Cold weather blamed for increased oil use

WASHINGTON (AP) - American use of oil hit a new high in December. and while the government is blaming colder weather for the increase the weather bureau says January temperatures also will be below normal for the eastern half of the nation.

In a report Wednesday, the Federal Energy Aministration said U.S. demand for oil averaged about 19,131,000 barrels a day during the four weeks that ended Dec. 17.

That broke the previous record of 19,094,000 barrels of oil per day, recorded in February 1973, the winter before the Arab oil embargo.

The agency noted that use of oil has been more restrained since the embargo, aided in part by unusually mild winters the past two years.

But cold weather has returned to the eastern half of the nation this winter, and the FEA said that was largely responsible for the heavier use of fuel oils used both in home heating units and in the generation of electric power.

Meanwhile, the National Weather Service said the cold December weather is going to be followed by colder January weather.

The weather service said in a report on Wednesday that it expects temperatures to average below normal in most areas east of the Continental Divide and in the southern Rocky Mountains

In its report, the FEA said the demand for oil in December was more than 11 per cent above the demand during the same period last year and almost 9 per cent higher than demand in December 1973.

The FEA said the largest increase over the 1975 figures was a 22.4 per cent hike in the use of distillate fuel oils such as those used in home heating units. It said the use of residual or heavy fuel oil, mostly used for generation of electricity and by industry, climbed 20.3 per cent over last year.

The FEA said gasoline consumption was about 4.5 per cent higher than a year ago and that the use of other petroleum products rose 6.9 per cent over last year.

Ford seeking end to gasoline freeze

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — President Ford is preparing to end government controls on the price of gasoline, a move already drawing criticism from a Democratic Congress that has the power to block the plan.

Ford aide John Carlson said freeing oil companies of price controls would have little effect on the cost of fuel at the service station pump, but opponents of decontrol have claimed that such a move could increase prices by as much as six cents per

The Federal Energy Administration said decontrol could hike unleaded gasoline by two cents per gallon, raising the price of all gasoline sold in the United States by about $130 million a day.

Carlson said the presidential order would be the last step in a program energy products by the end of his administration. Gasoline is the only major oil product still under federal controls at the retail level.

Carlson said Ford probably will issue the order by Jan. 4, the day

Congress reconvenes. Congress then would decide whether to override the order before President-elect Carter's inauguration on Jan. 20.

Carlson quoted Ford as saying he thinks it will be a "close call" to win approval of the plan in what could shape up as his final struggle with Congress.

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., quickly vowed to fight Ford's proposal, calling it "a belated Christmas gift to the oil industry." Udall said the move would be unfair to consumers as well as inflationary.

Ford also said he expects to decide within a week whether to reconsider granting amnesty to Vietnam draft evaders and deserters.

Year's first baby to win city title

An array of prizes will be given to the parents of the first baby born in Midland in the new year in a contest conducted by the Classified Advertising Department of The Reporter-Telegram.

Details of the Mr. or Miss Midland 1977 contest appear in the classified section of today's editions.

Prizes include a $5 gift certificate from J. C. Penney Co. Inc.; an Elsie doll, a floral arrangement and a set of drinking glasses from Borden Inc.; a comforter and pillow set from Sears Roebuck and Co.; two boxes of disposable diapers from M-System Discount Food Stores; a $25 savings account with The Midland National Bank; a novelty arrangement from Buddy's Flowers; an auto lube from A. R. Sanchez Gulf station; five gallons of water from Ozarka Water, and an adjustable baby carry seat from the Western Auto Associate Store at 311 E. Illinois Ave.

The winner will be the first baby born in Midland Memorial Hospital during the new year.

Experts downplay need for shots

ATLANTA (AP) - With the nation's swine flu inoculation program suspended for at least another few weeks, some experts are predicting that there will be no need to resume it at all this winter. The federal Center for Disease Control ordered Wednesday that the moratorium begun Dec. 16 be extended until the strange paralytic disease called Guillain-Barre Syndrome can be studied more closely to determine whether it is linked to the vaccinations. Several experts who met at the CDC here said the program probably would be reinstated only if signs of a flu epidemic appeared. They said there appears to be no threat of widespread swine flu or A-Victoria

Carter won't release personal finance plan

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Presidentelect Carter says he is not ready to announce what he will do with his own extensive financial interests while in the White House. But he prom ses to abide by the same restrictions he plans to place on his top appointees.

Carter commented on his financial holdings and on a conflict-of-interest code Wednesday shortly before he returned to his home here after holding preinaugural cabinet

Aides said the code of ethics for all those Carter names to high positions would be made public late today or Friday.

For three days, the President-elect held marathon meetings with his

Mashburn calls for more courts

By JIM STEINBERG

"We have a good system of laws. Now what we need is a better way to utilize those laws in the courts," Midland district at-torney James Mashburn, who Friday will end his 11-year career as the top local law enforcement official

Referring to a backlog of 700 criminal cases in the 142nd Distric Court Mashburn said:

"In 1965 the creation of a court of domestic relations for Midland County was a tem-porary measure that could be financed locally until the legislature could approve either another district court in its place or an addition to it.

"At every legislature since 1965 there has been an attempt made to get approval for the additional district court, but something has always happened to prevent that from coming to pass. During the last session that bill was approved, but only after the clock ran out for the

'This shortage of state courts

is a problem throughout Texas. but it is more acute in West Texas, especially Midland,' Mashburn said. "Six months should be tops as far as the lapse between the time a suspect is arrested and the time they go to trial. A speedy trial is important not so much for the defendant — most defendants never want to go to trial - as it is for the victim." Mashburn said.

"People forget that the district attorney is the one who must deal with the victims of crime, those who have been hurt or have lost their loved ones. And they must answer to these people as the months go by and their case has not been brought

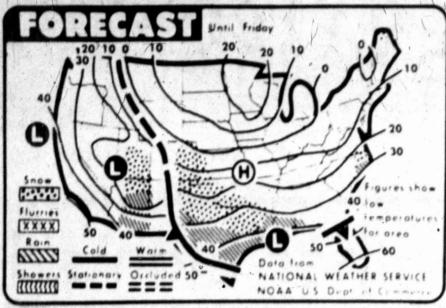

"Most defendants." the district attorney said, "think somehow they will never be con-victed. Somehow they think the big federal government will sweep down on their case when it is appealed and release them from the charge.

Bank officer identifies weak links in city economy, offers projections

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

The two "weak links" in Midland's economy are lack of diversification of industry and retention of retail sales dollars, Harry Clark, senior vice president of First National Bank, told the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday.

Clark said the progress of the diversification program in Midland has been "confusing" since August 1973 because the project has been getting less emphasis since then than it did between 1968 and 1973.

Clark told the group at its noon luncheon that Midland's economy for the immediate future looks very strong. He said he is "cautious" about the long-term outlook for the city but thinks the city can overcome the problems of diversification and retention of retail sales. In 1968, there were 900 industrial workers in Midland which comprised 8 per cent of the work force, compared to a state average of 22 per

By August 1973 there were almost 2,700 industrial workers who made up about 15 per cent of Midland's work force. That number is down now to approximately 2,500, comprising only 6 per cent of the work force, Clark

The reduction in the percentage of industrial workers is "the most alarming thing we could have done.' he said.

Clark said the immediate goal of the city's diversification project is to attract one industry that employs more than 1,000 persons. Pittsburgh Plate Glass has renewed its option on a piece of property for possible building in Midland, he said, and there are two other non-petroleum related industries who are considering locating in Midland.

Each of these industries would meet the goal of employing more than 1,000 workers, Clark said.

In the area of retaining retail sales, Clark said retail sales in Midland total less than 60 per cent of the total spendable income generated here. That contrasts to about 90 per cent in both Odessa and San Angelo.

He said the regional shopping center concept is the key to retaining retail sales in Midland With its present population, however, Midland is a marginal prospect for one, he said.

For the long term, Clark said Midland has potential as a center for national corporation headquarters.

"I think you're going to see a tremendous migration of national corporation headquarters" from East population, Clark said. Now. Midland ranks 99th in the Coast cities, he said. That migration has already started but will not reach Midland for another five years, Clark

For the immediate future, Clark said, the Midland economy will be in good shape. He predicted building will continue to be strong for the coming

"I'm aware of two 10-story additional (office) buildings in the planning stages," he said.

Residential construction "should hold its own" at the approximately $15 million level maintained in 1975 and 1976

In 1976, there were close to $60 million in building permits filed, an all-time record. These included a number of large projects which will affect the economy during the coming Permits in 1977 probably won't reach that level but they should be close to the $34 million in 1974, the best previous year.

National energy policy will affect the economic area more than anything else, Clark said, and the Carter administration is "unknown so far as specific proposals," although Clark expects deregulation of natural gas in some form.

Clark predicted a growth of independent oil production in Midland. "I think we're going to see more independents coming into Midland" and the ones that are here will grow, he said.

There are now more than 300 drilling rigs active in the area, the most since 1959, he said, which is an indication of contemplation of new discoveries. Bank deposits will continue to grow in the year ahead, too, Clark said, to finance new exploration activity. By the end of the year, bank deposits should total about $630 million, about a $90 million increase from the end of In 1968, bank deposits in Midland totaled about $250 million, Clark said. And there has been a net increase of 900 workers from 1975 to 1976, bringing the total work force in Midland to about 35,640. One striking thing about Midland's economic development since 1968 is the growth of the middle class. Clark said. In 1968, Midland ranked fourth in the nation in per capita income but 13 per cent of its citizens were below the povefty level and the middle class consisted of about 66 per cent of the nation in per capita wealth but only six per cent of its people fall below the poverty level and almost 80 per cent can be classified as middle class, he said.

"We have created a middle class. I think that's good," he said.

District Attorney Jim Mashburn

the number of times a case can be appealed," said Mashburn, who at one time had a murder case conviction appealed 27 times, stretching over a period of eight years.

Mashburn was one of 10 members of the state district attorneys' association to work, along with 10 criminal defense lawyers and 10 judges, on a revision of the penal code from 1971

Among other things, that revision of the criminal code eliminated inconsistencies in the old code, whereby a person would receive a stiffer sentence for killing a chicken or a hog than poking out another human's eve

'We've done a lot to upgrade our police in training to make them more professional. Now, we need to develop professional prosecutors," Mashburn said. "We need to pay enough to allow them to be on the job full time. And we need to draw career people into the office, not those who stay for a year or two, getting a brief exposure to criminal law and then move onto jobs with private firms." He admitted financial considerations were part of his own decision to move from prosecutor into private practice.

"I guess I'm really proudest of all those people out there working that I didn't have to put in jail." Mashburn said at his new law office at 1105 W. Wall St.

"I forced a lot of them to ge jobs, finish school or in other ways become productive and stay out of trouble by the threat of putting them in jail." he ad-

The Culver Youth Home and the Permian Basin Regional Law Enforcement Academy were other projects Mashburn said he was proud to have contributed to during his tenure as Midland's chief prosecutor.

Jurors were unable to reach verdicts on the first of two 1964 murders charged against the 33-year-old Greenwood and the first in the series of nine slayings in the winter of

As he did throughout most of the trial in the courtroom of Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Earl C. Broady, the muscular, athleticlooking defendant sat nearly motionless, looking straight ahead as Court Clerk Steve Brown read the ver-

Knowing that the evidence was clearly circumstantial on most counts and that Dep. Public Defender Charles Gessler had put them through a tough trial, coprosecutors Marsh Goldstein and Lee Cogan were elated at the outcome.

After the verdicts were in, Goldstein flashed a broad smile, turned around to shake the hand of Los Angeles Police Dept. Lt. Lynn Selby and thanked him for his work as chief investigator in the difficult prosecu-

Asked outside the courtroom for his reaction to the verdicts, Goldstein

"I think they were thoroughly justified by the evidence. I was quite content with the verdicts. I guess 'ecstatic' would be a better word."

Jury foreman Hugh Chamberlain, the manager of new product development for Carnation Co., conceded the jurors were troubled by the fact the evidence was essentially circumstan-

"It bothered us, but there was a common modus operandi, we felt, through the entire case, Chamberlain said. "For example, there was a bloody footprint which was an exact signature showing that the defendant had been at the crime.

"There were also cufflinks that tied him to one of the murders and other footprints and gloveprints that linked

It was clear that the bloody shoeprint found on a magazine near the body of Robert (Tex) Shannahan was the most potent evidence presented by the prosecutors.

Shannahan, the sixth in the series of 1974-75 slayings, was found dead Jan. 17, 1975, in his room at an apartment hotel. He reportedly had been dead

There was a bayonet protruding from his chest and there was what Judge Broady called the "trademark" of all the killings - a deep, ear-to-ear slashing of the throat.

Police criminalist James N. Anderson testified that the full shoeprint in blood near Shannahan's body definitely matched up with the right shoe of a pair found in Greenwood's belongings at the county board-and-care home where he was arrested Feb. 3, 1975 just four days after the last of the Slasher slayings.

He was arrested at that time for another series of crimes that had occurred the previous weekend including a hatchet attack on two men in the Hollywood Hills above Sunset Blvd. and the burglarizing of actor Burt Reynolds home.

Greenwood was convicted of those crimes and given a 32-year-to-life sentence by Superior Court Judge Jack E. Goertzen prior to going to trial in the Slasher case.

The cufflinks mentioned by jurors as key evidence were identified during the trial as belonging to George Frias, a secretary to the catering manager of the Los Angeles Hilton. They also were found in Greenwood's Frias was found almost decapitated in the bedroom of his Hollywood apartment. He was victim number eight. His body was found Jan. 29,

Up to this point, the Slasher's victims had been drifters and down-and-outers killed in the downtown area.

Officer defends Leer shooting

HAYSVILLE, Kan. (AP) - Undersheriff Sam Davidson said it was "the choice of one life or eight" that made him order sharpshooters to kill a former mental patient who threatened seven hostages with death in a home in this Wichita suburb.

Larry Leer, 30, was killed Wedneday night by two shots in the chest eight hours after he took Bonnie Horinek and her four children captive and held them with a pistol, rifle and six other weapons he gathered in their home. As the drama progressed, the Horineks were released and he took seven other Leer's initial demand was to see his former girlfriend, Lonnie Beam, Mrs. Horinek's sister. But after she arrived, the demands grew to include cigarettes, protection upon surrender, protection from bankruptcy, and commitment at a mental hospital of his choice.

As police and sheriff's deputies gathered outside the dwelling, Leer told his hostages: "They (the officers) have signed our death warrants."

Two hours before the shooting, an Associated Press reporter telephoned Leer, who identified himself by saying, "You're talking to the man holding the gun.

He told the reporter he refused to end his life in a gutter somewhere, adding: "A man has to have something to live for and without the things that he lives for he must die. These things I must live for or I

Before Leer could elaborate, his attorney, Warner Eisenbise of Wichita, who was one of the hostages, cut into the conversation. Another hostage, Sedgwick County Sheriff Johnnie Darr, said, "When I went into the house, all the people were in control. They were very calm and "If any one of them had made a bad move while Mrs. Horinek and her four kids were there. I'm afraid we'd have all been shot.

Other hostages — who came to the home at various times at Leer's request or in exchange for the Horinek family - were Miss Beam, Police Lt. Harry Minor, Police Det. Bernie Drowatski, Police Chaplain The Rev. Byron D. Tracy and Charles W. Pickared, identified as a counselor.

Authorities said Leer had come to the Horinek home to see Miss Beam, who wasn't there. An argument developed, and Leer grabbed a pistol, pointed it at the head of John Horinek, Bonnie's husband, and threatened to kill him, officers said.

Horinek ran from the house, called police, and Haysville officer George Jameson, 32, was grazed on the head when Leer fired the pistol as he responded

Park denies South Korean role in bribery scandal

The Los Angeles Times
WASHINGTON — South Korean
President Park Chung Hee personally denied to a visiting U.S. congressman this month that he or his government had any role in an alleged campaign to buy the support of American of-

Rep. John Murphy (D-N.Y.) told The Los Angeles Times Wednesday the he met with park for two hours on Dec. 15 and received the denials when he asked the Korean president about the allegations now being investigated by U.S. authorities. Murphy, a supporter of Park's government, apparently is the only member of Congress to visit Korea since the allegations surfaced in October.

He said he went to Seoul at his own expense on Dec. 12 after a parliamentary conference he was in Japan to attend was cancelled.

In his meeting with Park, Murphy said, he asked about Park's relationship with Tongsun Park, a Washington-based Korean businessman who has given cash and other gifts to members of Congress.

U.S. and Korean sources have said that Tongsun Park met with President Park and other Korean officials in 1970 to plan the campaign to influence U.S. officials, but Murphy said the president told him, "I met that man only once.'

That was in 1965 when Tongsun Park was among a group paying a courtesy call on Park Chung Hee when he visited the United States, Murphy quoted the Korean president as saying.

"He said, "That's the only time I ever spoke to the individual," "Murphy continued.

As for charges that the Seoul government coordinated the giftgiving campaign, the congressman said Park "Told me, 'I have always conducted my affairs and the affairs of my country with the counterparts in the American government that are set up to receive those communications. I will not and have never ventured into anything like that which the press has built up.

"In my discussions with Park and other senior Koreans," Murphy said, "I found that they could not separate the U.S. government's attitudes and policies from those attitudes and policies of the American press. I had to tell them that the American press is a free enterprise, profit-making journal whose objectivity is many times subject to serious question ... They had taken what's been in the press as representing the attitude of

Murphy said he also asked Park about allegations that the Korean Central Intelligence Agency (KCIA) had harassed and intimidated Koreans living in the United States. "He said, 'The KCIA operates the same way the U.S. CIA operates ...your constitution says you must protect yourself against enemies foreign and domestic, and we do the same thing you do. We have to keep an eye on those people who we feel are trying to hurt us.'

Murphy, who has visited Korea several times in recent years, said Koreans have been hurt because U.S. congressional delegations recently touring the Far East have not come to party." Committeemen said they believe that Dunne had a clear edge in votes over Kelly.

He said one Korean leader told him, "All Koreans have leprosy ... no one will come near us.

Dunne, 63, was a candidate of most of the older Chicago Democratic leaders and had substantial support from committeemen from the suburbs. Dunne also had backing from the Daley family. State Sen. Richard M. Daley, newly elected to fill his father's 11th Ward committeeman seat, placed Dunne's name in nomination Wednesday and said about Dunne, "He's one I know my dad would be proud of." All four of the late mayor's sons attended the Cook County Democratic Central Committee meeting Wednesday. Michael Daley told the group that the position of Cook County party came after his sole opponent, Park chairman was "the proudest and happiest title my father had."

a battle to become the Democratic nominee for mayor in 1955. Chicago politicians say that Daley's holding of both the mayoral and party job gave him much more political clout than he would have had by holding only one of these jobs. Dunne said Wednesday that Daley had proved that combining both the jobs was useful. "I don't know that it's necessary, but it proved beneficial" to the party, Dunne said.

Dunne said he would not actively seek the mayor's job but would run if the Democratic city central committee "would come to me and say 'we'd like you to take it.""

While Dunne is clearly a strong potential mayoral candidate, there was considerable discussion around City Hall Wednesday that Michael A. Bilandic, who was elected acting elected acting mayor after he said that he would serve only until the regular mayoral election was held within six months.

The election of a man like Bilandic, a Croatian American, would lessen the complaints of Polish Americans and other Eastern European groups here that the Irish always get all the best political jobs despite the fact that they represent less than 5 per cent of Chicago's population.

"I don't think they'll put up with an Irish mayor again. Irish power has to go down," said Milton Rakove, a political scientist who is a leading scholar of the Chicago Democratic machine.

"It's not being anti-Irish. It's just that others wonder, 'Why can't we get some of these things for our people?' said Alderman Roman C. Pucinski, the first declared candidate for the

Sadat gives new conditions for peace, calls on U.S.

The Washington Post

CAIRO - President Anwar Sadat Wednesday listed new conditions for reconvening a Middle East peace conference and for reaching a comprehensive regional peace settlement. His conditions could further complicate the already tangled negotiating process.

He said that Lebanon must be a full participant in any Geneva Conference, that any Palestinian state must be formally linked with Jordan and that Israeli withdrawal from territories occupied in the 1967 war must be swift and complete, not phased over an extended time.

During much of an hour long interview at his retreat on the Nile north of the capital, Sadat stressed his desire to reach a settlement that would relieve both his country and Israel of a military burden that neither can afford and would defuse a dangerous situation.

He also emphasized, as he has at every recent opportunity, that new initiatives from the United States are required to bring about a settlement "If the United States is ready for peace to prevail in the area it can be done in a month," he said.

That is the position he has been taking publicly ever since the Arab summit conferences in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, and in Cairo last October at which Arab leaders agreed on a formula for ending the war in Lebanon and on a strategy to persuade President-elect Jimmy Carter that it is in the best interests of the United States to put pressure on Israel to accept a settlement with the Arabs.

The foundation of that agreement, he said, should be United Nations Security Council Resolution 242. adopted after the 1967 war, which called in oblique terms for Arab acceptance of Israel's right to exist in exchange for Israel's withdrawal from the occupied territories.

But when the president got down to details it became clear that at the very least there is a long, delicate period of bargaining ahead before any settlement acceptable to all parties can be reached - not just between the Arabs and Israel but among the Arabs themselves. On some points his position appears to have hardened since his meetings last week with President Hafez Assad of Syria.

The United States and Israel have called for resuming the Geneva conference with the original participants of 1973 - themselves, Egypt, Jordan, Syria and the Soviet Union. The Arabs have long insisted that the Palestine Liberation Organization be represented as well, but Wednesday Sadat added a new twist. He said he would "insist" that Lebanon also attend as "an equal partner." Lebanon signed an armistice with Israel in 1949 and ever since has avoided both direct conflict and participation in peace negotiations. But Sadat said that Lebanon, which is now under Syrian military occupation, is a "confrontation state" that would have to be included if a truly comprehensive settlemet is to be reached

He said President Elias Sarkis of Lebanon agreed with him.

Sadat and other Arab leaders have called for the creation of a Palestinian state on the West Bank of the Jordan and in the Gaza Strip, once these lands are yielded by Israel. The idea that this state should be formally linked to Jordan will be welcomed by the Israelis, but it is sure to be unpalatable to many Palestinian leaders. They have been bitter foes of King Hussein of Jordan since his army crushed the guerrilla fighters in Jordan's "Black September" of 1970. The PLO has been accepted as full member of the Arab League, and Palestinian leaders are unlikely accept willingly any limitations on the full independence they hope to

Sadat said he and Assad had not discussed what kind of Palestinian state should be created or who should

He said he and Assad, who were feuding bitterly just three months ago, had never differed on strategy, only on tactics, and are now "working in harmony.

U.S., Panama make headway in negotiations

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The United States and Panama are exploring a formula to guarantee nondiscriminatory operation of the Panama Canal after U.S. control of the waterway expires at the turn of the century, according to informed

Agreement on such a formula, which must await policy desisions by the incoming Carter Administration, would be a major breakthrough in the 12-year-old negotiations and probably lead to early settlement on a new Panama Canal treaty, the sources

Panama expressed willingness to consider 21st-Century guarantees of the waterway's neutrality in the course of closed-door talks in that country Dec. 13-18, the last round of diplomatic negotiations expected to take place before the Jan. 20 inauguration.

The form and substance of the guarantees, which would be designed to assure continuing access to the canal by all nations without infringing on Panama's sovereignty, represent a difficult problem for the negotiators.

But Foreign Minister Acquilino Boyd, who heads Panama's team, promised to be "imaginative" in finding a formula, and U.S. chief negotiator Ellsworth Bunker also has taken a positive attitude, sources said. U.S. agreement on the question of extended guarantees is likely to require a new round of in-tragovernmental negotiation involving the State and Defense departments and the White House as well as consultation with leaders of Congress. The present U.S. negotiating position was worked out at a National Security Council session in August 1975, the last full-scale NSC meeting on the subject.

At that time the Pentagon - which has taken the toughest stand on the duration of U.S. rights - approved a U.S. proposal to limit its control of Panama Canal operations to 25 years, provided this was accompanied by a recognized right of U.S. intervention to enforce the neutrality of the waterway for a total of 50 years. A fallback U.S. position, also with government-wide approval, called for U.S. operating rights to terminate in 20 years and U.S. defense rights in a total of 40 years, it was learned.

Panama has insisted that the U.S. physical presence for either ad-ministration or defense purposes should terminate no later than the end of this century. To Panamanians, the duration of the new treaty replacing the 1903 document granting U.S. rights "in perpetuity" - is the most important and sensitive issue.

The United States formally and publicly agreed in February 1974 to abandon perpetuity in favor of a fixed termination in a new treaty. Nevertheless, a substantial body of U.S. public and congressional opinion — fanned by GOP hopeful Ronald Reagan in this year's presidential primaries — holds that the United States should "never give up" the American-built waterway. During the second televised debate with President Ford, Jimmy Carter declared, "I would never give up complete control or practical control of the Panama Canal zone, but would continue to negotiate with the Panamanians." At another point in the same statement he said, "I would not relinquish practical control of the Panama Canal Zone any time in the foreseeable future." He did not define

"the foreseeable future." After the Nov. 2 election, Carter said that the canal issue is "festering problem" for the United States and pledged to work closely with Congress to find an acceptable

Secretary of State-designate Cyrus R. Vance, convinced that the Panama negotiations will set the tone for the new administration's relations with Latin America, is reported to have said that the United States cannot renege on commitments to reduce its rights there — presumably referring to the 1974 commitment renouncing the concept of perpetuity.

Former U.S. diplomat Sol Linowitz said Vance recently told him that the canal issue is a "High priority, urgent matter with a dangerous potential" for the United States.

Russian project failure

WASHINGTON (AP) -The Russians have staged their fourth test of a satellite interceptor this year, but it tentatively is being classified as a failure by U.S. intelligence sources. The Russians resumed flight testing of antisatellite devices early this year after a lapse of about five years and the U.S. sources said the latest test was conducted

All tests have involved only Russian satellites and no effort has been made by the Soviets to disable, destroy or in-terfere with U.S. spy-inthe-sky vehicles, U.S. intelligence sources said.

Officials who closely track the Soviet antisatellite development program have dismissed as untrue recent published reports that said the Russians have used high intensity laser beams or other devices against American sources say, Soviet Cosmos satellite 886 was launched from Tyuratam in central Russia on Dec. 27 and on its second orbit around the earth it apparently attempted to intercept Cosmos 880. Cosmos 880 was launched Dec. 9 and originally was thought to be a photo reconnaissance vehicle.

The hunter satellite never came closer than one mile to its target satellite, sources said, and the vehicle disintegrated on its third orbit. Cosmos 880, the target, is said to be still in space.

U.S. analysts tentatively rate the new test as a failure because the hunter satellite did not get closer to the target. In past tests, intelligence sources have said, the Soviet hunter satellite came within 100 feet of its

It is believed the Soviet system under develop-ment involves blowing up the hunter satellite in close proximity to its target, which would be destroyed by pieces of the exploding hunter vehicle.

This week's test was reported to be the first conducted by the Russians since July. A mid-December simultaneous launch of two Soviet Cosmos satellites at first was thought to have been such a test. But analysts subsequently decided it actually was an experiment connected with Russian manned space

Latin-American prison amnesties seen as strategy to mellow U.S.

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES (AP) - Latin-American governments have freed thousands of prison inmates, ranging from petty thieves to ex-cabinet ministers and top Communists. The amnesties are seen partly as steps by the countries to improve their image and win favor with the new U.S. administration.

A survey by The Associated Press shows amnesties have been declared for at least 3,000 persons in the region in recent proclamations. Some were announced in the year-end period but actually covered several months.

Most of those freed were common criminals doing time for minor crimes, but a significant number were political prisoners.

Diplomatic observers said some of the political releases stem as much from the self-interest of Latin-American governments as from their compassion. A Democratic administration takes over in the White House next Jan. 20 and Presidentelect Carter has stated that future relations between the United States and other countries will be influenced by how those countries respect human

Such human rights organizations as Amnesty International, with headquarters in London, also keep up foreign pressure for the release of political inmates.

Here is a country-by-country

-ARGENTINA. The ruling military government, a target of international criticism for alleged human rights violations since seizing power in a coup last March, announced last week 1,537 political prisoners have been released in the last nine months. It said 559 of them had been freed since the beginning of Political analysts saw the announcement as a goodwill gesture to the Carter administration. Security sources say 3,000 political prisoners are still being held, including ousted President Isabel Peron.

-BRAZIL. President Ernesto Geisel, handpicked by the country's military rulers, announced a general Christmas pardon to benefit prisoners serving sentences for various com-

Although thousands reportedly fall within the scope of the pardon, a Justice Ministry official said it was not possible to determine immediately to how many the pardon would apply. Authorities in the State of Rio de Janeiro estimated that 900 prisoners would be released there. The pardon did not include political prisoners

The Brazilian government does not consider alleged subversives in custody as political prisoners, and numbers are hard to come by 800 political prisoners are currently under detention in Brazil.

-CHILE. In mid-December the ruling military junta announced it had released 300 political prisoners. It also announced the expulsion of 17 others from the country. All were being held without charge.

One of those expelled was Luis Corvalan, 60, secretary-general of the Chilean Communist party. He was arrested during the September, 1973, military coup that toppled the Marxist government of the late President Salvador Allende. Corvalan was freed in exchange for the release by Moscow of Soviet dissident Vladimir Bukowsky, a swap reportedly negotiated with U.S. help.

Gen. Augusto Pinochet, president of the Chilean junta, claimed the election of Carter had nothing to do with the releases.

Legal sources close to the Roman Catholic Church in Chile, said earlier this month, that 524 persons were known to be serving sentences for politically-related offenses and that 61 others awaited trial by military courts.

The president of the International Committee of the Red Cross said in an interview with The Associated Press last week that conditions in Chile have improved to the point where the committee will end its services to political prisoners there in the next six months

-BOLIVIA. The military government announced amnesty for a record 70 persons detained in Bolivian jails or living in exile, including two former cabinet ministers.

-ECUADOR. The military junta declared a Christmas amnesty for 24 persons accused by the authorities of fomenting subversion. Twenty-two of them - all members of the National Democratic Union political party had been arrested a month before. The other two belonged to the Nationalist Revolutionary party.

-HAITI. President Jean Claude Duvalier reportedly ordered freedom for 140 prisoners, both political and criminal, in a Christmas-season gesture. One of those favored was banker Clemar Joseph-Charles, jailed during the regime of the president's father, Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier, for alleged antigovernment

A Haitian police spokesman said jails in that Caribbean country are virtually empty with the exception of 'some vagabonds and tramps." Amnesty International estimated political prisoners in Haiti could number as few as 400 and as many as

-PERU. A year-end amnesty by the Pervian military government favored 197 persons and the prosecution was dropped in 39 pending court cases. Several former civilian government ministers were included in the pardon. Observers in Peru said the conciliatory gesture was aimed at improving the government's domestic image and that it had nothing to do with Carter's

-URUGUAY. The military-controlled government lowered the penalties for crimes connected with alleged subversion. Legal sources said an undetermined number of the estimated 1,800 political prisoners being held by the government, would benefit from the lowered sentences since most of them have been in jail since 1972-1973. The government has not made any announcements of pardons but relatives of prisoners said some detainees were already be-

Uruguay -VENEZUELA. President Carlos Andres Perez, the leader of one of a handful of democracies left in Latin America, signed a christmas pardon for approximately 100 prisoners serving sentences for common crimes.

Venezuelan government sources said a small number of persons accused of guerrilla or subversive activities, are being held for trial. Amnesty reported that 83 political prisoners are being held in Venezuela.

Chinese broadcast says army quells radical rioting

LONDON (AP) - A Chinese radio broadcast says the army has put an end to "great chaos" in the city of Baoding, about 100 miles southwest of Peking, the Daily Telegraph reported today from the Chinese capital.

The Hopeh provincial radio report did not say when or why the disturbances erupted in the provincial capital, the newspaper said.

An Australian paper reported today that troops had been sent to Baoding to suppress an outbreak of bombings and armed raids by supporters of the purged widow of Mao Tse-tung. The Telegraph's Peking

The provincial radio said it took a "concerted effort" by government after a long period of "confusion." Wade wrote.

The Baoding disclosures were the latest in a series of reports of disturbances directed against the regime of Chairman Hua Kuo-feng and said to have been fomented by radical followers of Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, and her associates in the "Gang of Four."

The disorders are believed to have been most widespread in late summer

The Sydney Morning Herald's Yvonne Preston wrote in a dispatch from Peking today, "Reports reaching Peking say that armed groups supporting the ousted 'Gang of Four' and opposing Hua robbed banks, raided ammunition factories, grain stores and shops, hijacked military vehicles and blew up fac-

A goal of $15,000 was set for this year's mail and kettle drives, and Vincent reported more than this amount was received. The Salvation Army provided Christmas assistance by giving out 675 food baskets, toys to 1,800 children and dressing 200 children adopted through the "Dress a Live Doll" project.

"I believe this is a good 50 or more baskets and 40 or more live dolls dressed than the previous year," said Vincent. Several hundred toy dolls also were distributed to underpriviledged little girls.

Free transportation offered to elderly

Free bus transportation will be offered Midland senior citizens next week by the First Christian Church Senior Services and Midland College.

There will be no bus service Monday as part of the New Year's holiday, but the free service will resume with rides to banks, utilities, post office and library, Tuesday; the Dellwood shopping center, Wednesday; garden centers, Thursday; and beauty shops, groceries, and laundries, Fridays.

The bus will pick up riders at their homes, take them to the scheduled stops and return them to their homes that same day. Pick-ups will begin at 9 a.m.

When possible, seats should be reserved the day before the ride is needed, and on Friday for Monday service. Special requests for unscheduled stops will be honored if possible.

Reservations may be made by calling 682-7577

Penny Lynn Hodges and Michael Ray Stacy of Rankin were married in a double ring ceremony in Kelview Heights Baptist Church with the Rev. Jerry Reed officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs Edward Hodges of Midland and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Noah Stacy of Rankin.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white chiffon fashioned with a bib-effect bodice edged with lace. The bride carried white carnations and white roses on a Bible.

Robin Hodges attended her sister as maid of honor. Gayle Travis of Pauls Valley, Okla., the bride's sister, was matron of honor. Serving as bridesmaids were Polly Newsom and

Teenager needs abortion advice

DEAR ABBY: I think I'm pregnant. I've made love with my boyfriend, but it wasn't planned or we would have used something. I need some information on a clinic I can go to if I need an abortion.

This really scares me as I've never been to a hospital in my life. I've heard a lot of stories about girls who

Couple travels country in cab

JENISON, Mich. (AP) - A husband-and-wife team of cab drivers from Essex, England, spent a few months traveling the United States recently in an authentic London cab, a 1966 Austin Fx-4 diesel.

Robert and Sheila Anker traveled through 13 states. Their adventure included a near-miss with a deer in Wyoming, helping to track three crooks in California who were captured by police and a visit to London Bridge, now rebuilt as an Arizona tourist attravtion.

The Ankers, who stopped here to visit the home of a truck driver whom they had befriended, said they spent about $7,000 on their trip.

have had abortions. Some die, and others can never have children.

Are there any free clinics? I can't raise a lot of money. Maybe a few hundred dollars. Is that enough for a safe abortion? I'm in good health except for this problem.

I can't tell my parents. It would kill them. They've already been through this with my sister, only she got married. I swore this would never happen to me.

Please answer me in the column. No way can a reply go to my home. I am 19 and was a "nice" girl before this happened.—SCARED TO

DEAR ABBY: It's easy to understand why a married man of 45 would leave his wife for a younger woman, but how about a man that age who would leave a beautiful 36-yearold wife for an old, wrinkled grandmother of 55?

That is exactly what my brother did. He can't be in his right mind. Don't tell me he is looking for a "mother substitute." Our mother is still living, and if ever a man got his share of mother love, Brother did. He was the "baby" of the family, and the only boy, born after four girls.

So please tell me what an intelligent, good-looking, professional man can see in a 55-year-old divorced retread: It's not money. She doesn't have any, and he has plenty.— DISGUSTED IN CHICAGO

DEAR DISGUSTED: One of life's most baffling mysteries is what people "in love" see in each other. But I suspect your brother's reasons are older than the hills and younger than springtime. (P.S. You are not your brother's keeper.)

DEAR ABBY: I applaud that clergyman who was man enough to admit that confessing his infidelity to his wife was a terrible mistake. My husband of 15 years, whom I loved, respected and trusted implicity, confessed such an affair to me two years ago, and our marriage will never be the same again. That boastful confession was deadly, despite his proclaimed love for me. It was the biggest mistake he ever made. #### ART BUCHWALD Carter picks a winner for secretary of HEW

WASHINGTON - I don't know about President-elect Carter's other Cabinet appointments, but I can speak with authority when I say he couldn't have selected a better Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare than Joseph Califano. You see, Joe Califano has been our football. car pool driver to the Redskin games for the past eight years. He learned all his driving skills from his ex-boss, Lyndon Johnson, at the L.B.J. ranch, and if Joe can run a government department as well as he can maneuver his beat-up station wagon on Massachusetts Ave., this country's health, education and welfare will be in safe hands.

I'll have to admit that the seven of us who ride with Joe to the Redskin games never thought of him as Cabinet material. But then again no football car pool chauffeur is a hero to the people he drives to the stadium.

When the FBI men came to see me to do a check on Joe, I thought they were kidding when they said he was being considered for secretary of HEW. But I discovered the FBI never jokes.

"What kind of man would you say Mr. Califano is?" one of them asked

"He's a gutsy Evel Knievel," I said. "Evel Knievel has jumped over 14 chartered Greyhound buses on a motorcycle, but Califano is the only man I know who has ever tried to drive straight through them. Ask

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Bright energy picture painted

ANDERSON and LES

WASHINGTON - President Ford has received some misleading, if not outright false information about energy developments for his State of the Union message

The White House has solicited from the federal bureaucracy passages suitable for his last major presidential address. The submissions have included a measure of hot air from government agencies eager to get their accomplishments into the State of the Union speech.

But the Energy Research and Development Administration has puffed up the facts beyond the bounds of accuracy. If the President should use the ERDA passages in his speech. he could be caught in some serious misstatements. ERDA's veteran administrator Robert Seamans forwarded the passages to White House aide James Cannon, who is helping the president prepare his speech. In a "Dear Jim" leatter, dated November 16. Seamans writes: "I hope this information is helpful a you prepare the president's State of the Union message." The passages that Seamans enclosed amke himself look like the greatest energy innovater since Thomas Edison. This is achieved, unfortunately, at the expense of the facts. Seamans has put his reputation on the line, for example, in support of the liquid metal fast breeder reactor. He wanted the president, therefore, to praise the breeder as a "virtually inexhaustible" source of future energy. Seamans assured the White House that Tennessee's Clinch River Breeder Reactor and a second, more analysis available to Seamans that the development of liquid breeders would be blocked by safety and ecological problems. And the Clinch River facility was questioned by LeGassie in an internal memo, dated November 12.

Seamans would also like to plug fusion energy in the State of the Union message. So he prepared a statement for the White House suggesting that a cleaner, safer form of nuclear power 'is making a transition from laboratory and theoretical studies to

The draft that Seamans prepared for the White House gave no hint of any problems with fusion research. Yet the LeGassie memo, prepared by Seamans' own evaluators, asked pointedly: "Has the fusion effort become too expensive, too soon, relative to other long-term (energy) technologies?"

ART NEWS IN BRIEF

Exhibitor applications being taken for fair

KERRVILLE - Exhibitor applications are now being taken for the sixth annual Texas State Arts and Crafts Fair scheduled in Kerrville over the Memorial Day weekend.

This official state event combines art and craft works with good food and free musical entertainment in an atmosphere of an old-fashioned country fair. The fair is held under the direction of the Texas Arts and Crafts Foundation, an organization dedicated to the preservation of historic arts and crafts. The foundation is constantly searching for craftsmen with the skills that helped shape early Texas - such skills as blacksmithing, knifemaking, weaving, spinning and others. These artisans annually demonstrate their talents in the popular "Pioneer Village" segment of the annual fair.

Artists and craftsmen who are interested in being considered as exhibitors at the 1977 fair should contact the Texas Arts and Crafts Foundation at P.O. Box 1527, Kerrville 78028, by Dec. 31, deadline for receiving applications. The foundation telephone number is 512-896-

The Los Angeles Times

SACRAMENTO - Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. Tuesday officially appointed Republican S.I. Hayakawa to succeed Democrat John V. Tunney as California's junior U.S. Senator, effective Jan. 2.

The appointment, a concession to political custom and a recognition of the importance of seniority, is expected to give the 70-year-old Hayakawa an advantage over all but about four of the 18 incoming freshmen senators as committee assignments are Tunney, who lost to Hayakawa last November after serving one term, will resign at midnight on Jan. 1, two days before his term expires.

Hayakawa would then begin Jan. 2, serving the remainder of Tunney's term. Hayakawa's appointment follows similar moves by the governors of Missouri, Nebraska, and Rhode Island. Vice President-elect Walter Mondale plans to resign as the senior senator from Minnesota effective Dec. 30. All senators are to take their oath of office Jan. 4. Although the appointment was planned. Brown's attitude was one of studied casualness. Reporters were ushered into the governor's office where they found the governor and Hayakawa already engaged in "animated conversation" at a coffee table for the benefit of television cameras. After exchanging banter with the press, Brown asked an aide where "those papers" were he needed to sign in order to appoint Hayakawa to the Senate. Television cameras surrounded the governor's desk. temporarily blocking Hayakawa's access to the ceremony "See how easy it was," Brown told Hayakawa as the governor signed the instrument of appointment. Afterward, Brown and Hayakawa, each accompanied by an aide, met for about a half hour before breaking for a luncheon which included members of Brown's cabinet

The pressure is off, the winning streak ended. Michigan has lost and Coach Johnny Orr is relieved.

"You hate to lose, and like being No. 1," said Orr, "but there's an awful lot of pressure. I have never been through seven games like I've gone senior Bob Cooper. "It's especially sweet for Cooper and I because we've been here for four years. We had been in the finals of five tournaments and hadn't won once. We wanted this one badly.

The seventh one proved the toughest of all. Unranked Providence, the hard-working crew with a center whose name reads like an eye chart, beat the Wolverines in the final moment of the second overtime Wednesday night.

So they went out and got it. Bruce Campbell scored 25 points, Hassett 21 and Misevicious 16 in helping the Friars hand the Wolverines their first loss after six victories this season.

'This is the first time I've ever been involved, either as a player or a coach, against a No. 1 team, so you have to say it's one of my greatest thrills," said Providence Coach Dave Gavitt, whose Friars are 7-2. "Every victory is great, but maybe this has to a little sweeter.

It was won largely on the heroics of Misevicious, who had forced the second overtime by sinking another short jump shot. That knotted the score at 74-74 with 13 seconds to go in the first extra period before a howling crowd of 12,150 at the Civic Center.

Misevicious came through again after Michigan's John Robinson was fouled and missed his first free throw in a one-and-one situation. There were 20 seconds to go and the Wolverines were ahead, 81-80.

"Campbell made the play," said Misevicious, a 6-foot-9 center who became eligible for this tournament after sitting out the school's first semester for scholastic reasons. "He penetrated and took three Michigan players with him. I was free, and went in for the shot."

The shot heard 'round the college basketball world.

"Give Providence credit," said Orr. 'It is a fine team that played like crazy. But we are used to teams playing like crazy against us. It is a bitter defeat because we had the game won several times-all we had to do is make some free throws."

It wasn't to be. With one second left in the bedlam, Michigan set up a desperation play from under its basket. Steve Grote heaved a courtlength pass and Joel Thompson just missed tipping it in as the buzzer sounded.

"I thought we did everything possible to win," said Orr. It wasn't enough.

Ten other ranked teams also played Wednesday night. No. 3 San Francisco downed Arizona State 114-96 to reach the Rainbow Classic final; fifthranked Cincinnati topped South Carolina 79-62 to enter the final of the Sugar Bowl Classic; No. 7 Wake Forest blasted Dartmouth 84-61 in the Old Dominion Classic consolation game; No. 8 UCLA beat Utah State 88-68, and ninth-ranked North Carolina crushed Oregon 86-60 in Far West Classic semifinal.

Meanwhile, No. 11 NevadaLas Vegas subdued St. Mary's 104-81 to win the Las Vegas Classic; No. 14 Louisville held off Creighton 69-66 to take the Louisville Classic; No. 16 Maryland bested No. 18 Syracuse 96-85 for the championship of the Maryland Invitational, and No. 20 Auburn trimmed Rutgers 78-75 for third place in the Lousiville Classic.

San Francisco got 22 points from Marlon Redmond and 21 from Bill Cartwright to destroy Arizona State and its record to 14-0.

Marques Johnson amassed 31 points to power 9-1 UCLA's victory over Utah State. North Carolina's Tar Heels got 16 points from Mike O'Koren and awesome 81 per cent shooting in the second half to breeze past Oregon and into the Far West final.

Eddie Owens contributed 21 points to the Nevada-Las Vegas triumph. The Rebels led 64-63 with 12 minutes left but went on a 10-0 tear to put the game away.

Louisville also won in double overtime as Ricky Gallon scored six of his 20 points in the second extra Steve Sheppard compiled 26 points and Bill Bryant added 21 to pace Maryland's decision over Syracuse.

Auburn got 17 points from Stan Pietkiewicz to wrap up third place in the Louisville Classic. In other tournament action, Kansas beat Kansas State 81-64 and Missouri bested Colorado 86-77 in the semifinals of the Big Eight; Oklahoma City beat Brigham Young

78-68 and Virginia Military clipped

Rebels gain finals by beating Raiders

BORGER — Billy Ray Ennis and Mike Denny combined for 46 points Wednesday night to power the Robert E. Lee Rebels past the Wichita Falls Rider Raiders in the semifinals of the Borger Invitational Basketball Tournament, 82-73.

Lee joins Borger in the tourney finals at 8:30 p.m. today. Borger stormed past the Abilene High Eagles, 91-66, in the other semifinal battle Wednesday evening.

Coach Paul Stueckler was highly-pleased with the play of his Rebels. "We jumped out to a 27-10 first period lead with our press doing a super job," said an elated Stueckler late Wednesday

Ennis poured in 28 points and Denny 18 as the Rebels were chalking up their 17th victory in 20 games this season. Roy Lee Smith was also in the double figures for Lee wih with 15 points and Brad Wright just missed, scoring eight.

It was 53-24 at the halftime in favor of the Tall City power, but the Raiders did cut the lead to 62-51, going into the final period of play. The Raiders outscored Lee, 24-20, in the final eight minutes, but the Midlanders had built up too big a lead. Lee connected on 20 of 29 free tosses for 69 per cent and hit a 55 percentage from the floor in hitting 31 of 56 shots put up against the Red River outfit.

Following tonight's finals, Lee opens District 5-4A play Tuesday night in the Lee Gymnasium, taking on the Odessa High Bronchos.

DALLAS (AP) - It may surprise folks in these parts, but Maryland's fourth-ranked football team feels it has something to prove in Saturday's Cotton Bowl game against sixth-ranked Houston. "I think we've been knocked unfairly," quarterback Mark Manges said today as the unbeaten Terps prepared for Maryland's first major bowl appearance in 20 years. "People say we don't play any good teams." Manges said, "and that we had a readymade 11-0 schedule. We don't get much credit."

Five of Maryland's victories were recorded against opponents in the Atlantic Coast Conference, where the Terps have won 20 in a row and three consecutive championships.

go unbeaten, and Manges feels that

"From the Washington Post and the Washington Star," Manges said, looking directly at a reporter from one of those newspapers. Quarterback Danny Davis of Houston, which won the Southwest Conference championship in its first year as a member of the league, felt empathy for Maryland's position. "We know what it feels like to be accusednof playing a weak schedule," Davis said. "When we were independent, we had to prove "But Houston used to play a schedule like Maryland's and finish 8-3. So, you can't knock winning. I'm mpressed by Maryland. They shut teams out. Defensive guard Larry Seder of the Terps, who blanked their last three opponents in the regular season, said Saturday's setting was a natural for Maryland to spread the word about its revived football program. "We're playing on national television against the Southwest Conference champion in the Cotton Bowl," he said. "We have a chance to show everybody.

Should Maryland score an impressive victory over Houston while top-ranked Pittsburgh loses to Georgia in the Sugar Bowl, Manges said the Terps should be acclaimed national champions.

He noted that second-ranked Michigan and No. 3 Southern Cal, opponents in the Rose Bowl, each have one loss. "And that," he said, "should eliminate them from national championship asirations.'

Stockton nabs tennis victory

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) -American Dick Stockton of Dallas Thursday played his way into the semifinals of the New South Wales Open Tennis Championships with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over veteran Australian Ken Rosewall.

Stockton will meet close friend Roscoe Tanner, Lookout Mountain, Tenn., in Friday's semifinal. Tanner was forced to three sets to beat Hank Pfister, Bakersfield, Calif., in a match billed as the battle of the big servers.

Tanner won 7-6, 4-6, 6-1 after a spirited bid by the 23-year-old Pfister.

After Pfister took the second set Tanner called on his greater experience to break his opponent's serve three times in the deciding third Argentinian Guillermo Vilas pulled back from the edge of defeat twice in his quarter-final against defending champion Ross Case of Australia to move into the semifinals.

HOBBS, N.M. - The Midland High basketball team suffered their second successive defeat in the Hobbs Invitational Basketball Tournament Wednesday afternoon, as the Bulldog cagers succumbed to El Paso Jefferson, 73-64.

Coach Don Humphrey's team, now 4-13 on the year, will oppose El Paso Riverside today at 1:30 p.m. (MST) in the consolation game for seventh place in the eight-team event.

Junior forward Terry Rogers had his finest offensive night of the campaign, hitting for 16 points, but Jefferson held the Bulldogs' fine alldistrict postman. Craig Dunn to only eight points, and won going away.

Pacing the Jefferson offensive attack were Charlie Andrade with 21 points, and Albert Zonteras with 20. Midland got off to a disasterous start, and trailed 21-13 by the end of the first quarter. The Pack kept pace with Jefferson the rest of the way, but could never make up the early deficit. After today's game, Midland will be idle until Tuesday when they travel to Odessa for their District 5-4A opener with Permian

Michigan defense tough to handle

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) -Southern California's All-American tailback Ricky Bell admits, "I'm scared whenever I go into a game and Michigan will be the best defensive team we've played."

"I respect them very much." Bell, a 218-pound senior, led the nation in rushing with 1,875 regular season yards in 1975. He was averaging 200 yards per game for the first five games of 1976 until suffering a hip pointer and then a sprained ankle.

He remains the heart of the USC offense for the team that posted 10 straight victories after losing the opening game to Missouri.

"There is no soreness in my ankle now," says Bell, who has been practicing at full speed for the New Year's Day Rose Bowl battle against

Despite the bad ankle, Bell took over the job as blocking fullback in USC's 24-14 victory over UCLA that won the Pac-8 title and the Rose Bowl bid. Ther other fullbacks were hurt and the Trojans had a capable tailback replacement in freshman Charles White.

"We're working Bell only at tailback for the Rose Bowl game." said Coach John Robinson. "Our fullbacks are ready.

Oakland Raiders drill for date with Vikings

OAKLAND (AP) - Coach John Madden of the Oakland Raiders, aware that Fran Tarkenton has "guaranteed" a Minnesota Vikings' victory in the Super Bowl, had a simple response to the quarterback's

"I guess if both sides guarantee a victory, they've got to play the game." Madden said Wednesday as the Raiders began preparing for the Jan. 9 National Football League showdown, Super Bowl XI.

After the Vikings beat Los Angeles for the National Conference title Sunday and advanced to the Super Bowl for a record fourth time, Tarkenton said, "I want the whole world to know that this time we're Several Raiders, however, predicted a Super Bowl victory themselves after beating Pittsburgh's defending Super Bowl champs 24-7 for the AFC crown. Oakland made its only Super Bowl appearance following the 1967 season, losing to Green Bay, and had been eliminated seven times in the playoffs before earning the return trip.

"We won this time and we'll win at Pasadena," said safety Jack Tatum after the victory over Pittsburgh.

"Who started all this 'guarantee' stuff, anyway?" Raiders guard Gene Upshaw asked Wednesday. He was reminded that it was Joe Namath. who followed up his pledge by leading the New York Jets to an upset victory over the Baltimore Colts in Super Bowl III.

"I've got a 10-year guarantee and it has almost run out," said Upshaw, one of four current Raiders remaining from the 1967 Super Bowl team.

Thousands of Raiders' season ticket holders, all of them expecting their team to win its first Super Bowl title; quickly bought up the 15,000 Super Bowl tickets which were made available to the team. The tickets, at $20 apiece, were gone in six hours Wednesday and some people who got them were being offered up to $100 per ticket by others, eyewitnesses at ticket lines reported.

Pfeil holding one-stroke lead in Monterey tourney

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) - If consistency will do it, Mark Pfeil should win the $15,000 first prize today in the Spalding Invitational Pro-Am golf tournament where he takes a onestroke lead into the fourth and final round.

Pfeil, a former University of Southern California player who got his PGA tour card only a few weeks ago, was the only pro to match or better par in all three rounds, shooting 71-7169—211.

The Redondo Beach, Calif. golfer's total gave him a onestroke lead over Ron Cerrudo and two strokes over Rod Funseth who went four over par Wednesday at Rancho Canada East. Funseth won the tournament here three years ago in a playoff with Australian Bob Stanton.

Monday's starting field of 168 pros in the $78,000 tournament was cut to the low 70 for today's finale at the Laguna Seca Golf Ranch. The cutoff came at a 14-over-par 228.

Tied with Funseth for third at 213 were Dick McClean and Bob Wynn. Both carded 69s, McClean coming back from a 77 Tuesday.

Bob Lunn was alone in sixth at 215, and former Masters champion George Archer and Forrest Fezler, a former winner here, were tied at 216. Rafe Botts, who won the first tournament five years ago, soared a 77 at Ft. Ord where he once was an assistant pro, and was out of the running at 222. Out. too, was defending champion Dick Glenz at 225. Ft. Ord also knocked out former PGA champion Al Geiberger, who

WASHINGTON - Apparently hoping to blunt criticism of his nomination, Atty. Gen.-designate Griffin B. Bell privately has promised potentially hostile black leaders that blacks will get key posts in at least four areas of the Justice Department, The Los Angeles Times has learned.

Bell, according to a Carter official and three of those with whom Bell met at unannounced sessions, also assured the blacks that the Justice Department will rigorously enforce civil rights laws.

A leading candidate for the No. 2 or 3 spot in the department is U. S. Dist. Judge A. Leon Higginbotham Jr., of Philadelphia, a black named to the bench by President Lyndon B. Johnson, sources familiar with the matter said.

Bell's nomination has come under fire as a result of his membership in clubs that bar blacks and Jews as members and for his endorsement of former President Richard M. Nixon's nomination of G. Harrold Carswell to the Supreme Court. Bell has stated he will resign from the clubs, noting that the attorney general is symbolic of equality before the law.

Bell met last Thursday in his Atlanta law office with officials of the predominantly black National Bar Assn. and assured them that a black will be named as deputy attorney general or as solicitor general, the second and third highest positions in the department

Benjamin Brown, who is an aide to President-elect Jimmy Carter and helped Bell arrange the meetings, said another session is being sought with Rep. Parren J. Mitchell (D-Md.), chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus.

The National Bar Assn. and the 16-member black caucus have indicated that they may oppose Bell's nomination at Senate Judiciary Committee hearings

The hearings, a committee official said Tuesday, are tentatively scheduled to begin Jan. 11. The committee, in conducting hearings before Carter is inaugurated Jan. 20 and before the nomination is sent officially to the committee, is following a precedent established by the confirmation hearings for former Attys. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and John N. Mitchell, the official said.

According to Brown, Bell told the three National Bar Assn. officials that blacks will also be appointed to policymaking posts in three other Justice Department division units in addition to the deputy attorney general or solicitor general posts. The three are the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, the Parole Board and the Prison Bureau.

"Bell is saying, 'Look guys, I'm going to cooperate." said Brown, who brought the meetings to light in a long-distance telephone call to The Times' Washington Bureau from his Atlanta home.

"We got Bell's current thinking on where he thought minorities are in this country and where he thought they should be," said Carl Character, a Cleveland, Ohio, lawyer who is president of the black bar association.

"We were concerned about his ability to deal fairly with civil rights enforcement and we wanted to know if minorities would be adequately represented in top jobs throughout the department," Character said. "And I must admit," he added, "after talking with him for almost two hours, he left a favorable impres-

Asked what specific promises Bell made to place blacks in high-level jobs, Character said, "It's too premature to say what promises were made.'

He said, however, that the National Bar Assn. was witholding an endorsement of Bell's nomination until completion of an extensive study of Bell's "professional record

'We're going to lay Bell's record on the table and take a close, hard look at it," he said. "That's what counts - not a handful of jobs.

A source within the caucus said its members were most concerned about Bell's commitment to enforcing provisions of the 1965 Voting Rights Act and the future appointment of a black federal judge in the Bell, talking with reporters Tuesday on St. Simons Island before a meeting of Carter's designated cabinet, said he would not announce the names of those he is planning to recommend or name to Justice Department positions until after his confirmation hearings.

"I want the Senate to confirm me on my own record, not because of the people I select," he said. Bell plans to come to Washington Sunday and to meet with Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi and FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley.

In response to a question, Bell confirmed that one person under consideration for the solicitor general's post is John P. Frank, a white Phoenix attorney and legal scholar.

Frank, who is regarded as a judicial liberal, testified as an expert on judicial disqualification in support of Nixon's nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

Higginbotham, who is reportedly a leading candidate for either the deputy attorney general or solicitor general's post, would not accept a reporter's call Tuesday. His secretary said the judge was not receiving reporters' calls "right now.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER

(Fri., Dec. 31)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is no day to take chances where your financial position is concerned. Make sure that you are economical during the daytime. Then you find that the evening improves and you will be able to celebrate bringing in the new year on a happy and pleasant note.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try not to argue about finances during the day. Evening then becomes more charming. Get advice from an expert early, though, before you celebrate tonight. Dress beautiful-

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't feel sorry for yourself because another will not go along with some plan you have, since it is best in the long run. Show others you like them and make the evoning a happy one.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Do not accept limitations where something you want to do is concerned and be successful. Relieve tensions during day so you can see the new year in happily. Drive with care.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Help a friend who is having a difficult time at present and gain goodwill. Although your funds may be low, see the new year in hopefully and all will seen improve for you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Not a good day to contact a bigwig, but fine for handling credit matters. You can see the new year in on an optimitic note after a rather difficult day. Avoid one who is jealous of you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Looking into new projects that are appealing to you is wise in the morning, but don't take any risks that could prove costly. Be with cheerful persons this evening and lift could prove costly. Be with cheerful persons this evening and lift your spirits.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle responsibilities early and free time for the evening's entertainment. Perk up the spirits of mate, friends. Don't overspend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Not a good day to have a confrontation with associates who are unreasonable. Get caught up on your work early. Then see the new year in the right spirit and be happy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Calm down early and get duties handled efficiently otherwise you could make costly errors. Be with good friends this festive evening. Forget anxieties.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You want to enjoy yourself during day, but it is best to get practical affairs taken care of. Then you can make the evening a happy one. Celebrate this evening, but do so sanely and safely.

U.S. was ready to aid in coup, documents say

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The United States was prepared, if needed to support militarily the Brazilian armed forces' ouster of the country's last civilian government, according to U.S. official documents recently declassified.

A U.S. naval task force with an aircraft carrier, a helicopter carrier, six destroyers and oil tankers was cordered to take positions off the Brazilian coast dur-ordered to take positions off the Brazilian coast during the 1964 coup d'etat against the leftist govern-ment of President Joao Goulart, the documents

The ships were to await orders from the U.S. ambassador of the time, Lincoln Gordon.

Gordon, who later became Assistant Secretary of State for Latin America, denied after the coup that United States played any role. He denied it again Tuesday in a telephone interview.

"It was a contingency never put into effect," he said. "We feared the possibility of a civil war ... and one side might need some outside help.

As a result, Gordon said, he recommended creation of the logistical force that became known in declassified military cables as "Operation Brother

The documents show that on March 27, 1964, five days before the culmination of the coup, Gordon cabled Secretary of State Dean Rusk that the probable leader of the military taking power would be Gen. Humberto Castello Branco.

Gordon's military attache was Gen. Vernon Walters, a close friend of Gen. Castello Branco who became president of Brazil. Walters has acknowledged breakfasting with Castello on the morning after the coup and urging him to assume the

In the cables now made public, Gordon refers to Walters as being "very well informed." Walters retired recently as second-in-command of the CIA.

The coup came after the turbulent rule of Goulart. In the March 27 cable to Rusk, Gordon said Goulart was seeking "dictatorial powers, accepting the active participation of the Brazilian Communist Par-

The Brazilian armed forces rallied overwhelmingly behind the coup leaders, and, on April 2, Gordon cabled his recommendation that the Johnson administration call off Operation Brother Sam.

The documents were publihsed by the Rio de Janeiro newspaper Jornal do Brasil in its editions of Dec. 18-20. As an accompanying article explained, the daily's correspondent was "able to copy a good part of them, at 15 cents each," in the Lyndon Baines Johnson Library at The University of Texas in

John Fawcett, archivist of the LBJ library, said that a 1972 executive order provided for release after 10 years of the late President's papers on request following review by the original classifying agency.

The initial request for declassification was made by Phyllis Parker, a graduate student in Latin American studies at The University of Texas, for a dissertation she has not yet published.

An alert Brazilian editor reading a University of Texas publication noticed that documents about Brazil had been declassified. He sent a reporter to read them.

Brazil's press has been previously under intense censorship. But the censorship has loosened considerably for major daily newspapers considered relatively "safe" by the military government.

Several scholars specializing in Brazilian studies who are meeting now in Washington in conjunction with the American Historical Association — expressed surprise that the documents showing U.S. in-timacy with the 1964 coup at its outset could be published in Brazil.

The Jornal stories emphasized that the documents were made public by the U.S. government. A retired marshal who took part in the coup, Poppe de Figuiredo, was quoted in the extensive Brazilian followup press coverage as confirming that the U.S. task force was positioned off Brazil.

Figuiredo criticized the involvement of the U.S.

Navy. It was not clear to what extent the Brazilian armed forces were consulted beforehand by the Americans.

A typical document, originating with the Joint Chiefs of Staff and dated March 21, indicates that Operation Brother Sam was in the advanced planning stage 11 days before the coup.

Labeled "Top Secret," the document marked for circulation to the participating U.S. Air Force units says the nickname Brother Sam "applies only to that part of support being provided as the result of the Air Force task force activated for total logistical supports. Force task force activated ... for total logistical support to Brazil." Gordon, asked about the origin of the Brother Sam nickname, said he could not recall its use at the time.

nickname, said he could not recall its use at the time. He discounted speculation that the name referred to President Johnson's brother, Sam Houston Johnson, and suggested it might be a pun on Uncle Sam.

"I don't think President Johnson was really personally involved," said Gordon.

Another Joint Chiefs message directs the commander of the Air Force Military Air Transport Service to appoint "Maj. Gen. George S. Brown mission commander for project Brother Sam." Gen. Brown is now chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The documents released do not make clear how

The documents released do not make clear how man, if any, combat troops were assigned to the operation. The Air Force was assigned on March 31 to provide six C-135 transports to pick up 110 tons of small arms and ammunition — which the Army was to assemble at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey by the following day — "for onward movement as directed" by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The planes amazently did not head south before The planes apparently did not head south before cancellation fo the operation April 2.

Distribution of these deployment messages included the White House, State Department, several sections of the Defense Department and the CIA. The message on April 2 canceling the operation

The message on April 2 canceling the operation called for maintenance of the small arms stocked in New Jersey. It was on April 1 that the last troop commander of the Brazilian army declared for the coupmakers. Goulart went into exile in Argentina, where he died of a heart attack Dec. 6. He was 58.

With Castello Branco in the presidency, the military soon decreed sweeping dictatorial powers — depriving opponents of their political rights and later dissolving the congress.

At that point, another ducment shows, Gordon recommended that th U.S. government express its dissatisfaction. The U.S. recognition of the regime had come, at Gordon's urging, in the first days after the coup and before consolidation of power.

Later messages from the embassy to Washington show that the CIA and military attaches had extraordinary access throughout Brazil. At one point, they describe conversations between Soviet diplomats and leaders of the then-proscribed Brazilfan Communist Party. The messages further indicate that the CIA infiltrated Brazilian exile movements then forming in Uruguay and Argentina.

U.S. critics of President Johnson's foreign policy in Latin America have long rejected Gordon's characterization of the Goulart government as increasingly Communist-dominated and headed toward dictatorship.

Corn and chicken, fried to golden crustiness, is a tempting team, especially when offered in the same bowl or basket

Fresh corn-on-cob back in season

Like tennis, fresh corn-on-the-cob eating has become a year round

Corn-on-the-cob teams wonderfully well with all kinds of meat, poultry and seafood. Corn-on-the-cob and fried chicken have been a delicious duo for years and there are those who say that, as long as the shallow fryer is all ready for action, why not turn the corn in egg and seasoned crumbs and fry it as well as the chicken?

While most corn lovers probably want to gnaw it off the cob in primitive fashion, there are all kinds of delectable things to do with fresh corn cut from the cob. Saute it, Mexican-style, with chopped green peppers and onion bits. Stir the fresh kernels into pancake batter or muffin mix for a nut-sweet treat. Add them to soups or stews. Fresh corn salads are unusually good; add the kernels to diced chicken, turkey, ham, lamb or seafood.

Refrigeration is the key to tender sweetness in corn. Florida growers chill it immediately and ship it refrigerated. Be sure you continue the refrigeration until you cook it. SOUTHERN FRIED

CORN, CHICKEN 4 ears fresh corn 1/2 cup all-purpose flour

14 cup fine dry bread crumbs 1 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon paprika

¼ teaspoon ground black pepper 21/2 to 3 pound chicken cut into eighths

1 egg Remove husks and silks from corn: set aside. In a shallow plate combine flour, bread crumbs, salt, paprika and black pepper. Coat chicken pieces with flour mixture, shaking off excess. In a large skillet heat about 1 cup oil until hot. Add chicken, a few pieces at a time; fry over moderate heat until golden and cooked through, about 25 minutes turning occasionally; remove and keep warm. In a shallow plate lightly beat egg. Dip corn into egg, drain slightly, then roll in flour mixture, shaking off excess.

Fry in hot oil in skillet until golden about 4 minutes, turning occasionally. Serve corn with fried chicken in napkin-lined baskets, if desired. YIELD: 4 portions

CORN FRITTERS

2 ears fresh corn 2 eggs, separated 1/4 cup all-purpose flour 1 teaspoon onion powder

1/2 teaspoon baking powder One-sixteenth teaspoon ground

Remove husks and silks from corn. Cut kernels from cobs (makes about 1) and one-third cups). In a medium bowl, combine kernels with egg yolks; mix well. Combine flour, onion powder, salt, baking powder and nutmeg. Stir into corn mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Gently fold into corn mixture. Drop by the teaspoonful into deep fat preheated to 350 F. or shallow fat. Cook until golden, about 3 minutes, turning once. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve immediately.

CLIP 'N COOK

34 teaspoon salt

GRAPEFRUIT PEEL 2 large grapefruit 11/2 cups sugar 1/2 cup honey 11/2 cups boiling water 8 whole cloves

Score grapefruit peel in quarters, cutting through yellow rind and white membrane but not into fruit. Pull off peel along with membrane; cut in 1/2inch wide lengthwise strips. In a 5quart saucepot cover peel with cold water; over high heat bring to a boil.

Boil, uncovered, for 10 minutes: drain and repeat process. In the clean dry saucepot stir together the sugar, honey, boiling water and cloves. Over medium heat stir until sugar dissolves. Bring to a boil and simmer until peel is tender - 30 to 40 minutes. Drain thoroughly and roll in extra sugar. Place in a single layer on a wire rack, uncovered and at room temperature, to dry overnight.

THE WINE DRINKER Spicy wine has zing

By TOM GABLE Copley News Service

If you are in search of a white wine with enough strength to go with turkey, goose, pork, salads or spicy appetizers, try a Gewurztraminer.

Gewurz means spice in German and is an excellent description of what one can expect from this subvariety of the Traminer grape. When made in the traditional style of the Alsace region of France, these wines offer an explosion of fruit in the aroma and a dry. spicy aftertaste that lingers on the palate...

The wines of Alsace, unlike many wines from different regions of France, display the name of the grape on the label more prominently than the appellation. They also produce Rieslings. Sylvanders and wines made from other lesser grapes. But the Gewurztraminer best of Alsace.

The aroma of a good Gewurztraminer is unlike the aroma of any other white wine. It offers spice and deep fruit. Then, because the wine maker in Alsace has fermented out all the sugar, there is a crisp, hardy flavor not usually associated with a white wine. To some, it can be too sharp and lingering.

One of the reasons for this is the Alsatian belief that their wines are made to go with food, not as sweet aperitif or dessert

In wide distribution and worth seeking out is the Gewurztraminer from Trimbach, a good introduction to the Alsatian

Now coming into more prominence are the Gewurztraminers of California. The best are made in a style similar to that of Alsace, although some wine makers have tried to make it more into a Riesling-style wine. complete with high residual sugars and a cloying sweetness.

Simi, of the Alexander Valley in Sonoma County, produces a sound Gewurztraminer almost every year and distributes the wines in enough quantities to make them relatively inexpensive. The 1974 vintage, at $4, is a good example. The aroma is full of ripe grapes, fruit and a hint of wood. The flavor lingers and ingers...

The 1975, which is as good though still coming into a balance of acids and sugars, will be out

Karl Wente, whose vineyards are south of San Francisco, has a solid reputation for his white wines, usually the Riesling. His 1974 Gewurztraminer, at $4.75, is also good, with a pronounced varietal aroma and flavor.

Grand Cru Vineyards, also of the Alexander Valley, recently issued a 1975 Gewurztraminer for $4.50 that comes very close to emulating the Alsatian style, although it is slightly high in residual sugars. The wine is clean, fresh and particularly suited to accompanying a pork dish.

WASHINGTON - Brunches as a way of entertaining have much to recommend them, including their

Compared to full-scale dinner parties, full-scale brunches are much less expensive, partly because the appropriate food for brunch costs less than what is considered appropriate for a dinner party. People don't think twice if they are offered cheese souffle as a main dish for brunch, but if it were served at dinner, most guests would wonder when the main course was coming.

What's more, the alcohol consumption is significantly lower before noon, cutting down considerably on the li-

For the working person Sunday morning brunch is ideal. Friday night and Saturday can be devoted to shopping, cooking and cleaning; and by the time Sunday night rolls around, the house is all straightened up once

While lots of people think dinner must be served at a table and complain about stand-up buffet dinners. no one expects brunch to be anything but stand-up or sit-on-the-sofa. That way many more people can be entertained at one time

But maybe the most attractive feature about brunch is the mood of the guests. Most people seem so cheerful by 11 o'clck or noon on Sunday that it makes for a better party.

> ZUCCHINI CASSEROLE (Serves 12)

4 pounds medium zucchini 1 pound bulk sausage 1-2 cup chopped onion

1 cup finely crushed saltines (28

1 cup grated Parmesan cheese 4 slightly beaten eggs Salt and pepper to taste 1-2 teaspoon thyme 2 small cloves garlic, minced

Wash zucchini and trim ends. Cook whole zucchini in boiling, salted water for 12 to 15 minutes or until almost tender. Drain thoroughly and chop zucchini coarsely.

In the meantime cook the sausage and onion over medium heat until sausage is browned. Drain thoroughly. Combine zucchini, sausage and remaining ingredients except for 1-4 cup of cheese. Mix well and spoon into a 3-quart casserole.

Sprinkle top with remaining cheese. If desired, refrigerate until serving time. To serve, remove from refrigerator one hour before baking. Bake at 350 degrees for 60 to 70 minutes, or until bubbling and cheese is lightly browned.

> CHICKEN LIVERS. SOUR CREAM (Serves 12 to 16)

1-4 cup butter or margarine 2 medium onions, finely chopped 4 pounds mushrooms, sliced 4 pounds chicken livers

3 tablespoons soy sauce 3 cups sour cream

3 cups dry red wine Salt and freshly ground black pep-

Melt the butter in a skillet and saute onion in butter until it turns golden. Stir in the mushrooms and saute for 3 or 4 minutes. Add the chicken livers (it may be necessary to do this in two sections) and saute quickly until they lose their pink color. Combine the soy sauce, sour cream and wine and stir into livers. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

If serving immediately, continue to cook the mixture slowly until livers are done but do not boil or sour cream

If desired, before additional cooking, dish may be refrigerated. To serve, return to room temperature and heat gently until livers are piping

Cabbage can reach greatness

By WILLIAM RICE The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Cabbage can reach greatness on its own. Think for a moment of the perfect stuffed cabbage, aromatic and steaming as it is served from a just-opened casserole. Usually, though, cabbage is a filler, a bit player in meals where other foods receive most of the attention. It isn't possible to redress the balance with a few strokes of the pen. but for those who want to help revive the cabbage's wilted reputation here are two recipe suggestions.

SAUTEED CABBAGE: (Serves 4) 1-2 small green cabbage 1 bay leaf

4 tablespoons butter 1 tablespoon vegetable oil 1-2 onion, finely sliced 1-4 teaspoon celery seed Pinch thyme

Salt and freshly ground pepper

11-2 tablespoons white wine vinegar Remove outer leaves if wilted or worn, cut cabbage in half lengthwise and cut out core. Wash and steam, covered, over boiling, salted water with a bay leaf added for 5 to 7 minutes, or until cabbage softens. Remove cabbage and slice across into narrow shreds.

Meanwhile melt 2 tablespoons butter in a frying pan and heat with oil. Saute onion over low heat until golden, about 5 minutes. Add cabbage, celery seed, thyme, salt and pepper. Cover pan and let cabbage cook for 10 minutes, turning occasionally. Add 2 tablespoons butter and cook until butter is absorbed. Taste and reseason as desired. Add vinegar, stir in and cook for a few moments longer. Serve garnished with chopped parsley, if desired.

CELERY SEED COLESLAW (Serves 6 to 8)

1-2 cabbage, core removed and coarsely cut

1-2 small onion, finely chopped 2 tablespoons vegetable oil 2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar 1-2 teaspoon celery seed Salt and freshly ground pepper 1-3 cup mayonnaise (home-made preferred) 1-4 cup chopped parsley

Cut cabbage. Mix onion, oil. vinegar, celery seed and a small amount of salt and pepper in a bowl. Toss with cabbage, cover and refrigerate for several hours or overnight. Two hours before serving, add mayonnaise and parsley. Toss together well and adjust seasoning as desired. Serve slightly chilled.

CHOCOLATE WALNUT DROPS

1 cup semisweet chocolate pieces

1 can (14 oz.) sweetened condensed 1% cups graham cracker crumbs

1/2 tsp. salt 1 tbsps. honey

1 tbsp. orange juice 1 tsp. vanilla 1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts Walnut halves or large pieces

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. In saucepan, melt chocolate over low heat. Stir in condensed milk, graham cracker crumbs, malt, orange juice, honey and vanilla. Mix well. Stir in nuts. Chill dough 15 minutes. Drop by rounded teaspoonsful onto well greased cookie sheet, topping each with walnut half or large piece. Bake 12 to 15 minutes or just until cookies spring back when touched lightly in center. Remove to wire racks and cool. About three dozen cookies.

FOOD IDEAS

An easy and festive salad combines apples and cottage cheese. Alternately arrange slices of Red and Golden Delicious apples on individual lettuce-lined salad plates as a colorful base for chived cottage cheese. Drizzle the salad with zesty Italian dressing before serving.

Make pralines this way. Combine one can evaporated milk with 1 up sugar, dash of salt and 2 cups of pecans. Cook to the soft ball stage. Drop on waxed paper. This will make 14 3-inch patties.

When onions begin to sprout, they should be immediately wrapped in aluminum foil and placed in the refrigerator. Wrap tight so their odor will not escape and ruin other foods. They will keep this way until you use them up without any wasting.

Bring a cup of dark syrup and one-fourth cup of butter to a boil and stir until mixture blends. Serve over hot French toast or your family's favorite type of pancakes or waffles.

When shredded coconut becomes hard, restore it to its original freshness by heating it in the top of a double boiler over boiling water.

Bread whole drained canned oysters and fry in butter until golden brown. Serve with scrambled eggs.

When sugar granules form large lumps because of moisture. don't waste the sweetner. Run the lumps over a slaw cutter and you have measurable sugar again.

KNOW YOUR FOOD

Because family food buying is a never-ending our store, take time to acquaint yourself with these tags and their meaning. The savings can be impressive. Seasoned shoppers are already making extensive use of this aid. But for new homemakers and those who are new to the guide,

Unit Pricing: While many factors affect buying decisions, a primary one is price. Unit Pricing makes cost comparisons simple because it's just what its name implies. That is, the cost per pound, per ounce or whatever unit of measure is being used. The tags which show this information are usually placed directly below the item in question. For instance, let's say you want to buy canned peaches. Unit Price tags for various brands of peaches will tell the per-measure price. If quality and appearance are vital, you may want to choose from the top brands. But if peaches are to be used for pie, you can choose the lower priced because appearance isn't important. Unit Price tags will also help you determine which size is the best buy

Cereal is a good example of items in different weight packages with varying total prices. How do you decide among the vast array of packages?

Look at the Unit Price tags! They provide helpful quantity-cost information: Study the tags and then make your choice based on price, taste preference and the amount you need. Buy the larger sizes only if they will be consumed while still fresh.

Make your buying decisions by using the Unit-Price tags and you'll be a better shopper.

Vance has made picks—sources

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State-designate Cyrus R. Vance has chosen attorney Warren M. Christopher to be his deputy secretary, and has settled on most of the top figures for his State Department staff, informed sources said Tuesday.

One source said Christopher had not yet formally accepted Vance's offer. but was expected to do so shortly.

Christopher was deputy attorney general for two years of the Johnson administration, and was a candidate for the job of special Watergate prosecutor. He withdrew his hame from consideration for that post and it went to Prof. Archibald Cox of Harvard.

Christopher has no experience at the State Department and only limited exposure to foreign affairs. Vance worked with him in Detroit in 1967, when both represented the federal government during the riots there that year.

Apart from his service in Washington, Christopher has practiced law in the Los Angeles firm of O'Mulveny & Myers, described by a Washington attorney as that city's leading firm

Sources said Vance had decided to retain at least two members of Henry Kissinger's State Department staff. under secretary for political affairs Philip C. Habit, and assistant secretary for European affairs, Arthur A. Hartman. He also may keep Alfred L. Atherton Jr., assistant secretary for Near Eastern and South Asian affairs, who had been handling the delicate situation in the Middle

All three of these men are career members of the Foreign Service. Vance has selected a partner in his

New York law firm to be counsellor of the State Department and his right hand man, the sources said. He is Matthew Nimetz, 37, an aide in Lyndon B. Johnson't White House and a former Rhodes Scholar.

The Secretary-designate would like to appoint Yale economist Richard Cooper his under secretary for economic affairs, the sources said, but he will have to fight for Cooper's services with the designated Secretary of the Treasury, W. Michael Blumenthal. President-elect Jimmy Carter may have to decide who will get Cooper, the sources said. Carter and his inner circle also will have to confirm Vance's tentative choices to head the Department's Policy Planning Staff and to serve as assistant secretary for East Asian and Pacific affairs. Those choices are reported to be W. Anthony Lake, 37, for the planning staff, and Richard M. Holbrooke, 35, to be assistant

Like Habib, Holbrooke worked with Vance and W. Averell Harriman on the first U.S. delegation to the Paris peace talks on Vietnam

Vance is reliably said to hope that Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh would accept the post of assistant secretary for Africa or Latin America. Hesburgh is also a candidate for the post of Director of the Agency for Iternational Development. However, one source close to the situation said Hesburgh might not be willing to give up the presidency of Notre Dame University for one of these jobs.

Vance's team at the State Department will be discussed this week at St. Simon's Island, Ga., where Carter and his cabinet choices are meeting. according to well-placed sources. Announcements of Vance's appointments could come by the end of this week, sources said.

Christopher's only formal involvement in foreign affairs was as an American representative to several international negotiations on textile trade in the early 1960s. In his entry in Who's Who, Christopher lists himself as a consultant to the under secretary of state from 1961-65.

After being graduated from Stand-ford Law School in 1949, Christopher was a clerk for Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. He then moved to Los Angeles and joined O'Mulveny & Myers. He became active in Democratic Party politics in California, and was a principal supporter of former Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown.

After the Watts riots of 1957 Brown named Christopher to an investigatory commission to look into causes of the rioting. He was the principal author of the commission's report on conditions in the Los Angeles ghetto.

That experience may have brought him to the attention of Ramsey Clark. whose tenure as Attorney General was largely dominated by urban riots. Christopher represented Clark in Detroit and in Washington during the 1968 rioting here.

Nimetz, Vance's selection to become counsellor of the Department, has a brilliant reputation among friends and colleagues.

donates records The Washington Post

WASHINGTON -Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has donated the disputed records of his telephone conversations to the Library of Congress in an effort to | | b. avoid controversy in his final days in office. But a reporters group anlawsuit in an effort to obtain public access to the documents

Kissinger's action, taken over the Christmas holiday after a flurry of conferences with his legal advisers and other officials, was announced by the State Department about an hour after nine file drawers of the highly sensitive telephone records were taken to the Library of Congress in a private van Tuesday morning. Officials involved in the transaction said they did not know the point of origin for the delivery

On the basis of an opinion he obtained from State Department Legal Adviser Monroe Leigh Kissinger has calimed that the extensive secretarial notes of his telephone conversations while in office are his personal property to use or dispose of as he sees fit. Aides said he does not plan to leave copies of this data in government

The telephone transcriptions had been specifically excluded from Kissinger's earlier donation of most of his records to the Library of Congress. A condition of that donation, announced Dec. 20, was that Kissinger or persons named by him would control access to the papers for 25 years or until five years after his death, whichever is later

Public access to the telephone documents is restricted on the same basis, except that permission of the party to the telephone conversation with Kissinger would also be required as long as the other party lives. This arrangement was contained in an agreement signed by Kissinger on Christmas Eve and by Librarian of Congress Daniel J. Boorstin on Christmas Day.

The State Department announcement made clear that Kissinger has not backed away from his claim that the telephone data is his private property. This assertion is the target of the law suit which the Reporters Committee on Freedom of the Press, a private organization, announced that it will file against the

U.S.-Canadian relations sour in many areas

By PETER ARNETT

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) - Impatiently striving for a distinctive North American personality, the Canadian government is running up against some important U.S. interests, and there is a rising backlash of concern in Canada and in the United States.

The once-cozy "special relationship" enjoyed by the continental neighbors has been shaken by what U.S. officials characterize as the "singleminded" pursuit of Canadian economic and cultural nationalism at the expense of her southern neighbor.

'They've said for years that the U.S. threatens Canadian cultural and economic nationalism, but we're more on the short end of the stick now," said one U.S. official, detailing the areas of conflict. Canadians claim that the United States started the downslide in relations in the early 1970s with unfair economic surcharges.

Relations between the federal government in Ottawa and Washington are sour in several major areas. From the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific, and up to the Arctic Sea, both countries are embroiled in border disputes ranging from the important to the

The political differences are allayed by close personal and business relationships between millions of Americans and Canadians.

These major issues trouble the two countries today:

-Anti-Americanism remains strong, particularly in Ottawa, the federal capital and the industrial center of Toronto. However, leaders and ordinary Canadians in the Maritime provinces and to the West see Americans as much less of a threat, and some charge that Ottawa is conducting "smear campaign

-Uncertainty toward the federal government's attitude to foreign investment has almost dried up the flow of American money, and increased the flow of Canadian money into the United States.

-Gas prices and policies, and protectionist bills, have concerned the U.S. government and Congress. -The Canadian government is continuing to pursue a "third option" aimed at putting some distance between the Canada and American economy by developing markets abroad. It has had little success

-Both countries have made headway on some long-standing border issues including fishing rights, but a dozen others remain unsolved and potentially

"The United States enters into our every conversation; it takes up all our time," said a government political scientist in Ottawa. It is from Ottawa that the belief flows that Canada is strong enough to take the necessary measures to reduce its dependence on America.

That belief is reinforced in Toronto, not only by the English Canadian intellectual elite, but also by the vast industrial and economic strength that southern Ontario has amassed. U.S. companies control 58 per cent of Canada's oil and natural gas industry, 45 per cent of manufacturing. 43 per cent of mining and smelting and 36 per cent of the pulp and paper industry. This amounts to 40 of the largest 100 companies in Canada. While this angers Ottawa and Toronto, the feeling seems to diminish the further one moves away. Out West in Vancouver, an aide of British Columbia

Premier Bill Bennett declared, "The federal govern ment has unnecessarily exacerbated distrust of the U.S. We have no hangups about America.' Canada's 10 provinces are loosely linked in a 110year-old confederation to the federal government in Ottawa. Each province has its own parliamentarystyle government, headed by a premier, with far greater autonomy than a U.S. state. Canada's economic nationalism began biting with a series of policies including the Foreign Investment Review Act that restricts foreign companies in establishing or expanding operations. Concerned about possible discrimination against American firms, U.S. Ambassador Thomas Enders told a Toronto audience that the United States' need for energy capital "is so compelling that we would be reluctant to see a large-scale inflow of U.S. investment in this sector without being confident that Canada would not subsequently change the rules to disadvantage U.S. investors."

Another U.S. official commented, "There is a growing awareness in the U.S. that Canada is fat, rich and happy. A lot of that is because of U.S. risk capital. Once everything is developed up here Canadians ask 'So why is this America?' It's American because we developed it." Canada will need an estimated $90 billion in foreign capital in the next 15

The federal government's protective economic policies are having an unexpected backlash, driving Canadian money to the United States where it can be located freely without controls.

The United States is digging in its heels on some issues, bluntly informing Canada that the American consumers of around one trillion cubic feet of Canadian gas each year expect the same treatment as Canadian consumers, even if there are shortfalls. U.S. senators have threatened to retaliate against a bill that attempts to stop the flow of Canadian dollars to American border TV stations. The same bill forced Time magazine's Canadian edition out of business by placing restrictions on Canadian advertisements in the publication.

Border conflicts with Canada go from coast to coast. Canada is still unwilling to accept the American view that the Northwest Passage through the Arctic Islands is an international waterway, but has embarked on what one American observer called "creeping sovereignty" to claim the passage. Both countries have strong feelings about fishing grounds in the Gulf of Maine that will be in dispute because of the 200-mile fishing zone. The United States wants total control of the Georges Bank.

Five dam and river projects have raised tempers across the mainland border, two potentially harming Canadian ecology and farmland, three possibly hurting the United States.

They are Washington's Ross Dam project, the Garrison water diversion in North Dakota, and smaller projects bordering New York, British Columbia and Saskatchewan.

Sandtrap of tires slows beach erosion

ROGERS CITY, Mich. (AP) - This lake Huron shore town has more old tires than people. It has 4,200 people and 6,000 tires.

The tires are chained together and stretched into the lake to form a mat to trap sand. They are thus returning to Rogers City a beach it has lost. 'The mat is really breaking up the force of the waves." said City engineer Micael Holt. "We've actually gained 30 feet of beach." In the past, storms gobbled up about 6 feet of beach a year. The 50-by-200-foot mat was conceived by Goodyear Company researchers and designed by the University of Michigan Coastal Zone Laboratory.

Oriental Americans best paid federally

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Oriental-American males who make up a tiny portion of the government's total white-collar work force have the highest median income of any racial, ethnic or sex group in the federal ser-Some other statistical data:

-Men make more than women in government.

White males in the clerical, administrative and professional arms of the government have an annual median income of about $18,900. That's a few hundred dollars a year less than the median income for males of Oriental descent.

-Male federal employs who are American Indians now have a median income of around $13,500 while black males have a median income of around $1,000 per year less. -Oriental-American women in government have a median income of nearly $14,000 per year.

. —Black women in government have a median income of about $10,500, which is about $1 per year more than the median income for white women in government.

-Spanish-speaking males have a median income of nearly $14,000 per year while Spanish-speaking women have a median income of less than $9,000, the lowest of all racial, ethnic or sex breakdown in government.

The statistics, like all statistics, are confusing and don't tell the full story They are median figures, meaning that half the people in each group make more, half less than the actual figures shown. They should be considered along with the statistical composition of each group in the government.

The data was compiled in November 1975. That was before the most recent pay raise of from 4 per cent to 7.9 per cent, an average of 4.83 per cent, that went to white-collar federal employes last October. The figures used in this column represent approximate current rates for each

At the time the salary survey, which has never been released, was made there were 774,537 men and 545,782 women in fulltime white-collar federal jobs. Just over half the total number are white males with white women making up 30.6 per cent. black men held only 4.4 per cent of the jobs and black women accounted for 7.7 per cent of the total. (Most black government workers are still in the U.S. Postal Service or in blue-collar jobs which are not part of this survey.

Here's the official breakdown by race, sex, ethnic group and median salary as of November 1975:

Black women, 7.7 per cent of total white-collar federal work force, median income in November 1975 of $10:107; black men, 4.4 per cent of work force, median income of $12,080.

White women, 30.6 per cent of total work force, median income of $10,106. which is $1 per year less than the total for black women

Spanish-speaking women, 1 per cent of total work force, median income of $8,586; Spanish-speaking men, 1.5 per cent of work force, median income of $13,385.

American Indian women, less than one-half of 1 per cent of work force. median income of $9,568; American Indian men, also less than one half of 1 per cent of work force, median income of $13,004.

Oriental-American women, less than half of 1 per cent of work force. median income of $11,428; Oriental-American men, just over 1-2 per cent of work force, median income of

The figures will mean different things to different people and can (and will be) interpreted any of a dozen ways. But any way you slice it, it seems that when women - black, white. Indian or Spanish-speaking yell about pay discrimination they have something to yell about.

Revision may lower 1976 jobless rate

1977, we finally will find what the monthly jobless rates were for 1976. Yes, the corrected, seasonally adjusted rates for all those figures that in the past year were the basis for so many headlines, so much concern, so many personal, business, political and governmental decisions. They might not have been correct, you know. Little attention was brought to this possibility at the time. but the fact is that those fractional ups and downs that seemed so precisely accurate might not have No matter; we made our decisions, and among them was the decision to change presidents. Whatever decisions were made cannot be recalled. But the numbers can, and they will be.

Each January, you see, the Bureau of Labor Statistics takes another look at the numbers and revises some of them. Last January, for instance, we lowered the 1975 jobless peak to 8.9

per cent from 9.2 per cent. This may not seem to be very significant. It is, you might say, only three-tenths of 1 per cent. But do you recall how much was made of even smaller changes when the monthly figures were being announced? Do you recall how, when unemployment jumped three-tenths of 1 per cent from June to July, it was widely said to have damaged President Ford's election chances? That figure too might be revised - next month.

Why should they be revised? In this day of electronic calculators is it possible that errors in additions can be made? No, that's not the issue at all. The issue is that the announced figures never were counted at all. The fact that all these numbers are formulations rather than actual counts is very little appreciated When the jobless rate rises or falls it need not mean that more or fewer people are without jobs. Instead, a formula is applied to the raw count and there emerges from the process a seasonally adjusted figure. It may be larger or smaller than the raw count, depending on the month involved.

The figure we use, therefore, is one arrived at in the statistical laboratory rather than on the unemployment line. You seldom hear about the raw count; for popular usage it is all but discarded

The goal of these adjustments is to eliminate routine, seasonal changes. The purpose for so doing, it is said, is to reveal the persistent, underlying trend.

The total impact of this on the presidential election hasn't been calculated yet, and it probably cannot be. But there seems little doubt that the rising, seasonally adjueted jobless totals just before the election swayed many voters.

Could it be that a president was one of those seasonally adjusted out of a job? We can never know.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Is there alternative?

Dear Dr. Solomon: My grandmother has angina pectoris and takes those little nitroglycerin pills you put under your tongue. But they don't seem to help very long and she sometimes gets quite worriedespecially at night. Isn't there anything else she could use?-Andrew W

Dear Andrew: Nitroglycerin ointment is now being looked into. In fact, the Journal of the American Medical Association has recently reported that it is coming into its own, after being shelved for the past 20 years. Studies mentioned by the Journal spoke of very good results with increase in heart rate, better exercise capacity and riddance of pain. One study was particularly encouraging; it specified that effects lasted three to five hours with the ointment, whereas the nitroglycerin pills act for only 15 minutes to an hour.

If nitroglycerin ointment does come into general use, it might certainly be something that your grandmother would find helpful. But, of course, she should check with her doctor about

Dear Dr. Solomon: After my friend had an intestinal bypass operation to lose weight, he developed liver failure. Why might this happen?-

Dear Sam: Liver failure may occur for two reasons. First an inexperienced surgeon could leave too short an intestinal segment, resulting in inadequate nutrition. The intestine is like an accordion, and is difficult to measure exactly. Second, if you receive poor follow-up care, or none at all-your warning signs of liver disorder could go unnoticed until too late. Signals could be excessive tiredness, swelling, leg cramps, unaccounted for black and blue marks, nausea and vomiting. Those yards of intestine protect the liver and after the digestive process no longer includes this long route, the liver could get a lot of abuse from

If you don't eat enough protein your liver can become chack-full of fats and you can subsequently develop fibrosis, which is replacement of your functioning liver tissue with pon-functioning sear tissue. A fatty liver frequently corrects itself when your weight stabilizes; this condition is usually prevented by eating a well-balanced, nutritionally sound diet. You particularly need to eat adequate amounts of protein. The fibrosis ean also be stopped by reconnecting the intestine and eating a nutritionally sound diet.

If your friend is not under the watchful eye of a doctor. I suggest he correct the situation at once.

Staff report termed confidential by Hill

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Atty. Gen. John Hill said Wednesday that the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, does not have to make public a staff report that was never presented to the board.

The report concerns a proposal submitted by the board of Texas Woman's University to establish a new medical school.

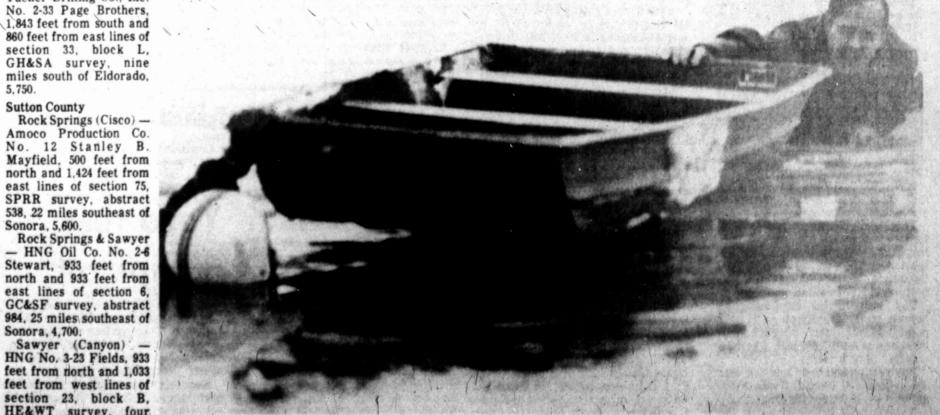

The board said "a journalist" had asked that the staff report be releas-Hill pointed out that the Texas Open

Records Act protects from disclosure advice and opinion on policy matters.

He noted there was an Oct. 14, 1976 staff report, which not presented the board, and an Oct. 15 report from Kenneth Ashworth, commissioner of higher education, that was presented

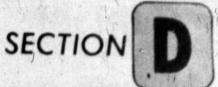

"The latter report presents the factual information contained in the earlier report, but does not contain the advice, opinions and recommendations concerning the withdrawn proposal," Hill said. "We have cotnpared the two documents and believe that the latter report, dated Oct. 15. contains the factual information to which the public is entitled."

Five Kimble wildcats among new Basin work

Irion County gained a Spraberry discovery and wildcat sites have been staked in Runnels Coke. Upton. Crockett, Kimble and Schleicher

Mitchell Energy Corp., Houston, completed as an Irion County Spraberry oil discovery, No. 1 M. B. Noelke, nine miles southwest of

It had a 24-hour flowing potential of 58 barrels of 42-gravity oil, with a trace of water, and gas-oil ratio measured 524-1.

Completion was through a 16-64inch choke and perforations at 3,225-3,683 feet, after acidizing with 3,000 gallons and fracturing with 55,000 gallons and 82,500 pounds of sand.

Total depth is 7,804 feet, and 414inch casing is set at 7,776 feet. Tests through Ellenburger perforations at 7,703-7,731 Teet failed to indicate commercial production.

Location is 9,810 feet from north and 780 feet from west lines of Tom Green CSL survey.

RUNNELS REENTRY

The Townsend Co, of Abilene, intends to reenter and test as a wildcat at around 4,563 feet. No. 4 Kirby Robinson, former Palo Pinto oiler in the Norton, West field of Runnels. It originally was drilled by Bert

Coast Guard reports grounding resulted from bad navigation In a news briefing, Rear Adm. By NOEL EPSTEIN William M. Benkert said the groun-

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Coast Guard's safety chief said Wednesday that design, construction or regulatory changes wouldn't have prevented the Dec. 15 grounding of the Liberian tanker Argo Merchant 27 miles off Massachusetts' Nantucket Island or the 7.6-million-gallon oil ding "was a result, pure and simple, of poor navigation," and that "any vessel grounded in that particular situation - beset by rough weather would have had the same break-up and the same spill.

Benkert said that if the recent series of oil tanker accidents results "in good legislation; fine. But don't

Carter to be quickly tested on environment

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Probably the happiest constituents on election night were those dedicated to preserving the environment. In Jimmy Carter, they said, they had a friend at last, one who deplored the scars of strip mines, who would protect natural treasures from bulldozers, who had grown impatient with delays in cleaning up the air and

On no other set of issues was Carter, the campaigner, so eloquently committed. In one oratorical flight, he declared

'I tell you that this is no time for those of us who love God's earth and the beauty of it, the purity of the air and water, to compromise or to retreat or yield in any possible measure to the devastation or deterioration of the equality of our lives or our environment

The new President will be quickly tested on his promises, for just about the time he settles into the Oval Office host of environmental issues will begin parading by. On many of them, a decision not to compromise will lead to battles of high intensity.

It will be interesting to see, for example, whether Carter goes down to the wire on auto-emission standards, supporting a law the auto companies say would wipe out the industry for a year and throw hundreds of thousands out of work.

And how hard will Carter push his scheme to replace other fuels with coal at a time, when much of the environmental bloc out West is fearful of massive new coal digs?

Something else to watch: how badly will he want water supplied cleaned up when the ities and states start means spending $5 billion to $10 billion a year on more sewage treatment plants?
Perhaps the first major decision to

Irion project flows crude

Union Texas Petroleum Corp. No. 1-54 Farmar, Irion County scheduled Ellenburger wildcat, eight miles west of Mertzon, two miles east of the Flint Hill field and 1% mile west of the Rock Pen field, both producing oil from the Canyon, flowed 107 barrels of oil in 24 hours, from the Canyon.

The flow was through perforations at 7,431-7,441 feet, which had been acidized with 1,300 gallons. Testing continued.

Location is 2,243 feet from north and 1,994 feet from west lines of section 54, block 1. H&TC survey.

Yeso test pumps oil

Marathon Oil Co. No. 2 Arnquist Estate, undesignated Yeso test surrounded by production in the Atoka (Morrow) gas field of Eddy County, N.M., pumped 26 barrels of oil and 71 barrels of water in 24 hours. Recovery was through unidentified perforations at 2,396-2,706 feet, after acidizing with 3,000 gallons. Testing be faced involves the Clean Air Act amendments, which died during an epic lobbying struggle in the 94th Congress. The new administration will be besieged for help from environmentalists on one side and automobile, power, and oil industries on the other

Unless the act is amended, the auto companies will be faced with a deadline for stringent new emission standards they insist they cannot meet for the 1978 model year. Carter has emphatically blamed the auto industry and the Ford administration for the impasse.

"The automobile manufacturers have dragged their feet and have found a sympathetic ear in the White House," Carter said during the

"Continuing to postpone the air and water quality standards and deadlines only penalizes the industries and municipalities who have acted in good faith to curtail pollutant discharges." he said at another point. The auto makers have vowed that, the law notwithstanding, they will build 1978 cars to the same standards as the 1977 ones. Experts in Congress grudgingly admit they don't have the clout to force a showdown that would close Detroit's factories. Most think there'll be a one-year delay at least, and that if Carter won't go along with that compromise, he'll be fighting a lonely battle.

tell us on the basis of emotional outrage that we ought to do this or

Benkert cautioned that while a step such as requiring double bottoms on all tankers would have prevented the 134,000-gallon spill from the Liberian tanker Olympic Games Tuesday off Marcus Hook, Pa., in other cases "a double bottom could create more problems than it solves."

He said the double bottoms, "which a number of countries specifically forbid." can "create an explosive atmosphere" because of cargo or fumes that leak into them, and they sometimes would make it "much more difficult to get a vessel off what it is aground of.

Russell E. Train, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said Tuesday that the 32mile-long the Marcus Hook accident "wouldn't have happened" if the tanker Olympic Games had had a double hull.

Train had said earlier that "I can see a lot coming out of" the Argo Merchant disaster off Nantucket, including "unilateral action by the U.S. to set far stricter standards for construction, design and operation of ships coming to our ports.'

His has been one of many voices raised in helpless anger against the accidents. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), calling for hearings in Boston a week ago, declared, "We cannot afford this kind of Christmas nightmare again. Environmental groups believe the disasters will create pressure for, among other things, stricter safety and navigational standards for foreign ships entering U.S. waters, and electroic or satellite monitoring systems to detect ships that are off course before accidents occur.

Wednesday Benkert, chief of the Office of Merchant Marine Safety, strongly defended the Coast Guard's record of regulating merchant shipping in U.S. waters.

From 1971 through 1975, he said, an annual average of 30,000 vessels entered and left U.S. ports, "with an average of six groundings per year which resulted in pollution." The average oil spill in these accidents was about 24,000 gallons, he said.

Bank officer identifies weak links in city economy, offers projections

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

The two "weak links" in Midland's economy are lack of diversification of industry and retention of retail sales dollars, Harry Clark, senior vice president of First National Bank, told the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday. Clark said the progress of the diversification program in Midland has been "confusing" since August 1973 because the project has been getting less emphasis since then than it did between 1968 and 1973.

Clark told the group at its noon luncheon that Midland's economy for the immediate future looks very strong. He said he is "cautious" about the long-term outlook for the city but thinks the city can overcome the problems of diversification and retention of retail sales:

In 1968, there were 900 industrial workers in Midland which comprised 8 per cent of the work force, compared to a state average of 22 per

By August 1973 there were almost 2,700 industrial workers who made up about 15 per cent of Midland's work force. That number is down now to approximately 2,500, comprising only 6 per cent of the work force. Clark

The reduction in the percentage of industrial workers is "the most alarming thing we could have done,'

he said. Clark said the immediate goal of the city's diversification project is to attract one industry that employs more than 1,000 persons. Pittsburgh Plate Glass has renewed its option on a piece of property for possible building in Midland, he said, and there are two other non-petroleum related industries who are considering locating in Midland.

Each of these industries would meet the goal of employing more than 1,000 workers, Clark said.

In the area of retaining retail sales. Clark said retail sales in Midland total less than 60 per cent of the total spendable income generated here. That contrasts to about 90 per cent in both Odessa and San Angelo.

He said the regional shopping center concept is the key to retaining retail sales in Midland. With its present population, however, Midland is a marginal prospect for one, he tremendous migration of national corporation headquarters" from East Coast cities, he said. That migration has already started but will not reach Midland for another five years, Clark said. For the immediate future, Clark said, the Midland economy will be in good shape. He predicted building will continue to be strong for the coming

For the long term, Clark said Midland has potential as a center for national corporation headquarters.

"I'm aware of two 10-story additional (office) buildings in the planning stages," he said. Residential construction "should hold its own" at the approximately $15 million level maintained in 1975 and 1976. In 1976, there were close to $60 million in building permits filed, an all-time record. These included a number of large projects which will affect the economy during the coming Permits in 1977 probably won't reach that level but they should be close to the $34 million in 1974, the best previous year. National energy policy will affect the economic area more than anything else, Clark said, and the Carter administration is "unknown so far as specific proposals," although Clark expects deregulation of natural gas in some form. Clark predicted a growth of independent oil production in Midland. 'I think we're going to see more independents coming into Midland" and the ones that are here will grow, he

There are now more than 300 drilling rigs active in the area, the most since 1959, he said, which is an indication of contemplation of new discoveries.

Bank deposits will continue to grow in the year ahead, too, Clark said, to finance new exploration activity. By the end of the year, bank deposits should total about $630 million, about a $90 million increase from the end of last year.

In 1968, bank deposits in Midland totaled about $250 million, Clark said. And there has been a net increase of 900 workers from 1975 to 1976, bringing the total work force in Midland to about 35,640.

One striking thing about Midland's economic development since 1968 is the growth of the middle class, Clark In 1968, Midland ranked fourth in the nation in per capita income but 13 per cent of its citizens were below the "I think you're going to see a poverty level and the middle class consisted of about 66 per cent of the population: Clark said.

Now, Midland ranks 99th in the nation in per capita wealth but only six per cent of its people fall below the poverty level and almost 80 per cent can be classified as middle class, he

"We have created a middle class. I think that's good," he said.

the number of times a case can be appealed," said Mashburn, who at one time had a murder case conviction appealed 27 times, stretching over a period of eight years.

Mashburn was one of 10 members of the state district attorneys' association to work. along with 10 criminal defense lawyers and 10 judges, on a revision of the penal code from 1971 until 1974.

Among other things, that revision of the criminal code eliminated inconsistencies in the old code, whereby a person would receive a stiffer sentence for killing a chicken or a hog than poking out another human's eve.

"We've done a lot to upgrade our police in training to make them more professional. Now, we need to develop professional prosecutors," Mashburn said.

"We need to pay enough to allow them to be on the job full time. And we need to draw career people into the office, not those who stay for a year or two. getting a brief exposure to criminal law and then move onto jobs with private firms." He admitted financial considerations were part of his own decision to move from prosecutor into private practice.

'I guess I'm really proudest of all those people out there working that I didn't have to put in jail," Mashburn said at his new law office at 1105 W. Wall St.

"I forced a lot of them to get jobs, finish school or in other ways become productive and stay out of trouble by the threat of putting them in jail," he ad-

The Culver Youth Home and the Permian Basin Regional Law Enforcement Academy were other projects Mashburn said he was proud to have contributed to during his tenure as Midland's chief prosecutor.

Occasional showers dotted the west side of the state from the Pecos River to the Guadalupe Mountains during the night and early morning, and clouds increased over most sections. Skies were clear only in the extreme east and over the coastal plains.

A new norther smacked into Northwest Texas and was due to sweep all the way to the coast by tonight.

Along with sharp drops in temperature, chances were seen for light rain in nearly all areas - and light snow in parts of the Panhandle by Friday afternoon.
