Carter considering tax cut as Democrats urge caution

WASHINGTON (AP) - As President-elect Jimmy Carter considers whether to propose a new tax cut in January, key congressional Democrats say it's too early to tell if one will be needed and warn they will approach any proposal cautiously.

Carter said last week that if the economy does not begin improving by January, there is a "strong possibility" that he would ask for a tax cut to stimulate it.

But Congress' chief taxwriter, House Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, said Tuesday that Congress should approach any such proposal "with great caution."

"We would be deceiving the American people if they were led to believe they would be getting major tax deduction," Ullman said at a news conference in Colorado Springs, Colo.

In more detailed remarks released through his Washington office, the Oregon Democrat said it is too early to determine whether an additional tax cut on top of the $19 billion tax cutalready approved by Congress would be appropriate.

'We should approach an additional tax cut with great caution and should evaluate carefully all of the alternatives," he said.

Ullman said anti-recession job programs and incentives for investments in high unemployment areas "would be more effective in dealing with the problem."

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn... candidate for chairman of the House Budget Committee, said he believes neither Carter nor Congress would approve another tax cut unless the economy gets worse.

Carter said last Thursday that a tax cut "could be a strong possibility if there is no change in the rate of growth of the economy and if economic indicators should show a negative aspect."

But while putting dampers on Carter's talk of a new tax cut, both Ullman and Giaimo said they and other Democratic leaders and the President-elect will work out agreements on such issues.

Ullman said he expects to stay in close touch with Carter's aides and "I'm confident we'll be in full agreement on the issue in January."

He said in Colorado Springs that he has found Carter's staff people in talks so far to be "responsible people with their feet on the ground...I think we can develop some measures that are responsible and workable."

Ullman said he expects Carter's major recommendations to Congress will include national health insurance, social security financing and welfare reform, but "the key will be to phase them in over a period of time

Board seeks integration support

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

The Midland school board Tuesday called for the creation of a community-based organization to work toward smooth implementation of the elementary school desegregation

Specifically, the board voted to write letters to the Midland Chamber Council and Action Line-Fish inviting them and any other interested community group to participate in the formation of an alliance to work toward smooth transition.

"We would like to see the organization carry the ball so the school district goes about its administrative business in implementing the desegregation plan," school board president Joe Dominey

"It can make our job easier and at the same time involve those people who are interested," trustee David Grimes, who introduced the motion,

Church makes request

St. Ann's Catholic Church wants N Street between Texas and Illinois

Gene Abbott, spokesman for the church, made the request to the Midland City Council Tuesday.

A public hearing on the proposed closing will be held at 2 p.m. Jan. 11, 1977, during a regular council

Abbott said several church members became concerned with the safety of children attending St. Ann's school when the city council removed the traffic signals at N and Texas streets and at N and Illinois streets.

He said he and other represenmember of the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation and several city staff members. From that meeting, Abbott said, the St. Ann's representatives decided that one of the best solutions to the situation would be for the city to close a portion of N Street.

Abbott said the request includes extending the parking lot at St. Ann's westward, plus extending the school's playground and fencing it.

City Manager James Brown told the council the street could not be exist there which occasionally must Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. expressed concern that the city has received no citizen input on the request and suggested the public airng for more information.

The meeting will be held during a regular council session in the council chamber at city hall.

Reactor danger reported

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A major nuclear accident in the Soviet Union involved a reactor that went out of control and not exploding atomic wastes as an exiled Russian scientist said last week, the Los Angeles Times reports.

The Times quoted two unidentified and separate American intelligence sources in its Wednesday editions.

It said the accident happened in late 1957 or early 1958 and involved a plutonium production reactor at a nuclear weapons complex several hundred miles northeast of the Caspian Sea near the southernmost

Ural Mountains. The Times said the reactor technology involved in the Soviet accident is only distantly related to current power plants and thus any relevance to present day safety is

City council listens to plan for golf course upgrading

Preliminary plans for a proposed 18 additional holes and clubhouse facility for Hogan Park Golf Course were presented to the Midland City Council Tuesday, but no action was taken on the matter.

Leon Howard of Parks and Recreation Planning Associates Inc. of Austin presented the plans for the extra 18-hole golf course. He said the estimated costs of the project could be met by the city in the proposed bond issue for parks improvements.

The nine additional holes to the north of the proposed clubhouse, the clubhouse facility and the nine holes to the south would cost about $1,135,000, Howard told the council. However, if the city decided to construct nine holes now and phase in the remaining nine holes later, the construction cost would be $764,000.

The proposed clubhouse facility would cost about $291,000, Howard said. Its plans, explained to council by Jose Gill of the parks planning firm, would include a pro shop, sales area, grill kitchen, meeting room, restrooms, pro manager's office, storage area and men's and women's lockers.

Gill said the facility would be constructed from materials which would provide insulation from heat in summer and from cold in winter. He said skylights would be included over the proposed dining room area, and solar energy windows also could be

Hogan Park golf pro Rex Worrell told the council the 18 additional holes "would be nice, but the phased-in plan would be more practical."

Council also agreed to advertise for bids for the reconstruction of Golf Course Road and the installation of a storm sewer there.

The proposed improvements were authorized by voters in last year's bond election for street improvements. The storm sewer would extend from Scharbauer Drive to Midkiff Road, south on Midkiff Road to its intersection with Andrews Highway, and then further south to its intersection with Cuthbert Street.

Secret cure for most dreaded diseases is early knowledge

One of my favorite people in all the world is a little gal named Savannah Ruth Caperton Belcher, who stood hand-in-hand with my sister Wanda outside my grandmother's house in Bronte on Easter Sunday 44 years ago and waited for me and my twin brother to be born.

And, since "Vannie Ruth" is the regional coordinator of the Arthritis Foundation for some 30 counties in Oestexas and since I'd try to go to the moon if she asked me to, it should be no surprise that I ended up visiting with her and the guest speaker at last weekend's Arthritis conference at Midland's Rodeway

But the visitor turned out to be a doll too: Cece Caldwell, 29, of New York, who has had knuckles, elbows, knees, and wrists replaced in 18 years of fighting a particularly deleterious childhood form of the nation's most crippling disease but remains fully as ebullient, witty, and concerned for other people as her friend Savannah - and that may be a world's record.

In fact, we spent a lot of Cece's precious time discussing an elbow that has been bothering me for several months and exacting a promise that I will see one of this area's few "rheumatologists" before it gets to be a real problem.

In fact, that turns out to be good advice for everyone of any age who discovers an unusual pain or swelling around a joint, since early diagnosis and control are the most important factors in treating this admittedly mysterious ailment that has been with us since Biblical times but about which we still know painfully little.

And it is neither a "minor" nor an inevitable condition, since it costs this nation some $13 billion a year in treatment, loss of income, and insurance payments (including $485.5 nillion a year paid out for what the Arthritis Foundation people consider "quack" products), and since many people of very advanced age don't encounter the suffering and crippling erroneously attributed exclusively to aging. (A quarter of a million children in the United States suffer from juvenile forms similar to that which has cost Cece Caldwell so many years around operating tables.)

It is true that the major treatment these days is surgical, but most of the funds raised in annual drives go for research into the causes and potential forms of treatment of the disease that touches some 125,000 Oestexans this

(And I learned, in a year of volunteer work with the American Cancer Society, that ignorance is also the greatest friend of that pervasive and dreaded disease that is yielding on many fronts to study and enlightened treatment.) Be good to your body. Have regular checks-up and talk to somebody who knows about unusual physical con-

Garrison resigns post

ODESSA - The manager of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce, Gene Garrison, submitted his resignation Tuesday in order accept a job in private business.

Chamber president since 1974, Garrison came under fire early this year when the Odessa city council ordered an audit of two tax-funded chamber departments which have since been dismatled.

At a press conference held Tuesday morning, Garrison said he plans to become vice president in charge of marketing operations with Pinkie's Inc., of Odessa

"In regard to timing, it never appears to work out perfectly. New opportunities and getting-off places have never seemed to be properly coordinated.

Garrison, 50, said the new job was an opportunity, "I cannot, in all fairness to myself, pass up.'

At one point during the tax audit, councilmen indicated their concern centered on Garrison rather than the entire chamber and the withheld city money due the chamber - amounting to $181,000 last year. Some council members indicated the chamber would get no more city money so long as Garrison stayed on.

A selection committee to choose a new chamber president includes board chairman Bill Pettit, Bill Edwards, Bill Elms, Lyle DeBolt and Kenneth Jumper.

Garrison was a prominent civic leader and heavy wielder of political influence throughout his association with the chamber which began in 1968. He also worked to get The University of Texas of The Permian Basin located in Odessa.

African blacks pushing sanctions UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) -

Africa's black nations plan another drive to get Security Council approval of economic and military sanctions against South Africa.

The expected move follows the General Assembly's adoption of 10 resolutions denouncing the whiteminority regime and its apartheid

The demands for sanctions will probably be blocked by Western vetoes, as previous ones have been. But the council debate will put the spotlight once more on the United States, Britain, France and other Western nations that support and trade with South Africa's white-minority regime. No date for a council session on South Africa has been scheduled, but the meeting is expected soon.

In addition to the demand for a mandatory arms embargo that has been vetoed frequently, there will be a proposal by Sweden for a ban on new investments in South Africa. The General Assembly endorsed it Tuesday by a vote of 124-0 with 16 abstentions.

The assembly voted its package of antiapartheid resolutions after two weeks of speeches by more than 100 members attacking Prime Minister John Vorster's government. One resolution, adopted 108-11 with 22 abstentions, affirmed the right of black Africans to struggle "by all possible means for the seizure of power." The U.S. delegate, the Rev. Robert P. Hupp of Boys Town, Neb. objected to it as "tantamount to a call for an uprising in South Africa which would in effect be a racial bloodbath.'

Other resolutions condemned Israel as a "collaborator" of the South African regime (adopted 91-20 with 28 abstentions); named the United States, Israel, West Germany. France

Midland school board reschedules goals meetings for community

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Midland school trustees Tuesday rescheduled a series of community meetings designed to find out what goals school patrons would like to see adopted by the district.

The five meetings, to be held in five geographical areas of the city, will be the first step in the development of wide-ranging goals for the school district.

The meetings were originally set for this week and next.

Two meetings have been scheduled for Nov. 23 at 7 p.m. One will be at Houston Elementary School for Houston, Bowie, Lamar and West elementary school attendance zones. The second will be at Crockett Elementary School for Crockett, Milam, Pease and De Zavala elementary school attendance zones.

A meeting at Fannin Elementary School for Fannin, Emerson and Rusk elementary school attendance zones will be held Nov. 30 at 7 p.m.

Two other meetings are scheduled Dec. 2 at 7 p.m. One will be at Long Elementary School for the Long, Bonham, Jones, Henderson and Burnet attendance areas and the other will be at South Elementary School for the South, Washington and Travis school areas.

All meetings will be open to the public.

At the suggestion of trustee David Grimes, the board members drew lots to determine which members would attend each meeting.

Grimes, Don Sparks and Johnny Warren will attend the meeting at Houston, with Warren serving as moderator. Trustees Ed Runyan, James Ramsoure and Ann Page will attend the meeting at Crockett, with Runyan serving as moderator.

Grimes, Ramsoure and Warren, with Grimes moderating, will be the trustees at the Fannin meeting. Trustees attending the Long meeting will be Mrs. Page, Sparks, who will preside, and Warren. School board president Joe Dominey and Runyan will attend the meeting at South where Dominey will preside.

Schools superintendent Dr. James H. Mailey said members of the administrative staff also will be present at the meetings to assist the board members.

The board also voted to amend school district policy regarding meetings of the trustees as the committee of the whole, meetings at which no official action is to be taken.

The added portion of the policy provides that when it is "deemed desirable" for any member of the board to be present at a meeting between the superintendent and-or members of the administrative staff and the school district attorney or representatives of state or federal agencies, all members shall be notified of the meeting of the whole.

"What we're really saying is if a board member is involved, all of them (trustees) should have the opportunity to attend," Dominey said after the meeting.

He said Mailey will make the decision as to whether or not board participation is needed. These situations occur rarely, Dominey said.

As a practical matter, "it'll cut down on the number of instances in which the board president or another board member will sit in on informational meetings," Dominey

The board, meeting as the committee of the whole, also is due to meet with the Teachers Communication Committee for an informal dinner meeting Nov. 15. The trustees also heard a report from Dr. Robert Carter, coordinator of social studies and foreign language, on elementary and secondary social studies programs.

Another report was on attendance at the Oct. 22 game between Midland High School and San Angelo High School. Attendance totaled 3,090 persons with total receipts of $5,011.75.

In other action, the trustees approved a request for use of Lee High School's auditorium by several church groups.

Ex-POW recounts 'Red' threat for Petroleum Institute members

By ED TODD

America's very survival as a free nation is being threatened daily by the communist force from the "outside" and by complacency from "within" the nation itself. Air Force Lt. Col. Arthur Burer told members of the American Petroleum Institute here Tuesday night. To counteract those destructive forces, Burer recommended the strengthening of the nation's air defense and a change in attitude among the American people. Burer said both the nation's military might and its oil industry. represented by the API membership, are bound by a common ideal:

"I believe that we share a common bond: the continuation and perpetuation of an experiment in democracy that has never been paralleled on this earth before."

Burer, commander of the 83rd Flying Training Squadron at Webb Air Force Base at Big Spring, for almost seven years was a prisoner of war (POW) in North Vietnam. He was captured after his airplane was shot down by enemy ground fire in 1966. Burer cited his first-hand experience with communism. "It's both a political and a military threat,' ' he said. And the communists' ultimate goal, he continued, is domination of the free world.

The communist ideology calls for the destruction of the United States. "Our military is clamoring right now that the Russian (communistic) threat is realistic," he said.

And that threat can be reckoned with through the nation's bolstering of its intercontinental ballistic missile system, through a new fleet of the Rockwell International B-1 bombers, force," he said. "They are deterred by strength, not by weakness." Burer said Another source of America's strength, outside of military hardware, is in the attitudes of its people. he said "It (patriotism) is a drum that needs to be beaten but not so loudly that it drowns out the rest of the band," he said. Burer said he perceives a general loss of esprit de corps in America The "basic" problem with America today is "one of attitude, an attitude that could foster complacency or. even worse, permissivism. Burer characterized the syndrome as "the good-life complacency.

"We are a nation of haves in a world of have-nots," he said. Among those "haves" are these intangibles: "true liberty and justice for everyone," he said. The nation is well-endowed materially

We have an economic system that the whole world envies," he said.

Nevertheless, he said, the people of this nation are falling victim to their own wiles and pleasures.

"If it feels good, do it," seems to be the lifestyle of many, he said Reflecting that is the decline of both the family unit and the church, the wholesale use of drugs and the "loss in the will to fight communism." "Our attitudes must be reversed in this country," he said. "We, the silent majority, can no longer be quiet.

Thank you, Mr. Ford

President Gerald Ford, who will relinquish his White House residency in January, as a result of a close decision on the part of the nation's voters last week, truly is a great American.

As such, and for the tremendous role he has had in reuniting the nation, Gerald Ford merits a sincere, nationwide expression of appreciation for long, faithful, dedicated service to his country as a member of Congress, as Vice President and as President of the United States.

His overall service through the years has been noteworthy, but it has been his efficient, effective and distinguished performance as Chief Executive during his two years in the White House for which the nation is most grateful.

Please think back, if you will, to that August day in 1974 when Gerald Ford, an appointive vice president, assumed the presidency. An atmosphere of gloom prevailed nationwide. Citizens, many of whom had lost confidence in their government, were groping for stability.

It was into this not too pretty scene that Gerald Ford stepped...and it was fortunate for the United States that he was available for the assignment. He was made to order for the situation at hand — the President that America needed, as events and occurrences have proved.

Do you remember what Mr. Ford said in his inaugural address?

"My fellow Americans," he said, "our long national nightmare is over. Our Constitution works. Our great Republic is a government of laws and not of men. Here, the people rule...As we bind up the internal wounds of Watergate, more painful and more poisonous than those of foreign wars, let us restore the Golden Rule to our political process. And let brotherly love purge our hearts of suspicion and hate."

Yes, this was exactly what Americans needed to hear — and they accepted the plea and the new President as a man of honor. utmost honesty and integrity.

His greatest achievement now and always.

perhaps in the days following was the restoration of respect for the presidency of the United States. Renewed faith in government followed, and the nation was on its way toward resuming its rightful place of respect and greatness at home and abroad.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, in declaring his utmost respect for the President, said, "Most Americans, regardless of political party, fully appreciate his faithful service in Congress and the White House. He has made his mark in American history and deserves our appreciation.'

We believe that this expresses the true feeling of most Americans toward President Ford and his achievements.

The President's many other accomplishments in affairs of government at home and abroad, in addition to those stemming from his personal honor, are well known to most Americans. Few presidents have had as many noteworthy achievements credited to them in such a brief period of time.

Just what the future holds for Gerald Ford is unknown, of course, but his fellow countrymen wish him well, regardless.

A West Frankfort, Ill., newspaper editor, Robert Ellis, editorially has urged Mr. Ford to seek re-election to the House of Representatives. This is not a bad idea at all.

"The respect and affection that the American people have for President Ford were made perfectly clear by the closeness of the vete Nov. 2," Ellis wrote.

He continued by saying that the patriotism, dedication and ability as displayed by President Ford during the early, difficult times of his administration need not be lost to the American public.

"There is a way Ford can continue to serve our nation," Ellis said, "and any encouragement we can give him could be a contributing factor in his decision.

Meanwhile, we join with millions of Americans in a snappy salute of appreciation and well wishes to President Gerald Ford

WASHINGTON MERRY — GO — ROUND

Diplomats 'out' in the cold

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON - During his eight years as the maitre d' of U.S. foreign policy, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has kept his diplomats out in the cold. Some of them have been complaining bitterly.

Confiding in only a few close advisers, Kissinger has navigated the diplomatic seas largely on his own. He has utilized information from our far-flung embassies to chart the course, but he has seldom let them know where he's going. He has also been rough on those who have dared to object to the direction he has taken.

There's Martin J. Hillenbrand, for example. He's a career diplomat, a 37-year veteran, who was the U.S. ambassador to West Germany until last month. He made the mistake of criticizing Kissinger's style.

In one of his last confidential dispatches to the State Dept., he complained: "The Foreign Service is in a state of intellectual disorientation, because many of its members no longer have a clear idea of the role it should or can play.

"Certainly, the resources of this Embassy have not been fully enlisted, nor has the flow of information from Washington to Bonn...been working satisfactorily. Persistent use of independent lines of communication to and from Washington about which we only learn later, frequently from the German side, can only reduce the effectiveness of an Embassy.'

Similar complaints have been raised, according to our sources, by our diplomats in Russia and Israel.

Kissinger frequently bypasses the embassies in Moscow and Tel Aviv. He deals directly with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin and sources, of "constant complaining." disgruntled diplomats have been

Another who expressed his dissident views in writing, James Akins, the respected former ambassador to Saudi Arabia, didn't last long. He sent repeated reports to the State Dept. that the Saudis were unhappy over the favoritism the United States was showing the shah of

It happened to be Kissinger's policy to flatter and favor the shah. Kissinger was displeased, therefore, with the criticism coming from his ambassador in Jidda. So Akins, like Hillenbrand after him, was fired

"I've pressed for reasons," wrote Akins afterward in a private letter, "and have been told only that Kissinger dislikes me and that certain aspects of my reporting have 'annoved' him. There has been no suggestion that anything I have written is wrong or that any analysis is faulty - just that my reporting

Stuart Nash Scott, once the ambassador to Lisbon, was sacked because he disagreed with Kissinger's mistaken idea that a Communist takeover of Portugal was inevitable following the 1974 coup. The secretary was convinced that Portugal's new military leaders were crypto-Communists.

From Lisbon, Ambassador Scott warned this idea could become "the greatest self-fulfilling prophecy in history," and he urged Kissinger to extend economic assistance to the new government. Scott was right; Kissinger was wrong. But Scott was fired for his dissent.

What makes the firings all the more galling is the tolerance Kissinger has shown for the Foreign Service's foul balls. For example, the performance of Turner Shelton, former ambassador to Nicaragua, was so poor that he was rebuked and recalled by the State Dept.

But at the top level, Kissinger tried to push Shelton off alternately on the Bahamas, Bermuda and Morocco. But those governments, having learned of Shelton's reputation, objected. So he was finally assigned as diplomat in residence" at the Navy War College in Newport, R.I., where his principal duty is to make occasional talks to military classes on foreign affairs.

Another example: Ambassador Graham Martin remained in Saigon for years, defending the discredited Thieu regime and railing against anyone who dared criticize the South Vietnamese government. On one occasion, he even accused intelligence analysts at the State Dept. of "doing Hanoi's job for them."

Kissinger, nevertheless, kept him on the job. After Vietnam fell, Kissinger gave him the title of "special assistant to the secretary." Now Martin has been nominated to be an ambassador-at-large for Micronesian affairs.

The shah, along with other leaders such as King Khalid of Saudi Arabia, is eager to increase the influence of the United States and decrease Soviet power in the gulf sheikhdoms and nations.

It is difficult to be strong everywhere simultaneously. This points to the wisdom of having key countries in vital areas of the world which are friendly to us and close allies.

We would have been better advised to have strengthened Japan, West Germany and Iran rather than trying to make friends and spend considerable sums of money on nations such as Laos, Afghanistan and some of the poor and more backward countries in Africa

The latter really cannot do very much to help for years to come. The burden of propping them up and providing their military cover is something with which the Russians or the Red Chinese should struggle.

Ronald Reagan's 1980 trumpet heard in White House Sen. Eastland, who had broken his

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Suspicions that Ronald Reagan is considering another presidential run in 1980 were heightened inside the White House by secret contacts between President Ford and the man he barely beat in Kansas City. Most important was Reagan's telephone call to Ford campaign chairman James Baker, shortly before the election. Infuriated by reports he was deliberately muting his support for Mr. Ford, Reagan demanded to know whether Baker was the source, as reported in a network news program. Baker fingered one of his aides, Norman C. (Skip) Watts Jr., as the culprit and promised Watts would not repeat his Reagan feared, with good reason, that the White House was setting him up for the role of villain, whether Mr. Ford won or lost. If he won, the word would be: we did it without Reagan. If he lost: it was all Reagan's fault.

Reagan intimates justify his refusal to make a late October trip into Dixie on this ground: if Reagan had gone South and California had gone Democratic, Reagan would have been blamed.

Before his call to Baker, Reagan had telephoned Gerald Ford himself alarmed over statements from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and speeches by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller suggesting a softening position on strategic arms talks, Korea and Taiwan, Reagan threatened to stop campaigning if Mr. Ford departed from the conservative 1976 platform.

The President satisfied Reagan with "full assurances" on all points.

In the campaign's last days, Reagan regularly mentioned Mr. Ford's name; earlier, he barely managed to ARMS FOR PANAMA

Although armed clashes between U.S. and Panamanian forces are possible if the Canal Zone crisis deepens, the State Department is routinely approving sale of U.S. military hardware to Gen. Omar Torrijos's Panamanian dictatorship.

Four late model armored cars, bristling with machine guns, were surreptitiously unloaded in Panama last month for delivery to Panama's national guard (combination national police force and army). Twelve more such vehicles will follow. Not a single one could have been purchased had not the State Department quietly approved the sale, an action apparently resulting from bureaucratic stupidity unusual even in the State Department.

Considering Torrijos's threat of force, which overlays U.S.-Panamanian negotiations on the canal, dispatching weapons is not only stupid but dangerous. What's more, Canal Zone employes who live in the Republic of Panama grumble about harassment and provocations

According to U.S. officials, the Torrijos government arranged to purchase armored vehicles commercially from the Cadillac Gage Co., of Warren, Mich., after being turned down for U.S. military aid. Cadillac Gage applied for an export license June 10. The file shows routine approval without comment by five separate offices - four in the State Department, one at the Pentagon Approval came Aug. 20.

The first of 16 armored cars purchased from Cadillac Gage arrived in the Canal Zone the night of Oct. 2 aboard the Santa Isabel and were accepted by a national guard detachment accompanied by a U.S. Army officer assigned to the embassy. The armored vehicles were stored out of sight and then delivered under cover of darkness to Panama City.

The shipment would have remained a mystery had it not been noted by a patrolman in the canal protection division, generating alarm among

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The diabolical alien, The Prodigy, is seconds away from his nationwide telecast that will draw millions of innocent teenagers into his seamy plot for a population explosion

"When I'm in front of that television tonight, I'll hit the beardless, mindless crowd with everything I've got," snarls the sinister visitor from outer space.

The plan is to tell adolescents that pregnancy is good for them, that it will balance their hormones

"What jive stuff this turkey hands out!" muses that perennial good guy, Spider Man. In the nick of time he breaks into the studio, rips off the Prodigy's human mask and foils the plot with super spider

Store's clerk reports assault

A convenience mart clerk was assaulted by an unidentified man early today in the second such incident reported to police this week. A 24-year-old clerk told officers a young Negro man entered the 7-Eleven, 1912 N. Big Spring St., at 5:17 a.m. wearing a ragged white sweat shirt with the sleeves cut out, ordered her to get the keys and lock the store up because she was coming with him. The man held a green T-shirt with eye-holes cut out over his face and held his right hand in his pocket to look like a gun, the woman told police. After the woman refused to go with the man, he reportedly told her, "Come on if you don't want to get hurt. Come on if you don't want to die, Come on or I'll

The woman said the man chased her around the store after she refused again, then fled. A police search of the area immediately after the incident-reportedly turned up nothing. Detectives are continuing an investigation today.

On Monday, a clerk at another 7-Eleven, 4404 W Illinois Ave., told police a young Negro male tied her hands behind her back and blindfolded her with a sock. At first he told her, "You are coming with me." Then, after she was bound, he told her, "Don't come out or we will kill you."

In Monday's attack, the man wore a ski mask. A check of the stores after both incidents showed nothing was apparently taken, police said.

Carter entourage may be surprised at Washington

WASHINGTON - After spending much of his long campaign running against Washington, President-elect Jimmy Carter is now going to live

Carter has told many people, including D.C. City Council Chairman Sterling Tucker, that he intends to be a resident of Washington as well as of

Carter has said he plans to send his 9-year-old daughter, Amy, to a public school here. He has said also that he will attend church near the White At the same time, all of Washington

After all, each occupant of the White House and his administration during the past 50 years has had a direct impact on the social, economic. political and physical well-being of Washington.

John Kennedy took an interest in efforts to restore and revitalize Pennsylvania Avenue, not to mention the sophistication and culture his wife and his administration brought to the Lyndon Johnson saw the city as a laboratory for his Great Society social programs. Lady Bird saw the city as a place to beautify. Richard Nixon saw Washington as the crime capital of the country and poured in millions to beef up the police force and courts. What will Jimmy Carter do for Washington? Where will the men and women he brings with him live and congregate? What tone will they set for the city? Will they change Washington or will it change them? In Atlanta and Plains, meanwhile,

Carter, his family and his staff wonder what awaits them in the nation's capital. They are excited about taking over governmental Washington but some of them are confused and apprehensive about the city

Since the administration is about to change, my feelings about the District have changed," said Barbara Heinevac, 29, who is working on housing policy at the Carter headquarters the District I didn't feel like I wanted to live there. The housing situation was deplorable and the crime on the streets had me afraid. Now, I'm kind of excited about the prospect of going Heinevac's views reflect apprehensions expressed by Carter staffers, who have lived in Atlanta for months or years, and now suddenly realize that they may be coming to Washington. Housing, crime and the fast-paced life of the capital are among their concerns.

As for the Carter campaign promises - about reorganizing the federal bureaucracy, changing the nation's tax structure, home rule forthe District - interviews indicated that Carter policy decisions are still being made.

There is a popular misconception that a new administration brings with it tens of thousands of people, that Washington is turned upside down as one party leaves the White House and the other enters it.

Lyndon Johnson once estimated that he made 40,000 appointments in his almost six years as President. which may be true, but there are only 2,200 political appointees in the executive branch of the federal government at any given moment and not all after a new President is sworn into of-

In a metropolitan area with a population now hovering around 3 million, 2,000 to 3,000 new families could easily move in without a ripple. These, however, will not be just any families - they will be the top strata of a new Democratic administration.

There is an old maxim in Washington real estate circles that Republicans rept and Democrats buy. Historically, there has been some truth to this observation and it means more for the Washington area than simply a bonanza for local realtors.

Democrats tend to settle in when they move to Washington and tend to stay when their President is defeated and their government jobs are lost. They become more involved in the community, more interested in local problems and institutions and tend to view Washington as home - rather than a temporary stop. "Republicans don't believe in government so they tend to go home" when their Presidents are defeated. said James H. Rowe, Jr., one of the original New Dealers who came to Washington in 1934 to work at the National Emergency Council. Like so many others of his era, Rowe has stayed in Washington practicing law and watching Republican and Democratic administrations alike come and go.

Washington realtors are gearing up to handle the transition, although they seem more interested at the moment in helping the 17 new Senators find suitable accommodation than in worrying about where members of the Carter administration are going to

"Who are these people?" seems to be the question asked of the Carter entourage. The Jody Powells and Hamilton Jordans do not strike local realtors as hot prospects for large and expensive homes in the city.

There is a sense, nonetheless, that the new Carter administration is going to be different in its attitudes and way of doing things from previous administrations going back to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Carter is from the South and will undoubtedly bring Southerners with him to Washington, as Kennedy brought the "Irish Mafia" from Boston, as Johnson brought the Texas crowd, as Nixon brought with him lawyers and advertising executives from California and New York. Gerald Ford never really had time to put a geographic stamp on his administration or the

Carter is from a small town, as are many of the people who worked in his Atlanta campaign office. The President-elect remains an outsider who ran against the Washington Establishment, both Republican and Democrat, and he has not, as yet anyway, made any real overtures to the movers and shakers in the capital, except for attending a couple of din-ners and lunches here before the Democratic convention. Rowe, for one, thinks Carter will bring to the city a breath of fresh air and is not too troubled at the prospect of having a host of new and unknown people in the city running the govern-

"My guess is that either Carter will be absorbed by the establishment," Rowe said, "or the establishment will be absorbed by him." Most of those who follow Carter to Washington are not wealthy; most of them come from small southern

"It's a lot cheaper to live here in Georgia and people are going to be very surprised at the cost of living in Washington," Mary Hoyt said. "I hate to say it, but they are going to be very, very surprised. Carter's people already expected housing to be hard to come by here, but most expressed outright shock at how little $400 a month would rent.

Viking scientists disagree about mechanical findings

he Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The $100 million the United States spent on instruments to search for life on Mars has produced nothing but disagreement over whether the instruments found what they were looking for.

That was as clear as a pink summer Martian sky after a two-hour press conference Tuesday in which six Viking scientists discussed what their findings mean to them.

Four said they did not know if life exists on Mars. One said flatly that Viking had not found life. The sixth said he felt Viking had discovered primitive microbes living in the soils of Mars.

One of the few things the six Viking scientists agreed on was that they have found no remains of death on Mars. None of the six quarreled with the finding that there is nothing in the two soils (Chryse and Utopia) where Viking dug to suggest the fossils that would confirm the existence of life on "Our instrument could have detected dead organisms anywhere from 100 to 1.000 times fewer in number than there are in poor earth soils, like the soils of Antarctica," said MIT's Dr. Klaus Biemann, who designed the instrument that looked for dead organic matter on Mars. "We did not find any organics. There doesn't seem to be a mechanism that accumulates organics on Mars." Biemann, who has said it is hard to have life without death, concluded Tuesday that Viking failed to find life on Mars. He noted that Viking had searched for life and death only in two

"But even if I think we can explain this in terms of chemistry, we must still reproduce these actions in our laboratories," Biemann cautioned. "And even if we do that, we can only come to the conclusion that from these two places where we landed on Mars the data we have can be explained by inorganic chemistry."

Cornell University's Dr. Carl Sagan disagreed with Biemann, saying that he thought that what Viking has found could not be explained by an exotic chemistry. Sagan suggested that Viking had discovered primitive life forms that spend their lives behind hard shells to protect them from the killing rays of ultraviolet light.

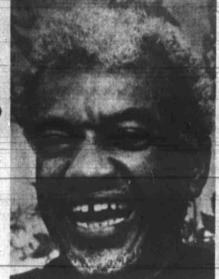

Sagan conceded he had no proof for the microbes, but he said that Biemann had presented no proof that they do not exist. Sagan said the instruments that looked for life found something and Biemann's instrument did not. The reason, suggested, was that the life-seeking instruments were more sensitive than Biemann's instrument, which was searching for signs of death - fossils.

He said the living organisms might be cannibals, choosing to eat their dead kin, but he called this explanation "unlikely." THE REV. CLENNON KING, who has unsuccessfully attempted to enter the whites-only church in Jimmy Carter's hometown, said in New York Tuesday he has urged the president-elect not to resign from the Plains Baptist Church. # Golf to take backseat as presidential sport

Jimmy Carter appears certain to cool the golfing fever that has been around the White House for the last quarter of a century.

No more putting on the east lawn. No locker at the exclusive Burning Tree Club in suburban Bethesda, Md No policy decisions on the first tee. No judging the state of the union by the severity of the president's slice.

"Jimmy never took much to golf," a spokesman for the country's president-elect said from Carter's vacation spot off the Georgia coast. "He's more of a softball man. He plays tennis a bit, loves fishing and is crazy about auto racing. But golf? Forget it."

Presidents, with rare exceptions, have relaxed by fighting bogeys on the golf course since the administration of William Howard Taft. starting in 1909. But it remained for the late General Dwight D. Eisenhower to turn the pastime into a virtual religion after he was elected in

Since Ike, every president has been a devotee of the game to varying degrees — John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford. Only Ford, exfootballer, ardent skier and sports buff, matched Eisenhower's enthusiasm for the fairway game. Now Ford, beaten by Carter in last week's election, is the latest to see his favorite driving club retired and placed in a glass case in the club house at the Burning Tree Club. Taft was a bulbous man of more than 300 pounds who had to sneak away to obscure places to gain the enjoyment of swinging a club.

Although burdened with the pressures of World War I and the League of Nations, Woodrow Wilson was an avid golfer as was the handsome Warren G. Harding, who often had such players as Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen as his White House

The somber Calvin Coolidge didn't play, but his sons were very active, and one of them died of a foot infection after a round on the course.

Herbert Hoover played some golf in his pre-White House years, and records show his name was once posted for delinquency in dues at a fashionable Florida club, but he was too busy with the depression to play much golf while president.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was a fair golfer before being stricken with polio, and his wood-shafted driver with a unique brass back sits alongside the drivers of Taft, Wilson and Harding at the club.

Harry S. Truman, who came next, disdained the sport, but he became a member of Burning Tree and was seen quite regularly in the club lounge, playing poker.

Bates denies allegation

. HOUSTON (AP) - State Criminal District Court Judge Garth Bates has denied any involvement in an alleged payoff the state accuses him of accepting to prevent a defendant from going to prison.

Bates, 61, is on trial on a charge of accepting a $59,000 bribe in exchange for a promise that Nukie Fontenot, 38, would not go to prison on a robbery charge.

Bates spent 90 minutes on the stand in the 10th day of his trial Tuesday and denied any involvement in the alleged payoff.

He testified that Ed Jay Riklin once told him that Fontenot wanted probation but he said a bribe or even his influence was never sought.

Campaign for 'Christian' candidates falls short

By RUSSELL CHANDLER The Los Angeles Times

Did politically conservative evangelical Christian forces mount a concerted, well-organized drive to elect only so-called "real Christians" to Congress and important state offices.

If so, how successful were apparent "born again" candidates who identified with the religious stance of President-elect Jimmy Carter, who has made the phrase a household word?

An investigation by The Los Angeles Times since last week's election strongly suggests that there was a wave of Christian political activity to endorse and support particular candidates who were avowedly Chris-

But no monolithic movement of interlinked organizations campaigned "rebuild America as a Christian republic" - as charged by some religious leaders. Two weeks before the election, a panel of leaders from several religions assailed the alleged "vote Christian" drives, saying that such efforts "strike at the heart of the American democratic process and, even more fundamentally, at the principle of separation of church and state.' Only a handful of so-called "Christcentered" candidates who were not incumbents won seats in the U.S. Con-

The American Jewish Committee, one of several groups which repudiated the "vote Christian" drives in an estimated 30 congressional districts, compiled a list of 21 groups. The list was released before the election.

Only two of the 21 on the list won. Another picture of the success of "born again" candidates was presented, however, by Third Century Publishers, an Arlington, Va., organization cited as being part of a coalition that screened and endorsed candidates on religious bases. Bruce Gross, president of Third Century, told The Times that 21 candidates out of 54 listed in the October newsletter of Third Century as "Christ-centered candidates who won their primaries" were elected

Candidates — both winning and los-ing — in the California U.S. congressional races said during telephone interviews since the election that the Gross flatly denied that there had been any "national concerted effort" to endorse or support particular candidates by his group or any of the others mentioned by the panel of critical religious leaders.

Cited were Third Century Publishers, the Christian Freedom Foundation (now disbanded) and the Christian Embassy, both in Washington, D.C., and Campus Crusade for Christ International, headed by William Bright in Arrowhead Springs, Calif. "No one has gone out and selected candidates and said 'We're, going to run them,'" Gross declared.

The list circulated by the AJC apparently was compiled from several sources and included many of the 60 "Christ-centered" candidates listed

Christian drives included Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum, interreligious affairs director of the AJC; Episcopal Bishop Paul Moore of New York City; the Rev. Joseph A. O'Hare, editor-in-chief of the national Catholic weekly, America. When told that only two of the 21 congressional candidates on the AJC list won, Tanenbaum told The Times:

"To the degree that these can-didates were identified as born-again Christians' and were making their appeal on that basis, then (the vote was) an indication that a great proportion of the electorate rejects the notion of voting for a candidate on the basis of his religion."

other religious leaders Tanenbaum said that the alleged drive is a revival of the radical right movement of 1950s McCarthyism under the banner of evangelicalism. "It is an attempt to create a new political religion in America," Tanenbaum said. He added that those organizing the drive "don't consider (Jimmy) Carter a real Christian because of his liberal economics and

Chinese setting out to improve tarnished image of acupuncture

By JACQUES LESLIE The Los Angeles Times

HONG KONG - Five years ago the first Americans allowed to visit China brought back seemingly wondrous tales of the use of acupuncture to combat everything from deafness to chronic pain. James Reston, a New York Times columnist who was one of the first American journalists to visit China, stomach by inserting and twirling acupuncture needles in his calves and right elbow.

Such stories established the legitimacy of acupuncture in the minds of many Westerners, and the technique became popular in the United States and Europe. But almost as quickly, quack doctors claiming knowledge of acupuncture moved to cash in. The result was that after the Medicon first tried to set up courses in Taiwan to teach acupuncture to Westerners. But these ended in failure, and the doctors' tuition had to

Smokey Bear, retired hero, dies in zoo

WASHINGTON (AP) - The original Smokey Bear, for 25 years a living symbol of forest fire prevention, died Tuesday at the National Zoo and presumably went to what Congress once referred to as "that great honey tree in the sky."

Smokey retired in May 1975 and was replaced by another, younger Smokey. Both bears were housed at the National Zoo.

SMOKEY'S DEATH was announced by the Agriculture Department, which had handled the forest fire prevention program through its  $\cup.5$ Forest Service agency. Officials said the old Smokey died "in his retirement cage" at the zoo.

Congress in a joint resolution two years ago specified that the bear's remains be shipped to Capitan, N.M. Smokey will be buried in several days at the Smokey Bear Historical Park there.

THE ORIGINAL Smokey was found in 1950 as a cub, badly burned from a forest fire that swept through part of the Lincoln National Forest.

He was found clinging to a charred tree, was treated for burns and was flown to Santa Fe, N.M., for further treatment and was gradually nursed back to health. In June 1950, Smokey was elected as the first living symbol of the forest fire prevention campaign which had started in 1942.

SOON AFTERWARD, Smokey was flown here and in a brief ceremony was installed officially at the

The new Smokey Bear has a similar background also found in the Lincoln National Forest. However, the new cub, although abandoned and half-starved, did not suffer from severe burns as his predecessor

By WILLIAM H. JONES The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - A firms. member of the Interstate Commerce Commission. A. Daniel O'Neal, has condemned the slow pace of internal reform at the ICC, the nation's oldest federal regulatory agen-

at the commission for an absence of "sustained determination needed ... to alter the course of events," and for not encouraging minority enterprise in the transportation businesses regulated by the ICC. Founded in 1887, the ICC regulates interstate trucking, railroads, buses, inland water barges and oil pipelines.

Reviewing an avalanche of criticism which has fallen on the ICC in recent years and which House subcommittee report that ranked the ICC among the two worst agencies of nine surveyed, O'Neal told a Chicago meeting that the commission's problem does not reflect corruption, favoritism or lack of expertise.

"The problem is institutional inertia ... In a nutshell, the commission lacks the commitment to take and sustain action on its own initiative. O'Neal stated. By refusing to overhaul its own opertions, his colleagues are opening a path for outsiders to force changes, he warned.

A bipartisan, independent regulatory commis-sion such as the ICC is needed to make certain that surface transportation firms develop "to benefit society as much as possible," O'Neal said. But ICC inertia is causing some of that role to be assumed by the executive branch, he continued.

"The shame is that many people in the age cy are eager to impro its peformance. But t time is growing sho and, where it counts -Congress - patience wearing thin," O'Ne

Chaps kick up heels; buck LCC cagers, 90-76

BY TED BATTLES

Midland College launched its 1976-77 basketball season with a 90-76 victory over Lubbock Christian College JV at the Midland College gym Tuesday night, and for an opener it was probably a better game than most expected, especially after the teams took their warmups.

LCC showed up seven strong with five players 6-3 or under. The Chaparrals in comparison looked like the whole Notre Dame football squad both in numbers and size.

While the Chaps were dunking the ball at one end of the court, a move that risked life and wrist, not to mention the moorings of the backboard, the South Plains variety of Chaparrals played it straight and

IF LCC was intimidated, it didn't show. Coach Chester Story's bunch was never behind, but the visitors hung to the Chaps like stickum.

MC opened up an early 22-12 lead, but with 7:09 left in the half, LCC had

It was the same script all over in the second half with Midland whizzing to a 56-47 advantage only to have LCC narrow it to 57-54.

At this point, with 13:45 left in the game, Story sent in Jeff Jackson, Sim

IN THREE minutes time, MC opened up a 68-54 lead and coasted home from there. After a free throw by Hawthorne, 6-6 from Fort Worth Poly, Jackson hit from the corner and then found Nickerson slipping in the back door with a pass underneath. Stamp sallied home on a fast break and Jackson hit from the lane and Hawthorne from inside.

With the score 68-58, Nickerson peppered in three basket baskets to up MC's lead to 76-60 with 6:20 left.

The Chaps finished with four players in double figures, led by 6-2 Alvin Mayes, the Tulsan who scored 15 points. Nickerson, last year's top scorer Tommy Parks and 6-7 Clifford Taylor, another newcomer and a rough customer under the boards, all

LCC USED streaky outside shooting and, at times, some slick ball handling to stay close. Mike Wrinkle, 6-6er from Gallup, N.M., led the way with 21 points while 6-3 Chris Fairley

Jackson Pace, the 6-5 veteran from Lubbock Monterey, took a Mayes pass and hit a 12-footer that got MC out in front early in the game and from there, with Stamp feeding, Mayes and Taylor hit three each and Parks contributed three more and a free throw as the Chaps built up a 22-12 lead seven minutes into the game.

Steve Doudney and Wrinkle combined to rally LCC to within a point of MC at 28-27, but that's as close as the visitors ever got. MC reeled off eight straight points and raised it to 42-31 with Hawthorne, two baskets, and Parks, two baskets and an assist, the backbone of the spurt.

FRIDAY AND Saturday, the Chaps travel to Sherman and Gainesville for doubleheaders with Cooke County and Grayson colleges. The Chaps will swap opponents with Odessa College, also making the trip.

Those outings should give Story a better idea of how far the Chaps have progressed since the opening of cage drills in September and how far they still must go. Cooke is regarded as one of the probable national JC powers this season.

Inactivity has not done any harm to Randy Matson. He is still as trim and muscular as 240-pound shot putters go, and as he looks back on his own athletic career and the dire situation now hanging over the American amateur sports "system" he has some definite thoughts. And when Randy talks, people listen.

"I think you could say that I competed in the last great Olympics back in Tokyo in 1964," he explained. "You It's been eight years now, since could see the big difference between Randy Matson, 6-4, and 240 pounds of the Tokyo games and the Mexico City athletic perfection, stood ever so games. poses and their own gains. "I HATED to see that happen, because there was enough pressure on the athletes just competing in the Olympics, without the added problem of politics and all."

Matson, like many other American athletes, feels that there should be restrictions put on countries that compete in and stage the Olympic

He explains, "there should be a sanction put on countries, and if they do some of the stuff that's been going on like Canada in regard to Taiwan, well they should just be barred from future Olympic competition." But he is not optimistic that the best is yet ahead, "The Olympics as we know it, may not be around very much longer.

AMERICA'S EVER GROWING problem of competing on an equal basis with "full-time" athletes from the European countries, has been the subject of great debate the past few years. It gathered even more controversy this past summer, after the enormous success of the East German women's swim team in the Montreal games.

Matson sees arguments for both systems-ours and theirs. "There was a time, when I definitely thought the athletes in our country should be subsidized to the point where they can train full-time like the Russians and East Germans.

"Those guys don't have to worry about jobs, incomes, anything.

Palmer captures 3rd Cy Young Award; joins elite group

NEW YORK (AP) - Baltimore's Jim Palmer, an All-Star Game reject last July who reversed his field in the second half of the season, won the American League's Cy Young Award today for the third time.

The Orioles' right-hander joined Sandy Koufax, formerly of the Los Angeles Dodgers, and Tom Seaver of the New York Mets as baseball's only triple winners of the coveted pitching award. Palmer, also named the American League's best pitcher in 1973 and 1975, was an easy winner this time over runner-up Mark Fidrych, Detroit's flashy "Birdman" who took baseball by storm in his rookie season.

Palmer received 108 points on 19 first-place votes, four seconds and one third from the Baseball Writers Association of America. His total more than doubled that of Detroit's young right-hander, who had 51 points based on five first-place votes, seven for second and five for third.

California's Frank Tanana was a distant third with 18 points, while Ed Figueroa of the New York Yankees finished fourth with 12. Others who received votes were Luis Tiant of the Boston Red Sox, with 10: Vida Blue of the Oakland A's, 8; Minnesota's Bill Campbell, 7, and Rollie Fingers of Oakland and Wayne Garland, Palmer's teammate at Baltimore. 1

Palmer's Cy Young selection was a vindication of sorts for his earlyseason problems that led to his All-Star rejection and a cause celebre in baseball.

Palmer had a losing record for most of the early season, but by the time of the All-Star Game, was pitching well and improved his record to 11-8. However, he voiced his displeasure when Boston Manager Darrell Johnson did not select him for the AL All-Star team.

"I felt that if Catfish Hunter (of New York) was picked with the same record, I should have been selected, too," Palmer told The Associated Press Tuesday night. "But, really I never felt I should have been on the team. The whole thing was blown out of proportion.

'My point was that the American League never seems to send its best players to the All-Star games, while the National League has a different philosophy about it. I just want to see the American League win and I'd like to help them do it. You can't help sitting home watching the game on

Palmer led the American League in victories with a 22-13 record and had an earned run average of 2.51 despite a desultory start. The reason he pitched well in the second half of the season was that the Orioles played

Midland, Lee coaches heap praise on one another By BOB DILLON words for Midland's Phillip Ward and Rusty Maroney. "They are two of the Both Jim Acree of Robert E. Lee best backs in the district and we will and Midland's Jerry Hopkins have have to contain them in order to win, commented Acree. Both Lee and Midland are coming off impressive victories over Abilene and Abilene Cooper last week. The Maroon Platoon destroyed the Eagles, 42-13 while Midland blanked the Cougars, 23-0 in the Key City, to set up the big game Friday. A victory by Lee and a Permian win over Odessa High, puts the Rebels into the Class AAAA state playoffs for the second time in the past three years. A win by Lee and victory by OHS would move the Bronchos into the playoff slot since they nippped the Rebs, 15-14, in the 5-4A opener some six weeks ago.

Of course, a Lee victory and tie between OHS and Permian, would give the Rebs the title by one-half game. A victory by Permian and a Lee-MHS deadlock, will put the Maroon and White into the playoffs.

So, lets face it, Lee needs to win and Mojo to help Acree's team into the

A victory by both Midland High and Permian would bring about a threeway tie for first with all three teams winding up with 5-2 marks and then a coin would have to be tossed to see who plays in the bi-district round.

"I must admit I feel a lot better than I did two weeks ago about or our chances with Lee, "said Hopkins. Hopkins and his staff were pleased with the way both the offense and defense played against Cooper as was

Acree happy over the way his team dismantled the Eagles. "This is the most important game of the season for us, even bigger than the Permian and Abilene games since this is what we have been working towards all year long, "added Acree Acree went on to stress the point that 'A lot is on the line in this one." Lee hasn't beaten Midland in three years with the Purple Pack winning, 46-27 in 1973 and then the last two years have been 7-7 and 14-14 deadlocks.

to a minimum in order to beat Lee, said Hopkins. Acree summed up his feelings about-

"We will have to keep our mistakes

the Bulldogs in stating that Midland has some good athletes and the game shapes up as another dandy.

From 18-9 to 3-24?

MISSION, Kan. (AP) -The Oregon State basketball team, which won 18 games and lost 9 last season, has had that record changed to 3-24. How's that?

The National Collegiate Athletic Association has ordered Oregon State to forfeit the 15 games it won last season when Lonnie Shelton played for the team while under a federal court order.

Dr. Robert MacVicar, school president, said that he had forfeited the games because the NCAA told him it would be appropriate.

The NCAA revoked Shelton's eligibility to play after he signed a pro contract with the American Basketball Association, then changed his mind.

Shelton sued the NCAA, alleging the contract signing occurred under duress and thus was void. A U.S. District judge in Oregon issued an order allowing him to play while the matter was being litigated. The NCAA appealed the order to the U.S. Court of Appeals, which overturned the lower court ruling.

Oregon State played its remaining four games without Shelton, who had averaged 17.8 points and 7.7 rebounds.

THE CONFUSION that reigns in the SWC is only a reflection on what's going on all over the country. And it's raising havoc with the TV schedulemakers, who in the past have confidently picked out such staples as Michigan-Ohio State, Notre Dame-USC, Texas-Texas A&M or Arkansas, Alabama-Auburn, UCLA-USC and Oklahoma-Nebraska as their late season telecasts and sat back, confident that one or more of the games would carry national championship implications, or at the very worst would at least decide a conference

Pitt: the four-year rags to riches story

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

PITTSBURGH (AP) - In 1972, Southern Cal went 12-0 and won college football's national championship. Oklahoma was 11-1, Michigan and Texas were 10-1. Alabama and Arizona State finished 10-2, Ohio State was 9-2, Nebraska went 9-1 and people were saying what an awful year an 8-3 record was for Notre

The University of Pittsburgh would have given its right arm, if universities have such things, for an awful record like Notre Dame's. Because the Panthers of Pittsburgh, whose history includes a national championship in 1937 and such legendary coaching names as Pop Warner, Jock Sutherland and Clark Shaughnessy, suffered through a 1-10 campaign, the school's worst ever unless you insist on counting an 0-8-1 mark in 1903.

OUT OF the Big Eight frying pan at Iowa State and into the fire at Pitt stepped Johnny Majors, taking a job turned down by such coaching luminaries as Frank Kush of Arizona State and Lloyd Eaton of Wyoming.

"How bad was the situation here? Well, the record speaks for itself. It was about as low as it could get. There was only one way to go-up. recalls with a grimace.

"I never called Eaton, never talked to Kush. But a lot of things changed. Before I visited Pitt, I didn't have any idea that I was going to come here. But based on the fact that many schools recruited in this area (Western Pennsylvania), there had to

The Pitt football situation is now about as high as it can get. After all, when you're No. 1 there's only one way to go-down. And just four years after that disastrous 1-10 season, Pitt is ranked No. 1 in the nation-above Southern Cal, above Oklahoma, above Michigan and Texas, above Alabama and Arizona State, above Nebraska and above Notre Dame, which lost to the Panthers 31-10 in the opening game of the season.

"THE TURNAROUND was much faster than I expected," Majors says. 'Even with Pitt's tradition, the school's academic background, the national schedule and the fact that this is a good recruiting area, I felt if we could win 40 per cent of our games the first three years we'd be on the way toward having a good program."

The good program came quickly. In 1973, Pitt had its first winning season in 10 years, a 6-4-1 regular-season record and a trip to the Fiesta Bowl. In 1974, it was 7-4. And last year brought another 7-4 record plus a prestigious victory over Kansas of the haughty Big Eight Conference in the Sun Bowl.

'There are several factors for the turnaround," Majors explains. "The administration made a move to change things by improving the facilities, which were atrocious, by allowing redshirting, by expanding the scholarship program. They were getting beat here by numbers alone. The seniors who had been around were anxious for discipline, anxious for enthusiasm, anxious for condition-

THE 1972 rule which allowed helped as Majors brought in more than 70 rookies and junior college transfers. "A mixture of underclassmen and freshmen whose talent superseded the need for experience," he says. "The numbers saved us that first year. It's tough to build up a program today because of the annual 30-scholarship limit."

This might be the first story about Pitt football in several years that has managed several hundred words before getting around to Dorsett. It didn't take Majors quite that long.

The morning after Iowa State dropped a 31-30 decision to Georgia Tech in the Liberty Bowl, Majors arrived in town to be introduced as the new Pitt

"AT IOWA State," he recalls, "we had no luck recruiting in Pennsylvania, so the first time I really heard about Tony Dorsett was the day took the job. As soon as the press conference was over I talked with the head recruiter. He told me about Dorsett.

Majors premptly headed for Aliquippa, not many miles from Pittsburgh, one of those steel mill towns you hear about which produce about as many hard-nosed football players as steel beams.

Majors and his chief assistant, Jackie Sherrill, now the head coach at Washington State, cornered Dorsett and Ed Wilamowski, his Hopewell High teammate, in the home of their high school coach and began their sales pitch.

"I COULDN'T understand a thing Coach Majors said," Dorsett recalls with a laugh of his first introduction to Majors' rapid-fire Tennessee drawl. "Me and Ed would look at each other like we were asking, 'What did he

"I wasn't considering Pitt at all before the coaching change. I was thinking about Penn State, Michigan State, Colorado, Notre Dame and Ohio State, but I really didn't want to go to too far from home.

Next: Dorsett's No. 1 ... and so is

Flyers dipping into mediocrity

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The Philadelphia Flyers, a hard-working, relentless bunch that could grind out victories on pure effort, have become sporadic.

And General Manager Keith Allen, who built the team that won consecutive National Hockey League championships and made the finals again last season, thinks his band of marauders has lost its edge. "We're just not the desperate, Allen said of the Flyers' 7-6-2 start. "It's an attitude think and that's part of our problem. To be great,

"I'm concerned," Allen said. "I've got to be concerned. I'm going to spend some time with the coaches, talk to the players. I want to see what I can do that might be helpful."

With the past glory of his young team in mind, Allen is reluctant to start pointing fingers.

The Flyers, who conclude a four-

Bernie Parent broke a bone in his foot while trying to come back from a neck injury that forced him to miss most of last year. He still has not returned to the top form that made him the top goaltender in the NHL.

Job expectations of young too high, study says

By NOEL EPSTEIN The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - A national study of career education suggested Monday that many high school students with high job aspirations probably will have to lower their expectations and that poorer students will have to be better prepared to compete with them for non-professional work.

The study, by the National Assessment of Educational Progress, tended to confirm earlier analyses showing an intensifying rivalry for these jobs. chiefly between higher-income whites and lower-income blacks.

The federally funded study, a project of the Education Commission of the States, found that 44 per cent of American 17-year-olds wanted professional careers, approximately double the portion of professional and managerial jobs currently in the economy

Roy Forbes, director of the National Assessment, said in an interview, "I don't think education should say that if you go to college you are guaranteed a better-paying or more satisfying job ... We have to prepare people psychologically for the fact that the types of jobs they want aren't there at present."

Some observers have suggested that the nation will be producing too many college graduates, at least in terms of the type jobs available, for years to come. The bureau of Labor Statistics has estimated that, by 1980, there will be an oversupply of 180,000 college graduates annually.

At the same time, the National Assessment study of 100,000 youths and young adults, conducted in 1974-74, found that blacks, those from impoverished communities and those whose parents had little education were most lacking in "career and occupational development needs.'

This is a measure of knowledge about jobs available, thought given to planning careers, some skills needed to seek employment and others, such as writing and computation, needed to perform jobs.

In the basic skill evaluation of young adults aged 26 to 35, for example, the study showed that only 60 per cent of those from families with under $5,000 in annual income could identify the amount of water in a measuring

More than 90 per cent of those from families earning over $15,000 gave the correct answer.

It also showed that only 34 per cent of young adults from low-income families could compute a finance charge, while 78 per cent of those from higher-income families could do this.

Men outscored women on the computation excercises as a whole, but women did better than men on the writing tests.

In one writing excercise, all those studied did poorly on one item: Only 24 per cent included a return address in a job appliction letter, guaranteeing that most could not get the posi-

The study ranged over numerous other areas. It found, for example, that "adults who had attended public high schools did not differ significantly in achievement levels from those who had attended private or parochial schools."

It also showed that "only 3 per cent of female 17-year-olds selected 'housewife' as their first choice for a career, while 37 per cent of the female young adults identified themselves as nousewives."

But its major concerns were the potential disillusionment of many students who have excessive job hopes and the poor preparation of others to compete effectively, trends that have been showing up in many industrialized nations.

The career education movement, which began in the early 1970s, is intended mainly to improve all students' knowledge about seeking and peforming jobs.

But it is not expected to appreciably reduce the number of underemployed or unemployed persons, which is a function chiefly of the economy's ability to create jobs rather than of education's ability to fill them

Mao 'cult' lives on

Agence France-Presse SHAOSHAN, China — Mao Tse-tung has been dead for almost two months, but the cult that surrounds him is more alive than ever here at his birthplace, in the central mountains of the southern province of Hunan. Even before the death of "the great helmsman," Shaoshan was a place of pilgrimage, but since his death on Sept. 9, the town has been visited by a record number of persons - sometimes as many as 30,000 to 40,000 a day, an official here told a group of visiting French journalists. The "sacred site of Maoism" is the broadbeamed farm house in which the late Communist party chairman was born. The house, converted into a museum and carefully maintained, is situated at the foot of a terraced field in a picturesque site. The museum includes some 10 rooms that perpetuate the memory of Mao, his legendary exploits and his family, which was decimated by the revolutionary

The journalists noted in particular the important lace reserved for Vuan Kai-hui, Mao's second wife and a party member who was shot by the Kuomintang in 1930. The veneration of Mao thoughout China has provided full-time work for some 700 persons at Shaoshan alone: 500 in a textile factory that produces, among other things, fabrics carrying an image of Mao, the text of his poems or pictures of his birthplace, plus 200 who manufacture souvenirs, including bamboo badges with a color portrait of the great leader. At Changsha, the capital of Hunan Province, Public School No. 1, where Mao did his studies and led his initial fights for the revolution, as well as the wooden house where he lived after becoming a teacher. also attract large numbers of Chinese and foreign visitors

WASHINGTON (AP) - Tractors and other farm machinery continue to be the leading threat to life on farms and appear to be gradually taking a larger toll each year, according to the Agriculture Department.

Twenty years ago, machinery accounted for about 35 per cent of the accidental fatalities on the nation's farms. The rate has gradually risen. so that in 1973, the most recent year analyzed, 43 per cent of the accidental farm deaths were due to machines.

Other causes, ranked in order after machinery, and their 1973 shares of the U.S. farm accidental death total compared with the averages in 1954-59

Drowning 14.8 per cent in 1973 and 15.3 per cent in 1954-59; guns 8.2 and 12.2; falls 6.7 and 5.5; blows 6.6 and 8.7; burns 3.8 and 5.0; electricity 4.1 and 3.4; poison 2.0 and 1.6; other 10.8 and 13.0.

The tabulations and analysis of accidental farm deaths were included in a new report by USDA's Economic Research Service. It was written by Conrad F. Fritsch of the agency in collaboration with Walter E. Sellers Jr., another analyst.

In absolute terms, the number of accidental farm deaths annually has declined from more than 2,400 in 1960 to fewer than 1,800 in recent years. with some variations from year to year. But the farm population also has declined, over-all, in the same period.

Also, the figures take into account fatal accidents on farms involving hired labor. This can fluctuate moderately from year to year.

But allowing for those variations, the farm fatality rate per 100,000 persons has shown a definite increase over the years from 14.2 in 1960 to a peak of 17.7 in 1967 and a 1973 rate of "Agriculture is unique among industries in that the work environment, including farm land and buildings and certain equipment such as wagons and tractors, is used for recreational as well as occupational purposes," the report said.

"In addition, many farm fatalities are related to recreational activities such as swimming and hunting, and many farm children, youth and adults are killed or maimed each year from accidents occurring around the farmstead which are not the direct result of work exposure."

The report noted that the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 which provides for federal regulations affecting a broad spectrum of work activity, including agriculture — relates only to hired farm employes and is restricted to occupational hazards.

But sound safety rules could be no hired farm help is required, the report said. In the machinery category, deaths were included that resulted from persons being "struck by or against an object" or from "being caught bet-ween objects as well as those resulting from overturned tractors, traditionally one of the leading kinds of serious farm accidents.

"Some state safety studies indicate that tractor fatalities have declined sharply from the high rates of the early '60s," the report said. "The increased use of rollover protection undoubtedly has contributed to this favorable trend.

For example, the report said, the helpful in reducing accidents even if Kansas Department of Health and Environment has maintained farm fatality records since 1939. During 1960-65, those show that Kansas' tractor-related accidents accounted for 59 per cent of all farm fatalities, peaking at 62 per cent in 1960. By 1971, tractor-related deaths in Kansas dropped to 32 per cent. Looking at total farm fatalities in recent years, those varied regionally. More than 40 per cent of the deaths, for example, occurred in the 12 states of the Corn Belt, Northern Plains and the Great Lakes states: Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

GM plans service campaign

The Washington Post WASHINGTON Faced with a sharp decline in profits for its service and parts business at its dealerships, General Motors Corp. is preparing to launch an $18 million program designed to win back some of its former customers. H. Nelson Long, general sales manager for GM's parts division in Flint, Mich., confirmed that his company's new drive, in preparation for more than two years, will be launched nationwide next March. It is regarded as the largest program of its type in auto industry history. Industry sources said GM funds allocated to the servicing and parts campaign will be second only to those spent in advertising the Chevrolet division. After warranty periods expire - one year or 12,000 miles for most manufacturers, with the exception of American Motors, which recently introduced a two-year warranty - "a high percentage of buyers stop going to the dealerships for service and-or parts."

Long said. He declined to say how much business GM has been losing but other more than 50 per cent of auto owners have stopped going to original dealerships because of problems with servicing. In addition, such mass retail centers as Montgomery Ward, Sears, Roebuck & Co., K-Mart and Woolco, offer lower prices. Long conceded that GM's drive is a 'corrective' program, based on a growing volume of consumer complaints about auto service and costs. "We want to bring a hell of a lot of GM owners back to GM dealerships," said A keystone to the program, to be called "Mr. Goodwrench." will be price cuts on GM auto and truck parts sold to dealers, which the nation's largest vehicle manufacturer expects to be passed along to consumers in the form of lower prices. GM is planning to cut prices by up to 30 per cent on 1,090 separate parts, including those most commonly used in auto repairs.

GM's Long said the deterioration in dealership business developed in recent years because some dealers were "indifferent" to the growing complaints, with work not done right the first time and consumers "inconvenienced by a lack of alternative transportation" during Consumers also "thought dealer maintenance was more expensive than routine maintenance" at independent operations, Long added.

The 'Mr. Goodwrench" program was tested first in the Minneapolis-St. Paul and Orlando areas, where Long said it has been 'extremely successful." The campaign will be added on a marketby market basis until it is nationwide by next GM also is launching a "target marketing" program based on parts facilities in Pontiac, Mich., and Cincinnati, which will sell quantities of fast-moving parts to all GM dealers at reduced prices, Long said.

Diversity with flair keynote of Chorale's all-vocal concerts

A choral ensemble that can offer, almost in the same breath, such widely and wildly diverse works as Haydn's Te Deum and the old folk song "Polly Wolly Doodle" - and offer both with flair - can't be all bad, as the saying goes. (Can't be bad at all, actually, but very good, instead. And definitely very versatile.) Such is the case of the Midfand-Odessa Symphony Chorale which this week presented its annual all-vocal concerts - Monday night in Odessa, Tuesday night in Lee High School auditorium here — to continue the symphony's brand-new season. The Chorale has presented exrellent programs in the past, gave a good one here Tuesday night, and will indoubtedly give good ones in the future. Here are talented, devoted singers, people who love to make music. Their dedication to the task at hand - that task being, quite simply, creating beautiful sounds and sharing them with others— was as apparent Tuesday as it has been in previous

The ensemble this season has a new director, Richard Clark, who apparently has synthesized all this talent into a viable and creditable whole. This year's program was probably less elaborate than some previous Chorale presentations. Perhaps, though, it achieved more by reaching a little less loftily. And I certainly think the concert was about right in length - long enough to have made it worth one's while to attend, but not so long or ambitious as to be exhausting. And, as previously noted, it was a versatile program.

The concert had a fine beginning with a presentation of Handel's dramatic and spirited Coronation Anthem No. 1, "Zadok the Priest," a work that had heightened interest for me as a result of having heard, quite recently, another dramatic Handelian work, "Samson," done by the Dallas Civic Opera.

The second offering of the evening was Antonio Vivaldi's "Lauda Jerusalem," featuring chamber orchestra, choirs and double sets of soprano soloists. The music was beautiful, the text was inspiring but I somehow found this work as less interesting or exciting than almost anything I have ever heard by Vivaldi, either choral or instrumental. The excellent soloists for the presentation here were Joyce Hammett and Sue Oldham of Midland, Janice Archer of Monahans and Suzanne Medlen of Odessa.

Franz Josef Haydn's Te Deum, composed for the Austrian Empress Maria Theresa, was splendidly done by the Chorale. This work, with its bright C major scoring, has regality and a kind of splendor- and impressive depths of religious devotion.

The first half of the program fulfilled the requirements for 'serious' works. It remained for the second half to provide the "fun" or novel items, or both.

An interesting contemporary work, Eskil Hemberg's "Signposts," with its fresh and unusual vocal techniques, drew favorable response from the audience. Probably the audience favorite of the evening. however, was a work by another contemporary composer, Gian Carlo Menotti. This was his famous "The Unicorn, the Gorgon and the Man-ticore," described as a madrigal fable. The allegorical music drama has moments of beauty and the choral ensemble gave it deferential, tasteful treatment in the concert here.

Closing the program neatly and nicely were three short works, all well-done by chorus and soloists. The first, "I Wonder As I Wander," had Dr. Jim Humphreys as soloist. The next was a gentle spoof of the old "Polly Wolly Doodle," and it featured Barbara Acreman, Gene Greenwood and Randy Talley as soloists. The third and final number was an excellent presentation of "Ain't Got Time to Die," and it had good solo work by Talley.

Although this was the Chorale's "big" program of the season, the ensemble will be in the spotlight again just a month from now when it joins the symphony orchestra in a pair of Christmas concerts. The concerts will present Alexander Borodin's "Polovetsian Dances" and the Fourth Symphony of Gustave Mahler. Soprano Janice Harsanyi will be guest artist.

Chance wartime meeting launches TV host in show business career

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — If Peter Marshall hadn't had a chance encounter with a radio soap-opera actor on a dusty road in wartime Italy, someone else might be host of the longrunning game show "Hollywood Squares.

And if it hadn't been for "Hollywood Squares," Marshall might not be embarking on a new television venture, a syndicated variety show. As a 19-year-old forward artillery observer in Italy toward the end of World War II, Marshall recalled in an interview, he was about to be sent to the Pacific, where the fighting was heavier.

He was walking along a road in Naples, contemplating the prospects of warfare in the Pacific, when he heard someone call his name. It was a soap-opera star Marshall had met while working as a radio station page. After learning about the perilous transfer, the actor got him a job as a military disc jockey and Marshall was in show business for keeps. In the years after the war, Marshall teamed up with the late Tommy Noonan in a comedy act that broke up in 1961. He performed in stage productions in New York and London, did nightclub acts and eventually became host of "Hollywood Squares," now in

The common demoninator in all of this is that Marshall, like other entertainers, has counted on people liking him and what he does. And that element, he says, will decide whether the variety show succeeds.

"If you like the host, the show will work. If you don't, it won't work," Marshall said at the outset of a tour promoting his show.

Some critics have not liked what they've seen, and Marshall has noted their displeasure. He said he expected that would happen because of his image as a game show host, which he said was distasteful to some - but not all - reviewers.

"I thought, boy, they're going to grab me," said the 50-year-old entertainer, "and boy, did they get me."

The ultimate judgment, of course, rests with the people who tune in the 72 television stations that are carrying the series of 13 90-minute shows this fall.

Whatever the outcome, Marshall vows he won't leave "Hollywood Squares.

Marshall - limited on "Hollywood Squares" to the role of straight man to a talking tic-tac-toe grid - gets a chance to do a bit of everything on his new variety show.

He sings, dances and joins in comedy sketches with his guests, most of whom he says are personal friends because "at $371 (a show), they're the only ones you can get."

KUWAIT - After three years of declining production, the oil business is booming again around the Persian

The refineries are humming at old production levels. Supertankers from Europe and Japan are lining up as they did when production mounted steadily from year to year to supply what seemed to be an endlessly expanding market.

All this was changed abruptly in late 1973 by two factors. For one thing, the Arab-Israeli war that year resulted in Arab oil boycotts against the United States and the Netherlands, a refining and distribution center for West Europe.

More important, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries belatedly discovered its monopolistic ability to dictate the price of oil to the world. In the next two years, the price increased fourfold.

This contributed — to a degree still disputed by OPEC economists and Western industrialists - to the economic recession in the West during the past two years. Led by the United States, the West now seems to be climbing out of that economic

But increased demand is only part of the explanation for the current soaring production rates. The main reason is the forthcoming conference of the 13 OPEC nations, due to be held in the Gulf state of Qatar Dec. 15.

Conscious of declining demand, OPEC ministers did not increase prices at their last two ministerial meetings, with Saudi Arabia largely responsible for the freeze

This time, the atmosphere is different. The Saudis are said to be agreeable to what is called a nominal" price increase.

Oil experts here say this means a 10 per cent increase. Some, like former Saudi oil minister Abdullah Tariki. now an independent oil consultant here, believe it may go as high as 15

This is well below what the hardliners, led by Iran, Venezuela and Iraq, think they should get. The Shah of Iran has talked of a 25 per cent increase, but last weekend indicated he might settle for a minimum 15 per he will go cent. Although the 25 per cent figure is regarded largely as a bargaining point, there is logic to it from the producers' point of view.

They say that the price of goods they import from the West has risen 35 per cent during the past three years. Take away the 10 per cent oil price increase granted in 1975, and that leaves a justified 25 per cent increase, they say

The prospect of even a 10 per cent increase has geared the major oil companies into action. They are filling every storage tank around the world to the brim before the Dec. 15

NEW YORK (AP) -The stock market headed higher today after recovering from an early decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down as much as 3 points this morning, was up 1.74 at 932.51 at noon.

Advances narrowly led declines among issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange. After its 35-point post-election drop, the market found some buying strength at the 930 level, the lower edge of the range in which the Dow has traded this year, brokers said. Yet the concern about the economy and what a Carter administration will do about it remain unresolved, brokers noted. Leading today's rise were several blue chip and glamor issues. Du Pont gained 1 to 1254; International Business Machines rose 1% to 261%, and McDonald's was up 1 to 531/2. Gold stocks were boosted by a rise in gold prices. ASA Ltd. was up 1% to 21%; Campbell Red Lake was ahead % to 2514, and Homestake Mines rose 1/2 to NYSE volume at noon was a moderate 7.94 million milion in the same period Tuesday. The Big Board's most active stock was Rserve Oil shares compared with 8.07

& Gas, up 11/2 to 171/4. The NYSE composite index at noon was up .13 to 53.27 and the American Stock Exchange market value

index was up .05 to 98.66.

California condors losing fight to survive

By ROBERT A. JONES The Los Angeles Times

OJAI, Calif. - Only three years ago, visitors could drive to the top of Mt. Pinos east of here and watch California condors circle lazily in the afternoon sky. Their great wings, spread to catch the warm up. drafts, peering downward for signs of the dead and dying, flocks of 10 or 15 condors would loop and swing through the air in a nearly hypnotic ballet.

If not the most spectacular show in nature it was surely one of the most peaceful, and John Borneman. a naturalist here with the Audubon Society, used to recommend it to his friends. But no more. "Even in 1973 I could almost guarantee people that they could drive up and see condors," Borneman says. "These days, it would be a futile gesture Chances are that you would see nothing. It's not that the condors have moved somewhere else; they're just not there.' The California condor, which once roamed the entire pacific Coast from Canada to Baja California, is losing its struggle for existence. While it was once hoped that establishment of the 55,000-acre federal condor sanctuary near here and extensive regulation of human activity in the area would result in a rejuvenation of the condor population, wildlife specialists now have concluded that these efforts have failed. For unknown reasons the condors have stopped reproducing at historical rates, and the last remaining colony of the largest birds to roam the North American continent now contains about 45 members - 10 fewer than a decade ago. The species is slipping away in what naturalists unanimously agree is a terminal decline.

The only hope, these scientists say, lies in a drastic plan to capture some of the remaining birds and attempt to breed them in captivity. Such breeding never has been tried before with this species, and the wildlife officials concede the plan is a gamble that could do more harm than good. But not to try it, they say, would insure the California condor's extinction

The proposal, designed by a government. sponsored group called the Condor Recovery Team. has been forwarded to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for approval. In the meantime, it has caused a heated controversy within the environmental community, leaving two of the nation's largest conservation organizations at opposite ends of the debate.

The Sierra Club's Southern California region has opposed the program, largely on the grounds that successful techniques of breeding and subsequent reintroduction of the young birds to the wild have not been developed. Until they are, the Sierra Club maintains, the condors should be left alone.

Dorothy Conlon, former chairman of the Wildlife Committee for the Sierra Club's Los Angeles Chapter, praised the past efforts of the Condor Recovery Team but described the captive breeding proposal as having "a very low chance of success." 'These birds are extremely sensitive creatures.'

she said. "We fear that young birds, once raised in captivity, will never be returned successfully to the wild. And what we'll end up with is birds in a zoo. Meanwhile, the New York-based national Audubon Society in large part supports the program. While its board of directors has not taken an official position. a society official said the organization's staff plans to recommend approval to the board. Audubon Society naturalist Borneman, in fact, is a member of the Condor Recovery Team and has played a key role in developing the captive breeding proposal. After devoting a decade of study and field work to the condor's survival problems, Borneman says he is convinced that captive breeding represents their only hope of survival. 'We don't have all the answers," Borneman says

'We will be trying things for the first time and no one can guarantee success. We do not know that it looks good on paper, and we also know that we're running out of time if we're going to save the species." The proposal calls for the capture of three birds, a male-female pair and an additional male that hopefully will mate with Topatopa, now at the Los Angeles Zoo and the only California condor currently in captivity. Two weeks ago it was hoped that the capture of only two birds would be necessary. A wounded condor. later named Tehachapi, had been found in the mountains near Bakersfield and taken to the zoo for treatment and recovery. A team of veterinarians was flown to Los Angeles in an attempt to save the bird but after amputation of its wing. Tehachapi died. One naturalist later remarked that the bird's death reduced the entire population of condors by about 2

The condors will be captured in what are known as 'bow net traps." When a condor comes to feed on bait placed in the middle of the trap, two large hoops of netting will spring upward, enclosing the bird. The captured condor will then be transported to the Los. Angeles Zoo or, possibly, a separate breeding facili-

Sanford Wilbur, chairman of the recovery team. and other members of the group believe the scheme will work largely because of success with a similar breeding program using Andean condors.

Enriched Flavor, breakthrough brings unprecedented taste to low tar smoking.

By "cracking" cigarette smoke down into separate ingredients, researchers at Philip Morris discovered very special "key" flavor units that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

The discovery is called 'Enriched Flavor'.

The cigarette packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco is MERIT. At 9 mg., one of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

Yet, MERIT actually packs the taste of cigarettes having more tar.

© Philip Morris Inc. 1976

9 mg."tar;" 0.7 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health. Up to 60% more tar.

If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Tests Verify Taste

9 mg. tar MERIT was tastetested against current leading low tar cigarettes ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of smokers were tested. The majority reported that even if the cigarette tested had up to 60% more tar than MERIT, MERIT delivered as much—or more—taste.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.
Now smoke the cigarette.
