Sadat Hurls Threat Of War In Mideast

CAIRO (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat says Egypt will cut Israel "down to size" unless it withdraws from all occupied Arab lands and accepts Palestinian demands.

Arabs will explore all avenues leading to a peaceful settlement — but the Palestine Liberation Organization must participate in the talks, the Israelis must withdraw from all Arab lands and an independent Palestinian state must be created.

Addressing the parliamentary meeting, Sadat urged the Soviet Union to stop hostile actions against Egypt and Sudan and to seek normal relations with them based on equality and mutual respect.

On Monday, the coroner had said the father died in an explosion of fumes from a flammable liquid which investigators said had been poured over the bodies in the family's home in this Cleveland suburb.

Crook said a gasoline can was found in what was left of the burned home along with a device believed to have been used to ignite it. He declined to describe the device.

Sol. On Gas-Guzzlers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House-Senate conference committee working on compromise energy legislation today turned down a Senate proposal for an outright ban on automobiles that get poor fuel economy.

Carter is scheduled to leave on the trip on Nov. 22, four weeks from today, but he has said he would postpone or cancel the journey if Congress is still working on the energy program.

the legislation could delay approval until December.

Arab Official Assassinated

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — A gunman shot and killed a top United Arab Emirates official today in an apparent attempt to assassinate Syria's foreign minister, authorities reported.

Security officials arrested the white-robed gunman after he tried to hijack a Czechoslovakian cargo plane.

Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam, who was unharmed.

The President raised that possibility anew today when he met with Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister Saud al-Faisal.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today, pushing the Dow Jones industrial average below the 800 level for the first time in more than two years.

After shooting the minister during airport ceremonies for the visiting Syrian official, the gunman took seven persons hostage and forced them into the Czechoslovak cargo plane, which he tried to hijack, the official spokesman said.

House conferees argued that the fuel savings from such a flat ban would be negligible. And they said it would pose the production of vehicles such as station wagons, ambulances and hearses.

The average of 30 blue chip stocks dropped 2.77 to 799.53 by noon. Declining issues outnumbered rising stocks by a 3-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The airport reopened for air traffic several hours later, indicating that the incident was over.

Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, chairman of the House Energy Committee, also claimed that such a ban would pose a severe economic hardship on American Motors Corp., smallest of the "Big Four" automakers.

The latest selling wave in the market has been blamed on concern over rising interest rates, weakness in the U.S. dollar on foreign exchange markets, and disagreement between the White House and the Federal Reserve over the Fed's tightening of credit.

Reliable sources said Ghobash, 35, died from bullet wounds while being taken to a hospital. First reports had said he was wounded in the arm.

Senate conferees indicated they would stand behind the proposed ban, but the overwhelming rejection vote by the House members had the effect of killing the proposal since both sides must agree on each issue.

As minister of state for foreign affairs, he was Foreign Minister Ahmed Khalifa al-Suwaidi's deputy and performed many of the foreign minister's ceremonial duties.

Authorities immediately closed the airport to all traffic and barred reporters from the area.

TARGETS OF ASSASSIN — The United Arab Emirates deputy foreign minister, Saif Ghobash, left, was assassinated today at Abu Dhabi airport by an unidentified gunman. But authorities said Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam, who was with Ghobash, was the real target of the attack. (AP Laserphotos)

Davis Jury Gets View Of Defense

AMARILLO (AP) — A lawyer defending millionaire Cullen Davis said today the defense will endeavor to show it was angry business associates of Stan Farr who triggered the bloody shooting spree at the defendant's Fort Worth mansion last year.

Haynes said the defense would provide evidence indicating that the assailant or assailants entered the mansion the night of Aug. 2, 1976, to collect money that had not been paid by Farr.

He said the defendant's stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, was an accidental victim, and that Davis' estranged wife Priscilla likewise "was not a primary target."

Haynes said he would demonstrate that the three key state witnesses all stand to profit by the conviction of the millionaire defendant, and contended that Davis had no motive "to participate in the events of Aug. 2-3."

Farm Movement Gains Support

PLAINS, Kan. (AP) — The American Agriculture Movement picked up more support for its proposed strike Monday in a meeting of farmers in Plains, Kan.

The meeting was held simultaneously with a similar meeting in Plains, Ga., although there were no indications the two groups had any contact with each other.

Bob Durant, head of the movement office in Johnson, Kan., said the strike will begin Dec. 14 if farmers are not receiving parity prices of 100 percent by then.

Durant defined parity as "the price the farmer receives for his product reasonable profit."

A U.S. Department of Agriculture report released Aug. 15, 1977 was presented, showing that parity prices were not being received for any crop.

Durant explained to about 250 farmers from Southwest Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri that there are three basic thrusts to the proposed strike:

"We will not buy" any non-essential items for farms or households. "We will not sell our products. Rather we will take government loans on our products, keep them off the market and yet keep control."

"We will not produce. We will not plant crops in the spring of 1978."

Another speaker, Jim Kramer, a Hugoton, Kan., farmer, cautioned that the strike was not aimed at hurting the local businessmen. He stressed the importance of supporting the businessmen in small farm communities, and said the strike was aimed at getting to the root of the problem.

Beth Cockreham, the wife of a farmer in Stanton County, Kan., who returned to a nursing career to get enough money to buy groceries for her family, jimmied a letter she had written to President Jimmy Carter.

The letter, dated Sept. 21, 1977, compared the loss of the farmer's land to industry with the loss of the Indians' land decades before. Mrs. Cockreham, a member of the Miami Indian tribe of Oklahoma, said more farmers may be forced from their land under programs now in effect or those pending.

"The programs presented for agriculture are so ridiculous that we cannot accept them if we are to maintain our in-Queen Honors Four Britons

LONDON (AP) — J.B. Priestley and three other Britons have been appointed to the Order of Merit, Buckingham Palace has announced.

It is one of the few honours whose recipients are personally selected by Queen Elizabeth II. Most honours are conferred by the monarch on the advice of the prime minister.

In addition to the 83-year-old Priestley, a novelist, others receiving the honor were Sir Frederick Ashton, 71, a choreographer and former director of the Royal Ballet; Lord Franks, 72, former ambassador to the United States and chairman of several recent government committees of inquiry; and Lord Todd, 70, a research scientist.

The Order of Merit was founded in 1902 by King Edward VII as a special distinction, without conferring a knighthood, in recognition of exceptional service to the armed forces, literature, science or the arts.

MidEast Importing More Farm Goods

WASHINGTON (AP) — After cooling off for two years, the Middle East is once again turning into a rapidly growing market for U.S. farm products, an Agriculture Department trade expert says.

Farm exports to the Middle East are expected to be worth nearly $2 billion this year, up from more than $2 billion from about $1.37 billion in calendar 1976, according to John D. Parker Jr. of the department's Economic Research Service.

In an article in a newly published report, "Foreign Agricultural Trade of the United States," Parker also said U.S. farm exports to the region should continue to rise in 1978 to a range of $2.6 billion to $3 billion.

As discussed by Parker, the Middle East trade situation includes the Arab countries of Egypt, Libya, Sudan, Lebanon, Syria, Jordan, Iraq, Bahrain, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, United Arab Emirates, North Yemen, South Yemen, Oman and Qatar.

Those countries are expected to import more than $1.7 billion in U.S. farm products this year, up from $855.9 million in 1976, Parker said.

In addition, the region also includes the non-Arab countries of Iran, Israel, Turkey and Cyprus, whose imports are expected to be about $911 million, compared with $517.8 million in 1976.

"Grain production this year was down sharply in Iran, Iraq and Syria, and Egypt also had a considerable decline, Parker said. "The setback in production will accelerate the growth in grain imports next year."

"Also, competitive exporters of wheat, rice, corn and barley no longer have the huge supply available for export as they

Farmers Reminded of Seed Laws

AUSTIN (Special)—Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown reminded farmers that laws on selling protected and certified varieties have to be considered—even in sales to neighbors.

Because weather conditions in many areas of the state were favorable for the production of good quality cottonseed, Brown said, more farmers are apt to be marketing some of their seed for planting purposes.

"Those who save planting seed and sell to neighbors have several seed laws to keep in mind," he pointed out. A farmer should be represented as "certified" unless it meets the legal requirements.

Also, the developers of protected and certified varieties have gone to great expense for research and testing, Brown added. If their rights are not secure, much-needed research by companies may be stalled.

"We realize that these laws may be confusing to farmers," Brown said. "If they have questions on cottonseed sales, they should write the Texas Department of Agriculture, Seed Division, P.O. Box 12847, Austin 78711."

Grateful Villagers Keep Man From Jail

CHESTER, England (UPI) — A grateful village Monday saved from prison a young policeman who stole $329 from police funds in order to feed his family.

Villagers at Waverton, near Chester, praised the excellent work David Roberts, 24, had done while he was their local policeman and a court gave him a six-month suspended jail sentence.

Roberts admitted taking the money from the Cheshire constabulary's fund of license fees and fines. He resigned from the police force.

His lawyer told the court Roberts' gross pay after eight years as a policeman was only $98 a week which, after taxes and bills, left him less than $70 a month to feed himself, his wife and child. He said Roberts intended to only "borrow" the money, which an anonymous villager later reimbursed to police on Roberts' behalf.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Liberty For Few, Or All?

ONE OF THE major threats to religious liberty today may be the complacency of the American people in the face of government encroachment.

There are a number of ways the state, i.e., the federal government, is undermining that historic wall between it and the church(es): for example, telling the Catholic Church it "must" bargain with teachers unions in parochial schools, or the channeling of federal funds through churches to build hospitals or retirement homes.

IT'S HARD to dispel the complacency precisely because so much of the encroachment is for "socially desirable" ends.

Now if federal agents were to physically invade a church as if it were some kind of speakeasy, the breach in the "wall" would be obvious for all to see.

But this actually happened last July, when FBI agents armed with sledgehammers, power saws and crowbars, swooped down on the Church of Scientology in Washington, D.C. and Los Angeles in search of documents allegedly stolen from extensive government files amassed during years of scrutiny of Scientology.

THE WARRANT for the raid was later declared to be improper by a federal judge and so vague as to be a violation of the Fourth Amendment's guarantee against unreasonable searches and seizures.

Back in 1963, the church in Washington had again been the target of federal intrusion when the FDA confiscated the church's "E-meters"—electronic devices used in counseling sessions—claiming they were being advertised for the treatment of diseases.

The Scientologists eventually won this battle with government also.

SINCE IT was founded in 1954, Scientology has gradually won recognition by numerous courts and government agencies, including the IRS, as a bonafide religion whose doctrines are based on a mixture of religious philosophies.

Nondenominational and open to people of all faiths, Scientology currently claims membership of more than 3 million in this country.

It would seem that the FBI should have something better to do in 1977 than pester an organization whose danger, if any, to society has never been demonstrated.

'Just The Thing To Wear To Geneva'

Paul Scott:

Enter The New 'Trilateralists'

WASHINGTON—The highly influential Trilateral Commission, the power base for the new foreign-policy elite in the U.S., has taken in some interesting new members with far-reaching future political implications.

Most important of the new members are Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson, considered as a possible GOP Presidential candidate in 1980; West Virginia's Gov. John J. Rockefeller IV, one of the new faces in the Democratic party; and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who would like to establish a national political base by becoming a GOP senator from New York.

The significance of their memberships is that all three were personally encouraged to join the elite group by David Rockefeller, chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank, the prime mover and creator of the Trilateral Commission, and now its North American Chairman.

The Thompson-Rockefeller-Kissinger memberships recall similar ones extended in the early 1970s by David Rockefeller to President Carter, when he was a freshman senator from Minnesota.

LED BY CARTER AND Mondale, the "trilateralists" have taken charge of foreign-policy making in the Carter administration and the immense power they yield has spread throughout all of government since January 20.

By careful planning and design, active or former members of the Trilateral Commission now lead every key agency involved in shaping U.S. strategy for dealing with the rest of the world.

In addition to Carter and Mondale, the list includes Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, Secretary of Treasury Michael Blumenthal, and Ambassador Andrew Young, U.S. Representative at the United Nations.

Altogether, more than 25 high posts in the administration are held by men and women associated with that highly secret organization.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, the director of the National Security Council, the government's highest policy planning body, helped Rockefeller launch the Commission in 1973 as its first director.

MOST INTRIGUING part of the Kissinger membership is that the main cover story put out to explain the formation of the commission involved the former Secretary of State and his policies during the Nixon administration.

Rockefeller's motivation for launching the commission, it was stated, was his concern over a growing crisis within the Western Alliance.

He and his collaborators felt that then Secretary of State Kissinger was pursuing a dangerous policy by stressing U.S. relations with its adversaries—Russia and China—to the neglect of relations with Japan and America's allies in Western Europe.

Rockefeller's aim, as the cover story goes, was to reinforce alliance unity through the Commission and its roughly 200 members.

These hand picked individuals came from business, government, academic and media groups.

In addition to being enrolled as a new member, Kissinger has been rewarded with a position on the commission's powerful executive committee, which gives direction to the organization.

There appears to be no need to "educate" Kissinger.

CRITICS OF THE commission claim that the real purpose behind its establishment was to influence or take over all the key policy-making positions in governments in the U.S., Western Europe, and Japan.

ONE MAN'S OPINION
Kenneth May
Answering Volley...

"THERE HAVE been a couple of areas covered by you that have hit sore spots with both me and my husband," writes Sara R. Knox of 4713 61st St.

She continues:
 "The first article that really hit us was your anti-double dipping (ADD) for retired military. I'm sure that most ADDs are referring to those military personnel that retire and accept a position with the federal government."
 "Most ADDs feel that a person who receives two checks from the federal government is cheating the taxpayer. Not necessarily so. It depends on whether or not that person is qualified for the position."
 "EITHER WAY," Mrs. Knox continues, "be it a retired military or a civilian (person who fills the job), there will be two checks issued by the federal government. One for retirement and one for the civilian position."
 "What does it really matter who gets them? Who better than a retired military is so highly qualified for a civil service position?"
 "A retired military person is not taking a job away from anyone. The positions are filled on a merit system."

Why should the federal government be "retiring" military personnel as early as age 38 and giving them a pension check for life unless they are disabled?

IF THERE'S A job a military person can do for the government in a civilian capacity, then transfer him to that job and pay him for doing it.

But whether he takes such a job or goes to work in private enterprise, he shouldn't get a retirement check until he reaches at least age 60—and 65 would be better.

All government retirement systems are overgenerous, in my opinion, but the military retirement system is so absurd that there is no way this nation can continue to pay it, without bankrupting the country.

AS IF ANTICIPATING that position, Mrs. Knox writes that "most people look at what's happening today with military service and they use this standard to judge those men that began their first career back in the 1950s."
 Granted that the pay wasn't so good back then—but, unless the retirement system is changed, today's volunteers will have both good pay while in the service and early retirement that is far too generous.

The longer we wait to correct the situation, the harder it's going to get to do so. Already, volunteers in the "new" armed services are threatening to unionize to press even more fantastic demands.

"IF THE RETIRED military members are now making such a killing on their pensions and second job," Mrs. Knox asks, "how is it that military commissaries, including Reese's, have signs at the checkout counters informing the consumer that they accept food stamps?"

 "You and the American public would be shocked at how many military—active and retired—qualify for welfare programs legally," she says.

No, I wouldn't be surprised. In my opinion, the food stamp guidelines are set far too liberally, allowing far too many people—in and out of the military—to eat a double dip at the taxpayers' expense, spending their salaries on non-essentials instead of basic necessities.

MRS. KNOX ALSO disagrees with me on my opposition to paying working women a salary while they take maternity leave.

I believe that it's a woman's right to work or not work. However, if she chooses to work, she should not expect her employer to keep her salary going while she drops out to have a baby.

That is not equal rights; it is a special privilege.

Mrs. Knox, however, makes a good case for her points of view and we are not in total disagreement, even on the matter of military retirees' double dipping. I'm for them having a job, if they're qualified, just like she is; we disagree on the early pension.

But I fully agree with her on at least one point: "Gerald Ford receives...$104,000 annually from two government pensions...Shouldn't he have to make a choice between one of the two pensions, like any other American?"
 Yep.

Holmes Alexander:
Carter: What A Disappointment

WASHINGTON—I don't suppose that President Carter would actually fail a lie-detector test, but he would not pass with high marks either.

He now lies hogtied in the "tangled web we weave," as Walter Scott put it, "when first we practice to deceive." He has been trying to play a combination of Tricky Dick and Dr. (Bismarck) Kissinger. Jimmy just doesn't have the guile to make his machinations work.

What he's done, for good or ill, is to inspire the coining of a new word for the American language—PUPD. This useful tongue-twister was coined last month by the Wall Street Journal, but here in October it is in common usage on the Senate floor.

"When in doubt—PUPD," quotes the grim-visaged Cranston, D-Calif., in jeering at Carter's duplicity, and the impish Helms, R-N.C., repeats it for emphasis.

While not as pronounceable as SNAFU ("Situation normal; all fouled up"), PUPD is quite expressive. It means, as the WSJ employed it, that when Carter can't get an acceptable treaty, he and his foreign policy men fall back on PUPD. Definition: "Parallel Unilateral Policy Declaration."

That is to say, a semi-executive agreement to side-step the constitutional process of submitting a treaty to the U.S. Senate.

Canal, with its warships awarded priority of passage in event of emergency.

There may be much ironic amusement in Jimmy Carter's predicament, the self-styled honest leader who turns out to be a would-be hoodwinker, a mock-Machiavellian.

But before we laugh too long at his squirming, or despair in ever finding a Chief Executive who can hold our sustained admiration, I think we should consider what the President is up against.

He is up against a ruthless and powerful enemy, the Soviet Union, which has declared itself willing to fight a nuclear war which we still regard as "unthinkable."

He is up against an enemy which has taken the offensive, while we have a peace-loving government which everywhere cringes in a defensive posture.

The talk is that, in event of a European ground war, territory will be conceded to the Warsaw Pact offensive while we dicker in the UN for a cease-fire.

Only, I think, by a rebellious Senate and House, both of which are voting rearmament measures, by an aroused American people who must be told the awful truth about our unreadiness, and (hopefully) by the grace of God, are we going to stay the course.

AT THIS WRITING we are operating without any Strategic Arms Limitations pact with Soviet Russia. SALT I, as everybody must know expired October 3. It hasn't been renewed, nor has SALT II been hatched.

Carter and Paul Warnke, his arms negotiator, hoked up a one-sided interim agreement—PUPD—to abide by the expired SALT I, a verbal bargain which Carter thought wouldn't constitutionally oblige him to submit to the Senate and risk objection.

It was trickery that comes very close to being a White House cheating scandal. The faithful constitutional proctors, Jackson and Goldwater among others, caught Jimmy in the act.

A COUPLE OF days later, Dole of Kansas went before the foreign relations committee and exposed Panama-American collusion in the ambiguous Canal Treaty.

collecting more than is legally owed and misusing postdated checks.

Banned as well is disclosure by collectors of information about a person's personal or financial affairs to a third party.

A collector, for instance, may not contact a debtor's friends, neighbors, relatives or employer—except to find out the debtor's whereabouts, and even then he may not say the individual owes a debt or may not contact a third person more than once unless reasonably necessary.

(4) A debt collector who knowingly violates the law can be sued for actual damages as well as any additional damages up to a maximum of $1,000.

An individual who brings a successful suit is entitled to receive court and attorney's fees.

(5) THE LAW BECOMES effective next March 1978. You, the consumer, will have the major responsibility to enforce this new law through the courts.

But the Federal Trade Commission will have the major administrative authority to see that it is obeyed.

It has the power to treat violations of this law as though they were violations of a trade regulation rule.

In simple language, that means the FTC can go directly into court to obtain restraining orders and seek fines instead of following time-consuming, internal administrative procedures.

The objective: the establishment of a loosely knitted world government.

For Carter, it marked the beginning of his education in international affairs, providing him with what he called "a splendid learning opportunity" under the tutelage of Brzezinski and Rockefeller.

Carter's election to the Presidency and his appointment of more than 25 fellow members to key administration jobs put the Trilateral Commission into power in a big way in the U.S.

THE ENROLLMENT OF Gov. Thompson and Kissinger now raises the question of whether the Commission's purpose is to lay the groundwork to influence and control policy within the Republican as well as the Democratic party.

With Carter looking more and more like a one-term President, commission members are looking toward 1980 by "educating" and "building up" such political hopefuls as Thompson, Kissinger and Rockefeller.

This widening of the commission's influential base also is indicated by other important political figures brought in as new members in recent weeks. These include:

George Bush, former Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and chief of the U.S. Liaison Office in Peking, and former GOP national committee chairman; Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.; Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash.; Rep. William Cohen, R-Me.; Anne L. Armstrong, former U.S. Ambassador to the United Kingdom; and William W. Scranton, former Republican governor of Pennsylvania and Ambassador to the United Nations.

Note: The key word among "trilateralists" this year is "coordination." Carter administration officials are being urged to describe negotiations with foreign governments, including Communist regimes, as a "coordination of policies."

THE FIRST important consumer legislation in President Carter's term to date has gone on our statute books—but with puny, if any, credit due to the Carter White House.

It's the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act—an amendment to the Consumer Credit Practices Act—and its basic goal is to wipe out abusive and bitterly unfair debt collection practices, such as threats of financial ruin, loss of job and reputation, late night phone calls, and the like.

In dramatic hearings before the House Consumer Affairs subcommittee on an almost identical bill in March 1976, a masked former debt collector testified that he and other debt collectors used such tactics to frighten people into paying their debts.

HE ALSO TOLD the committee that he had posed as a lawyer, policeman or court official and bought protection from prosecution by paying off local officials with a percentage of his profits.

The disguised ex-collector was denounced by other industry witnesses, who retorted that if debt collectors were forbidden to dun people by phone and at work, more bills would go unpaid, businesses would grant less credit and consumers would be hurt.

Congress was not convinced by these arguments.

This past August, it passed the debt collection bill with the backing of state and federal law enforcement officers and, eventually, both national organizations of debt collectors.

(1) ONLY DEBTS contracted for personal or household purposes—and not for commercial use—are included in the law. It covers independent debt collection agencies, of which there are about 5,000 now operating in the U.S. and employing roughly 40,000.

In 1976 alone, more than $54 billion of debts were turned over to these agencies for collection—and while, of course, they didn't succeed in collecting this total, when they do collect, they generally retain about half of the amount collected.

(2) Mortgages and student loans, banks, escrow companies, other fiduciaries and creditors who collect their own delinquent debts are exempt.

The latter were not covered because of their political clout and also because they need to retain customers' good will, and thus, usually do not engage in strong-arm collection tactics.

(3) SPECIFICALLY prohibited are such harassing and deceptive collection practices as threats of violence or loss of property, publishing of "shame lists," repeated or anonymous phone calls, impersonating a lawyer or government official, obtaining information under false pretenses,

Contractors Admit Gifts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top defense contractors voluntarily admit supplying military and aerospace procurement officials with everything from football tickets to weekend hunting trips in what a senator calls a campaign to secure preferential treatment.

An investigation by the Joint Committee on Defense Production queried top defense contractors. Replies from 41 of the largest aerospace, electronics and shipbuilding contractors indicated the practice of providing free entertainment was "much more pervasive ... than previously suspected," Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Monday.

Government regulations outlaw government officials accepting entertainment from contractors with whom they do business, Proxmire said. "It is true that a government procurement official would be unlikely to sell out the government's interest solely for a football ticket or a weekend at a corporate lodge," Proxmire said.

"What is of greater importance is the repetitious nature of such entertainment and its widespread use to create good will for contractors during delicate negotiations with the government for billions in defense contracts."

The Pentagon has been more diligent in recent years in curbing the practices, Proxmire said. Enforcement of existing regulations improved following the survey of the top 100 recipients of prime military contracts during fiscal 1975, he said, and "appear to have reduced significantly the incidence of prohibited activity."

Proxmire said entertainment of government procurement officials had a specific objective — "to develop and maintain useful contacts in the government, to create good will for the contractor, to obtain advance or inside information and to secure preferential treatment in the course of doing business with the government."

While Pentagon enforcement has improved, Proxmire, a frequent critic of Pentagon spending, said past congressional inquiries in 1959 and 1967 "led to an abatement which nevertheless proved temporary."

The survey found at least 30 of the 41 contractors said they had purchased tickets to sporting and cultural events to make available to government customers. The companies also acknowledged sponsoring nearly 1,200 hospitality suites at trade and professional conventions over a three-year period.

Meals for government employees were purchased by at least 35 companies, the survey found, and at least 16 firms sponsored participant sporting activities in which government officials engaged. The events included everything from a local golfing match to out-of-town trips to hunting, fishing or skiing resorts.

The committee's report said resort outings included corporate financed transportation, hunting licenses, ammunition, meals and lodgings, hunting and guide fees and game preparation that could total $200 a weekend for each government employee.

While the cost of the gratuities was small compared to other business costs, Proxmire said the total corporate spending to entertain government customers "probably exceeds several million dollars annually ... and involves repeated hospitality to many of the same federal employees, thereby presenting a threat of significant proportions to the integrity of public contracts and the procurement process."

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain was forecast today for much of the East Coast, ranging from Vermont south to the Carolinas. Showers were anticipated for portions of California and Nevada. Temperatures were expected to be mild over most of the nation. (AP Laserphoto)

James Earl Ray Wants Different Lawyer

WARTBURG, Tenn. (AP) — Two days before he is to go on trial on escape charges, James Earl Ray wants to fire his attorney of the past 10 months and hire assassinations buff Mark Lane as his new attorney.

Ray, the convicted assassin of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., said during arguments on pretrial motions here Monday that he no longer wants Jack Kershaw of Nashville to represent him.

Kershaw, who has been Ray's attorney since last January, said Ray, 49, is too mentally unstable to select an attorney or stand trial and asked Judge Lee Asbury to order a psychological examination of Ray.

Asbury asked him to put that motion in writing and said he would rule on it today.

Later in the day, Kershaw said, however, he agreed that he should step out of the case because he did not have Ray's confidence.

Low Visibility Results From Heavy Fog

A-J News Services
Heavy fog interfered with traffic early today in several central states, and a tornado was reported in Alabama.

In Nebraska, travelers — including pedestrians — were advised to be careful on streets and highways because of low visibility caused by fog.

Fog also resulted in travel advisories for parts of Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana.

A tornado swirled across Baldwin County in Alabama, damaging several homes and a barn near Robertsdale. Police said no one was injured.

Meanwhile, rain was reported in the Pacific Northwest and the Southeast.

However, much of the nation today settled into a lazy fall weather scene, painted with partly cloudy skies and mild temperatures during the morning hours.

Forecasts were of a similar tone.

Rain was expected to continue in East Texas, and early this morning fog covered a broad section of the state, from near Waco and College Station to Texarkana. But clear skies and temperatures in the 70s and 80s were forecast for most of the state today.

The National Weather Service at Lubbock Regional Airport indicates Lubbock residents can expect readings in the low 80s today and in the 40s tonight. Wind measurements should remain light and variable, weather watchers say.

Meanwhile a low pressure system swung into the southeastern United States, from south of New Orleans, bringing rain from the lower Mississippi River Valley up through the Ohio Valley. Next in line for frontal system rainfall were Alabama and Georgia, followed by the Northeast U.S., where precipitation is expected later in the week.

Kershaw said he expected Asbury would rule on that motion today.

The judge said he still plans to hold Ray's trial on the escape charge on Thursday as scheduled.

Ray and six other inmates climbed over the prison's rear wall on June 10 and escaped into the mountainous woods surrounding the East Tennessee prison. All were recaptured within the next four days, Ray after 54 1/2 hours of freedom.

Kershaw said Ray took a similar ill-fated action in dismissing two attorneys just before his 1969 trial in Memphis on charges of shooting King in April 1968 in Memphis. The result, Kershaw said, was that Ray was coerced into entering a guilty plea to the murder charge by his attorney then, Percy Foreman, even though he did not kill King.

Kershaw said Ray has hired and dismissed 10 other attorneys, not including himself, since Foreman represented him.

Lane said Ray wants to fire Kershaw because he believes Kershaw profited unfairly from an interview with Ray published in the September issue of Playboy magazine.

Kershaw called the statement absurd.

More research is needed on the long term consequences of parenthood and decision-making processes among adolescents and on contraceptives appropriate to various ages, she said.

One recent government study found child-bearing rates among 10-14-year-olds "so small they do not support ... more detailed analysis."

But another report showed an eight percent increase in births to 10-14-year-olds from 1974 to 1975.

The study and substantial decline in the births to 18 and 19-year-olds is offset by the relatively unchanged rate among the 15 to 17-year-olds and the rise among the 10 to 14-year-olds," the study found.

It attributed declining birth rates in older teenagers to the ability of older women to control unplanned pregnancy. Little change in birth rates among adolescents is expected during the next five years, the study added.

Pregnancy among adolescents is largely viewed in terms of the girl and not her male partner, it said. Young men generally are not included in service programs and little information is available about the fathers.

However, it said premarital pregnancy was not a tactic used by teenaged mothers to bring about marriage. One study mentioned in the report said most girls who did marry because of the pregnancy would have chosen to marry at a later age under normal circumstances.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) One-to-one relationships will be a critical area for you tomorrow. You may find you have trouble even with those you usually get along with.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There will be rewards for work well done tomorrow, but duties and responsibilities will also be a lot more difficult than normal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) While you're in a sociable mood tomorrow, you'd be wise to avoid large gatherings. You'll be more comfortable in a small group where you can exercise control.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Establish realistic goals tomorrow. If you set your sights beyond your scope, you'll feel you've achieved nothing when you really have.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The one type of person you don't want to be around tomorrow is the know-it-all. He or she could really get your blood boiling.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Financial conditions will be mixed for you tomorrow. There could be a few roadblocks you didn't anticipate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Independence is a noble virtue, but tomorrow you have to strike a balance in one-to-one relationships, to assure others you care about them, too.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The possibilities for personal gain will be good tomorrow, but make sure the price is worth the return. Don't swap integrity for silver.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Social complications may arise for you tomorrow if one in the group tries to run the show. You won't sit back and take it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Should you have a run-in with a person in authority tomorrow, you'd be wise to back off a bit, even though you may be right.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Trying to blatantly impose your will on others tomorrow will draw you only nasty responses. Sugarcoat the message. You'll get it across.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You must feel the input is equal in any joint ventures involving money tomorrow, otherwise you'll feel you're being taken advantage of.

Average Flow Of Rivers

Above Normal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new "water year" is just getting underway, and so far it is wet instead of dry. U.S. Geological Survey hydrologists, who measure the "water year," — Oct. 1-Sept. 30 — say the new year is off to a wet start following one of the driest years on record.

"During the water year, streamflows were deficient — within the lowest 25 percent of record — at about 65 percent of the 160 key index-measuring sites where records have been compiled," said hydrologist Carroll Saboe.

He said 10 of those streams had a record dry year, but if September streamflows are any indication, "the new water year appears to be getting off to a wet start."

"In fact, the overall September water supply picture was about as rosy as it's been in many months, with just about as much of the country reporting high flows as low flows," he said.

Discussion Topics Vary At Carters' Luncheons

By JURATE KAZICKAS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once a week, Rosalynn Carter "slips in through the back door" of the Oval Office to talk things over with her husband.

Often tucked under one arm is a leather folder with her husband's title inscribed in French — she doesn't know where it came from — that holds the First Lady's notes on what she wants to discuss.

Sometimes dressing in slacks and slippers, she never keeps the President waiting.

Mrs. Carter talked about the informal lunches and other aspects of White House life in a relaxed session with reporters as she rode the train back to Washington from campaigning in New Jersey.

The weekly luncheons began, she said, because it was "no fun" discussing business when the President came home from a hard day at the office.

Those hours, she thought, should be devoted to family matters — like daughter Amy's violin lessons.

The First Lady visited southern New Jersey for three hours of whirlwind campaigning for Democratic Gov. Brendan Byrne.

Mrs. Carter said the trip — her first political outing since last year's presidential drive — left her ready for more campaigning.

"I didn't realize how much I missed it ... That was fun," she declared.

On Saturday, Mrs. Carter left the White House to stump for Virginia's Democratic gubernatorial hopeful, Henry Howell.

During the trip to New Jersey, senior citizens serenaded Mrs. Carter with kazooes, local politicians kissed her and construction workers gave her a "We dig America" pin.

The trip, she said, was her idea, not the President's.

Like many of her activities, she said, it was not coordinated with her husband's plans. "Sometimes he doesn't even know what's on my schedule," she added.

On the trip back from New Jersey, she perched on the arm of a chair in the club car, nibbling peanuts and talking about life at the White House.

She said her weekly lunches with the President often focus on issues such as installing solar heat in the White House or creating a Department of Education.

But other times, she said the tete-a-tete will deal with more personal questions — like whether Amy should perform with a group of young Georgia dancers when they come to the White House next week.

Mrs. Carter told reporters she disagrees with her husband "on a lot of things" in their discussions.

She wouldn't be specific, but told the reporters, "I wouldn't tell a lie," if they asked the right question.

Her evenings at the White House include a practice session on the violin with Amy — but only for a half hour because Mrs. Carter gets a sore neck from trying to keep her violin tucked under her chin, she said.

Asked how her husband was coping with his troubles in Congress over his energy program, she answered, "We're used to rough times."

Then she added, "If it were easy to have an energy program, we'd already have (one). These are things that have been neglected too long, and you don't expect them to go sliding through."

And she said it looks like Grandma Lillian Carter will do the baby sitting when the Carters leave their daughter in the White House and take off on their nine-nation tour next month.

While the President may not always know what's on his wife's agenda, Mrs. Carter said, there are other times he has little doubt.

Upstairs in the White House, he can often hear the sweet sounds of "Mississippi Hot Dog," "Huckleberry" and "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star" as played by mother and daughter on the violin.

Selection Down On New Cars

DETROIT (AP) — Not only are cars themselves shrinking, so is the field of models to choose from.

Domestic new-car buyers looking at the 1978 models are finding the smallest selection since 1960. Sixteen of the discontinued 1977 models were in the full-sized category.

The 252-model lineup from U.S. automakers is down 23 from the number offered at the end of the 1977 model year, and it's as much as 80 model lines less than the offerings in the booming 1960s when many models differed in little other than name, according to the trade journal Automotive News.

Chrysler Corp. accounted for most of the cut, getting rid of 26 models and four lines. The No. 3 carmaker, which in past years has been known for its large autos, ended production of its big Plymouth Gran Fury and the Dodge Royal Monaco. With the company changing its emphasis from big to smaller, Chrysler now offers only four "standard"-size models, all carrying the Chrysler nameplate.

In addition, Chrysler sliced its Dodge Aspen and Plymouth Volare from eight to three models each.

General Motors Corp. is offering 138 models for 1978, the same as at the end of last model year. Ford Motor Co. has 64, four more, and American Motors Corp. has 11, down one.

The biggest selection comes in the small-car category. There are 93 offered for 1978, compared with 100 at the end of the 1977 run.

Intermediates take the next biggest chunk, with 88 both this year and last. Big cars, which suffer most from increasingly stiff federal regulations on mileage, account for 70 models this year compared to 86 last year. The Corvette is alone in its "specialty car" category.

The introductory 252 is two models less than were introduced last fall. But as the model year progresses, the makers bring out new lines. On tap for later this year are the Ford and Mercury sport coupes, and Chrysler's subcompact Dodge Omni and Plymouth Horizon will come out in January.

Before the carmakers switched their plants over to weapons production in 1942, the industry had 276 models on the market. When production resumed after World War II, there were 160 models. It climbed to 263 in 1958, dropped slightly during the early '60s, then zoomed up as high as 330 in later years of the decade.

Keepers Refuse Help In Sale

WORCESTER, England (UPI) — Dudley Zoo is selling its lions, tigers, bears and deadly snakes to prospective buyers brave enough to catch their purchases themselves.

The zoo is closing down Dec. 4, and the keepers, who will be out of work, are refusing to help in the sale.

"We will absolutely refuse to move the animals," said Graham Chilton, the zoo's senior union official. "We are just looking after them and feeding them, but once we help to sell them our jobs are gone."

The 40-year-old zoo, one of Britain's largest, houses 1,500 animals and reptiles.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Dow Jones Average Below 800

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market suffered another broad loss today, pushing the Dow Jones industrial average below 800 for the first time in more than two years.

The widely recognized average of 30 blue chips dropped 2.77 to 799.53 by noon.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 4-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow last closed below 800 at 794.55 on Oct. 2, 1975.

The latest selling wave in the market has been blamed on concern over rising interest rates, weakness in the dollar, and disagreement between the White House and the Federal Reserve over the Fed's tightening of credit.

Analysts also noted selling today by followers of the so-called Dow Theory, which flashed a negative signal Monday when the Dow Jones industrial and transportation averages simultaneously reached new lows for the year.

General Motors was the most active NYSE issue, down 1/4 at 69 1/4. A 257,600-share block traded at 69 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index also broke through a round number level—50—with a 37 decline to 49.87. The American Stock Exchange market value index lost .72 to 112.25.

Trading was active. Big Board volume reached 10.10 million shares in the first two hours, against 7.20 million in the comparable period Monday.

SEATTLE (AP) — A strike against Boeing Co., the world's largest manufacturer of commercial jetliners, entered its fourth week today.

Federal Mediator Pete Horn said several issues remained unresolved after bargaining Friday between representatives of Boeing and the Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

Talks with Horn were scheduled to resume Wednesday.

The union has asked for a 10 percent annual wage hike and a three-year contract. Boeing said its proposed increase averaged 5.6 percent per year, while the union evaluates it at three per cent because it says the figure includes cost-of-living increases previously agreed to.

Protesters Hurl Rocks At Police

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Students demonstrating against President Park Chung-hee and accused influence-peddler Tongson Park threw rocks at riot police today before the police drove them from the Yonsei University campus with anti-riot gases.

There were no reports of student injury. Witnesses said between 40 and 50 students were taken away by plainclothesmen near the end of the three-hour disturbance.

The demonstration at Korea's largest Christian university came as Seoul National University partially reopened its main campus. That institution had closed Oct. 9 following an anti-government demonstration.

After a noon rally, about 4,000 students gathered inside the Yonsei campus' main gate.

They chanted, "Out with Park Chung-hee," and "Withdraw Revitalization," the government's term for President Park's authoritarian rule and his ban on public dissent.

About 200 riot police and scores of plainclothesmen, led by vehicles spraying a pungent "pepper-gas" gas, stormed into the campus. The students drove them back with rock battles.

Police reinforcements arrived and charged the students, who were squatting on the ground chanting slogans. The students retreated under heavy clouds of pepper gas and tear gas and fled in all directions.

About 200 students regrouped two blocks from the campus and marched a few hundred yards down a nearby street, still chanting.

The students also adopted by acclamation a resolution calling on the government to "clarify the Tongson Park case," in which the South Korean government has been accused of bribing members of the U.S. Congress. A declaration charged that the government had resorted to diplomacy-by-bribe. It said the case was the "biggest national disgrace" since Korean independence in 1948.

A National Assembly member from the opposition New Democratic Party, Hahn Yung-jo, called for the resignation of Kim Dong-jo, a special assistant to President Park, because Kim was the ambassador in Washington when most of the alleged Korean payoffs took place.

Hahn made his demand in the assembly's foreign affairs committee. Foreign Minister Park Tong-jin told the committee he was not in a position to speak for Kim on such a personal matter.

Park told the committee he regretted the failure of recent negotiations with U.S. representatives to arrange for American officials to question Tongson Park. He claimed the negotiations had not broken down completely and said he hoped an amicable agreement would be reached in future talks. He said there was no definite plan to reopen the talks, but he would make efforts to arrange this.

Group Seizes Control Of U.S. Statue

NEW YORK (AP) — About two dozen persons who said they represented the New York Committee to Free the Puerto Rican Nationalist Prisoners took over the Statue of Liberty this morning, police said.

The group arrived on the first sightseeing boat to Liberty Island and immediately occupied the statue.

Their demands were not immediately known, but it was believed they included the release of four Puerto Rican radicals involved in the 1954 shooting of five congressmen on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives.

The radicals were convicted and sentenced to lengthy prison terms. Andres Figueroa Cordero, leader of the group, was granted clemency several weeks ago by President Carter and has returned to Puerto Rico. Cordero is suffering from terminal cancer.

The other four members of the group remain imprisoned.

A Coast Guard spokesman said a boat was dispatched to the island, which is supervised by the National Park Service, to remove tourists and persons who live or work there and to establish a "security zone." Scores of National Park police also were sent to the scene.

The FBI said it was notified of the takeover, but that it planned no immediate action.

Reporters were kept at Battery Park on a launch about 200 yards from the island and were not allowed to attend a news conference the demonstrators called.

The 225-ton statue has been the site of a number of recent takeovers by groups ranging from supporters of increased veterans benefits to protesters against the Iranian government.

Abilene Man Dies In Plane Crash

ALBANY (AP) — A crash near this West Texas city has claimed the life of an Abilene pilot and resulted in severe burns to an Albany rancher.

The victim was identified as Robert Keith Uiter, 38, of Abilene who died when the small plane, an experimental two-man Stearman Skybolt, crashed Monday just short of an airstrip on a private ranch.

Police said Watt Matthews, 28, was injured in the crash. He was reported in guarded condition today at Parkland Hospital in Dallas with burns over 65 percent of his body.

Talks Slated Wednesday In Strike

Large TV Families Joined By 'Mulligan's Stew'

By JAY SHARBUTT
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Small families may be in, but not on TV. We have "The Waltons," "The Fitzpatricks," "Family" and "Eight is Enough." And yet another large-clan series arrives tonight.

It's NBC's "Mulligan's Stew," with Lawrence Pressman as a high school coach and Elinor Donahue as his wife, Jane, a school nurse. They and theirs live in small California town.

They have three kids of their own, plus four more — including a young Vietnamese girl — they took in after the deaths of Mulligan's sister and brother-in-law in a plane crash. The kids range from tot to teenager.

This could signal a predictable show, but fortunately "Stew" has no family dog and not once does Pop bumble in the front door, take off his coat, beam, and cry: "Hi, what's for dinner?"

This is a pretty good omen, despite some pretty bad child acting and simple-minded dialogue and scenes in tonight's premiere episode.

Wonder of wonders, "Stew" even proves a surprisingly relevant hour about three topical matters — the "battered child" syndrome, an alcoholic parent and the effect of TV on some of today's kids.

It revolves around an 11-year-old waif (Matthew Laborteaux), a cocky, new-to-town kid from New York who seems an uptown Huck Finn.

Befriended by two boys in the Mulligan clan, he claims his father is rich, a world traveler, a man of adventure. He lies.

He gets an invitation to dine at the Mulligan house and spends two nights there, causing Mrs. M. to suspect all is not well at his home — a suspicion heightened when she sees bad bruises on his back.

In time it's revealed the lad's father (Donegan Smith) is a broke, unemployed failure who once gave Alcoholics Anonymous a try, but has since lapsed back into equal mixtures of self-pity and the demon rum.

Amid all this and assorted fluff about kids in and out of school, there's teen-aged Mark Mulligan (Johnny Doran) who's making a "documentary" for his high school film class.

He's into "social realism." He doesn't find it until he and two younger boys of the Mulligan clan go visit the rundown home of Laborteaux, their supposedly rich new friend.

The boy's dad, in a drunken rage, chases the kid out of the house and hits him. The youngsters are stunned, save for Mark. He calmly films the beating for use as the high point of his "documentary."

When he shows it to his folks, they're rightfully shocked, both at his insensitivity and that he defends the film as "documentary, on-the-spot reportage" of the kind seen on television all the time.

Alas, a scene where the film sets the drunken father on the road to righteousness is a stock cliché also seen on TV all the time.

Despite this and other flaws, tonight's effort is a thoughtful first try and indicates "Stew" could be a hit, given time to improve. At the least, it's a show the entire family can watch.

This may worry NBC. Weird as it sounds, NBC airs the show at 9 p.m. EDT. Which is the hour after TV's so-called "family hour."

Ship Design Requested

SEATTLE (AP) — The National Science Foundation has given a University of Alaska Institute of Marine Science team $100,000 to design a ship combining the best features of research vessels and icebreakers.

The design now on the drawing boards calls for a vessel which looks like an icebreaker from the main deck down and a research ship from the main deck up, with a modified hull to add to its stability.

It would be about 190 feet long, with a range of 13,000 miles for 60 days. Another version would be 35 feet longer and could cruise 20,000 miles over 90 days.

The estimated cost of producing the vessel is $11.5 million to $13 million.

Current research vessels are unable to penetrate sea ice for extensive Arctic research. If Congress approves funding, the ship being designed now would operate as a national research vessel, probably for several universities.

MR. PRINTOUT GETS HIS AT THE CORNER BAR—

Town 'Adopts' German Tourist

BANGOR, Maine (UPI) — When Irwin Kreutz heard the stewardess say "San Francisco," he just naturally figured he was in California.

So Kreutz, a vacationing brewery worker from Augsburg, Germany, who doesn't speak a word of English, got off his charter flight and checked into a hotel.

He wandered around Bangor for three days, taking in the sights and thinking he was in a San Francisco suburb before he found out where he was.

That was a couple of weeks ago. Since then, Kreutz has become just about the most popular guy around.

He's become a member of the Rotary Club and even was made an honorary member of the Penobscot Indian tribe.

Kreutz was headed for sunny California for his vacation when his charter flight from Frankfurt to San Francisco landed in Bangor for a change of crew and to clear customs.

When he heard a stewardess say "San Francisco," he assumed he had arrived at his destination and thought the woman was merely wishing the passengers a pleasant stay on the West Coast.

Kreutz finally discovered his mistake when he asked a taxi driver to take him to San Francisco and was told the fare for a 3,000-mile trip would be rather high.

Not long after that, a friend of the owners of a German-American restaurant in nearby Old Town found a confused

Kreutz and took him to see the restaurant's owners, Ken and Gertrude Romine.

In the past two weeks, Kreutz practically has been adopted by the city. The Romines, operators of the Black Room, have been his unofficial hosts and interpreters.

Sen. Muskie Supports Hydroelectric Project

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, says there is "a real possibility" that New England will run out of oil and have to depend on rivers, tides and the sun to generate its energy.

For that reason, Muskie said he favors the controversial $690 million Dickey-Lincoln hydroelectric project proposed for the St. John River in northern Maine.

In an interview with the Maine Sunday Telegram, Muskie said he also supports the project because "it's time to produce some opportunities for people who work, not canoe down the St. John."

Environmentalists in the state claim the hydroelectric dam would destroy more than 80,000 acres of timberland and scar one of New England's most scenic wilderness areas.

While denying he is "anti-environment," Muskie said conservationists have opposed "every form of energy that has been suggested."

"You've got to be for something, unless you're for zero growth, or a rollback of Maine's economic potential and its potential for providing for the needs of our people," Muskie said.

"This state has moved slowly economically, and Aroostook County has been in a recession, if not a depression, posture for the past 30 years. And I think it's time to provide some opportunities for people, people who work, not canoe down the St. John (River)."

Changes Approved In Criminal Code

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Judiciary Committee members reached tentative agreement today to limit the amount of time authorities can take to determine whether a person charged with a federal crime is mentally competent to stand trial.

No vote was taken, but Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said a 30-day limit proposed by Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., had been accepted by the sponsors of a bill revising the federal criminal code. The bill as drafted provides for 45 days. There is no limit under existing federal law.

"In something like the 'Son of Sam' case, people are wanting to know whether the man is going to stand trial and they deserve an answer if it can be achieved," Wallop said.

David Berkowitz, charged with the so-called "Son of Sam" murders in New York, was referred for psychiatric examination on Aug. 11 following his arrest. Last Friday, Berkowitz was declared to be competent to stand trial.

The proposed new federal provision would not have applied in the Berkowitz case because he was charged under state law.

The proposed new criminal code is less controversial than one which failed to reach the Senate floor in the last Congress. But the new proposal still has a number of provisions which civil liberties groups find objectionable.

Today was the first time the full committee has reviewed the proposed new code, the product of more than 10 years' effort.

The bill, if passed, will be the first consolidation of federal crime statutes into a single code — updating current laws to conform with court rulings and obsolete and overlapping provisions.

With a score of amendments expected to be offered, committee aides are uncertain whether a final vote will be reached this week. In any event, the bill will not reach the Senate floor until next year.

Two previous sessions of Congress have failed to pass the code, the foundation for which was laid with the formation of the National Commission for the Reform of Federal Criminal Laws in 1966.

Some of the proposed amendments would:

- Limit wiretapping to a narrower range of crimes than has been proposed and reduce the duration of court orders approving wiretaps to 15 days from 30 days
- Leave the door open to the filing of rape charges against a defendant who is the victim's husband. The present law is unclear about this, with court decisions going both ways
- Guarantee a parolee the right to a hearing and to be represented by an attorney in proceedings to revoke his parole
- The compromise draft submitted for the committee's consideration was agreed on after unsuccessful efforts in the last Congress to resolve differences between conservatives and civil libertarians

It is sponsored by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., a conservative who has worked on the project for 10 years, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a leading liberal and member of the judiciary committee. McClellan is chairman of the judiciary subcommittee on criminal law and procedure.

The draft would leave the law much as it is in areas — many of them relating to disclosure of government secrets — which aroused the greatest controversy last year.

The proposed law sets criteria and establishes a commission to guide federal judges in imposing sentences and granting paroles for different classes of offenses, in an effort to eliminate wide disparities.

It would authorize compensation of up to $50,000 for innocent victims of violent federal crimes.

It would reduce maximum federal penalties for possession of marijuana and eliminate them altogether for possession of 10 grams or less, the equivalent of about half a package of cigarettes.

But it calls for mandatory prison sentences for trafficking in heroin and other hard drugs and for using a weapon in committing a crime.

Wrong Man Picked To Buy 'Hot' TV

DENVER (UPI) — When two men stopped Ken Vasquez in a grocery parking lot, they asked him if he wanted to buy a "hot" television set.

Vasquez agreed to buy the color set, then went into the store to cash a $50 check. He called for police help and the two men were arrested.

Authorities said the men picked the wrong customer. Vasquez is a police officer.

Davis' Defense Strategy Aired

the real killer to be, but he told the jury he will bring to the stand a former boy-friend of Mrs. Davis, W.T. Rufner, whose name has surfaced frequently during the two months of testimony.

Rufner was involved in a bizarre confrontation with Haynes Monday minutes after the state rested its capital murder case.

Haynes said he also would show that Farr "experienced a fear for his life against Horace Copeland," an unsavory Fort Worth figure who was shot to death a year after the events at Davis' mansion.

and one John Smith." Smith was identified as a Fort Worth man, but his name has rarely been mentioned in connection with this case.

The defense summoned as its first witness Fern Frost, a secretary for Kendavis Industries in Fort Worth.

The state rested its case Monday after two months of testimony from 21 witnesses, the final one, Fort Worth crime director Frank Shiller.

After the state rested, the trial judge routinely denied a defense motion for an instructed verdict of acquittal and rejected another appeal to dismiss the capital murder count against the defendant.

Shiller told the jury it was his conclusion that the bullets which killed Farr and Miss Wilborn were fired from the same gun, a .38-caliber Smith & Wesson.

Shiller's testimony provided the key circumstantial element to the state's case, because there were no witnesses to the shooting of Miss Wilborn and no murder weapon was ever found.

Minutes after the state rested, Haynes emerged from the courtroom and was confronted by Rufner, Mrs. Davis' ex-boyfriend, whose name has surfaced often in the proceedings.

The jury did not witness the confrontation or hear the ensuing comments by Rufner and Haynes.

Rufner, an Arlington electrician, was the nearly nude figure with Mrs. Davis in a poster-size photograph that Haynes twice tried — but failed — to enter as evidence.

The bearded, brown-haired Rufner, criticizing Haynes for involving him in the case, handed the Houston trial lawyer a T-shirt depicting himself as he appeared in the picture.

Although obviously angry, Haynes, whose pretty, blond wife was at his side, quipped: "I recognize you from your picture." He accepted the shirt but told Rufner, "You left out your girlfriend." Mrs. Davis, who appeared in the photograph in a revealing halter top, was not included on the T-shirts, one of which Rufner wore under his button-down shirt.

Rufner, saying he is now in the T-shirt business, accused Haynes of trying the murder case as if it were a lurid divorce case, and said his Amarillo appearance was a matter of principle.

"Mr. Haynes has brought drugs, whiskey and sex and every thing else into this case. What in the hell does that have to do with a 12-year-old girl being murdered by someone?" declared Rufner, who has been subpoenaed as a defense witness.

He also accused Haynes of making him his "whipping boy," to which Haynes later responded:

"I'm not the guy who moved in with Priscilla Davis. I'm not the guy who had the cocaine bust. I'm not the guy who had all the pistols. I don't know how he can be my whipping boy."

Haynes said the incident raised "serious or at least curious questions," as to who if anybody put Rufner up to the incident.

"If it was just an effort to be commercial, that's one thing. If it's an effort to water down and humorize his involvement and role, that's something else."

"I don't know."

Trial Judge George Dowlen and prosecutors refused to involve themselves in the matter but Shannon describing the episode as "wild" laughed.

"I guess we'll have a trained seal act next."

State, City Taxes Still Mounting

CHICAGO (UPI) — Americans paid an average $731 in state and local taxes in fiscal 1976, an increase of $67 a person from the previous fiscal year, the Commerce Clearing House reports.

New Yorkers, who for 10 consecutive years paid the highest state and local taxes, came in second to Alaskans in fiscal 1976, the Chicago-based tax and business law publishers said Monday.

Taxes ranged from $1,896 in Alaska to a low of $454 in Arkansas.

Per capita state and local tax burdens increased in every state during the fiscal year.

The Alaska average skyrocketed $1,054 between fiscal 1975 and 1976, due to property taxes which shot up to $400 million in fiscal 1976, from $76 million in the previous year.

New York, in second place with at $1,140, was the only other state to pass the $1,000 mark in per capita taxes.

Rounding out the top 10 were: California $964, Hawaii $935, District of Columbia $924, Massachusetts $903, Wyoming $847, Minnesota $823, Nevada $820, and Maryland $814.

While Alaska was hit with the highest increase in fiscal 1976, Indiana was low with an increase of $8.

California took the lead from New York by bringing $20.7 billion in tax revenues into its state and local government coffers. Following were New York with $20.6 billion, Illinois with $8.6 billion and Pennsylvania with $8.1 billion.

The state and local tax burdens in dollar amounts for fiscal 1976 and 1975:

Alaska 1,896-842; New York 1,140-1,025; California 964, 869; Hawaii 935-852; District of Columbia 924-759; Massachusetts 903-814.

Wyoming 847-697; Minnesota 823-754; Nevada 820-770; Maryland 814-728; New Jersey 793-725; Wisconsin 791-719; Connecticut 779-697.

Illinois 769-730; Delaware 768-727; Michigan 749-682; Vermont 742-699; Arizona 731-658; Washington 728-676; Colorado 728-631; Rhode Island 711-645; Montana 709-612; Oregon 703-635; Iowa 701-637.

British Troops Kill Teenager In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — British troops shot and killed a 16-year-old Monday night after he and another youth set fire to a bus, police reported.

A police spokesman said a girl flagged the bus down. Two masked youths, one of whom was armed with a pistol, boarded the vehicle, ordered everyone off and set it on fire.

An army patrol ordered the youths to halt and opened fire when they did not, the spokesman continued. The armed teenager was killed, and the other youth and the girl escaped, the spokesman said.

The boy was the 1,790th confirmed death in more than eight years of warfare between Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic minority and the Protestant majority.

VOWS TO LEAVE — Rep. Gary Myers, R-Pa., plans to quit his political career at the end of this term and return to a job in a steel mill. (AP Laserphoto)

Pennsylvania Congressman Will Return To Steel Mill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pennsylvania congressman says he is giving up his Capitol Hill career to return to a job in a steel mill, convinced that any guy next door can make a good legislator.

"I look at my colleagues, and some of them who have gone on to the Senate and probably someday will be considered presidential material — and I just don't see there's much difference between them and the people who are my neighbors or relatives back home," said Republican Gary A. Myers.

"I'm convinced that many white-and blue-collar people I come across in my daily life back home could serve as president," said the 40-year-old Butler, Pa., resident, who plans to quit Congress when his second term expires in 1979.

Myers, a former steel plant foreman, said his political life hasn't left him with enough time for his family.

He didn't realize, he said, how much he would be away from his wife Elaine, 12-year-old daughter Michele and 10-year-old son Mark.

He spends up to 120 days a year in his western Pennsylvania district, leaving his family behind at their McLean, Va., home. And when he's in Washington, he works 80-hour weeks.

On top of that, he said, he usually brings home a briefcase full of paperwork.

His congressional career has placed other strains on his home life.

Myers complained that when he leaves home in the morning, he doesn't know if a prolonged debate or committee meeting will delay his return that evening.

Shop Owner Helps Youngsters To Become Halloween Ghouls

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The harvest moon of Halloween turns The Dancer's Shop into a ghoulish meeting place, where Bente Allen can transform the living into the living dead for $3 to $5.

Mrs. Allen is manager of the shop, an ordinary-looking place which for most of the year deals in leotards, dancing shoes and other show business paraphernalia.

But when the autumn moon is full and Halloween candy appears on supermarket shelves, Mrs. Allen starts to work her bewitchery.

"It all began about three years ago, when we started carrying theatrical makeup," she said.

"We didn't realize how much makeup sold at Halloween. We were amazed. Last year it was so big that we realized how effective it was, really, so we decided this year to open a clinic," she said.

The "clinic" is a series of little seminars each night this week in which Mrs. Allen and her sister, Jeanie Wilson, provide free instruction on an assortment of bizarre transformations.

The werewolf was Monday's exercise. It required about $3 worth of crepe hair, spirit gum and black makeup. Blond werewolves required applications of dark hair spray to keep from blowing their cover.

Tonight the sisters plan to produce dogs and ghosts. On Wednesday they are to teach youngsters how to use liquid latex to add about 70 years to their age. "Their faces will actually be wrinkled," Mrs. Allen explained. "This one costs a little more — about $5."

Thursday's schedule gives the changelings a choice: a witch, a clown or a Martian. And finally on Friday, the ever-popular Dracula lives again — and again and again.

All of the necessary materials are for sale at the shop, and there's no denying that the clinics will help move the merchandise. But there's clearly more to the service than profit, since the shop also sells a pullover gorilla mask that produces roughly the same effect as the werewolf makeup — for $18.

"I hope the idea catches on," said Mrs. Allen. "The masks are really too bulky and the kids can't see out of them very well."

School Yule Programs Get Okay

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — The Goose Creek Consolidated Independent School District board members voted unanimously early today to permit the singing of carols and presentation of Christmas programs in the district's schools.

The board went into a closed session late Monday night to consider the issue, after at least 2,400 parents and students in the district packed an auditorium to urge the changing of the policy handed down recently by school Supt. Johnny Clark.

Clark notified school principals that the traditional Christmas singing and plays would not be held this year, in light of an American Civil Liberties Union suit filed in federal court.

The suit was filed in February in behalf of Ruth Johnson. She alleged that her Jewish children's religious rights have been violated by Christmas activities in the schools.

The suit, set for trial in May, also argues that Mrs. Johnson's rights as a parent to determine the religious training of her children have been violated.

She said her two children are being subjected to daily readings from the Bible and recitations of the Lord's Prayer in violation of the U.S. Constitution.

The suit seeks to stop such prayers and also seeks to prevent the district from having prayers at extracurricular activities.

Senate Proposal On Autos Fails

the energy tax proposals coming out of the Senate Finance Committee, so that conferees reconciling differences between the House and Senate bills can begin work on the entire energy program.

He said Carter told the congressional leaders he wanted an energy bill that treated consumers fairly, wouldn't enrich oil companies, encouraged reduced energy consumption and wouldn't destroy his hopes for a balanced budget.

The whip reported that Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the chairman of the Finance Committee who has been at odds with Carter on many aspects of the energy legislation, said he did not want to sign a conference report for a bill that Carter would veto.

The Senate today is debating whether to raise taxes to force fuel saving or cut them selectively to reward conservation.

How the question is settled in the Senate and in a Senate-House conference committee next month will have long-term effects on the U.S. economy and national security.

In the floor battle opening today, the Senate faces the choice of new taxes proposed by Carter and passed in reduced form by the House, the more than $40 billion worth of tax incentives approved by the Senate Finance Committee, or a combination of the two.

The Carter administration opposes the finance committee's proposals. But to avoid an anticipated defeat in the full Senate of the new taxes, the President's supporters would like the Senate to quickly approve the committee's bill and let the conference committee write the final legislation.

Even before reaching the Senate floor, the bill produced by the finance committee was under sharp attack. Some senators called it a give-away to the oil industry. Others said the $40 billion price tag over the next eight years would make it difficult to balance the budget and would take money needed for other national programs.

In a study of one of the tax breaks, the Congressional Budget Office said a $200 million tax credit the Senate committee proposed for reduced intercity bus fares and purchases of new buses would produce insignificant energy savings.

But backers of the Senate committee's bill say the full package would reduce U.S. dependence on imported oil by 2.12 million barrels per day by 1985. The measure already passed by the House would reduce consumption by 1.7 million to 2.5 million barrels, mainly by making gasoline, natural gas and boiler fuel more expensive and by imposing a stiff tax on inefficient automobiles.

As proposed by Carter, the taxes would have been felt by virtually all consumers. But the President proposed that a big share of the taxes be returned to Americans through the income tax system.

Most of the tax cuts proposed by the Senate committee would go to businesses, industries and utilities to help them save energy and to help pay the costs of reducing their use of oil and natural gas.

The biggest tax break would allow the federal government to pay half the costs incurred by plants in converting their oil- or coal-fired boilers to coal or other fuel.

The measure also would offer tax credits totaling $3 billion by 1985 for production of energy from exotic sources, such as oil from shale rock and natural gas from ocean brine.

For individuals, the Senate bill would contain a tax cut of up to $400 for a person who buys insulation and other energy-saving devices for his home or apartment, and a credit of up to $2,200 for installing solar heat.

An effort is expected to be made in the Senate to eliminate the present federal income tax deduction allowed for state and local gasoline taxes.

Hospital Releases Frank Fontaine

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Entertainer Frank Fontaine is going home to Boston after five weeks in a hospital where he has been recovering from a heart attack.

Fontaine played the character of Crazy Guggenheim on the old Jackie Gleason show.

Mount Carmel East Hospital officials said this week that Fontaine, 57, was in satisfactory condition, and would be released to fly home for further convalescence.

DR. LAMB

No Sign For Heart Attack

BY LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I can't seem to get the answer to my questions. I am a male, 67, 175 pounds and 5 feet 8. I have never been in a hospital until two weeks ago and in general have had excellent health; I don't use coffee, liquor or tobacco.

Recently I felt a numbness in my arm, so I had a complete physical, brain wave tracing, electrocardiogram and the works. I was told I was in excellent health and nothing was amiss.

One day after receiving this report I suffered a heart attack and am waiting to learn if I will need a bypass operation.

Wouldn't some phase of this complete physical examination indicate some warning of a clot formation?

What warning sign might be looked for in case of a future attack? Apparently numbness is not sufficient.

DEAR READER—"I think I've heard that song before." Many people don't seem to realize that heart disease is a "silent killer." You may not have a single symptom, even numbness, before the heart attack strikes. An apparently healthy man in his middle 40s may suddenly crumple over with chest pain and be dead in minutes. That is why people simply must have a preventive program. When the first sign or symptom is an attack causing death, it is too late to do anything about it.

Also it doesn't make any difference what or who is at the hospital if you are dead on arrival. The best doctors and facilities in the world will not help then.

The frequency of this problem is why I recommend that all adults should learn how to aid a victim of heart attack. You simply do not know when it is going to happen, even after a good medical examination. When a major portion of a population learns what to do the death rate can be cut in half as has occurred in Seattle, Wash. I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-4, Save A Life: Heart and Lung Arrest, so you can learn more about this.

More to the point, encourage someone around you to learn how, as it might save your life.

Others who want this issue outlining this method can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Avalanche Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. I would also encourage all of my readers to contact their nearest chapter of the American Heart Association and find out if they have any courses they can take in learning how to do this procedure.

Numbness of the arm can be caused by many things, including neuritis and arthritis. Heart pain is more apt to be of short duration, unless it is an actual attack. The disease is actually in the artery going to the heart muscle. There is no way to see these arteries unless you do special X-ray examinations of the type I presume you will have to see whether you need a bypass operation. The pain and findings of a heart attack are caused when the heart muscle is not getting enough blood. That may not occur until the moment that the artery is blocked.

Exercise tests with electrocardiograms help to detect those likely to have trouble. Otherwise the risk factors of increased blood cholesterol, high blood pressure and cigarette smoking are the main things that indicate the possibility of having an at-

Prices Boosted To Regulate Fuel Supplies

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — An energy crisis says Japan has been able to regulate its supplies of gasoline by boosting the price of the pump to $1.50 per gallon.

Professor Yoshinori Yokoi of Nagasaki University in Japan said his government relied on cost factors to regulate consumption. "We are now on that standard," said Yokoi.

Yokoi, who spoke at a Colorado University energy conference, also said he doubted the feasibility of Japan's plan to draw 13 percent of its energy from nuclear plants by 1985. He said the Japanese were "nervous about nuclear safety."

In an earlier speech, an official of the Ministry of Petroleum and Mineral Resources in Saudi Arabia said President Carter had done a good job with his energy proposals to Congress.

"If Carter has done nothing but to make the United States people aware of the energy problem, he has done much," said M.A. Hassanali.

Woman Joins Husband As Truck Driver

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Two years ago, Jackie Tisch couldn't drive a stick-shift car. Now she's with her husband, driving a 42-foot tractor-trailer cross-country.

"I was tired of my job and I hated being separated from my husband days at a time," says Mrs. Tisch, 29, who had been a dental assistant for six years.

"Larry borrowed a truck from a dealer and taught me to drive. We would go to a football stadium up north where I drove around and around in a snow-packed field until I mastered the gears," she says.

She took her chauffeurs' test, passed and joined her husband at the wheel.

They sold their home and furniture and bought a $52,000 refrigerated rig that Mrs. Tisch says "was worth twice as much as our home."

They now live in the truck.

"It's not as bad as it sounds," she says. "We had plenty of room for three large pieces of luggage, a train case and two sets of golf clubs."

They have a double-wide sleeper behind the cab, a stereo, television set, radio and CB set.

They aim for 1,000 miles a day and travel mostly interstate highways at nights when they can make the best time.

The only problem, she says, is food.

"All menus look the same after a couple of days on the road. Have you ever heard a place with a bunch of trucks in front of it is a good place to eat? Don't believe it. Truckers are there because there's room to park, food service is fast and they gas up there."

What about spats?

"Oh, we have lots of fights," says Mrs. Tisch. "When I get mad, I just go in the other room and pout." That's the double bunk, arm's length from the cab.

Tisch, 31, says he, too, likes the setup. "It's has enough to get along with your wife for 24 hours a day. But it's impossible to get along with another man for that long."

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International Today is Tuesday, Oct. 25, the 298th day of 1977 with 67 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mars, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Mercury.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio.

American polar explorer Richard Evelyn Byrd was born Oct. 25, 1888. This is Australian singer Helen Reddy's 35th birthday.

On this day in history:

In 1854, in the "Charge of the Light Brigade," some 670 British cavalymen fighting in the Crimean War attacked a heavily fortified Russian position and were wiped out.

In 1971, the United Nations admitted Communist China to membership and ousted Nationalist China.

In 1973, President Nixon, under increasingly heavy fire for the Watergate cover-up, attacked the American news media for what he called "hysterical, vicious" reporting.

In 1975, roaming gangs of gunmen spread terror and death in wide sections of Beirut, Lebanon, as warring increased between right-wing Christian and left-wing Moslem militias.

A thought for the day: American writer-Henry David Thoreau said, "It takes two to speak the truth... one to speak and another to hear."

THINKING OF 1980 — Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., pictured in his Capitol office, is taking an early interest in the 1980 campaign for the White House. "I would be less than honest if I said I didn't know 1980 was coming up," Dole commented in an interview. (AP Laserphoto)

Dole Thinking Ahead To 1980

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Dole, flying to speaking engagements around the country and moving to the forefront of the Panama Canal treaty controversy, acts like he's still Gerald Ford's running mate.

"But Dole, no longer interested in being anyone's No. 2, is thinking of 1980 and a run for the White House.

"I'd be less than honest if I said I didn't know 1980 was coming up," the Kansas senator commented in an interview in his Senate office.

"We've been active, I can't deny that," he says when asked what he's up to.

With public opinion polls showing President Carter could be vulnerable, Dole is one of several Republicans showing an unusually early interest in the race.

He's been in the forefront of the Panama Canal issue and has taken strong, early stands opposing aid to Vietnam and normalizing relations with Cuba.

Although he's not a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, he has used his hearings on the treaty as a platform for his views.

Dole says he wants to clarify the language of the Panama Canal treaty, but does not want to defeat it.

He sparked Senate debate over the defense provisions of the treaty with his Oct. 4 release of a confidential cable from the U.S. embassy in Panama to Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

The cable contained a warning from Panamanian negotiators that U.S. leaders should refrain from saying the treaty guaranteed the right to intervene in the event of war after the year 2000, when Panama is due to take control of the canal.

Nine days later, Dole charged that members of Panamanian head of state Omar Torrijos' family had been implicated in drug trafficking, a charge that was confirmed by the federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

Since January, Dole has made nearly 150 appearances in 24 states, Puerto Rico and Israel. And hardly a week goes by without a position paper coming from his office.

He suddenly has emerged as one of the most visible senators in the fight to alter the treaty, staking out a more moderate position than such opponents as Republican Sens. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, Jesse Helms of North Carolina and Paul Laxalt of Nevada.

As the ranking Republican on the Senate Agriculture Committee, Dole has a forum for maintaining that the administration is responsible for declining farm income.

And as a member of the Senate Finance Committee, the panel with jurisdiction over Carter's energy tax, welfare reform and Social Security proposals, Dole has another forum for speaking out on major domestic issues.

Not a bad spot for a senator with White House ambitions.

With Carter coming under increasing criticism from the American Jewish community for what is perceived as a policy tilt toward the Arab viewpoint in the Middle East, Dole is emerging as a strong supporter of Israel.

While Dole looks like a man who's running hard, it's still a couple of years too early to declare a presidential candidacy.

A lot of questions need answering before Dole or other Republican hopefuls are ready to challenge the Democratic President.

Among those questions is whether Carter can be beaten in 1980.

"If you looked at it today, you'd have to say he's vulnerable, and he hasn't even had a crisis," Dole says.

But he knows that situation could change rapidly. A year from now, the signs will be a little more reliable.

"If Carter does poorly next year, Republicans should do well in the November elections, which would give them a better chance in 1980," he said.

But it's three years before Election Day, 1980, much too soon for anyone to declare a presidential candidacy.

"Everybody disclaims any interest in the nomination," Dole said, "while they're boarding the plane for the speaking engagement."

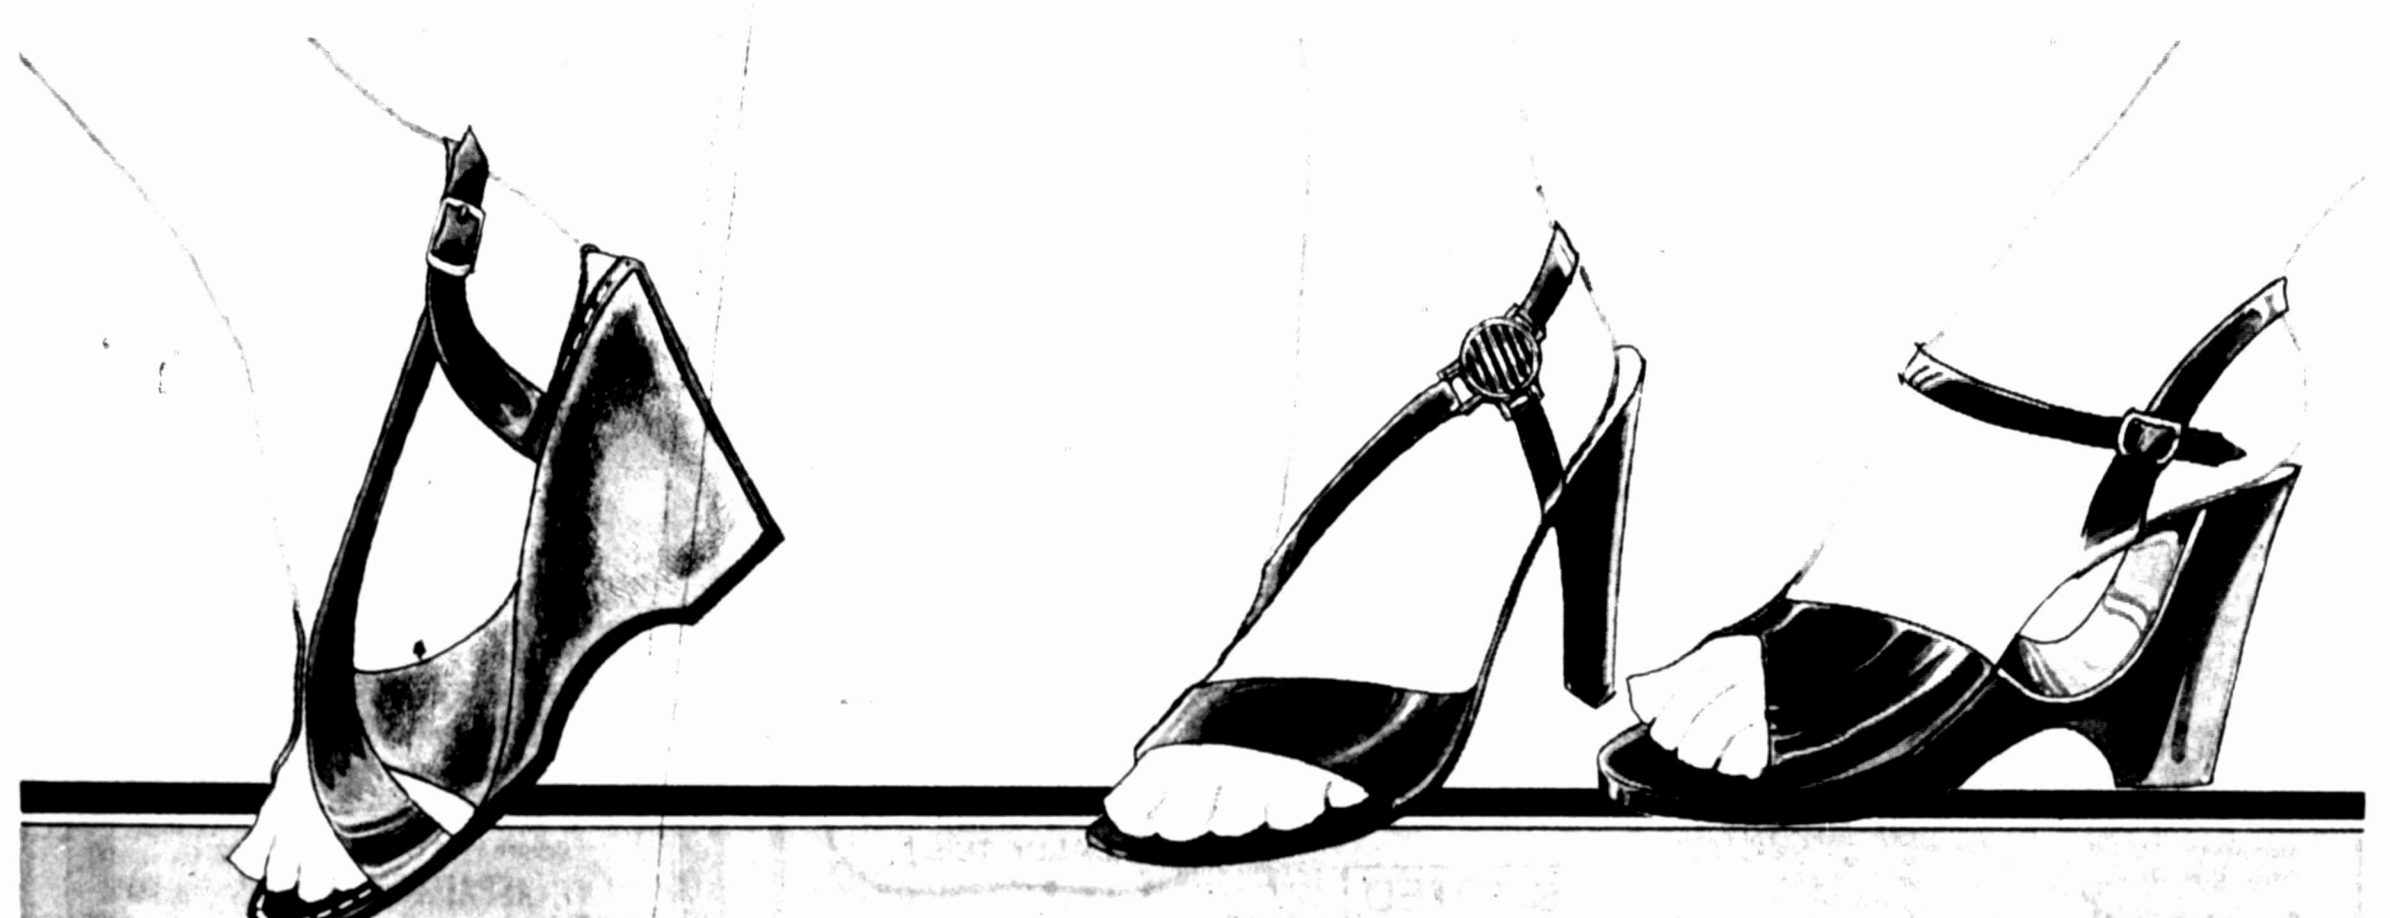

And Dole has problems, including a feeling among some Republicans that Ford would be president today if he had chosen a less abrasive running mate.

Looking back on his role as the gut fighter on the GOP ticket, Dole contends the Republicans did well in the states where he campaigned.

And Dole is quick to note that he and Ford began far behind Carter in most polls, but ended up carrying 27 states.

As for his campaign style, Dole commented, "When you're running for vice president, you do what you're told."

Many observers doubt that Ford wants to make another run for the presidency. Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan may try, as might Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee and Sens. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut and Charles Percy of Illinois, and Gov. James Thompson of Illinois.

Revisions Advised For Court

By KIM HOVDEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A reduction in the Supreme Court case load and additional judges for the high court were recommended by the head of the American Civil Liberties Union in a speech Monday at the Texas Tech Law School.

Dr. Norman Dorsen, national chairman of the ACLU, told about 100 law students and professors that more and more citizens are being denied access to federal courts.

Increasing the number of Supreme Court justices and reducing the number of cases they hear could be a possible remedy to the problem, Dorsen said.

He said an ACLU study group recently stated that the Supreme Court "has turned its back on the public. It has not just rejected claims, but has refused to recognize them at all."

Dorsen said the legal system today was working to shut off citizens' access to the federal courts, leaving them "without judicial remedies."

The ACLU currently is involved in several problem areas. Dorsen said, including courts which were "preventing people from getting the merits of their cases heard."

"We're (the ACLU) schizophrenic in that we are concerned with the rights of the individual and with guarding the civil rights of as many people as possible."

Dorsen said often cases brought by the ACLU before the Supreme Court do more harm than good because of the precedents they set.

He said the decisions may be beneficial to the person seeking the court's opinion but the nationwide implications of the decisions might be damaging. "You just have to use your best judgment. We're not infallible, we know we make mistakes," Dorsen said.

In a 10-step system of bringing the Supreme Court's problems to the public's attention and initiating reforms, Dorsen said he enlisted the aid of coalitionist groups, lawyers, the press and national figures like Griffin Bell and Gaylord Nelson.

Dorsen told the Avalanche-Journal he is "waiting eagerly to see what Carter would do if he got to make some appointments to the (Supreme) Court."

The ACLU chairman mentioned Carter's abortion policies and slowness with reform of intelligence agencies as the organization's biggest disappointments with the current administration.

Other areas which Dorsen said needed improvement were Carter's stand on women's rights and the criminal code.

In reference to a question concerning the Allan Bakke discrimination case now before the Supreme Court, Dorsen said he supports affirmative action programs at state schools in order to train minority groups to satisfy the needs of the community in law and medical professions.

Bakke's suit claims he was denied admission to the University of California at Davis Medical School solely because he was white.

Attorney Says Green Victim Of Conspiracy

PALESTINE (AP) — A defense attorney for an East Texas prosecutor facing disbarment proceedings says he will show that his client is a conspiracy victim.

And Waggoner Carr, representing District Attorney Bill Green, said Monday he will name the conspirators during the disbarment trial.

A six-man, six-woman jury was seated Monday to hear the case.

The State Bar of Texas initiated the action against Green after the district attorney was convicted of public lewdness in Austin. Green has appealed that conviction.

Carr, in comments during the examination of the jury panel, said he will prove that Green "is a victim of a conspiracy of influential people of this area who are trying to run him out of office."

Nacogdoches attorney David Adams, representing the State Bar, said he will attempt to show that Green committed three acts of misconduct.

He said the bar will show Green committed an act of public lewdness, aggravated perjury and escape when he allegedly ran from police in Austin.

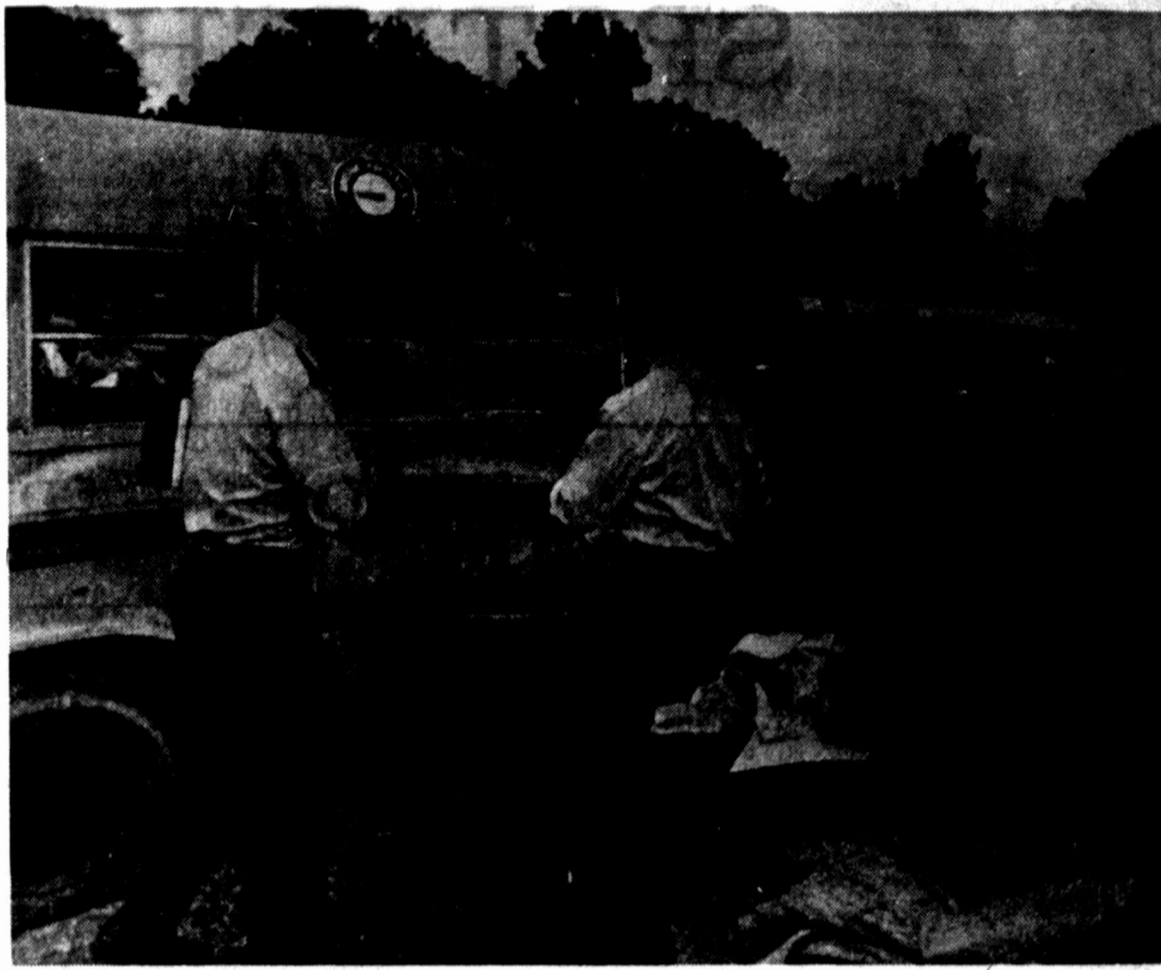

State District Judge Donald Carroll, Jr. heard pre-trial motions outside the presence of the jury panel Monday. He overruled a defense motion to quash the entire panel.

Tom McCorkle, one of Green's three attorneys, argued that the jury was improperly impeached because there was no sheriff or deputy present when names were drawn from a jury wheel.

Carroll said the jury will be sequestered, and he expects the case to be completed by Friday.

EDUCATORS TO MEET

AUSTIN (UPI) — More than 500 educators from public schools and universities are expected to attend the 30th annual Fall Conference on Teacher Education in Dallas Nov. 6-8. Theme for the meeting will be "Professional Decisions: Who Decides What for Whom?"

CRASHED BUS EXAMINED — Houston police and school officials examined a Houston school bus which was in collision with a City HouTran bus late Monday afternoon. The collision occurred in front of a hospital and passengers of the city bus carried most of the pupils into the hospital. Eight pupils remained hospitalized this morning. Frank Bivens, 11, one of the pupils, was reported in critical conditions with head injuries. Hospital officials said none of the other seven was in serious condition. None of the city bus passengers reported injuries. (AP Laserphoto)

Arena Action To Open At 31st Tech Rodeo

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Top notch arena action unfolds here Wednesday through Saturday as the 31st annual Texas Tech Intercollegiate Rodeo plays out in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Cowboys and cowgirls from 15 colleges and universities in Region 9 of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association will be taking on tough rodeo stock, each other and the clock for low times and high scores.

Points earned will count toward a share of the $100,000 in scholarship funds distributed to schools in the name of NIRA rodeo champions.

In the 1976-77 season Region 9 won the largest slice of the annual scholarship monies available from the U.S. Tobacco Co.

Of the $12,800 going to nine schools in the region $4,700 went to Howard County Junior College, $2,700 to New Mexico State University, $1,600 to Tarleton State University, $1,400 Texas Tech, $1,100 to Western Texas College, $500 to Northwest Texas State College, $500 to Sul Ross University, $200 to Eastern New Mexico University and $100 to Ranger Junior College.

Scholarship money is presented to schools in the names of regional and national winners in bull riding, bronc riding, steer wrestling, calf roping, team roping, girls' barrel racing, girls' goat tying and girls' breakaway roping.

Funds are used for education of a participant in the institution's rodeo program.

Regional awards are $500 each for six men's and three women's events in addition to $1,000 for top men's team and $500 for the top women's team.

After national finals were played off, $1,000 went to Howard County in the name of Jack Himes bareback bronc champion and to Western Texas College in the name of Joan Whitehead as barrel racing champion.

Similar amounts were won for their schools by Sid Morrow of New Mexico State University in saddle bronc and Steve Fryar of Tarleton in steer wrestling.

Contestants in the Tech event will be appearing in the new look of Tech rodeo with stock producer, Harry Vold of Avondale, Colo., managing the entire production to ease the rodeo through a financial bind.

Bob Romer of Canyon will be rodeo clown with Hub Hubbell of Sarasota, Fla., the announcer.

The Abernathy Riding Club will furnish special pageantry which replaces the traditional grand entry and the Francisco Zamoras will fill the entertainment spotlight for two performances each night.

Wednesday is family bargain night with $3 buying any seat in the house on a non-reserved status. Tickets from Thursday on will be $5.50, $4.50 and $3.50 with $1 off for those 12 and under.

Rodeo time is 7:30 p.m.

Paper Ballots Called Illegal

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"Lubbock County, sad to say, has long conducted its elections in a lax manner which has not, even in the most cursory way, paid respect to the laws of Texas which require secrecy of the ballot."

"Through this lax attitude, Lubbock County has opened its elections to future charges of unfairness, dishonesty, coercion and all the other dangers inherent in these present days of hotly contested elections. To allow the situation to continue is to court disaster."

With those words, the local League of Women Voters in a specially commissioned law brief warned top Lubbock County officials they'd better do something about voting practices here.

The brief, outlining alleged illegalities in the continued use of paper ballots and tabletop voting and urging the adoption of voting machines, was circulated rather quietly in 1973.

League officials say the document is still current, because nothing has changed — in the county's election arrangements or applicable law — since attorney Willis Taylor drafted the study.

The voters' group did not seek a showdown in court over the issues Taylor raised, in part because the league feared Lubbock County might remedy the situation simply by buying voting booths to go along with paper ballots, league president Carolyn Lanier said.

"We think Lubbock County can do better than that," she said. "The time is long overdue to get away from paper ballots altogether and use voting machines."

The county commissioners court will consider that matter at 9 a.m. Wednesday when it convenes for a demonstration of the "lever-type" automatic voting machines. After the demonstration, commissioners are expected to vote whether to take bids on a mechanical election system — of either the lever or punch-card variety.

"I'm very confident they will decide to go with some kind of voting machine," said Mrs. Lanier. "As for which system, the league has no preference. I think we'd be out of place to suggest that they choose one kind of machine over another."

The proposed punch-card system, at an investment of about $300,000 (or $200,000 should the county decide to contract with an outside firm for ballot-counting), is by far the less expensive system. Because of cost and easier storage and distribution, courthouse sources say the punch-card proposal probably has the edge.

However, proponents of the lever-type voting machines say their system is more durable, saves money on election supplies and causes fewer mistakes.

With the purchase of either system, Lubbock County commissioners will solve two disputes.

First, they will eliminate the use of paper ballots, which have been attacked as confusing and unwieldy, difficult and time-consuming to count, requiring too many election workers, and generally antiquated.

And — perhaps more importantly — commissioners will settle the issues raised in Taylor's brief.

The proposed election devices, punch-card or lever, come with built-in voting booths. Thus, local voters will no longer be marking their ballots on tabletops, a practice the League of Women Voters has questioned.

"While an election conducted without voting booths is not considered illegal and void per se, it is indeed voidable and subject to attack if an injury or harm which could have been avoided by compliance with the law is found to exist," Taylor said.

He quoted state law and a 1964 opinion by the Texas attorney general that "it is the duty of the county election board to furnish voting booths for all polling places within each city of 10,000 population or more."

Taylor said, "It should be noted that Lubbock County's respect for the letter and spirit of the law is so lax that voting booths are not even provided as the legislature intended."

"By not following the legislature's direction in this matter, the county runs the very real risk of making itself subject to a writ of mandamus to compel it to follow the law and compel those empowered by law to conduct an election to follow their statutory duties."

"We live in the latter part of the 20th Century, a fact which would not be remarked upon except that it has been

Governor Endorses Proposed Changes

AUSTIN (UPI) — Proposals to tighten restrictions for release of accused criminals on bail and six other proposed constitutional amendments have been endorsed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

The proposed bail change would permit a judge to deny bail to a person — Charged with a felony offense who has been twice convicted of a felony.

— Charged with a felony while out on bail for a previous felony.

— Charged with a crime involving use of a deadly weapon when previously convicted of a felony.

— The amendment to provide discretionary denial of bail does not deprive a person of his constitutional right to bail but does make it potentially more difficult for repeat offenders, especially those who use deadly weapons, to get back on the street and prey on society," Briscoe said Monday.

"These are among the most dangerous criminals, and the courts should have wider discretion in dealing with them."

Briscoe said a proposed amendment to increase the size of the Court of Criminal Appeals to nine judges on the Nov. 8 ballot is designed to speed the appeals process in criminal cases.

The governor also endorsed proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution to:

— Rename and strengthen the Judicial Qualifications Commission as the State Commission on Judicial Conduct.

— Provide an additional $200 million in bonds for the Veterans Land Fund.

— Authorize tax relief to preserve cultural, historical or natural history resources.

— Allow formation of agricultural or marine associations with power to assess members to finance production research and marketing improvement efforts.

— Give the legislature power to authorize banks to use electronic devices at remote locations.

Legislator Wants Amendment Passed

AUSTIN (UPI) — A San Antonio legislator Monday urged Texas voters to approve on Nov. 8 a proposed constitutional amendment authorizing tax incentives to encourage preservation of historic properties.

Rep. Ron Bird, D-San Antonio, said the amendment would give local taxing authorities an opportunity to review each historical site individually and provide appropriate property tax relief.

"The decision to grant tax exemptions and the amount exempted will be totally in the hands of local officials," Bird said.

"Passage of this amendment would not give any property owner an automatic exemption."

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My husband works long hours (without overtime pay) in a position of importance with a large, nationally-known firm. He's had six years of college, but some of the men who operate machinery make more money than he does. This hurts.

For example, our neighbor never even finished high school. He does manual labor, but because he belongs to a union, he earns more and has more benefits than my husband. It doesn't seem fair that with all my husband's education he isn't able to give his family as much as some uneducated laborers.

I am not saying that common laborers should make less, but in a society screaming for youngsters to get an education, it's ironic that uneducated laborers should make more than college graduates. I hope you aren't too intimidated by big business to respond in your column.

Resentful

Dear Resentful: I understand your resentment, but perhaps those whom you label "common laborers" are skilled laborers in their field. Many men who have never seen the inside of a college (or high school) have a technical knowledge equal in importance to some college educations.

I, too, would like to see higher education bring greater rewards, but don't confuse a man's worth with his college education — or lack of it.

DEAR ABBY: May I air my pet peeve? It's people who invite guests to their home to play cards and then bring out decks of cards that are old and filthy.

To compound the insult, they moisten their fingers when they deal. Yech!

Candy

Dear Candy: You may "air" your pet peeve, but don't expect results until you direct your compliments to the offenders.

...

DEAR ABBY: I know you must get thousands of letters every day, so this will probably go unread and unanswered. It is really important, though, as I know lots of teenage girls my age with this problem. It might even help some of the boys who read it.

Whenever I walk down the street, boys in cars stop and honk, etc. Some of them are very nice and quite cute, but if a girl stops and talks to them, or goes for a ride with them, she gains a reputation as a pickup.

On the other hand, if she doesn't, the boys consider her a stuck-up-snob. Which would be better, to stop and be sociable, or to act like a snob?

Wants To Be Sociable

Dear Wants: One of the first things a mother teaches a little girl who is old enough to walk down the street alone is, "Don't talk to strangers or ever get into a car with one!"

Whether the girl is 6 to 16, the advice is still good. To refuse invitations to socialize from strangers in automobiles is not snobbish, it's sensible.

BY CHARLES H. GOREN

At the end of the play of this hand, East gave declarer some suspicious looks. There was no need for that — declarer had simply taken the best line available.

The bidding was unremarkable. After East interjected a one spade overcall, South bid the limit of his hand.

West led the eight of spades and declarer won the ace. His first play from dummy was the ace of clubs, and when the king dropped, the hand was over.

There might be some among our readers who think that South was just plain lucky and that the correct way to tackle the club suit, in view of the overcall, was to lead low to the queen. We don't like to disillusion you, but despite anything that might be said to the contrary, declarer's line of play was winning technique and not blind chance. Let us look at the hand from declarer's angle.

When dummy came down, declarer saw immediately that he could not lose his contract if East held the ace of hearts—he would have to give up only one heart trick and one club. But what if West had the ace of hearts?

In that case, declarer might still be able to set up the club suit for a heart discard. He could accomplish that if the suit broke no worse than 4-2 and if East did not hold the king of clubs. Dummy's trumps would serve as entries to ruff out the clubs and cash the long club for the heart sluff.

If East did hold the king of clubs, and West that ace of hearts, declarer was a goner except in one unlikely event — that East's king of clubs was singleton. So cashing the ace was safety play which actually gave declarer several extra chances to bring home his contract. For instance, it would also succeed if East held a singleton jack of clubs.

Bridal Courtesies

DIANE PUSSER

Diane Pusser, bride-elect of Andy Nazario, was honored with a miscellaneous shower Thursday in the home of Mrs. Leon Cox.

Special guests included the mothers of the couple, Mrs. Charles Pusser and Mrs. Pete Nazario.

The couple plans to be married Nov. 18 in 25th Street Baptist Church.

INFORMAL DINING — In more formal circles, this would be the dining end of the living room; in the cheerfully informal household of the Danish architect-builder who designed it, it's as likely to be treated as the dining end of the kitchen. However you look at it, it's an appetizing sight, with its long refectory table, sturdy old chairs and a plushy, boldly patterned rug.

Personnel Officer's Report Says Role Stereotypes Hinder Women's Progress

By PATRICIA McCormack
United Press International

Daniel A. Volk, personnel officer in corporations for more than 20 years, may one day be declared a champion of women's rights.

"I have observed during my personnel career that women with the same education, intelligence and cultural backgrounds do not progress and succeed as readily as men with comparable qualifications," the banker and gentleman from Richmond, Va., said.

That makes him a booster for women in business.

Polk does his saying in print — where it can't be squashed. The Journal of the National Association of Bank Women.

His report suggests sex role stereotyping holds women back. Polk participated in two association seminars for the male manager.

Each seminar, he recalls, opened new vistas on the topic: Women in corporation.

"From the discussions among male participants it became obvious to me that each of us has developed to varying degrees the same stereotyped concept of the woman's role in life," he said.

"These attitudes, while in no way intended to be degrading to the women in our lives, circumscribe boundaries within which we have come to expect our women to conduct their lives — in large measure for the benefit of their male partners and children."

The trouble for women, it appears to Polk, is that the boundaries have not typically been viewed to include any substantive role in the business world. Polk said an exercise he conducted during one seminar gave plenty of proof. The experiment got underway when Polk divided his group into two sections. One group was asked to list adjectives descriptive of a good manager. The second group was asked to list adjectives descriptive of the ideal woman. Adjectives listed by the two groups follow.

Good Manager: Intelligent, aggressive, objective, decisive, reliable, flexible, motivated, pressurized, sensitive, responsible, trustworthy, considerate, imaginative, goal-oriented.

The Ideal Woman: Attractive, wealthy, educated, supportive, flexible, intelligent, mature, tolerant, decisive, open-minded, frugal, loving, gentle, softspoken, good conversationalist.

Only three of the adjectives assigned to the ideal woman were included in the list descriptive of a good manager: flexible, intelligent and decisive. "If the male perception of a 'good manager' is factually correct, then it is not difficult to see why the average male does not view the 'ideal woman' as a candidate for management," Polk said.

"Yet, when one considers a few statistics shared during the seminar, it appears that men have not been as successful in coping with management stresses in the business world as we would like to think. "And we should not be so quick to conclude that women may not be so good in this field."

Polk, a senior vice president at First and Merchants Corp., in Richmond, said the proof men aren't so good at handling the stress includes statistics on longevity.

In 1850 both men and women in the United States had a life expectancy of 40. By 1975, the life expectancy for females had gone up 88 per cent, to 75. For males, life expectancy went up to 68, only 70 per cent of the 1850 figure. And in 21 countries, males live longer than they do in the U.S.

What about brains?
Do men really have the intellectual edge? Polk raised that question in his report. He answered it as follows:

"If one of the most important attributes of a good manager is intelligence (also a desirable attribute of the ideal woman) then one must consider with some alarm the fact that by the end of the sixth grade, 73 per cent of those children with learning difficulties will be boys.

"Thus, it would appear that at this stage in life, females have the edge in terms of the intellectual capacity so essential for success in the business world.

"Why is it then that when women reach the working age, they do not appear to be as well equipped for business as their male counterparts?"

Varied Program Set For Christian Women's Luncheon

"ULTRASUEDE the Ultimate" will be the special feature theme for the meeting of the Lubbock Christian Women's Club at 11:30 a.m. Nov. 1 at Lubbock Country Club.

Mrs. Tommy Fondren, a Lubbock sewing instructor, will present models and demonstrate techniques for sewing ULTRASUEDE fabric, as well as give suggestions for its care. Mrs. Fondren is shown at the center of the photograph discussing with Mrs. Jack B. Price, left, and Mrs. Sam Kelsey the ULTRASUEDE garments they are wearing.

Special music will be provided by Mrs. Ronnie Parsons.

Guest speaker for the luncheon will be Mrs. George Ervin from Abilene, a frequent speaker for Christian Women's Clubs, who will share her perspective as a homemaker.

Cost for the luncheon is $4.25; for reservations call 795-8837 or 744-0651 by Friday. Luncheon cancellations must be made by Saturday. Child care reservations may be made by calling 745-5719; cost is $1 per family.

A prayer coffee will be given at 10 a.m. Thursday in the home of Mrs. Arnold Maeker, at 2110 Vicksburg.

All meetings of Lubbock Christian Women's Clubs are open to any interested women, and there are no dues or membership requirements.

Based on his personal experience, Polk believes that what's happened to women due to subtle cultural biases.

To wit:

— Boys are brought up to be aggressive, to compete.

— Girls are expected to be feminine, not pushy.

— Cultural-conditioning, behind the times, holds that women are not out there working due to necessity whereas men are. Statistics show this an erroneous assumption.

If you are raising a daughter, what course should you take?

Polk said it is more than coincidence that women who have achieved high level positions have enjoyed family relationships akin to those frequently experienced by boys.

In the book, "The Managerial Woman," based on a study of 25 women who by 1970 had reached top management levels, this point was made.

"Fathers and daughters shared interests and activities traditionally regarded as appropriate only for fathers and sons: physical activity, the acquisition of outdoor skills, an aggressive wish to achieve and finally a willingness to compete."

Statistics show women need meaningful and challenging work opportunities on as long term a basis as men.

The nation's 37 million employed women made up about 40 percent of the work force in 1975. Forty-two per cent were single, widowed, divorced or separated. They worked out of necessity, not just to supplement a husband's income. Many of the married working women work also out of need.

Another argument for equipping women for the world of business: women spend an average of 25 years in the labor force.

Polk says his mind is open on the role of women in business. He describes himself as sensitive to woman's need for achievement and fulfillment and, if need be, their ability to compete with men in business on a fully equal basis — given the same qualifications in terms of education and experience.

Creating Pretzel House For Halloween Keeps 'Little Hands' Busy

If you are looking for a real treat to keep the Halloween goblins happy, this pretzel candy house will surely do the trick.

A colorful centerpiece for a Halloween party, this appetizing house will also delight the stream of spooky visitors who may come knocking at your door. And the tray or bowl of tasty treats that they have come to loot can be filled with the same assortments of candies and pretzels that are needed to build the house.

The silo and sheaves of grain are also a reminder that Halloween is the eve of All Saints Day, a day of feasting and giving thanks for a bountiful harvest. In fact, the pretzel candy house can be a feast in itself when Halloween is over.

HALLOWEEN PRETZEL HOUSE

- 2 empty one-pound cans
- Cardboard or stiff poster board
- Tape
- 16 inch round of stiff cardboard
- Pretzels: sticks, rings, nuggets, tiny twist pretzels
- Candies: gumdrops, pillow mints, jelly rings, green spearmint leaves, chocolate kisses, round red and white peppermint candies
- Decorator's frosting (recipe below)

From the cardboard or poster board, cut the following pieces for the house and silo:

- the silo roof: 1 6-inch diameter circle with a cut from the edge to the center
- the house roof: one 10-inch x 8 1/2-inch piece, folded in half on 10-inch side
- the sides: two 5-inch x 8 1/2-inch pieces
- the ends: two 5-inch x 8-inch pieces trimmed to form a peak for the roof, as shown in the diagram.

To make the silo, place one can on top of the other and tape together evenly. Using the 6 inch circle with the slit, overlap the edges of the cut to shape a shallow cone-roof. Tape in place. (Use as much tape as you need to make construction solid — the frosting and decorations will hide all this).

Tape the house together. Begin by taping walls together, then the roof. Position the house and silo on the 16-inch cardboard circle and tape securely in place.

Prepare decorator's frosting (below). Keep it covered when not in use so it won't dry out.

Beginning with the silo, spread a thin layer of the frosting on all surfaces. Starting at the bottom, press a vertical row of pretzel sticks firmly into the frosting. Continue until sides are covered. Arrange pretzel sticks on roof to make a "thatched" effect. Trim outer edges of roof with colorful gumdrops.

Spread sides and ends of house with a thin layer of frosting. Use pretzel nuggets to form a door, and position pretzel rings on front, back and sides to form windows (two to a side is effective). Press a vertical row of pretzel sticks around all four sides. Break sticks when necessary, to fit around windows and door. Push pillow mints into the exposed frosting on the four sides above the pretzel sticks and up to the roof line or gumdrops can be used to top-off the pillow mints.

Spread a thin layer of frosting on the roof. Use pretzel sticks to line the edges and peak. Press rows of pretzel rings on both sides of the roof. Press one red and white peppermint candy into each ring.

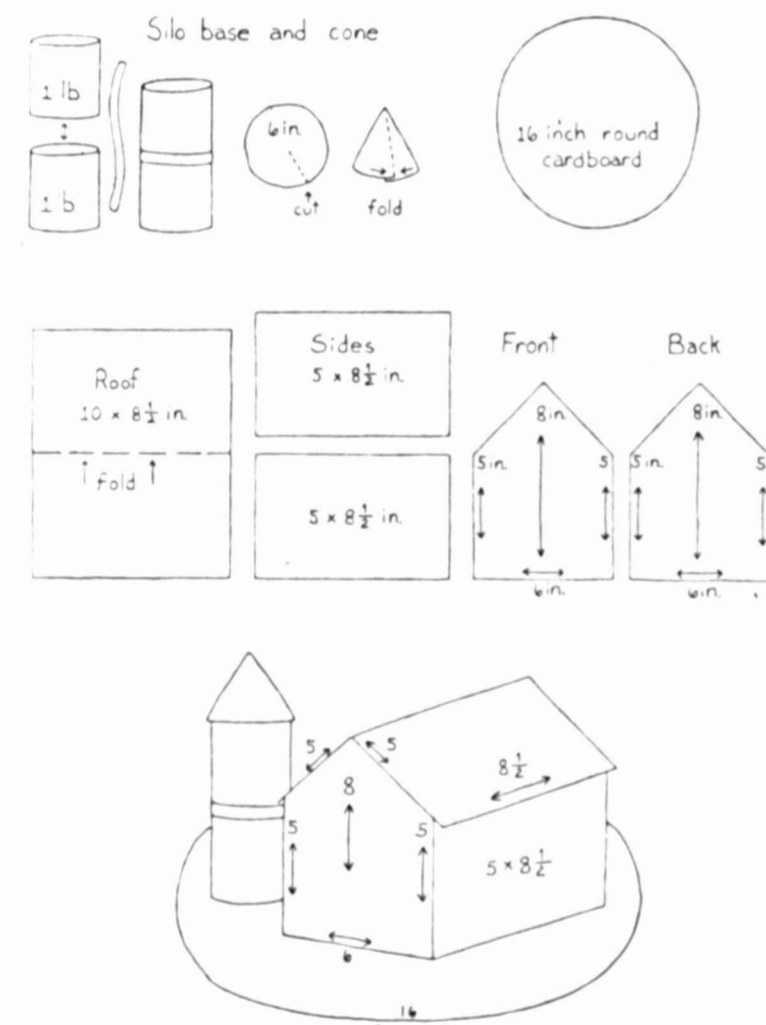

Finally, spread frosting to the edges of the cardboard "ground" and cover it with tiny twist pretzels. Decorate the edges of the circle with spearmint leaves and chocolate kisses (a dab of frosting can be used on each kiss to make it stick). Decorate the foundations of the house (where it meets the "ground") with gumdrops.

For an extra, push several pretzel sticks into jelly rings to resemble sheaves of grain and place them next to the silo.

Your Halloween harvest treat is ready! Makes 1 house and silo.

DECORATOR'S FROSTING

- 2/3 cup egg whites
- 2 lbs. sifted confectioners sugar
- Beat egg whites with half of the sugar. Gradually beat in the remaining sugar. Continue beating until mixture stands in stiff peaks.

Clip 'n' Cook

FIRST PRODUCT

Pork was the main product of America's first meat packer, William Pynchon; and barreled pork was the basis of much of the flourishing export trade with the West Indies from Worcester, Massachusetts, before 1700. Later, at the time the covered wagons moved westward, hogs went with them, foraging for their own food. When the westward moving pioneers became settlers, they used the abundant Indian corn as feed for hogs. This is how the pork industry, as we know it today, was born.

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE

LONDON (AP) — Bankers, businessmen, brokers and secretaries are lying on a church floor once a week in the City of London financial district, learning how to cope with stress.

Leaving their coats in the pews and with pillows under their heads, the city gents and ladies sprawl for half an hour on their backs in St. Mary Woolnoth, responding to orders from physiotherapist Laura Mitchell to pull back their shoulders, spread their elbows, move their hands, turn their knees, point their feet and drop their jaws.

Prostrate bodies cover the green carpet in the central aisle and the red carpeted foot of the high altar.

Above the altar, inscribed with the biblical Ten Commandments, the Lord's Prayer and the Creed, seven carved, gilded cherubs gaze impassively down on the strange noontime scene.

"Nobody thinks it strange — all life is challenge and response," said the vicar, the Rev. Geoffrey C. Harding, an Anglican clergyman who introduced the coping-with-stress sessions as an addition to his weekly lectures on "Relax and Meditate."

"We get all kinds coming in, from assistant general managers to tea ladies," Harding, 67, said in an interview. "We don't charge anything. There is an offering plate at the door."

After one half-hour session, Jerry Palmer, 42, who works in the clearing department of a bank, said he took part "because I'm just at the beginning of the stress age. I used to feel tired at the end of every day after rushing about. My wife seemed to be in charge of me. After coming here I find I have no fear of anybody and I'm in complete control at work and at home."

As one of the recumbent 15 men and eight women on the church floor, Palmer heard Miss Mitchell intone: "Only three of you have open eyes. I have not told you to close them — your bodies are receiving so much relaxation that they have gone ahead of me."

Miss Mitchell, a gray-haired Scotswoman, said that she worked out her method of light physical exercises, most of which can be done at any time, after standard treatments failed for her when she collapsed in 1957 with neck and limb pains.

"I started by doing the opposite movement in each joint to counteract muscle tension and the relief was enormous," she said.

The vicar, whose 250-year-old church is on Lombard Street in the heart of London's banking and financial district, said his father was a doctor and his mother a nurse. "I have always been interested in the sick and in healing," he explained. "We lose 330 million working days every year in Britain through ill health, and two million adults need tranquilizers or other pills to keep going."

"The knowledge our visitors take away from this church they pass on to others and, because they found it in a church, perhaps they will also pass on something of Christian goodwill," he added.

French-born Laurette Lecomte-Peacock, 35, from Cannes, who works on a London financial newspaper, said she found it "quite appropriate" to have the sessions in a church, "because it has to do with healing."

"We are all working under stress to meet deadlines at my office," she said. "I think we ought to have such sessions there."

Investigation Ordered On School Ring Prices

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff
School Supt. Ed Irons said Monday he has asked his staff to investigate alleged discrepancies in the prices of class rings sold at Lubbock's five public high schools.

"We do plan to follow it up as a result of your article," Irons told The Avalanche-Journal. "If there are differences in ring prices from school to school — and they can't be attributed to the size, style or design of the individual rings — we want to know why."

Lubbock Independent School District trustees expressed surprise at claims that some local schools have been charged more than others for alma mater rings, as reported in Sunday's A-J.

"I've never heard of such a thing," said school board secretary Joan Ervin.

Board president Charles Waters said he wants more information on an administrative policy that forbids jewelers that do not hold an official high school ring contract, from advertising their rings in local student newspapers.

"That sounds like something the board should follow up on," he said.

School officials were responding to an A-J report on class ring arrangements here. In the article, Monterey High administrators said the company that sold rings at their school last year charged teenagers at other Lubbock high schools as much as $10 more for comparable class rings.

For example, they said, a boy's ring that sold for $65 at Monterey last year cost Coronado students $74.95.

Monterey officials said the alleged discrepancies are the result of different business practices used by local schools in negotiating for ring contracts. They said Monterey takes bids and awards a firm, long-term contract for its class rings account, while other schools do not.

Representatives for the company that supplies rings at Lubbock high schools deny the alleged price differences and insist all schools are treated the same.

Irons said he was unaware of any discrepancies in ring prices. "I thought the prices were the same all over the school system. We do plan to look into the situation," he said.

School trustee Jose Ramirez was "very concerned" about the report, especially about the effect of the alleged price differences on schools in low-income areas, such as Estacado, Dunbar and Lubbock High.

"If it (the report) is true, then the students who can least afford it are paying the higher prices for rings," Ramirez said.

Besides carrying Monterey officials' claims of ring price variances, the Sunday A-J article told of a school district policy that prevents competing jewelers from advertising class rings in student newspapers.

Journalism and publications sponsors at a number of high schools said the policy has cost them money because some jewelers, barred from placing ads for their class rings, refuse to advertise any of their products in student papers.

The policy was established long ago by the school district administration, not the school board. Administrators said the rule was designed to emphasize the fact that only one company — the firm holding the high school's contract — makes the school's "official" class ring.

By ensuring a good market for the official ring, they said, the jeweler with the contract can keep his prices low. Also, they said, the official jeweler can provide rings at a lower cost than smaller competing firms, and administrators do not want students to be influenced into paying higher prices.

Local jewelers, however, do not accept that argument. A representative for Anderson Bros., denied an ad in a local student newspaper recently, said many students may want to buy from a competing jeweler for reasons of quality or service.

He said Anderson Bros. was willing to state in its ad that it does not sell the "official" school ring, but that the company was prevented from placing an advertisement anyway.

PRESENTS BIBLE — Marika Batmans, 10, deaf since birth, presented a Bible to Prince Charles Monday during his tour of the Saks store in Houston. Marika welcomed the Prince in the name of the deaf children of the city of Houston. The Bible gift relates to Charles' grandmother, the late Princess Alice, also born deaf. Princess Alice read to him from the Bible in the gardens of Buckingham Palace. (AP Laserphoto)

Mark White Claims Opponent Relies On Name Identification

By PAT PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Attorney general candidate Mark White Monday accused his opponent in that contest of trying to trick his way into office.

"My opponent (Price Daniel Jr.), I frankly believe, wouldn't be in the race if it hadn't been for the fiasco of the Yarborough situation," declared White, on the stump in Lubbock.

Daniel, former Texas House speaker, is the son of former Gov. Price Daniel, now an associate justice on the state Supreme Court.

The younger Daniel has said he thinks name identification will play a large part in the attorney general's race next year.

"Two years ago, because of misidentification," Texans elected Don Yarborough to the Texas Supreme Court, apparently linking him in their minds with the popular former Sen. Ralph Yarborough, White hinted.

"My opponent has tried to duplicate that feat" but "the people of Texas are not going to be fooled twice," he said.

Yarborough resigned his court seat in July amid a swirl of controversy, including forgery and perjury indictments, a dozen or so civil suits and State Bar attempts to disbar him for 100 alleged improper acts.

White said he intends to make sure the public knows who it is voting for and what the candidates' philosophies of government and records in office are.

He predicted those two areas will make him the winner in the May Democratic primary.

Daniel takes a "more government" approach and pushed for a new state constitution that meant "an assumption of more power in Austin" at the expense of local government, White said.

He claimed that Daniel's record as House speaker shows a "lack of leadership."

"In all likelihood, he'll do just about as well" in any other office he is elected to, White said of Daniel.

On the other hand, he declared his near five-year stint as Secretary of State and three years as assistant attorney general depicts a record of decisive action that helped Texans.

He pointed to a streamlined election code, statewide voter registration drive that resulted in a record 6.3 million persons registered for the 1976 election, consumer protection investigation into "unscrupulous" interest rates and efforts to make the secretary of state's office more accessible to citizens, such as installation of a toll-free long distance call line.

White labeled himself as "much more conservative" than Daniel, whom he charged "has associated himself with the far left in this state."

The 37-year-old Houston lawyer said it is "too early to lay out a campaign platform in detail, but he commented that he will be a strong "law and order" man if elected attorney general.

Strict law enforcement is "imperative" for an orderly society, while law enforcement breeds further law-breaking, he said.

He voiced support for "shock probation" which allows a judge or jury to sentence a young offender to a short time in prison and then to probate the rest of his term, rather than having to hand him either an all-prison or all-probation sentence.

Giving young offenders a "taste" of what prison is like, without subjecting them to several years of the "dehumanizing" and possibly brutalizing atmosphere of the penitentiary, can make a difference in future conduct, White indicated.

He also pushed for the constitutional amendment which Texans will vote on next month that would allow judges more latitude in denying bail to persons already facing felony charges.

Law-abiding citizens must be protected from criminals, White said.

"If it takes more jails, build them. It's cheaper to have them in there than to have them running loose on the streets," he stated.

White said that if elected he would like to put together a special team of criminal prosecutors available, on request, to help local district attorneys with particularly difficult cases.

White also said he would try to be the kind of attorney general who keeps the state out of court.

"The State of Texas can put more emphasis on advising the different state agencies... on how to conduct their affairs so as to not get involved in lawsuits," he said.

"This will save taxpayers litigation money and agencies time that should be spent on serving citizens," he went on.

White, appointed secretary of state in January, 1973, resigned from the post last week when he announced he would seek to replace Atty. Gen. John Hill, who is running for governor.

He said he did so because the secretary of state is the chief election officer in Texas.

He said it "would be wrong to be campaigning for political office and hold the position of referee."

"I couldn't be referee for an election and still be a participant on the field," he said.

Wichita Commissioners To Discuss State Check

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Wichita County Commissioners were to meet with County Treasurer Helen Kollman today to discuss her refusal to issue a $48,925 repayment check to a state agency.

The Governor's Criminal Justice Division (CJD) claims the county owes the money as a refund on a grant that was allegedly misused.

County officials, except Mrs. Kollman, have agreed to pay back the grant. The treasurer maintains the department that allegedly misused the funds should repay the CJD — rather than taking the money from general taxpayer funds.

The grant was issued to the county's Family Court Services division in 1975. The CJD subsequently charged the county with the funds outside the grant guidelines. Family Court Services administrator Howard Large has denied misuse of the funds.

Joe Gowdy, county auditor when the controversy first arose, refused to meet the Criminal Justice Division's demands for repayment Gowdy retired in May and filed a federal civil suit in connection with the demand for repayment.

U.S. District Judge Robert Hill of Dallas dismissed the suit late in September. He said the federal court lacked jurisdiction in the matter and added there was no real controversy involved.

But the controversy continued in Wichita County.

When Hill's ruling was made, county officials agreed to pay the CJD the full amount of the grant Francis Stower, who replaced Gowdy as auditor, sent the CJD a check for the $48,925.

But until Mrs. Kollman sends the bank that handles Wichita County funds her own authorization to honor the check, the CJD won't get its money.

Wichita County Judge Hank Anderson has threatened to take Mrs. Kollman to court if she doesn't comply with the county's request.

Commission Trims Gas Rate Boosts

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Railroad Commission has acted to trim the rate increases Brazos River Gas Co. began charging Weatherford customers Nov. 1, 1976.

The three-man commission approved a plan that will peg rates for a customer who uses 10,000 cubic feet of natural gas a month at $27. Weatherford residents had been paying $29 for 10,000 cubic feet for the past year. Previously the rate was $21.56.

Charles Successfully 'Flies' Shuttle Simulator At NASA

HOUSTON (UPI) — Prince Charles nervously took the pilot's chair in a space shuttle simulator, listened carefully to instructions and then "flew" two landings that won him praise as a quick learner.

The Johnson Space Center simulator stop was one of several the heir to the British throne made in the Bayou City Monday. The prince will see the real shuttle fly Wednesday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

"He was a little nervous. I think, the first time through," said the prince's press secretary, John Dauth. "He asked the pilot (Fred Haise) to take him through it."

Haise did so. Then the prince, a trained pilot, flew two landings, experiencing the feel of an actual space shuttle flight. He emerged smiling.

"They told him he'd done it better than anyone the first time," Dauth said afterward. "He was very pleased that he'd done it right and done it well."

Earlier, Charles, 28, toured exhibits in the space center museum, climbing aboard the lunar rover used to travel the moon's surface. He pronounced the used hardware, "marvelous, marvelous." Center Director Chris Kraft then led a tour of Mission Control and the Skylab workshop.

"He showed a great deal of interest," Kraft said. "He asked all the right questions. He's a flier, so I assume he would like very much to be an astronaut. Who wouldn't?"

The prince then wowed a crowd at Saks Fifth Avenue, a British-owned department store, and later attended Houston-London inaugural flight ceremonies at an airport, received an honorary degree and addressed a city-sponsored dinner.

Seeming a bit surprised at the crowd of thousands he attracted to Saks, he dutifully jammed his left hand in his conservative gray suit pocket and plunged in smiling, small-talking, shaking hands. He took a three-floor tour.

Tourists Tom and Jeane Andrus of Raleigh, N.C., were among those pleasantly surprised by a handshake and a royal word or two.

"He asked if I was going to take her to the intimate apparel department," laughed a stunned Andrus. "I told him that's next."

Betty Whitehead, an English native turned Texan, danced a jig after meeting the prince. She said, "I'd seen the others, but I had never seen him. He's charming."

On his last stop before tea in the Saks executive suite, Charles, whose grandmother Princess Alice was deaf from birth, stooped to receive a Bible from Marika Batmans, 10, of the Houston School for Deaf Children.

The prince was scheduled to travel to San Antonio today to tour the Alamo, walk the Riverwalk and attend a luncheon with Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe. Afterward, he was to fly to Los Angeles.

Hill Schedules TV Question Program

AUSTIN (UPI) — Attorney General John Hill will answer questions from voters during an hour long statewide television program Dec. 3, his campaign office has announced.

Five Paroles Revoked

AUSTIN — Five men convicted of crimes in the Lubbock area were back in state prison this week after their paroles were revoked.

They are:

- Carroll W. Follis — paroled in October, 1973, from a forgery sentence; revoked after receiving a new conviction.
- Harry E. Hamlin — paroled in July, 1976, from a sentence for sale of LSD; revoked for unsatisfactory adjustment.
- Billy Jackson — paroled April, 1977, from a robbery by firearms sentence; revoked for unsatisfactory adjustment.
- Wesley K. Smith — paroled October, 1976, from a burglary sentence; revoked after receiving a new conviction.
- Wayne G. Tyson — paroled December, 1974, from a theft over $50 sentence; revoked for unsatisfactory adjustment.

Voting Methods

overlooked for so long by those conducting elections in Lubbock County...

"The integrity of the ballot cannot be maintained by continued use of a large paper ballot marked by the voter, in full view of others, at a table shared by others marking their ballot."

"To argue that such a practice does not bother or interfere with an individual voter is only a comment on that voter and not an argument that the procedure maintains secrecy. The time has come when Lubbock County should join with every other metropolitan area in Texas in securing the secrecy of the ballot by the adoption and use of voting machines."

PROTECT THE FINISH OF YOUR CAR POLYGLYCOAT

The revolutionary new protective sealant that is not a wax or polish and can only be applied by your new car dealer

GUARANTEED FOR THREE FULL YEARS - Your auto purchase today is a necessity. Buy with the future in mind.

POLYGLYCOAT PRESERVES! NO NEED TO EVER WAX YOUR CAR AGAIN!

Polyglycoat is a paint and chrome sealant finish - guaranteed to protect your car against fading - corrosion, oxidation, and loss of gloss for three years. Comprised of Dow 30% paraffin, silicone, with a kerosene base. Polyglycoat breaks through the tiny paint pores in the surface and penetrates 2-3 layers into the paint/sealing it and shielding it against the foreign elements that cause corrosion, rust, and loss of gloss.

Not only will Polyglycoat eliminate the need for waxing, but it will virtually maintain your car's showroom finish, thereby enhancing resale potential.

It should be applied to all new cars and properly prepared used cars.

KEEPS YOUR PAINT AND CHROME LIKE NEW!

New Space Film Called 'Insult'

"Starship Invasions," Stars Robert Vaughn and Christopher Lee. Written and directed by Ed Hunt. Edited by Millie Moore and Ruth Hope. Special effects and technical design by Warren Keilor. Photographed by Mark Train. Music by Gill Mele. Rated PG. At the Winchester.

By WILLIAM D. KERNS A-J Fine Arts Editor Artistic films — be they the psychological drama of "The Godfather, Part Two," the searing human study of "Save The Tiger" or the heartfelt fantasy of "Star Wars" — have only rarely been known to breed more of their own kind. But should an artistic film appeal to the masses, look for an immediate outbreak of imitation, exploitation and disguise.

When George Lucas' "Star Wars" hit the screens last summer, breaking boxoffice records everywhere and no doubt earning multiple Academy Award nominations in the process, we of course expected a galaxy of cheap riffs to follow soon enough. But nobody could have possibly realized how soon — or how cheap.

The plot concerns Christopher Lee's forces, the Legions Of The Winged Serpents, readying for an invasion of earth. Seems they need our world because their own planet Alpha is about to supernova on them. Ah, well, like they say, you can never go home again. In any case, they kidnap a few Earthlings for study and then decide to make the big push, orbiting a ray which makes Earthlings

Committee Told Fire Codes 'Sufficient'

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Better enforcement of existing laws rather than new laws, will help prevent disasters such as last May's Beverly Hills Supper Club fire, a Kentucky legislative panel has been told.

The codes will suffice. But regardless of what regulations or departments you set up, it all depends on who's enforcing them," said Paul Moore, Paducah city building inspector.

Lawyer Says Legal Ads On TV Would Aid Poor

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Inexpensive legal help for those who need it most depends upon lawyers being able to advertise on radio and television, several lawyers have told the Ohio Supreme Court.
