That bright gold disk Midlanders may have missed the past two days is expected to return today, as the weatherman predicts gradual clearing and not-so-cold weather

Skies should remain partly cloudy and temperatures be somewhat warmer tonight, said a spokesman at the National Weather Services at the Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Monday should be sunny and considerably warmer.

The high today should reach the lower 40s, followed by a low tonight in the lower 30s. The high Monday should reach into the upper 50s. Winds tonight will be from the southwest at 10 to 15 mph.

Heavy snow warnings were announced for Saturday night in Midland and Lubbock, and traveler's advisories for hazardous driving conditions remained in effect this morning in San Angelo, El Paso and Snow continued to fall late Saturday night in cities in the Midland area.

Since about 5 p.m. Friday when the snow began, the following cities had received this much accumulated snow: Andrews four to six inches:

A customer innocently wheels a baby carriage through a store and the Midland High School distributive education student, working as a store clerk, immediately becomes alert.

He remembers that he was told in class that baby carriages are an ideal ool for shoplifters.

Part of the distributive education (DE) training program at Midland High is a unit in shoplifting — what to look for and what to do if a shoplifter is spotted. The unit is taught by Midland police Sgt. Fred Johnson.

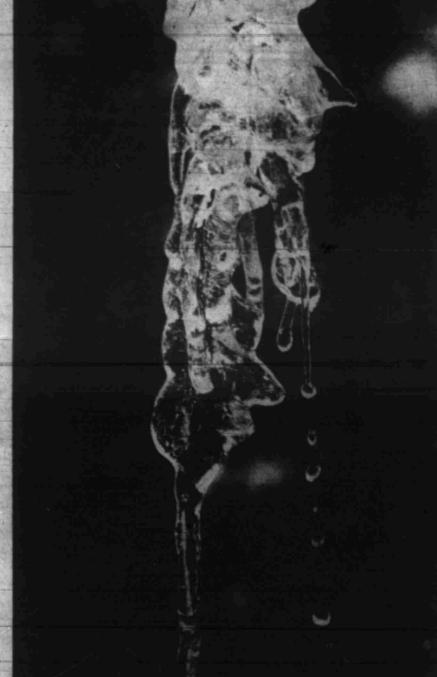

The purpose of the program is twofold, to protect the employer and to make the student more valuable to the employer because of his training, teacher Reuben Vargas said.

The students pay attention because many of them already have seen or been involved with catching a hoplifter, Vargas said.

Of 17 students in one DE II. class, 11 have been involved in the apprehension of a shoplifter, he said.

Sometimes the benefits of the unit on shoplifting can be seen directly. Vargas said one year a student caught a shoplifter stealing 30 cartons of

He suggested the office of vice president be abolished.

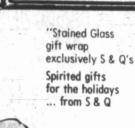

Mr. Dooley, the Irish saloon keeper of Peter Finley Dunne's writings, put it this way: "Th' vice prisidincy ... isn't a crime exactly. Ye can't be sint to jail f'r it, but it's kind iv a disgrace. It's like writin' anonymous letters."

Walter Frederick Mondale, 48, reflective after a week's holiday at Caneel Bay Plantation, the Rockefeller-owned resort on this Virgin Island, found himself possessed of no small amount of puckish humor about the job.

He told this story: Rockefeller and Sen. Hubert Humphrey, another one-time occupant of the vice presidency, had prepared an

Under the Constitution, vice presidents do two things: One, preside over the Senate, a job that can be - and frequently is turned over to one of the senators. Two, be ready if something happens to the president.

But Mondale, while he was still campaigning, said he and Carter had discussed "a substantial role (for the vice president) in both domestic and foreign policy.' Mondale said he plans to play a key part in Carter's promised attempts to achieve a "long overdue reorganization" of the federal bureaucracy. He said he would head a task force on the federal fight against crime. And he said he will be an om-budsman for the cities in the Jimmy Carter administration. "I read a wide range of briefing papers which have been prepared by the transition group," Mondale told reporters. "I've read some materials which my staff prepared on the vice presidency. We've been working very closely with Gov. Carter."

Syrians executing Beruit peace

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Three more Syrian armored brigades moved into position Saturday for the final phase of a plan to halt fighting in Beirut after 19 months of civil war. Christian sources said one 3,000man brigade was moving toward the central Lebanese Chouf Mountains to protect Christian villages there surrounded by Druze Moslem warriors and their Palestinian allies.

Two other brigades were moving toward Beirut to reinforce 6,000 Syrian troops already in and around the capital, they added. Syrian officers said their tanks and armored cars would move today into the embattled city center and other flash-

Palestinian guerrillas of the socalled rejection front told newsmen that they had orders to accept the Syrian peacekeepers without resistance. This is despite claims from their leadership that the Syrian intervention here is designed to bring the guerrillas to heel.

But in the meantime, sporadic shelling and sniping continued in the once-lively commercial district near the Mediterranean port, now lying in ruins with sunken ships blocking the

"We will abide by the ceasefire decision," said a guerrilla of the Iragi-backed Arab Liberation Front, fighting near the port. "But our command has told us that we should respond to any fire on us. We respond with strength sufficient to make sure they don't fire on us again."

Scattered shelling into residential districts also continued on both sides of the three-mile line dividing Beirut. Hospital and militia sources estimated more than 15 killed in the last 24-hour period.

The rejection front, made up of groups hostile to any negotiation with Israel, controls the first mile of the Beirut battle zone. It leads up from beehive of markets and stalls that once was the center of Middle East commerce.

The front's rejection, at least in principle, of an Arab plan for ending the Lebanese war had raised fears that Syrian peacekeepers would meet resistance. But the orders to welcome Syrians seemed to assure a generally peaceful occupation of battle zones.

Beirut newspapers were unanimous in predicting that the takeover was slated for this morning. They said the delay, gave Syrians time to reinforce and take on peacekeepers from other Arab countries to remove the stigma of an all-Syrian operation.

and an overload of paperwork at Camarillo, Roberts said: "To really supervise patients under those circumstances - you can't do it."

The grand jury — unlike most, the hearings are open to the public — is investigating 13 deaths which prosecutors have said may result in criminal charges and 42 other questionable deaths out of more than 200 at Camarillo in the last four years.

Patients died by strangulation, drug overdose, suspicious fire, drowning and apparent starvation, the grand jury has been told. The investigation comes on the heels of a year-long inquiry by the Ventura County district attorney's office.

The situation at Camarillo, apparently, is part of a larger problem that reaches back into the administration of former Gov. Ronald Reagan, who left office in 1974. And it's not simply a shortage of money, a legislative committee said recently, but a lack of decisiveness on how to spend available funds.

Meals on Wheels asks funds for continuation drive to raise money from local sources to insure that the service to Midland's senior citizens continues.

The service, which provides hot, nutritious meals to home-bound senior citizens, operates under a contract from the Texas Department of Public Welfare

One of the provisions of the contract is that 25 per cent of the program's cost be from local matching funds, William T. Shaner, chairman of Midland Senior Citizens, Inc., said. Between $5,000 and $6,000 is needed to meet the program's obligations under its contract, he said.

Meals on Wheels is operated by Midland Senior Citizens Inc., a nonprofit organization which has had the contract with the Department of Public Welfare since its formation in October 1974, Shaner.said.

Before that, the program had operated under a grant from the Governor's Committee on Aging.

Five meals per week are provided to Midland County welfare clients 260 days per year. Participants contribute toward the cost of the meals on a sliding scale according to their income. Midland County has agreed to contribute revenue sharing funds to help pay for the raw food, Shaner

The program now is limited to 50 recipients because of financial limitations. A waiting list is maintained to allow prompt additions as those no longer needing the service are dropped.

Elizabeth Glenn is director-dietician for the program. Additional information about the program and the fund drive may be obtained by calling Shaner at 683-3515 or Mrs. Elizabeth Glenn at 682-1365 or 682-7387, ext. 359.

alerted in class on what to beware. Bill Rouse, who also teaches DE at Midland High, has prepared an outline on things students should do. Six types of potential shoplifters are listed: persons wearing loose baggy clothing; persons carrying loosely folded umbrellas, shopping bags or folded newspapers; women carrying open handbags dangling from one arm; tipsy customers; customers with baby carriages, and customers who attempt to divert the clerk's interest (they may be working with an accomplice who pilfers while the clerk's attention is elsewhere). The students are told to look out for everything but be careful and be courteous.

"Everybody who walks in the store isn't a suspect," Vargas said.

The clerk should never make an accusation unless he is absolutely sure of the person's guilt, Rouse said, adding that he can't be sure if he has lost sight of the customer for a

The teachers said no item is immune to theft. The hottest item in grocery stores now, students tell them, is meat. Women shoplifters frequently hide a piece of meat between their legs, Rouse said.

But even a large television set can be stolen if the thief is bold enough to walk in and take it and the clerk is not alert, they said.

The students are told to ask for a sales slip when giving a refund for returned merchandise because shoplifters sometimes steal an item and return for a refund, Rouse said. "It's an unbelievable problem," he said. Some shoplifters will create a diversion. In a recent case involving one of the DE students, a "customer" put a coat on layaway and wrote a check for the deposit. But she also stole another coat and the check for the first one was a bad check, at that, Rouse said.

Store policies on handling shoplifting vary and the students are told to check with the management to find out what they are, Vargas said.

Proud bird may soar againsoon

Continental's proud bird may be airborne again next week, if pilots and management can work out an agreement on the order in which pilots return to work when service resumes.

Basic contract provisions which led to the pilots' strike have been settled and negotiations are in progress on a back-to-work agreement which would spell out the order in which pilots are called back to work, J. A. Daley. assistant director of public relations for Continental Airlines, said. Continental pilots have been on strike since Oct. 23. Daley said he is "very, very hopeful" that an agreement which would end the strike will be reached so that service can resume early this

About 60 per cent of full service can be started the day after agreement is reached, with full service being resumed within about 30 days, he

The speed with which full service is reached will vary from city to city and depend in part on the number of passenger reservations made.

"We've been out now for over 21 days and we presume passengers who have made reservations made them with other carriers," Daley said.

All Continental flights have been cancelled through Monday and will be cancelled for each 24-hour period after that until the settlement is reached, he said.

Accident hospitalizes Midlanders

Two Midland residents were in satisfactory condition late Saturday in Midland Memorial Hospital with injuries they received in a traffic accident about 10:30 p.m. Friday in Dawson County

Gene Coker and June Coker were transferred from a Lamesa hospital Friday afternoon

Gene Coker had a fractured leg, and both of June Coker's legs were fractured, a Midland Memorial spokesman said.

No further information about the accident was available late Saturday from the Texas Department of Public Safety in Lamesa which investigated the accident.

Facility closed

Due to the icy weather, the Taylor Brown-Sarah Dorsey House will be closed today, Mrs. Nancy McKinley said. Today's monthly meeting of the Midland Historical Society has been canceled, also because of the weather, she said.

There are two schools of thought among businessmen on the best way to combat the problem, Rouse explained. One is to let the customer know what security measures are being used and the other is to keep them secret so that more shoplifters are caught. The theory behind having obvious security is that it may deter shoplifting, Rouse said.

In addition to training store clerks to be alert, many stores use devices such as one-way mirrors or closedcircuit television. Some stores also employ floor walkers to pose as customers, Rouse said. Vargas said students feel good when they have helped catch a shoplifter because of their loyalty to the store that employs them. Divided loyalty between the store and friends from school is not a problem - students will not allow their friends to steal, Vargas said. "You and I probably pay for everything that's stolen," Vargas said, because the store owner has to raise prices to pay for lost mer-Snow, football

Although Johnson and a few local department stores contacted by The Reporter-Telegram would not hazard a guess as to the dollar loss Midland merchants attribute to shoplifting, Johnson did say prices could be 50 per cent lower if shoplifting could be

Fortunately, the area is is no longer on the professional shoplifting circuit as it was in the early 1960's when Johnson helped crack a ring of shaplifters that worked stores in the Midland-Odessa area as part of a multi-city shoplifting run which also included Houston, San Antonio and

San Angelo. At the time of their arrest in Odessa, Johnson said, the foursome had amassed $5,000 worth of merchandise in their car fron area stores. Some less than usual shoplifters

Johnson has seen working this area have been a normal-sized woman teamed up with a midget. The woman would keep her hands clearly visible while the midget, who was no higher than a counter-top, would stuff items into a purse while screened from view of store personnel by his partner.

Others Johnson has seen may leave a store about nine months more pregnant than when they entered.

And, after spending most of Thursday morning at Lee High School (where I was "lecturing" three English classes on journalism and humor) and Thursday afternoon at the Nita Stewart Haley museum and library (where Director Don Hedgepeth was lecturng and singing to Jones, Milam, and Bowie third graders on history), I was convinced. From what I saw of Midland students young and older- brighteyed, inquisitive, polite, but with minds of their own-I'm prepared to assert there are no schools in Indiana any better than those I've seen in

I was particularly impressed with the "sing-along" of historical songs conducted by Hedgepeth and entered into enthusiastically and knowledgeably by nearly a hundred youngsters. (And I would say the cultural integration seems to be off to good start as blond and redhaired kids cavorted matter-of-factly with curly headed black and dark-eyed brown scholars.)

It was, in fact, an impromptu exercise in pure Americanism as they lifted their tinkly voices together in such tributes to the "olden days" as Franklin Delano Roosevelt's favorite song, "Home on the Range," and that magnificent paean to unity by the guy whose views weren't always that well received during his lifetime, Woody Guthrie and his "This Land is Your Land.

Snow White finders may have clues

DALLAS - An anonymous wreath and a woman in a scarlet dress are clues that Donna and Walter Baldree hope will lead them to the mother of a dead infant girl they found while searching an apartment complex trash bin last week for recyclable aluminum cans.

'There was just something about that wreath," said Mrs. Baldree. "It was the biggest one anyone sent to the funeral. But inside the envelope that came with it was just a cold, blank

Mrs. Baldree thinks the expensive wreath was sent by the same young woman "in a scarlet red dress" who along with an older, well-dressed woman visited the funeral home this week where the infant the Baldrees named "Snow White" was viewed in an open casket.

"I believe she was the mother," said Mrs. Baldree, sitting in her four-room East Dallas apartment, surrounded by the wilted flowers left over from Thursday's graveside services. "Whoever she was, she had to be dragged in there by her mother to look at the baby."

The Baldrees vow to find the person who placed the newborn baby in a white plastic bag and tossed her into a garbage dumpster where the couple found her Nov. 5 while searching for aluminum cans they could resell for 15 cents a pound to support themselves and their two little girls, Sonja, 6, and Judy, 3. 'We're not going to stop digging, hounding and aggravating people until the mother is brought to light," Mrs Baldree said. Police investigators have been unable to find the baby's mother and are awaiting a ruling on the cause of death. which a medical examiners spokesman said might take four to six weeks. The Baldrees, given legal authority over the infant's remains by county officials earlier this week, buried the infant at Restland Cemetery, in a funeral service Mrs. Baldree paid for in part by pawning her diamond ring.

'All my life I've been very close to my own children," said Mrs. Baldree, whose youngest daughter is the only surviving mem? triplets born in 1973. "We may be poor but rich because we are able to love our children."

Mrs. Baldree said she named the infant found in the trash can "Snow White" after the fairy tale heroine

'I remember every fairy tale my mother ever told me and I just wanted a lily white name for that lily white baby we found," she said.

Although the Baldrees admit to "doing pretty well" sifting the items thrown away by more affulent Dallasites, they say their days of searching through trash containers ended the Friday they found the infant's body.

"I'll never open another plastic bag as long as I live," said Baldree.

"I just don't want that little girl forgotten." Donna Baldree says.

UPS shutdown reported ending

WASHINGTON (AP) - An informed source says there is a tentative agreement between the Teamsters Union and United Parcel Service to end the strike that has shut down UPS operations in 15 eastern states for more than eight weeks.

But official spokesmen have not confirmed the settlement and say negotiations will continue this

A source told The Associated Press that although a tentative agreement had been reached, the parties were not ready to make the formal announcement Friday. The source said there will be weekend talks to work out specific contract language and then bring in local negotiating officials for their approval early

A National Mediation Service spokesman said negotiations were continuing "and things look pretty good, but I had better not say any more than that at William McCarthy, chairman of the Teamsters negotiating committee in the dispute, said, "We're. still negotiating, without any question, and we've been negotiating right along. And we're going to negotiate over the weekend.

Provo citizenry ready to join firing squad

PROVO, Utah - Spencer McGrath gave Gary Mark Gilmore a good job, and an extra $10 to $20 a week out of his own pocket. He fixed Gilmore's car and kept Gilmore on the payroll even when the ex-convict took to drinking and showing up late for who runs an insulation factory and who has helped many ex-cons, says he would willingly serve on the firing squad Gilmore wants to have execute him "just to show Gary that laws do apply to him.

"Gary wants the firing squad because he doesn't believe he will die," McGrath said. "Gary was I'm Gary Gilmore.'

"He just doesn't believe laws apply to him," McGrath said shaking his

Gilmore, 35, has said that he wants to die in atonement for the brutal slaying last July 20 of Bennie Bushnell, 25, a Brigham Young University student working as a night clerk at the City Center Motel.

Bushnell complied with Gilmore's order to lie face-down on the floor behind the cash register during a robbery. Gilmore than put a .22 caliber automatic pistol to the back of Bushnell's head and fired. Bushnell's pregnant wife may have been saved only because she was out of sight in an adjoining washroom at the time of the Gilmore is also accused of executing Max David Jensen, 24, a BYU law student the night before during a gas station robbery.

Bushnell and Jensen were apparently slain to make sure no witnesses to the robberies would be around to identify Gilmore from the witness stand and send him back to jail, as an armed robbery victim of Gilmore's did in Oregon a dozen years

The brutality of the crimes aroused deep passions in many who live in this quite center of Mormon academic

Utah state prison officials have on file the names of dozens of persons who have volunteered for the Gilmore firing squad, but have declined to release any names, even to members of their own staff. Over at the old gas station and grocery store that serves as the center of business activity in tiny Bluffdale, three miles from the prison, a half dozen young men were discussing the other day Gilmore's request to "die like a man." All agreed he should be executed and all said they were willing to do the job.

'If you murder someone you ought to die for it," said one of the young men. "That's the way they did it in ancient Israel under the Law of Moses.

Many here subscribe to the Mormon doctrine of blood atonement, an Old Testament teaching that those who murder and commit certain other crimes should be put to death to atone for their sins. Brigham Young, who brought the Mormons to Utah in 1847, once said that blood atonement offered the only hope a murderer had for salvation and to escape "outer darkness," the place out of the presence of holy beings where Mormons believe only the most evil of spirits are sent after death.

But many here, while saying they believe in the death penalty, especially in crimes as brutal as Gilmore's, also say they wouldn't take part in the execution itself.

"You couldn't drag me up there," said Noall T. Wooten, the Utah county attorney who prosecuted Gilmore. "I've done my job, I asked for and got the death penalty - and I believe in it.

But execution is a dirty, messy job and I don't want to be part of it.'

By law prison officials must "in-'Wooten to the execution. Wooten said he interprets that to mean he may decline the invitation.

Provo Police Chief Swen Nielsen said he was discussing the issue with some of his detectives the other day and found none had any relish for the task, though some said they would be in the firing squad if requested.

"If no one else would do it and the warden called up and said 'You put the case together. Now you come and finish it because it's your duty,' then some of the men would go," Nielsen said. But some of the men told their chief "they couldn't live with themselves" if they did and so would refuse if asked.

"I guess the ultimate test of whether you believe in the death penalty is whether it is something in the abstract or whether you're willing to take part in the execution," Nielsen said. "I wouldn't want to, but I would if I had to."

Some of the young men at the Bluffdale service station said they agreed with Denis Boaz, the would-be freelance writer who is acting as Gilmore's counsel while preparing an article about Gilmore, that firing squad members should not be police officers who investigated either the Bushnell or Jensen murders.

One young man suggested that firing squads should be picked the same way juries are. He said letters could be sent to voters and then instead of attorneys questioning them. each prospective executioner would take a marksmanship test.

Samuel W. Smith, the Utah state prison warden, has refused to reveal anything about how the firing squad will be picked. Other prison sources, however, said they expect lawmen to be recruited for the job, which traditionally pays $75.

Gilmore's execution had been set for Monday morning, but Gov. Calvin Rampton stayed the execution until the Utah Pardons Board can consider the issue at its next meeting at the prison Wednesday. Gilmore, through Boaz, has termed Rampton's stay "cruelly insensitive" to his desire to be executed.

Several legal authorities in Utah, who declined to be identified, said they believe Rampton's action may be part of an effort to avoid federal review of Gilmore's sentence.

They noted that Rampton, initialing the stay, said he believed the state had as much right as the defendant to review the appropriateness of a sentence, and that Rampton's action might diminish grounds under which the American Civil Liberties Union and other liberal organizations might seek federal review.

Boaz and others who have talked with Gilmore say that although he is not a Mormon he believes in the concept of blood atonement. He has also said that he believes that he will be reincarnated, they report. If he is not executed, Boaz and these other sources say, Gilmore believes he will "not have set things right" for his

Boaz, prison chaplain Cline Campbell, a Mormon who has been invited to the execution by Gilmore, and others also say they believe Gilmore will kill himself if the execution is put off for very long. Rampton's action could result in a delay of several months and state officials have indicated they believed it would be at least 35 days until Gilmore could be executed. Gilmore could be executed if the Pardons Board upholds the sentence. The board could also commute Gilmore's sentence to life in

"In the absence of criminal intelligence information, law enforcement, agencies would be severely and perhaps fatally hampered in efforts to curtail criminal activity and to plan strong and effective counter measures, including the solution of crimes," the DPS director said. Speir commented after the Texas Civil Liberties Union asked Gov. Dolph Briscoe to determine if private organizations are using public facilities and public employe time in Texas. The letter concerned the Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit (LEIU) which operates nationally and the Texas Law Enforcement United Association which has about 50 member agencies in Texas.

Speir said the Texas organization had the purpose of the development of working relationships between law enforcement agencies and the exchange of information on organized eriminal activity among members, federal agencies and police in neighboring states.

A healthy problem

in January, is faced with a big problem - an unusual problem: a surplus of funds which could reach $3 billion.

And, quite naturally, there will be a run on the surplus for funding programs and projects of various kinds — some good and some not so meritorious.

Sounds good, on the surface, having such a surplus of funds in state government - almost unbelievable in this day and age and it is great if the funds are handled properly and spent wisely. Fiscal responsibility must be practiced.

House Speaker Bill Clayton said last week in Dallas that care must be exercised in the next legislative session not to spend surplus funds on programs which would cause costs to continue.

He said that a lot of the legislators will be working to get the surplus money into something which will cost more in the future but that he favors using it for "something that won't cause ongoing costs."

Clayton explained also that the first bills, which were prefiled last Monday for the 1977 session indicate an interest in using the surplus for public school financing, paying off some of the state's bonded indebtedness, and repealing the sales tax on utilities. And the state's highway system most certainly could use some of

The Texas Legislature, meeting the funds. There also will be other causes.

> But again, caution must be the watchword, if the maximum benefit is to be realized.

Clayton also pointed out in one of his Dallas appearances that a high priority in the upcoming session should go to "getting a handle" on the growth of state government.

He explained that in 1966, the state used 733,000 square feet of office space outside state-owned buildings. This year, it is using 4.9 million square feet of rentable space outside state-owned buildings.

This is amazing, and when one adds to the rental cost, the cost of the increased personnel occupying the space, the overall cost figure really is something else.

The speaker also explained another factor which has concerned some persons, in connection with the surplus funds. He said the Legislature must either spend its surplus or rebate it, since there is no constitutional question as to whether it can be invested to earn money for the state. He said he could see nothing wrong with the theory of rebating

The Legislature will have its work cut out for it. The fund surplus is only one of many other problems it will face. Good luck is beamed down Austin way.

Middlecade census

The move to a middlecade census, signed into law by President Ford, acknowledges the changing pace of life in the United States.

The American population has grown and become more mobile during the second half of the 20th Century. Federal policies, business initiatives, local government needs are tied to identification of trends within the great society.

The traditional method of counting and categorizing the nation's people every 10 years lags behind the changes in the

WASHINGTON MERRY — GO — ROUND

Foreign intrigue in U.S. politics

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - For years, foreign potentates have been passing out fancy gifts and offering allexpenses-paid junkets to American politicians. In return, the politicians have helped them squeeze billions out of the U.S. Treasury.

This exchange of petty payoffs for American aid has turned out to be the poorest economics since the Indians sold Manhattan Island to the Dutch for $24 worth of beads. More than one dictator has also succeeded in dragging the United States into his private coups and conspiracies.

The Justice Dept. finally got around last year to investigating South Korea's efforts to influence U.S. policy. We reported on July 17, 1975, that South Korea's KCIA allegedly "has set up illegal front groups to manipulate U.S. public opinion and has tried to buy off U.S. congressmen.

But the South Korean operation has been amateurish compared to the manipulations of some other foreign clients. No one has entertained Washington politicians more lavishly and received more U.S. benefits in return, for example, than has the shah of Iran. Whatever the shah wants in Washington, the shah seems

China lobby. This was the appellation bestowed on a hard core of hired lobbyists, influential friends and outspoken advocates of the late Chiang Kai-shek. Few other lobbies exerted such relentless pressure on American foreign policy. The formidable Nationalist operation not only established the Open Pocketbook policy toward Taiwan but came close to involving the United States in a war on the Chinese mainland. A host of tinhorn tyrants have learned that it pays to pamper Washington politicians. The returns on these favors, invariably, have been staggering. Among those who have been repaid for their hospitality in American aid are some of the world's most notorious dictators.

To name just a few, there have been Chile's Augusto Pinochet, the Dominican Republic's late Rafael Trujillo, Haiti's late "Papa Doc" Duvalier, Nicaragua's Luis Somoza, Portugal's late Antonio Salazar and Spain's late Francisco Franco.

All of them wined dined and retained Washington politicians. Some also kicked in campaign contributions; others offered cash in sealed envelopes. In 1960, for example, we traced $10,000 in contributions fron the Somoza family to John F. Kennedy's presidential drive. An intermediary told us he also delivered $5,000 in cash to Richard Nixon from the Somozas.

Salazar and Franco always gave the red-carpet treatment to members of Congress who could be lured into their corner of Europe.

Trujillo, for example, ran his tight little island with savage, if efficient, brutality. Yet here was a typical exchange on the Senate floor between two of his American admirers, Sens. James Eastland, D.-Miss., and the late Allen Ellender, D.-La.:

"Is it not true," inquired Eastland. 'that Trujillo has been a friend of the United States?" "I do not believe there is any doubt about that ...," agreed Ellender.

"Did the senator from Louisiana find that the people there were happy and contented?" asked Eastland. Again Ellender assented. They dismissed Trujillo's brutality with the statement that "it takes a strong arm to rule in countries of that sort.'

Today, the United States is building up the shah of Iran as the strongest power on the Persian Gulf. This is alienating the great Arab oil powers, particularly Saudi Arabia, which has been a close friend of the United States. The Saudis tried to hold down world oil prices, incidentally, while the shah did his best to boost them. Yet the shah always manages to work his way in Washington

President Richard Nixon, following his 1972 visit to Russia, stopped by Teheran and gave the shah virtually a blank check to purchase whatever miliiary supplies he wanted from the United States. Subsequently, a former Justice Dept. official, who had traveled extensively in Iran, reported to the Senate Watergate Committee that the shah had delivered huge sums to Nixon.

We also spent six months checking into reports that the shah had funneled money to Washington politicians by way of Mexico. We made calls to Teheran, Geneva, Bonn, Mexico City and other faraway places. Separate sources, all of them anti-shah and therefore suspect, told us that the shah had transferred more than $1 million from his personal numbered accounts in Switzerland to the Banco de Londres y Mexico in Mexico City for use in U.S. political circles.

Swiss banking sources confirmed that the shah had sent money to Mexico from the Schweizerische Bank Geselshaft. We could get no reliable confirmation, however, that the money ever reached anyone in been to increase the power of government and centralize it in the hands of a few.

Is the lust for power over others, as implied by Jefferson, a form of lunacy or mental illness? Historical case after case suggests that it is.

But political despotism as a mental disease is always presented as the historical models such as Stalin or

Robert Nisbet, Albert Schweitzer professor of humanities at Columbia University, suggests that modern industrial nations like the United States are confronted with what he calls the "new despotism." Writing in his book, "Twilight of Authority" (Oxford University Press, N.Y., 1975), Nisbet suggests that the greatest single revolution of the last century in the political sphere has been the transfer of power from constitutionally elected "visible" offices, such as president, to an 'invisible'' government composed of bureaucracies, commissions, agencies and departments largely autonomous from the constitutional offices and officials who created them in the first place.

"In the name of education, welfare. taxation, safety, health, environment and other laudable ends," observes Nisbet, "the new despotism confronts us at every turn. Its effectiveness lies in part through liaison with humanitarian rather than nakedly exploitative objectives,"

Despite the enormous body of evidence of how destructive this invisible and largely unaccountable government has become and continues to be to individual liberty and the personal lives of citizens, political leaders continue to cloak the new despotism in humanitarian motives. A closer relationship with professional bureaucrats in this town suggests that the average bureaucrat's motivation, beyond a steady paycheck, is the false sense of self-esteem he or she derives from exercising power over other people's lives without ever having to be held accountable for an action or an error. Elected political leaders enjoy no such immunity from mistakes, which can have disastrous consequences for the individual

Here, we believe, you will find the root of the corruption of the original principles of Jefferson, James Madison and the other Founders of the American Republic. Here, too, you will find the source of the deep and pervasive pessimism of millions of Americans toward the process that was expressed in the recent presidential campaign toward the candidates.

In short, the power lust of individuals within the invisible government from which they gain a sense of false self-esteem has led to a corresponding loss of self-esteem on the part of millions of Americans who feel they no longer are in control of their lives but are in the grips of government bureaucrats who are faceless, nameless and unaccountable:

Until this evil of an invisible government is denied its humanitarian mantle and the motivation of its members is seen as a form of mental illness - the lust for power - the election of political officials will continue to be viewed by millions of "apathetic" voters as a farce at best and a fraud at worst.

ART BUCHWALD The job hunters' problems happen during every change of administration in Washington, there is a great deal of job hunting going on right now. The problem for many presidential appointees is that it's very difficult to go back to what they were doing before they got into the government. Having once tasted the power of running a billion-dollar federal bureau it's hard to return to selling insurance or working on a detergent account for J. Walter Thompson.

Unfortunately, government experience does not necessarily mean that you're qualified to handle an important job in the private sector.

Here is an example of what I mean. "Please sit down, Mr. Maximum. Mr. Ratcliffe of the Republican National Committee spoke very highly of you. I see here you're looking for a position with our firm."

"Yes, sir. For the past eight years I was Director of the U.S. Government Inter-Office Affairs Council on Coordination and Rectification. It was one of the highest management jobs in Washington.

'What exactly did you do?'' "Our department was in charge of reviewing position papers on rectification of abuses of nonregulatory agencies involved in the areas of essential input and output, and to recommend to the White House their long-range effects on the economy."

"Could you be more specific?" "I'm sorry, I didn't understand the

'What was your role in the department?"

"I was in charge of the entire operation. My staff brought me papers and I either signed them or refused to sign them. In many cases I advised that they be passed on to another bureau. In some instances I recommended hearings, and in others turned over the matter to the Justice Department.

'Mr. Maximum, that's all very interesting, but since you are applying for a job as Executive Vice President of this corporation we're trying to find out what kind of contribution you could make here."

"I believe my strength would be in budget planning. I had 20,000 people working for me and our yearly budget was $1.5 billion. It was a great responsibility because if we didn't spend all the money in the fiscal year we had to give it back to the Treasury. I'm proud to say I always managed to spend every cent of it.'

'That's very good, Mr. Maximum, when you're working for the government. But when you're working for a private company the job of an executive is to save the corporation

"Why would you want to do that?" "Well, we like to show a profit at the end of the year. What's a profit

"It's the money left over, after all our costs and taxes are paid."

"Have mercy on me, Omnipotent One...!"

Public's mood may restrain Carter

By ERNEST CONINE The Los Angeles Times

It's a little early to start feeling sorry for poor Jimmy. Carter has just been elected President. He is bubbling over with optimism that he can provide the leadership that the country so sorely needs. And he is entitled to the usual 100 days - or perhaps even 1,000 days - to prove that his confidence in himself is justified.

However, you don't have to be a cynic, or even a particularly astute analyst, to perceive that the man is in danger of having his arms pulled from their sockets by the contradictory political forces at work in the country. There is little question but that the American people are in a basically conservative, penny-pinching mood. Yet Carter is being told that he owes his election victory to blacks, organized labor and big-city political leaders who, justifiably or not, will be pushing him toward solving problems by throwing money at them.

The penurious mood of the electorate was evident in California as whelmingly against almost everything that involved, or seemed to involve, heavier demands on taxpayers.

It is noteworthy that Carter, who was perceived as a fiscal conservative during the spring primaries, lost ground steadily as his public image, as measured by the polls, took on a more liberal hue. Actually, in his most conservativesounding speeches, the President-government smaller; he only promised to make it work better. Liberals, on the other hand, will find that he managed to make his endorsement of big new spending programs - national health insurance, welfare reform and the like elect never really promised to make growth to produce the tax revenues to pay for them. Cynics can say that this is typical Carteresque fence-straddling. But in fact it is consistent with the attitude of millions of Americans who don't want to turn back the clock, who still turn instinctively to government to correct social injustices and malfunctions in the economy - but who are increasingly disenchanted with government spending if it means high Carter will find it much harder to reconcile these conflicting pressures as President than he did as a presidential candidate.

He obviously believes that he can alleviate a lot of public frustration by reorganizing the government to make it more efficient - and more responsive to actual needs. But in practice he cannot proceed six inches in this direction without running up against the entrenched opposition of the labor unions, which helped elect him but see organizational reform as a threat to their established channels of influence.

In any event, Carter recognizes that organizational rejiggering will not solve such problems as unemployment, hard-core poverty, urban decay and a gravely inadequate energy program. His own activist instincts, plus pressures from the constituencies most responsible for his election, will incline him toward solutions that cost money.

If economic growth materializes as he hopes, he should be able to pay for at least some new spending programs while granting the taxpayers modest relief. But if economic growth proves insufficient to produce the additional revenues, he will be under tremendous pressure from labor unions, black leaders and other key supporters to spend the money anyway. Judging by statements from Carter

- conditional on sufficient economic and his advisers, he is himself inclined to do whatever is necessary to stimulate the economy to faster growth. And if strong inflationary pressures are thereby created, he will depend on some sort of "incomes policy" to keep the lid on.

Copley News Service

It can be argued that the public interest would in fact require Carter to follow such a course, that the most pressing national problems cannot be solved within the confines of a cautious, conservative fiscal policy. But the majority of Americans may be hard to convince.

People, here and in Europe, have learned the hard way that inflation today can produce recession and even worse unemployment tomorrow. Polls indicate that, indeed, the voters are currently more worried about inflation than unemployment.

As for the wage-price restraints that Carter appears to have in mind to keep inflation under control, experience has demonstrated that such measures - whether voluntary or mandatory - never work for long. While they may be welcomed at first, they have a way of becoming very unpopular as they breed shortages and prices end up rising anyway.

Then there is the antispending mood generated by the taxpayer rebellion.

The results of the elections amply demonstrated that growing numbers of voters prefer to forego even worthwhile spending programs if they think the programs portend higher taxes. And this mood, which has been growing for several years, is causing some sweeping proposals for tax ceilings to be taken seriously.

At the federal level, any such formalized spending restraints would almost certainly be a bad idea. But the fact that they are beginning to be proposed by serious people indicates a public mood that may place real limitations on Carter's freedom of

Next session promises to bring more of same

AUSTIN - Less than two months from now, Speaker Bill Clayton and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby will thump their gavels and the 65th session of the Texas Legislature will get underway.

And the bills being prefiled in both the House and Senate indicate that this session should be very much like sessions past - only more so, since a record 4,000 pieces of legislation are being predicted.

No one, of course, can predict what lawmakers will do on some of the major issues facing them, such as public school finance, rising utility bills, increasing crime, highway construction, and demands for more efficient and less costly state government.

Nor can anyone predict what will happen on what appear to be less major - if interesting - issues, such as licensing massage parlor operators (yep, that one is already in the hopper). There are some safe predictions. however, since Texas lawmakers. like King Canute, are faced with limitations on what they can perform. And experience shows that whatever the legislature does, the sky won't fall, nor will the millenium arrive a whit sooner. Whatever Gov. Dolph Briscoe wants, whether on school finance or some other issue, the legislature will change it. Both sides will say the other side is acting from purely political considerations.

Lawmakers will get mad at the press. The press will get mad at the lawmakers. The governor will get mad at both, and vice versa. The public will (a) get mad at all parties, (b) become thoroughly confused, or (c) all of these.

The remark about no man's life. liberty or property being safe while the legislature is in session will be quoted no fewer than 5,000 times.

Some phrase will catch the fancy of lawmakers, and be dragged out over and over until hearers are ready to scream upon hearing it again.

Last session, "bite the bullet" was the No. 1 cliche, with so many bullets being bitten that cases of lead poisoning seemed likely. "Opening Pandora's box' dropped in popularity, since the hinges on that receptacle have almost worn out, but 'opening a can of worms' continued in high esteem.

Some group will come in and ask to be regulated, in order to "help us police our industry." Another group will ask to get out from under "burdensome state regulations."

Everyone will want to trim spending, and the appropriations bill will be bigger than ever before.

State agency heads will warn that if their budgets are reduced beyond the bare-bones minimum they're asking for, that (a) they won't be able to do the job that the public (or lawmakers) want done, and that (b) the federal government will take over, and things will be even worse.

Of course, some things won't be the same, since the top employes on both sides of the rotunda are leaving — by Clayton's action on the House side, and by mutual agreement on the Senate.

A number of the reporters who watched the last session have departed for other pastures, and there will be 38 new members in the House (two of them former members) and two (or three, depending on how you count them) new Senate members (who are former House members).

It also can be predicted that the lawmakers will do an adequate job, when all's said and done, since the state, year in and year out, has managed to muddle along.

It will only be a matter of degree in determining how well, or poorly, lawmakers do, and despite a few disasters now and then, and slips like honoring the Boston Strangler for his population control efforts, their performance is pretty good overall.

Anyway, no one has come up with a better plan, and there doesn't appear to be any way to prevent the session which the lawmakers are probably waiting for with as mixed emotions as anyone else.

and then got another chance in professional baseball with a team in New Haven. Before beginning that job he became friendly with one of the older players and confided in him that he hadn't been able to get ahead in baseball because he had a reputation for being lazy.

"Well," the other man said, "no one knows you up there in New Haven. So practice the "as if" principle; act as if you were full of enthusiasm. When you get out on that field the first day, act as though you were the alivest man in the world. Quit telling yourself you're slow and lazy. Act as though you were motivated with powerful enthusiasm." Bettger ran out on the field that same afternoon, and he took his friend's good advice. Although it was 100 degrees in the shade, he sped round those bases like greased lightning. He acted like a man possessed. He threw the ball so fast it burned the hands of his teammates. And, one time at bat, he got to first safely, went on to slide into second with such force that the baseman dropped the ball, managed to do the same at third, and so got a run on a

He was like a demon on the loose. The next day the New Haven papers said that there had never been such a dynamo of enthusiasm on the local diamond. The fans began to call him 'Pep" Bettger.

Naturally, Bettger sent these clippings back to the manager who had fired him for being lazy. As he points out, "Nothing did it but the assumption of boundless enthusiasm." Acting as if he were enthusiastic, he became in fact en-

He told himself that selling life insurance was the greatest calling known to man and that people needed it as much as they did their daily bread.

Some radiation still detected

By THOMAS KENT

MOSCOW (AP) - Limited microwave radiation still is detected at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow more than one year after State Department specialists in Washington became concerned about possible health dangers to American personnel from the rays.

The State Department on Friday declared Moscow "an unhealthful post" for American Embassy personnel, but made no connection between that and

According to American sources here and in Washington, the United States is "continuing to make its feelings known" to the Soviet government about the microwave radiation, which the Americans say is intentionally directed against the embassy from buildings nearby.

But the reduction of microwaves in about July to a point below the Soviet and American safety standards for microwave equipment appears to have slowed efforts to stop them entirely.

Both President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger spoke out against the radiation early this year and negotiations with the Russians were then reported in progress. But now, American officials say there are no formal talks on the problem.

Although U.S. officials made no public connection between the microwaves and the designation of Moscow as an "unhealthful post," some embassy workers expressed belief the waves could be involved in some way. Officials gave "reported environmental conditions regarding sanitation and disease" in Moscow as the reason for the State Department's ruling, citing the climate, limited medical facilities for Americans and intestinal complaints caused by drinking water. In line with the unhealthy designation, the State Department increased so-called hardship benefits for employes in Moscow from 15 per cent of salary to 20 per cent. They have the choice of taking it in cash or retirement credit.

As for the microwaves, the Soviet Union has denied that any special radiation is directed against the embassy. According to the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, the whole microwave affair is "a trumped-up story from beginning to end." directed by enemies of "good, normal relations between the U.S.S.R. and the United States.'

It claimed that various forms of electromagnetic radiation are common in all big cities with "transportation facilities, television and radio installations." It added that such radiation fields are "a physical phenomenon that is known to every

The most common American speculation about the microwaves is that they are part of a Soviet system to eavesdrop on the embassy or are designed to foil U.S. intelligence-gathering equipment inside the 10-

roof is a forest of antennas.

The microwaves directed against the embassy when, according to U.S. accounts, the Soviets began beaming them from two directions instead of one. The intensity of the microwaves also reached 18 microwatts per square centimeter, more than the Soviets' own published safety standard of 10 microwatts for microwave equipment, American sources said. President Ford sent an appeal to Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev to stop the radiation, reportedly in December or January. A briefing for embassy employes in February sparked the first Western newspaper articles on the problem and public statements by both Ford and Kissinger.

The embassy put wire mesh screens on its windows in February, which remain today. A medical technician arrived from the State Department to take blood tests of embassy employes to see if the microwaves were affecting blood counts. But all the tests, according to U.S. spokesmen in Washington, have revealed no ill effects.

The State Department announced in July that the

The radiation screens on the windows, a spokesman said, reduced first began to concern the Americans late last year radiation inside the embassy to a fraction of a microwatt.

'Our position is still that the microwaves ought to be stopped completely," one American official here said. "It is an unnatural situation, created by man."

The microwaves continue to provide a handy line of speculation to explain mysterious occurrences at the embassy. In September, a Western broadcast journalist interviewing then-Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel Jr. discovered his tape recorder was picking up strange sounds in Stoessel's office.

Although the office was quiet, the machine recorded unusual static, music and sounds of muffled Russian conversation. The ambassador and his aides could offer no explanation as to what caused the noise, which apparently was tied to some electronic field in the embassy area.

Americans turn back to big cars

By OWEN ULLMANN

DETROIT (AP) - After a fling with little cars, Americans reaffirmed their love for the big ones in the 1976 model year. Full size and intermediate models dominated the industry's list of best sellers. Eight of the top 10 new domestic cars sold in the recently ended model year were big - four full size and four midsize - while only two were compacts, industry figures show. The smallest cars - the subcompacts - didn't make the best-seller list for 1976.

By contrast, half of the top 10 sellers in the 1975 model year were compacts or subcompacts, while only two were full size. Auto analysts say the conditions that sparked a romance two years ago between a fickle public and little cars no longer exist. "There isn't as much interest in the lowest-priced, fuelstingiest model," said a sales analyst at Ford Metor Co. "The economy has improved, gasoline prices never went to $1 a gallon - like some people had predicted - and fears of another oil embargo have eased." But at the same time, consumers simply aren't choosing big cars over small ones. Rather, the market is gravitating toward the center

American Motors Corp. felt the switch from small cars most sharply. The only U.S. car maker still in a sales rut, AMC lost a record $51.1 million in the July September quarter and ended up $46.3 million in the red for fiscal 1976, ended Sept. 30.

AMC Chairman Roy D. Chapin Jr. said a "sharp fall-off in passenger car sales during the last half of the fiscal year" was the major reason for AMC's losses. He predicted that segment would regain momentum next year.

AMG's domestic car sales so far this year are off 24 per cent from 1975 levels, while the Big Three auto makers are up 27 per cent.

The list of best sellers for 1976 shows people shopping for small cars bought compacts over subcompacts, while big car buyers took intermediates over full-size models.

The No. I domestic car in the model year was the midsize Oldsmobile Cutlass, which recorded a 67 percent sales gain from 1975 to shove the perennial leader - the full-size Chevrolet - into second place. Sales of the Cutlass, the third-best seller in 1975, were 479,600, while the Chevrolet totaled 457,800, a 9 per cent increase from 1975. The compact Ford Granada moved up from eighth to No. 3 with sales of 404,500, up 67 per cent from 1975. The full-size Ford dropped from second to No. 4 despite a 29 per cent gain to 385,20 sales,

Board okays texts in spite of casualties

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - The State Board of Education approved $33,888,000 worth of new textbooks Saturday, after eliminating four, including a biology text that had a caption stating the "city is sick."

The board also rejected a set of chemistry books that included references to the Beatles and Fidel Castro.

Dr. William Kemp of Houston objected that the caption in "Action Biology" by Allyn and Bacon, Inc., would "prejudice a child's thinking" about cities. He said he lives in the most polluted city in Texas, but a "lot of progress" is being made, as illustrated by the return of fish to waters that were "totally polluted." "Cities are a vibrant part of our time, and I resent propagan-dizing children that cities are sick," he said. Mrs. Jane Wells of Austin said it is "insufficient reason" to remove a textbook because "some members want to take something personally." "I'd feel the same way wherever I lived," Kemp

"There are a lot of areas in my town that are sick," Bean said, "but they are being addressed talked about - and some thing is being done about it."

Children need "diverse" educational tools to "capture their imagination," Mrs. Wells said. "Let's try it (the book). We're not stuck with it for 100 years."

"Perhaps we have captured their imagination, and it's time we moved on and captured their minds," said E. M. Huggins Jr. of Fulshear.

It was Huggins who blew up Thursday over the inclusion of the Beatles and Castro in one thin volume of "Interdisciplinary Approaches to Chemistry.

Book publishers get violation reprimands

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - The State Board of Education voted Saturday to warn textbook publishers that it will take an 'extremely close look' at any violations of adoption procedures.

Dr. William Kemp of Houston said two companies had violated a "no-contact" rule as members of the State Textbook Committee worked on recommendations for $33,880,000 in new textbooks for public

Kemp identified the companies as National Textbook Co. and Encyclopaedia Britannica Education Corp.

He said, however, to punish the companies by removing their texts from the list up for adoption would eliminate options for students in such subjects as "English as a Second Language" and in supplemental readers in Spanish.

"This would impose extreme hardships," Kemp said. His motion, which the board adopted, instructed State Education Commissioner M. L. Brockette to write textbook publishers that the board would take an "extremely close look at all future violations.

A board proclamation prohibits any contact between publishing companies and textbook committee members from July 30 until the committee has made its final recommendations to the board.

More aid to poorer schools urged

The maximum allotment per pupil in districts in which taxable property is valued at below the state average is $56. The board recommended that it be raised to $250.

This and 19 other recommendations on public school finance Saturday would increase the state cost of funding public school education by at least $182.1 million for the 1978-79 biennium

Approximately 10 per cent of Texas' pupils would qualify for the full $250, with many others getting a percentage of that sum.

It said the "determination of local taxpaying ability to support education is the responsibility of the legislature." It added, however, that its "experience under the current law has revealed shortcomings in the use of market value as a measure of local district ability."

The board recommended phasing out state support of county boards of trustees and ex-officio county superintendents for a savings of $5,444,800 or more in the 1978-79 bien-

It also adopted a lengthy recommendation on what fees school districts may charge pupils in keeping with a 1975 attorney general's opinion that stated that the districts could only charge fees specifically authorized by the legislature. The board recommended, for exam-rental fees for band instruments and uniforms but not for lockers or supplies which do not become the pupil's property.

The proposal states that, "No pupil's rights or privileges including the receipt of grades or diplomas may be denied or abridged for nonpayment of fees; but this provision shall not prohibit a school district from taking any action provided by law for the col-lection of such fees authorized."

Alabaman thought silver deal secure

DALLAS (AP) — An Alabama hearing aid salesman who lost $135,000 in an alleged silver swindle has testified he thought the scheme was a "normal no-risk project."

The testimony by K. L. Azar was made Friday in U.S. District Court here in the trial of Kyle G. Bretz, James McCollom, Theodore Dunkle, James Cockrell and Troy Becker.

The government claims they bilked investors out of more than $1 million by falsely claiming they had a secret process for extracting silver ore found in Llano County, Tex.

Azar said he made trips to New York City and the Bahamas to secure loans for Kyle G. Bretz Enterprises and Bretz showed him "over-whelming documents" that indicated the Llano ore had a very high value.

He testified that to help Bretz obtaina $5 million loan, he made a trip to New York City in 1974. His commission for assisting in securing the loan was to be $200,000 and when production of the silver began, he was supposed to get another $2.5 million,

When asked by defense attorneys if he thought that kind of return was "usurious," he replied:

"No, sir, because they were talking about tens of millions of dollars and this was just a drop in the bucket." Azar said he gave Bretz a "temporary loan of $25,000" in October 1974.

He said later he transferred $125,000 that he had borrowed from an Alabama bank to a bank in the Bahamas to be used as security for another loan.

Regional interests may outweigh party harmony

By CLYDE LA MOTTE Reporter-Telegram Washington Oil Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Any hope that a Democratic President and a Congress controlled by Democrats will be able to have a meeting of minds on such issues as energy must be tempered by the fact the regional interests often outweigh interest in political party harmony. There always has been some regional divisions in congress that cut across party lines, but this has increased considerably in recent years and is especially evident regarding

Thus, when a natural gas price decontrol bill comes up in Congress early next year it can be expected that most congressmen from the Northeast and other major consuming areas will oppose it just as vigorously as they have in the past. The fact that many of them are Democrats with a Democrat in the White House is not likely to change this at all.

It can be anticipated, for example that Rep. John Dingell (D.-Mich.) will fight the bill, just as he did this year when he was given credit for playing a key role in the House defeat of the legislation. And there will be continued opposition by may members from New York, Pennsylvania and

On the other hand, members from Texas and other producing states will vote almost solidly to end Federal Power Commission jurisdiction over the wellhead price of "new" natural gas. This applies whether a congressman is a Democrat or a Republican. One factor which may eventually tilt some congressmen from opposition to support of decontrol is that some industries are highly dependent on natural gas, either for use in processing of products or as a feedstock for manufacturing such materials as plastics.

Obviously, if some textile mills in the Carolinas or in Georgia are forced to close down because of a lack of natural gas to be used in finishing the textiles, the congressmen from those districts will become more interested in gas supplies than in gas prices. The same thing applies to other industries in other areas.

To date, however, such shutdowns have not been extensive. For one thing, recent winters have been warmer than normal, thus reducing the need for gas for home and office heating. Also, the declining use of natural gas as a boiler fuel resulting from a forced switch to oil or coal has delayed the full impact of declining domestic natural gas production. And the slow pace of the economy has tended to flatten the demand curve growth. Because there has been no outright crisis yet regarding natural gas supplies, many citizens in the consuming areas are skeptical that shortages exist and that this situation is going to

A common comment heard in the East is that all this talk about fuel shortages is aimed primarily at boosting prices. They suspect that a great deal of gas is being kept off the market intentionally and that this gas

When a Federal Power Commission member or other government official with energy-related responsibilities warns of the danger of shortages and the need to spur domestic development, this is often shrugged off as an indication that such officials are overly influenced by the petroleum industry, especially by the majors.

The regional aspect crops up in many energy situations other than natural gas problems.

Environmental concerns have also played a considerable role. Thus, more nuclear power plants, more coal mining and more offshore oil and gas development want those things done in some other part of the country and not in their own areas. naturally, congressmen tend to reflect the public attitude existing in their districts.

All these things make creation and implementation of a national energy policy defficult.

That's why the new president and the new Congress are going to rough as they seek to cope with the mounting energy problems.

Zarb predicts oil stockpile in future

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) - Energy czar Frank G. Zarb says the nation's energy policy planners over the next 10 years will face a limited number of alternatives.

The head of the Federal Energy Administration took a look at the future while forecasting a smooth transition between the Ford and Carter administrations.

Over the next decade, Zarb said, energy planners will work toward a strategic petroleum stockpile, maximizing domestic oil and gas production, increasing coal and nuclear power output, and conservation

"If these things all work moderately well, oil imports will be down to no more than 6 million barrels a day by 1985," Zarb said. "If things cut the right way, we can perhaps improve on that 6 million.' Zarb said other programs such as coal gasification offer bright prospects for future years but, over the next decade, cannot be considered as meaningful substitutes for current forms of energy

Zarb said the strategic petroleum storage program is on target and that 150 million barrels of crude oil will be -stockpiled by the end of 1978.

He said the nation must maximize its oil and gas production by restoring petroleum liquids output to about 12 million barrels a day and restoring trillion cubic feet a day. He said the current output of 600 million tons of coal can be doubled in 10 years.

"But producing coal is easier than burning and there are federal policy questions associated with the con sumption of coal that must be ad dressed," he said.

"But the logistical questions as t transportation and mining, it seems to me, will fall into place rather nicely. But those federal policies must make it clear this nation not only will produce but consume twice as much coal in the next 10 years as currently does.' Zarb said coal gasification and liquifaction technology offer, beyond the decade, great potential because of the abundance of coal and because the processes will remove impurities and thus eliminate current environmental considerations. "Gasification and liquifaction are very important," he said.

Zarb said the nation is now consuming from 161/2 to 17 million ba rrels of oil a day. 'That's a lot of energy and to displace part of it is going to require a meaningful substitute," he said. Zarb was asked if he believes the nation can ever attain total energy independence.

"Absolutely, no question," he am-

"We have the technolog;y capability, we have the natural resources, we have the financial capability to do the job."

"I think if a 6 million barrels a day level for imports by 1985 can beachieved it will probaly give the nation an additional opportunity to pause and see if it wants to go fur-

"It may not want to go further than that with its 6 million barrels a day protected by its strategic storage system, and, also, a different kind of world might make it all right to stick at that level. But if total independence is an achievement we need to accommodate, then we have the capability to do it."

Zarb then added 'The question is, and I've been saying this two years, will we put into effect the tough public policies to get the job done and do we have the public and legislative will to achieve these

"If we do, and we have a national objective, it will be done.'

Hoover memo contains alleged Oswald statements

By JOHN M. GOSHKO The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Justice Department has discovered a 1964 memorandum by the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, stating that Lee Harvey Oswald reportedly told Cuban officials in advance of President Kennedy's assassination that Oswald intended to kill the president

Informed sources said that Hoover, in the memo, attributed this informa-tion to a highly reliable informant who claimed to have been told it personally by Cuban Prime Minister

Fidel Castro. Castro, according to the information in the memo, reportedly said he had been advised by officials of the Cuban embsasy in Mexico City that they had met with Oswald prior to the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination of Kennedy in Dallas, and that Oswald informed them of his intentions.

The assertions reported in the Hoover memo go further than any information currently on the record concerning alleged statements made by Oswald in a previously disclosed visit to the Cuban embassy in Mexico City prior to the murder of Kennedy.

There has been persistent surmise about a possible involvement of the Castro government in the murder of Kennedy, possibly as a counter stroke

Still time for dyile flonking in hard-up England

Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) - No matter how hard times get, Britons can still give a dyile a good flonking.

Just the other day a few people got together at London's Paternoster Square, in the shadow of St. Paul's Cathedral, for a lunchtime bout of public dyile flonking. The exhibition drew looks of admiration as well as confusion from passersby.

For the first time since last winter, government inspectors found illegal traces of the chemical DES in three beef livers in the third quarter of this year, the Agriculture Department says. The chemical, known ormally as diethylstilbestrol, has been shown to cause cancer in laboratory animals when fed to them in large doses. A synthetic growth hormone, DES is fed to cattle to make them gain weight faster. Federal regulations prohibit any trace of it in food products for human consumption.

Officials said the three among 500 tested for DES at meat-packing plants.

Five city elementary schools participate in 'box top' offer

A major breakfast cereal manufacturer's promotional offer for athletic equipment in exchange for box tops has gone largely unheeded in Midland.

In spite of television advertising and an offer printed on each box of Post Cereal for sports equipment for elementary schools, only five schools are

Principals at those five schools report a less-thanoverwhelming response and three Midland supermarkets said Saturday they had failed to detect an increase in sales of Post products.

One of those stores reported a price increase of approximately 3 cents on most of the cereal varieties.

PTAs at Burnet, Jones, Bonham and Bowie elementary schools are sponsoring collection drives and the physical education teacher at Henderson Elementary School is collecting the box tops.

The principals at the participating schools said the appeal has been low-key and no pressure has been put on the students to participate.

Little success also was reported at Henderson Elementary School where physical education teacher Elizabeth Stephenson is collecting the box tops for the school. L. R. Some of those principals whose schools are not participating said they had not started collection drives because they had other fundraising projects or had not had time to organize them. Several said they had not received information on the offer.

Others, however, said they objected to the commercialization involved.

"I am very much opposed to that kind of program," Robert Milam, principal at Lamar and Long, even trying. He cranked up his chain saw and bit a triangular chunk out of the lifeless elm tree. Then he stepped to the other side of the bleached-out 30-foot elm, and sawed straight-away.

And the rickety old tree fell down and died again.

'The thing about these dead trees,' Groy said after the creeping thud, "(is that) when they fall, they just come all to pieces.'

He picked up the tree by its trunk with his truck's winch, wheeled it over to an awaiting truck already half oaded with tree debris, and dumped

Knox Knox heads up the Midland

Chamber of Commerce's visual improvement project (VIP) that's firmly set in its ways: to clean up and pretty up the city in an ongoing beautification program.

In the main, the privately funded project calls for the citywide planting of trees and seedlings and the sawing down and-or uprooting of those trees deemed unslightly and diseased.

The VIP's chief aim in grooming the city is, "basicly, to try to get the citizenry of Midland to become aware of their surroundings and to improve them as much as possible," Knox

The VIP's start came in late 1974, when three 17-ton slabs of granite were planted in a triangular patch at Wall and Front streets near the western outskirts of the city. "That was our initial kickoff in an effort to try to beautify the entryway. into Midland," he said. "And (we) felt that was a good place to start. Since then, the VIP has sponsored the planting of 145 live oak trees along fare, and the planting of 170 live oaks along Watson LaForce Boulevard at Midland Air Terminal.

"So, we have hopes in the future of doing the same planting down Scharbauer Draw (Drive), which I think would make a wonderful boulevard," Knox said.

In addition, the five-member VIP committee has passed out 1,200 pine and live oak seedlings to the city's third-grade school students. The idea behind that, he said, is that those youngsters are "old enough to be responsible and young enough to care for this sort of thing.

"I think the tree population of the City of Midland will be enhanced considerably" should at least half of those seedlings survive, he said.

The VIP committee latched onto another idea; it hired a fellow to pull weeds, including the tumbleweeds, that crop up around downtown buildings and sidewalks and through cracks.

Knox said the man "did a pretty fair job until he finally left for for that day. Well, on this bleak, cold, wintery day, he was working for Knox's VIP committee. So far, Croy's tree removal fee has averaged slightly more than $18 per tree. In the two or so years that he has done work for the chamber's VIP, Croy has collected about $12,500 for cutting down and removing 688 trees. Most of the "VIP trees" have been attacked by the Dutch Elm disease, a prevalent and fatal tree ailment. Croy explained that the bark beetle carries a fungus that clogs the pores in the elm's trunk. In turn, the tree, deprived of life-sustaining water and nutrients from the soil, dies from

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A federal judge says he wants to study security precautions before deciding whether to release Patricia Hearst into her parents' custody on bail.

Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey asked at a hearing Friday that Miss Hearst, who is serving a seven-year prison sentence for armed bank robbery, be freed on bail pending appeal for a new trial.

He said that if the newspaper heiress were sent home to the parents she rejected during her months as a radical activist, she would be placed under tight security to protect her from potential enemies in the underground

Bailey said psychiatric and prison reports support his contention that Miss Hearst is neither a menace to society nor likely to flee. But U.S. Atty. James L. Browning, who admitted after the hearing that bail is a likely possibility, said Miss Hearst is more of a flight risk than she was after her arrest in September

"Now she's been convicted and sentenced," he said. "And any person age of 60. He had been facing prison is more likely to flee." Bailey promised that a detailed plan using federal marshals, or marshals and private guards provided by the Hearsts, would be given to U.S. District Court Judge William H. Orrick early next week. Orrick sentenced Miss Hearst in September. "Before I rule on the bail motion, I want to review any plan for security," the judge stressed during a 90-minute hearing on defense requests for bail and the new trial. He didn't indicate when he might rule on either issue. Already on file are affidavits from Randolph and Catherine Hearst

Key to apprehending lawbreaker quick call to police, study finds

WASHINGTON - Developing faster means of rushing police to the scene of a crime is not as critical in nabbing lawbreakers as getting victims to call for help immediately.

That is the thrust of a soon-to-be published, federally funded study that seems certain to fuel an already smoldering controversy over the value of such research.

The three-year study, conducted at the Kansas City Police Department with a $682,000 grant from the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, implies that huge investments in equipment to speed police to a crime scene could be a

Instead, the report suggests, emphasis should be placed on educating crime victims to call the police faster than they do now.

Los Angeles Police Chief Edward M. Davis questions the validity of the study and worries that it will cause budget problems for police chiefs across Davis, currently a leading police spokesman as president of the International Assn. of Chiefs of Police, bristled when he showed a reporter a letter inviting him to a Washington conference next month to preview the report.

Gerald M. Caplan, institute director, wrote Davis and other chiefs that "the findings indicate that delays in reporting crimes to police are so substantial that the emphasis on quick response time may be vastly overstated.'

The Kansas City study is focusing only on what is known as Part I crimes, the seven most serious offenses tabulated in the FBI's uniform crime reports. They are criminal homicide, forcible rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny-theft and motor vehicle theft.

Those serious offenses represented only 15 per cent of the calls received by the Kansas City department during the study. The 22 lesser crimes, known as Part II offenses, accounted for 7 per cent of the calls, while the remaining 78 per cent related to medical emergencies and general service calls.

Davis, recalling a recent visit to the Chicago Police Department, spoke glowingly of that department's new automatic number identification system, one of the expensive tools for reducing police reponse time.

The system can automatically trace telephone calls from crime victims who are too rattled to give a number, or from persons who want to keep their number from the police. When fully developed, the system will be able to display both the telephone number and caller's location on a small video screen. thus helping to ensure a speedy response at the correct address. Davis said.

Davis disputes the study's conclusion that response time can best be pared by persuading victims to summon police faster, rather than by utilizing sophisticated new equipment such as the Chicago department's system.

He cited a pioneering response time study in Los Angeles that was conducted in 1967 for the WASHINGTON (AP) -Two doctors and a lawyer under investigation in a baby-selling case have obtained an order sealing court records and protecting their identities for at least 10 days.

Superior Court Judge James A. Belson granted the order to seal the records, his office said

In seeking the order, attorneys representing the three filed documents referring to their clients only as "John Doe, R. Roe and C. Coe.

District prosecutors said earlier that they intended to charge the three professionals with a misdemeanor violation of a city law that prohibits the placing of babies for adoption by a third party without a license. But the prosecutors said they had agreed not to file the charges until Belson ruled on the request to seal the records.

The attorneys for the three said publicity would ruin their clients' reputations and violate the confidentiality of adoption proceedings.

Soviet Union believed nearing finish of record grain harvest analysts in the Agriculture Department believe the Soviet Union probably is completing a record grain harvest in excess of the previous high of 222.5 million metric tons in 1973.

On Nov. 5, a member of the Soviet Politburo, Fydor Kulakov, said that by the first of this month more than 220 million tons of grain had been harvested and that more corn and rice still remained in the fields.

Accordingly, the USDA said last week it had raised its estimate of Soviet grain production this year to the 220 million tons mentioned by Kulakov. A month ago, the department had estimated Russian output at 215 million tons. A metric ton is 2,205

Fletcher Pope Jr., a Soviet expert n the department's Economic Research Service, told a reporter that when the Russians "give us an estimate we accept it" at face value.

Customarily, USDA begins making its own estimates of Soviet grain production months ahead of official Moscow announcements. Pope said that this year's Soviet grain output 'still could creep up" from the 220 million tons now estimated. "I expect it will be larger than the 1973 crop.

The harvest is a dramatic recovery for Soviet agriculture from the critically small 1975 harvest of 140 million tons, the smallest in a decade. It forced Moscow to import huge quantities of grain, including U.S. wheat, corn and soybeans.

It also prompted a new five-year agreement that calls for Russia to buy at least six million tons of wheat and corn annually from the United States.

According to the agreement, which took effect with wheat and corn deliveries to Russia beginning this Oct. 1, the Soviets can buy up to eight million tons annually without further talks with U.S. officials. If more is sought, further discussions are called

So far, the Soviets have contracted for about 6.6 million tons of grain in the first year of the agreement through next Sept. 30. This includes about four million tons of corn and 2.6 million of wheat. Total U.S. exports of wheat, corn and other livestock feed grain to all countries, including Russia, are expected to be around 75 million tons in 1976-77.

Despite the U.S. government's role in the agreement with the Soviet Union, all sales are being handled as usual by private grain firms. No government credit is involved in the current sales to Russia.

Although the Soviets already have bought slightly more than the minimum amount of wheat and corn called for in the agreement, USDA officials say Russia probably will take more and thus push sales in the first year to around eight million tons.

The Russians, however, seem to buy in periodic spurts of a week or so at a time. The latest round of purchases ended with the announced sale on Oct. 13 of 100,000 tons of wheat.

Odessa Permian hands Lee 5-4A grid crown

By PAUL DOMOWITCH R-T Sports Writer

You can take your wars and your starvation and your fires and your floods, but there's no heartbreak in life like losing the big game in high

SEMI-TOUGH by Dan Jenkins

ODESSA-Those few prophetic words were spoken by a ficticious fellow named Marvin "Shake" Tiller. But they could just as easily have been spoken by Jeff Holder, Tony Jones, LaRon Powell, and yes, even Darrell Shepard Saturday afternoon. These four and the rest of their Odessa High teammates watched their District 5-4A championship hopes become nothing more than a far away dream, as they lost a heart-breaking 14-6 decision to rival Permian here at W.T. Barrett Stadium.

It had been 12 long draught-ridden years since Odessa High has been in the Texas football playoffs, and for three quarters of a game, the Bron-chos and 20,000 dedicated grid fans who turned out despite the freezing temperatures and falling snow thought that draught had finally come

But Permian, playing its own heart out despite the fact that their last slim thread of championship rope had been cut less than 24 hours earlier by Lee, prevailed, in a game that ended in mass emotion.

Broncho Coach Dick Winder, who brought his team farther than anyone had expected two months earlier, sobbed openly in front of his players after the game was over, and the team gathered for a post-game prayer.

And the inimitable Shepard. He had worked magic time and time again during the season. But a snowy field and an inspired Mojo defense stopped him just short of his biggest trick of all-guiding the Broncs to the title. His eyes too, were filled with the tears of defeat, as Permian players gathered round the young man. Some shook his hand and expressed their condolences to him, and some, like his Permian rival, quarterback Curtis Pittman, put their arm around him. The war was over.

It had been some battle. With both defenses putting forth perhaps their finest efforts of the entire season, the first half was a fight between the 20s, with neither the Shepherd-led Bronchos or the magic of Mojo able to punch across a score.

But with just under three minutes left until intermission, Mr. Shepard went to work.

Facing a second and 13 situation on his own 29-yard line, Shepard picked up a quick six on a run around left end, and then scrambled for another 12 and a first down at the two minute mark.

A delay penalty seconds later, moved the Broncos back in the hole again, but Darrell went to the snowy airways and rifled a 22-yard completion to Powell, who was guarded by three Permian secondary men.

With only 36 seconds left and Odessa on their own 36, everyone expected pass. But Shepard is not known for the expected. Anyone can

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Texas A&M frosh halfback Curtis Dickey ran for a touchdown, then stunne Arkansas on a 41-yard touchdown pass all within a 59-second span of the second quarter Saturday and the vengeful Aggies shattered the Razorbacks' Cotton Bowl dreams with a 31-10 Southwest Conference victory.

Dickey, the most sought-after schoolboy back in Texas last year, dashed three-yards for a touchdown before dropping a bombshell on the defending Cotton Bowl champions the first pass of his career.

After Lester Hayes had intercepted Ron Calcagni pass, Dickey took a pitchout on an apparent sweep. But he stopped and found Randall Teate all alone behind Arkansas' Elijah Davis. Teate took the ball at the 10 and rambled into the end zone untouched. The nationally-televised victory nade 16th ranked Texas A&M's

Following the kickoff, Michael Forrest fumbled the ball away and A&M rumbled 30 yards in six plays with George Woodard bruising the final yard for a touchdown.

Arkansas cut the lead to 24-10 in the fourth quarter when Jerry Eckwood connected on a 29yard halfback pass to freshman Donnie Bobo. ss The stunned Aggies retaliated with McNair and Stewart, considered one of the best in the world following their victories last year in France, West Germany and Switzerland, crushed the Venezuelan duo in what was considered the competition's best match thus far.

"My players put on a pretty good performance, although they at times were a bit nervous," said U.S. Coach Tony Trabert.

"Being nervious when you play abroad is normal and I think my boys did a good job in spite of their ner-viousness," Trabert said.

Although Hose and Andrew put on a better showing in the doubles match than in the singles, the American pair staged a more effective performance taking advantage of their rivals' weak points and smashing the ball out of reach down the baseline. Unlike Friday, weather conditions were excellent Saturday at the Altamira Tennis Club, but the attendence was poor, with only approximately 400 fans showing up. "A few of the sets could have gone either way, but my players were told before-hand that the Venezuelans are good fighters," Trabert said of Saturday's doubles encounter. Hose and Andrew were off to a good start in the first set, their best in the

Dorsett punches West Virginia

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tony Dorsett bolted 30 yards for his third touchdown of the game to help topranked Pittsburgh fight off a secondhalf rally and defeat West Virginia 24-16 Saturday in college football.

Officials from the Orange, Cotton and Sugar Bowls looked on as the Panthers' record climbed to 10-0. Facing an open date, they're likely assured their pick of bowls when bids go out next Saturday. Quarterback Matt Cavanaugh and Dorsett, college football's all-time rushing leader, both surpassed the 100-yard mark rushing early in the third quarter as Pitt took a 17-3 lead with a drive that ended with Carson Long's 27-long field goal. But West Virginia, 5-5, responded with its best drive of the day, a 57-yard march capped by a 14-yard touchdown pass from Dan Kendra to Steve Lewis.

That cut the Pitt lead to 17-10 with 4:03 left in the third quarter.

But the Panthers turned back the rally with an 86-yard drive early in the final quarter. It ended when Dorsett took a pitch and ran 30 yards to the end zone after scoring first-half touchdowns on runs of 17 and two yards.

Capitalizing on Pitt's fifth lost fumble of the day. West Virginia scored another touchdown with 3:11 left on a nine-yard Kendra to Lewis

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) - Unbeaten and sixth-ranked Maryland, rescued time and again by its defense, turned back stubborn Clemson 2000 Saturday with the help of a 33-yard touchdown pass by Mark Manges on a fake field goal call.

The generally uninspired effort, watched by scouts from four postseason bowls, stretched Maryland's winning streak to 14-10 this season- and was the 19th consecutive victory by the Terps over an Atlantic Coast Conference foe.

Maryland went ahead 14-0 when Vince Kinney caught the scoring pass from Manges early in the third quarter and then added a two-yard TD run by

The final score came after Ken Roy intercepted a pass by Mike O'Cain in the end zone, one of four

The Terps, who clinched a tie for their third consecutive ACC championship, also scored in the second quarter on a six-yard run by Dean Richards.

Clemson, now 2-6-2, lost three fumbles in the first half, once on the Maryland 12 following its only drive of the first two quarters. The Tigers also reached the Maryland 16 before losing the ball with two minutes remaining, and a 33yard field goal attempt by Ciro Piccirillo was short in the third quarter.

On Clemson's next possession, the Tigers drove to the Maryland 11 before O'Cain, replacing quarterback Steve Fuller for one play, threw the pass which was intercepted by Roy.

Alvin Maddox gained 132 yards on the ground for Maryland, 104 in the first half, and George Scott added 66. Manges rushed for 54 yards but had an off day passing, completing six of 16 for 99 yards.

The Terps had two chances to score in the final two minutes of the first half after recovering two fumbles as the teams exchanged three consecutive turnovers.

Clemson, a 17-point underdog, proved a difficult Terps seek their fourth straight bowl bid.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) Texas' freshman-dominated offese led by quarterback Mark McBath struck for two quick second-quarter touchdowns and senior halfback Jimmy Walker added two scores to give the Longhorns a 34-7 Southwest Conference victory over winless Texas Christian.

Texas, starting three freshmen in the backfield, got two first-quarter field goals from Russell Erxleben, then got its first touchdown on its first play of the second quarter on a dazzling 50-yard run by freshman Olympian Johnny "Lam" Jones. Then McBath, the Longhorns third starting quarterack this season, passed 28 yards to freshman tight end-Gil Harris for another touchdown three minutes later.

TCU, which fell to 0-10 for the season, was playing its first game after Coach Jim Shofner announced his retirement last week effective at the end of the season.

The contest was played after a snowstorm struck the city earlier in the day. It was still snowing at the start of the game.

Threadgill passed the Bulldogs to a first quarter touchdown and exploded through the line on a 69-yard run in the second to take control early.

The Bulldogs choked off the LSU attack effectively until the final period, when LSU took advantage of loose play by Bulldog reserves to score two quick touchdowns and get back in contentionm s first half on a 28-yard pass from quarterback Jimmy Dan Elzner to Vernon Wells to make the score 20-7 at intermission

Texas put the game away in the third quarter, with Walker climaxing two drives with TD runs of one and five yards.

Texas, which was shut out by Houston in its last game, had 370 yards total offense in running its season record to 4-3-1 and its SWC

McBath, a product of Corpus Christi King who has played little this season, completed six of nine passes for 78 yards, including four receptions from freshmen—the TD to Harris and three key passes to split end Mike Lockett.

Texas used good field position in the first quarter to get field goals of 41and 43-yards off the toe of Erxlaben. Then, on the Longhorn's first play of the second quarter, Jones broke clear behind good blocking and used his gold medal speed to fake three TCU defenders in the secondary for a 50yard touchdown

Jones carried 15 times for 95 yards in the first half, then sat out the second half because of dizziness.

The Longhorn defense, which intercepted five passes in the game, held the Horned Frogs without a first down until late in the second quarter, when Elzner led an 84-yard touchdown drive in just four plays. The TCU senior passed 36 yards to Mike Renfro to the Texas 48, then Texas was called for pass interference and Elzner threw an incomplete pass befor Wells caught his 28-yard TD A 35-yard run by still another Texas freshman, Jimmy Johnson, set up the Longhorn's first touchdown of the third quarter. A nine-yard scamper by McBath to the one, preceeded Walker's first touchdown. Thirteenyard runs by McBath and Walker led to Walker's second TD.

Georgia Tech loses to Navy

ANNAPOLIS (AP)-Navy tailback Joe Gattuso ran 25 yards for one touchdown and teamed with quarterback Bob Leszczynski on a 75-yard pass for another score as the Midshipmen defeated Georgia Tech 34-28 Saturday in a wide-open defensive battle.

Lesczcynski, the sophmore quarterback who came off the bench at midseason to put some drive into Navy's punchless attack, also threw two touchdown passes to tight end Kevin Sullivan to help the Middies to their second victory in a row and their third in ten games. Navy got on the scoreboard first

And it wasn't until a Georgia Tech face mask penalty gave the Midshipmen a first down with one-and-ahalf minutes left to play that the Navy victory was sealed.

Gophers scare Buckeyes, 9-3

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - A vaunted Ohio State defense, which has allowed only two touchdowns in its last four games, stopped two Minnesota scoring drives in the second half as the Buckeyes hung on for a 9-3 Big Ten football victory over the Gophers Saturday.

The nationally-ranked Buckeyes maintained sole possession of the Big Ten lead with their seventh straight conference victory and improved their season mark to 8-1-1.

Minnesota, now 6-4 in all games and 4-3 in the conference, reached the Ohio State 22 in the third quarter and drove to the Buckeye 27 in the final period. But both drives were stopped. Defensive tackle Nick Buonamici rambled 42 yards with an interception, which killed Minnesota's third-period threat. Minnesota quarterback Tony Dungy, who completed 16 of 38 pass attempts for 201 yards, was hit while trying to pass and Buonamici gathered in the football and moved it to the Minnesota 23.

Another Gopher threat died in the final period, when Dungy threw an incompletion under a heavy rush.

Davila sidelined

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Mickey Davila, second-leading scorer last season on the Duquesne University basketball team, will be out the entire 1976-77 season with a shoulder injury.

A school spokesman said Wed-nesday that the 6-foot-3 guard separated his right shoulder last week in practice and will undergo surgery. It will be his third shoulder operation in five years.

Georgia beats Auburn

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) Kevin McLee ran for 203 yards and set a new school singlegame rushing record for the second time this season as Georgia trounced Auburn 28-0 Saturday to win the Southeastern Conference football championship and a berth in the Sugar Bowl.

McLee, a 6-foot, 188 pound junior from Uniontown, Pa., who also scored one touchdown, had to hustle, however, to outdistance Georgia's fullback, Al Pollard, who THE BASIC piled up 158 yards and scored twice. The victory gave Vince

Dooley's Georgia Bulldogs their first conference title since they won the championship in 1968, also by defeating Auburn in the showdown game. Georgia completely overpowered Auburn but had help also from Tiger penalties. One Auburn 15 yards for a personal foul, gave the Bulldogs a first down on the Tiger 32 and kept their second touchdown

McCutcheon has gleam in eye for Cardinals

By The Associated Press

There is a very good reason for the glint in Lawrence McCutcheon's eye as his Los Angeles Rams face the St. Louis Cardinals in today's key National Football league matchup.

The last time the Rams faced the Cardinals was in the 1975 NFC divisional playoffs. McCutcheon shredded the St. Louis defense that day for 202 yards rushing, a playoff record.

THE RAMS could use that kind of production from their big runner again Sunday. With five weeks to go in the regular season, division races are getting down to the nitty-gritty.

Nowhere is the nail biting tougher than in the National Conference West where Los Angeles has a half-game lead over San Francisco. The 49ers play at Atlanta this week, hoping to use the 2-7 Falcons to keep the pressure on Los Angeles.

The Rams, however, will get no sympathy from St. Louis. The Cardinals are in a three-way tangle in the NFC East, one game back of Dallas and one in front of Washington.

DALLAS HOSTS the Monday night game against 2-7 Buffalo while Washington faces the winless New York Giants Sunday.

Other Sunday games are Denver at San Diego, Houston at Cincinnati, Kansas City at Oakland, Miami at Pittsburgh, New England at Baltimore, Tampa Bay at the New York Jets, Detroit at New Orleans, Green Bay at Chicago, Seattle at Minnesota and Philadelphia at Cleveland.

McCutcheon has rushed for 740 yards so far this season, fourth best in the NFC and No. 7 in the league. He and teammate John Cappelletti, who has rushed for 555 yards, combined to give Los Angeles the No. 1 spot in the ground game in the NFC.

RIGHT BEHIND the Rams rushers is St. Louis' ground game, which has produced 1,521 yards, second only to LA's 1,636. Jim Otis, the defending NFC rushing champion, paces the Cardinal running attack with 560 yards.

Neither the Cards nor the Rams are as good defending against the ground game as they are at generating it. Los Angeles is fourth in the conference in rushing defense and St. Louis is sixth.

While the Rams-Cards game holds major significance at the top of two divisions, survival is on the line in the Pittsburgh-Miami matchup. Both have 5-4 records, and a loss now would jolt post-season hopes of these two perennial playoff teams.

Both clubs are streaking. The Dolphins have won three straight and the Steelers have captured four in a row, the last three without permitting a point. The American Conference East race is spotlighted in the Baltimore-victory Sunday would just about seal the issue BALTIMORE HAS the league's most explosive offense. Quarterback

Bert Jones is the NFL's top-rated passer with 2,067 yards and 15 touchdowns. Running back Lydell Mitchell leads the AFC in rushing with 887 yards.

A good game could put Mitchell over the 1,000-yard barrier. Chicago's Walter Payton, with 899 yards, also has a shot at that plateau this week when the Bears face the Packers in the 115th renewal of the NFL's oldest

THE BEARS will be trying to come back from last week's heartbreaking one-point loss to Oakland. That victory left the Raiders, leaders in the AFC West, a fat three games ahead of Denver. Oakland's magic number for a fourth consecutive West title and eighth in the last nine years is two and they will try to reduce that against Kansas City.

Like the Raiders, the Minnesota Vikings are closing in on another division crown. With Seattle on deck this week, the Vikes' magic number for nailing down their eighth NFC Central crown in nine years is three. The Seahawks scored their second victory and first over an established team when they beat Atlanta last week.

CINCINNATI STAYED two games in front of Pittsburgh and Cleveland in the AFC Central with last Monday? night's victory over Los Angeles. Now the Bengals can finish off Houston, which is three games back. The Oilers will start veteran John Hadl at quarterback with Dan Pastorini in-Washington, which has beaten New York 11 straight times, will be watching the scoreboard as well as the Giants. The Redskins, two games back of Dallas and one behind St. Louis in the NFC East, will start Joe Theismann against the Giants, who probably will use Norm Snead with Craig Morton nursing an injured

THE COWBOYS mark time until Monday night for their nationally televised date with O.J. Simpson and the Buffalo Bills.

San Francisco has lost its last two games by two field goals and that could be bad news for hapless Atlanta. The 49ers' Del Williams scored three TDs last week and is the NFC's No. 2 rusher behind Payton with 762

Landry fears Juice

DALLAS (AP) Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry used to make a living trying to tackle Jim Brown. But for Landry's money he rates "The Juice" as the greatest running back of them all.

LANDRY, A former All-Pro defensive back with the New York Giants, played against Brown in the annual Cleveland-Giant autumn football wars.

The only head coach in the 16-year history of the Cowboys says, "O.J. Simpson has to rank as the greatest I've seen. I played against Brown and he was so gifted and

"But Brown played on some great teams, O.J. has not been on great teams. He's been with a team that has been good at times. Considering all that, his record is phenomenal."

Simpson comes calling Monday night when the hapless Buffalo Bills (2-7) invade Texas Stadium in a nationally televised clash against the Cowboys who have won eight out of nine games.

THE JUICE should be well rested. He played only nine minutes last week in the 100th and shortest game of his National Football League career. Simpson got caught trying to punch out an "over enthusiastic" New England defensive end Mei Lunsford.

Simpson gained eight yards on six carries. It wasn't his NFL low. Baltimore once held him to a minus 10 yards.

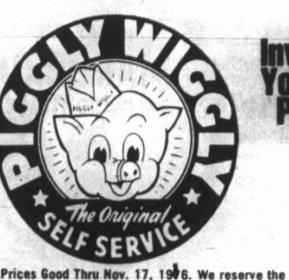

The Cowboys have met Simpson only one time and that was a wild 1971 game in Buffalo won by Dallas 49-37. Simpson was held to 25 yards on 10 carries.

SPECIAL COWBOY assistant Ermal Allen said, "O.J. runs under control better than any back in the league. He just kind of slides along the line of scrimmage looking for a hole then explodes. He's their offense.'

The Cowboys come off their worst game of the season, an "underwhelming" 9-3 victory over the winless New York Gaints. Landry was so disgusted with the game that he refused to even look at

Dallas has the lead in the National Conference Eastern Division with St. Louis and Washington in hot pursuit. Buffalo has lost five games in a row. "Because we don't see Dallas very often, the Cowboys present us with some unique problems," said Buffalo Coach Jim Ringo, "We have to tailor our offensive thinking to the 'flex' defense and design defenses to counter Dallas' great versatility and multiple formations. Few teams in football give you as many different looks as the Cowboys." Kickoff is 8 p.m. CST with a less than capacity 60,000 fans expected.

PRAIRIE VIEW, Tex. (AP) - Larry Jackson recovered a fumble in the end zone and the Prairie View defense held at the one-yard line three times in the last quarter as Prairie View upset Alcorn 14-6 Saturday afternoon in a Southwest Athletic Conference football game.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Tailback Mike Harkrader set a Big Ten football season record for rushing by a freshman Saturday and Indiana rallied to beat Wisconsin 15-14 on second-half touchdowns by Keith Calvin and Ric Enis.

Harkrader rushed for 133 yards to give him 923 in nine games this season. That broke the old mark of 824 yards set by Wisconsin's Alan Ameche in 1951.

The Badgers took a 14-0 lead on Ira Matthews' touchdowns on a 5-yard run and 56-yard punt return, but the Hoosiers charged back in the second half on the running of Harkrader and Enis and the passing of quarterback Scott Arnett.

collegiate history. Scouts from the Gator, Peach and Tangerine bowls were on hand to watch the Tar Heels as they ran their season record to 8-2 overall and 3-1 in the ACC.

Ags return Bellard to living

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - For Coach Emory Bellard, Texas A&M's victory over Arkansas meant reincarnation. "You're looking at a live man,"

Bellard said. "A year ago you were looking at a dead man.

Bellard's Aggies had just beaten Arkansas 31-10 and avenged a 31-6 loss to the Razorbacks that deprived A&M a spot in the Cotton Bowl and a possible national championship.

Bellard said, however, that Saturday's game was not a "revenge-type

"That wasn't discussed at all."

BELLARD SAID that "31-6" was on the blackboard when he walked into the dressing room before the game. He said he erased the figures.

Despite Bellard's comments, the players and Aggie supporters were aware of the 1975 outcome.

A&M yell leaders proudly sported "Sweet Revenge" T-shirts in 38degree weather.

Freshman halfback Curtis Dickey, who threw a touchdown pass and scored once, said many of the Aggie players "talked about last year's game a whole lot...what they had done to us."

Bellard said the Aggies added the halfback pass that Dickey threw to Randall Teate for a 39-yard touchdown for the Arkansas game.

"IT WAS perfect position," Bellard said. "We had run the sweep a couple of times and they were supporting fast. We had good lateral field position and they had just had the tur-

That put A&M on top 14-3. Teate said he had told the coaches that the pass was open because of the way Arkansas' secondary was helping on the run.

When I first looked up I thought the pass was too long," he said. "I just caught up with it. It was a lucky

Last year the Aggies were coming off a 20-10 win over Texas and suffered what Bellard said was an emotional letdown against the Bazor-

The Aggies were idle last week. 'We were able to get mentally relaxed. Last week we didn't have any deadlines. We got a lot done wthout any pressure. We went into this week a little ahead of normal,". Bellard said.

Arkansas coach Frank Broyles said the Aggies played a "near perfect

"THEY DIDN'T make a mistake," Broyles said. 'We turned it over and they didn't. That gave them the momentum. They are a tough team to play catch up against. As I said all week, they are as good as any one in

The outcome leaves A&M with a 7-2 record and Arkansas at 5-2-1. Scouts from the Liberty, Fiesta and Sun bowls watched the game but Bellard said he had "no earthly idea" about what post-season invitation the Aggies might receive.

The loss all but eliminated Arkansas from a repeat trip to the Cotton

"The rest of the seniors and I have to provide some leadership for the rest of the guys," said Arkansas defensive end Johnnie Meadors. "This is not the end of the world. There are still some good bowls left."

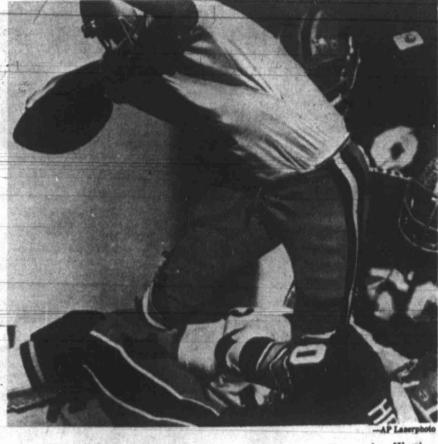

The loss also was costly because Arkansas quarterback Ron Calcagni suffered a shoulder injury at the end

Bruins zap Oregon St.

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) - Secondranked UCLA scored three touchdowns in the second quarter, two on runs by reserve halfback James Owens, and rolled to a 45-14 Pacific-8 Conference football victory over Oregon State Saturday.

The Bruins, who failed to move the ball throughout most of the second half, scored twice in the final 31/2 minutes to provide the lopsided final

Oregon State, now 1-9, moved the ball with surprising consistency against the 9-0-1 Bruins, but the Beavers turned the ball over nine times on five pass interceptions and four fumbles. UCLA converted five of the turnovers into 31 points.

UTEP harriers win WAC again

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) - James Munyala took first place with a time of 29:49 to lead Texas-El Paso to its fourth consectutive Western Athletic Conference cross-country title Saturday.

UTEP scored 22, placing six runners in the top ten finishers on the 10,000 meter (6.2 mile) flat but muddy course under cloudy skies.

Benton Hart had a second-place time of 29:51 to give Brigham Young the number two spot with a team

Third-place Arizona, with runners coming in seventh and eighth and a score of 94, will join UTEP and BYU at the NCAA championships Nov. 22

"Everything went the way we expected it to," said UTEP coach Ted Banks. "Kip Sirma ran a little better than I figured. At NCAA, we expect to be running for first place with Oregon, Washington State and Western Kentucky.

Colorado State came in fourth with 101, New Mexico 139; Arizona State 158; Wyoming 188, and Utah 197.

UTEP's Sirma took the third spot in individual scoring with a time of 30:01 followed by his two teammates, Wilson Weigla, 30:05, and Sam Maritim, 30:07. In sixth was Henry Marsh, BYU, 30:13, followed by Arizona's Thom Hunt, 30.15, and Terry Cotton, 30.18; and UTEP's Juan Garcia, 30:25, and Frank Munene,

Trojans subdue Huskies

LOS ANGELES (AP) + Vince Evans' passing provided one touchdown and set up another and Glen Walker kicked two field goals Saturday as third-ranked Southern California downed stubborn Washington 20-3.

The Trojans' victory sends them into next weekend's Pacific-8 title showdown against UCLA with a perfect 6-0 conference record. The Bruins, second-ranked and unbeaten, ran their Pac-8 record to 6-0 Saturday with a victory over Oregon State.

Southern California, 8-1, could never get its vaunted running attack rolling against the Huskies, but Evans went to the air effectively, connecting with Shelton Diggs on a 24-yard scoring pass early in the second quarter to bring the Trojans back from a 3-0 deficit.

Evans, who was shaken up and taken out of the game late in the third quarter, hit just four of 12 passes for 132 yards.

He helped stake USC to a 14-3 advantage early in the third period when he connected with Randy Simmrin on a 46-yard pass to the Washington two-yard line.

Tailback Ricky Bell, coming back from an ankle injury two weeks ago, then punched the ball into the end zone to provide the Trojans with their second touchdown.

Walker added a field goal of 42 yards later in the third quarter, then kicked a 26-yarder early in the final period to complete the USC scoring.

The Huskies' only score came on a 21-yard field goal by Steve Robbins with the game just two minutes old after the Trojans' Charles White had fumbled the opening kickoff.

Brigham Young keeps alive WAC title hopes

Brigham Young kept alive its hopes for a Western Athletic Conference football title and a bowl bid Saturday as quarterback Gifford Nielsen fired three touchdown aerials and broke two league passing marks to lead the Cougars past New Mexico 21-8.

The victory pushed the Cougars' WAC record to 5-1 with one conference game remaining with Utah. The Cougars, 8-2 overall, would have to get some help from Texas-El Paso Saturday night if they are to claim the title outright.

Should BYU and Wyoming finish in a tie at 6-1, Wyoming would get the Siesta Bowl berth that goes to the FAC champion by virtue of having beaten BYU this season. Nielsen, a 6-5, 195 pound junior, struck for three aerial touchdowns to put his season total at 25. That tops the WAC single season record for touchdown passes of 23 that was shared by Brigham Young's Gary Shiede and Arizona State's Danny Nielsen finished the afternoon with 17 completions in 35 attempts for 288 yards. That upped his season passing yardage to 2,777 yards, bettering the WAC season passing record of 2,609 established by White in 1973.

Nilesen, who was named the offensive player of the game in the regionally-televised contest, hit Todd Christensen with a 23-yard scoring toss in the first quarter. Mike Chronister with a six-yard TD pass in the second period, and John Van-DerWouden with an 11-yard scoring

"I think more of the fellows are using tobacco and snuff than ever before. Some do it to beat the smoking habit. For some, it's a way of combatting pressure. Still others do it just for the heck of it-a habit they picked

Oklahoma fans crucify writer, paper for doing job

By SKIP BAYLESS
The Los Angeles Times

Until a couple of weeks ago, Frank Boggs, sports columnist for the Daily Oklahoman and Times, was one of the most popular figures in the state. Writing mostly about University of Oklahoma football - the state's primary natural resource - he has won state sportswriter-of-the-year honors eight of the last 10 years.

But today Boggs is public enemy No. 1 in Oklahoma, ahead of Texas coach Darrell Royal, tornados and Both Boggs and the Oklahoma City newspaper have received bomb threats. He needed police protection at his home four straight nights. Subscription cancellations came in by the hundreds. Bushels of hate mail, obscene calls at night and the loss of old friends have reduced Boggs to gagging each morning when he story about the two-time national be thrown — right at the bottom of champion Oklahoma Sooners, repor- your front door," said Boggs, a 48ting that the NCAA was investigating ticket scalping by the players.

"IT'S ALL right to pick on the Mafia or the Teamsters around here," executive editor Charles Bennett said only half-kiddingly, "but not OU football.

Sportswriters in other areas where college football is the only game in town — Lincoln, Neb., Columbus, Ohio, Tuscaloosa, Ala. - most likely run up against the same dilemma. How to do your job — reporting the news, good or bad — when the majority of your readers only wants to hear the good and coaches want you to be part of the team.

The Oklahoman and Times' circulation, about 300,000 on off-season Sundays, rises 15,000-20,000 the days after Sooner games (the school is located in Norman, near Oklahoma City).

"All people around here know about a newspaper is how one's supposed to your front door," said Boggs, a 48year-old former OU journalism stu-dent who has delighted readers from Gotebo to Broken Arrow with his

"Just pick a name off the map. If you stop in the town to get gas and the guy pumping it can't talk about what a nice day it is, then he'll say, 'How are WE gonna do Saturday?' And odds are he didn't even go there and he hasn't been to a game in his life.

"There are two million people in the state, and it seems as if most of them identify with OU football."

MOST OF the fans, it seemed to Boggs, lowered the boom on him for merely reporting that the NCAA was investigating — not what he had un-covered himself.

"The thing I've said over and over to callers is that we made no allegations against Oklahoma," said Boggs. "We are only reporting that allegations have been made, and everything

we've said has been factual. We have printed no rumors.'

In researching accusations by Dar-rell Royal that Oklahoma had spied illegally on Texas practices, Boggs and Jack Taylor, an Oklahoman and Times investigative reporter stumbled onto the fact that the NCAA was investigating ticket scalping by Oklahoma players.

Coach Barry Switzer and university officials denied the story, saying NCAA officials had informed them they were not under "formal" investigation. Boggs believes they're hiding behind semantics; the NCAA, he says, definitely is conducting a "preliminary" investigation.

When the rest of the state media published and broadcast the denials, Boggs became a marked man.

"I THOUGHT he was my friend," said Grant Burget, a starting halfback for the Sooners in 1974 who now works for an Oklahoma City stockbroker. "Now he's writing about OU like they're the biggest cheats in the world. A lot of people know that ticket-scalping has been going on for years, so what purpose is it to bring it out now and ruin the whole year (Oklahoma, 5-2-1, lost to Colorado the week the story came out)?"

"I thought he was an ally," said one Oklahoma coach of Boggs. "I thought he was one writer who could hear locker room gossip without writing about it.

"I think a writer should be unbiased while he's writing about a game. And if the NCAA says something's wrong. then he should report it. But he shouldn't take it upon himself to be the NCAA investigating committee."

Some have criticized the Oklahoman and Times for sensationalism. The Boggs-Taylor stories have appeared across the top of the front page with bold headlines (one ran above the Carter Wins Election a favor for Darrell Royal, a friend and OU graduate who hasn't beaten his old school in six years. "So many have called or written to say that even if we know about something illegal, we shouldn't write about it," said Charles Bennett. "That disturbs me. Still, Boggs stands firm on journalistic principles. A sportswriter, he says, must be a reporter first and a sportswriter second. His job is to report the facts.

Britain's Cox upsets Connors

STOCKHOLM (AP) - Mark Cox, British left-hander with a flare for upsets, scored his biggest victory ever today, defeating top-seed Jimmy Connors to reach the final of the $150,000 Stockholm Open Tennis Tournament for the first time.

The unseeded 33-year-old veteran surprised the American in a two-hour and 15 minute struggle at the Royal Tennis Hall, winning 7-6, 3-6, 7-6.

Connors, trailing 2-5 in the deciding match, survived four match points in the eighth game and then held on to force a tiebreaker at 6-6. But Cox then got on top and took a 6-1 lead, giving him five match points. Connors then netted a tame forehand return to sur-

Cox knocked out No. 6 seed Eddie straight sets in his opening match of the tournament here. He then fought who had businesses near the University of Texas campus admit they scalped Longhorn football tickets but claim they quit when Coach Darrell Royal asked them to, the Austin American-Statesman reported Saturday.

Austin men admit scalping

The two are Rooster Andrews, who was known as the "All-American Water Boy" in the 1940s when he was a manager and part-time placekicker, and Jonas "Joe" Silberstein.

Their stores were on Guadalupe St. known here as "The Drag." Andrews and Silberstein column by Oklahoma Journal sports editor Al Eschbach on alleged selling of tickets at UT referred to their past involvement, sports editor Lou-Maysel of the Austin paper wrote.

Eschbach quoted an anonymous San Antonio businessman as saying, 'There's a certain sporting good store in Austin that sells the tickets for the players at a pretty good price.'

Andrews was with C&S sporting goods, and he said, "I don't think there's any question who he's talking about, but that was back in my C&S days." Andrews now owns another sporting goods store north of the

"I'd sell those boogers for every penny we could get. If we could get $100, you bet, we did it," Andrews

He added, however, that since the NCAA adopted a rule prohibiting such sales, and "Darrell asked us to quit, we have not touched a player's ticket."

He said the practice of selling tickets for players for more than face value stopped about 10 years ago.

Silberstein was co-owner of Jorace's Men's Wear until 1969 and now operates The Whale. He thinks Eschbach's column alluded to his old store when he quoted a former UT player as saying he "knew of five or six players who would sell through this store. This was in 1973. The players told me then they were getting $150 each for pairs of Texas-Oklahoma tickets."

Silberstein said he had been out of the ticket-selling business for "over five years." "I did help the boys. I do not deny that. By helping them I've made some personal and very true friends," he said. "But Royal told me to quit helping the boys and I quit." He said he never got $150.

Old letters provide new link in history

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) - significant, if shaky, bond of friendlink in the history of the American Revolution - in an old trunk belonging to an 84-year-old woman who just happened to mention it.

Gregory Shaaf said documents he discovered could help explain for the first time why the American Indians sided with the colonies rather than with England during the Revolutionary War.

The find includes letters from George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and John Hancock and a missing block of pages from the journal of Col. George Morgan, the colonies' Indian affairs agent during the War, Shaaf said in an interview

Shaaf, author of "Ten Thousand Years of Santa Barbara History. said he learned about the trunk during an afternoon chat with Susanna B. Morgan - a descendant of Col.

"We were sitting in her home visiting." Shaaf said, "and all of a sudden she says, 'Oh, by the way, I happened to find a trunk the other day I hadn't seen in a long time.'

"And then she lays in my lap over a documents, including 73 pages that had been missing from Coi. Morgan's journal - from April to May 1776." At some point in those two months, Shaaf said, the colonies formed a bond that may have saved the states from obliteration in the ensuing war. But the first known peace treaty with Indians didn't come until 1778, and historians have had to guess why the major tribes didn't side with the British, Shaaf said. According to the journal, one of Morgan's men infiltrated a meeting between the British and the Indians and even acted as an interpretor during the conference, Shaaf said. When Morgan told Washington and Hancock that the British were offering huge bounties for American scalps, he was ordered to sway the Indians into neutrality.

"They realized that if 10,000 western Indians joined the British redcoats, attacking from the west as the British regulars attacked from the east, there was a high probablility that we would not have been able to withstand such an attack," Shaaf

So Morgan and his men traveled through the back country and woods, visiting and apparently winning the trust of the Shawnee, Delaware and Seneca nations. Two peace conferences were arranged as a result of Morgan's efforts, Shaaf said, and Indian neutrality during the war was assured. There were even efforts to make Indian territories a founding colony, along with the original 13.

Black Florida attorney wins right to practice man who spent eight years un-successfully fighting a Florida law school's bar against blacks has finally won permission to practice law in the state - at the age of 70.

The Florida Supreme Court ruled Friday that Virgil Hawkins would not have to take the state bar

Hawkins was twice denied admission to the University of Florida law school in actions upheld by the state court, and Friday's unanimous opinion said he had a "claim on this court's conscience.'

In 1949, Hawkins was denied admission to the school on the basis that state law at the time barred blacks. The denial was upheld by the state Supreme Court.

In 1954, the U.S. Supreme Gourt struck down the decision and ordered that Hawkins' application be con-sidered. School officials again refused to let him in, and the state Supreme Court upheld that denial in 1957, saying that to admit Hawkins could produce "grave public mischief." Hawkins did not appeal that decision, and instead enrolled in the New England School of Law in 1964.

Last year he asked to be allowed to practice law in Florida through "diploma privilege" because he had graduated from the New England

The Flerida Bar Association argued that while other requirements should be waived, Hawkins should be forced to take the bar exam because the "public deserves to be protected" from those who cannot pass it.

However, the court held that the record supported a decision waiving

The court ordered that Hawkins, who has recently been working in public relations in Eustis, be admitted to the bar unless a character report by the Florida Board of Bar Examiners turned up anything

They added that before Hawkins can practice on his own, he will have to complete a six-month internship program under a practicing attorney.

Regulations discouraging

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Speaker Bill Clayton said Saturday he is concerned that ambiguous regulations in the proposed federal license for deepwater ports will discourage private business

Legislature faces from building such ports. "As now written," Clayton said, "the Department of Transportation would have jurisdiction over the economic regulation of Seadock and Seadock's status as a common carrier. "I do not feel this is consistent with the legislative intent of the Deepwater Port Act of 1974.'

If this jurisdictional question is not resolved. Clayton said in his newsletter, Texas may ask Congress to clarify the law. He also said that he believed Florida's request to probibit supertankers from "traversing the Florida Straits is unreasonable." He said the oil industry had drilled more than 19,000 wells in waters off the Texas coast since 1948 and produced more than 6.5 million barrels of oil with only four significant oil spills. None of the spills, he said, "resulted in permanent damage to the environment."

'Private enterprise will develop deepwater ports to the benefit of this nation if given the freedom and

incentive to do so," he said

Ski fashionforecast callsfor Soci sleek pants, woolly jackets

By BARBARA HERRERA Copley News Service

The skier who hotdogged three years ago in Levi's and turtleneck sweater is likely to take to the snowy slopes this season in sleek nylon warm-up pants.

He may also add a hooded sweater or a down-filled, quilted baseball cap to his ski wardrobe or any of a whole array of new ski wear, ranging from $18 windowpane goggles to a $450 woolly jacket of Tuscany lamb. It's all part of a renewed sophistication in skiing — not only the slick, elegant (translate that expensive) clothes but the proliferation of skiers and the increasing numbers of elaborate ski-package tours being offered for high-cost winter resorts.

Warm-up pants — sleek-looking but roomy, topstitched like jeans and made from shiny nylon — are what have evolved from the blue jean fad in ski wear which began to fade about three years ago.

"Three years ago the young skiers began wearing warm-up pants over their jeans to keep dry," Chuck Himber, a ski wear firm regional sales manager, said in an interview. "Last year they began doing away with the jeans and just wearing the warm-up pants and now this year the warm-ups are a style all their own." The advantage to warm-up pants is that they are warm and waterproof.

The disadvantage is that they are slippery and the skier who falls on his warm-up pants can find himself skidding down an icy mountainside like a toboggan. However, the infatuation with warm-up pants is apparently not universal among skiers.

"The older, more experienced skiers still tend to buy the old, stretch ski pants," Himber added. Jane Tatum, 34, for 10 years a skier and now a saleswoman for ski tours, admitted relative disinterest in ski "I'm more interested in safety and By ROXANE ARN Copley News Servi

"It's an ever-present danger," says Bill Sanford, a welfare worker with the Los Angeles County Department of Public Social Services.

Seymour's house rules are subject to change

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Seymour and I have been married for six years and have no children to tie us down. He has just informed me that he was going to Aspen for a four-day skiing trip with "the boys." Then he laid down the law as to what I may and may not do while he is gone

1. I may NOT get on a plane and go anywhere.

2. I must be home every evening to receive his phone calls, otherwise he'll worry about me. (He says I can't call him because he's not sure where the lodge is, and it's difficult to get incoming calls there.)

Abby, why should I sit home every night for four days while he's off skiing somewhere with "the boys"? This has got to end in a showdown because I refuse to hold still for that kind of treatment. How should I handle it?-SEYMOUR'S WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: Tell Seymour you won't make any promises, but if you should decide to go somewhere, you'll be happy to call HIM if he lets you know where he can be reached. And if he calls and you aren't home, he shouldn't think you dropped dead because there is still plenty of life in

DEAR ABBY: When you hear that someone you know has a terminal illness, how can you let them know you care?

If you don't see him or speak to him regularly, it would seem ghoulish to call and talk about his health-or worse yet to call and avoid the sub-

Sympathy cards or flowers would be premature. It would be awkward to offer sympathy and insincere to express false cheer, so I usually do nothing, hoping they will understand. Then I feel guilty and regret my silence when it's too late.

How would you handle this, Abby?—AMATEUR SAMARITAN

DEAR SAMARITAN: I would maintain the same degree of closeness as before. (Suddenly becoming overly attentive would seem as inappropriate as suddenly avoiding all contact.) To let someone know you care, call or write a brief note simply saying, "I heard you were ill and want you to know that you are in my thoughts and in my prayers." Silence shows indifference.

DEAR ABBY: I finally accepted a blind date with a girl I'll call "Patty." (I say "finally" because a relative of hers who's a friend of mine had been trying to arrange a date between Patty and me for a year.)

Patty was okay, but nothing special. I wouldn't have asked her out again, but a week later she called and said she had two tickets to the theater and asked if I would escort her. I said I would because I like theater, but now I'm sorry because a few days after that Patty called and asked me to escort her to another party!

One week later Patty asked me to escort her to a benefit performance for which she had the tickets ($100 a couple), and I couldn't very well pass

Then she asked me to please save New Year's Eve 'cause she and a friend are having a party

How can I break this Patty pattern without hurting her feelings? I don't want to be known as Patty's guy .--STUCK WITH PATTY

DEAR STUCK: You'll be stuck as long as you accept her invitations. Better learn to say NO before you wind up saying "I do."

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible for a teenager to love her parents and hate them at the same time? I think I do. and that is my problem. Please help me.—SIXTEEN AND FEELING

DEAR SIXTEEN: Yes. But get the magazine, Discover Yourself. It's on the newsstands now. In it you'll find an excellent article in which these two conflicting emotions are explained in language you will be able to understand. I recommend it highly to all teenagers.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope, please.

Georgian has telephone voice

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Jane Barbe has been recording messages for every telephone compancy in the nation, in 400 cities, for the past 13 years.

Her voice tells you the correct time and also such things as "The number you have reached is not in service at this time."

When not recording, Mrs. Barbe talks with a gentle Southern accent. But her voice changes to crisp, business-like tone when recording messages for the Midwest. She injects slight drawl into her accent for Texas recordings.

Barbe, a graduate of the University of Georgia with a degree in drama, is originally from Florida. She lived in New York while she was a vocalist with the Buddy Morrow Orchestra. Her husband was manager-musician of the orchestra at the time. He now has his own music company here.

Mrs. Barbe spends one or two days a week recording messages for telephone companies.

Relief tribute to Valentino

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — When he was 12, Michael Iacocca made a clay head of Rudolph Valentino, who had died a year earlier in 1926.

This year, Iacocca created another likeness of Valentino, but much more professionally.

Women get answers to their credit questions

WASHINGTON (AP) - Now that federal and state laws have made it illegal to deny women credit because of their gender, they are asking a lot of questions about their new status, according to the American Bankers Association (ABA)

To help women solve their credit problems and understand their new rights under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, the ABA has appointed five consumer advisors, all of them women and career officers of banks. They are appearing on television and radio programs across the country to answer questions about credit from women in the audience.

Among the most frequently asked questions are these, for which ABA supplies the answers:

Women change gears, fix cars

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — The new status symbol for women here is not a hammered gold bracelet or hand-painted T-shirt, but a half moon of grease under the nails.

It's this year's "in" look in an auto manufacturer's warranty processing department.

Six months ago, vivacious Lucretia Nuzzolo would have shuddered and sprnted for scrub brush and nail white. Now she beams at her battered fingernails and says, "I can't wait until Tuesday to tear another engine apart.'

Ms. Nuzzolo checks claims submitted by dealers for repairs covered under the Toyota warranty, work once done only by men.

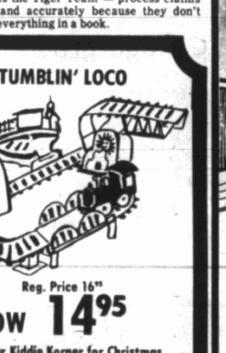

Eight women, age 22 through 45, volunteered for a technical training course that's making them at ease with tachometers, ratchet wreches and feeler "We're having a ball," says Ms. Nuzzoło, who along with the others prefers that designation. "As a kid I loved to watch my father and brothers work on the car. Of course I was never allowed to touch," she said with a smile. "But even today if he saw me tearing down and rebuilding a carburetor, my father wouldn't believe his eyes."

Dale Shephard, the pioneer woman in the department, has handled thousands of claims in seven years. But until she enrolled in the course, she says, she'd never even looked under the hood of a car.

"What a difference it makes!" she said. "Now when I get a claim for a set of wheel bearings I know exactly what parts are needed. I even know how long

What this means, she says, is that the women they're known as the Tiger Team - process claims more speedily and accurately because they don't have to look up everything in a book someone else's money There are funds available through federal agencies, private foundations and other funding institutions. The question is, how do you go about getting those funds?

A group of 25 women, plus one man, were on hand recently for the opening session of Virginia P. White's course on "The Art of Grantsmanship." The class is one of many being held this fall at The Womanschool in Manhattan.

"Grants irograms are established because someone in power wants to see something done." Ms. White said.

"You have to find someone with a real interest in what you do. It's the wrong approach to say you need the funds. therefore, you are 'deserving' of the money," she told the class.

Designers turn to footwear

By BETTY OMMERMAN Newsday

NEW YORK - Fashion designers, concerned that their styles are not being complemented by the right footwear, are taking steps to remedy this problem, and, at the same time, turn an extra dollar.

Geoffrey Beene, Morty Sussman of the Mollie Parnis Boutique, Bill Blass, Halston, Ralph Lauren and Calvin Klein are among the dress designers who will have shoe collections available within the next styles to which fashion conglomerateurs merely lend their famous names - are created specifically as an extension of the designer's holiday and resort clothes. (The ultimate extension is Halston's asymmetrical pump to match his asymmetrical necklines.)

"The marriage of shoe and clothing design was inevitable," said Blass, whose footwear is being made by Raybuck in Spain. "Shoes shouldn't distract from the proportion and styling of the clothes." Blass, who says that shoes, like clothes, are enjoying a classic revival, favors black satin and silver sandals with 31/2 inch heels for evening and low-heeled moccasins for day. Prices range from $55 to $65.

Sussman, who says he's interested in all facets of design, decided to plunge into shoes last spring when he was having trouble finding the right styles to go with his boutique collection. "Shoes are designed about six months ahead of clothes," he said, "so I always felt somewhat limited in my choices." His shoe collection, made by Miami Footwear, includes Miss Parnis' favorite Cinderella evening slipper - an open-toe sling-back in clear vinyl with a rhinestone buckle and a 21/2 inch heel

"I don't approve of very high heels -I think women like to be comfortable when they dance," said Miss Parnis, who said she must approve all shoes that bear her name or "MP" initials.

Designers turn to footwear

By BETTY OMMERMAN Newsday

NEW YORK - Fashion designers, concerned that their styles are not being complemented by the right footwear, are taking steps to remedy this problem, and, at the same time, turn an extra dollar.

Geoffrey Beene, Morty Sussman of the Mollie Parnis Boutique, Bill Blass, Halston, Ralph Lauren and Calvin Klein are among the dress designers who will have shoe collections available within the next styles to which fashion conglomerateurs merely lend their famous names - are created specifically as an extension of the designer's holiday and resort clothes. (The ultimate extension is Halston's asymmetrical pump to match his asymmetrical necklines.)

"The marriage of shoe and clothing design was inevitable," said Blass, whose footwear is being made by Raybuck in Spain. "Shoes shouldn't distract from the proportion and styling of the clothes." Blass, who says that shoes, like clothes, are enjoying a classic revival, favors black satin and silver sandals with 31/2 inch heels for evening and low-heeled moccasins for day. Prices range from $55 to $65.

Sussman, who says he's interested in all facets of design, decided to plunge into shoes last spring when he was having trouble finding the right styles to go with his boutique collection. "Shoes are designed about six months ahead of clothes," he said. "so I always felt somewhat limited in my choices." His shoe collection, made by Miami Footwear, includes Miss Parnis' favorite Cinderella evening slipper - an open-toe sling-back in clear vinyl with a rhinestone buckle and a 21/2 inch heel.

"I don't approve of very high heels -I think women like to be comfortable when they dance," said Miss Parnis, who said she must approve all shoes that bear her name or "MP" initials.

Carter expected to pay New York piper soon

NEW YORK - President-elect Jimmy Carter soon will be getting a bill for the 675,471-vote margin given him by New York City, which allowed him to carry the nation's second most populous state. Gov. Hugh Carey and Mayor Abraham Beame expect to meet with Carter in the first week of December to outline a new set of claims on the federal government, one of which may be an outright $5-billion federal loan to permit the city to refinance much of its burdensome debt.

There were indications Wednesday that the two New Yorkers will be well received. Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, said Carter has a soft spot for the urban Northeast, which contributed so heavily to his election. how soon. There is urgency involved Powell spoke of Carter's concern "for the problems of this region, where all the problems that face our society are present in a particularly acute way."

Carter's concern is historically justified, he suggested. "In the 1930s," he said, "we had a President from the Northeast who was particularly sympathetic to the problems of the rural South. I think it is fair to say that except for the understanding and sympathy of President Roosevelt that possibly many of us who have been involved in his campaign would not have had that chance, including because officials have warned that the budget cuts scheduled after next June will be the most painful to date and the most likely to do permanent damage to the city's socio-economic fabric.

There is also the problem, downgraded by the staffs of both Carey and Beame, of who speaks for the eity. Beame was one of Carter's earliest supporters in the state. And he is the mayor of a city that gave Carter nearly two-thirds of its votes in a state in which the Georgian carried only three of the 57 other counties. But the ultimate control of the city's finances passed more than a year ago from Beame to the Emergency Financial Control Board. It is dominated by Carey, who endorsed Carter rather late and who isn't on the best of terms with Beame.

There is a danger that we could dissipate all this natural leverage with the Carter administration if we start an ego war about who has a pipeline to the new president," a Carey staff member said.

Municipal Assistance Corp., says one of the first things that will be sought from Carter and the new Congress will be $5 billion to refinance the agency's debt, on which it is paying excessive interest rates.

grant a $5-billion long-term loan to the city at a normal interest rate. The federal government needn't use tax money to make the loan," he said. It could sell Treasury notes to finance it and the interest paid by the city would cover the interest on the Treasury notes. The net cost to U.S. taxpayers would be nothing.

The city, in turn, would be able to redeem all MAC bonds as well as city notes on which the state legislature has declared a payment moratorium. The deal could save the city $200 million a year in interest.

An alternative method for producing the $5 billion, he said, would be for the federal government to guarantee long-term bonds to be issued by the city. The guarantee would not cost the federal government any money, he said. In addition, the interest on these guaranteed bonds would be taxable, unlike the interest on other municipal bonds, meaning that the U.S. Treasury would make money on the deal by collecting more taxes.

Meanwhile, the Beame administration is preparing a long list of things, some of which will cost money, that Congress and Carter can do to help increase and speed the flow of federal funds to the city under existing programs. In addition, it will be pressing for a speedy federal takeover from the city of welfare

"Get welfare off our backs and e're home free," said a Beame threat of "social and economic disruptions." we're home free," said a Beame administration official. "The question is how long it will take to start phasing

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill apparently told the president of the State Bar two years ago that the bar could not finance its new $6 million headquarters with borrowed money Hill declines to confirm this but said that he has a definite opinion on the question and gave it to Leroy Jeffers

The building later was mortgaged for $4 million to the American Bank of Austin. Hill said this was done without his knowledge, even though he is the state's chief legal officer and the bar is a state agency. Jeffers said on Oct. 29 that Hill must have known some kind of financing would be required. Hill declined for almost two weeks to respond to queries but finally told The Associated Press on Wednesday he had been talking with many bar officials and others about the Hill said he expects legislators or the bar to request a formal opinion, and commenting informally would be "inappropriate.

"I certainly did," he said when FOOD S asked if he advised Jeffers on the legality of a mortgage.

Asked if he knew about the mortgage, he said, "I did not know about dandy the mortgage.

Five attorney general opinions dating back to 1940 have held that the State Bar is a state agency. The last In one, written by Hill to Jeffers, specifically notes, "You have not SANTA FE, N.M. on State Bar building mortgage

The bank has an American Title Insurance Co. policy to the building. A letter dated Oct. 8, 1974, from John Wheat of the title company to Richard Baker, a lawyer representing the bar building contractor, says, "... we have concluded that the State Bar, under the (1939 statute creating the bar), and under Opinion No. H-340 of the attorney general dated July 2, 1974, is fully empowered . . . to create a lien on the property ... H-340 is the opinion in which Hill said Jeffers had not proposed a mortgage on state property.

Mamie Eisenhower turns 80 today

By PAUL VATHIS AP Photographer

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) - "I've stopped counting birthdays," said

Mamie Eisenhower. And, she added, any woman who gets to be 80 "has a perfect right to stop counting.' The widow of President Dwight D. Eisenhower became an octogenarian today and expected her son and daughter-in law and their children including son David and his wife, Julie Nixon Eisenhower - to join her in celebration.

Leaning on the arm of a Secret Service agent, Mrs. Eisenhower recently stopped to talk with a photographer outside her home.

Her health in recent years has been fragile. Last winter she spent 11 weeks in Washington's Walter Reed Army Medical Center with a viral infection.

For years she has suffered from an inner ear problem which affects her balance. And she has a rheumatic heart and arthritis.

She had just returned home from the Gettysburg Presbyterian Church, which she attends regularly. But she took time to talk.

To incoming First Lady Mrs.

Rosalynn Carter, she sent best wishes and "may she always provide a home for her husband

She said that Mrs. Carter must have love and faith in her husband to help him through the presidency. During eight years in the White House, "I let Ike run the country, and I ran the home," Mrs. Eisenhower

In an interview with Ed Meyer of Washington radio station WMAL, broadcast today as a birthday observance, Mrs. Eisenhower voiced the same thoughts:

"The way I've always felt about Ike was this: A man has to make the money for the family. He has to do what he wants to do or he's not going to be successful. I never stood in Ike's way of anything he ever wanted to do. That was his business, not mine. Mine was the children, my househould and everything. His business was entirely removed.

Eisenhower died in 1969. He had been general of the army, leading the Allies to victory in World War II; he was President for two terms; and he had been president of Columbia University.

"I miss him terribly," Mrs. Eisenhower said in the radio interview, conducted on the porch of the

"You see, Ike and I used to use this porch so much and I would sit here like this and play solitaire and he used to sit across, painting. We would hardly say a word to each other, but we were companions. And I miss that ter-

She didn't say whether she'd call Mrs. Carter personally but that she's kept in touch with two other First Ladies, Mrs. Richard Nixon and Mrs. Lyndon Johnson.

Mrs. Eisenhower gets calls from Lady Bird Johnson. Her contact with Mrs. Nixon is mostly about family connections brought about by her grandson's marriage to Mrs. Nixon's

The rest of her routine, she said, revolves around answering mail and enjoying her home.

Last August, her personal secretary, Mrs. Ethel Wetzel, retired after some 15 years and was not replaced. Now, Mrs. Eisenhower answers as much of her personal mail as she can. The mail had been particularly heavy as her birthday approached

"I love to read and I work on my own correspondence," she told Meyer. "Anything is grist for my mill... if anyone takes the time to go

buy a card, to address it, put it in an envelope and seal it and put a stamp on it, the least you could do is to thank them.

She said her day usually begins with a leisurely breakfast. Then she answers mail. She lunches on the sun porch, plays solitaire and watches television soap operas.

After a late afternoon nap, her Secret Service bodyguards take her for a short auto ride in the countryside around Gettysburg.

After dinner she answers more mail, watches television and reads. "I do miss his companionship a great deal," she said of Eisenhower in the radio interview. "He was gone a lot of the time; he was gone three years at one time. But you steel yourself to things like that. I have tried to steel myself against this, and I find it hard to do.'

The remembrance of Ike brought more reminiscences about the nearly 53 years they spent together in mar-

"I want you to know there's never any excitement that can compare with the first star," said the woman who watched her husband take on many important duties and enough honors to enshrine him forever in his country's history.

DIRT, SQUIRT, QUIRT Swine meeting, Glasscock pecan show scheduled

Cotton trailers are beginning to stack up at the gins as harvest gains momentum in the West Texas area. The cold front moving in this weekend brought temperatures that should kill remaining leaves on some fields in the area that were not quite dry enough for harvest. Generally, yields and quality of the 1976 crops is holding up well with good prices being received. If the weather remains favorable for two or three more weeks the larger percent of the crop will be removed from the fields.

If you raise hogs, from one sow and a few pigs on up to a commercial size operation, there should be something of interest for you in a swine educational meeting to be held Monday evening in the County Extension office, Courthouse Annex, 218 W. Illinois St. Dr. Gilbert Hollis, Area Extension Swine Specialist from Lubbock who is a well known authority on swine production in the High Plains area, will present the program.

The following topics will be discussed: Simple, low-cost facilities for small swine producers; selecting and breeding the right kind of swine; a planned health and parasite control program, and good nutrition for healthy pigs. The meeting begin at 7:30 p.m. All interested persons are invited.

Oliver Werst, County Extension Agent (Agriculture) for Glasscock County, announces The Glasscock County Pecan Show will be held Nov. 22 and 23 and invites Midland producers to participate. An entry consists of 40 pecans of one variety, exhibited in their natural state. Plaques and ribbons will be awarded winners, and entries will be received in Garden City at the County Agent's Office up until 8:00 a.m. Nov. 22. You do not have to be a commercial grower to compete, the homeowner with one

Both cow-calf producers and cotton farmers could benefit by doing some business with each other this year. If cattlemen would boost their winter feed supply by purchasing whole cottonseed from cotton farmers, they would be able to save on feed costs while at the same time helping cotton farmers sell their cottonseed

Cottonseed was once a common cow feed, but its use has declined in recent years as the value of cottonseed oil has increased. Cattlemen now commonly feed cotton oil by-products such as cottonseed meal, cubes and hulls. But current cottonseed and feed prices indicate that feeding whole cottonseed should be reconsidered.

Dr. Dennis Herd, beef cattle specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service note these advantages of feeding whole cottonseed: Whole cottonseed, with 23 per cent protein and 30 to 60 per cent more digestible energy than the typical 20 per cent protein range cube which may vary in fiber from 10 to 20 per cent. The extra energy is particularly helpful in successfully breeding and wintering fall

The Extension specialist suggests feeding 10 pounds of whole cottonseed whenever it may be fed cheaper than 3.5 pounds of cottonseed and 6.5 pounds of milo. Costs should consider differences in labor, waste and storage which will vary greatly among cattlemen. Less whole cottonseed is required compared to range cubes, particularly for cows nursing calves.

A 1,000-pound, fleshy dry pregnant cow on dead fall grass or poor hay consuming 16-18 pounds of grass would need 1.9 pounds of whole cottonseed as opposed to 2.25 pounds of a 20 per cent all-natural protein cube.

A 1,000-pound cow nursing a calf should perform about the same when receiving 5 pounds of whole cottonseed and grazing on cured grass. Many cotton producers are receiving less than $100 per ton for their cottonseed. If range cubes are costing $150 to $165 per ton (depending on quality) and cottonseed can be purchased for $100 per ton.
