Carter says debates brought him victory

By JULES LOH

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) - Presidentelect Jimmy Carter, reflecting on his long, uphill climb to the White House, believes he never would have made it had it not been for the presidential

He feels that the second debate, dealing with foreign policy, made him "a more respectable person" in the minds of the electorate and blunted the Republican effort to paint him as an unknown quantity to be feared as a

That effort, he feels, was responsible for half the votes President Ford polled and has left him, even in victory, with "an image in the country which is still there, which I've got to repair.'

"A lot of people still feel, I'm sure, a question about what is going to happen when Jimmy Carter gets in the White House," he said.

Carter has no sore feelings. however, about what he called the Republicans' "negative" campaign tactics, accepting them as clean and clever campaigning, which he never knew how to combat.

He also has only praise for the "positive" aspects of the Ford campaign. That was the position, Carter said, "which is legitimate and I think accurate," that Ford had done a "reasonably" good job at governing and thus deserved his own administration.

Carter, relaxing in denim and hiking boots Friday afternoon at his mother's Pond House back among the pines just outside Plains, hashed over the election and some of his immediate plans in an informal discussion with about 20 reporters gathered in the comfortable living

"I honestly have never doubted that I would win," Carter said. "I'm not saying that in an arrogant way, but I had a confidence that we were doing the best we could and the accumulative impact of my family constantly campaigning, and the Georgians constantly campaigning and the natural numerical advantage of other Democrats, would eventually

But he said television coverage focused on his own mistakes in contrast to "a deference" shown to the President which gave Ford unfair advantage. He described that as 'crippling' to his campaign.

"I have a feeling that had it not been for the debates I would have lost," he said. "I think the debates let the American people be kind of reassured, well, at least Jimmy Carter has some judgment about foreign affairs and defense and all.

"After the second debate I felt that I had established myself in the people's mind as a more respectable person." Carter said he thought his most grievous mistake in the campaign occurred just after the second debate 'when I erroneously had an overly aggressive approach to Mr. Ford. Had I let him stew in his misstatement about Eastern Europe and not made an issue of it. I think I would have been much better off."

Carter said more unsettling than his own mistake was his treatment in nightly television news coverage. He said he watched tapes of the nightly news on weekends "and it used to make me terribly upset."

"I think the worst one of all was in (Continued on Page 4A)

Young businessman fights rare disease

By DEBBIE PIERCE

A 22-year-old Midland businessman, who earlier this year was a candidate for the city council, now lies partially paralyzed in a hospital bed at his home.

Brad Patteson of 603 W. Cuthbert St. is one of three Midlanders since March to be stricken with the rare Gullian Barre Syndrome.

It's been a little more than two months since Patteson first noticed symptoms of the disease, which attacks the muscle and nerve systems of the body. He expects to be up and about within three more months, "by Christmas, I hope," his wife says. But Patteson is one of the lucky

"The fatality rate from this disease is about 25 per cent," he quoted his doctor as saying.

Gullian Barre Syndrome, for Patteson, began about the first of September, when the Midlander noticed a numbness in his fingers and toes while he was at work.

After that, symptoms arose fairly quickly - first, a high fever, then inability to use his hands - so Patteson was taken to the emergency room at Midland Memorial Hospital.

"He couldn't use his legs at all they kept buckling under him," his wife said. "The hospital staff tried giving him pain pills, but nothing seemed to help." Shortly afterwards, Patteson's lungs became temporarily paralized, and his doctor, cardiologist Brian Mohr, sent the young Midlander to the hospital's intensive care unit Sept. 12.

"The disease took about two to three weeks to reach what the doctor called a 'low' before Brad started regaining some of his strength," Mrs. Patteson said. "But this came only after he was in the ICU 32 days and on a respirator a month. He also had a tracheotomy performed.

"Then, he went into a private room and, two weeks later, the doctor said we could bring him home," Mrs. Patteson added.

Patteson said he had pneumonia three times and also a type of sugar diabetes when the disease was in its early stages. "Not to mention the fact that he went from 190 pounds to 140 pounds," his wife said.

"The doctor said the odds are much better if a patient can get off the respirator," Mrs. Patteson continued. 'Most of the victims who die do so from respiratory illnesses."

Gullian Barre Syndrome usually attacks young adults whose tolerance levels are low, Patteson quoted his doctor as saying. It often seems to come on after a cold or other virus. Patteson himself had bronchitis before he was stricken with the

"Everyone carries these germs around with them, our doctor said, but most people's tolerance levels don't reach low enough points to contract the disease," Mrs. Patteson

LINDENHURST, N.Y. (AP) - A college junior was stabbed in the chest and killed while playing the role of a prisoner of war in an ROTC honor fraternity hazing and training pro-

The weapon cut through a wooden placard that was hanging from his neck, officers said. The placard read, 'prisoner of war."

James Savino, 21, a cadet first lieutenant, was arrested and charged with second-degree murder. He was playing the part of a Soviet inquisitor trying to get "secret" information from Fitzgerald, who reportedly was seeking membership in the fraternity known as the Pershing Rifles. Savino wore an Army-type uniform during his arraignment Saturday. He marched to the bench and snapped to attention.

"I didn't murder him," he told members of his family in the courtroom.

His attorney, Harold Borg, said, 'There's no doubt the death was accidental."

Outside the courtroom, Borg added a denial that the killing occurred dur-

He said the ROTC did not permit the use of unsheathed weapons in such exercises and does not issue bayonets.

The official Palestine news asgency WAFA said the confrontation began when two Christian boats intercepted a freighter pulling into the southern Lebanese port of Sidon.

The two Christian boats, presumably from a small navy of shore craft maintained by the Phalange party militia, accosted the freighter and tried to force it away from the port, the agency reported.

A Palestinian speedboat equipped with a machine gun intervened and opened fire on the Christian craft, disabling one and sending the other back out to sea, WAFA said.

Judge rules U.S. owns milk bribe

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - The $20,000 in cash that was used as evidence in the milk bribery trial of Gov. John B. Connally belongs to the government, a federal judge ruled Friday.

U.S. Dist. Judge George L. Hart denied a claim for the money brought by former milk lobbyist Jake Jacobsen, a key prosecution witness at the Connally trial, who turned it over to the government in 1974.

According to Jacobsen, he paid the former secretary of the treasury $20,000 that was given to him in $100 bills by the Associate Milk Producers, Inc., in return for Connally's recommendation to then President Richard M. Nixon that milk price supports be increased.

A jury acquitted Connally of bribery charges in 1975. Jacobsen received two years' probation in August of this year for his part in the collapse after two boats scandal.

Briscoe shuns any part of Washington politics

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Gov. Dolph Briscoe, grinning from the Jimmy Carter victory, says he still is not ready to announce re-election plans. However, he did make clear Friday he wanted no part of Washington

Carter but would not say more. When asked if Carter had offered him an administration job, possibly a cabinet post, Briscoe replied: "I like this job. I have no desire to go to Washington in any position." During the TPA conference, attended by about 150 editors and news writers, Briscoe and other state officials said they would stick by their no-new taxes policy, although there would be multi-billion dollar demands for state spending.

"I believe it is good for Texas to continue this policy of no new taxes." Briscoe told the TPA conference. "We can meet our responsibilities in education, transportation and other

WASHINGTON (AP) - Jimmy Carter is coming to Washington more committed than any other president in modern times to shake up the very structure of government.

And to accomplish some of his most cherished goals, he will have to tread on some of the most sacrosanct prerogatives of Congress.

The reorganization, key to nearly all of Carter's dreams for restoring order and accountability to government, means more than just reordering the departments in his own administration.

For every agency in government there is a committee or subcommittee somewhere in Congress which holds life and death control in the form of budget and enabling legislation, a committee to which Cabinet secretaries and agency commissioners or directors troop regularly, hat in hand, to ask for money or authority.

As president, Carter will have some clout he can use to pressure a reluctant Congress to yield to his reorganization demands. He ran into the same kind of resistance in Georgia and beat it. But the crossfire in Washington could damage both sides.

However, despite the early danger signals there turning to traditional Democratic priorities, a fallout may not be that bad.

For one thing, if Carter proves to be popular, members of Congress will not want to put themselves at odds with the President.

The Western observer was not inclined to expect any immediate, tangible warming of relations which have been strained by more than a decade of bitterness. But he suggested that the Chinese may be getting "a bit less sensitive" in their relations with Moscow and more inclined to listen to Soviet

The Soviet attitude as outlined by Kulakov is that "we consider unjustified and unnatural the fact that People's Republic of China have been disrupted, through no fault of our own, for almost 15 years

Kulakov referred to remarks on China voiced the week before by Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev. who told a meeting of the Communist party Central Committee: "In our opinion, there are no issues in relations between the U.S.S.R. and the People's Republic of China that could not be resolved in the spirit of good-neighborliness."

Throughout Kulakov's remarks, Wang - a crewcut, bespectacled man wearing a Mao suit - sat without expression, declining to join the frequent applause that interrupted the speech.

A well-informed Asian source here cautioned against reading too much into Wang's decision to remain seated, pointing out that Kulakov's brief and mild remarks gave him little pretext to protest.

Last year's speaker, Politburo member Arvid Y. Pelshe, for example, had offended the Chinese representative by citing "the enormous damage that is being done by the Maoists' great-power and hegemonistic policy to the cause of socialism and to and one-half to three the Chinese people themselves."

While this kind of rhetoric stopped abruptly after Mao's death, to be replaced in the past two months Dallas automobile by several conciliatory statements like Brezhnev's, the Chinese had not previously responded to the recent change in tone.

Front to cool area, but no big drop seen

A cold front is coming through the Permian Basin today, but Midland and area residents needn't worry the National Weather Service said about all the front will do is cool things down a bit.

The front entered the Texas Panhandle Saturday, the weather man said, but no moisture accompanied the temperature drop.

Saturday was sunny and warm with clear skies and mostly calm winds across the Basin area. Andrews and Crane reported slight breezes, but in Lamesa, Stanton, Rankin, Big Lake and Odessa, it was calm and clear. Midland, too, had fair, sunny skies and calm winds.

The weather man said skies will remain fair through Monday, though the front will cool temperatures

Wednesday swine flu shots to end

Midland County Health Department is cutting back administration of the swine flu vaccine because of lack of interest. Starting this week, the vaccine will be administered on Tuesdays only.

"We have plenty of vaccine, but the people are just not coming in," department director Stuart I. Draper

Last week the department adminstered less than 500 doses of the vaccine, he said, which left about 20 to 25 volunteers and staff menmbers "just standing around."

Dr. Draper said the office will keep giving the vaccine "as long as people keep coming in," but added if response does not increase next week. the number of volunteer workers will be decreased. Both the monovalent and bivalent type of vaccine are available at the health department.

who had it, and she still can't walk." Patteson noted. "Another young Midland girl has it and receives treatment in Odessa now. The doctor told us most cases will last two months to two years, but about six months is the average length for it."

Patteson regularly undergoes therapy sessions at the hospital, with treatment in a whirlpool, a workout session and on a tilt table, which places pressure on his legs and feet. He also receives some therapy while at home.

"I haven't experienced any real pain, but I've been awfully uncomfortable," Patteson said. Most of the pain now is coming from the healing of his nerve endings.

The first three weeks he spent in the ICU, Patteson was "so weak he really didn't know what was going on," Mrs. Patteson said. "The only thing they can give the patient is steroids, and Brad had nightmares from taking them. But he hasn't had the depression which usually accompanies this disease - he's been in pretty good spirits."

Patteson said he hopes to be on crutches in a month and able to walk shortly afterwards. "I think it's going to be a race between him and Paul, his wife added. Paul, less than a year old is the couple's first and only child.

Students enjoy visit to Milam

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

The noises from the Milam Elementary School playground were the same sounds heard every day on every Midland playground.

Children played ball, climbed the monkey bars and tossed each other up in the air from a parachute. But not all of the noise was from

Milam students — visitors from Bowie and Jones elementary schools lended their voices to the din.

The visiting students were participating in the first classroom exchange in which third, fourth and fifth grade students will visit classes in other schools in their clusters in preparation for full integration of those grades next year.

The first exchange involved a fourth grade class from Bowie and a fifth grade class from Jones going to Milam for a three-hour period. One Milam third grade class went to Bowie and another to Jones.

Jones fifth graders joined in with Milam's fifth grade music class in singing "This Land Is Your Land," one of the songs the Milam group will perform at a Thanksgiving program for the other two schools in the cluster.

Milam third graders were just as eager as the Bowie students regularly in Candace Ping's class to unscramble sentences in a drill to teach sentence structure.

In a language arts class at Milam, it was difficult to tell which students were the vitors and which ones were in their regular classroom because both groups appeared at home with the routine.

The idea of the exchange is to let students get acquainted with students from other schools who will be their classmates next year under the new cluster system.

Bell hike would have little effect on average customer's bill, company expert testifies

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The $298.3 million rate increase in Texas proposed by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. would have little effect on the average telephone customer's bill, says an independent economist hired by the company.

"We're talking about an increase per residential customer per month on the order of 25 cents, or perhaps 50 cents, and in some cases 75," Paul Garfield of Washington, D.C., said

Garfield compared Bell's financial needs with those of food processors, but later declined to "compare incomparables.'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) -Texans generally have more to spend this year. the Bureau of Business Research said Saturday.

'Contrary to the beliefs of the man on the street. real disposable per capita income is going up both in Texas and in the nation," Dr. William E. Avera, professor of finance at The University of Texas, wrote in a special report.

"In Texas, unless population is increasing much more rapidly than is likely, the increases in personal income registered this year translate into higher per capita spending power for the state's residents,"

he said. Avera said that the 'relative stall between the second and third quarters of 1976 may seem a grinding halt to consumers used to the above 4 per cent rates of previous quarters. Comparable figures are not yet available for Texas, but it is likely that the drop was less severe between 1973 and 1974 and the rebound in early 1976 more gradual.

"The situation in Texas may even seem worse because of higher past growth rates and media coverage that may have led Texans to believe their incomes should be growing faster than the national income."

He said many Texas communities are registering an increase in both total employment and unemployment.

Close ranks for unity

Yes, the United States of America has elected a new President - Jimmy Carter, former governor of Georgia who will take over the reins of the federal government in January.

Congratulations are directed to the President-elect. It is hoped that his administration will be marked by a responsible, safe, top-quality brand of government, which will bring added glory, strength, confidence, a balanced budget and worldwide respect to this great and free nation.

The final tally of the nationwide balloting, disappointing as it was to almost half the voters, was close — so close that a switch of a few thousand votes in two or three key states could have altered the outcome. But that is neither here nor there. Carter received a majority of the electoral votes, and this is what counts.

Although the voter turnout was heavy and most respectable in this section of West Texas and generally throughout the state, it was not up to par or even representative in many other parts of the country.

The nationwide outcome of the presidential election was not in line with the huge majority given President Ford in Midland County and elsewhere over West Texas, but, again, it was the total vote which told the final story. This marked the end of another presidential election in the United

And now that the long and hardfought campaigns and the elections are concluded, it is time. regardless of political party affiliation, for all Americans to close ranks and to march forward in a display of national unity which will heal election wounds and which will let the world know for certain that the United States of America still is No. 1 in rank among world powers.

Elections come and elections go, but the United States somehow seems to survive them and always to move forward toward a better and a greater America.

Conditions perhaps are not as bad as some of the candidates would have had us believe. Neither are they quite as good perhaps as others have claimed. But conditions overall are better by far than in any other country on the face of the globe, and they can be even better.

This is the important thing to remember as certain adjustments and alterations are made as a new administration takes over the White House.

But please don't sell America short under any circumstances.

No one knows for sure right now just what changes will be made in government at the national level as a result of the 1976 presidential election, but one is safe in saying that America is not going to go down the drain. It is the people who make America great, and a people united in the American way will keep America on the move forward.

It is hoped, however, that the interest and enthusiasm generated among millions of Americans during this year's elections will be maintained and directed toward good government at all levels, from local to national, during the weeks months and years ahead. Citizen involvement as a watchdog element in government can make the difference. It is the American

WASHINGTON MERRY — GO — ROUND

The Capitol-Korea connection

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON - The South Korean effort to seduce members of Congress has been two-tiered. Rev. Sun Myung Moon, the Korean holy man, took the high, ecclesiastical road, and Tongsun Park, a Korean entrepreneur, followed the low, wayward road

Both men have been tied to the South Korean lobbying campaign by the Washington Post, which cited "electronic evidence." According to the Post, a tape recording apparently exists of a discussion between South Korea's President Park Chung Hee. Moon aide Park Bo Hi and the shadowy Tongsun Park.

At the meeting, the three men worked out "a plan to influence U.S. congressmen," the Washington Post

The South Korean government has denied any connection between President Park and entrepreneur Park. Moon's man has denied the meeting ever took place and has challenged his accusers to produce the alleged recording. There have also been over-the-shoulder denials from Tongsun Park at airports from Tokyo to Paris.

Both the ecclesiastic and the entrepreneur, nevertheless, suddenly became active on Capitol Hill in the early 1970s. By the beginning of this year, we were able to count 19 Moon missionaries operating on Capitol Hill. We reported on Jan. 12, 1976: "They stroll the hallways daily, buttonholing senators and congressmen, offering free trips and other inducements.' Moon himself made two evangelical appearances on Capitoi Hill before our calls made it impossible for him to find a sponsor who would arrange a room for him. At no time did we

Those who heard Moon preach on Capitol Hill say he delivered a strong anti-Communist message, laced with Christian philosophy. They recall that he linked the United States, Israel and South Korea as the three great bulwarks against communism also defended Richard Nixon during the Watergate crisis.

He spoke in Korean, with Park Bo Hi delivering the translations. Koreans told us that Moon's remarks were often rambling and ambiguous. but the translations invariably were precise and pointed. Our sources have the impression that Park, indeed, is the Rasputin behind the benevolent. smiling. Moon.

The Moon movement's biggest catch in Congress was House Speaker Carl Albert. We reported on Dec. 9, 1975, that Susan Bergman, a young. hazel-eyed disciple of the Korean religious-political cultist, had developed a curious relationship with the powerful speaker.

In the mornings, she would greet him in the hallway and present him with flowers. Then she would brew Ginseng tea for him in the small kitchen down the hall from his office. She would serve it to him in the speaker's ornate chambers, where she stayed for an hour or two each

Albert described the Moon missionary to us as "just a nice girt, a very nice girl, a Jewish girl from New York. She got all hepped up on the share it. We first got wind of Park's activities in early 1974 when we caught him on a strange trip with Rep. Richard Hanna, D. Calif We told the story on April 1, 1974

A classified cable from the U.S. embassy in Sana, Yemen, reported that the congressman "was joined here by a Mr. Park, a former South Korean national engaged in shipping. elaboration of foreign investment opportunities and apparently political lobbying in Washington.

The curious pair also visited Saudi Arabia and Egypt. Indeed, an obliging State Dept arranged accommodations for the Kortan

In a classified cable to the various embassies, the department asked "each post except Cairo" to ensconce Park in a "single room located next to or near room reserved for" the congressman.

We asked Park why he happened to be touring the Middle East with a congressman. They traveled together, said Park, because Hanna "is like my brother.

Despite these reports in 1974, the State Dept. didn't get around to investigating Tongsun Park's activities until November 1975.

BIBLE VERSE

Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the Lord his God: - Psalm 146:5.

And once that complex scheduling is figured out (aided hopefully by reforms that will greatly reduce the numbers of subcommittees), another change sought by many members would be to restrict committee meetings to mornings and floor debate and voting to afternoons.

Nothing is more ridiculous than to see House and Senate committee sessions interrupted repeatedly so members can dash to their chambers to cast roll call votes.

Those attending their committee sessions are not free to listen to all debate preceding votes. Granted. most votes are cut-and-dried, with most of the legislators having already thought out their positions in advance. But another possible change likely perhaps some will be longer in coming than we expect. But there is no denying that Congress is a changing institution. and for one so steeped in custom, the pace of this change is faster than one would have predicted five years ago

Most should take swine flu shots

(Head of the Division of Preventive Medicine at Stanford's school of medicine, Dr. Rodney R. Beard has worked with influenza vaccines for 30 years.)

By RODNEY R. BEARD Special to The Los Angeles Times

Most Americans who have doubts about the swine flu vaccine should put those doubts aside and get their shots. At the price of a little time and possibly a mild reaction for a few hours, anyone can get at least some protection from what could be a devastating illness.

Just as important, by taking the vaccine, each of us can help contribute to the prevention of a worldwide pandemic. Science today has a rare opportunity to save thousands of lives by nipping this kind of broad outbreak in the bud

Influenza vaccines have been widely available for 30 years. Early on, scientists discovered that several varieties or strains of influenza virus exist, and that a sufficient injection of

Now that the elections are over I would like to get down to more serious matters - namely an identity problem that will beset all the children raised on "Cimmaron" Street in Midland. I have been reluctant to bring this to anyone's attention for fear I would be told that the street had been named for Cecil Cimmaron and that the spelling was none of my business.

However, I would now like to ask. where did the city get the spelling of "Cimmaron" that identifies our street?

I think the correct spelling is Cimarron. Back in the days of Sir Francis Drake, there were a group of black slaves who had fled into the mountains from their Spanish masters in South America and these mountain people called themselves the Cimarrons. Then in the twovolume dictionary of the World Book, the word Cimarron is defined as used in the Southwestern United States with the meaning, "The Big Horn or Rocky Mountain Sheep." Edna Ferber wrote a book entitled 'Cimarron." The Cimarron River is in New Mexico. The Cimarron Strip is part of the Oklahoma Panhandle, and the final blow is a street in Odessa

The elections are over. Gentlemen should shake hands and work together for the common good.

Yet, Mr. Trey Lohmann, erstwhile candidate for the office of district attorney, does not see fit to so conduct himself. Proving that in this case the voters were correct.

Mr. Lohmann states in Wednesday's R-T that "It's awfully embarassing to get beat by someone so totally unqualified." Judging from his campaign exposure, there is nothing in Mr. Lohmann's legal background that provides a scintilla of qualifications for holding the office of district attorney. Mr. Lohmann would attribute his defeat to a "...big money push last Wednesday...(which) cost us the election." More likely it is that his defeat was due to his own scatological tactical blunders in conducting an uncalled for smear campaign.

killed virus of a given strain would give protection against infection by that same strain. However, it was impossible to predict which strain might be prevalent in the next flu season. Also, the protective dose was likely to cause unpleasant reactions - sore arms and fever. None of these reactions, however, was severe; indeed, no deaths directly attributable to flu vaccination have ever been recorded.

AS TIME PASSED, more was learned about influenza viruses, and some degree of skill was attained in predicting which ones would occur in the United States. Vaccines were purified so that now they set off few reactions, all mild.

Since the viruses causing U.S. epidemics were first identified elsewhere in the world, public health workers developed a worldwide network of observation posts to discover the nature of new outbreaks. The idea was to produce a vaccine from the same strain, or one closely similar, and administer it in unaffected areas, barring further spread of the virus.

An opportunity to do this occurred with the Asian flu which hit the United States in 1957-58. The virus was initialy isolated in Japan, and was provided to U.S. vaccine manufacturers months before the disease appeared here. For various reasons, a vaccine was not produced, and many preventable deaths occurred.

But the idea did not die. When an epidemic started in Hong Kong in 1967, another effort was made. This time, 100,000 doses of vaccine were manufactured in the United States. Unfortunately, the inoculations began only two weeks before the outbreak hit us, and the program did little good.

THEN, EARLY this year, the Army recorded a lot of what was thought to be respiratory disease among recruits at Ft. Dix, N.J. However, when the numbers swelled much more than anticipated in the following weeks, it was suspected that a flu epidemic was in progress. Throat washings from hospital patients were shown to contain flu virus. Most were of a strain known as A-Victoria, but a few were of a different variety, later identified as A-Swine.

Swine flu virus has long been of special interest to virologists, who think it might have been the cause of a devastating 1918 pandemic. Their belief is based on the fact that antibodies for the swine flu virus are found in many people born before 1918, but not in those born later. unless they had worked with pigs. The virus infects pigs, and is sometimes transmitted to man from them, but man-to-man transmission of the virus was unknown.

Then came the outbreak at Ft. Dix. where swine flu virus was transferred directly from man to man. The virus itself was isolated in five cases, and swine flu antibodies increased in eight more. Moreover, those antibodies were found in the blood of more than 500 unaffected men who had neither worked with pigs nor had lived through the 1918 epidemic.

IN THAT EPISODE of almost 50 years ago, the flu attacked not only the young and the old but also many vigorous people in early maturity and middle life. It was not unusual for a previously healthy person to die within 24 hours from the onset of the disease. Although we have antibiotics to stop the bacterial pneumonias which apparently killed so many who had the flu in 1918, many deaths could occur today - even in places where quality medical care can usually be obtained. A wait from Saturday night to Monday morning could prove fatal. So, after Ft. Dix, public health officials faced a difficult choice: There was no proof that the observations made then were not just a fluke. It might even be that similar limited epidemics of swine flu had occurred but had gone unrecognized. Moreover, no one could be certain ly, for subsequent illnesses. Thus the choice was clear. On the one hand, it would be a costly experithat a swine flu vaccine would work, and some people inevitably would blame the vaccine, rightly or wrong-

ment to put up an imperfect vaccine against the risk of a presumed epidemic.

ON THE other hand, scientists had a chance to save many lives, since they would have plenty of time to produce enough vaccine before the coming flu season.

Public Health Service officials, believing that they could not conscientiously withhold from the public an opportunity for protection, chose the latter course. With the backing of President Ford and Congress, they embarked on the current vaccination program. But now questions are being raised about the safety and effectiveness of the vaccine, as well as about the need for the program.

Tens of thousands have already been injected with minimal complaints of soreness or illness, yet much concern has been expressed over the deaths of some chronically sick people soon after they received the vaccine. This, in itself, is no cause for alarm, because about one death among 10,000 old people occurs each day. In no instance reported to date has a cause-effect relationship been found between vaccination and death.

ANY HEALTHY adult can take the vaccine safely, with very little risk of incurring even a sore arm. But sick individuals, especially those with chronic illness, should seek the advice of their physicians; for many such persons, the vaccination could be life-saving, but for others it could be

Does the vaccine work? One test is to determine whether it causes recipients to form antibodies, and this it does: It is fully potent in evoking antibodies against a part of the virus called the hemagglutinin factor. Although it is ineffective in evoking antibodies against the neuraminidase factor, experts disagree about the importance of this second antibody, the majority holding that the hemagglutinin antibody is more important in preventing infection.

Is the program needed? Perhaps we'll never know for sure. As of now, no further outbreak of swine influenza has been reported in this country or elsewhere in the world. Yet a chance remains that we have not heard the last of it, and so the vaccination program, in addition to safeguarding our own health, could help spare the world a pandemic of potentially devastating proportions.

Mexico sinks peso

By WILLIAM GIANDONI Copley News Service

Devaluation didn't succeed the first time for Mexico, so President Luis Echeverria has decided to try again. The surprise announcement that Mexico was going to stop holding the peso at the equivalent of five U.S. cents amounts to tacit admission that the slash in the peso's value less than two months earlier failed to achieve expected results.

It was argued then that the 37 per cent devaluation of the Mexican peso, which had been proudly maintained at a steady eight U.S. cents for over 22 years, would stimulate the Mexican Echeverria insisted that devaluation would encourage Mexico's exports, making them less expensive in hard currencies, that devaluation would serve to restrict imports, making them more expensive in pesos, and that devaluation would cause the dollar-earning tourist business to boom.

One border banker was quoted as saying that the latest action, which brought the peso down to the equivalent of less than four U.S. cents, "destroys our confidence in the central Bank of Mexico."

The central bank had informed private bankers recently that the peso. would rise to 6.25 cents by early 1977. Instead, it went the other way.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Briscoe, incumbent lawmakers winners

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

> AUSTIN - Now that we know what Texas voters said Tuesday, just what did they mean?

> For one thing, it means they didn't pay any attention to the predictions that apathy would be high. Or maybe it means they did - and so they turned out thinking their vote would be even more crucial to their can-

> It all depends, of course, on your point of view.

It does appear that Texas voters are pretty well satisfied with the sort of leadership they've been getting. Gov. Dolph Briscoe got out and stumped the state for Jimmy Carter, and Jimmy Carter carried Texas. Maybe it means Briscoe "won" Texas for Carter. Maybe it means Texans really trusted the Georgian.

Or that they really trusted Briscoe. Or they just didn't trust Jerry Ford. But probably it's a tribute to Briscoe's standing with the electorate, a regard Briscoe has fostered through his no-new-taxes, trim-the-size-of-government regime. Briscoe seems to feel that it indicates his stock is high enough for him to cash in for a second four-year

Texans also indicated satisfaction with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Jr., sending him back to Washington for another

And voters indicated approval of the way members of the Congressional delegation have been functioning, sending the incumbents back Potomac-way, with the exception of short-term incumbent Ron Paul, edged in a Houston squeaker by former state Sen. Bob'Gammage.

Members of the state Senate fared well, too, as did incumbent House members.

All in all, it looks as if the 1977 Legislature will have much the same look as the 1973 Legislature, with both sides of the rotunda having a middleof-the-road conservative look. (The party affiliation of the Senate remains at 28 Democrats and three Republicans, while the GOP picked up a net two seats on the House side for 18 out of 150).

Voters also said they didn't want to allow another $400 million in water development bonds - but did want another $100 million in water quality enhancement bonds

Maybe that means Texans feel like there's plenty of water - but it's just not clean enough.

Or maybe they thought $400 million was too much. Or that the program was too expensive. Or that it hadn't been proved necessary. Or they didn't trust the Water Development Board. Or they just didn't understand the amendment. Again, it depends on who you ask.

One explanation for the apparent apathy which had worried some politicians, pollsters and reporters seems to be that voters were ready to vote, and were just tired of all the campaigning.

One thing that does seem certain about Tuesday's vote is that it shows voters in Texas, and in the rest of the nation, do care, and are concerned, about what's going on in their Comments from voters leaving the polls indicated that restoring trust in government, more than economy, foreign policy or other issues, was the thing on their minds.

That's a cheering note for the start of the United State's third century of independence

Democracy, as Winston Churchill once remarked, is the worst form of government known to man - except for all the others.

Maybe that's the message in Tuesday's vote.

Red badge of courage found by voter

WASHINGTON - I had a very tough time on Election Day. The doorbell rang at seven o'clock in the morning and my neighbor Legendman was at the door.

"I have to vote today," he said, "and I'm scared." "Everyone is frightened on Election Day," I assured him. "I wouldn't worry about it." "I can't pull the lever for either guy," he said. "I just can't." 'Sure you can," I said soothingly "I know it sounds impossible, but when you get inside the voting booth I'm certain you'll find the strength to do it." "Would you go with me?" begged. "It would be a big favor if I had somebody with me.

"Well, I hadn't planned to vote until later in the day. But if it means that much to you I will." My wife gave Legendman a cup of coffee while I got dressed. I found him sitting in the kitchen holding his head in his hands. "I never felt this way before," he confessed. "I used to look forward to Election Day. I had no trouble voting in past ones. Why do I have this terrible feeling in my stomach?" 'It happens to all of us sooner or later." I told him. "I'm sure all over the country people feel the way you do. But Americans have to vote. It's a privilege as well as a duty.

"But if I pull the lever for Ford we'll have four more years of the same thing. If I pull the lever for Carter nobody knows what we'll get." "Vote your conscience," I told him

"If I voted my conscience," he said, "I wouldn't vote. I think I'll go get a swine flu shot instead."

I stopped him at the door. "Let's go, Legendman," I said, grabbing his arm. "All you have to fear is fear itself." I bundled him into the car.

He was still distraught, "I can't pull the lever. I know I'll freeze. The TV commentators say every vote counts. I don't want my vote to count. 'This is like war, Legendman,' I told him. "You think you can't pull the lever. But when it boils right down to it it's either you or them. Think of John Wayne. He would go right into that voting booth and pull the lever without thinking twice.' "I'm not John Wayne. I'm just a

He tried to make a break for it and I tackled him.

I decided to be tough. "All right," I said, "I'm tired of mollycoddling you You're going into booth three and you're not coming out until you pull the lever for the man you want to be the next President of the United States." I pushed him toward the booth. He opened the curtain and

Trip into the past stirs fond memories

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Ever take a trip backward in time? Well, I did and believe me, it is unforgettable! Good results came of it too, for my trip into the old days made the new days even more exciting. It is not a bad idea to test your excitement quotient now and then. A return to the past, where you had some of your greatest experiences, may revive your response to current living.

Well, anyway, I went back to Ohio — to Findlay, Delaware, Bellefontaine, Greenville, Bowersville, Lynchburg and Cincinnati - old home towns, big and little, all in the state where I was born. It was Junetime, the sun shining warm on green meadows, corn giving promise of being knee-high by the Fourth of July, as it is traditionally supposed to

But it wasn't so much the sweetscented and balmy breeze off the fields that moved me. It was rather a rush of memory - long memory of faces, scenes and events of yesterday. Some of them buried in consciousness (it is said we never forget anything, especially the greatest things) began floating to mind's surface stimulated by excursion into the past.

We went to Delaware and had lunch at Bun's Restaurant, an institution nearly as old as Ohio Wesleyan University, whose students throng it perhaps more enthusiastically than they do the college library.

Bun, the head of this great center of food, fun and fellowship, had a brother they called "Biscuit" and a younger one not inappropriately called "Crumb." And the menu card contained an historical account of well known university personalities: Branch Rickey, famous baseball executive; Ralph Sockman, famous preacher; and believe it or not, this author too. (Wish my mother - and also some of my detractors who said I "would never amount to anything" could get a load of that. What do you

And then we visited Findlay, where once I was a reporter on the old Findlay Morning Republican (now The Courier) run by the Heminger family, old and dear friends of mine. My beat was principally the local undertaking parlors, reporting the passing of citizens of this world to the next. Guess I must have done a fair job of writing on this subject, because one of the town's worthies told me "it would almost be worth dying to be the subject of one of those tear-jerking obituaries of yours." At any rate, I wouldn't have missed being a cub reporter on this wonderful paper for anything.

Next stop was Bellefontaine, highest point in Ohio. My father was once pastor of the First United Methodist Church there, and I went into the church and stood in the pulpit where he had preached. I recalled going into the empty church one evening when about 14 and 'preaching" a sermon to a vast imaginary multitude. This was without question one of the most eloquent sermons ever delivered to an absentee congregation. I thundered and pounded the sulpit and declaimed like nothing ever before or since. Demosthenes was a piker by com-

I walked up Fourth Street, where we had lived a long while ago, and finally picked out our old house, which was a bit difficult due to structural changes. But selecting a house which I thought it might be, I pressed the bell. The door was opened by a pleasant young man. "Was this once the parsonage?" I inquired. He replied that it had been but was sold recently to him. "Well, I lived here once." I said

"And your name?" When I told him he called to his wife: "Honey, come out here. Here's the man whose name is carved in our attic!"

He saw my bewilderment and invited us in. We climbed past familiar rooms to a spacious attic floor, and there carved deeply into a beam was my name with the date Jan. 1, 1912. I stood there thinking of a young boy. who carved his name and date as he contemplated a new year so long ago.

On our way down from the attic I stopped by a bedroom door. "This was my room," I explained. And I remembered one stormy night when I couldn't sleep, being troubled by fears - the kind of fears that sometimes come to children on wild nights of wind and rain. I couldn't seem to talk about it to my mother, but later Dad came home. I talked out my fears and he placed his hand on my head.

"Don't be afraid, sonny," he said, "your mother and I are in the next room. There's nothing to be afraid of." Then he added, "When you are older and we are gone, just remember God is always with you, so never be

He said Customs aircraft followed the suspect plane to a remote airstrip the Gila National Forest of southwest New Mexico. The plane landed and "we observed materials being transferred to a waiting vehicle

Far-fetched? It has happened this way at Ozette, a Makah Indian village where four cedar-planked longhouses were buried - and preserved - by a mudslide that rolled down a bluff more than 300 years ago.

Ozette has been hailed as "North America's Pompeii," "a time cap-sule," "an archeologist's dream." It is helping the Makah descendants of that village reconstruct their history and establish their ancient right to fish off the Washington coast.

The wet muck, 8 to 12 feet deep, sealed off air, preserving almost everything except flesh, animal skin and feathers. There is no estimate yet of the number of people buried. The slide may have been triggered by an earthquake, Daugherty says.

The team has recovered and catalogued almost 40,000 artifacts conical rain hats woven of spruce roots, baskets, wooden bowls for the seal oil they dipped their food in, mats, fish hooks, combs, harpoons, quickly turned brown when exposed to the air.

The Ozette dig has shown that the Makah were a rich and well-fed people with time for art - unlike their descendants today, a tribe of 1,000 that just manages to make a living from fishing.

The ancient Makah were seal and whale hunters, occasional slaveowners, weavers of baskets, makers of exquisitely carved boxes, spinners of blanket yarn from dog hair.

A striking item is a whale fin carved of red cedar and inlaid with 700 sea otter teeth.

Nothing comparable exists in any collection or is mentioned in any report, says Daugherty, except for a drawing made by an artist with Captain Cook's third voyage, which

The seafaring Makah made fishing nets from, of all things, the fierce stinging nettles abounding in the area. They boiled the nettles to remove the formic acid poison, then wove the nets from the tough fibers that remained.

The discovery of nets in one of the four buried houses has helped today's Makah tribe members establish their traditional right to net fish during all seasons. The federal government was about to rule against netting by the Indians on the ground the practice had been introduced by whites. The Ozette find established beyond doubt the ex-

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Christian loyalists of the Lebanese army staged a military review Saturday to buttress Christians' claims that they can guarantee their own security despite continued fighting.

The rightist Phalange party, which fields the largest Christian militia in the 18-month-old civil war, said 2,000 soldiers paraded before army commander Hanna Saeed with tanks and armored cars.

Lebanon, which had sided with the Christians, was being converted into the main unit of the Pan-Arab peacekeeping "strike force" decreed by an Arab summit last month.

They said the troops would be at Sarkis' disposal, apparently a veiled warning to the Christian leadership to end their resistance to deployment of the truce force.

"Syrian forces have moved into strategic positions that enable them easily to move into Beirut and separate combatants by force if necessary," the Syrian state radio

Phalange leader Pierre Gemayel and his chief ally, Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, have insisted that while the Arab peace troops should separate combatants on the front, they should not enter Christian areas in large numbers.

Their Palestinian and Lebanese leftist foes have denounced the Chrisians' stand and demanded a balanced deployment, with equal numbers of peacekeepers entering Moslem and Christian sectors.

Hospitals and militia sources estimated that more than 20 persons had been killed in the latest 24-hour period, most in a burst of night shelling in Beirut. Each side accused the other of trying to sabotage the ceasefire and prevent deployment of the

The truce contingent under preparation now has been renamed the "strike force" to underline its new mission - retaliation against truce violators. Some 2,500 Arab peacekeepers in Lebanon since June have played only an observer's role.

U.S. Charge d'Affaires George Lane, the top-ranking American diplomat here, met Saturday with former President Suleiman Franjieh in the Christian sector.

After meeting with Lane Friday, Chamoun said he "understood" that the United States would offer food and other aid to help maintain peace. Lane has been unavailable for comment on his mission.

Election ends Daley reign as kingmaker

CHICAGO (AP) - Mayor Richard J. Daley emerged from Tuesday's election with his near legendary reputation as a political kingmaker in -His hand-picked candidate for governor was crushed by the largest vote margin in Illinois history and the winner was James R. Thompson, a former prosecutor who had helped put several of the mayor's cronies in jail on corruption charges.

-Daley's carefully chosen candidate for Cook County prosecutor lost to Republican incumbent Bernard Carey despite an enormous effort by the mayor's organization to return the powerful investigative post to party control.

-Illinois and its valued bundle of 26 electoral votes went to President Ford. And although Jimmy Carter didn't need them, as it turned out, the loss can hardly have won influence or obligations for the 74-year-old Daley or Chicago in the eyes of the new Democratic administration in Washington.

On the day after the election, as Republicans celebrated in jubilation and headlines proclaimed "Daley the Big Loser," the mayor ducked reporters and flew off to vacation in Florida, where the climate was warmer and brighter.

Daley still retains his control over the city and can still deliver Chicago votes. But his state and national power seems to be draining away.

How did it happen? Clearly, one factor was Daley's choice of candidates. His hand-picked choice for governor, Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett, ran what one writer described as "the most dreary, inept, shallow and pigheaded" campaign in decades. Another writer said the mayor's pick for state's attorney, Edward Egan, had "all the drive and charisma of your average algebra teacher."

But perhaps of equal importance was the 1976 Illinois electorate. Because of recent population shifts, the vote from Chicago - no matter how completely it is captured by Daley's Democratic organization - no longer is the decisive factor it once

An analysis of voting figures shows that Daley produced for Jimmy Carter a higher percentage of the Chicago vote than he did for John F. Kennedy in 1960. It was that election, widely regarded as a masterpiece of political manipulation by Daley, which established him as one of the nation's most influential politicians.

Carter got 67.5 per cent of the Chicago vote in 1976. compared with the 63.6 per cent that went to Kennedy in 1960

But the Chicago vote represented 35 per cent of the Illinois votes cast for president in 1960; this year it represented only 25.7 per cent.

Still, Milton J. Rakove, a University of Illinois political scientist who wrote "Don't Make No Waves. Don't Back No Losers," a generally favorable book about Daley's organization, noted that "the Daley organization has been wounded, but not destroyed. It has suffered losses like this in the past and always

SBA fraud may lead to Mafia

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A tip from a Richmond lawyer sparked a Small Business Administration fraud scheme investigation that could help lead federal prosecutors to the highest echelons of organized crime in America.

The disclosures came as past and present Justice Department officials publicly discussed for the first time the origin and implications of a three-year probe of alleged SBA irregularities in the agency's Richmond office.

Providing the information that got the investigation started was Milton Maddox, who at the time was serving as district legal counsel for the SBA

Maddox ignored the usual SBA channels and showed four "loan packages" that he thought were suspicious to David G. Lowe, then serving as senior assistant U.S. attorney here. The four loan presentations later proved to be a basic element in a fraud scheme that cost the SBA and various Virginia banks more than $800,000 in 1973 before it was discovered and derailed. Eight persons, including ousted Richmond SBA head Thomas F. Regan, were convicted on charges stemming from their participation in the scheme. John Dowd of the Justice Department's Strike Force on Organized Crime said investigations here and elsewhere of one man convicted in the fraud scheme, Samuel Ray Calabrese of Los Angeles and Las Vegas, ultimately could reach the "very top" of the Mafia's financial empire.

Calabrese, who has known Mafia ties, received a five-year prison sentence in connection with the fraud scheme and is to be tried in federal court here on a related perjury charge Dec. 13.

Dowd said at this point he didn't expect Calabrese to follow the lead of other fraud scheme participants and cooperate with federal prosecutors in exchange for more lenient treatment or an early parole.

He described Calabrese as the "architect" of the fraud scheme and said the continuing investigations relating to him could provide a better chance at the rare opportunity of prosecuting people higher up in the organized crime hierarchy. Calabrese's conviction here was the first on acquitted in other parts of the country on charges of fraud and tax law violations. The Strike Force on Organized Crime took over the SBA investigation here in July 1974 after Lowe had criminal charges, although he has been indicted and headed since it began in August 1973. Lowe, now a U.S. magistrate here, said the strike force was called in because "we found we had opened a Pandora's Box of criminal activity that was much too big and had too many facets for the U.S. attorney's office here to effectively deal with.

MADERA, Calif. (AP) — The judge in the Chowchilla kidnaping case after ordering the trial moved from Madera County - says he will select a new trial site from a list of counties provided by the court system.

Superior Court Judge Jack L. Hammerberg said Friday that he granted a defense motion for change of venue to avoid any possibility that the case might be prejudiced and overturned on appeal.

Attorneys for the three young San Francisco Peninsula men accused of the kidnapings had argued that the switch was necessary because everyone in Madera County became emotionally involved.

Hammerberg read stacks of newspaper stories, magazine articles and radio scripts before deciding to order the trial moved.

During a hearing last month, he viewed more than three hours of television film and videotape, all devoted to the bizarre case in which 26 school children and their bus driver were abducted July 15. Hammerberg also granted defense motions to keep grand jury transcripts sealed, at least until a jury is

The defense had argued at another student activitie hearing that the transcript of grand jury proceedings that led to indictments should remain sealed until trials were completed so prospective jurors would not be prejudiced.

The prosecution opposed both motions, arguing that the defendants could get a fair trial here and the public should know what has transpired in the case rather than rely on rumor and innuendo.

The defendants - Frederick N. Woods, 24, of Woodside and James Schoenfeld, 24, and his brother Richard, 23, both of Atherton - have pleaded innocent to 27 counts of kidnaping and 18 of robbery involving personal items taken from the vic

Theft, forgery suspect proves real mystery man

WASHINGTON - A Washington man jailed five weeks ago in Charles County, Md., under an extraordinary $1 million bond for car theft and check forgery has become the subject of an international investigation because he has refused to reveal his identity.

FBI checks of the fingerprints of the nameless man, who appears to be of Arabic descent, have turned up nothing. Some identification - in-have turned out to be false or stolen. Police in Charles County and the District of Columbia have linked the man - who used an assumed name to obtain clearance from D.C. police to work as a security guard - to a tangled trail of stolen checkbooks, credit cards and auto thefts. While only Charles County police have charged the man, who is listed cluding a federal security badge and a "as "John Doe" on jail records, Montgomery County police have issued a warrant against him to insure that he will be turned over to them for questioning if he is released. "It's the damnedest thing I've ever seen," said Cpl. Ed Watts, of the Charles County sheriff's department, who has headed the investigation into the man's identity. "I've never encountered anything like this ... in the 15 years I've been a policeman." "Doe," described as being in his mid-20s, was arrested when he tried to run a police roadblock after allegedly having stolen a car on Oct.

1, Watts said. Papers found on "Doe" identified him as David Edmund Allard of a Washington address, according to

However, police checks revealed that, while there is indeed an Allard, he is a prisoner in the Bismark, N.D. penitentiary. Allard told investigators when contacted about the identification that his wallet had been stolen from him while he stayed in a YMCA "Doe" had answered an ad he had in Toronto, Canada, six years ago, Watts said.

When confronted with this information, "Doe" refused to identify himself further. He also refused to identify himself at his arraignment. As a result his bond was set at $1 million because authorities had no idea of who he really was or where he might go if he were released, Watts

The car owner, Jon E. Harris, said placed in a Washington paper, identified himself as "James E. Brammer," and claimed to work for the White House security force.

"He showed me a badge with the letters U.S. and the word, 'Sgt.' on it," according to Harris. "He said I could trust him because of that, and also showed me an American Express card. I copied down the number," he

U. N. votes down press censorship

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A U.N. commission today voted overwhelmingly to shelve a Sovietsponsored declaration that the United States contended would muzzle press freedom in the world.

A key commission at the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization - UNESCO - conference voted 78-15, with six abstentions, in favor of referring the elected new president of the Permian Basin Planned Parenthood Inc.

Other new officers include Mrs. William Quillen of Odessa, vice president; Mrs. Kelly Bell of Midland, secretary; and Nabar Martinez of Big Spring, treasurer.

Fourteen new board members also were chosen to represent the 17county Permian Basin area. Joining the 40 former board members will be Mrs. Scott Shelton, Dr. Elizabeth Robinett and Dr. James Humphreys, all of Midland; Mrs. J. L. Barnett Jr., Mrs. Kim Cole, Mrs. Earl Francell, Mrs. Clark Johnson, Joe L. Tave, Erminio Uranga and Gary Higgins, all of Odessa; Mrs. Eugene Cummins and Mrs. James Russell of Andrews, and Mrs. J. W. Kuykendall and Mrs.

A. H. Shroyer of Big Spring. PBPP is a private, non-profit agency providing family planning services at nine clinics located in Midland, Odessa, Big Spring, Stanton, McCamey, Fort Stockton, Pecos, Monahans and Andrews. It is a United Way agency and offers an educational and informational program of films and speakers for schools, churches, youth groups and civic groups in the proposal to a special negotiating committee - a move expected to defuse the issue for two more years.

A large number of Third World nations allied themselves with the United States and other Western nations for the vote.

During the 13 hours of debate, the declaration's opponents objected most strenuously to a section that "States are responsible for activities in the international sphere of all mass media under their jurisdiction.

They considered this to be a call for state control of the news media and the international flow of news.

The opponents also objected to references to the "use" and "responsibility" of the mass media. Many said the proposal was incompatible with guarantees of press freedom built into their national constitutions. Some also opposed immediate action on the declaration because, they said, the deep-seated disagreements threatened to tear apart UNESCO.

The Soviets said the West was misinterpreting the declaration and that it simply meant governments should be held responsible for news services and broadcast stations that they own.

"We are delighted," said Clayton Kirkpatrick, editor of the Chicago Tribune and a member of the U.S. delegation. "UNESCO has taken the position that it will avoid confrontation as a device to settle problems. It is going back to the original formula of seeking a con-

The issue was turned over to a 25member "special drafting and negotiating committee" to try to reconcile the differences. Western representatives said the declaration probably would not be placed before UNESCO again until its next general conference, in 1978.

Though they supported the West on this vote, many Third World nations have expressed concern over what they consider to be an unjust, largely oneway flow of information from the developed to the developing nations.

Four China radicals had posters ready

TOKYO (AP) - China's radical leaders had large portraits of Chiang Ching, Mao Tsetung's widow, prepared for distribution if their planned coup against Hua Kuo-feng had succeeded, a Japanese report from Peking said today.

The newspaper Asahi Shimbun said the prepared portraits had identified Madame Mao as "Chairman Chiang Ching" in line with plans by the socalled "gang of four" to install her as China's new Communist party chairman, succeeding Mao.

The plot to seize power was crushed last month with the arrest of the four radicals shortly before Premier Hua Kuo-feng was named chairman.

The Japanese report, quoting reliable sources in Peking, said the four radicals - party Vice Chairman Wang Hung-wen, Vice Premier Chang Chunchiao, Politburo member Yao Wen-yuan and Chiang Ching - met secretly in Peking in early October.

In formulating their coup plans, the four had alerted the militia and tried to enlist the cooperation of Chen Hsilien, vice premier and commander of the Peking military region, the Asahi account said.

Chen is said to have responded favorably to the radicals, but he nonetheless informed Hua of their plans. Hua then took swift action, ordering the four rounded up at a party committee meeting on Oct. 7, Asahi said.

There has been no definite word on the fate of the radicals since their arrest. They are believed being held by authorities in Peking.

Supplying natural, legal, 'highs' a booming business

By ART HARRIS The Washington Post

SAN FRANCISCO - Eric, an unemployed Berkeley carpenter who has taken up as one of the low priests spreading "organic highs," has sold 9,000 baby Hawaiian wood rose seeds by mail in three months. The seeds, which look like tiny filberts and taste like wood, are touted for their mindexpanding properties. They contain (naturally) lysergic acid amide, one element in LSD, and, says Eric, promise the nibbler a mild "trip."

Amy Chung, a 23-year-old Hastings law school student and daughter of a herb importer, munches red Korean ginseng roots before final exams. She claims the roots sharpens her memory, gets her through the night with little sleep and earns her lastminute A's.

Dr. Michael Gerber, a young Mill Valley physician, can't handle all the patients flocking to receive the black bag of herbal cures he combines with traditional medicine. He turns patients on to peppermint tea (instead of coffee) and recommends teaspoons of a special cayenne pepper for vitamin C and energy.

Eric, Amy and Michael are all new recruits in the growing army of awareness surrounding "natural" highs - nonchemical turn-ons and curatives that have captured the fantasy, imagination and entrepreneurship of the United States in the past few years. The '60s youth culture has, in turn, embraced hard drugs, soft drugs, meditation, yoga, jogging, tennis - and, most recently, organic release via the seeds, roots and plants (other then marijuana) growing in nature's great outdoors.

Natural food fads, fears of contaminated psychedelic drugs on the street and the legal risks inherent in seeking illegal, "elixirs" have spawned a growing demand for organic highs.

Consider the evidence: -University students here recently grabbed every seat for a special course - "Getting High Legally." The professor boasted a bachelor of arts degree in hallucinogens from Goddard College and promised to show and tell the class all about 40 psychoactive plants growing like daisies in America's back yards.

-Curious members of the "now" generation are mailing off their dollars for such hiply soothing unguents as African Yohimbe bark, gotu kola, "opium lettuce," "organic speed" (a mixture of kola nut tea and chia seeds at $1 per ounce) and kava

-Not only is the mail-order business in organic deliverance booming, but local plant shops report customers are snapping up the San Pedro cactus, which contains mescaline like its step-brother the peyote cactus (peyote's mindexpanding properties were popularized in the writings of Carlos Castenada)

The Pepsi generation is chewing

wood rose seeds for cosmic consciousness and brewing tea from damiana leaves and yohimbe bark to rekindle peace and love on earth. Dr. Gerber describes yohimbe as an aphrodisiac, although he recommends exercise and an active fantasy world as a better way to removing roadblocks in the bedroom.

Of course, folk healing through herbs and incantations is nothing new. The use of marijuana for medicinal purposes has been traced to China almost 4,000 years ago. The Huichol Indians nibbled the peyote cactus for centuries to gain insight through its psychoactive element, mescaline. African healers and Indian medicine men have used the forests and jungles as their pharmacies down through the ages.

But recently, a network of mailorder medicine men and women have sprung up in the classified sections of such popular publications as Rolling Stone and High Times.

Agriculture Commissioner John C. White has reported that complaints from consumers are beginning to come in now that cold weather has hit

"We have also had requests from reputable firewood vendors to crack down on those who operate several schemes to short-deliver to customers," White said

"Most buyers don't have any idea what a cord of wood is, and it is this confusion that allows a dishonest dealer to dupe a customer," White explained.

The schemes vary, but a common one works like this. An Austin man ordered two cords of wood, advertised as "$50 a cord, delivered and neatly stacked.

The deliverymen told the man's wife that the wood was wet and it would dry better and faster if it were piled instead of stacked. She approved the action and paid them $100. However, after the husband stacked the wood that evening, he measured and found out it was only little more than one half cord, not two cords.

A call to the vendor resulted in the salesman making a second delivery, however, the wood was still almost a full cord short. Thus on the first delivery, the man was cheated almost $75 and was offered a token later delivery to try to satisfy the customer. The vendor still cleared $50 on undelivered wood.

The Texas Department of Agriculture regulates weights and measures in the state, and the Consumer Services Division personnel were notified of the problem and have inspectors checking on the vendor's activities

"Our inspectors would have to be on the spot when delivery is made in order to take action. With a full schedule of other regulatory duties, our staff cannot monitor deliveries in the state. However, the Better Business Bureaus in the state are being notified of the potential of fraud and have been asked to notify us of complaints about short deliveries," White said

Consumers can take some simple steps to avoid being cheated. The offer to dump the wood instead of stacking is the first tip-off to the customer that he may be receiving less than he ordered.

"We're in a hurry and we'll unload a little extra if we don't have to stack it" is also a common approach. Another is "We have two more deliveries to make today. I'll give you $10 off the price if we can just throw it on the ground

"One way of making sure that your delivery is a full cord is to mark off the area where the wood is to be stacked, 4 feet by 8 feet," White-ad-

"Use string, dig a shallow trench, or pile rocks- whatever you want to use. Try to make sure that someone is there to check when the wood is delivered. A full cord should measure 128 cubic feet-that's 4 x 8 x 4 feet. If you have the area marked, then all you have to worry about is the height

Another scheme involves loose

stacking of the wood with large irregularly shaped logs taking up a lot of space. Tell the deliveryman to hold such logs and stack them on the top. Specify the type of wood desired, was ordered. "There are many honest dealers who have built up their trade because of their dependability, and we would like to increase this number," White and refuse the delivery if it is not what

Complaints about the size of firewood deliveries should be directed to the Texas Department of Agriculture district offices in Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Lubbock, San Anotnio, Brenham, or the headquarters in Austin

Calif., businesswoman, pushes her "legal highs" from the back pages of popular youth and music-oriented magazines. Her personal conglomerate also includes apartments and a successful card room near Yosemite National Park. But her mail-order subdivision, Electric Earth Herbs, has shown the most dramatic success, she says.

Since Day bought the operation last December, she has filled about 4,000 orders per month for such goodies as kava root, gotu kola, "legal grass" and "organic speed."

"The demand is here," Day says. "A lot of people who use marijuana and other drugs now want legal highs that don't damage their brains."

Day is no pharmacologist. And medical research has not yet correlated brain damage with marijuana use, but there is no denying that much of the demand for organic highs stems from their clean status in the eyes of the law. Most "pop" herbs simply don't appear anywhere in the state or federal controlled-substances act which defines dangerous and illegal drugs.

And Albert Habib, assistant special agent in the local U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration office here, can't imagine an armed dragnet to bust dealers in lobelia or damiana leaves. "We've never encountered anything like that," he says, smiling We go after dangerous drugs like heroin, cocaine, marijuana, has oil and LSD.

The plethora of herbs, roots and leaves advertised in various magazines has not yet proved a threat to society, say officials. The cops have never apprehended a glassy-eyed robber high on, say, yohimbe bark, knocking over a bank

Dr. Edward Tocus, chief of the drug abuses staff in the neuropsychopharmacological division of the Food and Drug Administration, says these substances "are not causing any public health harm. If there's any harm, it's the way people are wasting their money. Most of the activity (produced by the drugs) is so weak as to be negligible."

The "folk drugs" will be one topic of discussion at the quarterly meeting on Nov. 11 of the FDA's drug abuse research advisory committee, but Tocus does not plan to recommend any emergency action. We prefer not to dilute our resources" by concentrating on the folk drugs.

But some herbs and plants fall in a legal twilight zone. Take Hawaiian wood rose seeds. The seeds are not listed in the federal controlledsubstances act, but one major alkaloid in the seeds is listed lysergic acid amide, also an element in LSD. Does that make possession of the seeds illegal?

No one seems to know.

Eric touts his Hawaiian wood rose seeds as an organic alternate to LSD. "It's really a high," he says.

Eric views his mail-order business as an acceptable avenue to promote social change. "I can't expect the world to change itself," he says. "So I have to be the initiator."

And just who are the people mailing their money in for herbs and roots and suddenly flocking to nature's cures like bears to honey?

There are, of course, the graduates of the '60s drug culture who now turn on to "natural" highs only: there are drug lovers seeking new highs. devotees of the human potential movement, working class folks, and just plain curious. And Dr. Michael Gerber's Mill Valley patients.

Midland county have been reported due to the disease blackleg. Blackleg is a disease caused by bacteria which is usually fatal to young cattle. There are several forms of the disease and the one which has been tentatively diagnosed by a veterinarian in at least one case is Black's disease.

It usually enters the body of the affected animal by being ingested with the feed or through cuts, abrasions or punctures in the skin. The infection ends up in the heavy muscles of the animal where it causes great damage. Once animals are stricken with the disease, they usually die in 12 to 48 hours. The disease can be prevented by vaccination with a bacterin made from the organism which causes the Since there are several Clostridium organisms involved the livestock owner should vaccinate with the three-or-four way vaccine that includes the novyii strain. Raising calves without immunization is hazardous. Most cattle owners realize the dangers of blackleg and have their claves routinely vaccinated. However, often they do not use the three-or-four way bacterin which does not give complete protection or they vaccinate claves too young; claves up to three months of age fail to develop a lasting immunity.

The vaccination should be repeated at the age of four months and annually thereafter until the animal is past two years of age. Replacement heifers that were weaned this summer and fall should be revaccinated as well as young cattle in the feedlot

It is generally a good idea to contact a veterinarian for advice on vacine combinations that will protect calves from a series of diseases at little increase in cost.

November and December is an ideal time to start preparing the soil in shrub and flower beds in the home landscape system. One of the most important steps in growing ornamental and garden plants is a through preparation of the soil. It is possible to grow plants of sorts in soil that has only been scratched. but many times they will be spindly and flowers, foliage and fruit will be sparse. The ideal perennial flower of shrub bed should have soil prepared to a depth of 18 inches; annual beds should be prepared 12 inches. If the soil tends to dry between spadings, water it. If winter weeds or grass tries to grow keep them removed. In the spring, at least two weeks before planting, spade again. At this time work some organic material (compost, sphagnum peat moss or well rotted manure), sulfur and fertilizer into the soil. Use 4 to 6 inches or organic

Screwworm cases rise

Midland County has reported five cases of screwworm during October, after 13 reported cases from January to October

A total of 27,082 cases of the parasite have been discovered in 194 Texas counties this year, Dr. M. E. Meadows of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Screwworm Eradication Program said.

Other counties in the Midland area have reported these totals for October and for January through October: Crane, 5 and 12; Dawson, 3 and 14; Glasscock, 14 and 23; Howard, 5 and 9; Martin, 1 and 9; Reagan, 22 and 43, and Upton, 15 and 38.

However, the cooling fall and winter weather is expected to slow the problem, Dr. Meadows said.

Screwworms are flesh eating larvae of the screwworm fly. Adult females of the species mate only once in their lifetimes.

So in order to control the flies, the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APMIS) releases sterile flies, produced in the APHIS insectary, to mate with wild flies. Eggs produced from the mating will not hatch, ending the life cycle.

Starting this week, program officials will concentrate releasing the sterile flies in South Texas at the same time the sterile flies are released below the border in a Mexico-U.S. program.

Boll weevil's life cycle explained unknowns exist concerning its habits and life cycles.

James T. Lee, county extension entomologist for Martin, Howard, Glasscock, Upton and Reagan counties, said the weevil has been established in this country for more than three-quarters of a century.

The adult boll weevil, Lee said, is grayish to brown and about one-fourth inch long. Its immature stage, called a grub, maggot or worm, is legless and creamy white.

After the grub stage comes the pupa stage, when the weevil is being transformed into an adult boll weevil. In its pupa state, it is creamy white and looks like an incompletely developed adult. All stages may be found inside squares or bolls.

Lee said the entire life cycle from egg to egg may be completed in 16 to 25 days, depending mainly on the temperature and humidity. The weevil hatches in two to three days. with the grub taking five to eight days to mature into a pupa. After three to five days in the pupa stage and one additional day as an immature weevil, the adult emerges.

The adult female feeds on squares or small bolls in late season for five to eight days before laying eggs, Lee said. The females usually lay an average of 30 eggs per day for a total of 300 during their lifetime.

Boll weevils spend the winter months in ground trash around shinnery oak and other areas which offer protection from the weather, the county extension agent explained. Most adult boll weevils leave the cotton fields in October to seek protection during the winter months.

U.S., Mexico agree to prisoner swap idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of Americans who say they are trapped in rat-infested Mexican cells, subjected to torture and forced to sign confessions, may be returned to the United States to complete their sentences as a result of a new treaty.

And more than 1,000 Mexicans in U.S. federal prisons would have the option of transferring to Mexican cells under a prisoner-swap treaty announced Friday by the State Department.

Americans who return from Mexican prisons may apply for parole and those who could prove they had been abused in Mexican prisons probably would have better chances of being freed by U.S. authorities.

State won't prosecute 12-year-old dictment against a 12-year-old boy has been dropped, and he will getpsychiatric care at a youth center rather than be tried as an adult.

"It's what I've wanted since the beginning," said Michael Von Zamft, an assistant public defender. "The state has realized the problems in this case, that Wallace Mosley can't be tried as an adult.

Mosley had been charged with second-degree murder in the July 31 stabbing death of 9-year-old Greg Billiter. Police quoted him as saying he killed Billiter because the boy called him a bastard.

Von Zamft said Mosley probably would plead guilty to similar charges in juvenile court, then would receive intense psychiatric counseling and remedial education at a stateoperated center.

'He needs to be helped,' Von Zamft said. "He had a very low emotional level and very low educational abilities.

"Doctors say he can be rehabilitated. He will be kept in the custody of the state until he is 21."

The grand jury indictment of Mosley as an adult brought protests from around the country. Prosecutor Ed O'Donnell said the state decided to withdraw the original indictment and transfer the case to juvenile court because of testimony by psychiatrists who said Mosley did not understand the consequences of his confession. The father of the dead boy said he disagreed with the state's action. 'This was my one and only son. John Billiter said, near tears. "I want this to go all the way. I think they're all for the Mosley boy. Mosley was born in the charity ward of Jackson Memorial Hospital in February 1964. He grew up in the streets while his mother, who said she was an alcoholic, worked as a maid at a hotel. His step-father is an experts who worked out the tentative treaty with Mexico. The treaty provides for a general exchange of some 600 American and 1,200 Mexican federal prisoners.

All will have the right to request transfer to prisons in their home country. But the two governments must approve each transfer, and the treaty depends on ratification by the U.S. and Mexican senates.

Some legal experts say some prisoners, once returned to the United States, may try to seek freedom by suing to revoke the treaty. One U.S. legal expert says they may argue that they cannot be kept in an American jail because they were not convicted under U.S. laws.

The treaty grew out of complaints by Americans and their relatives who said they were beaten in Mexican jails and that they were denied access to lawyers and U.S. consular officials. Most Americans in Mexican prisons are serving sentences arising from drug offenses.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger took up the problem on a visit to Mexico City last June. After a series of meetings, U.S. and Mexican negotiators completed a general agreement on Thursday

Mexicans convicted in California and other states, most of them on charges of illegal entry into the United States, would be eligible for transfer to Mexican prisons if the states agree. The few Americans in Mexican state prisons, as opposed to federal prisons, would be covered under a Mexican constitutional amendment

Mexican President Luis Echeverria proposed the amendment to his country's constitution, along with separate reform legislation that would allow prisoners held on drugrelated charges to become eligible for parole, a right taken away several years ago.

Officials in Mexico have said at least 200 Americans would be eligible for parole once the measure is passed.

About 100 U.S. prisoners in Mexico staged a 36-hour hunger strike in September, complaining that Washington was delaying talks on prisoner exchanges. The strike ended when Echeverria's administration announced it would seek the right of parole for drug-law violators.

Americans held in Mexico have said they were tortured with electric cattle prods, kept in rat-infested cells and forced to sign confessions written in Spanish, which they could not un-

They also have accused Mexican lawyers of swindling them and their relatives out of money supposedly to be used to bribe officials.

Many of the Americans now held in. Mexican prisons were arrested and jailed under Operation Intercept, a U.S.-financed campaign against the smuggling of drugs into the United States that began in 1969.

Senators trekking overseas

WASHINGTON (AP) - With the election over, 18 senators are off on two separate overseas trips.

Twelve senators left Friday for a three-week trip to the Middle East and six others headed for the People's Republic of China.

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn.. and Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., are cochairmen of a group assigned to look into proposed sales of nuclear power plants to Israel, Egypt and Iran.

The delegation to China, led by Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., was picked by President Ford in response to an invitation from the Chinese govern-One of Curtis' primary interests is business with someone, can be considered compliance. A certification merely attesting to the fact a U.S. firm did not purchase any goods from a company trading with Israel, for instance, is not sufficient to cause a company to lose its foreign tax credits or DISC benfits.

Thus, if an American company and an Arab country sign a contract including a provision that U.S. Jews will not be sent to the country to work on the project, the U.S. firms stands to lose tax benefits. If, however, that company signs a contract without that provision but then makes hiring of Jewish employes for the job contingent upon their getting a visa knowing that Arab country often prohibits entry to Jews - the U.S. company will not be penalized by the Internal Revenue Service.

Or again, if an American company supplies information about its own trading, or lack of trading with Israel and other U.S. firms trading with her along with specifications about its products, but does not sign a contract, there is no tax penalty. Nor is there a penalty even if a contract is signed some time later.

The guidelines affect contracts made after Nov. 3, 1976. However, the Treasury indicates they may yet be amended. Treasury and Commerce Department lawyers are said to be ironing out differences now.

Treasury's definition of participation in or cooperation with an international boycott differs widely from Commerce's definition. The latter considers at present that the mere answering boycott-related questions, whether or not the firm changed its business practices to conform, constitutes compliance. (The disparity results in part from two separate laws being invoked.

However, unlike Commerce, which evoked an angry, confused reaction from "complying" businessmen when it made their names available to the public last month, Treasury has promised to keep names confidential.

The guidelines list the circumstances under which U.S. firms, their subsidiaries, and individuals must file IRS form 5713, called "International Boycott Report Form.

Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal (D-N.Y.), who worked hard last session to get a congressional ban on all Arab boycotts, responded quickly to the new guidelines.

"Denial of certain tax benefits to companies complying with the Arab boycott is a step in the direction of open competition. Unfortunately, even this setup is being obstructed by proposed Treasury guidelines which show an insensitivity to the realities of boycott compliance.

Assistant Treasury Secretary Gerald Parsky said the Treasury owed U.S. business "some degree of certainty as to what is prohibited and what is permissible under this confusing law."

in Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) An increasing number of teenagers are being caught as gunmen, bombers and common criminals in Northern reland's vicious sectarian warfare.

A spokesman for the Royal Ulster Constabulary said police believe Protestant and Roman Catholic extremists, pressed for manpower following increased arrests, have been recruiting slum teenagers.

Twenty of the 96 persons charged with murder in Northern Ireland in the first 10 months of this year were 18 years old or younger, compared with 11 of 138 in all of 1975, the spokesman

What is most disturbing is that three of those charged are in the 14 to 16 years bracket," he said. "Perhaps the saddest thing of all ... is the fact that five youngsters accused of petrol bombing and hijacking offenses have not even reached the age of 14." The spokesman said police believe teenagers are attracted to the extremist groups by the excitement and the fighters' tough-guy image. "But once they become involved, there is

The Provisional wing of the mostly Roman Catholic Irish Republican Army (IRA) is waging guerrilla warfare to drive Britain out of predominantly Protestant Ulster. Protestant extremists oppose the IRA's aim to unite the province with the mainly Catholic Irish Republic. Children also are regular entries on the casualty rolls from attacks that have killed 1,657 persons - threefourths of them civilians - since August 1969.

On Thursday, the body of a 17-yearold Catholic youth who had been tortured and shot to death was found in a Belfast field. He was the 266th fatality of 1976. Friday night, a 15-year-old girl was shot in the head and throat in North Belfast. She is now in critical condition in a hospital.

Will provides for dog, cats

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) Washington State University is the recipient of a $750,000 endowment, part of which will go for a lifetime of luxury for a dog and two cats.

Adler, a journalist and drama critic in New York after World War I, who died in 1975.

When his health failed in 1930, Adler moved to Hereford, Ariz., and built the Smiling Tiger Ranch, which became a haven for birds, horses, dogs and cats. As stipulated in Adler's will, a WSU veterinary medicine staffer chauffeurs his dog, Penguin, for three rides week in a pickup truck. Whitey, a 16-year-old blind cat, gets all the fondling he needs. And Barretta, a 7-yearold cat, spends her time exploring the Washington State eterinary clinic. WSU officials said the endowment also will be used for research on diseases and ailments of horses and other animals, in accordance with Adler's will.

Texas gun salesmen abetting traffic of weapons to Mexico

The Los Angeles Times

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. - Not long. ago in Guadalajara, a city that a U.S. police officer recently compared to the Chicago of mobster days, several men armed with pistols and submachine guns entered a restaurant and opened fire on a group of university students.

Three persons were killed and nine wounded. Another case of murder by

Some U.S. officials believe there is little doubt that the guns used in the Guadalajara murders came from the United States illegally, perhaps from somewhere along the Texas-Mexico

Arms and ammunition in large amounts have gone from the United States into Mexico for decades. Federal agents say that owning a gun is a status symbol in much of Mexico, that the lower Rio Grande valley is famous for its hunting and that Texas has been a fountainhead of weaponry since the days of the Wild West.

But it is the increased flow of weapons into Mexico — many of them arms meant to kill people rather than animals - that is disturbing U.S. federal agents. Most of them admit that they are unable to keep up with the vast quantities of guns and ammunition that enter Mexico illicitly.

Some of these agents blamed U.S. gun dealers. They say weak federal gun legislation permits the dealers to sell almost indiscriminately to any U.S. adult who does not have a felony record. What that person does with the guns is his business, and it is no secret in Brownsville and other border cities that many of the guns quickly end up in Mexico. "Look at this," a federal agent comtoon from a Texas paper. "It sums up our problem right quick.'

The cartoon depicts a scene in a Brownsville sporting goods shop, containing a dubious looking character and a smiling store clerk: "I'd like 35 .45 automatic pistols, 15 M-1 rifles, 20 M-3 submachine guns, 30 AK-47 assault rifles, six grenade launchers, 25 M-16 rifles, 10 light machine guns, a 75mm. howitzer and 180,000 rounds of ammunition," the character says. The clerk, with a toothy grin, responds, "Yes, sir! Always glad to have you sportsmen in the store."

Not long ago a Mexican army major, stationed in the interior of Mexico, was caught leaving Brownsville with 12,000 rounds of Americanpurchased ammunition in his late model Mercedes

"His excuse was that the Mexican government was not supplying his troops with modern ammunition and the right weapons," a federal agent said. No one seemed to know how many other trips the major might have made.

A 28-year-old federal prosecutor in Brownsville has attracted some attention to the arms traffic here.

He is Asst. U.S. Att. Charles Lewis, who said in an interview in his office. 'These gun sales have become a big. big business. I'm not sure anyone knows how big. The card at the bottom of the stack is the gun dealer on this side of the border. Most of these guns they sell were meant to kill numan beings and were never meant for hunters.

'We haven't been able to get to the primary source of smuggled guns, the licensed gun dealer," Lewis said. He said gun dealers choose to look plained recently, handing over a car- the other way in order to earn high profits from arms and ammunition

"You meet these people (the dealers), and they are not criminal types. They are not hoods. But they have coaxed themselves into believing as long as they stay within the barebone technicalities of the law, they are all right."

A federal agent who works the border area admitted after hesitation that "until the U.S. gun laws are overhauled, we are going to have these problems of gun smuggling."
Lewis said, "If the same person came into your store every weekend and bought two or three M-1 rifles, or an AR-15 (semi-automatic weapon), wouldn't you get suspicious?

"Why would anyone want an M-1 Enforcer? It's an assault weapon, and meant for one thing, to shoot a person in the stomach. The AR-15 can be changed into a fully automatic weapon in five minutes with a paper clip, if you know what you are doing. It's got 'kill' written all over it."

The prosecutor pointed to the case of Ignacio Reyes in Brownsville. Lewis said the government ran two surveys involving hundreds of ammunition dealers along the border and the top dealer turned out to be Reyes. His store is called Villa Verde Food Store, Bakery and Sporting Goods.

"This store was selling a million rounds of ammunition a month," he said. "We estimate that 90 per cent to 95 per cent of it was going into Mexico, probably the interior.

Lewis said Reyes was found to have falsified the names and addresses of purchasers, but in many cases, federal agents said, the only person caught is an individual who acts as a go-between for a few dollars. Arresting a go-between is the equivalent of nabbing drug couriers rather than big drug dealers, they said.

Federal agents found that Reves had sold 100,000 rounds of ammunition on one day, 200,000 rounds on another day. When they raided his grocery store, according to one agent, "We caught him with 500,000 rounds." Much of it reportedly had been hidden in a car in the garage. Reyes, one of Brownsville's more prominent citizens, was found guilty of falsifying gun sale records.

Reyes and the co-owner of the store, David Dominquez, were each fined $3,000 and placed on three year's pro-

Agents for the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, who used to spend so much of their time smashing moonshine whisky stills, now are concerned almost entirely with gun smuggling.

Other federal agencies, such as the U.S. Customs, the Drug Enforcement Administration and the U.S. Border Patrol, also have reason to look into the arms traffic, but the investigations of all the agencies sometimes have been stymied by internal rivalry and jealousy among them. Agents have been known to work against each other at times. There are immense profits in the resale of both weapons and ammunition. Guns for sale in U.S. border towns are marked up 40 per cent higher than in Houston or Dallas. Once they have been transported across the river into Mexico, the markup may be as high as 100 per cent or 200 per cent depending on the weapon. Agents said a 45-caliber bullet may sell for 8 to 10 cents in the United States and for 65 cents inside

Whooping crane reported seen near Andrews

ODESSA - An immature whooping crane has been reported with a flock of sandhill cranes at Shafter Lake in Andrews County.

David Blankenship of Rockport, who is a member of the Audubon Society, wants to make certain that nobody shoots it accidentally while hunting. He also wants confirmation of the sighting

He asked that anyone sighting the whooping crane one of a very endangered species — telephone him in Rockport at 512-729-5649.

The whooping crane would be rusty brown and white. Dr. Charles McKinney, life scientist at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, said the whooper would be distinguishable from the sandhill cranes because the sandhills would be showing no white coloration now.

In a "foster parent program," whooping crane eggs have been incubated with sandhill cranes and, if it is true that one is flying aroung West Texas with sandhills, this one could be from such a foster family

Commissioners to canvass vote

Returns of the Nov. 2 general election will be canvassed by the Midland County Commissioners Court at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the Commissioners Commissioners also will consider bids for rental of the old county warehouse.

At 2 p.m. the court will hold a public hearing to consider and set a maximum speed limit on Cotton Flat Road and South Midkiff Road for one mile south of Interstate 20.

Then commissioners will consider adoption of a resolution regulating vehicle parking on county parking lots at the Courthouse Annex building, 218 W Illinois Ave; Midland County Public Library, West Indiana Avenue and South Colorado Street, and the lot bounded by East Texas Avenue, North Baird Avenue and East Illinois Street.

Finally, the commission will consider a resolution to abandon public use of a dedicated right-of-way which has never been used for road purposes.

Social Security numbers a must

ODESSA - Students and other persons planning to get holiday jobs should apply for a social security umber if they do not have one, since some emvrs will not hire persons without one, advises the Sec. security district manager. Erven L. Fisher Jr., district manager, said the ap, cation will be screened for duplication, so he encourages applying as soon as possible. Persons applying for a social security number for the first time may be asked to prove their age, identity and citizenship, he said. For more information, interested persons may contact the Odessa Social Security office, at 516 First National Bank Building or may call 563-0027. In Midland the social security representative is available from 8:45 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays and Wednesdays in the Federal Building, 200 E. Wall

Reagan board to receive bids

BIG LAKE - Reagan County school trustees are due to review bids on school insurance for all school facilities and on moving a home currently occupied by a coach when they meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the administration building. The board also is scheduled to review the audit report for 1975-76, discuss finances of the school cafeteria, check guidance policy for Reagan County schools and discuss public school financing measures recommended by the governor.

County historians receive THC award

Trustees still seek input

School trustees Tuesday are due to finalize plans for a series of community meetings to find out what Midlanders want in the way of goals for the school district.

At its last meeting, the board agreed to hold five meetings on three nights, Thursday, Nov. 16 and Nov. 18 But schools superintendent Dr. James H. Mailey said he thinks the schedule may have to be revised.

The meetings are to be held at five different elementary schools but the board did not designate which meetings would be on which nights. Mailey said he does not think there will be time for adequate notice of the two meetings that tentatively were set for Thursday.

Also, the state PTA convention is scheduled for Nov. 16 through 19 and Mailey said that may pose a conflict. After finding out what goals school patrons believe are important for the district, a survey form will be devised that will be administered to a crosssection of citizens, the board has

Using that information, an advisory committee will recommend goals to the school district. Instructional goals are required under new state accreditation procedures and the board decided to add broader goals also.

Another item on the board's agenda is a proposed policy change dealing with meetings of trustees as a committee of the whole.

At their last meeting, the trustees instructed Mailey to study the possibility of amending policy to provide for notification of all board members when state or federal agencies request meetings with administrators and one member of the

The recommended amendment calls for notice of a meeting of the committee of the whole when "it is deemed desirable to have members of the board of trustees present for informational purposes" at meetings between agency representatives or the school district attorney and the superintendent and/or members of the administrative staff.

In other actions, the board is scheduled to hear a report on elementary and secondary social studies programs, act on a request for use of Lee High School auditorium by church groups, hear football game reports, take personnel action and act on routine financial matters.

Meet new friends, enjoy life more at the beautiful Leisure Lodge Nursing Center of Midland.

Who says a nursing home has to be dark, stuffy, cramped and no fun? At Leisure Lodge Nursing Center, we certainly don't think so! As a matter of fact, we've gone all-out to make our home a place to LIVE. You'll love the bright, cheerful colors, the drapes, pictures, furniture and home-like surroundings. But most of all, you'll love our people

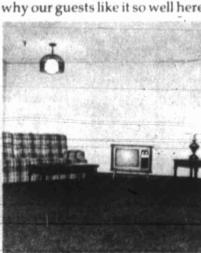

Guest rooms in Leisure Lodge Nursing Centers are large, comfortable,

Compassionate, conscientious nurses who truly care about our guests are a trademark of every Leisure Lodge Nursing Center

We have everything you'll find at any nursing home, plus a whole lot more. First of all, we have Licensed Nurses on duty around the clock. The regulations don't require us to have a Nurse on duty at night, but we want it that way. We have good food, and plenty of it. If your doctor says you need a special diet, we see that you get it. Our guests eat together, at regular dining tables, in a regular dining room, and enjoy the fun and fellowship of people their own age. We have planned and supervised activities, scheduled by a full-time Activities Director. And we have religious services, too. But what we have the most of, is FUN, and that's why our guests like it so well here.

At Leisure Lodge, spacious and well-appointed living rooms are a center of activity, where guests gather to visit, read, watch television.

It doesn't cost any more to live at Leisure Lodge than any other home. Don't let our nice building and grounds and our pretty decor fool you. It may look like an expensive place to live, but it isn't. In fact, it doesn't cost a bit more to live here than at any other nursing home. We're approved by the State Welfare Department, licensed by the State Department of Health, and we're approved for Medicaid. Regardless of where you live now, you can easily move to Leisure Lodge Nursing Center. And we know you'll like it here!

Anyone who has ever eaten a meal at a Leisure Lodge Nursing Center knows that the food is good, lovingly prepared, and that there's plenty of it.

We'd love to have you visit our home anytime, at your convenience. We're proud of Leisure Lodge Nursing Center, and we'd like for you to see it anytime. And especially, if you are in need of professional care; if you are living by yourself or with some family member who is unable for any reason to give you the attention and help you need; if you're just lonely for companionship; or if you know anyone in one of these categories - call or come by Leisure Lodge Nursing Center. Find out how much FUN living can be. You'll be glad you

Midland had beaten San Antonio Roosevelt and Wichita Falls High in the first two rounds and then came back to upend Highland Park of Dallas in the semifinals and the Cougars in the finals.

Coach Larry Burgin's Bulldogs and the Scotties from Highland Park hooked up in an even semifinals match with the Purple Pack winning, 21-18 in sets after a 9-9 standoff.

Highland Park won all of the boys singles matches and the Midland girls came back to win all of their matches in good weather conditions.

Vicki Vasicek, Cary Garton, Dinah

Boyd, Amy Tompson, Sue Ann Clark and Liz Ruwwe all won their singles matches while Jeff Bramlett and Tim Baird teamed up for Midland's only win in the boys doubles defeating Highland Park's Chris Doane and Johnny Owen, 6-3, 6-3.

MHS swept all three of the girls doubles matches to keep the Tall City team in contention while Cooper was besting Alamo Heights of San Antonio

Allison winged a first quarter bullseye to Brian Nelson that covered 88 yards for one touchdown and the wily junior quarterback then pranced three yards for another.

The heavily-favored Raiders (7-0) then spent the remainder of the sunswept afternoon battling for their collective lives against a hapless TCU club that had lost seven straight while yielding an average 42 points per Substitute quarterback Steve Bayuk took the Horned Frogs on a desperation long distance drive against the clock in the closing minutes but the threat died just inside the Raider 10 yard line when Eric Felton picked off a third down pass.

Tech ran out the clock at that point to resume the Raiders' uncluttered march toward a Jan. 1 date in the Cotton Bowl. Bayuk, a sophmore, had hurled a 77-yard scoring pass to Mike Renfro in the second quarter to breath new life in the near moribund Christians and a meager crowd of inspired Frogs torpedoed a Tech scoring drive at the goal in the third period, then drove into range for Ruben Ray's 22-yard field goal.

A roughing penalty washed out a TCU pass interception inside the Raider 40 in the final period and even then the Frogs did not surrender.

With nearly eight minutes left, Bayuk guided the Frogs from their own 25 down to a first down at the Raider nine with a little over a minute remaining, completing eight passes in the process. But with third and nine after two incomplete tosses, Felton stepped in front of a Bayuk toss to the seven and returned it out to the Raiders' 24

The frisky Frog defenders mounted a gallant goal line stand in the third quarter after Allison had guided Tech to a first down at the TCU 6-yard line. Three shots through the line got the Raiders to the one but on fourth down Allison was smothered on a foiled pass play for a loss of 17 yards.

It was from that point, that TCU, getting a 43-yard gallop by Tony Accomando, moved to the Tech 11 and a first down. The Frogs, however, reached only to the four before Ray kicked his 22-yard field goal to end the scoring if not the fireworks.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Houston snapped Texas' 42-game winning streak at Memorial Stadium Saturday and Coach Bill Yeoman said his players realized that stadiums do not win games.

After Houston had routed Texas 30-0, Yeoman said:

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) -Southern California quarterback Vince Evans, operating without All-American tailback Ricky Bell, threw four touchdown passes Saturday and the fourth-ranked Trojans crushed Stanford 48-24 to remain tied with UCLA for the Pacific-8 football lead.

Flanker Shelton Diggs caught three of Evans' scoring passes, including a 56-yarder on the game's third play. Following the first of cornerback Ricky Odom's three interceptions, Evans hit Diggs on a 21-yard touchdown pass and the Trojan's led 14-0 with 31/2 minutes gone.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - Wisconsin spotted Iowa a 14-0 first quarter lead, then rallied behind two touchdowns by Ira Matthews and three field goals by Vince Lamia to defeat the Hawkeyes 38-21 in Big Ten college football Saturday.

Mike Carroll ignited the comeback with a 21-yard scoring pass to David Charles on the first play of the second quarter. The Badgers took the lead to stay at 16-14 on Lamia's third field goal, a 20-yarder, early in the third period.

The outcome left both teams 4-5 this

Bell, the nation's leading rusher missed the game because of an ankle injury. His replacement, freshman Charles White, ran for 136 yards and two touchdowns but Southern Cal mostly beat Stanford at its own game.

Stanford scored late in the first period on Mike Michel's 26-yard field goal. The Trojans broke open the game in the second quarter, scoring on White's two-yard run after recovering a fumble on a controversial play. Southern Cal fell on a loose ball touched by punt returner Savann Thompson at Stanford's 13 and the Cardinals argued there was interference after a faircatch signal.

Sooners wallop K-State, 49-20

NORMAN. Okla. (AP) -Sophomore quarterback Thomas Lott slithered for 195 yards and three touchdowns as 18th-ranked Oklahoma brushed aside young but aggressive Kansas State Saturday, 49-20, to keep the Sooners mathematically in the Big Eight Conference title chase.

Two of Lott's touchdowns came in the second half after the Wildcats, led by the passing of sophomore quarterback Wendell Henrikson, wiped out big deficits to trail only 28-20 midway in the third period.

Lott pulled the Sooners ahead, 35-20, at the end of the third period on an 11-yard touchdown run. He had runs of 12 and 17 yards in the drive. The San Antonio, Tex., product, whose second quarter touchdown gave Oklahoma a 28-7 lead, got his third touchdown

Penn loses to Harvard

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Quarterback Jim Kubacki ran for two touchdowns as Harvard took advantage of nine Penn turnovers to hand the Quakers a 20-8 defeat in college football Saturday.

Penn quarterback Bob Graustein was intercepted six times and the Quakers fumbled the ball away three times, as all of Harvard's scoring came as a result of Penn mistakes.

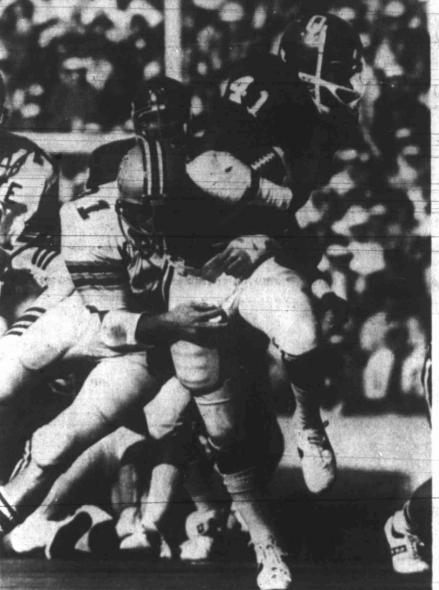

from three yards out early in the final period to put the game out of reach.

The victory, which ended a twogame Sooner losing streak—their longest since 1970—left Oklahoma with a 6-2-1 over-all record and a 4-2 mark in the Big Eight. Oklahoma is now in a five-way tie for second place in the conference and could gain a share of the title with wins over Missouri and Nebraska.

Kansas State dropped its eighth straight game despite Henrikson's passing for 283 yards—the biggest Wildcat aerial total since Dennis Morrison was quarterback in 1971.

Evans passes USC to victory

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) -Southern California quarterback Vince Evans, operating without All-American tailback Ricky Bell, threw four touchdown passes Saturday and the fourth-ranked Trojans crushed Stanford 48-24 to remain tied with UCLA for the Pacific-8 football lead.

Flanker Shelton Diggs caught three of Evans' scoring passes, including a 56-yarder on the game's third play. Following the first of cornerback Ricky Odom's three interceptions, Evans hit Diggs on a 21-yard touchdown pass and the Trojan's led 14-0 with 31/2 minutes gone.

Wisconsin rallies, 38-21

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - Wisconsin spotted Iowa a 14-0 first quarter lead, then rallied behind two touchdowns by Ira Matthews and three field goals by Vince Lamia to defeat the Hawkeyes 38-21 in Big Ten college football Saturday.

Mike Carroll ignited the comeback with a 21-yard scoring pass to David Charles on the first play of the second quarter. The Badgers took the lead to stay at 16-14 on Lamia's third field goal, a 20-yarder, early in the third period.

The outcome left both teams 4-5 this season and 2-4 in the Big Ten

Bell, the nation's leading rusher, missed the game because of an ankle injury. His replacement, freshman Charles White, ran for 136 yards and two touchdowns but Southern Cal mostly beat Stanford at its own game. passing.

Stanford scored late in the first period on Mike Michel's 26-yard field goal. The Trojans broke open the game in the second quarter, scoring on White's two-yard run after recovering a fumble on a controversial play. Southern Cal fell on a loose ball touched by punt returner Savann Thompson at Stanford's 13 and the Cardinals argued there was interference after a faircatch signal.

Penn State rips Pack

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) - Penn State's defense set up three touchdowns and a field goal with three fumble recoveries and an intercepted pass Saturday as the Nittany Lions thundered past North Carolina State 41-20 for their fifth straight victory.

Two fumbles set up two short Penn State scoring drives in the opening quarter. Quarterback Chuck Fusina banged one yard for a touchdown, and passed 29 yards to Jim Cefalo for another and a 14-0 lead.

After North Carolina State, 36-1, cut the margin to 14-7 on a four-yard touchdown pass from quarterback John Evans to flanker Dave Moody, Penn State recovered a third fumble which led to a 34-yard field goal by Tony Capozzoli. Capozzoli kicked a 28-yarder with 10 seconds left in the half to make it 20-7. The Lions, now 6-3, turned the game into a rout in the third quarter on touchdown runs of 64 yards by Steve Geise and 46 yards by Mike Guman.

Trinity topples McMurry

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) Reserve running back Ronnie Coward scored two touchdowns Saturday night to lead the Trinity Tigers to a 38-Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association victory over McMurry.

Coward scored on a 27-yard run in the first quarter and caught a 14-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Bruce Trimmier in the final period.

The victory gave Trinity the TIAA championship with a 4-0 record in the conference's first year. McMurry, 1-2 in conference play, got its only touchdown on a 99-yard

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) - Ricky Watts' one-yard run with 7:32 left rallied Tulsa's Golden Hurricane to a 35-31 football victory Saturday over Virginia Tech that spoiled two record-breaking performaces by the Gobblers' Roscoe Coles.

The touchdown by Watts capped a fourth-period rally by the Golden Hurricane from a 31-21 deficit, Ron Hickerson passing eight yards to tight end Marcus Hatley for the first score. Hickerson finished with 10 completions in 28 attempts for 151 yards and two touchdowns. He also ran 18

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) - first SEC crown ever. The victory propelled Georgia into the driver's seat in the race for the host spot in the Sugar Bowl game.

The momentum changed when Florida failed on a fourthdown gamble at its own 29-yard line with eight minutes left in the third quarter.

Johnny Henderson stopped Earl Carr for no gain, and six plays later the Bulldogs gained a 27-27 tie.

Goff scored two fourth-quarter touchdowns on short runs as Georgia lifted its record to 8-1 for the year and 4-1 in the SEC. Florida took only its second defeat after six consecutive victories and matches Georgia in conference competition at 4-1.

Vols trump Memphis State

MEMPHIS (AP) - Wingback Stanley Morgan scored twice on runs of six and one yards Saturday as Tennessee defeated Memphis State University 21-14 in college football.

Coach Bill Battle's Volunteers took advantage of a Tiger fumble early in the third period to turn what had been a Memphis State victory celebration into a wake.

Memphis State, hoping for a firsttime ever victory over their crossstate rivals took a 14-7 lead into the dressing room at the half.

But the Tiger visions evaporated eleven plays deep in the second half when Morgan capped a 14-yard Volunteer drive with a one-yard plunge that gave Tennessee its second TD. Jim Gaylor kicked the score to 14-

Kentucky Marksman Manges Vanderbilt paces Terps, 21-0

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) LEXINGTON, Ky. Mark Manges completed 11 of 19 passes, including two for touchdowns, accounted for 202 yards and added 71 yards rushing to lead unbeaten and sixth-ranked Maryland to a 21-0 victory over Cincinnati in college football Saturday.

The Terps, now 9-0 and winners of 13 in a row over the two seasons, dominated the visitors on defense allowing just four first downs through the end of the third quarter as they opened up their lead. Maryland missed a scoring chance following a fumble recovery deep in Bearcat territory early in the game, which was watched by scouts from the Orange and Gator bowls. The Terps then drove 29 yards in 15 plays late in the first period. They capped the march with a one-yard touchdown plunge by tailback Alvin "Preacher"

Manges took to the air in the second Dean Richards, who made a tumbling catch at the Cincinnati 26.

scrambles moved the ball to the 21, where the junior quarterback flipped a screen pass to split end Vince Kinney, who sped down the sideline for the touchdown.

Manges struck with his second touchdown pass on the fourth play of the final period, going 20 yards to a wide-open Richards in the end zone. The deepest penetration for Cincinnati, now 6-2, came in the fourth period when they moved the ball inside the Maryland 30. Penalties killed the drive, however, and the Bearcats turned the ball back to Maryland.

at least six years in the majors who don't sign their contracts by Aug. 9 may declare themsleves free agents after the season.

Saturday was the deadline for players to file notice, two days after the historic re-entry draft for 24 players who became free agents after this season.

Bill Cambell

Bosox sign draftee

BOSTON (AP) - Bill Campbell, the American League's No. 1 relief pitcher this year, turned an $8,000 gamble into $1 million Saturday by signing as a free agent with the Boston Red Sox.

Campbell, a 28-year old righthander who played out his option with the Minnesota Twins, signed with the Red Sox less than 48 hours after he was Boston's No. 1 pick in baseball's historic reentry draft Thursday.

Guided by his agent, LaRue Harcourt, a business administration teacher at Cerritos College in California, Campbell signed a four-year contract. Terms were not disclosed, but the pact reportedly calls for $400,000 the first year, $300,000 the second, $200,000 the third and $100,000 the fouth.

"I'M VERY, very hap py,''Campbell said.
"Now I'm financially secure and won't have to be concerned with contracts for a long while. I'm going out shopping right away. I have to get a birthday gift for my wife before I fly back to Minnesota.'

The 6-foot-3 reliever said he earned only $22,000 with Minnesota this year as he compiled a 17-5 record and 20 csaves while hurling 167 2-3 innings in 78 games. He had a 3.01 earned run average. Despite a 4-6 record and a 3.19 ERA in 1975. Campbell sought a $30,000 contract from Minnesota this year. The Twins refused to give it at the start. Later, they reportedly agreed to Campbell's demand, but he elected to gamble on his future.

ASKED IF at one time he and the Twins were only $2,500 apart, Campbell said:

"It was a little more-but not that much more."

Campbell was Boston's No. 1 choice in the reentry draft of 24 free agents, and he became the first to announce signing with a new club. The Red Sox later drafted, in order, the right to negotiate with Bobby Grich, Rollie Fingers, Joe Rudi, Don Gullett, Dave Cash, Doyle Alexander, Bert Campaneris and Billy Smith.

Dick Allen becomes free agent

NEW YORK (AP) -Dick Allen, the controversial first baseman for the Philadelphia Phillies, became a free agent Friday and has requested to go through a special negotiation draft. Allen signed a contract with the Phillies late in the season for 1976 only and has decided to exercise his option under the new basic agreement to become a free agent. COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) - Steve Pisarkiewicz became Missouri's alltime passing leader Saturday, but Pete Woods replaced him amid a savage defensive struggle and directed the Tigers to nine fourthquarter points and a 16-7 victory over Colorado.

The loss was Colorado's second in Big Eight competition and knocked the 14th-ranked Buffaloes out of a first-place tie with Nebraska, which defeated Oklahoma State for sole possession of the top spot.

Colorado appeared to have halted the drive, but a pass interference on Odis McKinney on fourth and goal revitalized the drive and Curtis Brown plunged over from the one with 12:28 remaining in the game.

Missouri cornerback Rob Fitzgerald intercepted Jeff Austin's pass on the next play and Woods, with an 26-yard pass play to Kellen Winslow, brought the Tigers to the five. Three plays later, Tim Gibbons booted a nineteen-yard field goal.

Minnesota sandbags Northwestern

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) - Jim Perkins, Minnesota's designated scorer, blasted for three, one-yard touchdowns Saturday and the Gophers rolled to a 38-10 victory over winless Northwestern before a disappointed crowd of 15,183, smallest in modern Northwestern history.

The defeat was the 15th straight for the Wildcats, who are shackled with the longest losing streak among the nation's major colleges.

Northwestern took a 3-0 lead on a 41yard field goal by Nick Mirkopulos before the Gophers, boosting their record to 4-2 in the Big Ten and 6-3 over-all, went to work.

Wilson leads Bulldogs to 5th X-country win

AMARILLO—By the time Midland High's Robert Wilson finishes the cross country season, there may not be a course in West Texas that doesn't have his name listed in the record

Wilson recorded nine minutes, 44 seconds for his fifth record performance of the year. The showing was good enough to lead the Bulldogs to their fifth victory of the season by winning the Amarillo Invitational Cross Country here Saturday. Midland High had 39 points while Lubbock Monterey was a distant second with 86 points.

Jeff Adkins finished third with a 10:02 to tie the old record. Other Bulldogs were Harold Stewart, eighth; Pat Darden, 12th; Chuck Stump, 15th and Paul Darden, 16th. The Midland High junior varsity also won team honors with 32 points as Tom Hunter led the way with a 10:54 for another new record in the JV division. Other Bullpups were Bart Wolf, second; Bob Glenn, fourth; Paul Laverty, seventh; and Matt Morrison. "It was by far our best meet of the year," said a happy Midland High coach Ed Nixon. "We competed better than in any meet this year.

Houston so effectively shut down the Texas offense that the Longhorns only had two yards in the entire second quarter.

Texas played without its leading rusher, fullback Earl Campbell, who, did not even suit up because of a pulled leg muscle. Offensive tackle George James also was sidelined for Texas in the first quarter and had to be replaced by freshman Guy Sellers.

Buckeyes twist Illini

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) -Fullback Pete Johnson scored four times to become the fifth player in college history to score 50 career touchdowns leading eighth-ranked Ohio State to its 18th straight Big Ten football victory Saturday, a 42-10 rout of Illinois that gave the Buckeyes the conference lead Purdue's 16-14 upset of top-ranked Michigan left Ohio State alone atop the Big Ten.

Johnson scored on runs of one, two, four and one yards to run his regular season touchdown total to 53. The 247pound senior from Long Beach, N.Y., joins Army's Glenn Davis, Steve Owens of Oklahoma, Ed Marinaro of Cornell and Anthony Davis of Southern California on the select list. Davis is the all-time leader with 59 touchdowns.

Linebacker Ed Thompson returned a pass interception 81 yards for a touchdown, launching the Buckeyes on their way to their sixth triumph in an undefeated conference season this fall. Ohio State is 7-1-1 overall.

The inconsistent Illini, who fell behind 21-3 by halftime, slipped to 3-3 in the Big Ten and 4-5 for all games.

The veteran Ohio State defense forced the Illini into five turnovers. four of them pass interceptions. However, the Buckeyes could convert only one of the errors into a score A crowd of 87,654 watched the

Utah ambushes New Mexico

Total offensive yardage for both teams with 1,083.

Moments after Buchi's heroics New Mexico almost tied it but Jim Haynes missed a 43-yard field goal attempt with two seconds left.

Utah quarterback Dan Hagemann edged New Mexico fullback Mike Williams and Lobo quarterback Noel Mazzone for offensive honors.

Hagemann picked up 313 yards on 13 of 28 passes and rushed for 76. He threw two touchdown passes and scored twice himself. Williams rushed for 206 yards in 35 carries and scored two touchdowns. Mazzone hit 14 of 22 passes for 278 yards and two touchdowns.

Utah is now 2-2 in conference play and 2-6 overall. New Mexico is 23 in the WAC and 3-5 for the season.

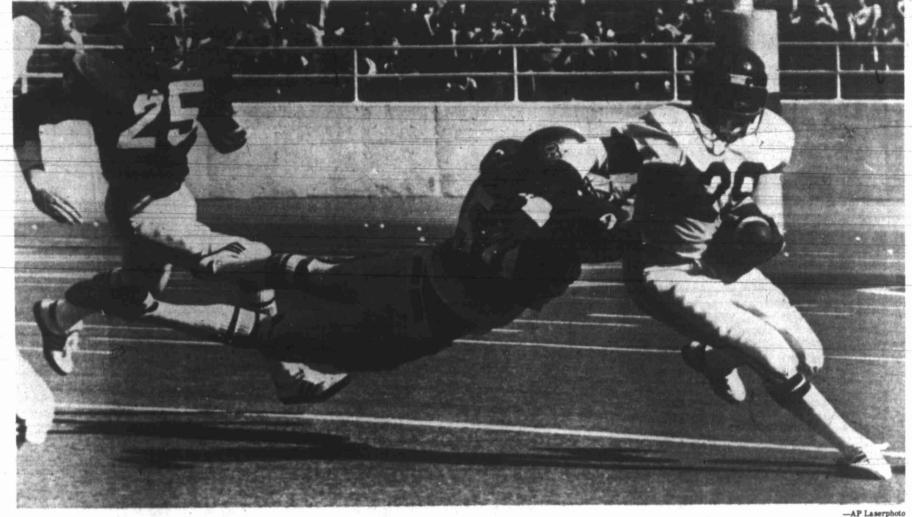

The offensive highlight was a 98yard scoring pass from Hagemann to Jack Steptoe early in the third quarter. The junior flanker took the ball on the Utah 27 and outran two defenders 73 yards to score.

Steptoe caught four passes for 194 yards and two touchdowns.

New Mexico moved to a quick 10-0 lead on a two-yard run by Williams and a 42-yard Haynes field goal.

Lee JV trims Abilene, 21-14

ABILENE-The Midland Lee junior varsity football team rolled to a 21-14 victory over Abilene High here Saturday.

Lee is now 4-4-1 on the season while Abilene fell to 7-2.

Lee knotted the score at 7-7 when Grady Steen blocked a punt and Clay Calhoun picked it up and ran 30 yards for the score. Tyler Alcorn kicked the point after.

John White scored on a 26-yard run and a 46-yard pass from Steve Pitts to aid the Rebels to a 21-7 lead. White also threw to Ken Van Hoozer for a two-point conversion.

Abilene scored on a 55-yard pass play for their other score.

The Lee defense stood out as the Rebs held Abilene to 164 yards total offense. Lee had 121 rushing yards and 58 passing.

Lee ends the season Thursday when they meet Midland High in a 3:30 p.m.

VMI defeats Citadel, 30-14

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) Quarterback Robbie Clark passed for two touchdowns and Craig Jones kicked three field goals as Virginia Military Institute defeated the Citadel Bulldogs 30-14 in a game billed as the Military Classic of the South.

The Keydets scored on their first drive after the Bulldogs' Lonnie Ford fumbled a pitchout on the second play of the game. Six plays later Clark hit Johnnie Garnett for a touchdown with 12:11 left in the first quarter. It was VMI's first touchdown pass of the season

BYU outlasts UTEP, 40-27

PROVO, Utah (AP) - Brigham Young University quarterback Gifford Nielsen passed for four touchdowns and tied a Western Athletic Conference passing record as BYU defeated The University of Texas-El Paso 40-27 Saturday.

Nielsen, ranked third in the nation for passing yardage, threw to wide receiver Mike Chronister and running backs Todd Christensen and Dave Lowry to tie a WAC record of 23 touchdown passes in a single season. The record was set by Arizona State's Danny White in 1973 and tied by BYU's Gary Sheide in 1974.

After a close first half, BYU went ahead 34-27 early the fourth quarter when wide receiver John Van Der Wouden threw a 14 yard pass on a fake field goal attempt to set up a six yard touchdown run by Christensen. BYU sealed the win with two field goals by place kicker Dave Taylor.

Underdog UTEP made a strong bid for an upset in the first half. Tailback Ray Holt hurtled the line and ran 40 yards for the game's first score after UTEP took a partially blocked punt

BATTLE SCENE

Webb, 64, a far from ghost-like visitor from Midland's colorful baseball

In Midland recently to attend to some personal business, Webb perhaps was the epitome of the hectic Longhorn League era in the post-war 1940s and dawning 1950s.

The Tall City since then has developed a middleaged paunch, doubling in size, upward and outward, but the old-time fans still cherish their favorite Harold Webb stories.

There was the time he dropped his trousers during a plate debate with an umpire to reveal shocking scarlet flannel undies.

OR, HOW about the time he was ejected from a game and tight-roped the right field foul line to the fence, climbing over it and perching himself atop the team bus beyond to watch and procrastinate on the rest of the

"Bobby Bragam once told me, 'When you're losing, you've got to give the fans a show. Get yourself thrown out of a game, create a ruckus. Do something, but don't let the game die. Send them home talking.' I tried to follow his advice,"

Reminiscing with Webb inevitably ressurects names that by now have become part of Midland's baseball folklore, Eddie Jacome, Warren Sliter, Carroll Nipp, Jim Prince, Kenny Jones, Pat Stasy, Potato and Camille Pascual to hurry over a few.

"WE SET some records back in those days,"Webb recalls. "I don't suppose anyone will ever break Prince's record," he said citing the 429 in 1948 that led all of Organized Baseball and won for Jim the Golden game on a Saturday night and didn't have to work that hard," remembers Webb. "So he asked to start the first game of a doubleheader the next day and won that, too. Then he came back in relief in the nightcap and got the win for that '

One of the players Webb had here was Hank Ramsdell, who went on to play for the Cincinnati Reds and several other major league clubs. 'He was an outfielder when I had him and didn't become a pitcher until after he left here."

ALTHOUGH IT was Camille Pascual who made a career in the majors, Webb said, "Potato could throw harder from third base than most pitchers." Potato even went to the Washington Senators as a pitcher at the end of one season, won a couple of games and drew raves from no less than Ted Williams, but the bright lights of the big city weren't for Potato. He didn't want to stay and then, of course, he hurt his arm. The myth that defeats are quickly forgotten is just that. a myth. Webb won pennants at Midland, but one that got away is the one he talks about.

'It was the last game of the season and the last of the uinth with two out against Odessa. They bunted three straight times to load the bases and then a fourth bunt popped over the pitcher's head as he rushed the plate and the tying run came home."

IT WAS also against Odesssa that Webb had his famous heart attack. "That rivalry was so intense that you had to walk to the bus after the game with a bat on your shoulder.

"This particular night, the ump called a high pitch a strike. I keeled over backward in mock shock and just lay there on the ground. Everybody thought I had had a heart attack. Al Monchak, who was managing Odessa at the time, came over and said there was nothing wrong with me but nobody believed him. They got a stretcher and carried me out of the ball park.

Webb says in those days he did all his selling... season tickets and advertising in the Scharbauer Hotel lobby. "Everybody came in there and I practically had an office right there in the lobby."

Promotion minded? "The players were always mingling with the fans downtown. It was the best publicity in the world. We even went to different churches in town as a group."

In looking back, Webb says he had such a good lease on the ball park, $1 a year, he passed up a chance to buy the old Indians Park for $10,000.

"I COULD have swung it, too. I usually cleared $30,000 in preseason sales.

A few years later, the ball park was sold and is now the Village. For a while after selling the Indians, Webb ran a bar in Midland. "Bill Collyns (R-T editor) doesn't know it, but he was responsible for me getting out of it. He never came out and said anything, but he let me know that it didn't seem right that Harold Webb should be in the saloon business. I thought it over and decided he was right, so I got out."

No. 2-ranked Pitt beats Army

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Recordbreaking Tony Dorsett, college football's all-time rushing king, galloped for 212 yards and three touchdowns and smashed his ninth NCAA mark Saturday, leading unbeaten, second-ranked Pittsburgh to a 37-7 victory over Army.

Coupled with top-rated Michigan's stunning 16-14 upset at the hands of Purdue, Pitt's triumph thrust the Panthers into the favorite's role for the No.1 position in the next rankings. Dorsett carried 32 times before being shaken up on the first play of the fourth quarter. He ran for touchdowns of 4, 32 and 5 yards and caught two passes for 14.

That boosted his career total for allpurpose rushing to 6,192 yards, erasing the mark of 6,003 by Archië

Griffin, Ohio State's two-time Heisman Trophy winner. All-purpose rushing includes running, receiving and kick return yardage.

Dallas hosts NY Giants today

DALLAS (AP) — The winless New York Giants, suffering their biggest scoring drought since 1932, limp into Texas Stadium Sunday hoping to ambush the streaking Dallas Cowboys like they did in 1974.

The Giants haven't scored in 10 consecutive periods and have been strapped with back-to-back shutouts. The once-proud Giants have been blanked in three straight games for the first time since 1972.

"The Giants are the best 0-8 team I ever saw on film," says Cowboy Coach Tom Landry. "They hustle, they hit, and don't quit. They've played a tough schedule and we expect a tough game from them."

LANDRY, HIMSELF a former Giant, said he thought New York's heartbreaking loss to Washington in the opener set the tone for the team.

"Every season is based on one or two games," said Landry. "For example, we beat Los Angeles and St. Louis in our first two games last year and used the momentum to go to the Super Bowl. We lived on that momentum all season

It will be the second game for the Giants since John McVay took over for the fired Bill Arnsparger.

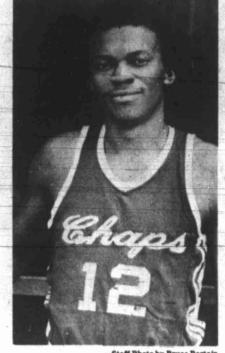

Dallas (7-1) is enjoying its finest start since 1969. Quarterback Roger Staubach, who will start against New York despite the fractured little pinky in his passing hand, is the top passer in the National Football League.

"ROGER HAS never played better," says Landry. Craig Morton, formerly Staubach's top competitor for the Cowboy job, will try for the sixth time to defeat his old teammates. "Craig is a very smart quarterback

Tommy Parks, 19, is a sophomore guard from Fort Worth Poly. The 6-0, 158-pounder was coached in high school by Tim Austin and was twice selected All-City, All-District and All-Region.

Tommy lived up to his high school reputation last year in pacing the team in scoring with a 20.8 average per game as the Chaps posted an 18-12 Parks demonstrated his all-around value by leading the Chaparrals in steals, assists and even set a single game scoring high of 37 points.

He wound up being named allconference and all-region. He is a drafting major at MC.

Story sees WTC as team to beat in WJCC race

As Midland College's Chaparrals prepared for their 1976-77 basketball opener Tuesday night at the MC gym, Coach Chester Story glanced down the road to survey and hazard a guess or two on what shapes up as another frantic Western Junior College Conference basketball race.

As Story sees it, Odessa College, under former MC assistant Ron Mayberry, will be better and Howard County will be tough again. Western Texas College (national JC champion two years ago) returns four starters and has added three others who could start. With three or four players in the 6-8 range, I think you'd have to rate WTC as the favorites and the team to beat."

AS THE teams most likely to beat Western, Story looks to South Plains. New Mexico JC, Howard, Midland and Odessa and possibly Amarillo College as contenders.

There have been a couple of coaching changes in the WJCC in addition to Mayberry's move to OC. Gary Cardinal moves from New Mexico Military Institute, where he moulded a contender, to Amarillo, where the cupboard isn't quite as well stocked as it was a year ago.

Dave Campbell, who has coached at a couple of major colleges as an assistant, moves in at Roswell.

As for Tuesday's 7:30 p. m. lidlifter with Lubbock Christian College's JVs, Story said he expects LCC to bring everyone who isn't a a senior to MC and since three sophomores reporpretty good test...

ON FRIDAY and Saturday, MC will travel with OC to Sherman and Gainesville for doubleheaders against Grayson and Cooke County.

"Cooke has a new coach, R.C. Shipley, and he has stocked his team with players recruited from Louisiana and he is supposed to be pretty stout," says Story.

Cooke will be coming to Midland

With Grayson for return twinbills at MC and OC in January.

Slumping Oilers try to delay 'midnight'

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers, Cinderella darlings of the National Football League last season with a 10-4 record, will try to stave off midnight Sunday when they host the improved Cleveland Browns in the Astrodome.

After jumping off to a 4-1 start and at one time sharing the American Football Conference Central Division lead with Cincinnati, the Oilers have lost three straight games.

Houston's bomb-oriented offense has fizzled except for an occasional Dan Pastorini-to-Ken Burrough touchdown pass. To add to Coach O.A. 'Bum" Phillips miseries, Pastorini last week asked to be traded at the end of the season.

Despite a barrage of injuries—one week the Oilers had 13 players on the day's game gainst the Browns with a chance for the coveted playoff berth that has eluded the Oilers since 1969. Cleveland, Houston and defending champion Pittsburgh all are tied for second in the AFC Central Division with 4-4 records. The Oilers still are plagued by injuries. Outside linebacker Ted Washington, who missed two games with injuries, may be out again this week after falling in the tunnel at Baltimore and injuring a knee.

Safety C.L. Whittingdon and running back Fred Willis also may miss the game with injuries.

The Browns, coming off a poor 1975 season, have rebounded behind versatile Greg Pruitt, who ranks second in the AFC in both rushing and pass receiving.

Election results

AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Oilmen who fear congressional proposals to break up major oil companies found little encouragement from the U.S. Senate results of the general election.

Ten senators who voted against vertical divestiture will not return to Congress next year. Only four senators who voted for divestiture will not return.

Oilmen were shocked late last year when three divestiture proposals suddenly surfaced on the Senate floor. All three amendments were rejected but oilmen were shocked by the strength mustered by proponents of the measures that were submitted without benefit of committee

Vertical divestiture was rejected, 40-49. The proposal would have required the 15 largest producing companies to get rid of other operations such as refining and marketing within five years.

The Senate votes prompted the American Petroleum Institute, oil's largest trade group, to form a special task force last November to fight

Another proposal aimed at the 18 largest integrated oil companies was approved by an 8-7 vote in June by the Senate Judiciary Committee but it never reached the Senate floor.

In the past year, scores of oilmen have made hundreds of speeches charging that divestiture amounts to an attack on free enterprise. They have also said repeatedly that other industries such as steel and automobiles will certainly follow should the major oil companies be

Of the 40 senators who voted for vertical divestiture. 27 were not up for reelection, 12 faced opposition, and one, Senator John O. Pastore, D-R.L., did not seek reelection. Three of the 12-Senators John V. Tunney, D-Calif., Vance Hartke, D-Ind., and Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, were defeated.

Senator Walter F. Mondale. D-Minn., now vice presidentelect, was among the 27 who were not up for reelection.

Of the 49 who voted against divestiture, 35 were not up for reelection, five of the nine who had opposition were defeated, and five chose not to seek reelection.

Those defeated were Senaoors J. Glenn Beall Jr., R-Md., Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., James L. Buckley, R-C+N.Y., Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, and Bill Brock, R-Tenn.

Those not seeking reelection were Senators Paul J. Fannin, R-Ariz., Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii, Stuart Symington, D-Mo., Roman L. Hruska. R-Neb., and Hugh Scott, R-Pa.
Three senators who voted for vertical divestiture helped defeat on a later vote a horizontal divestiture proposal that would have barred major oil companies from operating in other energy fields such as coal and uranium. They were Senators Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., and Warren G. Magnuson, D-

Divestiture did not figure too prominently in the presidential campaign but both President Ford and President-elect Jimmy Carter expressed their views.

Carter said he supports legal prohibitions against ownership of competing types of energy.

"I support restrictions on the right of a single company to own all phases of production and distribution of oil," Carter said. "However, it may not always be in the consumer's interest to limit a company to one single phase of production. Such a restriction, for example, might make it illegal for the same company to explore for oil and then extract that oil from the

Ford said he opposed divestiture. "I have no sympathy for the giant oil companies," Ford said. "They reaped a financial bonanza a year or so ago but to tear them up, in my opinion, is not the best way to get them to get in and help us solve the energy problem."

By CLYDE LA MOTTE

Reporter-Telegram

Washington Oil Correspondent WASHINGTON - There is some basis for mild optimism - at least some hope — that there may be less bickering and more progress regarding energy policies and programs during the administration of Jimmy Carter than might have been the case had President Ford been elected.

For one thing, there is likely to be less knee-jerk, automatic opposition by Congress to energy-related legislation the new President will send to the Hill because Carter will be dealing with a Democratic Congress.

There will be en early test of this theory. Deregulation of new natural gas prices will become an issue in Congress early next year.

Carter has said he favors such legislation and will support it. Ford has long been an advocate of deregulation but it would seem that in the current setting a bill with Carter's support will have a better chance of

There may be less opposition, too, from some groups that have most strongly opposed deregulation in the past. This is especially true of the Labor unions and the Blacks, two majors segments of Carter's support in last week's election.

In any event, it seems reasonable to assume - at least in the beginning that Carter will have better communication with those groups and thus may be able to convince them that the policy he is advocating will be in their own interests as well as for the welfare of the nation as a whole. Certainly these groups would be slower to charge that the White House was being controlled by the oil and

It remains to be seen, of course, how much priority Carter will give to such energy-related measures as gas price decontrol. But he has made a clear-cut commitment favoring this legislation, saying he believes domestic producers need the incentive for new exploration and that non-oil producing states would benefit because deregulation would help attract intrastate gas into interstate

In a telegram he sent two weeks ago to the president of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America, Carter promised that "I will work with Congress to deregulate new natural

He also mentioned the importance of enhanced recovery, saying this would make oil available that otherwise would remain in the ground, thereby indicating his willingness to help encourage secondary and tertiary recovery

Over-all, Carter during his campaign called for development of clearcut energy policies, saying the Ford Administration had not done so. Ford claimed, of course, that his administration had made a great deal of progress and would have made more had it not been for opposition from Congress.

There still remains a great deal of uncertainty regarding what Carter has in mind for energy development and what success he will have in selling his programs. But the point here is if he chooses to act on energy, he has more favorable factors going for him than President Ford has had. For instance, he is likely to be subjected to less criticism than Ford if he names someone with an oilrelated background to an oil-related government position. Ford had to avoid such a move because this would have prompted charges that the industry was controlling the govern-

(It is recalled that the late President Kennedy named several oil people to energy positions in government, including the appointment of John Kelly, an independent producer from New Mexico, as assistant secretary of Interior for minerals. This is something no Republican would have done.)

Offshore rig collapses

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) - A Pennzoil Co. drilling rig collapsed 90 miles off Galveston in the Gulf of Mexico early Saturday, but all 32 workers aboard were safely evacuated, the U.S. Coast Guard at New Orleans said. "They had a blowout, and two motor vessels from the oil company removed the people before it collapsed," a Coast Guard spokesman The open well was still shooting gas.

bubbles to the surface, but the Coast

Guard said it believed the situation was under control. We have issued some marine advisories, but these things are usually taken care of pretty quickly." the spokesman said. "The oil company is sending repair crews out there again today (Saturday)." There was no immediate word as to what caused the well to blow out.

Carter's appointments to Cabinet, sub-Cabinet and regulatory posts will provide clues to the approach he will undertake affecting energy. This will include the choice of someone to succeed Frank Zarb at the Federal Energy Administration, a chairman of the Federal Power Commission,

Gas price deregulation

The second clue will be when he starts sending legislative proposals to the 95th Congress next year. This will indicate his legislative priorities and the place energy solutions play in

Finally, and perhaps most important, will be the efforts and the effectiveness of those efforts when the new President seeks to sell Congress and the public on specific plans relating to energy.

This is especially important because there is little indication that public opinion has jelled regarding energy. If Carter does, indeed, intend to develop a viable program, his leadership will be put to a test. His dealings with the international aspects of the energy problem will be equally important and this will test his ability to deal with foreign governments on energy and other matters. Carter will undoubtedly have his opportunities for action on the energy front, both domestic and foreign.

U.S. economy shows weakness measures, the economy continued to show weakness this past week as the nation moved into the transition period between government administrations

Last month's wholesale price index, among the first figures available on fourth-quarter activity, climbed at a 7.2 per cent annual rate, the govern-

It was the fifth month in a row that the key inflation index posted what the Labor Department called 'relatively large' increases.
The October figures represented

some improvement from September's double-digit increase, and consumer goods prices in the index moved favorably during the month.

The sharp rise in prices of industrial goods that pulled up the overall index came as a surprise to some observers because of the recent weakness in many industrial commodity prices. They suggested that some of the jump might have been overstated by measurement error.

More unfavorable news was the September decline in the Commerce Department's major forecasting tool. the index of leading economic indicators. September's .7 per cent drop matched August's decline, marking the first two-month fall in the indicator since the low point of the last recession in January and February

Of the 11 figures that make up the leading indicators, four moved favorably and seven, including orders for consumer goods, declined.

Factory orders also declined in September for the third straight month and the Labor Department said that three out of every 200 manufacturing workers were laid off during the month ended Oct. 15.

As the economy moves along its uneven path, it appears likely that two areas will help boost the economy in coming months: Housing and capital spending.

McGraw-Hill's 23rd annual report on capital spending plans forecast a 13 per cent increase for next year, basically in line with other recent predictions of an upswing in business purchases of equipment and facilities

Several indicators of the future of the housing industry have begun to

State bank legislation checked

By BILL KIDD

AUSTIN-Legislation regulating the sale or change of control of Statechartered banks in being studied by the Department of Banking at the request of Gov. Dolph Briscoe's office. Banking Commissioner Robert E.

Stewart told a meeting of the Banking Section of the State Finance Commission Thursday that "we have been asked to work with the governor's office" on the propossal.

While the department has been asked to draft the legislation, nothing has been prepared thus far, although the matter is under study.

Assistant Commissioner and Legal Counsel Archie Clayton says the legislation will need "to be very finely drawn" because of constitutional questions involved.

Stewart reported that industry groups, such as the Texas Bankers Association, had opposed such legislation in the past on grounds that it restricted the market for bank stock-and thus reduced the stock's value.

Finance Commission member J. H. Bain Jr., Stockdale, said he was concerned that unless the law was properly drawn, it could "end up feathering the nest of the (bank) holding companies" by making it difficult for anyone other than a holding company to buy a bank.

But Stewart argued such a restriction also could eliminate "high flyers" who now are willing to pay too high a price for a bank "because they know they can get their money back somehow.

The impetus for the legislation appears to be the closing earlier in the year of Citizens State Bank in Carrizo Springs and concern over changes in bank ownership growing out of that bank failure.

That failure also led to the current Federal investigation of Texas bank closings, through the efforts of U.S. Rep. Henry Gonzalez of San Antonio. However. Clayton reported the Department of Banking hasn't been asked to take part in any proposed public hearings by the Federal investigators on the bank closings. Department officials will not comment on whether they are taking part in the investigations.

In other action by the Finance Commission, implementation of proposed regulations for disclosures to consumers on loans was delayed upon the recommendation of Commissioner Sam Kelley, Office of the Consumer Credit Commission.

Kelley and his staff drafted the regulations, which were intended to allow financial instituations to use one set of disclosure forms rather than one State and one Federal set.

However, Kelley said, changes by Federal authorities incorporating the Federal Fair Credit Billing Act into Federal regulations has made it difficult or impossible for Texas to implement its own regulations, since Texas law has no authorization for regulations similar to the credit bill-

Potato price up

AUSTIN - Of the 26 agricultural commodities surveyed for average prices in Texas for the month ended October 15, only potatoes rose above the break-even parity level with 41

In a report issued for November. the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service showed the continued decline in farm prices from the previous month, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White stated.

Parity prices are not an actual break-even calculation, but they do serve as a guage, White explained.

"Losses that farmers are sustaining are evident in the gap between the parity price and the market price, such as $2.19 per bushel of wheat, $1.07 for corn, $1.70 for grain sorghum," White said. Livestock prices were in the red when contrasted to production costs. Beef cattle prices at the market averaged $30.10 last month; parity was set at $57. Calves, though they showed some gain in market prices, were $34.90 below parity. Hogs, which were bringing good prices last year are now $20.70 below parity, set at $52.40 Sheep were only $3.50 below, but lambs were $11.60 under parity.

Turkeys and broilers went up a cent and a half, but were also below parity. Feed prices remained fairly stable Some prices rose slightly over those of last month's report period. Baled hay, which was selling in the rest of the nation for $60.10 a ton, in Texas brought $49.50, a $4 increase over the September averages. Grains all decreased in price with grain sorghum having a'drop of 39 cents per hundredweight.

Permits go over $42-million mark

Building permits issued by the city during October were down in number but almost double in valuation the figures for the same period last year, the inspections department said.

Last month saw 99 permits valued at $5,732,821 issued by the city, compared to 127 permits worth $3,213,163 during October a year ago.

Permit number off, value up

Midland's yearly construction total jumped to $42.3 million last week, with 31 building permits valued at $2,834,000 being issued by the city inspections department.

BUSINESS

Providing the bulk of the permit total for the week was a new commercial permit worth $2,400,000 being issued to Midland College, 3600 N Garfield St., for its Chaparral Center, or sports gym. The building is part of a $6.3 million bond proposal approved by voters early this year for improvements and additions at the MC campus. During the week, the city issued eight permits for new residences, two other permits for new commercial establishments, three permits for commercial alterations and 17 permits for residential alterations. The eight permits for new homes were valued at $357,500. They were issued to Harvey Langston Builders for $55,000, 2814 Emerson Place: Casabella Homes for $50,000, 3200 Highsky and for $50,000, 3616 Hyde Park; Glenn Pine for $45,000, 2815 Emerson Place; Carroll Grafa for $60,000, 2827 N. Town Place; Duckworth and Klapproth for $26,500, 4620 Brookdale Drive and for $26,000, 4624 Brookdale Drive; and Clyde C. White for $45,000, 2820 Goddard Place. The two permits for new commercial establishments issued by the city last week went to Citizens Savings and Loan Association for $35,000, a savings and loan building at No. 35 Dellwood Plaza; and to Bobbie Cox for $3,000, a sign at 2109 N. Big.

The three commercial alterations permits were valued at $7,500 last week. They went to Helmsley-Spears for $2,500, fourth floor alterations at 300 W. Wall St.; Kangaroo Court for $3,000, replace sign at 3302 W. Front St.; and Don Fender for $2,000, add restroom at 909 to 911 S. Goode St. The 17 permits issued for residential alterations were valued at $31,000. They were issued to C. D. Flatt for $100, add storage building at 1010 W. Louisiana Ave.; Hollis Newnham for $2,000, enclose patio at 2003 Princeton St., Doug Peddy for $2,400, storage building at 2612 Storey Ave.; Cecil Roberts for $3,500, add den at 1709 Northrup St.; Don Nichols for $1,000, cover patio at 3414 W Louisiana Ave.; Jessie Padilla for $600, fireplace at 1003 Whitaker St. Julio Brito for $1,000, enclose patio at 407 E. Dormard Ave.; and Deo Thompson for $200, add carport at 408 S. Carver St.

The remaining residential alterations permits went to James Finley for $9,000, add den at 3610 Gulf Ave.; Arthur Givens for $200, pumphouse at 810 N. Mineola St.; Edward E. Jenkins for $1,500, add to storage and re-deck roof at 3402 Bedford Drive: James Purvis for $2,000, enclose garage and remove a partition at 3205 Maxwell Drive; N. L. Stapp for $1,000, auxiliary storage facility at 2107 N. D St.; Bessie Coleman for $400, add storage at 1104 E. Hamby Ave.; Charles Gronen for $1,500, add garage at 3408 Boyd Ave.; J. R. Porterfield for $100, add storage building at 1700 S. Camp St.; and George A. Savany for $4,500. alterations at 710 W. Spruce Ave.

Earlys' bird returning home

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Earlys lost their bird three years ago. It was a myna they had taught to say, "Hello, Sweetheart," "I am beautiful" and "I am the Earlys' Bird," among other things. Ross F. Early testified in Jackson County Circuit Courf that he and his wife, Susan, found the missing myna last April in a suburban pet shop, and recognized the bird from its phraseology.

Early went to court, he said, because the store refused to give him the bird

Judge Paul E. Vardeman awarded the Earlys the bird on a default judgment because the pet shop was not represented in court. The bird, still in possession of the pet shop; did not ap-

"I suppose an appropriate judgment in this case would be for me to say, 'Give them the bird,' but that's really not very judicious," the judge commented.

This addition brings Midland's yearly construction total to date to $38,870,432, well ahead of the $24,131,794 total last year at this time. A breakdown of the permits issued during October shows that 30 permits were issued for single-family residences, valued at $1,354,000; one for an apartment, $1,135,000; seven for new commercial, $269,500; four for signs, $11,800; nine for commercial alterations and repairs $483,000; and 40 for residential alterations and repairs, $2,479,521.

The apartment permit was for a two-story apartment complex containing 120 units at 3329 W. Wadley Ave. The permit was issued to Sunnyvale Building Co. Included in the permits issued during October for new commercial were one for T-Hangars valued at $127,000; two for warehouses, $26,000; four for signs, $11,800; one for an office and electrical shop, $27,000; two for car wash establishments, $29,500 and one for a church, $60,000. The church building permit was issued to the First Mexican Baptist Church for a new structure at 507 N Tyler St. During October, the inspections department made 1,241 inspections: compared to the 1,424 inspections made during October a year ago. The city removed 88 junker cars last month, considerably more than the 61 cars removed during October Building inspections for 1976 to date

Slaughter ups output

AUSTIN - Continued high cattle slaughter coupled with seasonal increases in pork production again boosted the total monthly red meat output in Texas, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said today. Texas commercial slaughtering plants produced 303 million pounds of red meat during September, six per cent higher than September, 1975, and three per cent more than a month "Red meat production for the ninth month of this year was only partially offset by decreases in calf, sheep, and lamb kills from that of a year earlier," Commissioner White explained.

Calf kill for September was 50,500 head, 12,000 less than a year ago but 8,500 head above the previous month The January-September total calf kill numbered 357,000 head, below last year by 19 per cent.

Sheep and lambs killed totaled 82,000 head in September, a drop of 45,000 head from last year and 12.000 below August, 1976. Thus far this year, 818,500 sheep and lambs have been slaughtered, down 28 per cent from a year ago.

Cattle slaughtered during September totaled 418,000 head, 8,000 more than last year and 7,000 head above August, 1976. The cumulative total of 4,486,000 head of cattle slaughtered is 19 per cent above the first nine months a year ago.

Hog slaughter has rebounded from earlier lows, with the 95,500 head killed in September some 17,500 head above September, 1976, and 10,000 head more than a month earlier. Total hog slaughter for the nine-month period, at 755,000 head, is still running some 12 per cent below the same period in 1975. Nationally, commercial production of red meat totaled nearly 3.5 billion pounds in September, 12 per cent more than a year ago and 13 per cent above September, 1974.

some fact...
some legend,

The history of the diamond is a fascinating tale in which history, romance, and legend are closely interwoven. Great diamonds have served as ransoms and gifts of Kings, have caused disastrous wars, and even caused the overthrow of dynasties.

Prior to the mid 17th century, diamonds were found in quantity only in India. It was there that the Kohinoor Diamond was found. It is the oldest known diamond with a history dating back to the thirteenth century.

Legend says that "he who owned the Kohinoor, ruled the world." The diamond has a history of frequent violent death of its owner, unless the owner was a woman. Today the Kohinoor Diamond safely rests in the crown of the Queen of England.

Marie Antoinette had a passion for diamonds. She amassed a vast diamond collection which included the famous blue diamond known today as the Hope Diamond. Diamonds motivated European Royalty for centuries and even captivated Napoleon Bonaparte who presented Josephine with pins, necklaces, earrings, and a fabulous diamond tiara which remains intact to this day.

However, the world was rapidly changing and royalty's destiny for diamonds was ending. Two events contributed. The first was the emergence of the wealthy industrial and mercantile princes. The second and most important was the discovery of diamonds in South Africa. An entirely new diamond aristocracy was in the making ... YOU!

Diamonds are formed within the earth by tremendous heat and pressure. The diamond bearing rock called Kimberlite, or "blue ground" is mined and sent to the surface where it is carefully crushed and washed to eliminate everything but the diamond concentrate. A conservative estimate says that of every 250 tons of ore, miners are lucky if they find a single diamond large enough to cut into a one carat gem. The load, of course, will yield smaller diamonds for industrial use.

When diamonds come from the earth some look like odd shaped pebbles, some resemble pieces of broken glass and some have a dull coating on the outside. To be beautiful they must be properly cut to attain a very high degree of "fire" or brilliance. Over the years, the brilliance of the diamond became symbolic of the fire of love . . . the flame that burns without consuming . . . the symbol of betrothal.

Rough diamonds are studied by experts to determine how the stone should be cut. The stone is marked with India ink to indicate where the stone should be cleaved or sawed

The diamond cutter must study a stone very carefully for inclusions (bubbles, specks, and tint lines) and decide how it can best be cut to yield the largest stone having the fewest inclusions with the least amount of waste. When a rough diamond is finished, an average of 50% of the original weight is lost in cutting.

Because it is less hazardous, more diamonds are sawed than cleaved or split. The saw used is a disk thinner than a sheet of paper, with diamond dust on the edge of the blade (only a diamond will cut a diamond). It takes one full day to saw through a one carat rough diamond that may yield two ¼ carat finished diamonds.

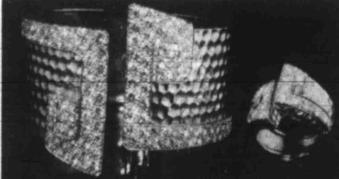

The next step is to put facets on the diamond to make it brilliant. This is done by placing the diamond against a steel turntable coated with diamond dust, and wearing the diamond down until each facet is exactly the right size, shape, and angle.

Very tiny diamonds called "single cuts" have 17 facets, or polished sides. The larger round diamonds are called "brilliant or full cuts" and have 58 facets. The fancy shaped stones including the marquise, pear, emerald cut, oval, and heart also have 58 facets.

Finished diamonds in all their beauty. They have completed their journey from the depths of the earth and are ready to be set into precious jewelry. From left: brilliant or round cut, pear, heart, emerald cut, oval and marquise.

There are many combinations of things that determine the value of a diamond. The most valuable diamond is one that is completely devoid of color and highly transparent with the possibility of a very slight blue tinge. The only exceptions are stones having a strong tint of blue, pink, green, or violet. Such stones are extremely rare and command a considerably higher price. The Hope Diamond is really blue, the Tiffany Diamond is yellow, and Queen Elizabeth has a pink diamond. Like all things created by nature, every diamond has minute imperfections. However, a diamond can be called flawless or perfect only if a trained diamond expert cannot find an imperfection in the stone when examining it under 10 power magnification.

The larger the stone, the greater its value, but only in comparison with other diamonds of similar quality. Diamonds are weighed by the carat, which is made up of 100 parts called points. It is interesting to note that 142 one carat diamonds weigh only one ordinary ounce.

SECT

Ardan knows diamonds, we're experts. We know, too, that you're looking for quality and value. Our diamond collection reflects these in depth . . it's almost overwhelming. Whatever style, whatever kind of jewelry you've been dreaming of, we want you to think of it as an investment . . . in beauty, in sentiment, in love, in honest-to-goodness value . . . the kind of value Ardan is known for.

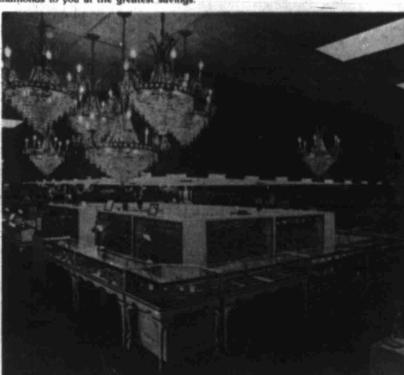

Answers To Frequent Diamond Questions

WHAT ARE THE FOUR "C's"? Color, clarity, cutting and carat weight are guides in

WHERE ARE DIAMONDS CUT? Prior to World War II, Antwerp, Belgium was considered the diamond center of the world. Today the greatest number of large diamonds are cut in New York City, and Israel is specializing in the cutting of small diamonds. DO DIAMONDS NEED SPECIAL CARE? Yes. They should be cleaned frequently in a detergent and ammonia bath or a liquid jewelry cleaner. The setting should be checked at least twice a year to be sure the diamonds are secure. (Ardan will be happy to check your diamonds and clean them free of charge.) When storing, wrap each piece separately . . . diamonds can even scratch each other.

WHO CONTROLS DIAMOND PRICES? The International Diamond Syndicate. This syndicate controls over 90% of the diamonds mined all over the world. They exercise world-wide control of diamond prices, therefore insuring the stability of the diamond market. Your investment in diamonds is well protected.

HOW CAN ARDAN SAVE YOU UP TO 50% ON YOUR DIAMOND SELECTION? Simple. First, we have multi-million dollar buying power and deal directly with one of America's largest diamond cutters. This diamond cutting firm, along with a handful of similar firms, receives a large shipment of uncut diamonds once a month from the International Diamond Syndicate. Second, we manufacture much of our jewelry in our own shop, and can, therefore, offer you a choice of unlimited styling plus savings. Contrast Ardans combined jewelry manufacturing and large buying power with the typical retail jeweler who buys diamonds from a ring manufacturer. The ring manufacturer makes a profit on the rings plus a profit on the diamonds they usually purchase from a diamond wholesaler. The diamond wholesaler, who makes a profit, often buys from the Diamond Exchange in New York. And naturally the Diamond Exchange, who buys from the cutters ... perhaps Ardan's own diamond cutter ... makes a profit. Ardan eliminates all the "middle men" and sells on a small profit margin to offer diamonds to you at the greatest savings.

Outstanding city nurses to be feted

The Texas Nurses Association has proclaimed today through Saturday as Texas Nurse Week. All registered nurses actively practicing their profession, as well as those on the inactive liat with a current license, are given recognition at this time.

It is appropriate this week to consider the many phases of medical care in which these dedicated professional men and women are involved. They include hospital staff, private duty, doctors office, schools, nursing homes, public health, Red Cross, mental health and mental retardation and teaching.

The registered nurse, in order to give quality nursing care to the patient, must continually attend in service programs and workshops to keep current with new medical procedures and techniques. This participation in these continuing education programs, in many instances, is done on their own time, resulting in additional time away from their families.

During Nurses Week, all hospital personnel from Midland Memorial Hospital and Parkview Hospital will vote on the Nurse of the Year at their respective institutions. The two individuals will be honored at a banquet to be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Ranchland Hill Country Club. The social hour will begin at 6:30.

Theme for the banquet will be "Autumn Season." The program will be musical melodies of the 1930s and other selections featuring Mrs. Jim Connine with her accompanist.

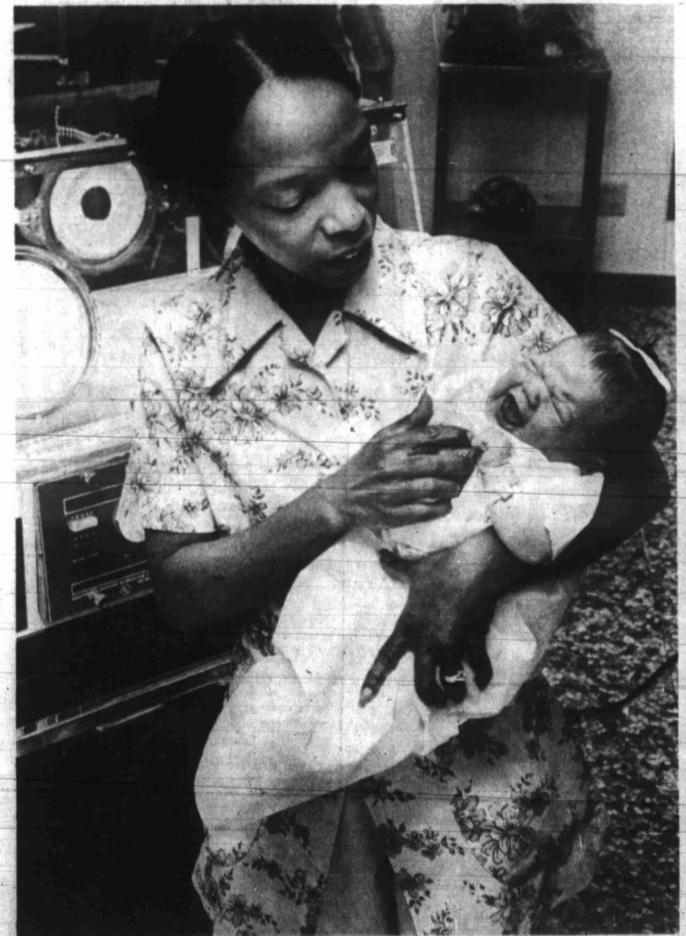

Invitations have been mailed and reservations should be made as soon as possible to aid in the planning of the banquet. Cancellations must be made before Wednesday to be relieved of the cost of the reservation.

Delores Waggoner, Alan Jackson wed of Mr. and Mrs. Euless Waggoner of Dimmitt, and Alan Wayne Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burl D. Jackson of 2313 Terrace St., were married in a double ring ceremony at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Gary Bodine of the Fort Worth and Jax Streets Church of Christ officiated for the ceremony in the North A and Tennessee Streets Church of Christ.

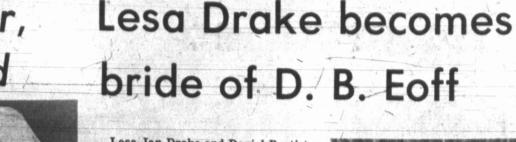

Anne Golding of Dallas was the maid of honor. Rita Tate of Lubbock was the bridesmaid, and Janet Pool of Groom and Andrea Waggoner of Roswell, N.M., sister-in-law of the bride, were bridesmatrons.

Kayla Pharis, niece of the bride, was the flower girl, and Gay Waggoner of Dimmitt, niece of the bride, and Paul Nunn, nephew of the bridegroom, were the ring bearers.

Jim Jackson of Houston was best man for his brother. Bob Wigley of Lubbock, Gary Lambert of Richardson and Tom Nunn Jr. were the groomsmen. Bill Jones of Midland and Larry Lambert of Lubbock were the ushers.

Clinton Davis directed singers in the wedding music.

Mr. Waggoner presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a traditional gown of candle-light silk organza and Venise lace. The fitted Empire bodice had a wedding ring neckline and Queen Ann sleeves finished with scallops of lace. The circular skirt ended in a chapel train. A matching Juliet lace cap held her Lesa Jan Drake and Daniel Burtist Eoff were married at 4 p.m. Saturday in Wilshire Park Baptist Church, with the Rev. John Riggs officiating for the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hall of 4413 Roosevelt St., and Mr. and Mrs. Milan K. Eoff of 116 S. Glenwood St.

The bride is a graduate of Lee High School and is a hairdresser with Northland Beauty Salon. The bridegroom was graduated from Eastwood High School in El Paso and is employed by Featherlite.

After a trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will reside at 506 W. Estes St.

Lori Thompson of Hobbs, N.M., was the matron of honor, and Gena Hall, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Linda Eoff, sister of the bridegroom, and Missy Peacock of DeSoto. Alanes Kimbrell, cousin of the bride, was bridesmatron. The flower girls were Julie Lambert of Midland and Cynthia Peacock of DeSoto.

Milan Eoff was best man for his brother. Sal Castillo of El Paso, Layne Drake, brother of the bride, Johnny Eoff of El Paso, brother of the bridegroom, and Sammy Vaughn of Lubbock, uncle of the bridegroom, were the groomsmen. Steven Winn, cousin of the bride, was the usher. The ring bearer was Jeff Lambert.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Janice Cates, organist, and Ronnie Warner, soloist.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza over peau de

Farrah's a Southern cook who caters to her man

By JOHNA BLINN Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES—"Now that I'm working, I cook only very simple things. I love to cook, and I miss doing the more complicated dishes Lee enjoys so much," actress Farrah Fawcett-Mejors said, nibbling on a chicken leg. She talked in her dressing room, a few feet from where the crew was shooting in Griffith Park for her new ABC-TV series, 'Charlie's Angels.'

"Sunday nights, I fix chicken or a roast, make a salad and cook some kind of vegetable, broccoli, for instance. I don't usually make sauces for my vegetables, not because they take more time, but because we've found we don't seem to want rich food

When her husband, "Six Million Dollar Man" Lee Majors, comes home to their Bel Air house, he's usualy in the mood for "sonething

"Now I understand why," Farrah said, flashing the dazzling snile that's made her a zillion dollars in TV commercials. Farrah's a Southern lady who likes to cater to her man. "I can't do all the little things I used to like to do, like seeing that fresh flowers are out or arranging the table." Now she delegates those chores to her housekeeper. "Lee always knows who's done the cooking, even from tasting the salad. The other night, I only had tine to toss the salad. After dinner, Lee said, 'You made the salad, right?' I can't tell the difference-it always tastes good to me if somebody else does the cooking!"
Farrah learned how to cook in Houston, where she was born and raised. "Basically, I'm a Southern cook. I love to make chicken-fried steak, baking powder biscuits and red-eye gravy. That's what Lee likes!" The delicious gravy, with an astronomical number of calories, is a favorite in Kentucky, where Lee grew Farrah's shooting schedule is a killer. She leaves home at five in the morning and rarely gets back before ten at night. "One Sunday morning I was exhausted, so Lee decided to fix breakfast for us. He asked me how to fix the gravy. I said, 'Take some ham drippings and flour and brown it together in a skillet and then stir in the milk.' He used chicken fat and didn't brown the gravy. We tried to eat it, but it was a mess! Anyway, he was really cute about it," Farrah said, laughing.

The Majors love to fish, and often spend getaway weekends in northern California or Arizona. "We get bass and catfish. I get to clean the fish, which I don't even mind- maybe because I've always been interested in biology." The blonde actress considered majoring in microbiology when she was at the University of Texas. "I liked cutting up frogs!"

Farrah and Lee don't go to many Hollywood parties. They entertain only very close friends, like actor Dick Van Patten and his wife, Pat. Farrah's a creative cook. "I only use a cookbook for certain types of cooking. I'm experimental when it comes to seasonings. For example, I don't particularly like nutmeg or cinnamon, so if a recipe calls for one of them, I'll substitute curry powder or oregano. Dinah Shore's cookbook, Someone's in the Kitchen with Dinah,' is my favorite. She's one of the world's greatest cooks—I par-ticularly like her Italian recipes. One night, she fixed sausages and peppers for us and they were delicious! She originally got the recipe from Frank Sinatra, who gave it to her while they were driving to the airport. It's the best thing! It can be an appetizer or a main dish. Take green peppers and saute them in clive oil, then cook the sausages and finish them in the oven with some red wine. I'm getting hungry just talking about it!" Watching Farrah munch on sun-

slab of carrot cake, one had to wonder why this elegantly slim creature wasn't wide as a barrel. "Oh, I never watch my weight. With the long hours I work, I burn it all off. I'm a garbage disposal," she said cheerfully. "I eat everything!"

Farrah was reared in the tradition of the deep South. "Southern women don't have jobs. My mother's never gone outside to work, and she's happy that way." Her mother's home orientation explains why Farrah is so fussy about her own house. The Majors live in a French Provincial place in Bel Air. "I like everything to be neat and organized, and I like everything at work and at home to be the same way. That's the biggest adjustment I've had to make-I find I can't manage to do both anymore. These days, I write notes to the housekeeper to tell the gardener what-Farrah's obviously not a feminist, En Amie Club but she's not against the women's movement either. "I wish there could be a happy medium. You can't do it all at once and say, 'You come home and help me with the washing and ironing so I can get my job done.' That would be a big jolt to a man. I'm not attracted to thet type of nan, anyway. I'n attracted to the old-world type. I might like to come home and see that Lee had done the dishes and put out the flowers, but I really enjoy doing those things myself. I try not to upset my husband when he comes home. I still do a lot of little things around the house myself, but I try to do them when he's not around to be aware of

The recipe with the long pedigree-Farrah's adaptation of Dinah Shore's version of Frank Sinatre's sausage and peppers dish-follows:

PARIS - It's as though Calvin Klein had said, as he took up his pencil to consider his latest collection. 'Enough, enough of these classic, man-tailored clothes already...

Not has exact words, of course, but it's certainly the spirit in which Klein and a lot of other Seventh Avenue designers - approached the resort and early spring collections this year. Suddenly the hard-tailored sportswear is gone in large measure from the Seventh Avenue collections.

In its place, not something wildly different, but something perhaps better. All through the new lines there is a softness, lots of feminine touches, so that the total look is far different from

Calvin Klein, a master of crisp, hard tailoring, happens to do these new clothes as well as or better than just about anyone else. His new clothes are in the best tradition of classic sportswear. Loose easy tops with traditional bottoms like dirndls, fly-front pants and even jeans skirts.

His handkerchief linens are to be worn over nothing or little - and wrinkled if that's the way they happen to be.

Vests have given way to unshaped weskits; man-tailored shirts are softened by a loose fit, a rounded collar, easy roll-up sleeves. The blazer's successor is an Eton-like unlined jacket with big patch pockets, full

A subtle but noteworthy change is in colors. Hues of the same colors blend into each other. In one outfit is a mix of eggshell, ivory, natural, off-white and beige, with the hues close, but never exact. There are almost as many shades of gray. For accent there is an occasional non-jolting navy or a chrome yellow or mango. Fabrics are all natural - linen, cashmere - and, naturally, expensive. The Klein collection hails, in the manner of the recent much-touted Yves Saint Laurent peasant fantasy collection, the passing of the mantailored suit for women and the re-entry of soft, feminine, looser clothing. Wearing mannish clothes jolted Georges Sand's generation in the min-19th century. But by the 1920s, men's suits worn by women, sometimes even with a tie, were endorsed by Chanel (who wore them herself). Poiret and others. What Klein has done, when you put it all together, is to build on his classics, make them new with the soft, loose and feminine tops. But not new enough to totally outdate what he has done before. A tucked-front nightshirty kind of top, even under a blazer freshens up last year's clothes. The same goes for a scallop-edged blouse over last year's belted trousers. "I'm for a woman who wants to buy clothes that she can wear forever, Klein says. "Collectible clothes that become part of her wardrobe. She's not a victim of fashion."..

Clothes for the younger set were shown, with Tyson's Apparel for Children providing the fashions. Cal's Man Shop furnished styles for the female's counterpart.

Mrs. Jerry Jordan, president of the junior association, introduced the guests' Mrs. Charles White of Odessa, president of Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, Western District; Mrs. Paul Kenworthy, also of Odessa, first vice president of the federation, and Mrs. Richard Story, sponsor of Junior Woman's Association and a member of the Twentieth Century Study Club.

Proceeds of the benefit will go to the Pediatrics Fund at Midland Memorial Hospital and a Midland College scholarship.

Genealogy discussed

Jack Fryar gave an historical program on the "Workings of Genealogy at a meeting of the Lt. William Brewer Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in the Midland Woman's Club.

As a background to his interest in genealogy, Fryar, chairman of the English department at Lee High School and past president of the Midland Genealogical Society, described it as a puzzle or disease wich does not seem to let go. He added that his own genealogy tracing began with a box of old family pictures found among his father's affects following his death.

Tracing his background, he discovered many of the values important to his family and has taken stock of his own values in turn. He urged his listeners to do something with their own family research

"Understand yourself, know who you are and learn what is important."

Dr. Dorothy Wyvell gave the national defense report, a review of "Sea Power of the State" by a Russian admiral. It has been called Mein Kampf of the Kremlin, Mein Kampf of the Kremlin, describing the military might of the Party fetes Soviet Navy. It seems Russia has reached nuclear parity with the United States, therefore under a bride-elect nuclear umbrella the Kremlin could launch their own plan to take over the world, said Dr. Wyvell. "This trend already is visible in the and Mike Harris was held Mediterranean, Suez Canal and even the Panama Canal, while the U.S. Navy is down to its smallest number of ships since before World War I."

New members were introduced. They are Mrs. John L. Peeler of Midland, and Mrs. Hal Price, Mrs. R. E. Shipp, Mrs. Benjamin A. Strickling Jr., all of Monahans.

Hostesses for the Tuesday meeting United Methodist Church. were Mrs. J. Norman Parker, Mrs. John Cross and Mrs. John A. Barbe.

Copley News Service LOS ANGELES - We communicate with others in Silently, we communicate with body language, and subconsciously, we communicate by what we wear. But perhaps the most vital way to communicate is with words. However, how we say something is as important as what we say.

Up to now, the art of successful communication has belonged primarily to men.

"In general, women today don't have the ability to present themselves in a businesslike or professional manner," says Bill Johns. "It comes as a result of a culture or society where women have been treated as second-class citizens." Women, he says, tend to compensate for a lack of problems at the same time, and records the inpresence or confidence by becoming overly terview aggressive. They may have a feeling of inferiority - not that they have an inadequacy of talent or lack of ability but they have not had the opportunity to express themselves as individuals - in or out of the business world," says Johns. For these inadequacies, he has developed the Bill Johns System of Dynamic Speech Development for

It combines the voice communication and positive personality projects, with the result of the dynamic development of a personality that women wish others to share and relate to.

He brings to his system 25 years of work in the fields of radio and television as news director, producer, commentator, news analyst and writer. He also has won two Emmy awards for his writing, narration and commentary.

His office in nearby Rolling Hills Estates is a completely equipped audio and video studio, in-

Doctors differ on how to calm hyperactive children

Eric Castillo was a maddening problem to his parents and teachers. He couldn't concentrate in school. wouldn't listen and constantly disrupted his kindergarten class. At his Torrance, Calif., home he repeatedly misbehaved. His mother's nerves were shot. Eric underwent a battery of tests. He was diagnosed as suffering from hyperkinesia - the hyperactive child syndrome. His doctor prescribed 20 daily milligrams of Ritalin. (Ritalin is a stimulant that has the reverse effect on children than on adults, calming them down rather than pepping them up.) Eric changed immediately. He became withdrawn, extremely lethargic and almost stopped talking entirely.

Maureen Castillo, Eric's mother, says he began hallucinating. Whenever he entered the bathroom he thought he saw spiders.

Castillo became worried and cut Eric's dosage in half. Eric reached the happy medium his parents and teachers hoped for. He was easier to get along with, happier and, most important, he was able to concentrate in class. His teacher noticed an immediate improvement and says Eric was able to learn for the first time. As a side effect from Ritalin, Eric still suffers from loss of appetite and becomes depressed when he is taken off the drug. But because of Eric's new success in the classroom and at home, his parents and teachers feel the benefits outweigh the detriments.

Are drugs necessary for hyperactive children? Are they being used to induce conformity rather than creativity in the classroom?

Dr. Jerome Lipin, assistant clinical professor of pediatrics at the University of Southern California and private practioner in Inglewood, says in selected cases, where the child has been thoroughly tested in a controlled situation, medication (usually Ritalin or Dexedrine) is extremely suc-

"I see better than an 85 per cent success rate with medication for the truly hyperactive child," he says. There is no scientific test, however, to diagnose hyperkinesia. "It is subjective deciding whether a child is hyperactive," Lipin admits. 'But you'll see a child who literally can't sit still and you know he's hyperactive. The experienced eye can

For many parents this is not good enough. They're apprehensive about giving their children drugs based on

Typically, the hyperactive child is overactive, restless and has a short attention span. They usually do poorly in school and disrupt the class.

The cause of the trouble - which afflicts about 4 per cent of schoolchildren - isn't known. Many neurologists and psychologists believe hyperkinesia involves failure of parts of the central nervous system to mature.

Because the definition of hyperactivity is so ambiguous, abuses occur when drugs are administered.

"Parents get medication from doctors who don't follow children closely. Some even diagnose and prescribe medication over the phone," Lipin says.

"Sometimes the medication is prescribed for the parents so they can cope easier.

Karen Visel became worried when her son, Scott, couldn't speak at age 2. Scott underwent a number of tests and it was determined he had poor coordination and was hyperactive. When he was 3, Ritalin was prescribed for him. Visel, who lives in Torrance, noticed little change, and the dose was doubled.

"He became real nervous." she says. "He kept pinching himself and couldn't put his hands down. "His attention span became worse and he was moving all the time so you couldn't work with him.' A year ago, Visel heard about the possible link between poor nutrition and hyperactivity. She took Scott off artificial colorings, flavorings, preservatives and sugar. "He's a totally different child now," Visel says. "He's happier, doing better in school and easier to get along with. He's less impulsive and his attention span is better. He's improved in so many ways since his

Because artificial flavorings and colorings have been shown to cause a wide variety of allergic reactions, Dr. Ben Feingold of the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center in San Francisco, decided to test the possibility that the substances also might be responsible for some cases of hyperkinesia. He claims dramatic improvements in patients following

After a few weeks of dietary control, he says the majority of his patients were able to settle down enough to perform better in school and behave at home.

Any infraction of the diet led almost immediately - within a few hours to a return of the hyperkinetic behavior.

"We can turn these kids on and off at will," Feingold says, "just by regulation of their diet."

Skin conditioning calls for four daily rituals: stimulation, lubrication and protection. Discuss with the cosmetician the cleanser best for your particular skin and condition. The suggestion might be for a liquefying cleanser' an emulsified cleansing cream or possibly a friction cleanser.

Periodically, a pore-deep cleansing such as a steam facial or beauty clay mask is beneficial.

Stimulation of the skin can be achieved with a patting and gentle massage using good quality witch hazel. Avoid strong astringents which can add to the drying.

Lubrication replenishes the oils and moisture lost due to adverse weather conditions, Emollients work below the surface of the skin reaching the sebaceous or oil glands which supply

Lubricants soften the skin and supply needed hormones and vitamins. They come as creams, semi-liquids or liquids. Here again, consult the professional cosmetician as to the best type for you.

Starter kits for roommates

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) -In an effort to increase compatibility between new roommates, Pennsylvania State University has come up with a "Roommate Starter Kit." It offers a way to help avoid conflicts over just about everything from blasting radios to visitors and religious beliefs.

The basic idea of the kit is to let the newly-paired roommates learn more about each other's habits and attitudes before it's too late.

Information exchange specified in the kit includes matters such as: "How much sleep I need and when I'd like to get it"; "How I feel about drugs and drinking," and "Times when I would really prefer to be left

FEC checking McCarthy funding

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Whatever political satisfactions Eugene J. Mc-Carthy's campaign for the presidency may have provided the candidate, it has left him in a potentially costly financial bind.

The Federal Election Commission has served notice that it is reviewing the accounting treatment given McCarthy's speaking fees during the campaign, according to an attorney for the McCarthy organization.

In a letter the FEC said that the speech stipends, totaling about $10,000, that went into his campaign from university groups had to be reported as personal income. The consequence of this, the attorney said, would be that the former Minnesota Democratic senator "would be hit with a bundle for taxes."

If McCarthy did not take the fees as personal income, the FEC letter held, the commission would initiate an inquiry to determine if state university funds were involved. This would be a violation of the election laws, which prohibit state organizations from contributing to a federal campaign, the McCarthy lawyer said.

No FEC response was available
Friday when a reporter called for con-

McCarthy's campaign may have proven a better political than financial gamble in another respect.

Last September the independent candidate for the presidency asked his volunteer lawyers to submit bills for their services in getting him on various state ballots and added to that a list of "debts" owed Washington staff members and regional volunteers.

Under the new election law, federal money would have been available for any outstanding debts on election day if McCarthy had drawn 5 per cent of

And so "debts" of more than $100,000 were listed in the books of McCarthy's campaign and reported to the FEC in early October. It was understood, however, that payment was contingent on McCarthy's reaching the magic 5 per cent share of the vote.

Jerry Eller, the former senator's administrative assistant, was carried as a $12,000 creditor of the McCarthy campaign as a "management consultant."

Eller spoke openly of the bookkeeping curiosity in the campaign: "I asked them to see how much Scoop (Washington Sen. Henry M. Jackson) paid his staff. They got the most money. We wanted to put something down near to it."

In describing the "phony staff debt" listed for the McCarthy campaign workers, Eller stressed that "these were people who worked hard the whole campaign. If we had gotten to 5 per cent it would have been nice if they could be paid."

McCarthy got about 1 per cent of the total vote.

McCarthy himself is listed as a $55,000 creditor of his own campaign — a sum that Eller said was "not phony." Campaign records show that beginning last April, McCarthy was infusing his own money into the cam-

Asked how McCarthy planned to pay off the new potential liabilities, Eller said he didn't know. "I can't even think of 10 people to invite to a fund-raiser," said the manager of McCarthy's independent campaign against President Ford and Jimmy Campaign money poured into the Utah Senate race when it became clear in its closing days that the reelection of Democrat Sen. Frank E. Moss was in doubt.

Moss' conservative Republican rival, Oren Hatch, received almost half the $224,000 he spent on the entire campaign in a burst of last minute largesse during the three weeks before election day.

Two weeks before the election the Republican National Committee sent $20,000. The Republican Boosters, another party-affiliated committee, sent $5,000, and Hatch added another $5,000.

The auto and truck dealers political action committee sent $5,000; a conservative group, the Committee for Survival of a Free Congress, sent $6,000, and a real estate industry group added $3,000.

and Mrs. Richard Scaife — Mellon family heirs from Pittsburgh — sent $2,000.

Moss had fewer late sources but

Three days before the election, Mr.

His late money came primarily from unions. The steelworkers sent $5,000; the seafarers $2,500, the meat cutters $1,000 and the clothing workers $2,000 — all within 10 days of the election.

The Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, however, could only come up with $2,500 at that late

Four days before the election, the Republican National Committee filed a report showing more than $100,000 in large, last-minute contributions.

Minnesota food tycoon Jeno F. Paulucci gave $10,000; the honorary chairman of Texas Instruments, J. Erik Jonsson, and his wife gave $19,999; Washington parking magnate Kingdon Gould Jr., former U.S. ambassador to The Netherlands, gave $10,000, with his wife chipping in $5,000 more.

Under the federal election law, it may be January before it is known what the committee did with those contributions and others totaling about $3 million that came in the mid-October Salute to the President fundraising dinner.

H.J. Deutschendorf of Aspen, Colo., was reported as a last minute contributor of $1,000 to a couple of congressional candidates.

Rep. Tom Downey (D-N.Y.), the 27-year-old freshman who faced a tough re-election fight, reported he got $1,000 from Deutschendorf on Oct. 29. Downey won.

NRC assures dissent rights

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has issued an unprecedented series of orders to insure that allegations by commission employees of safety problems at nuclear power plants will be considered.

The action, taken in three different memoranda, comes shortly after two congressional committees began investigating charges by several NRC scientists and engineers that their warnings about nuclear-safety problems were being ignored by their superiors.

The commission employees say that the most serious of the safety problems, which are highly technical in nature, could lead to equipment failure at nuclear plants and the possible release of lethal radioactivity into the environment.

Some of the problems involved, the scientists and engineers say, involve possible metal fracture under a combination of high pressure and low temperature, electrical-system failure, fire protection and safety-systems failures. The latter would entail a breakdown in coordination among the large number and variety of separate but supposedly integrated systems designed to insure nuclear plant safety in case of human or mechanical error.

The investigation also includes fears of those leveling the charges that they would be black listed by both the NRC and the nuclear industry if they were identified

Several NRC employees told The Washington Post that some of their safety concerns were ignored, that they were pressured to change their evaluations and that in some cases they were pulled off a particular job and-or transferred to another section.

Most said their jobs require them to evaluate designs for nuclear power plants and components submitted by electric utility companies applying for licenses to build and operate nuclear plants.

A Nov. 2 memo signed by NRC chairman Marcus A. Rowden stated in part: "The Commission is intent that there be no misunderstanding our committment to these basic principles — that staff be able and expected to make known their best professional judgment, whether or not it corresponds with the views of other staff or management; and that this can be done with the assurance of no recrimination or retribution."

Many of the commission employees' safety concerns were contained in a still-secret report about some of the NRC employees prepared at commission order by the agency's internal security division order by the agency's internal security division.

Other charges were made in confidential interviews with The Washington Post.

Most of the charges have also been made to the staff of the Senate Committee on Government Operations, which has begun an investigation and will hold hearings Dec. 14, a staff spokesperson said.

The congressional Joint Committee on Atomic Energy also is investigating the charges and has received the secret report, as it is entitled to do under law, NRC chairman Rowden said.

Pickle packer pushing trade

DENVER (AP) — Bill Moore travels with a fivefoot plastic pickle and wears lapel pins proclaiming "Pickle Power" in his lonely drive to solve what he sees as the image problems of pickle packers.

"If I'm on an airplane, and somebody asks me what I do, and I tell them 'I'm a pickle packer,' they dissolve," said Moore. "It's as bad as saying you're in the underwear industry."

Moore is executive vice president of Pickle Packers International, an industry association. Despite the stares and chuckles, Moore said being a pickler has another side.

"We are trying to inject more humor into life," Moore said, adding that politicians could take a lesson from members of his trade.

President Ford and Jimmy Carter heard from the picklers before Tuesday's election, Moore said.

Moore said the PPI, which held its convention here

Moore said the PPI, which held its convention here last week, sent five-foot plastic pickles to both Carter and Ford. The message, said Moore: "How Do You Propose to Get the Country out of this Pickle?"

While hardly wild-eyed political activists, the picklers came up with a political solution. PPI recommended formation of the Picklers Planetary Unity party.

Moore said the party's platform contains a plank calling for a union of the United States, the Soviet Union and China. Called the "Union of Socialistic-Capitalistic Republics," the group would be "the ultimate solution to war," Moore said.
