Quake death count expected to top 4,000

MURADIYE, Turkey (AP) — Officials predicted on Friday that the death toll would pass 4,000 in earthquake-devastated eastern Turkey as rescue workers continued battling now and ruined roads to reach isolated villages. Officials said 3,500 bodies had been recovered.

Bodies were laid out on rubblestrewn streets and courtyards of mosques. Grief-stricken survivors tried to administer Moslem last rites, but there were not enough of the white

The bodies of 20 women were lined up in one area, covered with hay. Someone had put colorful Turkish quilts over a dead mother and her three dead children nearby.

Foreign relief supplies began to arrive, meanwhile, and most sur-vivors were finally getting shelter, plankets and food after two freezing

Help did not reach the heaviest-hit town of Caldiran, about 10 miles north of here, until Friday, two days after the quake. Only two buildings were still standing in the town. Residents said many persons who might have been saved had died.

"We heard the moans and cries of our relatives from under the rubble all night Wednesday," said Mehmet Zeki. "I dug out with my hands the bodies of my three children. My wife and mother remain buried. Perhaps if I had had a pick and shovel I could have saved them.

"Only 450 survived out a population of 3,000," one Caldiran resident said.

steel is strong and expected to get stronger. It is in heavy steel products where demand is weak, they said.

A.G. Scott, a vice-president of Wheeling-Pittsburgh said the demand for sheet steel is strong enough to justify the price boost. "The flat-rolled market during the past three months has been stronger than most other steel markets. The order volume in flat rolled products is approaching the record levels of late 1973 and 1974," Scott said.

Those were boom years for the industry when steel, along with many other basic commodities, was in short supply.

William Lilley III, acting director of the wage-price council, said the current market conditions are more like those which prevailed in August, when major steel companies, in-cluding U.S. Steel, tried to raise crease stick.

The council has no authority to roll back or trim any wage or price increase. It has begun a stury of the steel price rises for President Ford and has requested production, cost, price and profit data from all companies announcing price increrases. There was no comment from President-elect Jimmy Carter.

Most analysts agree that steel companies have faced cost increases which far exceed price increases on sheet steel products. Because demand has been so low, the companies have not been able to raise prices enough to cover those costs.

Producers plut through a 6 per cent rise in sheet steel prices in mid-June and tried, but failed two months later, to raise sheet prices another 4.5 per cent, effective Oct. 1.

Hot and cold rolled sheet and strip steel is the industry's most important product. It is used mainly in making automobiles, trucks, and home appliances like refrigerators and stoves.

As a result, increases in the price of these steels are felt more quickly by consumers than increases on most other steel products such as the kind used in building construction.

The average 4,000-pound car contains more than a ton of steel, although automakers are reducing the size of their cars as well as the amount of steel in them to lower the weight of the automobile and increase

The steel makers did not release new price lists Friday, but said that hot-rolled sheets (those squeezed while the metal is hot) will go up $16 a ton while cold-rolled, galvanized

NEW YORK (AP) — Supplies of bottled gas, used for heating by 13 million homeowners and farmers who are beyond the reach of natural gas mains, are increasing and should be ample for years to come.

Bottled gas users can also expect prices to hold steady for now, but the long-range forecast for prices is the layoffs in recent weeks, including a 10-day layoff of 2,800 workers last Wednesday at Bethlehem's Sparrow's same as for any fuel -- up.

For many buyers who need a clean burning fuel but can't get natural gas, however, there are no suitable alternatives at any price.

"Throughout the country, they're mostly in rural areas beyond gas mains," said John Hartzell of the National LP-Gas Association, an industry group. "There isn't a gas main running to every house."

More than half the farms in the country use propane, the association estimates. It is carried on recreational vehicles for cooking and heating. But residential and commercial users, including restaurants, bakeries, laundromats and small factories, constitute the largest category of buyers.

Production of bottled gas, also called propane or liquefied petroleum gas, is expanding swiftly abroad, industry spokesmen say.

Supplemented by additional production in Alaska and from offshore fields, this new and more costly foreign supply will be needed to offset declining output from traditional domestic areas.

Most propane produced in this country is extracted from natural gas. As natural gas production declined over the past few years, so did propane output — from a peak of 19.6 billion gallons in 1973 to a projected 17.6 billion gallons this

The difference is made up by imports, which are expected to reach 2.3 billion gallons this year. These will come from the estimated 7.6 billion gallons available on the world

The amount available for importing by the United States is expected to grow to 10.4 billion gallons by 1979, to 20.3 billion gallons by 1980 and to 27.2 billion by 1985, concluded a recent study by Purvin & Gurtz Inc., a

Houston-based consulting firm. The key reason for the growth is that oil producing nations — par-ticularly those in the Middle East — are now building the refining and processing facilities they need to produce propane. They once burned most of it off. storage around the country, a record

With the gap between supply and demand in the United States widening, the Federal Energy Administration has estimated that imports, which accounted for less than 7 per cent of U.S. needs two years ago, will provide more than 40 per cent in 1985

Industry spokesmen stress that supply will be adequate for the demands of traditional propane users. But a growing number of industrial companies using natural gas have been considering a switch to propane because of natural gas curtailments.

"A lot depends on the weather," Hartzell said. "If the winter is more severe than normal, this will increase the likelihood of natural gas curtailments. These companies who need a clear-burning fuel will likely try to obtain propane.

"But propane can't fill the gap of natural gas shortages. There just isn't

As this winter season opens, more than 4 billion gallons of propane are in This situation developed after several warmer-than-normal winters, strong domestic production and conservation efforts by commercial users, industry spokesmen say.

Sam Segnar of Omaha, Neb. president of Northern Natural Gas Co., says the conservation efforts began to show up when the price passed through the 35 cents-pergallon range.

The price varies over the country, but residential customers paid about 16 to 18 cents a gallon in 1973 and pay about 38 to 39 cents a gallon now. In some markets, prices may range as high as 45 cents a gallon.

Because of slack demand, these price levels are less than permitted by federal price control formulas, which vary from seller to seller.

But Segnar says there are signs that consumption has started back up. If that continues, prices would tend to

Ol' Jack Merritt: 'one heck of a guy'

He ambles up and down the courthouse corridors as if he were more used to riding a saddled horse day in and day out rather than keeping the peace for a living. And, of course, he has done both and much more in his 72 years. "Oh, I've done a little of everything. except bootleg and preach. I never tried to bootleg, and I never tried to preach." he says. What he has done mostly, outside of farming and ranching, is toting a pistol, wearing a badge, and keeping folks — including himself — honest. His name is Jack Merritt, and his title in constable, "the" Midland County constable. He's an old, reliable, dependable, honest-to-goodness hand who keeps a close watch on himself . . . and others. Here's what the lawman, speaking like a cowboy philosopher, says:

"There's three things that always follow a pistol toter: hip-pocket money and women and a drink of

"And they all three will ruin you, he says. "They all follow the pistol." Merritt is not a ruined man. But, then again, he's not a saint either; there's a little bit of the devil in him. He'll tell you that.

He has done his share of dodging to avoid making trouble and has met trouble straight on for better peace

He has yet to fire his pistol, a silvery .44-caliber six-shooter, in the 'line of duty." And that's not to say that his life or well-being has never been in jeopardy.

He had rather not knock heads with blackjacks or shoot up holes in people with firearms.

However, it's exactly like he said in talking about a fellow lawman who was shot to death in an otherwise routine investigation: "You don't get careless but one time."

Merritt has had plenty of time to be cautious, to be wary, to be a little bit withholding at times.

He got into law enforcement back in 1938, when he was a deputy to Constable Raleigh Lee. Merritt calls him "Big Lee." (He stood at about 6-foot-6 and weighed in at about 240; Merritt's a 6-foot'er.)

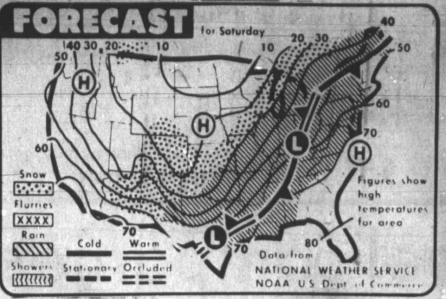

"(Big Lee) . . . had a handlebar moustache," Merritt recalls. " . . . He looked mean; he lived up to it."

Before he started toting a gun for a living, Merritt farmed and ranched. (He and his spouse Hattie moseyed on up to Midland from Snyder in a horse-drawn covered wagon about 50 years

New Mexico ponders

Mexico, the fourth largest producer of natural gas in the nation, may be one of the first producing states to consider how to help its citizens meet rising gas bills.

wellhead gas controls

Consumers in the nation's four major natural gas producers -Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and New Mexico - reportedly are paying more for their own gas than consumers in other states.

Interstate prices are controlled by the Federal Power Commission, and importing states can pay less than customers in the exporting areas.

Gov. Jerry Apodaca has proposed increasing welfare payments to low income families to lessen the impact of gas price increases.

Cameras, rings reported taken

Thieves knocked a hole in the east side door of Trade Arama, 801 E. Front St., sometime between 10 p.m. Thursday and 8 a.m. Friday to remove $174 worth of goods.

Items reported missing to Midland police included two cameras, one cassette recorder, 10 wristwatch bands and 10 women's rings. Both the main store and an adjacent store had been prowled through,

police said. WINDOWS BROKEN

A total of 18 window pane glasses were reported broken by rocks and sticks sometime between 8 p.m. Wednesday and 9 a.m. Thursday at the First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave.

The panes, ranging in size from 16 and one-half feet square to 34 inches by 78 inches, were estimated to be worth about $236. PERSONS TREATED Three Midland residents were treated and released from Midland

Memorial Hospital this morning after a two-car accident at 9:41 a.m. at the intersection of Front Avenue and Colorado Street. Treated for minor cuts and bruises were Anthony Young Hubbard, Rosie Lee Hubbard and Arthur Ray Hubbard, all of 1209 E. Cuthbert St. Their car was in collision with one driven by Luis Alonso Enriquez, of 511 E.

Atty. Gen. Tony Anaya recom-mended state control of wellhead natural gas prices to the Legislative Energy Committee in September. He said control was "the only viable alternative that I could come up

He said intrastate prices should be "approximately the same" as those under the control of the FPC. But he said he supports control of intrastate prices only as long as interstate prices are regulated.

In Texas and Louisiana, intrastate gas prices are about $2 per thousand cubic feet at the wellhead, and consumers in those states pay about $2.30 or more, officials said.

Mariano Hinojosa of the Louisiana Department of Conservation said state officials are on record as favoring deregulation of natural gas prices and plan to continue a policy of allowing a free intrastate system on natural gas prices.

Billy Thompson of the Texas Railroad Commission, which oversees natural gas operations in Texas, said some legislators "have indicated they plan to introduce 'relief to the consumer legislation."

But he said such proposals, which go beyond natural gas, are not-part of a wide-scale effort in the Texas

In Oklahoma, the wellhead price is about $1.70, said Earl Hamilton of the public utilities division of the Oklahoma Corporation Commission.

New Mexicans pay a base rate of $1.80 per thousand cubic feet, plus an 80-cent cost of gas adjustment per thousand cubic feet.

MCCC to hear Tom Craddick

State Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland will speak to the Midland Council of Concerned Citizens at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Commercial Bank and Trust Co.

Craddick will speak on upcoming legislation and what the state legislature can do in regard to busing, Joan Southerland, publicity chairman of the group, said.

six years. Under Texas law a man sentenced to life in prison may become eligible for parole in 12 to 15 years depending on time earned for good behavior.

"His record with us is good," said A. P. Manning, director of the Treatment Division, which also runs the educational extension program.

Matthews works an average of 40 hours a week in the TDC as an X-Ray technician, a skill he also acquired while in prison, and attends classes at night. Before going for his B.A. degree he had obtained an Associate of Arts degree from Lee Junior College at Baytown, also while in

Matthews is a quiet, softspoken man who declines to discuss the murder conviction that landed him in prison or any of his past saying only his mother lives somewhere in Pennsylvania.

He is the second man to graduate from the four-year college program started by TDC two years ago. Manning said there are about 100

Owners, campesinos reach temporary truce in Mexico land crisis

By VINCENTE MORALES CULIACAN, Mexico (AP) — Landowners and leaders of poor farm workers demanding land agreed Friday to a temporary truce that would allow for a peaceful change of government in Mexico, the Sinaloa state governor said.

Gov. Alfonso Calderon said both sides had agreed to accept a proposal from the landowners calling for about 32,000 acres of farm land in the northwestern Mexico state to be redistributed now, with discussions on the redistribution of more land suspended until after the presidential inauguration Wednesday.

The peasants had threatened to invade a half million acres.

Some of the 2,500 peasants gathered in front of the governor's office Friday and said they would not accept the truce because they had been fooled by government and landowner agreements before.

"This 32,000 acres is not enough to solve the problem but we accept the recommendation so that calm might return to the country," the governor

The landowners had offered to give the same acres to the farmers, called "campesinos," last June but the offer was refused by both the government and the campesinos.

The truce, Calderon said, was worked out by outgoing President Luis Echeverria in meetings with representatives of the landowners ad campesinos. Luis Gambino, leader of one peasant group, said some members of his organization had been waiting 20 years for land redistribution.

'We are pressing the issue now because we see that President Echeverria intends to again make distribution a reality in Mexico," he Carlos Castro, president of the Confederation of Farmers' Organizations in Sinaloa, said he thinks Echeverria's truce is good. "But we will keep our guard up because they could still give us a low blow," he said. The truce means the government will suspend its legal moves to expropriate more than 500,000 acres in Mexico's richest vegetable producing area until after the inauguration of

Jose Lopez Portillo, the governor said. Mexico's constitution makes it illegal for one person to own more than 250 acres. The government claims most of the Sinaloa farm land is held owners claim they hold the land legally even though various 250 acre parcels might be in the hands of one family. A week ago Echeverria ordered the expropriation of 243,000 acres in neighboring Sonora, touching off a raging debate between businessmen and the government and a nationwide business strike. Politicians, peasants and labor leaders demanded a federal investigation of the head of the nation's largest employers' organization. They blamed him for rumors and lack of confidence they say caused Mexico's economic problems.

Andres Marcelo Sada, president of he National Confederation of Employers (COPARMEX) said he would not answer the accusations made against him in congress.

"I hope that some day we will have the maturity to conduct our arguments reasonably and without personal attacks," he said.

The campaign against Sada, a banker from a wealthy Monterrey family, appeared to be government orchestrated.

The attorney general's office made no response to the congressional demands

"This is an absurd manuever by politicians," said the Businessmen's Coordinating Council (CCE). "It is inconceivable to think that one man could be responsible. This is an attempt by some politicians to cause a conflict between the government and businessmen."

Fidel Velazquez, president of the Confederation of Mexican Workers, called the organization Sada represents "the enemy of the working man" but said he had no proof Sada could be blamed for the rumors, lack of confidence and problems that have rocked Mexico since Sept. 1.

In Culiacan, capital of the state of Sinaloa in Northwest Mexico, Alfonso Garzon Santibanez said his campesino group would lead an inva-sion of private lands by midmorning Saturday if the Agrarian Reform Ministry does not expropriate the

In Ciudad Obregon, Sonora, where the government a week ago expropriated 243,100 acres of prime ranch and farm land, farm machinery line the main street as a protest against the expropriation.

The machinery was decorated with black mourning crepe and a sign saying, "This is a symbol of our mute sadness for the way in which the constitution has been violated and our freedom limited."

Many of those calling for the trial or investigation of Sada were members of the ruling In-stitutional Revolutionary Party (PRI). They were joined by some opposition congressmen who have voted, with the PRI on other issues.

Landowners in Sinaloa have been granted an injunction by a federal judge that would legally keep the government from taking any action against their lands without due process. But the landowners in Sonora had a similar injunction when Echeverria expropriated their lands by decree.

Business groups claim that in the area expropriated last week there are more than 40 businesses, including a soft drink bottling plant, a brewery and others whose ownership is now in doubt.

Jose Antonio Gandara of the Ciudad Obregon Chamber of Commerce said businessmen there were thinking of not paying taxes as a protest against the land grab. Business and factories in 41 cities in 11 states shutdown briefly Wednesday and an estimated 28,000 owners of small farms in Sonora and Sinaloa have vowed not to work the land, unless Echeverria backs down.

Employers' organizations, civic groups and individuals published newspaper advertisements attacking the govern-ment for expropriating the land and "the supposed representatives of the people who with enormous demagoguery and without any foundation" attack Sada and others.

"These bad Mexicans, short on dignity, criticize those who produce but produce nothing themselves, attack the wealth as long as it is not their own and unconditionally obey the orders they receive...to get fa-vors and benefits from their current bosses," said an adver-tisement published by businessmen's groups in 30 cities.

Reports from the northwest said at least 60 groups of campesinos were camped on the edge of farm lands in Guasave, El Fuerte, El Carrizo, Los Mochis, Eschuinapa, Cosola, Mazatlan, Elota and Culiacan.

Victor Manuel Barrantes, manager of the Federation of Owners of Small Holdings in Sinaloa state said there are about 512,000 acres owned by members of the federation.

Expropriation of the land would deprive 220,000 farm workers of employment, he said.

'The authorities should tell the campesinos once and for all if there is any land for them. For a long time the agrarian authorities have been avoiding reality and repeatedly promised land to campesinos all over the country knowing at the time there is said. The newspaper Excelsior reported from near Guaymas, in Sonora, that a 2,700 acre farm owned by American Garry Shipper had been invaded.

In Congress, Rep. Maximiliano Silerio said that what wealthy farmers and businessmen do not understand is that Echeverria had to pay attention to campesino demands.

Otherwise, their heads, would now be hanging from the tallest tree in Nuevo Leon state or from a mesquite bush on the plains of southern

Francisco Ortiz Mendoza, a representative from the Popular Socialist party, said Sada and other business leaders are "simple instruments" in a plan of the United States government to destabilize Mexico like Chile was destabilized before the overthow of Marxist President Salvador Allende.

Jorge Sanchez Mejorada, president of the Chamber of Industries, said accusations against Sada "are ridiculous and reveal the lack of arguments they have to answer his presentation of the facts."

A tug pushes a barge carrying kerosene, diesel oil and gasoline through a narrow channel on Tangier Island, Va. The island residents have been unable to receive fuel because tankers have had difficulty navigating the shallow channels.

Chesapeake island residents face long winter

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Residents of two isolated Chesapeake Bay islands have received emergency shipments of heating oil and other fuels, but they still face a long and possibly cold winter.

It will be February of next year before dredging begins to deepen the channel leading to one of the islands and an environmental debate continues on dredging the channel to the other island.

Both of the islands - Tangier with a population of 900 and Smith with 650 residents - depend on shipping to bring in fuel and they are reachable only through what at present are shallow, twisting channels.

The problem for the people of the islands began last month when the skipper of a tanker that made regular fuel deliveries refused to make the run because he feared his ship would run aground.

Smith Island won a reprieve from an impending fuel shortage Thursday when Jack Tillett of Chesapeake piloted his 63-foot tanker through water only six feet deep with a Thanksgiving present of 30,000 gallons of kerosene and diesel oil.

Tillett's delivery assured Smith Island's resident of a two-week supply of fuel oil. "We're sure glad Tillett got here," said Wilroy Bradshaw, the island's only fuel distributor. "I don't know if we could have made it through the weekend."

The crisis for the 900 people on Tangier, 10 miles to the south, had been eased last Sunday when two Hampton tugboatmen — James Price and William George — pulled a 135-foot barge to the island with 118,000 gallons of oil, gasoline and kerosene

The fuel was needed not only to keep the islanders warm, but also to power their electric generating plants and the fishing boats with which they make their livings.

Work on the Smith Island channel is scheduled to begin in February, but a dispute on where the dredged-up silt from the Tangier Island channel should be dumped has delayed final decision on dredging that channel.

MIAMI (AP) — Some college students watching the television version of the novel "Roots" won't ust be seeking entertainment. They will be getting three college credits for it, believed to be a first for a primetime, commercial network TV program.
"Roots" traces a black American family from 18th century Africa to the resent. An instant best seller, the novel by Alex Haley has been adapted into a television special to be shown by the American Broadcasting Co. on eight consecutive nights starting Jan. 23. There are to be four two-hour programs and four one-hour programs, all starting at 9 p.m. EST or 10 p.m. EST. The course using the ABC program as source material has been prepared at Miami-Dade Community College, the same school that participated in the production of a course used by college students who watched "Ine Ascent of Man" on public television students who watched "The students took it, most of them for credit, said John Dannelly, director of auxiliary services at Miami-Dade. On the basis of inquiries to those schools and others. Dannelly said Friday that he expects at least as many schools to offer "Roots" for credit. Sixty-three schools have signed up so far, he said.

"The course is designed as a history course," he said. "Basically, it takes the novel as a departure point and looks at history as seen through the perspective of black Americans." Instructional, administrative and promotional material will be sent to participating colleges at no cost, Dannelly said, but in most cases students would have to buy the novel, a student guide and an anthology to meet course requirements.

The anthology consists of excerpts from books and magazines that "give students more insight in the academic background,"Dannelly added. "This is the actual academic content of the

With no tax hikes

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr., at a press conference held earlier this week, discussed the reasoning behind the two bond issues on which Midlanders will vote in a special election scheduled for Dec. 14.

The mayor also explained in clear and easily understandable terms the reasons why neither bond issue, if approved, is expected to result in a tax hike.

The discussion and explanation certainly were most timely and exceptionally well presented as public information. Many citizens. now should have a much clearer understanding of the bond issues and in a much better position to make up their minds in the matters.

The bond issues, as proposed, have to do with much needed improvements at Midland Regional Air Terminal and construction of a downtown exhibition center.

The mayor explained that modernization at Air Terminal can be accomplished without a tax increase because, first, the airlines serving Midland Air Terminal have agreed in principle to increase substantially payment for use of space in the terminal building.

Second, bonds voted for runway improvements have left a $1.2 million surplus, due primarily to a change in Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) funding from 75 per cent to 90 per cent participation.

Mayor Angelo explained further that when the runway bonds were approved, the city council pledged to voters that surplus funds would not be used for other purposes without citizen input first.

He said that if citizens vote "yes" on the upcoming bond issue proposal, they will permit the surplus funds to be used for terminal area expansion.

The major improvements as proposed include additional parking areas, expanded ticket counter areas, remodeling of the terminal building, passenger jetways to airplanes and improved gateways for planes.

Col. Wilson Banks, the city's aviation director, said that all of the needed improvements could be completed within two years if voters approve the bond proposal.

Concerning the exhibition center downtown, Mayor Angelo termed it a "highly desirable facility for our city." He said also that its construction would contribute to a "better way of life for Midland residents."

This particular bond proposal, like the airport proposal, is not expected to result in a tax increase, according to the mayor

He explained that the city is collecting a three per cent tax from all hotels and motels which can be used only for promotion of tourism and related activities. The revenue generated from this particular tax can and will be used to fund the project, if it is approved by the voters.

Another reason for no anticipated tax hike is that private citizens have contributed more than $200,000 to a foundation which has purchased property in the downtown area. Some of that property will be made available to the city at no cost for this project, with the remainder given to the city for park and parking purposes.

This is a tremendous thing in itself, the generous contributions from interested Midlanders for the exhibition center and park projects. The overall project, incidentally, has been planned and developed to this point by private citizens. This speaks well for the Tall City and its citizens who stand tall in financial support and cooperation in community betterment.

Yet another reason for no tax increase, as cited by the mayor, is the approval by the city council of the use of revenue sharing funds to purchase downtown property which could be used for the exhibition center.

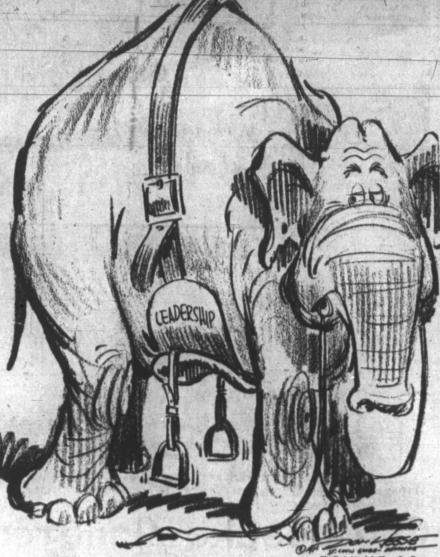

The center, incidentally, would be built in the block bordered by Texas and Wall streets and by Main and Loraine streets. Other improvements in the area will include a downtown park and beautified parking areas. These are not included in the bond proposals, but will be constructed by using other funds.

These are great and exciting projects which, hopefully, city voters will approve by substantial margins in the Dec. 14 election.

WASHINGTON MERRY—GO—ROUND

'Suggestion box' is activated

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON - A dangerous estrangement has grown up between the citizenry and their government. A majority now believe that our institutions do not hear us, do not serve us and do not want to serve us.

So that the voice of the individual might be heard again in Washington, we established a National Suggestion Box six months ago. Its purpose is to receive your ideas for the solution of national problems and the righting of

The response was greater than we had anticipated. More than 15,000 Americans, with good ideas and valuable perspectives, sent in their suggestions. There were many excellent proposals - far more than our staff could handle.

We have remained silent about the National Suggestion Box, therefore, until we could get better organized Now we have a dozen specialists, processing the suggestions and contacting government agencies, under the auspices of the Copernicus Society of America. One of the nations' most efficient businessmen, Edward Piszek, has taken over the chairmanship of the National Suggestion Box.

It is now ready to handle regular suggestions from everyday citizens. From time to time, we will publicize ideas of special merit and urge their adoption. We cannot demand that your proposals be accepted; we can merely urge that they be considered. Here are a few of them:

SUGGESTION: We heard from several elderly people who need assistance to get around. The government will help take care of them if they move into a nursing home. But they would prefer to live at home with their loved ones, who also want them at home.

for example, urged: "in preference to placing our elderly in nursing homes or homes for the aged, a program should be established ... where a family would be subsidized for maintaining a family member in an approved home-like atmosphere."

RESPONSE: Most federal programs prohibit home care for the elderly. We suspect the nursing home lobby may be behind this policy. Yet at the aged-related agencies, most officials agreed that the elderly would be better off in a home environment.

The only argument they raised proposal was that families would keep the subsidy for themselves rather than spend it on the elderly family member. In our view, nursing homes are more likely to rip off the government than are the patient's own relatives.

A home care program in Texas. meanwhile, has been highly successful

SUGGESTION: Ben Owen of Columbus, Miss., asked why unleaded gasoline should cost more than regular fuel, which is not leaded and therefore, should be cheaper to produce. Unleaded gasoline prices, he suggested, are a "rip-off."

RESPONSE: Unleaded gasoline prices, it's true, have skyrocketed above normal levels. Over the summer months, unleaded gasoline prices rose 2.5 cents per gallon.

The Federal Energy Administration has ruled that the price for unleaded gasoline should be no more than one cent per gallon higher than the price for regular gasoline.

The FEA contends that unleaded gasoline does cost more to produce. Therefore, the one cent differential was allowed.

SUGGESTION: V. Lloyd Allen of Warten, Minn., charged that he had been discriminated against because he is physically handicapped. "I became disabled and applied for Mrs. Roma Lowe of Nyack, N.Y., Social Security disability benefits."

he wrote. "I was denied at every

Then he learned of a job opening at his local Social Security office and he applied for the position. Yet the very people who had refused him disability benefits turned him down on the grounds that he was disabled.

RESPONSE: The employment rights of the handicapped are protected primarily by the Vocational Rehabilitation Act, which was passed in 1973. The law is woefully inadequate, however, in several important ways.

On the federal level, agencies are required to submit 'affirmative action" plans, which commit then to hire and promote the handicapped. But the law lacks any enforcement provisions. The federal agencies, therefore, can violate their own affirmative action plans as often as they wish without fear of reprisal. In private commerce, the law can be invoked only against businesses that hold federal contracts in excess of $2,500. The contracts can be withdrawn if a business discriminates against the handicapped. Since the law was written, 650 complaints have been filed, and twothirds of the cases have been resolved in favor of the handicapped persons Yet none of the guilty firms lost their government contracts.

The Senate Subcommittee on the Handicapped has assured the National Suggestion Box that employment of the handicapped will be an issue in the next session of Congress.

Many Americans, meanwhile, feel they have no place to go with their ideas, for the government has a special talent for resisting outside suggestions and giving people the runaround. So if you have an idea, send it to the National Suggestion Box, Box 2009, Washington, D.C. 20013

Treasury and $3.2 million from each party's national committee.

Compare the $25 million to the $40 million-plus that George McGovern spent and the $60 million-plus that President Nixon spent in 1972. Think of the inflation of the last four years.

Accepting the federal money prohibited a candidate from letting local supporters raise and spend local money in his behalf. And the federal finance laws are so complex that Mr. Carter had to spend $500,000 and President Ford $600,000 of the precious allowance just for running a budgeting and accounting Even Common Cause, which lobbied so diligently in the post-Watergate years for this new "clean campaign" financing, now admits there are serious deficiencies.

As for the obstacle course of primary elections, the winners and the losers agree the system needs changing. More states have gotten into the act, presenting 30 primaries to the runners this year.

Mr. Carter entered them all and won 21. He says without reservation that he would not be the president-elect if he hadn't followed that course. But he wouldn't want to do it again. Rep. Morris Udall, the Arizona

Democrat who aspired to the presidency and did better than anyone thought he would in the primaries, plans to introduce a bill in January that would at least begin to make sense of the six-month endurance test.

Udall and others have said that if states want to hold primaries, they should pick from a list of four dates -March 15, April 15, May 15 and

He says he likes the good folk of New Hampshire, but he suspects they wield too much power with their quaint first-in-the-nation primary that is magnified so much by the

Others have suggested that states holding primaries be clustered geographically around the same dates, which would permit candidates to focus their campaigning in one part of the nation at a time.

The third problem raised by this and other elections is the electoral college system's potential for permitting a candidate to win the popular vote but lose the election.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., like Udall one who had hopes of getting the nomination, long has railed against the electoral college's ability to thwart popular will.

This year, Bayh notes, Mr. Ford could have won 270 electoral votes to 268 for Carter, had 2,677 voters in Ohio and 3,687 in Hawaii switched from Mr. Carter to Mr. Ford. And Mr. Carter still would have had more popular

In short, Bayh and others think direct popular voting should be the

He'll be introducing legislation to abolish the electoral college.

Meanwhile, Mondale has a right to grin at his good fortune.

Carters plan to enroll Amy in public school in D.C.

WASHINGTON - It looks as though Amy Carter will be enrolled in the fourth grade at Stevens elementary public school in the District of Columbia, sixty percent of whose pupils are black children.

If Amy is so enrolled, her father, President-elect Jimmy Carter, will have kept an important campaign pledge and will also cause a major re-evaluation of the schoolintegration-busing question, and maybe a ruckus besides. Mrs. Rosalynn Carter visited the

Stevens school, was greeted by the principal, saw Amy's picture posted on the bulletin board (the pupils are eager to have her) and told the fourth-grade-teacher that she would bring Amy in for a visit soon. Now Carter said repeatedly in the campaign that he would enroll Amy in a D.C. public school, and he cut loose at the hypocrites who keep their children out of integrated public schools, calling them " a political and economic elite who have shaped decisions and never have to account for mistakes nor to suffer."

"When the public schools are inferior or torn by strife," Carter declared, using the arguments if not the rhetoric of Gov. George Wallace, "their children go to exclusive private

Clearly, President-elect Carter's credibility is on the line on school plans for Amy, and the printed speculation here that the Carters made discreet inquiry about putting

Nick Thimmesch

Amy in a private school have been denied by Mrs. Carter herself.

Carter could keep his pledge even though Amy isn't enrolled at Stevens if the D.C. board of education decides there is legitimate reason for her to attend another D.C. public school. Permission to transfer might be based on, say, security requirements for a President's daughter.

For 22 years now, the same Washington liberals in government who derided the south and workingclass Northern people on the schoolintegration-busing question have either enrolled their childrn in private schools or fled to the virtually allwhite suburbs.

Sen, Adlai Stevenson III (R-III.) epitomized these hypocritical folk when he once stated on "Meet the Press" that he was strong for school integration and wanted to put his children in D.C. public schools, but "regrettably the ones available to us are not very good, and I just don't want to sacrifice the education of my

But Stevenson (and he is only one of many) and the others who got by on this rationale won't have that excuse to lean on any more. If the President of the United States can send his daughter to a D.C. public school, why can't his liberal supporters in the Congress, in the bureaucracy, in the press, yea, even in the Vice President's chair do likewise? Sen. Walter Mondale, Vice President-elect, lives in D.C., and all three of his children attended a private school here. One has graduated, and two are still in that private school. To be fair to Mondale e sent one son to a D.C. junior high school for a short time and, according to Mondale, the boy found it too rough and tumble, so Mondale pulled him

Will Mondale now follow his President's lead and transfer his two school-age children to D.C. public schools?

Mondale is at least thoughtful on the difficult question. He once told me: "To permit discrimination is constitutionally intolerable. And to permit massive busing is so troublesome. A President sympathetic to this dilemma could do something about it."

He went on to explain to me, back in late 1975, that a Democratic President could lean on integrationists, probusers and Democratic mayors to make deals and resolve the problem without the acrimony and chaos which has plagued many cities in re-

To name the liberals who have avoided sending their children to D.C. public schools is to compile a Who's Who In Washington. For example, the wife of Rep. Donald Fraser (D-Minn.) was quoted as saying she transferred her daughter from a public to a private school here because, "Your children get educated only once."The Fraser child was quoted as saying that the few blacks in her private school were "much nicer" than the far larger number in her public

A fair number of prominent blacks here also tuck their young in proper private schools, including journalist Carl Rowan, who becomes vehement on the integration question.

Carter lived among blacks all his life, and his children went to school with them. Now, if Amy is enrolled in a D.C. public school and her father dutifully takes interest in how this school system operates, he might learn that:

It has gone through superintendents faster than the Nixon administration went through attorneys general during Watergate; while per-pupil expenditures are relatively high, educational quality is punk and the system is badly mismanaged; an inverse racism (against whites) exists among too many of its black teachers and of-

for example, urged: "In preference to placing our elderly in nursing homes or homes for the aged, a program should be established ... where a family would be subsidized for maintaining a family member in an approved home-like atmosphere." RESPONSE: Most federal programs prohibit home care for the elderly. We suspect the nursing home lobby may be behind this policy. Yet at the aged-related agencies, most officials agreed that the elderly would be better off in a home environment.

The only argument they raised against the proposal was that some families would keep the subsidy for themselves rather than spend it on the elderly family member. In our view, nursing homes are more likely to rip off the government than are the patient's own relatives.

A home care program in Texas, meanwhile, has been highly suc-

SUGGESTION: Ben Owen of Columbus, Miss., asked why unleaded gasoline should cost more than regular fuel, which is not leaded and therefore, should be cheaper to produce. Unleaded gasoline prices, he suggested, are a "rip-off."

RESPONSE: Unleaded gasoline prices, it's true, have skyrocketed above normal levels. Over the summer months, unleaded gasoline prices rose 2.5 cents per gallon.

The Federal Energy Administration has ruled that the price for unleaded gasoline should be no more than one cent per gallon higher than the price for regular gasoline. The FEA contends that unleaded gasoline does cost more to produce. Therefore, the one cent differential was allowed.

Then he learned of a job opening at his local Social Security office and he applied for the position. Yet the very people who had refused him disability benefits turned him down on the grounds that he was disabled.

RESPONSE: The employment rights of the handicapped are rotected primarily by the Vocational Rehabilitation Act, which was passed in 1973. The law is woefully inadequate, however, in several important ways.

On the federal level, government agencies are required to submit "affirmative action" plans, which commit then to hire and promote the handicapped. But the law lacks any enforcement provisions. The federal agencies, therefore, can violate their own affirmative action plans as often as they wish without fear of reprisal.

In private commerce, the law can be invoked only against businesses that hold federal contracts in excess of $2,500. The contracts can be withdrawn if a business discriminates against the handicapped

Since the law was written, 650 complaints have been filed, and twothirds of the cases have been resolved in favor of the handicapped persons. Yet none of the guilty firms lost their government contracts.

The Senate Subcommittee on the Handicapped has assured the National Suggestion Box that employment of the handicapped will be an issue in the next session of

Accepting the federal money prohibited a candidate from letting local supporters raise and spend local money in his behalf. And the federal finance laws are so

complex that Mr. Carter had to spend $500,000 and President Ford $600,000 of the precious allowance just for running a budgeting and accounting Even Common Cause, which lobbied so diligently in the post-Watergate years for this new "clean campaign" financing, now admits there are serious deficiencies. As for the obstacle course of primary elections, the winners and the losers agree the system needs changing. More states have gotten into the act, presenting 30 primaries to the runners this year.

Mr. Carter entered them all and won 21.

He says without reservation that he would not be the president-elect if he hadn't followed that course. But he wouldn't want to do it again.

Rep. Morris Udall, the Democrat who aspired to the presidency and did better than anyone thought he would in the primaries, plans to introduce a bill in January that would at least begin to make sense of the six-month endurance test.

Udall and others have said that if states want to hold primaries, they should pick from a list of four dates — March 15, April 15, May 15 and sometime in June.

He says he likes the good folk of New Hampshire, but he suspects they wield too much power with their quaint first-in-the-nation primary that is magnified so much by the

Others have suggested that states holding primaries be clustered geographically around the same dates, which would permit candidates to focus their campaigning in one part of the nation at a time.

The third problem raised by this and other elections is the electoral college system's potential for permitting a candidate to win the popular

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., like Udall one who had hopes of getting the nomination, long has railed against the electoral college's ability to thwart popular will.

principal, saw Amy's picture posted on the bulletin board (the pupils are eager to have her) and told the fourth-grade teacher that she would bring Amy in for a visit soon. Now Carter said repeatedly in the campaign that he would enroll Amy in a D.C. public school, and he cut loose at the hypocrites who keep their children out of integrated public schools, calling them " a political and economic elite who have shaped decisions and never have to account for mistakes nor to suffer."

"When the public schools are inferior or torn by strife," Carter declared, using the arguments if not the rhetoric of Gov. George Wallace, 'their children go to exclusive private schools."

Clearly, President-elect Carter' credibility is on the line on school plans for Amy, and the printed speculation here that the Carters made discreet inquiry about putting

Nick Thimmesch

Amy in a private school have been denied by Mrs. Carter herself.

Carter could keep his pledge even though Amy isn't enrolled at Stevens if the D.C. board of education decides there is legitimate reason for her to attend another D.C. public school, Permission to transfer might be based on, say, security requirements for a President's daughter.

For 22 years now, the same Washington liberals in government who derided the south and workingclass Northern people on the school integration-busing question have either enrolled their childrn in private schools or fled to the virtually allwhite suburbs.

Sen. Adlai Stevenson III (R-III.) epitomized these hypocritical folk when he once stated on "Meet the Press" that he was strong for school integration and wanted to put his children in D.C. public schools, but "regrettably the ones available to us are not very good, and I just don't want to sacrifice the education of my

can send his daughter to a D.C. public school, why can't his liberal supporters in the Congress, in the bureaucracy, in the press, yea, even in the Vice President's chair do likewise? Sen. Walter Mondale, Vice President-elect, lives in D.C., and all three of his children attended a private school here. One has graduated, and two are still in that private school. To be fair to Mondale, he sent one son to a D.C. junior high school for a short time and, according to Mondale, the boy found it too rough and tumble, so Mondale pulled him

Will Mondale now follow his Presi dent's lead and transfer his two school-age children to D.C. public

late 1975, that a Democratic President could lean on integrationists, pro-busers and Democratic mayors to make deals and resolve the problem without the acrimony and chaos which has plagued many cities in recent years

He went on to explain to me, back in

To name the liberals who have avoided sending their children to D.C. public schools is to compile a Who's Who In Washington. For example, the wife of Rep. Donald Fraser (D-Minn.) was quoted as saying she transferred her daughter from a public to a private school here because, "Your children get educated only once."The Fraser child was quoted as saying that the few blacks in her private school were "much nicer" than the far larger number in her public

A fair number of prominent blacks here also tuck their young in proper private schools, including journalist Carl Rowan, who becomes vehement on the integration question.

Carter lived among blacks all his life, and his children went to school with them. Now, if Amy is enrolled in a D.C. public school and her father dutifully takes interest in how this school system operates, he might learn that:

It has gone through superintendents faster than the Nixon administration went through attorneys general during Watergate; while per-pupil expenditures are relatively high, educational quality is punk and the system is badly mismanaged; an inverse racism (against whites) exists among too many of its black teachers and of-

Skull may provide clues to life of first 'man' to walk erect

DALLAS (AP) — A well-preserved and almost complete facial skeleton found in Ethiopia may provide some clues to the living habits of the first "men" (homo erectus) who walked erectly on the face of the earth 500,000 years ago, Southern Methodist University anthropologists announced Friday.

The discovery, named the "Bodo man," provides what is believed to be the only complete Homo erectus face known to science, said Dr. Fred Wendorff, Henderson-Morrison professor of anthropology at SMU and leader of the expedition to Ethiopia.

Dr. Wendorff said the skull was found by the Rift Valley Research Mission sponsored by SMU and other institutions under the direction of Jon Kalb, an American geologist living in Ethiopia. It was discovered by Alemayehu Safaw of the Ethiopian Ministry of Culture and Yale University Primatologist Paul Whitehead near the eastern bank of Religiously speaking, why do you suppose that mos people are what they are? Is it because their parents were that before them and it is all that they know or ever have known? And do you suppose that they believe and content for the old adage—"What is good enough for mom and dad they are because they have a boss that dictates, not only how the secular job is to be done, but also what they are to do and be in their private life? Could it be that people are more interested in being fashionable than right, so they "join" the church of the elite so that people will be more impressed with their elegance than they will be of their conviction? The answers to these and similar questions are most revelant in the realm of religion.

Jesus said, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord Jesus said, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." [Mt. 7:21] That is an easily understood, and a "ungetaroundable" passage. It isn't a matter of what one's parents believe or disbelieve; it matters little how many fashionable people belong to a certain religious order, and no man's employer is worth the salt it would take to preserve his little toe who would pressure an employee to become a member of "his" church on that basis.

What has happened to conviction? It use to be that most what has happened to conviction? It use to be that most people believed that what they were religiously was authorized in the Bible. Such is no longer the case. Obviously men of the past, like most of the present, were wrong religiously. Not because of anything I might believe or say about the matter, but rather because Jesus Christ declared it to be so. (Mt. 7:13,14) l/y friend, the masses have always been wrong It was for this reason that God have always been wrong. It does not bother me a great deal when people consider me to be somewhat narrow. It causes little pain to me when people declare that this scribe is somewhat radical. I have learned to "roll with the punch" when people criticize me for criticizing them etc. Why? Why have I learned not to allow such trivia to hinder me? Because I am convinced that everything I do in the realm of religious activity I can and will if called on, give Bible authority for it. You see this is most comforting to know. Do you KNOW that everything you do is in harmony with the New Testament.

BUCHAREST. Romania (AP) - Warsaw Pact allies proposed a treaty Friday in which they along with other European nations, the United States and Canada would pledge to refrain from being the first to use nuclear weapons against other signers of the accord. The members of the European pact, East ending a two-day summit meeting, also agreed to form a Committee of Foreign Ministers to coordinate foreign policy and established a joint secretariat. The action was apparently in line with Romanian desires to shift the emphasis of the Warsaw pact from the military to a political alliance.

Sources said the organization rejected Soviet attempts to control the new committee and agreed that its decisions would be non-binding.

The independentminded Romanians have sought such a move to promote detente in Europe and the subsequent gradual dissolution of military blocs, a long-standing goal of the Bucharest government, informed sources said.

A draft of the proposed treaty on nuclear arms was to be released with the declaration, but of-ficials later said the release had been post-

METULLA, Israel — Israel has reinforced its northern border with Lebanon and issued stern but vaguely worded threats against Syrian forces just over the horizon. But this uneasy frontier, bristling with guns, is not Israel's first line of defense.

For Israel's, the front line actually is in a dozen little villages in southern Lebanon where Lebanese Christians are fighting for their homes and lives. Soldiers and militia from these villages, dressed in Israeli army fatigues, cross freely into northern

(This dispatch was relayed via Israeli military censorship. It has been reported previously by reporters outside Israel that hundreds of the Christians were trained in Israeli territory and returned to fight their leftist-Palestinian-Moslem enemies in Lebanon.)

Israeli official sources deny that any Lebanese got training at bases of the Israeli army.

Israel has established kibbutzes in territory it occupied in 1967 for what it calls security reasons - the Israelis believe a settlement rooted to the earth, fighting for its land, is a key to the defense of any threatened terrain.

The Israelis are doing the same in southern Lebanon. But it is young men like Fidel - a nickname given a curly-bearded young Lebanese soldier because he resembles a youthful Fidel Castro - who are defending Israel's interests, as well as their own, north of the frontier.

We are better fighters than the Palestinians,' said Fidel, who wore a set of Israeli fatigues and was waiting to see an Israeli doctor at a clinic at the border city of Metulla. "We must be better. We are fighting to save our Fidel's head was still ringing from a near-hit by a 122-MM. Katusha rocket fired by the Palestinians into the village of Klia earlier this week from leftist-held territory north of the Litani River. Three hundred rounds fell in Klia, he said, in a three-hour Intangible property is bombardment. He hoped the Israeli taxable under the state medics would give him something for his headaches.

Dutch to try to salvage ship

HASTING - The wreck of a Dutch ship, The Amsterdam, which has been lying off Hastings in southern England since 1749, may be salvaged and taken to Holland. Experts believe recovery of the vessel, which went down on its inaugural voyage to India with 335 people aboard, would be of considerable interest because of its excellent state of preservation. The wreck is completely buried in sand and during the big equinox tides its hull is visible from Hastings. The personal belongings of the victims as well as thousands of bottles of wine and valuables belonging to the captain are still thought to be aboard.

The salvage job would cost the owners, the Dutch government, an estimated $6 1-2 million.

A special jetty would have to be built to remove 4,500 tons of sand. The Christians have fought well

"But we cannot fight the Syrians," said a young school teacher from Klia, a member of the militia awaiting treatment for a gash on his nose. He spoke through a village youth who speaks English and hopes to emigrate to Australia via Israel. "The Syrians are a great army," agreed Fidel, "with many tanks."

Israel has warned the Syrians, indirectly, that a Syrian presence along the Israel-Lebanese border "will not be tolerated" — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin phrased it, "Israel will not be reconciled" to Syrians there. The veiled threat is that Israel would strike militarily against Syrians in the 2-to 10-mile-wide border strip against their leftist opponents, an irregular force of the Palestinian south of the Litani.

Wealthy citizen helps Ohio city become 'architectural showcase'

By BRYCE NELSON The Los Angeles Times

COLUMBUS, Ind. - Many an architect would pass up an opportunity in Los Angeles or New York to design a building in this little city surrounded by cornfields in Southern Indiana.

Many already have, and as a consequence Columbus has an impressive array of modern buildings designed by some of the nation's leading According to a citation of the American Institute of

Architects, Columbus is "an architectural showcase and perhaps the best possible example of how architecture can improve the physical environment and quality of life." SOME RESIDENTS of Columbis (population: 30,000-plus) may not understand all the avant-garde architecture. But they find it interesting, and they appreciate the praise that such creations bring to Lowell E. Engelking, an energetic Columbus businessman, put it this way:

"As far as art is concerned, I'm a damned big clod, but these things are a necessary part of our lives. And, well, who is it that doesn't like these nice

The person primarily responsible for bringing many of these "nice things" to Columbus is one of the nation's most unusual businessmen, J. Irwin Miller, 67, board chairman of Cummins Engine Co., a thriving corporation that employs about 40 per cent of Bartholomew County's workers and makes about half of the nation's diesel engines.

THE FIRST LAY president of the National council of churches, Miller, a Republican, has also gained attention by making former President Richard M. Nixon's "enemies list" and by being seriously named by Esquire Magazine in 1968 as the man the Republicans should run for President of the United

a role of leadership here, it is natural that a few townspeople are critical of him, local residents say. "You can't have the wealth Mr. Miller has without annoying some people," Engelking, a longtime acquaintaince, said. "He's worth $200 million if he's

But many people in Columbus seem very glad when they talk about what Miller and other leading businessmen, like Q.G. Noblitt, B.F. Hamilton and Walter Golden, have done for their hometown.

ALTHOUGH MILLER has a lot of money to encourage local self-help, he does not throw it around. Some citizens say he is a retiring, selfeffacing man who is very sentitive to charges that he might be domineering.

'Irwin Miller is scared to death that people think he's running the town," said Stewart E. Huffman, editor of the daily newspaper. "I told him that I wish he was running it. It would be better run."

Through the Cummins Engine Foundation, Miller has helped pour $6 million into public projects in the city in the last 20 years, almost half of that figure -$2.7 million — in fees for leading American architects to design public buildings, especially schools, for Columbus.

Texas Employment ployment figure was corporations which puts the maximum allowable 5 per cent of pre-tax profits into charitable work. The Cummins foundation not only spends a great deal of money in Indiana but helps support a wide variety of charitable projects in other cities, among them Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit and Atlanta. the architectural program here has made Columbus and J. Irwin Miller "almost holy words in architectural circles." Miller, however, denies that he set out with any idea of having an "architectural

"There's a highly accidental quality to the whole business," he said in an interview. "There wasn't much formal, long-range planning. It was much more a response to a community need for schools."

In the 30 years before 1952, Columbus had not built a new school, despite a large expansion of its population. In the 1950s, Miller and his company decided to offer to pay the architect's fee — from 7.2 per cent to 10.2 per cent of construction costs - if the Columbus school board would choose from a list of "at least six first-ranked American architects" recommended by a panel of two distinguished architects.

Among the other conditions of the gifts was that the architects selected could not have built another building under the program. This rule has led

Seven bases affected by Pentagon cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is going ahead with plans to shut down or scale down seven military bases at a projected savings of millions of dollars a month.

The decision, affecting Army and Defense Supply Agency bases in six states, will eliminate 3,858 civilian jobs, although many of the affected workers will be offered transfers to other federal employment, the Defense Department said.

Among the installations affected by the decision is Philadelphia's Frankford Arsenal, which Vice President-elect Walter F. Mondale had promised to keep open.

Pentagon spokesman Alan Woods said there was no intention to embarrass Mondale or the incoming Carter administration. But he said the closing, which was first announced two years ago, "will save the taxpayers $3 million a month.'

The arsenal employs 2,337 persons.
The day before the Nov. 2 presidential election, Mondale announced in Philadelphia that if Jimmy Carter was elected President, the arsenal would be kept open. Mondale's office had no immediate comment on the Pentagon announcement.

The Pentagon, in an about-face Wednesday on another base, said it will keep open the Defense Supply Agency's clothing factory in Philadelphia, preserving 1,449 jobs, The Pentagon said that work done at Frankford will be transferred to a new Armament Research and Development Command at Picatinny Arsenal, Dover, N.J., and the Armament Materiel Readiness Command at Rock Island Arsenal, Ill.

The Lexington Bluegrass Army Depot in Kentucky will lose about 892 employes who will be fired or transferred over the next four to six months, the Pentagon said. The cutback of the communications-electronics repair work at Lexington, designed to save about $1.5 million a month after $7.4 million is spent to complete the reorganization, will still leave 1,594 civilian jobs at the depot.

As first announced last April, the Army's Aviation Systems Command and the Troop Support Command, Balloon both in St. Louis, will also be closed and their duties incorporated into two new commands in that city. The shift will eliminate 414 civilian jobs and 10 military positions.

Support operations at Selfridge Air National Guard Base, Mich., and Stewart Sub-Post, near West Point, N.Y., will be shifted to two civilian contractors. This will mean cutting 160 civilian jobs at Selfridge and transfer of 22 military personnel now stationed there.

The Pentagon said 71 civilian employes affected by the move at 960 miles later, Michelle Stewart probably will be offered jobs McCabe, 17, and her at the U.S. Military Academy, while brother, Pat, 20, found 31 military personnel at Stewart will the balloon in front of Chateaubriand is superb entree to be shared by two at any special time that calls for a celebration. This French restaurant specialty is easily duplicated by broiling a two-inch thick steak, cut from the center of the beef tenderloin. It is served with Bearnaise Sauce-a bit tricky, but not difficult to make. Just follow the easy directions carefully.

Chateaubriand makes special meal for two

CHATEAUBRIAND

2 sprigs parsley, 3 egg yolks, beaten 1/4 cup butter, melted 2 teaspoons lemon juice ¼ teaspoon salt

2 dashes cayenne

pepper Combine wine, vinegar, onions, tarragon, pepper and parsley in top of double boiler or saucepan. Cook over direct heat until mixture is reduced to half (ap-proximately cup). Cool and add gradually to beaten egg yolks, stirring to blend. Return to pan and cook over hot (but not boiling water) stirring constantly until thick and creamy. Remove from hot water. Beat in butter, a small amount at a time. Stir in lemon juice, salt and pepper. If sauce breaks, beat in 1 to 2 tablespoons cream. at once.

Easy Yule shopping

When holiday shopping finally gets the best of you, do what would have been a good idea in the first place. Go to the meat counter and select a special beef roast or several steaks. Wrap, label and freeze until the giftgiving day. Then overwrap with gift paper and deliver. Other favorites, such as corned; beef brisket and beef salami, packaged in film, do not require freezing if Golden Ripe given promptly after purchase.

Miss Reddy and her agent-husband asked for undisclosed damages and a halt to further publica-tion of the article in the suit filed Tuesday against NYM Corp., owners of New West and New York magazines.

The suit says that since the article, entitled "Superstar Women and Their Marriages" appeared Aug. 9, it has been excerpted in various newspapers, including one in Australia, Miss Reddy's native land.

The suit alleges that NYM had made an oral agreement to confine publication of an in-terview with Miss Reddy to New West and New

Hot fight in House in progress

By MARY RUSSELL The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Almost every leadership post in Congress will change hands this year, but by far the hottest, most volatile and bitter fight is for House

The race has been going on for almost two years and makes Senate races to replace Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, (D-Mont.), and Minority Leader Hugh Scott (R-Pa)., seem gentlemanly by

The House showdown comes Dec. 6 when Democrats, including 48 new members not yet sworn in, meet in an organizing caucus to elect their leaders by secret ballot. The present majority leader, Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts, is almost certain to be chosen the next Speaker since he

The majority leader candidates are Phillip Burton of California, 50, the wheeling-dealing chairman of the Democratic Caucus; Richard Bolling, 60, of Missouri, a ranking member of the House Rules Committee, outspoken House reformer and veteran behind-the-scenes power, Jim Wright of Texas, 53, a deputy whip and the representative of the conservatives in the race; and John J. McFall of California, 58, the majority whip who lays claim to the post because he is next in line.

The four are winding up their campaigns by zeroing in on the 48 Democrats elected Nov. 2. "Every time a new member comes up to a stop sign, there are two or three majority leader candidates there offering to help him across the street," remarked a House staff worker. The candidate who has been most tireless in appealing to the new members is Burton, the one widely acknowledged to be ahead at this point.

Burton has called, campaigned or helped get campaign funds for almost every new member. When the 76 candidates came to Washington he often entertained them at his home, and now his wife is helping some find houses.

Burton, a liberal, developed the art of taking newcomers under his wing in 1974, when he ran for caucus chairman and successfully gained most of the votes of the huge 75-member freshman class in that post-Watergate year. "I do feel it's a greater asset if they meet another member who cares just as much as they do when their elections are in peril," Burton

But Burton's '74 coup wasn't lost on his three op-onents, and they've been trying to counteract his

University, Ithaca, N.Y. claims are dishonest since most of the contributors, years ago, one of the first things Burton asked them to do was to refuse an attempt by senior Democrats to oust Rep. Wayne Hays (D-Ohio) as House Administration Committee chairman.

The freshmen went along with Burton and Hays kept his chairmanship, though the reform-minded freshmen helped to oust three other chairmen.

This year, however, Hays brought the taint of scandal to Capitol Hill by disclosures that he had his mistress on his payroll, and he resigned.

A number of the '74 freshmen, feeling they had been used by Burton, turned to Bolling. They are calling the incoming freshmen with the message. 'Don't be taken in by Burton's solicitude as we were," Bolling said.

Dale E. Kildee, a Michigan state senator, who won Senator-elect Don Riegle's House seat, was one of those Burton offered to help get contributions and was invited to his home for dinner, "Phil impressed me. We have a lot in common," Kildee said. But he deviced the personal attention gave Burton a log with the personal attention gave Burton at log with the personal attention gave Burton at log with the personal attention gave and the personal attention gave a log with the per denied the personal attention gave Burton a leg up. He said he refused campaign contributions offered by Burton, Wright and McFall.

"I'm an experienced politician," Kildee said. He noted that his class, unlike the '74 class which had a large number of members who had held no office before, largely came up the more traditional way through the state legislatures. "I've seen leadership races in my statehouse, and I think we're a little less impressed by such things."

Though Burton is thought to have over 100 of the some 148 votes — depending on the outcome of a few elections still in doubt — necessary to win the leadership, the first ballot in the caucus probably won't determine the winner. But it would determine the course of the race. course of the race.

The bottom candidate drops out after each ballot, and the consensus now is that the bottom man is McFall, with less than 50 votes. McFall has suffered from a perception that he lacks forcefulness. His chances were further dimmed by his admission that he had accepted money from Tongsun Park, a South Korean businessman who currently is under investigation by the Justice Department. "I did nothing illegal," McFall said. Who is second behind Burton at the moment isn't clear. Bolling and McFall think Bolling is ahead of Wright. Wright and Burton think Wright is ahead of

Bolling thinks. Wright can't get enough of the liberal votes Bolling has to overtake Burton in the final one-on-one ballot, but says he can get the conservative votes which would never turn to Burton

Wright, last to enter the race in July, denies that. He claims to be doing well among northerners and new members as well as southerners. He contends that for balance, a southerner should be in the leadership with northerner O'Neill, and points to the

such as labor unions, were going to send money to the candidates anyway.

Bolling has made a determined effort to win away the class of 1974 from Burton, with some success.

When those members arrived in Washington two years ago, one of the first things Burton asked them to do was to refuse an attempt by senior Democrats to oust Rep. Wayne Hays (D-Ohio) as House Administration Committee chairman.

But the final factor in the race may be O'Neill, whose intervention could make a difference.

Sources say O'Neill's first choice would be McFall, then Wright, then Bolling, but being a pragmatist he could support whomever among those three has the best chance to beat Burton.

The sources say O'Neill would prefer anyone to the aggressive Burton, whom O'Neill feels he might have to fight for control of the Democrats.

Though O'Neill says publicly that he will play no role in the majority leader race and has assured Burton he will not work against him, Burton's opponents believe O'Neill will move to stop Burton.

But there is no evidence that he has taken any step so far, and time is running out before the Dec. 6 eleccreased to 26,000 barrels a day from 15,000 barrels a day in 1970. This is its largest production from any single U.S. field. In the Santa Barbara Channel, a partially-owned wildcat has shows of hydrocarbons below 17,400 feet. In Los Angeles County at Signal Hill West Unit, a waterflood project for secondary recovery has been completed that will increase production from 1,800 to 14,000 barrels a day by 1980. Total recovery will be increased by 27 million barrels;

Texaco owns a 46 per cent interest.
Other highlights of Texaco's operations reported Granville in a speach before the Los Angeles Society of Financial Analysts were: — In Saudi Arabia, Texaco's lif-tings, including purchases, averaged 2,238,000 barrels a day for the first three quarters of this year, compared with 1,918,000 barrels a day in the same period a year ago.

— Especially in the Middle East, governments of host producing countries are negotiating to acquire 100 per cent ownership of producing and related operations. Under these new arrangements, Texaco will continue to have a significant role. "While investment obligations will be reduced," Granville said, "We will earn fees for services provided and have access to substantial supplies of crude oil at competitive prices."

— In Indonesia, through its 50 per cent-owned Caltex affiliate, Texaco produced 386,000 barrels a day in the 1976 period, compared with 370,000 barrels a day to the first nine months of 1975. "Although increased payments are now being made to Indonesia in accordance with a government directive issued earlier this year, the Indonesian government has stated that it recognizes that adequate incentives must be provided to assure a high level of oil activity. "We are optimistic that the necessary financial basis will be provided for continued exploration. additional investment and profitable development of recent discoveries,'

Granville said. - In United Kingdom waters in the North Sea, Texaco has drilled 27 wells and made 15 discoveries in the Moray Firth and Brent Field areas. Exploratory drilling in the Moray Firth has defined sufficient reserves to justify design work on production

"Commitment of the large in-vestment that would be required for economic development depends on successful resolution of outstanding matters with the U.K. government," Granville noted. "Production could begin as early as of Barranquilla and Cartagena.

"This reserve on the Caribbean is particularly noteworthy because of its proximity to the United States and its potenital for export," Granville

- Offshore Southeastern Trinidad, several wildcat discoveries have been

"While much has been said about the decline in oil and gas production — and reserves — in the United States, we believe there are many opportunities for profitable ex-ploration and production remaining in this country, particularly onshore,"
John E. Swearingen told the Oil Analysts Group of New York. "We do not lack for opportunities to spend as much money as we can allocate for exploration and drilling in the U.S." Swearingen said higher prices for "new" domestic oil and natural gas, combined with significant technological improvements in fin-ding and producing pretroleum, have created a number of "highly attractive" new onshore opportunities. And Standard, he said, has a "strong inventory of high-potential drilling prospects" in the more than 25 million acres it has under leaseholds and options in the U.S.

Among the geologic areas Standard regards as "particularly promising," Swearingen listed:

- The Rocky Mountain sta tes, which offer several basins that remain relatively unexplored, in-cluding the Overthrust Belt and subsidiary basins of Utah, Wyoming,

Montana and Idaho. The "more mature" Williston, Powder River and Denver-Julesberg basins of Colorado and Wyoming also are economically attractive for "stratigraphic plays" using newly developed technology, Swearingen

- West Texas, where the company recently made a significant Abo reef discovery with 200 feet of net oil pay by deeper drilling in its Levelland-Slaughter field area.
"This field previously had produced only from younger Permian Age formations, and we believe that improved seismic techniques now have opened to exploratory drilling the entire Abo trend extending from eastern New Mexico to central Texas," the Standard Oil chairman play in the Delaware Basin which we believe may rival our Ozona-Sonora

- Deep Cretaceous sandstones and Jurassic limestones, particularly in Mississippi and Alabama, where Standard controls several Smackover anomalies on which it intends to drill.

- The Hosston-Cotton Valley play of East Texas and Mississippi, where the company has expanded its heasehold position. - The Appalachian basin, where the company's exploration efforts "could open a new gas-producing province close to Eastern markets." Swearingen told the analysts that Standard expects to sustain its domestic production of crude oil, natural gas, and natural gas liquids 'at about current levels for at least the next several years."

Overseas, the company expects its emphasis on developing existing properties and selective exploration to result in steady growth in crude oil and natural gas liquids production, he

By the end of this decade, Swearingen said, Standard's total net crude oil and natural gas liquids production overseas is projected to approach 500,000 barrels per day, compared with a current net production from overseas fields of about 335,000 barrels per day. The most significant contributors to this production increase, he added, will be Egypt, Iran and Trinidad.

Swearingen reported that Standard is projecting overseas net natural gas production "in excess of 700 million cubic feet per day" by 1981, mainly on the strength of added gas production from offshore Trinidad fields and from the Western Desert of Egypt. Again noting that Standard believes there are many opportunities for onshore exploration in the U.S., Swearingen stressed that the company will continue to participate in offshore lease sales that "have attractive exploration potential." 'At the same time, we do not intend to follow along with the industry on a 'me too' basis when we do not believe the potential rewards to be commensurate with the costs and rists," he declared. "We will continue to offer what experience, probability, and judgment tell us is pru

Swearingen noted that the problem with respect to federal offshore acreage is compoundedby "the extremely uncertain political in-

"Legislation that would delay development of frontier areas by several years was in the hopper when Congress adjourned last month, and almost certainly will be revived early next session," he said. "I will not attempt to assess its chances of Standard is devoting much of its effort to increasing production from existing oil and gas fields, Swearingen pointed out.

"We are currently spending large serving on the 1976-77 Campus A amounts of money, employing new Board, the TCU student-al technology, and devoting a major lialason group, effort to increase recovery of oil from known reservoirs, and to produce gas from formations that were too tight to justify drilling under price conditions that existed only a few years ago," he

Court rules for worker

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)-An oil field hand who was injured and the families of three who were killed as they drove to their rig are entitled to workmen's compensation benefits, the Texas Supreme Court ruled today.

It said it could find no reversible error in decisions of a trial court at Crane and the El Paso Court of Civil

The lower courts said Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. must pay the benefits to Raymond Chesnut, who was injured, and the families of W. L. Branum, Manuel Ramos and Jesse

The accident occurred as the four traveled in Branum's car from Odessa to a rig 105 miles away in Pecos County on April 11, 1974.

Liberty contended the accident did not occur in the course of the men's employment.

The courts, however, said it did. Branum, the "driller" in charge of the crew, received 14 cents a mile from John Drilling Co. for use of his personal car. The other crew mem-bers were promised free tran-

Testimony indicated that a driller will not accept a job that does not include a mileage allowance, and free transportation is expected by crew

The appeals court said the em-ployer received benefits from its transportation arrangement with Branum and the crew and, therefore, the travel occurred in the course of their employment.

Colorado wells final

DENVER — Energy Minerals Corp. has completed two "D" sand gas wells in the Klowa Creek field of Weld County, Colo.

The discovery wass wells are Energy Minerls No. 1 Jones in section 1-T-1-N, R-62-W, having an initial potential of 6 million cubic feet of gas and 125 barrels of condensate per day. The calculated, absolute open flow was 17.6 million cubic feet of gas and 404 barrels of condensate daily.

The second well is No. 1 Wall, in section 6-T-1-N, R-61-W, which was completed through perforations at 6,757-6,763 feet, for an initial potential of 836,000 cubic feet of gas and 22 barrels of condensate per day.

The nearest "D" sand production is in the Roggen field, six miles to the west, which had produced in excess of 1.6 barrels of oil and 5 billion cubic feet of gas since its discovery in 1953.

Previous Kiowa Creek production was from the "J" sand.

Energy Minerals has commenced operations at a confirmation test, No. 1 Edgemand, a 6,800-foot "J" test in section 1, T-1-N, R-62-W, ½ mile southwest of No. 1 Jones. Gators given real welcome alligators? It seems the large reptiles, long the target of bounty hunters and disgruntled farmers, now are needed to equalize Southern Arkansas' balance of nature.

According to the state Game and Fish Commission, in recent weeks more than 1,500 alligators have been trucked up from the southern reaches of Louisiana's swampy bayou and marshlands to several remote Arkansas locations.

Ironically, area farmers - once among the most zealous opponents of the scaly beasts — now are the loudest supporters of the 'gator immigration program.

"We have had hundreds of farmers asking for alligators because they've heard they eat up beavers and muskrats," says Andrew Hulsey, head of Arkansas' Game and Fish Commission. Beavers and muskrats plague farmers by damming needed streams and damaging crops. Midlanders serve

FORT WORTH - Texas Christian University students Laura Wilde, Bonnie McDaniel and Paul Lucua, all of Midland, are among 72 students serving on the 1976-77 Campus Alumni Board, the TCU student-alumni ter 5, 684 5992.

Inflation shaping up as major problem for Carter

Inflation - either the fear of it or an actual acceleration of the price spiral - will be one of the heaviest crosses Jimmy Carter has to bear in his first year in office.

Carter, more than any candidate since Franklin Roosevelt in 1932, made unemployment a major issue of his campaign. As did Roosevelt, he unseated an incumbent with the help of the issue of jobs.

But most of the conventional economic tools for fighting unemployment, such as the tax cut or increased government spending Carter is considering, tend to be inflationary. This was not a problem for Roosevelt:Consumer prices had remained stable throughout most of the 1920s and they started falling sharply in the three years before Roosevelt took office.

Carter will take office with inflation running in the 5 per cent to 6 per cent range, a healthy improvement from the double digit levels of 1974 but still three to four times the annual rate Americans have been used to since World War II. And despite a report that consumer price increases moderated somewhat last month, there are nagging signs that the infla-tion problem will be worse next year:

-Wholesale prices, which foretell the course of retail prices in the months ahead, have risen steeply in five of the last nine months.

-World gold prices have exploded in recent weeks as speculators, bet-ting on higher inflation rates, seek to return their paper currencies into

Prices have risen from $116 an ounce in October to as high as $140 an ounce last week in the face of the International Monetary Fund's plans to auction 780,000 troy ounces of gold on Dec. 8, an action that normally would depress the price of gold.

—The major oil-exporting nations are expected to decide before the end of the year on a petroleum price in-crease that could range between 10 to 15 per cent. Such an increase would automatically raise the price of everything from gasoline and fuel oil to oil-based products ranging from panty hose to plastic bags.

—The prices of coffee and beef, two items that are consumed in greater amounts in the United States than in any other nation, are on their way up. Higher coffee prices are the result of a cold wave last year that froze much of the Brazilian coffee crop. Beef prices will go up next year because the current heavy slaughter of cattle in the United States will mean scarcer hamburger and state next year. hamburger and steak next year.

-Economic forecasters outside the government generally see little hope for a reduction of inflation next year and an increasing number are predicting larger price increases. Chase Econometries, the nation's largest computer-model forecasting firm, is now forecasting significantly higher prices in 1977 followed by a recession at the end of the year.

"-There are increasing signs that the fear of inflation, whether justified or not, is causing businessmen and consumers to make decisions that contributed to further inflation.

Fear of inflation works in strange ways. Carter's statement shortly after his election that he would seek standby authority to impose wage and price controls is expected to affect businessmen's decisions on whether to raise their prices this year or wait until next year when it may be too late. There are already reports that many are planning to go ahead with increases that they might otherwise have delayed. "I hear too much about it to believe it isn't a factor of some consequence," said Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. "Fear of price controls is a factor in inflation."

A survey of 54 senior corporate executives by the Conference Board, a business research group, found that all of them expected consumer prices to rise by at least 4 per cent annually in 1977 and 1978. One-third of them expect price increases of more than 7 per cent in 1978. And these are the men who help set the nation's prices.

Rebels face tough test in San Angelo Saturday

Arlington Sam Houston, Robert E. Lee's opponent in Saturday's regional playoff game in San Angelo, will be a much tougher test for Coach Jim Acree's Rebels in their Class AAAA schoolboy battle.

Lee, playing one of its better games of the season, manhandled Euless Trinity, 17-0, last weekend in Abilene, but faces a team that plays more in the style of District 5-4A football teams and that is good, solid defense. We played real well last week against Trinity and hope to play even better this week against Sam Houston," said Acree. Acree and his hard-working staff put the Rebels through their paces Thursday afternoon after everybody sat down to a big Thanksgiving Day meal in their respective homes.

Today will be spent in polishing up both the offense and defense for the battle with the Texans in San Angelo

Stadium Saturday. Sam Houston is no stranger to the playoff scene, having been there in 1973 and last year. In 1973, the Texans took a 10-0 record into the playoffs and started off by beating South Garland. 10-0. The Texans then beat Odessa Permian, 14-7, in San Angelo and then faced El Paso Coronado in Odessa's W.T. Barrett Stadium and won, 17-6.

Coach James Hyden's Texans run the Houston Veer and reports from the media in the Dallas-Fort Worth area is that Sam Houston has its best offensive team in history.

By the way, in 1973, the Texans were led by tailback Ronald Burns who has since been an All-Southwest Conference selection at a cornerback slot on defense at Baylor University.

Last year, Sam Houston faced a strong Lake Highlands team in the opening round and tied, 13-13, but advanced on first downs, 16-12, when the penetrations were even at 3-3.

Permian then beat the Texans, 10-7, on a pass from quarterback Kris Howard to wingback Greg Gray with only two seconds left in the game.

with a 7-4-1 record last year. This year, the Texans stand 11-0 and knocked off Arlington Heights, 20-11, last week in bi-district play. The Texans are led by junior tailback Kenneth Jackson, a 160-pounder who has rushed for 1,039 yards on the season. Senior fullback Koby Waldeck is next with 871 yards in 170 carries and quarterback Tony Rollins guides the Veer attack which sticks mainly to the ground.

Sam Houston has a fine field goal and extra point kicker in Junior Mike Marlow who has hit 26 of 29 extra points and has connected on eight field goals with a 47-yarder his longest and that came in the 13-10 victory over Arlington Lamar. The 47-yarder is a school record. He has scored 50

Aggies taunt Texas, 27-3

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The greatest speed and power duo in Texas-A&M's istory ignored Texas' taunts and a half century-old jinx in rolling over the Longhorns 27-3 Thursday night.

The "fanaticism" Darrell Royal of Texas sought to prevent his first losing season in more than 20 years of coaching was not enough to stop

A&M's George Woodard and Curtis

Dickey, who ripped Texas for three touchdowns and 164 yards rushing.

THE REGIONALLY televised victory was only A&M's second over Texas in Memorial Stadium here since it was built in 1924. Woodard, a 257-pound sophomore, punched 109 yards out of the Texas middle in 29 carries and bolted over for touchdowns from the one-and twoyard lines in the second half.

Dickey, a 200-pound freshman with 9.3 sprint relay speed, dashed eight yards to score just before halftime and finished with 55 yards on 14 carries although he sat out much of the final two quarters.

WOODARD AND Dickey padded
their season rushing total to 1,879 yards, which broke the old school record of 1,865 set by Bob Smith and Glenn Lippman in 1950.

Woodard finished the regular season with 1,153 yards and Dickey with 726 yards.

"We had a whole lot of mouthing out of (Texas tackle Brad) Shearer," said Woodard. "I paid no attention to it. He was trying to get me thrown out of the game, trying to get me to fight. I had no intention of fighting."

"They're better," said Royal. "But fumbles and penalties made it

TEXAS WAS penalized 88 yards and lost four fumbles, and A&M safety Lester Hayes stole three Texas passes to keep the Longhorns out of the end zone in this long rivalry for the first time since 1939.

The victory, said Hayes, a 207-pounder with 9.4 speed, was "super

Royal must have been thinking of his injured players and Aggies such as Woodard, Dickey and Hayes, all pro prospects, when he said Texas was fighting with "a short stick." Texas stars such as fullback Earl Campbell, halfback Johnny "Ham" Jones and several others missed the game with injuries, forcing the Longhorns to start three freshmen in the backfield.

"Our defense played super," said A&M coach Emory Bellard.

TEXAS GAINED only 125 yards on running and passing, which should enable A&M to climb from its position as the fourth best defense in the nation.

The victory ran A&M's record to 9-2, and it will close out the season Jan. 2 against Florida in the Sun Bowl

Texas is 4-5-1 and must beat Arkansas in their nationally televised game here Dec. 4 to even its record.

Texas senior linebacker Lionell Johnson of Winnfield, La., "This season sure isn't what I expected when I came back in August and worked my tail off in two-a-days. I'm not a Texan, you know, but I have grown a lot of Texas pride and this hurts a lot."

Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles and Texas Tech Coach Steve Sloan agree that Tech's fourth-quarter comeback in last week's game against Houston was a plus for the Raiders.

Tech, trailing 27-5 to Houston, rallied in the final period and came within nine yards of a possible tie before losing 27-19 in the Southwest Confenfenference showdown.

"That comeback they made will be of great value to them," Broyles said. "They showed what they could do in the fourth quarter. You'll never get them down ...get them thinking they can't win until the final whistle blows."

"The comeback will help us," Sloan said. "It's better than getting beat 27-5. It's a positive thing.

The Wolverines are ready- and able-to take away not only the Big Ten title from Indiana, but the national championship as well.

Southern Illinois and Wichita State are the teams to beat in the Missouri Valley Conference, with the edge to the Salukis because of MVC player of the year Mike Glenn.

The Metro-Six Conference is now the Metro-Seven Conference with the prestigious addition of Florida State-but nothing has changed in that farflung league. It's still Louisville, Cincinnati and defending champion Memphis State in the driver's seat. Johnny Parker of St. Louis could be the league's top rookie.

GRADUATION hit the Southwest Conference with a force equal to those well-known Texas plain storms, leaving Texas A&M and post-season and dry. Gone are six of the league's top scorers, but No. 1 point-maker Otis Birdsong of Houston does return for his senior year.

CHICAGO (AP) — Bob Thomas of the Chicago said 'No, we want Thomas.'''
Bears has missed his share of field goal attempts during the 1976 National Football league season, but he never will forget the one which hit the upright and bounced back with 15 seconds to play in the 28-27 loss to the Oakland Baiders.

THAT CAME during a streak in which Thomas missed eight of nine attempts, many of which were well over 40 yards and several over 50 yards. Thomas since has turned things around and booted 46-yarders in each of the last two games.

"A lot of people talked about my being in a slump," said Thomas, who did his college kicking for Notre Dame. "But I don't believe in slumps. That's just an excuse for you to go out and miss again.

My teammates and my coaches all retained con-"I've also been on the other side of the fence when everything is going right," said Thomas, who added that there were three phases to a successful field

"You break it down into three parts," he said. "First, the snap must be good. Then, the holder must be right, and finally, there's the kick. If the first two do their job correctly, then it's all up to the kicker,

The rivaly between the Panthers and the Nittany Lions extends for 76 years. And like most enduring relationships, it has mellowed with age. Penn State holds a two-game edge in the series which stands at 37-35-3. But it took 10 victories over the past decade to erase Pitt's former dominance. There seems to be no real bitterness in this critical contest which could sour Pitt's trip to the Sugar Bowl and a possible national championship or darken a resurgent Gator Bowlbound Penn State season. Both teams have spent the better part of the past two weeks exchanging compliments instead of uttering football's sacred vows of conquest.

"At this point in the season, I don't think there are too many teams in the country better than Penn State," said assistant Pitt head coach Joe Madden after a traditional Thanksgiving dinner.

But the kickoff will come soon enough. The game begins shortly after 9 p.m EST at Three Rivers Joe Paterno is equally eager for the game to begin. He knows how good Pitt's undefeated team is. And he has not been shy about saying so. "I think it's great for Eastern football that we finally have a team that's getting a fair shake," the Penn State coach said. His 1969 squad also was unbeaten. But it never ranked No.1. "I'm really anxious to play, to see how we're going to do against a great football team," he added.

Neither team is resigned to losing this contest. Pitt Coach Johnny Majors said he does not expect to, Paterno said he doesn't hope to.

The Panthers, led by Heisman Trophy candidate Tony Dorsett, bring a seasoned offense that can run, pass and kick with equal authority into the game against a maturing Nittany Lions squad.

Their defense, which Paterno claims does not have a weak spot, will attempt to throttle Penn State's talked to anyone from offense which is directed by sophomore Chuck Fusina, a solid passer.

Lions win, but Juice flows freely

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - The message on the Pontiac Silverdome scoreboard read: "Lions menu: turkey, buffalo and juice."

The Detroit Lions certainly added Buffalo to their Thanskgiving Day menu Thursday, but they couldn't quite handle O.J. "Orange Juice"

Juice was on the loose as he never had been in his brilliant eight-year National Football League career. But his recordsetting performances were not nearly enough and the Lions coasted to a nationally televised 27-14 victory over Simpson and the Buffalo

It was Buffalo's eighth straight loss.

Here is what Simpson did: -Rushed for 273 yards in 29 carries, breaking his NFL record of 250 yards in one game. -Became the league's first player

-Passed the 9,000-yard career rushing mark, reaching 9,252. He is the league's second all-time runner.

to rush for 200 or more yards five who gained 12,312 yards. -Reached 1,129 yards for the season, marking the fifth consecutive year he has run for at least 1,000.

—Scored both Buffalo touchdowns, the first on a 48-yard burst in the closing minutes of the third quarter and the other on a 12-yard run in the final period. "It's something that when your career is over you look back on with fond memories," Simpson said of his great game. "...But the things I'm proudest about were still in college

Bills Coach Jim Ringo called

Simpson's performance "fantastic" and said, "I've never seen a halfback run like that. He deserves the record for what he's put into the game." It was Simpson the Lions were talking about most, too, although Detroit's Dexter Bussey had his best day with 137 yards rushing and quarterback Greg Landry threw a pair of touchdown passes to rookie tight end David Hill.

"He's one hellatious football player," said Lions Coach Tommy Hudspeth. "There's just one O.J. But I'd take a win over a record any day.

"O.J.'s in a class by himself," Hudspeth added. "No doubt about it ...O.J. has tremendous acceleration, great balance and a great field of vision. What makes him especially good is great lateral movement."

Detroit linebacker Jim Laslavic said: "If he really slams into you he's easy to handle-but you can't get him to slam into you. The man has a thousand moves."

the pass. If the man covering Benny comes at the punter, inine time out of 10, he'll block it. I just kind of shotputted the ball to him. Barnes didn't think the thing was ever going to come down. "It seems like the ball took forever to get there," said Banres. "I had time to think about dropping it."

A 2-yard touchdown pass from Staubach to Scott Laidlaw and Steve Jones' five-yard scoring run set the stage for the Cowboy trickery.

St. Louis had trouble with punts from its line of scrimmage in the se-out of the end zone by Thomas Henderson for a safety. Coupled with Efren Herrera's 42-yard field goal it gave Dallas a 19-7 lead. Then here came the "Cardiac Cardinals" who make a specialty of lastsecond dramatics.

SELA has its troubles

The Washington Post

CARACAS - Latin America's latest effort at economic cooperation includes countries from every part of the region and political systems as disparate as Cuba and Chile. The new group, called the Latin American Economic System or SELA for its Spanish initials, excludes the United States. It is trying to achieve reg cooperation by using the methods of what many of its founders consider its economic enemies - the large multinational corporations.

Latin America has always been a continent of promise, full of natural resources that seemed to need only rational management to make everyone rich. Since few countries have populations big enough to provide either the necessary capital or the necessary markets for exploiting the resources, the focus has been on breaking down economic barriers between nations.

The Latin American Free Trade Area, (LAFTA), the Central American and Caribbean Common Markets, and most recently the Andean Pact have taken that approach. All to some degree have foundered in a crossfire of conflicting goals, clashing politics and mutual fears. Chile withdrew formally from the Andean Pact last month, giving the five remaining nations the organization's first major setback.

The problem has been one of differing thresholds of pain. Venezuela with its oil wealth can afford nationalistic rules in the Andean Pact that discourage foreign investment. Chile's capitalstarved government led the fight to get those rules relaxed. Brazil, with its strong manufacturing base, cheered LAFTA's attempts at lowering tariff barriers among Latin American nations but Bolivia's fragile economy would be washed away in a flood of Brazilian products if the barriers dropped.

SELA has abandoned that approach in favor of trying to let each nation invest what it can in projects that will further its own interests, under the umbrella of coordination and technical aid from SELA. The United States has imparted much technical knowhow over the years to the earlier economic groups, the theory runs, and SELA will be a way of coordinating it not only for the original members but also for Cuba.

Bridge swindles easily remembered

Opening lead • K South ruffed the second club, led a diamond to the king and returned a trump for a finesse. Before playing the first rump from his hand South paused for thought, and West hoped for a moment that he was going to win a trick with the jack of trumps.

But South played the queen of hearts, and West realized that South had made the correct play. The jack of hearts now had no actual value, but it had a psychological value when West dropped it on South's queen.

South natuarlly thought that the jack was a singleton and that East still had the K-3 of trumps. If so, South had to get to dummy for a second trump finesse.

OVERRUFF South cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond in the attempt to reach dummy, but East overruffed to defeat the slam.

If West played his low heart on South's queen, declarer would be obliged to lead the ace of hearts as his only chance to capture both the jack and king. This play would work, and South would make his slam.

Come to think of it, South remembers this hand too! DAILY QUESTION

Productivity declines during third quarter

By JAMES L. ROWE Jr. The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The productivity of American workers rose at an annual rate of 2.5 per cent in the third quarter, about half as fast as the 5.1 per cent increase in the second three months of the year, the Department of Labor reported.

Productivity is the amount of output per hour worked. Rising productivity leads to higher real wages and lessened inflation because more output comes from the same amount of

Quarterly changes in productivity are often sharp and are closely related to the stage of the business cycle the economy is in. But over the long run, the productivity of the American worker has been slowing from an annual advance of about 3.3 per cent between 1946 and 1966 to a 2.2 per cent annual increase since then.

Lower productivity rates mean lower real wages as employers either find it more difficult to give pay boosts or else have to raise prices more than they would have were productivity rates rising faster.

During the early stages of an economic recovery, productivity tends to rise sharply as businesses boost production much faster than they rehire unemployed workers. Similarly, output per hour-worked tends to decline markedly early in recessing as employers hold on to workers for a while even though output is declining.

The slowdown in productivity growth in the third quarter reflects the lull in the economic recovery, according to John W. Kendrick, chief economist for the Department of Commerce. The growth of output fell markedly as did the rate of increase of output per hour worked.

But Kendrick predicted that if

President-elect Jimmy Carter "realizes" the 6 per cent economic growth he wants next year, productivity should advance at a 3 to 4 per cent rate.

The Labor Department said the 2.5 per cent productivity growth in the third quarter "reflected a 3.6 per cent increase in output" of nonfinancial corporations and "a 1 per cent increase in ali-employe hours.

The 5.1 per cent growth in productivity in the second quarter came about as output increased 6.8 per cent and hours rose 1.6 per cent.

"Compared with the third quarter of 1975, productivity is up 2.7 per cent, output is 6.3 per cent higher and hours are up 3.5 per cent," the Labor Department said.

The Labor Department said the 2.5 per cent productivity increase was of 1975 when productivity fell 1.5 per cent, after two quarters of large in-

For 1975 as a whole productivity rose 2.1 per cent - but only because the number of hours worked fell more sharply than total output.

The 3.6 per cent increase in output was the smallest since the first quarter of 1975, when output plunged 12.5 per cent at the depths of the recession. The increase in hours worked was the smallest since the second quarter of 1975. "The rise in hours - despite a shorter workweek - reflects an increase in employment, up 1.9 per cent," the Labor Department said.

The agency noted, however, that the third-quarter jobs gain was the smallest since the third quarter of

Some 'Black Sheep' criticize TV series

HONOLULU (AP) - Some of the World War II Black Sheep Squadron members who came to a reunion here say the TV show "Baa Baa Black Sheep" is a fantasy that misrepresents them as rowdy, misfit

But their old commander, ace flier Gregory "Pappy" Boyington, thinks there is more truth to the portrayal than the men will admit.

"You think of history a lot differently when you're a distinguished grandfather and a peer in your community," Boyington, now 63 and technical adviser to the NBC television show, said. Of the 34 Black Sheep who are still alive, 18 attended this week's reunion

- the first since 1945. Originally the unit had 51 men. The squadron was formed in 1943 on the island of Espiritu Santo near the Solomon Islands. By January 1944, the unit had destroyed or damaged 197 Japanese planes. Frank Walton, 67, intelligence officer for the squadron, said members included both experienced pilots and greenhorns waiting to replace those killed in action.

Walton, now retired from the Los Angeles Police Department, said they got the name Black Sheep not because they were misfits but because the squadron was formed outside the United States. "I understand Hollywood hokes things up, but that's no reason to call everyone misfits, screwups and foulballs," said Walton, who lives in

Legend and the television show have it that Boyington, who earned the Congressional Medal of Honor for shooting down 28 enemy planes, falsified reports to put together a unit of men who were close to being court-

Boyington, who became commander while recuperating from a broken ankle, disagrees with that version, but he said the squadron was not quite like others. Some members lacked enough flying time to join an established squadron, and some were discipline problems, he said.

"If you put together a half dozen of the "Baa Baa Black Sheep" episodes and balanced them out, it would be 90 per cent accurate," said Boyington. who lives in Fresno, Calif.

Summit conference ends

By PETER OSNOS The Washington Post

BUCHAREST, Romania — Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev and Romanian leader meeting this week with a pledge to further develop the "cooperation and brotherly friendship" that marks the alliance of their two states.

The summit reaffirmed the closeness of the formal ties between the two countries but also reflected Romania's determination not to give up its right to independent action and separate policies.

The Romanians conveyed in a number of ways that they still intend to maintain the special status within the Soviet bloc that they have so assidiously cultivated over the past

On Monday morning, within hours of Brezhnev's arrival for his first visit to Bucharest in ten years, Ceausescu found time for a one-hour meeting with visiting U.S. Secretary of Com-merce Elliot Richardson. (Richardson also met with Romanian trade officials and signed a long-term agreement on improving economic ties with the United States.) The next day's newspaper contained pictures not ony of the Soviet delegation but of the high-ranking American as well.
The Romanians disclosed Monday,

moreover, that a deputy defense minister, Col. Gen. Sterian Tirca, is in Peking on a trip of undisclosed pur-pose. The timely reminder of Romania's ties with the United States and China as the summit with Brezhnev began was purely "coin-cidental" said one Romanian journalist - with a broad grin and a wink.

After Ceausescu and Brezhnev delivered lengthy speeches to a "friendship rally" Wednesday, Romanians circulating in the downtown press room explained to Western journalists that the occasion was merely recognition by Ceausescu of the reality of a looming Soviet presence nearby and did not represent any shift in Romanian positions.

Still, the banners of praise, flatter-ing portraits and accolades accorded Brezhnev are virtually the same he would receive in any one of the other Soviet bloc countries. Ceausescu and his Soviet counterpart embrace with the apparent zest of genuine comrades. They speak expansively of economic and ideological coopera-

And Thursday Romania's military links to Moscow will be on display in a gathering of the party chiefs of all the Warsaw Pact countries for their first summit in 2 1-2 years. For all Romania's insistence that it stands apart from the bloc, it clearly remains an integral part of it.

Nevertheless, some nuances do mark romania as different from the other Eastern European countries. Four times in his speech Wednesday, Ceausescu stressed that relations bet-ween the two countries must be based on "non-interference" in each others' "internal affairs." He also avoided use of the term "proletarian interna-tionalism," which has become a codeword for undisputed Kremlin leadership in the Communist world.

Ceausescu even spoke of "some dif-ferences of opinion" with Moscow — a reference presumably to Romania's diplomatic relations with Israel, its relatively cordial relations with China over the years and its effort to align itself more with the developing countries. But he added that these divergences are "non-essential" and should not affect the relationship "of our parties and states."

In recent years the Romanian leader has been an outspoken nationalist. But Ceausescu apparently feels now that he should minimize publicly his differences with Moscow.

Brezhnev, on the other hand, did not seem to be modifying his positions in any way during the summit, alloting the Romanians the right to non-interference in their internal affairs but tying that together with "loyalty and Socialist proletarian internationalism."

But don't applause, it didn't compare to the standing ovation try to convince her fans of that.

They know better. Collectively, they spend about $200 million a year on her. They buy some 6 million dolls and 20 million Barbie outfits each year in every free world nation. They buy her cars, houses, sailboats and beauty salons.

They write her letters at the rate of 5,000 a year. "Barbie, I love you. Will you come visit me sometime?" writes a 7-year-old girl from Jackson, Miss. Others write Barbie for advice — My brother always fights with me. What should I do?" asks a young Texas girl. Barbie never writes back, but her fans don't seem to notice. She's simply a very busy girl, what with all the clothes-changing she does and tea parties she Barbie is an institution. According to surveys by Mattel, the toy manufacturer, 90 per cent of all American girls from 5 to 10 years of age own an average of 2.1 Barbie dolls.

'Barbie is the biggest seller in the Mattel line," said Mattel public relations director Joel K. Rubenstein. "If we took the Barbie line and made a completely separate company of it, by itself it would still

A few years later, Ken was introduced and has remained Barbie's escort-boyfriend and second-best seller for 14 years.

Ten years after her creation, Barbie appeared with a new face, less makeup, and long, straight hair. She became more mobile, with bendable legs, a "twist 'n turn" waist, and hands that bend at the wrist and open and close to carry things. Her family and friends increased - Barbie now has two younger sisters, a brother and a cousin. Her 21 friends include three blacks - the first, Christie, was introduced in 1968: Julia, modeled after actress Diahann Carroll in 1969, and Ken's black buddy, Brad, in 1970.

Perhaps the only mistake Mattel made was in giving Barbie a voice in 1968. "We did extensive research to try to find out what kind of voice Barbie fans imagined her to have," said Rubenstein. "From

A country gets to be hundred years old! All at once flags are billowing against the azure sky, people are waving red, white and blue banners, souvenir buttons and coins and all sorts of keepsakes are for sale. But what's it really all about? As countries go, we're in the prime of life, but we're stillold enough to know better about a lot of things. So, on our united birthday, it might be a good idea to sit down and think about where we've been and where we're going. Let's conjecture about democacy. Let's realize that under our system, we can change things in Tuesday Wednesday an orderly fashion. And let's give II Kings Colossians thanks for our blessings, because we Americans still have many of Saturday them.

You need a place in which to think, in which to give thanks. The right kind of a place. How about the church?

Holy Trinity Church to dedicate campanile

Ceremonies dedicating the new bell tower, the plaza surrounding it and the carillon in the tower will highlight special weekend activities at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity. 1412 W. Illinois St.

The dedicatory service at 5:30 p.m. Sunday will mark conclusion of an extensive construction and remodeling program which has been under way at Holy Trinity Church the past two years. The program has included enlargement of the nave, the installation of a new pipe organ and remodeling of various existing facilities of the parish church.

The Rt. Rev. Willis R. Henton of Lubbock, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas, will be making his annual official viait to Holy Trinity parish when he comes here today to participate in the special activities. He will meet with members of the Vestry, the governing body of the parish, at 6 p.m., after which he will attend a dinner in his

Sunday morning during the 11 o'clock service, Bishop Henton will preside at confirmation rites for candidates for confirmation from both Holy Trinity and St. Nicholas' parishes, and he also will preach the sermon at the service.

The campanile, under construction here the last several months, is the gift of Mrs. Joe L. Crump, a longtime member of Holy Trinity parish, in memory of her late husband. The tower's design was given by Midland architect Frank Welch as his and Mrs. Welch's memorial to their late son, Baker Welch.

The carillon in the tower has been given in memory of Cmdr. John C. Stilley by his widow. The carillon, consisting of 25 bells, retains the tonal standards of the first "Anglican" (Episcopal) bells installed in America in 1764, in a church at Charleston, S. C.

Yet to be installed in the campanile is a set of three church bells now being manufactured in the Netherlands. The set is being given by Mrs. Crump as a further memorial to her husband. The bronze bells are scheduled to be raised in early spring.

The new tower is 70 feet in height, including the cross which tops the structure. The landscaped plaza surrounding the brick tower has been made possible through accumulated memorial gifts from parish members and numerous other residents of the

Professor calls for reformation

Copley News Service NEW YORK — It's time for a new reformation in the church. That is the call of Harvey Seifert, professor of Christian ethics at the School of Theology at Claremont, Calif., who sees a "disastrous con-tradiction" In the fact that the in-fluence of organized religion is waning at a time when a powerful church is needed.

To document his case, Seifert points to large numbers of people leaving traditional churches to pursue religion in their own way. This means, according to his analysis, that while support for the organized church is declining, interest in religion is on the increase.

People are seeking greater personal fulfillment than they ever have before, he said, while "the present pile-up of unresolved technical and ocial dilemmas constitutes an

the continued existence of humankind.

Seifert set forth his findings and recommendations in "New Power for the Church," which is being distributed by the Westminster Press, publishing house of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

He cited as evidence of heightened religiosity the pursuit of Eastern religions and meditation and significant increases in enrollment in college religion courses, particularly on nonsectarian campuses.

At the same time, church pews have been emptying. Seifert noted that church membership rose steadily from 16 per cent in 1850 through 36 per cent in 1900 and 57 per cent in 1960 to a high of 64.4 per cent in the mid-sixties. Then it started dropping and has been sliding ever historically unprecedented threat to to increased financial contributions as a sign of strength, he said, giving has fallen behind the inflationary rate to the point where during a recent year contributions went up 7.7 per cent, while the dollar lost 9.6 per cent of its purchasing power.

Organized religion can recoup some of its losses, qualitatively if not quantitatively, Seifert believes, by exploring ways to attract young people, the more highly educated and those seeking humanitarian change.

There are obstacles in reaching young people, he acknowledged, because there is less social pressure on them to affiliate with religious bodies and because they are more deeply alienated and less willing to accept compromise.

As for the highly educated, he cited the elevation of scientists to culture heroes who show evidence of holding increasingly unfavorable views of the church. While some intellectuals are maintaining contact with the church, he added, they have greater difficulty in accepting the traditional orientation of typical churches.

As for activists, Seifert says that some are discontented with organized religion because it is not concerned enough about social problems. Seifert sees several possibilities for the church. It can conduct a maintenance operation that might stabilize conditions temporarily with a limited influx of "those seeking refuge from current despondency and despair." Or the "radicals" in the church might abandon it, leaving it to collapse. The third and most hopeful option so far as Seifert is concerned would be a rapid and extensive reformation of existing churches. That might cause immediate reduction in membership and attendance, he said, but it would bring an increase in the proportion of deeply committed members, which might make the church more powerful than it has ever been before. A reformation should bring basic changes in the church power structure that would favor the laity, giving e responsibility and encouraging it to participate more fully in the life of every congregation, Seifert explained. So also would there be drastic realignments of priorities, more confrontations in which conflict is dealt with openly and constructively, and "a comparative shift in the source of our authority from the traditional record to the contemporary voice of God."

Seifert warns that such a new reformation would require more revolutionary changes than most present-members are now prepared to accept, so things could get much worse before they got better. But he also feels that there is a greater readiness for "vital religious exploration than we think.

The winner is the person who is trained well enough and so well-rounded in that training that he can show success in many demanding tests of athletic comsuccess in many demanding tests of athletic competition. He or she is not a one-event person with a Annual Bible study set smashing or spectacular win here and there, but competitive and trained in a number of skills.

The decathlon requires a balance and blend of physical talent.

It does not allow for overdevelopment, or exclusive, specialized training. The huge, bullshouldered shot-putter is not able to do well in the high jump or pole vault. The thin, lean distance runner has trouble throwing with force the javelin nor can he build up enough force to hurl the discus or hammer well.

The decathlon champion must be good at everything without the specialization which warps his physical development. Such persons must be able to be a winner on the broad front of many demanding skills, each requiring a different form of agility, strength and dedication.

It is no different than what life asks of us when we think about success. The restless driving ambition of a gifted executive is what moves him to the top of his field. The man becomes the undisputed master of the deal, and he knows how to manipulate men and

But if that success is obtained at the price of succeeding in other areas of his life, he has only one win in the decathlon of living, and he loses the game because he does so poorly in the other events of living that demand equal skill.

It's great to be a winner, and there is a no more feared word in our American culture than "failure." Dream of fast buck draws them to flying casino

WASHINGTON — The appeal of the newspaper ad is immediate: a 12-hour trip to the tropics, 7 hours in a casino, all for $6.

After all, somewhere at the end of every gambler's raindow lies the bigbuck, fast-cash, super-colossal Blackjack Bonanza. The ad says it between the lines: This could be it. Bring $500. and you'll get all the liquor you can consume, a meal each way on the plane, and a $5 chit for food at the gaming house.

And so they come: the bureaucrat who has snuck off for an evening of fun with his secretary; an antique dealer reliving crazy nights in the Caribbean while he was in college; a surgical supply dealer who says the only breaks in life are the big breaks; a bartender whose vacations are usually spent in Vegas.

Even as the DC-9 lifts off from Baltimore-Washington International airport, it is immediately obvious that this gambling junket has nothing to do with stylish means. Only the ends count. A formica counter comes out as the pilot turns off the seat-belt sign, and a $50-minimum poker game has a dozen leisure-suited men spilling thousands on the table.

If gambling has a leisure aspect velvet tuxedos and champagne in Monte Carlo - time forbids it here. You do not come for fun; you come to exorcise the demonic urge fulfilled by the flutter of the cards hitting the green velvet table, the hollow, metalic tinkle of the roulette wheel, the feel in the fingers of the plastic chip, token of potential riches.

The surgical supply dealer seems representative of his 104 companions on this flight, although his welltailored tweed suit is a notch above the abundance of chocolate brown and leprechaun green leisure suits. Life is tough, he says.

Sure, I make 25K on my business, and my kids are in college, and I can afford to drop $500. But there's always that thought in the back of your mind: You may get the great deal, your cards may come up right, $500 can turn into $5,000." In this case that means a trip to Europe without the kids, or maybe trade in the Buick for a cheap Mercedes. "Anyway," he says, "you have to get away from your wife every once in a while."

An IRS economist is reading Edward Thorpe's "Best The Dealer." He says the deck is always stacked against you. "You have to prove to the IRS that you didn't do something, right? They take the card off the top of the deck, so you never know what's really there. You go in for an audit, and you don't really know what they've got in their hand. Life is a big card game."

So why play, why take the risk? "How many people cheat on their income tax?" he asks. "How many people get caught? You have to be a cynic to stay alive. Sometimes you get a little break."

Maybe this trip is the little break for everybody on board. You call and pick one of three weekly flights. You pay $6 in departure taxes to Bahama Casino Fun Trips. In return, they ask that you bring $500 to cash into chips.

3-Lbs. or More, Fresh

Ground Beef

"No need to gamble," they say: The casino pays for the flight. And the casino knows what happens to someone with five pink hundreddollar chips stuck in his pants pocket, eyes watching the dice fall on the crap table, ears hearing the cries of astonishment when the $25 green-andred chip lying on the "boxcar" slot pays $775. Deep down we are all

Maybe it's the place itself: the 60foot ceilings, covered with gold geometric patterns; the air of Turkish opulence, however ersatz; the women whose only purpose is to bring you a fresh drink at the clap of the overseer's hands. It's not real. Time is suspended. So you do things you wouldn't ordinarily do. You're here for seven hours to fight against the odds. So you fight.

I fight. I have never shot craps. But there is $20,000 lying on the 12-footlong table, $500 resting in my pocket, and the croupier slides six large red dice across the table to me. "Your roll, sir," he says in well-clipped

I pick two dice, only to be cordially reminded — reminded! — that I must wager to shoot. Out comes a pink $100 chip. I change it and place $20 on the pass box, roll a six. Then a seven. I

And I keep playing, and losing. I don't even understand the game, and I am playing. There are 12 of us standing around this alter of Promise, and some of them certainly seem to be winning thousands — picking up pink chips, and handfuls of green-andred chips and routinely handing the croupier $5 white chips as tips "for the boys." In 10 minutes I have blown $400, and as I walk from the table the bartender in our group says to me: "You don't know the game, do you? You were betting against yourself half the time."

And then the fear comes in the belly: I have to win it back. Over to the blackjack tables, where it takes five hours to bring in $160. But this

up to $1000

seems more fun, perhaps because it breathes an air of logic and rationality. And there are the characters.

"Tough numbers kid, tough num-bers," a man named Mort says to his younger sidekick, Steve, who is losing his shirt. A guy with a woman young enough to be his granddaughter keeps saying to everybody, "Say hello to Miss Wisconsin, the prettiest little girl you'll ever meet." He's babbling about his rich aunt who gives him gambling money, and how he and Miss Wisconsin plan to spend a month at his aunt's condo in Naples, Fla., "as soon as the cards start coming right."

An FBI agent stoically watches his chips fade away, and mutters "The Bureau owns me." The now blotto bureaucrat leans over to his secretary and says, "I'd like to take you home with me, honey." And she manages to look at her watch and say, "Threethirty. We have to get back on the damn plane."

Cowboy toppers pay off

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) - Wear a brandspankin'-new cowboy hat and folks will know you're puttin' on the redneck chic.

But put on one of Charlie Tweddle's hats with your faded blue jeans and scuffed-up boots, and you'll be welcome in the meanest barrooms of San Antone.

Tweddle can't keep up with orders for the hats that he "ages" to look like they just came off the sweaty head of a cowboy back from a threemonth cattle drive.

"Shoot," Charlie says, looking around at the googaws and doodads that go onto the hats, "these things sell real good. Right now I'm like a prospector sittin' on a gold mine with nothin' but a pick and shovel to

Tweddle (pronounced Tweedle) business after an old Mexican fellow gave him a battered Stetson in a bar just outside his hometown of San Antonio, Tex.

Charlie loved that hat and set about to recreate it after it got lost somewhere in Arizona. After experimenting with various methods to make new ha, look as tired as the one he lost, he took a mess of 'em to a shop in Fairfax, Calif.

In a few days, the entire batch was sold.

Four years and several thousand hats later, Tweddle, 39, has perfected his method of turning clean straw hats and crisp, white good guy models made of wool into something out of a grade-B western.

He even adds what looks like a genuine sweat stain around the headband

"Ever' one of them looks a hundred years old," he says proudly. "I've heard of all kinds of famous people wearin' 'em," he says. "Even that girl who played 'Deep Throat.' What's her name? Linda Lovelace, that's right. She bought one." Rock star Stephen Stills owns several, Charlie says, and even Engelbert Humperdinck is a customer.

No two hats are exactly alike, decorated with feathers or furs or rattler. skins or the face of a skinned tree squirrel.

"Sometimes the hats look kinda creepy in a Red Deliciou way, but they have a stoples he reflects.

Working alone in the garage of his San Rafael home, Tweddle turns out about 60 hats a month that sell for $60 to $300 that sell for $60 to $300 ceach in 50 shops around Golden Ripe

What he'd like, he says, is to find a partner who could massproduce the hats — without sacrificing Tweddle quality — and leave him free to think up ideas for what to put on the next batch.

Oswald wanted to give Russia

information

By RONALD KESSLER Washington Post

WASHINGTON - In late September 1963 — eight weeks before the assassination of President Kennedy - Lee Harvey Oswald telephoned the Soviet Embassy in Mexico City and tried to make a deal.

In exchange for unspecified information, he wanted a free trip to

This conversation was intercepted and recorded by the Central Intelligence Agency at the time. But it was not then turned over to the FBI, which has responsibility for investigating possible spies, and it was not later turned over to the Warren Commission during its investigation of the assassination.

The unanswered question is why

The existence of the CIA telephone intercept of Oswald's conversation in Mexico City and the contents of the still-secret transcript have been verified by The Washington Post. The Post has also verified that the CIA failed to turn over the complete transcript to either the FBI or the Warren Commission.

Instead, the CIA gave the FBI in October 1963 only a brief report saying Oswald had made contact with the Russians. It gave the Warren Commission a transcript of the taped conversation but for unexplained reasons failed to include in the transcript Oswald's offer of information and his suggestion that the Russians would want to pay his way to the Soviet Union.

The Post has also determined that the CIA, for unexplained reasons, told the Warren Commission that it learned of most of Oswald's activities in Mexico City only after the assassination. The fact is, however, that the CIA monitored and taperecorded his conversations with both the Russian and Cuban embassies in Mexico City in the fall of 1963, before Kennedy's death

It was the CIA's belief that the two embassies were heavily into the spy business and that, specifically, they were operational bases for intelligence activities directed at the United States. So, with the full cooperation of the Mexican government, CIA wiretaps were installed on telephone lines going into both embassies. The CIA was especially interested in U.S. citizens who made contact with the embassies. Thus, when Oswald showed up in Mexico City in late September and telephoned the Russian embassy, his conversation was picked up from the wiretap. A transcript was made and circulated in the CIA offices in the American Embassy in Mexico City. The station chief, at that time, was the late Winston M. Scott, who personally reviewed all transcripts emanating from wiretaps on Sovietbloc installations. The Oswald transcript, according to a CIA translator who worked with Scott, aroused a lot of interest. "They usually picked up the transcripts the next day," he said.

"This they wanted right away." What that transcript contained is a matter of some dispute, and the CIA says it routinely destroyed the tape before the assassination. But some people wh saw the transcript or heard the tape before the assassination recall that Oswald was trying to make a deal.

One of them is David A. Phillips, a former CIA officer, who now heads the Association of Retired Intelligence Officers and is a leading defender of CIA activities. Phillips was stationed in Mexico City at the time.

The transcript revealed, Phillips recalled, that Oswald told the Soviet embassy: "I have information you would be interested in, and I know you can pay my way (to Russia.).'

The stenographer who typed up the transcript and the translator who prepared ithad a similar recollection.

"He said he had some information to tell them," the typist said in an interview in Mexico. "His main concern was getting to one of the two countries (Russia or Cuba) and he wanted them to pay for it. He said he had to meet them.

The Warren Commission later concluded the Russians and Cubans were not much impressed by Oswald. This view is supported by Sylvia Duran, a Mexican citizen who worked in the Cuban embassy at the time of Oswald's visit. She talked to Oswald on Sept., 27, 1963 and recalls the meeting in some detail.

In a joint interview in Mexico City with this reporter and Post special correspondent Marlise Simons, Duran said Oswald told her that he wanted to travel to Cuba and Russia and displayed documents to show he was a "friend" of the Cuban revolution. Among other things, he claimed to be a member of the American Communist party. Duran said she informed Oswald that in order to travel to Russia he would have to obtain permission from the Soviets. Oswald went off and returned later in the day to inform Duran that he had obtained the necessary permission. Duran said she called the Soviet Embassy and was told Oswald's application for a visa would take three to four months to process Informed of this, Duran said, Oswald "got really angry and red. He was gesticulating." Duran said she had to call for help from the Cuban Consul who got into a shouting match with Oswald and told him to get out.

Duran said she never saw him again. However, Duran's story covered only the first day of Oswald's five-day stay in Mexico City. Oswald later referred in a letter to "meetings" he had in the Soviet Embassy.

How interested the CIA was in Oswald's dealings with the two embassies is uncertain.

The translator and typist who handled the transcript of the intercepted conversation recalled that the level of interest was high. But the CIA's own actions lead to a different conclusion.

The agency waited until Oct. 10. 1963 to notify the FBI of Oswald's activities. And its teletyped report made no mention of Oswald's offer of information in exchange for a free trip to Russia or of his attempts to travel to Cuba and Russia. "On Oct. 1, 1963," the teletype message said, "a reliable and sensitive source in Mexico reported that an American male, who identified himself as Lee Oswald, contacted the Soviet Embassy in Mexico City inquiring whether the embassy had received any news concerning a telegram which had been sent to Washington."

That was strictly a routine handling of the matter, and similar to the standard reports made to the FBI at that time on other contacts with the Communists by American citizens in

Even after Kennedy's assassination, the CIA failed to turn over to the Warren Commission the full transcript of the telephone intercept it had made in Mexico City. Oswald's offer of information to the Russians in exchange for passage was omitted from the transcript, and the CIA claimed it did not know of most of Oswald's activities in Mexico City until after the assassination.

The significance of the CIA actions is difficult to assess. The FBI in the fall of 1963 was already showing intermittent interest in Oswald and may or may not have intensified that interest if it had been told of Oswald's conversations.

Whether the new information would have affected the Warren Commission's deliberations is also an op question. The commission investigated the possibility of a foreign conspiracy and concluded there was no evidence to show Oswald acted on behalf of a foreign power. Nevertheless, there is yet no explanation for the CIA's handling of Oswald's conversations. The CIA today refuses to comment, saving it would not be appropriate in the light of an impending investigation by the House Select Committee on Assassination.

When asked if they could explain the agency's actions, some CIA officers stationed at the time in Mexico City said the CIA may have had a relationship with Oswald that it sought to conceal. The CIA has denied

David W. Belin, who was an assistant counsel to the Warren Commission and later executive director of the Rockefeller Commission's probe of the CIA, said that if the Warren Commission had known of Oswald's conversations and other new information, it would have been less sure that the assassination was not part of a foreign conspiracy.

Sen. Richard S. Schweiker (R-Pa.), who led the Senate intelligence committee's probe of the assassination, said that investigation would have taken on an "entirely different direction and perspective" if the committee had been aware of Oswald's conversations.

In interviews with The Post, Belin who documented the CIA plots against Castro in his capacity as executive director of the Rockefeller Commission, revealed the CIA also did not tell the Warren Commission of a report from an alleged witness to a meeting in Mexico City between Oswald and Cuban intelligence

At the time, Cuban agents coordinated their more important activities with agents of the KGB, the Soviet intelligence service.

Belin called on the CIA to make full disclosure of its knowledge of Oswald and his contacts with the Cubans and Russians.

Belin, a staunch defender of the Warren Commission's conclusion that Oswald was the lone assassin who killed Kennedy, said he recognizes the CIA's concern about disclosing secret sources and intelligence techniques. But he said a greater national interest would be served by disclosing the

A CIA spokesman specifically denied that the agency has a report of a meeting between Oswald and Cuban agents. "The agency is aware of only one such specific allegation, and that was debunked," the spokesman said.

New bridge opens at Laredo

LAREDO, Tex./(AP) - Officials of the United States and Mexico opened the new $3.4 million bridge across the Rio Grande here Friday, with Mexican President Luis Echeverria calling it a symbol of friendship between the two nations.

The span, officially named the Juarez-Lincoln International Bridge, was a joint project between the permit and beer city of Laredo, Tex., and its sister city across the river, Nuevo Laredo, Mexico. The bridge represents 12 years of negotiations between the governments of Mexico and the United States, as well as the two cities.

In ceremonies at the center of the bridge, which marks the boundary between the two nations, Echeverria cut a red, white and green ribbon. A few yards across from him, Laredo Mayor J.C. Martin Jr. cut a red, white and blue ribbon. The two men met each other and exchanged em-

the North America and South America. Echeverria, who leaves office next week, made no mention of Mexico's recent financial problems. The President waved to the crowd as spectators chanted 'Viva Echeverria" and "Viva Mexico."

At Echeverria's request, two high school bands played "The Mexican Hat Dance. The bridge, named for Benito Juarez, a Mexican patriot, and U.S. President Abraham Lincoln, is the second span between the two nations here. The new bridge will serve the daily commuter traffic between the two cities. The existing bridge, constructed in 1954, will

Two-car crash kills five people

By The Associated Press two-car collision that killed five persons near Elgin highlighted the violent death toll in Texas as the lengthy Thanksgiving Day holiday moved into its final two days.

On Friday afternoon the violent death count stood at 33 with traffic accidents accounting for 23. Shootings came next with five. The holiday death count began at 6 p.m. Wednesday and continues until midnight Sunday. The crash causing five deaths occurred four miles east of Elgin in Central Texas on U.S. 290, State police listed the dead as Taim Lele, 26, a Cambodian who had lived at Elgin; Sim Keo, another Cambodian from Austin; and three Austin residents — Elizabeth Lucy Hernandez, 27, Janie Marie Roberts, 15, and Elena Roberts, 23.

Texas authorities said this was how some of the latest victims died: Jose H. Tarango, 28, of El Paso was found slain in his apartment Friday with his throat cut. Officers said his car was missing.

Jill Kinmont to be married

BISHOP, Calif. (AP) - Jill Kinmont, whose paralyzing ski accident was dramatized in the film The Other Side of the Mountain," married a man from her hometown Friday. Miss Kinmont, 40, wed John G. Boothe, 35, before about 40 family members. Boothe works for a local trucking firm and his bride teaches remedial reading in the Bishop schools. The couple met two years ago when Miss Kinmont and her mother moved back to the High Sierra resort town of Bishop, where skiing is a way of life, and rented a home from Boothe. She had been teaching in Beverly Hills. Miss Kinmont was the nation's top skiing hope for the 1956 Olympics when she took a spill during a giant slalom competition at Alta, Utah, in 1955, and slammed into a tree, crushing three vertebrae. 'The Other Side of the Mountain," starring

Marilyn Hassett and Beau Bridges, was released last year and focused on the relationship between Miss Kinmont and Dick Buek, who helped her recover from the accident. Buck was killed in a plane crash 19 years ago. Miss Kinmont never married after Buek's death.

She said she had planned to marry Buek. Her wedding to Boothe took place in the home of her closest childhood friend, Audra Jo Baumgarth, a skier whose legs were paralyzed by polio two years before Miss Kinmont's accident. Both women are confined to wheelchairs and Miss Baumgarth was also portrayed in the motion picture Miss Kinmont said she became friends with Boothe because of her interest in the history of the Bishop area. She said Boothe takes her on car trips through the mountains around Bishop, about 300 miles nor-theast of Los Angeles, where the Gold Rush created a boom in the last century and skiers have brought a a fast-action Want Ad!

Fighting inflation can be likened to football

-- if you want to gain ground you must make the right moves. In the buying and selling game, the smart players make the move to Classified. They can find extra cash by selling their no-longer-needed items in a sure-fire Want

Ad. They make gains two ways -- added income and roomier storage areas. To further bolster your defense against inflation, rely on Classified for money-saving bargains. Whether your needs are great -- such as a better home or new car -- or whether you would like a CB radio.

Classified is the great stay-at-home bargain center. Hold that line against inflation and make some big gains in cash and savings. Call our Classified department.

Airline, hotel overbooking grows at rapid rate

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - When New York congressmen Lester L. Wolff and Richard Ottinger arrived at La Guardia Airport for an American Airlines flight here the other day they were bumped because too many seats had been sold. The practice, called overbooking, isn't unusual, but this time the unexpected happened: everyone showed up for the flight.

Both men were indignant. The two legislators had missed several votes in the House, Wolff charged. His colleague labeled the airlines' overbooking tactics "an unfair and deceptive practice."

This bumping incident — not an isolated case by any means — also prominent to be immune. Deliberate overbooking - the selling of more seats than are available - is an everyday practice.

And while the percentage of passengers affected is small in comparison to the total number who fly, it is highly frustrating to persons who miss important business appointments or fail to make deathbed visits to loved ones.

The problem is increasing at what the Civil Aeronautics Board calls "a clearly unacceptable rate." Last year more than 130,000 passenger were denied confirmed space or were bumped, up 30 per cent from 1973. The figure is expected to rise still further this year.

The airlines aren't the only culprits

in overbooking. It is also a regular business practice in the hotel industry and currently is the subject of a major inquiry by the Federal Trade Com-

According to Rodney E. Gould, assistant regional director of the Boston FTC office which is conducting the investigation, overbooking in some instances goes as high as 50 per cent. That is to say if the hotel has 100 rooms, it may take reservations for 150.

Overbooking sometimes reaches crisis stages in resorts with high hotel occupancy rates such as Las Vegas, Hawaii and areas of the Caribbean, Gould says.

When a confirmed hotel guest is sent elsewhere, the practice is known in the industry as "walking."

fenders, others are overly cautious. aware that "walking" a guest can result in severe loss of good faith. According to Harry Mullikin, president of the Western International Hotels chain, when a confirmed guest is sent walking from any of Western's 50 hotels, he "rides" in a taxi to another hotel. Western International pays for his transportation and for the one night in the other hotel. A report of every instance must be made by the hotel manager to Mullikin.

"We'd rather have an empty room than walk a guest," he says. Mullikin, who is also president of the American Hotel and Motel Assn.,

maintains that industrywide a very small number - 0.3 per cent of all hotel guests in America - are

It might be easy to condemn the two areas of the travel industry. But both say there is another side to the coin.

They overbook as a defense against an undisciplined American public which makes reservations but doesn't cancel them when plans are changed. Such people who never appear are labeled "no shows."

According to the Hotel and Motel Assn., no shows result from fully 10 per cent of all reservations. That translates into 10 million lost guest rooms annually. At the average annual rate of $27.27, the losses total about $272 million, the association

The hotel industry has launched an intensive campaign to educate the public to cancel their reservations.

Also, in conjunction with the American Express Co., three big hotel chains — Holiday Inns, Sheraton Hotels and Rodeway Inns — have begun beefing up their so-called guaranteed reservations system.

The nation's air carriers readily admit that they overbook to varying degrees but staunchly defend the practice. Recently, the International Air Transportation Assn. said it had no intention of eliminating the practice despite pressure to do so. Some overbooking is deliberate, some is due to human error.

The airlines have cautioned the CAB, which is considering changing some of the rules concerning overbooking, against outlawing or greatly

The No. 7-ranked Robert E. Lee Rebels square off with the big and speedy Arlington Sam Houston Texans today in a Class AAAA regional playoff game at San Angelo

Lee, with an impressive 17-0 victory under its belt against Euless Trinity last weekend in bi-district action, faces a much quicker outfit today.

Coach Jim Acree's Rebels take a 10record into the game compared to Sam Houston's 11-0 reading. Last week, the Texans posted a 20-11 who has rushed for 871 yards. Lee, meanwhile, has a balanced victory over the Arlington Heights attack on the ground and through the Yellowjackets in their bi-district airways with senior quarterback Brad Wright triggering the offense. Wright has passed for 653 yards on the season, hitting 42 of 80 passes for eight touchdowns. Sam Houston signalcaller, Tony Rollins, stays on the ground more, but has hit 37 of 91 passes for 520 yards and five TDs. Rollins' favorite receiver has been tight end Dennis Brown, a 210-pound senior, who has latched on to 20 passes for 259 yards and three scores. line and John Marks has gained 334 yards in 56 carries.

Brian Ramey, 230-pound senior tackle, may get to play more than he has in recent games since his knee injury in the Big Spring game. Craig Graphman, 220 senior is the other tackle in the interior line and they are joined by Donald Salinas (205) and Mike Casey (185) at the guard slots. David Dakil (200) starts at center.

On defense, Jeff Degenfelder (187), Dakil and Salinas head a tough middle corps with McCowan and

Stewart at the end positions. Todd Clements and Jeff Mathews have played well in the past four games at the cornerback slots while Mike Kerley and Crowell man the safety positions.

Sam Houston is big with Randy Hudson (230), Murray Francis (210), anchoring down the offensive line. They are joined by Brown (210), Loyd Stephens (230) and along with Jimmy Moore (200) and Richard Pursley (200).

Another 210-pounder, Charles Busby, joins the defensive unit.

It shapes up as a very physical game with the winner moving on the to the quarterfinals next weekend.

The dwindling college football season offers some major showdowns in the final full weekend of action. Headlining Saturday's schedule are the traditional showdowns between Army and Navy at Philadelphia and No. 13 Notre Dame and No. 3 Southern California at Los Angeles. Other match-ups involving ranked teams include No. 18 Alabama vs. Auburn at Birmingham, No. 14 Oklahoma State at Texas-El Paso, Georgia Tech at No. 4 Georgia. No. 9 Texas Tech vs. Arkansas at Little Rock and No. 7 Houston at Rice.

THE BIG weekend got underway Thursday when No. 11 Texas A&M routed Texas 27-3, No. 17 Rutgers completed an undefeated season with a 17-9 decision over Colgate, East Carolina beat Appalachian State 35-7 and Kent State walloped Northern Il-

BEHIND HALL, Army has a 4-6 record, a shade better than Navy's 3-7 log. Army leads the series 36-34, with six games ending in ties.

Unlike Army-Navy, the Notre Dame-USC clash sends two ranked and bowl-bound teams at each other. The Irish are No. 13 and headed for the Gator Bowl. USC is No. 3 and will host the Rose Bowl.

"The Notre Dame-USC series is the best intersectional rivalry in college football," said Johnny Robinson, coach of the Trojans. "Our players love to play in big games, and this is always one.

Both teams have solid offensive weapons. Southern Cal relies on the running of Rickey Bell, and Notre Dame can counter that with halfback

Kroc knocks Reggie's agent

CHICAGO (AP) - Free agent Reggie Jackson would have signed with San Diego if he didn't have "a juvenile for an agent," says Padres' owner Ray Kroc.

"Reggie is a great guy. He's got a great personality. And he's a great person. But he's got a juvenile for an agent. He can't make up his mind," Kroc said Friday in a telephone inter-available for comment. "IF I was dealing with Reggie Jackson, I'm sure we would have reached an agreement a long time ago," said Kroc, who has now signed his quota of two free agents.

He said the Padres signed former Oakland relief pitcher Rollie Fingers after they gave up on Jackson Thursday morning. The Padres also signed another former Oakland player, Gene Tenace.

The Montreal Expos and New York Yankees are now considered the two teams most likely to win the bidding war for Jackson, the slugging out-fielder who played for Baltimore last season after being dealt away by Oakland.

Kroc met with Jackson and Walker this week in Chicago.

"I got along beautifully with Reg-gie," said Kroc. "But this agent of his,

Soderholm inks with White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) - Eric Soderholm, a former Minnesota Twins infielder with a .257 career batting average, has signed with the Chicago White Sox, owner Bill Veeck said Friday. Terms of the one-year contract were not disclosed. Soderholm, 28, is the second free agent signed by the Sox in as many days, The other was Steve Stone, a pitcher with the Chicago Cubs last my goodness sakes, he's not a businessman.

"IT'S VERY difficult to deal with him. He says he's going to call us and he doesn't call us. He says 'I'll be back to you in two hours,' and in 31/2 hours I don't hear from him."

Kroc said Walker revised aspects of the offer to the Padres in areas other than salary. But he refused to disclose details of the negotiations.

"All of a sudden there're additions, there're changes. We never got to a concrete fix.

"I'd been on that thing for 30 hours straight. That gets to be a little crazy. If you can't get things worked out in an hour, I guess you never will."

He said he dealt with Jerry Kapstein, Fingers' agent, and found "he was wonderful to deal with. It was very businesslike.

'I never went through such a 30 hours in my life as I went through with this Gary Walker."

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Oklahoma used a Peacock and a pair of dipsy doodle plays engineered by substitute Sooners to turn Nebraska's post Thanksgiving Friday from Orange to Biue with a 20-17 football victory.

The No. 8-Sooners unleashed halfback Elvis Peacock for three touchdowns knocking 10th-ranked Nebraska out of the Orange Bowl and into the Huskers' second bowl preference at Houston's Astro-

The victory gave Oklahoma a share of the Big Eight title with Oklahoma State and Colorado, and sent Colorado into the Orange Bowl and the Sooners to the Fiesta Bowl.

"Colorado may be happy, but I know Oklahoma is happy, too," said

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer. Peacock's trio of touchdowns came on short runs, but it was razzle dazzle passing in the fourth quarter that put him in position for the third and the only Sooner passes of the day.

A halfback pass from Woody Shepard to Steve Rhoades covered 47 yards and put the Sooners in good field position as Okahoma trailed 17-13. Shepard was in the game for the first time to toss the aerial.

Moments later, the injured Dean Blevins came in for the first time at quarterback for starter Tom Lott and hit Rhoades, who lateraled to Peacock. Peacock carried it to the two and scored one play later. Nebraska defensive coach Monte Kiffin called the pass and lateral play "a grade school play." It set up the winning touchdown scored with only "We felt that play would work anytime because Nebraska's backs weren't coming up," Peacock said. "It was the best game I ever played, but on that last touchdown I was running for my life." Switzer said neither the halfback pass nor the pass-lateral plays had been used this year, but they went just flies through the air in game at Lincoln, Neb.,

"We should always be alert for new plays," said Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne. "And there is no excuse for them being successful except that they were executed well."

The Husker co-captains viewed the loss this way: "We're sputtering now but we'll bounce back," said quarterback Vince Ferragamo, whose passing kept Nebraska in the game. "We had them until the last minute and a half; then they had a few finesse plays and got lucky," said linebacker Nebraska's scores came on a field goal by Al Eveland in the first half and in a third-quarter burst which provided two rushing touchdowns by

Cubs' organization waits for other shoe to drop

BY TED BATTLES

Now that the first shoe has dropped, a lot of old friends in the Chicago Cubs' organization are waiting for the other shoe to clatter to the floor after the appointment of Bob Kennedy as general manager this week.

Kennedy's first act as new GM was to fire Jim Marshall as field manager. just when it seemed Jim might have earned a reprieve with the Cubs' respectable second half finish in which the club played around .500

PHILIP K. Wrigley, 81-year-old owner, created uneasiness in the

Cubs' front office several weeks ago when he promised sweeping changes that might even result in the return of one-time manager Leo Durocher as general manager-or head of the farm

Wrigley remembered that it was Leo who brought Chicago its most successful era since that last pennant in 1945 when the Cubs came close to a pennant in 1969, the high point of his stormy tenure as manager.

Even if he didn't win a pennant, Wrigley was aware that Leo created excitement, the kind that made the turnstiles spin.

ALMOST IN the same breath with his consideration of Leo, Wrigley promised that the next Cubs' general manager would be a businessman first and a baseball man second. He pointed to an alleged $900,000 loss as reason enough.

"I'd like to see the team run like a business," Wrigley said, "So it's obvious I'd bring a businessman in to Salty Saltwell, who served one year as GM, disputed the $900,000 loss figure and also took issue with Wrigley's contention that, "Every time I call the office, they are all out watching the game.'

"I HAVE a phone next to me in the press box," contended Saltwell, "and there's never been a time that I know of when I haven't been available."

Still, his protests failed to save his job and now he moves back his post as overseer of park operations, a job that former Midland Cubs' general manager Stoney Feeney took over last winter.

Kennedy's immediate dismissal of Marshall and apppointment of Herman Franks as manager portends of other changes.

FRANKS, NATURALLY, will bring in his own coaches, but it remains to be seen what other changes Kennedy What kind of jeopardy, for example, is John Cox in.? Cox, former Midland Cuba GM, has been serving as assistant GM to Saltwell.

Will there be changes that will effect farm director Vedie Himsl and others as Kennedy attempts to make good his vow to upgrade the Cubs' farm system to make it both competitive and productive?

Will Kennedy bring in his own people or will he go with the baseball people in the organization, installing his own battle plan to be implemented by present personnel.

KENNEDY ISN'T a stranger to the Chicago organization. He was part of the Cubs Board of Coaches back in the 1960s when a board of eight coaches, with a rotating head coach, ran the

It was a revolutionary idea, designed to bring specialized instruction to all phases of the game, but never really caught on.

However, Bobby Adams defends it by pointing out that it was the forerunner of the roving minor league coaches, used by virtually every organization today.

Kennedy worked with several current coaches in the Cubs system such as Adams and Himsl, still there will be a lot of baited breaths until that other shoe falls.

Borg wins over Fibak in tennis

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Bjorn Borg pocketed a check for $30,000 after beating Wojtek Fibak in the final of a round-robin invitational tennis tournament Friday, then headed back to his native Sweden for a working vacation.

Borg's first service has not been as strong or as reliable as usual recently, and the young Swede plans to work on this with his coach, Lennart Bergeron.

"He recently demonstrated a wrong rhythm stepping forward in his first service," the coach said, "and we will have to correct that."

Against Fibak, Borg stayed with his dependable baseline game, waiting patiently for his Polish opponent to make the mistakes in winning 7-5, 3-6, 7-6, 7-5. He took advantage of Fibak's weak backhand to score consistently.

Borg scored a service break in the very first game, saw Fibak tie the set then broke through again in the 13th game. His serve betrayed him in the second set, which Fibak won handily. In the key third set, Borg jumped out to leads of 3-0 and 5-3 before Fibak, luring the Swede to the net, rallied to tie it 6-6. Borg came back to take control of the tiebreaker, closing it out with a volley down the line which made Fibak bow in respect.

Read fired at Oregon

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Head football coach Don Read of the University of Oregon has been fired, school officials said today.

Read, who just finished his third year at Oregon, compiled a record of nine wins and 24 losses. He has a year to go on a two-year contract.

Except for a victory over archrival Oregon State University, Oregon was winless in the Pac-8 this season. The Ducks won two Pac-8 games in 1975 and none in 1974 under Read.

Read was an assistant coach in charge of quarterbacks and receivers for two years before replacing Dick Enright as head coach.

City tourney approaches

By RANDY ISENBERG

The holiday season began this week with traditional family get togethers and turkey dinners. I hope everyone had a very happy Thanksgiving.

Next Saturday begins the men's city championship tournament. No official word on the number of entries from director Jack Francis. Team event is at Super Bowl and Doubles & Singles is at Air Park Lanes.

Big games this week were bowled by Bonnie Saunders in the Morning Glory's League, 244-580, Joe Repman, 231-222-611, Bob Walker, 244, Jerry Baugh, 231, and Harvey Sherman,

Arizona, A-State to get green light for Pac-8

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - The University of Arizona and Arizona State University are expected to receive approval Saturday to begin formal negotiations to join the Pacific-8 Conference.

The Arizona Board of Regents, governing body for state universities, will vote on a committee recommendation that the negotiations be allowed.

The regents' policy committee approved the recommendation Friday in a voice vote, with four of the five committee members in favor. Among other regents, at least two are known to favor the move, establishing a majority on the 10-member board.

Officials of the two schools outlined their proposals before the committee Friday and said there are two major problems to be resolved, financing and scheduling of sports events.

Arizona President John P. Schaefer said his school's net gain in annual revenues would be $230,000 a year in revenues would be $230,000 a year in the PAC 8. That includes an estimated $50,000 loss in basketball revenues due to the existing PAC 8 to recon-sider its basketball revenues for-mula," Schaefer told the regents. He said that would be one area the schools would concentrate on in formal negotiations.

Arizona State Vice President Alonzo V. Metcalf said the Tempe gain by joining the PAC 8 and even could experience a loss of as much as a $120,000 a year. Metcalf said a change in the basketball revenue for-

The new head coach at USC, John Robinson, is quickly gaining the reputation as a talker. If he doesn't have a ready opinion, he can form a pretty good one as he goes.

HE'S WILLING to talk about more than the blocking technique of his strong tackle. And since he has a reasonably high place in the sports structure hereabouts, his opinions are worth some attention. The question came up the other day as to why relatively few college quarterbacks get hurt. When his "I don't know" answer was greeted with silence, he proceeded:

"The pros are more oriented toward rushing the passer," he said. "That's because the offenses are pretty much the same, and you can turn the front four loose and still cover yourself. "But the college game has so many different styles, the defense has to adapt each week, so there can't be as much emphasis on rushing the quarterback."

THE NEXT issue was spying. following charges by Texas Coach Darrell Royal that Oklahoma was watching practices before their game earlier this season.

Ms. Young Colgate next stop for unbeaten Rutgers

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Where does Rutgers' unbeaten and uninvited football team go from here? The next stop actually is Hamilton, N.Y., where the Scarlet Knights kick off the 1977 campaign against Colgate, the same team they beat 17-9

Thursday night to wrap up an 11-0 season, best in the school's 108-year football history. But Rutgers' future goes beyond that as the cuniversity which helped start the college football madness against Princeton in 1869 seeks national recognition and a big-time pro-

'We're ready to play good football teams," said Coach Frank Burns, who has led Rutgers to a 33-10-1 mark in four seasons and a No. 17 national ranking this year.

"I'll be honest," he said. "We have to keep building and improve our depth. We've come along a little bit faster than we expected."

SO FAST that the Knights burst into the bowl picture a bit too suddenly catching promoters by surprise and making them wonder who this team was bidding for a postseason trip just like the Alabamas and Nebraskas and Bypassed by the Peach (Kentucky-North Carolina) and Tangerine (Oklahoma State-Brigham Young) bowls, Rutgers rejected a feeler from the fledgling Independence Bowl at Shreveport, La., in order to concen-trate on Colgate.

"WE WOULD have liked to continue the football season," said Fred Gruninger, Rutgers' athletic director. "However, an unbeaten season is what we were looking for. This achievement makes it a super, super

Despite that accomplishment, most of the voters who do the ratings don't believe in Rutgers because of a schedule that senimpem against four college division teams. Four more are on the slate for 1977 and 1978, although Gruninger is working on some

The only one finalized thus far is dropping Colgate for Penn State in

"We are phasing out the teams we scheduled 10 years ago," Gruninger said. "This year set a standard, and people will take notice in the future. But that doesn't guarantee anything.' All it guarantees is a trip to Colgate for 1977 openers.
