Blue and red placards waved in the hands of the eager crowd. A simple statement: Ford/Dole.

A statement to match the easy dignity of Sen. Robert Dole, R.-Kan., Republican vice presidential nominee, for whom the crowd had gathered to see at noon Sunday in the executive hangar of Rich Air Co. at the Midland Regional Air Terminal.

"I think we are going to win Texas and win New York. I think maybe Washington, D.C. - I think Carter may carry Washington, D.C.," Dole said. The crowd of about 800 persons interrupted with cheers.

"I don't think this country can afford Jimmy Carter. I often say the peanut is the easiest nut to crack. We'll get to see Tuesday," Dole said. A decision on the 39th presidency of the United States will be made

Midland County may cast 26,000 ballots

Midland voters will go to the polls Tuesday in a general election that has shaped up to be seemingly low-key on the part of the candidates and yet seemingly high-key on the part of the

At stake are the 39th presidency of the United States, a U.S. senator and representative seat and 17 other state and local offices.

Of the 21 races Midlanders will have a chance to vote for, only nine are contested, and two local races, sheriff and district attorney, are generating much controversy.

On the other hand, absentee voting anticipates a large turn-out in the Tuesday election, Persons voting absentee in the county clerk's office totaled five more than the record 1972 turn-out, County Clerk Rosenelle Cherry said. Ballots mailed out from the office have decreased from 1972, when a large number of ballots were mailed to servicemen during the Vietnam conflict.

Voter enthusiasm in the Democratic party here has been greater than any election since 1968, Democratic County Chairman Vann Culp said.

"We have had more inquiries, more people offering to help than in any other election since I have been chairman," Culp said.

The enthusiasm may be a result of the interest in the presidential race; he added. "People in Midland are more enthusiastic about the Democratic nominee (Jimmy Carter) than in previous elections.

Voter interest is evident in the number of buttons, bumper stickers and peanut necklaces and tietacks the party headquarters has sold

"The profits have helped us pay for the rent on the building...sales are tremendous," Cuip said. On the Republican side, county

Chairman William Shaner predicts a voter turn-out of possilbly 60 per cent of the registered voters.

"That's not apathetic. The apathy talked about in the rest of the nation does not seem to affect us here too much. We have had fairly active response throughout the county, Shaner said

If the weather holds out, Shaner continued, there should be a total of possibly 26,000 voters, including absentee voters, projecting the large absentee turn-out

Republican interest in the presidential race is running high, Shaner said, because they are

"frightened by the alternative."
In the presidential race, incumbent President Gerald R. Ford and his running mate Robert Dole are challenged by Democrats Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale. Also running are Thomas J. Anderson and Rufus Shackelford on the American Party ticket, Peter Camejo and Willie Mae Reid on the Socialists Workers' Party ticket and Eugene J. McCarthy on an Independent ticket.

Democrat Lloyd Bentsen, incumbent U.S. Senator, faces Alan Steelman in the Republican Party, Marjorie P. Gallion in the American Party and Pedro Vasquez in the Socialists Workers' Party.

Republican Jim Reese of Odessa challenges George Mahon for the 19th district U.S. Representative seat Mahon has held for 42 years.

The four candidates for railroad commissioner, one of three seats on a commission responsible for regulating and conserving energy and other duties, are as follows: Jon Newton, Democrat; Walter Wendlendt, Republican; Fred Rodriguez Garza, La Raza Unida Party; and Pat O'Reilly of the Socialist Workers'

Ford, Carter to end drives in Michigan

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG AP Political Writer

Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter wind up their campaigns tonight barely 100 miles apart in the President's home state of Michigan. And if the poll takers and pundits are right, the candidates are reaching election day in a virtual dead heat.

Too close to call is the forecast coming from most quarters in the hours before Americans go to the polls in the nation's Bicentennial presidential

In his final day of campaigning for the office he now holds through appointment, the Republican President was in Ohio and planned to go on to Michigan for a closing rally in his hometown of Grand Rapids.

His Democratic challenger campaigned in California and then planned to wind up his two-year quest for the presidency with a rally in Flint, Mich., before flying to his Georgia

Carter's schedule at the last minute, an indication the candidate believes he still has a chance to carry Ford's home state with its 21 electoral votes.

Of uncertain impact was an incident Sunday at the Plains, Ga., Baptist Church. The church canceled services after a black minister from Albany, Ga., who had applied for membership in the church, attempted to join the worshipers.

Both Ford and Carter have purchased time on each of the three major television networks tonight for final appeals to an electorate which pollsters continue to find closely divided with many undecided voters.

The final Gallup Poll, released Suny night, gave Ford 47 per cent, Carter 46 per cent, others 3 per cent and 4 per cent undecided. It was the first time since March that Ford had led Carter in a national poll, though the difference is so small that it has no statistical import.

Harris, whose latest poll showed-Carter with a 45-44 lead, said he plans to continue polling through Tuesday. The vote is so close and so soft, you have to go right down to the wire," he

A New York Times-CBS poll, released Sunday, also gave Carter a slight edge but his margin was less than the 2.5 point margin of error. The Harris poll found 7 per cent still undecided; the Times-CBS survey put the figure at 10 per cent.

The paths followed by the candidates during the final days of the campaign reflected their own views of where the undecided votes are.

Both campaigned in New York with 41 electoral votes and California with 45, as well as in Ohio with 25, Texas, 26, Pennsylvania, 27, and Illinois, 26. More than the White House is at stake in Tuesday's election.

Voters also will choose 33 senators and 435 House members, as well as 14 governors and thousands of state egislators and local officials.

The Republicans are given no chance of overturning Democratic control of the House and Senate. Thus, if Carter wins, the Democrats will be back in control of the two elected branches of the federal government for the first time since Richard M. Nixon captured the White House for the Republicans in 1968.

No one could be certain what factors might be decisive ones in the presidential contest.

The presence of former Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota in the race as an independent candidate appeared likely to drain normally Democratic votes from Carter in some states.

Ford has warned audiences in all parts of the country that Carter would raise taxes for middle income families and would press for bigger and bigger federal budgets.

Carter has said his plans for changes in tax laws are designed only to eliminate provisions that enable the wealthy to avoid payment of taxes on large amounts of income. The Democratic candidate has said he has no intention of asking for a tax increase for middle-income wage earners

Abortion was an an issue early in the campaign when first Carter and then Ford met with Catholic bishops. Both men have said they oppose abortion and the use of federal funds to pay for abortions

But Ford said he would support a constitutional amendment that would permit states to determine whether abortions should be legal. Carter opposed any constitutional amendment on the abortion question. The abortion issue might help Ford exhibit for me was the prize-winning in some normally Dmocratic urban areas with large Catholic populations.

But the President's slip in his foreign policy debate with Carter when Ford said "there is no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe" may have lost him votes in the same areas.

Post-television debate surveys by The Associated Press gave Ford a narrow edge in the first debate, Carter an equally slim margin in the second and found the third a virtual

Carter stressed to every audience, the importance of voting. "Every vote counts." he told a rally in San Francisco and went on to note the narrow margins by which John F. Kennedy won in 1960 and Richard Nixon

AN EDITORIAL

Don't be misled

Most Midland voters do not appreciate smear tactics in politics, yet a few candidates in this year's elections cannot seem to resist making last-minute, misleading charges against their opponents.

The most flagrant example of such tactics may be seen in a political advertisement on Page 9-A of this issue of the newspaper. Because of it, The Reporter-Telegram feels a responsibility to bring it to the attention of its readers and to suggest to them that they speak out against such tactics at the polls Tuesday.

The advertisement in question was scheduled for Monday's newspaper, the last edition before Tuesday's election, allowing the opponent no way of responding either through a news conference, press release or advertisement.

Ethically, The Reporter-Telegram cannot show a customer's ad copy to his competitor before publication. Legally, attorneys said, the newspaper might be liable for damages if it refused to accept the advertisement.

As a result, the public is placed in the unfair position of hearing only one side of the story, with no opportunity to learn the other side. And that apparently is exactly what the candidate placing the ad and his sponsor paying for it had in mind - a partially informed public, misled by innuendos.

So. The Reporter-Telegram feels compelled to speak out in this regard before election day. Voters are due an explanation, so they can judge for them-

The Democrat party chairman and the party's district attorney candidate, by innuendo, try to lead one to believe that something is wrong with the opponent because he has represented clients with criminal charges against them. Frankly, an attorney practicing criminal without such cases, and citizens charged with crimes wouldn't have representation without criminal lawyers. A district attorney without criminal law experience wouldn't achieve much in this day and time.

There is no need, or space enough, to go line by line through the ad. Midland voters are intelligent and can judge for themselves.

The Reporter-Telegram suggests that you read this particular advertisement and all others of a similar nature placed in the last few days before the election, reading between the lines and examining the candidates involved.

Then, please vote your convictions for good honest government in Tuesday's

Great day to talk about Odessa flowers

ODESSA-This is a great day to talk about flowers in Odessa. (Any day is nice for Odessa and flowers, but the reason I'm talking about them today instead of about the presidential election everybody else is talking about is that the news ditors impose a cutoff on partisan local political news stories the day before an election-which I discovered after I had written a decidedly unpartisan column about the campaign. The word itself-two words, actually, Mr. Ice says-means "tree in a pot," and the process involves trimming the roots of the plants to discourage growth. In the meantime, the leaves and limbs have to be reduced to what is supportable by the lesser roots. Otherwise, the plant is treated as what it is-a tree, even left outside to freeze back during the

Survey shows food prices drop

By The Associated Press

October brought relief to consumers in the form of lower supermarket bills, an Associated Press marketbasket shows. But there was continued bad news for coffee drinkers.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

Among the highlights of the latest survey:

—The marketbasket bill declined during October at the checklist store in 11 cities and increased in two. The average drop was 2.5 per cent, and the average increase was 1.9 per cent. On an over-all basis, the marketbasket bill at the checklist store dropped 1.8 per cent last month. During September, there was an over-all increase of 2 per cent.

—Over a 12-month period, the marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in nine cities and decreased in four. Over-all, the bill at the start of November was 2 per cent higher than it was a year earlier.

—Many of the savings came at the meat counter. The price of a pound of chopped chuck decreased at the checklist store in six cities, pork chops were down in eight cities and frankfurters dropped in six cities. The good news may not last, however. There are fewer cattle in feedlots now than there were at the start of the year, and the government has predicted higher beef prices this winter.

Dr. Lutrick and about 10 grim-faced Secret Service men escorted Dole outside the church, where the candidate shook hands with all the congregation.

At the top of the church steps the congregation waited hesitantly, but soon everyone was going through the receiving line, many giving words of encouragement and support. Dole shook hands with his left hand. His right hand is crippled.

At one point, Dole greeted Paul Herdt of Odessa, who attended Russell, Kan., High School with the senator.

"I hadn't seen him since before the war," Herdt said. Dole fought and was wounded during World War II.

Mrs. Floyd Jarnagin, 2002 W. Tennessee Ave. Dole's cousin, stood by his side as he greeted her follow citizens.

"You don't think I'm proud?" the smiling Mrs. Jarnagin asked facetiously.

One young parishioner walked away from Dole with both hands extended. "I got to touch him with both hands," the boy said.

About Dr. Lutrick's sermon, Dole said, "In that he was speaking about stewardship and citizenship, I think the sermon applied to everybody there, including me." Dole is a member of Trinity United Methodist Church in Russell, Kans.

When he was sure all of the congregation had been greeted. Dole was escorted to a motorcade to drive to Rich Air Co. at the Midland Regional Air Terminal, where the rally was held.

The senator declined to answer questions from the press outside the church, saying "No questions, not now, please."

When he left the airport rally, the senator spent nearly 45 minutes shaking hands with well-wishers and supporters before boarding a jet bound for Peoria, Ill. with staff members and nation al news media representatives.

ED DARNELL STANDS FIRM AND SOLID: SOLID AS A PIECE OF HARD GRANITE

Organized crime-the scourge of modern society-has never gained any kind of foothold in Midland County...although these elements have flourished in neighboring West Texas counties. Sheriff Ed Darnell, our Chief Law Enforcement Officer, stands firm and unyielding against those who would bring dishonor to Midland—and they know they can't run over or around him, and that he will not tolerate their presence here. And they know Ed Darnell can never be "bought" for any price.

That's important to Midland...important to you and to every one of us...important to Midland County's reputation as the cleanest county in Texas.

We are proud of Midland, proud of our Sheriff, of his absolute honesty and integrity, of his unmatched ability and proven leadership for good, clean law enforcement...grateful for his fairness to every citizen, for his calm self-control and even temperament which have meant so much in keeping our city free of racial tension...thankful for his steady, sure hand at the helm of our law enforcement program.

Please join us Tuesday in voting to keep the man on the job who we know will do the job. Ed Darnell has never let Midland down, and we won't let him and good law enforcement down.

Sure-fire solution

Farm and ranch families, according to the president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, have a sure-fire plan to do away with federal deficit spending.

The solution? No salary increases for any elected federal official until the federal budget is balanced.

They just might have something there. Anyway, there undoubtedly are plenty of citizens who would like to give it a try.

The federation president, Allan Grant, speaking at an agribusiness seminar held last Thursday at Houston, praised the State of Texas' "pay as you go" fiscal policy.

"If states like Texas can operate on a strict, balanced budget, so can the rest of the states, and so can this nation," Grant said.

He said that farm and ranch people suggest an amendment to the United States Constitution requiring that Congress operate on a balanced budget each year, and that only in extreme national emergencies should this requirement be waived through concurrence of the House, Senate and Executive Branch.

"And while we're at it, let's knock out legislative authority for wage and price controls," Grant said. "They deal with symptoms and not the causes of inflation. They are a broken crutch, and a temptation for political misues."

The farm leader noted also that the economic climate of Texas has been attractive to industrial growth. He linked this attraction to the fact that Texas is a right-towork state "known for its fair -

He said further that agriculture has been concerned about what appears to be the growing monoply power of labor unions. "We see government officials, political candidates and social leaders going out of their way to appeal to, and appease, organized labor," he said.

"While raising food prices through harvesttime strikes of fruit and vegetable processors, through antiquated methods to make work, through featherbedding and slow-downs, union leaders have tried to distract consumer attention by suggesting that farmers cause higher food prices," Grant explained.

He added that labor costs now represent more than half of the total food marketing bill, and make up 67.4 per cent of the average food store's total operating costs

Referring again to right-towork, he noted that in Texas and 19 other states the right of a worker to freely decide whether or not to join a union has been protected by law.

"In 30 other states, that precious right of free decision has been abridged," he said.

"Farmers believe that the Constitution of the United States guarantees to each individual the freedom to engage in worthwhile work of his choosing, and that this freedom must not be contingent upon paying homage, or union dues, to any individual or organization," he concluded.

Mr.Grant preached quite a "sermon;" one which will attract a loud "amen" shouted by many

The debates couldn't make it as a series

HOLLYWOOD - The TV networks are starting to cancel their fall shows that didn't make it. One of the first to go will be the presidential debates. Television executives from all networks have decided the show just doesn't have enough interest to continue it through the rest of the year.

They called in the TV agents for Jimmy Carter and President Ford to break the news to them.

The programming director of CBS said, "We're sorry, boys, but the debates have to go. "But the ratings have been fantastic," Ford's agent protested. "They were good," a man from NBC said, "but the problem is that in spite of the ratings we couldn't get a sponsor. Nobody would buy it for a series."

The ABC programming chief said. "It just wasn't playing in Peoria. People don't want to hear about unemployment, inflation and wheat embargoes. They want entertainment. We had hopes for this show when we put it on the air, but we didn't know it was going to be so downbeat.'

The Ford man said, "That wasn't our fault. Carter was the one who made the debates downbeat. He kept talking about what a mess the tax system was, how the poor and the old weren't getting anything out of the government and how the cities were being ignored by the Republicans. Ford was upbeat. He talked about the Fourth of July and how his Administration had solved the economic and environmental problems of the country. Play the tapes back and you'll see that Ford made it a happy show, but Carter kept throwing cold water on it.'

The Carter man said, "Oh yeh? All Ford kept doing during the debates was to spout a lot of figures that put half the country to sleep. Carter was the one who put life into the show and kept people on the edge of their seats.

The CBS programming chief said "There is no sense blaming each other. The format wasn't right to start with. You can't have two wooden barrels and saying the same thing week after week and expect to hold the audience.

"We'll change the format," the Ford man said. "We'll build a new set and have Betty Ford and Rosalynn Carter living next door to each other. They'll be good friends and their husbands will always be getting into trouble like Jackie Gleason and Art Carney did on The Honeymooners.

The ABC man said, "Gerry Ford and Jimmy Carter are not Jackie Gleason and Art Carney."

Carter's agent said, "We'll add the Carter kids and the Ford kids to the show. They could always be getting into fights with each other and Amy Carter could keep bugging Gerry Ford and driving him crazy like 'Dennis the Menace.

Ford's agent said, "We'll make Jack Ford into another 'Fonzi' and Susan Ford could play a 'Laverne' character.

The Carter man said, "Ford could be an Archie Bunker.'

Wait a minute," the Ford man said. "The President is not going to be Archie Bunker. I think Jimmy Carter should play a character like Redd Fox on Sanford and Son.'

Carter's agent said, "You're out of your mind.

The NBC programming chief said. "We're sorry, gentlemen. It just won't work. We can buy Betty and Rosalynn and the Ford and Carter kids. But Gerry and Jimmy are just not up to playing situation comedy The show has to go.

"But what do we tell our clients? They put everything they had in these

The CBS man said, "Tell them that we may have a show for the one who wins the presidential election.

"What kind of a show?" "We'll let him do a press conference in the White House. But not on a regular basis

Will Coke or Pepsi win election?

ANDERSON with LES

WASHINGTON - The voting on Tuesday will settle not only whether Gerald Ford or Jimmy Carter will occupy the White House but whether Pepsi Cola or Coca Cola will be the most favored beverage for the next four years. Not that the election will change the drinking habits of many Americans. But it could determine whether the Russians must continue to satisfy their cola thirst with Pepsis or whether they will be given a chance to try Cokes. There is even a tantalizing possibility that 800 million Chinese may start guzzling the cola with the right political connections. The cola habit might also spread to Cuba in the event of an accommodation with Fidel Castro. Pepsi's Donald Kendall has had special entree to the White House during the Republican occupancy. He had the foresight in the 1960s to help set up Richard Nixon in a lucrative law practice in New York City. After Nixon became President, he returned the favor by appointing Kendall as the top American on the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade and Economic Council — a position Kendall used to introduce Pepsis to Russia. He pushed Pepsis so aggressively, in fact, that it antagonized members of Henry Kissinger's staff.

They drafted a bitter memo and circulated it privately within government circles. The memo charges that Kendall "exploited his friendship with Nixon to further his international business interests.

'One example of this exploitation is' in the delicate, controversial area of U.S.-Soviet trade. Kendall used his friendship with Nixon to obtain the position of U.S. co-chairman of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade and Economic Council...It has become so much a personal tool of Kendall's that Department of Commerce people refer to it as Kendall's Council.

Despite this undercover opposition, Kendall managed to survive Watergate and to achieve a close relationship with President Ford.

Coke's John Paul Austin, on the other hand, has the inside track with Jimmy Carter. By accident of geography, Coca Cola headquarters happens to be located in Atlanta where Carter presided as governor of Georgia

It was Austin's pleasure to provide free Cokes for Carter's political barbecues, to help underwrite the governor's Prayer Breakfast and to host at least one luncheon for the visiting governor from Pernambuco-

Perhaps encouraged by Carter's improved political fortunes, Austin has made three trips to Russia to explain the capitalist principle of competition to the Soviets. They, in turn, have been mightily impressed by Coke's connections with Carter. They have questioned members of the Coke delegation closely about the enigmatic Carter.

Austin offered to provide Cokes for the 1980 Olympics in Moscow if the Soviets would open their country to competition between the two rival colas. This possibility brought Kendall on a flying trip to Russia a few weeks ago. He played it cool. Afterward, the U.S. embassy reported to the State "In call on Ambassador, mentioned that Coca Cola seeking Soviet authorization to sell its product at 1980 Olympic Games and had already offered $10 million for such rights, as contrasted with $3 million offered in Montreal.

"He noted that Soviet authorization of sale by Coca Cola would apply only to Olympic Games," continued the confidential cable. "Kendall stated he was not disturbed by this development and was not interested in selling Pepsi Cola at the Olympics. He said that Pepsico was interested in maintaining its longterm position in the U.S.S.R. and felt confident that it would do so."

Kendall has a barter deal with the Soviets; he trades Pepsi Cola for vodka. The U.S. embassy offered the State Dept. this additional, confidential report:

"Kendall told us that present trends indicate volume of vodka imports into U.S. could support the early construction of a total of 25 Pepsi Cola bottling plants in the U.S.S.R. He said his longterm goal was 50 plants.' A Pepsi spokesman said the State

Dept. cable was wrong; he said the company has no plans beyond constructing five Pepsi plants in the Soviet Union. He also disputed the derogatory State Dept. memo; he said Kendall has worked unselfishly for the best interests of the United States on the trade council. A Coca Cola spokesman said either

Kendall or the cable was wrong; he said the offer to provide Cokes for the Olympics was between $3 million and $5 million, not $10 million.

Meanwhile. Austin is trying to introduce "the real thing" to Russia and Kendall is trying to keep it out. This great cola battle may be decided. indirectly, by the voters on Tuesday.

Footnote: Both Kendall and Austin have made an exploratory trip to the Chinese mainland. Both came back convinced that China isn't yet ready for colas. But both men are eager to introduce their favorite beverage to China, perhaps on a limited basis at first as a refeshment for tourists.

Parma's reluctant Democrats may give Ford the nod By ROWLAND EVANS

And ROBERT NOVAK

PARMA, Ohio - The razor edge margin that may decide how the bellwether Buckeye State goes on Tuesday is sharply defined here in trim, middle-income Parma, an ethnic showplace and presidential election barometer in both Ohio and the nation. Barring an eleventh-hour change by many Democrats still exhibiting strong resistance to coming home after their anti-McGovern spluge of 1972, the outcome here is too close to Given the voting history of Parma's precinct 8G in suburban Cuyahoga County (Cleveland) as an almost exact barometer of state and nation, that means President Ford and former Gov. Jimmy Carter may hit the finish line in a dead heat.

To test the political waters here, we interviewed voters in 73 homes belonging to sons and grandsons of immigrant Slovaks, Poles, Italians, Hungarians and other proudly identifiable ethnics. Our interviews. conducted with the help of three experts - Adrienne Weinle, Viola Majerick and Geraldine Nigro - and questionnaires prepared by Patrick Caddell's Cambridge Survey Research, showed the following results: 29 Ford, 29 Carter, 4 for former Sen. Eugene McCarthy and 11undecided.

Most surprising was the clear indication that for all his lack of charisma and political appeal, Jerry Ford towers over Jimmy Carter in claiming the allegiance of party stalwarts — that is, voters who proclaim their Republican heritage, as against Carter's hold on Democrats who proclaim a Democratic allegiance

Thus, with 34 Democrats, 21 independents and 15 Republicans in our survey (3 voters refused to give their party preference), Mr. Ford holds 80 per cent of the Republicans - but Carter holds only 57 per cent of the Democrats.

Equally hazardous for Jimmy Carter are the independents: the President gets 11, Carter only 7 (the rest undecided)

What this means is that although 1976 will not come close to duplicating the 1972 Democratic flight to Republican Richard Nixon, a possible crucial portion of those Nixon Democrats still have not decided to return to the Democrats in 1976. Our voters, moreover, clearly identified a major reason for this homecoming reluctance: fear of Carter as a political unknown and anger over some of Carter's campaign tactics. A handsome 50-year-old Catholic housewife, of Italian background, said: "Sure we need a change, but I'm not sure this is the right one." Asked what bothered her about Carter, she replied: "He's always knocking

A harsher response came from a middle-aged factory foreman with Yugoslav parentage. "I like his stand on getting rid of all those bureaus in Washington," he said, "but his ambition scares me. He would do anything to be President." An independent, this voter is not only undecided, but boasted that he might boycott the election to show his scorn for both candidates.

In addition to a stronger hold on Republican voters than Carter can yet exert on Democrats, Mr. Ford has a clear advantage here in his twoyear incumbency, despite the fact that a mere 5 voters gave him "excellent" marks as President. The advantage showed in our questions about which man can best handle affairs of state.

Every Ford voter willing to take a position — a total of 26 — said Mr. Ford is "best able to deal with foreign crises," while Carter voters willing to express an opinion split almost evenly.

As for handling the economy (picked as "the most important problem" facing the country by 95 per cent), the President again is preferred by every single Ford voter with an opinion (a total of 19), while only 13 Carter backers chose Carter as preferable, and one Carter supporter gave Mr. Ford the ned. On both these top issues - handling foreign crises and the domestic economy undecided voters broke four-to-one for the President.

What this appears to mean is that Jimmy Carter, despite 22 months of non-stop campaigning, has failed to make a completely convincing case as an outsider to be entrusted with running the country. Thus, a former policeman's wife who intends to vote for Mr. Ford, but with conspicuous lack of enthusiasm, said that Carter "is very critical of the Ford administration but can't put his finger on what he would do. Likewise, a Republican electrical designer is backing the President "not because I think he's so great but because I want to go with what we know.

It is here in Parma where the Democrats must exploit their overwhelming registration edge and break out a huge Democratic majority for Carter in Cuyahoga County to offset downstate Republican margins. Our interviews portend serious problems in carrying out that essential Democratic strategy, a portent that suggests possible grave consequences for Jimmy Carter.

WASHINGTON (AP) - On the eve of a unique and perplexing presidential election, something is missing. Instead of fervor, there is an air of frustration. At the hour of decision, there is indecision.

At the fringes of the campaign crowds, in suburban living rooms, after the PTA meeting, conversation again and again brings a request for simple, compelling reasons to cast a ballot on Tuesday for President Ford or for Jimmy Carter.

But after this long campaign, the question answers itself by the fact that it is so often asked. For it has been a campaign with few hurrahs and no overriding issues. Neither Ford nor Carter has found the theme or the argument to put his imprint on the wavering, undecided voters who hold the key to Tuesday's outcome.

This has not been a good year for slogans, for either candidate orperhaps more important-against him.

The choice was made far in advance by voters who would not have bought a used car from Richard M. Nixon long before Watergate, or feared Barry Goldwater's finger on the nuclear button, or saw George McGovern as the candidate of amnesty, acid and abortion.

That kind of built-in opposition did but it did draw clear lines of opinion. Neither President nor challenger has ever before run in a national election. And while Ford is a familiar figure after 27 months as president, he is in a new role now.

The public opinion analysts detect an unusually high, and persistent, level of indecision among the voters. They find also that there is a lack of intensity in the support for both candidates.

And by every indicator, the contest is close, this election to restore the seal of voter approval to a White House run since Aug. 9, 1974, without benefit of ballot.

hunt votes in Texas

Associated Press Writer

President Ford and the Jimmy Carter family swarmed over Texas during the weekend, searching for votes in a state where Democrats outnumber Republicans almost as much as the Carters outmanned Ford.

Ford was the first contender to arrive as he landed at Houston Friday afternoon and attended a high school football game in Baytown that night.

Both have said the disillusion born of a divisive war and of wrongdoing in high office may have turned off the voters. But there is no evidence that they have been able to turn the electorate back

With Ford, the question is com-petence, and Carter has done his utmost to feed what one Republican leader acknowledged is a nagging doubt that the President is up to the job he holds. Ford did little to allay such doubts with the tactical missteps that dogged his campaign against Reagan, with his misstatement that there is no Soviet domination of eastern Europe, or with his handling of campaign and official personnel problems.

But his record is there for all to see, 27 months in the White House, with economic, foreign and military policies he says have been, and remain, the right ones. No mystery there: with Ford it is all on the record and on the table, the personality as well as the policy.

He says he would be proud indeed to have the American people say on Tuesday "Jerry, you've done a good job. Keep right on doing it."

Nonetheless, judgments about the characteristics of men are difficult judgments, more difficult this time because neither candidate has been this campaign route before.

The campaign has broken little ground on issues that affect the average American. Arguments about the U.S. response to a hypothetical Soviet move against Yugoslavia are about as relevant to the concerns of 1976 as Quemoy and Matsu were to the voters of 1960. Mistakes and misstatements have been magnified into major campaign topics. For a time, there was more talk about Playboy than platforms. In the end, as public opinion analyst Peter Hart puts it, the election may turn on the judgment of the voters about Ford's competence and about Carter's character. Nine months ago, Rep. Morris K. Udall sat on a platform with Carter in Manchester, N.H., and told voters to beware of the intensive, driven candidate who runs for president because he has to be president. At the Democratic National Convention, Udall was extolled as a good loser. There remain misgivings about Carter among people who say that, after all this time, they still don't know where he stands. That is in part their fault, in part his. Hard, precise positions on specific points can win a candidate some supporters, but will inevitably cost him others. So Carter has generally avoided such precision, and speaks instead in terms of goals.

He is for tax reform, but has not said precisely what it will entail, only that no one who does not now gain unfair advantage need be concerned about his program. But try to find a taxpayer who will say that his own deductions are unfair.

So, too, on jobs, government reorganization and other points, Carter has had more to say about the goals than details of how to get there. However, Carter has issued a stream of position papers, has answered uncountable questions, has campaigned actively for 22 months. Seldom has one politician been so thoroughly cross-examined.

MERCEDES, Tex. (AP) - President Ford's special assistant for Hispanic affairs, trying to counter Jimmy Carter's weekend visit to the Lower Rio Grande Valley, has accused the Democratic presidential nominee of favoring blacks over Mexican Americans.

"I have observed in particular a deep Hispanic resentment, a resentment not against the blacks but against Mr. Carter's commitment made to the black community and a lack of commitment which he has had for the Hispanic community," said Thomas Aranda Jr., special assistant to the president for Hispanic affairs.

Carter was in nearby McAllen Saturday, speaking in fluent Spanish and armed with telegrams from Sen. Ted Kennedy and Lady Bird Johnson and accompanied by local, state and national Democratic figures.

PHILADELPHIA - In America, there aren't any left like Hans Moehnnig. This gnomish, pipesmoking, slightly stooped man, who has been repairing clarinets, oboes and bassoons for more than 50 years, practices a master craft that is drying up.

At age 72, he is the oldest and most prestigious of a handful of workmen in his craft in the United States. His work evokes images of medieval guildswork of exacting, hand-done perfection.

Moennig will celebrate his 50th anniversary as a professional in November. Symphony players make the trek to his dusty, crowded workshop here on South 21st Street from all over America, Europe New Zealand, Australia, Korea, Iceland and Israel. They come bringing their instruments for repair or to watch him work and learn the fundamentals of repairing their own instruments.

His clients include Benny Goodman, firstclarinetists Stanley Druker of the New York Philharmonic, Harold Wright of the Boston Symphony and Loren Kitt of the National Symphony. He also does repairs for the entire clarinet section of the New York Philharmonic, and for players from orchestras in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Denver, Cincinnati, Minnesota, Detroit, Dallas, New Orleans and Seattle. His only exclusively jazz client has been Woody Herman.

He works principally for first chair musicians. "My time is limited," he explains, talking through teeth clenching his ever-present pipe and peering over his glasses with half lenses. "I have to say no more often than not."

Clarinetist Robert Little put it another way: "Artists would prefer artistic work, and he'd rather spend his time working for them.

Instrumentalists flock to Moennig not just for repair work, some of which they can do themselves, but in many cases for the expert and meticulous way he tunes and voices an instrument - A skill they say repaired, is the craft of this master artisan dying? he has made an art.

Benny Goodman says, "He's a genius at what he does. He's rather an unusual guy. He's kind of stoic, but he also has a sense of humor. I've known him for

"He's the end of a generation. I don't know what ve're going to do without him. He just redid a Selmer clarinet for me. I'd been after him to do it for woodwind repairmen coming along, says the only 20 years. He wouldn't touch Selmers because he didn't think they were good instruments.

"It was a major coup, I said to him, 'Hans, I've got this Selmer I want you to fix. I need it in about six or seven weeks.' He turned around to me with a glint in his eye. 'Okay, for you I do it.' Anthony Gigliotti, first clarinetist with the Philadelphia Orchestra, says, "Hans is not a repairman. He's an instrument maker. I've seen him take an instrument that was sat on and the wood cracked.

He made a new part, a bore, and you couldn't tell it was done over.

Many misrepresentations have been made about that record in this

My opponent has failed, time and time again, to get the facts straight. It was especially disappointing to hear him say on television that we are not fighting the narcotics traffic. Our narcotics officers are working day and night, and have presented many cases to the Grand Jury over the years, and several this year resulting in convictions of men engaged in the despicable business of selling narcotics. We work closely with the Police Department, the Texas

Rangers, and federal officers in tracking them down and bringing them to justice. If my opponent had taken the time to check the records, he would have known better than to make the statement he made. It is not true, and the narcotics trade is and will remain our number one

Only you can decide whether uniforms and marked cars are as important as my opponent seems to think. He wore a uniform and drove a marked car while he was a traffic patrolman, but your Sheriff's Department - as every other Texas Sheriff's Office - does not patrol the highways for traffic, or give tickets. We don't have the personnel for that, and the police and D. P. S. people do that job. In common with the Texas Rangers, FBI and every other criminal investigative agency outside the local police, we do not wear uniforms or drive marked cars with lights, etc., because we do not think it wise to advertise our presence when we are attempting to find and arrest a

A "uniform" should include at least 3 complete outfits, plus hats, overcoats, raincoats and boots. I was shocked at the prices quoted, but on today's market this would cost at least $1,000.00 per deputy according to my most recent investigation of prices. Replacements, couragement and support as they do their jobs.

Gigliotti is right about Moennig not just repairing instruments. Sometimes he makes instruments for a special purpose. In 1957, a piccolo player in the Philadelphia Orchestra was having trouble in rehearsals with his instrument making a high note in a Mahler piece. He went to Moennig for help. Using cane, Moennig made a whistle that produced only the desired note.

Conductor Leopold Stokowski was so impressed he made a special visit to Moennig's shop. "Yes, Stokey liked what I did," recalls the craftsman. The repair or customizing of woodwind instruments can be a simple or complicated process. Sometimes a key on a clarinet or bassoon must be moved to fit a player's peculiar reach. Or it might be necessary to tighten the covers and skin pads of a clarinet to improve the sound and quicken the action. If an instrument is cracked, delicate handwork is required to fix and insure that the break will not recur.

Why, then if there are thousands and thousands of players who need their woodwind instruments

Moennig sees it simply. "People no longer want to do an apprenticeship, he says. "When I started as an apprentice, I got 50 cents a week. Young people don't want to put in long hours for little money. Instruments are made by machinery today. We made them by hand when I was growing up. Paul Covey, at 29 one of the two or three young way he learned the fundamentals of repair was through his wife's teaching school and supporting both of them while he observed Moennig working for several months in 1970.

"I just hung around his shop and watched him work" he said. "It was fascinating." Covey, who works in Baltimore and sometimes plays oboe with the Baltimore Symphony, said sometimes a repairman doesn't have enough work to pay an apprentice. This was the reason he recently turned down a young man's request for an apprenticeship.

"I'd have to carry someone for about two months before there was enough work built up for him to do," observed Covey.

Only one person has ever apprenticed with the demanding Moennig - Casimer Luczycki, and he's still working with "the meister" (his appellation for Moennig) after 35 years. However, now he rents space in the shop and has his own customers, concentrating on clarinetists.

Still, he continues to defer to Moennig and looks skeptically at many younger repairmen, saying, 'They're not equal to the meister. The repairing of an instrument should come after you've learned to make one. And they can't make instruments."

A cursory glance at Moennig's shop suggests that he and his work are of the past. His 20-foot work bench is strewn with tools, parts and instruments. He uses a watchmaker's lathe operated by a footpedal ("I like the manual for reversal," he says) and an old-fashioned dentist drill he likes because it operates slowly, and he stores tools and parts in scores of cigar boxes stacked in jumbled fashion all over the shop.

Why cigar boxes? "It's easy to get them from the tobacco shop," he answers, "and they're small. I know where everything is."

Moennig comes from a family of instrument makers and repairmen in the town of Markenu-Kirchen, in what is now East Germany. The town, in the province of Dresden, was famous for decades as a center for the manufacture of musical instruments. His grandfather Wilhelm Moennig, who lived between about 1850 and 1945, was a flute maker and operated his own shop after working for the Meyer Co. in Hanover. Moennig's father, Hans, who lived between 1878 and 1944, worked for Boehm and Mendler in Nuremberg, and, later, with his brother operated the father's shop

Wilhelm Hans Moennig was born on Dec. 14, 1903. He wanted to be a customs official, but his parents persuaded him to try instrument making and repair as a secure trade.

First, he had/ to learn all the woodwind instruments. Next he apprenticed for three years. And then he was ready for work on his own. Initially, he came to this country in 1923, working in Providence, Boston and New York. He returned to Germany in 1925 and at the behest of a cousin, Walter Guetter, one-time first bassoonist of the Philadelphia Orchestra, returned to America - and to Philadelphia - in 1926. He's had his own shop since.

Aerospace may take off

interviews.

Despite all the gloomy headlines politicians talking of defense cuts, airlines in financial trouble, etc. the aerospace industry should have a string of good years beginning in 1977. Real (after inflation) growth might even run to 10 per cent a year up to 1980, agreed Wall Street analysts in

The stock market has already taken some of these growth expectations into account, as aerospace issues have started to move at last.

Over the last 52 weeks, Media General's composite of 52 aerospace stocks has risen 31.6 per cent; one subcategory, MG's index of three aircraft makers, has risen 72.9 per cent. (Boeing stock closed 1975 at 24.375, at seven times earnings, and is now selling above 42, at 11 times earnings.)

The analysts agreed that the military aircraft end of the business (spurred by foreign demand) should enjoy several fat years, and while airlines might not have the money (or the need) for another generation of wide-bodied superjets, they will be needing replacement airplanes.

"In the military end of the business, the prospects are good as far as the said Wolfgang Demisch, analyst for Smith Barney, Harris Upham.

"I would guess that shipments will run at rates in excess of 10 per cent a year in constant dollars." (That is, more than 10 per cent real growth.)

"The U.S. armed services are going through their third big re-equipment cycle since the end of World War II," he said, and that means that the F-14 through F-18 fighters, new helicopters, strategic bombers and the like should roll off assembly lines without major difficulties (although there is talk that if Carter is elected the B-1 bomber program, which should benefit Rockwell, might not make it).

Demisch, incidentally, gives a poignant reason why even Carter might approve the B-1 program. Some 80 per cent of those planes are the old B-52s. Some of them are already 20 years old. In five years, those planes will be older than the pilots flying them - and this is not reassuring to the public.

The stocks "still have a fair way to go," he said. "They are still selling at a depressed level vis-a-vis the general market, and in the previous two cycles, they sold substantially above." He likes Boeing as a quality issue, McDonnell Douglas as a stock which is "a cut lower" because of a weaker balance sheet, and highyielding Rockwell for those needing

Just six months ago, Value Line rated the aerospace stocks 42nd among its 85 industry groups for yearahead performance. Now, they're seventh. Said analyst Frank P. Giove, "About the only military program which might not survive a new administration would be the B-1 Carter has almost said he wouldn't OK it."

He feels 10 per cent real growth is in the offing, and thinks Lear Siegler, AMBAC and Sundstrand are "the most timely commitments now."

Alan Benasuli of Drexel Burnham predicts that the commercial aircraft business will drop to between $3.4 billion and $3.5 billion next year versus 1976's $3.65 billion and 1975's $4.1 billion.

empty. Jimmy Carter, who had been there earlier, had left this bleak, chilly town, and there was no trace of the 2,000 people who had listened, cheered, booed and brawled during his speech.

It was time for the Hudson County Democratic organization to follow up on the speech. The organization had been famous for corruption under old-time political boss Frank Hague but is now in the hands of younger, reform-minded citizens.

Still, the old ways were followed, and in the end, Carter — for all of his antipolitical boss speeches had to depend on the precinct captains and department heads of Jersey City Mayor Paul Jordan, a physician turned civic reformer, to deliver the votes he needs to carry this key industrial state.

After Carter left the rally last week, the precinct captains said they did not think much of his political workers from Atlanta. And it was apparent that the Carter workers were out of place among the roughtalking pragmatic politicians of North Jersey.

But, as is true throughout the industrial North, the bosses and the clean-cut Atlantans must still get together for a final Election Day push they hope will give Carter a state he needs - but is not sure of

They must produce a 50,000-vote plurality for Carter in the state's urban areas, they said, to overcome an expected Ford vote in the more affluent suburbs and assure Carter of New Jersey's 17 electoral votes.

But first there were a few messy details to clean

There was, for example, the matter of the fight. Fights are not unusual at political rallies in this rough section of New Jersey, and most of the crowd spectators, did not miss a phrase.

More importantly, since the crowd was so much smaller than the 10,000 expected, it raised the question of whether leaders of the powerful unions Federation of State and Municipal Employees would have enough members manning phone banks and ringing doorbells before Election Day to stir up the voters.

Then, there were the peculiar circumstances of the Scheutzen Park rally.

Once, political rallies had a simple purpose - to stir up those in the neighborhood. A few speeches, free beer, hot dogs and entertainers equaled voters for the candidate.

It is not like that any more. Afterwards, Mayor Jordan explained one of the real reasons the rally had been held.

Surveys by Patrick Caddell, Carter's pollster, had shown that Ford had a stronger image in the Northern industrial states as a family man than Carter did - despite all of Carter's talk about his wife Rosalynn, his children, his mother and other relatives.

Carter, ignoring the unruly the television networks and the local New York stations that covered the event. That is a very sophisticated concept for New Jersey, something better understood by the television-minded media experts who manage such as the auto workers and the American campaigns in California, for example. In New Jersey, the bribe, old-fashioned clout and the timely favor are more important. It is so bad that in 1974, the "Almanac of American Politics" said of the state: "At this writing, the list of New Jersey politicians convicted of crimes or under indictment reads like a Who's Who of state politics."

Even in Jersey City, where Mayor Jordan has been trying to clean things up, the old forms of precinct organization - and a precinct captain who can help speed your way through City Hall - are still im-

The Carter advance people have no patience with these practices. They are all efficiency and hustle. The tedious task of buttering up a score of local political chieftains takes up too much of their time.

In the end, however, all that is relevant to Jordan and local labor leaders is unemployment and empty The Carter campaign felt that something had to be municipal treasuries. And they all said they believed done quickly. So, Jordan said, the rally at Scheutzen that only a Democratic administration in Washington could help them.

POLITICAL PARTY IRRESPONSIBILITY

We believe that the leadership of the Midland Republican Party violated their political responsibility to the citizens of Midland in selecting the Republican candidate for District Attorney. It is the duty of a political party to select and present qualified candidates for public office. In the District Attorney's race, the Republican Party not only failed to select a qualified candidate, they selected the most unqualified candidate in Midland County for the office. Their selection is a blight on the political party system and adversly affects the public confidence in the political party system. It is an example of the reasons that a growing number of citizens are withdrawing from the political party processes and declaring themselves independents.

The Republican candidate for District Attorney claims that he has specialized in the defense of persons charged with crimes in Midland County. for the past eight years. According to the dockets of the city and county courts, he currently représents more criminal defendants than any other attorney in Midland. In the District Court, he represents defendants charged with narcotics violations, burglary, murder and many other offenses defined by the penal code. His claims are correct and render him wholly unqualified to occupy the office.

It is easy to visualize some of the insurmountable problems that would result if a person in the Republican candidate's position were elected District Attorney. What would happen in all the criminal cases where he is now the. attorney for the defendant? He cannot prosecute his own clients. Such a procedure would violate the statutory code of ethics and certainly violate the rights of his clients. A special prosecutor might be hired to prosecute his clients. The question would then arise as to who would be hired, how long would he be employed and how much additional money his position would cost-the taxpayers. How would the Republican candidate's clients feel about their hired lawyer becoming District Attorney? Some of them might assume that they had a right to a dismissal of their case or some other special relief. If any of his clients should be convicted, we can be assured that they would feel betrayed. Claims of conflict of interest would certainly be lodged in every case in the apeliare courts. How much would it cost the taxpayers to hire special prosecutors to handle the appeals? With the Republican candidate's long standing background as a criminal defense attorney, there inevitably will be many defendants subject to prosecution who have previously paid him money to defend them in criminal cases. There will always be suspicions of loyalty or disloyalty or with respect to any action he might take regarding their cases.

The purpose of this article is not to cast any aspersions upon the Republican candidate's personal character, his professional competence, or his election to specialize in the defense of persons accused of crimes. We do question his judgment in agreeing to run for the office. The purpose of this article is to demonstrate that the election of the Republican candidate as District Attorney would create utter chaos in the operations of the District Attorney's office. There would be continuing suspicions regarding his handling of cases. Ethical and legal questions regarding his qualifications to handle particular cases would constantly arise. The costs of special prosecutors to handle complicated appeals in the appellate courts would be a constant Apparently, some current leaders of the local Republican Party are also concerned about the seriousness of the situation. You won't find any campaign signs for District Attorney on the Republican Headquarters. The Republican candidate for District Attorney filed for office just a few hours before the deadline for filing in the primary. In their frantic efforts to find candidates for local office, the Republican leadership obviously failed to give adequate consideration to the qualifications of their candidate.

We feel that the matters discussed in this article are very serious and should be of concern to all citizens. A tragic mistake was recently made in the Texas Supreme Court race due to the failure of the Democratic Party to inform the public. Let's not make a costly mistake in Midland. Loyal Republicans can help remedy the problem by not voting at all in the District Attorney's race. Democrats and Independents need to make certain that they vote for Trey Lohmann.

Since I started Pat Walker's, I have lost 124 lbs. and 143 inches.

Needless to say, I feel and look like a different person. On one occasion a person both my husband and I know wasn't going to speak because they thought my husband was with somebody else. This person is amazed at the change I have made.

The biggest thrill I get is shopping for clothes and being able to pick and choose. When you wear a size 241/2 you don't have much choice, but size 8 you have a better selection.

If you have a weight problem this is the place to come.

One of the most rewarding things I have done for myself was to take advantage of my complimentary treatment at Pat Walker's. I was very much impressed with the treatment and the friendly efficient staff. After taking only a few treatments my family and friends began to notice my weight loss which was very encouraging. I have lost 21 pounds and 37 inches and now wear a size 8 instead of size 12 and have not completed my treatments.

I had tried a number of diets but the Pat Walker routine is one could live with the rest of my life. I still receive encouragement from the personnel at Pat Walker's and from my family at home.

Thank you, Pat Walker, for making me feel better physically and emo-

Tests show new

pill' will work

By JAMES BRONSON Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES - Swell. That's how the results of the initial tests on "the pill" for men are going at Harbor General Hospital.

Nearly half of the first stage of the three-year testing program at the nearby Torrance area facility is complete and the participating researchers are elated.

"We're very happy with the way the drug has been working," says Dr. R. Dale McClure, administrator of the male contraceptive study.

McClure says in the study, subjects are being injected with a synthetic testosterone hormone which forces their pituitary glands to stop manufacturing sperm.

"The volunteers are temporarily sterile," McClure says, adding that the men will have normal full sperm counts within several months.

During the first stage of the study, 25 men were divided into two groups and one group received injections weekly, while the others received bi-monthly injections.

Results from the test, which began in January, show no harmful side effects even though the synthetic hormone did reduce sperm counts, McClure says. "There were some side effects eight pounds," he says.

McClure says other side effects, such as tenderness of the breasts, swelling of the breasts, increased acne and a rise in red blood cell count has not surfaced in any of the participants.

"During the past, these things have been known to be caused by the drug, but they have not yet been a problem."

He says in a larger population, however, the incidence of similar side effects occur, but rarely.

McClure says the hospital seeking 25 more volunteers to ad-several of the men gained from five to vance to a more complex level of "The response from the media reports was tremendous," says McClure on the announcement of the first series of tests.

"We had so many telephone calls, we could not answer them all."

McClure says some of the volunteers wanted to give their wives an alternative to taking the birth control pill, while others wanted to participate in advancing medical research.

"Most of them were not selfishly motivated," McClure says. "Not as far as we could determine."

Old-fashioned firewood has practical comeback in 1970s

WASHINGTON — After an absence of almost 100 years, firewood — man's oldest and most cheerful means of heating caves and homes - is being rediscovered as one of the nation's cheapest and most inexhaustible fuels.

More wood and wood stoves are being sold now than at any time since the turn of the century, when all houses were heated by firewood or coal and the frågrant aroma of woodsmoke, and not-so-fragrant clouds of coalsmoke, drifted across the land.

Firewood may be cheaper than natural gas within the next 60 days as pending gas price increases go into effect here and around the nation.

In fact, heating a house with wood can cost virtually nothing if you have access to a wood lot, somewhere and have the time and muscle to cut, split, haul and stack your own firewood. That is something a homeowner can't do with natural gas. fuel oil or electricity.

However, wood is one of the cheapest fuels only if the homeowner uses a wood stove - not a fireplace — to heat his home. Though cozy to sit by, fireplaces, a 14th century European invention, lose 90-97 per cent of their heat up the chimney, according to the Federal Energy Administration and Benjamin Franklin, the 18th century's most knowledgeable Franklin invented an "improved" stove, since gussied up and called the Franklin stove. First invented by the Chinese, stoves were in use over 2,500 years before Franklin began fiddling with them.

But it was Washington, D.C.'s Isaac Orr who in 1836 invented the "airtight" stove that revolutionized wood burning and has made wood stoves as efficient as modern gas and oil furnaces - all of which still lose about 30-40 per cent of their heat up the flue. However, some Scandinavian companies claim their cast-iron "airtights" are now up to 90 per cent efficient, losing only 10 per cent of their heat up the chimney.

The small, enamelled stove, only 12 inches wide and 19 inches long, burns wood longitudinally like a cigar and needs to be filled only two or three times every 24 hours.

The stoves called Jotuls, are fast becoming American household words, as are other Scandinavian stoves like Marso, Lange and Trolla. The few remaining U.S. stove manufacturers also are flourishing again, although not many of their names are as melodious as Morso, Trolla, Lange and Jotul.

More than $1 million worth of the popular cast-iron Jotuls were sold in this country last winter, although the stoves were first imported here only three years

The 100-year-old Portland (Maine) Stove Foundry, which makes replicas of Franklin and other early American stoves, sold all of its 3,000 hand-made castiron wood stoves last year and has a year's waiting list for its large old-fashioned cooking range.

"One of our cheaper Franklins is made in Taiwan in an automated factory that is now putting out 10,000 cast iron stoves a month, almost all being exported to this country," said Portland President Peter Coyne. 'We're seeing a huge new interest in wood-burning stoves in this country."

Low-income residents in Maine are now converting to wood stoves as their primary or secondary source of heat at the rate of about 5 per cent a year, state energy officials say, a trend appearing in many states with plentiful woodlands. So many wood stoves and fireplaces have been lit in Aspen, Colo., that city officials said that frequently last winter 'you could see a cloud over the city."

The return to wood may not be just a temporary romantic, back-to-earth-and-natural things movement, spurred by the rising prices of other fuels, but could be a long-range heating solution for as many homes in America as it is Europe.

While the FEA has not previously mentioned firewood as a fuel for Americans in any of its publications, this fall it is broadcasting the word in a picture story: "Fuelwood - Another Alternative," suggesting that it can be an "economical" way to heat a home in certain parts of the country.

Based on an interview with Larry Gay, a former physics professor and author of "The Complete Book of Heating With Wood," the FEA essay says there is sufficient fuelwood available in U.S. forests - 160 million cords a year - to heat 33 million homes all

And this is just by culling crooked trees, using the says it "seemed much more sincere. residue from logging and manufacturing and cutting less than the annual forest growth in America's woodlands. Thus, without depleting the nation's forests sufficient firewood could be found to heat

FRUIT-VEGETABLE GROUP

While all fruits and vegetables are included in this Group, those valuable as sources of vitamin C and vitamin A are emphasized.

Recommended Amounts: Four or more servings every day, including I serving of a good source of vitamin C or 2 servings of a fair source; 1 serving. at least every other day, of a good source of vitamin A. If the food chosen for vitamin C is also a good source of vitamin A, the additional serving. of a vitamin A food may be omitted. The remaining 1 to 3 or more servings may be any vegetable or fruit, including those valuable for their vitamin C and vitamin A. Count as I serving: 1/2 cup of vegetable or fruit; or a portion as ordinarily served, such as I medium apple, banana, orange, or potato, half a medium grapefruit or cantaloupe. Good Sources of Vitamin C: Grapefruit or grapefruit juice, orange or orange juice, cantaloupe, guava, mango, papaya, fresh strawberries, broccoli, brussels sprouts, green pepper, sweet red

Fair Sources of Vitamin C: Honeydew melon, lemon, tangerine or tangerine juice, watermelon, asparagus tips, raw cabbage, cauliflower, collards, garden cress, kale, kohfrabi, mustard greens, potatoes and sweet potatoes cooked in the jacket, rutabagas, spinach, tomatoes or tomato juice, turnip greens.

Sources of Vitamin A: Dark-green and deepyellow vegetables, and a few fruits, namely; apricots; broccoli, cantaloupe, carrots, chard, collards, cress, kale, mango, persimmon, pumpkin. spinach, sweet potatoes, turnip greens and other dark-green leaves, winter squash.

Contribution to Diet: Fruits and vegetables are valuable chiefly for their vitamins and minerals. In this plan, this group is counted on to furnish nearly all the vitamin C needed and over half of the vitamin A. Vitamin C is needed for healthy gums and body tissues, while vitamin A is needed for growth, normal vision and healthy condition of skin and other body surfaces.

Shoplifters are becoming bolder, more organized

So are the victimized merchants, faced with the need to combat a form of thievery escalating at an

Approximately $4.8 billion in merchandise is stolen by shoplifters throughout the country each year, according to a chamber of commerce report, which

"This is at the rate of approximately $10 million daily. The rate of increase in thefts over the last six years has been 20 per cent a year."

Police, chambers of commerce and merchants agree that shoplifters are of all ages and come from all social, economic, ethnic and racial backgrounds. They do fit into two classifications - amateur and professional. Learning to recognize the thieves and understanding their methods of operation are increasing the merchants' advantages.

One merchant expressed an opinion shared by a number of others when he said: "One of our best lines of defense is trained, alert salespeople."

The training comes from in-store security staffs, outside security organizations and the police departments.

While many professional shoplifters learn from experience and each other, some prepare as seriously as university students prepare for legitimate careers.

There actually are underground shoplifting schools in several areas of the United States," police officer John Slough said. "Check-writing is one of the courses, since it occasionally is used in a coordinated effort with shoplifting. Tuition at these schools is quite high but the prospective shoplifters consider it

Equipment is important to all professionals. Police and merchants are acquainted with the "booster" boxes designed to spring open and shut for quick concealment of lifted items, hand and shopping bags with special fittings or secret compartments, coats lined with hooks and pockets, full dresses to slip easily over clothing donned in fitting rooms and bloomers making it possible to carry articles bet-

Along with training regular personnel, most stores have security people on their staffs. Guards are men and women of various ages. Some stores have guards wear uniforms and some opt for plain clothes.

Speaking in favor of uniformed security personnel the director of a Stores Protective Association said: "Letting prospective shoplifters know that the store is on the alert can create a security atmosphere. The same stores also have plain clothes guards for double protection."

guards are more sophisticated than the old large hand-held models. They are small enough to wear, frequently go unnoticed and are just as effective in to hear 4 cases 'There have been advancements in the entire field of electronic detection devices," the protective association director said. "Some stores tag their merchandise with labels designed to set off alarms if they are carried through doors. All of the early detection tags were of the same type. Now, they may be hard or soft, large or small.'

Top items for shoplifters today are citizen band radios. They have superceded the former leaders. music tape decks and hand computers. A lot of jewelry also has gone under glass.

Chains are appearing on a wide spectrum of merchandise

In some stores wearing apparel most enticing to thieves - leather jackets at the moment - are on racks with attached chains that pass through the jacket sleeves. Jackets can be removed only when the salesperson releases the ring-at the end of the sleeve. Bars have been added to other racks for the

The half-hour programs, shown over statewide networks in states considered crucial to the election, begin with a series of television clips of the President performing at rallies the same day as the broadcast. Coming in over Inglewood and the airport, the basin below has that same hazy ultraviolet look so often seen and commented upon. Driving north on the San Diego Freeway the radio reports a trailer-tractor accident on the northbound lane. Fire department crews are "hosing the slippery inflammable fuel off the freeway before it can be ignited" and "throwing some sand on the freeway to keep cars from skidding around." Checking into the hotel, buying the Los Angeles Times, reading about an incipient taxpayers' revolt and seeing the county assessor quoted as saying he had no choice but to reassess properties at values that in some cases will cause taxes to double. "I can't stop inflation," he says. "It's like standing at the seaside and saying, "Tide, don't come in.""

Los Angeles, yes. Cliches, all. What's not so often noted is a more important fact about this part of America. Nowhere else in the country do you find such strong interest in political issues. Apathy and cynicism may be dominant themes in other sections, but here the air is filled with discussion and debate. For all its problems, for all its benign, easy-going surface atmosphere, Los Angeles and its sprawling environment remain a center of political health and vitality. An important difference exists, though. Here it's the local, not the national, campaigns that are attracting interest and enthusiasm,

"When the race began we all thought Jimmy Carter was going to carry us all into office," says Sabrina Schiller, a 33-year-old former actress who is running for the state Senate. "We thought it would be a tremendous advantage to have Carter at the top of the ticket. But as the race has progressed, our coattails here are getting longer and longer and his are getting shorter and shorter.
"We realize now that the presidential race is going to be won or lost in our district according to our campaign activities. And by what kind of image we established and what kind of strong get-out-the-vote campaign we organize.

That may not be flattering to the national candidates, but it is a testament to the kinds of political activity you encounter here in Southern California. Whether on the radio or television or in the newspapers or in private discussions with citizens, you cannot escape the range and seriousness of the issues being debated. Citizens are being asked to vote for or against a model comprehensive cancer center; for building or rehabilitating 10,000 units of low-cost housing for older citizens; for money for sewers and sewage treatment centers to bring the area into conformity with a federal law forbidding dumping of sludge into the ocean after 1980; and for a plethora of other state and local voter propositions on the various ballots.

Some of these deal with reorganizing county and city government. One, generating strong interest and controversy, would guarantee farm workers the right to vote on whether or not to participate in a union.

There's something else striking about Southern California politics. To see it in action at the local level is to understand what has been largely missing from the national election. Jimmy Carter talks about trust when he asks for a change. Gerald Ford emphasizes security when he calls for continuity. But there the issues deal more specifically with the problems affecting most people. The issues are about the way people live, and about what can be done to make their lives

The themes go beyond the familiar one of placing faith in politicians. They deal with what surely are the operative elements of today's politics - consumerism, the environment, the role of women, the rejection of traditional political party structure and methods. And that's where Sabrina Schiller's race is instructive.

For 19 years her Senate district has been represented by a traditional Republican. Lou Cusanovich. It is a conservative district that varies enormously in its demographic and geographic makeup. The district runs from the great wealth in Malibu along the Pacific shores through the San Fernando Valley across two mountain ranges — the Santa Monica and Santa Susana — to the farming areas of Newhall and Valencia. There are 288,557 voters in this district, of whom 50.1 per cent classify themselves as Democrats. But in California party labels mean almost nothing.

Sabrina Schiller is basing her candidacy on what she believes to be a different era in politics. Although a Democrat, she's running more as a new face representing new interests and new constituencies. Not being an incumbent helps her, she thinks, as does being a woman. She's uncomfortable with the word politician. "It carries evil connotations," she says. "It carries graft and greed and personal gain.
It's a shame. I think we need to clean up the image and then maybe the name will clean itself up.

Her entry into politics came through a common desire in California to do something about air pollution. She became involved in a group called Stamp Out Smog, and then began going to Sacramento to work as an unpaid volunteer on environmental and consumer bills. "I originated something out here called share-a-ride day, which got worldwide attention because it was the first car-pool effort which has led us to what we now call commuter computer," she says. "And last year I coordinated a bill which would keepthe prices on grocery items at the

The way she is campaigning is also different for her district. She's going from door to door every day. Already she's talked with more than 15,000 voters, and still has many more to go.

"People have the same needs, the same problems," she says, "We have Inequities in property taxation. We have inequities in the marketplace. We have a problem not just here in California, but countrywide, in that the large corporations are growing larger and the independent business people are being squeezed out. They cannot compete. We see it here, because we are an agricultural state, directly in the price of our groceries at the market. These are universal SECT problems. Then, of course, there are purely local problems — a school district down here needs more money, we need a freeway there, a park there. But you've got to have a grasp of the local picture in order to represent any district well." And with that Sabrina Schiller left her campaign office to head into another precinct. This one was far away - over both mountain ranges, through the valley and Topanga Canyon and into Simi Valley.

Of all the voters Sabrina Schiller spoke to this day on Galena Avenue, three out of four who were changing were going for Jimmy Carter. Nearly all of them said they had only recently made up their minds.

The question is whether they will actually vote. There, too, the efforts of this local campaign seem to be assisting the Democratic nominee. Sabrina Schiller and her hardworking volunteers have waged an aggressive get-out-the-vote campaign. Already they've contacted two thirds of the voters in this huge district. And they have been actively attempting to register new voters.

Cowboys bury wrinkled Redskins despite off day

MIAMI DOLPHIN tight end Jim Mandich, 88, grabs a pass from quarterback Bob Griese and is about to be grabbed, in turn, by New England safety Prentice McCray in NFL action at Miami

WASHINGTON (AP) — Combine Roger Staubach, injured pinky and all, with the Dallas defense and that could only spell trouble for a National Football League opponent. As a mat-ter of fact, it could be bad news for the Staubach, who played with the little finger of his throwing hand taped because of a broken bone, led the Cowboys to a 20-7 victory over Washington Sunday, cementing Dallas' lead in the National Conference East and diminishing the Redskins' playoff hopes.

"This was not a good day offensive" said Staubach, "other than we didn't have any turnovers. It was the MIDDLE LINEBACKER Lee Roy Jordan also was pleased with the Cowboys' defensive performance, which saw them make seven quarterback sacks, two interceptions, one recovered fumble and shut out the Redskins until the finals seconds of the game. "I think we have the best defense we ever had," said Jordan, a 14-year veteran with Dallas. "It has more ability to do things, more size, more speed, more everything.

"I don't think we are nearly as good as we are going to be in eight or 10 to a return to the playoffs and the Super Bowl.

The victory gave the Cowboys a 7-1 record. Washington is 5-3. St. Louis now is in second place in the NFC East with a 6-2 mark after beating San Francisco 23-20 Sunday.

"THIS IS A real big step," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "If you get to thinking in a positive way. that's the way you will play. If you get to thinking you will lose, that's what is going to happen to you.'

At no time did it appear the Cowboys were thinking about losing to the Redskins, despite dropping five defense. They gave us great posi- weeks," he said, obviously referring in a row in the nation's capital since

After threatening early in the first quarter without scoring, the Cowboys took advantage of an 18-yard punt return by Butch Johnson which put the ball on the Redskins 20. Five plays later, Doug Dennison bulled over from the three for a touchdown. In the second quarter, a Redskins threat was snuffed out by Charlie Waters, who intercepted a 19-yard pass by Bill Kilmer to Jean Fugett in

"IF ONLY we could've gotten a field goal before the half, it would've been a big lift," said Washington Coach George Allen.

Staubach, who completed 13 of 23 passes for 152 yards, including six of 10 from the Cowboys' spread formation for five first downs, started picking up the Washington blitz in the second half and drove the length of the field before taking the ball over himself from the one.

"They took away our running game," he said. "So I had to go to the pass. We didn't expect them to blitz so much. They gave us a lot in the first half but we didn't take advantage of it until the second half." The Cowboys also got field goals of 37 and 21 yards by Efren Herrera in the second half, the first after Ed Jones recovered a fumble and the second following an interception by Mel

In the final minutes of the game, Washington's Eddie Brown returned a punt 59 yards to the Dallas 20 and three plays later Joe Theismann threw a seven-yard touchdown to Roy Jefferson with 45 seconds remaining.

Remember 'Bama's Johnny Musso? Well, Vikings do after upset loss

CHICAGO (AP) - Running back Johnny Musso doesn't get to see much action with the Chicago Bears since he plays behind Walter Payton, but the 26-year-old veteran of three pro football leagues remembered what to do when the ball was loose in the end

That gave the Bears the winning touchdown early in the fourth quarter and a measure of revenge Sunday in a 14-13 National Football League victory over the Minnesota Vikings, who had beaten Chicago by one point three

"I got hit and felt the ball fall. It kicked it," said Musso.

"I knew I was in trouble. I thought that I might better get that thing secure ... I went from the valley to the summit. I had about two seconds of heart failure."

MUSSO, A star at Alabama, played in the Canadian Football League from 1972 to 1974 and moved to the World Football League before joining the Bears last year. Musso's three-yard touchdown run gave Chicago a 14-6 lead en route to toppling the NFL's last undefeated team and ending a four-year,

Payton, the league's top rusher, scored Chicago's first touchdown on a 39-yard run in the opening quarter but left the game because his ankle, injured last week against Dallas, was bothering him.

That made room for Musso. "That's what I'm here for," he said. "Walter's played so well that you really couldn't find anyone to complain about backing him up."

Kicking was a key factor, just as it was in the first game between the teams. In that one, Bears placekicker Bob Thomas missed two extra points-

> Midland and the oil industry have never had a harder-working, more effective Congressman then George Mahon, who has been our Representative in Washington for the past 12 years. Not only has George Mahon been an invaluable ally and spokesman for petroleum...one we can't afford to do without...he has secured many other things for our community: our badly-needed Federal Court and Federal Building, help for our airport and for Midland College; individual and personal help for our citizens, servicemen, small businessmen and farmers who needed help in cutting through the re l tape of government bureaucracy; bringing President Ford to Midland to see first-hand what petroleum means to our nation, and what incentives the industry needs in order to do its job for the nation. Four National Conservative Groups Rate Congressional Candidates On Their Stand For Constitutional Government:

ACA-AMERICANS FOR CONSTITUTIONAL ACTION NCPAC - NATIONAL CONSERVATIVE POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE CSFC-COMMITTEE FOR SURVIVAL OF A FREE CONGRESS ACU-AMERICAN CONSERVATIVE UNION

Three of these groups have endorsed Jim Reese for Congress in the West Texas 19th District. One (ACU) has not endorsed either candidate. None have endorsed incumbent George Mahon.

The A.C.A. says: "An analysis of the voting record of Representative George Mahon shows that, over the years, he has voted 56 percent of the time against sound money: 43 percent against a private competitive market; 49 percent against private ownership: and 45 percent against strengthening our National sovereignty, while voting for those legislative procedures and programs which would bring about a socialistic United States."

Congressional ratings by the A.C.U. show that Representative Mahon's record of support for conservative legislation in 1975 was only 64 percent; in 1974 it was only 70 percent; and in 1973, dropped clear to 58 percent.

The A.C.A., in its endorsement, sees Reese "as a highly qualified individual whose civic and business achievements indicate that, when elected to the United States Congress, he will fight courageously to preserve our Constitutional form of government and the social and economic systems it provides and protects."

Cardinals kick 49ers in thriller

ST. LOUIS (AP) - "If you're off this much," Jim Bakken of the St. Louis Cardinals explained with fingers apart, "things aren't going to Bakken proved correct when the San Francisco 49ers' Steve Mike-Mayer missed a 23-yard field goal try with two minutes left in a National Football League game Sunday. Minutes later, the Cards' veteran erased the margin for such error and booted his team to a 23-20 triumph in the NFL's fourth overtime of the season.

"That's why we spend time on the practice field working on it," said Bakken, whose 21-yard kick settled the long struggle.

"I THINK all of us kind of take extra points and short field goals for granted, but believe me we (kickers) don't," the 35- year-old Bakken ad-

Bakken's field goal, the 452nd of his 15 pro seasons, came at 6:42 of the overtime after the Cards recovered a 49ers fumble at the San Francisco 43. But earlier, when given a chance to snap a 20-20 tie with an extra point. the fourth-ranking scorer in NFL history had his try blocked.

"As near as we could tell we didn't do anything different than we do all the time," Bakken said of his conversion attempt, which was batted down by San Francisco's Dave Washington.

"HE HAD nothing to lose like he might have on a field goal try,' Bakken said of the blocked attempt which followed Jim Hart's 77-yard touchdown pass to Mel Gray. After that, the 49ers stormed to St.

Louis' 12-yard line. There, however, the drive stalled and a nervous Mike-Mayer missed from the 13. Mike-Mayer dressed quickly and was conspicuous by his absence later in San Francisco's dressing room. But the holder for his attempt, Scott

Bull, explained the miss as partially due to a low center snap which affected the Hungarian-born kicker's timing.

Earlier, a missed Mike-Mayer conversion try in the second period had prevented the 49ers from gaining a 7-7 tie following Del Williams' first of three touchdowns.

WILLIAMS GALLOPED 23 yards around left end, putting San Francisco ahead 13-7 at halftime, and later plunged one yard to establish a 20-14 advantage for the 49ers early in the fourth quarter.

Battered by 34 Williams runs accounting for 194 yards, St. Louis stayed in contention on three Hart touchdown passes, including a nineyarder to J.V. Cain in the opening two minutes after San Francisco failed to cover the opening kickoff and a 23yarder to Terry Metcalf in the third quarter.

"They're a champignshiptype team," a disappointed 49ers Coach Monte Clark said of the Cards. 'They've been in this type of game before, and I guess that's why they won today.

Texas tests Tech's mettle

BY TED BATTLES

Going into Saturday's game with Texas. Texas Tech was undefeated, but for many the record was suspect. Some would remain unconvinced until the Raiders' character was tested.

No one can argue convincingly that that old spoiler of Red Raider dreams, Texas, didn't check out the Tech courage and resolution thoroughly and legitmately Saturday.

Tech, arter an early 7-0 lead, had to respond to deficits of 14-7, 21-10 and, most significant of all, 28-24 early in the fourth period.

TEXAS, OF course, is the reef on which Raiders hopes have foundered so many times in the past and surviving this one may make those that lie ahead just that much more perilous.

For Texas, it was only the first conference defeat and there were areas for optimism. For example, the one-two combination of Johnny Lam Jones and Earl Campbell is devastating.

Watching what this combination accomplished on two TD drives in the first half, one can't help but feel that 'Campbell's loss in the second period was the yards for the winning score as Quarterback Rodney day's most significant development, even though Jimmy Johnson performed better than one had any Houston State is less than E-OK is a term Texas Electric Service Company is giving to homes that are cer-Sam Houston lost a 32tified energy efficient. Homes that can use a 29 heartbreaker to Howard Payne Saturday lot less energy than most other homes.

E-OK homes have more insulation, sealed windows, weatherstripped doors, and more efficient lighting, heating and cooling equipment. E-OK homes can offer significant savings on your energy costs.

You can spot these homes all over town by the blue and orange E-OK tag on windows, yard signs, doorbell identification and framed certificates. Look for them. E-OK tells you that builders, along with Texas Electric, are concerned about saving electric energy and saving you money.

An E-OK home is one that has been thoroughly checked by our customer representatives several times during construction. It will not only save you money year after year, it will also be more comfortable. Why? Because of more effective heating and cooling, and also because it's quieter.

An E-OK home doesn't have to be a new home either. With certain modifications, you can make your present home more energy efficient. Should you later decide to move you could have a higher resale value from an E-OK home. Lower energy bills are quickly becoming a very big selling point.

To learn all about an E-OK home and how it can be certified energy efficient, call Texas Electric for our free booklet. Or request one on the comment portion of your electric service bill.

Visibility

The presence of a clearly-marked patrol car, driven by a man in uniform, is a recognized deterrent to the would-be criminal.

I believe patrol cars should be clearly marked and that patrol officers should be uniformed this makes the potential criminal aware of the presence of the police. When law enforcement is plainly visible, the criminal is reluctant to carry out his planned criminal act.

Dolphins turn tables on Pats

MIAMI (AP) - "We learned from that first game," Dolphin linebacker Steve Towle says of Miami's avenging an early-season National Football League loss to New England by beating the Patriots 10-3 Sunday.

"The teams are so evenly matched it's a matter of who wants it most,' Towle added after the Dolphins, 4-4, retained their hopes of making the American Conference playoffs by dropping New England's record to Linebacker Bob Matheson said Miami was "embarrassed" in the 30-14 loss at New England.

QUARTERBACK BOB Griese got the only touchdown by concentrating on his tight ends in a 73-yard drive. A 16-yard scoring pass to Jim Mandich was one of five passes for 47 yards to tight ends in the march.

Of Griese's 12 game completions for 132 yards, five for 51 yards were to Mandich, three for 32 yards to Andre Tillman.

"There are some openings there. I mentioned it to Griese earlier in the week," said Mandich, who had caught only seven passes for 87 yards in Miami's first seven games. "When you've got a Freddie Solomon and a

BALTIMORE (AP) - The Baltimore Coits are hoping to take a two-game lead in the Eastern Division of the National Football League's American Conference by beating the Houston Oilers tonight. The Miami Dolphins' 10-3 victory over the New England Patriots Sunday took some heat off the Colts. The Patriots dropped 11/2 games behind the Colts in the East race with a 5-3 record Meanwhile, the Oilers have to win in tonight's nationally televised game to keep from falling two games behind the Cincinnati Bengals, who lead the American Conference Central Division with a 6-2 record. The Oilers are 4-3 after losing two straight.

The minimum number of tickets were not sold by Friday night so the Baltimore-Washington area will The Colts' defensive line may have a difficult time containing the Oilers' explosive offense, sparked by quarterback Dan Pastorini's passing. Pastorini has gone to the air an average of 40 times in each of the ast three games. Colts Head Coach Ted Marchibroda said he is worried about the Houston offense. "Look, they have the players to make the big play," he said. "Dan Pastorini has a fine arm and excellent wide receivers in Ken Burrough with 31 receptions to date, and Billy Johnson has 29 catches."

Still, Baltimore's "Sack Pack" defensive line of John Dutton, Joe Ehrmann, Fred Cook and Mike Barnes will be trying to add to its season sack total of 33, a pace which is ahead of last year's club record of

Although the Colts lead the AFC in offense, they had some problems running the ball against the 3-4 defense used by New England.

Steelers aren't dead after all

PITTSBURGH (AP) - The Pittsburgh Steelers are back to domination. Maybe the key is desperation. "I always thought we played best when our backs hung out a little bit," defensive tackle Joe Greene said after the Steelers gained their third straight victory Sunday, beating the San Diego Chargers 23-0. The Chargers managed just seven first downs, 44 yards rushing and 80 passing, and they crossed midfield only twice in the second half. The Steelers, meanwhile, piled up a season-high 255 yards rushing, 108 by backup fullback Reggie Harrison, called upon after Franco Harris was sidelined with leg cramps. And quarterback Terry Bradshaw, back in action after missing two games with a neck injury, helped Pittsburgh score three touchdowns in a seven-minute span of the fourth quarter. "ALL TEAMS, to play their best, have to be a little bit desperate. It just took the Steelers a while," said Chargers Coach Tommy Protho, whose team fell to 4-4. "Pittsburgh is ... the best football team there is.' After a 1-4 start, the two-time Super Bowl champions are 4-4. But still are two games behind first-place Cincinnati in the American Football Conference's Central Division. However, the Steelers are showing their old form, as evidenced by the five quarterbacks sacks against San Diego's Dan Fouts. It was the third straight game in which the Steelers had five sacks.

They had a total of just six in five games before that. 'We're getting that confidence back," said Greene. "We know we can shut people down and stop them. We have some force now, some substance behind us."

ROOKIE MIKE Kruczek started at quarterback for the Steelers, but their only score under his direction came in the second quarter when Roy Gerela kicked a 36-yard field goal.

Bradshaw, who entered the game just before halftime, teamed with Harrison in the final quarter to spark the Steelers' three-touchdown spurt.

The scores came on a one-yard dive by Bradshaw, his 11- yard pass to rookie Ernie Pough and a three-yard run by John Fuqua with 1:15 left in the

With Harris sidelined the entire second half, Harrison's power running proved pivotal. He gained his 108 yards on just 13 carries.

As the final seconds ticked away, he knelt near the Steelers bench and

"From a Christian standpoint, I say to myself I'm going to work with Franco Harris so both of us can make the fullback position a better position," Harrison said. "I think that if I had the opportunity to cash in like that, I could do it often.

"But I realize the situation I'm in ... How's he's going to pull Franco out to play me?

Harrison's rushing total was 64 yards more than the total amassed by the entire San Diego offense.

Longshot Gary Wintz leads in Pensacola golf

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) -Longshot leader Gary Wintz had a slightly puzzled, pensive look about

"I'll just try to make some putts and hope the good things continue to happen," he said of today's raindelayed final round in the $125,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

Wintz, who's never before led a tournament and hasn't come close to winning in two years of tour activity, didn't realize he held the top spot until he finished off his four-under-par 67 Sunday afternoon.

"I THOUGHT I might be close, but I really didn't want to know," he said. "I didn't look at the leaderboards until I got to No. 16. Then I saw my name up there, but it was in the middle and I wasn't really sure.

But his 207 total, six under par on the 6,549-yard Pensacola Country Club course, gave him a one-stroke lead over rebounding veteran Frank Beard going into today's last round in the chase for a $25,000 first prizemuch more than Wintz has won in his

The tournament schedule was pushed back a full day when a torrential rain-storm washed out Saturday's

"It looks like a lot of guys have a chance to win," said Beard, who is convinced he's ended his dismal, four-year slump. "Almost anybody under par has a shot at it," he said. He's just one stroke back of the leader at 208 after a two-under-par 69 in the chilly winds of the third round.

DEFENDING CHAMPION Jerry McGee, who led or shared the lead through the first two days, bogeved three holes in a row at one stretch and had to rally for a 72-that left him in a

There were a dozen others in subpar figures. U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate, a hometown boy and the gallery favorite, was at even par after a 71 and said he, too, had a chance.

"It might take a really low number, like a 63 or 64, but this is my home course and there's no reason I can't shoot a score like that," said the young man who has clinched rookie of the year honors.

Lee Trevino, who dislikes cold weather, blew himself out of it with a 77 and a 219 total.

Wintz has won only a little more than $14,000 in his brief career, ranks a distant 147th on the year's moneywinning list and had his high finish of the year with a tie for 23rd in the New Orleans Open.

Nicklaus triumphs in Sydney

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) - Jack Nicklaus decided "not to start with bogeys like yesterday" in the final round of the $160,000 Australian Open golf tournament Sunday. So he fired a four-under par 32 on the front nine and ran away from the rest of the field.

Nicklaus won his fifth Australian Open title by a comfortable four strokes over American rookie professional Curtis Strange. The 'Golden Bear" took control of the tournament on the front nine with three birdies on the first four holes. He knocked in putts of five, seven and five feet to assume an insurmountable eight-stroke lead. Nicklaus' final round one-underpar-71 gave him a two-under-par total of 286. His earlier rounds were 72-71-72. Strange shot a 73 for 290, grabbing second place away from Britain's Maurice Bembridge, who finished at

Rutherford nabs

The legend of Texan A.J. Foyt still hangs over the Texas World Speedway, but another native son, Johnny Rutherford of Fort Worth, has at least won his spurs.

Foyt got the biggest accolades of anyone throughout the two days of the World Series of Auto Racing's 200mile Indy and stock car doubleheader.

But when the checkered flag dropped in the championship car race Sunday, Rutherford was standing in the winner's circle.

"THEY PAY the money to the one who finishes first," Rutherford drawled, referring to his slow start in the Indy car race. "We made a change in our steering that helped us at the end."

Rutherford's victory kept him locked in a hot battle with Gordon

Johncock for the U.S. Auto Club sanctioned national championship car ti-

Johncock finished second Sunday and the national title will be decided next Sunday at the Phoenix 150. Bobby Allison of Hueytown Ala., gained the most thrilling victory by surviving a heated three-car duel with Butch Hartman and Foyt in the final USAC stock car race of the season. .

Allison nipped Hartman, of South Zanesville, Ohio, on the final stretch but that didn't keep Hartman from winning an unprecedented fifth USAC stock car national title.

Foyt, often called a living legend in Texas, became a limping legend after losing a rear tire on the 83rd lap of the championship race, crashing into the wall and being knocked out of that race. He returned, however, in the stock car race and helped provide the exciting finish.

Mark Roth retains pin lead

CLEVELAND (AP) -Mark Roth retained the lead, 57 pins ahead of Paul Colwell, after the fourth round Sunday in the $60,000 Northern Ohio Open bowling tour-

The three-time titleist from Staten Island, N.Y., upped his total pinfall to 6,176 for 26 games, including 5,966 actual sticks spilled for a 229 average. He also picked up 210 bonus pins, 30 each for his seven match victories.

Colwell, Tucson, Ariz., was at 6,119, followed by Larry Laub, San Francisco, 6,101; Marshall Holman, Medford, Ore., 5,939, and Barry Asher, Costa Mesa, Calif., 5,898.

Roth's advantage over Colwell actually improved over his lead entering the session when he was ahead by five pins. The difference where Roth was 7-1 while Colwell went 5-3.

Laub, however, had the big block of the evening, knocking down 1,912 pins in his eight games to close in on the top two.

After 16 match games Monday the winner will collect $6,000.

Lions primp for Vikes with win over Packers

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - Nearly 75,000 fans showed up for the Detroit Lions' Halloween party and the hosts didn't have to go begging for big plays

The Green Bay Packers won the award for best costume. They were disguised as National Football League players.

The Lions, using their tough defense to force Packers mistakes, surged to a 24-3 halftime lead, then coasted to a 27-6 NFL victory Sunday in the newly named Pontiac Silverdome.

The triumph avenged a 24-14 victory by the Packers in Green Bay Oct. 3-a setback that prompted the resignation of Detroit Coach Rick Forzano.

"I wish we were better prepared to play this game than we were," said Packers Coach Bart Starr, whose team fell to last place in the National Conference Central Division with a 3-5

DETROIT, WHICH plays at Minnesota, 6-1-1, next Sunday, is tied for second place with Chicago with a 4-4 record. The Bears upset Minnesota 14-13 Sunday.

Detroit wide receiver Ray Jarvis had his best day in six years as a pro, catching six Greg Landry passes for 163 yards and two touchdowns. The first TD came on a 74-yard bomb that Jarvis caught at the Packers 36 behind cornerback Willie Buchanon, then went in for the score, giving Detroit a 10-0 first-quarter lead.

The Lions got a 34-yard field goal from rookie Bennie Ricardo with the game just 21/2 minutes old. That came four plays after rookie safety James Hunter intercepted a Lynn Dickey pass at the Packers 28.

NFL owners, players begin contract talks

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Football League's owners and players were to begin talks abridgements of a player's right to free movement. today about the future of football without the college But Rozelle and the owners have maintained that the draft or the Rozelle rule, at least as they are now.

Federal appeals courts have struck down both rules as unconstitutional, and replacements for them were high on the list of issues in dispute as the two parties resumed negotiations that broke off on June 28. They have not had a new contract since January,

The owners and NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle indicated they hoped to get to players to agree on rules that still would give the league the right to parcel out college players to all 28 teams and maintain some control over established players.

The draft and the Rozelle rule did that. The draft gives teams the right to choose college players in reverse order of their finish in the preceding year. The Rozelle rule compels a team that signed a free or draft choice of comparable stature.

Both were held by the courts to be unconstitutional concepts still were permissable if the NFL Players' Association agreed to them in collective bargaining. Previously, they were imposed by the owners.

"The court recognizes the need for reasonable restrictions on player transfers in the NFL. This ...should pave the way for resolution of these matters at the bargaining table," Rozelle said, While the owners and the commissioner were united in their views on the issues, the players apparently were not. Dick Anderson of Miami, president of the players association, had publicly disagreed with Executive Director Ed Garvey.

"I will continue to try to reach an agreement with the owners. However, at this time, I really believe that we will never be able to reach an agreement agent to compensate his former team with a player with the owners that would be acceptable to Ed

Dear Fellow Midlanders:

While serving as mayor of Midland from 1968 to 1972 I had many occasions to call on our Congressman George Mahon. to help our city in all sorts could act in our behalf in an objective manner. His assistance proved invaluable in securing Midland's new Federal Court and Post Office, for instance. He has helped us in many other ways both tangible and intangible.

the city limits of Odessa, when it appeared to be politically expedient for him to do so. That action uncoupled all previous efforts made to bring the two communities together for benefit to both.

After reviewing past history, it appears to me that Mr. Mahon's opponent is asking us Midlanders to cast off a good man who serves us well in favor of one whose commitment to us we certainly have reason to doubt.

Midlanders - Republican, Democrat and Independent - join in helping re-elect George Mahon.

Mr. Mahon has always proved himself to be a man of his word, one who

Mr. Mahon has always stood by his commitments to Midland. By contrast, his opponent abandoned his commitment to seek an upper-level university at a location mid-way between Midland and Odessa in favor of one inside

I hope that we have not forgotten the lessons in "practical politics" we had taught to us at that time. For I fear that if Mr. Mahon's opponent is elected Ector County will have two congressmen, while we will have to look elsewhere for representation.

The facts of practical political life today are that we already have our strong conservative voice in Washington, let's keep him. I ask that

Wildlife range may be barrier to proposed Alaska gas pipeline

By DAN FISHER The Los Angeles Times

THE ARCTIC NATIONAL WILDLIFE RANGE - One is struck mostly by the vast emptiness of this northernmost portion of the nation's largest wildlife refuge.

With nothing around it to lend perspective, an abandoned oil drum n the distance looks menacingly larger and closer than it really is.

A lack of man made sound jars the senses of one more used to the constant noise of a city. The rhythm of the wind and an unseen river is broken only by an occasional jetliner flying a Polar route five miles

Only about 250 people a year visit this refuge in the northeast corner of Alaska. One disappeared in 1972. Hikers found his remains only last

You could put four Yellowstones and a Yosemite within the Arctic Wildlife Range's boundaries and still have room left over for Los Angeles.

By contrast, the natural gas pipeline they want to build across the Arctic plain here is only four feet in diameter. It would make a thin, almost imperceptible line across the nine-million-acre expanse.

"Sort of like a razor blade across the Mona Lisa," said refuge manager Averill Thayer.

As Thaver's caustic remark indicates, the future of this isolated Arctic wilderness is an emotional issue. It's also a more complex issue than it might appear to be.

For one thing, not all environmen#lists agree that building a pipeline here would be such a bad thing. For another, protagonists on both sides of the gas line debate seem reluctant to discuss a related issue the impact the line might have on exploration for a potentially major oil and gas field which oilmen suspect exists here.

The multi-billion-dollar decision on which of three proposes routes to use. for delivery of Prudhoe Bay natural gas to the lower 48 states will be based on more than environmental considerations, of course. But the Arctic Wildlife Range plays a particularly significant role since it poses a possible barricade to the route that has been tentatively endorsed by California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., administration as best for

Also, the threat of a legal challenge from certain powerful environmental organizations could mean substantial delays in connecting new sources in both Alaska and Canada with increasingly gas-starved markets in California and elsewhere.

Speaking for five environmental groups, Brock Evans, Washington representative of the Sierra Club, has told Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb that "we are united on this and we'll fight to the end any encroachment upon this last piece of the nation's Arctic not yet spoiled by development.'

The area to which Evans refers was set aside by Congress in December, 1960, under Public Land Order 2214 for the purpose of preserving its "unique wildlife, wilderness and recreational values."

Topographically, the refuge is dominated by the 9,000-foot peaks of Mt. Chamberlin and Mt. Michelson in the Brooks Range. It varies from the forested southern slopes and valleys to the barren foothills and treeless tundra that finally give way to the Arctic Ocean on the north side of the mountains.

"It's the only unaltered, total Arctic ecosystem that exists," said Wilderness Society representative

There are no roads to the Wildlife Range. Access is by foot, by air or, during the brief but intense summer when it stays light for more than 80 consecutive days, by water.

the northern edge of the refuge, from Fairbanks some 400 miles south in Alaska's interior.

Separated from the northern border of the Wildlife Range by a mere sliver of Arctic Ocean, Barter Island is home to about 150 people. In addition to a tiny airport, it includes radar warning line and weather stations and the Eskimo village of Kaktovik.

It is along the coastal plain of the Wildlife Range, across that sliver of ocean from the island, that Alaskan Arctic Gas Pipeline Co. wants to build

The northern plain is also the sum-caribou herd. These international wanderers - more than 100,000 of them at times - migrate 800 miles each year from their winter range in the southern portion of Canada's Yukon Territory to the Wildlife refuge. The females calve here before the herd returns across the Canadian border in late August on its way back to the Yukon.

Even after the herd is gone in the fall, a hiker is reminded of the caribou's claim on this land by a rack of antlers jutting out of the tundra, perhaps marking the spot where an old or sickly beast was felled by a wolf finding gas was not as high as the FPC calculated, and the price it set would be higher than justified by those lower costs.

That would mean the actual cost of Last July 27, the FPC raised the nationwide maximum price for gas soldby producers to interstate pipelines to $1.42 per thousand cubic feet, almost three-times the previous limit of 52 cents.

The staff of the House subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations said, however, that forms filed by the producers under oath appear to support a ceiling price of no more than about $1 per thousand cubic feet, and maybe not that much if the FPC were to adopt other recommended changes in its

The FPC has estimated its new pricing policy would cost the public an additional $1.5 billion a year, but this included natural gas already limited to $1 per thousand cubic feet and gas at considerably lower prices under existing contracts.

Therefore it was not immediately known how much money could be saved in total by adopting the subcommittee staff analysis, which has not been endorsed by the congressmen of the subcommittee

In setting the new ceiling prices, the FPC said it relied on statistics published by the American Gas Association, an industry group which collects them indirectly and without any legal sanctions for misrepresentation.

Long criticized for accepting such statistics in rate-setting, the FPC ordered direct producer reporting of gas discoveries and drilling-footage, under oath and subject to audit, but the new forms were stalled by challenges in court.

Nevertheless, hundreds of producers submitted the new forms. The subcommittee said it examined those forms and found enough of them in good shape for analysis to reach the market had failed to follow through this morning on last week's gain of 26 Dow points. Observers who had viewed that rally with skepticism noted that it came on the lightest weekly trading volume since late summer. American Brands, the most active NYSE issue,

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market was mixed today, pausing to await the results of Tuesday's presidential election. The noon Dow Jones

Bell hike termed excessive

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Atty Gen. John Hill said today Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s proposed $298.3 million rate increase is grossly ex-Hill told the new Public Utilities Commission that his office has the benefit of an independent study of the proposal and also the advice of rate experts for many Texas cities. 'We have concluded as a result of this study ... that this increase represents a fantastic exaggeration of the revenue of needs. "We believe we will be able to demonstrate it is grossly excessive, Hill made the first opening statement at a hearing on Bell's proposal that is expected to last at least 30

The commission is expected to rule on the application early next year. Attorneys representing Houston, Dallas and Abilene were among others making opening statements against the proposal.

John Dee Lawrence of Dallas; Bell's general attorney for Texas, said the opposition of all the other at-torneys led him to ask himself the question, "why in the world should we go through the masochistic act of ven filing an application?"

If South had played dummy's low spade at the first trick, East might have come up with the right answer. But South craftily played dummy's ten of spades, convincing East that South's singleton spade was a low

It was reasonable to credit West with the king of spades for his raise to two spades. Who can Blame East for playing the jack of spades at the first trick?

Only the first trick was important. South swooped on East's jack of spades with the singleton king, drew trumps in two rounds and cheerfully conceded a diamond and two clubs. A MORAL

If you're looking for a moral, think of the opening lead. West's raise to two spades marked him with at least three spades. He could afford to lead his highest spade (the nine) with any fear that East would read that as the top of a doubleton.

The lead of the nine of spades would tell East that South had the king. It would be easy for East to see that it was vital to take the ace of spades and cash out. He would next take the ace of diamonds and would switch to clubs on getting a discouraging three of diamonds from his partner on the second trick. DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player bids three diamonds (explained as a weak jump overcall) You hold: SQ105 HK987 D10862 CQ6 What do you say? ANSWER: Bid three hearts. This is a very skimpy hand for a double raise, but partner is sure to understand that the raise may well have been made under pressure. If you had a really good hand you would jump to four hearts.

Briscoe recommends massive hike in state aid to schools

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Gov. Dolph Briscoe today recommended a massive increase in state aid to local school districts, tied to a ceiling on local school district taxation

The approximately 3,000 schoolmen who packed Municipal Auditorium applauded enthusiastically when Briscoe said his recommendations would reduce by an average of 60 per cent the local shares of the Foundation School Program cost.

Briscoe told the educators from school districts around the state that he would ask the legislature to pump $850 million in additional state funds into public education over the two fiscal years that begin Sept. 1, 1977.

The level of local fund assignment would require approximately nine cents for $100 (of property value) in effective tax effort, compared to the existing 35 per cent rate," the governor said.

At the same time. Briscoe's office of education resources laid out market value figures on property in all school districts, which would be used as the basis for determining each school district's share or "local fund assignment" - of Foundation School Program cost. The governor's recommendations, if adopted by the 1977 legislature, would not necessarily mean tax reductions within the districts because most districts fund their schools at levels higher than the foundation program. The foundation program is designed to provide a minimum standard of school funding. At the end of his prepared text, Briscoe added his accompanied by additional legislation placing a ceiling on local school district property taxes. He commented that the possibility is "remote" recommendation that the school finance package be that Texas will continue indefinitely to build up big surpluses in the general revenue fund.

The governor said he would not approve a school finance package "unless its ceiling or cap is part of that legislation.

The governor's plan to increase school aid breaks down thusly: -A $640 million increase in the state's share of the Foundation School Program, raising it from 75 per cent to 90 per cent of the total cost.

A $50 million increase in state funds for routine maintenance and operating expense, raising the amount per pupil from $95 to $105 per year.

-An additional $25 million in state funds for -A total of $15 million to provide larger staffs for small school districts, defined as those with fewer than 1,000 pupils. -An increase of $10 million to the Texas Education Agency to set up a process to determine how well

each school is performing and to help make improvements. —An increase in the neighborhood of $150 million in 'equalization aid' to help poor school districts that have low tax bases. —A total of $10 million to improve school district Briscoe said he also would seek creation of a state board that would train and certify school district tax assessors collectors and "promote equity among tax Briscoe did not include a pay raise for teachers in his recommendations, but his budget officer, Dickie Travis, said he thought money would be available to increase salaries for state employes and teachers. The size depends on Comptroller Bob Bullock's next estimate, expected Nov. 23, of general revenue income, Travis said. Briscoe already has recommended more than $800 million in new spending for highways, plus about $50 million for a new state prison. The 1975 legislature increased state support for public schools by about $650 million, including teacher raises.

Only two U.S. billionaires still alive, magazine claims

NEW YORK (AP) - Daniel K. Ludwig lives in a and overseeing the creation of a timber plantation in the Brazilian Amazon. John D. MacArthur, an insurance company executive, holds court at a corner table in the coffee shop of a Florida hotel.

Though miles apart, the men share a bond: They are the last two living American billionaires, according to Fortune magazine.

Both MacArthur and Ludwig were born in 1897, dropped out of school after the eighth grade and operate through an intricate web of private companies about which there is only limited public information." the financial magazine says in its November issue, to be published Tuesday. There the parallel ends, according to Lewis Beman. Fortune associate editor who wrote the article on those he termed "magnificent relics of an earlier age of capitalism."

MacArthur and Ludwig took different paths to become billionaires in a nation that now boasts about 180,000 millionaires. They outlived the three other men who until recently shared their status as billionaires: Howard R. Hughes, J. Paul Getty and

Fortune estimated each man's financial worth at more than a billion dollars, but said it did not have access to figures on their exact holdings.

MacArthur, whose late brother was playwright Charles MacArthur, is the only stockholder of the Chicago-based Banker's Life and Casualty, the nation's 44th largest insurance company.

Fortune describes MacArthur - the fourth son of New York penthouse, running his shipping empire an itinerant preacher born in Pittston, Pa. - as looking "less like a billionaire than a retired postal clerk.

> He wears a rumpled shirt and baggy wash-andwear slacks, lives in a room overlooking a parking lot, has "quit smoking three or four times a year" and drives a five-yearold Cadillac with "erratically functioning windows.'

Ludwig is less accessible, Fortune said, and hasn't spoken to a journalist since 1963. Born in South Haven, Mich., the son of a real estate agent, Ludwig started out with a tug boat fleet. After pioneering a new system for financing tankers in 1936, his fleet grew to the current 50 ships totaling nearly 7 million tons, making him what Fortune describes as "one of the world's major independent shipowners." Fortune says Ludwig, 79, occasionally walks to work at about 8 a.m. from his home in a Fifth Avenue penthouse. There are luncheon meetings at the Warwick Hotel and "21" restaurant. In the mid-1960s, Ludwig got the idea to raise commercially an Indian tree called Gmelina arborea, which produces wood for pulp and lumber at about 10 times the rate of ordinary trees.

On the 3-million-acre tract he bought for $3 million in Brazil, he's backing the planting of the plantation-and the community to do the work.

"But according to present plans," Fortune says, "by the end of the project's 'first stage' in 1983, the total investment will amount to $1 billion.'

More Texas papers announce presidential endorsements

The Beaumont EnterpriseJournal has endorsed Gerald R. Ford for election as President, but some editorial leaders disagree.

The unsigned lead editorial in the newspaper Sunday recommended President Ford as its choice for Tuesday, but on the same page the paper's executive editor and editorial page editor wrote a letter Therefore it is our position that we should not disagreeing with the endorsement.

The newspaper said Carter "has demonstrated effective executive ability and - im-"We frankly do not know what Jimmy Carter portantly - initiative that is essential to

The Sunday editions of the San Antonio Light endorsed President Ford, calling him "a man of simplicity and honesty. Ford represents the sea bility which can be achieved in our federal government...Gerald R. Ford is a good man, a solid man.
