Former Vietnam POW believes war threats still ever-present

It's a truism and anything but trite: "War is here to stay."

And unless today's sophisticated swords of war are beaten into simple ploughshares, we'll be into another war, predictably.

History has been embarrassingly accurate in backhandedly forecasting the tragedy in the future.

And Arthur Burer, in simply declaring that "war is here to stay," merely restates what realists, fatalists and historians have known for centuries.

Though he's not a war historian, Burer is a warrior. He speaks of "peace through strength" and earnestly cries that "our freedom is a precious and a fragile thing."

He knows, firsthand.

Burer lost his individual freedom for almost seven years in an "armed conflict" that you could liken to those in the past. Others, because war is always threatening, will come and wreak havoc.

He was a prisoner of war in North Vietnam. His six years and 11 months as a POW started in March 1966 after the reconnaissance jet aircraft he was piloting was winged by a Russian anti-aircraft shell.

The flaming war machine crashed, and Burer, now a lieutenant colonel stationed at Webb Air Force Base at Big Spring, became the 73rd American prisoner of war.

He gained a new insight into war. He was holed up in a prison cell in Hanoi. And up above, in the otherwise hostile sky, were high-flying "friendly" aircraft that were dropping bombs in the name of democracy and against communism.

Burer was a helpless victim of circumstance.

"For the first time in my life," he said, "I sat on the other end of a bomb delivery system. . . . Even the rats in the country knew something was wrong."

That wrongness might not have been set aright. But the bombing stopped. And years later, early in 1973, Burer and his fellow POWs were set free following a cease-fire agreement that was doomed to be violated time and time again.

Two years later, the Vietnam war came to an inglorious halt; the Communists took over the defending South Vietnam after the United States had withdrawn its forces and support.

Nevertheless, Burer says he is convinced that the American fighting man, mindfully provoked, can overpower the enemy. He drew on his personal experience.

"I am positively sure of the persistence, dedication and ability of the American to defend himself and the

GOP National Chairman Smith announces she plans to resign

By DON McLEOD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican National Chairman Mary Louise Smith, a target of insurgent conservatives within the GOP, announced today she will resign in January but urged Republicans to avoid any "fatal lurch" to political extremes.

The resignation, which becomes effective at the Republican National Committee meeting here Jan. 14-15, is an apparent peace move to avoid a bitter leadership fight. Mrs. Smith said she hopes it will pave the way for a compromise chairman.

Conservatives have indicated they will move to take over the party leadership in the wake of President Ford's loss to Democrat Jimmy Carter.

"During the next six weeks I hope that all Republicans will consider carefully the results of past elections at the local, state and national levels," Mrs. Smith said in a formal announcement of her resignation.

"My own personal review of those election returns persuades me that we must maintain a party that simultaneously expresses concern for people's problems, embraces a healthy diversity of viewpoints and stands behind traditional Republican principles," she said.

"Surely, this is not time for destructive division within our party, just as it is no time for a fatal lurch to either extreme of the political spectrum."

Mrs. Smith said she resigned voluntarily.

"I have reached this decision after a great deal of thought about the future of the party and the role of the

Hunter kills slayer of highway officer

RANKIN — A Department of Public Safety trooper was fatally shot Sunday after he halted a pickup truck three miles east of Rankin on U.S. 67.

Trooper Sammy Long of McCamey was fired on by an as yet unidentified black man shortly after 5 p.m. His assailant was shot and killed by a passing deer hunter minutes later, said Upton County Sheriff Sid Langford.

Long, an 18-year veteran of the DPS, came under fire as he approached the pickup truck around dusk, Langford said. He was observed running to the rear of the patrol car by witnesses, Langford added.

Long was lying face down at the right rear of the vehicle when a deer hunter from San Angelo and his son pulled off the road about 150 yards from the patrol car, DPS officials said.

The hunter saw the motorist approach Long and fire into him as he lay motionless on the ground. Immediately the hunter, whose name is being withheld by officials, pulled out a 6mm rifle from the back of his jeep and fired at the assailant, official said.

Long was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Mrs. W. J. Price of Rankin. The gunman was taken to Rankin Hospital, where he died about 40 minutes later, officials said.

Long had three .32 caliber bullet wounds in the back, officials said.

There were six fired shells in the trooper's gun, the sheriff said.

The pickup driven by the gunman was stolen from San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 19, DPS officials said.

"The hunter attempted to save the life of the patrolman when he fired his rifle. . . . It's something that absolutely wouldn't happen again in a thousand years. Absolutely no charges will be filed," said District Attorney Aubrey Edwards.

"I've been conferring with the Texas Rangers, and the DPS and we are trying to do what we can to keep the name of the hunter from being released to the media," Edwards said.

"At least we are going to keep it withheld until we find out just what sort of activity the other man (the assailant) was involved in," Edwards said.

Carter starts huddles with Ford budget chief

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter, getting a look at his new home on his first post-election visit to Washington, met with a parade of high-level administration officials today before an afternoon session with President Ford at the White House.

James Lynn, who is Ford's director of the Office of Management and Budget, began the parade shortly before 8 a.m. CST. He went to Blair House to meet with Carter, across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House and the Old Executive Office Building complex.

As he left, Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld walked in. Both men were preceded by the vice president-elect.

Asked what he and Carter talked about, Lynn said: "Believe it or not, we talked about budget and management, the name of my office being budget and management." He said Carter asked "good questions" but did not indicate the direction he is moving on budget matters.

Lynn said Carter didn't ask for any influence on the budget Ford is preparing to submit.

"We talked about management matters, organization matters, techniques of putting budgets together," Lynn declared. "It covered a wide range of subjects. It was obvious to me the governor had given this a great deal of thought."

Lynn said any specifics about the conversation would have to come from Carter.

The president-elect arrived in Washington on Sunday night, flying from Albany, Ga., in a chartered jet. As has become his custom, Carter carried his own suitcase as he walked off the plane. He planned to use Blair House, the government guest residence for visiting dignitaries, as his base of operations.

In addition to Lynn and Rumsfeld, the secretaries of Treasury and Health, Education and Welfare planned to visit him there. But Carter said he would cross the street to confer with Ford in the White House for his first visit with his defeated rival since the last of their three debates one month ago.

Asked how he felt arriving in Washington as president-elect, Carter said he felt "gratitude to the people of this country for giving me their confidence and a determination not to disappoint them."

"I feel a very deep and sober sense of responsibility about the future," he said.

On Sunday, Carter attended services at the Plains Baptist Church. Also attending was the Rev. Clennon King, a black nondenominational minister whose application for church membership led the congregation to vote a week ago to allow blacks to worship at the church and seek membership.

Carter spent the rest of the day at home.

Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, predicted that the meetings today would deal with "substantive" matters and would not just be courtesy calls.

New York City Mayor Abraham Beame said Sunday that Carter had assured him he would talk to Secretary of the Treasury William Simon about the city's latest fiscal crisis. Beame said Carter had pledged to do what he could to help the city get past its current plight, caused by a court ruling that the moratorium on payments on city bonds was unconstitutional.

Carter plans a series of meetings Tuesday with House and Senate committee chairmen, Republican leaders, the House International Relations Committee and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Carter plans to meet tonight with Sen. Walter F. Mondale.

State closes Manges' bank in Starr County

RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex. (AP) — The only bank in Starr County closed its doors today by order of Daniel Flynn of the State Banking Commission.

The First State Bank & Trust Co., owned by wealthy rancher-banker Clinton Manges, had been facing financial problems since it announced withdrawal from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

The notice from Deputy Commissioner Flynn was posted at the bank this morning and said the bank was closing because of insolvency.

Flynn and a team of state bank examiners have been at the Rio Grande City bank for the past 10 days.

The Harlingen National Bank filed suit against Manges last week asking for payment of $449,000 in past due promissory notes. The suit said Manges had secured a $400,000 loan to his 100,000-acre Duval County ranch with 96 per cent of the First State Bank's stock.

The remaining $49,000, which the suit claimed was a personal loan to Manges, was secured with 3,000 shares of stock in the Groos National Bank of San Antonio which Manges also owns.

Manges had been trying since Wednesday to satisfy the demands of the lawsuit, sources said.

Manges said he withdrew from the FDIC after the FDIC "tried to destroy me."

He said the FDIC was politically motivated against him by former Treasury Secretary John Connally.

First death reported in gum factory blast

NEW YORK (AP) — The explosion and flash fire that injured 55 workers at the American Chicel gum factory claimed its first life today.

Officials at Elmhurst Hospital said Samuel Aeyekum, 34, of Brooklyn, died this morning from burns of 95 per cent of his body.

The explosion ripped through four floors of the factory early Sunday morning, spewing steel, concrete and molten gum into the street.

One fireman on the scene said "It was a miracle" that none of the 150 people working the all-night shift was killed immediately by the blast early Sunday. Witnesses said the force of the explosion hurled some of the victims to the street.

About 25 persons were burned severely. Because of a shortage of burn facilities here, some had to be taken to hospitals in neighboring states. A few of the critically injured had burns over 90 per cent of their bodies, and hospital officials said they feared some would not survive.

"It was really horrible. I saw men with their clothing and skin burned off," said Chris Boggio, 19, a helper at the plant. "The blast threw me clean across the room."

Teddy Orzechowska of Brooklyn suffered burns over 30 per cent of his body. "I was in the middle of the flames, I didn't know where to run," he said.

The aroma of spearmint filled the air, and hot gum stuck to the boots of firemen battling the blaze.

Fire marshals, sifting through the debris in the six-story brick structure in the Long Island City section of Queens, theorized that a stray spark may have ignited combustible dust, triggering the blast.

Witnesses described a nightmarish scene of victims stumbling from the building, their clothing burned away and flesh peeling from their bodies. In many cases the burns were compounded by molten gum stuck to the skin.

The company, a division of the Warner-Lambert Company, closed operations at the factory pending clearance from safety officials. A spokesman advised the plant's 1,600 employees to stay home until supervisors contact them.

Patty settles into new routine

By ANGELA NOEL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, back with her family for the first time in almost three years, says she's looking forward to reading the latest best-sellers, getting a dog and gaining weight.

"It was like I never left. It's nice to be home," the 22-year-old Miss Hearst said in a copyright interview in the San Francisco Examiner, her father's newspaper. "I'm just moving in, getting settled and wandering around."

Miss Hearst, bailed out while appealing her bank robbery conviction, was to place her first court-ordered telephone call to federal probation officials today from her parent's elegant Nob Hill apartment.

"I do anticipate her calling," district probation officer Harry Schloetter said in an interview Sunday. He said the newspaper heiress "could be in violation" if she failed to adhere to conditions outlined in release orders by U.S. District Judge William Orrick.

The conditions included calls to Schloetter's office every Monday and Thursday and monthly visits with probation officers while her attorneys appeal. She also needs permission to leave the state.

Schloetter said arrangements for monitoring Miss Hearst would not be extraordinary, but he said details were still to be worked out.

Miss Hearst was released from jail Friday on $1.5 million bail put up by the family she had reviled while a member of the Symbionese Liberation Army, the group that kidnaped her on Feb. 4, 1974. At the time she was abducted, her family lived in a mansion in suburban Hillsborough.

She reportedly spent the weekend quietly in her parent's apartment, telling an interviewer she planned to read the latest best-sellers, resume an interest in photography and get a dog. She also said she wanted to work someday for a magazine.

"I could use 10 more pounds," she said. "My clothes are too big. I weighed about 88 pounds during the trial. Now I'm up to about 94."

Her plans are dependent on the appeal of her seven-year prison sentence — a process expected to consume months. She is due to go on trial Jan. 10 in Los Angeles on separate state assault and kidnap charges stemming from a 1974 shooting and shoplifting incident while she was in the company of the S.L.A.

It's Thanksgiving time.

Nation spending more eating out as prices climb

LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Americans are spending more money at restaurants these days, even though menu prices are rising at a much faster rate than the cost of food at home.

And at least one culinary expert indicates that consumers may not always be getting their money's worth.

The sales forecast comes from the National Restaurant Association; the criticism comes from Franz K. Lemoine, director of a Providence, R.I., school that trains would-be chefs.

The restaurant association predicted recently that sales for the food service industry as a whole — including everything from school cafeterias to fancy restaurants — would total $86.9 billion next year, up 10.6 per cent from 1976.

"Today, for every $100 that an American family uses to purchase food, around $34 is spent on food away from home — one out of every three food dollars," said the association president, Patrick L. O'Malley. "By 1980, we feel confident that Americans will be spending two out of five dollars in our industry."

The biggest growth, said O'Malley, will be in fast-food establishments, "a segment (of the industry) which literally did not exist 20 years ago." The fast-food establishments now account for almost one-third of eating place sales and will increase 14.1 per cent next year, O'Malley said.

Menu prices in 1977 will rise an average of 6.5 per cent, a little less than this year's increase, according to the trade association.

Figures from the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Consumer Price Index show that the cost of food away from home rose 6.9 per cent from September 1975 to September 1976. The cost of food at home rose only 1 per cent in the same period. (The figures are not seasonally adjusted.)

Is the food worth the price? Not always, says Lemoine, whose School of Culinary Arts at Johnson & Wales College claims to be the second largest culinary training institution in the nation.

Lemoine was critical of restaurants which offer frozen, pre-prepared and mass-marketed entrees at high prices. A fillet of sole dish that is essentially the same thing you can buy for a couple dollars in the frozen food department of the grocery store may wind up on a restaurant menu for $8.50, he said.

The customer is as important as the kitchen staff in determining food quality, Lemoine said. "What makes food good is not trained chefs, but a discriminating public."

Lemoine said consumers can generally judge the quality of restaurant food before they taste a bite.

Among the things to look for: a well-lit dining room, no stale odor of food, tables arranged neatly with space between them, a menu that is in good condition without grease spots or ragged edges, an attractive table setting, friendly help and a clean rest room.

When it comes to the food itself, Lemoine said, hot food should be served hot on a hot plate; cold food should be cold. The plate should not be overcrowded; most restaurant food portions are "ridiculous," he said.

The next 13 years

The Fourth of July hoopla and fireworks were not, after all, the end of America's Bicentennial observance, but the beginning.

As noted by Charles L. Andes, chairman of the Franklin Mint Corp., the birthday party of 1976 is only the start of the Bicentennial era. In an address last month to the Pennsylvania Sons of the Revolution, he reminded the nation that the story of the Republic's origin will be told and retold for another 13 years through the 200th anniversary of the ratification of the Constitution.

And of more importance, Andes insisted, is the rare opportunity to use the history lesson in preparing the United States for the next century.

"We can choose our destiny," he said.

Americans first identified their goals of self-government and independence 200 years ago. Then they spent five years in the battle for freedom and another eight years in devising a durable system of government embracing the principles they had fought for.

They had the wisdom and endurance to keep attacking their problems until they found the right answers.

Can we do less today?

Our problems are as demanding as we peek into the third century of independence.

We have no fears of the Redcoats occupying Philadelphia, but our liberty and ideals still are threatened by the tyranny of neglect. We can dedicate our determination to rebuilding confidence in business, organized labor, education and religion.

Americans must master the energy crisis. We must reverse the decline of the major cities. The issues of unemployment, inflation, poverty, tax-reform and crime are recurring worries deserving of a Bicentennial focus.

An effort was made this year in Congress to create an American Constitutional Bicentennial Foundation as a catalyst for action. The effort faltered.

But stubbornness is part of the American tradition. Legislation should be reintroduced to give substance and meaning to the continuing Bicentennial era — to forge a sense of national purpose and encourage a public commitment.

This nation's heritage deserves such protection. Our aspirations for the future demand it.

Bid for federal aid

Big city mayors who met recently at Chicago made a good case for presentation to President-elect Jimmy Carter and Congress in bidding for a federal remedy to urban ills.

Money, of course, is at the top of the list of priorities.

The brainstorming session of the U.S. Conference of Mayors did not get around to putting a price tag on the strategy proposals to revive downtown America.

But Mayor Kenneth Gibson of Newark, N.J., president of the organization, conceded "... we're talking about programs that cost a lot of money."

The mayors want Washington to create jobs in the central cities, to develop a new national policy consolidating existing grant programs, to authorize additional federal money for cities, to set up an "urban antirecession program" and to create an urban development bank to make loans to private businesses and local governments.

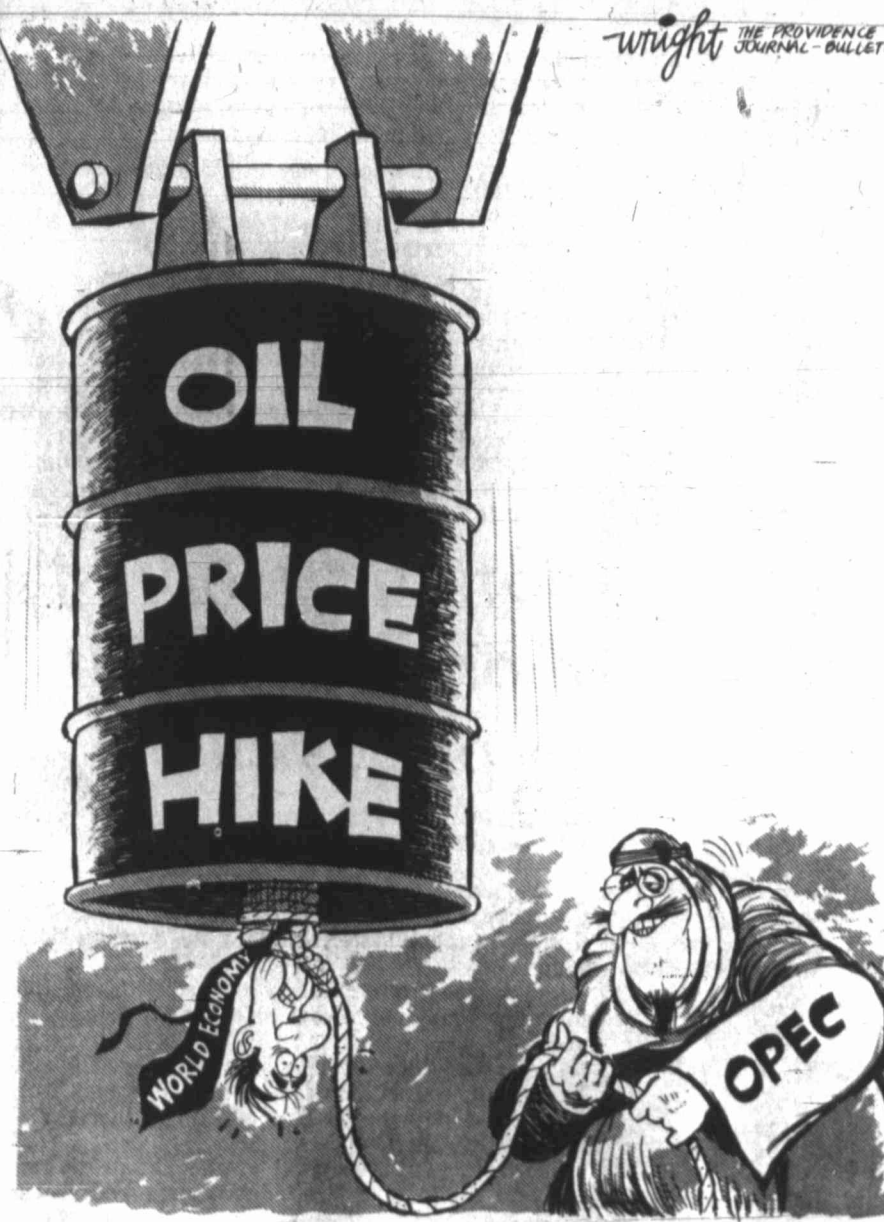

They call their plan the National Urban Investment Program because of the "return" the nation would receive on its contribution to urban recovery.

It is their belief that the influence of federal policies on the cities' ills justifies the pleas for federal rescue.

This, of course, is a controversial view which can and will be argued at length.

There are those who say that their initiative has merit, and that although the federal government can't singlehandedly keep the cities afloat, it can and should help steer them through the economic reefs which threaten to destroy them. On the other hand, there doubtless are many persons whose comment to the proposal is "hogwash."

We wonder if the cities in distress have ever thought of taking care of their own — or at least trying it on an experimental basis.

HEMISPHERE REPORT:

Cheap peso forces Mexican prices up

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

In Mexico, it is said that every time the government oil monopoly reports discovery of new oil fields, a few days later the price of gasoline is raised.

It happened that way in 1973, when the rich new fields in Tabasco and Chiapas states were found, and again in mid-November after outgoing President Luis Echeverria visited the Isthmus of Tehuantepec region and received a glowing progress report on Petroleos Mexicanos.

Days later, Pemex director general Antonio Dovali Jaime announced new, higher peso prices for gasoline.

But that was not all. At the same time, Arsenio Farell Cubillas, head of the Federal Electricity Commission, which runs the nation's power companies, announced that electric rates were being hiked. Increases vary from 10 to 50 per cent for domestic users, with the highest increases being charged upper-class consumers.

The announcements coming, as they did, at a time when Mexican consumers are beset by price increases on all sides, sorely tried the patience of this nation of some 60 million inhabitants.

What with two devaluations of the Mexican peso in less than two months, the cost of living has soared. Government-decreed pay increases of up to 23 per cent have long since been gobbled up by rising prices.

The new higher fuel and power rates, all observers agree, are bound to result in further price inflation.

No thoughtful observer questioned the need of the government oil and power monopolies for increased prices. Both are in the process of expanding their services to meet the country's growing demands and both have to buy much of their equipment and materials abroad, paying in dollars or other hard currency.

That means that their heavy debts are in dollars, while most of their income is in pesos.

The problems facing Pemex and the Electricity Commission can be said to be a magnification of the troubles that confront all those Mexicans who are accustomed to living much above the subsistence level.

Those difficulties were only compounded by the devaluations of Aug. 31 and Oct. 26 that cut the peso's dollar value down from eight U.S. cents to around four.

Even with the whopping one-third increase in gasoline prices that Pemex got, the company now will be earning only two-thirds of what it was prior to devaluation on its domestic sales.

Before evaluation, low-grade "Nova" gasoline was retailing for 2.10 pesos a liter; that was approximately the equivalent of 63 U.S. cents a gallon. High test "Extra" was going for three pesos a liter, about 90 cents a gallon.

Now, Nova is priced at 2.80 devalued pesos a liter, which amounts to about 42 cents a gallon, and Extra costs four cheap pesos a liter, or about 60 cents a gallon for high-octane gasoline.

The individual Mexican, the man or woman working for the Mexican government or a member of a strong labor union, who benefited from the wage increase that Echeverria ordered, is not quite as well off as either the oil or power monopoly.

After devaluation and with the maximum 23 per cent wage increase, which only certain lower-paid groups received, his or her income, converted to dollars, amounts to about 60 per cent of what it was before.

That is why there is mumbling and grumbling in Mexico. Even such apologists for the Echeverria administration as former ambassador to Cuba Miguel Covian Perez, writing in the Mexico City paper, El Dia, note that "the sacrifices that are being demanded of the masses of people are accumulating without leaving them time to even catch their breath."

Mark Russell says

The Air Force says it doesn't want Jimmy Carter to be rushed into a decision on the B-1 Bomber too soon upon taking office. Maybe after the parade.

Washington is really becoming Georgified. The famous Sans Souci restaurant is changing its name to Stuckey's.

If you see a want ad in the paper that says "Former miracle-working bon vivant, sex symbol and Sec. of State seeks employment but hasn't driven a car in eight years," you will know who placed it.

Henry, preparing to leave office, is now working on his Farewell Manipulation. He is probably worried, believing that "Carter will not be understood by foreign leaders because of his accent."

INSIDE REPORT:

Chancellor Schmidt dispatches SOS to Jimmy Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

BONN — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, coalition victor in the October election here which was even closer than the U.S. presidential election, is sending an SOS to Jimmy Carter on behalf of the Western alliance: take the lead in finding the elusive "joint Western position" to stave off economic disaster and fortify the West's defenses before it is too late.

In an exclusive talk with us — his first interview on the Nov. 2 American election — Schmidt praised defeated President Gerald Ford for having built up in Europe "the highest degree of confidence" in the U.S. in his brief presidential term.

Yet, he said, "the world recession now persists for three years" and there is not the slightest assurance that partial economic recoveries are any more than "upward bumps in a downhill road."

Schmidt wants a kind of permanent floating game of Western cooperation and consultation, an "intensive personal exchange of minds." The object: align the West and Japan in a new effort to stop the economic decay growing out of the "structural upheaval" in monetary and economic patterns, with particular attention on raw materials prices (including oil) and the balance of payments.

Behind Schmidt's insistent appeal for common economic and monetary policies is the rising fear in both his own Social Democratic party (SPD) and the Christian Democratic opposition party (CDU): that the West's

Evans Novak military defenses are beginning to show gaping holes at the same time the Soviet military buildup is moving at what Schmidt told us was "enormous velocity."

Although Schmidt ignored the subject, lesser officials said that strong hints to Moscow have been quietly dropped through diplomatic channels here, informing the Kremlin that the U.S. would not tolerate for long the Soviet naval buildup without launching a comparable naval rearming which would touch off a vast new arms race.

Schmidt, a hard-line realist compared to the powerful left wing of the SPD, said nothing of this, but expressed confidence that the Carter administration, when confronted with the full picture of Soviet vs. Western defense spending, will be far more inclined to raise rather than cut the defense budget.

What singularly worries Schmidt about the obvious weaknesses now showing in the West's defense is that they dramatize the far larger U.S. and West German contributions to NATO, tending to lift the Big Two to preeminence over other NATO members. Down that road, Schmidt thinks, lie the gravest perils for Germany, Europe and the West.

In the first place, the elevation of Bonn to favored status in Washington would damage the slow progress being made toward Western unity, raising nightmare fears about a resurgent Germany. For that reason alone, Schmidt feels the trend by many NATO members toward reducing their NATO contributions must be stopped and stopped fast, so that NATO doesn't become a cloak, or disguise, for a U.S.-German alliance.

But worse, Schmidt worries that any tendency which weakens the European motion — admittedly slow — toward real political unity would be the start of a death watch for West Berlin. The West's credibility in making Berlin the litmus test of its whole post-war policy of defending Western Europe from the Communist East would soften, and Moscow would move fast to make it collapse.

Accordingly, Schmidt and his advisers want NATO to continue trying a mutual reduction of Western and Communist forces (MBFR) from Central Europe. They see that as the only possible way to delay the weakening of NATO now going on by NATO members acting on their own and with no overall alliance strategy.

That Schmidt, a supreme realist, should have to put such faith in MBFR, stalled dead in the water in the Vienna talks with the Warsaw Pact, tells much about the level of optimism here. It tells much, too, about the reason behind Schmidt's SOS to President-elect Carter. Schmidt, now the senior head of government among NATO's Big Five, speaks for a wider Europe than West Germany and from a shrewd knowledge of the U.S. and its crazy-quilt politics.

Whatever pleasure Mr. Carter may take in publicly berating the Germans for their nuclear deal with Brazil, the President-elect had better not ignore Schmidt's SOS, for if the West Germans need the U.S., as Schmidt's words fairly shouted, Mr. Carter surely needs the Germans.

Taste Barrier Broken.

'Enriched Flavor' breakthrough ends struggle to bring taste to low tar smoking.

For years, dependency on tar for taste has created a taste barrier for low tar smoking.

Tests Verify Taste

Now that barrier has been broken. Broken for good by a remarkable new cigarette called MERIT.

MERIT is packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

The result of a radical new discovery so successful at boosting flavor, MERIT actually delivers the taste of cigarettes having more tar.

Up to 60% more tar. Yet MERIT has only 9 mg. of tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

MERIT and MERIT MENTHOL

MERIT was taste-tested against current leading low tar brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of smokers were involved. The majority report: even if the cigarette tested had up to 60% more tar than MERIT, MERIT still delivered as much—or more—taste.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.

Now smoke the cigarette.

PATH OF RADIOACTIVE DEBRIS

This AP map traces the route of radioactive debris as it crossed the United States.

Nuclear cloud moves out to sea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Debris from a Chinese nuclear explosion, leaving a windblown, invisible trail of radioactive material across the United States, is now winding across the Atlantic Ocean on its way around the earth.

The leading edge of the immense cloud of radioactive debris completed a journey across the United States on Sunday. Government experts insisted there was no danger, even in areas where rain washed the material to the earth.

Federal monitors said there was some evidence of increased levels of radioactivity in the wake of the forward edge of the cloud, which has the heaviest concentration of radioactive material.

But a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency said there had been no significant increases in radiation readings and that increases that were noted were not serious.

The readings were made as the cloud billowed across the country after crossing the Pacific Ocean following the nuclear explosion in China last week.

The EPA spokesman said the forward edge of the radioactive material will eventually reach China again, then will cross the Pacific and pass over the United States again in about a week.

The cloud's forward edge will leave behind it a trail of radioactive material that will encircle the planet's northern hemisphere like an invisible radioactive doughnut for about two weeks. The shape and speed of the debris is determined by prevailing winds.

The cloud of material is made up of microscopic dust particles and is not visible or detectable except with special instruments.

It was raining along some sections of the East Coast as the cloud reached the Atlantic Ocean, and officials earlier had worried that rain or snow could wash more than a normal

Son, best friend watch as man drowns before rescuers arrive

BOSTON (AP) — After hanging on to his overturned sailboat for 23 hours, Earl Dudman slipped into the freezing Atlantic and drowned as his son and best friend watched helplessly. Rescue came an hour later.

"We tried our hardest to keep him aboard the boat, but there was nothing we could do. He was like a dead weight in our arms," said Peter Dudman, 20, in a telephone interview from his hospital bed here Sunday night.

The three men balanced atop the hull for 23 hours, Peter said, after the 20-foot Easy Go was swamped Saturday, 10 miles southeast of Gloucester.

The wife of the friend, Irwin "Whitey" Haynes, 35, of Topsfield, reported them missing to the Coast Guard when they failed to return home Saturday night.

Young Dudman said the three had huddled together, trying to keep warm, as waves washed up around their legs.

"We knew he was in trouble when he told us his rain gear had split," Peter said of his 47-year-old father. "He started to get colder and colder, first his legs, then his hands and finally his head."

Peter and Haynes held on to Dud-man for hours, scanning the horizon for helicopters or rescue ships. Several ships passed by without noticing the capsized boat, Peter said.

"After a while, he got too heavy, and he just slipped into the water. I didn't want to let him go," Peter said.

He said they grabbed again for Dudman's rain slicker, almost landing in the water themselves, but the body disappeared beneath a wave.

"We cried, both me and Whitey, for a little bit. But we couldn't let it get us down. We had to keep our hopes up or we'd drown ourselves," the young man said.

A Coast Guard helicopter spotted the capsized boat Sunday afternoon, and the two survivors were taken to Massachusetts General Hospital where they were reported in good condition.

Student builds electric chair as project in law enforcement

CINCINNATI (AP) — In the corner of a classroom at Scarlet Oaks Vocational School sits a macabre student project covered with a tarpaulin — an electric chair, wired to produce a lethal charge of 100,000 volts.

Dan Hottel, a junior in Walter O'Bryant's law enforcement class, built the chair under his teacher's guidance. The Cincinnati Bar Association had asked the school to "do something" for a display at a shopping center during National Law Enforcement Week last month.

"Dan volunteered to do the carpentry work, and I did the wiring myself," O'Bryant said in an interview.

He fashioned a plug that can't be used in any conventional outlet, "just to make sure nobody gets shocked playing around with it."

Hottel based his model on the state's official electric chair, which is kept at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility in Lucasville. They are identical except that the school's chair is made from pine rather than seasoned hardwood.

"I don't know exactly why I did it," Hottel said. "I thought it would be an interesting project. I'm not sure exactly whether capital punishment is right, but I wouldn't think twice about using the electric chair on some people, like mass murderers."

The project comes at a time when several states may be on the verge of carrying out executions for the first time in more than nine years, in the wake of a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that upheld capital punishment.

O'Bryant said most of his students are against executions, "but then we ask them how they would feel if a member of their family was the victim of a capital crime and a lot of them change their minds."

Hottel said he has already decided what to build for next year's class project.

"I've got this friend who's a policeman in France," he said. "I'm going to ask him to send me the specifications for one of their guillotines."

Turkey dumbness due to breeding

SEQUIM, Wash. (AP) — It's not the turkey's fault he's dumb. Man has bred the "smarts" out of him while breeding good taste in.

Experts say the domestic toms that will grace Thanksgiving tables this week are a far gobbler from the wild, wily relatives that Benjamin Franklin unsuccessfully promoted as America's national bird.

Evidence abounds at the Olympic Game Farm here, where wild toms strut about in the midst of a variety of animals reared primarily for movie-making.

Trainer Marinho Correia eyed a puffed-up turkey strutting with tail feathers spread in a great fan.

"Maybe he's getting ready to fight," said Correia. "But basically he's just showing he's a male."

A relatively rugged existence has helped sustain the wild bird's "macho." His bed is in the closest tree, while the pampered, domestic birds snuggle down in temperature-controlled brooding houses. Consequently the tame tom is far more susceptible to disease and weather.

Farm-bred turkeys are so dumb they've been known to drown while looking up at the rain, Correia said.

Another problem for domesticated turkeys is their size. Big and fat is good for marketing, bad for reproducing. Mating is virtually impossible, and an estimated 90 percent of the birds at the poultry counters were conceived in test tubes.

"About the maximum weight for a wild turkey gobbler is 20 pounds, 10 pounds for a hen," said Correia. Even after butchering, turkeys for eating can weigh up to 40 pounds.

Don't leave out basics at turkey time

By KAY JARVIS
Copley News Service

There are some menus which should never be tampered with. Thanksgiving is one of them and one of the best.

It's all right to change the accompaniments around, but the basics must always be there — the great golden bird, the savory stuffing, the ruby cranberry relish and the pumpkin pie.

It is not really a difficult dinner to prepare, but there are steps to make the day go more easily.

First, give the tom turkey time to thaw. Plan on three to four days in the refrigerator, or an hour per pound at room temperature (put the turkey in a heavy brown paper bag for this method).

The turkey should be refrigerated as soon as it thaws if not roasting immediately.

Be sure your grocery list includes all the extras such as spices, herbs, condiments such as pickles and olives, and recheck recipes before marketing.

Now, for those who are cooking turkey for the first time or who have forgotten those little steps:

The night before can be used for cooking giblets for gravy or dressing, making cranberry relish, putting together a sweet potato dish, washing greens, arranging serving dishes, baking pies — in short, everything that can be done with the exception of stuffing and baking the turkey. NEVER stuff the turkey the night before. You may, however, saute the onions and celery and have everything ready to put together for stuffing the next morning.

The Turkey — Remove plastic bag, remove neck and giblets from cavity, rinse turkey and pat dry.

Cook giblets and neck in water to which a celery stalk, onion and a bay leaf have been added. Simmer, covered, about an hour for large giblets; strain broth and save for gravy or liquid in dressing. Discard celery and onion. Chop the giblets coarsely for gravy or stuffing and remove meat from neck bones.

Stuff turkey loosely with dressing, allowing three-fourths cup per pound of weight. Fasten down legs by tucking under skin band and skewer neck skin to back, twist wings under bird.

Place on rack in shallow roasting pan, breast side up. Brush with butter and, if desired, a little paprika to give an even more golden color.

You may cover loosely with foil for the first few hours or use a triple thickness of cheesecloth soaked in melted butter and draped snugly over the drumsticks and breast.

The Timing — Roast all turkeys at 325 degrees. For six pounds, roast three hours; for eight pounds, three and one-half; 12 pounds, four and half; 16 pounds, five and one-half; 20 pounds, six and one-half. If using a meat thermometer, insert in thickest part of thigh; it should register 180 to 185 degrees.

Also, thick part of drumstick should feel soft when pressed with thumb and forefinger. Thigh should move easily in joint. All times given are approximate and may be shortened or extended by half-hour or so.

Plan to take the bird from the oven half-hour or 45 minutes before carving.

It needs to "rest" and will be easier to slice. It also gives you time to use the oven for rolls and casseroles.

It is wise to buy a large turkey if you have freezer space. In any case, allow three-fourths pound per person when purchasing.

And now some recipes for stuffings and accompaniments. If roasting the turkey without stuffing, salt and pepper it inside and add some chopped onion and celery for flavor. The dressing may be baked in a casserole in preheated oven (350 degrees) for about 30 minutes.

This first stuffing couldn't be much more traditional, is delicious and has been requested by readers as a

BREAD STUFFING

Cooked, chopped turkey giblets
8 cups toasted bread cubes
3 sticks butter or margarine
3 large chopped onions
1 small bunch celery, stalks and leaves, chopped

One-half cup minced parsley
2 to 3 cloves garlic, minced (optional)

One and one-half tps. salt
One-fourth tsp. pepper
Two and one-half tbsps. poultry seasoning plus a little additional sage, if desired
Liquid from giblets

Melt butter in heavy skillet; cook vegetables until soft but not brown or wilted. Add seasonings and cooked giblets and toss with bread cubes. Stir in about one cup hot liquid from giblets. Cool. Yields stuffing for a 16- to 18-pound turkey.

Note: You may of course add chopped apples, pecans, sausage, fried and crumbled, oysters or other good things.

The second dressing begins "from scratch" with a wonderful, rather fluffy corn bread. It may be baked ahead, then crumbled for the dressing.

CORN BREAD STUFFING

4 to 5 cups corn bread
One and one-half cups chopped celery

1 cup chopped onion
One-half cup pitted ripe olives, quartered

One-half cup butter
1 tsp. thyme
One-half tsp. salt
One-half cup chopped pecans

Three-fourths cup turkey or chicken broth

Prepare and bake corn bread (see below).

Cool and coarsely crumble into a large bowl. Saute celery, onion and olives in butter or margarine. Add thyme, salt and pecans. Add to corn bread and toss lightly. Add broth and mix to moisten. Turn mixture into a buttered, two-and-one-half-quart casserole or baking dish. Cover. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Uncover and bake 10 minutes longer. Makes about eight cups. (Recipe should be doubled if stuffing a 16-pound turkey.)

YEAST CORN BREAD

1 cup milk
6 tbsps. sugar
2 tps. salt
One-half cup butter or margarine
One-half cup warm water (105 to 115 degrees)

2 pkgs. cake yeast
2 beaten eggs
Three and one-half cups unsifted flour

One and three-fourths cups yellow cornmeal

Scaud milk; stir in sugar, salt and margarine. Cool to lukewarm. Measure warm water into large, warm bowl. Sprinkle or crumble in yeast. Stir until dissolved. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture, beaten eggs, flour and cornmeal. Beat about two minutes.

Batter will be stiff. Turn into 2 eight-inch greased cake pans or 9x5x3-inch loaf pans. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in bulk, about an hour. Bake at 375 degrees 30 to 35 minutes.

The Rusk School Parent-Teacher Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the school's cafeteria.

A panel consisting of Rusk principal, Printus Burkhardt, Dr. Douglas Brown and several teachers in both the lower and upper grades will be on hand to discuss Rusk concerns.

A Thanksgiving program performed by fourth and fifth graders will be the highlight of a Bonham School Parent-Teacher Association session at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the cafeteria. The students later will present the same performance for Washington, West and Travis Schools to introduce the first cluster meeting.

Consumer is the judge

COLLEGE STATION — The postal service is no longer judge of whether materials sent through the mail are objectionable, Lynn Bourland, a family resource specialist, says.

She is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Formal rules, published July 28, 1976, now make it the consumer's responsibility to determine if the material is 'undesirable,'" she reported.

Persons who wish to remove their names from such mailing lists may do so by requesting Form No. 2159 from their local post office. This form calls for a prohibitory order that will be in effect for five years, the specialist explained.

DEAR ABBY

She's afraid of being outsider in own home

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and his first wife were divorced after 26 years of marriage. The divorce was her idea, and I was in no way involved. They have three grown children with whom I have a warm relationship.

My husband and I invited his children to our home for Thanksgiving dinner. All have accepted, which means his ex-wife will be all alone on Thanksgiving, so my husband asked me to please invite his ex-wife.

I have met her, and although I bear no ill feelings against her, I really don't see why she should be included. She divorced him because she wanted her freedom, so being alone on holidays is part of the price she has to pay.

Also, I'm afraid that if the entire family is together, I'll feel like an outsider. I really don't want her. What should I do?—NUMBER TWO

DEAR NUMBER TWO: Don't assume that she'll be alone if you don't include her. (She may have other friends.) Feeling as you do, tell your husband you'd feel awkward having her as your guest, and that should settle it.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this because we want to see if other parents of teenagers feel the same way.

Why can't we sit down for a family evening of TV without every other commercial being for bras, douches, tampons, Kotex or some other personal feminine product?

Our teenagers have more than once gotten up to leave the room because they're uncomfortable. When teenagers in this day and age are embarrassed, it must be pretty bad.

We aren't prudes, Abby, but we think there is a

Let's get some pros and cons on this from your readers. Maybe we can influence the networks.—V. G., SHREVEPORT, LA.

DEAR V. G.: You have my vote, for what it's worth, but don't get your hopes up.

DEAR ABBY: I notice you sometimes print people's pet gripes. Would you please print mine? To put it simply: My name is Patricia. It's not Pat, Patty or Tricia. It is PATRICIA, which is, I think, a very beautiful name.

Why then do new acquaintances insist on calling me "Pat" or "Patty," especially after I have

Volunteers hack long hiking trail

By DAVID POWELL

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — From the saw grass regions of the Everglades to the Blackwater State Park near Pensacola, 6,000 ardent outdoorsmen are hacking a hiking trail through the Florida wilderness.

For 10 years, the unpaid volunteers of the Florida Trail Association have gathered on weekends to swing their machetes through the undergrowth and carve out more than 500 miles of trail.

But the 1,300-mile project is still far from complete, with massive gaps between the completed portions of the footpath.

"It may be another 10 years before we get finished," said Tom Harris, a director of the trailmakers' group.

"We just cut the trail through the wilderness," Harris said. "It's 2 1/2-foot wide and seven feet of clearance. It's a natural footpath with no gravel."

Envisioned in 1966 by Miami realtor James A. Kern, the trail crosses national forests and state parks. About 50 miles of it runs by the Suwannee River, beneath moss-draped trees.

Harris said most of the trail is across private property.

"We have to get permission from these landowners to do it," he said. "And one of the reasons for the gaps is that we've had trouble getting permission from some of the major ranchers in Central Florida."

Fearing cattle rustlers, the ranchers have balked at granting access to their lands, Harris said. The trailblazers are sidestepping that problem by rerouting parts of the trail farther west.

Under the association's agreement with private landowners, use of the trail is limited to members of the group, who pledge to keep gates closed, not carry firearms and respect property owners' rights.

Marked by an orange blaze mark, the trail winds its way through a variety of geographical areas, from the Big Cypress Swamp to the hardwood forests of North Florida.

Along the way are bear, raccoons, alligators, turkeys, a vast array of birds and increasing numbers of hikers.

Air Force One stewards hold umbrellas for President and Mrs. Ford as they arrive at Andrews Air Force Base, returning to Washington from a weekend visit to the Nelson Rockefeller family near Tarrytown, N.Y.

Ford resumes work after weekend visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, after a relaxed golfing weekend at the Rockefeller estate in New York, returned to the White House to work on the federal budget and meet with President-elect Jimmy Carter.

Carter and Ford, in their first meeting since the election, planned to discuss the transfer of presidential power at a midafternoon session today.

The last time the two men were face to face was during their third debate at Williamsburg, Va., shortly before the Nov. 2 election in which Carter defeated Ford.

Ford planned to work several hours on the fiscal 1978 budget before the meeting with Carter.

According to Ford aides, the session with Carter was to be an unstructured meeting, open for discussion on any matters the President-elect wants to bring up.

Ford has promised to help provide a smooth transition from a Republican to a Democratic administration.

While in Washington, Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, will stay at Blair House, the official government guest residence across the

Survivor, body, pot in plane

GONZALES, Tex. (AP) — The wreckage of a light, marijuana-laden plane littered with money, an injured woman and the body of a man were discovered Sunday by a party of Texas Hill Country deer hunters, police said.

The Cessna 210, registered to Dr. John L. Moore of Sarasota, Fla., was found some 75 miles east of San Antonio. It had been missing since Friday.

Officers identified the dead pilot of John F. Stormont, 29, of Victoria, Tex.

The injured woman, identified as Roxanne Eichner, 29, of Garland, Tex., was reported in good condition late Sunday night at a Gonzales hospital. Officers said the woman, unconscious when found, was suffering from amnesia.

Officers said they discovered 15 pounds of marijuana and a "large amount" of money in $20, $50, and $100 bills strewn around the wreckage.

The craft apparently ran low on fuel during bad weather Friday night and clipped several tree tops before it crashed, without burning, just beyond an open pasture, officers said.

Gasoline prices down slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Holiday motorists should find the prices of all grades of gasoline slightly lower than on Labor Day, the American Automobile Association reported today after a spot check of 3,700 retail fuel outlets across the country.

The association said regular gasoline averages 61.5 cents per gallon for the upcoming four-day weekend, down four-tenths of one cent from Labor Day, traditional end of the heavy-travel season. Premium gasoline averages 65.8 cents per gallon, down from 66 cents, and unleaded 63.8 cents, down from 63.9 cents, AAA said.

Diesel fuel is averaging 53.3 cents a gallon, the association said.

The association said its survey indicated that motorists should find adequate supplies of all grades over the long weekend.

Over 70 per cent of the stations surveyed said they planned to be open on the holiday itself, Thursday, Nov. 25; more than half indicated they would pump gas after 6 p.m. that day; all said normal operating hours would be observed on Friday and Saturday, and only 20 per cent said they would be closed on Sunday.

At least 15 per cent of the stations contacted said they would remain open around the clock throughout the four-day weekend.

The highest prices found in the survey were in Mammoth Lakes, Calif., where regular grade fuel was 75.9 cents per gallon, premium 79.9 and unleaded 77.9.

Lowest prices were found in the Houston and Beaumont, Tex., areas, where a gallon of regular sold for 45.9 cents, premium 50.9 cents and unleaded 49.9 cents.

On a regional basis, the highest prices per gallon were found in the Mountain states of Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming, where regular was 64.6 cents per gallon, premium 68.5 cents and unleaded 66.6 cents.

The lowest prices regionally were reported in the oil-producing West South Central area — Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas — where regular was 59.9 cents per gallon, premium 63.7 cents and unleaded 61.8 cents.

Pentagon sees microwaves as possible inquiry device

By BARTON REPERT
Associated Press Writer

A Pentagon report says recent Soviet research suggests that microwaves could potentially be used as an interrogation tool and as a weapon to trigger heart attacks or alter the behavior in diplomats and military officials.

The U.S. analysis of experiments in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe was released to The Associated Press by the Defense Intelligence Agency in response to a request under the Freedom of Information Act. The Pentagon said parts were withheld for national security reasons.

The report concluded Soviet studies have "great potential for development into a system for disorienting or disrupting the behavior patterns of military or diplomatic personnel. It could be used equally as well as an interrogation tool."

No mention was made in the study made by the Army Medical Intelligence and Information Agency of the current microwave bombardment of the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, which the State Department has declared "an unhealthy post."

State Department officials claim the microwaves are beamed at the embassy in an attempt to disrupt electronic observation equipment in the building. The Soviets deny beaming any radiation at the embassy.

Microwaves are electromagnetic radiation used to transmit television signals, relay telephone calls and cook food quickly. But over-exposure can cause headaches, dizziness, fatigue, irritability, insomnia, agitation, depression, anxiety, forgetfulness and menstrual disorders.

Soviet researchers have found that persons exposed to low-level radiation "experience more neurological, cardiovascular and hemodynamic (blood circulation) disturbances than do their unexposed counterparts," the analysis said.

"Soviet scientists are fully aware of the biological effects of low-level radiation which might have offensive weapons application," according to the report compiled by Ronald L. Adams of the Army surgeon general's office and Dr. R.A. Williams of Battelle Laboratories in Columbus, Ohio.

Mexico suspends trade in dollars

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's central bank said Monday it has suspended the sale and purchase of all foreign currency because of recent "excessive conversions."

"Beginning Nov. 22 and until further notice, credit institutions will abstain from buying and selling foreign money and gold," the Banco de Mexico said in an announcement published in all of Mexico City's major daily newspapers.

Most private banks unofficially suspended the sale of dollars last Friday, claiming that they had depleted their supplies of the U.S. currency.

Mexican banks will continue to accept dollars for debts due to banks, savings and loan institutions and other financial institutions, the central bank said.

The Banco de Mexico said exchanges of pesos to foreign currency had created "disorderly situations that have seriously altered the exchange market."

The exchange controls came 11 weeks after the government floated the Mexican peso Sept. 1. The peso was trading at about 24 to the dollar Friday, only one of eight private banks checked then was selling dollars and with a $1,000 limit.

Even banks at the Benito Juarez international airport in Mexico City were refusing to sell pesos to tourists. A black market operation cropped up, and some tourists were able to buy pesos at 26 to one, one newspaper reported.

Kennedy honored in brief service

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas briefly and silently marked the anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy today — two blocks from where shots shattered the calm of a sunny November day 13 years ago.

Meanwhile, Dallas police today gathered records of the killing subpoenaed by a House committee investigating assassinations.

A short prayer and a moment of silence were scheduled at the Kennedy Memorial, close to the spot where the Warren Commission concluded Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, shot and killed Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963.

"There will be no speeches," Dallas County Democratic Chairman Ron Kessler said of the short service.

The Rev. Zan Holmes, a former Texas legislator, and Dr. Paul A. Stauffer, executive director of the Greater Dallas Community of Churches, were to officiate at the memorial service.

Nasty Falcons derail Dallas' Super express

MIKE MARSHALL, 22, Philadelphia Eagles back, is flipped to turf by Oakland Raiders' Floyd Rice, 52, in NFL action at Philadelphia Sunday.

ATLANTA (AP)—Coach Tom Landry says he hopes the stunning loss to the Atlanta Falcons Sunday may shock his National Football Conference Eastern Conference leading Dallas Cowboys out of the doldrums.

But he admits he is worried about Thursday's confrontation against the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Falcons turned a pair of interceptions and a short punt into 17 points within a five-minute span of the final quarter and upset the Cowboys 17-10 Sunday in a National Football League game, setting up a Thanksgiving Day showdown with the Cardinals for the conference lead.

"We've got to win now," said Landry after his club continued to struggle after three consecutive punchless games against the New York Giants, Buffalo Bills and Falcons.

Dallas, 9-2, beat the Giants and Bills by 9-3 and 17-10 scores, relying mainly on its defense.

LANDRY, WHOSE club has been in the playoffs 10 of the last 11 seasons and is fighting for a playoff berth again, said, "This loss won't help since we only have three days to prepare for the Cardinals and I don't know if we can get over it that quick."

The Cowboys took a 10-0 lead on Scott Laidlaw's 16-yard run and a 23-yard field goal by Eren Herrera before the Falcons broke loose.

The Falcons, recording their first triumph ever against the Cowboys, turned an interception by Dewey McClain into a 21-yard field goal by Nick Mike-Mayer, a 15-yard punt by Danny White into a 35-yard touchdown run by Mike Esposito and an interception by Ray Brown into a one-yard TD run by Scott Hunter.

"We moved the ball well when we weren't making mistakes," said Landry. "But we had too many holding penalties, interceptions and dropped passes."

"IN PROFESSIONAL football you get in a streak where you don't play well and still win like we were doing. Then you get beat. Now we have to try to come back."

"We stopped ourselves," agreed Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, who was intercepted three times—the last by Tommy Nobis on the Atlanta triumph in the final minute. "It was a combination of interceptions and penalties. Just a bunch of mistakes that Atlanta created."

Claude Humphrey, Atlanta's defensive end, was a big factor, sacking Staubach—twice and tipping two passes.

"Claude was all over the place. He had his hand right in my face and had a lot of big plays all day," said Staubach.

Humphrey said after the victory, Atlanta's second consecutive upset triumph after defeating San Francisco 21-16 a week ago. "We knew if we were to have a chance, we had to pressure Staubach. When they go into the shotgun offense, they're throwing out a personal challenge. I know I took it personally. They're telling you they're going to pass and they challenge you as a man. Today we rose to the occasion."

Redskins beat Cards to rekindle hopes

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"Right now, it's the biggest win we've had in six years," said Washington Coach George Allen after his Redskins kept their playoff hopes alive with a 16-10 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in a National Football League game Sunday.

"It was a complete team victory," Allen said, "a dedicated group of 43 men that played their hearts out."

The brunt of the load was carried by running back Mike Thomas, who rushed for a team-record 195 yards and scored the Redskins' only touchdown.

"Billy (Kilmer) used John (Riggins) and really well; we controlled the ball and I think that was the key to the game," said the 195-pound Thomas, a second-year pro. "We've still got hope and we've still got a chance. We've just got to keep it going and never let up," he added.

The Redskins, whose other points came on three field goals by Mark Moseley are now 7-4, a game back of the Cardinals, who slipped to 8-3 in NFC Eastern Division standings.

Both teams still must face division-leading Dallas which dropped to 9-2 after losing to Atlanta Sunday. The Cards also confront Baltimore after playing the Cowboys Thanksgiving Day.

"It means we have to win at least two of our three remaining games," St. Louis Coach Don Coryell said. "They played a very good game. We didn't do the job."

Landry's lightning electrifies Chicago

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)—The Chicago Bears Payton, who entered the game with 1,008 yards rushing, managed just 40 carries in 17 carries. The Thomas and owner "Payton's Place" sign in William Clay Ford, read: the end zone looked "1 Thomas plus 1 Ford horribly out of place. But equals 1 stinko team."

About midway through the game, Greg Landry—the NFL's leading passer—threw two touchdowns apart, leading Detroit to a 14-10 victory before a Pontiac Silverdome crowd of 78,042, the Lions' second largest ever.

Meanwhile, Detroit's monstrous defense, tops in the league, made league-leading Chicago runner Walter Payton look like a department store clerk who just opened the doors to a mob of bargain hunters. Detroit took the field for referring to Lions' General Manager Russ in 17 carries. The Thomas and owner "Payton's Place" sign in William Clay Ford, read: the end zone looked "1 Thomas plus 1 Ford horribly out of place. But equals 1 stinko team."

But all was forgiven in the end, despite the Lions' usual bundle of mistakes. The problem still upset over last for the Bears was that week's upset loss against they made a bundle New Orleans, booted when more.

BATTLE SCENE

BY TED BATTLES

The way the University of Houston has come into the Southwest Conference and, barring an upset by Rice Saturday, has won, at best, a share of the SWC title and best of all the Cotton Bowl's host spot, brings back memories of the Cleveland Browns, the long forgotten All-American Conference and the hard-to-convince National Football League.

The AA was introduced after World War II as a competitor to the old, somewhat established NFL.

IT HAD such teams as the Miami Seahawks, Baltimore Colts, Chicago Rockets, San Francisco 49ers, New York Yankees, Los Angeles Dons and perhaps even an entry from Boston.

But most of all, it had the Cleveland Browns, who were thrust into the pro football void created at Cleveland when the Rams beat the Dodgers to discovering Los Angeles by more than a decade.

The Browns were named for their coach, Paul Brown, an organizational genius who established a high school football dynasty at Massillon, Ohio, the counter-part of a similar empire in Texas called Breckenridge.

Brown was tapped for the Ohio State job and probably would have left a record that would have made Woody Hayes envious, if he had stayed. Instead, where others saw the All-American Conference as a fly-by-night operation, Brown saw a future.

The Browns, with such names as Otto Graham, Marion Motley and Lou Groza, dominated the AA from its inception and soon the clamor began for admission into the NFL.

Bert Bell, the then NFL commissioner, muttered something derisively like, "Go get a football."

JUST AS it happened a couple of decades later with the NFL and the American Football Conference, spiraling costs forced a merger and lo and behold, the Browns won the title in their first year, not only proving that the AA had been playing with a football all along, but a better one than they were using in the NFL.

The SWC didn't exactly tell Houston to go get a football, but did suggest that they get the same one the SWC was using. So there was a transition period in which Houston mended its recruiting ways to conform with those of the SWC.

AND WHEN the Cougars went 2-8 last year, its final as an independent, it looked as though Coach Bill Yeoman's football colossus had indeed been reduced to size.

Despite an opening game win over Baylor, the suspicion seemed confirmed when Florida left the Cougars for dead, 49-14, the next week. But the Cougars arose from the carnage to beat A&M and now find themselves on the lip of a first-year title.

One disappointed, but far from despairing Tech fan consoled companions near the end of the game, "They (Houston) just haven't been in the conference long enough to get anybody mad at them. Wait until the second time around. Folks will be getting up for the Cougars next year."

APPARENTLY, there never has been any doubt in the minds of the Cougar players. When quarterback Danny Davis peeled off his game jersey after the 27-19 win Saturday, he exposed a T-shirt that declared, "1976 Southwest Conference Champions." On the flip side, it said something like "Cotton Bowl Express."

Asked about it, he said, "I showed up wearing a shirt like this at spring practice and it kinda caught on. Everybody on the team has one, although each has its own version of the message."

Whatever the message, SWC lodge brothers were reading it loud and clear.

3 Americans qualify for Masters

WEMBLEY, England (AP)—The United States could have four players in the eight-man Masters Tennis Tournament at Houston next month.

Three of them—Eddie Dibbs, Harold Solomon and Roscoe Tanner—have made sure of qualifying by finishing in the first eight of the International Grand Prix. Brian Gottfried has a chance to join them.

The last place or two could depend on what happens in this week's South African Championships at Johannesburg.

Jimmy Connors, defying injuries to his back and ankle, is challenging for third place in the Grand Prix following his 36, 7-6, 6-4 victory over Tanner in the final of a $125,000 Grand Prix tournament at Wembley Sunday. But for the second straight year, Connors has passed up the chance of playing in the Masters.

Independence Bowl is desperate

By The Associated Press

The college football bowl picture is virtually complete and it includes a lot of unfamiliar faces in strange places.

How does Kentucky grab you? What about Wyoming? Would you believe Brigham Young and Oklahoma State in the Tangerine Bowl?

And how about McNeese State (who?) in the Independence Bowl (when? where?)

The McNeese State Cowboys are champions of the Southland Conference ... that's who. And the fledgling Independence Bowl will be played in Shreveport, La., the night of Dec. 14 ... that's when and where.

Anyone who still does not have a bowl bid should dial Shreveport immediately, because the Independence Bowl has the only vacancy, even though some of the other bowls are not sure who will be heading their way yet.

WITH 19 of 24 precincts—there are 12 major bowls—reporting, this is the way it looks:

Sugar Bowl—No. 1 Pitt vs. Georgia, which is tied for No. 6 with Maryland.

Rose Bowl—No. 3 Southern California vs. No. 4 Michigan.

Cotton Bowl—Maryland vs. the Southwest Conference representative, probably No. 9 Houston.

Orange Bowl—No. 8 Ohio State vs. the Big Eight representative, either No. 12 Nebraska or No. 15 Colorado.

Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl—Probably No. 5 Texas Tech, unless the Red Raiders sneak into the Cotton Bowl, against Nebraska, if the Cornhuskers do not make it to the Orange. If they do ... come back later.

Gator Bowl—No. 13 Notre Dame vs. No. 17 Penn State.

Liberty Bowl—No. 2 UCLA vs. No. 18 Alabama.

Fiesta Bowl—No. 10 Oklahoma vs. Wyoming, co-champion of the Western Athletic Conference.

Tangerine Bowl—No. 18 Oklahoma State vs. WAC co-champion Brigham Young.

Sun Bowl—No. 11 Texas A&M vs. Florida.

Peach Bowl—North Carolina vs. Kentucky.

AND IN the Independence Bowl, it will be McNeese State against ... well, it probably was going to be Tulsa until the Hurricane lost to Wichita State 30-13, and it still might be. Or it could be Rutgers, one of only three teams with perfect records—Pitt and Maryland are the others—or Boston College or Cincinnati or Memphis State.

Under an agreement with the NCAA, the Independence Bowl can only invite independents or teams from leagues with no bowl tie-up to meet the Southland Conference king.

The Associated Press' Top Twenty, of course, will undergo some revision as a result of Saturday's action, and some of the bowl spots depend on what happens this week. In addition to completing the bowl lineup, the race for the national championship still is very much alive.

"I believe that if we win our last two games, that will prove we are No. 1 and nobody can take it away from us." Pitt's Johnny Majors said after the Panthers, idle Saturday, accepted an invitation to meet Georgia, also off, in the Sugar Bowl. Pitt closes its regular season Friday night against Penn State.

THE SOUTHERN Cal Trojans trounced UCLA 24-14 in the Pacific 8 Conference showdown and set up a Rose Bowl meeting with Michigan, which humiliated Ohio State 22-0.

"Any team that beats us that badly has got to be No. 1," said Ohio State's Woody Hayes.

Maryland, 11-0, completed its first perfect regular season by trouncing Virginia 28-0.

"Until somebody beats us, I think we're the best team in the country," said Coach Jerry Claiborne.

The only club that can beat the Terrapins is the Southwest Conference team in the Cotton Bowl, and it looks like Houston. The Cinderella Cougars, in their initial year of SWC play and only 2-8 a year ago, handed Texas Tech its first loss, 27-19, and needs only to beat also-ran Rice to gain the bowl berth. Tech voted to go to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl if it does not get to the Cotton.

Britain enters exporting field

The Washington Post

LONDON — Late last April, a tanker slipped out of the Firth of Forth carrying 50,000 tons of Britain's North Sea oil to Wilhelmshaven in West Germany.

This seemingly routine incident of commercial life is, in fact, a harbinger of remarkable things to come. Britain had quietly entered the ranks of the world's oil exporters.

The West German sale was no more than an episode, the oil going abroad because that suited the refining schedule of its inner, British Petroleum. This country is still spending precious foreign currency to import each day for home use four barrels for every one taken from the North Sea.

That ratio is changing fast. A year from now, the North Sea will be yielding about 1.5 million barrels daily, three quarters of the total burned in Britain. Some time in 1979, the break-even point is likely to be reached — a year ahead of official estimates.

By 1980, Britain will probably take enough from its Continental Shelf under the North Sea's wild water to satisfy not only domestic demand but also to produce a surplus for West Germans, Italians, French and other foreign buyers. The nation then becomes a full-fledged exporter of oil, earning instead of spending foreign exchange on energy.

Every few weeks, the oil companies here make another announcement suggesting that their estimates of the black bonanza have been too low. BP recently disclosed that its big Forties Field is now expected to yield 500,000 barrels a day, a 25 per cent boost over earlier estimates.

Other experts calculate that 600,000 barrels a day is an even better figure of the peak potential. BP is reluctant, however, to enlarge its refinery to turn the crude oil into petroleum products, asserting that there is a surplus of capacity. Skeptics think the company does not want to open the tap wider because a bigger stream might threaten prices.

The history of all big oil basins everywhere in the world has been marked by the same sorts of dubious calculations. More oil is usually extracted than the companies forecast.

Six years ago, the British government, relying as it must on industry estimates — there are only 20 geologists in the government's Department of Energy, too few for independent surveys — predicted that the North Sea would yield 1 million barrels a day when the production platforms were working full blast.

Three years ago, this figure was doubled. Most recently, the government announced that the level could reach 3 million barrels.

Experts like Wood MacKenzie in the City, the London financial center that makes its money by getting these things right, are already forecasting 300,000 barrels more than the government's top estimate. A careful study by two professors from the University of Surrey foresees nearly 4 million barrels each day in 1982.

The oil companies and government officials insist there is nothing peculiar in these constantly rising forecasts: It is all a matter of prudence. Finding oil is risky, hazardous and expensive. Estimates have a healthy bias on the side of caution until the stuff actually flows.

Gin stepout scheduled

Amoco Production Co. has scheduled a 4-mile northeast stepout to the Gin, North (8,000) field of Dawson County, three miles northwest of Lamesa. It is No. 2 R/T. Bedwell Jr.

Drillsite for the project, planned for an 8,900-foot bottom, is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 2, block 2, D. L. Cunningham survey.

Extender completes

HOUSTON — Mitchell Energy & Development Corp. has announced the completion of a natural gas well in Willacy County about two miles west of Raymondville.

The well represents an approximate 1/2-mile northeast extension of the La Sal Vieja Field.

The well, No. 1 M. A. Baughman, was completed from the Frio sand behind perforations from 11,326 to 11,336 feet for a calculated open flow of 2.2 million cubic feet of gas per day. A test through perforations from 11,064 to 11,080 feet established a new pay zone for the field. That section flowed at the rate of 1.7 million cubic feet of gas per day, plus 117 barrels of condensate per day, with water, on a 14/64-inch choke.

On the potential test of the zone from 11,326 to 11,336 feet, the well also made 60 barrels of condensate.

An additional zone, behind perforations from 10,572 to 10,585 feet, tested 244,000 cubic feet of gas per day on a 1/2-inch choke.

The industry's critics retort that the big seven companies, who dominate the North Sea, as they do every other basin, have a strong interest in understatement. Here in Britain, they have been engaged in nonstop bargaining with the government over taxes, sale of the oil and much more. The smaller the companies make the yield appear, the less they whet political appetites.

Unlike the Arab world, the companies here own all the oil that comes up from the North Sea. Another Surrey survey has calculated that BP's Forties Field would yield 3 per cent more profits with a 5 per cent rise in oil prices; a 25 per cent price rise would lift profits 14 per cent. This illustrates where company interests lie.

Whatever the ultimate rate of production, it is clear that North Sea oil is the one bright feature in Britain's otherwise gloomy economy. It is certain to inject new blood into an anemic pound, a prospect that may account in part for sterling's recent and little noticed rise.

The oil tide should float away the red ink in Britain's foreign accounts, transform a balance of payments deficit into a hefty surplus and give whoever governs Britain in the 1980s an unaccustomed measure of economic and political freedom.

This year, Britain's trade and other dealings with foreign nations will plunge the nation into the red by about $3 billion, a sum it must borrow to pay its bills. By 1978, the Treasury, relying on those cautious official forecasts of North Sea output, calculates this amount will be wiped out by savings in home-produced oil.

Two years later, North Sea oil should add $10 billion to Britain's overseas accounts. By 1985, the Treasury estimates that the total will reach an impressive $25 billion.

At least until 1980, however, the oil earnings will be eaten up by the trade deficit and the big borrowings Britain has made and will make abroad. This accounts for the sour comments from the oilmen. Leslie Pincott, boss of Esso Petroleum (Exxon's name here), recently dismissed North Sea oil as a "mortgaged bonanza."

In the decade to come, however, the flow should put Britain's balance firmly in the black. Whoever is in power then could govern a new nation. This is one reason why Prime Minister James Callaghan is hanging on, trying to put off a general election as long as possible.

A rising pound would provide a sturdy weapon in the battle against a stubborn inflation. As sterling rises, imported goods will be cheaper. In recent years, British consumers have suffered a 1 per cent rise in prices for every 5 per cent the pound fell. In the 1980s, they can expect the reverse: a 2 per cent cut in prices for every 5 per cent gain.

Policy makers could find themselves with an unaccustomed freedom. If the nation is plagued with unemployed men and plants, the government would no longer be held back by fears of a payments deficit and could inject the buying power to put these idle resources to work.

There would be less fear that an expanding economy would suck in too many imports and throw the payments balance into the red. Britain would not have to borrow abroad to balance its books.

If this happy scenario is realized, Britain's role in the world could change markedly and some vestige of its old influence in foreign affairs might return. All through the postwar period, London has had to look over its shoulder at Washington — the chief credit — before it made a move. A debt-free Britain could act far more independently.

CB's matter of life, death on Alaska line

By W. ROBERT WELLER
ATIGUN PASS, Alaska (AP) — You start up the 4,800-foot pass in the care of "The Heartbreaker," who turns you over to "The Pass Watcher." Once over the top you are in the hands of "The Happy Pappy."

All three of them drive road graders on the trans-Alaska pipeline haul road. And their rigs are equipped with CB radios, which are much more than a device for "holering" at friends when you are this far north of the Arctic Circle.

They can make the difference between life and death.

The 359-mile road north of the Yukon River is kept open all year to get supplies to the pipeline construction camps. Roughly 80 per cent of the road lies north of the Arctic Circle, and winter temperatures 60 below zero are common.

"The one and only, world famous Thunderbug" drives this two-lane dirt road like there was no tomorrow as he roars "home to mama." As he stands in front of the shiny Rolls Royce-like grill of his 18-wheeler he looks tough enough to handle most obstacles.

Paul Konig, "the Thunderbug" boasts of going over Atigun Pass "barefoot" (without chains). As he is talking, this reporter's own four-wheel drive wagon is sliding all over the icy highway.

But the Anchorage trucker says, "I won't go up this road without my CB."

His buddy, Marty DeWitt of Fairbanks, or "Tiny Tim," tells a story about hauling a pipeline load on the stretch of state-maintained road south of the Yukon. He was headed up a hill when his rig tumbled over a cliff.

He broke a rib but his radio still worked, and he heard a friend who was traveling ahead of him ask: "Did you make it over the hill?"

"I told him: 'Yeah, but not the right way.'"

Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., the consortium of oil companies building the pipeline, maintains the road north of the Yukon.

The truckers, like their "good buddies" down south, monitor channel 19. But they also can use channel 11 to talk with the 12 pipeline camps along the route.

Each camp has a radio operator handling the commercial band frequency used by Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., as well as monitoring channel 11.

The drivers are never more than 25 miles from a camp, so most of the time they are within the transmission range of CB radios. And if a trucker can't reach the nearest camp, there's usually another trucker closer who can relay a message.

Many Alyeska construction trucks have CB radios and can relay messages to camps via their more powerful company commercial-band radios.

The radio operator in Old Man camp said that hardly a day passes that he doesn't get a request for some kind of assistance, usually from a disabled vehicle.

As we talked with Old Man on channel 19, we passed two wrecked trucks. One was a tanker lying almost upside down but neat-as-you-please on the narrow strip between the road and the forest. There were no injuries in either accident.

Truckers also can call to the radio operators, like "The Winemaker" in Dietrich Camp, to reserve a room for the night. The drivers are allowed to spend the night in the camps and eat in the cafeterias free.

The truckers occasionally get road information from the camps, more often from each other. And there are road condition signs occasionally.

One thing truckers don't need to worry about are bears of the four-legged variety — and wolves are seen frequently along the road.

The radios also are crucial to break the loneliness. The truckers, many of them riding without partners, use them to pass the time. More than one we heard a static-filled and faint plea: "Breaker 19, is there anybody on this here haul road today?"

That goes for the workers, like Ron Lukken of Puyallup, Wash., too. He spends 12 to 16 hours daily miles from the camp, smoothing the road with his grader.

During the winter months there are nights "when you're lucky if you truck passes." And the only person Lukken — "The Heartbreaker" — sees is the foreman who brings him his lunch. His day is made when drivers tell him he's "doing a great job."

10 miles to go on Alaska line

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline is approaching 90 per cent complete.

By Nov. 7, completion percentages for the individual portions of the project included the pipeline, about 97 per cent complete; the pump stations, almost 85 per cent complete, and the Valdez Terminal, nearly 80 per cent complete.

On the pipeline portion of the project, less than 10 miles of mainline pipe remain to be installed.

During the week ending Nov. 7, the last pipeline river crossing was accomplished in the projects northern most segment.

All mainline pipe has been welded with the exception of some "tie-in" work and the remedial weld program. "Tie-ins" are welds made which join two long sections of installed pipe. The pipeline's final "tie-in" will not be completed until 1977 when hydrostatic testing of the last section of pipe is accomplished.

A total of 163.4 miles of pipe remain to be hydrotested. The majority of the hydrotest work is a 127.2-mile segment.

By Nov. 7, 3,911 of the 3,955 discrepancies revealed in an audit of mainline field girth welds were resolved.

Construction is continuing in two short but difficult segments — at Thompson Pass, a 4,100-foot section 20 miles northeast of Valdez, and at Atigun Pass, in the middle of the Brooks Mountain Range, about 200 miles south of Prudhoe Bay.

At Thompson Pass, backfilling of installed pipe is proceeding slowly as crews fight wind and snow to complete the job. About 600 feet of backfill remained to be installed as of mid-November.

At Atigun Pass, the weather has been good and work is proceeding on backfilling separate sections of pipe installed on the north and south faces of the pass. The total effort was about one-third complete as of the first week of November.

On the pump station portion of the project, most of the recent activity has consisted of building construction, installation of piping and hydrotesting.

At the Valdez Terminal, inside work continues to increase, including alignment of 20 of 23 pumps in the flotation and oil recovery buildings; electrical accessory installation at the power plant and vapor recovery area, and assembly of a 10-ton overhead bridge crane in the metering building.

Terry test swabs oil

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 64 Mallet Lamd & Cattle Co., Terry County scheduled wildcat, 2 1/4 mile south of the one-well Frazier (Abo) field of Hockley County, swabbed 77 barrels of oil and 58 barrels of water in 11 hours, from the Abo.

Testing continued through perforations at 7,740-7,954 feet. Drilled to 11,650 feet, it is plugged back to 8,186 feet and has 5 1/2-inch casing set at 8,223 feet.

Location is 1,670 feet from north and west lines of section 5, block D-11, J. H. Gibson survey, five miles south of Sundown.

The discovery well, Amoco Production Co. No. 87 W. G. Frazier, finished Oct. 26, for 173 barrels of 20.6-gravity oil and 60 barrels of water per day, through perforations at 7,904-7,965 feet.

Zoologist tracks down butterfly

By NICHOLAS C. CHRISS
The Los Angeles Times

HOUSTON — For the better part of four decades, zoologist Dr. Fred A. Urquhart chased a will-o'-the-wisp. Where, he wondered, did the migrating monarch butterfly spend its winters?

Now Urquhart, a University of Toronto professor, has found out that the monarch winters in Mexico.

His interest in the monarch, a large butterfly with orange-brown wings veined in black, dates back to his boyhood. Not until 1937, though, did his search begin in earnest.

Urquhart, now 65, said in a recent telephone interview that much of his time was spent trying to raise money for the search.

"Most people couldn't care less if a butterfly flies north or south," he said. "They'd rather have a new refrigerator, or a car that will go 200 mph rather than 100 mph."

Then, last year, he received $24,000 in research grants from half a dozen countries, and he tracked the monarch down.

He found its winter home about 9,000 feet up in the Sierra Madre near Mexico City. Until then, the monarch, the only butterfly that migrates like a bird, had seemed simply to disappear.

Many begin their migrant flight as far north as New Brunswick, Can., above Maine, and fly about 3,000 miles to Mexico, often passing through Texas.

Urquhart found that the butterflies fly 5 to 10 feet above the ground as a rule, but some fly as high as 500 feet. Their speed is 12 to 14 mph and they travel up to 80 miles a day. Many die enroute and are replaced by new generations.

Writing in a recent issue of National Geographic magazine, Urquhart described the monarch's winter home as he first saw it:

"I gazed in amazement at the sight. Butterflies — millions upon millions of monarch butterflies! They clung in tightly packed masses to every branch and trunk of the gray-green trees.

"They swirled through the air like autumn leaves and carpeted the ground in their flaming myriads on this Mexican mountainside.

"I had waited decades for this moment.

"We had come at last to the long-sought over-wintering place of the Eastern population of the monarch butterfly."

Urquhart and his companions estimated that there were probably 1,000 trees in the area they examined, all festooned with the monarchs.

While in Mexico, Urquhart, his wife, Norah, who has worked closely with him for many years, and some friends managed to tag 10,000 of the monarchs with distinctive pink labels. They hope that more migration patterns will be established as the creatures' travels are traced through the tags.

So far, at least two of them have been found since they were tagged 1,000 miles away in north Texas, steadily beating their way north.

Before Urquhart, no one had charted the flight of the monarch. No one even knew that butterflies — at least the monarch — migrated thousands of miles through polluted cities and across deserts, buffeted by winds, attacked by birds and captured by children.

Not even Urquhart knows what touches off the monarch's long, determined voyage to Mexico.

The monarch's journey, long as it is, is made even longer because the monarch is a flighty creature that does not follow a straight line. He moves back and forth, from branch to branch.

Moreover, unlike most birds that migrate, the monarch does not travel with a group.

"They are individuals," Urquhart noted.

As a result of his studies, the zoologist began to chart migration maps and the flights began to point to Mexico as the wintering spot.

He placed advertisements in Mexican newspapers asking for butterfly spotters.

Among those who responded were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth C. Bruggert, whose aunt lived in Mexico City. They began criss-crossing the area around Mexico City in their camper, closely following Urquhart's directions.

They searched from April, 1974, until January, 1975, constantly corresponding with the zoologist, who encouraged them to continue.

On Jan. 9, Urquhart received a joyous telephone call from the Bruggerts, saying that they had located the colony.

Still, what brings the monarch — a "wind-tossed scrap of life," as the zoologist calls them — thousands of miles to this 20-acre site near Mexico City?

KNOW YOUR FOOD

GOOD NUTRITION AT LOWER COST

Foods that abound in high quality protein... beef, veal, lamb, pork, poultry, fish, eggs and cheese always make welcome main dishes. Thrifty main dishes often combine these protein-rich foods with vegetables or the bread-cereal group of the basic four food groups... for example, beef stew with vegetables or dumplings, chicken with rice, fish with stuffing, cheese with macaroni. Dry beans and peas are also thrifty choices... with a little meat added they produce high quality protein meals. If a main dish is not high in protein, it's possible to supply additional protein with the other foods in the meal.

If, for instance, a pound of meat is to serve six or eight persons, you might combine it with vegetables in a casserole or stew. Add milk to the menu as a beverage and serve cheese-topped apple pie for dessert.

If you are making hamburgers, the meat can be extended for extra servings by adding bread crumbs, dry milk, eggs and fine-cut onions along with your favorite seasonings, of course. The dry milk and eggs also extend the amount of protein in the hamburgers.

The same thing holds true when you are making meat loaf. Adding eggs and dry milk provides extra protein as well as more servings.

Serving homemade noodles with chicken also pays protein dividends through the eggs used in preparing them. Homemade noodles aren't difficult to make. Check a good cookbook for directions and you're on your way to pleasing your family with something really tasty. Homemade bread, noodles, cakes, pies, rolls, etc., seem to be a popular way of saving money today. Besides, there is something so satisfying about "doing it yourself."

Brezhnev pays court to maverick Romania

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev arrived in Bucharest today to tighten the Kremlin's ties with its maverick East European ally. But Romanian leader Nicolae Ceausescu appears certain to retain the independence he has established.

Even as Ceausescu welcomed Brezhnev at Otopeni Airport, U.S. Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson was talking with officials a few miles away in downtown Bucharest about ways of expanding U.S.-Romanian trade.

Diplomatic observers said that although Romania may be showing willingness to improve relations with the Soviet Union it hasn't changed its basic stance of being independent and developing ties with non-Communist countries.

Brezhnev's arrival marks his first visit in 10 years. In the interim, both Presidents Nixon and Ford have visited Ceausescu and received warm welcomes.

Strained relations between Romania and the Soviet Union dating back to the mid-1950s have improved, at least outwardly, since the summit conference of European Communist parties in East Berlin last June.

Brezhnev at that meeting appeared to accept the right of each Communist party to chart its own course without directives from Moscow. And in a visit last week to the pioneer European rebel against Moscow's domination, President Tito, the Soviet Communist party chief renewed his acceptance of Yugoslavia's independent stand.

Observers believe Brezhnev's trips to Yugoslavia and Romania are part of a campaign to present a unified Communist front.

Chicago fireman dies in power plant blaze

CHICAGO (AP) — One leg of a fireman trapped under a collapsed beam was amputated in an unsuccessful attempt to save him during a spectacular fire at a Commonwealth Edison generating plant. Officials said thousands of homes were left without power and damage will run into the millions of dollars.

The blaze at the coal-powered Fisk Generating Station on the near West Side apparently began Sunday night in a warehouse near a coal storage yard. Flames were carried by an overhead conveyor chute to six other units of the facility before the chute collapsed, trapping the fireman who later died. His death was the only fatality.

The victim was identified as Walter Watroba. One of his legs was amputated at the scene during an eight-hour effort to free him. He remained conscious throughout much of the ordeal but was pronounced dead on arrival at Mercy Hospital.

Watroba was caught under a beam when a section of the conveyor chute collapsed on a roof on which he was standing, officials said.

"We were trying to pass a line to the smelter near the conveyor belt when we heard a slight snap, then the whole thing collapsed," said Francis Schwantner, another firefighter.

Customers in a four-mile-square area were without electricity for a time and about a 1,000 homes remained without power this morning. The plant, one of the utility's oldest, produces about 470,000 kilowatts of electricity and sends power to other substations in the city.

The cause of the fire was not determined.

Syrian takeover brings peace to torn Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Most of Lebanon was at peace and under Syrian occupation today on the 33rd anniversary of independence from France. Moslem and Christian leaders pledged to cooperate with President Elias Sarkis in rebuilding the ruined nation.

"Peace, peace with ourselves, peace in our country," Sarkis proclaimed in a broadcast after Syrian armored forces on Sunday occupied Moslem-controlled Tripoli and Sidon, the nation's second- and third-largest cities, without opposition.

The Syrian takeover, which touched off joyous celebration by the residents of the two port cities, came after 19 months of civil war between right-wing Christians and an alliance of Moslem leftists and Palestinians that took more than 37,000 lives.

This extended Syrian control to all of the country except a strip along the Israeli border, an area disputed between Palestinian guerrillas who formerly raided Israel from there and right-wing Christian militiamen who moved in when the Palestinians went north to fight on the Moslem side of the civil war.

The Palestinians have been moving south again to reopen their guerrilla bases, and the Israeli military command reported guerrillas fired a salvo of rockets across the border Sunday into the Israeli border town of Nahariya, damaging a house. The command said Israeli forces returned the fire.

Israel has said it would not tolerate the return of the Palestinians to the border area and has been aiding the Lebanese Christians in their efforts to take over the region. Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres said Sunday that his government would also object to the presence of Syrian troops in the border area.

Jordan's King Hussein went to Damascus Sunday to see Syrian President Hafez Assad. Some observers in the Syrian capital speculated that they might have discussed a joint reaction to any confrontation with Israel over the Lebanese situation.

Sarkis in his independence day address said Syria's "fraternal intervention" in Lebanon would end when "we have recovered our strength, ability, security and the will to live together as a nation and share the same destiny."

A Christian who was elected president with Syrian backing, he promised to maintain democracy in Lebanon and set up a "reconstruction and development council" to lead the country out of its "colossal financial disaster."

He said banks would be ordered to extend long-term loans and the government would launch a series of reconstruction and industrial projects to avoid massive unemployment. He appealed to the Arab oil nations and the West for urgent financial aid.
