Social Security Earnings Boost Okayed By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate turned down a proposal Friday that would have let most elderly Social Security recipients earn an unlimited amount of money without losing any of their pensions.

Instead, senators voted to raise the ceiling on earnings allowed without affecting pensions from the current $3,000 a year to $6,000 for people 65 through 71. The Senate action would eliminate a ceiling for 70- and 71-year-old retirees in 1982.

The provision was approved 59-28 as senators continued debating how to raise Social Security taxes on workers and their employers to shore up the financially troubled system.

Mondale Votes

In another vote, Vice President Walter F. Mondale cast the tie-breaker as the Senate defeated, 42-41, an amendment by Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., that would have continued the tradition of employers and employees paying equal shares of Social Security taxes.

The vote was Mondale's first since becoming vice president and president of the Senate.

The Curtis amendment was a substitute for a tax increase formula, written by the Senate Finance Committee, that for the first time would have required employers to pay a greater share than workers.

Goldwater Blocked

Approval of the higher earnings limit blocked a vote on a proposal by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., to eliminate the ceiling completely. Goldwater said a limit is morally wrong, his opponents said removing it, as the House has voted to do, would amount to welfare for the rich.

The Carter administration had urged Congress to keep the current earnings ceiling for the time being.

The action by the Senate would raise the $3,000 ceiling to $4,500 next year and to $6,000 in 1979. Three years later, the only remaining ceiling would apply to people between the ages of 65 and 69.

Intent Of Ceiling

The ceiling is designed to ensure that those who retire from one job and go to another are not eligible for a full Social Security pension. The ceiling means that a retiree loses $1 of his pension for each $2 earned above $3,000 a year.

Opponents of Goldwater's unlimited earnings proposal argued its elimination would benefit only about 650,000 pension recipients who now earn more than $6,000 a year from other work. The extra cost of repeal would be paid by the working population.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., described the impact of the move this way: picture the five most-prosperous partners in the 50 most-prosperous law firms on Wall Street and give each of them a tax-free check of $8,400 a year, the maximum Social Security benefit, on top of their six-figure salaries.

"Truly, this is welfare for the rich," he said.

But Goldwater said the federal government has no right to deny benefits to retired workers who contributed to Social Security during their working years.

"We're dealing with the subject of mo-reality," he said. "These are people who have paid their money into Social Security. This is their money. It is not the money of the federal government."

Goldwater noted the earnings limit does not apply to unearned income. For example, he said, he could retire and live off his corporate pension and stock divi-

South African Arms Ban Voted By U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council Friday unanimously voted an immediate, permanent and binding embargo on the sale of arms to South Africa in the stiffest action yet against the white government's race policies.

Invoking rarely used powers, the 15-member council declared that any further acquisition of arms by South Africa posed a threat to international peace and security.

The vote ended a two-week debate prompted by South Africa's crackdown against the black consciousness movement and opponents of the official policy of racial segregation.

The U.N. measure was not expected to seriously affect South Africa, which claims to be largely self-sufficient in arms production. The United States has voluntarily banned arms sales to South Africa since 1963.

But Andrew Young, the black U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, declared: "We have just sent a very clear message to the government of South Africa...that continuation on the course on which it is embarked can only lead to further strains on ties between South Africa and other members of the international community."

He added that at the same time the council must "make clear our desire for reconciliation provided South Africa is willing to begin progress toward the end of apartheid."

South Africa's population of 26 million is 70 per cent black, 17 per cent white, with the rest of mixed race and Asians.

In Pretoria, South African Foreign Minister R.F. Botha promptly blasted the U.N. action as an incitement to violence. He said it would stiffen the resolve of South Africans to defend their country and to resist "dictates of outsiders about their own affairs."

Botha accused the Western nations on the council — the United States, Britain, France, West Germany and Canada — of discarding principles "in favor of selfish political motives."

Slowdown Of Power Workers Blacks Out Much Of Britain

LONDON (AP) — Buses lurched through darkened Trafalgar Square as lights went out in much of Britain Friday in a wildcat go-slow strike by power workers.

Electricity was shut off to millions of homes and offices on a chaotic day of rotated power cuts — often without warning.

Rush-hour commuters heading for their trains at London's Charing Cross Station formed long chains behind those wise enough to bring flashlights to negotiate their way.

At least one death was linked to the disruption as cuts hit different parts of the country for up to three hours at a time.

An 80-year-old woman, Mrs. Doris Yates, was burned to death as she tried to keep warm during a blackout by using a portable gas heater which exploded, fire officials and neighbors said. She had borrowed the heater when her electric heat was shut off.

Elsewhere, Britons ate cold meals by candlelight, hospitals postponed non-essential operations, and roads were snarled by the sudden failure of traffic signals. Health authorities made special arrangements for kidney patients to use generator power for their dialysis units.

British soccer teams rescheduled their Saturday matches for earlier daylight hours to avoid floodlight outages.

In defiance of instructions from their own unions and appeals from the government, leaders of the unofficial strike said they were ready to "flatten the country" by shutting down all power stations if management carried out a threat to stop their pay.

The strikers appeared more conciliatory at an evening news conference, when

Veteran School Aid Hiked By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed a bill Friday increasing financial aid for veterans in school and permitting women who were pilots in World War II to qualify for the same benefits as male pilots.

The measure, passed by voice vote, now goes to President Carter. The House passed by the compromise legislation by voice vote Thursday.

The bill would raise monthly payments for veterans and dependents in school by 6.6 percent. It also would increase the amount veterans may borrow for school. For those who are graduated, part of such loans would be forgiven.

Li'l Abner Bows Out — Along With A Fading I-deel

Comics Favorite Recalls (Sigh) A Bygone Era

EDITOR'S NOTE: — Today marks the final appearance of Li'l Abner as a daily comic strip, although there will be two more Sunday appearances. Here A.J. Managing Editor Burle Pettit salutes the Al Capp figure who over a period of more than 40 years was the hearts of generations of readers of the times.

By BURLE PETTIT

Avalanche-Journal Managing Editor

PERHAPS THE MAIN APPEAL Li'l Abner had to those of us his own age was that we were almost grown before we were aware of how poor he was.

Through the Depression that sired him, a World War that caught him too young to join such fellow penciled entertainers as Joe Palooka, Snuffy Smith and Buz Sawyer in uniform, and all the events up to today, Li'l Abner was our "I-deel."

Abner's penchant for comic books, affinity for po'k chops and nonchalance about girls were easy for almost any American youngster to identify with. And, to a degree, as we changed, so did he. Remember his marriage to Daisy Mae? By the time it happened, many of us were about old enough to understand why.

Li'l Abner was a guy of simple needs and the weirdest of friends. Paradoxically, his life was basic to the extent of extreme complexity. Remember the shmoos that gave of themselves so freely that they threatened humanity by destroying initiative?

His hero, Fearless Fosdick, was perfect only in Abner's own mind. After all, who else could see logic in Fosdick's need to shoot each person who purchased a can of beans from a lot of perhaps a million? Abner could, because, sigh, he knew, gulp, that one can contained poison!

Satire was another forte. And it either came to Abner late in life, during the college-ruckus days of the '60s, or was there all along, unnoticed much in the manner the ambiguities of Gulliver's Travels escaped most of Abner's contemporaries.

We'll miss you, Abner. But, alas, somehow it won't be quite as bad as it would have been, say, a couple of decades ago. Maybe as life became more complicated, your simplicity wasn't so easy to identify with. Or maybe your bossman, Al Capp, kept you too busy at expressing political and social parodies to allow you to say what you used to say best: "Ah'm hungry!"

Perhaps where the main void will come involves the nostalgia of the times: the eternal longing to return to days when food tasted better, but there was less of it. Or, more likely, you were so much a part of the daily lives that you became a member of the family and so remained.

Whatever the redeeming causes, today's comic strip won't be the same without you, the other Yokums, Moonbeam, Marryin' Sam, Salomy and all the other friends of yours and ours.

And among whatever else Al Capp has proven through the past 43 years he, in terminating your existence, has made another point: Thomas Wolfe was right.

And if you could go home again, you probably wouldn't see anybody you knew. Not even Earthquake McGoon...

Drought Continues Despite October Rains

WASHINGTON (AP) — A pattern of persistent drought is continuing in the West, despite the fact that October was the wettest month in at least a year, the U.S. Geological Survey reported Friday.

The flow of water in rivers and streams was reported within 25 percent of the maximum ever recorded at 62 of the 155 key index stations across the country, officials said.

"A pattern of persistent deficit streamflows continues, however, across about 10 western states, most notably, northern California, Southern Idaho and most of Nevada, Utah and Colorado," said Carroll Saboe, chief of the survey's Current Water Conditions Group.

Saboe said the persistence of the drought is most noticeable in the reservoir systems.

"Of the 63 reservoir systems west of the Mississippi reporting in, 34 were running below normal. Furthermore, some of these reservoirs have been seriously depleted by the drought and will take a long time to refill," Saboe said.

By contrast, streamflows averaged well above normal throughout New England and upstate New York and along a broad belt reaching as far south as Louisiana.

Other pockets of excessive streamflow covered most of formerly drought-plagued South Dakota and neighboring areas.

As an index of national water supplies, the nation's "Big Five" rivers — Mississippi, St. Lawrence, Columbia, Missouri and Ohio — averaged 57 percent above normal in October. Saboe said this was the highest average flow since December, 1974.

Highlights of the survey's October water resources report included:

—The Big Sioux River at Akron, Iowa, averaged 590 million gallons a day, the highest October flow in 50 years of recordkeeping. This followed 18 straight months of below-normal flows.

—At least six index stations in the East reached their highest October levels since recordkeeping began, including three stations in Maine.

—In California, the major reservoirs averaged 66 percent below normal. Looking ahead, hydrologists said that even if the coming year is near normal the supply will not be sufficient to replenish reservoir and ground water storage.

—The flows in the Big Five rivers in October averaged 680 billion gallons a day, 90 billion gallons a day more than in September. Individual flows were: Mississippi at Vicksburg, Miss., 326 billion gallons a day, 91 percent above normal; St. Lawrence near Massena, N.Y., 194 billion gallons a day, 28 percent above normal; Columbia at The Dalles, Ore., 43 billion gallons a day, 28 percent below normal; Ohio at Louisville, Ky., 58 billion gallons a day, 303 percent above normal and the Missouri River at Hermann, Mo., 59 billion gallons a day, 64 percent above normal.

Juvenile Offenders Take 1,000 Mile Wagon Train Trek For Rehabilitation

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The meanest kids in town came home Friday after a 1,000-mile wagon train trek through desert and snow, designed to rehabilitate them.

For 30 of the 35 juvenile offenders, the arrival at a new base at the foot of the Colorado Rockies was a homecoming. They are boys and girls, 12 to 18 years old, who had been convicted more than once in Colorado Springs of offenses ranging from being a habitual runaway to auto theft and assault.

The last time they had appeared before juvenile judges, they had been offered a choice: county or state detention facilities or a year with VisionQuest, an Arizona-based, private, non-profit juvenile program.

Now VisionQuest is opening a program in Colorado Springs, and the wagon train brought them home. It passed through this city 60 miles south of Denver, and stopped on a grassy hillside with Pikes Peak in the background.

"They are coming back to meet the community they left on a sour note," said Joe Breck, administrative director of the Colorado Springs VisionQuest.

Four old wagons, refurbished by the youngsters, and 38 horses and mules formed a circle within shouting distance of the fences of the Zebulon Pike Detention Center, the county juvenile facility where many of youngsters had been before.

"Just now the impact hit me," said Scott, a 14-year-old who said he had been in 22 juvenile detention centers at one time or another. "Look at the people behind that fence. I'm not going to be there again."

The wagon train was the idea of Bob Burton, a former Las Vegas, Nev., juvenile worker who started VisionQuest four years ago. It left Tombstone, Ariz., 25 miles from the Mexican border, on Sept.

1. Few of the 28 boys and seven girls on the journey had any previous experience with horses or the outdoors.

They traveled the backroads through the Arizona desert, went north and east across New Mexico and took the historic Raton Pass route into Colorado. There were sunburns and cracked lips, one broken wagon axle to repair and four inches of snow to greet them in southeastern Colorado.

"Most of them improved a lot just from the hard work, the structure and the discipline of the wagon train," said Linda Breck, a VisionQuest counselor.

Sunny Skies Forecast

The Texas Tech homecoming game against TCU should kickoff in Jones Stadium today at 2 p.m. under sunny skies and temperatures in the middle 70s.

Southerly winds, blowing 5 to 10 mph today should carry in warmer temperatures through Sunday, reaching into the mid 70s today and dropping to a mild low tonight in the middle 40s. Southerly winds will vary 15 to 20 mph, according to the National Weather Service.

Panhandle areas can expect to find temperatures dipping into the upper 30s tonight and climb into the low 70s Sunday under partly cloudy skies.

A chance for showers and thunderstorms will bring a cooling trend to most portions of the state Monday and again Wednesday, allowing temperatures to range in the Lubbock area from the middle 30s to the upper 60s.

Eastern portions of the state also basked under mid-70 temperatures, but found fog and drizzle blanketing much of those areas during early morning hours, clearing off to partly cloudy conditions during the afternoon. Partly cloudy skies are expected to invade those portions of the state again today.

Rain and scattered thunderstorms dominated states in the eastern part of the nation, intensifying near the Atlantic coast, while the western part of the state enjoyed generally sunny skies. Precipitation is expected to return today to the eastern sector of the nation, with the western half generally remaining dry.

Parents, Children Try To Adjust As School System Remains Closed

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Children play all day on lawns in front of their homes and on the streets. A TV station reports increased demand for its educational program schedules. The YMCA plans special activities. A mother says having her kids home all the time is driving her crazy.

They can't go to class — schools shut down here Oct. 28 when they ran out of money. Only a handful of the school district's 4,500 employees remain on their jobs — some of them volunteers.

Unless Toledo voters approve a special school tax levy Tuesday, schools will remain closed until Jan. 3, when new state money will be available. Two smaller Ohio school districts also have shut down this year because of cash flow problems.

If the levy is approved, schools will reopen on Wednesday.

The levy is an emotional issue: property taxes versus education. Schools are funded mostly by local property tax revenues. Four school tax proposals have been rejected in the past two years in this port and industrial city of 400,000 on the western rim of Lake Erie.

The voters rejected a higher tax rate in June. A similar rejection last November forced the schools to close for 13 days.

The new proposal would add $76.86 a year to the current $441 a year tax bill of a homeowner whose house is valued at $40,000. Seventy percent of the property tax is used for education.

With the possibility that the schools could be closed longer than last year unless voters accept higher taxes, the problem is hitting many in their own homes.

In northeast Toledo, Susan Amato said having her kids home all the time is nerve-racking.

"I can't take it," she said. "As soon as it's time to vote I'm going to vote for those schools. We've almost got this house paid for, just two more years to go. Our taxes went up this year but I don't care. I don't want stupid kids."

Around the corner, Beatrice Link said that after an unexpected week of having her children at home she is going to vote for the levy.

"I think our kids need an education," Mrs. Link said. "I don't favor more taxes, but we have to do something. These are the kids that are going to run our world when we are dead."

But not all mothers agree. Mary Davis, who rents a home in the same neighborhood, is opposed to the levy.

"I think it's crummy," she said. "I thought I would vote for it, but I'm not going to do that because people have got to stand together. I feel sorry for the homeowner that is going to pay it. I think there has got to be another way."

Educators, business and civic leaders are promoting the levy through bumper stickers, brochures, telephone calls and door-to-door campaigns. A group of high school seniors mobilized in southwest Toledo to promote the levy.

The University of Toledo offered college-level work in English, psychology and sociology to qualified high school seniors who are out of class. Thirty-one students applied.

Catholic schools accepted nearly 600 transfer students from public schools at the start of the academic year, but the Rev. John A. Thomas, diocesan superintendent, said none would be accepted after the school year started.

The YMCA and an area camp organized special programs to keep students occupied. A spokesman for WGTE-TV, the public broadcasting station, said there has been increased interest in the printed schedule of educational programs.

South Africans Declare Arms Embargoes Will Not Succeed

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Foreign Minister R.F. "Pik" Botha said Friday the U.N.-decreed arms embargo against South Africa was an incitement to violence and would stiffen the resolve of South Africans to defend their country. He lashed out at Western nations who joined in the U.N. vote.

Minister of Defense P.W. Botha also declared that South Africa was fully self-sufficient to produce and maintain arms required against terrorism, including small to heavy calibre weapons, vehicles, telecommunications and aircraft.

"Efforts to weaken South Africa militarily through the application of mandatory embargoes shall not succeed," he declared.

Reaction of the two ministers was reported by the South African Press Association shortly after the U.N. Security Council by unanimous vote slapped a permanent mandatory arms embargo on South Africa, ending a two-week debate over the country's crackdown on its growing black consciousness movement and anti-apartheid leaders.

South Africa is not a threat to peace, the foreign minister said, and the new resolution, as well as a previous one condemning South Africa, were examples of hypocrisy in the institutions of the international community.

"The Security Council resolution was based on the most transparently dishonest pretext and without a basis of fact," he continued.

Foreign Minister Botha said the arms embargo was not unexpected and South Africa had gradually adapted itself to this eventuality.

"However, as a matter of principle, South Africa protests in the strongest terms against this action," he said.

He expressed particular regret that the resolution had been sponsored and supported by Western countries and accused them of "callous exploitation of a vulnerable situation which extends far beyond the confines of South Africa."

"But now that they have so cynically discarded principles in favor of selfish political motives," he added, "one might well ask whether they have considered the implications of their action, and whether they are prepared to accept full responsibility for what can only be termed an incitement to violence."

"The U.N. can no longer claim to be an instrument of peace now that it has condoned the use of violence to settle international disputes, in direct contradiction of its very raison d'être, the maintenance of international peace and security.

"It is astonishing that members of the Security Council failed to perceive the impertinence in the demand that another country abandon its domestic policies..."

"No state can accept the prescriptions of an international body as to how it should deal with its own affairs."

"No state can accept that its capacity to act in a given domestic situation is qualified by what an outside body may later have to say."

"No state can afford to cede its future right to act decisively and in good faith within its borders as it deems appropriate in order to solve a problem, to avoid a potentially explosive situation or to establish order."

Two Men Found Guilty Of Kidnapping Socialite

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — A middle-aged cabinetmaker and a convicted murderer were found guilty Friday in the $1-million kidnapping of socialite Virginia Piper five years ago.

The federal jury of eight men and four women deliberated 4½ days before issuing the verdict against Kenneth J. Callahan, 53, Cumberland, Wis., woodworker, and Donald F. Larson, 51, who is serving a life sentence for five murders.

They were convicted both of kidnapping and of crossing state lines in committing the crime. The defendants and their families showed no emotion when the verdict was announced.

Defense attorney Ronald Mesbether put his head in his hands for a moment when the verdict was announced. Prosecuting attorney Thor Anderson showed no emotion.

U.S. District Court Judge Edward Devitt allowed Callahan to remain free on $100,000 bail until sentencing. Callahan was ordered to report to Cumberland police daily until a date is set for sentencing.

Larson was ordered held in federal custody and not returned to the state penitentiary at Stillwater, Minn., where he is serving his sentence for the murder of his wife, her lover and three children on his Willow River, Minn. farm.

Mrs. Piper, then 49, was abducted while snapping off dead flowers in her garden at her home Orono, a wealthy Minneapolis suburb, July 27, 1972. She was driven to Jay Cooke State Park near Duluth and chained to a tree for 48 hours before her husband paid the ransom.

Mrs. Piper was rescued unharmed but only about $5,000 of the ransom was recovered.

The prosecution pinned its case on a smudged fingerprint it claimed Larson left on a paper shopping bag in park; a strand of hair allegedly from Callahan's head found in the kidnap vehicle; and the contention the abductors crossed state lines and thus gave the federal government jurisdiction in the case.

The defense put neither defendant on the witness stand. It contended neither was involved in the abduction and there was no way to prove the kidnapers had crossed state lines.

The state statute of limitations expired two years ago in the case. Federal charges were brought against Callahan and Larson five days before federal limitations were scheduled to run out last July 25.

Murder Trial Jury Still Deliberating

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — The jury in the Don Bolles murder trial deliberated for a fourth day Friday, with indications that sessions would continue into the weekend.

Judge Howard Thompson said he would have the jury deliberate a full day Saturday and for a few hours Sunday if no verdict was reached by then.

Eight men and four women are debating the innocence or guilt of contractor Max Dunlap and plumber James Robinson. They are charged with first-degree murder in the death of Bolles, an investigative reporter who was fatally injured when a bomb exploded under his car June 2, 1976. They also are charged with conspiracy to kill Bolles and two other men.

AN EDITORIAL:

Lubbock: Anything Goes City?

WHEN AN INNOCENT 6-year-old boy becomes one of the latest victims in an alarming murder rate in Lubbock, it is time for the entire community to begin asking itself searching questions.

All decent people mourned this week when the body of Johnny Turner Jr. was found, after a weeklong search, face down in a lonely ravine in east Lubbock County.

He had disappeared after playing ball with a friend on Oct. 26. A suspect is in custody. Investigators have been on top of the case from the beginning.

ALREADY THIS year, Lubbock has recorded 26 murders and an equally alarming number of rapes, robberies and other violent crimes.

For Lubbock residents accustomed to thinking of this as a quiet small city insulated from the crime problems of older metropolitan areas, the statistics are shocking.

For those who read the daily crime reports in The Avalanche-Journal, however, it has become increasingly evident that we have as many, and probably more, incidents of law-breaking per capita as almost any similar city in America.

Certainly, we have more than any self-respecting citizenry should accept without demanding of ourselves a look at the underlying causes.

ALMOST EVERYONE'S first inclination is to place the blame on law enforcement officers, accusing them of failing in many cases.

AN EDITORIAL:

Terror 'Ban'--A Right Step?

A MAJOR STEP toward thwarting terrorism in the skies has been taken by the United Nations—provided members of that oft-times puzzling organization follow through.

All 149 UN members have approved a resolution condemning sky piracy and taking of hostages. Furthermore, they have pledged to take cooperative steps toward fighting such anarchy.

How effective the resolution will be depends upon how sincere the various governments of the world, including the fractious Third Worlders, are about implementing it.

THE UN ACTION follows the most recent series of skyjackings, the most spectacular of which resulted in West German commandoes flying into another country to rescue hostages and a West German airliner.

And while such action as this, and the daring Israeli raid on Entebbe, is the stuff of which heroes and national legends are made, it also carries grave international implications.

It would be far more effective if terrorists the world over knew ahead of time that there would be no sanctuary, not even political asylum, if taking of hostages and piracy

M. STANTON EVANS:

Social Security Trouble Runs High, Wide, Deep

WASHINGTON—One of the major mysteries in the nation's capital is the exact dimension of the long-term deficit for Social Security. Though Congress has been busy of late considering the short-term problem, the long-range figures are rarely mentioned.

Official literature from the Congressional Budget Office and the Social Security Administration gives the long-term projections as a percentage of taxable payroll, meaningless to the layman, rather than in dollars—though most of the other calculations are in dollar figures.

A stated reason for this method is that costs and benefits of the system are supposed to be in balance with the dollar totals—so that the important factor is how benefits at any given moment compare to payrolls of working taxpayers.

THERE ALSO IS the fact that projections far down the road are rendered in inflated dollars which will be worth considerably less than current ones. A bit of inquiry suggests, however, another possible reason for all the obscurity.

The long-term deficit is so incredibly huge that a general awareness of it would scare the daylights out of the American people. Treating the matter in statistical gobbledeygook helps keep the media and the general public blissfully unaware of how serious the problem really is.

From time to time economists have projected the long-range deficit and come up with some unsettling data. These estimates have ranged from $2 trillion to $7 trillion over the next 75 years—which, as it develops, are fairly conservative projections.

Yet so widespread is the prevailing ignorance that when Ronald Reagan referred to one of the lower projections in his campaign last year, he was subjected to ridicule as an alarmist.

IN FACT, AS resort to the official documents makes plain, Reagan's assertions were a considerable understatement. We have this on the authority of Treasury Sec. W. Michael Blumenthal, Sec. of Labor Ray Marshall, Sec. of Health, Edu-es to collect the evidence in a manner best calculated to result in, first, the arrest and, more importantly, the conviction of the offenders.

But while law enforcement can play a role in deterring crime, it can't in most cases prevent a crime before it happens.

Judges, too, come in for a share of the criticism for turning criminals free on bail or handing out light sentences. Prosecutors are blamed for too much plea bargaining and defense lawyers are criticized for delaying tactics which in the view of many thwart justice.

IN THE FINAL analysis, however, a community experiences just about the amount of crime that it is willing to tolerate.

As jurors, the average citizens can affect matters directly by the severity of the sentences they hand out.

As parents, they can demand more, or less, discipline of students in the public schools.

But it is in their role as voters, as citizens, that a community's residents set the tone for whether it will be a "wide open, anything goes" city or one in which those who might be inclined toward anti-social behavior find it no fun to live.

Crime never will be stopped. Even in the best of communities murders and other violent crimes will occur. It has never been any secret, though, that some cities tolerate more crime and violence than do others.

It is time for Lubbock to become totally intolerant toward both.

of an airliner were involved. Unfortunately, even before the UN vote, Algeria—a haven for some of the more radical elements of the anarchists—said it would not agree to any such ban, but would judge each case on its merits.

And realistically, some of the world's smaller nations probably would find themselves hard put to refuse landing rights to innocent passengers aboard a plane running low on fuel.

IN THE FINAL analysis, the UN resolution, as well as individual government policies, must be backed up with effective safeguards, and force if necessary.

This will entail risks which at times may endanger crews and passengers. But it is one which must be taken.

Tighter security measures at all airports, arming of senior crew members on international flights, and swift justice for terrorists who survive—all are needed to back up the welcome words from the United Nations.

Terror knows no boundaries and respects neither state nor nationality. In that context, it is the enemy of all civilized nations.

cation and Welfare Joseph Califano and Social Security Commissioner James B. Cardwell.

These four gentlemen form the board of trustees of the Social Security system, which every year produces a report on the financial condition of the program. The report for 1977 is now at hand, and it makes for rather somber reading.

The long-term deficit of Social Security, as near as the trustees can figure it out, is nothing so meager as $2 trillion or $7 trillion but something closer to $15 trillion. On this official assessment, Ronald Reagan is a Social Security polyanna.

AS USUAL, the trustees don't give us the bad news in dollars but in percentage of taxable payrolls. By 1980, they inform us, Social Security's payouts will exceed its income by nine-tenths of one per cent of taxable payroll.

By the year 2000, the difference will be up to 4.01 per cent. By 2020, it will be 9.74 per cent, by 2040 14.77 per cent and by 2055 15.61 per cent.

The average deficit for the 75-year period is calculated at 8.20 per cent of taxable payrolls. Stated in this fashion, the deficit problem may sound innocuous or meaningless, but it is neither.

If we translate these percentages into dollar estimates for the years in question, we get the following:

In 1980, the deficit will amount to $10.5 billion. In the year 2000, $158.2 billion; in 2020, $1.24 trillion; in 2040, $5.9 trillion; in 2055, $14.9 trillion.

In part these horrendous estimates derive from the double-indexing of benefits to inflation written into the law in 1972, which vastly inflates the level of future payouts and which everyone now seems anxious to correct.

But, as the trustees point out, even if this is corrected, the best that can be accomplished will be to cut the deficit approximately in half.

And that will leave us with multiple trillions in unfunded obligations still out there to be honored. No wonder they like to give these estimates as percentages rather than in good old American dollars.

It All Goes To His Stomach

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

'Cruise' Is In Doubt

WASHINGTON—Secret computer studies show that the existing U.S. cruise missile would not have a chance to penetrate the Soviet Union's sophisticated defense system, a revelation acutely embarrassing to President Carter and threatening to the prospective SALT II agreement.

The studies, conducted by a private contractor and the Pentagon, found that a scheduled "live" test would result in the Tomahawk cruise missile being shot down by U.S. defenses.

ANDREW TULLY:

Who Do We Like?

WASHINGTON—Isn't it thrilling, having all those American businessmen visiting Cuba?" said the stylish matron between sips of sherry.

Well—thrilling? I find such chic junkets interesting, and of a certain newsworthiness. But I am not exactly titillated by photos of Yankee capitalists whooping it up with Fidel Castro, who presumably delayed his entrance until he'd washed the latest blood off his hands.

However, the business of businessmen, to paraphrase Calvin Coolidge, is business. Those pin-striped types are seeking contracts, not crash courses in Communism.

I suppose that's all right, but I do not regard them as representing U.S. foreign policy, and I only can hope that President Carter will demand a quid before he permits a quo that would give aid and comfort to Cuba's struggling economy.

ALL OF WHICH is by way of introducing comment on Carter's effort to make the issue of human rights a major element in his administration's dealings with foreign governments.

At a hearing before the House Subcommittee on International Organizations, the Carter bunch alternately was assailed as too partial and too timid on rights.

"Why is anti-Communism no longer a part of our policy?" asked Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-Ill. "Why are we embracing Cuba and rejecting a long-time ally like Argentina?"

Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-Calif., was unhappy for an opposite reason. He said Carter was being too nice to allies like South Korea and the Philippines. That, said Ryan, smacked of hypocrisy.

SHUCKS. SUCH a discussion must be viewed in the context of the facts of international life. Except for Great Britain and the Scandinavian countries, most of our major allies are more casual about civil rights than we are. Even in the France of "egalite," cops usually are more equal than trouble-makers, and a defendant is presumed guilty until he proves his innocence.

That is to say, the U.S. must consider its rights policy on a case-by-case basis. Or, as deposed by Mark L. Schneider, an assistant Secretary of State, our tactics involve the particular type of relations the U.S. has with a given country and the opportunities for leverage and persuasion that these relations afford.

CONSIDER THE South Koreans. We need them. The country in effect is an American military base set up against possible aggression by Communist China that could endanger Japan.

We can and should try to persuade the Korean rulers to stop pushing people around, but we vitally need to keep them on our side. At the same time, we sensibly are attempting to establish a relationship with Peking that would render that dictatorial regime less likely to start trouble.

And Ed Derwinski has a point. It is indeed fashionable in some liberal chic quarters to lambaste right-wing dictators while ignoring human rights violations in Communist states.

Thus, Cuba and Red China are "in," for reasons that elude me, while rightist Chile is "out." One is tempted to ask whether Cuba's political jails are more comfortable than those in Chile and South Korea.

In any case, it is reckless to argue that Jimmy Carter's human rights crusade should be employed even-handedly.

A dictatorship, of course, is simply a dictatorship, but one recalls that when Communism threatened to overrun all Europe, Spain's Francisco Franco, a true blue Fascist, was one of the few who made the Reds run on time.

Consequently, the Defense Department a few weeks ago cancelled the "live" test and substituted a "dead" or simulated test. That was intended to sidestep severe embarrassment for the weapon which became strategically crucial when Carter shelved the B-1 bomber.

But word has filtered out of the Pentagon, giving ammunition to Capitol Hill critics of the Carter defense policy.

The new strategic arms limitation agreement (SALT II) being negotiated in Geneva becomes more vulnerable than ever to criticism that it gives the Soviet Union a dangerous advantage.

A Defense Department spokesman told us there was no computer study made and that there will be "live" tests of the Tomahawk. But our sources at the Pentagon reaffirmed in detail the story of the cruise missile crisis.

The President's unexpected decision against B-1 production transformed the cruise missile from a theater to a global weapon.

THE TOMAHAWK, the only existing cruise missile, was developed as a sea-launched weapon but eventually will be launched from heavy bombers. As such, it is now a critically important U.S. strategic weapon.

The Tomahawk was to be tested beginning Dec. 6 at Nellis Air Base in Nevada against the U.S. Hawk air defense system on a "live" basis—the surface-to-air missile actually sent against the cruise missile.

But the computer studies showed that the Hawk radar would locate the Tomahawk and a surface-to-air Hawk missile would shoot it down. The implications are unnerving. The Hawk is similar to the Soviet SA-3 system, which the Russians consider obsolete and peddle to their client countries.

IF THE TOMAHAWK cannot get past the SA-3, what chance would it have against the far more advanced Soviet SA-10 now guarding the Russian homeland?

The decision was made to scrub the "live" test, firing the Tomahawk but not actually dispatching the Hawk surface-to-air missile—thereby saving the glamor weapon the indignity of being shot down. Instead, the test will be simulated via computer in a "dead" test.

Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, an important Republican voice on defense, plans to take the House floor to accuse the Defense Department of "rigging" a test. At the least, experts believe a simulated test always poses the temptation of self-deception.

ACTUALLY, THERE have been precursors of the Tomahawk's vulnerability. The radar of the F-15 fighter has picked up a Tomahawk in flight.

Testing the Tomahawk against radar aircraft scheduled through next April at the China Lake and Point Mugu naval test sites in California now becomes the source of apprehension at the Pentagon.

Although the cruise missile team has boasted that their weapon presents radar a cross-section the size of a seagull, that may be too big. Further reducing the cross-section or increasing the missile's speed would require major changes. Nor is there room on the cruise missile for anti-radar countermeasures; the miniaturized motor and warhead take up all the limited space.

"I'M VERY MUCH afraid," one technical expert told us, "that the cruise missile is about one weapon generation away from being able to penetrate Soviet defense."

Other experts believe a swarm of Tomahawks could overrun Soviet air defenses; but that would require thousands of cruise missiles, a number neither planned for production nor permitted under the proposed SALT II treaty.

Yet, without a B-1 bomber, Soviet superiority in heavy missiles would provide all the more lopsided a strategic advantage if the cruise missile cannot penetrate Soviet defenses.

Therefore, even though it lost the fight for the B-1, the Air Force is desperate for a penetrating bomber and is pushing for a remodeled FB-111 as a substitute.

In the absence of a penetrating bomber, the Tomahawk's ability to get by even obsolete U.S. defenses is of the most intense interest. If it cannot pass a "live" test, the credibility of the entire U.S. strategic arms policy is in doubt.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Fem Lib Pays Off

OKAY, CAREER GIRLS, gather round: If you want to make it from the bedroom to the boardroom, you have to:

- Be tops in your field.
- Come from parents who insisted you could accomplish anything you wanted to and urged you to do it in a business, science or profession.
- Have been especially close to your father.
- Be willing to work like a dog.
- Get your name in the papers a lot.

Fulfill these qualifications and you, too, can become a director on a corporate board. It's a field that's not what you might call overcrowded.

As of now, there are only some 200 women sitting on the boards of American industries. Male directors number in the tens of thousands. But that's beginning to change.

OUT OF 1,300 of the country's largest companies, 228 (or roughly one in six) have at least one woman director. And the reason the field is so exclusive is that there aren't enough qualified businesswomen to go around.

When it comes to top management positions, only one per cent are filled by females.

Things get a little better down in middle-management territory, where women hold between five and six per cent of those jobs. This is increasing every year, thanks to the Lady Libs, but at the moment there aren't many farm clubs for women directors.

FINDING NEW candidates isn't easy. One corporation even went so far as to hire Burston-Marsteller, a public relations firm, to flush one out for them. The result was a sort of term paper on pioneer women in the male world of high finance.

Burston-Marsteller interviewed 31 women directors of 72 corporate biggies on how they did it, how they felt about "tokenism," and, now that they've made it, how they like being the only woman around the board table.

(Eleven of the women served on three or more boards, four are black, and their average age is 53.)

The bottom line was that the kind of woman who makes it to the top is the same kind of man who makes it: strong-willed, competitive, talented and tough.

THE ONE BIG difference: Women directors tend to have backgrounds that are less business-oriented than men. Seven of the 31 came up the corporate ladder, but 24 made their reputations in other fields—law, journalism, education, economics, etc.

They said they liked being women directors and didn't feel intimidated by being outnumbered by men. But they were a little touchy about the tokenism thing.

One pointed out that "a lot of male choices are token appointments—bank presidents, university presidents, that sort of thing." Others said they were insulted that the question was even asked.

But then they relaxed and admitted that, sure, the fact that they were women probably had something to do with it.

BUT THEY insisted their achievements and abilities had more to do with it. Being a woman isn't enough being a successful woman is what counts.

No corporation, they argued, is going to appoint a know-nothing, no matter how many brownie points it gets from Gloria Steinem. It's their specific career skills and not their sex that made the companies seek them out.

For proof they rattled off a list of their assignments to company committees, where the real power often lies. Only a handful drew jobs in "women's areas" like consumer affairs and personnel, most of them work on budgets, auditing, pensions and executive compensation.

How do they rate with their companies? The same as male directors: most win high marks, some are average, and a few have turned out to be real duds.

BUT ALMOST everybody agreed there's more room at the top than there are top women. Which is why when one makes it with a corporation, she's apt to get invitations from several others.

"There's an enormous amount of talent out there that's being ignored," one said. "Corporations tend to feed on the same people. It all boils down to sheer laziness."

What company presidents don't seem to realize, women directors pointed out, is that there is a New York-based organization called Catalyst that keeps a current list of "possibles." Women corporate executives, high-level government officials, college presidents and achievers in other fields whose accomplishments have made news.

So it looks like you have to do it yourself, ladies.

Get your name in the papers and let the business giants know you're out there. The only other way is to marry the company president, or arrange to get yourself born to one and it's already too late for that.

L.M. ROYD:

...Pass It On

"WOMEN LOOK YOU in the eye more when telling the truth, men when lying." Such was an observation delivered recently in Boston to a meeting of the Eastern Psychological Association.

Beautiful legs are not all that uncommon among women, actually. What's rare are beautiful hands. Or so contends a fashion photographer of some renown. Only one woman in 5,000, says he, is the possessor of what might be termed really beautiful hands.

Q. "Where are the most geysers?"

A. In Yellowstone National Park. With 60. That's more than all the rest of the geysers in the world. Outside this country, Iceland and New Zealand have the most.

Q. "Is it really possible for a nagging wife to drive her husband to drink? I mean to become an alcoholic?"

A. The science boys say no, it doesn't work that way. She may drive him to drink, all right. But what tips him over the line to alcoholism is within himself, they say.

Q. "Note it reported that the world's largest hen's egg was about three times as big as the typical 'large' egg in a store. When two such huge eggs look almost identical, how's it known exactly which one is bigger?"

A. By how much water each displaces.

Helms Considers Conviction 'Badge Of Honor'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Helms was fined $2,000, placed on a year's probation and declared "in disgrace and shame" by a federal judge Friday, but the former CIA director said the case would be a badge of honor the rest of his life.

Helms was lectured severely by District Judge Barrington D. Parker, who made it clear he thought very little of the bargained misdemeanor charges in which Helms pleaded no contest to two counts of failing "to answer material questions" by a Senate committee in 1973.

Parker eventually assented to the Justice Department's strong recommendation that Helms not be imprisoned for misleading the Foreign Relations Committee about covert CIA activities in Chile. But he imposed the maximum fine of $1,000 per count and kept Helms on tenterhooks before suspending the maximum prison term of one year on each count.

Outside the courthouse, Helms said of the conviction: "I don't think it's a disgrace at all."

Both the Justice Department and Helms' defense attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, had pleaded for mercy on the ground that while the CIA director had technically violated his oath to the Senate panel, he was obligated as well to uphold his separate oath — and statutory duty — to protect CIA secrets.

But that explanation — including Williams' contention that American lives would have been imperiled had Helms testified fully — did not wax with Parker.

"It is indeed unfortunate that there are those in public office who are so divided in their loyalties," Parker declared. "You gave your solemn oath to testify truthfully. You, however, failed. You dishonored your oath and you stand before this court in disgrace and shame."

"There are those in the intelligence community... who feel they have a license to operate outside the law," Parker continued.

"It may be that you were encouraged by others to believe" that the withholding of information was proper," Parker said. "But from this day forward, let there be no doubt, no one is above the law."

Williams had told the court just before sentencing that his client would "bear the scar of a conviction for the rest of his life."

But his tone appeared to change considerably when he later told reporters: "He will wear it like a badge of honor. I'm proud to stand beside a man who still believes in honor."

Asked if he agreed with the "badge of honor" assessment, Helms replied "I do indeed."

"I don't think it's a disgrace at all," he said. "If I had done anything else (than withholding his answers to the Senate) it would have been a disgrace."

Helms said it is "high time" that the executive and congressional branches reach clear-cut guidelines for testimony by officials holding national secrets, and said he hopes his case will bring that about.

"At this rate," he said, "no public official could go before Congress and not be squeezed out of confidential information. There are endless secrets and confidentialities which must be preserved."

Helms, given an opportunity to make a statement to the judge before sentencing, deferred to Williams and the government's representative, Assistant Atty. Gen. Benjamin Civiletti.

Civiletti declared that "imposition of incarceration without suspension is inappropriate, not justified, and will do justice under these circumstances."

He acknowledged that "the dilemma and conflicts Mr. Helms faced were real and the stakes were high."

Williams insisted that had Helms testified forthrightly to the Senate, he "would have sacrificed American lives, sacrificed his oath (to the CIA) and sacrificed the law" requiring the CIA director to preserve the national interest.

But Parker, in court, noted that many of the public officials caught in the Watergate scandal had used the same argument — preserving the national interest — for not telling the truth.

To that, Williams replied that in the case of Helms "There was no self-interest, no self-gain, no self-embolment."

At the time Helms had testified, Williams noted, the CIA was engaged at then-President Richard M. Nixon's direction, in activities against the Marxist regime of Salvador Allende.

Helms was then on his way to confirmation as the U.S. ambassador to Iran after a career in the CIA in which he spent his last seven years as director. He resigned his ambassadorship last year. Helms is 64.

Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell said at his office that the disposition of the case

"confirms the important principles contained in the plea agreement. It vindicates the law and upholds the rights of Congress."

Helms cited several reasons for striking the plea agreement, rather than going to trial.

"If I were to contest these charges," he said, "I believe that grave and perhaps irreparable damage to the United States would result."

"I believe that the intelligence community would be needlessly undermined, and lose further credibility in foreign lands..."

"If I were to contest these charges, I would be forced to subject myself, my family, and my friends to the distress of a lengthy trial and the nation to a further hemorrhaging of confidential facts affecting foreign policy, an event that can only help those who wish us ill," he said.

Ex-Thief Taking Cars, Legally

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Bledsoe, who spent years in prison for taking other people's cars, is up to his old tricks again and loving it. But this time it's legal — he works for a car repossession firm.

The 51-year-old paroled car thief, who once ran what police called "Bledsoe's Reassembly Plant," is using such tool as his "slim jim" — a hooked hacksaw blade that unlocks car doors — and a wealth of experience to retrieve cars whose owners fail to make their payments.

"My boss says as repossessors go, I'm the best he's ever had," Bledsoe said in an interview. "I'd do this for nothing if I didn't need the money. I actually have fun doing it. It is outdoor work and the hours aren't bad.

"It's just like stealing. You have to sneak up and take cars from people that naturally don't want to give them up," Bledsoe said.

While operating his "Reassembly Plant" for three years, he says he stole about 250 new cars. Then he bought wrecked cars from salvage yards, interchanged parts and the salable result was old registered cars with new bodies.

Before that, Bledsoe said he stole 750,000 spark plugs in about two years, taking them from warehouses and selling them to a friend who owned several service stations.

Trouble was, police in one suburban Los Angeles community — Bledsoe won't embarrass them by saying which one — found themselves with "hot" spark plugs in their patrol cars after they were serviced by his friend.

Bledsoe, who said he has spent 32 years behind bars, went to prison most recently after one of his "reassembled" cars was parked near the site of a robbery — for which he claims no responsibility — and impounded by police.

He said that when he broke into the police impound and stole his car back, "naturally this aroused their competitive spirit, because they knew I did it but they couldn't prove it."

They eventually did, and he went to the California state prison at Chino for grand theft and receiving stolen property.

A police officer who was well acquainted with Bledsoe's activities persuaded Western Adjustors, a repossession firm, to hire him. A judge and a prosecutor helped get his sentence reduced so he could take the job last December, he said.

Now, he says, he does all the firm's repossessing.

THIEF TURNED REPOSSESSOR — Don Bledsoe, who has served time in prison for stealing cars, breaks into a car Friday in Los Angeles, legally. A Los Angeles policeman was responsible for helping Bledsoe to find employment with an automobile repossession firm. "Although I'm a crook and a thief, I guess he figured I wasn't such a bad guy," said Bledsoe, referring to the L.A. cop. (AP Laserphoto)

Inmates Get College Degrees

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The three men, outfitted in caps and gowns, walked proudly to the front of the chapel and received their degrees — but there were no smiling relatives or popping flash bulbs.

Moments later, they removed the graduation garb to reveal nondescript white coveralls underneath and were led quietly back to their cells.

Seven years ago, it took a jury 14 minutes to convict John Hart of murder with malice and sentence him to 50 years. Thursday night, it took just six minutes longer minutes for Sam Houston State University officials to confer a Bachelor of Science degree on him.

Hart, 39, was one of three inmates at the Texas Department of Corrections to receive degrees during the first behind-bars graduation since the university began sending professors to the nearby prison to teach senior-level night courses in 1974.

Jack Elliott, 38, also convicted of murder, and Roy Stanford, 38, convicted of rape, burglary and assault to rape, accompanied Hart at the ceremonies. Stanford, like Hart, received his Bachelor of Science Degree. Elliott received a Bachelor of Business Administration Degree.

The graduations raised to 17 the number of degrees conferred on inmates by Sam Houston, the University of Houston and Stephen F. Austin State University. There are presently 200 prisoners enrolled in the senior college program. But study habits are considerably different on the "inside."

Prison life dictates that studying be done during the inmate's free time, usually after a grueling day working in the fields, the prison laundry or other manual labor.

The new graduates agreed it was not the ideal way to get an education but said the other inmates generally admire their zeal — Stanford said even the prison officials help out in small ways like allowing him to move into an upper bunk with a light, allowing study after "lights out."

Hart said inmates in the program enjoy hitting the books. He added, "It does a lot to hold down problems."

George Beto, former TDC director and now interim director of the Criminal Justice Center at Sam Houston, was the commencement speaker. Beto said, "I believe that men can change. I believe that men do change. I believe that an atmosphere can be created within a prison that is conducive to change."

Hart took full advantage of Texas' continuing education program for inmates, enrolling in junior college shortly after entering prison in 1970. It took Elliott and Stanford even longer to get their degrees. They enrolled in 1968. But if anyone could spare the time, they could.

Both men are serving life sentences.

Lengthy Hughes Will Case Seen

HOUSTON (AP) — A Harris County probate judge said Friday the scheduled Nov. 14 trial of the Howard Hughes estate case could continue into March.

"It is going to be hard to say, but I would imagine it will take a week or two just to get a six-member jury," Judge Pat Gregory said.

"I think, depending on the degree of proof put on by the proponents and contestants of the will, I think the trial could last up to March and maybe longer."

The trial is to determine the legal residence of Hughes and the validity of the purported Mormon will that names Noah Dietrich, a former long-time aide, as executor of the estate.

Hughes, 70, died April 5, 1976, while being flown from Acapulco, Mexico, to a Houston hospital.

Gregory talked with newsmen after a closed door conference with about two dozen lawyers involved in the complicated case. All parties in the case have been placed under a strict gag rule and the lawyers, including Texas Attorney General John Hill, scattered quickly as Gregory talked with newsmen.

It was expected to be the final pre-trial conference.

"We discussed routine procedural matters for bringing the case to trial and started the pre-marking of documents so they can be readily put into evidence without stopping the trial, a procedure that will continue next week," Gregory said.

Gregory said testimony would begin with Texas presenting its proof supporting a contention Hughes was a Texas resident.

Among those opposing the Texas contention are Dietrich and the temporary administrators of the estate, Annetta Gano Lummis, an aunt of Hughes, and her son, William R. Lummis.

Gregory said Dietrich's attorneys, after opposing Texas on the domicile issue, will then offer testimony supporting the Mormon will.

Gregory would not say how many prospective jurors are being summoned but said the six-member panel selected would not be sequestered.

"It would seem to me unreasonably long to sequester a jury for a two to three month trial," he said.

"We will proceed full time, five days a week, but we will take the last two weeks in December off because I also believe it would be unreasonable to require the jurors, counsel, and witnesses to be in trial five days a week during the holiday season."

MORE CRAYONS

WASHINGTON (AP) — According to National Geographic Society, "crayons are as popular as ever. Twenty years ago, 44 crayons were sold for each child in the United States between the ages of 3 and 11. Last year, the $2-billion a year industry sold 62 crayons per youngster."

Homecoming Offers Varied Fare

Ex-students attending Texas Tech University's homecoming today should find a warm welcome from everyone, including the weatherman.

A variety of activities is scheduled, including the traditional parade.

The weather at Jones Stadium should be sunny and warm, with temperatures in the mid-70s when the game between the Red Raiders and Texas Christian University's Horned Frogs starts at 2 p.m.

Festivities begin today at 9:30 a.m. with a coffee honoring all classes in the University Center courtyard. The class of 1952 will hold a silver anniversary reunion coffee at that time, and the 1957 class will have a reception at 4:30 p.m.

Senate Delays Saccharin Ban, Adds Warnings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Friday completed congressional action on a bill to postpone for 18 months any ban on the use of saccharin while requiring health hazard warnings on products containing the artificial sweetener.

The compromise legislation was approved by voice vote and sent to President Carter. The House passed it Thursday.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said the measure also would require stores handling products containing saccharin to post signs warning it might be a hazard to health.

The warning is required only on products introduced into interstate commerce 90 days or more after the bill is signed.

It says "Use of this product may be hazardous to your health. This product contains saccharin which has been determined to cause cancer in laboratory animals."

The legislation requires the warning to be "conspicuous" and to be located as close as possible to the product name.

This labeling requirement will mainly affect diet drinks, but the warning also would be placed on dietetic foods used by diabetics and persons on reducing diets.

The legislation also gives the secretary health, education and welfare authority to issue regulations requiring vending machines, such as soft drink dispensers, to carry the warning if the products being sold contain the sweetener.

both in the Ex-Students Association Building.

The Ex-Students' Luncheon will begin at 11:15 a.m. at the Municipal Coliseum, with Furr's Inc., Furr's Cafeterias, Inc., and Gold Bond Stamps hosting.

The Homecoming parade originates at Broadway and Avenue H, and will continue west on Broadway to the Tech campus, ending in the Administration Building parking lot.

Floors sponsored by various businesses and organizations will be judged, and winners will receive cash and plaques as prizes. The cash prizes are $350, $250 and $150 for first, second and third place. The plaques are donated by William W. "Coach" Brown of Brown's Varsity Shop, Burl Pigg of Pigg Brothers University Jewelry and Irving Carlson of Broadway Drugs.

Floor judges will be English professor J. Wilkes Berry; academic counselor for athletics William E. Talley; Robert Duncan of the office of the dean of students; physical education professor Peggy J. Williams and Mrs. Martin Neal.

Among the parade dignitaries will be the marshal, Lewis N. Jones; Dean of Students Nancy Price; former Texas Tech football coach Bert Huffman; professor and tennis coach George R. Philbrick; and John Wesley Phillips, the university's oldest freshman.

Others will be Mrs. Raymond Marshall of Lubbock, Tech's first Homecoming queen; Arch Lamb of Lubbock, founder of the Saddle Tramps; Cheryl Greer, the first woman to receive an athletic scholarship at Texas Tech; Jeannine McFarney, director of women's athletics; Kimberly Miller, Miss Lubbock; Becky Bailey, South Plains Maid of Cotton; Mary Ellen Harter, Miss Texas Tech and Sharon Kelton, 1976 Homecoming Queen.

Area high school bands, as well as the Tech band, will march in the parade. Other participants include the Masked Rider on Happy V, Raider Red, pom-pom girls and cheerleaders, Lubbock Mayor Roy Bass, former Gov. Preston Smith and Algore Smith, a Tech employee who asked permission several years ago to ride in the parade and has participated ever since.

NO MORE LIVE STAGE PERFORMANCES, ELTON SAYS — British rock star Elton John hammers the ivories during a rehearsal in London Thursday prior to a charity concert Thursday night in North London. O'Hair Will Appeal Decision Of Judge

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Madalyn Murray O'Hair must submit to being fingerprinted and photographed by police, a state district judge ruled Friday, because she admitted from the witness stand she had no conscientious objection to those activities.

Even before the hearing, Mrs. O'Hair said she would submit if ordered because she has to have insulin shots and treatment for high blood pressure, and for those health reasons cannot stay in jail. She also would post $300 bond, she said.

But she told reporters after the hearing she would appeal the decision, possibly going directly to federal court.

"The judge here is in error," she said. Before he made his ruling, Judge Jim Dear made several comments that made it appear he was about to rule for her.

He said he had received numerous telephone calls about the case, but that most people do not understand that judges "do not take office to take popular stands."

Most people do not understand how important the U. S. Constitution is to them, he said.

"You are here because of the First Amendment," he told the nearly full courtroom, explaining that the spectators heard about the case through news media.

"I doubt if 10 percent of the graduating high school seniors can tell you what is in the First, Fourth or Fifteenth Amendment," Dear said.

"The issue of this case is extremely narrow. It is the booking procedure as applied to her," he said.

She had admitted from the stand that she had been fingerprinted in the Army and photographed "with pleasure" many times.

It was because she had no conscientious objections to those activities in and of themselves that the judge ruled against her.

Mrs. O'Hair was arrested Thursday after threatening to talk through the opening prayer at the Austin City Council meeting. She refused to be fingerprinted and photographed at the jail because, she said, it would concede the legality of those activities in a state whose constitution requires public officials to believe in a supreme being.

"With all due respect, sir," she told the judge from the witness stand, "I believe that this proceeding is illegal in that every person (court official) here has to believe in a supreme being."

One of Mrs. O'Hair's lawyers, Debbie Gardner, told the judge her client went to the city council meeting to attend a legislative activity.

"What she found was not a legislative meeting going on. What she found was a private prayer meeting. She was morally outraged when she found her government doing that," Miss Gardner said.

When Mrs. O'Hair was given the oath, the clerk did not add "So help you God." But she refused anyway.

"I don't swear," she said, lowering her hand. "But I understand the consequences of perjury."

South Carolina and Arkansas are the only other states that have similar "illegal" religious requirements in their constitutions, she said.

Lubbock's United Way Drive Surges Past $1,461,822 Goal

Lubbock's United Way campaign surged over the top Friday with a total of $1,498,280 turned in for 102 percent of its $1,461,822 goal.

Volunteer workers from all campaign divisions brought in closing reports to the victory luncheon at Memorial Civic Center to put the drive past the target figure.

The attainment of the goal marked another successful campaign for the community drive and for this year's chairman, Owen Gilbreath.

"It's almost overwhelming to see this much activity at this report," Gilbreath said. "Earlier in the week when the goal seemed so far away from achievement, I would have been hard to convince that we would end it happily and successfully today."

Gilbreath expressed thanks to all who contributed money, work and time to the campaign. "Lubbock people are just great," he said.

The chairman received an ovation as the United Way Flames brought out the final report showing the campaign over the top. He also received a "topper" gift and a gigantic color cartoon from U/W President B.C. "Peck" McMinn, caricaturing Gilbreath as "Goin' Owen," juggling business, community and civic duties successfully. Division totals and percentages contributing to the campaign total are: Pacesetter with $351,896 for 100 percent; Advance Gifts, $97,422, 100 percent; Loaned Executive, $556,308, 100 percent; Professional, $117,378, 114 percent and Employee, $50,236.

Others include Federal with $82,856 for a percentage of 135; State, $10,103, 67 percent; Schools, $90,740, 103 percent; Texas Tech, $39,526, 85 percent; and City, $29,243, 112 percent.

Also contributing to the campaign are Residential division, $12,923, 108 percent; Metro, $26,444, 94 percent; and Business, $31,164, 120 percent.

Volunteers receiving "good guy" awards for achieving quota Friday included: Orville Alderson, Wendell Cherry, Harold Deavours, Rex Fuller, Nelson Hall, Dean Noland, Ken Smith and Tommie Stevens, all in the Advanced Gifts division.

School Bus Stops At Jail

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — When school bus driver Leaester Penny got fed up with her rowdy student passengers, she simply headed Bus 99 for the Indian River County jail. A short time later, 57 students were cooling their heels and waiting for help from home.

Sheriff's Capt. Doyle Stroud said the students — ranging from sixth to ninth graders — were not actually placed in detention, but were kept in a waiting room while their parents were called to come and pick them up Wednesday, Stroud said.

Not all the parents were pleased. Many called district offices Thursday to complain.

"I think it was foolish," said one parent, Stanley Lawrence.

But Mrs. Kenyon Fish, district director of transportation, said it's normal procedure to deliver unruly students to the county jail if their behavior is severe enough to create a safety hazard.

"You'd think we never took kids to jail before," she said. And driver Penny vowed: "I'd do it again tonight. It was dark, they were all fussing and fighting. It's been building up. I couldn't see a thing back there."

Principal Marion Bass of Sebastian River Middle School said he would meet with parents Monday night to "explain the program" about school bus rights.

Soviet Pups Cause Problems

GLEN COVE, N.Y. (AP) — Two large dogs belonging to the Soviet Mission to the United Nations had neighbors muttering in this Long Island community after the dogs got free and jumped affectionately on passersby.

The first incident occurred last week when the dogs jumped on Margaret Adams, 82, who had left a nearby home for the elderly to take her usual morning walk.

Mrs. Adams reportedly was so upset by the incident that she needed a sedative. The dogs repeated their performance several days later.

The owner of the home called the mayor to complain. He in turn called the FBI, who called the State Department, who called the U.S. Mission.

The Soviets agreed to mend the fence around their estate, and the problem apparently has been solved.

Orangutan Defeats Wrestler

WILLIAMSON, N.Y. (AP) — James Brown, a 15-year-old high school wrestler, was back home and nursing his wounds Friday after an unscheduled bout with a 350-pound orangutan.

Despite swollen eyes, bite marks on his left elbow and hand, and stitches in his face in three places, young Brown said: "Tell the orangutan I want a rematch."

According to his mother, Brown was visiting the Toronto zoo with some friends Wednesday when he noticed a baby orangutan trying to eat a camera flashcube.

She said he climbed over a glass enclosure and across a water-filled moat to try to take the flashcube away from the baby, but was attacked by the animal's father.

Brown eventually escaped when the two friends went to his rescue, beating on the orangutan long enough to distract him.

Ben Franklin's Statue Shown

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Benjamin Franklin will see the light again.

A 10½-foot statue of the statesman, said to be one of the best likenesses of him ever carved in stone, has been pulled from the basement of the Public Ledger Building after 54 years in the dark.

It was set atop a six-foot pedestal Friday, and once it's cleaned up, the statue of Franklin — with his balding head slightly bowed and holding a lightning rod — will be spotlighted in the lobby of the building.

The resurrection is part of a $2 million renovation of the building.

Girl Bowls Strike With Car

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — Susan Haney rolled a strike at the Echo Lanes Bowling Alleys just south of here Wednesday night, but she didn't use a bowling ball. She drove her car through the rear of the building, accidentally hitting the accelerator when she meant to apply brakes.

The Mower County Sheriff's Office said Miss Haney, who celebrated her 17th birthday Wednesday, drove into the parking lot at the bowling alley to pick up some friends and inadvertently drove through a fence into an open service entrance of the building.

The car slammed into pin-setting equipment, putting 16 machines out of alignment. Sheriff's officers estimated damage to the alley at $20,000 to $25,000 and damage to the car at $1,200.

No charges were filed against Miss Haney.

Pilot Flies Under Arch

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An unidentified pilot has become the sixth to buzz under the 630-foot St. Louis Gateway Arch in a small plane. Using street lights for an approach pattern, the pilot flew his plane under the legs of the arch Wednesday night, police said.

Two detectives said they saw the aircraft flying low over the lights of Market Street, which ends practically at the base of the arch at the foot of the Mississippi River. It then zoomed under the arch before disappearing into the darkness headed eastward over the river.

Federal Aviation Administration officials said they will investigate the incident, but none of the five pilots known to have previously flown under the arch have ever been located.

Locksmith Seizes Streetcar

BERLIN (AP) — A 21-year-old transit authority locksmith who wanted to drive a streetcar seized both the opportunity and the trolley in the East German city of Magdeburg and is headed for jail as a result.

A Magdeburg newspaper said the trolley fan found a parked streetcar after an evening of drinking, turned it on and set off through the streets, picking up one passenger. Neither was injured, the newspaper said, when the speeding trolley derailed on a switch and rammed a tree.

The locksmith was sentenced to two years and three months in jail. Damage to the streetcar was estimated at more than $80,000.

Patented Skate Board Sparks Legal Battle For Inventor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The International Trade Commission Friday decided to investigate the rear-end of a skateboard known to millions of American youths as the "kick tail."

The ITC, a federal regulatory agency which monitors foreign trade, became involved in the off-beat case because a Los Angeles, Calif., entrepreneur named Richard Stevenson filed a patent infringement complaint with the agency.

Stevenson was awarded a federal patent on the kick tail in 1971. He claims other manufacturers, both American and foreign, have stolen his idea and are profiting because of it.

Stevenson, a former partner in California surfboard and sailboat ventures, is moving on two fronts.

He wants the ITC to ban from the United States skateboards from Taiwan, Mexico and Honduras that utilize the kick tail. Currently, about 5 percent of the skateboards sold in this country are imported.

Stevenson also has filed a lawsuit in federal court seeking to block six domestic manufacturers from using his kick tail.

A kick tail is the curved back-end of the skateboard's fiberglass platform that allows riders to perform gravity defying stunts and make 180 degree turns. A skateboard industry spokesman said most of the more advanced riders or 24 percent of the 60 million skateboards in the United States have kick tails. That figure is expected to shoot up dramatically in coming months, he said.

The growth of skateboarding in the United States during the past four years has been phenomenal. According to industry studies, there were 500,000 skateboard owners in 1973 when the 1960s era had returned to vogue with the advent of polyurethane wheels and other modernizations.

Four years later, that total has surged to 20 million riders who own 60 million skateboards. There are also 150 skateboards "parks" in the United States, concrete areas where skateboarders can zoom around banked tracks in relative safety.

Skateboarding is expected to approach the $2 billion mark in annual sales of boards and related equipment such as knee pads and helmets by the end of 1978, the industry said.

Based on past experiences on patent complaints, ITC attorney Donald Dinan said, Stevenson's chances of being upheld are about 50-50.

He said the commission has until the middle of next year to make final decision in the case.

Salinger Tells About America

PARIS (AP) — Pierre Salinger is still telling France what America is like.

Salinger, President John F. Kennedy's press secretary 14 years ago, is now the man most often asked by the media to explain America.

He is a frequent television and radio commentator and writes a weekly column on U.S. affairs for L'Express.

Why Salinger?

"It was kind of an accident that I got to where I am," Salinger said Thursday. "My calling card was that I was associated with the Kennedys. And the French loved the Kennedys."

"I have an advantage over the other correspondents. I know the White House, the informational channels. I know the numbers to call and the cards to play."

Salinger returns to the United States about once every six weeks to keep it that way.

Carter's Human Rights Priorities Criticized

HOUSTON (AP) — The director of the Council on Hemispheric Affairs said Friday the Carter administration has been unable to give human rights a high priority in its relations with Latin America.

Laurence R. Birns of the privately funded Washington-based council said the most persistent difficulty in formulating a coherent human rights policy for the Latin American region is dependence on the State Department's Bureau of Inter-American Affairs for implementation.

Birns told the national meeting of the Latin American Studies Association the bureau has been a negative factor in the human rights objectives because most of his senior officials were recruited during the Cold War and have little sympathy with the notion of basic rights.

"The career foreign service people use human rights language when they have to appease the administration, but then they work behind the scenes to lessen its impact," he said.

Birns said the basic philosophy of the bureau is to minimize the administration's criticism of violations in such nations as Chile, Argentina, Uruguay and Nicaragua, adding that the bureau is "working behind the scene to maintain traditional relations with the region's dictators."

Birns called for an overhaul of the bureau to make it "more in agreement with the administration's beliefs."

HISTORIC VENDING

Vending machines are not new. As early as 215 B.C. worshippers in temples could get holy water by dropping in five drachmans. In 1615, coin-operated tobacco boxes appeared in English pubs. After a coin was inserted, the lid opened and the patron helped himself to a pipeful of tobacco.

Ex-Delinquent Gives Advice On Rehabilitation

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

People who deal with problem youngsters get a lesson Friday from an ex-delinquent. His advice: traditional ways of "rehabilitating" juvenile offenders don't work very well.

Dr. Warren Rhodes, 29, has been on both ends of rehabilitation attempts. Growing up in Baltimore with other members of a street gang, he dropped out of the eighth grade, ran into trouble with the law repeatedly and ultimately was taken from his home and placed in a juvenile detention center.

But with help from the Job Corps and other agencies, Rhodes got a job, went back to school and now has a Ph.D. in clinical psychology, working with youths who started out the way he did.

"Parents come to me and say, 'Do something for my child. Fix him' — as if every kid who breaks the law has some kind of psychological problem, and all psychologists have to do is stand over his head and make him better," Rhodes told a Lubbock Memorial Civic Center seminar. "Juvenile Justice: The Human Dimension."

"Well, psychology has no magic wands, no bags of tricks."

Rhodes has found, however, that some things do work better than others.

Traditional psychological techniques, such as counseling and therapy, generally are "inappropriate and ineffective," he said.

They work well with patients who want to be treated and cured. But most juvenile offenders, Rhodes said, "are dragged into the counseling office. They don't feel they have a problem, and so they resist treatment."

This resistance leads to more law-breaking, he added. "For the majority of youthful offenders, entrance into the juvenile justice system may produce further involvement with that system."

Rhodes said one way to break that cycle is to move the focus from the offender's "problems" to his legitimate goals and desires. This can be done through methods called "contracting and advocacy."

Under Rhodes' techniques, volunteers — instead of professional psychologists — set up a negotiating session between the problem youngster and his parents.

They bring everything out in the open — what they want and expect from each other — and with "mutual respect" establish some rules for living.

The rules are put down in writing and signed by both parties, Rhodes said. Such contracts can produce "tremendous change in attitude and behavior" of youngsters, he added.

He told, for example, of one case in which a previously "tough kid" agreed to come home regularly, help around the house and improve his personal appearance, so long as his parents would "get off his back" and help him earn money for a stereo set.

Those stipulations were put in contract form, Rhodes said, and the parents and youngster "got along beautifully" thereafter.

The trick, Rhodes said, is in involving the whole family of the juvenile offender and stating the contract in "positive terms," based on things the youth wants.

Also speaking Friday at the seminar, sponsored by the Junior League of Lubbock, was William Lucas, sheriff of Wayne County (Detroit), Mich.

If people really want to improve corrections with new facilities, halfway houses and other programs, they must give more than vocal and fiscal support, Lucas, formerly a special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation and an assistant U.S. attorney, said.

"We all are going to have to pitch in to make these programs work," he said. Lucas added that the criminal justice system also needs fresh ideas on how to deal with delinquency.

"We all have to realize that law enforcement does not have all the answers to all the problems — not just to juvenile crime, but crime generally," he said.

Lucas urged the seminar's 250 participants, representing schools, courts, law enforcement agencies and social services, to explore possible solutions. They may find the "missing link" that other scholars and experts have been unable to pinpoint, he said.

Lucas summarized and expanded on several themes expressed at the conference's Thursday night assembly by Enrique H. Pena, an El Paso district judge and juvenile law instructor, Allen Breed, among the country's leading authorities on juvenile justice, and Robert F. Leonard, president of the National Association of District Attorneys.

Breed suggested that more variety be injected into corrections and rehabilitation programs for juvenile offenders. He said instead of having a single program for all offenders, there should be several different programs, tailored to individual needs.

In this way, he said, the disposition of juvenile cases can be more in line with the nature of a youth's offense and his circumstances.

Lucas agreed, saying corrections and rehabilitation should address the "total human being." But while making programs more humane and individualized, he warned, "don't fall into the trap" of believing that every offender will go straight.

"You cannot help them if they're not going to help themselves."

Cruise Takers Advised To Read Fine Print, Know Cabin Location

By The Associated Press

More and more Americans are spending their vacations aboard cruise ships at sea, but consumers who don't know what to look for when shopping can run into rough sailing.

With the height of the cruise season approaching, one industry expert offered two general rules for consumers to follow. Read the small print on the flyers and be sure you know where your cabin is.

Cruises vary in length, price and style. Among the most popular are:

— Caribbean cruises, lasting one or two weeks. "This is where the action is in the cruise industry right now," said one spokesman.

— Theme cruises, built around a single subject. You can play bridge with the experts, indulge your taste for gourmet cooking and study everything from ancient history to modern jazz.

— "Fly-cruises," which sail from a foreign port. Many cruise lines offer a package including the cruise itself, plus reduced-rate transportation to and from the departure point.

Industry spokesmen say cruise ships will carry more than one million passengers this year. They say shorter cruises and fly-cruises are the most popular, with a limited amount of time and money.

William Armstrong, a spokesman for Cruise Lines International Association, whose 24 members account for 90 percent of the market, said the typical passenger can expect to spend from $80 to $120 a day, not counting tips. If you're comparing that figure against a vacation on land, you should remember that the total includes your accommodation, your transportation, your meals and your entertainment.

Virtually all cruise ships today offer one-class service. All passengers have the run of the entire ship and facilities and select their food from the same menu.

The difference in price, therefore, depends mainly on the location and size of your cabin. An outside cabin with porches will cost more than an inside one. You also will pay more for a cabin located in the middle of the ship where there is likely to be less motion.

The average cruise ship will have about 10 decks, Armstrong said. The top deck generally will be the most expensive since its cabins have the best view and ventilation. It may not necessarily be the most desirable for everyone, however, since you generally will feel more motion on the top deck than you would on the second or third.

Armstrong recommended that would-be passengers start with a travel agent. Make sure, however, that you get an agent who has sailed on or at least visited the ship you are considering.

Whether you deal directly with a cruise line or go to a travel agent, you should ask to see the deck plan and check dimensions of your cabin. Subtract the area that will be occupied by the bed or beds (figure six-foot by three-foot for a single bed) to get an idea of how much space you will actually have. See where your cabin is in relation to public areas and recreation facilities. Check to see whether it is air conditioned.

The cruise lines association, in a manual for travel agents, recommends that the agents check such things as closet size, number of hangers, bathroom facilities, the promptness of cabin service and the type of entertainment. How many tables are there in the restaurant? (You will have to make reservations for your dining room sitting once you get on board ship.)

Ask about port taxes. These can run $8 to $10 per person and, if you have several stops, they can add up.

The time of the year you select will have a bearing on price. Christmas and New Year's cruises are the most expensive. Off-season sailings can cost up to 50 percent less than peak-period cruises.

You also will have to decide what size ship you want. Smaller ships carry about 300 passengers, larger ones accommodate more than 1,000. To compare various ships, ask about something called the "Gross Register Tonnage" or GRT, which is a measure of the volume enclosed by the hull and superstructure. One GRT equals 100 cubic feet and space ratios on cruise ships generally range from 17 to 55 GRT per passenger.

Note: The GRT ratio won't enable you to compare cabin sizes. But it will give you some idea about the general spaciousness of the ship.

Beware of putting too much faith in the minimum price listed in advertisements. There usually are very few minimum prices, inside cabins. You probably will wind up paying more than the bare bottom.

Food is another factor to consider. Ask to see sample menus. Except for shore excursions, you will be eating all your meals aboard ship. You can't decide to switch if you don't like the food.

One extra you will have to add to your budget is tipping. Some sources advise a certain percentage of your fare, but Armstrong notes that with the advent of the one-class ship, there is little difference in the quality of service, no matter what you are paying. He said cruise lines generally suggest — "and it's only a suggestion" — in the neighborhood of $1.50 to $2 per day per passenger for the dining room team and an equal amount for the cabin staff. Do not tip the purser or any of the other ship's officers.

Light Turnout Forecast For Election

If absentee balloting has been any indication, Lubbock County voters are pretty disinterested in the Texas constitutional amendments election coming up Tuesday.

When the 5 p.m. deadline came Friday, only 47 persons had cast absentee ballots, a county clerk's office spokesman said.

Seventeen of those ballots were filled out Friday, she said.

Election officials predict an extremely light turnout when polls open at 7 a.m. Tuesday for voting on the seven proposed amendments.

They concern expanding provisions for denying bail to accused felons, expanding the Court of Criminal Appeals from five to nine judges and allowing it to meet in panels of three judges, enlarging the state judicial conduct commission and giving it additional powers to make judges toe the line.

Also, providing tax relief for historic sites, unique natural areas or other significant resources; allowing the Veterans Land Board to issue and sell $200 million in bonds and making the unmarried surviving spouse of a veteran who died in the line of duty eligible for benefits; allowing Electronic Funds Transfer devices to be located away from bank sites; and allowing collection of fees for commodity promotion, research, education and administration.

Mandatory Lunch Plan Urged

FOR YOUR WANT ADS CALL 762-8821

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A local advocate of the National School Breakfast Program has asked the federal government to make participation in such projects mandatory, instead of optional, on Lubbock and other public school systems.

Children, especially in low-income areas, should not be denied the benefits of programs subsidized by their parents' federal taxes simply because school boards won't sanction local implementation. Sister Regina Foppe told the U.S. Department of Agriculture at a public hearing in Dallas.

She detailed the events that led to rejection of the breakfast program's proposed implementation in March by Lubbock Independent School District trustees. And she told the USDA of an unsuccessful attempt by two school board members to kill Lubbock's participation in the National School Lunch Program.

I urge you to rework the guidelines

(for such programs) so that the few individuals, self-righteous and hard-hearted, who might comprise the majority on a school board... will not be able to deny students attending their schools the right to food which our government has seen necessary to legislate for the students," Sister Regina, director of the Social Action Service of the Diocese of Amarillo at Lubbock, said.

She noted that under a law recently passed by the state legislature, Lubbock and other Texas school districts will be required to offer the federally subsidized breakfasts in each school in which at least 10 per cent of the students qualify for free or reduced-price meals, beginning with the 1978-79 school year.

"However, in the meantime, thousands of children suffer, perform poorly and may feel the effects in later life," Sister Regina said.

She said she views the Lubbock school board's refusal to implement the program immediately as "discrimination, wanting to maintain a society of 'haves' and 'have-nots.'"

The breakfast program would work similarly to the school lunch program. Breakfasts would be served in the morning before classes. Eligible low-income students would get their breakfasts free or at the reduced-price of 10 cents; others would pay 30 cents if they wish to eat at school.

Lubbock school trustees, who seemed supportive of the proposal in February when they authorized a breakfast interest survey, cited a number of philosophical objections in voting 5-2 not to implement the breakfast program.

They said breakfasts are a responsibility of parents, not schools, existing welfare programs are adequate, and the breakfast program would be easily abused and encourage children to be dependent on government handouts.

Two trustees extended the same argument to the school lunch program in July and voted against that.

Proponents of the breakfast program say it would improve students' health, academic achievement and classroom behavior, get youngsters to school on time, and pump as much as $500,000 more into the Lubbock economy.

Under terms of the new state law, Lubbock will be required to implement the breakfast program in more than 40 of the city's 53 public schools next fall.

Sister Regina told the USDA that Lubbock, Midland, Odessa, San Angelo, Waco and Wichita Falls are the only urban areas of Texas which have not implemented the breakfast program.

Bizarre Violence Marks October Crime Picture

Although statistically, Lubbock's crime picture varied little from September to October, the most recent past month saw several of the most bizarre violent acts this year.

There was one more murder in October than the previous month, and the five recorded boosted the year's total to 26 for the first 10 months. On Oct. 21, the decomposed body of 19-year-old Robert Atkinson was found in an East Lubbock portion of Yellowhouse Canyon, 12 days after his bloody abandoned car turned up in a residential alley.

Six-year-old Johnny Turner Jr. was abducted from near his eastside home Oct. 26, and was found dead Thursday in another part of the same canyon; however, because investigators have not yet determined when the child was killed, the capital murder offense will be included in November's totals.

Robbery showed a slight decrease during October, with 20 offenses being reported, compared with 24 for the previous month. However, included in the lower tally were a $200,000 jewelry store holdup and a residential heist, which initial conservative calculations set at about $40,000.

It was the inclusion of these two incidents which boosted the amount of property stolen during October to $660,008, almost twice the total during September. Stolen goods recovered this past month amounted to $159,410.

There were only three rapes reported to police in October, all of which were cleared. During the previous month, two of five rapes were cleared.

Burglary showed the most dramatic increase last month, with 355 break-ins reported, compared with 336 during September. During October 1976, only 295 burglaries were recorded. Attempted burglaries for the month this year totaled 10, compared with 11 for September.

All classes of theft showed increases, accounting for a total of 582 for October, compared with 521 for the previous month.

Reported assaults remained fairly constant — 103 last month and 101 in September.

Juvenile delinquency cases and narcotics violations decreased slightly during October, with 78 and 17 reports made, respectively. In September, tallies showed 86 and 24 such cases, respectively.

Two prostitution complaints were made to police during each of the past two months, as the total number of "other sex offenses" also remained constant at 11.

Drunk and involved cases, as well as driving-while-intoxicated complaints and alleged liquor law violations remained fairly steady during the two-month period, with 156, 11 and four incidents handled by Lubbock officers.

According to the Oriental Zodiac, 1977 is the Year of the Snake. A snake year occurs once every 12 years.

Jobless Rate Eases Back To 7 Percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's jobless rate inched back up to 7 percent in October, raising serious doubt that the Carter administration can meet its unemployment goals for 1977.

The Labor Department reported Friday that the unemployment rate rose 0.1 percent last month from 6.9 percent in September, but still within the narrow range the statistic has been fluctuating for seven months.

The jobless rate was 7 percent in April. Higher unemployment among blacks, steel industry layoffs and strikes by aerospace workers contributed to the October increase.

Unemployed Rise
Almost 6.9 million Americans remained unemployed last month, 10,000 more than in September.

Joblessness among black workers rose from 13.1 to 13.9 percent, while the rate for whites remained at 6.1 percent for the fourth straight month. Over the past year, the black rate has shown no improvement while joblessness for whites declined by more than a full percentage point, the Labor Department said.

President Carter had hoped to reduce unemployment to about 6.5 percent by year end. But government economists said Friday that goal seems out of reach unless the economy improves dramatically over the next two months — and that isn't expected.

Sharp Price Boost
The discouraging job report came one day after the government reported the sharpest rise in wholesale prices since April.

Republicans renewed their criticism of the administration's economic policies and called again for Carter to cut taxes.

Aside from a small rise in employment and an increase in the work week last month, the administration had little to cheer about.

"This of course is a disappointment," said a White House spokesman, adding that the stagnant jobless rate since April "indicates the economic growth has not picked up as fast as we had expected."

Growth Slowed
The unemployment rate had fallen dramatically from its 1976 high of 8 percent last November, when the economy enjoyed a period of rapid growth before slowing in the spring.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Rex Granum said the economy's performance during the remainder of the year will be taken into consideration as the administration determines whether a stimulative tax cut is needed next year.

Granum also said the White House expects "within the next week" to reach a "concrete resolution" of differences with congressional sponsors on a Humphrey-Hawkins full employment bill that would receive administration backing.

The controversial bill, which Carter has endorsed in principle, would set goals to cut unemployment and provide jobs to meet those goals. The Congressional Black Caucus considers the strength of Carter's support for the bill to be a key test of his commitment to black voters who provided him with crucial backing in his election campaign.

Meanwhile, Republican party chairman Bill Brock issued a statement attacking the latest unemployment figures and called again for Carter to cut taxes. "We need tax reduction now," he said.

While unemployment rose last month, the Labor Department said the number of Americans with jobs continued to increase, rising by 135,000 in October to a total of 91.2 million.

Employment has increased by about 1 million since April even though the jobless rate has remained stagnant. That is because the economy is producing only enough jobs to take care of the normal increase in the labor force, but not enough to reduce unemployment.

The jobless rate for adult men last month increased from 4.9 to 5.3 percent; for women, it was down from 7 percent to 6.8 percent, and for teenagers, down from 18.1 to 17.3 percent.

Jobs in the service industries and construction each grew about 45,000 last month, but layoffs in the steel industry and strikes in the transportation equipment industries — mostly aircraft and parts — reduced employment in manufacturing.

Abortions Deadlock Continues; Paycheck Resolution Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved a resolution Friday to guarantee that some 275,000 federal employees will receive paychecks, despite a congressional deadlock over the use of federal money to pay for abortions.

The money for the government paychecks is included in an appropriations bill for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare, but that bill has been stalled for 2 1/2 months because the House and Senate cannot agree on when federal money can be used to pay for abortions under federal medical aid programs.

Senators Irrate
The Senate Appropriations Committee, irate over House rejection of a compromise proposal on the abortion issue, had urged the Senate on Friday to attach the rejected compromise language to the resolution aimed at freeing the federal paychecks caught in the dispute.

But the House adjourned Friday, beginning a three week recess, and the Senate turned down its committee's recommendation and gave approval to the payroll resolution.

In exchange for that approval, House leaders promised to "do everything possible to work out an agreement" over the abortion dispute, said Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash.

Paychecks Okayed
The paycheck resolution, which passed on a voice vote, was the second of its kind that Congress has passed this year because of the deadlock over abortion policy.

Magnuson and Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., the chairman and ranking Republican on an appropriations subcommittee, conferred with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and other House leaders.

"They assured us over at the House that if we'll go ahead and not amend this (resolution) ... they'll just do everything possible to work out an agreement on this," Magnuson said afterwards.

Brooke predicted that the final abortion agreement the House and Senate eventually reach will be "something very close to the Senate language."

House Restrictions
The House wants strict language that would not let the government pay for abortions through federal medical care programs except in cases where a woman's life would be in danger if she carried a child to term. Senators wanted less restrictive language that would allow women to have abortions in cases of rape or incest or when a woman would suffer "severe and long-lasting physical health damage" because of pregnancy.

The dispute has held up passage of an appropriations bill that contains not only the abortion language, but money to pay the Labor Department and HEW employees and District of Columbia workers.

The power cuts were ordered by the Electricity Board because of a backlog of maintenance work at power plants, officials said.

British Rail, the nationwide passenger train service, kept most trains rolling by drawing power from areas not affected by cuts. But local outages affected signalling equipment and many commuters suffered long delays. Train dispatchers called train departures through bullhorns at Charing Cross station, just off Trafalgar Square.

London subway trains ran normally on their own power generators, London Transport said.

Newspapers published street-by-street lists telling the country's 22 million electricity customers when they were likely to have their power cut.

one leader said he hoped "a solution could be found soon. We are looking for a mediator to try to resolve our grievance."

The government's National Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service said it would not intervene and told the strikers they had to use normal union channels. This route appeared blocked because the unions have condemned the wildcat slowdowns.

The strikers from four different unions — engineering workers, electricians, transport, and municipal — are seeking travel allowances, higher shift pay and concessionary prices for their own home electricity.

Their go-slow action began to bite on Wednesday and by Friday was affecting 80 of the country's 137 power stations. The strikers are mostly maintenance men and coal-shovelers, and the majority of the nation's 90,000 power workers were not involved, according to the Central Electricity Generating Board which runs the country's state-owned electricity network.

The Senate also adopted, 57-28, an amendment by Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., to offset some of the higher payroll tax load that would fall on state and local government and non-profit organizations because of the Social Security bill.

The amendment would allow the federal government to pay 10 percent of the additional tax imposed on such employers. This would cost about $20 billion in income taxes by 1990.

Defense Witness Cites Drug Use By Priscilla

AMARILLO (AP) — A Fort Worth electrician told the Cullen Davis murder trial jury Friday he was in several social settings with Priscilla Davis in which drugs were readily available and sometimes used by her.

Malcolm McDaniel said he first met Mrs. Davis in July, 1974 at the home of David Jackson, a mutual friend, where he saw the blonde socialite in possession of a "white powdery substance."

Earlier, McDaniel had referred to the white substance as cocaine, but prosecutors objected, claiming McDaniel was not a drug expert. He was ordered to refer to the drug as a white powdery substance.

The 32-year-old witness, relaxed and poised during defense questioning, said marijuana was "all around the room." He said he has also seen Mrs. Davis "snort" the white substance and take the hallucinating drug, LSD.

Asked by the prosecution why he had never volunteered the information about Mrs. Davis before, the electrician replied, "Because I don't trust you."

McDaniel is currently on 10 years' probation for armed robbery and was the leadoff witness Friday after a lengthy morning delay while attorneys and State District Judge George Dowlen met behind closed doors.

Davis, 44, is on trial here on a charge of venue from Fort Worth where he was charged with the Aug. 2, 1976 pistol slaying of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn. The girl was slain during a midnight shooting rampage at Davis' rambling Fort Worth hilltop mansion, Stan Farr, 30, who was Mrs. Davis' live-in lover at the time, was the second person shot to death that night at the estate.

Mrs. Davis Wounded

Mrs. Davis was critically wounded during the attack as was a family friend, Gus Gavrel Jr., 22. Mrs. Davis identified her estranged husband as the intruder dressed "all in black" who killed Farr and shot her.

Under questioning by defense lawyer Mike Gibson, McDaniel said he attended a party at the mansion in September, 1974 shortly after the defendant had moved out where sex, nudity, drugs and liquor were in great supply.

"You could just walk up to anybody and get whatever you wanted to," he said.

"Rowdery Substance"

McDaniel said on one occasion, Mrs. Davis opened a closet-like safe and took out a plastic bag of a "white powdery substance" and gave it to her then live-in boyfriend, W.T. Rufner, an Arlington electrician.

McDaniel said during the all-night birthday party for a friend of Mrs. Davis, there was nude swimming in the mansion's indoor pool, love-making in an upstairs bedroom, and "tons of people."

Davis was free temporarily on a $1 million bond that was later denied. He has claimed he was asleep at the home of his girlfriend, Karen Master, when the shootings occurred.

Earlier Testimony
Mrs. Master told the jury earlier this week she awoke to find Davis asleep beside her about the same time prosecutors contend he was across town on the shooting spree.

Later, Becky Ferguson, 22, who described herself as a Fort Worth "beer joint" employee, said she first met Mrs. Davis and Rufner at Benbrook Lake in early July, 1974.

She said Mrs. Davis, Rufner, Mrs. Davis' daughter Dee, herself and others drove to a Willie Nelson concert in College Station, adding that she saw "white powdery substances," brown powdered substances and green leaf substances" in the recreational vehicle in which they traveled.

The defense attempted to introduce into evidence color photographs that defense lawyers said, out of earshot of the jury, depicted Mrs. Davis and Rufner engaging in oral sex in a lake during the trip.

Judge Dowlen refused, however, to allow the jury to see the photographs although Miss Ferguson, blushing when she showed the pictures, identified Mrs. Davis and Rufner.

Miss Ferguson was the second witness Friday to contradict earlier testimony by Mrs. Davis, who said she had never taken or been associated with hard drugs.

South African Arms Ban Voted By U.N.

called the council action "an historic occasion."

"We now enter a new and significantly different phase of the long-standing efforts of the international community to obtain redress of these grievous wrongs," he said.

The resolution was a compromise between black African demands for sweeping economic and arms sanctions and Western calls for a limited ban on arms sales. The resolution:

— Orders all countries to "cease forthwith" sending South Africa any arms, ammunition, military vehicles and equipment and spare parts.

End Contracts
— Calls on all states to review "with a view to terminating them" existing contracts and licenses with South Africa for manufacture of arms there, and to refrain from any further licensing arrangements.

— Forbids any cooperation with South Africa to help it develop nuclear weapons.

— Waldheim, charged with enforcing the embargo, asked all governments to provide him with "the most complete information as quickly as possible" on the measures they take to comply with the embargo. Waldheim's first report is due in May, 1978.

In the view of U.N. experts, the embargo is expected to hit hard at France and to some degree at Israel, said to be South Africa's major suppliers of sophisticated weaponry including jet planes, submarines and missile-equipped patrol boats.

Ban By French

French officials say they imposed ban on arms sales to South Africa in November, 1976, except for two existing contracts for naval vessels. But U.N. experts say the flow of other conventional French arms has continued.

There have been reports that Israel has sold small arms and patrol boats to Pretoria and has given South Africa licenses to manufacture Uzi submachine guns and patrol boats.

The Israelis have refused to comment on the reports. A Foreign Ministry official in Tel Aviv said, "Israel will study the resolution and draw its own conclusion."

Makes Own Arms

South Africa claims to produce about 90 per cent of its own arms from guns and ammunition to armored cars, jeeps, trucks, heavy artillery and surface-to-surface missiles. It is also widely believed to be capable of manufacturing nuclear weapons.

South African Defense Minister P.W. Botha said in a statement that the country was fully self-sufficient in weapons needed to fight "terrorism" and well-equipped to block a "conventional onslaught."

The United States banned arms to

A third man, who also pleaded guilty to taking part in the theft ring, was given an eight-year prison sentence.

Jerry Malone of Fort Worth received a five-year sentence for interstate transportation of stolen cattle and five years for interstate transportation of a stolen motor vehicle. Hill ordered the terms served consecutively.

Frank Kenneth Simmons of Keller received two consecutive five-year sentences on two counts of transportation of stolen cattle.

William David Lewis of Greeley, Colo., received a five-year sentence for transporting stolen cattle and three years for transporting a stolen vehicle.

Indian Leader Escapes Injury In Plane Crash

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Morarji Desai escaped with bruised lips but five crew members were killed when the prime minister's plane crashlanded Friday night in the northeastern corner of India, the national news agency reported.

The 81-year-old prime minister is safe and suffered only minor injuries to his lips, S.C. Sinha, chief minister of Assam state, told the Samachar agency.

Sinha said he met Desai in the Indian air force hospital at Jorhat, more than 1,200 miles east of New Delhi, where survivors were taken.

Five crew members of the air force plane were killed in the jarring forced landing in a paddy field, Samachar said. Most other occupants escaped with scratches and bruises but the prime minister's son and personal aide, Kantibhai Desai, and the chief minister of Arunachal Pradesh state, P.K. Tunjong, reportedly suffered broken legs.

The report of the crash landing was given by a reporter for All-India Radio who was aboard the plane and walked three miles to a telephone.

Reports from Jorhat said Desai may cancel the visit he started Friday to the remote northeastern frontier states, his first since taking office last March.

The Indian air force plane, a Soviet-made Tupolev jet transport, was to have landed at Jorhat. Reports said it overshot the runway in bad weather and crashlanded 14 miles away, at Tetala-goon.

Twenty-four hours before Desai was hurt, his predecessor as prime minister, Indira Gandhi, also suffered a slight facial injury.

Police Activities Center On Burglaries In Lubbock

Victims of commercial and residential burglaries were the big losers in crime reports filed by Lubbock police Friday.

Don Horace Floyd of Loop said someone swiped $1,760 worth of property here from a residence at 1305 46th St. since Sunday. The victim said a $200 watch, other jewelry valued at $1,000 and two rifles and a pistol were taken following a break-in.

Damon Abarca said sandals and other merchandise were stolen following two unauthorized entries.

Stephen Atchley of 4645 52nd St. told officers someone stole two rear tires from his van sometime Friday. When the victim walked to his vehicle Friday, he reportedly found the rear end off the ground and on a jack and a spare tire sitting nearby.

Thieves reportedly grabbed $150 worth of tools and an eight-track tape player from Oscar Hughes vehicle at 1603 60th St. Thursday night.

Sherill Overturf of Slaton told deputies someone helped himself to a $300 camper shell Friday morning after it blew off Overturf's pickup as he travelled along the Slaton Highway.

John Shroyer of 5418 6th St. said he had fallen prey to city bike thieves Thursday or Friday and had sustained a $100 loss.

The unexpected arrival of a car mechanic apparently thwarted a would-be robber about 8:30 a.m. Friday at the Phillips 66 service station at 2902 Parkway Drive.

Station attendant Ernest Duckworth said a man wearing a stocking over his face entered the station office, indicated he had a gun and demanded, "I want all the money, and I want it now."

Duckworth said about that time Sylvester "Red" Roberts, a station attendant, came around the corner and "I said, 'Red, get your gun.'"

The man did not stick around to see whether the mechanic had a gun or not, Duckworth said. He ran out of the office and headed on foot southeast towards the Idalou Highway, according to the station attendant.

Duckworth said he did not see a gun, but the man appeared to be pulling a weapon from his belt when Roberts arrived. The foiled stick-up man was described as a slender black man in his early teens. He was wearing a brown jacket and light colored pants.

A Hudson Oil Company supervisor went to the police station early this week to get a copy of an Oct. 15 theft report at one of his gas stations on the Amarillo Highway when he discovered the station attendant at the time apparently did not report the incident.

Roy Lee Rodgers of Amarillo said he was told by the attendant that $1,442 was taken from a back office at the station at 1004 Amarillo Highway.

However, when Rodgers went to pick up a report of the crime earlier this week he was told the theft had not been reported. Police were looking for the attendant, who has since been fired, for questioning.

Two houses were discovered ransacked Thursday and a large quantity of property missing, reports show.

James Lee Smith of 2319 60th St. said he discovered his residence in a disorderly condition about 5 p.m. Thursday and a stereo, jewelry and commemorative bicentennial quarters, silver dollars and 50 cent pieces missing.

Entry apparently was gained by prying open a kitchen door, Smith said.

An antique clock, a gold pocket watch, woman's jewelry, cameras, guns, a coin collection, tools and a television reportedly were discovered missing from Joe Riley Lewis' 8204 Kenosha Drive residence about 5:30 p.m. Thursday. The house reportedly had been ransacked.

Lewis' daughter, police said, discovered the break-in and a loss estimate could not be determined until the owner returned.

A $700 PA system and a $300 printer reportedly were taken from the Liberty Baptist Church at 806 48th St. between Tuesday morning and 7 p.m. Thursday.

The church pastor, Rev. Monroe Scruggs, said the items, along with a bowling trophy, were taken from the church office.

Burglars took a swing at the Lubbock High School Tennis Courts at 21st Street and Avenue U Wednesday or Thursday when three tennis rackets and two cases of balls reportedly were taken from the court equipment room.

The loss was valued at $290. Entry appeared to be gained by breaking through a northeast window.

Melinda Jan Miles of 4717 48th St. told police her purse and coat were taken following a Thursday night concert at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

She said she went behind stage following the show, leaving her purse and coat at her seat. When she returned to her seat the two items were gone, the Tech student said.

Eugeno Vasquez of 1119 53rd St. said a television and stereo were stolen from his house between 2:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Thursday. The apparent burglar walked through the front door, he said.

A $250 stereo was reported stolen Thursday from Virginia G. Sanchez's 2824 Duke St. home. The back door reportedly had been broken open.

Maria E. Gonzales of 812 52nd St. said her house had been broken into between 7:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Thursday and a television and camera taken. She estimated her loss at about $350.

Jury Finds Michigan Woman Innocent Of Murder Charge

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Francine Hughes rejoined her children as a free woman Friday, more than nine months after she was jailed for slaying the ex-husband who beat, harassed and abused her for years.

The petite mother of four, whose trial attracted a following of feminist supporters, was found innocent by reason of insanity by an Ingham County Circuit Court jury Thursday night.

Mrs. Hughes never denied killing the ex-husband she resumed living with after he was injured in an accident.

Judge Ray C. Hotchkiss agreed Friday afternoon to free Mrs. Hughes on $2,500 personal bond. The prosecution raised no objection. He ordered her to appear before Nov. 15 for examination at a state psychiatric facility.

Under Michigan law, Mrs. Hughes could have been held for 60 days at the Center for Forensic Psychiatry in Ypsilanti while psychiatrists determined whether she is mentally ill. She still must undergo the examination.

Mrs. Hughes, who had been charged with first-degree murder, claimed she was temporarily insane the night of March 9 when she ignited gasoline she had poured under the bed on which James Hughes, 31, was sleeping. The former construction worker died in the fire.

She also contended she acted in self-defense to escape further beatings at the hands of the man she married in 1965 and divorced in 1971. Hughes began living at her home in 1972 after he was hurt in an auto accident, but he continued abusing her, she testified.

The verdict Thursday night from the jury of 10 women and two men followed 6½ hours of deliberation and brought elation to some feminist groups which had rallied to Mrs. Hughes' defense.

"I'm pleased, but not quite as pleased as I would have been if the decision was not guilty," said Jack Rotman, a member of the Francine Hughes Defense Committee. "But I'm pleased."

The judge said he thought it might be two years before the impact of the case is known. But he said he hoped it would draw attention to the plight of women "crying for help" and added, "It may scare... a lot of abusive husbands."

"It certainly is good news," said defense attorney Arvon Greydanus, a former labor lawyer cheered and applauded by Mrs. Hughes' supporters.

"I've always maintained that she was under continual stress until she broke," he said. "It was not much different from the pressure any woman faces."

Solons Honored

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sens. James O. Eastland and John Stennis of Mississippi were honored Friday as they neared completion of 30 years in office together, longer than any pair of senators from one state in history.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd praised the two in a floor speech and read a letter from President Carter wishing them "many more years of dedicated service to their state, their country and the United States Senate." On Sunday, Eastland and Stennis will have served together in the Senate for 30 years and a day, eclipsing the old longevity record of Sen. John McClellan and former Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas. Fulbright was defeated in a primary election in 1974.

Byrd said, "The state of Mississippi can be justly proud of the mark and reputation that these two distinguished men have made in the Senate, and I congratulate the citizens of that state in their wisdom in continuing to re-elect and support these exceptional gentlemen over the years."

"But I particularly congratulate my friends and colleagues, Sen. Eastland and Sen. Stennis, on reaching this memorable point in their outstanding careers."

In his letter, Carter wrote that he was pleased to honor Eastland and Stennis

"It is a tribute to them and to the good judgment of the people of Mississippi that Sens. Eastland and Stennis were regularly returned to the Senate throughout the 30 years that have brought such important changes to our nation."

Stennis was not in the Senate when Byrd spoke, but Eastland, who was, said, "I appreciate the very kind and flattering words. I didn't know until yesterday that we had served so long in the Senate."

The 72-year-old Eastland was first appointed to the Senate in 1941, serving 88 days after the death of Sen. Pat Harrison. He began serving his first elected term in 1943.

Eastland has served longer than any other present senator, and is president pro tempore of the Senate as well as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. As chairman, he has presided over the confirmation hearings of all nine of the current members of the Supreme Court.

Stennis, 76, was first elected in 1947 and is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. He suffered serious gunshot wounds when he was robbed outside his Washington apartment in 1973, but recovered after surgery and was elected to a new term in 1976.

SNYDER — Western art takes over Snyder today and Sunday with the annual awards banquet and show of Texas Cowboy Artists Association in Scurry County Coliseum.

Ken Curtis will spark up the banquet today with the drill, country humor of Festus of Gunsmoke fame and the musical sound that made him one of the original "Sons of the Pioneers."

The work of association members will remain on view Sunday.

Among the thousands expected to see the show will be an young Snyder artist Dubb Tubb who has helped put the weekend event together for the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

Looking over what top western artists have done helps further his struggle to place in the art world.

He's trying to get enough bronze works together for a show just to see what other folks think of his work.

So far, he isn't thinking about selling, though collectors are beginning to line up for the day he does. He isn't really sure he will sell.

"Maybe, someday when I'm good enough, if I get good enough, I might, but I'd like to have a show."

Tubb spent 25 years in the oil fields, and grew up in a family trailing from one discovery field to another.

With time now to indulge a creative talent, he turned for inspiration, not to the oil field which he knew but to the West he had loved and studied since a boy.

He started out wood carving, turning to wax as a medium about a year ago.

First came the Indian head which was "just pretty good." Then he did the Mexican with the big sombrero that most beginning sculptors do.

Next, he tried his hand at a barrel racer, using daughter Mandy, currently Miss American Junior Rodeo Association, as a model.

The bronze came out so well he donated it to the AJRA finals rodeo as an award for the best barrel racer in the event slated in Snyder.

Tubb, who began his oil career at 16 as a roughneck in the Mexia oil fields, didn't make it to Snyder for the oil boom.

Getting ready to ship out with the First Marine Division to Korea, he spent his leave time in Snyder where his parents had followed the boomers.

After Korea service, he went back to Snyder where he did his bit to aid oil-rancher relations by marrying the daughter of a pioneer ranching family.

With time on his hands, working with wax for bronzes is just a sideline to keep him "out of trouble."

If, when he has done enough to have a show, the public really likes what he does, he could turn the "creating artist" into a "working artist" for collectors.

ACTRESS RECOVERING

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Nanette Fabray, hospitalized after being knocked down by an elephant, has been moved out of the intensive care unit, a hospital spokeswoman says. Miss Fabray was described Thursday as improving steadily from the fall Monday night during filming of a scene from "Harper Valley PTA." An elephant who had been irritated by a prankster hit her in the chest with his trunk, and she was taken to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in serious condition.

Bookbinder Practices Fast-Disappearing Craft

By FRANK COATS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"Why don't you look around the shop?" the small, wiry man said, gesturing broadly with his arms.

The "shop," Bookbinding and Bible Repair, is filled with valuables, treasures — it is filled with books. Moses Perez, the owner and manager of the shop, is a member of a fading profession. He's a bookbinder.

Not so long ago specialists were craftsmen instead of scientists or doctors. With thority, he said, but he "more or less knows the value of books."

That ancient volume would have been worth nearly $300,000 if it had been complete, Perez said. His eyes glowed and he rubbed his hands together when talking about it: "I didn't get to work on it, that person wanted to sell it, but I hope I get a chance to work on it someday. The book was just found. It had been buried in the sand for nearly 100 years," he said.

The book was a concordance of the Bi-

The story behind the book has a certain flair, a type of magic associated with anything ancient.

Perez said the El Paso man who brought him the book "had something to do with an Indian whose sister was an Indian princess. In exchange for a favor to the Indian, the man received the book as a present.

The book had been buried in the desert with gold doubloons, according to the story. The Indian kept the gold.

Perez has been interested in bookbinding since he was four years old. In Mexico as a child he spent a lot of time with his preacher, who was a bookbinder. He said he would sit for hours observing the man at work. As he grew older, wherever he went he would look for a bookbinder in the area, watching and in some cases working for a while with the artist.

"I developed a love for books, and restoring them and binding them was what I wanted to do," he said.

the growing specialization of the sciences — scientists becoming nuclear physicists and doctors becoming cardiologists — many of the craftsmen began to generalize; their art was being taken over by mass production. Bookmakers and bookbinders began to vanish.

Perez is the only Bookbinder on the South Plains. He restores old books, keeping their original covers, and provides a variety of other services such as binding journals and periodicals as well as his specialty, Bible repair.

"My main concern is restoring, to make the books useful again," he said. If they're not restored they get worse and worse and finally, they're destroyed."

"Not only are we preserving the books, we're preserving the written material," he said.

Perez cares about his work. He smiles while he explains it and fondly handles the books, many of them extremely old. He takes care in his efforts to restore the past.

Around his shop there are dozens of books, most of them Bibles — the kind not much seen anymore, with the huge, engraved cover and a metal clasp to close the book.

He has books dating from the 1600s, and several from the 19th century. Bibles and other books that have been in a family for generations and are gradually losing their binding find their way to him. Last week he had a person come in with a book from the 1400s wanting his appraisal. He's not an established authority, he said. It was published in Germany in 1485.

"It must have been one of the first books printed," Perez said.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've asked doctors about this problem, but they don't seem interested. It's this. I get a hot, burning spot on my rump, on the right side of my spine. I try putting on ointments to relieve the itching and soreness. A boil usually develops, then heals after a discharge of pus. I wonder if you know anything about this? I am a young 73, and otherwise healthy and active. — Mrs. E.C.

Just a thought: this could be a fistula originating in the rectum. A rectal fistula is a tiny, abnormal "tunnel" from the rectum wall out to the skin. The pus means infection.

Such a fistula can originate with an internal hemorrhoid or at any infection point.

If a fistula is confirmed it can be corrected with surgery. Best to see a doctor when the pus appears so he can locate the problem point. It must be mighty unpleasant for you, and I certainly hope you find treatment, whether it is as I speculate or not.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 39, am 5-foot-4, and weigh about 161 pounds. My weight problem began about a year ago after a hysterectomy, leaving one ovary. I have heard so many stories that I am quite confused, and don't really know what to believe. I have been told my weight gain was caused by the operation, and that I will continue to gain weight. Is this true? — S.W.

Hysterectomy tales die hard. You've probably heard other ones about loss of sex drive, and so on. They are unfounded, as is the one about post-hysterectomy fatness. It's possible the surgery relieved your previous problem and made you feel better. For some reason this usually brings weight gain. You just eat more and enjoy it more.

No matter. You need to lose, so find a sensible weight reduction program. Years ago, I expressed sentiments similar to this and was taken to task by some women, who were apparently violently "anti-hysterectomy." It didn't change my views then and hasn't in the meantime. Judiciously-timed hysterectomy has been a blessing to many women. If you need help in your weight-loss ask for my booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing." It works without gimmicks. Send 50 cents to cover printing and handling along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me. Forget you friends' wild tales. They're probably looking for handy excuses for their own obesity.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have two daughters, ages 13 and 14. They have been menstruating since ages 10 and 11. One is very active and does not seem to have as much trouble with cramps. I have heard this makes a difference. However, isn't there something more than paregoric they can take to help these cramps? — Mrs. L.S.

It is true that exercise lessens pelvic congestion and muscle tension (the cramps). The less active girl should do some exercise just prior to the onset of menstruation to see if it helps. If she's not active in sports, calisthenics should be tried. Narcotics are to be avoided. Paregoric is narcotic. Others can be prescribed that are not, but it's usually best to give the body a chance to overcome these things naturally, especially at her age. If the pain is severe or prolonged, other causes beyond menstruation alone should be investigated.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is a varicocele and what would it have to do with infertility? — Mrs. B.B.

First I'll tell you what a varicocele is. It is a collection of varicose (expanded) veins in the scrotum. A varicocele often surgery to remove this. The problem can be involved in male infertility by interfering with the production and transport of sperm.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've been told that alcohol kills the male sperm and that you can't get a girl pregnant while drunk. — J.E.

You've been told wrong.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 10-year-old girl and my breasts are starting to grow. How soon should I start wearing a bra? — C.W.

Whenever you feel more comfortable with one than without.

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with them or other rectal problems, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I must respond to "California Pig," the chauvinist louse who said women's Libbers are largely responsible for the increase in male impotency.

Dear Pig: I'm tired of being your scapegoat. We've been blamed for the rise in unemployment, the increase in crime, homosexuality — and now it's male impotence. Perhaps you've had problems with one woman. Well, too bad. Everybody has problems with somebody at one time or another.

You say "the Libbers" don't want a man to protect them. Do you honestly think men are protecting women today? From what?

Was I protected by a man when he raped me? Was I protected by a man when he denied me an abortion for an unwanted child? Was I protected by a man when he refused to give me a job because he thought women should stay home and do the cooking and cleaning?

Thanks, Pig, but we don't need your "protection." It's high time you stopped blaming women for your own inability to function as an adult. For years you blamed your mother — and now your sweetheart or wife is supposed to take the rap for your immaturity. Grow up or shut up! — Heard that Song Before

Dear Heard: Many "Libbers" wrote to express the same sentiments but your letter was one of the few that was printable. Have a good day!

Dear Ann Landers: You have stated many times that the purpose of your column is to educate people. This letter is on behalf of those of us who handle money.

I work for a large western bank and handle anywhere between $7,000 and $15,000 a day. Almost everyone thinks that the extra $10 or $20 they get when someone makes a mistake will not hurt a large corporation or bank. They are right. It won't — but it can sure hurt a teller or a cashier. What people don't realize is that it goes against his (or her) record and could cost a person his job.

I am appealing to your readers, to please — if you get more money than you are entitled to — return it. Not only will your honesty reaffirm the cashier's faith in humanity but it might even save his job. — We All Make Mistakes

Dear Mistakes: Here's your letter — but you left out the most important benefit of all — self-esteem. Returning money when you have been overpaid gives you a good feeling about yourself. And people who feel good about themselves are a joy to all mankind.

Dear Ann Landers: I received in the mail yesterday morning two invitations — both for dinner parties on the same evening.

I like one of these couples better than the other but my husband says we should divide the time — go to one for cocktails and explain that we have an obligation to go elsewhere for dinner. He feels in this

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY
Today's hand was played 20 years ago in the last quarter of an important team match.

You are in seven spades and it is a cinch to see that your opponents would also be there.

Your team was well behind at the three-quarter mark and you realize that your only chance to win will be to make seven while your opposite team goes down.

The hand is going to depend on taking a successful heart finesse and when you get around to it you have managed to eliminate everything but hearts and East has discarded one. Hence, he started with four — West with three — so the odds are slightly in favor of playing East for her ladyship.

Pedro Cabral of New York decided after long thought that the other South would take the percentage play. He played West for the queen and made the grand slam.

Now, what would you do if you were at the other table and only wanted to make the same play that Pedro made.

The other South took the percentage play, lost the slam, but still won the match by a very small margin.

Ask the Jacobys

A Michigan reader wants to know what the four-spade bid means in the partnership sequence: one diamond, one spade, four spades.

Most experts play it as showing the same 18 or 19 points in support of spades as standard bidders do, but add the extra proviso that their hand does not include a singleton or void.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:
Here is a great tip I learned from a man who lives alone.

He uses some items in large jars so seldom that they can quickly spoil. He says that after opening them he stores the jars upside down in the refrigerator to prevent air from entering.

Be sure to close the lid tightly before inverting. It seals great! — Mrs. Pat Tollner

Dear Folks:

I know that man is right! For years I've had queries about my jars being topsy-turvy in the refrigerator.

I store relish, pickles and anything containing vinegar in this way.

This keeps that "stuff" from forming. This is white substance that forms on the surface of a fermenting liquid.

Turning the jar upside down seals the air out, thus retarding the spoilage. Just make sure your lid is on tight!

My milkman tipped me off to this one on cottage cheese, yogurt and sour cream, too. After the carton has been opened the first time, store in an upside-down position, making sure the lid is on securely. It will stay fresh much longer.

Also when I go to store syrup bottles after using, I screw cap on tightly, give the bottle several upside-down tumbles, making sure the neck of the bottle is filled with syrup each time I turn it over.

This seals the bottle and keeps mold from forming on my syrup.

Now, if you don't mind being accused of standing on your head, try this bottoms-up idea.

You'll preserve food a lot longer. And isn't this what we need to do?

Love, and happy eating to you all! — Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise:
We tend to give the direction but we as parents forget to explain logic. Kids understand better and become more conscious when made aware.

We want the children to have values, but sometimes we don't use everyday situations to help them learn values even if there is a change in maturity. — Mary Green

Dear Heloise:

If you are sewing or pin something with a safety pin and it won't go through the material, take the needle or pin and run it through your hair several times.

Don't know what it is, but this works like a charm. — Catherine Hanselmann

Dear Heloise:

I don't have a blender, but when I want to use peaches or other cooked fruit, I use my electric mixer to get the consistency I want for recipes that call for them. — A Friend

Dear Heloise:

If you have a deep-fat fryer, it's great to cook macaroni, noodles and spaghetti in. Boil water in bottom of pan, add strainer basket with macaroni or whatever in. Lift out to drain — less mess and no burns from steam — Jean

Jean is right as can be, folks. I've even cooked potatoes for mashing in this basket. (By the way, these can be purchased separately at most stores and you can set them into an ordinary pan.)

When potatoes are done, just take to the sink, lift up the basket, pour the scalding water from the pan down the drain and put the drained spuds back into the hot pot to mash.

Try boiling eggs in one. Great! — Heloise

THIS COLUMN is written for you...the homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Lubbock Woman Receives Award

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Mrs. Catherine Crawford of Lubbock, Extension agent for District 2 of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, recently received the Texas Superior Service Award in ceremonies held at Texas A & M University.

She was cited for "unique initiative and exemplary resourcefulness in developing 4-H and youth program guidelines that have led to enriched learning experiences and increased 4-H enrollments across Texas."

In announcing the award, Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, Extension director, said Mrs. Crawford has "enriched the Extension Service 4-H and youth program with an effective teaching approach that is inspiring to youths and adults across the state."

As a member of and chairman for the state 4-H Development Committee, Mrs. Crawford was a strong force in development of the "4-H Design for Discovery" concept that initiated a systematic and effective approach to planning and learning experiences of 4-H members.

"Because of her efforts, the 4-H youth program sharply focuses on education through a strong volunteer-leader framework aimed at providing 4-H members with the best possible experience for personal growth and development," Pfannstiel added.

Two Hair Dye Chemicals Under Study

By JAMES PHILLIPS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration may require a cancer warning to be printed on labels of some permanent hair dyes if studies show an individual who uses the dye risks developing cancer, FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy said.

Kennedy said the FDA has asked the National Cancer Institute to expedite a study of two chemicals commonly used in some permanent hair dyes because "we've been concerned about it."

"We'll take regulatory action if necessary after the results are final," he said. His comments came after the Environmental Defense Fund, a private environmental group, petitioned the FDA to require a cancer-warning label on some permanent hair dyes. The fund said an unreleased National Cancer Institute study shows two closely related chemicals in the dyes cause cancer in laboratory animals.

A National Cancer Institute spokesman confirmed the existence of the study but declined to disclose any preliminary findings.

Industry spokesmen disputed the claim and said permanent hair dyes are safe.

The chemicals in question are 4-methoxy-m-phenylenediamine, known as 4MMPD, and 4-methoxy-m-phenylenediamine sulfate or 4MMPDS.

The unreleased National Cancer Institute study shows that both rats and mice fed substantial amounts of 4MMPDS developed "a significantly higher incidence of tumors," the fund said.

But a spokesman for the Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association, John F. Corbett, said, "The Environmental Defense Fund has jumped to conclusions on the basis of an as-yet unevaluated study by the National Cancer Institute in which rats and mice were fed massive doses of one hair dye ingredient at a level equivalent to a woman drinking 25 bottles of hair dye a day every day of her life.

"The hair-coloring industry has sponsored five studies in which animals were painted with hair dyes containing 4MMPD throughout their lifetime without producing cancers," Corbett said.

The EDF estimated 25 million American women use permanent hair dyes.

In petitioning the Food and Drug Administration to require a warning label on permanent hair dyes containing 4MMPD or 4MMPDS, Joseph Highland of the fund said the unreleased study "leaves no doubt that 4MMPDS is both carcinogenic and mutagenic and presents a potential risk to humans as it is absorbed through the scalp."

The cancers developed by laboratory animals included thyroid and skin tumors, Highland said.

The warning label sought by EDF would read: "This product contains the chemical 4-methoxy-m-phenylenediamine, which can enter your bloodstream through your scalp, and has been shown to cause cancer in animals."

A similar label was requested for products containing 4MMPDS.

"Most permanent hair dye products contain either 4MMPD or 4MMPDS," Highland said.

Disease More Lethal For Aged, Ailing

ATIANTA (UPI) — Legionnaires' disease appears to be a particularly dangerous ailment for the elderly and those with underlying illnesses, federal health officials said Friday.

The national Center for Disease Control said there have been 29 confirmed cases of Legionnaires' disease in Vermont, 16 fatal, with more than half the deaths occurring in people with other diseases such as cancer or kidney disease.

In addition, there have also been 20 highly probable cases identified in Vermont, two of which were fatal, the CDC said.

The CDC's latest data in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report on the severe respiratory ailments coincided with an announcement that a congressional subcommittee headed by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., will hold a hearing at the CDC Wednesday on the agency's handling of the Legionnaires' disease investigation. Dr. William Foege, assistant U.S. surgeon general and director of the CDC, will be the leadoff witness.

"The high case-fatality rate appears to be related to the presence of underlying disease," the CDC said of the Vermont outbreak. It said patients with malignancy, renal disease, or those undergoing therapy in which the body's natural defenses are suppressed, had a case-fatality rate of 55 percent "whereas patients without underlying disease had a case-fatality rate of 17 percent."

Most of the Legionnaires' disease victims who have died also were elderly, although there have been a few exceptions to this, according to Dr. Robert Craven, an epidemiological intelligence service officer with the CDC. Craven assisted in the investigation of an epidemic of the ailment in Philadelphia in July 1976. Of the 29 people who died in that outbreak, he said, the youngest was in his forties.

In addition, the deaths that have occurred in the three "cluster" outbreaks of the illness this summer and fall in Columbus, Ohio; Kingsport, Tenn.; and in Burlington have involved older people.

Since the Philadelphia epidemic, there have been 118 cases of Legionnaires' disease, and 34 deaths, in 26 states and the District of Columbia, according to the CDC.

The CDC said that since August there have been 25 confirmed cases in Tennessee and four deaths.

Federal health officials are conducting investigations in the "cluster" areas in an effort to find out how the illness is transmitted where the organism lives and what triggers its sometimes explosive outbreaks.

THE MANY LOOKS OF GINO—Gino Vannelli's Concert in the Lubbock Coliseum Thursday night, like his past shows saw Vannelli animated as he counted the band and flung his elbows and body in time with the lights and the synthesizers. For those who never caught Vannelli's act before, the concert had to be a thrill of symphonic sound and color synchronization. Nevertheless, the crowd numbered only a disappointing 2,500 and failed to respond with the enthusiasm of past audiences. Zero-Plus Dialing Makes Debut Here

By CARRIE CURTIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Beginning next week, Zero-Plus Dialing, a faster method of making operator-assisted long distance calls, will be available to parts of Lubbock.

Texas Tech University on-campus telephones, telephone numbers beginning with 745, and Slaton numbers will have Zero-Plus Dialing Monday, according to Bob Dunbar, division manager of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The new service is used when making person-to-person, collect or credit card calls, calls billed to a third number or calls from pay phones and hotels and motels.

Dunbar emphasized that, while One-Plus Dialing is still the cheapest method of calling long distance, Zero-Plus allows much faster telephone service on other types of long distance calls.

The division manager said that Zero-Plus Dialing works much like One-Plus. He explained that "The customer dials zero, then the area code and the telephone number."

"When the customer finishes dialing the call, an operator will enter to obtain the information needed to complete the call. The operator leaves the line as soon as the call is completed."

The biggest advantages of the Zero-Plus Dialing for Southwestern Bell and its customers are speed, more accurate billing and more efficiency, according to Ken Jehling, manager of network administration in Lubbock.

Using the old system of cord switchboards and operators, it would take approximately 75 seconds to get an operator on the line and 1 1/2 minutes to complete a long distance telephone call. The new system will enable an operator on the new console switchboards to complete a long distance call in 35 seconds, Jehling said.

He added that often a call is completed and the party being called has answered the phone before the operator has a chance to get the needed information from the first party.

With the old operator system, tick-error was possible, Jehling said. With the new Zero-Plus Dialing, the billing information given to the operator is recorded automatically on magnetic tapes. The billing for the new system then uses an electronic system from the recorded messages on the magnetic tapes.

The Southwestern Bell manager of network administration said, because the new system allows operators to complete calls faster, the existing operation will be made more efficient. He added that although the new Zero-Plus Dialing will require fewer switchboard operators, jobs are being found within the company for operators no longer needed in the new system.

The Zero-Plus Dialing system, in Lubbock is also being tied into Zero-Plus Dialing systems in other West Texas cities to form one giant district network. When systems are completed in Lubbock, Abilene, and Amarillo, they will tie in with an existing Zero-Plus Dialing system in Midland-Odessa.

Jehling said the system tie-ins will allow operators in Lubbock, or any other city, to answer a call from any of the other cities in the West Texas district.

Acts Of Terrorism Worry Nazi-Hunter

SEATTLE (AP) — Kidnappings and political murders around the world could bring a breakdown of order and result in one strong ruler taking charge, Nazi-hunter Simon Wiesenthal has warned.

"We have in our time the pollution of environment. The water is bad and the air is bad and the animals die and the birds die," he said Thursday. "But another pollution we ignore. We are living between murderers. To make clean this pollution is in our hands."

Wiesenthal, founder and head of the Jewish Documentation Center in Vienna, is known for unmasking more than 1,100 Nazi war criminals in hiding. He was in Seattle for a speech Thursday night.

"I see in my work a memento and a warning for the murderers of tomorrow," Wiesenthal said. "They must know they can never rest and they have no place in our small world where they can be safe."

Archbishop Calls Self 'Realist'

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Archbishop William Borders grimaced at the word "progressive" — a term used widely to describe his stance on church issues.

Borders, 64, who has attracted attention because of his statements that the Roman Catholic church cannot ignore a changing society and expect to remain an influential force, prefers to call himself a "realist."

His views have plunged him into waters that his peers are only beginning to test.

"I am rather realistic as to the direction of the church," said Borders in his modest but modern downtown office. "The church must be sensitive to where people are and I am convinced that in this society leadership in the church must be broad."

Borders' actions toward accommodating all groups — women, parents and youth — in positions of leadership probably account for his archdiocese's success in keeping and attracting church members.

While church leaders across the country bemoan a decline in interest in the conventional church, the Baltimore archdiocese has increased its membership by 51,538 since last year, bringing it to 505,952.

The single action that will stamp Borders' name in church history books was his announcement in August that he would appoint women to top church administrative positions and allow them to take on roles as lay lecturers, leaders of the catechism and ministers of the Eucharist.

He asked clergy to be "sensitive to the fact that some women have experienced inequities in the church" and to ask women what "impression we give in our speaking."

He also said he wants the clergy to be sensitive to "sexist language" in the scripture.

"Women not only want to contribute, but will augment the capacity of the church to effect and enrich people," said Borders, who is short, grayhaired, bespectacled and easy to approach.

"They have really not been in too many executive positions and have not been involved in policy-making," he said. "But this is a different period of history."

Borders said he has received no reaction from the Pope and has received support from fellow archbishops.

Borders would not say if he believes that women should be ordained as priests. He said this is a theological question that he is not competent enough to answer. He said, however, he does "not anticipate women being ordained in my own generation."

But Borders is not willing to keep the question unanswered.

In January, when the Vatican reiterated its opposition to the ordination of women, Borders responded that new avenues for women in the ministry ought to be sought, including deacons.

At the time he said, "I am convinced that in the presence of God, as pastoral needs develop showing the need for women in ministry, the Holy Spirit will make us aware of those needs and present disciplines will be changed."

At a February meeting in Chicago of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, Borders asked his peers to further examine the issues behind the Vatican's declaration in January.

Borders is also trying to encourage parents to become more involved in the Church. They are taught how to help prepare their children for receiving the Sacraments and the Eucharist and for Confirmation.

"Parents are vital," Borders said. "In other periods you could delegate to the schools the responsibility for spiritual formation. You can no longer do that today. True spiritual values are realized in a love relationship."

"For that reason, we have to bring along patterns to support the parents."

In addition to parents, Borders has formed advisory councils composed of congregation members to advise the Church on education, liturgy, finances and social concerns. He said the Church can provide persons with the ability to make judgments when confronted with such influences.

African Violets Call For Special Techniques

By ELVIN McDONALD

Last August I included in my column a question from a reader who grows flower-covered standard-size African violets but hasn't been able to get the miniatures to bloom. Since I have the same problem, I asked readers for help. Now I have the answers, thanks to a reader in Oklahoma who signed her letter simply, "Mrs. C."

What it boils down to is that even though miniature African violets are smaller, they need a little more of everything the standards require in order to bloom. In the words of Mrs. C:

"Miniatures need more fertilizer instead of less. Use a fertilizer labeled specifically for African violets and apply on a constant-feed program, which is to say a little with every watering, applied at about one-fifth the strength recommended on the label for fertilizing every two to four weeks.

2. Water more. Miniature African violets thrive on a wick-watering system. If allowed to dry out, they are much more prone to growing suckers (instead of blooms) than are the standards.

3. Provide more humidity. Standard African violets will bloom in relatively low humidity if other conditions are satisfactory. The miniatures need moderate to high humidity, which is to say over 40 percent. Mist the leaves any time they look "thirsty."

4. And the most important "more" of all: Miniature violets need more light than the standards in order to bloom. In a fluorescent-light garden the top leaves should be 5 to 6 inches directly beneath the tubes; in natural light, provide a few hours of direct sun, ideally in an east-facing window or near a southern or western exposure.

5. The fifth rule is for less instead of more: Keep miniature African violets in tiny pots; a 2 1/2-inch diameter is the maximum for a mini; 2 or 2 1/4-inch size is recommended. Semiminiature African violets do well in pots no more than 3 inches in diameter.

Mrs. C. also points out that the miniatures will stop blooming if temperatures exceed 90 F., and, by my own experience, I know that this is true of the standards. In addition, I find that violets of any size tend not to bloom when nighttime temperatures fall consistently below 50 F.

Although Mrs. C. signed off by saying she was sure I would receive as many recipes for coaxing miniature African violets into bloom as there are "growers getting them to bloom," she may be surprised to learn that no other reader came to the rescue. But a lot wrote to say they can't get violets of any kind to bloom.

If there is one thing I have learned about African violets since my Great Aunt Eulice gave me my first, 31 years ago when I was nine, it is that they are adaptable plants. In other words, think about the kind of environment they need, duplicate it as closely as possible — and then be patient. If you keep moving an African violet around from place to place, even within the same room it may never have a chance to adapt.

In a nutshell, here is what African violets need in order to thrive and bloom:

Light: Bright, as in a north window, or near a sunny east, south or west window. African violets were the first plants to be widely grown in fluorescent-light gardens; to grow this way, place two 20-, 30-, or 40-watt tubes in a reflector eight to 12 inches above the leaves and burn the lights 14 hours daily. Use an automatic timer to assure light-dark periods of uniform duration.

Temperature: Average dwelling or office, specifically, a range of 62 to 75 F. Provide fresh air blowing directly on the plants.

Soil: Use a packaged potting soil, labeled for African violets. Or mix your own. I suggest using two parts of packaged all-purpose potting soil to one each of sphagnum peat moss, vermiculite and sand (or perlite). Keep the soil evenly moist by applying water of room temperature from the top.

Mealybugs, which form cottony white masses among the leaves, are the chief enemy of African violets. Get rid of them by removing with a cotton swab dipped in denatured alcohol. Repeat at five-day intervals as necessary. It pays to do this in good light and with a magnifying glass in hand.

Cyclamen mites can also cause big trouble with African violets. These are too small to be seen with the naked eye, but there is no mistaking the damage they cause: malformed new leaves and flower buds, hard white centers, excessive hairiness. The treatment is a miticide spray or dip, following label directions. African violets that have been badly over-fertilized sometimes exhibit almost the same symptoms; the cure in this case is to flush the soil with fresh water of room temperature several times in one day.

Watering the roots of African violets with ice-cold water, or splashing the leaves with it, causes ugly yellow spots to form on the foliage. Soil that is too dry causes older leaves to wilt and die. Too much hot sun will burn spots in the leaves. Weak light results in pale, spindly growth and no flowers.

If you would like a list of specialists who ship African violets by mail, as well as the address of the African Violet Society of America, write to me in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

P.S. Never buy an African violet you see displayed on the sidewalk in front of a shop in chilly weather, even if it is flower-covered. If it's cold enough for you to wear a sweater, African violets belong indoors where it's warm.

HOUSE CALL
Q. Every time I think my African violet is growing a flower bud it turns out to be a cluster of new leaves. Is this natural?

A. Yes, but you can encourage budding by removing each cluster of new leaves that forms at the base of an older leaf. Growths like these are called suckers; certain varieties tend to grow these instead of flowers.

Q. My African violets have beautiful leaves but no flowers. My neighbor says they are probably boy plants instead of girl. Could this be the problem?

A. No. There is no such thing as a "boy" or "girl" African violet. Try feeding your plants with a fertilizer labeled for African violets.

Plants That Survive Poor Care May Turn Out To Be Winners

After looking over some of my recent columns, I've decided you may think that all of my plants are hothouse beauties, grown to perfection and groomed to an inch of their lives. Not so.

I have gloxinias that never bloom a spider plant with brown tips and another with brown scale. There's a holy fern that neither dies nor lives — it just sits — and a palm that has just recovered from red spider-mites.

I have to confess also to owning the ugliest horsehead philodendron (P. bipennifolium, sometimes called P. panduriforme in captivity. It hangs out — and in several other directions — in the room where we watch television.

In fact, considering that this poor philodendron has survived six years in the same 4-inch pot and the same depleted soil, it's time I paid it some respect. To assuage my guilt, I've given it a very chic woven terra-cotta planter to hide the pot and ideal light, about a half day of sun. Now it needs a bigger pot, fresh soil, a slab of moist bark or moss on which to climb and a lot of pruning, training and misting.

All of these things I can — and want to provide. If the philodendron doesn't like the view (mostly an apartment building across the street) or the television programming, we may have a problem.

What I've decided is that it pays to take a fresh look at the plants that survive for each of us in less-than-ideal conditions

With a little extra attention and love they may turn out to be real winners.

Take gloxinias, for example. Not all the varieties I've tried fail to bloom so, over a period of years, I've weeded out the no-shows. One red-flowered hybrid in particular bursts into a bouquet of bloom every three months, even when I neglect giving it a month or two of rest and some new soil.

Since this plant has given me so much pleasure in conditions that are far from ideal, I have set seeds on it, hoping to grow a whole crop of gloxinias that really flower. The next time you grow one that blooms, I suggest you do the same. Here's how:

1. Look inside the flower after it has opened fully. You will see the pistil surrounded by the pollen-bearing anthers. When the tip of the pistil, the stigma, flares open, it is ready to receive the pollen. Use a small camel's hair paintbrush (the kind artists use) to transfer some of the pollen to the tip of the pistil.

2. If the pollination is successful, the flower will soon fall off and the pod will begin to grow.

3. After about two months the pod will begin to turn brown and split open. Clip it off, with an inch of stem, and drop into an envelope; leave the flap open.

4. Keep in a warm, dry place until the pod is completely dry, by which time the seeds will be mostly rolling around in the bottom of the envelope.

5. Remove any dried-up parts of the pod from the seeds and they will be ready to plant.

You can set seeds on an amaryllis the same as a gloxinia. To get at the pollen on an African violet, use manicure scissors to clip open one of the yellow sacs by which the pollen is contained. Begonias have both male and female flowers; to pollinate, take pollen from a male and apply it to the stigma of a female.

Watching your own seedlings grow is fun, but nothing compares to the thrill of finding buds and watching them bloom for the first time. Of course, you'll eventually have to get rid of every seedling that is not as good as or better than the parent.

GROUNDBREAKING — Groundbreaking ceremonies are scheduled at 11:45 a.m. Sunday for a new $750,000 building of South Plains Church of Christ at the intersection of 68th Street and Elkhart Avenue. The church congregation is five years old. It has been meeting in a structure at the site, which will be converted into a children's worship center and educational building. It also will house offices of the church's bus ministry.

The auditorium of the new structure will seat 750 persons. Present membership is about 250. Bonds are being sold to finance construction, a church spokesman said. Elders of the church — Earl Swinford, E.W. Goodgion and Stan Elliott — will lead the dedication ceremony. Ministers are Gary Ball and T. Middlebrook. (Architect's Drawing)

Broadview Church Dedication Planned

One of Lubbock's newest church structures, that of Broadview Baptist Church, will be dedicated and a formal opening held Sunday.

The church building, valued at more than $200,000, is located at 1402 N. Frankford Ave.

Broadview Baptist Church is six months old and it is the 77th congregation in the Lubbock Baptist Association.

Nucleus for the church membership, which has grown past 200 in attendance, were Anglo members of one of the city's older churches, Arnett-Benson Baptist.

who voted to build a new structure in the suburban area of the city, and name it Broadview. The former Arnett-Benson Baptist Church is now a Baptist mission church for Spanish-speaking persons.

Before the present structure of Broadview Baptist was completed, the church membership met in the Baptist Association Building here. The new church organization was formed in April of this year.

Pastor of the new Southern Baptist Church is the Rev. Cordell Bales. He said the church has experienced a remarkable growth in six months. The church already is operating two busses in its bus ministry and one of the busses transports 25 senior citizens to Sunday School each Sunday.

The dedication program is scheduled at the church at 3 p.m. Sunday. Dr. Taylor Pendley, Texas Missions Division, Texas Baptist Convention, will be speaker at morning worship services Sunday and will participate at the dedication. Other speakers at dedication will include the Rev. Doyle Holmes, head of the mission program of the Lubbock Baptist Association; and the Rev. Weldon Drake, the Rev. Jimmy McGuire, the Rev. H.F. Scott and the Rev. Barney Quillen, all of Lubbock.

A "dinner on the ground" observance will be held at noon Sunday. Members and visitors are invited.

DEDICATION SLATED — Formal dedication of the Broadview Baptist Church's new building at 1402 N. Frankford Ave., will be observed Sunday. Special services will be held throughout the day and the dedication ceremony will be at 3 p.m. Pastor is the Rev. Cordell Bales. The church plant is valued at more than $200,000. Church members have been meeting in the Baptist Association Building until the structure was completed. The new building survived a serious fire threat before being completed. Nucleus for the 200 persons attendance to which the church has grown, came from the Anglo membership of the older Arnett-Benson Baptist Church. Dr. Taylor Pendley of Dallas, of the Missions Division of the Texas Baptist Convention, will be a special guest. Also participating in the dedication ceremony will be Rev. Doyle Holmes, the Rev. Weldon Drake, the Rev. Jimmy McGuire, the Rev. H.F. Scott and the Rev. Barney Quillen. (Staff Photo)

Pastor Resigns At Sundown

SUNDOWN (Special)—Rev. Harold Davis has resigned as pastor of the First Baptist Church here. The resignation will be effective November 7.

A farewell fellowship honoring Rev. Davis and his family will be held following the night service Sunday at the church.

Members and friends of the family are invited, a church spokesman said.

Rev. Davis became pastor of the First Baptist Church here in July 1973. He is a native of Van, Tex. He graduated from Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene in 1969 with a bachelor of arts degree. He received a master of divinity degree from Southwestern Baptist Seminary in 1973. He is married to the former Marilyn Kay Forbus of Lorraine. The couple has one daughter, age 3 years.

Rev. Davis will accept the pastorate of Park Heights Baptist Church at Tyler.

Harold Drennan of Morton will serve as interim pastor of the Sundown church until a successor can be named.

Episcopalians Set Meeting In City

Episcopalians from throughout Northwest Texas will gather in Lubbock November 12 for the 19th annual diocesan Council session.

Bishop Willis R. Henton, bishop of Northwest Texas, presiding.

Theme of the Council session for 1977 will be "The Diocese as a Family."

Business will include election of officers, Christian ministry and mission; Christian living and education and diocesan communications.

The Council session will begin at 9:30 a.m. November 12. Council Eucharist will be held at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, November 13, at South Park Inn.

A preliminary party will be held November 11 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.; and diocesan Churchwomen's organization will meet at 7:30 p.m. November 11. Betty Gilmore, president, will preside.

Bill Armstrong of St. Paul's Episcopal Church of Lubbock, is a nominee for membership on the Commission of Christian Living and Education.

St. Luke's Schedules Groundbreaking Rite

Ground will be broken in ceremonies at 3 p.m. Sunday for a new $700,000-plus sanctuary for St. Luke's United Methodist Church at 3717 44th St.

Presiding will be Bishop Alsie Carleton of Albuquerque, N.M., bishop of the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Plans call for a sanctuary (auditorium) in the new structure able to seat more than 700 persons. Location will be on the east side of a block-size property of the church.

The present building will be remodeled for a fellowship hall and Church School classrooms. There also will be classrooms in the new structure.

The new structure will mark the third main building needed by St. Luke's in its 23 years of existence. The church has experienced tremendous growth in recent years, according to church spokesmen.

Pastor is Dr. William R. Fleming.

Activities, Services Offered At Centers

By TANNER LAINE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Located near the campus of Texas Tech University are more than a half dozen handsomely-furnished and equipped student centers, sponsored by Lubbock churches and religious groups.

These centers range from a "home away from home" residential concept to chapels, libraries and social halls.

Activities range from "corn popping" and "candy pulling" parties to formal worship services, including Wednesday night prayer meetings.

Programs have a broad scope in giving the student a close contact with his or her religion or church affiliation.

One of the older centers is the Wesley Foundation of the United Methodist Church at 2420 15th St. This large brick residence-type structure is a memorial to late pioneers of Lubbock, Dr. and Mrs. M.C. Overton.

One of the newer centers is University Ministries at 2412 13th St. This center is sponsored by Presbyterian, Lutheran, Christian (Disciples of Christ) and United Church of Christ denominations. It contains a Capt. Gerald A. Brown Memorial Chapel. The metal inscription reads: "In memory of Capt. Gerald A. Brown, Fort Worth (1941)-Vietnam (1967)."

The other centers include: Church of Christ Student Center at 2406 Broadway; large enough to handle a gathering of 250 to 300 students; Catholic University Parish Hall at 2304 Broadway, where daily masses are recited for students by Rev. Tito Sammut, campus minister to Catholic students at Tech for many years; Baptist Student Center at 2401 13th St., one of the largest of the student centers; and the Episcopal Campus Ministry Hall at 2407 16th St.

Also, there is the University Christian Church "home atmosphere" center at 2317 8th St.; and the Sunset Student Center (Sunset Church of Christ) at 2601 University Ave.

Campus ministries have grown by leaps and bounds at Tech, as the university itself has grown.

Since dormitories on the campus traditionally do not serve food on Sunday nights, some of the church-sponsored centers near the campus serve food for students and follow this up with devotionals, church services, or vespers.

Although the students go to various churches of their choice in the city on Sunday mornings, worship services are conducted at some of the centers and in halls and auditoriums near the campus during the day.

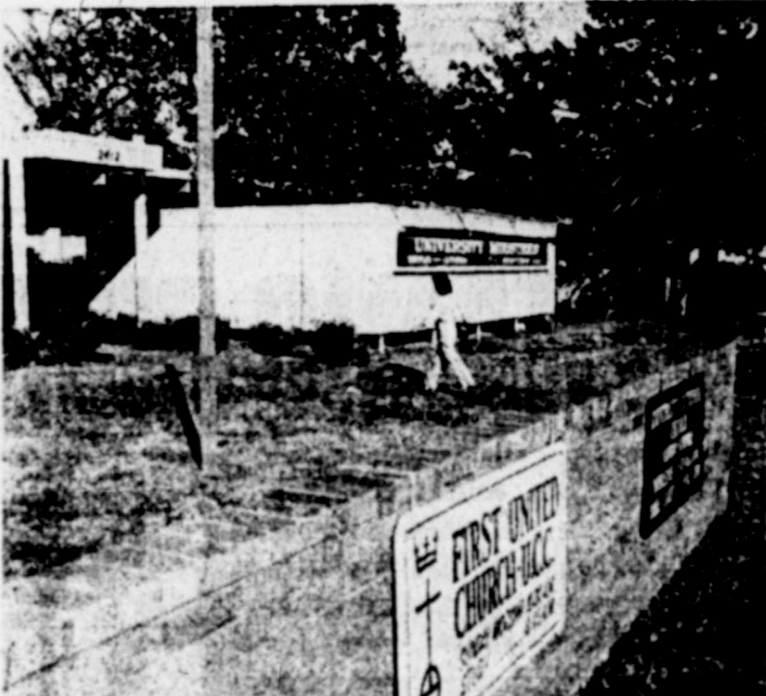

Bulletin boards at each center virtually are broadcasters of happenings. Kitchens are spacious and well-equipped. Some centers have dining areas, and one church at its center has a weekly luncheon, sometimes attended by more than 150 students. This is called a "bread breaking" get-together.

Furniture in the centers is handsome and comfortable. Large fireplaces in some, give a cozy appearance.

Staffs at the centers range from paid, full-time campus ministers or pastors, to volunteers. Three students live at one center, and a campus minister at another.

Bible students and classes are conducted on a regular basis.

Agencies Overestimated Soviet Grain Harvest

By DON KENDALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department and the Central Intelligence Agency were overestimating the size of this year's Soviet grain harvest by 10 percent as late as Tuesday or early Wednesday of this week, according to authoritative sources.

Leonid Brezhnev early Wednesday that the 1977 harvest would be 194 million metric tons "caught both agencies completely off base," one of the sources said Friday.

The sources indicated that both the CIA and the Agriculture Department were still estimating the Soviet crop at 215 million metric tons when the announcement was made by Brezhnev. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

A special department task force which has the responsibility of estimating Soviet grain production periodically during each crop season, clung to the 215 million tons previously estimated because of "too many uncertainties" involved, one source said.

However, the task force was not unanimous. There was some feeling that the estimate of 215 million tons should be reduced five to 15 million tons.

After Brezhnev's disclosure, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland late Wednesday held a news conference at which the department announced its new estimate at 194 million tons, the same as Moscow's figure.

Bergland also said he would not be surprised if the Soviets bought 15 million tons of U.S. wheat and corn in the 1977-78 year which began Oct. 1 under a long term trade agreement committing Russia to buy a minimum of six million tons annually.

The 15 million tons is the amount the United States a month ago told the Soviets they could buy this season without further consultation. They bought the minimum of six million tons in 1976-77, the first year of the agreement.

Bergland said that the United States can sell more than 15 million tons of grain to the Soviet Union without driving up consumer food prices. The U.S. grain stockpile currently is the largest since the early 1960's.

Although Bergland said he could not predict flatly that the Soviets will buy more than the minimum of six million tons in 1977-78 as specified in the pact, a report issued by his department late Thursday included a firm assumption that the full 15 million tons of wheat and corn will be purchased.

Another source Friday said that this is expected to include about 10 million tons of corn and five million tons of wheat.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

COTTON PRODUCTION PROSPECTS have improved during the past month in most of the major Northern Hemisphere countries, according to the Cotton Outlook of Liverpool.

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev this week remarked that the Russian harvest, now nearing completion, would yield 8.4 million metric tons of seed cotton, a quantity equal to the record established in 1974-75.

But latest reports from the producing regions suggest that this quantity will be handsomely exceeded, perhaps by as much as 400,000 tons.

Uncertainties as to the prospective ginning outturn still obscure the probable baleage. But if the outturn is only 31.5 percent, production would reach 12.7 million bales, well above the previous record.

IN INDIA, TOO, IDEAS AS TO THE output are still rising. Her crop is notoriously difficult to predict, even during the harvest. Picking should reach peak proportions in the northern areas later this month, and most indications point to a crop of around 7 million bales (of 170 kilos).

Her neighbor, Pakistan, has shared her good weather, and even after the setbacks experienced earlier in the season could well produce 3 million bales (of 392 pounds) if the gins function normally.

The Pakistani ginning industry, nationalized only two years ago, has been hurriedly returned to private hands, perhaps only in time to permit purchasing of all seed cotton before the onset of winter.

In the Middle East, Iran has been less fortunate with the weather, but clearer skies have allowed Turkey to press ahead with the harvest. The quality undoubtedly was much lowered by last month's rains, but the volume may not be too seriously affected.

PICKING OF AN EXCELLENT CROP is nearing completion in Greece, and torrential rains during the last few days may prove to have been of little consequence.

Farmers have fared less well in most of Africa. Egypt still is reappraising her disappointing crop, but may well have produced only 1.2 million of her large 720-pound bales. She might be unable to maintain exports unless she purchases a sizable quantity of upland cotton from the United States.

Sudan seems apprehensive regarding the development of her young crop, and many of the central and west African nations again have been unfortunate with the rains.

In Latin America, Mexico's crop still seems likely to reach 1.5 million bales, but it now is apparent that high grades will be in very tight supply following widespread rain damage.

Central America's newly planted crops have benefited greatly from increased rainfall, but the accompanying rise in insect populations cast doubt over the outcome of the harvest.

THE SOUTH AMERICAN COUNTRIES, meanwhile, still speak optimistically of the prospects for cotton as planting begins.

South Brazil now seems likely to sow even more land than was planted last season, despite her earlier fears. In Paraguay and Argentina, the expansion of acreage continues, and the latter country foresees yields even higher than the impressive results achieved last season.

Looking further ahead, however, doubts must be expressed as to whether international acreages can be maintained in 1978-79 against a background of falling or weak prices.

Mexico, the first to sow, already reports disenchantment among farmers in the major growing areas of Sinaloa and Sonora.

Wheat Sale Ban Traced To Taiwan Link

WASHINGTON (AP) — The general sales manager of the Agriculture Department said late last week he believes China would be reluctant to buy wheat from the United States as long as the United States continues to recognize Taiwan.

Belmont, R-Okla., has sent to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland expressing dismay that none of the 500 million bushels of wheat being imported by China comes from the United States.

Harrison said he had not seen the letter. "I think whether we can sell wheat to China is principally a question of recognition," he said.

"As long as they are not in a pinch, I think they will not buy from us" if the U.S. government continues diplomatic recognition of the regime on Taiwan, he added.

"They might come around to buy from us even without the recognition factor if the supply situation is serious enough, but it has not been that tight in the past several months."

Bellmont said through a spokesman that he did not believe the Chinese felt strongly enough about recognition of Taiwan to let it stand in the way of a wheat purchase.

Harrison said the Agriculture Department was "doing everything possible" to encourage wheat sales to China.

"Right now our prices are competitive, the quality of our grain is as good as anybody else's, we have plenty of stock and we have firms that are interested in selling the grain," he said.

He said the Chinese had expressed concern about a fungus which attacks U.S. wheat and of which China is free, but he believed that problem had been solved by a team of U.S. scientists.

They also would like inspection of the wheat on delivery instead of on leaving the United States," he said. "That gives our shippers a problem, but it probably could be overcome in one way or another."

RETIRE COUNTY AGENT HONORED — Lee Roy Colgan, center, retired Dawson County agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, was one of 28 extension retirees honored at a recent luncheon at Texas A&M University. Colgan was presented a plaque by Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, left, extension director; and Clyde Anderson, El Paso County commissioner and president of the County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas. Colgan retired last Nov. 30 after 28 years with the extension service.

Star Of 'Lifeguard' Has Lead Role In 'Aspen'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sam Elliott has only had three acting jobs since 1974.

That year he had the title role in the movie "Lifeguard," playing a young man forced to choose between the pleasant life of the beach and accepting an opportunity in the business world.

Last year he starred in "Once An Eagle" on the NBC Best Seller series.

His latest role is as flamboyant defense attorney Tom Keating in the six-hour mini series "Aspen." And he got that because Richard Jordan turned it down at the last minute.

"Aspen," written by Douglas Heyes from the novels "Aspen" by Bert Hirschfeld and "The Adversary" by Bart Spicer, follows the aftermath of a sensational murder trial and the manipulations of a real estate deal in the Colorado ski resort. The first two-hour segment will be seen on NBC at 9 p.m. Saturday and continues Sunday and Monday. The film was not available for review.

"It's not that I couldn't work," said Elliott. "You can do guest shots on episodic television or take a series."

"Or you can hang in there and wait for something worthwhile to come along. I'm single. I don't live expensively. My car's paid for. I've wanted to be an actor since I was 10 years old and even then I knew I wasn't in it for the money."

To keep his expenses down, Elliott, 33, took on the job of landlord, caretaker and gardener at a six-unit apartment house in West Los Angeles. That gave him a place to stay and he lived on his savings and residuals, plus those few acting assignments.

Elliott signed as a contract player with 20th Century Fox Studios in 1967 and they threw him into every series they had. His first movie was "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

He said, "I was listed as Card Player No. 2. I was the last man in the credits. They cut all my dialogue and if you didn't look fast you'd miss me."

Elliott says "Aspen" is his best role to date and you can't miss him in this. He portrays an outrageously flamboyant lawyer.

"That's a role he plays as a lawyer, but that's not basically what he's all about," he said. "He has old-fashioned ideas about law and order. He lives on a cattle ranch with his father, a former sheriff. And he realizes our legal system is pretty bad but it's the best we have to work with."

Elliott said he believes there is a good chance NBC will pick it up as a regular series. It's the first series he's been offered that he has accepted.

If it goes to series, it will also star John McIntire, who plays his father. The mini-series also stars Perry King, John Houseman, Joseph Cotton, George Di Cenzo, Michelle Phillips, Anthony Franciosa, Gene Barry and Bo Hopkins. Heyes also directed.

Elliott said the major contribution from the book "Aspen" was its title. "There's a lot of magic in that name," he said. "Aspen is known the world over. They spent a lot of money for that name, but it was worth it."

The mini series is based mainly on Spicer's book, and he said if it goes to a series they probably will use material from other books by Spicer.

"I think a series like that could say something about the law," he said. "I think anyone with his eyes open can see it's a sad story. It's the people who have the money who can hire the lawyers and go free. Prisons are filled with the poor and minorities."

He said Heyes wrote the show with Richard Jordan in mind, but at the last minute Jordan turned it down. "That was when I got called in," he said. "From the initial meeting it was six weeks before I was signed. They had me on the fence for six weeks. They looked at 'Lifeguard' and that was the final decision."

Elliott said he is probably closer to Keating than to the stoic general he played in "Once an Eagle."

He was born in Sacramento, but was raised in Portland, Ore., where his father was an official of the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of the Interior. His earliest memories were of fishing and hiking trips with his father.

"I grew up in the outdoors," he said. "I love to fish, although I don't care much for hunting. Also I have an affinity for the West. My family had lived in El Paso for a hundred years."

Elliott said he took himself out of episodic television five years ago. "You can get burned out early by doing too much television or by being under contract to a studio that throws you into everything," he said. "I want to be around for a long time."

"I don't give up control to anyone, be it a studio or an agent. I know what I want and how to get it. That attitude cost me a lot of money in the last five years."

He said not working was discouraging. "I was being tested. This town will test you. But I knew what I wanted in this business. And I'm willing to make the sacrifices to get it."

"The frustrating thing isn't that I couldn't work. I could work. But I couldn't get the jobs I wanted. Like the Nick Nolte role in 'Rich Man, Poor Man.'"

He said he thinks the movies are ready for a new crop of leading men. He also sees the comeback of the Western. Not a bad thing for a man who looks like he was born in the saddle.

"It was the Western that I had in mind when I wanted to be an actor," he said.

To Tobacco Spit

MOUNTLAKE TERRACE, Wash. (AP) — Scott Blaine, 18, thinks it's "dumb" that chewing tobacco got him suspended from Mountlake Terrace High School.

Principal Jim Fox said chewing tobacco poses a sanitation problem. Or, as Assistant Principal Ray Stevenson put it, "You cannot chew tobacco unless you spit."

But Blaine said he chewed only in shop class, where he was outside part of the time and had a place to get rid of the juice. "I spit outside, not in class," he said.

Blaine plans to take an examination to get his high school diploma and, in the meantime, sign up for courses at a community college.

Veterans Inked For Film Roles

BURBANK, CALIF. (Special) — Hans Conried and Harry Morgan have been signed to costar in Walt Disney Productions' "The Cat From Outer Space."

The comedy, which began filming May 16 at the studio in Burbank, stars Ken Berry, Sandy Duncan and McLean Stevenson in the story of an extra-terrestrial feline who befriends an offbeat physicist.

Conried plays Dr. Heffel, administrator of a research laboratory who is consulted on the energy source from a spaceship by General Stilton, to be played by Morgan.

Both actors are Disney veterans.

Conried appeared last year in "The Shaggy D.A.," and was originally the voice for both Mr. Darling and Captain Hook in the 1953 animated classic "Peter Pan."

Morgan has appeared in "The Apple Dumpling Gang," "Charley and the Angel," "Snowball Express," "Scandalous John" and "The Barefoot Executive."

The film is being directed by Norman Tokar from a screenplay by cartoonist Ted Kelfer.

Singer's Career Hits New Peak Of Success

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Kenny Rogers sat in his hotel suite and pondered an advertisement in a music magazine proclaiming: "Kenny Rogers Is Hot!"

"It didn't take long to realize the ad was exactly right."

He had just appeared on national television for the second time in four days. This time it was on NBC's Today Show, which telecast a segment from Nashville. Just 96 hours earlier, Rogers performed on the Country Music Association awards program and was honored for recording the single of the year, "Lucille."

He began reflecting on his career, only to be interrupted by a string of phone calls. One came from the governor of Louisiana, inviting him to visit his mansion.

For lunch, he has only a cheeseburger because there's no time for more. He had only one hour of sleep the previous night and recently performed in 23 cities in 26 days.

His next album, "Ten Years Of Gold," isn't out yet but he's already received 600,000 orders.

"'Lucille' was the catalyst to it all," he said. "But 'Daytime Friends' was No. 1, too. I've always done a lot of television, but all this is coming together at a concentrated time. It's more impressive than if it was spread out. It's momentum."

More than most entertainers, Rogers knows the insecurities of show business. He has had two previous peaks, both separated by valleys.

"You have to accept the fact that this is a roller coaster business," he said. "If you enjoy the highs and prepare for the lows, the highs will come back. If you are professional, you can make it work."

Former Genesis Star Making Comeback

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International
"I think of myself as being on the fringes of the music," says Peter Gabriel, quietly. "I throw things in from the sideline and see how they get on."

In a pop medium like rock 'n' roll, genuine talent is often spread thinly, providing just enough of a gloss on the unimaginative mass of performers to maintain appearances for the public. The people do not demand genius from rock, just competent boogie. Peter Gabriel knows all this, but he has more to offer — so long as he is permitted to offer it on his own terms.

THE BANDIT IS BACK—Burt Reynolds is following his phenomenal success in the summer's prime movie surprise, "Smokey And The Bandit," with an appearance as Billy Clyde Puckett in the film version of Dan Jenkins' "Semi-Tough." The new film opens in Lubbock in December. However, the Avalanche-Journal joined a press junket to New Orleans to view the film and interview the stars last month. The Paper's in-depth interview with Burt Reynolds will be featured in tomorrow's fine arts section.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. What is wrong with 11 percent interest on secured, insured notes?

A. First tell me who secures and insures the notes.

You send me a single slip of paper which does nothing to identify the company, but does contain clauses such as "rate of interest may be decreased" and "no assurance... that losses will not occur."

Don't you bother reading before you jump with $15,000?

For Preferred Stock Buyers—the Fitch Investors Service latest list of AA ratings for preferred issues includes:

Baltimore Gas & Electric, Bankers Trust, Central Illinois Public Service, Central Power & Light, Cincinnati Gas & Electric, Cleveland Electric Illuminating, Commonwealth Edison, Consolidated Natural Gas, General Telephone of Indiana, Gulf States Utilities, Houston Lighting & Power, Illinois Power, Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric, Iowa Power & Light, Kansas Power & Light, Louisville Gas & Electric (preferred and preference), Montana Power, NICOR, Northern Indiana Public Service, Oklahoma Gas & Electric, Pacific T. & T., Pennsylvania Power & Light, Public Service of Oklahoma, Southern California Edison, Southern Indiana Gas & Electric, Southwestern Electric Power, Texas Electric Service, Texas Power & Light, West Penn Power, Wisconsin Electric Power, Wisconsin Power & Light, Wisconsin Public Service.

Q. If I want to sell a government bond before maturity, must I do it through a broker?

A. I assume by "government bond" you mean a U.S. Treasury bill or bond (not an E or H bond). If I'm correct, you sell it through a broker or, in some cases, through your commercial bank.

Q. I am 18 with $5,000 which I do not need now. Where can I get the highest rate of interest on my money? I'm interested in investing in both risk and no-risk types.

A. The highest "no-risk" interest return on your money would come from insured long-term savings certificates and long-term bonds. Return on the $5,000 could come to $400-$450 a year.

Risk investments would include speculative common shares, or options, or precious metals or commodities... and the yield could run from zero on up.

Q. Is it possible for a woman earning $7,500 a year and raising two children to invest in some kind of stock? How?

A. It's possible, of course, but it would have to be on a small scale and would, even then, involve much scrimping.

For example, $300, roughly, would get you five shares of American Telephone & Telegraph. You could stop there and ask the company to reinvest the quarterly dividends in additional fractional shares, or you could add some small amounts of cash every quarter.

Another example: You could put $500 into a mutual fund and then add much smaller amounts whenever you could accumulate them. Some "load" (buying commission) funds have arrangements for monthly contributions of $25 and even lower, but you must bear in mind that these smaller payments carry a proportionately high overhead expense. Don't set up any program without first finding out all the expenses involved.

Rehearing Granted Lodge

A-J Correspondent

PLAINVIEW — Dist. Judge Van Stovall Friday ordered a rehearing by the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission on a closing order the ABC issued in August to the Hi-Plains Elks Lodge here.

The 242nd District Court judge issued the order after the assistant attorney general representing the commission admitted the club might not have received due process of law at the August hearing.

The new hearing will be at 9 a.m. Tuesday in Austin, according to Asst. Atty. Gen. Max P. Flusche Jr. Findings of that administrative hearing will be released to Hi-Plains Elks Lodge owners by Nov. 15, he said.

The lodge has been a subject of controversy in Plainview for some time. It has been the site of three shootings, one resulting in a Plainview man's death, and numerous reported disturbances since it opened less than a year ago.

In June, city council members voiced opposition to continued operation of the club in its downtown location, terming it a "nuisance."

Stovall, issued an injunction against the club's closing Oct. 28, one day after an ABC agent closed the lodge's doors. The judge lifted that order when he remanded the case back to the ABC.

The Hi-Plains Lodge, a black organization which is not affiliated with the Benevolent Order of Elks Lodge elsewhere in town, was represented at the court hearing by Lubbock attorney Gene Gaines, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People there.

Gaines and Flusche conferred for about 45 minutes after adjournment before agreeing to leave the lodge open until midnight Sunday, then to close it until after disposition of the case.

In the original closing order, the hearing officer cited the lodge for allowing beverages to leave the premises on certain occasions, as well as allowing persons other than members and their guests to enter and be served.

Explaining his due process comments, Flusche said, "Rather than risk the whole case, we asked the judge to remand it back to the ABC."

During the original hearing on Aug. 10 in Austin, the plaintiff did not attend. They had asked for a continuance, but it was denied. Also, there was a misunderstanding about the filing of additional evidence after the hearing and before any order was to be filed. Because of these reasons, I felt that the plaintiffs may have been denied due process," he said.

Lubbock Woman Found Innocent Of Theft

A Lubbock woman, 19, was acquitted by a jury Thursday of a charge that she had stolen furniture from a local apartment complex.

Found innocent of theft by the jury in Judge Deniz Bevers' 72nd Dist. Court was Patty Sharp of 4818 44th St.

The panel deliberated approximately two hours and 30 minutes before returning the verdict.

Miss Sharp had been accused of stealing a couch and chairs from the Railroad Apartments at 2324 5th St. June 28, 1976. The defendant had been employed at the apartments, and was acting as manager on the date of the alleged offense.

Apartment owner Leo Hatfield testified that he saw the missing furniture at a 5th Street home occupied by two men, and that Miss Sharp was present with the men.

The defendant took the stand to say she had loaned the furniture to the men, one of whom was a boyfriend. Testimony indicated that the men had recently moved into the house and needed additional furniture in order to give a party.

At questioning from defense attorney

Patrick Abeyta, Miss Sharp testified that, acting as manager, she had not felt it necessary to contact Hatfield before agreeing to lend the furniture. Testimony indicated the owner was outen out of town.

Miss Sharp's boyfriend, Joe Knighten, corroborated Miss Sharp's account.

AUDI FOX BEATS CHEVY CORVETTE!

If you're a little worried, we can't blame you. We were a little surprised ourselves when our 4 door sedan, the Spaceliner Audi Fox, beat the Chevy Corvette in a Slalom test conducted by the American Testing Machine. But it's true. The Fox won! Under identical conditions, with the Institute's test driver handling both cars. Their how legends are made.

By ALFRED WHITE
Special Correspondent
Senior tailback Mark Butler scored two touchdowns in the second quarter and another in the fourth quarter, and Eddie McAlister engineered touchdown drives of 45, 73 and 82 yards Friday night as the Coronado Mustangs and Plainview battled to a 21-21 tie at Lowrey Field in the final game of the '77 season for Coronado.
The tie leaves Coronado with a 4-5-1 record on the season with a 1-2-1 record in District 4-AAAA play, while Plainview had its record go to 5-3-1 with a 1-1-1 mark in district play.

Coronado failed to score on its first three possessions although it drove deep into Plainview territory.
The Mustangs took the kickoff and drove to the Bulldog 15 before having its drive stall on a Buck Williams field goal attempt from the 23.
Coronado reached the Plainview 33 on its next series and punted when faced with a fourth-and-7 play.
But the Mustangs drove it all the way in the next time they got their hands on the ball.
With 6:58 left in the second quarter, Butler sliced in from the 1 on the first of three touchdowns he scored on the night. In the series that covered 62 yards in only eight plays, Butler carried for 26 yards on five attempts. He totaled 79 yards on the night on 20 carries.

Plainview then knotted it up after taking the Mustangs' kickoff.
Junior fullback Billy Williams eluded and broke numerous tackles and danced 15 yards for the Bulldogs tying tally in the second quarter. The drive covered 73 yards and was highlighted by quarterback Eddie McAlister's 24-yard run on which he displayed some elusive running of his own.
With only 40 seconds remaining in the first half, Coronado went back on top on Butler's second one-yard touchdown run of the night. The run climaxed a 66-yard drive featuring the running and pass catching of wingback Robbie Langwell.

Fumble Recovery Ruins DHS 16-13

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
SNYDER—The Dunbar Panthers thought they would give the home folks a little show.
You know, take the ball with 6:30 left in the game and march 95 yards for the winning touchdown.
Make the paying customers squirm in their seats a bit. Give them their money's worth.
That very easily could have happened here Friday night. The Panthers did get the ball with 6:30 left and yes, they did have 95 yards to go for the winning score, but they didn't make it.
Snyder's Gary Hamilton who recovered a Kenneth James fumble at the Snyder 22 to thwart the Dunbar drive and give the local gridders a narrow 16-13 upset win.
The loss by the Panthers, coupled with a win by Lakeview, gives the Chiefs the District 3-AAA title.
It just wasn't Dunbar's night. Not by a long shot.

Time and time again, the Panthers gave the ball away to an alert Snyder defense, which was more than happy to take advantage of the Lubbock group's hospitality.
Dunbar, which found itself constantly having to play catch-up, managed to grab a short-lived 13-9 lead with 6:44 left in the third quarter on a 70-yard bomb from quarterback Daryl Green to Wayne Williams. The pass caught the Snyder defensive secondary napping.
Just when the sparse crowd was about to be lulled asleep by both teams' ground control-type offense, Green raced up, spotted Williams all alone and hit him in full stride. Williams, who showed he had some speed along with a fine pair of hands, outraced Clay Peterson into the end zone to give the Panthers the four point lead.
But the Panthers didn't have time to enjoy the lead.
On the ensuing kickoff, Snyder, under

Tech Seeks To Rebound

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
TCU will be in a familiar position when it battles Texas Tech at 2 p.m. today in Jones Stadium—it will be expected to lose.
The difference between now and the past, coach F.A. Dry feels, is that the Horned Frogs think they can win when they step onto the field.
"I think we have a winning attitude at TCU now," the first-year Frog coach said. "That was the first thing we had to establish when we came to TCU. We had to change the players' attitudes."
That was no easy task. Dry inherited a program that had just two wins to its credit and 31 losses in the previous three seasons—not the most positive thing for team morale.

Then, after five losses to open the season and extend the nation's longest losing streak to 15 games, TCU won twice in a row.
"Our players were in a different position against Houston last Saturday than they'd been in a long time," Dry said. "We suddenly had a lot more interest in football, and this created a lot of peer pressure on the kids."
"Even though we were underdogs, we thought we could win. But we didn't know how to handle it. We don't have enough upperclassmen to provide the leadership that is so vital."
The effort has been there, though.
"They're hustling like they've won every game," Tech offensive coordinator Rex Dockery said.
"You have to give Coach Dry and his staff credit," Raider head coach Steve Sloan said. "His players are playing with terrific desire and effort."
It wasn't enough against Houston, as the Cougars buried the Frogs 42-14 with a 21-point fourth period. However, TCU trailed by just 21-14 at the end of three periods.
"We didn't make the big plays like we did against Miami (the previous week), and our punting game broke down," Dry said. "We kicked three line drives in the fourth quarter, and they got good runbacks."
"We just got outrun more than anything else. They're as fast as anybody, and we don't have a whole lot of speed."
Lack of speed is perhaps TCU's biggest drawback, especially defensively. However, the Horned Frogs have shown improvement this season, particularly in the secondary.
The lack of good speed, overall, limits what the Frogs can do defensively, however.
Offensively, TCU is better than last year. The biggest difference is in the ground game, which failed to average 100 yards a game each of the past three seasons. The Frogs averaged 73 yards per game on the ground in 1976, but have a 130-yard average this far in 1977, not great, but the improvement is obvious.
TCU, 2-5 for the season and 1-3 in SWC play, has well-thought-of skill people in quarterback Steve Bayuk, split end Mike Renfro and tight end James Wright.
"Their offense has improved," Sloan said. "They're executing their running game better, and they have a good scheme with the passing attack."
Tech, 5-2 for the season and 2-2 in league action, is looking for improvement in its offense. The Raiders have been inconsistent offensively since losing quarterback Rodney Allison in the season's third game and were shut out for the first time in 66 games last weekend by Texas.
Allison is expected to see action today, although it is uncertain how much. He has moved better in workouts the latter part of this week.
Right now, Tres Adams is expected to be the starting quarterback. Mark Johnson has been troubled by a bruised thigh.
Tech is, for all practical purposes, out of the SWC race. It is two games behind Texas and Texas A&M and has lost to both. No team has ever gotten even a share of the SWC title with more than one league loss.
However, the Raiders have a shot at a 9-2 record and a bowl berth, and the point for them to keep solidly in mind is that the season is not over.
"It seems the Cotton Bowl is more important to people in this conference than bowls in any other league, except perhaps the Rose Bowl to the Pac 8," Sloan said. "But we still have a shot at a fine season, and we can't lose sight of that."
Dockery said. "The big thing is the character of our kids. We've always played hard. We have to forget Texas. That's in the past. We have to look forward."

Matadors 'Turn Corner' On Lamesa 23-14

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

LAMESA — Estacado coach Louis Kelley was plotting the night's strategy earlier in the day in the Matadors' locker room.

The third-year coach gazed at Lamesa's defense for a second, paused and said, "If we can just get around the corner against them, we'll be all right."

Well, it took awhile, but finally Matador scatback Kinzey Burrell turned the right flank and shifted into overdrive for a nifty 33-yard gain with seven minutes to play. The run set up a go-ahead field goal, and EHS tacked on another touchdown in the closing moments to beat disappointing Lamesa 23-14 Friday night.

Estacado's victory lifted the Matadors above the 500 mark for the first time this season at 5-4. EHS, now 4-1 in the District 3-AAA grid chase, still hopes for a share of the title cake if Dunbar can topple Lake View next Friday in San Angelo. The Matadors can thank Burrell for keeping them in the race at this point.

The senior tailback carried 27 times for 164 yards and scored two touchdowns. His defensive mates prevented Lamesa from producing any comparable offensive fireworks.

Estacado's defense allowed the Golden Tors 51 yards rushing in 38 attempts and 11 yards passing. Tacklers Mike Luke, Steve Wright and Mike Chatham pestered Lamesa tailback Clay Wright most of the night.

Only two fumbles by Estacado's Jimmy Scott permitted the Lamesans near the goal. And the hosts capitalized on both opportunities to keep the score even for most of three quarters.

Then Estacado started a crucial drive from its 33 with 11 minutes to play. The Matador backs, Scott, Burrell and Steve Worthey chipped away for a few yards at a time until Estacado reached Lamesa's 39. That's when Burrell scooted around the bend and headed toward the goal.

Lamesa's Charlie Batchelor shoved the runner out of bounds at the Tors' 6. The drive fizzled in three more plays, but Scott still stayed within range to boot a 27-yard field goal. The kick gave EHS a 17-14 edge with 6:20 to play.

Lubbock's visitors scored an insurance TD with 1:07 to play. Estacado's Freddy Ivory harassed Lamesa quarterback Jesse Lopez for a 22-yard setback on fourth-and-4 at Lamesa's 34. So the Matador offense regained possession 12 yards away from the goal.

Burrell rushed for the final 11 of those on second play. The speedster escaped a tackle after darting through a hole at right tackle. Scott's PAT kick went wide to the right.

Until Burrell's decisive dash, the two teams were battling on even terms at 14 apiece. Lamesa pounced on Scott's two bobbles and cashed them in for 14 points in the first half.

Scott fumbled a Lamesa punt at the Matador 29 midway in the first quarter. The Tornadoes needed eight tries to score from there, with Wright bulging ahead on six of those plays for 24 yards.

Wright followed his right tackle Johnny Lawler for the final yard and the game's first score with 5:34 left in the first quarter. The Tors' tailback also kicked the extra point.

Estacado countered with a patient, 75-yard drive in 15 plays, featuring Burrell on all sorts of Houdini imitations. The rushing hero scored on a 6-yard run with 10:26 left in the half.

Scott and guard Rudy Rodriguez escorted Burrell around the right flank on a pitchout. Scott's conversion kick knotted things up at 7.

The Matadors gradually gained field position later in the half with the help of 41- and 49-yard punts by James Rose. Finally, they regained possession on Lamesa's 44, and scored on the first play.

Burrell took a pitch to his right and connected with Rose on a 44-yard half-back pass. The receiver caught the aerial at the Lamesa 10 and ran in untouched. Scott added the PAT kick with 2:14 left in the half.

But the hosts took advantage of another Scott fumble in the final minutes of the half. The Estacado quarterback bobbled the ball in his indecision to hand off to Burrell. Lawler covered the loose ball for the hosts at the EHS 5 with 19 seconds left in the half.

Wellman's last victory of the regular season gave the Wildcats an unblemished 10-0 record going into post-season play. The Wildcats will now face either Trent, Highland or Hermleigh in the zone playoffs in District 3-B six-man action.

Loop ended the season with a 5-5 record and a 2-4 mark in zone play.

The Wildcats manipulated the game almost entirely, but part of that may have been due to injuries sustained by Loop's leading rushers in the first quarter.

Runningback Clay Freeman began the night with an 8-yard run and the touchdown, only to be downed a few plays later and carried off the field with a broken collar bone.

Loop's Leonard Nail, back, was also taken out of the game with an injured shoulder. Both are leading rushers in District 3-B.

MULESHOE (Special) — Muleshoe needed a win here Friday night to retain a share of the District 3-AAA lead and the Mules got it, defeating the Olton Mustangs 17-0.

The first Mule touchdown came in the opening quarter when halfback Dean Northcutt jumped over from the 1-yard line.

Nothing else was put on the scoreboard until the third quarter when Mule defensive end George Villarreal kicked a 25-yard field goal. Muleshoe's Mark Bezersdorf followed with a touchdown run and then went over for a two-point conversion.

The Males, ranked fifth in the area, were able to gain 232 yards rushing to Olton's 176. Muleshoe is now 8-1 for the season and 3-1 in district. Olton is now 2-8 on the year and 1-3 for district play.

The Klondike victory showcased an incredible performance by halfback Dennis Heald. Heald scored six touchdowns, with only one of those coming from in close.

He ran for TDs of 20, 91, 20 and 4 yards from scrimmage. Heald also scored on a 70-yard punt return and on a 32-yard pass play from quarterback Tommy Hayes.

Heald rushed for 168 yards, averaging 16.8 yards per trip.

Hayes scored on a 26-yard run and threw a 63-yard TD pass to Bobby Hanson to help spark the victory.

Sands' lone TD came on a 50-yard pass from Van Gaskin to Steve Parker.

Friona Posts 34-7 Win Over Bobcats

FRIONA (Special) — Chieftain fullback Glen London rushed 20 times of 83 yards and two touchdowns here Friday, to lead Friona to a 34-7 District 3-AAA victory.

It was the worst defeat for a Dimmitt team by Friona since 1944, and it kept the Chieftains' title hopes alive. The defeat forced the Bobcats out of the race.

London's touchdowns came in the second period on runs of one yard and two yards. Kevin Pope kicked the extra points.

Halfback Jeff Whiteside put Friona on the board in the beginning with a 3-yard run in the initial period of play. Pope then kicked his first of four extra points.

In the third quarter, the Chieftains extended their lead with 13-yard touchdown by quarterback Chris Barnett and halfback Terry Wilcox.

Dimmitt scored in the final period on a 56-yard run by halfback Thompson Mayberry. Matt Howell kicked the extra point. Mayberry carried 16 times for 116 yards for the Bobcats.

Nothing else was put on the scoreboard until the third quarter when Mule defensive end George Villarreal kicked a 25-yard field goal. Muleshoe's Mark Bezersdorf followed with a touchdown run and then went over for a two-point conversion.

The Males, ranked fifth in the area, were able to gain 232 yards rushing to Olton's 176. Muleshoe is now 8-1 for the season and 3-1 in district. Olton is now 2-8 on the year and 1-3 for district play.

Anton Posts 26-0 Win Over 'Lopes

ANTON (Special) — The Anton Bulldogs scored 19 points in the first quarter and seven in the second period here Friday night to blank the Whiteface Antelopes 26-0.

Runningback Timmy Beicher began the healthy first quarter for Anton by scoring on a 1-yard plunge, despite a fumbled snap. Scott Goen kicked the extra point.

With 7:14 left in the first half Roger Harrell ran 34 yards for a TD. The extra point was good.

On a third down and 20, with 3:30 left in the first period, Anton quarterback Steve Green threw a 30-yard touchdown pass to Beicher. Again, the kick failed.

Anton freshman Danny Garcia ran over from the 1-yard line, and the PAT was good to end the night's scoring with 5:28 still left in the second quarter.

Anton gained 208 yards on the ground and 93 in the air to the Antelopes' 80 yards rushing and 32 passing.

Anton is now 3-6-1 for the year and Whiteface has managed only one win in 19 outings.

PETERSBURG — The Purple and White backers got a big boost Friday night when the TCU band showed up. And that even inspired the visiting Lorenzo Hornets to play like the Purple People Eaters for three quarters.

But their effort all went for naught as the Purple and White defense was finally worn down by a mysterious man in black. Well, really, he's not so mysterious any more.

In fact, Mike Jones is somewhat of a legend around Petersburg. And the fact he carried 41 times for 209 yards and 10 touchdowns here Friday to lead Petersburg to a come-from-behind 25-14 victory over Lorenzo and the outright District 4-A championship did little to tarnish his reputation.

Only a junior, Jones, the South Plains' leading point producer, surpassed the 1,800-yard rushing total in Petersburg's first scoring drive of the night and then went over the 1,900-yard mark on the march that put the Buffaloes in front for good in the final period.

Now 9-1 on the year, the Buffs, who share The Associated Press' No. 10 state spot, must wait until after the Kress-Vega contest next Friday to learn their bid-district foe.

Petersburg, which had 307 total yards, drew first blood, marching 63 yards in nine plays in the second period. Jones counted for 22 of those yards and David Vaughn, who had an outstanding night on defense, got the drive off on the right foot by catching a 25-yard pass on the first play.

Ricky Juarez, who punted three times for a 60-yard average, added the PAT after Jones ran 7 yards 3:11 before intermission.

It didn't take Lorenzo long to draw even as quarterback Bobby Brown dipped into his bag of tricks and dialed the "Franco Harris Special." Brown, facing first and 10 from his 23, fired for Edmond Turner near midfield. Buffalo Louis Rodela stepped inside and went for the interception.

However, the ball popped off his hand and into the grasp of Derrell Lawson, who was in full stride and he scampered the final 53 yards untouched. Guy Morrison's PAT eyed the game a mere 20 seconds after Petersburg had taken the lead.

With 80 seconds left in the half, Greg Cunningham got off a punt that would have made Ray Guy smile. Cunningham nailed Buffalo Cary Rhodes in the back at the Petersburg 25 and Coy Holcombe recovered for the Hornets.

Brown moved his mates the necessary yardage in four plays, with Cunningham going the final yard with 26 seconds left in the half.

The Buffs marched 40 yards in nine plays on their second possession of the second half, with Jones accounting for 27 yards, including the final yard with 3:19 to play in the period.

Butarez, who had attempted a 34-yard field goal earlier in the period but got a bad snap, misfired on the PAT try and Lorenzo still led 14-13.

The Hornets came back, as Brown rambled for 43 yards on the first play in marching Lorenzo to the 8, where faced second and 3. But a motion penalty set the Hornets back and Cunningham came up a yard short on fourth down.

"That was the key play, that penalty when we had a chance to go up by two touchdowns (actually 8 points)," Lorenzo mentor Jim Edwards said after the game. "We just didn't have any consistency on offense the second half and gave 'em the ball twice inside the 50. And you just can't do that to good teams like Petersburg."

The Buffaloes, after holding at the 8, marched 92 yards in nine plays, using only 2:54 of the clock, to take the lead. And, as usual, Jones was the big man.

He had runs of 16, 19, and 18 in the drive plus carried the final four times, getting the TD from 7 yards out with 9:06 left. The pass for 2 failed, leaving Petersburg ahead 19-14.

A 42-yard pass to Vaughn on a third and 11 situation set up the Buffs' final TD, which came on a 4-yard Jones run with 1:55 to play and clinched their 12th title in history. The Buffs have won or shared four straight titles and five this decade.

Lorenzo, which was seeking its first league crown ever, dipped to 6-3, 4-1 records.

"Our defense came to play the second half," a beaming Gary Gaines proclaimed after a round of hugs and back-slapping. "Our kids have come back all year and they did it again tonight. They just shook off that adversity and gave the extra effort."

"They all did an excellent job. But you can't take anything away from Lorenzo. Coach Edwards and his staff did an excellent job preparing them. They just had the misfortune to have a couple of 15-yard penalties when we were moving and that helped us."

Jones finished the 10-game regular season with 1,962 yards, going over the 200-yard mark five times and never having less than 138 yards.

Howell-Led Lions Win Over Ralls

RALLS (Special) — With some offensive and defensive wizardry, Kelly Howell guided the New Deal Lions to a 34-13 victory over the Ralls Jackrabbits Friday in District 4-A.

Howell, as the Lions' quarterback, threw 14 yards to tight end Kirk Raines for a first-quarter touchdown and scored TDs on a run of 8 yards in the third period and a 1-yard plunge in the final quarter.

And playing with the New Deal defensive unit, Howell recovered a blocked Ralls punt in the Jackrabbits' end zone for another third-quarter touchdown.

The punt had been blocked by defensive end Kerry Miller who also had a good night as fullback on the offensive team. He scored a TD in the second quarter on a 5-yard run and kicked four extra points.

Ralls managed to keep the score close through the first half. Thanks to a 45-yard pass from David Heinrich to John Pearson for a TD in the opening period, the Lions led only 14-7 at intermission.

But the Jackrabbits didn't score again until the final quarter, when Heinrich—who gained 118 yards rushing and 70 passing during the evening—broke loose for a 33-yard TD sprint.

New Deal, now 4-4-1 for the season, had 21 first downs, 291 yards on the ground and 45 in the air. Ralls, now 1-8 for the year, had 11 first downs, 196 yards rushing and 70 passing.

Tahoka Upsets Slaton

TAHOKA (Special) — A last-minute field goal by Tahoka's Rayford Harris pushed the Dist. 5-AA championship race into a three-way tie here Friday after giving Tahoka a 9-7 victory over the previously undefeated Slaton Tigers.

The Tigers took the loss after being un-

Russell Sparkles In Cage Scrimmage

Senior forward Mike Russell scored 30 points and grabbed 13 rebounds to highlight the Texas Tech basketball intrasquad scrimmage Friday.

The game was a part of Friday's homecoming activities, and the White team outscored the Reds 75-63.

Russell, who made all-conference last year at center, scored his points by hitting 11 of 15 field shots.

Russell was not the only Raider hitting well, as the two squads hit a total of 59 of 114 shots, a 51.8 per cent effort.

For the Whites, Thad Sanders, a sophomore forward, hit 17 points, senior starter Mike Edwards 14, junior college transfer Ben Hill 13 and junior guard Geoff Huston 10.

For the Reds, sophomore Kent Williams of Hobbs connected on nine of 11 field shots—all from long range—in collecting 18 points. Freshman Ralph Brewster of El Paso hit 12 and junior college transfer Joe Baxter 10.

The Raiders have been working out since Oct. 15 and open the season here Nov. 28 against Oklahoma Baptist University.

able to muster enough force in the fourth quarter to drive back for another score with three minutes left on the clock.

Slaton's loss was its first in nine outings, while Tahoka now stands with a 6-3 record. Tahoka, Slaton and Frenship share the lead spot. Frenship and Tahoka will meet here next week.

Harris' 17-yard kick with three minutes left on the clock ended a Slaton effort that minutes earlier had given the Tigers a 7-6 lead.

Until the fourth quarter, both teams, apparently evenly-matched, were scoreless, with Slaton chalking up 193 yards rushing to Tahoka's 141 yards.

Of those 141, 72 came when halfback Leslie White picked off a Tiger pass early in the fourth quarter for a 72-yard interception play that put Tahoka ahead 6-0.

Two minutes later, Slaton had been unable to move downfield and fell back to punt formation. The formation turned into a fake punt play, however, and Tiger

Ricky Davis carried 49 yards through Bulldog territory for the Slaton touchdown. Tracy Angle's extra point put Slaton ahead 7-6.

After Harris' 17-yard kick Slaton was unable to move the ball again, and Tahoka moved into first place along with the Tigers and Frenship.

Bengals Linebacker To Have Surgery

CINCINNATI (AP) — Veteran linebacker Ron Pritchard will undergo surgery in Houston next week for removal of a bone chip from his left knee, the Cincinnati Bengals announced Wednesday.

The National Football League Bengals also said Pritchard was placed on the injured reserve list.

Pritchard, hampered by the knee, has seen very little action this season.

Lubbock Christian Drubs NMMI 16-8

ROSWELL, N.M. (Special) — Lubbock Christian High School defeated winless New Mexico Military Institute 16-8 Friday night.

With a relatively balanced attack, the visiting Eagles rushed for 119 yards and got 91 through the air, including a 25-yard first half touchdown by Shawn Williams. Brent Stewart kicked the extra point.

Meantime, the Colts were held to 87 total yards and only eight first downs.

In the third period, Stewart gave Lubbock Christian a 10-0 lead on a 47-yard field goal.

NMMI got on the board in the final period with a 2-yard run by Frank Duncan. He also added the two-point conversion.

The final touchdown by the Eagles came on a 1-yard run by Pat Randolph.

Lubbock Christian boosted its record to 3-7 on the year, while NMMI is 0-10.

Hobbs Rallies, Tops Cathedral

HOBBS, N.M. (Special) — Hobbs came from behind to defeat El Paso Cathedral 30-22 here Friday, despite a dazzling one-man performance by Cathedral's George Molinar.

Molinar scored all three Cathedral touchdowns, on runs of 62, 30 and 17 yards. For the night, Molinar scooted 223 yards on 26 carries, and booted two extra points.

The visitors' other 2 points came on a safety. Hobbs trailed 20-15 at halftime, but struck for two second half TDs, while holding Cathedral to the safety.

Roy Gomez scored on a 6-yard run to put the Eagles ahead for keeps in the third quarter, then fullback Alton Patterson plowed over from the 1 in the fourth period.

Gomez, who carried 19 times for 134 yards, had a 4-yard TD run in the opening period. Quarterback Flint Knight

Wilke Sparks Wilson Past Dawson 22-0

DAWSON (Special)—Quarterback Calvin Wilke sparked Wilson to a 22-0 victory over Dawson here Friday.

The District 3-B win lifts Wilson's overall record to 5-5, and the Mustangs are now 3-2 in loop play. Dawson is also 5-5, but the Dragons' league mark drops to 2-3.

Wilke raced 30 yards for a TD late in the first quarter, then booted the extra to make for a 7-0 halftime lead.

Wilson scored 15 points in the third stanza. Wilke tallied on a 4-yard run, then, late in the period, Pete Hernandez sliced through from the 1.

Meadow Trips Amherst 9-7

AMHERST (Special) —Who would have guessed that a first-quarter safety would provide the Meadow Broncos with the margin of victory Friday in a 9-7 decision over Amherst?

Not many. But that's exactly what happened after Ed Garcia dropped punter Jim Bagwell in the end zone with 2:50 remaining in the opening period.

The Broncos scored again in the second quarter on quarterback Martin Blair's 3-yard ramble and Rudy Perez tacked on the extra point. That 9-0 score stood at halftime.

Fullback Bagwell atoned for the lost two points somewhat when he punched over for Amherst from two yards out with 4:50 left in the third quarter.

But the razor-thin differential was all the Broncos needed to pull out a District 2-B victory and push their record to 6-3-1 on the year.

Amherst may have gained some solace with a statistical edge, however, as the Bulldogs gained 245 total yards to the Broncos' 162.

It was all even in the first-down department, however, perhaps a truer indication of the closeness of the contest.

Terry Sterling paced the losers with 104 yards in a dozen carries and Marcus Cruz picked up 107 tough yards for Meadow on 22 tries.

But the safety, coupled with five Amherst fumbles, spelled the difference.

Steers Nip Hart On Roberts FG

HART (Special) — Robin Roberts kicked a 27-yard field goal in the second quarter of a defensive struggle with the Hart Longhorns, giving the Farwell Steers a 3-0 win Friday.

The District 3-A victory evened the Steers' loop record at 2-2. They are 5-4 for the season.

The Longhorns dropped to 1-3 in district play and 4-5 for the year.

The second-period scoring drive started on Farwell's 23-yard line. The Steers drove to the Hart 1-yard line, were penalized 15 yards, and then gained back some ground to set up Roberts' boot.

Farwell held the Longhorns to just 36 total yards and three first downs during the evening.

The Steers themselves picked up 16 first downs, 298 yards rushing and 11 yards passing. But, except for Roberts' field goal, each time they got close to scoring, the Hart defense rose to the occasion.

The Longhorns recovered two fumbles and intercepted a Farwell pass. Also, Clay Hanes kicked towering punts — eight in all, at an average of 44 yards each — to help hold the Steers in check.

Leading rushers were Farwell's Kevin Kelley, with 115 yards on 22 attempts, and Vick Christian, with 109 yards on 19 carries.

Three Way Outlasts Cotton Center 73-60

COTTON CENTER (Special)—Albert Rand ran for six touchdowns in the second quarter here Friday to pace Three Way by Cotton Center 73-60, in a game which was wild and woolly even by six-man standards.

Rand's runs covered, in order, 80, 20, 2, 28, 27 and 4 yards.

Louis Key scored three touchdowns for the victors.

Eric Allen caught scoring passes of 65, 22 and 45 yards for Cotton Center, and added a 30-yard TD run.

Tigers Stay Alive, Chop Down Cooper

WOLFFORTH (Special) — Frenship kept its hopes of a share of the District 5-AA title alive here Friday with a 35-12 victory over the Cooper Pirates.

The win left the Tigers with a 4-1 district record and 8-1 on the season, while Frenship fell to 2-7 on the year and is yet to take a district win.

Frenship quarterback Doug Townsend passed for two touchdowns on the night. The first came on a 17-yard aerial to tight end Joe Reynolds in the first period. Halfback Roy Cruz ran over for the two-point conversion.

Townsend's second scoring pass was to fullback Lloyd Strong for 10 yards in the third quarter. Strong also scored in the second period on a 1-yard run.

Shortly before the end of the half, Cruz scored again from the 17. The final Tiger touchdown came in the final period when Ralph Gonzales punched over from the 1. A try for two points on the conversion failed.

Cooper got on the board in the first

Vega Blanks Bovina 34-0

VEGA (Special) — With Marvin Mode and Gary Fangman scoring two touchdowns apiece, the state-ranked Vega Longhorns beat the Bovina Mustangs 34-0 Friday in Dist. 3-A.

The win kept Vega's record unblemished, at 9-0 for the season and 4-0 in loop action.

Halfback Mode scored in the first quarter on runs of 12 yards and 1 yard for the Longhorns, rated third in area Class A.

Fangman, at fullback, made his touchdowns in the second period on runs of 10 and 8 yards.

The Longhorns also scored in the third quarter on a 3-yard run by Leonel Ramos.

Randy Roark kicked four of five extra point attempts.

Vega had 22 first downs, 311 yards rushing and 25 yards passing.

Bovina, now 0-4 in district play and 3-7 on the year, managed six first downs, 126 yards rushing and 25 passing.

Jayton's 14-0 Win Brings Title Share

JAYTON (Special)—Jayton downed Sterling City 14-0 here Friday, a victory which clinches a share of the zone crown and a playoff berth for the powerful Jaybirds.

The win leaves Jayton 8-2 for the season and 4-1 in District 3-B East competition. Forsan defeated Roby, thus paving the way for the Jaybird playoff spot.

David Noles fired passes for both Jayton TDs. The first was an 83-yard pass to end Kenny Kidd.

Dragons Bite Munday 25-14

PADUCAH (Special) — Dragon quarterback Lee Jack Tippen tallied up three of four touchdowns here Friday to lead the Dragons to a 25-14 upset over the Munday Moguls.

With Friday's game, both teams now stand 4-2 in District 7-A play.

First quarter action began with a 13-yard run by Paducah fullback Vance Porter with 7:11 showing on the clock. Just after that effort, Paducah scored again, this time on a 3-yard play with Tippen slipping across the goal line to put Paducah ahead 12-0.

Munday's Robert Spells, halfback, kept the Moguls from going into halftime scoreless with his touchdown scored on a 4-yard run with 10:05 left in the half.

Tippen came back after halftime, though, with a 70-yard run for the touchdown. Stuart Burns kicked the extra point.

With 6:46 showing, Munday scored a safety to bring the score to 19-8 at the end of the third quarter.

Tippen slipped across the line again in the fourth quarter, scoring on a quarterback sneak from 1-yard out.

Spells scored again for Munday on a 13-yard run, but the Moguls 2-point conversion play failed, and the game ended 25-14.

Dave Norrell accounted for three Tiger extra points.

Borden County Shuts Out New Home

NEW HOME (Special) — Two Borden County brothers combined practically to run New Home off the field here Friday, taking a 20-0 shutout and the Dist. 3-B West zone playoff berth in the process.

Senior tailback Eurdist Rinehardt and his sophomore brother Travis managed to end all of Borden County's scoring drives to shut out the New Home Leopards and send the Coyotes to the playoffs for Dist. 3-B.

Borden County's victory retained the team's undefeated district record while dropping New Home its first loss of district play. Both teams have lost four non-district games.

With 8:08 showing on the clock in the second quarter, the older Rinehardt put Borden County on the scoreboard first with a carry across the line from 1 yard out.

Then, in the third quarter, the tailback shoved the ball across once more from the 3-yard line, and then ran the ball across on the conversion play for two more Borden County points.

With 4:36 left in the game, wingback Travis Rinehardt scored on a 13-yard play, but the point after attempt failed.

The contest wasn't a complete runaway, however. New Home just managed to end their drives the wrong way. The Leopards fumbled four times and lost all four fumbles.

Denver City Rally Tops Eagles 21-7

ROOSEVELT squandered a 7-0 first-quarter advantage here Friday and fell 21-7 to Denver City in District 5-AA competition.

By the end of the night, the Eagles had fallen to 3-6 on the season, while the visiting Mustangs had upped their slate to 3-7.

The lone Roosevelt score came on a 27-yard pass interception by Ray Smith with only 1:26 gone in the first period. Ysidro Lopez kicked the extra point.

Denver City's Jerry Hill ran for two touchdowns in the second quarter to put the Mustangs ahead to stay.

The final Mustang score came on a 1-yard run by Kenneth Harvey in the third period.

The Pirates took a temporary lead in the second period, as Pounds carried in from the 1-yard line.

Seagraves Rips Cowboys 55-0

SEAGRAVES (Special) — The Seagraves Eagles, already atop the heap in both the Associated Press and United Press International Class A polls, did nothing to tarnish their reputation Friday when they swamped the Plains Cowboys 55-0 and clinched the District 5-A crown.

The Eagles rolled up all 54 points in the first three quarters and halfback Steve McCormick averaged nearly 19 yards a carry in outclassing a respectable Plains' team.

Seagraves put points on the board both offensively and defensively in the first quarter as Clarence Davis hit paydirt from two yards out with 6:39 remaining, then dashed in from 26 yards about three minutes later.

Safety Keith Ellerd returned an errant Cowboy pass 30 yards with 1:47 remaining in the quarter and Davis Morgan added his third PAT of the period to put the Eagles up 21-0.

In the second quarter, Steve McCormick got his first score of the night on a 13-yard run, and Morgan's fourth extra point try was blocked.

Then the Eagles took to the air for a fifth score.

Quarterback Dennis Middleton pitched a 12-yard scoring strike to Wendell Griffin, with 8:38 left, and Morgan's kick made it 34-0. Seagraves.

The versatile kicker added six points as time ran out at the half when he dived in for a one-yard score. The missed point was compensated for when Ellerd ran across for a two-point conversion, lifting the Eagles to a comfortable 42-0 bulge at the half.

It simply was not to be the Cowboy's night when the Eagles took the second-half kickoff and on the first play from scrimmage sprung McCormick loose on his second TD run, this one for 67 yards. With 24 seconds elapsed, Morgan's kick made it 49-0.

Keith Ellerd closed out the scoring for Seagraves with his second touchdown, and 14th point, on an eight-yard run with 9:42 remaining in the third quarter.

There was no more scoring during the nearly 22 minutes which remained in the game, one of the few things that went right for the Cowboys, who closed out their district schedule.

The Eagles piled up 449 yards of offense while limiting Plains to 112 yards rushing and 36 passing yards for a total of 148 yards.

The Cowboys were held to those 36 passing yards, with only five completions in 23 attempts, and they lost three throws to the Eagles' defense.

McCormick led all rushers with 167 yards on nine carries while the stellar Clarence Davis had a better than 10-yards-per-try evening with 108 yards on 10 carries.

The win brought the Eagles to 9-0 overall and 3-0 in district.

WEST TEXAS' ONLY DIAGNOSTIC COMPUTER INSTALLED AT GENE MESSER FORD

Tommy Evans, Service Manager for Gene Messer Ford, announced that final installation and training procedures for Gene Messer Ford's new automated diagnostic computer had been completed. The system, Sun's 2001 Diagnostic Computer, makes sophisticated and time-consuming testing simple and quick, eliminating technical and mechanical errors.

The computer performs over 100 separate tests, either automatically or manually—performing a basic set of fifty-nine preprogrammed tests in five minutes, saving up to eight hours. The computer tests the starting system in a cranking time test, the charging and electrical system, idle and emission tests, low and high speed cruise tests, snap acceleration tests, gas efficiency, timing and timing advance, three types of compression tests and numerous others to assure peak performance and dependability.

Longhorns, Houston To Check History Lessons

By The Associated Press
 Revenge? You think Texas wants revenge? Against Houston?
 What makes you think that?
 Just because Houston ended the Longhorns' 42-game home winning streak last season by an embarrassing 30-0 score?
 Just because Houston held them to 24 yards rushing, lowest in Texas history?

Just because Houston is the defending Southwest Conference co-champion, a position Texas considers its divine right?
 Just because Houston beat Texas in the controversial and repercussion-filled recruiting war for freshman quarterback Darrell Shepard which got the Cougars placed on probation?
 "I've got no hard feelings toward them," says Texas coach Fred Akers. "I'm not bitter about Shepard signing with them. Frankly, I haven't given it much thought since he signed with somebody else besides us."

 What Akers has given plenty of thought to is the Houston football team and how his No. 1-ranked Longhorns can beat them. The Cougars started out 3-1 despite the loss of quarterback Danny Davis in their opener but are only 4-3 overall.

 Texas has a new home winning streak of five games but that's academic because today's game will be played at Rice Stadium in Houston before an expected crowd, according to the publicity blurb, of "70,000 plus standing room."
 "It should be an intense football game," Akers says. "When you lose a guy like Danny Davis that has got to set you back, but talent-wise they have plenty at quarterback. (Delrick) Brown and Shepard both have worlds of talent, even if they lack experience. The rest of their football players are talented, too; they are big and they have speed."
 So does Texas runningback Earl Campbell, who needs only 40 yards rushing to crack the NCAA's all-time top 10. With four games remaining, he should finish No. 5 on the all-time list.

The rest of today's schedule lists only one game between members of The Associated Press Top Twenty—second-ranked Alabama at No. 18 Louisiana State in one of ABC-TV's two nationally televised games (Florida-Georgia is the other).
 Meanwhile, third-ranked Oklahoma visits Oklahoma State, No. 4 Ohio State is at Illinois, No. 5 Notre Dame entertains Georgia Tech, No. 6 Michigan hosts Northwestern, No. 7 Kentucky is at Vanderbilt, No. 8 Arkansas meets Baylor in a night game at Little Rock and No. 9 Penn State visits North Carolina State. Texas AM, No. 10, is idle.

In the Second Ten, it's No. 11 Nebraska at Missouri, No. 12 Pitt at West Virginia, No. 13 Clemson at North Carolina, Utah at No. 14 Brigham Young, No. 15 Florida State at Virginia Tech, Stanford at No. 16 Southern California, Washington at No. 17 California, Wyoming at Arizona State for a night game and Colorado at Iowa State. Arizona State and Iowa State are tied for No. 19.
 Alabama-LSU originally was scheduled as a night game in Baton Rouge until ABC got hold of it. Now, the kickoff is 3:10 p.m. CST.
 LSU coach Charlie McClendon played for Bear Bryant at Kentucky somewhere back in the early days of football and he is the last of the master's former pupils to upend the "Bama Bear."

That revolting development occurred in 1970 by a 14-9 score, but the Bear has won the last 20 meetings with one exception or another—he's 30-5 overall—and holds an 11-2 bulge over Cholly Mac.
 "You think of those things before and after the game," Bryant says, "but when you get out there you never think of the coach on the other side of the field. If I have to lose, though, I'd rather lose to one of my own."
 Oklahoma has dominated its series with Oklahoma State (54-11-6) but was upset last year 31-24. And Oklahoma State, hoping that history repeats, points out that six of its victories came in pairs—1932-3, 1944-5, 1965-6... 1976-7.
 However, Oklahoma is coming off a 42-7 trouncing of Kansas State and coach Barry Switzer warns: "We're coming on strong now. We seem to be a team that gets stronger down the stretch of a season. We've been that way the past few years."

Four SWC Tilts Slated; Aggies Take Week Off

Avalanche-Journal New Services
 Top-ranked Texas has a score to settle with the University of Houston today, but then the Cougars feel the Longhorns might have a shot or two coming themselves, as the Southwest Conference has a full slate of league games.
 Texas was branded 30-0 last year in Memorial Stadium as the Cougars stormed into the Cotton Bowl in their first year in the Southwest Conference.
 After the game, Houston coach Bill Yeoman said his players weren't scared about playing Texas in Memorial Stadium, "because benches can't make tackles."
 The unbeaten Longhorns feel they have plenty of "tackling" talent this year with the nation's No. 1 defense against scoring.
 Then there's the not-so-minor matter of the Cougars being on NCAA probation. Houston, which has two league losses, can't go to a bowl. Also, the Cougars can't be on television in 1978.
 There have been rumblings from the Bayou City that Texas might have put the finger on the Cougars in the celebrated case of Darrell Shepard, the highly sought Odessa High quarterback who announced for Texas then switched to Houston.
 "All I know is we didn't turn them in," said Texas coach Fred Akers. "But knowing the facts in the case we sure would."

 Texas is a 13-point favorite to throttle the Cougars at Rice Stadium, the home of the Rice Owls. Texas, playing at Houston for the first time since the Cougars' admittance into the league, opted for the bigger stadium which will be 70,000 plus standing room only.
 Yeoman was saying what might be expected about the Longhorns.
 "Texas has a totally outstanding football team, very deserving of its national ranking," said Yeoman. "Texas has a great defensive unit. Offensively, I don't know of anyone who can compare with Earl Campbell. Physical ability like he has comes along about once in a decade. They've talked about the O.J. Simpsons and the Jim Browns, but I don't think that there is one better than Earl. And, we've seen some great ones here at UH."

In other SWC games, Arkansas, ranked eighth in the nation, is a 13-point choice over Baylor (3-4 in conference) in a night game at Little Rock. Southern Methodist (3-5) is a 21-point pick over Rice at Dallas, and Texas Tech is a 22-point nod over Texas Christian in its homecoming contest.
 Arkansas can ill afford another SWC loss.
 The Razorbacks lost to Texas which is tied 4-0 with Texas A&M atop the SWC standings.
 The Aggies are idle today and hosts the Razorbacks in College Station in two weeks.
 SMU was blitzed by injuries in last week's loss to the Aggies, but the Mustangs' offense is expected to have too much for the Owls, 1-7, who have lost seven games in a row.

Mustangs

The 147-pound senior began the drive with a 15-yard run and caught a 25-yard pass from quarterback Buck Williams (two plays later).

Plainview seemingly straightened out its offensive problem areas at halftime as the Bulldogs recovered a Coronado fumble after the second half kickoff and promptly drove it in to tie the game for the second time.

After Larry Williams recovered a Charlton Northington fumble at the Coronado 45, McAlister went to work.

Five running plays, three passes and two penalties later, McAlister found himself facing fourth down and seven. He zipped a 13-yard swing pass to Ervin Davis for the Dogs third touchdown. After Davis added his third extra point of the night, the Bulldogs had the lead in the game for the first time 21-14.

The Mustangs' Butler personally saw that the Dogs lead didn't last for long as on Coronado's next series, Butler scored his third TD of the night on a three-yard run. That jaunt ended a 72-yard Mustang march that saw signal caller Williams eliminate large chunks of yardage on passes of 23 and 25 yards to split end Sam Hickman and wingback Langwell. Williams kicked all three extra points to account for the Ponies' extra points.

Plainview had a chance to score late in the contest when it drove to the Coronado 19 before the Mustang defense caught quarterback McAlister and fullback Williams for losses forcing the Bulldogs into turning the ball over on downs with 1:01 to go.

Butler was the Mustang's leading rusher of the night with his 79 yards while Ervin Davis picked up 92 yards for Plainview to lead all rushers in the game.

The Bulldogs return to Lubbock next week when they battle the Lubbock Westerners at Lowery Field Friday night.

Tribe Falls To Pecos

PECOS (Special) — Luckless Seminole carried a 14-0 lead into the second half of play here Friday but it wasn't enough to hold off a strong Pecos team which stormed back to a 24-14 District 2 AAA win.

The Indians scored on a 1-yard run by halfback Ricky Green in the first quarter and Frank Hall returned a blocked punt 20 yards in the second period to gain the first half advantage.

Second half scoring by the Eagles were evenly divided with a 6-yard touchdown by halfback Ricky Box and a 5-yard score by fullback Stacy Blackwell in the third period.

Mat Burkholder added a 27-yard field goal in the fourth quarter and later Jim Bob McNeil passed to Kevin Doan for a 15-yard touchdown.

Clovis Clips Goddard

CLOVIS, N.M. (Special) — Behind the running of Rusty Norton and Gus Williams, the Clovis Wildcats whipped the Goddard Rockets 39-0 Friday in New Mexico play.

Norton scored touchdowns on 2-yard burst in the first quarter and a 1-yard plunge in the third period. Williams' TDs came on runs of 13 yards in the second quarter and 3 yards in the fourth period.

Also contributing Clovis TDs were Ronnie Morris, who scored on a 12-yard sprint in the third period, and Mike Gonzales, who ran 57 yards for a touchdown in the final quarter.

David Nelson kicked two extra points for the playoff-bound Wildcats.

Bronchos Drub Big Springers

BIG SPRING (Special) — The Odessa Bronchos blanked the Big Spring Steers here Friday night 35-0 in a District 5-AAAA game.

Bronco back Daniel Stevens was the first to score on a 1-yard plunge with 7:14 left in the opening period.

With 17 left in the second quarter, halfback Scott Caywood threw an 8-yard TD pass to end Cal Adams. The 2-point conversion was good.

With just a minute left before the half, quarterback Neal Gray threw a 46-yard scoring pass to end Steve Shannon. Charles Whittington kicked the extra point.

With about 7 minutes gone in the second half, Broncho runningback Bryan Contrell went over from 8 yards out. Whittington kicked.

During the fourth quarter runningback Bryan Balkely scored the last TD from a yard out, and Whittington kicked.

Dunbar Falls 16-13 To Snyder In 3-AAA

the direction of Clay Johnson, marched 69 yards on 10 plays to take the lead which it never relinquished.

On second and goal from the five, Peterson, who was apparently trying to make up for the long pass, took a hand-off from Johnson, got up a full head of steam, and barreled untouched through the Dunbar defense for the score.

Richard Willis kicked the extra point to give the Tigers their final margin of victory.

From then on, it was simply a game of keep-away. And the Panthers lost.

After exchanging fumbles, Dunbar tried to move in for the kill. However, the long march was thwarted when Hamilton pounced on a fumble by James 73 yards downfield.

During the march, Green connected on another beautiful pass play to Williams to move the ball down to the 25. But four plays netted only three yards before James bobbled the ball. Following the recovery, Snyder ran out the clock to assure itself of its fourth win of the year. Dunbar slipped to 5-4 for the season and 2-2 in district play.

Snyder took advantage of a pair of costly Dunbar turnovers to grab a 9-6 halftime lead. Dunbar wound up turning the ball over to the hometowners four times via the fumble and once by an interception.

James was unable to handle a Byron Land punt on the Dunbar seven, after the Tigers were forced to punt during its first possession of the night. Gary Hamilton jumped on the ball to set up Willis' field goal from 22 yards out after the Tigers were unable to move the ball from that point.

The Dunbar defense, led by lineback Dan McCutcheon, put on an impressive goal line stand to force the kick after two Snyder running plays and an incomplete pass netted only two yards.

Willis' kick was true with 7:08 left in the first period and Snyder held a 3-0 lead.

Green and Ernest White couldn't make connection on the Panthers' first possession of the second quarter, and Willis

Andrews Grabs 2-AAA Rights

ANDREWS (Special) — Quarterback Booger Brooks rushed for 263 yards and three touchdowns as Andrews returned to the 2-AAA throneroom after an absence of more than a decade Friday by whipping Fort Stockton 21-13.

Brooks started the fireworks with a nine-yard run in the first quarter and Randy Cheshire added the PAT.

But Stockton, which entered the game undefeated, bounced back in the same stanza as quarterback Tate Randle hit end Wayne Jefferson from 10 yards out and Ruck Melvor added the PAT.

Brooks rambled 12 yards in the third period and Cheshire made it 14-7. But here came those Panthers again. This time, Randle and Jefferson clicked for 40 yards in the fourth stanza and the visitors went for the lead, but the extra-point run failed.

Later in the final period Brooks clinched things with a 12-yard run and Cheshire added the 21st points.

Andrews, now 8-0-1 and 4-0 in district, had 21 first downs, 398 yards rushing and 12 yards passing. Fort Stockton, now 8-1, 3-1, had 85 yards rushing and 206 passing, hitting 14 of 28 aerials.

The Mustangs lost two fumbles but picked off two Fort Stockton passes and also recovered a fumble.

Kress Blasts Wolverines

KRESS (Special) — The Kress Kangaroos remains neck and neck with Vega, in the District 3-A race, both having 3-0 marks, after blanking the Springlake-Earth Wolverines here Friday night 35-0.

The first score came with 2:21 left in the first quarter when Kress halfback Eddie Gonzales dove over from the one. The two-point conversion was good when fullback Armando Vuittonet pulled down a pass from quarterback Benny Durham.

Early in the second period, Kangaroo end David Jones caught a 35-yard TD pass from Durham, but the point-after failed.

Kress came back again in the second period when end Michael Williams caught a Durham pass and scored from 14 yards out. Henry Amador kicked the extra points.

It was Gonzales' turn again when he made a 35-yard touchdown run in the third quarter. Amador kicked.

Vuittonet was last to hit pay dirt when he went over from the 6-yard line in the fourth quarter. The PAT was good by Amador.

Kress rushed 261 yards and threw for 136 more, while holding the Wolverines to only 15 yards on the ground and 37 yards in the air. Kress made 22 first downs to S-E's four.

Kress is now 8-1 on the year and the Wolverines are 2-7 for the season and 1-3 in district play.

Dunbar Falls 16-13 To Snyder In 3-AAA

threw his body on the ball at the Dunbar 30.

Seven plays later, Johnson hurled himself into the end zone to up the Tiger lead to 9-0 after Willis was unable to connect on the extra point kick.

Again McCutcheon and mates put on another goal line show, however this time the swarming Dunbar defense just couldn't keep its opponent out of the end zone.

Dunbar, which moved the ball against the Snyder defense, but kept inflicting punishment on itself, took the ensuing kickoff and marched 72 yards for its touchdown. Green called his own number and jumped in from the one to cap the drive.

The big play in the 10-snap jaunt, was a dazzling 26 yard gainer by James. Facing third and seven from the 32, the Panthers tried what appeared to be a double reverse with James winding up with the ball.

However, a faulty exchange forced James to fumble the ball back on the Snyder 40. The senior running back did not lose his cool, though. Instead, he picked up the ball, looked around for some blocking and then used his 9.7 speed to dash all the way down to the 6. From there, Dunbar used the services of Robert Tolbert and White to move the ball into scoring position.

Tolbert missed the extra point following Green's touchdown and Dunbar trailed by three.

In between, the Sandies' Kim Fletcher scored on a 1-yard carry.

The Rebels iced their lead in the second half with three more touchdowns. Frampton scored on a 2-yard run in the third quarter, and in the final period, Don Williams ran 6 yards for a TD and Cliver scored on a 1-yard plunge.

Also in the fourth quarter, the Sandies' Mark Isaacson raced 68 yards for a touchdown.

Don Reed kicked two extra points for the Sandies, and Paul Tiffany kicked one extra-point and ran for a 2-point conversion for the Rebels.

Clark-Led Horns Roll

ABERNATHY (Special) — Danny Clark scored three touchdowns, one on a 70-yard sprint from scrimmage, to lead the Lockney Longhorns to a 29-6 win over the Abernathy Antelopes in District 4-AA Friday.

Clark gained 262 yards on 34 carries for the night, as the Longhorns improved their season record to 4-5. The Antelopes fell to 1-8 for the year.

Clark scored on a 41-yard run in the first quarter, a 3-yard carry in the third period and a 70-yard gallop in the final quarter.

Billy Sessom also contributed a Lockney touchdown with a run of 7 yards in the final period.

Abernathy's points came on a 4-yard run by Roger Lindsey in the second quarter. That enabled the Antelopes to hold Lockney's halftime lead to 7-6, but the Longhorns broke the game open in the second half.

Abernathy picked up 14 first downs, 201 yards rushing and 65 passing in the game. The Longhorns had 20 first downs, 357 yards rushing and 6 passing.

It was Abernathy's homecoming game.

WTC RAMBLES
 JUAREZ, Mexico (Special) — Western Texas College defeated the University of Juarez Friday 101-78 in a season-opening basketball contest. Worthington was the high scorer for the victors with 14 points. Palomar led Jarez's with 11 points.

Portales Topples Tucumcari 32-0

PORTALES, N.M. (Special) — Quarterback Ron Harman chalked up 256 yards in total offense to lead Portales over Tucumcari 32-0 here Friday.

Portales took a 10-0 halftime lead on a 4-yard TD run by Rod Bonham and a 25-yard field goal by David Herrera, who had boosted the conversion after Bonham's score.

Paul Hatch and Steve Gares scored on runs of 25 and 3 yards, respectively, in the third period. Harman tossed an 11-yard scoring pass to Hap Belsie in the final period, and Herrera added a 23-yard field goal.

The District 4-AAA outcome leaves both teams with 6-4 seasonal slates. The game served as a tuneup for Portales, which faces Hato in playoff action in two weeks.

Bufs Crush O'Donnell

STANTON (Special)—Stanton tailback Todd Smith rushed for 177 yards on 13 carries here Friday to lead the Stanton Buffaloes to a 56-6 victory over the O'Donnell Eagles in District 5-A play.

Stanton's victory, marked by 35 points in the second quarter and another 14 in the fourth, gave the Buffaloes a 2-1 record in district play while downing the Eagles to a 1-2 stance.

The Buffaloes managed to control the game throughout the night, slipping only once when a Stanton fumble set up an Eagle touchdown moments later.

With 2:37 left in the first quarter, though, Buffalo quarterback Tommy

Raiders Lead Hog Swimmers

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (Special)—First-place finishes by Eddie Graviss in the 500 freestyle, Steve Krueger in the 200 individual medley and Dan Redfern in the 400 individual medley paced the Texas Tech swimmers to a 133-106 lead over Arkansas Friday.

The Hogs and Raiders swam 11 events Friday in the first dual meet of the season for both teams. The clubs will swim eight more events, beginning at 9 a.m. today.

Graviss' winning time was 4:43.65, while Krueger posted a clocking of 2:09.61 and Redfern 4:14.06.

Morrow connected on a 15-yard pass to wingback Oscar Perez waiting in the end zone. Collerson Huffman' kick was good, and at the end of a 94-yard drive, Stanton led 7-0.

Just into the second quarter, Smith began his moves, first by scoring on a 66-yard sprint for the touchdown with 11:42 showing. Kendel Blocker handled the extra point duties. Three minutes later, tailback Marvin Jones shoved the ball one yard for the TD, and Blocker's kick was good.

With 6:05 left before the half, Blocker passed to end Russell Mims for 69 yards and the touchdown and then kicked the extra point. Less than a minute before halftime, fullback Bob Jones ran eight yards for another Buffalo TD, and Huffman's kick was good.

Stanton kicked off, only seconds before the halftime whistle, and tackle Larry Carroll recovered an O'Donnell fumble on the kickoff. With no time showing on the clock, the Buffalo quarterback fumbled the ball, but guard Ralph Gonzales recovered and still ran 22 yards for the touchdown. Blocker handled the extra point kick.

O'Donnell's only score of the night came with 9:19 left in the third quarter on a two-yard play by tailback Tony Acosta set up by a Stanton fumble.

In the fourth quarter, Stanton added on another 14 points to end the game with a 56-6 tally and 309 yards rushing.

IDALOU (Special)—Idalou's Wildcats cinched a berth in the playoffs for the first time in history as a Class AA school Friday night, handing perennial power Floydada a 17-6 defeat before more than 4,000 roaring fans.

But it took a gritty defensive effort late in the first half of the game to stop an obvious momentum change which threatened to tie the two teams at 7-7 and throw the game up for grabs in the second half.

Leading 7-0 on the strength of a beautifully executed fourth-down TD pass from quarterback Paige Burelsmith to tailback Buckles Bryant from 5 yards out in the first quarter, the Wildcats found the visitors knocking at the door with a first and 10 at the Idalou 34-yard line with just under two minutes left to play in the first half.

Whirlwind fullback Joe Covington burst 3 yards to the 31. Quarterback Todd Vickers then hit split end Kary Helms with a bullet pass at the 23-yard line, and, despite an immediate and crushing tackle by Idalou's Kelly Vineyard, Helms stuck to the ball like glue.

The first down quieted the partisan Idalou crowd. The Wildcat defense geared down for the fight to save the undefeated, untied season of eight wins and a No. 3 statewide ranking by both UPI and AP polls. Floydada quarterback Vickers gave the ball on first down to his hard-charging halfback Larry Jones, who broke to the 17.

With second and 4 yards to go on the 17, Vickers dropped back to pass, sighted Helms in the clear again and fired, only to have Wildcat senior Kenny Phillips bat the ball to the turf. Now, with third and 4, Vickers tried the middle himself but was blunted at the line of scrimmage by the entire Idalou front wall for no gain.

Now the crowd roared again, and the Wildcats slapped one another on the shoulders and helmets and waited for the fourth down play. Vickers herded the Whirlwinds to the line of scrimmage, took the snap, headed back to pass and cocked his arm just as a herd of Idalou Wildcats blasted him chest-high, flipping

Midland Bows To Cougars

MIDLAND (Special)—The Abilene Cooper Cougars whaloped the Midland Bulldogs 34-8 Friday in District 5-A-A-A.

The Cougars scored in the first half on touchdown carries of 1 and 2 yards by Terry Orr and an 18-yard TD pass from Tracy Thomas to Ricky Thompson, in taking a 21-0 lead.

Thomas scored again in the third period on a 17-yard run, before the Bulldogs finally got on the board with a 3-yard plunge by Midland's Brentley Jackson.

The Cougars iced the game in the final quarter on a 7-yard pass from Thomas to Sam Houston for a touchdown.

The Cougars got 20 first downs, 218 yards rushing and 112 yards passing, to the Bulldogs' eight first downs, 103 yards rushing and no yards passing.

the ball into the air and right into the outstretched arms of Idalou's Larry Murphy. Murphy romped 80 yards to a tension-breaking TD that changed the whole complexion of the game with the clock showing just 35 seconds left in the half.

Senior Danny Weems booted his second PAT and the happy hometown headed for the halftime lockers with a 14-0 lead.

The Whirlwinds never completely recovered. On the kickoff opening the second half, halfback Ricky Day returned it from the 20 to the 33. Then, on the first play from scrimmage of the second half, Vickers and his center misfired, the ball bounced free, and Idalou pounced on it at the Floydada 32.

Fullback Ricky Hobbs barreled to the 24, carrying would-be tacklers with him. Murphy broke to the 19, and Hobbs hit the left side of the line to the 16 and then again to the 14.

Then, Larry and Greg Jones and Ricky Luna stalled the drive by dropping Burelsmith for a 5-yard loss. But Weems' field goal try, with the line of scrimmage at the 23, split the uptights, and it was 17-0 with scarcely two minutes gone in the third quarter.

On the ensuing kickoff, Day fumbled the ball at the 10, recovered, and was brought to the ground at the 13. After Jones picked up 3 and Ricky Cagle got 8 more, Vickers and halfback Jones mis-handled a handoff and lost 4 recovering it. Then, Vickers fired a pass which was intercepted by Bryant, fumbled and recovered by Weems for the Wildcats on the Whirlwind 6-yard line.

At 17-0 and on the 6-yard line of Floydada, the Wildcats had the makings of an easy breeze the rest of the way. But a 15-yard penalty and a fumble put an end to the easy part of the game, and Floydada rallied again on the strength of a spectacular pair of pass catches by Kary Helms and Larry Jones, and, with 3:20 left in the third quarter, Jones snatched yet another pass from a crowd for a 22-yard TD play for Floydada's only points.

NEW COACH—Philadelphia 76ers owner Fitz Eugene Dixon, right, watches as his new coach, Billy Cunningham, speaks at a Friday news conference when it was announced that Cunningham was succeeding Gene Shue as coach of the team. Cunningham is a former 76er player. (AP Laserphoto)

Cunningham Replaces Shue As 76ers Coach

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Billy Cunningham, one of the Philadelphia 76ers' all-time great players whose career ended last year because of a knee injury, was named coach of the National Basketball Association team, succeeding Gene Shue.

"I have come to the decision to relieve Gene Shue as the head coach of the 76ers only after months of thought and after several talks with my advisors," said team owner Eugene Dixon, disgruntled that his club of temperamental superstars only is 2-4.

Cunningham took over the reins in time for Friday night's game with the New Jersey Nets.

The final decision was made after Wednesday night's 103-102 loss to the Chicago Bulls, the 76ers' third straight setback. After consulting with the team's eight-man board of directors, Dixon asked the 34-year-old Cunningham if he wanted the job.

"After talking things over thoroughly, each of us concluded that the moves we announce today are in the best interest of the team," said Dixon at a press conference.

The owner gave no specific reason why Shue was fired. But general manager Pat Williams felt Cunningham's closeness to the team would be a great asset.

"Billy either played with or against every player on our roster. There's an instant rapport there," Williams said.

Cunningham, who spent nine of his 11 years in pro basketball in a Philadelphia uniform, was given a multi-year contract. Terms were not disclosed.

"The main reason I took the job was that it is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. We have the personnel here with the potential to win a world championship," said Cunningham, who insisted his hiring was not contingent upon his bringing an NBA title here.

"I'm going to make a few changes — play a faster pace game, put more pressure on defense, run a little more and get the center more involved in the offense," said Cunningham, who scored more than 16,000 points in his career.

"This team came within two games of winning the NBA championship. I don't think it will take that much to turn it around. They appear to be a little stagnant," he added. "They appear to need a little lift and hopefully I can provide it."

Cunningham foresaw no problems in having been a teammate or having known all the 76ers.

"Billy Cunningham is not going to change his personality to become a coach. I'm still his friend. But I'm the one who makes the final decision on the court. They're going to have to respect my decision and live with it," he said.

Shue inherited a team that had gone 9-73 four years ago, the worst record in NBA history. His teams showed improvement each year, culminating in last year's 50-32 record and a trip to the finals.

But their losing the series to Portland and their slow start this year sealed Shue's fate.

Dixon, who had shelled out huge hunks of cash to bring a title here, pledged to honor the final three years on Shue's $150,000 a year contract. He denied that Shue's firing was due to a personality clash between the two men.

"Gene and I have always had a cordial relationship," said Dixon, who admitted to being a "spontaneous, outspoken and occasionally obstreperous fan."

Shue, a one-time coach of Cunningham's, learned of his fate Friday morning.

"When hired in 1973, I recognized that a monumental developmental program lay ahead of me. I fulfilled my ambitions to the degree and extent that I was allowed," he said.

"This year's team had greater potential than any team I have previously coached and I was extremely confident of achieving my ultimate goal, bringing the NBA championship to Philadelphia," Shue added.

Shue was not able to blend the talents of superstars Julius Erving, George McGinnis and Doug Collins into a consistent unit while keeping his players happy.

The team's in-fighting and snap opera squabbling became a legend last year.

"The air needed to be cleared up a little bit. This was a move we felt would be very positive," said Williams.

But it remains to be seen if Cunningham can be the cohesive force the 76ers need.

Judge Okays NBA Roster Limit

NEW YORK (AP) — Arbitrator Peter Seitz has ruled that the National Basketball Association was within its right to reduce team rosters to 11 players, NBA commissioner Lawrence F. O'Brien announced Friday.

Seitz, who previously ruled for the players in the Catfish Hunter free agent case and the landmark Andy Messersmith-Dave McNally decision in baseball, agreed in a 21-page opinion with a recommendation voted upon by the NBA owners at their summer meetings in Corona, Calif. last June.

The NBA Players Association argued that the planned reduction was in violation of the collective bargaining agreement and filed an unfair labor charge with the National Labor Relations Board in July. The NLRB took no action, but directed the parties to take the dispute to binding arbitration, and both sides agreed.

Following Seitz' decision, O'Brien notified all NBA teams that they would be required to reduce their active rosters from 12 players to 11 by 5 p.m. CST on Nov. 14.

"We are somewhat shocked, dismayed and disappointed at the ruling," said Jim Quinn, counsel for the Players Association. "We think it is a serious mistake on the part of the NBA to reduce the rosters this way. It means the loss of jobs and is harmful to the game of basketball."

Quinn added that the Players Association was "studying what options are open to us now. I can't say that we have any, but I am not sure of it."

"I'm sorry to see it happen," said Eddie Donovan, general manager of the New York Knicks. "I'm a firm believer that we should have 12 players. I think it is important in the development of young players."

New Orleans Seeks Oakland Franchise

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — One of the investors trying to move the Oakland A's here says his group might have its formal offer ready for A's owner Charles Finley, but promised only that it would be presented "as soon as possible."

"We're moving in the direction of trying to make a firm offer as soon as possible, but it's time consuming," Jim Clinton, one of the New Orleans investors, said Thursday. "There are a lot of hurdles, but they are man-sized, and we think we can get over them."

The group reportedly has raised $5.4 million to buy the A's, a team that won the World Series three years in a row from 1972-74 and then plummeted to last place in the American League West in 1977. The price tag on the team reportedly is about $12 million, with a downpayment at about $3.4 million.

Clinton said there was no plan to meet with Finley this week or next, although he said a meeting next week is possible.

But he added, "If they get the money together and something can be worked out between San Francisco and Oakland."

At the meeting last June, the owners had voted to reduce roster limits from 12 to 11 but to add a two-man taxi squad for each team. Taxi squad players would be available for practices and would join the club in the event of injury.

But Quinn said the "taxi-squad idea never was proposed to us."

"We opposed the taxi squad then and our feelings haven't changed," said Quinn. "The pay (for taxi squad players) is not commensurate with the other players. It is disruptive, and it ultimately has a negative effect on the salary structure in the league."

At the time, Joe Axelson, general manager of the Kansas City Kings and chairman of the NBA's competition committee, said, "We're not trying to cost jobs. Actually, we're trying to add a job. We're looking to have 13 people to be under control of a team, rather than 11 or 12."

"I am happy with the ruling," said Irv Levin, chairman of the board of the Boston Celtics. "I think it is a fair and good interpretation of our agreement with the Players Association and of what our by-laws state."

"I also think it will sharpen up competition and strengthen the game," added Levin. "It will make players fight harder to make the team."

Poteet Stands As Witness

Troy Poteet was in on all the fun, but, actually, all the fun went to the other guys.

Poteet was the witness for a pair of holes-in-one at Treasure Island Golf Course Friday.

First, he was playing with Johnny Carson when Carson aced the 90-yard 18th hole with an 8-iron.

Then, Poteet stepped up to the first tee with another group and witnessed a hole-in-one, this time by Bobby Hutcheson. The ace came on a 110-yard layout, as Hutcheson used a sand wedge. With Poteet were witnesses Bobby Renne and Tracy Wallace.

Norton, Young Collide With Eyes On Ali's Title

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Ken Norton and Jimmy Young will follow Muhammad Ali's suggestion tonight in search of the promised land that is the heavyweight championship of the world.

"Let Norton fight Young, and the winner can fight me," Ali said after scoring a controversial decision over Norton last year. Six months earlier, Ali had kept the title with a disputed decision over Young.

So, Norton and Young will gamble their respective No. 1 and No. 2-contender rankings for a shot at Ali and a possible piece of the title in a scheduled 15-round fight at Caesar's Palace.

In a news conference following the official weigh-in Friday, Jose Sulaiman, president of the World Boxing Council, said that Ali has 60 days from today to sign an agreement committing him to fight the winner of the Norton-Young fight within six months of that fight.

Sulaiman said his personal opinion was that if Ali failed to commit himself, the winner of the Norton-Young fight would be recognized by the WBC as champion. However, he said, his opinion would have to be backed up by the council at its meeting beginning Nov. 29 in Madrid.

Sulaiman said he was not sure what the council's reaction would be to an announced title defense Ali is scheduled to make Feb. 15 against the winner of the Leon Spinks-Alfio Righetti fight. Bob Biron, Norton's manager, said he would not complain about Ali fighting someone else as long as he fought Norton within six months.

The stand by the World Boxing Association on the heavyweight title situation was not known.

The fight will be televised by ABC. The telecast, which will run from 8-10:30 p.m. CST, also will feature former heavyweight contender Jerry Quarry and welterweight Sugar Ray Leonard, a 1976 Olympic champion.

The 32-year-Quarry, who retired after being stopped in the fifth round by Norton March 24, 1975, will launch a comeback in a 10-rounder against Lorenzo Zanon of Italy. Leonard, 4-0 as a pro, will fight Augustin Estrada of Mexico in an eight-rounder.

Another fight, which is not scheduled for television, is a 10-round heavyweight match between unbeaten Larry Holmes and Ibar Arrington. Holmes is the World Boxing Council's No. 5 contender and is ranked sixth by the World Boxing Association.

Young and Norton are not strangers to each other. Young was a sparring partner for Norton for a few weeks when Norton was preparing for his second fight with Ali, which he lost on a 12-round split decision Sept. 10, 1973.

"He was very difficult to hit to the head," recalled Norton, who sees the fight as one of "power against deception." The 32-year-old Californian also said he felt he would have to make the fight because Young's clutching, counter-punching style.

Young, a 28-year-old survivor of Philadelphia gyms, where sparring sessions often become "wars," concedes Norton has more power. But he said, "I like those punchers. They can't think too good."

Young and Quarry almost fought in 1975. An opponent was needed for Norton to fight in Madison Square Garden as part of a closed-circuit television double-header with the Ali-Chuck Wepner fight in Cleveland March 24, 1975. Young had scored an upset decision over Ron Lyle the previous month but Quarry was chosen as Norton's opponent because, Young said, "They said I was not well enough known."

Young, whose record is 24-7-2, with seven knockouts, finally got attention in his eighth year as a pro with his disputed loss to Ali April 30, 1976. He then scored two knockouts over little-known opponents before closing out 1976 with a 12-round decision over Lyle.

Then last March 17 his image as a top fighter was brightly polished when he scored a shockingly easy 12-round decision over George Foreman, knocking down an exhausted Foreman in the final round. In the last fight, he outpointed Jody Ballard.

The Young-Ballard fight was held here, and on the same card Norton knocked out Zanon for his 39th victory, 32 by knockouts, against four losses. It was Norton's second fight of the year, following a sensational performance in which he knocked down Duane Bobick and stopped him in 58 seconds May 11.

Norton is guaranteed $1.7 million and Young $1 million, making it the second richest non-title fight in history. Ali and Joe Frazier each got about $3 million on a percentage deal for their second fight, which Ali won on a 12-round decision in 1974.

The scoring for the main event will be the 10-point must system, while the five-point must system, which is usually in effect in Nevada, will be used for the other fights. There will be three judges and a referee. The referee will not score.

The three-knockout rule has been waived for the main event, and the count will continue if a man is on the floor when the bell rings ending any round but the last.

Steeler Safety Edwards Missing From Drills

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Glen Edwards, an All-Pro safety with the Pittsburgh Steelers, remained at large Friday — the latest in a succession of players who have left the team this season.

"There has been no contact between the team and the player," a Steeler spokesman said. There was no answer to telephone calls placed to his home.

Edwards, a seven-year veteran, failed to report to practice Thursday and Friday, apparently in a dispute over contract terms.

"He has made comments that he is not happy with his contract," said Dan Rooney, president of the National Football League club.

Rooney declined to specify what Edwards' concerns might be.

It was unclear whether Edwards would be on the Steelers roster for Sunday's game in Denver with the Broncos.

League rules require teams to submit their 45-man rosters 48 hours before game time, and the teams submit a 43-man squad an hour before kickoff.

"At this point, we're considering all of our options," said a team spokesman. "We have no comment to make on his status."

The walkout was the latest in a series that began with training camp.

All-Pro linebacker Jack Lambert held out for more money, and finally settled for a lucrative new contract.

All-Pro cornerback Mel Blount walked out over remarks made by Coach Chuck Noll in a San Francisco courtroom.

Noll, testifying in a slander suit filed by Oakland Raider Gene Atkinson, said some of Blount's play made him part of a "criminal element" in the NFL.

Blount filed suit over the testimony, but eventually dropped the case and returned to the team.

Then defensive tackle Ernie Holmes, troubled by financial problems and training camp pressures, walked out. He returned a few hours later.

Last week, cornerback Jim Allen said he was retiring to his real estate interests in California in a dispute over playing time and pay. But he returned in time to play in Baltimore against the Colts.

Chicago Signs TSU Rookie

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bears announced today they have signed Fred Dean, a rookie offensive guard from Texas Southern.

The 6-foot-3, 253-pound Dean was signed earlier this year as a free agent by the Miami Dolphins but was cut just before the regular season began.

Young, a 28-year-old survivor of Philadelphia gyms, where sparring sessions often become "wars," concedes Norton has more power. But he said, "I like those punchers. They can't think too good."

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Nelson Bunker Hunt, who deals in precious metals, makes his annual visit to Laurel Race Course today, and it wouldn't be surprising if he goes home with another silver trophy.

The affable Texas oilman, whose racing interests are as widespread as his varied business ventures, has had a virtual lock on the $200,000 Washington, D.C. International recently, and Exceller is favored to give Hunt his fourth victory in five years.

Hunt's winners—Dahlia, in 1973, Nobiliary in 1975 and Youth last year—as well as Ademptus in 1974 have all represented France, giving that nation nine victories. That streak has given foreign entries a 14-11 edge over the United States in the 1½-mile turf classic.

"When your luck stops, you never know why," Hunt said in a telephone interview before leaving Dallas, "and when you have good luck, you don't know why, either. I guess I'm having good luck right now."

Actually, it's been a couple of notches above "good," and Hunt's continued successes indicate that much more than luck is involved.

Swifts Blank Happy 45-0

HAPPY (Special)—Derwin Huseman scored four touchdowns, booted a 17-yard field goal and kicked six extra points to lead the Nazareth Swifts to a 45-0 District 2-B North Zone win over Happy here Thursday night.

Huseman, who ended the night with 310 yards rushing, scored from 18, 1, 7 and 39 yards out.

Former Boxing King Recuperating 'Well'

HOUSTON (AP) — Joe Louis, the former world heavyweight boxing champion, was reported Friday to be "doing very well" after heart surgery.

"He continues to rest comfortably and is stable," said a Baylor College of Medicine spokesman.

A diseased section of the descending thoracic aorta was replaced by a Daeron patch Thursday by a Methodist Hospital surgical team headed by Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, president of Baylor.

Louis, 63, had been hospitalized nearly a week in Las Vegas, Nev., prior to being flown to Houston Oct. 28.

Rangers Draft Hisle Despite Guilty Vote

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Rangers, ruled guilty of tampering with free agent Larry Hisle by Baseball commissioner Larry Kuhn, drafted the slugging Minnesota outfielder in the fifth round of Friday's major league free agent re-entry draft.

Rangers officials, who maintained that Hisle would be their first choice, took Hisle's Minnesota teammate Lyman Bostock in the first round.

They followed with Pittsburgh relief pitcher Rich Gossage and Chicago outfielders Richie Zisk and Oscar Gamble in the first four rounds.

Rangers owner Brad Corbett downplayed the significance of shifting Hisle's selection to the fifth round after the outfielder, who batted .302, hit 28 home runs and drove in an American League-leading 119 runs, became the focus of the tampering decision.

"There's no significance to that," said Corbett in New York. "We just saw that the other guys were going quickly and wanted to draft them while we still had a chance."

Kuhn said in a statement Thursday night that Texas general manager Dan O'Brien was guilty of tampering when he made statements, apparently in jest, about Ranger plans to sign Hisle. Kuhn, however, said the Rangers were free to draft and sign Hisle.

Kuhn also said he had discovered possible illegal contacts between Hisle and Ranger officials. Asked if there had been any contacts, Corbett said, "Absolutely not."

O'Brien had jokingly said during a media luncheon that the Rangers would "ink the Press" to sign Hisle. Minnesota Twins officials said the statements interfered with their efforts to sign Hisle.

There was speculation that the Rangers backed off after Kuhn's legal counsel Sandy Hadden had warned the Rangers that their penalty in the tampering case could be lightened if they did not pursue Hisle.

In response, Hisle's attorney, Dick Moss, indicated he would consider legal action against Kuhn if Texas didn't draft Hisle, alleging violation of the player-owner contract and federal antitrust regulations.

Among the 38 players drafted Friday by the Rangers were: New York Mets pitcher Doc Medich; Baltimore pitcher Ross Grimsley; St. Louis relief pitcher Rawley Eastwick and New York Yankees outfielder Dave Kingman.

The Rangers are entitled to negotiate with the free agents they draft, as are the other teams that draft them.

Olympic Village Not Needed If Games Awarded To LA?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The president of the International Olympic Committee said Friday that he doesn't believe Los Angeles will have to build an Olympic village to secure the 1984 summer Games.

"I think there will be an Olympic village but I don't think you will have to build it," IOC president Lord Killanin told reporters at a news conference in Mayor Tom Bradley's office.

Killanin said the city has several facilities that could be used to house athletes. The IOC president emphasized that no final decision on a village or other Olympic requirements could be made before the IOC meets next May in Athens. But he said the IOC would not impose costly investments on a host city.

Killanin said he was "totally opposed to any kind of investment that has the possibility of becoming a 'white elephant'."

He cited stadiums and villages as two areas where Olympic costs have soared. However, the Irish lord pointed out that Los Angeles already has an Olympic-capacity stadium in the Coliseum and reiterated that he believes athlete housing could be done with existing facilities. He said he would have a better idea of Los Angeles' facilities after concluding a one-day inspection tour scheduled today.

Killanin said questions about specific facilities such as a swimming stadium could only be settled after Los Angeles fills out detailed questionnaires on each venue. The questionnaires are to be returned to the IOC by Jan. 21.

Killanin, who tape recorded the news conference himself, conceded that the costs of the Games have become a worry to the IOC. He said, nonetheless, that cost estimates have been distorted and that accusations that the IOC is too demanding are false.

"I can assure you that if any demands are made, they are made on behalf of the athletes," Killanin said.

He said the IOC was disappointed that only Los Angeles had bid for the summer Games but said the city was a favorite anyway because of its previous unsuccessful bids for the 1976 and 1980 Games.

Earlier, Killanin addressed the City Council and assured council members that the IOC would do its best to keep the cost of the Games to a minimum.

"We do not wish one cent spent that is not of future use to the social and physical development of the place where the Games are held," he said.

Chiefs Bow To Spur

CROSBYTON (Special) — Headed by fullback Rooster Rainbolt, the Spur Bulldogs defeated the Crosbyton Chiefs here Friday night 14-0 in District 4A play.

With only six seconds left in the opening period, Rainbolt leaped over for a 5-yard touchdown, and then kicked the extra point.

The game went scoreless until 1:23 left in the second period when Bulldog quarterback Eugene Solis pitched out to Rainbolt who threw an 80-yard touchdown pass to end Ricky Vasquez. Again, Rainbolt's kick was good to end the rest of the night's scoring.

The Chiefs threatened in the fourth quarter when they drove to the Spur 18 and 11-yard line. The Chiefs lost the second drive on a fumble.

The contest leaves Spur with a 4-5 record for the year and a 2-3 mark in district play. Crosbyton is 3-6 for the season and also owns a 2-3 district record.

SPC Net Team Suffers Setbacks

MIDLAND (Special)—South Plains College lost a pair of tennis matches in the Midland College Invitational Tennis Tournament Friday.

The hosts defeated SPC 4-2 Friday morning, and Odessa College whipped the Levelland team 4-2 Friday afternoon. SPC won all its matches by forfeit.

Today, SPC women play New Mexico Junior College and UT-Permian Basin.

Tech Spikers Win Twice

ARLINGTON (Special) — Texas Tech University's women volleyball team will meet Sam Houston here at 8 a.m. today in the second day of action at the state AIAW Tournament being sponsored by the University of Texas-Arlington.

If Tech can defeat all of its opponents today, they will be ranked second in the tournament.

The volleyballers won two of the three games played here Friday with a 16-14, 15-12 victory over Texas Woman's University and a 15-5, 15-6 win over Texas Wesleyan College.

The University of Utah team defeated Tech 15-11, 15-12.

Christy Cotton and Theresa Jones were high point scorers for Tech with 21 and 13, respectively.

Tech coach Janice Hudson said she felt her team did not play consistently enough.

SMU Tops Tech Fem Net Club

The Texas Tech women's tennis team lost to SMU Friday 8-1.

In singles, Texas Tech's Leisa Bewley defeated SMU's Vicki Saraga 6-7, 6-4, 6-1 for Tech's only victory.

Tech competitor Karen Schuchard lost to Ann Broyles 6-1, 6-2; Mame Bevers lost to Kim Stumetz 6-2 6-3; Kathy Kuhne lost to Krissy Gonzales 6-4, 6-3; Kim Hood lost to Cindy Benzon 6-3, 6-0; and Debbie Donlady lost to Martha Ann Bass 6-3, 6-2.

In doubles, Bevers and Schuchard lost to Broyles and Benzon 6-3, 2-6, 6-1; Kuhne and Hood lost to Stumetz and Saraga 6-3, 6-2; and Donlady and McMan lost to Bass and Gonzales 6-4, 6-7, 6-3.

Jal Registers 26-20 Win In Bi-District

JAL, N.M. (Special) — A hard-hitting defensive effort staked the Jal Panthers to a 13-0 first-quarter edge in Friday afternoon's bi-district playoff game with the Moriarty Pintos. And when the defensive troops finally began to wilt under a steady barrage of passing and running by the visitors' talented quarterback, Alfred Trujillo, the Panther offense moved the ball steadily downfield to run out the last minutes on the clock and take a 26-20 victory.

Trujillo led Moriarty on a drive for a TD with 10:13 left in the game, to tighten what had been a 26-8 game to 26-14, then led the Pintos on another TD drive, this one covering 86 yards with the help of a Trujillo-to-Mark Callinan pass play covering 64 yards.

Trujillo scored both TDs from a yard out, and it was 26-20 with 2:30 left in the game.

But, after receiving the kickoff, Jal kept the ball until Moriarty ran out of first downs; and minutes and then seconds.

Jal's first two TDs came on a punt block by Frankie Granado which was recovered by Jerold Doom in the Moriarty end zone, and a 35-yard run by halfback Ken Raney. The latter came after the visitors, backed up to their goal line, punted out to the 35-yard line. Gary Simmons booted the extra point.

In the second stanza, Moriarty scored on a 19-yard pass play from Alfred Trujillo to Jerry Trujillo, and added a 2-point PAT on an Alfred Trujillo-to-Cayetana Chavez pass, to close the margin margin to 13-8.

Rain Stops Trials For Stock Car Race

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Time trials for Sunday's Dixie 500 Grand National stock car race were rained out again Friday, the second day in a row. With rain forecast to continue today, officials were considering how the 40-car field might be filled without qualifying.

To the best recollection of trivia specialists, a total rainout of all three days set aside for qualifying hasn't happened in "a long, long time"—probably since the 1973 Atlanta 500 when Gordon Johncock drew the pole position.

The current point standings would be the key to filling the field.

"If we get rained out Saturday, NASCAR will designate something like 12 of those cars entered as the ones likely to be the fastest. They will have a drawing among those to fill the first six rows," said an Atlanta International Raceway official. "Then they will go through the top 30 or so in the point standings to fill as many other positions as possible."

"We're not exactly sure how the remainder of the positions would be determined."

There was some discussion about filling the field strictly from the points, with season champion Cale Yarborough on the pole position.

"That wouldn't be a good idea because some of the faster cars are down in the points, like David Pearson is 14th, Neil Bonnett is 19th and Donnie Allison is 24th," said the official. "It might create an unsafe situation with faster cars starting down in the pack, and slower ones right up front."

Officials are understandably reluctant to talk about what would happen if qualifying is a total washout.

"The weather is so unpredictable here. Saturday might be beautiful, in spite of the forecast," said the official.

Grady Registers 32-27 Triumph

SOUTHLAND (Special) — Despite a fourth-quarter surge by Southland here Friday night, the Grady Wildcats edged past the Eagles 32-27 in District 3-B six-man play.

In first-period action Grady struck first on a 10-yard touchdown pass by Roy Madison to end Jimmy Mitchell. Wildcat back Ruben Gutierrez followed that with a 1-yard scoring leap.

Southland back Eddie Davila hit pay dirt early in the second quarter on a 40-yard run. Nathan Wheeler kicked the 2 points. However, quarterback Frankie Valdez on the Eagles next possession stepped out of the end zone and gave the visiting team a safety.

The only scoring in the third period was by Gutierrez. Madison opened the fourth quarter by recovering a Southland fumble in their own end zone. Southland struck next on a 2-yard scoring pass to end Nathan Wheeler.

Gutierrez scored next on a 30-yard run. The Eagles made the last two scores, a 50-yard run by back Jay Callaway and a 60-yard run by Valdez. Back David Becker ran over for the extra point.

Grady is now 4-6 on the season and the Eagles have a 3-7 mark.

Oakland, 'Pokes Given Solid Winning Support

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

It comes as no great surprise that Sunday's Seattle-Oakland game will feature the leading passing team in the American Football Conference.

With Kenny Stabler at quarterback and targets like tight end Dave Casper and wide receivers Cliff Branch and Fred Biletnikoff, you'd expect the Super Bowl champion Raiders to have an impressive air force. And they do. But it's not quite in the statistical class of the Seahawks, who happen to lead the conference in that department.

Seattle's 56-point explosion against Buffalo last week included four touchdown passes by Jim Zorn. Receivers Steve Largent and Duke Ferguson each caught four passes. Largent for 134 yards and Ferguson for 113. They became the first NFL teammates to enjoy 100-yard games on the same day this year. Earlier this season, another Seattle quarterback, Steve Myer, also had a four-touchdown game.

So, we know that the Seahawks like to throw the football. But NFL teams cannot live by the pass alone.

The picks:
Oakland 37, Seattle 17

The Seahawks know how to score but they haven't figured out how to prevent the other team from doing the same thing. And the Raiders will do it more often.

Dallas 43, NY Giants 10

This matchup seems unfair. The Cowboys have an offense and the Giants don't. But that's nothing new. The Giants haven't had an offense for an awfully long time.

New England 30, Buffalo 6
Another mismatch. The Patriots have straightened out with four straight victories and the Bills, minus O.J. Simpson, are headed for oblivion.

Denver 17, Pittsburgh 14
A tough, tough game. We think the pride of Denver's Orange Crush defense will prevail with the difference perhaps a Jim Turner field goal and the absence of injured Jack Lambert in the Steeler defense.

Cleveland 20, Cincinnati 14
The Bengals are in a must-win position but they're also in Cleveland. If the Browns could beat them in Cincinnati opening day, they ought to be able to repeat at home.

St. Louis 23, Minnesota 14
Two mystery teams. The Cardinals, thinking wild card, must improve on that 4-3 record. The Vikings, thinking Bourbon Street and another Super Bowl, could get tripped up.

Houston 17, Chicago 16
Not much difference between these two. But the Oilers are at home and the Bears aren't used to playing indoors. Also, it would embarrass an AFC team to lose to one from the NFC.

Miami 24, NY Jets 14
The poor Jets are hurting and the Dolphins are in a race. That's enough of an edge for Bob Griese, even in the Shea Stadium wind tunnel.

San Diego 17, Detroit 9
The Chargers are building an impressive defense which leads the AFC with 28 quarterback sacks. That could keep the puncheon Lions occupied. The AFC vs. NFC formula also applies here.

Los Angeles 33, Tampa Bay 7
Go figure out the Rams. With their talent they should be way ahead in the NFC West but instead they're a listless 4-3 and tied with Atlanta. Winless Tampa Bay will pose no mystery for them, though.

New Orleans 20, Philadelphia 17
This is a setup. The Eagles are pushovers for the Saints, who've beaten them three straight times. Can you believe anybody being a pushover for the Saints?

Kansas City 19, Green Bay 10
Two picking formulas enter this matchup. First the Chiefs have a new coach in Tom Bettis and that almost always produces a quick victory. Then there's the AFC-NFC connection that is practically flawless.

Atlanta 17, San Francisco 7
Perhaps Steve Bartkowski can find a way for the Falcons to put some points on the scoreboard. Their defense, which leads the league with just 46 points allowed all year, would certainly appreciate that.

Baltimore 26, Washington 14
The Colts, playing at home and with more at stake, should control this one. Baltimore has more weapons than those nice, old Redskins.

Bostock Tops Agent List; Baseball Draft Begins

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiations for outfielder Lyman Bostock, the hottest property in baseball's free agent draft, were scheduled to begin today in Oakland with player agent Abdul Jalil.

Jalil said he had meetings scheduled with the California Angels, Texas Rangers and San Diego Padres but Buzzy Bava, newly appointed vice president of the Angels, denied that his club would be meeting with the agent today.

Bostock, whose .330 batting average was third highest in the major leagues last season, was the first player chosen in Friday's draft and was picked eight times in the first round. He also was the first player to attract selections by the maximum 13 teams.

The Toronto Blue Jays made Bostock the draft's opening choice and then, after Atlanta went for pitcher Mike Torrez, Oakland and the New York Mets named Bostock. Before the first round was over, California, the Chicago White Sox, Texas, Pittsburgh and Baltimore all had drafted Bostock.

San Diego, Milwaukee and the New York Yankees all drafted Bostock in the second round and San Francisco and Kansas City picked him later, completing the 13-team limit for the young outfielder who earned barely more than the major league minimum of $19,000 while playing for Minnesota last season.

A year ago, with Montreal drafting first, Reggie Jackson was the No. 1 choice and became the richest player in the auction, eventually signing a $2.9 million contract with the New York Yankees. But Jackson was picked only once in the first round of that draft, considerably less often than Bostock.

"The attention paid to Lyman is a tribute to a deserving ballplayer," said Jalil. "It also will mean an instant move into baseball's higher income bracket for Bostock. Jalil indicated that his client would be in Jackson's contract class before the bidding for him ends."

"Lyman will be fully involved in any and all phases of the negotiations," Jalil said. "There are a lot of factors involved here. After you get so much money, there's a certain diminishing return. That's when you have to be concerned with the other things like organization, management, city and the rest."

Besides Bostock, the popular early picks were Torrez, who won 17 games during the regular season and two more in the World Series, and American League RBI champion Larry Hisle. Both were picked four times each in the first round and both joined Bostock at the 13-team limit. Other players chosen by the full 13-club quota were outfielder Oscar Gamble and four pitchers, Rich Gossage, Ross Grimsley, Terry Forster and Rawly Eastwick.

Gossage, Eastwick and Grimsley all are clients of agent Jerry Kapstein, who had 10 of the top names in last year's draft. Another of Kapstein's clients, outfielder Richie Zisk, attracted 12 teams in Friday's draft.

"Three reason that Richie didn't get the full 13 clubs is that we were honest with teams that expressed interest in him," said Kapstein. "There were some clubs who he just didn't want to play for and we told them he wasn't interested. If we hadn't done that, Richie would have gone off the board by 13 clubs earlier."

Three of Kapstein's free agents last year, Joe Rudi, Don Baylor and Bobby Grich, all signed with California. Both Grich and Rudi suffered disabling injuries and the Angels finished a badly beaten fifth in the American League West. But Harry Dalton, California's executive vice president and general manager, was back in action Friday.

"I had no second thoughts about going into this year's free agent draft as heavily as last year," said Dalton, who was scheduled to talk to Jalil about Bostock Saturday. "We need a left-handed hitter and Lyman fits into that category. He can steal bases and play center field and I hope he likes the California sunshine."

The draft lasted 44 rounds, mostly because the Chicago White Sox and Texas Rangers kept picking players long after the other teams had passed. When a club passed on two consecutive rounds after making a selection, it was eliminated from the draft.

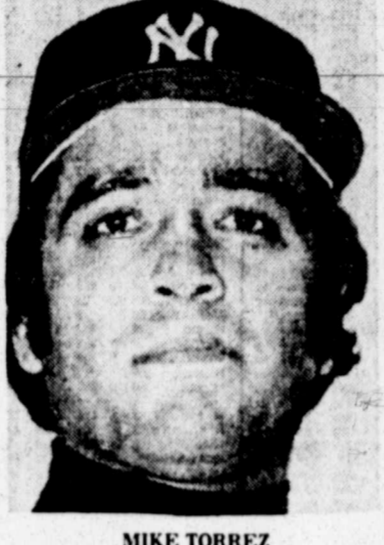

The Cincinnati Reds refused to make any selections at all, following a policy adopted by the club last year. Technically, though, because of administrative bookkeeping, the Reds were eligible throughout the draft and were called on in each round's rotation. Each time, they were called. President Bob Howsam would routinely say "Pass."

Finally, after the White Sox and Rangers had finished drafting, Cincinnati, which hadn't picked a player all day, was the last club left.

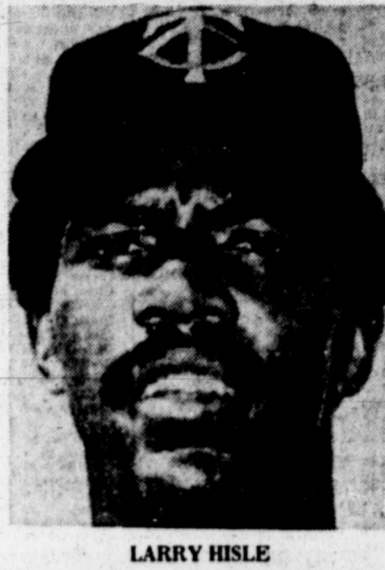

Johnny Johnston, an aide to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who conducted the draft, called on the Reds, following the routine down to the last letter. Chief Bender, Cincinnati's director of player personnel, answered the roll call. Everybody expected one more "Pass," but this time the Reds had a new answer. "Time," said Bender.

Lanier's Injury Not Serious

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Pistons' star center Bob Lanier was poked in the eye, but the incident caused no serious injury, the National Basketball Association team announced Thursday.

Pistons' officials said an examination by Dr. Jesse Cardillo showed a slight spasm in one of six key eye muscles, but the injury was described as minor. Lanier got a finger in the eye Wednesday night during the Pistons' 102-89 loss to the Atlanta Hawks.

"The eye is still sore, and Bob has been excused from practice Friday," the Pistons' spokesman said.

Meanwhile, the Pistons had another problem. There was a confrontation between Coach Herb Brown and guard Eric Money in the game with Atlanta. Money went to play more, but Brown benched him after the player allegedly ignored defensive signals from the coach.

Sources close to the club said Money and Brown got into a shouting match at halftime.

"It was a blatant disregard of instructions," said Brown.

"I am only going to play the guys who want to play ball," Brown said after the loss. "I will not placate anyone. I did not like Eric's attitude at halftime. Either they play my way, or they won't play at all."

"I don't guess I was performing up to what was expected of me," Money said.
