

Light Vote On Amendments Predicted

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) — Less than one-fifth of Texas' 5.9 million eligible voters are expected to vote Tuesday on seven proposals to amend the state Constitution.

Much of the turnout will come from the big city counties where there also are controversial local issues on the ballot. Most polling places open at 7 a.m. and all must close at 7 p.m.

No statewide races are included since this is an "off" election year for both state and federal officeholders. The big statewide races come in 1978 and the next presidential election in 1980.

The Texas Election Bureau, which gathers unofficial returns for Texas newspapers and radio-TV stations, estimates a 20 per cent turnout with most of that coming from the state's most populated areas, Dallas and Houston.

However, the secretary of state's elections division thinks the turnout will be as low as 12 per cent, or about 700,000 voters.

The local issues that likely will swell some area votes include:

— In Houston, voters will pick and choose from a 12-candidate mayor's race, name a new city comptroller, settle a city council contest, and select four school board members.

— In Dallas, the voters will name a new state representative, select a city council member and determine the outcome of a $215 million bond package to finance a new courthouse, jail and other capital improvements.

— San Antonio has up for approval a metropolitan transit authority along with a one-half percent increase in city sales taxes for mass transit purposes.

— Austin will be voting on a four-way state representative's race and deciding if $17 million in bonds should be issued to build a new jail and remodel the courthouse.

— Amarillo will be naming a new state senator.

— El Paso will be electing a new state representative.

The seven proposed amendments to the constitution make a total of 358 submitted since the state's policy document was adopted in 1876. A total of 221 changes have been made, so far, and 130 rejected.

Eight more proposed changes will be on the 1978 November ballot.

Here briefly are the seven proposed amendments:

— Proposition No. 1 would increase the size of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, which is about a year behind in considering appeals from district courts, from five to nine members. The enlarged court would be allowed to sit in panels of three to speed review of some cases. All capital punishment cases would still be considered by the full court.

Proponents include Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who supports all seven amendments; Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association, Texas Judicial Council, Texas Civil Liberties Union and the Texas

10 Persons Wounded In Shooting Spree

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A former Internal Revenue Service auditor was arrested Monday after his wife, father-in-law and eight other persons were wounded in a citywide shooting spree.

Carlos Poree, 35, of New Orleans was booked on 10 counts of attempted murder, one count of armed robbery and three counts of simple battery on police officers, according to police Superintendent Clarence Giarrusso. Poree was taken into custody near a downtown brokerage firm where five of the victims were shot, officers said.

A spokesman at Charity Hospital said four of the injured were in critical condition. Three of them probably would be paralyzed from spinal wounds, he said. The other six victims were being treated for various gunshot wounds.

Police spokesman Tony Bonagura said two vice squad plainclothesmen, driving past the brokerage office, heard the final shots of the hour-long spree, stopped their car, jumped out and were running toward the scene when Poree came walking around the corner, tucking his gun into his waistband.

"They drew down on him, shouted, 'Freeze!' and he decided to give up," Bonagura said. "Officers Bill Schultz and Stanford Barre handcuffed him, read him his rights, whereupon he said, slowly and deliberately, 'I don't want to say anything until I see my attorney.'" Bonagura said.

The battery charges stemmed from a scuffle Poree had with officers who tried to put him in prison clothing, Giarrusso said.

Scuffle Wounds Suspect

Officers scuffled again with Poree during fingerprinting, a police spokesman said. Poree was taken to Charity Hospital for treatment, where a doctor said he had bruised eye and facial cuts and a possible broken bone beneath one eye.

The shooting began at mid-morning when Poree's wife, Diane, 34, and her father, Alvin J. Broussard, were shot at Broussard's home in a residential neighborhood about two miles from the downtown area.

Broussard's wife, who was called home from her job by neighbors, said she spoke to her husband as he lay wounded on the floor.

Got Into Argument

"He said Carlos came in and wanted to talk to Diane. Carlos and Diane got into an argument and he told Carlos to leave and Carlos turned and shot him in the neck," she said.

"He was a good son-in-law and we all got along well ... She cared for him and he cared for her."

The regional chief of the IRS said Poree left his $19,332-a-year job auditing accounts last December. He refused to give a reason for the departure. His mother-in-law said Poree had not worked since then.

After the shootings at the Broussard home, police said Poree apparently chose his victims at random from lunch hour crowds at a French Quarter plaza and the office of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner Smith Inc., a major brokerage firm with offices in the heart of the commercial district.

"It Was Just Bang, Bang"

"He didn't say a word. It was just bang, bang!" said Joyce Saylan, a secretary at the firm who was heading for lunch with her young son when the gunman brushed past her on his way inside.

"The guy walked in the door, went down the hall and started shooting ... Everybody thought it was a joke with a cap pistol because it was so quick. Then everybody started screaming," she said.

Three men, two account executives and a customer, were wounded inside the

Mishaps Here Blamed On Slick Streets

EVEN THOUGH light sprinkles across the city Monday amounted to no more than .01 of an inch, the moisture was enough to cause more traffic accidents than police cared to count, including one fatality and several seriously injured motorists.

At one point all police cars on duty were tied up handling the numerous fender-benders and a police spokesman estimated it was taking as long as 45 minutes for an officer to respond to calls where injuries were not involved.

Emergency Medical Services estimated they made between 15 and 20 trips to local hospitals within a two-hour period for car accident-related injuries only.

Light Showers

The showers, which started about 2:30 p.m. Monday, were described as "very, very light" by a National Weather Service spokesman. The official recording was .01 of an inch for the Hub City.

No rain is forecast for today, however northwesterly winds gusting to 35 mph are expected to accompany the mostly fair skies.

Afternoon highs were predicted to reach only into the upper 50s today and Wednesday with the low tonight plummeting to the upper 20s.

Winds Forecast

Northwesterly winds at 15 to 20 mph were forecast to accompany the colder temperatures today.

A low pressure center in the Texas Panhandle and an associated Pacific cold front extending southward through West Texas into Mexico was blamed for the scattered showers.

Carter Postpones Foreign Trip To Push Energy Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter officially postponed his planned foreign trip to devote himself to energy legislation. Actually, aides said Monday, Carter also will be busy with planning for 1978 during his stay-at-home time.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance announced the postponement, saying Carter messaged heads of the nine countries on his intended route that he hopes "a mutually convenient date could be found for a later visit in the near future."

Vance said the president's message emphasized a conviction that "his personal involvement was vital to the development of sound energy legislation."

National Address Set

Carter will reiterate his concern about energy policy today in a broadcast address to the nation scheduled for 8 p.m. CST.

Since Carter already has engaged in extensive personal lobbying of Congress members in behalf of his energy package, there is a limit to what else he can do on that matter during the stay-at-home period.

But aides said Carter, who repeatedly pledged to stay home if Congress had not completed action on his energy program, will be taking a very personal interest in the efforts of Senate-House conferees to compromise wide differences in energy bills passed by the two bodies.

Carter's presence in Washington may have its greatest impact in psychological and abstract political terms, by showing him at his desk and on the job during the critical stages of the energy debate.

Other Advantages Noted

Aides saw other advantages in his staying home. They said the president's decision to postpone his travels, scheduled to run from Nov. 22 to Dec. 2, will give him additional time to prepare for the 1978 congressional session.

One associate said Carter will be consulting closely with Democratic congressional leaders on the timing of new legislative proposals to be submitted to Congress early in the new year. Carter hopes he and the leaders can agree on 1978 legislative priorities, this source said.

One major proposal will be the already-delayed tax revision package, which Carter has said "will be a major element in a comprehensive economic program."

By staying home, White House aides said, Carter will be able to devote more time to considering the possible need for

Community Action Awards Presented By Museum Group

By GERRY BURTON

THE LUBBOCK Chamber of Commerce, City Planning Director Jim Bertram and Lubbock County Commissioner Alton Brazell were honored Monday night for their contributions to the cultural life of the southern High Plains by the West Texas Museum Association.

The three were presented with their Community Action Awards at the association's 48th annual meeting at The Museum Nov. 1, addressed the audience of about 250.

New Officers Elected

The association also elected new officers for 1978 with B. C. McMinn chosen as president, Larry Shortes as vice president, Mrs. Richard Dickey as secretary and Fred Timberlake as treasurer.

Bertram, director of planning for the city of Lubbock, was recognized for his efforts "to improve the quality of life and our urban visual image through encouraging landscaping, an attractive urban image through design, and encouraging the creation of a commission for urban design" as well as his part in Canyon Lakes planning including the Bicentennial Trail, and his historical preservation efforts.

The 1966 graduate of Texas Tech University has coordinated programs dealing with long range comprehensive planning, community renewal, computer base program for land use and environmental control, neighborhood development, and economic development assistance.

Brazell Honored

Brazell, a county commissioner since 1958, was cited for having "enriched tremendously the cultural quality of Lubbock County" over the past 19 years.

The county official was lauded for his leadership in the founding of the Lubbock County Historical Collection Museum at Shallowater, the preservation of early historical county records and purchase and preservation of a downtown historical building by the county.

Other contributions by Brazell included working with the Lubbock County Historical Collection Museum, Lubbock Lake Site, Ranching Heritage Center, Lubbock Bicentennial Committee, and Lubbock Food and Fiber National Institute of Achievement.

Bob Nash, who made the award presentation, said Brazell "is involved, stays involved and has a knack for getting other people involved."

Art collections and cultural planning topped a list of activities by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce read by Marion Key in presenting the award to executive director John Logan.

The chamber sponsored Committee 70 to outline Lubbock cultural needs to further involve youth, age and ethnic groups. The committee's work resulted

School Facilities 'Fairly Equal'

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CIVIL RIGHTS officials have found no evidence of discrimination in the amount of instructional supplies and number of teachers provided to predominantly minority schools here, according to a report filed in U.S. District Court.

They also said in their "comparability study" that school facilities are "fairly equal" for both white and minority children.

The district-wide figure appears skewed because predominantly minority schools tend to use corporal punishment more often — on both white and minority pupils — than do predominantly white schools.

The study was done at the request of the U.S. Justice Department. The department has asked U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert per cent — involved black and Mexican-American children, even though they represent only 44 per cent of the total elementary population.

However, this disparity does not seem due to a bias in any particular school, the study indicates. Indeed, for each school, the reported number of paddling cases involving minorities is in close proportion to the campus' percentage of blacks and Mexican-Americans.

The district-wide figure appears skewed because predominantly minority schools tend to use corporal punishment more often — on both white and minority pupils — than do predominantly white schools.

The study was done at the request of the U.S. Justice Department. The department has asked U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert

O. Woodward to block Lubbock's proposed construction of new schools outside Loop 289, in generally white residential areas, and to require the school system to implement a more comprehensive desegregation plan.

School attorneys and Justice Department lawyers will square off in Woodward's court next week.

The comparability study was filed Monday along with the transcript of an oral deposition of Sam Booker, a program officer with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

School attorney Tom Johnson questioned Booker, a former Dunbar High School auto mechanics teacher, on Oct. 25 in Dallas. Booker was coordinator of the 10-member team that conducted the comparability review here in late May.

The team has not yet released its final report. The document filed Monday represents only a draft of the findings regarding Lubbock elementary schools.

The schools were reviewed in six areas — facilities, curricula, teacher qualifications, educational expenditures, library resources and pupil personnel services.

For purposes of the study, the city's 37 elementary schools were divided into two groups.

The 18 schools with more than half white students were called "majority schools." Twelve of these schools have less than 10 per cent minorities.

The 19 schools with more than half minority students were labeled "minority schools." Twelve of them have less than

WAITING FOR SENTENCING — Convicted murderer Ronny Zamora, 15, and his mother Yolanda Zamora look over a document in court in Miami, Fla., Monday as they wait for his sentencing. 'TV Insanity' Defendant Receives Life Sentence

MIAMI (AP) — Ronny Zamora, 15, convicted of murder last month despite his claim that television drove him to violence, was sentenced to life in prison Monday with no possibility of parole for 25 years.

Circuit Judge Paul Baker, overruling defense motions to upset the conviction or at least be lenient, also sentenced Zamora to 53 years on companion charges of burglary and assault.

"He is sick ... suicidal," said defense attorney Ellis Rubin, who had argued during the trial that Zamora was driven insane by an overdose of television violence. He urged Baker to withhold sentencing and instead commit Zamora to a program for youthful offenders.

Rubin even presented petitions from Zamora's school mates urging leniency. Prosecutor Tom Headley, however, said the law on first-degree murder clearly mandated a life sentence with no parole for 25 years. The only alternative to life was the death penalty, which he had not sought.

In his brief sentencing remarks, Baker noted that a juvenile court had considered the case serious enough to forward it to adult court.

Zamora, a Miami Beach high school student, admitted killing his 83-year-old neighbor, Elinor Haggart, when she surprised him and a pal as they ransacked her home last spring.

Looking on silently from the side of the courtroom was Darryl Agrella, 14, who faces the same charges.

Zamora's family sat behind him, his mother Yolanda crying softly during Rubin's final pleas for leniency.

The trial attracted world attention for the novel defense argument that Zamora killed while temporarily intoxicated by violence he had seen on the television detective shows he habitually watched.

It was the first Florida trial to be extensively covered by courtroom cameras since the state Supreme Court ordered a one-year experiment to see whether such coverage would disrupt proceedings.

During the trial last month, Baker had blocked efforts to bolster the defense theory with testimony by television detective Telly Savalas and by a psychologist who had studied television violence. The psychologist wasn't allowed to testify when she told Baker she didn't know any case in which a television show made someone kill.

Those rulings were challenged Monday, as they were during the trial. Baker overruled the new motion without explanation.

The defense has said it will appeal. As during the trial, television and still cameras recorded the proceedings.

$486,000 Invested During Deliberation

WACO (UPI) — A federal judge has decided to invest $486,000 dug up on a South Texas ranch by two teenagers earlier this year while he determines how to dispose of the money.

The cash has been kept in the depository of the McLellan County Clerk's office — where it has collected no interest — since police stopped the two boys' new luxury car for a traffic violation last Jan. 31 and found the money in $20 and $50 bills in the trunk.

U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts Monday received recommendations from attorneys representing a list of claimants to the money on how it should be invested pending Roberts' decision on ownership of the cash.

Dean Bridges, 15, and Percy Garcia, 16, told investigators they found $500,000 in cash on a ranch owned by Bridges' stepfather, James E. Hiroms, of Corpus Christi, Texas. Hiroms was jailed for several days for refusing to testify before a Jim Wells County grand jury, but the grand jury has recessed its investigation pending Roberts' final ruling.

The boys said they found the money on the ranch near Alice, Texas, then went on a spending spree that took them to Dallas to buy, in cash, the luxury automobile.

Law enforcement officials at first said they believed the money might be linked to drug trafficking along U.S. 281 which runs from the Texas-Mexico border through Alice, and no one wanted to claim the money.

However, since then both Bridges and Garcia, McLellan County, the City of Waco, the Texas Attorney General's office and the Internal Revenue Service have filed claims.

The IRS says regardless of who the owner turns out to be, it wants $387,000 of the remaining $486,000 for delinquent taxes.

Italy Debates Masterpiece Find

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — An American-financed research team, using sound and heat for the first time to look for art, has concluded that a lost masterpiece by Leonardo da Vinci is probably under another fresco in Florence's Great Council Hall.

Now it's up to Italian authorities to decide whether to look under the vast wall painting by Giorgio Vasari, who remodeled the room four centuries ago, and see if the researchers are right.

"We've passed the ball to them at this point," said Maurizio Seracini, scientific director of the year-long project that used ultrasonic and infrared equipment.

Leonardo's "Battle of Angiari," commemorating a 1440 Florentine victory, was completed in the early 16th century during Florence's brief history as a republic. It disappeared after the dukes took over and ordered Vasari to remodel the hall in 1563.

Some art historians believe Leonardo used an untried fresco technique and the colors faded away. Others believe the fresco was covered up because it glorified the republic.

The Vasari painting is a battle scene that covers one third of a wall of the room, which is located in the Palazzo Vecchio, the city hall, and is used mostly as a museum and occasionally for public meetings.

Travers Newton, an art restoration expert from Los Angeles who came to Florence in 1974, concluded from historical evidence that the Vasari painting was the most likely spot to look for the somewhat smaller Leonardo, but he did not have the equipment to do so.

Seracini, who was born in Florence and studied engineering at the University of California at San Diego, brought his team of experts into the hall in October 1976.

In an interview in Rome with Associated Press newsman Michael J. Duffy, he said the team zeroed in on the Vasari painting after reconstructing a picture of the hall as it was in the early 16th century and determining the layers of material beneath the surface.

"We found that from both acoustical and thermal tests, this spot shows a different behavior from any other layers of sub-surface plaster in the whole hall," Seracini said.

Four leather-bound volumes summarizing the research were presented Thursday to a special commission appointed to find the Leonardo. It was to study the reports and meet Dec. 12 to decide what to do next.

Seracini said he and his colleagues used all existing "non-destructive" measures for locating the Leonardo. The next step, he said, would be to make a small hole in the Vasari painting to take pigment samples and gather further evidence.

American industrialist Armand Hammer, who financed the final stage of the Florence research following earlier grants by the Kress Foundation and the Smithsonian Institution, has said he would be willing to provide more funds if permission is given to look behind the Vasari.

Last year charcoal drawings believed to have been done by Michelangelo were found under layers of whitewash and plaster in Florence's Basilica of San Lorenzo. In 1974, workmen in Rome uncovered an 18-inch bust of Christ thought to be the original head of Michelangelo's Pieta Rondanini.

Final Arguments Expected In Aggravated Robbery Trial

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Final arguments were expected today in the aggravated robbery trial of Henry Lee Goodwyn, one of four men charged after a 1976 incident in which an elderly man was reportedly beaten with a baseball bat.

The case is being tried before 110th Dist. Judge George Miller of Floydada, currently presiding over a special impact court here.

The purpose of the impact court is to help local court officials cut down on the backlog of criminal cases.

Goodwyn, 18, of 1316 E. 16th St., is accused of participating in the Dec. 14, 1976, robbery of George V. Dirickson, 70.

At the time of the alleged offense, Dirickson was employed at an office at 2105 E. Broadway St., with part of his duties being rent collection.

Dirickson testified that four men entered the office about 2 p.m. He said that one of the men grabbed a baseball bat which was there in the office and clouted him over the head with it twice.

The complainant said one of the men had inquired about the possibilities of renting a place and then had asked to use the telephone. The witness indicated there had been no quarrel before the alleged attack.

Dirickson pointed out Goodwyn as one of the four men, but said the defendant was not the one who allegedly hit him with the bat.

At questioning from Asst. Dist. Atty. Mike Ward, Dirickson said he had subsequently spent 14 days in the hospital and had been in the intensive care unit for five of those days.

Dirickson said his checkbook, billfold and keys to his pickup truck were among items taken. He also indicated a bank money bag was stolen from the office.

After Dirickson's testimony, a statement was introduced into evidence in which Goodwyn indicated he participated in the incident.

According to the statement signed by the defendant, someone said "start looking for the money" after Dirickson was assaulted.

"We all started looking and I found a brown bank bag with a zipper in one of the drawers of the desk," the statement reads in part.

Goodwyn said in the statement that he and three companions went into an alley and split the money, with each of the four getting $40.

Goodwyn's statement says that he did not know a robbery was going to take place when he first went inside the office with the others.

The statement was introduced over the objections of defense attorney rights in obtaining the statement.

Det. Sgt. Charles Park testified Goodwyn had been warned of his rights before giving the statement, and that no promises or threats were made.

Goodwyn — testifying outside the presence of the jury — said there had been no threats of a physical nature, but indicated an interrogator had shouted and "acted mean."

The defense closed without offering any testimony.

ERA Called Assault On Family Institution

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A Washington, D.C. attorney, whose foundation is suing the International Women's Year (IWY) commission for misappropriation of federal money, visited Lubbock this week to meet with the local chapter of Women Who Want to be Women (WWW).

Louis Ingram, president of the Foundation of Law and Society, said in an interview his group's suit alleges that federal money was used by the IWY commission to persuade state legislators to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment.

"We just want to recover that federal money, which we feel was used for purposes that were not authorized by the Congress," Ingram said.

"Instinctively, I'm against the ERA but not against the rights of women," the attorney said. "In fact, I don't think the two are very related."

"The amendment does not enhance the legal equality of women but opens a Pandora's box for the court to do things that decent women wouldn't wish to have done," Ingram said.

"Our concern is not limited to women's rights. We feel that it would be a legal assault on the institution of family and home if (the ERA) was ratified."

Ingram added that his foundation, made up of three attorneys, also is considering a suit against the state of Texas for its ratification of the ERA. The suit probably will be filed after the National Women's Meeting, slated Nov. 18-21 in Houston, he said.

"Our action springs from the fact that the ERA in Texas was ratified in a special session without the item being on the agenda of the session," Ingram said.

"My opinion as a lawyer is that the action was absolutely wrong," he said. "Without it being on the agenda, the petition was being denied the right to petition for or against it by being kept in ignorance of what the legislature was going to vote upon."

The attorney said that when the issue comes to court, he hopes the court will decide to make the Texas ERA ratification "null and void."

Ingram's three-member foundation, headquartered in Washington, D.C., has been in existence for 18 months.

Stutterer Finds Comfortable Job Carving Names In Tombstones

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP) — For 14 years Ray Ward carved names on tombstones.

"It was a nice, comfortable job that took no communication at all," Ward says now, struggling to keep his words flowing.

Bob Goldman, 31, hardly spoke at all for the first 17 years of his life. People thought he was shy, or slow.

Both are stutterers, two of an estimated 2.7 million in the nation.

Ward recently plunged into the speaking world and runs a small sandblasting company in San Francisco, 25 miles west of here. And Goldman, whose car license plate reads BBBB0B, heads a group that Ward and other stutterers say has helped turn their lives around.

The National Stuttering Project, now 10 months old, has chapters in about 15 cities, most on the West Coast. It is the Alcoholics Anonymous for those who stutter.

Goldman says it also is the first stutterers lobby, out to boost understanding of stuttering and eliminate the cartoon character Porky Pig as the stutterers' standard-bearer.

"No one's ever spoken for this group," says Goldman. To gain respect and dignity, "you've got to express your anger and indignation and you've got to express it verbally," he says.

"The blacks have done that and the women and the wheelchair handicapped. But when you stutter that's the last thing you're going to do."

The project aims to instill self-confidence, to convince stutterers that a speech problem should not control their lives. Unlike the National Council on Adult Stutterers, a similar group, it does not encourage members to polish their speech so much as to improve their attitudes.

At local chapters stutterers gather to swap tales of mockery and being ignored, to trade encouragement, but mainly just to talk. They converse without fear and their spirits rise, they say.

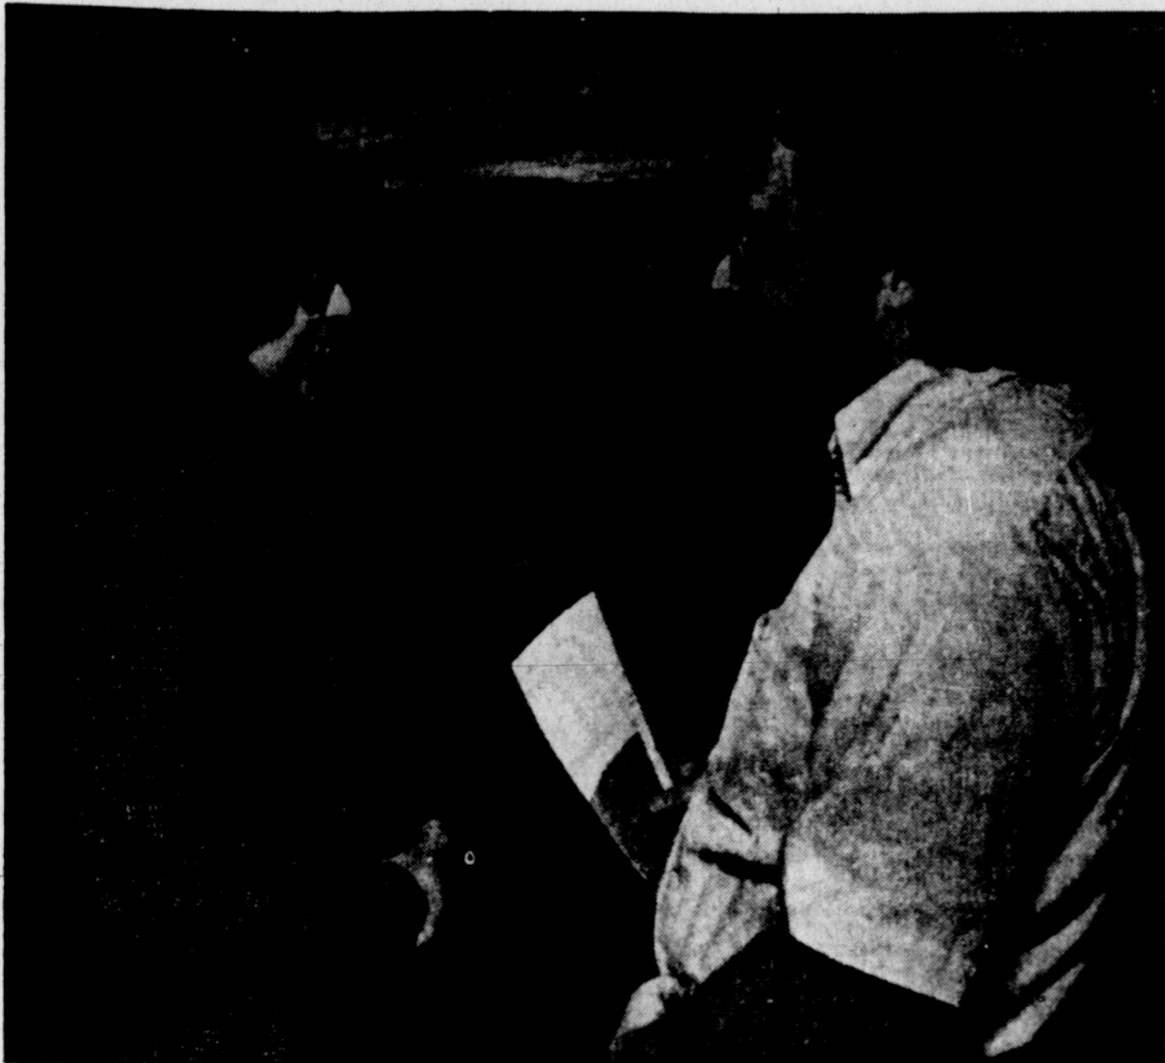

The non-profit project runs on a shoestring. Donations and a grant brought in about $10,000 this year. That paid postage and printing on information sheets, brochures like "What To Do When They Stutter At You," and a newsletter with "Watch out, Porky Pig, here we come!" printed prominently on the front. Goldman and his assistant, Michael Sugarman, get modest salaries from the remainder.

They hope some day to fund independent research and also to publish a stutterers' guidebook to speech therapists. Goldman's been to 26 in his lifetime and says it's easy to be duped.

"Speech pathologists can't help you overcome shame. You either have to believe in yourself or not," he says.

"Because after awhile you get real comfortable being ashamed. When I had to give up that fear of talking, it means I had no more excuses for not fully participating in life."

STUTTERING PROJECT—Speech therapist Jory Faermark, Walnut creek, Calif. Access For Disabled Stirs Controversy

By ROBERT E. HUBER
A-J Correspondent

SANTA FE — Human Rights Director Frank Beserra has called for changes to the giant metal doors of the Capitol saying they are discriminatory to handicapped persons because they are heavy and difficult to open. He has threatened to shut down the capitol unless the doors are changed.

But the Human Rights office itself is on the third floor of the old capitol building, and to get to it, a handicapped person must go up two steps, through three sets of heavy doors, into a tiny elevator that won't accommodate wheelchairs, pass through another set of metal doors and finally enter the office—which is carpeted.

Bobby Mayfield, the former Las Cruces farmer-legislator who ran for governor, has been hired by the State Bar Association to lobby in the coming legislative session.

Supreme Court spokesmen were quickly to deny that Mayfield was hired to smooth over recent differences between the high court and the legislature. But Mayfield roamed the capitol halls last week asking questions about the bad feelings.

The court until recently has had its own way with the legislature when it came to fostering higher salaries and better retirement subsidies.

The New Mexico Legislature was of four groups studies last year by Legis-50, a Colorado-based group, to determine juvenile justice reform moves. The study was part of a $666,069 federal grant to promote similar studies and to provide staff help for specific legislatures to be selected soon.

Law Students from the University of New Mexico are meeting with state bar examiners, judges and law school faculty to find the reasons for the high fail rate of Spanish surnamed students when they take the state bar exams.

A total of 63 minority applicants took the bar exam in July, and only 20 passed. Republican legislators have formed a traveling team to promote 19 pieces of legislation throughout the state before the 1978 New Mexico Legislature begins. Most of the bills are so-called tax relief such as tax breaks for corporation for donations to civic improvements and removal of the gross receipts tax on medicine and health care.

The New Mexico National Guard, plagued recently by complaints from high ranking officers about alleged undeserved promotions, now has problems with the American GI Forum.

The Forum, an organization of Spanish-surnamed members, says Col. Robert L. Sands of Albuquerque should not be promoted to general of the Air National Guard because of alleged disregard for equal employment opportunity laws.

Results of the charges are that the U.S. Air Force Reserve Affairs Office in Washington will begin an official probe into the matter.

Former Lt. Gov. Roberto Mondragon has lifted the moratorium on his official papers at the State Records Center. He is expected to run again for lieutenant governor next year.

Gov. Jerry Apodaca told the Health and Social Services Board this week to rescind recent money saving decisions that cut 12 per cent from Medicaid payments to doctors. He called for travel cuts in the big HSS Department and a half dozen other economy moves. The board decision brought complaints from doctors.

Gov. Jerry Apodaca's proposed $30 million tax rebate and $15 million giveaway to local governments will leave a $37.2 million surplus for the legislature to wrestle over next year.

Apodaca says his rebate really is a proposal to cut back taxes permanently, but lawmakers are expected to balk at the idea.

Judge Warns Potential 'Mormon Will' Jurors Trial To Last Several Months

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The long-awaited trial to determine the authenticity of the so-called "Mormon will" — a strange hand-scratched, three-page document purportedly written by the late Howard Hughes — got underway Monday with the questioning of the first of 200 potential jurors.

District Judge Keith Hayes warned the first batch of 20 prospective jurors that "the case will go on for a period of a number of months." It has been estimated that the trial could last from six to eight months.

Ultimately, eight jurors and four alternates will be selected to hear the case.

"We are all aware service on a jury is a civic responsibility and an opportunity," Hayes told the first group of jurors. "It is seldom easy to take off time from our jobs, family and lives. It is the price we pay for freedom."

Twenty-five local residents were subpoenaed to appear in court Monday morning but only 20 showed up. After filling out a 45-item questionnaire, nine members of the group were immediately dismissed because of personal reasons, leaving 11 to be questioned by lawyers in the afternoon.

The judge admonished the group not to discuss the case, but it did not appear that he would order the panel sequestered during the trial.

The nearly two dozen attorneys involved in the case are forbidden under a gag order to talk about the case and Hayes said witnesses would similarly be instructed.

In a related matter, Hayes denied a motion by Texas Attorney General John Hill which asked for a rehearing to remove himself from Nevada jurisdiction during the trial.

The ruling could affect the start of a similar trial scheduled to begin next Monday in Texas. That trial also is to determine the validity of the Mormon will and Hughes' legal residence at the time of his death, which, if determined to be Texas, could open the way for that state to receive millions of dollars in inheritance taxes. Nevada has no such tax.

The judge ruled last week that Hill was to take no steps to delay the Las Vegas trial.

He ruled that Hill had submitted himself to the jurisdiction of Nevada months ago when he appeared as the attorney for Texas to represent the University of Texas which was named a beneficiary in the Mormon will. Hill now wants to remove himself from Nevada's jurisdiction so he can participate in the Texas trial.

About 150 witnesses are scheduled to testify at the Nevada trial, including Melvin Dummar, former Willard, Utah, gas station operator who was named as a beneficiary to receive one-sixteenth of Hughes' fortune.

The Mormon will is being supported by Noah Dietrich, who was named executor of the will, and is being fought by Hughes' relatives and Summa Corp., the umbrella group for many of Hughes' vast holdings.

Those opposing the document, which was discovered at the Mormon Church headquarters in Salt Lake City shortly after Hughes' death on April 5, 1976, claim it was forged by Dummar with the help of his family.

Dummar claims he was given the document by a mystery man and told to drop it off at the church. LeVane Forsythe, in a sworn deposition, claims to have been Hughes' courier for four decades.

Earlier this year, a Summa Corp. accounting estimated the value of Hughes estate at $168 million. Prior to that report, the industrialist's fortune had generally been placed at $2.5 billion.

AN EDITORIAL:

The Economy--How It Figures

THE PAST FEW days on the economic front have been the kind into which one could read about anything he wanted.

Unfortunately, the doomsayers foresaw portents of Big Trouble in reports of rising wholesale prices and a slight increase in the jobless rate.

The administration and others noted that things haven't really changed that much and that the economy, although slowed from its rapid recovery, still is healthy.

THE TRUTH hopefully lies somewhere in between. Last week got off to a rocky start when it was announced that wholesale prices had gone up the past month, with farm products and new cars adding measurably to the boost.

The boost in farm product prices was a negligible 2.4 per cent, compared to the precipitous 12.5 per cent plunge in farm prices since April.

To the man on the tractor, the farm outlook was one of near recession. Grain and fiber prices are still depressed, and only prospects of increased wheat and corn shipments to Russia brightened the horizon.

MEANWHILE, ON another front, unemployment rose slightly, from 6.9 per cent to 7 per cent for October. To those who had hoped for something better, it was disappointing news.

To the administration, although unhappy, it could have been worse. The change was indeed small. But for almost 6.9 million Americans without jobs, the figures, of course, represent a lack of a means to earn not only the necessities of life but whatever else might be desired.

How many of those persons are idle by choice or otherwise is not known, of course.

THE MAJOR problem on the economic front at the moment, as we see it, is not the monthly figures, although they are important, but more a growing "attitude" on the part of the American people.

Recent polls show a majority fear further inflation, increasing joblessness and new troubles. Fear feeds on itself and can be debilitating. President Carter's job is one of restoring confidence as much as anything, we feel.

In the meantime, be thankful you live in this area. With the Lubbock jobless rate a low 3 per cent and with a golden harvest underway, those of us on the South Plains have much for which to be thankful, even while being concerned about the plight of those less fortunate.

'Thanks, But We Have A Whole Scrapbook Of Those From The Last Administration'

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

Fightin' For Crumbs

NEW YORK—Although his intentions are far more lofty, Rep. Edward Koch after his election as mayor of New York has been reduced to the same demeaning role as defeated Mayor Abraham Beame: a mendicant seeking federal largesse to keep alive the nation's greatest city.

That is the message of a speech drafted for later delivery by financier Felix Rohatyn, who has spent the last two years trying to settle the city's chaotic financial affairs.

His conclusion: "The city cannot do much more, on its own, to stimulate its economy and improve the quality of its life." The help must come from Uncle Sam.

DOX OAKLEY:

Bits And Pieces...

A SIGNIFICANT milestone in the history of man's use of energy was passed this year: electricity generated by nuclear power plants in America surpassed that generated by hydro-electric plants.

The FPC reports that nuclear plants accounted for 12 per cent of all the electricity produced in the U.S. in the first six months of 1977. The nuclear total was 123.8 million megawatt hours. (A megawatt is 1 million watts).

The Israeli position reflects deep doubts about how far the Carter administration would go in defending the Israelis in an armed showdown and how far the White House may go in pressing for concessions at any Geneva Peace Conference.

All of which emphasizes the importance of an objective and fair approach to the Geneva meeting and the need for the Carter forces to fully understand what is at stake.

NOW WE KNOW how Ponce de Leon felt. The exposure of elderly Americans to high-pressure oxygen—a treatment once touted as a veritable "fountain of youth"—is now called a waste of time and money.

"Hyperbaric oxygenation" is a technique in which elderly people climb into a chamber and breathe pressurized pure oxygen. The belief is that the oxygen revitalizes brain cells and reverses or retards senility.

Unfortunately, tests conducted by the National Institute of Mental Health show no such benefit. In fact, says the leader of the study team, the oxygen treatment produces no more mental stimulation than a person might get from a couple of martinis. Well, that's consolation.

HAVING PUT THAT dangerous capitalist reactionary, Ludwig van Beethoven, in his place a couple of years ago, the Communist Chinese have now debunked Christopher Columbus.

The discoverer of America was nothing but a money-seeking opportunist, claims the lengthy article in the official periodical, Historical Research, whose title mimes no words: "Columbus the Colonialist Pirate."

Not only was Columbus not the first explorer to visit America, says the article, he refused to believe that what he had stumbled on was not part of the Asian continent, so intent was he on invading and plundering China.

Well, we're sorry the Chinese can still get mad about that after nearly 500 years. But not to jeopardize Sino-American relations, we feel compelled to say that it's really too bad Columbus didn't discover a shorter route to China after all.

ALTHOUGH THE Spanish possessed thundersticks, which were a crude development of an old Chinese invention, Chinese civilization of the 15th century would have been more than a match for any would-be plunderers from the West.

"Discovery" by Columbus might well have opened up China to the outside world four centuries before Europeans with much more sophisticated thundersticks did so and spared the Chinese immense suffering and turmoil.

Might even, perhaps, have spared the world from Chinese Communist reinterpretations of historical figures.

NOVAK

Koch and his advisers agree (though, of course, they do not use Rohatyn's blunt language). Thus, Koch must follow Beame's path in begging from a reluctant administration and hostile Congress. While Koch is vastly more credible in Washington than his predecessor, his chances for success are not much better.

That Koch becomes mendicant-elect as well as mayor-elect today is sadly ironic.

No modern mayor of New York has taken office with fewer obligations to labor unions or political clubs than Koch. He has a better understanding of what is needed after decades of profligacy—a tight budget, lower taxes, less government.

On his uphill climb to the Democratic nomination virtually assuring him the election, Koch proved that organized labor's support is no more necessary here than the crestfallen Democratic organization's.

Having campaigned in the primary by promising tough bargaining in city labor negotiations, Koch told a post-primary meeting of municipal union leaders: "I don't owe anything to anybody."

NOR HAS HE changed his tune with the advent of victory. "Municipal employees cannot be expected to be paid wages in excess of the private sector," Koch told us, adding: "I do not believe anyone can be kept on a job who is not needed." That promises not only hard-nosed wage negotiations but some job layoffs.

Yet, Rohatyn's draft speech argues that the forthcoming struggle between city and unions resembles "convalescents fighting over the crumbs."

Rohatyn, head of the Municipal Assistance Corp. (MAC) set up to keep the city from bankruptcy, paints a bleak picture: even with no municipal wage increases at all (which is not possible), the $400 million city budget deficit would remain. How, then, to reduce taxes to stop the business exodus?

PRESIDENT CARTER has the solution, suggests Rohatyn. The financier's draft speech says the President must redeem "a solemn pledge" made during the 1976 campaign to assure the city's welfare costs (variously estimated at between $600 million and $1 billion a year).

Herein lies the grand strategy of Rohatyn and Gov. Hugh Carey during the Ford administration: get just enough help from the Republicans to survive until the election of a Democratic President, who would then push through a federal welfare takeover.

Carter's failure to do this has bred bitter disappointment, reflected in Rohatyn's draft speech: "Without a redemption of that (Carter's) pledge, the pain and the suffering would have been an empty charade, a theater of the absurd, for this city cannot survive under this burden."

"I THINK FELIX is overly pessimistic," a top Carter administration official told us, suggesting that two years of fighting off bankruptcy have given the monitors from MAC battle fatigue.

This official feels the city budget deficit can be closed with neither draconian cuts in services nor a federal welfare takeover. The hard fact is that the Carter administration has no intention of picking up the city's welfare tab.

The Carter welfare program ("It's a terrible bill," Koch told us) provides nothing until 1981. At this writing, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York and the White House are near agreement on a compromise for immediate relief of less than $200 million.

But even that sum, inadequate by Rohatyn's standards, faces a hazardous course in Congress. Despite what Koch calls "the collegial spirit" of his old friends in the House and far greater credibility than Beame, he may prove no more successful a mendicant. Congressional hostility against special treatment for New York is overwhelming.

These realities might dampen Koch victory celebrations. Having risen from obscurity to defeat the power brokers, Koch now must confront the labor unions knowing that success here cannot save the city.

Instead, Ed Koch must go to Washington begging for help. Thanks to the mindless excesses of his predecessors, he cannot be optimistic about succeeding in this wretched task.

VIRGINIAPAYETTE:

City In A Basket?

WHAT'S "IN" AT the moment is cities—and if yours isn't preparing for a face lift, you'd better light a match under your mayor, fire your lobbyist in Washington or raise Cain with your city council.

Uncle Sam has opened the money spigot and eager urbanists are lining up with their buckets. Don't miss out; it's the chance of a lifetime.

It helps, of course, if you've got a lot of burned-out slums sprinkled around your downtown. And crowds of jobless teen-agers hanging out on street corners.

Right off, that qualifies you as a "basket case" city and entitles you to frontlines in the long, green line for federal funds.

But almost any town worth its deteriorating tax base can scrape up a pesky problem or two: a white flight to the suburbs, maybe, or industries moving out. How about rundown housing? Or business competition from suburban malls? That's always good for a poverty pitch.

NOT EVERYBODY CAN play the game the way New York does. With red ink bubbling toward the half-billion dollar level, they're the acknowledged champs in the downtown-devastation sweepstakes.

But there's enough to go around. President Carter has almost $15 billion to pass out to cities in trouble. Cities that, after a recent visit to the Bronx, he has called "a disgrace to our great country."

First priority in face-lift funds goes to older cities with huge slum areas: New York, Detroit and Baltimore, where millions will be laid out to provide housing programs, rent subsidies and new construction jobs.

This means municipalities in the Northeast and Midwest will get the biggest plums, but there'll be some left over for the mushrooming cities of the Sunbelt where there are still poverty pockets.

THE FLOOD OF devastation dollars represents a victory for big city mayors who've been commuting to Washington for years to complain that the government ignores their problems.

Problems that aren't their fault, they insist. They are merely "helpless victims of national and regional economic policies and forces." Only massive federal help will help their cities from crumbling into ruins. Unquote.

Well, President Carter bought it. And help is on the way.

But maybe he moved too soon. Maybe he hasn't seen the latest report from Moody's Investors Service on the fiscal condition of the big-city budgets around the country.

It agrees that New York, Boston and Philadelphia are in bad financial shape, but finds that Detroit is bouncing back from the recession with a balanced budget. Denver is "relatively unaffected by national economic downturns," and Kansas City has a long record of cash surpluses.

MOODY'S GIVES its highest scores (the coveted triple-A credit rating) to Dallas, Houston, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Milwaukee and San Francisco. Somebody, somewhere, is doing something right.

And others are trying. Here and there, state and local programs are beelining up ways to attract job-creating businesses: cities are rebuilding downtown sections as tourist attractions, and private citizens are turning decaying neighborhoods into desirable—and chic—addresses.

In Washington, D.C., for instance, buyers are snapping up rundown brownstones in former ghettos and turning them into new townhouses.

"They're doing the same with other turn-of-the-century 'wrecks' in Philadelphia, Boston, San Francisco, Houston, Dallas, New Orleans, Atlanta, Savannah, Louisville, Memphis, Alexandria and Galveston.

THE RESULTS ARE sometimes nothing short of sensational. The kind of sight that people drive miles out of their way to see. And you wouldn't recognize some of the downtowns.

The National Council on Urban Development (which, apparently, hasn't talked to Carter lately), says we may be in "the biggest downtown building boom since the late 20s."

Detroit built its Renaissance Center (with private money recruited by Henry Ford II); New Orleans has a spiffy new river complex; Seattle has revitalized its old Pike Place market, and Oakland is on the move with plans for a new Chinatown and spruced-up Victorian mansions for commercial tenants.

The list goes on: Atlanta, Denver, Tulsa, Minneapolis, Salt Lake City, San Diego.

But Urban Council spokesmen warn that all this progress doesn't mean cities still don't have to cope with massive black unemployment, care for the aged and handicapped, and urban poverty.

What it does mean, they say, is that "we are getting to the point where we don't have to throw dollars at city problems any more. Not that cities can make it on their own, but the dollars we invest will get better results."

Let's hear it for the Council. Somebody in Washington might be listening.

L.M. ROYD:

...Pass It On

NOTE THE men's vest continues to make a strong comeback. The men who wear vests tend to be known for a sense of humor. But it wasn't always so.

When vests were on the way out around the start of World War II, the wearers of same were usually identified as serious citizens unresponsive to quick wit. Likewise, the sober businessman who endured suspenders. And those dour souls who carried umbrellas.

If our Chief Prognosticator is right, you can expect suspenders and umbrellas to make comebacks, too, like vests, among the humorists.

The botanists will tell you any plant that develops from a flower and has seeds is a fruit. Thus cucumbers and squash are fruits, no? Likewise beans and peas.

Did I mention it takes a 250,000-ton supertanker two miles to stop?

Q "How many people in this country now are being kept alive on organs donated by relatives and other living do-gooders?"

A About 20,000. And that doesn't include the 40,000 staying alive with organs from cadavers.

Q "What animal in the wild makes the loudest noise?"

A The lion, I'm told. Some say its roar can be heard for 10 miles.

Israeli Threat 'For Real?'

THE STORY OUT of Washington the other day purporting to reveal what Israel might do in the event of another Mideast War can't be of comfort to anyone, whether pro-Jewish or Pro-Arab.

According to new information attributed by the Washington Post to senior Israeli officers, if current peace plans fail and another conflict erupts, Israel is planning to fight a "war of annihilation" that would eliminate the Arab threat for the next decade.

WHILE ONE might have a tendency to dismiss the bombast as so much Mideast rhetoric, those who know the Israeli military mind will place far greater credence in the report.

In the first place, it fits in with the strategy of former minister of defense, Moshe Dayan, who now wields considerable power in roughly the same area in the Begin government.

It was Dayan who engineered the "quick strike" Six Day War in 1967. And it was he who learned a lesson from waiting and watching in 1973's Yom Kippur War in which Egypt struck first.

In brief, Israel has learned its lesson well and while willing to seek a permanent peace pact with the Arabs will not risk its own demise in the process.

THE "WAR OF Annihilation" projected by those close to the Israeli command would envision a quick victory, thus avoiding Israeli dependence on the U.S.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

There Is No 'Glamour' In Game Of Espionage

THE TRAFFIC IN international secrets is a dirty business—outrageously glamorized on television and in fiction. Glamorous? It's about as glamorous as terminal cancer.

I have known well four types of spies: the patriot, or the man with an ideological incentive; the venal man; the born conspirator (unusually abundant); and the entrapped spy who cannot stop.

Beyond these there is what is technically called the "unvented source." This is a man who remains as undisclosed to his employers as to the enemy against whom he works. Usually their identities remain unpenetrated. If you inquire too far you can lose them.

IN ESPIONAGE IT is easy to believe a rumor is only a myth, just so much hysteria. Then suddenly the myth becomes a perilous, roaring truth, usually revealed by a defector who has worked for the other side.

But, actually, there is more spying on allies than on enemies. There are two reasons. It's easier to do and you know exactly where the enemy stands.

May I cite a case which has not been disclosed? It has to do with a senior U.S. diplomat. His trail led back through many posts—from Berlin and Panama. There is much evidence that this diplomat has been a Soviet agent for a full 18 years. Nevertheless, he was permitted to resign.

TV AND FICTION emphasize women, of course, in their glamorization. But this only compounds the nonsense.

Espionage managers fear that a woman may become emotionally involved and they shun the female's important use like a leper. Espionage managers sometimes use women as routine informers.

However, Ursula Marie Discher operated a group of Polish women in Warsaw. They all spoke English and were controlled by the KGB. Ursula Marie Discher and these "swallows" successfully entrapped foreign Service Officer Irwin N. Starbeck of our U.S. Embassy in Warsaw. Starbeck was tried and convicted on his return to the United States.

ACTUALLY, WOMEN are more often used in reverse. For example, the wife of an American foreign service officer at a key post in Europe made a trip to Moscow.

She stayed at the Moscovia Hotel. KGB agents were next door to her bedroom. When she was asleep, the agents entered her bedroom. They squirted her with odorless gas that left her unconscious but otherwise unharmed.

The KGB agents undressed the foreign service officer's wife. They photographed her with a man (another KGB agent) in a ghastly embarrassing naked embrace. The purpose? The KGB wanted her husband to supply top-secret, classified information from his key post.

The husband himself exposed this to the State Department. But it cost him his foreign service career.

SIMILARLY, THE KGB photographed former British Naval Commander Anthony Courtney, a member of Parliament, in Moscow during a bedroom intimacy with a British woman.

Neither Commander Courtney nor his bedroom companion had any knowledge of this until Courtney urged on the floor of Parliament the expulsion of 90 Soviet spies from England, chiefly from the Soviet's London embassy.

Within 24 hours the embarrassing photographs reached selected members of Parliament.

Combined with other entrapments, the pattern showed a systematized and relentless Kremlin program to influence British Parliamentary affairs and silence political enemies.

Nor does the KGB spare the great U.S.A.

A-J Correspondent
BROWNFIELD — The auctioning of a handmade grandfather clock and a handmade quilt will highlight the annual Methodist and luncheon planned for Nov. 16-17.
The noon luncheon Nov. 17 will cost $2.50 per person with children under school age being admitted free.
The bazaar will feature handmade items and baked goods.

10-Mile Walk For Cancer Society Set

A-J Correspondent
CLOVIS, N.M. — The Curry County Unit of the American Cancer Society will hold its ten-mile walk for cancer Nov. 13.
The walk, sponsored by the Curry County Jaycees, is open to any girl between the ages of 11 and 21.
The statewide winner will spend an evening with the new television star Randy Powell in Albuquerque Dec. 10, and also will win a wardrobe and hair style for the evening.
The unit winner, the girl who collects the most money from sponsors for the American Cancer Society, will receive an expense paid trip to Albuquerque to attend an informal luncheon with Powell plus a $100 gift certificate.
Other local winners will receive $75, $50 and $30 gift certificates from local merchants for second, third and fourth places.
All money collected will go to the American Cancer Society, 80 per cent of which will be used in New Mexico for research and to help cancer victims.

Museum Acquires Microfilm Camera

A-J Correspondent
CANYON (Special) — A microfilm camera has been installed in the Historic Research Center of the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum to photograph private collections not permanently located in the museum.
The camera can photograph documents up to 15 x 20 inches in size, which may include ledgers and newspapers, according to Mrs. Claire Kuehn, archivist-librarian.
The microfilmed collections, to be stored in the research center, will be available to area researchers.
"Information recorded on paper may last for decades, but microfilm lasts for centuries," Mrs. Kuehn said. Microfilm also has the advantage of being a space saver in information storage, according to the archivist-librarian.
"Holders of personal and business records are encouraged to share these valuable records with future generations through this technology," Mrs. Kuehn said.

Square, Round Dance Festival Set

A-J Correspondent
SNYDER — The Sparkle City Squares sixth annual Square and Round Dance Festival will be Saturday in the Scurry County coliseum.
The festival is expected to attract between 600 to 700 dancers from a large area of West Texas. A $50 prize will go to the club with the most members present.

The dance is scheduled from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. with request rounds from 7 p.m. to 7:45 p.m. A round dance workshop will be from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. with a square dance workshop from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.
Johnny LeClair of Mesa, Ariz. will be the square dance caller. Dave and Nita Smith of Lubbock will call the rounds.
Dr. and Mrs. W.B. McSpadden and Mrs. Maribeth Vestal are co-chairmen for the festival.
Persons wishing further information may contact Mrs. Lunette Null, publicity chairman.

Midland College Slates Tug-Of-War

A-J Correspondent
MIDLAND (Special) — A giant Tug O' War contest has been scheduled at Midland College here at 10:30 a.m. Saturday. More than 90 area high schools, two dozen colleges and scores of civic groups have been invited to participate.
The event, billed as the First Annual Midland College "Pull for the Hungry," is designed to raise food and money for the undernourished of the world.
"And of course, we also intend to make this an enjoyable occasion," said Dr. Jim Cook, director of student activities.
Six-person tug o' war teams with a 1,200-pound weight limit per team will compete in a championship bracket for first round losers. Each entrant is required to donate one can of food.
Following the competition, there will be a discussion of the world hunger problems and ways in which it might be alleviated.
"We already have more than a dozen teams entered from Midland College organizations and community groups," said Tommy Tuck, president of the co-sponsoring Midland College Student Senate.

Restaurant Prices To Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether your taste runs to a burger on a bun or pheasant under glass, you'll pay more for eating out in 1978, but the rate of increase won't be quite as steep as it was this year, the National Restaurant Association said Monday.

Louis Boochever, the trade group's chief economist, predicted that restaurant prices, including alcoholic beverages, will rise 7 percent next year — about half a percentage point less than the 1977 estimate by the association for 1977.
The federal Consumer Price Index shows the cost of food away from home — not counting liquor — rose 6.7 per cent from December 1976 to September 1977. The cost of food at home went up 7.2 percent in the same period, which is the latest for which the federal government has provided figures.

It is difficult to talk about typical restaurant bills since costs vary so widely with the type of establishment and meal. A March 1976 study by the restaurant group showed that the average restaurant check for dinner was just under $3 per person. Another study showed that the average check per person at a table service restaurant in 1976 was just under $5.

Boochever said at a news conference here that sales in the food service industry — which covers all types of restaurants as well as institutional feeding operations like those in the military — will total $93.7 billion in 1978, up 9.1 percent from this year's estimated $85.9 billion.

Boochever did not break down the menu price increase according to type of restaurant. He said the rise would be due to an 11 percent increase in labor costs, a 4 percent hike in food prices and a 6.5 percent jump in other expenses, including energy bills.

Consumers now spend 36½ percent of every food dollar eating out. The figure is expected to rise to 40 percent by the early 1980s and Boochever said he saw "the potential for a 50 percent share by the end of that decade."

So-called "limited menu establishments" — mainly the fast-food outlets — continue to account for much of the increase. They now account for just over one-third of all food industry sales and total sales are expected to grow 12.1 percent next year.

Sales at ice cream outlets also will grow faster than the industry as a whole — up 10.9 percent in 1978 — Boochever said, mainly because of the popularity of frozen yogurt.

The economist said his predictions reflected the impact of the increase in the minimum wage, effective Jan. 1. The figures do not, however, take into effect what would happen if tax deductions for business lunches are cut in half. Cutting the tax deduction has been mentioned by the Carter administration as a possible part of the President's overall tax reform bill. The restaurant group contends that such a move would seriously hurt the economy.

Supreme Court To Decide Fate Of Nuclear Accident Lawsuits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a case the government says could determine the future of nuclear energy development in the United States, agreed Monday to decide whether power plant operators ever may be sued for more than $560 million for a nuclear accident.

The justices said they will review a decision by a federal judge in North Carolina that the liability ceiling approved by Congress is unconstitutional.

Congress passed the Price-Anderson Act in 1957 to help encourage private development of nuclear energy. Several amendments to the original legislation have upped the maximum amount of liability facing nuclear plant owners for a major nuclear accident or catastrophe.

U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan ruled last March that such a limit denies persons who might be injured in such a "nuclear incident" their right to due process and equal protection of the law.

Justice Department attorneys, appealing McMillan's ruling for the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission, said it "could stand as a major impediment to further private development of nuclear energy in this nation."

Because available insurance is inadequate, the government said, power companies would not build plants if confronted with unlimited liability.

The trial judge's decision also was appealed by the Duke Power Co.

The controversy stems from a lawsuit filed by the Carolina Environmental Study Group against Duke Power involving two power plants under construction in the Charlotte, N.C., area.

The environmental group challenged the federal law limiting Duke Power's liability in accidents at the plants, and Judge McMillan ruled that area residents "are threatened with certain injury of relatively minor nature, and with the reasonable likelihood of major or perhaps catastrophic injury, without assurance of adequate compensation."

In other matters Monday, the court: — Let stand a $214,000 libel suit defeat suffered by TODAY, a Brevard County, Fla., newspaper.

One of the questions raised in the newspaper's appeal that the justices refused to review is whether public officials or public figures are entitled to punitive damages in libel suits. A Florida jury awarded a Vero Beach building official $100,000 in punitive damages on top of $114,000 in compensatory damages in his suit against TODAY.

— Refused to consider expanding the scope of a controversial decision which last year cut off access to federal courts for many state prisoners. The court's action means Ohio authorities must give a new trial to a convicted sex murderer who led police to the body of his 9-year-old victim.

— Left intact a lower court's order that

Pennsylvania pay $9 million to thousands of residents in state mental hospitals — money that was taken in full or partial payment for care and maintenance costs.

— Let stand a court decision that the sellers of London commodity options claim threatens to put almost all of them out of business. The options sellers had been challenging new federal regulations which drastically change the way they do business.

TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN RESOURCES Proposed Amendment to Title XX Plan for 1978 Program Year Public Comment Invited

Title XX of the Social Security Act provides funds for social services such as day care, family planning and emergency family services. Each year the Department of Human Resources (DHR) publishes a services plan which describes how Title XX funds will be used. The following is a proposed amendment to the Title XX Comprehensive Annual Services Program Plan for the year which began October 1, 1977 and ends September 30, 1978.

SPECIAL SERVICES TO AFDC CHILDREN—It is proposed that the Title XX plan be amended to add a special service for children who are receiving financial assistance through Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC). The service will enhance the personal, social and educational functioning of eligible children by providing assistance in obtaining school supplies and winter clothing, or other necessities the responsible adult deems necessary.

COMMENTS—Comments about the amendment are encouraged and should be sent to the Title XX Information Center, Department of Human Resources, Austin, Texas 78701. Comments must be received by 5 p.m. December 8, 1977.

GETTING COPIES OF THE AMENDMENT—The proposed amendment may be read or obtained free of charge at the DHR offices listed below or by writing to the Title XX Information Center (see address above).

Addresses are for DHR offices. Where there are no offices, the address of the county judge is given.

Suspect Questioned In Alleged Rape

A 12-year-old Lubbock girl told police Monday she was raped by a man who carried her from a friend's bedroom where she was staying the night to his own early Monday morning.

Police were still checking the incident late Monday, but reports indicated the girl told her parents she was staying overnight with a friend at an East Lubbock residence when a man entered the bedroom about midnight Sunday and carried her out.

Lubbock officers were questioning a man in connection with the alleged incident Monday.

In other reported incidents, Doug Driver of Rt. 7 told police someone took a money bag containing $500 from a desk drawer at a 1515 Ave. Q business about 2 p.m. Saturday.

Charles Walter of 4305 17th St., No. 109, reported a similar incident to police in which he said burglars lifted more than $350 worth of tools from the back of his car parked outside his home between 10 p.m. Sunday and 7 a.m. Monday.

Tires valued at $180 were reportedly taken from Harold Massey's car parked outside his 3650 Ave. H home early Monday.

A 22-year-old Lubbock man remained in serious condition in Methodist Hospital late Monday following an early morning shooting incident at an Avenue S residence earlier Monday.

Gaylon Lynn Smith of 6509-B Ave. S was found in the kitchen area of another apartment after reportedly being shot three times by a woman. According to witnesses' accounts, the incident was the result of an earlier argument.

According to Michael J. Skalsky of 1306 39th St., someone cut a window screen and stole $371 worth of household goods from his residence sometime during the past three days.

Tax Charges Filed On Childress Man

A-J Correspondent
AMARILLO—Vaughan B. Nowlin of Childress posted a $5,000 bond here after being arraigned on charges of federal tax laws violations.

Bond was set by U.S. Magistrate Robert Sanders.

Nowlin, 34, was indicted Oct. 26 by a federal grand jury in Lubbock on 39 counts of alleged tax law violations.

Only seven of the counts allege felonious conduct.

Those counts allege that Nowlin, doing business as the Vaughan B. Nowlin Cotton Company, deducted and collected federal income and F.I.C.A. taxes from employees, then willfully failed to pay the money to the Internal Revenue Service.

The seven counts charge this was done in each of seven quarters beginning July 1, 1974, and ending March 31, 1976.

If convicted, Nowlin could be assessed a punishment of not more than five years imprisonment or a $10,000 fine on each of the seven counts.

Nowlin, once considered a prodigy as a West Texas cotton broker, was convicted Oct. 27 of theft by check by a state court jury.

Nowlin was assessed a five-year prison term at the conclusion of that trial, which had been moved to Seymour from Paducah on a change of venue.

From 1948 to 1975, the proportion of government employees in the nation's work force almost doubled—from nine to 17 percent.

CRUMPLED WRECKAGE — Debris from this 1973 pickup scattered across a large section of Spur 327 west of Frankford Avenue about 4 p.m. Monday when the driver of the vehicle apparently lost control as he was passing another motorist, and the vehicle slid off the roadway. Witnesses indicated the vehicle flipped eight times before throwing the driver, 55-year-old Orville Glen Monzingo of 7502 Ave. H. more than 75 feet from the car. Monzingo died of massive head injuries about 5:05 p.m. Monday in Methodist Hospital. See story, Page One, Sec. A. (Staff Photo by Norm Tindell)

Fatality, Numerous Accidents Accompany Wet Siege Here

to Department of Public Safety troopers who assisted in investigating the accident. The Lubbock man died about 5:05 p.m. in Methodist Hospital of massive head and chest injuries, thus becoming the city's 38th traffic fatality this year. Justice of the Peace L.J. Blackack pronounced the man dead at the hospital. Earlier Monday, city statisticians marked up the city's 37th fatality of the year when a 57-year-old man riding in a pickup just before 1 a.m. was killed when the auto struck a parked vehicle. Justice of the Peace Charles E. Smith pronounced Joe Genaro Mendosa of 903 E. Rice St. dead at the scene of the 12:20 a.m. accident in the 1100-block of E. Rice Street. Police said Mendosa was apparently a passenger in a vehicle headed west on E. Rice Street when the auto struck a parked truck, which then ramed into a parked sedan nearby. Mendosa was reportedly pinned inside the auto by the tailgate of the parked pickup truck.

Driver Jailed
Just after the mishap, police jailed the 36-year-old driver of the vehicle for involuntary manslaughter, but the suspect was released from city jail on bond later Monday. Another Lubbockite injured during Monday's brief rainstorm remained in serious condition at a Lubbock hospital late Monday. Highland Hospital officials said 60-year-old Norman Holder of 2211 39th St. was admitted to the facility in serious condition about 4:30 p.m. Monday. Holder was injured in a two-truck accident near the intersection of Loop 289 and North U.S. 87. An 18-year-old Texas Tech coed was also fighting for her life in a Lubbock hospital Monday with injuries she suffered in a hit-and-run accident Saturday.

Tech Coed "Critical"
Rebecca Ann Hairston of 3016 25th St. was in critical condition late Monday in Methodist Hospital's surgical intensive care unit with injuries she suffered when she was struck by a car while crossing University Avenue following the Tech-Texas Christian University football game in Jones Stadium about 6:30 p.m. Police said Miss Hairston and several friends were crossing in the 500-block of University Avenue when a white Chevrolet vehicle, possibly a pickup, drove through the group, striking Miss Hairston. The vehicle reportedly drove away without stopping.

SPLINTERED DEBRIS — A small car driven by a 17-year-old Lubbock youth careened across rain-slicked streets near the intersection of 42nd Street and Avenue L into the side of this apartment complex just as rain began falling over the city Monday. Lubbock patrolman Pat Nesbitt said two occupants of the apartment struck hardest by the vehicle were uninjured, even though they were lying on a couch only feet from where the auto ripped a chunk from the apartment's walls. The vehicle's driver was also uninjured, but police said damage to the complex was "extensive." (Staff Photo by Norm Tindell)

Re-Election Bid Made By Briscoe

DALLAS (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe, seeking to become the first person in Texas history to serve 10 years as chief executive, Monday officially launched his re-election campaign before more than 8,000 cheering, banner waving supporters.

Briscoe began his new campaign with an old theme — a promise of no new taxes if he is elected to a third term over Democratic challengers John Hill and Preston Smith and a probable Republican challenger.

The governor, who will tour 26 East Texas cities during the next three days in his first campaign of the year, told the crowd at Dallas Convention Center the state has prospered and needed funds have been provided for education, health care and other state needs during his administration without the need for new taxes. He said every other industrialized state has a corporate or personal income tax, or both. "Texas has neither, Texas needs neither, and as long as I am governor Texas will have neither," Briscoe said.

"There will be no new or additional state taxes as long as I am governor. The people are getting more from their state government than ever before, but at the same time are keeping more of their hard earned dollars for their own use."

Jess Hay, organizer of the campaign kickoff, said 8,300 persons were served cold sandwiches, fruit and a oneserving size bottle of wine in paint bucket style lunch pails at the rally. For the dinner and a blue Briscoe banner, the governor's backers paid $12.50 each.

Charter planes and buses brought groups from Austin, San Antonio, Fort Worth Uvalde and other cities. Hay said the rally was the largest for a candidate for governor in the state's history.

Briscoe and his wife spent more than an hour before the rally walking the aisles of the crowded convention center greeting the supporters, and a symphony orchestra and chorus provided accompaniment to a lavish slide show on Texas.

Study Of Facilities Prepares Way For City School Case

10 per cent white students. Investigators found "fairly equal" facilities between the two groups. The average age of the minority schools was 23 years; of majority schools, 22 years.

The report said the average minority school has an enrollment of 384 students, a capacity of 547 pupils, and a ratio of 16 children per classroom. On the other hand, the average majority school has an enrollment of 564 students, a capacity of 652 pupils, and a ratio of 20 children per classroom, the study said.

"The lower average number of students per classroom in the minority campuses reflects the fact that these schools are being utilized at only 70.7 per cent of their available capacity," the document said.

Most-Utilized Schools
"The majority schools are being utilized at an average of 86.5 per cent of their available capacity."

In majority schools, the report said, there is a ratio of 20.7 students per teacher. The ratio in minority schools is 15.7 children per teacher.

Generally teachers in minority schools are not as experienced as teachers in majority schools, the study indicated. Majority schools have 17 per cent of their teachers with 20 or more years' experience and 30 per cent with 10-20 years; minority schools have only 12 per cent of their teachers with 20 or more years and 22 per cent with 10-20 years, the report said.

However, the statistics suggested that this could be attributed to the fact that minority schools have many more black and Mexican-American teachers, who on the whole are younger than white teachers.

Expenditures Reviewed
The federal team also reviewed school-by-school expenditures for past years.

"It is obvious from the data submitted for the three years surveyed that the district has maintained a reasonable degree of equitableness in its expenditures of funds for instructional materials, supplies and equipment between the elementary majority and minority schools," the report said.

The study added, however, that this "equitableness of educational materials, supplies and equipment was not as readily discernible by the review team as members visited the schools."

The report said that last year, the majority schools administered corporal punishment — used in Lubbock as a discipline of "last resort" — 737 times.

According to the survey, 103 of these incidents (or 14 per cent) involved minority students, and 634 (86 per cent) involved white students.

These figures are very much in line with the racial composition of the majority schools. Their combined student bodies include 11 per cent blacks and Mexican-Americans and 89 per cent whites.

The study said corporal punishment was used 1,395 times in minority schools last year. Of these cases, 1,225 (88 per cent) involved minorities, and 170 (12 per cent) involved white students.

Again, the figures were proportional to the minority schools' racial breakdown. The racial composition of these schools is 89 per cent black and Mexican-American and 11 per cent white.

The report did not attempt to explain why minority schools used corporal punishment more often than majority schools. The differences, however, were marked. The most incidents of paddling report in any majority school was 93 last year. According to the report, one minority school had 273 cases of corporal punishment last year, another had 242, and two others had 159 and 124.

Smashed Dam Never Inspected, College President Reveals

TOCCOA, Ga. (UPI) — The Toccoa dam that burst in the predawn hours Sunday, deluging a sleeping Bible college campus, may never have been inspected for structural soundness, the college president said Monday.

The official death toll in the disaster in the northeast Georgia mountains Monday night reached 38. But a spokesman for Toccoa Falls College said two men associated with the religious institution were missing and presumed drowned.

Hale Woman Among Victims
(A former Hale County resident died and her husband was listed as missing after floodwaters ripped through their home, which was on the campus of Toccoa Falls Bible College.

Mary Williams, 70, formerly of the Prairieview Community, 10 miles northeast of Plainview, Tex., died during Sunday's flash flooding.

Her husband, Paul, 74, a native of the Prairieview Community, late Monday was listed as missing. The couple had lived in the Prairieview Community from about 1928 to 1950.

Area relatives include a nephew, Carl Williams of Hale Center; a niece, Kate Beckner of Lubbock; and a cousin, Mrs. Zama Ralls of Ralls.) Hundreds of workers using bulldozers and other construction equipment searched for the bodies of the two missing men, Dr. Jerry Sproull, 45, and Williams. All other faculty, staff and their children have been accounted for, the spokesman said.

Disaster Declared
President Carter issued a disaster declaration, making the area eligible for federal aid.

The dam burst occurred following five days of rainfall, particularly heavy on Saturday. The same storm caused widespread flash flooding in the Blue Ridge Mountains of western North Carolina and in east Tennessee.

At least 10 persons died in North Carolina and one in east Tennessee. Kenn Opperman, Toccoa college president, said he did not know if the dam had ever been inspected. He said a road across the top and some access roads had been inspected by a government agency, apparently the Soil and Conservation Service, three days before the disaster.

Two years ago, he said, flooding from the dam caused $100,000 in damage and the college received a federal grant to make repairs to the roads. The inspection was to make sure the work had been done.

Labeled "High Hazard"
The dam was one of 84 in Georgia, and 20,000 nationwide, that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers labeled a "high hazard," meaning if it burst, property damage and loss of life could result.

The federal government has no authority to regulate private dams, and neither does the state of Georgia.

The dam, owned by the college, was built in 1937 to provide water and power but it was only used to provide water. Congress this year approved a $15 million appropriation, according to presidential aide Greg Schneider, to fund a "pilot program" to permit the Corps to inspect privately owned dams. However, the Office of Management and Budget has not yet implemented the program. Some townspeople had worried about the dam's safety.

Fisherman Deserts Lake
James Karemmer said he stopped fishing at 80-acre Kelley Barnes Lake, the impoundment backed up the dam, last summer.

stimulating the economy through tax cuts and other measures. And, he can work on the substance of other proposals.

Although taxes and the economy currently occupy center stage in White House planning, the president also must consider when to present a promised national health insurance plan and how fast to press for government reorganization, welfare revision, hospital cost containment, creation of a federal consumer agency and other items already on the legislative agenda.

The Carter trip would have taken him to four continents and to the capital cities of Venezuela, Brazil, Nigeria, Saudi Arabia, India, Iran, France, Poland and Belgium.

Three more men had been shot about half an hour earlier in Edison Park, a vestpocket park on Bourbon Street in the heart of the French Quarter. Witnesses said the gunman stopped his car in traffic, ran into the park and shot point-blank at two men who were seated on benches.

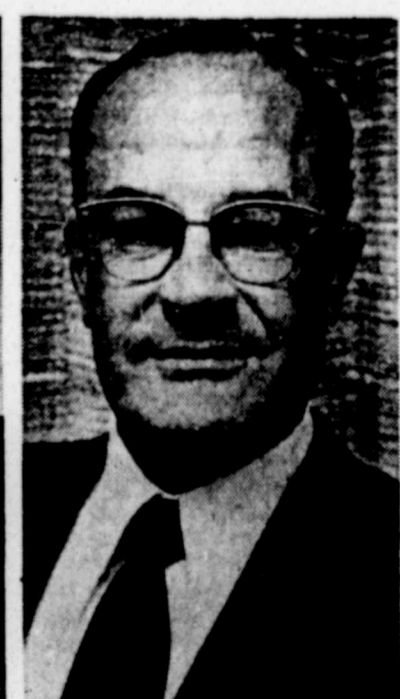

He then ran back to the street, where he shot a third man, and fled on foot, leaving a package of .38-caliber shells on the car seat, police said.

A possibility of a few snow showers in the extreme northwestern Panhandle was not expected to result in significant snow accumulations.

North of Lubbock Monday, most areas in the Panhandle reported almost .1 of an inch of rain.

Dry weather is likely Thursday through Saturday with rather cool temperatures Thursday and a warming trend Friday, according to the National Weather Service.

Texans Voting Today On Seven Amendments

District and County Attorneys Association.

Opponents, including former Chief Justice Robert W. Calvert of the Texas Supreme Court, say a system unifying civil and criminal courts, not separating them, would be better.

The second most talked-about amendment, No. 6, would let the legislature pass laws allowing state and national banks to use electronic devices in shopping centers and other remote locations.

Supporters, including the Texas Bankers Association, say it would give bank customers an optional and speedier method of handling their money. Opponents, including the Texas Consumers Association and Harry Ledbetter, a Democratic candidate for state treasurer, say it is a foot-in-the-door method of getting branch banking, which is prohibited by the constitution.

Proposition No. 2 would provide another $200 million for the veterans land program, plus allowing unmarried widows of veterans to buy land. Proponents say the extension is needed to be sure all Vietnam veterans are benefited. Opponents say the federal government provided adequately for veterans.

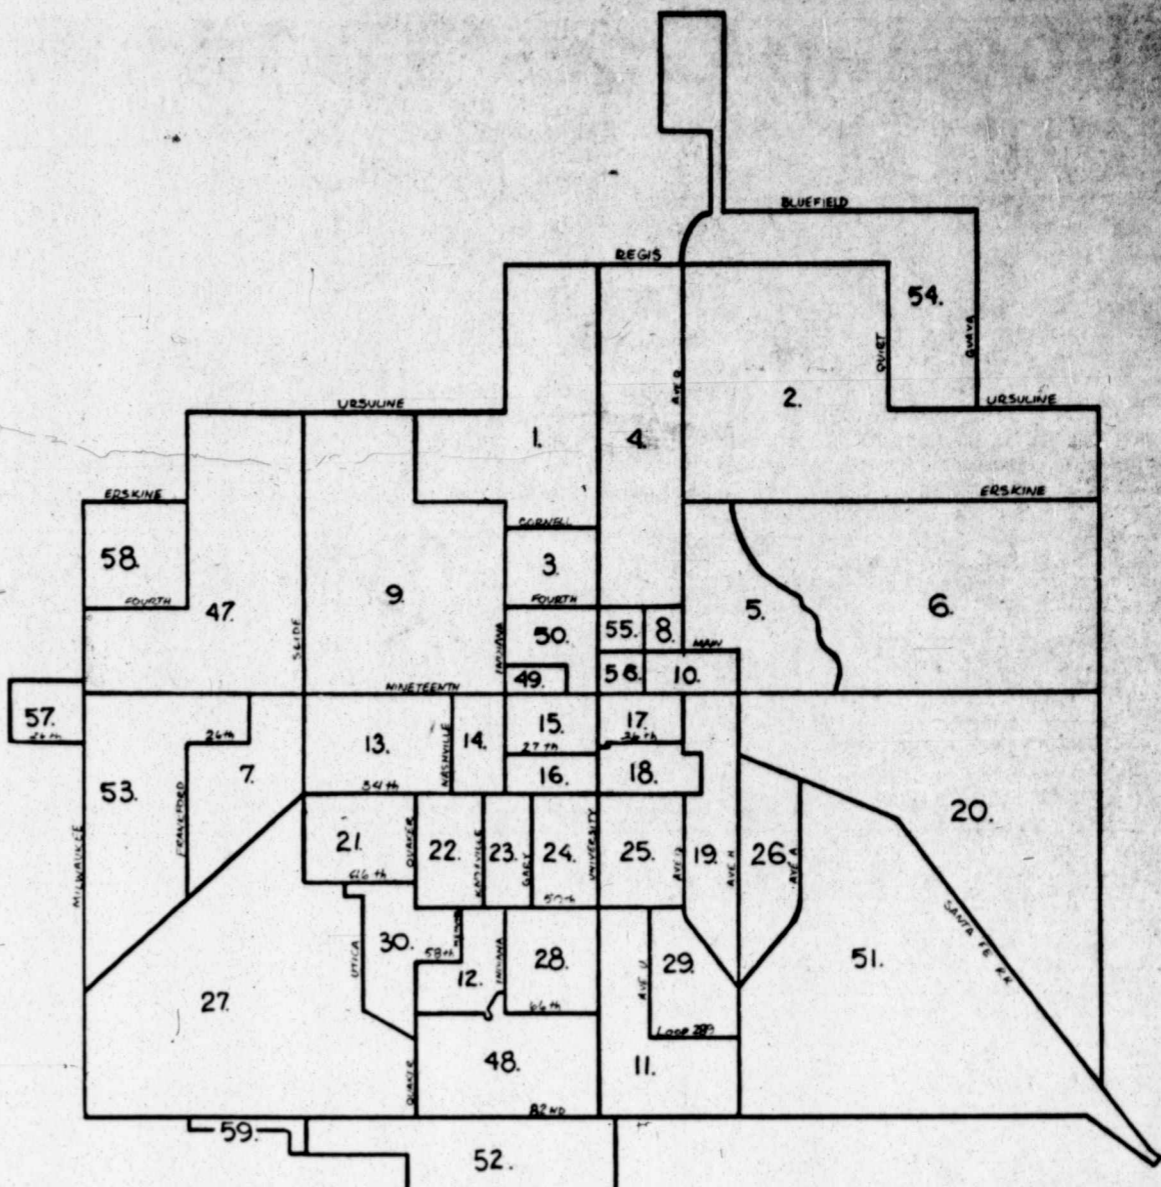

Proposition No. 3 would allow a district court to deny bail to a person accused of a felony while out on bail following a previous indictment. It also would deny bail to a repeat offender who is caught using a deadly weapon in committing another felony.

Supporters include Atty. Gen. John Hill and the Texas District and County Attorneys Association. It is opposed by the Criminal Defense Lawyers Association and the Texas Civil Liberties Union.

Proposition No. 4 would allow the legislature to grant exemptions for state property taxes to preserve cultural, historical or natural history sites.

Another proposed amendment, No. 5, would permit the legislature to let producers of poultry, livestock and other raw agricultural commodities form associations and collect assessments on sales to promote their business. Opponents say it would mean higher food prices.

Amendment No. 7 would change the name of the State Judicial Qualifications Commission to the State Commission on Judicial Conduct. It would enlarge the body from nine to 11 members. For the first time the review body would be able to publicly reprimand an errant judge. It also would be able to suspend a judge who is under felony indictment.

Races For State Governorships Appear Close

By United Press International

Two states are electing governors Tuesday and the contests in both New Jersey and Virginia have unexpectedly turned into near tossups in the final days of campaigning.

The Democratic underdogs — Gov. Brendan Byrne in New Jersey and Henry Howell in Virginia — prospected for the extra votes that late polls said they would need to overcome their GOP opponents.

The Republicans — New Jersey State Sen. Raymond Bateman and Virginia Lt. Gov. John Dalton — worked just as hard to hold on to earlier margins they had built up in mid-campaign public opinion surveys.

Turnout could become crucial in both states, and politicians worried about heavy rains that curtailed some campaigning during the weekend.

Coastal rain was predicted for both states as well as New York City on election day. Howell's campaign was openly concerned about flooding in the southwestern Virginia counties he is depending on for heavy support.

Byrne had to cancel several scheduled outdoor rallies because of the weather, capping his campaign with an appearance in a black church. Bateman plodded through the rain to campaign in factories and commuter centers.

In New York City, Rep. Edward Koch, the official Democratic candidate, and Liberal candidate Mario Cuomo, the state's Democratic secretary of state, also had to call off open air appearances in the final day of electioneering. Koch and Cuomo were rated one-two in the contest to replace Mayor Abraham Beame, who lost to both in the city's Democratic primary.

In addition to the three big eastern elections, mayors also are being elected in Detroit, Houston, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis, Buffalo, N.Y., and Cleveland, and Ohio, Oregon and Washington have some major questions to be decided in statewide referendums. Dalton, holding on to a margin that several newspaper polls said was too narrow to inspire confidence, put the last touches on his campaign in the populous Washington suburbs and headed back to his home territory in mountainous southwestern Virginia.

Howell concentrated on his home territory, the "Tidewater" area around Norfolk, which is the state's other population concentration. One of his final appearances was in the coal mining community of Clintwood, where the tireless Democrat began his latest campaign two years ago.

Howell narrowly lost the governorship to Republican Mills Godwin four years ago, this year Godwin is ineligible to run.

Last minute issue controversies popped up in all of the campaigns.

Dalton charged that Howell supporters had sent out a last minute mass mailing pledging the Democrat to seek repeal of the sales tax on clothing and food. The Howell camp said the candidate knew nothing of the letter and remained opposed to repeal as too costly.

Howell also restated his own opposition to gun control legislation, and his campaign workers waved aside charges that they were distorting Dalton's stand on the hot issue with the words: "The pot calling the kettle black."

In New Jersey, Byrne ran into a crowd of noisy pickets demonstrating against the state income tax which was enacted during his term. No one got hurt, but one demonstrator took a swing at the governor with a picket sign. Bateman and Byrne had the last of 11 debates during the weekend with the governor claiming he had closed an enormous gap in the polls because the voters found the Republican lacking in leadership. Bateman, in turn, charged that Byrne had begun to act like "a lame duck governor" as soon as he was elected in 1973.

'Antiquated' Treasurer Office Laws Criticized

C.R. "Charlie" Sanderson would attempt to institute a new cash management system in Texas if elected to the State Treasurer's office.

Sanderson, along with other candidates for the office, believes there is too much Texas money in demand or in non-interest bearing accounts and not enough money drawing interest.

The first thing Sanderson would do upon assuming office, he says, is to try "to bring the Treasurer's office up to the level of the Comptroller's."

Sanderson maintains the Treasurer's office is limited by "antiquated" laws, which slow down innovations in bringing in a more modern system for money-handling.

Bob Bullock has brought the Comptroller's office up to a more modern level, he says, but the Treasurer's office is still working with laws which date back to 1943 and some which date back to the late 1800s and the turn of the century.

Sanderson says he would try to work as far as he could within the existing laws regulating money handling. "A lot can be done with the current system."

But when he could do no more with the present laws he said he would enlist the cooperation of the State Auditor, the Comptroller's Office and the State Finance Commission to go before the legislature and try to get new laws.

Sanderson emphasizes his background as a certified public accountant as a qualification for the office. He's been a CPA for national and local accounting firms and served for 12 years as the County Auditor for Bexar County.

He is a member of the American Institute of Certified Accountants, the Texas Society of Certified Accountants, the San Antonio Chapter of Certified Public Accountants and the Municipal Financial Officers Association.

The 46-year old San Antonio resident's slogan is "A new accountability for Texas."

Driver Injured As Bulldozer Hits Gas Line

ASHLAND, KAN. (UPI)—A 10-inch propane pipeline exploded in a Sunday accident, seriously burning a bulldozer operator whose machine gouged the pipe.

Authorities said W.C. Prewitt of Odesa, Tex., was caught in the flames that spewed out and charred land a quarter-mile away.

Prewitt's bulldozer blade gouged the pipeline about 2 p.m. Sunday on the farm of Willis Harden, about 18 miles northeast of Ashland. Several other men working nearby on the Mid-American Lines Inc. Pipeline were not injured by the explosion.

Prewitt was rushed to the Ashland Hospital, where he was reported to be "holding his own" late Sunday. The extent of his injuries was not released.

Burning propane, which when the pipe was under pressure of unconfirmed reports that at one point flames were 1,000 feet high.

About a dozen fire engines from three counties converged on the gas explosion. Two dozen firemen could not extinguish the gas flames, which continued to burn through the night, eating up the gas remaining in the pipe after employees closed a valve up the line.

Alfred Zimmerman, one of the protection, Kan. Firemen first to arrive at the scene, said the burning propane was "A hot son-of-a-gun."

"You couldn't get within a quarter mile of it," Zimmerman said. "I had hair burnt off my arm a quarter mile away."

The excavation that caused the explosion is part of the installation of a 49-mile pipeline loop.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

Public Comments Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is asking for your ideas again, this time on junk phone calls and food labels.

Federal agencies are required to solicit and consider comments from the public on new rules and regulations and public opinion can be the deciding factor.

The Transportation Department, for example, withdrew a plan to change highway signs to the metric system after a flood of adverse comments.

Next Monday, Nov. 14, is the deadline for comments on two major proposals under consideration by the government. —The Federal Communications Commission is considering ways to protect the public from so-called junk telephone calls — unsolicited sales and promotional messages delivered by a machine which automatically dials numbers and plays a recorded message.

Among the proposals are establishing a way for an individual to indicate he or she doesn't want to get such messages and requiring the machines to precede each message with a statement that it is a recorded announcement.

Congress is also considering legislation to limit such calls. If you want to comment to the FCC write to the Secretary, Federal Communications Commission, RM-2955, Washington, 20554.

—The accuracy of the weight printed on food packages is the question before the Food and Drug Administration.

The FDA will hold informal hearings Dec. 8 in San Francisco and Dec. 15 in Atlanta and you must let the agency know by Monday if you want to appear.

Federal rules allow for some variation in weight because some foods, such as flour, can absorb or lose moisture between packing and sale, meaning they may weigh a little more or less than the label indicates. Several states have asked that the law require labeled weight to be accurate, as least as far as the average weight of a lot of merchandise.

To schedule an appearance at the hearing, write to the Hearing Clerk, Food and Drug Administration, Net Weight Hearing, Docket No. 77N-0292, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md., 20857.

Warning Label Decision Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration may decide this week whether to require a warning label on liquid protein diet products used in a controversial weight loss method that involves a modified fast, a spokesman said Monday.

An advisory panel recommended Oct. 20 that FDA require a warning label that would say: "Do not use for weight reduction or maintenance without medical supervision. Do not use without medical advice if you are taking prescribed medications. Not for use by infants, children or pregnant or nursing women."

The Center for Disease Control and the FDA are investigating 11 or 12 deaths of persons who reportedly were on liquid protein diets.

FDA spokesman Wayne Pines said the results of an investigation will be announced Wednesday. He said if the findings indicate a serious health hazard, then some FDA action was likely.

FDA could require warning labels since it regulates food and food supplements. Liquid protein is not a drug. It is sold under numerous brands. Dieters are told to drink about five ounces of the substance daily, or about 300 calories worth. The average person normally consumes 2,500 to 3,000 calories a day. The dieters are supposed to not feel hunger pangs when taking only liquid protein.

Birth Control Pills Viewed

BIRTH CONTROL BOOKLET — Women considering using birth control pills may know there are risks, and the government has issued a booklet to help them decide.

"Women and the Pill" discusses the benefits of the pill, possible side effects and who should or should not use it. It tells what to look for and when you should consult your doctor.

There is no charge for the booklet, available from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 575E, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Greeting Cards Offered

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Library of Congress has prepared a selection of 54 greeting cards for the holiday season. The cards are reproduced from the music, rare books and graphic arts collections of the library and can be purchased individually or in packages.

An illustrated catalog of cards and other gift items sold by the library is available, without charge, by writing the Library of Congress, Central Services Division, Printing and Processing Unit, Washington, 20540.

Religious Sign Breaks Law

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — In the eyes of Tennessee's Department of Transportation, no one is above the law; not even the Lord. A sign is a sign, whether it repeats a scripture or says "Eat at Joe's," and if it isn't licensed, it violates a ban on billboards.

Case in point: The Bible verse painted on the roof of Mr. and Mrs. John Hamblen's barn about 15 miles east of Nashville outside Mount Juliet along Interstate 40.

It says, "Repent be baptised every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ. Acts-2:38." The black letters on the tin roof can be seen clearly from the highway. That's against the law and the Transportation Department has ordered the Hamblens to take it down.

"The Lord told us to put it up there and we are going to leave it up there," said Mrs. Hamblen, 42, who said she is a member of the Holiness Church. "They say it is against the law. That's the only plan of salvation there is. The Lord told us to put it up there."

Waul Allen, a department spokesman, said the federal government, not the state, is to blame. In 1972 the legislature was forced either to pass a law complying with federal billboard standards or risk losing federal highway money. It passed the law.

Election Has No Candidates

PLEASANT LAKE, Minn. (AP) — Suppose they had an election and nobody showed up?

Residents of Pleasant Lake may have the answer to that question following Tuesday's election for mayor, city treasurer and the one open city council seat. There are no candidates.

Tom Clapp is giving up the $30-a-year mayor's job in this central Minnesota community of 65 residents to devote his efforts to his other job, teaching biology at St. Cloud State University.

The treasurer has served several years, at $50 yearly, and wants to quit, while the city councilman up for re-election to the $10-a-year post has been having health problems.

Mayor Clapp said he hoped Pleasant Lake voters will write in candidates on their ballots.

McQueen, MacGraw Separate

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Screen stars Steve McQueen and Ali MacGraw, whose romance led to the breakup of her marriage to movie mogul Bob Evans, have separated, a lawyer for the couple said Monday.

One of them will probably file for divorce to end their four-year marriage, said lawyer Ken Ziffirin.

The couple was married in a Cheyenne, Wyo., city park under a cottonwood tree in 1973 by a justice of the peace who halted his golf game to perform the ceremony.

The parting of McQueen, 47, and Miss MacGraw, 38, was amicable and they are remaining "on very friendly terms," the attorney said.

Polling Places

Here is a list of City of Lubbock polling places for the Texas constitutional amendments election today.

Lubbock County residents living outside the city limits should consult their voter registration cards to find out the number of the precinct in which they live. Then they should look beside that number on the list below to find out where to vote.

Persons residing inside the city can do the same thing — consult their voter registration cards and the polling place list.

Or they can look on the map above, locate where they live, check to see what precinct number they are in, and then consult the polling place list for the balloting site.

Persons having any questions about where they should vote should call the county clerk's office.

A number of small precincts have been combined with larger ones for voting today.

Shooting Goes To Grand Jury

GARDEN CITY (AP) — Facts in the shooting death of a Mexican prisoner by a retired West Texas deputy sheriff will be presented to a grand jury, an assistant district attorney said Monday.

Tiburcio Griego Santome of Juarez, Mexico, was shot to death Sunday night in the back seat of the squad car of Glasscock County Sheriff Royce "Booger" Pruitt, according to Don Richard, an assistant district attorney in the 118th Judicial District.

Richard said in Big Spring that Santome had been arrested about 7:30 p.m. at a festival in Saint Lawrence, a community about 15 miles southwest of Richard said Santome was placed unrestrained in the back of the squad car. Pruitt had not been able to handcuff Santome, he said.

"He was kind of acting up, and they couldn't get him cuffed, so they just put him in the back seat. They thought he had quieted down," Richard said. But on the way to jail, Richard said, the man pulled a knife "bigger than a paring knife, but smaller than a butcher knife, sort of the size of a steak knife," and slashed at the sheriff, who was driving.

Richard said the sheriff was cut on the hand, while the man also attacked a passenger, G.B. Therwanger, a retired deputy from Stanton, Texas.

Therwanger was severely cut on the arm, but managed to reach an automatic pistol in the front seat and fired four shots at the prisoner.

Santome was dead on arrival at a clinic in Big Spring.

An autopsy was pending, Richard said the district attorney's office will continue to investigate the shooting.

Richard said earlier reports that Pruitt had shot the prisoner were incorrect. "That's what we were told, and didn't find out otherwise until we got down there. There was a lot of confusion," Richard said.

"We will present the case to the grand jury. But we won't recommend any charges against Therwanger." Both Pruitt and Therwanger are former deputies of Dawson County.

Neighborhood Self-Help Program Endorsed

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Board of Realtors Monday endorsed a self-help program of neighborhood revitalization through private means.

The board's next step in its plan to restore and preserve the city's housing will be to select a neighborhood to participate, and then offer it help.

Following a program outlined by the National Association of Realtors and working with city officials, the local board will enlist the support of residents in the target area.

The program will be concentrated in areas in the early stages of deterioration, board members said.

As planned, the board would buy an abandoned house in the area, renovate it and then sell it at no profit. Board members hope the initial renovation will serve as an incentive to nearby homeowners to upgrade their property.

Homeowners would be encouraged to voluntarily join a neighborhood organization to further promote housing rehabilitation, and the realtors board would coordinate efforts.

Mayor Roy Bass calls the revitalization program a "wonderfully encouraging sign" that local communities can "take care of themselves" without federal assistance.

Urban Renewal Agency Director Orville Alderson echoed Bass' endorsement before January. Board Chairman Don Harris said. He noted that the group will have to meet with neighborhood residents before beginning a financing program and renovation work.

Lubbock's banks and savings and loan associations have indicated a willingness to help with the program, board chairman Forrest Baker said. "Financing will be no problem," he added.

One of the board's goals is to develop neighborhood pride and to "make a better Lubbock," Harris said.

As outlined by the national Realtors association, which is encouraging neighborhood revitalization nationwide, the program's goals are:

- Revitalize and preserve the existing housing stock by encouraging homeowners to pool their efforts and by restoring abandoned and boarded houses to that the property can contribute to the economic welfare of the entire community.
- Support local neighborhood organizations and to work with local financial institutions to encourage their active participation in making mortgage and home improvement loans available.
- Involve the city government, churches and businesses in the restoration effort.
- Alderson urged the board also to consider the cause of neighborhood deterioration in its program. If the group can determine the source of the problem, he explained, corrective steps could be taken to prevent it from happening again.

Board endorsement of a neighborhood program alone could help reverse a downward trend, Bertram said. If lending institutions are aware of board support of a particular area's renovation work, he explained, they may be more willing to help finance such a program.

Absentee landlords could be a stumbling block in neighborhood renovation, Bertram and Alderson agreed.

Landlords often want to keep their property as rent houses and are unwilling to sell, Bertram said.

"It is a real problem to get landlords to fix up their property," Alderson agreed. "Owner-occupied houses are easier to work with."

Dallas remained first with $1.4 billion, followed by Harris with $1.2 billion. Bexar received $480 million, and its 22 percent gain was the highest among all top 10 counties.

Others in the top 10 included Tarrant $296; Travis $199 million; El Paso $187 million; Galveston $125 million; Nueces $121 million; Potter $102 million; and Jefferson $96 million.

An estimated 55 Texas counties got more than $10 million in tourist money.

The center, the Texas agency said, measures all overnight trips, and daytime trips at least 100 miles from one's home. Consequently, the agency said, travel by Texans within the state is included in estimates for Texas.

Texas Takes In $6.1 Billion

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Tourists spent $6.1 billion in Texas during the Bicentennial — a 14 per cent increase — but the state fell behind New York took in the national travel market.

The Texas Tourist Development Agency reported the figures Monday, relying on data furnished by the U.S. Travel Center.

Texas had moved ahead of New York in 1975, but the Empire State regained third place in 1976, with Texas dropping to fourth.

The travel center "attributed New York's resurgence to heavy Bicentennial travel last year, coupled with the financial bonanza that the national Democratic party convention proved to be for the city and state," the agency said.

California and Florida remained 1-2 in the national travel market.

The agency noted that Florida, for example, will invest some $8.6 million for tourist development this year, compared to $4.3 million by New York and $2.7 million by Texas.

The agency said travelers in Texas last year paid $242 million in state taxes, a 17 percent increase, and $58 million in local taxes.

There was no change from 1975 to 1976 in the order of the top 10 Texas counties sharing state travel receipts, the agency said.

Dallas remained first with $1.4 billion, followed by Harris with $1.2 billion. Bexar received $480 million, and its 22 percent gain was the highest among all top 10 counties.

Others in the top 10 included Tarrant $296; Travis $199 million; El Paso $187 million; Galveston $125 million; Nueces $121 million; Potter $102 million; and Jefferson $96 million.

An estimated 55 Texas counties got more than $10 million in tourist money.

The center, the Texas agency said, measures all overnight trips, and daytime trips at least 100 miles from one's home. Consequently, the agency said, travel by Texans within the state is included in estimates for Texas.

Ex-Convict Testifies In Davis Murder Trial

AMARILLO (AP) — A Fort Worth ex-convict testified Monday in the Cullen Davis murder trial that he had partied on numerous occasions with Priscilla Davis when drugs were in use both at Mrs. Davis' $6 million mansion and at Benbrook Lake near Fort Worth.

Lonnie "Bubba" Harris, 31, testified he met Priscilla Davis in June 1974 in the company of several other people at Benbrook Lake for an all-night party in which "white powdery substances," pills and marijuana were readily available. Harris was sentenced to four years in prison in February 1975 for possession of cocaine, but served only one year.

Witnesses, after prosecution objections, have been told to refer to what they think was cocaine or heroin as "powdery substances."

Davis, 44, a millionaire industrialist, is on trial here on a charge of venue in the Aug. 2, 1976, pistol slaying of his step-daughter Andrea Wilborn, 12. Miss Wilborn and Stan Farr, 30, Mrs. Davis' live-in boy friend, were gunned down in a midnight shooting spree in which Mrs. Davis was critically wounded along with Gus Gavrel Jr., 22, a family friend.

Harris was the latest in a series of witnesses called by the defense in the lawyers' efforts to discredit the testimony of Mrs. Davis, who told the jury that Davis was the black-clad gunman who killed Farr.

U.S., Mexico Near Prisoner Exchange

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Federal officials from Washington and several Southwestern states meet here Tuesday to begin finalizing plans for the return of more than 200 Americans held in Mexican prisons.

Lucien B. Campbell, federal public defender for the Western District of Texas, said Tuesday's planning group would include nine U.S. magistrates, a dozen public defenders from the Southwest, officials from the U.S. Courts administrator's office, several Justice Department officials and a representative from the Texas attorney general's office.

The Justice Department expects that 50 to 60 of the 585 Americans now in Mexican jails will be free as soon as they are returned to the United States sometime next month.

Others will be held for a short period and probably be granted parole in January, said Michael Abbell, who is directing the exchange program.

The exchange will occur under a treaty and enabling legislation that President Carter signed recently allowing the United States to exchange prisoners with Mexico and Canada.

Their meeting is expected to last all day, Campbell said.

Abbell said earlier that the Justice Department expects to charter four airplanes to take the Americans out of Mexico around Dec. 9. Initially, they will be taken to a prison near the border, but federal officials won't disclose the location until the prisoners have arrived, he said.

Several of the witnesses have testified about parties, attended by Mrs. Davis, where drugs were allegedly being used.

Earlier in the day, State District Court Judge George Dowlen ruled that some of the Saturday testimony of Sandy Myers, 27, was inadmissible before the jury.

Following the San Antonio meeting Tuesday, U.S. officials will go to Mexico this weekend to inform prisoners of their Abbell said initial interviews of the 585 Americans held in Mexico indicate that about 240 of them probably will return sometime next month.

Interest Rate Ceilings May Be Lifted

HOUSTON (AP) — The president of Wells Fargo Bank said Monday consumer time deposit interest rates should be raised immediately.

The remainder, he said, either have not been tried or have appeals pending in Mexico; were convicted of immigration law violations or political crimes; or prefer for various reasons to stay in Mexico.

Richard P. Cooley of San Francisco said such action might help to alleviate, if not avert altogether, the next downturn in the housing cycle.

Charges Filed In Arson Case

Cooley also suggested that California be selected as a test site for complete removal of interest rate ceilings on consumer savings to determine if such an approach would help avoid housing cycles.

A-J Correspondent
LITTLEFIELD — Two Littlefield men were charged with arson Friday in connection with an Oct. 30 blaze, which leveled the old Case Implement Building here.

In a keynote speech at a bank Administration Institute national conference, Cooley said the California experiment would be similar to a test program the Federal Reserve Board allowed in New England for interest payments on checking accounts.

Chris Lynn Pace, 18, and Raphael Mendez Jr., 19, both of Littlefield, were charged in the incident following an investigation by Lamb County sheriff's deputies, the Littlefield Police Department and Texas Rangers.

He said the objective of the consumer savings test project would be to determine whether such a move would give financial institutions the flexibility they need to fight disintermediation, the flight of funds from such accounts when interest rates on investments rise above the legal ceilings for banks and other savings institutions.

The two are free on $3,500 bond each set by Justice of the Peace Stanley Doss. Littlefield Police Chief James Cox said Monday that several witnesses reportedly saw the two men in the area minutes before the fire began.

Cooley said there is immediate need for a nation wide increase of 1 to 2 percent for interest ceilings on new consumer time deposits.

Damage to the building has been set at $20,000.

Larrabee's Home Improvement Co., located east of the old Case Building, received $9,000 in damages from a fire that broke out Oct. 31.

An investigation is continuing here as to whether the Case fire could have started the Larrabee blaze.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the difference between recurring and chronic appendicitis, the symptoms, and treatment? — J.H.

Chronic means that the symptoms of an ailment persist over a long time. Recurring means they appear, disappear, then return. But I'm suspicious of either term when used with the word appendicitis. An attack is usually acute — that is occurring with dramatic symptoms and requiring immediate treatment. Treatment means removal. That prevents recurrence or the chronic state.

Now, about symptoms. They can be misleading with appendicitis. The initial pain is above the navel, with accompanying nausea, loss of appetite and vomiting. The pain settles in the lower right section of the abdomen, where the appendix is located. The belly is tender and tense at this point.

With children, infection of the abdominal lymph nodes may mimic appendicitis. Cathartics (as laxatives) should NOT (repeat NOT) be given for the pain until appendicitis has been ruled out. Once appendicitis has been diagnosed, prompt removal of the appendix is necessary. Otherwise the structure may rupture (burst appendix) and peritonitis, a very serious complication, can occur. That's infection of the abdominal and pelvic wall.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had a slight stroke three months ago. His blood pressure is very good, but he tires easily. One of his problems is that when he eats he can't tell that food has dropped from his mouth. He is retired at 62, and gets around nicely to work in the garden, etc. He drinks without any problem. Any suggestions about the mouth situation? — Mrs. J.O.

I'm happy to use your letter. It makes a very good point. It is that post-stroke therapy need not be limited to attempts to restore function of the limbs, hands, etc. The stroke may have impaired your husband's sensory mechanism around the lips or in the tongue. Thus he is unaware of the food particles.

Remember that the jaw movements, as in eating, require muscle use. I suggest you check with your doctor or a rehabilitation unit near you to get some exercises he can do to strengthen these facial muscles. They are basically the same muscles as those used in speech, so if he's having trouble with that, all the more reason to do them. My new booklet, "Stroke: Hope and Help," encompasses many of the questions readers have asked me over the years. It might help you with your husband, who does seem to be coming along nicely. For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Your recent reply to a woman writing to you about her eye floaters and lights in her eyes prompted me to go see an eye doctor. I am 69 and for about three months had half circles of light in the outer corner of my left eye. The examination showed no retinal detachment or glaucoma. If after two months the flashing continues, I am to return to the doctor. I am so glad we have a column like yours, and I read it faithfully. — M.B.

I suspect the price of examination was well worth the negative results. Don't fail to keep the appointment two months hence. At that time the doctor will be able to note any changes. Flashes of light often do indicate an internal eye problem. In another part of your letter you say that you experience the symptoms when walking out into the sunlight. This is the classic symptom of "floaters," harmless tissue cells that can flake off and float in the fluid of the eyeball.

SPECIAL NOTE — A recent reply to a query about De Quervain's disease was probably misleading. There are two disorders with this name. The answer dealt with hypothyroidism, which is rare. It should have mentioned the quite common orthopedic condition, which is featured by pain in the wrist and hand. This is helped by hydrocortisone injection in the area.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Doctors prescribe the fertility pill Clomid for women so they can become pregnant. Can it also be used in men to correct infertility? — E.J.

It can be used in certain types of infertility in men. But it would not be effective if both testes were affected by mumps, for example.

Unless properly treated, both glaucoma and cataracts can lead to blindness. If you are afflicted with either of these ailments, or know someone who is, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for his booklet, "Cataracts and Glaucoma." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Both my sister and I have three children between 4 and 11 years of age. Mary says she is having her children immunized this week against measles, mumps, rubella and whooping cough. She also mentioned polio.

I have not heard of a child getting polio for several years. I thought this disease was conquered. Also, what about the others? Why go to the trouble if there is no danger?

Please check with your medical consultants and give us the right information. A visit to the doctor's office costs $25 these days. Thank you. — Champaign, Ill.

Dear Champaign: In recent months there has been a frightening increase in measles, rubella and whooping cough. Not many people realize that these diseases can cause mental retardation, deafness, pneumonia and encephalitis. Polio has NOT been conquered. In 1954, 38,000 cases of polio were reported. In 1976, there were ten. Ten seems like a small number, but if your child was one of the ten, it would be a very significant number indeed. This is the problem we are now facing. People have become complacent. We cannot afford to wait for another epidemic to hit before we protect our children.

The United States Public Health Service has just printed a new booklet, "A Parent's Guide To Childhood Immunization." It is available free. Write to Immunization, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

This booklet will tell you what shots your child needs, at what age and where to get the shots without charge in certain communities.

Oral polio vaccines are available free of charge to any school-age child in Chicago and Cook County. Parents should call the Board of Health. They will be referred to the clinic nearest their homes.

I urge every mother and dad to act to protect your children at once. What else will you do today that is as important?

Dear Ann Landers: I get along with my mother-in-law very well — until picture-taking time.

For every major family event (beginning with our wedding) she has spoiled the solemnity of the occasion by insisting on having a photographer on hand. When we sealed our vows with a kiss, the camera was right under our noses.

Last week our daughter was baptized. My mother-in-law hired a photographer (same one) and directed all the picture-taking. When I told her I didn't like the idea she said, "You'll be glad to have the pictures in years to come."

I do enjoy having pictures, but I would prefer fewer pictures and a little more dignity at affairs which are supposed to have religious significance. What do you suggest? — Overpowered

Dear Over: A good commercial photographer knows how to take pictures without getting in the way. Perhaps this is the problem.

In the future, if the event is one you should be in control of (such as the baptism of your child), tell your mother-in-law that you will engage the photographer. You can then engage the photographer of your choice, give him explicit instructions on what you want and what you do not want.

Don't get burned by a "line" that's too hot to handle. Play it cool with Ann Landers' guide to "Necking and Petting — What Are the Limits?" Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

I was very overweight and unhappy about my appearance. My clothes did not look good on me and I never felt pretty. Then I discovered Pat Walker's. I have lost 47 pounds and 60 1/4 inches and I'm not through yet. I enjoy buying clothes now, I get outside to do yard work, our family goes boating, my husband and I have joined a square dance club. Mildred Huseman

I remember smiling to myself then, but now I can't help smiling because I'm actually wearing size 10 dresses and my newest pant suit is an 8. Best of all, my husband is just as pleased as I am, in fact, he is my most enthusiastic supporter. With over 30 pounds gone, 42 inches slimmer, and still losing, who wouldn't be pleased? I wouldn't hesitate to recommend Pat Walker's to anyone with a weight or figure problem."

Sincerely,
D'Loris Evans

"P.S.: Now I'm counseling at Pat Walker's. It's exciting for me to work with other patrons because I know how great they will feel when they see the same results I did."

Declarer looked over dummy, remarked that he guessed he had underbid and wished he was in seven. He let the club come around to his king, cashed two high spades, burst into happy laughter when East showed out, played out the trumps and made only six on account of the horrendous trump break.

The Spaniards started with an artificial club and somehow or other South became declarer at six no trump after North bid all around the mulberry bush. A heart was opened. He won the trick, came to his hand with the king of clubs, led the ace of spades, noted the spade nine, then worked out the play to make six notrump.

It wasn't a tough one. He simply cashed the other three top spades while discarding one heart and three clubs and then led the 10 of diamonds for a finesse.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED
 NEW YORK — In the past three years practically every soap opera has taped at least one sequence that involved moving east and crew from the studio to an outdoor location. Recently, for example, "One Life to Live" used Central Park for a picnic scene.

But the all-time location-shooting champ is "Ryan's Hope." The show has taped scenes all over New York City including the docks, Battery Park, the Public Library, the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral and Chinatown. "RH" currently scored a daytime serial first by jetting to Ireland for a week of filming.

In the story Mary Ryan Fenelli (played by Kate Mulgrew) is going to remarry. But we won't say just yet whether it'll be to her first husband Jack (Michael Levin) or her new boyfriend Tom Desmond (Tom MacGreevey). Co-executive producers Paul Avila Mayer and Claire Labine hit upon the brilliant notion of filming Mary's romantic honeymoon on the Emerald Isle, during which she also discovers her true Irish roots.

Claire, Paul, the two actors and director Lela Swift met a crew of technicians at Shannon Airport and proceeded on a virtual non-stop tour of the Isle's famous sites. Taping began immediately in Ennis for a dinner between Mary and her husband in front of an inn fireplace. Paul describes the resulting scene as "too sensual for words — and almost for pictures."

Cast and crew slept briefly on a bus as they then journeyed to such ancestral spots as a climb up a mountain to Queen Maeve's 1200-year-old grave for a morning shooting. The week's afternoon schedule involved scenes shot in and around forts, castles, the streets of Dublin, Shannon's open air market, the cliffs of Dingle and a race track where "we all took a bath betting on a horse named Luck Mary," recalls Paul.

At night the schedule included scenes in the swinging pubs of Sligo and an Irish folk party in Bunnatry. In addition to cavorting over carns, around dolmens, through the heather on the hills and in thatched cottages, the crew managed to squeeze in a few hours to dine with Tom MacGreevey's mother who still resides in the homeland. Of course the trip would have been incomplete without a trek up the 100-plus steps to Blarney Castle to visit the famous kissing stone.

The beauty that is Ireland and the romance that is Mary's will bloom on the daytime screen in early December. But be warned that a son (or would be son) of Erin is going to get "shamrocked" by Mary.

Quite a few books on the soap opera phenomena have recently been published but the only one that merits serious attention is "The Soap Opera Book," compiled by Manuela Soares and published by Latham Publishing of New York. The coffee table-sized opus is an in-depth study of practically every facet of the soap opera world — from the clothes, the sets and the production values that complement the stories to evaluations and analyses of what makes soaps such an enduring form of entertainment. With a bounty of back-stage photos and interviews, this book is must-reading for any devoted soap opera fan.

MacDonald Carey (Tom Horton on "Days of Our Lives") made his singing debut on the "Dinah" show by twirling the lyrics he wrote to the "DOOL" theme. He also recited samples from his recently completed book or poetry.

Fred J. Scollay, a veteran of half a dozen serials, has joined "Another World" as Clarice's father, Charlie Hobson. You will be interested in the booklet I've edited that includes a short history of "As the World Turns." Get your copy by sending one dollar to: Tune In Tomorrow, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for "As the World Turns."

(Send your questions about soap operas to "Tune In Tomorrow", 230 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Questions cannot be answered personally, but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.)

Celibate 'FBI' Agent Returns As Romancer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Efrem Zimbalist Jr. began his film career as a lover, but nine celibate years as the star of "The FBI" neutralized him as effectively as a seven-to-life stretch in the slammer.

It's been a dozen years since Zimbalist has played a love scene.

Now, much to his relief, Zimmie (as his friends call him) has made a limited comeback as a romancer. In a new TV movie, "The Family Upside Down," Zimbalist has a bedroom scene with Pat Crowley.

He acknowledged that his years as an undercover man, as opposed to an undercover lover, were not all bad.

"As a professional actor, I didn't miss the romantic scenes," he said, grinning. "I got a tremendous amount of mail from female viewers who were confident they could bring a little excitement to the dormant sex life of inspector Lewis Erskine, the character I played."

"It's the same challenge that a priest presents to a woman, the bastion of the unattainable."

The urbane and witty Zimbalist recalled that he last played a married man in "Wait Until Dark" with Audrey Hepburn in 1965.

"Even so," he said, "I believe 'The FBI' enhanced my image as a romantic figure because, in the absence of women, there was no indication of how good or bad a lover a man might be."

"That's not to say I establish myself as a 'Don Juan' in 'The Family Upside Down.' The bedroom scene is a comic moment. Pat and I no sooner bed down than someone knocks on the door."

"I wouldn't do a movie with explicit sex scenes anyhow. It's not my specialty. Being an actor is something different than that to me."

"I'm not saying actors shouldn't play those scenes. That's up to the individual. I feel the same way about doing commercials."

"I don't criticize stars who sell merchandise on the tube, but it's something I couldn't force myself to do. There's too much insincerity involved. How are you going to believe an actor in a role when you can't believe he really shops only at a discount store?"

Zimbalist's personal code may or may not have been influenced by his years as a video FBI man. J. Edgar Hoover remains a shining hero to the actor. They became well acquainted during the run of the show in which Hoover took enormous personal interest.

"There were a good many restrictions involved with the series," Zimbalist said. "Those of us who played agents didn't have to take chastity vows, but we had to seek Hoover's imprimatur every year."

"Inspector Erskine was a widower whose morals were absolutely beyond reproach. I spent the whole nine years on that show without so much as a kiss."

"I found the series fascinating because the characterizations were so limited. There was no swearing, no hands in the pockets and I was always dressed in a suit and necktie. It was very demanding and exacting. Good discipline for any actor."

Zimbalist grew enormously wealthy from the series, rich enough to spend the last year and a half without working.

He played golf almost every day. He traveled to Australia, Scotland, the Virgin Islands and Japan to test the golf courses.

In the four years since turning in his FBI badge Zimbalist has been offered no fewer than 40 series and turned down all of them.

"You can only play so much golf," he sighed. "When this TV movie came along I decided to get back to work. The story is excellent. But the cast had a lot to do with my decision."

"It was an opportunity to work with Fred Astaire and Helen Hayes. Who could pass up a chance like that? I've always enjoyed acting with legendary performers."

"Before I got into television I did movies with Clark Gable, Errol Flynn and Alan Ladd. I did a play on Broadway with Spencer Tracy."

"I don't plan to spend another idle year and a half, but I'd rather be unemployed than get involved in junk. I've been writing some music and working on an outline for a movie."

Campaign To End Boob Tube Addiction Becomes Serious

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Three young commercial printers who came to the unsettling discovery they were television addicts have started a drive to unplug America.

Larry Lobert, 25, Chris Stoddard, 25, and Yvonne Hoarty, 27, spent $9, on a magazine advertisement and are conducting a bumper sticker and T-shirt campaign to banish the boob tube.

It started as a joke. Now, it's more like a crusade.

The advertisement, published in Rolling Stone magazine, prompted letters from beary-eyed viewers troubled about their addiction. Some said the tube was ruining their life — or that of someone near and dear.

The printers formed the nonprofit "Unplug America Coalition" and used the presses at their own place of business (Phoenix Printing Co.) for the bumper sticker and T-shirt operation. The group has 1,000 members and is growing daily, Lobert said.

One of the first to sign up was Dr. Allan Sorscher, 43, a Flint, Mich., physician worried about the effect of TV on his patients. He said the tube contributed to tension illness and was a roadblock to communication between family members.

A woman wrote that her sister's husband had turned into a zombie from watching television and she feared their marriage would fail. Other respondents complained of friends who wouldn't turn off the set when they visited.

One man offered to either pull down or blow up any TV antenna the coalition would point out. Lobert said he didn't think the guy was joking.

"We had no idea how serious this was to other people," said Miss Hoarty. "We just couldn't fathom the response we got or the commitment that anti-television people felt."

The bumper stickers and T-shirts carry a militant message.

"Thank You for Not Watching Television," is one slogan. Others say, "Get Mad as Hell and Don't Take It Anymore" and "Watching Television in the Presence of a Non-Viewer May be Considered an Act of Aggression."

Lobert said the group is not really interested in reforming or censoring TV. Ardent followers believe their mission is to get people to realize they are being hurt by excessive exposure to the tube, he said.

"I think the role (TV) plays is one of preventing really effective communication and in that way it contributes to the problems people have in their relationships," Dr. Sorscher said. "I think many of my colleagues across the land are seeing patients who have problems with anxiety, frustration and heightened tension from this."

The physician said he knew of at least one case in which a married couple spent so much time watching television they stopped talking to each other and eventually divorced.

Miss Hoarty said she and her colleagues became addicted to TV after they started the printing business. She said each night they came home from work exhausted but still spent five hours in front of the set.

"But then it hit me that television was really a placebo creating a lackadaisical attitude that obliterates creative thinking because it doesn't require any response, only receptivity," she said.

Lobert and Stoddard said they got to the point where they could accurately guess the ending of any show they watched.

All three are now confirmed non-watchers. They still own TV sets but Lobert said they have managed to "control" themselves.

Actress Virtually Grew Up Before Television Viewers' Eyes

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Elinor Donahue has come full circle on television, virtually growing up before viewers' eyes from teen-ager to matron in four different weekly series over a 21-year span.

Elinor will be remembered as the sweet, naive Betty Anderson on the "Father Knows Best" show from 1956 to 1962.

She graduated from innocent daughter to a sheriff's girlfriend on "The Andy Griffith Show" for a single season back in 1964. Thereafter she played a friendly neighbor with Tony Randall and Jack Klugman on "The Odd Couple."

And now, running the gamut, Elinor is the mother in the new "Mulligan's Stew" series.

She plays the mother of a large brood in the series. At home she is the wife of television producer Harry Ackerman and the mother of four sons ranging in age from 9 to 20.

Because there are parallels in her series and private life, Elinor sometimes finds her new role a simple extension of her homelife.

"It makes it very easy for me to play irritation scenes," she said, laughing. "I'm really used to kids milling around. I react the same way to noisy children on the set that I do at home when my own family gets boisterous. It gives my performance an extra dimension."

"Most parent-kid relationships on television shows are idealized and far from true-to-life. This show is a departure. The scripts allow us to react the way irritated parents do. And sometimes I ad lib my own frustrations."

"When we made the pilot show one scene called for a couple of the kids to squabble at the table. I didn't have any lines. But I turned to them and said, 'Stop it,' just as I would at home. They left it in."

"How many times have you seen TV parents take over for their boy on his paper route? It really happened to me not long ago. James had to go off on an important mission of some kind, so I climbed on a bicycle and delivered the papers.

"It's fun to play a parent now because it's second nature to me. My sons see the show and tell me I'm really playing myself."

Elinor grew up outside the usual concept of American family life. She was the sole support of herself and her mother at the age of 5.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:
Just discovered the most amazing way to make potato pancakes faster and better.
I've always used the grater attachment on my mixer to grate the potatoes but they came out in thicker and longer strings than the proper texture.
I poured my batter into the blender, used the "grate" cycle and the consistency was perfect. What's more, the liquid which collected stayed at the bottom of the blender and I spooned out the batter into the skillet and had nicely formed round pancakes.
For those who grate by a hand grater, I discovered you can also grate the potatoes by cutting them up in pieces and put the pieces in the blender, which takes all the work out of a very appetizing meal. — Frances Dabakey

Dear Heloise:
I always enjoy reading your Unwritten Laws but I haven't seen any for a long time.
Here are some that my cat observes without fail:
Never drink from your water dish. Only use water from a dripping faucet or the toilet bowl.
Hop onto the upholstered furniture as soon as it has been vacuumed.
Five minutes before company is expected, use your clean litter box.
At the very moment a meal is dished up, wake up from a sound sleep and investigate. Jump on a lap if possible.
Whenever someone changes the bed-sheets, go "help."
Dry your wet feet on a clean bed-spread.
Your column is fun. I enjoy it a lot. — Norma Jean Hussong

Thanks for giving us a chuckle today. I think most cat lovers will also get a chuckle from your Unwritten Laws. — Heloise

Dear Heloise:
I just finished reading your column and was trying to figure out why fishing line would be better instead of wire to hold a bird feeder up and then it hit me — fishing line is invisible!
The squirrels don't see the line and can't figure out how to get to the seed. Pretty smart, huh? — Smarty Pants

THIS COLUMN is written for you... the homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

State Solon Establishes Mobile Regional Office

AUSTIN — If you can't bring the people to the government, take the government to the people, is the philosophy State Rep. Bill Clayton is using for his District 74 constituents.
Clayton is establishing a district office for his sprawling seven-county legislative area. But, in an effort to bring the helping hand of government as close to home as possible, the office will not be in a fixed position.
Driving a converted van, Clayton and his district assistant, Bill Sarpalus, will make regular stops at convenient downtown locations in each of the towns in the district.
Because his duties as Speaker of the House require a part of his time to be spent at the Capitol in Austin, Sarpalus will do the traveling alone when Clayton is away.
"Since I became Speaker in 1975 and had to stretch my time, I have felt that something was needed so that people in the district could have contact with my office other than by telephone or when I had a chance to visit.
"The mobile office will solve the problem by giving people in the district towns the chance to stop by and visit on a regular basis. We will be coming to answer questions and want to be helpful in solving problems involving state government," Clayton said.

The van, a 1971 Dodge, has been modified as a traveling office.
Citizens may also contact Clayton's office by telephone. The Austin number is 512-475-3311 and the number in Hereford is 806-364-7041.
The van's November schedule is as follows: today, Muleshoe, 9-noon, Wednesday, Hereford, 8-noon and 1-5 p.m.; Thursday, Morton, 9-noon and Whiteface, 1:30-4 p.m.; Monday, Dimmitt, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.; Nov. 15, Farwell, 9-noon and Bovina, 1:30-4 p.m.; Nov. 16, Hereford, 8-noon and 1-5 p.m.; Nov. 17, Olton, 9-noon and Hart, 1:30-4 p.m.; Nov. 18, Vega, 9-11:30 a.m. and Boys Ranch, noon-4 p.m. and Spade 2-4 p.m.; Nov. 22, Lazbuddie, 2-5 p.m.; Nov. 23, Hereford, 8-noon and 1-5 p.m.; Nov. 28, Dimmitt, 8 a.m. - 4 p.m.; Nov. 29, Farwell, 9-noon and Bovina, 1:30-4 p.m.; Nov. 30, Hereford, 8-noon and 1-5 p.m.

AUDI FOX BEATS CHEVY CORVETTE!

If you're a little undecided, we can't blame you. We were a little surprised ourselves when our 4-door sedan, the 5-passenger Audi Fox, beat the Chevy Corvette in a Sedan test conducted by the American Road & Builders Builders. But it's true. The Fox won! Under identical conditions, with the Institute's test driver handling both cars.

The Audi Fox beat the Chevy Corvette. One and over, and over again. And our test (0 to 50 in 8 seconds). Audi Fox is also frugal! (37 mpg highway, 23 mpg city — based on EPA estimates using standard transmission. Actual mileage may vary depending on how you drive, car's condition and optional equipment.) That's how legends are made.

O.J. Hopes To Return

BUFFALO (AP) — O.J. Simpson indicated Monday that he thinks he will be able to return to the Buffalo Bills next season — if he wants to.

Simpson, who will undergo surgery for cartilage damage to his left knee either today or Wednesday, said the surgery was not expected to be serious.

"I'm glad it's a cartilage and not a ligament. If you have to have a knee injury, mine is the kind to have. You often don't need a cast and are off crutches after three to four weeks," Simpson said.

He said chances of him returning to the Bills next season are "as good as any."

Two reasons, "pride" and the desire to "end my career on a positive note" might motivate his return.

"I can't make decisions like that until the off-season," he said.

His ever-burgeoning off-the-field interests, on the other hand, would be a factor that might cause him to retire, he said. Simpson, who has a budding acting career, said, "I've been meeting directors and getting tons of scripts."

And though Simpson said he "definitely won't ask for a trade," he would not be displeased with one.

"If I were traded to a championship team, I wouldn't be unhappy. I would play for any championship team anywhere and I would play for a lot less money," Simpson said.

Simpson said surgery was recommended by specialists because his knee was beginning to atrophy due to the cartilage damage.

The National Football League's premier runner laughed when asked if he was using the knee injury as an excuse to end his career with the struggling Bills.

"That would be rather drastic, to have an operation, don't you think?"

Raiders To Get Pork, TV For Thanksgiving Day

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

ABC-TV officials in New York confirmed Monday evening that the network will nationally televise the Texas Tech-Arkansas football game Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 24.

The contest had been scheduled for Nov. 26, but both schools agreed to the move. The game will air at 1:30 p.m. CST, and kickoff will be at 1:45 p.m. in Jones Stadium. It will be the only game televised that day.

The Avalanche-Journal had learned of the move earlier Monday. The official announcement was to have been made this morning but was made Monday instead.

Both schools were contacted about the switch last week and were in favor of it, although it means they must now play the last two games of their regular seasons within a five-day period.

Each school has three games left in the regular season. Prior to the finale, Tech will play at SMU this weekend and at Houston Nov. 19. The Razorbacks will battle Texas A&M in College Station Saturday and host SMU Nov. 19.

Tech had balked at an identical move last season because, at the time, Tech, Arkansas and Houston were still strongly in the SWC race, and it would have meant that the Raiders would have had to play two of the most important games of their season in that five-day span. Also, Tech traveled to Arkansas last year.

This season, Arkansas will have to travel to Lubbock, but that did not deter the Razorbacks from accepting the change.

Raider head coach Steve Sloan has said that he is in favor of the change in dates because of the national exposure Tech will receive. Arkansas officials indicated Monday that this was a factor in their decision. The television money, no doubt, was another factor.

Currently, Arkansas, with a 4-1 SWC mark, is still in contention for at least part of the league title. Tech, with two league losses, is out of championship contention, but both teams are strong candidates for bowl berths.

The last time Tech was included in a nationally televised, regular-season matchup was against Texas A&M in 1974. The 1969 Thanksgiving Day clash between Tech and Arkansas was also on national television.

ABC also announced Monday that the Nov. 19 Texas-Baylor game in Austin will be regionally televised following the national showing of the Michigan-Ohio State game.

Ponies Enter Tech's Bowl Plans

Reflecting Monday on Texas Tech's upcoming game with SMU in Dallas, head coach Steve Sloan remarked rather wistfully, "Well, I guess there's more than one way to get to the Cotton Bowl."

Indeed, Saturday's date with SMU is the only chance the Raiders will get this season to play in the Cotton Bowl, since their two losses in SWC play have, for all practical purposes, eliminated them from title contention.

However, Tech is still strongly in the running for a berth in some other bowl, and Sloan emphasized at his weekly press luncheon that defeating SMU is of paramount importance to Tech's bowl chances.

"It's a big game for us, as far as the bowl situation goes and our record goes. I don't think we'll be considered for a bowl if we lose to SMU."

Sloan feels that Tech must move the ball better against SMU than it has been and tighten its pass defense.

"We got a few long drives against TCU, and that's something we haven't done a lot of this year."

Following the TCU clash, Sloan had noted that Tech "hasn't generated as many big plays this year as we did last season. We haven't had as many big-play people, and we haven't been able to get the ball to the ones we have like we did last year."

SMU has some big-play types, such as

Don Henry Catch A Shooting Star

RUMORS WERE BOUNCING around the press box at Little Rock like so many stray shots at the shooting gallery. On the field below, the Razorbacks were tearing into the Baysors, but after the first quarter, it was almost the secondary show.

What was occupying so much conversation and interest was the coaching game.

If a vote had been taken after the game, as to the MVP—Most Valuable Piece (of information), it would have finished a tie. The main stories were that Tech's Steve Sloan was going to either Mississippi or LSU, and Lou Holtz, who has not been in the Ozarks long enough to learn to yodel, was heading for Ohio State.

Great game, huh? Sure beats the tar out of Arkansas 35, Baylor 9, in terms of interest.

FOR ONE THING, it's a little early for such games. Usually, they do not spring up so rapidly until the end of November. And by the middle of December, coaches are heading in all directions, whether they have a job or are just rumored for one.

It's an entertaining game, almost as juicy as the desperation days of Watergate when heads rolled at the drop of a tape recording. But, it's also quite a disillusioning game.

The rules begin with the scoreboard. That two-eyed monster, with the blinking numbers for a nose, sits there, on each end of the football field, overseeing everything that goes on and recording every score for "us" and "them."

Thing is, though, if the numbers on the "them" side are bigger than the ones under the "us" then the folks in the "us" season-ticket areas begin to squirm a bit, right on their pocket books.

And the electricity generated by this squirming usually reaches the coach—right in the seat of his contact.

When enough of these chains of events pile up, the guy finds a moving van in front of his split-level and the custodian measuring his office door for a new nameplate.

It's one of the disappointing factors about college football, but a factor nonetheless.

And the repercussions hit the Raiders' Steve Sloan smack in the face last week.

SLOAN, WITH A very enviable record (34-18-1 career, 22-9 at Tech), is one of the first names which crops up when a team goes looking for a coach to replace the ousted one. And, as to the rumors in that Little Rock press-box congregation last Saturday night, all were of jobs where the coaches are still in command.

Ole Miss' Ken Cooper is said to be under fire for his lack of success since knocking off Notre Dame earlier this year. At LSU, Charlie McClendon has been on the griddle despite being so successful over most of his long career there. But, this fall, he came up with some winners—big winners—only to fall to Alabama Saturday. And, for a year or so, the bumper stickers popped up about "Help Mac Pack."

But, Ohio State? That's where Woody Hayes rules the fort. And, (1. Who's gonna try to unseat one of the most successful coaches in the nation, and (2. who has the guts to try to root out Woody, personally? Guy's gotta be a few marbles short to take on that kind of project.

Thus, there appears no job openings, much less some names ready to take the jobs.

WHENEVER A YOUNG coach possesses a brilliant record—and both Sloan and Arkansas' Holtz do—then he automatically goes in that category of wanting to move up and take a better position.

As the years pass, the names pop up, and seldom does the popping come from the school athletic offices initially. The rumors come first. It's a good game over the coffee cup—all of us have played it—to try to predict or guess who will succeed when, and if an opening does exist. But, just as Sloan mentioned last week when his name was first linked with the Ole Miss "non-job," usually, the persons named have not even been contacted.

A few years ago, every time an opening occurred, the name of Johnny Majors appeared. There were some who said he welcomed the publicity, but finally, the publicity—if that was what it was—proved monotonous. At the time that Tech was looking for a successor to Jim Carlen—the time Sloan was ultimately hired—the name of Bennie Ellender was hot on the prospects lists. Now—for what it's worth—Majors is at Tennessee, his alma mater, and Ellender is playing golf, living off a contact settlement negotiated after being fired at Tulane.

Whether either was helped or hurt by the rumors is not known, but it could have put some pressures on them which did not exist otherwise. More than once, coaches have received raises—probably deserved, too—from all the publicity. But, more than once, coaches have been hurt in other ways, as rivals used the rumors against them in recruiting situations.

In most cases, rumors turn out to be only that—rumors. Then, an unknown entry slips in, almost unannounced, to accept a position.

The stories made good talk in Little Rock. And, granted, LSU and Ole Miss could opt for new coaches, and Woody Hayes could retire at OSU before the turn of the century. Then, all three schools could be looking for young coaching talent. They could look in the directions mentioned; odds are long in these cases, though.

Until all these suppositions fit together perfectly, however, the ones being injured are on both sides of the fence, the schools and their present coaches, as well as the rumored prospects.

Rangers Offer Hisle Pact Worth $3 Million

ARLINGTON (AP) — Texas Rangers owner Brad Corbett says he has offered baseball free agent Larry Hisle a ten-year contract with financial terms around $3 million to lure the American League RBI champion to Texas.

But Corbett added Monday he will not offer Hisle a bonus on top of the contract cash.

"Nope," Corbett answered when asked about a possible bonus. "If he doesn't want a contract, to hell with it."

Hisle's agent Dick Moss said the Rangers' offer was strong enough to convince the former Minnesota player that the Rangers want him.

The Rangers picked Hisle in the fifth round of the free agent draft. Rangers officials were under investigation by Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn for allegedly tampering with Hisle. The officials later claimed they were only joking in saying publicly they would go after him while Hisle was still negotiating with the Minnesota Twins, and "crank up the presses" to get enough money to sign him.

Rooney Sticks By Steelers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Fretting Pittsburgh Steeler fans prompted the names Art Rooney recently gave two race horses on his Maryland breeding farm.

"I named one 'What Happened' and the other one 'What's The Trouble,'" the Steeler founder said Monday with a mild chuckle that jiggled the cigar in his jaw.

"I've heard those questions a lot. I wish I knew the answers," he added in a more serious tone.

The horses' names won't be official until about January. It will take that long to determine whether other thoroughbreds already have those handles.

Yet the 76-year-old Rooney should know well before then what names people are calling his Steelers, 4-4 and troubled by injuries, contract hassles, turnovers, and penalties.

"We're a good ballclub that just hasn't put it together, but I think we have just as good a chance to win our division as Cleveland, Houston or Cincinnati," Rooney said.

It's true that a victory here Sunday over Cleveland would put Pittsburgh back into a tie for first in pro football's tightest division race, the American Conference Central.

But the Steelers will have to make an abrupt turnabout, which they didn't do Sunday in a 21-7 loss to the Broncos in Denver.

Like most Steeler fans, Rooney watched the Denver game on television. Indeed, he was in front of the television the whole afternoon in his North Side home and flicked back and forth between two earlier games on different channels.

"I enjoy the games more on television because I see them better," said Rooney.

"There are so many added things you see on television like Grandstand, and I even have a television set in the kitchen so I can watch what's on at halftime when I'm eating."

By half-time Sunday in Denver, the Steelers were behind 21-0.

"It's always hard to watch the team lose," said Rooney. "It's never easy."

The Steelers, who escaped serious injuries in recent seasons, lost two more players Sunday. Defensive linemen L.C. Greenwood and John Banaszak will be out indefinitely with knee injuries.

"I've always thought that the good teams that stay healthy are the teams that win Super Bowls," said Rooney.

In addition, the Steeler were smitten with 12 penalties in Denver, raising their league-leading total to 78 infractions for minus 606 yards.

"I think a lot of the penalties are uncalled for," said Rooney.

"I don't mean they've been miscalled by the officials, but I think we've made a lot of dumb mistakes with penalties that we shouldn't make."

The Steelers also lead the league with 34 turnovers, which include 17 pass interceptions and 17 fumbles.

KNOWS HIS STEELERS — Pittsburgh Steeler founder and owner Art Rooney said Monday that after watching Sunday's game with the Broncos, he still thinks he owns a good team. "I think we have a good ballclub, and just haven't put it together," Rooney said. He also noted "a lot of dumb mistakes" when talking about the Steeler's recent problems. (AP Laserphoto)

Arkansas Grabs SWC Cross-Country Crown

WACO (Special)—Rice's Mike Novelli slipped past Mike Clark of Arkansas to win the individual championship in the Southwest Conference cross-country meet here Monday morning, but the win did not prevent the Razorbacks from taking their fourth straight team crown.

Novelli came home in a time of 29:34, over the 10,000-meter (about six miles) course, and Clark faced to 30:13.

However, under the formula of the low score winning, Arkansas scored 59 points to win the title. Rice was second with 63 points, and Texas Tech had one of its highest finishes ever in coming in third with 111 points.

Texas A&M finished fourth with 115 points, Texas 126, host Baylor 130, Houston 131, SMU 158 and TCU 264.

Tech finished third two years ago and the only time it has finished higher was in 1967 when it came in second. Tech was to the race here.

Tech achieved its high finish despite an individual in the top ten. Best finisher was 14th by junior Ricky McCormick, who was timed in 31:28 for 14th. He was followed by senior Marc Johnson, 15th in 31:43; freshman Robert Wilson, 19th in 31:57; sophomore Greg Lautenslager, 26th in 32:25; junior Tony Lozano 37th in 33:20; freshman Richard Postma 42nd in 33:49; and freshman Darrell Rose 48th in 35:29.

Only the scores of the first five runners in the team standings.

"I was very pleased," said Tech track coach Corky Oglesby. "Getting third was very good, especially since two of our five guys (Johnson and Lozano) are walk-ons."

"I thought McCormick ran very well. He went through his three and four miles the fastest he's ever run. And I thought Wilson ran well for a freshman."

Behind the two leaders individually, Texas A&M's Manfred Kohrs finished third with a time of 30:15.

Class B Grid Playoffs Set For Six South Plains Teams

Three area playoffs are on tap this week involving Class B schools.

In six-man play, Wellman (10-0) faces Highland (6-4) for the 3-B title. That tilt will be at 7 p.m. Friday in Lenora (Grady High School). Wellman captured the North Zone outright and Highland shared the South title with Hermleigh, but beat Hermleigh 42-13 iday to nab the playoff rights. Winner will face Benjamin (9-0) in bidistrict.

A pair of state-ranked units, No. 5 Ropesville (9-0) and Motley County (8-2), which shares the No. 10 spot, will clash at 7:30 p.m. Friday, in Petersburg for the 2-gate playoff rights.

B title. Ropes won the South Zone outright and Motley County shared the North title with Sudan, but won the head-to-head battle 34-31. Winner here will face No. 1 state ranked Wheeler in bidistrict.

Borden County (6-4), state ranked at the start of the season, will face Jayton (8-2) for the 3-B title. BC copped the West crown outright and Jayton shared the East title with defending league champ Forsan, which the Jaybirds beat 14-13.

The Jayton-Borden County game will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Post. Winner there will meet the 4-B zone playoff winner in bidistrict. The 4-B title game matches Fort Davis (8-1) against Dell City (7-3) at 3 p.m. Saturday in Pecos.

Other South Plains teams having wrapped up playoff rights include:

In AAAA, Tascosa (3-4A), Monterey (4-4A) and Odessa Permian (5-4A).

In AAA, Perryton (1-3A), Andrews (2-3A), San Angelo Lake View (3-3A) and Brownwood (4-3A).

In AA, Idalou (4-AA).

In A, Petersburg (4-A) and Seagraves (5-A).

In New Mexico, both Jal and Eunice have made the AA semifinals. Jal will host Lordsburg at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Eunice must face No. 1 ranked Escalante.

Todd To Miss Seattle Clash

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Jets announced Monday that injured quarterback Richard Todd, the fourth-ranked passer in the American Football Conference, would not play in Sunday's game against the Seattle Seahawks.

Todd, who has completed 100 of 181 passes for 1,449 yards and eight touchdowns this season, suffered a sprained right knee during the second quarter of Sunday's 14-10 loss to the Miami Dolphins.

The Jets said that Todd was admitted to Lenox Hill Hospital for precautionary measures although X-rays showed no fractures.

"Richard has too much of a future ahead of him to take a chance on using him (against Seattle)," said Jets Coach Walt Michaels. "We plan to start Marty Domres, with Matt Robinson in reserve."

The Jets also announced that defensive right tackle Abdul Salaam, suffering from a neck injury, and strong safety Shafer Suggs, who re-injured a shoulder against Miami, were questionable for the Seattle game.

Baltimore Ticket Prices To Jump

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles announced Monday that many ticket prices for the American League baseball club's home games would go up next season.

At the same time, the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League said ticket prices for their seats next year.

Orioles General Manager Hank Peters said lower box seats would increase from $6 to $6.25 and terrace boxes from $4.25 to $4.50.

Upper reserved, adult general admission and children's general admission would all be raised 25-cents, he said.

Mezzanine boxes, lower reserved and bleacher tickets would stay the same next year, he said.

Peters said that despite this season's home attendance of 1,195,768—the second highest in the team's history, the club expected earnings for the fiscal year ending last month would fall below $100,000.

Tahoka Looking To Get 'High' Against Tigers

By WALT McALEXANDER
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Can Tahoka get 'high' again? Coach A.D. Shaver certainly hopes so as the Bulldogs, tabbed for a sixth-place finish in the seven-team 5-AA race back in August, is a win away from the loop's playoff spot.

And any way it works out, for the third straight year a 9-1 team will remain on the sidelines.

Presently, Tahoka shares the top spot with Slaton and Frenship, who both own 9-1 ledgers. The Bulldogs are "only" 6-3, but face Frenship Friday.

Since Tahoka nudged Slaton 9-7 last Friday, all it has to do is beat Frenship. A tie or a Frenship win would give Slaton the playoff rights, since the Tigers nipped Frenship 7-0 two weeks back.

"Our defense is the reason we won it," Shaver pointed out Monday. "White returned that pass (72 yards) for a touchdown, Randy Meeks (middle linebacker) was in on 13 tackles and, after that, well, it was just a great team effort."

"Slaton has one of the best defenses in the country. And it seemed like they had the ball all night. We only got 48 snaps. They had 190 yards to our 141 and they led in first downs 11-8. But our pass defense was just fabulous. They only had one completion for minus three yards."

Tahoka workhorse Clifford Bailey has his second-lowest output of the season, also, carrying 34 times for an even 100 yards. That increased his nine-game total to 1,795 yards.

"I'm a bit concerned about our entire offense," Shaver said when questioned about the passing attack, that misfired on all three attempts against Slaton. "We haven't done much the last couple of games. But then, the defenses we're going against could have something to do with that, too."

"We've got a lot of young kids across the offensive line and that's a factor, I know. Plus, everyone is keying on Bailey. But when you've got a back as good as he is . . . and he's the best I've ever coached

. . . you just have to ignore that and turn and keep giving the ball to him."

And that's what they did Friday. Quarterback Ed Robinson had 22 yards on seven carries and the other three Bulldog backs — Reggie House, White and Jerry Hatchett — combined for four carries for 19 yards.

White's interception was his third of the year and he now has 177 return yards and two TDs on those thefts. He returned one for 95 yards against Plains.

Should Tahoka represent the league, it would mark the third time in as many years that a team that lost its district opener rebounded to share the league title and nab the playoff rights.

Slaton accomplished that feat in 1975 when Post, a 9-1 team, stayed home. And last year Post turned the trick when Slaton, a 9-1 team, stayed home.

And this year, another 9-1 team — either Slaton, provided the Tigers beat Cooper, which is winless in district, or Frenship, if the Tigers beat Tahoka, will stay home.

Ironically, Shaver feels Frenship has a better team than Slaton. "I believe Frenship is a little bit better on offense because they can throw both short and long and they like to control the ball. They did that against Slaton but got beat by the long pass."

Michigan Means Mum For Woody

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — You can tell Michigan week is near for Woody Hayes. He's even expanding his policy of keeping his Ohio State football players from talking to newsmen. That rule takes in his assistant coaches as well.

"Now," the Ohio State coach told his weekly press luncheon Monday, "we will be more reticent about giving interviews with our players. And maybe interviews with our coaches for that reason."

Hayes, aware his Buckeyes can clinch a Big Ten co-title against Indiana Saturday, said, "We're batten down the hatches and getting ready to go. We don't do that for a personal reason. The reason is we want to win."

After the visiting Hoosiers, Ohio State visits Michigan next week with the conference championship and an accompanying Rose Bowl berth likely at stake.

Hayes was asked if he would discourage his players from talking about Michigan this week.

"If it's a normal reaction," he replied, "I wouldn't try to throttle it at all. We're always thinking in that direction obviously. It's the last game on our schedule and always the toughest."

With fourth place Indiana upcoming, Hayes, one of the college sport's master psychologists, then caught himself.

"We don't look past anybody though and we're not going to stop this week. Indiana is a good team. But I don't like to build them up. That's bad psychology. They might believe me."

Hayes, looking back to Saturday's 35-0 romp at Illinois, said he's amazed that the Buckeyes have four shutouts in an 8-1 season. They are the only unbeaten team in the league at 6-0.

"Shutouts were more common when games were won 3-0 or 6-3," said Hayes, whose team has tied a single season shut-out mark for the school. "Offenses are more diversified. As a result, it's harder to get a shutout."

Hayes said the Buckeyes would be in good physical condition for the Hoosiers, fourth in the conference with a 3-2-1 record.

Center-guard Mark Lang has a sore ankle, center Tim Vogler a hip pointer and star tailback Ron Springs a sore shoulder. Hayes said all are expected to face Indiana, however.

Patterson Named To Hall

NEW YORK (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, Lou Jenkins, one-time lightweight champion, and the late Chalky Wright, who was king of the featherweights, were named Monday to the Boxing Hall of Fame.

They were named on the necessary 75 per cent of 804 votes cast by sports writers and sportscasters in voting conducted by The Ring magazine.

Also named to the hall were Tom King, who fought in the 1800s and was selected by the Board of Directors of the Hall of Fame which is run by The Ring, and Jimmy Britt, who fought in the early 1900s and was picked by the Oldtimer's Committee.

Patterson was the youngest man to win the heavyweight title and the first man to win it twice. He currently is a member of the New York State Athletic Commission.

Patterson won 55 of 64 fights, winning the title at the age of 21 with a fifth-round knockout of Archie Moore Nov. 30, 1956. He defended it four times before being knocked out by Ingemar Johansson in three rounds June 26, 1959. He then regained it with a fifth-round knockout of Johansson June 20, 1960 and held it for two defenses before losing to Sonny Liston.

Jenkins, a tremendous hitter for a lightweight, won the 135-pound title by knocking out Lou Ambers May 10, 1940. He held the championship until Dec. 19, 1941 when he was outpointed by Sammy Angott. He won 66 of 109 fights, 47 by knockouts.

Wright, who died in 1957, won the featherweight crown by knocking out Joey Archibald Sept. 11, 1941, and lost it on a decision to Willie Pep Nov. 20, 1942. He won 102 of 140 fights and scored 57 knockouts.

Landry, 'Pokes Face Six Hurdles

DALLAS (UPI) —The Dallas Cowboys have now come to that part in their schedule that gives them a chance to prove they are as good as their 8-0 record. Coach Tom Landry seems ready for it. "This is going to be our toughest stretch of the season," Landry said following the Cowboys' 24-10 win over the

New York Giants. "But I think it's what we need." During the next three weeks Dallas faces St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Washington, who will perhaps give the Cowboys more inspiration than have their last three foes — Philadelphia, Detroit and the

"If we win two of those three games I'd say we'd have had an exceptional performance," the coach said.

For the past few weeks the Cowboys have been winning with a so-so performance from the offense and an increasingly stunning performance from the defense.

*The Cowboys, easily leading the NFL in defense, sacked New York quarterback Joe Pisarcik eight times Sunday, bringing their season total to 39. That averages out to almost five traps per game and if the Cowboys keep that up they will crack their team record of 61. San Francisco's offense led the league last year with 61 sacks.

Part of Dallas' offensive difficulties Sunday had to do with a first class defensive effort by the Giants and part of the trouble had to do with quarterback Roger Staubach's bruised and inflamed hip. Staubach was a doubtful starter, but during warmups decided his hip felt better than it had in four days. So he played and wound up hitting 14 of 25 passes for 19 yards and a touchdown. He has thrown only one interception this year in 216 attempts.

"As long as a guy knows his injury is something that will not be worsened by playing he usually wants to play," said Staubach. "I fell hard on the hip once and got it hit once."

"It's going to be sore for a while." "I think Roger's performance was remarkable," Landry said. "For a guy who had a leg as bad as he had and hurt as bad as he did this week, it was just really a credit to him that he played as well as he did."

"The doctors felt that the worse that could happen was that he would get hit and would have to go through another week of rehabilitation like he did last week. There was nothing serious that could happen, other than more soreness."

"And I felt this was an important game for us. We couldn't afford to drop this game going into the stretch that we have coming up."

Landry also had some kind words for his steadily improving defense.

"Our pass rush against the Giants was the best we've had this year," Landry said. "We controlled them with our defense and the pass rush had a lot to do with it."

"Randy White moved to defensive tackle from outside linebacker during the preseason and has been super. He's definitely added something to the rush. He has just one speed — full out. He's been the catalyst."

'77 Quickly Turning Into Wild Year For NFL Division Races

By Associated Press
On any given weekend, Commissioner Pete Rozelle is fond of saying, any National Football League team is capable of beating, or, for that matter, losing to any other member of the 28-club lodge.

And if you don't believe the boss, check out what has been going on in his playground this season.

The barometer for any league's success is balance and, except for unbeaten Dallas and winless Tampa Bay, the NFL has been a picture of parity this season.

Eight weeks into the season, only five teams are more than two games over .500 and the standings reflect the kind of topsy-turvy year it has been.

Three division leaders—Cleveland in the American Conference Central and Minnesota and Los Angeles in the National Conference Central and West, respectively—have very ordinary 5-3 records.

Upsets continue to dot each week's action, leaving favorites stumbling and underdogs scoring unexpected victories.

Item—Buffalo, battered 56-17 a week earlier by expansionist Seattle and playing without injured O.J. Simpson and on the road against playoff-hopeful New England, stuns the Patriots 24-14.

Item—San Diego jolts Miami with a last-second touchdown to tag the Dolphins with only their second defeat of the season. Then, sky-high after the emotional victory, the Chargers go into Detroit and are blanketed by the Lions 20-0.

Item—Los Angeles embarrasses Minnesota 35-3 on a Monday night game, then loses to lowly New Orleans the following Sunday. The Saints, obviously inspired by beating the Rams, then lose to Philadelphia 28-7.

Item—Minnesota recovers from its one-sided Monday night loss to Los Angeles by beating Atlanta, then returns triumphantly home only to be battered by St. Louis 27-7.

Item—Pittsburgh and Atlanta both have lost their last two games and both are 4-4 for the season. Yet, both are only one game behind their division leaders, the Steelers tied with Houston and Cincinnati behind Cleveland in the AFC Central and the Falcons alone in second place in the NFC West behind Los Angeles.

The Central Divisions in both conferences have confounded analysis.

In the AFC, Houston dropped three straight games after a 3-1 start, then the Oilers looked like Super bowl champions Sunday, battering Chicago 47-0. Cincinnati had lost four of its first six games and seemed set to drop out of the race. Then the Bengals won two straight, including a 13-10 decision at Cleveland Sunday. Pittsburgh had won two straight for a 4-2 record and seemed ready to take control. Then the Steelers dropped their next two and find themselves in the AFC Central tie for second place.

In the NFC, Minnesota dropped its opener in overtime to Dallas but recovered to win four straight. Since then, however, the Vikings have lost two of three and are just one game ahead of erratic Detroit, which scored the first NFC victory over an AFC team this season by beating San Diego Sunday. Chicago, favored to challenge the Vikings for the title this season, have lost three of the last four, including Sunday's embarrassment at Houston.

So, who do you like in this week's games? This season, you're safe with just about anybody.

LCC Junior Varsity Meets SPC Tonight

LEVELLAND (Special) — Darrell Price hopes the Lubbock Christian College Junior Varsity can bounce back from a 32-point (125-73) season-opening thrashing tonight when they tackle South Plains College.

Tonight's game will be SPC's opener. LCC doesn't have a man above 6-6 and seven of the nine JV's are guards, so Price's task is not an easy one.

Price will go with sophomores Steve Doudney and Robert Cobb at the guards, with Lamar Sampsy, Roosevelt Gatterson and Mike Buckner on the front line.

Vermeil Urges 'Secrecy Rule'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Coach Dick Vermeil of the Philadelphia Eagles proposed Monday that National Football League officials stop informing the crowd who committed a penalty "because it is unjust."

"Hall the time there is not a penalty on the guy," Vermeil told a new conference where he discussed Sunday's 28-7 victory over New Orleans and predicted the 3-5 Eagles continue to improve every week and might wind up winning half of their remaining six games.

The guy (identified with committing the penalty) gets booed and everything else, and it may be more just to say the official made a mistake and boo him," Vermeil said in backing up his idea to urge the NFL Players Association and the coaches to join in keeping secret the identity of the player charged with the infraction.

"I don't think it's right."

Vermeil said he didn't want to comment about penalties, pointing out he had been fined $1,000 Oct. 24 for criticizing some of the calls in the Eagles game against Dallas the day before. Then he proceeded to comment:

"We had a holding penalty called against (tight end) Keith Kreplie by an official who was 20 yards away from the play on the other side of the field," Vermeil said. "Bleep, I'd love to give you my feelings on that one."

Specifically, Vermeil was asked about the three holding calls against Ed George, his right offensive tackle, which brought derisive cheers from the home crowd.

"I don't get upset about it," he said. "I really don't. You can get called holding on almost any snap. Ed George is doing well. We made a lot of yards running over him."

Vermeil was obviously happy over the team's performance against a Saints team that had upset Los Angeles a week earlier.

"I'm pleased with the character and the intensity with which we played, especially the defense," he said. "We beat a team that was better than a couple of teams we lost to."

Concerning the penalties, and even the turnover interceptions and fumbles which caused some of the early season losses, Vermeil said he wouldn't fluctuate from week to week in the confidence he has in the individuals on the squad.

"I'm not going to do it," he said. "Sometimes it gets hard not to. Hell it would be exciting to have big stars, like Tony Dorsett (of Dallas) but I don't have them."

"I am very pleased with the guys I do have. And we have a mutual respect on our squad between the coaching staff and the players and good morale and the only way you can maintain that is to stick together."

Oilers Use '50-Cent' Plays In Bear Win

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's big play offense, as detonated by Dan Pastorini, Ken Burrough and Billy Johnson, reappeared in a 47-0 victory over Chicago, but Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips said Monday the Oilers have not thrown away their conservative play book.

"Instead of nicking and diming them we had a few 50-cent plays but we didn't change our theory," Phillips said after handing the Bears their worst defeat since 1964. "We ran the same plays, threw the same patterns and same snap count. We just did them better."

The Oilers' philosophy this season has been the more conservative approach — establish the ground game, throw the under or short passes and keep control of the football.

Going into Sunday's game the Oilers ranked last in the American Football Conference in total offense and rushing and passing offense. But Pastorini rushed caution to the wind and when it was over the Oilers had amassed 489 yards total offense.

Pastorini hit Burrough on touchdown plays of 85 and 43 yards, Johnson ran 61 yards on an end run for a touchdown and returned a free kick 75 yards for another touchdown.

Linebacker Gregg Bingham got the defense into the big play act with a 34 yard touchdown run with a fumble on the first play of the fourth quarter.

The Oiler defense also contributed six quarterback sacks for 52 yards in losses, a safety and held two Bear quarterbacks to a minus 16 yards passing, lost in the team's 58-year history.

Both of Burrough's touchdown bombs came when the sleek Oiler receiver found himself single covered by 5-8 defensive back Virgil Livens.

"This was the first time certain situations had presented themselves like covering Kenny one on one," Phillips said. "We hadn't had a lot of that in fact almost none, and probably won't get it again."

Phillips said part of the Oiler game plan was to go deep to Burrough against the Bears.

"They hadn't played much double coverage this year and we figured if they stayed with that, we could get it to Burrough," Phillips said.

Burrough finished the game with six catches for 180 yards and two touchdowns and Pastorini completed 11 of 18 passes for 246 yards and the two TD passes to Burrough.

Phillips said the victory, which returned the Oilers to the thick of the tight American Football Conference Central Division race, gave the Oilers confidence. They'll need it Sunday against the Oakland Raiders.

"We'll have a lot more confidence this week because of the way we beat them—offensively, defensively and special teams," Phillips said.

Houston is 4-4 and tied with Cincinnati and Pittsburgh in the Central Division, one game behind Cleveland, 5-3.

Grant Displeased With Viking Play

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP)—Even Coach Bud Grant voiced some public displeasure with the performance of his team after the Minnesota Vikings were outclassed 27-7 by the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday.

"Our people may have gotten comfortable with where they are in 1977," said Grant. "And maybe we're just not as good any more. You can't answer it with six games left."

The Vikings saw their record drop to 5-3 and now lead the Detroit Lions by only one game in the Central Division of the National Football Conference.

"You look at the team," said Grant. "It's been winning for years. The setting here is good for a football player. He gets paid well; the crowds are with him, he's a hero around town. He's two games in front, so he doesn't get the bit into his teeth like he has to stay on top in pro football."

The Vikings have won four straight divisional championships and the success may have made them complacent. They won four in a row from 1968 through 1971 and the 1972 team dropped to third with a 7-7 record.

St. Louis rolled up 316 yards on the ground and added 143 through the air, although quarterback Jim Hart put his aerial attack in mothballs at halftime because of the comfortable 20-0 lead.

Fred Cox missed two short field goals for the Vikings in the first half and indicated that he might call it quits if a suitable replacement can be found.

"I wouldn't be adverse to giving up the job right now if Bud Grant could find a guy to help the team," said Cox, who has hit on only five of 12 attempts this season.

"I'm not being a defeatist about," said pro football's No. 3 all-time scorer. "It's going to be hard for us to win the last couple of months if I keep going this way. I'm not contributing anything kicking like this."

Quarterback Fran Tarkenton took some of the blame for the lack of offense. "My job is to get us into the end zone," he said. "We didn't until it was too late. They had an average NFL defense. We should have scored more, and we should have scored a lot earlier."

But Grant sounded one encouraging note. "When all of the wailing is over, and all of our post-mortems, we're still leading the Central Division. And we don't apologize to anybody for that."

The Vikings face the Cincinnati Bengals, 4-4, at home Sunday.

Leach Nabs AP Big Ten Honor

CHICAGO (AP) — Quarterback Rick Leach of Michigan has been named The Associated Press Big Ten player of the week on offense for his exploits in a 63-20 victory over Northwestern Saturday.

It marked the second time this season the junior from Flint, Mich., has captured the award.

Leach broke open a 14-7 game in the third quarter by passing for two touchdowns and running for two others. He completed 8 of 11 passes for 155 yards including touchdown passes of 41 and 26 yards. He scored on runs of 21 and 4 yards.

"I'd have to say he was exceptional," said Wolverine Coach Bo Schembecher. "He's got to run well and pass well for us to be a good team. He's dangerous because he can run at you, he can pitch the ball out and then he can hurt with the bomb. This may have been his best game running the option."

Others nominated for the award included Ron Springs of Ohio State who gained 132 yards in 24 carries and scored on a 15-yard run in a 35-0 victory over Illinois; quarterback Ed Smith of Michigan State who completed 9 of 18 passes for 235 yards and two touchdowns in a 29-10 triumph over Minnesota, and substitute quarterback Tim Clifford of Indiana who came off the bench and completed 8 of 15 passes for 143 yards and a touchdown in a 24-21 victory over Iowa.

Quinney Nabs TKO Victory

Ronald Quinney of the Lubbock Dragons recorded the only non-decision victory in last weekend's Fight Night, recording a TKO triumph over Carlos Quintora of the Lubbock Warriors in the 45-pound division.

Boxers from all four Lubbock Golden Gloves groups—the Dragons, Warriors, Arnett-Benson and Brown Berets—will trek to Stunnett for bouts this Friday.

Other results include:

55-pound division—Johnny Flores, Lubbock Dragons, dec. Eli Gonzalez, Plainview; Felix Martinez, Plainview, dec. Phil Zimmerman, Lubbock Warriors; Rudy Rivera, Lubbock Dragons, dec. David Regalado, Plainview.
