N. J. Bell, a Duke's tobacco hound par excellent, contentedly rolls his own

Midlander likes to roll his own

By ED TODD

Sometimes, just sometimes, N. J. Bell feels a trite selfish — like he's hoarding some of that good stuff.

And he is. He is. All of it. He's got about 2,000 (give or take a gross) pocket-size sacks of Duke's Mixture smoking tobacco stashed away at his farm house southeast of

And, most likely, no one else on this planet has as much, or any at all, as far as that goes.

Duke's roll-your-own, like the widebrimmed Stetson Western hat, has faded from the scene. Permanent like. Imitations still are around, Bell will tell you. But they just ain't the same somehow

"I've been smoking Duke's, I guess, for 25 or 30 years," said Bell, who came into this world some 60 years ago at nearby Stanton

And Bell almost panicked about four years ago when he, distressingly, learned that Liggett & Myers, Inc., of Durham, N.C., was no longer making Duke's Mixture.

So, he and his wife, Jo Nell, scrounged up all the Duke's sack tobacco they could possibly find hereabouts. But, all too soon, that was

And Bell, the affirmed and compulsive smoker that he is, rolled and puffed whatever other sack tobacco he could lay his hands on.

He tried Bull Durham, but that just didn't cut the mustard.

all," Bell said. "I was without Duke's for several months," Bell recalled, "and was smoking whatever I could find and was very dissatisfied.

So, what is a man to do? He picks up pen and pad and, out of desperation, writes the Duke's tobacco people. "I told them that it (Duke's Mixture) was the best tobacco that was ever made," Bell said of his initial letter. "And (asked) why they quit making it and (told them) that my

By JUDY JOHNSTON

Five hundred Texas water systems will not be able to meet the higher standards set by the federal Safe Drinking Water Act, which will go into effect in 1977, James M. Rose, Texas Water Development Board executive director, said Wednesday

Rose and a team of TWDB staff and management held a public forum at the Midland Hilton to receive prior input from Midland-Odessa residents on a revised comprehensive water plan for the state through the year

The group also was promoting support of a Texas Constitutional amendment which would increase by $400 million the amount of TWDB bonds that may be issued on approval of the legislature. These bonds support loans to needy water systems which can show an ability to repay the long-term, low-financing loans.

Of the 500 affected water systems, 58 systems are in the 16-county area near Midland, Rose said.

The major problem in the affected water systems in the area is flouride. Floyd Williams, chief of domestic water supply division of TWDB, said Wednesday in Austin in a telephone interview with The Reporter-Telegram.

Flouride causes mottling of teeth. It affects some trailer park water supplies in Midland, but the Midland city water supply is not affected, Williams said.

A number of Ector County trailer parks, all with well water systems, have a flouride problem. The City of Odessa has acceptable water, Williams said.

Another problem is nitrates, which also affect well water systems, mainly in trailer parks, throughout the Rose cited the 500 affected water systems to point out how critical is the need for the TWDB comprehensive water system.

Not only does the state face diminishing water supplies and increasing population, increasing manufacturing and increasing irrigation, it faces having to meet the Safe Drinking Water Act standards, which will put a hardship on some cities to upgrade their water standards, he said.

TWDB has considered several alternatives for supplying water to the Midland-Odessa area.

One "far-reaching" solution may be the transporatation of water from adjacent states, Rose said. TWDB

Ector, Crane highway projects remain on state's 'back burner'

Such a regional approach would be of national interest, he said, and probably would be eligible for federal funding.

Bell, who's contented and proud to be numbered among the country folks, said that rural people like himself preferred to shake the sack and to roll their own smokes back in the depression days of the 1930s.

It wasn't so much that the country folks could or could not afford to buy the more expensive ready-rolls that their cit, brothers and sisters had taking a liking to.

'Maybe they could," Bell said. "But they just didn't. Maybe I should put it that-a-way." That was back in the days when roll-your-own tobacco was selling for a nickel a sack. Considerably more costly were those ready-rolls, such as Camel, Chesterfield, Lucky Strike, Old Gold, and Philip Morris.

(Filtered cigarettes didn't roll around and catch on until the 1950s. Then, ready-rolls took on the jargon of "regulars.")

Duke's Mixture is Bell's obvious fancy and his apparent obsession. And, in a sense, tobacconist R. L. Williams of The Pinkerton Tobacco Co. was and is Bell's godsend.

For it was Williams, who works out of the Dallas area, who made a seemingly exhaustive search throughout the country for Duke's tobacco and expressly for N. J. Bell.

Bell paid a dime a sack for about half of those 4,000 sacks of Duke's that Williams and a few other dealers and salesmen managed to scrounge up for him. As for the rest, well, Bell just paid for the postage or freight costs. Duke's, since it was no longer economical to produce and market because of the declining demand for sack tobacco, had been written off by the tobacco company.

Only this year, Williams sent Bell what may well be the last of Duke's Mixture: "I don't really expect to find Bell, as usual, was grateful. "We talk about how fine people used to be," Bell commented. "Well, we've still got them. It goes to show you what one person will do for another.' And tobacconist Williams, when he shipped farmer Bell those last cloth sacks of Duke's, threw in some brotherly advice: This looks like the last roundup," he wrote, "so graze slowly." Well, Bell doesn't. (Except, of course, when he's driving the field tractor and resorts to ready-rolls.) Otherwise, he smokes the roll-yourown Duke's Mixture as if it were going out of style.

He rolls, licks, lights up and puffs And, readily, he shares his enjoyment with others. But not his Duke's Mixture tobacco. "You know," he said, "I feel kind of

The handlers must travel thousands of miles a year in search of ribbons and kind words from judges (there are few cash prizes and some of the bigger breeds can eat a guy out of house and home), and I've never seen anybody mistreat an animal at a dog show.

And there must be a parable in brotherhood at shows such as Odessa's fall meet that attracted 688 animals of all colors, shapes, sizes and types, ranging from the tiny Chihuahuas and the fancy Lhasa Apsos and Shih Tzus to the scruffy Irish Wolfhounds and the elegant Afghans to the puffbally English Sheepdogs and the authoriative Mastiffs.

The Los Angeles Times

Paying a world record price of $3.25 million, oil industrialist Armand Hammer has purchased Rembrandt's imposing portrait of "Juno" and bequeathed it to the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. It will go on display at the museum in December.

Announcement of the purchase and bequest was made by Hammer at a press conference held Wednesday at New York's Knoedler Gallery, of which he is board chairman. In that capacity he had the "right of first refusal," and thus beat out the Getty Museum which had been willing to pay the same sum Hammer, who is also chairman of Occidental Petroleum Corp., said the asking price originally was $5 million but that it had been reduced. The previous record price for a painting by the 17th Century Dutch master was $2.3 million, which New York's Metropolitan Museum paid in 1961 for "Aristotle Contemplating The Bust of

Now that Howdy Week is over and you've had a rest from pre-season games, are you all ready to get down to district football? Tomorrow is Fifties day - everybody Dress Up!!! Let's get that Bulldog spirit up and start this season right.

Howdy Week went out with a bang. Each class elected favorites from another class. They were announced at the dance as follows: Seniors: Diane Freshour and Phillip Ward; Juniors: Holly Holt and Kiffy Hickey; Sophomores: Patti Howard and Joel Johnson.

The costumes at the dance were great!
Michele Black and Johnny Northington won first prize for the most original costume dressed as grass-skirted African natives. Julie Stoltz and Jeff Rea came in second as the "before" and "after" of Dr. Renee R i c h a r d s Congratulations to all

Also Tuesday night, the Junior Council Board met with representatives from both MHS and LHS Junior Councils.

Tuesday morning the Student Council voted on the homecoming theme. It is "The Circus." Any organization planning to have a car or a float in the parade needs to turn in its name to Mr. Cobb before Tuesday Oct. 12. You better get busy if you're building a float!

The Student Council will start work on their float Saturday Oct. 2 at Mr. Tyra's old gas station next to Burger Chef on Big Spring. We need all the help we can get!

There was a set up for Freshman Cotillion at 4 p.m. at the Youth Center today. If you didn't get to help set up (or even if you did) be there for clean up at 7:30 Friday morning. It's up to you to get the job done and the more the merrier!

Jr. Council Members!!
There will be a council meeting Thursday Oct. 7 at 7:15 a.m. All council members must be there. There are still about 30 members who don't even have Youth Center cards. These cards are mandatory for membership in the Jr. Council Ask Rasco for your card.

The MHS Volleyballers have had quite a busy week playing games in Abeline. San Angelo and Duncanville. These girls have done a great job so far-keep it up!!

YES, ED DARNEU IS THE BEST SHERIFF IN TEXAS!

- ☆ The Texas Law Enforcement Conference honored him as "Texas Outstanding Sheriff."
- ☆ In 1972, in "Men Of Achievement In Texas", he was named "The Outstanding Sheriff In Texas".
- ☆ Sheriffs of the other 253 counties elected him their President.
- ☆ He is nationally recognized as a front-rank leader in the fight against crime.

Ask the young people he has befriended and set on the path to good citizenship.

Ask the elements of organized crime who avoid Midland County because they know its no-nonsense Sheriff won't have them here.

Ask the Senior Citizens, who know he'll come to their aid when they need help, 24 hours a day.

Ask any citizen who knows Ed Darnell: he'll tell you that our Sheriff is an absolute gentleman, a thoroughly honest man, dedicated to keeping Midland the best place in Texas - or anywhere else to live.

Ask any member of any minority group....they know Ed Darnell will treat them fairly; that he will not tolerate brutality.

IN THESE DAYS OF RISING CRIME AND DISREGARD OF THE RIGHTS OF OTHERS, WE NEED THE PROVEN LEADERSHIP THE CALM, EXPERIENCED JUDGMENT ... THE COOL, EVEN TEMPERAMENT OF ED DARNELL - THE BEST SHERIFF IN TEXAS - IN OUR HIGHEST LAW ENFORCEMENT POSITION.

BALTIMORE - The financial records of W. Dale Hess, the millionaire businessman and close friend of Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel, show that beginning in May 1972, Hess wrote monthly checks to someone identified with the initials "M.M.", Hess' accountant testified Tuesday.

Prosecutors have charged that Hess bribed Mandel by giving the governor a secret interest in a firm known as Security Investment, Inc., and funnelled monthly payments from the firm to Mandel. In Hess' records, according to the testimony of Hess' accountant Alfred Norman Sachs, references to the checks were followed by the notation "Sec. Inv."

Time ran out Tuesday in the corruption trial of Mandel before chief federal prosecutor Brent D. Skolnik could ask the accountant if he knew the identities of "M.M." and "Sec. Inv."

It was clear, however, that the prosecution was

About 30 officials testified in support of a Canadian River plan and other such water importation projects at the public forum, the fifth of 22 such hearings scheduled by the Water Development Board.

The hearings are part of the board's effort to gain statewide support for a proposed state constitutional amendment that would increase the board's loan fund from $200 million to $400 million.

The proposed amendment will be on the Nov. 2 general election ballot. Duggan, a Littlefield

WASHINGTON - A 68-page ledger book has drawn renewed interest from the Watergate special prosecutor, who is investigating an alleged 1973 $5,000 Gulf Oil cash contribution to the re-election campaign of Sen. Bob Dole (R-Kan.), according to informed sources.

The ledger purports to record all the cash received and spent during 1973 and 1974 in the Senator's reelection effort. It was kept by Joanne Coe, then Dole's personal secretary Former Gulf lobbyist Claude C. Wild Jr. testified to a grand jury that he gave $5,000 in cash to Dole's then-administrative assistant, William A. Kats. The cashbook shows no listing of a contribution from Wild and Dole, the GOP vice presidential nominee, has cited the book as proof that no Wild contribution was made. Kats has said, "I just don't recall" receiving Gulf

Investigators are attempting to determine whether a Wild contribution was listed on one of the missing pages and whether there were any cash contributions from any source prior to April 1973, and not listed in the cashbook.

A review of the cashbook shows a possible violation of the federal campaign fund reporting laws.

Under the law then in effect, an organization spending cash was required to file in its public reports to the Secretary of the Senate expenditures

Ford vetoes appropriation bill for HEW

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - President Ford Wednesday vetoed a $56.5 billion appropriation bill for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare, calling the measure " ... a perfect example of the triumph of election-year politics over fiscal restraint and responsibility.

It was his 59th veto. An attempt to override it was expected Thursday, and House Speaker Carl Albert said he was confident the House would vote to over-

Other observers were less certain of the outcome. The bill passed both the House and Senate by voice votes and contained money for the fiscal year beginning Friday, the day Congress was scheduled to ad-The lawmakers were still awaiting Mr. Ford's decision whether to sign a public works-jobs bill that had the backing of Democratic Presidential nominee House Democratic Leader Thomas P O'Neill said

Congress would stay in token session beyond Friday if the President decides not to act by the scheduled adjournment time

Mr. Ford said he was sympathetic to the purposes of most of the programs funded by the HEW-Labor bill, and that he supported its restriction on the use of federal funds for abortion. His decision to veto, he said, was based "purely and simply on fiscal integrity ... I have compassion for those who cannot help themselves, but I have compassion for the taxpayers too.

The majority in control of this congress has ignored my reform proposals and added nearly $4 billion in additional spending onto these pro-

The bill contained a ban on federal aid for abortions to low-income women unless their lives were endangered by the pregnancy. The federal government now pays states nearly $50 million a year to finance abortions for about 300,000 low-income women under the Medicaid program

Chairman Brock Adams (D-Wash.) of the House Budget Committee said he feared the veto could break the back of the nation's slow economic upturn. "The current recovery from the Nixon-Ford recession is fragile enough as it is," he said.

House Speaker Albert said the veto "underscores his (Mr. Ford's) total lack of compassion for the most vulnerable members of our society."

Majority leader O'Neill said, "anyone who doubt's Gerald Ford's total insensitivity to people has only to look at the programs this legislation finances. This bill is a catalogue of the unfortunate.'

Deputy Whip John Brademas (D-Ind.) called the veto "a shameful assault by President Ford on people least able to fend for themselves."

The President's veto message anticipated such attacks. "The partisan political purpose of this bill is patently clear," the message said. "It is to present me with the choice of vetoing these inflationary increases and apearing heedless of some of the human needs which these federal programs were intended to meet, or to sign the measure and demonstrate inconsistency with my previous anti-inflationary vetoes on behalf of the American taxpayer."

The President repeated his frequently voiced view that "this Congress has ignored my reform proposals and added nearly $4 billion in additional spending onto these programs."

The bill contained $46.5 billion for Hew and $10 billion for the Labor Department.

Congress to consider Ford's veto

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress, seeking to wrap up its business and go home for the year, is voting on whether to override a presidential veto and whether to extend the federal revenue-sharing program.

The revenue-sharing package emerged Wednesday as the key that will determine whether Congress meets its weekend deadline for adjournment. President Ford said Wednesday he will sign or veto two different jobs bills only after Congress acts on the revenue-sharing bill that Ford is seeking.

The House today takes up Ford's veto on Wednesday of a $56.6-billion appropriation bill for the departments of Health, Education and Welfare and Labor. Ford said the bill was $4 billion more than he requested and was inflationary.

The two jobs bills awaiting presidential action are a $3.7billion measure for public works construction and legislation extending 260,000 public service jobs in state and local governments through the coming fiscal year. Because these bills will be killed by a pocket veto if Congress adjourns and Ford doesn't act 10 days after he received them, supporters of the measures want Ford to sign or veto them. If Ford vetoes them, Congress then could attempt an override before adjourning this weekend. Ford said Wednesday he will make decisions on the two bills if Congress approves the revenue-sharing bill that comes before the House today. That measure would provide $25.5 billion in federal revenue-sharing funds to cities, states and counties through 1980.

House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill said Wednesday that Congress will stay in session beyond Friday if that is necessary to prevent a pocket veto.

The veto of the HEW-Labor bill was Ford's 59th in his 49 months in office. Of the 59, Congress has An override attempt failed Wednesday when the Senate sustained Ford's veto of a bill authorizing $100 million for research to develop automobiles that would pollute less and burn less fuel. The House voted to override but the Senate failed to do so. Congress also took these other actions Wednesday:

JOBLESS BENEFTS

The unemployment tax on employers would be doubled and jobless benefits would be extended to all state and local government workers, under a bill approved by the Senate. The measure now goes to a conference with the House, which has approved a bill that is similar but which also extends unemployment compensation to farm workers and many domestics.

The Senate bill also would make it impossibile for a person to draw both a retirement check and full unemployment benefits.

Another unemployment bill won final congressional action when the House approved a three-year, $4.8-billion extension of programs to help regions with high unemployment.

The Senate approved and sent to the House a bill that supporters say will help citizens enforce their civil rights. The measure would permit courts to order losing defendants to pay attorneys fees to private citizens who bring successful suits to enforce their civil rights. The measure also says courts may award attorney's fees to taxpayers who prevail in civil suits brought against them by the Internal Revenue Service

SWAMPS AND DUNES

Final congressional action was given to a 3,662acre expansion of the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore along Lake Michigan and to plans to create the Congaree Swamp National Monument in South Carolina. Both bills now go to President Ford.

FLOOD CONTROL

The House passed and sent to the Senate legislation to authorize $993 million worth of flood control and water resources programs. Forty-four projects in 27 states would be authorized money under the bill, subject to appropriations.

The program empowers the Army Corps of Engineers to establish wetland areas to reduce the loss of such preserves, to fight beach erosion by adding new sand, and to assess waterway 4mprovements to determine what is needed and what already has been done.

LIVESTOCK CREDIT The House voted to extend the Livestock Credit Act of 1974 for 21 months and sent the approval to the Senate. The act provides for government guarantees of 90 per cent of the principal and interest on private loans up to $350,000.

The loans would be made to livestock producers who have suffered economic hardship and are unable to obtain private financing needed to stay in

RAILROAD CLAIMS

Senate-House conferees agreed on legislation that would assure prompt payment to persons holding financial claims against the Penn Central and other financially ailing railroads in the Northeast. The bill now goes to both chambers, where passage is expected, although Transportation Secretary William Coleman says President Ford might veto it.

Palestinians suffer losses

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Syrian troops and tanks forced Palestinian guerrillas out of a 20-square-mile salient east of Beirut today in a major loss for the guerrillas and their Lebanese leftist allies in Lebanon's civil war.

A guerrilla communique conceded the fall of all positions held by Palestinians and Moslem leftist militia north of the vital Beirut-Damascus highway.

Witnesses said said only sporadic shots were heard in the area as Syrian forces mopped up in pine woods on the slopes of Mount Lebanon, a resort area 15 miles east of the capital.

The two-day Syrian operation touched off a new flurry of Arab mediation efforts to arrange negotiations for an overall settlement of the sectarian conflict. Arab League mediator Hassan Sabri Kholi traveled to Damascus with an offer from the guerrilla-leftist alliance to negotiate an immediate ceasefire with the Syrians and rightwing Lebanese Christians. Sources close to the Egyptian mediator said he was empowered by the leftists to offer a new formula to regulate the guerrilla military presence in Lebanon. Right-wing Christian commanders vowed to carry the war into traditionally Moslem territory unless guerrillas turn over their heavy arms and return to refugee camps in Lebanon.

The Syrian mountain push has secured the southern border of the 800-square mile Christian enclave along the Beirut-Damascus highway and extends a Syrian buffer zone between Moslem-and Christian-populated territory to within 10 miles of Beirut.

'THE major problem'

Visit most any of the smaller cities in West Texas, and perhaps in other sections of the state, and one quickly determines that the shortage of medical doctors continues to be acute.

State Rep. Fred Head of Troup terms it "the major problem facing state government.

He is anxious to do something about it, even to the extent of drafting new Texas doctors to practice in rural areas rather than in big city hospitals.

Head plans to introduce a bill in the next session of the legislature requiring 20 per cent of each first year medical class to sign a contract to serve several years in rural areas.

"Let us contract to go to the country." Head said in stressing the seriousness of the situation.

He said that people talk about spending and taxing, "but when you can't find a doctor and you're sick, it makes all the other problems seem pretty mild."

He cited one small town in East Texas which has tried unsuccessfully for 15 years to get a FHe explained that once the 20 per cent requirement had supplied enough doctors for rural areas, he would sponsor another bill to repeal his prior bill.

This is something to think about. Whether it can or will be done remains to be seen, but all the angles certainly should be studied.

In this connection, Kenneth Ashworth, Texas' higher education commissioner, has said that the state invests $150,000 in each medical student in Texas. This is a tidy sum, certainly, but, at the same time, a most worthwhile and rewarding in-

Ashworth, however, is said to prefer other methods before using what he termed an authoritarian

He prefers financial incentives and suggests state funding of residencies to keep medical graduates in Texas.

"When graduates cannot find a residency program, they leave," Ashworth said, adding, "You might say that Texas is subsidizing health care delivery in other states.'

This is another point to think about in considering the overall problem. Working out some method to interest graduates in practicing in Texas would be a tremendous help in many ways. If it can be done on a voluntary basis, so much the better.

The next session of the legislature, convening in January, will have an abundance of problems, and this will be one of the major ones.

The average soldier

WASHINGTON - I keep wracking my brain trying to think what the Great Debate between Jerry Ford and Jimmy Carter could have used, and the only thing I keep coming up with is Howard Cosell. Had Howard been the sole questioner, it's doubtful that anyone would have called the confrontation between the two presidential candidates boring.

This is the way it would have gone if the League of Women Voters had had the good sense to turn over the debate to America's favorite sportscaster:

"My first question is to you, Mr. President. Why did you pardon a crook who admitted to obstructing justice while he held the highest office in the land?"

"Well, Howard, I thought he had suffered enough. He had been forced to resign from the highest office in the land and I believed that was punishment enough.

"A likely story, Mr. President, but I just can't buy it. I know for a fact that Gen. Al Haig came to you and proposed a pardon for Nixon before Tricky Dick offered to resign. But that's neither here nor there. My next question is to you, Mr. Carter. What makes you think you have the experience and ability to be President of the United States after the mess you perpetrated in Georgia when you lived in the governor's mansion?'

"I didn't leave a mess in Georgia. When I became governor there were 200 separate bureaus and...

"Ladies and gentlemen, as you are aware, we lost the sound for the past 28 minutes which, in my personal opinion, was a blessing. There doesn't seem to be any necessity to continue this discussion because it certainly wasn't the type of debate we had been led to believe it would be. Let's be honest. It was a dreary 90 minutes of shadow boxing, the likes of which I haven't seen since Muhammad Ali fought Chilblain Semko in Finland in 1969. I'm sorry to have to say this, but I have to tell it like it is.'

Chamber approves water resolution

By DEBBIE PIERCE

The Midland Chamber of Commerce board Wednesday approved a resolution favoring the Texas Water Development Board's plan of importing water into this region and the issuance of $400 million in Texas Water Development bonds.

The bonds could be used for water treatment plants, to drill for wells, storage plants, water transmission lines and reser-

Chamber directors also learned that Kent Frizzell, undersecretary of the Department of the Interior, will be in Midland Oct. 6 for an informal session with representatives of the oil industry and a press conference.

Midland County Com-missioner Durward Wright announced to the board the county had replaced 32 voting machines due to the possibility of mechanical failure, and had bought 32 more at a cost of about $29,000.

Col. Wilson Banks, city aviation director, brought the board up to date on recent happenings in the aviation field in Midland.

Banks said the runway extension project at Midland Regional Air Terminal would cost about $3.6 million, of which the city's share would be $360,838. He said the project would enable air carriers to make a longer haul with a higher pay load" and should next 10 to 15 years.

Also, the improvements in the air carrier ramp parking area would cost $2.7 million, of which the city's share would be $272,383. Both these projects would be financed through an earlier bond issue for airport improvements, he said, leaving about $1.2 million to be used by the city council for other desired airport improvements.

Banks said the city council has spent about $402,000 since 1973 on improvements at Air Park. Included in these improvements are T-hangars, maintenance hangars and a rotating beacon, he said.

The aviation director also described the Terminal building expansion plans, with an estimated cost of $4.7 million. However, he said, this figure is closer to $4.8 million or $4.9 million, since space for a third carrier is not included in the Banks said, "There's room for federal participation in Terminal improvements, but the city doesn't know how much it will be able to get yet."

He said the city had asked for about $3 million for the project. The funds would come from a users fee, the eight per cent tax placed on each air ticket. That users fee, he said, is placed into a trust fund and handled by the federal government, though the funds themselves actually come from the citizens.

Someone on ethics committee may have leaked secret report

WASHINGTON (AP) - The final House Ethics Committee report on the Daniel Schorr case reportedly suggests that Schorr's source for the House intelligence report was someone connected with Congress rather than with the Ford administration.

The Ethics Committee, meeting in closed session Wednesday, approved the final report on the $150,000 investigation into who leaked the House intelligence committee's final report to Schorr.

Members said the report does not suggest the specific indentity of the person who might have leaked the report to Schorr or even narrow the number of possibilities to a few identifiable people.

But one member said the Ethics Committee report suggests the leak most likely came from someone connected with the House intelligence committee because the version published in the Village Voice in February does not match the two versions that the intelligence committee distributed among administration officials.

The member said, however, that Schorr still could have been leaked the report by someone in the administration who in turn had received it from someone connected with the intelligence committee.

Schorr, who resigned this week as a CBS correspondent, has said he provided a copy of the intelligence report to the Village Voice, a New York weekly. He has refused to tell the committee who leaked it to him.

At the time of the publication, several of President Ford's aides blamed the intelligence committee for the leak and harshly denounced the panel's asserted inability to keep secrets. But some committee members said it could have been ministration to make the committee look bad, although they did not know Ethics Chairman John Flynt, D-Ga., and Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., a panel member, have said they believe they know who leaked the report but that they cannot name the person because there is no proof.

However, Bennett and other members said the final Ethics Committee report does not suggest that the probe tracked down the

Meanwhile, the University of California at Berkeley announced that Schorr will teach journalism next spring at the school. He will present informal l ectures and direct seminars and also discuss the impact of television on American life, the schoolsaid. Schorr will be paid $10,000 for the quarte :r.

Schorr, 60, was suspended with pay last February by CBS after the House Ethics Committee began its investigation. He resigned from the network e arlier this week, saying his return to, active status with CBS would cre ate tensions there. His CBS pay, reported to be between $50,000 and $70,0 00 annually, will continues until the e nd of 1978.

DEL RIO, Tex. (AP) - A 19- yearold man who served as a lookout during a daring Mexican jail break said he thought he was working for the U.S. Government during the commando-style raid that freed 14

American prisoners. Billy Jack Blackwell, one of three Dallas men accused of conspiracy in connection with an attack on the Piedras Negras, Mexico, jail, said he was nervous during the raid "because it was the first time I had worked for the government.

Blackwell, Sterling Davis Sr., and William McCoy Hill Jr. are on trial in U.S. District Court for conspiracy to export a sawed-off shotgun from the United States during the March 11

Hill and Davis are being tried on other related charges Blackwell testified as a defense witness Wednesday after federal prosecutors rested their case. Donald Fielden, a 29-year-old ex-Marine who admittedly masterminded the jailbreak, was the government's star witness.

Fielden pleaded guilty earlier to conspiring to export a weapon and could be sentenced to a maximum of five years in prison. Blackwell, who completed the 11th grade in Dallas but said he could neither read or write, said Hill recruited him for the job. He said Hill told him he would be working for the government and that there would be nothing illegal involved. Blackwell said Hill was a good friend and "I beleve everything he says. He's never lied to me. He said it was kind of like going to war with He said he was promised and paid $500 to transmit radio messages to Hill and Fielden during the raid. Blackwell described his role in the breakout this way:

'I was just suppose to walk across that bridge and tell them (Hill and Fielden) how many policemen were

> After the prisoners were freed Blackwell said he rode across the international bridge to Texas in a car with Hill, Fielden, and two of the freed prisoners. They stopped in the middle of the bridge and threw a sawed-off shotgun and other items into the Rio Grande > Fielden testified earlier Wednesday that he masterminded the raid at the request of Davis to free his son.

Fielden said Davis offered him $5,000 plus expenses to "break his son out of the Mexican jail. Fielden, a chubby, Vietnam war veteran, testified he traveled from Dallas to Piedras Negras last February. He also met the younger Davis in the jail. After viewing the facility, Fielden said he decided he needed another man "to watch my back while I was freeing the prisoners.

He said he returned to Dallas and hired Hill, a used car salesman. Fielden said he paid Hill $5,000—the entire amount he was promised for the job-for his role in the raid. Hill and fielden both traveled to the Mexican jail again, and, according to Fielden, Hill suggested a third man be hired as a lookout for the raid.

Fielden said they returned to Dallas and Hill hired Blackwell for $500. Fielden, who at one time said he had lost money on the job, said in court he has realized more than $38,000 from the episode, including a $25,000 advance from a movie production company He said he also received $25,000 from the freed prisoners or their families, including Davis, but paid $12,500 to Hill.

He has received another $1,000 in various promotional schemes. Fielden said he and Hill were under the impression that no U.S. laws would be broken during the raid as long as no one was hurt. Mexico has asked for extradition of Fielden, Hill and Blackwell to face charges in that country.

Fielden, by paying Hill the entire $5,000 he received from Davis, said he was "making a gamble." "I was counting on the other prisoners being thankful and paying me for getting them out," he said of his apparently successful tactic.

Under cross examination, Fielden agreed that by pleading guilty to one charge and becoming a prosecution witness he had spared himself a possible 15 extra years in prison now faced by Hill and Davis and had made a big

COMPREHENSIVE ANNUAL SERVICES PROGRAM PLAN FOR TEXAS October 1, 1976 to September 30, 1977

The Texas social services program helps residents support and take care of themselves, adjust to independent living, and offers them

SERVICES OFFERED-The services include but are not limited to day care and protective services for children and for adults (including homemaker and chore services, and family care), and family planning. Most of the services will be available throughout Texas, but some may be limited to pilot projects, and others may be limited by funds. Some of the services may be expanded as funds become available. WHO IS ELIGIBLE?—Recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), Supplemental Security Income (SSI), and qualified Medicaid recipients are eligible for these services. Some services will be given people in need whose incomes are below 60 percent of the state's median income. (For example, the ncome of a family of four must be less than $696 monthly.)

Some services for aged, blind, or disabled adults (ABD) will be median income. (For example, a single adult's income must be less than $392 monthly whether he or she lives alone or with other non-dependent persons.)

SOURCES OF ESTIMATED FUNDS-Maximum Federal funds for Texas: $142,500,000; total budget for 1976-77: $187,545,708. Source: Federal $142,500,000; State $33,802,485; local and donated $5,078,258; certified public expenditures $6,194,965.

EXPLANATION OF DIFFERENCES-The proposed Title XX plan was published on July 2, 1976. Changes in the final plan reflect the most recent estimates of those to be served and program cost, and comments received during the 45-day comment period. Following is a summary of the major differences between the proposed and final Title XX services plan:

• Section I-An organizational chart of the DPW State Office 78701.

There is more information prepared by the Texas State Department of Public Welfare in regarding the use of Title IV-B funds in providing child welfares services. • Section II-Technical changes were made in the organization of some programs to coincide with DFW's appropriations requests for 1978-79. No new services were aidded, and no services were:

• Section III, IV, V-Changes in the estimates of expenditures and clients to be served in the 1976; program year, and publice comment had a significant effect on the estimated expenditures for the 1977 program year. 1. The estimated available non-fed-eral funds decreased from $45.1 million to $45 million, reducing the total estimated expenditures from $187.6 million to $187.5 million. 2. There was an increase in the estimated expenditure for several services, including adoption, emergency homemaker, family planning, chore, family car e, homemaker, day activity, home-delivered or congregate meals, community care, halfan way houses, and 24-hour care.

3. There was a decrease in the estimated expenditures for several services including protective services for children and for adults, emergency shelter, clay care, emergency family services, transitional and outreach i services. • Section VI—The major revisions in the list of contract agencies include an update of the number of clients to be served

There hasn't been a beer sold legally in this town in its 83-year history. Sales of other alcoholic beverages also are illegal.

And all but 10 of the registered voters in this 414-member community 35 miles south of Dallas voted Tuesday to keep it

The drys had it 129 to 86 in what residents say was the town's biggest voter turnout bigger than any city council or school board election

Election judge D.F. Burgess said of the turnout, "The elderly and the crippled turned out to vote and maybe some of the wets didn't care enough to

"There's no harm in a man drinking a can of beer if he takes it home. But you know one things leads to another. A man will go from beer to some hard stuff and later will end up on Dry proponents, who formed an organization called Citizens Against Beer, warned local reidents that Venus would become the only wet spot in Johnson County. They said everybody in the county would flock to Venus for beer, and they claimed police would have to be hired because the town would no longer be safe for children.

But City Councilman James Flatt, who supported the sale of beer, saw it as a way to raise tax money for a new park and road

"People here just don't realize how this defeat will hurt the town financially." Flatt bemoaned

"I don't think we will try to come back soon with another election. If it had been 10 votes or so we would have come back in 90 days."

Flatt might be sad, but he won't be able to go home and cry

Ford's inaccessibility attacked

By The Associated Press

Jimmy Carter is taking his campaign back on the road as President Ford considers calling a news con-ference where he could be asked about reports that the Watergate special prosecutor is investigating whether Ford illegally diverted campaign contributions.

Carter was returning to the campaign trail today after two days of rest and strategy planning, mixed with some study on foreign policy issues for next Thursday night's debate with Ford.

For Ford, the schedule called for a resumption of his campaign strategy of remaining in Washington, in the White House.

But an administration source said late Wednesday that Ford is discussing with advisers the possibility of holding a news conference. The source said such a news conference could be held today or Friday.

Both the vice presdential candidates, Republican Bob Dole and Democrat Walter Mondale, were campaigning in Pennsylvania today.

The White House has consistently refused any comment on reports of the Watergate prosecutor's probe into the records of the Republican organization in Ford's old congressional district in Michigan.

Ford spokesman Ron Nessen was asked about the reports at briefing sessions both Tuesday and Wednesday, but refused to comment. On Wednesday, Nessen said, "We see no reason to answer a question on a charge that has not been made."

But Carter increasingly has been pointing with criticism to the White House silence and Ford's inaccessibility for reporter's questions. Mondale suggested Wednesday that Ford should answer questions about the investigation and about financing of his congressional campaigns. Before launching today's trip to the Northeast, Carter renewed his criticism of Ford for seeking votes from behind the White House gate.

And he challenged Ford to meet reporters and discuss the Watergate prosecutor's investigation that published reports say centers on whether Ford, while a congressman, 'laundered' campaign contributions through his local GOP organization and diverted the funds to his own use.

The Democratic nominee said Nessen took "a step in the right direction" when the White House press secretary said Ford had accepted three golfing trips and two other outings from U.S. Steel Corp. and that he had played golf on courses owned by three other corporations.

Regarding Ford's corporate golf outings, Carter said standards were less stringent before Watergate and that he does not think Ford violated the law. He added: "I hope the revelations are complete."

Carter said he accepted partial payment of expenses from foreign governments when he traveled as Georgia governor on promotional tours for his state. But he said his trips were "strictly business" and that there was no recreation or personal benefit from them. And, he said, 'They were highly publicized."

He said that as governor he also traveled on corporate planes, but that he was on state business and the trips were always publicized At home in Plains, Ga., on Wednesday, Carter compared his campaign with Ford's.

Ford has made only two campaign trips outside Washington, a one-day flight to his alma mater in Michigan and a three-day jaunt through Carter's native South. Ford plans a trip to the West next week before the Thursday debate in San Francisco.

Carter characterized his own campaign style as one of "total ac-cessibility," while saying Ford is "continuing the sort of private campaign that was conducted by Mr. Nixon in 1968 and 1972."

Although Carter says he feels his type of campaign is best, he is holding fewer informal airport news conferences than he once did, and he's been advised by aides to be more cautious when answering questions because some of his remarks have proven controversial. Mondale spoke Wednesday night to the United Mine Workers in Cincinnati, Ohio, where he attacked Ford's economic policies.

Noting Ford's claim to have turned the economy around, Mondale said, "He certainly has. He's turned it straight down. All of his rosy predictions have been belied by the facts." Meanwhile, at a $125-a-plate GOP fundraising dinner Wednesday night in Chicago, Dole said he did not know whether Richard Nixon was guilty of wrongdoing in the Watergate scandal.

'Everybody in the country's now going to ask is he innocent or guilty? Well, I don't know," Dole told the Republicans. But earlier in the day he had told a Chicago television interviewer that "I don't think he was inno-

Commenting on reports that Nixon proclaims his innocence in his yet-tobe-published memoirs, Dole said, "I think the author is trying to promote that book, and I guess if everybody in the country comments on whether this happens or that happens it might improve the sales.' Aides later said that they did not, think Dole intended to imply that Nixon either had a role in leaking information about his memoirs or was engaged in promoting his book.

Coincidence confounds court

It turned out that after Richard Donald Jaggers Jr. paid a fine for running a stop light some time ago, he was mistakenly told he had to appear on the drunken driving and speeding

Those charges actually were intended for Richard David Jaggers Jr. When court adjounred, D. for David had paid a $150 fine and D. for Donald left with neither fine nor sentence.

Former FBI official gets investigation

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Justice Department is investigating allegations that John P. Mohr, former No. 3 man in the FBI's executive hierarchy, had a $5,000 wine rack built in his home by FBI personnel using government-owned materials.

These allegations represent the first specific example of possible wrongdoing involving Mohr to become known since the Justice Department launched a probe early this year of financial "abuses of power" within the FBI.

Mohr's lawyer, Brian P. Gettings, said Wednesday night that the story is "absolutely false." Gettings said that in October, 1969, Mohr was given a wine rack as a gift by his associates and subordinates in the FBI's administrative division to mark his 30th anniversary with the bureau.

Gettings described the rack as 50 inches by 48 inches and said, "It's no big deal, certainly not $5,000. He added that Mohr does not know where the rack was made or purchased.

The investigation is centered on charges that some FBI officials misused funds or property during and immediately after the final years of the late director. J. Edgar Hoover, who died in May 1972. Mohr, a Hoover confidant who retired shortly afterward as head of the bureau's powerful administrative division, is known to have been a target of the probe from its outset.

Informed sources said Wednesday that information about the wine rack was furnished by John P. Dunphy, former chief of the FBI's exhibits section and a key witness in the investigation.

Dunphy, a 28-year FBI veteran, was forced to resign his $37,800-a-year position last month and then pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of misappropriating less than $100 worth of FBI-owned material to build a bird house at his home. He was fined $500 Tuesday by Chief Judge William B. Jones of U.S. District Court here.

The sources said Dunphy had described the wine rack as covering almost an entire wall of Mohr's Arlington, Va., home and had estimated its commercial value at approximately $5,000. He said the rack had been built by carpenters from the exhibits section, the sources added.

Asked about Dunphy's information, Gettings said. He may have built it and has things screwed up. Gettings conjectured that Dunphy may think the rack he built went to Mohr when in fact it went to someone else

If, as Gettings contended, the incident took place more than five years ago, the statute of limitations on federal offenses would probably preclude any attempt to charge Mohr with misappropriating government funds or property.

Prior to his 1972 retirement, Mohr was regarded by many FBI sources as probably the most powerful man in the bureau. Many contend that during Hoover's final years in office - a period when both the director and his titular chief deputy, Clyde A. Tolson, were seriously ill — Mohr ran the FBI.

Even after the current director, Clarence M. Kelley, took office in July 1973, most of his top appointments were regarded within the bureau as Mohr loyalists, and Kelley has been plagued throughout his administration by rumors that Mohr continued to exert great influence over FBI affairs.

Women can take stress better on job—expert

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The social stress of a daily job, long thought to be responsible for the susceptibility of men to heart disease, has not had the same effect on women, says an expert in coronary

Dr. William Hazzard, a researcher at the University of Washington, told a symposium of the American Heart Association Wednesday that although more and more women are facing the pressures of the working world, they still have a "remarkable resistance to coronary disease" and now outlive men longer than ever. The new evidence has left researchers baffled about female resistance to coronary disease. Hazzard said another popular theory, that the female hormone estrogen helped combat heart disease, has recently been discounted.

Brothers wed in double ceremony

Danny Cessna married Pamela Jane Carrow and Julie Anette Crocker became the bride of Max T Cessna in a double wedding ceremony read Saturday in the First Apostolic

The brothers are sons of the Rev. Lowell Cessna and the late Mrs. Cessna. Mrs. Max Cessna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Crocker of Route 4 and Mrs. Danny Cessna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Carrow of Morley Mo.

Rev. Cessna, pastor of First Apostolic Church, officiated the vows. Denise Floyd, organist and vocalist, provided nuptial music. She is a cousin of Mrs. Max Cessna.

Mrs. Max Cessna was presented in marriage by her father. She was formally gowned in a traditional sheer bridal crepe enhanced with Cluny lace and bridal pearls. The fitted bodice featured a tucked yoke, lace ring neckline and Bishop sleeves with panels of lace gathered to a deep lace cuff edged with a lace ruffle. The yoke was outlined in lace, which extended over the shoulders and to the waist. A lace ruffle was attached to the lace panels creating a pinafore design. Lace also trimmed the waistline. The A-line skirt featured two lace panels continuing from the bodice and flowing to the deep lace edged double flounce hemline. Soft fullness in the back formed the chapel-length train.

Cocido: this soup-stew comes from sunny Spain

By CECILY BROWNSTONE AP Food Editor

Cocido, a Spanish soup-stew, has recently come into great favor at our house. Once you try it, you too may want to offer it regularly.

We enjoy serving Cocido for a light supper during the week or on Sunday. It's so easy to have ready to heat and put on the table. With the Cocido you need lots of crusty bread and sweet butter; after it, salad and perhaps cheese, then dessert.

Yams or sweet potatoes are often used in Cocido and classic recipes call for adding them to the pot during the last 20 minutes or so of cooking. When we tried this, we found the solid pieces in the soup-stew stuck to the bottom of the pot. Now we steam the yams separately and add them along with their sweet juices. You'll find directions for doing this in the following recipe which is strictly our own version of the dish.

COCIDO U.S.A 1/2 pound chorizo, sliced 1/4-inch thick (pork sausage, specially seasoned, available in some supermarkets and specialty food shops)

11/2 pounds chuck beef for stew, 1inch cubes 1 large (34 to 1 pound) Spanish onion, coarsely chopped

2 medium carrots, pared and thinly sliced 1 can (1 pound) peeled plum tomatoes, undrained 2 tablespoons instant beef cups water 1 can (1 pound, 5 ounces) chick peas, undrained 34 to 1 pound yams (pared and cut into 2-inch chunks). steamed according to note

Salt and pepper to taste

granules dissolved in 5

In a 5-quart saucepot lightly brown the chorizo; remove with a slotted spoon. To drippings in saucepot add beef and brown briskly; just before beef has finished browning, add onion and stir to brown lightly. Add carrots, tomatoes and beef bouillon; simmer, covered, until beef is tender — about 11/2 hours. Chill; remove some of the hardened fat according to the note below. Add chick peas and the steamed yams and their juices plus salt and pepper; reheat. Serve in large soup bowls as a main dish. Makes 6 servings.

(Note: For steaming the yams you need a steamer with a solid bottom or you need to concoct one. The steamer we use was once called a "bungalow cooker," and it was the late Elsie Masterton (author of the Blueberry Hill Cookbooks) who first sang its virtues. This steamer has an upper pan with a solid bottom and perforations at the top of its sides. However, there are many ways to improvise a solidbottom steamer. Mary Greene, our recipe tester, uses our recipe for Cocido at home and improvises this way: she puts a rack in the bottom of a large saucepot and stands a heatproof bowl on therack. Into the bowl goes a colander (with legs or a pedestal bottom) and the yams go into the bowl. She pours water into the saucepot, making sure there is enough for steaming but not so much that it will flow into the bowl. The pot is covered tightly and the water is kept boiling while the yains cooks Yams, pared and cut into 2 inch chunks, usually take from 10 to 20 minutes to steam. Removing fat: Enough of the fat must be left to give good flavor without having the soupstew greasy We remove most of the fat, then add more as the cocido heats, tasting and

FOOD QUESTIONS

By MINNIE BERNARDINO The Los Angeles Times

Question - In early July I made apricot jam, sealed it in jars topped with wax and stored them in the cupboard. A month later, I found the liquid had pushed up on top of the wax. Is this due to the great heat we had and has the fruit fermented so that it is unsafe? About half the numbers of jars I put up did not leak throughout the wax.

Answer - The leaking of the jam meant that the wax could have been improperly placed, not sealing the jam completely or the jam could have been too hot when the wax was applied. Dr. Genevieve Ho. Home Adviser for the University of California Agricultural Extension Service, suggests putting the wax on after the jam has cooled off slightly. (The hot steam stops any foreign organism action, but just in case you may shield the jam with a light covering like a napkin or wax paper.) She also advised pouring the wax very slowly in a thin stream in a circular motion, slightly rotating the jar to let the wax cover and seal the whole jam surface completely. A quick pouring motion might let some of the wax sink through the jam The jams that had leakage will still be safe but we recommend using them as soon as possible.

Q. I have a slow cooker in which I cook frozen stew meat and vegetables at the lowest setting all day. Is there any danger that before the meat is completely cooked enough bacteria could incubate to make the meat unsafe to eat? Will the period of time between thawing and rare cooking stage make one sick? Your answer to this question will help me very much as putting the meat in while frozen is easier for me

A. According to Dr. Genevieve Ho. the long period of cooking the frozen meat in the slow cooker will invite bacterial growth. However. as long as the internal temperature of 185 degrees at which microorganisms are destroyed is obtained, the beef will be safe. Ho also advises following all directions and cooking time recommended by the slow cooker manufacturer.

Peanut Carrots Fondant garnishes carrot cakes

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

Our inspiration came from a pamphlet we treasure: "How to Grow the Peanut and 105 Ways of Preparing It for Human Consumption" by George Washington Carver, published about 50 years ago at Tuskegee Institute where the famous scientist carried on his work. In his booklet there's a recipe for Peanut Carrot Fudge that inspired the following rule for an uncooked peanut carrot fondant from which to fashion delightful garnishes.

PEANUT CARROTS FONDANT 3 medium carrots, each about 7 inches long 4-cup creamy peanut butter

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened 1 egg yolk, from a large brown egg

Parsley or carrot-top sprigs

Pare carrots and quarter; with a small sharp knife cut away palecolored inside core portion. (These cores are good to eat raw.) Steam the deep yellow outside portion until very tender; drain and dry on paper toweling. Puree in an electric blender or press through a fine-mesh strainer. There will be a generous 1-3rd cup; use ¼ cup of this puree — the extra may be used in a soup.

In the large bowl of an electric mixer at medium speed, thoroughly beat together the ¼ cup carrot puree, peanut butter, butter, egg yolk, vanilla and salt. Reserve 1/2 cup of the sugar. Into the carrot mixture, at low speed, beat in the remaining sugar, one-third at a time and keeping smooth. Sprinkle the reserved 1/2 cup

Insert tiny sprigs of parsley in the tops of those carrots you are using right away. Wrap the unused garnishes in plastic wrap and store in the freezer; thaw when needed and insert the parsley tops just before using. To decorate a carrot cake, brush its top with a confectioners' sugar glaze and arrange the minature carrots over the glaze; you can use 12 for a cake baked

Meal in one dish

Copley News Service Create more of the easy-to-serve dishes that are at the same time easy on the heart. Create a meal in one dish with approved lowcholesterol, lowsaturated fat ingredients. Double or triple the recipe so that you can serve your family dinner and freeze the rest for a busier day

Generally, it is most satisfactory to freeze casseroles before baking. Bake thawed casserole according to recipe directions, increasing baking time by about 30 minutes. You can bake while still frozen, but allow twice as much baking time at least.

 For frozen casseroles, noodles, macaroni, spaghetti and rice should be slightly undercooked - and vegetables should be tender-crisp.

It's best not to freeze casseroles containing potatoes, as the texture may become watery.

3. Casseroles made with chicken, fish or meat may be stored at zero degrees for two to four months.

Go easy on seasonings - some ingredients such as garlic, pepper and celery intensify during freezing. You can always add more later on, if necessary.

5. To save casserole expense, line a freezer-tooven dish with heavy duty foil. Pour in the casserole and freeze solid. When frozen, remove the foil package and the casserole dish can be reused. Remove foil from frozen mixture and return to same casserole to bake.

6. Date each package and label contents. You'll find it helpful to list number of servings or amount of contents. Don't depend on your memory!

Book gives expert hints on restoring antiques

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures

Tag sale enthusiasts are beginning to take a long look at some of the great buys they made during the height of the summer season when such events take on the competitive glamor of bargain ba. .nent sales.

Never mind the handsome bird cage that needs a bird — what to do about the chipped pitcher, the cabinet without a key, the damaged papier mache tilt top table?

In an unusual approach to such repairs, authority George Grotz passes on many trade secrets in "The Antique Restorers Handbook.' Directions are not pat for amateurs some may need to be reread several times before proceeding — but he tells it like it is. Best of all, he tells where some of the magic mending materials may be obtained

For example, a locked drawer in a cabinet might be reached by removing the dust boards from the back of the case and prying out the back of the drawer so the lock can be reached. That is a good professional tip which might not readily occur to the amateur refinisher

In mending papier mache - it might be the black kind that was molded during the Victorian era - he suggests white glue "which the paper will suck in" and which has correct pliability for the purpose. After the piece has been stabilized with glue. cracks can be filled in with black shellac sticks or black wax. This is a very simple solution to what might appear at first glance to be irreparable damage requiring the services of "an expert" if you are lucky enough to locate one.

As for repairing ceramics, it is for "the kind of people who like to wear close-up magnifying glasses, even a jeweler's glass and work slowly and painstakingly." It isn't to be sluffed off in a quick operation, but he tells how to do it.

For cleaning old prints, etchings and other printed matter, there are a number of techniques that might be used to remove various stairs.

As a first step he suggests the discoloring might be nothing more than surface dirt. After first dusting it with a soft brush, you use an eraser made of soft, moist bread. Any cheap, spongy bread will do, he explained. It should be soggy enough for easy handling. Knead about eight slices into a ball, making it a little moister with water if necessary, so you can get a hard roll to move across the paper. This should erase surface dirt without disturbing the print or picbleaching the remaining stain with hydrogen peroxide which is applied with a fine-pointed brush. Directions for additional bleaches are given in the event that doesn't work.

Grotz gives directions for removing brown foxing (mildew) spots caused by spores which feed on paper in moist conditions, and he tells how to remove the black stains made by inks having soot or other carbons in them.

In providing directions for restoring furniture finishes, Grotz gets away from the traditional seven coats of shellac, seven sandings method. After cleaning the old finish by scrubbing the surface with a wet cloth and wiping it dry, douse it with mineral spirits with a rag to remove any wax or oil. Wipe it dry (hard) with paper towels. Repeat process twice, getting into carvings with an old toothbrush. (A crazed surface should be treated with a nailbrush used over the entire surface.) Dry the piece for five minutes before trying to reamalgamate it.

It is possible to reamalgamate because for 200 years, until 1900, shellac was used on all furniture, he maintains.

Mix a cup of denatured alcohol in a bowl, add one ounce of lacquer thinner and brush it lightly on the wood with a clean brush. The shellac dissolves as you brush it on as if you were brushing on fresh shellac. Dry finish overnight in dry room (avoid dampness). The following day, polish the piece to smoothness with steel wool, wax it with paste wax. If the old shellac has been brushed too thin in some areas, spray a coat of clear dull lacquer over it or, after buffing with steel wool, apply a coat of varnish over the shellac.

Professionals use padding lacquer when they reamalgamate, he insists, because it is faster. They apply it with a three-inch square of padding (15 or 20 layers of cotton sheeting) which is rubbed hard over the surface as the pad is wetted with lacquer. That technique takes special skills and special lacquer.

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) - Officials say Mary Alice O'Keeffe is the first person to spot an error in an exhibit housed on the Bicentennial Freedom Train.

Mrs. O'Keeffe noticed that her namesake artist Georgia O'Keeffe had her name spelled with only one 'f' on the placard beneath her painting "Black Place I."

"That's embarrassing," said Gloria Bonneville, spokeswovan for the exhibit. She said itwas the first time a visitor has caught an error in one of the exhibits, which have traveled 21,540 miles through 44 states in the last 11/2 years.

Dog has big lump in her chest area

By H.P. JANS, D.V.M Copley News Service

Q We have a 3-year-old German shepherd with part coyote in her. She has a lump about the size of an egg under the front part of her chest between her two front legs. The veterinarian said he thought it was fatty tissue. She has been spayed, but if she does lose a little weight the lump remains the same size. There are times when she will be lying around and acting as if she is gasping for breath. She has done this as high as 12 times in a row. But there will be days when she does not do it. Would you please advise us what to do? Mr. and Mrs. A.B.O. Las Vegas, Nev

A I would suggest having the mass removed. It may be involved with her respiration problem, and if not, it is still advisable. Also it would be a good. idea to pursue the breathing problem You may have a complication in the chest or it may be a simple condition Have your veterinarian check it out

Q' We have two Siamese cats, a 5year-old mother and a 4-year-old daughter. Until three weeks ago, they were close and loving toward each other We had some children visiting us, and they were annoying the mother cat and had her upset and backed into a corner. At this time the daughter jumped on her back, either to stop her from the hissing noises she was making or playing with her as she had done so often. There was only a small scratch on her ear

Since then, every time the mother sees her daughter, she becomes extremely upset and scared and hides under the bed and won't come out until the daughter is put in another room. The daughter does not try to jump on her and is also very nervous at her mother's actions

The mother cat is still loving toward us and doesn't get upset at visitors. (The children who upset her haven't returned.) She seems normal except at the sight of her daughter.

We have tried giving them tranquilizers, kept them apart and put them together, and nothing works. Should we take her to a vet for this problem or will time heal her? - Mrs. L H . Baton Rouge. La

A Psychological trauma is serious in animal and man. It cannot always be corrected.

However, there are some things you can attempt in order to solve the problem Many Siamese are extremely timid and hypersensitive to anything that goes on in their en vironment. It is obvious that the mother cat associates a disagreeable situation with her daughter. She has lost confidence that the daughter is friend and not foe, perhaps she thinks that the daughter was the cause of the whole situation. With this hypothesis in mind, the goal is to reestablish that confidence level. Before this is attempted, you have to be sure that the daughter, in fact, had no part in the trauma directly, or the mother will be vicious in the future should they be placed in close contact.

If you believe this. I would suggest that you see a doctor of veterinary medicine and have him deeply tranquilize both of them and place them in a cage with many other strange animals around and nothing familiar. This means that as they recover from the tranquilized state. the only familiar thing in the rather frightening environment is the other cat. I have seen many animals become great friends in just one treatment. In other words, make them join together to fight the world.

IN YOUR SPARE TIME

Did you know there are factories that specialize in turning out antique reproductions by using the various methods of distressing? Unfortunately, there are some individuals who "age" a piece of furniture with the purpose of selling it as

How do you distress furniture? By hitting it with a metal chain; rounding sharp edges, but not uniformly; denting it with a ball peen hammer; whacking it with old keys on a string; scratching it with nails; rubbing it with dirt; sanding it against the grain; bleaching it in the sun; staining it with chemicals; rolling a grinding wheel across the surface; drilling it to create artificial worm holes; scorching it with a propane torch; and using dozens of other ways to simulate aging.

All of these procedures are not used on a single piece of furniture, since the trick is to age the furniture and not demolish it, but two or three different distress methods are often applied to a single object. It all depends on how old and how worn you want the furniture to seem to be.

Distressing is only half the project. After that comes the task of applying an antique finish, known many years ago simply as glazing. There are several ways of doing this, but it consists basically of putting on an opaque base coat, allowing it to dry, then applying a translucent paint and quickly wiping off part of it. If done properly, the base color shows through the glaze and gives what may or may not be the desired antique effect. Once you had to buy all the materials separately, but today there are special antiquing kits that contain everything needed to do the job.

dividual property owners trying to sell their homes.

Even if an entire album isn't required for all homes, real estate agents can use a single good photograph of every house they have on their list. It's a lot easier to show prospective clients to determine their likes and dislikes. By visiting only those homes which appeal to the prospective buyer, photography can save a lot of time and gas on the agent's part.

It proves again that photography, like charity, begins at home - and can do a lot for it

Camera can help sell your home

By IRVING DESFOR AP Newsfeatures

Buying a home is, for many people, the single, largest, nonbusiness investment in their lives. But selling a home today is a lot harder because values are higher and buyers find it more difficult and costly to get mortgage loans.

That's the sad picture that I've heard lately from a friend who has been trying to sell his home. The house is buried among other listings by the broker and there have been few

Well, the picture can be brightened considerably - thanks to photography

I recall the example set by an AP photographer. Henry Burroughs. some years ago when he had difficulty selling his house. Unfortunately, many of his neighbors in suburban Washington', D.C., were in a selling mood also. The listing rested in his real estate broker's office for months and no prospects seemed interested

Then Henry, who naturally knows his way around a camera, had an idea. He used photography as his sales agent and it woke up the broker's office, stimulated reactions and sold his house within three weeks.

He did it by photographing the best features of his home, inside and out Then he put the prints together to make an attractive "House Beautiful Album." a booklet he left with real estate agencies. The brochure did its own selling. It caught the eye and attention of prospective buyers and promoted active interest in his home while other houses remained just a list of addresses

The mechanics of making a home album or booklet are simple enough You start by photographing the best possible view of the house so that anyone seeing it would like to live in it. That becomes the cover shot, a full 8x10 inch print. Then you photograph every desirable feature in the house or of the landscaping that makes it a selling point. Leaded glass windows in a setting of fine wood paneling; a finished basement or workshop; builtin bookshelves; wood-burning fireplace: a picture window view of the terrace or patio, etc.

Each photo is printed on part of an 8x10 sheet of paper leaving a blank area for a caption or description Then two finished pages are mounted together, back to back, with drymount tissue or rubber cement. Finally, the pages are gathered together, in sequence, and bound together with a spiral or plastic ring binder, a service available from art supply or stationery stores

The captions can be typewritten and rubber cemented directly in place in the blank spaces left for that purpose. They can also be done more attractively - and with more effort the way Henry did it by doubleprinting each print first for the photograph and secondly for the

He started by typing all the captions on one sheet of paper, allowing trimming space around each one Then he copied all the type on Kodalith film, an extreme contrast film which makes black and white

The next step was to expose the photographs on each sheet of paper, masking off the area for the captions Each sheet was marked and numbered to identify the top of the paper and the subject. Henry exposed six sheets of paper for each page because he planned to distribute six booklets.

After the sixth sheet of each page the photo negative was removed from the enlarger and replaced with the Kodalith negative of the caption. This was exposed in its allotted space with the photo part of the print masked Then the double exposed prints were processed to reveal the combined printing of photos and captions. The results were neat, legible and at-

The bulbs are usually lifted in the garden and left to dry for several days, when the bulbs are topped

They are then left either in the garden or somewhere where they will remain dry, but open to the air, for about a week. In wet weather, this curing may have to be done in the garage or some other dry place that

The onions are ready to be boxed or sacked for storage when they make a rustling sound as they are stirred by hand. Any necks that are not perfectly closed should be sent to the kitchen for early use rather than stored. The storage temperature should not be much higher than 35 degrees

Potatoes should also be sorted carefully before storing. Any bruised or cut spuds should be kept for early

Those for storage should be dry and clean and they should be kept in the dark at 36 to 40 degrees, ideally.

Winter squash should be allowed to ripen thoroughly in the garden until the shell is quite hard - sufficiently hard that you have a difficult time leaving a mark with your thumbnail.

The squash can be wiped with a cloth that has been soaked in a mild bleach solution to destroy surface bacteria. It's often recommended that winter squash be first stored at normal room temperature or higher for a week or two as a curing process before being put in a cooler place, but I've never gotten around to doing this, yet have had good luck with them so far as storage longivity is concerned. In any event, the final storage spot should be a dry place around 50

Carrots and beets are generally harder to keep in storage and that's one reason we prefer to freeze them at haby size. However, we do like to keep some of the big ones for late fall and early winter meals.

Some people find damp peat moss a good medium to store carrots and beets in, but we have found that clean, damp sand is a more efficient medium of storage. We use one of those old-fashioned round laundry tubs, filling it with buckets of damp sand rather than trying to lug the whole thing into the cool room at once. WORLD OF STAMPS

Christmas stamps to be issued Oct. 27

The two 1976 Christmas stamps, one based upon an 1855 Nathaniel Currier print and the other upon a John Singleton Copley madonna and child painting, will be issued in Boston on October 27. the U.S. Postal Service announced

The first day of issue ceremony will be held at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, where Copley's "Nativity"

The Postal Service also announced that approximately 70 per cent of the stamps based upon the Currier print, 'Winter Pastime.' will be printed on the gravure portion of a new webfed eight-color combination gravureintaglio press recently installed at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The intaglio portion of the new press will not be utilized for this issue. The remaining 30 per cent will be printed on the conventional gravure press formerly known as the Andreotti press and will differ from those printed on the new press. The most apparent differences will have to do with the pane format, position of plate numbers, and absence of some familiar marginal inscriptions. Sheets produced on the Andreotti press will be of the standard fourpane layout. The five plate numbers will appear in the usual positions on each of the four panes as will Mr. ZIP. 'Use Zip Code" and "Mail Early in the Day The sheet format for stamps produced on the new press will be markedly different. While there will be four panes to each sheet, there will be no horizontal and vertical gutters to provide selvage all the way around

There will be a vertical strip of selvage on the right side and on the left side of each sheet. This means the two panes forming the left half of the sheet will have selvage on their left sides only and that the two panes forming the right half will have selvage on their right sides only

The five plate numbers will move progressively up and down the selvage on a pane-to-pane basis as a result of each full rotation of the gravure cylinders printing two panes and three rows of stamps. The plate numbers, therefore, will move with each successive impression on the web of paper.

In addition to "floating" plate numbers and the absence of gutters, panes of stamps produced by the new press will be distinguished by the absence of Mr. ZIP, "Use Zip Code" and "Mail Early in the Day."

Stamps removed from panes can be identified by slight variations in color. These differences resulted from use of solventbased inks on the Andreotti press and water-based inks on the new press.

The impending use of the new press was announced by the Postal Service and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at the Fourth National Philatelic Symposium last January in Both agencies said at the time that there were only two courses of action to be taken with regard to the plate numbers - allow them to "float" or trim them off entirely. Gordon C. Morison, director of the office of customer programs, said the Postal Service after careful consideration decided it would direct the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to let the plate numbers "float. We concluded that to trim off the plate numbers would be to decree that nobody could collect plateblocks for issues printed on the new press. Morison said. "We decided, therefore, to leave to the individual philatelist the decision to collect them or pass

He pointed out that if the new press performs to expectations, as many as half of the future commemorative issues could be produced on it. "Our removing plate numbers from all of these would have amounted to the Postal Service saying that no collector, regardless of his or her wishes, could save plateblocks from a significant number of issues. But, by allowing the numbers to remain, the Postal Service is saying the collector who wants them isn't bound by the preference of the collector who doesn't want them.'

The combination press promises to represent an important development in U.S. stamp printing, combining the full-color potential of gravure with the sharpness and clarity of recess engraving.

The press, when fully employed, is to be capable of printing regular. commemorative or booklet stamps on a web of pregummed, coated paper, phosphor-tagging them, precanceling them and printing on the back if desired, perforating, cutting and delivering stacks of 100 sheets.

The Postal Service said that all post offices will receive an automatic distribution of both versions of the Currier stamp Customers who wish to have both versions of the stamps affixed to their first day covers may request this when placing their or ders. For the information of subscribers who receive Souvenir Pages from the Philatelic Sales Division, the Souvenir Pages for the Christmas stamps will bear both versions of the Currier stamp as well as the Copley stamp.

Because of the timing of the announcement, orders for first day cancellations will be accepted through November 15.

Orders for first day cancellations should be addressed to "Christmas Stamps, Postmaster, Boston, MA 02109," and must specify which stamp or stamps are to be affixed to the selfaddressed envelopes which must accompany orders. The Currier stamps may be identified as follows: Currier (gravure) or Currier (new

Midland oil executive says woes magnifying

By ED TODD

The No. 1 enemy of the oil industry and of the free-enterprise system itself is the "big, bungling, bureaucratic, dictatorial federal government, Midland oil executive Clarke Straughan said here Wed-

Straughan said that "our nation's energy problems continue to magnify" right in the midst of an apparently unenlightened people and, most of all, an oil-blind U.S. Congress.

Straughan, corporate development manager of Adobe Oil & Gas Corp., was speaking to approximately 100 members of the Downtown Lions Club in the Midland Hilton Inn.

Speaking seriously but in jest, he recounted the tale of the imaginary Congressman Fogbound and of his misconceptions about the oil and gas Straughan, asserting that his tale had real parallels in politics today, outlined Fogbound's six-point measure to pull the nation out of its energy crisis.

Fogbound's solution: 'We drill too many oil wells; we need to drill more gasoline wells." "Don't drill anymore dry holes; they're too expensive and wasteful. "Some wells are produced at great depths, while others are P-and-A (plugged and abandoned) at much shallower depths. We should drill until production is reached."

gas low by governmental regulations. We have ample imports! "Never plug a well so long as it is making one barrel of oil per day.

· "Keep domestic prices of oil and Every barrel of oil helps!" "Build more gasoline refineries - to be located in the oil-producing regions. We want to keep our Atlantic seaboard beautiful, especially during this Bicentennial year. And the congressman is not finished

"If this plan fails," Straughan has Fogbound saying, "then I suggest we switch our energy base from fossil fuels to electricity.

After putting Congressman Fogbound aside. Straughan delved head-on into the spirit behind the oil

The entrepreneurial spirit rests in the private sector of business," he said in quoting independent oilman George Mitchell of Houston "People in government can't be adventurous. There aren't any risk takers among civil servants or politicians."

'There's no one more independent than the American oil man." Straughan said in further quoting Mitchell. "'And there's no one who's been more successful in getting the Still citing the Houston oilman. Straughan said that politicians "have been telling people that there's no competition in the oil business.

To the contrary, he said, the nation boasts of 100 major oil companies and about 10,000 independents.

And if the people in government think there's no competition between all those companies. I'd like to see them go out and try to compete Again striking out against the bias and prejudice toward the petroleum industry in the free market Straughan quoted another independent oilman. Michael Halbouty.

"The oil industry is now in a mess. and so is the nation - all caused by the inept, stupid, destructive actions of an inept, stupid, destructive

Turning to the Permian Basin. Straughan said that one-fourth of the oil produced in the United States is pumped from wells in that basin. And, he said, 40 per cent of U.S. oil is produced in Texas.

'The sad fact," Straughan said, is that "We are now importing about 42 per cent of our oil to run this nation

Some 90,000 oil and gas wells and about 90 refineries are in the Permian Basin. That, he said, represents a $2.5 billion industry, and $1 billion of that cash is kept in the basin.

Ice Capades will open Oct. 7 in 'all-new form'

ODESSA — The Ice Capades. described as the world's most unusual and entertaining way to use frozen water, comes to Odessa's Ector County Coliseum in all-new form Oct.

The popular family show will play through Oct. 12 and tickets for all performances are at the Coliseum box office as well as at a special booth in Gibson's Discount Center of Midland.

An evening of entertainment "Just For You" is promised by the entire cast as performers glide across the ice in flowing metallic robes and high hats, setting the tempo and mood for all the dazzling numbers to follow. The many new production numbers in this year's show include "Gym 'n Ice Tricks," "The Story of Tsing-Tsu," "The Curiosity Shoppe," "Happy Birthday, Yogi Bear," "A Pinball Odyssey" and "I Love A Parade." And, of course, not least among the attractions of this year's show are the 32 beautiful Ice Capettes, those precision-skating young ladies who always make a hit with audiences. In this year's show, they'll be seen as "Those Golden Girls," providing a nostalgic glimpse backward to the long-stemmed Busby Berkeley dancers of those Hollywood musical extravaganzas of vestervear.

Although this year's edition of the Ice Capades is all-new, many of the annual show's popular performers will be back on the scene once more including such audience favorites as Sashi Kuchiki, David Kirby, Albert Lucas, Terry Head and Ann-Margaret

Brand New Opry will showcase local, regional C&W performers

ODESSA - The Odessa Brand New Opry will have its second performance of the current season Saturday night in the Globe of the Great Southwest here.

The opry series, showcasing local and regional country-Western music performers, has become a popular attraction at the Globe, filling the intervals between the theater's drama productions.

The upcoming opry presentation, scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m., will feature "Durango" as the house band. The Odessa-based band, which performs at functions throughout this area, is made up of Johnny Bates,

Marry watching Massachusetts utility proposal

Bý WILLIAM CH! APMAN The Washington 12ost

BOSTON - 'The liveliest political campaign in Masschusetts this fall doesn't put Jinnmy Carter against President Ford, but instead asks the voter this quest ion: "How would you like to pay lowers electric bills each

On the ballot in November is a proposal which would cut the electricity rates for homeowners and small businessmen and raise them substantially for industrial users.

"Something like: $90 million a year in efectric bills is at stake, and the outcome is being wa tched nationally by big-industry and consumer organizations as a key telit of citizen groups' ability to force lower rates in an era when those rates have skyroeketed because of the energy shortage.

Similar campaigns - through ballot initiatives, legislative lobbying and rate protests - are under way in at least a dozen other states. The Massachusetts plan is the most important, because it would make the biggest change in who pays what, and because it has a fair chance of becom-

Heavy industry here, joined by some other large electrical users such as colleges and hospitals, has built a $300,000 campaign chest to fight the proposal through the media and mass mailings.

Nationally, business groups are too. The National Association of Manufacturers is circulating a handbook denouncing the notion that small electric users subsidize big ones. A new organization representing big industry, the Electric Consumers Resource Council, is supplying research and technical expertise to help combat pressures for rewriting rate structures.

The Massachusetts referendum is a deceptively simple plan called a "rate-flattener." Residential users and small businesses now pay more per kilowatt hour of electricity than do big-volume users such as industry. The new proposal would "flatten" the structure so that all users, with a few exceptions, would pay the same rate.

$60 million and $90 million a year in power cost from homes and small businesses to big users. Electric bills for homes would drop between 15 and 20 per cent and for small businesses up to 40 per cent. Industry's bills would rise between 20 and 30 per cent.

The plan was petitioned onto the ballot by Massachusetts Fair Share, a citizen group anchored in the working-class neighborhoods of Boston and the suburbs. Fair Share had spent months battling the state's Department of Public Utilities over a series of rate increases. In the past two years rates in Massachusetts had risen more than 110 per cent.

The big reason is higher fuel costs. Power companies use oil to generate passed directly on to the customers.

"We found that electric rates are the single most important issue in Massachusetts," says Jim Katz, the 25-year-old reserach director for Fair Share. "We made it our top statewide issue this year just about the time Boston Edison tried to raise its rates by $70 million. It's a very easy issue to organize around. People are very angry. Everyone just hates his utility company.

The campaign for and against bears many trappings of a regular political contest. Fair Share is now organized by ward and precinct in about 30 per cent of the state, with workers ringing of 1974-75 sent the costs rising fast. By law, higher fuel costs for ultilities are put $130,000 into the battle.

On the other side is the Council for Employment and Economic Energy Use, an association of industries, universities and other big electricity users, which will spend $300,000 on a media campaign.

Its major argument is that flat rates will cost Massachusetts about 35,000 jobs as industry cuts back production and lays off workers when faced with higher power costs. Until recently Massachusetts' unemployment rate was far higher than the national rate, and the threat of lost jobs is an emotional one here.

WASHINGTON - American florists spent the month of July collecting ballots for a national flower and sent them along to be mulled over by a computer so the results, of course, are not yet in. But the rose is a shoo-in to beat all the rest.

Most countries have a national flower but America never got around to it. New York became the first state to adopt a flower, the rose, in 1891. School chilrdren of the state did the voting.

As recently as 1959 the American florists conducted a poll of people who went into flower shops and the rose orations on behalf of the marigold.

Dirksen did not have clout enough to shove the marigold down the national throat, but he had enough to bring all further argument to a stop, since Congress can go on only so long about a flower before giving out. Since Dirksen's death, his son-in-law, Sen. Howard Baker (R-Tenn.) has carried the torch for the marigold without any noticeable effect (it is at the bottom of the recent voting by the public) and yet those close to the political scene say the marigold should not be written off merely because nobody wants it. A spot check of the ballots, cited as dogwood with 7 and the apple blossom

This spot check also disclosed a number of write-in votes for marijuana, one for the skunk cabbage, and several for Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, possibly by voters who consider them the flower of American politicians.

The marigold gained only 2 per cent of the vote, in the spot check.

American florist members of Florists' Transworld Delivery, which is sponsoring the poll, got their ballot boxes set up all right, in 15,000 shops across the country, and voting was brisk early in July, tapering off as the Commercial time near for candidates

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - Two weeks ago in a 32nd floor conference room of a mid-Manhattan skyscraper, two young women flipped a coin and began final tactical maneuvers in multi-milliondollar campaigns to sell Gerald R. Ford and Jimmy Carter to American three dozen five-minute time slots, another 30 one-minute slots and two half-hour segments on election eve.

Similar plans were afoot at NBC and ABC, and representatives of Carter and Ford have been meeting with them to conduct rituals similar to the coin toss at CBS last month.

The CBS coin toss was won by Carter's media director, Charlenne Carl, meaning she was able to decide what category of time slots would be divided first, as well as make first claim within that category.

Mrs. Carl designated the fiveminute category, and selected the slot following a two-hour special showing of the Waltons on Oct. 28. "I figured since it (the Waltons) was a special, CBS would promote it and there might be a larger audience," she said. "And I happen to think the Waltons is a good place for a Carter commercial.'

In rotation, the other five-minute this time won by Ford's media director, Dawn Sibley. She decided the election eve half-hours should be divided up next, and picked the 10:30-11 p.m. EST segment for Ford. That left the 10-10:30 p.m. time for Carter. After that, the one-minute slots were decided in the same fashion.

The Carter camp got the jump in the paid advertising race by showing five minute commercials last Thursday and Friday evenings (Sept. 2-3). There were flashbacks of Jimmy Carter's biggest moments at the Democratic National Convention and a heavily patriotic appeal featuring pictures of the Rocky Mountains along with the earnest words of the former Georgia governor.

Thus, Ford strategists decided to invest more than $95,000 for Tuesday's re-run of the President's speech accepting the Republican nomination Aug. 19 in Kansas City.

Though the media campaigns beginning to unfold in the midst of America's favorite evening television programs might seem extravagant, both Ford and Carter planners maintain they are confronted with austerity budgets.

Federal campaign spending lawslimit Ford and Carter $21.8 million

The President's campaign planners have indicated they will put about $10 million into paid advertising, compared to a planned $7 millfon for the Carter campaign. Carter will put two thirds of his advertising money into television, while the comparable

"This ain't going to shut me up for a long time," said the swaggering Montefusco after hurling a 9-0 classic over the Atlanta Braves Wednesday night. "I'm going to be talking all winter now.

Montefusco, known as "The Count" for his exceptional poise and often cocky appearance, really has a right to brag now. He came within one pitch of a perfect game—issuing a leadoff walk to Jerry Royster in the fourth inning on a 3-1 pitch.

Characteristically, that irked the colorful braggadocio.

"Can you believe that-that annoys me that I didn't throw a perfect game," Montefusco said of only the second no-hitter ever thrown in Atlanta Stadium since the Braves came south in 1966. Phil Niekro of the Braves threw the other one on August 5, 1973 in an 8-0 victory over San Typically the confident Montefusco had premature "no-hit" thoughts.

'I really starting thinking no-hitter in the second inning," said the San Francisco bellweather. "The fans told me about it in the fifth but I was aware of it and was talking about it already in the dugout.

"What the heck, I don't believe in jinxes; I didn't believe in the sophomore jinx and I won 16 games." Montefusco was the National League's Rookie of the Year last season with a 15-9 record and has posted a 16-14 record so far this

In the other National League games, the Chicago Cubs blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-0; the Montreal Expos whipped the New York Mets 72; the Philadelphia Phillies nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 6-5; the Los Angeles Dodgers stopped the Houston Astros 1-0 and the San Diego Padres defeated the Cincinnati Reds 6-1.

Montefusco, relying primarily on fastballs and "a sinker I learned to throw the other day", was in com-mand all the way. San Francisco fielders only had routine plays behind the rangy right-hander. Montefusco struck out four batters and forced the Braves to beat the ball into the ground for the most part. Shortstop Johnnie Le Master alone had eight chances.

Montefusco finished his brilliant performance in the ninth by striking out Jimmy Wynn, getting Cito Gaston on a pop fly and Jerry Rosyter on a soft fly to right.

"That's as good a job as I've ever seen pitched," enthused San Francisco Manager Bill Rigney. "It's the perfect way to close out a season that has not been all that perfect."

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1976

Rick Monday's two-out home run in the sixth inning backed Steve Renko's five-hitter and gave Chicago its victory over Pittsburgh. Despite the loss, the Pirates clinched at least a tie for second place in the National League East when Montreal defeated New York.

Wayne Garrett hit his first career grand-slam home run to pace Montreal over New York and Tom Seaver. Garrett's home run, which came in the fourth inning, was his sixth of the season but only his second for the Expos, who obtained him from the Mets on July 20. Steve Rogers, 7-17, went all the way for the Expos, limiting the Mets to five hits.

Royals clinch tie for West pennant

OAKLAND (AP) - The Kansas City Royals are home today, in the city Charles O. Finley deserted eight years ago, preparing for a pennantclinching party.

"You could say an era is over," said Gene Tenace of the Oakland A's after Wednesday night's 4-0 Royals' victory over the Finley-owned team which has won five straight American League West titles and claimed baseball world championships in 1972-

"We're lifted up right now and I hope we stay up this weekend," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog whose team had lost six of seven games before Wednesday night.

Pro athletes have it better, but what about beleaguered fans?

BY TED BATTLES

The state of today's pro athletic uminary has never been better.

Whereas, only a few years ago, he vas worshipped or reviled by fans secording to his on the field ichievements, he nevertheless egarded himself as a semi-slave, exploited, oppressed and held in inwilling bondage by Simon Legree wners, intent on extracting the last sunce of sacrifice, with the penalty or anything less immediate exile into he ranks of the unemployed and

RETIREMENT BENEFITS are the envy of even government employees. It's the pot at the end of the rain-

In some sports, business firms buy up big blocks of box seats or luxurious skyboxes at $2,500 and up and write them off as entertainment deductions.

Put a major league label on it and the fans buy it, win or lose, if it's NFL

Baseball remains the most prominent sport that still draws a substantial income from the average bloke on the street. Perhaps, that's why prices still remain within reasonable reach.

IT'S ALSO why the won-lost record is reflected in attendance figures. If his team wins, he's there. If the Mongrels lose with regularity, he's home mowing the lawn.

Actually, however, the fan is stuck with the same prices, whether he's backing the Cincinnati Reds or Atlanta Braves, Pittsburgh Steelers or New Orleans Saints. And the players are compensated without regard to team performance on the

Sometimes it seems as though the incentive to win is gradually being eased out of pro sports, which really doesn't seem quite fair to the faithful freight-paying fan

At one time, we were proponents of scaling ticket prices to reflect the team's won-lost record. A couple of weeks ago in the Sporting News, columnist Leonard Koppett came up with something better.

KOPPETT'S MODEST proposal would apply to all team spectator sports...football, basketball, baseball and hockey

"Let all the teams in a league deposit to a central fund 'salary money' in a lump sum. The league total is the prize money pool,' suggests Koppett.

He goes on, "Then-let each team get, as its share of the prize money pool to be be distributed to its members, an amount geared to the team finishes. The National League payroll currently is in the area of $18 million. Koppett would earmark $2 million each for teams that finish first in each division, $1.8 million for second placers down to $1 million for sixth place teams.

PLAYERS WOULD still negotiate their salaries. Koppett explains.

"Let's say Cincinnati finishes first, and Pete Rose had negotiated a 10 percent salary figure. He would collect $200,000. But if the Reds finished third, he would get only $160,00 and if they were last only $100,000

A rookie signing for the minimum 1.5 per cent, would get $15,000 for a last place team, slightly under the present minimum, and $30,000 for a first place, says Koppett in describing the other end of the spectrum. Koppett adds, "In such a system, every player on every team in every game would have a financial interest in having his team finish as high as

Also in a legally altered sports world, one in which the draft is in serious jeopardy and ties that bind a player to one club have been severed. it might act as a deterrent against the "attractive" franchise cities in collecting all of the talent.

Under Koppett's proposal..." Winners would get as much for playing in a small town as in a big one.

Tom Lasorda's dream of managing the Los Angeles Dodgers has become a reality. But the dreams of at least seven current field bosses in major league baseball could turn into nightmares in the next few weeks.

On Wednesday the Dodgers tapped the 49-year-old Lasorda, who has been with the organization since 1948, to succeed the retiring Walter Alston as Los Angeles' manager. Alston announced his retirement on Monday.

There is one known vacancy—at San Francisco-and an Associated Press survey Wednesday showed that at least seven other major league managers could be out of work soon.

"I have been loyal to this organization that I love so dearly,' Lasorda said. "Loyalty is a two-way street and at 9 o'clock this morning they showed me how much they love

The list of managers who don't know where they stand next season include Red Schoendienst in St. Louis, Charlie Fox in Montreal, John Mc-Namara in San Diego, Jim Marshall with the Chicago Cubs, Frank Robinson in Cleveland, Norm Sherry of the California Angels and Paul Richards of the Chicago White Sox.

Meanwhile, there were two developments among baseball front office personnel on Wednesday.

In St. Louis, Bing Devine signed a two-year contract to continue as executive vice president and general manager of the Cardinals. Asked about the future of Schoendienst, who is completing his 12th year as manager of the Cards, club President August Busch said a decision would be announced next week.

And, in Pittsburgh, Joe L. Brown announced his retirement as general manager of the Pirates after 21 seasons. Brown's successor was not chosen and there was no immediate word on the future of Brown's close friend Danny Murtaugh-who has managed the club off and on since DISTRICT 6-A writers and coaches went with either Marfa or Iraan to win the crown, but Rankin and Van Horn have been the most impressive. District 9-A is also in a clouded state at this point in the season. Wall was heavily favored to win the championship, but Wall owns a meager 1-2-1 record so far. It is true that Wall has played some tough opposition, but Menard and Reagan County have been more impressive.

It looks like a three team race in 9-A, but I go with Reagan County in the end. Mainly because the Owls are better tuned to tough races after competing in AA ball for so long.

Skeet shoot scheduled for Sunday

The Permian Basin Rifle and Pistol Club will hold a closed skeet shoot Sunday and all club members are invited to participate

Dr. Lewis Tanner, assisted by E.L. Good, Bill Smith, Gaylor Vaughn and Tom Walton, will captain the shoot.

A non-registered Trap Team Shoot was held recently with the team of Barnes Cauble, Bob Hull, Paul Davis and Sam Cramer winning first with 430x500. Cauble and Irvin Stinson tied at 95x100 for high overall.

The Third-Sunday Team Shoot in Sept. was won by J. B. Hutchins, Charles Oxford, Debbie Walton, P.M. Oxford and M.W. Robinsom with a 428x500 team score. Gene Bogart, with 100 straight, was the high overall

The monthly schedule lists rifle competition the first and third Sundays; pistol competition the third Sunday; trap shoots the second and fourth Sundays; skeet shoots, the first and third Sundays; and the club meeting the third Sunday.

Bullpups try Mojo; Lee plays in Odessa

The Midland High Bullpup junior varsity football team tangles with the Odessa Permian JV at 7 p.m. today in a battle of unbeaten teams in Memorial Stadium.

Both Midland and Permian bring 3-0 records into the contest while at the same time, Midland Lee's JV (2-1), tries the OHS JV (2-1) at Joe Coleman Field on the OHS campus.

Coach Stan Moore's Bullups have beaten Midland Lee, 7-6, Monahans, 14-0 and Snyder, 18-8 while Permian holds wins over Hobbs, N.M., Monahans and Odessa Ector. The Panthers beat Hobbs, 40-6 and then ripped Monahans, 42-12, but had hard time in beating Ector, 13-6.

Robert E. Lee, coached by Ernie Johnson and Tim Whalen, lost to Midland, 7-6, but have come back to defeat Pecos, 22-12 and Fort Stockton, 13-0. OHS holds wins over Monahans and Ector by scores of 24-0 and 15-0, but dropped a tough 23-19 loss to Hobbs last week.

Last week, Abilene Cooper won its third JV game without aloss a loss by edging San Angelo's JVs, 21-14.

The two games between the Midland and Odessa rivals start a big weekend of District 5-4A football.

District tilts highlighting area grid play

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

The fun and games are over for three of the area's five football districts. It's time to walk out in the street, meet face-to-face and fire from the hips with blazing sidearms.

You might say that the rest of the season is serious business, especially if you entertain any hopes of a playoff

District play opens on three fronts Friday in the area circles, and even the early season losers get a fresh start. Everybody starts even again.

Sweetwater travels to Lamesa Friday to open District 3-AAA play, and both teams have taken some lumps during the pre-district encounters.

Lamesa is coming off a big 19-13 win over Hobbs, N. M., and the Tors hope the momentum carries over for a fast district getaway. The loser may find themselves run out of town by the other district sheriffs if they start

REAGAN COUNTY, who figures to have a shot at the 9-A crown this year, will start the ball rolling against winless Eldorado Friday. Both teams are coming off losses as the district gun sounds, and the Owls hope to cash in on the first mortal wound of the 'new season'

Undefeated Menard meets Mason in the other key 9-A matchup while Lubbock Dunbar and Lubbock Estacado tangle in the other key confrontation in 3-AAA. Dunbar is undefeated with two ties on the record while Estacado's lone loss is to AAAA Lubbock Monterey District 6-A is the other loop that opens the play for keeps game Friday, but the only team in the loop that doesn't have a loss this year will be involved in a non-district battle. Rankin will host Jim Ned as they wait a week to start the loop wars.

McCAMEY WILL start play for its first Class A run Friday when they travel to Van Horn, and this could be the key game of the year for the Badgers. McCamey is 0-4 going into the district chase, and is still looking for that first historic Class A victory. The Badgers, however, draw one of the major district contenders in Van Horn in the first rattle out of the box. It's a tough opener, and playing on foreign Iraan and Wink is the other feature game of the loop. Both hope to make a will have to give early.

Three other districts, however, continue the non-district schedule this week.

The Andrews Mustangs, who seem to be a major contender for the 2-AAA title, will put their unbeaten streak up against Levelland. A victory would give Andrews a 5-0 record heading into district play, and the Mustangs need to keep their momentum rolling. THE CRANE Golden Cranes host Fabens in another key area clash. The Cranes, in one of the toughest AA districts in the state, need to build momentum. Crane has won two straight contests, and they want to keep the ball rolling. Crane finally got its offense in gear last week with 37 points to show for it against Marfa. Stanton lost a bitter 14-12 decision to Roscoe last Friday, and the Buffs need to get back on the right track this week against New Home. It could be tough test for the Buffs, who will need another strong defensive showing. One of the best matchups of the season may come Friday in another non-conference contest when undefeated AA Ozona hosts undefeated A Seagraves. Both are highly respected in the state, and both could gain statewide recognition with Market declines slightly

NEW YORK (AP) -The stock market declined slightly today, drifting in a narrow channel as it awaited the weekly Federal Reserve report on money and credit conditions.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off .66 at 990.53 after a net decline of 21.94 points in the two previous trading days. Losers held a 7-6 lead over gainers in the over-all count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The Fed's statistical report was due to be issued at the NYSE close today.

Traders have watched the Fed figures expecially closely in the past couple of weeks, looking for possible clues to the future direction of the central bank's credit policy and interest rates. Last week hopes for an easing of Fed policy suffered a setback when the data showed a record jump in the basic measure of the money supply Westinghouse Electric, the most active NYSE issue, dropped 5/8 to 1181/2.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .06 at 56.24 On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped .19 to 102.08.

Volume on the Big Board slowed to 6.25 million shares over the first two hours from 8.08 million in the like period Wednesday

MC planning more courses

Eight additional community service courses, ranging from gift wrapping to ham radio, will begin at Midland College next week.

Defensive driving will begin Monday with classes from 7 to 9 p.m. nightly through Thursday in room 100, occupational-technical building. The college is an approved cooperating agency to teach the National Safety Council course. There will be eight hours of instruction, with insurance savings of 10 per cent possible. Cost is $10.

Also beginning on Monday will be transactional analysis, instructed by Bob Avery. The course is a study and analysis of the transactions that take place between and within people and will include a study of the human personality. Class will meet Mondays from 7 to 10 p.m. for six weeks in room 106, occupational-technical building. Fee is $21. Ham radio will begin on Tuesday and meet from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and Thrusdays for six weeks in room 142, occupational-technical building. The course, taught by Dr. Norman Gould, will be aimed toward having students prepared to take and pass the Federal Communications Commission novice license exam. Class is limited to 15 persons and fee is Eileen Cys will instruct gift wrapping, a two-day course including the neatest way to wrap a package and many ways to use ribbon, bows and flowers. Class will meet Tuesday and Wednesday from 7 to 10 p.m. in room 106, occupational-technical building.

Graphoanalysis will begin on Tuesday also. Dolores Gaines, instructor, will teach a scientific approach to handwriting analysis, used on occasion as a tool by psychologists, counselors, teachers, police officers, credit managers and parents. There will be minor expense for purchase of materials. Class will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays for six weeks in room 100, occupational-technical building.

Linda Cranfill will instruct drapery making from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays for six weeks. The course will include pinch pleated draperies and variations. Selections of fabrics, supplies and equipment will be taught also. Fee is $12.

Beginning Thursday, crochet I will be taught by Mary Garay. The course, which meets from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursdays for six weeks in room 100, occupational-technical building, will include complete instruction on basic techniques of crochet. Selection of materials, understanding crochet terms and a field trip to a stitchery shop will be included. The college will furnish a list of supplies. Fee is $12.

Betty Sterzing will instruct belly dancing beginning Thursday. The class will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. Mondays and Thursdays for four weeks in room 106. occupational-technical building. Fee is $16

More information concerning registration and other courses is available from the department of community services at the college.

Those who fled Vietnam depressed

WASHINGTON (AP) - Most of the 138,000 Indochinese refugees who fled to the United States after Communist-led victories in Southeast Asia are adjusting to their new country but many suffer from mental depression, a new report to Congress says.

The congressional task force on refugees said that in the nearly 18 months since the fall of South Vietnam and Cambodia, most of the refugees have made "vast strides toward assimilation into American:

The percentage of refugees drawing welfare has: stabilized for the first time, the report said, and most have found jobs and left the homes of their initial American sponsors.

While many serious problems in adjustment remain, the Vietnamese, Laotians and Cambodians who fled to the United States when the Communists overran Saigon and Phnom Penh in the spring of 1975 'are progressing better than many expected in the early days of resettlement, and the overwhelming majority are moving toward economic selfsufficiency." Congress was told.

An increasing incidence of mental depression among refugees has been observed, the task force said. "a natural result of resettlement in a new coun-

Treatment of the mental illness through conventional therapy, however, is extremely difficult because modern psychiatry is virtually unknown in Indochinese culture, and language and cultural barriers make it almost impossible for psychiatric workers to assist refugee patients, the report said.

The task force recommended that Congress approve a Ford administration bill to open the door for citizenship for the refugees by declaring them to be resident aliens. Similar legislation was enacted to assist refugees from the Hungarian and Cuban revolutions

Unless the Indochinese are declared resident aliens, the report said, it would take nearly 30 years before all the refugees could gain resident alien status, the first step toward citizenship, because the law provides that no more than 5,100 persons from all countries in a given year can be admitted to the United States in that classification.

that 80 percent of the refugee men are working or looking for work, slightly higher than the general American male rate of 75.6 per cent, and that 45 per cent of the refugee women are in the labor force, about the same as the American rate for all women.

The task force said a July-Auguse survey found

The refugee men and women were experiencing a: 13 per cent unemployment rate, however, which is higher than the 7.9 per cent unemployment rate in August for the general population but still an improvement over the 21 per cent jobless rate for refugees in a December-January survey.

"Most refugees are in relatively unskilled jobs and many families have more than one wage earner." the report said.

The latest survey found that 20 per cent of the families had annual incomes of less than $5,000, and another 35 per cent had incomes of less than $10,000.

Brochure on estrogen risks to be distributed

By MORTON MINTZ The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The government acted to provide the 5 million middleaged women who take estrogens to relieve menopausal symptoms with a clear description of the risks and benefits they should consider each time a prescription is filled.

Under a Food and Drug Administration plan distribution of "risk-benefit" brochures to users of the female hormones will be mandatory, but possibly not until some time in early 1977.

The principal risk, as shown by three studies reported on last December, is that postmenopausal women using estrogen for a year or longer increase their risk of developing cancer of the lining of the uterus to between 4.5 and 13.9 times normal.

Currently, the FDA requires distribution of patient brochures for only one prescription drug, oral contraceptives. These, first issued in 1970, are now being revised.

The estrogens for women too old to bear children "are valuable drugs." FDA commissioner, Dr. Alexander Schmidt said. "They are needed when the symptoms of the 'change of life' become severe. FDA's purpose is to keep these drugs on the market but to reduce overuse and misuse "He continued

Because these drugs can cause harm as well as good, and because they are different from many other drugs in that they are given to otherwise healthy women undergoing the natural process of menopause, the FDA believes it essential that women be informed and that they decide for themselves. The information in the patient brochure will help women decide whether they should take these drugs and for how long

The draft brochure explains in simple terms what estrogens are, tells why doctors prescribe them, and, because the drugs can cause birth defects, stresses that "There is no proper use of estrogens in a pregnant

The draft recognizes that estrogen can treat such "very uncomfortable" symptoms of the menopause as "hot

Small penalty for wasteful signal

South dealer

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD Somethimes I think that bridge players should be licensed. Anybody who signaled with the setting trick would lose his license for six months. Forty strokes with the lash is really too severe a sentence

West opened the king of spades, for no good reason. A normal club or diamond lead would have been eminently satisfactory, but the actual lead didn't have to be fatal

East saw at a glance that his partner had led from the doubleton king, hoping to get a ruff. The idea pleased East so much that he signaled encouragemnet with the jack of spades. West naturally led another spade.

and East collected two tricks with the ace and ten. East then led his last spade, and West ruffed with the ten of hearts to shut out dummy. South discarded a club from dummy and eventually ruffed a club in dummy. South lost the first four tricks and the ace of trumps, making his contract. RUINOUS SIGNAL Signaling with the jack of spades cost East a spade trick. East should play the four of spades at the first trick. If West continues with another spade. East should win and lead a low trump. East gets in with a spade to lead out the ace and a third trump. South must lose four spades, one trump and one club.

This is a borderline hand; bid it with a conservative partner, pass it with a flighty partner.
