Two-Hour Meeting

SPAG-commissioned consultants, Ed Reed and Lamar Youngblood, explained the proposal to about 70 officials representing most of the 15 counties in the region, in a two-hour meeting at the Lub-bock County Courthouse.

Under the proposal, Lubbock County would build and operate a 36-bed juvenile detention facility, and neighboring counties would contract for space in the complex - and help support it.

The facility would provide short-and long-term detention for serious juvenile offenders. Most of them currently are kept in area county jails or committed to distant Texas Youth Council (TYC) facil-

your money that's going to pay for it." Reed called the arrangement for run-ning the project "the best of all possible worlds." He noted that the TYC community assistance funds allocated to each county are meant to be used for local detention uses, and the regional program would fulfill that purpose.

County Judge Rod Shaw told the area officials, "Not only would you use this regional facility, but you really don't have any appealing alternative." County GOP Still ources. The operational contribution would be Disavows Robbins

By PAT PATRICK Avalanche-Journal Staff

LUBBOCK County Republicans Thursday stood pat on an earlier decision to disavow state Rep. Joe Robbins.

Robbins, a figure of party contro since before he was elected to his Dist. 75-A seat last November, appeared be-fore the GOP executive committee saying he "deeply regrets" members' unhappiness with him. But he declared he 'still feels strongly that it is essential for an elected representative to try to view all sides of an issue, and then to vote his conscience while trying to represent the people of his district.

The county GOP last month unani-mously voted to recommend that Robbins not seek reelection on the Republican ticket.

Riled By Tax Plan It cited anger over his reported support of a state income tax. That followed several months of unhappiness with Robbins' stances on several issues, particularly the Equal Rights Amendment, and party emb ment over his arrest in Austin last fall on a public drunkeness charge.

The executive committee listened politely while Robbins explained he is study ing a possible state income tax solely as a replacement for the property tax. And the committee asked him a number of questions about his lack of support for a proposal to rescind the Texas Legisla-ture's ratification of the federal ERA. But it made no move to rescind its Sep tember disavowal vote.

Robbins told the group he thinks the GOP disavowal has hurt the party more than it has burt him. than it has burt him.

Public Airing Rapped

As for any constituent, it is your right to disagree with me. But for the sake of the party, that disagreement should have been made in private. Going public with your disagreement, even calling in the news media to publicize our differences, makes people wonder about our party, its platform, our candidates and even our basic philosophies," he said.

"Party unity is a most in the public basic philosophies," he said.

"Party unity is a must in the public eye. Perhaps the happiest people over the Republican infighting are the Democrats who prefer we keep a one-party system in Texas." Robbins noted the local GOP has embarked upon a campaign to find more candidates for state house and senate seats and for national offices this year.

"The opportunity to elect a Republican to each vacancy has never been greater. But hisven't we already seen one candidate in the Congressional race with strong and well-known conservative views choose to run as a Democrat?" he asked. Robbins noted the local GOP has em-

Senators Reject Cheaper Power

The House approved weakened versions of the other three: a tax aimed at forcing conservation by raising the price of domestic oil to the world level; a tax on so-called "gas-guzzling" cars, and the

The Senate committee killed all three.

Completing its action on the non-tax portions of the President's energy program, the Senate approved on an 86 to 7 vote a watered-down version of Carter's plan to reform electric rates.

Bargain Scrapped
But it scrapped entirely the President's proposal to make utilities offer bargain rates for electricity consumed at night or during other non-peak hours. Carter also wanted to prohibit utilities from selling power at bargain rates to large industries.

tries.

The House had passed that proposal. By contrast, the Senate bill would offer lower electric rates to senior citizens and would give the government the right to intervene in state electric rate-making cases—but only to make recommendations on energy conservation.

A House-Senate conference committee will have to reconcile the differences.

Goal Endersed

The finance committee, after rejecting the bulk of Carter's energy-tax program, voted 9 to 2 to endorse his goal of reducing U.S. reliance on foreign oil through some yet-to-be-determined system of tax cuts — but not through tax increases.

On a 14-2 vote, the finance committee approved a provision that would redu oil company taxes $3 for every barrel of oil they produce from shale. That could cost billions in lost taxes, but only if that promising but difficult source of energy

It also rejected the administration's plan to levy a stiff tax on factories and power plants that use oil and natural gas. Panel Quits

After weeks of efforts, Sen. Russell B. Long, chairman of the committee, con cluded there was no way the panel could agree on an energy-tax program. So he proposed that the panel quit trying and leave the whole question to a Senate-

For that to work, the full Senate wo have to approve whatever minor tax credits its committee endorses, including one to help improve home insulation. A conference committee then would decide between the no-tax approach of the Sen-ate and the House version of the energy bill, which includes major taxes.

There is no assurance the Senate wo go along with such a plan, even if Long's committee does, because it wou amount to turning over to the House the responsibility of writing energy taxes.

Incentives Issue
The issue that has split the Senate pan el so badly is whether energy producers should get greater tax incentives to stimulate new production. The administration and the House want virtually no new aid for the industry. Although most mem-bers of the committee appear to favor more incentives, they can't agree on how

The committee's refusal to approve any major energy proposal was sharply criticized by Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore. Carter's program was bad, the House version was worse and the stripped-down version envisioned by the Senate committee was miserable, Packwood said, adding. There is no way to get a bill in con-See BARGAIN Page 14 tax as having more potential for conservation than any part of the program. Pink Steam, Heated Baths To Help City 'Think Warm'

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) - The nation's coldest large city has embarked on a civic campaign to look and think warm this winter with pink steam, disco-decorated ice fishing houses, heated bird baths and even outdoor cafes.

The job was assigned to William C. Rogers, a University of Minnesota professor serving as chairman of the Minneapolis Committee on Urban Environment.

"We want ideas from everybody," he said. "Even the Russians — although I don't know how much they can contribute. After all the Winter Palace in Leningrad was red — a nice warm color — before the revolution. Now it's green.

polis, with a mean temperature of 17 degrees in January, is the coldest large city in the United States, Rogers said, Montreal shares the Minneapolis average, and the site for the new capital of Alaska is about the same.

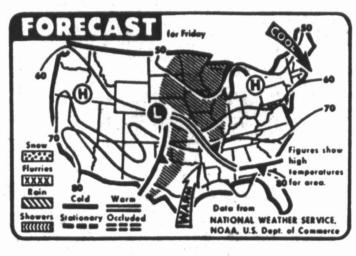

"The Alaskans have a wonderful chance to start from scratch," he said.

So far suggestions have ranged from the near facetious use of chemicals to turn steam plant emissions from black to pink, colorful fishing houses on the city's lakes, heated bird baths and use of snowblowers in March and April to put a new coat of makeup on the grimy drifts.

Rogers believes in greater use of evergreens, more use of natural woods in buildings - glass blocks, he said, look like icicles - more entertainment in the downtown areas. St. Moritztype skating rinks, warm colors, primarily oranges and reds and more imaginative lighting.

The House, Maintenance and Conces-sions Committee will try to negotiate with the university for an agreement to cover the annual $8,000 maintenance bills, or possibly to share some of the es-timated $60,000 Tech collects annually

An operating agreement recommendation from the committee is expected at

Similar negotiations were initiated by the board several years ago, but because of "political problems," they were stopped, said board chairman Carroll McDonald.

A board member attributed the "prob-ems" to the then-uncertain status of the indiana Avenue expansion through Tech. Although it "didn't have the right," McDonald said, the board in 1961 authorized Tech to use the 1,490-space lot for student parking.

In its request for the lots, Tech noted a shortage of student parking space at the north end of the campus, and "state funds cannot be used to construct additional facilities even if space were available said Marshall Pennington, then vice dent and comptroller of Tech.

Also, "It is better for a paved parking lot to be used than to stand idle," said Pennington, who was a board member. No fee was charged by the city for the Minor told authorities that, once inside the office, the student began waving a finger in his face and flicking his nose.

The teacher said he told the student not to touch him again. According to Minor, Simpson ignored the order.

Minor said he then knocked Simpson's arm away, and that Simpson retaliated by attacking him with the razor blade.

Broad Tax Base Termed Good By Lubbock City Officials

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock's 10 biggest taxpayers, mostly banks and utilities, contribute about 10 per cent of the total local city-school levy and officials say that's a sign of a good, diversified tax base.

'In some of your smaller taxing jurisdictions, the top three or five taxpayers especially if they're oil and gas interests sometimes represent as much as 90 per cent of your tax base," said John Brooks, chief tax assessor-collector for the City of Lubbock and Lubbock Independent School District.

'But in Lubbock, we're well diversified at the top. If, through a catastrophe or some other reason, we'd happen to lose our top 10 taxpayers, we wouldn't be wiped out."

Brooks released Thursday a list of the 10 largest city-school taxpayers. Such a report, he said, is compiled annually for bond purposes: prospective buyers of local municiPal and schoolhouse bonds typically are interested in how the tax hase would be affected if the biggest taxpayers were "knocked out in one felt

All told, the 10 biggest property owners will pay about $1.6 million of the city's total $15.6 million tax levy, and $1.8 million of the school district's $17.5 million

Southwestern Bell, assessed valuation of about $27 million, city-school tax bill of about $800,000.

Texas Instruments, assessed valuation of about $18 million, city-school tax bill of about $540,000.

Southwestern Public Service, assessed valuation of about $15 million, city-school tax bill of about $460,000. First National Bank, assessed valuation of about $13 million, city-school taxes of about $390 000

Lubbock National Bank, assessed valuation of about $10 million, city-school taxes of about $300,000. American State Bank, assessed valua-taxes of about $180,000. Texas Commerce Bank, assessed valuation of about $5 million, city-school taxes of about $150,000.

Plains Co-op Oil Mill, assessed valuation of about $4 million, city-school taxes of about $120,000.

Left off the "Top 10" list, and the tax roll altogether, is South Plains Mall, whose city-school tax lawsuit is pending. The mall, by city figures, would be ranked about the middle of the list.

Also excluded are some private concerns - the Furr's food enterprises, for example - whose holdings are divided among separate tax-paying corporations, thus splitting the total bill.

The biggest surprise about the 1977 list was Texas Instruments' jump from fourth place last year to the second-largest local taxpayer.

Last year's list, in order, included Southwestern Bell, Southwestern Public Service, First National Bank, Texas Instruments, Lubbock National Bank. American State Bank, Clark Equipment, Plains Co-op Oil Mill, Pioneer Natural Gas and Texas Commerce Bank

Chili Fanatics Gather For Annual Madness

ARRIBA TERLINGUA (UPI) - The annual chili lovers' trek into the desert begins Friday with the destination being a 10,000 acre ranch located 85 miles from the closest hint of civilization.

The motley crowd of thousands - traveling by plane, camper, car, motorcycle and burro — began converging in the de-sert as early as Wednesday to dress in ab-surd costumes, swill beer and engage in two days of spontaneous tomfoolery known as the 11th World Championship Chili cookoff.

The main purpose of the event is selection of the world's foremost chili chef from up to 50 contestants, but that competition in recent years has become almost incidental to the real purpose of putting hundreds of miles between the revelers and their inhibitions.

Bob Marsh, a British born public relations man for Pearl Brewing Co. and one of 19 contest judges, calls the event more of a happening than anything

Some of the chili chefs, who pride themselves on showmanship as well as their steaming pots of red, spend up to four days readying their stands and their skits for the contest which officially opens noon Saturday.

The affair starts with a dance Friday night, featuring Kent Finlay, who carries his guitar in a burlap bag and claims he has been trying to get arrested the past two years so he can become a star like other country-western musicians.

This year's cookoff was moved down the road about seven miles from the 10 previous ones because too many "chili neads" were arrested at the previous newspaperman Frank X. Tolbert arranged a showdown between author H. Allen Smith, who claimed to make the world's best chili, and Wick Fowler of Austin, chief chef of the Chili Appreciation Society International. That strictly stag cookoff, used to promote Tolbert's book, "A Bowl of Red," took place before a scattering of spectators and ended in a tie.

The size of the crowd has grown since then. But last year the owner of the 250,-000 acre ranch also asked 300 law officers to patrol the gathering. They put some of the more rowdy visitors into a portable tiger cage all night as a chilly wind blew through the area.

Marsh called it "an extreme case of ov-

This year the contest was moved to Arriba Terlingua, a sort of suburb of the old quicksilver mining town, and Bill Neale, one of the honchos of the cookoff, told Arriba Terlingua owner Glen Pepper he subscribed to the Texas theory of "one riot, one Ranger," meaning enforcement would be more subdued. Pepper and his wife, Donna, operate a tiny resort of 41 rooms, a cafe and swimming pool at Ariba Terlingua where he guides adverturous tourists who want to raft down the rapids of the Rio Grande. There is nothing else in sight but desert.

Main guest judges for the 1977 champi-onship will be Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., and Texas Land Commissioner Bob Arm-

But they must share top billing with a honorary judge who is a chimpanzee named "Deena," and "peculiar martini judges" Chastity Fox, a striptease dancer from Dallas; Alligani Jani McCullough of Stonewall, Tex., a chili buff who won the 1974 cookoff who "wore just enough clothes to wad a shotgun," and chili judges Ken and Kathy Morgan, who ow the Hill Country town of Luckenback Tex., which has more than its abare of

An example of the outlandish performances put on by the contestants was selected years ago when a six-wheel true roared into the desert, let down a ran and out drove a limousine. been reported.

Gordon Fowler, son of the first cookoff contestant who sells "Two Alarm Chili" at Austin, describes as "a fighting offense" the serving of an inferior bowl of chili or trying to foist off a dish of red containing kidney beams.

"We have what they call a 'chili fit," Fowler said. "Like when you go into a place like at the Houston airport coffee then and you get chili and it's real bad.

host to those groups whose central theme has something to do with preserving the American way of life. Last weekend, the Texas Council for the Social Studies, an organization of state teachers who deal with history, the social sciences and economics, met here with a series of outstanding speakers.

Saturday, another group will meet in Lubbock, for a National Defense Symposium. This session is sponsored by the Lubbock and Texas Tech Chapters of Young Americans for Freedom.

ON TAP FOR the all-day Saturday meeting at the Civic Center will be some of America's more credible spokesmen on national security matters.

The statewide meeting of social studies instructors was a resounding success, much of it due to the tenor of the session, its balance and those who presented their views of the economic and social system which has sustained the United States.

This week's symposium will emphasize another aspect of that strength: America's survival in a world increasingly becoming smaller and more fraught with danger for the nation's future.

MUCH OF THAT danger lies in the lack of knowledge among young people of how the free enterprise system works, and among older ones concerning the threat from abroad as well as at home.

This weekend a number of persons whose lives have been dedicated to preserving not they are permitted should disappear!

IT IS no accident that Lubbock often plays only the American way of life but seeing that it is protected abroad will be guest speakers here.

They include such widely known former military men as Maj. Gen. George J. Keegan Jr., currently executive vice president of the U.S. Strategic Institute. Maj. Gen. Keegan retired from the U.S. Air Force in January after having served as assistant chief of staff, Intelligence.

He is recognized as one of the nation's top experts on the Soviet Union and has had extensive experience in combat operations, command and strategic planning in various theaters, especially the Pacific.

ALSO ON THE agenda is former Lt. Gen. Daniel O. Graham, currently research professor at the University of Miami and a former top intelligence officer and expert on

In addition, there is former Rear Adm. Joseph W. Russel. Frank Sheakespeare, president of RKO General, Inc., and a former director of the U.S. Information Agency, and former Lt. Col. Robert B. Thieme, pastor of the Berachah Church of Houston and former head of Army Air Force Cadet Military Training.

It behooves those in the Lubbock community who are interested in helping preserve a way of life which they and their forebears have enjoyed to attend the National Defense Symposium.

Granted, football and baseball games are of interest. But even they would pale into insignificance if the way of life under which

Area's Economy--Still Strong

ANOTHER HIGH water mark in the Lubbock and South Plains economic picture has been chalked up in recent days, confirming what most area residents happily have felt for the past several years.

In brief, the business and jobs outlook for this part of the nation is still exceedingly bright.

Proof of this came in the report of the city's bank deposits as of the close of September business. Figures show Lubbock's eight banks have $990 million on deposit, a whopping 13 per cent boost over last September's total of $868.9 million.

THUS, WITH deposits just $10 million under the Dec. 31, 1976 $1 billion landmark. bankers are most optimistic that the goal again will be reached by the end of 1977.

The totals for this Fall start means that Lubbock and area residents have $121 million more "in the bank" than at the same time a year ago, representing a lot of savings, a lot of cash reserves, a lot of buying

And, with a good Fall cotton harvest already underway, the propsects for a bright season ahead seem assured. The picture would be especially bright if the price of cotton were to improve.

VARIOUS CITY bank officials all expressed an air of optimism about the Fall, Winter and Spring months ahead.

Coming in for particular attention was the city's extremely low employment rate, 3 per cent in August, and the area's diversified economy-farming, health care, home and commercial construction, education, elec-

"As far as the outlook for the coming quarter, it is excellent," one banker observed. "It appears that we're going to be somewhere over 2.5 million bales of cotton this year, compared to last year's 2 million

And although increasing costs of production and lower prices, especially for grains and cotton, are causing concern, hopes are for some correction in this area.

IN THE MEANTIME, Lubbock and South Plains citizens can be thankful, in advance of Thanksgiving, for the part of the nation in which they live.

Despite some nagging problems, more national and worldwide than local but affecting the area nonetheless, the outlook is still

Lots Of Hot Air Inflates Airbag-Windbag Cousins

WASHINGTON-Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa., calls our attention to a serious problem with mandatory airbags—and regulatory windbags. According to Shuster, the compulsory airbag system the federal regulators want to fasten on our automobiles could prove extremely hazard-

Seems the airbag system uses a chemical, sodium azide, that creates a small explosion and gets the thing inflated.

This chemical is safe enough if used in proper fashion, but something else if anything should go

"If the mandatory airbag passive restraint or-der stands," says Shuster, "millions of cars could be traveling American roads with a canister coning 1 1/4 pounds of sodium azide. It is a poion so deadly that, if inhaled or exposed to cuts, can cause convulsions or death, according to the Library of Congress...

"SODIUM AZIDE IS designated as a Class B toison and is, therefore, a 'hazardous material,' ander Title 49, Code of Federal Regulations.
"It is described in the Condensed Chemical Dictionary as 'highly toxic; severe explosive risk when shocked or heated."

Congressman Shuster stresses that there should be no danger from the substance if activated properly, but that "explosive risk when shocked or " should give us pause.

After all, the very purpose of these airbags is to which are famous for generating ons events which are junked or abandoned of the stock and heat.

There are 10 million autos junked or abandoned every year, and these cars are often prey to vandals, inquisitive kids or folks in quest of auto

worker Style Car

That prospect, plus the normal tinkering that millions of people do with their cars, creates the obvious possibility of something going wrong, and some terrible disaster ensuing.

Should that occur, we may be certain, there will be another outcry in the nation's capital for brand-new regulations to do something about the "irresponsible" auto-makers and their unsafe products

ON PAST EXPERIENCE, the failure of an existing regulation becomes the pretext for a new one-with the misdeeds of the regulatory types themselves ignored. This was exactly what happened, for example, in the famous case of "Tris," the chemical treatment for children's sleepwear rushed into action to comply with federal flammability standards.

It developed, of course, that "Tris" itself was flagged as dangerous, so another federal decree had to be adopted to correct the results of the previous ones.

Pajama manufacturers were flayed for their insensitivity, while the federal culprits in the drama quietly faded into the woodwork.

SIMILAR HORROR stories can be recited concerning other government health-and-safety regulations that produced results the opposite of safe: The ban on DDT, the crusade against phosphate detergents, installation of the catalytic converters, mandatory braking systems for trucks and buses, and so on. In all these instances, government sought to to put a far more serious danger in its place.

Now, in the name of highway safety, it is goin to require us all to drive around with a pound and a quarter of poisonous explosives in our cars.

Labor Vs. Russians

WASHINGTON-Leadership of the United Auto Workers honored four visiting "trade unionists" from the Soviet Union not long after turning away a leading Soviet dissident, pointing up a deep ideological cleavage in the American labor movement.

On Sept. 28, four members of Soviet "trade unions" lunched with UAW brass at Solidarity House, the union's headquarters in Detroit. About two weeks earlier, UAW leaders could not find time to see Ukrainian dissident Leonid Plyushch. A respected mathematician expelled from the Soviet Union in 1976 after four years' imprisonment, Plyushch now lives in Paris and was making an American tour

ANDREW TULLY:

WASHINGTON-One comment is mandatory on the recent swelling of sentiment for the death penalty. It is that a permissive society asked for Society during the Sixties was carried away by the phony liberalism of Establishment leaders, so antly characterized in David Halberstam's cruelly accurate book. "The Beast and the Brightest."

The decade was one in which weeping over the criminal became chic, in which the arriviste philosophers polished their credentials as people who "cared" by inveighing against "cruel and unusual punishment" of the creeps who rose as an army to devastate the land.

NOW. AT LAST, THE people have taken to the barricades. They have tasted the policy of aiding the criminal instead of succoring the victim, and they have vomited it up.

Consider the case of New York City. The candidates in the Democratic primary runoff for Mayor were both liberals-Rep. Ed Koch and Mario

But Koch came out for capital punishment. Cuomo rejected it as no deterrent. In the nation's most liberal city, Koch, won the runoff.

True, no mayor anywhere can institute capital punishment, and most New York voters knew it. But the voters could send out a message to their governor and their legislature, and they did so. And about time, Court-ordered regulations of arrest and prosecution procedures have made it difficult and often impossible to convict even the confessed felon.

MEANWHILE, THE permissive crowd celebrated when the Supreme Court in 1972 ruled unconstitutional the death penalty "as administered," deposing that it was "cruel and unusual "ishment." But the key words were "as ad-

What the Court did, by a 5-4 vote, was to outlaw capital punishment where judges and jurors have discretion about whether to apply it, citing the "erratic manner" in which some defendants were executed.

The Court left open the possibility that mandatory death penalties might be held constitutional if they were mandatory for certain crimes, or if the statute specified the conditions that would justify execution.

As a result, numerous state legislatures have enacted new death penalty laws, some of which have been upheld by the highest bench. Capital punishment, if it meets the Supreme Court's criterion, in now constitutional.

IS IT GOOD? I don't know. My alternative is life imprisonment with no parole, no time off for what is euphemistically called "good behavior."

But I welcome the change in the national at-mosphere, indisputably brought about by a grass-roots uprising of a people furiously tired of living in a jungle. I suggest that at long last we have learned the lesson that a society that will not protect itself will go unprotected.

And, as an old-fashioned Jeffersonian liberal, I remind the arrivistes that the keystone of American liberalism is government by law. We have been living too long under government by dan gerously silly men.

The UAW's position is directly opposite to AFL-CIO George Meany's and complicates the auto union's possible return to the AFL-CIO.

THE CARTER administration authorized visas for Communist trade unionists over the objections of Meany, who considers Soviet labor leaders as mere government stooges. Meany has championed exiles from Communist oppression, and AFL-CIO officials helped Plyushch with his itinerary. The four visiting Russians, labelled as ordinary workers but obviously handpicked by the KGB, began their U.S. trip in Chicago Sept. 23 singing the praises of life in the Soviet Union. "We work very hard and are very well paid," declared coalminer Andrei Gatsenko, adding that miners make more than doctors and can retire with half pay at age 50. AFL-CIO headquarters naturally was not informed of the itinerary which had been arranged by an outfit called Trade Unions for Action and Democracy (TUAD)-formed in 1970 in close collaboration with the U.S. Communist party.

The visiting Russians were met in Chicago by UAW regional officials and visited Steelworkers Local 1033 (which is in the satrapy of Steelworkers maverick leader Ed Sadlowski.)

SADLOWSKI'S lieutenants arranged for the Soviets to lay a wreath at a plaque commemorating the 1937 massacre in Chicago of Republic Steel

Co. employes seeking to organize a union. To anti-Communists at AFL-CIO headquarters, identification of KGB puppets with bona fide trade union martyrs borders on sacrilege.

From Chicago, the Russians went to Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and New York-meeting such anti-Meany unionists as the mine workers and meatcutters.

EMIL MAZEY, UAW secretary-treasurer, told us his union long has favored visits from Soviet trade unionists because "the only way you can relax the cold war is to establish relations between

As for the Detroit visit of the dissident Plyushch, Mazey told us, "I wasn't able to meet him" for lack of time.

However, he was distinctly unenthusiastic about Ukrainian nationalists (separating the Ukraine from Russia would be like "trying to unscramble an egg") and suggested a solution was for them to "leave the country."

UAW reunion with the AFL-CIO while Emil Mazey and George Meany still hold high positions has always generated skepticism. Their conflicting views on visitors from Russia shows why.

RISING FEARS BY big businessmen that the departure of Bert Lance has cost them their only important entree in the Carter administration reached an embarrassing climax in the White House Sept. 23, with Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal listening.

Those fears were stated bluntly by duPont's Irving Shapiro, one of ten business leaders meeting that day with President Carter.

Acknowledging Blumenthal's presence, Shapiro told Carter that American business is afraid it will no longer find a "sympathetic" ear.

Normally, the Secretary of the Treasury is the President's chief emissary to the business world. Thus, Shapiro's clear implication: Blumenthal, an expert on foreign trade and finance, is not regarded as being all that knoledgable about the special problems of business executives (though he was the highly successful head of the Bendix

THE LAMENT OVER Lance's departure was reported in a press briefing by Shapiro and General Electric's Reginald Jones. Not reported was the feeling of every business leader there that the incident conveyed this mes-sage to the Secretary of the Treasury with the President sitting in: Sorry, Mr. President, but we feel we cannot count on Mike Blumenthal to get ms across to you.

Carter is trying to show the country he wants to work more closely with business. Although the executives wanted the Sept. 23 session kept private, Carter gave it full publicity.

When the President walked into the meeting, he astonished the barons of business by saying that all of them were undoubtedly "more qualified" to be President than he.

JAY HARRIS:

Pearl Of Morocco

MARRAKECH, MOROCCO-This city of 400,-000 in the foothills of the High Atlas mountains of southern Morocco has to be seen to be believed.

Known as the "pearl of Morocco" and the "gateway to the Sahara," Marrakech is an oasis city of red-clay buildings towering palms and an impressive past.

It can be blistering hot in the summer, and the jumping off spot for skiing in the nearby mountains in the winter. It has a public market which defies description and may be unmatched anywhere in the world for sheer organized, and spontaneous, showmanship.

It has a Casbah which offers the native and visitor alike anything one's heart, and pocketbook, may desire. With a little bargaining-haggling is a better word-one can walk away with a fine rug, blanket, ornamental robe, leather goods, brass, native jewelry, you name it.

ONE ALSO can watch the modern version of the native belly dance, gamble in the city's crowded casino, ride a camel, enjoy fine Moroccan food and take a moonlight ride in a horsedrawn carriage.

There are fine hotels, including a former Holiday Inn which the government took over, and other abodes fit for a king-literally.

Marrakech is part French, very much Arab and Berber, garnished with a touch of tourista, ancient palaces, mosques, hundreds of buzzing motorbikes, and a traffic problem with small cars and burros.

It is a "must" on any visit to this part of the world. Located some three hours by bus, longer by electric train, from Casablanca, getting there is half the fun From the flat, fertile coastal plain around Casablanca to the rolling hills to the suddenly changing red clay and oasis-dotted region near Marrakech, there is an ever-changing panorama.

ALONG THE paved highway, one passes several villages and communities, one of which is Settat, a carnel trading center with a colorful and bloody past.

As one tools along, there are innumerable huts and homes and enclaves, mostly constructed from the native soil, brush wood and plaster. Neat mounds of stacked grain stand on most small farms, cattle, burros, sheep and occasionally camel feeding nearby. Now and then may be seen mounds of the country's major mineral and money-maker, phos-

Although there is a river or two cutting through the region, along with numerous wet-weather streams, water for the most part must come from wells. Marrakech itself is the capital of the province of the same name, one of seven such in Mo-

The city can be grossly misleading. And to a great extent, one sees what one wishes to see.

AT MIDDAY, the scene is one of hundreds of red-clay, flat-roofed buildings, with mountains as a backdrop and green date and palm trees serving as a welcome curtain in between. A visit to the city's main square, a stone's throw from a towering, hundreds-years-old mosque, is an experience never to be forgotten. Here, in an open area about two blocks wide and three blocks long is a fantastic mixture of open-air stalls, filled with every conceivable merchandise one can imagine-from live chickens to cooked lamb, leather belts and clothing, and the Moroccan version of ice cream. Here, lined up under umbrellas, books and papers spread before them, are the open air legal beagles of Marrakech. And only yards away, surrounded by a crowd of latives and tourists, a snake charmer does hi thing, the hooded cobras coiling and darting to high-strung music. Nearby, a group of gailyclad dancers march and weave. Across the way, a family puts on a tumbling act while jugglers seek

AMIDST IT ALL, there is the constant babble and cry of thousands, hawking their wares, urging the visitor "to come, to look, to see, a bargain, yes?"

Or, "need boy, guide,...I protect you..." Behind a row of buildings and through a narrow street filled with cooking food, lanterns to be cleaned and clocks to be repaired, one walks into the never-never land of the Casbah.

Even with the experience of the medina at Fez. this still is worth the trouble and time. And it requires a healthy helping of both. Also bring Dirham, one of which equals about 24 cents. Or to be exact, 4.45 to the $1, U.S. currency, which also is most negotiable... Marrakech can be whatever one desires to

It is not unusual to see young women riding motorbikes, dressed in colorful tight-fitting trousers and blouses or blue jeans. Nearby, a horsedrawn carriage plods slowly, and veiled women avoid photographers.

Thousands of young men, some sporting Tshirts with Alabama, Oklahoma and TCU imprints, offer guide service. And there are those who will relieve you of your wallet or purse.

But the memory which indelibly stayed with us is of a small, smiling school girl, books nearby, in a room in the Casbah. She was diligently handweaving a handsome Moroccan rug.

Sunlight filtered through a high window nearby As we shot her picture she turned and smiled. In a way, she represents the fate of millions today, caught in a web not of their making, a step away from the sunshine, facing a hopeless future, but smiling with a child's faith...

BASS LEAVES COURTHOUSE—Beverly Bass leaves the Potter County Courthouse in Amarillo Wednesday escorted by Tarrant County District Attorney's investigator, Don Moore. The 19-year-old state witness has identified T. Cullen Davis as the gunman who shot her boyfriend, 21-year-old Gus Gavrel Jr. at the Davis Mansion on Aug.

Murder Trial Witness Admits To Giving False Information

ness in the Cullen Davis murder trial tearfully admitted Thursday she once provided false information under oath about a sensitive "personal problem."

But in a stormy confrontation with defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, Beverly Bass, a 19-year-old Fort Worth co-ed declared, "Mr. Haynes, I told you before I wanted to block this from my memory and I had."

"Is it not true," Haynes suggested, "that you preferred one more time to forget the episode of August 1975 until the noon recess yesterday when you learned the records had been subpoeaned?"

"No, sir," she said defiantly. The records to which Haynes referred were obtained from a Fort Worth clinic called Pregnancy Control, Inc.

Thursday's drama was among the most emotional since the millionaire defendant went on trial here last summer for the Aug. 2, 1976, slaying of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn.

The state contends the girl was slain in a prelude to the shooting spree at Davis' hilltop Fort Worth mansion in which another was killed and two wounded

Miss Bass, the only survivor to escape unharmed, was the third eye witness to name Davis as the black-clad triggerman in the bizarre assault.

Haynes established previously that Miss Bass turned to Mrs. Davis for help with her "personal problem" in 1975 and that the blonde socialite accompanied her to the clinic and loaned her money.

But the Houston lawyer withheld his toughest questions until Thursday when he sought again to show that the two women share an unusually close personal relationship.

Haynes produced a sworn deposition by Miss Bass in which she said last December that she had not had an occassion to consult a medical doctor about any prob-

"That statement was not accurate, was it?" Haynes asked.

"It was not true!" she cried. "It was something I wanted to forget! And I had forgotten about it!" With Haynes poised to continue, she tearfully turned to the judge and said, 'May I have a break, please?" The judge consented. But minutes later, Haynes resumed his cross-examination by asking her if she

"They were trying to cheer me up, she said.

"I take it then you are now cheered up? he shot back triggering an objection

"I take it then you are not cheered up."

Haynes quipped. Moments later Haynes asked Miss Bass if she did not know at the time she gave her deposition that her answer was untruthful

"No, sir," she said. "You had forgotten the incident of August 1975?" Haynes asked sarcastically. "Yes, sir," she said. "So when you said 'No,' you had not consulted with a medical person, you had just forgotten about that consultation?"

Before she could reply, Haynes pressed 'The truth of it is you hadn't forgotten the incident, you just thought the way you'd gone about seeking a resolution to the problem there would be no way to discover it?"

"No, sir, that is not correct."

"You did not use your own name, did

'You used the name of your own sister, "Yes, sir."

"After Priscilla Lee Davis testified here, she told you about that line of ques-tioning and that she had lied, didn't she?" "No. sir."

issue of U.S. intervention rights. The announcement followed the leak of a classified State Department cable that cast doubt on U.S. claims to important defense rights in the waterway and intensified sharp Senate opposition to the treaties.

Sen Robert Dole, R-Kan., a leader of the anti-treaty forces, accused the administration Thursday of trying to intimidate him for releasing that cable, and dared President Carter to make public any other secret documents on the canal negotia-

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker backed Dole in what seemed to be the start of a political brawl over whether there has been a "coverup" of weak spots in the deal.

Against that background, State Department spokesman Ken Brown announced that Ellsworth Bunker and Sol Linowitz, the chief U.S. treaty negotiators, are meeting in Washington with Panama's Ambassador Gabriel Lewis Galindo 'with a view to clarifying points of interpretation" in the pacts.

Other department officials confirmed that the major "points of interpretation" are those raised by the leaked cable Dole gave the Senate Wednesday:

 Whether the pacts guarantee U.S. rights to intervene militarily, if necessary, in order to keep the canal open and operating, as U.S. officials have claimed; or whether they guarantee no such thing, as some Panamanian officials argue.

- And whether U.S. warships will have priority passage rights in the waterway during times of emergency. U.S. officials

Abourezk, FBI Official Clash On Records

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., clashed with an FBI official Thursday about his trouble in obtaining his own "censored" FBI file and the official's refusal to discuss the issue.

He accused the FBI of "throwing away the rulebook" and acting like "a government unto itself."

The verbal fireworks occurred when Abourezk was chairing a Judiciary subcommittee hearing on the Freedom of Information Act, under which citizens may obtain their confidential files from government agencies.

Abourezk said it had taken a year to get his files from the FBI, and then the bureau had blacked out "administration markings," an apparent violation of Justice Department policy. It was then he clashed with Allen H.

McCreight, deputy assistant director of the FBI freedom of information office. Abourezk: "So by stonewalling this particular thing we really have very little McCreight: "Mr. Chairman, I am not tempting to stonewall. I'm attempting to tell you that based on what you said in your appeal ... I do not feel this forum is proper to discuss a matter that could potentially result in litigation for fear it could prejudice an impartial adjudication Abourezk: "I have to take issue with that. Whether or not this is a proper forum is a matter to be determined by the committee, not by witnesses ... I personally resent the fact that any agency of the government refuses to discuss any issue pertaining to legislation and this does, whether or not it might go to court later on - that happens all the time around Abourezk, puffing furiously on a cigar but never shouting, told McCreight, "As I see it, you have effectively stonewalled the committee this morning.

"And the only valid course the committee could take right now is wait until the director of the FBI can come and testify, and we'll have to simply ask him on the record what he intends to do about cooperating with the committee and answering the committee's questions."

Later the senator told a reporter he would make the matter an issue when the Judiciary Commitee holds confirmation hearings on FBI Director-designate Frank Johnson.

"Are they (the FBI) going to be a government unto themselves?" Abourezk later asked a Justice Department witness. "I think this is another example of somebody just throwing away the rulebook. And in this case it's the FBI."

Brown said the envoys "are assessing the effects of the debates and discussions which are going on in the two countries about the treaties.'

He said he expects the results of their consultations to be "published ... in an agreed form."

Dole, meanwhile, alleged in a Senate statement that the administration had raised a threat of politial reprisal against him over the leaked cable issue.

"Yesterday, State Department sources contacted the Senate Ethics Committee staff to inqire as to whether my action in releasing the cable might have violated some Senate rule or ethic," he said.

"I resent and reject that clear effort at intimidation.'

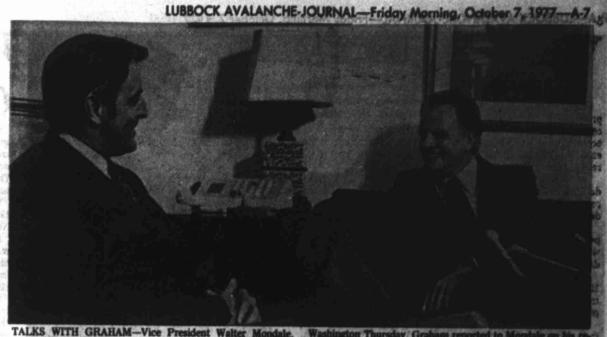

At the State Department, Brown de-nied the intimidation charge.

'We are not pursuing or even suggesting that action be pursued against Sen. Dole," Brown said. "We have no intention to intimidate him." He said the department had contacted the Ethics Committee merely to get "information" on Senate rules governing release of classified information.

Dole alleged the leaked cable had been classified only "for narrow, short-term political advantage," and its release would in no way endanger our national security.

"Whatever became of the 'open government' that our President promised during the campaign last year?" he

Nobel Prize Winner Praised

By United Press International For most Americans Vicente Aleixandre is unknown.

But to those who know him and his work, the man who won the Nobel Prize for Literature Thursday, is "a human bridge in Spanish poetry" through the fury of civil war to the poets of today.

Although there are few translations of Aleixandre in this country, the announcement he had won the Noble Prize was greeted with praise for the both the poet and his difficult dream verse.

American poets Robert Bly and Lewis Hyde translated 20 of Aleixandre's poems and put them in one of the two books in English dedicated entirely to the Spaniard's poetry.

Bly, who said it "was disgrace" major bers had overlooked Aleixandre, ublished "Twenty Poems" on his own Seventies Press.

First to publish the work of Chilean Noble winner Pablo Neruda in this country, Bly said, "No one has done more than to bring the body of Spanish poetry together than Aleixandre." n

The Nobel winner, who was the only member of the "Generation of 1927" literary movement not to be killed or leave Spain after the Franco takeover, "was a human bridge in Spanish poetry for the younger generation of Spanish poets,"

In cambridge, Mass., Hyde said, "He is the only poet of his generation who both survived the civil war and remained in Spain. He is alone in preserving Spanish poetry for Spaniards.

was a leftover from a gall bladder opera-for the prize, said he was "very happy. We were waiting for it."

"He is not a poet who repeated himself but explored new ways of expressing the human quest," said Jiminez, a professor at Hunter College in New York.

"He wrote from a certain darkness that was clarified through the subject and the language of his work," Jiminez said.

Joseph Schraibman, chairman of the Romance Languages department at Washington University in St. Louis, said the poet "is a surrealist -a very personal, passionate, romantic kind of Spanish surrealist. He puts tremendous emphasis on the individual and love of life and nature amid the disorder of life."

"Aleixandre is a poet whose themes are love, anguish and mystery," according to Julio Duarte, Spanish professor at Geor-gia State University. "He's tried to transcend reality; that's what his poetry is However, Duarte said he was surprised at Aleixandre's winning the coveted

"He is, after all, not a poet for the masses," Duarte said Juan Marichal, professor of Spanish Literature at Harvard University, knows Aleixandre closely. He said Aleixandre "represents the whole history of Spanish poetry in the 20th century. Aleixandre, 79, has been ill since his youth and "can't participate in many activities outside his house" in Madrid, Marichal said, but many young and aspiring poets visit him and are well-received.

"He is a little like Picasso," Marical said, "always changing, always coming closer to younger poets.

Writings' 'Strength To Survive' Gains Honor For Nobel Winner

andre, a Spanish surrealist poet little known in the English-speaking world, won the 1977 Nobel Prize for Literature Thursday, honored for "the strength to survive" in his writing. The award was the first made in the 1977 series of awards endowed by Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite. Aleixandre, 79, said he felt the award was meant not only for him but also for his colleagues in Spain's famous left-leaning "generation of 1927" poets group, including the late Federico Garcia Lorca.

A victim of tuberculosis, he remained in Spain during the Fascist movement of the 1930s, when many of his friends became exiles, and was unable to publish between 1939 and 1944.

The Swedish Academy said the $145,000 prize was awarded "for a creative poetic writing which, with roots in the traditions of Spanish lyric verse and in modern currents, illuminates man's condition in the cosmos and in present-day socie-

At his home in Madrid, Aleixandre said poetry, to him, was "communication between men, the deepest and most precise means of expression."

His last volume of poems, "Dialogue of Reason," was published three years ago. Aleixandre's works are well known in Spanish, but the Stockholm public library has only one of his dozen books, "Swords as Lips," published in 1932. The first full volume of his works published in English in the United States, "Twenty Poems," was issued only earlier this year.

Juan Marichal, professor of Spanish literature at Harvard University, said Aleixandre was "a father figure for most of the young poets in Spain" and compared the evolution of his writing during the past half-century to the artistic development of Picasso.

"He represents the whole history of Spanish poetry in the 20th century, going from a very individual poet ... to someone more concerned with problems affecting everyone — the very large issues

Julio Duarte of Georgia State University in Atlanta said Aleixandre's main themes are love, anguish and mystery: "This is not a realistic type of poetry. He's tried to transcend reality; that's what his poetry is about. He has a famous phrase: poetry is not a question of

Swedish Academy Selects Poet As Nobel Literature Laureate

By United Press International Asked for his advice to young poets, Nobel laureate Vicente Aleixandre said: "Inspiration does exist. But you have to find it.

"I would never want to give advice to a poet, but would remind him of one thing: The only way to be loyal to others is by beginning to be loyal to yourself."

But mentally, too, he survived the Franco regime, never submitting and thus becoming a rallying point and key figure in what remained of Spain's spiritual life," the Swedish Academy said in its Prize for Literature.

The Academy cited Aleixandre's two most recent volumes in its award and paid tribute to his "simplicity of expression and a warm openness both to exist-ence and to the reader."

"The Academy has been too kind to me," the poet said at his home. "At the moment of the Nobel award I cannot but remember with dearest feelings my friends in the group of 1927 with whom I feel total solidarity." Alekandre, born April 26, 1898, in Se-

The U.S. Soviet statement was seen by many Jews as an indication the adm

Discrimination Suit Filed By Reese Employe

A civilian employe at Reese Air Force Base has sued the Department of the Air Force, claiming she was passed over for a key promotion because of her sex and age.
The suit was filed in U. S. Dist. Court here by Mrs. Mattie F. Bartlett, 54.

The plaintiff seeks a permanent injunction against the Air Force, asking U. S. Dist. Judge Halbert O. Woodward to order the government agency to grant her the desired promotion and pay her back wages, amounting to at least $10,000, to which she alleges she is entitled.
Eric D. F. Girchardt, who, according to the suit, is the officer who denied Mrs. Bartlett the promotion, is named as a de-fendant both individually and in his official capacity, along with the Air Force.

According to the suit filed by attorney Tom Purdom, Mrs. Bartlett was denied a promotion from Chief of the Supply Branch of the Procurement Division at the air base to Deputy Chief of the Procurement Divison.

The promotion would have meant a rise in civil service job status from GS-9 to GS-11, the suit says.

The suit says the plaintiff filed a complaint of discrimination with the Department of the Air Force on or about Oct. 25, 1976, and that hearings were held on

The suit says that the Department of the Air Force informed Mrs. Bartlett in a letter dated Sept. 1 of this year that officials found no discrimination.

An all-white jury of seven woman and five men deliberated 15 hours before returning the verdict against Terry Denson, 27, and Stephen Orlando, 21. It was one of the lightest the jury could have handed

The two were accused of beating and then pushing Joe Campos Torres, 23, off a 16-foot embankment into the murky waters of a downtown Houston bayou in the predawn hours of May 6 after his arrest for drunkenness.

Campos Torres's body was found two days later floating in Buffalo Bayou near the police station.

In his instructions to the jury, State District Court Judge James Warren said the jury could consider murder, involuntary manslaughter, negligent homicide or Negligent homicide is punishable by one year in prison and a fine of up to $2,-

After the verdict was read, Mrs. Jose Campos, mother of the victim, said: They killed my son as if he was nobody as if he was an animal. The Mexican-American community will continue to fight for justice. If Jose had killed one of those cops or if five Mexican-Americans had killed one cop, then they all would be on death row.

State Rep. Ben Reyes, a leader of the Houston Mexican-American community, of justice I have ever witnessed. Our community is saddened. It only proves there is a dual system of justice.

In Corpus Christi, attorney Ruben Bonilla, executive director of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said:

"They treated the case as if they (the officers) had killed a dog. This verdict ... reinforces the notion in the minds of Mexican-Americans that there is a dual system of justice in Texas. Bonilla said he would travel to Washington later in the day to meet with Justice Department officials to reiterate demands for federal prosecution of the two former officers. We are angry... this message should extend to the White House. If the federal government takes no action, we will know that Washington does not give a damn about our interests and we will remember that in the next election." The punishment phase of the trial be gan Thursday afternoon.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Ted Poe said, "after this verdict, we are certainly going to fight any probation for these men. I expect after this verdict there is no doubt the U.S. Justice Department will step

Mexican-American Community Angered By 'Farce' Verdict

HOUSTON (AP) - Mexican-American leaders, forecasting possible violence, said Thursday the verdict in the Joe Campos Torres case was a deplorable farce. Police Chief Harry Caldwell, however, said justice prevailed over demogoguery. "The Mexican American community is angry," said Ruben Bonilla, state director of the League of United Latin Ameri-

To prevent "wholesale chaos" in the Mexican-American community, the Corpus Christi lawyer said, the Justice Department should immediately prosecute the case under civil rights statutes. Two former Houston police patrolmen, Terry Denson, 27, and Stephen Orlando, 21, were found guilty of criminally negligent homcide. They had been charged with murder in the drowning of Torres, 23, whose body was recovered May 8 from Buffalo Bayou, three days after he had been arrested in a bar disturbance.

Bonilla, calling the verdict deplorable and unconscienable, said he was flying to Washington for a LULAC committee meeting and hopes to discuss the case again at the Justice Department.

He made it clear he was dissatisfied with a Justice Department conference two weeks ago when he, State Rep. Ben Reyes, Houston, and Ruben Sandoval, LULAC general counsel from San Antonio, called for federal intervention.

'We don't want any doubletalk." Bonilla said. "We want a commitment consistent with President Carter's talks about human rights." Reyes said the Huntsville verdict was completely ridiculous.

What a farce," he said. Reyes expressed hope the verdict will prompt no violence but said prosecution on civil rights charges is needed "to calm the folks down."

In Washington, John Wilson, a Justice Department spokesman, said there will be an immediate review but said the case raises several questions.

One area of concern was said to be whether any federal proceedings in the Torres case would be limited to Denson and Orlando or cover all six officers involved in the case. Denson, Orlando and three other officers were fired after the recovery of Torres's body and a sixth officer was suspended from duty with pay nearly two months.

There also was concern about dual prosecution, but Bonilla said a precedent already had been set in the case of Richard Morales, who was shot to death while being taken to the Medina County iail in 1975.

Frank Hayes, former Castroville police chief, was found guilty of negligent homicide in the Morales case in a state court trial. He now is awaiting sentence in federal court after having been found guilty on a civil rights violation charge.

Tony Canales, the new U.S. attorney for the Southern District of Texas, did not have much to say on possible federalintervention.

"I am not happy with the Huntsville verdict," Canales said. "That is all I can say now. Caldwell was in Los Angeles but re-

"I think the important thing is that the processes of justice have prevailed over demogoguery and over attempts to handle this sort of trauma outside the processes of justice," Caldwell said.

leased a statement through his office.

Hector Garcia, president of the Hous-ton Political Association of Spanish-Speaking Organizations, said the verdict did not make him angry because it did not surprise him,

Garcia also heads the Coalition for Responsible Government, which has been working with Caldwell and other police officials to improve relations between the community and police department. "A lot of people in the community had high expectations that we were headed toward a real stiff murder verdict and they will be surprised and angry," Garcia

"The verdict screams out for attention, and if anything this puts the coalition back on notice that we have to get to the root of problems....

Reyes said the jury's verdict means society condones this sort of thing, and that's sick."

"There's a flaw in the system and we've proven it beyond a shadow of doubt,"he said. By condoning, we allow people to

Murder Jury Count Holds

The number of jurors in the David Mabra capital murder trial remained at six late Thursday, with the selection process continuing into the night.

Results of the nine-year studies, involving a total of 63,000 British women, were published in Lancet, an independent British medical journal, which was to be distributed today.

The surveys were conducted by the Royal College of General Practitioners, which studied 46,000 women, and by Prof. Martin Vessey of Oxford University, who compiled results involving 17,000 women under the auspices of Britain's Family Planning Association

The two studies say the risk of circulatory disease deaths among women between 35 and 44 who take birth control pills - especially those who smoke or have taken the pills for five years or more - rises to one in 3,000. After 44, the risk of death from heart attack rises to one woman in 700, the article said.

Up to the age of 35, the studies put the death rate from circulatory disease at one women out of every 20,000 who take

The article said results indicate the excess risk of death from circulatory diseases may persist for some time after women have discontinued use of the pill.

Two leading physicians commenting on the studies in a joint statement strongly recommended that women over 35 reconsider using the pill.

Bat Dr. Ekje Kuenssberg and Sir John Dewharst said, "We see no reason for any woman who is on the pill to make any immediate changes before careful

Low Rate Of Birth

Forecast

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - The low birth rate in America is likely to continue indefinitely as long as the economy keeps expanding and many young women choose to work, says a Rand Corp. study released Thursday.

The prediction follows from what two Rand researchers say is the recent reversal of a historic trend that in the past meant more babies were born in periods of prosperity

The report's conclusions contradict the view of most population analysts that American fertility will increase again

The study was commissioned by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

'We have to qualify our predictions for the more distant future because there will be a bottoming out of the downward trend eventually," noted Michael P. Ward, who wrote the report along with another economist, William P. Butz.

"Obviously people are not going to stop having babies altogether, but low levels of fertility are probably with us to stay."

Until the period following World War II, said the report, there was a distinct pattern that found high fertility during flush economic times and a drop in birth rates when times were hard.

From the late 1950s to the present, the researchers found, the pattern has reversed, with birth rates declining as the economy expanded. They said they found that fertility dropped during the 1960s, leveled off in 1970, fell rapidly for several years and leveled again in 1974 — in each case, running opposite to economic trends.

Butz and Ward suggest that the historic pattern was broken by the remarkable increase in employment of young women following World War II. "For families in which the wife is employed, increases in her wage raise the cost of children" and thus a large proportion of working women in the economy results in lower birth rates, said the report.

The researchers recognized other explanations for declining fertility, including the growth of contraceptive availability, the women's movement emphasizing work, increased expectations of couple's standard of living, and concern about world population growth. However, the economists said, "The weight of our evidence clearly contradicts the contraceptive hypothesis for the 20 to 24 age group and the motivational changes did not become important until the middle 1960s, more than five years after fertility had leveled off.

We take the different view that women entered the labor market and reduced their fertility in the 1960s because of increasingly higher wages."

Aid Asked For Viets

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - The General Assembly's economic commit-tee recommended Thursday that the as-sembly ask all U.N. members for pos-twar aid to Vietnam. But the United States said it would not give any. The committee of all 149 members

The United States has taken the position that it need not honor its promise in the 1973 Paris cease-fire agreements to help Vietnam "heal the wounds of war" because North Vietnam failed to honor its promise not to introduce more troops into South Vietnam.

The resolution would also have the assembly put Vietnam on the U.N. list of countries hardest hit by economic crisis.

While most of this has been spent on housing rehabilitation, street paving and street lighting, $3,100 has gone for Bicentennial Trail signs and historic markers - a fact which incensed several residents at the meeting.

The heated debate between the residents and Kitten continued, with Mrs. Mirelez concluding, "We ask for the same things every year - houses - and they (city council) go back and do whatever they want to over there.

The residents then split into four smaller groups according to school areas, and recommended that street paving, removal of rubbish, rodents and weeds, park development and a daycare center be listed along with housing rehabilitation for the receipt of CD funds.

Only five south Lubbock residents turned up for that sector's meeting in Parsons Elementary School.

The small group recommended a shelter for battered wives, the building of daycare centers in all areas of the city, and more branch libraries as their suggestions for possible fourth-year CD

The final vote, 257 to 163, reflected the margin throughout the last three days by which Democrats and a smattering of Republicans beat back business-backed amendments aimed at cutting into the bill's effectiveness.

(Rep. George Mahon of Lubbock voted against the bill.)

Business said it would pursue the fight in the Senate next year, however, and Clarence B. Randall of the National Action Committee on Labor Law Reform, a business group, said the vote shows the country is "heading toward a labor-controlled government similar to that of the United Kingdom."

Meany Praises AFL-CIO President George Meany, however, called the bill "one which will go a long way toward correcting the current imbalance in the nation's labor laws in favor of those employers who willfully and repeatedly violate the law "

Meany said the legislation, "because it is aimed solely at those unfair employers who have placed themselves above the law, is in the best interests of law-abiding businesses as well as the workers who seek protection for the right to form a un-

It was a particularly significant victory for labor after a succession of snubs from Congress earlier this year on bills to broaden the picketing rights of construction workers and on key parts of the minimum wage bill.

Labor Complaint

Organized labor contends that the 42year-old laws protecting the rights of employees to organize aren't working because companies find it cheaper to violate the laws in order to keep unions out. Labor's goal was to impose, for the first time, financial penalties on recalcitrant companies as incentives to obey the law.

Workers illegally fired during an organizing campaign would be immediately reinstated at double back pay. Currently, it takes an average of two years for an illegally dismissed worker to win the right to be reinstated - and so dismissals have hurt not only the individual but have chilled colleagues' enthusiasm for a un-

Another key penalty would be compensation for workers for lost benefits during the period when an employer is found to be illegally refusing to bargain on an initial contract after the union is certified.

Lost Benefits

In addition, the bill would speed up timetables for elections for workers to decide about bringing in a union. An election would have to be held within 25 days after a majority of workers petition their employer. The National Labor Relations Board would be expanded from five to seven members to take care of a workload that has tripled in recent years.

The House also agreed to require that unions also will be required to pay dou-

The House also voted to empower the National Labor Relations Board to go to court to get an injunction against strikes such as those now plaguing the coal industry where pickets are thrown up by non-employees or by workers not authorized to strike by the union.

Both the AFL-CIO and the Chamber of Commerce agreed that the bill would make it easier for unions to recruit members - but they predictably differed on whether that was good or bad.

Business said the bill would strengthen "union bosses" and go far beyond punishing anti-union labor law violators.

The only ways to cut into the use of foreign oil are through "incredible conservation," such as rationing or heavy increases in fuel taxes, which few in Congress favor, or through drastic increases in production, which would require expenditures for incentives that the committee apparently is not willing to make, Packwood said.

The committee eventually went on record as favoring some type of bill that would reduce dependence on foreign oil, but the 9-2 vote came only after Sen. Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, amended Packwood's proposal to say that such a bill should use tax credits and tax cuts instead of tax increases to reach the goal. Almost Finished

The Senate's vote on the electric rate bill finished Senate action on all parts of the President's energy program except the controversial tax proposals.

In previous votes, the Senate rejected Carter's plan for continued natural gas controls by voting to lift the price limits and modified his coal-conversion plan by permitting industries to continue burning oil. Carter wanted to force utilities to stop burning oil and natural gas and use

The Senate passed some of the minor energy conservation measures requested by the President, but in the same tion voted to outlaw the production of cars getting less than 16 miles per gallon - a repudiation of the President's proposal to tax gas-guzzling automobiles.

These major modifications came after the President's plan sailed through the House nearly intact two months ago.

Area's Pheasant Population Gets Boost

A-J Outdoor Editor

A door on one of the wooden cages was opened and a flurry of wings could be seen as the first ring-necked pheasant quickly discovered freedom in the surrounding countryside.

Another pheasant followed the first and as other cages were opened, bird after bird took to the air until a total of 200 had been released. The occasion was part of a program to make the area near Goree and Munday ring-necked pheasant country.

J.D. Peer, an information and education officer with Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, explained, "For pheasant moving down from the north, the Canadian River is a natural barrier the birds don't cross. But a lot of Texas is ideal country for pheasant so we have these stocking programs." The Lubbock based officer noted that hunters now harvest over 15,000 pheasant a year in Texas.

PHEASANT ARE BENEFICIAL even before they become a very tasty dish for the dinner table. An excellent controller of insects, the birds devour crop damaging grasshoppers and other bugs by the hundreds of thousands every year. Although the ring-necks enjoy a side dish of grain, the exotic birds don't bother a farmer's grain till its been harvested; pheasants pick up grain that has fallen to the ground.

The exotic birds were originally brought to California from China in the 1880s. History of the birds in the wild during the almost 100 years of their being in the U.S. has been both a success and a failure. Finding suitable habitat is largely a matter of trial and error.

"EVEN THE TYPE OF SOIL in the release area is a contributing factor," noted Peer. "For instance, a natural lime in the soil will make the shell soft enough for the chick to get out of the egg real easy." He continued, "There's also the problem of insecticides and pesticides. Some chemicals will make the mature birds sterile, or the chicks can't crack the shell and consequently die inside the egg. Available moisture in proper amounts is another factor that is necessary for a healthy chick and a proper egg shell."

The TP&WD officer noted that the release sites near Goree and Munday meet the natural requirements for good pheasant production. The countryside includes grain like maize and green wheat, plus quite a bit of water and cover from a tree belt line that was planted during the De-

Pheasant Cultivation Depends Upon Habitat

The wild American ringnecked pheasant is a mixture of several strains. Its coloration varies slightly according to the major habitat.

The average weight of an adult rooster in Texas is 21/4 to 21/2 pounds. The hen weighs approximately one half pound less.

Generally several eggs are laid in many different spots before attempts are made at nesting. It takes 23 to 24 days to hatch the eggs; a nest will usually have 12 to 15 eggs. The peak of the hatch is during June.

When disturbed, most pheasant will run through brush; if the cover is sparse, the pheasant will fly to deeper cover-

The season for hunting wild pheasant in the Panhandle is December 10 - 25; Permian Basin, December 10 -18; Coastal, January 21 -29.

Ring-necked pheasant in the wild usually only live for a year; this is called annual turnover. Pheasant numbers increase through successful nesting.

The key to greater numbers of ring-necked pheasant in Texas is a matter of furnishing more and better habitat.

Members of the Munday Chamber of Commerce smiled with satisfaction as the last pheasant flew to cover. But the day's work represented much more than a release of 200 birds in one area and 200 in another

THE SPECIFIC PROJECT started when the chamber in Munday contacted Vic Lowry, a warden in Knox County. Lowry took a look at the proposed habitat and in turn got in touch with Richard DeArment, the extension wildlife biologist stationed in Wheeler.'

"DeArment is the one who takes a look at the area," explained Peer, "talks to the land owners and works up the agreement that the land owners are willing to protect the ring-necks till the birds are numerous enough to be hunted.'

Subsequently all of the data is carefully studied by TP&WD in Austin. If the proposed project is approved, then the department's Management and Research Station at Tyler is contacted for a certain number of pheasant from its hatchery.

Peer said, "We get our brood stock for the hatchery by going out to an area like that around Hereford with nets." He continued, "Consequently our brood stock is wild and the chicks from the brood are wild. They're definitely wild; you can tell by the way they take off when they're released.'

tors. It's one of the few times human hands ever touch the birds. Even the feeding and watering of the wild ring-necks in the extra large pens occurs with very little human contact.

occurs with very little human contact.

The recent release at Goree and Munday is one phase of a three year program. Referred to as a "saturation stocking" the same area will be stocked again next year and again two years from now.

Many times a single release of ring-necked pheasant won't be successful because of bad weather or predators. Three separate releases over a same number of years increases the chance for success.

"But the stocking alone isn't going to do it," warned the TP&WD officer. "The pheasant have to reproduce and spread out, the land owners, have to leave plenty of cover for the birds, the nests must be left alone, and hunters have to refrain from shooting everything that flies."

A JUDGE NEAR THE RELEASE area stated, "Anyone caught and brought before me for shooting one of these pheasants is going to get

Peer concurred, "It's got to be a combined effort on everyone's part for several years, maybe five or ten, before the birds reach a number that can be hunted. Everyone has to help or the program is a failure." He concluded, "So far, pheasant stocking in Texas has been a success." Thanks to participating land owners, cooperative sportsmen, and Texas Parks and Wildlife Department projects — Texas is becoming excellent country for ring-necked pheasant.

Jury Gets 'TV Murder'

MIAMI (AP) — The prosecution ended its rebuttal Thursday in the murder trial of Ronny Zamora, making a final attack on defense claims that the boy was unconsciously programed by television violence to kill an elderly neighbor.

Both sides ended their case after three procesuation, psechiatricis, described, 72-prosecution psychiatrists described Zamora, 15, as a "sociopath" who knew the difference between right and wrong when he shot 83-year-old Elinor Haggart in the living room of her Miami Beach

Defense attorney Ellis Rubin has said his client's addiction to violent television shows caused him to become temporarily insane and commit the killing.

Final arguments were set for later Thursday afternoon:

Circuit Court Judge Paul Baker said he would give final instructions Friday to the jury of nine men and three women. The trial was televised as part of a statewide camera-in-the-courtroom experiment. Still photographs also were per-

During the last two days of testimony, a parade of psychologists came to the witness stand to debate the question of the teen-ager's emotional state on the after-noon of June 4, when Mrs. Haggart caught him and Darrell Agrella allegedly Agrella, who also faces a first-degree murder charge, is to be tried later.

Rubin, whose initial attempts to put television violence on trial were stymied by Baker's rulings, had subpoenaed tele-vision star Telly Savalas to testify in the

But Rubin released the star of "Kojak" - Zamora's favorite program - from the subpoena after Baker insisted that evidence involving television be limited to its effect on the boy.

Dr. Michael Gilbert, a Miami psychiatrist, told the court Wednesday that the defendant had been conditioned to shoot Mrs. Haggart by the thousands of killings he saw during the six to eight hours of television that he watched every day.

"Television gives a distorted sense of violence because when one sees that many killings, the death of a human being is no more than swatting a fly,"

Gilbert said. "What was it that pulled the trigger?"

"The idea, as presented on television, that you have to 'kill the squealer,'" said

However, a prosecution witness, Dr. Harold Mutter, disagreed.

"That doesn't make sense," he said Thursday. "If the programs he saw showed people being rewarded for killing, it's conceivable. But that's not what happens on television. "As I understand it, one of his idols was Telly Savalas, who plays a police officer whose job is to right wrongs. The jury had been given another picture of the boy by his mother, Yolanda, one of 26 witnesses.

Mrs. Zamora said her son once fingered a toy gun while watching TV and exclaimed: "Mommy, this is the the way they hold the gun - look at how well I'm Former Lubbock mayor Jim Granberry, now board president of the Lubbock Visitors and Conventions Bureau, preceded Hance's comments with remin ences of Lubbock in stressful times during his administration. Granberry commended post-tornado Lubbock residents for their motivation to rebuild the city and create the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, a monument dedicated to those who died in the 1970 storm. Comparing storm victims' dedication to the "feeling, compassion, understanding and willingness to serve" evidenced by volunteers in state health facilities, Granberry thanked the conference participants for "helping people meet their needs.

In welcoming the conference to Lubbock, mayor Roy Bass also offered praise for volunteer workers, without whom, he said, the state would be unable to "cover needs and services.

A spokesman at the conference said visitors to the conference include volunteer workers in state facilities for the emotionally disturbed, mentally retarded and tuberculosis patients.

The conference was scheduled to continue through noon Saturday.

LONG STRUGGLE WASHINGTON (AP) - The four-year battle of the citizens of a small Icelandic fishing village to save their homes and livelihood from the ravages of a large volcanic explosion seems to have paid off. According to a National Geographic Magazine report, the 5,000 people of Vestmannaey-jar on the island of Heimaey couldn't wait to return to their village after being driven away in 1973 by fire, lava and heavy ash that threatened to close forever the mouth of their harbor ing off from Palm Springs. Killed in the crash, were Natalie Sinatra, 82; her friend, Anne Carbone of Cliffside Park, N.J., and the pilots, Donald Weier and Jeroid Foley, both from Las Vegas. Mrs.

Sinatra was flying to Las Vegas for the opening of her son's show.

The board vote was 3 to 1, with member Francis H. McAdams dissenting.

McAdams questioned whether the board should place the main blame on the crew, and said he believes evidence shows the controller, Leonard E. Sutton, should share

"It was a very sloppy operation on the part of both the crew and the controller," McAdams said.

McAdams said.

Federal Aviation Administration witnesses said that had the controller detected the plane's heading toward the mountains, "we might have avoided this accident."

An investigation showed that Sutton had originally cleared the Lear Jet to climb to 17,000 feet and fly a route towards Twenty Nine Palms, Calif., and then to Las Vegas. That would require a right turn shortly after takeoff, a routine which the pilots were familiar with because they had flown often from Palm Springs.

Shortly before takeoff, the controller instructed the pilots to maintain 9,000 feet altitude until further instructions because of an incoming aircraft. A report by the board staff said the pilots apparently misinterpreted this and a subsequent message from the controller to mean that they should maintain a straight-ahead course and not make the prescribed right turn.

The report said that at no time did the controller give any course deviation instruc-tions and he assumed the plane was on the correct route. When the pilots radioed they were on a heading taking them toward the mountains, it did not register with the con-troller because he was more concerned with altitude separation of the incoming and Sutton was preparing to give the Lear Jet clearance to climb to 17,000 feet when it smacked into the mountain.

The board said that one explanation for the crew's misinterpretation of their clearance could have been that they believed they were on radar control. But the Palm Springs airport did not have radar espablity at that time.

Thus, Sutton's "knowledge of the Lear Jet's position could only have been based on the route for which he cleared the aircraft — and the pilot's progress reports.

The board said the sailets were the result for like a site.

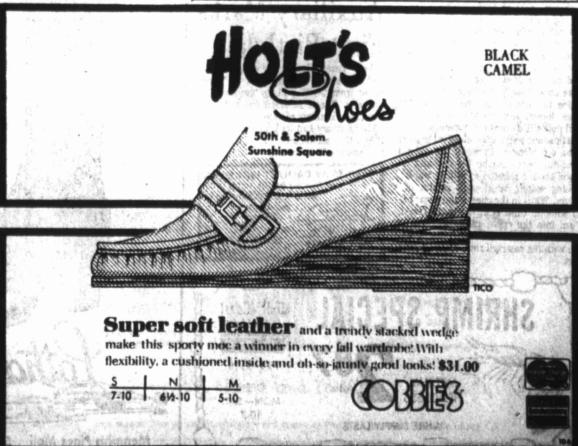

The board said the pilots were thoroughly familiar with the terrain near Palm Springs and should have realized they were heading for the highest mountain in the

The report noted, however, that several aircraft accident investigations have indicated that, since the advent of radar control and its capability to vector traffic, there has been "a derogation of pilot knowledge of terrain over which they fly."

As a result of the accident, the board recommended that the FAA require a controll-ading to require the crew to read back the clearance -if the pilot does not do so on his own.

Dear Ann Landers: What does it mean when a guy smiles and winks at you? Last week I was sitting on the curb watching a parade and a member of the Michigan band (great-looking guy) looked straight at me, gave me a big smile and winked. He was not more than a foot away from me at the time.

Dear Beat: Generally speaking a wink means "I dig you" - or "I like what I see." But not always. Nelson Rockefeller had a bit of a nervous tic and he winked and smiled a lot. Many women were very much flattered by this and I'm sure a few misunderstood.

So - don't assume anything, dear, unless the dude follows up the smile and the wink with some meaningful conversation - it just might be a tic.

Dear Ann: This is a suicide note - and if your reaction to suicide is the same as most people's you have probably already stopped reading. In case you haven't, I would like to tell you what is bugging me.

I am a 25-year-old male who desperately wants to be married. My problem is that I have never had a date in my life. I have tried every possible tactic but ap-parently women find me dull and unattractive. I have received polite refusals, nasty turn-downs, been laughed at, insulted and ridiculed.

I've watched my friends get married, others are out having fun - and I must accept the fact that something must be radically wrong with me and I will have to continue a life alone.

I know you will suggest counseling but I don't see how it can help. The problem is that I am ugly, awkward, out-of-step, self-conscious and uncomfortable with myself and everyone is uncomfortable with me. I would rather die than live my whole life alone forever. When dentist Stephen J. Moss talks, he seems full of wizardry He tells of simple things mothers can do with their infants and toddlers - cavities little kids develop by the time they're three The steps also will eliminate the need steps that, if taken, will cut down the two for braces in more than half the youngsters by the time they are in the tooth-

Now that's really magic on the dental front, especially when you know Moss, a professor at New York University, isn't selling anything. He's just giving free advice and he is convinced that, if that advice is followed, today's babies will grow up to have better dental haalth and their parents will be spared those astronomical bills for Moss is head of the university's Department of Dentistry for Children.

The way to eliminate the cavities two per toddler in baby teeth by the age of three - is to wipe the teeth, from the first tooth onward, until the child by age five or six can brush his own teeth.

'After feedings, take a piece of gauze between the fingers and wipe the teeth,' Moss said. "If mothers and fathers did this, we could prevent these two cavities by the age of three."

Get fluoride on the teeth, too. Fluoride toothpastes are highly effective, Moss

On braces, what Moss has to say is easy to check on. Just ask the children with braces if they were bottle or breast fed. Nine times out of ten you'll probably be told - bottle-fed.

And that's the trouble, according to Moss. For a couple of generations, as women abandoned breast feeding in favor of the more convenient bottle, millions of infants were sucking on their bottles the wrong way. They we're using less than natural tongue, lip and cheek muscle movements - and it affected the way the jaws developed and the teeth lined up.

Infants don't have teeth. But, they have tooth buds. Nature lined these up a certain way. The un-natural sucking and tongue thrusting in bottle feeding interferes with the natural alignment.

So the baby teeth, which are the guidance system for the second teeth, get off nature's track.

As a result, the second teeth often come in protruding, wrongly spaced, crooked and everywhichway. What's a mother to do? Breast feed against her desire or go through it anyway - for the sake of her child's teeth? It's a pretty big decision when you consider the trauma to the psyche as well as the pocketbook when adolescents get in-

What the mothers who bottle feed their infants should do is something simple. They should, according to Moss, hold the bottle in a way that the nipple will be presented to the infant in the same alignment as a natural nipple in breast feed-

Moss said this will put the bottle in a natural position and that should prevent the deformitles in tooth placement later

"I'm just suggesting a new way to feed the baby with the bottle," he said. "We use this method in all our nurseries at the university medical center now.

"The thing I want mothers to get away from is sticking the bottle in the baby's mouth while the baby is on his back. This is really bad for neural musculature forming in the lip, tongue and cheek areas. n

"The tonguing is abnormal in such a position. We really think, incidentally, that more than 50 per cent of brace pcob-lems will be prevented if all the nation's infants on bottles were fed this new

This takes time, of course. The mother must hold the infant or young child during bottle feeding. And that in itself might not be bad. The cuddling and warmth exchanged with the infant builds up his reserve of emotional stability from what is known in the field of human emotional development. "Never, never use a nursing bottle as a pacifier," Moss cautioned. This not only fouls the natural line-up of the tooth buds but it also bathes the teeth for long periods with sugars.

"Most mothers put milk or juice or sugar water in the bottles and the baby or toddler sucks on the bottle off and on." On sugar, Moss said it's not how much but how long. He said the form of sugar that is least harmful is the kind that doesn't stick to the teeth - say the natural sugar from a peach or an apple. 'The best time to eat sugar is during meals," he said. "As far as I'm concerned children can have all the sugar they want with meals but not between

Then, of course, brush ufter every

Moss, in a new book, "Your Child's Teeth" (Houghton Mifflin Comvany), tells parents how to make and keep children's teeth perfect.

We all know parents don't "make"

By make, Moss is referring to diet when the child is in utero - the mother's diet. And then the child's nutrition after birth and on through life. Plus, of course, good dental habits Brushing is where preschoolers fall down. Or their parents fall down - if you ibscribe to the Moss theory that the par ents must look after a child's teeth until the child can brush responsibly.

Most studies show this is not possible until the boy or girl is five or six.

"They just play with the brush before then," Moss said. "And that's not bad at least they're getting used to the brush. But the play is not cleaning the teeth."

Moss recommends getting the toothbrush out of the bathroom. "Get it out of the bathroom and into the playroom or living room," he said. "Let the child play with the dry brush. Chewing on it.

"That might help him learn how to use it properly.

Moss said when he was working under a grant from the National Institute for Dental Research he went to Nigeria to try to find out why people there didn't have many cavities.

He found there's a lot of chewing on bark and it's a safe pacifier for the youngsters. And it's also a kind of tooth brush. How often should you take your child to a dentist? Checks at three, five, seven and nine are recommended by Moss.

He also had words for parents whose hearts land around the ankles when little Horatio comes home with part of his front tooth knocked out during a rugged game of pintsized football.

New materials make it possible to paint on layer after layer of a kind of cement until you've got the volume of the original tooth. And then it is molded and shaped and in four minutes it is dry. 7

"This is called enamel bonding. "This technique also is used to broaden teeth that are widely spaced, extending them to fill the space.

For those parents of older children, Moss had a few words on wisdom teeth. He doesn't believe in removing same unless they are causing trouble.

For all parents wanting to tip the scales toward no decay, Moss recommended: - Supervise toothbrushing, be a brush-ing buddy, two times a day. At the right times: after breakfast and before going to bed. - Fluoride in water supply, topical fluoride applied at the dentist's, and the use of fluoride dentifrice and mouth-

- Cut down the "number" of sugar challenges a tooth faces in a day. One or-gy of sweets, so long as it's followed by brushing, is going to do the teeth no

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Gland malfunc-tion and chemical imbalance are thought to cause many physical illnesses. Could they also cause unexplained emotional depression? I am long past menopause.

Now I find I am deeply depressed. I break into tears at the slightest frustration. This may last from 12 to 48 hours. Annual physicals show I'm in general good health. I do not smoke, drink, or use drugs. I am not on any medication. I'm into outside activities — golf, bowling, volunteer work, the church, etc. Reminding myself that I have everything I could want — family harmony, no financial worries, good health — does nothing to relieve the doldrums. I guess I'm seeking a physical cause for an unexplainable problem. — Mrs. J.B.

On the other hand, depression is featured by negativism, disinterest, and tendency to be a loner. These characteristics do not appear in your letter. Hence,

Dutch Pottery Factories Make Different Wares

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL.
Collectors searching for Dutch ceram-are now gaining in popularity.

Carl-Van Vallier, son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Vallier of Tulia, recently exhibited four of his oil paintings at First National Bank in Tulia. He started taking art lessons the last of May from Sam Brown of Tulia, who is a music instructor at Wayland Baptist College in Plainview.

"Every time he came home from school, he would sit down and draw and paint pictures so we decided to give him lessons," said Jackie Vallier, his mother, a native of Vietnam. "He is crazy about painting."

The younster takes lessons once a week, and his teacher says Carl-Van's work definitely shows talent.

But Carl-Van does not intent to make art his profession. "When I come home from my doctor's office, I will mold and paint to relax," he said seriously, his dark brown eyes intent. Carl-Van has told his parents, "I want to be a doctor so I can take care of you."

The little artist's present "molding" consists of making figures from modeling clay. "I made one of the dog one time," he said. The family has poodles and Mrs. Vallier is a dog groomer.

Kenya has been involved in a concentrated effort to preserve the wildlife in its vast tracts of lands set aside as national parks, game reserves and sanctuaries. In promoting this campaign, Kenya has is-sued a new set of four stamps and a sou-venir sheet featuring various endangered wildlife species.

The lowest value shows the pancake tortoise: Kenya and Tanzania are the only two places where they are found in their natural habitat. Another stamp ilstrates the Nile crocodile: populations of this species have been drastically re-duced. A third stamp depicts the hunter's hartbeest, now considered rare in Kenya.

Texans Examine Electronic Banking

AUSTIN (UPI) — Branch banking prohibitions in the Texas Constitution prevent customers from using modern elec-tronic systems which would allow them to bank as close as their grocery stores, according to proponents of the systems.

A proposed constitutional amendment to be considered by voters Nov. 8 would give the legislature the power to authorize state and national banks to use electronic terminals to conduct bank busiProponents, such as former Rep. James Kaster of El Paso, who sponsored the measure in the House, argue the Electronic Funds Transfer Systems simply are a convenience - nothing else.

However, opponents, such as Rep. John Wilson, D-LaGrange, argue the EFT systems permit large or "flagship" banks to further dominate the banking industry, and eventually lead to branch

"Currently credit unions and savings and loans can use them and it's ridiculous and loans can use them and it's ridiculous to not allow banks to use them," Kaster said. "Any bank that wants to use them could — you couldn't exclude any bank and you would get some kind of receipt for a withdrawal for a deposit."

Consumers generally do not want the systems, which has been proven in states which recently tried them, Wilson said.

executive director of the TCLU, "We'll put out some press statements in opposition to it, but we're not going to spend any money to campaign against it." Ogg disputes the argument the proposal violates the constitution, noting judges already can deny bail in capital cases and said the new proposal would merely provide a second exception to the bail guaranty. He says the provision is necessary to combat crime, particularly in urban areas. "The statistics are pretty alarming in urban areas such as Houston, where as much as 30 to 40 per cent of the robberies and home burglaries are committed by people already out on one or more bonds," Ogg said.

"The amendment would give discretion to a judge to deny bail to repeat and professional offenders. In essense, I don't think the founders of the constitution intended the right to bail to go to people who were charged with committing two or more crimes at the same time."

Knder the provision, if a judge denies bail the defendant is entitled to a full hearing on it and is entitled to an immediate appeal directly to the Court of criminal Appeals and the appeal is given priority consideration.

Ogg predicted the amendment, which was part of an anticrime package pushed through the 1977 legislature by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, will be overwhelmingly

'It will get a higher percentage of votes than any amendment on the ballot if the people understand it," Ogg said. "I would guess it will get 80 per cent or more of the votes."

The amendment also would permit a judge to deny bail to a persons accused of felony involving use of a deadly weapon if the person had been previously convict-in good condition and "doing very well" following the Wednesday operation by three doctors from the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School.

The physicians said Hammer's blood sugar levels remained in the normal range without injections of insulin for the first time in 12 years by Wednesday after-

Dr. William Fry, chairman of the department of surgery at Southwestern, said the next three months will be critical for Hammer because of the dangers of infection and rejection of the transplant.

Hammer received the transplant from an unidentified stroke victim who died shortly before the operation occurred. In the operation, the physicians used a technique first followed in Sweden to connect part of a pancreas to a portion of Hammer's upper bowel.

Hammer of Hubbard, Texas, has had juvenile onset diabetes since 1965, according to the doctors. Juvenile onset diabetes is considered the most severe form of the disease.

He lost his sight prior to undergoing an operation in August 1975 when he received a kidney transplant.
Dr. Richard Dickerman, an assistant professor of surgery at Southwestern and the physician who refined the technique used in Hammer's pancreas surgery, said one reason Hammer was chosen as a candidate for the operation this week was because the patient had tolerated the first organ well.

Earlier transplants involving the entire pancreas, which secretes insulin and glucagon, have not been very successful, the doctors said.

'The pancreas is difficult to work with," Dickerman said. "It leaks and the juice digests surrounding tissue.

Fry said the Hammer operation was part of a major effort at Southwestern in the area of pancreas transplant research.

Court To Retry Paralyzed Ex-Cowboy's Lawsuit

AUSTIN - The lawsuit of a 22-year-old former cowboy who was paralyzed when his horse fell as he was roping cattle in 1971, must be retried by the district court in Deaf Smith County — a court which twice before has refused to find the man's employer liable for the accident, the Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednes-

The court also returned opinions involving three appeals from Lubbock-area district courts.

The summer of 1971 for M M Cattle Co. During a round-up on July 21, Farley was riding "Crowbar" — a horse whose original name, "Cinammon," had been changed because he was "stupid and cantankerous," according to court records.

A cow broke away from the main herd, and Farley and another boy rode after him. They were "laning" the cow, riding at high speed, one on either side, in order to turn the animal back towards the herd, court records indicate.

The horses collided; Farley's horse stumbled and fell on top of the boy, causing severe head injuries.

The boy's guardian went to court seeking medical costs from M M Cattle Co. A jury awarded the boy $305,000 to cover medical costs, but it did not make an award for future loss of income.

But the trial judge, Richard Countiss, Jr., set aside the jury award, asserting that Farley knowingly "assumed the risk" of riding Crowbar, and that the company, therefore, was not negligent.

On appeal, the Supreme Court ruled that "assumption of risk" is not a proper defense in a negligence suit, and returned the case to the trial court for a new trial.

At the second trial, Farley's guardian sued under liability laws. The judge again ruled that Farley should receive nothing. agreeing with company claims that Crowbar had "dangerous propensities abnormal to its class." He also said Farley assumed the risk" of riding.

But the Court of Civil Appeals held in the second appeal that Farley could not exercise "free choice" in riding the horse, because he had been ordered to do so by his father, who was the ranch fore-

The appeals court also said that failure to award future loss of income payments as well as hospital costs would be "manifestly wrong and unjust."

The Supreme Court let stand the appeals court ruling and returned the case to Judge Countiss' court for a third trial. In action involving Lubbock County appeals, the Supreme Court returned to the Lubbock County district court a case arising from a car-truck collision. While trying to avoid a collision with another truck, defendant Terry McAfee swerved his truck and collided with an on-coming car, driven by Pedro Davila.

The trial court originally absolved McAfee of liability in the collision, but the Cort of Civil Appeals ruled that instructions on "imminent peril" given the jury by the judge are no longer valid.

Senate Okays Minimum Wage Hike Program

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate voted 76 to 14 Thursday to increase the federal minimum wage in four steps to $3.40 an hour in 1981.

The present minimum of $2.30 an hour, in effect since Jan. 1, 1976, would go to $2.65 an hour on Jan. 1, 1978, to $2.90 an hour in 1979, and to $3.15 an hour in 1980. The House in September voted to increase the minimum to $2.65 in 1978, to $2.85 in 1979 and to $3.05 in 1980. The Senate defeated that proposal on a

Commission Views Ampitheater Project

HOBBS-Two San Jon women have won the endorsement, in name only, of the Hobbs City Commission for the development of an amphitheater in the Caprock area between San Jon and Grady.

Betty Philley said that the plan is to construct an outdoor amphitheater in the area which is about 40 miles north of Clovis.

Mrs. Ida Fellers estimated construction costs would be about one-half million

The two women displayed a model to the commission, saying that it would be similar to the amphitheater in Palo Duro Canyon in West Texas.

There are about 55 amphitheaters in the United States, but none in New Mexico." Mrs. Philley said.

Mrs. Fellers added that the proposed amphitheater would be located in an area of Eastern New Mexico and West Texas where a million or more reside and "we should have no trouble drawing an audience." The drama department at Eastern New Mexico University has endorsed the outdoor theater and will lend their talent in support of it, Mrs. Philley said.

Carter Asks Public T

Carter asked Congress on Thursday to au-thorize $1.04 billion for public television and radio over five years, insulate them from "inappropriate political influence" and give them greater journalistic inde-

"This administration will not try to stifle controversy on public television and radio," Carter promised. "No president should try to dictate what issues public broadcasting should cover or how it should cover them."

Carter's message and funding request mark a sharp departure from prescrip-tions by former President Richard M. Nixon, his most recent precedessor to deal in any detail with public broadcasting and its journalistic issues.

Nixon advocated restraints on news and public affairs programming by any broadcast system receiving government

'These changes will...increase public broadcasting's insulation from inappropriate political influence." Carter said. Other amendments will give it greater journalistic independence. I want to encourage public broadcasters at all levels to engage in active news reporting and public affairs programming.

Carter proposed amending the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967 to allow public broadcasters to editorialize.

"Public broadcasters should have an equal opportunity with commercial broadcasters to participate in the free marketplace of ideas," the President

The funding in Carter's legislation would be for the five years beginning in fiscal 1981. The measure provides $180 million for that year and $200 million for each of the four succeeding years.

The measure also includes a separate grant program of $30 million a year for technical facilities in fiscal 1979 and 1980 and $1 million for some telecommunications demonstrations in fiscal 1979.

Noting his campaign pledge to strengthen public television and radio, Carter also called for:

individual programs.

"It would make broad allocations among radio, TV and other distribution systems and among chidren's, public af-fairs, minority and other program types..." Carter said. "The grantees would select the specific programs to be "In addition," Carter declared, "I call on the public broadcasting system to devote another 25 per cent of the federal money to national programming." Such contributions would be voluntary and could be made by pooling funds.

These voluntary contributions would

AUSTIN (AP) - Switching meters is saving some residents on their electric bills - but meter supervisor Max Kretschman says somebody will pay.

"People are stealing electric meters and some are being plugged into residences," said Kretschman. "Then, when meter reading time comes around, they take the stolen meter off and put their own meter on. That way they haven't accumulated any kilowatt hours."

He said thieves are stealing one or two meters a day. "You just break the seal and take the lid off," he said.

Her 18 opponents in the competition are all young enough to be her grandaughters, but the contest has no talent or beauty competition. And Mrs. Pearce figures that gives her an edge.

"I tell you if they did it on beauty, I wouldn't have a chance," she said " Wednesday. "When they mentioned to me it was popularity, I thought I had a chance. I feel highly honored."

Mrs. Pearce said she decided to enter on the urging of the students.

"I think they are all my friends," the mother of four, grandmother of 12 and great-grandmother of three said. "There are nearly 800 here and they all speak to me. I can't remember all their names, but I know them when I see them."

Martin's Chances Fading

I'm going to play on the circuit for as long as I'm eager and keep improving," says pro-tennis aspirant Dean Martin "If I'm still having to qualify when I'm 28 or 29-well, reevaluate. But I believe I can be No. 1. I'm going to

At 25, Martin's chances of succeeding on the international circuit are fading fast. In 1975, he was strictly a fringe player on the pro tour. Last year, earned a ranking of No. 250 on the Association of Tennis Professionals' computer. And this year, he qualified for the Beckenham Invitational, one of the warmups for Wimbledon

"Martin has a good attitude and he's a real fighter," says coach Paul Cohen in Tennis Magazine. "The players seem to have respect for his tennis ability. But, at 25, you should be in the top 100 if you're going to do anything."
Martin, however, refuses to be discouraged. "If you really believe you can do it," he says, 'you have a chance." And in the meantime, he adds, "I'm lucky to be healthy and out in the fresh air, running around.'

Beach Boys Feuding

"This could be the last Beach Boys concert, tonight," Beach Boy Dennis Wilson suddenly announced the last day of their whirlwind East Coast tour, September 22.

"I see the Beach Boys coming to a close, and there's a lot of backstabbing and maliciousness going on.'

After 16 years together and the triumphant comeback of leader Brian Wilson, the Beach Boys have just signed a multi-million dollar contract with Caribou Records and are on the verge of a break.

"Mike Love never wanted me in the band," says Dennis Wilson in Rolling Stone." "For that matter, apparently Brian didn't either, or at least not at first. My mother took my part and told Brian I had to be in the group. I never my part and told Brian I had to be in the group. I never even knew about this myself until about two years ago."

Is this merely a family quarrel or will the Beach Boys bring an era of aim and surf to a close?

Mike Love is optimistic.
"We're not breaking up," he says. "You witnessed an argument. There's nothing really cataclysmic about it; it was just the end of the tour, Dennis had a lot on his mind. It was ist that the reconciliation may only be temporary. "This was an indication of what's been going on with us in general.

Billy Carter: Beer Booster

"Who knows? Maybe I'll become the Colonel Sanders of beer," boasted Billy Carter, brother of President Carter. "I'm a business man, and I was itching to find something else to get into. For me, the beer thing was a natural, cause I know a good beer better than anybody."

Billy was announcing his new relationship with Falls City Brewing Co., which will soon introduce Billy beer, 'brewed especially for and with the personal approval" of

On about November 1, Falls City will launch Billy beer in Georgia and Kentucky, and then plot national expansion moves. It is lining up five or six other regional brewers to handle Billy in other parts of the United States, Advertising Age reported recently.

By no means are we entering into this relationship with Billy Carter merely to capitalare on a fad or exploit a currently popular personality," insists James F. Tate, president of Falls City. He described the affiliation with Carter as "a long-term business relationship to develop and market" the new beer. "Billy Carter is first and foremost a business man with the background and experience that can be greatly helpful in making this new product a national success," he added.

Fall City's brewmaster created several brews which were tasted by Carter, who made the final selection. The formula will remain the property of

Computer Fouls Up Schedules

DETROIT (AP) - It was a high school student's dream: a schedule that included three study halls every day.

The trouble was, 16-year-old Robyn Mahaney didn't ask for the study halls - or a cosmetology class. And her schedule didn't include the classes she did ask for.

Senior Robert Grabos, 17, wasn't much happier "They gave me American history," Grabos said Wednesday. "I'd already had American history. They gave me basic math. I'd already had basic math. They didn't give me algebra, which I'd asked for, and they didn't give me English. They gave me mechanical drawing, which I'd had before.

Blame it on the computer, said Alfred N. Freeman, principal of Cody High school

Freeman said the school's computer will get a flunking grade for mixing up schedules of more than half of Cody's 3,-900 students.

"It wasn't humorous to us at all," he said, noting that it took nearly three weeks to straighten out the schedules.

Giant Batteries Under Constr

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Thursday for an $8.6 million project designed to determine whether giant batteries can store enough power to help utilities meet peak demand.

"This project serves the goal of the National Energy Program by helping replace oil-and gas-produced electricity at peak times with coal-produced electricity at other times," said J. C. Smith, of the U.S. Department of Energy.

If stored electricity accounted for 5 per cent of all the energy used in the U.S., federal officials estimate that 240 million barrels of oil could be saved in 1980 and 600 million barrels by 1995. The project, the first of its kind in the world, is located within miles of the Menlo Park laboratories where Thomas Edi-

So, power companies and the federal government are seeking ways to store electricity during non-peak hours for use during peak times.

The most common form of utility storage currently in use is "pumped hydropower," in which electrical pumps raise water during off-peak hours to an elevat-ed reservoir behind a dam.

Retailers Report Brisk Sales

NEW YORK (AP) - Sales for the nation's major retail chain stores moved into the autumn season at a brisk pace, providing more evidence that the consumer and his dollar are more easily parted this year than last. September sales figures released Thursday represented the highest monthly increases so far this year for a number of major chains and strong gains of 10 per cent or more for many in the most-recent five-week reporting period.

"Back-to-school sales were outstanding during September with shoes and wearing apparel in all catagories registering notable increases," said Edward F. Gibbons, president of F.W. Woolworth Co., one of the nation's larger retail chains. It reported a 9.5 per cent sales increase in September compared to a year earlier. Sears, Roebuck Co, the nation's largest non-food retail chain, reported a sharp 19.1

per cent increase in September gross sales, to $1.836 billion from $1.542 billion a year earlier. Sales for the 35-week period so far his year are running 15.8 per cent ahead of levels in 1976, the company said. Sales at K mart Corp., the nation's second-largest retail chain, were "on target" with an 18 per cent increase, officials said. Sales rose to $942 million from $798 million in the same 1976 period. But K mart Chairman Robert E. Dewar said he did not expect September's exceptionally active pace to continue. He predicted the sales increase for October would be 'moderately below' the increases reported for August and September. At Montgomery Ward Co., Chairman Edward S. Donnell said he believed sales in the fall and Christmas season would exceed earlier expectations. The company reported a 13.8 per cent sales increase in the latest period. In addition to improved apparel sales, the retailers reported increases in some durable-goods sectors, including auto parts, appliances and furniture. The sales trend in furniture and household items had been widely anticipated because a boom in housing construction earlier this year is creating increased demand for furnishings. A separate survey of 5,000 households, released Thursday, raised some doubts about how long the brisk retail sales pace may continue. The Conference Board, a business research group which indexes consumer attitudes and buying plans, said its September survey indicated a three percentage point drop in overall consumer confidence in the economy from levels in August. It found a sharp 20 point decline in buying plans for such purchases as homes, autos and major appliances in the six months ahead.

"It is still too early to determine whether the latest readings are simply a one-month aberration or a signal that more ominous times are ahead," said Fabian Linden, an economist at the Conference Board.

The message from the consumer is that while present busines conditions are reasonably stable, prospects for the immediate future have grown uncertain. This diagnosis parallels recent assessments by many professional economists," she said.

Sales in the most-recent five-week reporting periods announced by major retail chains Thursday also included:

J.C. Penney Co., $860 million, up 12.6 per cent from year-earlier sales of $764 million.; F.W. Woolworth, $519.7 million up 9.5 per cent from $474.49 million; Montgomery Ward, $420.16 million, a 13.8 per cent rise from year-earlier sales of $369.17 million; Zayre Corp., $122.5 million, up 10.7 per cent from $110.7 millio

May Department Stores Co., $210.2 million, up 7.7 per cent from $195.3 million; Dayton Hudson Corp., $184.2 million, up 15.2 per cent from $159.9 million; Carter Hawley Hale Stores Inc., $132.8 million, up 8.6 per cent from $122.3 million.

Aircraft Engineers Refuse Kansas Jobs

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The pay is good, the air is clean and the crime rate is low, but this aircraft manufacturing center is having trouble attracting engineers to design planes. Jobs are available for more than 250 engineers at Boeing, Cessna, Beech and Gates Learjet plants. Those firms now employ 2,200 persons. The companies have made numerous recruiting visits to college campuses across the country and advertised heavily in national publications. But their success has

Paul Miller, employment supervisor for Beech Aircraft Corp., said he could put 25 engineers to work immediately if he could find them.

Personnel officials of the four companies thought their problems might have been solved earlier this year when Rockwell International was stricken by President Carter's decision to halt the B-1 program.

But they found that a lot of people just don't want to relocate.
"We've been to each of their (Rockwell's) locations and so far we've not been too fortunate," said Mel Vobach, personnel director for Boeing-Wichita. "Many of the people just don't want to leave the California area. I think people on the West Coast and East Coast still think there are Indians here.'

Jim Gregory of Gates Learjet said his firm's recruiters try to show "them we're in a community that has a lot of cultural advantages—a nice place to live with a low crime rate and a lot of friendly people."

Cessna was able to hire some engineers from Rockwell, officials said, but not

Engineers sought by aircraft companies - generally electrical, mechanical and aeronautical engineers — are in short supply nationwide, says Dr. Melvin Snyder, chairman of Wichita State University's aeronautical engineering department.

"It's pretty much a nationwide shortage and it's going to continue," he said, adding the problem is more acute in areas like Wichita where firms requiring engineers are concentrated.

Miller noted that engineers haven't always been in such demand.

"Five or six years ago, a lot of engineers were out frying hamburgers and pumping gas," he said, because they couldn't find jobs.

Dr. Glen Zumwalt, a Wichita State professor, says many young people shun the engineering field because of memories of heavy aviation layoffs in 1971, but be

Panel's Inaction Boosts Auto Air Bag's Chances

WASHINGTON (AP) — The possibility of air bags or other "passive restraint" devices becoming standard equipment in cars became more likely Thursday because of inaction by a House committee.

Congress has until Oct. 14 to overrule

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams's proposal to require the devices in some 1982 models and all models by 1984. The House Commerce Committee had been scheduled to vote on a resolution to overrule Adams but the committee did not obtain a quorum and could not act.

The committee is not scheduled to meet again until Oct. 12. Even if it did vote out a resolution then, it would have to go to the House Rules Committee to get clearance for floor action.

One congressional source said, "it's virtually impossible" for the resolution to come to a House vote before the dead-line.

Meanwhile, the Senate Commerce Committee voted 9 to 7 to recommend that Adams's position be upheld by the full Senate. The full Senate may act on the resolution as soon as Monday.

If both houses do not vote to overrule Adams before the deadline, his proposal will become law. The Adams proposal is to require a "passive" restraint that works without the motorists having to activate it.

The proposal would require either air bags or automatic safety belts that hold a torist in place without making him motorist in buckle up.

Adams says the safety devices would save 9,000 lives per year. Traffic accidents currently claim about 44,000 lives on American roads each year.

Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., who agrees with the Adams position, said, "Passive restraints are three times as effective in preventing loss of life as the current sys-

Ford said this is because fewer than 20 per cent of American motorists bother to buckle their seat belts.

Ford, chairman of a Senate subcommittee that held hearings on the air bag issue, said, "The Department of Transportation has done more testing on passive restraints than any other automobile safety standard."

The auto industry disputes this position and has called for delaying any passive restraint requirement until more tests are conducted.

ORU Dean Denies 'Fat' Policy Discriminatory

TULSA, Okia. (AP) — The academic dean at Oral Roberts University denies that a strict policy against fat students is discriminatory.

The university requires that students meet weight requirements when they are admitted and while they are at the school, which is named for an evangelist.

De. Carl H. Hamilton said Thursday, "We are very serious about our life style. We are a "whole person" university. We are just as serious about our physical growth as our intellectual and spiritual growth."

He said the policy affects the "individual who is voluntarily overweight simply from eating too much too often."

However, Shirley Barry, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union in Okiahoma City, has said: "We think it's discriminating against individuals with minor health problems, disabilities and imperfections."

The Oklahoma Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities earlier asked the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to see if the university's admissions policies discriminate against the handicapped.

Hamilton added that students who fail to attend twice weekly chape! sessions, like those who are overweight, are subject to suspension. Also, he said, the uni-

Zuhdi Terzy, talking to reporters at the United Nations where he is an "observ-er," said all Palestinians are members of Outlining U.S. policy, he said it was important not to lose sight of the fact that U.N. Security Council resolutions 242 and 338 are "the agreed basis for a Geneva conference." Those resolutions implicitly recogn Israel's right to exist, but don't specifically require that all territory lost by the Arabs in the 1967 six-day war be returned.

Mahmoud Riad, secretary-general of the Arab League, said peace can never be obtained until the lands occupied by Israel are returned to the last "fraction."

Also, he said peace depends on "full restoration" of the national rights of Palestinians, who he said live in exile from their homeland. "With the situation of no peace, no war, dragging on in the Middle East the region is only being prepared during this armed truce to face an explosion whose threat will not be limited only to this area," he said. Vance began his consultations on the Geneva formula on Wednesay with For-eign Minister Abdel Hallin Khaddam of Syria. According to Israel Radio, Syria is opposed to the tentative procedures because they fail to mention the Palestine Liberation Organization. The formula is known to include Palestinians in a unified Arab delegation. The Israeli cabinet will meet next week to consider a decision.

Union Leader Asks Members To Lobby

DETROIT (AP) - A United Steelworkers official pleaded Thursday with his members, some facing imminent layoff, to lobby with Washington politicians in a campaign aimed at stemming the rising tide of imported steel.

The plea from Earl Stamper, president of USW Local 1299, came as 235 steel-workers in the Detroit area were told they will be out of work starting Sunday.

The layoffs, which are expected to hit 600 workers by the end of next week, were announced by the Great Lakes Steel Division of the National Steel Corp. Great Lakes Steel supplies the auto in-

"I informed my membership to write anybody in Washington who can stop these imports," said Stamper. "Congress should stop the damn imports and let us make our own steel.'

Next week, the White House will sponsor a conference with the industry on what to do about the lower-priced im-

The affected workers are at Great Lakes' Ecorse and River Rouge plants. Many work at the furnaces that turn ore into iron and iron into steel. One of Great Lakes' four blast furnances will be shut

"The heavy influx of foreign steel into Detroit ports is a major factor" in the layoffs, said Robert D. McBride, Great Lakes president

The layoffs in the Great Lakes Steel division would bring to 60,000 the number of steelworkers laid off across the nation

Nationwide, imported steel now has 20 per cent of the market. Only last week, Ford Motor Co. President Lee Iacocca, whose firm makes half its own steel, said Ford would have to consider seriously using imports because of the lower cost.

Stamper said the Japanese government subsidizes its steel industry. The Treasury Department said last week five Japanese firms were dumping steel in the U.S.—that is, selling steel in the U.S. at prices below those in Japan.

Stamper said foreign steelmakers can undersell U.S. competitors because domestic steel companies are required under state and federal law to install costly pollution control devices.

"I'm not opposed to pollution controls, but if it comes down to choking to death or starving to death, I'd rather choke."

said Stamper. These are the first substantial layoffs to hit National Steel, which has 36,000 employes, 10,000 of them in Great Lakes, the firm said. A Great Lakes Steel spokesman said by the end of October, 2 million tons of foreign steel would have been landed in the Detroit area through the St. Lawrence Seaway. Last year's imports in the same area were 1.7 million tons.

"This is not a case of inefficiency," the company spokesman said. "We have no open hearth furnaces. They're all basic oxygen or electric, dating from 1961.'

Chrysler Announces Auto Price Hikes

raising prices on its new cars by an average $354, or 5.8 per cent, over comparably equipped 1977 models, the No. 3 U.S. automaker announced Thursday.

The price hikes on the firm's 1978 models are in line with increases announced earlier by its two larger competitors. Ford Motor Co. said Wednesday it was boosting prices an average $387 or 5.8 per cent. Industry giant General Motors Corp. announced an average $405, or 6 per cent, boost last month.

The increases on those models is slim because eight-cylinder engines and automatic transmission, which were standard in 1977, are added-cost options for 1978. The standard engine for the new year is a six-cylinder one and manual transmission also is standard.

Congress effectively had killed the B1, which is opposed by President Carter, earlier by cutting $1.4 billion for it out of the defense appropriation bill.

But House backers of the plane organized an attempt to restore the $1.4 billion by putting it into a catch-all supplemental appropriation bill tentatively scheduled for House action before the end of

He also stressed that "there's been no decision to produce; there's been no decision to deploy" the new missile.

He declined to say how much was earmarked tentatively for full development of the MX, but the figure is reported to be about $250 million - nearly double the amount in this year's budget for preliminary research and development.

The $30 billion price tag for the full system would make it the most expensive of any U.S. weapons program.

The MX would be the first U.S. intercontinental ballistic missile mounted on mobile launchers to make it much more difficult for the Russians to hit in any surprise attack.

Various methods have been studied but the most likely one involves placing the MX on launchers that would be moved in

Appeals Court Decision Allows Concorde Operations At JFK

NEW YORK (UPI) - A federal appeals court ruled Thursday that the Concorde supersonic jetliner, bitterly opposed by residents of New York Ccty and its suburbs as an unbearable noisemaker, may begin operations at Kennedy Airport immediately

The decision is expected to be appealed before the Supreme Court in Washington for a final ruling.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the 2nd Circuit granted a motion for permission for immediate service made by British Airways and Air France, operators of the Concorde. The court rejected a bid by the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey to maintain its 18-month ban against SST operations at Kennedy.

The decision means the Port Authority must now go to the Supreme Court to seek an order maintaining the ban.

The ruling followed by only a few hours the filing of the Port Authority's appeal for a 30-day stay to allow it to appeal to the Supreme Court.

The authority is seeking to reverse an appellate court order issued late last month in which the ban was lifted on the grounds it was "unfair and discriminato-

Flynt said B1 supporters are trying to resurrect the plane because the administration disclosed, after Congress halted B1 production, that it might support a smaller bomber to replace the B52s now flying.

Panel Files Derailment Report

WASHINGTON (AP) - The derailment of an Amtrak train which injured 93 persons near Ralston, Neb., last year 93 persons near Raiston, Neb., ast year was caused by the lateral movement of a rail as the train moved through a curve, the National Transportation Safety Board said Thursday.

The locomotive and 11 cars derailed on the Burlington Northern railroad last Dec. 16. Three of the cars tipped over and slid 40 feet down an embankment.

The probable cause of the accident was "the lateral movement of the high rail and the widening of the track gauge when the deteriorated cross ties were unable to withstand the lateral forces generated by the locomotive while the train was traveling at a speed of 53 miles per hour," the board report said.

Contributing to the accident were "the weakened crosstie spikehole condition and the existing wide gauge that con-formed to the federal safety track standards for class 4 track."

Class 4 track must be inspected by the railroad twice weekly with at least one calendar day interval between inspections. The last inspection of the derailment area was made two days before the accident but did not disclose any visible condition" that failed to comply with the federal standards, the board

The report said investigation showed that spikeholes in the crossties at the point of derailment were being progressively elongated and the wood fibres were being overstressed several months prior to the accident. The board said track crews did not detect this because the lateral movement of the rail occurred only under the dynamic loading of the train

The board said a timber crosstie does not have to be impaired to the extent that it will literally not hold track spikes in order to be defective. A certain degree of spikehole deterioration and looseness can allow a track spike to become ineffective in holding adequate track gauge in a high speed curve, it ad-

As a result of its investigation, the board recommended that the Federal Railroad Administration:

- Develop methods that will allow track inspectors to determine when timber crossties are impaired by moving trains to the extent they do not adequately hold spikes.

- Establish a maximum rate-ofchange standard in track gauge.

- Determine if timber crosstie track spiking requirements are adequate for the tonnage and speed of modern trains.

Coast Guard Gets Blame For Sinking

WASHINGTON (AP) - A charter fishing boat sank on the Columbia River Bar in Oregon last year because the Coast Guard conducted a slow, ineffective search for the disabled craft, the National Transportation Safety Board said

Only two of the 10 persons on board the Pearl-C were rescued when the 41-foot boat capsized and sank while being towed by a Coast Guard motor lifeboat on Sept. 13, 1976.

The board also found that the Coast Guard contributed to the loss of life by failing to order the boat's passengers to wear life jackets.

Only one body was recovered. The mishap occurred near Astoria, Ore., where the Columbia flows into the Pacific

The delay in locating the Pearl-C permitted darkness and bad weather to descend on the bar, and conditions were hazardous when the fishing boat was towed across it, the board reported. Investigation showed that the Coast Guard did not dispatch help immediately after the craft radioed at midday that it was disabled and drifting and needed assistance. The captain did not indicate an

Threats Bring Transfer

AUSTIN (AP) - A policeman whose patrol car struck and killed a pedestrian has been taken off the street because of threats on his life, officers said Thursday.

Senior patrolman Rodrigiguo P. Herrera has been given a desk job at headquarters in what Assistant Police Chief George Phifer said was "in the best interest of the community and the best interest of the officer."

Herrera was answering a disturbance call when his car hit Joe "Peewee" Her-

Police said Herrera's car was traveling 44 miles per hour, nine m.p.h. over the speed limit, when his car hit Herrera at 2:48 a.m. Saturday.

The car was not flashing its lights or sounding its siren at the time the car struck Herrera, police said. Phifer said, however, the "death threats" were made before this was disclosed.

Police declined to reveal the source of the threats.

ENTER CONTRACT TALKS - Arnold Miller, left, president of the United Mine Workers Union, and Joseph Brenan, chief industry negotiator and president of the Biturninous Coal Operators' Association, enter contract talks in Washington Thursday. Negotiator Raps Wild

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Mine Workers union faces extinction if wildcat strikes can't be stopped, the coal industry's chief labor negotiator said Thursday as talks began on a new labor

President Joseph P. Brennan of the Bi-tuminous Coal Operators Association said the new agreement must restore la-bor stability to the coalfields if the union and industry are to share in coal's riches.

Otherwise, he said, "we will see the decline and possible extinction of the United Mine Workers of America as a force in the national collective bargain-

The industry came to the bargaining ta-ble armed with charts, figures and a lengthy statement by Brennan to support its negotiating position."

UMW President Arnold R. Miller made no public statement, submitting only a three-page list of the union's general bargaining goals, which were first spelled at the union's 1976 convention.

Included were demands for $100 a day pay, an additional 12 days off, improved fringe benefits, longer vacations and cov-erage of health and retirement benefits for Navajo miners in the southwest who are treated by Indian medicine men.

But the major issues in the negotiations will be the problem of wildcat strikes, which Brennan said has cost the industry nearly 60 million tons of lost coal production since the current contract was signed three years ago. Brennan implied the industry would be willing to meet the union's economic demands if this issue can of the House Interior Committee Thursday denounced the way the Washington congressional delegation blocked one of the pipeline plans for distributing Alaska oil in the lower 48 states.

Rep. Morris Udall told two Washington House members at an Interior hearing that the delegation's conduct was irregular and discourteous, adding: "two can play that game."

Udall suggested he may push legisla-tion of his own to undo the work of the Washingtonians. His committee is considering a bill which would expedite federal procedures for approving a pipeline

Four plans tentatively have been drawn and the Washington delegation, in a swift team effort, succeeded in eliminating one of them, the trans-mountain plan of Atlantic Richfield and several other oil

The project was blocked when Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., attached an amendment prohibiting increased oil tanker traffic in Puget Sound, where the trans-mountain pipeline would originate, to a minor bill extending the marine mammal protection program. This amendment effectively blocked oil deliveries to the potential pipeline.

The House passed the bill and sent it to the White House Wednesday virtually without debate and by voice vote. Few members were on the floor for the vote. Udall told Rep. Don Bonker, D-Wash. "I really don't think we should have to

The three other plans being considered are: a Kitamat, British Columbia, terminal and pipeline leading to distribution in northern states; a terminal at Port Angeles, Wash., with a pipeline across the northern states; and another project pushed by Standard Oil of Ohio which LoVaca Gathering Co., a subsidiary of Coastal States Gas Corp., closed the valves shutting off the gas after it won a U.S. Supreme Court decision allowing the action in its efforts to collect $785,207 in overdue bills.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration is planning an overall examination of the nation's complex antitrust laws, emphasizing toughened enforcement and improved efficiency in the fight against monopolies.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Attorney General Griffin B. Bell, in a White House ceremony Thursday to swear into office the new head of the Justice Department's antitrust division, indicated the question of antitrust enforcement, and its affect on consumers, was on the administration's agenda.

The fact that the swearing-in of Assistant Atty. Gen. John H. Shenefield was held in the White House was itself a sign of the increased focus on antitrust enforcement. Such ceremonies are usually held at the Justice Department, where they attract less attention.

Shenefield, praised by Mondale and Bell as one of the top scholars and trial lawyers in the antitrust field, was given the oath of office in the White House Roosevelt Room by Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell. The vice president called the choice of Shenefield "a central feature in this administration's vigorous enforcement of antitrust laws," an enforcement which he said would be of particular benefit to consumers

Bell said the administration would begin "a re-examination and a study of the antitrust laws...to see what we can do to better handle the procedures."

A Justice Department spokesman, Mark Sheehan, said later that the department was thinking of setting up a special commission early next year to conduct a six-month study and make concrete, spe-

The vice president also said that the administration didn't want the Justice Department to back away from more complex, longterm cases for the smaller cases that may be easier to prosecute. He suggested that vigorous antitrust en-

Egypt Celebrates War Anniversary

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) - Egypt celebrated the 4th anniversary of the 1973 Middle East war Thursday with a parade of its military might that featured for the first time U.S. military planes.

President Anwar Sadat, wearing his khaki-and-black supreme commander's uniform adorned with a green sash and waving his Marshal's ebony baton to thousands of cheering spectators, arrived in a Sovietmade armored car to review the parade. Among Sadat's guests on the reviewing stand was PLO leader Yasser Arafat.

The parade featured six Hercules C130 military transport planes purchased from the United States last year and displayed publicly for the first time.

American-made Jeeps carrying Sovietbuilt SAM-7 missiles drove slowly through the streets of Nasr (victory) City on the eastern fringes of Cairo to celebrate the anniversary of the Egyptian strike across the Suez Canal to regain a slice of the Sinai captured by Israel in

The parade also featured Chinese weapons - heavy 130mm field guns for the first time along with British and French combat and transport helicopters in an apparent effort to show Egypt was relying less on the Soviet Union for its Soviet bloc. The military commentator describing the parade said Egypt had deveiloped and modified many of the Soviet-made items for greater capability and to compensate for the absence of spare parts withheld by Moscow.

A highlight of the parade was an array of eight truckmounted Soviet Scud B ground-to-ground missiles. With a range of about 155 miles, the Scud can hit targets inside Israel if fired from the banks of the Suez Canal. The Scuds were first shown at last year's parade and, as before, their tips were covered up.

More than two dozen British-made Caommando and Sea King helicopters and Anglo-French Gazelle choppers led off an air show which included free falls by paratroops from a height of 5,000 feet, drops of Sadat portraits and military

The air display also included a variety of Soviet MiGs ranging up to MiG 23's as well as Sukhoi and TU bombers.

In a speech before the parade, Defense Minister and Commander-in-Chief Gen. Mohammed Gamassy accused Israel of "obstructing" current peace initiatives.

"We are in a critical stage in the history of the Arab-Israeli conflict," Gamassy said. "We are watching the current active political moves to achieve a just and durable peace. Our military strength cs backing these moves and it will be the alternative to impose peace on those who reject

Schlesinger Attends Economics Seminar

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) -U.S. Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Thursday "the very survival" of Western political and economic systems "will depend on our success in being able to grapple with the energy problem

Schlesinger addressed an economics seminar here after arriving from Paris. In France, he and representatives of 18 other non-Communist industrial nations agreed to restrict their 1985 OPEC oil imports to 26 million barrels daily — about 20 per cent less than forecast. OPEC is the Arab-dominated Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Delegates at the two-day meeting of the International Energy Agency in Paris also agreed to regularly review its belttightening progress and set out principles to support voluntary import ceilings.
In his Frankfurt speech, Schlesinger said Western industrial countries had to develop a common energy program in the face of a possible energy challenge from the Soviets.

He said energy was "a far more subtle challenge" than the military threat from the Soviet Union that prompted formation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization after World War II.

Schlesinger referred to a recent Central Intelligence Agency study which predicted a decline in Soviet oil production in the 1980s. He said this meant the Soviets may start buying oil on the international market and that could raise "major problems with regard to long-term Soviet pol-

Labor Party Hits House Of Lords

Lords, abolished and then revived more than 300 years ago, probably will still hold out for a long time despite the latest Labor party vote that it be dissolved.

The party's annual convention, representing Labor rank and file, voted by a 70-1 margin Wednesday in favor of eliminating the 782-year-old upper house of Oliver Cromwell eliminated the House of Lords back in 1649 because it "was found by long experience to be useless and dangerous to the people of England." Labor party arguments for abolition sounded much the same in 1977.

Brought back with the restoration of the monarchy in 1660, the House of Lords has declined over the past century as a power in British politics but still retains a potential for delay in the legislative proc-

The anti-Lords vote is not binding on Prime Minister James Callaghan's government and the task of steering such a bill through Parliament, tampering as it does with a part of England's heritage, would daunt even the strongest government. The Labor government, six seats short of a majority and dependent on Liberals, independents and small party votes to stay in power, hardly has that kind of strength.

Since about 1910, abolition of the House of Lords has been a theme running through Labor Party policy, although Wednesday was the first time the party as a whole has voted for it. The high margin of the vote indicated the fervor the issue can awaken.

"Vindictive, a luxury, unelected, unrepresentative and undemocratic," was the LONDON (AP) - Britain's House of women, is a curb on the elected House of Commons. To its opponents it represents the power of the class system.

Not all of the 1,140 members of the House of Lords are hereditary peers descended from the medieval barons who challenged the throne in past centuries. Since 1958, a growing number - now about 400 - are lifetime peers. They are politicians and public figures rewarded for their service with a title that cannot be passed on at death.

The first successful reform of the House of Lords — other than Cromwell's temporary abolition - was by Queen Anne who in 1711 created new peers to reverse the majority of the house and swing its vote. She changed a liberal house to a conservative one, and it has remained predominately that way ever

The tactic of creating new lords has been used ever since to bend the will of the house. In 1832 the mere threat of a creation of new peers was enough to force the lords to stop their veto of the Reform Bill.

And in 1911 it was used to reform the House of Lords itself. Its power of veto was taken away and replaced with the power to delay a bill for two years at most. In 1949, this delay was shortened to one year and the right to interfere in finance bills of any sort was removed alto-

Trimming the power of the lords usually has come about through a conflict between the House of Commons and the House of Lords. In 1911, it was a tax bill that the peers rejected.

Wednesday's vote is a continuation of a battle that started last year when the way union leader Jack Jones described House of Lords delayed the enactment of the upper house at the party meeting in Brighton.

Members of the YMCA Board of Directors will aid in tours of the new facilities at 1601 24th St. from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m.

"Everything we've added was included in the plans first drawn for the building back in 1970," said R.T. Schreiner, executive director of the YMCA. "However, when the bids came in higher than we had anticipated, we cut back our immediate plans. We have now completed the space which had been cut back," Schreiner added.

The additional space includes increasing the gymnasium to a full-sized gym, the addition of one more handball court. the construction of a new weight-lifting room and a new all-purpose room. Commission Orders New Paint Labels

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Consumer Product Safety Commission has moved to make it easier for people to find out whether a paint is combustible.

The agency has ordered that the information be placed on the label on the front of the container. Until now, the word "combustible" usually appeared on the label on the side or rear panel of the

The change won't come immediately. The agency gave the industry two years in which to make the switch.

The funds, which were estimated at $192,000, for the additions, were a result of a campaign conducted last year under the leadership of Jack Kastman, general chairman; Carroll McDonald, advanced gifts; Owen Hamilton, major gifts; Evan Roberts, special gifts; and Derrell Jones, community gifts chairman.

"We have been especially short of handball courts and this (addition) will add 50 per cent to our court space," Schreiner said.

The new weight room will allow us to utilize some free weights as well as make possible the use of all the stations on our weight machine. The gym addition will allow us to carry on two, and sometimes three, activities at one time-thus doubling and tripling the use," he continued.
Our new all-purpose room will make possible some group activities with our Tri-Hi-Y clubs and other programs that we couldn't handle at the building before. Also, we'll be able to carry out some programs in the all-purpose room that we have put in the gym in the past. This will free the gym for even more programs there," Schreiner said.

Americans Overseas Feel Weight Of Tax Burdens working overseas are being squeezed out of jobs because of U.S. tax changes that took effect Jan. 1, Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York said Thursday.

The Tax Reform Act of 1976 lowered the amount of income American expatriates can exclude from U.S. taxes, reduced the credit that can be taken for foreign taxes and pushed most expatriates into higher tax brackets, the bank said.

The income exclusion was reduced to for three-year expatriates.

"Although the added tax burdens vary depending on the tax-rate structure in each foreign country, the increased taxes are expected to range from $5,000 to $8,bank said in the October issue of The Morgan Guaranty Survey.

"Taxes go up, but the employe's real income has not changed. Not surprisingly, many expatriates have decided to quit

At the root of the problem is the inflationary spiral that has sent living costs soaring in some foreign countries.

"All told, an employe earning $25,000 in the U.S. may well have to spend as much as $75,000 a year abroad to maintain an equivalent standard of living,' the bank said.

The new tax rules "will be encouraging ompanies to return workers to this country at a time when unemployment is a stubborn problem," the bank said.

One major U.S. construction and engineering firm has reported that it is now 15 per cent more expensive to send someone to a country such as Saudi Arabia, the bank said. As a consequence, the firm, which was not identified in the hank publication, has cut its overseas ce of 3,000 by 10 per cent in the past

NEW YORK (AP) - Many Americans operations abroad" and earnings of U.S. companies are likely to suffer. "And so, ultimately, would U.S. tax revenues from those earnings."

To avoid what it termed "the inequities for employes and for their companies," Morgan Guaranty suggested that the effective date of the new exclusion be delayed until 1979 to give Congress time to "arrive at a fair long-term solution."

Such a solution, the bank suggests, would be to exclude for U.S. tax purposes $15.000 from $20,000, and from $25,000 all allowance amounts—for cost of living, foreign taxes and the like-on an item-

Solons Okay Population Panel

By Roll Call Report

WASHINGTON-Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes September 22-28. HOUSE

POPULATION COMMITTEE Adopted, 258 for and 147 against, a resolution (H Res 70) setting up a Select Committee on Population to further study the world population explosion and propose means of curbing it. The committee is scheduled to go out of business on Jan. 3, 1979. A specific price tag will be considered later. Estimates are that it will cost "no more than $500,000" for staffing, travel and

Rep. B.F. Sisk (D-Calif.), a supporter, said there is a "desperate need" for efforts such as this "if in fact we are going to be able as the human race to survive on this planet.

Rep. John Rousselot (R-Calif.), an opponent, said that two other House committees are concerning themselves with the population problem and that to cre-ate a special committee "to deal with a subject already being studied is a gross abuse of the American taxpayer."

Members voting "yea" favored creating the committee.

Reps. Charles Wilson (D-2), Jim Mattox (D-5), Bob Eckhardt (D-8), Jack Brooks (D-9), Jake Pickle (D-10), James Wright (D-12), Jack Hightower (D-13), Barbara Jordan (D-18), Henry Gonzalez (D-20), Robert Krueger (D-21) and Bob Gammage (D-22) voted "yea."

ASSASSINATIONS PANEL Adopted, 290 for and 112 against, a resolution (H Res 760) enabling the Select Committee on Assassinations to go into court on its own, without the prior approval of the full House that virtually all other committees must obtain. The panel, set up to uncover new facts behind the murders of Martin Luther King and President John F. Kennedy, now can seek immunity for winesses and contempt-of-Congress citations without consulting the full House.

Rep. Louis Stokes (D-Ohio), chairman of the committee and supporter of the resolution, said: "If we are going to be able to conduct the type of investigation that has to be conducted here where there are allegations of conspiracy, this is a tool that is absolutely needed."

Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.), an opponent, said: "I cannot think of any instances where this power (to seek contempt citations) has been granted (one committee) with the possible exception of the Korean investigation. This committee does not warrant this kind of a broad grant of power.'

Members voting "yea" favored broader legal authority for the select committee. Wilson, Mattox, Brooks, Wright, Hightower. White Jordan, Mahon, Krueger, Gammage and Kazen voted "vea."

Hall, Collins, Archer, Pickle, Poage. Young de la Garra Bur and Milford voted "may

EX-PRESIDENTS Failed, 211 for and 203 against to obtain the two-thirds majority needed for passage of a bill (HR 9278) increasing former President Ford's annual staff payroll allowance. A two-thirds majority was required by the short-cut parliamentary procedure under short-cut parliamentary procedure un-which the bill was brought to the floor.

Former presidents receive up to $1 mil-lion for official business conducted in their first six months out of the White House. Then they are entitled to $96,000 annually for life for staff salaries. This bill sought to increase the $96,000 to $150,000 for a 30-month period, after which it would fall back to $96,000. Ford is the only ex-President whose staff payroll would have risen to $150,000. However, the staff payrolls of both Ford and former President Nixon stood to benefit from an automatic cost-of-living increase the bill sought to provide for the staffs of

Rep. Edward Derwinski (R-Ill.), a supporter, said Ford has been on a "very" busy official schedule" and that he "does in fact require the additional staffing these funds would provide."

ENERGY Failed, 46 for and 52 against, to table and thus kill an amendment to remove federal controls from the price of natural gas. The failure of this tabling motion kept alive a proposal to force immediate deregulation of new natural gas found on shore and deregulation after five years of new off-shore gas. The deregulation plan would replace President Carter's call for additional federal controls of natural gas at higher prices than now exist. Carter's plan is a major part of the national energy policy bill (S 2104) that was on the Senate floor during this

Sen. Daniel Moynihan (D-N.Y.), a supporter of tabling, said: "I cannot endorse mmediate deregulation, for the immediate doubling or tripling of prices which would ensue would be unduly disruptive of our already troubled economy and highly inflationary."

Sen. Charles Percy (R-III.), an opponent of tabling, said: "Artificially controlled prices keep down supply. You cannot repeal the law of supply and demand. We do not have that kind of wisdom."

Senators voting "yea" were opposed to immediately removing federal price controls on on-shore natural gas. Sens. Lloyd Bentsen (D) and John Tow-to close a filibuster on the pending na-tional energy policy bill (S 2104, see vote above). This margin far exceeded the three-fifths majority necessary to invoke cloture. However, it did not stop the dilatory tactics of the filibusterers, who turned next to introducing scores of amendments and sent the Senate into round-the-clock sessions for several days.

At issue was the question of whether to leregulate the price of natural gas or, instead, embrace President Carter's proposal to extend controls from the interstate to the intrastate market while raising the controlled price.

Bentsen and Tower voted "yea." Schmitt and Domenici voted "yea."

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

I Pet. 5:12B-14. II Pet. 1:1-9

What I have told you here should help you to stand firmly in His love. 13 The church here in Rome1-she is your sister in the Lord-sends you her greetings; so does my son Mark. 14 Give each other the handshake of Christian love. Peace be to all of you who are in Christ. Peter II PETER

CHAPTER 1

1 From: Simon Peter, a servant and missionary of Jesus Christ, To: All of you who have our kind of faith. The faith I speak of is the kind that Jesus Christ our God and Savior gives to us. How precious it is, and how just and good He is to give this same faith to each of us. 2 Do you want more and more of God's kindness and peace? Then learn to know Him better and 3 For as you know Him better, He will give you, through His great power, everything you need for living a truly good life: He even shares His own glory and His own goodness with us! 4 And by that same mighty power

He has given us all the other rich and wonderful blessings He promised; for instance, the promise to save us from the lust and rottenness all around us, and to give us His own character.

5 But to obtain these gifts, you need more than faith; you must also work hard to be good, and even that is not enough. For then you must learn to know God better and discover what He wants you to

6 Next, learn to put aside your own desires so that you will become patient and godly, gladly letting God have His way with you. 7 This will make possible the next step, which is for you to enjoy other people and to like them, and finally you will grow to love them 8 The more you go on in this way, the more you will grow strong spiritually and become fruitful and useful to our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 But anyone who fails to go after these additions to faith is blind indeed, or at least very shortsighted, and has forgotten that God delivered him from the old life of sin so that now he can live a strong, good life for the Lord.

He gets upset at portrayals of Presley as lonely and a hard-drug user.

"Some people have said things they didn't know what they were talking about. People who say he was lonely didn't have a conception of the last years of his life. He was not 'in prison.' He did what he wanted, and when he wanted, more than you and I. He could afford to. For instance, he rode his motorcycle and ate in restaurants.

"I don't see how he could have used drugs - been a mainliner - without me knowing it. I have stayed with him 12 to 15 hours at a time and he didn't take drugs. And I've seen his arms and legs (and there were no marks).

'Anything he did was on a doctor's prescription. If he abused anything, it was sleeping pills. But he wasn't foolish enough to be a mainliner.

Sumner, who has been singing for 33 years, said Presley's importance can not be underestimated.

"What he did for music, words will never cover. Look how much music picked up because of him and how many ople copied him.

"Five or six classes of kids tour the museum each day," Havens said during a re-cent interview here, "looking at exhibits of diving gear and a history of man's exploration of the ocean."

The North Wind museum also supports a traveling exhibit on whales, "A Right to Live," displaying the history of whales from the days of the Indians to the present. Havens calls it the largest of its kind in the country.

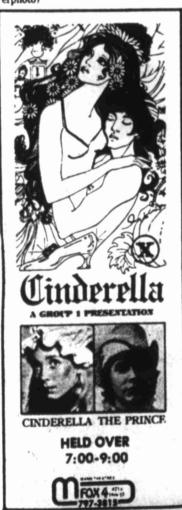

Now 36, married and the father of two

"Our intention is to have an endangered species museum that would show the species and the life cycle on which it depends and what depends on it. And in all of these the cycle would come back to man," Havens said.

Richie Havens' recording career, suspended for a year and a half until the release last year of "The End of the Beginning," is on the upswing.

My husband was in the hospital for nine days recently, and now after making a claim we find that this policy will pay nothing except the Medicare deductible for first 60 days. We tried to read it when he arrived but who can understand that legal mumbo jumbo? Is there anything we can do? - S.T.

A. No, unless you can prove the agent purposely misled you. Most of the com-plaints that reach Heartline about insurance companies stem from one basic problem: The policyholder does not fully understand what the policy covers.

Heartline has written a booklet on health insurance which includes a policy check list designed to outline what the policy will cover. If you have the agent fill this out and sign it, you will then have proof of what he or she told you.

And stop worrying about the kids. How can you feel embarrassed if you have a "six-figure" estate to hand on?

Q. It seems to me that I read in your column that if one wants H bonds it is better to buy Es and then convert them to Hs. Why?

A. Not exactly. An H bond pays -over a 10-year period -an average 6 per cent a year, by semi-annual check. I don't see too much point to walking into a bank with $500 (minimum) or more and buying H bonds for income when you get a higher yield from other Treasury or U.S. agency bonds.

What I have explained is that if you already own E bonds from which you want income (E bonds merely grow in value they do not pay out interest) then you must do one of three things: cash in the E bonds (and pay the tax on past inccured interest if you had not already done so on an annual basis); switch the Es to Hs (continuing to defer payment of that tax on accrued interest); or cash in about 6 per cent of the E bond values every year and use the proceeds as income.

In other words, if you want Hs, get them by turning in Es. If you don't already own Es to be exchanged, there isn't too much point now to acquiring Hs

Q. You always seem to advise AAA or AA grade bonds, but don't mention U.S. Treasuries or U.S. agency bonds. Why? They are good quality, too.

" Good quality" is an understate-Α. ment. They are top quality. The only reason I mention AAA or AA corporates more than Treasury or U.S. agencies is that the corporates yield a bit more. However, as you point out, if state and local income taxes are a consideration. Treasuries have an edge because they are exempt from these levies.

No argument, here.

Q. For years I held some mutual fund shares as custodian for my grandchildren. Recently they've become of age and I had the shares transferred directly to them. The shares, which cost $5 originally, now are valued at $2.50. Can I take the tax loss?

A. No. There was no sale to establish a loss. The shares really belonged to your grandchildren while you served as custodian. And they still belong to them .-

NEW YORK (AP) - Ron Guidry pitched a brilliant three-hitter and designated hitter Cliff Johnson awakened a slumbering New York offense with a home run and double that moved the Yankees to a 6-2 victory over Kansas City Thursday night, tying the American League championship playoff series 1-1. Guidry, the slender left-hander with an exploding fastball who was New York's most dependable starter during the regu-lar season, overpowered the Royals, who had walloped three home runs in winning the opening game of the best-of-five se-

But it took Johnson's booming bat and a vital second chance provided when catcher Darrell Porter was unable to corral the designated hitter's foul pop to get the Yankees going.

Left-hander Andy Hassler was nursing a 1-0 Kansas City lead and had retired 11 straight Yankees' hitters when Johnson came to bat with one out in the fifth. The muscular New York DH popped a twisting foul near the screen and Porter was unable to snare the ball.

That gave Johnson a second chance and he made the most of it, walloping a 1-2 pitch deep into the center field bleachers, well beyond the 417-foot sign-one of the deepest spots in Yankee Stadiu

Hassler retired the next batter, but Willie Randolph singled to left, then trotted to second on a balk. Bucky Dent followed with another hit to left and Randolph raced home, giving the Yankees the lead for the first time.

But the 2-1 edge lasted only as long as it. took Kansas City to bat in the sixth. After Frank White struck out leading off-one of seven strikeouts Guidry had in the game—Fred Patek doubled to the base of the right field wall. Hal McRae then walked and George Brett bounced to third baseman Graig Nettles.

Nettles threw to second for a forceout, but McRae's rolling block upset Ran-dolph at second base and Patek continued home with the tying run.

The Yankees argued bitterly with umpire Marty Springstead, claiming interference, but the play stood, According to Baseball Rule 7.09 (f), a play is ruled interference if "any batter or runner who has been put out, hinders or impedes any following play being made on a runner.

In Springstead's view, the interference had not been committed, and the score was tied.

But the Yankees untied it quickly. With one out in the bottom of the sixth. Thurman Munson singled for one of his three hits in the game. Reggie Jackson popper out, then Kansas City manager White Herzog went to his bullpen, summoning Mark Littell to relieve Hassler. It turned out to be a vital mistake.

Lou Piniella greeted Littell with a ring-ing single to left on the reliever's first positive side. Talbot's Westerners, 0-4-1, try again for that elusive first win tonight in Lowrey Field against Amarillo Caprock at 7:30 p.m. Other city games feature unbeaten Monterey at winless Pampa, Coronado at El Paso Parkland and Plains at Lubbock Christian High.

Talbot remembered an old Spencer Tracy movie, "Bad Day at Black Rock," when he recalled the second half of last Saturday's 21-7 loss at Odessa Ector. His Westerners led 7-0 at halftime.

"They had three long runs that broke it open for them. The defense played well but two major penalties really hurt us," said the second-year coach.

Misfortune mounted as quarterback Ricky Moreno bruised a shoulder late in the third quarter and missed the rest of the game. Lubbock also missed its offense from that point as it rushed for only 14 yards during the final 15 minutes. But the LHS coach indicates Moreno will return tonight.

"I've gained a lot of respect for him since he's had to step in there after Ernest Day hurt his neck. Day will only be able to kick against Caprock, too," Talbot

The Lubbock coach's main concern centers around the containment of Caprock's wing-T offense. The Longhorns (2-3) employ fullback Larry Craven for sev-

WHEN TIME AND space run short. . . In case you're concerned, the NCAA policy-with a couple of exceptions-is five TV appearances for one team over a period of two seasons. This does not include bowl games. Thus, since the NCAA is working on the tag end of the two-year term, the Aggies have their two this year (Michigan and Houston) and will not be eligible for any wild-card games, no matter how well they're playing. The NCAA and the TV folks enter a new contract next season, so this formula will be revised. . . Sayings have no party lines or school ties. Aggie soccer-style kicker Tony Franklin was asked if he ever experimented with the old, straight-ahead kicking style. "No way. Like Darrell Royal said, I'm gonna dance with who brung

THOSE TEXAS FANS want that OU game on TV or for viewing some way or else. So, they're hedging a bit and allowing the game to go on the screen in a limited way (in Austin live, in Norman via closed-cirtuit, and in Temple and Bryan on cable hookups). And, come Monday, UT exes are holding a luncheon-viewing in Midland, $6 per throw on a reservation basis, at the Midland Hilton. Call Mrs. Geraldine Simmons, (915) 683-2281, for a chair... UT is jeopardizing a possible TV game on down the line by allowing the limited programming. But, said Al Lundstedt, the UT athletic business manager, We are not on (TV) at all (this season),

It's a different atmosphere. David Knaus went from San Antonio to Tech and thence to Wyoming as a coach. The entire state of Wyoming has only about 65 high schools; there were almost that many in the San Antonio area when he was playing football. "There are only about 250,000 people in the entire state, says Knaus, "so we look to Denver a lot (for prospects). There are La million in

And would you yell, "Eat 'em up, Weevils? . . . The trend is spreading for team members to hold up four fingers starting the fourth quarter, meaning this one belongs to us. The con-ditioning bit, you realize. Well, North Texas State may be going that signaling route to start the second half; in the third quarter, the Eagles have outscored opponents 90-13, although for the year, it has only a 158-74 edge on its foes.

TCU at Rice-If there are enough survivors, these two teams will play as scheduled. Last week, you'll recall, the total score against these two teams reached 114-21. TCU is saddled with the nation's longest losing streak and this looks to be the Frogs' best chance of a stopper. In any event, the evening won't be as long for either as a week ago. Frogs by a little. . .

SMU at Baylor-Remember, there's a share of the Southwest Conference lead riding on this one. SMU flogged TCU in a season opener and has been tied for the league leadership since. Both teams need a bit of uplift, the Ponies after that thumping at the hands of Ohio State, the Bears after that last-minute loss to Houston. The Ponies are showing signs of bursting loose, but the Bears by a hair. . .

Texas vs. Oklahoms at Dallas—By gametime, many of the folks on hand won't care which team wins. But, the ones who can see the field will realize that someone's unbeaten record will fall. There won't be any ties this time; there won't be any prisoners taken, either. The Sooners, with a healthy Thomas Lott, can call on a stronger schedule, even with Utah. Earl Campbell will offset quite a bit of talent, but overall, the Sooners look about a touchdown and a half too strong. As many dollars as the fans'll be drop ping-not to the bookies but to the mer

CROSBY (AP) - Kathy Whitworth was among the favorites in the $50,000 $100,000 this season and is first on the Ladies Professional Golfers Association championship tournament today but she picks another player as the one to beat.

Dunbar JV Wins 32-14

James Nelson threw four touchdown sses, three to Larry Isaac, to lead Dunbar's junior varsity to a 32-14 win over Brownfield at the Dunbar field Thursday.

The pair clicked to give Dunbar a 12-0 lead with a 50-yard scoring play in the first quarter and a 60-yarder in the second period.

Brownfield then ralled with an 8-yard scoring run by Vincent Sims to make the score 12-6. The Cub JV then went ahead in the third period when Sims ran 40 vards for a touchdown and then ran for the two extra points. But Dunbar came back in the third quarter on a 50-yard scoring pass from Nelson to Steve Marsh and on a fourthperiod, 40-yard scoring strike to Isaacs. Dunbar's final TD came in the fourth quarter when Bobby Neals ran 40 yards. Dunbar is now 3-1 Quarterback Jeff Thompson ran for one touchdown and passed for three more to lead the Monterey sophomores to a 27-0 victory over the Tahoka junior varsity at the Monterey Field.

Thompson ran 4 yards for a toudch-down in the first quarter. In the second period, he threw a 43-yard scoring pass to Jack Purkeypile and a 12-yarder to end Greg Carter. Greg Rogers kicked the ex-tra points after the latter two scores to give the winners a 20-0 halftime lead.

In the third quarter, Thompson threw a 34-yard pass to Joe Cockrell, and Rogers booted the PAT to complete the game's

Holtzman Complains Of Being Overlooked frustrated at being overlooked by the New York Yankees in a pitchers famine, said Thursday night he had asked repeatedly to be traded and got nothing but double talk.

"I have been in Gabe Paul's office 10 or 12 times since the start of the season, suggesting that it would be to both the feams' and my benefit for me to be traded," the $150,000 a year left-hander said. "I have gotten no satisfaction at all."

the Matadors would make, as the Lake View defense stiffened in the second half and held the potent Matador offense to a mere 6 yards total. "Our defense just played super." Hale

"If we could have scored then, we could have gotten momentum for the second half and take the game to them,' Kelley said. "But we didn't, and you saw what happened."

What happened was the Chiefs' defense never allowed Estacado any closer than its 32 in the remaining 24 minutes.

Scatback Kenzie Burrell, who rushed for 103 yards in the game, was limited to a mere 11 iln the second period.

The Chiefs used 10 plays and 2:28 to score its second TD of the night. This time Speck hit end Dwain Clemons with an 19 yard scoring toss for the score. After the Chiefs were unable to move the ball and were forced to punt, Burrell fumbled the kick on the Matador 38 and the bobble was recovered by Mark McDonald.

From there it was only a matter of time before the Speck was able to lead his team into the end zone. On third and 7 from the 19, Speck dropped straight back, spotted Clemons on the 3 and fired a perfect strike. All Clemons had to do was fall into paydirt, which he did. Cornerback Perry Curnett stepped in front of a Henderson pass attempt on the 15 to set up the final Chief score.

The Matador defense, led by Kenneth Taylor, appeared as though it were about to jell and keep the Chiefs out of the end zone. But it just wasn't possible as Lake View used only seven plays before Speck cracked over from the 1 with 6:21 remaining in the game.

"We've had to run some younger backs on the varsity because of our injuries and that has hurt our offense in recent games. Our defense has stopped the run pretty well but Plains may try to pick on our secondary. Lorenzo's passing attack just killed us over there," Harper said.

Harper praised the defensive work of noseguard Terry Parham and middle linebacker Tim Howell in the 26-6 setback record on the mound with the Oakland A's and a .833 slugging percentage.

But most of the time since joining the Yankees, he has been a player all dressed up with nowhere to go. He was not used in the American sons before this one he has pitched only 5 1/3 innings since July 1 and not at all since Sept. 10.

'During the winter, I got a notice from Gabe Paul (Yankees president) that I should not worry about not having been used in the playoffs and that I should get ready in spring training because threy wanted to use me fully during the season," he said. "Obviously, this was not the truth.

"When I saw that there was no intention to use me I went to Paul and suggested-not demanded, you understand, because that is not in my province—that I release the team from its contract if he could work out a deal. I repeated this at other stages during the year but the result was always the same-just double Holtzman said he would like to be traded to a team near his Chicago home, either Chicago or Milwaukee but that he made no demands on this point.

The Yankees, beaten 7-2 by the Kansas City Royals in the first game of the American League playoffs, found themselves faced with a delicate pitching situation. "I could pitch if he asked me to but I am not game tough because of lack of action. I would be wild and it would a chancey thing to do.

"In fact, the only way I could get back into top form would be to restart at spring training."

Holtzman, 31, with two no-hit games to his credit, was asked whether someone in Yankee management has a chip on the shoulder for him.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) - Ricky Rudd, the leader in this season's Grand National Rookie of the Year competition, turned in the fastest speed Thursday in his "Nostalgia Special" Chevrolet during the second day of qualifying for Sunday's National 500 stock car race.

Rudd, a 21-year-old from Chesapeake, Va., averaged 156.011 miles per hour for two laps around the Charlotte Motor Speedway oval. He earned 21st starting position; the first 20 spots were taken Rudd drove a Chevrolet with the No. 22 and painted black and gold. The colors and number were made famous years ago by the late Fireball Roberts and his legendary crew chief Smokey Yunick.

To go along with it, Yunick, who retired from racing, is on hand to act as team supervisor.

"It would have been better to qualify on the first day and get a higher starting position but we made a mistake setting the car up," Rudd explained. "We thought we'd go faster with new tires. Instead they slowed us down. The hot tip was to use tires that were already scrubbed in.

"We were hoping to run a 157."

Rudd said the rookie points' battle still is the most important thing on his mind. He and Sam Sommers, a 36-year-old short track veteran, are in a very tight race for the title, which could be worth something like $50,000 to the winner.

"We got in a rut there for two races. and lost the lead to Sam. The finish at Wilkeshorn (seventh) last week was a big lift for the whole team," said Rudd, who ran his point total to 209 to Sommers'

Trailing Rudd in Thursday's qualifying were Richard Childress, Frank Warren, Ed Negre and Coo Coo Marlin. Janet

Guthrie was seventh fastest on the day. Five more positions in the 40-car field are open, to be filled today. David Pearson has the pole position with a speed of

In other action Thursday, Darrell Waltrip broke the sportsman track record with a speed of 160,409 mph in winning the pole position for Saturday's $130,000 Lake Model Sportsmen 300-mile race.

Waltrip's car was one of four to break the previous record. Others were Donnie Allison Iln a Chevrolet at 160.046, Ray Hendrick in a Chevrolet also at 160.047, and Neil Bonnett in a Pontiac at 159.721.

OU Game Blots Out Erxleben's Studies

AUSTIN (UPI)-University of Texas kicker Russell Erxleben says the excitement of his NCAA record 67-yard field goal last week has worn ofi. The only flutter today comes from the anticipated meeting with third-ranked Olahoma at the Cotton Bowl Suturday in Dallas.

Erxleben has booted five field goals in the Longhorns' three lopsided victories, including the 67-yarder against Rice.

"But I'm more excited about a game like this. In those others I figured I wouldn't play a big part because we'd stomp them. But against OU, I may do something to decide the game."

Erxleben, a junior who was recruited by every other Southwest Conference school as a passing quarterback when he graduated from Seguin High, said the excitement of the Texas-OU contest has just about nullified any benefit from classes this week.

"This week in class, the professor can be up there teaching and I don't even see him. It's impossible to concentrate. Have I been kicking field goals in class? Yeah, and I haven't missed one yet."

Sooner coach Barrt Switzer is well aware of Erxleben's kicking ability. He rates the Texas star as a future No. 1 draft pick by the pros. Texas coach Fred Akers ranks Erxleben as the best kicker in the nation.

He began kicking when he was nine. and made it to the national finals in the annual Punt, Pass and Kick contest that year, finishing second.

Unlike most long-distance kickers, Erxleben kicks in the conventional manner rather than in the soccer style of Texas A &M's Tony Franklin or Uwe von Schamann of Oklahoma.

"I've always been a straight-ahead kicker," he said. "I can't kick it 20 yards

Erxleben may have some adjustn to make against the Sooners. The well worn football he used for punting and kicking was retired after the record field goal against Rice, and is headed for his got a blister. I haven't got a problem," snapped Larry Christenson when prod-ded about the finger condition that plagued him the final month of the regular National League season. Christenson, a 23-year-old right-hander, is slated to pitch for the Philadelphia Phillies today (2:15 p.m. CDT) in the third game of the best-of-five series against the Los Angeles Dodgers for the National League pennant.

In recent weeks, the 6-foot-5 Christenson, who won 15 of his last 16 starts and wound up 19-6 for the East Division champions, has been forced to leave games any time after six innings because of a recurring blister on a finger of his pitching hand

"Don't even talk about it," Christenson told reporters seeking to find out if the condition has improved, and if the Phil-condition has improved, and it the Phil-lies' second best pitcher could expect to go the distance against the Dodgers. The Dodgers will match 27-year-old Burt Hooton, 12-7 for the West Division champs, against Christenson. The 6-foot-1 Hooton, like Christenson, never has pitched in a postseason game, but he insists that he isn't awed at the prospect.

Hooton doesn't appear concerned about going after the Phillies on their home field, where they won 60, lost just 21 during the season.

"The only difference playing in Phila-delphia is that we'll be hitting first and them last. We'll be wearing gray and they'll be wearing their pinstripes," Hoo-

Both pitchers appeared to be trying very hard to play the part of "cool customers," They'd like everyone to think that the responsibility of helping to snap the 1-1 deadlock in the series is no more than that attached to a regular season

The Phillies, of course, contend that their home field with its artificial surface, as against the grass field in Los Angeles, gives them a decided edge. They're supremely confident they'll win two of the three games scheduled here, and go the three games scheduled here, and go into next week's World Series.

Philadelphia won the opener of the two games played in Los Angeles 7-5, but the Dodgers snapped back to win the second 7-1. Phillies manager Danny Ozark, however, and his team accomplished its soal olished its goal ever, said his team accomon the West Coast, a split.

Christenson, who is 0-2 against the Dodgers this season with a 12.00 ERA, only would admit that he has had the blister problem throughout his career. He said that it's no worse now than it's ever been. He attributes his poor ERA

lems, before he reached his stride.

Not the least of these problems was the anxiety in waiting out the June 15 trading deadline. It was no secret that Christenson was part of a package the Phillies offered the New York Mets for Tom Seav-

"When Cincinnati got Seaver, it made me feel better," Christenson said. "I didn't want to leave Philadelphia, this great ball club. If I had been traded to the Mets, it would have been a real bad change in my life."

His job against the Dodgers would appear to be to blunt their home run power. In the first two games, Ron Cey and Dusty Baker hit grand slams, Baker's winning the second game. Then, there are Steve Garvey and Reggie Smith, who with Cey and Baker complete the first foursome ever to hit 30 or more home runs each in one season.

"All they have is Mike Schmidt and Greg Luzinski for power," says Hooton, ignoring the eight other Phillies who hit

Last week in the Oklahoma State meet, Lautenslager led the Raiders with a 19th-place finish. The course at OSU measured 8,000 meters. Johnson finished 20th, McCormick 23rd, Wilson 38th and Yates 49th in the 150-man field. In its only other competition, the Raiders won the Wayland Invitational three weeks

Booton tried to dismiss the so-called pressure of a playoff game.

"I don't think along the lines of postsesson games when I prepare myself mentally," Hooton explained. "I think only of the Philadelphia Phillies, (Larry) Bowa, Schmidt, Luzinski. I can't think postsesson, and have the feeling that I have to pitch better. That's applying pressure on yourself."

The Phillies came home to some goodnews. Garry Maddox, their accretary of defense, probably will be available to play center field in the third game. Maddox missed the games in Los Angeles be cause of a knee injury suffered in the final regular season game. He worked ou hitting, fielding and running, on Wednerday and again Thursday.

West Carolina Coach Downplays Violations

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP) - Violations that prompted National Collegiate Athletic Association to place Western Carolina University's basketball program on one year probation "were not of a serious nature" the school's athletic director

Bob Waters, head football coach and athletic director at the Southern Conference school, said in a prepared statement that the university has cooperated completely with the NCAA, which announced the probation Thursday.

"Certainly we are disappointed that our basketball program has been put on probation for the period of one year," Waters said. "We feel the violations involved, though violations according to the letter of the law, were not of a serious

The NCAA said the probation resulted from violations during the 1975-1976 and 1976-1977 seasons. The Catamounts had an 8-16 record last year.

Basketball coach Fred Conley resigned June 1 after 21/2 years at the school and is now coaching in a Florida high school. He has been replaced by Steve Cottrell, a former assistant at SMU, who Waters said knew of the investigation when taking the job.

Waters said former assistant coach Rick Miller has been "disassociated" from the program for one year because of the probation.

The NCAA said violations included loans of cars by Conley, a former assistant coach and a graduate assistant coach, to players for their personal use; loans of money by Conley and an assistant coach to players; loan of a former assistant coach's car to a prospective player, and improper tryouts of prospective players.

A source close to the university told the Associated Press, however, that many of the charges concerned minor, technical violations

One accusation, the source said, involved a coach giving a player $4 for a haircut. Another concerned use by players of a WATS telephone line in the basketball office, the sources said.

One allegation concerned a player who borrowed a car to drive to Asheville airport to put a game film on an airplane for exchange with another school. The intrepretation was that the player did other things on the Asheville trip which were interpreted as personal use of the car, the sources said. The loans of money amounted to less

WCU Chancellor H.F. Robinson said in a prepared statement, "I deeply regret the actions of those individuals responsible for bringing about this action of the NCAA. Western Carolina University has taken steps to correct the situation, and we have cooperated fully with the NCAA.

A spokesman for the school's athletic department said the NCAA would not allow further comment on the action.

Under the probation, Western Carolina's team will be permitted to participate in the Southern Conference tournament but not any postseason play after that. This year is Western Carolina's second year in NCAA Division I basketball and is its first in the Southern Conference

'VERY PRIMITIVE GAME'

Weber Started As Pinboy

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Weber's introduction to bowling came in 1938 when, as an 8-year-old, he worked as a pinboy at a bowling center in the city of his birth, Indianapolis. 'There were no racks in those days," the slim, impeccably groomed Hoosier recalled. "The pins fit on spikes. My job was to set the pins and then step on the treadle which released the 'Very primitive. The game has come a long way since then." The game-and Dick Weber.

Weber, now 47 years old, father of three sons and a daughter who are following his footsteps, is the Jack Nicklaus of what advertises itself as the fastest growing of America's spectator

In a 22-year career, he has won the most sanctioned tournaments-30-and accumulated the most prize money-$549,488 -of the 9.5 million bowlers registered by the American Bowling Congress. He has rolled 18 official perfect games, defying odds of 380,000-1, and has won niches in both the ABC and Professional Bowlers Association Halls of Fame. At an age when most top athletes have retired, he continues to make his presence felt on the tour, winning the King Louis Open at Kansas City earlier this year, but his primary interest is in promoting innovations for a more pleasurable pastime. Like Weber, bowling has gone sophisticated.

"The early years bowling centers were like pool halls," Weber said. "Often you got to them by going up a dark alley. The places often were dingy and everything about the game—the scoring and pin-setting—were pretty difficult and archaic. "Now, with some 60 million people bowling in league competition and informally, the country is saturated with bright, gleaming centers with the finest equipment possible in this

As a staff consultant for AMF, Weber has had a role in popularizing two of the most significant engineering breakthroughs

—the automatic pinspotter and the magic score. Now it's all done with mirrors, or the flick of button.

The pinspotter, which is the outgrowth of 100 years' scientific research, is a screen which instantaneously flashes the standing pins after a ball is rolled. Most bowlers take it for granted.

A newer electronic gizmo is the magic score. It is a computerized marvel which inventors insist a kid with fifth grade math can operate. Bowlers touch a few buttons on a manual mode and start pitching. The computer does the rest.

"The game has become so fashionable that we are even exorcising some of the old expressions out of the bowling vocabulary," Weber said. "It's not a 'bowling alley' any more, it's a 'lane.' Don't use the word 'gutter ball.' It's not a 'gutter,' it's a

"So it goes. I remember we used to have a conduit pipe and a single light bulb hanging over the pins. The pins were set by a treadle. And scoring was slow, tedious and complex

Sammy Williams Expects More Passes In Future

By CARTER CROMWELL

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff Sammy Williams has been Texas Tech's leading receiver the previous two seasons, but he hasn't had as many passes directed toward him in the first four games of 1977 as one might expect. Still, he expects the situation to change soon.

"I think they're probably throwing to me a little bit less than they did last year," said Williams, who has caught six passes for 112 yards this season. "With Rodney (Allison) hurt, we've got some inexperienced quarterbacks in there, and it's just a matter of us getting our timing

"We've been working on this a lot in practice this week, and I look for an improved performance by our passing game against Arizona this Saturday.

The Tech passing game, effective the past two seasons, has nevertheless begun slowly each year, as it has in 1977. Part of the reason is that the Raiders do a lot of things with their passing attack, and it takes a while for everything to mesh pro-

"I guess it's kind of normal for us to start slowly," Williams said. "We don't seem to have a lot of confidence in ourselves at the start, but we gain confidence as the season goes along.

"At first, and this year is no different, we just seem to have letdowns in various phases of the passing game-blocking, throwing, receiving or something-that messes us up. It's just a matter of us getting it all together.

Williams entered the 1977 campaign with 73 career receptions, 35 short of breaking the Tech record of 107 held by Donny Anderson. He is currently fourth on the list with 79, one short of thirdplace Dave Parks' total of 80. The record. naturally, is on his mind.

"It's in the back of my mind, of course," Williams said. "I'd be very proud and happy to break it, but it's secondary to helping the team win." Williams hasn't added any new techniques this season.

"I'm just trying to improve on the things I do now," he said. "The main thing I'm trying to do is improve my concentration in all areas, particularly in watching the ball all the way into my hands.

The Raiders currently have a 3-1 record, and, with a 1-1 SWC mark, aren't out of the league race, although the loss to A&M was a setback. Tech would have to win the rest of its conference games, and the Aggies would have to lose twice for the Raiders to get the Cotton Bowl

West Returns To Practice

DETROIT (AP) - Detroit Lions safety Charlie West returned to the National Football League team Thursday, one day after failing to report for practice. West, the team's starting strong safety, attended afternoon practice after a morning meeting with Lions Coach Tommy Hudspeth to work out undisclosed personal problems, a team spokesman said. West failed to report for football practice Wednesday afternoon. He did, how-

There was some speculation West was unhappy with his contract, but team officials refused to confirm that. West, 31, was two weeks late for training camp this fall because of a contract dispute.

Football League's New York Jets waived tackle Robert Woods and signed free agent tackle-guard Jeff Bleamer Wednes-

"I still think it's possible," Williams said. "We have a chance to win the rest, and I think the Aggies could lose two.

'This game Saturday (against Arizona) is important for the team's confidence and for our overall record. After tying for the championship last season, our goal this year has been the Cotton Bowl, and we haven't lost sight of that."

NOTES: The Red Raiders drilled for an hour and 15 minutes Thursday. They will travel to Tucson today and have a light, loosening-up drill this afternoon. Sloan said that strong safety Alan Emerson, who suffered what was thought to be a dislocated kneecap in the season opener against Baylor, has a torn cartilage and will miss more action. "He fell in practice Wednesday, and we had an arthogram performed that indicated the torn cartilage." Sloan said. "If we're lucky, we might get him back for the last two games of the year." Emerson had been a starter before his injury.

"Nick Faldo (of England), Tom Watson, Jack Nicklaus, they are all the same to me." the handsome, charismatic, 20vear-old Ballesteros said after beating Watson 5 and 4 in the $225,000 tournament. "I play them to win. I play the course.

Asked his chances to win this international classic that now has been whittled down to four men-Ballesteros, Australian Graham Marsh and Americans Hale Irwin and Ray Floyd-Ballesteros flashed a smile.

"It depends on my putter," he said. 'Right now my putter is good. The music is coming.

There were only sad songs and dreary dirges for Watson, however, on the chill, cloudy, occasionally rainy day at the tight, tree-lined Wentworth Golf Club in suburban London.

"I don't like to play badly and lose, and that's what I did," said Watson, who appeared tired and strained after an extensive schedule that produced six international titles, including the British Open and Masters, and propelled him to the top of the world standings.

I gave him too many opportunities. "I tried, tried my hardest. But I just couldn't make it happen.'

In the other matches, Irwin, now the favorite to win his third title in four years in Europe's richest event, destroyed Hugh Baiocchi of South Africa 8 and 7; Marsh beat "Super Mouse," Manuel Pinero of Spain, 3 and 2 and Floyd won the last two holes for a 1-up win over Lanny Wadkins, the PGA champion.

The quarter-final losers received $10,-500 each. The survivors are going for a $52,500 first prize. Today's semifinals have Irwin going against Marsh and Ballesteros playing Floyd.

I hit so many bad shots he had a free run at it," Watson said. I just have to chalk it up to poor play, a bad day, and try to forget it." The red-haired, freckle-faced American birdied the second hole from 12 feet, but it was all Ballesteros the rest of the way. The Spaniard pulled even with a twoputt, birdie-4 two holes later. Watson got himself in trouble and had to concede both the sixth and seventh holes and, by the time they took a lunch break after 18

Eastern To Host Cross-Country Meet

PORTALES (Special)-Eastern New Mexico University will host the United States Track and Field Federation-EN-MU Cross Country Championship Saturday at the Portales Country Club

Fiftenn teams will compete in three divisions, the college, junior college and high school.

The high school runners will begin at 11:30 a.m. CDT, followed by the junior college division at noon and the college division at 12:45 p.m.

West Texas State University is the favorite in the college division, while New Mexico Junior College heads the junior college division.

Favored in the high school class are Las Vegas Robertson and Roswell High. New Mexico Military Institute, West Las Vegas, Portales and Tucumcari are also expected to vie for the crown.

Top individuals include Joseph Kemei and John Chemaringo of West Texas State and Willy Sang of Lubbock Christian College.

Tom never came back, never really gave himself a chance against the hotputting Spaniard who holed every putt he had of eight feet or less.

Irwin, the fiercely competitive man who has finished first, first and second in the last three world match-play events, opened up birdie-birdie and never gave Baiocchi a chance. He one-putted four of his first seven holes and chipped in for a birdie on the ninth.

The clincher came on the fourth, fifth and sixth holes of the afternoon round. Irwin played them eagle, birdie, birdie, dropping 30 footers on the last two. That put Irwin 6-up "and killed any chance I had at all." Bajocchi said. 'I kept my wayward shots to a minimum," understated Watson, who was nine under par for the 29 holes he played.

LA Group Lobbies For '84 Olympics

MONTE CARLO (AP) - Representatives of the provisional committee bidding to get the 1984 Summer Olympic Games for Los Angeles presented their plans to a number of sports federations Thursday and said the reaction had been more than favorable

Los Angeles is the favorite to be awarded the 1984 Games when the International Olympic committee meets next year. No other city is expected to make a seri-

The Los Angeles delegation used the opportunity of a meeting of the General Association of International Federations to make its presentation. Two top representatives from each federation shuttled in and out of the Los Angeles hotel suite at 15-minute intervals. The meetings will resume today.

Representatives of federations governing soccer, archery, canoeing, boxing, wrestling, rowing, volleyball, softball, cycling, weightlifting and judo heard Thursday's presentation. On today's schedule are shooting, equestrian events, field hockey, fencing. The Los Angeles group already has met with swimming and diving officials. The track and field federation is not a member of the association meeting here.

Tom Hardy, general manager of the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum and Sports Arena and vice president of the Southern California Committee for the Olympic Games, said: "The reaction was much better than even we had anticipated. The surprising thing was that the federations had none of the great demands that we had been led to expect. They indicated approval of everything that we proposed He said the committee was anxious to be told of the specifications and needs of the federations, and to tell the federations about the Los Angeles proposals.

'We were right in tune," Hardy said. "I was amazed that they didn't make any demands that we spend money for facilities that we don't have. They indicated they wanted the best possible competitive fields, arenas, and so on - but they did not ask for seating capacity beyond what we have or training areas beyond

One of the reasons for the lack of extra demands, Hardy explained, may have been that Los Angeles has in place and functioning many facilities that some cities staging the Games in the past had to build. Los Angeles hosted the 1932 Sum-

Tom Calleia, chief administrative assistant to Mayor Thomas Bradley of Los Angeles, met with the federation representatives stressed that they hoped to stage the 1984 Games on at least a breakeven, or profitable, basis.

"One thing came out loud and clear. The thread that goes through everyone's thinking is that they don't want us to endebt ourselves for new facilities," Hardy

He quoted Thomas Keller of Switzerland, president of the International Rowing federation, as saying: "Don't build anything beyond what you need perma-Keller suggested there was no need for permanent boathouses for rowing-that tents could serve the purpose -and that stands need be provided only for officials, timers and photographers.

The Los Angeles presentations, however, caused a flutter in some Olympic cir-

"I am surprised, to say the least," Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, told The Associated Press. "I understand the initiative came from Los Angeles in the first place. They asked to meet the federations for an exchange of views before bidding for the Games

"Such a meeting is premature. Bids for the Olympics of 1984 do not have to be submitted until the end of this month, and the IOC will not make its decision until next May," Killanin said.

The IOC self-elected and self-pernetuating ruling body of the Olympics, jealously guards its authority. It has always resisted any moves by the federations or national Olympic committees to take a bigger hand in organizing the Games.

Tehran still has a bid in." Killanin said. "I understand the Iranians will not go ahead with plans for staging the Olympics. But they put in their application early, and they have never withdrawn it.

'It must not be assumed that Los Angeles will be the host city. Even if Los Angeles is the only applicant, it doesn't mean the Games will automatically go there. We could decide not to award the Games at all, and then ask for fresh bids.

'Cities that wish to stage the Olympics have to answer a prepared questionnaire and must satisfy the IOC. Only the IOC has the authority to award the Games.'

Avalanche-Journal Correspondent A year ago this week Eunice appeared to be going nowhere fast. The Cardinals were 04-1 in their nondistrict endeavors and were scheduled to face No. 1-rated Dexter in the District 4-AA inugural game.

So what happened? Eunice decked Dexter 21-0, proceeded to take the runner-up spot in the district and advance all the way to the Class AA semifinals, that's Eunice coach Tommy Gruber wouldn't mind a replay of the 1976 season. The Cardinals are certainly in a position to pull it off, too.

Going into tonight's conference opener against eighth-ranked Dexter, the Cardinals have yet to scratch in the victory column. They're 0-5, but Gruber says he has seen some encouraging signs in some of those recent setbacks.

"We have improved some in the last few weeks," Gruber said. "Our kids have matured a great deal. All we have to do is play like we're capable, against Dexter and Fort Sumner, and I think we have a chance in district."

The biggest hurdle at the moment may uries which have taken 210-pound tackle Steve Jeter, linebacker Sammy Anguiano and halfback Ricky Ziegler out Grafter isn't the only coach in New Mexico worried about injuries as conference play approaches. Clovis' Dunny Goode probably has his fingers crossed about his quarterback situation.

Goode, whose Wildcats are favored to take it all in District 4-AAAA, saw his two varsity quarterbacks-Mike Ulibarri and Layne Walker-cut down by injuries early in the season. Then, last week in El Paso, Nick Griego, who had been brought up from the junior varsity to fill the signal-calling spot, left the game with a fractured collarbone.

Luckily for Clovis, Ulibarri had sufficiently recovered from his injury to come off the bench and lead the Wildcats to a 28-6 win over Ysleta, Clovis' fourth win in five games. Ulibarri is expected to be operating at 100 per cent when Clovis tangles with Amarillo High this week, but Griego is out indefinitely and Walker has been kept out of uniform the last two weeks with a bruised leg.

Clovis has two more weeks to get ready for its run at the 4-AAAA crown, while the other four district 4-AAAA teams -Carlsbad, Hobbs, Roswell and Roswell Goddard-have only this week's game for tuneup purposes. In those games, Hobbs hosts El Paso Eastwood for homecoming, Carlsbad goes after victory No. 5 of the season against El Paso Riverside, Goddard is at Lovington and Rosewell

In some of the other attractions in stern New Mexico, Artesia is at Pecos, Carrizozo travels to Hagerman, which has played the giant-killer role with back-to-back wins over Fort Sumner and Ruidoso, and Jal tackles another bigger opponent when the Panthers go to Tucumeari

America — and the commuter today may be enjoying counters the automobile driver would never think of.

Federal officials have been trying to devise ways to divorce the automobile from the American vision of independence, extollining the virtues of car-pooling, group transportation in vans, and the like.

But for years thousands of Americans have been traveling to and from work by railroad in cities like Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, Washington and New York.

Those who drive to and from work or live in a city where it's a bus ride, subway trip or well to work may think they have all the advantages over the commuter. trip or walk to work may think they have all the advantages over the comm

Commuting trips run from under an hour to up to 2 hours, plenty of time for drinking a cup of coffee and reading a newspaper or a paperback on the way. On New York commuter trains on the way home, the bar cars are open or the rider can pick up a couple of beers before the trip.

While the driver is pushing his car through rush hour traffic and the city dweller is hanging from the straps of a bus or subway car, the rail commuter is lounging in an airconditioned train. Then it's a short drive to green grass, trees and home. And on fair days the commuter often can walk or ride a bicycle to the station and home. There are discomforts the veteran commuter soon learns to endure, the tales of which often can be used to entertain or bore friends.

They range from the 8-hour breakdown to falling asleep and ending up at the end of the line 50 miles from home. One breakdown ended with this commuter arriving for work about 20 minutes before he was scheduled to head for home.

On arriving in Stamford, Conn., from New York one dark, rainy night, a commuter found his car missing. After a search of the parking area he called police to report it stolen and called his wife to come get him. "But didn't you use the Darien station today?" she asked. She was right — and neither terribly happy nor under-

The police were understanding, though. The desk sergeant, apparently used to commuter crazies, smiled knowingly and reported the car "recovered."

Commuters rapidly become creatures of ritual oriented totally to the train. "He's been commuting for six years. You'd think he would know where the train doors are," commented a woman as a stray commuter was caught standing on the platform between the doors of the car when the train arrived. Standard practice is to group in clumps precisely where the doors of the train will open.

Likewise, many commuters sit in the same section of the same car every day. And a commuter normally ignores fellow riders unless he or she's is a card player they always sit in the facing seats at the front and back of the cars.

 A commuter has a set of basic signals to show he or she is not to be disturbed.

Tourists Prove Mixed Blessing As London Begins Overflowing

at the seams as the tail end of this year's estimated all-time record total of 8.5 million tourists jet into Heathrow and Gatwick airports.

The British capital is filled with the babble of foreign languages and accents, its streets are filled with exotic foreign clothes, its hotels are filled with visitors. its stores are filled with their money and its 8.5 million native Londoners are filling with something approaching xenophobia.

Egon Ronay, author of a famous guide to good eating, summed up the opinion of many Londoners facing a daily crush on streets, trains, buses and the subway re- by local authorities for the down and out, sulting from the huge increase in tourist numbers this year.

"Let's be clear about tourists," he said. "They are vital to our financial wellbeing, and they are a bloody nuisance, polluting our quality of life."

One big reason for the heavy flow of tourists is the cheaper prices in London since the pound sterling fell in value from $2.40 last year to $1.75.

The tourist crush is so big that the hotels are filled, and some foreign visitors have been sleeping in tents on the out-skirts of London, in church halls, in church crypts and even in flophouses run according to the London Tourist Board. Of course Londoners like the 1.9 billion pounds that the Tourist Board expects this year's visitors to have spent here. With the British pound at $1.75 that works out at around $3.3 billion. Last year's 7.6 million foreign visitors spent the equivalent of about $2.2 billion

The tourist numbers may be too much for many Londoners but as Egon Ronay said they know they need the tourist

Unemployed French Take Sabbaticals

PARIS (AP) — Unemployment for a fired Frenchman can mean a sabbatical on 90 per cent pay, and then a year retraining in a new profe at 100 per cent pay.

The system introduced at the height of the 1974 recession has become an entrenched part of the French unemployment scheme. A tentative suggestion by the government recently that it should be dropped because the economy was turning up — a far from unanimous view — was met by such howls of protest that it was rapidly forgotten.

In the United States, jobless benefits vary from state to state and, e under federal programs, can run for a year or more. Special retraining and man-power programs come on top of state benefits and often involve substantial ad-

Francois B. is a "90 per-center" as are one in 10 of the 1 million-plus unemployed in France. New technology in the printing industry made his old job redundant. By law, he got one month's salary for each of the 25 years he had held his old post, and his union won an extra five months' "golden handshake" out of his company.

The unemployment office agreed he was a victim of economic retrenchment and put him on the 90 per cent roll. Francois went fishing.

He explained in an interview how the system worked for him.

"I could have started retraining during the first year, when my 90 per cent would have gone up to 110 per cent of my old pay. But what's the point? I know that at 55 I'm going to have a tough time getting a new job anyway, so I might as well make the most of the system."

Every three months, Francois went over his file with officials to see if he was still eligible. They checked forms he had submitted during his "job hunting."

"The idea is that when you apply for a job and get turned down, the firm stamps the form, 'No job at the moment.' You also show the Employment Agency what letters you have written and replies you have had.

"That's the theory, at least. One of my friends ignored this whole process—and still got his 90 per cent pay every month."

and still got his 90 per cent pay every month."

He was not obliged to take any job offered. "To take me off the roll, I would have to turn down a job at an equal wage to my old job," he said. So in clear conscience he could turn down several offers at $600 a month, not much more than half his old gross pay, with overtime and other benefits, and less than his 90 per cent. Last July his 90 per cent year ran out.

"Then I dropped to 35 per cent, regular unemployment pay, until October, when I started a language course, which put me on the 110 per cent deal. It was vacation time and my unemployment checks were a month behind because of an administrative hassle, so it didn't hurt too much."

By law, he can take a year's retraining spaced out over four years after being fired — always at 100 per cent of his former pay. So if a tempting job comes up Francois can try it, and if it doesn't work out, it's back to school and no great

If he falls to find a job after his retraining, he will be on 35 per cent unement benefit for 16 months, and then down to the basic public assistance than $100 a month, plus small amounts for each dependent.

For the moment, however, Francois is unworried.

Holland Tilts Toward Windmills To Help Preserve Natural Gas

GRONINGEN, The Netherlands (UPI) - Dutch researchers are experimenting with huge, turbine-driving windmills as one of many methods they hope will be able to combat a real and chilling problem for Holland's future: natural gas reserves - some 2,000 billion cubic meters - will likely run out around the turn of the century.

Natural gas was discovered under the Dutch northern provinces around Groningen and under the North Sea in 1959 and first went on the market in 1963.

Today, just 14 years later, Dutch natural gas takes care of about 52 per cent of the country's energy needs - including heating 93 per cent of all Dutch homes and producing about 8 per cent of the country's electricity.

In addition, Holland is under contract to export about 50 per cent of its gas reserves to other Common Market coun-

Revenues from sales at home and abroad contributed more than 8 per cent of the entire Dutch budget in 1975, and, according to a spokesman for Gasunie, the company in charge of purchase and supppy of gas, give Holland a balance of payments surplus. 'Our natural gas is a national treasure," said a spokesman for the Economics Affairs ministry.

MALTA

For 35 centuries, the Mediterrean island of Malta was under successive rule by Phoenicians, Carthaginians, Romans, Arabs, Normans, the Knights of Malta, France and most recently -from 1814 to 1964 -Britain. On Sept. 21, 1964, Malta became independent with the British monarch as head of state. On Dec. 13, 1974, Malta became a republic but remained within the British Commonwealth.

Experts have little hope for the discovery of additional gas reserves in the area and to try to maintain the existing "treasure" for as long as possible, the government has launched a program aimed a cutting gas consumption, conserving existing reserves and importing foreignn-

A massive advertising campaign to spur energy-gas conservation has been underway for the past two years, combined with other measures such as government subsidies for home insulation and changes in supply policy that will favor small consumers and gradually cut back against power stations and nonpriority

Gas exports also are being wound down. Existing contracts will be honored, but no new ones will be concluded and exports are expected to fall off sharply after 1985 and virtually cease by 1994.

These and other measures will help allow people to use gas at home until the year 2000," said the spokesman for Gasunie, owned in part by private oil companies and in part by state agencies. 'Our number one priority is home use."

prices to deter use Holland used 43.7 billion cubic meters of gas domestically in 1976 compared with 1.7 billion cubic meters in 1965. With exports included the figures were 94.9 billion cubic meters compared with 1.8 billion

The Dutch also plan on raising gas

In 1963, gas authorities had estimated that the country would use domestically less than 20 billion cubic meters of gas in "In 1970 we were already using what we had predicted would be the 1975 figure," the Gasunie spokesman said. Natural gas is clean. efficient and cheap - about 30 per cent or more lower than other fuels - and the Dutch started changing over even before the 1973 oil crisis sparked a wider scale switch from

When gas was first discovered, in fact, interest in it was minimal - oil was still a cheap form of fuel - and this apparent lack of market at home was what prompted the government to arrange sales contracts with West Germany, Belgium, Italy and France.

In effect the position is reversed now -Holland has signed contracts with Norway and Algeria to import gas from them to maintain domestic needs and honor its own export contracts. Meanwhile, researchers are experimenting with new ways of producing energy for that day when the gas reserves are finally exhausted.

These include experiments on coal and coal gasefication, solar energy, harnessing of the tides, nuclear power plants (under fire from environmental groups) and windrnells.

The windmills, however traditional, are not at present being taken seriously as a largescale energy producer - and are also under criticism from environmentalists.

"There would be difficulties for windmill use on a large scale," the economic affairs ministry spokesman said. "You would need a very large surface for the new type of windmill connected to turbines, and you would need about 500 windmills to replace one ordinary electric power plant.

'In addition, the new windmills on such a scale would be ugly and noisy. And at best," he said. "They would produce only a few per cents of our energy

COTTON IN CORN COUNTRY - Marvin Payne, manager of the Hereford Farmers Gin Association, recently inspected a field of cotton turning white under abnormally warm fall temperatures. In most years, Deaf Smith County is almost too far north to grow cotton successfully but the crop could yield a average of one bale per acre this year. The hot, dry weather that severely injured the corn crop in mid-July was a boost to the young cotton. (Correspondent's Photo)

Deaf Smith Cotton Lush In Anti Corn Weather

A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD - While corn is king in the northern Panhandle, a number of area farmers are contemplating what may be their best cotton crop ever in the Deaf Smith County area.

Unusually hot, dry conditions that severely crippled the corn crop in mid-July proved to be just what the county's cotton acreage needed.

Now, cotton fields are turning snowy white at a time when farmers normally would be wondering if the bolls would even open in time before the first frost.

Marvin Payne, manager of the Hereford Farmers Gin Association, noted that 1977 has been an unusual year for cotton production in Deaf Smith County. "We're almost too far north to have much luck growing cotton, but this has been a cotton year and I think we'll average a bale to the acre," he comment-

Early frosts have virtually eliminated cotton production in this area of the state in recent years. The first frost of the season usually has caught cotton plants loaded with green bolls.

The tall, leafy plants produced little cotton, and the fiber that was harvested was usually of poor quality. But a strong upturn in the cotton market in 1976 renewed grower interest and several farmers decided to take a chance on the crop this year. They'll be reaping the fruits of a risk that paid off in short order. "Things really look good right now," said Payne. "The cotton is already about 80 per cent open and we're still looking rather than waiting for an unpredictable frost to do the job.

"I don't think an early frost is going to hurt us much at all this year, in the event that one comes," he added.

'Some of the cotton in the area may be ready to strip soon, and we'll be ginning our first bale in Hereford well over a month in advance of what we normally do," Payne pointed out.

The Hereford gin has contracted approximately 2,000 acres of cotton this season and Payne reports that 5,000 to 6,000 acres of cotton is being grown in the gin's service territory, which includes the northern portion of neighborWe may be ginning 5,000 to 6,000

Russians Silent To U.S. Offer Of Increased Grain Allotment

WASHINGTON (AP) - With huge stockpiles of wheat and corn on hand, the United States has informed the Soviet Union it may buy up to 15 million metric tons of grain in the coming year, a senior Agriculture Department official said Thursday.

But Assistant Secretary Dale E. Hathaway said the Soviets did not indicate whether they would buy more than six million tons, the minimum annual purchase specified in a five-year grain agreement between the two countries.

Hathaway commented to reporters following a meeting here with a Soviet delegation headed by B.S. Gordeev, Soviet deputy minister of foreign trade. The semi-annual meeting is required under the grain agreement.

The agreement commits Russia to buy at least six million tons of wheat and corn combined each year. About that much was bought in the first year of the pact, which began with deliveries to Russia on Oct. 1, 1976, and ended this Sept. 30. So far in the second year, Russia has bought about 2.3 million tons. Under the agreement the Soviet Union may increase its purchases to eight million tons annually without further consultation with the United States. If the U.S. grain supply is large enough, the agreement allows the Soviet Union with U.S. approval - to buy more than eight million tons in a year.

Hathaway said the United States, "officially informed the Soviet Union that we would be able to sell more wheat and corn than the eight million tons specified The Russians wanted to know what leaders at the recent 84th annual convention of the Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute here project weak corn and wheat prices might result in overall lower farm equipment sales in the year ahead.

Grain Price Drop Likely To Affect

Kidder, president of White Farm Equipment Co., said "the days of 'is it available?' are gone."

"As a result, we anticipate that industry sales of farm equipment may be lower in the coming year. This means our industry is going to be even more competitive than at any time since the early 1970's and the performance of individual companies more dependent than ever on their ability to market in this competi-

prices will continue into 1978 and "we foresee the moderate continuation of the downward trend in farm equipment sales for most major product lines,'

He said that although there are areas of relative strength such as dairying, livestock and cotton to partially offset the pressure on wheat and grain farming, "we anticipate increased competition in our industry for farm equipment sales in the coming year.

John E. Mitchell, executive vice president Americas, Massey-Ferguson, Inc., said total unit sales of farm machinery in North America are expected to decline five to 10 per cent in 1978. But he said in dollar terms this decrease will be offset by the continuing trends towards larger, more efficient machinery to minimize farmers production costs and handle larger acreages.

J.H. Grommersch, assistant general manager of Ford Tractor Operations, also said the need to maintain income margins through increased efficiency will provide a continuing incentive for farmers in the marketplace. But, he said, on balance "we forecast that 1978 farm tractor sales will be four percent below 1977."

Roy W. Uelner, executive vice president of Allis Chalmers Corp., said that the agricultural equipment market for the remainder of 1977 and through 1978 is likely to be below the long-term trends since excessive grain stocks have resulted in reduced commodity prices and acreage set asides for 1978 crops.

farmers gain a clear understanding of the new system before making final plans for 1978 crops," he added.

Acreage allotments for the major crops have been based on historical plantings since farm programs began. But under the new law each year's allotment will be determined by that year's planted acreage, independent of pre-prospects for cotton appear to be below announce how many acres can be expected to produce the needed U.S. cot-"National Program Acreage."

The National Program Acreage figure then will be divided by the estimated U.S. cotton acreage for harvest that year to determine an allotment "allocation factor." And that factor will be applied to each farm's planted acreage to arrive at the farm allotment.

As an example, assume that the secretary says 11.1 million acres are needed million) divided by planted acreage (12 million) gives a 92.5 per cent allocation factor, and each farm's cotton allotment would be 92.5 per cent of its planted acreage. A farm having 100 acres planted would have an allotment and target price coverage on 92.5 acres.

Farmers can, however, assure themselves of target price coverage on all planted acreage, said Johnson. The secretary also will announce for each year the desired reduction from the previous year's plantings, called the "national reduction percentage."

Farmers who reduce their prior year's plantings by that percentage or more will not be subject to application of the allotment allocation factor.

The target price for cotton in 1978 will be 52 cents per pound. If the average price paid to all U.S. farmers for all cotton during the calendar year falls below 52 cents, each farmer will be entitled to the per-pound difference, multiplied by the total payment yield on his allotted acres, the PCG official explained.

Farm payment yields will be based on the three-year average of actual production, adjusted for abnormal weather.

The secretary has authority to declare a set-aside for any crop, as has already been done for wheat in 1978. For cotton the statutory maximum set-aside is 28 per cent of planted acreage.

It is anticipated that the Agriculture Department will establish for each farm normal cropland base or normal cropland acreage figure.

When a set-aside requirement is in effect for any program, eligibility for loans and payments will be conditioned on producers planting within their cropland base minus set-aside acreage, said John-

Cropland bases are expected to include all acreage planted to "designated

No firm regulations for the operation of set-aside programs have been issued, but it appears the cropland base will be

It will serve approximately 54 gins in three Texas counties and one in New Mexico, according to Donald W. Bratton, regional director of the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service Cotton Division in El Paso.

The Brownfield office serves Gaines, Terry and the southern half of Yoakum counties in Texas and Lea County in New Mexico.

James E. Mabry is head of the seasonal office which classed 274,000 samples last year. Mabry has been in charge of the office for two years.

This year's early harvest brought about the office's first October opening since Oct. 1, 1963. Last year's classing operations started Nov. 1.

The six major terminals expect receipts of about 21,700 head today. Thursday's kill was reported at 312,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures finished 27-77 points higher on a volume of 4,949 contracts. May was up most after gaining 82 points early in the trade. February broke 42 points early to a

Commodities

"IN SPECULATION, OUR EMOTIONS are constantly setting traps for our reasoning powers. It is far more difficult, for example, to know when to sell than when to buy. Men find it equally hard to take either a profit or a loss," so says Bernard Baruch in his book, My Own Story.

Let's follow Baruch's thoughts on this subject a bit further. "If the market has gone up, a man wants to hold on to his holdings in anticipation of a further rise. If a stock has gone down, he tends to hold on to it until an upward trend comes along so he will at least he even.

along so he will at least be even.

"The sensible course is to sell while the market still is rising, or, if you have made a mistake, to admit it immediately and take your loss.
"Some people, after selling, bedevil themselves with thoughts of, "if only I had done this." To do this is both silly and demoralizing. No speculator (and in Baruch's thinking an investor and speculator were nearly synonymous) can be right all the time. In fact, if a speculator is correct half of the time he is hitting a good average. Even being right three or four times out of 10 could yield a person a fortune, if he has the sense to cut his losses quickly on the ventures where

"I have found it wise, in fact, to periodically turn into cash most of my ings and virtually retire from the market. No general keeps his troops fig all the time; nor does he go into battle without some part of his forces held back in reserve," says Baruch.

IT LOOKS LIKE THE BEAR MARKET IS OVER-in commodities, for now,

Since April, give or take a month, it has been a bit difficult to make a buck on the long side of most commodities. That does not mean that one couldn't have made a few bucks on the short side. It is just that most people enjoy buying and holding things where the price is going up more than they tend to sell something they don't own and expect to buy in their short position at a lower price later.

Good weather, and the prospects of very big harvests, have been putting pressure on the grains and cotton all during the growing period. Finally, everyone knew that we would be up to our eyeballs in grain stacked on the ground and the prices reflected that attitude.

Then in late August we began to get the idea that harvest weather might not be perfect in this country. And maybe the glowing prospects for grains around the world were a bit optimistic. And with prices so low, we might be able to sell a bit more that we had been counting on. Prices quit going down-at least for
