's current two-year term expires in December 1977 when the AFL-CIO holds its next convention. That could provide an occasion for retirement, but there is speculation he may step down sooner, particularly if he can cap his career with a labor-backed victory for Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter.

Another factor could be a decision next May by the United Auto Workers on rejoining the AFL-CIO. Meany would regard the UAW's return as vindication of his feud with Walter Reuther, who led the auto workers from the AFL-CIO in 1968. Reuther died in a plane crash in 1970.

Most of her new comrades were killed in a fiery Los Angeles shootout with police in the spring of 1975, after which she hid out in California, Pennsylvania and other states. She and the Harrises were captured in San Francisco on Sept. 18, 1975.

The 19-count complaint against the Harrises includes charges that they kidnaped a man and used his car as a getaway vehicle for the Hearst abduction, that they assaulted Miss Hearst's then-fiance and a neighbor, and that they fired several shots as they fled.

Fossil evidence links Europe, North America

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists say they have found the first fossil evidence indicating that a land bridge once spanned the northern Atlantic Ocean between North America and Europe.

Fossils of mammals, birds and other animals found this summer on Canada's Ellesmere Island, located above the Arctic Circle west of Greenland, match similar remains found in western Europe and the western United States, they said.

climate was different. At the time these animals lived, this area just 500 miles south of the North Pole apparently was somewhat swampy with a temperate climate, the scientists said.

Dr. Robert M. West of the Milwaukee Public Museum in Wisconsin and Dr. Mary R. Dawson of the Carnegie Museum of Natural History in Pittsburgh announced the findings Wednesday at a scientific meeting in Montpellier, France.

The scientists said fossil similarities on the two continents traditionally have been explained as evidence that animals came to North America via Asia and a land bridge across the Bering Sea near Alaska.

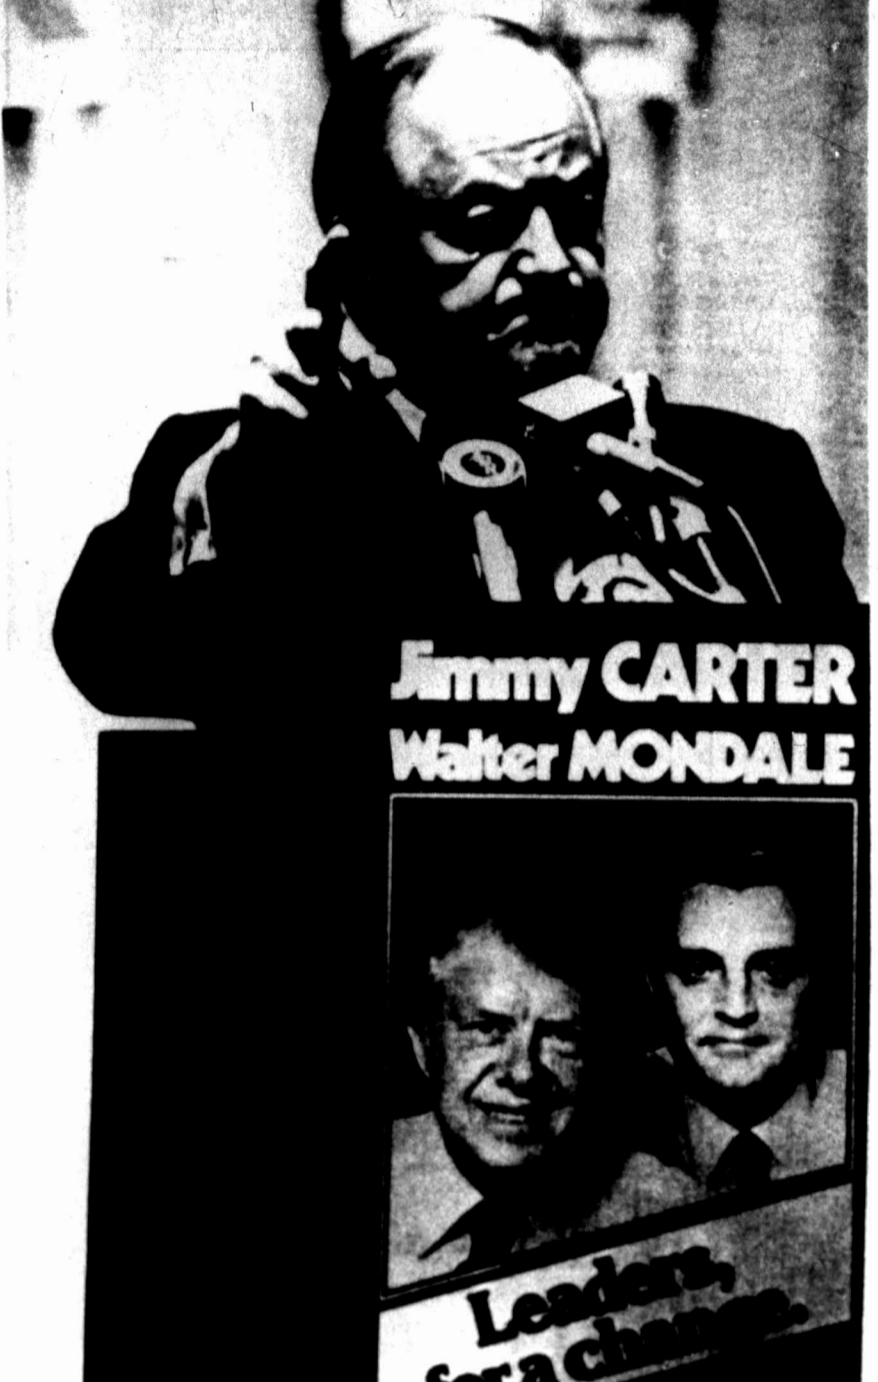

More recent geological evidence leads some scientists to believe that the North American and European continents once were joined but gradually split apart, with the Atlantic forming between them.

Drs. West and Dawson said their findings go a long way to prove that theory is correct.

The last continental connection probably stretched between the northernmost tips of the continents by way of Greenland, Iceland and Spitsbergen, an island north of Scandinavia, they said. This probably split apart 45 million to 48 million years ago.

The fossils found along barren, rocky Ellesmere Island also show the

Ford may be in for trouble

WASHINGTON — President Ford was confronted Tuesday with two questions from his congressional days that could become issues in his race to retain the White House.

There was only guarded comment from presidential spokesman Ron Nessen on the first disclosure that Watergate Special Prosecutor Charles H. Ruff has subpoenaed records going back to 1964 of two Republican committees in Kent County, Mich., Ford's political base. Also subpoenaed were records of political contributions made over the same period by the Marine Engineers Beneficial Assn., which contributed $7,500 to Ford's 1972 campaign for reelection to the House.

Under heavy questioning about the report, first published in Tuesday's Wall Street Journal, Nessen said repeatedly that the White House had no information on the inquiry and said he knew of no evidence that Ford himself is under investigation. He referred further questions to Ruff, who declined through a spokesman to make any comment.

On the second issue, Nessen confirmed during the hour-long briefing that Ford, while a congressman, had at least twice been the guest of William G. Whyte, chief lobbyist for the United States Steel Corp., on golfing weekends that appear to have been paid for in large part by the corporation.

Emphasizing that Ford and Whyte had been friends and golfing partners for more than 20 years, Nessen said he had been told by Whyte that Ford had been his guest at a lodge owned by U.S. Steel once in 1964 and again "about five years ago." The lodge adjoins the Pine Valley County Club in Clementon, N.J.

"It's obvious that if the President thought there was anything wrong, he would not have done it," Nessen told a questioner.

Nessen told reporter that the special prosecutor's office had made "no contact whatsoever with the White House" with respect to the Michigan campaign records and he emphasized that Ford had been the subject of a "very extensive investigation" by the congressional committee that recommended his confirmation as Vice President in 1973.

Nessen repeatedly referred questioners to a report of the House Judiciary Committee which noted that its review of Ford's background had relied on the work of more than 350 FBI agents as well as the committee staff before a majority of the committee found Ford "fit and qualified." That investigation included a review of all Ford's campaign statements from 1954 to 1972.

In Grand Rapids, Republican officials supplied a few of the specifics Nessen said the White House lacked.

Paul Henry, Republican chairman for Kent County, said records of the county committee and the Kent County GOP Finance Committee were subpoenaed late in August, shortly after Ford won nomination at the GOP convention in Kansas City. He said FBI agents had been assigned at the GOP convention in Kansas City to the GOP request to look through the records, but that he had "no idea what they are looking for."

Hillary Snell, chairman of Ford's 1972 campaign committee, said the committee's records of that campaign had not been subpoenaed. He said he did not know of any records from the 12 previous Ford campaigns that were under scrutiny.

No Republican source in Grand Rapids came forward to suggest a reason for the inquiry, which Ruff apparently undertook under Justice Department regulations authorizing the special prosecutor to investigate "all offenses arising out of the 1972 presidential election."

Although Ruff operates with a staff of two attorneys and eight assistants under a Justice Department authorization, a spokesman for Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi refused to say whether Levi had discussed the inquiry with Ruff or to comment on any other aspect of the matter.

Carter's son defends father's sex remarks

By The Associated Press

To his son, Jack, Jimmy Carter's remarks about sex in Playboy Magazine were part of an effort to reveal his "inner self."

To an authority on Baptist social ethics, they were an accurate reflection of Southern Baptist teachings.

And to a clergyman-psychologist they showed that Carter is admirably frank about his sexual fantasies.

Young Carter, asked for his reaction in Ashton, Iowa, where he spoke to a fund raising dinner Tuesday, said, "I've done that myself, and I think that most people who are truthful about it have committed some sin in their heart."

He said his father made the remarks because he believes that "a politician who runs for office ought to just open himself up completely. Anything in his past, anything anybody wants to talk about, Dad will talk about it with him..."

In Nashville, Tenn., Dr. Harry N. Hollis Jr. said that "what Carter says about lust and forgiveness reflects deep insight and knowledge of the teachings of his religion."

Hollis, a staff member of the Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Conference, said

Carter's remarks reveal "an open man, an honest man who know a great deal about reality and teachings of his religion."

His only criticism was that he "wouldn't have used the same salty language" Carter employed in the interview.

Jack Carter defended his father's language on grounds that "he was saying this to people who talk that way all the time."

In Evanston, Ill., Dr. Ronald R. Lee said he admired Carter's candor, but felt he may have been politically naive in revealing his secret passions.

Lee, a Methodist clergyman and professor of pastoral psychology at Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary, said Carter's thoughts were not unusual. He said most people who don't have such sexual fantasies are simply repressing them.

"Some people feel that to have these thoughts is sinful," the psychologist said, "but that is not my position. When they are able to see that they don't act on their feelings and their behavior is responsible, this cleans up a lot of pathology and they are able to lead healthy, happy lives," he said.

Baptists divided on interview

DALLAS (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter's interview with Playboy magazine has spurred comment from Texas Baptist leaders that varies from ringing condemnation to unqualified approval.

The Rev. Dr. W. A. Criswell, whose 18,000-member First Baptist Church of Dallas is the largest Southern Baptist congregation in the nation, didn't like the forum.

"I identify Playboy with the promiscuous section of our society," Dr. Criswell said Tuesday. "It has a sexual, libertine philosophy, and if there was a law against obscene literature, you would take it off the stands."

"Yet that interview with Carter makes it prominent," said Dr. Criswell, who is a former president of the 12-million member denomination whose flock includes Carter.

Carter said among other things in the interview, "I've looked on a lot of women with lust. I've committed adultery in my heart many times. This is something that God recognizes I will do and I have done it and God forgives me for it. But that doesn't mean that I condemn someone who not only looks on a woman with lust, but who leaves his wife and shacks up with somebody out of wedlock."

Dr. Douglas Watterson, pastor of Cliff Temple Baptist Church here, said Carter was trying to share his belief with other Christians. He said he understood that Playboy has become a "different kind of magazine in recent years."

Dr. Jimmy Allen of San Antonio's First Baptist Church agreed with Carter's statements in the interview. "This may be the first time Playboy has had a real interview with a Christian. We're living in a free press society," Allen said. "You have to interview with everyone."

Allen is president of Americans United for Separation of Churches and State and is a Carter supporter.

The Southern Baptist Convention's Christian Life Commission is conducting a voter registration drive for Texas Baptists, but commission leaders said they are not trying to provide a bloc of voters for Carter. They have said that Texas Baptists are known to be independent-minded when casting their ballots.

Silent Ford coach still active

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's normal plodding style of speech-making has some sparkle lately, thanks in good part to a former television comic named Don Penny.

Penny isn't collecting any medals for his efforts, however. On the contrary, he is on the verge of being transformed into the White House equivalent of a nonperson.

Politics has something to do with it. And another factor to be considered is Penny's own disregard for chains of command — like popping in on the President without getting an appointment through Ford's underlings.

One of Ford's aides said last week he expected the 43-year-old Penny to play a significant role in the President's preparations for Thursday's debate with Jimmy Carter. It seemed a reasonable expectation, because Penny helped coach Ford on his successful and well-received acceptance speech at last month's Republican convention.

But evidence that Penny has contributed anything to debate planning is hard to come by.

"I just don't know what Don Penny has been doing," said Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen.

David Kennerly, the White House photographer who brought Ford and Penny together last January, was equally vague when asked about Penny's possible involvement in the debate.

"I've purposely stayed far away from all that because you might ask questions. I don't want to lie to you," Kennerly said.

Without announcement, Penny was transferred earlier this month from the White House payroll to the Ford campaign committee payroll.

He had been drawing $150 a day as a White House consultant, which had prompted Jimmy Carter to talk about a "$40,000-a-year gag writer" at the White House at taxpayer expense.

A source who should know says Penny has been told to avoid interviews.

One of his last interviews was last month in Vail, Colo., with a CBS correspondent. The CBS man later went on the air to report that Penny would play the role of Jimmy Carter during Ford rehearsals for the televised debates. Penny insists he had only been joking.

White House staff chief Richard Cheney was not amused, however, and the "making of a nonperson" seems to have been under way ever since.

Penny, a comedy writer who had Steve Allen and Merv Griffin among his clientele, has done very little gag writing for Ford.

American foods more than burgers, fries, pie

By MARIAN BURROS
The Washington Post

LOS ANGELES — Ask even knowledgeable people to describe American foods and they'll probably recite the dreary litany of hamburgers, french fries and apple pie, possibly steak and baked potatoes.

That's really not what American cooking is all about, any more than Italian cooking is spaghetti and meat balls or Chinese cooking egg rolls and rice. From the first Pilgrim who tried to prepare wild turkey as if it were Scottish grouse, a distinctive kind of cuisine has been growing up around this country which is entirely regional in nature.

It grew out of what the settlers brought in the way of cooking expertise from their native lands made over to fit what was available in the way of raw ingredients. The result has been different everywhere. The cioppino created by Italians who settled in California uses different fish than the zuppa de pesce made by Italians who never got further than New York. Both of them are different from the fish soup made in Italy.

Those who write about the culinary scene in this country have, until recently, devoted most of their efforts to foreign food. First the emphasis was on French, then it shifted to Italian and Chinese. Recently it has begun moving toward the somewhat more exotic, such as Thai and Vietnamese.

While the experts have been concentrating on imported cuisines, local groups, in fund-raising efforts, have been busily grinding out hundreds and hundreds of cookbooks containing what the people where they live like to eat. If one looks beyond what are mostly very amateurish efforts with poorly written, untested recipes that frequently don't work, there is a wealth of material on how the local cooks have adapted the foods which are readily available to the recipes brought by their forebearers from the Old World.

From time to time book publishers have acknowledged the importance of this regional cooking. But the appearance in 1971 of the Time-Life books on regional cooking in America, as part of its Foods of the World series, probably signalled the beginning of an interest in what is truly the best of American cooking.

The recent publication of "The California Heritage Cookbook" by a major house for nationwide distribution has taken the process one step further because this cookbook was not compiled by professionals. Edited by Doubleday at $9.95, it bears little resemblance to most other fund-raising cookbooks. It is as expertly done as any cookbook on the market today.

Among the standards was a prohibition against canned goods. There were a few exceptions, such as tomato paste and sauce or chicken broth, or when the recipe was particularly good and there was no way to substitute raw ingredients. This accounts for an occasional can of soup and something called Beril's custard powder.

"The California Heritage Cookbook" is useful more for entertaining than for family meals though it has excellent recipes for farmer-style spareribs and super-natural bran muffins as well as more elegant chicken breasts with cucumber and mouseline of sole and crab with shrimp sauce. Most of the dishes are rich — lots of heavy cream, butter, sour cream and cheeses — but there is something for every style of entertaining from the backyard barbecue to the seated black-tie dinner.

Some samples:

HOT CRAB MEAT COCKTAIL

24 ounces cream cheese, softened to room temperature
1-2 cup mayonnaise
2-3 cup cup dry white wine
1-4 teaspoon garlic salt
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
2 teaspoons confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon onion juice
Dash seasoned salt
1 1-4 pounds fresh crab meat
Assorted crackers or toasted rounds of rye bread
Place cream cheese, mayonnaise and wine in blender and blend for 45 seconds at medium speed. Add the garlic salt, mustard, sugar, onion juice and seasoned salt to the blended ingredients and blend for an additional 45 seconds. Place the blended ingredients in a double boiler and heat over simmering water, stirring occasionally. Gently add the crab meat to the ingredients in the double boiler. When the ingredients are heated thoroughly, place in chafing dish and serve immediately with an assortment of crackers or toasted rye bread rounds.

ZUCCHINI SOUFFLE

(Makes 6 servings)
5 to 6 medium zucchini (about 2 pounds)
3-4 teaspoon salt
2 slices white bread
1 cup milk
1 onion, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
4 eggs
1-2 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
1-4 teaspoon white pepper
Wash the zucchini and cut into 1-4 inch slices. Place the zucchini slices in a 3-quart saucepan and add 1 cup water and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Bring to a boil over high heat, reduce the heat, and simmer covered for 10 to 12 minutes or until zucchini is fork tender. Place in a colander and drain well.
Meanwhile, in a small bowl soak the bread, which has been torn into bite-size pieces, in the milk. In an 8- to 10-inch skillet saute the onion and the garlic in the butter and oil over low heat until soft, 3 to 4 minutes, stirring frequently. Prepare a 1-2 quart souffle dish by generously buttering the inside.
Return the drained zucchini to a saucepan and mash it thoroughly with a fork. Add the soaked bread, squeezing out the excess milk. Mix into the zucchini thoroughly. In a small mixing bowl beat the eggs until they are light and frothy. Add the eggs, sauteed onion and garlic to the zucchini mixture. Gently fold in the cheese, 1-2 teaspoon salt and pepper. Pour into buttered souffle dish and bake in a preheated 375 degree oven for 40 minutes or until firm in the center. Serve at once.

NOTE: This souffle is a delightful accompaniment to baked chicken or leg of lamb.

PASTA MOLTO FACILE

(Serves 6)
1-4 pound butter (no substitute)
4 cups quartered fresh mushrooms
1 clove garlic, minced
2-1-4 cups chopped fresh parsley
12 ounces thin, narrow noodles
1 pint sour cream
1-2 cup freshly grated Parmesan or Romano cheese plus 1-4 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
In a large skillet slowly melt the butter (do not brown) and cook mushrooms over low heat until just done, about 5 minutes. Add garlic and cook for another 2 minutes. Cook noodles during above procedure. Drain and rinse briefly in very hot water. Return to pan in which they were boiled. Pour mushroom mixture over noodles, toss lightly, add the sour cream and the 1-2 cup cheese and toss lightly again. Place on platter, surround with the remaining parsley and sprinkle with 1-4 cup Parmesan cheese. Serve very hot.

BRIE WAFERS

(Makes about 60)
1-4 pound butter
1-2 pound Brie cheese
1 cup flour
1-2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1-4 teaspoon seasoned salt
1-2 cup (approximately) sesame seeds

Place the butter and cheese in a medium-sized bowl and let stand until they have softened to room temperature. Add the flour, cayenne pepper and seasoned salt and beat well. Divide the mixture in half and place one portion on waxed paper. Form the mixture into a long round roll and wrap the waxed paper around the roll. Follow the same procedure for the other half. Refrigerate for at least 12 hours. Slice the chilled rolls into thin wafers, about 1-4 inch thick. Sprinkle with the sesame seeds. Place on cookie sheets and bake in preheated 400-degree oven for about 8 minutes. Cool and store in a tightly covered container.

POT ROAST MADEIRA

(Serves 6)
1-2 cup fresh orange juice
1 (6 ounce) can frozen orange juice, thawed
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
2 medium onions, finely chopped
1-1-2 teaspoons salt
1-2 teaspoon pepper
1-2 teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon ground coriander
1-4 teaspoon ground cumin
1 teaspoon sugar
3-1-2 pound chuck roast (see note)
1 tablespoon oil
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons cornstarch
4 tablespoons water
2 medium oranges, thinly sliced
1-2 cup Madeira

Place the orange juices, orange peel, onion, salt, pepper, cloves, coriander, cumin and sugar in the jar of an electric blender. Blend on medium speed until well mixed. Place the meat in a large bowl and pour the marinade over the meat. Marinate in the refrigerator 4 to 6 hours, turning the meat occasionally to marinate evenly.

When ready to prepare, scrape the marinade from the meat and reserve. Heat the oil and butter in a 6- to 8-quart Dutch oven over moderately high heat and brown the meat well on all sides, about 4 to 5 minutes per side. Pour the reserved marinade over the meat, bring to a boil, reduce heat, and simmer covered for 2-1-2 hours, or until fork tender. Remove the meat to a platter and keep warm. Blend the cornstarch and water and add to the juices in the pot. Cook over medium-low heat for 5 minutes. Add the orange slices and Madeira and simmer over low heat an additional 10 minutes. Slice the meat and arrange on the platter. Remove the orange slices from the sauce and set aside. Pour the sauce over the meat, arrange the orange slices around the platter, and serve at once.

CLASSIC CARROT CAKE

(Serves 12)
This carrot cake must be prepared 24 hours in advance.
1-1-2 cups salad oil
1 cup brown sugar, packed
1 cup granulated sugar
4 eggs
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup less 2 tablespoons whole wheat flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons cinnamon
3 cups shredded raw carrots, packed
8-1-2 ounces crushed pineapple, drained
1-2 cup finely chopped walnuts (optional)
With: LEMON CREAM CHEESE FROSTING
8 ounces cream cheese, softened
1-4 cup butter, softened
2 cups confectioners' sugar
1-1-2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind

In a large bowl blend together the salad oil and the brown and granulated sugars. Add eggs one at a time, beating until blended. In another bowl sift together both flours, salt, soda, baking powder and cinnamon. Add the flour mixture, about 1-3 at a time, to the oil mixture, beating just enough to blend. Fold the carrots and then the pineapple into the batter. Add nuts if desired. Pour the batter into 2 greased and lightly floured 9-inch round cake pans. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in the center of each comes out clean. Cool the cakes in the pans on a rack for 10 minutes. Turn cakes out on the rack and cool completely. Frost with Lemon Cream Cheese Frosting and allow the cake to rest for one day, if not previously stored, to improve flavor.

Real Mexican recipes untainted

By MARIAN BURROS
The Washington Post

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Her mother was Swiss; her father French cousin in the city of Chihuahua, Mexico. She married a Russian Jew who had emigrated to Mexico in 1927. Together they operate one of the largest American Indian crafts shops in the country, Wright's Indian Trading Post here.

Marguerite Chernoff can and does cook in French, Swiss, Russian and Jewish, although not in Indian. But she and her husband, Sam, and their four children, prefer Mexican food and used to eat it as often as possible.

Mrs. Chernoff has tried to keep her Mexican recipes intact since moving to Albuquerque from Chihuahua 30 years ago.

Mrs. Chernoff said that her recipes have never been "tainted" by New Mexican adaptations, though she does use modern conveniences in some dishes. Her sangrita, a tomato-based drink, served with the fiery Mexican liquor tequila, is made with tomato juice instead of tomatoes and spiced with Tabasco, a Louisiana invention, instead of hot chiles.

On the other hand, Mrs. Chernoff said that the sour cream put in so-called Mexican dishes is a fraud. When she left Chihuahua 30 years ago, sour cream probably did not exist in Mexico. The part of the country from which she came uses a lot of cream, slightly soured like the creme fraiche. She uses evaporated milk in place of this cream in her recipes.

There are at least 200 different varieties of chiles. Depending on where it is grown, the same chile can change from hot to mild. While some are always hot, Mrs. Chernoff explained that the New Mexican chile, used in two of her dishes, ranges from mild to medium-hot each time she buys it. What's more, the same chiles can have different names in this country. The New Mexican chile is also known as California chile and sometimes as Anaheim.

With fresh chiles the skins should be removed before using. They can be placed over an open flame or roasted under the broiler until they begin to blister and swell. As each one blisters, it is wrapped in a damp cloth for about 5 to 10 minutes so that the skin will come off easily.

Mrs. Chernoff freezes hers before peeling them. They are placed in a tightly closed plastic bag and used as needed. They can be peeled and then frozen, as well. If they are frozen with the skin on, the skin will slip off easily, once they are defrosted.

To use, the chiles are slit and the seeds washed out. If chiles are not, be careful not to put your fingers to your face, especially your eyes, because they will burn.

Without getting into the eternal argument about what constitutes "authentic" Mexican cooking, there is no question that the versions north of the border are different. But what is authentic in one region of Mexico is not in another.

Tortillas made from wheat are popular in northern Mexico; elsewhere they are made of corn. Some regions like their chiles fiery hot; others prefer milder versions. Under the circumstances, it's easy to see why "authentic" Mexican cooking can change as it crosses the border.

What appear to incense aficionados of true Mexican cooking are the versions that turn up in the mass markets here. They are aptly described by Diana Kennedy in her excellent book, "The Cruisines of Mexico": "...far too many people know Mexican food as a 'mixed plate': a crisp taco filled with ground meat heavily flavored with all purpose chili powder, a soggy tamal covered with a sauce that turns up on everything — too sweet and too overpoweringly onioned — a few fried beans and something that looks and tastes like all the rest."

Mrs. Chernoff's recipes will set you against the "mixed plate" forever.

FIDEU

(Vermicelli)
Makes 3 to 4 servings
8 ounce package vermicelli
2 tablespoons oil
1 small onion, chopped fine
1 small tomato, chopped fine
1 clove garlic, minced
1 1/2 cups chicken broth
Brown vermicelli in hot oil very slowly. Drain on absorbent paper and place in oven-proof casserole. Saute onion, tomato and garlic in remaining oil in pan until onion is tender. Combine with chicken broth and salt to taste. Pour over vermicelli. Cover and cook slowly on top of the stove, until all the water is absorbed and vermicelli is tender.

While most Mexican cooks think of chilaquiles as a recipe for using up stale tortillas, the Chernoffs like it so much that they make it with fresh ones.

Mrs. Chernoff does not use sour cream in this recipe and would doubtless not approve of this adaptation. To make it as she does, use two cans of evaporated milk instead of one and eliminate the sour cream.

CHILAQUILES

Makes 8 servings
1 1/4 pound plus 4 tablespoons margarine
1 medium onion, chopped
1 medium tomato, chopped
4 cups finely chopped green medium hot chiles, fresh, frozen or canned (see note)
24 ounces sour cream
1 can (13 ounces) evaporated milk.
Salt to taste
2 dozen corn tortillas

heat 4 tablespoons of margarine in large skillet. Add the onion, tomato and chiles. Sauté for about 10 minutes, until onions soften. Add evaporated milk and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and stir in sour cream; do not boil.

Meanwhile, heat remaining margarine, a few tablespoons at a time as needed in a large skillet. Add a few tortillas, in a single layer, and allow to warm and soften on both sides in the margarine.

Stack tortillas until ready to use. Select a dish deep enough to hold the tortillas stacked with chile sauce between them. Place one tortilla in the dish. Top with about 1 tablespoon of chile mixture, spreading to cover tortilla. Top with 2nd tortilla and then more chile, using up all tortillas and chile in this fashion. End with chile mixture.

If served immediately, cover with foil and heat for about 15 minutes at 350 degrees.

If serving the next day, refrigerate. To heat, place dish in pan of water about 1-inch deep. Bake at 250 degrees, covered, for about 1 hour, until heated through.

Note — The chiles used in New Mexico to make this dish are 5 to 8 inches long, range from medium to hot in flavor and are sometimes called California chiles. To substitute, combine about 3 cups chopped bell peppers and 1 cup chopped hot chiles such as Jalapeno.

REFRIED BEANS

Makes 6 to 8 servings
1 pound pinto beans
8 tablespoons lard
1 chopped onion
2 large cloves garlic, cut in half
Salt
Soak beans in plenty of water overnight. Next day, drain, cover with water and add 3 tablespoons lard, onion, and garlic. Cook beans until half done, about 20 minutes. After they are half cooked, season to taste with salt. Finish cooking.

Heat remaining lard in large skillet. Add some of beans and some of cooking liquid and mash beans with potato masher until fairly smooth. Keep adding beans and liquid until all beans are mashed. Continue cooking until mixture is thick and liquid has evaporated. Season to taste with salt, if desired.

Beans can be reheated and topped with cheese and baked, if desired.

ENCHILADAS

Makes 2 dozen
3 tablespoons oil and 1-2 cup
1 cup mild pure chile powder (see note)
2 tablespoons flour
4 cups water
Salt
Pinch sugar
2 dozen corn tortillas
1 1/2 cup grated Muenster or Monterey Jack cheese
1-2 cup finely chopped onion
1 can (13 ounces) evaporated milk
Heat 3 tablespoons oil in skillet. Combine chile powder and flour and stir into oil until well mixed. Remove from heat and gradually add water until mixture is smooth. Return to heat; add salt and sugar and simmer for 10 minutes.

In separate skillet, add remaining oil, a few tablespoons at a time as needed. Dip tortillas into hot oil on both sides, just long enough to warm and soften.

Drain on absorbent paper and then dip each tortilla in chile mixture and shake to drain. In center of each tortilla place 1 tablespoon of cheese and one teaspoon of onion. Roll tortillas lengthwise and place close together, seam-side down, in shallow oblong baking dish.

Combine remaining chile mixture with evaporated milk and pour over enchiladas. If served immediately, bake, covered with foil, at 350 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes.

To serve the next day, refrigerate. Then bake at 250 degrees for about 1 hour, or until heated through.

Note — Pure chile powder is available in Spanish markets. It is not the same as the chili powder, a mixture of spices, which is found in supermarkets.

Most flan recipes call for yolks as well as whole eggs, more eggs in proportion to the amount of milk and often some cream in place of some of the milk. The result is much richer than this, but Mrs. Chernoff prefers this version for family meals.

FLAN

(Caramel Custard)
Makes 8 servings

This is very soft and is not turned out. The custard part is not particularly sweet.

1 cup sugar
1 quart milk
4 eggs
4 tablespoons sugar
Melt 1 cup of sugar in skillet, cooking slowly until it browns. Immediately pour into a buttered baking dish of 1 1/2-quart capacity. Be very careful, since the caramelized sugar can cause a bad burn. Swirl sugar around to coat sides of dish.

Beat eggs with remaining 4 tablespoons of sugar and milk. Pour over cooled caramel. Bake at 350 degrees until knife inserted in center of custard, comes out clean; about 40 minutes. Cool and refrigerate overnight. To serve, spoon from pan.

THE WINE DRINKER

What's in a name?

By TOM GABLE
Copley News Service

When you buy a bottle or jug (half-gallon, magnum, etc.) of California wine called Burgundy or Chablis, you really don't know what to expect.

The names are generic, not varietals, and have been co-opted from excellent growing areas in France. There are other generics such as Rhein wine, Mosel, Chianti, Claret and champagne. The only thing these names tell you is if the wine is red or white. They will in no other way resemble the style of the wines from the areas they are supposed to represent.

The problem with a generic name on the label is that the winery can put just about anything it wants into the bottle. Many of the insipid jug wines called "Chablis" are full of Thompson Seedless and better used for mixing into a wine cooler, a white sauce or a kitchen sink. Thompson Seedless, you should know, is often referred to as the "triple-threat" grape; it can be eaten by itself, made into raisins or made into a wine. One small California winery, which shall remain nameless, has even made it "into a 100 per cent varietal wine."

On the red jug wines, you are usually getting Carignane, Gamay, Petite Sirah, Ruby Cabernet and whatever happens to come at the cheapest price per ton during a given harvest.

The flaws in these wines are usually more apparent than in the whites because they aren't chilled and can have a variety of bad aromas and flavors from the grape skins and the vinification process.

For hearty outdoor appetites, cheesy chicken 'n' biscuita and hungry guy beef bake fill the bill. Both are easy to make in kitchens

'Roughing it can be easy

By LEIGH FENLY
Copley News Service

Dian Thomas grew up among the pine trees in southern Utah, the only daughter of a forest ranger, and the great-granddaughter of a woman who came across this country pushing a handcart.

"I come from pioneering stock," she understates.

Thomas is author of a book for the novice camping soul, the one who vaguely remembers buddy burners and s'mores from scouting days.

"Roughing It Easy," available in paperback form from Warner, brings it all back to mind, plus a lot more — like cheesy chicken 'n' biscuits, hungry guy beef bake and cake in an orange.

More than a collection of recipes, the book is an idea book about camping. It includes guidelines for setting up an outdoor home, how to plan and shop, how to cook foods using different methods.

There are hints that make camping easy — like soaping the bottom of pans before putting them on the fire so the bottom won't blacken. Thomas tells how to start a fire without matches by using steel wool and batteries, plus how to make a hot water tank out of a five-gallon oil can and a long-necked funnel.

CHEESY CHICKEN 'N' BISCUITS

- One-fourth cup butter
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 2 tbsps. water
- 1 tsp. onion salt

- One-half tsp. salt
- Pepper

- 1 cup mashed potato flakes
- One-fourth cup grated Parmesan cheese
- Melt butter in a dutch oven. Combine eggs, water, salts, pepper. Dip chicken in the mixture. Roll in mixture of potato flakes and cheese.
- Fry in remaining butter on both sides. Cover with lid. Place coals on top of lid and underneath. Bake 30 to 40 minutes.

CHEESE BISCUITS

- 1 can refrigerated buttermilk biscuits
- 10 cubes (one-half inch) Cheddar cheese
- Separate dough into 10 biscuits. Grease a dutch oven. Push a cheese cube into the center of each biscuit. Bake 10 to 12 minutes until golden. Serves five.

HUNGRY GUY BEEF BAKE

- 2 lbs. beef cubes
- One-third cup flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- One-fourth tsp. pepper
- 1 (1 lb.) can tomatoes
- 1 (4 oz.) can mushrooms, drained
- 1 onion, sliced
- 1 green pepper, sliced
- 3 tbsps. soy sauce
- 3 tbsps. molasses
- 1 (10 oz.) can refrigerated hot rolls
- 2 tbsps. butter, melted
- Sesame seeds

Place meat in a dutch oven. Sprinkle with flour, salt and pepper. Stir to coat meat. Fry until brown, stirring as needed.

Add tomatoes, mushrooms, onion, green pepper, soy sauce and molasses; mix well. Cover with dutch oven lid placing coals on top of the lid, as well as under oven. Bake for about 30 minutes.

Separate dough into 16 rolls. Remove lid and arrange rolls in rows on hot meat mixture; brush with butter and sprinkle with sesame seeds. Place lid over again and replace coals. Bake 15 to 18 minutes until golden. Serves six.

CAKE IN AN ORANGE

- 1 (17 oz.) box cake mix, any flavor

Eggs

10 to 12 oranges
Prepare cake mix with water and number of eggs called for in package directions. Slice top one-third of each orange off. Scoop out fruit, leaving an empty shell.

Fill the hollow oranges one-half full with cake batter. Place lid back on orange. Wrap each orange in 6x6-inch piece of foil. Place in coals or in dutch oven. Bake 10 to 15 minutes. Makes 10 to 12 servings. Also try this with gingerbread mix and grapefruit shells.

NEW CHICKEN LOAF

- 1 1/2 cups oven-toasted rice cereal
- 2 eggs
- 1/4 cup clear fat-free chicken broth
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 1/2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 1/2 teaspoons finely chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped celery

In a large bowl slightly crush the rice cereal; add unbroken eggs and the remaining ingredients except the Cream Sauce; stir together well. Turn into the prepared pan. Bake in a preheated, 350-degree oven until a knife inserted in center comes out clean — 55 to 60 minutes. Turn out onto a serving plate; peel off foil. Serve hot with Cream Sauce. Makes 4 servings.

CREAM SAUCE

In a small saucepan over low heat melt 2 teaspoons butter; stir in 1 tablespoon flour. Off heat, stir in 1/4 cup clear fatfree chicken broth, keeping smooth. # Navy wives co-author 'appetizing' cookbook

By SUSAN DELIGHT
Copley News Service

"It was conceived in Washington, D.C., fostered by mail and compiled in California."

This is how two wives of Navy officers — Margon Edney and Ede Grimm — explain the cookbook they have co-authored, "Supremes Before Supper."

The idea for writing the book evolved while the husbands of the two authors had duty in Washington.

"We were neighbors in nearby Alexandria, Va., and were involved in the same social round," Mrs. Edney recalled. "Neither of us could afford many dinners, so we turned to less expensive and less time-consuming party foods — we really became authorities on hors d'oeuvres."

"We traded recipes — they really made the rounds."

Before the two women could get started on the book, their husbands received new orders. Capt. William Grimm was assigned to Coronado, Calif., and Capt. Leon (Bud) Edney to Lemoore, Calif.

"Ede and I corresponded about the book, but that was as far as we got until my husband was transferred to Miramar (San Diego, Calif.)."

Mrs. Edney recalled. "Then Ede and I really started working seriously on the book."

"Because Ede writes such a beautiful hand, we decided to be innovative and compile a handwritten cookbook. Every recipe was painstakingly copied in longhand before the book went to the printer."

The two unanimously agreed that the two recipes given today are their favorites in the cookbook, which can be ordered from The Gypsy Peddler, P.O. Box 644, Coronado, Calif. 92118.

CHEESE AND MUSHROOMS

- 3 pts. fresh mushrooms
- 10 slices bacon, crisped and crumbled
- Three-fourths cup mayonnaise

Seasoned salt, to taste
1 medium onion, finely chopped

Chutney gives added zest to curry dishes

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In the culinary world, India is best known perhaps for its curries, those artfully prepared, tongue-tingling mixtures of spiced-up meat, fish or fowl, tempered with rice. And no India curry is truly complete unless it is accompanied by that unique relish known as chutney.

Chutney is really quite easy to make and not too expensive. Here's a formula for one with a car-

- rot and apple base.
- 3 cups chopped, pared carrots
- 3 cups chopped, pared apples
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1 orange, thinly sliced and quartered

- 3 cups cider vinegar
- 1 pound dark brown sugar

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon cloves

- 1/4 teaspoon ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco

Combine all ingredients in large kettle. Bring to boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Reduce heat and simmer uncovered 1 1/2 hours till liquid is syrupy. Ladle into hot sterilized jars to within 1/4 inch of rim. Screw on lids. Place jars in kettle on wire rack. Add water to cover jars by 1 inch. Bring to boil; boil 10 minutes. Remove jars and cool. Store in cool place. Makes 4 8-ounce jars.

Money for deaf said 'totally inadequate'

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—A House subcommittee's draft report claims the State Commission for the Deaf has "totally inadequate funding" to help the nearly one million deaf and hearing impaired in Texas.

The House Social Services subcommittee further recommends that funding to the Deaf Commission be increased over its present level by over 400 per cent.

In another area of its jurisdiction, the panel proposes to create, through state law, an Office of Early Childhood Development.

Rep. Walt Parker of Denton last session proposed such an office, to be run through the Texas Department of Community Affairs, but the legislation never reached the House floor.

Wynette files for divorce

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Tammy Wynette has filed suit for divorce from her fourth husband, John Michael Tomlin, to whom she was married July 18.

Neither Miss Wynette nor Tomlin, a Nashville real estate executive, was available for comment.

The divorce suit filed in Circuit Court Tuesday alleged that Tomlin has "been guilty of such cruel and inhuman treatment as to render further cohabitation unsafe and improper."

Causes of the split, rumored for several weeks, were not spelled out. Lawyer John Lents said a bill of particulars will be filed later.

"W.J. Estelle, Director of the Texas Department of Corrections, testified that if the State has unlimited resources, in his opinion those resources should be concentrated on early childhood," the staff reports state.

"The State spends tens of millions of dollars on prisons, mental institutions, rehabilitation and other programs to correct social problems. The subcommittee, after looking into these programs, is convinced that it's not so much a matter of how much money the State spends, but when it is spent."

Over 100,000 Texans are legally deaf, the report claims, with over 750,000 other residents suffering "significant" hearing impairments. In its findings, the panel also reports that the elderly tend to suffer progressive hearing loss as age increases.

In Texas there are over 287,000 elderly who suffer acute hearing problems, the report says.

While the Deaf commission has been appropriated nearly $88,000 for fiscal year 1977, the House panel recommends funding of over $409,000.

The additional money, the committee says would greatly improve the services provided by qualified interpreters, while making sure the hearing-impaired receive special telephone services.

Additional money would also insure that more vocational and educational opportunities are afforded the deaf, with the subcommittee also wanting more funds to screen and identify children with hearing impairments at an earlier age.

Approval given Head Start grant

AUSTIN — A $143,837 grant for this year's Head Start program has been approved by the Office of Human Development.

The grant for the part-day program serving 140 children from low-income families is effective retroactively from Sept. 1 and will run through Aug. 31. It is funded under Title V of the Head Start, Economic Opportunity and Community Partnership Act of 1974.

Seven classes of 20 children each are held at Washington, Pease, De Zavala, Crockett, South and Milam elementary schools, with two classes at Washington. The program at De Zavala is bilingual.

Emphasis of the program is on education, social service, health and nutrition and parent involvement.

Brezhnev reported worried by campaign

The Washington Post

MOSCOW — American elder statesman Averell Harriman met for nearly three hours earlier this week with Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev and reported later that Brezhnev is "disturbed" over things being said in the American presidential campaign that seem to "undermine" detente.

Harriman, who is in Moscow on a private visit, has been serving on a foreign policy advisory panel to Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter. However, in an interview after the morning session, Harriman said he found himself explaining to Brezhnev the meaning of statements made by President Ford as well as Carter.

A Soviet communique on the meeting said that Brezhnev had stressed "the great significance of the improvement of Soviet-U.S. ties ... and noted that the Soviet Union guided by its principled line consistently comes out for further development of these relations."

Harriman said that statement aptly described Brezhnev's position.

But Brezhnev did express consternation, Harriman added, over rhetoric in the campaign that appeared on the whole to reflect a hardening position in the United States about relations with Moscow. "I told him that campaigns are meant to attract the American voter and less thought is given to reaction abroad," Harriman said.

City planner offers views on growth

Natural or economic factors determine the direction of a city's growth and development, rather than that city's planning department.

And any plan seeking to reverse those factors is unlikely to be successful.

These ideas were expressed Wednesday by Richard Hennessy, director of planning and community development for the City of Midland. Hennessy spoke before the weekly meeting of the Midland Downtown Lions Club.

He said, "For the most part, it's not the work we in the planning department do, but natural factors which influence this city's growth."

For example, Midland's main thoroughfares must be protected so certain types of development will not interfere with the roads' carrying capacity, Hennessy explained.

Hennessy joined the city this past June. The 32-year-old planning director holds a BS and masters degrees from Texas A&M University. He came to Midland from Amarillo, where he had served as chief planner for the city since December 1972. Prior to that, he was assistant director of planning for the City of Port Arthur.

According to Hennessy, "The community development program is a federal grant program where a block of funds is made available to a city. These funds can be spent by the city with less regulations than other types of grants."

Hennessy explained that his department is divided mainly into the inspections division and the planning division. "The inspections division is comprised of building inspections, zoning enforcement and lot clearing and housing code enforcement," he said. "The planning division is made up of day-to-day planning and long-range planning."

He said a greater emphasis lately has been placed upon the cleaning of lots, and the city has hired a code enforcement officer to handle this matter.

Among the day-to-day work done by the planning division is zoning analysis, subdivision revision, utilities revision, annexation and special studies, and revision of existing codes dealing with development, Hennessy stated.

Hennessy said the main task for this year is the refining of the Midland Plan, which was completed in 1970 and focused on the economic development of the city.

Rocky says he didn't like job

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller, looking back with some frustration on his two years in office, said Tuesday that "competitiveness" with White House staff members had limited his role in the administration.

In a breakfast meeting with reporters, Rockefeller repeatedly praised President Ford and predicted that he would win the election. But he also indicated dissatisfaction with the efforts of White House staff members to restrict the role he played on policy issues.

"It wasn't worth it," said Rockefeller, adding that he "just withdrew from that position" because he didn't think the in-fighting was productive.

The vice president also made no secret of his ill feelings toward the first chairman of the President Ford Committee, Howard (Bo) Callaway, who resigned after allegations of conflicts of interest involving property he owns in Colorado. Callaway's description in mid-1975 of Rockefeller as a political liability in the South is widely believed to have triggered Rockefeller's withdrawal from the 1976 ticket.

"There has been some suggestion that I send him an autographed copy of the picture," Rockefeller said. This was a reference to a photograph of Rockefeller making an obscene gesture with his middle finger at a group of demonstrators in New York last Thursday. When he was asked Tuesday about that incident, Rockefeller made no apology.

"It really was an unplanned action to a sustained salute I was getting," Rockefeller said.

Rockefeller's reference to his difficulties within the administration were for the most part vague and generalized. But he did mention the conflict that arose over his $100 billion energy independence plan with members of the Domestic Council.

The difficulty, said Rockefeller, arises from the fact that the vice-president has no responsibilities except those that are delegated to him by the president.

"You become competitive with his staff, which also has no power (except that which is delegated)," Rockefeller said.

When he was asked whether his conflict wasn't really with Donald Rumsfeld, the first chief of staff for Mr. Ford who is now secretary of defense, Rockefeller said that "Rumsfeld was only the head of it." Conflicts arose at various levels, he indicated, causing him to "just withdraw."

Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller explains during a recent campaign stop in Cleveland that he is now being sure to use two fingers in a V-for-victory sign.

Advice given by executive

NEW YORK (AP) — Quietly, little noticed by the general public, a business executive a few days ago delivered a speech, measured, restrained, in contrast to the extremes one sometimes hears in a political year.

Some people might find it reassuring, because it touches with candor some of the big and sensitive issues, and leaves us with the feeling that they can and will be dealt with constructively.

Irving S. Shapiro is the author. His remarks, entitled "The Future Role of Business in Society," were delivered before a meeting of businessmen at The Conference Board. Shapiro is chairman of E.I. duPont de Nemours & Co.

Here are some highlights: —Speaking of the need for the economy to evolve to meet needs:

"The new realities will demand that products of greater value, durability and economy of operation be developed for sophisticated consumers more in need of product utility, quality and conservation than in initial cost and style."

"The new realities will require that business be managed by leaders who are actively in tune with the larger goals of society."

—Explaining that the two main constituencies of business are customers and employees:

"Customers are entitled to ask, first, that the choices of products offered are responsive to their needs and, secondly, that in making their choices they have all the relevant facts and are assured of the service and quality they implicitly are promised."

"With respect to employees... they have a right to know that their aspirations and needs have a high place in our economic system."

"Our people are looking up from the grindstone and asking if there is not something more to life than work, however successful. Management must accommodate these new aspirations for larger dimensions to life, meshing corporate goals and practices as closely as possible with new employee objectives."

—On the contribution of business to achieving public goals beyond immediate business interests:

"This generation of managers appears to be far-sighted enough to recognize that the future role of business in society inevitably will include more of the society in business."

"This is not only inevitable but logical. Many private decisions, especially those by larger enterprises, have substantial public effects. We should not expect that the people will continue to let such effects fall without the people achieving a voice, through government, in such decisions."

—On fears that government will supplant private industry on a large scale:

"Some people in government would like to do this, of course, but I think most people recognize that, just as business can't govern, government has proved that it cannot effectively manage anything close to a business activity."

Area medics to aid pupils

ODESSA — Premedical students will be individually interviewed Wednesday and Oct. 6 by the nine-member Health Professions Advisory Committee of The University of the Permian Basin.

Chairman of the committee is Dr. Edwin B. Kurtz, professor and chairman of life science. Members include persons in various medical professions in Midland and Odessa.

After each student interview, the committee will write a joint recommendation to the medical school to which the student is applying, Kurtz said. The committee also advises students on procedures, examination dates and deadlines for applications to medical schools and in other health related fields.

Appointments for interviews can be made by contacting Kurtz in lab 315 at UTPB.

Debate clinic set Saturday

Students from about 15 West Texas high schools will participate in a debate clinic at Lee High School Saturday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The clinic will be conducted by Dr. William English of the University of Houston, Tom Doyle of Baylor University and Dr. Lee Polk, director of forensics at Baylor. This group has conducted clinics all over the nation.

The purpose of the workshop is to help students in competition for the coming year. Debating techniques will be discussed and material that will be used in this year's debates on penal reform will be distributed.

Everything's been used before

By LORETTA GREEN
Copley News Service

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Recycling is nothing new for Carl Proefrock. He's been at it for years.

He's an inventor of sorts and the gadgets he uses around his home are the result of his resourcefulness in using other people's discards. "Everything I make," says Proefrock, "has been something else." He has become an alley picker because he finds so many useful articles thrown away by his neighbors. However, many of his friends and neighbors, who know what good use he makes of their throw-aways, now ask if he wants some of the "junk" they plan to discard.

The Proefrock yard is a model of neatness and care, giving evidence of the hours Carl spends there, cutting grass, planting, weeding and spraying.

But his garage workshop where he stashes most of his finds gets lots of attention, too. When the yard work is done, he tinkers around the shop — or in the basement in the winter — cooking up more inventions.

The first thing a visitor notices in the yard are the windmills. On a breezy day, they're flapping around just like they're supposed to. It's hardly obvious to the viewer that the components of one of them are a bicycle wheel and parts of a venetian blind. The other one was rigged up with margarine tubs.

Much of his work around the yard has been made easier by the "helpers" he has contrived.

Take that handy cart he made to haul grass and leaves to the alley or carry garbage cans to the pickup spot. Wheels from a lawn mower and part of the frame were transformed to become a cart which looks like one of the luggage carriers you see around railroad stations and airports.

One cart is enough for the inventor but he's made half a dozen for family and friends. "One of my neighbors who's a widow," Proefrock says, "finds lots of uses for it."

A similar principle is involved in the hose cart. A hose reeler was fastened to the frame of a lawn mower with handles intact. Wheels from an old outdoor grill completed this gadget which comes in handy when the hose is needed to water the front lawn or wash the porch and walks.

Another knickknack was made to help a relative with arthritis who has trouble picking up items from the floor. Discarded kitchen tongs fastened to a metal handle do the trick neatly. Not only does it retrieve articles from the floor and from high shelves, but with a sponge attached it can be used to clean a bathtub.

This gadget is available at catalog mail-order houses, but Proefrock's little number is "made out of nothing." And besides, look at the fun he has with these projects, especially those that help someone who is handicapped.

Another idea he dreamed up simplifies his job of mowing the grass and also beautifies the yard. Along the edge of a cement walk is one of the tricky spots to cut.

He has taken care of that by placing bricks (discarded during a neighbor's remodeling project) flush with the walk and flat on the ground. Then he poured a layer of concrete over the bricks. Now he has a smooth border that permits him to mow right to the edge without that ragged bit of grass that is always left uncut.

He has also figured out a way to cut the grass under the downspouts without moving them, and there's no danger anyone will trip over them either.

Hanging on a tree in the backyard is a picker-upper, made with tin cans lids fastened to a long handle. It works like pinchers to collect rocks and other debris from the yard before the mowing is started.

Both Proefrock and his wife like flowers and they make sure there is something blooming throughout the summer.

POINTS ON PETS

Can this cat be spayed?

By H.P. JANS, D.V.M.
Copley News Service

Q. Is it possible for a female cat, about 1-year-old, that has had two litters of kittens to be spayed without difficulties? — J.D.P., Baton Rouge, La.

A. Yes, it is possible, providing the patient passes a presurgical exam. She should not be pregnant again. Her breasts should be free of milk. It would be better for the doctor if she were not in season at the time of surgery. She should be free of internal and external parasites, and perhaps the surgeon would request a complete blood count, with hemoglobin determination also.

With today's anesthetic systems and available surgical expertise, the ovarioectomy (spay) should not be difficult.

Q. My daughter recently bought a cute Doberman pup without realizing that the poor little thing was club-footed. Does this mean that the dog will never be able to walk and run normally, but otherwise will suffer no great discomfort? — W.B.G., San Diego, Calif.

A. I would suggest you take your Doberman puppy to a veterinarian and ask his advice if the feet can be corrected. Some puppies can have the feet corrected if the condition is not too severe and the devices are started early enough.

Q. I have a pet rabbit and would like to know if chicken feed is harmful to my rabbit if that's all she eats.

I put rabbit food in her dish but she still prefers to go in our chicken pen and eat their food instead of her own. The kind of chicken feed we get is called scratch feed. The ingredients are: cracked corn, wheat, milo. I would also like to know how you can tell whether a rabbit is a male or female.

A. There is nothing wrong with most chicken feeds being fed to rabbits unless it is medicated. In fact, many of the ingredients in chicken feed are identical to rabbit food.

In reply to your second question — look under the tail of your rabbit and find the anus (round indented hole). Below the anus will be either a long slit or two large bumps on either side of the slit. The one with two bumps is a male; the long single slit indicates a female.

BACKYARD GARDENER

Prepare your dahlias now for winter rest

Copley News Service

As the autumn season approaches, our minds turn to the sometimes formidable lineup of fall tasks which are equally as important to a well-run garden as those we undertake in the spring.

Foremost among these is the preparation of our dahlia tubers for their winter resting period. Dahlias can be dug any time after the first frost has hit them in cold-weather areas. It's wise to dig them, rather than cut them off, for many gardeners have lost their tubers when autumn rains have drained down the hollowed cut stem and rotted the roots of prized plants.

Dig them out gently with a fork, edging carefully around the plant so that none of the tubers are pierced. Then cut off the stem, leaving several inches of it. Dirt may be removed with the garden hose, using a strong jet of water to dislodge the soil. Then sit the roots on a fence or on a dry sidewalk, stem downward, so they will drain readily.

Once dried off, they are ready for storage but it's not quite as simple as it may sound. First of all, it is much safer to wait until the spring to cut them, because in the spring you can see where the shoots are and exactly where you should cut the roots.

However, in the fall, all you have to concern yourself with is to store the tubers in such a way as to keep them over the winter without either shriveling up or going moldy from over-dampness.

At this point I must admit to having lost many a dahlia root over the winter. I do believe that having a dark, cold room in the house makes success more certain, and in that respect we're most fortunate in our present home in having a concrete cold room built into our basement area.

Here is the method I finally hit upon that works splendidly for me: I place each set of roots in a plastic bag, then cover it with peat moss, shaking the bag slightly so the peat lies underneath the roots as well as around and above them.

Next, the peat has to be slightly dampened. If it is not, it will absorb all the moisture from your dahlia roots and leave them totally withered. Not too much water should be sprinkled on the peat, though, or the roots will go moldy.

As a result, I tend to go rather lightly on the water — just a few sprinklings of water from the fingers. I can't give an exact amount here, because different sizes of bags and varying amounts of peat, plus a variety of air humidity levels are involved. I never presoak the peat either, because this usually results in too damp a medium of storage.

Then I close the bag with a twist tie and puncture a few breathing holes in the top of the bag. If I feel I've gone a bit heavy with the water, I'll leave the bag open or simply folded over at the top.

THE COIN BOX

Society issues rescue commemorative medal

Copley News Service

In the short span of 90 minutes, the history was made July 4, 1976, at Entebbe when daring Israeli commandos rescued more than 100 hijacked Jewish passengers.

Nearly as astounding was the speed with which a book recounting the details of the unparalleled military maneuver was gotten into publication. And from it will come a movie. And now a commemorative medal.

From the Judaic Heritage Society comes a tribute sculpted by Abram Belskie, an academician of the National Academy of Design and a Fellow of the National Sculpture Society.

His medallic tribute features on the obverse a kindled menorah, held aloft by two lions of Judah. The flames of the menorah lead into the Hebrew lettering, YISRAEL. Flanking the lions is the quotation, "Surely He shall deliver thee," from Psalm 21, and the legend "Entebbe Rescue — July 4, 1976." Below the menorah's base is a fruit-laden cornucopia.

The reverse depicts Theodor Herzl, who 80 years ago founded the publication "Der Judenstaat," (The Jewish State). Ironically, Belskie had been commissioned late last year to sculpt a medal honoring Herzl, and the rescue at Entebbe provided the perfect tribute.

Herzl's exhortation, "If you will it, it is no dream!" is the appropriate legend on the reverse.

Struck in high relief, the Medal of Deliverance, as the issue has been called, is limited to 400 medals in solid 24 karat gold and 5,000 in sterling silver. An unlimited bronze edition is also offered. The medals are all 1.5 inches in diameter and hallmarked, with the gold edition containing nearly two troy ounces of solid gold. A display stand is provided with each medal. Prices are $600 for the gold, $27 for the silver and $11 for the bronze.

Further information is available from the Judaic Heritage Society, Suite 4011, 966 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y.

All true "ragpickers," i.e. paper money collectors, will be interested in Eric P. Newman's "The Early Paper Money of America," recognized nationally as the most important reference work of its kind ever published.

This is the second edition of the work and it has been expanded to 416 pages and fully revamped and updated. Numerous additions and improvements are found, with new illustrations and listings, especially for private issues of New York.

The large-size, hardbound book illustrates notes in their actual sizes and values for all Colonial and Continental currency have been updated, giving collectors the latest information possible on the worth of these issues.

Priced at $22.50, it is sold at most coin dealers, bookstores and hobby shops, or it may be ordered direct from Department M, Western Publishing Co. Inc., 1220 Mount Ave., Racine, Wis. 53404. Include an additional $1 for postage and handling.

WORLD OF STAMPS

Discounts offered on stamps

All post offices with stamp collecting centers are now offering packages of three stamp collecting kits or three souvenir mint sets at a reduced price, the U. S. Postal Service has announced.

Approximately 10,000 post offices throughout the country are designated as stamp collecting centers, the announcement noted.

Customers may purchase either of the two packets listed below at a special price of $1.45 less than the regular total price:

— Animal Kingdom, Birds and Butterflies, and Masterworks stamp collecting kits — 1972, 1973, and 1974 souvenir mint sets

The price for a single stamp collecting kit is $2.00. The 1972 and 1973 mint sets are priced at $3.00 each and the 1974 mint set sells for $3.50.

The special price applies only when the package of the items is purchased at stamp collecting centers. It does not apply to mail orders from the Philatelic Sales Division. (Lubbock has the closest center to Midland.)

Each of the topical collecting kits contains a 20 page album, stamps, hinges, and a 32-page booklet entitled "The ABC's of Stamp Collecting." The Animal Kingdom and Masterworks kits each contain one mint stamp and 42 used stamps. The Birds and Butterflies Kit contains 42 used stamps.

The 1972 and 1973 mint sets contain several stamps which are now difficult to find, the announcement said. Included in the 1972 album is one of the most popular of all U. S. issues — the Cape Hatteras block of four 2-cent stamps — as well as the Colonial Craftsmen Bicentennial set of four stamps and the four-stamp Life Conservation block. The 1972 mint set, according to prices listed in the 1975 Stamps and Stories, is now valued at $5.33.

The 1973 mint set is valued at $5.70 by Stamps and Stories. Among the issues in the 1973 mint set are the popular Boston Tea Party block of four, the Love stamp, and the American Arts set which honored George Gershwin, Robinson Jeffers, Henry Tanner, and Willa Cather.

The value of the 1974 mint set, which is priced at $3.50, has risen to $5.40, according to Stamps and Stories. The set includes such issues as the Mineral Heritage block of four, the Skylab stamp, the eight "Letters Mingle Souls" stamps which honored the Universal Postal Union, the Legend of Sleepy Hollow, and the Expo 74 stamp designed by Peter Max.

Art program aimed at teenagers

CHICAGO (AP) — After just one month of study, 25 teenagers artists have their handiwork hanging in a leading museum.

Before participating in a program sponsored by the Art Institute of Chicago and Parkway Community House, many had never even picked up a paintbrush, says Li Fran Fort, the museum's project director.

Nevertheless, they produced a 5-by-20-foot mural depicting their experience, and it is being displayed in the institute's Junior Museum. Later, it will be shown at Parkway on the South Side and at other community centers.

The program, which operated for the second year this past summer, is designed to acquaint inner city youths with the Art Institute and its collections and to interest them in visiting other museums, Miss Fort said.

At the end of the month, 90 per cent were enthusiastic and wanted the program to continue, she added.

In fact, the students were so excited by their museum experience — for many, their first — that they wrote a letter asking the Art Institute to continue the program throughout the year.

Their portable mural, in six panels, is basic, straightforward and bright — very bright. It is painted in acrylics on a pink background.

The first panel shows a segment of the Chicago skyline, with a rainbow arching over it. Slogans reading "The World is Art" and "Art Power" are painted beneath depictions of the Art Institute, pieces of outdoor sculpture in the downtown area, the museum's photographer, and pictures and objects from the collections.

While it is the work of beginners, what it lacks in finesse it compensates for with enthusiasm.

On the last panel, with their signatures, the youngsters wrote, "Flowers & Friendship from Parkway Community House. Thank you Art Institute O.C." (of Chicago).

When they returned to the museum for a reception to show their parents their work, Miss Fort said, the parents "were so proud," and so were the youngsters.

One mother told Miss Fort that her son, who was one of the youngsters involved, never smiled much. But every day he attended the Art Institute program, "he came home and smiled a lot," she reported.

Fans face penalty

The National Football League provides rock 'em, sock 'em action each Sunday afternoon in the fall, but it is clear by a recent court decision that the sport is far from a game off the field.

The ruling declared the college draft, a system by which NFL teams obtain college players, to be illegal. The league has flourished under the draft which allows clubs with poorer records first choices. Once drafted, a player must sign with the team that chose him. He becomes its property.

Players applauded the decision because they consider the draft a latter-day version of indentured servitude. Owners are equally as tough in favoring the draft as the only way to maintain player quality parity.

There are many isolated cases of player hardship which can be cited under the draft procedure.

Professional football is a physically grueling sport in which the average career lasts about six seasons. There is an understandable temptation to get what you can while you can.

Professional football, however, has become the attraction it is to millions of Americans by competition of balanced teams. Curbing the draft would terminate that balance and allow a handful of the richest owners to stockpile their clubs with blue chip players. The ultimate losers would be the fans faced with higher ticket prices the owners of clubs would have to invoke to create competitive cash.

Appeals on the current decision are expected to be prolonged. But even if the present draft system is stricken, some alternative must be devised. Otherwise, pro football as the fans know it today will be on the way out.

Hope in Eire

"The crimes perpetuated by men of violence have brought discredit to the name of Irishmen throughout the world and death and damage to our own people. Our past has been devalued and our future threatened by their outrages."

Those were the words of Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave of Ireland as he announced plans for sweeping measures against the Irish Republican Army.

He proposed a drastic increase in penalties for IRA membership and emergency legislation to quell terrorists. These measures are likely to be approved by the Irish Parliament.

Peace marches by women and children in Belfast and Dublin recently have tugged at the heart. Here are the victims of the hate-filled fanaticism which the terrorists incite.

The bomb-killing of the British ambassador in Dublin this summer and a series of explosions at a special Criminal Court in Dublin set up to deal with the IRA apparently moved the Irish government to action which is long overdue.

The conflict in Northern Ireland inevitably spills over into the rest of the island. The Irish Republic must take the lead in prosecuting the outlaws who are responsible for crimes against humanity.

High rating, indeed

The announcement that Congressman George Mahon of this West Texas district had received a 95 per cent rating from the American Conservative Union in its most recent rating did not come as a complete surprise to most of his constituents.

Mahon long has been recognized far and wide as one of the most conservative members of Congress. He also is one of the most influential and powerful, serving as chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations. The period covered in the rating report is from January through June of this year.

There are a number of organizations which provide ratings of the House and Senate. The Washington-based American Conservative Union is said to be one of the most highly respected and prestigious organizations engaged in the rating profession.

A 95 per cent rating is pretty hard to beat.

Donald Rumsfeld: Using slang to boost U.S. defense

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld looks like the energetic youth who worked summers delivering groceries, was elected president of his class and became an up-and-coming politician. A friendly sort, all-American and casual with his slang.

Rumsfeld is the same now. He sits with his feet on the desk where less informal men once worked — the stiff Robert S. McNamara, the cagey Melvin Laird, the pedagogical James Schlesinger.

With his tie loosened Rumsfeld looks boyish, but the message is the same as that of his more somber predecessors: in real dollars, U.S. defense spending is in a steady, downward trend, while Soviet defense spending steadily increases.

"The American people are not stupid," he says earnestly. "They are not going to allow their congressmen and senators to diddle around and allow this country to slide down that slope to a position of inferiority."

Whatever it is to be said about dithering on the slopes of inferiority, it is clear that the Soviets have built their military to the point where it is now equal to that of the U.S.

And while there is much noise about bloated defense budgets, current Pentagon spending is at the lowest level since, say, just before the Korean War. Perhaps it should be even lower; this is a matter to debate. But 1976 spending figures show that.

Defense gets 24.3 per cent of the federal budget, compared to 29.3 per cent in 1974, and 42.8 per cent in 1964 when the U.S. was cranking up in Vietnam.

Of those who contribute to where we are on defense, and we've got to correct that," Rumsfeld says.

Rumsfeld charges Carter with playing a "shell game" in advocating the transfer of defense activities to civilian agencies. "If you move the Army Corps of Engineers to the Department of the Interior, you don't save any money."

On that ruckus over the billions in arms sales to Iran and other nouveau riche nations, Rumsfeld points out that proposals for such sales originate in the State Department, and that "The President is ultimately responsible for all military sales. The Defense Department does not initiate arms sales."

Rumsfeld characterizes those nations panting to buy arms, whether from the Western or Communist bloc countries, as, "If you're hell-bent to make a fool of yourself, and do something dumb, you can do it. You can find somebody who will do it for you."

Which is to say that if a nation can't buy what it wants from the U.S., it will go to a free European nation, or Czechoslovakia, or to the Soviet Union. Thus, if Jordan wants an air defense system, and can't get it in the West, it can get one from the Soviets.

So Rumsfeld makes it clear that it's good for the U.S. to sell weapons to nations who need them, providing they meet certain criteria, as determined by the State and Defense departments. But should the U.S. sell weapons to both sides in a war? "Only a dingbat would sell weapons to both sides in a war," Rumsfeld says.

ST. JOHN'S JOURNAL Pearl Harbor and U.S. defense policy

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — "Our program of action," writes the Libertarian presidential candidate Roger L. MacBride, "calls for a transformation of the Defense Department from a mixed aggressive-defense mode to 'porcupine status'; that is, a defense force which will only respond to foreign aggression aimed at the geographical territory of the United States."

MacBride made this startling statement in his just-published work, "A New Dawn for America: The Libertarian Challenge" (Green Hill Publishers, Ottawa, Ill. 61350, 95 cents).

It may seem far out to some, but the foreign and defense policy MacBride proposes is, essentially, the one this nation followed from 1789 until 1913.

"President Woodrow Wilson," MacBride observed, "in 1917 reversed the basis of U.S. foreign policy prevailing since the days of Washington and Jefferson. The results have been disastrous."

It is truly a pity that the national television debates between President Ford and Jimmy Carter did not also include third-party candidates like MacBride, particularly when it comes to the issue of national defense. As with most third-party candidates throughout history, MacBride is proposing some significant new ideas to deal with old problems. The Libertarians, a party that is for liberty in the tradition of the Four-ders, wants to scale down government power both at home and abroad.

"What is particularly discouraging," MacBride said, "is that both major parties in refusing to allow the debates to be open to all presidential candidates to discuss substance and new ideas, is instead presenting the same tired old two-party political pastry that passes for policy positions."

While this may sound like sour grapes, a lengthy conversation with MacBride, who will be a candidate on the ballot in 20 states, provides a specific example of how he takes a new look at an old problem like our defense policy.

MacBride points out that just as the bloated domestic bureaucracy needs to be broken up, so the defense bureaucracy needs dismantling. He asks us to look at the stark fact of American defense policy, rooted in what he terms "the Pearl Harbor syndrome."

As he explained: "Since the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941, we have operated on a fear of surprise attack. This is understandable. Many Americans still remember that day as vividly as they remember the Kennedy assassination. But Pearl Harbor was the result of a lack of preparedness and a refusal to heed warnings out of the past. Over the last 35 years the realities of the world have changed, specifically technological advancements of remarkable sophistication in weaponry."

"Yet, we will operate on the concept of massive land armies, such as in World Wars I and II, in an age when any credible defense system rests almost entirely in the field of missile weaponry."

MacBride contends, further, that one of the basic tenets of Libertarian philosophy that goes hand in hand with individual liberty is the right of self-defense, individual as well as national.

What about Soviet aggressive designs, we asked.

"I do not underestimate world communism," he replied. "The Soviet Union has the same aggressive proclivities and potential as other statist regimes. The United States since the 1920s has largely built the Soviet Union's technology. If the Soviet Union stands on its own technical feet without our financial and technical subsidies, the inefficiencies of a socialist economy will effectively inhibit any overseas adventures it may contemplate."

None of the other presidential candidates has thus far taken this position against propping up the Soviet Union with U.S. technical and economic aid. It's truly a pity that MacBride could not be included in the presidential debates to ask how the other candidates stand on this issue.

WASHINGTON MERRY — GO — ROUND

Scandal uncovered in FEA unit

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Government investigators have uncovered a major scandal involving alleged bribery, sexual impropriety and misuse of Federal Energy Administration funds.

The case, which has been simmering for months under a tight lid of secrecy, reads like the plot of a Harold Robbins novel. We have pieced it together from government documents and interviews with sources close to the investigation.

It centers on the FEA's Atlanta regional office and its former director, Kenneth Dupuy, who has already been forced to resign as a result of the probe.

Dupuy and members of his Atlanta staff are now under criminal investigation for allegedly giving extra fuel allocations to gasoline distributors in return for gratuities. All deny criminal wrongdoing.

FEA investigators have established that Dupuy often used the apartment of William Corey, a gasoline and diesel fuel distributor, for trysts with a girl friend. The woman also was carrying on an affair with Corey, investigators found.

About the same time, Corey's firm, U.S. Transport, Inc., had its gas and diesel fuel allocations substantially raised by the Atlanta office that Dupuy headed. Sources close to the case told our associate Jack Cloherty that some of the allocations were awarded to gas stations and truck stops that existed only on paper.

Dupuy has been in trouble at FEA before. In 1975, FEA administrator Frank Zarb reprimanded him for poor judgment. Dupuy had accepted transportation from an oil company to attend its Florida convention, where he stayed two days at the firm's expense.

Dupuy was also charged at that time with misusing government money. For example, he and his secretary often junketed outside his region, and a number of times he traveled to his Mexia, Tex., ranch, allegedly at government expense. In addition, investigators charged that he stuck Uncle Sam for personal expenses such as cab rides, rental cars and long distance phone calls.

Although he was reprimanded for accepting the convention trip, Dupuy was officially cleared of fiscal abuse charges. But FEA investigators on the case charged it was a white-wash. The top brass at the agency were afraid to take on Dupuy, sources told us, because they believed he had powerful Republican political connections. Indeed, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., had been pushing Dupuy for the No. 2 job at the agency.

The Dupuy case seemed safely buried until Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., the chairman of the House Energy and Power subcommittee, got wind of it.

The congressman called in FEA chief Frank Zarb and demanded that the probe be exhumed. The revived investigation, our sources say, turned up more allegations of misuse of federal funds. Dupuy, faced with another disciplinary action, decided to resign.

The continuing investigation also unearthed evidence of the Atlanta region's coziness with various oil men. At least three other Atlanta FEA officials accepted gratuities from gas and oil distributors. They included free tickets to sporting events, weekend fishing trips, free trips to oil industry conventions, and innumerable expensive lunches. One Atlanta FEA official even bought a car from an oil man at a substantial savings.

In each case, investigators found, the firms received higher allocations from the Atlanta office.

Dupuy's subordinates in Atlanta told the investigators that their boss encouraged this close relationship with the industry people they were supposed to regulate.

The results of the FEA investigation, Zarb told Cloherty, would probably be turned over to the Justice Department for possible criminal action in the next few weeks.

Footnote: Dupuy's lawyer admitted that his client used Corey's apartment, but insisted that no favors were given Corey in return. He said there was "not anything to" bribe allegations. Dupuy was not regional administrator, he claimed, when the higher fuel allocations were awarded Corey. He said that the travel abuse charges against Dupuy were "piddly junk," and that he was cleared of them. Dupuy resigned, he said, because of harassment. Corey declined comment.

HIGH-FLYING BANKERS: British and French officials at the World Bank have pushed through a proposal permitting bank employees to fly the controversial Anglo-French supersonic Concorde on trips abroad. The scheme is costing the bank, supported in part with U.S. public funds, thousands of dollars in extra traveling expense.

A Concorde flight to London, for example, costs $450 more than an economy ticket on a regular airline. World Bank employees have taken the Concorde more than 175 times to such faraway places as India and Bahrain.

A bank spokesman told us the Concorde program is only a six-month experiment. But World Bank president Robert McNamara, say our sources, is dubious about the experiment, which has thus far outweighed any savings realized from the faster flights.

Bank lending level less than expected

HOBART ROWEN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The World Bank concedes in its annual report, to be published Thursday, that the level of its lending programs "for fiscal 1977 and beyond cannot exceed $5.8 billion."

This represents an increase of $23 million from the 1976 program of $4.977 billion. Originally, World Bank President Robert S. McNamara had proposed a substantial increase in the bank's capitalization that would have allowed a lending program of $7.7 billion by fiscal 1980. But opposition to McNamara's plans for expansion, led by the United States, has forced the bank to make much more modest plans.

Instead of doubling the bank's $32.5 billion capital, only "selective" increases that will bring authorized capital up to about $41 billion were approved. Moreover, under pressure from the United States, the executive directors agreed that the new $5.8 billion limit on loans requires a new schedule for repayments, and a boost in the bank's lending rate to reflect a "spread" of 0.5 per cent over borrowing costs.

For the period June 1 through June 30, the bank's lending rate was raised to 8.85 per cent, up from the 8.5 per cent figure in effect since January, 1975. A bank spokesman said that there had been no change in the 8.85 per cent rate through early September.

Repayment terms on future loans, according to the annual report, must be managed "so that the weighted average grace period and final maturity do not exceed 3.8 years and 19 years, respectively."

The selective increase in capital, when approved and subscribed in full, will cut the voting power of the bank's five biggest shareholders (the United States, Britain, West Germany, France and Japan) by from 44.74 per cent to 42.56 per cent.

The voting strength of other developed countries will be reduced from 19.37 per cent to 18.79 per cent. The non-oil exporting poor countries will drop from 30.81 per cent to 29.43 per cent. And the oil cartel countries rise from 4.78 per cent to 9.22 per cent.

Expressed another way, everyone else will lose from 3 to 5 per cent of the former voting power in order to increase the strength of the oil cartel by 107 per cent.

The report said that the bank's total fiscal 1976 lending and investing commitments, including those of its two affiliates, the International Development Association (IDA) and the International Finance Corp. (IFC) were $6.877 billion, up $769 million from 1974.

Inflation, however, reduced the apparent level of growth in lending. Bank lending, up 15 per cent in money terms was up only 9 per cent in real terms. And IDA commitments, up 5 per cent in money value, were actually down 1 per cent when inflation is taken into account, the report said.

The bank's net income of $220 million for fiscal 1976 was down 20 per cent because of higher costs of servicing the banks debts, and a reduction in short-term yields on investments.

Farmers' aid being stored in Europe

The Washington Post

BRUSSELS — Common Market countries have set aside nearly $2 billion, mostly in the form of cheap loans, to help farmers recover from this year's drought, the biggest agricultural calamity to strike the European Economic Community since it was founded.

Cattle breeders, suffering from a critical lack of fodder, have slaughtered livestock prematurely and created a beef surplus estimated at 300,000 tons. Meat prices are not falling in the supermarket, however.

Grain production is expected to drop this year to 93 million tons, down 4 per cent from last year's harvest. The tomato crop will fall a million tons from the 4.8 million tons produced last year and potatoes will be at least 10 million tons below a normal harvest of 40 million tons. Other vegetables, including carrots, peas, beans and corn, are also in short supply.

To soothe fears over the prospect of rising food prices, farm ministers suspended customs duties on a broad range of imported vegetables. But that move may not be sufficient to keep prices down, since supplies often pass through five or six middlemen before reaching the consumer.

Apart from cutting import duties, the economic community has refrained from taking special measures since the drought has been localized in the heartlands of Britain and West Germany, Italy's Po Valley, northern France, Belgium and Luxembourg. Since last December, rainfall in those regions has been 40 per cent below normal levels.

Central and southern Italy and the Netherlands, on the other hand, have been blessed with seasonal rains and expect good harvests this year.

In Britain, the only drought-stricken Common Market nation whose government has not yet provided emergency aid, farmers say they will lose up to $700 million this year, a drop in income between 30 and 40 per cent.

France plans to spend over a half a billion dollars on direct subsidies and low-interest loans to cattlemen and farmers. Newly appointed Prime Minister Raymond Barre hopes to raise the funds through a new surtax, an idea which finds little favor among industrial and white-collar workers.

West Germany and Belgium are also offering cheap loans totaling several million dollars over the next three years to farmers whose incomes have fallen badly with the drought. In both countries, farming associations insist that the credits will barely meet half the costs inflicted by the drought.

Carlos names more liberal vice premier

The Los Angeles Times

MADRID — King Juan Carlos and Premier Adolfo Suarez replaced the top military figure in the Spanish government Wednesday in a move widely interpreted as the removal of an obstacle to democratic reform. An officer with a reputation for moderate views took his place.

In a brief announcement, the government said that Lt. Gen. Manuel Gutierrez Mellado would take over the job as first vice premier for defense from Lt. Gen. Fernando de Santiago y Diaz de Mendivil. De Santiago, 66, is looked on as a hard-line rightist molded by the era of the late Francisco Franco, while his 64-year-old successor is believed to be far more sympathetic to the king's plans to transform Spain from a dictatorship to a democracy.

In fact, before the king selected Suarez as his premier last July, some newspapers in Madrid speculated that Gutierrez Mellado was a leading candidate for the premiership.

Gutierrez Mellado is also known to be the only general acceptable to a clandestine, leftist group of young officers within the army known as the Democratic Military Union. It was this acceptability that evidently persuaded Franco to pass over Gutierrez Mellado in the promotion lists for lieutenant generalship in 1975. He was not named lieutenant general until last March, four months after Franco died.

The appointment of Gutierrez Mellado as vice premier was looked on here as extremely significant. The first vice premier for defense, who takes over the government when the premier is absent or ill, is the chief spokesman for the military within the cabinet. Many observers believe that the armed forces are the strongest force in Spain slowing democratic reform. That certainly seemed true with De Santiago in the cabinet.

Progress continuing on theater project

Midland's planned new Theatre Centre complex is moving closer to reality. Preliminary plans for the new structure were recently given final approval by the Board of Governors of Midland Community Theatre. The board members' okay marked the end of the schematic plan stage of the proposed facility, said Mrs. Frank K. Cahoon, board president. She emphasized that while board approval does not mean that changes cannot be made in future, it does mean that the contractor, Area Builders Inc., can now initiate projections for the program. Theatre officials report that a recent public meeting at the present Theatre Centre resulted in many helpful comments and suggestions regarding the new theater facility from MCT members and boosters. Their ideas were combined with those provided by the theater board and professional staff to wrap up the preliminary planning phase of the project. The new Theatre Centre is to be erected on a site on West Wadley Avenue, adjacent to Midland College. Ap-

Hepburn shuns pause for rest

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The tireless Katharine Hepburn will go from a strenuous movie to a lengthy stage tour without a breather. "They're already rehearsing the play without me," said the actress as she finished the film "Oily Oily Oxen Free," in which she dangled from a flying gas balloon. The play is End

Bagnold's "A Matter of Gravity," in which Miss Hepburn appeared in New York last season. She will be taking it to Denver, Los Angeles, San Diego, Phoenix, San Francisco, Vancouver, Portland, Seattle and possibly Chicago. "I always like to tour my plays," she explained. "I have relatives all over the country, and this is the best way to visit them."

Jordan: rewarding place to visit

The Washington Post

AMMAN, Jordan — Petra, one of the world's great ancient sites, is more than enough reason to visit Jordan.

A city lost for centuries among the arid hills south of the Dead Sea, Petra was rediscovered in 1812 by John Bruckhardt, a young Swiss explorer. Thousands of visitors each year are retracing Bruckhardt's journey — although in considerably more comfort — to discover for themselves this well-preserved wonder.

BUT PETRA is only one reason to visit the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan, a clean, safe, hospitable country where most people speak at least some English, and where the chief sightseeing attracting on getting more hotels built and is not campaigning for more tourists until there are enough rooms for them. A 33-room Holiday Inn and at least a half dozen other hotels are under construction or planned, so the space situation should improve.

Alla, the Royal Jordanian Airline, recently applied to the Civil Aeronautics Board for authority to operate scheduled services between New York and Amman. It has flown Inclusive Tour Charters for several years.

Amman is neither as crowded nor as historically imposing as cities such as Cairo, Damascus or Baghdad. But most knowledgeable travelers agree that Jordan's capital is a much more pleasant place to live than the others.

Like Rome, situated on seven hills, Amman has streets that rival San Francisco's for steepness, and almost every one of its white stone houses has a view. With an altitude of 2,500 feet, it has hot, dry afternoons, but cool evenings when people pour out of their homes to promenade.

The chief attraction in Amman itself is the 6,000-seat Roman amphitheater that was built in the 2d and 3d centuries A.D. and still is used to present some performances.

Most of Jordan is desert, a great sea of sand with its own enchantment. A couple of hours' drive east from Amman takes one to the oasis of Azraq, at whose foot of piled rocks Lawrence of Arabia encamped. The cool waters of the oasis' pools are most refreshing, and each spring and fall they attract thousands of migrating birds.

TO THE SOUTH of Amman there is Kerak, a castle built by the Crusaders in 1143 A.D. as an outpost of their kingdom. Located on the rim of a plateau 3,400 feet above sea level, the massive fortress could signal 50 miles away to Jerusalem.

tractions are conveniently close to this comparatively cool and modern (for the Middle East) capital city.

The number of visitors entering Jordan has increased substantially in recent years — from 307,000 in 1973, to 555,000 in 1974, to 708,000 in 1975. There were 27,378 American visitors to Jordan last year, 47 per cent more than in 1974.

Amman's jewelry souk, where about 50 gold and silver shops are clustered, is a big attraction for those looking for bargains in handsome rings, bracelets, necklaces, earrings and pins.

HOWEVER, Amman's souks or markets are nowhere near as extensive or exotic as those found in neighboring Syria's Damascus, an hour away by plane or four hours by taxi.

It's easy to enter Syria these days, so if you're looking for an oriental rug or similarly impressive souvenir, consider a side trip there. But be forewarned that good hotel accommodations are even harder to find in Damascus than in Amman.

From Amman, it's only an hour's drive north to Jerash, one of the most beautifully preserved and restored Greco-Roman provincial cities. Many conquerors and consuls had a part in building Jerash's colonnaded avenues, great oval forum, two theaters, two public baths, hippodrome, fountains, statuary, triumphal arch and great Temple of Artemis, all of which archeologists began uncovering in the 1920s.

THE INFUX of tourists, combined with a flood of refugees from war-torn Lebanon and a crowd of affluent visitors from other Arab countries (who in past summers would have gone to Lebanon to escape the desert's heat), have made it hard to find a good hotel room here and have helped make prices steep. Jordan presently has only one first-class hotel, the Jordan Intercontinental, and several that are comparable to average motels in the United States. After that, accommodations can get quite primitive.

During a week's visit to Jordan, the clerk at one small hotel showed us a room where the sink literally had been pulled out of the bathroom wall. At another of the lesser hotels, to which we had to move after our reservation at the Intercontinental ran out, we were forced to pay $40 for a room we vacated without sleeping in as soon as we discovered that the toilet wouldn't flush and no one would fix it.

'Pops in Plaza' launches season

The music went 'round and 'round in downtown Midland Wednesday noon, to herald the start of a new symphony season in the city.

The Midland-Odesa Symphony, joined by a beautiful guest performer, Miss Texas, Carmen McCollum, presented the traditional "Pops in the Plaza" concert at The First National Bank. The area was filled to overflowing with 1) music fans and 2) McCollum fans eager for the opportunity to see and hear the Odesa lass with the saxophone, presenting the same solo numbers she offered at the recent Miss America Pageant.

Immediately following the concert, the Midland Symphony Guild opened its headquarters in the Texas Electric Service Co. and launched its subscription sales campaign for the new symphony season which begins with Oct. 11 and 12' concerts featuring famed guitarist Carlos Montoya. Tickets are $25 for reserved seats, $20 for general admissions, $5 for students.

'Paint Your Wagon' launches new season

ODESSA — A season of comedy and drama, offering new stage works as well as theater classics, will be launched at Odessa's Permian Playhouse with the musical "Paint Your Wagon."

The curtain goes up on the 1976-77 season at 8:30 p.m. Friday, and additional presentations of "Paint Your Wagon" are scheduled each weekend through Oct. 23. Seat reservations for all 10 performances of the musical are now being accepted at the Playhouse box office, 362-2329.

"Paint Your Wagon," with book and lyrics by Alan Jay Lerner and music by Fred Loewe, will be followed in late October by the premiere production of a new drama, "Castle Rising," planned to coincide with the annual Southwest Theatre Conference meeting to be held in Odessa.

Third production of the new season, scheduled for January-February, is "Night Watch," a psychological thriller by Lucille Fletcher. In March, PPH will present Mary Chase's classic comedy "Harvey," and in April a quite-different classic, "An Enemy of the People," will be on the boards. Finally, in June, the Playhouse will conclude its season with one of playwright Neil Simon's newest and freshest stage works, "God's Favorite."

The season-opening "Paint Your Wagon," staged by PPH managing director Enid Holm, and with musical direction by J.R. McEntyre, has a large cast of Odessa and Midland residents as actors, singers and dancers.

Heading the cast in the pivotal role of Ben Rumson is Midlander Dick Vivion, in his first Permian Playhouse role. Vivion has appeared in numerous Midland Community Theatre productions and has done theater work in California.

To be seen as Rumson's daughter, Jennifer, and sweetheart Julio Valveras will be Patsy Allen and Julio Jimenez, respectively, while still other important roles belong to Doug Cole, Kent Smith of Midland, Bob Welborn, Daphne Pemberton Walker, Dennis Brown, Mike Malone, Sandra Magill, Dick Evans, Cody Yates, Billy Cook, Richard Calloway, Marty Robinson and James Taylor.

Season tickets, offering considerable savings over the price of theater tickets purchased singly, are on sale daily at the Playhouse, 310 W. 42nd St., and will be available through the run of "Paint Your Wagon." Single admissions for all performances of the musical will be $6 for adults, $4 for students.

Colorado City draws artists

COLORADO CITY — Sixty or more artists from throughout West Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma are expected to participate in the fourth annual Colorado City Railhead Arts and Crafts Roundup this weekend.

The Railhead Roundup, which draws its name from the fact that Colorado City was an important railroad for West Texas as far back as the 1880s, will take place Saturday and Sunday in and around Colorado City's Civic Center at Second and Oak streets.

Fair exhibitors will decorate their booths with "Railhead 1880" motifs and will be attired in old-time costume. Among items to be on view and on sale at the festival will be paintings in various media, drawings and graphics, macramé work, handmade jewelry, woodcrafts, pottery and ceramics, tile paintings, weavings, leathercrafts, handpainted china, dolls, plants and flowers and carvings.

The annual art and crafts show, sponsored by the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce and its cultural committee, will open at 10 a.m. Saturday and continue throughout the day. Climaxing Saturday's events will be a square dance beginning at 8 p.m. to which the public is invited.

The festival will reopen Sunday noon, continuing until 6 that afternoon. Entertainment by musical groups and solo instrumentalists will be offered at intervals during both days. Food booths will also be in operation both days.

'The Exorcist' moves higher in ranking

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Warner Brothers claims that "The Exorcist" has now captured No. 3 position among the biggest money-making movies.

The company reported that the film's rentals have reached $78.5 million, passing the mark of "The Sound of Music" — $78.4 million. The two top grossers are "Jaws" and "The Godfather."

Understandly, Warners is now filming "Exorcist II: The Heretic" with Linda Blair and Max Von Sydow repeating their roles. Also starring Richard Burton and Louise Fletcher.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The lawyers got $5,000 cash, but the plaintiffs must eat and drink their settlement at a Hamburger Hamlet restaurant.

It just seemed the appropriate thing to do ... sometimes you settle a lawsuit any way you can," attorney George DeRoy said Wednesday. DeRoy's firm filed a class-action suit last year, claiming that the six-restaurant chain had bought the stock of 60 shareholders at deflated prices.

A settlement gave the plaintiffs 35-cent coupons for each share of Hamburger Hamlet stock they sold back to the company. The coupons will be good at any of the chain's restaurants.

Dick Vivion of Midland, a newcomer to the Permian Playhouse stage, has the role of Ben Rumson in PPH's season-opening musical, "Paint Your Wagon." Patsy Allen of Odessa portrays Rumson's daughter Jennifer.

Conway Twitty's kid is 'girl in a hurry'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jessica James, daughter of Conway Twitty, is a girl in a hurry.

She's only 17—too young to sign a recording contract without the signature of a parent. But she's under contract and her first single, "Johnny One Time," has just been released.

She's currently on an eight-week national tour promoting the record.

While most girls her age are entering college or getting their first full-time job, Miss James is striving for stardom.

She's a talkative, outspoken, 4-foot-11 pixie who is the reigning world's "Ideal Miss." She giggles, dreams of having 10 children and is called "Jesse the Kid" by her producer.

Her real name is Kathy Twitty, but she doesn't want to use her famous name as a crutch to success. Her professional name was chosen by her father with the help of a baby book.

"People have a tendency to compare, and I don't want to be compared with my dad," said Miss James, who just recently quit her job as a counter clerk at a bowling alley. "I believe in individuality. I want to be able to say I did it myself."

Of course, her father helps guide her career. "Dad is critical—most critical—of me. But when he says something is good, I believe him. He's had the experience to know what he's talking about."

He's a good teacher by knowing what to do. But I want him to be a daddy to me, not a boss or a producer."

She's frank almost to a fault.

About hard rock: "A lot of it gets way too deep for me; it's loud and I can't understand the words."

About hard country: "I turn off some kinds of country music when I hear it on the radio. I don't identify with songs about drunks in bars."

About her guitar playing: "Dad wants me to take guitar lessons again because I'm so bad and it will help me with my writing."

She admits she feels some pressure but vows to be realistic about her career.

"I sometimes feel people expect too much. Some guys I have dated don't know how to handle it because I have a famous father. Actually, I was raised to enjoy the simple things."

"If things don't go right, I'll go to college and maybe be a lawyer. I hope I'm smart enough to know when to get out. I am stubborn."

She describes "Johnny One Time" as a middle-of-the-road country song. It was recorded previously by Brenda Lee.

"It's about a guy who takes a girl's pride away from her," she said. "It's happened to me."

East Street still exists in Carolinas

EASY STREET, N.C. (AP) — There's no highway sign marking it, and it's not on the official state map. But Easy Street does exist.

At the intersection of North Carolina 96 and 55 in northern Sampson County, sits Godwin's store — the unofficial town hall. A soft drink sign proclaims the name of the community.

"About 40 years ago," says Alphonzo Godwin, the community's unofficial mayor, "I had another store right over yonder and Uncle Frank Maynard walked in one day and there was about a dozen boys lying around taking it easy."

"Well, Uncle Frank said, 'This must be Easy Street, and the name just stuck after that.'"

EASY STREET, N.C. (AP) — There's no highway sign marking it, and it's not on the official state map. But Easy Street does exist.

At the intersection of North Carolina 96 and 55 in northern Sampson County, sits Godwin's store — the unofficial town hall. A soft drink sign proclaims the name of the community.

"About 40 years ago," says Alphonzo Godwin, the community's unofficial mayor, "I had another store right over yonder and Uncle Frank Maynard walked in one day and there was about a dozen boys lying around taking it easy."

"Well, Uncle Frank said, 'This must be Easy Street, and the name just stuck after that.'"

She describes "Johnny One Time" as a middle-of-the-road country song. It was recorded previously by Brenda Lee.

"It's about a guy who takes a girl's pride away from her," she said. "It's happened to me."

People do order calories in restaurants

By BARBARA RADER
Newsday

The fact is that people do order desserts in restaurants. Contrary to what some might say about cutting out sweets after dinner dieting and the extra cost on some menus are two major reasons — some restaurants report desserts are more popular than ever.

Pastry chef Patricia Kessler of Port Washington, N.Y., says she has been cooking and baking items for the Aqua Manor restaurant's five-tiered dessert cart, dessert orders have risen 500 per cent.

"I know that people are supposed to be cutting down on menu orders, especially desserts. But they eat first with their eyes, and when the dessert cart is rolled to the table, they can't resist," she said as she finished icing a chocolate caramel torte — a pound cake filled with chocolate buttercream and topped with almonds embedded in caramel.

Mrs. Kessler, a winner of two first prizes in pastry exhibition at the 1975 Societe Culinaire Philanthropique culinary arts show in New York and a teacher of cooking and baking in an adult education program, is a down-to-earth chef-teacher.

She cooked for many years for her husband and three children and about nine years ago asked if she could "help out" at the restaurant. At that time she was a customer, but owner Joseph Oreggia offered her a part-time job doing kitchen work, as well as general bookkeeping.

As for Mrs. Kessler's feelings about cooking and baking, "It's no miracle when the pie meringue looks like a miniature mountain. I use eight egg whites instead of the usual four. Whipped cream? I must whip 20 quarts of heavy cream a week."

"I tell my pupils, if you want a dish to come out right, start with excellent ingredients. And today, more than ever, that means spending money," she added.

What are the favorites of her patrons? "Definitely cheesecake, followed by pecan pie and lemon meringue pie, chocolate cake and some kind of a mousse."

The days when such ordinary fare as tortoni or spumoni were the big winners have long since gone. "The dining public is more sophisticated. Just the other day I served chocolate-covered strawberries, and now I'm getting requests to repeat that dessert."

Chocolate-covered strawberries, fancy tortes, liquor-filled grasshopper pie (creme de menthe, creme de cacao and lots of whipped cream) are a few recipes in Mrs. Kessler's repertoire. Here are some of her recipes, designed to be beautiful and taste good. Forget the calories.

CHOCOLATE CARAMEL TORTE

For icing:
4 ounces semisweet chocolate
1-2 cup unsalted butter
1-2 cup confectioners' sugar
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

For caramel top:
1-3 cup granulated sugar

For garnish:
1-2 cup heavy cream
1 cup (about) walnut halves

Baked, frozen pound cake 4 1-2 by 6 1-2 inches, slightly defrosted

1. In top of double boiler over hot water, melt chocolate, then allow to cool to room temperature.

2. In mixing bowl, beat together butter and confectioners' sugar until light; then add yolks, one at a time, beating until smooth.

3. Beat in vanilla extract and melted chocolate.

4. Slice off top crust of pound cake and discard (or save for crumb toppings). Slice cake horizontally into 5 or 6 thin layers. Set aside top layer.

5. Spread chocolate frosting between the remaining layers, reserving 1-2 cup to coat the sides.

6. Place the reserved cake top on a piece of aluminum foil.

7. In a small, heavy skillet, place granulated sugar and melt over medium heat until sugar turns amber. The pan may be slowly rotated on the burner, but be careful that sugar does not burn. Sugar becomes extremely hot, and should be handled carefully.

8. Place walnut halves in a row on cake top, then quickly pour caramelized sugar over cake top, coating evenly.

9. Heat the blade of a wooden-handled knife in the flame of the stove and immediately mark the caramel top into serving pieces. (When caramel top hardens, as it does quickly, it cannot be cut into without cracking.)

10. Place this top layer on other layers, then frost the sides with the remaining frosting.

11. If desired, pipe a small top and bottom border of whipped cream around cake.

PAT KESSLER'S CHEESECAKE

4 eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
1 1/2 tablespoon cornstarch
1 3/4 pounds cream cheese
1-2 cup heavy cream
2 cups sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1-2 teaspoon almond or lemon extract
Sugar cookie dough or graham cracker crust

1. In mixing bowl, beat eggs until thick, then add granulated sugar and cornstarch, mixing well.

2. Break up cream cheese and add to eggs, together with heavy cream and sour cream. Add extracts, mixing well.

3. Line 9-inch springform pan with sugar cookie dough or graham cracker crust.

4. Pour cheesecake mixture into the crust, then bake in 375-degree oven for 45 minutes or until middle is set. Remove to cake rack to cool completely.

STRAWBERRY MOUSSE

1 quart fresh strawberries, washed, hulled
1-2 cup dry white wine
1-2 cup granulated sugar
1-2 cup cold water
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1-2 cup boiling water
1 cup heavy cream

1. Reserve 8 to 10 strawberries, to be used as garnish for the mousse.

2. Place rest of strawberries into container of electric blender. Add wine and blend until smooth.

3. Pour into bowl, add sugar and stir well, then chill.

4. In small bowl, place cold water and sprinkle over the unflavored gelatin. Add boiling water and stir until dissolved. Cool.

5. Combine gelatin and strawberry mixture and beat until fluffy.

6. In mixing bowl, whip cream to soft peaks, then fold into the gelatin-strawberry mixture, mixing well.

7. Pour into a 2-quart bowl, or into 8 individual dessert dishes. Garnish with reserved strawberries.

Eat, freeze casseroles for singles

Why is it that single people have the busiest garbage disposers in America... Is it because that "Ham and Bean Terrifico" just doesn't taste as good the fourth time around.

Or, could it be that the leftover cheese soufflé (three servings worth) shrunk to only one-half inch tall.

Or that the three pound eggplant (which seemed like such a bargain at the time) took up so much room in the refrigerator that it either had to be thrown away or pay half the rent.

All of these are excellent reasons why singles may have more than their fair share of food waste. And, although this may seem humorous on the surface, cooking can be a wasteful and costly process for the single cook. Often the single person resorts to plain broiled chops or patties to avoid leftovers.

But there is a way for singles to enjoy the fancy flavors and economy of casseroles. The answer revolves around a small casserole dish, the refrigerator freezer and a good recipe which can be divided and frozen for later use. This adaptability of casseroles to fit into a single person's lifestyle is only one of the reasons why Hunt's has declared September as National Casserole Month. To prepare a casserole for individual servings which can be frozen, use only foods which will not lose their texture or taste in the freezer—tomato sauce, ground meats, vegetables such as broccoli or spinach, and some cheeses. Then simply divide the casserole into individual serving sizes and freeze. Since many freezer-to-oven casserole dishes are available on the market, it's great to have several on hand in the freezer and pop one into the oven without having to transfer the food or wait for it to thaw.

This casserole recipe is a chicken breast that is stuffed with spinach and ricotta cheese and baked on a bed of rice. It's then topped with a tomato sauce that has been enhanced with chablis and mushrooms. While one serving is ready to eat, the other servings can rest comfortably in the freezer awaiting a time when your taste buds again the taste of this delicious dish.

STUFFED CHICKEN BREASTS EN CASSEROLE

1/2 bunch fresh spinach (about 8-oz.)

1/2 cup ricotta cheese

2 tablesp. grated Parmesan cheese

1/2 teasp. salt

1/4 teasp. pepper

2 whole boned chicken breasts (1/2 to 3/4 lb. each)

Seasoned salt and pepper

2 (8-oz.) cans tomato sauce

1/4 cup chablis

1 (4-oz.) can sliced mushrooms, undrained

1 teasp. beef bouillon granules

2 cups cooked rice

1 tablespoon minced parsley

4 to 6 pimiento stuffed olives, sliced

Pour boiling water over spinach in bowl; let stand 5 minutes. Drain; press very dry. Chop coarsely and combine in small bowl with ricotta, Parmesan, salt, pepper and nutmeg; mix well. Skin breasts, split into 4 pieces, pound with meat mallet to flatten. Sprinkle lightly with seasoned salt and pepper. Place spinach mixture in center of each. Roll up tightly. Place each in center of greased 1 3/4 cup shallow baking dish; set aside. Combine tomato sauce with chablis, mushrooms and beef bouillon. Combine rice, parsley, olives and half the sauce mixture. Spoon equal portions of rice mixture around sides of each stuffed breast; pour some of remaining sauce mixture over all. Bake at 400° 25 to 30 minutes. Taste once or twice with remainder of sauce mixture. Makes 4 servings or: if desired, serve 1 or 2, cover and freeze remainder to serve later.

No big deal, but 103-yard run tops prep honor roll

By Associated Press

If a schoolboy football player returned an interception 103 yards for a touchdown and then said it wasn't his biggest thrill in the game, you'd think he was suffering from a lack of oxygen.

But that was Tom Golden's response after picking off a Beaumont French pass in his own end zone and tacking on the final touchdown in a 22-0 victory last week.

Golden's return, along with his punting and offensive performance, earned him mention this week in The Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll along with kickers John Goodson of Spring Branch Spring Woods and Billy Bob Granger of Zapata.

Golden said his biggest thrill was a 27-yard touchdown pass he caught in the second quarter. "Now that was really exciting," Golden said. "It was the first touchdown pass I've caught."

GOLDEN'S PUNTING performance, five times for a 39.4 average, fit into a trend of outstanding kicking shows last week that included a 52-yard field goal by Goodson and a 70-yard punt by Granger.

Goodson's field goal established a Greater Houston record and was only 10 yards shy of the national record set last year by Odessa Permian's Russell Wheatley against Longview.

Granger, also an outstanding running back, was limited to punting duties last week because of an injury but managed to punt six times. In addition to his 70-yarder, Granger booted a 60 and 40 yard punts in a 7-0 victory over Sharyland.

Despite Golden's personal thrill, Silsbee Coach Ray McGallion disagreed. "Beaumont French was in the game until he made that interception," McGallion said. That broke their backs. He played a great defensive game and his punting was another big key for us."

Oden's Ramiro Martinez, 5-7, 160, was one of the week's top ground gainers with 252 yards on 17 carries and three touchdowns.

Tailback Kirk Aldridge helped Jacksonville get into the 3A top 10 with a four touchdown performance in a 28-6 victory over Palestine.

Also earning mention in this week's honor roll are:

- Bobby Hinojos, a second string fullback at Alpine until the starter broke an ankle in the season opener, romped for 224 yards on 33 carries and scored three touchdowns in a 31-0 victory over Marfa.

—Dennis Gentry scored the first two touchdowns of his career, a 93-yard pass and 31-yard run, and was credited with 20 tackles in helping Lubbock Dunbar to a 12-12 tie with Fort Stockton.

—Tailback Toney January of West Orange scored three touchdowns, including a 51-yard run, and rushed 163 yards on 19 carries to lead the Chiefs to a victory over Bridge City.

—Ronald Jackson carried 13 times for 173 yards and four touchdowns to lead Sherman, the top-ranked 4A team in the state, to a 42-13 victory over Greenville.

—While Waco University and Fort Worth Northside were fumbling a total of 22 times, Waco running back Walter Abercrombie didn't lose a fumble and rused 214 yards on 30 carries in a 20-12 victory.

—Linebacker Mike Richardson, 6-4, 230, was a one-man defense for Ore City, getting credit for 20 unassisted tackles and 10 more assists in a 20-14 victory over Waskum.

Mismatched Middies eye No. 1-ranked Michigan

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Navy football Coach George Welsh says it might be a good thing for Navy to play Michigan right now. That seems to rank right along with saying it might be good for a hay fever sufferer to go pick a bunch of ragweed.

If there is a mismatch on Saturday's college football schedule, it seems it would have to be the Michigan-Navy game at Ann Arbor.

The Wolverines, ranked first in the nation, will go into Saturday's game with victories of 40-27 over Wisconsin and 51-0 over Stanford behind them. Navy, ranked nowhere, came from behind in the second half to defeat Connecticut 21-3 last week after losing to Rutgers 13-3 in the season opener.

BUT WELSH says he thinks it will help the Midshipmen to play on the same field with a team which has the superior players that Michigan has.

"When they play against them, they'll understand what we are trying to get them to do," he said.

He said he also thinks Navy "will play up to them a little bit. We'll be better later because we've played them."

Welsh said the thing that concerns him most about Michigan is the quickness of the backs.

"One of the things that scares everybody is great speed. They have great speed," he said.

Asked if Michigan is a physical team, the kind that beats you up, Welsh replied, "No, they just run around you and through you."

Pro calls her 'Honey', so Donna has an edge

CALABASAS, Calif. (AP) — People say "Hi, Donna" when she walks by, and the man who runs the golf shop calls her honey, so Donna Caponi Young feels right at home at Calabasas Park Country Club.

She should feel at home. Calabasas, where she began play today in the $205,000 Carlton LPGA event, is her home course. The man who runs the golf shop is her husband, Ken.

Mrs. Young's considered one of the favorites in this tournament, the richest in ladies' golfing history, partly because Calabasas is her home course, and partly because she's having a good year.

She came into the Carlton off a victory in the latest LPGA tournament, the Portland Classic in Oregon, where she boosted her year's earnings to $44,806, 11th on the tour this year.

However, Mrs. Young plays down the fact that the 6,218-yard, par 36-36-72 Calabasas layout is her home course.

"I know people say it gives me an advantage," she said. "But when I've come out to play here, I just came to play. I never really took note of the yardage and things like that."

"When you're not playing in a tournament, you just come out and swing, relax and have a good time."

Her victory in Portland last weekend, which she won on the second hole of a playoff with Clifford Ann Creed, is both a blessing and curse, Mrs. Young said.

"I guess I've got momentum," she remarked, "but the problem I have is getting time to practice since people who know me here are always stopping me and congratulating me."

Mrs. Young said she was particularly excited as play opened in the Calabasas, which offers a record $35,000 — plus a percentage of the gate that could boost it to $40,000 — first prize.

"I think all the players are excited because of the prize money," she said. "Tournaments with prize money like this and the Dinah Shore have been a dream of ours for years and years."

Upshaw contends no-hearing fines on Tatum, Atkinson unfair

OAKLAND (AP) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle has fined Oakland defensive backs George Atkinson and Jack Tatum for rough play in the Sept. 12 game here against Pittsburgh; their teammate Gene Upshaw has disclosed, and Upshaw says he thinks it is unfair.

Upshaw, a 10-year NFL veteran offensive guard and an NFL Players Association representative, said in a telephone call to the Associated Press Wednesday night Atkinson was fined $1,500 and Tatum $750.

"Rozelle made a judgment and fined people without giving them a hearing," Upshaw said. He added that a future hearing is promised, but "Rozelle already has said they were guilty before a hearing."

"IT'S ACTIONS like these by the commissioner that destroy any chance of getting an agreement with the NFLPA" in contract negotiations, Upshaw added.

There was no immediate comment from Rozelle, who ordinarily does not disclose or discuss disciplinary actions by his office.

Nor was there any immediate comment from the Pittsburgh Steelers whose coach, Chuck Noll, and defensive tackle, Ernie Holmes, also were fined, Upshaw said. Upshaw said he did not know the reasons for the Steeler fines nor the amount.

IN THE Sept. 12 game, which the Raiders won 31-28 in the last five minutes, Atkinson rapped Steeler wide receiver Lynn Swann in the back of the head with his forearm on a pass play, game films showed. Swann, who left the game with a concussion, said later he had been knocked dizzy earlier in the game by Tatum.

BATTLE SCENE Ex-Midland Cubs get national TV exposure

BY TED BATTLES

Four former Midland Cubs were in the lineup when Chicago played Philadelphia on national TV Saturday and the only thing that spoiled it was that crack about, "If they can't beat us today, they're in bad shape. This is practically our triple A club."

Actually, Rob Sperring, who was a third base, but plays about every infield position, and centerfielder Joe Wallis are regular members of the Chicago cast. Both Wayne Tyrone and Ed Putman, who started at first and finished behind the plate, spent much of the 1976 season in Midland and are fighting for recognition.

Tyrone is being used primarily as a pinch hitter as Chicago attempts to find a position for him, which when he was in Midland, was quite obviously first base.

Just as obviously, it isn't left field, where he played Saturday.

PUTMAN, WHO was in Midland until mid-August, is in much the same boat. Ed was signed to a Chicago contract as a No. 1 draft choice as a catcher after playing for three University of Southern California national champions, but at Midland played right field, first base and catcher.

Sperring, who has spent the last two winters in Midland, was called up from Wichita in mid-season when Chicago became impatient with the play of Dave Rosello and, according to assistant General Manager John Cox, "has filled the bill in every respect."

Wallis, of course, was a late season sensation for Chicago after reporting from Midland last year and apparently the Cubs have decided to go with him in center and move Rick Monday to first.

"HE COMES up with at least one sensational fielding play a game," Cox remarked while in Midland not long ago. And his bat is doing the job now that he is batting right-handed exclusively.

The Cubs lost the TV game 4-1, but have been making life miserable for the pennant-anxious Phils.

Only a week before, ex-Cub relief ace Bruce Sutter picked up a win against Philadelphia and then last Friday won again in 12 innings, 4-3, as two more Midland grads, Jerry Tabb and Wallis, contributed two hits each.

Then Sunday, Ray Burris, a 15-game winner last year who was slumbering at 3-10 as late as July, blanked Philadelphia 1-0 to bring his record to 14-13, ranking him behind the Dodgers' Don Sutton as one of the hottest pitchers in the NL since the All-Star break.

BURRIS SIGNED off the campus of Southeastern Oklahoma State in 1972, was sent to Midland, compiled a 7-5 record and looked so good in spring training the next year that Chicago decided to keep him on the roster.

In Sutter, the Cubs have found the kind of relief pitcher they have tried to trade for for so many years.

He led the Texas League in saves in 1975 and Midland to a co-championship in the process.

Sutter was brought up from Wichita early in the season and permitted to get his feet wet gradually with inconsequential relief appearances, usually the long variety.

By mid season, Whitey Lockman, visiting in Midland said that Bruce's progress had been swift enough to employ him in "Game-on-the-line" situations. That very night Bruce saved a shutout for one of the starters and has been the Cubs' money pitcher in short relief out of the pen ever since.

HOWEVER, THE 23-year-old Pennsylvanian from Mount Joy admitted he felt he was one of the edge of getting his release in 1973 at Quincy.

"I had a lousy slider and my fast ball wasn't much good either," Sutter recalled. "That's when Fred Martin (former minor league pitching coach for the Cubs) saved my career by teaching me how to throw the forkball."

The thing about Sutter that pleases the Cubs as much as his wins and saves is that he thrives on work. And with Chicago, there's always plenty of that for the bullpen.

In one June stretch, he relieved in eighth straight games.

Royal raps officials again

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — "Officials are human and make mistakes," says Texas Coach Darrell Royal, and one made a mistake Saturday night in ruling that North Texas State scored on a touchdown pass.

Royal told the Longhorn Club, however, that "not any of us," presumably meaning coaches or players "are entitled to be openly critical of officiating."

He said Wednesday that Texas defensive back Raymond Clayborn had apologized for his critical remarks after the game about the pass call.

Royal said the official who signaled that Jeff Brown had scooped a 14-yard pass off the artificial turf in the end zone was "blocked off" from the play, adding, "They blow some, and they blow that one."

Brown said he took the ball from Clayborn "before we hit the ground. The ref was there and saw it."

"I know he didn't catch the ball, and Raymond knows he didn't catch the ball," said Royal, but he asked that on the film club members viewed

"you can't see it hit the ground." On a film used on his television show, it is clear, he said.

Fullback Earl Campbell won national back of the week honors for his performance against North Texas even though he had a pulled hamstring muscle. Royal said the 231-pound junior should be "totally well for our next ball game" with Rice Oct. 2.

Royal said after Campbell hobbled 83 yards to set up Texas' winning touchdown, he asked him if he had hurt his leg again, and

Campbell replied, "Nope."

He asked if Campbell had dragged his leg on purpose to avoid re-injuring it, and Campbell said, "Yes, sir."

Royal reran one sequence of Campbell "fighting and bucking, shoving and pushing" for tough yardage.

Campbell, who had missed two weeks of workouts prior to the North Texas game, was "really out of gas" late in the fourth quarter, Royal said.

After a sizeable gain, however, Royal replied, "It takes a lot of gas—and he passed"—to "blow him out."

The large crowd broke into laughter.

Andrews, Snyder battle of unbeaten tops slate

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

The first homecoming tilt of the year will unfold Friday at 8 p.m. in Andrews' Mustang Bowl, and the undefeated Mustangs couldn't have set the stage any better.

Andrews will host undefeated Snyder in what could be the biggest non-conference shootout of the year in area circles. Both teams are riding high with perfect 3-0 marks, and still looking for better things. One of the highly touted expresses will have to roll to a stop Friday.

Andrews will rely on quarterback Booger Brooks, who leads all AAA runners with 393 yards and an 8.1 per carry average in three games. But Andrews highly explosive offense also has Mike Mace with a 5.2 per carry mark and Mike Reid with a 7.2 average.

Both teams have beaten AAAA Big Spring this year, but Andrews won 21-6 while Snyder escaped with a 14-13 win.

got into the win column for the first time last week with a 15-7 victory over Van Horn, and they did it with five starters out of the lineup.

CRANE WILL travel to Class A Marfa this week in an effort to even the season record, and the Cranes are heavily favored to do so.

Winless McCamey, still seeking that historic moment of winning that first game as a Class A school, will host undefeated AA power Ozona Friday. The Badgers hope for an upset here, but it would be one of the major upsets of the season if McCamey could pull it off. The young Badgers are gaining experience every week, and Coach Joe Neill still feels that his kids will be ready for district play if the team doesn't get down losing while learning.

The Lamesa Golden Tornadoes, also winless in three outings, will try to get what has been a non-existent offense in gear against AAAA Hobbs, N. M., Friday in an out-of-state battle. The Tors, however, have scored only 17 points in three games, and has placed too much pressure on what has been an adequate defense.

THE RANKIN Red Devils, undefeated in three outings, will take the week off after plastering Jal, N. M., 35-8, in a revenge battle last week.

This week's area schedule:
 DISTRICT 2-AAA: Snyder at Andrews, Kermit at Fort Stockton, Monahans at Brownfield, Seminole at Lake View, Alpine at Pecos, El Paso Jefferson at Odessa Ector (Tonight).
 DISTRICT 3-AAA: Snyder at Andrews, Lamesa at Hobbs, N. M., Lubbock Monterey at Lubbock Estacado, Seminole at Lake View, Lubbock Dunbar at Lubbock High, Sweetwater at Graham, Monahans at Brownfield.
 DISTRICT 4-AAA: Crane at Marfa, Reagan County at Sonora, Ozona at McCamey, Kermit at Fort Stockton.
 DISTRICT 5-A: Roscoe at Stanton, Plains at New Deal, Lorenzo at Seagraves, Klondike at O'Donnell, Hale Center at Shallowater.
 DISTRICT 6-A: Rankin open, Ozona at McCamey, Wall at Iran, Eunice, N. M., at Van Horn, Clint at Socorro, Wink at Jal, N. M., Crane at Marfa.
 DISTRICT 8-A: Reagan County at Sonora, Brady at Mason, Robert Lee at Forsan, Llano at Junction, Wall at Iran, San Saba at Menard, Winters at Eldorado.

TERRY WILLIAMSON Year of Dragon? It's more like year of junior

The Chinese say that 1976 is the Year of the Dragon, but West Texas football fans know better. It's the Year of the Junior.

Last week we explored how junior quarterback Booger Brooks has turned around the grid program at Andrews, but he is not the only junior that is making heads turn after three weeks of play.

Stanton tailback Marvin Jones, who happens to be another junior, is chopping up so much turf in heavy gulps that he has some eyes spinning.

Jones rushed for 166 yards against McCamey last Friday to move his rushing total to 421 yards in only three games. He just happens to be the leading rusher in West Texas. His 36 points scored this season is also a high mark.

Two of his TD scampers have been 38 and 48 yards. Jones is a game breaker, and he has Buffalo fans glued to their seats. He may be the next mayor of Stanton.

NEW COACH David Thompson has to smile every time he thinks of having Jones around for another year, and after the way Thompson's defense has played the last two games, Stanton has to feel that football is definitely on the upswing.

The Buffs have recorded two shutouts in a row, and as soon as they make another team make a mistake, Jones seems to respond with a long gainer.

There still seems to be a couple of weak points for the Buffs. The two sore spots are Plains and Seagraves. Both are in District 5-A with the Buffs, and both are ranked in the Top 10. It could be the most powerful district in the state among Class A loops.

I saw McCamey and Stanton play last Friday, and I think I might have seen two of the best defensive players around in Class A ball. Stanton's Tim Glynn and McCamey's Al Glenn are super in the trenches.

I was 25-5 last week in the picking game to move the season mark to 76-28 for a .731 percentage.

ANDREWS 28, SNYDER 21—Both are undefeated and sky high. Andrews holds the home field edge. I'll be there Friday night.

STANTON 30, ROSCOE 7—Jones rushes around, through, and if need be, over the Plowboys.

OZONA 34, McCAMEY 12—Ozona has too much for the inexperienced Badgers.

SONORA 20, REAGAN COUNTY 13—The non-district test of the year for the Owls.

CRANE 25, MARFA 7—Another mismatch is on the line.

HOBBS 14, LAMESA 7—The Tors have to wait just one more week for that first victory.

RANKIN 100, OPEN 0—I don't know where Open is, but the Devils should roll on.

MORE WILDNESS—Fort Stockton 24, Kermit 20; Monahans 21, Brownfield 0; Odessa Ector 12, El Paso Jefferson 6; Pecos 30, Alpine 14; Lake View 28, Seminole 12; Lubbock High 7, Lubbock Dunbar 6; Lubbock Monterey 21, Lubbock Estacado 18; Graham 18, Sweetwater 3; O'Donnell 21, Klondike 15; Plains 32, New Deal 18; Seagraves 42, Lorenzo 0; Hale Center 28, Shallowater 7; Socorro 12, Clint 9; Wall 14, Iran 13; Van Horn 29, Eunice, N. M., 10; Jal, N. M., 21, Wink 14; Winters 14, Eldorado 0; Llano 26, Junction 12; Brady 15, Mason 13; Menard 21, San Saba 20; Robert Lee 16, Forsan 0; Permian 40, Rosewell, N. M., 0; Midland Lee 28, El Paso Irvin 7.

WHILE ANDREWS and Snyder tangle, Stanton's fast rising Buffaloes will entertain the Roscoe Plowboys in another feature battle.

Stanton has won two games in a row, and has found strength in a tough defense that has recorded two straight shutouts. The offensive surge has come from running back Marvin Jones, who is the area's leading rusher with over 420 yards in the first three games.

Reagan County, another team with a two-game winning surge, travels to undefeated Sonora Friday in what could be a supreme test for the Owls. Sonora is highly respected in AA circles, so the Class A Owls, who have found their offense the last two weeks, will have their work cut out for them.

Royals, Yanks drift to AL flags

By Associated Press

The New York Yankees and Kansas City Royals still are drifting above their respective divisions in a holding pattern.

The Yankees' "magic number" for winning the American League East remained at three and Kansas City's stayed at five in the West after fruitless efforts Wednesday night.

"Until those three games are won, there's danger," said New York's Lou Piniella after the tenacious Baltimore Orioles kept their desperate hopes alive with a two-night doubleheader sweep over the Yankees, 2-0 and 5-2.

Had the Yankees won but one of the games, they would have clinched a tie for the East Division title. But the Orioles have been perched on the East leader's shoulder with tireless persistency recently—winning the last five games between the teams.

JIM PALMER

Baltimore's strong right-hander, sees little hope for his team, despite the Orioles' uncanny domination of the Yankees.

"I have to be a realist about the pennant—I think we just delayed the inevitable," said Palmer.

All Royals
Gene Tenace, Phil Garner and Joe Rudi each pounded home runs and Blue cruised to his 17th victory as Oakland clubbed Kansas City. The Oakland victory narrowed Kansas City's advantage to six games in the West with 10 games remaining. The Royals, who had won five straight games, meet the A's four more times before the season ends.

Rangers 2, Angels 1
Gaylord Perry pitched a three-hitter and Gene Clines drove in the deciding run with an infield single in the seventh inning as Texas shaded California.

Twins 6, White Sox 3
Butch Wynegar belted two solo home runs and Rod Carew drove in three runs with a triple and a home run, leading Minnesota over Chicago. Bill Singer, 12-9, scattered seven hits before needing ninth-inning relief help from Bill Campbell, who picked up his 19th save.

Red Sox 6, Brewers 3
Jim Rice collected four hits, including a pair of doubles, and Carlton Fisk hit a two-run homer, powering Boston over Milwaukee. Rice, hitting in his ninth straight game, singled home a run in the first, doubled across another in the fifth and set up a run with a second double in the seventh.

Indians 3, Tigers 0
Jim Bibby hurled a three-hitter to lead Cleveland over Detroit. Bibby, 9-4 since the All-Star break when he rejoined the starting rotation, improved his record to 13-6.

MC netters on road for sectional meet

Midland College's men's and women's tennis teams will play in the Texas Sectional Tournament in Corpus Christi Saturday through Tuesday.

"The sectional tournaments count toward state and national rankings and also provide one of the strongest fields collected this fall," Chaparral Coach Neill McClung said. "In previous years, the sectionals have been held in the summer along with the junior sectionals. This year, they are holding the sectionals for adults in the fall, which means all the top college teams will be there, along with a number of independent players and professionals."

Ashe dismantles Martin 6-2, 6-3

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Arthur Ashe hasn't won much of nothing for the last four months and he admits that he's anxious to break out of his dry spell.

Playing extraordinarily well, Ashe dismantled young Billy Martin of Palos Verdes, Calif., 6-2, 6-3 in Wednesday night's second round of the $125,000 Pacific Southwest Open Tennis Championships.

Players must participate in two sectional tournaments, plus two sanctioned tournaments, in order to have a ranking in Texas.

MC CLUNG EXPECTS many of the same teams which participated in the Midland Tennis Club Invitational Tournament last weekend to be in Corpus Christi for the tourney, plus a number of teams that didn't make the Midland competition.

With new players sprinkling the MC squads, McClung will be experimenting with different doubles combinations during the fall season. In Corpus Christi, he will have his six freshmen women paired up this way: Jo Anne Hall of Australia and Jana Hanks, Abilene; Ann Layman, Australia, Blanca Barriga, El Paso,

Lorance deplors Houston's entry

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston attorney Tom Lorance, one of two announced write-in candidates for the Texas Supreme Court, says he believes a write-in candidate can win but two such candidates lessen the chances.

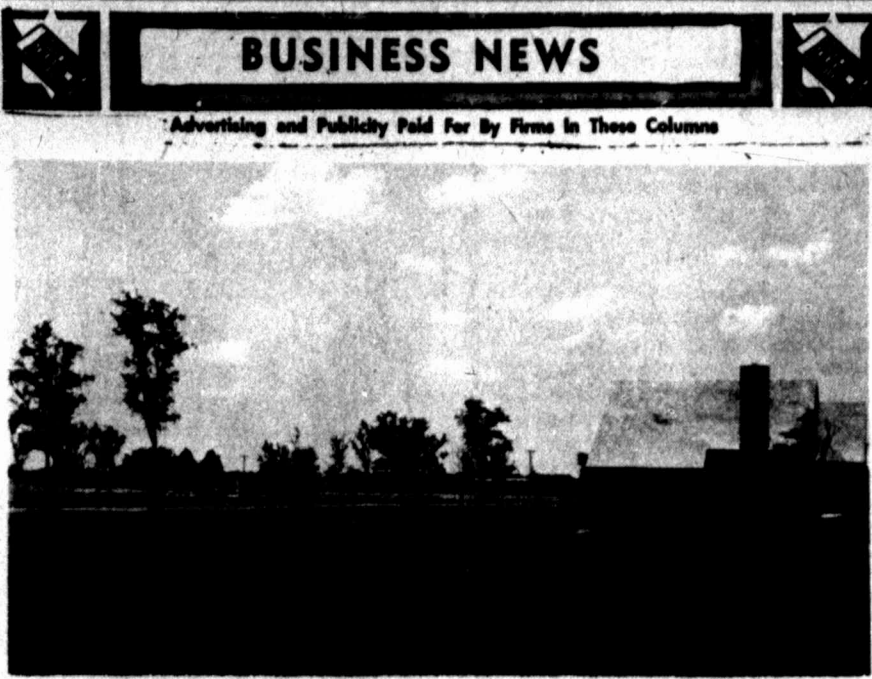

Lorance and State District Court Judge Sam Houston of Denton are write-in candidates challenging Donald B. Yarbrough of Houston, the Democratic nominee who has no Republican opposition in the November general election.

Yarbrough, an attorney, is a defendant in 16 civil lawsuits and is the subject of an investigation by a grievance committee of the State Bar Association.

Lorance told a meeting of the Houston Junior Bar Association Wednesday he initially did not think a write-in candidate could win but now "I think the people of this state are familiar with Don Yarbrough and a write-in might just win a plurality."

He said two such candidates lessen the chances "and if I thought Sam Houston were better qualified, I'd drop out in a minute."

He claimed that neither Yarbrough nor Houston has ever argued a case before the high state court while he has many times.

ODESSA — Two Odessa College instructors recently completed a 24-day study tour of Thailand and found that country's citizens friendly to Americans in spite of recent student revolts aimed in part at the U.S. government.

Dr. Imogene Freer, head of the reading program at the college, and Mrs. Lois Ball, associate professor of English, were part of a study-tour with Dr. George Spache, internationally known reading expert.

They attended lectures and seminars during the week but were free to sightsee evenings and weekends.

The two professors described the Thais as "friendly, warm and freedom-loving." They were gently discouraged by older natives from visiting an area of Bangkok where protests were going on during their stay there.

The more established residents of Bangkok told the visitors they felt no resentment toward the American government or Americans. "They felt our withdrawal from Vietnam was honorable," Mrs. Ball said, and said that American prestige suffered no loss.

During their stay in Thailand, the group toured the original Bridge on the River Kwai and saw the road that forced allied labor constructed while Japan dominated Thailand during World War II.

Another side trip was a tour of the palace of King Rama. Built in the 1800s, the palace was in Aythaya, an old capital of Siam. One of the buildings on the palace grounds was a gazebo-type memorial to King Rama's wife. The story says that she drowned after falling into the water because attendants obeyed the Siamese rule that no one was allowed to touch the queen.

During a trip to the north of Thailand, Mrs. Ball followed the sound of a low chant from a Meo tribesman and found an old man sitting with incense and live chickens and chanting "in a low and melodious voice while a group of small children sat watching him." The tribe worships spirits and sacrifice of chickens is a part of their worship.

Among other cultural differences the teachers noted was the fact that Thai cigars are "made of a mixture of sugar, coconut and tobacco that were pressed into banana leaves," Mrs. Ball said.

Buddhism played a major role in the curriculum of schools. Progress in education was slowed, in spite of encouragement of Buddhist monks for rural citizens to participate in a government literacy program, by farmers retaining old, traditional ways.

The two instructors returned by way of Singapore, where they attended the International Congress of Reading.

Minister, restaurant owner feud over liquor

DALLAS (AP) — A restaurant owner and a Baptist minister are at odds over the restaurant's serving hard liquor.

The Rev. Clarence Green of the Chapel Hill Baptist Church says the mere fact that liquor is sold in the establishment is enough to offend his congregation.

Owner Jesse Galvan says his La Margarita restaurant and private club "does not bother anyone," and that it is a family-run business and caters to the whole family.

The battle between Galvan and the Baptist pastor is highlighted by the fact that the restaurant is located in a "dry" area of Dallas, but has a private club license which allows it to sell liquor to members.

The Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission recently suspended Galvan's private club license for allegedly selling a beer to an ABC agent who was not a member of the private club.

Galvan said the ABC "framed" him. He waived a hearing, however, and his private club license was suspended for 15 days.

Galvan said Wednesday that he has talked to the Rev. Green in an attempt to reach an agreement and put an end to the protests made by members of the congregation to the ABC.

"We don't bother anyone," he said. "We run a fine restaurant; families come here with their children. This is not a honky-tonk. My wife, my children and I run the restaurant. We do not open on Sunday morning precisely because of the church."

He took over the restaurant last December and bought it in April.

Dr. Green said his "whole congregation is opposed to liquor. We have about 2,000 members. We bought our homes in a dry area, and we'd like to stay dry if we have our choice."

New witness connects Hicks with drug action

DALLAS (AP) — Two government witnesses have connected former auto dealer Joe Hicks with a narcotics smuggling ring in testimony at Hicks' federal trial.

Dale Everett Morris, a convicted narcotics smuggler, testified Wednesday that he bought 20 kilos of illegal drugs in Bangkok, Thailand, and Bogota, Colombia, for Hicks.

Hicks, his wife Janet, and Charles Lidge Bolts are standing trial on charges of conspiracy to import and distribute illegal drugs in the United States.

Fifteen persons were named in the drug indictments. Eight defendants have pleaded guilty and four are still at large.

Morris testified Wednesday Hicks paid all his travel expenses, set him up with connections and gave him the money to buy drugs on his 20 overseas trips.

But he said Hicks never delivered on his promise to pay him $1,000 a month plus a share of the profits. He said he only made $10,000.

A customs inspector testified she found eleven bags of suspected cocaine sewn in coat linings and pinned in suit pants when Morris, a former truck driver, was arrested at the Miami airport on Sept. 6, 1975, with 2.2 pounds of cocaine.

Morris is now serving two years in prison for importing the cocaine.

When asked why he did not come forward earlier, Morris testified he feared for the safety of his family.

He said on the stand Mrs. Hicks gave him money used to buy the narcotics but on cross examination, elaborated that the money was in an envelope.

"She would give me large sums of money to take to Mr. Hicks and I'm sure she didn't know what the money was for. But she would send money to Joe through me," Morris said.

He added that Hicks had told him that he had told his wife about "parts of the operation."

375 possible pushers getting IRS scrutiny

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service is checking the tax returns of 375 persons believed to be among the nation's top-ranking traffickers in illicit narcotics, IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander said Tuesday.

Alexander disclosed this information in an interview in which he discussed the IRS's new efforts to assist the Drug Enforcement Administration's war against the $10 billion annual traffic in heroin and other illegal drugs.

In response to a directive from President Ford, Alexander and DEA Administrator Peter B. Bensinger signed an agreement on July 27 calling for intensified cooperation between the two agencies.

The pact gives IRS responsibility for pursuing high-level drug dealers who violate federal tax laws by failing to report and pay taxes on profits earned through illegal narcotics dealings.

"DEA has already given us the names and some details as to 375 individuals," Alexander said, "and we're well into the process of pulling the tax returns of these individuals and seeing what they show."

"As a result of what we've found, some already have been put under tax-evasion investigations; and we expect that, as we complete checking their returns, others will be too."

Neither Alexander nor DEA officials would reveal the names of those persons being probed. However, Alexander said, all 375 fall into the category of what DEA calls "Class I violators" — persons suspected of being the leaders or financiers of large-scale narcotics rings with dealings running into millions of dollars.

IRS's enlistment in the drug war is an extension of its long-time involvement in combatting organized crime. Ever since the successful 1930 prosecution of Al Capone on tax charges, the federal tax laws have provided an effective weapon for putting leading rackets figures in prison.

This is done by making a "net worth case" — laboriously piecing together a picture of a target individual's financial status by tracking down his holdings and expenditures and then comparing this net worth with the person's reported income.

"Our job is to enforce the tax laws," Alexander said, "so it's perfectly proper for us to go after persons who make huge illegal profits from drugs and who hide these profits and pay no taxes on them."

But, he cautioned against the idea that a crackdown by IRS on drug dealers can, by itself, significantly halt the drug traffic.

"For one thing, our involvement can't extend beyond enforcement of the tax laws," Alexander noted, "and that makes us a somewhat limited instrument for combatting the drug problem, which involves questions of both supply and demand."

In addition, he added, IRS, which last year had its investigative staff cut by 10 per cent, faces a problem of priorities.

"We don't have enough people to do properly all the jobs that we're supposed to do," he said. "If I have to assign a large percentage of our reduced resources to one program, I have to take some of these resources away from other tasks."

"You have to choose between other programs that also are highly important — other aspects of organized crime like gambling, corrupt politicians or major corporate evaders of the tax system. Any big concentration of our investigative personnel against narcotics dealers means there has to be some lessening of these other investigations."

Vietnamese set American free

The Los Angeles Times

BANGKOK — The Vietnamese government Tuesday released one of the two Americans known to have been held in prison since the fall of Saigon in April, 1975. The fate of the second American remains unknown.

A Red Cross evacuation flight from Saigon to Bangkok brought out Arlo N. Gay and his Vietnamese wife and child. He had been held in isolation until Monday and was brought to the plane in Saigon by armed guards.

Gay, a onetime GI who had stayed in Vietnam to build a small frozen shrimp business in the Mekong Delta, was taken into the care of American Embassy officials in Bangkok. He had arrived without any prior announcement and told embassy officials he did not wish to make any statement.

Gay did say that he had no knowledge of the second American still held captive — former Central Intelligence Agency employe Tucker Guggleman who was known to be in Saigon's Chi Hoa prison until a few months ago when he may have been transferred to Hanoi.

Gay himself had been suspected of working for the Central Intelligence Agency. He had been held back by the Vietnamese authorities in August when 49 Americans and their dependents were flown out.

"They thought I was a lot more important than I was," Gay was quoted as telling one official who talked with him.

He appeared to be in good health but was described as being "very uptight" about his experiences.

"He doesn't want any publicity," an official said.

American officials had also expected the arrival Tuesday of a woman identified as Theresa Reed who may be either an American or French citizen. She is known to be in Saigon but officials say little is known about her.

It is believed that several Vietnamese children entitled to American passports remain in Vietnam but officials say that Gay and Guggleman were the only two Americans about whom they had precise information.

It had been hoped that Gay would provide further information on Guggleman since other Americans had reported that the two were in Chi Hoa prison at one time. Officials say, however, that Gay was not held in Chi Hoa prison and that he said he was unaware that Guggleman was also being held prisoner. He had been held and questioned in a provincial jail and later at another jail somewhere in Saigon.

The Vietnamese authorities have never acknowledged the existence of Guggleman, who was seen being taken captive at the Astor Hotel in downtown Saigon.

Guggleman, 54, an ex-Marine combat veteran had joined the Central Intelligence Agency after his combat tour in Vietnam and returned to the country for two tours with the CIA. He retired from the CIA in 1972 and returned to the United States.

He returned to Vietnam on his own in the weeks just before the collapse of Saigon. Friends reported that he had gone back in an effort to get out several of the Vietnamese with whom he had worked as a CIA agent. He was evidently taken by surprise in the final collapse and was unable or unwilling to join the final evacuation on April 29.

It is known that the U.S. government has made several private attempts to obtain information about Guggleman. So far as is known, these efforts have been totally rebuffed by

Excess parties decried

The Los Angeles Times

UNITED NATIONS—With the opening of the 31st General Assembly and the start of the accompanying 12-week round of official lunches, dinners and cocktail parties, Secretary General Kurt Waldheim has made an unprecedented appeal for a social cease-fire.

Speaking to members of the United Nations correspondents Assn. at the annual luncheon of the Dag Hammarskjold Memorial Scholarship Fund—a typical event—Waldheim said he is "filled with a mixture of despair and incredulity" when he looks at his crowded calendar.

"It is not that I do not want to meet all of the people concerned—on the contrary I am most anxious to meet them, and many are old and dear friends," the secretary general protested. "I, like all of you, deeply appreciate the friendly and hospitable instincts which give rise to this tidal wave."

Although the courtly Austrian diplomat has been a stickler for traditions in his first five years as chief executive of the world body, he questioned whether 19th century practices can continue in an organization of 145 nations.

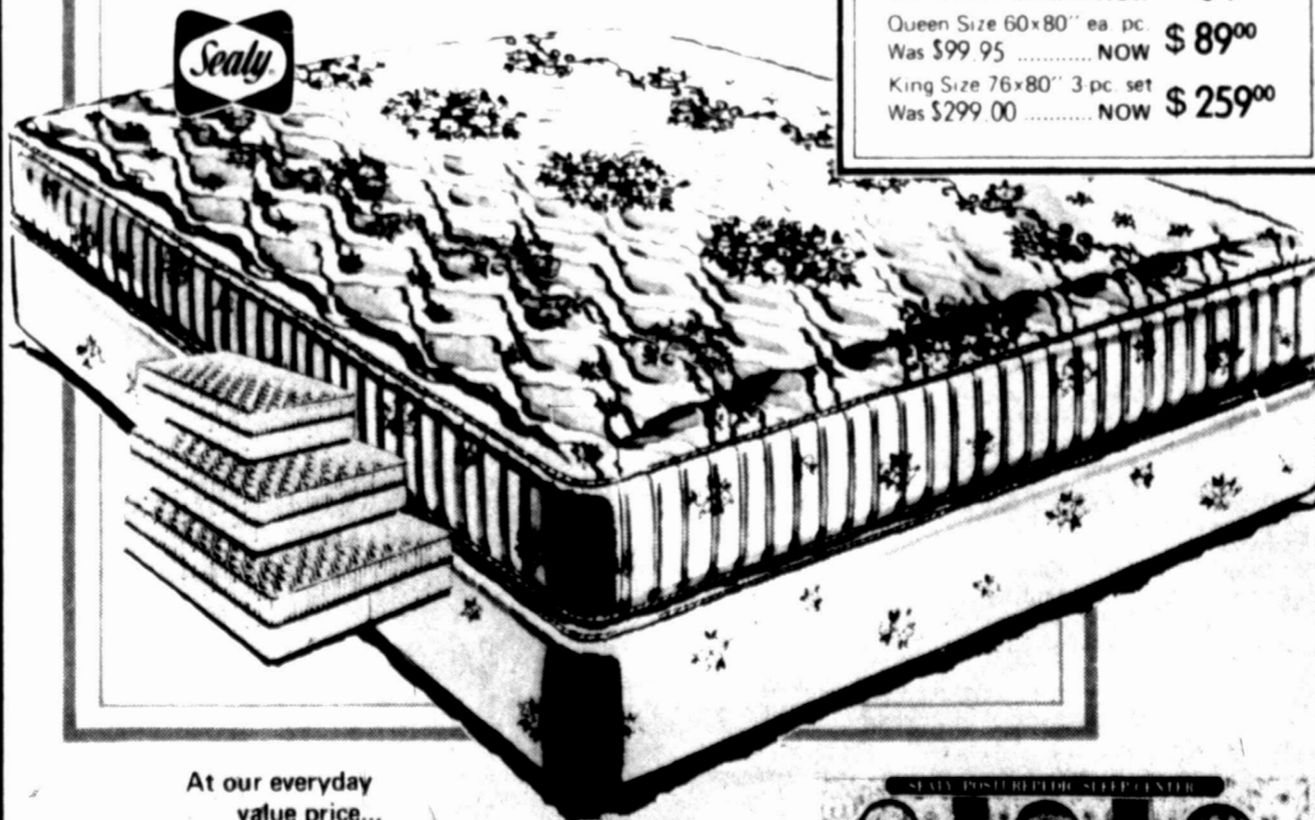

"I increasingly wonder if we can really afford, from any point of view,

Taiwan agrees to halt nuclear fuel process

By DON OBERDORFER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Taiwan has agreed to stop all activities related to reprocessing of nuclear fuel following U.S. intelligence reports of secret atomic efforts, State Department officials disclosed Wednesday.

The Nationalist Chinese pledge, which did not formally acknowledge clandestine activity, was made by Premier Chiang Ching-kuo in a Sept. 14 meeting with U.S. Ambassador Leonard Unger and reiterated in a diplomatic note Sept. 17. The substance of the note was made public Wednesday in hearings on Taiwan's nuclear program before the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on arms control.

Assistant Secretary of State Arthur W. Hummel Jr. said any violation of its promises by Taiwan would "fundamentally jeopardize" U.S. nuclear cooperation. The U.S. is Taiwan's principal supplier of enriched uranium fuel for nuclear power production.

The U.S. has been receiving intelligence reports for at least six months indicating that Taiwan has been secretly reprocessing spent uranium fuel, according to an Aug. 29 article by special correspondent Edward Schumacher in The Washington Post. Reprocessing of spent fuel is a method of getting plutonium from which nuclear weapons can be made.

Schumacher's article also reported that Taiwan had nearly completed construction of a small scale reprocessing facility at its Institute for Nuclear Energy Research at Lung Tan. This facility, built from parts obtained from sources throughout the world, was reported to be undergoing tests prior to operation.

The United States also had knowledge of Taiwanese interest in the purchase of larger scale reprocessing facilities from European supplier nations, it was disclosed to the Senate subcommittee. The U.S. had discussions with Taiwan as well as potential supplier nations last spring and summer in an effort to head off such a sale, officials said.

After the Aug. 29 article appeared, President Ford told senior members of the Senate-House Joint Atomic Energy Committee in a White House meeting that he would take "appropriate action" on the Taiwan problem. Committee chairman John O. Pastore (D-R.I.) said in a Senate speech that the possibility of Taiwan becoming a nuclear weapon state "is a matter of the gravest international concern which calls for swift and effective action" by the U.S. government.

Ambassador Unger called on Foreign Minister Shen Chiang-huan on Aug. 31 to discuss Taiwan's policy in the wake of the press reports, sources disclosed. This was followed up by the meeting with Premier Chiang two weeks later.

The diplomatic note from Taiwan said that "the government of the Republic of China has no intention whatsoever to develop nuclear weapons or a nuclear explosive device, or to engage in any activities related to reprocessing purposes."

Under questioning by the Senate subcommittee, Fred C. Ikle, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said the U.S. did not spell out the consequences if Taiwan continued reprocessing activity. But Ikle said the consequences were "clearly implied" by the close U.S. relationship in nuclear matters.

Ikle said he did not know what Taiwan will do with the small-scale reprocessing plant now that it has pledged to stop such activities. Taiwan had asked the U.S. last October for permission to reprocess U.S. fuel in that plant. No reply to this request was ever given. ACDA officials said.

The subcommittee headed by Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) also heard a closed briefing by CIA Director George Bush on U.S. intelligence reports of secret reprocessing on Taiwan. Bush's testimony was not made public, and the senators declined to discuss it.

Any moves by Taiwan toward obtaining a nuclear weapons capability would prompt serious reactions in South Korea, Japan and other Asian states which foresworn making atomic weapons, the officials testified. A Taiwanese bomb might also bring a reaction in mainland China, which has developed atomic and hydrogen bombs and missile delivery systems.

Hummel testified that Taiwan "has the economic and scientific base from which to develop nuclear weapons or a nuclear explosive device, should they choose to do so." He said the U.S. follows every aspect of Taiwan's nuclear program "with the utmost diligence" and view any deviation from its newly stated policies with great seriousness.

Oil strike potentials

Taubert, Steed, Gunn & Medders, Wichita Falls, completed their No. 1-GG S. B. Burnett Estate to reopen the Big S (Strawn) field of King County, 17 miles southeast of Guthrie.

It gauged a 24-hour potential of 180 barrels of 36-gravity oil with gas-oil ratio measuring 250-1. Production was through perforations at 5,300-5,309 feet. The well was drilled to 6,000 feet. Casing size and seat were not available.

Location is 660 feet from south and 3,900 feet from east lines of section 48, A. L. Jay survey, one mile west of the depleted original opener.

Nolan field gets offset

Campana Petroleum Co., Midland, No. 1 Tubb, is a ¼-mile east stepout to the one-well JMM (Canyon) gas field of Nolan County, four miles north of Silver.

The test spots 1,000 feet from south and 2,200 feet from west lines of section 7, block 1-A, H&C survey. It is slated to 6,000 feet.

The fee name was reported in an earlier story erroneously as Butt.

The JMM opener, Campana's No. 1 McCabe, finished in April for 3,423 million cubic feet of gas daily, through perforations at 5,902-5,988 feet.

Echeverria sacrifices for petroleum power

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Luis Echeverria is converting Mexico into a petroleum power even at the cost of personal popularity, an official of the national petroleum monopoly said Monday.

Echeverria has done more for Mexico's petroleum industry than anyone since President Lazaro Cardenas nationalized the industry in 1938, said Fernando Uro, superintendent of new projects for Petroleos Mexicanos (Pemex).

"I am a technician, not a politician," Uro said. "I am just giving him his due. The country is being converted into a petroleum power only because of the political decision taken by the president at the cost of his image."

Uro, a participant in the opening session of the annual meeting of the petroleum division of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, said in an interview many of the changes made by Echeverria in the petroleum industry have gone unnoticed or have been misinterpreted.

He used the discovery of huge oil deposits in Chiapas and Tabasco states as an example.

"We knew the petroleum was there but for lack of funds no president had dared to order it tapped," Uro said. "It was at a depth of nearly 5,000 meters and it was extremely expensive."

Echeverria ordered the deposits explored at any cost during the world oil crisis of 1973 when Mexico was importing an average of $500 million in petroleum yearly.

"It was the perfect moment politically to do it," Uro said. "The prices shot out of sight with the formation of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and in my opinion, it was worth placing the country in debt in order to generate this wealth we were sitting on."

Antonio Dovali Jaime, director general of Pemex, said in his welcoming speech at the meeting that industrial progress realized during Echeverria's six-year administration will permit the next administration to increase petroleum production by 82.5 per cent. He said that compared with an increase in the United States of 6 per cent.

Morrow gas well finals

Hondo Drilling Co., Midland, has completed from the Morrow, Eddy County, N.M., scheduled wildcat, one mile northeast of its recently completed No. 1 Alscott, Morrow gas strike, 12 miles west of Loco Hills.

The calculated, absolute open flow potential was for 7,203 million cubic feet of gas per day, producing through perforations at 11,076-11,086 feet. It produced 8.80 barrels of 56.1-gravity condensate along with the gas.

Drilled to 11,390 feet, it has 5½-inch casing set on bottom.

Location is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 29-18s-29e.

No. 1 Alscott finished July 18, for 22,637 million cubic feet of gas daily, with gas-liquid ratio of 67,823-1, through perforations at 11,079-11,092 feet. Completion was natural.

Agreement reached

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Pooling agreements were approved Tuesday by the State School Land Board for two West Texas units.

Gulf Oil Corp. received approval for its Belding wildcat unit in Pecos County, to test for gas at 21,000 feet. The relinquishment act tracts in section 151 will be tested below the Woodford formation.

M. T. Stallier got approval for his Stallier-Section 28 Unit in the Ford Chapman field of Reeves County, a doubleheader sort of unit. The well will test the Atoka at 14,000 feet, as part of a 320-acre unit, and the Fusselman at 16,000 feet as part of a 640-acre unit. The Block 37 well has not been started as yet.

TO&GC adds two to staff

DALLAS — Texas Oil & Gas Corp. has announced the addition of two to its staff in the Kansas District office in Wichita, Kan.

Jack R. Dowdney has joined the firm as a geologist, and Gary E. Wurdeman is an engineer.

Dowdney holds a M. S. degree from The University of Texas, El Paso, and previously was associated with Diamond Shamrock Corp. and Chorion Oil Co. in Denver. He will be involved with the company's Kansas drilling and exploration program.

Wurdeman has been employed by Texaco Inc. since graduation from Kansas State University. He will be responsible for various engineering and production functions in the Kansas District.

District judge issues Panola injunction

CARTHAGE, Tex. (AP) — State District Court Judge Frank Wear of Paris has denied Texas Utilities a temporary injunction in the company's efforts to stop Panola County from taxing its lignite property at $340 per acre.

Texas Utilities, the parent company of Dallas Power & Light, Texas Power & Light and Texas Electric Service Co., has filed suit against the county in protest of a $340 per acre assessment placed on its lignite holdings by the county's board of equalization.

According to Panola County Atty. Joe Jackson, Judge Wear denied TU's request on the basis that the giant utility had not filed a plan which entitled the company to a temporary injunction now.

Jackson said Panola County is now free to continue preparation of the tax rolls and to assess lignite property at the $340 per acre figure.

However, he added, Texas Utilities, has until July 1 before it would actually have to pay these taxes before they are declared delinquent.

Jackson said the lawsuit came come to trial before then, although no trial date has been set.

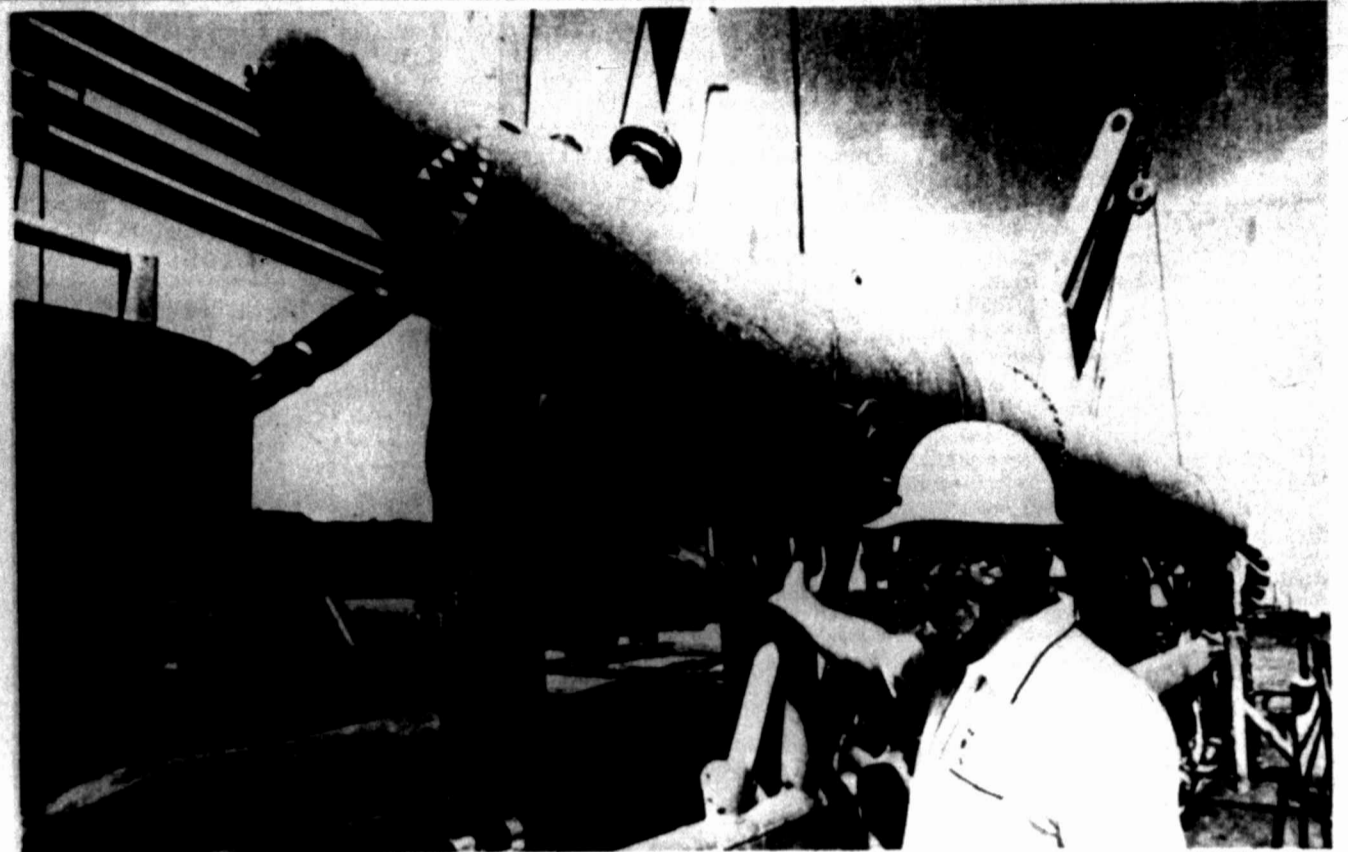

Texas Utilities filed suit against Panola County Sept. 10 and the case has been placed on the jury docket to be heard at judge Wear's convenience.

TU spokesman Dick Ramsey of Dallas concurred with Jackson. "Although we would have liked to have the injunction, this decision will have no effect on the final outcome of the lawsuit."

Ramsey said the judge had indicated there was not enough evidence to warrant an injunction but assured Texas Utilities that it had done everything "necessary to assure our rights have been preserved."

When Texas Utilities announced it would file suit against Panola County and the Beckville Independent School District, a TU spokesman said the main objection was the taxation of lignite which had not yet been mined.

Texas Utilities rendered its property at $1 per acre on the premise that lignite or any other mineral has no absolute value until it is taken from the ground.

FRANK JACKSON of New Orleans, La., representing Shell Oil Co., points to one of the air guns, with shark's teeth painted on it, used to determine the varying ocean floor depths in Shell's search for oil on Georges Bank off the New England coast. Shell says its detailed search with computers and sonic shock waves has disclosed several promising areas to drill for petroleum.

Deep wildcat heads New Mexico activity

A deep prospector was staked in Lea County, N.M., Eddy gained a gas discovery, and a reentry has been planned for Chaves.

Gifford, & Mitchell and M. B. Wisenbaker, Midland, have filed application to drill No. 1 Horseback as a 20,000-foot venture in Lea County, N.M., one mile northwest of the same operators' No. 1 Comanche, recent Morrow discovery in Winkler County, Tex.

It spotted 1,000 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 33-26s-36e, 15 miles northwest of Kermit.

Operator is seeking creation of a new gas field for Atoka production at the project.

The No. 1 Comanche finished August 1, for 36.1 million cubic feet of gas per day, natural, through perforations at 15,580-15,570 feet. It was drilled to 21,844 feet as an Eilenburger test.

EDDY STRIKE

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1-FT Eddy-State, has been completed as an Atoka gas discovery in Eddy County, N.M., seven miles north of Carlsbad.

Drilled to 11,325 feet, it has 5½-inch casing set on bottom, and is plugged back to 10,850 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 16-20s-27e, ¼ mile southeast of a recently opened Morrow area.

CHAVES WORKOVER

Harvey E. Yates Co., Roswell, N.M., filed application to reenter and clean out to old total depth of 10,383 feet, at No. 1 Railroad Mountain, Chaves County failure, and attempt completion as a Devonian discovery.

Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 8-8s-31e, 15 miles east of Elkins.

West Texas Sectors get wildcat projects

STONEWALL TRY

Samedan Oil Corp., operating from Midland, intends to drill a 5,900-foot venture in Stonewall, 17 miles northeast of Aspermont. It is No. 1 Mobil.

Drill site is 467 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 4, block F, H&C survey, ¼ mile north of the depleted Kiowa Peak, Northwest (Bend conglomerate) field.

RUNNELS TEST

Tri-Star Petroleum Corp., Dallas, accounted for a 4,800-foot explorer in Runnels, one location southwest of Fry production in the Deike field. It is No. 2 Memry Hunter.

It spots 1,600 feet from southwest and 2,217 feet from northwest lines of George Berry survey, abstract 25, two miles southeast of Wingate.

GAINES OFFSET

Mobil Oil Corp. intends to drill No. 4

Tom May as a ¼-mile east offset to the recently completed reopener of the G-M-K, South (San Andres) field of Gaines County.

Drill site for the project, slated to 5,350 feet, is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 40, block G, WTRR survey, 12 miles northeast of Seminole.

The discovery, Mobil's No. 2 Tom May, finished July 29, for a 24-hour potential of 152 barrels of 32-gravity oil, through perforations at 5,364-5,424 feet.

Confirmer rates flow

Phillips Petroleum Co. No. 1-F Mitchell, confirmation and ¼-mile northeast extension in the Puckett, East (Strawn) field of Pecos County, flowed five hours, making 56 barrels of load and acid water and 10 barrels of distillate, plus gas at the rate of 5,184,000 cubic feet daily.

Flow was through a 13-64-inch choke and perforations at 10,980-11,503 feet. Testing continued.

Audit being conducted at Smithsonian Institution

By CHARLES A. KRAUSE
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The General Accounting Office has begun an extensive audit of the books of the Smithsonian Institution in an unprecedented effort to determine what the giant research and museum complex does with the approximately $100 million it receives from the federal government each year.

The GAO auditors will look into a million-dollar contingency fund administered over the past several years directly by S. Dillon Ripley, secretary of the institution, as well as Ripley's extensive domestic and foreign travel.

Ripley has told Congress that in 1974, he was out of Washington for about half the year. Other sources have told The Washington Post that Ripley normally spends about three months each summer at his home in Connecticut and a month each winter in India, where he studies birds at Smithsonian expense.

John Jameson, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian for administration and the institution's designated spokesman, said that he could not comment on the secretary's travels. Jameson pointed out that Ripley's salary is paid out of the approximately $11 million in private funds either donated or otherwise available to the Smithsonian.

Ripley is a well known ornithologist, and secretaries of the Smithsonian usually have actively engaged in their own scientific research even while running the institution.

The GAO audit was requested last June by Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D-W.Va.) and Sen. Ted Stevens (R-Alaska), chairman and ranking minority member, respectively, of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on the Interior and related agencies, which has responsibility for the federal money appropriated to the Smithsonian.

"The committee, in conducting annual budget hearings and developing appropriation recommendations, has experienced a growing concern over the management and accountability of federal funds made available to the Smithsonian," Byrd and Stevens wrote in their letter to the GAO, requesting the audit.

"This request in no way should be construed to imply any suspicion of wrongdoing or deliberate impropriety," the letter, made available yesterday by the senators, said. "Because of its unique status, however, the Smithsonian has not undergone the usual federal reviews and examinations accorded most government agencies."

Dwight Dyer, chief of staff for the Interior Appropriations Subcommittee, said that the GAO audit was requested because the Appropriations Subcommittee "just got tired of seeing (only a) part of the Smithsonian's budget."

Dyer said that the institution now receives about 90 per cent of its total budget from the government, but the federal money is commingled with the $11 million in private funds in a way that makes it very difficult to determine what part of the budget is paid for out of public funds and what part is paid for out of private funds.

Dyer said the subcommittee is concerned, among other things, about the way the Smithsonian begins a project with private money and then "three or four years later, they come to us and say they can't afford it anymore and we have to fund it."

Dyer said that almost happened with a $35 million storage facility the Smithsonian wanted to build in Prince George's County, Md. The institution began planning the facility with its own money, then came to Congress for additional planning funds that Dyer said would probably have resulted in the facility being built had the Senate not decided to stop the project at the outset.

Other programs and projects, however, Dyer said, have not been stopped. The senators have grown increasingly restive when presented with facts and figures.

The final straw came in March of this year when the Subcommittee found out about Ripley's discretionary fund, Dyer said. It turned out that about 2 per cent (about $1 million a year) of some museum and program budgets were returned "off the top" to the secretary's fund and then disbursed by Ripley as he saw fit.

The fund was never included in the Smithsonian budget, and although there were no allegations that Ripley was doing anything improper with the money (he said the fund was used for emergencies such as unexpected utility cost increases), Sen. Stevens and others thought the fund should be included in the budget and the money should be publicly accounted for since it was clearly part of the federal appropriation.

In their letter, Stevens and Byrd directed the GAO to audit the secretary's contingency fund. "The Smithsonian has indicated a willingness to revamp its procedures with respect to this contingency account so that the Committee will be fully informed (about the money's use) in the future," the senators told the GAO.

Jameson said that, instead of listing the contingency fund in future budgets, the Smithsonian decided to abolish it. "We stopped it when the Congress expressed concern," Jameson said, adding that Ripley no longer has any discretionary funds at his disposal.

"Without limiting the scope of the GAO review of the Smithsonian's fiscal policies and practices," the senators wrote to the GAO, they said they wanted the auditors, besides the contingency fund, to look specifically into:

— "The Smithsonian's travel practices, particularly the reportedly extensive travel of the secretary here and abroad.

— "Plans for construction of a large museum support facility in Maryland.

— "The expanding Smithsonian research role, which often appears duplicative and involves such operations as the Tropical Research Center in the Panama Canal Zone and the Chesapeake Bay Environmental Center.

— "The manner in which private funds are used in conjunction with federal funding.

— "And practices involving the establishment of new units and facilities with private funds that involve an obligation of future federal support."

Specifically, the letter asks the GAO to investigate how the Smithsonian got itself involved in supporting the Cooper-Hewitt Museum of decorative arts and design in New York City. "This new facility now requires federal support and we felt there was inadequate prior notice and advance consultation with the Committee," the senators wrote.

The Smithsonian, established by Congress in 1846 in accordance with the terms of a will left by James Smithson of England in 1826, comprises some of the world's greatest museums and is responsible for financing a wide variety of important scientific research.

It is governed by a board of regents that includes the Vice President, the Chief Justice, several members of Congress and several prominent private citizens, including Rhode Island financier John Nicholas Brown, former Princeton University President Robert F. Goheen, and New York financier William A. M. Burden.

Ripley, who serves at the pleasure of the regents, is credited with expanding and broadening the institution since he became secretary over 10 years ago. But because of the quasipublic, quasiprivate nature of the institution, its activities and policies have largely escaped the public accounting they are now undergoing by the GAO, which set up an office in the Arts and Industries Building earlier this week.

Jameson said the Smithsonian generally welcomed the GAO audit because Congress thought it was necessary. "If it's useful for them it's probably going to be useful for us," he said.

Soviets take modest stance in letters to editors

EDITOR'S NOTE — Soviet citizens write letters to the editors of their controlled press, but one newspaper seeks letters from people with ideas on how to improve everyday living. Here's a sample of what they wrote about.

MOSCOW (AP) — "If I were director, I would put a special garage for baby carriages in every apartment building," a man in Leningrad wrote to the editor of the Soviet newspaper Literary Gazette.

"I would demand that the police enforce the laws against profanity," a Moscow lawyer wrote.

"I would decree that every school give dancing lessons as well as singing lessons," said a letter from a woman from Chelyabinsk.

In the last two years, 3,000 Soviet citizens have given a glimpse of their daily concerns in letters to a regular column in the Literary Gazette called "If I were the Director."

The letters, as selected by the newspaper's editors, include a variety of suggestions about everyday conveniences, but few thoughts about the larger questions that confront the Soviet Union, such as housing problems, harvest shortfalls and shortages of consumer goods.

These questions are not generally the subjects of public discussion in a nation where almost every detail of daily life is controlled by the government.

And under an economy not guided by market considerations, consumer demands, like the following, often are not resolved as they can be in the West:

"I would open special clothing stores for very tall people."

"I would sell special knives for peeling potatoes, carrots and fruit."

"I would keep stores open during lunch hours so people could shop during their time off."

It would take a high-level government decree to implement the suggestion: "I would only allow building of and experiences gained while attending the Lions International Youth Conference held this summer at Toronto, Canada.

The Westside club sponsored McCain's enrollment at the conference.

R. E. Womack, publicity chairman, said a large attendance at the meeting is anticipated.

superintendents to come to work after 7 a.m. so people could get a little sleep."

Some of the letters suggest innovations that are already taken for granted in some Western countries:

"I would put parking lots at all airports. Many car owners — and their numbers are increasing — could start off on a business trip by driving to the airport."

"I would install radios in the seats of aircraft so people could listen to music during the flight."

"I would print health warnings on cigarette packages."

Other letters have a universal appeal, and could have been written by dreamers in almost any country:

"I would have separate cars on trains for people with noisy children."

"I would require markets to round off the prices of their items, to speed up the checkout lines."

Intrigued by the response to its "Director" column, the Literary Gazette editors recently surveyed 500 of their letter writers. They found that the people with the most ideas for improving Soviet life are middle-aged men with good educations, living in the European cities of the Soviet Union.

U.N. finally ready to act on hijacking

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — After a four-year stalemate, the United Nations General Assembly appears ready to act against aerial hijackers, says West Germany's chief U.N. delegate.

"We've talked to well over 100 (governments) here and elsewhere, and...I think we stand a fair chance of success," Baron Ruediger von Wechmar said Wednesday.

His delegation will sponsor a proposed international convention that would ban the transportation of hostages across national boundaries and require signatory nations to punish or extradite hostage-takers apprehended on their territory.

The baron told a news conference the only opposition encountered so far has come from a single Arab country, "but it's not the one you think."

The country was understood to be Algeria.

Libya has been accused of harboring Palestinian terrorists who hijacked airliners to focus attention on their cause, but Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy recently said he opposes terrorism against innocent civilians. Libya's U.N. ambassador, Mansur Rashid Kikhin, indicated he might support an antiterrorism agreement if it covered "terrorism exercised by all racist regimes in the world, including the racist Zionist entity (Israel)."

Hijacking and other political terrorism has been on the General Assembly's agenda every year since the massacre of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics in 1972. But the Assembly has taken no action because of the Arab and African contention that these are legitimate political weapons when used by anti-white liberation movements in Africa and the anti-Israeli Palestinians.

Some Arab governments have had second thoughts recently, however, because their Arab opponents are beginning to use hijacking against them.

Von Wechmar said West German Foreign Minister Hans Dietrich Genscher would introduce the subject in a speech to the General Assembly next Tuesday. The ambassador said he hoped the Assembly would set up a 35-nation group to draft a convention and submit it to the 1977 Assembly.

West German diplomats have rounded up a number of cosponsors for the proposal, including "four from Latin America, four from Africa and four from Asia, not counting the Europeans," the baron said.

Smaller sign gets results

WENDEN, Ariz. (AP) — When a large sign failed to keep campers off the shore of Alamo Lake, state park rangers used a small sign to make their point.

"I guess the public couldn't read that big sign," Ken Elton, park supervisor, said Tuesday. "And our rangers would have to walk along the shore at night telling the fishermen they were violating the rules."

But, Elton said, "It's funny how people's reading improved since we put up the little sign" just below the large "no-camping" sign.

The small sign says, "Watch Out For Rattlesnakes."

Westside Lions to honor ladies

FORMER TEXAS Gov. John B. Connally checks the time of day as he leaves the White House Wednesday afternoon. Connally told newsmen following a meeting with President Ford that they discussed Ford's debate tonight with Jimmy Carter.

Ford said planning to modify last offer

DETROIT (AP) — A United Auto Workers source says he expects strike-bound Ford Motor Co. to modify its present offer on a new three-year contract before the end of the week.

But the source at the main bargaining table predicted Wednesday it would take more time to reach a settlement and at least a week beyond that to complete the ratification vote required to end the nine-day-old walkout.

Bargainers for the two sides planned to meet today for a fourth straight day of talks.

A full day of head-to-head negotiations Wednesday failed to bring the two sides any closer on the issues that triggered a Sept. 14 walkout by 170,000 hourly Ford workers in 22 states, the source said.

"The kind of hard bargaining that usually characterizes a push toward a settlement is not in existence," a UAW official said Wednesday night.

Meanwhile, the ripple effect of the strike spread to another 2,800 hourly Ford workers in Canada, who were laid off due to parts shortages. Some 4,400 out of 14,000 workers in that country have been idled, and all are expected to be on layoff by the end of the week.

Ford has said nothing official about progress in the talks, but company bargainers are reportedly upset that the union has refused to remove or scale down any of its demands after two months of bargaining.

Ford revised its initial contract offer three times, the last coming a day before the strike deadline in an effort to avert a walkout. However, the union rejected all three as being too little, too late.

The two sides remain apart on wages, health care and supplemental benefits, pensions, job security and a priority union demand for more paid time off to create new jobs.

The strike has shut down 102 Ford facilities and brought the firm's domestic production to a halt. A company analyst estimated that nearly 160,000 cars and trucks — with a retail value approaching $1 billion — will be lost from September's U.S. production schedules.

Storm sends liquor pouring down drain

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — About 400 cases of liquor went down the drain here, the latest flood victims of tropical storm Belle, whose high water washed away the bottles' labels and seals last month.

"This is a rare occasion, I hope," said Jean Hickey, state Liquor Control Board executive, as workers poured the booze down a sewer drain Wednesday, in a scene reminiscent of prohibition days. The bottles were crushed and taken to the dump.

The spirits would have brought upwards of $30,000 on the shelf, but four-foot deep water submerged the cases and raised the possibility that the liquor had been contaminated.

"If there is any question about the quality of the product, we certainly aren't going to sell it," explained Miss Hickey.

'PIECE'-FUL HANDLING of a problem is illustrated here as parts of the Soviet MIG-25 fighter which landed in northern Japan are loaded into a Japanese transport plane after Japanese and American technicians finished dismantling the craft. Parts are being taken to the Misawa Air Force Base of the Japanese Self-Defense Force. The plane was flown in by a defecting Soviet pilot earlier this month.

Failure-to-thrive infants major pediatric challenge

BOSTON (AP) — Billy was a healthy seven pounds at birth. He was an active baby, smiling and cooing with every playful poke to his fat, pink stomach. One month later, Billy was comatose, emaciated and dying. He shrank from any contact with the world around him and barely tipped the scale at four pounds.

After weeks of tests, doctors concluded there was nothing medically wrong with Billy. He was one of a growing number of infants who fail to thrive at home. Something in the bond that links parent to child went awry. Without maternal love to nourish them, these babies start to feed on themselves.

"Holding these babies is like picking up a rag doll. They refuse to respond to you," said Dr. Milt Kotelchuck, research director of family development at Children's Hospital.

He is one of three physicians who have gathered information about this disorder, one of the most mysterious social illnesses of pediatrics.

Dr. Eli H. Newberger, Dr. Daniel Rosen and Kotelchuck devised a questionnaire to pinpoint the characteristics of failure-to-thrive infants and their parents.

"We saw a picture of a mother who was isolated, stuck at home with this baby she was almost afraid of because it didn't act normally. She was at the end of her rope," Rosen said.

Because of its severe malnutrition, the infant is listless and passive. The child refuses to eat despite a mother's desperate efforts to make her child gain weight.

"If these parents didn't care about their kids they'd let them die at home instead of taking them to a pediatrician or hospital," Newberger pointed out. "The parents are looking for help, not only for their child but for themselves."

The doctors examined 303 children admitted to the hospital's in-patient services. Forty-two cases were diagnosed as failure to thrive because of the inability to gain weight.

Of those 42 cases, 81 per cent were under 18 months of age, 83 per cent were white, 33 per cent were from welfare families and 69 per cent were male.

From their findings, doctors concluded that these babies — unlike many cases of neglect or abuse that often occur in low-income neighborhoods — were the products of white middle-class families.

Besides logging the characteristics of the children, doctors developed an interview for the mother, focusing on housing, marital well-being, employment, child care and family problems.

What emerged was an anxious, over-concerned parent who was frightened of her child and her surroundings.

"I can't relate to the kid." "He's a difficult child." "He just isn't happy." "He doesn't like to eat what I give him." "It's not my fault he looks the way he does." "I'm a good mother."

Telling a mother that her child is not flourishing at home is placing blame on her, even when the doctors are trying to help her.

As one distraught mother told doctors, "When I hear the term 'failure to thrive,' all I hear is the word, 'failure.'" Doctors agree that the various theories pointing to a lack of interaction — a "failed maternality" — between mother and child as the cause of the condition takes a punitive attitude by placing blame on an already guilt-ridden parent.

"The purpose of our questionnaire is to ask questions that's going to lead the mother to the problem. You need to keep in mind one's ethical posture and role — to be sympathetic, nonaccusing, nonjudgmental," Kotelchuck said.

Many of the mothers were maternally retarded, ignorant about baby care. They had not set up a routine for their child and often treated the babies like dolls or pets.

Doctors often refer the mothers for counseling at the hospital or with a social worker. In some instances, dance therapy has proven successful since the mother learns to develop a rhythm with her child.

In extreme cases, as in Billy's, the infant is placed in a foster home until authorities decide that the mother is "fit" to take care of her child again.

Once the baby is admitted to the hospital, it is force-fed enormous amounts of food — about 50 calories for each pound of weight, twice the normal amount.

Recovery comes quickly, with some babies gaining as much as 14 pounds in seven to 10 days. But getting them to respond emotionally is often the hardest result to achieve, doctors agree.

"You've got to take it slow with these kids," Rosen said. "You can't overwhelm them with a battery of stimuli. They have to learn how to respond."

Physicians keep a close watch for symptoms of serious illness throughout the child's hospital stay, like kidney or stomach disorders, brain damage — anything to explain the child's severely emaciated state.

State agencies around the country are getting more and more reports of children who fail to thrive. All cases of neglect or abuse must be reported.

In 1975 alone, 6,000 cases of neglect were logged in Massachusetts. About 10 per cent were failure-to-thrive infants.

Mo-Pac Railroad, Amtrak in hassle

DALLAS (AP) — The Missouri Pacific Railroad, on whose tracks an Amtrak derailment occurred Monday, has refused to allow Federal Railroad Administration (FRA) vehicles to inspect its tracks in the past year.

A Missouri Pacific spokesman in St. Louis said the derailment "bears no relation whatsoever to the refusal to let their inspection cars on our tracks."

He said, "It is well known that Missouri Pacific has among the best maintained tracks in the United States. The argument with the FRA is over whether they will pay for the operation of their cars, so we can protect them against liability, or whether they will pay for liability insurance."

An FRA spokesman said the dispute over liability nevertheless has prevented any FRA inspection of Mo-Pac tracks.

The FRA has sued the Missouri Pacific in St. Louis to get the right to inspect that railroad's tracks. The suit is now on appeal by the railroad since a district court ruled in favor of the FRA.

The Amtrak derailment occurred a mile west of Hawkins, in Injuring County, Monday, injuring eight persons seriously enough to require hospital treatment.

TROLLEY CLANGS down the tracks in downtown Detroit Monday, on its inaugural run. Ceremonies at noon started service for the three-quarter mile, narrow gauge line running along Washington Boulevard from Grand Circuit Park to Cobo Hall. Man in white jacket on platform is Coleman Young, Detroit's mayor.

Man dies chained to tree

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Before he died, Douglas Ray Sumner spent two weeks chained to a tree. He built a lean-to for shelter, dug a hole to collect rain, and ate palmetto leaves and bark chips while he struggled in vain to free himself, police say.

Sumner, 21, had not been seen by his family since he left home to go camping two years ago, telling his mother, "I'll be back in three or four days — or maybe never."

When his best friend saw him a year ago and asked what he had been doing, Sumner replied, according to police: "I'm just trying to get my head screwed on straight. Don't tell anybody you've seen me."

A Baptist pastor who knew him said Sumner had gotten involved in a "way-out religious group" and might have willingly allowed himself to be anchored to a tree by a 15-foot logging chain attached to a 20-inch metal collar around his waist.

Two hunters stalking wild boar found his bones in a dense thicket a mile from the Gulf of Mexico last month. Investigators say Sumner had died about seven months before that, from either starvation or exposure.

Police call his death murder, but have not speculated on a possible motive. No arrests have been made.

Pastor Pierre Kennedy said Tuesday that the last time he saw Sumner the youth told him "he was going to go up to the forest and stay for a while."

Court upholds Hendrix ruling

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — An appeals court in Sweden has upheld a lower court ruling that a six-year-old Swedish boy was fathered by Jimi Hendrix, the late American rock music star.

The ruling handed down on Tuesday is not binding in the United States.

According to court testimony, Hendrix met Eva Sundqvist, now 32, while touring Sweden in 1967 and saw her again when he returned to Stockholm in 1969.

"I think he might have had somebody chain him to that tree. Maybe someone said to him, 'We'll chain you to this tree and you can get closer to God.'"

"This is the type of thing some of those lunatic religious groups talk about, this ascetic idea that you can get close to God by depriving your body of things, food and drink and pleasure."

Found near Sumner's body were sneakers, shreds of clothes, a leather belt, books including a Bible and an identification card from the University of South Florida where he had worked as a groundskeeper.

Only 10 of the body's 206 bones remained. Officers said the rest must have been carried off by animals. Sumner was identified by a jawbone fragment and the identification card.

At the bottom of the pine tree was a gash where Sumner apparently tried to cut the thick bark, police said. They said scars 10 feet up showed where he tried to work the chains up and over the top of the tree.

Fellow repairs for fun

CHENOA, Ill. (AP) — Housewives for miles around are taking their broken appliances to Loyal (Slim) Augspurger, who does fine repair work and hates to get paid for it.

Since Slim, 72, opened a fix-it shop three years ago in the basement of his home in this central Illinois community, he has repaired several thousand appliances — small ones like toasters, electric irons, fans, blenders, coffee maker and vacuum cleaners. He has a backlog of more than 100 awaiting repairs.

"I don't like to take money for what I like to do," he says. "I charge just enough to pay for some replacement parts and now and then to replace a tool. For instance, a broken $15 or $20 appliance, I'll make it run like new for around $2.50 even if I have to spend four or five hours on it. If they took it to a big store the minimum would be $6 to $8."

"I just enjoy doing it. The name of the game isn't money, it's being happy doing what you're doing. I don't need money, so I don't try to make it. I don't have the time to fool around with it, anyway," he says.

Augspurger, who is on Social Security, says there was no pension plan when he retired after 27 years as a stone quarry superintendent. His son, Marlow, left an appliance store to open his own repair shop for large household items like refrigerators. He gave his dad an assortment of small parts.

"He left me 100 drawers and jars full of tubes, screws, transistors and other things," says Slim, who stands 6-foot-2 and weighs 150 pounds. "So I had to learn how to fix things. I just started out and learned as I went along."

"I've never had a dissatisfied customer. In fact," he adds, "some of them were so happy with my work they thought I undercharged them and mailed me more money."

Slim says his most difficult job was repairing the corroded wiring of an electric pot that a housewife had tried to clean by submerging it in a basin of water and detergent. "It took me about 10 hours to fix it. I charged $5. Such a thing is a challenge for an older person. Part of the joy of fixing is helping people in trouble out of it."

Slim also gets personal satisfaction collecting old fans with brass blades. He has 17 of them, one from 1898. "I fixed them all. It was just lovely," he said.
