

CHARGED IN TRIPLE SLAYING—Stuart Kreiner, the 16-year-old son of a former Maryland labor leader, leaves Anne Arundel County police station in Millersville, Md., Wednesday after he was charged with three counts of first degree murder in connection with the stabbing death of three elementary school students. The Kreiner youth, covering his head with a jacket, lived across the street from one of the victims, all of whom were found stabbed to death and lying face down in a wooded area near their homes Monday. Slaying Of Three Girls Charged To Youth, 16

ELVATON, Md. (AP) — The 16-year-old son of a former state labor leader was arrested Wednesday and charged with the knife murders of three young girls whose parka-clad bodies were found in a shallow stream a day after they disappeared while playing near their homes here, police said.

An Anne Arundel County police spokesman identified the youth as Stuart Kreiner, 16, who lived with his parents in the same block of the Southgate housing development 10 miles south of Baltimore as the three girls.

Police said Kreiner was charged with three counts of first-degree murder and is scheduled for arraignment in district court today, shortly before funerals were held for the three girls — Deborah Ann Hogan, 10, her sister, Theresa, 8, and their friend, Ann Marie Brzeskiewicz, also 8.

Kreiner is the son of Edward T. Kreiner, who resigned in June after three years as head of the Maryland Classified Employees Association, a labor union of state workers.

Adult neighbors of Kreiner described the youth as quiet and hardworking. But children called the Martin Spaulding High School junior a loner who didn't have many friends in the neighborhood. He often teased and taunted them as he rode his bicycle alone, the children said.

No decision has been made whether to charge the youth as an adult or a juvenile, according to Asst. State's Atty. David Cuttler.

At a news conference, Cuttler and police officials refused to discuss a motive for the murders or say whether bail had been set for Kreiner.

They said the break in the case came around 2:30 a.m., with Kreiner arrested at his home 10 hours later. They said a knife, a jacket and unspecified "other items" of evidence were found at his home.

They also said the suspect's family had been extremely cooperative in the investigation.

"This has been a tragedy for everyone," a police spokesman said.

The arrest capped an intense investigation by police into the grisly crime that had stunned this middle class community of mostly $60,000 homes.

Their bodies were discovered Monday morning in a densely wooded area not far from where they had last been seen playing on Sunday night.

An autopsy showed they had all been stabbed repeatedly in the back and chest with a knife blade about five inches long.

There were also knife cuts on the girls' arms, leading authorities to believe they had tried to shield themselves from their attacker.

"Whoever did this is crazy," said Capt. William Lindsey, a police spokesman, during the investigation. "The repetitiveness with which the girls were stabbed was incredible."

A knife sheath was found near the murder scene, and police had begun going door-to-door in the Southgate area, showing residents a picture of the sheath, hoping to uncover further clues.

"You can feel the fear in the air," Bruce Strazze, president of the Southgate Community Association, said before word of the arrest. "It seems like a ghost town when you walk around. You don't realize the impact this has had on you until it happens in your own back yard. People here have become very quiet. They're scared."

Carter, Torrijos Set Canal Meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has invited Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos to meet with him Friday for a discussion of the canal treaties and the "public debate" about them, the White House announced Wednesday.

The announcement said Torrijos "will be passing through Washington en route to Panama after a three-week trip through the Middle East and Europe."

It said the Carter-Torrijos meeting would take place at the White House and "will focus on the Panama Canal treaties ... and the public debate regarding such treaties that have taken place both in Panama and the United States."

Canal Discussions

The announcement said Carter also would talk with Torrijos about the canal discussions he had with European and Israeli leaders during his trip.

Torrijos visited the Vatican and the heads of state of England, Finland, France, Israel, Italy, Spain, Sweden and West Germany.

One issue likely to come up in Carter's talks with Torrijos is the controversy over whether the new treaties give America a permanent right to keep the canal open, using military force if necessary.

American officials say the treaty insures that right and also guarantees U.S. ships priority passage in wartime, but Panama's leaders have disputed that view, especially use of the word "inter-

Fight In Senate

Congressional leaders have told President Carter it is unlikely the Senate will ratify the treaties unless the issue is settled since the pacts give Panama control of the canal at the turn of the century.

Although no ratification vote is expected before next year, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is holding hearings on the treaties.

In testimony before the panel Wednesday, several religious leaders said they view the accords as one means of eliminating America's imperialistic legacy.

Donald Miller of the Church of the Brethren said, "We do not pretend to believe that any one treaty will fully embody justice in a Biblical sense. Yet we do believe that the proposed treaties are much closer to such a view of justice than is the treaty currently in effect."

Others supporting the treaties were Morris Levinson, vice president of the Synagogue Council of America; Dr. William Thompson of the National Council of Churches, and Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg, president of the American Jewish Congress.

Meanwhile, Assistant Secretary of State Terence A. Todman said Wednesday in Dorado, Puerto Rico that Panama has questioned sections of the new canal treaty giving the United States the right to guarantee the flow of traffic in the waterway.

Todman also chastised American newspapers for neglecting "the really important stories" in Latin America and reserving big headlines for disasters and political crises.

In a question-and-answer period at the 18th annual United Press International Editors and Publishers Conference, the 57-year-old official was asked why negotiators Sol Linowitz and Ellsworth Bunker had returned to Panama.

He replied that the Panamanians had requested clarification of the U.S. guarantee to keep the canal open.

"We do have the right under the treaty to take any steps necessary to keep the canal open," Todman said. "Clarifying that point has been critical."

He also said Washington would not enter into bilateral agreements with small, scattered Caribbean countries but would push instead to ease "the desperate situation" in the region through a multilateral arrangement proposed at the conference Tuesday by First Lady Rosalynn Carter.

"Whatever happens on those islands is going to have an impact in the United States," he said.

First Mennonite Gets Labor Certification

A-J Correspondent

SEMINOLE — Seminole Mayor Bob Clark said Wednesday he has been informed that the first of about 500 Mennonites in the area has received work certification by the U.S. Labor Department.

Labor certification for jobs is a prerequisite for obtaining permanent visas to stay in the United States.

Clark said U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's office informed him that the certification was okayed for Henry Neudorff.

The Mennonites have come here from Mexico and Canada. The Mexicans are seeking relief from religious persecution and possible land confiscation. The Canadians are attracted by the area's longer growing season and large amounts of land available for establishing a community that some day could total 30,000 population.

Members of the German-speaking Protestant religious sect entered the country on temporary visas and have had trouble getting permanent ones.

Originally told they would have to leave the United States by Sept. 22, the Mennonites recently received an extension to Jan. 31, 1978, and believe they now have time to get the visa problems worked out.

Balloonists Give Up, Ditch Into Atlantic

HALIFAX, Canada (AP) — Two Americans gave up an attempt to cross the Atlantic by balloon, came down 27 miles off the Canadian coast Wednesday and were fished from the Atlantic by a Canadian Coast Guard ship.

Dewey Reinhard, 47, and navigator Steve Stephenson, 44, both of Colorado Springs, Colo., were cold, wet and tired but otherwise in good condition, Capt. Thomas Hicks of the cutter Provo Wallis said as his ship steamed toward port.

"They went below to get a little sleep," the captain said. "They haven't had much sleep. They've been very busy. They're in good shape but a little hungry."

The Provo Wallis, which services marine coastal buoys, was equipped with winches to pull the balloon aboard, Hicks said. "We slipped a line over and pulled their craft aboard. It wasn't any problem. It was all in a day's work."

The wind was blowing at about 30 miles an hour and seas were light at the time of the rescue.

A rescue center spokesman said the balloonists came down shortly before 3 p.m. CDT, 27 miles east of the Canadian forces Shearwater base across the harbor from Halifax.

The rescue center had been alerted in advance the two might have to ditch. The spokesman said the balloonists reported early Wednesday afternoon that if weather conditions did not improve they would have to abort the flight.

The 85-foot helium-filled balloon, the Eagle, had been anchored overnight two miles southeast of Cape Sable, on the southwestern coast of Nova Scotia.

The spokesman said Reinhard and Stephenson turned on their emergency locator transmitter to assist aircraft in spotting them. They were "riding high" in their dinghy with the balloon still attached and their sea anchor out, he said.

The ditching was earlier reported in Washington by Don Witten of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration which had been tracking the balloon.

"Both men are okay," he said. "They are communicating with overhead aircraft."

The balloon carried a 30-day supply of food and water, radio equipment and a radartracking beacon to bounce signals off an orbiting satellite.

Witten timed the ditching at 2:35 p.m. CDT, just 46 hours to the minute after the men lifted off Monday from Bar Harbor, Maine.

The men had hoped to reach the coast of Great Britain or northern France.

There had been 15 previous attempts to cross the Atlantic by balloon and they also had failed.

Reinhard is an electronics business-

Gunman Hits Littlefield Restaurant

LITTLEFIELD (Special) — South Plains lawmen were scouring the region Wednesday for a man in his mid-40s who held up K-Bob's Steak House here of several hundred dollars about 4 p.m., then fled in an "old green car."

Police Sgt. Chris Hearn said the suspect, described as 6 feet tall, 160 to 180 pounds with sandy blond hair and a reddish-brown mustache, entered the restaurant, approached the counter and asked a cashier sitting in a nearby booth for some change.

The suspect then reportedly drew a small, Derringer pistol and pointed it at cashier Mrs. Becky Youakum and summoned a waitress sitting nearby.

After emptying the register of everything but the change — a sum near $600, witnesses said — the man ordered both women into the office and asked the location of the safe.

Before either could reply, the suspect spotted an open safe and emptied it, too. After ordering the cashier not to call police, the bandit reportedly forced waitress Dianne Herrell to accompany him to the older vehicle.

Mrs. Herrell did not get into the car.

Green Light Given New Lubbock Bank

SOUTHWEST Lubbock National Bank Wednesday got a green light from the U.S. Controller of Currency to become the ninth bank in Lubbock.

The controller of currency granted the bank, which will be located at 50th Street and Utica Avenue, "preliminary approval," said a Dallas spokesman for the government office.

Preliminary approval is a routine procedure which ordinarily is followed by granting of a charter when a new bank begins operation, the spokesman said.

The new facility will be an affiliate of Lubbock National Bank, the downtown institution which is the second largest bank in the city.

LNB president and executive office Wayne Finnell praised the location as one "amirably suited to serving both individuals and businesses in the burgeoning West and Southwest sections of Lubbock."

First Of Four Proposals

Southwest Lubbock National was the first of four suburban banks to be proposed in the last year.

The other three are applying for charters under the state Department of Banking.

The Texas Banking Commission possibly could vote on those three at a 2 p.m. meeting Oct. 27, a commission spokesman said.

They are sponsored by persons connected with Plains National, First National and American State Banks.

Their locations are spotted along south Indiana Avenue.

Organizers All Lubbockites

Organizers of Southwest Lubbock National all are local residents and also are directors or officers of LNB, or both.

Besides Finnell, they are Mrs. Louise Maedgen Washington and Mrs. Mary Ellis Maedgen Key, both connected with the family of LNB's founder, C.E. Maedgen Sr.; J. T. Talkington, merchant; Marion T. Key, attorney; Coffee Conner and David Collier, LNB's executive vice presidents.

D. Pierce, LNB vice president, controller and secretary of the LNB directorate was designated the new bank's correspondent and Warlick Carr, its legal counsel.

All members of the organizing group will serve as directors of Southwest Lubbock National. But that board, as well as stockholders, "will be expanded as rapidly as possible to include, among others, members of the business and residential community adjacent to the location of the new bank," said Finnell.

Full-Service Bank

"We chose," he said, "to expand LNB services to Southwest and West Lubbock because of the constant growth in those directions. Our full-service bank will offer facilities exactly like those made available by larger banks in central sections of the cities across the nation."

Representatives of the banks which have the pending state charters appeared at a hearing in Dallas in April to oppose

State Senate Race Entered By E.L. Short

 FORMER Tahoka state Rep. E.L. Short jumped into the 28th Senatorial District election fray Wednesday, maintaining that his recent legislative experience makes him the best man to succeed Sen. Kent Hance.

"I know the Austin scene and the other members of the legislature. I have represented seven of the 13 counties of this senatorial district and believe that will be helpful said Short, state representative from 1969 to the first of this year.

"All I've got to do is take the files out of my boxes and put them in file cabinets and I'll be ready to go to work for the people of the district in 24 hours. I know virtually every department head, every official in Austin," he said.

Short is the fourth candidate to enter the senatorial contest in the Democratic primary. Former Lubbock state Rep. Delwin Jones, former Brownfield state Rep. Jesse T. George and former Lubbock Mayor Morris W. "Moe" Turner are the others.

Jones and George are stressing their experience, too, but Short noted at his announcement press conference that he has been on the job in the state capital more recently.

Jones was defeated in 1972. George was in the House 1964 to 1967.

Short lost the 77th District in the Democratic primary last year to Jim Rudd of Brownfield by 184 votes.

Water Authority Patches Split

By JACK DOUGLAS

Avallanche-Journal Staff

PLAINVIEW — The Canadian River Municipal Water Authority apparently ended a complicated, five-year-long court battle here Wednesday between its member cities, including Lubbock, when it approved a resolution and a much-debated rate manual for water services.

After several hours of discussion, the 18-member board unanimously voted to approve the manual and a resolution, which outlined debts owed to the authority by member cities.

Almost the exact manual, with only a few words changed to make it more "neutral" for both sides, was voted down in the board's last meeting on July 27.

The litigation, pending in 84th District Court in Hutchinson County since 1972, involves the plaintiffs' (Amarillo, Pampa and Borger) contention that the board favored the southern cities (Lubbock, Plainview, Slaton, Tahoka, O'Donnell, Lamesa, Brownfield and Levelland) because it did not accurately consider the higher delivery costs to the southern area when setting rates.

The board had decided in its last meeting that the suit would be dropped if a manual could be approved outlining how each city would be charged, taking into consideration how much water was used and cost of delivery.

Such a manual, drawn up by the board's general manager and treasurer, John Williams, was presented to the board in the July meeting. But board member Robert Templeton, one of two representatives from Amarillo and one of the spokesmen for the three northern Panhandle cities, rejected the manual because it did not stipulate whether board decisions affecting water costs could be passed by majority or unanimous vote.

If only a majority vote was needed the northern cities would apparently be at a disadvantage because of they are less heavily represented on the board.

Some members also question whether the manual sets the rates for the cost of the water, as Templeton suggested, or determines the cost of water delivery to the various cities.

Templeton, in bringing the manual back up for discussion, said he would not insist on a unanimous vote for future changes if the manual's title and the wording of the first two paragraphs could be changed to make it sound more "neutral."

All members agreed that changing the title from "Manual for Determining Cost of Delivery of Water" to "Canadian River Municipal Water Authority Manual," and the rewording of the first two paragraphs did not change the meaning of the SOLAR ECLIPSE — The moon passed in front of the sun Wednesday, bringing darkness to a long, thin strip of the Pacific Ocean from the tip of southern Asia to South America and dimming the sky over much of the Western Hemisphere. Residents throughout the path of the eclipse, which lasted several hours beginning at midday, were warned not to view the sun with the naked eye during the event, for even a look for several seconds could cause permanent eye damage. A spokesman for Methodist Hospital here said persons who refused to heed the advice and gazed at the sun would not be aware of the eye damage until probably this morning, since it takes several hours for the effect to become apparent. At top, Bill Ransom, a junior at Texas Tech, viewed the eclipse through a piece of protective glass from a welder's helmet. Ransom is a member of a Tech physics photography class which viewed and photographed the eclipse by various means. Bottom, A-J photographer Norm Tindell caught this view of the partially eclipsed sun, and top right, various phases of the eclipse were captured on film by A-J photographer Gary Davis.

Warming Trend Seen For City

South Plains residents who got out their winter garb for Wednesday's brisk temperatures should be able to leave their coats at home today and enjoy a mild afternoon of temperatures in the mid-70s. As the season's first severe cold front drifted southward to the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday, a large surface high pressure system developed in its wake, promising clear skies and warmer temperatures for the region through the rest of this week. Wednesday, though, some Texans awoke to a shivering chilliness of freezing temperatures. Abilene reported a record low temperature of 34. Temperatures dipped to 34 degrees in Dallas. Dimmitt, Floydada, Hereford and Plains recorded 32-degree readings. Spur registered 30 for the city's low, and Perryton was the coldest spot in the state with their 27-degree reading. Lubbock's low Wednesday was 37 degrees.

Viet Cong Tunnel Chief Gives Version Of War

EDITOR'S NOTE: Associated Press Pulitzer Prize-winning photographer Horst Faas, who covered the Vietnam war for 12 years, recently made a return visit to that country with a German tourist group. Here is his report of a trip to a former Vietnam battlefield.

By HORST FAAS

CU CHI, Vietnam (AP) — As Lt. Col. George A. Eyster lay dying from Viet Cong sniper bullet wounds on a jungle trail, he said to me: "Before I go I'd like to talk to the guy who controls those incredible men in the tunnels."

Eleven years later I met that man and he showed me the inside of the fantastic tunnel octopus that took 30 years to dig and stretched 150 miles, with tentacles sometimes winding right under the chairs of U.S. commanders as they sat in their headquarters.

Eyster, a tall West Pointer from Cocoa Beach, Fla., died in a field hospital while his battalion, the 2nd of the 28th Regiment, First Infantry Division, was trying to fight its way out of the vast underground complex 20 miles northwest of Saigon.

The now peaceful tunnels were on the itinerary of a German tourist group I traveled with on a rare two-week trip to Vietnam.

One of the briefing officers at district headquarters was Capt. Nguyen Thanh Linh. Dressed in an olive drab North Vietnamese uniform and Ho Chi Minh rubber tire sandals, he said in answer to a question that he had commanded the Cu Chi Liberation Battalion during 1966.

That was the unit the American colonel's "Black Lion" battalion had opposed. The slightly-built, 45-year-old Capt. Linh looked quizzically as I pursued my questioning. Yes, he said, intelligence reports had informed him at the time that the opposing American battalion commander had been killed.

As he recalled those days for our tourist group the horror of a war I had witnessed from only one side became vividly real. Capt. Linh spoke in French with grudging respect and almost without hatred about his former enemies, the Americans. The death of Eyster and many other Americans in those early war years shocked the American public, but as the captain talked it was evident the battles had not been one-sided.

Of the 600 men in the Cu Chi battalion that fought Eyster's Black Lions in January of 1966, only four survived the war, two officers and two non-commissioned officers, said Linh.

The battalion itself "was wiped out several times," he said. "Each time we reconstructed it. In the whole sector we lost 12,000 men in the course of the war."

The former battlefields looked lush and sleepy as our group drove from Saigon northwest along the river. Some deep B52 bomb craters still were visible, retained as fish ponds or wallowing holes for animals.

Youth labor gangs were widening a road, and occasionally a reminder of the war would appear. A rusting armored personnel carrier with First Infantry Division markings and "Little Rose" painted on its side loomed out of a bamboo thicket. The wreck of a U.S. helicopter was overgrown with elephant grass.

The battleground we were being taken to lay beneath our feet, at one, two and three levels underground. It was a twisting octopus of tunnels and caverns stretching from Cu Chi toward Saigon and the surrounding provincial capitals. The tunnels were marked in black lines on a 12 by 12-foot map hanging from a briefing room wall, and my first reaction was that it looked like a map of the New York or London subway systems, with dots not for stations but for fighting positions and secret entrances and exits.

The slippery, humid corridors, about two feet wide and two feet high, blocked with wooden trapdoors at underground intersections, spanned the history of the whole Vietnam war, starting from the days when Communist agents hid from the French police. But it was during the American phase of the war, Linh said, that the system was truly tested.

"As more and more American soldiers arrived to occupy the surface above, the more we extended our system below," said a senior officer at the briefing, Col. Duong Long Sang. "At the end we had a three-tier tunnel system and everything was underground — the toilets, the hospitals, all our soldiers, many civilians and even water buffalo."

The colonel continued: "We literally dug for 30 years, usually in the dark, squatting down. We carved out about a meter every eight hours, and women distributed the earth on the surface, hiding it under fallen leaves."

The tunnels crept under some U.S. positions. "Several times we knew that American field commanders would sit like this on their metal chairs directly above us," said Linh with a grin.

The Vietnamese took our group for a visit, and as noisy swarms of mosquitoes buzzed around our heads we pushed ourselves through the narrow corridors, obviously built by and for slender Vietnamese. "We always moved in the dark, saving our candles and torches for emergencies," said Linh. "Our amputees lay in the dark, sometimes for months."

But eventually the Americans figured out the counterattack.

First they used hunting dogs "and we battled them underground with rifle butts, mines and knives," said Linh. Then somebody had the idea to use American toilet soap and the Vietnamese started smelling the same as Americans. "That stopped the dogs," Linh said.

Next came the "tunnel rats — small, tough Americans, like us," Linh said. "They crawled into the tunnels with explosives and gas to blast us out. We installed more escape routes, more tiers, but sometimes we were cornered and we tried to kill them with bayonets so as not to give our positions away.

"Many Americans died in the tunnels. They wasted much time pulling their dead back. That gave us time to regroup. The more we killed the fewer problems we had," said Linh.

The Americans tried flooding the tunnels "and we lost many men until we constructed upper tier escape levels," Col. Sang said.

Finally, Linh said, came the "scorched earth" policy that from 1968 on saw regular B52 bombing of the tunnel complexes. Only direct hits killed, Linh claimed, but he described the awesome experience of a near miss: "Fire would be everywhere, the body would be thrown back and forth in the tunnel, shirt and pants would be ripped apart by the suction of the air blast."

Sang stated: "The Americans used to say that as long as there were soldiers of the Liberation Front in the Cu Chi tunnels, Saigon would be in danger. They were right."

"We planned the 1968 Tet attack against the U.S. Embassy in Saigon from here. And it was also from here that details for the final, successful liberation of Saigon on April 30, 1975, were drawn up."

"The greatest pleasure in those days was to stick one's head out to the surface and just breathe air," said Linh as we climbed into our vehicles for the ride back to Saigon. I watched him take a gulp of the heavy, humid and undisturbed air that hangs over peaceful Cu Chi today.

AN EDITORIAL:

White House And The ERA

ANOTHER EXAMPLE of how the Carter administration engages in whatever means are necessary to achieve its goals may be found in its latest maneuver regarding the Equal Rights Amendment.

The White House has requested the Justice Department to render an opinion on whether the deadline for ratification of the ERA can be extended.

Until now, it has been assumed that the measure must be okayed by three-fourths of, or 38, states by March 22, 1979. Thus far, 35 states have given approval, although three have later rescinded their action.

NOW, IT TURNS out, Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell says that his department will hand down a decision within the next few days on whether the deadline can be extended and whether a state can rescind its vote.

Bell said he personally was unaware of a precedent for an extension, but said the White House attorney who requested the opinion suggested an indirect precedent exists.

The push for the extension is coming from women's ERA groups, women members of Congress and apparently President Carter himself.

THE JUSTICE Department ruling will be of major interest on both the extension and rescinding points.

AN EDITORIAL:

School Rolls Down, Costs Up

CLOSING OR consolidating schools may seem to be a logical and economical way of dealing with the decline in small school enrollment nationwide, but many parents will hear nothing of it.

"Those residents who stand to lose their schools are concerned because their children will have to walk farther to school or, in some cases, be bused," observed The Wall Street Journal.

They also worry about the effect on property values.

And they complain that the financial savings realized from closing a school are usually small—because closed schools must still be maintained and minimally heated.

FOR NEARLY a quarter century after World War II, the nation's public-school systems struggled to accommodate the children born during the wartime and early postwar baby boom.

In suburban school districts particularly, new buildings went up and additional teachers were hired. Education was very much a growth industry.

The situation today is quite different. According to the federally supported National Center for Education Statistics, the number of children in kindergarten through eighth grade reached a high of 37 million in

In both instances, matters of Constitutional law and intent are involved, as well as public opinion.

In the first place, it is passing strange that never to our knowledge in the five years since the deadline was set in 1972 has the extension matter been brought up. Only now that the ERA appears to be doomed to defeat, does it rear its head.

In the second, it would appear to the average person that if a state does change its mind on an amendment before such amendment reaches Congress for final action, then this would be a reflection of the majority will.

MR. CARTER said before he was elected, and numerous times since, that he wanted to "be close" to the people and to reflect their feelings.

If this is true, then we suggest the President and First Lady Rosalynn Carter take a second look at the highly controversial ERA matter.

If they do—instead of seeking ways to circumvent what most everyone has understood as a fair and Constitutional deadline and the will of the majority—both might be paying attention to much more important matters of concern to the citizens of this nation.

1969 and has fallen every year since then. The decline is expected to continue at least until about 1985, when the total is projected to be about 31 million.

IT MIGHT seem that a steady drop in school enrollment would lead to a corresponding decrease in the number of teachers, but most are kept on.

Moreover, The Washington Post reported recently, that payments for Social Security and retirement programs in some states now make up 20 per cent of the cost of education, and in a number of places a teacher makes more money by retiring than working.

The cost crunch has had the effect of muting teachers' demands for higher pay.

"While protests over taxes have led to school shutdowns in some areas," said U.S. News and World Report, "the public revolt against spending seems on the whole to be working against teachers' strikes. That's because unions are reluctant...to tangle with citizens determined to hold down taxes."

It's easy to understand why taxpayers are upset by rising costs when schools are closing.

After all, no one wants to pay more and receive less in return.

He even went so far as to release a State Department classified cable to stake his rights to the canal.

"Bob," said a friend, "was heartbroken when former President Ford came out for the treaty."

"It hurt him deeply and had he known at the time where Ford stood, he would never have accepted the vice-presidential nomination in 1976."

"Do you think he'll speak to Ford any more?"

"Would you speak to someone who wants to give up an American-built canal?"

THERE ARE, OF course, others who are maintaining that the Panama Canal belongs to them.

Former Secretary of the Treasury Bill Simon, who also has presidential ambitions, has been organizing the financial fight to defeat the treaty, but so far he can't get any television time.

John Connally wants a piece of the Canal issue just in case he decides to run, but as his man told me, "John's not greedy. He's willing to share it with the Daughters of the American Revolution."

One of the big surprises is that William Buckley, the conservative's writer-in-residence has endorsed President Carter's treaty in four columns.

This has angered his brother, former Sen. James Buckley, who is thinking of disowning William for such treachery.

In a letter to the Washington Star, Jim Buckley's legislative assistant angrily wrote that Bill was speaking for himself and not for his brother.

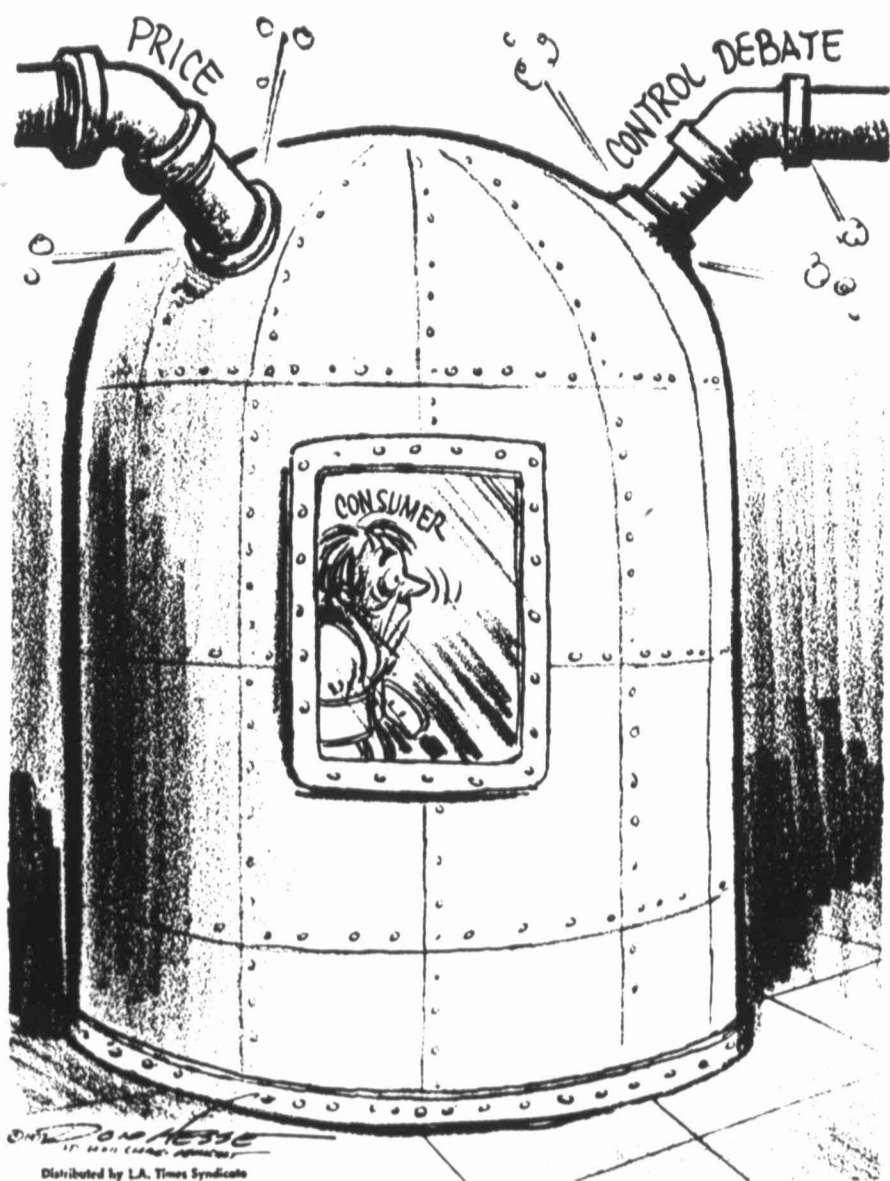

THOSE OF US WHO know both men are praying that they can work out some kind of compromise. It would be a pity after all these years if the Panama Canal turned brother against brother.

In spite of the people I talked to the Panama Canal issue is still up for grabs.

Unless Ronald Reagan can produce a deed proving he owns it, we may see a bloody fight amongst the conservatives laying claim to it.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

Full Potency Ahead

WASHINGTON—In the greatest of many ironies that have thwarted U.S. peace efforts in the Mideast for a decade, President Carter's sudden partnership with Moscow in laying down broad peace terms has roughly doubled Israel's ability to block the kind of settlement Carter wants.

In short, the President has handed Israel an ally of great potential importance: those anti-Soviet hardliners who have taken an even-handed approach to the Mideast until now.

They fear Russian encroachment on the region's oil riches more than they fear that continuing Israeli intransigence will bring a war which

ANDREW TULLY:

Can We Keep It?

WASHINGTON—My saber-rattling side has been reassured by Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, who has emphasized the national security aspect of the new Panama Canal treaties.

Brown put it candidly, in saber-rattling terms, to the Senate foreign relations committee.

Transfer of the canal to Panama, he reminded his audience, in effect would not alter the United States' role as military protector of that waterway.

He noted that even after the canal is turned over to Panama in the year 2000, the treaties' fine print authorizes the U.S. to land troops in Panama any time it wishes.

So why the treaties? Because, Brown explained, "These treaties give the U.S. a much better legal and moral underpinning for such a decision."

THE HECK WITH such underpinning, say my conservative readers. The canal belongs to us, and ownership gives us the right to defend it just as we'd defend South Carolina.

Why should we put ourselves in a position of having to deal with the Panama government if the canal were in danger?

The answer is that transfer of the canal to Panama is mostly symbolic, a gesture to our Latin-American neighbors who are not always comfortable with the powerful giant of the north.

Ratification of the treaties would be an act by a nation secure enough to afford the luxury of grace.

Admittedly, such an act could pose risks. One of them is that Panama might permit use of the canal in time of war, once the American presence was removed.

Admittedly, the treaties do not foreclose such an eventuality. But we've still got a Navy to guard the approaches to the canal.

As Brown noted, these treaties say enemy ships can pass through the canal, "but there is nothing that says they can pass to it."

THE OTHER side of the coin is that there almost surely would be trouble if the Senate rejected the treaties.

We could expect the eruption of sabotage and guerrilla warfare, probably encouraged by Panama's strongman, Gen. Omar Torrijos.

You can bet Cuba's Fidel Castro would get into the act, and so would anti-American troublemakers in some other Latin-American countries.

So blast those jokers off the isthmus, say the anti-treaty forces. I suppose this could be done.

But the joint chiefs of Staff have warned that even 100,000 American troops couldn't protect the canal from a hostile Panamanian population.

And eventually, the canal would be put out of commission by saboteurs.

Blackmail is implicit in the situation, of course, and I don't blame treaty opponents for what they perceive as a retreat under threats of retaliation.

But standing on indignant pride will not alter the fact that turning thumbs down on the treaties could lead us into another Vietnam.

Giving the canal to Panama might not work. Keeping it would not work.

Or, as Secretary Brown put it, continued open and efficient use of the canal by U.S. vessels can be better assured "by a cooperative effort with a friendly Panama" than by maintaining "a garrison amid hostile surroundings."

Chauvinism is fine, but who wants to die for a slogan?

JAY HARRIS:

The GOP And You

NOT ONLY Lubbock County's Republicans, but those at the national level, have a grim lesson to learn in the weeks and months ahead.

It is that they either patch up their differences, work to bring all Conservatives into the ranks and attack the Carter Administration for what it is, or quietly fold their tents and silently steal away.

We in this area have been treated to a dirty-linen-washed-in-public spectacle among local GOP leaders for several weeks now. And according to an item in the paper this week, there may be more to come.

As we read it, "a group of dissatisfied Republicans will meet Oct. 20 to consider future plans, including the possibility of forming a new county GOP organization." It's about the last thing needed around here.

But, it's a free country, or reasonably so, considering the botched-up job both the GOP and Demos have done in years past. So, if someone wants to organize a party, that is their prerogative.

HOWEVER, AS one who has voted both sides of the ticket, and sees nothing wrong with being independent in the process, we have a few words for the GOP leaders, to use the term loosely.

It is that responsible people in the local, and national organization, either get it all together, start working for a common goal and cut out the petty bickering and fighting for power or watch the whole thing go down the drain.

As one who looks most favorably on Conservative causes, we harbor serious doubts about a group of men and women or an organization running the City, State or Nation if they or it can't handle their own internal affairs.

The Republicans long have had one major flaw, other than being the so-called minority party. It is that the Old Guard, the New Right and the vast number of Independents who would like to join the Conservative ranks can't seem to find a common meeting ground.

FOR WHATEVER it is worth, there is enough fault to go around.

It starts with the so-called Old Guard, the more or less affluent standbys of past years who helped keep the party going when the Democrats were riding high.

It was their time, and money, which kept the flame flickering. Then, with the advent of Dwight Eisenhower, the GOP had a popular hero and political figure around whom the average voter could rally.

Unfortunately, Ike—for all his attributes as a great general—was not a politician. He, nor the party itself utilized the golden opportunity to make the GOP a more broad-based organization.

So, with the Kennedy and Johnson years, the GOP faded into the background again, again the Old Guard and new rich Conservatives stoking the furnace.

THE NIXON ERA, although ending in disgrace, nevertheless, again saw large numbers of plain, ordinary people join the Republican banner, work for it, fight for it.

And, despite his whisker-thin loss to President Carter, former President Ford did much to maintain the GOP's image as a party which could be interested in the little guy as well the oil man, the cattle breeder and feeder and well-to-do farmer. Yes, Virginia, now and then there have been such animals.

But, in the wake of last Fall's disappointment, the Republican Party has been struggling. Fortunately, at the national level, there are indications that Mr. Carter is doing as much as anyone to help revive it. He too, it turns out, is only human.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch in Lubbock, Texas, the Lubbock County GOP continues to have its problems, actually surprising when one considers that the City and Area have enjoyed much attention from Texas and national GOP leaders.

THERE ARE those who blame the Joe Robbins affair for the current dispute and disarray in the Lubbock County GOP ranks.

In our opinion, that is only a symptom of the real disease.

The problem, as we see it is that for years in these parts the so-called Old Guard has given money, some time but little real personal attention to how the party is run.

As a result, much of the nuts and bolts operation of the party has been handled by a few oldtimers or a group of more or less newcomers who have spent far too much time jockeying for power. A political party, we might note, is not a hobby or a personal jockeying.

Responsible citizens have stayed away from important GOP meetings in droves. And outsiders have sought to move into the vacuum, a move which should be avoided at all costs.

THROUGH IT ALL, the City has played host to numerous state and national GOP leaders, including would-be presidents, former chief executives and a serving President.

The area's heavy Conservative vote is now one to be reckoned with, whether in local, state or national races. Today, Lubbock and the area truly backs the two-party system.

But, some major changes must take place if this is to continue at a party level. Responsible citizens must start taking a more active role in GOP affairs. The leadership base must be broadened to get a greater cross-section of the best talent available.

Overall party goals must supersede personalities. And everyone needs to grow up!

And he stayed and stayed, leaving finally only after he knew beyond doubt that he had become the world's niftiest trick-shot artist. Minguand, please note, was the first man to round off a cue tip.

Uvalde Pays $1 Million Gas Bill

HOUSTON (AP) — Almost $1 million owed by Uvalde for natural gas supplied by Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. was received by the Houston firm Wednesday, a company spokesman said.

Don Newquist, the Lo-Vaca spokesman, said payment of the approximately $1.3 million owed by Del Rio has been delayed until Nov. 1 "so they can get some of the interest."

The city councils of both South Texas cities agreed Tuesday night to make the payments in settlement of Lo-Vaca's claims that the cities owed the money for gas supplied under contracts in which the Texas Railroad Commission gave Lo-Vaca permission to raise its price.

Last month Crystal City paid about $600,000 to Lo-Vaca to settle the company's claim.

All three cities had set aside the money in case they were held liable to Lo-Vaca.

Last month Lo-Vaca turned off the gas supply to Crystal City after a long legal battle over whether the town should pay the rate set in the earlier contract or that rate set by the company and approved by the Railroad Commission.

The Del Rio city council voted unanimously to pay the city's $1.4 million debt to Lo-Vaca.

The Uvalde city council, also unanimously, acted to pay $984,000 after Lo-Vaca threatened to turn off the gas this Friday.

Lo-Vaca had also threatened to cut off the gas to Del Rio if the bill wasn't paid.

Uvalde Mayor Charles Cain said, "We proceeded to collect the money from our customers knowing full well that at some point in the future we would have to be ready to pay the money."

Both cities had paid the old contract rates and had charged customers the new rates, but had put the money in escrow pending a final determination of the legality of the rate increase.

The dispute between the Houston-based gas company and Del Rio, Crystal City and other South Texas towns arose after the Texas Railroad Commission authorized Lo-Vaca to charge an interim rate of about $2 per thousand cubic feet (mcf) of gas.

The cities refused to pay the higher rate because they claimed long-term supply contracts said Lo-Vaca had to sell them gas at 36 cents per mcf. The Texas Supreme Court and several federal courts have ruled in Lo-Vaca's favor, however.

Crystal City, which owed about $800,000, said it couldn't afford the higher prices and didn't have the money to pay the back bill. Its gas supply was shut off on Sept. 23.

Newquist said he expected Lo-Vaca attorneys to file suit in Bexar County sometime this week seeking collection of the money.

Pathologist Tells Of Farr Autopsy

AMARILLO (AP) — A Fort Worth pathologist testified Wednesday at the Cullen Davis murder trial he found no evidence of drugs and only a trace of alcohol in the "voluminous" bullet-riddled body of Stan Farr.

He said the bullet that killed Davis' young stepdaughter penetrated the main body artery and she probably died in "a very short time."

Dr. Feliks Gwozdz, a Fort Worth medical examiner, performed the autopsies last year on the two victims of a midnight shooting spree at Davis' hilltop Fort Worth mansion.

Davis, 44, is on trial for his life in the Aug. 2, 1976 slaying of Andrea Wilborn, 12.

Farr, 30, was gunned down after he and the millionaire defendant's estranged wife, Priscilla, returned to the mansion which they shared at the time of the shootings.

Mrs. Davis, 36, and Gus Gavrel, 22, were wounded in the gunfire. Both have identified Davis as the "man in black" who fired the near fatal shots.

Gwozdz, a native of Poland who speaks in a distinct Slavic accent, pointed out on a schematic drawing the entrance and exit wounds that killed Farr and Miss Wilborn. He said the girl died of shock and massive bleeding.

He told the jury Farr was struck by four bullets, two of which he removed from Farr's body and identified Wednesday for the jury.

He said Farr died of "massive bleeding into his abdomen and chest due to a gunshot wound in the chest and terminal massive aspiration of vomitous material into his larynx."

In response to a defense question, the witness said, "I recognized the projectiles because it took me a lot of time to get them."

He described Farr's body as "rather voluminous" and said the victim was 6-10 and weighed an estimated 290 to 295 pounds.

Gwozdz testified that Farr was struck twice by bullets in the left chest and thigh, once in the right chest and once in the back. There were two exit wounds, including one in the neck.

The wounds and the projection of the bullets were consistent with the eyewitness account of the shooting that Mrs. Davis provided jurors nearly two months ago.

The Fort Worth socialite said the gunman's first bullet penetrated a door before hitting Farr, and that the two men struggled briefly before the assailant got off a second shot. She said her lover was lying on his side, looking at her and making strange gurgling noises when he man in black fired two more bullets into his body.

The murder weapon was never recovered, but prosecutors said they can prove the bullet which struck Andrea was fired from the same .38 caliber pistol used to kill Farr.

Gwozdz testified that he performed toxicological tests on Farr to determine if he recently had taken such narcotics as heroin, opiates or barbiturates.

"None were detected," he said.

He said he found "just a trace" of alcohol

"We'd like to state there has been no pressure put on Uvalde by Lo-Vaca to force an early settlement of the matter," said Cain, who added that negotiations between his city and Lo-Vaca have been on a "friendly and understanding basis."

Religion, Barbecue Serve As Formula For Duo's Success

HEMPSTEAD (UPI) — Twin sisters Ullene "Mother" Williams and Christine "Sister" Mosley have so many signs, mostly testimonials from aficionados of their mouth-watering barbecue, that it's hard to find the menu.

By noon each weekday the sisters already have put in a hard day of stoking the pit fire, slapping sauce on huge chunks of beef, dicing vegetables for cole slaw and stirring cauldrons of red beans. But that doesn't stop them from visiting with their customers, sometimes offering for no extra charge a short spiritual lesson with the meal.

Most of their customers are travelers on their way to or from Houston, which is 50 miles southeast of the East Texas farm and ranch community, and hundreds of them have left testimonials of their enjoyment of Swan's barbecue. They hang from the walls and dangle from the ceiling — every available space has a sign.

"Oh, man, we got people in here from all over the world," said "Mother" Williams. "Some people heard about our barbecue in Europe and wanted to eat some of it."

They probably wouldn't be surprised if some greenskinned, antennae creatures landed their saucer on the lawn of the barn-like roadhouse and ordered a beef plate, seeing as how lunar astronaut Michael Collins added his name to the long list of Swan's fans.

"Look! Best B-B-Q I ever had," says a sign written by Collins.

Barbecue lovers from as far away as Connecticut and California praised the culinary talents of the twin sisters who took over the restaurant's operation after the death of their sister, Honey Swan, last year.

"Mother" Williams and "Sister" Mosley always have tended the pit at Swan's since its inception 25 years ago from a watermelon stand.

State Oilmen Warned On Tax Policy

DALLAS (AP) — Texas oil and gas operators were told Wednesday they must be alert to new state proposals that could sharply boost taxes on industry.

The warning came from A. F. Page Jr., Houston, chairman of the ad valorem tax committee of the 3,400-member Texas Mid-Continent Oil Gas Association.

Page said a new nine-member state commission is to explore and develop a new system for financing public education.

"The commission is to take into account ability to pay," Page said.

"So it would behoove us to keep a rather sharp eye on the situation."

Page's committee met preliminary to today's 58th convention of the trade group that represents independent and major operators who account for 90 percent of the state's oil and gas production and 95 percent of its oil refining capacity.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe and M.M. Pennell, deputy chairman of British Petroleum, are to speak at today's general session.

Page said a five-member state senate committee also has been appointed to study the possibility of replacing ad valorem taxes with a petroleum refining tax, corporate profits tax, or other desirable forms of taxation.

Guy Proctor of American Oil in Houston was asked if he could define the meaning of "other desirable forms."

"To me it is whatever they can get on industry," Proctor responded.

A Washington lobbyist told the oilmen President Carter contends his national energy proposals now before Congress would provide sufficient incentive for oil and gas explorations.

"But those incentives simply are not in the Carter program," said Dan Prescott, legal counsel for the General Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

"The Carter plan talks about a $1.75 per 1,000 cubic feet ceiling on new natural gas prices. Federal Power Commission studies, however, indicate the replacement cost during the next biennium will exceed $2.25 per 1,000 cubic feet. That leaves the President at least 50 cents short."

H.B. Harkins, an Alice independent driller and producer, was elected president of the Texas group.

CHARRED REMAINS — Flames fanned by westerly winds engulfed this house under construction at 8201 Joliet Ave. about 5 p.m. Wednesday, destroying the four-week-old structure in less than 15 minutes. A house belonging to Gary McDuff at 8203 Joliet adjacent to the newer structure was damaged slightly. Contractor Ed Gotcher said the loss would be near $20,000. He said the house would have sold for about $43-

000 upon completion. Ironically, the fire was reported by fireman Terry King, who spotted flames inside the house as he drove to work at Station 9 at 50th Street and Wayne Avenue. About 15 men from stations 6, 8, and 9 responded to the blaze, Chief Tom Foster said, and six pieces of equipment were sent to the scene. (Staff Photo by Milton Adams)

Lubbock Officers Probing Varied Holdups, Break-Ins

Following a Tuesday night which included three reported robberies, police investigators Wednesday were conducting numerous follow-up investigations as well as investigating a surfeit of home and car burglaries.

Two of the three heists occurred within five minutes Tuesday and within a few blocks of each other.

Jesse Jimenez of 601 Ave. B told officers he was in bed at his home about 11:35 p.m. when two teen-age boys forced their way through the front door. After the youths reportedly pulled a knife and placed it at the victim's ribs, $100 was taken along with two cartons of eggs from a refrigerator.

The 60-year-old Jimenez said the boys repeatedly threatened to kill him if he called police, then left in a small blue car.

The victim gave investigators names of two 15-year-old suspects.

About five minutes later, at 11:40 p.m., Felix Soles reportedly answered a knock at his house at 517 Ave. F and was faced by two men asking for "Shorty." Their next request, Soles told police, was for a glass of water, and when he turned to get it, one robber produced a small pistol while the other displayed a knife.

As the duo emptied Soles' wallet, which contained a $20 bill, and his watch and pocket knife, they reportedly threatened to kill Soles if he resisted. Soles said one of the bandits hit him on the face before they pushed him into the bathroom, barricaded the door and left.

Earlier in the evening, Alvina Ramirez said, she had just cashed a $100 check at an Ideal Road grocery store and was getting into her car when she felt a hard tug on her purse.

Her son, who was with her, said he chased the apparent teen-aged robber and wrestled with the bandit upon catching him.

The woman's purse reportedly fell open, affording the bandit the opportunity to scoop up some of the cash and flee.

Another man said he chased the bandit several blocks before finally losing sight of him in the 3000 block of 4th Street.

In the everything-but-the-proverbial-sink-category, burglars marched away from the Jamie Dawson home at 5808 24th St. carrying a coffee table, a pair of drapes and a commode tank. The items were valued at $80, Dawson told police.

In another household burglary, Wynell Crump of 2707 38th St. told officers someone swiped a bathroom heater and a living room heater, along with a chest of drawers, from his rental property at 4814 40th St. between last Friday and Wednesday.

Elsewhere, Jim Robbins, owner of a car dealership at 2320 Texas Ave., said someone stole two cars from his lot Tuesday or Wednesday, a 1969 Chrysler and a 1968 Mustang, valued together at about $1,900. Robbins said the thieves also took four chrome wheels and the tires with them in addition to some keys.

Cindy Gonzales said her television, some clothing and some lamps were stolen from her apartment at 101 Hub Homes Tuesday or Wednesday. The items reportedly were worth about $690.

Another TV, this one valued at $120, was reported stolen from Ruth Robinson of 3232 E. 7th St. sometime Wednesday morning. Richard Brinson said he hadn't determined what was missing early Wednesday, but he said a window worth about $100 had been broken out at his 4411 Ave. A address.

James Lee Perrett said his CB was stolen from his car while it was parked in the 2000 block of Broadway Wednesday. Perrett is in town from Andalusia, Ala., reports indicated.

The abandoned car, smeared with blood, was found in an alley behind the 500 block of Avenue E about 10 a.m. Police later talked with an area resident who said he saw the auto about 6 a.m. He said it wasn't there when he got home about 3 a.m. The unoccupied vehicle was parked inches in front of a dumpster.

Inside the car, in addition to the keys, were a .22-caliber pistol, a .22 shell and an axe.

Area Baptist Meet Slated At Sundown

A-J Correspondent
SUNDOWN — Dr. M.C. Laughlin of Dallas, director of state missions and commissions of the Baptist General Commission of Texas, will speak at the 17th annual meeting of the South Plains Baptist Association to begin at 3 p.m. Tuesday at the First Baptist Church at Sundown.

Music for the meeting will be directed by Robert Bailey, music minister at First Baptist Church in Levelland. The theme for the assembly is "Let the Church Reach Out."

Dr. Don Hancock, pastor of Meadow Baptist Church, will be in charge of the program.

The doctoral message will be delivered by Pat Cummins of Brownfield. Others who will take part in the program are Dr. Strauss Atkinson, district missionary from Plainview, and the Rev. Murle Rogers of Ropesville.

The First Baptist Church here will host a meal at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday before evening sessions begin at 6:45 p.m.

Father, Slain Son Found In Car Trunk

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A wounded father and his slain son were found locked in the trunk of a parked auto late Tuesday night, police reported.

Investigators said a pedestrian heard screams coming from inside the trunk of a white Cadillac parked in the city's Mission District at 10 p.m. and notified police.

Police said Peter Catelli, 24, of Concord, was found dead with multiple gunshot wounds. His father, Orlando Catelli, 49, Concord, had been shot once but was in "fair" condition, investigators said.

No possible suspects or motive were revealed by police.

Briscoe Says 'No Room In Texas For Raza Unida'

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Wednesday there is no room in Texas for the Raza Unida party, a political organization of Mexican-Americans, and blamed it for the economic problems of Crystal City and the rest of Zavala County in South Texas.

The governor made his statements in a news conference shortly before he spoke at the luncheon session of the West Texas Conference on State Affairs at Angelo State University.

In the morning session of the state conference, delegates listened to U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., charge that regulation of oil and gas would cost Texans jobs.

Briscoe leveled his charges at Raza Unida while commenting on the recent cutoff of gas service to Crystal City, headquarters of the small Mexican-American political group and home of its leaders, including founder County Judge Jose Angel Gutierrez.

Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. cut off the gas because the city refused to pay more than $800,000 the company claimed for additional charges in the delivery of gas. The city claimed the company violated the original contract when it increased the rates.

Gutierrez has accused Briscoe in the past of trying to block federal projects for economic development of the county.

Briscoe compared the economic situation of Crystal City, where Raza Unida won the elections, to that of nearby Carrizo Springs.

He said the two cities were prosperous back in the 50s.

"Today, following the takeover by Raza Unida in Crystal City, Carrizo Springs remains healthy, but in Crystal City it is exactly the opposite," Briscoe said. "It is a sad commentary on what can happen to a once-thriving community. The fault lies with the dependence on federal funds encouraged by Crystal City leaders."

He added: "In practical terms there is no room in Texas for Raza Unida. Certainly, the individual citizens must have the right to join any political party, but the severe economic decline in Zavala County is the result of La Raza Unida dominance ... and the lesson is there for each individual to make up his mind."

Krueger said that deregulation of oil and gas means jobs for Texas.

"Two million jobs were lost throughout the country as a result of the gas shortages last year," he said. "Texas didn't lose any jobs. Businesses and industries stayed open because the federal government could not come in and take away many of our jobs. But if the federal government institutes federal price controls, it would get allocation rights on intrastate gas, and that means jobs from Texas and Louisiana will be allocated to other states along with our gas reserves."

He said the government must push for development of foreign markets for agricultural products.

"The government can't make it rain," he stated. "But there is action we can take to aid the Texas cattlemen and farmers having a tough time getting adequate prices to meet their expenses."

He urged that the United States get together with other countries in bringing down trade barriers.

"Agriculture, in terms of exports, is the strongest single unit in our economy sustaining the value of our currency," Krueger said.

Robinson Trial Testimony Ends

HOUSTON (UPI) — Testimony in a $7.6 million wrongful death suit against oilman Ash Robinson, accused of masterminding his onetime son-in-law's murder, ended Wednesday, and lawyers began the final stage of the complex legal battle.

The survivors of Dr. John Hill charge Robinson paid $25,000 to have the plastic surgeon shot to death because he blamed Hill for the death of Joan Robinson Hill, the doctor's first wife and Robinson's only daughter.

Plaintiffs' lawyer Ray Bass Wednesday called a series of rebuttal witnesses to defend Hill's character against attack, a key strategy of Robinson's lawyer, W. Robert Brown.

Brown has offered testimony Hill was a womanizer, homosexual and incompetent and cared little about his wife or his only son, Robert, who was 12 at the time his father was shot in 1972.

Wednesday, Bass called Mrs. Mary Ann Grimes, who identified herself as a member of the same Church of Christ attended regularly by Hill. She said Hill always brought his son along.

She also disputed key testimony alleging Hill was openly cheerful and optimistic following the mysterious death by infection of his first wife in March 1969.

Mrs. Grimes said she and her husband visited Hill shortly after the funeral.

"It was very obvious John had been crying. He was sobbing audibly. He was unable to talk. He was quite upset," she told the jury.

On cross examination by Brown, Mrs. Grimes said her husband was a professional colleague of Hill's and had referred patients to him on several occasions. She said she was a close friend of plaintiff Myra Hill, the doctor's mother.

A lawyer for Lilla Paulus, a named defendant who is serving a 30-year sentence for her role in Hill's death, presented Mrs. Paulus' daughter-in-law as his only defense witness.

Under questioning by lawyer Mike DeGeurin, Mrs. Fred Gibson of Madisonville, Tex., disputed testimony linking deposits by Mrs. Paulus with checks for cash written by Robinson. The plaintiffs alleged the checks were payoffs.

Mrs. Gibson testified that in 1971, Mrs. Paulus cashed $6,300 in certificates of deposit and accumulated other funds from the estate of her dead husband. Mrs. Gibson said the funds were deposited in a new bank account in Houston.

COMING TO EARTH — The space shuttle Enterprise, followed by two chase planes, descends for its landing Wednesday following a test flight at Edwards AFB, Calif. It was the first time the craft was flown without its protective tail covering, which slowed its landing speed. (AP Laserphoto)

Space Shuttle Flight Rated 'Superb' By NASA Experts

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The Space Shuttle Enterprise all but completed its eight-month testing program Wednesday with what scientists said was a "superb" flight that proved the craft can return safely from space missions.

Described as the most important flight in the test program that began here last February, the 2½-minute diving glide of the Enterprise was made without the tailcone that had made previous test flights smoother than actual returns from orbit would be.

"It went better than most of us expected," said Donald K. Slayton, manager of the approach and landing tests.

"I'm sure there aren't going to be any problems flying it back (from space) now," said the craft's commander, Joe Engle, who flew the Enterprise along with pilot Richard Truly.

The powerless Shuttle, released from atop a Boeing 747 carrier plane at an altitude of 20,500 feet, coasted toward the desert floor at a much steeper angle than on three previous flights.

Without the 36-foot-long, 5,750-pound streamlined tail covering, the Shuttle's wide body ended not in a neat point, but in a blunt end. Removal of the cone also exposed three huge rocket exhausts with nozzles so wide a tall man could stand up inside them.

This made the Enterprise not only a poorer glider during the free flight — with the cone in place it stayed aloft for more than five minutes — but a more rambunctious passenger for the carrier jet during its climb to launching altitude.

As it struggled and strained to carry the Enterprise high enough for launch, the 747 shook roughly because the Shuttle disturbed the flow of air around the jumbo jet's tail.

"We got more buffet, but maybe a little less than we had expected," said Fitzhugh Fulton, pilot of the 747. "I think paying passengers might complain if they had to ride that way for very long, but it was okay for the launch."

Once it was set free, however, the Enterprise handled just as it had before, except for the steeper glide. At times, as it headed for dry lake runway, the craft appeared to be tilted downward at more than 25 degrees. The approach is expected to be about that steep when the Shuttle, having been blasted into space for scientific missions in Earth orbit, coasts back through the atmosphere in a long, powerless glide.

Slayton said that the principal milestone now remaining is testing of the engines, now estimated to begin in March 1979. One more landing test remains here. Now scheduled for Oct. 26, it will be essentially the same as Wednesday's flight except that the Shuttle will land on a 9,000-foot-long concrete runway. Engle and Truly put the Enterprise down on the lake bed runway with a roll of only 5,000 feet.

After the next flight, the Shuttle will be taken to Huntsville, Ala., for ground tests.

Congress Backs Safety Device Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress on Wednesday sustained a controversial Transportation Department decision to require air bags or other passive safety devices to be installed in all new cars by the 1984 model year.

The Senate voted 65 to 31 to table a resolution disapproving the decision by Secretary of Transportation Brock Adams. The House Commerce Committee earlier prevented the issue from being raised before the full House by voting 16 to 14 to table a similar motion.

The Transportation Department's ruling requires that new autos be equipped with devices that do not demand any action by the motorist to activate.

The two most common devices are air bags, which inflate when sensors on the front of the car indicate a crash is occurring, and automatic seat belts, which automatically wrap around a driver when the car door closes.

The government decision goes into effect unless both houses disapprove it by an Oct. 14 deadline.

The government ruling requires the installation of the devices in all large cars by model year 1982 and in all other motor vehicles by model year 1984.

"No single action take by the Congress this year holds more promise for saving lives and alleviating needless suffering," Adams said after the Senate vote. "This is a victory for us, but even more for our children, because highway accidents are the single greatest killer of American youth."

In Senate debate, Sen. Wendell H. Ford, D-Ky., said installation of airbags on all cars driven in the United States is amply justified in terms of lives saved and injuries prevented.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said the air-bag system would save millions of dollars in insurance premiums and payments.

But Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., in whose state the majority of the nation's automobiles is produced, said the air-bag system is insufficiently tested and is unreliable.

Griffin, the Senate sponsor of the resolution to disapprove the air-bag decision, said the system did not work 97 times in accidents involving 230 air-bag equipped cars.

He cited statistics that air bags will not prevent injuries in 50 per cent of highway accidents.

And he complained that some Department of Transportation officials "tried their damndest to suppress" evidence that air bags did not prevent injuries that would have been fatal in three of four tests in which cadavers were used in place of test dummies.

Griffin suggested that it would be wiser to enact legislation making the use of seat belts mandatory than to force the installation of a passive restraint system which he said is inadequate.

He also complained about cost, saying that while the Transportation Department claims an average installation cost of $120, it does not deal with estimates that once an air bag inflates, it will cost $300 to $600 to replace it.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said the central issue is one that has been at the center of his political career. "The issue of the federal government telling us how to run our lives."

Mule Event To Open At Ruidoso

RUIDOSO (AP) — This southern New Mexico mountain community caters to the quarter horse folk every Labor Day in the $1 million All American Futurity, billed as the "World's Richest Horse Race."

This weekend, however, Lincoln County is host for what some view as a comedown from quarter horses.

The second annual Lincoln County Mule-O-Rama opens today.

Mules will race, barrel race, pole bend, rein, cut and do whatever mules think they should do.

Organizers say it's "unscheduled confusion when those stubborn rules decide to do their own thing."

Racing mules, they say, "may rush to the stride to open a daylight lead with ears flicking vigorously." However, in one race last year, that wasn't the case.

One mule had about a 20-length lead on the field. The mule stopped, ambled over to the fence and suddenly was out to lunch.

The No. 2 mule was overtaken by curiosity and joined the lunch bunch.

The first mule to complete the race was pulled across the finish line, and there was much confusion as to whether it was a fair finish.

"No one is sure who won the race," a Mule-O-Rama spokesman said.

Mule racing is becoming a serious matter in Lincoln County. And he mules are not to be outdone by quarter horses.

In 1979, an estimated $75,000 Lincoln County Mule-O-Rama Futurity is set. It's dubbed "History's Richest Mule Race."

Meanwhile, the mules will compete in races from 50 yards to one mile, bull chariots and go on the auction block at the second annual mule sale.

Medicaid Abuses Examined

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government project to find the worst 500 Medicaid abusers among doctors and druggists was expanded when computers turned up 47,000 suspicious cases, HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. told Congress Wednesday.

Califano said the government has decided to investigate the 2,500 most suspicious cases, 50 in each state. The number includes 400 doctors and 1,100 druggists who submitted health care bills in 1976.

Indictments are expected to begin this fall, he said.

The search for violators was halted at 2,500, according to one knowledgeable source at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, because of the limited number of state and federal investigators.

"It's a matter of how many you can prosecute," he said.

The HEW program, originally called Project 500, became Project Integrity and its computers screened 250 million bills submitted for Medicaid reimbursement during 1976 by some 230,000 doctors and 44,000 pharmacists.

The name was changed, officials said, because HEW believed the 500 might be viewed as setting a quota. Additionally there was some doubt the project would turn up that many suspected cheaters.

Instead, computers since April have flagged 47,000 suspicious cases, an HEW spokesman said.

"The process we've been following is to take the most flagrant, most severe apparent abnormalities, the so-called worst cases and investigate them," he said.

"It doesn't mean the rest of the cases aren't worth investigation."

He said no decisions have been made on what to do with the other 44,500 cases.

Califano told the Senate health subcommittee the federal-state Medicaid program "is very vulnerable to fraud and error and we think we can clean it up."

The HEW secretary gave these examples of questionable charges: a doctor who first billed for a hysterectomy, then for an abortion on the same woman last year, and a druggist who charged Medicaid for 478 prescriptions for the same patient.

As he testified, House-Senate negotiators reported reaching agreement on legislation to increase criminal penalties for doctors and other health care providers who cheat the Medicaid and Medicare programs.

Formal approval of the conference report is expected quickly. Califano told the subcommittee the legislation "does you great credit" and said Carter would sign it.

Crimes committed before enactment of the new law would not be subject to its provisions.

Abortion Funding Dispute Cuts Federal Payroll

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional deadlock over federal funding of abortions is beginning to cripple unemployment and welfare programs in some states, the Carter administration said Wednesday.

In some jurisdictions, thousands of poor people and others dependent on government benefits were threatened with cutoffs of funds beginning today. And hundreds of federal workers protested loss of pay held hostage by the dispute.

At stake on Capitol Hill is a $60 billion appropriation for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. Because the appropriation is stuck in Congress, those departments ran out of funds on Sept. 30, the close of the last fiscal year.

Congress is holding up the money while it argues whether tax funds included in the bill should be used to pay for abortions under federal medical aid programs.

The House wants to restrict government payments for abortions to cases in which a woman's life would be threatened by a full-term pregnancy. The Senate proposed paying for abortions when a woman's life was in danger, in cases of rape or incest or if an abortion were deemed "medically necessary." House critics say the provision about medical necessity is too liberal and demand its deletion.

In a vote taken Wednesday, the House said it would allow the government to pay for abortions under federal medical aid programs in cases where a woman's life would be jeopardized by a full-term pregnancy and in some cases of rape and incest. But the plan is not expected to break the deadlock with the Senate on the question of using federal funds for abortions because key senators already have rejected it.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and HEW Secretary Joseph Califano both urged Congress to adopt temporary funding measures to keep programs running and prevent a salary cutoff for 150,000 employees of the departments and 75,000 workers in state unemployment offices.

However, House leaders oppose any interim funding, saying the abortion question could prevent passage of that type of measure as well.

Marshall said that unless action is taken by Friday, unemployment offices in Kansas, Pennsylvania, Arizona and Delaware will close, ending jobless insurance benefits to three million persons.

In addition, he said, "Our safety and health compliance inspections, investigations of equal pay, age discrimination and minimum wage complaints have been severely curtailed except for emergencies."

At HEW, Califano said benefits will be cut off for thousands of poor people, children, the sick, aged and disabled unless Congress acts by today.

Specifically, he said New York would not be able to pay its welfare workers, that Texas is laying off 612 employes and Idaho is running out of money for its nutritional aid and community services for the aged.

Biweekly paychecks for HEW and Labor department employes will shrink to half-size next week because of the congressional inaction and then will come to a halt until the abortion funding dispute is resolved.

At the Labor Department, 500-600 federal workers held a rally on their lunch hour Wednesday to protest the loss of wages. "The babies and the banker and the builders don't want to hear about abortion," Russell Binion, president of Local 12 of the American Federation of Government Employees, told the crowd.

Mothers-To-Be Urged To Quit Smoking

BOSTON (AP) — Women who smoke during pregnancy are nearly twice as liable as nonsmokers to lose their babies through spontaneous abortion, a study says.

The researchers recommended that women give up smoking to increase their chances of having full pregnancies with normal childbirth.

This study, conducted at New York's Columbia University, adds another argument to the growing case against smoking during pregnancy. Earlier studies have shown that babies of women who smoke are smaller than normal and more likely to die at birth.

A report on the latest study was published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The researchers were not sure why women who smoke have more spontaneous abortions, but they said there are two main theories. One is that smoking women eat less than nonsmokers. The other is that fetuses of smoking women do not get enough oxygen.

Researchers compared the smoking habits of 574 women who aborted spontaneously to those of 320 who delivered after full pregnancies.

They found that 41 per cent of the women who aborted were smokers, compared to 28 per cent of the women who had normal pregnancies.

Cross-multiplying figures for the number of women in both groups who smoked and didn't smoke, the researchers calculated an "odds ratio" of 1.8 for "the highly significant association with smoking." They said that meant a woman who smoked was 1.8 times as likely to have a spontaneous abortion as one who did not.

"My recommendation is that one shouldn't smoke during pregnancy," Dr. Jennie Kline, one of the researchers who conducted the study, said in an interview.

"There are certainly other reasons besides spontaneous abortion for not smoking," she said. "It's also related to low birth weight and increased risk of perinatal death" during or shortly after childbirth.

A spontaneous abortion — as opposed to one that is induced artificially — is defined as one in which a woman naturally loses a fetus less than about 20 weeks old. The researchers did not distinguish between a spontaneous abortion and a miscarriage, which is generally defined as loss of the embryo or fetus during the first three months.

The researchers found no link between the risk of spontaneous abortion and the number of cigarettes smoked. However, they said they may not have examined enough women to discover such a pattern.

They said the risk of spontaneous abortion was the same among women of all ages and was not affected by whether women had had earlier induced abortions.

Reverse Discrimination Question Before Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allan Paul Bakke's attorney told the Supreme Court on Wednesday his client "has a right not to be discriminated against because of race." But Archibald Cox countered that racial minorities are entitled to special treatment to offset past discrimination. With those arguments, the opposing attorneys confronted the court with the most important race relations controversy to reach it in a generation. The judgment of the nine justices on Bakke's "reverse discrimination" case could have a profound effect on the future of so-called affirmative action programs in education and business across the nation. Many civil rights leaders and constitutional scholars believe the justice's decision could rank in its impact with the court's 1954 ruling that outlawed segregation.

The case drew wide attention, and hundreds of people lined up outside the court building as early as Tuesday evening to be able to see the session. "Allan Bakke's position is that he has a right not to be discriminated against because of race," San Francisco attorney Reynold Colvin argued in urging the court to uphold a ruling by the California Supreme Court. The state court ruled that a special admissions program used by the University of California's medical school at Davis made Bakke a victim of racial discrimination because it allowed less academically qualified minority students to enter while excluding Bakke. Bakke, a 37-year-old Sunnyvale, Calif., engineer with the nation's space program, successfully contended in state courts that he would have been admitted if the med school had not set aside 16 each year's entering class for minority students. The university appealed the California court's ruling, and Cox, its attorney, argued that such a program is needed to aid persons "long victimized by racial discrimination." While Cox's arguments focused on the rights of minorities to have a real opportunity for full membership in American society, Colvin's contentions centered on Bakke's rights as an individual to be treated equally. Both attorneys said the Constitution's 14th Amendment, which guarantees equal protection, favored their positions. Each member of the court posed questions to the attorneys, the first coming only seven minutes after Cox began his presentation. Cox was joined by the Carter administration's solicitor general, Wade McCree, who appeared as a friend of the court to urge the justices to overturn the California ruling. "To be blind to race today is to be blind to reality," he said in arguing that governmental affirmative action programs have not yet achieved their stated goals of equal justice and equal opportunity. While Cox argued that the medical school program had the valid "objective of breaking down isolation," Colvin claimed that "race itself is an improper guide for selection to the medical school." While Colvin said the California court was correct in its finding that "there were alternatives" to a race-conscious admissions policy, Cox contended, "The other alternatives suggested simply will not work." Cox and Colvin also entered into a semantic discussion over whether the admissions program at Davis represented a "racial quota." Colvin charged that it did, that a certain number of medical class seats were reserved for racial minority members therefore limiting the seats for which whites such as Bakke could compete. Cox said the program was "not a quota, at least as I would use the word." He stressed that only "qualified" minority applicants were admitted under it. But Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. asked, "Does it really matter what we call this program?" Cox agreed that the central issue was whether the university's program could "take race into account." Many of the justices' questions centered not on the constitutional question but one of federal law. The California courts found that the program not only violated the Constitution's 14th Amendment but also a portion of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 which prohibits racial discrimination in educational programs receiving federal funding. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Byron R. White pressed Colvin and Cox on whether the case could be decided without reaching the constitutional question. If the court takes such a route, the chances of an expected "landmark" decision would decline. MADE IN THE U.S. Although the names are foreign and far-away sounding, the cheese is made in the U.S. For example, Cheddar is manufactured in 24 states, while Mozzarella is made in 17. Eight states make Muenster and the same number manufacture Provolone. Three states provide Scamorze, ditto for Parmesan and Romano.

Much Rides On Court's Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two old soldiers of the civil rights movement were present Wednesday in the decorous chamber of the Supreme Court. One of them, Thurgood Marshall, sat at the bench where he has a one-ninth share in the court's vast though cautiously-exercised power to change American life. The other, James Nabrit, sat in the audience, engrossed in the courtroom drama.

Twenty-three years ago, the two black lawyers were at the cutting edge of the fight to win a fair shot at the American dream for the children and grandchildren of slaves. They were two of the chief attorneys of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People when it asked the court to outlaw segregated schools.

Victory in that case led to the issues argued before the court Wednesday. Now it is a white man, Allan Bakke, who is asking for justice to remedy what he sees as unconstitutional discrimination because of the color of his skin.

And now, Marshall sits among the nine who will decide whether it is constitutional for the government to give special preference to racial minorities and women in the competition for jobs and for space in schools of medicine and law as a way of compensating them for the disadvantages of past discrimination.

But the emotions of the debate, displayed in protest demonstrations and political rhetoric, were left outside the courtroom where guards frown if spectators talk to one another and the crier's gavel commands the audience to its feet as the justices take their seats.

Archibald Cox, arguing the university's case, began to speak. He defended the constitutionality of affirmative action programs to benefit minorities.

With reading glasses perched on the end of his nose and a yellow pencil gripped in his hand, he might have been lecturing his Harvard students in the fine points of constitutional law.

But he was dressed, not for the classroom, or for many places on earth, but for the United States Supreme Court. Where else does a man wear a black tailcoat at 10 o'clock in the morning?

The market for morning suits is limited to diplomats, a few bridegrooms and Justice Department attorneys who traditionally wear such garb in arguments before the Supreme Court.

Although more than a decade has passed since Cox represented the government as John F. Kennedy's solicitor general, he still follows the sartorial code of that office.

Bakke's attorney, Reynold Colvin, wore a simple dark business suit and vest like other private lawyers who appear before the court.

The court has unwritten rules about dress and Chief Justice Warren E. Burger is said to be affronted greatly when lawyers wear flashy clothes into his presence. Consequently, those who want to win don't.

Spectators, many of them lawyers and law students, filled the 300 or so spaces on hard wooden benches and chairs for the two hours of debate.

They were admitted on a first-come, first-serve basis and for four University of Virginia law students, that meant a 16-hour wait throughout the chilly night on the plaza outside the court building.

They were first in the line of hundreds because "this is history," said Mark Lester of Little Rock, Ark. Many others were turned away.

"How did it go?" someone asked Colvin after the session.

"God knows," he sighed.

The same question was put to Cox.

"I did my best and I hope that it will be good enough," he said. "The best advice is what my father used to give me, 'Possess your soul in patience.'"

68-Year-Old Man Trapped In Bed

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — An elderly man was trapped for up to five days in a heavy folding sofa bed and had to be hospitalized for cuts, bruises and malnutrition.

Hospital officials said Leon Colby, 68, was in serious condition. He was found Saturday by his landlord, Ed Anderson, who wanted to know why Colby was late with the rent.

Anderson said when he found Colby "his head and shoulders and an arm were wedged between the springs and the iron edge of the bed."

The Fire Department was summoned and it took rescuers 15 minutes to free him. Fire officials said Colby apparently fell into the bed while trying to open it.

Carter Says Israel Move Aids Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Wednesday that Israel's approval of a U.S. proposal for Palestinian representation at a Geneva peace conference is "a first step" toward an eventual Middle East peace settlement.

In an informal, abbreviated, and generally optimistic news conference, Carter said that "every week now is bringing about some progress toward a Geneva conference."

Carter plans a formal news conference at 9:30 a.m. today.

The Carter administration proposal was approved unanimously by the Israeli cabinet Tuesday.

Rex Granum, a deputy White House press secretary, said the proposal was "a working paper" that may require further negotiations with both sides after Arab nations review it.

Meanwhile, the White House announced that Panamanian Gen. Omar Torrijos would visit with Carter here on Friday to discuss the Panama Canal treaty and the public debate surrounding it. Carter has acknowledged that Senate approval of the treaty is in doubt.

Carter stopped to chat with reporters after bidding farewell to Nigerian leader Olusegun Obasanjo. He said that in the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty talks in Geneva, the United States had found "nothing to indicate there has been an irresolvable difference" with the Soviet Union on arms limitations.

Carter said that his meetings with Obasanjo, which lasted more than two hours on Tuesday and 90 minutes on Wednesday, were "a great stride forward" in U.S.-African relations and marked a reversal of a coolness between Nigeria and the United States during the two previous administrations.

Jerrold Scheeter, associate White House press secretary, said that Carter and Obasanjo discussed the SALT talks, the Middle East, nuclear nonproliferation and oil.

would give Carter "a strong energy bill" before adjourning Nov. 1, despite Senate action that has eliminated from the package much of what Carter wanted.

Gunman Hits Littlefield Restaurant

Mrs. Glynda Isbell, who operates the steak house with her husband, Edwin, said only a few customers were in the restaurant when the holdup occurred, and "they didn't know anything was going on."

Hearn said the robber remained calm throughout the holdup, "as if he knew what he was doing."

A teletype message relaying the suspect's description was sent around the state, Hearn said, adding, "Hopefully, some other town may have a similar case."

Meanwhile, police await word on a search for an older, dark green, possibly medium-sized Chevrolet bearing white license plates.

The holdup here Wednesday marked this city's first in nearly a year, Hearn said.

And he said Texas must "hold down state spending and keep our government on a pay-as-you-go basis. We must stop the increase in the number of commissions and agencies, and we must make sure the taxpayer is getting a dollar in value for every tax dollar that is spent."

During his last term, Short was chairman of the House committee on intergovernmental affairs and earlier was vice chairman of the agriculture committee.

Worrying about farmers' tax problems and the probable revision of the public school finance property tax system, Short said he is "pretty well convinced that (productivity valuation of farm land) is not going to be accepted."

It would be the farthest thing for agriculture, he noted, but said he feels something "moderate" in some other valuation line must be looked at "rather than continuing with something that's about 15 years old and nearly out as an idea."

He was not specific on what other tax approach he would take.

But he declared the public must realize that when a farmer is getting low prices for his products he cannot pass his costs on to the consumer the way other businessmen can.

"I've got cotton in the field now" and "we're getting 10 to 15 cents less for it now than a year ago," Short said.

Short pointed with pride to work he did on behalf of Texas Tech University and the University of Texas at Permian Basin in Odessa while in the House.

"I have been instrumental ... in their endeavors to get new schools and research money for medical, agriculture and other programs" at the schools, he said.

Short promised he will be an "independent" voice for West Texans if elected to the Senate.

His House District 77 included Andrews, Gaines, Lynn, Martin, Terry, Yoakum and Hockley counties.

He originally was elected to fill the unexpired term of a former Andrews state representative who resigned to accept a post from then Gov. Preston Smith.

Short won 43.4 per cent of the vote in a nine-candidate special primary election then.

While a lawmaker, Short authored legislation on rural hospitals, counties and cities, natural resources, health, agriculture, oil and gas, medicine, civil and criminal law and liquor regulation.

Last year he was chairman of the joint Textiles for Texas Committee, a 15-member panel including House and Senate members and representatives of the governor.

Oil Price Talks

Nigeria supplies 20 per cent of the foreign oil reaching the United States, Scheeter said that Carter "urged the Nigerians to consider the world-wide impact of further price increases and requested the Nigerian's help in holding down further price increases."

The only negative note Carter sounded while standing under sunny skies on a stone path leading to the Oval Office was on his problems winning Senate approval for his energy proposal.

Carter said the energy crisis was "much more severe than it was six months ago" when he introduced his proposal in three nationally televised appearances in one week.

Appeal On Energy

"I think it is important for me again to go back to the country and reaffirm the reasons, which have not changed, for the comprehensive energy policy we have adopted," Carter said.

Carter has said in the past he would not hesitate to appeal, over the heads of the members of Congress, for support from the American public when he deemed it necessary. Asked whether he was contemplating such an action, he replied: "No, I think I'll be working with most of the members of Congress."

Granum, declining to say what Carter had in mind, said: "We've had a feeling there needs to be an increased visibility."

At the same time, the White House confirmed a report that Carter had ordered the National Security Council to study the impact an oil embargo would have on the United States, to determine the nation's vulnerability and how it should cope with a cut-off of supplies.

Carter met at breakfast with congressional leaders and after the session, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts predicted that Congress

He also said the Carter Administration was "working on" an agreement to allow U.S. news agencies to open bureaus in Cuba.

In his luncheon speech, Todman told the group of about 400 editors at the Cerromar Beach Hotel 30 miles west of San Juan that American newspapers should try to give their readers a deeper understanding of countries south of the U.S. border.

"The need for public understanding creates a challenge for you in the news profession as well as for us in government," Todman said.

"The really important stories are already there, waiting to be told."

He said it was a "tragedy" that some newspapers focus on dramatic events like coups and hurricanes.

Urban Housing Program Signed By President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's first new urban program was signed into law on Wednesday, promising billions for ravaged American cities and their poor and out of work residents.

The $14.7 billion housing bill includes an expansion of the Community Development program, with an emphasis on older cities, as well as more money for housing programs and rent subsidies for poor families.

The rent subsidies plus added financial aid to hard-pressed cities will help an additional 345,000 families find housing at rents they can afford, according to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Detroit is the biggest winner among big cities, boosting its share of federal community development dollars from $28.3 million this year to $65.7 million in 1980, according to the most recent HUD figures. New York gets a boost from $151 million to $255 million, while cities such as Atlanta and Oklahoma City are held relatively constant in receiving about $14 million and $8 million respectively.

The housing and community development bill, product of a two-month conference between the House and Senate, extends the community development program for revitalizing cities for three years and funds it with a total $10.9 billion, a $2.4 billion increase.

Included in the housing bill is $1.2-billion in rent subsidies for low-income families, as well as a variety of subsidies for homeowners and the housing industry.

Carter aides expect the measure to spur private investment in distressed urban areas, again where the need is the greatest.

The bill also increases mortgage insurance and lowers down payment requirements under the Federal Housing Administration.

Jobs Boost Seen

At the same time, administration officials estimate the measure will provide a half million jobs in construction and related industries where unemployment rates are the highest.

Agreement Reached In Water Dispute

Attorneys representing both sides were present at Wednesday's meeting, and both agreed that passage of the rate manual would mean dismissal of the long standing suit.

J. Ray Dickey, who along with Warlick Carr represents Lubbock on the Authority, said after the meeting he was satisfied with the approval. He said, however, it did not accomplish what "we set out to do."

"Mr. Carr and I were in agreement that it's something we can live with," Dickey said.

Before leaving, Templeton said, "This question of proper assessment for operation and maintenance has been a source of conflict since the water authority was organized in 1961. Both sides gave in order to reach this solution."

He added that, while the northern cities belonging to the authority feel they had received unfair debts compared with the southern cities, this debt had been cut considerably from what the rate manual, proposed in 1972, stipulated.

The effect of the unanimous passage of the manual, Templeton said, "is to set a new standard for determining charges. In my opinion, these charges cannot be changed except by a unanimous vote by the board at some future time."

Government Crackdown Hits CB 'Whiskey Club'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission cracked down Wednesday on the alleged leader of the CB "Whiskey Club," which the FCC said promotes nationwide use of unauthorized citizens band radio equipment, channels and call signs.

The commission served notice on Jesse D. Runyan of El Dorado, Kan., to show why his CB license should not be revoked and why his license as an amateur radio operator should not be cancelled.

Runyan was given 30 days to respond to the FCC order and ask for a hearing if he desires.

The FCC said "it appears that Runyan was founder, member and leader" of the Whiskey Club, sometimes called the "W Club," composed of CB operators who illegally use the single sideband mode of transmission.

These CB operators are organized into state Whiskey Clubs which employ a system of operator identification numbers consisting of the letter "W," preceded by a number representing the particular state's order of admission to the union and followed by the individual member's personal number," the FCC order said.

For instance, it said, members of the Kansas Whiskey Club use identifications with a "34W" prefix, adding that Runyan apparently uses the identifier of "34W1."

In addition, the FCC said, the Whiskey Clubs operate radio transmitting equipment on frequencies above those assigned to CBers by the FCC, apparently using equipment not approved by the FCC for CB use.

The complaint said it appears the operators use name, city and Whiskey number instead of commission call signs.

"Thus, it appears that this number assignment scheme enables members to identify each other over the air, while avoiding detection by the commission by concealing their identity and station location from the commission."

The complaint against Runyan was a major step in a campaign by the FCC against illegal CBers, mainly those who operate high-powered illegal equipment, which interferes with television and other communications.

CBers are limited to local communications of short distances.

The FCC first moved in a major way against the Whiskey Clubs in August by acting to revoke the license of Ellsworth L. Wells, head of the Florida Sidebanders Association.

Defendant Testifies In Murder Case

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The David Mabra case could go to the jury today, after Mabra — a man who will be sentenced to life imprisonment or death if convicted of a capital murder charge — spent a grueling day on the witness stand Wednesday.

Appearing ill at ease and showing occasional flashes of temper, the dark-haired defendant, 20, told jurors he had no intention of breaking the law when he entered the East Amarillo convenience store where Edith Whitfield was shot-gunned to death Oct. 22, 1975.

Mabra blamed the tragedy on actions of a companion, Donny Crawford, who already has been sentenced to death after a trial before an Amarillo jury.

It was after that verdict that Mabra's capital murder trial was moved to Judge John McFall's 237th Dist. Court on a change of venue.

After testimony from Mabra and three other witnesses, the defense rested late Wednesday. There seemed a possibility that prosecutors could offer rebuttal evidence this morning.

Police arrived at an Amarillo Toot 'n Totum store about 3:35 a.m. to find Mrs. Whitfield, the middle-aged attendant, lying dead behind the counter from a shotgun blast.

Wednesday, Mabra, responding to questions from defense attorney Bill Kolius, said he entered the store to buy some snuff, with no intentions of robbing the establishment.

Earlier, he had explained that he and Crawford had stolen weapons, including a .410 shotgun, from a vehicle belonging to a farmer for whom Mabra worked periodically.

The witness had said he and Crawford then left Crawford's apartment well after midnight, intending only to go rabbit hunting. He said he realized he was out of snuff while on the way out to shoot rabbits, and suggested stopping at the store.

As he was starting to leave the store, Mabra asserted, he suddenly saw Crawford, who allegedly had been waiting outside in a pickup truck, suddenly walk in with the .410 shotgun.

"He took the shotgun out and set it on the counter," Mabra stated.

"Mrs. Whitfield said she would give him anything he wanted."

Mabra said the attendant began stuffing paper bills into a sack.

"What did you say?" Kolius asked.

"I didn't have nothing to say," Mabra answered.

It was after the attendant had already placed money in the sack that the shooting started, according to Mabra.

"Donny took the shotgun up in both hands and slapped it down on the counter," the defendant said, raising his arms to illustrate.

Mabra said he thought Crawford had slammed the weapon on the counter to emphasize a point.

"He had told her if she identified us, we'd be back," he stated.

"When he slapped it down, it went off."

Mabra said the blast narrowly missed the woman, however. He said he started to bolt from the store.

He said Crawford had taken a step backward and seemed bewildered. "I had to go around him. I said 'Crawford' — I barely got out 'Crawford' and I heard the second shot," Mabra testified. He indicated he heard it as he was going out the door.

During a lengthy cross-examination by lead prosecutor Morris Overstreet, the defendant admitted he had been a thief and that he had tried to conceal evidence of the crime from authorities. But he stuck to his guns concerning events inside the store.

Overstreet asked what Mrs. Whitfield had looked like when the first shotgun blast went off.

"She was kind of shocked, she just stood there with her mouth open," Mabra said.

He said he thought the shot had narrowly missed because he saw the victim's hair "fluff out."

The prosecutor asked what he had seen in Mrs. Whitfield's eyes. "Fright," Mabra said.

"Horror?" Overstreet went on. "Terror?" The defendant answered affirmatively each time.

"Was there any doubt when you left the store that Edith Whitfield was dead?" Overstreet queried. Mabra said he didn't know if the victim were dead.

Overstreet had earlier made light of the defendant's story that he had originally driven to the farm property of John Watson, from whom the guns were stolen, in order to steal gasoline for Mabra's car.

Mabra said it was not true that he had gone to the Watson farm to steal guns in order to commit a robbery. He also had indicated he thought the Watsons were nice people.

"You had a couple of dollars. But you'd rather go under cover of night and steal gas from a person who's supposed to be a friend and then, when you couldn't, burglarize (his vehicle) and steal guns from him than spend your own money just to ride around?" Overstreet asked.

"It would appear that way," Mabra said.

Mabra's courtroom testimony differed from a confession introduced earlier in the trial by prosecutors. That document, signed by Mabra, said he carried in the shotgun and threatened Mrs. Whitfield with it.

The statement said the clerk was killed when his companion grabbed the gun, causing it to go off.

The testimony was essentially identical, however, with an original statement given investigators by Mabra.

Mabra Thursday indicated he had been tricked into signing the second document.

He said that investigator L.B. Bartlett had assured him that the second statement was basically the same as the first document he had signed.

The defendant explained that he could not read very well, a point substantiated by three teachers called by the defense. The teachers indicated that Mabra, in their opinions, read at a third or fourth grade level.

Overstreet asked why he had not asked to have the statement read aloud to him, pointing out that he must have realized the importance of what he was doing.

"Who would think somebody was going to come out bold-faced and tell a lie on you," Mabra said.

"If you can't believe a cop, who can you believe?"

Tuesday night the two men used sea anchors to hold their position when winds threatened to blow them south. When they were spotted at sunup, their balloon was 80 feet to 125 feet above the ocean and apparently doing well.

HARRA RETURNS! — Johnny Harra, one of the most highly sought Elvis Presley impersonators in the country, will make appearances tonight through Saturday night at the South Park Inn. Lubbockites are already familiar with his work at the Villa Club, but lately Harra has taken the Dallas clubs by storm. Showtimes are 8 p.m. and 11 p.m. tonight and Friday, and 9 p.m. and midnight on Saturday. The cover charge will be higher on Friday and Saturday. Call the South Park Inn for prices. A-J critic William Kerns has described Harra as "one of the best Elvis acts around today and the only one I've seen who comes off as actually more reverent than exploitative." Amtrak Head Says Reduced Service Inevitable Without More Subsidies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of Amtrak, the national passenger railroad service, claims that reduced service is inevitable unless Congress approves millions of additional dollars in subsidies.

Paul M. Reistrup, Amtrak's president, said, "Very simply, we are now being told to operate about 20 per cent more service than we are given the dollars for."

Reistrup was prepared to read his statement to a House transportation subcommittee Wednesday, but time ran out before he could testify and he will be recalled Thursday morning.

Even before he could present his case, Reistrup and Amtrak were under attack from several sides, including the subcommittee chairman, Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-Pa., who questioned whether there was any point to increased public subsidies for the beleaguered rail system.

Before Amtrak was created seven years ago, Rooney said, passenger railroads were either reducing service or raising fares.

"And that's what we're seeing now," he continued. "And it's sad, particularly when Congress is pouring a half billion dollars into it every fiscal year."

Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., commented that he rides Amtrak to and from his district and "60 per cent of the time it's 10 minutes late."

"Ten minutes and you're complaining?" asked Rooney.

A. Daniel O'Neal, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, testified that complaints from Amtrak passengers rose to 13,431 this year, an increase of more than 60 per cent over the previous year.

And New York State Transportation Commissioner William C. Hennessy said Amtrak has been a failure.

"Amtrak's losses are far larger than anyone projected," he said.

"Service quality had deteriorated to an unacceptable level, and potentially profitable short-to-medium distance corridors in the Northeast have been neglected. We do not have to make the nation's intercity traveler captive to an inefficient monopoly railroad."

In his prepared testimony, Reistrup is asking for an additional $56 million for the fiscal year which began Oct. 1. Amtrak originally asked for $534.1 million in federal operating subsidies this year, but the Carter administration reduced it to $500 million and Congress approved only $488.5 million.

Amtrak has announced that it is cutting back service beginning in November, including elimination of 22 trains in the heavily traveled Northeast corridor.

Reistrup conceded that the cutbacks, though necessary, don't make sense, since "we have to cut a lot to save a little, because we are also cutting revenues." The result may mean that Amtrak will no longer be a national passenger service, he added.

Amtrak was also criticized Wednesday by Douglas Ring, deputy Los Angeles County supervisor, who accused the rail system of renegeing on a promise to operate service between Los Angeles and other Southern California cities.

Egyptian Entry Throws Cake

LUGANO, Switzerland (UPI) — A "Lady Universe" competition at this small Swiss vacation spot produced some definitely unladylike behavior.

The contest, held Sunday, was won by Mangalica de Silva, an 18-year-old from Sri Lanka. Lady Puerto Rico placed second.

In separate sections of the competition, the Austrian entrant was elected Lady Europe and Lady Puerto Rico was voted Lady Americas.

This was all too much for Lady Egypt, the Lugano tourist office confirmed Wednesday.

They said Lady Egypt threw a chocolate cake at one of the organizers during the postcontest party.

Her fury, officials said, was based on a claim that Lady Sri Lanka was in fact a maid in Rome, although this did not mean she could not represent her country.

Carter To Seek Public Support For Energy Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter vowed Wednesday to "go back to the country" in an effort to drum up greater public support for his troubled energy program.

He also told congressional leaders he feels at least partly responsible for defeats the plan has suffered in the Senate and said he plans to work to reverse those losses.

Rex Granum, White House deputy press secretary, said no decision has been made on how or when Carter will make his pitch to the public. "There are a number of ideas which have been discussed for several days," he said. "But we're not in a position to announce anything yet." The President's top advisers, including Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, spent much of the afternoon considering three alternatives and combinations of them for presentation to Carter.

The possibilities are a television campaign, presidential travel in addition to his already-scheduled trip to Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado and California beginning Oct. 21, and appearances by Cabinet members.

Meanwhile, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, said congressional negotiations on differences between the House and Senate energy bills might begin as early as Thursday.

Democratic leaders from the House and Senate, including Jackson, met Wednesday and agreed on procedures for handling the legislation. The House considers the legislation one single bill, while the Senate has divided the package up five ways.

The House-Senate conferees will take no binding votes on other elements of the energy plan until the tax proposals have been voted on by the Senate.

The Finance Committee also met on Wednesday, concentrating on proposals to give tax breaks to businesses and individuals who conserve energy.

The committee has previously rejected all of the President's proposed energy taxes. On Wednesday, it approved tax breaks for industrial heat pumps and for equipment that converts ocean heat into useable energy. It also voted a 10 per cent investment tax credit for energy saving devices installed on trucks, buses and cars.

One of the toughest fights over Carter's energy plan is expected to come when conferees meet over the energy tax issue. The House has approved Carter's plan almost intact, while the Senate is expected to reject most if not all of Carter's proposals for using taxes as tools for forcing energy conservation.

Carter said the energy crisis is "much more severe than it was six months ago" when he presented his energy program to Congress. Since then, oil companies have been presenting their point of view, usually in opposition to the administration plan, on "almost an hourly basis," Carter said. "I think it is important for me again to go back to the country and reaffirm the reasons, which have not changed, for the comprehensive energy policy we have adopted."

He said he wouldn't criticize the publicity tactics of the oil companies, calling them "completely legitimate."

But, he said, "the basic struggle is whether or not the average family will be treated fairly," whether supplies will be adequate and international stability and national security can be maintained "or whether a special interest group can derive unwarranted advantage at the expense of the American people."

Asked if he plans to go over the heads of members of Congress in appealing directly to the people for support, Carter replied: "No, I think I'll be working with most of the members of Congress."

Jerrold Schechter, associate White House press secretary, said Carter has ordered the National Security Council to assess the effects another oil embargo would have on the U.S.

In addition to analyzing U.S. vulnerability, the study is expected to consider potential government response if foreign oil supplies are cut off.

Carter spoke with reporters after meeting with Nigerian leader Lt. Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo. Oil imports from Nigeria account for 20 per cent of the foreign oil reaching the United States.

Earlier in the day, Carter told congressional leaders at a White House breakfast that he will work harder to win public acceptance of his energy program.

According to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., Carter acknowledged that he has failed to give the legislation the same personal attention in the Senate that he gave it in the House.

O'Neill told reporters that despite the Senate setbacks, Congress will give Carter "a strong energy bill" before adjourning Nov. 1.

"If the President made a mistake," O'Neill said, "it has to be he didn't give the same following-of-legislation to the Senate that he gave to the House. He really followed it step by step. He didn't do that in the Senate."

Ted Kennedy Death Plot Book Assailed

BOSTON (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis reportedly doesn't mind that the New York publisher for whom she works has put out a novel about a fictional assassination attempt against Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

But Stephen Smith, Kennedy's brother-in-law, objects, the Boston Globe reported Wednesday.

Thomas H. Guinzburg, president of Viking Press, said Mrs. Onassis, a consulting editor, did not object to publication of "Shall We Tell the President?"

But Smith told him publication was an "act of venal commerce and in basic bad taste," Guinzburg said.

The novel involves a fictional conspiracy to assassinate Edward Kennedy, who in the book becomes president in 1981. The senator's brother and Mrs. Onassis's first husband, President John F. Kennedy, was assassinated in 1963.

British author Jeffrey Archer said he made Kennedy the object of the plot "simply as a fun thing for a novel."

The senator had no comment on the book.

Blacks' Fund Drive Brought To Close

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A fund-raising drive for the black woman whose arrest 22 years ago led to the elimination of city and state segregation laws apparently has come to an abrupt end.

The drive to raise $50,000 was launched last weekend by black leaders in Montgomery for Rosa Parks, whom they believed was unemployed and faced with heavy medical expenses.

But the Alabama Journal disclosed that Mrs. Parks continues to work as a receptionist in the Detroit office of Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich.

"I didn't realize they were doing anything like this," said Mrs. Parks.

Leaders of the fund-raising drive did not comment on what would be done with $1,300 already pledged.

Mrs. Parks was arrested in Montgomery on Dec. 1, 1955, for refusing to move to the rear of an intracity bus. Her arrest prompted blacks throughout the city to boycott the busline.

The boycott, led by the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., continued for more than a year until the Supreme Court knocked down city and state segregation laws.

Handicapped Children's Aid Expanded

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Thanks to a federal grant, the Lubbock Independent School District is helping surrounding communities provide services for handicapped preschool children. Using as a model the district's Developmental Education Birth through Two project, Dianne Garner is showing outlying school systems how to establish similar programs.

"Our purpose is to build on the success of DEBT," said Mrs. Garner, formerly a teacher in Lubbock's Early Childhood program. "We feel that DEBT has proven itself here in Lubbock. Now it's time to branch out and make these services available in other communities."

"In the outlying areas, there are perhaps hundreds of very young handicapped children who, without early identification and help, may never overcome their developmental problems. Their parents can sense that something is wrong, but they don't know where to turn," Mrs. Garner said.

She is coordinator of DOTS — the DEBT Outreach Training Staff — recently established by the Lubbock school system with a $61,000 first-year grant from the U.S. Bureau of Education for the Handicapped.

To understand DOTS, one must know about DEBT, a program funded by the federal government the past three years and now financed with local school district monies, Mrs. Garner said.

DEBT trains the parents of handicapped infants how to teach their children to overcome or minimize disabilities — such as hearing or visual impairment, mental retardation, speech problems and physical disabilities.

The program takes referrals from parents, physicians, social service agencies and other sources in an effort to identify as soon as possible children who may have developmental problems.

DEBT does provide some direct services, including a physical therapist, to the handicapped youngster. But the thrust of the program is to train parents themselves to work with their children.

DEBT teachers visit the homes of enrolled children regularly, keeping tabs on each infant's progress and bringing parents up-to-date on the latest teaching strategy relating to their child's particular disability.

"Parents are a child's most important teachers — and this is especially true with handicapped children," said Gloria Galey, DEBT coordinator.

"It's not too difficult for parents who suspect something is wrong with their baby to get a medical diagnosis. The hard part is finding out what to do next, after a disability has been confirmed. There just isn't much educational information available," she said.

Lack of counseling also can be a problem. "Many parents of handicapped children fall into a stage of depression or guilt because they don't know what they can do to help," Mrs. Galey said.

Here enter the DEBT teachers, who work with mothers and fathers in the home. They even operate a "do-it-yourself workshop" for parents to make

"When I was in Early Childhood, there was a noticeable difference between the kids who came to us through the DEBT program and the kids who had not been in DEBT. The DEBT kids had already been taught how to deal with their disability. They made much faster progress," Mrs. Garner said.

This is the first year that DEBT graduates have ascended to the elementary school level in Lubbock schools, Mrs. Galey added. And many who otherwise might have been assigned to self-contained special education programs are finding they can make it in the regular classroom — because they got help early, she said.

Until now, the DEBT program — which is free to parents — has been available only in the Lubbock Independent School District.

Mrs. Garner's job is to expand the program to surrounding areas. She hopes to set up "three to four sites" where similar DEBT programs can operate.

Mrs. Garner said she is contacting superintendents and special education directors of neighboring school systems about their interest in such a project.

Mrs. Garner said she realizes it may be difficult for a small school district to run and finance a DEBT program alone. Her hope is that community and civic groups might take responsibility for the program, staffing it perhaps with volunteers.

Volunteers are a "big part" of Lubbock's DEBT program, Mrs. Galey explained. Eight members of the Junior League work with the project here.

If a school district will endorse the proposal and a community agency or club can be found to run it, Mrs. Garner said, her staff will provide the expertise, training and materials for transplanting DEBT to outlying school systems.

Mrs. Garner said she already has some undisclosed sites in the mill, pending final arrangements. Her staff will sponsor workshops in surrounding communities to train new DEBT personnel how to duplicate Lubbock's program.

The DEBT outreach program is expected to be funded for a three-year period.

About 70 children 2 years old or less are enrolled in the Lubbock school system's DEBT program. In addition, the DEBT staff keeps up with the progress of many other youngsters who have advanced through DEBT and now are in the Early Childhood or elementary school programs.

learning devices and therapy tools specifically for their handicapped child, Mrs. Galey said.

"We may not be able to make that handicap go away, but we can make the child feel strong emotionally, so that he will grow into a productive citizen. And through DEBT, parents don't sit around feeling sorry for themselves or their child. They're doing things to help."

Mrs. Galey said this early intervention benefits the school district as well as the handicapped child. By overcoming or minimizing his disability as an infant, the youngster can be channeled into regular school programs — instead of more expensive special education programs — when he reaches school age, she said.

Mrs. Garner said she observed such success while a teacher in Lubbock's Early Childhood program, which picks up where DEBT leaves off, with handicapped children age three through five.

BANQUET OF ROSES—To make amends for a 9,000-pound elephant's unscheduled stroll through downtown Houston's streets last week, the Shrine Circus staff and their main offender, Lydia, a star in the circus, presented the police officer who captured the runaway with two dozen long-stem yellow roses.

The ceremony almost came to a halt Tuesday when the flowers apparently tickled Lydia's taste buds. Before the flowers made a rather expensive mid-afternoon snack, officer Wanda Boehm rescued her gift. (AP Laserphoto)

Residents, Businesses Seek Zoning Compromise By City

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Planning and Zoning Commission, to meet at 6 p.m. today in council chambers, will decide on compromise restrictions for heavy commercial (C-4) users on a tract of land in Southwest Lubbock.

A committee appointed last week to draw up a compromise on uses agreeable to commercial property owners and residents will present its recommendations. Restrictions would be on types of businesses that can be built on land north and south of 69th Street and east of Slide Road.

Nearby residents claim that because they have no buffer zoning their property value will diminish. Commercial property owners claim that their land was zoned C-4 long before the area became residential and that they should not be penalized for poor city planning.

After listening to two hours of heated dispute last week, the commission appointed the committee and ordered the feuding factions to formulate an acceptable settlement.

Mrs. Burnis Henderson, dismayed by large vehicles parked in her neighborhood, will ask the commission to recommend an amendment prohibiting such vehicles in residential zones.

The criteria for "large vehicles" would be those that require a commercial drivers license by drivers, she said.

Planning Director Jim Bertram, noting an uproar last year when the commission considered an ordinance that would prohibit parking recreational vehicles in residential driveways, said the commission probably will delay acting on Mrs. Henderson's proposal until more information is gathered.

A questionnaire probably will be sent out in water bills, soliciting homeowners' opinions on the proposed restrictions, which would be expanded to include recreational vehicles, Bertram said. Opinions on the degree of restrictions also will be asked, he said.

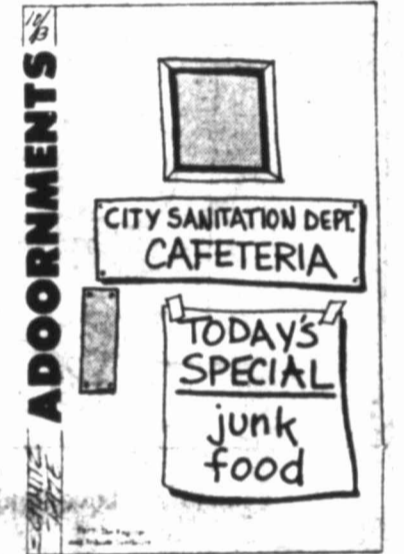

Mrs. Henderson, who contends that large commercial vehicles in residential areas lower property values and cause safety problems, said she is prepared to carry her fight as far as possible. Ultimately, she said, she would like to see the council adopt an ordinance forbidding all vehicles but automobiles from street parking.

Recreational vehicles also should be not be allowed in driveways or on the streets, she said, explaining that driveways serve as "off-street storage."

Mrs. Henderson, who lives in the 5200 block of 17th Street, said many of her neighbors park recreational vehicles and commercial vehicles in the street. That detracts from her home and is not safe, she said.

Her neighborhood's covenant provides that such vehicles cannot be parked there, she said, but she would have to sue her neighbors to make them park the vehicles elsewhere.

Council To Discuss Halting Pass-Through On Fuel Costs

The Lubbock City Council today will consider halting automatic fuel cost pass-throughs for natural gas and electricity consumers.

City Hall critic James Marshall also will appear before the council, which will meet in council chambers at 9:30 a.m.

Marshall, whose lawsuit to have Lubbock's May 21 bond election declared null has delayed the sale of $2.7 million in bonds, will discuss a section of the city charter that details the purpose of bonds, their sale and the use of proceeds.

According to Article 8, Section 2, Chapter 1 of the charter, all bonds must specify the purpose for which they are issued and would be invalid if sold for less than their par value. Also, the section says, when bonds are issued a fund must be provided to pay the interest and a sinking fund to redeem the bonds must be created.

Marshall, who contends that city officials have violated this section, is scheduled to discuss it with the council at 11:55 a.m.

If Marshall strays from the topic listed on the agenda or talks about the pending lawsuit, he probably will not be heard, according to City Mgr. Larry Cunningham. He explained that the lawsuit is discussed only between attorneys for the two sides.

At Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan's request, two proposed ordinances that would ban the automatic feature of fuel cost adjustments will be considered.

As proposed, the ordinances would not only repeal the automatic feature, but would prohibit all pass-throughs. Only the basic rate schedule would be applied to consumers' bills.

If the adjustment factor is banned, electric and gas companies would have to apply to the city council for a rate adjustment to pass on rising fuel costs.

The automatic pass-throughs for electric companies were approved in 1975. Gas cost adjustments were okayed by the council a year before that.

Jerry Kolander will appear before the council to apply for incorporation of Lake Ransom Canyon, which lies within the city's five-mile extra-territorial jurisdiction.

Last year the rural subdivision received city approval to incorporate. But residents of the subdivision east of Lubbock rejected the move in an election.

At 11 a.m., the council will hold a public hearing on the proposed annexation of about 418 acres of land bounded by 98th Street on the north, Indiana Avenue plus 660 feet on the east, 114th Street plus 660 feet on the south and Memphis Avenue plus 150 feet on the west.

Developer Ken Flagg requested the annexation of the north half of the total area, but the council extended the boundaries.

Part of the area already is developed and the council expects some opposition from residents there who don't want to live inside city limits, a city spokesman said.

Obviously irritated by a local restaurant's sign chastizing the city for ignoring crime in favor of enforcing sign ordinances, the council will consider adopting an ordinance that would prohibit such a sign within 1,000 feet of an intersection.

The restaurant, which repeatedly has been cited by zoning inspectors for violating the law by displaying a flashing, portable sign, would be included in the ordinance that prohibits signs that resemble "traffic devices."

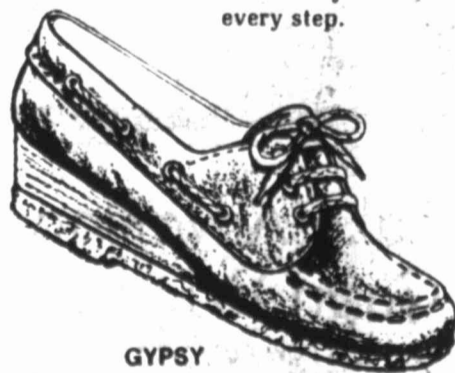

Flashing, lighted signs are considered by the state to resemble "traffic devices."

A date for a public hearing on the fourth-year Community Development Program will be set by the council. The Community Development Advisory Committee probably will draw up a program later this month, and the hearing probably will be late in November, a city spokesman said.

A revised Uniform Building Code, which includes a requirement that smoke detectors be included in newly constructed hotels, motels, apartment houses and residential houses, will be considered.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do thyroid tablets have anything to do with increasing the size of one's breasts? I have taken thyroid tablets for over a year and my breasts have increased considerably. — Mrs. M.I.H.

Thyroid medication should not be a direct cause of this. Weight gain can whether you are on thyroid or not. However, with medication to reduce thyroid activity there may be a slower metabolism (body utilization of nourishment) and some inordinate weight gain. Have you gained generally? If so you may need an adjustment of your medication.

In another thyroid-related question, Mrs. M.P. writes:

"I am 41. Eleven years ago I had my thyroid gland removed because of tumors. I take two grains of Proloid daily. What is it? I have had problems with thinning and graying of my hair. This started years before my operation. Is this due to my condition? Will the Proloid help?"

Proloid is purified extract of animal thyroid glands, containing the hormones. Mrs. M.P.'s hair thinning could have been due to her thyroid condition, but not necessarily. There are other non-gland causes. Among them are defects of the hair follicles, faulty nutrition, tight coiffures, too vigorous brushing, hair dryer settings, etc.

If the thinning was related to her underactive thyroid gland, the Proloid replacement hormones should give some improvement.

My mail indicates a tendency for patients to think of the thyroid gland in very simple terms. You're losing hair, so get some thyroid supplement. It's not that simple. Most often problems lie, as with hair loss, with much less complicated practices, such as hair grooming, etc.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You've mentioned that weight reduction can result in a lowering of cholesterol, which we know is part of the arteriosclerosis problem. But you also mentioned recently that there are drugs one can use to lower it in the blood. Which is the best way to do it — by drugs or by weight loss? How effective are the drugs? — Mrs. U.L.

It's always best to try weight reduction (if one is overweight) before trying drugs. The chief drug is clofibrate, which is marketed under various tradenames.

Doctors prescribe it very cautiously, especially for patients who may be on anticoagulant drugs. Nor should it be used by those with liver problems or in pregnancy.

It has been known to lower cholesterol and triglyceride levels by as much as 35 per cent. A copy of my booklet, "Control Cholesterol Sensibly," should answer most of the other questions you have on the subject, which I couldn't go into here because of space limitation. For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to go to my doctor and talk this over with him. But I am too embarrassed. So I turn to you, hoping you can help me out.

I'm a 17-year-old girl, and am very small on top (29 is my measurement). But what worries me is that about two or three months ago I was 31, and it seems like I'm shrinking. My mother doesn't know why. Could you tell me what you think of this situation? I want to know before it's too late to do something. — Worried

It is possible that the "31" measurement was made at the time of menstruation or just before it, when the breasts normally enlarge. Confine your measurements to mid-cycle and see if you are not "holding steady."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What's the difference between megavitamins and minivitamins? — H.L.

In the dosage. Normal dosages (I suppose that could be called "minivitamin dosages") would be measured in milligrams, or thousandths of grams. Megavitamin therapy involves whole grams at a time, sometimes hundreds of times greater than required by the normal body.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure you are doing all you can, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Deal with Varicose Veins." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

We haven't mentioned the code word ARCH for some time. "A" stands for Analyze the lead, "R" for Review the bidding, "C" for Count winners and losers and the all important "H" for How can I make my contract.

South lets West hold the first trick with his jack of hearts; wins the second in dummy and undoubtedly notes that East has dropped the queen to unblock.

If he doesn't stop to use that letter "H" he attacks diamonds. East takes his ace and knocks out South's ace of hearts. Now South counts to only eight tricks and needs a club finesse for his ninth. The finesse loses and so does South. He is down one, since West cashes two hearts.

If South counts his tricks early, he sees the need for two club tricks and should take an immediate finesse in that suit. It loses, but since East holds the ace of diamonds, West can't get in to cash two hearts and South collects his nine tricks.

What would happen if West held both the king of clubs and ace of diamonds? No play would work and South would have to pay off.

Ask the Jacobys

A Canadian reader asks what card you play from dummy. The deuce of spades has been opened against your three no-trump contract. Dummy holds Q5. You hold A 10 7.

The correct play is the five spot. This insures two spade tricks for you. If you rise with dummy's queen you may only score one trick in the suit.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I work for a large supermarket chain, as a deli manager. I enjoy my job, which is giving customers free samples of cheese, spreads, a piece of salami and other goodies.

Unfortunately, some people don't realize a sample is not a free lunch. It is a TASTE of the product offered, a gimmick to acquaint the customer with the flavor. Many times I have missed my coffee breaks to cut salami up in cubes, only to have customers grab handfuls and send the kids back four and five times.

When I put a tray of cheese spreads on top of the counter, some customers gobble like pigs, drop cheese on my bread and rolls and smear cheese on my showcase window.

My point is this: ENJOY! TASTE! If you like what you have tasted, buy some, take it home, and gobble and stuff yourself till you bust. Feed your grandchildren seconds, thirds and fourths if you like — and smear it all over YOUR windows. — Deli Lady

Dear Deli: One of the best ways to measure people is to watch the way they behave when something free is offered. Thanks for laying it out in such picturesque language. If anyone who reads this is wondering if Deli Lady is talking about you — she probably is.

Dear Ann Landers: Please answer this in your column. I'm sure a great many people would appreciate the information as well as myself.

Is there any number to call — any place where a person can report child abuse and not have to identify himself? I know of a situation that breaks my heart but the parents are both close to me and I would just die if they found out I turned them in.

I'm sure so many more people would cooperate with the authorities if they knew they could do it secretly. Thank you for your help, Ann. — Want To Help But Afraid

Dear Afraid: Every state offers protection for the abused child through its local child welfare department. A concerned neighbor or relative can report a case of child abuse anonymously.

In Illinois, you could call the Department of Children and Family Services. Many cities have hot-lines for immediate action. Check with your local district attorney or chief of police if the telephone operator cannot give you the number.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I have been using shower curtain hooks for years, other than for holding a shower curtain, because someone gave us a whole box once and I couldn't let them go to waste.

First, I put one on a hot water bottle. It holds the stopper when not in use so it does not get lost and the bottle hangs from the hook when drying in the bathtub.

I keep a few of the hooks on various plastic hangers (through the hole in the hanger). I like to drip-dry my blouses, etc., outside on the line in good weather. With the hook snapped over the line, the clothes don't end up on the ground.

When I put clothes away for the season, I use one of these hangers and put the belt on the hook. This way, I don't have to look for the belt later.

I have a small nylon net bag to wash small articles of clothing in the washing machine. I use a shower hook to gather the top of the bag instead of a string. It is much easier to close and open.

I took some heavy see-through plastic bags, which store purchases came in, and put a bulky sweater in each of them, then closed the bag with a shower hook.

I screwed some cup hooks into the back of my closet and hung one bag on each hook. I could see right away which sweater I wanted, and saved drawer space besides.

If I think of any other uses for the hooks, I'll let you know. — Leona Kolm

Great! And, in the meantime, I'll add one more use to your list, or perhaps it's just an enlargement on one you mentioned.

I saw a friend do this when she went camping last summer with four children, but the idea could be used anytime, for most anything.

Instead of using an ordinary see-through plastic bag (which would be prone to tearing, perhaps), she used one of the self-closing, zipper-type, clear plastic bags — one for each child's toilet articles, etc. She inserted the shower hook just under the zipper and had a built-in hanger.

This zipper prevented the hook from tearing the bag and it could then be hung anywhere. After much use and abuse at camp, the shower hook and bag were still intact at the end of the camping trip.

I thought it was such a clever idea for a quickie bag, I just had to pass it on. — Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I sew a lot and find it difficult to thread my machine needle because the polyester threads we use nowadays fray so badly.

To help solve the problem, I taped a small piece of soap to the top of my sewing machine. If you are afraid it might harm the finish, fold a piece of cloth or a paper towel and place under the soap.

Now I just dampen the thread and hold it against the soap, rolling it with my fingers.

Seems to seal and stiffen the thread so it goes through the needle easier. — P.C.

Tune In Tomorrow

BY JON-MICHAEL REED
NEW YORK — You can fool some of the people some of the time but you can't fool long-time soap opera viewers any of the time.

Hillary Kincaid came to "Guiding Lights" town of Springfield, U.S.A., to take courses as a student nurse at Cedars Hospital last summer. Her parents, especially stepfather Bill Moray, expressed strenuous objections to Hillary's move from the family abode in Vancouver, Canada. Hillary would argue, via long distance, with Bill about moving to Springfield. For many weeks he was photographed only in dark-shaded profile. Then one fateful day when stepdad decided to go to Springfield to talk to Hillary, Bill turned full-front to the cameras. And at that moment there was an instant gasp of nationwide recognition that the character was being played by Ed Bryce.

Bryce portrayed the show's core family patriarch, Bill Bauer, from the early years of the serial in the '50s through 1968. In that year Bill Bauer took a plane ride headed for Alaska and was reported killed in a crash. There was a proper funeral and much anguish for the Bauers.

Throughout the intervening years, Bill Bauer was mentioned sporadically by his bereaved family. But in recent months, just about the time Hillary came to town, there have been increased reminiscences about Bill Bauer, who has presumably been deceased for the last 10 years. Is it coincidence or Kismet that a now-bearded Ed Bryce has returned to the show as Hillary's stepdad and is avoiding contact with any Springfield natives while Bill Bauer's widow, Bert, is solidifying a senior-citizen romance with Dr. Steve Jackson? Draw your own conclusions, but be prepared for either the best or the worst.

ANOTHER NEWCOMER to "Guiding Light" is Curt Dawson as Dr. Peter Chapman, who seems mighty intrigued with nurse Rita Stapleton. Bachelor Curt has several previous serial credits under his career belt, most memorably as heartthrob Ron Talbot on "As the World Turns" a dozen years ago. Since then, the Kansas-born actor has appeared in several Broadway shows including "Absurd Person Singular" with Sandy Dennis, and as John Hancock in the public TV series, "The Adams Chronicles." Curt will be doing double duty in "GL" and the off-Broadway play "You Never Can Tell" at the Roundabout Theatre. But remember you never can tell what will happen next in the soap opera world.

SHORT TAKES

MARGARET KLENCK has joined the cast of "One Life to Live" as Edwina Lewis. Edwina is a sophisticated wench who throws a triangular wrench in the budding romance of newspaper reporter Richard Abbott and aspiring country-western singer Rebecca Lee Hunt. Becky's idol is Dolly Parton and she was recently dolled up as a Dolly-type for her Llanview singing debut that was "real down-home" and pretty nifty.

JULIA DUFFY (ex-Penny David Dancy on "The Doctors") stepped in for an ailing Kathy Breech as Karen Wolek on "O.L.T." last week.

LARRY BRYGGMAN is back in full force as John Dixon "As the World Turns" after a nearly three-month leave of absence. But Geoffrey Horne has departed the scene as Dr. Jim Strassfield, a character who never got off the ground in a romantic storyline. And for a potential heartthrob, that spells serial doom.

RECENT DEPARTURES from "Another World" include Carol Mayo Jenkins as Vera Finley, Pamela Brook as Corinne Seaton and Charles Bateman as Dr. Fred Morley Bateman. However, is preparing for a featured role in the new NBC serial tentatively titled "For Richer, For Poorer," which is slated to debut before the end of the year. And addition to "AW" is Arthur E. Jones as Claude Kelley, the detective Olive and Evan have hired to "get the goods" on Olive's husband John and John's secretary Joan.

ON "Days of Our Lives" Elaine Princi plays the role of Kate Winograd, the doctor who works with hero Bill Horton. Elaine is the daughter of Carl Princi, a renowned authority on classical music for a Los Angeles radio station.

Recipe Gives New Zest To Long-Time Favorite

By TOM HOGGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

With the arrival of fall, one's thoughts turn to that crisp, crunchy fruit, the adaptable apple. Apples are available year-round in America today, but they reach their peak in autumn. In fact, October has been chosen as National Apple Month.

A little more than a century ago, John Chapman, that American folk hero known as Johnny Appleseed, was born. For nearly 40 years, this bearded figure in shabby clothes traveled through Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, pressing apple seeds on anyone who was heading West. Johnny propagated apples across much of America, but ironically he never made it to Washington and California where many of our great orchards are located today.

Now, as food prices continue to soar and choices of fresh fruit at supermarkets become more restricted, the "pick your own" apple idea is becoming popular. There are several ways to do this when you are traveling through apple country. In some orchards, the proprietor lets you wander about and pluck your own apples. Others allow you to sort through filled bins placed under the trees and choose what you like.

Apples, as you know, present a wide variety of images. The Rome Beauty is very round and has been described as voluptuous. The Red Delicious is elongated with five points at the blossom end. And so on.

Apples help keep your weight down. I read a recent report suggesting that Americans should cut their sugar intake by 40 percent. One way to do this is to eat apples, which contain natural fruit sugars. Here's a recipe for baked apples stuffed with mincemeat that uses comparatively little sugar.

6 baking apples
1 1/2 cups apple juice
10 ounces mincemeat, fresh or canned
3 ounces sugar
1/2 cup concentrated frozen apple juice
1/4 tsp nutmeg
1 cup sour cream
1 ounce dark rum

Core apples to within 1/2-inch of bottom, and pare about 1-3rd way from top. Arrange in shallow baking pan, pared side up, and stuff each with 1 ounce mincemeat. Pour apple juice into pan and bake at 375 degrees till apples are tender. Remove from oven and sprinkle each apple with sugar, then broil a few minutes till golden brown. Mix 4 ounces mincemeat, frozen apple juice concentrate, nutmeg, sour cream and rum. Chill this sauce and just before serving pour over baked apples. Serves 6.

Escapee Appears In TV Movie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oregon prison escapee Bill Foulon has appeared in a television movie since he fled prison walls six months ago — and he's still a free man.

"I guess it's really no big deal," Wayne Eatherly, a records officer at Oregon State Penitentiary, said after Foulon's story appeared Tuesday in the Los Angeles Times.

"Of course, we'd like to get him back," Eatherly added. "We're going to ask the Los Angeles police to look for him."

Foulon, who was sentenced to five years for burglary, escaped in May.

The 30-year-old fugitive says he got the idea to get into the bar and was watching the camera to see what was going on. He landed a bit part as a British soldier.

Foulon watched the movie, about the eldest son of Rose Kennedy and the late Joseph P. Kennedy, on television when he arrived here two weeks ago.

He is staying with an unidentified friend, who says that attempts to persuade Foulon to give himself up have been fruitless.

Musical Chairs Record Gained

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Some 1,789 high school students broke a musical chairs record here in hopes of gaining a niche in the Guinness Book of World Records.

Chief organizers Jim Matheson and Steve Bennett had planned to challenge the listed mark of 1,082, but 1,674 Michigan State students beat them to the punch Saturday night.

So after rounding up extra students and chairs, the mayhem began Tuesday.

Organizers shouted instructions from atop East High's football stadium as swarms of players circled the 1,788 chairs to rock music.

A student named Jonathan Winters ended up in the last chair.

The organizers said they hoped their record would stand — if only for a few days.

Success Greatest Dream

Success is the Great American Dream; the younger it comes, the louder the praise. Take 14-year-old Nadia Comaneci, for examination; the elfin Romanian acrobat who cartwheeled her way to three gold medals at the Summer Olympics in Montreal.... Or 16-year-old Steve Cauthen, who captured the hearts of millions by winning, in less than a year, nearly 500 races and well over $1 million.

But being an early-bloomer doesn't guarantee long-term success, says Dr. Stella Chess, professor of child psychiatry at New York University School of Medicine and co-author of the book "Your Child is a Person."

"Some early-bloomers do so well without making any effort, that they never learn how to make an effort. Then when they meet other people who can do as well, but who have also learned to make an effort, they're lost," she states in Family Circle.

"There is no substitution for sheer maturation," agrees Stanley Lock, a Julliard graduate and Fulbright scholar who is now chairman of the music faculty at Sarah Lawrence College Bronxville, N.Y.

"People mature at different ages," he says, "and this, of course, is part of the so-called late-bloomer aspect of our lives. No matter how bright you are at 18, you aren't going to understand music or literature the way you will at 35."

So take heart: Those of us who seem to have less natural talent can, and sometimes do, catch up by dint of hard work.

Stallone Getting Paranoid

"I'm not a person anymore. I'm someone to be challenged and taunted and stripped of my identity," says actor Sylvester Stallone. "I enjoyed the attention at first, but now I'm getting paranoid."

Stallone's paranoia can be attributed to the abuse he received from the hundreds of Rocky fans who converged daily on the set of his latest film, F.I.S.T., filmed in Dubuque, Iowa.

He was mobbed during an early morning jogging session, hit on the jaw by a female fan during an autographing session and made all but a prisoner in his hotel room with armed guards at the door.

"At first they want to touch. Then they want to grab," says Stallone in US magazine. "One of these days some nutso is gonna have a knife. So I stay in my hotel room and paint. I love it here. I would be a great Trappist monk."

Pranksters Glue School Shut

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Students at a high school got an unexpected holiday when they arrived for classes but found the school doors glued shut.

Pranksters had squirted a special industrial glue into locks of the building's 15 exterior doors and 106 classrooms and offices early Tuesday, rendering keys useless, police said.

The 750 students were sent home for the day while workmen installed new locks costing $6,500.

"It was pretty funny, especially since no one knows who did it. But it was going a little bit too far for a prank," said Baerbel Klein, 17, the student body president.

Bank Loans Students Money To Enter Pumpkin Business

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — Bank manager Wally Adams sat the 35 third-graders around his conference table and told them yes, he would approve their $100 loan so they could go into the pumpkin business.

But they have to repay it by Nov. 1 — with 82 cents interest.

With Adams' go-ahead, Lois Richards, loan officer at the Bellevue branch of the Seattle-First National Bank, processed the application Tuesday. It didn't matter that none of the applicants could say how much they plan to pay for the pumpkins or how much they'll charge when they sell them to their classmates at St. Louise School.

As head of the class foray into high finance, pupil Jason Mattingly signed on the dotted line. So did teacher Sheri Andrews, to make it legal.

Pupil Sioban Guichon said he knew the class had done a lot better at the bank than it would have accepting a loan offer from a St. Louise teacher.

"She said we had to pay $50 'rent,'" he said.

"And we had to pay it back by Saturday," added another pupil.

What will happen if the money isn't there when the loan comes due?

"We'll just write a check," one youngster said.

"If we only make like $80, we'd have to, uh, babysit," said Michael Osterhought.

"If you can't pay it back, they take things you have," worried another little fellow. "Your house, your car, your bike...."

One little girl said the venture looked like a sure thing "on account of Halloween."

Banker Adams didn't seem worried about the possibility of a default. He said it was often good financial practice to borrow money to pay for an inventory.

"We plan to discuss that," the teacher said. "We're going to talk about the idea of using money frivolously. This is just the first of the unit."

Study Reveals Oil Company Energy Holdings

WASHINGTON (AP) — American oil companies own 47 percent of the nation's known reserves of uranium ore and 41 percent of its uranium milling capacity and hold 12 percent of known U.S. coal reserves, according to a congressional study released Wednesday.

The study was done by the Library of Congress at the request of Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on energy research and development.

Church said he felt it was important for Congress to know the extent of oil company ownership of non-petroleum resources as it considers major energy legislation.

The 385-page report showed widespread holdings by the nation's largest oil companies in uranium, coal, oil shale and geothermal resources.

Of the 47 percent holdings oil companies have in uranium deposits, the largest single holder is Kerr-McGee, with 21 percent of the nation's total, the report said.

The next largest is Gulf, with 11.6 percent of the total, it said.

While the overall 47 percent figure applies to uranium available at prices up to $30 a pound, the oil industry's share of relatively lower-price uranium is even greater, the report said.

It said that oil companies hold 72 percent of the uranium available for prices lower than $15 a pound.

Oil companies are also deeply involved in uranium milling, the process by which the ore is initially refined and concentrated, owning 41.3 percent of the nation's milling capacity, the report said.

It said that of this, Kerr-McGee alone holds 24.6 percent.

Of the nation's coal, 51.5 million tons, or 11.8 percent of the nation's total known reserves, are held by oil companies, including Kerr-McGee, Continental Oil, Champlin Oil, Exxon, Occidental Petroleum, Gulf Oil, Mobil Oil, Sun Oil, Atlantic Richfield, Texaco and Phillips Petroleum, the report said.

And it said that it is possible that "actual control by oil companies, partly through means other than ownership, may be considerably more extensive than their direct holdings would indicate."

"This nation's reserves of petroleum are finite and it is not surprising, of course, to learn that the oil companies are interested in expanding into other energy sources which will become more important as petroleum reserves are depleted," Church said.

Some congressional critics of the oil industry have suggested that the diversified energy holdings of oil companies stifle competition and that these companies should be required to divest themselves of non-petroleum holdings.

The report did not take a stand on the divestiture issue, although it noted that breaking up the big oil companies "could adversely affect the national effort to develop alternative sources of energy."

"On the other hand," the report added, "it might seem appropriate at this relatively early stage for the federal government to seek to create greater competition in the energy industry by establishing appropriate policies and regulations that would limit petroleum industry participation in the development of non-petroleum energy supplies."

Alaska's Sen. Gravel Opposes Gas Pipeline Loan Guarantee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, said Wednesday that neither the state of Alaska nor the North Slope oil companies should be required to help finance the Alcan natural gas pipeline project.

Such producing companies as Exxon and Standard Oil of Ohio need all their cash and credit resources for exploration and development of new energy sources, Gravel told a Senate Energy Committee hearing on the project.

Gravel said President Carter, in selecting the Alcan Pipeline Co. trans-Canada project, recommends such state aid as guaranteeing pipeline project construction loans.

But such guarantees, he said, "would be a bad precedent in an economy where risks are supposed to be taken because of economic desirability and project viability."

Rather, he said, the federal government itself should be required by Congress to guarantee the loans, a move rejected by the Carter administration. Federal backing would assure lower interest rates for Alcan and eventually lower prices for natural gas consumers in the lower 48 states, Gravel added.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said Alcan itself has not asked for any federal guarantees.

Gravel said he would introduce a bill to require federal backing of the project's financing when "the need for federal guarantees has become more widely recognized."

Another witness at the hearings, Todd M. Doshier, a petroleum engineering professor at the University of Southern California, said the government should study the oil and natural gas field on the North Slope for three more years before giving approval for the pipeline.

Doshier said the dynamics of the field are such that the taking of natural gas would greatly lower the pumping field pressure. This may make it impossible to recover as much as six billion barrels of oil, about one-third the potential total, he said.

The producing companies plan to maintain pumping pressure by injecting water. Doshier said his studies show that the water would be absorbed in the aquifer faster than it can be injected to maintain pumping pressure.

Alcan chairman John G. McMillian was at the hearing and said afterward that Doshier's presentation was too broad and imprecise.

The state and Alcan have made their own studies, McMillian said, and concluded that pumping pressure can be maintained with water injection.

"I don't put much weight on it," McMillian said about Doshier's testimony.

Robert Batanovich, the president of the California Public Utilities Commission, said the state favors the Alcan proposal under the terms set by President Carter in sending the plan on for congressional approval.

Batanovich said the state is satisfied with Carter's conditions requiring a western leg of the pipeline for serving California customers as well as the recommended price of $1.45 per thousand cubic feet for North Slope natural gas.

Valve Repair On Pipeline Completed

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Repair of the leaky check valve that caused an oil spill on the trans-Alaska pipeline 30 miles north of Fairbanks has been completed, Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. reported Wednesday.

Alyeska spokesman Sam Akin said correction of the problem involved tightening a ring of bolts on the valve, adding "we didn't replace anything." There was no estimate available on the amount of oil spilled. It soaked down through a gravel pad beneath the $8 billion pipeline and surfaced 30 or 40 feet away before it was detected, Akin said.

It was not known how long the Prudhoe Bay crude had been spilling into the earth.

Akin said the oil was being collected in a ditch near the pad and removed with absorbent materials. Alyeska officials are hoping the oil saturating the earth will continue to gravitate to that pit for clean-up, he said.

There are 50,000 yearly deaths worldwide due to snakebites, three-quarters of them in India.

Administration To Hear Steel Industry Woes

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The steel industry will have its day in court Thursday when the Carter administration listens to explanations for the current crisis in the domestic steel industry.

Robert Strauss, the president's special trade representative, indicated that it may be a few weeks before the task force, which will meet at the White House, will come up "some hard facts and alternative solutions."

Those problems resulted in more than 21,000 announced layoffs since early August, although most major steelmakers expect no new layoffs in the fourth quarter. Some 60,000 steelworkers whose jobs have been effected by imports are receiving federal assistance.

In addition to administration officials, the task force headed by Undersecretary of the Treasury Tony Solomon consists of labor and steel industry leaders, members of Congress, economists and environmentalists. President Carter will attend part of the Thursday session.

Perhaps the most important factors in the meeting are the flexibility in the administration's approach toward the steel crisis and the failure of groups affected by the crisis to agree on remedies.

While steel industry leaders and the United Steelworkers union believe the President now is taking a more flexible stand, statements made by Strauss, Carter's chief spokesman on steel, indicate otherwise.

Earlier this week, Strauss said, "I seriously doubt if we reduced imports of foreign steel that it would have any dramatic impact on the U.S. steel industry."

Comparing the domestic industry to foreign producers, Strauss said, "Our steel industry's answer is to raise prices to meet competitive shortfalls, while most of the world has substantially restructured its steel industry." A report released by the White House Council on Wage and Price Stability seems to support administration opposition to short-term solutions. Citing high production costs and inefficient facilities, the report said import restraints won't alone solve the industry's problems.

Speaking for the industry, U.S. Steel Chairman Edgar Speer Wednesday said the wage and price report does not counter the industry's claims that foreign producers are only able to compete here by selling products below cost.

Decisions by two other government agencies seem to support the industry's import stand.

The International Trade Commission Tuesday voted to advise Carter that dropping or reducing quotas on specialty steel imports would have a serious adverse economic effect on the domestic industry.

And Oct. 3, the Treasury Department tentatively determined that five Japanese firms have been selling carbon steel plate below cost in the United States.

Reluctant to chance upsetting trade relations with other countries, the administration has opposed import restraints, urging the industry to pursue the procedural remedies available under the Trade Act of 1974.

But the industry, the union and other groups argue the government does not effectively enforce the anti-dumping provisions of the act.

There also is feeling, as USW President Lloyd McBride said, that "the wheels of justice grind too slowly."

Many leading steelmakers — including

U.S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube — say they are not asking for quotas on imports, government grants nor loans to finance modernization.

"We are not looking for favors from the government — merely for the strict enforcement of existing trade laws," said Bethlehem Steel Chairman Louis W. Foy.

"What the government giveth, the government can taketh away," said an industry source, calling government aid, "the first step to nationalization." The debate over relief shows the disunity among groups affected by the steel crisis.

For example, the industry has indicated it does not want quotas. The union and some members of Congress support quotas ranging from 10 to 18 per cent of the domestic market, but can't agree on any specific figure.

There also is disagreement on voluntary restraints. Japan and the European Economic Community say they are willing to negotiate such restraints, providing U.S. firms drop antidumping complaints.

While the union wants "orderly marketing arrangements," the industry is less enthusiastic.

"We find the prospect of voluntary restraint agreements an unsatisfactory solution" to the import problem, said Inland Steel Chairman Frederick Jaicks. In addition, a distrustful union wants the government to ensure that the industry will use any relief in ways that will best protect steelworkers' jobs.

Dock Strike Brings Air Freight Boom

NEW YORK (AP) — While shipping-related industries predicted vast unemployment as the result of a dock strike along the east and Gulf coasts, air carriers said Wednesday their business was booming.

But the Commerce Department warned that the strike would aggravate the record deficit in the U.S. balance of payments.

"If it goes on any time, it's going to carry the balance-of-payments deficit even beyond the estimated $25 billion to $30 billion," said Arthur C. Rutzen, director of the New York district office of the Commerce Department's Domestic and International Business Administration.

He said many American exports were backed up in U.S. ports while foreign oil, for example, came in unaffected by the dock strike.

Fifty thousand longshoremen are engaged in a selective strike against the labor-saving containerization of cargo. Conventional cargo ships in most ports are not affected by the strike.

On the domestic impact of the strike, Rutzen said, "It is quite obvious that people in business are going to be hurt tremendously."

One freight forwarder in New York, James Evans, described the impact as "the worst in 20 years," and said "at least 200,000" people already were jobless as a result.

He said that if the strike began affecting imports for the Christmas market, "the losses could run into the billions of dollars."

Evans pictured freight forwarders, truckers and others dependent on ocean shipping as faced with economic disaster.

In the New Orleans area, where 3,000 dockworkers were on a general strike rather than a selective one, the walkout was inflicting a daily loss of revenues estimated at $4 million.

But Pan American World Airways, which was already operating in the black this year, was adding to its profits by taking on capacity shipments of goods diverted from ocean container shipment.

A Pan Am spokesman said westbound shipments from Germany, for example, had picked up noticeably. Air shipment of textiles and shoes from Taiwan "are moving in great quantity for the Christmas market," he said.

Seaboard World Airlines said it had added 20 workers to its terminal force and was using two more big jets to handle a 13 per cent spurt in cargo over last year.

Trans World Airlines reported a 20 per cent increase in cargo volume at Kennedy Airport here. Increased business was also reported by Air France and Lufthansa.

Thomas W. "Teddy" Gleason, president of the striking International Longshoremen's Association, AFL-CIO, and James J. Dickman, chief shipping industry negotiator, continued their daily face-to-face contacts Wednesday. But no progress was reported.

Ninety ships were reported strike-bound in U.S. ports.

Containerization has eliminated the need for thousands of longshoremen and speeded the turnaround time of the ships that move the containers.

Strike Ends As Workers Accept Three-Year Pact

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — A nearly 12-week strike by 5,000 workers at the General Dynamics shipyard ended Wednesday with the ratification of a three-year contract.

Company spokesman Alex Piranian said he expected workers to be called back to their jobs next week. The recall will be on departmental seniority basis, he said.

Production should increase beginning the first of next week, he said.

Members of Local 5 and Local 90 of the Shipbuilders Union, AFL-CIO, approved the contract in separate votes on Wednesday. Negotiators agreed to the proposal last Friday.

Most workers will get wage hikes of $2.40 an hour in 11 installments during the three years of the new contract, beginning with a $1 hourly raise.

Approximately 70 per cent of workers at the yard were getting $5.67 an hour under the old contract.

The company agreed to rehire the approximately 50 workers.

Retail Sales Dip Following Surge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers bought fewer goods in September after increasing their purchases in the two previous months, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

Retail sales for the month declined 1.2 per cent to $59.02 billion when adjusted for seasonal variations. Sales had gone up 1.5 per cent in August and by eight-tenths of a per cent in July.

The monthly report was not encouraging to economists because it signaled the fourth decline in the past six months. The largest reduction was a 1.4 per cent drop in June.

However, the September figures were preliminary and subject to change, and it often takes more than a month to establish a trend.

The declines were spread fairly evenly throughout the economy, with the biggest drop in furniture and automobiles.

Furniture, home furnishings and equipment stores, which also include television and radios, showed declines of 2.6 per cent in September to $2.61 billion. Automobile dealers reported declines of 2.9 per cent during the month to $1.92 billion in sales.

Retail food sales remained about the same in September, but department stores showed 2 per cent declines and gas stations registered 1 per cent declines.

Retail sales for the month were still 9 per cent higher than September 1976, but they had been at a particularly low point a year ago.

The sales of $59.01 billion were below the peak of $59.5 billion reached in March this year. The largest decline for one month in recent years was the 4.2 per cent drop last December.

The retail sales report followed several more encouraging reports last week that showed a slight decrease in unemployment to 6.9 per cent and rising factory orders and consumer credit for August.

Carter administration economists had said the economy was in a slowdown during the summer but it was not expected to continue into the fall, when the growth rate is anticipated to be about 5 per cent at an annual rate.

Excluding automobiles, retail sales still declined about one per cent from $47.5 billion to $47.1 billion.

Adjusted sales of durable goods stores, such as auto stores, decreased 2 per cent from August while sales of nondurable goods stores decreased by 1 per cent.

Without seasonal adjustment, retail sales were $58.8 billion, down from $61.1 billion in August.

Brown Berets Seeking Drug Abuse Funding

Lubbock's chapter of the Brown Berets of Texas, Auxilio, recently applied for a $50,000 grant to the Comprehensive Employment Training Act Program (CETA) for staffing of the organization's newly opened juvenile center at 1414 1st St.

Gilbert Herrera, prime minister of the Brown Berets, a statewide group working to thwart discrimination against minority members, said the center will be used to teach young people between 8 and 18 years old the consequences of drug abuse.

The center will offer educational programs, sports and other "positive" activities for kids, said Herrera, himself an ex-convict and former drug addict.

Herrera said the center needs the grant to pay a salary for the center's director, an assistant director, secretary-bookkeeper, and three counselors. He said the counselors would be former drug abusers who would visit schools, talk with parents and offer guidance at the center.

The Beret chief said drug abuse has become a serious problem in the city schools, especially among children of low-income families. He said that getting high, especially by glue sniffing, has reached even into the elementary schools.

Auxilio, meaning help in English, was given the building on First Street free of rent for two years last June by the Lubbock Catholic Priest Association.

Carla Crisford, staff attorney for Lubbock Legal Services which helped draw up the formal grant proposal submitted to CETA, said it is hoped the grant will have been approved and received by the first of next year.

Odessa Planetarium Hosts Star Show

ODESSA (Special) — The Poole Planetarium at Odessa College will have the first public star show of the school year Friday and Saturday Oct. 21-22 at 7:30 p.m.

Keith Johnson, planetarium director, will present the program entitled "Kiss of Death," dealing with the journey of a comet from the outer reaches of the solar system to the sun.

Several new special effects will be used to demonstrate the hazards of the journey, the planets encountered along the way, and the reactions of people on earth when the comet appears.

After the show, the audience is invited to view the real sky through the planetarium's eight-inch telescope.

Admission is 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children, with OC students, staff, and faculty admitted free. Johnson asks that no pre-school children be brought to the planetarium, located in Wilkerson Hall, Room 206.

SPC Begins Course In Needlepoint

LEVELLAND (Special) — "Advanced Needlepoint" begins Monday at South Plains College.

Pat Grappe, who has taught a number of needlework courses at the college will be the instructor. Classes meet from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays in the Fine Arts Building, Room 16. Cost is $15 for the five-week community service short course.

Mrs. Grappe has taken an advanced needlepoint course and has more information to add for those who have already taken an advanced class.

A small pair of scissors is the only item participants are required to bring to class; all other materials will be furnished, said Mrs. Grappe.

Enrollment will be limited, so interested persons should contact the SPC office of Continuing Education at 894-4921 to assure them a place in class.

Hospital Conducts Alcoholism Seminar

BIG SPRING (Special) — The Big Spring State Hospital will conduct its twenty-ninth alcoholism seminar Friday in the auditorium at the Big Spring State Hospital.

These seminars are made possible through state appropriations and are being held in conjunction with the Big Spring Veteran's Administration Hospital and Howard College.

Robert T. Trotter, II, Ph.D., department of behavioral sciences, Pan American University, Edinburg, will be the consultant for this day long seminar.

Theme will be "Mexican-American Folk Psychiatry and Alcoholism." Registration will begin at 8 a.m., and the general session at 9 a.m. A registration fee of $1 will be charged with an additional charge of $1 for those wishing to receive continuing education units from Howard College.

City Council Sets Special Agenda

BROWNFIELD (Special) — Councilmen will consider the sale of $300,000 in combination tax and revenue certificates of obligation in a special meeting at 8:30 a.m. today in City Hall.

Other items to be discussed include opening bids on a police cruiser, a public hearing to change zoning on a block of land in the Flache Addition, a report from a day care center representative, and passage of a resolution awarding contracts to engineers, financial advisors and attorneys.

The council will receive and open bids for an electric substation tie facility, and hear a request from the City of Wellman to provide animal warden services.

Cottle County Election Upcoming

A-J Correspondent

PADUCAH — A Zone 4 director to serve on the Cottle County Soil and Water Conservation District board will be named in an election beginning at 10 a.m. Friday in Cottle County Commissioners Courtroom.

Candidates for the office must own land in the zone to be represented, be at least 21, and be actively engaged in farming or ranching and live in the county all or part of which is in the district.

Zone 4 includes an area from Paducah east along US 70 to the county line, then south to Hackberry FM 1038.

Persons eligible to vote in the election are those 21 or older who own agricultural land within the subdivision in which the election is being held, and who live in the county within the district.

Paducah Council To Discuss Fund

A-J Correspondent

PADUCAH — City council will meet at 7 p.m. today to discuss exempting the city from participation in the volunteer firemen's relief and retirement fund.

The council also will consider approval of the filing of a pre-application to the Criminal Justice Council for a grant to the police department here.

Other items on the agenda include unemployment compensation for city employees, reviewing the city-county ambulance service agreement, discussion of the operation expense of the Outreach center and discussion of the sanitary landfill.

WIDOW SAYS OSWALD ACTED ALONE — Marina Oswald Porter appears at a press conference in New York Wednesday to promote a new book, "Marina and Lee," written by Priscilla Johnson McMillan. Children Evacuated As Fumes Threaten School

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Nearly 800 children were evacuated and 102 were taken to hospitals Wednesday after gas fumes spread through an elementary school. A fire official said one spark would have created a holocaust.

Dr. Dale Carter, superintendent of Hamilton County schools, said an exhaust flue was apparently blocked when the school's gas furnace was fired up for the first time this year.

School officials called for rescue units after some of the children in the auditorium began passing out or throwing up.

"When I arrived on the scene, I went to the auditorium and took a reading with my explosive meter," said Jim Lane, assistant fire marshal. "And I got a reading that went right off the dial, 100 plus."

He said he got a similar reading in the school's boiler room.

"So I ordered the building evacuated immediately and told everybody to stay away from the school in case it went up," he said.

Just lighting a cigarette or creating a spark would have done it — we would have had a holocaust.

School officials evacuated nearly 800 students, transporting those who seemed ill to Children's Hospital for treatment. A hospital spokesman said 102 children and two adults had been treated and released. He said symptoms ranged from nausea to headaches.

"Something kind of gassy got out and everybody was fainting and everything," student Chuck Watkins said. "It stunk like a skunk, but I wasn't scared."

"Everybody started fainting in the auditorium," classmate Phillip Banks said. "It was getting too bad and they sent us all outside, but people were fainting out there too."

Carter said he expected classes would be conducted Thursday, after the problems were corrected and fumes were blown out of the building with exhaust fans.

Widow Believes Oswald Alone

NEW YORK (UPI) — The question of why Lee Harvey Oswald assassinated President John F. Kennedy 14 years ago still troubles Marina Oswald Porter, but she said Wednesday she is convinced now he acted alone.

"I believe that Lee acted alone in this murder, and shot the President, ironically, a man whom he respected and admired," said Oswald's widow.

Oswald, she explained, was a loner, never willing to confide in others.

"I always thought he was guilty. At first, it was intuition. But through the years, I have found a logical explanation... bits and pieces of his character fit," the shy, 36-year-old woman said in a rare public appearance.

The occasion was a Harper and Row news conference to publicize the upcoming book, "Marina and Lee" written by Priscilla Johnson McMillan, a onetime Kennedy worker and former Moscow correspondent.

The book chronicles the "slow painful tragedy" of the couple's short, two-year marriage, the deteriorating mental health of Oswald and the events that led up to the day of the Kennedy assassination.

Marina herself, now remarried and living in a suburb of Dallas, remembers little about the past, except regret and sometimes hatred.

"I can never forget or forgive what he did, to me and to my children, to the President and his family, to the whole world."

"Right now I almost hate him," she said as tears welled in her eyes.

Speaking with a slight accent, the Russian-born woman described her former husband as a secret man, "a loner" who was "very, very confused" and often violent for no apparent reason.

When the troubled ex-Marine, a defector to the Soviet Union, brought his new bride back to the United States in 1962, Marina said, his personality changed. He refused even to let her learn English.

Asked repeatedly about a motive behind her husband's deed, she struggled with her English, then asked Mrs. McMillan to explain.

The writer described Oswald as a man with a deprived childhood, an early believer in Marxism. He also believed, she said, that American capitalism must be "dealt a blow from which it could never recover."

The announcement that Kennedy would pass below the book depository building where Oswald worked was the "catalytic" event, said Mrs. McMillan.

"It brought Oswald's tangled emotions and his Marxist convictions together in a certainty that he, and he alone, had been singled out by fate to deal the American political process a mortal, decapitating blow."

Cold Weather Inhibited Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last winter's supercold may have had at least one positive result: holding down crime.

Comparing the first six months of this year with January-to-June 1976, the FBI finds the overall crime rate down seven per cent, with most big cities reporting a downward trend.

An exception was Houston, which logged 54,754 crimes in the first half of 1977 compared with 48,457 in the same period last year — up 12 per cent.

FBI officials speculated that the severe storms and cold weather early this year kept criminals from their appointed rounds in all but the Sun Belt.

New York, Detroit, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Chicago and Boston were among the cities reporting lower crime.

"This is encouraging evidence that the surge of crime in recent years is ebbing," said Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell. "However, the number of violent crimes — those against persons — remains high."

Rape increased 8 per cent and assaults were up 4 per cent. The declines, by percentages, showed murder down 2, robbery down 5, larceny down 9, burglary down 5, and motor vehicle theft down 2.

Among 166 cities with populations of 100,000 or more, 32 reported rising crime rates and most of those were in the south and southwest, not as severely hit by cold.

For the comparable six-month periods of 1976 and 1977, Dallas' crime rate went from 45,510 to 41,238; New York's went from 314,000 to 294,148; Detroit from 74,557 to 59,702; Philadelphia from 36,923 to 32,402; Los Angeles from 111,400 to 105,513; Chicago from 104,629 to 96,047; Boston from 37,538 to 31,188.

$500 Reward Offered In Clovis Theft

CLOVIS (Special) — A $500 reward has been offered for information leading to the indictment of a lone robber who took $150 from a gift shop here Sept. 21 after knocking the store's attendant unconscious.

The reward, posted by Gideon Bender of Clovis, will be maintained until the bandit is indicted, according to Clovis Chief of Police Nelson Worley.

Additions to the fund should be sent to the Clovis Police Department in care of Worley.

Police are seeking a black man about 30 years old, six feet tall and weighing 180 pounds for the robbery of Allene's Gift Shop here and the attack on attendant Frances Smith.

Worley said the man entered the store, knocked the clerk unconscious, dragged her to a back room where he beat her and then took $150 from the store's cash register.

The man reportedly was wearing a light colored sweater or T-shirt and a stocking cap, Worley said.

Information concerning the offense should be directed to Worley in care of the Clovis Police Department by writing P.O. Box 862, Clovis 88101, or by calling the department collect at 505-769-1921.

Clayton Offers Alternatives To Carter Energy Proposals

By BILL CLAYTON
House Speaker

AUSTIN—What this nation needs is more energy. Energy to maintain our current lifestyle and to protect our economic system and democratic form of government. What we have now is a proposed national energy plan that will institutionalize the energy shortage. Never again will we be without an energy crisis. The plan calls for the creation of a massive bureaucracy to regulate the shortage through increased taxation and government controls. This country does not need any more taxes.

The energy shortage can be solved with American ingenuity, free enterprise and a little common sense. The desire to increase America's energy supply should not be considered a regional special interest. It should be of paramount interest of all Americans. The proposed national energy plan will stifle energy production and lead us into an era of "no-growth." There are alternative policies, however, that will increase our domestic energy supply.

First, we must end government regulations and price controls on the energy industries. According to government, industry and university studies, the effect of deregulation would be to open vast new reserves for developments that are closed because of artificially-low, government mandated prices. Why is this nation so opposed to doubling or even tripling our energy supply?

Second, the Federal government must end energy wastes that occur in many areas and especially in transportation.

Third, the government must amend its tax code to phase out any favored or punitive provisions for energy producers. Let their successes and failures be determined by free market.

Fourth, we must streamline the licensing and production of all forms of energy. Trade-offs must be made between environmental protection and energy production. Fifth, all states and all branches of government must develop all their energy resources. The Federal government is currently the largest withhold of energy from the American people.

Finally the states must retain control over their state's energy production, distribution and usage. We must focus on an improved standard of living with increased reliance on the individual and the local government.

The President's proposed energy plan is no different than the government's policy for the past twenty years except that it does include the largest tax increase in history. It is difficult to see how we can extricate ourselves from the energy crisis using the same policy that led us into our current energy shortage. What America needs now is a sound energy policy that will give us a lot more energy.

Solons Approve Wages For U.S. Workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate agreed Wednesday to continue funding temporarily for the government's major social service agencies while putting off for a few more days a decision on a government abortion policy.

The decision, which would provide full paychecks for employees of a dozen agencies and departments, still must be approved by the House.

House and Senate disagreement over an abortion policy has delayed passage of a $60.2 billion appropriations bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare and some related agencies which technically ran out of money as of Oct. 1.

The continuing resolution passed by the Senate on a voice vote would provide interim funding for those agencies at the same spending levels they used in fiscal year 1977. It also would extend the abortion restrictions enacted into law last year.

Those restrictions say the government will pay for abortions only if a woman's life would be jeopardized by a full-term pregnancy. Previously, the federal government paid for abortions through programs like Medicaid. HEW has estimated that the government paid $50 million for about 300,000 abortions last year.

Earlier, the House abandoned its support of an extension of the new policy and voted 263 to 142 to modify its position. The new proposal incorporates last year's abortion law but adds coverage for treatment of forced rape and incest victims if they report the incidents to authorities.

It also provides money for contraceptives and for treatment of an ectopic pregnancy, in which the fetus grows outside the uterus.

FUGITIVE GETS MOVIE PART — Bill Foulon, an escaped convict from Oregon state penitentiary and still on the run, is seen between actress Barbara Streisand and the back of actor Peter Strauss's head. Foulon was an extra in the television movie, "Young Joe: The Forgotten Kennedy." He escaped on May 14, got the part while looking for work in Seattle. (AP Laserphoto)

Gas Rate Increase Okayed At Morton

MORTON (Special) — The city council has okayed a 20 per cent increase in gas rates here. The new rates, hiked by 35 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, become effective Saturday.

Gas customers now pay $1.86 mcf. City Mgr. Lois Dunlap said the increase was based on increased cost to the city for gas from El Paso Natural Gas Co., its principal supplier.

14 Dead As Riot Ends In Mexico

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — A two-day prison riot that officials said killed 14 inmates ended Wednesday as guards armed with nightsticks entered the Jalisco state institution.

Warden Pedro Parra said those killed were slain by fellow prisoners in the rebellion. He identified the dead as trustees who had abused and extorted money from fellow inmates.

"The trusty system has been eliminated. The cell guards are working normally inside," Parra said. "Things are returning to normal."

The warden said limited family visiting privileges were being allowed, and that delivery of food and water to the prison was normal. During the rebellion, the prisoners demanded better food, better medical service, improved living conditions, more jobs and an end to the trusty system.

Parra had said Monday 15 inmates were reported killed in the uprising. He explained the official figure was reduced Wednesday after guards conducted a roll-call.

He said all of the 2,300 inmates in the prison had been accounted for. There was no word on whether prisoners responsible for the slaying would be charged.

Nor was there any word on whether authorities planned to search the prison. A number of prisoners reportedly had guns. Others were armed with knives as large as sabers.

Roads remained closed one block away from the fortress-like prison on the east side of Guadalajara.

Sergio Donlucas, director of the prison's legal department, said the prison normally operates with a force of 30 guards who rotate shifts inside the prison.

Donlucas said 14 of the guards had resigned, leaving 16 working inside the jail.

The prison walls are guarded by state policemen, generally armed with rifles and easily distinguishable by their blue uniforms and cowboy hats.

The underground stem, or rhizome, of the bloodroot secretes a scarlet juice when cut. American Indians used the most indelible fluid as war paint.

General Motors Leader Asks Incentives, Deregulation

CHICAGO (AP) — The chairman of General Motors Corp. said Wednesday that only long-term incentives for capital investment and an easing of government regulation of industry will enable U.S. manufacturers to compete on the international trade market.

At a news conference GM head Thomas A. Murphy said he doesn't support the increased barriers urged by U.S. steel producers that are battling increased competition from imported steel.

But he urged the Carter administration to incorporate long-term investment incentives and tax cuts for businesses and individuals in the tax-revision package it is expected to submit to Congress in a few weeks.

Murphy blamed anti-pollution regulations for part of the problems of American industry.

"Resources that would go to technology and modernization of equipment go to controlling air and water pollution instead," he said. And while energy policy is important, he said, "We can't depend on foreign steel any more than we can depend on foreign energy sources."

Murphy said, "The free market, if allowed to function normally, would soon resolve most of the energy problems we now face."

He criticized some members of the Carter administration whom he refused to name for inconsistency in making economic predictions.

He predicted a record year for General Motors and said he believes American automobile manufacturers in 1978 can reduce the 20 per cent to 22 per cent share of the auto market commanded by foreign cars.

"All of us on the domestic side have good product offerings," he said. He said he believes Americans choose foreign cars for the sake of variety. But he urged consumers to buy domestic cars as a gesture of support for American industry.

He said American-made autos stack up well against foreign competitors in quality and fuel economy and called for more "understanding and negotiations" by the government with foreign countries, especially Japan, to equalize trade conditions.

"I'd like to see us have the same access to the Japanese market as they have here," he said.

Murphy was in Chicago to address the Midwest Economic Growth Conference sponsored by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

When questioned about the plight of domestic steelmakers, who—in Youngstown, Ohio; Gary, Ind., and other locations—project thousands of layoffs this year, Murphy said GM imports no foreign steel.

But he estimated that GM would have to sell 20 per cent more cars this year to buy as much steel as last year, because this year's cars are lighter and use more plastic parts.

Murphy said GM expects the biggest increase this year will be in intermediate size cars.

Governor Undergoes Tests at Hospital

Area Counties To Get Grant

A-J Correspondent
 LORENZO—A $24,405 Community Services Administration grant has been approved for the Caprock Community Action Association, U.S. Rep. Omar Burleson has announced.
 The grant will be used for making home repairs and energy-saving home improvements to qualifying residents of Crosby-Dickens, Floyd and Motley counties.
 In addition, a second CSA grant for $4,000 has been okayed for community programming at the Lorenzo Neighborhood Center.
 The center is planning programs to assist the poor in the areas of health, education, jobs and housing.

Idalou Exes Set Homecoming Fete

IDALOU (Special) — Idalou Wildcats will face the Tullia Hornets at Reddell Stadium Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the highlight of Idalou Homecoming week.
 Halftime will bring the crowning of the homecoming queen who will be chosen from nominees announced before the game at 7 p.m.
 Candidates are Sharla Rosson, Arinda Speer, Aricka Speer and Sheri Robertson.
 A coming-home queen, selected from an honor class of 1928, 1938, 1948, 1958, or 1968, also will be recognized at halftime, along with the oldest ex-student at the homecoming and the returning student who had to travel the longest distance.

Door prizes will be given away along with coffee and donuts after the game in the high school cafeteria.
 Other activities include a pep rally at 3 p.m. Friday in the new gym, an exes meeting at 4 p.m. in the Idalou High School Auditorium, and a Senior supper from 4:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Friday in the high school cafeteria.

State Supreme Court To View Consumer Credit Statutes

AUSTIN (AP) — How far should the courts go in compelling businesses to follow the letter of the state and federal consumer credit laws when nobody has been hurt by technical violations?
 Urged on by legal aid societies in San Antonio and Austin, the Texas Supreme Court decided Wednesday to answer that question. It set a Dec. 14 hearing.

Jackie Hight raised the issue in a suit against Jim Bass Ford of San Angelo over the installment contract Hight signed when he bought a used GMC Sierra from Bass in 1975.
 Hight admitted that the Ford dealer's failure to provide a contract that met all requirements of the Texas Consumer Credit Code and the Federal Truth in Lending Act had not hurt him.
 But he sought $2,868 under a penalty provision of the Texas law.

Hight said Bass failed to sign the installment sales contract and put a post office box number on it instead of his actual business address as required by the code. In addition, the buyer's acknowledgment of receipt of the contract was not printed in 10-point bold type. Hight contended.

Both a trial court and the Austin Court of Civil Appeals ruled against Hight.
 The Austin court said that since Hight was not injured financially by any of the technical violations, he was not entitled to recover penalties.

The purpose of the statute would not be served by making an elephant from a flea," the Austin court said.

 In its "friend of the court" brief to the supreme court, the Bexar County Legal Aid Association said that under the terms of the consumer credit law, actual damages are "unnecessary and irrelevant to the recovery of penalties."

It said the appeals court's use of "a nebulous and subjective 'substantial compliance' standard eats away at the code's goal of preventing abusive and deceptive practices as surely as the repeal of its provisions."

The Travis County Legal Aid and De-lender Society said Jim Bass Ford "should not be allowed to escape the liability which results from its attempting to skirt the bare minimum of the disclosure requirements. A creditor does so at his own peril and has assumed the risks of such a violation."

INSURED HOMES

Of the total 282,000 homes insured by the Federal Housing Administration last year, 34,000 were new homes and 228,000 were existing homes, reports the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. I'm thinking of putting $20,000 into a savings and loan insured by FSLIC. I figure it will be worth $41,000 plus in 10 years.

A. At 7 1/4 per cent compounded, money will double in 10 years, provided annual income taxes on the interest are paid from some other source.

Q. I have friends who question your reference to real estate as a good inflation hedge. They point out that steadily rising realty tax, oil, repair and service bills leave them at the mercy of inflation and that they can't pass the increased costs on to tenants.

A. I have friends who tell me the same thing. And I've had friends (and readers) who've done very well with real estate. All of which proves what...?

Q. I am a woman of 69 with $12,000 to invest. Have considered buying an annuity from a life insurance company which would pay me $95.35 a month, with 10 years certain. Or how about a mutual fund? What does "no load" mean?

A. Let's take 'em in reverse order: A "no load" mutual fund has no salesman, therefore charges no sales commissions. If it's a successful fund, the commission savings is a plus; if it's an unsuccessful fund, the commission savings won't help much.

The growth mutual fund you are considering yields 1.9 per cent from dividends and whatever else it can make in the market. Last year it distributed profits of 1 1/2 per cent. I'd say that's not your cup of tea. Look at income funds.

Now as to the annuity: If you put $12,000 into 8 1/1 per cent bonds or preferreds, you'd get $1,020 a year, or $85 a month for so long as you held the securities and interest or dividends were maintained. The annuity would pay you about $10 a month more for at least 10 years. If you lived beyond that 10 years you would continue to receive the same amount, but there would be no estate to hand on to your children.

Only you can decide whether $85 keeping your capital intact is better than $95.35 for the rest of your lifetime, with the possibility of leaving no estate.

Q. We have about $32,000 capital which is about all we will be able to depend upon in retirement since my husband's company went out of business and the retirement fund will pay only about $75 a month. How can we invest this to avoid getting into a higher tax bracket? I wrote you before, but received no answer.

A. I don't know what bracket you are in now, but you shouldn't have to worry about income taxes in retirement since Social Security is not counted as taxable income and your other resources aren't likely to boos you into any material tax bracket.

Wherever you are, you will have to consider this an answer since you included no return envelope.

Q. We have $6,000 in E bonds. I know I can exchange them for H bonds and get an average of about $80 a month. Or should I redeem them, buy an annuity and get $135 a month for life (wife and myself)? We're about 65.

A. I can't answer because I don't know how much of that $16,000 you would have left after you pay income taxes on the accumulated interest.

An annuity could be a good idea (assuming you don't care about leaving an estate).

You tell me you can get $135 a month for life (1,620 a year) from $16,000. Now reduce that $16,000 by income taxes on the included interest and find out how much monthly annuity income you can get with the net proceeds. That will give a better idea of whether H bonds or the annuity are your best course.

Shulsky welcome written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Video Candy Ads Hit As Dental Peril

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The leader of a group studying the effect of advertising on children has urged the nation's dentists to join a campaign against TV advertisements that are "selling cavities."

In a speech to the American Dental Association's national convention, Robert Choate, head of the Council on Children, Media and Merchandising, said that television ads for products high in sugar should be required to convey nutritional information to children.

In addition, he said, television stations should be required to use counter-commercials to compensate for "all those sweet messages."

Choate said the Netherlands requires a reference to tooth care when sweets are advertised on TV.

"If Holland can recognize the dangers of mass indoctrination towards sugared, sticky food products, this nation should be able to address the issue better than it has," Choate said.

Peggy Charren, president of Action for Children's Television, told the dentists that most food commercials aired during Saturday and Sunday daytime hours — prime time for children — push products with high sugar content.

Choate said food companies tout their products giving "energy," but usually fail to say anything about sugar or to impart any real information on nutrition. They are taking advantage of children's "nutritional naivete," he said.

A nine-month study of daytime food ads shown by the nation's three commercial networks on Saturdays and Sundays showed that 51 per cent — 3,832 out of 7,515 — were for cereals, many of them sugar-coated, Choate said. Soups, meat, poultry, eggs, milk and milk products, and vegetables accounted for 47 ads, less than one per cent.

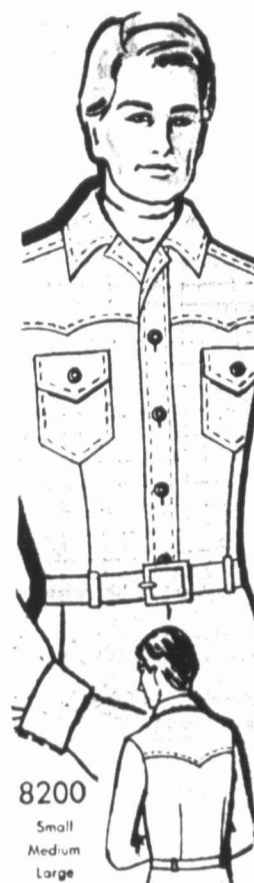

The study, which has been presented to a U.S. Senate committee, was conducted in 1975. Choate said he had "no reason to believe" the pattern has changed.

Ford Leaves Dixie Stage To Reagan

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford will not attend a November meeting of 3,000 Southern Republicans, leaving former California Gov. Ronald Reagan as the biggest name on the program.

Florida GOP leaders said Ford would not attend because of other engagements.

But Lee Chira, a state GOP committeeman and an Orange County commissioner, said he has "no doubt President Ford just didn't want to explain why he is in favor of the Panama Canal treaty."

Reagan opposes Senate ratification of the treaty.

Poll Says Carter Steadily Losing Public Faith

By LOUIS HARRIS

The sharp drop in President Carter's overall job rating may have been triggered by the Bert Lance episode, but the basic reason behind it is a steady decline in the public's confidence in his ability to handle most of the key issues facing the country.

According to the latest Harris Survey of 1,536 adults nationwide, the President's score on handling the economy and foreign policy continues to fall, while his rating on "restoring confidence in government" has also declined significantly. This last indicator may be somewhat imprecise, but it is highly significant, for it stems directly from the trauma of Watergate. If Jimmy Carter meant anything to the American people last year, he was viewed as someone who could rebuild public faith in our system of government and in our national leaders.

Yet, what appeared to be his strongest asset as recently as July is now under real questioning by the American people, and it seems that a negative momentum is gathering:

—By a bare 47-46 percent, a narrow plurality gives him positive marks on "restoring confidence in government," compared to a substantial 64-31 percent majority back in July.

—On "inspiring confidence personally in the White House," Mr. Carter emerges with a current 50-42 percent positive standing, down from 59-34 percent in July and 74-20 percent back in April.

In the key issue areas with which the federal government must deal, President Carter's ratings are consistently negative:

—On his "handling of the economy," he has sunk to a new Carter low of 66-26 percent negative from the 54-39 percent negative score in August.

—On "keeping down the cost of living," the President 74-20 percent negative rating, 12 points lower than before.

Any hope the President might have that he would benefit from a better economy seems to be slipping away. One must point out that Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford all spent most of their terms with low economic ratings, and Mr. Carter seems to be no exception.

On foreign policy matters, however, this President appears to be in even deeper trouble than his immediate predecessor:

—On "handling relations with Russia," he is rated 49-31 percent negative, down from the 42-38 percent positive rating of July.

—On "handling relations with China," he receives a 44-31 percent negative rating, representing a small, but noticeable decline.
 —On his efforts to "achieve peace in the Middle East," President Carter now stands at 47-34 percent negative, whereas in July he was 55-35 percent positive.
 —On his proposed Panama Canal treaty, now stalled before the U.S. Senate, Americans give Mr. Carter a 58-23 percent negative rating.
 It is clear that Americans have serious reservations about the President on every major aspect of foreign policy. A source of strength for some past presidents, foreign affairs must be viewed as an area of real vulnerability for President Carter.

A third major area where the President appears to be in trouble is energy:

—On his "handling of the energy crisis," Mr. Carter receives a 58-33 percent negative rating.

—His "overall energy program" received a negative rating of 57-33 percent.

Finally, the public feeling about the Lance affair still remains negative:

—On his "handling of the Lance case," the President is given negative marks of 51-34 percent.

—On his "appointments to high office," he gets a 54-35 percent negative rating.

A note of encouragement is the finding that the public gives the President good marks for "running an open government." But the current 52-39 percent positive rating is down from August's 66-28 percent positive rating, and even more so from the 77-13 percent positive marks of March, just after he became established in office.

Mexican-Americans Assail A-J's Editorials

Several Mexican-American organizations Wednesday criticized a recent Avalanche-Journal column and editorial.

At a morning news conference, representatives of the American GI Forum, Arnett-Benson Neighborhood Council, League of United Latin American Citizens, Brown Berets and Comerciantes Organizados Mexicanos Americanos censured A-J associate editor Kenneth May's editorial column that was published Monday.

In the column, May questioned whether the true voice of the Mexican-American community is being heard in tussles with the city over Community Development money allocation. He also called for mutual harmony between Mexican-Americans and the city in settling differences.

An unsigned editorial also was blasted by the Mexican-American organizations, which said the article degraded the Mexican-American community by its "emphasis" on CD "handouts."

The editorial took issue with the belief that taxpayer money should be used to upgrade private dwellings without repayment or some type of compensation. The article also suggested that "the solution to our problems is not in polarizing differences, but in working them out." The articles were written after last week's CD sector meetings at which about 100 Arnett-Benson neighborhood residents claimed housing rehabilitation is their only priority for federal money.

Microelectronics Aluring To Reds

BERLIN (AP) — Klaus Fuchs, East Germany's top physics researcher and a former atom spy, says his country will work with Western companies in an effort to learn more about microelectronics.

Fuchs said in a newly published article that East Germany should be optimistic about catching up on the technology, which has produced pocket calculators and powerful computers in Western nations.

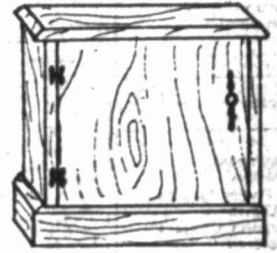

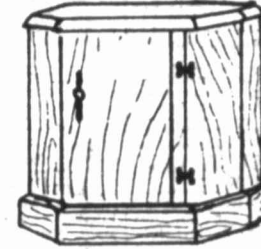

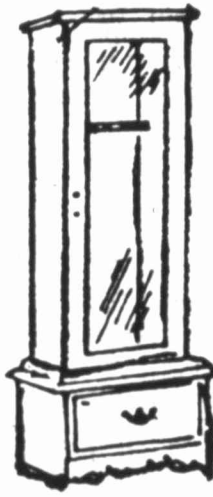

Fuchs, now 65 and head of research in physics, nuclear physics and synthetic materials in East Germany, emigrated from Nazi Germany in 1933 and worked in Great Britain and the United States until 1949. At that time he was uncovered as a Soviet spy. He was imprisoned in 1950 and returned to East Germany in 1959.

PROTECT THE TANKS OF YOUR CAR WITH POLYGLYCOCAT

The revolutionary new protective sealant that is not a wax or polish and can only be applied by your new car dealer.

GUARANTEED FOR THREE FULL YEARS

Your auto purchase today is necessary. Buy with the future in mind.

POLYGLYCOCAT PRESERVES! NO NEED TO EVER WAX YOUR CAR AGAIN!

Polyglycoat is a paint and chrome sealant finish — guaranteed to protect your car against fading, corrosion, oxidation and loss of gloss for three years. Composed of Dow 300 car care silicone, with a kerosene base, Polyglycoat breaks through the tiny paint pores in the surface and penetrates 2-3 layers into the paint-sealing it and shielding it against the foreign elements that cause corrosion, rust, and loss of gloss.

Not only will Polyglycoat eliminate the need for waxing, but it will virtually maintain your car's showroom finish. Thereby eliminating resale potential. It should be applied to all new cars and properly prepared used cars.

Redskins Count Wounded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins have taken on the look of the walking wounded as they prepare for their Sunday game in Dallas against the Cowboys.

The Redskins reported eight injured players to NFL headquarters Wednesday. At least seven of them, however, are expected to be ready to play in the nationally televised NFC East contest.

In addition, reserve linebacker Stu O'Dell, whose forte is the special teams, was put on the injured reserve list and linebacker Joe Harris was re-fired.

Quarterback Bill Kilmer was listed as probable but is suffering from a sore back that caused him to watch from the sidelines Tuesday as Joe Theismann handled the signal-calling chores during practice.

Coach George Allen closed the Wednesday practice to newsmen but said afterward that Kilmer worked out with the team. Allen described the practice as "not very good" because, he said, there are "too many players with bumps and bruises."

"He (Kilmer) really does have to be hurting not to practice," said Allen after the Tuesday practice. "Kilmer's never had back problems; not this bad."

Kilmer had a similar back problem the week before the season opener against the New York Giants, but he was able to play that Sunday, completing 50 per cent of his passes.

Kilmer's injury before the Giant game was diagnosed as "back spasms" and Allen said he was suffering from the same problem. However, The Washington Post quoted team sources as reporting that Kilmer was hit extremely hard several times Sunday in the Tampa Bay game, which may have contributed to his current condition.

Linebacker Chris Hanburger, the defensive captain, will probably miss the Sunday game because of an injured left knee. His spot will be taken by Mike Curtis.

Shepard Denies Wrongdoing By Cougars

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston freshman quarterback Darrell Shepard, whose financing of an automobile got the Cougars placed on probation, denies the school gave him a thing but said some others made offers.

The Cougars were given a one-year probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association last week because of recruiting violations involved in obtaining the Odessa schoolboy stand-out.

Shepard said he believes UH was the victim of "a railroad job."

"I know today that I haven't done anything wrong," Shepard said. "And the University of Houston has never given me anything. But I was offered a lot—and I mean a lot—under the table by some other schools."

He refused to elaborate, saying UH coach Bill Yeoman told him not to say anything about other schools.

"But if it were up to me, I would," he said. "But he feels it wouldn't do any good."

"I was offered cars and money, mostly by alumni of the schools. But one coach made an offer that was under the table."

However, Shepard refused to name names.

Other than Houston, Shepard's other five visits of his allocated six were to Southern Methodist, Baylor, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas.

Shepard said he feels some animosity toward the University of Texas because he says, "They're trying to make me ineligible just because I didn't go to school there."

Shepard said he did say he was going to Texas but that he changed his mind after his visit to Houston.

Shepard said his teammates haven't treated him any differently since the probation.

"I get some funny stares around the campus now and then, but no one has said anything to me about it," he said. "Anyway, as I said, I know I haven't done anything wrong and the school hasn't."

Panthers

"We have been working most on our execution and trying to do a better job running what we need to," Jefferson said.

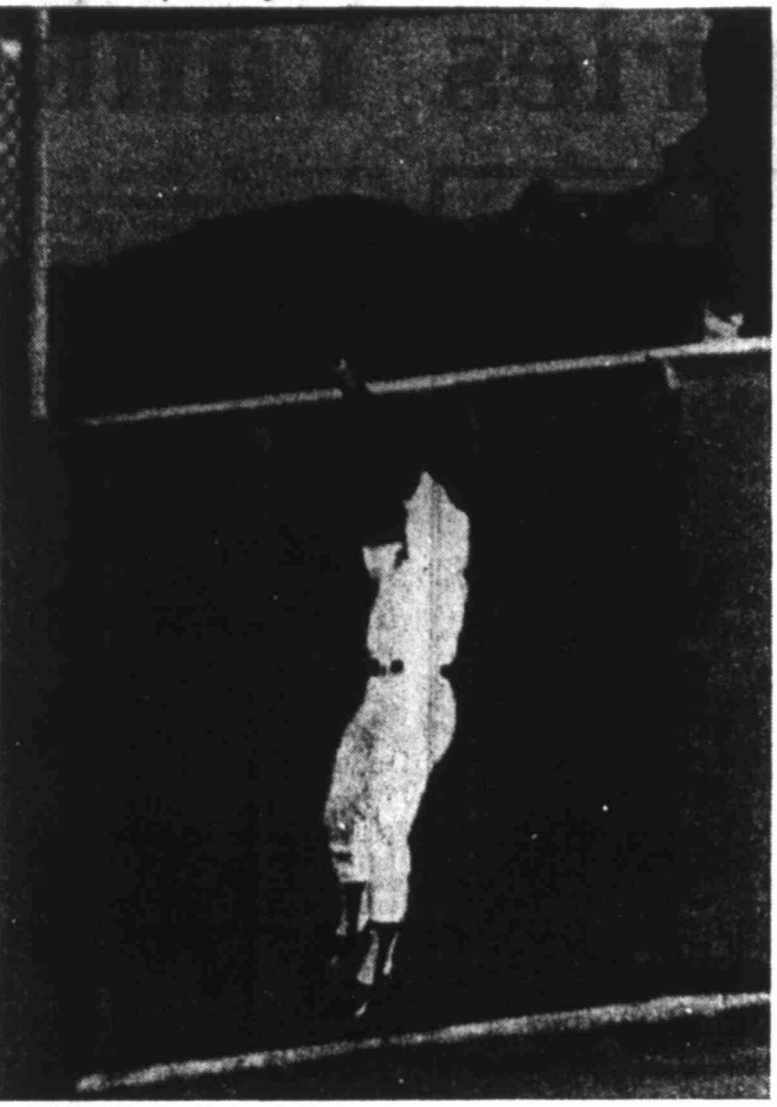

The Dunbar coach, who saw his team lose a 12-0 heartbreaker to Estacado two weeks ago, feels his team is ready to make a charge.

"We're ready to go," he said. "We aren't as stale as we were after our open date last year and I'm glad of that."

The Panthers are 2-2-1 on the year and in loop play.

Jefferson said the R and R gave his team a little time to lay back and let mother nature mend some of their wounds.

"We are in good shape," he said. "Now we are just ready to get after it again."

Injury Stops Namath; Haden Named Starter

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Broadway Joe Namath has suffered a recurrence of plugging knee injuries and Pat Haden returned to the starting quarterback job with the Los Angeles Rams on Wednesday.

Namath took a beating Monday as his new team lost 24-23 to the Chicago Bears and Dr. Clarence Shields reported swelling around the left knee.

Namath could miss two practices, so coach Chuck Knox immediately decided that Rhodes Scholar Haden, former star at the University of Southern California, would be the starter Sunday at the Los Angeles Coliseum against the New Orleans Saints.

The decision came as Los Angeles fans continued to debate the Namath vs. Haden controversy that began at the start of the regular season. There was divided opinion whether the choice of Namath over Haden was the right one.

The Rams were only 1-5 in the preseason and are 2-2 in the regular campaign.

The 24-year-old Haden had won the starting assignment late last year, but lost it at the start of the regular National Football League season to the man 10 years his senior. Namath played 12 seasons for the New York Jets before joining the Rams after playing out his option.

Before the doctor's report, Knox had told newsmen, "If physically able, Namath will start against New Orleans. Both knees are bothering him and he has a bruise on his sternum (breastbone)."

Knox indicated that Haden would call the plays. The coach had Namath and the USC grad calling plays in the preseason although for the past three seasons the job had been done by the coaches. In the opening regular season games, the coaches called the plays. After Los Angeles lost to Atlanta 17-6, Knox let his quarterback make the decisions.

"It's not who calls, it's the execution," the coach said at his regular meeting with newsmen. "We have to concentrate."

The Rams have been dropping Namath passes and the concentration remark could have been directed at them.

"Receivers might as well catch the ball because they are going to get hit anyway," Knox declared. "Catching the football is not the easiest thing in the world."

Knox said the short week of training after the Monday night game in Chicago was a definite handicap, "but we can't let it be that."

He added: "A lot of our players are nursing injuries. Bob Brudzinski has a sore knee, Rich Saul has a knee injury and Billy Waddy had leg cramps in Chicago. I think they'll all be ready."

Although Knox didn't say it, he also expects Namath to be ready for action if Haden needs help.

So far this regular season, Haden has passed just six times, completing three for 55 yards in the final touchdown advance against Chicago, when he threw for his only touchdown. Namath hit 50 of 107 attempts for 606 yards and three scores.

Dodgers Win

As Smith circled the bases, Hunter stood on the mound, his head bowed, perhaps remembering better World Series moments. He took a 4-1 career Series record into Wednesday night's game, but the Dodger bats were not impressed.

Martin came out to get Hunter before more damage could be done. The power display was a familiar dilemma for Hunter this season. He surrendered 29 homers in only 143 1/3 innings pitched.

Garvey's shot in the ninth finished the Dodger attack and by then the crowd of 56,691—largest at Yankee Stadium this year—had become restless and unruly.

Firecrackers and smoke bombs were tossed from the stands onto the field and fights broke out in the seats. Some fans in the upper stands doused fans in the lower stands with beer and the game was delayed several times as young fans raced across the outfield.

Hooton, however, was hardly disturbed by either the extra-curricular activities of the fans or by the Yankees bats.

Sinton Back Takes State HS Honors

By Associated Press

Sinton Coach Dub Galbraith had little trouble pointing out the precise reason for his team's 14-6 upset loss to Rockport-Fulton last week—linebacker Joe Brooks.

Brooks, a 6-4 175-pounder, was credited with 22 tackles for the second straight week including two stops that saved touchdowns to share honors with three quarterbacks in this week's Associated Press Schoolboy Football Honor Roll.

"If it hadn't been for him, we probably would have won the game 21-14," Galbraith said of Brooks' one-man show. "He really made that much difference."

Vidor coach Ron Thompson got 309 rushing yards and three touchdowns from his quarterback position last week in a 35-22 victory over Port Arthur Jefferson.

McKay Eases Remarks About 'Skin'

SEATTLE (AP) — John McKay, coach of the hapless Tampa Bay Buccaneers, says he isn't about to abandon the I-formation offense, despite what Bill Brundage or any of his other critics say.

"If you give me a good offensive line, I'll stay in the I-formation most of the time," McKay said in a telephone news conference Wednesday.

Brundage, the Washington Redskins' veteran defensive tackle, was critical of McKay's offensive strategy following Washington's 10-0 victory over the Bucs last Sunday. It was Tampa Bay's 18th straight regular season loss since joining the National Football League last year.

Brundage said the I-formation may have worked for McKay during his 16 seasons as head coach at Southern California, but it's not the best offense to run in the NFL.

McKay, whose offense has yet to score a touchdown in four games this season, labeled Brundage an "idiot" for his post-game remarks. He also said some members of the press don't "know anything about football."

On Wednesday, however, McKay was less incensed. He said he wasn't as angry as he sounded.

"The anger part of that had to do with our use of the I-formation and that we didn't change," said McKay, whose team meets the winless Seattle Seahawks in the Kingdome Sunday in Expansion Bowl II.

"I never believe that formations win anything. Players blocking do that," McKay continued. "The I-formation, we use it, but every team we played is lined up in it, too. Washington scored from it, and was in it probably more times than we were."

"I just told the fellas that if they're going to get a free lunch and a free ticket to the game, they just ought to go see what the other team's doing, too, not just criticize what we're doing."

"Maybe I said it in a more firm manner than I should have."

Vidor starting quarterback Lanny Reeves rushed 200 yards on 13 carries and scored on runs of 45 and 58 yards in the first half but suffered a broken collarbone on the first series of the third quarter.

Safer then came on to rush 109 yards on 13 carries and score on a 41 yard run to help ease the loss of Reeves.

Lubbock Monterey quarterback Ron Reeves put on a running and scoring performance of his own in a Monterey's 41-14 victory over Pampa.

This Reeves rushed 141 yards and scored 29 points on three touchdowns, two field goals and five extra points. Reeves' touchdowns were on runs of 49, 1, and 37 yards and he had field goals of 36 and 37 yards.

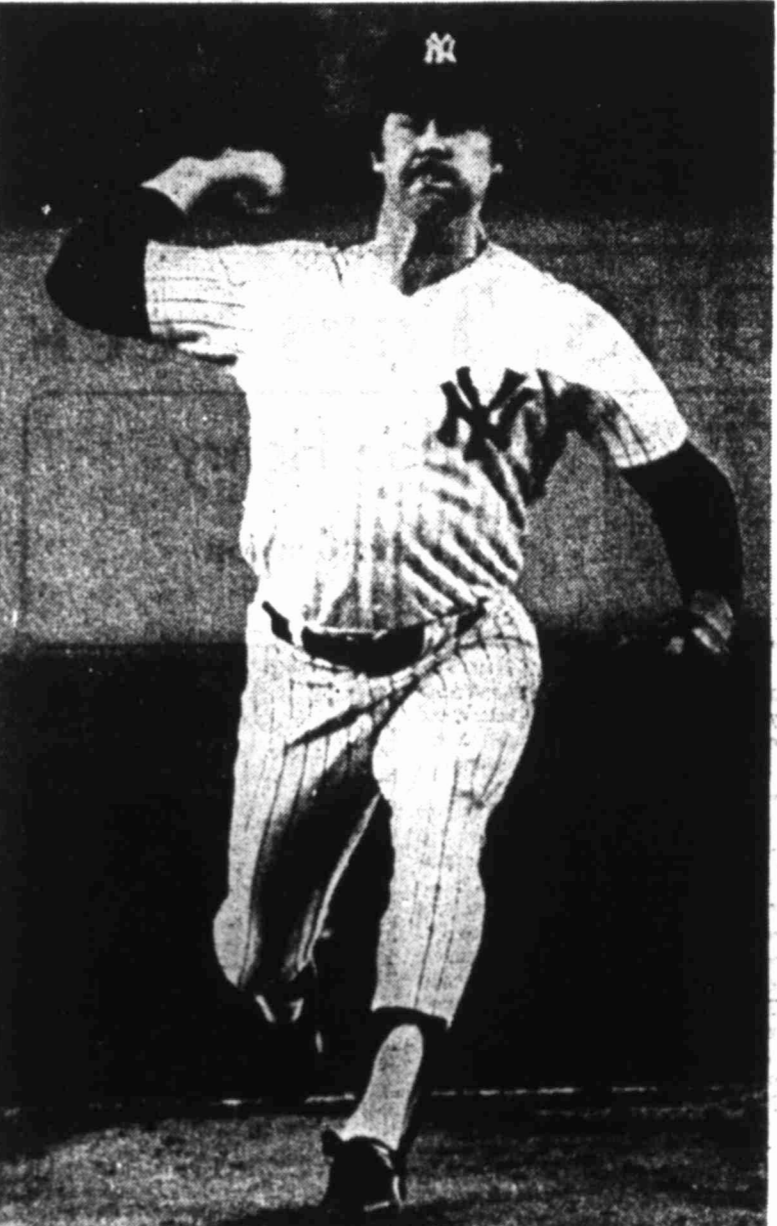

"It wasn't me," Lanny Reeves said, diminishing his performance. "It was the line. I didn't do anything but run. I didn't think the holes could be so wide open."

Vidor Athletic Director Cliff Patton said both Reeves and Safer are quick and have good change of pace when they run. "They're heavy ball players," Patton said. "They follow their blocks real well and our people are setting up the blocks real well."

Other players earning mention this are: —Tahoka's Clifford Bailey, who rushed 280 yards on 35 carries and scored three touchdowns in a 20-0 shutout of Denver City.

—Mirando City halfback Armando Bustamante, who rushed 279 yards on 31 carries and scored six touchdowns on runs of 5, 1, 57, 9, 70 and 18 yards in a 42-22 victory over Laredo Martin JV.

—Tailback Mike Jones of Petersburg, who rushed 192 yards on 38 carries and scored on runs of 13, 9, and 6 yards in a 28-7 victory over Crosbyton. Jones has rushed 1,108 yards through six games.

Solon Calls For Probe To Include OSU Case

By The Associated Press
U.S. Rep. Ted Risenhoover wants a new congressional investigation of the National Collegiate Athletic Association expanded to include the NCAA's probe of the Oklahoma State University football program, a Risenhoover aide said Wednesday.

Joe Carter, top aide to the congressman, quoted Risenhoover as saying that "apparently the NCAA is concentrating on Oklahoma schools, (and) I'm sick and tired of it."

U.S. Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., began an investigation of the NCAA and its probe into the basketball program at Las Vegas-Nevada on Oct. 4 after 15 congressmen, including Risenhoover, asked for the probe.

Moss is chairman of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

In Risenhoover's letter to Moss, the Oklahoma Democrat said: "There are strong reasons to believe the NCAA may be violating antitrust laws, assessing penalties that lack fairness and equity, but perhaps most important, the NCAA may be denying due process (of law)."

Risenhoover specifically referred to the allegations against players Jim Clark and Mike Edwards. Clark is accused of attending a signing party allegedly paid for by an alumni while Edwards is accused of not yet paying a Stillwater, Okla., travel agency for a trip home.

"I just can't believe the NCAA is doing this," says Clark, a sophomore who also wrestles. The NCAA charges that OSU alumni Jim Treat paid for a party after Clark signed with Oklahoma State.

"But Mr. Treat didn't pay for it," Clark says. "Francis Wheeler paid for it. He told me before I signed with anyone that he'd like to take me and my friends out when I signed with whoever I signed with."

"He's a former assistant coach with Tulsa University. You think he's an OSU booster? I've known him and worked for him since junior high. He's a good friend."

"He signed a sworn affidavit that he paid for the party. The NCAA took it and threw it in the trash. They don't have any proof that Jim Treat paid for anything—not a canceled check or anything."

As for Edwards, the travel agency says it is not unusual for a student to take a long time to pay a bill.

Picadors Take On Ranger JC

The Texas Tech Picadors, 2-0 for the season, will host Ranger Junior College tonight at 7:30 in Jones Stadium.

The Picadors have defeated New Mexico 17-16 and Arkansas 27-16 for their two victories this year. Ranger, the 10th-ranked junior college team in the nation by both wire-service polls, is 5-1. The Rangers have defeated New Mexico Military Institute, Independence (Kan.) JC, Cisco JC and Texas Lutheran's JV. They have lost to Northeast Oklahoma by a 10-6 count.

Tommy Limbaugh, director of the Tech junior varsity program, has been pleased with this year's freshman group.

"We feel we have the best group of signees now since we've been here," he said. "We feel good about the group, overall."

The Picadors have been a run-oriented team this season, picking up 507 yards on the ground and 158 in the air. Leading rusher Steve Dawson—143 yards and a 7.5 average per carry—will be with the varsity this week, but Tim Orr will move to the junior varsity and see his first action there. Orr is a 6-5, 210-pounder from Abilene Cooper.

Bobby Hicks, who is averaging over 100 yards per game.

The Rangers' quarterback is C.J. White, who was at Texas A&M before having to leave because of scholastic difficulties. Starting in the secondary for the visitors will be Keith Stone, former Lubbock High athlete and son of former LHS coach Tommy Stone.

Sloan To Speak At RRC Meeting

The Red Raider Club will hold its weekly noon luncheon today at Vann's KoKo Palace with Texas Tech coach Steve Sloan as the speaker.

The program is limited to Red Raider Club members and their guests. For the past three weeks, standing-room-only crowds have attended.

Sloan and one of his assistant coaches will report on this week's opponent, Rice.

Robert Canady, who's rushed for a 4.2 average per carry, will start at tailback for the Pics.

Darren Reagan will be the Tech quarterback starter, but Limbaugh said Richy Ethridge and David Stone will play, also. The plan is for the quarterbacks to alternate after every two series of plays.

Ranger's top running threat is tailback

Top Names Head Texas Open List

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Local favorite Lee Trevino and former U.S. Open winners Lou Graham and Hale Irwin head the field which begins play today in one of the oldest tournaments on the PGA tour — the $150,000 Texas Open.

Johnny Miller who won the Texas and U.S. Opens in 1973 and was expected to be among favorites to win the tournament over the 6,565, par-70 Oak Hills course, withdrew from the tournament Wednesday because of a nagging shoulder injury.

Despite a shortage of rough because of a dry summer, pros playing early practice rounds at Oak Hills, hosting the tournament for the first time in 10 years, praised the course.

"Oak Hills is one of the best courses in the state," said Trevino, who has never won the Texas Open in his hometown despite an impressive collection of victories elsewhere. "It's in great shape and it's going to be a great tournament."

Also entered in the 48th version of the tourney are former Texas Open winners Butch Baird, the defending champion who beat Miller Barber in a playoff last year. Phil Rodgers (1963); Frank Beard (1964); Jackie Burke Jr. (1952); Chi Chi Rodriguez (1967); Ron Cerrudo (1970); Mike Hill (1972); Ben Crenshaw (1973); Terry Diehl (1974) and Don January (1975).

Baird won last year's tournament, played at Woodlake Golf Club, by sinking a pressure 15-foot putt on the last hole for a tie with Barber, then birdied the first playoff hole for the victory.

Three major changes have been made on the oak-lined course since Arnold Palmer won the first Texas Open played over the layout in 1961. Sixty-two players broke par during the first round that year.

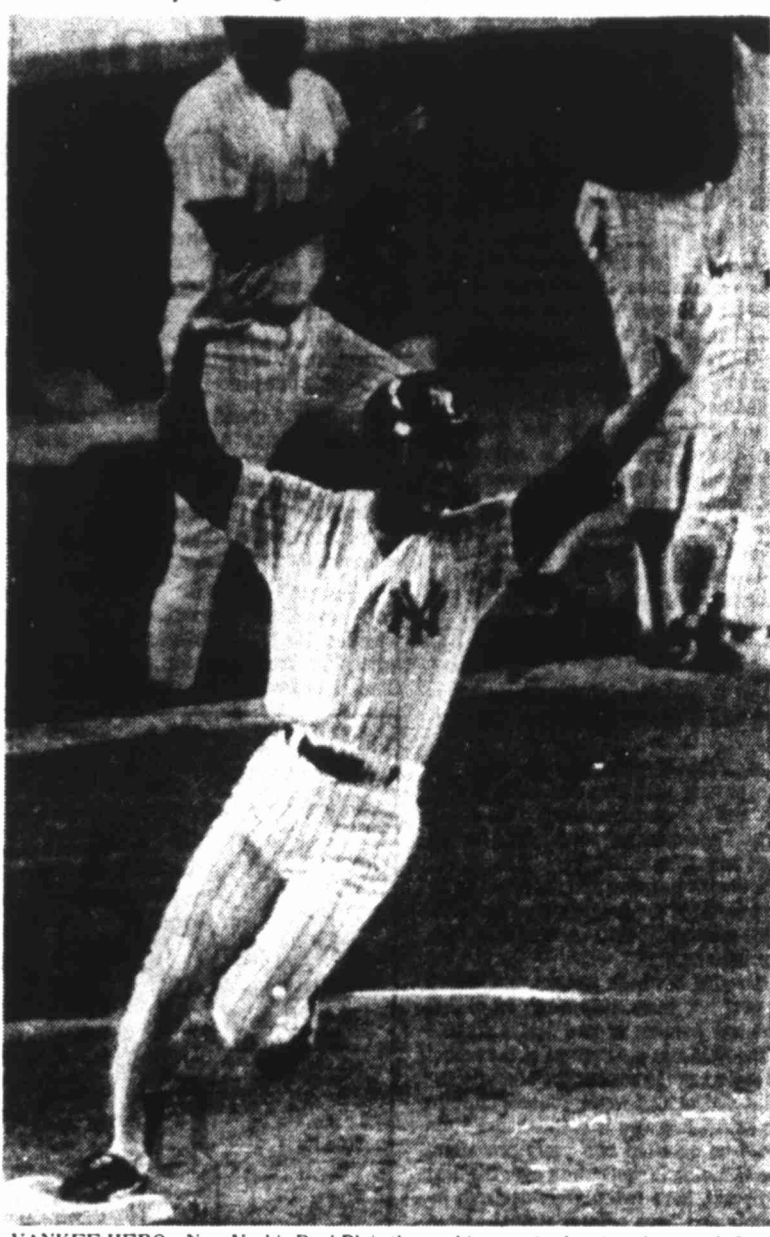

The ninth and 18th greens have been resurfaced this year, offering some "interesting pin placement possibilities."

EHS Spikers Try Mustangs

SWEETSWATER (Special)—The Estacado Matadors will travel here tonight for a 6:30 p.m. girls' high school volleyball contest with the Mustangs.

The match will be the first District 3-AAA meeting between the two schools this season. Estacado has a 2-2 loop mark, while Sweetwater is 3-1 behind unbeaten leader Snyder.

The Coronado, Lubbock High and Monterey squads will all be in Levelland Friday and Saturday to compete in the Levelland Tournament.

YANKEE HERO—New York's Paul Blair throws his arms in the air as he rounds first base after his hit scored the Willie Randolph with the winning run in the 12th inning of Tuesday night's World Series game. The run gave the Yankees a 4-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. Cheering Blair's hit is Yankee coach Elston Howard (background). (AP Laserphoto)

Kansas City Inks Ex-Packer Back

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs signed running back John Brockington, once considered one of the most devastating rushers in the National Football League, to a contract today.

Brockington, 29, who rushed for 4,999 yards in six seasons with the Green Bay Packers, was placed on waivers before the regular season and he became a free agent. Brockington would become the 24th player in NFL history to reach the 5,000-yard rushing milestone if he picks up one more yard.

The Chiefs made room for Brockington on the roster by placing running back MacArthur Lane, a former teammate of Brockington at Green Bay, on the injured reserve list.

Lorenzo Joins Rated Teams

By WALT McALEXANDER
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

There's only one change in this week's Avalanche-Journal area rankings—that in Class A where Lorenzo replaces Farwell as the No. 5 team—but the list could change drastically next week.

With every area district now involved in loop action, there are two elite matchups this week: In AA where No. 5-ranked Frenship hosts No. 3-ranked Post in a battle of unbeaten and in B where No. 1-ranked Ropesville entertains No. 5 Sundown.

The Roughnecks still own the worst record of the 25 listed units (3-3) but that doesn't stop Ropes coach Don Parker from worrying about them.

"Anytime you play Sundown, it's going to be a rough game. We've just got to be ready for them mentally and physically."

Sundown has never lost a zone game since 2-B went to the zone alignment four falls back. Parker admitted he'd mentioned this to his troops but hadn't dwelled on it—or the fact Ropesville hasn't won over Sundown during this decade.

"We're trying to deal with the present, now the past," explained Parker, who admitted the Eagles, who have outscored the opposition 235-7 in running up a 6-0 mark, will have to stop Sundown's passing game involving quarterback Robert Smith and receivers Noe Rodriguez and Jody Carpenter as well as the running of Ricky Waygood.

"Really," Parker said. "We're just going to have to stop all of them."

NORTHERN IRELAND WINS
D BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Holland edged Northern Ireland 1-0 Wednesday and took a big step towards qualifying for next year's World Cup soccer final in Argentina.

Frenship will be out to avenge one of its two 1976 defeats (24-12) when the Tigers face Post. The winner will either be 5-AA's outright leader or share that honor with Slaton, provided the Tigers get past Denver City.

"We should be up for this game," explained first-year Frenship coach John Parchman. "I feel like if had we beaten them last year, we would have tied for the district championship. The same three or four teams are doing well again this year and this should be a key game. Whoever wins it will be sitting in an excellent position when they play Slaton."

Parchman indicated Frenship would be full strength Friday for the first time since the season opener. "Two of our runningbacks, Roy Cruz and Lloyd Strong, have been bothered by bad ankles all year but have been playing anyway. They're finally 100 per cent and it couldn't have come at a better time."

Parchman also said Tiger workouts this week had been excellent and he felt cooler weather Friday would aid his troops. "We have some pretty big guys and they seem to play better when it's cool."

Coyotes See Brighter Times

By WALT McALEXANDER
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

This hasn't been the most enjoyable of seasons for Bill Killian and his Borden County Coyotes—yet.

The Coyotes were tabbed by writers and coaches to win 3-B's North Zone during Coaching School in Dallas and then Borden County was listed as No. 10 on The Associated Press' preseason Top Ten poll.

By that time, however, things had already started to snowball. Senior end-linbacker Ty Zant underwent knee surgery after the second scrimmage and quarterback Blane Dyess also missed the first four games due to a severe muscle bruise just above the knee.

In addition, star runner Eurdist Rinehart was slowed by a bruised shoulder and then... "We just had that the occasional flu bug that bites everyone."

So, really, it was not surprising when Borden County got off to an 0-3 starts, losing 18-0 to Roby, 34-8 to Forsan and 28-6 to O'Donnell. Now, however, that record stands 2-4 one game deep into the zone slate and the Coyotes are again a title threat.

"We had a good game against Loraine (a 35-9 win), but that was the first game we came close to being full strength," Killian commented.

"The following week against Garden City we just had a poor night (losing 13-12). Everything we could mess up we messed up. We jumped out in front 12-0 and then went to sleep on defense and got turned on a couple of sweeps and just couldn't get going again.

"Last Friday, we got cranking again (a 40-6 zone-opening win over Dawson). I guess against Garden City we had kids in there who hadn't been playing and just hadn't gotten everything down and we just got the bad game out of system.

"I hope we'll play better... and get rolling on down the line. We'll have to beat some people. And we've got to stay healthy, because we can't handle people like Wilson, Klondike or New Home if we're not," Killian said.

The west zone of 3-B has compiled a sub-par 6-23 record against non-zone opponents.

Asked about the difference in that mark to the east's 18-6, Killian explained: "There's no doubt that people like Forsan and Jayton are bigger Class B schools and are better than us. But we've played everyone in that other zone except Jayton and I think we're capable of beating everyone over there with perhaps the exception of Jayton (which beat Forsan 14-13 in the zone opener last weekend). It just depends on who has his head on right when it comes to the district championship game.

"I don't think our kids feel too much pressure. If you don't have the people at the time you need them, all you can do is ask the other kids to give their best effort.

"We just want to win our zone and see how far we can go. But I realize that's not going to be easy. Klondike lost last week but could really tear someone up.

"Wilson still has the momentum from last year, even though they've been up and down. If you don't get ready to play them, they'll blow you out. And New Home is just like last year, they played an extremely tough non-district schedule (Motley County, Meadow, Ropes, Stanton) but still were able to come on strong in district."

CONTROVERSIAL PLAY—Umpire Nestor Chylak views the action from behind the catcher as he is about to call Los Angeles runner Steve Garvey (6) out at home plate in the sixth inning of Tuesday night's opening game of the World Series at New York. Making the play on Garvey is Yankees catcher Thurman Munson. Garvey tried to score on a hit by Glenn Burke, and the play created the first big controversy of this year's Series. (AP Laserphoto)

Lasorda Raps Ump's Call

NEW YORK (AP)—"It is a crime—Steve was definitely safe and the umpire was out of position," manager Tommy Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers fumed Wednesday after viewing still photographs of a sixth-inning play that had a vital effect on the first World Series baseball game.

"I thought I beat the throw and this proves it," said Steve Garvey a central figure in the controversial decision.

It happened in the sixth inning of the opening game between the Dodgers and the New York Yankees, a thrilling battle won by New York 4-3 in the 12th inning.

Garvey, the Los Angeles first baseman, had beaten out a bunt and then raced home on a shot to right center by Glenn Burke.

Yankees centerfielder Mickey Rivers handled the ball and threw home, the throw sailing slightly to the right side of home plate. There was a cloud of dust as Garvey made his slide and umpire Nestor Chylak raised his thumb for an out call.

The Dodgers erupted in a strong but futile protest.

The run, if it had been scored would have given the Dodgers a 3-1 lead and in retrospect could have given them the first game victory.

A series of three pictures made by Associated Press photographers showed clearly that Garvey had gotten his foot on the base before being tagged by catcher Thurman Munson.

Chylak had moved around to the first base side and was not in front of the play where he normally would have been.

"It's the position that bothers me," Lasorda said. "Look, Chylak is all out of position. What is doing on that side of home plate anyhow?"

The mild-mannered Garvey who insisted Tuesday night he had beaten the tag, agreed with his manager.

"I didn't see how he could have seen the play—he plain blew it," Garvey said.

Prints of the play sequence were shown to the Dodgers after they arrived at Yankee Stadium for the second game, causing an immediate uproar.

"Look here, Reggie," Lasorda yelled to Reggie Smith. "Come here and look at these pictures. This is highway robbery."

All of the Dodgers were upset by the pictorial display.

One of his teammates told Garvey that Joe DiMaggio, the former Yankees great who watched on television, had said that Garvey had made a bad slide. DiMaggio was quoted as saying the Dodgers infielder should have slid inside rather than outside the plate.

"What does that guy know about it?" one Dodger said, "he's not the umpire."

Garvey shrugged his shoulders and said, "I don't think I made a bad slide. That's the way I always slide."

UT Gets Winning Nod; Tech, Cougars Picked

By FRED ROTHENBERG
NEW YORK (AP) — The Texas Longhorns, out of the frying pan and into the fire, are playing their second undefeated and unlikely rival in two weeks.

Last week, it was Oklahoma in a game for bragging rights along the dusty barrooms and truck stops in the Texas Panhandle. Texas won that one 13-6.

This week, Texas looks east to fight Southwest Conference foe Arkansas, 4-0 and averaging 40 points a game under freshman coach Lou Holtz.

Both Holtz and first-year Texas coach Fred Akers are undefeated since leaving last year's stops on the career coaching ladder. Holtz was either on a higher or lower rung, depending on your perspective, when he coached the New York Jets in the National Football League. Akers was at Wyoming, where he led the Cowboys to an 8-3 season and a Fiesta Bowl loss to Oklahoma.

The argument could be made that the few teams of Holtz and Akers are undefeated because they are better than the old teams.

But that argument aside, the burning question of the day is: Which of the new clubs is better?

Texas, averaging just under 50 points in rolling past four opponents, has surrendered just 21 points. But the game in Razorback country and Arkansas had a week off while Texas was playing black-and-blue football with Oklahoma.

Throw all the data into the computer and the results stream out: Texas 31, Arkansas 21. The reason: Texas, which has won the last five matchups, just has Arkansas' number.

Maybe if Oklahoma and Arkansas attacked Texas the same week, the Longhorns could've been had this season.

Wisconsin at No. 1 Michigan: The best of the Big Ten's little eight against the best of Big Ten's top two is really no match at all. . . Michigan 31, Wisconsin 14.

No. 3 Colorado at Kansas: The only undefeated team in the Big 8 keeps on truckin', easily driving through the Kansas plains. . . Colorado 28, Kansas 13.

Frosh Quarterback To Guide Baylor

WACO, Texas (AP) — Baylor Coach Grant Teaff has decided to start freshman Scott Smith at quarterback Saturday when the Bears take on Texas A.M.

The Bear coach has been mulling the quarterback situation since he lost Sammy Bickham for the season this week because of knee surgery.

Smith got the nod over sophomore Greg Wood, although Teaff promised that Wood will see a lot of action as Smith's backup against A&M.

Smith started against Kentucky earlier this season, and Baylor won that game 21-6. In three games this season, the freshman has hit on 43 per cent of his passes for 76 yards. He has also rushed for nine yards.

Pittsburgh Pirate southpaw Jim Rooker has all his clothes made by his wife.

SMU Drops Paul Rice

DALLAS (AP) — Junior tailback Paul Rice, who was given a chance to play a Southern Methodist after troubled and brief careers at Southern California and Ranger Junior College, was dismissed from the team Wednesday for disciplinary reasons.

SMU Coach Ron Meyer said he would not comment on the reasons Rice was kicked off the team other than to say it was disciplinary in nature.

Rice missed practice both Tuesday and Wednesday.

"I'm disappointed," said Meyer in a curt announcement.

Meyer had given Rice a spot on the Mustang team when the 5-foot-10, 190-pounder came to him during fall training. Rice was SMU's second leading rusher this year with 291 yards on 78 carries.

Barnes Nears Release From Prison

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP) — Marvin Barnes, whose basketball career with the Detroit Pistons was set back by a prison sentence, will be released Friday after serving four months behind bars.

Bob Kauffman, general manager of the Pistons, said Wednesday he will fly to Rhode Island today so he can be on hand when Barnes is released. The release time is not expected to be announced.

"We want to congratulate him on getting out," Kauffman said in a telephone interview from Detroit. "We want to make sure that there's someone there to help him out."

Barnes began his prison sentence May 16 after a Providence Superior Court judge ruled that the 6-foot-9 basketball star violated the terms of a probationary sentence.

The probation was imposed in 1974 after Barnes pleaded guilty to assaulting a Providence College teammate with a fire iron. The probation violation happened late last year when an unloaded pistol was found in Barnes' luggage at a Detroit airport.

The state parole board ruled Sept. 7 that Barnes, 25, was entitled to parole effective this Friday. The board agreed to release the former college all-America early so he could return to the Pistons.

"I think he had a hell of a good shaking up," said board chairman Joseph Galkin. "He was contrite. He said he made two mistakes and he learned a hell of a lesson. We have a feeling that nothing of this kind will ever happen again. Maybe it's good that he got this job this early in his career."

Meanwhile, Kauffman said he expected Barnes to play for the Pistons on Friday against the Buffalo Braves. The game will be the final preseason contest for Pistons.

"I think a quality player like Marvin can play," Kauffman said. "He's proven his ability in the ABA (American Basketball Association) and people are waiting for him with baited breath."

Kauffman said he would escort Barnes to Buffalo where a news conference is scheduled for 3 p.m. Friday. He added that the young basketball player had taken his team physical in prison.

"He seems to be in A-1 shape," the general manager said. "He says he's physically strong. He's been lifting weights. He's been running so his legs are good, but he says his wind may not be too strong."

Kareem Gets Lifetime Pact With LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said he wanted it stated in writing that he would finish out his National Basketball Association in Los Angeles, and the Lakers' superstar center got his wish.

Abdul-Jabbar has asked for and received a virtual lifetime contract with the Lakers, the team announced.

The league's five-time MVP, Abdul-Jabbar had signed a five-year contract for a reported $3 million when he came to Los Angeles from the Milwaukee Bucks.

The new agreement, worked out between Lakers owner Jack Kent Cooke and Abdul-Jabbar's attorney, extends the contract for the duration of his NBA career.

Abdul-Jabbar, 30, said he wants to play as long as he holds up physically and mentally. The former UCLA all-America had previously played six seasons with the Bucks.

"I personally asked Mr. Cooke to extend my contract with the expectation of finishing my career here," Abdul-Jabbar said after the contract was signed Tuesday.

"I have enjoyed playing with the Lakers, and Mr. Cooke and his organization have been very fair to me. I figured I should try and formally get it down on paper that I wanted to play out my career with the Lakers."

Abdul-Jabbar led the Lakers to the best regular-season record in the league last season, and as far as the Western Conference finals, where they lost to Portland. This season, the addition of another former UCLA all-America, forward Keith Wilkes, is expected to make the team even better.

Western JC Golf Slate Resumes

MIDLAND (Special)—Western Texas College will attempt to maintain its narrow 1-point lead over Odessa College when the Western Junior College Athletic Conference's men's golf tournament moves here today for the second-round of play.

Action starts at Midland Country Club with a 9 a.m. tee off.

Following first-round of play at Clarendon Country Club last month, Western Texas collected 7 points, 1 more than Odessa College. Midland College and New Mexico Junior College are tied for third with 4 points each. Clarendon College and New Mexico Military Institute are tied for fifth with 2 points each and Frank Phillips is in seventh place with 1 point.

On Friday, the seven teams will move to Odessa Country Club for the third tournament of the season.

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Penn State holds the National Collegiate Athletic Association record for most consecutive seasons without a losing record, 38. The Nittany Lions' last losing season was 1938, when they were 3-4-1.

Lakers Get Help For Jabbar Via Trades

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer

As good as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is, he can't win a championship by himself. The Los Angeles Lakers learned that lesson last May when Portland swept them in four straight games en route to the National Basketball Association title.

"Excluding the big guys (Abdul-Jabbar and Blazers center Bill Walton), would you want our 11 or their 11?" asked Lakers coach Jerry West after that wipeout. "I feel sorry for Kareem. It's a terrible burden we put on him."

To ease that burden, the Lakers were active in the off-season, revamping their supporting cast with veterans Jamaal Wilkes, Ernie DiGregorio and Lou Hudson and first-round draft picks Kenny Carr, Brad Davis and Norm Nixon.

Portland, by contrast, stood relatively still, only swapping backup centers and not even signing its No. 1 draft choice, Rich Laurel. Coach Jack Ramsay knows it won't be easy to repeat. "We are no longer a team that people take lightly," he said. "We know it will be difficult, but we feel we can meet the challenge."

Elsewhere in the Pacific Division, Phoenix appears to be much improved while Golden State and Seattle are rebuilding.

Denver, Chicago and Detroit look to be the contenders in the Midwest Division. Milwaukee could join them if its rookies and young veterans meld quickly, while Kansas City and Indiana have undergone shakeups.

Pacific Division

Abdul-Jabbar is coming off a brilliant year in which he ranked third in scoring (26.2); first in field goal percentage

(.579); second in rebounding (13.3); and second in blocked shots (13.3), as he won Most Valuable Player honors for the fifth time in his eight-year career.

"He's a magnificent center and a magnificent person," praised West. "He never stopped working. He played as well, day in and day out, as I could possibly have hoped."

Wilkes, signed as a free agent, is the best of the newcomers, a three-year veteran who is one of the most complete forwards in the game. Neither DiGregorio nor Hudson solves the club's need for a first-rate all-around guard, and Davis and Nixon don't look ready to step in right away. Holdovers include second-year man Earl Tatum, rugged rebounder Kermit Washington, shooter Cazzie Russell and defensive aces Don Chaney and Don Ford.

Portland's big worry is Walton's back, which he hurt prior to reporting to camp. The red-haired center has been suffering spasms throughout the exhibition season and was in traction for four days this week.

"It's really not a basketball-related injury," reports Ron Curl, the Blazers' trainer. "He chopped wood for something like six hours. When you're seven feet tall, by chopping down like that you're bound to aggravate something."

"But we're a long way from panic," added Curl, who says Walton may be in the lineup when the regular season opens next week.

The Blazers can ill afford to lose Walton for any length of time. He's the most valuable component in their fast break, pattern offense and pressure defense. Without him, this team goes nowhere.

Among his supporting cast, Maurice Lucas is one of the best power forwards in the league. Lionel Hollins is a good all-around guard and both Dave Twardzik and Johnny Davis are fine playmakers. And Bobby Gross, the small forward, does little things that make coaches happy like diving for loose balls and filling a lane on the break.

Injuries stripped Phoenix of its frontcourt last year. Now Alvan Adams, Curtis Perry and Gar Heard are joined by rookie Walter Davis and Bayard Forrest. Don Buse, NBA assists and steals champ with Indiana last year, joins Paul Westphal and Ron Lee in a first-class backcourt.

Speedy rookie Ricky Green figures to keep things moving at Golden State, where Rick Barry has postponed retirement for another year, Phil Smith remains a sometimes star and defense-minded E.C. Coleman, signed as a free agent, succeeds Wilkes.

Bill Russell is gone after four years at Seattle. His replacement as coach, Bob Hopkins, has the Sonics running. Willie Wise and Paul Silas will help at forward, but the key is third-year center Marvin Webster, acquired from Denver where he spent two years on the bench.

Midwest Division

Guards Brian Taylor and Bobby Wilkerson, two off-season acquisitions, should improve Denver's defense considerably. The offense, led by David Thompson and Dan Issel, doesn't need much help. The Nuggets moved to strengthen their bench this week when they obtained rookie forward Bo Ellis, and more moves are likely.

Chicago won 16 of its last 20 games last season and coach Ed Badger hopes that will carry over. Artis Gilmore is a first-rate center, but a power forward is needed to complement Scott May and Mickey Johnson. Norm Van Lier is the backcourt leader.

Detroit has about 10 players who think they should be starters, a situation which led to much bickering last year. It is unlikely things will be smoother this time around.

Milwaukee bagged two-time all-American center Kent Benson, college Player of the Year Marques Johnson and talented swingman Ernie Grunfeld in the college draft. They join young veterans like Quinn Buckner, Brian Winters, Dave Meyers and Junior Bridgeman on a team whose future is bright, indeed.

Kansas City is hoping a change of scenery will wake up towering Tom Burson, the 7-4 center who flopped for three years with Seattle, and ex-Laker guard Lucius Allen, who returns to his home town. Much is expected of second-year forward Richard Washington.

Rookie of the Year Adrian Dantley, acquired from Buffalo, is the man on the spot in Indiana. He is being asked to replace the NBA's No. 2 scorer, Billy Knight. Another newcomer who must come through is guard Ricky Sobers, obtained from Phoenix for the popular Don Buse.

Speedy Scot of the United States returned the smallest win price in the history of the Roosevelt International. In 1964 he paid $2.70 for each $2 ticket.

World Food Crisis Discussed

By KETH HENLEY
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer
World realities are changing faster than the comprehension of such changes, and much more rapidly than the social and political processes and institutions designed to cope with them, Dr. Anson R. Bertrand observed here Wednesday.

Bertrand, dean of agricultural sciences at Texas Tech, was a member of a panel of speakers who addressed the 37th meeting of Texas soil and water conservation district directors at the Memorial Civic Center.

Theme is "Changing Challenges."

Bertrand said two of the greatest challenges facing mankind are finding a balance between the human population and food supplies and the wise use and conservation of natural resources.

"Ten years ago, who would have thought that the world would have gone from surplus food stocks to dangerously low levels in 1973 and 1974 to parts with such a large supply of grain in parts of the world that farmers no longer are breaking even, much less making a profit?" the educator asked.

Bertrand noted that despite the huge supplies of grain on hand around the world, as many as 500 million people are malnourished "because they can't afford to buy the food that is surplus in other lands."

"The problem is compounded because the birth rate is high in those food short areas," he said. And while the World's population continues to soar, the rate of increase of production per acre or per animal is slowing.

The United States has no choice but to try to meet the changing challenges of population, dwindling energy resources, poor land use, ignorance, malnutrition and disease, said Bertrand.

He said it is very important for the nation to accelerate efforts to find ways to produce more food per unit of land, energy and insecticides, while conserving renewable and nonrenewable resources.

"For a number of years we held the philosophy that we could, if necessary, feed the world," Bertrand noted. "And we tried by giving away massive quantities of food."

"It took us nearly 20 years to realize that we simply could not feed the world if we wanted to and that giving people food made them lose self-reliance. In fact, they developed animosity toward us," he added.

Bertrand applauded the efforts of Congress to change the emphasis of U.S. foreign assistance from a "give-away" to a program based on research and education in developing nations.

Record Corn Crop Estimated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1977 corn harvest now under way is estimated at a record of 6.3 billion bushels, a huge supply of animal feed grain that will help dampen consumer food prices in the coming year, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

Based on surveys Oct. 1, the department's Crop Reporting Board said the corn harvest now is expected to be one percent more than the 6.23 billion bushels indicated a month ago.

Corn production last year was a record then of 6.22 billion bushels and helped push U.S. stockpiles of the leading animal feed grain to their highest level in five years by the time the new 1977 harvest was ready this fall.

U.S. cotton production is forecast at 13,316,500 bales, up one percent from 13,201,500 bales forecast a month earlier.

However, the new forecast is 26 percent above the 10,580,600 bales produced last year.

wheat crop this year, estimated at slightly less than 2.03 billion bushels, compared with 2.03 billion indicated in September and the record 1976 harvest of 2.15 billion bushels.

Huge grain harvests the past three years have caused wheat and corn prices to tumble and farm income to decline. But they also have helped cool off spiraling food prices which soared at annual rates of 14.5 percent in 1973 and 1974.

Food prices slowed to a gain of 8.5 percent in 1975 and last year rose 3.1 percent. This year's increase will average about six percent over the entire 12 months but more than half of the increase will be due to price jumps for coffee, seafood and other non-farm commodities, according to USDA experts.

Consumer food prices will continue rising in 1978 but probably at no greater rate than in 1977, depending on costs of imported products and on the inflation rate.

About 60 percent of the retail food costs are added after commodities leave the farm. Thus, as costs of transportation, processing packaging and merchandizing increase so do family grocery bills, even if farm prices hold steady or decline slightly.

The huge wheat and corn crops also mean tough policy decisions for the Carter administration. A 20 percent wheat acreage retirement plan already has been announced for 1978 in an effort to head off further surpluses, and a 10 percent set-aside plan has been studied for corn and other feed grain.

Meanwhile, net farm income this year is now expected to be around $20.1 billion, compared with $21.9 billion in 1976. Four years ago, as U.S. grain stockpiles were at low levels and prices soaring, farm income rose to a record of $29.9 billion from $17.8 billion in 1972.

Cattle Futures Prices Fluctuate

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Live cattle futures finished 12 points lower to seven higher on a turnover of 7,150 cars Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

October and April led the setback and August gained the most. Prices swung 40 points higher in December to off 30 in January at times.

The latter was at a two-week low before stiffening. Selling pressure continued on heavy cattle supplies and lower prices along with the forecast for a heavy run today. The six markets expect about 14,500 head to arrive.

Scattered support at times spilled over from pork pits but lacked follow-through.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 65 1/2 cents per pound for all weights. Cash cattle were steady to off 50 cents, with the top at $44.50 per hundredweight.

Slaughter was estimated at 153,000 head.

They are:
— Qualified leaders.
— New markets for agricultural products, at home and abroad.
— Agricultural research.
— Greater farm credit.
— Taxation of land based on its productive value rather than its fair market value.

Hubank, a candidate for commissioner of the Texas Department of Agriculture, expressed opposition to government intervention into the private ownership of land and how land may be used.

Conference sessions will resume at 9 a.m. today. Almost 900 conservation district directors, farmers, ranchers and others are attending the annual meeting.

Mandatory Retirement Laws Altered

(EDITORS' NOTE: — Congress is about to raise the retirement age to 70 for American workers. But high unemployment among the youth of Europe has prompted unions to press for earlier retirement. Here, in the first of a two part series on retirement in the United States and Europe, is a look at the situation in America.)

By DOUG WILLIS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — After 38 years as master of a small boat harbor on San Francisco Bay, John Mackenhausen lost his city job last May 1 because of a state law requiring him to retire at 67.

But now California is about to become the first state in the Union to abolish mandatory retirement for both public and private employment, and Mackenhausen is once again a harbor master. He is working under a temporary consulting contract until the new law, ending mandatory retirement, becomes effective Jan. 1, and he can be restored officially to the payroll.

"I plan to be here, and I expect to get my old job back," said Mackenhausen. "I have good health, and I'd hate to retire. If I retire, I'm afraid I'd probably just go downhill. I want to keep working, keep active, keep alert."

The California law, signed last month, gives employers two years to renegotiate union contracts and pension plans. It goes one step further than a bill approved last month by the U.S. House of Representatives and now before the Senate.

Pushed by organizations representing America's growing senior citizen population — the National Council of Senior Citizens, the Gray Panthers, the National Council on the Aging — it would raise from 65 to 70 the age when employers may require workers to retire, although many pensions will still begin at 65 or earlier for those who wish to retire.

That would be the first national change in the 65-year-old retirement standard since the Social Security system first set that age in 1935.

The California law and the Congressional bill, which sailed through the House by a 359-to-4 margin, have suddenly drawn public attention to the major social changes that might result from the injection of thousands of elderly people into the work force. President Carter, while favoring the end of mandatory retirement at 65, has asked that no change be implemented for a year so the impact can be studied.

No one seems to know exactly what might happen. A 1974 Louis Harris survey indicated that one-third of those aged 65-69 would work at least part-time and that would add 2.6 million people to the work force, raising the unemployment rate to nearly 10 per cent, and much more for teenagers and members of minorities. But the Senate Committee on Human Resources says that only 200,000 people, or two-tenths of one per cent of the labor force, would choose to work beyond 65 and the rest would retire on Social Security and pensions.

A Sears Roebuck study for the U.S. government concluded that one-third of the 2.04 million people scheduled to retire at 65 in the next five years might wish to work. If one-third worked past 65 at Sears alone, 20,000 job changes wouldn't take place and the company's hiring rate would decline 7 per cent — even more for minorities and women.

A survey of 400 business executives by William M. Mercer, Inc., found 65 per cent favor mandatory retirement at 65. But a Field Research survey of a cross-section of 1,034 Californians of all ages found 87 per cent oppose mandatory retirement, in part because of inflation.

Twelve states besides California have laws pushing back or abolishing the retirement age. But these laws apply either to private or public employment, not to both, as in California. A aide who worked on the California law, estimated that between 5 and 25 per cent of the 50,000 Californians who now retire annually at 65 will continue working, and that would add effort to "liberate human energy to the benefit of all the people."

"I find it hard to understand a society that has a problem with people who want to work. We cannot afford to squander the human talent that presently languishes in the backwaters of our society."

McFetridge says his studies show that 59 percent of the nation's work force is employed by firms that don't have mandatory retirement plans, "and we can't detect much difference" between those firms and the 41 per cent with mandatory retirement plans. He and others argue that a continuing trend to earlier retirement more than offsets the small number who want to remain on the job after 65.

General Motors, for example, says 89 per cent of its employees now retire before 65. At Dow Chemical, 92 per cent of the retiring employees have quit at 62 since the age for full retirement benefits was reduced from 65 to 62. Nearly half those remaining on the job after 62 retire at 63 or 64. Jack Jones, a Dow spokesman, said.

"We obviously don't think the repeal of mandatory retirement will have much impact on us," Jones said. "We see no problem with the law."

The U.S. Department of Labor says 82 per cent of the nation's 55-to-64-year-old civilian male work force was employed in 1970. That figure had dropped to 76 per cent by 1975, and will decline to 70 per cent by 1990, a Department of Labor forecast says. All this suggests a problem.

Demographic studies show that the 16-to-24 age group will decline from 25 per cent today to 21.9 per cent of the work force by 1985 because there will be fewer of these young people (15 per cent of the population). Meanwhile, those 65 and over will rise to 11.7 per cent of the population, but if the mandatory retirement age isn't raised, they'll be only 2.7 per cent of the labor force.

And that means too few productive workers supporting too many retirees, a good way to undermine retirement funds. Now there are 100 employed for every 30 on Social Security. By early next century, the ratio will be 52 retired for 100 at work.

But will senior citizens work in large enough numbers to change this ratio? That might depend on their salaries, if the experience in Los Angeles is a guide.

First In A Series

thirteenth state, Alaska, has a law similar to California's, but a court suit has delayed its effective date indefinitely.

The twelve states are Connecticut, Florida, Hawaii, Illinois, Iowa, Maine, Maryland, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico and South Carolina.

Better health care has increased the percentage of Americans 65 and older to a record 23 million — 10 per cent of the population — and this has fueled what some describe as the new emphasis on human rights for the aged. Inflation is helping to bring older people into the work force by pinching fixed retirement incomes, and a Social Security Administration survey reported that a majority of retired recipients say they are healthy enough to work.

A vice president of a California public utility with mandatory retirement at 65 explained that his company favored mandatory retirement, but he didn't.

"I graduated from high school in 1932, in the Depression, and it took 10 years to work through college. Then World War II. I didn't start my career until I was 33, and I married at 40."

"Now, at 64, I have children 16, 14 and 65. I'm in good health. I don't want to retire, and I can't afford to retire. Personally, I think this law is the greatest thing I've seen in years."

Britton McFetridge, a legislative no more than 12,500 people to a work force of 10.1 million.

McFetridge said he is more inclined to believe the lower figure, and most workers who did not retire at 65 would continue working only two or three more years.

The experience of the federal civil service supports this. Only 1.5 per cent of all civil servants have utilized a program that allows workers to continue after 65.

But employers say those numbers are deceiving because retirements create promotions as well as new jobs. The Sears study concluded that each retirement produces one new job and four promotions.

That domino effect was the main point raised by Leonard Grimes, the only black in California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s cabinet. Grimes argued strenuously for Brown to veto the California measures.

"With our concern about the high unemployment among young people, particularly among minorities, how can we take the lid off, let people stay on forever and ever?" Grimes asked. "Most people who have worked 40 years on the job have worked up into some kind of supervisory position. It's not one job for one job. It's a new entry job for an unemployed youth, and it's promotions for minorities and women and others all up the ladder."

But Brown said he viewed the repeal of mandatory retirement as an

Buyers Bilked By Deceptive Advertising

AUSTIN — "Sale," "Cut Rate Prices," "Discount," "Reduced from List Price" — ads like these are featured daily in newspapers, on radio and television, and in store windows. Most consumers have wondered from time to time if these phrases have a special meaning or if they are just advertising gimmicks.

Lawyers in our Consumer Protection Division say such ads could indicate savings for bargain-minded consumers. But they caution, too, that there is a small minority of businessmen who may attract customers with deceptively advertised or misleading sales.

A few merchants advertise "sale" almost continuously and such "sales" may not offer prices any lower than usual. And have you ever questioned the "list price" on a sale item? What about the purported savings from the manufacturer's suggested retail price?

Often, such savings claims have no real relation to any actual savings. What a catalog shows as the "suggested retail price" may be meaningless if no merchant in the area is selling at that price.

A "manufacturer's suggested price" is just what it says — a suggested price. Consumers should be wary of such price comparisons unless they check several stores and can confirm that an item is being sold at that price. Personal checks by telephone or in person are really the only way to determine the price range of an item in your area.

Another possible deception our Consumer Protection Division attorneys point out involves merchants who tag their merchandise with a label having "Regular Price $$$" crossed out and "Our Sale Price $$$" (always much lower) written below.

Sometimes, that "regular" price cited is fictitious and the "sale price" is the usual one. In such instances, price comparisons can be not only meaningless, but deceptive.

The term "sale" should be used only to advertise significant reductions from the merchant's usual and customary price for that merchandise, and should be continued for a reasonable period of time, not continuously.

Special "limited time" sales should be carefully observed by merchants. For example, a "One Day Only" sale should be just that. Goods should go back to regular price immediately after expiration of the stated time.

"Emergency," "fire," or other "distress" sales, or "going out of business" or "liquidation," sales should not be advertised unless the stated or implied condition is accurate. And these sales should continue for only a specified time. Our attorneys have won court judgments against a few merchants who have been "going out of business" for several years.

If you have a consumer complaint about misleading or deceptive advertising, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division in Austin, Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, El Paso, Lubbock, or McAllen. Or call this toll-free number: 1-800-252-9236.

Crosby's Apartment In London Robbed

LONDON (AP) — London authorities are investigating the theft of property worth $26,250 from a Mayfair apartment rented by singer Bing Crosby.

The theft was discovered when Crosby, his wife, Kathy, and son Harry returned from a vacation at the south coast resort of Brighton.

Female Producers Increase Activity In Broadway Shows

NEW YORK (AP) — Women producers are busy on Broadway in record number this season.

"With any luck," says one, "the old macho supremacy could eventually become a 50-50 proposition."

Although they still are a minority in the League of New York Theaters and Producers — 22 of 160 members — their current activity drastically revises that abstract ratio.

Five are prime forces behind current hits and 11 others are in the top management of 20 more shows announced for near-future presentation.

A producer's main tasks are three: finding a likely property, raising the essential money and hanging tough as a decision maker about everything all the way to opening night. The sort of chores that used to be regarded, with an occasional exception, as needing masculine clout.

Feminine involvement has been on the rise for several seasons. Just why is guesswork. Opinions range from the retreat of rich male investors during the recession of the early '70s to spinoff benefits from the women's lib movement.

The new impresarios fall into two groups: well-heeled divorcees who made show business a chic outlet for their energies and long-term careerists who decided to move up in the power structure after indigence in the lower ranks as stage directors, company managers or script hounds for some of the Main Stem's erstwhile barons.

The busiest woman boss of this season is Bury Fredrik with "Night of the Tribades," a drama about lesbians that opens Oct. 13 at the Helen Hayes Theater. "An Almost Perfect Person," described as political comedy, due Oct. 27 at the Belasco and "The Dream Watcher," warming up next month in Seattle for January arrival here, the story of a boy's friendship with an 80-year-old woman to be played by Eva Le Gallienne — who, incidentally, produced plays 30 years ago.

In reserve, Miss Fredrik has dibs on "Barnum," a musical about the great showman. Like most of her distaff colleagues, the main Fredrik interest is sponsoring the efforts of creative newcomers. "That sort of thing shouldn't be left to regional theaters," she says.

Two productions are on the agenda of Doris Cole Abrahams, who notched impressive triumphs previously as a co-producer of "Equus" and "Travesties," both award-winners. In solo venture she now lists a revival of Peter Shaffer's "Black Comedy" and "One on One," a career vs. marriage drama.

Frankie Hewitt, like Mrs. Abrahams already represented on the hit parade with "Your Arms Too Short to Box With God," is ready to enter the lists anew with "And Still I Rise," an Afro-American musical. Miss Hewitt has been a staunch believer in the box office pull of ethnic entertainment during her decade as chief of Ford's Theater in Washington, where she tests everything before Broadway sorties.

The other three women currently represented on the Rialto haven't announced subsequent plans while tending their present treasures. They are Terry Allen Kramer, who found a sleeper in the musical "I Love My Wife"; Ruth Mitchell, Hal Prince's long time partner, with "Side By Side By Sonheim" and Maxine Fox, wrapped up with her husband Kenneth Weissman since 1972 in the spectacular success of "Grease." The pair has just sent a fifth company on national tour, leaving scant time for hunting new jackpots.

Cyma Rubin, instrumental in igniting the nostalgia fad with "No, No, Nanette," is readying reprise of another oldie, George Gershwin's "Oh, Kay."

Adela Holzer, who has far-flung business interests outside theater, lists a brace of musical prospects, "Jam" which has to do with New Orleans jazz, and "Sarava," set in South America.

Scheduled to debut on her own is Diana Shumlin, who previously has operated in tandem with her husband Herman. The project is a musical treatment of the 1944 drama "Jacobowsky and the Colonel."

Elizabeth McCann, like Miss Mitchell a veteran of many showbiz ventures, is moving up into the impresario ranks as a co-producer of "Dracula," set for the Martin Beck on Oct. 20. In addition she is general manager for productions presented under other auspices.

Another first-timer is Judy Gordon, preparing "A History of the American Theater."

Gladys Rackmil, undaunted after two prior flops in which she participated, is set to return as one of the sponsors of "Sunset," a charade about the recording business.

Miss Rackmil typified the attitude of the producing sisterhood by insisting that she be an active participant, not a silent partner.

Claire Nichtern, after a lengthy absence, is steering Alan Ayckbourn's "Absent Friends" to Broadway, slated to be followed with Ronald Ribman's black comedy "Cold Storage."

In other multiple partnerships, Mary Lea Johnson is en route with two Cy Coleman musicals, "20th Century" and "Encounter"; Martha Greenhouse and a partner are planning early 1978 revival of the George Kelly comedy, "The Torch Bearers."

The veteran of the group is Cheryl Crawford, who put on her first show in 1931 and at 75 is co-sponsoring "Do You Turn Somersaults?," scheduled to bring Mary Martin to Times Square in January. Miss Crawford comments on the feminist producing trend with "it's become easier for women in all professions — anyone with the nerve, education and guts has a better chance than 15 or 20 years ago."

Detectable in her conversation, however, is a bit of wonder that the movement took so long to gain momentum.

Recalling her early days she says, "I never felt deprived or put aside because I was a woman. And it never occurred to me I was doing anything odd."

'Oh! Calcutta' Showing Halted

CINCINNATI (AP) — Wednesday night's opening of the musical "Oh! Calcutta!" was stopped by a court order issued hours before the scheduled performance.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge issued a temporary injunction against the two-performance production of the Broadway Productions Co.

A hearing on a permanent injunction is scheduled this morning.

Hamilton County Prosecutor Simon Leis filed the request, claiming that the show appealed to prurient interest and lacked any serious literary or political value. The petition charged the musical was lewd, lascivious and had no redeeming social value.

"Well, I guess we have no show tonight," said David Curry, manager of the Cincinnati Music Hall, where the show was to have been performed. Curry said about 1,500 tickets had been sold for each performance.

Space Shuttle Flier Convinced Of Safety

CHAPMAN, Kan. (AP) — The sister of one of the astronauts involved in Wednesday's test flight of the space shuttle Enterprise says she is not worried about her brother's safety in the air.

Betty Poland, sister of Air Force Col. Joe Engle, said her brother "has assured me flying the shuttle is not as dangerous as walking down the street or driving a car."

Engle, 45, one of two astronauts on the flight, grew up in Chapman.

Astaire, Hayes Star In Oldsters' Love Story

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although the median population is growing older, television seems to present few portrayals of the elderly beyond the Fernwood Flasher of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" and Tim Conway's fossil on "The Carol Burnett Show."

"Producers Ross Hunter and Jacques Naples hope to change all that with their television film for NBC, "A Family Upside Down." The stars are Fred Astaire and Helen Hayes, who share a total of 143 years as performers. Also starring are Eileen Zimbalist Jr. and Patty Duke Astin as their children. The show will air later this season.

"It's a love story about something that happens to everyone who is young or young at heart," explained producer Hunter. "The problem hits every generation and will do so with increasing frequency. That is, what happens when one member of a family becomes incapacitated?"

"Helen and Fred are the married couple, and he becomes ill. What do they do to stay together? Both of them are crazy about the story, and they have the same approach to it. Helen said, "I'm playing the role as if I were Juliet, and Fred remarked, "I'm playing the role as if I were Romeo."

"A Family Upside Down" may help placate the complaints of the elderly that their lives and problems are ignored on television. Last month in Washington, representatives of the Gray Panthers blasted the networks for their depiction of age.

"In appearance, our faces are blank and expressionless, our bodies are bent over, and the 'senior shuffle' is just a step away from the embalming room," a Gray

Panther official complained to a congressional committee on aging.

The complaint was supported by Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., who is 77.

"I think the networks made a mistake by placing too much emphasis on youth," said Hunter. "I don't believe that young people have to identify with their own age category to enjoy entertainment."

"I proved that with the first 'Airport.' We had the first sneak preview in Detroit, and I was surprised that all of the cards listed Helen Hayes as their favorite in the film. I thought perhaps the audience had been more mature than average, so I had another preview in Washington, D.C.

"The theater was filled with teenagers, we saw that by offering them half-price tickets. Again the favorite performer was Helen Hayes. Maybe it was because she was a maverick in the picture and was doing what they would like to do. Whatever the reason, they picked her over Burt Lancaster, Dean Martin, Jean Seberg and all the others."

"Family Upside Down" marks the beginning of Hunter-Maples' new contract to produce TV movies for NBC. Hunter is a veteran movie hand, having produced "Pillow Talk," "Flower Drum Song," "Madame X," "Thoroughly Modern Millie" etc. during his Universal years. In recent times he has partnered with Maples.

Although they haven't abandoned theatrical films, both are enthusiastic about television. Their first effort was last season's winner, "The Moneychangers."

What did they learn?

"We learned the menace of time in television," observed Hunter. "You don't have the leisure that you do in theatrical movies, and so TV requires much more preparation and rehearsal. We learned that you can put an entire novel on the television screen through multiple segments, rather than showing a much smaller part in a two-hour movie.

"We learned that stars are almost as anxious to do TV as theater movies. They enjoy the discipline of working fast and the opportunity of being seen by many millions in one night."

"Novelists also prefer to have their works on TV. They can have the same exposure and also they can see their entire books dramatized, not just portions."

Waltons' 'John-Boy' Makes New Scene In First Movie Venture

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Picture, if you can, John-Boy Walton swilling booze, revving a motorcycle and giving his parents a rough time.

Such behavior in the nearly saintly John-Boy could give the denizens of Walton's Mountain a plague of hives and inspire trauma in millions of television viewers.

But Richard Thomas, starring in his first movie since he began playing the model young man in "The Waltons," does all these things and more on the big screen.

Thomas abandoned the series this season after five years as the star of the show to make his way in films and in the theater.

The new picture is "9-30-55." The title represents Sept. 30, 1955, the date teen-age idol Jimmy Dean died in an automobile wreck. Thomas portrays a 19-year-old southern collegian thrown into rebellious depression at the death of his screen hero.

Thomas is delighted with his departure from the exemplary John-Boy but not particularly anxious for people to forget him in the role of the clean-cut country youth.

"There's no point in trying to kick an image as strong as John-Boy," he said. "Audiences accept actors in a variety of roles. It's just the producers who worry about images and type casting."

Now 26 years old, married and a father, Thomas expects to encounter more difficulties shaking teen-age roles in general rather than John-Boy Walton in particular. Even so, he's not complaining.

"When I play young kids I draw on a bit of eternal youth that is part of us all," he said. "I've been acting 20 years, and only five of them in 'The Waltons,' so audiences naturally link whatever character I play with other things I've done."

"There's no need for me to reach out for older roles now. My range is from 19 to 32. But mostly I've been playing teenagers."

"The farther I get away from my teens the more difficult it is for me to give validity to young roles."

"That happens to a lot of actors. Youth is more generalized in movies and television than adults. As in real life, youth is more simplistic."

"When I was 16 it was simple for me to play that age because I relied on intuition. There was no anxiety involved in playing someone my own age. There wasn't a necessity to 'act.' Now, however, I'm aware of recreating my feelings and behavior of seven or eight years ago."

"It's a definite factor that must be dealt with. I find I have to avoid 'playing' characters instead of 'being' them."

"As an actor I learned a long time ago it's much simpler to play a character older than yourself than someone younger."

Denver City Activities Scheduled For Saturday

DENVER CITY (Special) — The fifth annual South Plains Music Festival and Old Settlers Reunion will get under way at 10 a.m. here Saturday with a downtown parade.

The program is sponsored each year by the South Plains Gospel Music Association.

A full day of activities is planned in the Denver City Community Building.

Among them are:

— Eleven high school students from over the South Plains vying for the title of Music Festival Queen. Coronation will be at 8 p.m.

— Fiddlers' contest at 3 p.m. A total of $190 in prizes will be awarded.

— "Battle of the Kitchen Bands" immediately following the parade.

— Gospel and country music performances off and on all day until 3 p.m. and beginning again at 5 p.m.

All old settlers and senior citizens will be special guests. Persons who have pictures or news stories of previous reunions are requested to bring them.

Sandwiches, cold drinks and coffee will be available.

More than 200 invitations have been sent to country, western, gospel and bluegrass musicians across the area. Plans call for the Boyer Twins from Nashville to be on the program again this year.

Churches, clubs, other organizations and musicians who want to be in the parade may obtain more information by contacting Sheriff Joe Deaton, parade marshal.

Persons wishing to participate in the music festival can contact Ray Trent, festival president; or Marcia Dulin, secretary.

LEASE-RENTAL CARS

Sergio Mendes Returns With New Sound

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sergio Mendes puffed an eight-inch cigar, crossed his legs and admitted that he "feels lousy" on some of the nights he performs.

A devilish laugh quickly followed the complaint and the musician's bearded face broke into a huge grin.

"Some nights feels lousy, some nights feels great. It all depends," Mendes said, his voice peppered with a Latin accent. "Most of the time, 99 per cent, it feels great."

Mendes and the original Brazil '66 opened at Carnegie Hall 15 years ago and started a musical heat wave Americans still love to see.

The brand of the Brazilian beat, the Bossa Nova, gave a new rhythm and beat to the popular songs "The Look of Love," "Fool on the Hill" and "Scarborough Fair" to net Mendes a cache of gold records.

But today, Mendes is starting all over again. He returned to Carnegie Hall recently to introduce the "new" Brazil '77.

"I'm playing with a brand new set of cards," the Rio-born pianist said. "I was very bored with the old group. We had nothing else to give to each other. Stagnating is a good word. I felt the only way to get any new blood, new vitality was to get new personalities. I kind of started all over again.

For the most part, the sound of Brazil '77 remains the same. Female voices still predominate. But the addition of a third female vocal provides a fuller range and texture to most songs.

The group's latest album "Sergio Mendes and the New Brazil '77" subtly escapes the "Bossa Nova" stereotype. Mendes' experimentation with new material like Stevie Wonder's "Love City" and "The Real Thing" and Chicago's "If You Leave Me Now" has proven successful. However, concertgoers are never robbed of hearing old time favorites. The group opened the Carnegie Hall concert with "Mas Que Nada," Mendes' first hit.

"We are taking chances with a lot of new material. The new album only has one song anyone has ever heard before," Mendes said.

"I'd rather not be framed into anything. What makes me happy is that I'm in the jazz charts, the r&b charts, the disco charts, and the easy listening charts."

he said. After logging thousands of miles across four continents and playing countless engagements, the veteran musician still finds difficulty in "pacing" a concert performance.

"I never know how I'm going to sequence a show. What do I open with? Where do I put this song... that really freaks me out because I never know," Mendes said.

Mendes said he usually makes up his mind at "the last minute."

Three 4-H Members Get State Program Prizes

A-J Correspondent
TULIA — Three Swisher County 4-H members have been named state winners in three different programs.

Craig Alexander, 16-year-old son of Mrs. O.F. Alexander of Tulia, is a winner in the state 4-H Veterinary Science Program. He will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond sponsored by the Upjohn Company and his state-winning record book will be entered in national competition for a $1,000 scholarship.

He has doctored cattle, horses and sheep on his family's farm and worked with local veterinarians at feedlots and auctions.

Christy McCaslin is a state winner in the 4-H Family Life Program and her sister, Kim, was chosen winner in the Consumer Education Program. They are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCaslin of Happy.

Christy, 16, will receive an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago Nov. 26-30 if local sponsorship can be obtained. Kim, 18, also will get an expense-paid trip to the congress and will be sponsored by Montgomery Ward and Company.

Kim's state-winning record book will be entered in national competition.

Christy, in her family life project, assisted her parents with five foster children and renovated the McCaslin home.

Kim conducted a number of award-winning method demonstrations related to her consumer education project.

Credit Gloom Drops Mart

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market dropped sharply for the second straight session Wednesday in a mood of gloom over rising interest rates.

The selling pushed New York Stock Exchange volume to its highest level in more than 2½ months.

Declines outnumbered advances by a lopsided 5-1 margin in the daily tally of New York Stock Exchange issues.

And the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had fallen 7.88 points Tuesday to a 22-month low, dropped another 8.40 to 823.98.

The average last closed lower at 821.63 on Dec. 8, 1975.

Big bond volume reached 22.44 million shares, up from 17.87 million Tuesday and the heaviest total since a 26.44 million-share day on July 27.

Analysts said short-term interest rates might be ready to level off after their steady rise of late appeared to have faded.

There were widespread forecasts that the Federal Reserve's weekly report on Thursday afternoon would show a big jump in the basic measure of the money supply.

That, in turn, would presumably lead to continued credit-tightening by the Fed. and to further increases in open market money rates and the bank prime lending rate.

As of Wednesday some key short-term rates had risen a full 2 percentage points from their lows earlier in the year.

New York (AP)—Wednesday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume unrounded for securities also traded on other markets.

Solons' Recent Votes On Major Issues Recorded

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes September 29 through October 5.

HOUSE

CRIME COMPENSATION — Passed, 192 for and 173 against, a bill (HR 7010) providing, for the first time, a program of federal cash payments to victims of violent crimes. It was sent to the Senate. The bill would provide benefits only in states that have enacted both a "crime compensation" law and a law under which a judge can direct a criminal to compensate his victim. HR 7010 would reimburse up to 25 per cent of the first $25,000 paid by a state to a victim.

Rep. James Blanchard, D-Mich., a supporter, said: "The concept of compensation to victims of crime is one which has already proven workable at the state level. HR 7010 seeks to build on that success by funneling federal funds through the working state programs rather than setting up a duplicative bureaucracy-ridden federal program."

Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., an opponent, asked: "How can we possibly go into a program of this type when we do not know what it is going to cost and when we are approaching national debt of $775 billion?... Are we going to solve our problems of crime in this country by in effect merely printing up money in order to soothe our conscience?"

Members voting "yea" favored the federal crime compensation program.

Reps. Manuel Lujan (R-1), Harold Runnels (D-3), Samuel Hall (D-1), James Collins (R-3), Ray Roberts (D-4), Bill Archer (R-7), Jack Brooks (D-9), Jake Pickle (D-10), W. R. Poage (D-11), Jack Hightower (D-13), Richard White (D-16), Omar Bursleson (Omar Bursleson (D-17), George Mahon (D-19) and Dale Milford (D-24) voted "nay."

Reps. Olin Teague (D-6), Kika de la Garza (D-15), Robert Krueger (D-21) and Bob Gammage (D-22) did not vote.

NEUTRON BOMB — Rejected, 109 for and 297 against, an amendment to deny funding for development of the neutron bomb. It was proposed to HR 6566, a bill to fund the Energy Research and Development Administration's "national security programs." The bill, later passed and sent to conference with the Senate, contained a classified dollar figure for the neutron warheads.

The neutron bomb is an "enhanced-radiation" weapon which kills primarily by radiation. Because it has less heat and blast than present nuclear warheads, it is said to do less damage to natural and man-made environments.

Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., sponsor of the amendment, said: "Put bluntly, the development and deployment of the neutron bomb, intended by its proponents to destroy enemy tanks crossing into West Germany, will be a giant step along the road to World War III. Its actual use will mean the end of civilization as we know it."

Opponents of the amendment stressed the neutron bomb's value as a deterrent to war. "The naysayers," said Rep. Dan Daniel, D-Va., "mean that the possession of a neutron warhead would invite escalation to a holocaust. No battlefield commander, no theater commander could order its use. Only the president of the U.S. can do this. The neutron warhead is a reasonable alternative to doomsday."

Members voting "yea" opposed development of the neutron bomb.

Eckhardt voted "yea." Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Mattox, Archer, Brooks, Pickle, Poage, Wright, Hightower, Young, de la Garza, White, Bursleson, Jordan, Mahon, Gonzalez.

Voters To Get Amendment Proposals

AUSTIN (UPI) — Texans will vote Nov. 8 on two proposed constitutional amendments to give tax exemptions to historical or cultural resources, and permit agricultural organizations to collect dues from farmers and ranchers for promotion of their products.

A third amendment due consideration by voters would change the name of the Judicial Qualifications Commission to the State Commission on Judicial Conduct, and give that agency additional power to discipline judges.

None of three proposed amendments — among seven on the ballot — has provoked any controversy.

The proposed amendment No. 4 would authorize the legislature to provide for property tax relief to encourage the preservation of "cultural, historical or natural history resources."

Under the proposal, the legislature could grant relief from state property taxes, or permit cities, counties and other local taxing agencies to grant such exemptions.

Supporters of the plan note it would permit such tax breaks, but would not mandate them. Opponents argue local agencies such as school districts already face fund shortages, and exempting cultural and historic resources could further erode their tax bases.

The agricultural assessment amendment, No. 5 on the ballot, is designed to reinstate a 1967 law which was declared unconstitutional by the Texas Supreme Court.

If the amendment passes, agricultural and marine associations such as poultry or livestock producers may collect assessments from producers of those commodities and use the funds for research and promotion of the product.

Krueger, Gammage, Kazen, Lujan, Runnels and Milford voted "nay."

Teague did not vote.

NATIONAL DEBT — Adopted, 223 for and 194 against, a resolution (H Res 804) which had the effect of raising by $52 billion the "ceiling" up to which the U.S. government can borrow to pay its bills. The previous ceiling had run out four days earlier. This vote put the House in agreement with the Senate, and sent the measure to the White House. The $52 billion increment raised the ceiling to $752 billion through next Mar. 31, at which time it will have to be raised again.

Rep. B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., a supporter, said that the legislative ritual of setting a debt ceiling is an "exercise in futility" because "it certainly has not restrained our spending because we are prone to vote for increased spending when the bills come up on the floor of this house."

Rep. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio, an opponent, said: "The interest for this next fiscal year (on the national debt) is going to run about $43 billion... We may believe we are going to escape the responsibility of paying the debt by passing it on to our grandchildren, but we cannot escape paying the interest."

Members voting "yea" favored raising the debt ceiling.

Wilson, Roberts, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, Poage, Wright, Hightower, Young, White, Bursleson, Jordan, Mahon, Gonzalez, Krueger and Kazen voted "yea."

Hall, Collins, Mattox, Archer, de la Garza, Gammage, Lujan and Milford voted "nay."

Teague and Runnels did not vote.

NATURAL GAS — Adopted, 50 for and 45 against, the so-called Pearson-Bentsen amendment to gradually remove federal controls from the price of natural gas. It was attached to S2104, a part of the proposed national energy policy which is pending in the Senate. The question of whether to continue federal regulation of natural gas prices will be settled later in a House-Senate conference on the energy bill.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., a supporter, said deregulation is necessary to encourage exploration for new gas and cut down dependence on foreign energy supplies. "What we are trying to do is keep the factories open and keep the people at work, and do something about the balance of trade that in August was the second-biggest deficit in the history of this country," he said.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., an opponent, said: "Natural gas deregulation poses a serious inflationary threat for the nation's economy. It will harm the average American consumer... Will result in substantial price increases but will do little to achieve additional production."

Senators voting "nay" favored continued federal price controls on natural gas. Senators Harrison Schmitt (R), Peter Domenici (R), Lloyd Bentsen (D) and John Tower (R) voted "yea."

LIFELINE RATES — Adopted, 56 for and 36 against, an amendment requiring utilities to sell a "subsistence quantity" of electricity to elderly residential customers (62 years of age and older) at the utility's lowest rate. It was attached to S 2114, the segment of the proposed national energy policy dealing with electric and gas utility systems. The bill was headed toward final passage and conference with the Senate.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., sponsor of the so-called "lifeline rates" proposal, said: "The spiraling cost of home energy in recent years has created severe economic hardships for America's elderly — many of whom exist on low, fixed incomes."

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., an opponent, said: "The problem of lifeline rates is a difficult one which ought to be considered by each public service commission in each state, based on what they see as possible in their states."

Senators voting "yea" favored the special electricity rate for the elderly.

Tower, Schmitt and Domenici voted "yea. Bentsen voted "nay."

NATIONAL DEBT — Passed, 58 for and 30 against, a bill (HR 9290) raising the national debt ceiling through Mar. 31, 1978 (see House vote, above). The increase is from the $700 billion ceiling that expired Sept. 30 to a level of $752 billion. The bill also was passed by the House and signed into law by President Carter.

None of the 58 senators who voted "yea" spoke in favor of raising the ceiling. An opponent, Sen. Harry Byrd, Ind.-Va., said: "The increase in our federal debt is not a phenomenon which occurs in isolation from other congressional and governmental actions. It is... a direct result of the repeated failure of Congress to confine expenditures to a level which can be financed by a tolerable rate of taxation."

Senators voting "yea" favored raising the national debt ceiling.

Bentsen, Schmitt and Domenici voted "yea." Tower voted "nay."
