Robbery Defendant Testifies

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Victor Briones, who prosecutors contend was possibly the last man ever to see Max Stone, indicated in a statement he and a companion did pick up a man in a bar Dec. 30 or 31, 1976.

But Briones claimed in the statement his companion — star state witness Felix Ybarra — took a wallet from the man and that he, Briones, had left the man standing unharmed in a rural area near some oil wells.

The statement was introduced into evidence Tuesday during the first full day of testimony in Briones' aggravated robbery trial.

The defendant, 26, is accused of robbing Stone of a watch Dec. 31. According to testimony, Stone, a 42-year-old medical technician who formerly worked at University Hospital, has not been seen nor heard from by family or acquaintances since that date.

Ybarra, who was expected to testify before the seven-man, five-woman jury in Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th Dist. Court today, stated during a pretrial hearing he saw Briones stab Stone with a switchblade knife and take his wallet and a gold watch.

On cross-examination during the hearing, Ybarra indicated that the man he identified as Stone was still barely breathing when he allegedly left him with Briones.

"Victor said he was going to go bury him," Ybarra testified during the pretrial hearing Monday.

The statement introduced by prosecutors Tuesday told a different story.

According to the statement signed by Briones, he and Ybarra, who, he said, is his wife's nephew, met a man in a bar who asked them to take him home because he was drunk.

The defendant's statement said, however, that he, driving the stranger's car, followed Ybarra — called by the nickname "Pondo" in the document — to a remote spot outside of town. Ybarra had testified that he followed Briones.

Once at the area near the oil wells, Briones said in the statement, Ybarra got inside the car with him and the third man and took possession of the man's wallet.

Briones said the man had asked "for us" to take the wallet and to let him go.

According to the statement, after Ybarra took the wallet, he and the stranger got out of the car. Ybarra got back inside his own car, Briones' statement claims, leaving him and the man standing there.

Briones said Ybarra hadn't given him time to get inside Ybarra's vehicle, so he drove off in stranger's car.

"The white man had asked me not to leave him there," the statement says.

Briones said in the statement that the next thing he remembered was being arrested for allegedly being drunk inside the man's vehicle.

Testimony by policemen Larry Manley and Claude Jones indicated Briones was arrested about 4:20 a.m. Dec. 31, inside Stone's car parked in the 300-block of E. 34th Street.

"He was passed out in a very drunken condition," Manley said.

"We had to work quite a while even to get him to come to."

A pill bottle was found on the front seat with Max Stone's name on it, Manley stated. He also said a routine check of the vehicle at the time showed it was registered to Stone. The vehicle was impounded.

Testimony indicated it was only later, after Stone's parents had filed a missing person's report, that officers remembered the incident. A theft warrant for Briones was reportedly issued Jan. 14.

In other evidence Tuesday, Asst. Dist. Atty. Jim Darnell continued to try to link Briones with the gold watch which allegedly belonged to Stone.

The missing man's mother, Mrs. H.L. Stone of Dallas, identified the watch as one given her son by her husband shortly before Christmas.

Darnell then elicited testimony from Juan Proa, Briones' father-in-law, that Briones had given him such a watch about the first of the year.

The watch which prosecutors assert was stolen from Stone was ultimately traced by Sheriff's Deputy J.B. Douglas to Altus, Okla., testimony indicated, where it was reportedly at the home of another of Proa's relatives.

Bolivian Family Sold On Aggieldand

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — Eudoro Galindo never attended Texas A&M but he's plastering the maroon and white all over Bolivia.

And in a manner of speaking, the 76-year-old Galindo is his country's greatest producer of Aggies.

Four of his five children attended as students and now his first grandchild attends the school. And the Cochamba, Bolivia, resident says there are 11 more grandchildren "waiting to go here."

Galindo, in town to visit his progeny and to attend the inauguration of A&M's new president Tuesday, said his oldest daughter is the only one of his children who did not attend A&M and that was because the Galindos hadn't "discovered" the school yet.

"But Ramiro (his eldest son) transferred to Texas A&M and was immediately impressed by the friendliness and warmth of the people," said Galindo. "It was a love affair from the first day."

"After that, they all became Aggies: Christian, who graduated in 1962; Eudoro Jr., who graduated in 1964, and my younger daughter, Vivian Ruth, who is 975 alumnaus," he said. "Now the first grandchild, Tatiana Arujo, class of 1978, is here and has her eye set on veterinary school and there are 11 more grandchildren waiting to go here."

For that, the 76-year-old civil engineer, was made an honorary Aggie at one of the Aggie Musters held by his children in Bolivia since 1960.

Galindo explained that many Bolivian parents send their children to school in the United States "because we wish them to get a better education then they can get in Bolivia."

The family home is located in the valley region of the Andes, where Christian runs their engineering company and Eudoro Jr. heads a bicycle manufacturing plant.

Vivian is married and lives in Bryan. Ramiro, who worked in Texas before returning to Bolivia to open an engineering firm, has now returned to the U.S. and formed the Braver Corporation of Bryan and Temple.

Why is there a United Way?

United Way was born of community efforts to help people. United Way raises funds, budgets and allocates them, and plans for the future. But, even more than that United Way has an over-riding concern for people and the problems they face. With Lubbock a highly populated, metropolitan area, there are many who need help now.

And many who will need help in the near future.. There are 32 agencies funded by United Way. They serve in the areas of physical and mental health, rehabilitation, delinquency prevention, family and children's services, and general community services.

These United Way services are not only for the disadvantaged, the handicapped or the disturbed. They are open to everyone who has a need. Through professionals and volunteers they provide equipment, care, counseling and character building.

Your gifts make United Way possible. You are United Way. Through the United Way you make an investment in your future, in your children's future, in the future of your chosen community.

Six Detectives Indicted On Civil Rights Charges

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Six homicide detectives were indicted Tuesday on charges they beat and threatened witnesses while investigating a 1975 house firebombing in which five persons died.
 Specifically, the policemen were accused by a federal grand jury of conspiring to violate the civil rights of seven persons, including some suspected of murder, by compelling them to be witnesses against themselves.
 This brings to nine the number of Philadelphia policeman charged with brutality this year and U.S. Atty. David Marston said "the probe is still open."
 The same grand jury also indicted three other policemen on racketeering and extortion charges involving a gambling operation.
 One of the overt acts cited in the latest indictment alleges that an unnamed officer threatened Judith Cucionata that if she didn't tell the truth about her husband's involvement she would be jailed, "probably sexually molested and ... her children would be placed in a foster home where they probably would be murdered."
 Indicted were John Ellis, James Carty, James Curley, William Jones, James Crown and Roseborough McMillan, all in-involved in probing the Oct. 5, 1975 firebombing in the Radames Santiago home in North Philadelphia.

 The grand jury said the officers injured, oppressed, threatened and intimidated Robert Wilkinson and his wife, Christine; Ronald Hanley; David McGinnis; John McCandless, and Vincent Cucionata and his wife, Judith.
 This deprived them of their constitutional right to liberty without due process of law, and also forced them to be witnesses against themselves, it was charged.
 The indictment alleges Ellis, Carty and Curley "punched, kicked, beat and struck" Hanley, that Crown and Jones jumped on Wilkinson's legs, that McMillan and Curley bashed McGinnis across the face while questioning him, and Mrs. Wilkinson was told she'd never see her child again if she didn't make a statement about her husband's participation.
 Marston said "this kind of police practice results in guilty people going back on the street," adding:
 "If a policeman beats a person to secure a statement that statement will not be admissible. Every time a guilty person goes back on the street the job of every policeman trying to do a good job becomes harder."

Reese Open House Scheduled On Monday

Aerial maneuvers by the Air Force's Thunderbirds and the Navy's Parachute Team will highlight open house festivities at Reese Air Force Base Monday.

Gates open at 10:30 a.m. on a day of activities aimed at showing the South Plains a good time while it looks the base over through exhibits and demonstrations.

The annual event celebrates Reese's 28th birthday and the Air Force's 30th.

Nineteen aircraft from the Air Force, Navy, Civil Air Patrol and Air National Guard will be on the flight line along with the jets, T37 and T38, that Reese student pilots learn to fly.

These will include the F4 Phantom II, C130 Hercules, A37 Dragonfly, RF101 Voodoo, A7D Corsair, F106 Delta Dart, C141 Starlifter, O1E Birdog, KC135 Stratotanker, F105 Thunderchief, PT22 and Cessna 172.

Coming up with their version of aerial maneuvers will be the Lubbock Radio Control Contest Association and the South Plains Area Radio Control Society.

Reese personnel will add their own version with a parasailing demonstration, showing part of the airborne training Reese students receive at the end of a tow rope to learn to handle a parachute should the time to eject ever come.

Other phases of Reese activity will be displayed in Hangar 82 on the flight line where activities will center. Everything from dental information to jet engines will be on view, along with booths from other branches of the service, ROTC units and Reserve units.

The U.S. Air Force Academy's Moods in Blue singers and band will begin the musical segment of the show at noon.

At 1:20 p.m., with the Reese Color Guard in attendance, the Frenship High School Band will get formal events underway with the playing of the national anthem.

Weather permitting, as the strains float upward, a member of the Navy parachute team will come down carrying the Stars and Stripes. This will launch the team's aerial show.

Other musical entertainment during the day will be Texas Gold from South Plains College and Reese's own Fifth String which won Air Training Command competition and placed third worldwide in Air Force competition.

Winners in an aviation-oriented art and photo contest for civilians and military personnel will be named and contest entries will be on exhibit during the day. The top military entries will be entered in ATC art competition.

Topping off the day, putting the icing on the birthday cakes, will be the acrobatic aerial demonstration by the Thunderbirds, flying the T38 Talon students fly to show what it can do.

At 3 p.m. and prior to the Thunderbirds' show a review will be conducted by a VIP inspection party consisting of Col. Charles E. Bishop, Reese commander; Vernon Barron, past president of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce; Lubbock Mayor Roy Bass; Col. Haynes Baumgardner (USAF ret.), president of the Lubbock Chapter of the Air Force Association; Ray J. Diekemper, president of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce; and B. E. Rushing Jr., member of the Chamber's Armed Services Committee.

The Thunderbirds are scheduled to arrive and perform arrival maneuvers at 11:30 a.m.

Guests are requested to approach the base from the Leveland Highway side, turn right at the signal and enter the golf course gate for special parking.

THE TRAIL ROLL—Two T38 Talons peeling over in the trail roll maneuver appear as one long aircraft as the red, white and blue craft of the Thunderbirds perform. The Thunderbirds will send the thunder of their legendary namesake peeling through South Plains skies Monday as part of the Reese Air Force Base open house.

Private Fliers In Mass Flight Across Plains

The All-Texas Air Tour, an annual mass flight of about 60 private airplanes and about 125 people across the state, will stop at three South Plains towns this week — Lamesa, Hereford and Crosbyton. The air tour of nearly 30 Texas towns began last Saturday in Temple and will wind up this Saturday in Bridgeport. On Thursday, the group will arrive for lunch at Lamesa and then go to Hereford for the afternoon. On Friday, the tour will lunch at Crosbyton. This year's is the group's 29th annual tour.

By GENE BERNHARDT
WASHINGTON (UPI) — They've done it again, those congressmen who are so concerned about Congress's public image and complain that the press is always taking a cheap shot at them. For the first time in the slightly more than a decade that this observer has covered the House, a bill was introduced, called up minutes later and passed by voice. No reference to a committee for hearings, no debate, no explanation, no printed copies of the bill or an accompanying report, no record vote. Even the venerable Congressional Record, in reporting the previous day's activities, showed only that Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., asked and got unanimous consent "for the immediate consideration of the bill H.R. 9262 ..."

It was done that way, with the obvious planning of the Democratic leadership and the silent acquiescence of the 70 or 80 members on the floor at the time, because it gave a one-shot increase in Congressmen's pensions to encourage the older members to retire and make room for younger blood. It's the kind of thing that many members would say "the press would distort and not report objectively" if there had been public debate. The purpose of the bill had merit. Even Common Cause, the citizens' lobbying group which has little favor among congressmen, supported the objective. It's doubtful, however, that it supported the method of passage. What the bill did was allow pensions for those retiring next year to be figured from the present salary base, rather than determining the base from the average of the three highest year's salaries, which is now in law and which will resume in January, 1979. For any House or Senate member retiring with the maximum pension, it means a one-time $3,426 a year increase in his pension over what he would get under the regular system. At last count, six Senators and 11 House members plan to retire next year, and another nine are seeking other offices and could come under the pension if they lose. Dan Glickman, a freshman Democrat from Kansas, said he wasn't aware of what happened until he read about it the next day in his hometown newspaper. "I was absolutely disgusted when I found out," said Glickman. So were Reps. Andy Jacobs, D-Ind., and Martha Keys, D-Kan. The three immediately introduced a resolution to amend the rules of the House "to require that measures affecting the salaries, freebies or emoluments of members or former members of Congress be adopted by roll call vote."

Glickman, in his freshman naivete, said, "As far as other members agreeing with this position, I think it would be very embarrassing if they don't go along with it." What they pass so quietly in Congress, they also kill.

Brownfield Man Gets Chamber Position

A-J Correspondent
BROWNFIELD — State Comptroller Bob Bullock has announced he is sending a representative from his Lubbock office to Brownfield Oct. 12, to assist local taxpayers and answer questions about state taxes.
 Bullock said Enforcement Officer James Chauncey will meet with local taxpayers at the Courthouse from 1-4 p.m. on that date.
 "If Brownfield and area merchants, or anyone else for that matter, have any questions about state taxes or need help in preparing tax forms, Chauncey will be there to assist them," said Bullock.
 "We're trying to cut the red tape in this office and we believe these face-to-face sessions with taxpayers help to do just that," he continued.
 Bullock reminded those taxpayers who are unable to meet with his representative on Oct. 12 that they can still get information by calling 1-800-252-5555.
 The Lubbock office, headed by Donald F. Paxton, serves Lubbock and surrounding counties.

County Commissioner Seeking New Garbage Dump

Lubbock County Commissioner Edgar Chance is looking for another place his Pct. 1 constituents can dump their garbage. But he hasn't had much luck.
 Chance said he has had to close the county landfill west of Wolfforth because the 15-acre site, after 20 years of use, finally has been exhausted.
 "The dumpground was completely filled up, so we closed it out and covered it up with topsoil," he said.
 "I'd like to find another site in Pct. 1 because I feel the people really need the service. But so far, I haven't been able to locate any suitable land that's available," Chance said.
 The former landfill had been located about four miles west of Wolfforth, near the Lubbock-Hockley county line. Citizens were allowed to use the dumpground at no charge.
 Chance said rural Pct. 1 residents are "going to have to go to the City of Lubbock dumpground" north of the city to dispose of refuse. He said he hopes that long drive — and the fees charged by the city — do not prompt residents to illegally dump trash along county roads instead.
 "Since we closed the (Pct. 1) dumpground, there has been some dumping on the right-of-ways and in farm fields." With the closing of the Pct. 1 operation, the only other Lubbock County landfill now in use is Commissioner Jim Lancaster's Pct. 3 dumpground near Idalou.

Scientists Ponder Possible Problems In Iceberg Plans

AMES, Iowa (AP) — While scientists from around the world say it might be possible to tap icebergs for drinking water, some experts say potential problems could be as big as the bergs themselves.

Bad weather, rough seas, melting, possible climate changes and simply hooking a tow wire to an iceberg were some of the potential difficulties brought out at the first International Conference on Iceberg Utilization here this week.

The five-day conference ending Thursday is being funded by the government of Saudi Arabia, which is interested in using melted icebergs to provide water to the arid desert nation.

"There are serious questions about just how strong an iceberg is," said Dr. John Kennedy, a hydraulic engineer from the University of Iowa who has been studying ice for several years.

One problem is the effect salt in the sea could have on the fresh water of the iceberg when it is towed to warmer climes and begins to melt.

Prof. G. Ali Mansouri of the University of Illinois said another problem is the lack of information on how fast an iceberg melts. What will happen as the ice moves into warmer water "just is not clear," Mansouri said.

A former sea captain raised practical questions about towing an iceberg from the polar caps. He compared such a project to initial efforts at towing large oil-drilling platforms out to sea.

Bank Deposits Reflect Healthy Lubbock Economy

By MONA HARVEY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock's growth rate, unemployment figures and projections for a good cotton crop topped bankers' list of reasons for the economic strength reflected in increased bank deposits of 13 per cent since last year.

Figures compiled Tuesday from the city's eight banks showed $990,026,207 on deposit at the close of business Sept. 30 as compared to last September's deposits of $868,903,963.

The gain since June 30 of this year was 3 per cent, or $37 million.

Deposits increased $121 million from September, 1976, to September, 1977, half again as much as the $63 million increase in the comparable period a year earlier.

With deposits just $10 million under the Dec. 31, 1976, $1 billion landmark, bankers are optimistic about reaching that goal again.

Coffee Conner, executive vice-president of Lubbock National Bank, looks for a "momentum to sustain us through a good fall and right on into spring."

"As far as the outlook for the coming quarter, it is excellent," said Texas Commerce Bank president Tommie Stevens, "primarily because of the large cotton crop that is projected."

"It appears that we're going to be somewhere over 2.5 million bales this year. That would compare to last year's total of 2 million," Stevens said.

W.R. Collier, American State Bank president, agreed with the prospects of a good cotton crop "although we are concerned with increasing costs of production on the part of farmers and depressed prices that they are receiving for their products."

Collier noted the falling unemployment rate here. Since a 3.6 per cent figure in August, 1976, the rate has dropped to 3 per cent this August.

"This simply means we're all working and consumer spending should remain strong," added Bank of the West president Rodney Joy.

The building of residential homes and apartments "has been a stimulus to the general economy," Conner said.

Security National Bank president Doug Boren concurred, "The economy is continuously good, especially in southwestern Lubbock."

At Texas Bank, where $5.3 million in deposits showed a 15 per cent increase this quarter and a 59 per cent increase in a year, president John Grist attributed the leap to Tech's reopening. Due to the bank's location, the students' accounts "are a major boost in the arm for us," he said.

Texas Bank also picked up some commercial accounts "which is the basis for making a bank grow," Grist said although his bank is not an agricultural one, he believes "all of us indirectly will benefit from the harvesting of crops."

Howard Vandell, First National Bank president, said about 60 per cent of his bank's $28.5 million rise in a year was due to individual partnership corporations. The remainder was in state and political deposits, he said.

Some funds will be drawn from the bank by farmers whose crops are being harvested but Vandell expects the cash influx to begin as much as 60 days earlier this year from the cotton crop due to excellent weather which has promoted the maturing rate.

Bankers are awaiting a decision on applications submitted for three proposed state banks and a National bank here.

Carter Supports Seabed Mines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration gave its support Tuesday to development of legislation to regulate deep seabed mining by U.S. companies, but it opposed government investment guarantees.

Ambassador Elliot L. Richardson told two Senate subcommittees that the United States lost ground in developing an acceptable international treaty at this year's session of the United Nations Law of the Sea Conference, and progress at next spring's proposed session is doubtful.

But he said a domestic permit system and resource management regulation will be needed whether or not there is a treaty.

"The administration believes that if there is to be any meaning to the common heritage of mankind, those with the technology and resources to make it a reality must move forward," he said. "In our view, therefore, Congress should continue to move forward with legislation."

Richardson, the President's special representative to the Law of the Sea Conference, said the administration "firmly opposes" provisions of pending bills that would reimburse U.S. companies for any losses that might result from restrictions in a future treaty.

He said such a "bailout provision in advance" would be unprecedented and not justified by the nation's need for the minerals involved, principally manganese, nickel and cobalt.

"I question the very concept of indemnifying U.S. citizens against losses incurred as a consequence of an international agreement that both the President and the Senate believe to be in the over-all national interest," he said.

Richardson testified before combined subcommittees of the Senate committees on commerce and natural resources.

He said next spring's session of the Law of the Sea Conference should disclose whether there will be a treaty.

If there is no treaty, he said, industry will have nothing to fear. If progress develops, he added, industry will be able to "judge for itself from the texts the prospects for economically attractive ventures."

'Killer' Satellite Revealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has developed a satellite killing weapon that could attack some U.S. satellites in outer space, Defense Secretary Harold Brown said Tuesday.

Brown's disclosure at a news conference came as a surprise because U.S. intelligence analysts have rated most Soviet antisatellite tests as unsuccessful since the Russians resumed work on their system last year.

However, it was learned that in a significant test on June 17 a Soviet hunter-killer satellite in an elliptical orbit intercepted a Russian target satellite for the first time. Experts said this indicates a high degree of technical sophistication.

Saying the Soviet ability to attack some satellites is "somewhat troubling," Brown told reporters, "I hope we can keep space from becoming an area of active hostilities."

The new development suggests that the Russians have ignored President Carter's plea on March 9 that both sides "forego the opportunity to arm satellite bodies and ... forego the opportunity to destroy observation satellites."

The United States has accelerated research on a possible satellite-killer system since the Russians resumed their experiments last year after a five-year lapse.

"We don't have that capability," Brown said of the antisatellite system. Pentagon scientists have indicated the United States may be in position to put up a satellite-killer of its own by the mid-1980s, possibly a few years earlier.

Brown said the main danger to the United States of a Soviet antisatellite system would be to American reconnaissance space vehicles, which monitor missile tests and other military developments, and to satellites designed to warn U.S. authorities immediately if Russia should launch a surprise missile attack.

Brown declined to elaborate on the kind of satellites that could be vulnerable to the new Russian weapon.

But other officials said the Russian system is believed effective now against satellites in relatively low orbits, which could include some American reconnaissance vehicles. But they said the Soviet weapon would be unlikely at this time to threaten the early warning satellites and communications satellites, which orbit many thousands of miles in space.

The June 17 successful Russian test, according to U.S. experts, was aimed at a target satellite traveling in an orbit reaching as far out as 1,260 miles and as close as 1,080 miles above the earth's surface.

This is well beyond the orbital paths of American satellites carrying high resolution cameras. They travel in orbits ranging up to 150 miles from earth.

The 1972 Strategic Arms Limitation Agreement, which has been extended by informal U.S.-Soviet assent, bars interference with reconnaissance satellites, which among other things police the terms of that arms control understanding.

Driver Charged In Crash

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A Baton Rouge youth was killed and a Texas man booked with negligent homicide as a result of a two-vehicle collision here.

Michael McNeil, 20, was killed and two teenagers were injured Monday when a tractor-trailer rig "literally ran over a dune buggy," authorities said.

The driver of the truck, Charles Gates, 26, of Killeen, was booked for negligent homicide.

Warm Weather Delays Onset Of Winter Chills

By IRA PERRY

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Cool, crisp, winter air and residents' battles to keep out of rain-filled mud puddles and off of ice-coated sidewalks, have been indefinitely postponed this winter, National Weather Service forecasters claim.

Summer, it seems, just can't bear to leave the South Plains, and the longer those blistering summerlike temperatures hang around, the longer winter's snowy blankets must wait.

Though Lubbock's first freezing temperature of the season is usually recorded around Oct. 31, forecasters say this winter's first icy chill may not come about that soon because of September's unusually hot, record-breaking temperatures.

September, usually a cool month on the South Plains with temperatures in the mid 80s, was 5.4 degrees hotter than usual with an average maximum temperature of 91.1 degrees.

Sixteen daily temperature records fell during the month, and high 90-degree readings were common until Oct. 1, the weather forecasters reported in the NWS monthly summary.

Temperatures across the region ranged from 7.5 degrees above normal at Post to 2.8 degrees above at Hereford. Lubbock's average temperature was 77.4 degrees, with the average maximum at 91.1 and the average minimum at 63.7 degrees. The lowest monthly temperature was 53 degrees on Sept. 19.

Maximum temperatures were 8.3 degrees above normal, ranging from 11.6 above normal at Post to 5.2 degrees above the normal of 84.3 degrees at Littlefield. Minimum temperatures were 2.9 degrees above normal, from 5.5 degrees above Lubbock's average of 58.2 degrees to .1 degree below normal at Dimmitt.

October temperatures should be one to three degrees above normal, with cold fronts moving through the area regularly dropping temperatures rapidly on some days to make up for extremely hot seasonal days. Lubbock's average monthly temperature during October is 60.8 degrees.

Exactly when, though, ice will start forming on rain-slickened windshields and slippery sidewalks is still up to conjecture. Average first freeze dates for the Panhandle usually occur in the last 10 days of the month, while the South Plains usually doesn't see freezing temperatures until after the first of November, the weathermen said.

Because the month is expected to be warmer than usual, the Oct. 31 date projected for Lubbock may be too early for the season's first freeze.

Average first freeze dates in the region range from Oct. 21 at Muleshoe to Nov. 8 at Big Spring.

Even then, though, this winter shouldn't be a wet one.

October usually marks the first of a seasonal decline in precipitation, and since rainfall totals are already under normal by 1.70 inches, indications are that most area communities will stay below rainfall normal totals throughout this winter.

Weather conditions in the past few months have shown above average temperatures and below normal rainfall totals, the weathermen said, making soils throughout Northwest Texas relatively dry to a depth of several feet. Forecasters say soils should stay dry through planting time next spring since winter moisture is usually ineffective at adding to existing supplies.

Precipitation averaged 2.17 inches below normal in September, ranging from 3.69 inches below normal at Jayton to .88 of an inch below normal at Dimmitt. In Lubbock, .49 of an inch of rain fell to bring the year's total to 15.21 inches, 1.70 inches below normal.

Lubbock's average precipitation in October is 1.96 inches. Average maximum and minimum temperatures during the month are 74.5 and 47.1 degrees.

FROSTY WEATHER — Freezing temperatures across the South Plains usually begin cooling things down in late October, the National Weather Service reported in its monthly weather summary. Listed are average first freeze dates for the counties of the Texas South Plains based on past NWS data recorded there. Weathermen say those freezes may come later than usual this year, however, because of September's unusually high temperatures.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm a longtime reader of your column and have never seen a discussion of Meniere's disease. I went to my doctor because I had loss of balance. I felt as though I was seasick. He told me it was Meniere's disease. He has me on diuretics, and says if that doesn't help he might try something else. I'd like to know more about this, and what else can be done. The pills don't seem to have helped much. — D.D.

I've answered specific questions on this several times over the years. Perhaps you don't remember reading them because you weren't involved then.

Meniere's disease is caused by a build-up of fluid (called endolymph) in the canals of the inner ear where balance is controlled. Any disturbance of the balance mechanism can cause the dizziness or motion sickness.

Diuretics to promote release of the fluid is part of treatment. I presume you were told about some of the other things you can do to help — avoid salt, coffee, and tobacco. There are also anti-dizziness pills that can help. In some cases, nicotinic acid to help expand blood vessels is used.

All of these measures can add their bit to the task of reducing the amount of fluid in the canals, but it can take some time. You should not expect dramatic results too quickly.

In fact, one of the problems in treating Meniere's is that patients often become discouraged and give up the simpler treatments — too soon. At best, Meniere's is difficult to treat. More severe cases can be helped by ultra-sound.

Untreated, the disease can be serious, even leading to deafness. It is also dangerous from the balance standpoint. The patient usually is subject to falling (to the side of the affected ear).

The basic cause of Meniere's is not clear, but allergy has been suggested. Certain drugs, such as quinine, aspirin, and streptomycin, may contribute to it. I get many letters relating to ear noises. Where other factors have been ruled out, Meniere's disease may be often involved in such ear symptoms and should be investigated.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have found your column both interesting and informative, and it is so easy to understand your discussions of various problems submitted by the readers. I don't try to apply everything you say to the problems I have because I know each case is really different, but you give a good overall piece of advice each time. — Mrs. H.V.C.

Thanks. I could not have expressed the intention of this column any better. Of course, each case is different. The real purpose is in letting "V.A." or "H.J." or "L.D." learn a bit more about his or her specific problem and how doctors try to treat it and why. But millions of readers like yourself may also learn a bit more about their own problems in the process.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would really like to know if once in a while a little tickle on the bottom of the baby's feet will make the baby stut. Some say this is so, others that it isn't, that it's an old wives' tale. — Mrs. B.S.

I'll vote for the "old wives' tale" idea. Incidentally, you used the term, not me. I was taken to task a couple of years ago for using the phrase, and promised those women who seemed offended not to use it any more. "Old person's tale" just didn't seem to fit, so I just settled for calling them myths. At any rate, there's more involved in stuttering than an occasional tickle on the bottom of the foot.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had numbness in my right arm for a long time. Recently, you advised a writer with such a problem to have X-rays of the neck spine to see if there were any arthritic changes causing it. I took the advice myself and had X-rays. It showed a spur there. Is that the same thing? The doctor wants to put me in traction. Will that help? — Mrs. R.M.

Spurs can be caused by arthritis changes, and can put pressure on the nerve root in the arm, which is apparently what is happening in your case. Traction often helps relieve this pressure.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for his booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Heloise: Although most of your column is dedicated to housewives, you know men sometimes read your column, and I am one of those men.

I read your article awhile back about the man putting shoe polish on the paneling of his station wagon.

Now I am going to tell you what I found out about the paneling on a station wagon.

Every year, early summer and early fall, I always give our station wagon a good wax job to carry it through the hot summer and harsh winter.

While I was waxing our station wagon, my wife took a no-dust spray, sprayed it on a clean rag and ran it across the paneling on the tailgate of the wagon. This strip of paneling had begun to fade from being exposed to the sun.

Much to her surprise the color came back right away so I cleaned off the side paneling and my wife applied the same treatment to the sides of the wagon.

I let this set for 24 hours, wiped it off and then brushed on a clear shellac over the paneling. Varnish will do just as well.

After letting this dry for 24 hours I gave it another coat of shellac.

This keeps the paneling looking nice and, when dry and hardened, it protects the color of the paneling from the hot rays of the sun.

My car is five years old and still looks good. — Woodrow W. Carr

You are a king for sending in this hint.

We love it when a man passes along an idea for our scrapbooks.

Sneak back into our column anytime, sir. — Heloise

Dear Heloise: At bedtime every night tell children to turn out the lights and go to sleep or read for 30 minutes.

They will choose to read every time! — Mrs. Miriam Yost

This may be a good way to get a child that doesn't like to read to form a habit of reading a little bit every day. — Heloise

Dear Heloise: Here is a hint for your overweight readers.

Being alone at home all day causes many people to sit and nibble while reading, etc. or to just plain "pig out" at lunch and dinner.

Set a mirror on your table so you can see what you look like "stuffing it in."

Works wonders! — Olive J. Baird

County Officials To Study Facility Proposal

Area county officials will learn Thursday what the proposed regional juvenile detention facility is all about. Judges and commissioners in the 15-county South Plains area will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the 99th District Courtroom of the Lubbock County Courthouse to hear criminal justice planners explain the project.

A report prepared by consultants for the South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG) will be outlined to the group. That report recommends that Lubbock County build and operate a juvenile detention complex, and that surrounding counties contract for its use — and help support the project financially. Project proponents hope that on the basis of Thursday's presentation, outlying counties will be able to decide in the next month or so whether they will participate. Thursday's meeting will be co-sponsored by Lubbock County, which already is committed to the juvenile plan, and the SPAG criminal justice advisory committee, which has lead the planning effort.

Presiding over the meeting will be Bailey County Judge Glen Williams, committee chairman. According to the proposal, the juvenile center would be located in Lubbock and would provide short- and long-term detention for juveniles from throughout the region. The facility serve "non-status offenders" — youths accused of serious crimes, rather than truancy or runaway offenses. The report said construction of the estimated $1 million structure should not be a problem, because Lubbock County commissioners already have pledged $500,000, and a matching amount should be available from federal criminal justice sources.

Operational costs, estimated at $225,000 a year, would be shared between Lubbock County and surrounding counties. Basically, the money would come from state funds which the counties receive under the community assistance program of the Texas Youth Council. Surrounding counties will be asked to automatically assign this money to Lubbock County for use in running the proposed detention facility. In turn, they would be guaranteed reserved space for their juveniles in the center.

The SPAG criminal justice advisory committee will meet at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, before the session with county officials, to endorse an application for phase two of the project. The application, which will be submitted to the Governor's Office by Lubbock County, seeks $40,000 to pay for designing the juvenile center. The application notes that "all youths who are held in detention within the region are held in the city and county jails. This practice has been condemned by correctional experts for more than a century."

Shooting Goes To Grand Jury

A-J Correspondent
PORTALES—A Roosevelt County Grand Jury Friday will decide the appropriateness of the action of law officers who killed a man Sept. 22 after exchanging shots with him during a highway pursuit. District Attorney Bill Bonem cited a state statute that provides for such action by officers but said the case would be presented to the grand jury for a final decision.

Edward L. Bell, 62, of Portales was killed after a highway chase which began near a convenience store in Portales and ended near the Bethel Community, northwest of the city. The chase and shootout began when Roosevelt County Sheriff Sonny Carter and Portales policeman Ruben Sais encountered Bell and approached him for questioning.

Credit Seminar Set In City

A seminar on the Equal Credit Opportunity Act will be sponsored by the Texas Tech University Center for Professional Development (CPD) and the Retail Merchants Association of Lubbock Oct. 20 from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The officers reportedly approached Bell for questioning in connection with an alleged violation of a court order. Police reports indicated that Bell allegedly pointed a shotgun at Carter and Sais as the men approached. The officers reportedly took cover as Bell drove away in his 1973 automobile.

A chase ensued, in which police reportedly were fired upon, and officers flattened a rear tire on Bell's vehicle as the car sped in excess of 60 miles per hour. Sheriff Carter reportedly told investigators

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act is an amendment to a federal law enacted March 23, 1977, making it illegal to discriminate against an individual on the basis of race, sex, religion or creed. The law applies specifically to granting credit to individuals.

The seminar is for all credit grantors who are subject to the rules and regulations of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act and any person who has authority to make credit decisions, according to Mitchell Raiborn, CPD director.

An autopsy revealed that Bell had been wounded with double-O buckshot in the back, to the head and to the face.

Any business considering granting credit is urged to send representatives. Real estate lenders, banks and savings and loan institutions may not wish to send representatives because seminars for these institutions already have been conducted, Raiborn said.

The program will highlight such areas as counteroffers of credit, denial of credit, record retention and other applications of the general rules to commonly recurring situations in the extension of credit.

Bill Harriger, associate with the law firm of McClesky, Harriger, Brazill & Graf, will conduct the seminar. Fee is $25 per participant, with every fifth person from the same firm attending at no charge.

For more information, or to register, contact the Center of Professional Development.

Hospital District State Funding Okayed

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill's staff has approved the wording of a proposed contract for the disbursement of $8 million in state aid for the new Health Sciences Center Hospital here.

A Hill assistant, John Reeves, has signed the document, indicating that the proposed agreement is legally sufficient and that the terms and method of disbursement are acceptable. The Lubbock County Hospital District had negotiated the draft with the staff of the Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System. The full Coordinating Board is expected to consider the agreement Oct. 20-21. During the 1977 regular session, the state legislature appropriated $8 million for the biennium to defray teaching and start-up costs of the local Texas Tech University-affiliated hospital, set to open Feb. 1.

The appropriation was an unprecedented move, and complicated by the fact that the legislature had failed to pass a corresponding enabling act regarding state assistance to teaching hospitals. However, the approval by Hill's office seems to uphold the view — maintained all along by many officials — that there will be no problems in providing state funds to the 245-bed Lubbock facility.

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

America's survival is possible only by denying other countries the ability to impose their will on it, and our security is protected only by insuring that potential aggressors see unacceptable risks in planning a foreign invasion. Since World War II, the United States through its military supremacy has accomplished this for itself and has helped to maintain global peace. However, our military supremacy and global peace are now threatened. While Young Americans for Freedom endorses diplomatic efforts to prevent war, we also believe that political endeavors to promote peace and freedom can only be accomplished through a position of military strength. Our national leadership is currently steering toward disarmament, and the contrast between what ought to be the attitude and physical strength of our military and what is, requires immediate action.

The purpose of this symposium is to inform the citizenry of the Southwest of our current military policies concerning national defense. We also hope to arouse in concerned Americans a sense of urgency to become informed and begin to actively petition their elected officials for the retention of a strong military defense. Please support us in this effort with your attendance. We must choose for this generation and those following to remain free through military strength or accept slavery from lack of moral courage to stand against our enemies.

Government Checks Deal With China

NEW YORK (AP) — An American firm said Tuesday it has been awarded a multi-million dollar contract to supply seismic computer systems to China but that the U.S. government has withheld approval of the deal because of the "sophisticated nature" of the oil-finding equipment.

Applied Devices Corp. said its Texas-based subsidiary, Digital Resources Corp., had received a $3.7 million contract from the People's Republic of China for four prospector seismic data processing computer systems.

"The Prospector computer system processes geophysical data compiled in oil exploration, cutting the time between data acquisition and final interpretation," the company said.

It also said that, under the contract, the company would train 30 Chinese nationals in computer use at Digital headquarters in Houston.

The computer systems "are destined for use by a number of technical institutions in mainland China and will support the nation's accelerated oil exploration programs," the company said.

George Howard, a company spokesman, said the equipment is designed to "help the Chinese become energy sufficient by the year 2000."

The subsidiary was awarded a $1.7 million contract last year to supply similar computer equipment, but Howard said, "We're still in the process of clearing that, too, through the U.S. government."

"There's one element in there that is of a fairly sophisticated nature, and the government is considering very carefully the export of that piece," Howard said. "Everybody, including ourselves, want to make sure it is the proper thing to export."

Howard said there are stringent regulations about trade with China and that when it comes to sophisticated equipment the government is generally concerned about it.

GROUNDING TANKER—A giant Dutch salvage tug, back-ground, fails to budge the 20,000 ton bulk carrier Lamaria recently from her position atop the barrier reef northwest of Bermuda. The vessel ran aground at high tide last Wednesday, and all attempts by local tugs to free her were in vain. Plans were being made Monday to offload 400 tons of fuel oil from the Liberian-registered vessel in preparation for another tug attempt. Minister of Marine and Ports John Swan has warned the owners of the ship that he will not permit them to jettison the oil into the sea. (AP Laserphoto)

Sewage Regulation Hearing Planned

AUSTIN — A hearing is set for Oct. 26 to discuss a proposal by the Texas Department of Water Resources for regulation of private sewage facilities, including septic tanks, in the area surrounding Mackenzie Reservoir in Briscoe and Swisher counties.

The agency is proposing to delegate to the Mackenzie Municipal Water Authority the licensing, regulation and enforcement functions relating to the rules and regulations.

As proposed, the Texas Water Commission order would designate the "regulated area" as that lying within 1,500 feet from the 3216-foot contour line (roughly the edge of the lake).

The order would require that a license be obtained from the authority for the construction of any private sewage disposal facilities in the regulated area. It further stipulates that the lot or tract which the facilities will serve must be at least 15,000 square feet in size.

Developers wishing to create a subdivision within the controlled area first would have to obtain approval from the authority of their plan for sewage disposal. To receive approval, a developer must:

—File a plan which is approved by the appropriate county commissioners court;

—Submit an application for approval of the subdivision sewage disposal plan and the appropriate filing fee to the authority;

—Agree to inform each prospective buyer that the subdivision is subject to the private sewage order, that a license will be required for any private sewage disposal facilities in the subdivision, and that a sewage disposal plan has been filed for the subdivision and that areas suitable for sewage facilities have been defined; and —Notify a prospective buyer of a lot that is not suitable for the use of private sewage facilities.

posed facility is within 300 feet of an organized waste collection treatment and disposal system capable of serving the customer, the proposal order says.

Under the Texas Water Code, persons who violate terms of the regulations would be subject upon conviction to a fine of from $10 to $200 per day per violation. Additionally, violators could be subject to civil penalties, including injunction, as prescribed in the water code.

The proposed fee schedule would require applicants to pay $25 to cover the processing of their application and inspection of their private sewage facilities.

A percolation test (required of all proposed septic tanks) would cost $50 if done by the authority.

A $25 fee would be charged for transfer of license.

The Oct. 26 hearing will begin at 11 a.m. in the office of the Mackenzie Municipal Water Authority at Mackenzie Reservoir on Texas 207 in Briscoe County.

Further information on the proposed regulations may be obtained by writing Joe O'Neal, Hearing Examiner, Texas Department of Water Resources, Box 13087, Austin 78711, or by calling the department.

Fighter Sues Mailer, Playboy

CORPUS CHRISTI (UPI) — A jury panel has been summoned for next Tuesday in federal court to try a $1 million libel suit brought by a Texas prize fighter against writer Norman Mailer and Playboy Magazine.

Nutto said he had invited heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, boxer George Foreman and broadcaster Howard Cosell to volunteer as witnesses in Henderson's behalf and pay their own ways to Corpus Christi to testify.

Henderson is upset over Mailer's article entitled "The Fight," describing the 1974 Ali-Foreman fight in Zaire which was published in the May, 1975, issue of Playboy.

His lawsuit complained of this passage: "Foreman had a sparring partner named Elmo Henderson, once heavyweight champion of Texas and not too recently released from Nevada State Hospital for the insane."

Mailer went on: "It was as if Elmo were Foreman's unheard voice, and the voice was loud and demented."

AMARILLO (AP) — Sobbing and shaking, state witness Beverly Bass twice was led from the courtroom Tuesday after viewing a photograph of Cullen Davis' slain stepdaughter Andrea, 12.

Trial Judge George Dowlen ordered back-to-back recesses after the incident and told the jury in the millionaire defendant's murder trial he was uncertain when testimony could resume.

The judge subsequently ruled Miss Bass could not continue and called a recess until 9 a.m.

The blonde Fort Worth coed was shown the picture of Andrea lying on a bloody basement floor at the Davis mansion, her eyes partially closed and a bullet wound in her chest.

"Can you identify that person?" prosecutor Tim Curry asked Miss Bass as he concluded direct examination of the witness.

"Yes, that was Andrea Wilborn," she replied, burying her head in her hands and weeping.

Judge Dowlen ordered a 20-minute recess at that point. When Miss Bass returned, however, she was still visibly shaken and the judge called a second halt in the proceedings.

Again, the young witness, this time sobbing uncontrollably, was escorted from the courtroom by a prosecutor.

Miss Bass earlier Tuesday told the jury she flagged down a motorist outside the mansion last year and told him Davis had gunned down her boyfriend.

"I told him that the man in the big white house, Cullen Davis, had just shot my boyfriend and I needed to call police," Beverly Bass testified. "I told him the Davis' were getting a divorce, that I saw Cullen do it, that I'd known him for years and that he did it."

Miss Bass, 19, told a similar story outside the presence of the jury in Davis' capital murder trial and repeated the account Tuesday after the judge ruled it admissible.

Her date, Gus "Bubba" Gavrel, 22, was one of two wounded in the midnight shooting spree that left two dead, including the millionaire defendant's 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea.

Davis' estranged wife, Priscilla, 36, was wounded and her live-in lover Stan Farr, was slain in the gunfire.

The defense vigorously resisted as hearsay the state's efforts to get Miss Bass' testimony before the jury concerning what she told others immediately after the shootings.

Her account attempts to puncture holes in a defense contention that she could have conspired with others after the shootings to name Davis as the gunman.

The trial judge ruled in effect that the witness' emotional state was such that her remarks were spontaneous and did not occur after she had time for cool reflection.

Miss Bass told earlier of arriving at the mansion with Gavrel that night, encountering a "man in black" at the gate and watching horrified as he wheeled and fired a crippling shot into her boyfriend.

"Cullen, please don't shoot me. It's Bev," she said she screamed as she fled across the vast estate, eluding the gunman and flagging down motorist Robert Sawhill.

She said Sawhill drove her to a nearby convenience store and summoned police and an ambulance.

The husky-voiced witness also said she "whistled" down a passing security guard at the store, raced to his jeep and told him about the shooting.

"I told him the man who owns the big white house had just shot my boyfriend and I thought he was dying and I wanted him to take me back to the house," she recounted.

Within minutes, a police car drove up and a patrolman took her back to the blood-splattered mansion.

At approximately the same time Mrs. Davis, a bullet wound in her chest, had appeared at the home of a neighbor appealing for help and crying, "Cullen's up at the house killing everybody."

Mrs. Davis was the first of three eyewitnesses to the shootings to name Davis as the gunman dressed in black and wearing a woman's black wig.

Gavrel also pointed to Davis as the assailant who turned in a lighted entrance-way and fired the bullet that remains lodged in his spine.

With the jury out Tuesday, a defense lawyer angrily accused Miss Bass of being "non-responsive, smart and cute" and volunteering "self-serving recitations."

But he failed in his attempt to block her testimony concerning the conversations she had with others subsequent to the shootings.

Miss Bass accused the defense lawyer of "trying to mix me up" and a prosecutor argued that the attorney was asking her "trick" questions.

Mrs. Gandhi Released From Jail

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A judge freed Indira Gandhi Tuesday after 16 hours in police custody and she promptly resumed her political comeback campaign. But the government appealed to a higher court and said it would press for her trial on corruption charges.

Demonstrations erupted in more than a dozen cities as supporters of the 59-year-old former prime minister protested her arrest.

Tear gas fumes penetrated the packed courtroom in Delhi as police batted pro-and-anti Gandhi demonstrators outside.

Mrs. Gandhi dabbed at her eyes with a handkerchief and leaned toward the judge to hear his ruling above the noise of the demonstrators.

Police reported 111 arrests and more than 15 injuries at the Parliament Street courthouse and another violent protest outside the home of Prime Minister Morarji Desai.

Scattered violence and hundred of arrests were reported in other cities. One of the largest demonstrations was in Calcutta, where a leader of Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party urged 3,000 supporters to launch a campaign of civil disobedience. He later was detained by police.

At Madras, authorities halted a demonstration by taking 1,500 Congress party workers into protective custody. In an interview after her release, Mrs. Gandhi charged that "hundreds and thousands of people have and are being arrested and are being tortured..." She did not elaborate.

She suddenly arrested and brief detention seemed likely to aid her cause.

"They haven't dropped the charges but they have no evidence... maybe they will manufacture it," Mrs. Gandhi told an interviewer during brief stop at her home in New Delhi after the court session.

Mrs. Gandhi, the daughter of India's first prime minister, the late Jawaharlal Nehru, began her bid for a political comeback this summer. In speeches around the country, she criticized the Desai government and defended her 21-month emergency rule as a stabilizing influence.

She also predicted she would be arrested. In a nationwide sweep Monday, Central Bureau of Investigation agents arrested Mrs. Gandhi, four of her former cabinet ministers, three industrialists and other

Garrison Considers State Office

DALLAS (AP) — Walt Garrison, 33, the colorful rodeo-loving former fullback for the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, said Tuesday he is considering running for Texas Commissioner of Agriculture in May.

WALT GARRISON

Garrison, who lives in Frisco north of Dallas, told The Associated Press, "Nothing is definite but some people asked me to think about it... and that's what I'm doing... thinking about it."

He said, "I certainly haven't made up my mind but the state of Texas has given me a lot and I'd like to give some of it back."

"I'm close to the agricultural people in this state and I think I certainly could help them export their products. The way I understand it I wouldn't be pinned down to a desk. I'd be more of a P.R. (public relations) man than anything. There's so much to export in Texas, cotton, livestock, vegetables, grain, horses."

The Lewisville, Tex., native played college football at Oklahoma State before signing with the Dallas Cowboys where he became the catalyst of a world championship team. Garrison received a horse trailer for his bonus. He retired two years ago.

Garrison currently is employed by the U.S. Tobacco Co. and has done numerous snuff commeresals.

"I certainly don't think my job with them (U.S. Tobacco Co.) would be a conflict of interest," laughed Garrison. "We don't even grow tobacco in Texas."

Garrison said, "I don't want to sound like some kind of a patriotic nut—or maybe I do—but I know farm and ranch people in Texas. I've been around them all my life. I think I could give the people a lot. I love this state."

Garrison didn't name the people who had talked to him about running.

"Let's just say I'll make up my mind before May," said Garrison. "I need to look into this possibility to the fullest."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe appointed his aide, Reagan Brown, to succeed John C. White as agriculture commissioner last March. White accepted the post of deputy agriculture secretary in the Carter Administration.

Brown and Rep. Joe Hubenak, D-Rosenberg, are the only announced candidates for the state post so far.

Profitable Drug Traffic Widespread In Columbia

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Pablo cradled the marijuana inside a fold of white paper as he picked out the seeds and bits of stem.

"This is a lot better and fresher than you'd get in the United States," he said, rolling the bud into a joint.

"Not bad," his customer gasped, struggling to hold the smoke in his lungs.

"A little green, but not bad." Pablo and his customer, another Colombian, finished the marijuana cigarette, occasionally glancing around the single room Pablo shares with his girlfriend and daughter as their only living, sleeping and eating space in the block of run-down flats in a slum district of Bogota.

Pablo said he always lets his customers smoke a full sample before he and they retire to negotiate a price in the central stairwell that contains the water tap and kitchen shared by four families on the top floor of the two-story building.

He is among a host of drug dealers just one step up from street peddlers in the extensive drug trade of Colombia, a nation that experts say provides much of the United States' top-quality marijuana and most of its cocaine.

Pablo sells his grass to consumers and small-time dealers, fellow Colombians and individual operators from the United States.

He shifted on one of the two beds that take up most of the floor space in the room as he described his role in the drug trade. Two small chickens he was fattening made soft clucking noises from their cage under a table across the room.

Pablo gets his stock of marijuana from suppliers who bring the weed into Bogota from the plots of poor farmers who grow it in the northeast. Occasionally he makes a trip himself to the growing region, bringing back enough stock to last him several weeks.

He sells his grass in small lots, usually less than a kilogram (2.2 pounds), although he says he can get more. He says he's not afraid of the law, which specifies jail terms of 3 to 12 years for drug traffickers.

"The police, they don't care about me," he said, giggling in his ever-present high he gets from sampling his own wares. "I'm too small."

Colombia maintains that it has relatively few drug users in contrast to the United States and Western Europe.

"Here it's just a problem of drug traffickers, not consumption," said Jose Miguel Garavito, an investigator for the national attorney general's office. "It only becomes a problem of consumption when the drugs get to 'gringoland'."

Nevertheless, he said, Colombia was consolidating its antidrug forces and stepping up its cooperative efforts with other countries including the United States in an effort to stamp out the drug traffic.

Colombian and U.S. Embassy sources who requested anonymity sketched a widespread, deeply entrenched and immensely profitable system of growers, processors, distributors and smugglers who present considerable problems to control.

The marijuana that Pablo and hundreds like him sell for under $4 per kilogram is eventually resold for up to $40 per ounce in major U.S. cities.

That profit margin of over $1,400 per kilogram draws in big operators who wind up paying far less than the prices charged in Colombian cities by contracting for the production of entire fields of marijuana in the growing region.

Press reports and the sources recounted numerous stories of aircraft ranging in size up to four-engine DC-6s that fly tons of weed directly to the United States.

Other shippers use fishing trawlers, yachts and cargo vessels to haul scores of tons at a time to remote U.S. coasts and river mouths where the haul is transferred to trucks.

Even more profitable is the growing traffic in cocaine — a snowy white powder that is inhaled.

Pablo and small operators like him handle only small amounts of cocaine — if they touch it at all — because of its cost, which sources say runs from $12,000 to $15,000 per kilogram.

But when cut by half or more with an inert substance such as powder milk and sold by the gram in the United States, that same kilogram could bring prices ranging up to $200,000 depending on quality.

Crackdowns on the cocaine trade are hampered by the small size of shipments that are encased in waterproof coverings and smuggled out of the country in automobile and aircraft fuel tanks, false suitcase bottoms and even inside the human body.

The cocaine is refined from a partially processed base smuggled into Colombia and Bolivia and Peru, where it is produced from the leaves of the coca plant.

The base is refined into the snowy powder in small portable laboratories that are hard to find. Garavito said a lab capable of turning out one kilogram of cocaine daily could be set up quickly in a small room and as quickly dismantled.

He said government agents recently captured a larger lab that had on hand 419 kilograms of cocaine base — enough to turn out about 400 kilograms of refined powder. That amount could have brought a maximum price of $80 million if sold in the United States, according to experts.

The gangs that operate the labs and smuggle the marijuana are reportedly well armed with automatic weapons and coordinate their movements with the latest in modern communications gear.

Garavito said government agents recently captured a radio communication base used by traffickers in Barranquilla, a northern port not far from the marijuana-growing areas on the Guajira Peninsula. The base was capable of simultaneous linkups with aircraft, ships and ground units, he said.

The government has set up anti-drug operations centers in four cities, including Bogota, Garavito added, with equipment donated under an agreement signed with the United States two years ago.

The sources said Colombia is now studying how best to use in the drug war three small helicopters that recently arrived from the United States, the latest shipments in an assistance program that has involved some $6 million since 1973.

Colombia has also announced the institution of a joint program with Venezuela against drug traffickers along the border between the two countries in the Guajira region. The program involves joint patrols of troops from both countries and personal coordination between the defense chiefs of the two nations.

Antibiotics' Power Said Declining

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tonight's dinner probably has been laced with the wonder drugs developed after World War II to fight diseases from tonsillitis to gonorrhea.

The drugs, mostly penicillin and tetracyclines, are used in cattle, swine and poultry feed to keep the animals free of disease so they will grow fatter more quickly and in turn save producers money by eating less grain.

But the antibiotics are so prevalent in society as to be on the verge of losing effectiveness against new strains of bacteria that have grown resistant to the drugs. And the resistance to antibiotics already found in animals is capable of being transferred to human beings.

"The serious consequences... are obvious," said new Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Donald Kennedy in testimony before congressional subcommittees last month.

His intention to restrict use of the antibiotics on the farm will touch off a long fight with drug companies and food producers, who claimed Kennedy's proposal was based on "theoretical" instead of hard evidence.

The administrative procedures in fighting the battle before FDA hearings could take at least a year, maybe more, and will be "neither brief nor tranquil," Kennedy said.

He testified the antibiotics pose "a serious risk to human health... a real threat with the recent emergence of human diseases (typhoid, childhood meningitis, gonorrhea, pneumonia) caused by antibiotic-resistant bacteria."

Industry representatives said there is no evidence linking the antibiotics to any specific disease outbreak and pounced on Kennedy's admission that scientists cannot tell yet whether the bacteria resistance is due to the animal feed or overuse in hospitals.

Kennedy answered that to continue widespread use of the drugs just because there has been no proven link to a specific base is like not regulating the safety of nuclear power plants just because none has exploded.

In addition to disputing the test results, the industry spokesmen attacked Kennedy and the FDA's way of making regulations. They also said if the drugs are restricted or banned, the consumer will pay higher prices for animal products, perhaps as much as $2.1 billion a year.

And Robert Bickerton, of the Norwich Pharmaceutical drug firm, claimed banning one of his company's products could lead to a rise in human food poisoning.

FDA is empowered to begin proceedings against drugs not proven to be "safe and effective."

Opponents of the agency's move compared the antibiotic case with the more publicized proposal to ban saccharin, saying there is something wrong with the law — or Kennedy's interpretation of it — that allows the FDA to act without weighing the benefits of a controversial product against its harm.

"Indeed, assessment of benefits versus risks have been explicit in FDA consideration of antibiotics in feeds from 1970 until commissioner Kennedy assumed leadership this year," testified L.M. Skamsaer of American Cyanamid Co.

"If the law does not permit consideration of benefit, then FDA must move promptly to prohibit the use of every agricultural chemical under their control because some question of theoretical hazard can be raised about every single one," he said.

Kennedy acknowledged, "Complete protection of the public against every single risk is out of the question."

NCAA Hits UH With Year's Probation

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The NCAA Committee on Infractions placed the University of Houston on a one-year probation in football Tuesday, banning the Cougars from post-season games this season and from television next year.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association committee said it found violations in recruiting inducements, excessive recruiting contacts and improper transportation.

The committee's statement said the violations "resulted in the University of Houston enjoying a distinct competitive advantage in recruitment of a young man considered by many observers to be one of the top football prospects in the country."

The university's most promising recruit this year was considered to be Darrell Shepard, a quarterback from Odessa

High School. Shepard had publicly said that he would sign with the University of Texas but changed his mind just before the Southwest Conference signing date.

The statement said the university would publicly reprimand head football coach Bill Yeoman as well as one of his assistants.

"I have no reaction," Yeoman said Tuesday. "I'm too old to react. Was I surprised? I'm too old for surprises."

The committee also placed Portland (Ore.) State on one year's probation for allowing two ineligible players to compete.

The statement said Houston may compete in a televised bowl game at the close of next season.

The committee said "a representative of the university's athletic interests who was involved in this case will not be permitted to engage in any recruiting activities or participate in any university athletic booster group during the probationary period."

The statement said: "In February 1977, the head football coach, an assistant football coach and a representative of the university's athletic interests were involved in arrangements for the mother of a prospective student-athlete to obtain a personal bank loan which she utilized to purchase an automobile for her son."

The second violation: "In the spring 1977, through arrangements of an assistant football coach, the girl friend of a prospective student-athlete was provided round-trip transportation at no personal expense between her home and Houston in a privately owned aircraft utilized to transport the prospective student-athlete when he traveled to the University's campus for his official paid visit; further, appropriate charter costs were not paid for the use of this aircraft and the head football coach accompanied the aircraft at the time the prospective student-athlete and his girl friend returned home."

The third violation: "During the 1976-77 academic year, a prospective student-athlete was contacted in person, off-campus for recruiting purposes on at least five separate occasions by certain members of the university's football coaching staff."

One violation cited by the NCAA alleged that Yeoman, an assistant coach and a representative of UH's athletic interests, were involved in arranging a loan for the mother of Shepard.

Yeoman said he asked Brown to check See PROBATION Page 2

Schmidt's Single Boosts Phillies To Series Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mike Schmidt's run-scoring single broke a tie in the ninth inning Tuesday night and helped the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-5 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers in the first game of the National League championship playoffs.

The Phillies survived the shock of a seventh-inning grand slam home run by the Dodgers' Ron Cey that tied the score 5-5, in taking a 1-0 lead in the best-of-five series.

Both starting pitchers, left-handers Tommy John of the Dodgers and Steve Carlton of the Phillies, were long gone by the end of the game.

The victory went to reliever Gene Garber, who took over in the seventh. The loser was Elias Sosa, the fourth Los Angeles hurler, who surrendered Schmidt's decisive hit, then balked in Larry Bowa for the final run.

The Phils' ninth inning began with pinch hitter Richie Hebner fouling out. Then Bake McBride and Bowa lined singles to right, with McBride stopping at second. After that, the heavy-hitting Schmidt, who had 38 homers during the regular season, lined his single to left, scoring McBride and sending Bowa to third.

With Greg Luzinski at bat, Sosa was charged with a balk when he made a move toward first, sending Bowa home and giving the Phils a 7-5 lead.

Greg Luzinski had opened the scoring against John with a tremendous first-inning home run over the center field fence, a distance of more than 400 feet. Schmidt was on first and scored ahead of Luzinski.

Both of the runs were unearned because Schmidt had reached first on an error by shortstop Bill Russell.

Russell also committed an error in the fifth that helped the Phillies score their next two runs.

The Dodgers scored once in the fifth when Davey Lopes singled home pinch-hitter Lee Lacy.

Trailing 5-1 with two out in the last of the seventh, Los Angeles loaded the bases on a walk to pinch-hitter Jerry Grote, a single by Lopes and Reggie Smith's walk. With the count 3-and-2 on Cey, the chunky third baseman fouled off two pitches, then blasted a Carlton pitch 390 feet into the left field stands. It was the first grand slam in the nine-year history

Time-And-A-Half
For Overtime

IF HE EVER gets winded from all the scurrying around from one area of the practice field to another, all Mike Mock needs to do is remember the "good old days."

Those were back when he was a schoolboy at Longview.

All he does now is play strongside linebacker, punt and act as backup man on kickoffs, field goals and placements. Well, if that's not enough, what else did he do in high school?

"I never left the field," Mock will reply, as if it were nothing much out of the ordinary.

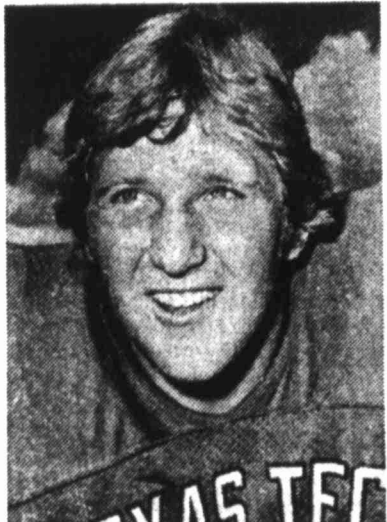

For players below the Class AAAA level in high school, playing every down is not so much out of the ordinary. In the lower classifications—AA and below—such endurance is usually a must, for numbers' sake. In the larger schools, however, quantity dictates—or suggests—two-platoon football. At least, on specialty teams, some guys will get a rest.

But, during his Longview days, Mock played in the offensive backfield, played linebacker on defense, handled punting, kicking and receiving chores. Maybe not Hercules, but it made the sack feel awful good on Friday nights.

BUT, THIS SEASON, for the first time since those days, Mock has assumed extra duties. With Tech needing a punter, coach Steve Sloan approached Mock about it. He had booted in high school for a 39-yard average, so why not?

"Actually, I enjoy it. I was glad when Coach Sloan put the idea to me. I've wanted to punt ever since I came up here," Mock commented Tuesday. "Sure, I enjoy it. Of course, I didn't enjoy that one other day," he admitted, with only a touch of a humorless smile.

What Mock had in mind was the slip he made just two yards from his goal in the North Carolina game. He scrambled out to the six-yard line before being nailed, and the Tar Heels scored from there.

"My cleats just hung (in the natural grass)," Mock explained. "I need to look at the films to try to see exactly what happened. I take a little shuffle step with my left foot, then come on through with my right foot. I think my right cleats hung and I couldn't keep my balance."

"I hope that doesn't happen again."

AS A SCHOOLBOY, Mock got the blue-chip recruiting treatment, both offensively and defensively. Some wanted him for his quarterback-runningback talents, others as a linebacker.

Tech sent him the defensive route, and until last spring—when David Kuyken

Mark Johnson Works On Aerial Techniques

By CARTER CROMWELL

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Steve Sloan watched intently as Mark Johnson threw pass after pass under leaden skies at the tailend of Texas Tech's Tuesday workout.

"That's good, Mark," Sloan hollered after a completion. But a pass went awry soon after, and Sloan called out, "Extend your arm more."

On and on Johnson threw, and he knows the work is necessary. "I'd have to say passing is my weakest point right now," said the sophomore quarterback from Corpus Christi, who entered last Saturday's game with North Carolina late in the first half and provided the offense with some spark.

"I just need more consistency, and I need to work a lot more on my techniques. I've had problems when I drop straight back and throw to my left. Then, I either underthrow my receivers or don't lead them enough. I don't have as much trouble when I'm throwing to my right."

The 6-0, 187-pound quarterback for Corpus Christi Ray as a schoolboy, but the team didn't throw much, averaging "about 70 passes a season."

Johnson was recruited to Tech as a defensive back but was switched to quarterback this past spring.

"I couldn't get down the fundamentals of tackling, so I asked to be tried at quarterback in the spring, and they gave me a shot," he said. "I really prefer quarterback, because I played there in high school and like working with the offense."

Johnson was to have been redshirted this season, his true sophomore year, but the injury to Rodney Allison two games ago changed those plans.

"I fully expected to be redshirted," he said. "In fact, I wanted to be. I thought it would be best, because I would then have had a year to learn the system and work on my techniques and then have three years of eligibility left."

But the Raider attack wasn't clicking against North Carolina, and Johnson got the call late in the second quarter. The move didn't take him by surprise.

"This summer, my mother kept telling me that if Rodney got hurt, I'd be in the quarterback picture, so I knew as soon as he was hurt against A&M that I would get more of a chance to play."

"I felt ready Saturday. I was just waiting for the time when they told me to go warm up. I felt confident I could do it."

The Tech staff hasn't decided whether Johnson or Tres Adams, the starter against North Carolina, will get the starting call against Arizona this Saturday. The two quarterbacks are alternating on the first unit, and a decision on the starter will be made "later in the week," according to Sloan. Both are expected to see action against the Wildcats.

"The situation now doesn't make me nervous, but I feel the pressure to take up the slack and get the offense moving when I'm in there," Johnson said. "Of course, it's all a team effort. If the line is blocking well, that makes all the difference."

NOTES: Sloan and the team welcomed the Tuesday's break in the recent hot spell. "It sure is a lot easier practicing now than when it's nearly a hundred degrees," Sloan said.

Sloan said that middle linebacker Gary McCright (badly bruised left shoulder), defensive end Andy Thomas (knee) and strong safety Alan Emerson (dislocated kneecap) are all "questionable" for the Arizona game. McCright suffered his injury against North Carolina. Thomas was hurt against Texas A&M and Emerson against Baylor. The latter two haven't played since their injuries.

of the National League playoffs.

The home club, boosted by a tremendous ovation, nevertheless could not score again off Garber, who came in after Steve Garvey followed Cey's blast with a single.

All four runs off John were unearned.

In the Phillies' fifth, Carlton lead off and reached first when hit by a pitch. McBride forced him at second, then Bowa hit a bouncer on which Lopes made a great stop and threw to Russell, who missed second base.

Schmidt forced McBride at third, Luzinski walked, then veteran Dave Johnson lined a single to center, scoring Bowa and Schmidt.

John came out in favor of Mike Garman, who retired the side. Garman was followed on the mound by knuckleballer Charlie Hough and Sosa.

For Johnson, the victory continued his record of never being a loser in a playoff game. He was with Baltimore when the Orioles won nine straight American League playoff games a few years ago.

Cey's grand slammer, although the first in NL playoffs, was his third of the season. But going into the series against the Phillies, he had been hitless in his last 31 plate appearances.

A crowd of 55,968, second largest in Dodger Stadium history, watched the opener. The teams meet again tonight, with right-handers Don Sutton, 14-8, pitching for the Dodgers against Jim Lonborg, 11-4.

Each team collected nine hits in the opener, with the two big home runs the only extra base blows.

Hall, Brian Hall and David Mellott—departed. Mock's kicking talents remained dormant. He kicked in the spring but his efforts this fall far outdistanced—figuratively and literally—the spring work.

During the summer, Mock concentrated on the punting.

"I heard about how the kicking game could be a factor for us; this made me work harder on it." It must have worked; he is averaging 39.6 yards per try in games.

"I don't know why (he is kicking better this fall)," commented Sloan. "But he does so much better in a game than in practice. It's the competitor in him, I guess."

He was ticketed for kicking and punting penalties until the Baylor-game warmups when Sloan decided to let Bill Adams kick. He still works 20-25 minutes twice a week as a backup kicker, but his main duty now—outside of linebacking—is punting.

"They said something about me having four or five shoes (for various kicking assignments) for the Baylor game, but I don't know where that got started. I use the same shoe for punting and linebacking and carry a square-toed one for kicking. I always pack the square-toe—so (backup kickoff man) Curtis Reed has that's all."

SO, DURING AN average week, Mock will work 20-25 minutes a couple of days kicking, punt up to two dozen times every day, as well as go through a full linebacking drill.

Thus far, his concentration—that golden word of athletics—has not suffered.

"With any skill—punting, kicking, passing—you don't think about what you have to do. If you start thinking about what you have to do, then you can't do as well. You practice it enough to know what to do.

"And the pressure is not as great as some people might think. Pressure comes from knowing the team is depend-

John worked 4 2/3 innings, allowing four hits. Both he and Carlton walked three and struck out three.

Carlton continued his recent hitting streak, collecting two hits in two official trips.

The game started with an argument after umpires ordered excess dirt removed from home plate after Philadelphia manager Danny Ozark had complained it was there because John is a sinker ball pitcher who tries to get hitters to hit balls into the dirt. The Dodgers objected strenuously to the dirt's removal, but to no avail.

with Charles Marino, chairman of the board of the Bank of Brazoria, concerning a loan for Mrs. Shepard to buy her son a car.

"I didn't get involved in any way," Yeoman said. "I didn't check to see if they got the loan and didn't even know if he had the car."

The NCAA charged that Shepard's girl friend was provided free roundtrip air transportation between her home and Houston. The same aircraft was used to carry Shepard to Houston for his official paid visit and costs for use of the charter were not paid.

"On that one, I turned myself in during the first week of May," Yeoman said. "I thought the rule was different that it was."

The third violation, the NCAA said, involved Shepard being contacted five times by members of the UH coaching staff. Only three recruiting visits are allowed and two must be for signing conference and national letters of intent.

"That's right," Yeoman said. "and I made no attempt to hide it. Nothing was done with any intention to circumvent the rules."

Cosell's Remark Irks NH Governor

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thompson, who seldom passes up the chance for a public squabble, Tuesday picked a fight with ABC sportscaster Howard Cosell, who also rarely misses a chance for verbal bombast.

Thompson became irked while listening to ABC's Monday Night football game between the Kansas City Chiefs and the Oakland Raiders.

Kansas City linebacker Dave Rozumek, a former star football player at the University of New Hampshire, tackled an Oakland player, prompting Cosell to comment that Rozumek "came from nowhere" to make the play.

Cosell's partner, Don Meredith, responded that Rozumek came from New Hampshire. To which Cosell again replied, "He came from nowhere."

White Sox, Twins Eye Free Agents

By The Associated Press

The Chicago White Sox and the Minnesota Twins, who both made exciting runs at the American League West title, will be running the other way next year—if they can't sign their star free-agent players.

The White Sox, basking in the glow of a successful season on the field and in the stands, could lose a hard-hitting threesome that formed, at times, the club's starting outfield.

Richie Zisk, Oscar Gamble and Ralph Garr—provided they remain unsigned by Chicago—will be eligible for the Nov. 4 free-agent re-entry draft.

Zisk batted .290 with 30 home runs and 101 runs batted in, Gamble hit .287 with 31 homers and 83 RBIs and Garr hit .302 with 10 homers and 53 RBIs.

The Twins could lose two of the most productive players in the league in Larry Hisle and Lyman Bostock. Hisle led the AL in RBIs with 119 while slugging .27 homers and batting .301. Bostock hit .336, slugging .466, and scored 105 runs and 105 RBIs.

Of the potential 64 free agents Nov. 4—this figure does not include free-agent prospects who played most or all of 1977 in the minor leagues—13 played this season for the White Sox and the Twins.

Besides Zisk, Garr and Gamble, the White Sox could lose pitcher Wilbur Wood and infielder Jack Brohamer. In addition to Hisle and Bostock, the Twins could lose pitchers Mike Pazik, Don Carriher, Tom Burgmeier and Ron Schueler and infielders Jerry Terrell and Luis Gomez.

Last year, there were eight free agents from the Oakland A's. Six of them were star players—pitcher Rolfe Fingers, outfielders Joe Rudi and Don Baylor, infielders Sal Bando and Bert Campaneris and catcher Gene Tenace.

Even the talent-hunting genius of Oakland owner Charles O. Finley couldn't absorb those defections, and the A's finished last in the AL West this season, one-half game behind Seattle, a first-year expansion team.

The other team severely decimated by last year's free-agent sweepstakes was Baltimore, which lost 20-game winner Wayne Garland, slugging outfielder Reggie Jackson and All-Star second baseman Bobby Grich.

But Baltimore was a strong team all season, getting eliminated from the AL East Division chase just two days before the end of the season. The young players, like second baseman Rich Dauer and designated hitter Eddie Murray, got chances to shine this year because of last year's free-agent exodus.

Royals Vow To Run On Yankees

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Fred Patek, whose 53 stolen bases topped the American League and set a team record, will bat leadoff and spearhead a crucial part of Kansas City's strategy when the Royals open the American League playoff series today against the New York Yankees.

"We're gonna run, run, run," said one Royal as the Western Division champions concluded a one-hour workout and packed for the flight to New York, scene of the first two games in the best-of-five series. "Freddie batted eighth or ninth all year. Now he's leading off. That should tell you something."

"He's our best baserunner," manager Whitey Herzog said simply. But other team members, especially Patek, were more expansive.

"I'm really excited about it, to tell you the truth," said Patek. "I led off for five straight years, but the last two years I think I've led off once. We're going to do whatever we have to do to win. Speed is a big part of our game. And we're going to stay with what got us here."

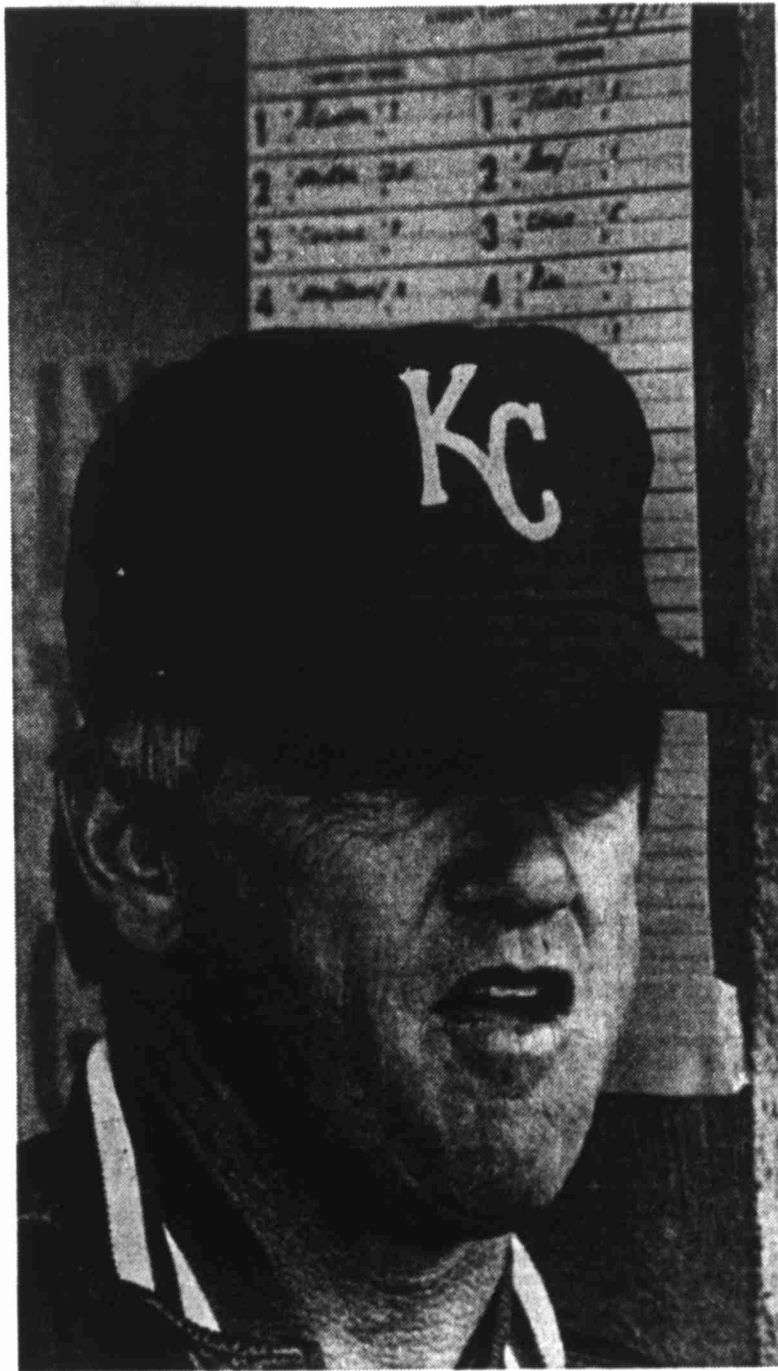

Six of the nine players Herzog named in today's starting lineup rang up double-digit thefts this year. Amos Otis and Frank White each stole 23, Hal McRae had 18, Al Cowens 16 and George Brett 14.

Against the Yankees and catcher Thurman Munson, the Royals attempted 14 thefts and were caught only once. The Yankees succeeded six times in 12 attempts against the Royals.

"Munson has good days and he has bad days," said Patek, who was caught stealing only 13 times for an .800 percentage. "If he's having a good day, we're in trouble. If he's having a bad day we'll run him out of town."

"We're going to cause him to have a bad day," said another player. "Munson can get rattled. When he's on, he's one of the best. But we think we can throw him off."

Herzog remained undecided on who his pitcher will be for Thursday night's second game.

Two Challenges Face Surprising Shallowwater

By WALT McALEXANDER
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Eddie Wolski and his Shallowwater Mustangs have acquired the moniker "Giant Killer" thanks to that 29-26 victory over Farwell last weekend. At that time, Farwell was ranked No. 2 in the state.

But the Ponies face two key challenges the next two weeks if they're to retain that distinction.

This week, Shallowwater entertains unbeaten Frenship, a Class AA school, and then on Oct. 14, it opens 5-A action against Seagraves, currently ranked as the state's No. 1 team in that division.

"It was a shocker for us, too," Wolski laughed Tuesday, thinking back over the victory. "The kids really played well from the first. Before, we'd been playing two or three quarters each game, but we really put it all together."

"Overall, our kicking game was better because Curtis Lester kicked a field goal that gave us a lift just before the half, and then Pete Alvarado ran the second-half kickoff back for a score and that gave us more momentum.

"And even after they went ahead 26-22, our kids just kept moving the ball on the ground. Rodney Jackson got a quarterback sneak to score on the first play of the fourth quarter, and our defense was able to hold them.

"Actually, we had a lot of standouts. Andy Blackmon passed 70 yards to Clay Dixon for a touchdown and then gained 42 yards rushing, and he had seven unassisted tackles and 18 assists as a middle linebacker. . . Then we got that kickoff return by Alvarado. . . Then Lane Giles intercepted a pass at the 20 with about 53 seconds left in the game to clinch it. . . Tim Reap and our entire defensive line did an outstanding job.

"That (win) certainly helped the attitude a bunch. Plus, we had some leadership to come out Friday night. The week before we fumbled right off (against Hale Center) and they got off to a 17-0 first-quarter lead. After that, we played them tough (in losing 17-12)."

Wolski added, "It's kinda strange, but this is the first year we've been able to win on the road (a 75-0 victory at Sands came prior to Friday's victory), but we can't seem to do too well at home now (losing 22-0 to New Deal in the only home showing)."

"We've got Frenship and then Seagraves, and it just seems like things don't let up."

"Yes, it would be nice (to win those two games), but I just hope we play them well. If we play as good as we did against Farwell, I think we'll stand a chance."

Thus, Seagraves better stand up and take notice, because that Oct. 14 game is in Seagraves.

Behagen Bemoans Move

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ron Behagen said he wanted to stay with the New Orleans Jazz, but National Basketball Association commissioner Larry O'Brien won't let him.

E. C. Coleman—who had become a free agent—said he got an offer he couldn't refuse, so he's gone, too.

Their departure leaves the Jazz with only four forwards in training camp.

Behagen—who seemed to be reaching his potential after two disappointing seasons—was awarded to Atlanta Monday as compensation for the signing of Truck Robinson. Within hours, Coleman got his offer from Golden State.

Behagen got the word that he was no longer with the Jazz while his team was on the road in Arkansas playing a series of NBA exhibition games.

He pondered on Robinson's motel-room door. "See what you caused, Truck. Now I have to go to Atlanta," Behagen complained.

"I told him, 'When you go to Atlanta, knowing Coach Hubie Brown, you'll play 40 minutes a game.' He said he didn't want to play 40 minutes; he just wanted to be here with us," Robinson said.

Behagen, 6 feet 9, averaged 8.6 points a game with the Jazz last season playing less than 20 minutes a game. In two pic-seasons with New Orleans he was injured—first a fractured cheekbone, then a ripped ligament in his left knee. He sat out the final two dozen games of last season, underwent surgery and spent a long summer in rehabilitation.

In two exhibition games this year, he scored 45 points in about the same number of minutes of play.

Martin Benches White For Start Of Playoffs

NEW YORK (AP) — Cliff Johnson and Lou Piniella were in and Roy White was out of manager Billy Martin's lineup as the New York Yankees prepared for today's American League playoff opener against the Kansas City Royals.

Martin sent the Yankees through a light one-hour workout Tuesday and then announced that Piniella would start in left field and Johnson would be the designated hitter against left-hander Paul Splittorf in the 2:15 p.m. CDT opener.

That means White, the regular left fielder most of the year, will not be in the lineup.

"I've swung one-handed a couple of times, but I wouldn't want to rely on that," said Johnson.

Piniella, who batted .330, mostly as a designated hitter, will swing fifth behind cleanup man Reggie Jackson, the right fielder.

Center fielder Mickey Rivers leads off with third baseman Graig Nettles batting second and catcher Thurman Munson hitting No. 3. After Jackson and Piniella, Chris Chambliss, the hero of last year's victory over Kansas City, bats sixth, followed by Johnson and the second base-shortstop combination of Willie Randolph and Bucky Dent.

Martin tried to play down published reports that he would demand an extension of his contract if the Yankees win the playoffs and World Series.

"I was teasing," he said. "I'm not trying to use the playoffs or World Series to get another year. But if we win, then, yes, I think I deserve it as a reward for a good year."

Reminded that he had been rewarded with a three-year contract for a good season last year, Martin grinned. "I had a better one this year," he said.

Martin will pitch left-hander Don Gullett in the opening game. Gullett, a $2 million free-agent pickup last winter, pitched for Cincinnati in last year's National League playoffs and against the Yankees in the World Series.

"I'm looking forward to the game," said Gullett, whose 14-4 record included two victories over Kansas City and the best winning percentage in the American League. "There's a lot of excitement involved. Everybody knows how much it means."

Gullett thought his previous playoff and World Series experience might help him.

"But you can't just throw your glove on the mound and expect to beat them," he said. "You've got to work. They're a good, fundamentally sound ball club with speed and power. You can't take them lightly."

Steinbrenner Reacts To Pilot's Talk

NEW YORK (AP) — Owner George Steinbrenner had a negative reaction Tuesday to manager Billy Martin's statement that he will ask for a new contract if the New York Yankees win the American League playoff series and the World Series.

"I don't understand this kind of talk at this time," Steinbrenner said. "We have a tough series coming up with Kansas City. Whitey Herzog has assembled a good team. This is what Billy should be thinking about."

"If this is a threat, he is not going to intimidate me. He is not going to intimidate Gabe Paul."

Paul is president of the Yankees. Steinbrenner said Paul would make the final decision on Martin.

"We refuse to even think about Martin's contract, much less talk about it, now," Paul said. "Our concern is to beat Kansas City and then win the World Series."

Martin, whose conflicts with Steinbrenner and outfielder Reggie Jackson brought him close to being fired in midsummer, is finishing the first year of a three-year contract calling for $100,000 a year.

On Monday, in his Yankee Stadium office, Martin told newsmen, "If we win everything, I think it's a must for George to come up with another contract. If he didn't, I'd have to seriously think about asking permission to talk to other clubs."

He did not indicate which clubs he might be interested in contacting.

Upon learning that Steinbrenner was displeased with the veiled threat, Martin said that he was half-joking.

"I am always kidding George and Gabe about a new contract," he said. "They'll ring down about some matter and I will say, 'Do you want me to come up and sign a new five-year contract?'"

"What I said about wanting another contract was taken too seriously."

New York newspapers indeed treated it seriously, playing Martin's comments in bold headlines.

Martin is notorious for carrying on an adversary relationship with management. He was fired at Minnesota, Detroit and Texas after taking losing teams and developing them into winners. Rated a standout field manager, he suffered from clashes with the front office.

This has been one of his problems with the Yankees. He feuded with Reggie Jackson, the free agent outfielder signed by Steinbrenner for $2.9 million, and had a dugout altercation with Jackson in Boston last June 18.

After the incident, there were reports that Steinbrenner was ready to fire his manager. Martin survived when Jackson and other players spoke up in his defense.

Martin, who frequently has criticized Steinbrenner's front office interference, insisted that he was not using the playoffs and the World Series as a wedge for another year.

"Zimmer (Don Zimmer, manager of Boston) and Weaver (Earl Weaver, manager of Baltimore) got rewarded for good years," he said. "Why shouldn't I? If George gives me another year, fine. If not, I've still got two years to go."

Ivory, Perry Head List

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
It isn't very often that a lineman is able to outshine an offensive back. Maybe once in a million or so years.

Section 9 or 11 just think of the poor old lineman as a set decoration. Nothing more.

Enter Freddy Ivory.
The Estacado defensive end wasn't a decoration Friday night against Dunbar.

He was a one-man demolition crew, hitting everything and everyone that happened to get in his way.

Ivory moved from sideline to sideline and from end zone to end zone in the Matadors' 12-0 win over Crosstow and dictated rival Dunbar.

When the curtain fell, Ivory had covered two fumbles and collected nine unassisted tackles along the way. The performance earned Ivory the Avalanche-Journal's lineman of the week honor.

"Freddy had possibly the best game he has had for us since he's been at Estacado," coach Louis Kelley said.

Also nominated by local coaches for the honor were Terry Parham of Lubbock Christian High, who was in on 16 tackles; Bo Taylor of Monterey, eight tackles and a fumble recovery; Danny McCutcheon of Dunbar, eight unassisted tackles; Steve Gibler of Christ the King, nine unassisted tackles; Danny Jacobs of Coronado, 12 assisted tackles and Chris Smith of Lubbock High, eight unassisted tackles and a fumble recovery.

Honored as the offensive lineman of the week was Chuck Perry of Monterey. The 180-pound end caught four passes from quarterback Ron Reeves for 107 yards in leading the Plainsmen to a lopsided 54-6 win over Hobbs.

Terry Parham of LCHS, Kevin Lusk of Dunbar, Phillip Buescher of CTK, Manuel Escamilla of Estacado, Carl Clawson of Coronado and Mark Vickery of Lubbock High also drew praises from local mentors.

Hutch Hailey, who rushed for 109 yards on 17 carries and scored LCHS's only TD in its loss to Dallas Christian High, was named back of the week.

Hailey edged Kenzie Burrell of Estacado who rushed for 132 yards against Dunbar and threw for the Matadors' first touchdown.

Mentioned, along with Hailey and Burrell, were Robby McDaniel of Monterey, 10-55 rushing and three TDs; Earnest White of Dunbar, John Bouillon of CTK 7-51 rushing; Sam Hickman of Coronado, two touchdowns; and Ricky Moreno of Lubbock High, 3-for-3 passing and one TD.

Coronado's Donny Arterburn notched nine unassisted tackles and made two key open-field stops against Amarillo Palo Duro to be named the defensive back of the week.

Coach Don King said Arterburn's performance was one of the finest he has seen this season.

"If he (Arterburn) hadn't made those two tackles, the runners could have scored easily," King said. "I think they (the stops) were two of the keys in the game."

Also nominated were Lubbock High's Roger Young, Estacado's Jimmy Scott, CTK's Jimmy Durham, Dunbar's Willie Anderson, Monterey's Neal Thomas and LCHS's Shawn Williams.

Williams was the only back nominated who had an interception.

Arizona Nose Guard Garners AP Award

DENVER (UPI) — Arizona nose guard Jon Abbott, a 6-2, 242-pound senior from Phoenix, did everything but win the game last week in a 13-12 loss by the Wildcats to Wyoming.

The two-time Academic All-American had 14 unassisted tackles and five assisted stops. He also sacked the quarterback three times for 13 yards in losses, caused two fumbles and recovered one.

"That was one of the finest exhibitions of nose guard play I've seen in a long time," said Arizona coach Tony Mason.

Wadkins, Yanks Eye World Match Event

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — PGA champion Lanny Wadkins, suffering from a cold and sore throat, was unable to play Tuesday in the last practice round before the start of the $225,000 World Match Play Golf Championship.

Wadkins, one of five American stars in the elite, 16-man field, remained in his nearby mansion while U.S. Open champion Hubert Green, Hale Irwin and Ray Floyd struggled through wind and rain at the Wentworth Golf Club course in suburban London.

Tom Watson, holder of the Masters and British Open titles and winner of more than $300,000 on the American tour, also declined a practice round for the event that gets under way today. The weary Watson competed in California last week and arrived in England only Monday.

Congress Starts NCAA Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has opened an investigation of the National Collegiate Athletic Association that will concentrate on alleged abuses in disciplining member colleges for breaking NCAA rules, it was announced Tuesday. Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., chairman of the House oversight and investigation subcommittee, said his staff had already begun its probe of the NCAA, with public hearings expected later in the year. Moss said the subcommittee will attempt to determine whether the NCAA's policies violate antitrust laws, whether its investigative methods provide for due process and whether the penalties assessed to member institutions, athletes and coaches are fair and equitable. Rep. Jim Santini, D-NeV., had called for the investigation into the NCAA's enforcement of rules after the University of Nevada-Las Vegas' basketball program was placed on two years probation for recruiting and other violations. A Nevada judge made a scathing denunciation of the investigative procedures of the NCAA last Friday in issuing a permanent injunction prohibiting Nevada-Las Vegas from suspending basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian from his duties as the NCAA had recommended. Moss said he had received evidence from UNLV concerning alleged abuses of authority by the NCAA as well as reports of similar problems from other major universities. "From the evidence I've seen so far, it is apparent that this problem goes far beyond the University of Nevada-Las Vegas," Santini said. "There are serious national implications involving a number of institutions."

Another congressman who had sought the House investigation is Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn., who was prompted by the indefinite probation on men's athletic programs at the University of Minnesota. The NCAA ordered the probation last year after the school refused to disqualify three basketball players for rules infractions. "The NCAA possesses unbridled authority to ruin the careers of athletes, destroy coaches' professions and deal staggering blows to the athletic reputation of member institutions," Santini said. Moss said, "I expect the staff will have, by an early date, gathered sufficient facts about the nature and scope of the allegations of arbitrary and capricious conduct by the NCAA for initial hearings." In Kansas City, Walter Byers, executive director of the 844-member NCAA issued a statement which said: "The NCAA, of course, will be delighted to cooperate with the committee and provide pertinent data on the issues outlined by the committee. Naturally, we hope that the committee members will approach these subjects in an objective manner and not try to champion particular infractions cases." Santini said many members of Congress "have related stories of NCAA abuse of colleges and universities in their districts and, in every case, the conclusions are the same—someone should look into the activities of the NCAA." He said he hopes the NCAA will cooperate with the investigation "in the best interest of all who enjoy and appreciate intercollegiate athletics." Last week, Santini presented a letter to Moss signed by 68 members of Congress.

Hannah, Gray Return To Pats

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Saying they were close to quitting the game, the New England Patriots' two all-pro linemen returned to the floundering football team Tuesday, ready to complete the season. Guard John Hannah and tackle Leon Gray just made the 5 p.m. deadline for reporting back to the team. A league committee had ordered the players to honor their current contracts or sit out the season. Both players said at a news conference, after meeting with team officials, that they almost stayed home. "I was very, very, very close," said

Hannah when asked if he had considered quitting football. "I was three minutes away from possibly not playing football," said Gray. The two offensive linemen walked out on the team in a contract dispute Sept. 11. Both players and team coach Chuck Fairbanks, who also is team general manager, said team officials promised to negotiate in good faith at the end of the season. Both players are under contracts but claim they are entitled to new ones after making all-pro.

Texas Leads Nation In Four Categories

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — Unbeaten Texas, on the heels of a 72-15 triumph over Rice Saturday, continues to dominate the NCAA Division I team statistics this week with first place standings in rushing, scoring, rushing defense and scoring defense. The Longhorns have now outscored their opponents 184-15 in three games, averaging 61.3 points per game against an average of just 5. Texas, with its multiple set offense, is averaging 392.3 yards per game on the ground while yielding an average rush of just 38.3 yards per game. But fourth-ranked Texas will be hard pressed to maintain its incredible offensive and defensive pace when it plays third-ranked Oklahoma Saturday in Dallas. Grambling has displaced Brigham Young in two offensive categories, taking over the total offense lead with a 536-yard average and passing offense with a 374-yard average. Louisiana Tech is this week's total defense leader with an average yield of 152.7 yards per game (three yards less than what Texas has allowed) while Southern University is tops in pass defense by allowing just 14 completions in four games for an average yield of 49.5 yards per game.

Sales Halt
Mart Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Selling pressure on blue chip issues brought the stock market's rally of the past three sessions to an abrupt halt Tuesday.

Analysts said a prime rate increase from 7 1/4 to 7 3/4 per cent by the San Francisco-based Wells Fargo Bank contributed to the decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had risen 17.24 points in the three previous sessions, fell back 9.96 to 842.92.

Losers held a moderate edge on gainers at the New York Stock Exchange, and the NYSE's composite index dropped .34 to 52.60.

Big Board volume picked up to 20.85 million shares from 19.46 million on Monday.

Analysts said the market, which had already begun to retreat, responded negatively late in the session to Wells Fargo's prime rate move.

Wall Streeters expected other leading banks to follow suit before long.

The Amex market value index was off .16 at 118.80. The NASDAQ composite index of over-the-counter stocks closed at 100.81, down .35.

High Tar No Longer Essential To Taste.

Tests prove low tar MERIT delivers flavor of higher tar cigarettes.

For years, it seemed the only way to get real taste from a cigarette was to smoke a high tar brand.

High tar cigarettes had an "exclusive" on taste.

Today, all the standards are changing because of a new taste breakthrough called 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

MERIT is packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco fortified with certain key flavor-rich ingredients isolated in cigarette smoke and proven to deliver flavor way out of proportion to tar.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

Cigarettes having up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. And you can taste it.
