Teachers seek 3-year contracts from trustees

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Could 3-year contracts for teachers make it easier to "weed out"

Or would teachers actually gain anything by going to a three-year instead of a one-year contract?

These questions were the major topic of discussion Monday night at an informal dinner session in which school trustees met with members of the Teachers Communications Committee.

The committee, made up of teachers appointed by the Classroom Teachers Association, presented a proposal for three-year contracts for teachers after a probationary period.

Committee chairman Maridell Fryar said the proposal was the result of 18 months of study by the committee. It was not presented as a policy recommendation, but rather for the board's "opinion and assistance."

Among positive benefits Mrs. Fryar cited for the 3-year concept was that it could "forestall or delay the threat of active unionism in the school district" by giving established teachers job security.

But, she said, quality of education.

not job security, was the primary goal of the committee.

If they knew they were making a three-year instead of a one-year commitment, principals likely would be more careful about recommending renewal of an ineffective teacher's contract, Mrs. Fryar said.

"We are really serious about weeding out those of us who are not the best. There are teachers who are awarded 'one more year' several years ongoing (under the present system)," Dorise Watson, president of Classroom Teachers Association,

The evaluation system called for in the 3-year proposal is the same as is now used in the school district. Teachers are evaluated formally each of their first three years in the district and every three years thereafter.

Many of the trustees' comments centered on whether the teachers actually have most of the benefits of the contract already and what the effect of the contract's adoption on community attitudes toward teachers might be.

"I think there's a good possibility you may be giving up more than you're getting," trustee Ed Runyan

"In effect, you have a 1½-year contract now," board member Johnny Warren said. He said the school district, according to recent court cases, is obligated to give an experienced teacher a probationary year and then notification of nonrenewal of the contract must come before March 1 the next year.

Several board members also expressed fear that community acceptance of the 3-year contract for teachers would not be high.

"That's just going to be one more thing to upset the community,' trustee Ann Page said.

"The emotional climate in our community is one of raw ends exposed. If ever there was a time to go slowly and carefully, this is the year,"

board president Joe Dominey said. Runyan said he believes that teachers now, in effect, have an "evergreen contract," which continues until one party or the other is dissatisfied. If the school district is dissatisfied, it must give reasons and

Several board members agreed that some of the objectives outlined in the proposed contract could be ac-complished by policy change without adopting the new system.

"We're better off in terms of community acceptance (by changing policy). That's a very important consideration," Dominey said.

Election doesn't mean separation

A tired Rene Levesque, leader of the Parti Quebecois, didn't look like the victor Monday night.

MONTREAL, Quebec (AP) — The Parti Quebecois, which advocates the independence of French-speaking Quebec from English-dominated Canada, has won control of the provincial government.

But the vote for members of a new provincial legislature Monday indicated defeat for secession in a referendum promised within two years by party leader Rene Levesque, who will become premier of the province.

Antiseparatist parties got 59 per cent of the vote, and opinion polls before the election indicated only about 20 per cent of the voters were diehard separatists. Levesque himself during the campaign softpedaled his party's traditional goal of

Instead he attacked Premier Robert Bourassa and his Liberalparty administration for the province's 10.1 per cent unemployment rate, predicted billion-dollar deficit and the highest taxes in Canada.

When counting stopped Monday night, the Parti Quebecois, or Pequistes, had won 66 of the 110 seats in the assembly and was leading for three others. The Liberals had 27 seats and were leading for one other. In the last assembly there were 102 Liberals and six Pequistes.

The Parti Quebecois won about 41 per cent of the popular vote; the Liberals got 34 per cent; Union Nationale took 18 per cent, and minor parties got the rest.

There was no immediate comment on the election outcome from Charles

In addition, police in Springville said a woman believed to be Gilmore's girlfriend was found unconscious in her apartment, also of an apparent drug overdose.

Gilmore had been scheduled to be executed by a firing squad on Monday, but the execution was delayed. He was sentenced for the killing of a motel clerk during a robbery.

Automobile thefts jump 115 per cent

By JIM STEINBERG

Midland police report a 115 per cent increase in burglaries from automobiles during the first 10 months of 1976 over the same period

And most of the 459 auto burglaries this year have involved the faddish citizen's band radio, said Sgt. Fred

This skyrocketing trend in auto burglaries contrasts with a city-wide decrease in reported burglaries of residences and buildings, Johnson said

"Thieves strike anywhere they see an antenna," said Capt. Billy Ray, chief of detectives. "It only takes about 15 seconds to get into a car with a straightened coat hanger," he ad-

Apartment building parking lots have tended to be prime targets for the CB radio thieves because they offer a large supply of prospects, Ray

But probably the greatest number of thefts have occurred from automobiles parked in front of houses. Johnson said. There are no set times when a theft is likely to occur, he observed.

Although the percentage of CB radios recovered by police is usually few in comparison to the numbers stolen, police said, October proved an exception when 34 of 63 reported stolen were recovered. Eight adults and two juveniles were charged with the felony of burglary from an automobile during October. Ray said. Most persons arrested for the theft of citizens band radios are in their late teens or early 20s, he added. "If people would stop buying a CB they know to be stolen, then there wouldn't be an outlet (for the radios) and consequently the number of thefts will go down," Ray said. Midland police are increasing their efforts to arrest those who knowingly buy stolen CB's, Ray said. Two persons indicted by a recent grand jury for the felony charge of exercising control of stolen property were alleged to have knowingly bought

Midland building activity rises

Midlanders saw building activity in the city take a sharp increase during October, the first month of the new fiscal year.

Building permits issued during the month totaled $5,732,821, considerably higher than the $3,215,163 issued during October a year ago. This year's construction total to date now stands at $38,870,432, the city inspections department said.

Included in the permits issued during the month were 31 for new homes, 11 for new commercial establishments and 49 for residential or commercial alterations or repairs. These figures compare to 32, six and 75 respectively for October 1975.

To date, 356 permits have been issued this year for new homes, 115 for new commercial establishments and 700 for residential or commercial alterations or repairs, the city said.

A breakdown of the building permits issued during the month shows 30 went for single-family residences at $1,354,000; one for an apartment complex at $1,135,000; one for a Thangar at $127,000; two for warehouses at $26,000; four for signs at $11,000; one for an office and electrical shop at $27,000; two for car wash buildings at $29,000; one for a church at $60,000, and one for an addition to the Trinity Towers complex at $2,374,000

The city issued nine permits worth $483,000 for commercial alterations and 40 permits worth $105,821 for residential alterations last month.

The Washington Post

PLAINS, Ga. — President-elect Jimmy Carter said Monday that the American people should be prepared to tolerate an unemployment rate of 5 per cent or more through much of his first term in office.

At his second press conference since the election, Carter was asked whether his goal of an unemployment rate of 4 to 4 1-2 per cent by 1980 necessarily means that unemployment will be 5 to 7 per cent in the years before then.

"I would guess that is a likely prospect," he replied. The unemployment rate is now 7.9

But Carter also said that the state of the economy will not delay his plans to seek to overhaul the government bureaucracy and the tax and welfare

One of Carter's first important steps in dealing with the economy will come early next week when he will make his first post-election trip to Washington and meet with, among others, federal reserve board chairman Arthur F. Burns.

Carter has called repeatedly for a change in the tenure of the board's chairman to make it coincide with the President's term. He repeated Monday his intention to seek passage of legislation that would accomplish that. Asked if he might ask Burns voluntarily "to step aside" so that he could name his own chairman, Carter said he could not answer until after their initial meeting.

Predicting "a substantial degree of cooperation" between him and Burns, Carter said, "My first inclination is to work with him, to have him stay on."

Burns' membership on the Federal Reserve Board extends until 1984 but his tenure as chairman will end Jan. 31, 1978, at which time Carter could name a replacement. Burns has warned the incoming Carter Administration that attempts to fuel the economy through increased government spending will have serious inflationary repercussions.

No details of Carter's trip to Washington were announced except that he also will meet with some Ford Administration cabinet officers. Carter's aides said that the presidentelect is likely to be in Washington on Monday and Tuesday of next week.

Carter indicated he does not expect to meet with President Ford during his initial post-election trip.

After the press conference, aides to Carter also strongly suggested that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will travel to Plains to meet with Carter before Carter's trip to Washington.

Carter also announced his first staff appointment and it came as no surprise. He said Jody Powell, 33, will continue as his press secretary at the White House.

Emphasizing his determination to appoint top administration officials in 'a careful, thorough and deliberate personally to name about 75 administration officials. He said he and Vice President-elect Walter F. Mondale personally will interview potential appointees for a number of positions and that those being considered will be known to the public. To help in the selection process, he said he and Mondale already have begun calling several "distinguished Americans" to seek their advice and suggestions. The names of some of these people who will act as advisers in the selection process will be an-nounced later, he said.

Hamilton Jordan, his campaign manager, will head the effort to locate and recruit potential administration appointees in Washington, Carter

The president-elect also said that he is now arranging to meet with business leaders, many of them from New York, to seek their advice.

Industrial output again shows decline

WASHINGTON - The output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities fell 0.5 per cent last month, reflecting strikes by automobile workers and a continuing slowdown in economic

The Federal Reserve Board reported that on the basis of more complete data it had revised its September figures to show an 0.2 per cent decline in industrial production. The September decline was the first since the end of the 1974-75 recession in March 1975.

At first the agency said that industrial output was at the same level in September as the month before.

The Federal Reserve said that United Auto Workers strikes at Ford Motor Co. and Deere & Co., the farm equipment manufacturer, accounted for less than a third of the overall 0.5 per cent decline in output.

The two successive months of declining industrial production are further evidence that the slowdown in economic growth, which began last spring, has continued through the fall.

While output of factories, mines and utilities has actually been falling in recent months, the total output of goods and services - the so-called real gross national product - has been rising, but at a much slower rate than early in the year.

Economic growth has been so sluggish that the unemployment rate has risen from a May low of 7.3 per cent to 7.9 per cent in October. Industrial production is one of the Many industries — including automobiles, steel and appliances have announced production cutbacks in recent weeks as demand for their products either softened or did not increase as fast as businessmen thought they would.

The latest data from the Labor

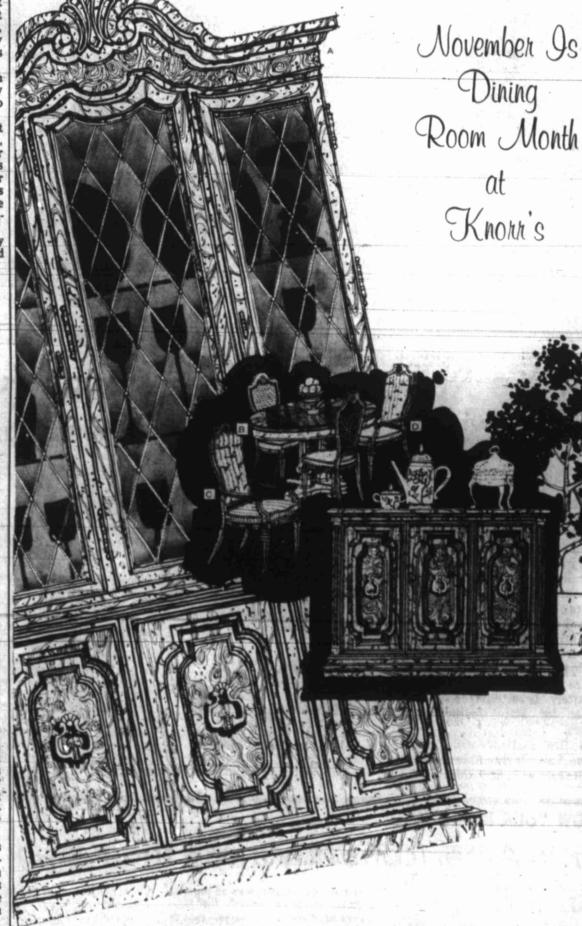

Department shows that the number of production workers on employer payrolls fell from 13.77 million in September to 13.62 million in October, and the number of workers in the transportation and utilities industries declined slightly. The October index of industrial production stood at 130.4 per cent of its 1967 average. That is 0.5 per cent below September but 6.7 per cent above a year ago. Declines in production occurred in nearly every major category measured by the Federal Reserve Board, the nation's central bank. The biggest decline was registered in consumer durable goods, which fell 1.7 per cent. The Fed said assemblies of automobiles stayed at the 7.7 million annual rate of October, but that "utility vehicle production apparently declined somewhat further."

Other consumer durable goods industries such as appliances, carpeting and furniture had a falloff in production in October. There also was a decline in consumer nondurable goods production, particularly in

Poorest of tactics

When to apply pressure and when to relax it is a common problem in international diplomacy. Forcefulness is required in many circumstances to nudge a nation into doing something that it does not particularly want to do. Too much pressure might make it dig in its

That, roughly, is the problem that the United Nations and the United States face in their endeavors to moderate South Africa's racist policies.

At the moment, the U. N. is unremitting in its intent to keep all possible pressure on South Africa. It loses no opportunity to expose and condemn the policies of the Vorster regime.

In recent weeks, for example, the U. N. condemned proposed independence for the Transkei homefand well before Transkei staged its independence ceremonies on Oct. 26. A second U. N. resolution condemned both Transkei and the policy of separate homelands for blacks in South Africa after the celebrations in Umtata, the region's capital city.

The United States, sensitive to the fragile balance of diplomacy in Africa, abstained on the first resolution. We were badly embarrassed on the second, which passed 134-0, because the decision to have a roll call vote was made quickly and unexpectedly and the United States was not properly notified.

While the subject of South Africa raises strong emotions at the U. N., shooting from the hip can easily become counterproductive.

The United States has made it clear time and again that Americans do not condone South Africa's policy of apartheid, or separate development. The United States did not send an official observer to the Transkei independence ceremonies. And the United States has refused to recognize Transkei as an independent nation.

At the same time, America would not be serving the cause of humanity or the aspirations of a majority of U. N. members if it adopted a rigid, hardline policy toward South Africa and closed all lines of communication.

In the narrowest of senses, South Africa is not an American problem, but a British one. Apartheid is a residue of British colonialism.

Nevertheless, by assuming the leadership is bringing an open dialogue, the United States has been able to ameliorate Pretoria's policies considerably - and there is promise that the favorable trend will continue if nothing upsets the applecart.

It would be tragic and ironic if the applecart upsetter were the U. N., acting with the best of motives, but the poorest of tac-

On Ye Rebels!

Congratulations are in order for Midland's Robert E. Lee High School Rebels, who have annexed another 5-4A football championship, their second in three years.

"Way to go, Rebs!" has been the cry of the Lee Youth Center Chatter columnists all season, and now all Midlanders join with them in increasing the volume of the rallying chant as the Rebels move into the playoffs, leading to a state championship.

Head Coach Jim Acree's squad is a great football team. It has been from the start of the season, and it has improved markedly as the season progressed. It very definitely is a competent contender for state championship honors.

The first challenge will come at 2 p.m. Saturday at Abilene when the Rebels will meet Coach John Reddell's Trinity Euless Trojans in a Class AAAA bi-district state playoff game. A large crowd of Midland fans and supporters will be on hand to cheer the Rebels on to victory.

Midland and Midlanders are proud of the Lee Rebels and they wish for them the very best as they continue the football wars leading to top honors in Texas high school football circles.

Treasury investigates gun gift

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON - The Treasury Dept. is secretly investigating charges that the host of a Las Vegas casino presented an illegal gun to the official in charge of enforcing the federal firearms laws.

Rex Davis, director of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, allegedly accepted the gun in violation of the laws that his agency is supposed to uphold. Under these laws, firearms can't be presented as gifts to residents of another state.

Davis categorically denied the allegation. He told us that he had visited Las Vegas only once, had stayed long enough to make a speech and had never accepted an illegal firearm from anyone.

The allegation against Davis filtered out of a Justice Dept. investigation of Charles Baron, the 'greeter" at the fashionable Riveria Hotel on Las Vegas' strip.

Baron is a retired brigadier general, who has lived in Las Vegas for 20 years. He is known to be an avid gun collector. Reports reached Washington that he was passing out weapons to visiting celebrities. One of Davis' own agents overheard a conversation indicating that a high A.T.F. official, possibly Davis himself, had accepted a gun from Baron. The investigation eventually focused on Davis. Treasury officials told us that internal investigations usually are made into any charges of impropriety against Treasury officials. A spokesman said the preliminary investigation has produced no evidence that Davis took the illegal Footnote: Baron did not return our repeated calls.

SECRET SURVEILLANCE - In a memo intended for the eyes only of Deputy Attorney General Harold Tyler, a Justice Dept. official has charged that the department conducted "improper and perhaps illegal" surveillance at the The official, Lee Henson, reported that an 11-man team was assembled in Kansas City to keep close watch on "yippies, gays and other persons and The "spies" were drawn from the Justice Dept.'s Community Relations Service, which is supposed to resolve civil rights disputes. In Henson's opinion, the spying was

"improper and unlawful" because it was "unrelated to discriminatory practices." He contended that the Community Relations Service has "no surveillance or intelligencegathering authority.'

Nevertheless, the 11 civil rights officials were ordered into action, with all the drama of an undercover mission. They carried "walkie-talkie radio equipment and were required to make hourly radio reports."

The language was straight out of military operations. They were issued "orders." They were "dispatched." "detailed" and "briefed." After a full day's spying, they were "debriefed" and "secured" for the night.

It was a strange assignment for civil rights specialists.

Footnote: A Justice Dept. spokesman told us Henson's protest is being reviewed at the request of Tyler. Community Relations director Ben Holman, who overruled Henson's objections to the Kansas City mission, denied that it was illegal. Henson declined comment.

CARTER DONNYBROOK - At the height of the presidential campaign, Jimmy Carter inadvertently stirred up a tempest in Great Britain - an old-fashioned Irish donnybrook which

He met in Pittsburgh with Irish-American leaders, many of them dogmatically anti-British. A militant priest read Carter what purported to be a copy of the Democratic platform on Ireland and asked whether he supported it.

The platform was carefully calculated to offend neither side. But the priest spiked the noncontroversial platitudes with some language of his own. Between two innocuous sentences, he inserted the words: "The /U.S. should encourage the formation of (a) united Ireland.

These are trigger words, which disregard Protestant views and uphold the position of the Irish Revolutionary Army. The unsuspecting Carter, groggy from the grueling campaign, overlooked the inflammatory sentence. The British press, however, focused on the quote that Carter hadn't noticed. Within a few hours, the British and the Irish Protestants were in a rage. Carter was denounced by several English parliamentarians. one of whom called him an "irresponsible ... peanut politician."

To make matters worse, one sensational English paper reported that Carter had backed the Irish terrorists' position while sporting a pro-IRA button declaring "Britain Out!" In fact, a photographer had caught him with an anti-British button. But it had been pinned on him at a St. Patrick's Day parade months earlier. He immediately snatched it off, but the photographer was too

Carter's real position was that the warring factions should sit down together and talk peacefully. He sent telegram to the Irish Prime Minister, explaining his views. Such responsible papers as the London Times also tried to set the record straight.

But the damage had been done.

Latin Americans buy more than Japan, Africa, India

By WILLIAM GIANDONI Copley News Service

Latin America is worth about as much to the United States as Japan and all of Africa, India, Pakistan and Indonesia put together. It may be a fact usually overlooked, but says Antonio Ortiz Mena, president of the Inter-American Development Bank, U.S. sales to the Latin American countries more than doubled after 1965 and reached almost $7 billion in 1973. The real significance of that trade figure becomes more apparent when it is compared to U.S. shipments to other areas of the world. Ortiz Mena said that in 1973 U.S.

exports to Africa were valued at less than $1 billion; to India, Pakistan and Indonesia, at less than $800 million; and those to Japan at approximately $5.7 billion.

"In other words, from an American perspective, the combined markets of Africa and of such heavily populated countries as India, Pakistan and Indonesia accounted for only a small fraction of the Latin American market, while even the Japanese economy, despite its tremendous development, imported a lower value of U.S. capital goods and industrial inputs than Latin America," Ortiz

What is more, the former Mexican treasury minister added, as U.S. trade with Latin America rose, so did the involvement of private banks and the investments of private capitalists. Early in the 1960s, most U.S.

financial cooperation was channeled to Latin America through the U.S. government and its agencies. "At the beginning of the last decade public (government) financing averaged twice that of private funding...By 1973 and 1974 private financing represented approximately 74 per cent of the total.

Ortiz Mena said that foreign private investments in Latin America steadily have climbed since 1967. From a yearly net then of around $500 million they increased to $1.3 billion in 1971-1972 and $1.8 billion in 1973-1974.

In fact, more than 70 per cent of U.S. private capital invested in the developing world is at work in Latin America. It amounted to about $20 billion by the end of 1974.

At the same time, great changes have been wrought in the other American republics. Most Latin people now live in cities, some 62 per cent. Latin America already boasts 19 cities with more than a million population and estimates are the region will have three cities of more than 15 million population by the end of the century.

One of the results of urbanization has been expansion of primary and secondary school education which now covers 70 and 65 per cent-respectively of the school-age

Industrialization has contributed to changing the structure of the economies of particularly the largest Now, for example, "Argentina,

Brazil, Mexico and, to a lesser extent,

CASTRO WINS ELECTION Fidel Castro, Communist Cuba's dictator, has finally been elected to public office and his political future looks bright.

He was one of 481 persons picked to be deputies to the National Assembly of Popular Power that will hold its first meeting in Havana Dec. 2 to decide who runs Cuba from now on.

Castro and the others were chosen by the members of municipal assemblies who were victors in island-wide popular elections Oct. 10. The next round of voting will involve only the 481 members of the National Assembly.

They will choose from among themselves the chairman (or president), a first vice president, five vice presidents, a secretary and 23 other members. That group will make up the Council of State and will govern secretariat and central committee. With their backing, Fidel Castro should be an easy winner in the Dec. 2 poll for the position of chairman of the Council of State which also carries with it the titles of "chief of state" and

The date chosen for the national assembly's first meeting also is the 20th anniversary of the landing on Cuba's south coast of the yacht Granma. Court may take up discrimination case

WASHINGTON (AP) - Can a medical school reject a white student with test scores higher than minority students admitted under a special program? Or is that racial discrimination in reverse?

The Supreme Court may agree to wrestle with that question. If it does, its answer could carry great consequences for affirmative action programs in education and business throughout the nation.

The justices on Monday temporarily set aside an order by the California Supreme Court striking down a program at the University of California-Davis Medical School that gives admission preference to minority students.

While not denying the racial and ethnic aspect of its program at Davis and other UC campuses, the university's regents said they were attempting "to bring historically underrepresented minorities and ethnic groups into the mainstream of our country's educational and professional life."

The charge of "reverse discrimination" was made by Allan Bakke, a 36-year-old white civil engineer who twice was turned down for admission to the medical school.

He charged that he was discriminated against because UC-Davis admitted 16 lower-rated students, all minority members.

The Supreme Court gave the UC regents 30 days to appeal the state court's ruling, saying it will hold in abeyance the order dismantling the affirmative action program pending the appeal

Many civil rights groups - including the NAACP, the Mexican American Legal Defense Fund and the National Conference of Black Lawyers - have urged the regents to drop the case. They fear an adverse ruling could jeopardize affirmative action programs in schools as well as in working places. Two years ago, the justices declined to rule in a similar case involving Marco DeFunis Jr., a white Phi Beta Kappa student who was rejected in 1971 by the University of Washington law school, which also had a special admission program for minorities.

By a 5 to 4 vote the court decided DeFunis' case was moot because he had been admitted to the law school under a lower court's order pending appeal, and he was about to graduate.

The court on Monday also: -Agreed to hear arguments in a case where a worker alleges that he lost his job because of religious discrimination.

-Refused to consider an appeal by Fairfax County, Va., and Nassau County, N.Y., authorities seeking to void federal approval of landing rights the supersonic Concorde jetliner at airports within their confines.

-Agreed to decide whether Michigan has to pay for half of an $11.6-million educational enrichment program in Detroit schools, an outgrowth of efforts to integrate the city's school system.

-Refused to consider the constitutionality of a curfew imposed by Middletown, Pa., which prohibits persons under 18 from being away from their homes at night when unescorted or without prior approval. About 3,000 U.S. cities and towns have

"It's bad enough being locked up if you're average size, but it's even worse if you're a dwarf,"

He has to climb into secondtier prison bunks, wear ill-fitting prison clothing and stand eye-towaist with other prisoners.

Jett said he's grown accustomed to regular kidding. 'I'm called a 'short-termer' and 'shorty' and things like that. Most of it is friendly kidding,'

At 48, Jett is serving 24 to 40 years for passing bad checks. He claims he was "railroaded" because he is a dwarf and because he is from the North. "I got more time for bad

Speed limit backed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP Atty. Gen. John Hill says there is no doubt in his mind that the 55 mile-perhour speed limit in Texas is legal.

"Contrary to what has appeared in some newspaper stories, it is the position of the attorney general's office that the 55 miles-per-hour speed limit is con stitutional and may be validly enforced," Hill said in a letter to Robert C. Richter Jr., secretarytreasurer of the Texas Municipal Courts Association, Houston.

Richter wrote to Hill saying at least one Texas judge had expressed personal views that the 55 mph law was invalid.

Hill said the confusion in some people's minds resulted from two different orders from the Texas Highway Commission before and after a special session of the legislature.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I ave raised 14 children, eight daughters and six sons, here in the coal fields of the Southeast. All were aised in the church. (My husband eaches a Bible class.)

Seven years ago one of my daughters, then 15, became pregnant. couldn't believe it and was heartbroken. My husband insisted that she be sent away, and her baby left wherever it was born. I defied him, saw my daughter through the birth and am now raising her little boy. My once tenderhearted, precious daughter has become a lesbian and has fallen into the use of alcohol and

Six weeks ago she revealed to me that her own father is the baby's father, too! I also learned that he had molested our other daughters as they were growing up. No one would tell me, but immediately after high school graduation they would leave home to work. Now I know why!

For the first time in my life, prayer has not brought me the wisdom I need now. I am 58, a diabetic, ailing physically and longing for peace of mind. My 60-year-old husband repels me. Would you leave him or endure till death separates us? Flease help me.—CRUSHED

DEAR ABBY: My husband is an ordained minister who doesn't charge a fee to officiate at weddings for families in his congregation.

Last summer he performed six ceremonies. They were all lovely church affairs followed by receptions and dinners, and the night before, there were rehearsal dinners. Abby, my husband and I never got one invitation to any of these festivities!

One bride's mother said to my husband after the ceremony, "Oh, please stay for the reception and dinner, and phone your wife and tell her to come over right away?" (He politely declined.)

Another bride told him, "We didn't invite you and your wife to our wedding reception because we figured you'd be too busy to come."

The other four brides didn't even ask my husband to stay after the ceremony, but one saw him on the street a few months later and said, "How come you didn't stay for the dinner? We had a place set for you!"

Lost items always found in illogical places

I have just figured out that I have spent a total of 23 years, four months, six days, twelve hours and seventeen minutes looking for things around the house that are not really lost. (If I had spent that much time taking care of my face and body I could be a love goddess by now.)

The other morning as I hung by my heels retrieving the innards of the coffee pot from the garbage can, my husband in one of his rare moments of sentiment said, "You have the instincts of a water Members of the Plans for the Cerebral Grafa will serve as corbuffalo. By RICK SCOTT

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - Tick. Tick. Tick. Tick. Tick.

"This city is sitting on a time bomb," says Councilman Phil Pyn-"A blank check," says Mayor Lila

Cockrell.

The time bomb is a modified state law which allows policemen and firemen in San Antonio to receive tens of thousands of dollars in cash when they resign or retire. A retiring officer also would receive his regular pension.

The new law lets the officers collect

A spokesman in the city personnel department said that if all police and fire officers in San Antonio quit their jobs right now, the city would owe more than $11.3 million for unused,

Additionally city finance director Carl White said the city's pension fund would be $66 million in arrears if those eligible took immediate retire-

"It's a frightening picture," says Mayor Cockrell. "There is not enough money in San Antonio to underwrite that kind of deficit."

The law, as it stands now, allows officers to build up unused sick leave at the rate of 15 days per year, with no ceiling. At retirement or resignation, an officer is paid in cash for the unused sick leave days he has accumulated.

For example, an officer never sick in 30 years would accumulate 450 days. At retirement he would receive a cash payoff, based on the salary he was earning at the time of retirement. Before the law was modified last year, officers could be paid for a maximum of 90 unused days. The remainder were lost. Now, other city employes in San An-

According to dissidents, on the night of Aug. 4-5, a slogan was painted on the Peter-Paul Fortress in letters about three feet high in a sentence that ran 100 to 150 feet long. It said: 'You are strangling freedom but the soul of the people knows no bondage."

The slogan in white, oil-based paint could be seen high on the wall of the ancient landmark from up and down the Neva River waterfront.

Other accounts said the same slogan was scrawled later in lipstick on a major department store, on KGB ceadquarters itself and even on a couple of police cars.

Although the KGB obtained two "confessions" to part of the night's work, dissidents assert that these cannot be genuine. They insist they have no idea who the real culprits are.

The dissidents say the secret police were pressured into finding a scapegoat by public statements of Grigory V. Romanov, first secretary of the Leningrad region Communist party, in a speech on Sept. 24.

In that address, Romanov, speaking about dissidents, referred publicly to the slogans, and said the culprits had been apprehended.

The dissidents say it was only after that speech that the KGB managed to obtain "confessions" from two unofficial artists, who still are being Said Andrei Rukhin, a Jewish ac-glut California LOS ANGELES (AP) - Californians who remember the long lines, our approximately 20 per cent.'

Petroleum may short tempers and nippy nights caused by the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo may be surprised to learn that a new problem is looming: too much

It's not that there have been any major new finds. The difficulty, according to oilmen, government planners and private analysts, is that West Coast refineries will be unable to handle up to half of the 1.2 million barrels of crude oil per day expected from the Alaska pipeline when it opens late next year.

Ironically, it was the reactions of the public, business and the government to the fivemonth embargo that led in part to the anticipated oil glut. Oilmen say consumption declined after the embargo because of higher prices and conservation measures. They say this in turn discouraged them from investing in new refineries.

"You only build refineries because you have demand for the products they produce," says Robert Schaadt, vice president of Standard Oil Co. of Ohio (Sohio), which owns 54 per cent of the reserves in Alaska's rich Prudhoe Bay field.

Governmental reaction to the embargo came in the form of Project Independence, designed to reduce this country's dependence on imported oil.
One part of the project was the opening of the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve near Taft to commercial production for the first time, a move which added 200,000 barrels a day to the West Coast's supply.

The Midwest and East Coast could use the Alaskan crude, but the oil companies haven't figured out exactly how to get it there. Although there are several proposed connector pipelines, none exists now. Tankers are another possibility, but oilmen say there aren't enough to handle the surplus.

Another option is an exchange with Japan whereby the Japanese would get some of the Alaskan crude in return for diverting some of their Middle Eastern oil shipments to the U.S. However, Congress prohibited such a swap when it approved construction of the Alaska pipeline in 1973, and oilmen say privately that such an exhange would face severe political opposition.

Atlantic Richfield (ARCO), which owns 20 per cent of the Prudhoe Bay reserves (EXXON also owns 20 per cent, with the remaining six per cent split among a number of companies), says it doesn't anticipate problems in refining its share of the Alaskan

'We feel we can handle all or oil," says ARCO Vice Chairman Louis Davis. "We have a refinery in Washington, which we designed for

Alaskan crude, that will handle 100,000 barrels a day, and another in Southern California. So we feel we're pretty well equipped to take care of

However, Sohio, with the lion's share of the oil, is seeking approval to ship its crude by tanker to Long Beach, where it would be shipped east to Midland, Texas, via a proposed 1,000-mile pipeline. From Midland, the oil would go through existing pipelines to the Midwest.

The project would require converting about 800 miles of existing natural gas pipeline for use as a crude oil carrier and constructing 200 miles of new lines. Sohio says the project could handle almost all of the surplus oil and could be ready in less than 18 months. However, it has come under attack from the state Air Resources Board, which says the tankers and tanks needed for the oil shipments would add some 40 tons of hydrocarbons a day to the air.

Sohio disputes the ARB figures and points to a recent study done by the Port of Long Beach in conjunction with the state Public Utilities Commission which says the increased hydrocarbon emissions would come to about 1.5 tons per day.

Don Bright, director of environmental affairs for the port, says the ARB figures assume that tankers will "purge," or clean, their oil tanks while still in the harbor. Bright says a common practice is to purge tanks at sea. Sohio also says it is willing to pay for pollution controls on other emission sources in the Long Beach area in order to offset the tanker emissions and ensure that there is no overall deterioration in air quality.

Whatever means of getting rid of the oil are found, analysts say the problem of a West Coast surplus isn't going to go away soon. They point out that the flow from the Prudhoe Bay is expected to reach 1.8 million barrels a day in 1981. One study by James D. Hickey, oil and oil services analyst with the stock brokerage firm of Stern, Frank, Meyer & Fox, projects a 714,000 barrel a day surplus on the West Coast in 1981.

Lee Chatter BY MICA CASTOR,

JANIS SANDERS & DEEHONA WISE

We are the Rebels! We are great! We got District! Now go for State! Through rain, sleet, snow or hall, the Rebels will prevail! That's what happened Friday night as our Mighty Maroon Platoon plowed its way through five inches of snow to roll over the MHS Bulldogs 15-6. Congratulations go to the Permian Panthers for beating the Odessa Broncos. Thanks, Mojo, we needed that!

Well, gang, the idea of football being over now has gone up in a puff of smoke. There now will be five more weeks of football as our Rebs battle their way to state! Their first stop will be in Abilene at 2 p.m. Saturday. The game will be at P.E. Shotwell Stadium where our Rebel men will trample all over the Euless Trinity Trojans. We hope to see everyone in District 5-4A down Abilene way to see the Rebels battle for the bi-district title! Rebelettes: We remind you that there will be squad meetings throughout the year! Remember Wednesday morning at 7:30. We plan to take buses to Abilene but what kind we don't know yet. We will Rebelette! Don't forget, basketball season is here. We won't Rebelette until district starts but we still will attend all games!!

Humphrey after Mansfield's job

WASHINGTON - Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), appearing chipper and well on the way to recovery from cancer surgery, said Monday "the arithmetic has changed considerably" in favor in his bid to succeed Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) as Senate Democratic leader.

"I feel better every day," Humphrey said, displaying the bounce and ebullience that have long been his trademarks. "Just before I came in here I walked six blocks. I literally

"I'm eating like a hog but I can't gain any weight," he said. "This morning I literally ate two breakfasts. I love oatmeal and I had that and a banana. And a big glass of cranberry juice, my vitamins and then a toasted muffin. But that wasn't enough so then I had a fried egg and two pieces of bacon and a piece of toast.

Humphrey, interviewed in his Senate office, said he feels the nine new Senate Democrats elected two weeks ago will improve his prospects of defeating Senate Minority Whip Robert C. Byrd (D-W.Va.) for the party leadership post when the new Congress convenes Jan. 4.

Of the five Democratic incumbents defeated on Nov. 2, four were regarded as Byrd supporters. Humphrey expressed optimism that most of the newcomers "most likely will help me.' "I think that the arithmetic has changed considerably," Humphrey said, smiling broadly. Byrd, who has said for months that he has more than enough commitments to assure his election, was not available for comment. There are 62 Democrats in the Senate (to the Republicans' 38) so the winner will need at least 32 votes at the Democratic caucus in January.

succeed the retiring Mansfield -Sens. Ernest F. Hollings (S.C.) and Edmund S. Muskie (Me.). But Byrd and Humphrey are regarded as the major contenders.

'My biggest job," Humphrey said in reference to the leadership contest, "is to convince my colleagues that I can handle the job physically. I can.'

Humphrey, who now puts in several hours a day at his office, appeared underweight but otherwise showed few effects from last months's operation in which his cancerous bladder was removed.

"I'm not trying to push it too hard," Humphrey said in reference to his work schedule. "What they took out was my bladder, not my guts or my heart or mind but there is an internal physical adjustment to work out."

Humphrey, who was re-elected to another six-year Senate term two weeks ago, said he would not remain in the Senate, let alone run for the leadership, if his health was not up to

"People in my state are entitled to vigorous, intelligent and active representation," the 65-year-old Minnesotan said, "and I feel the same way about the Senate. It must have vigorous, alert, experienced and healthy leadership.

Since his operation, Humphrey has undergone one chemotherapy treatment and will have three more as his doctors seek to make certain there are no cancerous remnants.

'It is like taking a drug for an infection so it doesn't come back," Humphrey said, expressing confidence that he is in good shape.

Court to decide judges' rights in school matters There was no court finding that The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court agreed Monday to review a case that could limit the power of federal judges to order remedial educational programs to correct the adverse effects of past school segregation.

The justices announced in a brief order they would hear oral arguments over a U.S. District Court order directing the state of Michigan to pay half the cost — $5.8 million — for expanded reading, testing, career guidance and counseling programs in Detroit schools.

The order was upheld last August by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. The appellate court said it was within the equitable powers of the district court to require Michigan to help pay to correct the effects of segregation for which the state had been found responsible.

The actual desegregation of the Detroit schools — pupil reassignment to correct racial imbalance — is not at issue in the case before the court.

The state of Michigan contended in a brief to the Supreme Court that the lower court rulings had usurped the powers of the legislature over school curricula and finance.

either its educational programs or its school finance system were un-constitutional, said the state. Thus, the court's remedy for segregation had gone too far, the state said.

But the Detroit Board of Education contended that because the state had been found responsible for acts promoting segregation in Detroit it must help pay for expanded programs to correct the consequences.

The case (Milliken v. Bradley, 76-447) is a continuation of the proceedings in which the Supreme Court issued a landmark ruling in 1974. Then, by a 5 to 4 vote, the justices held that federal courts could not order white suburban school districts to merge with Detroit's predominantly black district when there was no showing the white districts were responsible for segregation.

The case then was sent back to federal district court for preparation of a desegregation plan limited to the city boundaries of Detroit.

The Detroit Board of Education, defending the district court's subsequent order for expanded educational programs, noted that the Supreme Court had not overturned a previous finding that the state had educational programs, financed in part by the state, were essential to the city's overall desegregation plan, the board said.

But the state argued that the district court's unprecedented order violated the principle that elected representatives - not federal courts should have the right to appropriate state tax dollars.

In other action Monday, the court accepted for review two more cases in an attempt to resolve the constitutionality of a federal civil rights law requiring employers to accommodate the religious practices of their employes (TWA v. Hardison, 75-1126; International Assn. of Machinists v. Hardison, 75-1385).

Earlier this month, the court deadlocked 4 to 4 in a case raising the same issue. The 4 to 4 ruling upheld a lower court decision that an employer must accomodate such practices, adjusting work schedules if necessary to permit the employe time off for religious observances.

Justice John Paul Stevens did not participate in that case. And the resulting deadlock limited the ruling to that case and did not establish a precedent binding in future cases.

U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton told the council the failure of the Hanoi government to "account satisfactorily" for 800 American servicemen missing in action in the Vietnam war raised doubts about Vietnam's humanitarianism and consequently about its fitness to join the United Nations

Scranton said if Vietnam would 'abandon trading on the sorrows of malization of relations could then flow swiftly."

The council voted 14 to 1 on Monday in favor of recommending that the General Assembly admit Vietnam to membership, but the dissenting vote from one of the five permanent members - the United States killed the recommendation.

It was the 18th American veto in the history of the council.

Vietnamese observer Dinh Ba Thi accused President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger of a "desire for vengeance" against Vietnam. He told the council he was confident many U.N. members would back Vietnam's application "when the matter is placed before the

Jury indicts Ramsey Muniz

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - For the second time in the past six months, former Texas gubernatorial candidate Ramsey Muniz has been indicted by a federal grand jury on marijuana smuggling conspiracy charges.

Muniz ran for governor as a candidate for the the Raza Unida party, a predominantly Mexican-American organization, in 1972 and 1974. He lost both times to Gov. Dolph Briscoe. In addition to Muniz, six other men also were named in the indictments here, which were returned last week and unsealed Monday. U.S. Atty. John Clark said federal authorities believe Muniz may be in Mexico. The other six men have been arrested and jailed under $100,000 bonds. The San Antonio indictment charges that Muniz was involved in a marijuana smuggling conspiracy that took place after his indictment in Corpus Christi. six other men conspired to illegally import 832 pounds of marijuana from Mexico into the United States.

The indictment alleges the conspiracy began Oct. 1 and ended when authorities seized a planeload of marijuana at an airstrip in Medina County, west of San Antonio, on Nov. 2.

In addition to Muniz, the San Antonio indictment names Humberto Esquivel Garza, 32, and Domingo Munoz Torres, 31, both of Corpus Christi; Adolph Carlton Wurzbach II, 42, Joseph Hobrecht Garza, 30, and David Lara Hernandez, 27, all of San Antonio; and Buford Hunter of Brooklyn Park, Maine. Landry didn't sound like the Cowboys were in for too severe a tongue-lashing.

Seifert has one year remaining on a threeyear contract. There has been no decision yet on a successor, Schultz said. Cornell, 1-8 in 1975, was 2-7 this year, including a 31-13 victory over Penn in its finale last Saturday. Seifert, a graduate of the University of Utah where he played end and guard, was defensive backfield coach at Stanford from 1972-74.

Big Eight teams in heated race

Switzer and Tom Osborne might appreciate the irony-if it didn't hurt so

Oklahoma and Nebraska will clash as usual in a Thanksgiving day game Nov. 26 at Memorial Stadium in Lin-

And, as usual, the battle will decide which Big Eight Conference team will go to the Orange Bowl New Year's Day in Miami.

THE SORE point—as far as Switzer and Osborne are concerned—is that neither Oklahoma nor Nebraska may be the team "It doesn't look like we have a very good chance to go," Switzer glumly admitted Monday. "There are so many things that have to happen for us to win. It looks pretty bad.' Five teams-Colorado, Iowa State, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State-are tied for first place with 4-2 records in the tightest race since the Big Eight began play as the old Missouri Valley Conference in 1907.

The only teams out of contention are Missouri, which upset Pacific Eight co-leader Southern Cal and Big Ten leader Ohio State, and Kansas and Kansas State.

THE BIG Eight champion automatically receives an invitation to the Orange Bowl, and the bowl committee Monday announced a complex formula in which to settle any deadlock for the title.

Nebraska, Colorado and Iowa State appear to have the best chances, according to the formula.

But the field could be narrowed to two Saturday if Colorado beats lowly Kansas State and Iowa State eliminates Oklahoma State. Then the Oklahoma-Nebraska game would merely decide whether the representative is Colorado or Iowa State.

IF THERE is a two-way tie, the winner of the game between those two teams would go to the bowl, the committee said.

In the event of a three-way deadlock, three things could happen: -If one team has beaten the other two during the season, the winner would be invited.

—If two of the teams have beaten the third, that team would be eliminated and the two-team procedure would be used.

-If neither of the above situations exists, the team with the best over-all

Although Nebraska is one of the teams favored by the formula, Osborne was less than enthusiastic about it.

"I guess it's as equitable as any,"
Osborne conceded. "I think our conference schedule was perhaps tougher than Iowa State's, and probably other teams' schedules were, too. But they'll go on over-all record." IOWA STATE Coach Earle Bruce, almost guaranteed his first bowl berth in four years with the Cyclones, had no complaints. "That's a super way to do it," said Bruce enthusiastically. "For once, fair men have come up with a fair way of choosing a team. They have my vote." Here is what must happen for each of the five teams to win: Nebraska-Must beat Oklahoma and have Oklahoma State also win. The Huskers will get the invitation even if Colorado wins, since they have beaten both the Cowboys and the Buf-

COLORADO-MUST beat Kansas State and have Oklahoma win. Colorado has defeated Oklahoma, Iowa State and Oklahoma State and would win if tied with any of those teams.

Iowa State-Must beat Oklahoma State and have Nebraska win. Iowa State would be invited if tied with Colorado and Nebraska, because it would have the best over-all record. The Cyclones would be 9-2, the Cornhuskers 8-2-1 and the Buffaloes 8-3.

OKLAHOMA-MUST beat Nebraska, have Iowa State win and have Colorado lose or tie. The Sooners beat the Cyclones during the season.

Oklahoma State—Must beat Iowa State, have Oklahoma win and have Colorado lose or tie. The Cowboys defeated the Sooners earlier this year: Colorado's Bill Mallory had little to say about the formula, despite the advantage it gave his Buffaloes.

"I'm so concerned about this week to make sure we're not out of it," said Mallory, although he admitted the formula "made sense."

Jim Stanley of Oklahoma State also called the committee's decision fair, although conceding that it severely lessened his team's chances. "You can't draw it up to please everybody. If I drew it up, I'd probably draw it up to please me," said Stanley. "But that's not the way it should be."

Stockton, Pate tote World Cup banner

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) - Dave Stockton and Jerry Pate, two of America's leading golfers this year, will carry the United States' banner in the World Cup Golf Championship.

Stockton, winner of the PGA, and Pate, the rookie U.S. Open champion, are favored over hand-picked teams from 47 other countries in the international competition here at the Mission Hills Country Club course Dec. 8-12.

The 48 teams will play 72 holes over four days for both individual and team tropnys. The tournament began as the Canada Cup in 1953 and has progressed to one of the world's premier tournaments.

Once chosen arbitrarily on the basis of their records, the U.S, representatives in recent years have been picked on a formula of the PGA.

Remember Blizzard of '76

When you look at the calender, November 12, 1976, looks just like any other date in a long year, but few West Texas football players will ever forget it. It was the Blizzard of '76.

It was also the end of the regular high school football season, but it turned out to be more—much more. It was something that future generations will have to sit around the fire and listen to.

The stories those kids will have to listen to can be tragic, funny and even indifferent. It all depends on what side of the snow bank you were perched that particular night.

West Texas skies dumped tons and tons of snow on the area football fields to produce a drama that will live on and on. Some of the best stories may come from idle busses on closed roads, but many of them will come from stadiums without roofs. In 30 or 40 years, you will hear how tough it was to carry the ball with snow up to your armpits.

IT WAS a zany night for players and fans alike. There were reports of fans being stranded between cities. There were even some of players that had nothing between them and the goal but ice-only to fall down before glory could be realized.

Two games played in, under and over the snow banks decided loop titles, some were even cancelled and at least one was called at halftime.

For the Andrews Mustangs, the night will live on in infamy. For the Monahans Loboes, it meant a district championship. Monahans defeated Andrews, 3-0, during a blinding snow storm. The previously undefeated Mustangs won in the battle of statistics, such as they were, but they miss the playoffs and an undefeated

THAT WAS the tragic side. Maybe Andrews couldn't have beaten Monahans on a good day and a dry field, but it would be hard to convince Andrews fans of the fact. At least, it provided the excuse The undefeated Ozona Lions, however, acted like they were playing in Florida. They won the District 7-AA title with a 38-0 win over Sonora to avoid a three-way tie. There won't be any gripes coming from Ozona. They will naturally say that the right team

Crane also has some gripes. They lost to Kermit, 8-6, while dominatimg the game offensively. Crane fell to 4-6 for the season instead of breaking

The Reagan County Owls are a bird of another color. They pulled the big upset, 13-12, over league champion Mason, but all that did was to bring back the sad memories of a 23-19 loss to Junction the week before where no excuses could be offered.

THE OWLS could have forced a three-way tie with Mason with a victory over Junction. Mason still goes to the playoffs, leaving only the memories of the great snowball battle with the Owls.

It was just a funny experience for District 6-A. Rankin put the title away the week before, so all the games had little meaning anyway. They solved the problem by cancelling all of the games. McCamey tried to get to Marfa and Van Horn tried to get to Rankin, but the team busses ended up stranded on the highways. My reports say that the heaters were working,

"I don't care if we play the game or not." Rankin coach Dwayne Turner said Friday night. "We sure don't need it. We would have played if Van Horn could have gotten here, but it's just fine with me that they didn't. We'll just get ready for Seagraves."

SEAGRAVES, WHO will meet Rankin in a Class A bi-district contest at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Andrews, also threw in the towel in their last game with O'Donnell. Who needed it anyway?

Stanton and Shallowater, both in the same district as Seagraves, decided to play their meaningless game. Or, at least, they took a good shot at it.

"Yea, we're going to play tonight," Stanton coach David Thompson proudly stated early Friday night. "We're both suited up, and I guess we're going to get after it."

They got after it for one half. Shallowater got to thinking how far it was to the house from Stanton, and asked that the game be called at halftime with the score deadlocked at 0-0. Stanton was quick to agree. Who needed it anyway?

San Angelo Lake View protected an undefeated season and got to the playoffs with a 14-6 win over Lubbock Dunbar. The Chiefs were unlucky, however. They missed the Blizzard of '76. They played on Thursday. They

Freshman to guide 'Horns

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - A freshman quarterback with "practically no playing time at all" will lead Texas against a Baylor defense that has given up only 13 points in its past two

Texas Coach Darrell Royal confirmed Monday that first-year southpaw Mark McBath will start for the second week in a row even though he fumbled five snapbacks in the fourth quarter against Texas Christian McBath guided Texas to a 347 victory over winless Texas Christian, however, breaking a two-game Texas losing streak. Royal told his weekly news conference Monday that Baylor has a better record and more impressive statistics than Texas and should be favored if Texas fullback Earl Campbell can't play. "I imagine without Earl, they will have an edge, and with Earl, it ought to be a tossup," Royal said.

Campbell, a 231-pound junior, has not played since the first quarter of the Texas Tech game Oct. 30, when he pulled a hamstring muscle. Royal said Campbell "can't have total confidence" in the leg even if he plays against Baylor.

Asked whether Texas would be playing a "much better" team in Baylor than TCU, Royal said, "That group (Baylor) has a better record than we've got and better statistics on both ends (offense and defensez than

Royal said he would "lump" Texas A&M, Houston and Texas Tech in the top category, followed by Baylor, Arkansas and Texas in another 'lump.' The Bears whipped Rice, 38-6,

Saturday after tying Arkansas, 7-7, the previous week to raise its season record to 5-21. The Bears might be in a position to get a bowl bid by defeating Texas decisively at Waco. Texas is 4-"We're kind of an average college team-not sorry-about like our record, 50-50," Royal said.

Royal noted that McBath's fourth quarter fumbles occurred after sub center Wes Hubert, who had not worked in practice with McBath, entered the game.

"I thought he (McBath) played very well-for his first game, especially, but everybody else has moved the football pretty well against TCU, too," Royal said. Sixteen other freshmen played Monda

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Tommy John, whose ability to pitch after radical arm surgery even surprised his surgeons, is the winner of this year's Hutch Award.

The 33-year-old Los Angeles Dodgers southpaw pitcher is the 12th winner of the award, given annually by major-league sports writers and broadcasters in memory of Fred Hutchinson, who was managing the Cincinnati Reds when he died of cancer in 1964.

John posted a 10-10 record, pitching 207 innings for the Dodgers in 1976 after 11/2 years of inactivity caused by a ruptured ligament in his left elbow which major bowl they'll attend. A source close to the team says the Sugar is the squad's obvious choice.

Although rules forbid bowls from extending bids before Nov. 20, nothing prevents teams from deciding where they'll go if and when the bid comes, a certainty in Pitt's case.

Sixth-ranked Georgia has already gained the other spot in the Sugar Bowl by winning the Southeastern Conference championship with one non-conference game against Georgia Tech left to play. Pittsburgh must still face Penn State Nov. 26.

defense and board play. "We shot over 80 per cent from the free throw line," said Coach Chester Story, "which is a big plus for us. We didn't know how we'd do at the line.'

TORONTO (AP) — The Canadian Football League career of running back Anthony Davis has come to an unceremonious ending.

Davis, the heralded college superstar who arrived in Canada six months ago with a fiveyear,$1-million contract, bought the contract back from the Toronto Argonauts Monday and said he hoped to pursue a career in the National Football League.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers, coached by John McKay, hold his NFL rights. McKay coached Davis when the running back starred at the University of Southern California. Argos owner Bill Hodgson, who had hoped the 24-year-old Davis would be the bright, new superstar the Toronto team needed to win the Grey Cup, made the announcement of Davis' departure just one week after the Argos lost their final game of the regular season to Hamilton and finished out of the playoffs.

has only one junior on the team. The seniors have played together for three years, winning 72 games while losing only nine.

The group also has three district championships, two bi-district wins and one trip to the state tournament. The Pack will be out to improve on that mark tonight.

The winner of tonight's contest will move to the regional playoffs, scheduled Saturday at McMurry College. The winner of the Abilene regional tournament will advance to the state tournament in Austin.

Midland High won the 5-4A playoff berth by defeating Big Spring last Thursday in a district playoff. The Pack won in straight sets.

UCLA hopes hinge on Owens

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "James Owens is highly inexperienced. He has had three major roles on our team this year and he didn't have any spring practice," said UCLA Coach Terry Donahue. Yet Owens could start Saturday in Los Angeles' Biggest football game in a decade.

WENDELL TYLER, the Bruins' all-time leading rusher, may not play Saturday when second-ranked UCLA meets third-ranked Southern California in a game that will decide the Pacific 8 Conference champion and the host team in the Rose Bowl.

"At this time, I'd say he's doubt-ful," Donohue said. "He injured his left shoulder against Oregon State last Saturday. If he plays he'll have his shoulder strapped down. That might hurt his pass catching ability, but probably not his running. He could play, but right now it's wait and see."

IF TYLER cannot play, Owens will, despite the fact he started the season as a defensive back, was switched to wide receiver and kept after the coaches to try him at halfback.

Owens, second in the NCAA high hurdles championship the last two years, is averaging 5.3 yards per carry. Donahue said, "He hasn't played running back since high school, and we know he's inexperienced, and we also know we've got James Brown on the squad.

"And, yes, we've talked about using James Brown because of his experience. That plays on your mind, but Owens is our No. 2 halfback now and if Wendell can't start, Owens will. "Yes, I know the USC-UCLA game is packed with tension, but so was the Olympics and James handled that well enough."

OWENS MADE it through all the heats to the tension-ridden final of the 110-meter high hurdles in Montreal. He ran well, but faded on the last two hurdles and finished sixth.

Only five weeks ago, Owens was listed as the No. 4 running back at UCLA. But he has worked hard, Donahue said. Owens gained 104 yards last week in a 45-14 victory over Oregon State.

Donahue said Bruins practices would be closed this week. "Oh, we'll have a few new wrinkles, but nothing major. It's too late to change anything drastically."

DONAHUE SAID he felt "the two best football teams in the nation will be playing out there Saturday, but I know that the people who vote in the polls don't feel that way.

"Pittsburgh will be No. 1 no matter what happens in our game with USC, and Pitt will win the national championship unless they're beaten."

Saturday's game is the most important between the schools since 1967, when the unbeaten Bruins, ranked No. 1, and the once-beaten Trojans, ranked No. 2, met for the Rose Bowl berth and the national title. UCLA held a 20-14 lead midway through the fourth period before O.J. Simpson broke loose on a 64-yard scoring dash that carried the Trojans to a 21-20 victory.

Thousands escape death in great Soviet quakes

By ROBERT C. TOTH The Los Angeles times

GAZLI, Soviet Union - Luck and heroics saved the 13,000 people of Gazli last spring when two powerful earthquakes destroyed or damaged every one of its buildings. Now the town is being rebuilt — this time with adequate safety standards.

Gazli, which rests astride an ancient Uzbekistan caravan route, exists solely to produce "gaz" (hence its name), and its output is the highest in the Soviet Union.

The shocks that battered the town last spring - they lasted more than a minute each but took only six lives were measured at their epicenter, 25 miles from town, at up to 1,000 times stronger than had been regarded as possible for the region. Going by Soviet seismic maps, the original Gazli buildings were constructed to insufficient earthquake standards.

Gazli was lucky primarily because the shocks occurred about 8 a.m., the start of the work and school day here.

The first, registering a Force of 9 on a 12-point scale (7 on the 10-point Richter scale), hit at 7:42 a.m. on April 8. It was about 25 times stronger than the Force 8 shocks which the maps said were the maximum expectable and which buildings were made to withstand.

"Most residents were in the open on the way to work," Gazli gas production chief Grant M. Abakaiman recently told the first Western reporters allowed here since the Electrical failure required that the gas had to be turned off by hand at every wellhead in the 900-square-mile field, but two shifts were fortuitously at hand - one crew coming off duty, the other about to go on. There were no deaths from the first shock. School buildings survived well enough to continue in use, but virtually all other town structures, stores, hospitals and the two-story dormitory-like apartments made of brick, cracked badly and were declared unsafe. This was yet another piece of luck for "practically the entire population was living in tents" when the second quake hit May 17 at 8 sharp "just as the school bell was ringing," Abakaiman said. But schools were still in use. "I was very frightened," said the Tadjik girl. Balshara, of the second quake. "I ran all the way home." Two children, a fourth-grade girl and a seventh-grade boy, hid in terror under a stairway, however, and were crushed to death when it collapsed. The second shock registered Force

10 on the 12-point scale, about 1,000 times more powerful than a Force 8 blow, according to Tashkent seismologist Valeri I. Ulomov. Also killed were four workers at another compressor station. Concrete roof slabs fell on them

"There were individual heroes," Abakaiman said, such as the men who boldly shut down valves in the flaming compressor station and the engineer who went to aid his three workers and perished with them.

Mortgage costs due to decline

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) - The cost of home mortgages might be coming down in 1977.

That pleasant prospect comes from the people who should know, the officials of the nation's savings and loan assocaitions, who make the majority of home mortgage loans.

"Savings are coming in at a great rate and we're starting to pile up money," said a representative of the U.S. League of Savings Assciations, which is holding its annual meeting

'When you've got a lot of merchandise on the shelf and you want to move it you lower prices," he explain, noting that savings held by the associations rose about $50 billion in the past year to a total of $340 billion.

Homebuyers aren't used to good news of this sort, but in a way they can thank themselves. It takes savings to make mortgages, and a good many of those who borrow for mortgages are savers also.

Those savings have soared in the past two decades or so, helping build total assets of the assocations to more than $380 billion, compared with a mere $16.9 billion in 1950

Savers at the associations earn 5.25 per cent interest on ordinary passbook accounts, and 7.75 per cent on six-year certificates of deposit. But borrowing charges have averaged about 8.75 per cent.

Because of this spread, which the league calls "an unprecedented development during recent years,' the associations have managed to significantly improve their sometimes unsteady earnings.

It is for this reason that economists of the league now feel that a decline of one-half per cent on mortgage charges is likely in 1977, with an upturn in home sales following as a direct consequence. League economists now project 1.8 million new housing starts in 1977, compared with an expected total of 1.5 million this year. They anticipate an unusually large rise in the multifamily market. To the surprise of some people, the savings and loan people had a very good year in 1976 in spite of the relatively weak new-home market because of continued strength in existing-home sales.

This phenomenon has gone almost unnoticed in popular portraits of the housing market, but it has become a huge factor. Sales of existing homes are reported as strong throughout the country.

Price, quality of construction, size and many other factors are offered as explanations of the strength in this used-home masket, in which sales are expected to reach 2.7 million units this Price remains the big restraint on sales of new homes. The league spokesman said it is unlikely now that many new, single-family homes can be found anywhere but in the South for less than $40,000 to $45,000.

But, with the price of money falling - albeit remaining relatively high the league expects sales in 1977 to show decidely more strength than this

The proposed bill put a limit on local districts' enrichment of the school program.

'The committee intends that elimination of the local fund assignment should work to the benefit of local property tax payers," the statement said. "Local monies no longer required by the foundation school program should be refunded to local tax payers, not be used for additional enrichment of the local school program, at least not without local voter approval of such additional expenditures."

Teachers seek 3-year contracts from trustees

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

DTTLE

Could 3-year contracts for teachers make it easier to "weed out" poor teachers?

Or would teachers actually gain anything by going to a three-year instead of a one-year contract?

These questions were the major topic of discussion Monday night at an informal dinner session in which school trustees met with members of the Teachers Communications Committee.

The committee, made up of teachers appointed by the Classroom Teachers Association, presented a proposal for three-year contracts for teachers after a probationary period. Committee chairman Maridell

Fryar said the proposal was the result of 18 months of study by the committee. It was not presented as a policy recommendation, but rather for the board's "opinion and

Among positive benefits Mrs. Fryar cited for the 3-year concept was that it could "forestall or delay the threat of active unionism in the school district" by giving established teachers job security.

But, she said, quality of education.

not job security, was the primary goal of the committee.

If they knew they were making a three-year instead of a one-year commitment, principals likely would be more careful about recommending renewal of an ineffective teacher's contract, Mrs. Fryar said.

"We are really serious about weeding out those of us who are not the best. There are teachers who are awarded, 'one more year' several years ongoing (under the present system)," Dorise Watson, president of Classroom Teachers Association,

Continental flights due to resume

Continental Airlines will resume operations at Midland Regional Air Terminal Wednesday, Chuck Logue, regional manager for the airline, said early this afternoon. Three out-bound flights and four incoming flights are scheduled Wednesday, Logue said.

"By Friday, Continental hopes to have at least 70 per cent of its flights back in operation," Logue said. Scheduled Wednesday are two flights to Austin and Houston and one to Los Angeles.

The first flight to arrive is scheduled to land at 12:30 p.m. from Los Angeles and leave for Austin and Houston at 12:55 p.m. A second flight from Los Angeles is due to arrive at 5:26 p.m. and leave for Austin and Houston at 5:46 p.m., Logue said. The Los Angeles-bound flight is scheduled to arrive at 5:47 p.m. from Austin and leave for the West Coast at 6:07 p.m.

A flight from Denver that terminates at Midland is scheduled to arrive at 9:50 p.m. Wednesday, Logue

The evaluation system called for in the 3-year proposal is the same as is now used in the school district. Teachers are evaluated formally each of their first three years in the district and every three years thereafter.

Many of the trustees' comments centered on whether the teachers actually have most of the benefits of the contract already and what the effect of the contract's adoption on community attitudes toward teachers

44 think there's a good possibility you may be giving up more than you're getting," trustee Ed Runyan

"In effect, you have a 1½-year contract now," board member Johnny Warren said. He said the school district, according to recent court cases, is obligated to give an experienced teacher a probationary year and then notification of nonrenewal of the contract must come before March 1 the next year.

Several board members also expressed fear that community acceptance of the 3-year contract for teachers would not be high.

"That's just going to be one more thing to upset the community," trustee Ann Page said.

"The emotional climate in our community is one of raw ends exposed. If ever there was a time to go tinues until one party or the other is dissatisfied. If the school district is dissatisfied, it must give reasons and

Several board members agreed that some of the objectives outlined in the proposed contract could be ac-complished by policy change without adopting the new system.

"We're better off in terms of community acceptance (by changing policy). That's a very important consideration," Dominey said. Mrs. Watson said she does not

When counting stopped Monday night, the Parti Quebecois, or Pe-quistes, had won 66 of the 110 seats in the assembly and was leading for three others. The Liberals had 27 seats and were leading for one other. In the last assembly there were 102 Liberals and six Pequistes.

The Parti Quebecois won about 41 per cent of the popular vote; the Liberals got 34 per cent; Union Nationale took 18 per cent, and minor parties got the rest.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) - Convicted killer Gary Mark Gilmore attempted to take his own life with a drug overdose today, a medical technician at the Utah State Prison reported.

In addition, police in Springville said a woman believed to be Gilmore's girlfriend was found unconscious in her apartment, also of an apparent drug

glut California

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Californians who remember the long lines, short tempers and nippy nights caused by the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo may be surprised to learn that a new problem is looming: too much

It's not that there have been any major new finds. The difficulty, according to oilmen, government planners and private analysts, is that West Coast refineries will be unable to handle up to half of the 1.2 million barrels of crude oil per day expected from the Alaska pipeline when it opens late next year.

Ironically, it was the reactions of the public, business and the government to the fivemonth embargo that led in part to the anticipated oil glut. Oilmen say consumption declined after the embargo because of higher prices and conservation measures. They say this in turn discouraged them from investing in new refineries.

"You only build refineries because you have demand for the products they produce," says Robert Schaadt, vice president of Standard Oil Co. of Ohio (Sohio), which owns 54 per cent of the reserves in Alaska's rich Prudhoe Bay field.

Governmental reaction to the embargo came in the form of Project Independence, designed to reduce this country's dependence on imported oil. One part of the project was the opening of the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve near Taft to commercial production for the first time, a move which added 200,000 barrels a day to the West Coast's supply.

The Midwest and East Coast could but the oil use the Alaskan crude, but the oil companies haven't figured out exactly how to get it there. Although there are several proposed connector pipelines, none exists now. Tankers are another possibility, but oilmen say there aren't enough to handle the surplus.

Another option is an exchange with Japan whereby the Japanese would get some of the Alaskan crude in return for diverting some of their Middle Eastern oil shipments to the Middle Eastern oil shipments to the U.S. However, Congress prohibited such a swap when it approved construction of the Alaska pipeline in 1973, and oilmen say privately that such an exhange would face severe political opposition.

Atlantic Richfield (ARCO), which owns 20 per cent of the Prudhoe Bay reserves (EXXON also owns 20 per cent, with the remaining six per cent split among a number of companies), says it doesn't anticipate problems in refining its share of the Alaskan

"We feel we can handle all or oil," says ARCO Vice Chairman Louis Davis. "We have a refinery in Washington, which we designed for 100,000 barrels a day, and another in Southern California. So we feel we're pretty well equipped to take care of our approximately 20 per cent."

However, Sohio, with the lion's share of the oil, is seeking approval to ship its crude by tanker to Long Beach, where it would be shipped east to Midland, Texas, via a proposed 1,000-mile pipeline. From Midland, the oil would go through existing pipelines to the Midwest.

The project would require converting about 800 miles of existing natural gas pipeline for use as a crude oil carrier and constructing 200 miles of new lines. Sohio says the project could handle almost all of the surplus oil and could be ready in less than 18 months. However, it has come under attack from the state Air Resources Board, which says the tankers and tanks needed for the oil shipments would add some 40 tons of hydrocarbons a day to the air.

Sohio disputes the ARB figures and points to a recent study done by the Port of Long Beach in conjunction with the state Public Utilities Commission which says the increased hydrocarbon emissions would come to

about 1.5 tons per day.

Don Bright, director of environmental affairs for the port, says the ARB figures assume that tankers will "purge," or clean, their oil tanks while still in the harbor. Bright says a common practice is to purge tanks at sea. Sohio also says it is willing to pay for pollution controls on other emission sources in the Long Beach area in order to offset the tanker emissions and ensure that there is no overall deterioration in air quality.

Whatever means of getting rid of the oil are found, analysts say the problem of a West Coast surplus isn't going to go away soon. They point out that the flow from the Prudhoe Bay is expected to reach 1.8 million barrels a day in 1981. One study by James D. Hickey, oil and oil services analyst with the stock brokerage firm of Stern, Frank, Meyer & Fox, projects a 714,000 barrel a day surplus on the West Coast in 1981.

BY MICA CASTOR, JANIS SANDERS & DEEHONA WISE

We are the Rebels! We are great! We got District!

Now go for State! Through rain, sleet, snow or hail, the Rebels will prevail! That's what happened Friday night as our Mighty Maroon Platoon plowed its way through five inches of snow to roll over the MHS Bulldogs 15-6.

Congratulations go to the Permian Panthers for beating the Odessa Broncos. Thanks, Mojo, we needed that!

Well, gang, the idea of football being over now has gone up in a puff of smoke. There now will be five more weeks of football as our Rebs battle their way to state! Their first stop will be in Abilene at 2 p.m. Saturday. The game will be at P.E. Shotwell Stadium where our Rebel men will trample all over the Euless Trinity Trojans. We hope to see everyone in District 5-4A down Abilene way to see the Rebels battle for the bi-district title!

Rebelettes: We remind you that there will be squad meetings throughout the year! Remember Wednesday morning at 7:30. We plan to take buses to Abilene but what kind we don't know yet. We will Rebelette! Don't forget, basketball season is here. We won't Rebelette until district starts but we still will attend all games!!

Janis' squad, don't forget to sell your basketball ads and turn them into Jennifer Martin as soon as Basketball season bounces in this Friday night in our gym. So all of you Rebel Roundballer Supporters come and watch our guys dribble all over Lubbock Coronado. Then Saturday the action continues as our Roundballers travel to Del Rio. Let's go, Rebs, and start the season with a bang. We support the Basketball Sport!

Have you heard about the Production "The Diary of Anne Frank"? Well our drama department will be presenting this play on November 18 and 20 in the Lee Auditorium. Curtain rises at 8 p.m. See ya there.

The date for the girls football game will be announced at a later date. Dixie Belles wear your shirts Thursday! Show everyone who the No. 1 women are. Let's separate the women from the girls.

Splish, splash, our swimming team will be traveling to San Angelo Friday and Saturday. If you see red-eyed Rebels in the halls, wish them luck. Best of luck to ya'll!! Golf News! Our girls golf team played individuals at Hogan last Friday in the freezing cold weather! People from Permian and Midland High were there. WASHINGTON - Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), appearing chipper and well on the way to recovery from cancer surgery, said Monday "the arithmetic has changed considerably" in favor in his bid to succeed Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) as Senate Democratic leader.

"I feel better every day," Humphrey said, displaying the bounce and ebullience that have long been his trademarks. "Just before I came in here I walked six blocks. I literally

jogged."
"I'm eating like a hog but I can't gain any weight," he said. "This morning I literally ate two breakfasts. I love oatmeal and I had that and a banana. And a big glass of cranberry juice, my vitamins and then a toasted muffin. But that wasn't enough so then I had a fried egg and two pieces of bacon and a piece of toast.'

Humphrey, interviewed in his Senate office, said he feels the nine new Senate Democrats elected two weeks ago will improve his prospects of defeating Senate Minority Whip Robert C. Byrd (D-W.Va.) for the party leadership post when the new Congress convenes Jan. 4.

Of the five Democratic incumbents defeated on Nov. 2, four were regarded as Byrd supporters. Humphrey expressed optimism that most of the newcomers "most likely will help me.

"I think that the arithmetic has changed considerably," Humphrey said, smiling broadly. Byrd, who has said for months that he has more than enough commitments to assure his election, was not available for comment. There are 62 Democrats in the Senate (to the Republicans' 38) so the winner will need at least 32 votes at the Democratic caucus in January.

succeed the retiring Mansfield — Sens. Ernest F. Hollings (S.C.) and Edmund S. Muskie (Me.). But Byrd and Humphrey are regarded as the major contenders.

"My biggest job," Humphrey said in reference to the leadership contest. "is to convince my colleagues that I can handle the job physically. I can."

Humphrey, who now puts in several hours a day at his office, appeared underweight but otherwise showed few effects from last months's operation in which his cancerous bladder was removed.

"I'm not trying to push it too hard," Humphrey said in reference to his work schedule. "What they took out was my bladder, not my guts or my heart or mind but there is an internal physical adjustment to work out."

Humphrey, who was re-elected to another six-year Senate term two weeks ago, said he would not remain in the Senate, let alone run for the leadership, if his health was not up to

"People in my state are entitled to vigorous, intelligent and active representation," the 65-year-old Minnesotan said, "and I feel the same way about the Senate. It must have vigorous, alert, experienced and healthy leadership."

Since his operation, Humphrey has undergone one chemotherapy treatment and will have three more as his doctors seek to make certain there are no cancerous remnants.

"It is like taking a drug for an infection so it doesn't come back," Humphrey said, expressing confidence that he is in good shape.

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Supreme. Court agreed Monday to review a case that could limit the power of federal judges to order remedial educational programs to correct the adverse effects of past school segregation.

The justices announced in a brief order they would hear oral arguments over a U.S. District Court order directing the state of Michigan to pay half the cost — $5.8 million — for expanded reading, testing, career guidance and counseling programs in Detroit schools.

The order was upheld last August by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. The appellate court said it was within the equitable powers of the district court to require Michigan to help pay to correct the effects of segregation for which the state had been found responsible.

The actual desegregation of the Detroit schools — pupil reassignment to correct racial imbalance — is not at issue in the case before the court.

The state of Michigan contended in a brief to the Supreme Court that the lower court rulings had usurped the powers of the legislature over school curricula and finance.

school finance system were unconstitutional, said the state. Thus, the court's remedy for segregation had gone too far, the state said.

But the Detroit Board of Education contended that because the state had been found responsible for acts promoting segregation in Detroit it must help pay for expanded programs to correct the consequences.

The case (Milliken v. Bradley, 76-447) is a continuation of the proceedings in which the Supreme Court issued a landmark ruling in 1974. Then, by a 5 to 4 vote, the justices held that federal courts could not order white suburban school districts to merge with Detroit's predominantly black district when there was no showing the white districts were responsible for segregation.

The case then was sent back to federal district court for preparation of a desegregation plan limited to the city boundaries of Detroit.

The Detroit Board of Education, defending the district court's subsequent order for expanded educational programs, noted that the Supreme Court had not overturned a previous finding that the state had committed acts of segregation. The educational programs, financed in part by the state, were essential to the city's overall desegregation plan, the board said.

But the state argued that the district court's unprecedented order violated the principle that elected representatives - not federal courts - should have the right to appropriate state tax dollars.

In other action Monday, the court accepted for review two more cases in an attempt to resolve the con-stitutionality of a federal civil rights law requiring employers to accomodate the religious practices of their employes (TWA v. Hardison, 75-1126; International Assn. of Machinists v. Hardison, 75-1385).

Earlier this month, the court deadlocked 4 to 4 in a case raising the same issue. The 4 to 4 ruling upheld a lower court decision that an employer must accomodate such practices, adjusting work schedules if necessary to permit the employe time off for religious observances.

Justice John Paul Stevens did not participate in that case. And the resulting deadlock limited the ruling to that case and did not establish a precedent binding in future cases.
